ALABAMA NEGROES FIND BURIED GOLD

$200,000 FOUND AFTER 60 YEARS UNDER TOP SOIL

KEY LEFT BY CIVIL WAR OFFICER RESULTS IN FINDING FORTUNE

(By The Associated Press)
DEMOPOLIS, Ala., June 1.—Tales of treasure trove are rivalled in the find of buried gold estimated at more than $200,000 on the Whitfield farm near here. The cache, believed to have been hidden from Union armies during the Civil War by C. Boaz Whitfield, was discovered by means of a key left to his son, C. Gayton Whitfield of Middleboro, Ky.

The treasure consisted of twenty dollar gold pieces, minted in 1850 and before. It was found in an old powder can that crumbled on touch. Gold pieces have been found on the farm from time to time, but search for buried caches was not made by the Whitfield family until the location of the key in Kentucky.

Negroes Find Treasure
A gang of negroes digging for a buried "boundary stake" unearthed the treasure yesterday. The negroes dug for a while without success. They then stumbled on the powder can and its contents.

Nine heirs may bid for the gold. Some of them are descendants of brothers of C. Boaz Whitfield, who was the son of General Nathan Bryan Whitfield, pioneer.

Many of the South's aristocratic and wealthy families buried money and gold and silver plate during the Civil war to prevent seizure by Union soldiers.

H. V. Robertson Is Here But Refuses To Discuss Audit

H. V. Robertson, of Amarillo, owner and manager of the auditing firm that bears his name told the Daily Journal Tuesday that the audit now under way on the city's books and accounts will be finished in the three allotted by the Court, but beyond this, would make no statement in connection with the audit, especially as regards further alleged misappropriations of funds.

The audit of the books started here about the middle of March, and due to the alleged irregularities from which several grand jury indictments against two former city officials, grew, the audit instead of being confined to the fiscal year, was extended backward to cover 1924 and 1925.

Some criminal and one civil case are now pending in District Court here as a result of the findings of the auditors, and on June 21, another audit of the books to be carried on under supervision of the court, will start as a result of a plea filed by the defendants in the civil case.

Two Soldiers Killed In Borrowed Airship

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., June 1. (AP)—A search was started here today for the bodies of two Fort Leavenworth airplane mechanics who drowned yesterday when a plane they "borrowed" fell into the Missouri river. A third soldier escaped drowning after a long struggle with the current.

These two with Private LeMay were attached to the air service detachment at Fort Leavenworth. Yesterday C. J. Michael of Kansas City arrived at the post field in a new plane to visit his father, and obtained permission to leave his plane, pending better flying conditions. The soldiers took the plane and negotiated about three miles when Garrett, who was acting as pilot, lost control, the ship falling into the river.

CONSTABLE GETS LIFE JAIL TERM FOR DEATH OF 3

MADE BOMB 2 YEARS AGO HE SAYS ON STAND IN MICHIGAN TRIAL

(By Associated Press)
MUSKOGON, Mich., June 1.—Circuit Judge John Vanwerwerp today sentenced Asa K. Bartlett, Blue Lake township constable, to life imprisonment for the murder of August Krubach, his daughter, Janet, and her fiancé, William Frank, killed by a bomb Thursday.

Judge Vanwerwerp expressed regret that the state law does not provide for capital punishment.

"You should be sentenced to death," Judge Vanwerwerp said, "but it is useless for me to talk to you."

Expected Realization.
"Maybe in later years you will realize something of the dastardly crime you have committed. The sentence is that you be confined in the state house of correction at Marquette for the rest of your life."

Bartlett, who admitted mailing the bomb because of political animosity toward Krubach, who was township supervisor, showed no emotion and bowed politely to the judge as sentence was pronounced.

With the splendor and pomp of a royal coronation, Miss D'Aun Sammons is to be crowned the first queen of Tech as the feature event of a gigantic pageant showing the advance of civilization in West Texas, at 8:30 o'clock this evening south of the Tech Administration building. Seats have been reserved for 2,200 spectators at the festival in which 400 students are to have parts.

This display, which is said to compare favorably with the festivals staged each spring by the older educational institutions of the United States, has been prepared by Misses Johnnye Glickerson and Ruth Pirtle, faculty members, assisted by Prof. W. R. Waggoner, head of the music department.

History Is Background
The history of West Texas, beginning with the vision of the future and concluding with the establishment of the Tech is to be symbolically presented in the pageant. The invasion of the Sapiens, to be followed by the Indians, pioneers, ranchers, cowboys, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and its achievements will be shown in tableaux and action scenes.

The 28 towns that bid for the establishment of the Tech, will be represented in one scene by students from each of these places. The activities of the Tech today will be shown and a vision of the future of the institution will be given. A part of the program is to be the entertainment of the queen's court and the grand procession of all actors in review before the queen, following her coronation.

An elaborate setting has been prepared for the pageant with a stage built in the cloisters of the administration building. Much of the scenery has been built especially for the display, music was composed by Professor Waggoner and splendid lighting effects have been prepared.

Oklahoma Governor Is Stopped By Law

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 1. (AP)—A temporary restraining order was issued in District court here today enjoining the state election board from certifying the name of Governor M. E. Trapp as a democratic gubernatorial candidate in the August primary election.

The order was issued upon application of Kirby Fitzpatrick of Ardmore. Fitzpatrick declares that a governor under the constitution is barred from succeeding himself. Trapp claims that he is merely acting governor, since he was never elected to that office.

Trapp became the state's chief executive when Governor J. C. Walton was impeached.

NORTH AND EAST TEXAS SWEEP BY WINDS AND RAIN

TREES UPROOTED, HOUSES DEMOLISHED AS TAIL OF TWISTER HITS

(By The Associated Press)
DALLAS, June 1.—Calendar spring made a violent exit in North and East Texas last night with stiff gales, heavy rain and electrical disturbances, causing at least two casualties and much property damage.

The storm apparently was the tail-end of that which struck Oklahoma, and the North Texas borderland late yesterday. It swept across East Texas to the Arkansas line at Texarkana, where vicious wind accompanying heavy rain uprooted trees.

Lightning practically demolished a two-story house in Dallas, and downtown store windows were caved in. Two persons were injured, one by broken glass in a residence and the other in an automobile accident caused by the storm. A driving rain amounted to about one and one-half inches. Fort Worth had heavy rain. McKinney reported some crop damage, while wind destroyed the primitive Baptist church at Farmersville and damaged outhouses and trees.

Denton, Denison, Sherman, and Bonham were in the path of yesterday's storm, but damage was minor. Lightning killed four head of cattle near Denton.

Crops Are Damaged
Crops in Elm Fork of the Trinity River lowlands were badly damaged, Denton reports said. The home of Sidney A. Gibson, a farmer living East of Denton, was destroyed by fire when lightning struck the house.

Half a dozen oil derricks in the North Neoma field were blown down. The roofs of several power houses were blown off and a number of barns were reported damaged by the wind.

It was decided at a meeting of the federation Monday afternoon at the Cumberland Presbyterian church. Civic problems were discussed at the meeting and Mrs. J. C. Langley and Mrs. William J. Heart To Heart Talks With Cynthia Grey Margaret Ann thinks she has the world's worst grievance. Her husband won't help her with the dishes.

"And I have all I can do, with the housework and cooking and the two babies, without having to spend the whole evening at the sink," she sighs.

"He says he will do anything else to help me, but not dishes, for they are not man's work," I think this is utterly selfish. What do you think?"

"I too, think it is selfish, but I believe it is the kind of selfishness which nearly every wife has to tolerate. Men simply do not sacrifice their own comfort for others to the extent that women do. Selfishness is 'the nature of the beast.' They don't realize it and they cannot help it. But sometimes it makes life very hard for busy women."

However, there may be some arguments on the husband's side in this case. Margaret Ann has plenty to keep her busy, with two babies, to be sure. But her husband undoubtedly works hard too. He may feel exactly as she does—that he should not have to spend the evening over the sink after the day's work.

The devastating fact behind this sticking of argument is that a man practically never realizes what drudgery housework and child rearing involve. Set him to do it for a few days by himself and very soon he will give up in shocked surprise.

Most husbands, never having had a taste of it, have no conception how hard a woman's daily work is, and consequently, lack sympathy for her. If Margaret Ann's husband flatly refused to help do "woman's work," it is useless for her to nag at him about it. Persistent fault-finding will only create hard feelings and make him more obstinate.

My suggestion would be that she insist that he give her money to hire someone to come in and do the dishes. Young school girls will sometimes work for very little if given their dinner as part payment.

If he complains of the expense, then it is time for Margaret to be firm and insist, upon help. I have no doubt if he realizes that she is overworked and tired out at night, he will be willing to bring in some paid assistance. This will save his own dignity, since he considers dishes beneath him.

And that is only giving his wife a square break. If she insists upon it on slight basis, she will get relief in one way or another.

Paris! Two Suitors!! Germaine is Thrilled

Amid Gayety, She Finds Time to Buy Charming Blue and White Ensemble

An ensemble of blue and white that proved irresistible.

Dearest Madeline:

It is so splendid to be back in Paris, to find myself receiving the most delightful attentions from a handsome Frenchman and almost amusing American.

Between Jacques and Jimmy—Jimmy left Deauville the evening after I left—I find my time well occupied, and my poor parents are quite beside themselves.

The darlings are really very transparent concerning the young men, they imagine they are being subtle. They are most loyal to our own beloved country, but it is quite impossible for them not to take an interest in the large fortune which Jimmy represents.

As for me, I find two suitors much more easy to handle than one. Each acts as a spur to the other, and I am so well entertained that I have no reason to worry about my foolish heart or the state of my emotions.

The first evening I was home, Jacques took me to an exhibition of pictures which was preceded by a dinner given to some very distinguished guests, including some of our leading artists and literary people.

