President embarks on six-nation trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, embarking today on an aerial odyssey to six nations on two continents, says the delay in enacting a national energy program will hang over his travels like a cloud.

And shortly before leaving today, the president said: "We will be reaffirming our dedication to peace and our support of justice and human rights."

The president left Andrews Air Force Base at 7:57 a.m. EST for Poland, more than eight hours away.

See map Page 2A; related story, 7A

Carter said in a television interview Wednesday night that "energy will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip," because at every stop "what our nation does about energy will be a prime question."

Describing the unfinished business of an energy policy as "that cloud" which will determine "the leadership qualities of our nation," Carter said he hoped his trip somehow would help spur Congress and the American people to action.

Carter cited energy as a thread running through his itinerary when an interviewer suggested his travels to Poland, Iran, India, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium lack a theme.

Rejecting this notion, Carter described the trip, postponed once because of the energy debate and subsequently scaled down in scope, as carefully planned.

"Every stop will be productive for us," the president predicted.

Talking specifically about Poland, Carter said that although it has a Communist government and close ties with the Soviet Union, it also maintains friendly relations with the United States and engages in considerable trade with the West.

He said the Polish government is "relatively willing to give people their religious freedom and other freedoms," a factor weighed in scheduling a visit by a president who is known throughout the world for espousing the cause of human rights.

Besides conferring in Warsaw with leader Edward Gierek and visiting monuments to Polish resistance to Nazi forces during World War II, Carter will hold an unusual news conference in Warsaw Friday for American and Polish reporters. To be broadcast live in the United States, it will be the first formal news conference ever held by an American president in a Communist country.

Carter choice to head Fed receives praise

By JACK EGAN
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — G. William Miller, President Carter's surprise choice to head the Federal Reserve Board, may not have the economic and financial background normally associated with the rarified post of central banker. But it is not the first time he has stepped up to an unlikely challenge. That's how he got his job as head of Textron, Inc., the original conglomerate.

Born in Oklahoma, he was educated at the Coast Guard Academy where he received a degree in marine engineering. At the University of California at Berkeley, he got a law degree. Miller, as a fledgling attorney with the Wall Street firm of Cravath, Swaine & Moore, was assigned to help Textron founder Royal Little make an acquisition.

Impressed by his ability, Little asked Miller in 1956 to join Textron for a one-year trial period with the understanding that if he made it, he would make it big. Four years later, at 35, Miller became president of the company which last year had sales of $2.6 billion.

In the intervening years Miller, 53, has gained a reputation for acumen and public service within the business community where he is well known and well liked. Outside of the councils of big business, however, Miller is largely unknown.

The news of his appointment to a job that is regarded by some as second in power only to that of the president, was greeted by businessmen and others who know him with high praise and predictions that he will prove a tonic for business confidence.

"I think the selection is super," commented Bank of America chairman A.W. Clausen, who said it was "welcome news to the business community I'm sure." National Association of Manufacturers President Larry Heath said it was "one of the finest appointments President Carter has made" and he called Miller "one of our nation's truly competent business executives."

G. William Miller

House Banking Committee chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., was also enthusiastic. "He sounds great," said Reuss, adding "his record on making jobs is excellent, and I'd like to see our monetary policy focus not just on a stable dollar but on stable jobs."

Others less familiar with him were more cautious, but also basically positive.

"I think we're dealing with a man not prominent in the monetary field, so there's nothing to get your teeth into," said John H. Perkins, president of Continental Illinois Bank and president-elect of the American Bankers Association. He noted that Miller has a reputation as "a strong leader" in the business fraternity and predicted "he's going to try to do a good job."

Public transportation needed here, study says

A recently completed analysis of Midland's transportation needs by a team of General Motors experts has concluded that Midland does need a public transportation system, John Ingram, chairman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Transportation Task Force, said Wednesday.

The study team concluded that transportation needs existed for social agencies, in the downtown business district, at the Midland Regional Air Terminal and in the Air Park area, Ingram said during a Midland Chamber of Commerce board of directors meeting Wednesday.

A proposal to meet those transportation needs would be ready at the first part of the year, Ingram said.

Also at the meeting, housing committee chairman Ron Schwisow told the board that during the first part of next year groundbreaking will take place for a three-bedroom home that will sell for slightly over $20,000.

The home is partially prefabricated and is designed as a test model to gauge public acceptance of such structures, Schwisow said. It will be the first new house in many years to be constructed east of Big Spring Street, Schwisow said.

The reason for the location, Schwisow said, was that lots in other locations, such as northwest Midland, frequently cost $9,000 or more. East of Big Spring Street, however, there are numerous lots available at a much cheaper prices, he explained.

This housing project "is not a panacea, but a step in the right direction" toward solving Midland's housing needs for homes in the $20,000 to $30,000 range, Schwisow said.

He said that the overall housing situation in Midland was good. He said there was a surplus of between 200 and 300 houses in Midland this year and 400 new apartment units have been opened or will open shortly.

Fred Tyler, executive vice president of the chamber, told the board that 800 pecan trees had already been sold as part of a program to beautify Midland. A total of 6,000 pecan trees were purchased for sale Jan. 21 through Jan. 29. The trees can be purchased through the Midland Chamber of Commerce for $8.

Eight new members Wednesday were named to the chamber's board of directors for 1978. They are Boley Embrey, Bill Malone, Tom Rutland, Tevis Herd, Ed Hagan, Larry Bell, Johnny Warren and Bill Steele.

PLO, Jordan reject Israeli peace plan

By The Associated Press

Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization and Jordan today rejected the peace plan offered by Israel and backed by President Carter.

Iraq was reported ready to join hardline Arab opposition to Israeli-Egyptian peace talks, already strained by tough stands taken in Cairo and Jerusalem.

Israel Radio said a bomb killed two men and wounded two near a market in Netanya, north of Tel Aviv, in an apparent Arab guerrilla campaign to wreck the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Palestinian guerrillas of the Marxist Popular Democratic Front in Beiruit claimed responsibility for the blast, and claimed 10 Israelis were killed or wounded in the explosion.

"No peace can be established in the Middle East without a PLO-governed independent Palestinian state," PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labady said in the Lebanese capital.

He was commenting on Carter's statement in a television interview Wednesday that it was not in the interest of permanent peace for a "radical" state to be created in the Middle East.

Carter reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity," but said it must be tied to surrounding countries. He firmly rejected the idea

Bomb rocks U.S. facility

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A bomb exploded at a U.S. cultural center in Tehran Wednesday night, injuring a doorman and causing heavy damage to parts of the building. A telephone caller told The Associated Press the bomb was the first of several promised by Marxists to protest the visit of President Carter starting Saturday.

The building hit by the blast is the Iran-American Academic Center, owned by the U.S. Embassy and used by 4,000-5,000 students to prepare themselves for university training in the United States.

A caller who identified himself as an Islamic Marxist told The Associated Press the explosion was intended to "express hatred for the U.S. president and the Americans."

Speakers tell what Lions means

It wasn't even time to sing "Auld Lang Syne." And maybe the time to pay tribute to the good old days is everyday, and not just on the eve of the new year to come.

At any rate, three Lions International loyalists Wednesday paid tribute to Lionism as if they were making resolutions.

The three Lions, all past district governors, spoke on "What Lionism Has Meant To Me" to about 80 fellow "roarers" of the Midland Downtown Lions Club. They were prodded on by Lion Tamer Larry Hunnicutt, who lined up their "testimonials."

Inspirationally speaking were Roy Minear, investor; Carl Hyde, U. S. Postal Service executive, and Duke Jimerson, an insurance agent.

To Minear, Lionism means the "opportunity to serve, the opportunity to share and, above all, the opportunity to learn."

Lionism, he said, gives Lions all around the world the opportunity to tithe of their time, talent and means in helping "those less fortunate than ourselves."

He advocated "try-ism."

"There's no stigma attached in the failure to meet a goal," Minear said. "The only stigma would be in the failure to try."

Hyde said Lionism to him means the opportunity to thank "God Almighty for the space I have occupied" on this earth.

He also mentioned the Lions' worldwide project of helping the handicapped, the blind and the needy.

ROUSTIN' ABOUT with Ed Todd

And, "in a selfish way," he said, Lionism has given him the opportunity to be associated with people he otherwise wouldn't have known. Too, Lionism has afforded him leadership training which, among other areas, has paid off in his line of work.

"It (Lionism) has given me more than I can ever repay," Hyde said.

"Above all," he said, Lionism has afforded him the opportunity "to have fellowship with some of the finest people on earth."

Jimerson came to the fore to give Lionism a boost forward.

"Most important," he said, "is

Midland gets a little rain; forecaster says no more

Rain finally came to Midland Wednesday — but only a little of it, and there's no rain in Friday's forecast.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported that .27 inch rain fell Wednesday. Approximately .3 inch rain was reported on the west and south sides of Midland, but only about .2 inch in the Greenwood area.

The official .27 inch represents the only measurable rainfall this month and brings the total for the year to 6.84 inches.

The weatherman predicts partly cloudy skies through Friday, with a low tonight in the mid-30s and a high Friday in the mid-60s. Winds are expected to be from the west and southwest at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The high Wednesday was 49 degrees, and the low this morning was 31 degrees.

Traces of rain Wednesday and Wednesday night were reported in Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Rankin and Big Lake. About .2 inch of rain fell in Big Spring and .25 inch in Garden City.

Clear skies were reported this morning in Stanton, Lamesa, Big Spring, Crane and Garden City. But fog was reported in Big Lake and partly cloudy skies were noted in Andrews and Rankin.

WEATHER

Partly cloudy through Friday. High Friday in the mid-60s. Complete details on Page 2A.

Nominations being sought for award

Nominations are being sought from churches, businesses, clubs, organizations and individuals to determine who will be Midland's outstanding young man of the year.

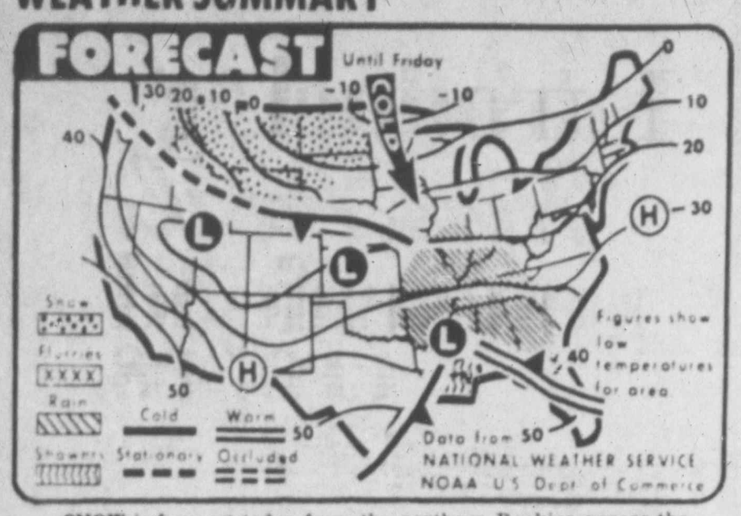

The search is being conducted by the 1977 Distinguished Service Award Committee of the Midland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The award is presented to the young man — age 21 to 35 — deemed to have contributed most to the community during the year, according to Hill Glover and Mark Langston, Jaycee project co-chairmen.

Nomination blanks are available at the Jaycee office at 682-9952, by calling Glover at 683-6211 or Langston at 697-4348 or may be picked up at the Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than midnight Jan. 8 and mailed to the Midland Jaycees, Box 135, Midland.

WEATHER SUMMARY

SNOW is forecast today from the northern Rockies across the northern Plains. The National Weather Service also predicts rain and showers in south central portions of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Search of grain tower continues

By B.F. KELLUM

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Flood lights combined with a cold, misting rain early today to cast shadows into gaping holes in a huge grain storage tower as men below dug through the rubble for more bodies.

Rescue workers say at least 15 persons died in the blast at the Farmer's Export Co. grain elevator Tuesday night. The explosion, heard by some persons 70 miles away, injured at least 22 others.

Capt. E.E. Burke of the Galveston County sheriff's office said late Wednesday at least three persons were believed to be still missing.

Rescue operations were hampered by a fire that kept reappearing atop the burned-out tower. It was still smoldering late Wednesday but firemen said the rain and high humidity all but nullified the threat of a second explosion in the elevator or the 40 grain silos nearby.

Burke said searchers believe the missing persons have been located beneath a demolished freight car that was parked on a railroad siding. The car was directly in the path of the blast and was still buried beneath tons of rubble late Wednesday night.

By late Wednesday, the county morgue had reached capacity and some of the bodies were moved to John Sealy Hospital.

Galveston Fire Marshal A. D. Carroll said he hopes to determine today what caused the explosion.

"It was definitely accidental," said Carroll, adding that two possible causes are being considered. He said a spark from a nearby switch engine may have ignited the highly volatile grain dust, or a switch in the top of the stricken elevator might have short-circuited.

A crew of 32 and eight federal grain inspectors were believed to be working at the elevator when the blast occurred. Company officials refused to estimate damage costs at the $26 million facility.

The area surrounding the elevator resembled a bombed-out battlefield. Sheets of ripped metal were strewn for hundreds of yards. A diesel engine leaking fuel lay in a huge hole.

The Yugoslavian ship, Sutjeska, which was loading wheat when the elevator blew up, and another vessel at an adjacent pier were moved away from the wharves after debris rained down on their decks. The Sutjeska sustained minor damage when it was moved before a loading hose could be disconnected. Forty-five feet of railing were ripped from the deck.

Farmer's Export Co. brought in construction crews, bulldozers and cranes that were utilized throughout the day in cleanup operations, which are expected to last for several days.

Weary searchers, many of whom had been at their grim task for 26 hours by Wednesday afternoon, kept one eye out for falling debris from the 13-story structure as they dug under and around twisted steel beams and car-sized chunks of concrete.

The north end of this island resort town remained off limits to everyone except construction crews and authorities.

Peace proposal rejected

of Palestinian statehood.

In Amman, the Jordanian government rejected the plan Begin detailed Wednesday before the Israeli parliament.

Jordan "completely rejects . . . such a settlement calling for the surrender of Arab territories to Israel, thus rewarding aggression and putting an end to Palestinian and Arab rights," the government said in a statement issued after the cabinet studied the Begin proposal.

The Beirut newspaper As Safir said Iraq has offered to join the PLO, Syria and other hardline Arab opponents of the Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative in a military confrontation pact against Israel.

The latest developments came after Begin and Sadat detailed tough bargaining positions, indicating difficult Mideast negotiations ahead.

During an 11½-hour debate Wednesday in the Israeli Knesset or parliament, Begin spelled out publicly for the first time the peace plan he presented to Sadat last weekend at their Christmas summit in Ismailia.

Sadat, speaking at a Cairo news conference with visiting West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, restated his opposition to key elements of the Begin plan and underlined Arab demands for self-determination for the Palestinians and the return of East Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty.

Clerk seeks re-election

Midland County District Clerk Madge Wallis announced today that she will seek re-election in 1978 to that office.

She said she filed today for a place on the ballot in the Democratic primary.

Mrs. Wallis began her first four-year term as district clerk in 1975 after serving as deputy clerk five years.

"I am seeking a second elective term on the basis of my record as your district clerk. With the creation of two additional district courts, our workload has more than doubled. My experience and knowledge of the office and its duties have made it possible for us to handle this expansion efficiently and well," Mrs. Wallis said.

She said the personnel in the clerk's office perform many diverse tasks and functions, and that she will continue to provide "courteous and capable service."

Second job fair slated

The second job fair will be held in the Midland-Odessa area on Jan. 21.

Approximately 430 letters have been mailed to employers in the area inviting them to take part in the fair, Joe Kloesel, chairman of the Midland Area Sales Team, said at the Midland Chamber of Commerce board of directors meeting Wednesday.

Firms wishing to participate in the job fair are invited to send a representative to an orientation meeting at 10 a.m. on Jan. 5 in the conference room of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Among the job fair preliminary plans is to conduct advertising outside the state to attract new workers into the Midland-Odessa labor market.

Asbestos firms agree to settle with families

CLEVELAND (AP) — The families of 26 insulation installers who died or became ill because of asbestos inhalation will share in a $1,840,000 settlement reached Wednesday with 17 corporations.

The agreement in the court of U.S. District Judge John M. Manos was reached with such firms as Johns Manville Products Corp., GAF Corp., OwensCorning Fiberglas Corp., Celotex Corp., Raybestos Manhattan Corp. and Flintkote Corp.

Robert E. Sweeney, an attorney for the plaintiffs, charged in the 26 suits filed since 1972 that the corporations failed to properly protect workers from asbestos inhalation and exposure, which he said causes lung cancer, abdominal cancer and rectal cancer to workers in the construction trades.

Asbestos, which is mined and crushed, is widely used as a binder and insulator for many products.

Sixteen of the 26 cases involved the death of the workers, Sweeney said. From 150 to 200 similar cases have been filed throughout the country, he added.

Manos had conducted pretrial hearings for more than 1½ years and the case was to go to trial next month. Sweeney said this was the first time that a federal judge has consolidated cases involving product liability.

The amount that each company will have to pay each worker or his family has yet to be worked out, Sweeney said.

where are we going from here."

Jimerson described Lions International as the "world's largest . . . service organization." Jimerson has a reputation for bringing new members into the fold.

Jimerson said that "Happiness is knowing . . . (that) a Lion will do more with a rusty wrench" than your average man on the street could do with a full set of tools.

Before the three Lions gave their brief talks, presiding Lion George Weis presented veteran Lion Melvin Little with a plaque "in sincere appreciation" for his years of loyalty and devotion to Lionism.

Little, 63, is retiring next month as the Midland Fire Department chief, a position he has held since 1947.

"I appreciate it more than you'll know," Little said of the award.

In addition, the Lions cited Midland fireman Billy Rex Sparks, 37, as firefighter of the last quarter of 1977. For the past two years, the Lions had been singling out the firefighter of the month.

The reasoning in the cutback, it seems, was that the less frequently the citations come the more prestige they will take on.

Midlander hospitalized

James Robert Leeton, 58, was admitted to Midland Memorial Hospital this morning with a fractured left arm and right ankle following a car-pedestrian accident at about 8 a.m. today, a hospital spokesman said. Leeton was listed in satisfactory condition.

According to police, Longio Perales of the 1500 block of South Weatherford Street was driving south in the 100 block of North Big Spring Street when his car struck Leeton. Leeton apparently was trying to cross Big Spring Street at the time of the accident, officers said.

Stature change felt at conference

By ROBERT B. CULLEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — John White looked at the crowd of reporters who had come to his press conference Wednesday at the Department of Agriculture. "Last week, when I announced the cotton set-asides for next year, there were only four or five of you," he grinned.

Since last week's cotton announcement, however, White's stature has changed. President Carter tapped him Wednesday to succeed Kenneth Curtis as chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

White, a long-time Texas agriculture commissioner and party stalwart who is now deputy secretary of agriculture, is expected to win quick approval by the full committee at a meeting next month.

Then he will take over a post that Curtis, former governor of Maine, quit after a year's service, saying it was a "lousy job." As chairman serving under an incumbent president, White agreed, his job is to be responsive to the president's political needs.

Asked if it amounted to being an "errand boy," White smiled. "If that's true, then I'll be a high-class errand boy."

He did say he has been promised direct access to the president and freedom to hire and fire staff at the DNC, which has become home for a number of ex-Carter campaign aides who did not get jobs within the administration.

Texans who have known White said Wednesday that his major political credentials are an impeccable record of party loyalty and an ability to get along with the disparate groups in the Democratic Party.

White, 58, was elected commissioner of agriculture in 1950 and re-elected 13 times. His first effort at re-election tested his Democratic loyalty.

In that year, 1952, Texas Gov. Allen Shivers led the state's Democrats into Dwight D. Eisenhower's Republican camp. The legislature changed the law to allow Shivers and his cohorts to run as both Democrats and Republicans in the primary.

White was the only statewide official to stick with Adlai Stevenson and the Democratic Party.

He demonstrated his loyalty again in 1972, when he agreed to be Texas co-chairman of the doomed campaign of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern.

He also managed to maintain good relations with more conservative Texas Democrats, like Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and former DNC chairman Robert Strauss, who recommended him to Carter.

His job as agriculture commissioner never forced him to define himself ideologically, and he claimed the middle ground when asked about his stance Wednesday. "I like to think of myself as sensible, ... a moderate," he said.

"He's the ideal man. I can work enthusiastically behind him. So can business types," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, a liberal.

White did not become a Carter loyalist until after the Texas primary in 1976. Prior to that, he supported Bentsen's aborted candidacy. But he left no doubt about where he will stand in 1980.

"I'll support the president if he wishes to ask for another term," he said.

CIA to replace official who aided in dismissals

By BILL RICHARDS
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Two months after touching off the CIA's tumultuous reorganization effort with a curtly worded dismissal notice to 212 senior members of the intelligence agency's clandestine operations branch the CIA's top operations official has been notified that he is also being replaced.

A CIA spokesman confirmed Wednesday that William W. Wells, the CIA's deputy director for operations, will retire at the end of December. Knowledgeable sources said both Wells and his top deputy, Theodore Shackley, were dismissed from their operations posts shortly before Christmas after a falling out with CIA Director Stansfield Turner.

Turner announced Wells' retirement at a meeting Tuesday of senior CIA officials at headquarters in Langley, Va. The CIA's spokesman denied that Shackley had been fired by Turner. "As far as I know he's staying but we don't yet know in what capacity," the spokesman said.

The removal of the two senior operations officials was seen by some top CIA officials as part of Turner's announced top-to-bottom housecleaning of the clandestine arm and an attempt to break up remnants of the "old boy" network of senior operations agents in favor of more science and technologically oriented intelligence gathering.

Turner has formally announced that he plans to cut the operations directorate, which has been sharply criticized in recent years for its covert foreign activities, by more than 800 persons including many of the directorate's most senior officials.

The CIA's spokesman said Wells will be replaced by John N. McMahon, the current acting deputy to Turner for intelligence. McMahon is a 26-year CIA veteran whose specialty in the past has been in the area of science and technology.

Wells and Shackley generally were considered two of the CIA's top clandestine operators. Wells was a station chief for the intelligence agency in Tokyo and Hong Kong and gained the nickname "Wild Willy" among some of his colleagues. He also headed the CIA's European operations division. Shackley directed the CIA's secret war in Laos and actively was involved in CIA operations during the Cuban missile crisis and in Berlin.

Wells' dismissal is particularly ironic since he signed the controversial two-sentence memo sent Oct. 31 to senior operations officials notifying them of their firing.

His memo said: "This is to inform you of my intent to recommend to the Director of Personnel your separation in order to achieve the reduction in Operations Directorate strength ordered by the DCI (Director of Central Intelligence). I or my designee will first review your case with the Director of Personnel or his designee."

A number of those who received the hand-delivered memos angrily have broken the CIA's traditional cloak of silence and complained — although anonymously — about the old tone of the dismissal.

Several of those who received the notes said Wednesday that it is possible Wells may have drawn them up and sent them out without first clearing their tone and language with Turner.

One high-ranking CIA official on the dismissal list said "Turner went to Harvard Business School. He knows that he's the one who's responsible for those memos no matter who actually sent them out."

Under the provisions of the 1947 National Security Act Turner, as CIA Director, has the authority to fire anyone on the CIA payroll without review or appeal.

Some CIA officials, who asked not to be identified, said they were still unclear as to whether the shift at the top of the operations branch signified a full scale downgrading of its traditional cloak-and-dagger method of intelligence gathering.

"Some people are going to read this as bring an outsider into the operations directorate when there are people already there who were capable of taking the job," said a veteran CIA clandestine official.

On the other hand, the CIA official and others in the intelligence agency noted that so much bitterness had been raised over Wells' dismissal memos that his effectiveness may have been wiped out as operations director.

Hot-tempered chairman replaced by governor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After leaving the appointment in suspense for almost a year, Gov. Dolph Briscoe has decided to remove hot-tempered Rex Cauble from the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

Cauble currently serves as chairman of the commission — one of whose members he once slugged during a public session of the body.

In Cauble's place, Briscoe appointed James D. Abrams, an El Paso banker and contractor who served six years on the Texas Air Control Board, regulating pollution, not airplanes.

The governor reappointed C. T. Matthew of Yoakum to a new term on the commission, which is embroiled almost continually in controversy over airline certificates and routes.

Both Abrams' and Matthew's terms extend to Dec. 31, 1982.

Cauble, a Denton businessman and big political contributor, has been commission chairman since the fall of 1971. He was re-elected this fall — even though his term had lapsed. Commission members elect their chairman.

Briscoe had sat on the appointments for nearly a year. Both Cauble's and Matthew's terms expired Dec. 31, 1976.

Former Gov. John Connally first appointed Cauble to the commission in June 1967, and Cauble was named to another term by former Gov. Preston Smith.

Cauble has taken part in nearly all major decisions of the agency but probably gained his greatest notice in March 1976 when he grew angry at commission member Jack McCreary of Austin and punched him in the jaw.

The blow was struck at a public meeting of the commission after McCreary voted against a resolution that said individual members should stop issuing orders to the agency staff.

McCreary did not return the punch, saying, "I won't hit a man his age."

He did, however, call Cauble "a sorry chairman and a disgrace to the commission."

Abrams, the new commission member, is president of J. D. Abrams, Inc., a construction firm, and a director of both El Paso National Bank and Border City Bank.

Matthew is president of the Yoakum Federal Savings and Loan Association as well as a rancher.

DA to call grand jury

ODESSA — Ector County District Attorney John Green announced Wednesday that he will call a special session next week of the grand jury to investigate alleged patient abuse at Western Hills Manor Nursing Home.

The facility was decertified last week after the Departnent of Health alleged continuing patient care and treatment deficiencies.

The department commissioner sent the district attorney a four-page memorandum which reported several complaints involving negligent care and abusive treatment of patients.

A spokesman for the health department said the allegations are of a serious nature and of such magnitude that they should be brought to the district attorney's attention.

A change in ownership of the nursing home entitled the facility to another inspection. The results of that inspection are expected to be made public early next month.

Green said he plans to have the grand jury question the current management of the facility, past and present employees, patients and their relatives, and the owners of the nursing home, Heritage Care Center of Dallas.

Smallpox vaccination program terminated

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The State Health Department says it will go out of the smallpox vaccine business Jan. 1 after distributing 7.9 million doses since it began production in 1938.

Health commissioner Dr. Fratis L. Duff said smallpox has been confined to infrequent outbreaks in parts of Ethiopia and Somalia.

He added that, worldwide efforts to eradicate the disease make "very small" the threat of an imported epidemic.

Smallpox vaccination is no longer mandatory in most nations. Texas eliminated it six years ago from the list of required immunizations for school children.

Duff said that with smallpox almost eradicated, the immunization itself is riskier than the disease.

Metro Aides work to keep Manila streets spotless

By ROMMEL CORRO

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The street cleaners called Metro Manila Aides inspired a song about Manila as a beautiful city of pretty girls.

Classified Advertising
Dial 682-6222

The aides' white sneakers, blue denim trousers, volcano-shaped red palm leaf hats and, most of all, long-sleeved yellow T-shirts with "Metro Manila Aides" in bold, black letters across the front, have appeared in movies and television shows.

They have become a standard fixture of Manila's scenery, a uniquely Filipino manifestation of President Ferdinand E. Marcos' martial law regime.

Begun as a public relations gimmick by Marcos' wife Imelda, the metropolitan governor, the aides in little more than a year have converted Manila from one of Asia's dirtiest cities to one of its cleanest.

They seem everywhere in the metro area's 280 square miles, sweeping up after the seven million residents, cutting grass, painting street curbs, collecting garbage.

"The job doesn't pay well. Just enough to live on," said Jose Mendoza, 39, as he pounced upon a crumpled cigarette pack.

Mendoza turned to the dried leaves, cigarette butts and candy wrappers on the sidewalks, oblivious to the passing pedestrians, and continued:

"My needs are simple: a small, rented room for my wife and one kid. Breakfast for me is a cup of coffee and two pieces of hot pan de sal (rolls); I have plateful of rice and dried fish for lunch; and another plateful of rice and pansit (noodles) are my dinner. I can't afford to buy meat these days."

The refuse and environmental sanitation division of the Metro Manila Commission said there were 6,884 Metro Manila Aides working three shifts a day in four cities and 13 municipalities of the metropolitan area.

The commission said aides working on a daily basis received 10 pesos or $1.33 per day, the minimum wage decreed by law. Regular employees in the yellow shirts earn 12 to 14 pesos daly, or $1.60 to $1.86.

Metro Manila Aides cost the city about $12,000 a day in basic wages.

The aide was an obscure street figure until July 1976 when Mrs. Marcos mobilized hundreds of them as part of a cleanup drive to prepare for the October 1976 Manila meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank.

When she set out on her beautification campaign, Mrs. Marcos said she wanted to make Manila "an indivisible city we shall be proud to call the crown of our civilization."

Planning for Carter tour drains capital of able specialists

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's six-nation tour has put such a strain on his own small staff of advance planners that the White House has borrowed helpers from throughout government, and even recruited a Republican refugee.

