EEC Eyes Monetary System

By OTTO DOELLING
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS (AP) — The six Common Market finance ministers met today voicing determination and some optimism about reaching agreement on a plan to reshape the world monetary system in such a way that the dollar would ultimately lose its leading role.

A key to the success or failure of the meeting appeared to be the Common Market Commission's long-range plan for reorganizing the world monetary system.

The plan calls for a realignment of the parities of leading currencies, including the dollar and the dollar's ultimate replacement by special drawing rights as the basic unit of international exchange.

The meeting was called amid growing feelings within the European Economic Community that the system should be denationalized, meaning that it no longer would be based on any national currencies whether on the weakened U.S. dollar or the strengthened West German mark.

The ministers will attempt to fuse a single position for Wednesday's meeting in London of the Group of Ten leading industrial nations and the Sept. 27 meeting in Washington of the 118-member International Monetary Fund-IMF.

But because of basic differences between France and West Germany, there was little hope that agreement would be reached at today's session.

The ministers appeared to be looking beyond present differences toward the more distant goal of a new world monetary order.

On the eve of the meeting, Italy's Treasury Minister Mario Ferrari-Aggradi, who will preside, told newsmen that the session would "present a delicate step along a long, difficult road."

The Common Market Commission, which makes proposals independent of the six member governments, has suggested that the dollar and pound sterling gradually be replaced by special drawing rights to the IMF backed by gold as the basis for international financial and trade transactions.

FIRST BALE—Jerry Smith (center) brought in the first Scurry County bale of cotton for 1971 this morning at the Paymaster Gin. It was one of the latest first bales ever ginned here. Last year, the first bale came in on Aug. 26. On hand to congratulate Smith were Bentley Baize (left), manager of Von Roeder Seed Farms, and D. T. Pierce, manager of the gin.

First Bale Of 1971 Is Ginned

Jerry Smith, 3000 Avenue U, brought in the first bale of cotton for 1971 this morning at the Paymaster Gin. It was one of the latest first bales ever ginned here. However, Jerry won the first bale award in his first year to farm.

He is farming 145 acres for his father, Wayne Smith, who lives about three miles north of town on the Clairemont Road. The first bale came from a three acre patch in a 40 acre block north of town. It is the Western Storm Proof variety.

D. T. Pierce, manager of the Paymaster Gin, said there was 1,630 pounds of seed cotton, which produced 425 pounds of lint and 700 pounds of seed. The bale registered a 26 per cent gin turnout.

Smith planted his cotton May 1, and it was pre-irrigated. Bentley Baize, manager of the Von Roeder Seed Farms, estimated Smith's cotton would produce from three-fourths of a bale to one bale per acre.

Smith is a contract seed grower for Von Roeder Seed Farms. He is married to the former Charlotte Colley. They are parents of two children, Kerry 15, and Shanna 10.

The Paymaster Gin also had the first bale of cotton last year. It was ginned on Aug. 26.

Edith Threatens Flooded Coast

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Just getting their second wind after a weekend bout with tropical storm Fern, residents of the Texas Coastal Plains were faced today with the threat of still another storm.

Russell Mozeney, chief meteorologist here, warned against relaxing preparations. He noted tropical storm Edith was in the Gulf of Mexico and expected to gather strength.

"It is hard to say where Edith will turn," he said. "But pressures are lowest along the Texas coast. It is possible we will be under a new storm watch within 24 hours."

Flood waters began receding late Sunday at such nearby towns as Sinton and Alice. But the Nueces River was on the rise again and was expected to surge 7 feet above flood stage near here today.

Heavy rains were reported over a wide area surrounding Corpus Christi.

At Papalote in Bee County E. L. Gilliam measured 21.5(inches in three days.

Gilliam, who operates a service station and grocery store, complained, "I've got water in my gas, water in my station and water in nearly everything. It's like one big lake out here."

The Coast Guard dispatched five helicopters and an airplane to flood stricken areas Sunday, evacuating more than 100 persons from Sinton, Robstown, Refugio and other points.

The aircraft were to resume their flights today.

A spokesman said the Coast Guard rescued some flood victims west of Robstown after they had sat in trees for several hours.

"Split" Opens Meeting

By JERRY BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A business-versus-labor split on post-freeze controls opened today when Archie K. Davis, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, rejected labor's proposal for a tripartite labor-industry-public panel to manage the anti-inflation controls.

Davis said he favored the continued administration of wage and price restraints by the President's Cost of Living Council headed by Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally. Davis was interviewed on the NBC "Today" television show just before he and other industry leaders headed into a conference on the Phase II controls with President Nixon at the White House.

Davis' views clashed with those given Nixon Friday by President George Meany and other leaders of the AFL-CIO. Meany called for a three-sided tripartite "board of wages and [illegible]." He said "We wouldn't play" if the government moved unilaterally to impose wage guideposts. Meany headed for Capitol Hill today to talk about more individual tax relief.

EIGHT HOSTAGES KILLED

Police Assault Rebel Inmates

ATTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Eight hostages were killed, and 30 brought out alive today as police staged a full-scale assault on rebellious inmates at Attica State Prison, state police said.

At least four of the rescued hostages were seriously injured, officials said.

Police opened fire on the inmates while helicopters dropped tear gas as authorities moved in to break the four-day rebellion by 1,200 inmates.

The police were backed by National Guard troops brought in secret to the prison in western New York State.

There was no immediate word on whether any of the prisoners had been killed.

The state police radio from inside the prison to the outside reported, "There have been homicides. There have been homicides."

Hundreds of National Guardsmen, wearing gas masks and carrying rifles massed outside the prison wall as shots rang out inside and clouds of tear gas poured over the walls.

Reporters saw 23 of the 38 hostages who had been held by the prisoners come out the prison gate. Officials said four were serious injured. There was no immediate word on the fate of the 15 others.

One of the hostages was clasped by his mother in a tearful embrace as he came out the gate.

Reporters tried to talk to him; but bystanders shouted, "Leave them alone! Leave them alone!"

From a helicopter circling over the prison, a loudspeaker told the prisoners: "Place your hands over your heads and surrender to the nearest police officer. You will not be harmed."

Three of the more than 500 state police who took part in the assault on the prison were taken away in ambulances, apparently injured.

The presence of the National Guard troops in the prison area had been a well-kept secret. They moved up in at least 70 truck and jeeps and were held in reserve outside the walls.

State Corrections Commissioner Russell G. Oswald said the decision to restore order by force was made with "extreme reluctance."

He said the situation was "seriously deteriorating" Sunday night. Prisoners were fashioning weapons, making booby traps, and setting up electrically charged barricades and spreading gasoline, he said.

ON SHARP'S IMMUNITY

Lawyer Queries Political Motive

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — A defense lawyer questioned today the possible political motivation which caused the Justice Department to grant Frank Sharp immunity from further prosecution instead of putting him in prison.

The query came at the start of the third week of testimony in the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) injunction hearing seeking to prevent fraudulent stock dealings.

Revelations in connection with the SEC suit have brought the names of major state politicians into the case after they made large, quick profits in stock deals.

Sharp, expected to testify later today, was in the back row of the spectators area with his lawyers when a motion for dismissal of the case came from lawyer Tim Timmons, representing J. Quincy Adams, a Dallas broker who is one of the defendants.

The motion was denied.

Timmons said he would seek to impeach (question the truthfulness of) Sharp as a witness by testing his credibility and "seeking to elicit the actual reasons, understandings, grounds and basis for the arrangement made between the defendant Sharp and the Department of Justice."

Sharp, accused of widespread, questionable security deals, was given a three-year suspended prison sentence and a fine of $5,000 in return for immunity from further prosecution. The guilty plea and sentence were in U.S. District Court in Houston.

Timmons spoke of what he called "devious and secret meetings" between Sharp and representatives of the Justice Department "possibly resulting in perjury being committed ... in this and other proceedings."

He called for all documents regarding the agreement to be made available so that he could make "a determination of the actual purpose of the furtive surreptitious agreement made here and the possible political motivations causing senior officials of the U.S. Department of Justice into granting Frank W. Sharp, who is clearly kingpin, principal architect and key figure in this case, immunity from further prosecution after the defendant Frank Sharp had entered a plea of guilty or nolo contendre to minor offenses of federal law, resulting in a subsequent fine and the granting of probation without any incarceration in a federal penal institution."

MOST AUTHENTIC EXHIBIT — Alpha Study Club won the $50 prize at the Ranch Day Celebration for the most authentic display of "Life at the Turn of the Century." Mrs. Wayne Williams, member of the club, is showing a loaf of home made bread.

Many On Hand For Ranch Day

Old-timers, middle-agers and youngsters mingled Saturday at the third annual Ranch Day Celebration in the Scurry County Coliseum.

The event is sponsored each year by the Scurry County Ranch Headquarters Association, which is the most active unit of the Ranch Headquarters Museum Association of Lubbock.

Exhibits and a variety of activities held the interest of visitors in the coliseum.

One of the highlights was the auction of a painting by A. Kelly Pruitt, noted western artist. Jess Everett, a Snyder artist, purchased the painting on a bid of $650.

Another feature was the old fiddlers contest which was won by Elmer Glynn of Throckmorton. Placing second was Harry Lester of Idalou, and placing third was Straley Alsup of Gustine.

Exhibits attracted attention throughout the event; and cash prizes were awarded for the best old-time exhibit. The first place prize of $50 was won by the Alpha Study Club for its exhibit of an early-day kitchen.

In general exhibits, the West Texas Rehabilitation Center placed first, while the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee was second and the local unit of the South Plains Archaeological Society was third.

The closing feature was a historical pageant depicting the settling and development of Scurry County.

Your brother Mike needs help—quick!

By Abigail Van Buren

(c) 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My brother Mike is the disgrace of the family. He is 19 and can't hold a job. He went to college and flunked out but nobody knew it because he just stayed there and pretended to be going to school. We found out when the school called home looking for him.

Mike is home now, sponging off Mom and Dad, who both work. Mike begged Mom to sign for a car, promising to stick with his job and keep up the payments. She signed, and Mike made one payment, quit his job, and now Mom has to make his payments. She says she might as well because if they take the car back Mike will be home full-time making life miserable for everyone else. He beats on the younger kids something terrible and Mom is afraid he will accidentally kill somebody. Mike steals everything he gets his hands on. He even siphons the gas out of the folks' cars after they've gone to bed.

Is there some branch of service we can enlist Mike for? I told my Mom I was going to ask you about that, and she said the country was in enough trouble without Mike. Please answer in the paper. Mike opens all the mail that comes here.

