New surgeon relocates here

Pate and his family move to Snyder from Alpine, where he has been the chief of staff and director of surgery at Big Bend Memorial Hospital.

This Friday, a reception in his honor is scheduled by the Cogdell Hospital Auxiliary. It is planned from 2 until 4 p.m. in the hospital's doctor's lounge.

Pate grew up in Sanderson, a community near Alpine. He is part of a family of physicians which includes his father, still a general practicioner in Alpine; and two brothers, who have medical practices in Alpine and El Paso.

He graduated from Ball High School in Galveston in 1969, a move prompted by his older brothers being in medical school at the time.

His medical training includes both general and vascular surgery.

Pate attended college at both Sul Ross University in Alpine and Tulane University in New Orleans. He graduated from medical school in 1976 from Southwestern Medical School in Dallas.

He completed in 1981 his five years residency and surgery internship at Parkland Hospital in Dallas.

At that time he returned to Alpine's Big Bend Memorial Hospital, where he has continued his practice until his move to Snyder.

Prior to entering medical school, Pate also completed a research grant effort for the American Cancer Society. In addition, he traveled for five months in Mexico, learning to speak Spanish while there.

His wife Margie is also fluent in Spanish having taught Spanish-English overseas at Madrid while working with the American Embassy.

She also attended Tulane University and has earned a masters degree through the University of Madrid. She has also taught high school Spanish.

They have two children, a son and a daughter. The oldest is Rusty, age 3 ½; and an infant daughter, Christine, born this past Jan. 8.

Pate's surgical affiliations include being named a fellow of the International College of Surgeons; a candidate for fellowship with the American College of Surgeons; a fellow of the American Society of Abdominal Surgery; a

Tax hike is debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to increase the tax burden on smokers, drinkers and businesses by $49 billion as Congress struggles to make good on election-year promises to make a down payment toward ending soaring federal budget deficits.

The House passed the tax measure Wednesday on a bipartisan 318-97 vote, and the Senate was struggling to finish work today on a similar $48 billion bill. Negotiators from each chamber will have to meet later to work out a compromise version of the legislation.

Also today, the House was set to debate a package of nearly $5 billion in spending cuts, but action on that measure was in doubt because of arguments over an amendment that would impose a one-year freeze on Medicare fees paid to physicians.

Meanwhile, the Senate Budget Committee on Wednesday narrowly approved the outlines of a $150 billion deficit-reduction package President Reagan has endorsed. But the Republican-controlled panel acted only after sending a clear signal that it thinks the package does too little to reduce government red ink.

There were 223 Democrats and 95 Republicans voting in favor of the House tax bill while 31 Democrats and 66 Republicans opposed it. The lopsided victory for an election-year tax increases reflected the fact that it carries the president's support, so long as major cuts in federal spending also are adopted.

Most of the $49.2 billion the House bill would raise through Sept. 30, 1987, would be paid by upper-income investors and corporations.

Individuals would notice the impact primarily through provisions that would:

—Raise the tax on a fifth of 100-proof liquor by 75 cents.

—Drop the 16-cent tax on a pack of cigarettes to only 12 cents next year, instead of the 8-cent level specified in current law.

—Retain the 3 percent tax on telephone service — 75 cents on a $25 monthly bill — for an extra two years past the Dec. 31, 1985, expiration date now scheduled.

—Repeal a new tax break of up to $450 a year per saver before it is due to go into effect next year.

House to vote on mining

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrat-led House is expected to follow the Republican-controlled Senate in overwhelmingly condemning the CIA-directed mining of Nicaraguan harbors, and lawmakers of both parties say the House will probably vote to end aid to Nicaraguan rebels altogether.

The House scheduled action today on a non-binding resolution, approved 31-3 by its Foreign Affairs Committee on Wednesday, expressing "the sense of Congress that no additional funds be used to mine the ports or territorial waters of Nicaragua."

A resolution saying the same thing was approved 84-12 by the Senate on Tuesday.

Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan, the senior Republican on the Foreign Affairs panel, supported the resolution and predicted the House would pass it "by an overwhelming margin."

House director is indicted

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) — The director of a shelter for Salvadoran aliens said he had been indicted by a federal grand jury for transporting illegal aliens and expected to be arrested and arraigned Thursday morning.

Jack Elder, 40, said he learned Wednesday that he had been indicted on three counts of transporting illegal Salvadoran aliens.

He said Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Guerra "wanted me to surrender to authorities today, but the attorneys (representing Elder) told him I was busy with a lot of things to do at the house. We didn't want it to get ugly, so they agreed to send the U.S. Marshal out tomorrow," Elder said Wednesday.

Guerra could not be reached to confirm the indictment.

Immigration and Naturalization Service District director Hal Boldin said he could not comment officially on any indictment until after an arrest had been made.

Chief warns Klan protestors

AUSTIN (AP) — Anyone who causes trouble during a Ku Klux Klan march through downtown Austin on Saturday will go to jail, Police Chief Frank Dyson warns.

"Last year, so as not to take officers away from their regular assignments, a lot of people were not arrested who should have been. This time, anyone seen throwing rocks or other objects will be taken to jail immediately," Dyson said.

Dyson, who said he would prefer that spectators stay away, declined to discuss how many police officers would be assigned to the march.

"There will be as many or more officers than we had last year. We will have sufficient numbers," he said.

Last February, 13 people were arrested and 11 injured, including four law officers, in a melee that broke out near the end of the Klan march.

About 200 police officers were on duty for that march, Dyson said.

Civil war enters 10th year

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — After nine years of civil war, most of Lebanon is controlled by foreign armies, the economy is tottering and the resilience of the people has given way to a pervasive sense of despair.

Beirut was the "Paris of the Middle East" before the war, which most Lebanese say began April 13, 1975.

Mondale, Hart camps are optimistic

By The Associated Press

With the Democratic presidential race at a midpoint lull, Walter Mondale is on the same mission as Republican President Reagan, courting autoworkers and claiming credit for the domestic auto industry's partial recovery.

Both Mondale, the re-established front-runner for the Democratic nomination, and Reagan, unopposed for renomination by the GOP, were in Missouri on Wednesday touring automobile assembly lines.

