"Feels Very Much At Home"...

Nixon Gets Egged in England

OXFORD, England (AP)-Richard M. Nixon, braving a gantlet of egg-tossing protesters and speaking over chants of "Creep: Creep:" and "Nixon is dead:", told British students today he will "speak up for what I believe...as long as I live."

The former president also told the Oxford University audience that with his approval the FBI broke up a Palestinian guerrilla "network" in the United States through wiretaps and break-ins during his administration, which ended four years ago with his resignation in the midst of the Watergate scandal.

A phalanx of security men had to escort Nixon through an angry crowd of 500 student demonstrators, many of them Americans and some flinging eggs, when he arrived at the Oxford Union debating society hall to deliver the address.

The noisy melee was repeated when he left, and an American Secret Service man, trying to protect Nixon, began swinging wildly with his fists and shouting at demonstrators pummeling the Nixon car.

Some bystanders were knocked sprawling on their hands and knees as the Nixon motorcade bored its way through the crowds of demonstrators and shoppers in Oxford's Corn Market shopping street.

Eighty police officers linked arms in the futile attempt to keep the protesters from pounding their fists on Nixon's black limousine. Police carted away eight demonstrators.

Earlier, when Nixon made his way into the hall, he got a friendly welcome from the waiting audience of about 800 students, who applauded loud and long. But at times the ex-president's voice was almost drowned out by the chanting from protesters outside.

"Thank you for the very warm welcome of those inside - and those outside for making me feel very much at home," he said to laughter from the audience.

Demonstrators knocked off the helmets of a cordon of British policemen and

Burying Mayor Today

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-San Francisco today buries its slain mayor after three days of grieving by citizens who had lowered their flags but raised their chins since George Moscone's assassination.

"The people of San Francisco are indomitable even in the moments of greatest adversity," acting Mayor Dianne Feinstein told thousands of people who gathered outside City Hall Wednesday to pay last respects to the murdered mayor and Supervisor Harvey Milk, slain moments after Moscone.

Former Supervisor Dan White, in police custody since shortly after the killings Monday, allegedly has confessed to the crimes, the San Francisco Chronicle reported today.

Bergland Traveling

WASHINGTON (AP)-Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is on a rapid-paced swing into four states to help spread the administration's gospel about inflation and let people know that China may be emerging as a major market for American farmers.

Bergland, who spent 10 days in China last month, is happily pointing out that Peking leaders apparently have decided the country should be an international shopper for farm commodities and many other items needed to modernize its agriculture and food industry.

In his first stop Wednesday in Chicago, Bergland said long-term U.S. agricultural and technological trade with China depends on the stability of the Chinese government, which favors modernization.

Bust Nets 22 Tons

PORT ARTHUR (AP)-Ten men and two women were arrested Wednesday as they were unloading 22 tons of Colombian marijuana from the shrimper "Agnes Pauline" docked here, authorities said.

A spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety said DPS, U.S. Customs and federal Drug Enforcement Administration officers found the marijuana, some automatic weapons, handguns and explosive devices on the boat.

Also seized were two semi tractor-trailer tractors.

At $15 an ounce, the haul would be worth over $10.6 million on the street.

Hermleigh Delivered Fire Truck

HERMLEIGH---What is small and white but has a loud siren on it? It's the Hermleigh fire truck.

The fire truck rolled into Hermleigh this morning, slightly ahead of schedule. The vehicle was delivered about 7:30 a.m. It came from the U.S. Forest Service station in Lufkin.

The truck is a reconditioned 1967 jeep with 42,000 miles on it. On the truck is mounted a 320-gallon water tank that will buy for the community valuable time until a larger fire truck from Snyder can arrive at the scene of a fire.

When operating under full pressure, the deliveryman reported, the small tank can spew out 220 gallons of water a minute.

The cost to the community for the truck is $3,500. The money, citizens of the community southeast of Snyder said, has already been raised. The proceeds from a melodrama production tonight will still go toward the truck and the Hermleigh Volunteer Fire Department, though.

The state is picking up the tab for the other half of the truck bill. The expenses were split equally between the community and the state with each receiving a $3,500 bill.

Although no fire chief has been elected yet, directors of the fire department are Hollis Ward, Lonnie Henry, and Tommie Henry.

Still to be settled is the question of where to park the vehicle.

"I think it's wonderful," said Hermleigh School Superintendent Ray Simmons. "It's something this community has needed for a long time. But I will say this: I hope we don't ever have to use it."

HERMLEIGH'S FIRE TRUCK---The fire truck for the Hermleigh Community came in today. The vehicle, a reconditioned U.S. Forest Service truck, was ordered in September. The community's share of the expense is $3,500, and the money has already been raised. Shown beside the vehicle is school superintendent Ray Simmons. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Ask Us

Q—Is there any possibility that the old Snyder Hospital-Nursing Home could ever be used as an industrial site?

A—It is possible of course, but the existing building probably would not be suitable for many types of industry. But if the right thing came along, who knows?

But Many Predict Recession...

Index Suggests Economy Will Continue Growing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration has received some welcome evidence that the economy should continue to grow in the months ahead and thus avoid the recession many economists are predicting for 1979.

But the 0.5 percent increase in the index of leading economic indicators announced Wednesday was not enough to offset the adverse impact on financial markets of unfavorable reports on inflation and foreign trade.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average declined 14.03 points in light trading Wednesday, closing at 790.11, and the dollar declined against most major currencies on world money markets.

Analysts blamed the drop in stock prices and the dollar primarily on the government's report Wednesday that the nation had a $2.1 billion deficit in its foreign trade in October, the worst deficit in three months.

The monthly deficits, which have extended unbroken for more than two years, are blamed along with inflation as the major causes of the decline of the U.S. dollar during the last two years.

The government had reported Tuesday that consumer prices increased 0.8 percent in October, and a key member of the Carter administration acknowledged for the first time that inflation is now running at about 10 percent, much worse than the administration had admitted previously.

The 0.5 percent rise in the index of economic indicators followed an 0.9 percent advance in September. But the October figure still pointed to moderate growth in the economy in months ahead. The index is intended to predict future trends in the economy.

While many economists, including some prominent ones, say Carter's recent actions to slow the economy as part of his anti-inflation fight will bring on a recession in 1979, the president and his advisers maintain that the economy is strong enough to continue growing next year, although at a slower pace.

The index of economic indicators gave support to the administration position.

School Out Early Friday

Snyder Public Schools will dismiss classes at 2:30 p.m. Friday, an hour earlier than usual.

The classroom day has been shortened due to the examination schedule in the junior and senior high schools. Friday is the last day of the first quarter of the current school term.

Buses will make their runs at 2:30 instead of 3:30 p.m.

DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

The SDN Column

The annual reminder has gone out from organizations interested in health and safety that some traditional plants exhibited during the Christmas season require extra care measures, especially if there are children around.

Mistletoe, poinsettias, etc., are poisonous. Eating mistletoe berries can be fatal to both adults and children, and a single leaf from a poinsettia is all that is needed to possibly kill a child.

So, watch these things during the holiday season.

We can't imagine anyone being tempted to eat a mistletoe berry, but toddlers may swallow before they taste.

Says Panel Counsel...

Ray's Brother May Be Linked To Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP)-The House assassinations committee said today it is investigating the possibility that the mysterious Raoul implicated by James Earl Ray in an alleged conspiracy to kill Martin Luther King Jr. "might actually be one of Ray's brothers" or a composite of them.

Jerry Ray, a brother of the man who pleaded guilty in King's murder, was warned about that development as he took the witness stand to testify before the committee.

"We have received information of an incriminating nature that you may have been involved as a co-conspirator or otherwise in the assassination of Martin Luther King," committee counsel Mark Speiser told Jerry Ray.

One of the brother's lawyers, Flo Kennedy, angrily demanded that Speiser's statement be stricken from the record but the committee chairman, Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, overruled her objection.

The Raoul theory involving the Ray brothers was advanced by the committee's chief counsel, G. Robert Blakey, before Jerry Ray testified. The other brother, John is to testify Friday.

"When you come down to it," Blakey said, "the Raoul theory that seems to fit is that the mysterious accomplice might actually be one of Ray's brothers' Jerry or John, or a composite of the two of them.

"It seems to be true that each point where James' movements or his funding during the fugitive period are explained by James by reference to Raoul, one of the brothers is in fact on the scene or in contact with James," Blakey said. "Is this more than mere coincidence?"

AFS Postpones December Meet

The Snyder Chapter of the American Field Service will postpone its regular meeting on the first Saturday of the month to Dec. 9.

Members and other interested persons are asked to plan for the Dec. 9 meeting at 8 a.m. at the Spanish Inn, when Patricia Velez, Snyder's foreign exchange student from Ecuador, will present slides of her country. AFS has a "Dutch treat" breakfast with everyone welcome to attend.

United Way Final Report Meet Set

Scurry County United Way campaign leaders have scheduled what they hope will be a victory report session for Friday afternoon.

The final report meeting of the campaign will be held at 2 p.m. in the community room at Snyder Savings and Loan Association.

All campaign workers and board members are being urged to attend the last report session of the campaign and leaders feel that they have good prospects for reaching the campaign goal of $51,340.

A reports session Tuesday saw the total come within $3,800 of the goal and efforts have been renewed to bring the campaign to a successful conclusion.

Campaign leaders reported today that response had been steady this week to their pleas for contributions and pledges.

They reminded that the Friday report meeting will be held at Snyder Savings and Loan, rather than city hall where previous sessions have been held.

Steve Knowles probably concocted today's hand. At least we have never seen it up to now.

He calls it the Satan coup and describes how the hero when a young man was given the West hand by a sinister stranger with the remark: "Beware! You will meet this hand some day."

Years go by. Our hero is playing the last board of the world's pair championship. He has a feeling of impending danger, but is delighted when he picks up that nice North hand.

He doubles one spade. South bids two diamonds and our hero jumps to five over West's two spades. West doubles, North redoubles and West leads his deuce of hearts to East's ace.

Back comes a heart for West to ruff. Had West ruffed, South would win the championship, but the Satan coup had developed.

West discarded his ace of clubs. South tried to ruff a club to get back to his hand for a trump finesse, but West overruffed. Now West led his ace of spades. Dummy ruffed, but West who held the Satan hand was certain of another trump trick to defeat.

Old Diseases Don't Die But The Names Change

NEW YORK (AP)-You could be suffering from hectic fever, but the family doctor would be the last to say so. Likewise, if you have dropsy or talipes or dipsomania. And you just may.

