Ice buildup as cause gets increasing support

WASHINGTON (AP) — Divers pulled another eight bodies from the frozen Potomac River on Friday, but failed to retrieve voice and flight recorders that could substantiate mounting suspicions that a buildup of ice caused the Air Florida jetliner crash which took 78 lives.

Francis McAdams, head of the National Transportation Safety Board investigation, said the Boeing 737 waited 45 to 49 minutes between its last de-icing and its takeoff Wednesday afternoon. Ice on an airplane can alter aerodynamics, add too much weight and jam wing and tail flaps.

"Any time there is visible ice ... under the circumstances, it's a definite issue," McAdams told reporters Friday afternoon.

McAdams, one of five members of the National Transportation Safety Board, said a Braniff pilot saw ice on the 737 jet just before it took off, and one investigator said the pilot was several hundred feet away.

"HE BELIEVES HE saw ice building up on the fuselage and the wings," McAdams said.

McAdams told reporters in the afternoon that the Air Florida jet could have stood in a snowstorm for up to 40 minutes after being de-iced.

But Thursday night, he said the plane was de-iced for the second time during its stop at National Airport between 3:10 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. It was cleared for its takeoff run at 23 seconds after 3:59 p.m. That makes the interval 45 to 49 minutes.

NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said later the time given by McAdams for the second de-icing was based on "an assumption" that the pilot did not receive a third de-icing before takeoff. The assumption is based on the fact that the plane left the departure gate at about 3:16 p.m., Furman said.

Whether a third de-icing was undertaken remains to be investigated, Furman said, and in the meantime the investigation is proceeding on the theory that there were only two.

AIR FLORIDA HAS said it believed there were two de-icings.

McAdams and other investigators cautioned, as they have before, that they could not say whether the interval between de-icing and takeoff was too long, because the amount of ice on the plane would depend a great deal on the weather. The weather has not yet been analyzed closely, they said.

Experts have said de-icing should be effective for at least 30 minutes.

Though most attention has been focused on icing, investigators Friday night continued to caution that many other things could have caused the crash and the determination of what did depends heavily on the flight recorders not yet recovered.

Some of the other things investigators want to examine are the state of the engines and fuel and whether slush had built up on the runway.

McAdams said he expected the crumpled tail section containing the recorders to be raised from the icy Potomac on Saturday. It was not raised Friday because divers wanted to make sure no more bodies were in the tail, where eight bodies were found during the day, he said.

WASHINGTON POLICE Chief Maurice Turner said the divers recovered the bodies of seven men and a woman, all still strapped in their seats.

"The bodies are very recognizable. There is trauma from the chest on up," Turner said, indicating that the impact of the crash was severe — but not enough to impair identification.

"The recovery may appear to be progressing in slow motion." Turner said, but he added divers had to work amid chunks of ice under the river surface that were described as "extremely treacherous."

He said he did not want to risk the safety of divers or possible further damage to parts that could provide clues to a cause, such as the flight and voice recorders. That equipment could trace the plane's speed and degree of climb and — through cockpit conversation — an indication of problems the crew was experiencing.

Investigators also said they had found new evidence that could help reveal the cause of the crash — a film taken at the airport Wednesday of an Air Florida plane taxiing on the runway shortly before the accident.

THE FILM WAS TAKEN by a television station as part of a routine weather story, and federal investigator Rudolph Kapustin said it was highly unlikely the plane could be any other than the one that crashed.

A source close to the investigation said, meanwhile, that some pilots who took off in planes shortly before the Air Flordia jet departed Wednesday backed up the Braniff pilot's reports of ice on the doomed plane.

At the same time, a pilot of a private jet — the only plane to depart National that afternoon after the accident — told investigators he was concerned about poor runway condiditions, particularly the level of slush, the source said.

Eli Timoner, chairman of Air Florida, said at a Miami news conference that any "speculation" that ice caused the crash "is just that — speculation."

"I DOUBT ANYONE could have seen ice on the top of the wings," he said. "It could have been snow because it was snowing."

Timoner said he believed the plane was de-iced twice by American Airlines, which services Air Florida planes at National, then got into the departure line. He pointed out that other planes also waited in line, including one which took off after Air Florida's Flight 90.

The Boeing 737 crashed into the 14th Street Bridge seconds after it took off during a snowstorm, crushed several vehicles on the crowded bridge, tiften plunged into the Potomac, barely 100 yards short of a second span.

Seventy-four of the plane's 79 passengers and crew members were killed, along with four people in vehicles on the bridge.

Four passengers and a flight attendant rescued from the icy river were in satisfactory condition. Four were visited Friday by first lady Nancy Reagan at their hospital in Arlington, Va.

Divers have tried since the crash to recover bodies entombed in the aircraft about 25 feet below the surface, but they have been blocked by frequent snow and heavy wind. Only 17 bodies had been recovered as of late Friday.

Meanwhile, the 14th Street Bridge remained closed, causing massive backups of traffic as commuting federal workers returned to work Friday. The federal workforce was given a day off because of snowstorms and to avoid complicating the recovery efforts at the bridge.

Airline head questions ice-buildup speculation

MIAMI (AP) — Other planes taking off from National Airport on Wednesday waited on the runway just as long as Flight 90 did after its final de-icing, Air Florida Chairman Eli Timoner said Friday.

So if the Boeing 737's wings were coated with ice when it plunged into the Potomac River, killing 78 people, other jets leaving Washington at the same time should have had similar problems, he said at a news conference.

But he cautioned against speculating on the cause of the crash until the National Transportation Safety Board has completed its probe, saying nothing could be certain until engineers recovered the sunken wreckage and examined it.

"Any speculation about ice being the cause is just that — it's speculation," Timoner said at Air Florida's suburban Miami headquarters. "Every aircraft in line with it had a very similar period of exposure."

Timoner, who guided Air Florida from a small commuter to a major interstate airline, insisted the plane would have been checked thoroughly for ice before leaving the gate.

Because speculation about the cause of the crash has centered on iced-up wings, Timoner said he paid special attention Thursday evening as a crew sprayed his Air Florida flight before it left Washington for Miami.

"I was trying to time it," he said. "It struck me that we were longer between deicing and takeoff than Flight 90 the day before. I certainly know how careful everyone in the industry would be after a tragedy like that ... and no one asked" that it be sprayed again.

Eli Timoner

He said his flight was deiced at the gate and then waited on the runway about 30 or 40 minutes in "horrible weather."

Timoner said most of the other passengers on the flight to Miami recognized him and offered condolences and reassurance.

"The most encouraging thing about this has been the Air Florida traveling public," he said. "By and large, the passengers climbed on our planes and said, 'Keep your chins up, we'll stay with you.'"

While in Washington, Timoner said he had an emotional meeting with the wife of Capt. Larry Wheaton, who was among the four crew members killed.

Midwest in for new cold wave

The Associated Press

A fast-moving wave of snow and bitter cold sliced into the Midwest on Friday, forcing snowplows off the streets in Minnesota and school buses to turn back in Nebraska. In the South, thousands of workers tried to dig their cities out from under a double blanket of snow.

The National Weather Service said the Canadian cold wave was expected to be at least as bad as the one that plunged the nation into a deep freeze last weekend with the lowest temperatures of the century. That cold began a week of severe weather blamed for the deaths of 218 people.

Cities from the Dakotas to Illinois were warned to expect record-breaking lows.

"People should have groceries, fuel and essential supplies on hand to last up to a week," said Ken Schriner of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, chairman of the county board of supervisors.

SNOW FALLING EARLY Friday over some upper Midwestern states was dancing in winds of up to 35 mph, cutting visibility. Forecasters predicted dangerous, near-blizzard conditions.

In Iowa, the weather service urged businesses to let workers go home early. Near-blizzard conditions were reported in Montana, where the temperature hit 11 below at Cut Bank, and wind chills of 70 below were reported in some parts of the state.

"Get off the highways," said South Dakota Highway Patrol Lt. Jim Jorgenson. "We don't have enough people or facilities to get out there for people who get into trouble by not heeding the good advice about no travel conditions."

"WE'RE GOING TO see a rerun of last weekend," said Dean Nesley of the NWS in Minnesota, referring to days of subzero temperatures and winds that combined to make a wind chill factor of 50 below to 100 below.

The cold was expected to move into the South by Sunday, bad news for states socked by two snowstorms in as many days.

Power lines were snapped by snow- and ice-laden trees in the storms that left up to 7 inches of snow the streets of cities accustomed to more moderate winter temperatures. More than 320,000 people in Georgia, North Carolina and Alabama remained without power Friday morning, and utility companies hauled in workers from across the Deep South in an effort to restore heat and light to homes.

"Some lines in those areas were so badly damaged that we're practically having to rebuild the system," said Alabama Power spokesman Ed Crosby.

Reagan may increase consumer goods taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is expected to call for increased excise taxes on a variety of consumer goods, and is considering a proposal for a minimum income tax on individuals and corporations, congressional sources confirmed Friday.

The sources, who asked not to be identified by name, said the revenue from higher excise taxes on alcohol, tobacco, gasoline, telephones and perhaps "luxury items" such as furs and jewelry would be turned over to the 50 states.

In turn, the states would be required to pick up federal responsibilties in certain areas such as highways and education, the sources said.

THEY SAID THEY expected the plan would be part of Reagan's budget for the 1983 fiscal year, which he is expected to present to Congress on Feb. 8.

The reports surfaced as Reagan met for over an hour with three top Republican senators, all of whom urged him to increase taxes to hold down burgeoning budget deficits.

Few details were available on the "minimum tax." Proposing such a plan last week, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said it would raise as much as $10 billion a year. Much of that money would come from corporations.

In addition, sources said Reagan apparently is still considering proposals to plug "tax loopholes" as well as a proposal for an oil fee, which would be used to fill the Strategic Petroleum Oil Reserve. No details were available.

These sources also said Reagan showed no inclination to alter his proposed defense buildup, and continues to oppose a "windfall profits" tax on natural gas.

REAGAN'S MEETING WITH the three Republicans lasted more than an hour. Officials insisted afterwards that the president has reached no final decisions on taxes.

But there was little doubt what kind of advice he received.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan "has made almost all the decisions on the budget."

Verdict still out in Ramos trial

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal jury went home for the weekend Friday without reaching a verdict in the police brutality trial of a former McAllen officer charged with ordering subordinates to beat a prisoner.

U.S. District Judge Filemon Vela recessed the jury after an hour and 40 minutes Friday and ordered the panel, which will not be sequestered, to resume deliberations Monday morning.

Roberto Ramos is charged with depriving Rene Escamilla of his civil rights on Sept. 25, 1977, by telling several other officers to hit him. The charge i a misdemeanor.

BEFORE RETIRING, JURORS sent Vela a note asking that testimony from McAllen police officer Willie Forester be repeated for them.

Forester testified Thursday as a defense witness. But he said during cross-examination Friday his conscience had bothered him and he wanted to relate a statement he said Ramos made during the Escamilla incident.

"He (Ramos) came up to me and said, 'You won't say anything about it, will you?'" Forester testified.

Vela said he would have the court reporter transcribe Forester's testimony for the jury by Monday morning.

In closing arguments, special prosecutor Enrique Romero of Washington told the jury that Ramos had exceeded his authority in the incident.

"NOW IS THE TIME to hold defendant Roberto Ramos accountable for his crimes," Romero said. "Just because a police officer puts on a badge, has the authority to carry a gun, carries handcuffs, and has the authority to place you under arrest does not place them above the law."

Escamilla had led McAllen officers on a freeway chase at speeds of up to 100 mph following a reported night-club fracas in McAllen.

He exited the highway and stopped in an open field, where several officers were restraining him when Ramos arrived, according to trial witnesses.

Defense lawyer John Lewis told jurors that Ramos could not be convicted of the charge if officers already were striking the prisoner when Ramos arrived.

"YOU CAN'T SAY officer Ramos caused him to be beaten when it was already happening," Lewis argued.

Earlier, Ramos testified that he could not have directed any officers to beat Escamilla.

San Juan policeman Leonel Saldana testified Thursday that he heard Ramos yell to the other officers, "Beat him. I can't because I have too many lawsuits pending."

Ramos, 33, and several other policemen were defendants in a series of civil lawsuits filed by the American Civil Liberties Union on behalf of victims of alleged brutality.

Some of the alleged brutality covered in the ACLU suits were recorded on police station monitors and presented as evidence both at the civil trials and to the federal grand jury. They later were aired on national television.

He is the first of five former officers to stand trial on misdemeanor charges of depriving persons of their civil rights. The five were indicted in November following an eight-month investigation conducted by the U.S. Justice Department out of Houston and Washington.

At the time of the Escamilla arrest, Ramos was the ranking sergeant of the late-night shift. He resigned from the force in September.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Mostly cloudy north and partly cloudy south and much colder most areas Saturday. A few snow flurries Panhandle Saturday. Partly cloudy Saturday night and Sunday. Warmer Sunday. Highs Saturday 30s southwest, east of the mountains mid teens north to mid 30s south early morning with the temperatures falling during the day. Lows Saturday night near 0 Panhandle to upper teens southeast and mid 20s southwest. Highs Sunday 40s east of the mountains to 50s southwest.ajaa

North Texas: Mostly cloudy windy and much colder Saturday with temperatures falling during the day. Partly cloudy and continued cold Saturday night. Mostly fair and not so cold west and continued cold east Sunday. Temperatures Saturday falling into the teens north and west and into the 20s south and east.

More wicked winter weather predicted

The Permian Basin's brief reprieve from the gnashing teeth of winter will end today, as temperatures will rise no higher than the low 30s before plummeting to the low 20s in mid-afternoon on the way to the low teens tonight.

The National Weather Service expects only slight improvement on Sunday, as temperatures still will reach only the low 40s.

Winds of 15-20 miles per hour and gusting even higher are expected to reduce the chill factor considerably through the weekend.

By Friday's early spring-like conditions, such an expected onslaught of ice-cold weather would be hard to imagine, were it not for the unpredictability of West Texas weather. The mercury edged to the 61-degree mark after an early morning low that did not even leave water freezing: 34 degrees. The marks did not threaten the record extremes, however, of 79 in 1935 and 15 in 1972.

The clear skies of Friday also should undergo transformation today and Sunday, as partly cloudy skies are predicted. No precipitation is in the forecast, however, and the year's total remains at 0.34 inch — all of it falling in the form of freezing rain and snow this week.

Police investigate saw equipment theft

In relatively light police action Friday, Midland police officers investigated the theft of $4,600 in saw equipment.

Mike Roark of 1212 W. Golf Course Road told investigators the items were taken from 4000 Westminster sometime between 6 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday.

Missing were an orange Clipper 10-20 inch saw, a diamond-bladed saw, 20 automatic devices, 20 extenders and 10 braces, according to a police report.

Midlander cleared of misapplying funds

A 35-year-old Midland businessman who was accused of misapplying fiduciary funds stemming from a house-repair job was exonerated by a 10-woman, two-man jury Friday in Midland's 238th State District Court after less than an hour's deliberation.

The jury in the week-long trial determined that the defendant, William Monroe "Willie" Byers, was not guilty of misapplying a $6,344 check for a residential roofing repair job performed by his crewmen. Had he been convicted of the alleged deed, Byers could have been sentenced from two years to 10 years in the state penitentiary and fined up to $5,000.

At contention in the trial, which had the aura of a civil dispute, was the handling of a $6,344 check, which Richard and Debra Trantham of 2805 Exeter Ave. had made out to Byers' International Roofing Co. last July 2, but which Steve Gordon, president of International Builders & Design Corp. of 125 N. Fort Worth St., claimed belonged to his company.

GORDON, 24, CLAIMED Byers was hired as an employee by International Builders to find construction and remodeling jobs for the fledgling company and was entrusted with company funds.

Byers, however, maintained that he was an independent contractor, though he was paid $300 a week by the corporation and was promised 10 percent of the profits from any jobs he had drummed up for the corporation and supervised to completion.

"Have you tried to cheat Steve Gordon or International (Builders) out of anything?" defense attorney Royal Caswell of Odessa asked Byers.

"No, I haven't," testified Byers.

However, prosecutor Marian Bentley, who likened Byers to a thief, said he "cashed" the $6,344 check "and then he made the fatal mistake. He tried to hide the source of the funds" by changing banks and opening a new account. "Luckily, we were able to catch it," Ms. Bentley had said in her closing arguments Friday afternoon.

TESTIMONY INDICATED that Byers, Gordon and Gordon's father-in-law, financier-investor Ray Horton, had attempted to settle their dispute among themselves and then through their accountants, John Floyd for Gordon and Stan Anderson for Byers.

Byers testified that on Sept. 18 he, Horton, Floyd and Gordon met at International Builders in an effort to settle the dispute and had negotiated several times before that. Byers recalled Floyd said that he (Byers) owed International Builders "$5,200 and something" and suggested that the parties draw up an agreement to settle their differences.

"I said that would be acceptable to me," Byers testified.

However, Byers said he was told then that "this matter would go in front of the grand jury" if the $5,200 was not promptly paid "and was out of their control."

"Then I was told that a grand jury was no joke," Byers said.

"He (Horton) said he had been indicted 22 times, and it wasn't a joke," Byers said.

However, Byers testified he took the $6,344 check, got a money order for that same amount to make sure the check was good and deposited the funds in order to meet his crew's payroll needs and other obligations. Byers said he wasn't sure International Builders, which was ailing financially, could meet the payroll under Gordon's management.

At one point in the trial, Byers said he "very much now" would like to settle the financial differences with International Builders. "I think they owe me." He said he earlier had advanced the corporation several thousand dollars.

Byers, who was supervising three other jobs at the time, said his work was associated with International Builders but that he separated from the corporation about July 8 and kept the $6,344 check to pay for materials and labor. "International had not kept up its end of the bargain," Byers said.