Mondale visited a Chrysler plant at St. Louis while Reagan was 250 miles away at a modernized Ford plant in Claycomo near Kansas City.

"Reagan in an auto plant is like a fox in the chicken coop," said Mondale. "This is the president who caused the worst trade year in our nation's history and who will not stand up against the flood of imports."

Said Reagan: "Times have been rough, and yes, the recession was much deeper and longer than almost anyone predicted. But these problems had been building up for 20 years, and we were determined to find a real economic cure, not just resort — as they had so often in the past — to another political quick fix."

And in a jab at his political opponents who accuse him of a lack of compassion, Reagan said, "There's no compassion in snake oil cures."

Sen. Gary Hart, Mondale's chief party rival, planned to resume campaigning today in Missouri, Texas and Arizona after taking Wednesday off in his hometown of Denver.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson, the third Democratic hopeful, was visiting Indian reservations in Arizona and New Mexico today. In Phoenix on Wednesday, he said the mining of Nicaraguan harbors by CIA-backed rebels is "an act of war" and criticized Reagan for it.

"I do not call for his impeachment, but it is provocative and a de facto state of war," Jackson said. "If he operates beyond the law it must be challenged."

Mondale, also stopping in Phoenix before going on to California, criticized the mining, too, saying it was "clumsiness" by the Reagan administration. "It's wrong. It's counterproductive," he said.

After seven weeks of major battles every week, the Democratic campaign now heads into three weeks of smaller skirmishes before the next big round in early May. Arizona attracted the Democrats because of its caucuses on Saturday; Missouri Democrats hold their caucuses next Wednesday.

Among the remaining contests are Texas, which holds a caucus May 5, and California, which has its primary June 5.

No reprimand planned for police dispatcher

HOUSTON (AP) — A police dispatcher who did not send a squad car to rescue a kidnap victim locked in a trunk will not be disciplined because she misunderstood her caller, thinking the caller was reporting a woman locked in a truck, officials say.

Police Chief Lee Brown released a statement Wednesday saying the dispatcher, whom he declined to identify, thought caller Vicki Campbell said "truck" when she actually said "trunk."

The dispatcher told Ms. Campbell that victim Arlynea Schittli, 40, could free herself by "pulling the handle to the door," Brown said.

"Basically, it's just a case of a misunderstanding," police spokesman Marc Henderson said, adding that an internal investigation has not been completed.

Ms. Schittli was locked in the trunk for more than 10 hours last week but escaped with only minor bruises on her arms. She was locked up and abandoned after abductors robbed her of $1,130 in cash and checks.

A woman and two men kidnapped Ms. Schittli April 4 after she stepped out of her car, which the trio had bumped from behind at a west Houston intersection.

Ms. Schittli was freed by a friend who had a spare key to the car. Ms. Campbell called the friend after the conversation with the dispatcher.

Police released a tape of the conversation between the dispatcher and Ms. Campbell, who heard Ms. Schittli's cries for help when she arrived at work the morning of April 5.

Dispatcher: "Yes, this is (inaudible), may I help you?"

Ms. Campbell: "Yes ma'am, I work at a club and I've got — you're never going to believe this — there's a lady outside locked in her trunk. And I just got to work and all the Mexicans outside..."

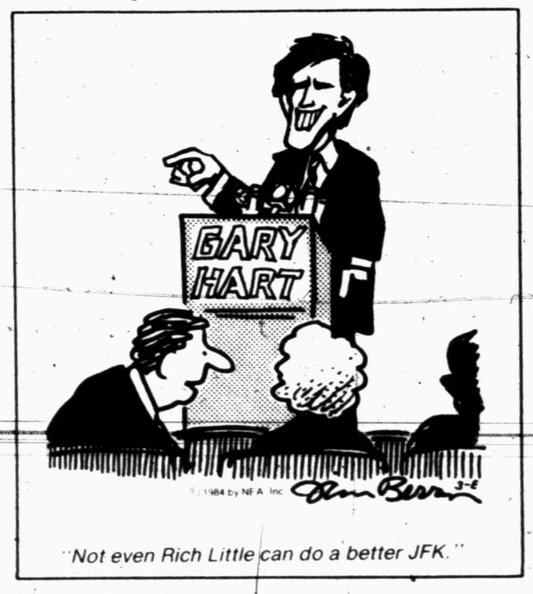

Dispatcher: "What is she doing?"

Ms. Campbell: "She's locked in her trunk."

Dispatcher: "She can unlock it. If she's an adult, she can always pull the handle, hon."

Perot says he has spent $500,000 on recent study

AUSTIN (AP) — H. Ross Perot says his review of Texas public schools has cost him $500,000 of his own money.

But the chairman of the Select Committee on Public Education says he will spend more, if needed, to push the panel's recommendations through the Legislature.

"I'd be delighted not to spend my money. But historically, I get a tough job with no money to do the job," said Perot, who spent his own money to help push War on Drugs legislation in 1981.

The Dallas electronics millionaire said he expects a battle with "the forces trying to water our plan down." He also expects challenges from groups interested only in a teacher pay raise, and not in other reforms.

"If you water down the system to put through a pay raise, you play a trick on the people. I won't be a part of that," he said.

Gov. Mark White is expected to call a special session this summer to consider the Perot committee report. Gerald Hill, White's executive assistant, said "rising skepticism" about the Perot committee report "is just natural." Hill said there will be a "frontal attack" on the committee's call for an appointed State Board of Education to replace the current elected board.

"But I don't see anyone as watering down the entire report," he said.

Perot sees a bigger fight than Hill predicted.

"We'll have the damnedest fight with the forces trying to water our plan down," he said. "Do you see anybody trying to stiffen (reforms) up? Everything you see is people wanting to compromise it away."

Board of Education Chairman Joe Kelly Butler of Houston dismissed Perot's contention that an organized alliance of educators would oppose the select committee recommendations.

"It's just the education community reacts in a pretty solid front. But no substantial element of the education community supports (Perot's) program," Butler said.

At Wit's End
by erma bombeck

It was one of those family gatherings where the conversation took a peculiar turn.

I was threatening one of the kids with a mirror in the center of the table while he ate and he was saying if it disgusted me I didn't have to sit there and watch him put every bite into his mouth. I think it was my husband who said kids nowadays are spoiled and it would serve them right if they inherited the earth, and someone else said, "Man would never be the last survivor on earth because we were pampered and not tough enough."

