Farmers fume over pact

Analysts: Trade deal will benefit consumers

■ Some fear competition from Mexico will result in foreclosure signs on fence posts.

By Keith Bradsher
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — For the American consumer, the biggest effect of the new North American Free Trade Agreement will take place in the neighborhood supermarket, where fresh fruits and vegetables will become more plentiful, more readily available in winter and will almost certainly become cheaper.

The free trade pact that the United States, Canada and Mexico reached this week will, if ratified, eliminate the taxes now imposed on tomatoes, cantaloupes, cucumbers and many other foods imported from Mexico.

The taxes, or tariffs, are intended to protect American farmers from imports, and add significantly to the price of these foods. The accord will also reduce transportation costs by opening long-haul, cross-border truck routes to low-wage Mexican carriers.

The agreement may even lower the cost of romance — cutting out the 8 percent tax on cut roses from Mexico.

"You will find a greater availability of fruits and vegetables in your store, and the prices will be lower," said Colin A. Carter, a professor of agricultural economics at the University of California at Davis. "There is a saving for consumers — there's no question — because many of these products have been protected right now from import competition."

Woman raped

A 21-year-old Midland woman, who had been stabbed and raped, was found lying on the ground crying at a northwest apartment complex early Friday morning, police said. The woman, who suffered a stab wound to the abdomen, was transported by ambulance to Memorial Hospital & Medical Center where she underwent surgery Friday. Police had not released information concerning the location or circumstances surrounding by late Friday.

Protester arrests

HOUSTON — Police removed seven anti-abortion demonstrators from the front of a women's clinic Friday as they made the first arrests in a week of protests leading up to the Republican National Convention. Operation Rescue protesters said they had temporarily halted activity at the A to Z Clinic while abortion rights advocates said it had remained open./9A

Texas-sized party

HOUSTON — Taunting President Bush, Texas Gov. Ann Richards suggested at the Democratic National Convention in New York last month that his White House days are numbered. "Honey," she purred from the podium, "you can turn out the lights, the party's over." Not so fast, there, Guv. The party's just starting. The Grand Old Party is tossing a grand old party this week, a glitzy sideshow to the unique spectacle of nominating an American presidential candidate./8C

Judge Sirica dies

WASHINGTON — John J. Sirica, the federal judge whose dogged pursuit of the truth in the Watergate scandal unraveled Richard Nixon's presidency, died Friday. He was 88. Sirica died at 4:30 p.m. Friday at Georgetown University Medical Center of cardiac arrest, said hospital spokeswoman Sandra Hvidsten. Sirica had been in the hospital since Tuesday, when he was admitted for tests, she said. Sirica faced down Nixon in a historic struggle between a determined court and a resisting executive, compelling the president to yield the secret White House tape recordings that ultimately led to his downfall.

A doctor examines 5-year-old Yusef Sharilfow in Mogadishu, Somalia, Thursday. Doctors say Yusef, suffering from malnutrition and pneumonia, will die in three to five days. Aid workers say 1.5 million starving people in Somalia could die within weeks and another 4.5 million are in danger of starvation.

U.S. to airlift emergency aid to Somalia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon will begin emergency airlifts of food to Somalia "as soon as possible," to alleviate mass deaths by starvation in that African nation, the White House announced Friday.

The administration also is asking the United Nations Security Council to pass a resolution to "authorize use of additional measures to ensure that humanitarian relief can be delivered," Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands of Somalis already have died from drought and war, and aid workers say 1.5 million people could die within weeks.

"Because armed bands are stealing and hoarding food, as well as attacking international relief workers, the primary challenge that the international community faces is the delivery of relief supplies," Fitzwater said.

The United States is proposing that the United Nations convene a donors conference, which would include representatives of the major factions in Somalia in order to gain their cooperation.

The White House said such cooperation would be "the most important step to accelerate delivery of relief supplies and to minimize security problems."

The United States already has donated $77 million in food, and Bush directed Friday that an additional 145,000 tons of American food be made available. The dollar amount of

Saudi Aramco CEO: Oil market will stabilize

■ President of world's largest oil company visits Midland.

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil editor

The president and chief executive officer of Saudi Aramco, the world's largest oil company, said Friday that oil prices should be stable for the remainder of this decade.

"Demand for oil should increase by about 1.5 percent per year for the rest of the decade, and supply will be adequate to meet demand. But the real price of oil will not be much different than it is now. It will increase only with inflation," Ali I. Naimi told a meeting of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association in Midland.

"This is a scenario that takes into account the development of the Russian oil industry and the return of Kuwait and Iraq to the oil market," he said.

Naimi, who was in Midland as the guest of longtime friend Sam White, president of Champion Technologies, said there was no shortage of economic concerns for the future, but he did not feel that any of them would develop to the extent that they would impact the stability of the energy picture. Two economic concerns he mentioned were the U.S. debt and new trade barriers.

"In short it will be a stable market. We are businessmen. Oil is our life blood. We want it to compete with other fuels, but we don't want it priced out of the market," Naimi said.

He added that the official kingdom

primate. "You never know what's going to come up."

Babette was illegally owned for three years by a man who put her in a high chair and dressed her in human clothing. He eventually decided he couldn't handle her and, six months ago, dropped her off at the Pembroke Park Animal Clinic.

A veterinarian there, Dr. Terri Parrott, began the difficult search for a veterinarian to remove the cataracts, which are blockages over the lenses of the eyes.

Since Sunday's operation, Babette has been doing nicely and is back to her favorite activities, including eating McDonald's kid meals and playing with a toy Batmobile, Gilmour said.

In the meantime, Parrott is trying to find her a good home.

"The worst thing that could happen is that it wouldn't work and she'd have to be euthanized," Parrott said. "To me, it would be like killing a kid. That's how close I am to her."

'The worst thing that could happen is that it wouldn't work and she'd have to be euthanized.'

policy was one of moderation. "For a fair income we want to provide the world with a stable and secure source of oil at a fair price. We do not want oil to contribute to inflation."

He acknowledged that Saudi Arabia often had been called upon to plug the supply gap because it is the only nation with the production to do so, and he acknowledge that Saudi Arabia would continue to play a major role in the world oil market because of its vast reserves of 260 billion barrel. He emphasized that Saudi Arabia would never again be the "swing" producer.

He said the desire of the United States to reduce oil imports was nothing new and he could not object to that. But he said Saudi Aramco did not approve of trade barriers that create artifical market values and harm the consumer.

The United States imports a large share of its oil from Saudi Arabia, and he noted it was Saudi Arabia's No. 1 trading partner and accounted for between $4 billion $10 billion per year in imports to the oil-rich kingdom, which contains a quarter of the world's reserves.

During the events of Desert Storm, Saudi Arabia had the tremendous task of fueling the entire war effort and producing enough oil to make up for Kuwaiti and Iraqi oil that was backed out of the market. While prices flared initially, they were soon brought back in line by all out production from Saudi Arabia.

"I think the events of 1990 and 1991 demonstrate the wisdom of retaining such supply capacity," Naimi said. "It is essential for the health of world economics, and it is fortunate that Saudi Arabia has such a resource base."

He said Saudi Arabia was aware of its responsibility to maintain such a cushion of capacity. "In short we believe that stability in the marketplace is desirable to the long term use of oil," he said.

Naimi, the son of Bedouins, went to work for Aramco (Arabian American Oil Co.) in 1947 at the age of 11 as an office boy and worked his way through the training ranks to become the first Saudi president of Aramco in 1984. In 1989, when Aramco became wholly owned by the Saudi Arabian government, Naimi continued in the post as president of Saudi Aramco.

He said Saudi Arabia had a longtime relationship with Texas and that it was mainly Texans who helped develop Saudi Arabia. "We are both blessed with abundant reserves of oil. I feel at home when I come to West Texas and see the wide open spaces, blue skies and pipelines and oil wells all around me. The only difference is you have mesquite and cattle, and we have palm trees and camels."

An exclusive, in-depth interview with Saudi Aramco President Ali Naimi by oil editor John Paul Pitts will appear in the Sunday editon of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

U.S. offers reward for Pablo Escobar

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The U.S. government on Friday announced a $2 million reward for information leading to the capture of Medellin cartel kingpin Pablo Escobar.

The Colombian government earlier in the week offered a $1.4 million reward for Escobar, who fled a prison outside the town of Envigado on July 22 with his brother and eight close aides.

The combined $3.4 million reward would be among the highest ever offered for the capture of a criminal.

Colombian authorities, with U.S. help, have launched a huge search for Escobar.