There's no question medical science has stomped out a few diseases as it has marched through history - most recently, the World Health Organization claimed victory over smallpox, despite a few isolated cases.

But a host of ailments survived the onslaught. Some of these durable ancients have been around since written history began, although many are so altered that an ancient physician would hardly recognize them - or now they are known by different names.

Take dropsy, for example:

Hippocrates, a Greek born nearly 500 years before Christ, described dropsy, writes Henry A. Skinner in his "Origin of Medical Terms." The English word for Hippocrates' disease comes from the French "hydropisie," which, in turn, is derived from a Greek word meaning "a watery appearance," Skinner says.

Dropsy, as you may have deduced by now, describes swelling - in any part of the body - caused by collections of fluids.

"It's pretty rare today and it's not called dropsy anymore," says James Goodrich, a Columbia University doctoral candidate whose specialty is medical history.

Goodrich says failure of the right side of the heart unbalances body fluid equilibrium and causes the swelling.

"It's called slow failure of the right side of the heart today and with pharmaceutical advances you can pretty much relieve the liquid overload with drugs," Goodrich says.

Some other altered survivors and one mystery:

-Dipsomania: The word derives from Greek and Latin terms describing thirst and madness, says Skinner. It was used until the late 19th century to describe anyone with a lust for liquids, especially for intoxicating liquids. Today a dipsomaniac would be diagnosed as an alcoholic.

-Hectic Fever: A long-lost term for what's known today as pulmonary tuberculosis. "Consumption" and "galloping consumption" were more widely used; they described any disease whose victims wasted away.

-Talipes: Skinner says the term is derived from Latin words meaning, roughly, "weak in the foot." Today this one is known as a club foot.

-Plagues: A big killer was the 14th century's Black Plague; "black" because victims' bodies looked black. Still with us today but not widespread is the aged but potent Bubonic Plague, an ailment transmitted by rodents, says Goodrich.

-Blackwater Fever: Of late it's called malaria and is still "one of the world's worst diseases," says William Beatty, a professor of Medical Bibliography at Northwestern University. "Blackwater" because doctors of yore noted that victims' urine looked black, a phenomenon caused by blood.

-Leprosy: Doctors prefer to refer to leprosy now as Hansen's Disease because so much stigma is historically attached to lepers, Beatty says. He adds that what doctors diagnose as Hansen's Disease today seems to go back to what the Bible called leprosy.

-St. Vitus' Dance: During an outbreak of this affliction in 15th century Europe, the streets were packed with people dancing and hopping around like maniacs. Many may have been suffering a psychological illness. Some had epileptic fits in the midst of their dancing; others hallucinated as they danced. Today it's called chorea and is known to have a genetic cause, says Goodrich.

A killer disease that may be still at large is "sweating Sickness," a.k.a. "the English Disease," Beatty says. This ailment ran rampant through the 15th and 16th centuries, but has not shown its ugly head since about 1550. What it was remains a mystery, but everyone seems to have a theory, says Beatty.

Henry VIII of England once cancelled a rendevous with Anne Boleyn, sending her a letter noting that one of her ladies-in-waiting had sweating sickness, Beatty says. In this uncharacteristic instance, the king's caution apparently over-rode his romantic inclinations.

In Davis Trial...

State To Show Jurors Alleged Blood Money

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP)-Prosecutors winding down the state's murder-conspiracy case against Cullen Davis intend to show jurors today the blood money allegedly earmarked for a phantom hit man.

"The money will be introduced through investigator Morris Howeth," state attorney Jack Strickland told newsmen.

The prosecution alleges that Davis, 45, turned over $25,000 in $100 bills last August to pay a contract killer for the simulated murder of Fort Worth divorce court Judge Joe Eidson.

FBI informant David McCrory testified the Fort Worth industrialist handed him the payoff money at an Aug. 20 meeting in which he delivered a silencer-equipped pistol to Davis.

Sound and visual recordings of the parking lot rendezvous allegedly captured the clandestine exchange and represent the cornerstone of the state's case.

Prosecutors forged the legal link Wednesday that tied Davis to the .22-caliber Ruger pistol and its unlawful muffler recovered along with a night vision scope from the trunk of Davis' Cadillac.

District attorney investigator Rodney Hinson said a search team found the gun wrapped in a white towel after it was placed by McCrory in the car trunk.

Hinson said McCrory was instructed to stick the pistol, made inoperative by agents as a safety precaution, and the ominous homemade device in the trunk "so it would be out of the reach of Mr. Davis."

Work Of Brando Worth His Salary

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Marlon Brando "was worth every penny of his salary and then some" in his just-completed role as American Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell for ABC's sequel to "Roots," says producer Stan Margulies.

Margulies, however, refused to say Tuesday how much the two-time Academy Award winner received for his one-day acting stint in the "Roots: The Next Generations," that will air Feb. 18-24.

Alex Haley, author of "Roots," interviewed the fanatical Nazi leader for Playboy magazine during the 1960s. Rockwell agreed to the interview only after being assured Haley was not Jewish. But when he saw Haley was black, Rockwell held him a gunpoint throughout their meeting. Rockwell was later assassinated.

Brando, who won Oscars for "On the Waterfront" in 1954 and "The Godfather" in 1972, asked to appear in the mini-series, contacting Haley in July.

Early Present For Uncle Sam

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Unlike most mail from constituents, this letter asked Sen. James Sasser for nothing - except that the enclosed three $20 bills be given to Uncle Sam.

The letter bore no signature, just a Nashville postmark. Staff members found the money and handwritten note: "Dear Sen. Sasser: Would you please give this money to the government?"

Sasser, a first-term Democrat from Tennessee, did as he was told, staff members said. He received a typewritten note Monday from the Treasury Department advising him the money would be used "in reducing the expenses of government."

"That's the most unique request we've ever gotten," Sasser's press secretary, Craven Crowell said.

Some Fear Holiday Suicides...

Grief Grips San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)- Staggered by slaughter in Guyana and murders in City Hall, residents are struggling with vast depression and fears the suicide rate will skyrocket during the coming holidays, officials and clergy say.

"I've never seen anything like it," Valerie Waidler said Wednesday over the jangle of telephones at the San Francisco Suicide Prevention Center where she has worked for nine years.

"We're seeing an awful lot of depression and confusion among the population. We're getting the news so quickly that it is very difficult for people to assimilate it," she said. "It's like an emotional overload."

First came the mass murder-suicides on Nov. 18 of more than 900 Peoples Temple members, many from the Bay area, and then this week the assassinations of Mayor George Moscone and supervisor Harvey Milk in their City Hall offices.

City Coroner Dr. Boyd Stephens said San Francisco, with its Golden Gate Bridge, "tends to draw more than the normal amount of suicides. People come from miles away from other states even - to kill themselves here." -

-In the 12 months ending last June, there were 194 suicides and 233 the previous year, he said. "Right now we're down...but we're going to have at least 190 this year," Stephens added.

As of Wednesday, there was no evidence any suicide was directly related to the Guyana slaughter or the assassinations, "but there's always that possibility," he said.

Ms. Waidler, supervisor of 140 volunteers who tend telephones 24 hours a day, seven days a week, said calls have increased dramatically since reports of the Guyana slaughter unfurled below banner headli[illegible]0 days ago.

After Near Split...

Farm Bureau Favoring Flexible Ag Program

DALLAS (AP)—A last-minute compromise between traditionalists and militants has saved the Texas Farm Bureau from splitting apart and puts the organization on record as favoring a flexible government program to help farmers.

Everett Miller, a longtime Farm Bureau leader from Tulia, Texas, won support with his 11th-hour resolution Wednesday that the convention back the so-called Dole Amendment. It would allow farmers to get a higher price for their crops depending upon how many acres they keep out of production.

Earlier in the windup day of the three-day convention, the more than 1,100 delegates rejected by a three-to-one margin the American Agriculture Movement's bid for a rigid policy calling on Congress to require Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to implement 90 percent parity.

The 1977 farm bill now in effect leaves the 90 percent parity to Bergland's "discretion."

"I'm tired of going broke at his discretion," delegate David Senter of Burleson, Texas, had said in arguing for approval of the resolution.

Some of the delegates were among those who drove their tractors to Washington, D.C., and other cities earlier this year to dramatize their unhappiness with farm prices.

Traditionalists had first proposed a recommendation that farmers strive to improve their income through the market place, using the law of supply and demand, instead of trying to get favorable legislation through an urban-dominated Congress.

But delegates turned down that proposal too. American Agriculture members then came back with other proposals seeking other concessions to a principal of gaining higher crop prices through legislation.

It led to a floor fight when J.R. "Bubba" Day of Uvalde made a motion that no more amendments pertaining to parity or "set-aside" acreage be allowed from the floor. He declined a request by the Farm Bureau leadership to withdraw his motion.

After lengthy debate, delegates by a close voice vote - and then by a standing vote when that was challenged - rejected Day's motion.

Recommendations from the Texas Farm Bureau will be considered in January by the American Farm Bureau meeting in Miami Beach. Resolutions approved there will be recommended to Congress as national policy.

Among other matters, the Farm Bureau recommended a 30 percent set-aside of wheat, feed grain and cotton acreage "until it brings into balance the law of supply and demand."

Jack Williams, a delegate from Anderson County, had argued against the American Agriculture Movement's parity proposal.

Earlier, state delegates went solidly on line as opposing the storing in Texas of nuclear wastes from atomic power plants in other states.

Delegates re-elected three of the organization's top officers for new terms. President Carrol G. Chaloupka of Dalhart won a fifth one-year term. Reed Lang of Rio Hondo won another term as vice president and S.M. True of Plainview got another term as secretary-treasurer.

No Favorites For Awards

NEW YORK (AP)—The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai Brith played no favorites with the three major networks, awarding NBC's John Chancellor, CBS's Walter Cronkite and ABC's Barbara Walters the $10,000 Hubert H. Humphrey Freedom Prize.

The award, presented Tuesday, recognizes the newscasters' coverage of the Israeli-Egyptian peace talks, honoring them for giving "enormous impetus and thrust to the peace process."

Offensive Line Key To Bengal Attack Corps

EDITORS NOTE: The following article, and the one below it, conclude a series of three articles on Snyder High School's defense, offensive line and kicking game. The Tigers, who earned bi-district championship status for the first time this season since competing in Class AAA, will host Lubbock Estacado 7:30 p.m. Friday in a state schoolboy quarterfinals game.

The offensive line.

The guys who have only each other to pat on the back while a tailback, fullback or quarterback is cheered by the fans as he crosses the goal. The unsung hero. Hero?