That brought us to the topic of who or what would be the last living survivor on this planet.

I was ruled out first because if the electricity went off, I couldn't get our garage door open and without a car my life would be over. Our daughter was next out of the competition because she had not perfected skills for turning on the stove and would ultimately starve to death.

The boys started ticking off the luxuries of video cassettes, chair lifts, pizzas, calculators, and Debra Winger and didn't know if there would be any incentives for surviving.

My dad said the only reason for living is to sink a hole-in-one and if there was no one to see it, what would be the use of doing it? My mom contemplated it might be rather pleasant without all those sports on TV, but then Hour Magazine would no longer be a reality. My husband said it would certainly be a better world for joggers without all that traffic, but there would be no free T-shirts either.

We knew the dog couldn't make it. He'd been tilting his head upward toward the kitchen table for seven years and didn't know anything else.

One by one we ticked off the species that were dependent on someone or something ... the mosquitoes who lived off my father's blood ... the mice who lived in a condo in my kids' apartments, and the crickets that ate through the carpets I loved and left the ugly ones.

We remembered a documentary on PBS chronicling the life of a tree and how many animals were dependent upon it for their very existence until the tree was felled by disease.

Who will inherit the earth? Wouldn't it be incredible if we all got our inheritance of this earth while we were still alive? Maybe that's what the earth was formed for ... to assemble a group of life that could only survive by being there for one another.

Maybe when that stops happening, there doesn't deserve to be an earth.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, in accordance with rules and orders promulgated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of a public hearing to begin at 10 a.m. on Monday, May 14, 1984, in the offices of the Public Utility Commission, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Austin, Texas, concerning proposals made by the company to add three optional services and delete two services from the list of local exchange services available to its Texas customers.

Proposed additions to the local exchange tariffs include an optional Local Measured Service under which all residence customers and single-line business customers could pay monthly rates less than flat rate for one-party service, with an additional charge for each completed outgoing call to be determined by the time of day, distance and duration of each call; and a subsidized LIFELINE local service to be made available to qualified individuals, as determined by the Public Utility Commission. The monthly rate for LIFELINE service would include an allowance of 25 outgoing calls per month, plus a charge for each additional call.

Proposed for deletion from the local exchange tariffs are one-element measured service offerings for residence customers and single-line business customers, but current customers would not be affected.

The company does not anticipate that these additional services will result in an increase in revenue to Southwestern Bell Telephone.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso al Publico

Por medio del presente aviso y en conformidad con las reglas y dictámenes de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas, la compañía Southwestern Bell Telephone anuncia la audiencia pública que se llevará a cabo a partir de las 10 de la mañana del día lunes 14 de mayo de 1984 en las oficinas de la Comisión de Servicios Públicos, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Austin, Texas, con respecto a la propuesta de la compañía, que consiste en agregar tres servicios opcionales y suprimir dos servicios de la lista de servicios telefónicos locales a disposición del usuario en Texas.

Las adiciones propuestas al arancel del servicio telefónico local incluyen un Servicio Medido Local opcional según el cual todos los clientes residenciales y los clientes comerciales con línea única pagarían tarifas mensuales menores que la tarifa fija para servicios de línea única, con un cargo adicional por cada llamada completa efectuada desde ese teléfono, establecido según la hora, la distancia y la duración de cada llamada; así como un servicio local subvencionado de LIFELINE que estaría disponible para determinadas personas, según lo establezca la Comisión de Servicios Públicos. La tarifa mensual para el servicio de LIFELINE incluiría 25 llamadas mensuales con un cargo adicional por cada llamada en exceso de 25.

Se propone suprimir del arancel del servicio telefónico local las opciones de servicio medido de un elemento para clientes residenciales y clientes comerciales con línea única, pero ésto no afectaría a los clientes actuales.

Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Blvd., Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Tired eyes

Ann Jillian of TV's "Jennifer Slept Here" told Beauty Digest Magazine her favorite beauty secret: "When I'm tired, I get circles under my eyes. To camouflage this, I use an orange-toned base makeup under my eyes. Next I put my regular base over that and dust my whole face with a translucent pearlized loose powder. That makes your skin actually glow! The orange-colored base works for women with just about every hair color except a real brunette. She should just use a deeper shade of orange base."

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

North looks at his 19 high-card points and is surely interested in a slam.

The two-spade weak jump overcall by West doesn't disturb him at all. He simply bids three diamonds and, when South responds three hearts, he takes off for the stratosphere and finally bids seven hearts. The bid is a trifle optimistic since there are only 12 winning tricks, including a spade ruff. The only way to get to 13 is a club-diamond squeeze. A squeeze is always possible when there are threat cards in two suits.

South has them in dummy's diamonds and in clubs in both hands. It is likely that East will be long in both minor suits.

South needs to ruff a spade in dummy, so he must count on East's having two spades. South starts by taking dummy's king of spades and leading a spade to his ace, ruffing his last spade with the queen of trumps. South now runs off four trumps to get down to a six-card ending with dummy holding A-K-8-7 of diamonds and A-K of clubs. East has been squeezed. He needs to keep four diamonds and three clubs, but he can keep only six cards.

Now it is up to South to know what suit East is guarding. If East is down to two clubs, South cashes dummy's A-K of clubs and A-K of diamonds. South returns to his hand by ruffing a low diamond and makes the thirteenth trick with his little club. If East comes down to three diamonds, South plays A-K of diamonds and ruffs a diamond in his hand to set up dummy's fourth diamond as trick 13.

Leaders set next plans

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — To keep pace with the expanding population of the Rio Grande Valley, more than 8,000 new jobs must be created each year between now and the year 2000, state officials attending an economic development conference say.

"There is not an industry in the world that will come down here when they learn their people might come into contact with leprosy," Rep. Alex Moreno of Edinburg told a group of Valley leaders attending the Wednesday conference, which was sponsored by Valley Interfaith.

The high rate of diseases like as leprosy and typhus must be eliminated and other health problems solved in order to attract the private sector, Moreno said.

At the close of Wednesday's meeting, a task force was formed to develop long-range strategies for improving the area economy with subcommittees set up to address problems in health, education and unemployment.