—MIKE'S SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Mike needs to be straightened out by a professional who counsels hostile, antisocial personalities. Inquire at your local mental health clinic. If he doesn't shape up, he's headed for trouble with the law. And some penal institutions are more apt to dispense punishment than rehabilitation.

DEAR ABBY: No matter what you say, the long-haired cult wear their hair that way because it is the most effective way to dishonor their parents.

—OLD FASHIONED

DEAR ABBY: I am 19, and am engaged to marry Mark in three months, but a problem has developed.

I have five cats, three of which I have had for many years. These cats are like a part of my family, but Mark hates them, and he is very jealous of the attention I give them. Now he tells me that after we are married he doesn't want to see any cats around the place! Abby, I really do love Mark, but I just cannot see myself parting with these cats. Can you tell me what to do?

—"TORN"

DEAR TORN: If you are honestly "torn" between Mark and the cats, take the cats, hands down.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder if your readers are aware of the fact that there are sperm banks now so that a man planning a vasectomy can make arrangements to store sperm in the event that he changes his mind and wishes to father a child.

—PLANNED PARENTHOOD

DEAR PLANNED: They do now.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SAD SARA C.": Your husband is mentally disturbed. I urge you to get him to a doctor before he harms himself or someone else.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Agnew Speaks To Governors

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew urged Americans today to set aside "petty bickering" and political jockeying, and help President Nixon in the quest for a new prosperity without inflation.

He told the nation's governors the administration is open to ideas, and is searching for improvements, in president Nixon's new economic policy.

"We all want the new prosperity, without inflation and without war," he said in a speech prepared for the 63rd National Governors Conference. "No party and no political leader has a monopoly on wisdom or an exclusive on the common goals of all Americans."

Agnew disputed Democratic labor charges that the tax measures recommended by Nixon are unfairly weighted in favor of big business and the affluent. "The facts are that the president has proposed a balanced tax package," he said.

And he dismissed the assertion of critics that profits should have been frozen along with wages and prices. He said profits produce taxes, and encourage the productivity that can conquer inflation.

"Let me say the unsayable," Agnew said. "Rising corporate profits are good for the average man, and are needed more than ever by the poor."

While he defended the Nixon program, Agnew said it "was not handed down from Mt. Olympus; it should be subject to the most searching analysis, and where it can be improved, it should and will be improved."

Agnew told the conference Nixon has invited its executive committee to meet with him on Thursday at the White House "in order that you may fully participate in helping plan the phase of the system of wage and price stabilization that will follow the present phase."

He said Nixon wants to discuss with the nine committee members the system of economic restraints that will be instituted after the current wage-price freeze ends on Nov. 12.

Gov. Warren E. Hearns of Missouri, the conference chairman, complained of a breakdown in relations between state and federal government. The executive committee Sunday asked Agnew to take full charge of liaison and state problems with Washington. Hearnes said Agnew agreed.

"We need a troubleshooter," said Hearnes.

President Nixon already had designated Agnew his administration's liaison man with governors, but the assignment had been handled day-to-day by Nils A. Roe, former governor of South Dakota, who resigned to become a judge of the U.S. Customs Court.

Hearnes told the governors today that Congress and the federal bureaucracy have been unwilling to fashion a new partnership with the states.

"Instead of a new federalism, we are witnessing an accelerating and adverse alteration of existing intergovernmental relationships in this country," the Missouri Democrat said.

Nixon, meanwhile, acted to reassure the governors that the administration is not shelving—although it is postponing—the welfare reform and revenue-sharing programs most of them advocate.

On the eve of the conference, advocates of independence for Puerto Rico staged a mass march past the El San Juan Hotel, where the governors are meeting, and rallied nearby. Police estimates of the peaceful demonstration ranged up to 25,000.

Ft. Worth Bank Robbed

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man escaped with $1,100 today from the Fort Worth National Bank by pushing a note through a teller's cage and demanding the money shortly after the bank opened.

Officers said he fit the description of a man who robbed the Union Bank and Trust of $450 last Thursday.

The note today demanded the cash from Mrs. Sybil Shaw in bills of $20, $50 and $100 denominations.

The man was described as about 5 feet 6 inches weighing about 160 pounds.

Harte Purchases Press

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Purchase of the Ypsilanti, Mich., Press by Harte-Hanks Newspapers, Inc., of San Antonio was announced today by Houston H. Harte, chairman of the board of the newspaper group.

Acquisition of the 16,000 circulation afternoon paper, located in a college community just west of Detroit, is the third out-of-state purchase by Harte-Hanks since June. Total daily circulation of the group in 18 markets in four states now exceeds 500,000.

The purchase price was not disclosed. The seller was Panax Corp., publisher of a group of daily and weekly newspapers in Michigan.

Robert G. Marbut, president of Harte-Hanks, said Ypsilanti is a growing community of 30,000 with its own economic identity in close proximity to a metropolitan market and that this fits the pattern of recent Harte-Hanks acquisitions in Hamilton, Ohio and Framingham, Mass. Ypsilanti is the home of Eastern Michigan University which will have more than 20,000 students this fall.

New publisher of the Press will be Wayne Powell, 33, currently publisher of the Corsicana Sun. His newspaper experience, after graduation from the University of Alabama, has been at Hagerstown, Md.; Bedford, Ind.; Beaumont and Corsicana. He is a native of Rutledge, Ala.

Senate Takes Up Draft Bill

By H. L. SCHWARTZ III
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate planned to take up the draft-extension bill today with stiff fights in prospect over a $2.4-billion military pay raise and language aimed at hastening U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam.

The measure extends the draft two years, provides the largest military pay increase in history and urges President Nixon to negotiate a deadline for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam.

The Senate still had before it, meanwhile, a $21-billion military procurement authorization bill that could face a month or more of debate.

But the first item of business, while members decide whether to divide debate up each day or tackle the bills separately, was the draft proposal.

Authority to draft men into the armed services expired June 30 when a filibuster delayed Senate passage of a House-approved bill.

The Senate subsequently approved the measure after adding an amendment by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana calling for withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam within nine months.

But the upper chamber refused to act before its August recess on a compromise worked out in conference. The conference committee bill, already approved by the House, urges the President to negotiate a deadline for U.S. troop withdrawal but sets no date.

The administration is publicly urging quick renewal of the draft. Otherwise, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told the Senate in a letter Friday, critical shortages of trained personnel will begin to show up after the first of the year.

However, Senate war critics led by Democrats Alan Cranston of California and Mike Gravel of Alaska have vowed to renew the filibuster this week.

But their efforts could be overshadowed, or at least delayed for several days, by early combat over the pay proposal.

Some Republicans, led by Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado, want the bill sent back to conference with orders to restore the pay increase to the full $2.8 billion approved by the Senate.

Allott and others say the $2.4 billion approved by the House would not draw enough volunteers to permit phasing out the draft.

Electrologists Need Training

Career Corner

by Joyce Lain Kennedy

what job would you like to see explored in this column?

Dear Joyce: I am interested in becoming an electrologist but have not been able to find out much – have no college background either. – C.P., Seattle

College is not a prerequisite for this occupation – which can pay well for electrologists who establish a good practice. And, in some states, high school graduation is not required.

EARNINGS for self-employed are based on fees, about $20-25/hour (sometimes $30), generally at least 3-5 years to establish a successful practice; no mandatory retirement age. Prospects are best in more affluent neighborhoods and suburbs of urban areas. An electrologist sometimes works in a beauty salon or doctor's office, but a large number begin their own practice immediately after training. Employee's pay may be commission only, or salary (perhaps $75-90/week) plus commission, and in a salon, sometimes tips.

ELECTROLOGISTS, also called electrolysis technicians, remove superfluous hair permanently (not moles or other skin blemishes) through use of a small fine needle and electrical equipment. Work is not dangerous – or accomplished at one sitting, but through continuous steady treatments until desired amount of excess hair is permanently removed.

QUALIFICATIONS, include good eyesight, a steady hand, patience, good grooming, a likable personality, the ability to inspire confidence and to keep mum about the patron's business. Women outnumber men in this occupation.

WORK SETTING is an office – at home or elsewhere – and the electrologist wears a white uniform. Equipment and furniture to establish a practice can be obtained for under $2,000, and you may be able to defer some expenses (time payments). Figure does not include living expenses, or rent, utilities, other overhead costs.

LICENSING REQUIREMENTS are in effect in under 20 states at present, and they are surprisingly varied. You should investigate the laws in your state, which may be administered by a board of cosmetology, medicine, or electrolysis. The board is usually located at the state capital. In states which do not license, you can legally set up shop after minimal training.

TRAINING REQUIREMENTS also have not been standardized. In states with licensing boards, each has its own standards.

Electrolysis equipment and supplies manufacturers conduct vocational schools of about 90 hours (30 theory, 60 practice). Tuition is approximately $300. These schools assist in job placement, often in salons operated by the equipment manufacturers – school owners.

Other career schools of electrolysis offer programs ranging from 200-1100 hours. And there is a wide difference of opinion about how much training is ideal – spanning from 150 to 1,500 hours! There are a number of state electrolysis organizations, and you would be wise to disuss your choice of schools and length of training with members, or other established electrologists.

Proponents of longer training periods say it is necessary to obtain professional competence; opponents say established electrologists are trying to limit competition. In the absence of national standards, you will have to make your own decision.

FOR MORE INFORMATION. Readers MUST send separate requests for following because they will be answered by 2 separate organizations. All requests should be addressed to Joyce Lain Kennedy at this newspaper.

(1) From the Electrolysis Society of America, a free 4-page leaflet: "What Is Electrolysis?" This leaflet describes nature of process, not career facts. Write "Electrolysis Leaflet" on your postcard.

(2) The American Electrolysis Association will refer you to a contact person in your state for additional information. Enclose stamped, self-addressed return envelope. Write "Electrolysis Contact" on your outside envelope.

THIS IS A COP? — Indeed she is, the first policewoman in the Air Force. US B52 Bombers Stage New Raids Along DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers mounted fresh raids today along the demilitarized zone and Laos border, while South Vietnamese forces uncovered more bodies of enemy soldiers and three giant Soviet-made artillery guns.

Operating from a half-mile to five miles from the Laotian border and just to the south of the DMZ South Vietnamese reconnaissance patrols also seized three trucks, 1,500 gallons of gasoline, 200 mortar shells 16,000 feet of telephone wire and a quantity of rice.

The area appeared to be a North Vietnamese base camp from which enemy troops had withdrawn back into Laos or across the DMZ in advance of heavy B52 raids in the region.