"This is a team. We don't have any great individual stars," comments offensive line coach Tommy Doyle. "We have a lot of good players, and a GOOD team. It's a team attitude. Nobody is hung up on individual glory."

Like the defense, Snyder's offense has come a long way since August. But the origins of the two units differ.

"When we started the year, we had the whole line except center returning. We figured all we would have to do is find a center and we'd be where we left off last year. But through some changes to strengthen some things here and there, we had to move several people around. Now only Baron Land (tackle) and C.B. Edmiaston (guard) play the same positions as they did last year."

Changes included moving Scott Crenwelge to tight end, moving Cary Welsh to defensive noseguard and bringing in Mitch Mackey (end), Neil Evans (guard) and Sammy Willis (tackle). Brantley Kitching was awarded the center position.

Attitude and enthusiasm are the group's strong points, feels Doyle. And common sense is another.

"Their attitude has been real good. We had to make some moves, for the good of the team, and they've gone on with a super attitude about it. One thing I think is a key as far as the offensive line goes, is their experience and their common sense. They've been able to adjust to different defensive looks. Our kids feel they can block any situation that is thrown at us. They can look at a defense and see, figure out how to block it."

Head coach Mike Jenkins echoed the statement. "They've done a super job in adjusting all year. In the third and fourth quarter especially our offensive line has whopped people, and we've been able to make some good drives. Lamesa and Lake View are two games I can recall in which this was particularly true. Our offensive line started really picking up in the third and fourth quarters."

"Sweetwater used a different formation than they had used all year when we played them, different from what the kids had seen before. It took them awhile, but in the second half they began to take control," said Doyle.

Snyder's offensive line has aided the Tigers to a total of 2,782 yards (252.9 average) this season - 1,602 in the last five games (320.4).

Team 'Lives And Dies By Kicking Game,' Says Coach

"Our offensive success is directly proportioned to whether the defense gets us the ball," says Snyder Tiger head coach Mike Jenkins. "And the third factor is the kicking game."

Webster's won't tell you, but the kicking game in football is synonymous with field position. And field position is the key to winning most close ballgames.

"You win and die by your kicking game, punt return and punt coverage," contends Jenkins. "Ours have been real good this year. Our punting team consists of a lot of what you'd call non-starters, I guess, and they've done a super job blocking and covering. In punting situations, we've used Mike Hicks and Scott (Crenwelge), depending on which one I think can get the job done at that particular time.

"Brantly Kitching, our deep snap center has certainly been overlooked this year, and of course Baron's (Land) kicking last week turned the tide for us, not once but twice, when he kicked the extra point to give us a one-point lead in the third quarter, and when he kicked the field goal. Sometimes one point is like a hundred. Especially in the playoffs."

Jenkins feels the kicking game will be especially important in Friday's quarterfinal game here with Lubbock Estacado.

"It will be an even bigger factor against them. We can't turn the ball over. We'll need to kick it deep and cover well, try to keep them down where they have to go a long way to score."

Field position - many times garnered from recovering the six fumbles the Panthers laid out - was a primary advantage which edged Estacado past Fort Stockton last week. The Panther punting game was not very formidable either, at one time going for only 11 yards...when Fort Stockton was backed up to its goal line. What resulted was fantastic field position for the Matadors, inside the 35-yard line.

Preventing just that type of occurance is the game plan going into tomorrow's contest. That, and taking advantage of whatever opportunities are awarded the Tigers.

QB Twosome Pace Coaches All-American Grid Squad

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Quarterbacks Rick Leach of Michigan and Chuck Fusina of Penn State share honors on the American Football Coaches Association All-America team. They were elected in the first tie vote by the coaches group in 10 years.

"The voting was simply too close to call," AFCA president Carmen Cozza of Yale said Wednesday. "Both Leach and Fusina are great players and great leaders. They both clearly are All-Americans."

The dual selection all but overshadowed the selection of the nation's three premier running backs - Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims of Oklahoma, Charles White of Southern California and Charles Alexander of LSU, the only offensive player to repeat as an All-American.

Sims, who received the most individual votes, was the coaches' choice as Offensive Player of the Year.

The only previous tie vote by the AFCA involved quarterbacks Bobby Douglass of Kansas and Terry Hanratty of Norte Dame in 1968.

Rounding out the offensive team are center Jim Ritcher of North Carolina State, guards Pat Howell of Southern California and Greg Roberts of Oklahoma, tackles Kelvin Clark of Nebraska and Keith Dorney of Penn State, tight end Kellen Winslow of Missouri and split end Gordon Jones of Pittsburgh.

Linebacker Jerry Robinson of UCLA, the leading defensive vote-getter, was the only repeater on the coaches' defensive team.

Also chosen were linebackers Bob Golic of Notre Dame and Tom Cousineau of Ohio State, a defensive backfield of Henry Williams of San Diego State, Jeff Nixon of Richmond and Johnny Johnson of Texas, and a defensive line of Don Smith of Miami, Fla., Dan Hampton of Arkansas, Mike Bell of Colorado State, Bruce Clark of Penn State and Al Harris of Arizona State.

The coaches' All-America awards are sponsored by the Kodak company.

'Horn Ranking Not Paying Off

By The Associated Press

If 13th-ranked Texas, winner of last season's National Invitational Tournament, was under the impression it would romp over its opponents while waiting for the Southwest Conference basketball race to start, it has found out it was mistaken.

"Sometimes we think just because we won the NIT, the other team is just going to drop dead," said Texas Coach Abe Lemons, whose Longhorns had to come from behind at Austin to defeat a scrappy Arkansas State Wednesday night.

"They're not going to fall over for us. We aren't going to overpower anybody," said Lemons. He credited his tightened-up zone defense with allowing the Longhorns to hold Arkansas State to only 18 second half points and pull out a 68-54 win over their unranked opponents.

In other cage games involving SWC squads Wednesday night, Tulane disappointed SMU, 80-64; Rice beat Texas Lutheran, 99-90; Texas Tech overwhelmed Northern Montana, 109-54; and UT-Arlington defeated Texas Christian, 83-71.

Texas, picked by other SWC coaches to win the league crown this season, found themselves trailing Arkansas State 40-36, at the half. Lemons blamed lack of emotion.

"The first half we were just standing around, not doing anything," Lemons said. "We weren't playing with any enthusiasm. We were playing flatfooted, and that's something we can't afford to do. We just got to play with enthusiasm."

Bobick Works On '79 Dream

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)--Tonight's Duane Bobick fight against Terry Mims of Cleveland is a critical one in Bobick's dream of winning the world heavyweight championship in 1979, his manager said Wednesday.

"I've been told by a member of the WBA (World Boxing Association) rating committee that if we beat Mims, Duane will be advanced to fifth in the ratings," said Dave Wolf.

"We're even closer to a championship bout than we were a month ago," he said.

"Our discussions with Don King and Bob Arum boxing promoters have intensified. Larry Holmes (the World Boxing Council champion) is going out of his way attempting to goad us into a fight."

Schooler Readies For State Meet Meet

Robert Schooler, sophomore at Snyder High School, will be among those competing in the state cross country meet Saturday at Georgetown's Southwestern University.

Schooler, a member of the SHS track team in season, qualified for the state meet by taking third place in the two-mile run at Lubbock recently. Schooler went the distance in 10:32.

Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Schooler of Snyder.

JV Cagers Begin Tourney Today

The Snyder Junior Varsity Basketball Tournament - moved up a day early so that participants may attend the Snyder-Estacado quarterfinals football playoff here Friday - was to begin this afternoon at 3:30.

Abilene Cooper and Midland High were to have led off the action, followed by a Lubbock Monterey-San Angelo game at 5 p.m. and a Midland Lee-Lubbock Coronado tilt at 6:30.

In the only game scheduled Friday, Snyder will host Lubbock High at 3:30, following a football pep rally scheduled at 2 p.m.

Saturday games will remain as previously scheduled, beginning with 10 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. games in the consolation bracket. Winners bracket action will begin at 1 p.m. with the Cooper-Midland High victor taking on the Monterey-San Angelo winner, followed at 2:30 by winners from the Midland Lee-Coronado and Snyder-Lubbock High games.

Finals for the tournament are scheduled for 8:30 p.m.

Dockery Handed Contract, Raise

LUBBOCK (AP)-Texas Tech Coach Rex Dockery, winding up a successful but apparently bowl-less football season, today received a five-year contract and a raise.

Dockery earlier this week was named the Associated Press Southwest Conference Coach of the Year.

After learning of the contract, Dockery commended his staff and players. He said he likes coaching at Lubbock because the players try hard every game.

WTC Opens Loop Play

BIG SPRING--Western Athletic Conference basketball play begins its season here tonight as Howard County College is host to Western Texas College at 6 and 8 p.m.

The Howard County Hawk Queens have been pre-season ranked as No. 1 in the conference, while Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters are rated fifth.

In men's play, WTC brings its top-rated Westerners to meet the second-ranked Hawks. The Westerners are 9-1 for the season.

The double-header will be held in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

For Third Straight Time...

Spikers Regional Bound

LUBBOCK—Snyder High School makes its third straight appearance here Saturday as the Regional Volleyball Tournament gets underway at 11 a.m. But for all its experience, the Tiger team has yet to capture the title and advance to state.

Last year, the 3-3A champions drubbed Brownwood 15-3 and 15-4 in the first match, had whipped Seminole - then in class AAA - 15-11 in the first game of the finals, and were ahead 10-3 in the second game when the dam broke.

"I guess the girls were thinking ahead to Austin and the state tournament," recalls Coach Joyce Elrod.

Seminole rallied to take the second game 16-14, then burned the Tigers 15-5 in the deciding game to win the regional championship. Eventually, the Indians took a state championship.

Saturday, Snyder faces Borger of District 1-AAA, and the winner will advance to 3 p.m. finals against either Monahans, 2-AAA, or Burkburnett 4-AAA. But this time around, while Coach Elrod declines to predict a tournament victory, she allows her team will not be looking to the future.

"We've got a good chance if we don't start thinking about Austin too early," she says. "We've got to keep our heads in the game until that 15th point goes up."

Perhaps gearing for just such an occasion, Snyder has gone the distance with 4A regionalist San Angelo Central and 2A regionalist Seminole in recent matches. The Tigers nipped the Bobcats 12-10, 8-15 and 15-8 last weekend, then edged the Seminole Indians 11-15, 15-8 and 13-9 Tuesday evening in preparation for the tournament here.

