ARRIVES FOR ARRAIGNMENT — Bert Lance pauses to talk to reporters outside the federal courthouse in Atlanta today as he arrived for arraignment on charges of misusing bank funds and misleading bank regulators.

Lance eager to face bank fraud charges

ATLANTA (AP) — Former federal budget director Bert Lance, once so close to Jimmy Carter that he was sometimes called the "deputy president," says he is eager for his day in court on charges of bank fraud, conspiracy, and misuse of funds at two Georgia banks.

"I know that I am innocent," Lance said in a statement Wednesday after he and three northwest Georgia businessmen were indicted by a federal grand jury.

"I have an infinite faith in the fairness of the American people, and I know that no jury will find me guilty of the charges directed against me," Lance said.

The indictment, which makes no mention of Carter, concerns Lance's banking practices before he resigned the presidency of the National Bank of Georgia to serve eight months in the Carter administration in 1977.

It alleges a conspiracy to commit banking violations and fraud against agencies of the government from 1970 to the present. The indictment said the conspiracy "has resulted in losses and potential losses in excess of $500,000" to the banks involved.

The charges follow nearly two years of investigation by various agencies.

Lance's first appearance in court could come as early as today. He is to be arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Allen L. Chancey Jr., but officials still had not announced the details early this morning. A trial could follow within 90 days.

Lance, who had been a major fund-raiser in Carter's presidential campaign, came to Washington as director of the Office of Management and Budget when Carter was inaugurated in 1977. For a time, they had lunch together twice a week and consulted daily by telephone. They had been political associates since 1966, and when Lance resigned on Sept. 21, 1977, an emotional president announced it.

Now Lance is charged in 22 of 33 counts in an inch-thick indictment. If convicted on all counts, the maximum penalty would be 95 years in prison and a fine of $115,000.

The charges against him include conspiracy, misapplication of bank funds, falsifying personal financial statements to banks, and making false entries in bank records. The grand jury described a pattern of bad debts covered and re-covered by new loans — eventually 383 loans from 41 banks that totaled more than $20 million — that benefitted the defendants, their families and their associates. n

The allegations relate to Lance's terms as president of the Calhoun, Ga., First National Bank in 1963-1975, and the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta in 1975 and 1976.

The indictment does not touch on loans from the National Bank of Georgia to Carter's peanut business in Plains, Ga., which are now the subject of a separate grand jury investigation headed by special counsel Paul Curran.

That inquiry reportedly is considering whether the loans may have been used, in part, to finance Carter's 1976 campaign in violation of federal election laws. The president has said they were not.

On Wednesday, after the indictment was made public, presidential spokesman Jody Powell said "it would not be appropriate" for the president or his spokesman to comment. The Justice Department had notified the White House of the indictment Tuesday.

Twenty months before, after newspapers had raised questions about Lance's finances, and investigations by federal banking officials and the Senate had begun, Carter announced Lance was resigning — and praised him.

Recent rains insure water for Snyder

The recent rains that fell on the Lake Thomas watershed were modest enough but likely contributed enough runoff to insure the City of Snyder's supplies from the reservoir for the remainder of the year.

Had the rains not come, Snyder, in time, likely would have had to make use of Lake Spence water.

Lake Thomas added 2.1 vertical feet of water from the downpours, raising the elevation to 2211.24 feet. In all, the lake caught about 1,800 acre feet of the precious liquid.

Lake Spence was again missed by the rains. The taste of the Big Spring water, which comes from Lake Spence, reportedly will improve only when substantial water is trapped back of the Spence dam.

Massey: Scare tactic of some kind

Two shotgun blasts fired near councilman's home

By JAMES WERRELL

Shots were fired twice in the vicinity of Councilman John Massey's home Wednesday night.

Neither Massey nor investigators are sure what to make of two shotgun blasts fired near the residence at 1502 S. Nolan. The first shot was fired at 10:10 p.m., and then near midnight, when the Massey family had just begun to calm down, another shot was fired.

"At first we thought the shot was just a large rock that someone threw at the house. We called the police, and when they arrived we checked and found that Mr. Teague's tire had been shot out," said Massey.

Guy Teague, 23 Marshall, Massey's campaign manager, was visiting the home when the first shot was fired. Thought to have come from a .410 gauge shotgun, the pellets punctured the left front tire on Teague's car, causing $80 worth of damage.

"It was right before midnight, and we were sitting in the living room. We had just started to calm down from the first shot when we heard the other one," said Massey.

The councilman ran from the house, and spotted a slow-moving car traveling south on Goliad. The car turned east on 16th, and disappeared from view.

Investigators were unable to find where the second shot hit.

Police were again summoned, and Detectives George Quintero and David Spilman were staked out in the shadows near the house, waiting for the gunman to return. They remained at the scene for several hours to no avail.

"I am really not surey why this happened. I think it is harassment, a scare tactic of some kind," said Massey. "Maybe it is someone who can't forget the issues in the campaign or the ones raised in recent council meetings."

Massey has received a number of harassing phone calls recently, but is not sure whether they are connected with the shooting incident.

"One guy called and said to stay out of politics and stay out of the city election. At other times they just call and hang up," said Massey.

Police will continue the investigation based on a description of the slow-moving car spotted by Massey.

"We'll investigate, but I just can't come up with a motive. What has Mr. Massey said or done that would make someone mad enough to shoot at his house?" said Police Lt. Claude Morris.

Massey, a newcomer in Big Spring politics, defeated Mayor Pro-Tem Polly Mays April 28 for Place 3 on the council. His margin was 330 votes.

Action/reaction: Where are boxes?

Q. Why doesn't The Herald carry box scores of all the major league baseball games?

A. The Associated Press wire to which the Herald subscribes carries only the box scores of the two Texas teams in the big leagues, the Houston Oilers and the Texas Rangers.

Tops on TV: 'Car Wash'

There are several new entries in the ratings sweepstakes tonight. At 7:30 p.m., both "Car Wash" on NBC and "Young Guy Christian" on ABC make their debut. "Car Wash" is based on the movie of the same name, and deals with the trials and tribulations of running, guess what, a car wash. "Young Guy Christian" features a defender of justice and a bunch of zany cohorts who band together to save a maiden in distress. Then at 9 o'clock, Alan King takes a satiric look at modern man's battle for survival on his "Third Annual Final Warning" on ABC. He is aided by Hal Linden, Gavin MacLeod and Rita Moreno.

Calendar: Forsan ceremonies

TODAY

Many moms can't cope when fathers won't pay

Desperate 'welfare mothers' have no time for tears

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a three-part series about children in Texas who are denied the financial support of an absent parent and how the state attempts to solve the problem.

By EILEEN McGUIRE

Filling in the blanks is what Mark Hoover, an attorney with the Human Resources Department in Midland, specializes in.

The blanks he attempts to fill are those left on the birth certificates of illegitimate-born children in 22 Texas counties, including Howard. Part of his job is to find out whose name should appear next to the word "father."

The need for Hoover's services in the Big Spring area most often originates from the offices of Debbie Wegman and Linda Bartlett, financial eligibility workers for the Big Spring-based Human Resources Department. Any person in Howard or Glasscock County applying for welfare does so through them.

The women who end up in the offices of Ms. Wegman and Ms. Bartlett all have two things in common—children and no or little income.

Most are single mothers. The majority are divorced or separated from husbands who can't or won't support their children. Some are unwed mothers who have no one to support the children. Both types of cases are fair game for Hoover.

An unwed mother who ends up in Ms. Wegman's office may be anywhere from 16 to 50 years of age, she said, but most are young.

"The typical case is a woman in her early 20's with zero income. She doesn't have her high school diploma and she is unskilled for a job that would make her self-sufficient. Usually, there's a blank on her child's birth certificate where the father's name should appear."

The first step in applying for AFDC (Aid to Families with Dependent Children), the only kind of welfare assistance available in the state of Texas, is to fill out an application that includes questions about each member of the household and all income of those persons. The application also asks for the name and whereabouts of the father of the child who is to receive state aid.

"Unless the identity of the father is unknown to the mother or there's a good reason for not naming him, the applicant must tell us who the father is in order to receive assistance," Ms. Wegman stated. A good reason for not naming him, she said, would be to protect the child, such as in a case where the child is the product of rape or incest.

Naming the father is necessary, she said, as the state then attempts, through Hoover, to get the father to reimburse the state for support paid to the mother. In that way, the father is forced to assume his responsibility for supporting his child while the mother receives the regular support that he denies her, from the State.

Most applicants are cooperative about naming the father, Ms. Wegman stated.

"Most of the mothers I see, married and unmarried, want to see the fathers of their children take some responsibility for them. Most of them want to see the father pay child support. Some of the women want nothing further to do with him, but they cooperate because that's the only way they can get the support they need."

In addition to supplying necessary information for the application, a woman trying to qualify for AFDC must furnish a birth certificate for each of the children who are to receive the public assistance.

In a case of a legitimate child, Hoover's role will be a matter of locating the father and enforcing court-ordered child support payments. But in the case of a birth certificate where the father's name is omitted or undocumented with a marriage license, the process of obtaining support for the child will be much more complicated and sometimes, impossible.

Not only does Ms. Wegman have to see a birth certificate for each child for whom AFDC is being applied for, she must also see the child.

"I visit each home to see the child personally. I have to see that child or the application is denied."

Most of the children, she said, appear to be well cared for.

"A few are dirty and not dressed properly for the weather, but most of them seem to be healthy and cared for. Whenever I do see a case of neglect, I report it to the department's protective service workers."

Once all of the necessary data has been compiled and verified, it takes about three weeks for the applicant to receive her first AFDC check. The amount will be $86 for her plus an additional $24 for each child. That plus

TEMPORARY SOLUTION — Debbie Wegman, an eligibility worker for Texas Human Resources, displays sheets and sheets of questions that must be filled out as the first step in qualifying for welfare assistance. Most of her applicants are single mothers who are raising children without the presence or financial support of the father. Welfare provides only a temporary solution to non-support.

Five more students nominated for Youth Achievement Banquet

The names of five more students have been nominated for the 14th annual Zale's-Herald Youth Achievement Banquet, which is scheduled to get under way at the Big Spring Country Club Thursday, June 7.

Deadline for the nominations is Friday. Those who would like to project the name of a student can fill out a form appearing in today's Herald and mail it to Oliver Cofer, c-o of the Herald, Box 1431, Big Spring 79720. Pictures of each nominee should accompany the nominations.

The latest students nominated include Steve Sargent, Coahoma; David Mosley and Van Martin Gaskins, both of Sands; Beth Boeker, Forsan; and Barry Fish, Big Spring.

Each of the students invited to the banquet, who will be judged by an impartial panel, will get a gift at the banquet.

The outstanding student from each of the four high schools represented—Big Spring, Forsan, Coahoma and Sands—will get a special gift.

Parents of the students and administrators of each school will be invited to the banquet. Chief speaker will be Tumbleweed Smith (Bob Lewis) of Big Spring.

Judges have been invited to attend a 6 p.m. dinner at the Holiday Inn Monday, at which time they will be briefed on the rules governing selection of the honored students.

Taxpayers assume support duty

food stamps and Medicaid will be all that the family has to subsist on for one month.

"Even if there are 12 kids, the maximum monthly check is $300," Ms. Wegman pointed out. "The notion that women take advantage of welfare by having more and more children is a myth. The pay is just too little to make it profitable.

"Texas is one of the lowest ranking of states in both welfare benefits and caseloads. There are only about 200 cases in Howard and Glasscock counties combined. The families just can't live on the amount of welfare that they get, so few stay on it."

Most of the women who receive welfare are looking for a way off of it, she said.

"Oh, there's a few women who seem to lack the incentive to do anything to get off of welfare, but they're just existing from day to day. And eventually, they'll remarry or their children will grow up, disqualifying them for AFDC, so no one lives on welfare indefinitely.

"The majority of women who are on welfare are not planning to stay on it any longer than they have to. They're using it to get over a hump. Few stay on it for very long."

To help her get off of welfare and become self-supporting, the Department of Human Resources assists the welfare mother in gaining employment. It also offers some initial incentives for her to work, like allowing certain deductions from the amount of pay she has to report and by granting her extended medical coverage until she is somewhat "over the hump."

Unfortunately, the road to self-sufficiency is difficult even with a job.

"Not many of these women are qualified for a job that would allow them to be self-supporting. Very few have high school diplomas.

"We refer them to CETA (Comprehensive Employment and Training Act administration) which pays them wages while they train for a particular job skill. If they don't get on the CETA program, they'll usually find low-paying jobs as maids or waitresses or something like that."

Other agencies that a welfare mother might be referred to by Ms. Wegman would be the city-county health unit for immediate medical attention and vaccinations for the child, the Department of Housing and Urban Development for housing, Howard College for a look into what might be available in terms of education and education grants, and if immediate financial help is necessary during the interim of applying for and receiving state assistance, she might be referred to the county welfare department.

If the woman is looking for a job, working or attending school, free or low-cost child care is available for her children at the Westside Day Care Center. If a mother is receiving AFDC, she automatically qualifies financially for the day care program which is partially funded by the Texas Department of Human Resources.

In most cases, however, regardless of what Ms. Wegman or others do to direct the welfare mother toward self-sufficiency, the financial burden of supporting her children without help is difficult if not impossible. An alternative to public assistance is to force the father to share the burden.

So, while Ms. Wegman works with the mother, Hoover goes to work on the father.

Enforcing child support is no easy task and sometimes involves local, state and national agencies. A state agency in Midland is trying to make the system work for the children. Attorney Mark Hoover explains how in Part II, Friday.

STOP, DO NOT ADVANCE, GO DIRECTLY TO JAIL — Through traffic does not have a "monopoly" on Gregg, since the placement of a stop light where the 11th Place extension intersects Gregg. The light is part of the effort to make 11th a through street. Drivers on Gregg, unaccustomed to the stop, should take note of it, to avoid an accident. Local police have spent some time policing the intersection, so unless you want to draw a "Monopoly ticket" that reads "Do not collect $200, go directly to jail."

Two in area gain degrees

COMMERCE — More than 775 students at East Texas State University were graduated May 12 during the regular spring commencement exercises in the University Auditorium.

The largest single category of graduates were at the bachelor's level with more than 538, followed by the master's level with 204. Three-three doctorates were conferred.

Among the graduates was Richard Bratton Davis Jr., Big Spring, who earned a degree in Education.

