Annual Christmas Seal Drive Now In Progress

NEW YORK CITY, Nov. 22.—As the opening feature of the twenty-eighth annual Christmas Seal campaign and in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the beginning of the sanatorium movement in the United States, the National Tuberculosis Association has arranged a coast to coast broadcast Sunday, December 2, from 10 to 10:30 p. m. (E.S.T.)

Dr. Francis B. Trudeau, son of the late Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, "Father of the Sanatorium Movement," will be the speaker on the program. He will present the Christmas Seal message for the 2,000 affiliated tuberculosis associations throughout the country. The campaign is conducted between Thanksgiving Day and Christmas and the funds obtained by the sale of the seals at a penny each finance a program of free nursing service, clinics, rehabilitation, education, tuberculin testing of children, X-rays, social and medical research.

Both of the nation's radio favorites, the golden voiced Jessica Dragonette and Lanny Ross have volunteered their services as their contribution to the campaign, and will sing a duet as the feature event of the program.

The National Broadcasting Company, as its contribution to the campaign, has arranged for a WJZ network and will put the program on the air from the famous 8-H studio in the R.C.A. Building, New York City, which is the largest broadcasting studio in the world.

Reserve Livestock Feed Loans Available

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22.—Over 365,000 emergency drought loans aggregating $24,000,000 have been made to western and middle-western farmers and stockmen since the drought fund appropriated last summer became available, Governor W. I. Myers, Farm Credit Administration, said today (Nov. 22).

Just over 200,000 of the loans amounting to about $14,000,000 represented initial advances, primarily for the purpose of purchasing feed for livestock; and 165,000 supplemental advances have been made aggregating $10,000,000. Ordinarily such loans are made in monthly advances, limited to amounts required per head for the stock to be fed.

"With the approach of severe weather conditions over many sections where feed is short it is very important for borrowers who need feed and have no other source of credit to make application for emergency loans early so there will be no delay in acting upon them due to suddenly changing weather conditions or other unforeseen factors," Governor Myers said. "The funds available for the emergency feed loans are limited," he continued, "and no farmer or stockman should borrow or spend unnecessarily for feed; but where the stockman can anticipate his later needs with reasonable certainty, he should apply early, whether or not the feed is to be purchased immediately.

"In parts of the primary drought areas where winter weather conditions will pevent transportation of feed, range livestock operators may obtain funds to purchase a reserve feed supply, such advances being secured by liens on the reserve supply and on the stock to be fed," the Governor stated. "The monthly advances are made on the basis of the borrower's promissory note."

"In addition to the reserve feed loan," Mr. Myers said, "the borrower may apply for regular monthly allowances and hold his extra two-months' feed supply in reserve for emergency purposes when transportation may be cut off. Then, in cases where the monthly allowances are obtained without interruption and the reserve supply retained through the winter, the latter will take care of feeding needs in February and March next year and under such conditions advances to the borrower for those months will not be necessary."

Mountaineers End Season With 13-8 Win Over Bluecats

SANTA ANNA Defeated Coleman 13-8 last Friday night on Hufford field, at Coleman.

Early in the second quarter Coleman drove to the Mountaineer 1-yard line for a first down. In four downs the Mountaineers received the ball on their own two. On the first down Price fumbled but recovered behind the goal line to give Coleman safety. After Santa Anna received the ball they drove to the Coleman 9-yard line, and on the fourth down, on a dip pass Cheaney to Price to Burney, who made a touchdown, Price made the extra point on a line plunge. Score at the half Santa Anna 7, Coleman 2.

In the third quarter Coleman went to the four yard line on a series of passes and off tackle smashes. On the fourth down Snodgrass went over for a touchdown. Henning failed to make the extra point. Score Coleman 8, Santa Anna 7.

Early in the fourth quarter Santa Anna punted over the Coleman goal for an automatic safety. On the fourth down Snodgrass dropped back to punt. Price broke through to block the punt, and Wallace scooped up the loose ball and ran untouched for a touchdown. Score Santa Anna 13, Coleman 8.

In the fourth Santa Anna received the ball on their own 25 yard line. On an off tackle play Price ran the ball to the Coleman 40, but Santa Anna drew a 15 yard penalty for roughing. Then Price dropped back and passed to Burney who ran to the Coleman 10, but Price was not five yards behind the line of scrimmage and the play was brought back again. On the next play Price passed to Wallace who ran to the Coleman 15. Santa Anna made it a first on the Coleman 2, but the game ended before Price could take it over. Score SANTA ANNA 13, COLEMAN 8.