In this city filled with perennial candidates, there is no numerical shortage of specialists who go forth in advance of their bosses to make detailed travel preparations.

There may be a shortage of highly qualified and effective specialists, however.

That's one reason Eric Rosenberger, who once served as chief press advance man for former Presidents Nixon and Ford, is in France preparing for Carter's visit next week to the World War II beaches of Normandy.

Rosenberger, who quit the Ford team before last year's campaign, is regarded by many as one of the best advance men around. Since he never has appeared to be a dedicated partisan and came highly recommended, the Carterites recruited him for temporary duty.

Carter's regular three-member advance team, headed by Ellis Woodward, obviously could not do all the minutelydetailed planning necessary for stops in six countries on two continents. So Rosenberger and at least a dozen others were dispatched to cities along Carter's route.

One recruit is Robert Neuman, press secretary to Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, one of Carter's most determined opponents for the 1976 Democratic nomination. He was sent to Poland.

Another is Mike Pohl, an aide to Mayor Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, who is in India.

Dennis Oakes, a lawyer in private practice here, was assigned to Iran. He formerly did advance work for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.

Frances Lewine, veteran White House reporter now with the Department of Transportation, is with Pohl in India.

The White House also has temporarily reduced the ranks of the unemployed by one, hiring Dan Dwyer, a campaign advance man for Carter who has been job hunting.

Other recruits: Griff Ellison from the Agency for International Development, Carroll Ann Rambo from the Democratic National Committee, John Thorne from the Customs Bureau, Greg Andrews from the Transportation Department, Paul Costello from ACTION, Mike McShane from the Department of Energy and Mary Massorini and Mary Hanley from the State Department.

Defense essential

From Brussels comes word that European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are leaning toward an affirmative decision on deployment of the so-called neutron bomb. The problem, however, is to get past political and diplomatic hurdles that may arise if they propose to arm tactical missiles with a warhead being denounced as "inhumane."

Decisions dictated by military considerations are not always in harmony with the prevailing political mood within NATO countries or with the drift in relations among the 15 members of the alliance. That problem has plagued NATO throughout its history, and it was evident at the semi-annual meeting of defense ministers in Brussels.

President Carter has sensed resistance to proceeding with manufacture of the "enhanced radiation weapon" dubbed the neutron bomb, which would be more deadly to an advancing enemy force but less destructive to the surrounding countryside than tactical nuclear weapons already deployed by NATO. He has left the decision on deployment to the Europeans. The only foreseeable use for the weapon would be to stall an invasion of Western Europe by the Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact forces.

Gen. H. F. Zeiner-Gunderson, the Norwegian who currently heads the NATO military committee, said the case for the neutron bomb is hardly arguable so long as the Warsaw Pact maintains its present superiority of ground forces vis-a-vis NATO. From the standpoint of the generals, then, the issue is closed.

But it is not closed from the diplomatic standpoint, because the Russians are pressuring the United States to abandon the new weapon on grounds it amounts to an escalation of the arms race. By the same token, European military commanders are fearful that diplomacy will rob their defenses of a cruise missile with range enough to be effective as a deterrent against attack from the East. U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown has confirmed that a cruise missile range limitation will be a feature of the strategic arms limitation agreement now being negotiated by the United States and the Soviet Union.

The strength of NATO defenses also is in danger of falling victim to rivalries and political pressures within the alliance. President Carter is having trouble getting European members to increase their defense budgets by three per cent per year, as he urged last spring, unless the United States agrees to buy more military hardware from European manufacturers. To do so, of course, would put Mr. Carter in the position of "exporting" American jobs to Europe.

There is no sign that the Carter administration places any less importance on NATO than any of its predecessors, but events have combined to pose difficult choices for the United States as the nation whose support is essential for the integrity of the alliance. We are carrying the ball for the West in high-level negotiations for arms control at the same time NATO faces a growing disparity between its forces and the strength of the Warsaw Pact on the other side of the Iron Curtain.

It is a time when military strategists who think in terms of tanks, troops and firepower must compete with those whose concern is negotiating strategy or economic strategy. What are the priorities? For NATO the answer is obvious. Its first order of business is to assure that its combined forces can repel an attack quickly under any circumstances. If those military considerations are forced to take a back seat to politics and diplomacy, it will become an alliance relying more on plans and paperwork than troops and weapons, and that is hardly a formula for security.

Why doesn't Congress go along with FOI?

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

Benjamin Shore

WASHINGTON — This has been show-and-tell season for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as reporters pore over previously secret files relating to the John F. Kennedy assassination.

Henry Kissinger has been told by a federal court that 33,000 pages of transcribed telephone conversations conducted while he was a government employee belong to the government, not to him, and might be released to the public.

Retired House Speaker Carl Albert has had some of his congressional papers subpoenaed in connection with the investigation of South Korean influence buying on Capitol Hill.

These three recent cases have major legal differences.

FBI documents always have been subject to the 1966 Freedom of Information (FOI) Act.

Tens of thousands of pages have been released, but few documents have aroused as much curiosity as the Kennedy assassination investigation file.

The Kissinger case was not an FOI issue. It dealt with the question of who owns documents produced by a government employee — high-ranking or low — for his personal use.

And the investigators wanting a look at Albert's files had something better than FOI power. They had subpoena power.

But the three cases taken together would seem to raise an awkward question for Congress: Why doesn't the Freedom of Information Act apply on Capitol Hill?

A number of years ago we put that question to Rep. John Moss of California, the author of the 1966 law that he spent nearly a decade getting passed.

Moss looked shocked by the suggestion. He gestured toward the row of filing cabinets that filled one wall of his congressional office and asked incredulously:

"You mean, let anyone come in here and just rummage through these files?"

Precisely, although the national security and privacy protection written into the FOI Act should apply to congressional files as they do to executive branch files.

Let's start from the premise, stated in the Constitution, that the legislative and executive are equal branches of government. Let's then argue that the public should have equal access to information possessed by each branch. What makes the legislative branch so different?

On that day years ago Moss asked us what kinds of congressional files we might want to see that aren't normally open for public inspection.

We replied that it might be informative to see a congressman's correspondence with a contractor seeking a government contract, for example. Or the congressman's letter to a state official suggesting where the lines should be drawn in the next redistricting. That kind of public business.

The fact is that a great deal of congressional business already is public. Committees issue reports. House and Senate officials report twice annually how much money is spent on individual salaries and office expenses.

The politicians file personal financial statements.

And if you really want to know something that isn't routinely made public, a well-placed question usually suffices. Few politicians enjoy explaining why they're hiding something.

So, then, why doesn't Congress want to be subject to the Freedom of Information Act?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Suzi Park's cooking up a book

By JACK ANDERSON
and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — The threat of a congressional subpoena, used in the past to command the appearance of such diverse figures as crime overlord Frank Costello, Teamsters' boss Jimmy Hoffa and banking tycoon J. P. Morgan, has now figured in a wild goose chase after a collection of exotic Korean recipes.

The threat came from the sanctuary of Leon Jaworski, the former Watergate prosecutor, who is now investigating the Korean payoff scandals for the House Ethics Committee. His chief deputy, Peter White, came across a news snippet that Suzi Park Thomson had a book in the making.

She is the petitely attractive South Korean woman who used to hobnob with former Speaker Carl Albert and other Capitol Hill bigwigs. She has been cross-examined repeatedly behind closed doors by the Jaworski team. Not once during the hours of detailed questioning had she mentioned that she was writing a book.

The alert White hit the telephone and tracked down Suzi's literary agent, Bertha Klausner, in New York City. He demanded that Ms. Klausner supply the committee with the book material Suzi had sent her.

Ms. Klausner would not comment on her conversation with White. But both Suzi and her lawyer, Philip Hirschkop, quoted Ms. Klausner as telling them she had been threatened with a subpoena, which would compel her to turn over the 20-page book summary.

To save Jaworski's men the trouble of serving the subpoena, we are happy to supply them with the highlights of Suzi's manuscript:

The book will reveal Suzi's secret recipes for such Oriental delights as Kim Chee and Cheju Island Pheasant. It will also include the ingredients for a bizarre dessert, which Suzi has named "The Congressman."

The latter is a concoction of liquor, ice cream and chopped nuts, pumped up appropriately with air. Kim Chee consists of cayenne-peppered cabbage. Cheju Island Pheasant offers a chestnut sauce and stuffing.

Speaker Albert used to dote on Suzi's Korean-style spareribs. There will also be instructions on how to fix Peking Goose. If Jaworski's investigators can wait until the book is in final form, they can also discover the secrets of Shabu-Shabu, a sort of Mongolian hotpot.

But perhaps the most befitting dish will be a Korean-style meat mixture of Suzi's own creation. She calls it the House Leadership Stew.

Since the Korean scandals surfaced, Ms. Thomson has been depicted as a sexy spy in the pay of the Korean government, a sort of Dragon Lady intriguing with Korean payoff man Tongsun Park to bribe influential congressmen and other high government officials.

She has sworn that the charges are false and unfair. Sources on the Ethics Committee confide that their evidence is less sensational than the headlines. They can show only that Ms. Thomson was perhaps too trusting of Tongsun Park and too cozy with a few congressmen. They have no evidence that she is guilty of bribery or espionage.

The notoriety, meanwhile, has prevented Suzi from finding a job in Washington. She wrote the cookbook in the hope it would help her start a catering business.

Footnote: Peter White gave us a polite "no comment" about the incident.

KIDS FOR KRUEGER: Rep. Bob Krueger, D-Tex., has been on the receiving end of some astonishing piggy-bank contributions from the offspring of oil-rich families. The money has been deposited quietly in a political war chest, which he expects to use to unseat Sen. John Tower, R-Tex.

Krueger has also made a brash appeal to oil and gas corporations for funds to underwrite his primary campaign. He may have run afoul of federal election laws in both instances, and his campaign manager Gary Mauro is trying to make quick amends.

Federal Election Commission records indicate that Krueger's campaign coffers have been fattened with at least $10,000 in dubious, possibly illegal, contributions from the children of oil executives. The law allows minors to contribute up to $1,000 but only if the funds are controlled exclusively by the youngsters and not derived as a gift.

So we found 13-year-old Joseph Watford tossed $1,000 into the Krueger pot. His oil executive father, George Watford of a Dallas firm called Prairie Producing, claimed his son raised the money by "working and saving over the years" and from gifts bestowed by grandparents. Two other Watford children were good for an additional $2,000.

We asked a college student about her $1,000 Krueger gift, and she confessed total ignorance of her largesse. "Maybe Daddy did it for me," she speculated in confusion. "Daddy" is Frank Crossen of Syntex Construction, another Dallas firm. We were unable to get a comment from Crossen.

Campaign manager Mauro admitted to our reporter Geoff Lindsay he hadn't thought about the election law restrictions but hastily decided to refund any contributions by minors that might be illegal.

Krueger is also backtracking on a telegraphic appeal to oil and gas corporations for contributions that are flatly prohibited. He sent 7,000 Western Union mailgrams to members of the Texas Independent Petroleum Royalties Owners, reminding them he had been "fighting for deregulation" of gas prices. Some of the wires went to corporations, which are forbidden by law from contributing. "This is one of those classic screw-ups in a campaign that you have nightmares about," explained Mauro.

A Western Union spokesman disagreed vehemently. "We followed the instructions given us," he said.

INSIDE REPORT:

Some CIA officials never seem to learn lessons

By ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Although endless investigations have seriously impeded the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) from carrying on its vital mission, certain CIA officials insist on continuing a "disinformation" campaign to blacken the name of an old enemy.

The target is Elias Demetracopoulos, a Greek expatriate living in Washington who was best known as a relentless foe of the former Greek military dictatorship. An article in the Dec. 6 New York Times contains derogatory information about Demetracopoulos attributed to the CIA; indeed, Times reporter David Binder told us flatly that CIA officials supplied him with information. Yet these charges are refuted by material in the CIA's own files.

Knowingly spreading false information — "disinformation" — has a long and honorable place in foreign intelligence. But post-Watergate investigations of the CIA have made it abundantly clear that it is no longer in fashion. Thus, it is strange that the beleaguered CIA — its morale shattered and still under fire in congressional and press probes of the past — cannot let a relatively obscure foreign national go his way in peace.

The last thing the CIA needs today is a new congressional inquiry but that is precisely what looms in both Senate and House committees, under prodding from such confirmed CIA-critics as Sen. George McGovern. In a Dec. 14 letter to chairman Daniel Inouye of the Senate Intelligence Committee, McGovern contended: "I think it is important to learn how the agency can possibly justify the selective release to the American press of materials designed to discredit Mr. Demetracopoulos or any other individual." Agreeing, Inouye is pushing an investigation.

Trouble between Demetracopoulos and the CIA began in 1952 when, as a Greek journalist, he feuded with then Ambassador Jack Peurifoy in Athens. It climaxed when Demetracopoulos left Greece after the 1967 military revolt to lobby against the junta from Washington.

Why the long CIA campaign against him was waged is explained in a Feb. 19, 1975, internal CIA memo to then director William Colby. It quotes "many CIA staff officers and other informants" as believing Demetracopoulos "has reported in a manner which injured good Greek-American relations." It was this underlying belief, originated long before the 1975 memo, that stimulated the classic disinformation campaign against Demetracopoulos.

Shortly after we reported on Nov. 2, 1967, for the first time, about Demetracopoulos's lobbying against the U.S.-backed junta, we received a telephone call from a reputable CIA officer. Speaking "off-the-record," he warned us to beware of Demetracopoulos. CIA files showed, he said, that Demetracopoulos had been a double agent in Greece, for the Soviet KGB and Western intelligence services.

But the CIA's own secret files branded this a lie. That same 1975 memo to Colby put it bluntly: "While he (Demetracopoulos) has been an annoyance, there are no hard facts in the record to show that he has worked for any foreign government against the interests of Greece (or for that matter the United States), that he is in the pay of any national government, that he has ever been a member of a foreign intelligence service."

Nevertheless, four years earlier the CIA had helped prepare a scurrilous white paper against Demetracopoulos, for which the State Department later apologized. On Jan. 22, 1976, writers Russell Warren Howe and Sarah Hays Trott had a CIA-prepared memo containing derogatory information about him when they interviewed Demetracopoulos for their book, "The Power Peddlers."

"In hindsight," said the 1975 memo to Colby, "the agency may have overreacted to the provocations of Dimitrakopoulos (sic)." But on Aug. 8, 1977, CIA director Stansfield Turner wrote a categorical denial to Rep. Don Edwards of California that the CIA had disseminated false information about Demetracopoulos. Next came Binder's Dec. 6 article in the New York Times.

Binder wrote that "CIA records show" Demetracopoulos offered his services to the agency in 1951 — totally denied by Demetracopoulos. "The CIA records further allege," Binder continues, "that in the 1950s he was aosociated with both the Yugoslav and Israeli intelligence services" — charges specifically denied by the 1975 memo to Colby.

Binder also quotes a "CIA official" as saying KYP, the Greek intelligence service, at CIA's request "found no evidence of underground resistance activities" by Demetracopoulos in World War II. Yet a June 23, 1952, internal CIA memo says Demetracopoulos suffered "imprisonment and death sentence by the Germans in World War II for sabotage activities."

Binder told us that he received CIA material on Demetracopoulos years ago in Athens but in reporting on him this fall, was given new, unspecified information by CIA officials "past and present." With the deadly serious business of rebuilding the nation's intelligence services at stake, Turner's CIA simply cannot afford time off to harass an insignificant expatriate for sins the CIA itself admits were not committed.

The solution would be to cut Nixon in on a piece of the action and let him plug his album on the air.

In the commercial we hear his voice: "We could raise a million dollars —." Then Nixon himself comes on and says, "Hi, remember those words? They can be yours in this fabulous collection I call my Golden Years for only $5.95 or $12.95 for 8-track tape."

Carter admits he can't balance budget by 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, trying to balance a pair of promises, concedes that he can't guarantee a balanced federal budget by 1981 without jeopardizing his planned $25 billion election-year tax cut.

"If there was an absolutely rigid fixation on a balanced budget, then there would be no chance for tax cuts," Carter said Wednesday night in a year-end interview with television correspondents.

"But I think when you take into consideration that we have a $25 billion tax reduction for the people next year with about $6 billion tax reductions this year, that is $31 billion, (and) that is a major benefit to the people.

"I just can't give a firm commitment on how we will balance tax cuts versus a balanced budget by 1981," the president said.

His statements seemed to hedge his campaign promise to balance the budget during his first term. As recently as last week, during his Christmas vacation at home in Plains, Ga., he was asked whether the balanced budget was still a goal and not just a dream.

"Absolutely," Carter declared.

In the television interview, the president was asked whether he still thought that balancing the budget by 1981 was a realistic goal, given claims on the budget such as his promise of a tax cut. This time, Carter replied, "Obviously, I can not guarantee that. We have obviously known that to balance the budget would be difficult.

"It depends upon how fast business invests, how many people are at work, which cuts down obviously on expenditure for unemployment compensation, welfare payments — and there has to be some tradeoff," Carter said. "... It would take about a 10 percent annual increase in real terms in business investment with the present projections of economic need.

> "But I think when you take into consideration that we have a $25 billion tax reduction for the people next year with about $6 billion tax reductions this year, that is $31 billion, and that is a major benefit to the people.... I think the benefits to be derived from our tax cuts will exceed any tax burden that may have been added."
> President Carter

"We want to cut the unemployment rate down considerably and, of course, we want to deal with the problems of the cities .... We also contemplate in the 1979 fiscal budget emphasizing anew our interest in solving the higher unemployment rate among black young people ... We want to meet the legitimate needs of our people and at the same time not let inflation get out of hand."

Meeting those needs costs tax money, Carter acknowledged. But, apparently replying to former President Gerald R. Ford's contention that people would about break even between tax increases and the proposed tax cut, Carter said, "I think the benefits to be derived from our tax cuts in 1978 and 1979 will exceed any tax burden that may have been added."

The questioning began with Carter's tour beginning today of Europe, Asia and the Near East. "Energy," the president said, "will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip." Wherever his journey leads, Carter said, "what our nation does with energy will be a prime question." Until Congress takes action, he said, "that cloud will hang over the determination and leadership qualities of our country."

He said he hoped his foreign mission "will demonstrate to the American people and to the Congress the necessity for rapid action" on energy. Carter said he had "private signs ...divulged to me by conferees" that a compromise can be struck on energy. "I don't think there is any doubt that they will pass this legislation early in the (next) session," the president said.

Carter also said he would introduce a national health insurance program in the next session. Congress "can't pass it this year," he said, "but it will be introduced."

In the coming year, he predicted, the United States and the Soviet Union will reach a strategic arms limitation agreement.

Arab leaders approve security guarantee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a surprise development, says some Arab leaders have told him they would not object to a Middle East peace settlement that included a U.S. guarantee of Israel's security.

Discussing the Middle East question with television network correspondents Wednesday night, Carter backed Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's refusal to accept the creation of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

He also responded to critics who say Begin has made no gesture to Egypt comparable to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's history-making visit to Israel six weeks ago.

He described as a "reasonable negotiating position" Begin's insistence that Israel retain the right to station troops on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

Carter said there is a "great deal of flexibility" in the Israeli negotiating stand, noting that Israel has promised to reassess its West Bank-Gaza Strip troop presence after five years.

Carter added a new dimension to the fast-paced developments in the Middle East when he discussed the possibility of a U.S.-Israeli defense pact as part of an overall settlement.

Some Arab leaders, Carter said, "had expressed to me that if a guarantee arrangement between ourselves and Israel should be worked out, it would be acceptable."

Carter added that the United States and Israel have never discussed that possibility "in any definitive form" and that his own preference would be for a minimal U.S. role in post-settlement peacekeeping.

In the past, Israeli governments have been cool to the idea of U.S. guarantees, not wanting to rely on outside powers for Israeli security.

Begin said recently that Israel had no intention of making such a proposal to American authorities but that he would be willing to listen to any U.S. ideas on the subject.

Despite U.S. and Israeli reluctance to establish a military alliance, Carter's remarks appeared to make that option more credible, particularly if it made the difference between success and failure to the Mideast peace negotiations.

Carter's evaluation of the Sadat-Begin Christmas summit was favorable to Begin, but he was unsparing in his praise for both leaders.

He reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity" with ties to surrounding countries, but he firmly rejected Sadat's insistence on an independent Palestinian state.

"My own position is that permanent peace can best be maintained if there is not a fairly radical, new independent nation in the heart of the Middle East area," Carter said.

Rights take back seat in favor of Poland trip

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Carter's arrival in Warsaw today marks his first venture into the Soviet bloc since his support of human rights earlier this year provoked the ire of the Kremlin.

But signs are that human rights will take a back seat, at least publicly, in discussions between Carter and Communist Party leader Edward Gierek.

Carter's program appears designed more to win friends than lecture anyone. He is visiting three shrines commemorating tragic events in Polish history.

Carter arrives at 10:20 p.m. (4:20 p.m. EST). After an airport welcoming ceremony, he and his wife, Rosalynn, will go by motorcade to the lavish baroque Wilanow Palace, their home for the next two nights.

Carter begins his appearances Friday with stops at the shrines — the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Nike monument honoring Poles slain in the 1944 Warsaw uprising against the Nazis and the ghetto monument memorializing more than 300,000 Jews killed by the Nazis in 1943.

Friday afternoon, Carter will have meetings with Gierek and other Polish officials, and will be the guest of honor at a state banquet Friday night in Radziwill Palace.

Poland, with 34 million citizens the largest of the Soviet Union's allies, has prepared for the visit with practiced efficiency.

Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford paid visits in 1972 and 1975. In recent months the shah of Iran, the king of Belgium and the chancellor of West Germany have been here.

About 630 reporters are expected to cover Carter's visit, including the first formal presidential news conference broadcast from the Soviet bloc.

Presidential aides say one of the reasons Carter chose Poland was because the administration views the country's human rights record favorably.

According to Washington sources, likely topics of the Carter-Gierek talks include U.S.-Polish trade, troop strength in Central Europe and the Polish role in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Individual Retirement Account and other tax saving plans

The Individual Retirement Account is a tax deduction for today and a retirement program for tomorrow. The Individual Retirement Account is designed for the person who is not already covered by a retirement program. It invites that person to contribute to his own account up to 15% or $1500.00 (whichever is less) of his earned income. It allows him an immediate 100% income tax deduction for his contribution.

Save $242.00 per year in income tax. A family of four with an income of $12000 will pay $1228.00 in income tax. However, if that same family contributes $1500 to an I.R.A., the $1500 deduction will save them $242.00 in income tax annually. Effective tax year 1977, a working spouse can set up an I.R.A. for a non-working spouse, provided he or she is participating in an I.R.A. plan. The maximum combined contribution can not exceed $1750.00.

The Keogh Plan. The Keogh Plan is similar to the I.R.A. but it is designed specifically for the self-employed individual. The Keogh Plan automatically includes the self-employed individual along with all his eligible employees. The plan allows an annual deposit of 15% or $7500 (whichever is less) of an individual's earned income.

I.R.A. Rollover. Ask about Midland Savings' I.R.A. Rollover. This plan is designed for the individual who has completed a qualifying retirement program, and who wishes to roll his lump-sum distribution over into an I.R.A., to receive the tax advantage.

Stock market declines

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small loss today, steadying after an early drop that followed President Carter's nomination of a new chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 4 points in early trading, cut its loss to 1.22 at 828.48 by noontime.

Losers outnumbered gainers by a 3-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

After the NYSE close on Wednesday the White House announced the surprise choice of G. William Miller, a Rhode Island business executive, to succeed Arthur Burns as chairman of the Fed.

A number of top executives and bankers said they believed Miller was an excellent choice for the job. But analysts also pointed out that he was largely an unknown quantity to investors.

"I think Wall Street will take a wait-and-see attitude," said Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields. "Nobody quite has a handle on his philosophy."

Louisiana Land & Exploration was the most active NYSE issue, up ¼ at 22½. A 100,000-share block traded at that price.

The Big Board's composite index edged up .01 to 52.32. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .16 at 126.59.

Volume on the NYSE was a moderate 9.52 million shares as of noontime, against 8.01 million at the same point on Wednesday.

Accord expected on testimony by Tongsun Park

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The United States and South Korea are to sign agreements Friday covering testimony by Tongsun Park, key figure in an alleged Korean influence buying scandal on Capitol Hill, a highly placed government source said here today.

A joint statement on the agreements will be issued simultaneously about 10 a.m. Friday in Seoul (8 p.m. today in Washington), the source said.

Under the accord, Park would be investigated by American and Korean officials in Seoul, and then would make himself available to testify at the trial of anyone indicted in connection with the alleged influence buying efforts in Washington.

The source, who asked not to be identified, declined to say if the accord also provides for Park to submit to questioning by congressional investigators and the House Ethics Committee, which is conducting a probe of the alleged influence buying scandal.

Chamber names PR director

Randy Hicks, 24, of Midland has been named director of public relations for the Midland Chamber of Commerce, President Harrell Feldt announced Wednesday.

Hicks replaces Grant Billingsley who left Midland recently for a position in the public relations department of the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce.

Hicks is a graduate of Texas Tech and a former employee of Midland radio stations KBAT and KWEL.

He and his wife, Rhonda, are active in the Midland Community Theatre.

Columnist dies

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Heloise Bowles, author of the syndicated column "Hints From Heloise," has died of heart trouble. She was 58.

The columnist, known professionally as Heloise Cruse, died at Baptist Hospital here Wednesday night, a nursing supervisor said.

Her daily column of household tips, written for King Features for the past 17 years, was carried in more than 600 newspapers, King Features executive editor Allan Priaulx said in New York. Priaulx said the column would be taken over by Mrs. Bowles' daughter, Ponce Cruse, who had been helping write it under the name Heloise II.

Prisoner captured, faces more charges

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Buddy Cochran, convicted of ramming a sports car into a crowd at a Ku Klux Klan rally in President Carter's hometown last summer, now faces charges of escape and damaging government property.

Cochran was charged on Wednesday with escape, a felony, and two counts of damaging property at the Sumter County jail. He escaped Tuesday and was recaptured 15 hours later in an Atlanta suburb.

Michael Sylvester Proctor, 30, who escaped with Cochran, was still at large. Proctor was awaiting trial for attempted rape.

Texans win big in sweepstakes

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — G.W. Llewellyn and Sam Rosa found the end of the rainbow Tuesday when a horse appropriately named "Decent Fellow" turned a $3.60 bet into a $142,500 pot of gold.

Llewellyn was at his home in this Southeast Texas city watching television when he got the news he had won the Irish Sweeps Hurtle race that carried the cash prize.

"I damn near fell out of my chair," he said.

Rosa, a nearby Nederland resident, was listening to the news at work.

"I shouted, 'Damn, I won.'"

The winners agreed chances of winning the Irish Sweepstakes are about five million-to-one. The fact that they beat those odds is a promise of some high times to come.

"Here, go buy yourself a bottle of wine," said Llewellyn, shoving a crisp $20 at a reporter. "I'm going to have a good time. I'm going to spend money."

Rosa said he called his sister in New York to tell her the news.

"I told her 'This is lucky Sam.' She didn't recognize me." he chuckled.

Llewellyn has not decided how to spend the victory cash but he expects Uncle Sam to have a lean and hungry look.

"I guess the government will take about half." he said, showing no serious disappointment.

Hospital directors set special session

Midland County Hospital District directors will meet at 2 p.m. Friday in special session to grant a contract to a depository bank. The issue was tabled at a meeting earlier this month so that research could be done into the legality of stockholders in a bank voting to give a contract to that bank. Three of the five directors own stock in The First National Bank of Midland, one of the banks bidding to be the depository bank. Ted Kerr, counsel for the district, said a definitive legal opinion will be ready by the time of the meeting.

Also at the meeting, the directors are scheduled to consider a contract with the city of Midland, Midland County and the Midland Independent School District for collection of taxes.

Commission to meet to conclude buy

Midland County commissioners will meet in special session at 1:30 p.m. Friday to conclude purchase arrangements for a half-block tract of land in the 200 block of North Baird Street.

The commissioners agreed Dec. 12 to purchase the plot for $175,000.

Also at that meeting, the commissioners are scheduled to approve county road right-of-ways and routine personnel matters.

A CHARLES RUSSELL painting, "The Price of His Hide," is to be loaned by the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, Fort Worth, to the American Embassy in Japan. The loan was arranged at the request of U.S. Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield, who was a friend of the Russell family as a boy and is a long-time admirer of Western art.

'77--year of much musical news

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Two beloved giants of popular music died in 1977. Elvis Presley, 42, the father of rock 'n' roll, considered by his fans the king, died in his mansion in Memphis. Bing Crosby, 73, the crooner, with the casual, friendly air and beautiful baritone, died on a golf course in Spain.

And it was the year of Fleetwood Mac. The group's LP, "Rumours," stayed No. 1 on the best-selling charts for 29 weeks, longer than one LP ever had done before, beating out Peter Frampton's 17-week "Frampton Comes Alive!"

It was the year disco was in. And everybody talked about punk rock but didn't buy so many punk rock records.