Also qualifying for a Bachelor of Arts degree was Eddie C. Guerrero, Colorado City.

Bus wreck suit filed

McCAULLEY — The first of 16 civil law suits emanating from the Dec. 8 school bus wreck is scheduled for trial June 18 in Fisher County.

Fourteen of the suits were filed in Fisher County. In all, 24 persons were injured or killed in the wreck when a McCaulley school bus was struck by an oil field servicing truck.

Driver William Dixon, 21, and the Cardinal Survey Company are defendants in the suits.

The presiding judge which of the suits will be tried first.

Deaths— Patriotic activities

Johnnie White slated Monday in park

COLORADO CITY — Johnnie White, a resident of Colorado City since 1970, was pronounced dead at her home at 10:45 a.m., Wednesday. Justice of the Peace Henry Doss ruled that she died of natural causes.

Services are pending at Kiker-Funeral Home.

She was married to Jack Everett White Sept. 7, 1933 in Burkburnett. He preceded her in death March 13, 1979.

Survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Dan (Deborah) Allen and two grandchildren.

T.R. Valentine

Thomas Russell Valentine, 64, died at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday in a local hospital after a lengthy illness.

Services are pending at West Haven Singleton Wilson Funeral Home in Lubbock. Local arrangements were made by Larry D. Sheppard Funeral Home.

Patriotic activities are scheduled for the Memorial Day Starlight Special, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater.

Craig Fisher, assistant principal of Big Spring High School will serve as emcee for the program, with a number of local veteran's organizations providing various parts of the program to the accompaniment of the Commnity Band.

The Texas Guard will open the program with presenting of the Colors. The Community Band, directed by Steve Waggoner will play the Star Spangled Banner.

The Disabled American Veterans will lead the Pledge of Allegiance, followed by a history of Memorial Day, given by Bill Birrell.

Dr. Weldon Butler, pastor of First United Methodist Church will give the invocation, after which the Community Band will perform several songs.

Tributes to the Gold Star Mothers, and Jim Baum's tribute to the deceased beterans will be intermingled with patriotic songs performed by the band.

The next Starlight Program will be a presentation of Faulkner Talent World, at 8 p.m. June 3.

$100,000 tornado damages

STANTON — Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders said today that claims on property damages resulting from the Sunday tornado is nearing $100,000.

The estimate was given to Saunders by Farm Bureau Insurance Agent Bob Davenport who is handling some of the claims.

"I had originally thought $50,000 to $60,000," Saunders said, "but I didn't know about the cars then."

In addition to the complete destruction of a mobile home, two homes, and some damage to several others, four automobiles were totalled or damaged by the tornado by what some say was a tornado and others identified as a whirlwind.

Saunders said Monday that witnesses who saw the force from as close as a block away reported it as "the biggest whirlwind they'd ever seen." Those who were in homes hit by the force said it was a tornado.

"In my opinion it was a tornado," Saunders said. "I don't think anyone is in better condition to say what it was than those who were in it." He said that the sand was so intense that it may have covered up the funnel.

"The National Weather Service said that it was a tornado," he stated.

The storm has prompted some concern in Stanton over the tornado warning system. The current system consists of one siren on a water tower.

"The city has another siren, but it was never put up," Saunders said. He added that the siren will be put up now either on the north or west side of the city.

"We need another one on the south side."

If the second siren had been installed before the Sunday storm, Saunders didn't think it would've made much difference. The tornado hit so suddenly, he said, that there wouldn't have been enough warning to do much.

"But then," he added, "even seconds are better than nothing."

New York State loses

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — New York State has been ordered to pay a Tompkins County family more than $157,000 for gunshot wounds their daughter received when a former girls' camp was seized by Mohawk Indians in 1974.

Court of Claims Judge Thomas J. Lowery Jr. said Thursday that the state had failed to take adequate safety precautions around the camp, referring to a shooting incident at the camp earlier in the day. Lowery awarded $157,613.67 to Aprile Madigan and her father, Roger J. Madigan, for medical expenses and damages. Aprile, then 9, was struck twice in the back Oct. 28, 1974, as her family drove past the entrance to the camp en route home from a vacation in Vermont.

College gets stolen check

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University got a $24,000 "donation" this week, but a call to the New York City bank against which the check was drawn showed it was stolen, a school official says.

Brown officials became suspicious about the check because the letter that accompanied it had a return address in the Bowery, New York's skid row, Robert A. Reichley, vice president for university relations, said Wednesday. Reichley said the handwritten letter was mostly illegible and that the signature was not one known to the school as an alumnus or parent. He declined to identify the "donor."

Patrolman on probation

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A former Highway Patrol officer, who admitted last month that he killed his adoptive mother 14 years ago when he was a teenager, has been placed on five years probation.

In passing sentence against David C. Hume on Wednesday, Summit County Common Pleas Judge Daniel Quillin said he believes in prison terms "only if they deter the individual from futher criminal acts, deter others from similar acts or protect society from the person."

Norma Hume's death was ruled a drowning-suicide in 1965, when her decomposed body was found in a creek. But a re-investigation based on informaton from Hume's ex-wife revealed the death was a homicide.

Astronaut resigns post

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Fred W. Haise, one of the astronauts selected to command an early space shuttle orbital mission, is resigning from the astronaut corps to enter private business.

The Johnson Space Center announced Wednesday the resignation will be effective at the end of June and Haise will join Grumman Aerospace Corp., Bethpage, N.Y., as vice president for space programs.

Haise, 45, was commander of one of two flight crews that made shuttle landing tests at Edwards Air Force Base in California. An astronaut since 1967, he was backup lunar module pilot for the Apollo 8 and 11 missions.

Police beat

Officers were waiting for her

A young burglar went back once too often to Emma Wiggin's home at 1700 E. 16th.

On Monday, the female juvenile entered the home and stole $40. On Tuesday, she made off with $18. On Wednesday, police were waiting for her.

A fight broke out at Mae's Sunflower Lounge, 1310 W. 4th, around 10 p.m. Wednesday. Four men became involved in fisticuffs in the area of the lounge's pool table. They left before police arrived, but not before breaking four pool cues and the light over the table.

Cost of damage has not been estimated.

A group of juveniles threw rocks at a car driven by Randy Roberts, 2513 Fisher, while traveling past the corner of 21st and Gregg. The rocks caused $100 worth of damage to the car, and one sailed through the passenger window and hit Sheri Herl, 706 Goliad. She was not seriously injured.

Six mishaps were reported Wednesday.

A vehicle driven by David A. White, 902 San Antonio, went out of control, struck a Texas Electric Company guide line, and turned over on the 300 block of San Antonio, 2:15 a.m.

A parked vehicle belonging to Randall R. Roberts, 2513 Fisher, was struck by a vehicle driven by Lee Ashley, 1307 Lexington, at 700 E. 11th, 12:35 p.m.

A vehicle driven by Earl Hanke, Sterling City Route, left the road and hit a sign on the 2700 block of Wasson, 1:55 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Anita Rodriquez, 502 N.E. 9th, and Donald Rogers, Odessa, collided on the 100 block of West Third, 1:14 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Buck Kirksey, 1200 E. 15th, and Sanne Heax, 1806 Owens, collided at Sixth and Birdwell, 4:05 p.m.

Vehicles driven by Patricia Fried, Encino, Calif., and Hazel Jones, 1211 Pennsylvania, collided at Highland Center, 11:08 a.m.

Fire destroys hay, truck

A hay truck caught fire when it backed into power lines near the McCole Ranch southeast of Forsan Wednesday. The truck and $2,000 of hay was destroyed when the power lines came in contact with each other and caused the blaze.

The Agar Supply truck from Colorado City was carrying hay owned by Mrs. Doris Cole.

RV's, boats to be displayed

Coliseum will be alive with sound of motors

The Dorothy Garrett Coliseum will be alive with the sound of recreational vehicles and dozens of other utility trucks and vans June 1 in preparation of the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club's RV and Outdoor Exhibition.

When the dust settles that evening, a handsome array of displays will grace the coliseum floor and upper hallways. RV's, boats, motorcycles, off-the-road and 4-wheel drive vehicles will surround the arena walls, interspaced with hunting and fishing supplies, lawn and garden merchandise, sporting goods and camping equipment.

The colorful attraction will represent a lot of hard work by the local organization which hopes to sponsor the event each year depending on public response.

Many hours have been devoted to contacting a good selection of exhibitors to offer the public just about everything to do with the great out-of-doors. Arts and crafts exhibits will enhance the show with an artistic touch with emphasis on sports and recreation.

An added attraction for families will be the Frazier's World Fair Carnival which appears the same weekend, June 2 and 3.

Greater Rotary Club members are now conducting advance ticket sales, available for $1 per adult and 50 cents for children 6 to 12 years of age. Tickets will also be available at the door beginning at 9 a.m. June 2 and 1 p.m. June 3.

Reservations for small booth spaces for art displays are now being accepted with a limited number of exhibit areas still available. In order to provide a wide variety of displays, only about 25 various exhibits will be accepted.

Spaces along the main coliseum hallway are being reserved on a first come, first serve basis. Those interested in participating should contact the Garrett Coliseum, 267-3482.

Response to this first RV and Outdoor Exhibition has been overwhelming, according to Mike Brunner, chairman of the project.

"Those who attend the RV and Outdoor Exhibition will see the best variety of merchandise ever assembled in one location," he said.

The two-day event will be highlighted with drawings for a freezer with 80 pounds of beef, a television and numerous other prizes contributed by participants. Proceeds from the event will benefit the Rotary's charitable contributions throughout the year.

Artist specializes in scenic beauty

Rheata Peeler White loves her native Southwest and is happiest when reproducing its scenic beauty on canvas.

Miss White will be one of the artists whose work is to be in the Champagne Art Sale Saturday, from 7-10:30 p.m. at the Big Spring Country Club.

Tickets to the sale, a benefit for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, are $15 per person or $25 per couple.

Miss White studied under Dr. Emilio Caballero, at West Texas State University in Canyon, as well as at Texas Tech University in Lubbock; with Bob Dunaway, Wayland Baptist College, Plainview; Conny Martin, Lubbock; Elizabeth Black, Master of Education-Art; Benz School of Floral Design, Houston; Dr. Clarence Kincaid, Lubbock; Larry Hilburn, Taos, N.M. and Jan Herring, Clint.

Her work is principally watercolor, oil and acrylic, and she has earned a number of awards in shows across Texas. She has had printings in 13 foreign countries, and is a free-lance floral designer. She served as one of three Texans making up the design panel for the 61st annual convention of the 1974 Texas State Florists' Association in Dallas, and was designer for the South Plains "Design Time" convention in Lubbock, also in 1974.

First place awards include four with the Muleshoe Art Association, two from the Texas Fine Arts Association a first place at the "Texas" Art Show in Canyon, and one from the Post Art and Craft Guild.

Miss White is affiliated with a number of Texas and New Mexico art galleries, as well as being a member of the Texas Watercolor Association, Texas Fine Arts Association, Lubbock Fine Arts Association, Texas Florists' Association and served two terms as president of her local art association.

Art critics and those who love the scenic beauty of the Southwest will enjoy viewing Miss White's work, to their own benefit and that of the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

Tickets to the show may be obtained by contacting Jan Morgan at 263-1062.

Capehart Homes addition

99 homes being offered for sale this weekend

A total of 99 homes ranging in price from $18,950 to $49,950 are being offered for sale this weekend by Big Spring real estate brokers during a parade of homes. Five furnished model homes will be on display from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday in the Capehart Homes addition, formerly Webb Air Force Base.

According to Jeff Brown, a Big Spring real estate broker, "This has to be the largest number of homes put on the market at one time in Big Spring's history...maybe the largest in West Texas' history." Brown also stated, "Another unique aspect of this home offering is the financing. A qualified borrower has to have only 10 percent down plus closing costs and financing is available."

The homes in this first offering range in size from 1,085 square feet to 2,124 square feet and from two bedrooms, one bath to four bedrooms, two baths. Each home has central refrigerated air conditioning and heating, gas range, electric refrigerator, washer-dryer connections, patio, privacy fenced courtyard, paved and curbed streets and concrete sidewalks. There are three city parks in the tree covered subdivision which is located a mile from Comanche Trail Golf Course.

The three day Parade of Homes opening will feature a live remote radio broadcast from one of the model homes and drawings for daily prizes and a grand prize. The daily prizes will be a 10-speed bicycle and the grand prize will be a color television set. Drawings will be held at 6 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

PROLIFIC IN SPRING — The Mexican Hat is a beautiful flower that has been cultivated in the gardens of Europe for many years. The plant, which decorates the countryside in West Texas in the spring, grows 1½ to 3½ feet tall. The rag flowers are yellow-orange, commonly with a deep reddish-brown base, with the tips sometimes only yellow. The columner disc flower changes from grayish brown to yellowish brown with age. Another common name is Upright Prairie Cone flower. The scientific name is Ratibida Columnaris and it is in the Composite family.

Graduations at Lakeview schools set

Stacy dam opponents gain delay of possibly 45 days

Opponents gained a delay of possibly 45 days Wednesday on a permit to the Colorado River Municipal Water District for a 554,000-acre foot reservoir on the Colorado River near Stacy.

The Texas Water Commission in Austin granted all motions for a rehearing of the commission's order of April 10 granting the permit, but only for the limited purpose of amending the permit to require the CRMWD to file an operations manual. While this action will not materially change matters, it will delay the procedural timetable.

Frank Booth, counsel for CRMWD, had proposed amending the permit to requite the operations manual because of Court of Civils Appeals case ruling which occured after the Stacy permit was granted. He thought this might avoid a challenge on this technicality. TWC Chairman Felix McDonald concurred, adding that he would hate to open up the possibility of a reversible error on a technicality.

"All you would get out of it would be a year and a half delay," he told Fred Werkenthin, attorney for the Lower Colorado River Authority, the chief protestant. The 18-month span approximates the interval for going through the appeals process.

So far as is known, no permit for reservoirs have the operations manual requirement in them. However, about the time the TWC was granting the Stacy permit, an appeal court decision in a waste water project raised the issue of including a statement of how the project will be operated. To be safe, Booth said he felt the language ought to be in the CRMWD Stacy permit, having the effect of making the order final when the TWC acts upon it.