"Help from the public sector is only a part of economic development, hopefully a small part," said Ernesto Cortez, founder of Valley Interfaith.

"But you can't attract the private sector without a good education system, without good health care, without a good transportation system and a strong infrastructure."

By the year 2000, the Valley's population is expected to double and an additional 148,445 jobs will be needed to keep unemployment around 10 percent, according to a paper prepared for the conference. This means about 8,250 new jobs must be created each year for the next 16 years.

In January, the jobless rate in January for the four counties of Cameron, Hidalgo, Starr and Willacy averaged 23 percent, excluding unemployed farmworkers, according to the Texas Employment Commission. Including farm workers laid off by the freeze, the unemployment rate averaged about 30 percent.

Brownville's Bishop James Fitzpatrick opened the meeting.

Smokey the Bear for public office?

WASHINGTON (AP) — As bears go, Smokey is a hard-working, gregarious sort who is always ready to lift a willing paw to put out forest fires. But his boss, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block is wondering if Smokey really isn't campaigning for public office.

Block helped plant a tree Wednesday to commemorate Smokey Bear's 40th anniversary as an official Forest Service symbol, and said festivities are planned throughout the year. A special postage stamp honoring Smokey will be issued in August.

President Reagan has proclaimed the week of May 13-19 as National Smokey Bear Week.

"Smokey will make appearances in a barnstorming tour across the country," Block said. "I kind of wonder if he's been involved with some of the primary campaigning, I don't really know."

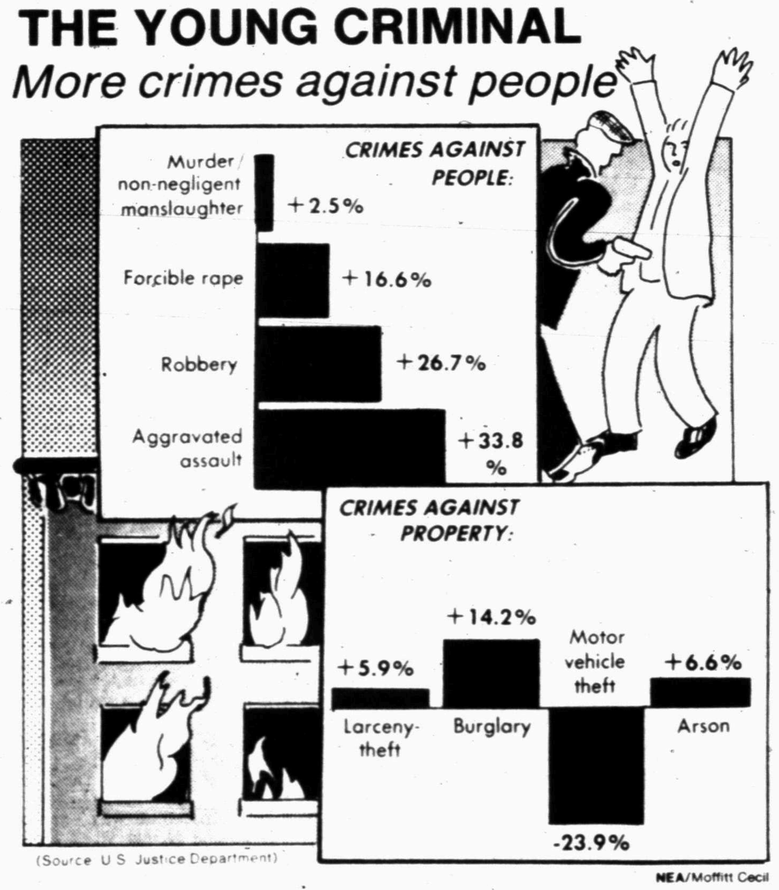

The Smokey character began in 1944 as a poster symbol of the Forest Service to help reduce wildfires in national forests. Those fires destroyed more than 10 million acres in 1942. By 1981, damage was down to 3 million acres.

But Smokey became more than a cartoon figure and a slogan — "Remember, only you can prevent forest fires" — with the rescue of a badly burned cub after a fire in New Mexico's Lincoln National Forest in 1950.

After its burns healed, the cub was brought to the National Zoo in Washington, where it became the living Smokey Bear.

Autoworkers blues...

Thousands still jobless

DETROIT (AP) — Anthony and Vivian Davis were enjoying two big paychecks a week when they suddenly wound up as numbers on Ford Motor Co.'s layoff rolls.

Two years later they no longer are numbers — but they don't have jobs either.

The Davises, having sold their three cars and gone on welfare, are among thousands whose names are being scratched from the list of Americans who can list their occupation as autoworkers.

The car industry has rebounded to record profits and Detroit is selling cars faster than they can be made. But it has left behind dozens of shuttered assembly and parts plants — and people like the Davises.

"I had been working since I was 15 years old," said Davis, who was hired at Ford at age 20 and now is 26. "I used to say, 'Well, I'll just go out and get another job.' But I can't do that today."

This month the U.S. auto industry reached what appeared to be a milestone when the number of workers on indefinite layoff fell to below 100,000 for the first time in five years. It had reached nearly 300,000 at one point during the four-year auto sales slump.

On Wednesday, speaking at a Ford plant outside Kansas City which the White House had picked as a model of resurgence in the auto industry, President Reagan noted that "more than 100,000 autoworkers went back to work in 1983."

But such figures leave out people like the Davises, who no longer are listed as laid off because their jobless benefits have run out.

The number of blue-collar U.S. autoworkers has shrunk to 510,000 today as compared to 735,000 in 1978, the United Auto Workers union says.

The industry's work force, including white-collar employees, numbered 1.5 million in 1978 but could fall by 1990 to as low as one-third of that — 500,000 — if automation continues and more cars and car parts originate overseas, according to union economist Lydia Fisher.

Davis said that of eight acquaintances who were hired with him at Ford, "one is still getting payments and the rest are not — and none of them have jobs."

The jobs of people like the Davises "are lost and gone forever," said John Hammond, an auto industry researcher at Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

"From their perspective, the auto industry has all its capacity in place now. If they're not working in the industry now, they never will be," Hammond said.

"This is happening throughout smokestack America today," he said. "These workers have no choice but to make the expenditure and retrain (for other jobs) or move to lower-paying jobs. That's very painful."

