CHAMBERLAIN IN PRAISE OF PEACE PLANS

By United Press
LONDON, April 18.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today praised President Roosevelt's message and indicated that the maintenance of the independence of the Netherlands, Switzerland, and Denmark was of the greatest importance to the new coalition front against aggression.

The prime minister told the House of Commons that the government is continuing closest cooperation with other powers, including the Soviet Union, for adherence to the anti-aggression bloc.

Chamberlain did not, however, mention Turkey, although it was understood that negotiations to bring Turkey into the United Nations might be completed this week.

Progress in the creation of a barrier to future aggression in line with military defenses already given to Rumania and Poland, Chamberlain said that the British government was maintaining "all necessary contacts in military and matters," with the government involved.

He declared that, while the government has no definite commitments to the Netherlands, Rumania or Denmark, the government is interested in the preservation of their independence and aggression.

The prime minister was warmly applauded when he referred to the "great satisfaction" of the British government, in connection with Mr. Roosevelt's peace message.

Pioneer Operator In This Area Is Dead at Ft. Worth

PORT WORTH, April 18.—Col. Robert David Gordon, 53, pioneer oil operator in West Texas fields, died Monday.

Colonel Gordon, born in Aldenburg, Germany, of Scotch parents, came to this country at the age of 6. He served nineteen years in the United States Army, and was a Lieutenant Colonel on the general staff of the First Division during the war. He was gassed during service overseas.

Immediately after the war he was transferred to the War College in Washington, but he soon gave up his military career to become an oil operator in West Texas. He was one of the early operators in the region around Ranger, and is credited with discovery of the Lake Eastland pool. Later he acquired interests in East Texas.

Gunman Holds Up Thorndale Bank; Escapes With Loot

By United Press
THORNDALE, April 18.—A gunman today held up the Thorndale State Bank and escaped with approximately $1,200.

A plainly-dressed young man walked into the bank during the noon hour, and accosted Alvin Heintze, the bookkeeper, who was alone in the bank. The holdup man pointed a small pistol, Heintze said, and told him, "This is a case of life or death, because I have got to have the money."

Heintze said the money was removed from the teller's cage, but bank officials said another $400 was overlooked.

Heintze was put in the bank vault, but the door was not locked and local and state officers were notified immediately.

Jugoslavia Calls Out 50,000 Soldiers

By United Press
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, April 18.—Jugoslavia has called up approximately 50,000 soldiers since the Italian occupation of Albania, it was understood today, and has made plans to double the number of troops under arms shortly.

The army will be brought to a strength estimated at between 250,000 and 300,000.

Eleemosynary Bill Cuts Appropriation

By United Press
AUSTIN, April 18.—An $870,000 reduction in the biennial appropriation for eleemosynary institutions in Texas was approved today by the house of representatives.

The appropriation for 1939 to 1941, as sent to the senate, is for $14,332,622, about $870,000 less than the 1937 to 1939 appropriation.

Adolf Hitler Is Back In Berlin For Anniversary

By United Press
BERLIN, April 18.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler returned, unexpectedly, to Berlin today as a powerful German battle fleet sailed for the month of maneuvers at the western end of the Mediterranean.

Special interest was attached to the maneuvers of the 40 Nazi fighting ships, because of the concentration of British, French, Italian and possibly some Soviet war vessels in the Mediterranean.

Hitler's return from Austria, two days in advance of a gigantic celebration, planned for his 50th birthday on Thursday, was described by the propaganda ministry as due to completion of his military inspection earlier than expected.

Elsewhere, however, it was believed that he had returned to consult with Air Marshal Hermann Goering, who arrives this evening from conversations with Premier Mussolini at Rome in connection with the totalitarian bloc's reply to President's peace message.

Leo Hatten From Eastland Has Part In Student Confab

Leo Hatten of Eastland was elected by the student body at John Tarleton College as a representative to the student conference held at that institution Saturday.

This conference discussed various student problems at Tarleton, and submitted to the Dean of the school a number of recommendations. Nominations for the publication staffs and yell leaders were also made. Among the items discussed were questions concerning student organizations raising money, student dances, and discipline. At the conclusion of the conference a dinner was served the group in the banquet room of the college dining hall.