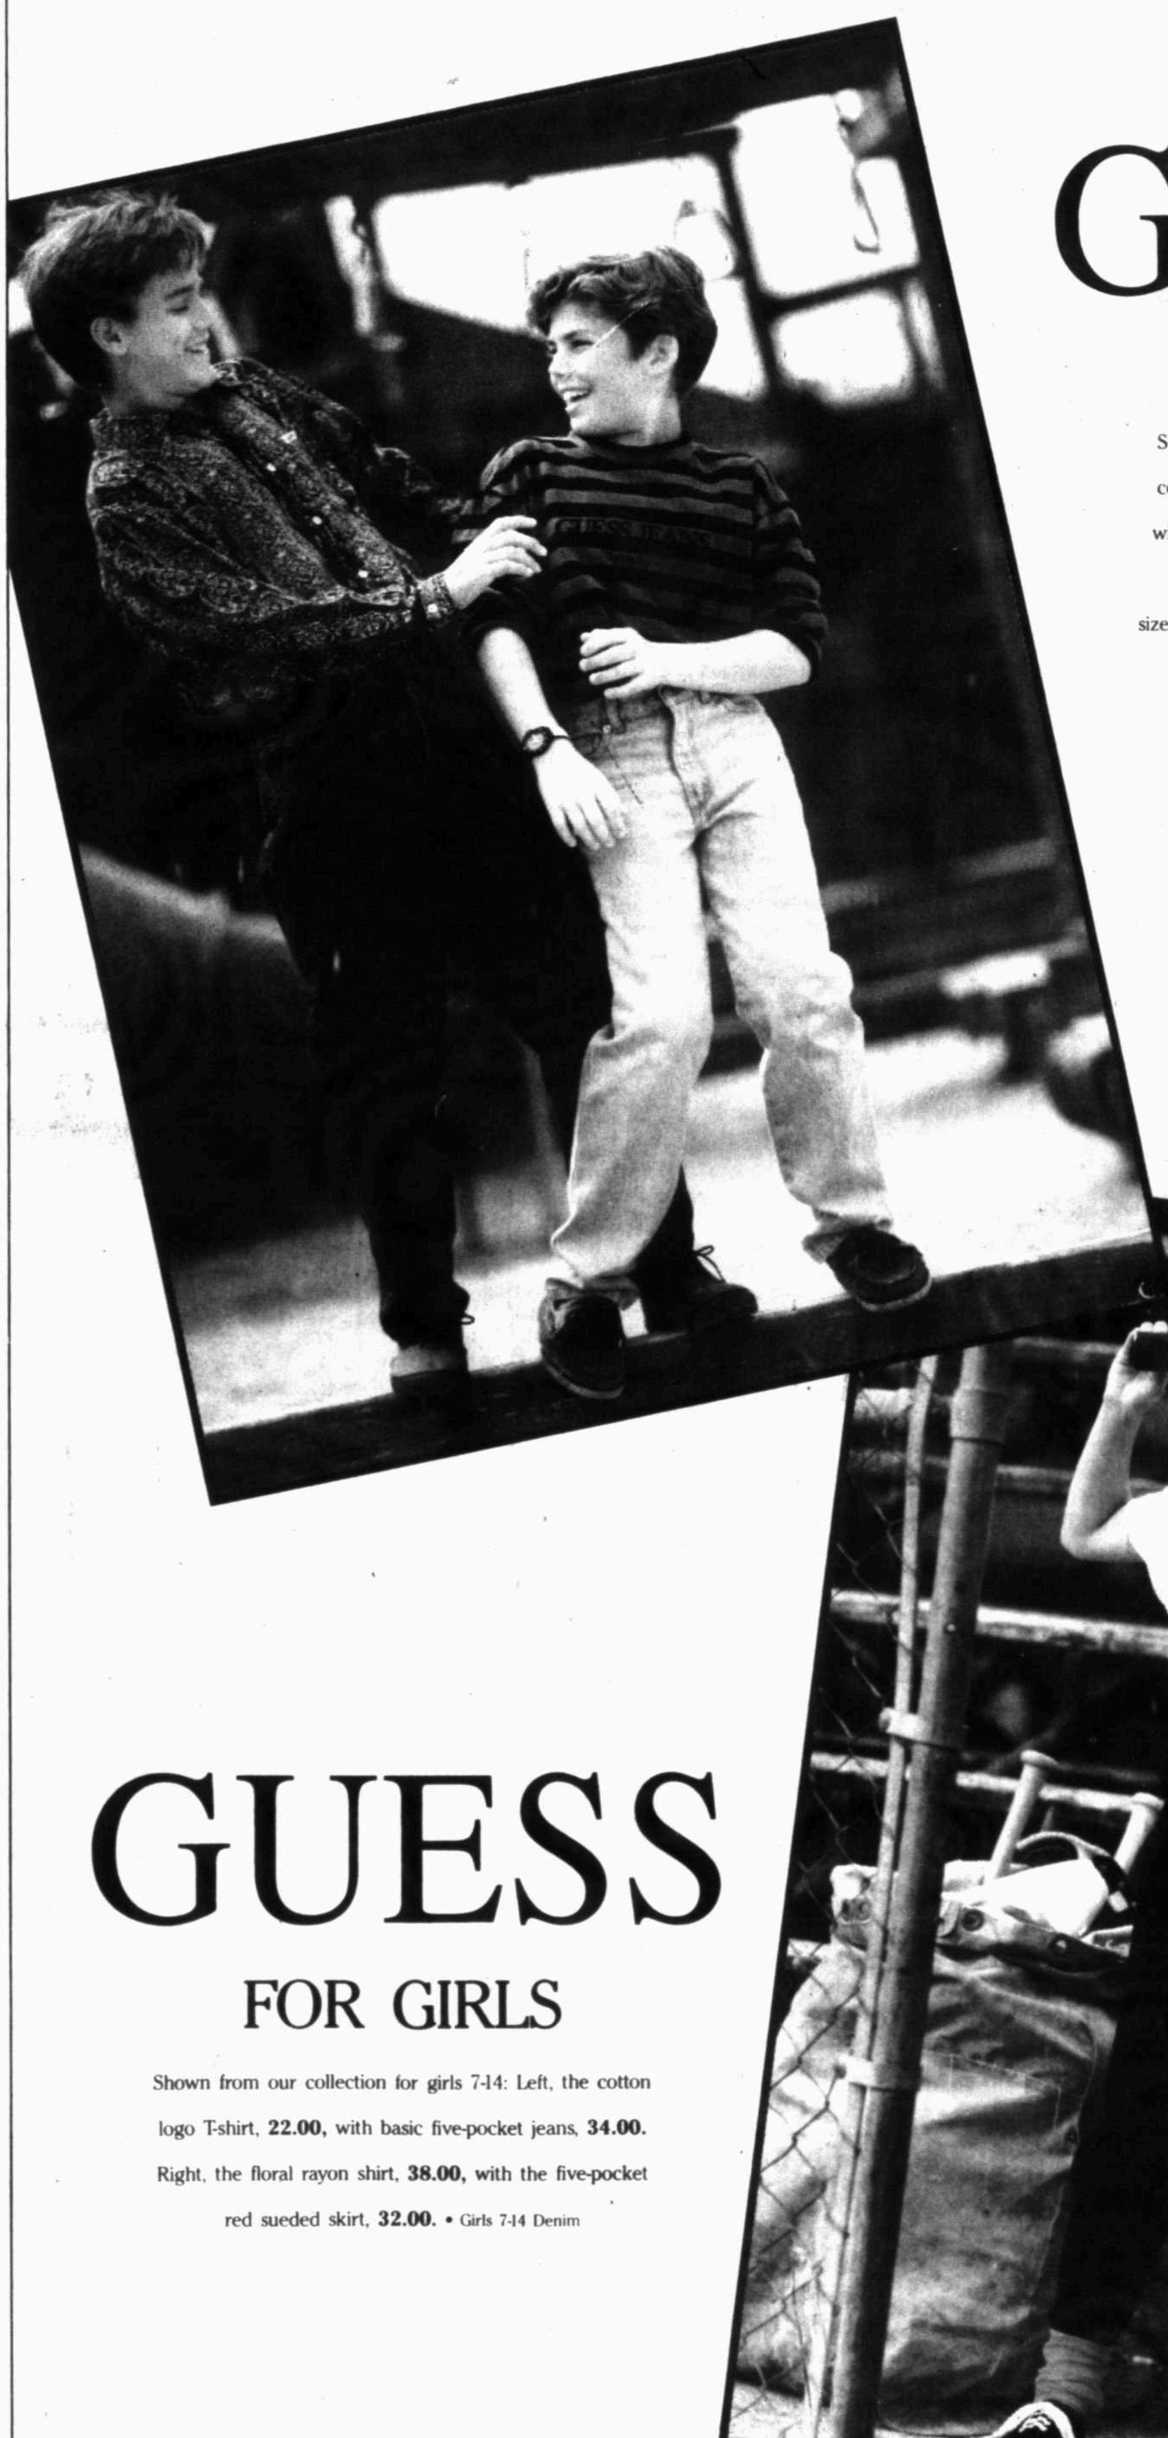

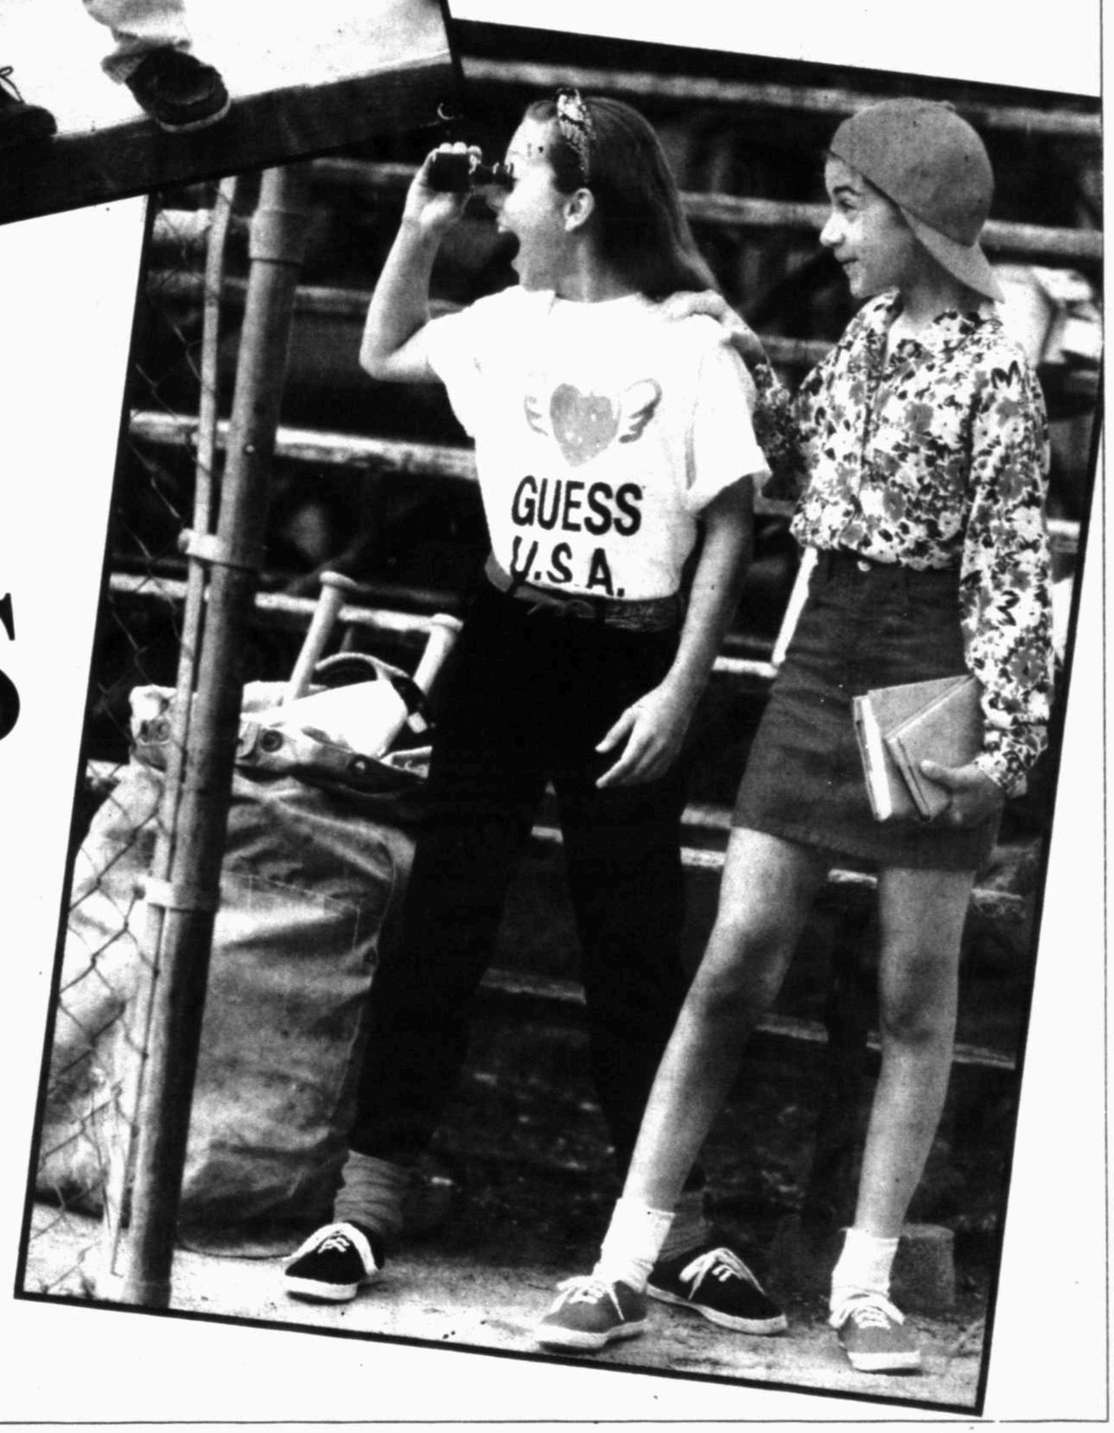

A news released from the U.S. Embassy said the reward offer stemmed from various indictments against Escobar in the United States.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Temperatures range in mid-80s

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with a high in the mid-80s, east to southeast winds 5 to 15 mph and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be mostly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s and 20 percent chance of rain.

Sunday is expected to show decreasing cloudiness and a high in the mid-80s.

After an overnight low of 65, Friday's high was 95 compared with the record high for that date of 104 set in 1987. The record low for today's date was 60 set in 1940.

STATE

The remnants of two storms likely will still be felt today, keeping Texas cool and wet for much of the weekend.

A northwest pattern of showers kept North Texas cool and slightly wet on Friday. That trend should continue through Saturday, with thunderstorms possible all weekend.

Highs may reach 90, with the lows stuck in the mid-60s.

A nearly stationary front covered much of South Texas on Friday, causing rain from the Corpus Christi area to Laredo while thunderstorms rolled across the Gulf of Mexico.

Patchy fog mired the state's south-central and deep south regions Friday morning.

Clouds and possibly heavy rain again are forecast today. Highs will be in the 80s along the coast and 90s inland. Lows will be in the 70s.

In West Texas, clouds and remain will remain in the area through tonight, finally breaking up by Sunday.

Lows in the Panhandle will be in the 50s, slightly higher in other western regions.

Highs will be in the 70s and 80s, peaking near 102 along the Rio Grande River.

NATION

Scattered thunderstorms hugged the coastline across the South on Friday, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Atlantic. The rest of the United States enjoyed mostly sunny skies.

Electric storms and showers also were scattered from northern Texas to Ohio. Skies were clear from Southern California to western Texas and from Washington and Oregon to North Dakota.

Heavier rainfall for the six hours ending at 1 p.m. CDT included 2 inches at Goldsboro, N.C., 1½ inches at Fort Bragg, N.C., and more than 1 inch at Florence, S.C., and Fayetteville, N.C.

Brisk southerly winds blew over the Florida Peninsula. Strong winds also hit the Dakotas.

Afternoon temperatures were in the 60s and lower 70s from the central Plains through the Mississippi Valley to New England. Readings were in the 80s over the Gulf Coast states and the northern Plains.

Temperatures in the 90s were reported in Texas and the Northwest. Readings were above 100 degrees in the Southwest deserts.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

PACT: U.S. farmers oppose free trade deal

border could save up to $50 a year on its food bills once the tariffs are eliminated, Carter said. Families living farther from the border would save less because high transportation costs mean that fewer Mexican fruits and vegetables are eaten in Eastern and Northern states, he added.

The Department of Agriculture has not yet tried to estimate the savings, said Roger D. Runningen, the department's chief spokesman. "On certain fruits and vegetables in certain times of the year, we would expect some price reductions," he said.

But while shoppers may be pleased, some American farmers are furious. From Florida and Georgia to California and Michigan, they fear that more competition from Mexico may result in foreclosure signs on their fences. Citrus, peanut and winter vegetable growers are especially upset.

Ben C. Abatti raises cucumbers, lettuce, asparagus and other vegetables on a 14,000-acre farm near Holtville, Calif., just five miles north of the Mexican border. He competes directly with Mexican farmers in nearby Mexicali, and relies on tariffs of up to 35 percent to offset the difference between American labor costs of $6 an hour and Mexican wages as low as $5 a day.

"If we didn't have the tariffs today, they'd run us out of business tomorrow, that's for sure," Abatti said.

Farmers like Abatti who harvest labor-intensive crops make up a small and vocal minority pitted against the many American farmers who grow crops that do not thrive in the heat and sun of Mexico. They look forward eagerly to selling more corn, hogs and other highly mechanized commodities to its 92 million people.

John C. Kintzle, who is raising a bumper crop of corn this summer on 980 acres near Coggon, Iowa, said he supported the free trade accord because it would mean more demand and higher prices for his harvests as Mexico eliminates its import limits.

"Anytime we can create demand, we're better off," he said. "And we know that with the crop this year, and the new technology, we need all the markets we can get."

These differences within the American agricultural community have split farm-state legislators more along crop lines than party lines. Lawmakers representing farmers whose crops are also produced efficiently in Mexico tend to oppose the pact, while legislators from districts that will benefit from access to Mexican markets are more favorable to the accord.

For example, Abatti's congressman, Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., is vehemently opposed to President Bush's agreement. But Iowa's representatives, including two Democrats, generally support it.

Free trade in fruits and vegetables could also have an enormous effect on the flow of legal and illegal Mexican immigrants, many of whom find jobs in the United States picking vegetables for lack of comparable employment at home. Abatti employs up to 700 immigrants at harvest time. As trade barriers fall, it will make sense for some of those workers to harvest crops in Mexico for shipment across the border.

Carla A. Hills, the U.S. trade representative, cited this week one study that showed the free trade accord would persuade 1.6 million potential Mexican immigrants to "forgo those lower-skilled jobs in the United States and stay at home."

manitarian shipments to Bosnia.

But the United States and its NATO allies turned down, at least for now, a plan that would involve 100,000 soldiers in opening a relief corridor in Bosnia. They ordered military aides to draft options involving fewer troops.

"We have not yet decided on any action," NATO Secretary General Manfred Woerner said after a three-hour emergency meeting of ambassadors of the 16 nations.

Before the session, France's foreign minister said in Paris his country was ready to send 1,100 troops immediately as part of a coodinated effort by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Western European Union.

Spain's foreign minister, Javier Solana, said Spain had agree to send 20 officers to help with the humanitarian effort in Bosnia.

Turkey, also a NATO member, reiterated its offer of a 480-man mechanized battalion. The Muslims who make up 44 percent of Bosnia's population are the descendants of Slavs who converted to Islam under the Turks' Ottoman Empire.

Meanwhile, the latest attempt to achieve a negotiated settlement in Bosnia fell apart early Saturday when Bosnia's president refused even to meet with the leader of the Bosnian Serbs at European Community-sponsored talks.

"They have to choose between war and negotiations," said Bosnia's Muslim president, Alija Izetbegovic.

Lord Carrington, the EC mediator, urged Serbs to lift their four-month siege of Sarajevo, but Serb leader Radovan Karadzic denied there was a siege.

"It is a defense of (Serb) military positions," he said.

Nikola Koljevic, a top aide to Karadzic, blamed President Bush for the U.N. resolution authorizing military force. "The resolution is the result of pre-election games by Mr. Bush. Those games could trigger an all-out war in Bosnia or even wider," Koljevic said.

Karadzic said there was no need for outside intervention to escort relief aid to Bosnian cities. "We can guarantee a permanent corridor from Belgrade to Sarajevo," he told reporters.

In other developments Friday:

■ The U.N. Human Rights Commission decided at an emergency meeting in Geneva on Friday to send a Tadeusz Mazowiecki, the former Polish premier, to Bosnia and other parts of the former Yugoslavia to investigate reported atrocities.

Mazowiecki will report back by Aug. 28 and his evidence will be made available to prosecutors in any future war crimes trial. In particular, Mazowiecki will investigate allegations of "ethnic cleansing" — mass deportations of ethnic groups, of which Serbia has been widely accused.

■ Serbia and Croatia exchanged hundreds of prisoners captured during the war between those two former Yugoslav republics. About 1,100 POWs were exchanged — 400 of them Serbs.

The Serb-Croat war started after Croatia declared independence June 25, 1991, and has claimed at least 10,000 lives. It subsided after 14,000 U.N. troops were deployed in Croatia early this year.

