Concern Mounts Over Occupation Plan

U.S. Moves To Quiet Surging Labor Front

Schwellenbach Gets New Power; HST To Announce Reorganization Today

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach planned tonight to move in immediately on the troubled Detroit labor situation, armed with most of the power he had asked for dealing with such disputes.

The secretary disclosed that President Truman will announce a reorganization of the Labor department tomorrow in an effort to strengthen it. He added:

"As soon as that is done, we will get right square in the middle of the Detroit situation."

Applies To Oil Workers

He added, in response to a query, that this remark also applied to strikes among CIO oil workers.

Schwellenbach said the President had consented to give him "not quite all" of the things he had requested in planning reorganization and strengthening of the Labor department. He added, "we are going to get enough to do a job with."

"You don't put out a four alarm fire with a garden hose," he said.

His remark was interpreted as meaning the Labor department is now relatively unprepared to meet a critical labor showdown. Schwellenbach's plan had been submitted to the White House Aug. 10 and the labor secretary was known to be concerned at the delay in getting approval.

Over 200,000 Idle

The action presumably was speeded by the week-end developments on the labor front, which saw more than 200,000 workers idle, threats of strikes at General Motors which would throw another 325,000 out of work, and the closing of Ford Motor company doors in Detroit to 50,000 employes as a result of "bottleneck" strikes in suppliers' plants.

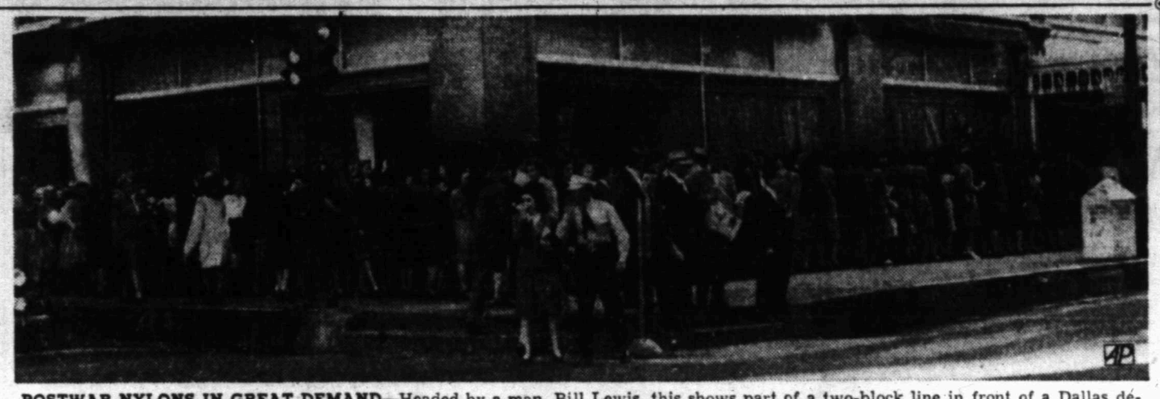

The CIO has favored retention of WLB for the critical reconversion months ahead, but the board itself has voted 10 to 2 to limit the disputes it will take to those in which both parties agree to abide by its decision.

Schwellenbach insists, however, that any dispute which interferes with orderly reconversion still must be handled by the board, and cites a presidential executive order of Aug. 18 as authority.

Plan Not Revealed

The secretary of labor did not reveal his reorganization plan when he submitted it to the White

MacArthur Sending Most Of Army Home

State Department Unadvised Of His Proposal And World Reaction Feared

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17—The State department moved tonight to investigate a statement of Gen. Douglas MacArthur that American occupation forces in Japan may be cut to 200,000 within six months.

Acting Secretary Dean G. Acheson said the department knew nothing about the MacArthur report and was attempting to find out about it.

Acheson made his terse comment in writing in response to a question submitted by a reporter. The department refused to amplify it.

Complete Surprise

It was learned authoritatively, however, that the MacArthur statement had been a complete surprise to State department officials and that it had created considerable concern.

One official, who asked not to be identified, said MacArthur apparently made his statement without notifying Washington in advance.

The official said there was considerable concern that the statement might create the impression abroad that the United States was planning to withdraw from the Pacific area at an early date, leaving the Japanese largely to manage their own affairs.

Wainwright Recounts Brutality To War Prisoners; Escaped 'Dead' Navy Man returns On Secret Mission

By RICHARD CUSHING
Associated Press Staff Writer

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17 — An American Navy commander who had been listed officially for months as dead, to keep the Japanese off his trail, told an amazing story today of escape from enemy gendarmes and return to China for vital intelligence work.

He is Cmdr. Columbus Darwin Smith, 55, a native of Atlanta, Ga.

Smith came to Shanghai in 1929 and became an expert pilot on the Yangtze river. He was taken into the United States Navy 10 days before Pearl Harbor and given command of the Gunboat Wake, sister ship of the ill-fated Panay which the Japanese attacked and sank on the river in 1937.

Wake Seized By Japs

The Wake was seized by the Japanese Dec. 8, 1941, and Smith was imprisoned in one camp after another.

The commander eventually was put into the Woosung prisoner of war camp which was surrounded by a high tension wire. He and four others, after six weeks confinement, tunnelled under the fence. But their freedom was brief; they were soon found by Chinese puppet government police.

Smith recalled with a laugh how bloodhounds were trotted out before the 1,600 internees to hunt down the five escapees. The dogs were so underfed they dashed for the aromic messhall instead of after the men.

Smith and his companions were tried before a Gilbert and Sullivan style court and convicted of the "amusing" charge of deserting the Japanese Army in time of war, he said.

Their death sentence carried other strange penalties such as relinquishment of Japanese citizenship, which they didn't have anyway, and dismissal from the United States Navy.

However, the death sentence was commuted to 10 years at hard labor and he was sent to the notorious Bridge House at Shanghai for confinement.

At this torture palace, Smith

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Corregidor, was beaten by Japanese soldiers repeatedly with the approval of their superior officers, he said tonight in an interiew with Morgan Beatty over NBC.

"The Japanese military authorities deliberately practiced all the forms of cruelty they knew or heard about," said Wainwright. "Their torture was as much mental as physical. . . . One night a Japanese private struck me five times and then knocked me as flat as a pancake by hitting me on the jaw with his fist."

Herd Flock of Goats

At one Japanese prison camp, Wainwright said, he and others were given the job of herding a flock of goats.

"All the Allied officers of my rank were required to perform manual labor," Wainwright said. "This was not only true of military men, but the civilian governors of large Dutch and British colonies were subjected to the same treatment."

Wainwright said Japanese authorities once offered to let him and other high Allied officials clear ground for a farm and raise food for themselves.

"We cleared the ground and got the project going," he recalled, "but never got to eat a single mouthful of that food they promised us."

Referring to the beatings, he declared "we were struck without particular reason" as part of a "studied plan" to belittle the Anglo-Saxon races before the Oriental peoples.

"We should occupy the Japanese islands for about 20 years," Wainwright asserted, "and in those 20 years we should deprive the Japanese of any industry or any business that would make it possible for them to beat their plowshares into swords."

The hero of Bataan expressed confidence that Gen. Douglas MacArthur knew how to deal with Japan, and added:

"He will ferret out the proper Japanese officials. He will know how to require them to perform the orders he gives them. There is nothing soft about him. If Gen. MacArthur is left alone the Japanese won't have a Japanese chance to start a war again—certainly not in this generation."

Story Is Syndicated

Wainwright said he did not have time to tell of the whole story of his long imprisonment after the fall of Corregidor.

"This story will be distributed by a news syndicate soon," he said. "After that I shall dedicate my life to the purpose of steeling the American nation against ever relaxing again into a defenseless attitude."

"We were instructed not to think bad things about the superior Japanese," he recalled, quoting from one Japanese prison camp circular as follows:

"The Americans and the English are not allowed to hold the haughty attitude over the peoples of Asia, or to look them down (sic), which has been their common sense for a long time. If there is any of such attitude at all on your part, you shall be severely dealt with."

Wainwright remarked that "the English is not too clear, but the meaning is."

Strikes Tie Up More Oil Plants

By The Associated Press

Scattered strikes in the oil industry last night began pushing upward the national total of persons idle in labor disputes, already well above the 200,000 mark.

In East Chicago, Ind., about 500 CIO oil workers walked out at Socony - Vacuum Oil company. Union officials said the strike would be a signal for possible

STRIKE VOTE CARRIES

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 17. (AP)—Employees of the Gulf Oil corporation refinery here who are members of the Oil Workers International union, CIO, voted 91 per cent in favor of a strike at the refinery in all-day balloting today.

The vote was 1,995 favoring a strike and 187 against.

other walkouts in Chicago area refineries employing several thousands. The union demands reduction in the work week from 52 to 40 hours with no cut in pay.

Pickets Block Trucks

Pickets were reported blocking trucks in the Detroit area where 500 oil workers are out. Three hundred struck at the Socony-Vacuum Trenton plant and 200 at the Refiners Transport and Terminal corporation for a 30 per cent wage boost.

In the Texas oil fields workers at the Gulf Oil corporation plant in Port Arthur were taking a strike vote. Other meetings and voting were planned this week in a labor situation threatening all gulf coast refineries.

In Detroit, where 82,000 are off the job because of labor disputes and plants shutdowns ,rumblings of dissension were heard within the ranks of the CIO United Automobile Workers union, preparing its campaign for a 30 per cent general wage increase.

UAW officials were unable to persuade 4,5000 Kelsey - Hayes Wheel company strikers to go back to work . This three-week strike forced the closing of the Ford Motor company plants, throwing 50,000 into idleness.

Officers Criticized

The committee of NAW locals' presidents criticized top officers for having failed "to take constructive measures to settle workers' brievances." Some local presidents also challenged plans of the international board to delay the 1945 UAM convention until April.

The big automobile union is planning to take strike votes under the Smith - Connally act in General Motors, Chrysler corporation and Ford Motor company.

The Westinghouse Electric corporation, where salaried workers struck for a bonus or incentive wage plan similar to that covering production workers, reported that in ten eastern plants 10,365 salaried employes were on strike and 27,153 had been furloughed as a result of the dispute.

Rice Nomination Gets Tentative Approval

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Senate Judiciary committee gave tentative approval today to the nomination of Judge Ben Rice of Waco for appointment as federal district judge for Western Texas.

Because Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) failed to send the committee any word regarding his position toward the nomination, the group agreed to postpone reporting it to the floor before tomorrow. If O'Daniel fails to appear or send his views by the time the Senate adjourns tomorrow, the nomination will be reported favorably.

Should O'Daniel, who endorsed Texas Governor Coke Stevenson for the position, voice an objection to Rice, the committee will hold up reporting the nomination until a hearing can be held.

Truman Warns On Food Outlook

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—President Truman told Americans in effect today they may have to put up with some food rationing for months, in order to help the hungry abroad.

The duration of food controls will depend largely, he said, upon arrangements for financing foreign food shipments.

The resumption of rationing on some items now freed of distribution controls is not an impossibility.

Pledge At Potsdam

In a statement on needs of war-torn countries, Mr. Truman recalled a pledge he made after his return from the Potsdam conference to the effect that this country would provide food and other supplies to devasted areas to "the limit of our strength."

Meanwhile, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson promised further liberalization of meat rationing for October. He said supplies at the annual rate of 140 pounds per person will be available for civilians next month.

This compares with a rate of about 132 pounds available this month, 115 pounds during the spring and summer, and 147 pounds in 1944.

Dependse On Shipments

The secretary said the duration of meat rationing will depend upon how much will be sent abroad.

Anderson added that sugar rationing may have to be continued into 1946, but he expressed hope that rationing of food fats—including butter, margarine, lard and shortening—may be ended by Jan. 1.

In a statement which followed a conference with Anderson and another with representatives of

Noted Singer Dies At His Dublin Home

DUBLIN, Sept. 17. (AP) — John McCormack, world famous singer for more than 40 years, died at his home in County Dublin last night after a brief illness. He was 61.

The Irish tenor, who became an American citizen in 1919, had been in ill health and under a doctor's care for some time.

McCormack had been living quietly just outside Dublin and had made no public appearances since his farewell concert for the Red Cross at London's Albert Hall in 1939.

He made his real debut in the United States as a member of Oscar Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera company on Nov. 10, 1909, appearing in Traviata with Tetrazzini and Sammarco.

Nazi Prosecutors Say 4,000,000 Died In Auschwitz Terror Camp

By WILLIAM F. FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LUENEBERG, Germany, Sept. 17—(AP) — Testimony that more than 4,000,000 persons died at the Auschwitz concentration camp was promised by the prosecution today as the opening of the military trial of Josef Kramer and 44 SS henchmen for conspiracy to commit mass murder.

A converted gymnasium in the heart of this picturesque medieval city served as a courtroom for the British military court trying Kramer—known as the "beast of Belsen"—for the regime of horror he instituted at that camp after his transfer from Auschwitz—and the 23 men and 21 women who served under him.

Separate Trials Denied

At the start, Maj. Gen. H. P. M. Berney-Ficklin, heading the court, brushed aside efforts of British officers defending the accused to get separate trials on the Auschwitz and Belsen camp charges.

Then Col. T. M. Backhouse, chief chief prosecutor, capped a cold, precise, two-hour-long recital of the incredible crimes charged to the 45 with a disclosure that he had a witness who had seen records of 4,000,000 deaths at Auschwitz.

Mass starvation, beatings and torture, filth and disease and despair, inmates driven to cannibalism—that was the picture Backhouse painted for the men trying the Nazis.

Throughout, the sudden Kram-

Spruance To Boss Fleet Around Japan

PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 17 (AP)—Navy headquarters announced today that all United States naval forces in Japanese waters soon would be assigned to the Fifth Fleet under Adm. Raymond A. Spruance.