Gordon, who reportedly had testified before the grand jury in getting Byers indicted, testified for the state that Horton had authority to negotiate a contract between International Builders and Byers but that no contract was put in writing.

Gordon, who acknowledged that he and Byers had a personality conflict, said Byers would "take materials that he (Byers) over-ordered and used it on other jobs."

"Me, being young and not as experienced as he, I think we had conflicts."

BRICKMASON—CONTRACTOR Jerry Boykin, who had performed work for International Builders, testified Horton told him Gordon "needed some qualified craftsmen to assist him. He (Horton) was going to prison" and his son-in-law needed help to "make a go of the business."

Byers' wife, Judy, who keeps books for the Byers enterprises, including the J&V Vending Co. which operates the lucrative, quarter-to-play electronic-game machines, said occasionally she would transfer funds from one account to another when needed and later reimburse the debited account. "It was like robbing Peter to pay Paul," she said.

IN CLOSING arguments, Caswell said the state had failed to prove Byers had misapplied any funds and had failed to prove Byers was in the employ of International Builders.

"This is a case of a missing witness," said Caswell. "Where is Ray Horton? Ray Horton is the one who made the business agreement with William Monroe Byers, with Mr. Boykin, with Mr. (Brooks) Smith," another contractor.

"The state has failed to bring the only person who can testify contrary to what this defendant (Byers) has told you."

Caswell referred to Gordon's employment record as a truck driver and brickmason ("He mixed a little mortar") and to his quick rise to the executive level after marrying Horton's daughter, Lisa, International Builders' bookkeeper.

"Ray Horton made him what he is today," Caswell said. He said Gordon didn't "earn" the president's job through "skill, knowledge or ability" and was not fond of Byers.

"He (Gordon) never would have hired Willie in the first place."

PROSECUTOR BENTLEY said that Byers' "fatal mistake" was in trying to conceal the $6,344 in funds which she contended was due International Builders. "Luckily enough, we were able to catch it...He (Byers) didn't think we were smart enough to subpoena those bank records," which the state had employed to bolster its case against Byers.

"Don't you know were the money went?" Ms. Bentley asked the jurors. "In Willie Byers pocket," she asserted.

She accused Byers of greed and theft; Caswell promptly objected.

"Ladies and gentlemen," Presiding Judge Vann Culp told the jurors, "please disregard the term 'theft.'"

After Byers paid expenses for materials and labor out of the $6,344, "he got the difference," the prosecutor charged. "He got the profit."

Ms. Bentley said Caswell's arguments in behalf of Byers were "a lot of rabbit trails" to divert the jurors' attention from the main issue "and Roy Horton is one of them."

The prosecutor alluded to efforts by International Builders, Gordon and Horton to settle their differences long before the case got on the criminal docket.

"The grand jury didn't think it was a civil case," she said.

Court considering action to wipe out ERA ruling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court indicated Friday it is seriously considering a Reagan administration suggestion it quickly wipe out a ruling that the proposed Equal Rights Amendment died nearly three years ago.

The court told lawyers in the hotly contested case to file responses by next Wednesday to the Justice Department's suggestion that the lower court ruling be set aside as premature.

If the justices follow that route, it would wipe out — at least temporarily — all legal doubt hanging over the final six-month push to ratify the ERA by June 30.

In what appeared to be something of a political compromise, Justice Department lawyers suggested Thursday that the court speed up its consideration of a technical point that could overcome the need to tackle difficult constitutional issues involved.

The administration said the court "may wish" to set aside the ruling of a federal judge in Idaho that Congress acted uncontitutionally when it extended the March 22, 1979, deadline for ERA ratification. U.S. District Judge Marion Callister of Boise also ruled that states are free to rescind previous ratification votes.

SUCH ACTION WOULD give pro-ERA forces, in effect, the same victory as if Callister's ruling was struck down as constitutionally wrong.

Five of the 35 states that have ratified the amendment, which would ban discrimination based on sex, have voted to rescind their ratification votes. Before the ERA could become the Constitution's 27th Amendment, it must be ratified by 38 states.

Callister did not prohibit further ratification efforts in state legislatures. But his ruling is viewed as a major stumbling block to gaining those crucial ratification votes.

The Justice Department suggested that the Supreme Court could rule quickly — without dealing with the constitutional issues — that Callister acted before the controversy was ready for decision.

Lawyers call that legal concern a "ripeness" problem.

"The parties are invited to file on or before Wednesday, Jan. 20, responses to the suggestion ... that the court vacate (Callister's) judgment ... on grounds of lack of ripeness, without further briefing or oral argument," the high court said in its brief order Friday.

SUCH ORDERS OFTEN indicate that the court is leaning toward the specific action it asks lawyers to discuss.

Friday's order was directed to lawyers for Idaho, which challenged the ERA deadline extension, and the National Organization for Women.

NOW previously asked the justices to rule quickly on the constitutional issues of the deadline extension, rescission and whether the whole controversy is a political one not suited for the courts.

Such appeals generally take months, perhaps longer than a year, to generate Supreme Court decisions. That's why NOW asked for speeded-up review.

The Justice Department contends that because the controversy will be moot if three more states fail to ratify the ERA before June 30, speeded-up review of the major issues is improper.

There will be plenty of time between the June 30 deadline and the effective date of the amendment if passed — two years — to decide the constitutional issues raised by NOW, the Justice Department has told the court.

Lubbock man gets $30,000 in stallion death

A jury in Midland's 142nd State District Court has awarded Lubbock stock broker A.L. Wilson Jr. $30,000 in damages in the accidental electrocution of his 2-year-old Quarter Horse stallion, Coppy Quick, on Dec. 13, 1979.

The horse, which Wilson initially had contended was worth $70,000, was being trained as a cutting horse by Midland horse trainer Don Pooley about five miles east of Midland. Wilson's stallion and another horse were shocked to death when an electric horse waiker malfunctioned on the damp December day in 1979.

Among the issues in the case was Pooley's alleged failure to hire a qualified electrician to repair the horse walker, which was owned by Pooley's father-in-law, Tracy Clark, but which was under Pooley's charge and care.

In assessing negligence in the death of the stallion, the jury said Pooley and his wife, Kim, were 70 percent at fault and that Don Fisler's Permian Truck & Engine Service was 30 percent to blame for the horse's death. Fisler thus becomes liable for $9,000 in damages, and the Pooleys for $21,000.

The jury determined that Fisler failed to repair and re-wire the walker in a manner as "an ordinary prudent electrician would"; that Pooley and his wife, Kim, were negligent in not hiring a qualified electrician to re-wire the walker, and that Pooley was negligent in using a metal chain rather than a rope to tether the horse to the walker.

Various witnesses placed varying values on the horse, ranging from $1,000 to $1,500 to $60,000 and $80,000.

Attorneys in the case were Warlick Carr, who represented Wilson; John Hyde and Robert Freeman, who represented Fisler; and Robert Junell, who represented Don and Kim Pooley.

Coretta Scott King and Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young, right, march arm-in-arm Friday in a parade marking the birthday of slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King, Jr.

Nation pays King tribute

By GRAHAM VINK
Associated Press Writer

Seven inches of snow in Atlanta hampered ceremonies honoring Friday's birthday of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., but 8,000 people braved cold winds in Washington to march in memory of the slain civil rights leader.

Elsewhere around the nation, employees in 10 states had the day off to commemorate the preacher who helped desegregate the nation. Parades were held in New York, a gospel concert was planned in Chicago, and people gathered in St. Louis to remember the landmark Dred Scott pro-slavery ruling which hastened the Civil War.

President Reagan issued a statement in Washington calling King "a great leader and teacher, a man whose words awakened in us all the hope for a more just, compassionate society."

The president called on the nation to "rededicate ourselves to making Martin Luther King's inspiring dream come true for all Americans."

THE DAY WAS MARRED in San Bernardino, Calif., where a statue of King was found vandalized with red paint.

In Atlanta, entertainer Harry Belafonte received the Martin Luther King Jr. Non-violent Peace Prize as part of week-long ceremonies to honor King, who would have been 53 on Friday.

The 10th annual award was presented by King's widow, Coretta Scott King, during an ecumenical service at the Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King once was co-pastor. Mrs. King called the singer a key strategist in the civil rights movement.

"I am perhaps more moved today by this award than any award I have ever received in the past," Belafonte said. "It means a great deal to me."

He was scheduled to receive the award Thursday night, but his arrival in Atlanta was delayed by snow in the South and East.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON, 500 people, led by Mrs. King and Belafonte, marched two miles through slushy streets from Central City Park to the crypt where King's body lies. The bad weather had forced former Vice President Walter Mondale to cancel his plans to attend.

In Washington, a crowd estimated by police at 8,000 marched from the Washington Monument to the Capitol for a rally.

In Philadelphia, only a third of the invited guests showed up Friday for a breakfast by Mayor William Green to honor King, because of a boycott organized by an association of black policemen.

The Guardian Civic League said Green had not done enough to get more blacks on the police force. Green responded that the boycott was "unwarranted and unfair."

Green said that about 225 people were invited to the breakfast, but only 76 people — including 17 blacks — passed through a line of nearly 50 pickets outside the Bellevue Stratford Hilton.

THE DISCOVERY AT San Bernardino City Hall of red paint on the recently unveiled King statue came just three hours before a ceremony to honor him.

Police said janitors found the vandalism at 6:30 a.m. and summoned the fire department, which cleaned the statue in time for the 9:30 a.m. ceremony. Officers said they had no suspects.

In St. Louis, about 300 people gathered in the rotunda of the Old Courthouse to remember the Dred Scott decision of 1857. In that case, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that no black — free or slave — could claim U.S. citizenship and that Congress could not outlaw slavery. The decision outraged much of the North and increased antagonism toward the South.

"What was decided in these courtrooms was whether we'd be property or people," said the Rev. C.T. Vivian, founder of the Atlanta-based National Klan Watch.

"What does Martin Luther King mean to you?" Vivian asked the audience. "Can we hear what Martin Luther King came to tell us?"

King was assassinated on March 4, 1968, in Memphis, Tenn., where Rep. Harold Ford, the only black congressman from the state, urged people Friday "not to drop the torch Dr. King carried."

"FREEDON IS A strange thing," Ford said. "Sometimes it is harder to keep than it is to get." He said federal budget cuts threaten programs King supported, saying, "We are now in danger of losing some of the things that Dr. King helped us win."

The Rev. Samuel B. Kyles urged Sen. Howard Baker, the Senate majority leader from Tennessee, to "use his power and influence in helping make Dr. King's birthday a national holiday."

His plea was echoed in New York by Gov. Hugh Carey, who said the goals King sought, "brotherhood and equality, and the sacrifice he made, warrant this special recognition."

Despite such calls, the drive to make King's birthday a national holiday appears to have stalled.

Opponents say another paid holiday for federal workers would cost too much, and some Southern conservatives have questioned whether such a high honor is merited for King, who would become the first black commemorated with a national holiday.

The 10 states that celebrate full holidays for King's birthday are Connecticut, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Clements says two terms long enough

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements says all statewide elected officials should be limited to two terms, including the governor.

"I can say without equivocation that I will not run for a third term," Clements told a Capitol news conference. "Eight years is enough."

Clements, Texas' first Republican governor in 104 years, is seeking re-election to his second four-year term.

"I think all statewide elected officials should be limited to two terms," he said. "I would be in favor of and would help introduce such legislation and will support it in 1983 ... I can say personally that eight years as governor is long enough."

However, Clements said, in answering questions, he was not in favor of election of some state agency officials that are now appointed.

"I would not be in favor of electing members of the Public Utility Commission," he said.

Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong, a Democratic candidate for governor, has proposed that PUC members be elected instead of appointed to six-year terms by the governor.

"I also would be in favor of appointing members to the Texas Railroad Commission," Clements said. "I think it would work better and eliminate political overtones."

Proposal would legalize housing discrimination

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Residents of Austin, often considered Texas' most liberal city, vote Saturday on a proposal to legalize housing discrimination against homosexuals.

Opponents say the ordinance is unconstitutional and would create "tremendous disruption" in the city of 345,000 people, which has a large student population as the home of the University of Texas.

The proposal's chief backer says failure to approve it "would signal to those who practice sodomy across the nation that Austin approves of it."

Dr. Steven Hotze launched a petition drive that prompted the referendum after a city commission suggested the City Council ban housing discrimination against certain minority groups, including gays, the elderly and people with children.

TO THE 31-year-old Hotze, the vote is a referendum on homosexuals, who he calls "criminals" and "sodomites." He says: "The issue is not housing. The issue is whether we allow our City Council to grant public sanction to homosexual activity."

Because Texas law makes it illegal to commit homosexual acts, Hotze said it's improper to protect gays from housing discrimination. "It's like thieves or murderers trying to gain political power," he said. "The public ought to be outraged."

The proposal by the Austin Citizens for Decency, an anti-homosexual group led by Hotze, specifies it would "not be unlawfuul to deny housing on the basis of sexual orientation."

"When they used the words 'sexual orientation' on the proposal they included everyone that's walking around," said Robb Southerland, leader of the Citizens for a United Austin, which opposes the ordinance.

"IF THIS ONE isn't unconstitutional, then we need to burn the Constitution," said Robb, the board chairman of an Austin music store.

The ordinance, said City Councilman Roger Duncan, would cause "tremendous disruption."

He added: "It legalizes discrimination. I wouldn't be surprised if the minority community, racial minorities, would get very nervous over the passage of a law like this."

Also opposing the ordinance were 50 clergymen who issued a statement decrying housing discrimination based on race, religion, sexual orientation or similar reasons. And John Duncan, director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, says that while the law bans homosexual acts, it is not illegal to profess homosexuality.

SOUTHERLAND charges the ordinance is an "invasion of privacy" adding, "What right does a landlord have to even ask that question?

"....The next thing are ads that say, 'Jews need not apply' or 'Blacks can't apply,'" Southerland said.

Suspect described as 'sick, amoral'

NEW YORK (AP) — A man charged with killing six people in the last six weeks in Manhattan is a "sick, amoral" homosexual prostitute ready to kill anyone who might identify him, a prosecutor said.

Assistant District Attorney Eliot Jacobson gave the description at an early-morning arraignment in Manhattan Criminal Court for David Bullock, 21, on six counts of second degree murder.

Bullock was arrested Thursday following an investigation by a special detective task force set up after police noticed common elements among the slayings of six people between Dec. 5 and Jan. 4. Among those killed in different parts of the city were an opera performer, an investment adviser and the suspect's roommate.

Lt. Thomas Power, head of the task force, said the common elements included the "closeness in time sequence, the manner in which the people met their demise ... and the fact that several of the victims were homosexuals."

FIVE OF THE VICTIMS had been shot in the head, four of them with a .38-caliber handgun," Power said.

Two were killed in the park and two in their apartments, which were set afire after the killings. Police said the victims' money and credit cards were stolen.

Jacobson said Bullock had admitted to all six killings and to four additional shootings.

Barbara Thompson, a spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau said Bullock apparently had no income source other than prostitution.

Arguing before Judge Harry Davis that Bullock should be held without bail, Jacobson said Bullock was "sick, amoral" and would kill any witnesses to his acts if released.

Bullock was ordered to Rikers Island prison until a Jan. 20 court date, Ms. Thompson said.

During the arraignment, Jacobson characterized the deaths as "sadistic," all unprovoked and motivated by fear that the victims might reveal previous murders or identify Bullock as a robber.

In four killings, he said, Bullock woke his victims to watch their expressions as he shot them in the head.

When arrested early Thursday at his apartment in his east Harlem apartment, Jacobson said, Bullock had a loaded, 12-gauge, sawed-off shotgun used on his most recent victim.

Hoaxes hurt hostage hunt

EDITOR'S NOTE — Nearly a month after the Red Brigades kidnapped Gen. James L. Dozier, authorities are groping through a fog of misinformation in their search for hard leads and apparently making little progress. Here is a report.

ROME (AP) — Terrorist hoaxes to mislead authorities and spurious tips from well-meaning people have spawned a series of conflicting and often false reports about the search for kidnapped U.S. Army Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier.

They also have given rise to speculation that the Red Brigades kidnappers are deliberately trying to make Italian and U.S. security forces look ridiculous.

One anonymous caller told police Friday that Dozier had been killed and dumped in a lake north of Venice. But a police search turned up nothing and police said the caller was probably a compulsive liar.

"Investigators are back to square one," headlined the Milan daily Corriere della Sera after authorities brushed aside reports of a major break in the Dozier probe following a weekend sweep of Red Brigades hideouts in Rome.

NEARLY A MONTH AFTER the 50-year-old general was abducted by the guerrilla group from his Verona apartment, no arrests have been made or warrants issued in the case.

Authorities also deny Italian news media reports that investigators were following "a precise trail" in their search for the gang's "people"s prison" where Dozier is said to be held.

Misinformation has been plaguing the investigation since four gunmen posing as plumbers grabbed Dozier, the highest-ranking U.S. official at the NATO base at Verona, from his apartment in the northern city Dec. 17.

Among the reports, variously attributed to Verona authorities and unnamed sources, and later denied or never officially confirmed were:

-The Red Brigades actually had sought to kidnap another U.S. general and not Dozier. Denied.

—An attempt also had been made to abduct an American general in Vicenza, near Verona, a day before Dozier was snatched. Not confirmed.

—DOZIER'S WIFE, JUDITH, underwent hypnosis to help recall repressed memories of the kidnappers who had gagged and bound her. Not confirmed.

—A snapshot of Dozier attached to the first of three communiques the Red Brigades have issued on the kidnapping was a fake. The photo was genuine.

Another factor has been the lack of a centralized authority to provide official information, and the result is sometimes contradictory statements.