The Davises were hired in 1978 at Ford's sprawling Rouge River complex in nearby Dearborn. He assembled Ford Mustangs. She put together frames for Lincolns, put stripes on cars and tested new models for water leaks.

"I was working 10 hours a day, six days a week," said Mrs. Davis, also 26. After taxes, she said she "was making $350 a week including overtime."

Both were laid off several times, but had enough seniority to be called back — until October 1981. That's when Davis was laid off. In March 1982, Mrs. Davis was laid off. Neither has worked since.

The Davises received supplemental unemployment benefits, at 90 percent of their base earnings, for several months; unemployment and federal Trade Readjustment Act payments lasted until a year ago.

Now the couple and their 1-year-old daughter, Jessica, live on about $500 a month in relief payments and food stamps.

Final proof not likely

DALLAS (AP) — Drifter Henry Lee Lucas may have killed more than 350 people, as he claims, but authorities will never be able to tie many of them to him, a Louisiana police sergeant predicts.

"I don't think (the claims) will ever be confirmed," Sgt. Danny Miller of the Monroe, La., police force said Wednesday.

He is one of several officers whom The Associated Press talked to by telephone on Wednesday concerning Lucas' claims and his possible connection to murders in their areas.

"There's a strong possibility they (Lucas and sometime companion Ottis Toole) may have committed them, but we're not able to say 'Yeah, he did it,' and close the book."

Law enforcement officers from 20 states met for a second time in Monroe earlier this year to compare notes on Lucas, who has told officers he killed people in at least 16 states from 1972 to 1983.

Miller said authorities consider him a suspect in at least 103 killings nationwide.

In a videotaped statement made Feb. 16 and played in a courtroom during a capital murder trial for Lucas now under way in San Angelo, Texas, the 47-year-old drifter and handyman told investigators he believes he has killed 360 people.

Puffing cigarettes, Lucas calmly narrated a tale of torture and death — a forbidding story of victims that detectives tracing his bloody trail said they can neither confirm nor discredit.

"I'd estimate 60 (in Texas) but I know there's a lot more," a calm Lucas said in the interview.

He said he shot, stabbed, burned, beat, strangled, hung and "crucified" his victims, and that some had been "fileted like fish."

He added, "I killed them most every way but poison. ... As far as I know, there's no way I haven't killed them."

Texas Rangers are compiling a record of Lucas investigations nationwide and a chart of the drifters' travels since his 1976 release from a Michigan prison.

WTC newspaper staff wins awards

The staff of the Western Texan, student publication at WTC, won top honors last weekend at the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association contest and Texas Community College Journalism Association convention in Arlington.

First place in general excellence was awarded to the Texan by TCCJA. This association is comprised of 32 Texas junior/-community colleges. 1983 fall and spring semester newspapers were entered in the canned competition.

Jana Harris, editor, won first in headline writing. She is a sophomore journalism major from Ozona. Harris tied for third in editorial writing with John Moesch, a sophomore from Roby. Moesch is majoring in broadcast journalism.

Competing against 36 two and four year schools in TIPA, the Western Texan won third in newspaper excellence overall. Brookhaven College in Dallas was first followed by Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls.

Over 60 junior/-community colleges and four year schools are TIPA members. Live competition took place on the University of Txas at Arlington campus.

Students representing WTC in live contests were Harris, TV announcing; Moesch, radio announcing; Starnes, action photography; Erika Lee, Kermit sophomore, commercial copywriting; Toby Villa, Haskell freshman, editorial writing; Billy Kelley, Roscoe sophomore, ad layout; and Cyndi Trujillo, Ozona freshman, feature writing.

Appalachian...

Jobs now main issue for states

HERSHEY, Pa. (AP) — No longer the nation's stepchild, Appalachia is finally catching up to the rest of the United States, boasting new schools, new hospitals and new roads.

What's lacking now, however, are jobs in this once-mighty industrial region where coal was king and steel reigned supreme, according to 350 leaders and experts meeting to explore how Appalachia's 13 states can help dislocated workers.

"The industrial boom in the United States is over. No amount of modernization can return us to our former position of a heavy-industry superstar," explained Winifred A. Pizzano, co-chairwoman of the federal Appalachian Regional Commission and head of the three-day conference which began Wednesday.

"A new economy is taking place right before our eyes. And it involves new kinds of skills," agreed Thomas A. Bartlett, chancellor for the University of Alabama System.

"We have to have a different kind of mentality than we've had all our lives. There are no 40-year jobs anymore of high value. Jobs are going to keep changing," Bartlett said.

Unemployment currently averages 11.8 percent in the 13 Eastern states which straddle the Appalachian Mountains from New York to Mississippi, up slightly from a few years ago and still well above the national average.

The nationwide slide in employment began four years ago when heavy industry faltered because of the economic recession. Appalachia was particularly hard hit because manufacturing accounts for 30 percent of the region's employment, compared with 20 percent for the entire United States.

Since 1980, 500,000 Appalachian jobs have been lost. Most experts agree they're gone forever.

"It (heavy industry) is not going to come back. But nobody wants to tell the workers that, not the companies, not the unions. And the workers are sitting there waiting to be called back," said Marvin J. Cetron, president of Forecasting International Ltd.

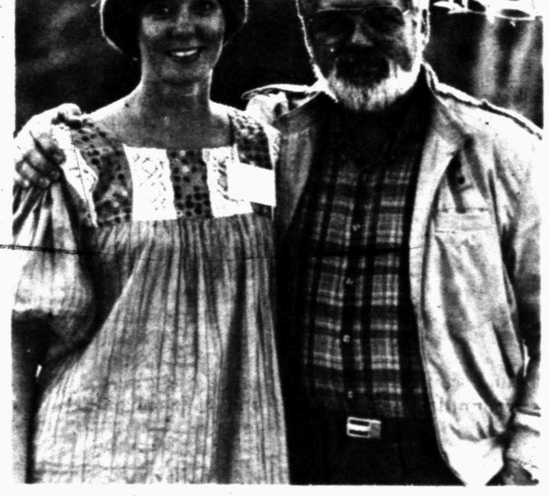

A major problem, according to the regional commission, is convincing the blue-collar workforce that it has no choice but to start over.