Attorneys for half a dozen protestants who had asked for a rehearing professed "surprise" at the CRMWD amendment proposal, and one lawyer suggested up to 90 days "to reflect upon it." Commissioner Joe Carroll noted that this would "be some reflection."

Wednesday's action was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that the TWC will overrule all motions for a rehearing when the amended permit order is signed. This likely would set in motion an appeal to district court on the case record. A decision there might be expected before the end of the year.

O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager, was disappointed at the additional delay, but said there was no prudent alternative to swapping a month or two now for the prospect of losing 18 months or more later in event the case were to be returned to the TWC on a technicality.

HONOR GRADS — Nikki Tidwell, left, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Carter, Garden City Rt., is valedictorian of Garden City High School with 240 honor points and an average of 97.46. She plans to attend Angelo State University and major in journalism and accounting. Salutatorian for the 1979 GCHS class is Sandra Schwartz, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schwartz of St. Lawrence. Miss Schwartz earned 224 honor points and an average of 92.86 for her four years of high school. She also plans to attend ASU and major in computer science.

Remarks of Hayakawa open to debate

It's easy to get accustomed to the nicer things in life. What brought that to mind are remarks recently attributed to S.I. Hayakawa, the Republican senator from the state of California.

Hayakawa, from all indications, has been feeding at the public trough too long. If he ever knew, he has forgotten how the great unwashed really lives.

HAYAKAWA SAID that the price of gasoline should continue upward because rising costs will get the poor — "who don't need it anyway since they are not working" — off the road.

It was the senator's contention that when gasoline prices escalate, the demand will go down.

"Let the price of gas go up — $1.25, $1.50, $2 or $2.50," Hayakawa added. "The important thing is that a lot of the poor don't need gas because they're not working. Wealthy people are driving around in their private jets and Cadillacs and they're going to do that whether they have to pay 95 cents for gas or $2 to $3 for gas. That's what it means to be wealthy."

"Every five minutes on a television commercial, we hear advertisements (concerning cars), "the senator concluded, "People are buying them like crazy. The demand for gasoline goes up, up, up."

Hayakawa's rationale may be realistic to a point but the cost of natural gas and heating oil will continue upward in relation to gasoline — maybe not as dramatically and as regularly as gasoline — but the trend is inevitably upward.

The poor, and an increasing number of us identify with them as the inflationary bite gets bigger, may be forced out of their cars. No one will likely grieve for them. The crisis will come, however, when the poor begin to freeze in the dark, so to speak.

IT'S ONE THING to tell the needy they can't promote such comforts without paying for it. It's another thing to expect them to live by such a decision and not protest about it.

Energy experts, those knowledgeable about the social condition, have been warning for years that the next great revolution will occur when the poor march on Washington demanding that their needs be met.

The under-privileged may not have the wherewithal to get to Washington and organize their protest but, one way or another, they'll get there.

Hamstringing parents

Around the rim

Eileen McGuire

I was going to be a permissive parent.

I was going to use reasoning instead of discipline, suggestions instead of demands and, as long as they didn't hurt themselves or anyone else, I was going to let my children do whatever they pleased.

Then, I became a parent.

Sweden is not a country I would care to live in right now for three good reasons—a 6-year-old, a 5-year-old and a third round of the "Terrible Twos" yet to come.

LIKE MY PARENTS before me, I make rules, issue warnings and when all else fails, I spank. Yet according to Sweden's new anti-spanking law, my rights as a parent end at issuing warnings. According to Sweden's law, I and every other parent who uses spanking to deter undesirable, sometimes harmful, behavior are child abusers.

Beginning in July, Swedish parents will be forbidden to perform "any act which, for the purpose of punishing, causes the child physical injury or pain, even if the disturbance is mild and passing."

A bonafide spanking does not cause physical injury and any form of punishment is somewhat painful to the child. Having to eat my salad when I was young was painful. I would have gladly traded my salad for a quick spanking.

I am curious as to whether those responsible for passing this law are currently raising children or if the days of water fights in the bathroom and wall-painting in the bedroom are vague memories.

I also wonder how much time the legislators, more than likely men, actually spent at home with their young children. In most societies, is it usually the mother who stays home and copes with the problem of discipline.

THE FIRST SPANKING I ever administered to my eldest is the most vivid of the many that followed during the years. There was something about the street that lured him into the middle whenever he got out the front door. After one extremely close call at the age of two, he received his first spanking for running out in front of a car.

If the incident had occurred in the near future in Sweden, my alternatives would've been limited to trying to make a 2-year-old understand the finality of death or sending him to his room to play.

Standing him in the corner and making him stay there (if it is possible to make a 2-year-old stay anywhere) could have been more painful to his feet than the spanking was to his well-padded rear end.

My son never ran out in front of a car again and I doubt that it was because he wanted to please me. I think it was simple reasoning—he didn't want to get spanked again.

Spankings should never be administered to babies or to any child who is not old enough to understand why he is being spanked. And after the child is old enough to understand the serious consequences his behavior can have, reasoning becomes effective and spanking can be eliminated.

But for those years in-between, for a child who has not been around long enough to digest enough information to put more complicated causes and effects together, knowing that a certain act is going to bring about an undesirable result that he understands — spanking — works.

When my child stopped coloring on the walls, it wasn't because at the age of three, he was concerned about the work and expense that was involved in repainting them. It was because he'd been spanked the last time he did it.

WHEN HE STOPPED climbing up on top of his dresser, it wasn't because he was afraid it would fall over. And when he gave me the matches he found instead of playing with them, it wasn't because Smokey the Bear wanted to prevent forest fires.

Sweden is outlawing a pretty effective form of discipline. I'm eager to learn what method will replace it.

The rationale that spanking leads to child abuse is, in my opinion, the result of over-analysis. In cases where abuse already exists, I'm sure parents do indulge in spanking-type beatings. But a bonafide spanking is not a beating.

I don't think any genuinely loving parent enjoys spanking his or her child. On the other hand, I certainly wouldn't enjoy being the parent of undisciplined children.

I didn't believe it when my mother said it to me and my children may not believe it when I say it to them, but I spank them because I love them.

The leaking game

Evans, Novak

WASHINGTON — Mississippi's courtly John Stennis, one of the Senate's most powerful members as chairman of the Armed Services Committee, sent a blistering rebuke to Secretary of Defense Harold Brown May 14 demanding a halt to official Pentagon leaks. That turned the tables on Brown, who has been waging a holy war on leakers.

Stennis was infuriated to read an account in the newspapers May 12 of a letter Brown had written him the previous day but which he had not received. The story outlined Brown's latest proposals on the MX missile and how it might be deployed in a mobile basing system.

Stennis did not receive Brown's letter until May 14. What particularly bothered him was the fact that Congress often takes the blame in the escalating game of leak and counter-leak designed to influence policy. In this case, the leaker clearly was in the Pentagon and possibly in Brown's own office. Stennis was not amused.

THE IRONY OF STENNIS' rebuke is that Brown has been obsessed with leaks from his department, some of them not clearly national security information, as has no public official since Richard M. Nixon resigned the presidency. Officials suspected by Brown of leaking information to the press have been confronted with fingerprinting and lie detector tests and threatened with dismissal.

A footnote: Stennis is still highly doubtful about whether President Carter really intends to build the MX missile and give it a mobile basing system. A strong supporter of the MX, Stennis has been unable to persuade the administration as yet to go ahead with the new system.

REAGAN'S NO. 1 PRIMARY

Ronald Reagan's dominant forces in the California state Senate Republican caucus have smothered a move, bearing some fingerprints of John Connally's presidential campaign, to limit Reagan's delegate harvest from his own state.

Senate Republican leader William Campbell has succeeded in burying for this year a bill that would change California's winner-take-all Republican presidential primary to a proportional basis, where all candidates share delegates based on their vote. Reagan's political managers count on all of California's 163 delegates in 1980, just as Reagan won all of the state's delegation in 1976.

The proportional representation was sponsored by a collection of ultra-conservative and liberal Republican state senators who have various bones to pick with Reagan. But there is no doubt that Connally backers — as well as supporters of other Republican hopefuls — were praying for its passage.

One of its sponsors: state Sen. John Schmitz, a former member of the John Birch Society and 1972 presidential candidate of the American Independent Party (founded by George Wallace). Invited to or not, Schmitz says he backs Connally for president.

A footnote: Despite the ease with which his forces put down the primary election bill, Reagan does not have a completely stable home front in California. Some of his avowed supporters — including some big names — confide that they are interested in Connally and would consider jumping to him if Reagan's campaign falters.

THE CIA CLUB

One famous supporter of George Bush for the Republican presidential nomination who has not been publicly announced and probably never will is his predecessor as director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the controversial William Colby.

"Baloney! It's a temporary ailment and I'll be fine 'fore election!"

A checklist for cancer sores

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am a 23-year-old female with a problem, and I can't get a straight answer to it. Each month before my period I get canker sores in my mouth — from two to six on my tongue. They last a long time. I am on the Pill, and have tried various brands. It makes no difference. I watch what I eat and take vitamins. They are painful and irritating, so much so that sometimes I can't eat or even talk. Any help for me? — P.J.H.

Here are a few points that might help you understand this—use it as a checklist:

—Canker sores are tiny ulcers (aphthous ulcers) inside the mouth.

—They usually start giving trouble in the late teens and early 20s.

—Women get them twice as often as men.

—They tend to grow during times of stress, which includes menstruation, exam times, wrecked romances, etc.

—They can be caused by dental problems or by chemical irritants.

—Some get them by eating acid foods like oranges, lemons, grapefruit or tomatoes. I doubt the Pill is involved in your case.

What to do about them?

In a case as severe as your seems to be, I'd suggest one of the most effective treatments I know — a tetracycline syrup used as a mouth rinse. This can help heal them and limit further attacks. Ask your physician about this.

Canker sores tend to be less of a problem as one gets older and learns to cope more easily with stresses and anxieties.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I have been told I have nervous bowel. Since I understand personality and emotions are a major factor in this, do you recommend I seek psychiatric help for it? — Mrs. T.N.

It's true that emotions usually play a prominent role in the nervous or "irritable" bowel, and that learning to ease tensions helps relieve the situation. But it is also a physical problem, so it must be looked at from that standpoint — the alternating between diarrhea and constipation and the increased gas. A combination of some form of therapy to ease your social tensions and a diet to control the physical problem should result in relief. A bulk-supplement medicine usually helps. For a fuller discussion see my booklet, "Colitis and Kindred Complaints." You can get a copy by sending 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Does vinegar help destroy cholesterol built up in our bodies? Does it, in fact, help in any way? — S.B.

No connection whatever.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My doctor told me I have cardiomyopathy. Can you explain what this means? — W.F.

It doesn't tell you very much. It is a broad term that means the heart muscle is affected by some disease. Just which disease is something that can be determined by further tests.

Dear Dr. Ruble: I am going in for gall bladder surgery soon. I am a very vain person and worry about such minor things as this: will my dentures have to be removed? — Mrs. O.T.

I'm afraid so. This is standard procedure in an operating room. It eliminates the danger of their slipping out under the effects of the anesthetic and blocking your windpipe.

Dear Dr. Ruble: Is there any harm or ill effects from drinking two large water glasses of prune juice every other day? — W.M.

Nothing harmful, but you should be prepared for the extra bowel activity.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband and I are both being treated for an infection (trichomonas). Should he use a condom? — Mrs. H.F.

Yes, during treatment. Otherwise there may be reinfection from yourself or from him.

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is at the same time vital to human life. For a copy of his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly," write to Dr. Ruble in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Ruble welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would just like to express my deep appreciation to Howard College for all the help that was given to me this year.

At the start of this year, I was rather concerned about whether or not I had made the right decision in attending a junior college instead of going straight to Texas Tech. Howard College supplied a more than sufficient curriculum and guidance throughout my Freshman year. The classes that I attended offered all the necessities needed to prepare me for a smooth transition to a senior college.

The instructors showed more than an adequate amount of feeling and concern toward their students and their progress and many times I met with instructors outside class for help which they seemed glad to give. I think the awards ceremony is a very good way to give students a goal to strive for in their classes.

What this is leading up to can be summed up like this. I would just like to say "Thank you" to Howard College and all of the faculty for helping this student to start out on the right foot.

Ernie Morgan

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We are just ordinary Christians who try to do our work faithfully and live the way we think God wants us to every day. Sometimes, however, I feel like we are so useless to God. How else can we serve Him? — F.T.

DEAR F.T.: Sometimes I think we can get the wrong impression about serving Christ. It is easy to think that the only people who are serving God are ministers or missionaries or others involved every day in spreading the Gospel. But you can serve Christ wherever you are. The main question is this: are you faithful to the tasks God has given you? If so, do not worry whether or not your work seems less spectacular than that of others. God uses all kinds of people to accomplish His purposes.

Remember that God has put you in contact with others, and perhaps you are the one real Christian who knows them. You have a unique opportunity to show by your life as well as by your words that Jesus Christ is important to you. God may not have called you to preach, but you can show His love to others and by your attitude show what Christ means to you. The Bible says, "let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven" (Matthew 5:16, New International Version).

Remember also that you may never know what effect your witness and quiet life for Christ is having on others. At the end of his life Paul knew he had been faithful to Christ, and yet he was almost alone and in prison. From the viewpoint of the world, Paul was a failure. But we know better. Because Paul was faithful, the church was established and countless people won to Christ.

Soviets fumbled

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — Despite undoubted successes in the international James Bond business, the Russians are not always the coolly efficient masters of deception they would like the world to think they are.

In fact, the Soviets' attempt to build — and then hide — a naval missile base on the east coast of Africa seemed more like a script for "McHale's Navy" than a serious bit of undercover skulduggery.

The setting was the small, impoverished country of Somalia, whose 4 million people are mostly nomadic, with an annual per capita income of about $70. The country has virtually no significant natural resources.

INTO THIS UNPROMISING wasteland shambled the friendly Russian bear, with heady offers of drought-aid and military training to help the Somalis in their border war with Ethiopia.

If the Somalis were puzzled by the Soviets' interest, the mystery was soon cleared up: The Russians asked for permission to set up a naval base at Berbera on the Gulf of Aden, where half the world's seaborne oil is in transit from the Arab sheikdoms to the Red Sea at any given time.

"They couldn't turn the Soviet request down," a Somalia expert explained to our associate Dale Van Atta. "Not after they'd taken the goods."