The following night Jimmy invited me to attend a most interesting affair—a dress rehearsal of "No, No, Nanette," one of our American operettas that has been playing in London and is now coming across to us.

The role of Nanette played by Mile. Hegoburu, the most marvelously slender and graceful person you have ever seen, and she wears the most fascinating clothes with absolute distinction.

All the costumes are very modern, and they achieve the most sophisticated simplicity. I am glad to see that they feature small hats. I am going to have one of the ensemble suits copied, a photograph of which I am sending you.

This one is in white, embroidered in blue, worn with a blue coat embroidered in white. The effect is most charming. I think.

Never did I see such cunning bathing suits as were worn in this show. They made the practical ones I purchased at Deauville look very uninteresting and plain, so I am going to copy the one worn by Mile. Hegoburu, not for the water, of course, but as a beach costume which I can use later on when we go to the Mediterranean watering places.

This one is of mauve silk jersey with velvet dots, and a circular taffeta flounce forming the skirt. It is worn with a blue cape, about the shade you see in Persian prints or Chinese porcelain. It is lined with mauve taffeta with tiny ruchings of pleated silk. That hat is too stately, of course, for me. I shall wear a saucy little round hat the color of my cape.

I have had little time to tell you of the complications that are arising in my little triangle. I shall go into more detail in my next letter.

With all my love,

GERMAINE.

A bathing costume de luxe, worn by Mile. Hegoburu, gave Germaine an idea for future conquests.

The Woman's Day

By ALLENE SUMNER

They loved one another some 40 years ago. Circumstances, each married another. A day or so ago, the two, now widow and widower, married one another. They after day once a story similar to this one of James Winning and Mrs. Buchanan Brice, and the answer to its meaning would solve much of the mystery in this world called love and marriage.

Is there really but one right man for every woman, one right woman for every man? Does Nature distill a curious chemical affinity between certain two which defies time itself? Or is it true that, given proximity, most any man can marry most any woman, or any woman any man with average chances for happiness?

"I HAVEN'T TIME!"

"How I want to do something besides just raise a family and look after a house—I always did think I could write or paint or—!" How many become times a day we all hear that! It's a truism to say that anyone can do the thing she really wants to do badly enough, but like most truisms true! If you "just can't" what about Ellnor Mordant, author of "The Venture Road?"

HOW SHE DID IT!

"When I was 20 I went as my cousin's companion to the island of Mauritius, 900 miles east of Madagascar. I married there. Malaria and other plagues followed, and I buried two of my children there. I was ordered back to England to die. Paralyzed all down one side. Two years in bed, unable to move. Doctors said I could never live."

WOULD NOT DIE IN BED

"I would not die in bed. I wanted the feel of a ship again. The clean salt winds of the sea. Throwing away my brief hope of life, so the doctors said, I shipped off on board a little sailing vessel for Australia. I left Glasgow the second week in February. We did not sight land until July."

MORE DEATH!

"In Melbourne my son was born. In Melbourne my husband died. I was not yet dead but was lame and had to earn a living for myself and boy. I gardened, did anything. There was no relief from the constant work to earn the bare needs of existence. Physical break-downs. Seven years there in Australia away from everyone I knew and never one penny ahead in the bank. I broke my leg. Somehow we managed to scrape together money to go back to England. I broke my leg a second time on ship and it could not be set for five weeks."

HOW IT ENDED

But pink rosy cloud linings at last! Back in England, an editorial job for her! A successful book. Years of roving to feed the wanderlust. Comforts that money could buy. She "didn't have time" either. The difference is that she had to!

IS SHE RIGHT?

"A good complexion gives a woman further than a good education, and women are smart enough to know it! More money is spent today than on public education," says Mrs. Ruth Maurer, beauty expert. She adds that something like $5,000,000 is spent by American women each day for beauty."

IF SHE IS!

QUEER CLAIM IS MADE IN COURTS

Texas Laws Are Subjected To Attack Made By Attorneys Representing Slayer

(By The Associated Press)
DALLAS, Texas, June 1. — Expressing doubt as to whether any Texas laws are in force at present, attorneys defending Chester Johnson on a murder charge presented an extraordinary demurrer in District Court here today.

Barker and Orr, Cisco attorneys for Johnson, claimed that all Texas laws prior to January 1925 were replaced by acts of the 39th Legislature of which "no authentic copy has been published," and that they, therefore, are not certain he has committed an offense against the State of Texas. The demurrer, they claimed, is "to determine whether the Legislature passed any new laws. If any such laws were passed, counsel maintained, none of them have been published bearing the certificate of the Secretary of State, as required by the constitution of the State of Texas."

Johnson is on trial for murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Plummer Tyler at Cisco last March 18th. Self-defense has been alleged.

With 500 Passengers, Ship Limp To Docks

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 1. (AP) — With a heavy list to starboard, considerable water in her hold, and her paddle wheel smashed the Fall River liner Priscilla, with 500 passengers aboard, which grounded on Great Gull Island, Long Island Sound, in a fog last night arrived here this morning in tow of a tug.

The passengers, who spent a sleepless night after being violently awakened when the craft struck the beach, boarded special trains that awaited them here and were taken to Newport and Fall River. The Priscilla was enroute from New York to Fall River when she grounded.

Ponzi Fails To Be Present For Trial

BOSTON, June 1. (AP) — Charles Ponzi, get-rich-quick financier, under sentence of seven to nine years in Massachusetts as a "common and notorious thief," failed to appear in Superior Criminal Court today for re-sentencing after a loss of his appeal.

Ponzi has been at liberty in $10,000 surety and Judge Fosdick ordered him defaulted.

The State will probably proceed against Mrs. Bernilde B. Malaguti of Boston, who became Ponzi's surety on July 13 of last year, it was said.

Ponzi was reported in New Hampshire yesterday. He and his wife, touring in an expensive automobile bearing Connecticut registration plates were recognized by the wife of an innkeeper. Ponzi talked freely, the inn proprietor said, and indicated that he would return to Boston today.

Is In Jacksonville

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 1. (AP) — Charles Ponzi is in Jacksonville, his attorney, Frank E. Brennan, said today. Ponzi has not decided whether he will go back to Boston voluntarily or resist extradition, the attorney said. Brennan said Ponzi had not received notification to appear in Boston and probably would make no decision as to his course until the papers were received.

Supreme Court Rules On Contested Check

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP) — The city of Douglas, Ariz., failed today in an effort to hold the Dallas Federal Reserve bank responsible for the amount of a check which went bad after it was deposited for collection in the First National bank of Douglas.

The check was signed by Cochise county, and was drawn on the Central bank of Wilcox, Arizona, which closed its doors while the check was on its way through several other banks. The Supreme court upheld the lower courts in ruling the paper had been deposited by the city as a cash item, and that the Federal Reserve system assumed no liability for its collection.

'New Commandment' A Delicious Treat Screen Epicure

Robert T. Kane has a rare cinema treat for the patrons of the Palace theatre starting next Wednesday when his initial production for First National, "The New Commandment," is presented for a run.

In producing "The New Commandment," his first production under his own banner, Kane made sure to select a vehicle abounding in thrills and novelties and then to make success certain he signed up the most marvelous film talent that money could tempt. Kane should add this screen triumph to the list of pictures that must be seen.

The cast includes Ben Lyon, in the greatest role of his career; Blanche Sweet, Holbrook Blinn, Pedro De Cordova, Diana Kane, Dorothy Cummings, George Cooper, Effie Shannon and many others.

"The New Commandment" is a screen adaptation by Sada Cowan and Howard Higgin of Colonel Frederick Palmer's celebrated novel, "Invisible Wounds." Howard Higgin is also responsible for the direction. In this picture, he has reached a directorial milestone, for his touches and details are exquisite.

Five Slightly Hurt In Accident Here

Two automobile accidents in which five persons were slightly injured have caused a tightening of traffic laws in Lubbock, and Chief of Police T. E. May said Tuesday that everyone found guilty of these law violations will be called upon to answer for them.

Jack Hankins, five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hankins, was slightly injured late Monday near his home on the west end of Broadway when struck by a car being driven by Miss Connie Hall. The boy, who was riding his tricycle, was caught under the axle of the car, and his tricycle almost demolished. The driver of the car, and one or two witnesses said the accident was unavoidable.

Mrs. Cliff Lindsey and sister, Mrs. Paul Morgan, and Dr. F. B. Malone, were all slightly injured early Tuesday afternoon when their cars collided at the intersection of Main and Ave 1. The two ladies were rushed to the Lubbock Sanitarium, where examination revealed their injuries only slight. Dr. Malone suffered a few scratches, and his car was considerably damaged. The larger car, driven by the ladies was also damaged slightly.

Breakfast—Baked rhubarb, cereal, thin cream, crisp broiled bacon, soft cooked eggs, crisp whole wheat toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cream of onion soup, bread sticks, beef greens with tiny buttered beans, brown bread, vanilla cookies, milk, tea.

Dinner — Broiled hamburger steak, rice potatoes, asparagus in cream, new cabbage salad, cream puffs with strawberry filling, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

If the hamburger steak is made into flat little cakes after seasoning and bound with a narrow strip of bacon the dish might well be named mock filet mignon. Then if the "filets" are served on the best platter and garnished with sprigs of parsley the family will respond to the suggestion and everybody will be happy.

BREAD STICKS

One-half compressed yeast cake, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 cup scalded milk, 3 cups flour (about), 2 teaspoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 egg white.

Soften yeast in water. Scald milk and when lukewarm add softened yeast. Add 1 ½ cups flour, beating with a large spoon until mixture is smooth. Cover and let stand in a warm place until light. The temperature should be about 75 degrees F. Add sugar, salt and butter, white of egg beaten until light and about 2 cups of flour.

The dough should be as soft as can be handled. Turn onto a well-floured board and knead until elastic. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Cut off small pieces about the size of an English walnut when rolled into balls.