Spruance will relieve Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the Third Fleet, who is scheduled to depart from Japan Sept. 20 for the United States.

Vice Adm. J. Fletcher, who commanded the North Pacific forces during the establishment of American naval occupation of northern Japanese ports, also will leave Japanese waters soon for his Aleutian headquarters.

General Plans Use Of Regulars Only

By RUSSELL BRINES
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Tuesday, Sept. 18 — General MacArthur, forseeing early and "complete demobolization" of his triumphant Pacific Army of draftees, declared today that 200,000 regular troops probably could rule Japan.

(The State department at Washington, surprised by the statement, planned to investigate it. One official said it was feared the impression would spread abroad that the United States was planning to withdraw at an early date, leaving the Japanese largely in charge of their own affairs.)

Halsey Coming Home

The Navy headquarters at Pearl Harbor disclosed that Admiral Halsey would leave Japan next Thursday for the United States. His Third Fleet forces remaining in Japanese waters will be assigned to Adm. Raymond A. Spruance's Fifth Fleet.

Discharge Scrap Flares In House

By TOM REEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The House listened today to hot words demanding faster discharge of the armed forces but refused to order a speedup.

Critics of the way the Army and Navy are demobilizing hit "brass hats" and "gold braid" in three hours of debate, then ran a series of tests on a bill designed to encourage voluntary enlistments as eventual substitute for the draft.

Rep. Reed (R-NY) brought the issue to a head. He offered an amendment that would have compelled the armed forces to discharge enlisted personnel with 18 months or more service since Sept. 16, 1940.

Not Recruitment Bill

Chairman May (D-Ky) of the military committee objected that the proposal dealt with demobilization—not recruitment—and demobilization had no place in this bill.

The amendment was ruled out of order.

An amendment by Rep. Miller (R-Neb) to limit the Army to 500,000 men and forbid drafting of any under 20 years of age went down on a voice vote.

Then a separate amendment that would forbid drafting of 18 and 19 year olds was ruled out of order.

Adopted was an amendment by Rep. Kilday (D-Tex) providing that any man with six months service may enlist for a one-year period.

MacArthur Statment

Several of thre House critics of domobilization progress seized on the statement of Gen Douglas MacArthur that within six months the Japanese occupation job probably can be done with 200,000 men. The general said he expected to send his draftees home as fast as possible and believed the job could be done by regular Army men.

MacArthur's figures cut 300,000 off the most recent estimates of the force needed in Japan, and proponents of faster release said the reduction should be reflected in lower draft calls and speedier discharges.

Administration men, however, took the position that shipping is the big factor and said men are being brought home now as fast as they can come.

Meanwhile Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, took cognizance of the mounting criticism in Congress. It was arranged for Marshall to discuss demobilization with members at a private session in the Library of Congress Thursday.

Senate Argues Navy Plan

While the House debated with no final vote contemplated until tomorrow afternoon, the same general subject from the Navy angle came up in the Senate Military committee.

Senator Revercomb (R-WVa) suggested that the Navy step up its discharges. Vice Admiral Louis E. Denfield, chief of personnel, testified the Navy plans to release 3,000,000 men by next Sept. 1, bringing the total dow nto 57,800 officers and 500,000 men. A faster setup, he said, is not feasible because of the shipping situation and the time required to lay up ships after they are taken out of active service.

The Army proposes to release 25,000 men daily by next January, Rep. Thomason (D-Tex) told the House. He said he thinks the release of 750,000 men from V-E day to Sept. 15 is "a pretty good showing."

7-Year Sentence Assessed Negro

Roosevelt Taylor, 18, a negro, was assessed 7 years in the penitentiary by a 99th district court jury Monday which found him guilty of assault to murder Cherry Mae Montgomery, a negro woman.

By its action the jury refused the application of defense counsel for a suspended sentence in case of conviction.

Taylor posted a recognizance bonds of $2,000 and was released from Lubbock county jail.

The woman was wounded July 8 by a shot from a pistol as she stood in the doorway of her home in Carver Heights.

Another Man Named

The youth was convicted despite the testimony of the complaining witness that Taylor was not the man who shot her. She was asked by District Attorney Burton S. Burks if she knew who shot her.

She answered that Rush Davis was the man. Davis, a negro man who was with Taylor at the time of the shooting, had testified as a state witness.

The district attorney countered by introducing Taylor's signed statement of guilt, and later, the testimony of Taylor himself that the defendant did the shooting.

Habeas Corpus Hearing Set

The jury deliberated an hour and 15 minutes.

Two habeas corpus hearings are set today in Judge G. V. Pardue's court . One will determine whether Ruel Griffin of Ralls, charged in the death recently of Lonnie Hillin of Ralls, shall be granted bail. Griffin has been held in Lubbock county jail without bail since the day after Hillin's body was found in a roadside ditch near Ralls. The other application for a habeas corpus writ is that of Jessie Mae Stimpson, 18, a negro woman, charged with the murder of a 14-year-old negro boy.

Secret Jap Prison Held Torture, Filth, Starvation And Death . . .

Story Of Shanghai's 'Bridge House' Is Told

By RICHARD CUSHING
Associated Press Staff Writer

SHANGHAI, Sept. 17. — The story of torture, filth, starvation and death inside the cream colored Shanghai apartment building named "Bridge House — perhaps the most infamous Japanese war prison in all Asia—was made known today now that the last of its living survivors have been liberated.

The secret prison, operated by the brutal Japanese gendarmerie, was as terrifying to the people of Shanghai as was Dachau to anti-Nazis in Germany and Maidenek to Russians and Poles.

The full truth as to the fate of many who entered the broad expansive structure here probably will never be known for the Japanese jailers made no records of entries or deaths.

Even today, more than a week after the formal Japanese surrender at Nanking, the Nipponese still refuse curious visitors access to Bridge House. Details of the hell hole must be supplied by survivors. Nobody believes that there is really much to be seen inside Bridge House other than bare rooms which had contained torture paraphenalia light and easily destroyed.

Bridge House from the outside looks like a comfortable modern apartment house. It was that in 1937 when the gendarmerie first converted it into a torture plant at the fringe of the international settlement.

The Japanese found the rooms too large for the tortures they had in mind. So they made partitions of wooden bars that crowded six people into a compartment of five by 12 feet or 20 persons into a space twice that size.

Bridge House conditions of filth, vermin and neglect were the results of general callousness and indifference.

The real tortures of Bridge House were undoubtedly part of a planned program to break down all human dignity and destroy the will until a victim became an abject piece of humanity agreeable to anything his jailors might ask. Chinese, foreign civilians and even some Japanese were subjected to tortures. Two months before Tokyo's plea for peace seven American fliers, who crashed on a bombing mission from Okinawa, were among its victims.

One American, suspected of being an agent for the U. S., survived four months in Bridge House. He told of extreme phases of sadism. His testimony will be an important factor in trials of war criminals, and for that reason he remains unidentified. He was an agent for the U. S.

"I never heard of anyone who stayed in Bridge House more than six months—he would be dead. I'm afraid another month would have killed me or driven me insane," he reported.

He said the Japanese stripped him and burned him on many parts of his body with cigarets and when he refused to give the answers they stuck lighted cigarets in his nostrils. Calmly describing this procedure he said "it isn't so bad, that business of the nose, because the nasal membrane puts out cigarets and you don't feel the pain very long."

HOUSING SITUATION

END of the war did not lessen the need for apartments and rooms for married military personnel stationed at Lubbock Army Air field and at the moment there are dozens of officers and enlisted men seeking places for their families. Air Transport command pilots, here for the six weeks' course in instrument flying, are seeking either one room or apartments, for only that period of time, but enlisted men and permanent party officers would want the houses for a longer time.

If you have a place to rent or know of some one who does, you are asked to telephone Lubbock Army Air field and ask for the personnel services office and place your listings. They will send only one man to the address, so you will not have a dozen or so descending at one time.

In discussing the crying need for rooms or apartments the other day some one said it seems that property owners are not interested in helping military persons find rooms since the war is over. We don't know about that. We know many share our opinion that we are glad LAAF is remaining an active field and that the soldiers and officers are here yet. They add something to our city that would be greatly missed if taken away.

IS SEEKING WORD

Learning that elements of the 14th Armored division of the Third Army are arriving in the United States, after service in Europe, E. F. Henley of route 1, Lubbock, is doubting his efforts to get in touch with a soldier who served in Company A of the 68 AIB in which his son, Dolan E. Henley, who was killed in Germany April 4, served.

Mr. Henley has written to his son's captain and to the chaplain but has received no word. His son had been in Germany only a short time when he met his death. If anyone has information of this battalion, the father hopes he will get in touch with him.

IN THE MAIL

DEAR MISS TURNER: I have a problem that I would like to have some help on.

I am a newcomer and live next door to a widow who had reared several boys and a girl or two but she seems to have forgotten how children are. If any of them get on her lawn she comes out raving, and the children around here have to play across the street to keep from bothering her.

She is eternally complaining to me about something, mostly about the neighbors, and I can't understand why anyone wants to be such a nuisance; she is miserable and makes everyone else miserable, too. So far I have stayed clear of her wrath, but oh boy, the day may come sooner than I'm expecting!

Sincerely,
A Newcomer.

DEAR NEWCOMER:

Sorry you are having that experience when we know for a fact the town includes in its residents hundreds of lovely widows who have reared their families, are now living alone and dearly love children. Some of them are helping their daughters with their children while the men are away in service; others are reluctant to have children live with them but at the same time they are kind and understanding.

Of course children can be trying at times, you must admit. Especially do they seem trying if they ride their bicycles over your pet flower beds or stomp across the Victory garden in trying to catch a fly ball. And who hasn't had to get a firm grip to keep from sounding like a shrew when she goes to the door to sound a warning if a neighbor child comes screaming across the yard just after she had got the baby to sleep?

You have a problem Newcomer, but we don't know how to help you solve it. Perhaps your next door neighbor has hay fever and will feel better soon. Perhaps if she could meet the children who stay clear of her yard, she might learn to like them.

Annual Festival Is Scheduled Nov. 3

In a called meeting of the St. Elizabeth Altar society, Friday night, there was a discussion on raising funds to make improvements in Parish hall, and plans were made for the annual fall festival to be held Nov. 3. Mrs. W. H. Melton, chairman of the finance committee presided in proposing the project.

The festival will consist of a country store, and there is to be a barbecue supper in connection with it. Men of the Holy Names society recently donated a barbecue pit which is being installed in the vacant lot west of Parish hall.

Miss Merrick And C. B. Strain Wed

LAMESA, Sept. 17. (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Merrick of Motor Route D, Lamesa, are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Lillian Ruth to C. B. Strain, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Strain, sr., Chico, in a double ring ceremony read in the home of the bride's parents, Saturday night at 8:30. Dr. Clarence Morton officiated.

A bower of sumac, flanked by white mums in tall baskets, and seven-branched candelabra with white tapers formed the marriage altar.

Mrs. E. V. Hicks of Lubbock, pianist, accompanied Mrs. W. J. Beckham who sang "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me." Mrs. Ray L. Hollingshead played during the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a brown wool suit with brown accessories, a turquoise blouse, and a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom. Her shoulder corsage was of white asters.

Miss Estelle White of Lamesa and Mrs. L. D. Kirby of Coral Gables, Fla., were attendants to the bride and Burl Haynie of Big Spring was best man. Miss White wore an aqua suit with black blouse and accessories and Mrs. Kirby wore a rose wool suit with navy blouse and accessories.

Reception Follows Service

Mrs. E. R. Yates presided at the bride's book at the reception which followed the ceremony in the bride's home. Mrs. L. E. Riethmayer of Lubbock and the bride's attendants served the wedding cake and punch. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and lighted with tall white tapers. The three-tiered cake was topped with a miniature bridal couple.

The wedding guests were from Lamesa, Lubbock, Miami, Fla., and Big Spring.

After Tuesday the couple will be at home in Big Spring. The bride has been a deputy in the county clerk's office at Lamesa for four years and recently was employed by Danciger Oil and Refining company, Fort Worth. She is a former student at San Angelo Junior college and Mary Hardin-Baylor college, Belton. Mr. Strain is with the drivers' license division of the Department of Public Safety and is stationed at Big Spring.

ABERNATHY, Sept. 17. (Special) — Miss Ruby Joe Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Merritt of Abernathy and Cpl. Francis Leffler, Jr., of Abernathy Auxiliary Air Field, of New York City, were married in a double ring ceremony, read Sunday in the Abernathy Methodist church here, with Rev. Frank Beauchamp officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and Mrs. Morris Kerr was matron of honor. Sgt. Leonard Reu of Buffalo, N. Y., was best man.

Traditional wedding marches were played during the service and "Always" and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Miss Jo Dean Pharr. The church was decorated with palms and baskets of white gladioli flanked the altar.

A reception followed the ceremony in the home of the bride. The table was decorated with a lace cloth and a three tiered wedding cake.

Following a short trip, the couple will be at home in Abernathy. The bride is a graduate of Paducah High school and the bridegroom was graduated from Port Chester High school, New York.

The Nile river is about 4,000 miles long.

Many Narrow Escapes Recalled By Hud Wright, Home From Jap Prison

By JAMIE HYATT
Avalanche Staff Writer

"Our boys escaped death by hairs dozens of times in the almost four years since we sailed for the Pacific, always to be saved by something," Maj. Huddleston Wright, "Lost Battalion" returnee, said after his return to Lubbock Monday. "God had his hand on our shoulder every minute of the time."