■ A report Friday said Bulgarians are violating the U.N. embargo on Serbia. The Bulgarian Telegraph Agency said more than 3,000 drivers each day pass into Serbia to sell gasoline from their tanks — they make about $34 per trip, it said. The agency quoted a customs official as estimating Serbia got about 1 million gallons through this method in July.

■ The office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees reported some Muslims were released from detention camps in Bosnia. "These people are still very, very frightened, and they are remaining in their houses," said agency spokeswoman Sylvana Foa. "They are very thin, they are very weak."

■ The British government's chief medical officer, who returned from a tour of Bosnia for the World Health Organization, said the harsh Balkan winter could claim thousands of lives. "It will be the old people and children who die first," said Sir Donald Acheson.

In Brussels, sources said ambassadors of the 16 NATO nations were given a report drawn up by military staff that proposed a "heavy operation" to create a land corridor to get aid from the Adriatic Coast to Sarajevo, Bosnia's capital. It suggested sending 100,000 soldiers, the sources said.

Woerner said NATO ambassadors told military advisers to "work on a range of options and deliver a further, more refined, more detailed report" by Aug. 24.

FOOD: U.S. to airlift aid

(From 1A)

the additional food was not given.

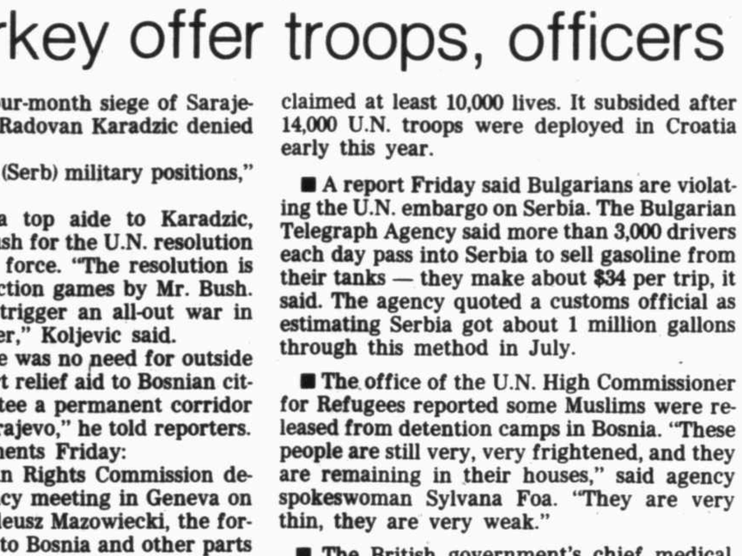

"The president calls upon other nations to join us in this urgent and important effort to alleviate starvation in Somalia," Fitzwater said.

A massive airlift already is being organized by the U.N. to include airdrops of food not only to Mogadishu, the nation's capital, but to at least half a dozen communities in the country's interior including some areas that have received no aid for months.

The new offer of aid comes on the heels of an announcement Thursday that the Bush administration is willing to transport U.N. troops to enhance security for food deliveries.

"The Defense Department will begin as soon as possible emergency airlift operations to deliver food," Fitzwater said. "We are asking the Kenyan government to join us in supporting airlifts to northern Kenya for Somali refugees and drought-stricken Kenyans, and to location inside Somalia where there is sufficient security to support these relief operations."

Fitzwater said the United States also is examining other means of delivering food, but offered no detail.

DATE: Teen turns to TV to find 'man of dreams' the man of her dreams.

(From 1A)

"Scratch" had solicited Efie for a regular segment of the show called "Dateless and Desperate," hosted by former local Top 40 radio personality Mark Allen of Odessa.

"This is what I have to do to get a date," said Efie after the crew showed up unexpectedly.

Efie was whisked away in a limousine — only after being embarrassed at the reception.

At an earlier date, she had written to "Scratch," telling of a young man she had met briefly and wanted to go out with — 17-year-old Mike Fletcher, called "Fletch" by his friends.

So they went Fletch hunting.

At the Sonic Drive-In — on the strip, a hangout for Midland youngsters — Efie, Allen and his crew went looking.

They didn't find him but they found several girls who had dated him. One even said Fletch had given her a ring and taken it back on her birthday.

"That's OK. It doesn't bother me. I'll change him," Efie said.

The word was that Fletch could be found down the road at Wienerschnitzel.

Camera lights blaring into the youth-filled restaurant at 10 p.m., Allen looked at one young man and asked if he was Mike Fletcher.

"I have no idea what's going on," wide-eyed Fletcher said as if he had been caught doing something wrong.

Allen confronted Fletch about the rumors of past girlfriends — which he denied.

The young man was escorted outside where Efie emerged from the waiting limo.

"Will you go out with me?" she asked.

"Of course I will," he said in a low voice as his peers hooted and hollered.

Because the camera crew wasn't sure they got it right, Efie popped the question a few more times.

Fletch accepted each time.

The condensed adventures of Efie will be seen sometime this fall, probably in October.

The show will debut in Midland-Odessa on Sept. 13 and can be seen Sundays at 11:30 a.m. In addition to "Dateless and Desperate," the show also presents features of a more serious nature hosted by teens.

"If you can imagine a cross between Cops, 60 Minutes and Parker Lewis, you're pretty close" to the "Dateless and Desperate" segment, Allen said.

Mayor announces substitute parade for Cotton Bowl event

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mayor Steve Bartlett said Friday that a parade will be held Dec. 5 as a substitute for the Cotton Bowl parade that was canceled earlier this year.

The Adolphus/Children's Christmas Parade and Festival will be sponsored by Kroger and the Cotton Bowl.

The Adolphus and Children's Hospital have put on a parade in early December since 1988. Officials said bolstering that parade with backing from the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association and Kroger would fill the void left by the cancellation of the Cotton Bowl parade after 35 years.

The cancellation on June 10 was due to the loss of national television exposure. Without that coverage, businesses were not willing to underwrite parade costs.

"I feel a sense of loss of the Cotton Bowl parade on January 1," Bartlett said. "This is the best way to start a new tradition ... but sure, on January 1, I'll turn on the TV and make a face about only being able to watch the Rose Bowl."

The Adolphus parade will be smaller than the traditional Cotton Bowl parade.

The parade will feature 10 floats, 14 bands and six giant helium balloons and will culminate in a festival in the West End Historic District.

By comparison, the Cotton Bowl parade held last January included 47 floats and more balloons.

Syndicated coverage of the new parade will be distributed to 50 television markets across the country, officials said.

SUSPECT: Police nab 2nd man in taxi driver's killing

has been charged with capital murder.

Both men remained in jail Friday in lieu of $200,000 bonds set by Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe.

Lee and Green allegedly were involved in the shooting and robbery of Alexandro Rodriguez, 20, a City Cab Co. driver.

Rodriguez was found slumped over the steering wheel of his taxi in the 1700 block of Morgan Way by another taxi driver. The victim had earlier been dispatched to 1119 E. Nobles Ave., where he apparently picked up the two assailants.

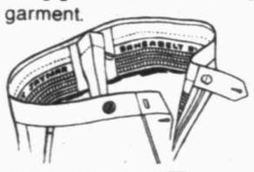

After the murder, Lee and Green were questioned about the crime and unsuccessfully attempted to implicate another man in the crime. Detectives found inconsistencies in Lee's and Green's stories.

A Crime Stoppers tip identified Lee as the person who shot Rodriguez and during a second interview by police, Lee and Green admitted to the murder, police said.

Twelve historic homes in super collider's path up for bid

DALLAS (AP) — A 90-year-old Ellis County woman is trying to save her childhood home from the path of the nation's $8.2 billion superconducting super collider project.

Frances Dunaway-McGregor says she fondly remembers putting in "banister time" in the 136-year-old home her grandfather built.

"It's got a wonderful banister," Mrs. Dunaway-McGregor said. "I think everybody in the county slid down that banister."

Although there are 53 historic structures in the super collider's path, only 12 — including the 1856 Dunaway home — have a shot at preservation so far.

The fate of the remaining 41 has not been decided, collider officials said.

Super collider officials are offering the 12 historic buildings for sale to anyone interested in moving them out of the path of the atom smasher.

The Texas National Research Laboratory Commission has set an Aug. 19 deadline for bids on the homes.

The commission, which oversees land acquisition and site development for the collider project, bought the property about a year ago. The collider is designed to smash subatomic particles together. The experiment is supposed to render answers regarding the origin of the universe.

Three years ago, commission officials conducted a study of all historic structures near the proposed super collider campuses and its 54-mile ring.

About 3,700 sites, dating back more than half a century were identified, said Steve Smith, the official heading the commission's preservation effort. Those sites in included barns, homes and even a storm cellar.

But Smith calls the 12 properties up for bid, "the cream of the crop."

Mrs. McGregor and her daughter, Dow Anna McGregor, both of Waxahachie, will bid on the Dunaway home.

"I'm going to be sure the house is saved," the younger woman said. "If the SSC people don't do it, we will."

The Texas Historical Commission, the U.S. Department of Energy and the research laboratory commission will choose the best bids, Smith said.

Court closes bungee jump

AUSTIN (AP) — A court issued a temporary order to close a bungee jump Friday after the state accused the operation of not having liability insurance and not receiving safety inspections.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said his office also is considering suing what he called illegal bungee jumps in Houston, Galveston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Lubbock, El Paso, Midland, and San Antonio.

The court order Friday was against Bungee Madness in Austin, owned by David Halley.

The Associated Press was unable to reach Halley for comment on Friday.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of the Texas Department of Insurance, which has determined that bungee jumping is an amusement ride and subject to state insurance and safety regulations.

Under state law, amusement ride operators must be insured for at least $1 million, and must obtain a safety inspection certificate.

Officials arraign two men involved in kidnapping plan

PHARR (AP) — Two men were arraigned Friday on charges of attempted capital murder and aggravated kidnapping in a failed abduction scheme that ended in a deadly shootout with sheriff's deputies.

Humberto Hernandez, 26, of Reynosa, Mexico, and Simon Uresti, 17, of La Blanca, are accused of participating in a drug-related plot to ransom a woman and her children for $50,000, said Sheriff's Department spokesman David Neubauer.

Each man was charged late Friday afternoon with six counts of attempted capital murder and four counts of aggravated kidnapping. Peace Justice Rosa Trevino set bond at $1.8 million for each.

The woman's husband reported the abduction Thursday morning to Sheriff's Department officials. The family from the Edcouch-Elsa area will not be identified for fear of reprisals, Neubauer said.

A meeting was set Thursday night at a Pharr restaurant, where three of the suspects were to collect the ransom. It was actually a trap set by Hidalgo County sheriff's deputies.

"The exchange (of money) was made, the signal was given and everybody came in and shouted, 'Stop, police.You're under arrest,' " said Neubauer. "Of course, once they heard this they came out shooting."

The deputies returned fire, killing two suspects. The third man was arrested.

The slain men were identified as: Alfredo Garcia, 35, of San Carlos and Rodrigo Rodriguez, 34, of Edcouch.

Richards, Jackson tout health care plans

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson and Gov. Ann Richards toured a hospital Friday touting the need to make health care more accessible, especially to children and pregnant women.

Jackson said the nation's current health care system was immoral and inefficient. He urged voters to compare proposals made by Democratic presidential contender Bill Clinton and President Bush.

"We must seize this moment during this season to make certain that the national debate is on who has the best plan to heal and rebuild our country," Jackson said.

Jackson, a Democrat, said Clinton's proposals were a "bold step in the right direction," but added that the issue should be debated above partisan politics.

Jackson, who has been criticized by some Democrats for not doing more to help Clinton, said he was going to concentrate during the campaign on registering voters and getting them to the polls.

Richards, also a Democrat, said making health care more available to children and pregnant women would be one of her top priorities during the regular legislative session that starts in January.

Approximately 40 million Americans have no health insurance, Jackson said. Of those, 4 million are in Texas, and 75 percent of them are among the "working poor," Richards said.

Jackson and Richards, in a news conference at Brackenridge Hospital, said the federal government has not responded to the problem.

Referring to battles with the Bush administration over getting matching Medicaid funds, Richards said, "'We have to fight for every single dime that we can get to help children like the ones we have seen today."

"We do not want to have politics intrude on what is a very serious health care issue, but the truth is that America needs healing. Texans need healing," she said.

Jackson said pre-natal care for nine months costs $1,000, while the cost to treat an underweight infant is about $4,000 per day for usually up to 20 weeks.

Low birthweight babies often have medical and mental problems that they are unable to shake throughout life, leading to expensive treatment, and social problems that cost far more than early care, Richards said.

Police arrest demonstrators at clinic sit-in HOUSTON (AP) — Police removed seven anti-abortion demonstrators from the front of a women's clinic Friday as they made the first arrests in a week of protests leading up to the Republican National Convention.

Operation Rescue protesters said they had temporarily halted activity at the A to Z Clinic while abortion rights advocates said it had remained open.

About 50 anti-abortion protesters arrived at the clinic south of downtown Houston and seven sat in front of the door. When they refused to leave after about 40 minutes, police handcuffed them, lifted them onto orange Fire Department stretchers and took them away in a police bus.

Abortion rights supporters among the crowd of several hundred cheered as their antagonists were removed. As the bus left, those arrested smiled through the windows at fellow demonstrators who remained.

There was no violence and no injuries were reported. Those arrested would be charged with criminal trespassing, police Capt. Dale Brown said.

Abortion rights forces, who before police arrived had formed a line between the demonstrators and the door to the clinic, claimed that the incident represented a success.

"They have got to be demoralized and this was done to keep their spirits up," said Katherine Spillar, national coordinator for The Feminist Majority. "We're in good shape. Operation Rescue has failed again. Their numbers are very small. I think this has been a total failure for Operation Rescue."

Operation Rescue spokesman Jeff White said the effort was successful and claimed the protesters prevented five abortion.

"Everybody is proud of those people (arrested)," White said. "And if only five children are saved this week, we have accomplished our goal. We're ecstatic they were there. We were thrilled."

Richards, Jackson tout health care plans

AUSTIN (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson and Gov. Ann Richards toured a hospital Friday touting the need to make health care more accessible, especially to children and pregnant women.

Jackson said the nation's current health care system was immoral and inefficient. He urged voters to compare proposals made by Democratic presidential contender Bill Clinton and President Bush.

"We must seize this moment during this season to make certain that the national debate is on who has the best plan to heal and rebuild our country," Jackson said.

Jackson, a Democrat, said Clinton's proposals were a "bold step in the right direction," but added that the issue should be debated above partisan politics.

Jackson, who has been criticized by some Democrats for not doing more to help Clinton, said he was going to concentrate during the campaign on registering voters and getting them to the polls.

Richards, also a Democrat, said making health care more available to children and pregnant women would be one of her top priorities during the regular legislative session that starts in January.

Approximately 40 million Americans have no health insurance, Jackson said. Of those, 4 million are in Texas, and 75 percent of them are among the "working poor," Richards said.

Jackson and Richards, in a news conference at Brackenridge Hospital, said the federal government has not responded to the problem.

Referring to battles with the Bush administration over getting matching Medicaid funds, Richards said, "'We have to fight for every single dime that we can get to help children like the ones we have seen today."