Roll these balls under the palm of the hand on a well-floured board into strips about ¼ inch thick making them round. Place on a buttered baking sheet and let rise in a warm place until double in size. Bake 15 minutes in a hot oven.

Faithful Pilgrims In

THEY PRAY FOR RETURN

Tamarack Expect Lord

(By Associated Press.)

TAMARACK, Minn., June 1. — Pilgrims from far and near, some believing, some doubting, gathered here for an hour of silent prayer today.

Called together by Victor Ewing of this little village, they came to stand or kneel in silence from 10 a. m. to 11 a. m., hoping that there would be some sign from the Lord in appreciation of their faithfulness.

Divine manifestations or visitations have not been promised by Ewing, but he has asserted that none could tell what might happen and that there was a possibility that God would be present in some definite form.

His plans and beliefs are ridiculed by the local clergy and citizens. Ewing, by profession a traveling eye glass fitter, nevertheless spent months in perfecting his arrangements and broadcasting notices of the meeting. It is Ewing's contention that modern religious services of singing and preaching do not allow the deity to make Himself heard or seen—hence his idea today's mute appeal.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO HANDLE DETAILS AT MONDAY SESSION

Committees that will handle every detail for the Lubbock delegation to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention which meets at Amarillo, June 21, 22 and 23, were appointed yesterday afternoon late by the steering committee composed of F. A. Norman, E. L. Robertson, Spencer Wells, H. L. Allen, and H. D. Woods.

As big a delegation as ever left the gates of a West Texas city, is the goal for the local committees, to send to the convention. Lubbock expects to throw her hat in the ring for the next convention and to stampede the North Plains city with Lubbock delegates to make an aggressive fight to bring the convention to Lubbock next year.

The Lubbock delegations will also give other West Texas cities their money's worth in the delegation parade contest which will be held the second day of the convention, June 22.

The Lubbock High School band will be all dressed up for the occasion and will head the delegation with their usual spirited selections under the direction of James W. Crowley, band master.

The committees that have been selected to look after details of the month-long delegation are: ticket selling committee: G. R. Kuykendall, W. W. Royalty, R. Sherrod, R. F. Bayless, Chas. A. Read, and C. S. Mast.

Delegation, parade and decoration committee: Spencer Wells, Ross McWhorter, and N. H. Wright.

Band arrangements committee: J. B. Maxey, F. A. Norman, and J. W. Crowley.

Publicity committee: Tom Caufield, Bennett Slagle, and Garnet Reeves.

We're going to virtually move Lubbock to Amarillo for the convention, one member of the steering committee stated Monday.

OSAGE CASE IN SUPREME COURT

Dismissal of Charges Wrong, Supreme Body Rules in Ramsey-Hale Case

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 1. —Holding that murder committed upon restricted Indian allotments in Oklahoma is punishable under the Federal laws, the Supreme Court today ruled that the lower courts were in error in dismissing indictments against John Ramsey and William K. Hale for the murder of Henry Roan, an Osage Indian.

Roan was killed on the Osage reservation, and the Federal government contended that the Federal Court had jurisdiction, bringing its fight to the highest tribunal after the Federal District Court for Western Oklahoma had dismissed the proceedings.

Importance Stressed
Pointing out that other murders of Osage Indians had occurred which are now being investigated, the government asserted that it was of the greatest importance to obtain a final ruling.

The court accepted the government's contention that it had been established that the Federal Courts had jurisdiction when murder was committed on an Indian reservation after the land had been allotted in severalty when the government retained title in trust for the Indians. The government insisted the same rule should apply when the allotments had been made under restrictions and other control reserved by the United States.

DIPPING RULE IS GOVERNMENT'S RIGHT, SAID

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP)—Federal authorities have power to enforce cattle dipping in the various states for eradication of the Texas fever tick. The Supreme Court so decided today in a celebrated case, involving a challenge of Federal authority in Georgia, against Oscar Thornton and others and obtained their conviction.

The jury's decision of the Federal government to act was challenged on the ground that the cattle in question was not interstate commerce.

The American Youth and Teacher Award was established as a tribute to American youth and teachers by the Board of Directors of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, through which the people of the United States and the world at large will celebrate the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of American Independence. The exposition will run from June 1 to December 1. Miss Adams' entry blank cited her for heroism displayed recently when she remained inside a burning building helping doctors render first aid to injured firemen. She is a candidate for the Golden Eagle, the highest gift within the hands of the Girl Scouts. Each state will elect a girl and boy and one teacher to represent them and the successful candidates will be the guest of the Sesqui-officials from June 23 to July 5 at the exposition. This will also include a trip to Washington where they will be received by President Coolidge and presented with medals.

COTTON PLANTING IS IMPROVED BY NEW DEVICE

An attachment for use on cotton planters to insure uniform depth of planting and proper packing of the soil around the seed has been perfected by the United States Department of Agriculture. Many cotton-planting machines in the San Joaquin Valley, California, were equipped with these attachments during the planting season of 1925 and without a single exception the growers were enthusiastic over the results.

Drawings and specifications for the planter attachment are shown in a circular just issued. They are sufficient to enable any blacksmith to properly equip a standard cotton or corn planter with the device. Application has been made for the issuance of a public-service patent covering the attachment, thus making it available to all without payment of royalties necessary with privately owned patents.

The use of this device should aid the cotton growers of the irrigated valleys of the Southwest to overcome some of the difficulties experienced every year in securing satisfactory stands of cotton. Sometimes poor stands are the result of immature seed, adverse or unfavorable seasonal conditions, or are due to several other unforeseen factors, but too often they are due to unsatisfactory planting machines.

A special planting problem is often encountered on account of the nature of much of the soil, say the investigators. Some soils dry out so quickly that even in a day or two of drying weather there may not be sufficient moisture left to germinate seed planted in the upper inch or two of the soil. Also care must be exercised to avoid a crust, which forms on many soils as a result of pressure from the planting tool. Practically all commercial planters used in the Southwest are equipped with a type of "runner" shoe which, in opening up the soil, often compacts and glazes the sides of the furrow. Under such conditions the wheel that follows the shoe does not close the furrow properly but leaves a narrow open track of packed earth along the middle of the furrow, which allows the soil around the seed to dry out quickly. Even where no groove is apparent on the surface, investigations may show that the pressing of the soil, especially if a little wet, has closed the groove at the surface but has left a channel underneath, so that the seeds do not have sufficient contact with the soil to start germination.

The newly devised equipment overcomes these objections. A V-shaped scraper somewhat on the order of a snow plow, precedes the planter shoe and levels the soil so that the penetration of the point of the planting machine is at a uniform depth. A small press wheel operates in the furrow just back of the seed spout and passing over the seed immediately after it is dropped presses it firmly into the soil. Two blades follow the press wheel in such a way as to accomplish the covering of the seed and a slight firming of the soil. The planter wheels are set to one side of the seed row to prevent further packing.

A copy of the publication, Department Circular 881-C, may be secured as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

LEGION HAS GOOD MEETING HERE MONDAY NIGHT

One of the best meetings of the year was held Monday night by the local Post of the American Legion when a Memorial Day program was rendered, at which Dr. E. F. George, of the Tech College, was the principal speaker. Approximately 60 members of the Post were in attendance, and partook heartily of the bountiful repast that had been prepared under direction of the Mess Sergeant.

Dr. George in his message paid a glowing tribute to the heroes of all wars in which America has engaged, commending the living as well as the dead, and pleading for the perpetuation of the ideals to which these heroes led by their government have always striven.

"America," he said, "is a peaceable nation, a nation whose leaders have always discouraged wars of conquest, and one of the two nations of the world that emerged from the recent war stronger in almost every way than when she entered."

He said that while it is nothing but fitting that nations should take every means to guard against war in the future, we had just as well try to outlaw the sandstorm, the hail, and the windstorm as to try to outlaw war. This phrase of outlawing war, he said, while a pretty one to catch the mind of the unthinking, is a hopeless proposition, and he urged that we must be ready for the next war when it eventually comes.

Other very enjoyable features of the program was the rendition of a group of Scotch songs of Harry Lauder fame by Alexander Mack, and several selections by the barber shop quartet.

Dr. V. V. Clark, presiding in the absence of Post Commander H. D. Woods, who is on his vacation, called several matters of business to the attention of the Post, including a renewal of the membership campaign for at least an additional fifty members, the probability of entry of a team into the City League this year, and other matters.

Practically the entire membership present pledged themselves to each bring in a new member by the next meeting date two weeks hence when a joint meeting of the Legion and Auxiliary will be held. The Legion is ready for entrance into the City League, committees having been previously appointed to handle this.

An appeal also was issued from the Post Commander that as many as possible attend the organization meeting of a Post at Slaton on Thursday night, June 10, when a delegation of local legionnaires will go to Slaton to assist in the organization. A good delegation is expected to go to Slaton.

The election came on the second ballot today. Professor Moscicki received 281 votes as against 260 for Count Biniski, candidate of the Right parties, and one for M. Marek, Socialist.

Sixty-three ballots were blank. Seven parliamentarians were absent which meant that 274 votes were necessary for election.

Marshal Pilsudski was elected by the assembly yesterday but declined the post because he said the constitution did not protect the chief executive against parliament by giving him

In the background can be seen Memorial Hall, relic of the Centennial, and which is now being used as a museum. It was on this spot that Don Pedro, then Emperor of Brazil, met the 29-year-old inventor and exclaimed, "My God, it talks!" when he heard Bell's voice come over the wire. The exhibits to be staged by the organization these men represent will be one of the great features of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, which opens in Philadelphia June 1 and continues to December 1 to celebrate the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Professor Moscicki was born in 1867. He studied chemistry in Riga University and also in London, and for a time was professor of electro-chemistry and electro-physics in Swiss universities. Later he organized large factories for the manufacture of synthetic fertilizers according to his own patent. After the upper Silesian plebiscite he was made director of the fertilizer works at Chorzow, Poland. When the Hague Tribunal returned Chorzow to Germany he was appointed a professor in Lemberg university.