Maj. Wright flew from New York Saturday after being in the States for approximately a week. Mrs. Wright and their children, LaNelle and Linda, and the major's father, J. A Wright, went to Fort Sill, Okla., to meet Maj. Wright, who was liberated from a Japanese prison camp in Thailand Aug. 30. The family members had planned to stay over-night there, but Maj. Wright put a stop to that idea with, "Let's go to Lubbock!" They did, arriving here long after mid-night.

In Excellent Condition

In excellent condition, himself, and wearing a mustache that he didn't have when he left with the Lubbock battery of the 131st Field artillery, of which he was commanding officer, Maj. Wright said of the other men who were in his camp, "All of them are in good condition except for minor disabilities that will soon be cleared up. None of them had anything wrong that is of any importance, but they will have to be hospitalized until they are free of any disorder. The ones who are home now happened to be free of malaria, malnutrition or any other defect that would have kept them hospitalized."

As for morale — morale was what they had the most of in their camp. "There was always something funny happening. Regardless of what came up, and something came up all the time — we could always find something funny about it. We pulled jokes on each other part of the time and on the Nips part of the time, and either way, we got a good laugh.

Men Well Trained

"Our bunch of men were well trained, well behaved, easy to manage, and obeyed orders without question, which was one reason they got along so well. One of the worst dangers in camps was in drinking water that had not been boiled, and not one of our men died from cholera because he had drunk polluted water. Regardless of how thirsty our men were, they'd wait for a drink that was boiled."

"We had a lot of fun with beards — the Nips took away our straight razors because they didn't want us to have weapons, but it made them furious when we would let our whiskers grow. I grew three beards that came down to my chest simply to make them mad.

"After we started working on the railroad in Thailand was when the going got tough. We didn't have good quarters — we lived in bamboo huts up a few feet off the ground and water stood under them. There were mosquitoes galore all bearing malaria. We would have all got malaria if it hadn't been for our GI mosquito nets, and as it was, we all had touches of the disease now and then. We didn't have any sanitary facilities to brag about and the food was lousy.

"One thing, though — if there was anything in the Nip kitchens, such as cooking oil—it was also in our kitchens. We learned to be the biggest thieves and cattle-rustlers the world has ever known. And we weren't ashamed of it either. We just loved to steal from the Japs.

"There never was a time we didn't have plenty of rice, although part of the time it was the screenings from the polishing mills and what we got was cracked and full of worms. But we picked the worms out and ate it anyway. We even cooked snakes. One time we had a 17-foot python that was very good and at other times we ate cobra. If we had coconut or palm oil, we fried them in it, if not, we broiled them. The Nips would give us rice stew that they swore had meat in it, but if you got a piece of pork the size of your little finger, you had eaten a roast!

"About a year and a half ago the Nips began to notice that the planes flying over had stars on their wings instead of red balls, and that not only that, but they dropped bombs and hit pretty good with them, too. They must have got the idea that the war wasn't going the way it was supposed to, because they started feeding us eggs, fish and meat and let us buy supplies from the natives, as well. They even quit stealing our rations. We figured they must have decided they'd better live up to the Geneva convention from then on."

In a chronological order, here, in Maj. Wright's words, are the series of events and moves that filled up the three years and ten months since Nov. 11, 1941, when he left Camp Bowie:

First Pacific Task Force

"We were called the first Pacific task force," Wright said. "But from the time we heard the news of Pearl Harbor, seven days out of Honolulu until we went into Suva, Fiji islands, we were dodging Japs. We were the first prisoners to be taken.

"From Suva we went to Brisbane, Australia, where we spent Christmas, 1941," he continued. "That was where we received the kindest treatment you can imagine from the Australians. I don't believe they let a boy in our battalion go without eating Christmas dinner in some Australian home."

Leaving Brisbane, the boys sailed for Darwin, where they spent three days before being ordered to Java. That was in the early days of the war when the Japs were overrunning the southwest Pacific, concentrating their efforts on the East Indian archipelago.

As soon as they landed in Java, on Jan. 11, 1942, the battalion went under orders of the Dutch and for the next two months participated in a frantic campaign to defend the tiny island, 650 miles long and 150 miles wide from invasion by the Japs.

Furnished Ground Crews

They even furnished ground crews for the 19th Bombardment group which flew against the Japs in hectic bombing raids; they laid down artillery barrages as the Jap invasion force of 250,000 men swarmed the island and soon overran the Dutch.

"Our artillery unit wasn't in actual close-at-hand fighting except for about two days, but there were always plenty of snipers behind us to take pot shots. We'd hear a zing! and duck, but we were always too late—by the time we'd duck the shot had passed on. There isn't anything in this world to compare with a Jap's aim—they couldn't get close to their target at ten feet.

"To demonstrate how lucky our men were at escaping death, there were about thirty of them in a circle around a gun emplacement that Ilo Hard commanded. A Jap bomb hit right in the middle of the circle with a chance of killing every single one of them, and not a one was even scratched. They had a network of slit trenches around their gun, and they were all underground when the shell hit."

Finally, they were informed by the Dutch that fighting was hopeless and they were forced to surrender at Garoet. The Japs let them keep their trucks and they were quartered at a race track while the Nips made up their minds what to do with the prisoners, Wright said.

"After a few days they moved us to a tea plantation in the mountains and told us there we would stay for a while," Maj. Wright continued. "We had started building bamboo huts in which to live and had begun to enjoy the mountain air ,but they only let us stay there ten days before they ordered us moved to Janjung Priok, on the north coast where we were quartered in coolie barracks.

"There's where we got our first taste of the Nipponese character," Maj. Wright declared. "In the six weeks we stayed there we nearly starved to death and the sanitary conditions were terrible. The barracks, used by coolie laborers before the war, were infested with every kind of bug imaginable and we had to forage for food, what with the little the Nips gave us.

"They then moved us into Batavia, where we were kept six months before being loaded into a boat which they wouldn't even have hauled cattle and started toward Singapore. We were huddled into the racks of this boat like sheep and the decks were like those used for shipping sheep or hogs.

"This went on for seven days and nights until we reached Singapore . . . . Arriving at Singapore, we were put to work on tearing out a rubber plantation and building a garden, which we were told was to be used to feed prisoners with . . . We worked on this garden three months and then sent overland by train up the Malayan peninsula to Penang.

35 To Railroad Car

"This train wasn't much better than the ship, for they crowded 35 of us into each Nip railroad car which are about one-third the size of our freight cars. At Penang, they put us on a ship and started up the coast to Moulmein."

It was on this trip that the boys received their closest brush with death, Maj. Wright said. Allied planes bombed the convoy of ships and sunk the one just in front of the one most of the West Texans were on, Maj. Wright said.

"They made two bombing runs at our ship and straddled it each time with bombs," Maj. Wright said, "giving us a bad scare, for we didn't have life jackets. We picked up 1,100 of the 1,200 Dutch on the other ship but most of the Nips aboard were lost."

Landing at Moulmein, Jan. 17, 1943, the boys were put in an old prison, formerly used as an asylum, where they were kept ten days, Maj. Wright recalled. Then they were loaded into trucks and taken into Burma and put to work on the construction of a railroad running from Bangkok to Saigon and extending into Burma.

"Each day two groups of 50 men and an officer to head each of them and keep them under control was sent out to do a certain amount of work. If it took eight hours to do it, that was fine. If it took till 2 o'clock in the morning, that was fine, too. Their method of making you like to work overtime was their little men carrying a big stick with a long knife on the end of it—in other words, rifle with a bayonet.

"This was the hardest work we had to do and living conditions were the worst we had struck," Maj. Wright said. "We slept at night in bamboo huts, the floors of which were only six or eight inches above the water. Each man had a space about 30 inches wide by six and one-half feet in which to sleep and whenever one man turned over, everybody else in the hut had to do likewise."

"The enlisted men were paid twenty cents a day for their work and got paid every ten days," Maj. Wright said. Their pay equalled about two cents a day in American money.

All work on the jungle railroad was done in coolie fashion, Wright said. Even the concrete was mixed by hand.

Nips Got Fooled

"There's where the Nips got badly fooled, too," Maj. Wright said with a gleam in his eye. "We mixed that concrete in every conceivable fashion, putting in too much sand and adding dirt even so that it would crumble . . . Huge trees were felled and squared by hand and driven as piles for bridges."

"Quinine got scarce in the camps toward the last and a man had to have fever as high as 103 for two or three consecutive days before we let him have any quinine," Wright said. "Dengue fever was most prevalent and we had every kind of disease imaginable in the camps for there were Dutch, Australians, English and natives with us, although most of us were segregated into nationalities.

"We were moved about quite a bit and we were on a train being moved from Bangkok when we were told to unload that the war was over," he said. "For several days the natives had been telling us War finish. O K. Go Home." "but we didn't think they were right."

Maj. Wright said "there was a little shouting" in the celebration which followed but most of the officers with him were concerned about their men and immediately began making preparations for their liberation.

Maj. Wright has only two days here before he must report to San Antonio He expects to be granted a leave later Maj Wright declared he planned to remain in the Army, "for a while at least."

"All the boys were gaining weight, when I left them, and they'll all be o. k.," he said this morning. "They'll all be coming home within a few weeks."

Military Men, Some Diplomats Contend Japs Not To Be Trusted

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Staff Writer

Japan is not to be trusted.

That is a theme being repeated over and over by American military men who have had bitter experience with the Japanese in this war, and by at least some diplomats familiar with Japan's current and past history.

A qualified American spokesman on the subject of the Japanese as they are today is Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, hero of Bataan and Corregidor. At his homecoming celebration in New York, Gen. Wainwright said of his captivity:

Japs Show No Regrets

"I have seen the Japanese as they are, with their veneer stripped off. I shall bear the scars of those years all my life."

Wainwright pointed out that the Japanese are not sorry for what they have done. It simply would not occur to them to be sorry, he said, "because they have done nothing which is at variance with their accepted philosophy."

The martyred general thereby put his finger on the nub of the problem. Even if the Japanese were sorry, it would merely be the sorrow of self-pity and regret that they had failed in their dream of conquest. Western psychologists, while admitting their lack of knowledge of the Japanese character, are inclined to think that the scattered cases of suicide among Japan's defeated leaders is attributable more to chagrin and frustration than to repentance.

Boast of Continuance

Even a hasty glance at the historical record supports the view of the psychologists. It is hard to believe that the Japanese, after more than half a century of planned aggression and brutal disregard of the rights of others, could have a complete change of heart because of what so many of them believe is only a temporary setback. It is worth remembering that during this war some Japanese boasted of a struggle of 100 years, to be carried on even if the adventure which began with Pearl Harbor should fail.

The latest volume of State department papers on the Paris peace conference, just released in Washington, throws new light on Japanese long-range plans of conquest. The danger was seen then, but was not heeded.

Demands For Shantung

Secretary of State Robert Lansing, it appears, proposed to "have it out once and for all" with Japan because of her demands for the Shantung province of China. Nevertheless, Japan got Shantung under the Versailles treaty. At the subsequent Washington conference, Japan returned Shantung to normal Chinese sovereignty, but with such conditions attached that Japan's foothold on the soil of her continental neighbor was assured.

It was also during the Versailles conference that Japan was only recently been revealed to have been convicted of plotting to overthrow the British in India, at a time when Britain was her World war ally.

A condensed chronology of Japanese expansion and aggression over 50 years speaks for itself and seems to answer the question of whether Japan can be trusted.

Started In 1895

Japan started her career of international piracy in 1895 when she forced China to cede Formosa to the Japanese empire. In 1904 came the Russo-Japanese war, which started with a sneak attack on Port Arthur like the later one on Pearl Harbor, and gave Japan an opening wedge in Asia proper.

In 1910, Japan annexed Korea, partly by conquest and partly by fifth column activity. In the first World war, Japan sharpened her predatory teeth on Shantung but more important, got the mandates in the Pacific. Her subsequent militarization of those islands in flagrant violation of treaty obligations was winked at by the hypnotized western powers, which did not come out of their trance until Pearl Harbor.

After their bloodless victory at the Washington naval conference, the Japanese proceeded hardly a decade later towards the undeclared war on China, the rape of Manchuria and finally Pearl Harbor, when it appeared that Hitler had the world by the throat and it was time to reap the harvest.

Committee Appointed On Pool Improvements

Proposing various improvements in the local swimming pool in Mackenzie park, the City recreation commission yesterday appointed a special committee to study the problem and make recommendations for putting the plunge in tiptop shape before next season.

Appointed on the committee were Mrs. M. C. Butler, City Manager Marlin R. Smith, jr., K. N. Clapp, C. D. McGehee, and A. C. Hamilton, superintendent of the city recreation department. Hamilton will serve as chairman of the committee until it is organized and a permanent chairman elected.

Charles Whitaere presided as chairman at yesterday's meeting of the commission. Those attending the meeting were Vernice Ford, Knox Thomas, Dr. J. M. Lewis, Mrs. Durwood Bradley, and Mrs. Milton C. Butler. The committee plans to visit the pool early next week as it begins its study of the problem.

Enlargement of the pool and improvement of facilities for spectators at swimming events are reported planned.

Atomic Age Offers Possibilities Far Beyond Present Comprehension

(EDITOR'S NOTE: What will the atomic age be like? When will nuclear power be available for general use? What changes will it bring? The following is the first of three dispatches rounding up predictions of the shape of things to come when the power of the atom can be made generally available, and estimating when this may be.)

By ROBERT L. FREY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 17—What will the atomic age be like? Will it be a blessing or a curse? Will man master nuclear energy or be destroyed by it?

The scientists who worked on its discovery and invented the atomic bomb are not talking, except in general terms about the history of their achievement. They are responsible for keeping the greatest secret in the world.