TUCC Office Will Be Closed Friday

It was stated that persons who have Texas Unemployment Compensation claims due Friday should present them Saturday at the office before noon.

Life Is Pleasant On An Easy Street

PITTSFIELD, Me.—Life on "Easy" street is very pleasant. The 25-year-old street was cut and named by Col. Walter G. Morrill, as an advertisement for the town.

The five houses on Easy street are occupied by: an undertaker, railroad station agent, insurance agent, bank receiver and a school teacher.

COOPERATION IN MEET NEEDS IS SOLICITED

Eastland citizens Tuesday were asked cooperation in the making of arrangements for a meeting of the State Foreign Missionary Convention, Colored Baptist Church organization.

The meeting will be held May 16-21 at the First Baptist Church, colored, in Eastland. The missionary organization of the Eastland church will be in charge of arrangements for the meeting.

Between 150 and 200 delegates are expected.

It was emphasized that the society will need to borrow beds, cots, mattresses, pillows, springs and linen in order to make arrangements for the numerous delegates to attend the meeting.

Also it was pointed out that all material borrowed will be returned in the same condition as which it was previous to the loan. The following persons will arrange for someone to call and borrow the material and see that it is returned. They are number of telephones at which they may be contacted: Gloria West, 270; Pearl Johnson, 621-J; Ozono Johnson, 453, and Eva Brisby, 472.

Announce Change In Liquor Board Set-Up of Sector

ABILENE, April 18.—V. L. Delaney, transferred here in late February from Mount Pleasant assumed duties yesterday as acting supervisor of the Texas Liquor Control board's Abilene district.

He succeeds S. C. Carruth, who had been in charge of the local office the past two months. Carruth, a deputy supervisor on call for duty throughout the state, was shifted to Wichita Falls. He had been here most of the time since January.

John W. Coates remains supervisor of the Abilene district. He has been relieved of his duties since February 1, however, because of ill health.

Notice of the change in assignments had been received yesterday in a letter from C. A. Paxton, chief supervisor. DeLaney formerly lived in Greenville.

Other inspectors for the Abilene district are E. S. Crider and Fred Moore, both working out of the local office; Ray Hardwick, assigned to Sweetwater, and Tom Warren, assigned to Brownwood.

Seamen On Tanker Go Out On Strike

By United Press
NEW YORK, April 18.—A strike of approximately 5,000 seamen, employed on tankers of five companies, became effective last night, the deadline set by the National Maritime Union, for the companies to meet union demands for preferential hiring halls and rotation of employment.

Tankers, which work the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico ports will be affected. They include 78 tankers of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, 38 of the Vacuum Oil company, 32 of the Gulf Refining company, 12 of the Tidewater Oil company, and eight of the C. D. Mallory Oil company.

James M. West, Sr. Rejected By Senate As A Commissioner

AUSTIN, April 18.—The Texas Senate today rejected James M. West, Sr., of Houston, who was appointed to be chairman of the State Highway Commission, by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel.

West, a multi-millionaire cattleman and oil man was the governor's third choice for the place. Carr P. Collins of Dallas, his first appointee, was rejected. J. C. Hunter of Abilene, his second appointee, requested that his name be withdrawn before the senate acted.

About 200 are expected for the meeting.

Frank Cliver of Wichita Falls, a member of the club in that city, will be among the featured speakers.

OHIO RIVER IS ABOVE NORMAL FLOOD LEVEL

By United Press
The Ohio River and its tributaries today surged higher over their banks, fed by fresh rains, but forecasters predicted that conditions would not reach the proportions of the 1937 flood.

At Louisville, the river rose three feet overnight to 30 feet, two feet above flood stage. Rain was falling intermittently. The river passed 56.39 feet at Cincinnati, where the flood stage is 52 feet. It continued to rise at a rate of .09 feet per hour.

The storm area extended from the Middle-Missouri River Valley, east and north of the Ohio River and from Wilmington, Del., to Portland, Me., on the east coast. Elsewhere the weather bureau reported generally fair weather.