WHEELER FAVORS SOLONS TALKING

Say Congressmen Should Have Right To Speak For Dry Laws If They Choose

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP)—Defending the propriety of paying members of Congress for speeches favoring prohibition, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League, in a statement published today, said his organization never had paid a Senator or Representative for introducing or championing a bill. His statement was issued in reply to one made public by Representative Tinkham, Republican of Massachusetts, announcing that he intended to introduce a resolution today providing for an investigation by a special house committee to ascertain whether Representative Oranston, Republican of Michigan, or other members had "received money or fees from the Anti-Saloon League or any other organization interested in legislation pending before Congress."

Upholds Ability of Speakers

Holding that a member of Congress "who has ability enough so that the people want to hear him should not be stopped from his service simply because he is a public official," Wheeler asserted that "when a Congressman makes a speech for prohibition, his expenses and sometimes an honorarium is paid by the organization that arranged for it."

Representative Tinkham's charge that the head of the league's "professional lobby has admitted that $2,500,000 was spent in one year and $100,000 in a single Congressional election," brought from Wheeler the statement that "Tinkham's hallucinations about the league spending two and a half million dollars in politics in a year is nonsense." That was the total spent "for all purposes in the height of the campaign for ratification," he went on, and "most of it was spent for educational work." The wets, he countered, "in Pennsylvania alone raised over one million dollars a year to control and corrupt the politics of the state in the saloon days."

He was immediately started on his trip to Marquette.

He Tells Story.
MUSKEGON, Mich., June 1. (AP)—Ann K. Bartlett, 28-year-old Blue Lake township constable, started two years ago to construct the bomb which, sent through the mails, caused the death of August Krubach, his daughter, Janet, and her fiancé, William R. Frank. This was revealed when Bartlett's confession was made public today.

Expected To Use It.
"I thought that maybe I would want to use it," Bartlett explained. It was two years ago that township politics involved Krubach and Bartlett in bitter opposition to each other.

Bartlett in his confession expressed regret that the bomb killed Janet and Frank.

"It was for Krubach alone," he said. "I conceived the idea only last Wednesday of sending the bomb through the mail and I went to Montague and purchased the wrapper stickers and then brought the package directly to the Muskegon postoffice and mailed it," the confession continued. "I did not know the bomb killed Krubach and the other two until I was informed by the officers early Friday morning."

Refusing again the services of an attorney engaged by his father, Bartlett told officers he wanted to be on his way to prison as soon as possible.

Hates To Leave Folks.
"I hate to leave the folks; they need me, but as far as my own life is concerned, it makes no difference; I am content," he said.

Bartlett will be arraigned today. He is expected to waive examination and be immediately taken into Circuit court.

Art of Recovery

Sometimes one is unlucky enough to find one's ball in an almost impossible lie. It may, for example, be tucked up under the near side of a perpendicular bank, or it may be lying near some obstacle in such a position as prevents the player from making a proper swing at the ball. What is one to do under such circumstances as these?

In the first place I advise the player to go over the situation very carefully. Do not be in a hurry to take action. Survey the ground in front, at the side of, and behind the ball. By doing so you may be able to find an unsuspected way out of the difficulty. If you cannot see a straightforward chance of recovery, there is only one thing left; accept the situation calmly and go out for the recovery that appears to be the least perilous.

If you make a sadmess of the hole, to obliterate its memory before you take your next tee shot—difficult advice, but the best I have to offer. (Copyright, 1926, NEA Service, Inc.)

YOUNSTER WINS SPEEDWAY RACES AT INDIANAPOLIS

FRANK LOCKHART, 23, HAS
AVERAGE OF 94.63
MILES PER HOUR

(By the Associated Press)
INDIANAPOLIS, June 1. — Frank Lockhart of Los Angeles, debonair as a campaigner of the bricks and pine boards, though driving his first major engagement, won the fourteenth annual 500 mile race at the Indianapolis motor speedway yesterday. The race was worth slightly more than $40,000 to him, his prizes and accessory trophies and purses amounting to the $20,000 first money. He made his start in California road racing.

The race was halted at the 175 mile mark by rain, which, combined with the oil splattered from twenty-eight racing cars, to make the brick oval too treacherous for safe driving. Renewal of the downpour cut the race short at four hundred miles. The winner averaged 94.63 miles an hour.

Keeps The Lead
Taking his second wind as the leaders neared the century post, young Lockhart forged to the front, where he remained except for a momentary stop at the pits near the end of the race and he was five miles ahead of the field when the white flag sent the tiny racers from the course.

Harry Harts won second prize of $10,000 for the third time in his competition in this race. Cliff Woodbury pulled up third, winning $5,000. Others who placed were Fred Comer, fourth; Peter De Paolo, fifth; Frank Elliott, sixth; Ralph Stratton, seventh; Ralph Hepburn, eighth; Phil Shafer, ninth, and John Duff, tenth.

LOCALS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT FROM PANHANDLE

The Lubbock Hubbers retained their unblemished record in their conquest for baseball supremacy of West Texas when they took the third straight game from the Panhandle Oilers, crack diamond crew of the North Plains, at the Merrill Park Monday afternoon 4 to 1, scoring early for a lead that the visitors could not match.

"Skeeter" Ratliff was in his prime, and except for the ninth inning when the visitors had two men on and nobody out, was never in any real danger. Ratliff held the Oilers to six well scattered bingles, struck out four of them, and was exceptionally stingy with his free bases, not allowing even one.

Burt Hunter, who is a familiar figure on the local diamond by virtue of his performances with the Lamesa club last year, delivered a pretty game, allowing eight hits, whiffing four, and allowing three to reach first on balls.

The shifted line-up presented by Skipper Allen proved as good a combination as has been seen in action this year, with "Red" Hamilton on the receiving end of the battery where he showed a brand of catching not often seen outside professional ball. Hamilton, while he has been playing on the infield all season, is not entirely new to the catching profession, and he took eight chances in Monday's game without a bobbie, in addition to driving out a ringing single out of three trips to the plate.

Roberts, diminutive infielder of the Oilers, who has been seen at second in the two former games, but who was shifted to short Monday, again proved his scientific use of the stick with three safeties out of four trips for half of his team's six hits.

The Hubbers will be away from home Sunday for the first time in several weeks when they meet the Hereford crew at Hereford.

Score by innings: 000 001 000—1 6 4
Panhandle 201 010 004—4 8 1
Lubbock 201 010 004—4 8 1

MAJOR LEAGUERS SHOW NO CHANGE AFTER FULL DAY

TWIN BILLS FAIL TO BE VITAL IN CHANGING OF STANDING

(By the Associated Press)
Memorial Day on major league baseball, passing in an explosion of baseball shells from America's modern heroes of bat and ball, apparently left no wounded in the ranks of major league pennant contenders. Standings today were virtually unchanged as a result of an even division of spoils among all the clubs which were able to complete their schedule of twin conflicts.

The Yankees, beaten back by rain, retained their margin of advantage at the peak of the American as the result of Philadelphia's failure to do better than match victory for victory with the Red Sox. Howard Ehmke limited the Mackmen to six scattered blows in the first game and put them out, 2 to 0, but the Athletics came back in the second contest to rock two Boston hurlers for fourteen hits and an easy triumph, 8 to 2.

Honors Are Evened
Detroit-St. Louis and Chicago-Cleveland struggles also ended with honors even. Twenty-five hits were spread over the first nine inning tilt of the Tigers and Browns, with Cobb's men drawing out a 10-7 victory by a seven run rampage in the last two frames. In the second melee, ended by darkness in the seventh, the Browns balanced the account with a 9-7 triumph, however.

Fitchers' battles featured the Cleveland struggles. Lyons, pitching, 22 scoreless innings against the Indians before they finally knocked him for a lone tally in the eighth, hurled the White Sox to a 3-1 victory in the opener. Manager Tris Speaker, who has had trouble getting into his stride at the plate, benched himself and Jamieson for poor hitting in the second game, which gave the Redskins a chance to come back in 12 innings, 5 to 4.

Pirates Fall Short
The Pittsburgh Pirates failed to loosen Cincinnati's grasp on the top rung. The veteran, Carl Mays, stopped the Reds in the first game, 2 to 1. But three Redland pitchers were unable to check a batting spree by the champions which carried the second game, 9 to 5.

A shower of base hits fell at Chicago, yielding the Cardinals one game at 3 to 1, and the Cubs the other at 4 to 7, but it remained for the New York Giants to set the clotting pace of the day with nineteen safe slams against the Phillies for a 12-1 romp.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

Dr. Alex Hrdlicka, who is a scientist, not a typographical error, is bouncing along in the wilderness trying to find out how the first man got to America and why.

What makes doc's expedition stand out like the third rib of an underfed Latin prof is that he is first scientist to leave from anywhere this year whose forwarding address wasn't the north pole.

It does seem, however, that Mr. Hrdlicka—it came close to being Hrdlicka, didn't it?—might have picked out a less exciting month to go prospecting for historic debris of original American.

What with American League race getting hotter than a jazz singer's tonilla, Dempsey spurning another $1,000,000 fight offer, London strikers resuming loafing on salaried basis and Poland fighting for bigger and better riots.

In order to get first-hand information on how fugitive redskins trickled into this country without aid of timetable, misinformation guide or back-firing tin percheron bearing Detroit trade-mark, the good doctor has a keen idea.

He intends to spade up virgin soil and make scholarly study of whatever he finds, including old buggy wheels, sardine cans, fading Sunday supplements and rain checks from Sullivan-Kilrain fight.

Once assembled in neat array of disorder, doc will turn back his ears to show he has nothing concealed and attempt to translate precious rubbish into original commuter.