SUMMARY OF SEASON

The Mountaineers opened the season with Cross Plains on September 28. Cross Plains won 13-6, but the game was awarded to Santa Anna later because Cross Plains played an ineligible man. THE AGRICULTURAL CENSUS

The Federal Government takes an agricultural census every five years. This work will begin in January, 1935, and the Government is asking complete co-operation of all farmers in making the census accurate and useful.

Many farmers heretofore have failed to co-operate. There has been a general feeling that the information thus gathered and compiled will, in some unknown manner, be used by the trade in holding down prices or by tax collectors. As a matter of fact, the information given by individuals is never disclosed, but all put together for total results.

It is just as important that those engaged in agriculture know just where the industry stands as it is for a merchant to take an invoice of his stock on hand. In no other way can farmers plan their program to secure best results. In taking the agricultural census the Government is merely taking an invoice of the industry. Therefore it should be as accurate as possible in order that it may be useful. It is a splendid thing to know just where we stand at the end of every five-year period. We suggest co-operation on the part of every farmer.

HOLINESS EVANGELIST PREACHING DATE

The News has been requested to announce preaching dates at Cross Roads Wednesday morning, December 5th at 10:45 and at the First Methodist Church at Coleman Wednesday night by Rev. Uncle Buddie Robinson, an evangelist of the Nazarene church of fifty years service.

Presiding Elder L. T. McClure and his wife of Brownwood spent Sunday in Santa Anna, and Rev. McClure preached Sunday night at the Methodist Church.

South Appoints Del Rio Editor As His Secretary

J. Travelstead, editor and manager of The Del Rio Evening News, has been named as secretary by Congressman-elect Charles L. South of Coleman. Announcement of the appointment, on which there had been some speculation here for several weeks, was received in Brownwood late Saturday.

Travelstead will accompany South to Washington about January 1st. He has been a resident of Del Rio for eleven years.

MEDICAL STUDENT HAS LIVED IN EIGHT FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Austin, Texas, Nov. 22—Before he was 15 years of age, Joe Cook of Devine, freshman premedical student in the University of Texas, had lived in eight foreign countries. Five years ago he returned to his native Texas to obtain his high school and University education. He has resided in Mexico, Bolivia, Peru, Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Venezula, and Panama. Joe was born at Laredo twenty years ago, but his parents moved to Peru when he was only three weeks old. His father was a physician for a cooper company and later for an oil company, being employed as camp medico by these concerns. As Peru is a Spanish speaking nation, Joe learned that language first, and did not begin to learn English until after his fifth birthday.

Dr. Cook's position necessitated his moving around a good deal as he was often transferred from one camp to another in a different country. In each of the South American republics in which Joe has lived there are many Americans, and Joe received his early education in American schools there. Joe now speaks Spanish and English with equal ease.

Joe estimates that it will require about eight years for him to complete work on his medical degree, and to serve his interneship. As soon as he finishes his education, he will go back to South America, possibly to Venezula, where he will follow in his father's footsteps as a camp physician for some large American company.

As We Sit and Think

(Sometimes Just SIT)

In the language of Will Rogers "All we know is what we read in the papers," and sometimes we wonder whot in the world the papers make so much noise about.

Some two or three years ago the largest Utilities Corporation in the world went on the rocks, and its head, one Samuel Insull, hied away to foreign countries to evade prosecution and punishment at the hands of the Department of Justice in the United States court. He was considered a fugitive from justice from the United States, and deported from country to country until it became so he could not stay in any country in peace. He took to the waters on a Grecian freight liner, his destiny a secret, and was finally arrested out at sea and returned to the United States, after several years fleeing from the mighty hand of the law, at an expense of millions of dollars to himself and the U. S. Government. His case was set for trial, the trial was in progress for several weeks at considerable expense, and in a short time after the case was turned over to the jury last Saturday afternoon the jury returned a verdict of not guilty and exhonorated the elderly man for his crime.

