This view of Halley's Comet, much like that seen with the naked eye, was taken by local photographer Carla Harrold on March 19 at 4 a.m. from eight miles north of Big Spring. She used a 35mm camera with a 100mm lens and 1600 ASA film exposed for 25 seconds at f/2.8. Halley's Comet can best be viewed between now and April 18, though it will be at its closest point to earth April 11. It should rise almost due south about 3 a.m. and be seen until sunrise. The best spots to view the comet are south of the city, where there are less horizon lights to interfere.

He's seen

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Halley's comet is nothing new to Jack Roberts of 1206 11th Place. He's seen it before.

Roberts was 7 years old when the comet appeared in 1910, he said, and "it was quite a phenomenon. I remember it vividly."

West Texas was different then, he said. The wilderness teemed with lobo wolves, coyotes and "lots and lots of rabbits." Children attended one-room schoolhouses that doubled as churches on Sunday, and every community had a baseball team.

"If there was an automobile anywhere you'd go miles to see it, because they were very rare," he said. At age 7, he had never seen one.

Most people here were ranchers, and no one had heard much about oil, he said.

Halley's comet was more distinct in 1910, Roberts said. It was more vivid, and the tail wasn't as transparent. It was closer to earth, he said, and easier to see with the naked eye.

Roberts said he remembers going outside at 5 a.m. with his parents and seven brothers to view the comet. The family was living near Green Valley, five miles southwest of Vincent, with no city lights to mar the starry view.

He remembers his father telling him "now when it comes around again, somebody will say, 'Go over and see Uncle Jack Roberts — he's seen it before,' and that's just about what they did," Roberts said.

People then were afraid that the tail of the comet would hit the earth and destroy it, he said, but he doesn't remember how they reacted when the catastrophe didn't occur.

Roberts said now he's bought a telescope to view the comet, but he hasn't been able to use it yet because it's been raining or too dusty.

Gunman holds off police second day

CHICAGO (AP) — A gunman who killed his landlord and a police officer before taking an elderly woman hostage held police at bay for a second day Friday, telling negotiators he had made breakfast for his captive and drawn up a will.

"We are in constant communication. We have a good rapport," said John Townsend, deputy chief of the Chicago Police Department patrol division. He said the gunman was "talking strong" despite going without sleep since the standoff began.

"He said he was sorry two people are dead," said John Byrne, deputy assistant police superintendent.

Two dogs belonging to the hostage were shot and killed Thursday and thrown out a window of the building, said Detective Ed McCloskey.

Within an hour of the first shooting at about 3 p.m. Thursday, Police Superintendent Fred Rice issued a televised appeal for the gunman, identified as John L. Pasch Jr., to surrender peacefully. He said police were prepared to wait for Pasch's peaceful surrender.

As the standoff passed the 24-hour mark, Rice issued another appeal for Pasch to surrender and release his hostage, 74-year-old Jean Wiwatowski, who "needs medical assistance."

"She's a heart patient, and we want to get her out so she can get proper assistance," Rice said. "We're appealing to him to come on out, bring the lady with him. Let's call it a day."

"He's an avid television viewer, apparently, and I hope he sees these broadcasts and he'll come out as a result," Rice said in a televised interview. "We feel he needs help. We know the lady that he has with him needs help."

Townsend said Pasch is keenly interested in the television coverage and "wants to know what channel everything is on. He missed one appeal (by Rice) and he asked that it be rebroadcast. We did it again."

Sharpshooters were posted on roofs around the wood-frame, two-apartment building where Pasch, described by police as a 300-pound, unemployed machinist in his 50s, was barricaded with at least three weapons — a handgun, a shotgun and a rifle, authorities said.

"He talks like he's got explosives, but we don't know," said

Joseph DiLeonardi, commander of the police district.

Ms. Wiwatowski was unharmed and had the freedom of the house, Byrne said.

Rice said the first shooting apparently was prompted by a landlord-tenant dispute. The gunman was behind in his rent, and the landlord, Leslie Shearer, 45, of suburban Barrington, was shot when he went to the man's home to collect, Rice said.