Spokesman said it was the first time 122mm artillery guns had been seized in South Vietnam since U.S. troops captured 12 of them early in 1969 during a lengthy operation in roughly the same area.

Field reports said one of the guns was in good condition and a second was slightly damaged, apparently by B52 raids that have been saturating the region around Khe Sanh. The condition of the third one was not immediately reported.

The 13,500-man South Vietnamese drive below the western sector of the DMZ encountered its heaviest shelling attack since it began eight days ago.

North Vietnamese gunners fired 100 rounds at a reconnaissance patrol 11 miles northwest of Khe Sanh ad five miles from the Laos border. The South Vietnamese command said the government reconnaissance team escaped unscathed.

In action Sunday, South Vietnamese forces reported killing five enemy soldiers and finding the bodies of 32 others killed by U.S. air strikes. A military spokesman said this raised to 64 the number of North Vietnamese bodies found during the drive.

There has been no major ground fighting.

The artillery guns, each weighing about 17,000 pounds with a range of 13 miles, were found in the same area where the reconnaissance team was shelled. It was not immediately determined if the same guns were used in the attack.

More than 100 miles south of the DMZ, below Da Nang, South Vietnamese militiamen reported they ambushed an estimated 100 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops and killed 29 of them without suffering a casualty.

Maheu Seeking Magic Word

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Attorneys for Robert Maheu will try to say the magic words Tuesday that will make Howard Hughes appear, a trick that hasn't been performed in two decades.

Maheu, the fired head of Hughes Nevada Operations, is asking the Nevada Supreme Court to allow him to subpoena the billionaire industrialist.

On Tuesday attorneys will present oral arguments to back up lengthy legal briefs already on file with the five-man court.

Maheu, 54, a balding former FBI agent, has been fighting his ouster since last December, contending his $520,000-a-year job was promised to him for life.

Maheu will ask for two things Tuesday.

First, he wants the Supreme Court to throw out a lower court decision and allow his attorneys to take a deposition from Hughes for use in Maheu's $50 million suit against the tool company.

Second, he wants the court to set aside an order sealing certain documents he says are needed should he be able to take a deposition from Hughes.

Hughes, who hasn't been seen in public in more than 20 years, left his $300 million Nevada holdings last November and reportedly took up residence in the Bahamas.

Shortly afterwards, Hughes Tool officials acted to dethrone Maheu, touching off the court fight.

By 1980, villagers in Brazil and India will learn to read and farm from educational television broadcasts via stationary-orbit satellites 22,000 miles high.

New Title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Mayor Richard G. Lugar's administration is coming in for some kidding about "management of the news."

In the city's proposed 1972 budget the title of Robert Beckmann Jr. has been changed from the mayor's public relations director to "public information manager."

Knifing Victim Still Gets Nervous At Night

POMONA, Calif. (AP) — "I get nervious at night when I hear a sound or see a shadow," says Marie Parker quietly.

On July 12 the shadow of a killer came out of the night at Bear River Campground. With a two-edged knife he killed Donna Fitzhugh, 25, of Ontario, and John Simmons, 29, of Weimar; and tried to cut open Mrs. Parker's head.

Now, two months later, the aftermath of that night of terror in the Sierra foothills clouds her days.

She was attractive by any standard before the attack—a 115-pound brunette with a perky smile. Now the 25-year-old woman weighs only 90 pounds and her hair is just growing back after being shaved by doctors who fought 11 hours to save her life.

She has deep scars over her forehead, under the eye and under her chin where the killer ripped her face.

She and her husband have moved from the neighboring town of Walnut to Pomona, 30 miles east of Los Angeles, to get away from the public attention received after the slayings.

Living with the Parkers is Sam Fitzhugh, husband of the dead woman and Mrs. Parker's brother-in-law.

The Fitzhughs and the Parkers went to Bear River on a two week outing. The women's husbands were away hunting for gold when the attacks occurred.

Mrs. Parker recalls little of what the killer looked like or her attempt, recounted by witnesses later, to try to hit the man with a rock.

She does recall the panic of the attack:

"This guy came kind of running over the rocks. He came from the Kenneth Garbe tent (a 20-year-old Applegate man wounded with his wife in the attack). I saw he had a knife and I think Johnny (Simmons) saw him at the same time because we both jumped up from our seats together.

"The man and Johnny met between our tent and the Garbe's. Johnny always carried his .41 caliber pistol. He shot, but missed and the guy started on him.

"I was standing right next to Johnny. I remember he fired once. If he hit the guy it would only be a flesh wound, he was aiming low.

"Donna ran into our tent to get a .22 rifle. The man was at the back of our tent slashing at it with his knife. Mark (Mrs. Fitzhugh's 11-year-old son) stood in the doorway looking out. I yelled for him to get back into bed.

"Donna ran to the man and pulled the trigger, but the gun didn't fire. My husband found later that moisture had penetrated the box of shells and only half of them would fire."

Mrs. Parker said she worried that there would be trouble after arriving at the campgrounds. She said Mark came up to her and Mrs. Fitzhugh and said, "that man is on the hill looking at us through binoculars again."

"We have reason to believe that someone was watching us, but don't ask me why," Mrs. Parker says.

Police searching outside the campsite area found blood-stained clothing, a large home-made knife and a .41-caliber pistol in an old cistern.

Clarence Otis Smith, 43, an ex-garbage collector, was arrested Aug. 6 by the FBI and is now in Brownsville, Tex., awaiting extradition to California. He was indicted by the Nevada County Grand Jury on two counts of murder and one count of assault to commit murder in the attack.

Mrs. Parker is hopeful about the future.

"We have to pick up the pieces of our lives and start again," she says. "I'll go camping again with my family, but not to a public camping ground."

"I can talk about it now and I don't have it in my mind."

But she still shivers at a sound in the night or a darkened shadow outside her window.

Mayor Files Document

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Fayetts Mayor Charles Evers has filed a petition he says contains more than 7,000 names backing his independent candidacy for governor in the Nov. 2 general election.

The document filed Friday with the secretary of state's office was to meet the legal requirement that an independent candidate present a petition signed by 1,000 voters certified by circuit clerks. The State Election Commission will review the petition and act on it later.

Bill Waller is the Democratic party's nominee. The other men have announced plans to file as indpendents but are not considered serious contenders. There is no Republican candidate.

Stalin's Kin Is Baptized

Panel Exploring New Surcharge

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee summoned top Nixon administration officials today to explore ramifications of the 10-per-cent imports surcharge imposed by the President in his save-the-dollar campaign.

The committee planned to hear from Paul A. Volcker, undersecretary of the Treasury for monetary affairs, and Nathan Samuels, undersecretary of State for economic affairs.

The surcharge does not require legislative action. But some members of the Finance panel, which handles foreign-trade bills, privately have voiced concern about it.

They fear there will be strong pressure from domestic interests to continue the surcharge indefinitely and that this could bring retaliation and wreck the relatively liberal trade structure erected over the last 35 years.

One committee member who advocates greater protection for U.S. industry, Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., said he welcomes the surcharge.

It should be maintained, he declared, "until our major trading partners halt unfair practices which have allowed them to flood the U.S. market while keeping American products out of their home markets."

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., who is conducting the hearings as chairman of an international trade subcommittee, said he hopes the administration will move quickly to take advantage of the "shock effect" of the surcharge and Nixon's action suspending convertibility of dollars into gold.

The administration should seek immediately to work out arrangements to remove non-tariff barriers abroad to American goods and to devise a new monetary system, he said.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., another Finance member, said in a speech prepared for Senate delivery that the South is continuing to lose thousands of jobs because of Japanese textile imports.

The subcommittee will continue its hearings Tuesday with Robert Rosa, undersecretary of the Treasury in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans is to testify Wednesday.

55% Of UT Class Of '66 To Graduate

AUSTIN (AP) — What happened to the University of Texas freshman class of 1966?

A survey of 3,088 students admitted to UT-Austin from high schools in September 1966 shows that by the close of the 1971 summer session, approximately 55 per cent of the class will have received degrees, according to Dr. Margaret Berry, director of the Office of Research and Developmental Programs in the Division of Student Affairs.

Of the class, 1,516 (49.1 per cent) had received degrees by the end of the spring semester 1971. Another 298 (12.89 per cent) were still enrolled at UT-Austin during the spring semester or had registered for the summer session. Of those, about half had accumulated more than 115 semester hours of credit. Most degree plans require 120 hours.

The study by the Office of Research and Developmental Programs showed that though more men than women graduated (53.4 per cent compared with 46.6 per cent), women were more likely to receive their degrees in three years than men. On the other hand, of students graduating in their fifth year of enrollment, 78.4 per cent were men.

Of the 1966 class, 1,074 dropped out without degrees from UT-Austin and did not return. Their records show that at least 13.14 per-cent possibly had transferred to other colleges and universities.

Klan Still Active

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the loss of thousands of members in the past decade, the Ku Klux Klan still is active, the Federal Bureau of Investigation says.

Klan membership, estimated at between 48,000 and 65,000 in the mid-1960s, has diminished to about 4,500 today, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said Friday. He pointed out this is almost six times the estimated membership of the Black Panther party.

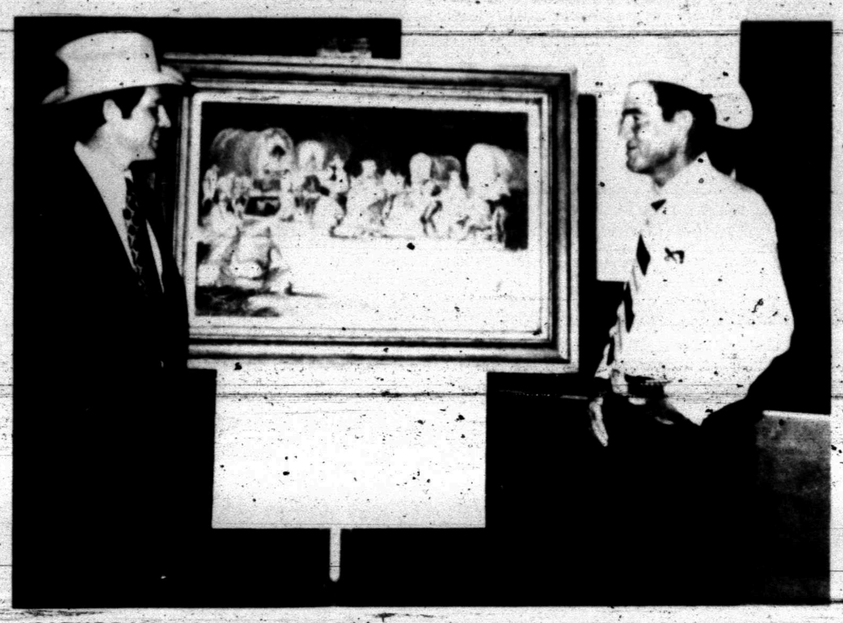

The klan came to national attention Thursday when FBI agents arrested six reputed klansmen in connection with the bombing of 10 school buses in Pontiac, Mich. They are charged with conspiring to block a federal court order requiring busing to desegregate the city's schools.