We are not saying whether he was guilty or not guilty, but the thing that looks odd to this writer is, if they had nothing against him that was calculated to convict him, why the long pursuit, heavy expense and all the publicity. Following a man to the other side of the world, rendering it impossible for him to live there, running him down and bringing him back to the United States just to try him and set him free. Why not just send him a certificate of exhonoration to some foreign country and let him remain there out of the way? His example was not very commendable, but the court example was worse in our opinion. Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the treasurer, took a hundred thousand dollar bribe from the St. Clair interest, and was sent to the penitentiary for a year, and his traitor was sent up for a longer period of time. The Utilities king was accused of fraudently taking several millions of dollars and is set free.

Holidays Begin This Week

Thursday of this week the holidays begin. The holiday spirit never dies down after Thanksgiving until after the first of the ensuing year.

Santa Anna has been leading for several years in Christmas decorations, but to date nothing has been said, that we know of, toward our very attractive street decorations and other reminders of the approaching Yuletide.

If we intend to create a real, old fashioned Christmas spirit, we should begin at once to put up the decorations and impress upon the minds of the public that Christmas is coming.

One of the things the writer has to be thankful for this season is the closing of transactions this week to perfect the Santa Anna Mountain Park that has been in progress so long.

The work has been tedious, at times very discouraging, but with such a man as Fred W. Turner, who never recognizes a quiting place until accomplishments have been realized, and with Mrs. R. C. Gay to furnish enthusiasm and recruits along the way when all things apparantly have withered, one cannot stop short of success.

In our humble opinion that 25 acre park is going to mean a great deal to Santa Anna and Coleman county, and we are grateful to all who have extended a hand and helped to make it a possibility. We have a great vision of the beauty and attractiveness of that wayside park.

The park will be christened the "Texas Ranger Memorial Park" and rightly it should be named. Located as it is, in one of the most historical points in Central Texas, having for its background such a beautiful scene as that old east Santa Anna mountain where Indians, and whites, including Texas Rangers, scrambled for positions and lookout points during the early days in this country when life was almost as safe for white settlers here as it would be for a worm in a peckerwood nest, so to speak.

It is not possible to outline in words what can be accomplished in beauty and attractiveness in a 25 acre park along the highway, situated on the south side of the east Santa Anna mountain, and the State Highway Department contend they will never stop short of their utmost in beautifying that site as one of the most attractive and historic parks to be found in West Texas.

We are so gratified over the prospects of getting that park built we fail to find words sufficient to express our feelings. Here's hoping that no man, woman or child who had a part in helping to purchase the land, or in any way getting this park for Santa Anna and Coleman county, ever has cause to regret their charitable deed.

But Santa Anna most always does things right when she tries, and it would have been a shame to let this opportunity pass without purchasing that land and offering it for use as a park. Every dollar that went into the purchase of that land was sacrifice money, and was needed for other purposes, but we are thankful for a set of real men and women who are willing to sacrifice in time of need.

The West Texas Utilities company won a decided victory in Abilene last week, in a special election called to determine whether the City of Abilene would continue with the present Utilities company or grant a franchise to another party to build and operate a competitive utilities company. The vote was exceedingly gratifying to the present operators, who pledge themselves to show their gratitude by further improving their service as rapidly as circumstances will justify.

STOCK RAISING

Every boy or girl on the farm or in town should like to have a horse. Do you ever take any interest in your father's horse? Do you ever curry his hair? He likes to have his hair curried as well as you like to have yours combed, and better. If you will feed a horse a little when you are around the barn he will follow you nearly everywhere you go.

I think every one should take interest in horses. If you are going to farm you wouldn't want sorry horses. A good horse doesn't eat any more than a sorry horse. People take more pride in a good horse than in a sorry one.

There was a Hallowe'en party at the school house Friday night, October 26th. It was for everyone, but especially for the school children. We helped to decorate our room. The young ladies of the community furnished the games and entertainment.

The room has a new teacher this year, Miss Aline Harper. Everyone is glad to have her for she plays for our singing.

The trustees had the piano fixed up this year. We have a nice time singing every morning and every Friday morning we have a nice program.

Mr. Campbell and Mr. Norris took the Democrat-Voice through the school and our school got 75 cents from each subscription. We will use this for a new ball when our old one wears out.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

By R. M. Hofer

I dropped into Eugene, Oregon recently to see the Oregon Trail celebration. Expected to be bored by an ordinary pageant program. Instead I left much chastened and more than ever appreciative of the courage, initiative, ambition and enterp ise that developed our United States from the Atlantic coast to the last frontier on the Pacific ocean.