Officer Richard Clark, 48, an 18-year veteran of the force, was shot when he responded to reports

Standoff

Continued from page 1A of gunfire, Rice said. The officer, as part of the district's tactical unit, was not in uniform. The gunman then fled to an adjacent building occupied by Ms. Wiwatowski and her sister, who fled unharmed, he said. Residents were evacuated and the street closed off. Thursday night's negotiations brought several tense moments, with the gunman at different times telling police he was considering suicide and that he would "only come out feet first," DiLeonardi said. At another point, the gunman broke off talks and said he didn't want to be disturbed while he watched a movie, "Battle of the Bulge," on television early Friday. Townsend said Pasch also told negotiators Thursday night that he had prepared a will, witnessed by his hostage. The gunman made the woman a breakfast of biscuits, jam and coffee, he said. Brian Kelly, one of Pasch's neighbors, said Pasch had lived in the neighborhood for more than a decade. "He's one of those people you read about all the time who shut themselves off completely from the world," said Kelly. Rice said the gunman hadn't worked for a few months and his only known encounter with the law before was in 1978, when he was acquitted of a battery charge.

No Russians at N-test

WASHINGTON — The United States plans to hold an underground nuclear weapons test in the Nevada desert next Tuesday, apparently without the presence of Soviet monitors invited by President Reagan to verify that the blast is within 1974 treaty limits.

However, a senior U.S. official said Reagan's three-week-old invitation to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev also extends to another U.S. test to be set off at the end of the month. "So far, we haven't heard from them," said the official, who spoke on condition of not being identified by name.

Next week's test, the second by the United States this year, will coincide with a farewell visit to the White House by former Soviet ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin, who was recalled last month in a Kremlin shakeup to take a major post in the central committee of the Communist party.

Group urges jet sales

WASHINGTON — A group of 52 prominent conservatives appealed to President Reagan Friday to sell advanced fighter aircraft to Taiwan to offset a proposed sale to China of $550 million in American fighter technology.

The conservatives said in letter to Reagan that they are "deeply concerned" about the proposed sale to Peking and "how such sales will negatively impact on the security of the Republic of China in Taiwan."

The sale, which is expected to go to Congress for consideration next week, would include radar and navigation equipment for China's existing F-8 aircraft. It would be the biggest military deal yet between the United States and the communist government in Peking, according to the Pentagon.

Measles hit New Jersey

LYNDHURST, N.J. — State officials faced with the nation's worst measles epidemic in three years urged health officers Friday to step up vaccinations of young children, warning that some could die if the disease continues its rapid spread.

More than 500 cases of rubeola, or seven-day measles, have been reported in northern New Jersey since Nov. 15. State health officials Thursday declared a health emergency in seven counties.

The majority of victims are pre-school children, officials have said.

Brain cells transplanted

NEW YORK — Scientists have successfully transplanted human fetal brain tissue into rat brains, but ethical questions may keep such work from progressing to a possible treatment for Parkinson's disease, a researcher said Friday.

The issue of using human fetal brain tissue, which another transplant researcher called "explosive," must be decided by society rather than just scientists, said Patrik Brundin of the University of Lund in Sweden.

Andrey Kokoshin, Soviet expert on U.S.-U.S.S.R. relations told a symposium in Austin Friday that the Soviet Union has paid a high price for military parity with the United States.

Superpower symposium

Soviet says military parity provides security

AUSTIN (AP) — A Soviet specialist on the U.S. political system said Friday the Soviets had paid a high price to become as strong militarily as the United States but now feels more secure than it has since "maybe the times of Peter the Great."

Peter the Great, czar and emperor of Russia, died in 1725.

Andrey Kokoshin, deputy director of the Institute for the USA and Canada in Moscow, presented a Soviet perspective of the 40 years since World War II. His speech was part of a University of Texas symposium on how the two superpowers had managed to avoid a nuclear holocaust.

Kokoshin, speaking English, said in the Soviet view the most important development in the postwar period was when "the Soviet Union reached strategic parity with the United States" in the late 1960s or early 1970s.