An informant "who has served as a nonpaid FBI undercover agent" infiltrated the Michigan klan, the FBI said in an affidavit used to obtain search warrants in the Pontiac case. Most klan organizations have been similarly infiltrated, according to federal authorities.

The klan was founded in 1866 in Pulaski, Tenn., by a group of former Confederate soldiers. During Reconstruction it was said to have had a membership of more than 500,000, mostly in the Deep South.

Hoover listed its membership at 4,500 last July and said this represented a slight increase over recent figures. "In addition, many thousands of sympathizers lend their support to klan programs and activities," he said.

The largest of several divisions of the klan is the United Klans of America, Inc., Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, which has headquarters in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Paris Orders Equipment

DALLAS (AP) — The Postal and Telecommunications Ministry of France has ordered a Postal Address Reader-Indexer (PARIS) system from Recognition Equipment France, a subsidiary of Recognition Equipment, Inc., of Dallas. The ministry will use the equipment in the automation of letter mail sorting.

This order is Recognition Equipment's first penetration of mail processing markets outside the United States.

The company currently has two contracts with a combined value of $8 million to develop optional character recognition systems for the U.S. Postal Service.

Scheduled for installation at a post office in the Paris area in late 1972, the PARIS system will process up to 43,200 letters per hour.

The system will optically read addresses typed or printed in a number of commonly used type styles and print a sorting code on the envelope.

Initially, city destination will be determined by reading the last address line but the system can be adapted to read the address line containing street information as well.

The PARIS system will have several advanced capabilities, including the ability to locate an address printed almost anywhere on the face of an envelope and the ability to distinguish between the address and other extraneous information.

One of its most interesting features is a computer-controlled destination recognition unit or address directory that allows the system to correctly identify destination even when an address is incomplete or misspelled.

Rene Joder, directeur general des postes, said this order is an important milestone in a program to automate the French mail service.

Joder said that within the next few years the ministry expects to have between 60 to 70 mail processing centers throughout the country, at least half of which will be highly automated and could use advanced automation equipment.

India's exports in May totaled $176.21 million, about $18.67 million more than May of 1970.

College Grads Seeking Life With A Purpose

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three years ago Dan Dinello wanted to be a philosophy teacher when he graduated from the University of Illinois. Instead, he is a janitor.

Jeffrey Plack, a 21-year-old San Franciscan, studied pre-med at Berkeley then graduated as a history major, Class of '71. Today, he's a machinist.

John Blumbert of Orange, N.J., is a Lehigh alumnus with a master's degree in engineering. Recently, he gave up a $14,000-a-year civilian job with the Navy and plans to buy a farm in Canada.

Why do these college-educated Americans choose to labor with their hands? What satisfaction do they find in swinging a mop or feeding metal into a machine or tilling the soil?

"I realized I'd never get along with the AMA," said Plack, referring to the American Medical Association.

"If you're not learning anything in your job, it's not worth anything," said Blumberg.

While most college graduates still follow traditional career patterns, others are opting for a life in which wall-to-wall appliances do not define a man's success, and security has little to do with income. These dropouts from the affluent society hardly form a corporal's guard, but sociologists and college officials view them as the forerunners of a significant trend.

For most, the jobs are temporary, a romantic fling until the job market improve; a gig to pay the rent and save a few coins for travel. A handful view the change as permanent.

"Having more money than your parents does not necessarily make your life better," Dinello said. "If I readily wanted to be a philosophy professor, I'd go ahead and be one."

So five days a week, the 24-year-old Dinello hitchhikes from his three-room apartment in Madison, Wis., to the University of Wisconsin where he mops floors from 10 p.m. until dawn for $80 a week.

"It gives me eight hours to think," said Dinello, adding that "I wouldn't work for a business, corporation or bank simply because I don't want to be involved in large institutions which stabilize an on-going mass society I don't care to participate in."

Plack said his job on the production line of a machine company gives him time "to daydream, to fantasize."

He said the $67.50 a week he earns "is plenty to cover my expenses."

Asked why he took the job, Plack said, "First of all, there's difficulty in getting a white-collar job. And what you have to go through isn't worth it. I'm not ready to get into the grind. I don't know if I ever will."

Blumberg, who is 27 and has held down an engineer's job for three years, said he wants "to try and find out what's a necessity and what isn't."

So, he said, he's sold his sailboat and motorcycle and is trading in his car for a cheaper model.

"With the realization that you don't need these things, I won't miss them as much," he said.

What about the Lange-flo buckle ski boots still in the corner? Maybe some ski-bumming this winter? He smiled.

Blumberg hasn't bought a farm yet, though he said he has "some money—not enough to live on forever" and plans to pick a site in Canada because land is cheaper there.

It's not the income, status or job which is important, said Blumberg, who has never farmed, but "a life where there's really a purpose, where what you do tomorrow might make a difference in what you eat."

Bennett M. Berger, a sociologist at the University of California and author of "Looking for America," said the prospect that a significant minority of middle-class children will not be as economically secure as their parents is unprecedented in this country.

"The so-called good jobs often require work and personal commitment. A lot would prefer to do work in which they're psychologically turned-off, so they can pursue their 'real' work in their spare time. One of the things manual labor does is allow you to keep the private self to the self."

While the percentage of college graduates turning to manual labor is small, college placement officers say it is symbolic of a shift of values among today's students.

"Many have seen a kind of bankruptcy and hypocrisy in their parents' lives and are dissatisfied with them as social models," said Robert J. Ginn Jr., placement counselor at Harvard University.

"The feeling many of them have when they graduate is that they can read Merleau-Ponty (an existential French philosopher), but they can't fix a doorlock. They want to be self-sufficient. They want to get away from the traditional career in a competitive, profit-making situation."

Duvalier Would Like To Visit US

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Jean-Claude Duvalier says he would like to visit the United States, Canada and Europe next year to promote tourism and foreign investment, a Haitian newspaper reported.

The 20-year-old president succeeded his father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, as ruler of Haiti after the latter died in April.

The News of Haiti, a twice monthly publication, said in its current issue that Duvalier spoke of the trip during a palace interview.

Watsons Separate

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas J. Watson Jr., former board chairman of International Business Machines Corp., and his wife, Olive, have filed a separation agreement after 30 years of marriage.

An attorney for Mrs. Watson said neither party plans at present to seek a divorce. Lawyer Vivian F. Gentleman said the separation agreement filed Friday in Manhattan Supreme Court included a property settlement.

US Program Depends On Bilateral Concord

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The new U.S. international economic program which was decided upon swiftly and unilaterally depends now for its success upon a series of bilateral agreements that may be painfully slow and knotty.

The shock of the announcement Aug. 15 that the United States was floating its dollar and imposing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports left almost every foreign nation unable to react in word or deed.

Now, while the United States may retain the initiative it has lost the momentum, and foreign governments are developing a counterattack.

Canadians are angry and intend to subsidize exports. The Japanese decline to revalue their Yen. The Latin American nations fear a falloff in Western Hemisphere trade. The Common Market nations propose a dollar devaluation.

By embarking on a new course of economic self-interest, it is entirely logical to assume that the United States could cause a readjusting of foreign policy and economic sympathies and even alliances.

At that time the new program was ordered, optimists saw it this way.

The United States was sick of being discriminated against. It asserted its power by unilaterally floating the dollar. If other countries were reluctant to revalue their currencies the United States would blackjack them with a surcharge.

But now even some American businessmen have doubts about using the surcharge as a club and fear that retaliatory measures could be imposed by other nations with a resulting decline in world trade.

John Carroll, president of American Hoist & Derrick, which does a big export business from St. Paul, Minn., expressed last week the mixed feelings of some businessmen who see immediate benefits and long-term drawbacks.

"As the dollar becomes worth less in relation to other currencies the export job is easier," said Carroll. "I have to see it that way."

But, he added: "They will reciprocate. Retaliation is coming. This will boomerang terrifyingly."

The American problem, Carroll insists, is not to reduce imports but to increase exports. The task is not to make it harder for other nations to export to the United States, he said, but to make it more profitable for American companies to send their goods abroad.

And how is that to be done? By bringing labor costs into line with productivity, by developing a competitive American merchant marine, by providing insurance to lessen risks, and by developing export incentives, Carroll said.

The voices now rising from both domestic and international sources are bound to somewhat change the original plan. The United States may have to make some accommodations. The question is, to what extent?

The European Economic Community, for example, has proposed a devaluation of the dollar to go along with the revaluation of other currencies.

While such a suggestion may be too extreme for the United States to accept, it seems certain that other proposals—and even some exemptions from the surcharge—may get serious consideration.

Junior Editors Quiz on FLOWERS

QUESTION: What causes the color in flowers?

ANSWER: Flowers are more than a splash of color. We often look at a plant and admire the color of its flowers. Sometimes what we think are flowers are really colored leaves. The blossoms of dogwood that bloom in the spring are really projections of the leaves of the dogwood tree. The beautiful calla lilly is really a white leaf of the callas plant. Poinsettia blossoms are another example of colored leaves rather than true flowers. Only seed-bearing plants have flowers, and only the parts of the plant which form and produce the seed can be considered as a part of the flower. Flowers vary in color through the spectrum. A truly white flower is rare. There are usually touches of other color in what appears to be a white flower.

The diversity of color in the garden is one of the wonders of nature. The botanists attribute the color of flowers to chemicals which are dissolved in the sap of the cells of the flowers. The chemicals are called pigments. There are two pigments associated with flowers. They are called anthocyanim and plastids. Anthocyanim is the pigment which gives flowers the red, mauve, blue, purple and violet colors. Plastid supplies the other colors.

Custer's Stand Is Re-Enacted

CROW AGENCY, Mont. (AP) — You should have been here this year, Gen. Custer. You might have pulled it off.

For the past eight summers, the Crow Indians of Montana have made a big show out of and some coin from staging the annual "Custer Re-Enactment"—a gala punctuated by Crows massacring Custer's 7th Cavalry as hundreds of perspiring tourists look on.