Among those providing bits and pieces of official information in Verona are the NATO command, antiterrorism police known as Digos, para-military policem, or Carabinieri, and the office of the prefect, te national government representative. In Rome, there are the Interior Ministry, Digos, Carabinieri, the prosecutor's office and the U.S. Embassy.

UNIDENTIFIED "FRIENDS" of the general were reported to have put up a $1.7 million reward for information leading to his release. Both the Interior Ministry and the U.S. Embassy first denied the existence of the fund, which was later confirmed by NATO officials and Verona authorities.

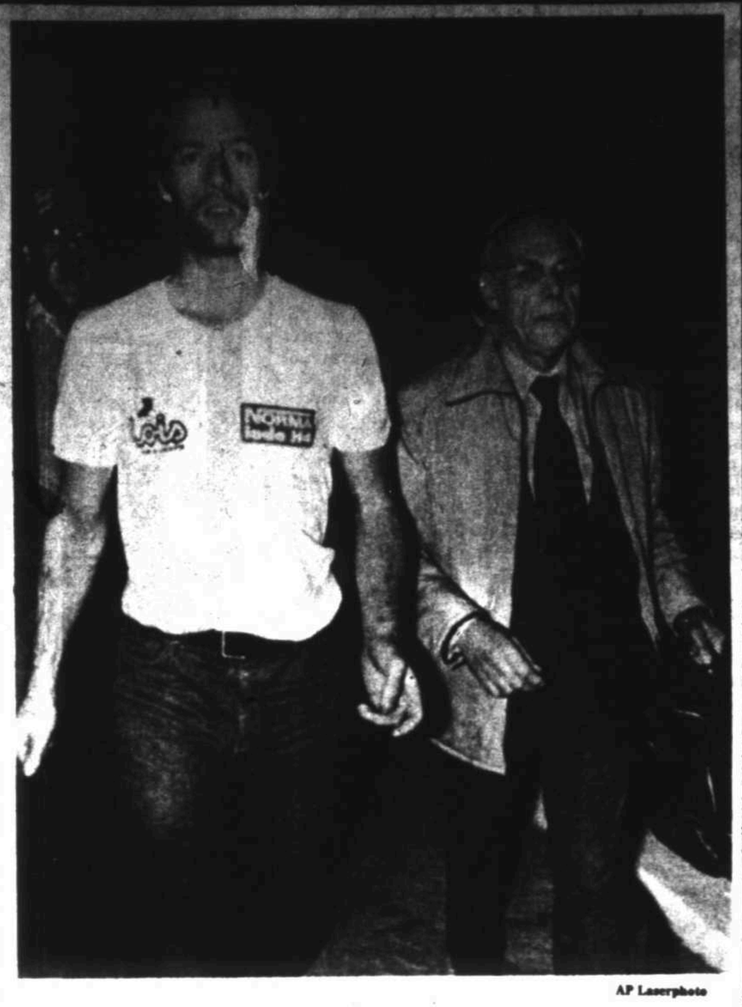
Thatcher's son returns home after ordeal



AP Laserphoto

Mark Thatcher, left, son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, is joined by his father Denis, right, after arriving in an Algerian airport Thursday night.

LONDON (AP) — Mark Thatcher, racing driver son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, returned home Friday after being stranded for six days in the Sahara Desert and went directly to an airport terminal to call his mother.

Thatcher and his father, Denis, who flew to Algeria to join the search when his son went missing on an auto race from Paris to Dakar, Senegal, arrived in the personal jet of Algerian President Chadli Benjedid.

Mrs. Thatcher's 28-year-old son was dressed in a short-sleeved shirt and blue jeans on an icy day in London.

"I'm delighted to be home. I had no idea it was so cold," he told reporters.

"I'M GOING straight to call my mother," he said. The prime minister was on a visit to a factory in Manchester.

A reunion with Mrs. Thatcher was planned Friday evening at Chequers, the prime minister's rural residence just northwest of London.

Mark was rescued from the barren desert Thursday, after his white Peugeot 504 broke an axle last Friday.

His French co-driver Anny-Charlotte Verney, 38, and mechanic Jacky Garnier, chose not to return home after the trio was located by an Algerian C-130 Hercules transport plane and taken to Tamanrasset search operations center.

The French pair was traveling on to Niono, Mali, on the rally route to Dakar, according to the British embassy in Algiers.

Mark said before leaving Algiers, "If our disappearance had been reported immediately to Algerian officials we would have been found sooner."

RACE organizers notified Algerian authorities on the fourth day that Thatcher's car was missing.

"We were never worried because we knew we would be found," Thatcher said. "Above all, we were concerned about our families."

Mrs. Thatcher said her "heart stopped" when she realized her son was lost in the Saharan wastes with a dwindling water supply. He was eventually found, in good health, about 250 miles from Tamanrasset.

She said she would ask her son, a bachelor with a lucrative racing contract, not to enter the African race again "unless there is better organization for those who get lost."

Mrs. Thatcher also has a journalist daughter, Carol, who is Mark's twin and was with her at 10 Downing St. during the ordeal.

REFERRING to her husband, Mrs. Thatcher said: "We heard nothing from the rally organizers and I said to Denis, 'You have got to get out there and see what is happening.'"

Asked if she was worried, she said: "Of course, every mother would be. We tried to carry on as normal with Cabinet meetings."

Noguchi criticized in Wood, Holden deaths

LOS ANGELES (AP) — County Coroner Thomas T. Noguchi has been criticized by the Screen Actors Guild for "sensationalizing" the deaths of entertainers William Holden and Natalie Wood.

Announcement of the SAG criticism came Thursday, the same day the district attorney's office said Noguchi handled the jailhouse death of college football star Ron Settles in an "unprofessional" manner.

Noguchi's department is already under investigation by the county Board of Supervisors for alleged mishandling of evidence and conflict of interest.

SAG said it has sent a letter to the supervisors, which oversees the coroner's office, "urging that Noguchi restrict himself to professional expertise" when reporting his office's post-mortem investigations.

SAG spokeswoman Kim Fellner said Noguchi was condemned for "editorializing and sensationalizing" the Nov. 29 drowning death of Miss Wood off Catalina Island and the death of Holden. His body was discovered in his Santa Monica apartment Nov. 16.

IN THE Wood case, Noguchi theorized that the actress's husband, Robert Wagner, had argued with actor Christopher Walken aboard their yacht, raising speculation that her death was not an accident. That never has been substantiated.

A friend of Wagner later told the New York Daily News that Wagner believes his wife slipped and fell in the dark when she tried to secure a dinghy to the yacht.

In the Holden case, Noguchi revealed the actor had been drinking heavily before he fell in his bedroom and he suggested that Holden was not aware of the severe injury to himself before he bled to death.

On Thursday, District Attorney John Van de Kamp announced after a seven-month investigation that he will not prosecute Signal Hill police in the death of Settles, found hanged in his jail cell.

"GENERALLY, I'd have to say the (coroner's) work was very poor, unprofessional," said Deputy District Attorney Gilbert Garcetti, who headed the Settles investigation. He cited loss of evidence, mistakes in drug tests and delays in handling Settles.

Settles, 21, a running back for California State University-Long Beach, was found hanged in a Signal Hill jail cell shortly after he was stopped for a traffic violation June 2. Police said Settles committed suicide, but his family contend he was killed by police.

Noguchi was in Sacramento today at a meeting of an earthquake preparedness task force and was unavailable to respond to the criticism, his office said.

Noguchi became chief medical examiner for Los Angeles County in 1967 and gained national fame through his testimony in the Robert Kennedy and Tate-LaBianca murder trials.

Texas agencies decry effects of federal budget cuts

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Federal budget cuts could mean fewer teachers, higher property taxes and more unemployment insurance fraud, state agency heads told a legislative subcommittee Friday.

House Appropriations Committee staffer Ron Lindsey told members of the Subcommittee on Federal Funds that Texas can expect a $235 million reduction in federal funds for fiscal 1982.

Then representatives of agencies most affected by the cuts took turns telling the committee how their agencies are coping.

Commissioner Raymon Bynum said his Texas Education Agency is "forward funded" a year in advance and its programs won't be affected immediately.

BUT UNDER current projections for the following fiscal year, Bynum said, school districts "will either have to cut personnel or raise property taxes."

"The impact will be on the school districts, not on the agency, and they're the ones you're going to be hearing from," Bynum told subcommittee Chairman Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale.

Texas Employment Commission officials reviewed the well-publicized 30 percent cutback that is forcing them to close up to 75 local offices and lay off 500 more employees by the end of January.

ASSOCIATE Administrator Pat Joiner predicted increases in unemployment insurance fraud because of cutbacks in the agency's job placement service.

Joiner said job placement workers can report UI recipients who refuse or don't look for work. But a two-thirds cutback in job services means placement workers won't be able to provide that service, Joiner said.

Kubiak asked Joiner, "Would we not be better off by funding (TEC) ourselves?"

IT WOULD BE possible for the agency to operate on a state-collected unemployment tax, Joiner said, though subcommittee members conceded it would take an act of Congress to release Texas from federally-mandated unemployment programs.

"We could set (a state-funded agency) up with appropriate legislation within 60 days," Joiner said.

Officials of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission said they expected a 15 percent cutback, but Commissioner Max Arrell said that after hearing some of the other tales of woe, "I almost feel lucky."

The agency served 94,000 disabled Texans in 1981, Arrell said, but with the cutbacks he expected the number to drop to 67,000 in 1982.

John Wilson of the State Commission for the Blind said publicity about the cutbacks creates a "catch-22" situation for his agency.

"People become frightened and inquiries increase," Wilson said, "so we'll have less people to do more responding."

Pirates still prey on boat people

SONGKHLA, Thailand (AP) — Thai pirates, who last year murdered, raped and abducted hundreds of Vietnamese refugees, continue to have what one observer calls "an open season on the boat people."

Pirates thrive as Thai and international officials negotiate the terms of an anti-piracy program.

The government of Thailand mounts no special operations against the pirates. A U.S.-funded anti-piracy program was terminated Sept. 30 when Thai authorities rejected $300,000 in U.S. aid as inadequate.

The office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) is negotiating a multilateral $3.6 million effort, and U.N. officials here are confident that the money would be forthcoming if the Thais agree.

MOST INTERNATIONAL relief officials and Western diplomats dismiss the theory that the Thai government is stalling because it sees the pirates as a deterrent to the unwanted influx of Vietnamese refugees. Privately, however, many foreign officials involved in refugee work say Thai efforts against piracy have been marginal.

Meanwhile, survivors are adding more gruesome stories to the the seven-year saga of the boat people:

—For 11 days a gang of Thai pirates took turns raping Vo Thi Thua after murdering her three children, including a 3-month-old boy, by throwing them into the sea.

—Dang Thai Dung's boat was attacked four times during its escape from Vietnam. The last pirate gang, armed with knives and grappling hooks, pitched her husband and 23 other men overboard to their deaths.

—Dan Thuy Phuong, 17, was raped repeatedly by seven men who finally set her afloat in a bamboo basket. She was picked up two days later by another Thai boat, raped again and set afloat for the second time before being rescued by friendly fishermen.

WHILE THE AGONY of the other Indochinese refugees — the Cambodians and Laotians — has eased, the UNHCR says that during 1981 more than 80 percent of the refugee boats making it to Thailand were attacked by the sea marauders.

Based on extensive interviews with some of the 12,500 boat people who arrived in southern Thailand last year, the UNHCR says that pirates killed 464 refugees; raped 535 women and abducted 224 others. The UNHCR considers the statistics conservative since they do not include presumed attacks in which there were no survivors.

There has been little forceful denunciation of the atrocities by the Thai leadership. Instead, official government media have linked the current enmity between Thailand and Vietnam with the refugees fleeing that communist nation.

A radio station, run by the Thai navy and broadcasting in southern Thailand, recently noted that the entry of Vietnamese refugees constituted "a national security burden" and warned that Thai fishermen who helped the refugees were "damaging our security."

"THE PIRATES HALF think that they are doing their country a favor. It's a good way of salving their conscience," says a relief worker who interviewed hundreds of piracy victims.

One Western diplomat calls the rampant piracy "despicable but not surprising." He profiled a "typical pirate" as a young, rough-edged, uneducated deck hand.

Gold and other valuables sometimes carried by refugees lures some pirates, since an average deck hand earns the equivalent of $50 a month.

"A pirate looks at his victim and thinks: 'These people will soon be going to the land of milk and honey (the United States), and I'm going to be a poor fisherman for the rest of my life,'" said the diplomat, who asked not to be identified.

Money aside, snaring pirates on the vast open seas is a formidable task. What may appear as a boatload of friendly fisherman one moment can easily turn into a murderous gang once a government patrol has passed and a Vietnamese refugee boat is sighted.

The UNHCR has praised the Thai legal system once pirate suspects are brought before a court and noted that this year, 23 Thais were charged in eight separate, piracy-related cases. "But getting witnesses to testify is the tough part. They'd be dead within a week for starters," one UNHCR official says.

THE REFUGEES invariably were forewarned about pirates — either from foreign radio broadcasts or letters sent by relatives abroad.

"A lot of them seem to regard it as a necessary evil and take the experience with remarkable stoicism, especially the woman. They are real heroines in my book," says Rev. Joseph Devlin, a Roman Catholic priest who works with refugees here.

Others are scarred for life, haunted by nightmares of pirates hacking at bodies with axes and clubs, the sexual attacks and helpless boats rammed and sunk in the open sea.

Mrs. Dang Thai Dung and her child, right, survived a brutal attack by pirates while fleeing Vietnam. Her husband and 23 other men were thrown overboard to their deaths.

PUC doesn't have to release Bell papers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Public Utilities Commission does not have to release working papers its staff prepared for hearings on Southwestern Bell's rate increase request, Texas Attorney General Mark said in an opinion handed down Friday.

PUC General Counsel Allen King had asked the state's legal office to rule on whether an unnamed seeker of the materials could demand access to the working papers under the Texas Open Records Act.

The working papers were prepared by PUC accountants, the opinion said.

The papers are exempted because no final order on the rate request has been issued and, according to PUC, an appeal to the courts is likely after the order is entered, the opinion said.

OCAW ratifies new contract with Amoco

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union ratified a new, two-year contract Friday for 1,550 refinery workers of Amoco Oil and Amoco Chemical companies, a union spokesman said.

The company did not release vote tally, but OCAW representaitive Billie Jones said the pact was approved by a substantial majority.

A vote was scheduled Saturday on a new agreement that could avert a strike by 250 workers of Marathon Oil Co.

All three refineries are located in this industrial community about 35 miles south of Houston.

OCAW members have been working under a contract extension since midnight Jan. 7. Tentative agreements have been reached between workers and Gulf, Cities Services and the two Texas City companies since then.

Talks between OCAW representatives and Shell Oil in Deer Park continued Friday to try to prevent a walkout by 2,100 workers.

About 19,000 workers are represented by OCAW in Houston, with another 6,000 employed in Port Arthur.

Of 55,000 OCAW workers nationwide, only 4,000 Texaco and American Petrofina workers at Port Arthur have gone on strike since contracts expired earlier this year.

Abbott claims self-defense

Calls killing 'tragic misunderstanding'

NEW YORK (AP) — Jailhouse author Jack Henry Abbott testified Friday that he stabbed a waiter to death last summer during a "tragic misunderstanding" in which he thought the victim was going to attack him.

Abbott told jurors that at the moment he plunged the knife into 22-year-old Richard Adan's abdomen, he thought his victim was coming at him with a weapon.

"I screamed at Adan 'you want some more?' ...," Abbott testified. "That's when I saw there was nothing in his hand, and he said, 'You didn't have to kill me.'"

Testifying in his own behalf in Manhattan Supreme Court, Abbott wept as he told the eight-man, four-woman jury that he recently realized that Adan had actually stepped outside a restaurant with him not to fight, but to ensure Abbott's privacy as he urinated on the street.

According to court testimony, it was the policy of the Bini-Bon restaurant to have male customers urinate outside rather than in the restaurant's bathroom. Police have said the stabbing occurred after Adan refused to let Abbott use the bathroom.

ABOUT FIVE OF Adan's relatives wept as Abbott testified.

Later, Adan's father-in-law, Henry Howard, leapt from his seat in the crowded courtroom and shouted at Abbott "You intended it, you scum! God damn you!"

After the relative was hustled out of the room by court officers, defense lawyer Ivan Fisher asked Acting Justice Irving Lang to declare a mistrial because the outburst, as well as spectators' applause, had been heard by the jury. The judge said he would rule on the motion, which was opposed by the prosecution, on Monday.

Abbott, a protege of writer Norman Mailer and author of "In the Belly of the Beast," a critically acclaimed book about prison life, is accused of second-degree murder in the killing of Adan outside the East Village restaurant last July 18. The jurors have been told they may also consider a lesser verdict of manslaughter.

ABBOTT SAID HE GOT into a confrontation with Adan after he thought the waiter was talking about him and "glaring" at him. Abbott said he walked up to Adan and asked "have I done something? What have I done to you?

"He says, 'What's bothering you?'" Abbott said.

Abbott testified that at the time, he thought Adan wanted to fight and he thought Adan had stepped outside to continue the argument.

He said he thought the part-time waiter, who was also an an aspiring actor and playright, was "just baiting me just to humiliate me."

But, Abbott said: "I took him to be something entirely different than what he was."

He said he now believes that when Adan asked him if he wanted to "go outside," it was because he thought Abbott wanted to relieve himself and he accompanied Abbott because "he took it that I was concerned about my privacy and he was sensitive enough to go out and ensure it."

HE TOLD THE JURY the incident was "one of the most tragic misunderstandings I can imagine."

He said that outside the restaurant, after they had walked around the corner, Adan "had his hands in his pockets" and was "looking this way and this way ... I'm thinking that he's making sure there's no witnesses.

"So I took out my knife ... I looked back at him, I said 'I can hear you from there, tell me what's wrong.'"