Open Fantastic Vista

But the smashing of the nucleus of the atom and its promise of power in quantities hitherto unknown opens what some see as a fantastic vista of things to come. Yet perhaps no more fantastic than the atomic bomb, before two of them pulverized Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The first use of nuclear energy, according to the scientists who developed it, probably will be in the production of heat. Beyond this they see it being used in medicine as a source of radioactive material to supplement our slim supply of radium; and possibly as a means of transmuting metals, producing new ones and making the old ones more cheaply.

Raymond Loewy, well known industrial designer, speculated on the possibility of the use of nuclear energy to control the weather. Why not have our air conditioning outdoors, he says, where all can enjoy it?

Manufacturing Weather

"We could conceive of manufacturing our own weather," he said, "by reducing heat and humidity in summer and increasing heat in the winter. Further we might use atomic energy to create artificial areas of atmospheric high and low pressure. Controlling these areas from a central international keyboard, like an organ perhaps, a staff of experts could make our weather to order on a global scale. They could also, given a network of local control centers, break up approaching storms, hurricanes or tornadoes.

"The climate of entire countries now is affected by such oceanic currents as the Humbolt and the Gulf Stream. With the virtually limitless power released by nuclear fission we might create a vast warm or cold current on predetermined courses as another method of regulating the climate of whole continental areas.

Clear Up Atmosphere

"Then it would seem possible to use this energy to ionize the atmosphere, precipitating dust, and thus achieving practically perfect climatic conditions."

Loewy emphasized that he was not an atomic expert, but was speaking in terms of what he could see being done with the new power once it was on the market. He said he conjectured that nuclear energy might become available in a matter of five or ten years.

Loewy envisioned airlines using huge rocket ships, carrying freight as well as passengers.

Loewy believed that as long as we have started on the road to the atomic age, we should press on with our discoveries and developments. "One of the most vicious theories," he said, "is to leave well enough alone."

Send Ships Into Space

"This may sound fantastic" Loewy said, "but since you ask me to look into the atomic future, it does not seem impossible to me that this atomic energy may give us the means at last to send ships into space, to other planets.

"Man's desire for expansion is uncontrollable. When we realize here on earth that we can blow each other to bits and that war has become fruitless, we will look for new worlds to conquer. Instead of Japan fighting to win Australia, we may have all the world joined in colonizing, say, the planet Venus.

"Of course, if we find the inhabitants of other planets no more highly developed than we, this might lead to a great inter-planetary conflict, perhaps with Saturn and Earth fighting for domination of Venus.

"But staying on this earth for the present, I don't know how people are going to take this new energy. Because it was introduced as a great destructive force, I think it will take some time after the building of the first atomic power plant before people feel at home with it. There will be some prejudice to overcome."

Two Brothers Escape From Oklahoma Jail

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 17 (U.P.)—Two brothers accused of swindling an Alexandria, La., widow of $43,000 escaped from the city-federal jail here late yesterday, and the FBI today broadcast a nine-state alarm for the pair.

The brothers—Edward Thomas (Eddie) Freeman, 42, and Dewey Haskell Freeman, 32—escaped from the jail basement by sawing through two steel window bars.

A jail cook discovered the escape when he returned to the basement at 5 p. m. The federal prisoners, he said, had been in the basement only a half hour earlier.

A city negro prisoner identified as Sam Roach also escaped with the Freemans, but police believed he had "just seen the hole left by the other two and walked away."

Edward Freeman was arrested by FBI agents and police at Oklahoma City last April 24. His brother was picked up three days later at Handley, Tex.

They were accused of defrauding Mrs. Lucy Aymond, Alexandria, La., widow of $33,000 at Durant, Okla., and another $10,000 at Vernon, Tex.

CHIROPRACTIC
50th GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY YEAR

Today marks the beginning of the celebration of Chiropractic's Fiftieth (Golden) Anniversary year. And over the nation Chiropractors and their patients are giving thanks for the founding of the profession which has done so much in so short a time to alleviate the illnesses and suffering of mankind.

The modern science of Chiropractic was discovered almost by accident by Dr. D. D. Palmer, who by a strange coincidence was born just 100 years ago. Dr. Palmer gave the first Chiropractic adjustment of the spine while examining a patient who had lost his hearing in an accident. This mechanical correction of a joint distortion resulted in the restoration of the man's hearing. As a result Dr. Palmer began study and research which led to the founding of Chiropractic.

The name of Chiropractic was given to the new art by Samuel H Weedm, A. B., A. M., B. D., from the Greek Cheiro, meaning hand, and Praktikos, meaning to do efficiently. Therefore, to do efficiently by hand.

Others quickly became interested in the new science . . . many of them because of results they obtained themselves. And since that time Chiropractic has acquired millions of adherents in practically every land on the face of the earth. The profession is legally recognized in 43 states of the union and the District of Columbia.

The definition of Chiropractic is the system of adjusting the articulations of the spinal column by the hands only for the correction of the cause of dis-ease.

The Chiropractor holds that because the vital life energy flows from the spine to all parts of the body, pinching or impingement of those nerves by the vertebrae of the spine, results in lessening or stopping the flow of that vital energy and therefore illness, so-called dis-ease, and pain result.

The fact that you are temporarily "sick" or have "pain" is probably not your fault at all. It may be due to an accidental jolt or jar during your childhood. All of us may have slightly displaced segments of the spine which were caused by some shock we did not notice at the time. And perhaps nothing has happened since to show us that we have any spinal trouble—yet nine times out of ten such a condition is responsible for our sickness or pain.

Chiropractic found its greatest growth following World War I when Chiropractic demonstrated to thousands of shell-shocked and wounded veterans what it could do for them. And hundreds of these veterans became so enthusiastic and grateful for their recovery that they took advantage of the Government's offer to give them education in a chosen profession.

Still further, it is certain many hundreds more returning from World War II will find what Chiropractic can do for them, relieving them from untold agony and suffering. Chiropractic MUST and WILL fight for the right to save these men. When they and the people fully understand Chiropractic they will want Chiropractic and enjoy life, lived happily and healthily.

Three-Point Tax Relief Program Offered By Robertson Of Virginia

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Rep. A. Willis Robertson, D., Va., today proposed a three-point tax relief program calling for repeal of the three per cent normal tax on individuals, the 95 per cent excess profits tax on business and the $5 automobile use tax.

Robertson, a member of the House Ways and Means committee which initiates tax legislation, estimated that his proposals would cut personal income taxes about $2,000,000,000 (B) next year and business levies an equal amount.

Based On 130 Billion Income

He said his estimates were based on the assumptions that the national income would be at least $130,000,000,000 (B) next year, that revenue produced by existing rates would be at least $28,000,000,000 (B) in 1946 and that the government budget for the 1947 fiscal year would be held to essential needs and that would not exceed $22,000,000,000 (B).

Robertson believed that a tax bill, effective next year, must be limited in scope because it must be enacted in time to allow the Treasury to prepare new forms. He said the bill also must be limited in effect because of prospective revenue needs.

Deficit Spending

"The most fatal mistake that could be made with respect to fiscal affairs is to assume that because we have survived deficit spending for the past 15 years the ultimate balancing of the budget has ceased to become a major concern," he said.

He explained that he favored repeal of the three per cent normal tax because it was a war revenue measure not based on ability to pay, its repeal would "help sustain purchasing power" and it would provide relief where relief was most needed.

The normal tax allows a $500 exemption for each taxpayer and permits no exemption for dependents. Robertson said his proposal also would further simplify personal taxes.

Effects Are Compared

He compared the effect of his proposal with the 20 per cent cut "across the board" favored by Rep. Harold Knutson of Minnesota, ranking Republican member of the committee.

"A married person with two dependents with a net income of $2,500 will get relief in the sum of $52.50 on a total tax liability of $102.50, whereas if his income were $25,000 his relief would be $750 on a total tax liability of $9,395," Robertson said.

"If relief be given by means of a 20 per cent credit against total tax liability, which would cost the Treasury more than elimination of the normal tax, the relief would be only $20.50, whereas in the second it would be $1,879."

He said he favored repeal of the excess profits tax because it was a war tax to control profits on war contracts, it was "unscientific" and made inequalities inevitable and it would stifle business expansion during the reconversion period.

The ways and means committee wants a tax bill enacted by Nov. 1.

Three New Teachers Assume Duties At Tech

Three new members of the faculty at Texas Tech have assumed their teaching duties. They are: Miss Elizabeth Fox, John Henry Baumgardner and James H. Parnell.

Miss Fox, newly associated with the department of English, was graduated from Tech with B. A. and M. A. degrees. She served on the University of South Dakota faculty one year and later was employed as a civilian worker in the Signal Corps at Washington. She was recently employed in an air line office at Dallas.

Baumgardner, who recently received his discharge from the Army, was appointed assistant professor in the department of animal husbandry. He was graduated from Tech with a B. S. and M. S. degree, majoring in animal husbandry.

Parnell, formerly a lieutenant in the U. S. Naval Reserve, Monday assumed duties as assistant dean of men at Tech. Prior to entering the service Lt. Parnell served four years as athletic director, teacher and principal at Robert E. Lee Elementary school, Denton. He was graduated from North State Teacher's college, Denton, with a BS and MS degree.

Dr. Wm. M. Whyburn Appointed Member Statehood Centennial

Dr. Wm. M. Whyburn, president of Texas Tech, was recently appointed a member of the board of directors of the Texas Centennial of Statehood Commission by Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, who also serves as governor of the commission.

An official agency created by the Forty-seventh Legislature, purpose of the commission, Dr. Whyburn said, is to work toward the improvement of agriculture and rural life of Texas. It will commemorate 100 years of Texas statehood in a long-time program designed to revitalize rural life and rebuild the land.

Dr. Whyburn explained that local planning of the commission is to be based on studies dealing with natural resources, soil and crop protection, water resources, livestock improvement, farm-to-market roads, rural electricity, local industries, markets, financial resources, labor, health, church and recreational facilities, local government, schools, beautification and community needs.

A late registration fee is now being charged students and those registering after Wednesday must obtain special permission.

Hale County Hospital Now Has 400 Members

HALE CENTER, Sept. 17—Hale County Co-Operative hospital now has 400 families as members, and with $2,500 in donations, has $20,000 in cash on hand in its campaign to erect a modern medical center in Hale Center. R. A. Jefferies, treasurer, reports the hospital building should be started soon. Meanwhile committees are at work in all parts of the county soliciting further memberships. R. E. Wilson, chairman of the organizing board, said this week that a membership total of 500 should be reached by the end of September.

Mayor Joe F. Miles, V. L. Martin and Walter Struve have been named on a committee to secure a site for the hospital here.

"Mr. COE"
and the wait for telephones

We might call him Mr. COE, which is short for "central office equipment." He lives in telephone central offices, the most complicated part of the telephone system, and the part least known to the public. Mr. COE brings the wires from many telephones together in the right order, and provides switches so that one telephone can be connected to any other.

He's got his hands full now. Of the 240,000 people waiting for us to furnish them telephone service, the great majority are waiting because Mr. COE can't connect lines for them in central offices.

A lot more equipment is needed. Telephone factories are hard at work to make it, now that the war is over. But the equipment is complicated. It's slow to make and slow to install. Rest assured, however, that as fast as it's available, Mr. COE will use it to connect as many telephones as possible.

Joyce Treason Trial Opens

LONDON, Sept. 17 (U.P.)—British prosecutors closed their treason case against William (Lord Haw Haw) Joyce today after a whirlwind presentation of testimony that he broadcast Nazi propaganda during the war.

Joyce went on trial in Old Bailey this morning, and at 2:30 p. m. the crown rested.

G. O. Slade, counsel for Joyce, told the court that as a matter of law there was no case for jury consideration. There was no evidence, he argued, that Joyce "was or ever has been a British subject."

Joyce claimed that he was born in New York and thus was an American citizen not subject to the jurisdfction of British courts.

The prosecution, headed by Sir Hartley Shawcross, presented a letter described as written by Joyce's father which said the son was born in the United States, but adding that "we are British, not American citizens."

Witnesses also testified that Joyce used a British passport and once joined the London university officers' training corps.

More than 50 reporters representing British and foreign agencies crowded into the small space allotted them. Only 50 spectators were permitted access, and their permits were examined closely by police.

NIMITZ TO RETURN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17 (AP) — Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who led the Navy's drive across the Pacific and signed the Japanese surrender document as official representative of the United States, will return to Washington the first week of October the Navy said today.

Man Is Charged In Death Of Stepson

GOOSE CREEK, Sept. 17 (U.P.)—B. Lamell, 59, of Highlands, was being held today in the Goose Creek jail on charges of murder in connection with the death of his stepson, Frank Miller, 21, of Pasadena.

Miller, an employee of the Shell Oil company, had recently received his Army discharge after service in the Pacific.

Chief Deputy Sheriff H. C. Spence said Lamell told him he had returned home from work Saturday night and heard a noise at a window in the rear of the house.

He took a 12-gauge shotgun, went to the window and saw a man, Lamell reported to Spence.

He fired once and the man walked a short distance before falling to the ground.

Dr. C. P. Waters, medical examiner, said Miller had died instantly after the shooting.

Lamell was booked on the murder charge by Justice of the Peace R. R. Zierlein.

Safe Stolen Second Time In Six Months

HOUSTON, Sept. 17 (U.P.)—For the second time in six months, the Seville Cafe safe, weighing 600 pounds, was carted off by thieves over the week-end.

The safe contained $300 in cash and 103 cartons of cigarets. Newman Jones, manager of the Houston cafe, said entrance was gained by a rear door and the safe apparently was rolled the length of the cafe and loaded onto a truck.

About six months ago, thieves broke in, took the safe and got a similar amount of money for their work.

Man, Woman Arrested In Death Of Veteran

DALLAS, Sept. 17 (U.P.) — A man and woman arrested in a tourist cabin near Dallas Sunday morning were taken to Fort Worth for questioning in the death of Melvin Loyd Massie, 19, a discharged Merchant Marine.