Snyder will take on Borger at 11 a.m., while Monahans and Burkburnett vie at 12:30 p.m. In conjunction with the AAA meet, a AA tourney will be held, with Seminole versus Perryton at 8 a.m. and Muleshoe versus Fabens at 9:30. The Class AA final match will be held at 2 p.m.

Tickets for the meet are $1 for students and $2 for adults.

When the baseball Braves played in Boston they were called at various times the Bees, Beaneaters, Red Caps and the Doves.

TPU Hearing Gets New Date

AUSTIN (AP)—A Texas Public Utility Commission hearing on alleged improper dealings between three sister electric companies has been postponed until Feb. 19.

The hearing originally was scheduled for Jan. 15 but parties recently involved in the action needed more time to prepare, Examiner Philip Ricketts said Wednesday.

Under scrutiny are Texas Electric Service Co., Texas Power & Light Co. and Dallas Power & Light Co. Alleged "sweetheart deals" between the utilities surfaced during a TESCO rate case before the regulatory agency.

The commission ordered a hearing into all affiliate transactions and froze final rate orders in TESCO and TP&L cases until the probe is complete. The companies could be ordered to refund millions to customers.

John Bell, commission general counsel, defended his staff's investigation of the three companies.

"If anyone has any evidence that the staff is white washing this thing, I want to know about it right now," said Bell.

Irving officials protested being thrown into the inquiry.

"The Irving City Council does not want to be brought intc it," said Don Roscach, Irving city attorney. The city's appeal of TP&L rates is stalled until the inquiry is finished.

Ricketts said he had no choice about including the Irving case in the investigation because of an order from State District Judge Herman Jones of Austin. Jones returned a TP&L rate case to the commission and said a final rate order must await the commission probe.

"As far as evidence of a white 'washing, I don't think that's going to be known till this hearing is complete," Roschach said.

Bell argued that Irving's position is too self-serving.

"No one seems to be really interested in what justice is, or what the public interest is," the commission lawyer said. "Everyone is jockeying for their own procedure to stand."

Among transactions being studied are TESCO's agreement to sell electricity generated from its cheapest-natural gas supply to TP&L. In exchange, TESCO would receive part ownership in the Texas Utilities Martin Lake power plant. DP&L also bought an interest in the plant and lignite reserves from TP&L, but not in return for electricity.

IN THE ABSENCE of a chimney, Mr. Snuffle-Upagus is using an oil barrel to try to figure out how a fat Santa squeezes down a skinny chimney. He may have found the answer by the time "Christmas Eve on Sesame Street" premieres in early December on public television stations throughout the nation.

RRC Authorizes Sale To Texaco

AUSTIN (AP)--The Texas Railroad Commission has authorized two Houston companies to sell natural gas to Texaco Inc. so its refineries at Port Arthur and nearby Port Neches can operate without interruption.

A temporary order was adopted during an emergency conference exempting Texaco from a previous commission order requiring less use of gas to fire boilers.

The gas will be supplied to Texaco by United Texas Transmission Co. and Houston Natural Gas Corp., with deliveries starting Friday.

The need for more intrastate gas has arisen as a result of the federal government ordering Texaco to phase out the use of gas from its federal leases offshore from Louisiana, the commission said.

Texaco has been using gas from federal leases since 1964, but the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission ordered Texaco to reduce its use of such gas by 20 million cubic feet daily by Jan. 1.

Commission Chairman Mack Wallace commented that the federal government "has said it does not want interstate gas used in Texas" yet it wants us to use our intrastate gas to manufacture petroleum products for the Northeast."

Wallace directed Director Joseph Piotrowski of the gas utilities division to prepare a letter to Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower for Wallace's signature, "protesting the federal attitude that interstate gas cannot be used to manufacture products for interstate users."

The refineries can process 453,000 barrels of oil a day. They manufacture approximately 28 per cent of Texaco's domestic gasoline output and account for 28 per cent of Texaco's domestic production of heating oils and diesel fuels and more than 40 per cent of Texaco's domestic supplies of jet fuel.

Some 6,000 persons are employed at the complex. The Port Arthur refinery is Texaco's largest.

Tick Grant Goes To UT Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department has approved a grant of $28,026 to some University of Texas scientist in hopes they can figure out what makes ticks tick.

Or, as the department's Science and Education Administration puts it, the scientists will work on ways to "fingerprint different kinds of ticks" by studying their "isoenzyme systems."

Those are chemical systems within the tick's body that have the same function but are different in the way they are put together.

By being able to figure these things out, scientists hope to "relate the genetic information to which hosts (victims) the ticks prefer and to ecological conditions."

If this can be done, they may find out ways to curb ticks which are bothersome to livestock, officials said.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

Deadlocked wedlock

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I can't stand it anymore! My husband absolutely refuses to tell me where he goes or what he does when he is not at home.

I have tried everything to get him to open up. Sometimes I lay off completely but usually I resort to begging and pleading. Then he yells at me.

He says my suspicious behavior is the reason he never talks about himself. It's like he can't stand me anymore. He even calls me "clinging vine" instead of my name when other people are around.

The truth of the matter is that I am suspicious. I do think he might be seeing another woman.

There is so much tension between us that I don't dare bring up marriage counseling. He would go through the roof and insist that I go alone because the whole thing is my fault. Actually I would like to talk to someone but I don't want my husband to have the satisfaction.

DEAR READER — Things have gotten out of hand. Your wedlock is deadlocked.

Ask your husband to go with you to see a marriage counselor with the understanding that the counselor will make a recommendation about the future course of therapy. If your husband is so certain you are to blame, he may comply with your request only to prove he is right.

If he refuses, make an appointment for yourself. Your husband might be pretending to equate becoming a patient with taking the total blame because he really does not want you to go to a therapist. Involving an outsider would certainly pose a threat to the control he now has over the relationship.

In therapy you will be able to construct a clearer picture of what has happened to your marriage and where you want to go from here.

My hunch is that you and your husband each think you are reacting appropriately to crazy behavior on the part of the other. You ask him for information. He is insulted or threatened and withholds even insignificant data. That makes you more insecure and you try harder to find out what is happening. Now he is even more certain his original assessment — that you are overly dependent. And so it goes.

It reminds me of two sailors hanging out opposite sides of a boat to steady it. The more one leans overboard, the more the other has to hang out to compensate for the instability caused by the other's attempts at stabilizing the boat. The boat, of course, would be quite steady if not for the insecurities of its passengers. Leaning farther and farther out to keep some sense of equilibrium, both sailors eventually land in the water.

Before you both drown, get some professional help.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Russian Baby May Not Require Hospitalization

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)-The disease that prompted the Russians to allow 1-year-old Jessica Katz and her family to emigrate to the United States has eased and the baby may not even need hospitalization, says her doctor.

The "littlest refusenik" arrives in Boston with her parents and younger sister today after a much-publicized struggle for permission to leave Russia.

"She is certainly past the crisis," said Dr. Richard Feinbloom, a Cambridge pediatrician, who said he talked with the Katzes before they left Russia. "She was at one time very sick. Now that she is able to leave, she has improved. But we still don't know if she is completely out of the woods."

Jessica suffers from malabsorption syndrome, a rare infant condition that prevents normal digestion. Though Russian doctors are unable to treat the disease, Americans have apparently been successful.

Jewish rights activists in the United States lobbied for permission for her parents to join relatives in America so she could receive treatment.

Her parents, Boris and Natalia Katz, flew as far as Vienna on Wednesday after leaving Moscow with Jessica and 9-day-old Gabrielle.

For several months, the girl was kept alive with a special diet of predigested milk delivered by American tourists visiting Russia. In recent weeks, Feinbloom said Jessica has gradually been weaned from the formula. Now, about half of her meals are normal food.

The doctor said he probably would not examine the girl until next week, and she may not need hospitalization. "She should do well," he said.

Meanwhile, the family will live here temporarily with Katz' mother, Khaika Landman.

"They are my life," Mrs. Landman said after the family left Russia. "I am so glad, I don't know what to do. I have waited so long for this day."

The Soviets first turned down the couple's application to emigrate, saying Mrs. Katz had access to state secrets when she was a computer programmer at the Soviet Institute of Experimental Meteorology.

However, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., interceded when he met President Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow in September.

"I want to thank Sen. Kennedy and all the people who helped us," Mrs. Landman said, "and I want to thank America."

Carters Skiing At Camp David

WASHINGTON (AP)-President and Mrs. Carter are about to turn Camp David, their Catoctin Mountain hideaway, into a ski resort.

The Carters and daughter Amy are taking up crosscountry skiing as a new family sport.

Three sets of skies and related gear have been ordered but have not yet been delivered.

Carter told two reporters he believes Camp David, about 60 miles north of Washington, will be an ideal spot for this activity. The terrain there is fairly level and, says the president. You can follow the perimeter fence for 2½ miles without retracing your steps.

Because it sits atop a mountain the Maryland retreat gets far more snow than the Washington area.

Carter Aide's Divorce Final

ATLANTA (AP)—Presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan's divorce from his wife, Nancy, is final.

It was reported Tuesday that Judge Horace Ward signed the papers Nov. 21 in the uncontested action on ground the eight-year marriage was irretrievably broken.

Mrs. Jordan receives half interest in a Washington hosue valued a $115,000 and a temporary alimony of $1,200 a month for three months, then $500 a month from February through October 1979, court records show.

Crackdown On Pickpockets

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Interior Minister Nabawi Ismail has ordered a crackdown on gangs of pickpockets operating in Cairo and told police to shoot suspects who resist arrest.

He issued the directive after three armed pickpockets opened fire when a policeman tried to detain them. The police wounded one of the trio and captured him, but the others escaped.

In 1965, the United States announced an agreement with Cuba allowing nearly 4,000 persons a month to leave Cuba for asylum in the states.

Pope Meets With African Leaders

ROME (AP)-Pope John Paul II met with four leaders of southern African black nationalist movements and discussed human rights, the leaders reported today.

The secret audience Wednesday, granted at the leaders' request, was held in the Apostolic Palace, and marked the first bold political act of the Polish-born pontiff.

The meeting was disclosed by Oliver Tambo, president of the African National Congress, and George Silundika, a member of the executive of the National Patriotic Front, the organization opposing Prime Minister Ian Smith's government in Rhodesia.

The leaders told a news conference they had drawn the pope's attention to alleged violations of human rights in southern Africa. The pope, they said, was greatly concerned with the situation of human rights in southern Africa.

The audience brought immediate memories of a similar act in 1970 by Pope Paul VI, who met with leaders of nationalist groups fighting in the Portuguese African territories of Angola, Mozambique and Guinea-Bissau.