Five deaths were attributed to the floods, and with 40 deaths in tornadoes in southern and central states over the week-end, brought the storm total for the nation near 50.

Dust followed the tornadoes in Texas and Oklahoma. Today floods threatened at many points and already some streams had overflowed several miles of lowlands in Missouri, Southeastern Oklahoma and Northern Texas.

Mussolini Will Ignore Message From Roosevelt

By United Press
ROME, Italy, April 18.—A high fascist source reported today that Premier Mussolini intends to ignore President Roosevelt's appeal for peace and to let Adolf Hitler speak for the Berlin-Rome axis, in his address to his Nazi Reichstag on April 28th.

According to the informant, Mussolini was "disgusted" at the tone and content of the president's message to him and Hitler and had agreed with the Nazi Fuehrer that the best course was to not reply to it formally.

Fascist quarters said they understood that Hitler told Mussolini he would make an adequate reply in his Reichstag speech.

This message, it was said, was conveyed by telephone to Field Marshal Hermann Goering, who left Rome last night, after a visit to Mussolini and was relayed by Goering to Mussolini.

Funeral Services For Former Editor Of Society Held

By United Press
CISCO, April 18.—Mrs. Lessie L. Trammell, wife of Charles Trammell of Cisco, died at 9:30 Sunday in a Sanatorium, Texas, sanitarium where she has been under treatment for about six months.

Funeral services were held at the Robert Masseu Funeral home in San Angelo at 3:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Active pall bearers were A. Spears, R. L. Ponsler, Charles J. Kleiner, W. J. Armstrong, Oscar Clift and B. A. Butler.

Her husband, a daughter, Louise; her parents and several brothers and sisters survive. Miss Louise is with the Texas State Department of Public Safety, stationed at Waco. The parents and most of the brothers and sisters live in or near San Angelo, the family home community.

Mrs. Trammell, long prominent in Cisco club and social circles, was for nearly four years society editor of the Cisco DAILY PRESS. She began her association with the paper shortly after it was established in the fall of 1934 and continued with it until about the first of December, 1938, when she was compelled to resign her position on account of illness.

But Who'll Bell the Cat?

Some mice once lived in a great house. It was a fine house, well provided with the most exquisite stores of crumbs and cheese. The mice would have been very happy, except for one thing.

In the house there also lived a great, fierce cat. Even in the dark the mice feared to stir from their holes for fear of the great claws that came pouncing so unexpectedly. The mice, even in the great house could scarcely get enough to eat. They were desperate.

One day they all met to find a way to escape from their relentless foe.

"I'll tell you what to do," said a young mouse. "I have a swell plan. Just tie a bell around the cat's neck. Then as the cat walks, the bell will ring, and we will all know where she is."

The mice squeaked for joy. That was the idea, all right. Freedom lay just ahead.

It was an old mouse who asked: "But who is going to bell the cat?"

Immediately every mouse thought of a dozen reasons why one of the others should take on the job, and a dozen equally good ones why he wouldn't dream of tackling the job himself.

The result was that the cat remained unbelled, and the mice remained in a state of terror until—we presume, but the fable doesn't say so—the mice all got terribly hungry. Then one day when the cat cornered a dozen of them all at once, they turned on the cat and drove her out of the house.

But at the bell stage, before the situation became desperate, not one of the mice had been made bold enough by desperation or by his own individual peril, to be willing to bell the cat.

Europe is a little like that today. The cat has already eaten a good many of the smaller mice, and may turn to larger game at any time. But some of the larger mice will have plenty of supplies stored away in their holes, and the cat hasn't turned up in their part of the house as yet.

Mouse Russia and her adherents in the United States keep screaming that it is up to Mouse England to bell the cat. Yet the cat has come closer to the hole of Mouse Russia than to that of England, and Mouse Russia has kept carefully in its hole. And Mouse England cares not a straw how many small mice are eaten or whether the cat goes right down the hole after Mouse Russia.

And while the European mice remain in this state of blissful independence, there are some who actually maintain that it is really up to Mouse United States to leave his own house, cross 4500 miles of land, sea and air, and bell the terrible cat of Europe!