No questions will be asked and they will be expected to be answered the same way. Look around now and choose your favorite pedestrian.

AT LAST! MORE THAN LIKELY INVASION OF THIS land of free and home of padlocked was entirely lacking in matters of scientific interest, and materialized, very probably, in this fashion:

FIRST INDIAN: I see where Babe Ruth hit his forty-ninth homer yesterday.

SECOND INDIAN: And Chicago wheat dropped three points.

FIRST INDIAN: The stage today is immoral.

Just the same, Doc Hrdlicka has a big job cut out for himself. It may develop that these two Indians had nothing at all to do with the proposition.

After all it may turn out to be two other Indians.

Infielder making play on batted ball takes one step back so as to be in better position to handle it, and thereby comes into contact with baserunner losing the play. What about it?

The fielder always has the right of way in making a play on a batted ball. The base-runner must avoid him or suffer the penalty.

While in the case cited it might seem the fielder was at fault because he took the unexpected last minute step backward, no consideration can be given this act.

The baserunner must be called out for interference, since he failed to avoid the fielder in the act of making the play.

PASSING THE BUCK

Our friend, Jim Ferguson, is up to his old tricks again. He's passing the buck, as is his usual custom, doing it quite smoothly. This time the buck-passing ceremonial is being held over the remains of the special legislature demand which has been ringing through Texas for months.

There will be no special session until September or October. "The Capital Spokesman," Governor Miriam, said yesterday, which means "there will be no call until we find out who wins the election."

Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson are smart folks. The Ferguson never will deny that. But that their judgment, whether on special legislatures or anything else, is better than that of hundreds of leading citizens, officials and organizations, is hardly logical.

So the great American game of passing the buck has been resorted to again, in spite of the fact that the majority of the people in touch with the situation have gone on record as favoring a called meeting of the solons. Just another case of the opinion of the many being forced down by that of the few—and for the benefit of the latter, for no one will deny that a special session on the highway proposition might be "bad medicine" for the powers that be.

IN RETROSPECT

Fifteen years ago, in a ward school where the old "double desks" were still in vogue, two boys pursued their lessons, after a fashion, and did their best to add to the discomfort of a struggling young teacher.

Day after day, they sat, side by side, sharing each other's joys and sorrows as these two great influences in young boys' lives broke into the routine of the class-room. Autumn passed, winter followed and then came spring, beckoning with all its powers to the average boy who loves the great outdoors.

Then came one Friday and with nerves frayed by a week's class schedule, the boys quarreled during morning recess.

Back to their desks they came at the bell's summons, boylike, each refusing to give away to his natural enmities and do his share toward a reconciliation. Then the noon bell rang.

One of the boys brought back from lunch a pocketful of home made cookies—the kind that every school boy brings from home. And as the afternoon wore on and the teacher's back was turned he'd purloin a bite of cookie, surreptitiously from behind the little fat girl on the bench ahead.

The temptation of the cookies was too much for the other lad and swallowing his pride, he asked for "just one, please, Aw, c'mon." The other, however was obstinate. The cookies added strength to his side of the argument. The other boy pulled back in to his shell. Then school was dismissed until the following Monday.

Saturday passed and the boys, who lived many blocks apart, did not see each other. Sunday afternoon, a beautiful warm day and the one, he who was deprived of the cookie, made his way to the lake in the park nearby.

Three hours later his body, cold in death and horribly mutilated by grappling hooks, was returned to a weeping family. And the other boy didn't know.

About all the effect a badly aimed shot has on some statesmen is to cause them to hurry up and finish the remaining chapters of their memoirs.—Kansas City Star.

The Very Idea!

THAT'S DIFFERENT

They sat out in the moonlight, and their hearts were beating fast. No doubt, they both were wondering just how long 'twas gonna last. Now, quite ruled supremely, you could tell they were afraid, and each one shushed the other when the slightest sound was made.

The neighbors, in the house next door, were at a window pane, a look in and a lookin', but their looks were quite in vain. The fright of both lovers you can surely understand when you know one of the neighbors had a shotgun in his hand.

"I guess we'd better beat it," came a whisper, in a breath. The other did not answer. He was almost scared to death. Another hour they waited. And then they made a sudden dash and cleared the backyards fence. Another romance blasted beneath the moon that shines above. 'Twas just because the lovers sat and howled their bloomin' love. The whole world loves a lover is a true though, now and then. But when they're only all cats—it's something else again.

The first year of his marriage a fellow calls his mother-in-law "say," and after that, "grandma."

IN NEW YORK
SEE-SAWING UP and down
BROADWAY

NEW YORK.—In the crowded, noisy heart of Manhattan's East Side, just over the edge of "brass town" on Allen street, is a unique tenement.

For many years it has been known as "the baby house."

Looking at the horde of children cluttering streets and sidewalks, playing tag about the pushcarts and strolling ball games in defiance of windows, one wonders how any particular place could be singled out as a "baby house."

This particular tenement earned its name because, in a place that houses 50 families, there are 200 babies—yes, 200 babies gathered in one yellow brick dwelling place!

That's the baby population of many a small American town and more than could be found in many blocks walk along fashionable Park avenue.

And the "baby house" is unique also because of its astonishing landlord.

Max Dick is his name, and he loves children.

Several years ago he offered $50 for every pair of twins born in his tenement. This may or may not be responsible for the present population.

But whatever reputation this may have given the landlord he is more widely known because he has never raised the rent whatever the cost of living may have been. Each summer he takes his tenants on a big outing.

The baby house comes into the limelight just now because its existence is threatened. Allen street, which lies unshared under the roaring elevated, is to be widened so that more sun and air will be available.

While strolling about the East Side the other day I met a young lady engaged in finding out the effects of prohibition on the tenement belt.

She was not trying to learn how much had been saved through the absence of the corner bar, but how much had been made through the dealing in bootleg.

Perhaps there is no more incongruous sight in all New York than the line-up of high-priced sedans, limousines and seven-passenger cars in front of many looking tenements. These are, in many cases, the result of "fat profits made in wine selling."

Although they may have become suddenly affluent, even quite rich, the "old folks" have accustomed themselves to the gregarious East Side life where, above all places, the herd instinct seems strongest. Daughters walk from soiled and cobwebbed doorways in expensive coats and sons appear in sleek clothing, but the old folks stick. The East Side is "home" and little seems to be done to improve the dwelling place, even though a $6-99 car be parked outside.

This Is Getting Monotonous

Stewart's
WASHINGTON
LETTERBy CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—Representative James T. McGowan, known as Jim McGowan, candidly admits that he likes his job.

He rather thinks he likes it better than he would a Senate seat.

This isn't hard to understand. In the Senate McGowan would be simply a senator, at any rate for quite awhile, until he had time to get used to it. He's one of the three most powerful members of the house right now.

The three are Speaker Longworth, Representative John Q. Tilson, majority floor leader, and Jim McGowan, assistant leader.

McGowan is chairman, also of the house foreign affairs committee, which is one of the most important of them all.

But don't imagine that he confines himself exclusively to foreign affairs. His activities are manifold. He can kill things he doesn't like. At his bidding, things he does like thrive, and wax fat and hearty.

These are among the things he can do, and he does 'em all the time.

Naturally Jim is busy, but, believe me, he isn't hurried or fussed.

Wanting to see him, I dropped into his office the other day. He doesn't hang out in the house office building, like an ordinary representative. He has a private quarters in the Capitol itself.

There he was, sitting behind a perfectly clear desk, resting himself, apparently with not a thing in the world on his mind. The idea is, I take it, he's an executive. He manages. Others do the physical toiling and moping while he works his brain.

A THOUGHT

We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair.—1 Corinthians 4:8.

GIVING HER THE HIGH HAT

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"Nancy, Nancy! Quick—wake up!" cried Nick. "Flops and Inco have run off!"

"What?" cried Nancy, sitting up in bed and rubbing her eyes. "What's wrong?"

"I just saw Inco, our china elephant door-slop with the roses painted all over him, and Flops, my circus clown jump out of the window. It's as light as day outside with the moon and I saw everything. They're gone."

"I suppose," said a tiny person, who appeared suddenly on a moonbeam, "that they have gone to Drowsy Land."

"Drowsy Land!" cried both Twins together. "Where is it and how do you get there?"

"On a moonbeam," said the Fairy Queen, for that is who it was, this tiny creature sitting there in the air.

so comfortably on nothing at all but a streak of light. "You get there on a moonbeam, for Drowsy Land is on the moon."

"Why do you think Inco and Flops went there?" asked Nick.

"Well, it's a secret," said the Fairy Queen. "But I don't mind telling you as you are sure to find out anyhow. Inco got tired of being called 'queer' because he was sprigged all over like wallpaper. So he decided to go to a place where nothing is queer. Nothing is queer in Drowsy Land. It is the queerest place on earth. I mean on the moon."

"Oh dear! I guess we weren't very kind to the poor darling," said Nancy. "I never noticed him at all lately. I didn't think he had any feelings and here he had all the time."

"He mentioned it," said the Fairy Queen. "He said it was trying to be neither a toy nor a real animal—that no one cared for a door-stop!"

"Why, I just loved him so I did!"

"Come back, I know."

Suddenly a wallpaper bunny spoke up. "If he'll just come back and stand by the door as he used to, I'll be more friendly, too! I'll wiggle my ears at him six times a day."

"And I'll wiggle my tail," said a wallpaper duck.

"And I'll blink my eyes at him in my friendliest fashion," said a wallpaper squirrel.

"And I'll sing him a song," said a painted bird on the bureau.

"And I'll flutter my wings," said a butterfly.

"Very well," said the Fairy Queen, "sitting two pairs of magic shoes down the moonbeam so that they landed on the floor between the two little beds. 'Get up and dress yourselves quickly, children, and put on these shoes. If you wish to go to Drowsy Land, it must be done before moon-down.'"