In the spring of 1975, U.S. spy satellites spotted unusual activity at Berbera. CIA analysts correctly identified a missile handling and storage facility, including an airfield under construction that could have been used by any Soviet plane and would have been "far beyond the needs of the small Somali national airline or Air Force," according to a CIA expert.

The U.S. made the reconnaissance photos public, but the Somalis said the evidence didn't prove a thing. The Russians claimed the facility was a meat packing plant.

The Somalis invited American newspaper and television reporters to come see for themselves, which they did. But the Soviet razzle-dazzle stage managers had moved in and the area was innocently empty.

ONLY A WEEK BEFORE the press visit, intelligence sources reported "many Soviets, including women and children, living in apartment buildings in a fenced-in compound," according to a secret CIA document. Intelligence agents had seen "Soviets on board (a) barracks ship, which flew the Soviet flag," the report said. "(They) also saw Soviet combat ships tied up alongside the barracks ship on many occasions."

But when the news teams arrived, the Soviet combat ships had slipped away — all but the barracks ship, which now sported a Somali flag and an all-Somali crew.

"The town was almost deserted," the CIA reported. "One Somali family was shown living in (the) compound that had been identified...as housing Soviet personnel." The reporters' carefully guided tour did not include the center of the Berbera base or the Soviet communications facility, which the CIA said was operating while the newsmen were there.

A delegation of congressmen visited Berbera a short time later. Unlike the newsmen, they were armed with the secret intelligence reports, and were able to confirm at least part of the CIA's story.

The Somalis still insisted Berbera was not a Russian naval base, but after pressure from other African nations — and especially after the Russians switched their support to Ethiopia — the Somalis kicked the Soviets out in November 1977. The ouster provided undeniable evidence: Some 5,000 Soviet "experts" and "technicians" had to pack their bags, an intelligence source told us.

The Somalis continue to deny there was a Russian missile base at Berbera. Bu the CIA intercepted a Somali military message just before the congressmen's visit. It requested postponement of the tour to five the military time to store routine ammunition in "the holes which are intended for the (Styx) missiles."

WATCH ON WASTE: Uncle Sam runs a bargain basement for canny shoppers — the General Services Administration's sales centers for surplus government office machines and other property.

Nationwide, the GSA grosses $32 million a year in surplus sales, but its largely unskilled staff sells usable second-hand merchandise at junkyard prices. The taxpayers are in effect subsidizing the bargain hunters.

One regional sales center is in a huge, leaky warehouse at the Washington Navy Yard, where tons of office equipment are piled helter-skelter awaiting the knowledgeable shopper. Some of the stuff is actually junk, but much of it is easily repairable or in need of little more than a good dusting.

Although professional auctioneers are used for the GSA's highly successful used car sales, other goods sold by "spot bids" draw minimal response from the public and are sold at giveaway prices. A lot containing 16 manual typewriters might sell for as little as $50.

"I bought $6,000 worth of microfilming equipment for less than $100," one regular shopper told our reporter Keith Sinzinger.

Employee turnover rate constant problem for restaurant managers

By DON WOODS

Turn over rate at Big Spring eating establishments is a chronic plague for fast food and restaurant managers.

Restaurants find themselves short handed with less frequently than fast food places but managers still count employee turn-over rate as a problem.

Fast food managers say the problem is due mainly to low pay scales, unusual hours, young employees and lack of the opportunity for advancement.

Dairy Queen 468 manager, Jan Gamble, however, said turn-over of young employees is due to "laziness." "Most of the kids I have are really good workers," she said.

But those who don't work out at the store, she said, are given too much at home. "It's easier for them to ask their parents for a dollar than to go out and work for it," she said. "Older workers make much better employees than high school age workers."

Lynn Kelly, Burger Chef manager, said his problems were due more to the working conditions than employee immaturity. For his employees it's usually their first job. "They say, "Nobody will hire me because they say I don't have experience. Give me some experience.'" said Kelly. The kids learn the job and get the experience to move on to something more promising.

Kelly said he thinks fast food companies should stress more the opportunities for advancement within their own companies.

Young employees are used to thinking that the only advancement opportunities at a fast food restuarant are manager and assistant manager positions. Some fast food companies may open 500 new stores a year and they all need managers, said Kelly.

Even that position is only a step toward an even higher position in the company, he said.

He agreed that the limited pay scale was another reason for high turn-over. Also workers are discouraged by the hours they put in.

Sometimes young workers can only work 30 hours because there are only two major rush hours, lunch and supper. Employees often have to work the unpopular split shift. This contributes to the turn-over problem.

Turn-over occurs mostly on night crews because workers are often dissatisfied with night time work.

Mrs. Gamble said bad hours weren't a problem for her employees because most of them expect to work nights while they are in school. She always lets them have one weekend night off.

Opportunity for advancement hasn't been a problem either in the turn-over rate at her Dairy Queen, she said, because there's been plenty of room for her employees to work into higher positions.

She disagrees that the low pay scale keeps employees from staying. Fast food chains that pay minimum wages keep employees better than non-chain places that don't pay minimum wage, she explained.

Mrs. Gamble has had to replace six employees since the first of the year, but she said the problem has not been as bad this year as it was in 1978.

Kelly finds that the turn-over rate claims a quarter of his help four times a year.

These times are the end of school, the beginning of school, before Christmas and after Christmas. In September, the college age workers leave town for college and high school age employees stepping into their places leave gaps that must be filled with new employees, said Kelly.

Financial needs broadened by the approaching Yule season cause students to quit for higher paying jobs. After Christmas they quit to keep from paying taxes or other reasons. "They just don't want to work."

He mentioned one competnent female employee who graduated from high school and got a job in a bank at a regular 40 hour week and higher pay.

He admitted that part of the problem was the youth of the workers. "Older workers just stay with you longer." Before the Webb closing older employees were easier to find.

The average length of employment at the Burger Chef is six to eight months.

Terry's Drive-In Manager Leon Hobbs had a different problem altogether. He said some young female car hops will work two days and find their legs can't take the amount of walking back and forth to the cars.

They may have to take orders to five cars at a time, give the orders to the wrong cars or spill drinks, get embarrassed and quit. He loses one or two workers every month. "It's a big problem," he said.

Hobbs has ahd the same cooks since he came into the business around a year ago. He reasoned that because the cooks are all older people the turn-over is due to the youth of the employees.

Young employees make all the money they need for a little while, then quit and when their pay check is spent they look for another job, he said.

Mrs. Gamble said some employees quit when they make some money then want their job back two weeks later. "I don't have time to mess with them," she said.

Kelly said the turn-over situation at the Big Spring Burger Chef is "better than average" and added it was the best store he had been in for turn-over. Forth Worth was the worst he has seen.

Restaurant managers interviewed by the Herald did not have the problem fast food places have, except for bus boys and dish washers.

Janis Robin, Pizza Inn Manager, said her staff stays for an average of four or five months. She has lost two since the first of the year.

"I think your turn-over depends on your management. If it's trained well you don't have a problem," she said. Her employees are under 30 except for one.

She said waitresses at the restaurant are more liable to quit than cooks.

At Carlos Restaurant, manager David Gomez said, he loses a wiatnress every six months on the average.

Restaurant personnel are more permanent because they are older and have families they are responsible for, said Gomez. Younger people are more apt to quit because they have their parents to take care of them. "If the boss looks at them the wrong way they walk off the job," he said.

One of his waitresses, Jean Oliver, has been with the restaurant 22 years. She knows everyone, said Gomez.

Bill Henkle, Jo Boys manager, said turn-over was a minor problem. He has lost six of the original 32 member staff of cooks and waitresses since he opened the restaurant a year ago. There is a waiting list of 200 who want to work, he said.

"He can't run me out," said one waitress. "If he fires me, I" come back here to work the next day just for tips."

Housing discrimination ordinance, fine adopted

COLORADO CITY — An ordinance authorizing a fine of up to $200 as punishment for housing discrimination was adopted by the Colorado City Council Tuesday.

The Council met in a called session to adopt the ordinance and a resolution appointing Mayor Marion Blassingame and City Manager Ray Mason as representatives in the city's application for an Urban Development Action Grant.

The Council was advised by Mason that the ordinance was necessary in order for the city to apply for the grant.

The fair housing ordinance outlaws discrimination in denying any person a place to live because of race, color, religion or national origin.

If the city receives the grant, it will boost industrial prospects by providing funds for future industrial facility needs for incoming industries for which the city does not have funds.

In other council action, it was decided to renew Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance for city employees in June and to self-insure and assume the liability for the pregnancies of female employees.

Former HC instructor named dean at SPC

PLAINVIEW — An 18-year veteran of the education field and former director of special services for South Plains College at Plainview has been named new dean of the facility.

The appointment of Dan Shockey, formerly of Big Spring, came during a recent meeting of the SPC board of regents on the main Levelland campus. Shockey succeeds Leon Harris, who served as dean of the Plainview facility from 1973 until his disappearance April 16. The case is currently under investigation.

"We are very pleased to have a man of Mr. Shockey's stature in a position to take over administration of the Plainview center," said Dr. Marvin Baker, SPC president who made the recommendation for Shockey's appointment.

Shockey commented, "I look forward to the opportunity to serve the school in a leadership capacity, although I wish it were under different circumstances. We are concerned about the whereabouts and welfare of Mr. Harris."

He added that "we will continue our operation of the school and continue to serve the needs of Plainview and the surrounding communities."

In his position as dean, Shockey heads a staff of 15 full-time instructors and other personnel in a facility that offers 17 technical-vocational and occupational programs.

SPC at Plainview was begun in 1973 when the Central Plains Higher Educational Authority was created by an ordinance of the Plainview City Council. The Authority contracted with SPC to provide the training, while facilities would be furnished by Wayland Baptist College.

DAN SHOCKEY

At the time of its dedication, SPC at Plainview was the only facility in the country created in an agreement between a comprehensive community college, a city and a church-related school.

SPC at Plainview is now housed in an adminstration building, two shop buildings and a classroom building located at 708 Yonkers on the Wayland campus.

Shockey, a native of San Antonio, graduated from Harlandale High School there in 1957. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. V.D. Shockey Sr., still reside at 402 Belden in San Antonio.

He earned bachelor and master's degrees in speech and drama from Sul Ross State University at Alpine, and he has done graduate work at North Texas State University at Denton.

Shockey taught from 1961-62 as speech instruetor at Goliad Junior High at Big Spring, taught speech and drama seven years (1962-69) at Big Spring High School, and served a speech and drama instructor from 1969-73 at Howard College at Big Spring.

In 1973, Shockey made the move to administration as director of special services at Panola Junior College at Carthage, a position he held for four years.

Then in 1977 came an offer he couldn't refuse, the position of director of special services at SPC at Plainview.

"I felt it was an opportunity that I couldn't pass up in administration, and I wanted to return to West Texas. Having lived and taught in Big Spring for 12 years, I feel that this area is home," explained Shockey.

He headed both the evening college and continuing education programs as special services director for two years until his promotion to dean.

Shockey is president of the Plainview Kiwanis Club and a member of St. Mark's Episcopal Church.

'New car tax bill' wins preliminary approval

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill allowing auto dealers to charge customers $25 for paperwork — branded "a new car tax bill" by one opponent — won preliminary House approval Wednesday night.

An 83-50 record vote, taken after two hours of stormy debate, advanced the bill.

Final passage, expected today, would return the bill to the Senate for action on changes made by the House, chiefly dropping the limit on the "documentary fee" from $35 to $25.

Rep. Jerry "Nub" Donaldson, D-Gatesville, the sponsor, said he was doing consumers a favor and merely straightening out a conflict in the law.

But opponents, both liberals and conservatives, saw it another way.

"When I went home last weekend, all I heard about was 'this tax they want to put on cars.' ... I have a feeling this is the kind of bill that is going to come back and haunt us when we go back home," said Rep. John Sharp, D-Victoria, a conservative.

Sharp said a firm in Austin processes documents involved in automobile purchases for $3.50, "and I understand it is a pretty lucrative business."

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, usually regarded as a liberal, said the bill would add $30 million to auto dealers' profits next year.

"This is not a documentary fee bill. This is a new car tax bill," Bryant said.

The bill was heavily lobbied on one side by the Texas Automobile Dealers Association and on the other by the Texas Consumer Association.

Several representatives said they were flooded with telephone calls from auto dealers in their districts, urging them to vote for the bill.

Donaldson said the idea wasn't to give auto dealers more money but to resolve a conflict between the Texas Consumer Credit Code and the Federal Truth in Lending Act.

He said the federal law requires itemization of the charges but the Texas code does not list documentary fees among those that can be itemized.

"My bill limits some unscrupulous dealers who have been charging in excess of $25 as a documentary fee," Donaldson said.

He contended that documentary fees as high as $75 have been reported.

Donaldson's bill was amended to require notice to buyers on all preliminary work sheets that they can take their own documents to the courthouse and that documentary fees are not required by law.

Donaldson said if dealers did not process titles and other papers, local tax collector-assessors — at taxpayers' expense — would have to hire more employees to do the work.

Bill for more deaf authority clears Senate

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A bill that would give deaf persons more authority on the Texas Commission for the Deaf cleared the Legislature on Wednesday.

The Senate accepted House changes on voice vote and sent the bill to the governor.

Deaf persons, professionals who serve them and parents of deaf children would dominate the commission under the measure, which was approved by the House on Friday, 121-3.

Three of the members would be deaf persons, two would be parents of deaf children, and two would be professionals who work with deaf persons. Two additional members would be selected from the general public.

The board has been wracked with controversy in recent months, following the dismissal of Carl Roberts as executive director.

Deaf persons and their families protested Roberts understood their problems better than the six commissioners did. Presently, only two of the six commissioners are deaf.

Rabies shots being offered

COLORADO CITY — The city of Colorado City is co-sponsoring a low-cost rabies clinic with veternarian Dr. Larry Helms for Colorado City residents.

City manager Ray Mason said the reduced rate of rabies vaccinations are being offered to encourage citizens to protect their animals and families against the disease.

Helms said that there appeared to be a rabies epidemic spreading from the South at a fast rate and he hoped to spare Colorado City residents from it.

The usual $8 shots will be given for $5 1-4 p.m., June 2 at the city barn of East Highway 80, Colorado City. City tags will be available for $1 and distemper shots for $7.50.

Pets should be brought to the clinic on a leash or held in the arms.