Several minutes later, Abbott said, "He came right at me ... and swung at me" with what Abbott thought was a weapon. Abbott said that within moments, "the knife was in him."

Abbott said that he put up one of his hands to "catch Adan's weapon" and with his other hand stabbed Adan with a knife he had been carrying that night.

He said he pulled the knife back and tucked it into his pants.

ABBOTT SAID ADAN staggered away and he told the jury "I was stunned. I'd never seen anyone walk dead that far." He said his victim eventually "dropped to his knees" and collapsed.

Abbott then described how he went back to the restaurant and told the two women he was with that "I had to kill him."

He then told the jury how he fled the city.

Abbott was arrested several months later in Morgan City, La.

Earlier in the day, Abbott had testified that he was "pretty bitter" when he got out of prison last summer and suggested to the jury that he had been unprepared to deal with the outside world.

Abbott, who has spent 24 of his 37 years in prison, said he received no counseling from a Manhattan halfway house when he was transferred there from a Utah prison last June on a work release program.

Game designed for cooperation

By GRACE O'CONNOR
Hearst Feature Service

ALBANY — Will Hans Frenkel go down in history as the man who killed chess?

Not long ago, he was accused of destroying that "noble game."

Frenkel — describing his present condition as "poor as a church mouse" — said the criticism came because he has created a contest "based on a physical model of chess," but quite different in concept from "the world's most regal board contest."

He has just received a copyright on Metapontum One, his new chess creation. He said the game "is the distilled essence of two years of unemployment and the distillation of 25 years of philosophy, both Eastern and Western."

Chess, Frenkel decared, "is the ultimate of war games." Metapontum One, named for a game played in Plato's Republic, is designed "to demand and express collaboration," he said.

"You can play it because you play it all the time — in life," said Frenkel. Each of the 16 figures per side represents one of six classes in society...one regent, one guardian, two ministers, two scientists, two administrators and eight artisans. The board's 64 spaces are hexagonal, like a beehive, to assure that "no one stands in the shadow of another."

If two powers, Frenkel said, have unbridled power to destroy the enemy, they can move in either an orderly or disorderly fashion. As in life, to move forward "they are obliged to face people coming the other way. There is a choice — to destroy or to cooperate. If they are intelligent, they can negotiate to achieve a safe homecoming."

Homecoming, he explained, can be a happy retirement or, "if there is an after-life, it can mean not being thrown into a dungeon with dragons but into Metapontum." The latter, he said, is a place of order, harmony and cooperation. When contestants in his game encounter a foe, they can either step aside to allow the other to pass or block him. "If he is intelligent, he can negotiate," Frenkel said.

The aim of the game is to finish with a minimum number of moves. He has played his game 200 times, with partners ranging from university professors to bright children. With the fullest amount of cooperation achieved between him and his partner, he has finished a game in 10 minutes in 38 moves. "I suspect it is possible to do in 32 moves," he said.

In a perfect game, the creator said, "two winners are possible." Chess, however, demands that players "slaughter one another and that there be one victor."

Michael Wagner, assistant professor of philosophy at the University of San Diego, in a letter to Frenkel, called Metapontum One "an extremely interesting and worthwhile encounter," its obvious strong point being its "fundamentally different approach to gamesmanship." Most games, Wagner wrote, "stress individual, personal victory and the vanquishing of one's opponent. Your game stresses victory through cooperation while retaining a regard for the positive outcome of the other person."

Chicken-for-a-quarter proves good pet

By PHYLLIS RICE
Northwest Arkansas Times

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — This is the story of Jason Cantrell, 9, and his 25-cent garage sale chicken, Scooter. Jason's father, Bob Cantrell of Fayetteville, says, "It isn't much of a story unless you're a humanitarian." Readers can judge for themselves.

The story started last summer in Springdale, near a poultry equipment and supply firm. A Fayetteville family was driving by when one of the children, a girl, spotted a broken egg on the highway.

The family stopped and found Scooter — part inside, part outside the egg, still wet with a beak broken when she fell from what the family surmised was a hatchery truck with a load of eggs.

The family decided there wasn't much hope for Scooter. To soften the blow to their daughter, they suggested she give away the young accident victim.

She gave the chick to a friend in Jason's neighborhood. The friend's family also had little hope for Scooter and encouraged their son to add the creature to the items he had gathered for a garage sale they were conducting.

When the friend told Jason he had a chicken for sale, Jason smelled a bargain. Jason made the deal for 25 cents, paying 15 cents and issuing an IOU for the balance.

Scooter then got her name and a home — a discarded lawn mower box in the garage. Jason fed her birdseed, which she learned to eat from his hand.

As Scooter grew, her beak healed and she got too big for the box. She inherited a dog house outgrown by Toby, the family dog.

Scooter also learned to dig for worms. Jason says her favorite spot is under some garbage cans, which he moves for her occasionally.

Scooter learned early to follow Jason, hoping, no doubt, for stray birdseed. "When it was little," Jason said of Scooter, "it looked like a wad of paper, and my friends used to wonder why a piece of paper was trailing me."

Over the months, Scooter and Toby have become friends. "Scooter follows Toby more than it does me," Jason said.

Jason's mother said that while Jason is at school, she often looks out to see Scooter riding around the yard on Toby's back or crossing the street to play with children.

During a spell of cold weather, the family discovered that Toby could still fit in his doghouse if the occasion demanded it. They found dog and chicken snuggled cozily together inside, sheltered from the elements.

Twins beat the odds

McRAE, Ga. (AP) — Those who enjoy watching people hit the century mark will do a double-take at this duo.

Lucy Brown Coleman and Elizabeth Brown English are 100 years young.

They are identical twins, and the Guinness Book of World Records estimates the odds of a pair of twins living to age 100 are 700 million to 1.

"We've always had good birthdays, but this is the very best we've ever had in our lives," Lucy said Wednesday at the McRae Nursing Home, where the two celebrated. "We've always enjoyed our lives. No matter how things went, we always found something to laugh at."

Her sister said she felt "like we're not worthy of all the publicity. But I sure do enjoy it."

They were born Jan. 13, 1882, in the Georgia countryside. It took two days for the county physician to arrive at their home in his horse and buggy.

POSITIVE THINKING

Enthusiasm is key to positive thinking

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"I'm going to fire that guy," growled an employer. He was talking about a certain employee whom I knew. "The fellow is too slow on the uptake," he said, "too listless and dull." I responded with a thought that did the trick: "Instead of firing him out of your business, why don't you fire him into it?"

"How in the world," he demanded, "can I fire him into the business? You mean build a fire under him?"

"No," I said, "build a fire in him. Get him excited about his job. Give him motivation, some real go-ahead."

It turned out to be sound advice, and my friend now says of the lackluster employee: "The man is a ball of fire."

Well, you may observe, as for me I have just an ordinary job...I don't see anything in it to get worked up about...Now, that is where you need to get going. Just get worked up about your job and you will work your job up. Get fired up about it and you will put fire into it. And it will grow as you grow. Any occupation, any job, has thrill in it if you have some thrill in you.

Recently I talked with a young woman whose job is selling inspirational self-help books by direct mail. She said, "I sure have gotten steamed up. Boy, am I motivated. I discovered what mountain tops can do for you!"

"What do you mean, mountain tops?"

She filled me in. "Here I am in the business of selling books by direct mail. And I believe in these books. They've got something to say and I am eager to see them widely read. My boss sent me to a one-week conference on direct mail selling..."

You wouldn't think that a person would come back from a direct mail sales conference so thoroughly inspired and revitalized as was this girl. But it isn't so strange when you consider the terrific enthusiasm in some business groups. This girl, by attending the conference, had been made aware of the vast possibilities of direct mail selling: how you can do it more effectively, how you can get through to people and really communicate, how you can motivate them, indeed, how you can make the whole selling process creative.

"I came back to the job walking on air," she said. "Look what life can be! Look what I can make out of selling." Her face was aglow. Talk about a fire being built inside someone; she was afire and then some.

"Mountain tops!" she repeated. "You can't live without mountain tops. But the thing is, you can't be on the mountain top all the time either. You've got to come down and do the humdrum things. And down below in the daily outline it is easy to lose sight of the upper level experience. So when I begin to feel negative and dull again, I go back in my mind to the mountain-top motivation that showed me what I can really do."

"You are a smart girl," I said admiringly. "Before you ever thought of that, the Bible said it in one of the most glorious statements ever formulated."

And I quoted: "They that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles..." That is a mountain top. But that is not the end. It comes down a little: "...they shall run, and not be weary..." Even that isn't the end; it comes down a little more: "...they shall walk, and not faint."

Wrong 'bomb' blown up by firemen

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Sgt. David Bailey, a Marine Corps recruiter, caused a big blowup when he left his briefcase at a fire station.

"I had been riding with fire department paramedics until about midnight, and had left my briefcase at the station...Wednesday morning I went by to pick it up and when I got there, they said, 'We just blew it up.'"

Firefighters thought it was a bomb.

Fire Chief James Watts said it all began when a man tried to call in a bomb threat to the Alabama Power Co.

The man dialed the wrong number. He reached the office of Paul Bryant Jr., son of University of Alabama football Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant.

"A man said a bomb had been left at the 'power company' office," Watts said. "Bryant thought he said 'fire company,' so he called us."

Firefighters found the briefcase in the hallway. Quickly, they called police detonation experts. Then, in front of the station, the briefcase was surrounded with sandbags and blasted to smithereens.

Envelopes and papers rained from the air.

But the story didn't end there.

Las Vegas arsonist found guilty of murder

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Philip Cline, a former busboy, was found guilty of murder and arson Friday for starting a fire that killed eight people and injured 200 at the plush Las Vegas Hilton last Feb. 10.

Prosecutors, repeating an earlier statement, said they would seek the death penalty for the 24-year-old defendant when the District Court jury returns for the penalty phase of the trial Wednesday.

THE VERDICT CAME after seven days of deliberation. Cline shifted nervously as he waited for the jury to return and dropped his head when the court clerk read "guilty" on one count of arson and "guilty" on eight counts of first-degree murder.

Ashen-faced, Cline was steadied by defense attorney Kevin Kelly as he left the packed courtroom.

Kelly, tears streaming down his face, returned a few minutes later and said his client had "broken down" after leaving the courtroom. The lawyer declined further comment pending completion of the penalty phase.

Cline had worked at the hotel only two days prior to the fatal blaze.

He was the first to report fire in drapes in an eight-floor elevator lobby. The fire raced from the eighth to the 29th floors, asphyxiating seven people. An eighth person died when he fell or jumped to tennis courts beneath his window.

The hotel, the second largest in the world, sustained $14 million in damage. Only a hotel in Moscow has more rooms.

THE BLAZE CAME THREE months after a fire at the MGM Grand Hotel which left 84 dead and 700 injured.

Clark County fire officials blamed a series of arson fires in late December and early this month on a "copy-cat syndrome." They said the fires were similar to the Hilton blaze, with many being set in drapes in elevator lobbies. All of the fires were minor and no injuries were reported.

Cline was questioned the night of the Hilton fire and again the following day, then charged in the blaze. According to a videotape played to the jury, he told officers set the fire accidentally with a marijuana cigarette while engaged in a homosexual act with a man he identified only as Joe.

Prosecutors called 40 witnesses, including fire investigators who said the fire could not have been set with a cigarette. In closing arguments, Assistant District Attorney Mel Harmon contended Cline smeared Sterno, a liquid accelerant, on the drapes, then ignited them.

Harmon alleged Cline set the blaze so he could warn guests and appear to be a hero.

THE DEFENSE SURPRISED the court by calling only one witness, then resting its case. Defense attorney John Havey charged in closing arguments that his client was a "scapegoat," and blasted fire protection at the hotel.

The jury of nine women and three men, selected two months ago, began deliberations Jan. 8, breaking only on Sunday to watch the National Football League playoffs.

Prosecutors had said prior to the trial that they would seek the death penalty if they obtained a conviction.

AT&T procedural dispute resolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — A procedural dispute that temporarily sidetracked the landmark antitrust settlement with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. was resolved Friday when a New Jersey judge agreed to relinquish jurisdiction over the case.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Vincent P. Biunno in Newark has the effect of placing the proposed settlement squarely before U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene, who has been overseeing the government's antitrust suit against AT&T for the past three years.

Attorneys with the Justice Department and AT&T agreed the transfer of jurisdiction also means Greene is free to solicit public comment on the proposed settlement — as he has said he would do — and ultimately, to decide whether the agreement should be approved.

AT&T SPOKESMAN PIC Wagner said Greene was immediately informed of Biunno's decision. It will now be up to Greene to establish the procedures and timetable that he intends to follow in reviewing the historic agreement, which calls on AT&T to divest itself of its local telephone operations.

That means the giant company will have to give up its 22 wholly-owned Bell System operating companies, worth an estimated $80 billion, but can retain ownership of its long-distance operations, the Western Electric Co., and the Bell Laboratories. In exchange, the Justice Department is dropping its 1974 antitrust suit against the firm as well as a 1956 consent decree that has kept AT&T from entering unregulated markets like data processing.

It was that 1956 consent decree that caused this week's procedural headaches because it was under Biunno's jurisdiction. AT&T and government attorneys asked Biunno last Monday to consolidate the new settlement with the old decree and transfer the entire matter to Greene.

In a surprise move, however, Biunno simply dismissed the 1956 decree and approved the new settlement without soliciting public comment on its ramifications. That left Greene in the awkward position of being asked to dismiss the government suit without ever reviewing the proposed settlement.

During a hearing Tuesday, Greene criticized AT&T and government attorneys for not filing the agreement with him in the first place, suggesting that "intentionally or not," they had made it possible to circumvent a federal law that he thought mandated a public comment period.

Some of AT&T's competitors also suggested that by filing the new settlement as a "modification" of the old decree in Newark, AT&T and the Justice Department were making it more difficult to use the settlement as evidence of liability in private antitrust suits.

While procedural in nature, the dispute could have seriously complicated the settlement. If Biunno had not acted, AT&T would have found two different courts asserting jurisdiction over the matter. In addition, Biunno's ruling technically started the 6-month timetable for AT&T to develop its plan for spinning off the Bell System companies.

Elections to resolve bingo, housing issues

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — In Austin, the only issue on Saturday's ballot is "sexual orientation" — whether landlords should have the right to refuse to rent to homosexuals.

In 19 counties, 13 cities and four justice of the peace precincts the issue is gambling — whether bingo for charity should be legalized.

The bingo elections come on the first day allowed by law for the local option decision. The 1981 Legislature allowed local residents to decide if they want to allow bingo games to raise money for charity.

Ten percent of the residents who voted in the last gubernatorial election must sign a petition before a bingo election is held.

The largest counties holding bingo elections are Webb and Nueces, according to John Moore, director of tax information for the Comptroller's Office. Marfa, Mercedes, Gregory and Burkburnett are among the largest cities.

The Austin election has sparked heated debate in the capital city about property rights, personal rights and the political power of homosexuals.

On the ballot is a proposed amendment to the city's Fair Housing Ordinance. Austinites will vote on a negatively worded proposal that says it would "not be unlawful" to discriminate against a potential renter because of his or her "sexual orientation."

City Councilman Roger Duncan said the ordinance could cause a "tremendous disruption" in the city.

"It legalizes discrimination. I wouldn't be surprised if the minority community, racial minorities, would get very nervous over the passage of a law like this," said Duncan.

Robb Southerland, chairman of the Citizens for a United Austin, which is fighting the anti-homosexual ordinance, said, "If this one isn't unconstitutional, then we need to burn the Constitution."

But Dr. Steven Hotze, leader of the Austin Citizens for Decency, said the election is a referendum on homosexuals — whether Austin wants to "signal to those who practice sodomy across the nation that Austin approves of it."

Finland to hold first presidential election in 25 years

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Finland's presidential elections Sunday and Monday will be a contest for the first time in a quarter-century.

Eight candidates led by the acting president, Premier Mauno Koivisto, are running to replace 81-year-old President Urho Kekkonen, who, because of hardening of the arteries, resigned in October after 25 years in office.

All pre-election public opinion polls have shown that about 50 percent of Finland's 3.9 million eligible voters believe the next president will be Koivisto. A victory would make him the country's first Social Democrat president.

But although the premier is favored, he has said that the eventual winner won't necessarily be the most popular candidate but might be the least objectionable.

The ultimate decision rests with the 301-member electoral college, chosen in the popular vote. The college will elect the next president Jan. 26.

THE SOCIAL Democrats are expected to ride the 58-year-old Koivisto's popularity to their greatest election gains ever.

It would have to be an absolute majority for certain victory, however, and political observers agree that's almost impossible.

One late opinion poll showed that 56 percent of the voters hoped Koivisto would become Finland's president but that only 37 percent would vote for a Social Democrat elector to the electoral college.

Electors are chosen by party and are committed to vote along party lines on the electoral college's first ballot. It took Kekkonen three ballots to win the presidency 25 years ago, when the college had 300 members, and he won it by the barest margin possible, 151-149.

BECAUSE the college is required constitutionally to elect a president in one sitting, the possibility exists that a deadlocked assembly would turn away from Koivisto, especially if he failed to win on the first two ballots.

Under the constitution, the president's most important task is to run Finland's foreign policy. An overwhelming majority of Finns — more than 80 percent in a recent poll — agree that Kekkonen excelled in the job.

He concentrated especially on maintaining good relations with the neighboring Soviet Union, and during his tenure Moscow became Finland's biggest trading partner. All eight candidates have vowed to carry on the same policy, which became known abroad as "Finlandization."

BUT AS Soviet relations have been exclusively in Kekkonen's hands for a quarter-century, none of the candidates could campaign on their relations with the Kremlin.