Helpful Health Hints

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Director General U. S. Public Health SurveyBy DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Surgeon General, United States
Public Health Service.

THE HEART

The heart is a muscle pump with four sets of valves and supplies the motive force for the blood through a closed system of tubes, or blood vessels.

It is supported in a tough sack, which contains some fluid, so that the pump works in a fluid without much friction, and is divided into a right and left portion by a partition of muscle.

The right side of the heart drives the blood only through the lungs and the return flow from the lungs empties into the left side.

The left side of the heart sends the blood out through the rest of the body from the brain to the feet and the return flow empties into the right side.

Valves Prevent Backwash. When the heart beats or contracts in its right and left halves, to squeeze the blood into the vessels, the valves come into play to prevent a backwash and keep the blood moving in the right direction.

The work and rate of the heart is regulated through a sort of "remote control." If the muscles need blood in order that you may jump, messages of impulses are sent over the nerves to the heart for an increased speed of supply and the heart beats faster.

The blood vessels are normally very elastic and assist, by their elasticity, in propelling the blood. They are not of one size, however, but start as large as large trunk vessels near the heart and branch and rebranch, as does a tree, until the final twigs are very small capillaries which let the blood through in a slow, fine stream only.

These small vessels are also under the system of "remote control," and when the brain sends the message that you are embarrassed, the little vessels are opened wider and you blush.

The causes of damage to the heart and vessels may be considered in two groups, as physical or mechanical, and chemical or poisonous. An example of mechanical injury is that which may come through sudden strain, such as that demanded by a young lad of high school age, who runs in mile races.

May Stretch Muscle. The heart muscle may be permanently stretched in such a race. A similar result may be produced by prolonged exertion, such as mountain climbing by one unaccustomed to it.

If the heart is gradually accustomed to these tremendous physical strains it can usually get in training and accommodate itself, though not always.

Mechanical injuries are, however, less frequent and of less consequence than those caused by the bacteria of infectious diseases. These often occur in early childhood.

All of the infectious diseases of childhood may damage the heart or vessels, but scarlet fever, diphtheria or membranous croup, tonsillitis, and rheumatic affections are very apt to injure either the valves or muscles of the heart and to affect the blood vessels to some degree.

Other damaging bacterial diseases, or infections, which occur often a little later in life, are the pneumonia, typhoid fever, influenza, abscesses of teeth or of joints or in the nose cavities or sinuses.

These bacteria and their poisons produce inflammation in the lining of the heart and vessels or in the valves and muscular walls. This inflammation is followed by scars, often resulting in a badly fitting valve or a weak muscle or vessel.

Then there are those gradual changes known as degenerative or general wear and tear. These are probably at heart intensified by the poisonous materials absorbed by the blood during improper intestinal or kidney elimination and sometimes even during hard physical work. Finally there are the injuries due to poisons, such as alcohol, lead and other metals.

LIFTING TOO MUCH

Towns, like balloons, cannot make with dead weight. Either must discard excess ballast if it expects to get anywhere.

Frightened with an indifferent attitude on the part of its citizens, unfair criticism or sentiment injurious to local business, a municipality is unable to overcome stagnation and will sink to earth with its burden.

Though Memphis is not lacking in home-town pride, there may be bits of ballast here and there which could well be eliminated in order to lighten the load, which all of us must carry. Toss apathy, out-of-town buying and lack of cooperation overboard and the town will have smoother sailing on its journey to success.—Memphis Democrat.

Just Like Politics.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer: "So you are trying to get married again?" said the friend. "What's the idea?"

"I want to be vindicated," declared the man whose wife had divorced him.

$5,000 Needed At Once For Work On Improving Boy Scout Camp Site Near Post, Report Of Engineers Sets Out

Not less than $5,000 will be required within the next few days to carry on the contemplated improvement work at the boy scout camp ground on the tract recently donated by the Post to the South Plains Area council of boy scouts, according to a preliminary report filed with scout headquarters here Tuesday morning by scout officials following an inspection of the site Sunday and Monday by engineers of Lubbock and the Santa Fe railroad who are interested in the project.

Harry N. Roberts, Consulting Engineer of Lubbock, and Engineers Klammer and Peavy, of the Santa Fe made the inspection with scout officials, and outlined the needed improvements and the costs of same, which include a dam across the canyon for a lake, a mess hall, and improvements to the old ranch building that is on the site.

Dam Is Large One
The dam, which will be 100 feet from end to end, will be 120 feet wide at the bottom and 10 feet across the top, to be of dirt construction, with a clay core if this can be secured, or if not, to be of wood core, according to preliminary plans. The feet above the site for the dam is a 20 foot waterfall, and the water would be backed up to fall, ranging in depth from five or six feet to about fifteen feet near the dam. The lake will be only about 200 yards from the picturesque old house on the tract, and would be stocked with fish and equipped with boats. The estimated cost of the dam has been fixed at approximately $1,600.

The plans also provide for the erection of a mess hall on a promontory overlooking the canyon and lake, this hall to be 34x125 feet sufficient for the accommodation of about 230 boys. The mess hall would be a screened-in shed, so that flies could be kept out. The hall will cost approximately $1,500 under preliminary figures.

Reservoir Planned
The construction of a reservoir for surplus water supply for use during the annual camp of the boys also is planned with a capacity of about 15,000 gallons that would be set aside for domestic purposes only. This would cost approximately $1,000 under plans. In the opinion of scout officials, these improvements are absolutely essential within the next sixty days, for the annual camp will be held in August, and it is the plan to have the camp ready at least in part by this time.

R. J. Murray has been placed in charge of the finance committee, that will raise the needed finances, and will launch the campaign within the next few days, it was said Tuesday. The expenses under which the tract was deeded over to the scouts calls for the expenditure of this amount within a stipulated time, and it is the plan to rush the construction as fast as possible.

"Scotty" Samson, contractor, of Post, will be in charge of the construction work, and as he has had a great deal of experience in work of this nature, officials believe that no better man could have been secured.

COOLIDGE ASKS COMMON SENSE IN PEACE PARLEYS

WASHINGTON, June 1.—"Common sense" must be the keynote to America's contribution to world peace, as well as the controlling force in her conduct at home, President Coolidge said yesterday in a Memorial Day address at Arlington National cemetery. The role of practical possibilities he applied to the Geneva arms negotiations, and to many domestic problems, he renewed his belief in "The Principles of Religious Liberty and Tolerance and Equality of Rights," in an adequate national defense, in the world.

CONVICTED MAN IS LIVING HIS WAR CAREER AGAIN

HUNTSVILLE Texas, June 1. (AP)—Behind the prison walls here exists a man who killed his sweetheart and who asked to die in the electric chair for the crime. He is Georges R. Xexnot, the Frenchman, who in 1923 at Houston killed the girl he loved, because she returned to him his engagement ring.

Xexnot saw four years of hell when the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse rode with fury through the heart of Belgium and across the historic lands of Northern France during the World War. Two years he served in the French Infantry and two years he served in the 25th French Observation Squadron. He carries more than 20 scars of wounds he received during the great conflict.

Medals for heroism were pinned on his military tunic. He himself does not remember for what or whence they all came, for he barely exists.

And in these old walls of sighs and sorrow, over which an aviator speeds now and then, Xexnot shudders and shrieks when he hears the hum of an airplane's motors. He lives again then the horrors of war, his raids on the German trenches and his crashes when death came nigh.

He said he longed for death or his home in Vichy and has no immediate hopes for either. He is serving a term of from five years to life imprisonment. He said he wished he might have died when his loved one died. Somewhat defiant he hesitated to answer why he killed his sweetheart, but then with a hasty shrug of his shoulders said, "I loved her. I was happy. She returned my ring. Something came over me. There was nothing left. Well, I shot, but it seems a blank, all except the smoking revolver and her lying there, dead."

JOHN and FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, think they are justified in buying a home of their own when the young advertising agency in which John is a partner lands an important new contract.

John does all the firm's advertising copy writing. His partner, NATHANIEL GRAHAM, takes care of the business details.

Previous chapters told how John, while Fay was in the hospital, met NELL ORME at a swimming party and was attracted by her beauty and puzzled when PAT FORBES, his host, told him Nell was having trouble with her husband. Forbes, who has a wife and three children, hints to John that he is dissatisfied with his own marriage.

Shortly after the Milburns settle in their new home they give a housewarming and PAUL DAVIDSON, a bachelor lawyer who is also something of an amateur actor, precipitates an argument by declaring marriage is a barbarous institution.

One of Fay's neighbors, a MRS. BLODGETT, calls, and Fay thinks she is an "old snop." Their baby, JUDITH, passes through a siege of whooping cough and John's best friend, DR. DICK MENEFEE, treats her. Menefee is engaged to MARGARET WAYNE and the wedding is set for October 15. Margaret's sister, CLARA, gives a party in honor of her own fiancé, CLIFTON LANE, whom John instantly dislikes. He speaks high-sounding of his brokerage business and his golf, but John thinks he is a four-flusher, and tells Fay.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.) Another thing that irritated John was Lane's habit of saying "cad." It seemed to pop out of him with every sentence. John also got the impression from Lane's conversation that he shot eighteen holes of golf in the low eighties.

Fay asked Clara, "When are you going to get married?" "Oh," Clara answered carelessly, "some time in the winter, I guess. Not too soon after Dick's and Margaret's wedding."

"Poor Dick Menefee," said Fay to John on the way home. "I'm afraid people will think that Clara, and not Margaret is landing the real prize."

"Oh, I dare say Clara's wedding will be a fussy affair," John answered. "But I have no doubt about which of the two is the better man. I think Clifton Lane is the bunk."

"You mustn't judge on appearances," counseled Fay. "I'm not. As appearances go, he's a hundred per cent. but I think he's a four-flusher, just the same. Did you hear him saying 'cad' all evening?"