The script for the re-enactment is widely known. After some historical background to set the scene for the Indians' last stand against the invading whites, Custer and his 7th Cavalry storm down a hillside on the Little Big Horn and into history. The Indians on that day of June, 25, 1876 were Sioux and Cheyenne.

Today's Custer maulers are Crows from the well-heeled and dusty reservation in this southern Montana region. There were some Crows in the neighborhood in 1876. Historians disagree on their specific location but agree on a major point. They were watching from something of a distance.

Barney Old Coyote of Bozeman, Mont., director of Montana State University's Indian studies program, was incensed by a recent magazine article implying some timidity on the part of the Crows scouting for Custer. The magazine said the Crows hightailed it far away after seeing the size of the Sioux and Cheyenne force.

Not true, says Old Coyote. He says the Crows retreated to a distance and watched the fight.

The re-enactment is a serious event, based on a scholarly script written by Crow historian Joe Medicine Crow. The preparation for the event, however, takes on some comic aspects.

"All right, attention all Indians," thunders director George Elias. "I've said it before and I'll say it again. Absolutely no modern jewelry during the program.

"And that goes double for sunglasses."

The present Custer re-enactment is held in July, a month later than Custer's last. It rains a lot in Montana in June. A dry re-enactment has its drawbacks, however. At one July session Custer's dead troops came to life on the Little Big Horn battlefield. It's hard to play dead during a prairie fire.

Elias' problems are compounded by the natural ham syndrome. The Indians, mainly Crow youths, have a natural tendency to get Custer—a Hardin, Mont., bartender-rancher named Lloyd Schindler—to the exclusion of the other doomed members of the 7th Cavalry.

"Everybody wants to kill Custer," Elias moaned during a rehearsal session.

You might recall that the lone survivor of the Custer battle was a cavalry horse named Comanche. The 1971 model of Comanche is a big, dark animal suffering from an overdeveloped herd instinct.

He broke away from the "dead" trooper holding him and threw in with the victorious Indians galloping back to their village. Everybody loves a winner.

Another Comanche—with lighter color and more stage presence—had to be hustled up from behind the hill.

The re-enactment opened this year's three-day run on a Friday—a working day for many Crows. Thus the first search and destroy mission for the 7th Cavalry pitted some 40 troopers against about 60 Indians. The cavalrymen are mainly hard-bitten adults from the ranches around Crow Agency and Hardin. The Indians were mostly callow youths.

Dietrich Against Nudity In Theater

LONDON (AP) — Actress Marlene Dietrich says nudity has no place in the theater.

"If you can't do it without being nude you ought not to do it at all," Miss Dietrich told newsmen Sunday as she arrived for a charity performance at London's Drury Lane Theater.

The 67-year-old actress also said actress Elizabeth Taylor, whose son recently became a father, is welcome to the title of the world's most glamorous grandmother.

"It's her crown now. I have had it. She can wear it for a while," Miss Dietrich said.

Eggs Well Liked

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department report says if you haven't eaten 238 eggs by the end of September, you are lagging behind the national average.

Per capita consumption of eggs last year was 319, including 34 in processed form such as cake mixes. The Economic Research Service says egg eating usually picks up around Thanksgiving and the year-end holidays.

Cuban Fleet Stranded On The Texas Coast

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (AP) — Seventy Cuban fishermen, forced to the Texas coast by tropical storm Fern, were stranded here today aboard a fleet of disabled shrimp boats.

Four of the seven vessels lay grounded on a beach and the three others were docked at a pier awaiting repairs. The Coast Guard kept them under close surveillance.

Compounding their problems was Hurricane Edith, now in the Gulf of Mexico.

"All they want is off the beach and out of the area," said a Coast Guard official. "Of course, now they're as concerned about this new hurricane as we are."

Salvage operations were to begin today, but the Coast Guard pointed out that Edith may delay even further their return to their home port in Havana.

The captain of the fleet, Soilo Rodriguez, 38, said the fleet was fishing near Freeport, Tex., more than 100 miles north of here, when Fern caught them.

Two of the boats became disabled and were taken in tow by two others. They were driven ashore about midnight Saturday, Rodriguez said.

The Coast Guard granted the other three permission to dock here for repairs. The extent of damage to the boats was not at once determined, but officials said it appeared one had rudder damage and another had engine trouble.

The four grounded boats were spread over a long stretch of beach about five miles south of Port Aransas, which is near the port city of Corpus Christi.

"They're staying aboard their boats," said Chief R. O. Morris of the Coast Guard station here. "They haven't sought asylum. They've made no attempt to come ashore."

Capt. Rodriguez told the Corpus Christi Caller that a Czechoslovakian embassy representative from Washington, D.C., was due here Monday to assist the fishermen.

The captain's brother, Alberto, was the only crewman allowed ashore. He was treated for bruised ribs at a civilian hospital and returned to the boats.

Rodriguez said the fleet left Havana Aug. 28, had fished the western Gulf and was returning home when the storm struck them.

The fleet usually works the waters off the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico, Rodriguez said. He said this was his first shrimping trip off the Texas coast.

Chafee Eyeing Nuclear-Subs

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy John Chafee is taking another look at an expensive new class of nuclear-powered attack submarines, raising the possibility fewer may be built in the future.

This is fresh evidence that Chafee, concerned about rocketing ship costs, is questioning the arguments of senior admirals for ever-faster, more complex war vessels.

Last spring, Chafee recommended a cutback in plans for a new class of nuclear-powered frigates from five to three. Pentagon leaders followed that recommendation.

It is known that Chafee, concerned about the $250-million price of new frigates, rejects the admirals' arguments that nuclear-powered aircraft carriers are unable to reach full potential for long-endurance operations unless all their escorts also run on nuclear engines.

But while differing with some views of nuclear-Navy advocates, Chafee is urging Pentagon superiors to approve about $300 million in next year's budget toward construction of a new atomic-propelled carrier.

Several months ago Deputy Secretary of Defense, David Packard shelved this proposed fourth U.S. nuclear carrier because its estimated price had zoomed close to a record $1 billion.

Chafee calculates that building a new carrier with conventional oil-burning engines might save about 20 per cent. But those close to him say he feels it is impolitic to return to conventionally powered carriers in view of the strong opposition this would meet from key congressional supporters of nuclear propulsion.

In short, he is said to feel this is one fight he might lose.

Chafee has no intention of canceling the new class of faster attack submarines, which he is restudying in view of their cost. But associates say his rethinking could lead to a scaling down of the ultimate buy of these subnarines.

Overall, Chafee expects Pentagon leaders to allot about $3 billion for Navy shipbuilding in the fiscal 1973 budget President Nixon will send to Congress in January.

Although about the same level as in recent years, the new Navy budget is expected to include some novel vessels proposed by Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations, including a relatively small patrol frigate equipped with antiship missiles and designed to contest Russia's growing fleet of modern surface warships.

Crashes Blamed On Fog

THELWALL, England (AP) — Nearly 200 cars, tankers and heavy trucks, hurtling with Monday morning bustle through a heavy patch of fog on a major freeway, smashed together near this Cheshire town today. Police said at least nine persons died in the chain of crashes.

Another 61 victims were taken to hospitals.

Dozens of what rescue workers called "walking wounded" were helped to a roadside restaurant, turned into a first-aid and reception center.

They limped through tangled wreckage littering a long stretch of the M-6 motorway near its crossing over the Mersey River as smoke drifted up from burning trucks and ambulance and fire truck sirens screamed.

An exact count of cars involved was not yet possible. First reports put the number at 100, but a later unofficial count ran at about 200. Many of the cars were not seriously damaged, but the line zigzagged out of sight.

A police spokesman blamed the size of the crash on excessive speed in the heavy fog that shrouded M-6 in blinding patches.

US Bullfighter Arrested Sunday

JEREZ DE LA FRONTERA, Spain (AP) — American bullfighter John Fulton was arrested Sunday after he left his spectator seat and jumped into the bull ring here to try to fight the fifth bull of the afternoon.

He was stopped immediately. Later, in a prepared statement, Fulton said he did it because a drawing of his was used for decorating the official poster for the corrida without his permission.

Showers Diminish In South

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers and thundershowers —the last traces of tropical storm Fern—diminished in soggy South Texas today while coastal residents watched the movement of tropical storm Edith.

Deluges that chased thousands from their homes in portions of South Texas tapered off with the departure of Fern to Northeast Mexico Sunday.

Edith, which killed 23 persons in Central America last week while a hurricane, charted a northwesterly course this morning about 200 miles east of Tampico, Mexico.

The storm was expected to strengthen while moving about 10 miles per hour.

Portions of the Lower Rio Grande Valley were under flood warnings because of drenching rains caused by Fern.

Over 21 inches of rain fell at Papalote in Bee County in three days. Alice recorded 11.10 inches and Goliad 14.5 inches.

Heavy clouds overhung much of South Texas and southeastern regions today while skies elsewhere were mostly clear.

Scattered showers and thundershowers dotted the Rio Grande area from Del Rio southward and from Laredo to Corpus Christi.

Predawn temperatures varied from the 50s in the Upper Panhandle to the 70s in southern and eastern areas.

The National Weather Service predicted clear to partly cloudy weather with only slight temperature changes would remain through today in all areas.

Strauss Facing Eviction

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rick Strauss dropped out of his jet set life in 1967 and began giving away his personal fortune of several hundred thousand dollars on crash pads for long hairs, music festivals and other ill-fated ventures.

He said his somewhat baffling spending spree was all in the name of bringing peace to the world by midsummer 1972.

Today, Strauss, a trim 51, his young and attractive wife, their 3-month-old son and a host of followers face eviction from the $1,650-a-month hilltop house he rents overlooking Los Angeles.

He owes about $7,000 in back rent. A $360,000 apartment house—the last of his once sizeable holdings—will be auctioned soon to satisfy other creditors.

A banker who watched Strauss' fortune dwindle said until one year ago Strauss could have written his own ticket in any bank in town, "but he got carried away with being a Good Samaritan. Today, no bank would loan him a dime."

But Strauss, a World War II German refugee who made his fortune in foreign films, stocks and real estate, said he has no regrets about giving his money away with no strings attached.

"Some people say I was exploited, ripped off, burned, cheated, but I don't see it that way," he said in an interview.

Large schools of fish will be pinpointed by satellites, aiding in the world-wide fight against hunger.

Dallas Cowboys Nip Chiefs 24-17

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

What's wrong with the Baltimore Colts, pro football's Super Bowl champions? That question was asked by many National Football League fans today as the NFL prepared for its regular season opening next Sunday with the Colts playing at home against the New York Jets.