"We do not want to have politics intrude on what is a very serious health care issue, but the truth is that America needs healing. Texans need healing," she said.

Jackson said pre-natal care for nine months costs $1,000, while the cost to treat an underweight infant is about $4,000 per day for usually up to 20 weeks.

Low birthweight babies often have medical and mental problems that they are unable to shake throughout life, leading to expensive treatment, and social problems that cost far more than early care, Richards said.

Police arrest demonstrators at clinic sit-in

HOUSTON (AP) — Police removed seven anti-abortion demonstrators from the front of a women's clinic Friday as they made the first arrests in a week of protests leading up to the Republican National Convention.

Operation Rescue protesters said they had temporarily halted activity at the A to Z Clinic while abortion rights advocates said it had remained open.

About 50 anti-abortion protesters arrived at the clinic south of downtown Houston and seven sat in front of the door. When they refused to leave after about 40 minutes, police handcuffed them, lifted them onto orange Fire Department stretchers and took them away in a police bus.

Abortion rights supporters among the crowd of several hundred cheered as their antagonists were removed. As the bus left, those arrested smiled through the windows at fellow demonstrators who remained.

There was no violence and no injuries were reported. Those arrested would be charged with criminal trespassing, police Capt. Dale Brown said.

Abortion rights forces, who before police arrived had formed a line between the demonstrators and the door to the clinic, claimed that the incident represented a success.

"They have got to be demoralized and this was done to keep their spirits up," said Katherine Spillar, national coordinator for The Feminist Majority. "We're in good shape. Operation Rescue has failed again. Their numbers are very small. I think this has been a total failure for Operation Rescue."

Operation Rescue spokesman Jeff White said the effort was successful and claimed the protesters prevented five abortion.

"Everybody is proud of those people (arrested)," White said. "And if only five children are saved this week, we have accomplished our goal. We're ecstatic they were there. We were thrilled."

Hinckley liable for damages against men he wounded, judge says

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., the man who tried to assassinate President Reagan in 1981, is liable for damages to three men wounded in the shooting, a federal judge ruled Friday.

U.S. District Court Judge John Garrett Penn said the fact that Hinckley was found innocent by reason of insanity in Reagan's shooting does not absolve him of liability for damages to former presidential press secretary James Brady and two security men, Thomas K. Delahanty and Timothy J. McCarthy.

"The question of the defendant's sanity, at the time of the (shootings), remains a genuine issue of fact to be tried," Penn ruled.

Hinckley, who has been confined at St. Elizabeth's mental hospital here since the March 30, 1981 assassination attempt, asked the court to dismiss suits by the three men because he was found insane.

But Penn said the government had the burden of proving beyond a doubt that Hinckley was sane in the criminal case. In a civil trial, Hinckley "bears the burden of proving that he was insane," the judge said.

In any case, he said, even "an insane person is liable for compensatory damages. . . ."

Penn said the amount and whether Hinckley also should pay punitive damages would have to be determined at a trial. If Hinckley was found in the civil case to have been insane at the time of the shooting, he could not be held liable for punitive damages.

"Regardless of whether the jury finds the defendant sane or insane, he will be liable for compensatory damages," the judge said. "As the compensatory damages, then, the only issue left for trial is the amount that plaintiffs may be awarded."

Brady, Delahanty and McCarthy brought suit against Hinckley in 1982, seeking both compensatory and punitive damages. They contend Hinckley knew what he was doing when he fired the shots at Reagan that hit them.

More national news/4C

McCarthy, a Secret Service agent assigned to protect the president, was shot in the chest, Delahanty, a District of Columbia policeman, was shot in the neck and Brady, the worst hurt, was shot in the head and left permanently impaired. Reagan also was wounded in the assassination attempt outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

A trial on the lawsuits had been scheduled for September but has been continued. Attorneys for Hinckley and those for Brady, Delahanty and McCarthy had held off talks on a possible settlement while waiting for Penn to rule on Hinckley's motion to dismiss the suits.

Brady's attorney, Frederic W. Schwartz Jr., said Penn's ruling was not unexpected but added, "We're certainly happy to have it."

"It ensures that Mr. Hinckley's liability will be substantial whether it goes to trial or not," Schwartz said. "Mr. Hinckley has some very valuable intellectual property rights."

The plaintiffs contend that Hinckley's most valuable asset is his life story and that his victims, rather than him, should reap any royalties or profits from a book, movie or TV series portraying it.

"He was as close to a normal person as you could find, in terms of somebody who tried to shoot the president," Schwartz said. "His story is a very important one for parents."

Hinckley's attorney, B.J. Jones-Terrell, said, "We're disappointed that he didn't rule in our favor but we still do have the issue of punitive damages." She said her client was prepared to go to trial but she would not rule out the possibility of a settlement.

Hadnot tries again

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Longhorns running back Butch Hadnot, suspended indefinitely this week after seeking a transfer to Texas A&M, has contacted the University of Houston, according to newspaper reports.

Hadnot called Houston on Wednesday, Cougars coach John Jenkins told The Houston Post in today's edition.

"I have not personally talked to him," Jenkins said. "There was a call made by Butch here, and we gave it to our compliance officer."

Hadnot refused to say why he had called UH.

"I didn't talk to any of the coaches there," he told the newspaper. "And I've got nothing else to say to you."

Vote unlikely

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Commissioner Fay Vincent said Friday it was unlikely that major league owners would vote next month on a plan to sell the San Francisco Giants to a group of Florida investors.

Owners are next scheduled to gather in St. Louis on Sept. 9-10, and the group seeking to move the Giants to St. Petersburg, Fla., has said it hoped for a vote then.

"It's unlikely. It would be too fast," Vincent said in Montreal before the Expos played the St. Louis Cardinals.

Gridiron countdown kicks off

Odessa Permian once again highly regarded throughout state

By Jamie Aron
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS — Almost every high school football coach is happy this time of year. Every snap is filled with hope and each player seems destined to be an NFL star.

Prognosticators look pretty good, too. They haven't missed a prediction in almost nine months.

So, following conversations with ever-hopeful coaches and hours spent peering into a crystal pigskin, here are the 1992 state champs:

Arlington Sam Houston in Class 5A's Division I, Odessa Permian in Class 5A's "small school" bracket, Austin LBJ in 4A, Lubbock Dunbar in 3A, Grapeland in 2A and Hico in A.

The Permian Panthers are unbeatable — again.

They will slide right through 5A's Division II despite an Average Daily Membership of almost 3,100 because district-rival San Angelo Central has about 145 more student bodies.

Because of the UIL's wacky rules, the school with the larger ADM from each district goes into Division I.

That's why we should again see a "small school" champ, Permian, with more students than predicted "big school" winner Arlington Sam Houston (ADM: 2,414).

Permian may not yet have a starting quarterback, but it's not like this team needs Joe Montana.

Practically anyone can hand the ball off to blossoming star John Williams, then let the Panthers' defense shut down opponents — which it will.

Mojo madness kicks in gear early, with Permian traveling to Temple in week two for a matchup of No. 1 and No. 3 teams in The Associated Press' preseason poll.

If Permian clears that hurdle, don't be surprised to see back-to-back no-loss seasons.

Arlington Sam Houston, a "big school" quarterfinalist in 1991 and ranked sixth, will win because it has a quality team full of the interesting subplots that most champions seem to possess:

- Texan quarterback Chris James, a soon-to-be blue chip recruit, pitched in the Little League World Series. He will be starting for the third season, bench presses more than 300 pounds and runs the 40 in 4.6 seconds.
- Linebacker Kevin Conrad could become class valedictorian — if he can dodge recruiters and hit the books as often he smacks opponents.

Angels fight off Missions, remain in 1st

■ Midland retains its first-place status with a 10-1 trouncing San Antonio Friday.

By Bill Price
Staff writer

Forget the San Antonio Missions' nine-game winning streak. Forego any foregone conclusions about the Midland Angels falling from first place for the first time since July 16. And while you're at it, forgive Mission pitcher Greg Hansell for pitching more like Gretel Friday against the Angels.

Not even a 40-minute rain delay could forestall what would soon become the inevitable.

Midland pounded Hansell, whose sparkling ERA of 1.60 was ballooned to 3.25, as the Angels moved 1½ games ahead of San Antonio in the Texas League West with a 10-1 victory at Angels Stadium.

In other division action Friday, El Paso squeaked past Wichita 6-5, leaving the Diablos three games behind Midland and the Wranglers 4½ games out of first place.

With 17 games remaining in the Midland season, it may be a bit early to start talking about magic numbers or "must-win games." But after the Angels dropped seven of their last 10 decisions, they were feeling plenty of heat Friday as the division caught up with them.

"We've had a little lull in intensity the last few nights, so we were working on picking that up and playing in a more aggressive fashion," said Midland shortstop Rod Correia, whose three-run home run put the Angels up 4-0 in the first inning.

"It was nice to get ahead. We've been falling behind the last couple of weeks, so to get a lead early was nice."

It certainly didn't hurt the Angels' chances that Hilly Hathaway was their starting pitcher, either. Hathaway improved his record to 6-1 by throwing five shutout innings before a rain shower stopped play just long enough for him to cool down and be forced to leave the game when it resumed.

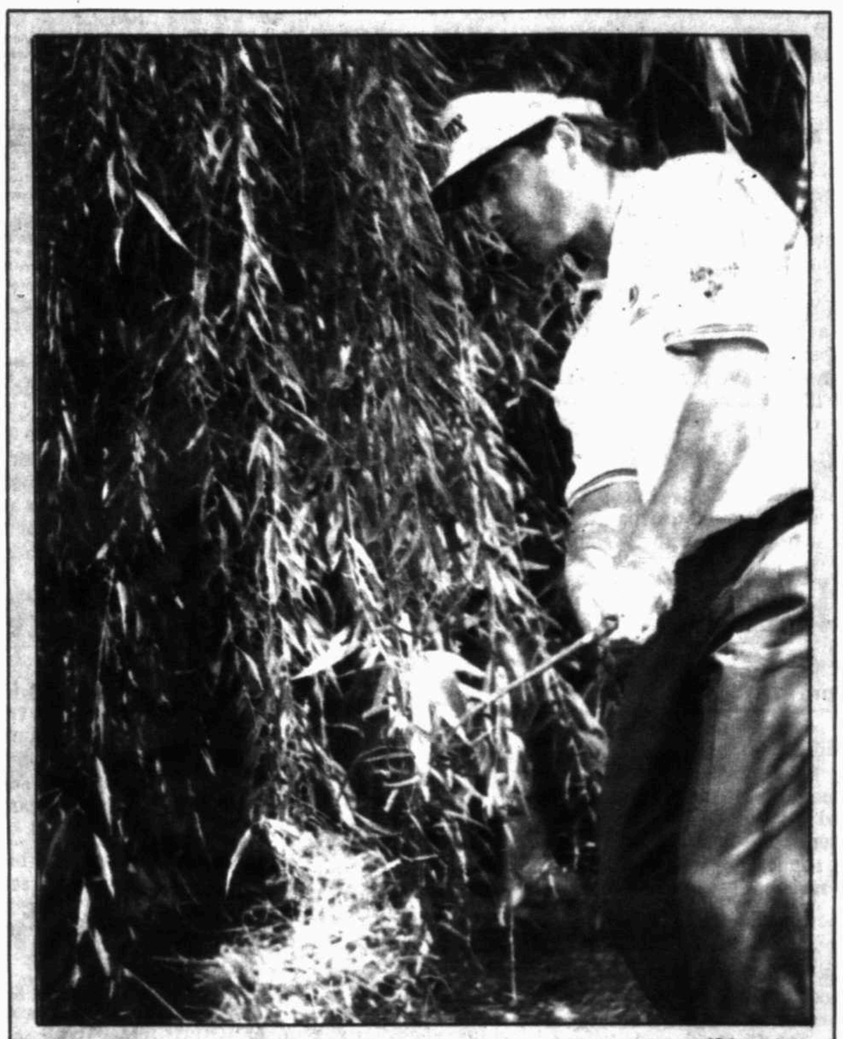

"I was ready to go back out. But once you get too much time off, they have to go to somebody else," said the 22-year-old lefthander.

"It's always good to get a few runs. That way you don't have to work as hard on hitting spots and you're a little more relaxed. Also, we had some good defensive help."

The Angels also got some help from the bullpen.

Ken Edenfield took the mound for the Angels after the rain stopped, and tossed all four final frames for a save despite

Sauers, Faldo top PGA field

By Bob Green
AP Golf Writer

ST. LOUIS — Gene Sauers has a two-shot lead and a game plan at the halfway point of the 74th PGA national championship.

"I'm just trying to take it as another golf tournament, not a major," the laid-back, low-key Sauers said after a 2-under-par 69 put him through 36 holes at 136.

There's just one problem with that plan, said Nick Faldo. It won't work.

"I can't imagine it will be that easy," said Faldo, whose credentials insist he has much more experience in this sort of thing than all the other leading challengers combined.

"It's not another tournament. It's not another golf course," Faldo said and shook his head. "It won't be as easy as that."

With two rounds to go in the last of the year's Big Four events, Faldo himself represents the principal reason that it won't be easy.

Oh boy! Another Cowboy-Oiler game

AP Laserphoto

New Orleans' rookie running back Vaughn Dunbar, right eludes Saints defender Efrum Thomas.

■ For the second time in three weeks, Houston and Dallas gear up for another meaningless preseason game.

Associated Press

Having the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers play twice in a season is usually gravy for football fans in Texas.

Not this year. Not when it's two preseason games.

NFL Roundup

The Cowboys and Oilers will meet for the second time in three weeks on Saturday night at Texas Stadium. Houston posted a 34-23 win over Dallas two weeks ago in the American Bowl in Tokyo.

Normally teams do not play twice in the preseason because they set their own schedules. The quirk this year developed when the league also picked Houston and Dallas to play in the American Bowl.

Complicating things for the teams is that they also had two training camp scrimmages and two practices together.

"I think we're as tired of the Oilers as the Oilers are of the Cowboys," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson.

"Personally, I'm tired of the Cowboys," said Oilers quarterback Warren Moon. "As much as you want to beat them, it gets harder and harder to get up for them. I don't know who made the schedule but they need to rethink it."

In other preseason action this weekend, Denver will play Miami in Berlin. Also Saturday, it's Atlanta at Tampa Bay, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, Seattle at Indianapolis, Chicago at Phoenix, Cleveland at the New York Giants, Kansas City at Minnesota and the Raiders and Rams in Los Angeles.

San Francisco and Washington will play in London on Sunday, while the New York Jets meet Green Bay in Madison, Wis.

Detroit is at Buffalo and Pittsburgh is at New Orleans on Monday night.

RAIDERS-RAMS

Eric Dickerson returns to the site of his greatest accomplishments when the Raiders (0-1) and Rams (1-0) meet for the preseason LA bragging rights.

Dickerson has rushed for 12,439 yards in nine seasons, ranking him third on the lagher and lefty Russ Cochran. Gallagher closed up with a 5-under-par 66 on the long, tough Bellerive Country Club course, and Cochran had a bogey-free 69.