Studies by the commission, established in 1965 to rid Appalachia of poverty, illiteracy and inadequate health and educational facilities, show that displaced workers, or those left jobless due to structural changes in the economy, most often are middle-class men who thought they were "making it." They had home mortgages, school-age children and community commitments.

"Honest to gosh, these people think these jobs are going to come back or should come back. And everybody in the community thinks that. That's a serious problem, with their becoming involved in other-jobs," Ms. Pizzano said.

The findings were based on interviews with 100 Pittsburgh-area steelworkers.

Meanwhile, many of the new skills being learned may also become outmoded in the near future, according to Bartlett.

Pam Zeck completes photography course

Pam Zeck of Snyder recently completed a course in outdoor portraiture at the Texas School of Professional Photography at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville. She was awarded a full scholarship by the Texas Professional Photography Association to attend the school for the week of April 1-6.

Leon Kennamer of Guntersville, Ala. taught the course. He is recognized internationally for his photographic expertise in the field of outdoor portraiture. He created the concept of subtractive lighting.

The Texas School of Professional Photography is affiliated with the Professional Photographers of America. The PPA awards a prestigious achievement merit to each student who successfully completes the required coursework. Zeck received the certificate of merit in a graduation ceremony April 5 at the university.

The merit is applied to the Master of Photography and the Photographic Craftsman Degrees of Recognition established nationally to recognize excellence in the photography profession.

Menopause feelings persist

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — The last period I had was three years ago. I still have all the menopausal symptoms — the feeling of burning up, depression, etc. Just cleaning my house makes my face red and I sweat as if I were doing heavy labor. My body is covered with sweat after a 15-minute walk.

My face is so red it looks purple. I have used Premarin but it didn't seem to help much. Is there anything I can do to help myself? How long does this go on before I can feel normal again?

DEAR READER — I hope you have discussed this with your doctor because there may be reasons other than menopause for your persistent symptoms.

The temperature regulating center in the brain is really responsible for sweating and flushing. Dilated blood vessels allow body heat to escape just like the radiator in your car eliminates heat from the engine. The sweating is part of evaporative cooling. All of us have this means of eliminating body heat.

Going through the menopause is only one thing that can cause such reactions, but of course it is the most common medical cause. When these reactions are caused by the menopause they persist until the endocrine and nerve regulation system readjusts to the changes that follow cessation of ovarian function. That can vary a great deal.

Estrogen in sufficient amounts usually will control hot flashes. I wonder if you really took a large enough dose. Doctors are less frightened about using larger doses now if they combine estrogens with progesterone. There doesn't seem to be any significant increase in the risk of uterine (endometrial) cancer if the combination is used.

The different responses to the menopause and what can be done about them is discussed in more detail in The Health Letter 5-12, Menopause, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

If hormones don't control the problem, the additional use of adrenaline neutralizing drugs (beta blockers), such as Inderal, may be tried. Adrenaline released in surges seems to have something to do with the sudden attacks.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been having trouble with my ears. The doctor says they are infected. He removed the wax. The worst thing is that when I go to bed, as soon as I put my head on the pillow, I hear my heartbeat. I told the doctor but he didn't say what the cause could be. I have had it off and on for at least 10 years, but this time it is staying longer. Is there anything I can do for it?

DEAR READER — You need to know that being able to hear your heartbeat in your ear when you are lying on your side is quite normal. When your attention is focused on the sound it will be more noticeable. No doubt with your recent ear problems you are more concerned about your ears and listen more closely for the heartbeat that is disturbing you.

You may notice you are less likely to hear it if you are lying on your back. Just knowing that it is normal may help decrease your concern and in turn make it less troublesome.

City's bonds rating slips

HOUSTON (AP) — Moody's Investor's Services Inc. has dropped Houston's bond rating from its highest to its second-best grade, and an executive of the financial firm says the city's main problem is financial planning.

Moody's announced Wednesday that Houston bonds, which had been rated AAA since 1974, will be reduced to AA1.

"The absence of definitive plans to quantify fully the needs and to identify supporting revenues is exacerbated by the two-year term of elected officials," Moody's Vice President Ben Phillips said.

Mix-Up in Lab Samples Causes Test-Tube Tempest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a senior citizen who was horrified and embarrassed to learn that her premarital blood tests came back "positive" for syphilis. She stated that there was absolutely no way she could have had that disease. You pointed out that there could have been many factors other than VD that would cause a positive result.

I was rather disturbed because you didn't even mention the most common reason, namely, the lab technicians mixing up the blood samples. This happened to me once, many years ago when I was a young, 100-percent virgin. It was during a compulsory medical exam for employment. I'll never forget how humiliated I was.

Of course it was later discovered that there had been a mix-up at the lab. This happens much more often than most people suspect—not only with blood samples but with all body fluids.

Many women have had their wits scared out of them by false-positive Pap tests.

ONE WHO KNOWS

DEAR ONE: Speaking of human error, read on:

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old son is taking Tegretol for seizures. While filling his weekly medicine container, I noticed that some of the pills looked different. I took the pills back to the drugstore and found out that half of them were penicillin!

The pharmacist said she had used a machine to count the pills, and while filling my prescription for Tegretol she had some penicillin pills sitting next to it, and she got the penicillin by mistake and mixed those pills up with the Tegretol. (They looked very much alike.)

She told me I wasn't the first person that happened to. After that, the drugstore got rid of the counting machine. Fortunately no harm was done to my son.

What I'm saying, Abby, is this: While most pharmacists are very careful, they are only human and sometimes make mistakes, so warn your readers to watch their pills!

ALERT IN WEST CHESTER, PA.

DEAR ABBY: My sister and I have a friendly bet with some friends, and we hope you can settle it. It goes like this:

Say that Linda and Albert (not their real names) marry and have a daughter. Then they get divorced. Linda then marries Jim, and together they have a daughter. Linda now has two daughters. We say that Linda's two daughters are true sisters because they have the same mother.

Now Albert marries Martha, who has a son by a previous marriage. Albert and Martha then have a son. We say that Albert's daughter from Linda and his son from Martha are half brother and sister. However, his son from Martha and his stepson (Martha's son from her previous marriage) are true brothers because they have the same mother.