Debby Boone, daughter of Pat, ended the year with a platinum single, "You Light Up My Life." She didn't make Billboard's compilation of best-selling records for the year because that magazine counted them up at the end of November. In order of sales, best-selling 1977 singles were:

"Tonight's the Night," Rod Stewart; "I Just Want To Be Your Everything," Andy Gibb; "Best of My Love," Emotions; "Evergreen," Barbra Streisand; "Angel in Your Arms," Hot; "I Like Dreamin'," Kenny Nolan; "Don't Leave Me this Way," Thelma Houston; "(Your Love Has Lifted Me) Higher and Higher," Rita Coolidge; "Undercover Angel," Alan O'Day; "Torn Between Two Lovers," Mary MacGregor.

Best-selling LPs of the year, in order:

"Rumours," Fleetwood Mac; "Songs in the Key of Life," Stevie Wonder; "A Star Is Born," soundtrack; "Hotel California," Eagles; "Boston," Boston; "A New World Record," Electric Light Orchestra; "Part 3," KC and the Sunshine Band; "Silk Degrees," Boz Scaggs; "Night Moves," Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band; "Fleetwood Mac," Fleetwood Mac.

Top-selling country single of the year was "Luckenbach, Tex." and top-selling country LP was "Ol' Waylon," both by Waylon Jennings. Donna Summer was named disco artist of the year.

Grammy Awards, given by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, went to George Benson's "This Masquerade" as record of the year and Stevie Wonder's "Songs in the Key of Life" as LP of the year. Best pop vocalists were Wonder and Linda Ronstadt.

Oscars for best song in a movie went to "Evergreen" from "A Star Is Born." "The Omen" won for best original soundtrack and "Bound for Glory" for best compiled soundtrack.

The Country Music Association of America named Ronnie Milsap entertainer of the year and Milsap and Crystal Gayle best vocalists. Kenny Rogers' "Lucille" was best country single.

The price of records went up.

A lot of people in pop music toured, made TV specials, movies, appeared on Broadway and in Las Vegas.

The Dirt Band was the first American rock band to tour Russia, doing 24 shows in 28 days.

Flutist Paul Horn issued an LP he recorded inside a pyramid near Cairo. UFO guitarist Michael Shenker disappeared, was found a month later in Munich and resumed touring. The unpredictable David Bowie played keyboards on Iggy Pop's U.S. tour and appeared on Bing Crosby's Christmas special. Another unusual pairing was Phil Spector producing a wall-of-sound album with introspective poet Leonard Cohen.

Dolly Parton worked hard to cross over from country to pop. Neil Sedaka bought his old copyrights for $2 million. Anita Bryant campaigned against equal rights for homosexuals.

Violence at rock concerts was down in 1977 but Santana was firebombed in Milan by people who thought the concert should have been free. The Led Zeppelin U.S. tour had its incidents and arrests and two members of Aerosmith were injured by firecrackers in Philadelphia.

Comebacks included blues singer Alberta Hunter, 82. Robert Altman heard her and signed her to do a soundtrack. Jessie Winchester toured the United States. He had been in Canada for 10 years as a draft resister. Manfred Mann had his first big hit in a decade, "Blinded by the Light." Tony Orlando retired, suffering from depression, returned three months later, without Dawn. Commander Cody was back, without the Lost Planet Airmen.

The Crickets played their first concert together in 15 years, for Buddy Holly Week, in England. Brian Wilson toured with the Beach Boys. Rick Wakeman rejoined Yes. The Moody Blues rejoined; so did the Animals. Edgar Winter repackaged White Trash. Patti Smith returned to performing after a January fall which badly injured her neck. Minnie Riperton toured, recovered from a cancer operation.

Timothy Schmit left Poco to join the Eagles, replacing Randy Meisner. Vocalist Robert Plant left the Led Zeppelin tour when his son died but the group apparently still exists.

Elton John, 30, announced he would give up live performing and fans wept. Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons went out in two directions instead of one and the former members of LaBelle went out in three — Patti LaBelle, Sarah Dash and Nona Hendryx all pursuing solo careers.

Lol Creme and Kevin Godley left 10CC to record on an instrument they invented and call the Gizmo.

Stephen Bishop got his first hit when "On and On," a song about persevering, was released a second time.

Getting their day in court were:

Four Brunswick Records executives had their 1976 convictions on charges of payola, conspiracy and mail fraud reversed by a federal court in Philadelphia.

Charges of conspiracy to possess cocaine against Waylon Jennings were dismissed with prejudice in Nashville, which means they could be reinstated. Keith Richard pleaded innocent in Canada to a charge of possession of nearly an ounce of heroin. Chad Mitchell served time in prison on a San Antonio marijuana conviction. Bob Marley was fined 20 pounds in London for possessing marijuana.

Leslie Uggams and her husband Graham Pratt filed for bankruptcy in Los Angeles. Connie Francis and Howard Johnson Co. settled out of court for $1.475 million as "compensation for an injury" after she was attacked in a motel room in 1974. Bruce Springsteen and his former manager Mike Appel settled out of court for less than $1 million and Springsteen can record again. John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr settled out of court with former Beatles manager Allen Klein for $5 million; Klein was later indicted for income tax evasion.

A French court ordered Charles Aznavour to pay more than $2 million in back taxes and penalties. Actress Britt Ekland sued Rod Stewart for $15 million and he sued back to get her out of his house.

Marriages in 1977 included: Kenny Loggins and Eva Ein; Jimmy Buffett and Jane Slagsvol; Lorna Luft, 24, and Jake Hooker, lead guitarist of the Arrows, 26; Hoagy Carmichael, 77, and actress Wanda McKay, 52.

Divorces included: Buck Owens and Jana Greif, former fiddle player with his country troupe, after two days; George Harrison and Patti, after a number of years apart; Bob Dylan and Sara, after 13 years of marriage, she given custody of the four children.

Babies included: James Louis, to Paul and Linda McCartney; Zeita Suwandi to Stevie Wonder and Yolanda; Roberta Adam to Natalie Cole and husband Marvin Yancy; Gregory Abbott Jr. to Freda Payne and husband Gregory Abbott; Amber Elain to Ralph and Karen Tavares;

Anna McGarrigle and Dane Lanken had a son; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anka had their fifth child; Mr. and Mrs. Boz Scaggs had Oscar Lewis; Mr. and Mrs. Ian Anderson had James Duncan.

Other deaths during the year included: Lynyrd Skynyrd lead singer Ronnie Van Zant, lead guitarist Steve Gaines and his sister, Cassie Gaines in the crash of a private plane in southwestern Mississippi; T. Rex guitarist Marc Bolan, 29, real name Mark Field, in a car crash in London;

Blues men Bukka White, 89, real name Booker T. Washington White, in Memphis; Tarheel Slim, 52, real name Alden Bunn, in New York of pneumonia;

Jazz musicians Paul Desmond, 52, alto saxophonist and composer of "Take Five," in New York of lung cancer.

Area tryouts slated

Preliminary auditions of the West Texas-New Mexico District for the 1978 Southwest Regional Auditions of the Metropolitan Opera National Council will be held in El Paso.

Interested singers from this region must apply no later than Jan. 21.

Opree resumes

ODESSA — The Odessa Brand New Opree, the Globe Theatre's stage show of country-western entertainment, will resume Jan. 7.

Because of the large number of entertainers slated to kick off the new seaaon, the show will begin at 7 p.m. and run for about three and one-half hours instead of the usual two.

The Opree is presented on Saturday nights when plays are not scheduled.

Fund drive under way

ROUND TOP — The Round Top Festival has launched its first major fund-raising drive in an attempt to raise $150,000 by April 30 to cover cost of funding a scholarship program and new teaching and practice facilities, James Dick, founder of the festival has announced.

The festival will run weekends June 9 through July 6.

Musical to open Globe's season

ODESSA — Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" will be the season opener for the Globe of the Great Southwest's 1978 season.

Set to run April, 7, 8, 14, 15, 21 and 22, the play will be directed by Jim Walters of Los Angeles.

Dr. David Sloan will conduct the orchestra, Frank Varro will be choral director and Dr. Dianne Peters will be stage manager.

"Othello" and "Love's Labour's Lost," both by Shakespeare, and "Tartuffe" by Moliere have been chosen for the Odessa Shakespeare Festival to run from June 16 through Aug. 13.

"Charlie's Aunt" by Brandon ThoMas will be presented in September and October. The season's final production in November and December will be a world premiere of "The House of Saul" by Agnes Sanford.

Season tickets to the Globe will be the same price as last season: $30 for 16 adult admissions, $16 for eight adult admissions, $12 for eight student admissions and $12 for eight senior citizens admissions. The season tickets will be available in late January.

EPA may order cities to install equipment

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Fourteen major Texas cities, including Odessa, may be required to install new water filtering equipment by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency to remove possible cancer-causing chemicals.

Texas Department of Health officials say the EPA order, reported under consideration by federal officials in Washington, isn't yet clear to them, and isn't expected to be in final form until after public hearings.

Steve Ellison, chief of the Department of Health's Data Reports and Water Quality Monitoring Branch in the Division of Water Hygiene, reports EPA is "Looking for too high concentrations of trihalomethapes"—including such substances as chloroform, bromoform, dibromchloromethane and dichlorobromomethane.

Such chemicals have been linked to cancer in animals.

Construction costs nationwide for facilities such as are expected to be required would be from $291 million to $685 million with an additional $34 million to $92 million annually to replace the carbon as it absorbs the chemicals.

Although the overall cost is significant, EPA estimates the requirements would mean increases of only $2 to $5 annually in an individual's water bill.

The 14 Texas cities, which use surface water supplies, which the Department of Health believes would be affected by the EPA plan include Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi, Port Arthur, Abilene, Wichita Falls, Waco, Lubbock, Arlington, Beaumont, Amarillo and Austin.

The cities would either monitor their own water supplies or the department would provide monitoring services.

Cities using ground water would not take part in the program.

EPA deputy administrator Victor J. Kimm, Washington, indicates the proposal should be made formally in January.

$75,000 bond set for man charged with 3 offenses

A Midland man Wednesday morning was charged with two counts of attempted murder and one count of burglary in connection with the early Wednesday morning shooting of a 25-year-old Midland woman and her 2-year-old daughter, police said today.

Peace Justice Robert H. Pine set bond at $25,000 for each offense, for a total of $75,000.

Thirty-one-year-old Tommy Glenn Clark of the 500 block of East Estes Avenue surrendered to police about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

According to a detective, Clark learned that police were looking for him in connection with the shooting of Christine Johnson and her daughter, Rosetta.

Mrs. Johnson and her daughter reportedly were shot about 2:30 a.m. Wednesday at Mrs. Johnson's residence in the 100 block of South Madison Street. Detectives said Mrs. Johnson awoke to find a man in her room.

She screamed, and the man fired a pistol, hitting her in the arm and head and hitting her daughter in the mouth. The daughter was sleeping on the same bed as the mother.

Police said entry to the residence was gained through the front door, although it is unknown whether the door was open or locked at the time of entry.

Mrs. Johnson called for an ambulance after the man left.

She and her daughter were in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning, a hospital spokesman said.

Man arrested on drug charge

Midland police arrested a 50-year-old man Wednesday afternoon for felony possession of marijuana.

Acting on an informant's tip, officers executed a search warrant at a private residence in the 200 block of North Lee Street at 5 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

According to police, officers found 11 bags of a substance officers believed to be marijuana.

Saw needed to cut own lamb

By ROSE DOSTI
The Los Angeles Times

Bill Broscovak, a sort of ambassador for the American lamb and wool industry, came to town, leg of lamb and cutting knives tucked under his arm, to tout the versatility of lamb, despite — or perhaps because of — the fact that lamb production and consumption are at an all-time low.

"We don't come down hard-out," said Broscovak, putting on his striped apron and sharpening the blade of a curved 8-inch boning knife.

Fact is, Broscovak reported, the 75 percent drop in lamb production and consumption over the last 25 years is so dramatic it would be frightening were it not for the industry's hope that sheep will roam the range long after beef cattle disappear.

Sheep, Broscovak noted, are natural grazers of grass and weeds. They do not compete, as cattle do, for man's food. Broscovak is convinced that there will be a backward trend toward increased lamb production as the synthetic fabric business declines and as beef cattle become more expeneve to raise.

"Sheep provide food and fabric, and are less expensive to raise than cattle," he said.

He gave a simple reason for today's drop in lamb consumption: lack of supply. "We could sell more lamb if it were available." Predator problems, he said, especially in the mountain states where coyotes prey on lambs, have driven sheepmen out of business. Lamb production dropped from 56.5 million animals in 1942 to 13 million in 1977.

Ninety per cent of lamb is graded "choice." The remaining 10 percent is graded prime or good.

Lamb is not cheap. A leg of lamb runs $1.89 per pound, comparable in price to that of a standing beef rib roast. However, pound-per-pound value of a leg of lamb is not bad considering the number of ways it can be cut and prepared. Which, finally, brings us to the main point: How to cut a leg of lamb five ways, or how to put one over on your butcher who probably will charge an arm and a leg if he does the cutting.

Do you have a butcher's saw? A 5-inch boning knife and an 8-inch chopping knife? No? It might behoove you to collect a few meat tools, says Broscovak, who spent most of his life in the meat-cutting business, starting as a grocer-meat man's son. "I've saved hundreds of dollars each year cutting my own meat," Broscovak said.

For demonstrating, Broscovak brought along a whole leg of lamb, which includes the sirloin steak end cut. Most shoppers, however, will find a three-quarter leg of lamb — a leg minus the sirloin steak end which generally is removed to sell at more than $2.50 per pound. "Now, isn't that worth cutting your own?" Broscovak asked.

To cut the steaks, however, you will need a saw. The remainder of the three-quarter leg will yield such cuts as a butterfly lamb leg, shish kebab meat, stew meat, cutlets or a rolled, boneless roast.

First, sharpen the knives at a 20-degree angle on steel. "The most dangerous knives are dull ones," Broscovak pointed out.

Remove excess fat. "Removing the fat prevents it from rendering back into the meat as it cooks," Broscovak explained.

If you have the full leg, slice the sirloin at 1-inch intervals (usually yielding 4 steaks) up to the bone, then use a saw to slice through. Next, remove the leg bones.

There is an art to boning meats; it is a matter of "feeling your way through" with the point of the blade. Most meat cuts have natural boundaries of bone and muscle mass. To bone a leg of lamb, one "feels around" the bone, using the point of the blade to work around the connecting flesh.

First remove the rump bone, the visible bone on the surface of the cut end. Next loosen the ball joint, a knobby bone attached to the center leg bone. Then remove the center leg bone by slitting the lamb flesh down the center closest to the bone and working the bone out with the point of a blade. Finally, the remaining bone, the shank bone is removed. Set aside all the bones for future soup stock for dinner for your dog. "Never throw anything away. All parts of the lamb can be used for something," Broscovak said.

To prepare the leg for further cutting, butterfly the lamb by slitting the meat almost, but not quite, through. Uneven thicknesses will define the terrain of the open leg of lamb, with the thickest portions in two outer wings and the center portion the thinnest. If you want to barbecue the butterflied lamb leg you will get different degrees of doneness. The thickest portion will cook rare and least thick portion well done.

One of the favorite cooking methods for preparing butterflied lamb is to marinate it overnight in a mixture of oilwine dressing seasoned with herbs, onion slices and garlic. Or you might prefer to use a teriyake marinade.

The butterflied lamb also may be rolled and tied for roasting or cut into cubes or strips for several meals.

If you want to roast the lamb, roll, tucking in the long end and tie lengthwise once. Then tie crosswise in two or three places, depending on the size of the leg. Roast on a spit or in the oven to desired doneness. For rare, cook meat until meat thermometer reaches 140 degrees; for medium, to 150 or 155 degrees; for well-done, to 170 degrees. Broscovak said those who enjoy rare beef will enjoy lamb rare, as well. "In the United States most people prefer lamb cooked to a blush, about 150 degrees," said Broscovak.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Fri., Dec. 30)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Study and decide the overall aspects under which you wish to operate during the coming year. Reduce this course of action to specific and detailed formulas so that dreams and hopes you have for the coming year can be an actual part of your life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make plans first and then carry through along intelligent lines. This also includes anything of a governmental nature.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan more time for a loved one. Forget all that worrying and be more objective in handling practical affairs.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to get your home in better condition to suit your ideas and sense of neatness and artistry. Set aside some time for entertainment. Take no chances with one who is jealous of you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Talk over your ideas for the new year with good friends and gain their approval. Take time to be with loved ones who can also help you. Avoid one who has harmed you in the past.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into the details of property, home affairs and handle them intelligently. Learn to budget more wisely and make your money stretch.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Schedule your time and efforts so that you gain personal aims with ease. Be with as many friends as you can who can be of assistance to you. Show your appreciation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to get your routines better organized so they work out more efficiently in the future. Talk matters over with your mate and have greater harmony between you. Make sure financial affairs are well handled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to what good friends have to suggest so that you gain your aims. Get together with interesting people and have a good time.

SAGITTARUIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more alert to what is happening on the public scene and you can improve your position. Avoid a known gossiper.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) By taking a new stand with certain situations you find you can improve them considerably. Meet individuals whose background of experience has been different from your own.

AQURIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep any promises you have made in a most scrupulous way. Do whatever will improve undestanding with loved ones, but be diplomatic about it.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make definite arrangements with associates so that you can come to a true meeting of the minds. Then you can carry through with work in a surer way.

DEAR ABBY

She thinks separated parents still in love

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl. Recently my parents were separated, and my father moved out of the house. Every Sunday he comes to visit us kids. (There are four of us. I am the oldest.)

When he comes here, Mom goes out, and if Dad is still here when she returns, she goes right to her room and stays there until he leaves. Dad always asks how Mom is, if she's "happy," and how her health is.

He really seems interested in her. After Dad leaves, Mom asks how Dad looked and what he said. Abby, I think they still love each other, and I would do anything to get them back together again, but I've been told to live my own life and to let them live theirs. How can I help?— —WANTS TO HELP

DEAR WANTS: If your parents parted without seeking professional help in resolving their differences, beg them to give it a try for their own sakes as well as for yours. But if they have, the advice you received was good.

DEAR ABBY: Shortly before our 16-year-old daughter was to receive her driver's license, I made the statement that if she were involved in an accident that was her fault, or was arrested for a traffic violation, I would take her license away for one year. Everyone in the family heard me make this statement.

Last week my daughter was driving and my wife was with her. My daughter was trying to look at a road map as she drove.

Her mother told her to stop the car if she was going to look at the map, but she didn't stop—until she hit a highway post about five seconds later.

Now my wife feels that the one-year penalty was too strict to begin with. I believe it will not only teach the girl a lesson, but will serve as an example to the younger children. If you say the one-year penalty is too harsh, I may reconsider.—POP

DEAR POP: Yup. It's too harsh. A year is practically a lifetime for a 16-year-old. Personally, I'll bet the highway post taught your daughter more about safe driving than the reprisals of her pop. If it happens AGAIN, lower the boom. For the time being, lower the penalty.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 23 years and my pet peeve is my husband's constant complaining about the sandwiches I put in his lunch pail.

He says he loves tuna fish, but it makes his hands smell. He doesn't like pork products, and he says peanut butter gives him a pain between his shoulder blades. He also says he is sick of eggs and cold cuts. And chicken and turkey are too dry.

Yesterday he came home and said a fellow had a Canadian bacon sandwich and it looked real good, so this morning I put one in his lunch pail. Well, he came home tonight and said he found out Canadian bacon was ham and he hates ham! Do you have any ideas, Abby? My man is driving me nuts.—NOW WHAT

DEAR NOW: Keep giving him tuna and pack rubber gloves!

Oyster lovers get good news

ON TANGIER SOUND, Md. (AP) — There's spat on shells lying in Tangier Sound, and that's good news for oyster lovers.

Mayland's annual survey of baby oysters — spat — indicates that 1977's survival rate for the young shellfish may be the best in a decade. With luck, the high survival rate will be translated into a large oyster harvest in three or four years.

The news has been bad for the last two years and for most of the years since 1965's record crop.

Fathers more than biological necessity, says UT psychologist

AUSTIN — Margaret Mead once observed that "fathers are a biological necessity but a social accident."

A University of Texas psychologist and his colleague from the University of Illinois contradict the famous anthroplogist in an article published in Psychology Today.

Drs. Douglas Sawin of UT Austin and Ross D. Parke from the University of Illinois write that "the father if not just a poor substitute for the mother; he makes his own unique contribution to the care and development of infants and young children."

In research begun several years ago in Madison, Wis., and continued in Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio, the two psychologists found that fathers, when given the chance, were just as involved with their new babies as the mothers. Also, further studies showed that later in the first year, fathers reacted differently witht heir babies than did mothers.

"Fathers engage in more physically arousing and unusual activities; for instance, such rough-and-tumble play as tossing the infant in the air," they report. "Mothers usually play conventional games, such as peekaboo. They also tend to stimulate their children verbally rather than physically."

The psychologists write that besides playing differently with the baby, fathers play more frequently with the baby than do the mothers.

"Fathers are more visually attentive and playful (taking to the baby, imitating the baby), but they are less active in feeding and caretaking activities such as wiping the child's face or changing diapers," they write.

The psychologists conclude that in most families, "the father's main role is that of a playmate to the infant."

It seems that "how much and how well fathers interact with their infants has a strong effect on the child's development, particularly if the child is a boy."

"Babies as young as five months are more at ease in social situations when their fathers help take care of them and play with them," the psychologists note. "They prove to be calmer and happier when left alone or with strangers."

Drs. Swain and Parke suggest that since the father's role in parenting is just important as the mother's, innovations in hospital and business paternity policies should be made to encourage the father's involvement with his baby.

For example, evidence indicates that the more contact fathers and mothers have with their infant immediately following birth, the more the attachment between them is strengthened. Studies from Sweden show that men who were given a chance to learn and practice basic caretaking skills right in the hospital were more involved in the care of the infant and in household tasks three months later.

Also, flexibility in the workplace that would "permit a larger role for the father in infancy include shorter work weeks, more flexible working hours and split jobs in which father and mother each work part-time at a given job," they observe.

New Year's Eve sitter most revered

By ERMA BOMBECK

If America believed in royalty, there is no doubt in my mind that the coronation would occur on New Year's Eve. Ascending to the throne in a pair of earth shoes and faded jeans would be the most revered, most sought-after queen in America: Her Royel Highness, the New Year's Eve babysitter.

I am not being dramatic when I say that I have known women who have rushed back into a burning house to rescue their book of "sitters." Their phone numbers are passed around, memorized, and shredded. In fact, no one will ever convince me that the break-in at Watergate was anything but a plan to steal a list of Democrat babysitters. The time was right — June 17. (After that date, you might just as well forget trying to line someone up.)

There was nothing too good for my New Year's Eve baby sitter. Before she arrived I put in a supply of snacks that would have fed a rock festival and had the house so clean you'd have thought we were selling it.

Things haven't changed. Yesterday, Marge called me in tears.

"What's the matter?" I asked.

"I'm sick. Just sick. Can you believe the television picture won't lock? It keeps spinning around and around like a top. Besides that, we're having trouble with our color. Cicely Tyson's skin is green, her dress is yellow and her rose is Navy Blue. The sitter will take one look at that picture and walk right out. I know it."

"She'll understand."

"No, she won't. Besides that, one of the kids is throwing up. I promised her they were all well, toilet trained, old for their ages, and went to bed at 7:30 to read their Bibles before they dozed off."

"You could call her on the phone throughout the evening and praise her."

"Are you crazy? And tie up the phone so she can't call out?"

"Get hold of yourself, Marge. She'll understand. If she doesn't, just get someone else next year."

"I can't. She's the only one whe will take personal checks. Besides that . . . brace yourself . . . our stereo is broken."

Call it a gut feeling, but I wouldn't be surprised if Marge spent New Year's Eve babysitting her own kids.

Divorce Upper Volta style is not private

By MARK CRANE
Associated Press Writer

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — A gaggle of your neighbors will either commiserate or hoot with derision at your marriage problems. And you have no choice but to sit there and take it. That's Divorce Upper Volta style.

Airing one's dirty linen in public might not be such a bad idea, says a Rutgers University law professor who spent last summer in the African nation to study their divorce procedures.

"The divorce courts are more like public marriage guidance sessions and the entire tribe is encouraged to participate," said Dr. Carole E.R. Bohmer, who teaches family law and comparative matrimonial law at the Rutgers School of Law in Camden.

"If a couple has a fight but isn't really considering divorce, they may go to the court to hear the comments of the tribal elders and their neighbors," said the New Zealand native, who studied several African matrimonial systems under a National Science Foundation grant.

The divorce courts in Upper Volta serve a much greater function than to provide free entertainment and juicy gossip for the tribe. The sessions set moral standards for the community. The audience learns from the misfortune of others how to conduct oneself properly in a marriage, Dr. Bohmer said.

"Our system may be much more sophisticated legally, but their approach is much more pragmatic, more realistic," she said. "They just look at a marriage and try to see whether it is really workable or not."

The divorce system works well for men, but women in Upper Volta have little to say about it.

A woman who brings a divorce action against her husband would not be well received, Dr. Bohmer said.

Self-image keeping you down? Busibody helps

By MARCY SPRINGER
Copley News Service

LOS ANGELES — A few years back, Sallie Brown weighed 185 pounds, had what she calls an "old lady" hairdo and wore admittedly unflattering glasses.

Today, she is a champagne blonde who wears gold-rim glasses and weighs considerably less than 185 pounds.

All of which has to do with National Busibody Services Inc., a non-profit, self-help group she and her husband Gordon founded for folks who want to change themselves, inside or our.

The group started in 1961. The idea was to gather a psychologist, a beauty counselor, a teacher of self-hypnotism, a sexologist (Gordon Brown) and others to volunteer their advice and counsel to folks who wanted help but couldn't afford it.

Despite the plethora of encounter, self improvement groups which have popped up in the last decade, Brown felt there was a gap.

"The typical person is caught," she said. "The people on the poverty level usually have some kind of funding to help them out. It's the average person who needs something like this."

"This" is a half-dozen workshops which cost $5 per session, with titles like assertion, sex education and total image.

They happen in a room furnished only with floor pads, orange, gold and brown pillows and a single metal lectern.

Scrunching down on one of the floor pads, Brown said, "I see people discover themselves in this room, which is really neat. It's an informal atmosphere that leads to open communication. People will open up if they're sitting on the floor with their shoes off."

When they do open up, they describe problems ranging from sexual ignorance to study habits.

"Each person comes for a particular reason," Brown said. "A lot of people come for weight control, for breaking cigarette smoking and for relaxation."

For those problems, she recommends the self-hypnotism course. For other problems, those concerning lack of personal confidence, she recommends the "total image course."

Loretta Newman, a psychologist and retired college instructor who teaches part of the image course, said, "It's just learning about yourself and knowing yourself better. The students are there because they're interested in changing their image of themselves.

"In their own eyes, they haven't been as successful as they wanted to be either in business or in their personal life or social life or whatever. And they've decided they simply want to change how they look to themselves."

That class attracts mostly women, Newman said, including students, housewives and professional people.

With their "shoes off," Brown said, "they begin to relate their experiences and their own behavior and how they've reacted to situations. They begin to see themselves and their own behavior in a different light."

Gradually, she said, "we develop a real feeling of closeness. It's like watching a flower open up. But if they don't care to share, we respect that privilege. We have two magic words here, and they are, 'I pass.'"

The Busibody philosophy, she said, "is to help people help themselves. I think the more a person can know about himself or herself, the more he is in tune with other people. Then he is more apt to have open communication with another person. I can't love you until I learn to love me."

Young girl impresario

DALLAS (AP) — Shannon Lavender is only 12 years old, but as president of Entertainment Enterprises, she already has three shows under her belt.

It all started last summer. "I wanted to act but couldn't find any place, so I started my own theater company," she said.

Shannon proceeded to produce, direct and star in "Sound of Music." The musical lasted one performance in the Lavender living room. Tickets cost a nickel, and paid for refreshments served after the show.

"A Tree to Trim" was the 7th-grader's second effort. It had two performances, one at a school and one in the living room.

Her most challenging effort to date is "The Wizard of Oz," which had three performances at a local library as well as in the Lavender living room.

Parliament approves Begin plan

By DIAL TORGERSON
The Los Angeles Times

JERUSALEM — Menahem Begin, quieting hecklers with a dramatic account of his summit confrontation with Anwar Sadat, late Wednesday won his parliament's overwhelming approval of his Middle East peace plan.

It was the Israeli prime minister's first public disclosure of the plan, which calls for granting limited autonomy to the West Bank and the Gaza Strip — with Israeli armed forces on hand to enforce security.

After a day-long debate, the Knesset, Israel's parliament, voted 64 to 8 in favor of the plan. There were 40 absentations, most from the opposition Labor Party.

The Knesset was approving Begin's plan as Egypt and many other Arab countries were voicing their rejection of it. Sadat had rejected elements of the plan earlier at the Christmas summit at Ismailia, Egypt.

Begin told the Knesset that he had almost walked out twice during his talks with the Egyptian president during the two-day Ismailia talks.