"Maybe, in my view, our feeling of security now is the greatest since maybe the times of Peter the Great ... which provides us much more confidence in our ability to preserve the peace, to deter the aggression ..."

"Strategic parity, of course, is regarded by our people as an enormous achievement, and we paid a very high price for it — in economic terms and in terms of the use of talents or our scientists, engineers" in building arms and arms systems.

Kokoshin said with Soviet atomic weapons capable of reaching the United States, "We understand why, psychologically, many Americans are so uncomfortable with the situation of parity but that's an irreversible situation, and somehow those who didn't adjust have no choice but to adjust."

Without mentioning President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars," by name, Kokoshin said "now we see the danger of an arms race in space." He said it could result in a "much lower level of stability than we enjoyed until recently."

Kokoshin said the Soviet Union was sure it could "maintain parity for the foreseeable future with the United States ... For example, in the case of space weapons, we discovered that the Soviet answer would be countermeasures — much cheaper and using technology which is already on the shelf."

Kokoshin quoted another symposium speaker from the United States as saying that nuclear weapons had provided a stabilizing effect on the international system since World War II.

But Kokoshin said he worries that "the destabilizing effect of the existence of nuclear weapons is becoming greater and greater than the stabilizing effect."

"Therefore, it is so important to find the ways for substantial reductions, and then for total abolition of nuclear weapons," he said.

"We are interested that the United States have the same kind of security we have, not less. At the same time, of course, we don't want to have less security than the United States," Kokoshin said.

He said both nations have the same kind of nuclear insecurity.

The symposium here was proposed by Elspeth Rostow, former dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, who said the meeting was aimed at finding out "what went right" in the four decades of peaceful U.S.-Soviet relations.

Stalin kin wants visa

MOSCOW — Britain has been asked to issue a visa for Olga Peters, the American-born teen-age granddaughter of Josef Stalin, the British Embassy said today.

However, there was no immediate word on plans of her mother, Svetlana Alliluyeva, who defected in 1967 but returned to the Soviet Union in November 1984. U.S. officials say they have talked to her recently about returning to the United States.

A British diplomat, who spoke on the condition that he not be identified, said the request was for a visa to allow Miss Peters, 14, to "continue her studies in the United Kingdom."

More fighting in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Fighting flared between Palestinian guerrillas and Shiite Moslem militiamen at two Beirut refugee camps Friday after Justice Minister Naoum Berri was re-elected president of the Shiite Amal movement.

Police said a Palestinian woman was killed and eight people were wounded in the gun-fights around the Sabra and Chatilla camps in southern Beirut, raising the toll since March 28 to 40 killed and 150 wounded.

Carloads of jubilant Amal gunmen fired their weapons into the air in Moslem west Beirut when Berri's expected re-election was announced. Then the fighters renewed their siege of the two camps.

Contadora peace plan

PANAMA CITY, Panama — The Contadora group will press the five Central American countries to agree on a timetable to sign a peace pact during its meeting here Saturday, according to Colombian Foreign Minister Augusto Ramirez.

Key topics on the agenda are expected to be the Reagan administration's request for congressional approval of $100 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels and the reported incursion of Nicaraguan troops into Honduras last week.

Ramirez said the Contadora meeting comes "at a critical moment as tensions in Central America grow more serious."

Argentines to try plan

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — The government on Friday ordered a small devaluation of the currency, boosted gasoline and utility prices and increased the minimum wage in a move to pump new life into its economic program.

Appearing on national television, Economy Minister Juan Sourrouille and Labor Minister Hugo Barrionuevo also said wages for government workers would be increased and similar salary hikes would be negotiated with unions for both state-run and private companies.

San Francisco fire destroys warehouse

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An explosion rocked a sprawling warehouse near the San Francisco Bay on Friday, triggering a huge, smoky fire and causing millions of dollars in damage, officials said. At least 14 people were injured.

The cause of the explosion at the Bay View Industrial Park was not immediately known.

The warehouse, which sheltered a variety of small businesses, including a paint shop, photography lab and a carpentry shop, was destroyed by the blaze. The roof caved in and all but one wall crumbled, leaving a burning heap of rubble spewing a huge cloud of black and white smoke.