Significantly, Moscow has not openly given its blessing to any of them, and Kekkonen refused to pick a successor to carry on his work. His resignation touched off a jockeying for power among the country's political elite.

Without foreign policy as an issue in this important buffer state, the brief election campaign has centered on the candidates' personalities.

Koivisto's low-profile campaigning stressed his popularity, nurturing the image of a true, self-made Finn. It was directed toward obtaining switchover voters from parties to the right, using American-style buttons and stickers instead of the usual socialist red flags.

At the same time, he followed the advice of his his campaign planners by keeping undefined exactly what sort of a socialist he really is.

Potentially lethal cylinder disappears from truck

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A cylinder containing radioactive material that could kill anyone who touched it within an hour disappeared from a truck Friday in northwestern Pennsylvania, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission reported.

"Anybody finding it should call police," warned Karl Abraham, a spokesman for the NRC in King of Prussia, Pa.

Abraham said the 10-inch-long, blue steel cylinder, part of a device used to take X-rays of pipelines, had a 24-foot cable attached to it. It apparently fell from the back of the truck.

At the end of the cable, locked inside the cylinder, is a dangerous radioactive isotope, iridium 192, which can be fatal within an hour. Abraham said it was believed the key was left in the lock.

"As long as no attempt is made to pull on the cable and unlock and extract the pellet at the end of cable, radioactive exposure is minimal if touched," Abraham said.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Man active in pregnancy may make better father

Dear Dr. Solomon: My husband is involved almost as much as I am with my first pregnancy. I appreciate his interest and attention, but I wonder whether it's a good idea. — Mrs. M.O'M, Boston

Dear Mrs. O'M.: You don't give any specifics about your husband's involvement, but in general I would say to count your blessings. There is evidence that the husband who is actively involved during his wife's pregnancy is more likely to be a better father than the husband who remains aloof. Many prospective fathers attend childbirth education classes, and some even raise more questions than their wives.

There may also be a more direct benefit to women whose husbands are involved during their pregnancies. A study has shown that the husband's presence during the period of labor tends to shorten its duration.

As I said, count your blessings.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I'm being treated for chronic pancreatitis, and my doctor has told me to stop using alcohol. I'm not an alcoholic or even a heavy drinker, but I like a drink when I come home from work, and we usually have wine with our meals. Do you see any reason why I should have to give up drinking in moderation? - Paul, Kansas City, Mo.

Dear Paul: I can think of one very good reason — if you don't stop drinking, you probably won't be helped by any sort of treatment.

A French physician, Dr. Claude Beraud, suggests that it is not so much the amount of alcohol consumed that interferes with the treatment of patients with chronic pancreatitis, but the regularity of alcohol consumption. If you want to be helped, stop drinking; in your case, apparently, there is no such thing as moderation.

Dear Dr. Solomon: My father was given oral insulin for his diabetes. Is this as good as the insulin that is taken by injection? — Tom, Elizabeth, N.J.

Dear Tom: The oral drugs prescribed for diabetics are not insulin; instead they are designed to stimulate the pancreas to increase its production of insulin.

Insulin dependent diabetics cannot rely on oral drugs since their pancreas does not proudce any insulin.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I recently read your response to a man's question regarding prostate "cancer" and sexual funetion. You answered his question informatively and helpfully. I would like your readers to know about an improved Inflatable Hydraulic Penile Prosthesis that approaches the normal physiology of the erection and is available if prostate surgery of any kind causes impotency. The technology and surgical technique has constantly improved since 1972 when the prosthesis was first implanted. It would be helpful if you field such future questions in your excellent column. Nocturnal Penile Tumescence studies aid diagnosis in this area as well. — Peter A. Olsson, M.D., Houston, Texas

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, January 17, 1982

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor James Earl Jones, hard-hitting boxer Joe Frazier and rock musician Mick Taylor celebrate birthdays today. Family ties become stronger than ever this year. Money and a comfortable lifestyle are important to you and improved economic conditions will enable you to make considerable financial gains. Look for an improvement in the business climate. Humanitarian projects profit from your involvement. Be careful not to spread yourself too thin. You are very serious when it comes to romance, and if single, you could find yourself walking to the altar. Recognize that shared values are just as important as physical attraction!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You welcome spending some time alone today but also enjoy going out with loved ones later in the afternoon. Do not get involved in anything even vaguely speculative.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): All your hard work could bear fruit for you and your loved ones today. Domestic problems seem to disappear. You may be surprised by a sudden visit from an old friend.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could find yourself entertaining someone who can advance your career or solve a money problem. Let others express their views before voicing your own opinions.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Domestic affairs are in the spotlight. Pay attention to older person's needs. Reappraise your long-term goals. Do a good deed for someone who is confined to hospital or home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Beware of friends who sap your energies. Do not lend money unless you get a written guarantee of repayment. You may hear some news that is exaggerated or incomplete. Word letters carefully.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept 22): A conservative approach will help you smooth over a difficult situation. Take the initiative and apologize if you have somehow slighted a member of the opposite sex. He/she will forgive you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Delve beneath the surface. Someone may be trying to hide something from you. Influential person will be helpful if you have problems at home. Romance may be expensive now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Speak your mind and clear the air if a domestic spat is simmering. Social invitations can lead to an opportunity to meet important people. Do not lend money to friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Tend to personal errands early in the day. Your efforts to restore domestic harmony will be rewarded. Pursue romance. Have a good time at parties but avoid eating or drinking too much.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Indulge your desire to be with that special person. Travel may be involved. Be more patient with small child or elderly relative. Begin a special self-improvement program.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A church sermon will start you thinking in a constructive direction. You begin to attract a whole new circle of friends. Family members will applaud your choice of romantic partner.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Issue a last-minute invitation to someone you may have neglected. Family responsibilities grow but so does your sense of fulfillment. Form new friendships.

Spice company tour : Trip back to old England

By MARTIN STEINBERG
Associated Press Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Spice magnate C.P. McCormick was so attracted to the 16th century that a bit of Elizabethan England remains at his factory for visitors to sample.

All the visitor has to do is follow the exotic aromas to the McCormick & Co. spice factory, which has occupied the saffron-colored nine-story building on Light Street since 1921.

Only about 30,000 people visited the plant last year, compared with the 18 million who ambled through neighboring Harborplace — the Rouse Co.'s abbreviated version of a suburban shopping mall in the heart of the city's thriving Inner Harbor.

But 30,000 was the limit as hundreds more were turned away, according to Carolyn Manning, who runs the tours. Two tours are conducted on weekdays, but a third is being considered for next summer — the height of the tourist season, Ms. Manning says.

The free tour includes a half-hour movie called "The Wonderful World of Flavor," and a guided stroll down a corridor lined with facades modeled on Shakespearean England. The highlight is a free cup of tea or coffee and cookies at Ye Old McCormick Tea House.

The movie substitutes for a walking tour of the plant, which ended in 1964 because of safety regulations. The movie illustrates how the products are packaged and marketed, but instead of the grinding roar of churning machines, the soundtrack is voice narration over the delicate strokes of a harpsichord.

The narrator tells visitors some trivia about spices — vanilla beans come from an orchid-like flower; cinnamon comes from the bark of a tree; when the Visigoths conquered Rome they demanded 3,000 pounds of pepper for ransom. "The possession of spices," says the narrator, "represented power and wealth" and was an important impetus for the great explorations of the 15th and 16th centuries.

Next on the tour is the tea house, located in the middle of the Elizabethan corridor on the seventh floor.

"The 16th century was (late company President) C.P. McCormick's favorite period of history," says tour guide Dorothy Hutchins, explaining to a group of 25 visitors the reason for the architectural design.

The tea house is located in "Friendship Court." Designed by Edwin Tunis, the court contains replicas of Shakespeare's grammar school and the house of his wife — Ann Hathaway — before they were married.

At the end of the hall are Early Renaissance and Tudor structures. Behind the oak, brick and plaster facades are the executive offices of the company's grocery products division and C.P.'s office, which is now a board room.

Termites eating away 12th century cathedral in Sicily

By SAMUEL KOO
Associated Press Writer

MONREALE, Sicily (AP) — Scientists are battling termites which have eaten away almost the entire ceiling of the magnificent 12th-century Norman cathedral of Monreale.

But their task is complicated because they cannot use insecticides for fear of discoloring frescoes in the church, considered an architectural wonder of the Middle Ages.

And there are signs that termites are also attacking other historical treasures in Sicily, including Palermo's Palatine Chapel, known for its rich Arab-Norman decoration and honeycomb-like wooden ceiling, and the cathedral in Cefalu east of Palermo.

"There's no scientific explanation why the whole roof didn't collapse years ago," said Professor Giovanni Lotta, an insect specialist at the University of Palermo who is directing the restoration work at Monreale.

He said only hollow and rotten wooden beams were supporting tons of brick tiles on the roof when the damage was discovered in 1977.

Lotta said termites fear light and as a result, there was no damage in any exposed wood. "Nobody suspected a termite attack until parts of the roof over the main apse sank about 8 inches, because the insects ate only the interior, just like leaving cans after emptying their content," Lotta said.

Openings were made in various places to bring in light and reduce the humidity to a level that would prevent them from breeding.

"The job would have been relatively easy if we used insecticides — chemical solvents or sprays — but to do so would have discolored the frescoes and damaged other works of art," Lotta said in an interview.

The cathedral's inside and outside walls are limestone and marble. The termites traveled to the wooden ceiling, restored after a fire in 1811, feeding on barley and wheat straws used to mix the plaster to attach the mosaics, Lotta said.

"By conventional wisdom, all the mosaics should have disintegrated into pieces," he said.

The cathedral, located just outside of Palermo, is famous for its vast 12th century mosaics representing the complete cycle of the Old and New Testaments and a gigantic Christ conferring his blessing.

Soon after the damage was discovered, new support beams were inserted and transparent nylon safety nets were hung below the ceiling. But the anti-termite operation and restoration did not begin until late 1979 when Lotta finished the study on the termites.

All the beams and panels over the side naves also have been replaced, and a network of ventilation ducts has been installed.

Hopalong may ride again — after infringment suit

By JAY ARNOLD
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Veteran cowboy Hopalong Cassidy may ride his white horse across American television screens for the first time in five years with the completion of a copyright infringement suit, an attorney says.

"We're hoping for a big resurgence of Hopalong Cassidy films," attorney Don Engel said.

Engel said titles such as "Hopalong Cassidy Returns," "Trail Dust," "Hills of Old Wyoming," "North of the Rio Grande," "Rustlers Valley" and "Eagles Brood" have been tied up in litigation since about 1976 as a New York TV distributor battled with the estates of actor William Boyd and author Clarence Mulford.

U.S. District Judge Consuelo B. Marshall was to preside at a non-jury trial to assess damages in an infringement suit won by the estates against Film Video Releasing, which purchased 23 of the cowboy movies from a third party after the 1930s-era films went into public domain.

Storer Broadcasting and its San Diego television station, KCST, are among six companies and individuals ordered to pay damages in the infringement ruling issued January 1981 in the Southern Federal District Court in New York and upheld by the 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals.

L. Rob Werner, representing defendant TV National Releasing, said his client purchased the Westerns after they had gone into the public domain and assumed the purchase also included TV rights. But the New York courts said TV rights should have been obtained separately.

Engel said before his death in 1972, Boyd had purchased TV rights from Republic Pictures, original producers of the films.

"What we're going to have to convince the court is how much business we lost," said Engel, noting the estates claim a loss surpassing $300,000 since Film Video and others began illegal sales of 23 1930s-vintage Hopalong Westerns to U.S. TV stations in the 1970s.

Engel said Judge Marshall could decide the estates are entitled to the greater of Film Video's profits during a five-year period, the estates' provable losses or statutory damages of from $250 to $5,000 per infringement. Engel claims more than 600 infringements.

He said he would seek more than $5,000 per infringement because "they were knowingly infringing" after William Boyd Enterprises warned Film Video and Storer of infringement in 1973 and 1975.

Doctors fear prescribing pain killers will cause addiction

BOSTON (AP) — Even though narcotics will relieve most pain, doctors are often stingy with the medicine because of an erroneous fear that patients will become hooked on drugs, a physician says.

As a result, she says, patients suffer needless pain when relief is available and harmless.

Dr. Marcia Angell outlined the case for pain killers in the New England Journal of Medicine, where she is deputy editor.

"The treatment of severe pain in hospitalized patients is regularly and systematically inadequate," she wrote.

Ms. Angell said doctors are burdened by "a disproportionate, sometimes irrational fear" that patients will become addicted.

She said studies show that less than one-tenth of one percent of all patients who take narcotics for pain relief become addicts. Breathing suppression, another potentially dangerous side effect, also is very rare.

"I can't think of any other area in medicine in which such an extravagant concern for side effects so drastically limits treatment," she wrote.

She said doctors routinely prescribe too little pain killer. They limit the frequency of the shots, and even then, patients must ask nurses for the medicine.

"Patients may be inhibited by a desire to please the medical staff and not be a nuisance," she wrote. "Those who do decide to ask for pain relief must keep track of both the time and the drug schedule and have the strength and endurance to summon a nurse if one is not nearby."

FAITHFUL FRIEND

A true friend is one of life's richest treasures. Sooner or later, we discover who our real friends are . . . and we cherish them.

Many years ago an old shepherd died. His dog was at the train depot when the man's casket was placed aboard the train. For years after the dog lived at the depot . . . he met every train, watching each passenger, always disappointed in not finding his master. Everyone loved the dog and after he died a monument to him was built on a hill above the depot.

We all need to know that we have the kind of friend who really cares about us. The man who walked the dusty roads of Galilee 2,000 years ago wants to be your lifelong friend. Nothing can separate you from His endless love and concern.

Rediscover the warmth of a friendship that never fails. Worship this week.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Speers perform at Assembly of God

The Speers will perform at the First Assembly of God Church, 100 W. Wadley Ave., at 6 p.m. Sunday. The doors open at 5:30 p.m.

Last year marked The Speers' 60th anniversary as an organized gospel singing group. Mary Tom Speer Reid and Rosa Nell Speer Powell, the Speer sisters, came out of retirement last year to join The Speers for some of the concerts. Both had left the group about 30 years ago to raise their families.

The other two original members are Brock Speer and Ben Speer. All four are the children of Lena and Tom Speer, who started the group when their children were quite young.

The public is invited to attend.

Tom Roberts of Midland served as guest conductor for the Atlanta, Ga., Christmas Handbell Festival this past holiday season.

Roberts is minister of music at Midland's First Presbyterian Church. The Atlanta Festival involved handbell choirs from Georgia, Florida, Alabama and South Carolina.

Quaker group asserts Reagan pushing military

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The American Friends Service Committee says the plan to train 1,500 Salvadoran troops at U.S. military bases shows the Reagan administration spurns a negotiated settlement in El Salvador in favor of a military solution.

"This training plan is especially alarming in light of recent reports of massacres by Salvadoran military and paramilitarry units," says Jack Malinowski, the Quaker organization's human rights coordinator.

Graham talks cuts

URBANA, Ill. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says that if every church in America would help 10 poor families, the gaps caused by federal budget cuts could be filled.

He told a news conference at a convention of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship that the cuts will hurt some innocent people.

The Rev. Billy Graham, left, listens as his son, William Franklin Graham Jr., answers questions following his ordination in Tempe, Ariz. Both denied that the 29-year-old son of the well-known evangelist is being groomed to take over his father's place.

Publications hit hard by regulation

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An abrupt financial jolt has hit religious publications, threatening to stifle religious communications in this country.

During end-of-the-year budget juggling this week by Congress, pressured by the White House for more cuts, a postal subsidy for most non-profit publications was wiped out.

"It's really a terrible blow," says James A. Doyle, executive director of the Catholic Press Association and head of a task force of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish publishers seeking to combat the problem.

●
RELIGION
●

"It will mute and in some cases silence the voice of the religious press. Certainly that voice will be a lot weaker."

The subsidy previously was being phased out over a 16-year period ending in 1987, giving publications time to adjust rates and operations to the added costs. But the revised congressional action abolished it immediately.

Doyle estimated the postal costs increases, effective Jan. 10, at 50 percent to 200 percent, depending on weight, volume and other factors.

"It's the worst thing that ever happened to the religious press," says the Rev. Everett Parker, communications director of the United Church of Christ. "Many, many religious publications will simply go down the drain, knocked out of existence."

"We don't know what we are going to do," says Robert J. Hastings, editor of the Illinois Baptist, one of 34 state Baptist weekly newspapers. Without added funding, he says, the paper will have to reduce its frequency.

In 1971, with the U.S. Post Office shifting to a cost-basis operation, mail rates of non-profit publications were to be gradually raised in yearly steps to the full designated level by 1987.

Congress last year initially passed a budget continuing the gradual process but President Reagan vetoed it, forcing more slashes in a stopgap funding bill.

Abruptly terminated was the shrinking subsidy for non-profit publications, except for a shaved-down, shortened extension for local "in county" mailings — but even those rates are up an estimated 50 percent. For wider circulation publications, the increases are estimated at up to 200 percent.

The extra load fell hard on national religious publications such as the Christian Century, America, Christianity Today, the National Catholic Reporter, the National Methodist Reporter, Our Sunday Visitor, U.S. Catholic, St. Anthony Messenger, the Lutheran, A. D., Presbyterian Survey, the Christian Herald, the Episcopalian, Commonweal and hundreds of regional publications.

Churches continue sending aid to Poland

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the U.S. administration has suspended aid to Poland and imposed other sanctions, American churches are stepping up their help to the people of that shortage-beset country.

The accelerated shipments came as church relief officers obtained on-the-spot confirmation that the supplies are getting through to the needy in the populace, despite martial law conditions.

"The churches have an absolutely free hand in distribution," said Stanley Mitton, coordinator for emergency response of Church World Service, on his return last week from Poland to check the situation.