Clara and Lane filled his thoughts as he sought sleep, and he dreamed of Clara that night, dreamed of flaking her by the hand and climbing high mountain peaks, there to watch the glittering sea beyond.

It could never have occurred to him—he had no reason to suspect—the thing that Clara Wayne and Clifton Lane were planning.

CHAPTER XIV

The wedding of Margaret Wayne and Dick Menefee had been set for October 15. Two weeks before, while the Wayne household was in the midst of half hysterical preparation, Clara Wayne and Clifton Lane ran off and got married.

Fay and John were in the middle of a discussion concerning raising the pay of the girl they had come in to take care of Judith when they went out at night, when the phone rang and Dick Menefee's voice broke the news to John.

John said the first thing that popped into his mind. "What a cheap theatrical trick—but you won't let it make any difference to yours and Margaret's plans, will you, Dick?"

"Not a chance," said Menefee grimly. "We're going right ahead with them. Clara said in her telegram that she would be back to be Margaret's maid of honor. Matron of honor now, I guess, and he laughed."

"Where did they get married, Dick?"

"In Tulsa, Lane's home town. She took a train and met him up there, and they left on a motor trip."

John hung up the receiver and met Fay's questioning eyes.

"Clara and Lane ran off together and got married," he announced, and Fay, after exclaiming once, was stricken wordless with surprise.

"I told you," he continued, "I didn't like that guy Lane. Now I like him even less, if that's possible."

"But Margaret," snapped Fay. "Think of the awful thing Clara has done to her."

"Eh? What do you mean?"

"Refusing to let her older sister get married first. After all the plans had been made. It's the most selfish thing I ever heard of."

"Oh, well," said John, "trying to justify Clara somehow. Maybe Clara didn't look at it just that way. Maybe she's just puffy about this guy Lane and snapped him up when he proposed an elopement."

"Nothing of the kind," said Fay sharply. "You can't tell me that Clara hasn't had this planned for a long time. My! I feel so sorry for Margaret I don't know what to do."

"Well, she won't need your sympathy. She's marrying Dick Menefee, and the wedding's only two weeks off. That ought to make her happy enough."

"Oh, you men!" exclaimed Fay impatiently. "You never will understand."

"I admit," said John, a little nettled, "that the workings of the feminine mind sometimes are a little bit beyond me. I guess I don't understand. To me it looks as if Lane and Clara were trying to grab off the spotlight for a while, but their elopement will be a thing of the past soon and Margaret's wedding will be the main issue. Besides, by eloping they won't get as many presents as they would have if they had waited."

"Oh, you make me tired," snapped Fay. "This thing was Clara's doing all the way through. Imagine—marrying ahead of her older sister that way!"

John retreated to his book.

Four days before the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Lane returned to Dallas, were forgiven by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne and Margaret, and immediately threw themselves into the preparations for Margaret's wedding, as if in atonement for their sins.

There was a dress rehearsal the afternoon of the 14th, and John had to step through his paces as Dick's best man. He chanced to overhear a remark to Dick from Clifton Lane and only a quick realization of how wrong it would be prevented him from making an angry retort.

"Dick," Lane said, either not knowing or not caring that John was around, "it seems to me that you might have asked me to be best man. Keep it all in the family, you know. I standing up for you, you know, and Clara for Margaret."

John, standing behind a hanging that separated living room from reception hall, reddened angrily at the drawing voice.

But Dick answered Lane shortly and John was surprised at the easy going Menefee's sharpness. "It seems to me," he said evenly, "that the groom has few privileges enough as it is, without questioning his choice of best man." He turned on his heel.

John heard nothing further. "Good old Dick," he exclaimed.

There was a dinner, for a few close friends and relatives, the night before the wedding, and the elder Waynes broke a rule and served cocktails—the only occasion that John had ever seen liquor in any form at the house.

Mr. Wayne, a little sad, got up and in a few words proposed a toast. Then he called on Menefee.

Dick, blushing and inarticulate, could only murmur something about realizing the honor of it all, and the happiness that was in store for him, and sat down. John thought that Lane looked at Dick rather contemptuously.

"And how about you, Clifton?" said Mr. Wayne, looking toward Lane. "Haven't you a toast to propose to the bride and groom?"

"Gad!" said Lane, rising. "Feel as if I should be toasted myself. Has the novelty of my own marriage worn off so soon?" He then proceeded to acquit himself of a polished speech, and John felt immeasurably sorry for Dick and an increasing hostility toward Lane.

Out of the fog of his thoughts he became aware that his own name was being spoken, and rising he delivered himself of a toast that he had been planning ever since they sat down. It was intended to be humorous and at the same time quite in keeping with the occasion, but somehow with Lane listening to him it seemed to him to fall flat.

Big Spring Starts Its Paving Program

Big Spring has successfully launched its paving program and work will start on or about June 10th. Twenty blocks including the business district will be paved, using Uvalde Rock Asphalt. First street will be widened on feet between Humada and Dodge streets. There is already being laid two miles of double system 8-in. water mains at a cost of $30,000. It looks as if the water works revenue will be able to defray all expenses on this permanent improvement without the issuing of bonds.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of three to five points on the fairly steady showing of Liverpool over the local holiday, and reports of rains in the Southwest. Home local traders thought these rains might be beneficial, but the more general impression was they were not needed, and the market showed net advances of about four to nine points at the end of the first hour, July selling around 18.46c, and December 17.62c.

Trading remained very quiet, prices later sagging off slightly under realizing. There was favorable comment on the prospect for showers in the Carolinas. At mid-day the market was selling around 18.41c for July and 17.41c for December, or about net unchanged to 5 points higher.

No fresh new features developed in the early afternoon. December contracts ruled around 17.60c at 2 o'clock when the general list was net 1 to 5 points higher.

NEW ORLEANS FUTURES

NEW ORLEANS, June 1. (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady: July 18.46c; October 17.58c; December 17.62c; January 17.53c; March 17.53c.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON
NEW ORLEANS, June 1. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady notwithstanding that Liverpool was lower than July. Prices were supported by a private crop report making the condition 65 per cent of normal, the decrease of average 2.3 per cent and the season, 18 days late. First trades showed unchanged to a gain of one point, the market later improving with July at 18.70c, October 17.85c and December at 17.28c, or 5 to 6 points above yesterday's close. The weather map showed showers in the Western belt and the Northern portion of the Eastern belt. At the end of the first hour the market was steady and was held under the early high.

Following the advance of the first hour of trading the market became quiet and prices eased off owing to private advice that the crop was making favorable progress in all sections except the drought area in Georgia and the Carolinas. While July did not make a new low it sold off to 17.50c or within one point of the early low. New crop positions made new lows with October at 17.15c and December at 17.15c. At mid-session prices were steady around the lows.

The market ruled quiet, after mid-session and prices hung around the lows while December made a new low at 17.05c, or 6 points under the early high. There was an absence of new developments.

NEW ORLEANS FUTURES

NEW ORLEANS, June 1. (AP)—Cotton opened steady: July 17.75c; October 17.20c; December 17.22c.

COTTON SEED OIL
NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—The cotton seed oil market became quite an excitement during the morning and August contracts sold at 15.00c or 9 points while July advanced 75 points, the cause of the advance is attributed to strong statistical position of crude oil.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

CHICAGO, June 1. (AP)—Notwithstanding correct assumptions that private crop estimates of the 1926 domestic yield of wheat would take a bullish showing today, wheat values here underwent an early downturn. Wide-spread beneficial rains in this country and a sharp decline in Liverpool quotations were largely responsible. Wheat opened 5 cents to 2 cents down, and showed but little power to rally. Corn and oats were easy, corn starting 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ off and later declining a little more. Provisions were firmer.

Outsmarting the opposition is the keynote of every good ball club. The smart clubs always get farther than the dumb ones.

Baseball places a distinct premium on brains. The player who hopes to reach stardom must constantly be matching his wits against the opposition and, incidentally, must get the decision in a majority of the cases.

Proper playing of second base is like any other part of the game—you must study the situation in front of you.

More mechanical play around second base won't get you very far. Playing all batters and runners in the same manner means failure. The smart batters and the wise base-runners will make life miserable for any fielder whom they can outsmart. They are quick to perceive any advantage and never fail to profit by it.

The second baseman must have an inside working knowledge of every opposing batter that steps to the plate. He also knows that every pitcher is going to pitch to the weakness of each batter that faces him. Knowing these things, he can position himself accordingly.

It is a baseball truth that some novice is far more liable to put a play over on an infielder than an experienced veteran, simply because neither fielder, pitcher or catcher are familiar with the strength or weakness of the batsman or runner. However, it doesn't take long to learn these things.

That explains how some players, new to the majors, gets away to a flying start only to falter and be eased out of the picture just when fans are about ready to receive the recruit into stardom.

Baseball is a survival of the fittest. The weakness of every player soon becomes general knowledge, common gossip, and the athlete suffers as a result.

Barrier Bros. Beat Sherrod In Diamond Encounter Monday

In the second preliminary warm-up session preceding the regular opening of the city league here in the near future, a date for which has not yet been definitely set, the crew from Barrier Bros. took a well earned victory Monday afternoon from Sherrod Bros. on Tech field, the final count being 7 to 6 as far as could be told.

Stalnaker, right handed moundman for the Barrier nine went out toward the latter stages of the abbreviated contest in favor of White, while Tom Worthington, went the entire route for Sherrod Bros. Worthington, however, unaccustomed to such strenuous exercise as is required in the sport weakened toward the last, and could barely heave the agent to the plate. He was pounded hard by the Barrier sluggers.