This pageant was so beautifully done and so all-inclusive in picturing the human emotions that carry civilization forward, that in these troubled times it should be shown in every part of the country, with suitable changes for each locality.

The Oregon Trail pageant portrayed the discovery and settling up of the Oregon territory from the time of the legendary Mayas down to the present. The trapper, the prospector, huge trains of covered wagons, travel by stagecoach, the pony express, all passed in a colorful historic review across an open-air stage 250 feet long, with settings of typical mountain scenery. A star-lit western sky and a warm summer evening breeze carrying the scent of the mountains added a final touch of realism.

Pioneer life was shown—hard, tragic, beautiful, character building—with its love stories, marriages, births and deaths. Here also was shown the family life, the welcome rests at night with wagons forming a circle of protection while the weary travelers danced, prayed, played games—anything, in an effort to forget the constant danger from savage Indians. The audience lived through the conferences of the tanned, grim-faced leaders upon whose shoulders rested the fate of hundreds of families, women and children, members of the caravan. A wrong decision on their part meant a horrible death to loved ones.

At the conclusion of the program, the pioneers whose courage had brought happiness, prosperity and plenty to this nation, stepped to one side as the present generation of young people and college graduates—gallant, gay and arrogant—filed past and disappeared in the shadows of Mt. Hood. The pioneers' work was done, our land was turned over to youth and the moral drawn was: How well will it administer and protect the glorious heritage placed in its hands by the pioneers?

After wintessing such an impressive display of American history, one wonders if the rugged, adventurous spirit ("rugged individualism," if you please) that struggled to carve the United States out of a wilderness, is becoming stagnant under paternalistic trends such as have already engulfed other nations of the world.

Will we awaken some day from the confusion of business depression and world-wide unrest to find that individual thought and action have been wiped out in our own great land—a land founded by our forefathers on the primary principle of guaranteeing life, liberty and pursuit of happiness?

Eugene is to be complimented on presenting such a portrayal of real American life.

Now That It's Old Fashioned And Makes You Black to Smoke, Women Will Put An End To Smoking Craze

WASHINGTON — The anti-cigarette alliance gazed into its crystal ball Thursday and announced that the tide had turned—that American women were about ready to quit smoking.

Two reasons were given for this revolutionary step, to-wit:

1. The horsey set which rides to hounds in deah old Devonshire—where women first began to flaunt cigarettes—have given up smoking because it is so old-fashioned; it definitely dates one, you know, as being a postwar debutante which makes one at least 40 years old now.

2. American gals are becoming inclined to believe that cigarettes do something to the complexion.

For 20 years the anti-cigarette people have been trying to scare the daylights out of the lassies by telling them that cigarettes shortened life, increased the tuberculosis rate, made the eyes weak and bloodshot and led to the imbibing of strong drink. The ladies lit another one and laughed; it got so that girls starting out on a date said, "Gotta match?" even before they said "I'm hungry."

It was not until the anti-cigarette folks revised their strategy that they began to get results. Miss Gladys Van Antwerp went at it from this angle:

"Nicotine, in time, tans the skin of the face as it does the fingers. The woman cigarette smoker, at the age of 40 or 50, if not before, is almost certain to have a dry, sallow skin. Her features become sharpened, and her voice becomes coarse. The old saying that a woman is as old as she looks, might well be changed to 'a woman is as old as she smokes'."

ADVANTAGES OF AN ADULT UNION

Following are very briefly a few advantages of our course of study:—

1. Our Textbook is by far the best book in human language.

2. The character of its teachers is the sublimest in human history.

3. Its subjects are the most important that ever engaged the mind of mankind.

4. We study that part of these subjects which our own most trusted leaders believe will help us most in making the best out of our lives, here and now.

5. Our study is part and parcel of the divinest work ever entrusted to man, and our study is preparing us for greater efficiency in this divinest of all works.

6. In studying these surpassingly important practical problems of our own daily living, we may not only give to each other our own best help; we may get, through each other, the best help of all the Christian centuries.

7. Such daily Bible readings as it proposes, such mastery of life's greatest problems as it presents, such association in practical Christian service as it offers imparts a mental and spiritual growth and renewal and encouragement, an enrichment and joy of living as can be gained only from such experience. We welcome all.

Former Santa Anna Man Only Sheriff For Ochiltree Co.

Many old timers here will remember Sid Talley who moved from Santa Anna to Ochiltree county many years ago.