But Mouse United States is busy catproofing his own house.

Mrs. G. C. Callihan Buried At Abilene

Mrs. George C. Callihan, wife of a prominent oil operator, who has been active in this part of the country in the past, died at her home in Abilene, Saturday evening, it was learned here today. Funeral services were held at Abilene at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Born on Sept. 6, 1888, in Bridgeport, Ill., she came to Texas, with her husband, in 1918, at the height of the Ranger oil boom, residing in this part of the county until 1922, when they moved to Albany after following oil play through Eastland, Stephens and Shackelford counties, later moving to Abilene.

Besides her husband she is survived by a brother, F. D. McKel-fresh, of Bridgeport, Ill. Callihan was at one time a partner of the late P. J. O'Donnell.

Classes Studying In Rising Building

By United Press

DOVER, O.—Classes still meet here, even when the new school building is being erected, and the students thereby are getting a practical schooling in everything from engineering to writing of a book.

It was the idea of E. C. Palmer, superintendent of Dover schools, to use the construction job of the new $548,000 high school as a practical lesson.

Pupils are studying the various stages of construction, beginning with the excavation problem.

The school's art department is making scale drawings and paintings of the project, while mechanical drawing classes study and reproduce the blueprints.

Mathematics classes are learning the rudiments of engineering, by working on problems of stresses, loads and strains.

The physics department is learning from the building plans, the method of installation and operation of heating, ventilating, sanitation and water systems.

The English department of the senior high school is supervising the production of a book which will describe the operations from start to finish.

Camera students are making photographs during the progress of the work for a permanent pictorial record.

The development of expression in public speaking is added by the lessons prepared by high school students and taught to sixth grade pupils. The sixth graders in turn lecture to lower grade pupils.

Palmer reports that the novel method has been welcomed heartily by both pupils and parents.

During the business session committees for the next term of office were named with Mrs. C. C. Cogburn, Mrs. Guy Patterson and Mrs. Claude Boles composing the entertainment committee; Mrs. Harold Durham, Mrs. M. H. Kelly and Mrs. G. H. Kinard composing the sick and flower committee.

The lesson, "Planting the Gospel in Foreign Fields," was ably taught by Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, using the excerpts from Don Byrne's "Brother Saul" and Bruce Barton's "Paul, the Man Who Changed the World." It was fitting and applicable to the course of study which the class is studying, "The Life and Letters of Paul."

May Be Named to Labor Board

Mentioned as a possibility for appointment to the National Labor Relations Board is Congressman Francis J. Haas, above, of Catholic University at Washington, D. C., former member of the NRA advisory board.

ANSWER: The attraction of the moon and sun. The moon has much the stronger effect, owing to the fact that it is much nearer the earth.

SISTER MARY'S KITCHEN

BY MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Pour a can of cherries over a beef tongue and your kitchen stove will speak a brighter language when spring doldrums make getting dinner seem like a gigantic bore. Refuse to cook familiar foods. Try daring new combinations—everyone, yourself included, will perk up.

Beef Tongue with Sour Cherries (Serves 4 to 6)

One fresh beef tongue, 2 cups sour vegetable stock or water, 1-2 stick cinnamon, 1 bay leaf, 2 stalks celery (with leaves), 2 sprigs parsley, 8 whole cloves, 1 large onion, 2 carrots, juice of 1 lemon.

Scrub tongue, then simmer with the other ingredients 3 to 4 hours until tender. Cool, trim and skin.

Cherry Mixture

One can sour cherries, 1-3 pound canned almonds, juice 2 lemons, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups water, 1 cup grated rind of lemon.

Mix all ingredients. In a casserole arrange sliced tongue and cherry mixture in alternate layers. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F., for 25 minutes.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Rhubarb and applesauce, oatmeal muffins, crisp bacon, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Mushroom omelet, hard rolls, fresh fruit salad, tea, milk.

DINNER: Beef tongue with sour cherries, mashed potatoes, buttered cauliflower with parsley, escarole and celery root salad, caramel custard, coffee, milk.