"The deliveries are being made."

As a result of his findings, the agency of the National Council of Churches, including most major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox denominations, resumed its temporarily halted aid, and planned to quadruple it.

A $400,000 cargo of overcoats, children's clothing, shoes and heavy blankets — three semi-trailer truckloads — was to leave by ship this Saturday, and the agency issued a $1 million appeal for providing added supplies between now and March.

Catholic Relief Services and Lutheran World Relief also boosted their shipping schedules. "The plans for stepping up shipments were already made before martial law came in Poland, and are now being carried out," said CRS information officer Beth Griffin.

She said the agency now is shipping cargoes by freighter at about 10-day intervals, including a shipment last week of about $1 million worth of flour, rice and other foodstuffs provided by the U.S. Commodity Credit Corp.

It supplied the food from an allocation of about $60 million worth of it authorized for voluntary relief agencies before martial law was imposed, and thus not blocked by the government's ensuing sanctions.

Even before such stocks became available, the Catholic agency since last July had sent about $12 million worth of meat, milk, cereal, flour, butter, cheese and baby food to Poland, either purchased or donated by U.S. food companies.

An agency representative in Poland has sent word that distribution by the churches continued unimpeded. "Every bit of it is getting to those who need it most," says Bishop Edwin B. Broderick, the agency's executive director.

Pro-creationist talks of beliefs

By JOSEPH FARAH
Hearst Feature Service

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dean Kenyon, 41, a San Francisco State University biology professor, believes there are no errors in the bible. for 13 years he has taught a course on the origins of man. Four years ago, he shifted from teaching the theory of evolution to the theory of creationism He was interviewed by Joseph Farah.

Question: Besides the fact that the Bible describes a sudden, supernatural creation of the universe, are there any scientific reasons to believe the creationist theory?

Kenyon: Yes, I think there is quite a bit of scientific evidence. For instance, the laws of thermodynamics describe the natural tendency of matter to go to a less organized state rather than a more organized one.

Evolutionists say that matter overcame this tendency, and I don't think that's good science.

Q: But don't you agree there is an overwhelming amount of evidence that supports the evolution theory?

A: There is a great deal of evidence that seems to lend support to the idea of some sort of natural development. It's been my experience, though, that this does not compel one to believe in the evolution theory.

Q: What about the fossils and the bones of human-like creatures appearing to be up to 3.5 million-years-old that have been found?

A: Well, there are two things about those data that are interesting to point out.

Number one, it is questionable that the ages of these things are correct. I happen to be more persuaded by the fact that the scientific measures of age are different from the radioactive ones. Consistently, the scientific measures give a picture of a much younger universe.

Secondly, I think the fossil data themselves provide one of the strongest indications available of special creation. As more and more paleontologists are admitting, the record is full of important gaps. The record does not document transitions between one kind of organism and another.

Q: When was the universe created?

A: In my view, somewhere between 10,000 and 20,000 years ago.

Q: And what about earth and man?

A: I would say roughly the same thing.

Q: Is there any physical evidence to support that theory?

A: Yes, there are quite a number of different methods that can be used to give an accurate reading of ages — much more so than the "billions of years" that have been used.

One of them that I find interesting has to do with the earth's magnetic field and the fact that it is decreasing at a rather rapid pace. It could not have been doing that for much more than about 10,000 years, because if you go back beyond that point — extrapolating at the current rate — the field would have been so strong that the earth's sides could not have sustained the force.

The evolutionists talk about the reversal of the magnetic field and how it changes every so often, but there is little evidence to support a theory of magnetic field reversal.

Q: If man has been on the earth almost since its creation, were dinosaurs actually contemporaries of man?

A: I take the view that dinosaurs and man very likely were contemporaries for a period of time.

The Newspaper BIBLE

LOVE...THE HIGHEST LAW

If you love your neighbor as much as you love yourself you will not want to harm or cheat him, or kill him, or steal from him. And you won't sin with his wife or want what is his, or do anything else the Ten Commandments say is wrong. All then are wrapped up in this one, to love your neighbor as you love yourself. Love does no wrong to anyone. That's why it fully satisfies all of God's requirements. It is the only law you need.

Another reason for right living is this: you know how late it is, time is running out. Wake up, for the coming of the Lord is nearer now than when we first believed.

The night is far gone, the day of His return will soon be here. So quit the evil deeds of darkness and put on the armor of right living, as we who live in the daylight should! Be decent and true in everything you do so that all can approve your behavior. Don't spend your time in wild parties and getting drunk or in adultery and lust, or fighting, or jealousy.

But ask the Lord Jesus Christ to help you live as you should, and don't make plans to enjoy evil.

Birthright volunteers will sell roses

Birthright volunteers will be selling fresh red roses to parishoners of St. Ann's Catholic Church, Our Lady of Guadalupe and La Capilla de San Juan Sunday following all masses.

The roses, traditional symbol of life and especially unborn life, are being used by the organization to publicize the civil right to life with proceeds from the sale going to help expectant mothers who apply to Birthright for help. Besides counseling, Birthright also provides free pregnancy tests, baby clothing and baby furniture for those who request these services.

Anti-Semitic incidents increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Anti-Semitic incidents in the United States more than doubled last year, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith reports, although several states toughened laws against religious or racial vandalism.

The report listed 974 cases of anti-Jewish vandalism in 31 states and the District of Columbia in 1981, compared with 377 such episodes in 1980. In addition, bodily assaults and mail or telephone threats against Jews as Jews more than tripled to 350 cases, up from 112.

New laws imposing stiffer penalties on religious or racial vandals were enacted in 1981 by eight states, including the three states with the most such "bias crimes" — New York, California and New Jersey.

Committee urges help

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special Roman Catholic committee on the handicapped has urged church officials at every level "to provide jobs under their control to qualified handicapped people and to become firm advocates for handicapped people with other employers in the private and public sectors."

HELL, YOU SAY?

Some people don't believe in hell. Not too many years ago many people did not believe the world was round. But that did not change anything. And just saying that hell doesn't exist is not going to make it go away. It is much wiser to make preparation to avoid it!

LEGAL NOTICES

No. DR-12,431
IN THE INTEREST OF
BUN SOK KEAR, also known as SOK KEAR BUN,
A CHILD
IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF
MIDLAND COUNTY, TEXAS
318TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
CITATION BY PUBLICATION
STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MIDLAND

TO: BOUN NA RETT, also known as CHUM KEMARAK, Respondent in the cause herein described.

You are hereby commanded to appear and answer before the 318th Judicial District Court at the Midland County Courthouse, Midland, Midland County, Texas, at or before 10:00 a.m., on the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of issuance hereof, being at or before 10:00 a.m., on Monday, the first day of March, 1982, then and there to answer the Petition of KHIM HEANG DUL (SUY) in Cause No. DR-12,431, styled "In the Interest of Bun Sok Kear, also known as SOK KEAR BUN, a child," in which KHIM HEANG DUL (SUY) is Petitioner and BOUN NA RETT, also known as CHUM KEMARAK, is Respondent. The said Petition, filed July 23, 1981, discloses that the nature of the said suit is as follows:

In the Interest of BUN SOK KEAR, also known as SOK KEAR BUN, a child, No. DR-12,431, in the District Court of Midland County, Texas, 318th Judicial District, being an Original Petition to terminate the parent-child relationship between BUN SOK KEAR, also known as SOK KEAR BUN, a child, and BOUN NA RETT, also know as CHUM KEMARAK.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

ISSUED AND GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND SEAL OF SAID COURT, on this the 12th day of January, 1982, at Midland, Midland County, Texas.

MADGE B. WALLIS, District Clerk of Midland County, Texas
By: Jimmie C. Madry, Deputy

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
THE STATE OF TEXAS:
TO: Elmer Leroy Erlich and Richard Dale Jones, Respondents,
GREETINGS:

YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable District Court, 318th Judicial District, Midland County, Texas, at the Courthouse of said County in Midland, Texas, at or before 10:00 o'clock A.M. of the Monday next after the expiration of twenty (20) days from the date of service of this citation, same being Monday, February 8, 1982, then and there to answer the Petition and Motion to Transfer of Brenda Bates and husband, Clifton E. Bates, Petitioners, filed in said court on the 29th day of December, 1981 against Mary Jaquelynn Wallis Erlich, Elmer Leroy Erlich and Richard Dale Jones, Respondents, and said suit being No. 9491 on the docket of said court, and entitled "In The Interest of Donna Estella Erlich and Kimberly Ann Jones." the nature of which suit is a request to transfer said cause to the 106th Judicial District Court of Dawson County, Texas and to terminate the parent-child relationship between the Respondents and said named children, and for adoption of the children by Petitioners.

The Court has authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child's interest which will be binding upon you, including the transfer of this cause to the 106th Judicial District Court of Dawson County, Texas, termination of the parent-child relationship, the determination of paternity and the appointment of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.

If this citation is not served within thirty (30) days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

Issued and given under my hand and seal of said Court at Midland, Midland County, Texas, this the 14th day of January A.D. 1982.

Madge B. Wallis, Clerk of the District Court of Midland County, Texas.

Tom Kite eagles way into first

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite, picking up where he left off in 1981, scored an eagle-2 on the way to a 6-under-par 66 that propelled him to the third round lead Friday in the 5-day, 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic.

Kite, who topped the 1981 money-winning list and led the tour in stroke average, vaulted into the lead with a 200 total for 54 holes, 16 shots under par after one round over each of three desert courses.

"Needless to say, I'm playing well," Kite, who plays out of Midland, Texas' Green Tree CC, said. "I'm certainly hitting my irons well, probably as well as I ever have. Anytime I get it in the fairway I feel like I've got a good chance at birdie."

KITE, WHO finished the 1981 season with 18 consecutive tournaments in which he finished eighth or better, played in bright, warm desert sunshine at La Quinta Friday. He now has two rounds at Indian Wells, probably the easiest of the four courses used in this unique event, the longest tournament on the American tour.

"The birdie opportunities are there at Indian Wells," he said. "But there's no guarantee. You can shoot some high numbers, too. But I'm playing well and I'm very optimistic about my chances."

The unusual format calls for the 128 pros to play one round on each of four courses, each day with a different amateur team. After 72 holes, the amateurs drop out and the field is cut for the pros-only final round at Indian Wells Sunday.

ED FIORI, with a 66 at Bermuda Dunes, took over the No.2 spot at 201, 15 under par.

Rangers romp over Red Devils

Greenwood opened its district basketball season on a high note Friday by manhandling Rankin 69-48 while the Lady Rangers rolled over the Red Devils 90-20.

Homer Lopez and Larry Dickerson each tossed in 21 points to pace the Rangers to their 17th win of the season against two loses.

Stuart Burleson chipped in 14 points for the Rangers. Rankin was led by Dennis Black's 21 points. Joining Black in double digits was Bo Rose with 11 points and Terry Turner with 10.

In the girls game, the Lady Rangers blasted to a 22-2 lead in the first eight minutes and never looked back as they romped to their 20th win in 23 outings.

Nancy Ortiz led the Greenwood scoring parade with 24 points while Melissa Mobley burned the cords for 23 points and Belinda Duke gunned in 14.

In the junior varsity tilts, Greenwood s boys shaded the Red Devils, 47-46, while the Lady Rangers waltzed over Rankin, 73-12.

Greenwood's next game will be Tuesday when the boys and girls Grandfalls-Royalty on the road.

Bo Schembechler
...to remain at Michigan

Bo says no to $2.25 million

By HARRY ATKINS

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan football Coach Bo Schembechler Friday turned down a 10-year, $2.25-million offer to become the new athletic director and football coach at Texas A&M.

Schembechler said his loyalty to Michigan, forged in 13 years at the school, finally made him decide to remain as Wolverines' coach.

"I'm very happy. I love it here," he said. "I'd have had a tough time telling my players I was running out on them. Michigan has some fantastic people. We'll have some problems down the road, but we'll be all right."

Schembechler, 52, the dean of Big 10 coaches, has compiled a 123-24-3 record at Michigan. He was named college Coach of the Year in 1969 and Big 10 Coach of the Year in 1972 and 1980.

"I do feel I have 10 more real productive years and I have a lot I want to accomplish," he said.

A&M Board of Regents Chairman H.R. "Bum" Bright said Thursday Schembechler had been offered the job to replace Marvin Tate, who resigned in September. Schembechler confirmed he also had been offered the coaching position, although current A&M Coach Tom Wilson recently had his contract extended for another season.

The Houston Post reported Friday that Wilson would be fired and his contract paid off. Wilson said, however, he would not resign to allow Schembechler to take a duel position.

"It's obvious they're trying to bring in a new head coach," Wilson told the newspaper Friday after he met with A&M President Frank Vandiver. "Obviously Bum Bright doesn't want me to stay."

Schembechler indicated Michigan Athletic Director Don Canham offered him a substantial raise, but he didn't elaborate. Schembechler earned $60,030 in 1981 as football coach, but was believed to have made more than $100,000 overall for the year from related fringe benefits, such as a weekly television show.

"I'm not in too bad of shape, so don't anybody worry about me not being rich," said Schembechler. He said he had been "flabergasted" by A&M's offer. "It was more than a normal job offer."

Schembechler said he was first approached by an intermediary during the season who asked him if he would be interested in taking an athletic director's job at a major, but unspecified university. The Michigan coach at first said he was not interested and just wanted to finish out his coaching career.

But, when the Wolverines traveled to Houston to meet UCLA in the Bluebonnet Bowl on New Year's Eve, he discovered the job was at A&M.

A&M regents and alumni have been frustrated by a football program that has produced one Cotton Bowl team in the past 40 years and only three Southwest Conference champions, the latest a tri-champion in 1975 that did not go to the Cotton Bowl.

Schembechler's Michigan teams have finished in the Top Ten of The Associated Press final poll every year except 1979 and 1981. The Wolverines were 12th in last season's last poll. His worst season at Michigan was 8-4 in 1979. Eight of his Michigan teams won 10 or more games in a season and nine were Big 10 champions or co-champions.

Pepper sparks Rebels over Big Spring

By ROBERT BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Senior guard Randy Pepper scored 12 of his game high 22 points in the first half to spark the Midland Lee Rebels to a 68-45 victory over the Big Spring Steers Friday night at Chaparral Center.

Not only did Pepper lead the way with 22 points, he was also credited with nine assists and four steals.

"Randy not only played a good floor game with good assists, he also scored with some good outside shots," said Lee head coach Paul Stueckler. "Barry Blackwell (10 points on the night) shot well from the outside also."

While Pepper, guard Blackwell and Center Andre Van Buren, who also connected for 10 points, were taking care of the bulk of the scoring, centers Kenneth Brown and Olen Smith were dominating the boards with 17 and 13 rebounds respectively.

"OLEN SMITH played a good ball game," said Stueckler. "He got 13 rebounds and anytime you get over 10 that's like scoring 20 points. Over 15 and that's like 30 points." About Brown, Stueckler added, "17 is about average for him, tremendous. You can't play without those rebounds."

The Rebels dominated the game from beginning to end. In the first quarter they held an 18-6 lead and upped it 32-18 at the half. Lee continued to increase its lead in the third quarter by outscoring Big Spring 15-8 and won the final frame 21-19 for the 68-45 final score.

THOUGH FRIDAY'S performance only matched his best scoring night of the season, Pepper liked this one better because it was a District 5-5A win. His first 22-point game came against Snyder earlier in the year.

"It tasted better because it was a district game," said Pepper. "I had 22 points against Snyder. This was just one of those nights when everything went on."

Not quite everything went in, but his 10 for 13 (for 77 percent) from the field and two for two from the line stats made "everything" a fairly accurate statement.

"I thought we did all right and I'm glad we won the game," said Pepper. "We have a lot of people who can score so I think it was just my night to get hot tonight. I think right now we're reaching our peak of play. Everybody is working hard in practice and everything is coming together."

THOUGH HE had 17 rebounds in the game, seven on offense and 10 on defense, had nine points and blocked one shot, Brown would like to play better. Friday's game was "Oh, about average," he said. "I'd like to play just a little bit better than that. I'd like about 20 rebounds and five blocked shots."

Brown feels that Lee is playing good basketball right now and he also believes that they haven't reached their maximum capabilities yet.

"Sometimes we play pretty good when were fired up," said Brown. "We haven't played a great, great game yet, we're capable of playing better."

The victory over Big Spring upped the Rebel record to 14-7 on the season and 3-1 in District 5-5A play while the Steers fell to 9-12 and 0-4. The win, combined with an Odessa High upset over Abilene High and Abilene Cooper and Midland High wins set up a four-way tie in the 5-5A. The Eagles led Lee, MHS and Cooper by one-game going into tonight's action.

In junior varsity action, Lee took a 26-20 halftime lead and turned it into a 78-53 victory. Sylvester Johnson led the Rebels in scoring with 16 points while James Davis added 13 and Billy Sewell 12. For Big Spring, Jimmy Brown was high man with 14 followed by Jsse Woodruff with 11 and Juan Williams with 10.

Big Spring (45): Robert Rubio, 2-0-4; Blake Rosson, 2-0-4; Kevin Watson, 0-0-1-0; JJrald Wrightsil, 5-7-3-17; John Green, 2-0-0-4; Tony Randle, 1-0-3-2; Tom Cudd, 0-0-0-0; Pete Valenzuela, 4-2-3-10; Gary Harris, 1-3-1-4. Totals: 17-11-14-45.
Midland Lee (68): Barry Blackwell, 5-0-3-10; Randy Pepper, 10-3-1-22; Alvin Dunson, 3-0-3-6; Andre Van Buren, 4-3-3-10; Kenneth Brown, 6-1-3-9; Olen Smith, 3-0-1-6; Steve Cherryhomes, 3-0-3-6; Jay Pendleton, 0-0-0-0; Tommy Pollard, 0-1-0-1; Jim Lee, 0-0-0-0; Kit Nelson, 0-0-0-0; Todd Brown, 0-0-0-0. Kiki's 24 points does in Mavs

DENVER (AP) — Kiki Vandeweghe led a balanced Denver attack with 24 points and the Nuggets turned back a third-period Dallas rally to defeat the Mavericks 128-113 Friday night in National Basketball Association action.