Swim classes offered by Y

COLORADO CITY — The Big Spring YMCA is offering swimming classes to Colorado City residents.

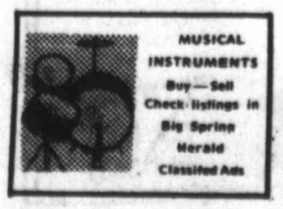

The swimming instructions, part of an extension program to bring the YMCA to Colorado City, will begin at 9 a.m., June 4 at the Ruddick Pool.

The first session will continue through June 14. Following sessions will be from June 18-28, July 2-12, and July 16-26.

Cost is $15 for the first child and $10 for each additional child per family.

Pre-registration will be conducted 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Saturday at Perry Brothers, Inc., Colorado City.

More information is available at the Big Spring YMCA, 267-8234 or 267-8235.

Opponents of extended oil price controls bill hold out little hope

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas opponents of a House Democratic Caucus resolution backing extended oil price controls held out little chance of swaying the outcome before a twice-postponed roll call vote was held today.

"There's no doubt about the fact that there's a sufficient number of votes to pass the resolution," said U.S. Rep. Phil Gramm of College Station.

Gramm, a former Texas A&M University economics professor who says talk of excessive oil company profits is "demagoguery," complained that the caucus' decision Wednesday to cut off debate prevented opponents from offering their amendments.

"I think that's a real question of the rules," he said.

The caucus shouted its approval of the resolution by voice vote, but time ran out before a roll call could be taken. Opponents had forced postponement of a vote Tuesday by offering a motion to table the resolution and effectively kill it.

The motion failed, but the time taken for the roll call required the caucus to recess.

Only three of 20 Texans voted with the 2-1 majority on the earliest vote, billed as a test of the resolution's strength.

The resolution would express a caucus policy but not be binding on caucus members.

"I realize that the deck was stacked against us on this issue," said U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford. "I will still vote my conscience on the floor regardless of the outcome of the vote."

Stenholm said oil production will increase once regulations are removed, as Carter proposes. The president does not need congressional approval for his phased lifting of oil price controls, but Congress can reinstate them.

The resolution's supporters will have to take responsibility if gas lines grow longer and energy shortages intensify, Stenholm said.

"I think they can accept the full credit for future consequences of their action," he said.

Clements threatens bill veto

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Wednesday he would veto the state appropriations bill if it contains a provision banning the use of state money for a same-day presidential primary.

The appropriations bill, presently in a House-Senate conference committee, contains a special provision prohibiting the use of state funds in any primary which includes balloting for presidential delegates.

"If that rider stays in there, I will veto it," Clements said.

Texas Republicans already have adopted party rules calling for a same-day presidential primary in 1980. Unless a presidential primary bill is approved by the Legislature and signed by Clements, the state GOP would be free to proceed with same-day presidential balloting.

Bill Presnal, chairman of House conferees studying the appropriations bill, said, "We are going to look at it (the rider) real hard" when the conference committee meets Thursday morning.

He said Clements had the power to veto the primary financing item — including both the money and the rider — without vetoing the entire bill. Presnal said the rider would be removed "if it is going to prevent us from having a primary."

Presnal said the rider was placed in the bill because "I decided it was not a good idea to spend state money on something that is not public policy."

He added there was a "real serious question constitutionally" about spending tax funds on a presidential primary not authorized by law."

Referring to the threatened veto, Presnal said, "He's threatened before ... I haven't talked to the man ... We can't make our decisions based on what he may or may not veto. We have to make our decisions based on what's good public policy."

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

Inflation Fighting Ideas Based On Information Provided By The U.S. Government Office Of Consumer Affairs.

Our stores will continue to have an adequate selection of beef to meet your needs. Beef supplies are down and will continue to be short while the cattle producers are rebuilding their herds. Other meats, such as poultry and pork, are in more plentiful supply.

Now is a good time to buy chickens, turkeys and pork, all of which freeze well. Remember, too, that it is always less expensive to buy chickens and turkeys whole and cut them to the needs of your family.

May begins the seasonal peak for milk production so supplies of cheese, butter and nonfat dry milk should be on the increase. You can help save money by using reconstituted nonfat dry milk in any recipe calling for regular milk.

Since fruits and vegetables are seasonal in nature, buy them during the peak of their season.

Fresh fruit such as apricot, sweet cherry and peach harvests are just beginning. Good buys on these fruits should become more common as the harvest continues.

Apples and grapefruit seasons are ending and this may cause prices to rise a bit. Bananas should be a good buy during the summer months as supplies increase. Raisins will stay high all year because of rain damage to the 1978 crop.

Potatoes are abundant and prices reasonable. Nutritious, low in calories, potatoes go so well with so many dishes and are easy to prepare.

Dry beans are a great buy due to recent years' bumper crops. Though a high protein food, many beans are slightly deficient in one amino acid, methionine. This is overcome when they are served or combined with small amounts of meat, dairy products, or certain cereal grains. Rice, corn and pork, in combination with dry beans, do create a balance of protein, and at this time, all are inflation fighting buys. An idea: leave meat on your next ham or smoked picnic bone and put it in your pot of beans for additional flavor and nutrition.

May is a good time to buy pork, poultry, milk products, potatoes and dry beans.

together, we can be INFLATION FIGHTERS!

SILVER FOR GAS — Gloria Osella pumps gasoline at her stand in Weekapaug, R.I., beneath a sign offering fuel for 25 cents a gallon. In order to take advantage of the "bargain," payment must be made in silver dimes, quarters, half-dollars and dollars minted before 1964. Osella claims the offer will be made all summer, no matter how high the cost of gasoline goes.

Memorial Day weekend traffic

Council predicts 500-600 deaths

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council estimates between 500 and 600 persons may die on the nation's highways over the three-day Memorial Day weekend despite expectations that many motorists will have trouble buying gasoline.

Over the 1978 holiday period, The Associated Press counted 528 traffic-related deaths.

Jack Recht, statistics manager for the council, said Wednesday the number of deaths likely will be affected by the availability of gasoline. The estimate was made about four weeks ago, he said — before the shortage — when gasoline supplies were roughly the same as in 1978.

"We're committed to that estimate at this moment," Recht said. "My own feeling is that it might be somewhat lower than that estimate," depending on the number of miles Americans drive. "It's too late to revise it."

But he noted traffic deaths were up 13 percent in the first three months of 1979 compared to last year — "a pretty phenomenal increase" — and had influenced the 500 to 600 estimate. The council said 10,360 persons died through March, and a 1972 record of 56,278 deaths would be broken if the higher death rate continues.

In 1978, 51,901 persons were killed in traffic accidents, and a 13 percent increase this entire year would mean a record 58,641 deaths.

"On the one hand, you have a gasoline shortage; on the other hand, you have an indication of a relatively large increase in fatalities, the explanation for which we don't have details," said Recht.

However, council President Vincent L. Tofany said "an assumption seems proper that higher speeds are behind the disturbing increase in fatalities."

Tofany said observing the national speed limit of 55 mph will help conserve fuel. Its introduction five years ago has saved at least 35,000 lives, he said.

The Associated Press keeps a traffic death count for the holiday period that begins at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday local time.

Proposal for commuter service to be filed

As early as next week, a proposal for commuter service from Midland-Odessa Terminal to Big Spring, to Dallas-Fort Worth Airport could be filled with the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

Wednesday, John Andrews, president, and Chris Prickett, both of Permian Airways, met with members of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce aviation committee chaired by Adolph Swartz, to discuss the proposal. Also at the meeting was Harry Rogers, a representative of the TAC.

Permian Airways presently operates out of the Midland-Odessa Terminal Airport with commuter flights to Lubbock, Amarillo and Ruidoso. They expressed intentions of filing for the route which connects Big Spring with Midland and Dallas-Fort Worth, as soon as paperwork required by the TAC can be completed.

The service, if approved, would utilize nine-seater Navajo Chieftans for two flights daily (early morning and evening) out of Big Spring Monday through Friday, and one afternoon flight Sunday. The flights would connect with major carriers leaving D-FW Airport and Midland.

Permian Airways is a newly established service with a good record for on-schedule flights.

"Obviously, PA feels Big Spring has the air traffic to support the route," said Tom Ivey, member of the Chamber Aviation Committee, "otherwise, they wouldn't be proping it."

Rates for the commuter should be competitive with other similar flights out of Midland, meaning a savings of time and money for Big Springers accustomed to driving to Midland for air service to D-FW.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — David Wayne Rice, 6, faced an unusual problem recently — finding a name for his pet turtle who has two heads.

David finally named him Herman and Bo.

His mother, Jean Rice, says Herman — the right head — seems more active than Bo.

The turtle was found in their backyard.

JILL FLOYD

NATHAN ZANT

Jill Floyd named top senior at Sands High

ACKERLY — Jill Floyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Floyd, is the valedictorian of the 1979 graduating class at Sands High School here. She finished with a grade average of 93.56.

Miss Floyd has attended Sands school since she enrolled in the first grade.

She has been one of the most active students in school. She was an outstanding basketball player, ran track, participated in UIL Literary events and has served as a cheerleader for three years.

She plans to attend Howard College this fall, where she will major in Business.

Nathan Zant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Zant, is the salutatorian. His grade point average is 92.52. Nathan has also been at Sands throughout his career as a student.

He has participated in basketball, tennis and golf. He was selected as Best Actor in District One-Act Play competition. He served as Student Council president his senior year.

Nathan plans to attend Texas Tech University, where he will major in Pre-Med.

Rounding out the list of Top Five Students at Sands are Tammy Jo Nichols, Knott, with a grade average of 90.6056; Van Martin Gaskins, Star Rte., 90.3142; and Susanna Arismendez, 87.6031.

Jurors may call Roloff to stand

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Grand jurors investigating an unreported stabbing incident at one of evangelist Lester Roloff's child care homes may call the fundamentalist preacher to testify today.

Grand jury foreman Oscar Reyna said last week that the panel would call Roloff, who had volunteered to appear.

"I feel we will be calling him Thursday or Friday," Reyna said.

The panel, looking into the stabbing of former Rebekah Home resident Misty Hardman of Kansas, was scheduled to reconvene today.

Reyna said last week that the panel "definitely" would take some action against the girls allegedly involved in the incident, but not against the evangelist.

Because all seven of the girls were minors at the time, Nueces County Attorney Mike Westergren said the jury could not indict them, but could refer the incident to a juvenile court.

In another matter, a state district judge in Austin postponed a hearing on a contempt of court motion filed against Roloff by Attorney General Mark White.

White filed the motion May 16, asking Judge Charles Matthews to close the evangelist child care homes, and levy civil penalties against Roloff for failure to comply with a 1976 court order to allow state child care licensing inspectors into the homes.

At the request of Roloff's attorneys, Matthews postponed a scheduled May 29 hearing on the motion until June 13.

The evangelist, citing the doctrine of separation of church and state, has refused for nearly six years to let his homes be inspected by state licensing workers.

On the light side

A rose is a rose is a rose

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Sandi Crandell says she doesn't know who sent her 248 dozen roses. The card said, "A rose for each day I have known you," and asked, "Do you like peanut butter and jelly sandwiches?"

"I was floored," she said. It took florists 20 minutes to unload the nearly 3,000 roses from the truck they rented for the delivery.

Greg Parrish of The Flower Patch Shop won't say who the mysterious admirer is, only that he gave the buyer a break on his usual price of $10.48 a dozen.

Miss Crandell was busy giving most of them away Wednesday — to friends, neighbors, hospitals and nursing homes.

"Tell whoever sent them thanks," she said. "And if he cares to reveal himself, I don't bite."

Danger -- wax ahead

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's City Council has banned dripping wax from downtown streets.

An ordinance approved Wednesday sets a $10 fine for anyone allowing candles to drip during ceremonies or protest marches.

The ordinance prohibits a candle from being lighted in the area unless its base is surrounded by a container large enough to catch and hold wax drippings.

Some councilmen said slippery wax drippings could endanger pedestrians.

The sound of clapping

PLATTEVILLE, Wis. (AP) — A new ensemble on Platteville High School's concert program has become a rage without tooting a note. Ensemble members just clap.

Jeff Schave, 25, the school's band director, said he organized the outfit to provide novelty relief during regular instrumental and choral performances of his dozens of ensembles and soloists.

But the student clappers, while whacking out noisy patterns under Schave's baton, won a No. 1 performance rating during recent regional competition and another in state competition.

Now the students "are being asked to perform for church groups and ladies' groups," Schave said. "I have to take along a woodwind ensemble or one of our other groups just to show we're not entirely wasting our time."

Elvis has No. 4

MANITOWOC, Wis. (AP) — Elvis Presley and Mrs. Herbert Baer have a new baby.

Dad is the former Herbert A. Baer, 41, of rural Valders, who had his name changed last December to Elvis Presley.

Baer said at the time he had been a fan of the singer for years and was known to friends for more than 20 years by that nickname.

Presley's wife and three other children retain the family name, and the hospital report listed the parents of the baby born Tuesday as "Elvis Presley and Mrs. Herbert Baer."

It was not known what name the couple chose for the baby boy.

'Black Jesus' may face trial

Voodoo, murder in Delaware

GEORGETOWN, Del. (AP) — A judge must decide this week whether to bring a reputed voodoo master known as "Black Jesus" back to trial for the brutal stabbing death of a small-town grocer in 1974.

Evidence in the case is sketchy, police say, partly because the migrant workers from the South who knew the defendant fear he has mystical powers and have refused to talk. Behind the fear are three other mysterious deaths — in which many see the specter of voodoo.

"You get in that kind of area, and people you talk to don't know anything about anything, even if it happened right in front of their faces," complained Sam Burke, 35, a deputy Delaware attorney general who heads the two-man prosecuting staff in rural Sussex County.

Police took 16 months to make the first arrest for the murder of Frank Snyder, 55, who ran a grocery and gas station in Milton, population 1,500. Police say the motive may have been that Snyder had chased a robber from his store weeks earlier with a forceful kick.