Authorities were interviewing people who fled the burning building to determine if there was anyone still inside, said Deputy Fire Chief Charles Cresci.

The blaze was contained at about 6:30 p.m., three hours after it began, he said, adding that damage easily would be "in the millions of dollars."

"I got knocked on my back," said M.J. Savage, a cabinetmaker who escaped with cuts on his hands. "I got up real quick. I looked up and saw everything collapsing on me, so I started running out the door."

Venice, the lagoon city, hosts exhibition glorifying futurism

VENICE, Italy (AP) — In May, this lagoon city will host the first ever international exhibition on futurism, one of the most influential art movements of the 20th century.

Futurism was an Italian school of painting, sculpture and literature that glorified danger, war and the machine age. Established in 1909 by Filippo Marinetti, futurists sought to portray the dynamic character of 20th-century life. The movement flourished through the '20s, spreading throughout the world and influencing various other fields including architecture, music, fashion and even cooking.
The exhibition will feature 350 paintings and sculptures as well as documents and letters that trace the movement's development.

Most of the works will be displayed in Palazzo Grassi, a newly restored 18th century Venetian palace making its debut as a museum, while concerts and dance performances will take place elsewhere.

Texas belongs to Foote

Director launches film mini-industry

By BOB THOMAS
 Associated Press Writer
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — After a distinguished career as a writer of television and stage plays and movie scripts, Horton Foote has launched a mini-industry of films about Texas.

His output so far has included "Tender Mercies," which won him an Academy Award for his screenplay and Robert Duvall the best actor prize in 1983, "1918" and "The Trip to Bountiful," which has been nominated for two Oscars, including Foote for his screenplay adaptation and Geraldine Page as best actress. His latest, "St. Valentine's Day," has yet to be released.

What's more, "1918" and "St. Valentine's Day," which both star Matthew Broderick, are part of a nine-play cycle he has written, which is loosely based on his family in a small Texas town. Still to come are "Convicts," "Courtship" and "The Widow Clair," which will star Mary Steenburgen.

"Texas is a remarkable place to make movies," said Foote, who serves as both writer and co-producer. "Films are still new to the people there, the crews are good and they have had a lot of practice with TV movies and films like 'Places in the Heart' and 'Terms of Endearment.' You can make films more reasonably there. I've found that even the teamsters are cooperative.

"We all share cars going to location, no limos, no Winnebagos (motor homes), no first-class air tickets. It's a lean operation but it works."

A courtly man with pink cherubic cheeks, Foote was in Los Angeles to arrange financing for future film projects.

A fifth-generation Texan, he maintains a residence in the Wharton home where his family has lived for 68 years. Texas and family figure strongly in the 69-year-old filmmaker's works.

"They're not directly autobiographical," he said in an interview, "but they stem from things I have witnessed, experienced, observed. The events start out as reality, but they change in the imagination."
 Foote first achieved fame in the 1950s during the "Golden

After a distinguished career as a writer of television and stage plays and movie scripts, Horton Foote has launched a mini-industry of films about Texas. His output includes "Tender Mercies," "1918," and "The Trip to Bountiful." His latest, "St. Valentine's Day," is loosely based on his family in a small Texas town.

Age" of television drama. He wrote the original "The Trip to Bountiful," starring Lillian Gish, and two William Faulkner adaptations, "The Old Man" and "Tomorrow."

In 1982 he won an Oscar for writing the script for "To Kill a Mockingbird." Feeling out of step with the rapidly changing times, he moved with his wife and four children to New Hampshire.

"I lived in the country and watched my sons play basketball and soccer," he said. "But the winter nights are long in New Hampshire and I don't like snow, so there was plenty of time to write."

A self-confessed compulsive writer, he turned out the entire nine plays he calls "The Orphan's Home." Most of them have been staged in the theater or television. During the New Hampshire period, he also wrote the London musical version of "Gone With the Wind" and a Broadway play, "The Chase," which later was filmed with Marlon Brando, Jane Fonda and Robert Redford.