Begin said the first time was when Sadat urged that Israel agree to withdraw from all territories captured in the 1967 war. Begin said he was also on the verge of a walkout when Sadat called for Israel to accept a Palestinian state on the West Bank.

At the Ismailia meeting Sadat was shown an Israeli proposal for a declaration of intent, but did not see the text of the fullpeace plan. It was sent to him Tuesday. The meeting in Ismailia ended not with Egypt's rejection of the Israeli proposals but with a joint statement in which each side told its opposing viewpoints.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan also spoke at the end of the Knesset session, which began at 10 a.m. and ended almost 12 hours later. Dayan — who reportedly had just returned from a mysterious trip abroad — was at times shouted down by Knesset hecklers.

Some members of the Knesset also interrupted Begin. But, quieting them, he spoke 35 minutes in an eloquent defense of his plan and the concessions he was willing to offer in return for peace.

"The proposal is something new," he said, "responsible administration of affairs by the residents in Judea and Samaria (the West Bank) and the Gaza Strip through their elected representatives. This is the meaning of self-rule, and that is why the ideas captured the imagination of people in the free world."

Most of the opposition in the Knesset came from the extreme Left, from members of splinter parties including the Communists, and from the Labor Alignment, the party defeated by Begin's Likud bloc in last May's election.

BEGIN told the Knesset about "two moments in the Ismailia conference" in which I was prepared to say to the Egyptian president, 'non possimus' (impossible), and to tell my colleagues to be ready to go back home....

At a certain moment we were asked to accept a proposal that Israel undertake to withdraw from Judea, Samaria, Sinai, the Golan Heights and the Gaza Strip in accordance with the premable to (U.N. Security Council) Resolution 242 emphasizing 'the inadmissibility of the acquisition of territory by war'.

"The debate was dramatic... I told President Sadat that we are in the Sinai today in a perfectly legitimate way...242 does not commit Israel to such a withdrawal, and therefore we shall not sign such a declaration. And we were ready to say: If so, we cannot continue.

"It was agreed that this paragraph should be eliminated from the joint statement, and we were able to carry on and prepare a joint statement.

"A second moment was when we were called upon to state that we agreed to establish a so-called Palestinian state in Judea, Samaria and Gaza. And again we said: On no account will we accept this. This would be a deadly danger to the state of Israel...It would also be a danger to Jordan — 'and also a danger to you, Mr. President' — and a danger to the free world, because of the experience of airlifts to Angola and Mozambique and Ethiopia, for the flight time from Odessa (U.S.S.R.) to Bethlehem (on the West Bank) is less than two hours."

The Begin plan deals with the West Bank and Gaza as one area, and the Sinai as a second. It does not go into details on plans for the Golan Heights. (In the 1967 Six Day War, Israel took the West Bank from Jordan, Gaza from under Egyptian administration, and the Sinai from Egyptian sovereignty.)

AMONG the high points of the West Bank-Gaza plan were these:

—Abolition of the Israeli military government and establishment of civilian administrative autonomy for the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

—Establishment of an 11-member administrative council in the territory elected by local inhabitants over the age of 18. The council, headquartered in Bethlehem, would deal with local education, commerce, tourism, agriculture, health and policing.

—Defense and public order would be maintained by the Israeli authorities.

—Palestinian Arabs would be able to choose either Israeli or Jordanian citizenship. If they chose Israeli citizenship they would be able to vote for and be elected to the Knesset and if they chose Jordanian citizenship they would be eligible to vote for and be elected to the Jordanian parliament.

—Israelis would be able to buy land or settle in the territory, and Arabs who assume Israeli citizenship could buy land and settle in Israel.

A committee of Israel, Jordan and the territory would decide on regulations concerning Arab immigration into the territories. The committee's decisions would be unanimous, apparently giving Israel the right of veto.

Israelis and residents of the territory would have freedom of movement and commerce.

—Freedom of access to the holy places of Jews, Moslems, and Christians in Jerusalem would be guaranteed.

—The Israeli plan would be reviewed after five years.

—Security and public order in the territory would be maintained by Israeli forces.

The plan was criticized by Labor Party leader Shimon Peres on grounds that it would not be operable without the cooperation of Jordan, which has not been guaranteed.

"Mr. Begin is not the person who issues Jordanian passports," said Peres. "In Gaza there are 400,000 people. Can he (Begin) guarantee them Jordanian passports?"

Criticism also came from within Begin's Likud Party. Mrs. Geola Cohen, a right-wing member of the Likud, said she opposed the plan because of the fear it could lead to the establishment of a Palestinian state. She told the Knesset that "The plan does not hold any guarantees that a new war (between Israel and the Arabs) will not break out."

The Israeli plan also dealt with proposals for demilitarization of most of the Sinai, calling for Egyptian forces to remain west of the strategic Giddi and Mitla passes overlooking the western frontier of the peninsula. The Sinai plan also calls for:

—Israeli forces to be withdrawn to an agreed defense line in central Sinai for several years until a full withdrawal to the pre-1967 borders.

"Israeli settlement in Sinai would remain under Israeli protection and jurisdiction."

—Freedom of shipping in the Straits of Tiran, at the end of the Gulf of Aqaba, would be guaranteed either by a U.N. force that could be withdrawn only by agreement of both sides and an unanimous decision of the U.N. Security Council, or by mixed Israeli-Egyptian patrols.

It was this part of the plan to which Sadat in Cairo objected strongly on Wednesday, claiming that it barred his armed forces from having the right to cross what he called Egyptian sovereign territory.

Californian finds beauty in trash, discarded junk

By CHARLES HILLINGER
The Los Angeles Times

FRESNO, Calif. — Frank Caglia has big plans for his mountain. He wants to build a chapel, museum, hotel and restaurant atop it. That may be more than the mountain can bear.

Caglia's mountain is a huge pile of trash, constantly being buildozed and compacted with dirt, that rises 108 feet. Years ago, someone dubbed it Mt. Trashmore.

In most places in California, trash is buried in canyons.

"But there are no canyons near Fresno, so my dump has become a mountain," says Caglia, the 65-year-old owner of Fresno's Orange Avenue Disposal.

Mt. Trashmore has been the center of controversy ever since it started to mushroom in 1941.

Over the years, there have been repeated efforts to force Caglia to cease his operation. Critics argued that Mt. Trashmore was an eyesore.

But Caglia's mountain has survived. The dump, city fathers decided, was a necessary evil.

"It can't go much higher," Caglia says. "I plan to begin landscaping the top in a few months. I will transform the dump into a thing of beauty that the people of Fresno will enjoy."

Caglia's dream begins with a National Geographic photograph he has of France's famed Mont - Saint - Michel Abbey. He talks of building a replica of the abbey on top of his trash pile but concedes, "It looks like I will have to settle for a more modest chapel."

After the chapel, Caglia intends to build a museum to house his collection of about 200 life-size animated figures, plus some of "the best of the junk" he has collected over the years. He also envisions a hotel and fancy restaurant" on the rash pile.

Although his scheme sounds outlandish, Caglia is an unusual man who sometimes does unusual things.

He often buys old buildings for demolition, but sometimes doesn't have the heart to tear them down — like Fresno's old Pantages Theater, more recently known as Warner's, and St. Agnes Catholic Hospital.

The Pantages, built in 1928, is almost a duplicate of the Pantages in Los Angeles, an ornate gem with seats for 2,200.

"I was there the day it opened," Caglia recalls. "How could I tear it down?

"Same with the hospital. All my kids and half my friends were born there."

So he is renovating the buildings and putting them to other uses.

A decision on what to do with the hospital is still pending. The Pantages is being converted into a center for the performing arts.

He has spent more than $15,000 restoring the pipe organ in the old Pantages and often swings by the empty theater when he has a few free moments to play some of his favorite songs.

Caglia is a lifelong collector. He has several warehouses in Fresno filled with thousands of items salvaged from his dump.

"Look at this," he declares, pointing out stacks containing copies of every issue of Life — the entire collection of the magazine he found one day in his dump.

"And this — thousands of old records discarded by a local radio station several years ago.

His warehouses are filled with old washing machines, stoves, iceboxes and more.

"It is a crime what people throw away," he sighs.

Pain center to open

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The culprit is pain. Sharp, dull, constant or intermittent.

It can steal sleep, patience, friends and jobs from its victims. Drugs can give relief, but they must be taken in ever-increasing doses.

Until recently, pain was considered a sideline of whatever else was wrong with a patient. Its treatment was secondary.

Beginning early in 1979, Boulder Memorial Hospital will operate a pain-control center to concentrate on the diagnosis and treatment of severe pain. For cases where all else fails, doctors will teach victims to live with pain without daily medication.

Patients will be based at a local hotel and bused to the hospital daily. They will enter the program with their husbands or wives, because the hospital believes that pain control must be understood by the spouse if it is to be effective.

"The person with chronic pain thinks of himself as a sick person and so does his family," explained Joyce Thomson, rehabilitation coordinator at Memorial. "The children are told, 'Don't jostle Dad.' They become little slaves for him, getting his slippers, waiting on him. He could have been a strong person in the family, but his treatment is making him weaker."

There will be no one discipline at Memorial. Surgery may help some patients. If not, the hospital will try relaxation techniques, exercises, heat, massage, ultrasound, biofeedback and transcutaneous, electrical nerve stimulation, which sometimes eases pain.

The cost will be about $1,500 a week, with the typical patient spending four to six weeks and having the spouse involved at least part of the time, a spokesman said.

Founded by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church, Memorial is the kind of hospital where the only coffee served is decaffeinated, and smoking by visitors and staff is banned. The hospital sponsors no-smoking, weight-reduction and tension-reducing classes, suggesting nodrug approaches to health problems.

Opening lead — ♡ 2

East saw at a glance that the opening lead was almost undoubtedly fourth best from a four-card suit and that South had a singleton heart.

If East played the king of hearts South would almost surely work out who had the ace. (It was most unlikely that West had led low from the ace of hearts.) Sooner or later, declarer would lead dummy's queen of hearts to ruff out the ace; and he would eventually discard his diamond loser on the jack of hearts.

DIDN'T HAPPEN

This didn't happen because East was the sort of wretch who enjoyed deceiving an opponent. East won the first trick with the ace of hearts. South drew trumps, ruffed another hearts, and went through a whole series of expert maneuvers—ending up with a diamond finesse. Down one.

"Sorry about my play in hearts," East apologized to his partner. "I had the king of hearts mixed up with my diamonds."

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold: S 63; H AK83; D Q75; . What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three hearts. This forcing raise promises strong trump support of four or more cards, with 13 to 16 points, counting distribution as well as high cards.

John Lloyd defeats Aussie

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Britain's John Lloyd halted the comeback of Australian John Newcombe with a 3-6, 6-3, 7-5, 7-5 victory Thursday in the quarter-finals of the $200,000 Australian Open.

Before a record crowd of 12,000 at center court, the energetic 23-year-old Lloyd returned the powerful Newcombe service with blistering speed and often left his opponent groping at the ball, which already had passed him.

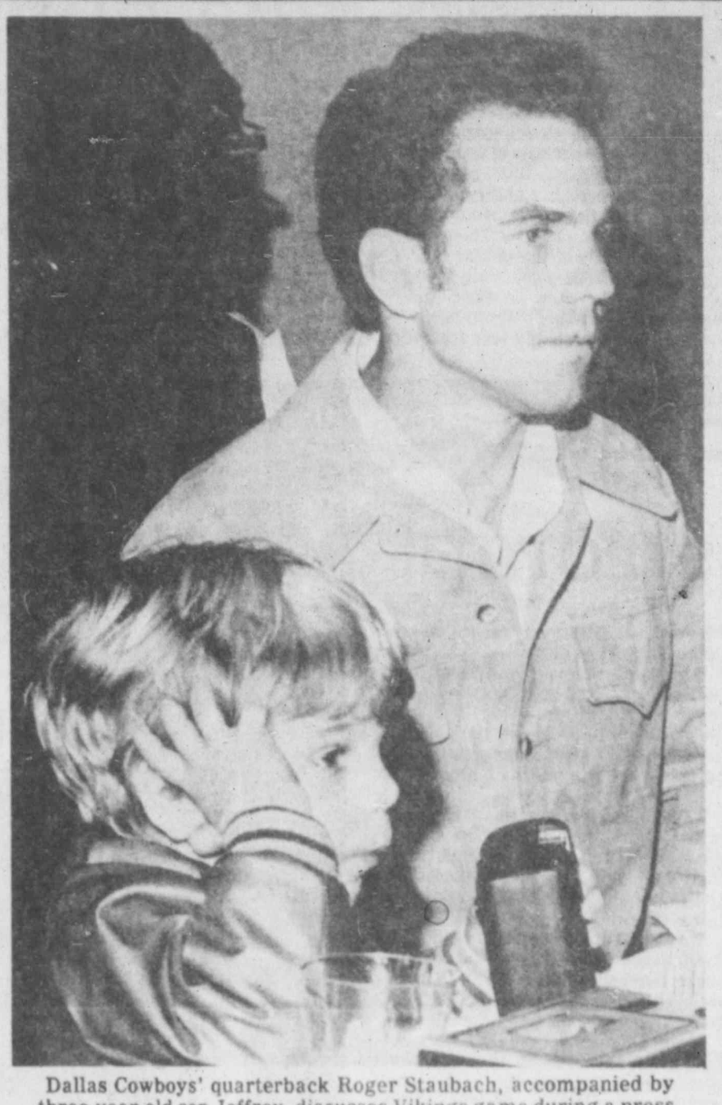

Lloyd, however, was not happy with his own service game, saying, "I took some lessons from Lew Hoad in Spain a few years ago but I seem to be slipping into my old habits lately. My first serve is a bit dodgy and I didn't smash well at all."

A fitness fanatic, Lloyd has been running all week to prepare for the King's Cup in Britain beginning jan. 7.

But he said, "I did not feel confident over the past few days and in practice against Vitas Gerulaitis I felt that I had lost my touch."

But it was Newcombe who lost touch, never really capturing the form he displayed against Stan Smith two days ago.

"It was one of those days when my legs were not moving with my arms and although I was not playing badly, it was hard getting everything coordinated. I was amazed at some of the volleys that I missed," said Newcombe, a three-time Wimbledon champion who has been away from tournament play most of this year.

Dallas handicapped by home field hex

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

DALLAS (AP) — So you think the Dallas Cowboys should be favored in their National Conference title game with Minnesota because they are playing on home turf at Texas Stadium.

Don't rush out and bet your lunch money on it even though the odd-smakers have installed the Cowboys as 11-point favorites for Sunday's game which decides the NFC entry into Super Bowl XII in New Orleans.

Fact: Minnesota has NEVER lost in Texas Stadium.

The Vikings ripped Dallas 27-10 in the 1973 NFC title game, trimmed the Cowboys 23-21 in the 1974 regular season and took a 16-13 pre-season decision in 1975.

So much for the home field jinx.

"WE MIGHT have a little edge because the Vikings have to travel but the home field advantage is greatly exaggerated unless you are playing in a wild place like Denver," said Cowboy Coach Tom Landry.

He added, "I'd call it a tossup ball game."

Dallas traditionally has played well in Texas Stadium and some members of the Chicago Bears, who were butchered 37-7 last week, spoke in awe of the stadium with a hole in the top.

"It (the stadium) can be distracting," admitted Chicago defensive back Doug Plank. "It's that Texas image I guess — the biggest and the best. They've got the team and they've got those Cowgirls (cheerleaders) on the sidelines...if you aren't careful you kinda stand back and watch it all in awe."

Obviously, there's no awe in the Vikings.

The Vikings and Cowboys have represented the NFC in eight of the last nine Super Bowls.

"IT'S BEEN a great rivalry," says Viking Coach Bud Grant. "We've played in a lot of crucial games. We have a lot of respect for Dallas and we feel they have a lot of respect for us. We certainly aren't in awe of them."

Dallas has won two of three playoff games from the Vikings in 1971 and 1975 while Minnesota took the 1973 NFC title game.

"I think both teams appreciate the other," said Grant.

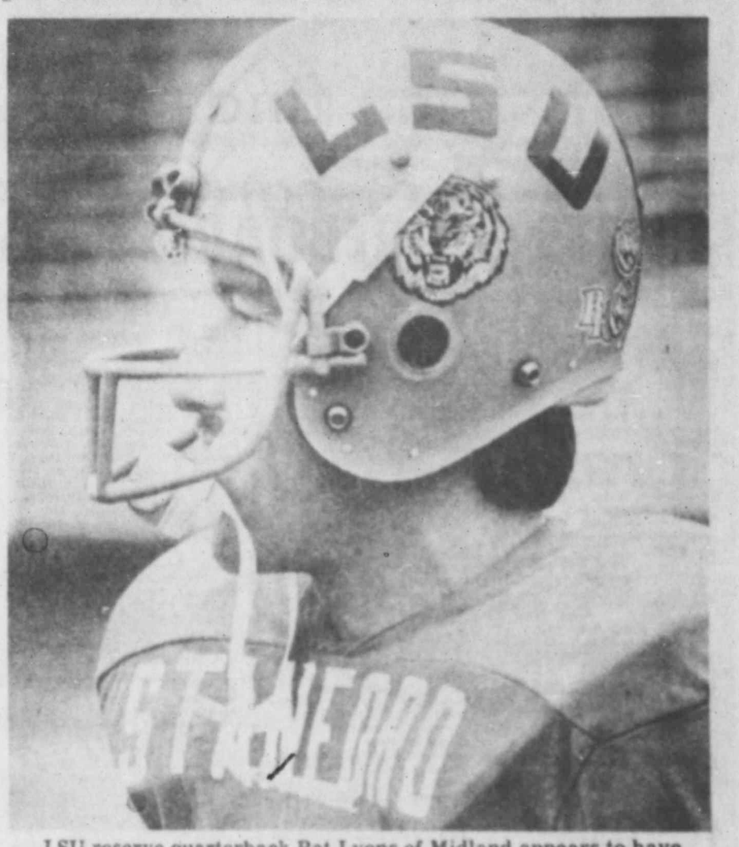

The Vikings, who have been losers in four Super Bowl games, are described as a team long in tooth.

"The hungriest players in this business are the oldest ... they have a better appreciation of what playoff games are worth ... you never have to worry about them," says Grant.

Dallas beat Minnesota 16-10 in overtime in the opening of the regular season as Staubach ran four yards for a touchdown.

"The Vikes have changed with Fran Tarkenton out," said Landry. "They used to be a ball control team now they go for the big play. And they've won two crucial games in a row against Detroit and Los Angeles."

Both, it may be added, on the road.

LSU reserve quarterback Pat Lyons of Midland appears to have joined the wrong team for Saturday's Sun Bowl game against Stanford. Actually, he donned a Stanford jersey to run opposition plays in practice. (AP Laserphoto).

Lose to Irish? Shearer never gave it a thought

DALLAS (AP) — Outland Trophy winner Brad Shearer says he's aware the national title is on the line in the Cotton Bowl but the thought of Texas losing to Notre Dame never occurred to him.

"No, I haven't thought about losing," the Longhorn defensive tackle sniffed. "I think if we go out there and take care of our business we'll win the football game.

"We'll be national champions and we won't have to argue with anybody about it."

The top-ranked Steers meet the Fighting Irish in the Jan. 2 classic and Shearer, an All America selection, was almost flippant as he discussed the contest during a telephone news conference Wednesday.

"You're obviously not awed by Notre Dame," a writer observed.

"WELL," SHEARER replied, "We've had more time to prepare for Notre Dame...I think the intensity is there. I think we're all looking forward to a good game.

"I haven't been in awe of anybody we've played but I don't think that means I haven't any respect for them. I know it's going to be an enthusiastic game because the stakes are high.

"Notre Dame's always playing for the national championship. They're not playing for any kind of a conference championship or anything."

Shearer contends the unbeaten Longhorns played a tougher schedule than the once beaten, fifth-ranked Irish and deserve their lofty status in the national poll.

"I THINK we've definitely played better teams this year than Notre Dame did. We played three teams in the Top Ten," he pointed out. Texas shot down both Orange Bowl foes, No. 2 Oklahoma and No. 6 Arkansas.

"Notre Dame played only USC, and I think Clemson may have been in the Top Twenty, and they gave them a good game," he added.

Cooper, Abilene rule as 5-4A co-favorites

Abilene Cooper's Cougars, last year's District 5-4A playoff representative and Abilene High's Eagles are co-favorites to battle it out for this year's championship in basketball, according to the sports scribes and coaches.

Both the Cougars and Warbirds compiled 90 points each with the differemce being in one third place vote for Coach Marc Case's Cougars while Abilene had six first place and six second place ballots.

Coaches are not allowed to vote for their own team in the balloting. The Cougars had seven first place votes, four second and one third place ballot.

The way the voting went shows just how evenly-matched the two Key City teams are. Cooper has already beaten Abilene and that came in the finals of the Abilene Invitational Tourney back in November by the score of 41-38 in the Eagle Gymnasium.

Both Abilene and Cooper posted victories Tuesday night. The Eagles downed the Temple Wildcats, 76-62 while the Cougars took a 63-58 triumph over Wichita Falls Rider.

Cooper takes a sparkling 16-2 record into 5-4A play Friday night against the San Angelo Bobcats while Abilene will open league play Friday against the Big Spring Steers with a 16-3 reading.

Abilene and Cooper easily outdistanced Odessa Permian which is picked third in the 5-4A race with 65 points followed by Midland High with 63 points, fifth with 59 while San Angelo and Big Spring came up with 38 points each and lowly Odessa High was picked last with 14 points.

Sports writers voting in the poll included Roy Ivey of the San Angelo Standard Times; Bob Wagner, Odessa American; Danny Reagan, Big Spring Herald; Ken Brazzle, Abilene Reporter News amd Bob Dillon of The Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Coaches casting their ballots were Paul Stueckler of Lee; MHS' Dom Humphrey; Al Oglesby of Permian; Curt Chatam of CHS; James Boynton, Abileme; Marc Case, Cooper; James Sharp of San Angelo Central and Tommy Collins of Big Spring.

Midland High received one second place vote while the best Lee could garner was several third place votes.

Lee opens loop play against OHS Friday in the OHS Fieldhouse while Midland entertains Permian in the MHS Gymnasium.

UNC, Tech post wins

HONOLULU (AP) — All-American Phil Ford and Mike O'Koren combined for 56 points to lead second-ranked North Carolina to a 94-81 victory over Brigham Young University.

It earned the Carolina team a berth in Thursday's semifinals action against Texas Tech in the 14th annual Rainbow Classic.

In an earlier game Wednesday, Texas Tech outlasted Rhode Island in overtime play 78-73.

Ford had 31 points and O'Koren added 25 as the Tarheels improved their record to 8-1. Tom Zaliagiris added 10 for the winners, while Keith Rice tallied 31 points for Brigham Young.

Sun Bowl gets serious

EL PASO, Texas (AP)—Stanford and Louisiana State are at the Sun Bowl to have a good time, but they are so serious about Saturday's game that the practices are behind closed doors.

The Sun Bowl, noted as one of the fun events on the postseason holiday football calendar, was drenched by a steady rain Wednesday when the two teams arrived.

LSU Coach Charley McClendon immediately announced his team was closing workouts to the public and the media for only the second time in his career.

Stanford Coach Bill Walsh quickly followed suit.

"Of course, you can go up on a hill and watch if you want to," McClendon laughed about a nearby mountain which overlooks the Sun Bowl. "But we've got some things we want to work on."

McClendon added, "Stanford is a very complicated team and we've got to do some things to offset that."

Stanford Coach Bill Walsh replied, "Seeing as how LSU has closed their practices, I think we'll have to respond in kind. With a bowl game, you have more time to prepare and your game plan is much more elaborate.

"I think we would feel a lot more comfortable closing our practices if theirs are going to be closed. Of course, we welcome the press but we don't want people going around writing about what formation we're running what out of."

The game will match the running of LSU's Charles Alexander, who finished second nationally in rushing with 1,686 yards, against the passing of Cardinal quarterback Guy Benjamin, the country's No. 1 passer.

"It's hard to say who would be the favorite in this," McClendon said. "I think most people are expecting a highscoring affair. In this day, teams are so equal it really is almost always close."

LSU finished the year 8-3 and was runnerup in the Southeast Conference. The Cardinals were also 8-3 and second in the Pacific Eight Conference.

Stanford appears the healthiest. Middle linebacker Gordy Ceresino is fully recovered from a bad knee sprain.

The Tigers may be without backup quarterback Brent Elkins, who suffered an ankle sprain.

LSU made an unscheduled stopover in San Antonio en route to the Sun Bowl Wedesday for extra fuel.

"We were loaded to the gills with equipment and players," said McClendon. "I guess we should have taken the bus."

Blue-Gray game Friday promises aerial fireworks

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Spectators at the Blue-Gray football game Friday had better keep their eyes on the sky over Cramton Bowl, because that's where the action is likely to be for much of the annual all-star showdown.

Both squads in the 40th installment of the North-South battle are loaded with passing — and receiving — talent, and both coaches have made it clear the aerial expertise will not go to waste.

Lou Saban, a longtime National Football league coach now with the University of Miamai, has a pair of strongarmed quarterbacks on his Gray squad — Bruce Threadgill of Mississippi State and Roy Henry of Southern Louisiana. And he promises they will "put the ball in the air."

Among those on the receiving end of the Gray's aerial attack will be Keith Wright of Memphis State and James Wright of Texas Christian.

With Ken Smith of Boston College — the nation's No. 3 passer this season — on his lineup, Blue Coach Joe Yucika, Smith's mentor at Boston College, is not about to let his squad spend too much time on the ground, either.

As Yucika puts it: "It should be an interesting matchup between our people and their secondary."

Sharing signal-calling chores with Smith for the Blues will be Pete Woods of Missouri. They'll be zeroing in on receivers Danny "The Steam Machine" Fulton of Nebraska-Omaha, Joe Stewart of Missouri and Keith Calvin of Indiana.

A stubborn defense was the key to the South's 31-10 victory in the Blue-Gray Classic last year, a win that broke a three-year losing streak. And Saban hopes a beefy defensive line coached by Richard Williamson of Memphis State will carry the day again this year.

In fact, Saban told reporters, "I think I'll let Dick get us two touchdowns and not worry about it."

Kickoff for the nationally televised game is at 1 p.m. CST.

Resourceful Rams achieve impossible once again

By JIM MURRAY
Los Angeles Times Syndicate

First, the good news.

The Los Angeles Rams are a very resourceful team. They always find a way to do the impossible — put the Minnesota Vikings in the Super Bowl.

It's not a minor talent to be taken lightly. It takes grit, perseverance, attention to detail.

It's a very special talent. I mean, some guys understand the Theory of Relativity. Some guys make watches. Other guys write plays. But the Rams have the hang of losing to the Minnesota Vikings. Anytime. Anywhere.

I mean, you think it's easy to lose to the Minnesota Vikings? There are some AFC teams don't think it's possible. They wonder what the Rams' secret is.

It's a formula. You must never give up. Not even when you have the ball on Minnesota's one-foot line, second down and goal to go. You have to trust God. You have to have faith. Minnesota will block a one-foot field goal and run it back for a touchdown.

YOU HAVE to throw end zone interceptions at the right time. Once in a while you have to put in a new wrinkle — like trying a naked reverse on a field a canoe would have trouble making headway.

The Rams could write a book "How To Start A Flood," "How To Poison Your Water Supply" or "How To Surround Paris" or "How To Run Into Icebergs."

The Rams are versatile. They can lose to the Vikes in sub-zero weather in Minneapolis. They have mastered that trick. But, shoot' anybody can do that. You have to be able to lose to the Vikings in the tropics, too.

You have to be able to make Bud Grant smile. For those of you unfamiliar with Bud Grant, he is the coach of the Minnesota Vikings who could give a cold to a polar bear. If you think it's easy to make Harry P. "Bud" Grant smile, you haven't been watching the sidelines. It's like the spring breakup on the Yukon. First come the loud cracks in the cheeks, the teeth appear fleetingly, ridges appear in the glaciers of his cheeks and he starts to cry ice cubes.

Bud Grant knows his Rams. He doesn't care who the coach is, or where the game is played. He doesn't have the fogiest idea how to beat the Oakland Raiders or the Miami Dolphins, Steelers or even the Kansas City Chiefs. But he's playing the Rams with a marked deck.

Have you ever played a guy who, if you picked up a king, he'd pick up an ace? If you made birdie, he'd make eagle. If you called heads, it would come up tails for him. I got a brother-in-law like that.