An interesting news story in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram tells of Mr. Talley's work since becoming a resident of the West Texas county.

"Serving as sheriff of Ochiltree county is getting to be a habit with bronze faced Sid Talley," states the Fort Worth newspaper.

In January he will take the oath of office to the position in which he has served for the past 26 consecutive years. He is the first and only sheriff the county has ever had.

CHEATING

Cheating is one of the worst faults of mankind. It never gets a person anywhere. (Except in bad—Editor). Oh, yes, you may say it helps you get by during examinations. Well, maybe so, but does it really help you in the long run? When you cheat on examinations, you are not making your own grade, but that of someone else. When a teacher sees a student cheating, he sets that student down as a useless parasite—living off of another!

This does not apply only to cheating on examinations but on everything. If you start out cheating in school, you will cheat in the world because the bad habit will grow on you. It leads to other things and is the root of crimes committed in the world.

Students, remember that "Honesty is the best policy." Always try to do what is right and the good habit will be stamped on your character instead of the bad one.

FAME

Fame is not what it is said to be.
Fame, alone, is not worth sacrificing even small things for.
After working and struggling a lifetime, you'll see
It would have been better to have hung your ambition to a lower star.

There are some who would give life for one short hour of fame,
Some who would commit crimes and kill,
Some who have absolutely no shame,
And delight in what they refer to as their "skill."

Still, life flows by,
There are some left who really mean well;
Who do great, helpful things, live and die,
But of their great deeds and sacrifice never speak or tell!

Freshmen, sophomores and seniors again turned their envious eyes toward the junior class in chapel last Friday when Mr. Scarborough announced that the juniors were the winners of the monthly prize given by the High School P-T. A. to the class having the largest percentage of mothers present at its meeting.

The juniors have won this three successive times. In fact, they have won it every time since the contest was started.

CAMPUS COMMENTS

Tiny

Isn't it a shame that football season is over? The football boys will not be bothered with so many admirers now.

Willis Burney still thinks Mary Bradford has pretty eyes, and she makes pretty pictures too. Oh, Mary—.

"Oh! How I dread to see my report card," wailed Jack Howard. "I know it will have plenty of decoration on it."

"I have a lot to be thankful for this Thanksgiving," George McGonagill was heard saying. "The torture of exams is over for another six weeks."

—SAHS—

SNOOPING SUSIE

One has arrived on the campus who surpasses even the "Thin Man." By the aid of a microscope she is able to bring to light interesting facts otherwise unknown. In the future beware of "Snooping Susie!"

Susie heard Miss McClendon make such a remark as this to Mr. Womack: "Ernest Lee, do you know P.S. I Love You?" How did he take it—oh! Beware, girls, she is beating your time.

Susie wishes to warn girls to be careful when they discuss people around drug stores. Druggists are curious people, and walls have ears, you know.

Billy Baxter is going to have to watch out now that Snooping Sue has come to the campus. She might take some of your business away from you, Billy, and get the news first.

If Miss Naugle wants to know why so many people wish to join the Spanish club all of a sudden, she should ask Snooping Sue. She knows.

To prove to you that she gets around, she even knows why so many girls and boys are looking moony lately. Beware of Susie. She's everywhere.

WE WONDER WHY

Lesley McCartney smiles at Kathryn Wylie.

Seniors made so many trips to the post office last week.

Jim Jones is so goofy over the red heads.

Gladys Creamer can be so studious.

Mary Ola Milligan is such an A-1 prophesier.

Evelyn Kirkpatrick can be so happy when English IV students have been studying "King Lear."

Lula Mae Cady and Holland Cheaney get into so many arguments.

—SAHS—

Try smiling.

NOW AND THEN

Jack Howard is not late to first period class.

Gale Collier is not chewing gum.

"Cherry" Burrow combs his hair.

Miss McCreary does not have perfect order in the first period study hall.

Students in bookkeeping are not looking for the bookkeeping key.

Oran Mullis does not have Mattie Haynes' mirror.

The solid geometry class does not have an argument.

CAN YOU IMAGINE

Rosalie Niell not being able to laugh?

Too Much Economy—Jailed

Electricity and economy do not mix well especially when the economy is practiced to the extent that the power company owes the consumer a bill at the end of the month. A neat little device which reversed the polarity and caused the meter to run backward netted its inventor $10 and six months in jail. The man to whom he sold his invention wanted to do too good a job of cutting down his light bill and as a result the meter, when it was read, showed a minus five dollars.—Pathfinder.