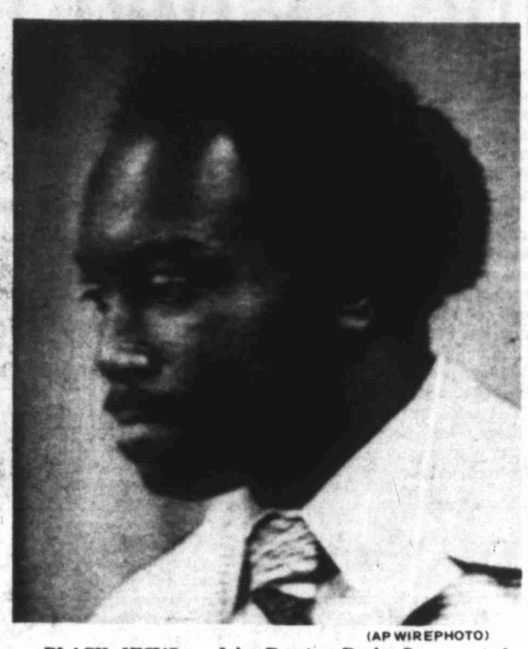

Snyder was stabbed 18 to 24 times the day after Thanksgiving 1974 while he was at the store alone. A butcher knife was lodged in his body, which was bound with towels and window shade cords.

"It was a horrible murder," said Burke. "He was found in a bathtub with his head wrapped up in towels."

Burke successfully prosecuted two men for Snyder's murder, but their alleged leader, John Preston Rooks Sr., 38, originally from Alabama, was acquitted on a technicality in 1977.

Rooks, a truck driver, lived in nearby Milford and drove a 1967 black Cadillac with gold stick-on letters spelling "Black Jesus." He was also known as "Blue Jesus," but the nicknames were never explained.

After Rooks was acquitted, Burke appealed to the Delaware Supreme Court, which last month ordered a review. Georgetown Superior Court Judge Robert C. O'Hara, has until Friday to decide whether to order a new trial for Rooks, whose whereabouts are not known.

(AP WIREPHOTO)

BLACK JESUS — John Preston Rooks Sr., reputed voodoo practitioner, known as "Black Jesus."

A new trial would once again stir up talk of voodoo, or "hoodoo," or "the root," referring to roots used for spells — though Rooks himself has denied any knowlege of voodoo.

Residents say clusters of voodoo believers live near the Draper King-Cole cannery in Milton, which used to hire migrant labor from the South and Southwest.

"You understand that this is mostly a black religion that has been passed down from slavery," explained one white woman in her 50s who says she no longer practices voodoo but still believes in its powers.

She asked that her name not be used, noting she was asked for spells after a newspaper quoted her. "You'd be surprised at the number of people who would call you, wanting something done," she said.

Police say most believers refuse to talk about voodoo out of fear, and Burke said this applies in the Rooks investigation. "Black Jesus is a guy who has a reputation in the community for being able to, you might say, cast spells or hold people to his will," he said. "He apparently couldn't lose with a set of dice, among other things. And a lot of people were afraid of him."

Burke said the three deaths that cause fear of Rooks may not have been connected to voodoo but believers saw them that way.

The first was in 1971, when Nathan Rogers surprisingly took Rooks for several hundred dollars in a crap game. His axed body was found in a branch of the Mispillion River, and the murder remains unsolved.

Then, before Rooks' arrest, two men bragged they knew Snyder's murderer, and both died. Ricky Tolson was run over by a car, and Charlie Barrows choked to death, vomiting blood, as he drank a beer with friends in a car while telling his story of the murder.

"He died, sitting right in that car, drinking that beer," Burke said. "They could find no cause of death. There was nothing wrong with him."

George L. Reynolds, 24, and Thomas R. Young, 29, were convicted in the Snyder slaying but are appealing.

Young, accused of actually knifing Snyder, carried a Bible to court and claims God tried to tell the jury it had made a mistake when it convicted him on a rainy day in 1977.

"Right when the verdict was announced, there was this loud thunder clap," said Jack Croft, a reporter who was there. "And Young broke down and cried and said it was a message from God."

The case against Rooks hinges on statements by Reynolds, reputed driver of the getaway car. He told several stories, then said he stayed in the car while Rooks and Young went inside. Burke said Reynolds, asked why he did not tell on Rooks earlier, replied:

"He deals with voodoo, and that's why I wouldn't tell you before, because he can do a 'root' on you."

Judge O'Hara ruled Reynolds' statement could not be used as evidence because it resulted from a promise of leniency. He is reconsidering that, and his decision could allow Burke to re-open the case.

Meanwhile, Burke acknowledges that the eerie case has affected him. After the Reynolds trial, he said, he suffered diarrhea so severe he was hospitalized. His doctor found no reason for the problem.

Burke also speculated that O'Hara might have had a spell cast on him when he threw out Reynolds' statement. Then he added:

"I'm not going to sit here and tell you that's what happened."

Wayne celebrates with gold

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Wayne, the cancer-stricken hero of 200 movies, will celebrate his 72nd birthday Saturday with a gold medal from Congress and the prayers of countless fans.

Wayne is in stable condition after a May 2 operation that revealed cancer in his intestine. He was reported gaining strength and has been taking short walks down hospital corridors.

Plans for the birthday were not available Wednesday, but hospital spokesman Al Hicks said Wayne will get at least one birthday cake.

Marvin appeal to be made

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney for actor Lee Marvin says he will seek reconsideration of a $104,000 award to Michelle Triola Marvin. And David Kagon said he might even appeal the landmark decision.

Kagon said Wednesday his threat to appeal was spurred a request from Miss Marvin's attorney that Marvin pay some $500,000 in fees stemming from the case.

He said the actor was willing to accept the ruling if "that was the end of the matter. Unfortunately, the plaintiff has seen fit to take further action."

Cleaver wins 1, loses 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Former Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver won one legal skirmish and lost two in his efforts to get the California Supreme Court to suppress evidence in his coming trial for attempted murder.

A 4-2 decision Wednesday by Justice Frank Richardson held valid two warrantless police searches of an Oakland home after an April 1968 shootout in which Cleaver's companion was killed. But the court agreed the search of a car found some distance away was illegal.

Stevens begins new career

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — Actress Stella Stevens has begun what she hopes will be a career as a producer and director.

Miss Stevens, who has played major roles in about 20 movies, has been at Appalachian State University here this week to make a 90-minute documentary called "The American Heroine."

Miss Stevens, 40, who played in such movies as "The Poseidon Adventure," said she is financing the film with her own money. She said she hoped it will become a television series.

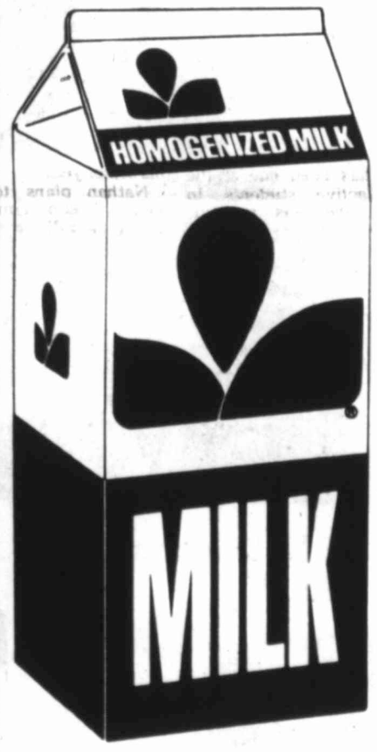

"I've never wanted to be an older career actress," she said. "I've played blondes, I've played redheads and I've played brunettes, and that's all the kinds of women there are.

'Cooperative arrangement' being pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Further pressure has been generated in Congress for the United States to form with other key wheat-producing nations "a cooperative arrangement" to dictate the price of bread grain in world trade.

A nonbinding "sense of the Senate" resolution was approved Wednesday on an 80-15 vote after three hours' debate, despite warnings by Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., that it was the first step toward "a wheat cartel that simply will not work."

"How does the senator know? We've never tried," responded Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D.

He and other backers of the resolution rejected grassroots calls for a cartel to raise wheat prices to the level of prices for crude oil charged by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) — the so-called "bushel for a barrel" campaign.

A bushel of wheat cost about the same as a barrel of Middle East oil about eight years ago in world trade but now oil is almost five times more expensive.

But they said that talks need to be held and prices hiked "modestly," because joint exporter-importer talks to set prices have failed and farmers have to sell for less than their costs of production.

World grain figures by the Agriculture Department lend weight, on paper, at least, to the idea.

According to those, the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina account for about 78 percent of the total wheat in world trade in 1978-79.

Further, the USDA report showed, the four countries will have left in reserve as of July 1 about 44.3 percent of the estimated total wheat in the world, some 46.6 million metric tons out of a global estimate of 105.2 million metric tons.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat.

The resolution, approved last week 7-1 in the Foreign Relations Committee, calls for arrangements to "achieve equitable prices" but suggests no level or type of arrangement.

Lugar objected to that vagueness, the lack of hearings by the Agriculture Committee and sparse attendance at the debate.

"This is a pretty serious thought," he said. "We are talking about ... asking the president to take the leadership in setting up a cartel arrangement for wheat in this world, albeit an informal one."

Because wheat can be grown almost anywhere outside the tropics, Lugar said, nations other than the four leading exporters would soon produce more and undercut any price-fixing scheme.

Carter administration officials are conducting wheat talks, primarily with Canada, but have echoed Lugar's arguments against an attempt at a cartel.

McGovern said that the three other top exporters are "ready to cooperate" to end price-cutting competition among the four nations.

22 million acres taken from cropland production

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have agreed to take 22.1 million acres of cropland from production under this year's acreage set-aside programs for wheat and feed grains, 6 percent less than last year.

The final signup figures were announced Wednesday by the Agriculture Department. However, farmers still have some time to reduce their committed acreages, if they choose.

Ray Fitzgerald, head of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the acreage signed up included 10,612,473 acres by wheat farmers and 6,186,488 acres by feed grains producers.

In addition, he said, corn farmers indicated they will voluntarily divert from production 3,444,936 acres in return for federal payments. Sorghum producers signed up to divert 673,554 acres.

Wheat producers said they would use 1,176,514 acres of their crop for livestock grazing or as hay before it matured enough for grain.

Producers must agree to set aside a portion of their cropland in order to get government price supports, target-price payments and other crop benefits. The added diversion of acreage and the wheat grazing portions of the program are optional.

The intent of the programs is to help curb excess production of wheat and feed grains, commodities that are in strong demand but are also in huge supply.

Last year, under the same programs, farmers signed up to idle 23.5 million acres of cropland.

However, the final acreage taken from production is decided by farmers later when they certify to the agency how much land they actually have idled.

Last year the final acreage certified as taken from 1978 production was 18.2 million acres.

This year's signup period began Feb. 15 and ran through April 30. Long lines of farmers developed in the final days of the signup, so those were allowed to sign a "statement of intent" declaring they would participate in the programs, Fitzgerald said.

Kerrville arts, crafts

The fair will be held Friday through Sunday in Kerrville. The fair annually hosts over 35,000 fans in the Texas Hill Country. The Memorial Day weekend event was threatened with a gas shortage until about 300 artists, craftspeople, Kerrville business people and arts enthusiasts went into action.

According to fair executive director Audie Hamilton, John Watson of Kerrville headed a committee to secure enough gasoline for fair participants and visitors to get back home. As a result, all Kerrville gas stations will be open over the weekend if they have any of their allotments left. Only three stations expected to run out of gas early in the weekend.

Several stations have been able to secure additional gas allotments for Fair weekend. Other stations have staggered their supplies to insure their staying open. Some independent stations have ample gas for fair visitors who do not mind waiting in line. Although Mrs. Hamilton stresses an inexhaustible fuel supply is not available, estimates reveal that about 90 per cent of last year's gas supply sill be available in Kerrville.

Approximately 230 of Texas' best-known artists and craftspeople are also aiding the Fair office. They are personally contacting news media offices across the state. These arts exhibitors depend on weekend events for a large per cent of their living and are supporting the Kerrville-based arts event in overcoming a trend which could hurt such events all summer.

Pettitt has received numerous honors from the Fair association in past years.

Celtics hire Fitch

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics' rebuilding program has been handed to Bill Fitch, whose future roster remains a mystery.

The inauguration of Fitch as the eighth head coach of the once-dominant National Basketball Association team was viewed Wednesday as the first move in a prospective whirlwind of maneuvers by Celtics President Red Auerbach.

Fitch, released from his Cleveland Cavaliers contract on Monday, conceded he can't guarantee a return to glory by Boston because, "I don't know enough about who's going to be here."

Auerbach puffed his trademark "victory" cigar at a Boston Garden news conference and asserted, "We're not building a ball club to make the playoffs. We want to build a club to win the whole thing."

Fitch replaced player-coach Dave Cownes, the burly center, who is one of the few Celtic players certain to be back next season.

It was a break with tradition by Auerbach. Fitch is the first non-alumnus of the Celtics to coach the team since Auerbach himself retired in 1966 after winning nine NBA titles.

Celtics assistant coaches K.C. Jones and Bob MacKinnon will be retained. Fitch said he hasn't yet signed a reported five-year contract, but he has reached verbal agreement with Auerbach — now in full control of the front office since Harry Mangurian bought 100 percent ownership from partner John Y. Brown this spring.

Fitch, 46, rattled off a list of Celtics players who show promise, including center-forward Rick Robey and swingman Jeff Judkins, and veterans such as forward Bob McAdoo, who is expected to be traded.

"I'm concerned about assigning roles, and with the chemistry of people working together," said Fitch.

The Celtics gave up three first-round draft picks when Brown made the trade that brought McAdoo from the New York Knicks. The Celtics also are struggling to sign Indiana State star Larry Bird, whose agent, Bob Woolf, is feuding with Auerbach. If the stalemate continues until the NBA draft June 25, Boston will lose rights to the college player-of-theyear.

Auerbach reiterated that Mangurian is letting him make all major decisions, saying, "Anything we want to do, we do." And Fitch said, "I didn't take this job with the idea that Bird would be here. He might not be playing in Boston."

Fitch coached the Cavaliers since their inception nine seasons ago. He also served as general manager. With permission from Cavs President Nick Mileti, Fitch, with two years left on his Cleveland pact, first discussed the Celtics job with Auerbach a week ago.

The Celtics president said the new coach "is just the guy I dreamed to be in a position to get."

Cowens had decided to relinquish his coaching role and Fitch agreed Wednesday, saying, "It's impossible for a superstar to be a coach."

Red Sox lose to Marfa

MARFA — The Big Spring Red Sox had their nine game winning streak broken earlier this week when the Marfa Reds scored eight runs in the third inning on their way to a 15-4 victory.