"There's something wrong," said Baltimore Coach Don McCafferty after Oakland had beaten the Colts 24-3 in the windup of the exhibition season over the weekend. "I don't see how it could be any worse."

The defeat gave the Colts 2-4 exhibition record, not including their triumph over the College All-Stars.

"I'm open to suggestions," McCafferty replied when asked what he planned to get the Colts going.

The Dallas Cowboys, meantime, finished the exhibition season as the only unbeaten, untied club with a 24-17 triumph over the Kansas City Chiefs for ther sixth in a row.

The Cowboys beaten in the Super Bowl by the Colts, open on the road against the Buffalo Bills and Coach Tom Landry said he will alternate Roger Staubach and Craig Morton at quarterback.

"I am very satisfied with our quarterback position," Landry said in explaining his reluctance to name a No. 1 QB for the Cowboys.

"The situation will stay as is with both of them playing. Both of them are looking good and both are getting the job done. We'll just go with whoever happens to be going best."

Quarterback Greg Landry of Detroit threw four touchdown passes as the Lions routed the Eagles 49-10 in a nationally televised game in Philadelphia Sunday night.

In the other games that wound up the preseason slate Sunday, the Chicago Bears whipped Denver 33-17, Pittsburgh downed the New York Giants 20-3 and Houston defeated New Orleans 24-17.

Four of Landry's TD passes went to Charlie Sanders including one for 49 yards, as the Lions snapped a two-game losing streak. Landry had missed Detroit's last two exhibitions with a twisted ankle.

Houston took an early lead on a 35-yard TD run by Joe Dawkins, a 61-yard punt return by Zeke Moore and a 35-yard pass from Charley Johnson to Jim Beirne, then held off a New Orleans rally led by rookie Archie Manning.

Manning, who completed 11 of 24 passes for 246 yards, sparked the Saints to two touchdowns before he was taken out in the last quarter in order not to aggravate an old foot injury.

The passing of Jack Concannon and Kent Nix brought the Bears from behind a 14-0 deficit to beat the Broncos. Concannon's passing gave the Bears a 17-14 halftime lead and Nix sewed it up with a 55-yard touchdown pass to Dick Gordon in the second half.

Terry Bradshaw completed 20 of 32 passes for 227 yards, including a 55-yard touchdown pass-run play to John Fuqua, to spark the Steelers over the Giants. Fran Tarkenton hit on 16 of 34 attempts for 128 yards for the Giants, but was intercepted three times.

In addition to the New York Jets at Baltimore and Dallas at Buffalo games, other season openers next Sunday are Houston at Cleveland, Kansas City at San Diego, Los Angeles at New Orleans, Miami at Denver, New York Giants at Green Bay, Oakland at New England, Philadelphia at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at Chicago, San Francisco at Atlanta and Washington at St. Louis.

Coody Nips Nicklaus

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Charles Coody, who had to hold off Jack Nicklaus to win the World Series of Golf, was talking about the near-disasterous loss of four strokes on a single hole.

"I wasn't feeling too good when it was over and I wasn't thinking good," said the 34year-old Masters champion who took a double bogey seven on the second hole while Nicklaus made an eagle three.

That gave the feared Nicklaus a share of the top spot in the chase for the $50,000 first prize in this four-man tournament.

"I'm not a superstar," the soft-spoken man from Abilene, Tex. said. "I'm not going to be playing this tournament every year like Jack.

"I'd just blown four strokes and lost any advantage I had. Now I'm even with one of the greatest players in the game and on a course that he plays exceptionally well.

"I can't say my thoughts were very good right then."

But Nicklaus, playing erratically, couldn't take advantage of his opportunity, handed back the lead on a string of bogeys and let Coody claim his second title of the year and third of his seven-year pro career.

He won with a three-over-par 73 for 141 on the 7,180 yard Firestone Country Club course. Nicklaus, the PGA champion, was next with a 71 for 142 with Australian veteran Bruce Crampton one more stroke back at 143 after a final 70.

Spring Woods Ties Reagan

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The first Friday night of the season should provide some shakeups in The Associated Press Texas schoolboy football poll this week.

Top-ranked Austin Reagan was tied 7-7 by Houston Spring Woods in a Class AAAA surprise. This should give Port Arthur Jefferson and Odessa Permian a chance to move up.

In Class AAA, No. 1 rated Brownwood lost 20-7 to Class AAAA power Abilene Cooper. Should the experts decide to denote Brownwood, second-rated McKinney, 47-0 conqueror of Duncanville, and third-ranked Ennis, 56-6 victors over Burleson, are waiting in the wings.

Refugio never got to tee it up as the top-ranked Class AA club. Its game with Bishop was canceled because of rains from Hurricane Fern.

In Class A, Holliday may have lost its top rankings in a 7-6 victory over Nocona.

Blocked Punt Leads To 15-9 Tech Upset

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ask Texas Tech Coach Jim Carlen what can happen when the kicking game turns sour. You get whupped—that's what happens.

Tech missed an extra point, a 25-yard field goal attempt, and had a punt blocked in a 15-9 upset by Tulane Saturday night.

The blocked punt at the Texas Tech five-yard line setup Tulane's winning touchdown.

"This was the first time I've had a punt blocked since I've been coaching," said an aghast Coach Jim Carlen. "And that covers eight years at Georgia Tech coaching the punters."

But Carlen knows where to go to get the problem solved.

"I can't blame anyone but myself for our kicking game because I coach the kickers," said Carlen.

While Tech was dismal in flying the Southwest Conference flag, Arkansas pulled off a big intersectional victory with a 51-20 rout of California behind junior quarterback Joe Ferguson. The Texas Aggies routed Wichita State 41-7 while Houston outlasted Rice 23-21 in their cross-town "city championship" battle in Rice Stadium.

The action picks up this week with Oklahoma State at Arkansas, Baylor at Kansas, Houston at Arizona State, Southern California at Rice, Southern Methodist at Oklahoma, Texas at UCLA, Texas A&M at LSU, UT-Arlington at TCU, and New Mexico at Texas Tech.

Rice earned some healthy respect from bitter rival Houston in defeat.

Cougar Coach Bill Yeoman said "You are nuts if you don't think Rice does not have some excellent athletes. They took advantage of the breaks and are certainly to be congratulated."

New Coach Bill Peterson, who had the Owls lined up in his pro-style offense, was proud.

"Our kids played real well," Peterson said. "I don't believe our kids are any patsies. They made a heck of an effort. I'm proud of them, especially the way they came back for that last touchdown."

Rice offensive guard Bart Foforth summed things up when he said "You can't say much when you lose and don't take anything away from Houston but people had better look out for us."

Ferguson hit 16 of 27 passes for 278 yards and Arkansas exploded for 523 yards total offense. Ferguson passed for two touchdowns and ran for another. The Razorbacks also scored two touchdowns from the Wishbone offense, installed by Coach Frank Broyles for situations around the goal line.

Coach Gene Stallings used 70 players as A&M beat outmanned Wichita State.

Stallings evened instructed his third string quarterback Mac King not to score on a fourth quarter drive to the Shocker goal, but King couldn't help himself.

"I heard coach yell for me not to score, to just run to the left," King said. "I was just trying to improve on slow motion and didn't see the flag until I was on it."

Tragedy Strikes Gunnison Team

GUNNISON, Colo. (AP) — Eight high school football players and one of their coaches, who died together on the way to a game, will be buried together Wednesday.

A mass service for seven of the players and the coach will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the Western State College gymnasium. A separate service will be held Tuesday at the Episcopal Church of the Good Samaritan for the other player, Timothy Datton, 14.

All nine died Saturday when a school bus taking the Gunnison High School junior varsity team to Salida hurtled off U.S. 50 near the bottom of Monarch Pass.

Twenty-three others on the bus, which carried 41 players, three coaches and the driver, were hospitalized.

Lakeview Wins 14-0

All of the scoring occurred in the first half here Saturday afternoon as Lakeview defeated Lamar 8th grade 14-0 in the first grid test of the season for both teams.

Lakeview's Bunch swept 33 yards around left end in the opening period, and then he ran across for two bonus points.

In the 2nd quarter, Montez plunged across from the one yard line to cap a 35 yard drive. The run for extra points was stopped short.

Lamar's Kittens mounted a long drive in the third quarter with Kelly Ragland completing passes to Carmichael and to Gary Neal, but Montez intercepted to halt the march.

Neal recovered a fumble in the fourth period and caught a pass from Ragland as the Kittens drove from midfield to the 10 yard line, but the final gun stopped the drive.

Larry Gee, defensive end, was outstanding for Lamar.

Bengals Win 15-12

BIG SPRING — The Snyder Junior Varsity Bengals scored a 15-12 triumph herre Saturday afternoon in their first gridiron test of the season.

Coach Milton Ham said the Bengals put forth a great team effort, both offensively and defensively.

Snyder took a 7-0 lead, then saw the hosts shoot into a 12-7 advantage before the Bengals put it on ice with a touchdown in the 4th quarter.

Snyder drove 70 yards to pay dirt in the first quarter with quarterback Richard Gorman scoring on an 8-yard rollout. Johnny Boren kicked the extra point.

Big Spring mounted a passing attack in the first quarter that culminated with a one-yard plunge over right guard for the touchdown. They failed to make the extra point.

The hosts drove 60 yards in the second stanza to take a 12-7 lead. Again, the try for bonus points failed.

In the third period, Hubert Crayton got loose on a 70 yard run on the first play; but the touchdown was nullified by a penalty. After a scoreless third quarter, V. T. Roberson returned a punt 65 yards for a touchdown, and Tim Jones added the two points on a rollout.

Saturday, the Bengals host Colorado City.

Rain Hampers Lenoir Play

LENOIR, N.C. (AP) — For the fourth time in the nine-year history of the U.S. Lefty-Righty team golf tournament, rain has washed out one of the four days of play.

The championship flight couldn't complete the last 18 holes over the Cedar Rock Country Club course Saturday, so the champions were crowned on the basis of 54 hole scores.

Larry Watts of Bellflower, Calif., and Steve Cook of Long Beach, Calif., had a 15-under par total of 210 and a four-stroke win over the defending champions, Richard Tinsley of North Myrtle Beach, S.C., and Bob Bryant of Charlotte.

9th Grade Cubs Triumph 20-12

Lamar 9th grade's Cubs thrashed Lamesa's Whirlwinds 20-12 here Saturday afternoon in an exciting football clash that opened the season for both teams.