Dallas scored 12 straight points late in the third period — six of them by Jay Vincent — to cut what had been a 17-point Nugget advantage to 79-74. Denver then outscored the Mavericks 12-2 at the start of the final quarter to go ahead 100-83.

Alex English had 23 points, Dan Issel 21 and Billy McKinney 19

Bulldogs nudge Bobcats in overtime

SAN ANGELO — Midland High's Don Sharnowski scored six points in overtime here Friday night as the Midland High Bulldogs defeated the San Angelo Bobcats, 72-66, to join Midland Lee, Abilene Cooper and Abilene High at the top of the District 5-5A basketball standings.

The two teams were knotted at 62 at the end of regulation play and traded baskets from Midland's Barr Bolger and Jack Carsner in the overtime for a 66-66 deadlock. Then Sharnowski scored a basket and four free throws to ice the game as the Bobcats kept coming up empty.

It was a struggle for the Bulldogs, however, as San Angelo led by one after one period and by four at the half. MHS cut the margin to two points in the third period, but San Angelo kept the lead as Jeff Kasner scored 14 of the Bobcats' 18 points in the period.

MHS appeared to be in trouble in the fourth period as Preston Robertson went out by re-injuring an ankle and Jim Gunnels fouled out, but still, MHS led by as many as seven points in the fourth period before San Angelo tied it at the buzzer of the fourth period.

Raymond Parker and Gunnels led MHS with 16 points each while Sharnowski ended with 14, six in overtime, and Robertson had 12. Kasner led San Angelo with a game high 28 points while Hercules Miller added 16 and Lorand White 15.

San Angelo fell to 2-2 in the race and appears to be out of the first half hunt. MHS will now take on Odessa High, a surprise winner over Abilene High, Tuesday at Chaparral Center.

The win was a big one for MHS since the Bulldogs lost in overtime to Abilene High last Tuesday, but now they have a new life in the first half race as do Lee and Cooper.

San Angelo led 13-12 at the end of the first period and 32-28 at the half and kept that four-point margin late in the third period. But MHS began chipping away late in the third period and then took control early in the fourth period until the Bobcats rallied at the end of the fourth period.

Lambert's Trick sparks Sabres

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Yvon Lambert's first three-goal game of his 10-year National Hockey league career lifted the Buffalo Sabres to an 8-2 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs Friday night.

Ric Seiling scored twice and Gil Perreault, Mike Foligno and Jean Sauve each scored once for Buffalo. Rene Robert and Terry Martin had Toronto goals.

The Sabres, who have now won six games in a row, moved within two points of league-leading Edmonton in the overall NHL standings.

"I'd be lying if I said I didn't want to be unanimous. But I realize nobody ever has been and I'm happy with the number of votes I received." — Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, who missed becoming the first unanimous selection to the Baseball Hall of Fame by just nine votes.

"It's very strange. It seems like I've been chasing him my entire career. Now I've finally caught up with him." — Former slugger Frank Robinson, who was elected to the Hall of Fame along with Aaron, his home run-hitting contemporary.

High School swim meet winds up today

MHS girls make big splash

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Andrea Freeman posted the fastest qualifying time in the girls 500 freestyle and Suzie Simpson posted the top time in the 100 fly as Midland High forged into the favorites role after the preliminaries of the seventh annual Midland Invitational Swimming and Diving meet Friday at Mabee Swim Center. MHS also advanced its freestyle and medley relay teams as the Bulldogs look to defend the girls' title they won last year.

BULLDOG COACH Jessie Marsh said, "I would say we are in pretty good shape. There are 19 teams here so anything could happen. With the top eight qualifiers swimming in the championship and the next eight in the consolation finals, depth is important."

Depth is something that is in short supply at Midland Lee.

Coach David Whytlaw said; "Graduation just about wiped out our boys." He added, "the girls have done real well. They have had a good day."

Whytlaw added, "It's hard to come off Christmas break and turn in your best time, but we have had some swimmers turn in their best times. I am pleased with that."

MARSH EXPECTS Amarillo High School and Lewisville to provide his girls with their sternest competition for the team title.

In the boys division, Marsh expects Amarillo High to be among the top teams along with defending champ Odessa Permian, El Paso Eastwood and Lewisville.

Jana Housman led Lee's girls. She turned in the top time in the 50 freestyle (26.79) and in the 100 free (59.02). Anita Hull also qualified for the winners' bracket in the 50 free with an eighth place finish.

Midland High's Julie Spaugh and Debbie Fleeger also finished in the top eight in the 100 free.

MHS' Carrie Mayes backed up Simpson's top time in the 100 fly with a third place finished while J. Dowdle splashed to sixth place.

Mayes is also expected to show well in the finals of the 200 IM following Friday's second fastest qualifying time (2:26.56). Doreen McGookey gives Lee a threat in this event today as she splashed to a fourth place with a time of 2:35.75.

THE 100 breaststroke could provide some of the best Tall City competition. Lee's Hull qualified second in a time of 1:16.21 to edge out MHS' Freeman (1:16.50) while the Rebels' McGookey nabbed fourth with a time of 1:18.78.

In the boys' division, the Tall City crews didn't fare too well.

Midland High Bill Worley qualified third in the 100 fly (57.37) and the Bulldogs Mike Seay splashed to third place in the 100 backstroke (1:00.44) and fourth in the 100 freestyle (53.36) to top the Tall City's boys' efforts.

Pat Rhamey, Midland High, gained a berth in the finals with a fifth place finished in the 100 breast (1:07.30) and a sixth place in the 200 IM (2:15.54).

The Bulldogs also advanced their 400 free relay team into the finals with a fifth place finish (3:42.44).

Lee's boys were shutout of the winners' bracket. The best Rebel qualifying performance was turned in by the 400 free relay team which finished 15th.

Coach Whytlaw state, "I'm real happy with the meet. With all the snow we got, I wasn't even sure that we would be able to hold it. But out of the 20 teams that said they would come, 19 made the trip (only San Angelo was unable to make the trip). I am especially happy to see a team like Lewisville here. It adds something to the meet and lets us see how we stack up with the rest of the teams that we will be seeing in regional."

IN THE only finals Friday, Lee's Sandra Malone scored a 227.10 to take the girls' diving crown. Midland High's Kelly Brockman finished third with a 170.95 score.

The boys' diving finals are slated to be held this morning at the Midland High pool.

The swimming finals for the 19-team events is slated to start at 1 p.m. today at Mabee Swim Center.

Girls Diving Finals
1. Sandra Malone, Lee, 227.10; 2. Sandy Cubine, Abilene Cooper, 205.80; 3. Kelly Brockman, Midland High, 170.95; 4. Sandra Stephens, Lubbock Coronado, 167.20; 5. Michelle Kerr, Lubbock Coronado, 167.20; 6. Becky Stephens, Big Spring, 157.05.

JIM MURRAY

Who is this old guy in mirror?

Los Angeles Times

I woke up Tuesday morning and went to look in the mirror. The guy in there was having a birthday, I won't tell you which one. Suffice it to say, he's much older than I.

I check on him every 10 years or so. I can't seem to get rid of him. He keeps getting older while it's well known I'm growing younger. I'm somewhere between 30 and 35. He's God-knows-what.

He's got these pouches under his eyes. His skin is kind of blotchy. God knows, my skin is clear.

He's always getting heartburn while it's well known I can eat a taco, chili relleno and polish it off with a flagon of Dos Equis (check spelling) and not even belch. His hair is getting gray around the edges while mine is as black as Rudolph Valentino's ever was. He's always trying to get me to go to bed early but I fool him. I stay up clear through the 11 o'clock news some nights.

He uses a wood for an approach shot to a green. I, on the other hand, choke down on a wedge. He creaks when he walks. I cross a room like a panther. I notice he's put on a lot of weight, but I can still get into my graduation suit. He can't even putt. Me, I'm deadly at 40 feet.

I KEEP young. You never hear me, when Ron Cey boots a ball at third, say "Pie Traynor would've got two!" When a guy makes a leaping catch in the outfield, I never say "DiMaggio would've been waiting for it." I don't look at Larry Holmes and say "Dempsey would have killed him." The guy in the mirror sticks to the past. I don't. I have to throttle him to keep him from saying to Tony Dorsett, "You're not a patch on Red Grange, kid."

You date yourself with that kind of talk. This guy actually boasts he saw Babe Ruth hit a home run once. Personally, I like to ask people if there really was a Babe Ruth or if he, like Santa Claus, is a grown-ups' lie.

HE'S ALWAYS complaining the nights are darker than they used to be and he wonders why everybody has started to whisper and not talk up like they used to. He plays TV so loud you can hardly hear yourself drink. Personally, I can hear snow falling. Or a cat crossing a rug.

Upstairs. He listens to Lawrence Welk. He wears ties. I'm into disco, myself, I wear gold chains, and none of my shirts button. He's always going through the dictionary. I could write one. I remember every word ever written. He's always wondering how to spell 'obsolescent.' I can spell it in German.

HE TRIES to tell me to be my age. I tell him to shut up and get me a motorcycle for Christmas. He tells me not to be in a hurry to take the Christmas tree down, it may be the last one I'll ever have. With a friend like that who needs enemies?

His teeth are bothering him. I eat corn just to annoy him. My friends, Bill and Katie Huber, of the Ventura Hubers, have sent me a birthday card for him culled from an old Ann Landers or Dear Abby column.

It's perfect for him: 'You know you're getting old,' it reads, 'when the following happens:'

1. Almost everything hurts – what doesn't hurt doesn't work anymore.
2. It feels like the morning after the night before– but you haven't been anywhere.
3. All the names in your little black book end in M.D.
4. You look forward to a dull evening.
5. Your knees buckle, but your belt won't.
6. You're 17 around the neck, 42 around the waist, and 126 around the golf course.
7. You sink your teeth into a steak. And they stay there.
8. You try to straighten the wrinkles in your stockings – and find out you're not wearing any.
9. A little old lady has to help you across the street. She's your wife.

WELL, those are his problems. To tell you the truth, he keeps me young. Whatever he tells me to do, I do the opposite. If he says, go to bed, I go up to the Sunset Strip. If he says, write nice about Cincinnati – or Seattle, or Santa Clara – I tear into them. If this old geezer thinks he owns me, he's got another thing coming.

Banda suffers TKO in second

Abila debuts with TKO in second

FORT WORTH — Midland's Richard Abila made his professional boxing debut a successful one Friday night when he scored a technical knock out against Hector Hernandez in the bantamweight division on the Tony Ayala-James Waire card at Will Rogers Coliseum.

The TKO came 36 seconds into the second round when Abila knocked Hernandez down for the third time in the round with a left hook. The referee inforced the three knock down rule for the automatic TKO.

"Richard hit him several times with his left hook in the first round, just pawing shots," said Abila's manager Rick Fleetwood. "It was obvious the guy didn't have enough quickness to stop it. Richard didn't have any power on it in the first and I guess Hernandez didn't think he had any power. I told him to unload it his left hook in the second and Hernandez walked into it, boom.

"The first knock down hurt him," said Fleetwood. "He was a good kid, he had heart. On the third knock down, he couldn't have gotten even if they would have let him."

Hernandez, a two-fight veteran coming into the bout, dropped his record to 2-1-0.

BENITO BANDA, of Midland, also made his professional debut on the same card, only the results weren't as good. His opponent, Fort Worth southpaw Craig Adams posted a TKO victroy 2:17 into the second round of their lightweight fight.

"Benito won the first round but got caught by a straight left in the second and never could recover," said Fleetwood. "He tried to stay on the ropes and cover up to recover, but they guy kept banging away at him so the referee had to stop it."

Adams was also making his first appearance as a pro.

THE MAIN draw to the boxing card was the Ayala-Waire bout. Ayala, from San Antonio, is considered a contender for the middleweight title and he showed why by stopping Waire by TKO in the seventh round.

The victory improved the undefeated Ayala's record to 17-0 while Waire, of Los Angeles, fell to 20-6.

Abila's next professional fight should draw a lot of attention since he is scheduled to appear on the Alexis Arguello lightweight title defense against Bubba Bucheme on Feb. 13 in Beaumont. According to Fleetwood, Banda is not yet scheduled for a second appearance though inquiries have been made.

Bronchos throw district into uproar

Abilene High lost its grip on first place in the District 5-5A basketball race Friday night as the Odessa High Bronchos stunned the Eagles 67-65 to leave the first half chase with four teams tied for first place.

David Olivas led the Broncho charge with 16 points while Tommy Stahl and Jimmy Gilliland had 15 and 13 points. OHS led 66-57 with 3:22 left in the game and just held off a furious Eagle rally. Shannon Daniel had 16 points for AHS and John Chalk had 14.

AHS is now 3-1 in league play, the same as Midland High, Midland Lee and Abilene Cooper.

Cooper kept pace in the league chase with a 49-48 win over Odessa Permian as Stephen Brazzel canned a technical foul shot called on Permian's Terry Anderson with five seconds left to keep Cougars in the first half running. Permian is now 1-3 in the first half.

Kyle Coody led Cooper with 15 points while Mike Woolley led the Panthers with 18.

BATTLE SCENE

Now that Tom Kite has joined the fold at Green Tree Country Club, Midland can boast of three touring golf professionals.

Of course, Judy Rankin is Midland's representative of the LPGA tour while John Adams, playing unattached, has been playing out of Midland for several years now.

ALL THREE are carrying on a tradition that began many years ago with the Bauer girls, back in the days when what is now Wadley-Barron Lake was Midland Country Club's ninth fairway and the green was located where the current gazebo stands. The clubhouse stood on what could be the Paradise Tennis Club parking lot.

That was way back in the 1940's when Dave Bauer taught his young daughters the game and then put them on the tour.

Alice and sister Marlene were the matinee idols of the women's tour and both matured into steady golfers. Alice eventually gave it up, but Marlene Bauer Hagge, who was the youngest pro to join the tour at 16, back in 1950, is still active.

Her laurels have included Golfer of the Year and AP Woman Athlete of the Year.

LATER BOBBY Nichols, who was to win the PGA Tournament and still plays in selective tournaments, got his start out of MCC, after it had been moved to its present location. Bobby was a Kentuckian who attended Texas A&M came to Midland to assist Boyd Huff.

A group of MCC members grubstaked Bobby, raising, we believe, $8,000, by selling stock in Nichols to give him a start. Nichols' only obligation was to give a member a lesson or a match when he was in town, something like the arrangment Kite has with Green Tree.

Nichols wound up at A&M in a curious manner. An outstanding high school football and basketball player in Louisville, he was critically injured in an auto crash in 1952. He suffered a broken pelvis, back bruises, a brain concussion and internal injuries which left him paralyed and unconscious for 13 days and hospitalized for 98 days.

His football days were over but he continued to play golf and while he was winning junior titles in Kentucky, he met Bear Bryant. When Bryant went from the University of Kentucky to A&M, he gave Bobby a scholarship. Nichols responded by winning the SWC golf title.

HIS BEST year was 1974 when he won$124,747 in only 14 tournaments. That was quite an improvement over 1960 when he won $5,701 in 60 tournaments.

Rives McBee tried to follow in Bobby's footsteps a few years later and created a one-day sensation with a record round on the first day of the U.S. Open in the mid 1960s, but he soon gave up the tour for a club job in the Metroplex area.

WE RECALL when Jim Haynie issued an invitation to a young sports writer to watch his little girl play golf at Ranchland Hills Country Club back in the 1950s. At the time, we suspected it was a case of a parent being carried away by pride. The little girl, who couldn't have been more than 12 at the time, was good, but....

Sandra Haynie proved pop a prophet, going on to win the state publinx, Texas Amateur and Trans-Miss before turning pro in 1961 and winning about everything there was to win on the LPGA tour.

Judy Torluemke took the opposite route. She grew up in St. Louis and began winnng championships as an eight-year-old and has never stopped. She came to Midland to play in the now defunct Tall City Open back in the 1960's, married Walter "Yippy" Rankin and now calls Midland home.

Judy is raising a family now and doesn't work on her putting like she once did, but in 1978 she became the first woman on the LPGA tour to surpass the $100,000 level in earnings. That year Judy won six firsts on the way to a $150,000 season. Naturally, she was named Player of the Year and won the Vare Trophy, for lowest scoring average for the year.

Adams, whose Dad was pro at McCamey for many years and then came to Midland as assistant pro at Hogan Park, played his high school golf here before attending Arizona State.

This is John's fifth year on the tour and he's still in the struggling stage. After earning less than $4,000 his first two years combined, he won $19,895 in 1980 and $17,898 last year.

Connors, McEnroe lose

NEW YORK (AP) — Roscoe Tanner outlasted Jimmy Connors 7-6, 6-7, 7-6 Friday night and moved Eliot Teltscher into the semifinals of the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships.

Teltscher defeated second-seeded John McEnroe earlier in the day to set up the match that kept Connors from moving into Saturday's semifinals.

Tanner, twice crashing through the barriers that surrounded the Madison Square Garden court, had nothing to win except pride. Regardless of the outcome, he could not advance past the round-robin portion of the year-ending, eight-man tourney.

Still, he staved off double-match point in the third-set tie-breaker.

Connors, who refused to show up at a post-match interview, did not go down quietly. He scratched, clawed, scrambled — anything to try to win a point, a game or the match.

Palma decisions Lujan

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Sergio Palma of Argentina scored a unanimous decision victory over Jorge Lujan of Panama Friday night, retaining his World Boxing Association junior Featherweight title.