That audience dealt a blow to the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic Portuguese government, and triggered the temporary recall of its ambassador to the Holy See.

The other two leaders present at the 20-minute private audience were Kumbirai Kangai, secretary of social services and transport of the Patriotic Front, and Sam Nujoma, president of the South-West African People's Organization.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures No. 2 were mostly higher in midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low middling 1 1-16 inch spot cotton advanced 56 points to 67.36 cents a pound Wednesday for the ten leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday afternoon prices were 10 cents a bale lower to $2.00 higher than the previous close. Dec. 68.60, Mar 72.32, and May 74.03.

Pilferage Turns Into Major Theft

Petty pilferage turned to major theft when approximately $4,200 was removed from a woman's purse over a two-month period, reported deputy sheriffs this morning.

The deputies declined to identify the woman because they feared possible retribution might result to her. They said, however, the money was taken piecemeal from her during the past two months. The single largest theft resulted in $2,000 being taken from her purse last Friday.

It was then, deputies said, the woman began to suspect she was the victim of four young persons who had been visiting her. The incident was reported to the Sheriff's office Tuesday.

Four suspects ranging in age from 15 to 25 have been taken into custody and questioned about the disappearance of the money. Although no formal charges have been filed in the case, deputies said, the evidence against them will be presented to a Scurry County grand jury when it convenes next Monday.

Police Clear Cases; Others Are Reported

Old cases were cleared and new cases reported to officers of the city police department.

Cleared, police said, was Olga Hernandez's weekend report of a stolen car. The car, they said, had been repossessed.

Also cleared, they continued, was the report of a stolen $40 wristwatch. Officers reported they had taken a suspect into custody and questioned the youth about the incident. The watch was recovered Wednesday, they said. The watch was reportedly taken from Donald Lawler Saturday night.

New cases reported to police included a criminal mischief complaint yesterday.

Norma Sauceda told officers a window had been broken on her car parked at 413 31st St. Value of the window was set at $100.

Two traffic accidents were also reported yesterday.

The first occurred about 1:40 p.m. at Baker Packers. Involved in it were a parked 1974 Oldsmobile owned by R.V. Fryar of Big Spring and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Janie Ervin Roberts.

The second mishap was at the intersection of 30th St. and College Ave. about 2:45 p.m. It involved a 1979 Buick driven by Ned Underwood and a 1976 Pontiac driven by Carroldon Burleson of Hermleigh. Moderate damages were reported in that mishap.

Park Built For Handicapped

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Every piece of equipment is geared to the needs of the handicapped in the new city park here specifically designed for handicapped children.

The picnic tables, sandboxes, and waterboxes for youngsters who like to play in water, are elevated for wheelchairs, as are the water fountains. The part contains only slopes, no steps, and the swings are propelled by hands rather than feet.

A special feature of the park, built on city land and sponsored by a council of 11 area Lions clubs, is a merry-go-round where children are strapped in, wheelchairs and all.

SCRABBLE ® — not football or basketball — is the biggest game this year at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. On a 2,000-square-foot board, members of the student newspaper staff pitted their vocabulary skills against those of the school's faculty and administrators. Afterward, the fledgling journalists spelled out the game's outcome.

Carter May Alter Nuclear Strategy

NEW YORK (AP)-The Carter administration is taking tentative steps that may alter the nation's nuclear strategy, the New York Times said today.

The Times said the drastic revision of the American policy of relying upon massive retaliation for deterring a nuclear war with the Soviet Union is aimed at providing the United States with a better ability to wage a limited nuclear conflict in addition to its ability to engage in large-scale warfare.

The Times said this change in philosophy was being undertaken quietly, with little public debate, and that officials willing to talk about it would not do so for attribution.

The current renewed interest in civil defense, with plans for evacuating urban centers, was the most visible indicator that the United States might shift away from the massive retaliation stance, the newspaper said in a story from Washington.

Both the re-emergence of civil defense and proposals to build a new generation of larger and more accurate intercontinental missiles may point to acceptance of the idea that a nuclear war could be fought with the Soviet Union, it said. This would mean nuclear warring that extends over weeks or months but without laying waste to both nations.

pushed forward to surround Nixon's auto. Secret Service men in tan raincoats rushed forward and surrounded the car, and police eventually held back demonstrators, to allow Nixon into a narrow passageway behind the building.

Leading American students at the famed British University had said they planned to turn out hundreds of students, including a busload of Americans from London, to try to keep the former president from speaking at the Oxford Union, the university's 155-year-old debating society.

Protest signs read: "Nixon Crawl Back Into Your Hole," "Why Shame Us Here" and "If You Can't Die, at Least Fade Away."

Demonstrators included 43 Rhodes and Marshall scholars, and more than 100 other Americans studying at Oxford. Some had fashioned themselves as an ad-hoc group called "CREEP," using the acronym of Nixon's one-time Committee to Re-Elect the President but changing the meaning to "Campaign to Resist the Effects of the Ex-President."

Robert Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, said in 1969 the U.S. planned to ban all but essential use of DDT during a two-year period.

Accurate States To Get Bonuses

WASHINGTON (AP)— Acting under a 1977 congressional mandate, the federal government plans to pay bonuses to states that cut their error rates in the $10.0 billion Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

The Health, Education and Welfare proposal would give states a bonus if a state reduced its error rate below 4 percent. Then the state would receive 10 percent of the federal share of funds saved. If the state reduced the rate below 2 percent, it would get half the federal savings. About 55 percent of the AFDC funds come from Washington and 45 percent from the states.

Strikes At Paper Mills Affect Feds

WASHINGTON (AP)— Strikes against 26 paper mills, mostly in the West and Midwest, may put a pinch on Congress and federal agencies, which use about 65,000 pounds of paper a day.

"We're not in a critical situtation yet," said Sam Saylor, deputy public printer of the Government Printing Office. But he said stocks are low and must be built up before the legislative session convenes in January. "We'll kick our way through," he said. "I think we can get what we need to continue."

DIAMOND M MUSEUM ATTRACTION--This rendition of Will Rogers on a horse by noted sculptor Leonard McMurry is one of the focal points in the Diamond M. Museum, located in the Diamond M Building on 25th St. at Avenue J in Snyder. Special Showing Sunday...

Will Rogers Sculpture Is Diamond M Feature

A six-foot sculpture of Will Rogers on a horse is one of the focal points in the new exhibit area at Diamond M Museum, which will be open Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. for public viewing.

The Will Rogers piece, by Leonard D. McMurry, is one of the works recently moved into the new area of the Diamond M where it can be displayed to better advantage.

McMurry, a native Texan, has produced a number of major works including a life-sized rendition of Will Rogers at the Cowboy Hall of Fame and Western Heritage Center in Oklahoma City.

McMurry attended West Texas State College at Canyon in 1934 and later went to Texas A&M. In 1937, he went to Washington University, St. Louis, to study sculpture under Carl. C. Mosa. He finished his formal education there in 1941. During his first year, he won the Art Student Association's scholarhsip, and the second and third years he won the Waymon Crow Scholarship. In his fourth year, he won a foreing travelling scholarship and honorable mention in Prix de Rome.

More recently, he has been working on a relief for the Will Rogers World Airport at Oklahoma City.

The Diamond M Museum, which is located on 25th St. at Avenue J, is operated by the Daimond M Foundation, which was created by the late Mr. and Mrs. C.T. McLaughlin. Its exhibits focus largely on the American West, but it also includes outstanding works by renowned artists from throughout the United States and Europe in a variety of media.

The McLaughlins acquired the vast collection, the largest in West Texas, over a period of years, and the museum was opened in 1964. It has been expanded several times.

The Diamond M Museum may be seen without charge on weekdays and on special occasions, such as this Sunday afternoon.

Snyder Coed On Magazine Cover

An Abilene Christian University coed from Snyder has been featured on the cover of the November-December 1978 edition of This Is West Texas, the bi-monthly magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Pretty 19 year old La Donna Benson is depicted creating a festive mood by decorating what could be termed West Texas' version of a Christmas tree, a cactus.

This Is West Texas is distributed six times each year to WTCC members in the 132-county area served by the regional chamber. The publication, oriented toward West Texas business strives to keep WTCC members informed of ongoing activities in social, cultural, agricultural, energy and legislative (both state and national) areas that affect them.

Miss Benson, a freshman fashion merchandising major at ACU, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benson of Snyder. She plans to pursue a career in modeling and-or fashion merchandising.

Rothko Show

NEW YORK (AP)—The Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum says "Mark Rothko, 1903-1970: A Retrospective" is "the largest and most comprehensive exhibition of this 20th century master's work ever to be mounted."

The show is on display through Jan. 14.

Rothko was a pioneer of abstract color painting. The show consists of some 150 of his painting and works on paper "which trace Rothko's career from its beginnings in the 1920s to shortly before his death in 1970."

Male President Of NOW Chapter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)— Bob Meeks is a liberated male. Just ask members of the National Organization for Women Raleigh chapter.

The 33-year-old industrial engineer is the group's new acting president.

He says his commitment to feminism and equal rights goes far back. "I was raised in a reasonable, egalitarian household," he said. "Both parents worked and shared all the housework. I learned to cook from a man. It never occurred to me that it should be different. I'm glad. I hate to deal with stereotypes."

Meeks became involved in the women's movement in 1972 when he left the military and followed his wife's lead by joining a NOW chapter.

"As a white Southern male, I guess there was some sexism hidden in my mind and behavior," Meek admits. "It took some conciousness-raising on my part so I could really learn to deal with women as people. That has freed me."

you know who'll pay

According to news reports from the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan community leaders, in both public and private areas, are on a collision course with the division of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) charged with responsibility of reducing air pollution and noise to acceptable levels.

There are sub-divisions of these categories. They include appearance of matters which may be objectionable to the citizenry or might become health hazards. Guidelines thus far made public have been construed by public officials and business leaders as extremely costly and in some instances next to impossible of attainment.

An outsider might conclude that absence of major chemical plants in the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex would reduce pollution problems to levels that could hardly be regarded as serious. It seems that motor vehicle traffic generates unacceptable amounts of health-damaging pollution.

In that situation it would appear there are only two possible solutions. One is to limit the number of motor vehicles allowed to operate. The other would be some type of mass transportation connecting residential districts with manufacturing and shopping areas.

Community leaders insist enforcement will adversely affect business. This means corrective measures involve costs commercial and manufacturing enteprises cannot afford to pay.