Lamar scored a touchdown in each of the middle two periods. Lamesa tallied twice in the third stanza to pull within two points, but the hosts added an insurance touchdown in the fourth period.

The visitors pulled a reverse on the opening kickoff and Mays went all the way, but a clipping penalty nullified the touchdown. Later in the period, Lamar took over on the Lamesa 15 following a bad snap from center, but the Whirlwind defense held.

Sammy Harrell and Roy Lee Carter teamed up on a 42 yard pass play for a touchdown in the second frame. Dennis Young blocked the safety on the play. Then, the same two clicked on another pass play for two extra points, Harrell intercepted a pass at the Lamesa 30 and returned it to the eight, but the Cubs were stopped by the clock.

Lamesa tried an onside kick opening the second half, but it failed and the Cubs took over. On the first play from scrimmage, Dennis Young shot over right tackle and stepped 57 paces to pay dirt with 9:13 remaining. Ricky Howell was stopped on a run to the right for extra points.

Later in the stanza, Lamar fumbled a punt at its 28, and the Whirlwinds drove in with Mays and Robinson doing most of the damage. Mays went over from the one on a third down effort. Robinson was stopped on a right end run for bonus points.

Just before the third quarter ended, Lamar fumbled again—this time on its 41, and Lamasa socred on a 32-yard pass play. Again, the try for bonus points failed as the Cubs held onto a 14-12 lead.

Lamar mounted a long sustained drive in the fourth quarter after Young made a good kickoff return. He, Bobby Wall and Sammy Harrell all turned in nice gainers. Then, Ricky Howell plunged across from the one with 7:19 remaining. A pass for extra points failed to click.

Late in the game, Mays was taken to the hospital with a neck injury, but X-rays revealed that no bones were fractured.

Lamar 9th hosts the Brahamas at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in their next outing.

Mayfield Gets Grid Baptism

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

West Texas State Coach Gene Mayfield got his baptism in Missouri Valley Conference football Saturday night and things aren't as dark as they seem.

Although Memphis State whipped the Buffaloes 30-0, Tiger Coach Billy (Spook) Murphy said he could see some potential in the young West Texans.

"West Texas was tough and aggressive on defense and as soon as they gear up their offense a little bit they'll be tough competition in the Missouri Valley Conference," Murphy said.

Murphy wasn't overjoyed at the way his offense performed against West Texas.

"We played a fine defensive football game," Murphy said. "Our offense was sloppy—especially as far as execution was concerned."

Memphis State is the pre-season favorite in the MVC.

In other games, New Mexico State won a battle of MVC newcomers 7-3 over Drake, Wichita State fell to Texas A&M 41-7 and North Texas bowed 41-11 Friday night to explosive Brigham Young.

Defending conference champion Louisville opens the season this weekend. The Cardinals are at Vanderbilt.

S'Water Rips Travis 8th

SWEETWATER—Travis 8th grade suffered a 20-0 loss here Saturday afternoon in their first gridiron match of the season. However, the game was much closer than the score indicated.

Travis couldn't mount much of an offense, but they looked good on defense most of the game. Harvey Wallter made 14 tackles, Cobb got seven, and David Rodriguez made six.

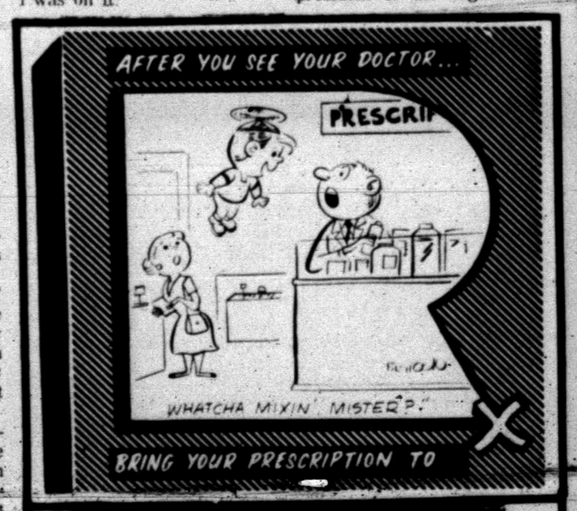

After a scoreless first period, Sweetwater socred in the second quarter on a trap play that went up the middle 40 yards.

Sweetwater blocked a punt and covered the ball in the end zone for its second touchdown in the third period.

A drive from midfield in the last stanza resulted in the last touchdown. The TD came on another trap play up the middle, good for 22 yards. This time, the hosts made a two-point conversion.

Next Thursday, Travis 8th will tangle with Goliad in Big Spring.

PLANS TRIP TO VIETNAM TO ENTERTAIN GIs

New Miss America Is Conservative

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Miss America of 1972 says she plans to make a trip to Vietnam to entertain American troops, but she hopes the fighting will be over before she has to go.

Laurie Lea Schaefer, who won her crown Saturday night, said she thinks President Nixon is doing a good job to end the Southeast Asian conflict.

"He should be allowed to follow his program because he knows a lot more about it than the majority of normal citizens," the 22-year-old Bexley, Ohio, beauty said Sunday.

Miss Schaefer said she didn't get to sleep until 5:30 Sunday morning, and although she held her first news conference as the nation's reigning beauty queen a scant four hours later, she didn't look tired.

At the news conference after a week of showing off her singing ability and beauty, Miss America got a chance to air her views.

She said she was a conservative in politics, fashion and morals, and that most young people shared her views.

On a wide range of topics, Miss America said:

—She likes conservative clothes and doesn't own a pair of blue jeans.

—Premarital sex is not for her.

—Miss America contestants support women's liberation by being outspoken and intelligent; the pageant helps women develop their goals; and —Drugs on campus are a serious problem; she has been offered marijuana, has never tried it, and never will.

The new Miss America has auburn hair, is 5-foot-7 and has a 36-24-36 figure.

Miss Idaho, Karen Herd, was first runnerup. The next three finishers, in order, were Miss Massachusetts, Deborah Ann O'Brien; Miss Pennsylvania, Maureen Victoria Wimmer; and Miss Maine, Allyn E. Warner.

US Troop Strength Cut By 900

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today a cut of 900 men last week in American troop strength in Vietnam, the smallest one-week reduction since early last February.

The command reported overall manpower of 215,800 men as of last Thursday, compared with 216,700 a week earlier.

The 900-man reduction was the lowest since the week ending Feb. 4, when a troop cut of 800 was reported.

The size of the cutbacks varies from week to week. The withdrawal program currently is running ahead of the schedule announced by President Nixon, which calls for paring U.S. troop strength to 184,000 men by Dec. 1. Because of the speedup, it is expected to drop to about 177,000 by that date.

British End Era In Singapore

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

SINGAPORE (AP) — "It's all rather sad," said a British colonel, flexing his stiff upper lip and stuffing batik sport shirts into a footlocker. "The end of an era."

British troops, encamped on this crossroads island for more than a century, are winding up a withdrawal that will leave only a token force by Nov. 1.

Raucous parties last until early morning to finish up the gin.

Sagging bulletin boards offer prams and porsches. Bedraggled lines of families wait for the daily flight to London at Changi Air Base.

Once British bases covering one-tenth of Singapore's 225 square miles housed more than 100,000 military men and dependents at a headquarters for all Far East operations.

Now most of the land goes back to the Singapore government.

English housewives must learn to cook again after years with Asian servants. Youngsters are returning to a home they've never seen and weather that may shock them after their equatorial childhood.

But thousands of Singaporeans will have worse problems. Economists figure the withdrawal's impact on Singapore amounts to $720 million a year in various losses.

Though a carefully nurtured economic boom should offset most of that, many individuals aren't comforted by the over-all picture.

Only a few of the 20 bars are still open at the naval base village of Sambewang.

Indian carpet merchants and antique dealers are giving up the lucrative beats they have cultivated for decades. Bakers and florists are closing up shop.

Thousands of civilian employes must find new jobs. Some are discovering the market for meteorological data processers is thin even in Singapore's bustling economy.

Some new people are coming in and a few of the old ones are staying. British, Australian and New Zealand forces will number fewer than 10,000 when all are present and accounted for after November.

London's new policy was charted by Harold Wilson's Labor government. The Conservatives altered the withdrawal to leave some people behind, but defense experts regard this as insignificant.

Agreement among British, Australia, New Zealand, Singapore and Malaysia call for consultations in case of external threat. But the six frigates based here after November must watch the Indiana Ocean, the Persian Gulf and run the Rhodesia blockade.

Britain also is leaving some aircraft and a battalion group.

Dairy Farmers Gross Is Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's dairy farmers may gross a record $6.8 billion this year, up $300 million from the previous high in 1970, says the Agriculture Department.

Although the wage-price freeze imposed by President Nixon will have considerable effect in holding steady some of producers' costs during the final few months, officials say expense increases earlier in the year may offset much of the gain in gross income.

A new report on the dairy situation, published by the Economic Research Service, says milk and cream marketings during the first seven months of 1971 totaled about $4 billion, approximately 4.5 per cent more than during the same period last year.

"However, total net income from dairying may not have improved, since farming expenses through July rose around five per cent," the report said.

That situation is not new. The report said a review of dairy sales and expenses in recent years shows that cash receipts nationally from 1964 to 1970 rose 30 per cent.

However, the ERS said, studies of dairy farms in central New York and southeastern Wisconsin, based on 40-cow herd operations, showed how the cost-price squeeze has skimmed off much of the gains.

On those farms, the report said, cash receipts from milk sales rose 50 per cent from 1964 to 1970. That was due mostly to higher milk prices.

"But farm expenses rose about one-fourth," the report said. "Net farm income in 1970 was about $21,000 on the southeastern Wisconsin farm and some $18,000 in central New York, both more than double 1964 income levels."

After allowing for returns on investment and for family labor, the adjusted net income on the farms was between $10,000 and $11,000 for 1970.

The value of assets in 1970 rose about 50 per cent since 1964 and last year averaged $123,000 for Wisconsin farms and $84,000 for the New York operations, the ERS said.

Higher land values accounted for the larger assets in Wisconsin, the report said.

Prouty Rites Set Wednesday

NEWPORT, Vt. (AP) — Funeral services will be held Wednesday for Sen. Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., who died Friday of stomach cancer.

The service at the United Church of Newport will be followed by burial at Pine Grove Cemetery.

A memorial service will be held Tuesday at Georgetown Presbyterian Church in Washington.

His widow has asked that instead of flowers, donations be made to the Winston Prouty Memorial Fund, which aids the North County Hospital in Newport.