We say that no matter how many husbands a woman has, all the children born to her are natural sisters and brothers. Are we correct? Our friends say we are wrong.

WAITING TO HEAR IN TORONTO

DEAR WAITING: Your friends are right; you are wrong. In order to be full (or as you say, "true") brother and sister, each would have to have the same mother and same father. Two children who have the same mother but different fathers—or the same father but different mothers—are half sisters or half brothers.

Children related to each other because their parents have married but who are not blood-related are stepsisters and stepbrothers.

Companies agree to pay plaintiffs

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Twelve petrochemical companies have agreed to pay a former industry executive and the survivors of four other cancer victims, settling what one federal official called a "landmark air pollution suit."

The plaintiffs include the family of a man who lived near one of the plants named in the suit, but never worked for any of the defendant companies.

Attorneys in the case agreed not to reveal the amount of the settlement Wednesday, but the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal quoted sources as saying the amount was between $1 million and $3 million.

"A million is definitely low, but I know the plaintiffs wouldn't settle for much less than $3 million. They had been talking in that ballpark," a source active in industrial damage cases told the newspaper.

Attorneys Bill Townsley of Beaumont and Will Watkins argued in the suit that exposure to benzene and other air pollutants released by four Port Neches plants involved in the manufacture of synthetic rubber and other petroleum products caused the victims to contract leukemia and other forms of cancer.

The plaintiffs originally sought $22.8 million in the 1978 suit. The defendants were 12 petrochemical companies which at one time operated the four plants or supplied them with materials.

Legal and environmental officials said it may have been the first time a group of industries acknowledged air pollution released from their plants caused cancer in surrounding neighborhoods.

One victim, Carlos B. Stokes, died of leukemia in 1974 at the age of 25. Stokes was 10 when his family moved to a house near what was the Texas-U.S. Chemical Co. rubber plant in 1959. But he never worked for any of the four plants the suit accused of distributing carcinogens.

The inclusion of Stokes' widow, Mary Ellen Reeves of Port Neches, in the settlement agreement could make the decision "a landmark case," said Roger Meachum, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency in Dallas.

"It's certainly very interesting and unique," said Mike Peters, a regional supervisor for the Texas Air Control Board in southeast Texas.

Watkins and Townsley argued that the air throughout the Port Neches area was tainted by carcinogenic pollutants, affecting workers at all the plants and the residents nearby.

"There were four plants just across the fences from each other, and we believe the pollutants didn't respect property lines, that they didn't stop at the plant gates," Watkins said.

The plaintiffs attorneys confirmed all 12 companies named as defendants agreed to pay a portion of the settlement and each of the 15 clients received some damage award.

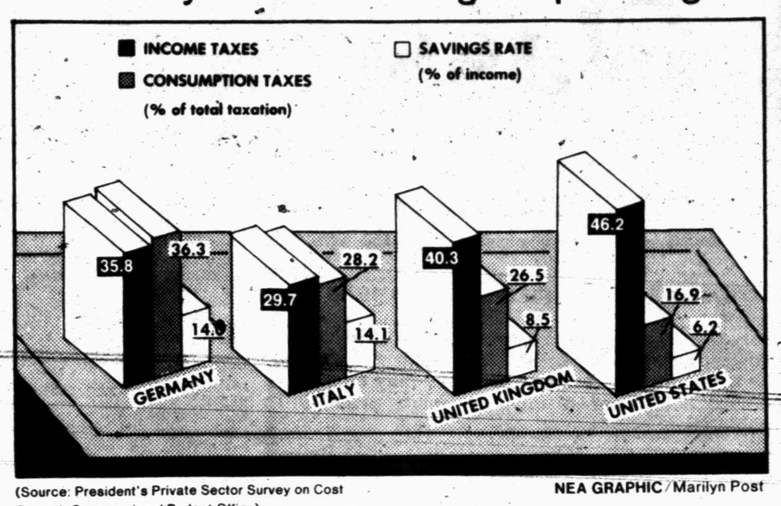

All of three industry attorneys contacted refused comment.

The plants, which changed ownership many times in the last several decades.

The companies who will pay in the settlement are: the B.F. Goodrich Co., Texaco Butadiene Co., Neches Butane Products Co., Texaco Inc., Union Oil of Calif., Dow Chemical Co., DuPont, Gluf Oil Corp., Mobil Oil Corp., Uniroyal Inc., Arco-Polymers Inc. and Atlantic Richfield Co.

TAXES AND SAVING

U.S. system encourages spending

NEA GRAPHIC / Marilyn Post

The U.S. tax system is largely based on how much an individual earns. Interest payments and dividends, as well as salary, are taxed. An alternate system — a consumption tax — would tax how much people spend. Some tax experts say that sort of system in the United States would encourage investment and saving.

Mondale, Hart are back on trail after day off

AUSTIN (AP) — Hours after being drubbed by Walter Mondale in Pennsylvania's Democratic primary, Colorado Sen. Gary Hart said he was happy the race is moving west to "our territory."

Out West, Mondale's Texas campaign manager is ready.

"I think we're going to do quite well. I can't put a number on it, but it will be more than a majority," Mondale campaign boss Dwayne Holman predicted of the May 5 caucuses where Texans will chose the majority of their 200 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Holman said Mondale's big win in Pennsylvania now means that "with a significant number of the delegates here, Texas could conceivably be the knockout blow to Hart."

Discussing the Pennsylvania results with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Hart Southwest coordinator John Pouland said, "It's a big loss, a bad loss. We'll try to recoup in Arizona and Utah, but we won't come into Texas with the momentum we would like."

However, Congressman Martin Frost of Dallas, Hart's Texas chairman, insists Hart will do well.

"Texas is not Pennsylvania. Gary Hart is right on the issues that matter to Texas. We're in as good a position in Texas as any state in the nation," Frost said.

The Texas delegate selection begins May 5 at more than 6,600 precinct conventions. Those attending the conventions must have voted in the Democratic primary earlier in the day.

In analyzing the Texas race, Mondale organizers see several factors in the former vice president's favor:

— Hart's campaign organized late. Chairmen in the 31 state Senate districts weren't named until March.

Former pilots are convicted

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A judge has found two former striking Continental Airlines pilots guilty of illegally possessing pipe bombs, which were confiscated along with a map showing the homes of several non-striking pilots.