Faldo could manage only a 70, but it was he who commanded Sauers' attention.

"He'll be a tough guy to beat," Sauers said. "Just look at his record."

It's one of the most impressive in golf.

Faldo, at 35 at the peak of his powers, is ranked No. 1 in the world. In less than six full seasons he has won three British Opens and two Masters and now is in position to become the first British-born player to win this title in 62 years.

Or take it from a different angle: he has more victories in major tournaments (5) than Sauers, Gallagher and Cochran have in regular PGA Tour events combined (4).

Although Sauers holds the lead, he said Faldo "definitely has an advantage."

"Do I have an advantage? I hope so," Faldo said. "If you go on experience, I have a lot of experience playing in the majors. I know what it's like. I know what major-tournament pressure is like."

Sauers just shrugged.

"I'll just go out and play my own game, and what happens, happens," he said.

Faldo isn't the only Englishman in the title chase. Steven Richardson, 26, a burly, 6-foot-1, 210-pounder from London, put himself in the picture with a 50-foot putt for an eagle-3 on the 17th hole, the highlight of a 66 that put him at 139. He was tied with Craig Stadler, who shot 72.

"The best I've played this year," said Richardson, who one-putted nine times.

But is he playing well enough to win?

"At the moment I'm playing very well," hedged the man whose only victories were in two minor European events last year.

The group at 140, 2-under par and four behind the leader, inluded Gil Morgan, Larry Nelson, Rocco Mediate and Nick Price.

Price, twice a British Open runner-up, shot 70. Morgan had a 69. Nelson, a former U.S. Open and PGA title-holder, and Mediate shots 68s.

But while those players were working their way up the leader board, some of golf's more promiment names were working themselves out of the tournament.

Among them were Jack Nicklaus (78 for 150), Curtis Strange (78-152) and Ian Woosnam of Wales (80-153). All missed the cut for the final two rounds. So did Arnold Palmer, 62. He struggled to an 83 for 162.

Defending champion John Daly rallied for a 72 and matched the cutoff figure of 148.

U.S. Open champion Tom Kite, whose snap hook off the 10th tee was only inches over the heads of the gallery, flirted with the cut until he birdied two of the last four holes for another 73 and a 146 total.

Masters champ Fred Couples, playing in the same threesome with Kite and Faldo, also had a 73 and was well back at par 142.

Sauers, 29, in his ninth season on the pro tour, has won twice, the latest the 1989 Hawaiian Open. His earnings have increased every year "and that's a good sign," he said.

And now, with the lead through two rounds in one of golf's Big Four events, he is faced with taking "the next step."

"This is my next step. Jump that hurdle. A lot of good things can happen when you win a major," he said.

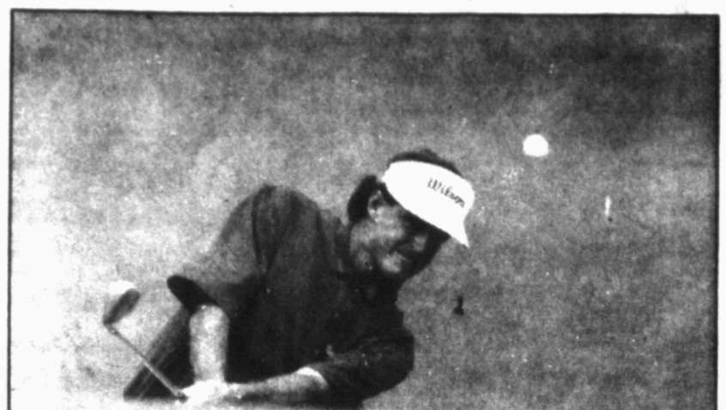

His start to the day's play, however, was far from what he had in mind. He three-putted for bogey on the third and bogeyed the fourth after chopping around in the deep rough.

"Kind of shaky," he said. "I just kind of let it go. Tried to be patient. It worked."

He got one shot back with a 10-foot birdie putt on the eighth, ran in a 35-footer on the 14th, hit a great 4-iron shot 222 yards to within three feet of the flag on the 16th and then two-putted for birdie-4 on the 17th.

Faldo, playing with the methodical consistency that has become his trademark, is putting nothing out of his mind.

"It's a long, hard golf course. The fatigue factor will come into play before the weekend is over," he said.

Daly makes cut, but likely won't defend

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS — John Daly doesn't have much of a chance to successfully defend his PGA title, but at least he'll be around for the finish.

Daly's 1-over-par 72 was just good enough to make the cut Friday. He had thought his chances were over when his birdie attempt on No. 18 barely missed and he dropped his putter in disgust, but other scores were much higher than anticipated.

So he's still around, even though he's 12 strokes off the pace.

"I didn't think I was going to make the cut," Daly said. "Fortunately I barely got in."

Daly was so disappointed with his opening-round 76 on Thursday that he refused to talk to the media.

After Friday's round he hid out for more than a half-hour in a WTBS van waiting to learn his fate before meeting with a mob of reporters in growing darkness. He didn't breathe easy until the final six threesomes came in after him.

Daly finished with an even-par 35 on the back nine, once blasting out of a creek to save par on No. 10. He birdied No. 11, bogeyed Nos. 15 and 16, then made birdie again on No. 17 to stay alive.

On No. 10, he said, "I had to go for it. I had to hit that third shot out of the hazard. It was a lucky shot, there's no doubt about it."

He said the birdie on No. 11 was more important.

"I got a little bit of confidence going and I hit the 1-iron well on a couple of holes," Daly said. "If some putts would have fell it would have been a better round, there's no doubt."

Daly said defending the PGA has been much tougher than he had expected. He said he was preoccupied with showing the doubters who figured he wouldn't be around for the final two days.

"I think I was more nervous today than last year when I won the tournament because nobody thought I was going to make the cut," Daly said. "So maybe I shoved it in somebody's face that I finally did.

"And I showed them at the British Open that I did. I may not play good Saturday and Sunday, but the media's been saying I can't make the cut in tournaments and stuff and it's just kind of funny."

He doesn't have great aspirations for the rest of the tournament.

"I want to strike the ball as well as I did today and just see what happens," Daly said. "If some putts can fall, I'd like to get maybe in the top 30 or 20 and finish respectable."

PREPS: Austin LBJ drops to 4A classification

(From 1B)

Add in intangibles like a big-time running game, a consistent kicker and a mega-experienced squad (five of their returning 14 starters have been regulars since their sophomore seasons) and Sam is a sure bet.

Austin LBJ has history on its side.

The Jaguars, who begin the year ranked fourth, get the nod because of their success the last four seasons in Class 5A and the sterling track record of teams dropping into 4A.

The guess here is that the Panthers will join Beaumont Hebert (1976), Dickinson (1977), Denison (1984), West Orange-Stark (1986-87) and A&M Consolidated (1991) as schools who won the title in the second-largest school division after dropping from the biggest-school class.

Although Lubbock Dunbar lands in 3A from 4A, the drop in class is a secondary reason for picking the Panthers.

Here's a school that won only five games last year, but now is giving it the old school try — for the old school, which is closing after this season.

Mix that incentive, the two previous years under coach Otha Woodard, 24 returning letterman and a drop to 3A from 4A, and the final result is one of the most improbable state champs in many years.

But Woodard said he doesn't plan to ask his Panthers to "win one for the Gipper."

His battle cry is " '62 and '92," in honor of Dunbar's 1962 state title and in hopes of a repeat performance this season. The Panthers' only other postseason appearance was in 1974.

"I don't think we're going to win because the school's going to close. We're going to win because our players are talented," Woodard said.

"We have good athletes at nine of the 11 positions — and that's going both ways," he said.

Besides, it's hard not to root for a team that has a player nicknamed "The House" in 6-6, 350-pound offensive lineman Johnathon Grey.

While it seems absurd to pick against runaway 3A favorite Southlake Carroll, the two would not meet in the playoffs until the quarterfinals — assuming the Dragons also last that long.

Grapeland came two points away from the 2A championship game last year, and will run away with its first title this fall behind Cedrick Coleman and Travis Taylor, both of whom rushed for more than 1,350 yards last year.

The Sandies return 14 lettermen, including five starters on each side of the ball, and play only one game — at home — against a ranked team.

Hico will take the Class A title thanks to a bevy of two-way players seasoned in 2A. The Tigers return 15 lettermen including six offensive and seven defensive starters from last year's 8-3 team.

SMU: Ponies open SWC play against TCU

(From 1B)

SMU had its chances last year and coach Tom Rossley expects the Mustangs to finally get back into the victory column against its SWC brethren this season.

SMU lost 17-6 to Arkansas and 18-10 to Texas Christian. Both games the Mustangs could easily have won.

In a season closer against No. 22 ranked Tulsa, SMU led for most of the game but lost 26-22.

"That last game probably summarized about where our program is right now," Rossley said. "We're right on the edge of getting there. We went into the fourth quarter in several games with an opportunity to win.

"We've thought about that a lot in the offseason and how we're going to react next season when we get to that point in a game. We have to force things to happen in the fourth quarter and follow through with a win. We need a little confidence to put us over the edge."

Rossley's goal in the offseason was "to become quicker and thicker."

For the first time since 1986, SMU will have four full classes on the team. There are 35 seniors on the preseason roster.

"Having four full classes should help in several ways," Rossley said. "We should be able to keep fresh people on the field, particularly late in the game when people get tired. Hopefully, having a fourth class will help us get through the fourth quarters with wins."

SMU is hoping its run-and-shoot offense will click this season. It was decimated last year by quarterback injuries.

Mike Romo and Dan Freiburger went down with knee injuries.

Todd Ritz, a junior, finished out the last three games of the season.

"Our biggest question is the quarterback position," Rossley said. "We've got to solidify that spot. Freiburger missed spring practice but should be ready for the fall. Romo probably will not be back. Ritz got a lot of work in the spring but hurt his knee. Todd should be ready for the season.

"Calvin Burdick (a sophomore) had a good spring game but he hasn't played in a regular season game. We'll just have to see what happens."

Rossley believes his defense could be solid.

"We could be a good defensive team," he said "If we can win the turnover war we should win some games."

Rossley said the Mustangs will have to run the ball better.

"One of our goals is to have a better running game," Rossley. "Rongea Hill made second team all conference and gained a lot of confidence in himself."

SMU's only victory in the 11-game season was over Tulane. The Mustangs have a soft schedule to get the season started in 1992.

The first three games are against Tulane, North Texas, and New Mexico.

Then the Mustangs hope they are ready to win their first conference game in six years when they meet TCU.

Houston's Craig Biggio slams into Cub catcher Rick Wilkins.

Glavine wins 18th as Braves shellack Bucs

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Tom Glavine tied a 78-year-old team record with his 12th straight victory, and a 22-hit attack keyed by Lonnie Smith's grand slam carried the Atlanta Braves to a 15-0 rout of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ron Gant's two-run double in a four-run first helped chased Zane Smith (8-8), who retired only one batter and lasted 17 pitches. Lonnie Smith's third career grand slam, his first in eight seasons, made it 8-0 in the second as the Braves turned the matchup of NL division leaders into the Pirates' worst defeat since a 17-1 loss to the New York Mets on April 17, 1976.

Smith went 5 for 6 with a career-high six RBIs, Brian Hunter had a two-run homer among his four hits and Otis Nixon went 4 for 6 as the Braves won for the 25th time in 32 games and pitched their major league-leading 20th shutout. The Pirates, who had won six straight at home, lost for only the second time in 14 games overall.

Glavine and Nixon singled and Pendleton was intentionally walked in the second ahead of Smith's grand slam, his first since Aug. 31, 1984. Smith is 7 for 9 with two homers and eight RBIs against Pittsburgh this season.

Glavine (18-3), whose winning streak matched the Braves' record set in 1914 by Dick Rudolph, is 4-0 against the Pirates this season and 6-1 over the last two. He allowed five hits in seven innings, struck out three and walked two to remain unbeaten in 15 starts since May 22. His winning streak is the NL's longest since Dwight Gooden won 14 in a row for the New York Mets in 1985.

Cubs 4, Astros 2

CHICAGO — Ryne Sandberg homered in the first inning and doubled home the go-ahead run in the fifth as the Chicago Cubs beat the Houston Astros and stopped a four-game losing streak.

Mike Harkey (3-0) allowed two runs — one earned — and six hits in seven innings, his longest stint since returning from shoulder surgery on June 20. Paul Assenmacher got four outs for his seventh save.

Darryl Kile (2-7) gave up four runs and six hits in six innings as Houston dropped to 7-11 on its 26-game road trip, which was caused by the Republican National Convention.

NL Roundup

Padres 5, Reds 1

CINCINNATI — Gary Sheffield's second grand slam of the season powered San Diego over Cincinnati and moved the Padres within a game of the second-place Reds in the NL West.

San Diego has won seven of eight while the Reds have lost four of five and dropped 5½ games behind first-place Atlanta, their biggest deficit of the season.

Sheffield, batting .512 during a 10-game hitting streak with six homers, went 2 for 4 to raise his NL-leading average to .343 and increase his RBI total to 83.

Jim Deshaies (3-2) scattered seven hits in 8 1-3 innings and walked one, losing his shutout on Darnell Coles' RBI single in the ninth. Deshaies hasn't allowed more than two earned runs in six starts since his July 9 promotion from Class AAA Las Vegas of the Pacific Coast League.

Phillies 6, Mets 2

NEW YORK — Ben Rivera pitched a seven-hitter for the first complete game of his career and Darren Daulton drove in three runs as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the New York Mets.

Rivera, a 23-year-old right-hander acquired from Atlanta on May 28, was making just his second career start. He struck out eight and walked one in sending the Mets to their ninth loss in 10 games. He also contributed an RBI single for his first major league hit.

Dwight Gooden (6-10) lost for the fourth time in five decisions, giving up six runs and eight hits in 5 2-3 innings, striking out six and walking one.

Expos 4, Cardinals 1

MONTREAL — Dennis Martinez allowed two hits in seven innings as the Montreal Expos beat the St. Louis Cardinals and closed within 1½-games of NL East-leading Pittsburgh.

Montreal extended its winning streak to a season-high six as it sent the Cardinals to their fifth loss in seven games.

Martinez (13-10) struck out seven and walked two in winning his third consecutive start.

Tigers hammer Rangers, 9-6

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Lou Whitaker homered and Gary Pettis hit a pair of triples and each drove in three runs to help the Detroit Tigers beat the Texas Rangers 9-6.

Tiger starter David Haas improved to 2-0 in his second major-league start, allowing eight hits in 6 2-3 innings. He walked one and struck out four before getting relief help from Kurt Knudsen.

Mike Henneman retired the last five batters for his 20th save. He gave up Juan Gonzalez's 30th homer in the ninth, his second of the night, before finishing the game.

The Rangers lost their fifth straight home game and ninth of their last 10 at home.

The Tigers jumped over Roger Pavlik, just called up from Triple-A Oklahoma City. Pavlik (0-1) only got one out, giving up six runs on five hits before Brian Bohanon, the first of four Ranger relievers, entered the contest.