Each side is charging the other with exaggeration. Public officials and business leaders, so the allegation goes, are finding barriers that do not exist and are underestimating the possible increase in business activity if noise and air pollution can be reduced to levels acceptable to federal bureaucrats.

By way of rebuttal local interests assert bureaucrats in the ivory towers of the national capital have put together a set of rules that have little relation to practicality.

As a result, this point of view implies, executives in the business and industry will pay us the Dallas-Fort Worth area and locate their factories and branch offices elsewhere. That may not be possible, since HEW agents are to be found everywhere. In any case, consumers of goods and servies will pay the cost, in taxes and higher prices.

texas' strong voice

Texas Governor-Elect Bill Clements got plenty of attention this week at a meeting of Republican governors in Williamsburg, Va.

Although a newcomer, Clements was in the limelight from the outset of the meeting because his stunning victory in the general election cast him in the starring role of the revival of a species that appeared to be extinct. Party leaders in other states understandably could wonder what kind of man could break a 100-year grip on the highest office in Texas.

Clements, never at a loss for words, was not inclined to claim any magic, however, and he refused to even suggest that other states should try to leap into the Texas mold. Instead, he said he had no intentions of telling other states that they should try to fit themselves into Texas shoes.

Many Texans have been preaching this type of tolerance and Clements' vow to practice it should strengthen the state's voice in such matters. We are tired of endless concessions to accommodate the "shoes" of other states. For the most part, we suspect that the states themselves understand. Now, if we could get Uncle Sam to understand, we could mark up some real progress.

routine kidnaping

The crime of kidnaping proved such an easy way for Italian terrorists to finance their terrorism that now their modus operandi (MO) is being imitated worldwide.

Criminals in the United States are discovering it's easier than robbing a bank.

Seminars are being conducted in American cities advising corporations how to protect key personnel from kidnapers.

The security business is booming.

But U.S. kidnapers--no longer having a death penalty to fear--won't quit.

Just in one city, Dallas, in the past five years seven wealthy persons have been kidnaped for ransom.

Jack Evans of Dallas does not drive a yellow Cadillac any more; he drives a modest smaller car.

He does not live on a fashionable suburban estate any more; he lives in a high-security high-rise apartment.

Because you don't soon recover from an experience such as the one he suffered last February.

Jack Evans was chairman of a bank. His son was president of that bank. Kidnapers shop for setups like that.

They kidnaped Mr. Evans Sr. from the parking lot adjacent to his office, drove him at gunpoint to a motel, stripped him and taped his eyes and gagged him and tied him up--striking him if he offered resistance--then the kidnapers negotiated for ransom.

They got the money. Jack Evans escaped. But he spent four weeks in the hospital getting over the shock--though Evans says he does not expect to ever really get over it.

In addition to abandoning his luxury car and his country home, Evans resigned his bank directorship and abandoned plans to run for city council.

Though he might well have been the next mayor of Dallas, Evans says he is unwilling to resume the "high profile" which makes one a target.

A score of bank officials, realtors and other business people in Texas have been hit by extortion schemes in the past five years.

--An 18-year-old coed from Southern Methodist University whose father is wealthy.

--The wife and baby daughter of a Fort Worth Safeway store manager. He knew the combination to the store safe.

--A Houston land developer was one victim.

There is no central repository for kidnap statistics, but it is known that the New York City Police Department has quietly set up and trained a 70-man force to deal with kidnapings.

Dr. Tony Cooper, Dallas specialist in this kind of crime, is working with several police organizations throughout the Southwest to help them develop their own kidnaping "task forees."

Capital punishment for kidnapers was abandoned because it was feared the kidnaper would have nothing to lose in killing his victim. It was intended as protection for kidnap victims.

But the caught kidnapers of Jack Evans were sentenced to 10 years, may be out in six--and one wonders.

WASHINGTON (NEA)-A century ago, it was wage rates, crime and pauperism. Today, it is ethnic origin, carpool arrangements and unwed "roommates."

The self-portrait of America - who we are, how we live, what concerns us - is about to be painted anew in the 1980 decennial census of population and housing, the largest headcount in our history.

The results of this census, the 20th in an unbroken chain that began in 1790, will determine how federal funds are distributed in the next decade, reallocate political power through congressional and legislative redistricting, and shape the marketing decisions of private businesses.

But however important the answers may be in practical terms, it is the census questions which provide the most fascinating clues to the changing economic and social conditions of the nation.

The 1980 census questionnaires will not simply duplicate the 1970 versions, anymore than those copied the 1960 forms. Certain fundamentals will be repeated - how many persons in the household, their age, sex, marital status, etc - but some questions have been added since 1970 while others have been deleted.

For the first time, for instance, the U.S. Census Bureau is not asking that the "head of household" fill out the questionnaire. In this era of working wives, too many women found that terminology objectionable.

The 1980 census forms also contain a new category of "partner-roommate" to describe a non-related household member who is neither a paid employee nor a roomer-boarder. Census officials admit they had quite a time coming up with that precise phraseology.

All households will be asked for the first time to identify any member of "Spanish-Hispanic origin or descent" since some federal laws and programs now specifically mention that particular minority group.

Some 20 percent of all households will be receiving a "long" questionnaire, with 65 questions rather than the 19 which will go to most homes. And the long form in 1980 will include for the first time an ethnic origin question designed to reflect the growth of ethnic awareness and pride which was so evident in the 1970s.

Like the "head of household" deletion, the addition of the ethnic origin question was prompted by public pressure - not by any push from the bureaucracy.

The housing section of the 1980 questionnaires will also contain some new queries. One is aimed at pinpointing the number of condominium and cooperative apartment buildings; another at determining how many people live in mobile homes.

Gone from the 1980 forms is an old standby - a query about the presence of television in the home. Census officials assume television ownership is now virtually universal.

On the other hand, long form recipients will be asked new questions about how they get to work each day, how long it takes and whether they drive alone or in a carpool if they commute by car.

In deciding what questions to ask of all households, and which to limit to the 20 percent getting long form questionnaires, Census Bureau officials sometimes bow to political considerations.

For instance, in 1980 - as in previous years - only the long-form recipients will be asked about income of household members. Census officials had planned to include an income question on all 1980 forms, but resistance from the public and from Congress led them to scrap that proposal.

A housing question about peeling paint and cracking plaster may not even make the long form in 1980; test runs show the query tends to provoke giggles and snide comments. The last thing Census Bureau officials want is ridicule, so the question will probably be dropped entirely.

It may not seem as though much has changed in this country since 1970, not in comparison with the upheavals of the 1960s, at any rate. But change we did, and there is no better gauge of that than the 1980 census questions.

To The Daily News:

On behalf of the Boy Scouts of the Lone Buffalo District, and at the direction of the District Committee by unanimous consent, I would like to use this public forum to express the gratitude we feel for the generous support of the Scurry County United Way.

As this year's campaign nears what appears to be a most successful conclusion, we would add our voices to those emphasizing the scope and importance of the United Way. Our Scouting program depends very directly on the United Way in order to offer the unique opportunities which Scouting brings to our young people. It simply would not be possible without United Way funds.

We are pleased to express confidence in the developing program of Scouting in our district's three-county service area and hope that the fruits we bear will prove adequate justification for such support. We appeal to the community to become more aware and more involved in the particular program opportunities of Scouting. We are equally impressed with the merits of the other programs supported by the United Way.

We thank the United Way, its board members and campaign workers, for both its support and its confidence in our program.

To The Daily News:

Our sincere thanks to each merchant who joined the Cardinal Booster Club in sponsoring the two radio broadcasts of Hermleigh Cardinal football. We are extremely proud of our school and its fine athletic programs. The broadcasts helped us to share some of that pride and enthusiasm. The staff at KSNY has done a really good job as has The Snyder Daily News in its coverage.

We were so fortunate to have an excellent team of boys playing football this season. They worked hard and proved their fine character and ability. Their 10-0 record in regular season play speaks for itself! Likewise the Cardinalette Drill Team and cheerleaders did an especially fine job.

Thanks again to the merchants, KSNY, Snyder Daily News, and fans. Your continued support is greatly appreciated.

Now, on to district basketball and the anticipaton of another Big Red championship in '79!

To The Daily News:

Last Saturday morning at approximately eight o'clock, I stepped out on my back porch with my pet poodle for her customary morning outing. We had been there for a few minutes when up came this huge German Shepherd dog, and before I could realize what was happening, that creature had grabbed my pet by the neck and took off with her, leaving me stunned and helpless.

A few moments later the beloved pet was found dead in the yard of the dog's owner.

While we were looking for the poodle, the Yorkshire puppy belonging to the people visiting next door was attacked, but managed to escape. She ran into the house, the door of which was open, but the dog was still in chase. He was stopped by the man living there.

I am not writing this letter to get sympathy. I know that I have that from anyone who has ever had a pet that was loved. I'm writing to ask, no, to plead, with all owners of dogs, especially the large and unpredictables ones, to please keep them restrained.

The victim of such an act as occurred Saturday could very well have been a small child. It's not impossible.

my turn

by john long

I do not know if I will ever understand the curious mixture of fanaticism and loyalty that would prompt 900 or so people to kill themselves at their leader's behest.

The mass suicides at Guyana are not so tragic as they are interesting. To me, it is interesting that so many people could be so easily led by one man. The members of the Peoples Temple voluntarily followed their reverened master to Guyana, and voluntarily killed themselves when their leader asked for their lives.

They could have escaped if they had chosen to, and a few of them did. The overwhelming majority, however, wasted their lives in a senseless sacrifice to a bizarre cult and an insane leader.

I am reminded a statement I heard years ago concerning the easily deceived. The statement was an observation made about the gullible in the movie "The Magnificent Seven."

In the movie, the village of Mexian peasants is pillaged by a ruthless outlaw. The villagers do not fight back. In what is almost a soliloquy, the outlaw says, "If God did not want them shorn, He would not have made them sheep."

I will always remember that comment.

The Associated Press reports that a replica of Noah's ark is being built in Frostburg, Md.

This replica, built to biblical specifications, is being constructed by the Chruch of the Brethren. No animals, however, will be stuffed into this one.

The ark - 150 yards long, 75 feet wide, and a 45 feet high, - will be used by the congreagation and will house an auditorium, school rooms, and a medical clinic. It is not designed to float. It will be stationary.

The pastor of the church claims he had a series of visions in which he was divinely inspired to build the ark.

Before they begin stuffing the rooms, auditorium and medical clinic, however, I wish someone would try fitting in a few animals, just for the sake of trying.

I have always wondered if all the animals of the world could be made to fit in such a vessel. As long as such a vessel is being built, it seems a shame not to at least try.