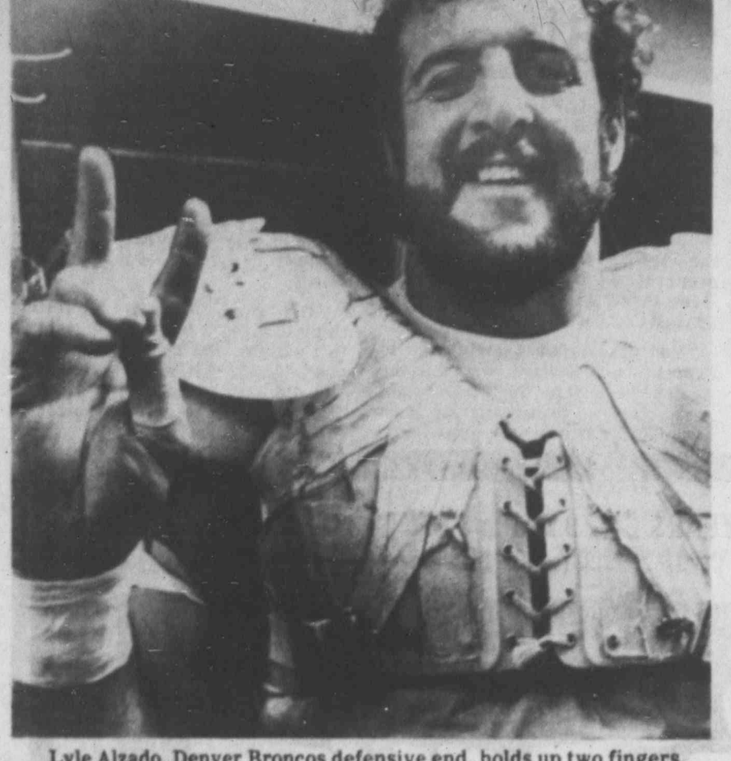

IT WOULD be a mistake to think the Vikings beat the Rams. The Rams beat the Rams. They always do when they face the Vikings in these Super Bowl showdowns. They're like a guy sitting there with these big piles of blue chips and they look over at the Vikes and begin folding full houses and throwing away aces. Or they'll bet into aces showing.

The game was about as exciting as the 1921 Yale-Brown game. It looked like two woolly mammoths in a tar pit.

Listen! It rains about every other eclipse of the sun in Southern California. Three hundred and sixty days a year, the sun is out, the ground is dry and the water company warns you not to shave with the facuets on. You can't water your lawn more than once a week.

So, then the Rams finally got the Minnesota Vikings off that ice floe they think is a field up in Bloom-

Broncos no surprise to Raiders

OAKLAND (AP) — If the Denver Broncos are a Cinderella team, the Oakland Raiders must be the ugliest stepsisters in the National Football League.

The Raiders have been to the NFL's fancy postseason ball, the lucrative playoffs, almost every year while the Broncos were home.

This year, under new Coach Red Miller, the Broncos crashed the party by going 12-2 in the regular season, and they face the Raiders in Sunday's AFC title game at Denver. But Oakland Coach John Madden isn't so sure the Cinderella description fits.

"I'm surprised how some people let the Broncos sneak up on them. They've been awfully close to making it for several years," he notes. "Four years ago, we had to beat them in our 14th game to win the division and get into the playoffs."

That 1974 Denver team, under John Ralston, finished 7-6-1 to Oakland's 9-4-1 in the AFC West. The Broncos dropped to 6-8 the next season after quarterback Charley Johnson missed most of the year because of an injury.

"When Johnson was at quarterback, they had stability at the position and the team was pretty good," says Madden. "Then they weren't sure about the position for a while, but when they got Craig Morton and decided on him as their quarterback, they got that stability back.

"They were probably just a player or two away from being a playoff team, and one of those players was a quarterback."

Madden sees similarities between the building of the Broncos' current team and the way the Raiders' organization run by Al Davis built the team that is the reigning Super Bowl champ.

The Broncos have done well in the draft, he notes, with high picks such as Otis Armstrong, Riley Odoms, Tom Glassic, Randy Gradishar and Louis Wright coming through, along with lower draft picks such as Rubin Carter, Lyle Alzado and Steve Foley.

And, just as the Raiders have struck it rich by landing free agents like Willie Hall and John Matuszak, the Broncos have free agent "finds" in Jack Dolbin, Rob Swenson and others.

Linebacker Swenson was a defensive end at the University of California three years ago and Madden says it's understandable how he was overlooked in the NFL draft.

"The scouts miss a lot of guys like that because they can't see them play the position they might play in pro ball. The same thing happened to Jeff Barnes," he says.

Barnes, who also was a defensive end at Cal, came to the Raiders' training camp as a free agent linebacker candidate this year and now is one of the team's seven rookies.

Terps, Cards, UN-Vegas romp

By The Associated Press

Louisville, Nevada-Las Vegas and Maryland are finding that home is the friendliest place to spend the holidays.

While other college basketball teams travel to places like Florida, the West Coast or Hawaii to play in holiday tournaments, those three nationally ranked schools are hosting their own festivals — and not treating their guests too kindly. All three posted first-round victories Wednesday night.

The seventh-ranked Louisville Cardinals, behind 29 points by Darrell Griffith and 23 by Rick Wilson, overpowered LaSalle 113-85 in a first-round game of the Louisville Holiday Classic.

Louisville will meet Georgia in the finals. Georgia beat Ohio State 84-80 in overtime as Lavon Mercer scored 29 points, including 16 in the second half and four in the extra period.

Ninth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas beat Gonzaga 91-68 in the first round of the Las Vegas Holiday Classic as Earl Evans scored 24 points and pulled down nine rebounds. In the other first-round game, Matt Maderos scored 17 points to help UC-Santa Barbara beat Seattle 58-55.

MARYLAND, RATED No. 14, went on a 21-6 tear to start the second half and defeated Western Kentucky 91-78 in the first round of the Maryland Invitational tournament. Freshman Albert King scored eight points in the decisive burst for the Terps and Bill Bryant had six. Both finished with 19.

In the final, Maryland will meet Georgia Tech, which beat St. John's, N.Y. 73-67 as Tico Brown scored 12 of his 20 points in the final 6½ minutes.

In other games involving Top Twenty teams, No. 15 Indiana beat Florida 73-60 to win the championship of the Gator Bowl tournament; No. 17 Kansas routed Missouri 96-49 in a first-round game of the Big Eight tournament, and No. 19 San Francisco topped Austin Peay 75-66 in the first round of the All-College tourney at Oklahoma City.

LaSalle Coach Paul Westhead was very impressed by Louisville.

"Louisville just exploded like out of a rocket," he said. "They jumped over the tops of people. You just try to contain them. I thought for 30 to 32 minutes, we did a good job; we just couldn't do it for 40 minutes.

"If Louisville has a weakness, they miss too many dunks." The Cardinals missed three of six dunk attempts Wednesday night.

LOUISVILLE COACH Denny Crum praised Griffith, saying, "He shot the ball extremely well. He worked hard. He did a good job rebounding and playing defense. It was his best game this year."

Nevada-Las Vegas, 12-0, had no trouble posting its 70th straight home-court victory, moving out to a 43-22 halftime lead and then coasting home. Paul Cathey scored 18 points and pulled down a tournament record 28 rebounds for Gonzaga.

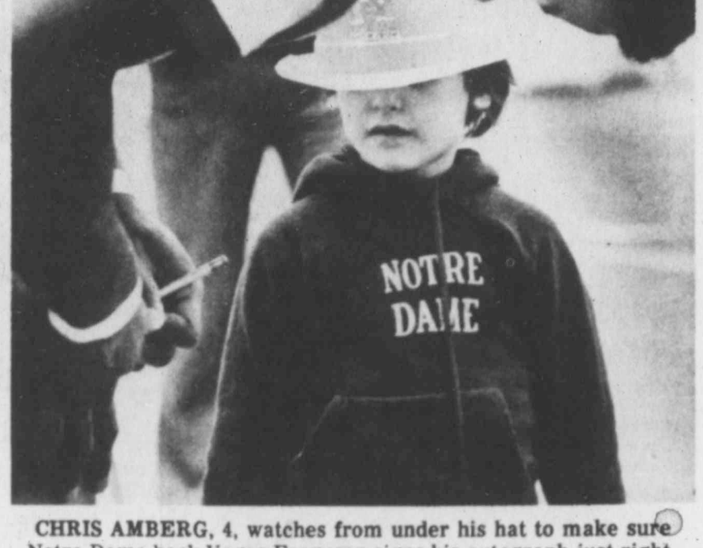

Maryland impressed Western Kentucky Coach Jim Richards with its burst after halftime. "Maryland was an awesome team at the start of the second half," said Richards. "They certainly are an explosive outfit."

THIS IS the seventh time Maryland is hosting a tournament. The Terps have won five of the previous six; their only loss was by six points to UCLA, which went on to win the national title in 1975.

Wayne Radford scored 21 points as the Indiana Hoosiers beat Florida in a tense defensive battle for the Gator Bowl title. Indiana is now 8-1, Florida 7-2.

Greg Sanders scored 31 points to help St. Bonaventure to an easy 103-75 victory over Jacksonville in the consolation game.

Kansas beat Missouri by the widest margin in the 70-year history of their rivalry as Darnell Valentine led a balanced attack with 20 points. Kansas led 52-24 at the half and by as many as 50 points in the late stages.

Girls open cage play

District 5-4A plunges into its first girls basketball race tonight with four games on the schedule and no clear cut favorite for the league title. However, it shouldn't take long for the race to take shape.

Midland Lee hosts Odessa High at 8 p.m. in the Lee High gym after breaking even in its final two tuneups last week.

Midland High, 12-6, treks to Odessa Permian for its inaugural while San Angelo, on a three-game winning streak, plays host at Abilene Cooper and Abilene is at Big Spring.

Both Midland and Lee loom as contenders in the race, but the competition promises to be stiff. Big Spring is better than its pre-district record and should be strengthened by the addition of its volleyball players.

The girls play with six on a team, three in the forecourt and three defensive players in the backcourt. However, there is strong sentiment to change to a fullcourt game with five players for next year.

The contention is that it would better prepare the girls for college basketball and give them a better chance at a scholarship.

It's in the bag, isn't it?

With all the hand-clapping and back-slapping going on, you'd think the Cowboys were already on their way to New Orleans.

Most fans seem to regard Los Angeles' loss to Minnesota as an engraved invitation to Dallas for the Super Bowl. After all, everybody knows how bad the Vikings have been in the championship game.

Four appearances and four defeats and they seem to get more one-sided with each succeeding appearance.

What they forget is that as bad as the Vikings have been in the Super Bowl, that's how good they have been in the National Conference championship game.

It's true the Vikings don't do much except stink up the premises after they get to the Super Bowl, but whatever it takes to get there, that's what the purple gladiators from the northern wastes do.

IN FACT, the Vikings provided the Cowboys with one of their most trying experiences of the regular season when Dallas was forced to come from behind in the season's opener for an overtime win at Bloomington.

Some are quick to note that the Vikings won't even have regular quarterback Fran Tarkenton this time. That's true, but at least the Cowboys' defensive board of strategy had a book on Fran's tendencies and knew how to deal with them.

While there is also probably a book on Fran's successor, Bob Lee, it's not a book Cliff Harris, Randy White, Harvey Martin and Aaron Kyle have read on the field recently.

Complicating matters just a little more is the bench presence of Tommy Kramer, the rookie All-America from Rice. Who knows what he might do if pressed into emergency service. He's an uncharted element who could throw the game away in a fit of frenzy or destroy the oddsmakers' carefully calculated charts, the ones that have established the Cowboys by 11, with a hot hand.

Of course, the Vikings didn't face a Dallas team that had a Tony Dorsett as a starter and it adds an interesting problem for a Minnesota defense that geared itself to quarterback Roger Staubach's passes while confident it could cope with a running game that featured Preston Pearson and Robert Newhouse.

PERHAPS a good illustration of what Dorsett means to the Cowboys' offense was apparent in Dallas' lopsided victory over the Bears Monday. While Chicago lurked in the bushes ready to hug TD, something they attempted with less than howling success, Newhouse erupted for telling gains throughout the first half. The squat runner from the University of Houston has never looked better.

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

Come to think of it, the Cowboys have never looked more devastating this season than they were against the Bears, unless it was the Detroit game.

If there was one disturbing aspect to the victory, it was that Dallas wasted such a superb effort on the Bears instead of saving it for this week or Jan. 15

It brings back memories of 1975 when the Rams obliterated the St. Louis Cardinals, the East Division winner, in the first round and then were in turn humiliated by wild card Dallas, which had needed a Hail Mary pass to beat Minnesota on the frozen tundra up north a week earlier.

Such thoughts could give a Dallas fan a nervous breakdown even before Sunday's 5:30 p.m. Texas Stadium kickoff, still, after the 37-0 rout of the Lions, didn't Dallas lose to St. Louis the following week?

Resourceful LA Rams lose to Vikings again

ington. The Rams got at these track stars. Minnesota's got a team that doesn't play in the sun for years at a time. They're not real sure what color the sky is.

California's had this real long drought where some kids of high school age have never seen a real cloud. They think water comes in bottles.

So, when these clouds began to roll over the L.A. basin Christmas Day, the weatherman said, "Forget it! It'll burn off by noon as usual." In Minnesota even in July, there's only a 20 percent chance of sunshine and intermittent daylight.

But the real followers of the Rams-Vikings encounters of the fifth kind were not fooled. Not even Jimmy the Greek hanging up the Rams or the Tahoe book making them 9 1-2 points could fool veteran Rams-Vikes scholars. The Vikings came down like that guy in L'il Abner who brought his own cloud with him.

And Bud Grant gave everybody a lesson how to defense a cloudburst. The first thing he noticed about the rain was it didn't form icicles. That was a good omen right there.

ALL IN all this wouldn't have been too bad a spring day in Minneapolis. You open the windows on these kinds of days there.

The Rams, on the other hand, didn't know what it was. They had never seen falling water outside a shower before and that wasn't hot. They didn't catch on till the fourth quarter that end-around plays and Statues of Liberty don't work in two feet of water. Neither did much of anything else in the Rams game plan.

Bud Grant knew what to do. Get 7 quick points and then take the football out in the backyard and bury it like a bone. Half-hours went by when the Rams didn't see the ball. We used to play more wide-open games with a rolled-up burlap bag between street lamps on Crescent Street. I think the Vikings held the ball the whole third quarter and most of the rest of them.

"The field gets worse as you play on it. If we were going to get anything passing, we had to get it early," said Bud Grant after the game trying to keep the canary feathers from showing in the corner of his mouth.

HOW COULD the Rams know that? They practice under palm trees all year long and they looked like Charlie Chaplin trying to cross a dance floor all afternoon long.

Arkansas players discontinue suit

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Attorney John W. Waker asked U.S. District Court today to dismiss his suit seeking the reinstatement of three Arkansas Razorback football players to the Orange Bowl.

Judge Terry L. Shell took no immediate action. A spokesman for his office said he would set a date for a hearing on the dismissal motion.

Walker had no comment to reporters as he left the Federal Court Building.

However, running back Ben Cowins said in a statement that he and the two other Razorbacks suspended from the postseason bowl game by Coach Lou Holtz had "instructed our lawyers to discontinue efforts to get us into the Orange Bowl.

"OUR TEAM is strong, our replacements are competent and we can still make a good showing in the Orange Bowl. We regret that we aren't there, but our team has our full support.

"We thought about quitting school, but that would be a cop out. We have never said that we didn't do anything that we shouldn't have done. We only said that we are innocent of a crime and have not broken any valid school rule.

"We believe there are other examples of athletes who have conducted some form of misconduct before a bowl game, but they were not as severely punished. They were disciplined, if at all, in other ways after the game.

"But under the circumstances, including the absence from the state of witnesses and our lack of financial resources to get them back here for this hearing, it is impossible for us of our own knowledge to prove this contention in court today."

COWINS, running back Micheal Forrest and flanker Donny Bobo were suspended from the game by Holtz following a Dec. 20 incident that Cowins said involved a partially-clad young woman at a Fayetteville athletic dormitory.

In testimony Wednesday, Cowins had said his football career would be irreparably damaged if he doesn't play in the Orange Bowl.

Each of the three players has one year of eligibility left.

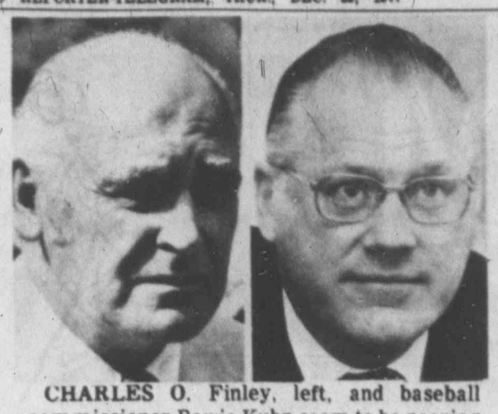

"Everything we have built up in the past three years has been torn down in what, in my opinion, was a rash judgment by Holtz," Cowins said. "All that's left now is for us to salvage what's left."

Walker filed suit Tuesday asking the court to order Holtz and other university officials to allow the three to participate in the Jan. 2 game at Miami.

"A lot of us don't have a lot of smarts," Cowins testified Wednesday while clutching and unclutching a rolled sheet of paper. "We can't make it as big time lawyers. This thing could keep us out of the (pro) draft."

When asked by Walker if his testimony indicated he would be "injured irreparably" by not playing in the Orange Bowl, Cowins said, "Yes."

"We feel something is wrong by us not being in the Orange Bowl. I don't think the team can really come together."

CHARLES O. Finley, left, and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn seem to be nearing the end of their feud with Finley selling his Oakland A's to a Denver businessman and withdrawing from the game. Finley two years ago to try to oust Kuhn as commissioner in an owner's coup.

Texas Aggies arrive for Bluebonnet test

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard figures there's always a mystery to preparing for bowl games but the Aggies had the right formula a year ago.

"Bowl preparations are always in limbo," Bellard said Wednesday as the Aggies arrived to begin final preparations for their New Year's Eve meeting in the Astrodome against Southern California.

"You never know exactly what to expect," said Bellard, who has the Aggies in a bowl for the third straight year. "But we've been having good workouts so I hope we are prepared to play Southern Cal."

Whatever formula the Aggies used a year ago worked. They blistered explosive Florida 37-14 in the Sun Bowl to complete a 10-2 season. Things didn't work out as well two years ago however when the Trojans whipped the Aggies 20-0 in the Liberty Bowl.

"It's always been an interesting thing to me how teams come right up to their peak at kick-off time for a bowl," said USC's John Robinson, who did something right in getting his Trojans ready to upset Michigan in the 1976 Rose Bowl.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Try exercise for insomnia

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I have had trouble getting to sleep. This happens to be a bad time for me and I have a lot on my mind. I don't want to get started on sleeping pills. How should I handle the problem?--J.V.

DEAR J.V.: Exercise--enough to make you feel pleasantly tired-- is one of the best ways to conquer insomnia. But not right beforp bedtime. Tests at St. Louis University indicate that relaxation at that time is a better way to insure getting to sleep. But a good fast walk during the late afternoon or evening would be fine. So would a jog--provided that you are in shape.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Can interior building materials cause headaches?-- Margaret McK.

DEAR MARGARET: Peter Breysse, an environmental health expert at the University of Washington in Seattle, has reported that many new mobile homes have an unusually high level of formaldehyde in the particle board often used throughout the homes.

This is likely to cause headaches, eye and nose and throat irritation, breathing difficulties and nausea. In some of the homes he and his associates tested, the formaldehyde levels were higher than one part per million, which the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health has proposed as a maximum. Breysse says that women seem to be more affected than men, as they spend more time in the home. The symptons are worse on humid days in summer and also on very cold days in winter when the windows are not open. The newer the home, the higher the formaldehyde level.

In general, Breysse says, it can take four years or more for the formaldehyde to dissipate to a fairly safe level. But, he adds, for some people the only safe level is zero.

As if to make matters worse, people troubled by the chemical were, in some instances, told by their doctor that they appeared to have a psychosomatic problem of one kind or another. Being considered bats by your friends and physician, Breysse notes, does not make things any easier.

If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Bombings begin in South Africa

The Washington Post

JOHANNESBURG — Early last week, a group of Christmas shoppers clustered around a cardboard box that had been left on a busy downtown street.

"We're waiting to see if it explodes," one onlooker declared.

Fortunately for them, it didn't. But their behavior indicated that not many South Africans are paying much attention yet to their government's warnings about the emerging phenomenon of urban terrorism.

Since a rash of bombings began Nov. 24, the government has been warning South Africans that, lucky as they have been up to now, they may have to live with a dramatic upsurge in bombings and bomb scares in the future.

"In an urban terror situation such as that now developing in this country, no one — no one at all, black or white — is immune," proclaimed the pro-government newspaper, The Citizen.

The daily paper, with the cooperation of the South African security police, recently ran a four-part series designed to make the public "bomb conscious."

The articles included tips for telephone operators on handling bomb threats, instructions for tenants in buildings that have received threats and a new rule of etiquette:

"South Africans must learn it is now very bad manners to leave unattended articles lying about," said Brigadier C.F. Zietsman, head of the security police.

Officially the government does not consider the bombings specific protests against its racial policies, but rather part of a worldwide phenomenon, or as one security association president put it, "A Third World unpleasantness," that has belatedly come to affect this tense country.

Many residents here agree with this attitude. "It's a worldwide way in which warped people express political dissent," said S. Nigel Mandy, manager of the Carlton shopping center. "In this city, it might be against the government ... but I don't regard it as a dmonstration against apartheid. In Spain, the Basques bomb in order to get apartheid."

Shortly after the first bombing in the last week of November, the government-run radio reminded its listeners that urban terrorism is a fact of life in much of the world — Northern Ireland, for example — and that in some countries it is not possible to walk down the streets safely.

"Remember that as you walk the queit streets of Johannesburg," the commentator said.

Some political observers suggest that the bombings might be the work of students who fled South Africa over the past 18 months and who were recruited abroad for urban terrorist training by the banned African National Congress.

Police officials were either reluctant to answer reporters' queries on the bombings, or failed to return telephone calls, but Brigadier Zietsman gave support to the student theory in a local newspaper interview when he said: "Over the last year police have picked up steadily increasing numbers of 'shopping bag' or 'suitcase' bombs ... Combined with the increasing flow of Sowetan students returning from terrorist training. This makes for a high-risk bomb situation." Sowetan students are from Soweto, the black township near Johannesburg.

Minister of police and justice, Jimmy Kruger, has said that the bombings are proof that his Oct. 19 security clampdown, in which dissident organizations were banned and scores of people were arrested, had been necessary.

In a related announcement made last week, Maj. Gen. David Kriel, deputy commissioner of police in charge of riot control, said that violence, arson, rioting and unrest in South Africa's black townships had dropped by up to 85 percent since the Oct. 19 clampdown.

The four recent bombings began with the explosion in the posh downtown Carlton shopping center, owned by diamond magnate Harry Oppenheimer's Angle-Ameican Corp. In contrast to that blast, the three subsequent bomb targets — a railway van, the storeroom of a suburban police station and cars in a railway parking lot — were not well-known or in crowded areas.

Carter family cleaning up in other areas

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It used to be when folks thought of the Carter family, they thought of peanuts. Not any more.

In the 11 months Jimmy Carter has been president, members of his family have parlayed his position into almost a million-dollar windfall.

The president's kinfolk have come a long way since that hot summer in Plains, Ga., a year and a half ago when Amy was selling lemonade for a dime and tuna fish sandwiches for a dollar.

Now there are books — one about Carter's mother's Peace Corps days in India, two about faith healing and one in preparation about brother Billy.

And there are personal appearances by Billy Carter — at the World Champion Belly-flop and Cannonball Diving contest in Canada and the World Champion Pole-climbing contest in Kentucky, to name only two.

Billy's agent says he makes four such appearances a month at $5,000 each. That would be $240,000 a year.

The president's younger brother has put his picture and signature on a new beer called "Billy." It was first marketed last fall by the Falls City Brewing Co. of Louisville, Ky., which owns the rights.

Cousin Hugh Carter, who owns a worm farm in Plains, said his business has increased 25 percent since Jimmy Carter went to the White House. He said he sells 15 million worms a year — about $104,250 gross.

The president's sister, Gloria Carter Spann, compiled the letters her mother wrote while she was in the Peace Corps. The book, "Away From Home: Letters to My Family," has sold 35,000 hardback copies, according to Emily Boxer of Simon and Schuster, the publisher.

Has the president ever discussed the family's moneymaking ventures with her?

"Jimmy has never said a word to me ...," she replied.

The president's other sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, has been a faith-healing evangelist for 20 years. She, too, is doing well as an author. And she recently purchased a 30-acre ranch outside Dallas, Texas, which she plans to turn into a spiritual retreat.

President Carter's children are also attuned to the times.

Son Jeff, 25, and his wife, Annette, who are interested in photography, recently sold 10 pictures to the annual edition of Life magazine for $10,000. The first lady's press secretary said they plan to give the money to charity.

Judy Carter, who is married to the president's 30-year-old son, Jack, has become a contributing editor to Redbook magazine, following in the journalistic tradition of presidential daughters.

Carter's middle son, Chip, 27, worked part-time for the Democratic National Committee. He was paid $8,000 for the seven months' work before moving back to Plains with his wife last September.

His cousin, Hugh Carter Jr., has a $51,000-a-year job at the White House in charge of administrative matters and cutting costs.

Palmdale Bulge put under study

The Los Angeles Times

PALMDALE, Calif. — More than 300 scientists, engineers and technicians will swarm all over the Palmdale Bulge for three months beginning in mid January in a special effort to determine the exact contours and extent of this mysterious swelling in the earth's crust.

The $1.4 million project, to be funded by the U.S. Geological Survey (USGS), will attempt to capture a "stop-action" picture of the more than 32,000 square miles of affected Southern California land.

From this, scientists will try to determine if, indeed, a major earthquake is in the making deep below the uplifted surface.

"The real extent and amount of elevation changes raise the possibility that the stored energy, if released in a single earthquake, could yield a seismic event as large as the great earthquake of 1857." Dr. Robert M. Hamilton, chief of the USGS's Office of Earthquake, Studies in Reston, Va., said.

The earthquake, which broke a 200-mile-long segment of the San Andreas Fault north of Los Angeles, was a giant tremor with an estimated Richter scale magnitude of more than 8.

Hamilton said it was also possible that the accumulated energy in the Palmdale Bulge might be played out in a series of smaller earthquakes — with magnitudes of around 6 — over a period of many years and over many segments of satellite faults from Santa Barbara to San Bernardino, from Palmdale to the Imperial Valley.

He said it might be possible for the bulge to subside completely and not trigger any earthquakes at all. Most scientists, however, regard this last possibility as remote.

Over the last two years, scientists trying to draw an accurate picture of parts of the bulge by carrying out surveys at several points in Southern California have been frustrated when they sought to close the loop at the starting point. The starting point had seemed to be either higher or lower than it was when the survey had begun.

Now, however, the USGS hopes to close all the loops in Southern California. Thirsty-six teams of surveyors, numbering more than 300 specialists, will take to the field next month and carry out the operation.

The team will be drawn from the USGS, the National Geodetic Survey, seven Southern California counties (including Los Angeles, Ventura, Orange, Riverside, Imperial, San Bernardino and San Diego), the city of Los Angeles, The Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and the Metropolitan Water District.

The 36 teams will run survey lines totaling about 2,500 miles in length. They also will carry out precise gravitational measurements at each leveling site.

USGS scientists, in announcing the project Monday, said that the bulge apparently began to develop sometime after May, 1959.

About mid 1961, the land in the vicinity of Palmdale, Barstow and Mojave apparently rose by as much as 25 centimeters, or about 10 inches. During the remainder of the 1960s, the land rose another 10 centimeters, for a total uplift of about 14 inches.

Between 1972 and 1974, the USGS said, the swelling spread to the southeast of Palmdale, where a maximum of 45 centimeters (almost 18 inches) of uplift occurred near the Yucca Valley.

Since then, parts of the bulge have subsided. The Palmdale region has deflated about 6 inches and other regions have also dropped varying amounts.

House panel plans broad probe of space programs

By GEORGE C. WILSON
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The House next month will conduct the first broad congressional inquiry into the scope and direction of President Carter's space program, Chairman Olin E. Teague, D-Texas, of the House Science and Technology Committee said last week.

Teague said in a telephone interview he intends to look into both civilian and military space activities, including the antisatellite weaponry that the Pentagon is developing for fear the Soviets are ahead in this area.

The civilian space program — run by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration — has been shrinking since the Apollo manned landings on the moon, while the military's space program has been growing.

"We keep hearing by the grapevine," Teague said, that the Carter administration has ordered the civilian space program to retrench to save money, Teague said he wants to examine the administration's plans to see if this is true.

NASA Administrator Robert A. Frosch and Maj. Gen. Thomas P. Stafford, the former Air Force astronaut who commands the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., will be called toward the end of the hearings to testify respectively on the civilian and military space programs, Teague said.

He said the hearings would start next month. No date has been set.

NASA leaders, worried about the agency's diminishing appropriations, commissioned the New York public relations firm of Burson-Marsteller last year to study why the agency was losing appeal both inside and outside the government.

In its report, the firm said NASA had failed to focus its work "in the sense of any coherent image. The picture of NASA that is in focus is Big Budget, Big Spectaculars and, bottom line, a hundred pounds of moon rocks ..."

James E. Webb, who headed NASA in its heyday during the Apollo program, was asked by The Washington Post what he thought was needed to rejuvenate the civilian space program.

Stressing that he was not "looking over my shoulder" at his successors and passing judgment, Webb said he thought the big opportunity was "for us to do the work of the world" with space technology.