A few years ago, Foote and Robert Duvall tried to arrange financing to film "Tender Mercies" but failed.

Gielgud to star in ghostly movie

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sir John Gielgud stars as the cranky old spirit in "The Canterville Ghost," a two-hour movie for first-run syndication.

The movie is loosely based on the short story by Oscar Wilde, about the adventures of an American family that travels to England to claim its inheritance, the ancient castle of the Cantervilles. They find the castle inhabited by the 300-year-old spirit of a cantankerous old ghost, Sir Simon.

"The Canterville Ghost" was previously made into a movie in 1940, starring Charles Laughton and Margaret O'Brien.

Blum's relocates

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

When Blum's Jewelers moved to Highland Mall last week, the store's emphasis was altered to fit the changing local market, said co-owner Ralph Brooks.

Highland Mall is the place to be, he said, and he expects the mall to be full soon. More independent merchants are moving in, giving the mall a new flavor.

"It makes a more homey, relaxed atmosphere for the mall," said his wife, co-owner Lynette Brooks.

Ralph Brooks said earlier that they decided to move the store from its 23-year home at 222 Main St. because there wasn't enough downtown traffic.

The new Blum's is smaller and has been remodeled "from top to bottom and front to back," Ralph Brooks said.

Bridal items, tableware and the gift line have been discontinued and the business will concentrate more on fine jewelry and diamonds.

Tableware was eliminated because the business is slow and it requires retailers to tie up a lot of capital and have a large inventory, he said.

"Because of the economy in West Texas we wanted to reduce our overhead costs," he said.

Lynette Brooks said the need for the discontinued items has decreased because the population has decreased, but Ralph Brooks added the jewelry business remains strong.

Blums expanded its lines of Rolex and Omega watches, wedding and engagement rings and its Waterford crystal and silver holloware, which includes silver platters and gift pieces.

Gold chains and ladies diamond rings have been the best sellers for the past four months far outstripping other sales, Ralph Brooks said. Pearls also have come into fashion within the past two years after seven years of almost no sales, he said.

Blum's will create new jewelry from the customer's old gold, or they'll supply the gold, said co-owner Greg Brooks. Customers can design their own jewelry if they wish, he said. Jewelry repairs are also made.

Lynette and Ralph Brooks are owners of Blum's Jewelers, which recently moved to Highland Mall.

Oil drilling, production fair slated

AMARILLO — With the price of West Texas benchmark crude oil falling daily, the drilling industry seeks new ways to overcome field economics for the difficult days ahead.

The Society of Petroleum Engineers 1986 Deep Drilling and Production Symposium, to be held at the Amarillo Civic Center, offers a close look at evolving technology and economics in the science and art of deep-well drilling and completion.

More than 500 drilling professionals are expected to attend the 22-paper technical program beginning April 7.

The comprehensive program will cover a wide range of drilling and production operations in deep formations, including high-temperature acid fracturing, design and analysis of a high-temperature acid fracturing, and drilling with one-step solids control technique.

Peters on excellence

By TOM PETERS

Renowned corporate strategy consultant Mike Kami stormed back and forth on the stage in front of an audience of 2,000 people from Hardee's, the restaurant chain. In a one-hour presentation, he used the word "uniqueness" at least 30 times. He asked, "What's so special about your firm?" "How are you different from your competitors?" and "What is your uniqueness?"

I think he's right on the mark. At our executive seminars, we manage to one-up Kami himself. We make a remarkably tough request. We ask participants to call a person hired by their firm no more than a week before the seminar. If that person (executive or receptionist alike) cannot give a 15- to 20-word description of the company's strategy — its uniqueness — that agrees with their own, then they don't have a strategy. Loud muttering inevitably follows our request.

A recent Forbes article criticized the strategy of Federated Stores, suggesting that the approach lacks clarity. By contrast, Forbes applauded rival Dayton-Hudson, which is de-emphasizing its investment in its traditional department stores and targeting most of its investment in the Mervyn's and Target niche, two brand-name soft-goods retailers. Said Forbes, "The point about Dayton-Hudson's strategy is not which segment of retailing they chose, but that they chose one."