The early rally included a two-run homer by Whitaker that opened the scoring. Dan Gladden and Scott Livingstone added RBI singles, another run scored on an error and Pettis tripled home two more for a 7-0 Detroit lead.

Pettis' second triple, in the fifth, drove in another run.

Gonzalez hit a leadoff home run in the fourth inning and Texas added three more in the fifth with the help of an RBI double by Gonzalez.

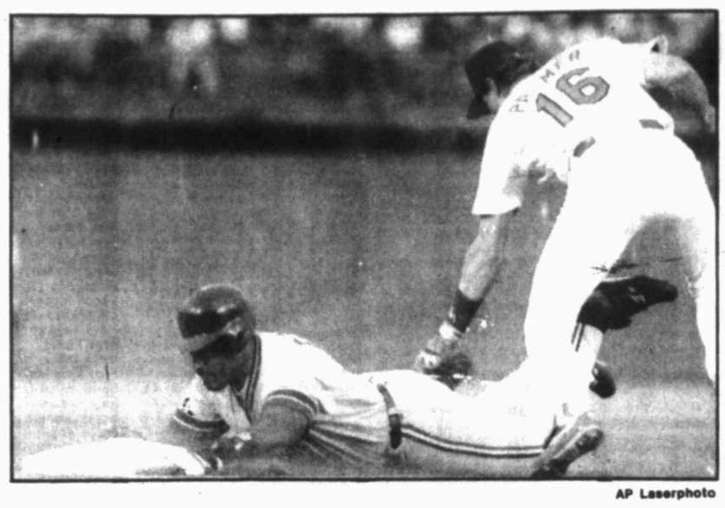

Pinch-hitter Gino Petralli singled home a Ranger run in the eighth.

White Sox 6, Yankees 2

CHICAGO — Shawn Abner's two-run double capped a four-run eighth as the Chicago White Sox, with the help of Scott Kamieniecki's wildness, beat the New York Yankees.

Kamieniecki wild-pitched two runs home, including Chicago's go-ahead run in the eighth.

With the score tied 2-2, Steve Sax led off the eighth with a walk, moved to second on a bunt single by Tim Raines and took third on Frank Thomas' flyout. With George Bell up, Kamieniecki fired a wild pitch that allowed Sax to score.

Bell then doubled to make it 4-2 and Abner later capped the rally with his two-base hit off Tim Burke.

Kamieniecki (2-10) pitched 7 1-3 innings and allowed six runs on eight hits while striking out three and walking three.

Scott Radinsky (3-6) was the winner, pitching two-thirds of an inning, as the White Sox won for the 12th time in 16 games. Roberto Hernandez got the last two outs for his third save, pitching out of a one-out, bases-loaded jam in the ninth.

The Yankees trailed 2-0 going into the eighth when they tied it. A throwing error by Sax at second scored one run and Don Mattingly singled home another.

Robin Ventura hit his 11th homer in the second to give Chicago a 1-0 lead. Kamieniecki's wild pitch made it 2-0 in the third.

Brewers 8, Red Sox 7

MILWAUKEE — Jim Gantner hit reliever Jeff Reardon's first pitch for a home run in the 13th inning to give the Milwaukee Brewers a win over the Boston Red Sox in the first game of a doubleheader.

Gantner's leadoff homer was his first since last September.

Reardon (2-1) gave up Gantner's third home run since 1987. James Austin (3-2) pitched a perfect 13th for the win.

Scott Fletcher's two-run double in the bottom of the 12th off Reardon sailed over the head of left fielder Billy Hatcher and tied the game at 7-7.

Luis Rivera put Boston up 7-5 in the top of the 12th with a two-run triple. Rivera's triple came after Bob Zupcic doubled off reliever Doug Henry. Then Tom Brunansky walked, bringing up Rivera.

Blue Jays 9, Indians 5

CLEVELAND — John Olerud and Candy Maldonado hit consecutive home runs to power a seven-run explosion in the third inning, and the AL East-leading Toronto Blue Jays beat the Cleveland Indians.

David Wells (7-6) benefited from Toronto's 13-hit attack by limiting the Indians to three runs on eight hits over 5 1-3 innings. He walked one and struck out five.

Derek Bell had three hits and robbed Cleveland's Glenallen Hill of an extra-base hit in the fourth with an over-the-shoulder catch while running into the fence in left-center.

Toronto jumped on Indians starter Rod Nichols (2-3) for eight runs and eight hits in the first 2 2-3 innings. The Blue Jays had seven hits in the third, six off Nichols.

Dave Winfield drove in two runs with a single before Olerud blasted a Nichols pitch for his 11th homer, a three-run shot to right-center. Maldonado followed with a lofty opposite-field home run to right, his 14th.

Orioles 3, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Leo Gomez hit a two-run homer and Rick Sutcliffe continued his domination over Kansas City as the Baltimore Orioles beat the Royals to keep pace with Toronto in the American League East.

Sutcliffe, who lives in the Kansas City suburb of Lee's Summit, struck out four and walked four in 6 2-3 innings as he extended his record against the Royals to 6-0. Sutcliffe (12-11) gave up seven hits as the Orioles stayed two games behind Toronto, which beat Cleveland 9-5.

Angels 2, Athletics 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Chad Curtis hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning, giving the California Angels a victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Curtis' ninth homer of the season came on a 2-2 pitch from Athletics starter Dave Stewart (8-7), who through six innings had allowed only Curtis' second-inning single to left.

Gary Gaetti singled with one out in the seventh and moved to second when Stewart was charged with a balk while facing Von Hayes. After Hayes flew out, Curtis homered.

Mark McGwire hit his major league-leading 38th homer.

NFL: Cunningham should see more action

(From 1B)

all-time NFL rushing list behind Walter Payton and Tony Dorsett. The 31-year-old established himself as one of the league's great backs by gaining 1,808 yards as a rookie in 1983; an NFL-record 2,105 yards in 1984, 1,234 yards in 1985 and 1,821 yards in 1986.

But there were contractual problems along the way, and Dickerson was traded to the Colts midway through the 1987 season. He was shipped to the Raiders earlier this year.

"Eric had lots of friends here," said offensive tackle Jackie Slater, one of 11 Rams who were around when Dickerson was traded. "I think most of the guys who blocked for him and played with him liked him, and we all got along well for the most part."

CHIEFS-VIKINGS

With running back Christan Okoye holding out, this will be a chance for Barry Word to show his stuff to the Kansas City coaching staff.

"Christian's a great back," Word said. "He's deserved everything he's gotten. But I think I'm a pretty good back, too."

Word gained 1,015 yards in 1990 while sharing the position with Okoye, but he lost ground last year because of a long holdout.

"There's a lot of things that could happen," Word said. "Christian could come back ... I could sit down. He could come back ... he could sit down. Christian could come back .... I could get traded. Christian could come back ... he could get traded. All I can do is try to control those things that I can control."

BEARS-CARDINALS

Timm Rosenbach, coming back from a knee injury that idled him last season, was 13 for 13 last weekend in a 35-14 win over the San Diego Chargers. He'll get a bigger test against the Bears, who lost to New Orleans last weekend.

"They handled San Diego pretty well, and I know they're going to play very hard against us," Bears coach Ditka said. "He (Joe Bugel) wants to have his team ready to play in a real tough division."

SEAHAWKS-COLTS

Tom Flores of Seattle says he is still trying to adjust to being a coach after a four-year absence. His team lost 21-7 to the Rams last week.

"I felt a little rusty because I hadn't been on the sideline in a while," Flores said. "I'm getting back into the swing, also, along with the players getting used to me and this staff."

The Colts opened their preseason defeating New England 34-14 as Jeff George and Mark Herrmann combined to complete 27 of 34 passes for 356 yards and three touchdowns without an interception.

BROWNS-GIANTS

A lot of old friends will get together when Cleveland (1-0) and New York (1-0) meet at Giants Stadium. The contest marks the return of Mark Bavaro to the Meadowlands. The best tight end in recent Giants' history was released before last season because of continuing problems with his knee.

Bavaro is attempting a comeback with Cleveland, which is coached by former Giants defensive coordinator Bill Belichick. Bavaro had one catch for 20 yards last week in a 7-0 win over Atlanta.

New York defeated Cincinnati 13-7 last week to start Ray Handley's second season.

EAGLES-BENGALS

Eagles quarterback Randall Cunningham, who played two series in last week's victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers, is expected to get more action.

Jeff Kemp, David Archer and perhaps Brad Goebel and rookie Casey Weldon should see action at quarterback.

Philadelphia is 1-1, losing to the New York Jets and beating Pittsburgh.

Cincinnati is experiencing offensive line problems after guard Ken Moyer sustained a stress fracture of the right foot. Four of the offensive linemen used against the Giants have played eight games in a Bengals uniform.

DOLPHINS-BRONCOS

A couple of first-round draft choices will make their debuts in the American Bowl in Berlin — quarterback Tommy Maddox of the Broncos and cornerback Troy Vincent of Miami.

"I'm definitely getting some butterflies, getting nervous," said Maddox, the UCLA product who is expected to play in the second half.

Albers leads LPGA event at mid-point

Associated Press

WINNIPEG, Manitoba — Kristi Albers fired a 4-under-par 68 to take the lead after the second round of the $700,000 LPGA du Maurier Classic golf tournament.

Albers of El Paso, Tex., had birdie putts of 50, 20, 15, nine and three feet on the 6,257-yard, par-72 St. Charles Country Club course. Her two-day total is 138.

Rookie Kelly Robbins, an opening round leader, and Juli Inkster were one shot back at 5-under, while two more first-round leaders, Meg Mallon and Sherri Steinhauer, were another shot behind.

The wind was stronger Friday and Albers, who is looking for her first LPGA victory, said that made putting even more important.

"I putted really well — putting always wins it," Albers said. "If you're putting well, you feel you can get away with a little more."

Albers bogeyed No. 18 but some trees saved her from running up a higher score.

"My tee shot hit some trees and dropped down. If that hadn't happened it would have been worse."

Inkster of Los Altos, Calif., only missed four greens and two-putted three of her birdies on par-5 holes.

She said she was playing with confidence after losing the U.S. Women's Open last month in a playoff with Patty Sheehan. However, she said, the wind played havoc with her club selection.

"I was a little tentative sometime out there, thinking I had too much club and then ending up coming up a little bit short."

Of the other two first round leaders who started at 5-under, Michelle Mackall shot 2-over to put her three back of Albers while Betsy King had a frustrating day, shooting 77.

King, seeking her 28th career win, had four bogeys and triple-bogeyed the 18th, taking two shots to get from under a tree and three-putting for a seven on the par-4 hole.

Edberg, Sampras advance at ATP

MASON, Ohio — Stefan Edberg and Pete Sampras advanced to a semifinal match in the $1.4 million ATP Championship with straight-sets victories on Friday.

Edberg disposed of Jim Grabb 6-3, 7-6 (7-5) and Sampras dispatched fifth-seeded Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-3.

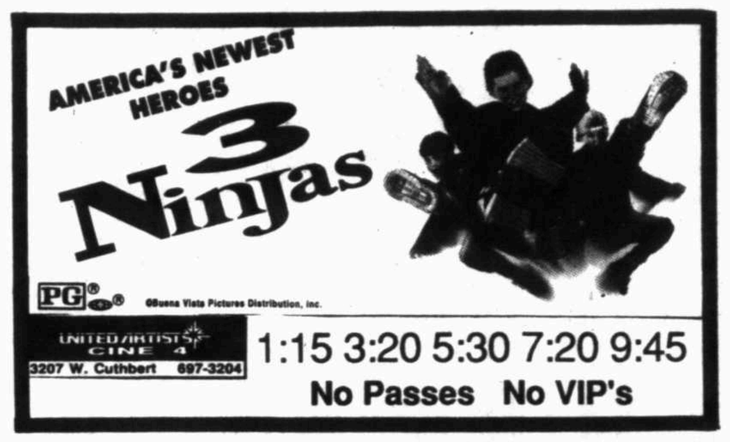

No. 4 Michael Chang had an evening match with Jaime Yzaga, and No. 8 Ivan Lendl had a match with David Wheaton.

Edberg, a two-time ATP Championship winner and the No. 2 seed this year, hasn't lost a set in three matches. Sampras has struggled, barely surviving Thursday's three-set match with Australian Mark Woodforde, but seemed to suddenly find himself.

"I was completely two different people," Sampras said, comparing his play Thursday with his match Friday. He blamed his problems early in the week on too much clay court activity at the expense of hardcourt play.

"I haven't been playing that well all week, and I was just hoping my hardcourt game would come around," Sampras said. "It did today, a little bit. It will be a very good test to play Stefan tomorrow."

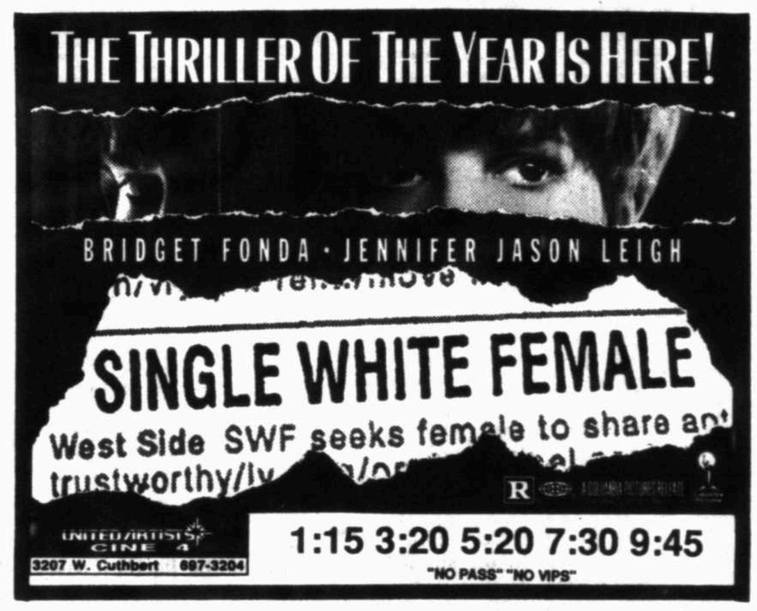

Sampras and Edberg were doubles partners in this tournament, but lost their first match. Sampras rated their semifinal match Saturday a toss-up.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

ANGELS: Edenfield earns save in 4 innings

(From 1B)

despite the enormous lead he was handed to protect.

The precipitation also ended Hansell's game, but it was just as well. Hansell (5-3) gave up 13 hits and 10 runs (eight earned) in just 4⅓ innings, giving him 20 earned runs in his 72⅓ innings this season.

While Hansell tried to shake off the after effects of his shelling, Midland manager Don Long was just happy to see the Angels on top of their game early.

"You have to be ready to play in the first inning. In the first you try to play well defensively at home and offensively on the road. A lot of teams use it to loosen up, but I see that as wasting an inning. The first hitter has to be ready to play," Long said.

That the Angels did Friday. Terry Taylor (2-for-2 with two runs scored) drew a lead-off walk that was followed by singles from Garret Anderson (3-for-5) and Edgar Alfonzo to put Midland ahead 1-0. Then Correia sent his homer over the left field fence to make it 4-0.