U.S. satellites could help the world manage its food and water, discover minerals and other resources, Webb said, under an international program that would attract other nations as long as they could see the direct benefits to themselves.

Pentagon leaders have been warning recently that they must step up military space preparations, partly to protect satellites used for communicating and navigating. Defense Secretary Harold Brown, for example, said on Oct. 4 that he found it "troublesome" that the Soviets had apparently perfected a space weapon that could destroy "some" U.S. satellites.

The Joint Chiefs of Staff, in their military posture statement for fiscal 1978, warned that "the heretofore accepted sanctuary of space may be jeopardized." Discussing the Soviets, the chiefs said, "in terms of space weapon capability, they are ahead and are likely to continue in the lead for the next several years."

NASA's budget for space activities alone, as distinguished from such other work as airplane research, plummeted from $5.17 billion in fiscal 1965 to $3.6 billion in the current fiscal year. The Pentagon's space budget rose from $489.5 million in fiscal 1959 to $2.77 billion this fiscal year.

Carter's civilian space policy has been to encourage NASA to exploit the technology in hand rather than start any new bold programs. He also has said that he hopes the United States and the Soviet Union can agree to keep space off-limits to hostile action, such as the destruction of each other's satellites.

Perot's company gets foot in door for contracts

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Texas multimillionaire H. Ross Perot has wedged a foothold in the lucrative federal contract market for computer services that could lead to bigger contracts and profits for a subsidiary of his holding company, Electronic Data Systems Corp. of Dallas.

In a move that ended a nine-month-long battle between the Department of Housing and Urban Development and a consortium of 132 private insurers who had run the nation's flood insurance program for eight years, HUD awarded a $12 million, one-year contract to an EDS subsidiary.

Beginning Jan. 1, EDS Federal Corp. will process flood insurance claims for the national flood insurance program, while the federal government will cover any losses which exceed funds available from insurance premiums.

The National Flood Insurers' Association, the consortium which funs the program through Dec. 31, unsuccessfully sought to block the EDS award in the courts and through intensive lobbying efforts on Capitol Hill.

A federal court judge delayed the award from its initial Dec. 2 signing date to grant NFIA a hearing on its motion for an injunction, but later dismissed the consortium's suit.

Congress could have blocked the award by a joint resolution barring HUD Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris from changing the type of program under which the flood plan is administered. Many senators and congressmen attempted to pressure the White House and HUD into delaying any decision on the flood program until Congress reconvenes Jan. 19, but their efforts during the last hectic weeks of this session had little impact.

NFIA operated the program as an underwriter with $48 million of capital risk, although none of it was ever actually paid out, in addition to administering the program and writing policies. EDS, which is primarily a data processing firm, will undertake no risk — that burden will be shifted to HUD under the new program.

This change and a dispute that arose over alleged discrepancies in the bids presented by NFIA and EDS for 1978 were the key issues in the congressional fight over the flood plan.

When negotiations between HUD and NFIA broke down this fall, HUD awarded EDS Federal Corp. a $660,000 unbidded transition contract to study and arrange the administrative transfer of the computer records of policyholders from NFIA to whatever firm was to be selected under competitive bidding for the 1978 contract.

Government sources and electronics industry analysts say Perot, whose companies have not handled a federal contract before, apparently is gearing up too big on much larger federal projects. Perot holds 58.8 percent of the outstanding shares of EDS Corp., which last year reported $16,428 million in profits.

Some sources hinted that he plans to capitalize on the expertise of two of his divisions — computer operations and health care facilities — in making proposals for Medicare, Social Security and national health insurance programs, should the latter come into existence.

Two EDS subsidiaries, however, National Health Insurance Co. and EDS Fidelity Corp., currently underwrite claims benefit payments for the Texas state medicaid program and North Carolina's state prepaid pharmaceutical plan.

An EDS spokesman in Dallas Thursday, however, denied that the company is planning an aggressive move into the federal contracts arena. He said the flood insurance contract "is a very natural fit for us. We have a lot of experience in the insurance business and in claims and underwriting...I wouldn't say it's part of a grand scheme though."

The dispute over the HUD award to EDS also brought to light EDS' recent difficulties with two unrelated computer contracts.

The company is the defendant in a $115 million suit brought by the F&M Schaefer Corp. of New York.

How do people live? Check new government book

By SUSANNA McBEE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the last decade urban Americans have markedly changed their lifestyles — they are working fewer hours for pay, spending less time on family matters and devoting themselves much more to leisure.

These findings are reported in a study that is included in a 647-page Commerce Department book called "Social Indicators 1976" that is being published Wednesday.

The book is a product of four years of work by a team of statisticians headed by Denis F. Johnston, a sociologist in the department's Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards. The statistical office and the Census Bureau, which is also part of the Commerce Department, compiled the volume from a variety of government and private research studies.

"This is the first time that we've tried to include so much data that reflect the quality of ilfe in the country," Johnston said.

It is the second time the government has sought to tell us how we live, procreate, spend money, commit crime, get educated, work, and die. The first such effort, a 272-page volume produced by the Office of Management and Budget, came out in February, 1974, and was called "Social Indicators 1973."

The new book contains many more studies aimed at finding out how people feel about such things as their community, family life, jobs, and financial situation.

Johnston admitted that "the opinion data are the weakest, because samples are small and some questions — like 'How satisfied are you with your job?' — may not elicit real feelings. But such surveys constitute one dimension of a social indicator, and they're an attempt to describe what well-being means."

The report on average hours per week spent on major types of activity was cimpiled last year by the Communication Research Center at Cleveland State University and compares a sample of 1,218 urban people in 1965 with a similar sample of 726 people in 1975.

It shows that employed men, married and single, spent more than 51 hours a week at work in 1965. Ten years later married men were spending 47.7 hours on the job and single men, 40 hours. Employed women spent 38.4 hours if they were married, and nearly 40 hours if they were single on the job in 1965. But in 1975 married women spent 30 hours and single women 38.8 hours at work, the survey said.

Time spent on family care, which Johnston said includes shopping and cleaning house as well as child care, dropped from 25.4 hours a week to 20.5 hours during the decade.

Married housewives, who had devoted 50 hours a week to family care in 1965, were spending 44 hours on it in 1975, and the time married working women spent on such activity dropped from 28.8 hours to just under 25 hours.

Leisure time went up for all groups sampled, but for single men the increase was most dramatic — from 36 hours a week to nearly 45 hours.

Asked about the increase, Johnston said, "I don't know the reason. These data raise questions far more than they answer them.

"We used to think of the single male as one who's working like mad. But it looks as if he's opted for a lifestyle that includes some long skiing weekends. Economists would say that we're taking our increased affluence in the form of more leisure rather than more money.

"In households where women are working, men have an option to work less. The fact that women have more leisure time and spend less on family care could mean that children are not getting the attention they used to have or it could reflect the vast proliferation of packaged foods and other labor-saving devices.

Two hurt in accident

LYBROOK, N.M. (AP) — One man was in critical condition and another was in fair in the aftermath of a fire at the Southern Union Refining Co. on New Mexico 44 between Cuba and Bloomfield.

The two injured employees were transferred Wednesday from the Cuba Health Center to Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque.

They were James Roundtree, 30, and Harry Johnson, 25, both of the Lybrook area. Roundtree was in critical condition at BCMC.

Ted Stiffler, a Bloomfield plant superintendent filling in for the vacationing Lybrook superintendent, said the fire broke out about 3 p.m. Wednesday, apparently caused by "some type of gas leak."

The fire, Stiffler said, was located at the center of the plant and broke out perhaps in the plant's control room.

"That whole section of the plant (control room) is pretty well burnt. There's quite a bit of damage," said plant manager James Martin.

The refinery, which processes about 70 million cubic feet of natural gas daily, primarily produces gasoline, propane and other gas by-products.

The plant is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southern Union Gas Co. with headquarters in Dallas, Texas. Gas Company of New Mexico is a division of the Dallas company.

Crockett test set

Methane Gas Co. of Dallas spotted location for No. 2-H Seahorn 3/4 mile west of the Adams-Braggett (Canyon sand gas) field in Crockett County, 30 miles south of Ozona.

Location for the 5,600-foot operation is 796 feet from south and 2,070 feet from west lines of D. Y. Jackson survey No. 81/2, abstract 4635.

Gas strike potentials

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 1-4-D University, a former McKee well in the Martin field of Andrews County, has been completed as a discovery in a shallow zone.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 219,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 2,704 to 2,800 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and 15,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Wellsite is 1,845 feet from north and 678 feet from west lines of section 1, block 11, University Lands survey and 25 miles southwest of Andrews.

Explorer scheduled

Gulf Oil Corp. spotted location for an 8,000-foot wildcat in Hockley County, four miles northwest of Whitharral.

It is No. 1 Margaret Reed Cooke Estate, 660 feet from north amd east lines of labor 4, league 717, State Capital Lands survey and ¾ mile east of the Yellowhouse field.

World oil production highest ever in 1977

TULSA, Okla. — Worldwide petroleum production in 1977 was the highest ever, while exploration efforts expanded global oil and gas reserves.

Russia, the world's No. 1 producer, once again boosted output from year-earlier levels but not by as much as in the past, the Oil & Gas Journal reports.

The Soviet Union's oil output is expected to average 10.92 million barrels a day in 1977, compared with almost 9 million barrels a day in Saudi Arabia and about 8.6 million barrels a day in the U.S., the No. 2 and 3 producers, respectively, in the world.

"An industry that can produce 22 billion barrels of oil and 53 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and still add 5.5 billion barrels and 193 trillion cubic feet of reserves has to have a tremendous future," the Journal comments in an editorial in its Dec. 26 issue.

In its annual Worldwide Report, the weekly business magazine says 1977 global oil flow increased 3.9 percent to about 59.5 million barrels a day — about 21.7 billion barrels for the year.

Gas production increased an estimated five percent to a record 53 trillion cubic feet for the year.

Russia's gain over 1976 oil production was about 526,000 barrels a day, which permitted another rise in oil imports, now about 2.5 million barrels a day.

Significantly, western Siberia accounted for all of the USSR's net production increase for 1977. And that region is having its share of problems.

Production in supergiant Samotlor field has peaked. And the Soviets, already pushing output to the limit to meet official targets, have no readily available replacement capacity to take up the slack, the Journal says.

That, coupled with disappointing exploration results virtually nationwide, accounts for the slippage from the past pace of Russian production gains, which peaked at almost 640,000 barrels a day in 1975.

Western Siberia's Salym field, once throught to be another supergiant, has been a superdisappointment. The Soviet Government's present five-year plan covering 1976-80 calls for 184 development wells in that field.

Meanwhile, the Journal says, non-Communist oil production glutted world markets most of the year, increasing 3.4 percent to about 46.4 million barrels a day, or almost 17 billion barrels for the year.

Output by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries totaled 30.77 million barrels a day, or 66 percent of global supply.

The additions to global oil and gas reserves are good news for consumer countries. Oil reserves now total 646 billion barrels, the Journal says. And gas reserves, which gained 193 trillion cubic feet during 1977, are 2.52 quadrillion.

Those reserves represent a 30-year supply of oil and a 50-year supply of gas at current rates of production. But, the Journal points out editorially, there are some hidden hazards.

Geologists think sizable petroleum resources remain to be discovered, which means current reserves figures are somewhat understated. On the other hand, the year's supply figures don't take into account the speed with which growing demand gobbles up reserves.

Sometime in the next decade, most experts expect the world's appetite for petroleum to surpass supply.

That's difficult for the public to see, the Journal says, since right now the world is virtually swimming in oil with new production coming in from Alaska, Mexico, and the North Sea.

Part of the reason for the oil glut is suppressed demand in Europe, where economies are still sluggish. Once they recover and demand picks up again, the current world surplus could evaporate quickly.

Another trouble are is refining capacity. At present, thre's too much of it in many parts of the world; and it climbed still another 2.25 million barrels a day during 1977 to 77.3 million barrels a day.

Of that, non-Communist capacity rose 1.38 million barrels a day to reach 63.35 million barrels a day, and Communist countries jumped capacity 870,000 barrels a day to 13.94 million.

In Europe some facilities were shut down to cut financial losses.

The overall operating rate of 1977 was only 77 percent of capacity. Compounding the surplus refining capacity problem is the inability of some existing facilities to process sour — or high-sulfur — crudes, which comprise 70 percent of incremental supply.

So the seemingly rosy supply picture "is no cause for complacency," the Journal says.

"The focus most not be on the current surplus but rather on economic, research and investment policies that will bring forth supplies a decade from now. Otherwise, the great promise implicit in the 1977 statistics will not be realized."

Nine wildcats, 15 stepouts, offsets scheduled

Operators have scheduled nine wildcats and 15 stepouts, outposts and offsets in Schleicher County's Canyon-Strawn trend area.

Jay-Bo Inc. of Fort Worth will drill No. 3 Dick Comptom 1¾ mile east of the Henry Speck (Canyon gas) field and 660 feet from south and east lines of section 195, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 1 Spence is two miles southeast of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 164, block A, HE&WT survey.

The same operator will dig No. 2 Spence 2⅝ miles southeast of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 164, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 3 E. N. Edmiston is 15/8 miles southeast of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from south and east lines of section 172, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 1 A. W. Keys is to be dug 1½ miles northeast of the Henry Speck area and 660 feet from south and west lines of section 194, block A, HE&WT survey.

This project originally was scheduled by Wedgco, Inc., of Fort Worth as No. 1 Faull.

Wedgco, Inc., announced plans to drill No. 1 Charles Sudduth 1¾ mile southeast of the Henry Speck field 660 feet from south and west lines of section 193, block A, HE&WT survey.

Wedgco also will dig No. 2 W. T. Parker Estate 1¾ miles southeast of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 202, block A, HE&WT survey.

Each of the above wildcats will be drilled to 8,000 feet and are from eight to 13 miles southwest of Eldorado.

Jay-Bo will re-enter and clean out to old total depth of 8,000 feet for completion attempt in a wildcat pay at the UV Industries, Inc. of Salt Lake City No. 1 Mary Davis Coupe.

The project now will be operated as Jay-Bo No. 1-A Mary Coupe. It is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 201, block A, HE&WT survey and 10.5 miles southwest of Eldorado. It was abandoned in 1974.

OUTPOST TESTS

Jay-Bo Inc. spotted location for No. 2-A Mary Coupe one mile north of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 201, block A, HE&WT survey. It will drill to 8,000 feet.

Jay-Bo No. 4 Dick Compton will be dug one mile east of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from south and west lines of section 195, block A, HE&WT survey. It also will be carried to 8,000 feet.

Jay-Bo No. 4 H. A. Fuessel is another 8,000-foot test one mile from production. It is north and slightly east of the field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 196, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo staked site for No. 2 E. N. Edmiston one mile southeast of Henry Speck production. Slated for an 8,000-foot bottom, it is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 172, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 2 Cox will be drilled 4,500 feet southwest of the Henry Speck field and seven miles southwest of Eldorado. Slated for an 8,000-foot bottom, it is 660 feet from south and 3,300 feet from west lines of section 135, block A, HE&WT survey

STEPOUT TESTS

Jay-Bo No. 1 A. J. Stevens is ⅝ mile northeast of Strawn production in the Eldorado, Southwest field and 467 feet from south and west lines of section 162, block A, HE&WT survey. It is eight miles southwest of Eldorado. The contract depth is 8,000 feet.

Jay-Bo No. 1 Dick Compton, another 8,000-foot test will be drilled 3,960 feet east of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 195, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 2 Dick Comptom will be dug ⅝-mile south of Henry Speck production and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 195, block A, HE&WT survey. It too will be drilled to 8,000 feet.

Jay-Bo No. 2 H. A. Fuessel is an 8,000-foot test 1,320 feet from Henry Speck production and 660 feet from south and east lines of section 196, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 5 H. A. Fuessel, another 8,000-foot operation, is ½ mile north of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and east lines of section 196, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 1 E. N. Edmiston will be drilled to 8,000 feet ⅝ mile south of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 172, block A, HE&WT survey.

OFFSET TESTS

Bettex, Inc., No. 3 Kent is an 8,000-foot operation one location north of Strawn gas production in the Eldorado, Southwest field. It is 1⅞ miles northeast of Canyon gas production in the Sawyer field and eight miles southwest of Eldorado.

Drillsite is 3,107 feet from north and 467 feet from west lines of section 161, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 3-A Mary Coupe is one location north of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from south and east lines of section 201, block A, HE&WT survey. It too is slated for an 8,000-foot bottom.

Jay-Bo No. 3 H. A. Fuessel is one location northeast of Henry Speck production. The 8,000-foot test is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 196, block A, HE&WT survey.

Jay-Bo No. 4-A Mary Coupe will be drilled ¾ mile northeast of the Henry Speck field and 660 feet from south and west lines of section 201, block A, HE&WT survey. Contract depth is 8,000 feet.

Activity flurry sends new tests above 150-mark

The location count in the Permian Basin Empire of West Texas and Southeast New Mexico was up 42 sites last week, with the staking of 43 wildcat and 111 development tests.

Two weeks ago a total of 112 applications were filed. The count consisted of 23 wildcats and 89 pool tests.

District 7-C of the Texas Railroad Commission drew the largest number of wildcat locations with 23, followed by District 8-A, with 10 and District 8, with seven. Southeast New Mexico recorded three.

The San Angelo Texas Railroad Commission office reported 43 field tests slated while in District 8 in Midland 40 new field projects have been planned. District 8-A with offices in Lubbock drews 15 new field tests.

If you're considering a BMW 530i, drive a Peugeot 604.

Like the BMW 530i, the Peugeot 604 SL has power steering (ours is rack and pinion), power-assisted four-wheel disc brakes, stabilizer bars front and rear, McPherson struts, and a head-spinning ability to make tight turns.

The Peugeot 604 has also been engineered for a superior level of comfort. With oversized shock absorbers, large coil springs, a floating differential, and seats that are actually tuned to the suspension system. And with comforts like air conditioning, fully reclining front bucket seats, and power windows—all of which come as standard equipment.

But comfort isn't the only thing that sets the 604 apart from the BMW. There's also the price. Which starts at about $11,000* And which may be its most comforting feature of all.

President embarks on six-nation trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, embarking today on an aerial odyssey to six nations on two continents, says the delay in enacting a national energy program will hang over his travels like a cloud.

And shortly before leaving today, the president said: "We will be reaffirming our dedication to peace and our support of justice and human rights."

The president left Andrews Air Force Base at 7:57 a.m. EST for Poland, more than eight hours away.

Carter said in a television interview Wednesday night that "energy will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip," because at every stop "what our nation does about energy will be a prime question."

Describing the unfinished business of an energy policy as "that cloud" which will determine "the leadership qualities of our nation," Carter said he hoped his trip somehow would help spur Congress and the American people to action.

Carter cited energy as a thread running through his itinerary when an interviewer suggested his travels to Poland, Iran, India, Saudi Arabia, France and Belgium lack a theme.

Rejecting this notion, Carter described the trip, postponed once because of the energy debate and subsequently scaled down in scope, as carefully planned.

"Every stop will be productive for us," the president predicted.

Talking specifically about Poland, Carter said that although it has a Communist government and close ties with the Soviet Union, it also maintains friendly relations with the United States and engages in considerable trade with the West.

He said the Polish government is "relatively willing to give people their religious freedom and other freedoms," a factor weighed in scheduling a visit by a president who is known throughout the world for espousing the cause of human rights.

Besides conferring in Warsaw with leader Edward Gierek and visiting monuments to Polish resistance to Nazi forces during World War II, Carter will hold an unusual news conference in Warsaw Friday for American and Polish reporters. To be broadcast live in the United States, it will be the first formal news conference ever held by an American president in a Communist country.

Carter choice to head Fed receives praise

By JACK EGAN
The Washington Post

NEW YORK — G. William Miller, President Carter's surprise choice to head the Federal Reserve Board, may not have the economic and financial background normally associated with the rarified post of central banker. But it is not the first time he has stepped up to an unlikely challenge. That's how he got his job as head of Textron, Inc., the original conglomerate.

Born in Oklahoma, he was educated at the Coast Guard Academy where he received a degree in marine engineering. At the University of California at Berkeley, he got a law degree. Miller, as a fledgling attorney with the Wall Street firm of Cravath, Swaine & Moore, was assigned to help Textron founder Royal Little make an acquisition.

Impressed by his ability, Little asked Miller in 1956 to join Textron for a one-year trial period with the understanding that if he made it, he would make it big. Four years later, at 35, Miller became president of the company which last year had sales of $2.6 billion.

In the intervening years Miller, 53, has gained a reputation for acumen and public service within the business community where he is well known and well liked. Outside of the councils of big business, however, Miller is largely unknown.

The news of his appointment to a job that is regarded by some as second in power only to that of the president, was greeted by businessmen and others who know him with high praise and predictions that he will prove a tonic for business confidence.

"I think the selection is super," commented Bank of America chairman A.W. Clausen, who said it was "welcome news to the business community I'm sure." National Association of Manufacturers President Larry Heath said it was "one of the finest appointments President Carter has made" and he called Miller "one of our nation's truly competent business executives."

G. William Miller

House Banking Committee chairman Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., was also enthusiastic. "He sounds great," said Reuss, adding "his record on making jobs is excellent, and I'd like to see our monetary policy focus not just on a stable dollar but on stable jobs."

Others less familiar with him were more cautious, but also basically positive.

"I think we're dealing with a man not prominent in the monetary field, so there's nothing to get your teeth into," said John H. Perkins, president of Continental Illinois Bank and president-elect of the American Bankers Association. He noted that Miller has a reputation as "a strong leader" in the business fraternity and predicted "he's going to try to do a good job."

Public transportation needed here, study says

A recently completed analysis of Midland's transportation needs by a team of General Motors experts has concluded that Midland does need a public transportation system, John Ingram, chairman of the Midland Chamber of Commerce's Transportation Task Force, said Wednesday.

The study team concluded that transportation needs existed for social agencies, in the downtown business district, at the Midland Regional Air Terminal and in the Air Park area, Ingram said during a Midland Chamber of Commerce board of directors meeting Wednesday.

A proposal to meet those transportation needs would be ready at the first part of the year, Ingram said.

Also at the meeting, housing committee chairman Ron Schwisow told the board that during the first part of next year groundbreaking will take place for a three-bedroom home that will sell for slightly over $20,000.

The home is partially prefabricated and is designed as a test model to gauge public acceptance of such structures, Schwisow said. It will be the first new house in many years to be constructed east of Big Spring Street, Schwisow said.

The reason for the location, Schwisow said, was that lots in other locations, such as northwest Midland, frequently cost $9,000 or more. East of Big Spring Street, however, there are numerous lots available at a much cheaper prices, he explained.

This housing project "is not a panacea, but a step in the right direction" toward solving Midland's housing needs for homes in the $20,000 to $30,000 range, Schwisow said.

He said that the overall housing situation in Midland was good. He said there was a surplus of between 200 and 300 houses in Midland this year and 400 new apartment units have been opened or will open shortly.

Fred Tyler, executive vice president of the chamber, told the board that 800 pecan trees had already been sold as part of a program to beautify Midland. A total of 6,000 pecan trees were purchased for sale Jan. 21 through Jan. 29. The trees can be purchased through the Midland Chamber of Commerce for $8.

Eight new members Wednesday were named to the chamber's board of directors for 1978. They are Boley Embrey, Bill Malone, Tom Rutland, Tevis Herd, Ed Hagan, Larry Bell, Johnny Warren and Bill Steele.

PLO, Jordan reject Israeli peace plan

By The Associated Press

Yasir Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization and Jordan today rejected the peace plan offered by Israel and backed by President Carter.

Iraq was reported ready to join hardline Arab opposition to Israeli-Egyptian peace talks, already strained by tough stands taken in Cairo and Jerusalem.

Israel Radio said a bomb killed two men and wounded two near a market in Netanya, north of Tel Aviv, in an apparent Arab guerrilla campaign to wreck the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks.

Palestinian guerrillas of the Marxist Popular Democratic Front in Beiruit claimed responsibility for the blast, and claimed 10 Israelis were killed or wounded in the explosion.

"No peace can be established in the Middle East without a PLO-governed independent Palestinian state," PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labady said in the Lebanese capital.

He was commenting on Carter's statement in a television interview Wednesday that it was not in the interest of permanent peace for a "radical" state to be created in the Middle East.

Carter reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity," but said it must be tied to surrounding countries. He firmly rejected the idea

Bomb rocks U.S. facility

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — A bomb exploded at a U.S. cultural center in Tehran Wednesday night, injuring a doorman and causing heavy damage to parts of the building. A telephone caller told The Associated Press the bomb was the first of several promised by Marxists to protest the visit of President Carter starting Saturday.

The building hit by the blast is the Iran-American Academic Center, owned by the U.S. Embassy and used by 4,000-5,000 students to prepare themselves for university training in the United States.

A caller who identified himself as an Islamic Marxist told The Associated Press the explosion was intended to "express hatred for the U.S. president and the Americans."

Speakers tell what Lions means

It wasn't even time to sing "Auld Lang Syne." And maybe the time to pay tribute to the good old days is everyday, and not just on the eve of the new year to come.

At any rate, three Lions International loyalists Wednesday paid tribute to Lionism as if they were making resolutions.

The three Lions, all past district governors, spoke on "What Lionism Has Meant To Me" to about 80 fellow "roarers" of the Midland Downtown Lions Club. They were prodded on by Lion Tamer Larry Hunnicutt, who lined up their "testimonials."

Inspirationally speaking were Roy Minear, investor; Carl Hyde, U. S. Postal Service executive, and Duke Jimerson, an insurance agent.

To Minear, Lionism means the "opportunity to serve, the opportunity to share and, above all, the opportunity to learn."

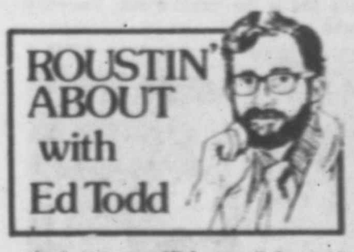

Lionism, he said, gives Lions all around the world the opportunity to tithe of their time, talent and means in helping "those less fortunate than ourselves."

He advocated "try-ism."

"There's no stigma attached in the failure to meet a goal," Minear said. "The only stigma would be in the failure to try."

Hyde said Lionism to him means the opportunity to thank "God Almighty for the space I have occupied" on this earth.

He also mentioned the Lions' worldwide project of helping the handicapped, the blind and the needy.

And, "in a selfish way," he said, Lionism has given him the opportunity to be associated with people he otherwise wouldn't have known.

Too, Lionism has afforded him leadership training which, among other areas, has paid off in his line of work.

"It (Lionism) has given me more than I can ever repay," Hyde said.

"Above all," he said, Lionism has afforded him the opportunity "to have fellowship with some of the finest people on earth."

Jimerson came to the fore to give Lionism a boost forward.

"Most important," he said, "is

Nominations being sought for award

Nominations are being sought from churches, businesses, clubs, organizations, and individuals to determine who will be Midland's outstanding young man of the year.

The search is being conducted by the 1977 Distinguished Service Award Committee of the Midland Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The award is presented to the young man — age 21 to 35 — deemed to have contributed most to the community during the year, according to Hill Glover and Mark Langston, Jaycee project co-chairmen.

Nomination blanks are available at the Jaycee office at 682-9952, by calling Glover at 683-6211 or Langston at 697-4348 or may be picked up at the Chamber of Commerce.

Nominations must be postmarked no later than midnight Jan. 8 and mailed to the Midland Jaycees, Box 135, Midland.

Midland gets a little rain; forecaster says no more

Rain finally came to Midland Wednesday — but only a little of it, and there's no rain in Friday's forecast.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported that .27 inch rain fell Wednesday. Approximately .3 inch rain was reported on the west and south sides of Midland, but only about .2 inch in the Greenwood area.

The official .27 inch represents the only measurable rainfall this month and brings the total for the year to 6.84 inches.

The weatherman predicts partly cloudy skies through Friday, with a low tonight in the mid-30s and a high Friday in the mid-60s. Winds are expected to be from the west and southwest at 5 to 10 mph tonight.

The high Wednesday was 49 degrees, and the low this morning was 31 degrees.

Traces of rain Wednesday and Wednesday night were reported in Andrews, Lamesa, Crane, Rankin and Big Lake. About .2 inch of rain fell in Big Spring and .25 inch in Garden City.

Clear skies were reported this morning in Stanton, Lamesa, Big Spring, Crane and Garden City. But fog was reported in Big Lake and partly cloudy skies were noted in Andrews and Rankin.

Search of grain tower continues

By B.F. KELLUM

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Flood lights combined with a cold, misting rain early today to cast shadows into gaping holes in a huge grain storage tower as men below dug through the rubble for more bodies.

Rescue workers say at least 15 persons died in the blast at the Farmer's Export Co. grain elevator Tuesday night. The explosion, heard by some persons 70 miles away, injured at least 22 others.

Capt. E.E. Burke of the Galveston County sheriff's office said late Wednesday at least three persons were believed to be still missing.