The couple were arrested by Detective Lt. Herman Cobb and Detective A. C. Howerton of Fort Worth, with Dallas Detective H. K. Parr, after Massie's body was found on the stairs of a Fort Worth hotel, shortly after the arrested couple checked out.

The woman arrested gave her age as 20, and home as El Paso, and the man, 26, gave his home as Cushing, Okla.

USE
AERO DEFOLIANT
For faster, easier cotton picking

This year, save time and money when you pick your cotton, drop off the leaves with Aero Defoliant. This chemical dust actually drops the leaves off cotton for you in 5 to 10 days—lets in air and sunshine—and so cotton opens up quickly from top to bottom.
You can get your crop picked early—at less cost—and well ahead of your September deadline.
Application of Aero Defoliant at the rate of 30 pounds per acre with your regular dusting equipment is recommended. Will drop off leaves without their crumbling or lodging.

Get in touch with Rowland Company, Lubbock, Texas. They have a supply of Aero Defoliant on hand right now.

Red Raiders Start Shaping Offensive For Grid Opener

The Texas Tech Red Raiders moved into the final week of drills before opening the season here Saturday night with the Southwestern Pirates from Georgetown, and Monday was no holiday for Coach Dell Morgan's lads.

Most of the day was spent in dummy scrimmage, getting the boys set for the opening battle. Two squads worked on Red Raider plays at the north end of the field, and two more worked on Southwestern plays at the south end of the field.

This move indicated some head knocking might be on the schedule for this afternoon.

What loomed as a first string lineup was put through a rugged drill on offensive plays, and got in a little defensive work against the second stringers.

The veteran packed lineup that worked together during the afternoon might not be the starting lineup, but railbirds were of the opinion that it would not miss far from the starting eleven.

The lineup included J. E. Branton and Wade Meers at ends, Joe Snodgress and James Gimmell at tackles, Floyd Lawhorn and Russell Birdwell at guards and Otis Turner at center as a forward line. The backfield were all veterans of last year, with Gene Hardey at quarter, Arthur Shahan and Cecil Norris at halves and Walter Schlinkman at fullback.

There remains several days in which Morgan will be able to shift up this lineup, but it is a safe bet that a majority of this lineup will start the ball game against Southwestern.

The Red Raiders will be seeking revenge Saturday night for a defeat handed them last year by the Pirates, and all hands have been bearing down to get ready for this initial test of the season.

Pirates Open Drill For Red Raider Tilt

GEORGETOWN, Sept. 17. (Special)—Limbering up after their 6 to 6 tussle against Bergstrom field Troop Carriers Friday night, the Southwestern Pirates spent Monday afternoon in a light workout that featured little body contact.

Coach R. M. Medley expressed hope that H. K. Allen and Ed Blodzinski, both out of uniform for the opener because of injuries received in scrimmage, will be able to take their places in the starting lineup against Texas Tech next Saturday.

Medley and Assistant Coach Dewey Mayhem expressed satisfaction over the performance of their charges last week against their heavier and more experienced opponents. They observed, however, that in Texas Tech they will probably meet a squad better organized than were the Troop Carriers.

The favorite dueling ground of old New York was a lonely grassy glade in the woods of Weehawken, high above the Hudson river. Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton met there.

Westerners Get Set For Bobcats

The Lubbock Westerners started all over again Monday afternoon at Chapman field, getting ready for Friday night's invasion of San Angelo, and the lair of the powerful Bobcats.

The Bobcats, counted pretty well out of the picture a week ago, bounded back into the limelight last Friday night, winning 6-0 over a power packed Denison team, and again a state championship is being talked about along the Concho.

At the same time, the Westerners were losing at Odessa by a 26-7 margin, in a battle that found Coach Dixie White's boys looking good after a rocky start that left them far in the hole.

Some Still Slowed

Several of the boys were still somewhat slowed Monday afternoon, as the after effects of upset stomachs that bothered the Westerners in their debut Friday night.

There was no hard work for the boys Monday, but coaches indicated there would be plenty in the days ahead of the lads. Any hopes for an easy game this week was blasted with the results of the San Angelo-Denison game last week.

Bobcats Seek Revenge

It was the Lubbock Westerners who snapped a long winning streak of the San Angelo Bobcats last year, and already the Bobcats are adopting the battle cry of revenge, and have a score to settle with the Westerners.

Blondy Cross, the sage of the Conchos, demarks that San Angelo would be very unhappy should history repeat, then goes on to say that last week's San Angelo club was a three touchdown better team than the power packed Denison club.

The San Angelo backfield of Dwain Dodson, Edward Martinets, Willie Wyatt and Wilford "Red" Roberts, along with the play of a pair of ends, Pete Renner and Robert Ellis, and guard Weldon Behrend and tackle Harold Headrick all came in for special praise in their play of last Friday.

The Westerners uncovered a lot of spots where improvement was needed, and hope to be in better shape for a good showing this week. The flashy running game of the Westerners should be much stronger than it was last week.

The locals worked mostly on dummy scrimmage Monday, ironing out the kinks of their plays.

Westerner B Starts Work For Seminole

The Lubbock Westerner B team started serious work Monday afternoon for Thursday night's opener at Seminole, where Dixie White's lads will face the veteran Seminole Indians. It will open the season for both clubs.

The Westerners held a scrimmage session with Ropesville Monday afternoon at Chapman field. The Westerner B club showed much promise, pushing over two touchdowns, while holding the scrappy Ropes eleven at bay all during the afternoon.

Glen Denny caught a pass for the first touchdown, covering the last 12 yards to pay dirt with the pass, and John Craig knifed off tackle for six yards and the other touchdown. Trenton Stroud circled end for one extra point.

The Cowhands Black will journey to Ropesville this week to play Coach George Langford's lads, while Coach Marlin "Shorty" Hayhurst's Golds will stay at home Friday, playing Abernathy at Chapman field in an afternoon game. It will start at 4 o'clock.

The Orientals were the first to make paper.

MAUIELLO WINS

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17. (AP)—Tami Mauriello, up-and-coming New York heavyweight who is gunning for a chance against Champion Joe Louis, was given a technical knockout over Gunnar Barlund tonight when the veteran Finnish fighter was ruled unable to answer the bell for the third round of a scheduled 10-round fight.

LA MOTTA WINS

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP) — Jake La Motta, the Bronx bull with the cement chin, turned loose his big guns in the late going tonight to knock out Georgie Kochan, a walk-in-and-wallop slugger from Akron, Ohio, in the ninth round in Madison Square Gorden.

READY FOR OPENER

FORT WORTH, Sept. 17. (AP) — Texas Christian university gridmen today were found to have survived Saturday's game-conditions scrimmage in good physical trim and ready for the tapering off before the season opener at Kansas City Saturday night against Kansas University.

Herring's 3-Hitter Beats Cubs, 4 To 0

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Little Art Herring's brilliant three-hitter handed the Brooklyn Dodgers a farewell, 4-0, victory over the Chicago Cubs today.

It was the eighth shutout inflicted on the Cubs, who tomorrow invade St. Louis for a three-game showdown with the Cards.

Herring completely baffled the hard-hitting Cubs, allowing only five men to reach base, as the Brooks wound up with eight victories against 14 defeats in the season's business with the Cubs.

Big noise in Brooklyn's eight-hit attack on three Cub tossers was lanky Ed Stevens who belted a two-run double in the third and clouted an inside - the-park homer in the fifth for the fourth dodger run.

The Chicagoans had only one hit, Paul Gillespie's second-inning single, until the ninth frame when Don Johnson and Phil Cavarretta also singled in a fruitless threat.

Big Paul Derringer, seeking his sixteenth victory, was chased in the third inning by Brooklyn's three-run spree to suffer his eleventh setback.

It was obvious Derringer's innings were numbered when he filled the bases in the first with none out on two walks and Luis Olmo's single. But Stan Hack speared a liner by Dixie Walker to engineer a double play and Paul escaped unscathed.

In the third, however, the Dodgers cooked Derringer's goose. After Olmo slammed a ground-rule double into the bleacher vines and Augie Galan walked, Walker singled across Olmo. Stevens also doubled, scoring Galan and Walker and that finished Derringer.

CARDS CLOSE IN

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17. (AP)—Fighting to stay in the race for the National League pennant, the Philadelphia Phillies, 7 to 3, and moved within three games of the pace-setting Chicago Cubs.

Augie Bergamo led a 16-hit Cardinal attack with four singles in five trips to the plate and every player in the lineup got at least one safety. Gene Crumling, rookie catcher, made his first major league hit in the Red Birds' five-run third inning — a successful squeeze bunt.

Castino Shines As Chisox, Bosox Split

BOSTON, Sept. 17. (AP) — The Chicago White Sox piled up three runs in the first inning today and held on to defeat the Boston Red Sox 4 to 2 in the second game of a doubleheader, after dropping the opener to the Red Sox 8 to 4.

Vince Castino, former Lubbock Hubber star, caught part of the first game, and was in the lineup long enough to get a single and double in three times up, and batted in two of Chicago's four runs.

MORE SHELLS COMING

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Army is releasing more than 23,000,000 rounds of shotgun ammunition to hunters.

Secretary of War Stimson told Rep. Robertson (D-Va) in a letter made public by the latter today that 6,000,000 rounds of 12-guage shells have already been declared surplus.

They will be distributed through regular commercial channels for civilian use, he said.

NEW CHAMP ASSURED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17. (AP) — A new titleholder in the women's division of the National Softball tournament was assured today as the Salt Lake City Shamrocks eliminated the defending champion Portland (Ore) Lind and Pomeroys 3 to 2 in an 11-inning battle.

Hale Center Owls Win Opening Battle

HALE CENTER, Sept. 17. (Special)—Hale Center Owls won their opening conference game against Petersburg Buffaloes on the latters' home ground Friday in a night game, 13-0.

Quarterback Caraway of the Owls snagged two of Petersburg Fullback Kelly's bullet passes in the last half and scampered to pay dirt to earn 12 points, then converted successfully after the second interception to make the total 13.

Hale Center plays Anton here Friday afternoon in the first home game and second conference go.

Tigers Stay Over To Play Senators Today

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—A day-long rain forced the reluctant postponement of tonight's series final between the second-place Senators and the Detroit Tigers, who virtually have the American League flag tucked away.

Weather permitting, the game will be played tomorrow in daylight.

Because the Detroiters had an off day before returning to the midwest to wind up their schedule, the Senators were in position to hold them here for another day and make them play the series out to the bitter end.

The Nats club was two and one-half games behind the Tigres, and was in desperate need of play-every game possible if it were to retain even a passing interest in the approaching World Series.

TO MISS TOURNEY

LONDON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Henry Cotton, former British Open champion, was advised by his doctor today not to compete in the Daily Mail $6,300 golf tourney opening Wednesday. He is recovering from influenza.

Concern Grows Over Occupation

fleet which had assumed charge of early occupation operations in northern Japan, also will leave soon for his headquarters in the Aleutians.

MacArthur said the occupation was so smooth that plans for military rule were junked and those thereby freed from duty would go home as fast as ships could take them. He estimated that military rule operating without the Japanese government would take "several million troops" to enforce.

Shelve Foreign Minister

The Japanese showed their cooperation by shelving militarist-trained Foreign Minister Namoru Shigemitsu and replacing him with Shigeru Yoshida, veteran diplomat once jailed for opposing the war.

Simultaneously MacArthur put into effect a drastic re-education program designed by dint of press, radio and the public schools to lead Japan's millions from militarism to the ways of democracy.

Four more suspected Japanese war criminals were locked in Yokohama prison, where once some Allied prisoners languished. Twenty-nine of the 46 on MacArthur's wanted list now are in custody. Two others were suicides.

Lt. Gen. Yoshio Shinotsuka, classmate of war Dictator Hideki Tojo in Japan's "West Point" and former member of the supreme war council, committed suicide yesterday by cutting his throat with his samurai sword, the newspaper Asahi said. He was not on MacArthur's list.

Moves Into Tokyo

With everything running smoothly, MacArthur moved his headquarters to Tokyo. There he announced his plans for the drastic cut in the forces of occupation, which his lieutenants only recently were saying must number at least 400,000 men.

"No greater gamble has been taken in history than the initial landings, where our ground forces were outnumbered a thousand to one, but the stakes were worth it," MasArthur declared in a statement.

At first, he said, the "unknown quantity" in the occupation was "the debatable question whether a military government would have to be set up."

By using the Japanese government to carry out Allied demands, the same purposes could be accomplished "with only a small fraction of the men, time and money originally projected."

MacArthur predicted that within six months the "occupational force, unless unforeseen factors arise, will probably number not more than 200,000 men, a size probably within the framework of our projected regular establishment (Army)."

Three Divisions Coming Back

First to be rewarded by the move were the veteran 31st, 37th and 38th divisions, which after a victorious march up from the Southwest Pacific now are in Manila. They will be sent home.

The Japanese obviously made their cabinet house cleaning with MacArthur's foreknowledge and approval.

Japanese sources said Yoshida was chosen because among the prominent diplomats he alone was "free of any suspicion of actively supporting the war."

Ignored by Tojo in the days of Japan's triumphs, Yoshida was jailed for a month early this year for demanding peace when he realized the war was lost, authoritative Japanese quarters said.

Look To War Records

Higashi-Kuni only last week was reported to have called on cabinet members to look to their war records to see if they would be acceptable to the victorious powers.

MacArthur converted his psychological warfare branch into an "information dissemination section" to convince every Japanese of his country's defeat and war guilt, to eradicate militarism and to encourage democratic principles.

By the press, radio and public school program of direct information, an announcement said, the Allies hoped to "foster a sound economy," encourage democratic organization, and a "free government responsible to the people."