Years ago, my colleague Allan Kennedy, co-author of "Corporate Culture," and I debated heatedly about how precise a corporate strategy has to be. Our conclusion:

It must be "non-wrong" and widely "bought into" by all hands in the organization. That is, the "perfect" strategy, designed by corporate planners and shifted quarterly in accord with market conditions, is worth little or nothing if it is not widely accepted. The fact that the team at the top supports the strategy is far less important than the fact that the people on the loading dock, in the reservations center or on the property maintenance crew understand it.

Stew Leonard, the Norwalk, Conn., grocer who does a staggering $90 million a year in business from one store, codifies his company's uniqueness — an abiding concern for customers — in a simple statement: "Rule #1: The customer is always right. Rule #2: If the customer is wrong, see Rule #1." For some time, Stew has posted this code on a sign in the store. To reinforce it, he recently had a three-ton stone placed at the entryway to the store. The two rules are engraved on it.

But organizational strategy goes even deeper at Leonard's. An example: A newly-hired young clerk was confronted with a highly distraught customer who had lost an engraved Parker Pen given to her as a gift. She thought she might have lost it while shopping at Leonard's and stopped at the store's lost-and-found department. The clerk could not locate the pen in the lost-and-found drawer but, observing the woman's distress, reached into the drawer and produced three $20 gift certificates for groceries. Not surprisingly, the customer went away happy.

Was Stew Leonard or the department manager upset? Hardly, although the clerk had not been trained to do this. Stew featured the clerk's act in the next company newsletter, thereby applauding her and sanctioning such behavior by others.

Sometimes I observe a firm lose its uniqueness. Sears, for decades, lived by the slogan, "Quality at a decent price." In the 1970s its retailing strategy became confused. Customers wondered, was it the old Sears? Or, as some of the company's activities suggested, was it becoming an upscale outfit?

Mebane Packaging Corp. of Mebane, N.C., has been pursuing a goal of switching from commodity-grade products for the fast-food and baking industries to higher value-added products for the pharmaceutical and consumer electronics industries. The firm circulated a written corporate philosophy: "Mebane Packaging Corporation is an independent producer of custom packaging and marketing materials for consumer and professional product companies that require excellence in quality and service." Despite its dramatic turnaround from a string of losses to a 7 percent after-tax profit, the firm still misses my goal: Its strategy statement, though widely shared and clearly effective, runs 26 words, one over my 15- to 25-word limit.

What is your organization's "uniqueness"? Can you state it in 15 to 25 (or 26) words or less? Does everyone in the organization buy in, and do you randomly test the buy-in? Is the strategy statement printed on wallet-sized cards that are given to everyone? Is it immortalized in granite?

Flowing tubing pressure stood at 900 PSI.

Snyder-based Patterson Petroleum is the operator. The well carries permit for 8,600-ft. maximum drilling depth.

Borden County's Good Field will see more developmental action when the No. 46 T.J. Good "A" is spudded by Amoco Production Co. about 4.8 miles north of Vealmoor. With total depth projected to 8,300 feet, the well is in a 14,447-acre lease assembly in the T&P Survey Section 37 Block 33.

At a location about 15 miles southwest of Gail, J.M. Huber Inc. has plugged and abandoned an ill-fated Borden County wildcat. Designated as the No. 2 Clarence Porter, the well was spudded last Jan. 29 and probed to a dry bottom at 9,757-ft. TD.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to be of valuable service to others, especially those who are not well or depressed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be alert to invitations or pleasure that you would like to enjoy today and accept readily.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can come to a better understanding with close ties today and establish greater harmony.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day to visit with interesting and important persons and make this a most delightful day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study your property and other assets and decide how you can best improve and add to them.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Consult your subconscious and know what it is you truly desire and how to go about gaining your aims.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to just sit back and watch what is happening about you since the daytime finds most everyone apt to have a "chip-on-the-shoulder" attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may have worries, but remain poised just the same. Don't argue with others this evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Others may not understand your ideas today, so rely solely on yourself and you will do well.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Difficulties may crop up in career activities or with your credit, but take this to your stride.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A new contact may try to match wits with you, so keep silent since there is no point in this. A bigwig could be annoyed.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Plan how to get your bills paid harmoniously even though you are tempted to argue over them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A situation arises with a partner that angers you, but control yourself and later get the account settled quietly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Work seems difficult today, but keep at it. Don't argue with an associate, since the planets are acting up now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be careful of that new interest you want to take on since you may find it rough sledding later on.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not bring up any moot points at home or a big argument could ensue. Tonight, don't try to force a good time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Care must be exercised today in all things, whether inside or outside the home or place of business.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be clever and refuse to get caught in some scheme that could mean great loss for you financially.