This Is The Season of Thanksgiving

We as a bank are truly thankful for the many blessings which the Master and Creator of all good gifts has bestowed upon us. But we are thankful in a peculiar way at this time.

On December 4, 1933 the SANTA ANNA NATIONAL BANK opened its doors for business for the first time. We wish to commemorate that event now.

We are most grateful and appreciative of the success and progress that this institution has made during this first year. Altho we have not done all that we hoped for because of the drouth and shortage of crops, we are thankful for your patronage and good will.

We are looking forward to a better year, as did the Pilgrims on that first Thanksgiving and may God's richest blessings be with you all.

Odd Accidents

Desiring to make sure his seafood was fresh a Washington man asked to inspect it first. The waiter brought in a tray of lobsters one of which nipped the diner on the end of his nose. Now he is suing the restaurant owner.

Tony, a 15-year-old leopard, met his death in a Wisconsin zoo because of unrestrained love. When he tried to lick the neck of a lioness in the next cage she seized his tongue. His own jaws snapped shut severing his tongue Despite efforts at feeding him he died of starvation.

While taking his dog to a veterinary for treatment a California man, Peter Clemet, had to be patched up himself after he lost control of his car when the dog jumped into his face and became entangled in the steering wheel. He suffered cuts and bruises.

Death in a grave he had dug with his own hands was the fate of Mr. Rossback of Minnesota. While digging away he was stricken with a heart attack and toppled into the excavation. He was buried in the same cemetery.

While driving along a Georgia road after sundown, John Waddell was surprised when a huge owl crashed into his car. The bird fell dead and released a wriggling young water moccasin in his lap. He killed it before it had a chance to bite him.

Charles Dunnigan who was quite alone in his Montana home was more than surprised when he heard a shotgun discharged behind him and felt a half dozen bird shot strike his leg. A kitten had knocked over a gun left standing on the floor.

A series of accidents caused by a low-flying crane resulted in the death of an Alabama man. The bird struck a high tension wire which snapped and set fire to an outbuilding and charged a wire fence. In putting out the fire Seaborn Rainey came in contact with the fence and was electrocuted.

The small son of Mr. B. T. Hord of South Carolina was cut quite painfully about the face by flying windshield glass when his father's car struck a buzzard which was flying across the road.

Lightning often plays strange pranks. Charles Hargus was digging a grave in a Missouri cemetery and as he pitched his last shovelful of earth upward a lightning bolt struck his shovel and killed him instantly.

A $7,525 sneeze is some sneeze. But that is the amount of damages awarded by a California jury after Thomas Hayden sneezed, lost control of his car and crashed into a parked auto.

Mrs. Rick Gwydir of Washington state reached too hard and too high in replacing some books on a shelf. The effort dislocated a vertebra which was remedied only by medical treatment.

It's pretty hot when bees drown— in their own honey. But that is what happened to 20 colonies of bees in an Ohio apiary when the rays of the hot sun melted the wax of the combs and the honey dripped on them at the bottom of the hives.

Flo-line La Velle defied death for many years as a star of the "flying trapeze" and then succumbed to injuries received when she tripped and fell over her little pet dog.

Ralph, Charles and John Bray went out into the Indiana woods to practice shooting at the mark with their .22 rifle Some unknown person had hidden an explosive in a hollow tree. A bullet fired by Ralph struck the tree causing an explosion which wounded his two brothers.

A prodigious yawn dislocated the shoulder of Jim McCarson. A day or so previously he had survived a kick to the jaw by a North Carolina mule and suffered only a cut cheek.

After reading our account of the rabbit kicking a snake to death a Virginian sends us an account of a snake unfortunate enough to choose a small turtle for a meal. After being partly swallowed the energetic crawler kicked a hole in the reptile's throat and escaped its intended fate.

Harriett Evans saw fire playing around a smoking fence post after an Indiana thunderstorm and supposed lightning had set it on fire. She threw a bucket of water on the blaze and after she had been knocked flat she discovered a fallen power wire lying across the fence.

A Tennessee steeplejack, Robert P. Price, after years of scaling tall buildings and smokestacks died from heart failure when he fell from the railing of his own porch.