Round Steak with Sauerkraut (Serves 4 to 6)

Two pounds round steak cut in slices 1 inch thick, 1 No. 2 can sauerkraut, 2 small onions, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes.

Trim steak. Drain sauerkraut and dice onions. Combine diced onion and drained sauerkraut. Season steak, then spread with mixture. Roll and fasten with clean white string. Brown meat on all sides in fat.

Place in thrift cooker kettle of electric range or in heavy pot with cover. Add tomatoes. Cover. Cook for 1-1 1/2 hours.

All 191 Cities In WTCC Invited To Have Sponsors

ABILENE, Tex.—All of the 191 cities and towns affiliated with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce have been invited to send sponsors to two night shows which will be staged at the 21st annual WTCC convention in Abilene May 15-17.

The girls selected as sponsors by the member towns will represent the pick of West Texas pulchritude and will be candidates for the title "Miss West Texas."

Miss Barbara Crissey of Burkburnett, selected as "Miss West Texas" for 1938-39 at the Wichita Falls convention last year, will reign at the opening show, Monday night, when the girl for the 1939-40 honor will be selected by popular vote. Identity of the new "Miss West Texas" will be announced at the second night show when she will be crowned with elaborate ceremony.

Mrs. Hila Weathers, Crockett, formerly of Sweetwater, who conducted the WTCC shows at Sweetwater, Big Spring and San Angelo conventions, is in charge of the programs again this year and promises that they will be the most brilliant and colorful ever held at the annual convention.

Each night program will include the "cream of West Texas entertainment," Mrs. Weathers said. Specialty acts and entertainers will be selected from various West Texas towns to make up the programs, in addition to the presentation of the sponsors.

Entertainers also are being selected to appear at the various luncheons and other convention programs. Special entertainment, such as teas, receptions and tours, also is being planned for the sponsors themselves.

SERIAL STORY

BORDER ADVENTURE BY OREN ARNOLD
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday: Once in Juarez, Betty Mary finds excitement aplenty when she meets and dances with Luis Barro!

CHAPTER XI

YOUNG Messrs. Sheridan Starr and Hope Kildare, pals and fellow officers in the United States Border Patrol, theoretically were to have gone to bed by 11 o'clock this night, gotten a good sleep and reported for further official duty next morning. Actually they did nothing of the sort.

They trailed Betty Mary instead in their car until her taxi crossed the international bridge into Mexico. Then they just rode around glumly for a while, saying little.

At midnight they pulled up at the U & I Cafe, stalked in and ordered huge slabs of apple-raisin pie and plenty of black coffee. Having eaten, they thumped their stuff hats back on their heads, stalked back out to their car, separated and went home.

Normally they would have met at the office next morning at 8 o'clock. Next day, however, they walked in before 7, not 10 minutes apart.

"Coffee musta kept me awake," Sheridan apologized, which both men knew wasn't so.

"Me too," agreed Hope. "Hardly got a good cat nap."

They pretended all morning to be writing reports. Four times they asked the office secretary if any telephone calls had come for them.

"Wouldn't I have called you if they had?" she asked at last, sensibly. "I knew you were in the building."

At noon the two men walked outside and stared up at the tall steel tower that rises, needle-like, 120 feet above the bank of the Rio Grande. Another border patrolman was up there in the tiny crow's nest, watching with strong field glasses to see anyone who might try to wade the river in daytime. He commanded a view for many miles, and could telephone down the information if he saw aliens crossing. Radio would then pass it on to cruising patrol cars. Officer Barton was up there now. Alert, he saw Hope and Sheridan, leaned out to wave at them, comradely.

"See anything? Over there?" Sheridan shouted up.

"No. What'd you expect? A revolution?"

"Nuts," Sherry growled. "Come on, Hopey. Let's go somewhere."

"Where?" asked Hope.

"I dunno."

They bluffed around until 6 p. m., changed out of their uniforms, then ate supper together and still faced the problem of what next to do. They hadn't spoken of it, even once, but the truth was that they were miserable with concern for Betty Mary, and each man knew it in his heart. They got in Hope's car after supper and Hope, at the wheel, turned it westward without so much as a comment. Nor was anything said about Betty when he rolled up on the bridge over the Rio Grande.