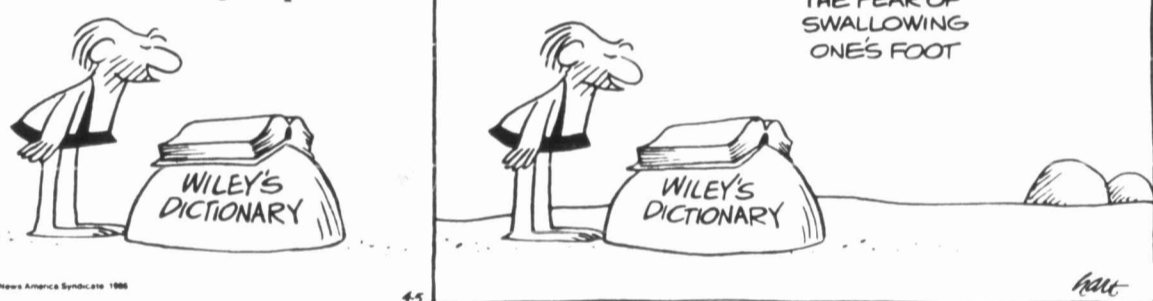

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't tell others if you are discontented or you can get into further trouble. Try not to make a financial error.

MCC shows homer power; demolishes Howard, 19-6

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Howard College Hawks encounter with McLennan Community College hardly resembled a competitive baseball game. What it did remind one of was batting practice — for McLennan that is.

The visitors from Waco pounded the Hawks for a 19-6 win in Region V action Friday at Jack Barber Field.

MCC came into the game leading the region with a perfect 12-0 record and sparking 34-5 overall slate. And it lived up to every bit of its laurels by pounding Hawks pitching for 18 hits while putting on a home run exhibition for the local fans.

It fact it was more of a home run derby after a while as MCC pounded out eight round-trippers against five different Howard pitchers. Center fielder Ricky Candelari, first baseman Tim Spehr and shortstop Pat Listach led the MCC derby by hitting two each. Together the trio drove in 11 runs and scored 8 runs themselves.

So constant was the MCC barrage was it hit a homer and scored at least one run in every inning but the last. The game was called in the seventh inning because of the 10-run rule.

Howard coach Bill Griffin didn't have much to say after the loss. "What can I say, they're a good ballclub, better than the one they had last year. They've hit 50 home runs in their last 20 games which proves they're loaded with hitters."

MCC did get a steady pitching performance from starter Rob Levens who went six innings and allowed 4 hits and two runs. The final four Howard hits and runs came off relievers Leon Farrux and Rusty Kilgo.

MCC set the tone of the game in the first inning as it blasted two round-trippers off Howard starter Bryan Willis. Willis didn't last very long against the heavy-hitting team. He went two innings, gave up 7 hits and 8 runs. Four of the hits were homers.

In the first inning, Willis hit leadoff hitter Bobby Joe Hill and gave up a single to Tony Baldwin. The next batter, Candelari, ripped a shot deep over the left field fence, giving MCC a quick 3-0 lead. Three batters later Spehr drove in two more runs with another long shot over the left field fence, giving MCC a 5-0 lead.

MCC got a run in the second on another homer. This time Listach did the honors. Howard got a run back in the bottom of the inning as switch-hitting shortstop Steven Keller hit a homer from the left side of the plate. Keller went two-for-two at the plate and scored two runs.