I have always wondered whether it could be done.

Predicting Cold Winter For West

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

WASHINGTON (AP)—This winter will be milder than normal in the East but colder in the West, if the National Weather Service's long-range forecast proves accurate.

The chances for above-average temperatures are 2 to 1 from Massachusetts to Florida, the service said in issuing its annual winter forecast.

The same odds for warmer-than-usual temperatures hold for the Appalachaians, the Ohio and Tennessee valleys, the Deep South and the Gulf Coast and Rio Grande Valley.

But, by identical chances, officials called for temperatures below normal in the Northern Great Plains and Rockies, the Great Basin and from the Pacific Northwest to central California.

The predictions cover December, January and February.

The weather service would not hazard a forecast for the area from Maine through the Great Lakes and the Central Great Plains to the Southwest.

Her Ego Trips Her

DEAR ABBY: I've been divorced for five years. I'm 50, and look my age. I dress fashionably, am well-groomed, wear glasses and my figure is so-so. I'm no beauty, but I'm far from ugly.

I would like to get married again, but I don't care for old men, and young men don't care for me.

Don't suggest travel. I've traveled plenty and all I ever meet are other women looking for eligible men. Don't tell me to develop my personality. I've got more personality than most men I know. Don't suggest singles clubs, computer-dating bureaus or those match-maker agencies; they're all frauds who belong in jail. Don't tell me to get contact lenses. I've tried them and can't wear them. And don't tell me to dye my hair. I think dyed hair looks cheap.

What can you do for me?

WANTS A MAN

DEAR WANTS: Not much, lady. But if I find a man who's looking for a woman who anticipates all the questions and knows all the answers, I'll let you know.

DEAR ABBY: I am a clock-watcher out of necessity as are many other working wives and mothers.

Most employees do not object to working a little overtime occasionally, but some bosses consistently start dictating five minutes before quitting time. And some people run into stores just as the doors are closing, and are annoyed if the clerks seem less than cooperative. Working people have time commitments, baby sitters, hair appointments, errands, dinner dates, hungry husbands, etc., based on the assumption that their working day ends at 5 p.m. and not 5:20.

Abby, you could rid the world of much confusion and frustration if you suggested that each person try to manage his own time so it won't overlap onto someone else's. It's just a matter of organization and consideration.

HARDWORKING CLOCK-WATCHER

DEAR CLOCK-WATCHER: I agree. Last-minute dictation should be held to a minimum. But an employer can't be expected to halt operations and clear the store of customers so that the help can zoom out the door at 5 o'clock sharp.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument between my sister and me. Recently there was a wedding in the family. My sister and her husband were invited, but the husband couldn't make it, so my sister took her 11-year-old daughter instead.

None of the other children in the family was invited and you can be sure there were plenty of hurt feelings. My sister insists that as long as her husband wasn't able to make it, substituting her daughter was perfectly all right.

I told my sister if the bride and groom wanted her daughter at the wedding they would have invited her, and only those people whose names appear on the invitation are invited.

What do you say?

NO SUBSTITUTIONS

DEAR NO: I vote with you.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple do-your-own-thing ceremony, get Abby's new booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

First Ticket A Tough One

MOORE, Mont. (AP)—The first traffic ticket issued by the new town marshall, Kenneth Keith, was a tough one.

He caught his wife, Mary, double-parked.

Judge Robert Brooks of Lewistown, who serves as city judge for this northern Montana town of about 200, didn't take it lightly. He fined Mrs. Keith $30, with $15 suspended, after she pleaded guilty.

And she was properly repentant.

"I had it coming," she said.

Columnist Files Suit

NEW YORK (AP)-Morton Mockridge has filed suit in U.S. District Court for $195,000 in damages, claiming wrongful firing by Scripps Howard Newspapers, for whom he has written a humor column since 1963.

Mockridge's suit, filed Friday, said he had signed with the Scripps Howard syndicate for less than he might have earned otherwise because of a guarantee of employment until he retired or became disabled. Now 63, he said Scripps Howard informed him last May his employment will end Dec. 1. Charles E. Scripps, chairman of the board of the parent E.W. Scripps Company, said he was not aware of the suit.

Does Not Eat Meat He Has Not Shot Himself

BROOKINGS, S.D. (AP)-For the past eight years, Jerry Thomas hasn't cooked any meat that he hasn't shot himself.

"It's good for me," says Thoms, director of the state Forum on Public Higher Education. "I keep my weight down, I feel good and I don't spend a fortune at the grocery store.

"But I do spend a fortune on hunting," the 35-year-old bachelor adds.

Thoms says he doesn't miss a weekend of hunting from September through December. And he tries not to think of how much money he spends to bag his wild game.

"If I sat down and figured all the time and money, I probably wouldn't feel so comfortable about hunting," he says. "But it makes sense to me. I do it because I feel closer to nature.

"Somehow, I get a distinct satisfaction out of eating what I kill," he says. "I think if more people could eat what they kill, they would get a greater appreciation out of what they eat."

There are occasions, of course, when the bespectacled Sioux Falls native must give in to the omnipresent fast-food burger.

Three days or so a week, Thoms is on the road conducting public hearings and media sessions on higher education around the state for the state Board of Regents and the state Committee on Humanties.

But once he returns home, it's back to the routine of venison sausages for breakfast; goose; pheasant salad or cold duck sandwiches for lunch; and an assortment of game for supper.

A peek inside Thoms' deep freeze is astonishing. It contains a covey of South Dakota game birds that adventurous outdoorsmen dream about.

Thoms says he eats everything he shoots, except gophers.

For instance, he shoots and eats snipe, the long-billed bird that wades the shorelines of the state's lakes and streams.

"By the time they're ready for the table, they weigh about an ounce - which coincidentally is about the amount of shot I put into them," he says.

And blackbirds, which most people consider a bug-eating pest, are transformed into blackbird shishkebab.

Thoms says blackbirds taste somewhat like doves, but "they don't have a distinct taste to them. They're kind of a blah bird. Usually you have to serve blackbirds with martinis."

Unusual Year For The Birds

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)-Rare birds from as far away as South Africa have been spotted in Rhode Island in the past two weeks, and birdwatchers are baffled. A white pelican from the Gulf of Mexico was sighted in Little Compton Nov. 11 and in Newport Saturday - the first since 1946 in the state.

In addition, a South African shelduck was reported in Charlestown and South Kingstown Sunday, and a European barnacle goose was shot among a flock of Canadian and snow geese Nov. 11. "It's been an unusual year," said Charles Wood of the Audubon Society in Providence.

Sir John Bland gambled away the whole city of Manchester, England, and its environs and shot himself in 1755.

Walk Wraps Given Away

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)-Christo's "Wrapped Walk Ways" project, which charmed some Kansas Citians and outraged others, met a fitting end over the weekend.

The three miles of saffron yellow industrial strength nylon was cut up and given away to hundreds of art collectors and souvenir hunters.

Christo donated the fabric to the Kansas City Parks and Recreation Department after the wraps came off Loose Park's sidewalks. Recreation Superintendent Mary Edith Lillis thought up the idea for the help-yourself session.

One person with scissors in hand planned to use a piece of Christo's artwork as a driveway dropcloth. A Kansas City woman said she was going to use it to adorn a 40-foot mountain of dirt in her yard.

Talking about alcoholism

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend of mine drinks five or six martinis a day loaded with ice, large glasses with five or six shots per glass. He must have liver or pancreas trouble as he has a pot belly, nausea, vomits and is red in the face. He visits us for four or five hours or longer and never goes to the bathroom. Where does the fluid go?

DEAR READER — You could ask him. Maybe he's just developed this kind of habit pattern. In any case, it would be a way you could talk to him about his alcoholism.

If he drinks anywhere near as much as you say he does on a daily basis, he is an alcoholic. If you are his friend, you should help him to realize that he is one and encourage him to seek professional help. There are a number of organizations, including Alcoholics Anonymous, that could help him and believe me, he needs help.

And you are probably right, at least, about him having liver disease. It's one of the serious complications from alcohol. Cirrhosis of the liver is a common cause of death in the American population in both men and women, and 60 percent of these deaths from cirrhosis of the liver are caused from alcohol.

To give you more information about what alcohol really does to the body, I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine and Beer. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Because of the association of alcohol with liver disease, many people are under the wrong impression that whenever you have liver disease, it's associated with alcoholism. That's not true either. There are many other causes of scarring or liver damage which we call cirrhosis.

Some people who develop chronic liver disease have never had a drop of alcohol in their entire life. However, the 60 percent of the deaths from cirrhosis of the liver caused by alcohol are preventable simply by avoiding the excess use of alcohol.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I work in a state institution for mentally retarded people. All of these residents brush their teeth two or three times a day and approximately 90 percent of them swallow the toothpaste.

I tried this once and it burned for a long time. I am wondering if this could be dangerous to their health along with being uncomfortable? Also, do they get used to it so it doesn't hurt?

DEAR READER — I'm not sure why it burned when you swallowed the toothpaste as not everyone experiences this. You might be surprised to know that the astronauts swallowed their toothpaste during space flight. It was planned that way; the toothpaste was specially prepared.

The difference was that the flavor oils were taken out of it. The flavor in toothpaste is really due to oils and these are sometimes a little tough on the digestive system. Considering the problems you might have in patient care, it might be a good idea to contact NASA and see if you can find out from them the availability of the type of toothpaste used by the astronauts.

And it might be a good idea for personnel responsible for people in institutional situations to find out from the various toothpaste companies what is available for people with these difficulties. It certainly wouldn't hurt to minimize the problem by using special toothpaste that you could be absolutely certain wouldn't cause any symptoms or difficulties.

Finish First

AUBURN, Pa. (AP)— Furniture expert John Burke advises buyers of furniture that the first thing to look for is the last thing—the finish. Burke, of Reneer Films here, says, "In any piece of furniture, the finish is really the true indicator of the quality that went into the product."

Many Texas Addicts March To A New Beat

DALLAS (AP)— Thousands of Texas drug addicts are stepping to a new beat, and the sound is a cadence of hope for those living in the shade of mind-clouding chemicals.

Bob Meehan is the Pied Piper of Houston, leading a parade of drug abusers in search for a place in the sun.

A former drug addict and convict, Meehan founded the Palmer Drug Abuse Program, which its National Executive Director Ed Leach calls the "treatment alternative for drug abuse."

But to former drug abusers and their families, working to salvage lives and personalities ravaged by mind-altering drugs, the program represents the last best hope.