B. Sherrod, elongated infielder of the squad that bore his name in the contest, jerked a "charley horse," and was still hobbling slightly Tuesday morning in addition to numerous aching joints.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR DIES

NEW HIGH MARK IN ENROLLMENT AT BAYLOR

BELTON, Texas, June 1. (AP)—Baylor college enrollment for the term just ending reached the total of 2,372. Of this number 1,658 were college students. The academy students numbered 632. This is the largest enrollment in the history of the institution.

The enrollment this year included students from six foreign countries, and from twenty-one states in the United States. Mexico, Central America, Brazil, China, England and Germany were represented, sending a total of eleven students. Mexico headed the list with three from Monterrey, and one each from Tampico, Coahuila, and Chihuahua. Central America sent two from Punta Orensa, while one student each was enrolled from Brazil, China, England and Germany.

Of other states represented Louisiana leads with 29 students. Mississippi had 24, Oklahoma 21, Arkansas 14, New Mexico 10, and Tennessee five. Three students each were enrolled from Alabama and Kentucky, while Colorado, Missouri, North Carolina, and Utah each sent two. There was one student each from Arizona, Florida, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota, New York, South Carolina, South Dakota and Washington.

Enrollment of Texas girls included students from more than 200 counties. Dr. J. C. Hardy, president, said the large enrollment this year is more than gratifying in view of the fact that economic conditions during the past year have been depressing in this section.

There is a greater increase in the number of students in the upper classes this year than ever before. The Junior usually the smallest, had approximately the same enrollment as it did last year. The senior class, which usually shows a loss, had 169 students in comparison with 152 of last year.

The freshman class this year was the largest in the history of Baylor college, there being 700, an increase of 43 over the enrollment last year.

CUPID GOES WELL WITH EDUCATION RECORDS SHOW

CANYON, June 1.—It was formerly supposed that when young people married their education so far as school or college was concerned was over. The senior class of the West Texas State Teachers College seems to prove conclusively that this old idea like many others has been exploded.

In this class there are two married couples who will receive degrees. They are Mr. L. H. Rhodes and Mrs. Jewell Gilbreath Rhodes, and W. Byron Durham and Luella Oatis Durham.

Besides these two couples there are other members of the senior class whose better halves are also students of the college. Ray Daniel, president of the class, and his wife and daughter have all been students together during the past two years. Dewey Reed, another senior, is closely followed by his wife who is a Junior. James Wilson will receive his degree at the same time that his wife completes her freshman work. Mrs. Earl Brandt is also a member of the graduating class.

Married Students do Good Work

Of the senior members of the Lloyd Green Allen Scholarship Society five are married. A total of 59 students in the West Texas State Teachers College are married. The entire list from freshmen to seniors represents students of more than ordinary ambition. Many of these have already had experience as teachers and are preparing themselves to continue in the profession. The eldest married student in the college is 57 and the youngest is nineteen. The president of the Junior class, Irvy Carruth, is a married man. Most of these married students live in the Panhandle of Texas; a few come from New Mexico. A number of them own homes in Canyon and become so attached to the college and town that no matter where they go to teach they will think of Canyon as home.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature Association.

Somehow the polar bear in the zoo always seems pitiful to me. He belongs to the icebergs and barrens of the arctic.

I often have wished to spend time in his native haunts, but the talk I had the other day with Capt. Johan Menander, the explorer, was almost as good as an arctic trip.

The good captain, incidentally, ran away to sea when just a lad and has made many trips to the frozen lands of the north that are such a center of interest this year.

Locked in the pack ice east of Spitzbergen on one of his trips, Capt. Menander was aloft in the crow's nest, with Nature and two white cubs, apparently out looking for dinner.

"At times," the captain said, "the mother would rise on her hind legs in an upright position to get a better view. Finally she located a seal, fitfully sleeping on the edge of an ice floe, about a half mile from the ship. The mother seemed to hold a conversation with the cubs, instructing them to lie down and keep quiet, while she went away to get their dinner."

The two little ones did as they were told, and the old lady snooked up towards her prey. First one of them stood up and then the other. The mother apparently knew her babies, because I noticed that she several times looked back to see if they were behaving themselves.

"When she caught them in their act of disobedience, she immediately returned and cuffed them about with her forepaws. I don't doubt she gave them a real thrashing, if they forgot themselves again."

The cuffed apparently had the intended effect, since the little ones stayed put. The mother again advanced towards the seal, crawling on her belly, and taking advantage of every hummock that offered cover. The closer she advanced towards her prospective meal, the more cautious she became. The color of the polar bear resembles that of the snow and over the snow covered ice, the bear is practically invisible, except for the black tip of the nose.

The bear is fully aware of its conspicuous nose, and I noticed that as often as the stalking animal was in plain view to the seal, she covered up the nose with one huge forepaw, slowly pushing herself ahead with the hind legs.

"Finally she slid off the ice into a lead, dived and swam under a cake of ice to emerge from the water, and with one mighty spring appeared in front of the terrified seal."

"One swing of the powerful paw was sufficient to assure dinner."

DYNAMITE HOUSE PRIOR TO TRIAL

Brother of Star Witness in Sacco-Vanzetti Case Has His House Blown Up

(By the Associated Press)

WESTBRIDGEWATER, Mass., June 1.—The home of Samuel Johnson, brother-in-law of Mrs. Simon Johnson, one of the star witnesses for the State in the Sacco-Vanzetti prosecution, was dynamited this morning but Johnson and seven members of his family escaped uninjured. The house was demolished.

The blast was heard and felt ten miles away. Although hurled from their beds and severely shaken, members of the Johnson family otherwise were unharmed.

Near Vanzetti Home

The Johnson home is about a mile from that formerly occupied by Bartolomeo Vanzetti, who with Nicola Sacco, was tried and convicted for murder in connection with the robbery of a paymaster in South Braintree on April 15, 1920.

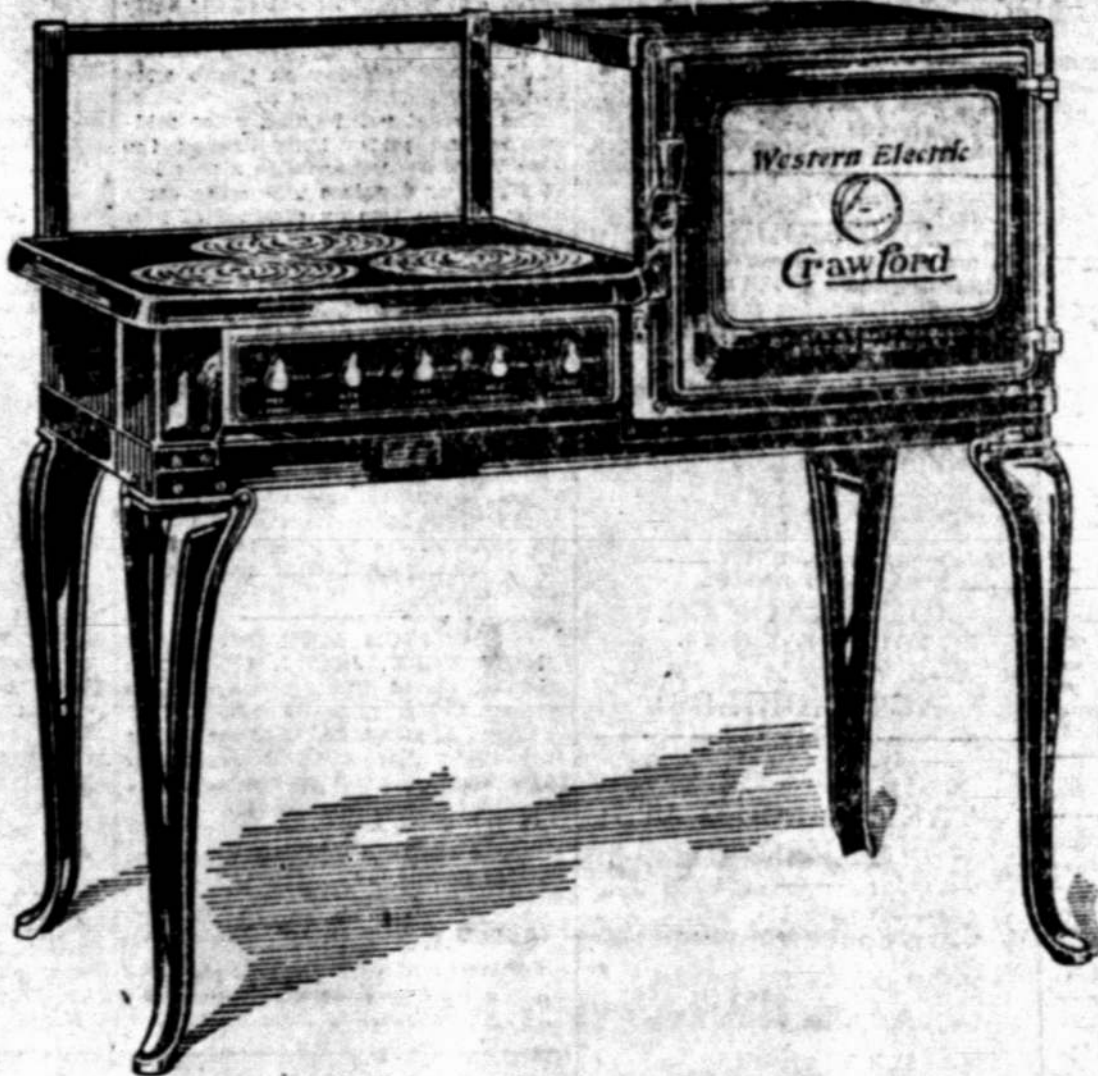

The case attracted international interest and radicals in many countries undertook to raise funds for the defense. When the men were convicted, numerous bombings were attributed to sympathizers and when the Massachusetts Supreme Court recently refused to allow an appeal, the decision was followed by the bombing of the United States embassy in Argentina.

Counsel for the defendants has announced plans for a move to obtain a new trial. In the meantime, a sentence of death has been stayed.