Rescue operations were hampered by a fire that kept reappearing atop the burned-out tower. It was still smoldering late Wednesday but firemen said the rain and high humidity all but nullified the threat of a second explosion in the elevator or the 40 grain silos nearby.

Burke said searchers believe the missing persons have been located beneath a demolished freight car that was parked on a railroad siding. The car was directly in the path of the blast and was still buried beneath tons of rubble late Wednesday night.

By late Wednesday, the county morgue had reached capacity and some of the bodies were moved to John Sealy Hospital.

Galveston Fire Marshal A. D. Carroll said he hopes to determine today what caused the explosion.

"It was definitely accidental," said Carroll, adding that two possible causes are being considered. He said a spark from a nearby switch engine may have ignited the highly volatile grain dust, or a switch in the top of the stricken elevator might have short-circuited.

A crew of 32 and eight federal grain inspectors were believed to be working at the elevator when the blast occurred. Company officials refused to estimate damage costs at the $26 million facility.

The area surrounding the elevator resembled a bombed-out battlefield. Sheets of ripped metal were strewn for hundreds of yards. A diesel engine leaking fuel lay in a huge hole.

The Yugoslavian ship, Sutjeska, which was loading wheat when the elevator blew up, and another vessel at an adjacent pier were moved away from the wharves after debris rained down on their decks. The Sutjeska sustained minor damage when it was moved before a loading hose could be disconnected. Forty-five feet of railing were ripped from the deck.

Farmer's Export Co. brought in construction crews, bulldozers and cranes that were utilized throughout the day in cleanup operations, which are expected to last for several days.

Weary searchers, many of whom had been at their grim task for 26 hours by Wednesday afternoon, kept one eye out for falling debris from the 13-story structure as they dug under and around twisted steel beams and car-sized chunks of concrete.

The north end of this island resort town remained off limits to everyone except construction crews and authorities. Most of those not working huddled together against the rain at a temporary command post two blocks from the elevator.

Dazed survivors told of a huge "ball of fire," a "flash from a gas stove," when the grain tower erupted "like a volcano." Most were just glad to be alive.

Alfred Brown, 45, of Galveston, was unloading grain at the time. Moments after the blast, he said, "We could hear three people in the control tower (of the elevator) yelling for help but we couldn't get to them."

Daniel Love, 22, of Galveston, said, "Everything went off. I didn't know what to do. I heard a man yelling for help but was unable to do anything for him.

"I just thank God I got out."

Audrey James' husband, Waldren, was not so lucky. He died in the blast. She said her husband "often told me the least little spark could set off a fire or explosion. He knew it was dangerous working down there.

Peace proposal rejected

of Palestinian statehood.

In Amman, the Jordanian government rejected the plan Begin detailed Wednesday before the Israeli parliament.

Jordan "completely rejects . . . such a settlement calling for the surrender of Arab territories to Israel, thus rewarding aggression and putting an end to Palestinian and Arab rights," the government said in a statement issued after the cabinet studied the Begin proposal.

The Beirut newspaper As Safir said Iraq has offered to join the PLO, Syria and other hardline Arab opponents of the Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's peace initiative in a military confrontation pact against Israel.

The latest developments came after Begin and Sadat detailed tough bargaining positions, indicating difficult Mideast negotiations ahead.

During an 11½-hour debate Wednesday in the Israeli Knesset or parliament, Begin spelled out publicly for the first time the peace plan he presented to Sadat last weekend at their Christmas summit in Ismailia.

Sadat, speaking at a Cairo news conference with visiting West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, restated his opposition to key elements of the Begin plan and underlined Arab demands for self-determination for the Palestinians and the return of East Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty.

Newspaper columnist dies at 58

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Heloise Bowles, author of the syndicated newspaper column "Hints From Heloise," has died of heart trouble. She was 58.

The columnist, known professionally as Heloise Cruse, died at Baptist Hospital here Wednesday night, a nursing supervisor said.

Her daily column of household tips, written for King Features for the past 17 years, was carried in more than 600 newspapers, King Features executive editor Allan Priaulx said in New York.

Priaulx said the column would be taken over by Mrs. Bowles' daughter, Ponce Cruse, who had been helping write it under the name Heloise II.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Second job fair slated

The second job fair will be held in the Midland-Odessa area on Jan. 21.

Approximately 430 letters have been mailed to employers in the area inviting them to take part in the fair, Joe Kloesel, chairman of the Midland Area Sales Team, said at the Midland Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors meeting Wednesday.

Firms wishing to participate in the job fair are invited to send a representative to an orientation meeting at 10 a.m. on Jan. 5 in the conference room of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Among the job fair preliminary plans is to conduct advertising outside the state to attract new workers into the Midland-Odessa labor market.

Asbestos firms agree to settle with families

CLEVELAND (AP) — The families of 26 insulation installers who died or became ill because of asbestos inhalation will share in a $1,840,000 settlement reached Wednesday with 17 corporations.

The agreement in the court of U.S. District Judge John M. Manos was reached with such firms as Johns Manville Products Corp., GAF Corp., OwensCorning Fiberglas Corp., Celotex Corp., Raybestos Manhattan Corp. and Flintkote Corp.

Robert E. Sweeney, an attorney for the plaintiffs, charged in the 26 suits filed since 1972 that the corporations failed to properly protect workers from asbestos inhalation and exposure, which he said causes lung cancer, abdominal cancer and rectal cancer to workers in the construction trades.

Asbestos, which is mined and crushed, is widely used as a binder and insulator for many products.

Sixteen of the 26 cases involved the death of the workers, Sweeney said. From 150 to 200 similar cases have been filed throughout the country, he added.

Manos had conducted pretrial hearings for more than 1½ years and the case was to go to trial next month. Sweeney said this was the first time that a federal judge has consolidated cases involving product liability.

The amount that each company will have to pay each worker or his family has yet to be worked out, Sweeney said.

Before the three Lions gave their brief talks, presiding Lion George Weis presented veteran Lion Melvin Little with a plaque "in sincere appreciation" for his years of loyalty and devotion to Lionism.

Little, 63, is retiring next month as the Midland Fire Department chief, a position he has held since 1947.

"I appreciate it more than you'll know," Little said of the award.

In addition, the Lions cited Midland fireman Billy Rex Sparks, 37, as firefighter of the last quarter of 1977. For the past two years, the Lions had been singling out the firefighter of the month.

The reasoning in the cutback, it seems, was that the less frequently the citations come the more prestige they will take on.

Midland Fireman Billy Rex Sparks, right, gives his thanks to members of the Midland Downtown Lions Club Wednesday after he was recognized as firefighter of the quarter. Holding the microphone is Lion George Weis. The honor was recently extended from one to three months. (Staff Photo)

Midlander hospitalized

James Robert Leeton, 58, was taken to Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room and was in undetermined condition following a car-pedestrian accident at about 8 a.m. today.

According to police, Longio Perales of the 1500 block of South Weatherford Street was driving south in the 100 block of North Big Spring Street when his car struck Leeton. Leeton apparently was trying to cross Big Spring Street at the time of the accident, officers said.

Carter admits he can't balance budget by 1981

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, trying to balance a pair of promises, concedes that he can't guarantee a balanced federal budget by 1981 without jeopardizing his planned $25 billion election-year tax cut.

"If there was an absolutely rigid fixation on a balanced budget, then there would be no chance for tax cuts," Carter said Wednesday night in a year-end interview with television correspondents.

"But I think when you take into consideration that we have a $25 billion tax reduction for the people next year with about $6 billion tax reductions this year, that is $31 billion, (and) that is a major benefit to the people.

"I just can't give a firm commitment on how we will balance tax cuts versus a balanced budget by 1981," the president said.

His statements seemed to hedge his campaign promise to balance the budget during his first term. As recently as last week, during his Christmas vacation at home in Plains, Ga., he was asked whether the balanced budget was still a goal and not just a dream.

"Absolutely," Carter declared.

In the television interview, the president was asked whether he still thought that balancing the budget by 1981 was a realistic goal, given claims on the budget such as his promise of a tax cut. This time, Carter replied, "Obviously, I can not guarantee that. We have obviously known that to balance the budget would be difficult.

"It depends upon how fast business invests, how many people are at work, which cuts down obviously on expenditure for unemployment compensation, welfare payments — and there has to be some tradeoff," Carter said. "... It would take about a 10 percent annual increase in real terms in business investment with the present projections of economic need.

> "But I think when you take into consideration that we have a $25 billion tax reduction for the people next year with about $6 billion tax reductions this year, that is $31 billion, and that is a major benefit to the people.... I think the benefits to be derived from our tax cuts will exceed any tax burden that may have been added."
> President Carter

"We want to cut the unemployment rate down considerably and, of course, we want to deal with the problems of the cities ... We also contemplate in the 1979 fiscal budget emphasizing anew our interest in solving the higher unemployment rate among black young people ... We want to meet the legitimate needs of our people and at the same time not let inflation get out of hand."

Meeting those needs costs tax money, Carter acknowledged. But, apparently replying to former President Gerald R. Ford's contention that people would about break even between tax increases and the proposed tax cut, Carter said, "I think the benefits to be derived from our tax cuts in 1978 and 1979 will exceed any tax burden that may have been added."

The questioning began with Carter's tour beginning today of Europe, Asia and the Near East. "Energy," the president said, "will be the tie that will bind us together on this trip." Wherever his journey leads, Carter said, "what our nation does with energy will be a prime question." Until Congress takes action, he said, "that cloud will hang over the determination and leadership qualities of our country."

He said he hoped his foreign mission "will demonstrate to the American people and to the Congress the necessity for rapid action" on energy. Carter said he had "private signs ...divulged to me by conferees" that a compromise can be struck on energy. "I don't think there is any doubt that they will pass this legislation early in the (next) session," the president said.

Carter also said he would introduce a national health insurance program in the next session. Congress "can't pass it this year," he said, "but it will be introduced."

In the coming year, he predicted, the United States and the Soviet Union will reach a strategic arms limitation agreement.

Arab leaders approve security guarantee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, in a surprise development, says some Arab leaders have told him they would not object to a Middle East peace settlement that included a U.S. guarantee of Israel's security.

Discussing the Middle East question with television network correspondents Wednesday night, Carter backed Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin's refusal to accept the creation of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

He also responded to critics who say Begin has made no gesture to Egypt comparable to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's history-making visit to Israel six weeks ago.

He described as a "reasonable negotiating position" Begin's insistence that Israel retain the right to station troops on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

Carter said there is a "great deal of flexibility" in the Israeli negotiating stand, noting that Israel has promised to reassess its West Bank-Gaza Strip troop presence after five years.

Carter added a new dimension to the fast-paced developments in the Middle East when he discussed the possibility of a U.S.-Israeli defense pact as part of an overall settlement.

Some Arab leaders, Carter said, "had expressed to me that if a guarantee arrangement between ourselves and Israel should be worked out, it would be acceptable."

Carter added that the United States and Israel have never discussed that possibility "in any definitive form" and that his own preference would be for a minimal U.S. role in post-settlement peacekeeping.

In the past, Israeli governments have been cool to the idea of U.S. guarantees, not wanting to rely on outside powers for Israeli security.

Begin said recently that Israel had no intention of making such a proposal to American authorities but that he would be willing to listen to any U.S. ideas on the subject.

Despite U.S. and Israeli reluctance to establish a military alliance, Carter's remarks appeared to make that option more credible, particularly if it made the difference between success and failure to the Mideast peace negotiations.

Carter's evaluation of the Sadat-Begin Christmas summit was favorable to Begin, but he was unsparing in his praise for both leaders.

He reaffirmed his support for a Palestinian "homeland or entity" with ties to surrounding countries, but he firmly rejected Sadat's insistence on an independent Palestinian state.

"My own position is that permanent peace can best be maintained if there is not a fairly radical, new independent nation in the heart of the Middle East area," Carter said.

Rights take back seat in favor of Poland trip

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — President Carter's arrival in Warsaw today marks his first venture into the Soviet bloc since his support of human rights earlier this year provoked the ire of the Kremlin.

But signs are that human rights will take a back seat, at least publicly, in discussions between Carter and Communist Party leader Edward Gierek.

Carter's program appears designed more to win friends than lecture anyone. He is visiting three shrines commemorating tragic events in Polish history.

Carter arrives at 10:20 p.m. (4:20 p.m. EST). After an airport welcoming ceremony, he and his wife, Rosalynn, will go by motorcade to the lavish baroque Wilanow Palace, their home for the next two nights.

Carter begins his appearances Friday with stops at the shrines — the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Nike monument honoring Poles slain in the 1944 Warsaw uprising against the Nazis and the ghetto monument memorializing more than 300,000 Jews killed by the Nazis in 1943.

Friday afternoon, Carter will have meetings with Gierek and other Polish officials, and will be the guest of honor at a state banquet Friday night in Radziwill Palace.

Poland, with 34 million citizens the largest of the Soviet Union's allies, has prepared for the visit with practiced efficiency.

Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford paid visits in 1972 and 1975. In recent months the shah of Iran, the king of Belgium and the chancellor of West Germany have been here.

About 630 reporters are expected to cover Carter's visit, including the first formal presidential news conference broadcast from the Soviet bloc.

Presidential aides say one of the reasons Carter chose Poland was because the administration views the country's human rights record favorably.

According to Washington sources, likely topics of the Carter-Gierek talks include U.S.-Polish trade, troop strength in Central Europe and the Polish role in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Midland Savings' Individual Retirement Account and other tax saving plans

The Individual Retirement Account is a tax deduction for today and a retirement program for tomorrow. The Individual Retirement Account is designed for the person who is not already covered by a retirement program. It invites that person to contribute to his own account up to 15% or $1500.00 (whichever is less) of his earned income. It allows him an immediate 100% income tax deduction for his contribution.

Save $242.00 per year in income tax. A family of four with an income of $12000 will pay $1228.00 in income tax. However, if that same family contributes $1500 to an I.R.A., the $1500 deduction will save them $242.00 in income tax annually. Effective tax year 1977, a working spouse can set up an I.R.A. for a non-working spouse, provided he or she is participating in an I.R.A. plan. The maximum combined contribution can not exceed $1750.00.

The Keogh Plan. The Keogh Plan is similar to the I.R.A. but it is designed specifically for the self-employed individual. The Keogh Plan automatically includes the self-employed individual along with all his eligible employees. The plan allows an annual deposit of 15% or $7500 (whichever is less) of an individual's earned income.

I.R.A. Rollover. Ask about Midland Savings' I.R.A. Rollover. This plan is designed for the individual who has completed a qualifying retirement program, and who wishes to roll his lump-sum distribution over into an I.R.A., to receive the tax advantage.

Carter consumer plans encounter reverses in '77

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

1977 brought a new president who had promised to become the "top consumer advocate in the nation." But Jimmy Carter failed to get most of his major consumer proposals through Congress.

The effort to establish an independent agency to intervene on behalf of consumers in the regulatory process was unsuccessful, although supporters say they still expect victory in 1978.

Other consumer-oriented bills that were defeated or not acted upon in 1977 included measures to make it easier for individuals to file class-action lawsuits, to decrease regulation of airline fares and to provide reimbursement for public interest attorneys and expert witnesses who want to testify at federal hearings.

ON THE PLUS SIDE, according to consumer activists, was passage of a bill, which takes effect early in 1978, to prevent debt collectors from harassing people, and the Department of Transportation's move to require air bags or some other passive restraint system on new cars by 1984.

Asked to sum up the gains and losses of 1977, Ralph Nader replied: "A lot of higher prices. That's the chief loss ...." He was critical of Congress for passing legislation which will increase sugar prices and added, "I don't think Carter is paying enough attention to measures in Congress that are increasing prices across the board."

He said he remained confident that an independent consumer agency will be established next year. Nader also said he was encouraged by passage in the House of Representatives of a bill that would make it easier to set up consumer cooperatives and predicted the measure would be passed by the Senate in 1978.

MARK GREEN, director of Congress Watch, a lobbying organization associated with Nader, said that, on the whole, consumers were "slightly better off" at the end of 1977 than they were at the beginning.

Green said there was a new anti-consumer feeling in Congress in 1977. Part of the reason, he said, is the trend against big government which tends to view all federal agencies, large and small, as suspect; part of the reason is lobbying by big business; and part is the fear among some liberal Democrats that they will face challenges from the right in the 1978 elections.

ESTHER PETERSON, appointed by Carter as his special assistant for consumer affairs, expressed disappointment at the failure to establish a consumer agency — an effort she listed as her prime mission. But she said there were some encouraging signs. Among them, she listed Carter's appointments of consumer advocates including Carol Tucker Foreman, former director of the Consumer Federation of America, as assistant agriculture secretary for food and consumer services, and Michael Pertschuk, former chief counsel of the Senate Commerce Committee, as chairman of the Federal Trade Commission.

Pertschuk promptly took aim at television advertising aimed at children which encourages them to eat food containing too much sugar and launched an FTC probe of the ads.

Nader also said he believed the Carter appointees had cracked down on unsafe and unfair business practices.

INFLATION and unemployment did indeed continue to plague Americans, although the rates went down slightly. Government economists said 1977 retail food prices went up 6.5 percent, compared with a 3.1 percent gain in 1976, an 8.5 percent hike in 1975 and 14.5 percent boosts in 1974 and 1973.

The villain in the 1977 food picture was coffee. Kenneth R. Farrell, acting chief of the Economic Research Service in the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said in November that "coffee prices alone will account for about half the ... rise in average grocery store prices in 1977. The entire imported foods and fish group will continue over three-fifths of the total."

Coffee prices started rising after a frost in Brazil — the world's biggest producer — in July 1975. Although no actual shortage ever developed, fears that supply would not keep up with demand pushed prices of beans and ground coffee to record levels. By April 1977, the price of a pound of unroasted beans topped $3 a pound. By June, retail prices averaged near $4 a pound and, in some areas, reached the $5 mark.

CONSUMERS CUT BACK their consumption of coffee and prices started falling. By September, unroasted beans were at the $2-a-pound mark. Wholesale and retail prices also started to deline, but the drop was much slower. As of November, a spot check of about a dozen U.S. cities showed coffee generally ranged from $3.29 to $3.79 a pound in the supermarket.

Businesses showed increased interest in 1977 in what consumers think and want. A flurry of studies covered everything from nutritional labels to what people think of the quality of the products they buy.

One of the most comprehensive undertakings was a survey conducted by the Marketing Sciences Institute of Harvard University and Louis Harris and Associates Inc. for Sentry Insurance.

THE STUDY SHOWED that there have been improvements in terms of product information, labeling and safety over the past decade, but it also found that 50 percent of those questioned believe they get a worse deal in the marketplace today than they did 10 years ago.

Seventy-seven percent of those surveyed worry about high prices, 69 percent were concerned about the cost of medical and hospital care and 48 percent were upset by the poor quality of products.

The Sentry study found that the issues concerning the general public were not always the same as those which the consumer activitists focus on. But it also showed that the consumer activists were in much closer touch with most people's ideas than were senior business managers.

AMONG OTHER government actions which affected consumers during 1977:

—The Consumer Product Safety Commission banned the sale of children's clothing containing the flame-retardant Tris, which was linked to cancer in test animals. The ban was overturned on technical grounds and an appeal is pending, but manufacturers stopped using the chemical. In September, questions were raised about the safety of a replacement chemical, Fyrol FR-2, and a new investigation was launched. The commission, meanwhile, moved to modify its flammability standards to lessen dependence on all chemical additives.

—The CPSC decided against requiring so-called child-resistant matchbook covers. The agency concluded the regulation would have imposed severe economic burdens, without reducing injuries.

—The Food and Drug Administration ordered that women considering intrauterine birth control devices — IUDs — be given complete and easily understood information brochures.

A CHARLES RUSSELL painting, "The Price of His Hide," is to be loaned by the Amon Carter Museum of Western Art, Fort Worth, to the American Embassy in Japan. The loan was arranged at the request of U.S. Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield, who was a friend of the Russell family as a boy and is a long-time admirer of Western art.

'77--year of much musical news

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Two beloved giants of popular music died in 1977. Elvis Presley, 42, the father of rock 'n' roll, considered by his fans the king, died in his mansion in Memphis. Bing Crosby, 73, the crooner, with the casual, friendly air and beautiful baritone, died on a golf course in Spain.

And it was the year of Fleetwood Mac. The group's LP, "Rumours," stayed No. 1 on the best-selling charts for 29 weeks, longer than one LP ever had done before, beating out Peter Frampton's 17-week "Frampton Comes Alive!"

It was the year disco was in. And everybody talked about punk rock but didn't buy so many punk rock records.

Debby Boone, daughter of Pat, ended the year with a platinum single, "You Light Up My Life." She didn't make Billboard's compilation of best-selling records for the year because that magazine counted them up at the end of November. In order of sales, best-selling 1977 singles were:

"Tonight's the Night," Rod Stewart; "I Just Want To Be Your Everything," Andy Gibb; "Best of My Love," Emotions; "Evergreen," Barbra Streisand; "Angel in Your Arms," Hot; "I Like Dreamin'," Kenny Nolan; "Don't Leave Me this Way,"Thelma Houston; "(Your Love Has Lifted Me) Higher and Higher," Rita Coolidge; "Undercover Angel," Alan O'Day; "Torn Between Two Lovers," Mary MacGregor.

Best-selling LPs of the year, in order:

"Rumours," Fleetwood Mac; "Songs in the Key of Life," Stevie Wonder; "A Star Is Born," soundtrack; "Hotel California," Eagles; "Boston," Boston; "A New World Record," Electric Light Orchestra; "Part 3," KC and the Sunshine Band; "Silk Degrees," Boz Scaggs; "Night Moves," Bob Seger and the Silver Bullet Band; "Fleetwood Mac," Fleetwood Mac.

Top-selling country single of the year was "Luckenbach, Tex." and top-selling country LP was "Ol' Waylon," both by Waylon Jennings. Donna Summer was named disco artist of the year.

Grammy Awards, given by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, went to George Benson's "This Masquerade" as record of the year and Stevie Wonder's "Songs in the Key of Life" as LP of the year. Best pop vocalists were Wonder and Linda Ronstadt.

Oscars for best song in a movie went to "Evergreen" from "A Star Is Born." "The Omen" won for best original soundtrack and "Bound for Glory" for best compiled soundtrack.

The Country Music Association of America named Ronnie Milsap entertainer of the year and Milsap and Crystal Gayle best vocalists. Kenny Rogers' "Lucille" was best country single.

The price of records went up.

A lot of people in pop music toured, made TV specials, movies, appeared on Broadway and in Las Vegas.

The Dirt Band was the first American rock band to tour Russia, doing 24 shows in 28 days.

Flutist Paul Horn issued an LP he recorded inside a pyramid near Cairo. UFO guitarist Michael Shenker disappeared, was found a month later in Munich and resumed touring. The unpredictable David Bowie played keyboards on Iggy Pop's U.S. tour and appeared on Bing Crosby's Christmas special. Another unusual pairing was Phil Spector producing a wall-of-sound album with introspective poet Leonard Cohen.

Dolly Parton worked hard to cross over from country to pop. Neil Sedaka bought his old copyrights for $2 million. Anita Bryant campaigned against equal rights for homosexuals.

Violence at rock concerts was down in 1977 but Santana was firebombed in Milan by people who thought the concert should have been free. The Led Zeppelin U.S. tour had its incidents and arrests and two members of Aerosmith were injured by firecrackers in Philadelphia.

Comebacks included blues singer Alberta Hunter, 82. Robert Altman heard her and signed her to do a soundtrack. Jessie Winchester toured the United States. He had been in Canada for 10 years as a draft resister. Manfred Mann had his first big hit in a decade, "Blinded by the Light." Tony Orlando retired, suffering from depression, returned three months later, without Dawn. Commander Cody was back, without the Lost Planet Airmen.

The Crickets played their first concert together in 15 years, for Buddy Holly Week, in England. Brian Wilson toured with the Beach Boys. Rick Wakeman rejoined Yes. The Moody Blues rejoined; so did the Animals. Edgar Winter repackaged White Trash. Patti Smith returned to performing after a January fall which badly injured her neck. Minnie Riperton toured, recovered from a cancer operation.

Timothy Schmit left Poco to join the Eagles, replacing Randy Meisner. Vocalist Robert Plant left the Led Zeppelin tour when his son died but the group apparently still exists.

Elton John, 30, announced he would give up live performing and fans wept. Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons went out in two directions instead of one and the former members of LaBelle went out in three — Patti LaBelle, Sarah Dash and Nona Hendryx all pursuing solo careers.

Lol Creme and Kevin Godley left 10CC to record on an instrument they invented and call the Gizmo.

Stephen Bishop got his first hit when "On and On," a song about persevering, was released a second time.

Getting their day in court were:

Four Brunswick Records executives had their 1976 convictions on charges of payola, conspiracy and mail fraud reversed by a federal court in Philadelphia.

Charges of conspiracy to possess cocaine against Waylon Jennings were dismissed with prejudice in Nashville, which means they could be reinstated. Keith Richard pleaded innocent in Canada to a charge of possession of nearly an ounce of heroin. Chad Mitchell served time in prison on a San Antonio marijuana conviction. Bob Marley was fined 20 pounds in London for possessing marijuana.

Leslie Uggams and her husband Graham Pratt filed for bankruptcy in Los Angeles. Connie Francis and Howard Johnson Co. settled out of court for $1.475 million as "compensation for an injury" after she was attacked in a motel room in 1974. Bruce Springsteen and his former manager Mike Appel settled out of court for less than $1 million and Springsteen can record again. John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr settled out of court with former Beatles manager Allen Klein for $5 million; Klein was later indicted for income tax evasion.

A French court ordered Charles Aznavour to pay more than $2 million in back taxes and penalties. Actress Britt Ekland sued Rod Stewart for $15 million and he sued back to get her out of his house.

Marriages in 1977 included: Kenny Loggins and Eva Ein; Jimmy Buffett and Jane Slagsvol; Lorna Luft, 24, and Jake Hooker, lead guitarist of the Arrows, 26; Hoagy Carmichael, 77, and actress Wanda McKay, 52.

Divorces included: Buck Owens and Jana Greif, former fiddle player with his country troupe, after two days; George Harrison and Patti, after a number of years apart; Bob Dylan and Sara, after 13 years of marriage, she given custody of the four children.

Babies included: James Louis, to Paul and Linda McCartney; Zeita Suwandi to Stevie Wonder and Yolanda; Roberta Adam to Natalie Cole and husband Marvin Yancy; Gregory Abbott Jr. to Freda Payne and husband Gregory Abbott; Amber Elain to Ralph and Karen Tavares;

Anna McGarrigle and Dane Lanken had a son; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Anka had their fifth child; Mr. and Mrs. Boz Scaggs had Oscar Lewis; Mr. and Mrs. Ian Anderson had James Duncan.

Other deaths during the year included: Lynyrd Skynyrd lead singer Ronnie Van Zant, lead guitarist Steve Gaines and his sister, Cassie Gaines in the crash of a private plane in southwestern Mississippi; T. Rex guitarist Marc Bolan, 29, real name Mark Field, in a car crash in London;

Blues men Bukka White, 89, real name Booker T. Washington White, in Memphis; Tarheel Slim, 52, real name Alden Bunn, in New York of pneumonia;

Jazz musicians Paul Desmond, 52, alto saxophonist and composer of "Take Five," in New York of lung cancer.

Area tryouts slated

Preliminary auditions of the West Texas-New Mexico District for the 1978 Southwest Regional Auditions of the Metropolitan Opera National Council will be held in El Paso.

Interested singers from this region must apply no later than Jan. 21.

Application blanks may be obtained by writing the Metropolitan Auditions, C/O The Junior League of El Paso, 520 Thunderbird, El Paso, Texas 79912.

Opree resumes

ODESSA — The Odessa Brand New Opree, the Globe Theatre's stage show of country-western entertainment, will resume Jan. 7.

Because of the large number of entertainers slated to kick off the new seaaon, the show will begin at 7 p.m. and run for about three and one-half hours instead of the usual two.

The Opree is presented on Saturday nights when plays are not scheduled.

Fund drive under way

ROUND TOP — The Round Top Festival has launched its first major fund-raising drive in an attempt to raise $150,000 by April 30 to cover cost of funding a scholarship program and new teaching and practice facilities, James Dick, founder of the festival has announced.

The festival will run weekends June 9 through July 6.

Musical to open Globe's season

ODESSA — Rodgers and Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music" will be the season opener for the Globe of the Great Southwest's 1978 season.

Set to run April, 7, 8, 14, 15, 21 and 22, the play will be directed by Jim Walters of Los Angeles.

Dr. David Sloan will conduct the orchestra, Frank Varro will be choral director and Dr. Dianne Peters will be stage manager.

"Othello" and "Love's Labour's Lost," both by Shakespeare, and "Tartuffe" by Moliere have been chosen for the Odessa Shakespeare Festival to run from June 16 through Aug. 13.

"Charlie's Aunt" by Brandon ThoMas will be presented in September and October. The season's final production in November and December will be a world premiere of "The House of Saul" by Agnes Sanford.

Season tickets to the Globe will be the same price as last season: $30 for 16 adult admissions, $16 for eight adult admissions, $12 for eight student admissions and $12 for eight senior citizens admissions. The season tickets will be available in late January.