Charles Weldon Hall, 48, of Humble, and Francis Calvin Early, 44, of Houston, were convicted Wednesday by U.S. District Judge D.W. Suttle in a non-jury trial.

Suttle scheduled sentencing for May 11.

The defense presented no testimony during the two-day trial in federal court, which included a government videotape showing one of the powerful bombs being exploded.

Hall and Early were arrested in San Antonio in November 1983 after being followed by a Texas Department of Public Safety officer, who had watched them attempt to evade a routine license check.

Trooper Hector Herrera stopped the pair and, as he was checking their drivers' licenses, a woman approached the car and said she had seen them toss a paper sack out the window.

Juco 'Stars' set

WACO – Western Texas' coach Barry Davis will lead the Region V junior college All-Stars against a juco team from Region 14 here Friday at 8:15.

On the Region V squad will be WTC players Larry Banks and Richie Fells.

Also playing here Friday will be Dusters standout Mary Nell Clayton, who competes for the Region V women's All-Stars at 4:15.

Banks, who recently signed with North Texas State University, was a two-time all-conference, all-region selection who averaged 14.7 points and 7.1 rebounds a game for the Westerners. The 6-5 player from Navasota was the Region V Tournament MVP and was a member of the NJCAA National All-Tournament Team. He also received the sportsmanship award at the national tournament.

Fells, 6-3 from Brooklyn, averaged 12.1 points a game and led WTC in scoring through the regional and national tournaments. He was named to the Region V all-tournament team.

Clayton, 5-9 from Roby, earned all-region and all-conference honors and was the second leading scorer in the WJCAC with a 21-point average. She set or tied 12 different records at Western Texas. She was also named to the Region V all-tournament team. She has signed with Abilene Christian University.

Davis was the Region V coach of the year. His Westerners took fifth place in the NJCAA National Tournament and finished the season with a 27-11 record.

Clayton signs with Abilene

Mary Nell Clayton, record-breaking player for Western Texas College, inked a pact to play basketball for Abilene Christian University Wednesday afternoon.

Clayton, 5-9 from Roby, had made an oral agreement with ACU over a week ago.

Clayton was all-region and all-conference for Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters, who finished second in the WJCAC this season. She was named to the Region V all-tournament team and to the all-tournament teams in the Northern Oklahoma Tournament and the Hawk Queens Classic.

She broke or tied 12 different Dusters records, including setting a new high season point average of 21 points which was second in the WJCAC. She also has set records of most points in a season with 727 and in a career with 1,059.

Other records set by Clayton include most freethrows made in a game (15) and a season (190), most freethrows attempted in a game (30), most field goals attempted in a career (840) and a season (612) and most field goals made in a career (400) and a season (265).

Clayton also tied two other records; best freethrow percentage of a season (83 percent), and most field goals made in a game (13).

Clayton was being recruited by numerous schools, including Houston, North Texas State and others.

Sideline glances...

Someone can use Richie

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

You always hear recruiting talk this time of year. Wednesday was signing day and three of WTC's players penned their names on contracts. Others are waiting.

RICHIE FELLS

Surprisingly, there has been little word surrounding Westerner Richie Fells. That's a shame because somebody out there could really use this guy. He's a class act.

Personally, I thought Fells deserved all-tournament status at the NJCAA National Tournament, and I think Coach Barry Davis would agree.

"Richie was our silent assasin. He led us in scoring at the regional tournament and the national tournament and got a number of steals and handed out a lot of assists. He's a fine individual." said Davis. "I know he can be a player for somebody."

Fells - nicknamed "Funk" by his teammates - was probably the most consistant player for the Westerners this year. The 6-3 guard-forward from Brooklyn did whatever was necessary to help the squad, especially down the stretch when big plays were a must to keep Western in the playoffs.

Not many people realize that Richie was the 15th leading scorer in the National Tournament with 62 points. He was the best freethrow shooter on the WTC squad, hitting .802 of his attempts. More than once, his key freethrow shooting was crucial for the Westerners.

That .802 by the way, was third in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

While we're on recruiting, Larry Banks and Melroy Butler both praised Western Texas College after signing with four-year schools Wednesday morning - Banks with North Texas State Universty and Butler with St. Louis University.

Said Banks, who will also be playing in the Juco All-Star game in Waco Friday, "I've really enjoyed playing for WTC. I really like the people here. They've helped me a lot. Coach (Barry) Davis has really helped. I think the people here are great."

Butler expressed the same sentiments. "I'm glad I made the decision to come here. Over the summer I had second thoughts because it was so far away from home. But once I got here I started liking it more and more. I got into my schoolwork and was able to meet a lot of nice people. And, of course, we were able to play some good basketball, too," laughed the Buffalo, NY native. "I had the opportunity to play for a good coach in a good program and that got me in tip-top condition to go on from here. I've really loved being here at Western. I grew up a lot here."

It's always great to hear young men and women praising Western Texas and the community, especially when you realize that almost all of them come from a different type environment. The adjustment is difficult, but with help from coaches, classmates and various interested persons in the community, most of the athletes that sign with Western do stay.

Conference golf starts again Friday in Hobbs

HOBBS, N.M. -- Western Texas College, trailing New Mexico Junior College by a half-point in the WJCAC golf standings, will try to get back on top when the first spring Conference Tournament tees off here Friday.

Teams were to play a practice round today.

New Mexico JC leads the conference race with 14 points while Western has 13.5. Midland and Odessa have 12 apiece, followed by New Mexico Military with 6 and South Plains with 5½.

Western is expected to play Mike Standly, Mark Ingebrigtsen, Eric McGraw, Robert Roebuck, Joe Don Davis and Clark Dennis.

Ingebrigtsen is shooting an average of 73.7 in conference play, which ranks second in the individual standings behind NMJC player Mike Scanlon's 73.0. Standly is in seventh with a 75.0 average; Davis is in 10th with a 76.0 average and Dennis is in 11th with a 76.3 average.

Western has not met with a lot of success in non-conference tournaments this spring season, but Coach Dave Foster is optimistic going into Friday's meet.

"We'll have to play quite a bit better but everybody's been working hard and attitudes have been great. I think everybody knows what it's going to take to pull this out," said Foster.