Rey Palacios started his 3-for-4 night with a lead-off triple in the Midland second, and was driven home by a Taylor single. Correia scored on an error in the third and Palacios started a two-out, four-run barrage in the fifth with a single.

Taylor then drew the second of his three walks and Mark Wasinger tripled two runs home. Anderson followed with an RBI single in the rain before the delay began. When play resumed, J.R. Phillips reached on an error and Alfonzo singled Anderson home before the inning was over.

The five-game series with the Mission continues with Game 4 tonight at 7 p.m. in Angels Stadium.

Chargers defeat Patriots

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Bob Gagliano passed for 123 yards, including 83 yards on one scoring drive, and Marion Butts ran for 47 yards and a touchdown in the first half as the San Diego Chargers defeated the New England Patriots 20-10 in an exhibition game Friday night.

Gagliano was 7 for 11, helping the Chargers (1-1) build a 17-3 halftime lead. He was starting in place of John Friesz, who was lost for the season after being injured last week against Phoenix.

Scott Zolak, taking over for Hugh Millen in the second half, drove the Patriots 89 yards, including a 9-yard touchdown pass to Ben Coates, to bring New England (0-2) to back it 17-10 with 6:41 to play. Zolak, entering his second season, was 6 for 9 for 69 yards on the drive. He finished 11 of 17 for 85 yards with an interception.

Pat O'Hara, San Diego's third quarterback in the game, helped clinch the game with a 10-play, 70-yard drive, including a 32-yard pass to Tony Lenseigne with less than three minutes remaining. Carlos Huerta's 22-yard field goal, his second of the game, ended the scoring with 1:57 remain. O'Hara was 3 of 3 for 48 yards.

The Chargers scored on their first possession after Stanley Richards intercepted Millen's pass intended for Greg McMurtry.

Butts' 1-yard run capped an 8-play, 37-yard drive covering 4:34. Butts handled the ball seven times, running for 31 yards.

Charlie Baumann's 41-yard field goal on the Patriots' next possession made it 7-3 after the first quarter. The Patriots had driven from their 40 to San Diego's 24 to set up the kick.

Montana may miss Niners' opener

N.Y. Times News Service

LONDON — Joe Montana's two-week rest period is up on Monday, but Montana is not scheduled to throw next week, and it now appears likely he will be out of action at least through the San Francisco 49ers' season-opening game against the New York Giants on September 6.

The 49ers still hope Montana can return sooner.

But club president Carmen Policy, said in an interview that team doctors believe Montana's sore arm needs at least two more weeks of absolute rest "unless something miraculous happens."

Montana's arm has improved since pain forced him to cut short his last passing session on August 1, but areas of severe inflammation still remain in muscles on both sides of the tendon that was repaired in surgery last October 9.

"The problem goes down into the middle of the forearm and up into the medial triceps into the upper arm," Policy said. "That's not where the operation was — but the whole area is inflamed.

"The doctors say that is rather unusual, but they all agree the best thing is rest, even from disparate points of view."

There apparently is nothing wrong with the repaired tendon itself.

Doctors are not certain what caused the muscle problem.

Unfinished cathedral symbolizes city by sea

EDITOR'S NOTE — It was begun more than a century ago and it's likely to take several more centuries to complete. Creating magnificent cathedrals is tedious business. In Barcelona, Spain, construction of the Church of the Sagrada Familia is further complicated by controversy. Today's architects can't agree on what the creator of the cathedral had in mind.

By Richard Schweid
Associated Press Writer

BARCELONA, Spain — Olympic Games come and go, but Antoni Gaudi's unfinished cathedral and its astonishing spires endure as the symbol of this Spanish city on the Mediterranean Sea.

Gaudi was the leader of Barcelona's modernist architects in a movement that flourished at the turn of the century. He began work on the Church of the Sagrada Familia in 1883, taking over from the first architect who had worked almost two years and accomplished practically nothing.

Gaudi was hit by a streetcar and died in 1926. Construction on the cathedral continues, but it may take hundreds of years to complete, according to those working on the project.

La Sagrada Familia (Holy Family) still has no roof and is open to the sky. Even so, more than 3 million visitors a year come to stare at the immense fantasy in stone, whose eight 450-foot-high spires rise above the city's skyline.

Despite its undisputed position as the most-visited site in a city full of architectural wonders, the Sagrada Familia has been dogged with controversy.

Some of Barcelona's most prominent intellectuals, artists and architects are strongly opposed to the work under way on the cathedral.

"WHAT IS BEING done now is not how Gaudi would have proceeded, and it is catastrophic," says Manuel Gausa, editor of Quaderns, the architectural journal published by Catalonia's prestigious College of Architects. "If it were left unfinished, it could still be visited as an architectural phenomenon and remain a strong tourist attraction."

The controversy is rooted in the fact that most of the drawings and models Gaudi left were destroyed in 1936 when a mob sacked the site during an anti-church riot at the outset of Spain's three-year civil war. Only a few plans survived.

"The design was a great puzzle that we had to solve," says Jordi Bonet, the Barcelona architect currently coordinating work on the cathedral. Bonet's father was the chief architect of the project during the 1950s.

"We are carrying out Gaudi's project with an extraordinary faithfulness to detail," he says. "We are respecting his designs, even if we alter some of them."

Gausa and his colleagues particularly object to the figures sculpted during the past 10 years on the Facade of the Passion facing the street.

These are the work of Josep Subirachs, one of two sculptors working on the church. They are chunky, squared-off figures at odds with the building's flowing lines and the lifelike angels sculpted on the Facade of the Nativity at the fear.

BONET DEFENDS SUBIRACHS' work.

"Gaudi clearly intended that the Facade of the Passion, representing the Crucifixion, would be completely different from that of the Nativity representing Christ's birth," he says. "He wanted the Nativity to show great joy, while the Passion was terrible and painful, and Senor Subirachs has followed this idea."

Gausa disagrees. He says if work must continue on the Sagrada Familia, it should be in the hands of someone chosen through an international competition.

"I would like to see someone working on it in a wholly contemporary and useful style, rather than have people try to re-create Gaudi's ideas and failing, and have the whole thing take hundreds of years."

Etsuro Sotoo, the second sculptor working on the Sagrada Familia, says it is normal to take 500 years to build a world-class cathedral.

"The work must be continued, regardless how long it takes, and it must be done following Gaudi's ideas," says the 39-year-old Japanese sculptor whose six angels playing musical instruments have been received with critical approval.

"Gaudi was a genius, but not a genius like Picasso or Dali, who did work that no one else could do. Gaudi knew the work would not be finished in his lifetime and left behind a form that could be followed. The key to understanding it is study and patience."

WHAT IS A JAPANESE sculptor doing working on a cathedral so deeply rooted in Barcelona's Roman Catholic, Catalan culture?

"In 1978, I left my home near Kyoto to come to Europe and work as a sculptor," Sotoo says. "I thought I would work in Germany. But I came to see the sights of Barcelona. When I saw the Sagrada Familia, I knew this was where I wanted to work."

During his long career, Gaudi created numerous architectural marvels in Barcelona, all bearing his trademark flourishes and bizarre designs based on organic forms.

But his life's work was the cathedral. His last years were devoted exclusively to working on it and raising the funds to continue that work.

The fund raising goes on. Last year, Bonet says, about $5 million was spent on the Sagrada Familia. All the money used to build the cathedral comes from donations and revenue from the $4 tickets sold to visitors.

Bonet says 750,000 people bought tickets last year and an estimated 2.5 million saw the cathedral from the window of a passing tour bus or walked around the perimeter without going inside.

Visitors can climb narrow, winding staircases to the top of the four rear spires, the only ones actually built under Gaudi's supervision. Or, they can pay $1.50 and take the elevator up and down the center of one of the towers.

Judge threatens George with contempt citation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge threatened to hold Clair George in contempt Friday after the former CIA spy chief repeatedly interrupted the prosecutor while testifying in his Iran-Contra coverup trial.

A visibly angry U.S. District Judge Royce C. Lamberth brought down his gavel and sent the jury from the courtroom after George interrupted questions by prosecutor Craig Gillen.

"I would have hoped that you would have talked to your client about summary contempt proceedings," Lamberth sternly told defense attorney Richard Hibey. The judge said George had also interrupted Gillen several times Thursday.

"Do you want me to tell him or will you tell him how to comply with an order of this court?" Lamberth demanded.

Hibey told the judge that interrupting people was a "bad habit" of George's and added, "This does not help him before the jury, we all know that."

When Lamberth brought the jurors back into the courtroom, George apologized to them. Later, Hibey drew a laugh when he cautioned his client not to interrupt him either.

The judicial threat came as George closed 2½ days of testimony in his own defense. The former chief of CIA overseas spy operations has pleaded innocent to three counts of obstructing Congress and a federal grand jury and six counts of perjury and making false statements.

CIA Director Robert Gates is expected to testify next week. Lamberth said the case likely would be sent to the jury late in the week.

George insisted again that he "was not attempting to commit perjury" when he testified on Dec. 3, 1986, before the Senate Intelligence Committee.

He acknowledged that his testimony before that panel was disjointed and error-ridden. But he said that was because he was in ill health and the CIA was engulfed in chaos after the initial disclosures of the Iran-Contra affair and Director William Casey's brain cancer surgery.

"I was trying to protect, throughout that period, the Central Intelligence Agency and not Clair George," the former spymaster said.

Researchers meet to discuss AIDS-like illness

ATLANTA (AP) — AIDS researchers gathered Friday to discuss a mysterious AIDS-like illness afflicting people who do not have the virus linked with AIDS. Some favored increased blood-screening procedures.

"We must remember the lessons of AIDS," said Dr. Donald Armstrong of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York.

Armstrong in 1983 issued the first call to screen the nation's blood supply for HIV, the virus associated with AIDS. Hospitals and blood banks began routinely testing blood for AIDS two years later.

"The most important thing is the safety of our blood supply," he said. "I don't want to be behind once again."

Others said it was too early for alarm.

"We have handled this poorly, creating a sense of paranoia about the blood supply," said Dr. Warner Greene, a professor at the University of California, San Francisco.

Federal health officials with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control said researchers lack the evidence that the illness is spread through blood.

"We don't know enough to make a recommendation on blood safety," said Dr. Harold Jaffe, acting director of the CDC's AIDS division.

Some experts seconded Armstrong's recommendation, others supported the CDC.

The daylong meeting of experts from the United States and Canada marked the first time doctors and researchers have formally shared their findings to try to find links among the patients. About 300 people attended.

Reports of the illness surfaced last month while the world's AIDS experts were meeting in the Netherlands. The CDC began investigating the illness in 1989, but did not report its findings until last month because the illness was not believed to be a threat, said Dr. James Curran.

The CDC has confirmed 30 cases in the United States, and there are at least 11 others worldwide.

All 41 patients have a low number of the body's master immune cell, white blood cells called CD4s — a characteristic of AIDS — but test negative for HIV.

Some have diseases associated with AIDS, such as pneumonia and fungal infections. More than half of the American patients reported none of the known risk factors for AIDS, the CDC said.

Although many aspects of the illness remain a mystery, it could be tracked by screening blood for low CD4s, experts say.

In the early 1980s, AIDS victims generally died within a few months of diagnosis. Only one of the 30 U.S. patients with this new disorder has died, and some remain in good health seven years after diagnosis.

"It makes me think we're dealing with a very different situation here," said Dr. Martin Hirsch of Harvard Medical School.

Some researchers speculated that a retrovirus could be attacking CD4 cells much like HIV does. A retrovirus implants itself in certain cells and causes disease much later.

However, Dr. John Brundage of the Walter Reed Army Institute of Research said the illness is probably not new.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: A long-cherished dream could come true if you are willing to sacrifice some small pleasures. Getting better organized in early fall will let you reach an important goal by Thanksgiving. Financial restrictions ease by Christmas. Romance is in the air early in 1993; you meet someone special on the job. Invest in real estate in February and March. A sentimental journey you take next June could lead to a relocation.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: journalist Linda Ellerbee, civil rights leader Vernon Jordan Jr., conservative activist Phyllis Schlafly, actress Tess Harper.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A day trip could put you in touch with delightful people. Their fresh insights will inspire you. Move ahead with confidence. Share the expenses of a family reunion.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Feel free to plunge into new social activities. A self-improvement project wins widespread support. Reopening a family dispute would be a mistake. Handle joint finances with kid gloves.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A long-desired item could be recovered if you leave no stone unturned. Travel funds will take you far. Set aside a day for communing with nature. A country jaunt will refresh you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Developing greater will power is a top priority now. A potential partner finds you irresistible. An unexpected matter could take you out of town. Invitations abound.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A down-to-earth approach works best with your loved ones. A friend offers some excellent suggestions for making money. Keep your enthusiasm intact and you will not be unhinged by temporary setbacks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You know all about money — how to earn it, spend it or impress other people with it. Doing favors for VIPs gives you a chance to mingle with them. You score important points!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You and a powerful individual hit it off nicely. Let a potential employer know what your special strengths are. Attending social events will put you in the swing of things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Maintain a low profile until you have checked on your legal rights. A domestic adjustment could include a change of residence or marital status. A family member expresses appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your financial position is stronger now. The spotlight is on new investments and fresh sources of funding. Your good judgment is praised by family members.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your plans are subject to change, especially where a short journey is concerned. The pieces of a puzzle fall into place when you locate lost objects. In romance, begin a rebuilding process.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Financial matters get the lion's share of your attention today. Give fate a nudge and buy one ticket in a lottery or charity drawing. As a relationship grows, your responsibilities increase.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take your time about signing a business contract; someone may not be on the up-and-up. A new hobby provides a change of pace. Old friends will come forward when needed.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are intelligent, strong-minded and eager to give advice. When they see someone floundering, they quickly step in with constructive suggestions. Alas, their well-meant interference is sometimes resented. Wise parents will encourage these outgoing, responsible youngsters to participate in team sports and run for class office. After college, these proud and efficient Leos will quickly find their way into the ranks of top management.

NBC suspends Gulf War 'Scud Stud' for refusing assignment

NEW YORK — Gulf War "Scud Stud" Arthur Kent refused a reporting assignment in war-torn Yugoslavia and was suspended without pay, NBC said.

Kent said from Rome that the problem stemmed from a larger dispute with the network.

"Everything is going to be resolved to remove any confusion connected to my name," he said Friday in USA Today. "I will soon be free to return to the field."

Kent and producer Joe Alicastro were suspended Wednesday after refusing earlier this month to go to Zagreb, the Croatian capital, NBC spokeswoman Peggy Hubble said.

She refused to comment on reports that safety concerns prompted their refusal. "This is part of a larger, ongoing dispute between Arthur and NBC News over contracts, expectations and the like," she said.

NBC announced the suspensions Thursday — the same day ABC News producer David Kaplan was shot to death in Sarajevo, about 175 miles southeast of Zagreb. Hubble said the network would not order someone into a war zone and that Zagreb is not as dangerous as Sarajevo.

Kent was assigned to Saudi Arabia during the 1991 Gulf War and became an overnight celebrity because of his good looks and unflappable reporting during missile attacks.