As the first fruits of this campaign, the influential Nippon Times printed the first atrocity stories, declaring the people learning of them for the first time must "shiver with shame." It urged stern punishment for the perpetrators.

Repudiates Own Story

Domei, once the propoganda mouthpiece of the military, repudiated its own story that the atomic bombing of Nagasaki and Hiroshima had left the land unfit for human habitation for 75 years.

A dispatch from Shanghai said all the hated Japanese gendarmerie there had been rounded up and the leaders would be tried as war criminals for the tortures inflicted on those who fell into their hands.

American naval units were expected to put in at Shanghai Wednesday behind minesweepers now clearing the waters of the Whangpoo river.

George Washington's national career began in 1774 when he was a delegate to the Coitinental Congress.

STOCK LEADERS DEPRESSED

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Scattered rails and industrials negotiated modest recoveries in today's stock market, and early recessions running to more than three points were reduced elsewhere, but numrous leaders still were depressed by the nation's growing labor rifts.

Transfers totalled 900,000 shares, smallest for a full stretch since Aug. 30, against 1,020,000 Friday.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .2 of a point at 67.9, a drop of 1.6 points in three successive sessions.

Prominent casualties were Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Great Northern, Caterpillar Tractor, Douglas Aircraft, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Du Pont and Union Carbide.

Curtis Publishing enjoyed a late flurry, jumping 1¾ to a 1945 top on reports of brighter print paper prospects. Ahead were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Anaconda, Standard Oil (NJ), Radio Corp., Pepsi-Cola and U. S. Rubber.

Bonds followed stocks.

In the curb minus signs were attached to Aluminum of America, Cities Service, E. W. Bliss and Raytheon. Turnover here was 230,000 shares versus 170,000 in the five hour session.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—Cotton futures closed at or near the best levels for the day as mill buying and short covering disclosed a scarcity of offerings. Final prices were unchanged to 35 cents a bale higher compared with earlier losses of 35 cents a bale.

The slow movement of the new crop which has deferred normal pressure of hedge selling at this time and unwanted rains along the Atlantic coastal area were strengthening factors.

Early commission house and local liquidation was attributed partly to a threat of labor trouble at southern cotton mills.

Auschwitz Terror

er and his stone-faced co-dependants sat impassive.

"At Auschwitz ,the prosecution will say there was the deliberate cold - blooded extermination of millions," Backhouse told the court. He added:

"Every member of the Belsen gang bore a share in treatment they knew would cause death and physical suffering. We will produce evidence that they committed deliberate acts of cruelty and willful murder."

Conditions Reviewed

Reviewing conditions at the Belsen hell hole—where some British parliamentary investigators arriving soon after its capture fainted or suffered nausea—Backhouse told the court that 13,000 corpses, along with 12,000 living men and 28,000 women, were found there.

"They were driven to the length of cutting flesh from bodies and eating it" in the final stages of Kramer's administration, the prosecutor added.

Summing up the food situation at the camp, Backhouse declared it would be a "hopeless lie" if the accused said "they did not know what the conditions were in the camp."

The most prized edible birds' nests come from coastal cliffs and caves on northern Borneo and Palawan.

Bailiff Spends Some Worried Moments In Riding Herd On Jury

Bailiff Earl Horton, a Lubbock county deputy sheriff, is a conscientious official. He does not like to lose a jury—nor does he like 13 men on his juries. Therefore, he spent some very worried moments in 99th district court.

It happened like this:

A negro, Roosevelt Taylor, is being tried for assault to murder Cherry Mae Montgomery, a negro woman. About noon, Horton is ordered from the courtroom to the district clerk's ffice to telephone some witnesses. At noon, Judge G. V. Pardue recesses court for lunch. Everybody begins to file out.

Jury Has Vanished

A few minutes later, Horton comes back to the courtroom—an exceedingly vacant courtroom, and, the officer notes with horror, a courtroom without a jury.

Gulping his adam's apple with difficulty, Horton tears for the stairs—the elevator is too slow. Hs he hits the lobby floor he glimpses his beloved jury stringing toward an exit.

"Hey, you jurors, you can't do that," Horton shouts. "You'll have to come back upstairs."

Several bystanders are attracted.

Catch To His Count

Horton rounds up his men and escorts them to the jury room. He thinks he'd better count them.

. . . Ten, eleven, twelve. Yep, just right. The bailiff is relieved.

Aside to readers—What Horton doesn't know is that one guy went to the rest room. He returns without the bailiff seeing him.

Minutes click on. Horton is now watching his jury like a hawk. Maybe one juror say he's hungry. Anyway, everybody's going to lunch now.

Better count 'em again, Horton decides. . . . Ten, eleven, twelve —hey! thirteen!!

Then There's Thirteen

The officer rubs his eyes, counts 'em one more. That's right, thirteen.

He ferrets out the culprit, the No. 13. "What are you doing in here," Horton demands testily.

"Waal," No. 13 explains, a little bit frightened. "I was called to be a juryman in the 72nd district court and when you hollered down there in the lobby, I thought you meant me too. I thought I was where I belonged."

P. S.—The jurors got to eat—only twelve of them.

Secret Mission

watched many persons suffer and die, and saw 30 persons burned at least 400 times with cigarettes. But he somehow managed to show no fear of the Japanese guards and won their respect. They did him no harm.

Then he was moved to the Shanghai municipal jail, world's largest and most modern, where for 18 months he plotted and planned escape.

He had no communications to the outside for seven months, but he finally managed to get word to Alfred Holthe, a river pilot and friend, to whom he promised help in becoming an American citizen in exchange for four hacksaw blades to be thrown over the wall in a bamboo tube. Holthe succeeded in providing the blades.

Smith and seven other prisoners carefully drew up an escape plan that had to work perfectly on split-second timing. Failure would mean death .

On Oct. 6, 1944, they finished sawing the bars and at 10:30 at night made their escape over a 25-foot stone wall through the ingenious use of a human pyramid devised after considerable study.

"It would take a week to tell you how we did it," Smith said.

Five Are Recaptured

The eight, closely pursued, made their way across occupied Shanghai and on toward free China, 2250 miles away. Five were captured, but Smith and two companions made it to safety .

The trio was taken by Chinese guerrillas to American headquarters, from where Smith was flown to Washington immediately.

Before he could get in touch with his wife, Smith was asked by the Navy department if he would return to China for a special job. When he agreed, the Navy listed him officially as dead, to put the Japanese off the track, and sent him back on important work connected with plans for the Allied invasion of the China coast.

Smith's wife was told only recently that he was alive and heading minesweeping operations at the mouth of the Yangtze.

Navy Sets Up Five Separation Centers

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17 (AP)—Capt. C. A. Chappell, assistant chief of staff for personnel at Eighth Naval district headquarters, said today five separation centers in the district would be ready for discharging 2,500 men daily by Oct. 1.

The centers, including one at Camp Wallace, Tex., with a 15,240 monthly goal of discharges, are being readied for accomodating peak loads as soon as men can be brought back from the Pacific, Chappell added.

McKay Reviews Book At JCC Meet; Safety Campaign Is Talked

Dr. S. S. McKay, Texas Tech college history professor, gave a short review of his recently published book, "W. Lee O'Daniel and Texas Politics, 1938-42," as Lubbock Junior Chamber of Commerce members met Monday noon in the Hilton hotel. A short business session preceeded the talk by McKay concerning the current safety campaign being conducted by the club.

The safety campaign is to be enlarged and stressed more and many more of the car stickers already here saying "30 to one" will be distributed.

Jeff Steele, chairman of the Jaycee public safety program, said the meaning "was most important and may come as a startling surprise to local citizens.

The campaign, Steel said, is not meant by the Jaycees to cast any reflection on any group or organization here whose duty is to maintain public safety, but is more "to stress this and aid our safety officers."

Steele noted the small increase in 1945 over last year's accidental death and injury rate and compared this to the sharp increase felt elsewhere since V-J day. Traffic deaths alone, Steel said, have jumped 22 per cent this year in other places over the same period of 1943.

The Lubbock police department was credited, along with other local traffic and safety departments, with careful planning and a great deal of work in keeping the accident rate here at a minimum.

McKay said his book represents one year of study, one year of writing and a third year awaiting the publishing.

In his brief talk McKay outlined the popularity of Senator O'Daniel in his four successful campaigns, two for governor and two for senator. McKay said these sweeping successes, which have narrowed with each election, were mainly due, in his opinion, to radio.

He called attention especially to the first campaign for governor where the closer to Fort Worth the balloting, the stronger O'Daniel support. O'Daniel had been broadcasting for a number of years over Fort Worth radio stations as a flour salesman.

McKay ran rapidly through the list of prominent opponents who were defeated by the Texas senator including James V. Allred, Miriam Ferguson, Ernest O. Thompson, Dan Moody, Tom Hunter and Lyndon B. Johnson plus a large number of other less important candidates for governor and senator.

Glenn Woody, president, presided and Dave Jarrett was program chairman.

Outlook On Food

the "Food for Freedom" organization, the President asserted:

The United States government is now in position to fulfill the main requests of Europe with the exception of sugar, fats and oils from this date until Jan. 1 as these requests have been stated to it by the governments of the liberated countries and by UNRRA."

Only A Subsistence

The President said provision of these supplies would give civilians in Europe only a minimum level of subsistence, "and much suffering may be expected during the coming winter in certain areas of the continent."

The President said the main problem now is no longer shipping of supplies but a "two-fold financial problem: First, to work out credit or other financial arrangements with European governments. Second to make additional funds available to UNRRA for emergency relief."

plate wired to an electric transformer. The operator would sit beside an American on a bench and apply it to various sensitive parts of the body while another Japanese asked questions. If the American refused to answer or said he did not know the answer the guard with the electrified plate would give the prisoner a shock.

The water treatment was another violent torture long used by the Japanese. In the Bridge House version of this form of viciousness the victim was made to lie flat on a bench with his head hanging over one end. Except for the nostrils the face was covered with a wet towel.

Then the Nipponese guard, using a teakettle, poured water slowly down the victim's nostrils. If the victim did not swallow he drowned and if he did swallow he became bloated and developed terrific stomach pains.

As a variation the guards sometimes mixed kerosene or pepper with the water to intensify the pain.

One American saw a friend beaten nearly to death because he kicked out while under the water treatment and struck a guard. Another guard hit him on the head with an iron bar.

With almost fiendish use of fatigue the Japanese alternated violent torture with long tiring exercises. Often they questioned victims for 12 solid hours and then forced them to sit on the floor for another 12 hours with their legs crossed in Japanese style.

Starvation also was part of the torture program. Many of the internees agree that the Japanese had attempted to kill a number of persons merely by giving them less food than necessary to sustain life.

This was the daily menu from 1942 until Tokyo surrendered:

Breakfast—One half pint of rice and a cup of tea; lunch—one half pint of rice and a cup of tea; dinner—one half pint of rice and a cup of tea.

Amsterdam has been a prominent diamond center since the sixteenth century.

Congress Must Act!

Curb Is Needed On Ruthlessness

FOR various and sundry reasons, and throughout the past decade, successive Congresses have failed to pass legislation protecting the majority of the people from the overly ambitious leaders of the minority which composes organized labor.

But recent events have conclusively proven—if, indeed, any additional proof were needed—that predatory labor must be controlled by law, just as predatory business is controlled—if the nation is to avoid being at the mercy of the ruthless ambitions and selfishness of too many of its leaders.

The unfairness of the current legal structure is graphically portrayed by the threats of the United Automobile Workers against General Motors in an attempt to force a 30 per cent wage increase.

Under the law as set up during the New Deal-Organized Labor political coalition, the UAW can (1) tie up General Motors plants with a strike; and (2) brazenly run a CIO boycott against General Motors while permitting its competitors to operate. But under the law the great automobile companies cannot band together, as can the UAW and its parent CIO, in a "lock-out" until such time as recalcitrant labor bosses may be brought to taw.

What is sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander, as a result of the unholy political alliance entered into with organized labor by successive New Deal administrations.

We hold no brief for the "lock-out." It is unfair, unjust and we are glad it is outlawed, because it is better for the nation as a whole that it be outlawed.

But neither do we hold a brief for a legal structure which permits ambitious labor overlords to pull an economic cornerstone out from under the nation's business foundation. We recognize in the right of boycott a danger fully as far-reaching as the right of "lock-out" would be if it were permissible by law.

THE difficulties current between the United Automobile Workers and General Motors is not just a "family fight" featuring the efforts of General Motors to keep wages down and the effort of union leaders to force them up. If it were, it wouldn't worry us a bit.

It is a fight in which every man and woman in the United States has a stake. And here's why:

If the UAW-CIO strike-and-boycott plan is permitted to go through, General Motors can very possibly be forced into bankruptcy.

If General Motors is forced into bankruptcy—or even if its financial structure is sorely weakened—the result will be fewer jobs, less money in circulation, and the slowing down of business which will be felt in every crossroads store in the land, as well as in every city.

If the UAW-CIO rule-or-ruin plan is permitted to run wild, after General Motors capitulates—if it does capitulate—the power-drunk czars of labor will apply the old Hitlarian theory of "divide and rule." They will then turn on the other automobile companies, then the oil companies, then all the other industries and factories in which they have a foothold. From that nothing except wild inflation can result—and inflation which will pauperize every last one of the people of this country.

The Morning Avalanche is committed to the economic theory of high wages and full employment.

We believe that only by continuation of high wages and full employment can the nation avoid the worse sort of financial panic imaginable. We have a heavy national debt brought on us not only by the war, but by previous thriftlessness in the government and we cannot pay the interest on that debt and slowly chip away the principle unless there is plenty of work at decent pay—meaning lots of money in circulation.