It's bad enough to be bitten by a mule but Robert Azevedo of California thinks it's a little too much when the mule bit the calf of his leg at the instant fate caused the animal's jaws to lock. It took nired hands 20 minutes to pry the jaws apart.

After J. S. Jones (one of the Georgia Jones's) found himself sitting on the hood of a car which had struck him he believed he bore a charmed life. He was sure of it after a bolt of lightning entered his own car, rolled into his lap and jumped out again. But the same week appendicitis sent him to the hospital.

GRADE EGGS FOR SIZE AND QUALITY

A Dallas citizen had this experience.

Driving through the country, he stopped at a farm house where he saw a flock of chickens. Fresh eggs appealed to him. He drove into the yard, met the housewife and purchased three dozen eggs, all that she had available at that time, as she said that she had just returned from the city where she had made deliveries to regular customers. He gladly accepted the three dozen, and did not bother to look into the sack into which they had been placed. Driving on, he stopped at another farm house. "Yes, we have a few eggs left," said the woman. "What price?" was asked. "Thirty and thirty-five cents," was the reply. "What is the difference?" the man asked. "The thirty-cent eggs are under size and the thirty-five cent eggs are 24 ounces to the dozen," was the answer.

The thirty-five cent eggs were purchased, and after driving down the road his curiosity got the better of him and he took a look at his first purchase, for which he had paid the top price. Much to his disappointment he found that he had paid for pullet eggs, undersized eggs which would take about two to make one good-sized egg.

While it is customary to buy and sell eggs at a certain price per dozen, poultrymen who secure and hold regular customers have found it advantageous to grade eggs according to size as well as quality, and sell at a higher price the 24-ounces per dozen, being satisfied with less for the undersized. Any buyer of eggs appreciates this kind of grading, and if undersized eggs are palmed off on him for the regular price, he is not likely to return. As a matter of fact, eggs should be sold by weight instead of by the dozen, but if producers will go by the adopted standard of 24 ounces to the dozen, they will make no mistake. Satisfied customers are always an asset. —Farm and Ranch.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER ON COMMUNITY NEEDS

Austin, Texas, Nov. 28—What the average community needs is a well organized health department which emphasizes five types of activities," says the American Public Health Association. These activities are: "(1) The safeguarding of child health and motherhood; (2) the control of contagion; (3) accurate recording of births and deaths; (4) support of public health laboratories; and (5) sanitary control of diseases spread from human waste and by vermin and insects."

The Texas State Department of Health provides that due emphasis be given to each of the above mentioned activities. To illustrate how these 5 essential functions are interrelated, the interest of the various bureaus in the new born baby, preschool and school child may be cited as an example. Child health is safeguarded by providing information and instruction of the mother. Through the Bureau of Vital Statistics, complete and accurate birth registration is kept, as well as records indicating deaths which occur among children from preventable diseases.

Contagion is prevented or controlled against further spread through the encouragement of immunization early in life, through the prompt reporting of infectious disease. Public health laboratories and sanitary engineers provide additional bulwarks of protection about child life.

Adequate health organization and wholehearted support on the part of various state and local agencies are essential if these activities are to be successfully maintained.

A committee of United States Senators which has been making a study of the cost of crime in the United States places the figure at nearly $12,930,000,000 annually. This is a staggering sum, so large that it is beyond comprehension. Every citizen who pays taxes, directly or indirectly, helps to foot this bill, and will continue to pay increasing amounts unless the wave of crime subsides.

Numerically the number of professional criminals is small indeed, but they seem to evade arrest, or if captured, make their escape from the jails in which they are placed or through the courts.

In spite of the fact that criminals run rampant over the country, robbing banks, kidnaping men, women, and children, and shooting down citizens at the least provocation, there is little being done about it. True, officers spend much time and money in running them down and make arrests occasionally, but being arrested seems to be the least of their troubles. Every criminal knows there is a chance to escape jail, and if prevented there are the courts, bound by precedent, and rules of procedure, which give them a 70 per cent chance of being freed. Should, perchance, a verdict of guilty be rendered after four or five years of delay, and this verdict be sustained by the higher court after another two years they always have a governor to appeal to for a pardon.