The winning pitcher for the Reds was Ricky Guevaura, with the Big Springers' Jimmy Lujan being saddled with the loss. Lujan now has a record of 3-2.

The Red Sox, with a record of 9-2, return to action Sunday in the Roy Anderson Complex when they play host to the Abilene Jets.

City golf championship slated this weekend

The Big Spring Golf Association is sponsoring a City Golf Tournament this weekend, May 26 through 28 at the Comanche Trail Park.

Only residents of Big Spring will be eligible to enter the tournament and entry fee is $12.50. Deadline for signing up is 7 p.m. Friday, May 25. Entries can be made by calling the golf pro shop at the park.

FIRST OF THREE — Al Oliver, Texas Rangers' outfielder, is congratulated at home plate by Rangers' third baseman Buddy Bell after Oliver hit his first of three homers against the Minnesota Twins at Arlington Stadium Wednesday night. Texas won 7-2, with Al driving in 4 of the runs.

Oliver slams three homers as Rangers blitz Twins

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The first clue that Al Oliver was in for an extraordinary night came in batting practice before Texas' game with Minnesota Wednesday night.

"I hit one out of the park that broke the bat. Another one broke the bat and hit the wall. I felt super strong," Oliver said in the Ranger clubhouse after hitting three home runs, driving in four runs in Texas' 7-2 victory over the Twins.

The 11-year veteran hovered near the .400 mark the first month of the season, but had been in a mini-slump lately. He had only nine hits in his 48 latest at-bats going into Wednesday's series-ender with Minnesota.

"In April I was embasrrassing the other guys on the team because I was getting all the hits. In May, they've been embarrassing me. But this game was great. I hope I'm back on the track again."

The 32-year-old outfielder became the first Ranger to ever hit three homers in a game at Arlington Stadium, and his 3-for-4 night pushed him to .304 at the plate for the season.

Ranger manager Pat Corrales put Oliver in the lineup as a designated hitter Monday, and held him out of the lineup Tuesday.

"With the day off, and the rest, I felt super strong," Oliver said.

"I think players themselves know they can't play 162 games. I just had to take it on myself to set him down for a day," Corrales said. "It's hard to make out a lineup and leave out an Oliver or a Zisk, but it's just got to be done from time to time."

Minnesota manager Gene Mauch, asked what kind of "book" the Twins had on Oliver, replied:

"When he's swinging good, you can take the book and throw it away. That's why they pay him all that money. When he was with Pittsburgh, we used to eat him up belt high inside. The next series we'd pitch him that way and he'd knock down all the fences."

Martin meets with writer in Reno case

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Billy Martin, the once and maybe future skipper of the New York Yankees, slipped quietly into Reno Wednesday on the eve of a planned meeting with the sports writer whose black eye threatens to terminate Martin's career with the Yankees.

Martin was to meet with Ray Hagar Thursday to settle Hagar's civil suit filed against Martin after the former Yankees manager allegedly slugged Hagar during an interview Nov. 10. Along with the black eye, Hagar's glasses were knocked off and his front teeth were chipped.

Martin agreed to issue a public apology to Hagar and pay some $8,000 in damages in exchange for dismissal of the suit.

Hagar dropped criminal charges against Martin on Tuesday to assure that Martin could return to Nevada without facing possible arrest on the misdemeanor charge. He arrived in Reno late Wednesday and registered in a downtown hotel under his own name. He was not, however, making himself available to reporters.

Once his dispute with Hagar is settled, Martin's future will be up to Yankees owner George Steinbrenner.

Steinbrenner indicated during spring training that Martin would have to be totally exonerated of the criminal and civil charges filed by Hagar in order to return to the Yankees helm in 1980. He said a settlement would not be sufficient.

The owner of the world champions softened his attitude somewhat Wednesday, saying, "I couldn't tell him not to settle."

"I don't know all the facts yet," Steinbrenner said. "We will call Billy in as soon as possible and thrash this whole thing out."

For his part, Hagar said, "I'm just glad to get it cleared. I feel like a sandwich, caught in the middle between Steinbrenner and Martin."

"I don't know if clearing this up with me will help him or not," Hagar said. "I don't think this isolated incident has any bearing on Martin's knowlege or ability to manage the Yankees."

Champagne celebration costly to Grand Canyon College players

PHOENIX (AP) — Southern Baptist-owned Grand Canyon College will not allow its No.1-ranked baseball team to compete in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics world series this month because players celebrated their last victory with a champagne toast in the locker room.

"Because it's a Christian school, they (the administration) feel we made a disgrace of the school," said Ed Bonine, the Antelopes top pitcher, told The Arizona Republic.

Grand Canyon defeated Sam Houston State, 10-2, Friday to win the Area 2 tournament and earn a berth in the world series scheduled to begin Memorial Day in Nashville, Tenn.

The team violated school rules, however, with a champagne bash in the locker room after the victory and the school administration decided not to let the team compete in the nationals, the Republic said.

Grand Canyon Assistant Coach Kent Fulmer told the newspaper that veteran Head Coach Dave Brazell had called him to say, "We aren't going."

The school's athletic administrator, Bill Estes, admitted Tuesday that the administration had made a decision and said the NAIA would be notified Wednesday morning. He would not elaborate.

Brazell and school President Bill Williams could not be reached for comment.

Several Antelope players admitted there was champagne in the locker room after Friday's win, and an Associated Press photograph showing the jubilant players popping corks was transmitted across the country and appeared in a Phoenix newspaper Saturday.

A student handbook published by the college, which is owned and operated by the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention, says possession or use of alcoholic beverages on campus is prohibited.

Players claim the champagne was used symbolically in celebration, not to get drunk.

Fulmer said, "It's unfortunate that they pulled the rug from under the kids. They worked hard to get this far and they really wanted to go."

Bonine, who has an 11-1 record this season, said, "We were wrong by having champagne in the locker room. We used poor discretion but it wasn't how it appeared. The champagne was warm and we just poured it on each other in celebratioY.None of it was drunk.

"The school is getting pressure from the people who donate money to run the school."

Another Antelope pitcher, Jim Gerlach, 12-2, added, "I don't think it's fair to kick 20 ballpayers out of a dream. It just isn't fair. There's no way I'm coming back to play here next year."

(AP WIREPHOTO)

NOT GRINNING NOW — The grins on these Grand Canyon College baseball players, caught with champagne in hand in the locker room after winning the Area 2 Tournament Friday, turned to frowns Tuesday when the word spread across campus that the No. 1-ranked team would not be allowed to go the NAIA World Series this month. Possession or use of alcoholic beverages at the Phoenix, Ariz., school, operated by the Arizona Southern Baptist Convention, is prohibited.

Bullets go for repeat as NBA finals resume

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Bullets, with a chance to become the first repeat champions of the National Basketball Association in 10 years, may not be the fat cats they're depicted as.

When the Bullets struggled to beat Atlanta 4-3 and then had to overcome a 3-1 deficit before prevailing over San Antonio, some observers figured they had lost the desire which carried them to the top last year.

But veteran forwards Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes say a second championship would be even more satisfying than the first.

"We have more reason to win than Seattle," Dandridge said as the two finalists of last season prepared for tonight's contest in Capital Centre, the Bullets leading 1-0 in the best-ofseven series.

"Two championship rings would be icing on the cake for Wes (center Wes Unseld), Elvin and myself," Dandridge said. "And we have some young players who realize that a lot of great players in the league never even get to play for the championship."

"I learned a long time ago to forget my personal goals," said Hayes, who finished third in the voting for the NBA's most valuable player. "The championship ring means more to me. I want a second one. The first one was good, and I want more."

Seattle, meantime, is encountering the same kind of doubt that Washington faced last season — even though the Super-Sonics extended the Bullets to seven games a year ago and finished behind them this year with the second-best regular season record.

Coach Lenny Wilkens was a bit bemused by a question at a practice session this week which seemed to suggest the SuperSonics were still not for real.

"We don't have to prove anything," Wilkens said. "That was started last year by people trying to understand why THEY didn't make it."

Wrestling injury hampers pro golfer Jim Simons

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — An old college wrestling injury keeps hampering Jim Simons' pro golf career.

And because of Simons' recurring left shoulder problems, his chances of keeping his title are slim in the Memorial Golf Tournament that began today at Muirfield Village.

"I hurt it wrestling a college fraternity brother at Wake Forest," Simons said. "It's bothered me ever since."

The 29-year-old blond from Pittsburgh has tried almost everything to cure the problem. He even went to Toronto to see Dr. James Bateman.

"He's one of the best in the world. He said an operation wasn't necessary. He felt with isometric exercises, it would tighten up. What he doesn't understand, you don't want to tighten up your muscles in golf.

"When I exercise it, my shoulder feels better but it throws my timing off."

Since he won a head-to-head duel with Jack Nicklaus for the 1978 Memorial title, Simon's career has been on the downslide. This year he ranks 79th on the current PGA money list with less than $22,000.

He has missed the cut five times in his 16 tournaments. Simons' best finish was 13th in the Tournament of Champions. He came to Muirfield Village after tying for 65th at Fort Worth a week ago.

The March of Dimes Tennis Tournament held the past weekend drew 136 entries, with first and second place prizes being awarded in 12 different categories.

MOD made $660 dollars off of the tennis tournament, and was most definitely considered a huge success. The turnout pleased the officials, and tournament director Leroy Walker ran the event very smoothly. The March of Dimes is hoping that the tournament will continue to be an annual event, since this year was such a success. Many thanks go to Vincent Partsch of Family's Country Kitchen for donating the 40 trophies for the event.

In the men's A division singles, Barry Stephens defeated Lanny Roberts of Lamesa for the title. The women's A division champion was Connie Weber of Snyder, as she defeated Dana Cannon of Forsan 6-0, 6-2.

In the men's A division doubles, Neil Paige and Jimmy Fowler of Snyder defeated Hugh Porter and Dana Jones 7-6, 6-1 for the first place trophy. Weber and Donna McGee, both of Snyder, defeated Alyssa Burns and Sheryl Easterling, 6-1, 6-2, to take top honors in the women's division A doubles.

Lenny Prudhomme won the B division men's singles by defeating Bill Boles of Snyder by a score of 6-4, 6-4. Cannon defeated Theronne Baker 7-6, 7-6, to claim top honors in the B division women's singles.

Prudhomme and Woody Mann defeated Dave Duncan and Rip Patterson 6-3, 3-6, 6-1, to win the B division men's doubles trophy. Baker and Sissy Mann toppled Sheri Walker and Kim Madry 6-2, 6-1, to win the title in the B division women's doubles.

Todd Gilbert defeated Delores Gonzales 6-3, 7-6 to take top honors in the C division men's singles. Rhonda Gaskins of Forsan won over Em Carnett of Midland 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, to win the women's C division singles.

The brother duo of Mike and Steve Evans defeated Kevin Nolting and Robert Garcia 6-0, 6-1 to win top honors in the C division men's doubles.

In the very competitive mixed doubles competition, Burns and Harry Jordan defeated Barry and Debbie Stephens 2-6, 6-2, 6-4 to claim the first place trophy.

Collins, LaCoss ignite Big Red Machine

Reds 5, Giants 0

Mike LaCoss said Manager John McNamara waved his magic wand again — but the wands Dave Collins & Co. had something to do with it, too.

LaCoss, unbeaten this year, chalked up his fifth victory by three-hitting San Francisco Wednesday night while Collins, Johnny Bench and Ray Knight were hitting home runs off Vida Blue in Cincinnati's 5-0 whitewashing of the Giants.

It washed away the bad taste of the Reds' 12-2 loss 24 hours earlier and widened their National League West lead to 2½ games over the Giants.

"We haven't lost a game I've started yet," said LaCoss, a 23-year-old right-hander. "It seems like Mac waves a magic wand when I pitch.

"Like tonight, He puts Dave Collins in left field and he hits a home run (his first as a National Leaguer). He's just a super manager."

Braves 6, Astros 5

Jerry Royster's two-run single highlighted Atlanta's five-run eighth inning that enabled Tony Brizzolara to chalk up his first major league victory. Brizzolara allowed seven hits in eight innings but was virtually untouchable after Houston's four-run first.

Expos 3, Pirates 0

Steve Rogers scattered eight hits and Tony Perez and Warren Cromartie knocked in runs to help the Expos beat Pittsburgh and win for the fifth time in six games.

Baseball Roundup

By the Associated Press

Cardinals 3, Phillies 1

The St. Louis Cardinals literally stole their game from Philadelphia. Three stolen bases off Phils pitcher Dick Ruthven were followed by three run-scoring hits. In the third, Ken Oberkfell singled, stole second and came in on Gary Templeton's single. Templeton then stole second and came home on Keith Hernandez's single. The Cardinals made it 3-0 in the fourth when Tony Scott singled, stole second and came home on Ken Reitz's double.

Dodgers 4, Padres 2

Burt Hooton checked San Diego on six hits and Steve Garvey doubled home two runs in the Dodgers' victory. Los Angeles shelled Randy Jones and three relievers for 14 hits, four by Dusty Baker.

The Dodgers wiped out the Padres' 2-1 lead in the fifth when Gary Thomasson and Bill Russell singled, Garvey doubled them both home, then Garvey scored on Baker's single.

Tigers 4, Yankees 3

Jim Kaat nicked Steve Kemp on the arm with a 1-2 pitch with two out in the bottom of the ninth to force home the winning run. The Tigers loaded the bases with one out against Ken Clay on two walks around a single by Mark Wagner before Kaat got Lou Whitaker to ground into a force at the plate.

Brewers 1, Angels 0

Paul Molitor scored the game's only run on Don Aase's bases-loaded wild pitch with two out in the seventh inning and Billy Travers hurled a six-hitter for his second consecutive shutout. Molitor and Sal Bando singled with two out and German Thomas walked. Aase's 1-2 pitch to pinch hitter Charlie Moore bounced in the dirt and was deflected about 10 feet down the third base line by catcher Jim Anderson, who then slipped trying to retrieve the ball.

White Sox 6, A's 1

Chet Lemon's tie-breaking three-run homer climaxed a four-run fifth inning that carried Ken Kravec to his fourth straight victory.

Orioles 5, Red Sox 2

Kelly's first home run of the season ruined a complete-game effort by Bob Stanley and came after Billy Smith's one-out infield hit and an error by third baseman Butch Hobson. Eddie Murray also homered for the Orioles, who won for the 24th time in the last 30 games.