But we do not believe the way to furnish jobs, keep wages up and money in circulation is by way of raids such as that contemplated by the UAW, or by devastating boycotts which wreck business, curtail employment and chase money into hiding.

IF THE Congress and the administration continue to sit supinely by and do nothing to curb predatory labor, as predatory business already has been curbed, then the government will be aiding and abetting a campaign which eventually will wreck the nation economically, which cannot help but tear down the nation socially and culturally.

If the Congress and the administration continues to sit supinely by, they will permit a highly organized minority to scuttle the best interests of the majority of the citizenship—which means they will be acting in direct opposition to the tenets of democracy.

If organized labor is permitted to force wages to an unsupportable high, the unavoidable result will mean higher prices for everything—and especially for those things the majority of us want and need, like automobiles, radios, electrical appliances, furniture, new homes, etc. And let no man be misled. Whenever labor is successful in forcing an unsupportable wage increase in any industry, it does not dip alone into the coffers of the industry involved It dips, instead, into the pockets and into the bank accounts of every consumer of the product involved. Let the UAW force a 30 per cent increase from General Motors—which is certain to be followed by similar increases from the other automobile concerns—and John Citizen will pay the freight. The minority thus will force unwilling tribute from the majority—and that's where Congress and the administration come in

They have dillied and dallied long enough. Organized labor is one of the biggest businesses in the country today and as big business it must be controlled by law lest it become too powerful for the common weal.

This control isn't needed simply as a protection by management. It is needed as a protection to the rank and file of our people.

THE STORY: In Dr. Hale's dictation, Carolyn learns something of the power of the new discovery X-999. A pound has more explosive power than 15,000 tons of TNT. Finally, Carolyn begs time off for food. Dr. Hale has forgotten about meals. But he enjoys dinner, and dancing with his new secretary, Leana is furious.

Leana Sormi's indignation was almost frightening to Carolyn for a moment. The older girls lips were taut, pale; and she talked in a peculair clipped manner revealing a hint of foreign accent which didn't show ordinarly. Then fear in Carolyn was suddenly replaced by anger.

"Miss Sormi," she said levelly, "if any reprimanding is to be done, Dr. Hale is the one to do it. He hired me"

Robert Hale had been acutely distressed by the whole scene. He felt himself responsible, and yet—

Carolyn quickly caught herself up. "Oh, I beg your pardon! Both of you. Let's not be touchy. It's quite late and of course we are all on edge tonight."

That was reasonable. Leana left them without another word, and with his manner Bob Hale thanked Carolyn. He bade her go home and ordered a taxi for her himself, canceling any plan to work all night.

"Rest, but come back early," he said. "There is so much to do tomorrow. So much every day now! Of course Leana is upset. So am I, Miss Taylor. You—I—I don't know what I should have done without you today, and tonight!

He pressed her hand with fervor, and gazed longingly after her when the cab drove away. Carolyn told herself against that she had never encountered so extraordinary a young man.

She was back in the laboratory by 8 a. m. Robert Hale was already there. He confessed that he hadn't slept at all.

"I sat all night thinking," admitted he, grimly. "Planning our future."

Carolyn squelched a little smile at the word "our" but she didn't misunderstand him; Dr. Hale was wrapped up in the great discovery and its potentiality, she knew.

"I have already arranged for a man," said he now. "A man to drive a truck tonight. There is a farmhouse, vacant 30 miles out of the city. A friend of mine owns it and the acreage around it. There is a tight barn, too. Guards can be disguised as woodcutters and—"

Carolyn interrupted. "But Dr. Hale, why do you tell me this?"

"Hmmmmmm?" He looked surprised.

"If it is to be a secret hiding place—you know scarcely anything about me! Might not I—?"

"No, I have studied you, Miss Tyler. Analyzed you, yesterday, I trust you wholly. And anyway, I had checked on your credentials before you came, as I told you.

"A few must know all the intimacies here, the secrets. Leana Sormi. Myself. Now you. For the time being we three are enough."

There was a pile of unanswered letters. After he had labored an hour with trivial, routine dictation, Carolyn volunteered to answer all that she could alone, submitting the typed answers only for his approval. By noon only a scant dozen remained that demanded his own phrasing.

She ate alone in the drive-in place a few block away, and was soon back typing. In mid-afternoon her employer asked if she could work this night again.

"I shall be very busy in the laboratory arranging a leaden case," he explained. "It is under way now, in fact. We might slip out for a bite together again at 6:30 or so."

* * *

But there was no dancing at this second dinner hour together as there had been last night. Indeed, this one was a bit formal; Carolyn saw that Robert Hale was physically weary now and this disturbed her.

"You must go home as soon as you can sleep," she ordered, kindly. All at once she felt embarrassed. Bossing her own boss!

The man with the truck came at 11:30. He was an efficient-looking but somewhat arrogant individaul. Dr. Hale, Leana Sormi and Carolyn all went to the laboratory with him. Immediately both the driver and Carolyn were astounded.

From the great laboratory surrounded by armed guards—themselves enough to arouse curociety—Robert Hale carried a parcel no bigger than half a shoe box. But he strained with the weight of it.

"Partly wrappings, partly the leaden case," he explained to Carolyn. "The actual content is only a thimble portion, of course. The lead is essential to guard against powerful radiations. It would take sudden heat or a shock like a dynamite cap to explode it, but—"

They had come then within earshot of the driver, who spoke then.

"What's in it?" he asked, jokingly. "Jewels, hah?"

"No," Dr. Hale said, calmly. "Nothing like that. But it demands the utmost care."

"Yeah? Think o' that! I'll help you wit' the rest of 'em."

"This is all. Only the one."

"Yeah?" The truck driver was incredulous. He had a two-ton truck, enclosed. For just one tiny parcel, hardly six inches square, to sit in that big van looked silly to him. And why did some screwy professor want it sent out at night to an abandoned farm? And why must it rest, like eggs, on thick cotton paddings?

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

A SUGGESTION which every city and town in the United States may well follow was recently made by New York's Park Commissioner, Robert Moses.

"Yet us build war memorials that live and breathe," he said, "memorials which will quicken the pulses of the people.

"Instead of stiff and stylized statuary, let us build hospitals and playgrounds, research institutes and clinics.

BRANDEIS

"Let us set up memorials which, like the glorious deeds of our war heroes, shall contribute in ever-increasing values to mankind, and thus grow truly greater as the years pass!"

During my travels throughout the country I have seen many an atrocity called "war memorial."

Ugly in the beginning, most of these monuments are now covered with dirt and grime, well intended, it is true, but useless and misplaced.

Here you see a stiff-necked general sitting on a stiff-legged horse, looking out into nowhere. Nobody looks at him; in many instances people don't even know whom the statue represents.

Millions of dollars have been wasted that way, and let us hope that in the enthusiasm of our victory we aren't going to go ahead and waste another handful of millions in the same sterile, outmoded fashion.

All of us want to set up permanent reminders of the bravery and devotion of our boys.

But, as Commissioner Moses said, let us make those memorials live and breathe and serve a useful purpose.

Why spend a hundred thousand dollars on dead stone and bronze, when for the same amount a thousand lives may be saved, a thousand children made healthy, a thousand people helped to better lives?

Let each memorial we erect be a creative memorial.

Let us remember our heroes in battle by creating more heroes in industry, in science, in the arts, in service.

Let each memorial be the seed of new achievement rather than the tombstone over the grave of something that is past.

* * *

LET US honor the dead by creating a better future for the living.

That is the American way of life.

Statuary is static. Life is a constant flux.

The best way to remember the past is by making it a pedestal for tomorrow.

America has become great by looking forward.

America's watchword is "Action."

Every single hero who has died for his country, would want to be honored not by stone and metal but by the fire and enthusiasm that have carried us from Pearl Harbor to Tokyo and from Dunkirk to Berlin.

Let us honor the dead by making life better for the living!

The National Whirligig

Science's Aid To Victory Great

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ALTHOUGH the atomic bomb catapulted the scientists to the war glory pages along with the military, naval and air leaders, this weapon was only one of many laboratory achievements which, besides hastening final victory, can be utilized to give more health and happiness to peacetime civilizations everywhere. Inventions born of the conflict are already on sale in drug stores and available to every physician and hospital in the land.

Although it was almost an unknown agency, the Committee on Medical Research, which was organized in June of 1941 to "initiate and support scientific research on medical problems affecting the national defense," was largely responsible for these discoveries.

TUCKER

This organization was established under the Office of Scientific Research and Development, which was headed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He also aided in the development of the breaking of the atom.

This group negotiated 496 research contracts with 120 different institutions, most of which were universities or teaching laboratories. They employed 2670 people, of whom 553 were physicians. With our men fighting in strange countries and climes, they studied and sought the remedy for every known and unknown disease. Here is only a fragmentary list of things they worked on:

Dysentery, bubonic plague, cholera, gas gangrene, influenza, tuberculosis, airborne infections, primary atypical pneumonia, venereal diseases, infected wounds, burns, shock, blood substitutes, treatment of gas casualties, insect and rodent control, antimalarial drugs, convalescence and rehabilitation, the development and use of penicillin.

Here are only a few of the discoveries that saved soldiers' lives and have already been adopted for civilian use:

INVESTIGATIONS: 1. With the cooperation of hospitals and laboratories, they mastered the knowledge of the therapeutic value of penicillin when this drug was in no more than an embryonic state. They recommended and inspired the great production program of this product for war and civilian use.

2. They were responsible for the development of insect repellents and insecticides, especially DDT, against typhus and malaria. DDT should be a blessing to every farmer and suburbanite in the United States.

3. They helped to reduce the World War death rate of 14.1 per thousand to 0.6 in the last conflict by their studies of blood plasma to combat infections, stop bleeding and provide convalescent strength.

4. They improved and standardized the treatment of malaria with atabrine when Japanese conquests cut off the Allied supply of quinine.

5. They determined the relative usefulness of sulfonamide drugs in the treatment of wounds and burns.

6. They established a program for the psychological indoctrination of our airmen and the development of devices which enabled them to endure the rigors of high altitudes without disastrous loss of life or fighting capacity.

Without government creation and financing of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, none of these investigations would have been carried out so quickly or thoroughly. The cost through June of 1944 was only $15,000,000 but private funds were not available for this specialized research.

RESERVES: In view of these achievements for the permanent betterment of the human race, the needless casualties caused by our mistaken Selective Service policies among the future soldiers of science have been shocking.

In a lengthy report to President Truman, which the Chief Executive will pass on to Congress, Dr. Bush proposes a program under which the government will use federal funds to build a National Scientific Reserve comparable to the Army-Navy-Air Reserve corps.

Discussing the disappearance of young scientists from our schools and laboratories, he advises Mr. Truman as follows:

"The situation, in brief, is that since the passage of the Selective Service act in the Autumn of 1940 there have been practically no students over 18, outside of students of medicine and engineering in Army and Navy programs, and a few 4-Fs who have followed an integrated program, in the United States.

DEFICIT: "Neither our Allies, nor, so far as is known, our enemies have permitted such conditions to develop; but, on the contrary, they have maintained or increased national programs for the training of scientists and technologists

"There is thus (in the U. S.) an accumulated deficit of science and technology students who, but for the war, would have received bachelors' degrees is about 150,000.

"The deficit of those holding advanced degrees—that is, young scholars trained to the point where they are capable of carrying on original work—has been estimated at about 17,000 by 1955 in chemistry, engineering, geology, mathematics, physics, psychology and the biological sciences.

"With mounting demands for scientists both for teaching and for research, we will enter the postwar period with a serious deficit in our trained scientific personnel."

Luckily, the atomic bomb is a strong selling talk for the scientists, and Dr. Bush's advise will undoubtedly be heeded by the White House and Congress.

Otherwise, the old, old story will be repeated with the same tragic consequences. Allied inventors have hit upon many of the weapons of war and peace — the sub, the modern bomber, the tank etc. —but they neglected these instruments of defense while our enemies improved and built them.

MYSTERY: The elevation of Anglophile Dean Acheson to the second spot in the State department remains Washington's No. 1 mystery, in view of the advice he gave the White House on the question of retaining or firing Emperor Hirohito's political, religious and military head. Acheson's position was endorsed by the same group of pontificating "pinkos" whose speeches and writings helped to plunge us into war at a time when Chief of Staff George C. Marshall and Naval Operations Chief Harold R. Stark informed FDR that the U. S. was utterly unprepared.

Every military commander in the Far East and on the Chinese mainland, especially Gen. Douglas MacArthur, has reported that thousands of American boys would have been slaughtered if President Truman had accepted the Achesonian advice.

They say that the only assurance of authority and peace and security for our invading forces is the attitude of the emperor. It was harder for his subjects to obey his imperial rescript to surrender than it would have been for them to bow to a palace demand for a do-or-die fight.

General MacArthur, in a confidential memo forwarded as soon as conquest of the Philippines assured a Japanese defeat, urged generous treatment of Hirohito. But the principal exponent of this lifesaving policy was Joe Grew career diplomat, former Undersecretary of State and our ambassador at Tokyo for the ten troublous years before Pearl Harbor.

But — and here is the heart of the mystery — the able and sage Mr. Grew has been sent out to pasture, at least temporarily, while Acheson has been promoted.

According to an unreliable report, the Bureau of Missing Persons now makes routine checks of physicians' and dentists' waiting rooms.

We're running into difficulty in our day-dreaming. We wish we knew how much money to wish for in order to have a million dollars after taxes.

Is the fun you're getting out of life commensurate with the currently high cost of living?

GOP Relies On "Normalcy Trend" In 1946

"Politics Doesn't Change Much!"

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Six months ago, before the death of President Roosevelt, Republicans were looking forward confidently to winning the 1946 congressional elections and going on, handily, to put their man in the White House two years later.