Referee Roberto Ramirez of Puerto Rico awarded 145 points to the 26-year-old Palma and 141 to Lujan, 27, a former WBA bantamweight champion.

Judges Carol Polis and Stuart Winston, both of the United States, scored it 145-140 and 143-139, respectively. Mrs. Polis of Philadelphia, is the first woman judge to officiate in Argentina.

Miller retains slim lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — James Miller and Pete Weber were separated by just 42 pins after Friday's sixth round of the $150,000 Showboat Invitational pro bowling tournament.

The 20-year-old Miller entered the day's competition with a 206-pin advantage. But Weber averaged 240 and jumped from ninth to second while winning six of eight games.

After 48 games, with one round left before the top five bowlers are seeded into Saturday's finals, Miller's total was 10,960 compared to 10,918 for Weber, the 19-year-old son of Professional Bowlers Association Hall of Famer Dick Weber.

Gervin's 32 points sparks Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — George Gervin led the way with 32 points as the San Antonio Spurs unlimbered their run-and-gun offense and blasted the Houston Rockets 128-90 in a Friday night NBA match of division rivals.

The Rockets turned in one of their worst shooting performances of the season in the first half, hitting a dismal 26 percent on 12 of 46 field goal tries. For the game, Houston made only 35 of its 105 shots from the field for 33.3 percent.

San Antonio also outrebounded the foundering Rockets 62-46 to generate its high-octane fast-break offense, getting 21 points from rookie Gene Banks, 20 from Mike Mitchell and 18 from Mark Olberding.

Rocket forward Elvin Hayes was ejected midway through the third period after drawing his second technical foul of the game.

Lanier leads Bucks over Celtics

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bob Lanier scored a season-high 26 points, 18 in the second half, and Marques Johnson added 23 to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 122-118 NBA victory over the Boston Celtics Friday night.

The Celtics, who had a four-game winning streak broken, were led by Larry Bird with 29 points and Robert Parish with 21. The Bucks have won their last, beating NBA powerhouses Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Boston in a six-night span.

A layup by Lanier, who scored 16 points in the third period, capped a 15-5 Milwaukee spurt that put the Bucks on top 83-64. Milwaukee carried a 93-76 spread into the final 12 minutes.

Kansas City whips New Jersey Nets

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mike Woodson, Reggie King and Eddie Johnson combined for 60 points to power the Kansas City Kings to a 114-104 victory over the New Jersey Nets Friday night in the NBA.

Kareem, Magic swamp the Pacers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 30 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 19 points and 15 rebounds as the Los Angeles Lakers overcame a slow start to defeat the Indiana Pacers 97-92 in the National Basketball Association Friday night.

The Lakers trailed 33-16 after one period, but outscored Indiana 34-12 in the second period to lead 50-45 at the intermission. Indiana held a 43-25 lead on Mike Bantom's field goal with 6:05 remaining and was outscored 25-2. Jabbar had 10 points in that spurt, while Norm Nixon had eight of his 22.

Atlanta knocks off 76ers, 96-90

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — John Drew scored 26 points and Rory Sparrow added 22 as the Atlanta Hawks beat the Philadelphia 76ers 96-90 in a NBA game Friday night.

Bullets' Ruland seals Bulls' doom

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Two free throws by Jeff Ruland with 1:33 remaining locked up a 93-90 National Basketball Association victory for the Washington Bullets over the Chicago Bulls Friday night.

David Greenwood made one of two free throws for the Bulls with 1:23 left and there was no more scoring until Frank Johnson sank the second of his two foul shot attempts for Washington with 15 seconds left to play.

Centenary wins, 82-72

HOUSTON (AP) — Reserve guard Reginald Hurd scored a career-high 20 points and forward Willie Jackson chipped in 16 to pace Centenary to a 82-72 victory over Houston Baptist in a Trans America Athletic Conference basketball game Friday night.

The win raised Cntenary's record to 6-6 for the season and 1-2 in the TAAC. Houston Baptist dropped to 5-7 and 2-5 in conference play.

Red Smith, one of true greats, dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Red Smith, who chronicled a half-century of sports with a sensitivity that brought him friends, respect and journalism's highest awards, died Friday. He was 76.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist for The New York Times died at a hospital in Stamford, Conn., after a brief illness, the newspaper said. Further details and funeral arrangements were unavailable.

Born Walter Wellesley Smith, he won countless awards for his writing about sports figures and events over half a century. But he had said the Pulitzer, journalism's highest award which he won in 1976, was "the only bottle cap that means anything."

Smith, who joined the Times in 1971, was the first sports writer to win the Pulitzer for commentary. He was cited for the "erudition" and "literary quality" of his column, "Sports of the Times," which appeared four times a week and was syndicated to some 500 newspapers worldwide.

Times Executive Editor A.M. Rosenthal said Smith "embodied the spirit, vigor and youth of sports."

"Within the Times family, we always felt that bringing Red to our staff even at an age when most men contemplate retirement allowed us to fulfill a very special trust for sports," Rosenthal added. "We remember him with affection and pride as a wonderful writer and a wonderful man."

A NEWSPAPERMAN for 54 years, Smith five times was selected the nation's best sports writer by his peers.

"He did what he always wanted to do and he did it better than anybody," said Dave Anderson, Smith's fellow sports columnist at the Times, who last year also won a Pulitzer Prize. "He was the best sports writer we ever had."

Columnist Jim Murray of the Los Angeles Times called Smith "a writer of elegant prose, a man of elegant quality who adorned our profession with wit, grace and style. He was more than a sports writer. He was a writer."

CBS correspondent Morley Safer, in a segment on the network's "60 Minutes" program last year, called Smith "the quiet man of sports journalism ... the keenest of all the observers of the games people play."

Smith replied, "I've always tried to remember tht these were games little boys can play. You know, the future of civilization didn't change one bit when Bobby Thomson hit his home run in 1951 to win the playoff for the Giants."

The son of a wholesale grocer, Smith was born in Green Bay, Wis., Sept. 25, 1905.

HE LIKED to tell that he once worked as an elevator operator in Green Bay, where he grew up, "but was replaced by a button."

After graduation from the University of Notre Dame in 1927, he joined the Milwaukee Sentinel as a general assignment reporter. He joined the copy desk of the St. Louis Star in 1928 and moved to sports when, as he later recalled, "one day they fired the sports department."

In 1935 he became a byline columnist for the Philadelphia Record, moving to the now-defunct New York Herald Tribune in 1945. From 1967-71 he worked for the Publishers Newspaper Syndicate.

SMITH was particularly interested in horse racing and boxing and also liked writing about the outdoors. He was an avid fisherman.

Among his awards were the Headliner Award, the George Polk Award, the Grantland Rice Memorial Award and multiple honors from the American Newspaper Guild.

Smith recently was honored by the AP Sports Editors, who named a writer's award in his honor and made him the first recipient.

As news of Smith's death spread, praise poured in from around the nation.

"OH, MY God, what a beautiful man!" said veteran Miami Beach boxing promoter Chris Dundee. "He was just a great person. He wrote a lot of columns about me, and I have his columns hanging up in my gym. I'll miss him."

Hal Lebovitz, sports editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, called Smith "the creme de la creme of the sports writers, a fine gentleman and a brilliant writer."

"He was the best sports writer who ever lived, without a doubt," said Jesse Outlar, sports editor of the Atlanta Constitution. "He was the Babe Ruth, Henry Aaron and Red Grange of our profession all put together.

Marcus Allen returns home for Gold Bowl

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Marcus Allen, back on home turf for the first time in four years, heads a high-powered all-star cast for Saturday's inaugural of the Olympia Gold Bowl.

In his last appearance at san Diego-Jack Murphy Stadium, Allen scored five touchdowns to lead Lincoln High School to San Diego County's big school title.

"I remember I was pretty lucky and we beat Kearny 34-6," the record-breaking running back from the University of Southern Califoynia recalled during practice this week.

Bowl organizers are hoping that Allen's presence will mean magic at the gate for the new event. A crowd of about 30,000 is predicted. About 75 percent of the nation will view the game on television. Gametime is noon PST.

Players were selected in November through a mock draft intended to mirror the NFL's top choices in May. Twenty one of first 23 players chosen will be in uniform.

"I guarantee that the top 18 we drafted will be in the top 20 of the (NFL) draft," predicted Mike Garrett, former NFL running back and a talent scout for the Gold Bowl.

Heading the Gold Bowl's draft list was Allen, the first major college back to rush for 2,000 yards in one season. He'll be in the Team American backfield with Iowa State's 240-pound Dwayne Crutchfield and Arizona State quarterback Mike Pagel.

Ohio State's Art Schlichter directs Team National, coached by Dick Vermeil, head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles. Vermeil's coaching counterpart in last year's Super Bowl, Tom Flores of Oakland, is in charge of Team American.

The game, which conflicts with the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Ala., pays $2,250 to the winning team members and $2,000 to the losers.

"Don't think for a minute that they won't be competitive," said Flores. "Nobody wants to look bad with all these NFL scouts here."

Other members of Team National include Tennessee receiver Anthony Hancock, Stanford running back Darrin Nelson, Arizona State running back Gerald Riggs and defense anchored by 6-foot-3, 270-pound defensive tackle Lester Williams of Miami (Fla.) University.

McMahon makes North Senior Bowl favorite

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Jim McMahon, the All-American quarterback in Brigham Young's explosive aerial attack, makes the North an overwhelming favorite over the South in the 33rd Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

McMahon, who holds 55 National Collegiate Athletic Association records, threw for 3,555 yards and 30 touchdowns during his senior campaign. He will have his favorite target on hand — BYU wide receiver Dan Plater, who snared 62 passes for 891 yards and was the offensive standout with two scoring receptions in last week's East West Shrine game.

The kickoff is set for 12:15 p.m. CST in Ladd Memorial Stadium, where a near-capacity crowd of 40,000 is expected. The game will be televised nationally by ESPN, a cable television sports network.

THE NORTH, which also features All-Americans Sal Sunseri of Pittsburgh and Jeff Gaylord of Missouri on its defensive unit, has won five of the last six Senior Bowls and will be after its third consecutive triumph Saturday. The South clings to a narrow 15-14-3 series advantage.

The weather hampered practices early in the week when a bitter cold front swept through this Gulf Coast region, but the forecast calls for a high in the 50s at gametime, with the temperature dropping rapidly in the afternoon. Rain is expected to end before the kickoff.

"We are going to throw the ball," said Coach Marv Levy of Kansas City, who heads the North staff.

Although McMahon will start, the North will have Robin Gabriel of New Mexico in a backup role. Gabriel, son of former pro quarterback Roman Gabriel, threw for 2,866 yards and 14 touchdowns in his final collegiate season.

The South, coached by Chuck Noll of the Pittsburgh Steelers, will open with Georgia Tech's Mike Kelley at quarterback, backed by John Fourcade, who had 6,713 yards in offense during his career at Mississippi to erase the school record held by Archie Manning of the New Orleans Saints.

"KELLEY WILL start and we'll use Fourcade in the second quarter," said Noll.

The North also features two 1,000-yard runners — Syracuse's Joe Morris, 1,194 yards, and Utah's Del Rodgers, 1,127 yards.

The top runners in the South's arsenal will be Barry Redden, who rambled for 1,629 yards at Richmond, and Southern Mississippi's Sammy Winder, who closed his career with a 1,029-yard season. Winder was the top scorer in the nation as a junior with 120 points.

Patriots beckon, Meyer leaves SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Ron Meyer, who brought Southern Methodist's football fortunes from the Southwest Conference doormat to the throne in six seasons, said Friday he is going to the New England Patriots to fulfill his dream of coaching in the pro ranks.

"I spent my life preparing to coach in the National Football League ... it was a lifelong dream," Meyer said. "The situation is extremely right in New England."

The 40-year-old Meyer, once a scout with the NFL's Dallas Cowboys, said, "I did not go to the Patriots because of the money ... SMU has been very good to me and I was ready to coach here the rest of my life."

Meyer would not give details of the deal he received from New England but various sources made it a four-year package worth about $800,000. "I got a very long-term contract and the money is good," Meyer said.

ASKED WHAT his relationship would be with the Patriots' front office, Meyer said, "It will be a cooperative effort. I feel I have everything needed to win ... My control is the same structure Tom Landry has with the Cowboys."

He said he felt the problems with the power structure in New England had been "exaggerated a great deal. I'll have total backing and I don't see any problems."

Meyer succeeds Ron Erhardt, fired by team owner Billy Sullivan two days after the season following the Patriots' 2-14 record.

Speculation for Meyer's successor at SMU focused on Cowboys' assistant John Mackovic and Tom Osborne of Nebraska.

SMU Athletic Director Bob Hitch said, "We plan to have a coach no later than Sunday or Monday."

Hitch admitted that one of the top three choices was in the pro ranks — but that's all he would say about the candidates.

MEYER held off announcing his acceptance of the New England position until he could talk to his team.

"I owed it to them," said Meyer, who leaves behind a team loaded with talent for next year. SMU finished fifth in The Associated Press poll with a 10-1 record and the Mustangs return their starting backfield in 1982.

"Having an All-Southwest Conference backfield coming back certainly made me think twice about going to New England," he said. "But I told the team a program is bigger than one individual ... I told them I would come back to Dallas next New Year's Day to watch them in the Cotton Bowl."

Hitch said Meyer left with SMU's blessing, adding: "Why would we keep him from doing what he's always wanted to do?"

Meyer had recently signed an extension of his contract with the Mustangs, with a lucrative bonus.

In the six years since he took over for Dave Smith, Meyer brought the Mustangs from a 3-8-0 record in 1976 to the SWC championship with the 10-1 mark in 1981. In between, Meyer logged records of 4-7-0, 4-6-1, 5-6-0 and 8-3-0.

The 1981 conference crown came after his rebuilding program reached fruition. For his efforts, Meyer was voted SWC Coach of the Year in a number of publications.

The new IRA plans are here and there's one for everyone.

Now you, too, can retire a millionaire.

It's here. The new Individual Retirement Account. The IRA. A personal tax sheltered retirement savings plan for everyone. And it's available at First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. You can literally retire a millionaire, assuming you begin the plan in your late twenties. Not bad. Huh? Accumulations can be very substantial regardless of the age you begin.

Accumulations at retirement based on age of enrollment*

At Age 27 —	$1,044,533	At Age 45 —	$142,530
At Age 30 —	$758,329	At Age 50 —	$76,380
At Age 35 —	$441,826	At Age 55 —	$37,123
At Age 40 —	$253,998	At Age 60 —	$13,826

How much does it cost?

It's your choice. You decide what you want to contribute annually up to $2,000. At First Savings, we help you tailor your contributions so you can get the results you want at retirement.

How do you start?

Start by coming into First Savings. All IRA's are not the same. And First Savings IRA's have distinct advantages. For complete information, come by, or call us at 683-5681, and ask for a free brochure. And start making plans to retire rich.

*Figures above are based on the assumptions that $2,000 is invested in the account every year until age 65 and that the funds invested draw interest at 11% compounded annually until that age. Your interest rate may be higher or lower than 11%. Substantial penalties are required for early withdrawal.

Wholesale inflation 7 percent for year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said Friday that inflation at the wholesale level totaled only 7 percent last year, the most encouraging figure since 1977. But analysts said a separate report, reflecting sinking industrial output, showed the gains against spiraling costs came at the expense of lost jobs and deepening recession.

Inflation at the wholesale level edged up just 0.3 percent in December, keeping the total for all of last year to 7 percent, the Labor Department reported. That 1981 figure was sharply down from 11.8 percent in 1980, and it was the lowest since the 6.9 percent of 1977.

But the Federal Reserve Board also reported on Friday that the nation's industrial production fell 2.1 percent in December — a drop that economists predicted would push unemployment above already-high levels.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION — the basic output of the nation's factories and mines — is one of the clearest indicators of the health or sickness of the U.S. economy.

Businesses faced with slack demand for goods and services have now cut production for five straight months, including a December drop that was the biggest since the 3 percent of May 1980.

So while difficulty in selling goods has tended to keep those businesses from raising prices much, it also has pushed them to lay off workers who would only be turning out products that can't be sold.

"It's the traditional trade-off between inflation and unemployment now in progress," said private economist Allen Sinai of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass.

David Cross of Chase Econometrics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa., used similar words, characterizing the current situation as "fighting inflation with unemployment."

CROSS SAID THE inflation news was "a good sign in one way but also a reflection of some very bad times."

Both said it now seems possible the jobless rate will rise a half percentage point above December's 8.9 percent, which was just under the post-World War II high of 9 percent recorded during the 1974-75 recession.

The Commerce Department's chief economist, Robert Ortner, who saw at least as much good as bad in Friday's reports, said it would be "a fair guess that unemployment will increase somewhat further."

But Ortner said encouragement could be drawn from the new reports because the production figures showed cutbacks that have already taken place while the inflation improvement "is setting the stage for more good news in the future."

Cab-born baby given fitting name

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nicole Greene fared well — despite her emergence into the world in the back seat of a taxi.

A snowstorm was belting Baltimore when Juanita Greene phoned a taxi and requested a ride — quickly — to South Baltimore General Hospital.

But, she said, the 6-pound, 7-ounce baby "kind of snuck up" on her while she was still at home Wednesday and "it started coming out in the taxicab. By the time we got there, all the rest was out."

Mother and daughter are doing fine, says the hospital.

Meanwhile, the cab driver, Rodney Hill, suggested a middle name to fit the circumstances of the delivery and the mother accepted.

She named the infant Nicole Taxina Greene. "I like the name ... I think it's cute," she said.

PERSONAL, to Skinny:
I called The Reporter-Telegram to start home delivery, and I'll pay for it! I'm saving not only 40% but dollars more with all those coupons every week. Gratefully, Mary.