In dozens of courts in the Southwest today cases are being tried the second and third time. The crimes vary from five to tens years of age. Children have grown into manhood and womanhood and new crimes are taking the attention of the public. The Legislatures in the various states meet and adjourn without giving the matter serious thought. Every attempt to bring about a reform in procedure and to cut the red tape that binds and limits the powers of our judges is defeated. Lawyers in the Legislature are not willing to give the people an even chance with criminals before the law. Years of effort to reform our courts and to simplify procedure in the cause of justice has brought few returns. Lawyers will not do the job for us. If the people are to be relieved from the constant menace of criminals; if the courts are to serve the people efficiently and without unnecessary delay, the laymen, not lawyers, will have to force the issue. If the lawyers refuse to act, then let us quit sending lawyers to the Legislature.—Farm and Ranch.

You Need Refrigeration Every Day of the Year

There are only a few days each year that the temperature is low enough for the proper refrigeration of foods. Although foods may not spoil during cold Fall weather, the temperature is not low enough to prevent the growth of bacteria, the real danger of poor refrigeration.

The electrical refrigerator's economy and dependability of operation has been proven. The saving on foods alone makes the investment of your money amply repay you.

To protect your family's health, proper refrigeration is a necessity every day of the year. The cost is no greater than obsolete methods of refrigeration.

Low incentive rates make it possible for you to secure the maximum of benefit at the minimum of expense. Buy safe—buy dependable electrical refrigeration.

PHILLIPS DRUG CO.

STATE HEALTH OFFICER ON HEALTH IMPROVEMENT

Austin, Texas, Nov. 26.—Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, has asked all citizens of Texas to give some thought to health, both personal and public, on this Thanksgiving Day. The original Thanksgiving was held by the Colonies for the purpose of giving thanks for their health.

Great advances in the treatment and prevention of disease have been made since that first Thanksgiving. Yellow fever, plague, and cholera have practically ceased to exist. Smallpox, diphtheria, and typhoid can be eliminated as a cause of death if a person will have himself and children immunized. Malaria and many other diseases can be controlled if the public would demand that the government furnish such protection.

Due to the advancement in knowledge of disease, concerning its prevention and cure, fifteen years have been added to the expectation of life. This means that a child born now can be expected to live fifteen years longer than he would if he had been born fifty years ago.

We have a great deal more to be thankful for now, even with a depression, than did our Pilgrim forefathers; so let each one in his Thanksgiving pledge to assist in furthering the work being done to improve health conditions.

IS THE EDITOR A LIAR?

If the average newspaper man is a liar he usually lies to protect his community. If a boy goes out into the world and gets into trouble the home newspaper says he was a good boy until he got away from home and into bad company. If the town's tightwad, who has hugged his pennies to his bosom in life, dies, the newspaperman throws a mantel over him and says that he hated wastefulness, and his hate for wastefulness, and his hate for useless spending made him ever careful of his investments and his charities. If the town gossip dies he carefully avoids referring to her weakness, and tells how she visited the sick and afflicted, and winds up by saying that she was a good neighbor.

If the home team goes from home and gets the daylights whipped out of them, the home editor tells the unsuspecting world that the team was made up of second line players.

The editor isn't a liar from choice. The truth struggles in his manly breast the same as it does in the village preacher, but the pride of the community and the fear of the irate subscribers make him a trembling rabbit, and he lies to save the local pride of the town. Still—it's a great life, if you don't weaken.—Junction Eagle.

Vote of Cotton Producers On Bankhead Act Set Dec. 14

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced Friday that Dec. 14 would be the day for vote of cotton producers on whether they favored continuation of the Bankhead cotton control bill for the next season. Under the law, two-thirds of the Southern producers must approve it for its continuance. The election will be held in counties, under details yet to be announced.

Town farmers, large land owners, tenants, share-croppers and all others will be given a chance to express themselves in the referendum vote. Under the mechanism to be established the precinct committeeman who will have charge of the balloting will be expected to report to the county committees the following morning and thereafter, the result will be transmitted to Washington. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is expected to announce result of the balloting before Christmas.

During the height of the ginning season and about the time that Senator Smith of South Carolina was alluding to the Bankhead act as a heart breaking disappointment the belief was widely prevalent that a referendum would result in a decided rejection of the act, but at this time a number of persons in position to be familiar with Southern sentiment, including Cully A. Cobb, of the cotton section of the AAA, are confident the compulsory control act will be approved.

As heretofore pointed out, failure to continue this or some other form of control would increase the production of cotton next year by possibly a million bales.

People are suspicious if you talk about what a fool you used to be.