SAN DIEGO — Naomi Judd, the country western singer who put her career on hold because she has chronic hepatitis, has donated a $90,000 grant for liver research.

Judd

Dr. Karl Houglum of the University of California, San Diego, School of Medicine received the Naomi Judd Liver Scholar Award through the American Liver Foundation, foundation officials said Wednesday.

Houglum is studying cirrhosis of the liver and how to prevent it.

Judd, a former nurse, retired from the hit duo The Judds in January because of her illness. Her daughter, Wynonna, went on to a solo career.

AUSTIN — James Michener and his wife donated $15 million to the University of Texas writers' program, bringing to $37 million their total contribution to the university.

"The nature and magnitude of this gift ensure that the Texas Center have no equal anywhere," UT-Austin President William Cunningham said Thursday.

Michener, whose many best-sellers include "Texas" and "Hawaii," teaches at the center he helped create.

The 85-year-old author said his writing has "paid me almost exorbitantly" and the "only sensible thing to do for somebody who loves writing as much as I do is to turn it back.'

The latest donation will be used to finance scholarships, create a director's fund and pay visiting writers and publishers.

University officials said the donation is the largest endowment of its kind in the nation and the total donation is the largest gift from one source.

SEATTLE — Guns N' Roses and Metallica called off shows because a replacement could not be found for Metallica singer-guitarist James Hetfield, who suffered burns at a concert last week.

Tuesday's show at the Kingdome was postponed and Monday's show in Vancouver, British Columbia, was canceled altogether.

Hetfield was burned on the hand and arm when a flash pot exploded on stage during a concert in Montreal last Saturday. He was hospitalized overnight.

Guns N' Roses opened its set after the explosion, but stopped playing after 55 minutes because singer Axl Rose suffered problems with his voice.

The throat problem has caused previous postponements.

About 2,000 fans angry about the early departure looted the stadium souvenir shops, overturned cars, smashed windows and set fires.

SEATTLE — Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan are not the only ones who have been "Sleepless in Seattle" lately.

Night filming of the $25 million Tri-Star movie of that name, which began here a month ago, has kept more than a few Seattle residents up past their bedtimes.

But not everyone is complaining.

Cathi Major lives in a houseboat next door to where filming took place until 4 a.m. About 100 cast and crew members wandered around her place at all hours and she could not park close to home for weeks.

"Today it's an inconvenience, but it's really going to be neat when this movie comes out," Major said Wednesday. "I really enjoy having a front-row seat to the movie industry."

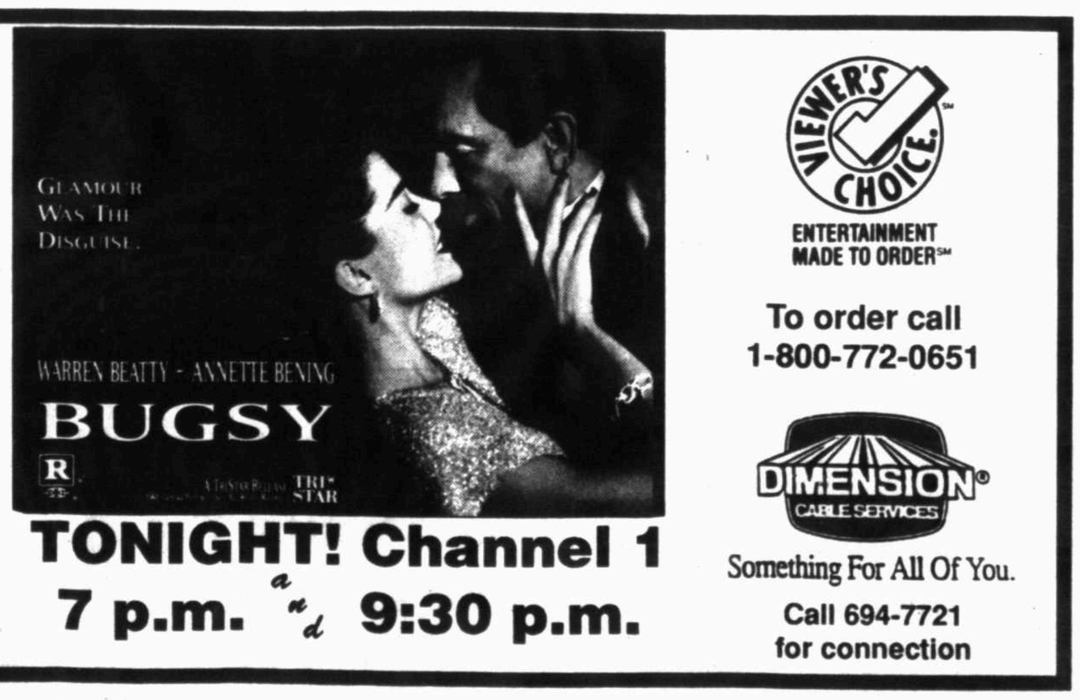

Local filming of the romantic comedy, which stars Hanks and Ryan, is expected to end Sept. 4.

Houston to throw Texas-sized celebrations for Grand Old Party

By Mike Cochran
Associated Press writer

The star-spangled revelry is a series of galas for delegates, party leaders, celebrities and media assembled in this sultry schizo city

HOUSTON — Taunting President Bush, Texas Gov. Ann Richards suggested at the Democratic National Convention in New York last month that his White House days are numbered.

"Honey," she purred from the podium, "you can turn out the lights, the party's over."

Not so fast, there, Guv. The party's just starting.

The Grand Old Party is tossing a grand old party this week, a glitzy sideshow to the unique spectacle of nominating an American presidential candidate.

In this case, it's "hometown boy" George Bush and his vice presidential sidekick, Dan Quayle.

The star-spangled revelry is a series of galas for delegates, party leaders, celebrities and media assembled in this sultry schizo city for the Republican National Convention.

The theme: $$$$$$.

"It's gonna be dynamite," said a member of the Houston Host Committee, promising a "Texas-sized bash."

Texans talk like that, although the city's image still wavers sometimes between Urban Cowboy and Urbane Cowboy. Gilley's famous honky tonk and its mechanical bull are history.

But while Democrats berate the sedate Republicans as the "Stepford delegates," the Houston folks are offering something for everyone.

Well, almost everyone.

Unlike the Democrats in New York, nocturnal Republicans won't rub shoulders with drag-queen presidential candidates or male Marie Antoinettes celebrating Bastille Day.

And almost everything's a fund-raiser of some sort.

But, hey, party-goers can mix with Arnold Schwarzenegger and Kevin Costner, Peter Jennings and Tom Brokaw, Randy Travis and Tanya Tucker, Popeye and Beetle Bailey.

Popeye? Yep. He and Beetle and Hagar the Horrible and even the Phantom.

They were among the costumed comic-strip characters from King Features Syndicate mixing with 2,500 invited guests at a Saturday night party thrown by the Hearst-owned Houston Chronicle.

Munching on foods of the Southwest, and with music ranging from Cajun to country to Blue Grass, guests could roam through a tunnel beneath the Texas Commerce Tower or view the city from the 60th floor of the bank building.

Meanwhile, in another Saturday night affair, the Houston Post invited 1,000 guests to the Houston Museum of Natural Science for Dixieland music, Gulf Coast shrimp, Texas beef, lamb and caviar.

Caviar?

With the museum's IMAX theater showing the film "Antarctica," they could also "chill out in the heat."

Jennings and Brokaw were among the first to RSVP, a spokesperson said, and their network counterpart, Dan Rather, a Houston native, was expected.

Schwarzenegger and Costner also were invited and an invitation awaited Charlton Heston at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, where, someone quipped, he would arrive by chariot.

The social tempo heats up Sunday night with dozens of parties for the various delegations, mostly lavish dinners in elegant and private homes.

It seems only fitting, however, that the California, Florida and Texas delegations will whoop it up outdoors and under air-conditioned tents at a so-called "Coast-to-Coast" party.

Some 3,000 are expected in historic Antioch Park, where a giant cactus will dispense margaritas to cool down such spicy delights as chili, Tex-Mex, barbecue, crayfish and venison.

On the other extreme, the New Mexico delegation will attend a black-tie bash at River Oaks Country Club, playground of the old rich and very rich.

Many of the top dollar, ultra-glamorous, fat cat affairs are so secretive only the caterers, gossip columnists and gate-crashers know what's really going on.

Bigger does not always mean better, but the "big" events of the week include a "Red, White and Boots" fund-raiser at the Astroarena Monday night and a $1,000 per ticket RNC luncheon Wednesday at the George R. Brown Convention Center.

Before Bush's coronation Thursday, the well-heeled faithful visit River Oaks for a "progressive" cocktail party, then move on to the Astrodome for the president's acceptance speech. They return to River Oaks for a champagne breakfast with the royal family.

At $1,000, the cocktail party's a relative steal.

"If one wants to attend all three events, the price tag is $2,500, and there are a lot of takers," said gossip columnist Maxine Mesinger, who, with Shelby Hodge, is riding herd on the party scene for the Chronicle.

Their counterparts at the Post, Betsy Parish and Julie Gilbert, likewise approach the event with the strategy and cunning of a military invasion.

The hot parties, restaurants and watering holes are staked out, said Parish laughingly, and she and her "underground network" will be there, recording who says what about whom.

"There are 15,000 members of the media in town writing about the same thing," Ms. Parish said. "I'm looking for something different."

She noted also that the economy, the GOP emphasis on "family values" and Bush's poor standing in the polls tend to stifle the party atmosphere just a bit.

"The flash and cash is being played down, but maybe out of necessity instead of politics," she said. "It's a hell of a lot different than it was in New Orleans and Dallas."

Police arrest more than 150 Haitian refugees after U.S. repatriation

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Police detained more than 150 boat people on Friday only minutes after a U.S. Coast Guard cutter sent them back to their homeland.

A U.S. official accompanied the refugees to police headquarters to ensure due process.

Police said the refugees were detained for questioning on the possible hijacking of the 40-foot vessel in which the 158 refugees made their escape. Maj. Jacques Denis said all but those who organized the trip would be freed without charges.

The Haitians were the first sent back this month under President Bush's directive ordering the repatriation of Haitians without a hearing to see if they faced political persecution or retaliation upon their return.

The police action was the biggest against boat people since the exodus of Haitians began following the army's overthrow of elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in September. Police had stopped smaller groups of Haitians from leaving and last month announced the arrests of 12 trip organizers.

The roundup took place minutes after the U.S. cutter Confidence dropped off the Haitians at a Port-au-Prince dock. The refugees, many of them appearing hungry and ill, had just collected Red Cross food-aid cards and $7.50 for bus fare home when police forced them aboard buses and took them to police headquarters.

Four of the 158 refugees escaped the roundup, Jonel Charles, administrator for the Haitian Red Cross, told The Associated Press.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman, Chris Filostrat, said an American consular official accompanied the 154 "in order to ensure that due process was being respected." Under Haitian law, it is illegal to organize trips that put a person's life in danger.

Maj. Denis, head of the police information service, said the police brought the boat people in for questioning because it would have taken too much time to do so on the pier.

Denis said the refugees claimed the boat was not stolen and that they did not play a part in organizing the trip. Denis blamed the four people who fled on the pier for setting up the voyage and said police would work to recover the money spent by the refugees.

The 2-month-old appointed government of Prime Minister Marc Bazin, eager to repair relations with the United States, has announced a crackdown on refugee voyages, which had become a problem for the Bush administration.

The Coast Guard said 37,381 Haitians have been intercepted by the Coast Guard at sea since Aristide's ouster, and 27,440 have been repatriated. U.S. immigration officials found most of the remainder to have grounds for political asylum.

The Bush administration argues that the refugees are primarily migrants fleeing economic devastation in the hemisphere's most impoverished nation. Refugee advocates say many are fleeing political persecution by the military following the bloody overthrow of Aristide, Haiti's first-ever democratically elected president.

Sudanese refugee boys vanish during relocation

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — As many as 3,000 Sudanese boys who were being moved to a refugee camp after years of wandering in search of safety from war and famine cannot be accounted for, U.N. officials said Friday.

One U.N. official said the boys may have been lured back to their homeland by the rebel Sudan Peoples' Liberation Army, which has been waging a nine-year civil war in southern Sudan.

But another aid official suggested they may have simply been miscounted.

The youths were among 12,000 boys who crossed into Kenya with 10,500 other refugees on May 29 and were being cared for at a camp near the border village of Lokichoggio.

The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees office in Nairobi began moving the boys on July 25 to a new camp at Kakuma, farther south from the border.

"We noticed that the final number arriving at Kakuma was far less than the number departing Lokichoggio," said Panos Moumtzis, a spokesman for the U.N. refugee program in Nairobi.

"We think there might be as many as 3,000 missing, but we're not sure," Moumtzis said. "We have sent an officer to the area to investigate.

Moumtzis said refugee workers were especially concerned because the rebel group "was trying to lure tham back, telling them that we were going to take them to Uganda and not Kakuma."

In Geneva, a spokeswoman for the U.N. agency, Sylvana Foa, said the organization believed the boys had been conscripted into the rebel army.

"According to people in the camp, there had been a lot of pressure on these children ... not to relocate to the other camp," she said.

However, Bob Koepp, whose Lutheran World Federation is managing the boys' camp in Kakuma, discounted speculation that the boys had been lured back to Sudan by the rebels.

Japan to mark WWII surrender on mixed note

By Elaine Kurtenbach
Associated Press writer

TOKYO — Exactly 47 years after his father broadcast the Japanese surrender that ended World War II, Emperor Akihito will lead the nation in a moment of silence today to honor Japan's war dead.

But instead of healing wartime scars, the passage of time has raised new demands for apologies from Japan — provoking a conservative backlash among some Japanese who want to put the painful memories of Japan's defeat to rest.

Almost a half-century after the war, the country is still divided over how to remember the war and estranged from its neighbors by wartime wrongs yet to be resolved.

"The Japanese can't leave the war behind. That's what happens when you do something wrong," said Masatake Takahashi, an expert on international relations whose father died fighting in the war when he was 2 years old.

Officials declined to say Friday whether Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa would join Cabinet members in visiting Yasukuni Shrine, where many war dead, including 14 convicted war criminals, are enshrined.

Each year, several Cabinet ministers make the pilgrimage to the shrine, although Miyazawa's predecessor, Toshiki Kaifu, pointedly did not. A visit in 1985 by Yasuhiro Nakasone, the only postwar prime minister to officially visit Yasukuni, touched off protests from China, South Korea and other Asian nations that suffered from Japanese aggression during the war.

An Osaka High Court's recent ruling that Nakasone's visit may have violated the constitutional separation of religion and state has only contributed to the controversy.

Sensitivities over Japan's wartime past have resurged in recent months as the government reversed earlier denials that it was involved in recruiting Asian women to serve as prostitutes for Japanese soldiers during the war.

Historians estimate 70,000 to 200,000 women were forced to perform sexual favors for the Imperial Army, and hundreds of women in China, South Korea, North Korea and Indonesia have recently come forward to testify about abuses in wartime brothels.