DEATHS

C. V. Meacham

TURKEY — Services for Charles Velmer Meacham, 79, of Pecos, father of Charles Pete Meacham of Big Spring, were to be at 3 p.m. today in the Church of Christ in Turkey with Rev. Elmore Johnson, minister of the Quaker Avenue Baptist Church of Lubbock, officiating and Elgin Conner, minister of the Quitaque Church of Christ, assisting.

Burial was to be in Dreamland Cemetery in Turkey directed by Seigler Funeral Home in Turkey.

Meacham died Tuesday at a Pecos hospital.

He moved to Pecos from Turkey.

Other survivors include his wife, two sons, two daughters, three brothers, a sister, 14 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Forrester

LUBBOCK — Minnie Forrester, 83, sister of Mrs. Homer Franklin of Big Spring, died Wednesday morning in a Lubbock hospital after a long illness.

Services were to be at 3 p.m. today in Sanders Funeral Home with the Rev. I. D. Walker, associate pastor of First Baptist Church, officiating and the Rev. J. T. Bolding, retired Baptist minister, assisting.

Burial was to be in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Mrs. Forrester moved to Lubbock in 1926. She was a member of the First Baptist Church.

Other survivors include a stepson, two brothers and two sisters.

O. G. Lee

AUSTIN — O. G. "Bud" Lee, 69, brother of Dollie McCormick of Midland, died Wednesday in Austin.

Services will be at 3:30 p.m. Friday in Cook-Walden Funeral Home here with burial in Memorial Hill Mausoleum.

Lee was born Sept. 6, 1908, in Eden. He was a retired engineer for the federal Highway Department.

Other survivors include his wife, three daughters, three brothers, two sisters and seven grandchildren.

The family requests memorials be made to the American Cancer Society or the American Lung Association

B. Williams

KERMIT — B. Williams, 94, of Monahans, father of Leland Williams of Andrews, died Wednesday in a Kermit nursing home.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church with burial in Monahans Cemetery directed by Wilson-Miller Funeral Home.

Williams was born Dec. 14, 1883, in Gilky, Ark., and had been a Monahans resident 30 years. He was a retired merchant and a 50-year member of Masonic Lodge 952.

Other survivors include four sons, a sister, eight grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Larry Barrett

BIG SPRING — Services for Larry Clifton Barrett, 60, of Kerrville were to be at 10 a.m. today in Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home here. Graveside services were to be at 4 p.m. today in Terry County Memorial Park in Brownfield.

Barrett was the husband of Maureen Barrett of Big Spring.

EPA may order cities to install equipment

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN—Fourteen major Texas cities, including Odessa, may be required to install new water filtering equipment by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency to remove possible cancer-causing chemicals.

Texas Department of Health officials say the EPA order, reported under consideration by federal officials in Washington, isn't yet clear to them, and isn't expected to be in final form until after public hearings.

Steve Ellison, chief of the Department of Health's Data Reports and Water Quality Monitoring Branch in the Division of Water Hygiene, reports EPA is "Looking for too high concentrations of trihalomethapes"—including such substances as chloroform, bromoform, dibromchloromethane and dichlorobromomethane.

Such chemicals have been linked to cancer in animals.

Construction costs nationwide for facilities such as are expected to be required would be from $291 million to $685 million with an additional $34 million to $92 million annually to replace the carbon as it absorbs the chemicals.

Although the overall cost is significant, EPA estimates the requirements would mean increases of only $2 to $5 annually in an individual's water bill.

The 14 Texas cities, which use surface water supplies, which the Department of Health believes would be affected by the EPA plan include Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, Corpus Christi, Port Arthur, Abilene, Wichita Falls, Waco, Lubbock, Arlington, Beaumont, Amarillo and Austin.

The cities would either monitor their own water supplies or the department would provide monitoring services.

Cities using ground water would not take part in the program.

EPA deputy administrator Victor J. Kimm, Washington, indicates the proposal should be made formally in January.

Neither rain nor snow deter delivery service

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Rain, snow and sleet didn't deter the P.H. Brennan Hand Delivery Service from competing with the U.S. Postal Service. But a court order may send the husband-wife 10-cents-a-letter, same-day delivery system to the dead letter office.

"It's going to be a long law suit," said Patricia Brennan, 25, who runs the business with her husband, J. Paul Brennan, 38. "By no means are we down and out."

Mrs. Brennan said Wednesday that she had not been served with any papers yet. She said the decision would be appealed. The delivery service continued Wednesday, but it was not clear whether it would continue operating during the appeal.

U.S. District Judge Harold P. Burke ruled Tuesday in favor of the Postal Service which filed suit in February to protect its statutory monopoly on first class mail.

"Elimination of this monopoly would seriously threaten the very existence of the U.S. Postal Service," the government's brief said.

The Brennans contended in court that Congress had overstepped its authority in granting the Postal Service such a monopoly.

But the government argued that Congress and the courts have recognized for more than 200 years the need for a monopoly.

Although unwilling to say exactly how many letters a day the private service delivers in downtown Rochester, Mrs. Brennan confirmed that she and her husband handled about 1,000 pieces a day during November. The Brennans charge 10 cents a letter and guarantee same-day delivery. Many of their clients are lawyers.

$75,000 bond set for man charged with 3 offenses

A Midland man Wednesday morning was charged with two counts of attempted murder and one count of burglary in connection with the early Wednesday morning shooting of a 25-year-old Midland woman and her 2-year-old daughter, police said today.

Peace Justice Robert H. Pine set bond at $25,000 for each offense, for a total of $75,000.

Thirty-one-year-old Tommy Glenn Clark of the 500 block of East Estes Avenue surrendered to police about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

According to a detective, Clark learned that police were looking for him in connection with the shooting of Christine Johnson and her daughter, Rosetta.

Mrs. Johnson and her daughter reportedly were shot about 2:30 a.m. Wednesday at Mrs. Johnson's residence in the 100 block of South Madison Street. Detectives said Mrs. Johnson awoke to find a man in her room.

She screamed, and the man fired a pistol, hitting her in the arm and head and hitting her daughter in the mouth. The daughter was sleeping on the same bed as the mother.

Police said entry to the residence was gained through the front door, although it is unknown whether the door was open or locked at the time of entry.

Mrs. Johnson called for an ambulance after the man left.

She and her daughter were in satisfactory condition at Midland Memorial Hospital this morning, a hospital spokesman said.

Man arrested on drug charge

Midland police arrested a 50-year-old man Wednesday afternoon for felony possession of marijuana.

Acting on an informant's tip, officers executed a search warrant at a private residence in the 200 block of North Lee Street at 5 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

According to police, officers found 11 bags of a substance officers believed to be marijuana.

Arkansas players fear damage to pro careers

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — University of Arkansas running back Ben Cowins, who ranks No. 2 in rushing yards in the Southwest Conference, says his football career will be irreparably damaged if he doesn't play in the Orange Bowl Monday night.

Cowins, running back Micheal Forrest and flanker Donny Bobo were excluded from the game by Coach Lou Holtz following an incident Dec. 20 that Cowins said involved a partially-clad young woman in an athletic dormitory.

Each of the three players has one year of eligibility left.

"Everything we have built up in the past three years has been torn down in what, in my opinion, was a rash judgment by Holtz," Cowins testified Wednesday in U.S. District Judge Terry L. Shell's court. "All that's left now is for us to salvage what's left."

Attorney John W. Walker, representing the three standouts, filed suit asking the court to order Holtz and other university officials to allow the three to participate in the Orange Bowl.

Cowins is expected to testify further today, the second day of the hearing.

"A lot of us don't have a lot of smarts," Cowins said, clutching and unclutching a rolled sheet of paper. "We can't make it as big time lawyers. This thing could keep us out of the (pro) draft."

When asked by Walker if his testimony indicated he would be "injured irreparably" by not playing in the Orange Bowl, Cowins said, "Yes."

"We feel something is wrong by us not being in the Orange Bowl. I don't think the team can really come together."

Walker maintained that Holtz chose to suspend the three "despite the fact" that they had not been charged with a crime and had not violated any rule Holtz had made known to the players.

"We spent a lot of time gaining respect from the team and Arkansas. We don't want to have them believing something that is basically untrue," Cowins said.

He said the three voluntarily gave an account of the dorm incident to Holtz Dec. 20, the night before the suspensions were announced.

The three went to freshman running back Trent Bryant's room to "have a discussion with a certain person in the room. It didn't work out, so we left," Cowins said.

Cowins said Holtz later told the rest of the team about "what had happened." Cowins said the three standouts were not present at the meeting.

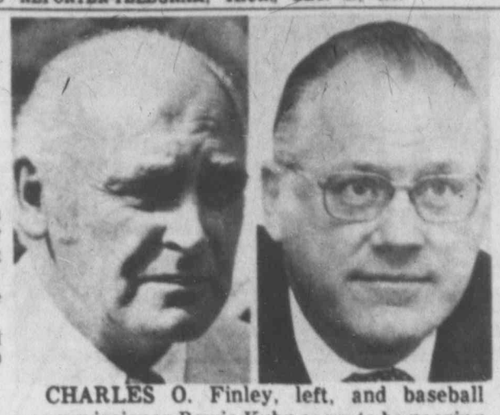

Cowins said the feedback he later received from teammates led him to believe "they were told something different by Holtz than what had actually happened." He said he confronted Holtz with that opinion, but the coach gave "no response."

Holtz is in Miami with the team preparing for the Monday game.

Under questioning from Deputy Attorney General Frank Newell, Cowins said he guessed about 10 people were in the room at the time of the incident. He said he could not remember everyone's name that was in the room.

When Newell asked Cowins to identify any persons he could recall from the dorm room incident, Walker asked the judge to call the lawyers from both sides to the bench.

After a brief exchange, Shell called a recess and later it until today's resumption of the hearing.

CHARLES O. Finley, left, and baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn seem to be nearing the end of their feud with Finley selling his Oakland A's to a Denver businessman and withdrawing from the game. Finley two years ago to try to oust Kuhn as commissioner in an owner's coup.

Texas Aggies arrive for Bluebonnet test

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M Coach Emory Bellard figures there's always a mystery to preparing for bowl games but the Aggies had the right formula a year ago.

"Bowl preparations are always in limbo," Bellard said Wednesday as the Aggies arrived to begin final preparations for their New Year's Eve meeting in the Astrodome against Southern California.

"You never know exactly what to expect," said Bellard, who has the Aggies in a bowl for the third straight year. "But we've been having good workouts so I hope we are prepared to play Southern Cal."

Whatever formula the Aggies used a year ago worked. They blistered explosive Florida 37-14 in the Sun Bowl to complete a 10-2 season. Things didn't work out as well two years ago however when the Trojans whipped the Aggies 20-0 in the Liberty Bowl.

"It's always been an interesting thing to me how teams come right up to their peak at kick-off time for a bowl," said USC's John Robinson, who did something right in getting his Trojans ready to upset Michigan in the 1976 Rose Bowl.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Try exercise for insomnia

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: I have had trouble getting to sleep. This happens to be a bad time for me and I have a lot on my mind. I don't want to get started on sleeping pills. How should I handle the problem?-- J.V.

DEAR J.V.: Exercise--enough to make you feel pleasantly tired-- is one of the best ways to conquer insomnia. But not right before bedtime. Tests at St. Louis University indicate that relaxation at that time is a better way to insure getting to sleep. But a good fast walk during the late afternoon or evening would be fine. So would a jog--provided that you are in shape.

DEAR DR. SOLOMON: Can interior building materials cause headaches?-- Margaret McK.

DEAR MARGARET: Peter Breysse, an environmental health expert at the University of Washington in Seattle, has reported that many new mobile homes have an unusually high level of formaldehyde in the particle board often used throughout the homes.

This is likely to cause headaches, eye and nose and throat irritation, breathing difficulties and nausea. In some of the homes he and his associates tested, the formaldehyde levels were higher than one part per million, which the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health has proposed as a maximum. Breysse says that women seem to be more affected than men, as they spend more time in the home. The symptons are worse on humid days in summer and also on very cold days in winter when the windows are not open. The newer the home, the higher the formaldehyde level.

In general, Breysse says, it can take four years or more for the formaldehyde to dissipate to a fairly safe level. But, he adds, for some people the only safe level is zero.

As if to make matters worse, people troubled by the chemical were, in some instances, told by their doctor that they appeared to have a psychosomatic problem of one kind or another. Being considered bats by your friends and physician, Breysse notes, does not make things any easier.

If you have a medical problem, see your doctor. If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Bombings begin in South Africa

The Washington Post

JOHANNESBURG — Early last week, a group of Christmas shoppers clustered around a cardboard box that had been left on a busy downtown street.

"We're waiting to see if it explodes," one onlooker declared.

Fortunately for them, it didn't. But their behavior indicated that not many South Africans are paying much attention yet to their government's warnings about the emerging phenomenon of urban terrorism.

Since a rash of bombings began Nov. 24, the government has been warning South Africans that, lucky as they have been up to now, they may have to live with a dramatic upsurge in bombings and bomb scares in the future.

"In an urban terror situation such as that now developing in this country, no one — no one at all, black or white — is immune," proclaimed the pro-government newspaper, The Citizen.

The daily paper, with the cooperation of the South African security police, recently ran a four-part series designed to make the public "bomb conscious."

The articles included tips for telephone operators on handling bomb threats, instructions for tenants in buildings that have received threats and a new rule of étiquette:

"South Africans must learn it is now very bad manners to leave unattended articles lying about," said Brigadier C.F. Zietsman, head of the security police.

Officially the government does not consider the bombings specific protests against its racial policies, but rather part of a worldwide phenomenon, or as one security association president put it, "A Third World unpleasantness," that has belatedly come to affect this tense country.

Many residents here agree with this attitude. "It's a worldwide way in which warped people express political dissent," said S. Nigel Mandy, manager of the Carlton shopping center. "In this city, it might be against the government ... but I don't regard it as a dmonstration against apartheid. In Spain, the Basques bomb in order to get apartheid."

Shortly after the first bombing in the last week of November, the government-run radio reminded its listeners that urban terrorism is a fact of life in much of the world — Northern Ireland, for example — and that in some countries it is not possible to walk down the streets safely.

"Remember that as you walk the queit streets of Johannesburg," the commentator said.

Some political observers suggest that the bombings might be the work of students who fled South Africa over the past 18 months and who were recruited abroad for urban terrorist training by the banned African National Congress.

Police officials were either reluctant to answer reporters' queries on the bombings, or failed to return telephone calls, but Brigadier Zietsman gave support to the student theory in a local newspaper interview when he said: "Over the last year police have picked up steadily increasing numbers of 'shopping bag' or 'suitcase' bombs ... Combined with the increasing flow of Sowetan students returning from terrorist training. This makes for a high-risk bomb situation." Sowetan students are from Soweto, the black township near Johannesburg.

Minister of police and justice, Jimmy Kruger, has said that the bombings are proof that his Oct. 19 security clampdown, in which dissident organizations were banned and scores of people were arrested, had been necessary.

In a related announcement made last week, Maj. Gen. David Kriel, deputy commissioner of police in charge of riot control, said that violence, arson, rioting and unrest in South Africa's black townships had dropped by up to 85 percent since the Oct. 19 clampdown.

The four recent bombings began with the explosion in the posh downtown Carlton shopping center, owned by diamond magnate Harry Oppenheimer's Angle-Ameican Corp. In contrast to that blast, the three subsequent bomb targets — a railway van, the storeroom of a suburban police station and cars in a railway parking lot — were not well-known or in crowded areas.

How do people live? Check new government book

By SUSANNA McBEE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the last decade urban Americans have markedly changed their lifestyles — they are working fewer hours for pay, spending less time on family matters and devoting themselves much more to leisure.

These findings are reported in a study that is included in a 647-page Commerce Department book called "Social Indicators 1976" that is being published Wednesday.

The book is a product of four years of work by a team of statisticians headed by Denis F. Johnston, a sociologist in the department's Office of Federal Statistical Policy and Standards. The statistical office and the Census Bureau, which is also part of the Commerce Department, compiled the volume from a variety of government and private research studies.

"This is the first time that we've tried to include so much data that reflect the quality of ilfe in the country," Johnston said.

It is the second time the government has sought to tell us how we live, procreate, spend money, commit crime, get educated, work, and die. The first such effort, a 272-page volume produced by the Office of Management and Budget, came out in February, 1974, and was called "Social Indicators 1973."

The new book contains many more studies aimed at finding out how people feel about such things as their community, family life, jobs, and financial situation.

Johnston admitted that "the opinion data are the weakest, because samples are small and some questions — like 'How satisfied are you with your job?' — may not elicit real feelings. But such surveys constitute one dimension of a social indicator, and they're an attempt to describe what well-being means."

The report on average hours per week spent on major types of activity was cimpiled last year by the Communication Research Center at Cleveland State University and compares a sample of 1,218 urban people in 1965 with a similar sample of 726 people in 1975.

It shows that employed men, married and single, spent more than 51 hours a week at work in 1965. Ten years later married men were spending 47.7 hours on the job and single men, 40 hours. Employed women spent 38.4 hours if they were married, and nearly 40 hours if they were single on the job in 1965. But in 1975 married women spent 30 hours and single women 38.8 hours at work, the survey said.

Time spent on family care, which Johnston said includes shopping and cleaning house as well as child care, dropped from 25.4 hours a week to 20.5 hours during the decade.

Married housewives, who had devoted 50 hours a week to family care in 1965, were spending 44 hours on it in 1975, and the time married working women spent on such activity dropped from 28.8 hours to just under 25 hours.

Leisure time went up for all groups sampled, but for single men the increase was most dramatic — from 36 hours a week to nearly 45 hours.

Asked about the increase, Johnston said, "I don't know the reason. These data raise questions far more than they answer them.

"We used to think of the single male as one who's working like mad. But it looks as if he's opted for a lifestyle that includes some long skiing weekends. Economists would say that we're taking our increased affluence in the form of more leisure rather than more money.

"In households where women are working, men have an option to work less. The fact that women have more leisure time and spend less on family care could mean that children are not getting the attention they used to have or it could reflect the vast proliferation of packaged foods and other labor-saving devices.

Field tests, wildcat set in WT regions

TIPCO of Oklahoma City, Okla., announced locations for six projects in the Dixon (Ellenburger) field of Mitchell County.

The projects are scheduled for 7,300-foot bottoms and are five miles north of Silver.

TIPCO No. 14 Edwin Parks is 567 feet from south and 467 from west lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey. It is 1,516 feet east of the closest production.

TIPCO No. 15 Edwin Parks is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey and 1,867 feet southeast of the nearest well.

TIPCO No. 16 Edwin Parks is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 1, block 5, H&TC survey and 1,415 feet south of production.

TIPCO No. 17 Edwin Parks is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey and 1,380 feet south of a producer.

TIPCO No. 18 Edwin Parks is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 1, block 12, H&TC survey.

TIPCO No. 19 Edwin Parks will be drilled 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 2, block 12, H&TC survey.

PECOS WILDCAT

Costa Resources, Inc. of Dallas announced plans to drill a 4,000-foot wildcat in Pecos County, 25 miles northeast of Fort Stockton.

It is No. 1 Phillips, 467 feet from south and west lines of section 3, block 212, J. H. Umphrey survey.

STERLING TEST

Grand Banks Energy Co. of Midland spotted location for an 8,300-foot wildcat in Sterling County.

It is No. 1 Hannah B. Bailey, 660 feet from north and west lines of section 12, block 2, T&P survey and 19 miles southwest of Sterling City.

DECK PROJECT

Grand Banks Energy Co. No. 1 Mahaffey Estate is to be drilled as an 8,200-foot test in the Deck (Cisco) field area of Sterling County.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 34, block 2, T&P survey.

WARD WELL

Cotton Petroleum Co. (was Coquina Oil Corp.) No. 1 Chevron Fee has been completed as a gas well in the Beall (Devonian) field of Ward County.

The well finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 4,750,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 12,170 to 12,370 feet after 10,000 gallons of acid and a 45,000-gallon fracture treatment.

Total depth is 12,480 feet and plugged back depth is 12,418 feet. Five-inch casing is set at total depth.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of the lease in section 68, block 34, H&TC survey.

CROCKETT WELL

C. F. Lawrence & Associates, Inc., No. 2-66-W Halff has been completed ½ mile northeast of Grayburg gas production in the Onlaw field of Crockett County, eight miles south of Iraan.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 760,000 cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations from 1,234 to 1,347 feet after 20,000 gallons of acid.

Location is 933 feet from north and 9,350 feet from east lines of section 66, block 1, I&GN survey.

Total depth is 1,480 feet and 5½-inch pipe is set on bottom. Plugged back total depth is 1,450 feet.

Strawn pay well finals

James P. Dunigan, Inc., of Abilene No. 1-1129 Field has been completed as the second Strawn oil producer in the Arden, South multipay field of Irion County, 12 miles north of Mertzon.

On 24-hour potential test, it flowed 15 barrels of 39.7-gravity oil, plus five barrels of water, through an 8/64-inch choke and perforations from 6,719 to 6,721 feet after 250 gallons of acid.

Gas-oil ratio was 1,800-1.

Total depth is 6,848 feet and 4½-inch casing is set at 6,842 feet.

Location is 1,500 feet from north and 1,700 feet from east lines of TCRR survey No. 1129.

Gas strike potentials

Atlantic Richfield Co. No. 1-4-D University, a former McKee well in the Martin field of Andrews County, has been completed as a discovery in a shallow zone.

Operator reported a calculated, absolute open flow potential of 219,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations from 2,704 to 2,800 feet after 2,000 gallons of acid and 15,000 gallons of fracture solution.

Wellsite is 1,845 feet from north and 678 feet from west lines of section 1, block 11, University Lands survey and 25 miles southwest of Andrews.

Warmer predicted

By The Associated Press

A warming trend will account for higher temperatures, perhaps as high as 32 degrees, across the Plains today while another weather system continues to keep Florida's citrus country under refrigeration.

Early morning temperatures were running in the mid to high 20s, with some low 30s in Kansas and Missouri, which is about five degrees warmer than 24 hours earlier.

Temperatures in parts of northern Florida are in the 20s. Frost was expected over much of the state today.

Job sharing idea examined

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota governor's office is looking at the idea of allowing two employees to share a single state job, in certain cases.

Gov. Rudy Perpich says the aim is to reverse government policies which he feels are unsound because they tear families apart rather than promote family togetherness.

In some cases, he said, a husband and wife might share a state job, each working half a day and each spending half a day with their children.

The first reaction of one state employees' union was cool, although neither the concept nor the response has been fully worked out.

Wildcat site set

Hunt Energy Corp. of Dallas announced plans to drill an 11,000-foot wildcat in Val Verde County, 17 miles northeast of Juno.

The project is No. 1 S. M. Brown.

The drillstie is 1,250 feet from south and 2,640 feet from west lines of section 3, GC&SF survey, abstract 507.

Location is ½ mile west of a 10,570 feet dry hole and 1¾ miles west of the Vinegarone field.

Elevation is 1,966 feet.

Two hurt in accident

LYBROOK, N.M. (AP) — One man was in critical condition and another was in fair in the aftermath of a fire at the Southern Union Refining Co. on New Mexico 44 between Cuba and Bloomfield.

The two injured employees were transferred Wednesday from the Cuba Health Center to Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque.

They were James Roundtree, 30, and Harry Johnson, 25, both of the Lybrook area. Roundtree was in critical condition at BCMC.

Ted Stiffler, a Bloomfield plant superintendent filling in for the vacationing Lybrook superintendent, said the fire broke out about 3 p.m. Wednesday, apparently caused by "some type of gas leak."

The fire, Stiffler said, was located at the center of the plant and broke out perhaps in the plant's control room.

"That whole section of the plant (control room) is pretty well burnt. There's quite a bit of damage," said plant manager James Martin.

The refinery, which processes about 70 million cubic feet of natural gas daily, primarily produces gasoline, propane and other gas by-products.

The plant is a wholly owned subsidiary of Southern Union Gas Co. with headquarters in Dallas, Texas. Gas Company of New Mexico is a division of the Dallas company.

Crockett test set

Methane Gas Co. of Dallas spotted location for No. 2-H Seahorn 3/4 mile west of the Adams-Braggett (Canyon sand gas) field in Crockett County, 30 miles south of Ozona.

Location for the 5,600-foot operation is 796 feet from south and 2,070 feet from west lines of D. Y. Jackson survey No. 81/2, abstract 4635.

Eddy well takes final

Amoco Production Co. No. 1-ER State, one mile south of the Turkey Track, North (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N. M., has been completed as a shut-in gas well.

Completion was through perforations from 10,568 to 10,579 feet.

Operator reported a 24-hour open flow of 3,490,000 cubic feet of gas per day, plus 214 barrels of condensate.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 6-19s-29e and 18 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

World oil production highest ever in 1977

TULSA, Okla. — Worldwide petroleum production in 1977 was the highest ever, while exploration efforts expanded global oil and gas reserves.

Russia, the world's No. 1 producer, once again boosted output from year-earlier levels but not by as much as in the past, the Oil & Gas Journal reports.

ENERGY

expected to average 10.92 million barrels a day in 1977, compared with almost 9 million barrels a day in Saudi Arabia and about 8.6 million barrels a day in the U.S., the No. 2 and 3 producers, respectively, in the world.

"An industry that can produce 22 billion barrels of oil and 53 trillion cubic feet of natural gas and still add 5.5 billion barrels and 193 trillion cubic feet of reserves has to have a tremendous future," the Journal comments in an editorial in its Dec. 26 issue.

In its annual Worldwide Report, the weekly business magazine says 1977 global oil flow increased 3.9 percent to about 59.5 million barrels a day — about 21.7 billion barrels for the year.

Gas production increased an estimated five percent to a record 53 trillion cubic feet for the year.

Russia's gain over 1976 oil production was about 526,000 barrels a day, which permitted another rise in oil imports, now about 2.5 million barrels a day.

Significantly, western Siberia accounted for all of the USSR's net production increase for 1977. And that region is having its share of problems.

Production in supergiant Samotlor field has peaked. And the Soviets, already pushing output to the limit to meet official targets, have no readily available replacement capacity to take up the slack, the Journal says.

That, coupled with disappointing exploration results virtually nationwide, accounts for the slippage from the past pace of Russian production gains, which peaked at almost 640,000 barrels a day in 1975.

Western Siberia's Salym field, once throught to be another supergiant, has been a superdisappointment. The Soviet Government's present five-year plan covering 1976-80 calls for 184 development wells in that field.

Meanwhile, the Journal says, non-Communist oil production glutted world markets most of the year, increasing 3.4 percent to about 46.4 million barrels a day, or almost 17 billion barrels for the year.

Output by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries totaled 30.77 million barrels a day, or 66 percent of global supply.

Still, OPEC's gain over 1976 output was only 1.2 percent, despite a temporary surge by Saudi Arabia for some months to almost 10 million barrels a day.

The additions to global oil and gas reserves are good news for consumer countries. Oil reserves now total 646 billion barrels, the Journal says. And gas reserves, which gained 193 trillion cubic feet during 1977, are 2.52 quadrillion.

Those reserves represent a 30-year supply of oil and a 50-year supply of gas at current rates of production. But, the Journal points out editorially, there are some hidden hazards.

Geologists think sizable petroleum resources remain to be discovered, which means current reserves figures are somewhat understated. On the other hand, the year's supply figures don't take into account the speed with which growing demand gobbles up reserves.

Sometime in the next decade, most experts expect the world's appetite for petroleum to surpass supply.

That's difficult for the public to see, the Journal says, since right now the world is virtually swimming in oil with new production coming in from Alaska, Mexico, and the North Sea.

Part of the reason for the oil glut is suppressed demand in Europe, where economies are still sluggish. Once they recover and demand picks up again, the current world surplus could evaporate quickly.

Another trouble are is refining capacity. At present, thre's too much of it in many parts of the world; and it climbed still another 2.25 million barrels a day during 1977 to 77.3 million barrels a day.

Of that, non-Communist capacity rose 1.38 million barrels a day to reach 63.35 million barrels a day, and Communist countries jumped capacity 870,000 barrels a day to 13.94 million.

In Europe some facilities were shut down to cut financial losses.

The overall operating rate of 1977 was only 77 percent of capacity. Compounding the surplus refining capacity problem is the inability of some existing facilities to process sour — or high-sulfur — crudes, which comprise 70 percent of incremental supply.

So the seemingly rosy supply picture "is no cause for complacency," the Journal says.

"The focus most not be on the current surplus but rather on economic, research and investment policies that will bring forth supplies a decade from now. Otherwise, the great promise implicit in the 1977 statistics will not be realized."

Explorers scheduled

American Quasar Petroleum Co. No. 1 Lost Draw will be drilled as a 10,200-foot wildcat in Yoakum County.

Drillsite is 13 miles southeast of Plains and one mile west of the Tokio, South field.

Site is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 497, block D, J. H. Gibson survey.

GAINES PROJECT

Petro-Lewis Corp. No. 1 Opel G. Cox will be drilled as an 11,500-foot wildcat in Gaines County, three miles southwest of Seminole.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 224, block G, WTRR survey.