MCC put the game on ice in the third by upping its lead to 10-1 while chasing Willis and reliever Albert Lopez from the game. Alex Lopez would be the third Howard pitcher to enter the game.

MCC banged out six hits in the inning and as usual the home run was its main weapon. Round-trippers by Jason Bridges and David Gruber did most of the damage.

MCC added two runs in the fourth when Bridges banged a triple off the center field wall which was followed by Spehr's second home of the game.

Howard went to its fourth hurler in the fifth as Greg Landry was called in to pitch. Landry didn't make it through the inning as he was touched for four runs. The main blow was a two-run shot by Candelari.

Julio Jimenez was called on to relieve Landry as MCC got their remaining runs off him. Jimenez yielded a homer to Listach in the sixth.

Howard got a run in the bottom of the sixth when Levens walked in a run.

Howard pounded out four hits while scoring their final four runs in the bottom of the seventh. Jeff Shults, Joe Cuellar, Rafael Diaz and Dan Lanfear all singled in the inning.

"We just didn't have the pitching to shut them down today," said a relatively calm Griffin after the game. Maybe we'll get better pitching tomorrow."

Howard's record drops to 20-16-1 overall and 2-10-1 in region play. The two teams will square off today in a double-header at Jack Barber Field starting at 1 p.m.

Resurgent Steers making move in district play

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

Just when it seemed darkest for the Big Spring Steers baseball team, a ray of light has emerged.

Two weeks ago the Steers were a distressed team, struggling in District 4-5A play with a 0-4 record. Then came a little sunlight through the clouds.

Big Spring defeated Odessa 4-3 with a three run seventh inning rally to capture its first loop win. A little more light shown through a few days later when the Steers decisively defeated Abilene High 7-2.

The light appeared even brighter as the Steers racked up win number three by holding on to a 8-6 win over San Angelo Central. Now sporting a 3-4 record, Big Spring is right back in the thick of the district race. They will go for four-in-a-row when they host Midland High today at 2 p.m. at Steer Field.

Although he refuses to take the credit for the Steers' league renaissance, it all starts with first year coach John Velasquez. With his patient attitude and field strategy, his team has endured the hard times; and now ready to make a bid for a playoff spot. Which is a far cry from the way the Steer begin district play.

Big Spring looked dismal in opening losses to Midland High, Odessa Permian, Abilene Cooper and Midland Lee. "We kept making the same mistakes and it hurt us badly," said Velasquez of his young squad that has only four returning lettermen.

"We could have won all of those games except for the Cooper game. I told them when they really wanted to win, they would start making the plays it took to win."

"Making the plays" along with some timely changes by Velasquez has put the Steers back in the playoff hunt.

One major change was moving the team's top pitcher last year, Mike Dodd; to a starter to a reliever. Now when starters Carey Frazier and Aaron Allen go four or five strong innings, Dodd is the stopper who can get the team over the hump. "Mike is a good pitcher and I wouldn't hesitate to start him. But things are going so well like this," said Velasquez.

Another change that has payed off is letting second baseman Chad Wash hit for himself instead of using a designated-hitter. Wash has responded with clutch hitting while driving in five runs in the Steers wins. "At the time we were hitting bad so I decided Chad could strike out just as good as anybody else," said Velasquez.

Another smart move by Velasquez was making Jimmy Rogers, who is not known for his bat, a designated runner. In return the swift senior is among the district leaders in stolen bases.

Led by third baseman Randy Hayworth the Steers bats have come alive in the last three games. Hayworth is currently the league's fourth leading hitter with a hefty .500 average. "Randy has been our most consistent hitter all year. His defense is picking up also."

As a team Big Spring has hit the ball well in their current surge. In their first three district games, the Steers managed four hits per outing. They have banded out an average of nine hits in the last four games. "We were striking out way too many times in the early going," said Velasquez. "Now we have our confidence at the plate and we're making contact with the ball. The other teams are having to field the ball which is turning into them making errors."

"We don't have any superstars on this team. Everyone has been coming through. If one player gets down, then there's someone else who will pick him up. This is certainly not the same team we begin with at the start of the year."

And for now, the sunlight is shining brightly on Steers baseball.