This may still happen, but it doesn't look so simple now.

The picture has changed considerably, as was described here yesterday complicating the Republican problem. The death of President Roosevelt removed the growing antagonism to him which also attached itself to the party to a degree. The personality of the new man in the White House and changes which he has made have combined to create a different atmosphere and a different political situation.

STOKES

So the opening of the political season well in advance of the usual time finds Republicans in a quandry as to their line of attack.

President Truman gave the Republicans a body of issues in his message to Congress for which they had been waiting. He espoused the New Deal. What shall Republicans do about it? Here you get a division in the party which is, of course, the same division that President Truman finds in his own party, except that his party has the advantage of being in power. Lack of unity hurts any political party, but it is most harmful in the case of the "Outs."

GOP Is Split

The Republican party, to put bluntly, has been operating behind a false face in its recent unsuccessful years, an analysis to which some Republ will subscribe. Its Presidetnial candidates, even its platforms, have stood for one set of doctrines, while the party in Congress often disregarded these and moves in other directions.

This was obvious in the case of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey last year, as it was in the case of Wendell L. Willkie four years before.

Mr. Willkie subscribed to much of the New Deal and on foreign policy he was far in advance of what the party stood for in Congress. Governor Dewey literally swallowed the New Deal whole, only making exception, as did Mr. Willkie, to pledge that he would administer it better. He took a position alongside the Roosevelt administration on foreign policy.

EVEN Alfred M. Landon in 1936 amended the Republican platform in some particulars in a telegram to the convention in advance of his nomination, and he stepped out ahead of the party leadership in congress on some issues in the campaign.

This constant division and conflict produce such spectacles as that the House Republican Leader Joe Martin, who still occupies that position, rushing out to Colorado Springs in 1940 to get Mr. Willkie to come out against extension of the draft. Mr. Willkie refused. But most of the party in the House followed Mr. Martin.

A considerable number of voters get on to this sort of performance after a time. They begin to see that it is in Congress where the chips are down. Today there are some in the party leadership, more of them out of Congress than are members of that body, who recognize this clearly.

They want the party leadership, both in and out of Congress, to adopt a specific program on which the party can stand, publicize it, and make it effective in Congress where they can. Mr. Truman now has provided an excellent opening. They urge a policy of initiative, a positive program, rather than one of mere opposition, or mere blind following of the leadership of Southern Democratic Conservatives in Congress.

Politics Changes Little

Their proposal would seem to be in the interest of maintaining the two-party system, an essential in our democracy, by a vital party of opposition that stands for something. This is likewise good for the general welfare. A check is needed here constantly, but it must be intelligent and responsible to have results.

The other viewpoint, and it seems to be the prevailing one now as the nation heads into a difficult postwar era, is to play along and count on a natural reaction from war to win for the Republicans next year and in 1948. Also it is apparent that Franklin Roosevelt is still to be made a big issue, just as the Democrats have used Herbert Hoover as a whipping boy since 1932.

Politics doesn't change much.

Captain Convicted By Court Martial

BERLIN, Sept. 17 (AP) — Capt. Carl Schultz, who married a WAC here this summer when he had a wife in Chicago, has been convicted by a court martial and sentenced to dismissal from the service, it was announced today.

Schultz, of Chicago, was married in a civil ceremony to WAC Sgt. Kanella Koulouvaris of Brooklyn. Before the planned church ceremony, it was established that he had a wife in Chicago. He said he had been told she died in an accident.

The court martial found Schultz guilty on two counts. The first charge was bigamy and also making a false official statement in an affidavit to military government authorities claiming that he was not married when the license was taken out.

Trial Of Two Men In Amarillo Is Postponed

AMARILLO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Arraignment of Miron Thompson and Elbert Day on a charge of murder in connection with the death of City Detective Lem Savage last March has been postponed for "a reasonable time" to enable them to obtain counsel.

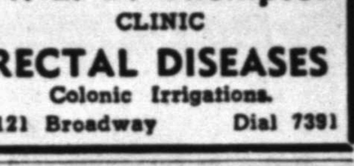

Judge Henry S. Bishop granted the postponement today when the two appeared in court.

Thompson said his father in Mobile, Ala., and brothers in service overseas will finance his defense. Day said his parents in Paris, Tex., will hire an attorney for him.

Homma Seen As Typical Of Jap Militarists And Their System

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17. —If you can figure out the personal paradox of Lt. Gen. Masaharu Homma you may be close to one key to the Japanese militarist and the system which makes him perform.

Homma, you'll recall, is the man Americans think of as the butcher of Bataan, responsible for the infamous Death March.

WHITE

He steps calmly off a train in Tokyo and tells American newspapermen that he really didn't know about the march, but that he is ready to accept responsibility for what his subordinates may have done.

In 1939 Homma was commander-in-chief at Tientsin in North China. The story then was that he wasn't one of the military radicals but that he had been sent there by the Japanese high command as a "reliable" commander to control the rabid young officers who were back of the blockade of the British concession and who were having a wonderful time undressing British and other westerners at the blockade barriers.

Shows No Jitters

Homma held an interview. We were surprised to find this heavy-set general quite jovial, frank and showing none of the jittery self-consciousness which affected most Japanese officers.

He seemed perfectly reasonable except that he insisted he knew of no instance where Japanese were misbehaving.

When Homma accepted Wainwright's surrender on Corregidor I was still in Shanghai. A Japanese acquaintance who had gone down to witness the surrender told me that he was apprehensive that Homma's troops might get out of hand, because of the bitter defense the Americans had put up.

Yanks Said Drunken Softies

They had been told the Americans were a bunch of drunken softies, he pointed out, and were furious that the fight had cost the lives of so many Japanese after they had been led to expect a pushover.

He indicated that Homma wasn't in a good position to clamp down because his younger officers suspected him of being pro-western.

Now Homma says he didn't know what took place after Wainwright surrender, and most Americans will doubt him. But it might be partly true. The real question is, did he want to know, and did he make any effort to find out what went on, or do anything about it?

Pvt. Teddy Drake Is Liberated From Jap Camp; Is In Tokyo

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drake, 2410 Twenty-ninth, received first word of the liberation and safety of their son, Pvt. Teddy Drake, 22, a member of the 131st Field Artillery of Texas Lost Battalion on Java, Sundty when they read an interview with him written by a Fort Worth Star-Telegram correspondent.

Mr. and Mrs. Drake were informed by the War Department Sept. 4 that another son, Sgt. Henry Drake, 24, also of the Lost Battalion, had been liberated from a camp in Thailand. Henry is now in Calcutta awaiting passage home, but Teddy thinks he is in Japan and told the correspondent that he was looking for his brother.

Approximately 70 members of Battery E, 2nd Provisional Battalion of the 131st Field Artillery were reported Friday to be at Orio Camp 9 on Kyushu. Included in the group is Teddy who told this story to the correspondent.

In Toyko Since Friday

They left the coal mine area 96 hours before arriving in Tokyo Friday night. He said the men of the battery had been together since March 9, 1942, then were moved to Singapore in the hold of a cargo ship. The food was good, however, and plentiful.

They remained in Singapore for a month, uprooting a rubber plantation and replanting the area as a garden Then they were transported to Nagasaki where they worked on the docks. Drake said he lost 53 pounds at Nagasaki but picked up a good deal of that when the group was transferred to the coal mines.

When the war ended Drake was on a shift working down in the mines. "They jabbered a while, then all the Japs left," he said. "We finished our work and started for the top. They had cut off the electricity and we could not use the elevator to the surface, so we had to climb 2,200 meters to the top."

During his internment at Singapore he saw his brother, Henry. Teddy underwent an appendectomy during his imprisonment. He said he received 65 letters during his internment.

He was to have broadcast from Tokyo Monday morning at 11:30 o'clock, according to a National Broadcasting official at San Francisco The program was not on the air at the designated hour, according to Mr. and Mrs. Drake who tried several NBC stations.

The National Broadcasting company in San Francisco informed Mr. and Mrs. Drake late Monday that due to transmission difficulties, only two minutes of the broadcast was received in the States. The company said it would send the parents a recording of what was received here.

Sheriff Hillin Spikes Rumors He Will Resign

CROSBYTON, Sept. 17. (Special)—Sheriff Roy E. Hillin has spiked rumors that he will resign—and thus may have become the first voice to be raised in the South Plains political choir that will be heard beginning Jan. 1.

The sheriff added:

"Mine is the only sheriff's office in Texas that has been paid less than $100 a month to get the law enforced . . . I have no intention of quitting the job."

The commissioner's court last week employed for the sheriff a fulltime deputy, and raised Hillin's pay $40.72 a month.

Cablegram Received From Pfc. Rayburn

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Rayburn of 1916 Fifth received a cablegram Monday morning from their son, Pfc. Eldridge L. Rayburn, a member of the "Lost Battalion" who was first reported liberated Friday by the Associated Press.

The cablegram said he was healthy, happy and hoped to be home soon. The message was sent from Calcutta. The parents had not been informed by the War Department of their son's safety. Their first news came through the Associated Press.

Pfc. Rayburn was with the 131st Field Artillery group interned in Thailand.

Special Venire Of 100 Ordered At Crosbyton

CROSBYTON, Sept. 17. (Special)—A 100-member special venire has been ordered for the Oct. 15 Ruell Griffin murder case, under direction of Judge Dan Blair of 72nd district court.

Summonses have been by District Clerk Bill Ezell and turned over to Sheriff Roy E. Hillin.

It was 30-year-old Lonnie Hillin, son of Sheriff and Mrs. Hillin, Griffin was accused by indictment with having slain. The former serviceman's body was discovered several weeks ago in a bar ditch near Crosbyton. Witnesses said he had been slugged on the head the day before by Griffin, with a whisky bottle in a gambling game.

Large kangaroo in Australia have been timed at about 40 miles an hour.

He Frowned with PILES

But Now He SMILES!

PILES can cause untold suffering and discomfort which, if not relieved, may gradually become more and more troublesome. But now there is quick, palliative relief possible for pain, burning and itching of simple, uncomplicated piles not requiring surgical attention.

FAST-ACTING OINTMENT

Thornton & Minor's Rectal Ointment is a fast-acting compound that tends to give immediate palliative relief. Physicians have been using it adjunctively for years in one of the world's oldest clinics devoted to the treatment of rectal ailments. It soothes irritation and tends to reduce the swelling. Thornton & Minor's Rectal Ointment now comes in a handy 1-oz. tube with applicator nozzle for easy home medication. Also available in suppository form. If not delighted with results the entire cost—only $1 for the tube and $1.10 for box of 1-doz. suppositories—will be refunded.

Children Drown As Car Runs Off Bridge

HENDERSON, Sept. 17 (U.P.) — Three children of one family drowned and the father and mother and another child narrowly escaped death near Henderson late Sunday when their pickup truck plunged from a bridge into a creek.

The children who lost their lives were Elwanda Spain, 3; Wayne Spain, and Kenneth Eugene Spain, 6. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luther Spain, and brother, Dale, 9, survived the accident.

The accident occurred on Highway 259, ten miles south of Henderson, when a front wheel came off on a bridge over the creek, plunging the truck through the wooden railing into fifteen feet of water.

Bill Earnest Charged In Odessa Shooting

ODESSA, Sept. 17. (Special.)—Bill Earnest, former Lubbock county deputy sheriff, was at liberty today under $5,000 bail binding him over to a grand jury on a charge of murder following the fatal shooting of Vernon E. Waits.

Waits, a newcomer to Odessa, formerly lived at Olney. He was unemployed.

Earnest was a nightwatchman at Victory village, a settlement for war workers. He was slashed with a pocketknife just before the shooting.

Littlefield Cotton Fire Burns 1,300 Bales

LITTLEFIELD, Sept. 17. (Special)—No announcement of loss had been made this afternoon as to loss by fire Saturday afternoon of Littlefield Bonded warehouse and 1,300 bales of cotton.

Also there had been no definite announcement of cause for the fire. The fire alarm was sounded at 3:45 p. m., and when the blaze broke through the building a high wind fanned it into a rapidly-spreading conflagration that soon got out of control.

The building, which was located on the east side of highway 51 just across the railroad trackage, was almost nonexistent Sunday morning, said Wally Dufrain, Editor of The County Wide News.

Before Commodore Perry visited Japan, Yokohama was a fishing village of 100 families.

RELIGIOUS WEEK SET

AUSTIN, Sept. 17 (AP)—In setting the week beginning Sept. 30 as "Religious Education week," Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today called upon all citizens "to rededicate themselves to the creation of a society and a nation worthy of the sacrifices our fellowmen have made on the world's battlefields."

BIG NEWS FOR MOTORISTS

NEW IMPROVED PEACETIME QUALITY

HIGHER COSDEN OCTANE

HIGHER OCTANE THAN BEFORE THE WAR

COSDEN HIGHER OCTANE AND COSDEN PREMIUM ETHYL GASOLINES

BETTER THAN THEY WERE BEFORE THE WAR!

The war has brought out many wonderful scientific discoveries and improvements in things for peacetime living—and not the least of these is the remarkable advances made in the quality of Cosden Higher Octane and Premium Cosden Ethyl Gasolines. — These two fine gasolines are now being made from stocks formerly used in Aviation Gasoline for the Government, but due to cancellations they are now available for these new Cosden motor fuels. — This means a lot to YOU, Mr. Motor Car Owner! — It means Cosden Higher Octane and Cosden Ethyl Gasolines are today far superior to any gasoline Cosden ever manufactured before the war! — So — drive in at your neighborhood Cosden Service Station at the sign of the Cosden Traffic Cop, tomorrow, and say "Fill 'er up!" — you'll notice the difference the first mile you drive.