"Senores!" both men spoke, and added a formal salute, when they slowed down to pass the Mexican officers on guard at their end of the bridge. It was a custom for officers of either country thus to pass back and forth, with mutual courtesy extended. The Mexican officials liked to visit in America; the Americans in Mexico. Both groups were known to one another anyway.

"Might stop up here on Cinco de Mayo street and get another cuppa coffee," Sheridan suggested. "And look around some."

They still hadn't mentioned Betty Mary. But she had been gone for almost 24 hours and that much time can seem like a year. They ought to have arranged for her to telephone them or something every little while, Hope was thinking.

They drove twice by the Montezuma Hotel and saw no sign of her. They parked then and walked up Cinco de Mayo, thence over to 16th de Septiembre, looking tentatively into every barroom, saloon, cafe, restaurant, hotel lobby, and curio store, two big American officers well aware that many a man and woman who hated them were on the streets at that hour.

Still searching, they turned into The Place of the Sleeping Monk and all at once saw her!

She was sitting at a table alone. The two officers brightened instantly. They stalked to another table nearby and sat down, beckoning to a waiter. They had eaten heartily in El Paso, but they ordered another meal.

Behind a glass of iced aguamiel—the strange sweet drink of Mexico—Betty Mary looked at them in exasperation.

SHE alternately sipped her drink and sketched. It helped cover her feelings. She watched the Americans eat chili and enchiladas. And she watched the front door, trying to think of something to do, some recourse.

There was no time, however, to form a plan. She was just beginning a new sketch when Barro himself came in, walking with his customary grace and swagger. He saw her instantly and smiled grandly.

"Señorita!" he exclaimed. "I was afraid you might not keep the appointment! I am so lucky! I do not deserve—"

All at once he stiffened, seemed to freeze there. He had seen the two officers of the Border Patrol recognizing them even though they were now out of uniform. They had dressed in ordinary West Texas style, which included wide hats of the cowboy type, common along the border.

"Sit down, Don Luis!" Betty Mary urged. "Certainly I kept the appointment. How could I break a date with you? And I have been quite busy sketching, too. Look—I found these two American ranchers—they so kindly agreed to pose for me. They are excellent facial types, and very cordial men. You should know them. I will present them to you."

She left her chair and moved to Hope and Sherry.

"Gentlemen," she resumed, quite formally, "I want you to meet my charming friend, Don Luis Barro Don Luis, this is Mr. Starr and Mr.—Mr.— I am so sorry, your name has slipped me, sir?"

Hope and Sherry had been poised like taut springs! Or like panthers crouched, ready to pounce on an enemy. In one flashing motion they could have attacked, in unison. They had recognized Luis Barro instantly, a moment before he saw them. Luis Barro, the man they wanted most in the world to put in jail! Or, if necessary, to see dead.

"K-Kildare!" stammered Hope, acting for Betty Mary. "Kildare."

Sherry caught his cue a shade quicker. He had sense enough to stand up and bow at Barro, but Hope was just glaring.

Betty Mary babbled on like the talkative tourist she purported to be. "It is so sweet to have all three of you gentlemen together. Won't you let us move our tables together and—oh, waiter!—come, please, and help us make a little party here. Now Mr. Kildare, I want to study your profile while you eat, but you and Don Luis please just go right on being so sociable for it won't interfere at all! Not at all, there's a dear. Unh-huh. You all have classic features. Don Luis, you are a marvelous Latin type, really you are! And see how Mr. Starr leans toward the Nordic, in the set of his eyes and nose? And such handsome men! And all so hospitable! I heard a great deal about the southwestern hospitality before I came, and now I am enjoying it, dear, dear! Please go ahead and order our meal, Don Luis; I can stop and eat always, ha ha!"

She kept jabbering on gaily. Hope and Sherry swallowed hard, wearing expressions that suggested doom was about to strike. But Don Luis, eyes narrowed, began to relax in a delighted smile. Obviously he was thoroughly enjoying the situation.