Flesh Glitters On French Isle Of Gold

ILE DU LEVANT, FRANCE (AP) — All that glitters is golden flesh on this the starkest of the four tiny Iles d'Or, islands of gold, off the French Riveria.

As the tourist boat from the mainland rounds the rocky point, swarms of nudists can be seen sunning themselves in les corniches—the ledges of the sheer cliffs, scampering along the pebbly beach and stony footpaths, gamboling in the roaring surf. It could be the set for one of those One Million B.C. movies, but the illusion is shattered by the dozens and dozens of yachts bobbing at anchor in the cove, each lovingly attended by unadorned mermaids and water sprites.

A golden galley slave, looking like September morn in the glare of August, waves a frying pan and calls out, "Bienvenu (welcome), Ile du Levant."

The huge sign at the ferry landing proclaims the island to be the Centre Mondial du Naturisme—world center of nudism—and lays down the law in four languages.

1. High moral standards are essential.

2. Filming and photography are strictly forbidden.

3. Noise is not allowed after 10 p.m.

4. Le minimum is compulsory everywhere except along the seafront.

Le minimum, it becomes rapidly apparent, is a small triangle of cloth tied about the loins with a string. It is the unisex uniform for strolling through the unpaved byways of Heliopolis, the only village on the island, for dining out in the cafes, for shopping in the marketplace.

A gendarme, one of four assigned to the island by the national police, was on duty at the dock to see that the rules were observed. One could tell he was a policeman by his kepi, his round flat-topped policeman's cap. Since St. Tropez, 40 miles away, went topless last season, he confides, the business of running off peeping toms with cameras has not been brisk.

"So far, there has been no noticeable change in the tourist traffic," says Jacques Viale, the mayor of Heliopolis. "We still get 800 visitors a day, by boat, in addition to the 3,000 or so who spend a week or more on the island."

The mayor, who also is proprietor of La Reserve Hotel, was overdressed for his press interview in chef's hat and apron. Heliopolis, he proudly points out, is a law abiding community with 750 year-round inhabitants, 254 permanent structures, one Catholic church, two doctors, a bank, half a dozen cafes, each every street which means both and no major crimes during his seven-year stewardship. Good thing, too, for there is no jail cell on the island; felons are removed by ferry, along with the occasional drunks and the too-avid camera bugs.

Sunny, a trifle muggy, it was a day like any other day on Ile du Levant. The line outside Madame Doumanian's little post office up on the hill wore less than the envelopes they carried. A butcher in the profession's most abbreviated apron presided at his chopping block, trussing up the fresh meats and chickens just arrived on the hydrofoil from Le Lavandou, eight miles away on the mainland. Bronzed housewives moved with sylph-like grace among the vegetable stalls, stopping occasionally to chat unashamed with the village elders who sat in puddles of sweat at the sidewalk cafes sipping their coffees. At nightfall the cafes would become popular boites, where as local wits tell every visitor, people dance cheek to cheek from head to toe.

Total freedom took over at the village limits. On the ledges and on the beaches, le nu integral (starkers) was the uniform of the day. Nudists spying a prying camera bellowed imprecations from every nook and cranny, pelted the miscreant with pebbles and serenaded him with raucous blasts from every boat in the anchorage.

Most of the six-mile-long half-mile-wide island is fenced in and off limits to the public, but nudism has nothing to do with it. The nudist society occupies only the rocky southwest tip of the island; the rest is a French military reservation for electronics and communications research.

IDEAL GIFTS — Harold Bennett Office Supply, 1819 Twenty-fifth Street, has some ideal gift items, including this Smith-Corona Electra 220 portable typewriter, held by Marta Walton, a distributive education student at Bennett's. You can depend on prompt and courteous service at Bennett's.

Mr. K Buried Without Ado

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev, who led the Soviet Union for a dozen years with vigor and personal flair, was buried today without public display or ceremony.

The former Soviet premier and Communist party chief was given a private farewell in the mourning hall at the hospital where he died Saturday of a heart attack at age 77.

His coffin was then transported to Moscow's Novodevichy Cemetery and lowered into the grave under a gray autumn sky. A rain shower stopped just before the funeral procession reached the cemetery.

Shortly before the burial, news of Khrushchev's death finally reached the Soviet public through brief radio reports and a short announcement in Pravda. The Communist party newspaper, the only paper published Monday mornings, carried the death notice in the lower righthand corner of its front page.

About 150 mourners, headed by Khrushchev's widow, Nine Petrovna, gathered for the final respects to him in the red brick hall on the hospital grounds. Western correspondents were admitted to the short ceremony which contained no eulogies or speeches.

A small band played a funeral dirge as mourners filed into the room where Khrushchev lay in his coffin, the upper half open to show his head and shoulders.

The room was large enough to hold only about 100 of the mourners and the remainder overflowed into the corridor outside.

Mrs. Khrushchev, wearing a dark gray coat and a black lace scarf on her head, had a soft, tender expression on her face, but betrayed no open emotion.

She was accompanied by her son, Sergie, her daughter Rada and son-in-law Alexei Adzhubei, and Julia, Khrushchev's daughter by a former marriage.

EASY TO APPLY — The housewife needs only to apply Johnston's No-Roach where roaches are seen. The roaches themselves take care of the rest by picking up the invisible coating and carry it to their nests.

Look-A-Like Is Surrounded

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — James J. McMann of North Providence, drove his son to Boston University Saturday night.

On his way home, McMann, 42, pulled into a Pawtucket parking lot and suddenly found himself surrounded by 26 police cars.

McMann is a lookalike for Stephen M. McDonough, a 23-year-old fugitive wanted for murder, robbery and the shooting of a Massachusetts State policeman.

McMann had been spotted by a motorist in Boston who gave a description of the car to police.

McMann, stopped 40 minutes later, was handcuffed and taken to Providence police headquarters where he was photographed and fingerprinted. He was released moments later, when the prints were compared.

"I wasn't scared," McMann said. "I knew who I was."

Farm Safety Ruling Will Be Challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Republican congressman plans to challenge the Nixon administration's interpretation of new health-and-safety labor standards by seeking a record-keeping exemption for farmers hiring no more than three workers.

Under the Occupational Safety and Health Act passed by Congress last year, all employers are required to keep records of work-related injuries and illnesses.

Rep. Keith Sebelius of Kansas says he soon will introduce a bill exempting family-type farmers who employ three or fewer fulltime workers.

Government sources claim such a rule would exempt 80 to 90 per cent of the farmers. Labor Department officials say must abide by the record-keeping rules.

Muskie Relaxes

KENNEBUNK BEACH, Maine (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie relaxed at his vacation retreat here today after spending a weekend as host to about 50 major financial backers and political allies.

The gathering in the adjacent oceanside resort village of Kennebunkport was billed as a gesture of gratitude for campaign contributions rather than as a fund raising event.

"These people were there when the senator needed help and this was a way of saying thank you," said Richard H. Stewart, Muskie's press secretary.

Angeli To Be Buried In Paris

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Pier Angeli will be buried in Paris.

A Requiem Mass will be celebrated for her Tuesday morning at the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Miss Angeli, 39, formerly married to singer Vic Damone, was found dead Friday by a friend who shared her apartment.

Coroner Thomas Noguchi said one of the drugs believed responsible for the actress' death "has been identified as a barbiturate" and ordered further tests.

Miss Angeli's four-year marriage to Damone ended in divorce in 1959, and the two fought a bitter custody battle over their son Perry, now 15. She returned to Italy and in 1962 married singer-composer Armando Trovajoli. They had one son, Andrew, now 7, before their marriage ended in divorce.

No-Roach Goes To The Source Of Infestation

How clean you keep the kitchen doesn't matter...once cockroaches have a foothold, it just seems that nothing helps. No matter how hard a housewife scrubs, no matter what kind of soap she uses, no matter what precautions she takes with food or with garbage....once cockroaches rear their ugly heads, there seems to be no solution. Note the word "seems."

Actually, there is a solution. You see, keeping the kitchen clean isn't all there is to eliminating a cockroach problem. You have to go to the source: the nests. That's why Johnston's No-Roach is so remarkably effective. No-Roach goes to work in the nests, stopping much of the problem before it even starts. The housewife merely applies No-Roach in the places where cockroaches are seen. The roaches take care of the rest. Once applied, No-Roach is an invisible, odorless coating, picked up on the feet of any insect that crawl across it. These insects then carry deadly No-Roach back to the unborn eggs, and thus continues its effectiveness. Finally, a clean kitchen can mean something you've always wanted it to mean: a place the family can assemble...a place where neighbors can sit and drink coffee.....a place that's as quiet with the lights out as with them on.

To keep ants out of the house, brush No-Roach across window and door sills. Ants will not cross the coating. Use No-Roach with confidence. Get No-Roach with brush or squirt applicator...or both. Use it just once and you'll never be without it again. Johnston's No-Roach is available at:

Furr's, Piggly Wiggly, B & B, Safeway, Everybody's, Rainbow and all grocery stores.

Russia Beginning Stop China Drive

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Soviet diplomacy seems far from sure where it's going, but in a hurry to get there.

Top leaders and diplomats are traveling in what begins to look like a frantic "stop China" drive.

In particular the plan of Premier Alexei Kosygin to visit Canada seems part of an effort to get in Soviet licks before President Nixon goes to Peking.

The Russians are in a tough spot with regard to China. Moscow purports to speak for the Communist world. For 22 years Moscow has raised indignant protest against exclusion of Red China from the United Nations. Now Peking seems about to get into the world organization and the Russians can do nothing openly but support it.

In any case, the Russians have prepared a long bill of particulars available for anybody's use. It charges:

—That Red China is against world peace. Moscow points to China's rejection of Soviet proposals for conferences on disarmament and nuclear weapons. It's alleged that China propagandizes for war at home, opposes collective security in Europe and Asia, encourages "military psychosis" in Albania and tries to create tension in Southeast Europe.

—That Red China pursues a deliberate policy of hostility to the U.S.S.R. To support this, there is the stalemate in talks about the border areas where shooting erupted in 1969. Moscow speaks of "constant hostile propaganda against our party and country" and "subversive activities" against other Communist-ruled nations.

—That Peking is a menace to small countries of "the third world."

The Soviet offensive has a look of emergency improvising, some thing elected because it seemed better than doing nothing. But it could be to Moscow's profit.

For one thing, it is palpably aimed at sowing widespread suspicion of Red China's intentions in the United Nations. For another, the policy might lead to something like a bold bid for a Soviet-American summit meeting. Such a bid in advance of the Nixon trip might be difficult to handle.