"I wanted to kill myself three or four times," said Mark, a 16-year-old Dallas high school student, who pressured by his sixth-grade classmates, began using drugs four years ago.

Free of mind-altering chemicals for six months, Mark credits a feeling of "strength and unity" and "love" at PDAP with his new found sobriety.

"We do not believe the solution to chemical abuse can be found in another chemical," said Leach, a former addict. "Getting high is a way of life, a coping mechanism. Instead of chemicals we give them friends and relationships and love. The key is the constant affirmation that 'people care about me.'"

And Leach said, "There is a lot of healing in caring. Lonely and disconsolate persons find "the feeling that people care is mind-boggling."

"I was living a lie," said Jim, the 20-year-old son of an affluent Dallas family. "I thought people liked and respected me because I was into drugs. I picked friends who were into dope. I burned all my trails behind me."

Jim began "smoking dope" when he was 15. After he graduated to "hard" drugs, he began dealing to supply his habit.

"I had to start again, I had to be rigorously honest, change my morals, and conduct a personal inventory."

At PDAP, Jim said he found a way to deal with his feelings of fear and inadequacy. "I found hope and trust and love."

Members embrace each other with contagious excitement at PDAP meetings in a genuine display of affection that trancends superficial cordiality and cuts right to the core of people who care about people.

"I found peace of mind for the first time in my life," said Jean, an alcoholic mother of a drug abuser. "For me PDAP means that my son will live instead of die."

Jean has been a member of the parent group for 2½ years, prior to her involvement she lived in fear of the son she could not understand and felt saddled with guilt because of his problem.

"I meet people with similar experiences, I know now it is not really my fault and I learned to feel good about myself," said Jean.

Men Are Fashion Conscious

NEW YORK (AP)— Men's clothing is now as vulnerable to fashion changes as women's clothing, says Marvin A. Blemenfeld of April-Marcus, a merchandising consulting firm.

"The situation in men's fashions is now similar to that in the women's field: an item is either the greatest or it's dead," the apparel expert says.

"The great right now is dressier clothing. In suits it's the natural shoulder look, and designer clothing is also in."

Catcher Jimmy Wilson ended two years of retirement to play for the Cincinnati Reds against the Detroit Tigers in 1940 and hit .353 in six games.

Money Not Always Reason For Bank Robbery

By Margaret Gentry
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)- The only reason for robbing a bank is to steal money, right? Wrong, says a psychiatrist who examined more than 200 bank robbers and found their motives ranged from proving their manhood to embarrassing a domineering wife.

"The act of committing a bank robbery often had very little, if any, relationship to the theft of money for personal profit," Dr. Donald A. Johnston concluded after a two-year study of federal prisoners convicted of robbing banks.

He found many bank robbers to be "passive and dependent, sometimes ignorant, often physically unattractive, and not infrequently grossly psychotic." In short, they're a far cry from the tough and cunning criminals portrayed in detective novels and movies.

Johnston, an assistant clinical professor of psychiatry at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver, described his findings in a telephone interview and in an article in the current issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry.

Few of the robbers he studied, Johnston said, were "professional criminals in it for the money." Most were deeply troubled men who saw bank robbery as a way of overcoming a lifelong sense of failure.

For example, a man identified only as Mr. B felt his successful father considered him a weakling, the psychiatrist wrote. "He married a greedy and demeaning woman and was divorced by her after seven years. He felt he could not satisfy her in any way."

Mr. B went to San Francisco, intent upon drowning himself in the ocean but found he couldn't go through with it, Johnston related.

Later, "in front of a bank, he met a hippie who asked him for a quarter. This stimulated a resurgence of his sense of failure because he realized he had no money. He told the hippie, 'Wait a minute, I'll get some,' and immediately headed into the bank. The hippie realized what was about to happen and ran away."

Then there was Mr. C, who robbed a bank twice to punish his domineering wife. At 51, Mr. C was fat, "had ill-fitting dentures" and felt he was a failure at everything. Unable to stand up to his wife directly, he would "fiddle with chemicals in the basement, making small explosions which would frighten her," Johnston related. "When he became angry enough to threaten divorce, she would put a stop on his checking account."

Finally, in a fit of rage at his wife, Mr. C "robbed a neighborhood branch bank with a jar of Wesson Oil," convincing the teller that it was nitroglycerin. He was immediately arrested, "his wife was ashamed of him...and divorced him."

The psychiatrist said he encountered a substantial number of men whose robberies were motivated by sexual confusion or frustration over being homosexuals.

Johnston's work was done at the federal prison for men in Springfield, Mo., about eight years ago. He said he postponed reporting the findings because the delay would better disguise the prisoners' identities.

Early Present For Uncle Sam

PROVO, Utah (AP)—A man walked up to a Provo service station owner, shoved a gun in his face and demanded money. All he got was change for a quarter, police said.

Ollie Johnson, the station owner, told police a man approached him Monday evening and asked for a quarter's change, then pulled a gun.

Johnson told police he could see the gun was empty. When the man handed him a paper sack for money, Johnson shoved it away.

"'Give me your money or I'll shoot you.'" Johnson quoted the man as saying. He told the culprit, "Your gun is empty."

After the man again threatened to shoot, Johnson said he gave him a few coins, saying, "Here's your change."

Police said the man picked up the change, dropped some of it, picked it up again and ran toward a phone booth. He made a call and then disappeared, officers said.

Wojtowicz Is Paroled

NEW YORK (AP)—It was far from a "Dog Day Afternoon" for John Wojtowicz, who was released from prison six years and three months after a bizarre bank robbery that inspired the movie starring Al Pacino.

Wojtowicz, now 33, had tried to rob a Chase Manhattan branch bank in Brooklyn, but it went sour when police arrived - and turned into a 14-hour drama that ended with Wojtowicz captured, a confederate slain and seven hostages freed at Kennedy Airport.

Wojtowicz, who pulled the robbery Aug. 22, 1972, to finance a sex-change operation for his male lover, was convicted in 1973 on a federal bank robbery charge and sentenced to 20 years in prison. The sentence later was reduced to 15 years, which made him eligible for parole now.

On Tuesday, he signed the papers giving him conditional freedom.

Three years in a row, 1963-64-65, the winners of the Blue Grass Stakes at Keeneland, Chateaugay, Northern Dancer and Lucky Debonair, went on to win the Kentucky Derby.

Reversal In Suit Against Bell To Be Appealed

By GREG THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)-The reversal of the $3 million slander judgment against Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is a "legal travesty" and will be taken to the Texas Supreme Court, says the attorney for a former Bell executive and the widow of another top Bell official.

The 4th Court of Civil Appeals ruled Wednesday that Bell owes nothing to former executive James Ashley and Oleta Gravitt Dixon, the widow of T.O. Gravitt.

Bell officials called the decision "a vindication" of the company and its employees.

Ashley and Mrs. Gravitt had sued Bell for $29 million, alleging that a wrongful internal investigation led to Ashley's dismissal and suicide by Gravitt, the $80,000-per-year head of Bell's Texas operations until he died in October 1974.

A state district jury awarded $1.5 million each to Ashley and Mrs. Gravitt after a lurid six-week trial here in which the plaintiffs accused Bell of numerous corporate misdeeds and Bell alleged that Ashley and Gravitt engaged in sexual misconduct on the job.

"I regard the result as an aberration. Naturally we will appeal," said a bitter attorney Pat Maloney. "Bell can count on this as their most influential day. The people can count this as their blackest day.

"The rich get richer. It has always been my experience as an attorney that the further you get from a jury, the less the people prevail," Maloney added.

But C.L. Todd, vice president and general manager of Southwestern Bell, said, "We view the appellate court's decision as a vindication of Southwestern Bell and its employees. We were sure all along that when the facts were considered in an objective, dispassionate atmosphere this case would be reversed.

"We're very pleased that the courts have upheld the right of a business to deal with internal wrongdoing and allegations of wrongdoing," he added.

Ashley, now a Hill Country real estate salesman in Blanco, and Mrs. Gravitt, who has since remarried and lives in Oklahoma, could not immediately be reached for comment.

In its decision, the appeals court ruled that Bell had a right to investigate alleged sexual misconduct and other alleged misdeeds by Gravitt and Ashley after receiving such reports.

"We agree with appellant (Bell) that the reports of wrongdoing established the defendant's conditional privilege to make inquiries or investigations in order to perserve its own effectiveness," the appeals court said.

"...the judgment is hereby rendered that the plaintiffs take nothing," read the opinion written by Associate Justice Robert Murray.

Ashley, fired Oct. 31, 1974 from his $55,000-a-year post as head of the San Antonio office, and his wife also lost a $1 million invasion of privacy judgment against Bell in another appeals court. The Texas Supreme Court recently upheld that reversal. The Ashleys had alleged that Bell illegally wiretapped their telephone.

Ashley and Gravitt had alleged that Southwestern Bell, the largest component of the nationwide Bell system, kept secret political slush funds, was dishonest in rate practices and wiretapped employees. The telephone company, the two executives said, hounded them for opposing such alleged practices.

"Watergate is a gnat compared to the Bell system," Gravitt wrote in a suicide note that first aired the allegations. He took his own life by carbon monoxide poisoning at his Dallas home in the midst of the investigation.

The jury said that the investigation was a "proximate cause" for insanity that led Gravitt to suicide.

During the sensational trial, Bell brought in several female employees who testified that they had sex with Ashley and Gravitt in order to earn promotions. Some testified about engaging in sex with the two men in the executives' offices.

The company also charged the two men with falsifying expense vouchers and funneling Bell business to a printing company in which they had an interest.

In its verdict, the state jury also ruled that Mrs. Gravitt should pay Bell $1,771 as reimbursement for false expense vouchers Gravitt filed with the company.

Guard Against Plutonium Misuse

WASHINGTON (AP)— The world's civilian stocks of plutonium, a nuclear fuel that is a byproduct of nuclear power generation and a potential nuclear weapon explosive, should be placed under international custody to prevent misuse, a private study recommends.

The report written for the International Consultative Group on Nuclear Energy, sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation and the London-based Royal Institute of International Affairs, says "The diversion, actual or feared, of weapons-usable materials" presents a "critical" risk.

Human Rights Day Slated For Dec. 10

WASHINGTON (AP)— An nationwide series of commemorative acts by human rights and civil rights groups has begun with President Carter proclaiming Dec. 10 as Human Rights Day and Dec. 15 as Bill of Rights Day.

Carter will mark the events with a Dec. 6 speech to human rights and civil rights leaders who will gather at the White House, presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Tuesday.