Indians 4, Blue Jays 3

The song says it's a long, long way from May to September, but it was the other way around and even longer between complete games for soreshouldered Wayne Garland — from September (1977) to May (1979).

The 28-year-old right-hander allowed four singles Wednesday night for his first complete game since 1977 as the Cleveland Indians nipped the Toronto Blue Jays 4-3...and two of the Toronto runs were unearned.

Tigers place 'The Bird' on 21-day disabled nest

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers have suffered through so many serious injuries with pitcher Mark "The Bird" Fidrych the past two years that they're treating his latest ailment almost with a sigh of relief.

The Tigers placed Fidrych on the 21-day disabled list Wednesday after the sore-armed pitcher was examined by doctors.

"One good thing about it is that it's not his shoulder," Detroit Manager Les Moss said Wednesday night, following the Tigers' 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees. "It's down in the back of his arm, the triceps, I think it's called."

Moss said Fidrych will remain with the Tigers and accompany the team on its 14-day road trip starting Monday.

Dr. Edwin R. Guise Jr., an orthopedic specialist, said that the tendinitis in Fidrych's right shoulder apparently is healed but that he needs rest and exercise to restore his pitching strength.

"Mark is free of pain in his shoulder and his old injury apparently is healed," Dr. Guise said. "But because of his long period of inactivity, he has a weakness of the muscles in his upper arm and shoulder.

MR. AND MRS. LLOYD ARRIVE IN LONDON — Tennis aces Chris Evert and her new husband of five weeks, John Lloyd arrive Tuesday at London's Heathrow Airport. They had just come in from Rome.

UCLA, Trinity meet in NCAA tennis finals

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — If California doubles combinations can overcome Texas experience, UCLA can win the NCAA team tennis championship, according to Bruin Coach Glenn Bassett.

"As I see it, we have to get 3-3 out of singles to have any kind of chance of winning" over Trinity, Bassett said after his top-seeded squad knocked off defending champion Stanford 6-2 in Thursday's semifinals.

A split in the singles would mean the team that wins two of the three doubles matches would capture the championship.

Second-seeded Trinity, of San Antonio, Texas, beat Southern Methodist 5-4 on Wednesday to win its spot in the finals.

Trinity lost two of its three doubles matches Wednesday, while UCLA won both matches played. The Bruins' No.3 doubles match was canceled.

NBA championship game on television tonight

By the Associated Press

The second game of the championship finals of the National Basketball Association playoffs will be available on CBS tonight. But it will be on past most of the country's bedtime.

The game will be shown on tape delay at 11:30 p.m. in the eastern and western time zones, 10:30 CDT. Milwaukee, an NBA city that didn't air CBS' regular season games earlier this year, will pick up the tape of the Seattle-Washington game in progress at 11. That's because 10:30-11 is reserved for reruns of "The Bob Newhart Show."

Dawson wildcat, Borden discovery

A discovery has been finaled in Borden County, a wildcat has been scheduled in Dawson County, a wildcat re-entry is being made in Borden County and a confirmer has been reported in Borden.

Westland Oil Development Corp., Houston, No. 1 Ralph Miller, Borden County unidentified oil discovery, ⅝-mile northwest of the depleted one-well NSD (Ellenburger) field, ⅞-mile southeast of the depleted Thirty-Thirty (Strawn and Ellenburger) field, 1⅛ miles east-northeast of the depleted opener and lone producer of the Bull Creek (Mississippian oil) field and eight miles north of Gail, was finaled to pump 21 barrels of 38 gravity oil, plus 21 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio of 142-1.

Production was through perforations at 8,480-510 feet, which had been acidized with 2,000 gallons and fractured with 20,000 gallons and 20,000 pounds of sand.

Drilled to 8,722 feet, it is plugged back to 8,580 feet.

Location is 660 feet from the north and west lines of 32-30-6n-J.H. Gibson.

The NSD opener, W. A. Moncrief, et al, No. 1 R.C. Miller, was finaled Sept. 2, 1958 for 311 barrels of oil, plus 166 barrels of water, through a 20-64-inch choke and open hole at 8,740-754 feet.

The Thirty-Thirty field produced from the Strawn at 8,412 feet and the Ellenburger at 8,735 feet.

The Bull Creek opener, Cleary Petroleum Corp., Midland, No. 1 Clayton-Johnson, was finaled Nov. 21, 1977 to pump nine barrels of 36 gravity oil, plus five barrels of water, through perforations at 8,638-676 feet.

North American Royalties, Inc., Midland, will re-enter and deepen to 9,850 feet for tests, probably of the Ellenburger, at the former Clem E. George, Midland, No. 1 Clayton, Borden County 8,320-foot failure, ½-mile east of the depleted opener of the Good (Pennsylvanian oil) field, ½-mile north of a 9,840-foot Ellenburger failure, surrounded by other Ellenburger failures, and nine miles north of Vealmoor.

It was abandoned Aug. 14, 1968.

Location is 1,980 feet from the south and 730 feet from the east lines of 21-32-4n-T&P. Old location was reported as 1,980 feet from the south and 660 feet from the east lines of the section.

The 9,840-foot failure, Cotton Petroleum Corp., No. 1 Clayton "B," abandoned Feb. picked the following tops on ground elevation of 2,530 feet: Clearfork, 4,318 feet; Dean 7,336 feet; and Ellenburger, 9,783 feet.

Bobby Bonner, Midland, will drill the No. 2 Turner as a ¾-mile west-northwest outpost to Spraberry production in the Borden (Spraberry and Carmack) field of Borden County, 10 miles northwest of Gail.

Location is 933 feet from the north and 2,173 feet from the east lines of 46-32-6n-EL & RR. Contract depth is 6,600 feet.

Forest Oil Corp. will drill the No. 1 Cline-Loyd Farms, an 11,100-foot Fusselman wildcat in Dawson County, 1⅝ miles north of the Spraberry, Deep (lower Spraberry) field, three miles west of the current two-well Fusselman area of the Jo-Mill (Fusselman and Spraberry) field, but separated by the depleted Fusselman opener, and three miles southeast of Key.

Location is 1,426 feet from the north and 467 feet from the east lines of 25-34-5n-T & P.

Fusselman production in the Jo-Mill field is at 10,181 feet; the Spraberry, Deep field produces at 6,420 feet.

719 rotary rigs whirl in Texas

A total of 719 rotary rigs were making hole in Texas during the week ending May 21, seven more than for the preceding seven-day period.

A month ago, only 697 rigs were busy in the state while a year ago 858 were active.

Throughout the United States, 1,970 rigs were digging into the earth, compared to 1,954 for the preceding week, 1,948 a month ago and 2,244 a year ago.

Local housing chapter meets

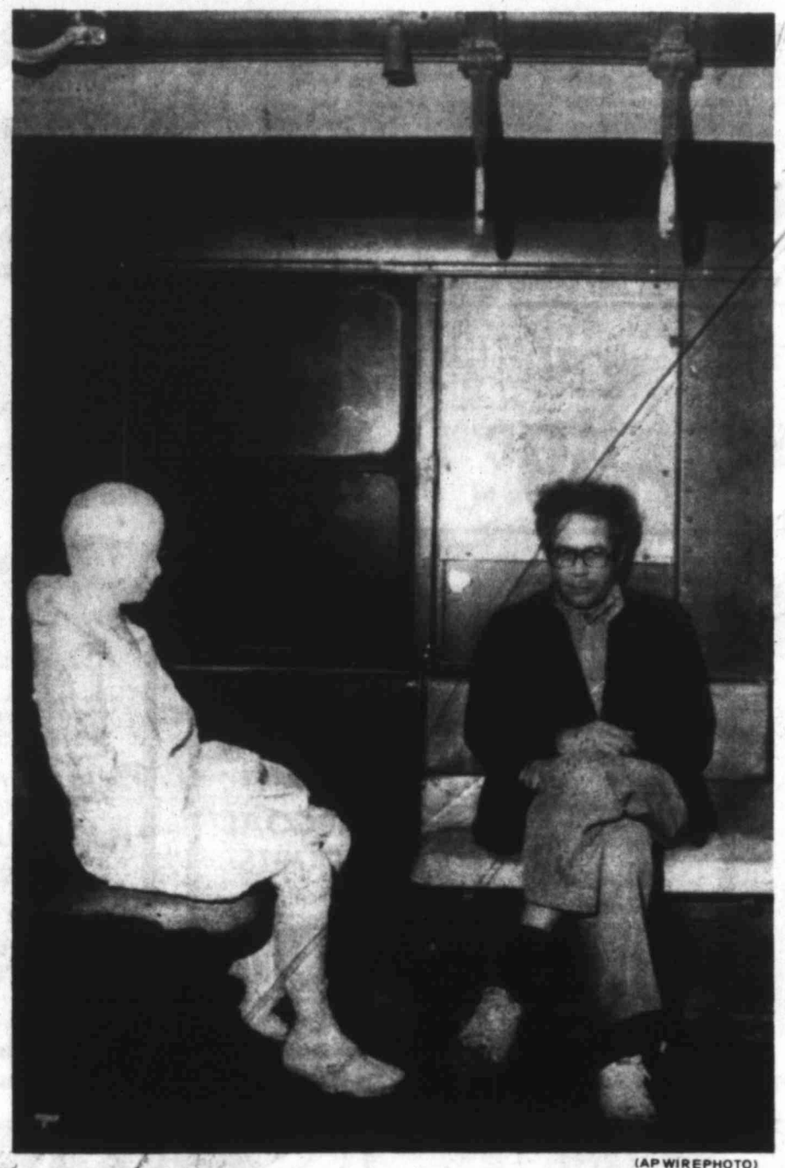

The Big Spring Chapter of Texas Manufactured Housing Association met for its monthly meeting at the Family Country Kitchen at noon, May 17.

Denton Marsalis, president, of D&C Sales presided over the short business meeting during which members discussed continuing the training program for mobile home servicemen currently offered at Howard College. Also discussed was the possibility of expanding the program.

The group decided to hold Open House in the fall. It had originally been planned for May 19 and 20. More detailed plans will be discussed later.

A members' dinner is being planned for sometime in July. Plans for the event, which will include an out-of-town guest speaker, will be announced at a later date.

The next meeting will be at the Family Country Kitchen, June 21. Guest speaker will be Sidney Clark of Clark Bookkeeping and Tax Service.

Engineers to hear inside Washington talk Friday

MIDLAND — Paul Laxalt, United States senator from Nebraska, will address the Permian Basin Section of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers at 8:30 p.m., Friday in the Midland Hilton.

Sen. Laxalt has chosen as his topic "Inside View of Washington, D.C." It will be Ladies Night at the banquet.

Sen. Laxalt was raised in a boarding house in Carson City, which his mother ran. His father herded sheep in the hills above the town.

After graduating from high school, Paul enrolled in Santa Clara University but his education was interrupted for combat duty in the South Pacific with the U.S. Army during WW II.

He finished his education at the University of Denver, returning to Carson City in 1949 with a law degree. He was elected to the Senate over popular Howard Cannon by 84 votes in a recount after Cannon had first been declared the winner.

84 votes in a recount. His showing, nonetheless, was impressive because the Republicans were heavy losers nationwide in a Lyndon Johnson landslide.

In 1966, Laxalt was elected Nevada governor. In 1970, he heeded the call of his family and refused a Presidential request that he offer again for the U.S. Senate. He practiced law for several years in Carson City but when the veteran Democrat, Alan Bible, retired in 1974, Paul returned to politics and won a seat in the upper house.

He is the nation's first Basque-American Senator. He took a stand against the Panama Canal treaties and led a successful fight against the common situs bill. He was on the team that successfully filibustered the defeat of the Labor Reform Bill.

Spring City Theatre officers are elected

Spring City Theatre, the recently established drama group in Big Spring, has elected officers for the coming year and planned a general slate of activities.

Mark Sheedy is president of the group; Kelly Draper, vice president; Chris Boubek, secretary; and Lynn Smith, treasurer.

The next special activity of the group will be their Champagne Ball, planned to become an annual affair. The "Night of Reminiscing" June 2 will feature music from the 1930s and 1940s, with special entertainment in the form of dances performed by the Theatre participants.

Mark Sheedy and Rusty Mitchell will emcee the evening ball, which will last from 7:30 p.m. to midnight. Champagne punch is included in the $10 per couple, $7.50 stag price of the tickets. The money raised will be used for staging of a fall production.

Tickets are available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce office, Arcand Electronics, Faye's Flowers and from any Theatre member.

Secret report available at library

H-bomb declassification 'serious'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nuclear weapons expert says declassification of a secret H-bomb report may have been the "most serious breach of security" in the United States since World War II.

Obtaining the report "was easier than getting something out of the Library of Congress," a second expert told a Senate energy subcommittee Wednesday. "At the Library of Congress, they at least check your briefcase," Dimitri Rotow added.

The Senate hearing was called after Rotow, a researcher and nuclear expert, obtained a copy of the report "UCRL-4725" from the public section of the government's technical library at Los Alamos, N.M. The government acknowledges that the report contained sensitive information on nuclear bombs.

Dr. Theodore B. Taylor of Princeton University, a former nuclear weapons designer, told the committee the report "contains design and performance data related to several past and planned tests of fission and thermo-nuclear explosives."

"I would be astounded if any physicist (who doesn't already know nuclear secrets) who read this didn't say 'Yes, I now understand how these things work,'" Taylor said.

He called declassification of the report "the most serious breach of security I am aware of in this country's post-World War II period."

Rotow said obtaining the report was simple. He looked under "H-bomb" in the library's card catalog. "We found a little card that said 'See: Weapons,'" Rotow testified.

Rotow's search for the information wasn't accidental. He went to the Los Alamos library to test security of weapons information as a consultant for the American Civil Liberties Union.

The ACLU is representing The Progressive magazine, which is fighting in court for the right to publish an article on nuclear weapons design.

Energy Department officials explained that the secret report got through security because it had a misleading title and because the original order called for only excerpts to be declassified.

Duane C. Sewell, assistant energy secretary for defense programs, said declassification of the report was "a very serious breach" of security but added that there was no evidence it was read by foreign interests.

Confrontations become rare

Hush falls on Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — A hush has fallen on Wall Street, where earlier this decade the defenders of private securities markets clashed with government regulators over the modernization of trading.

Confrontations are rare now; the dialogue is calmer, the interfaces less angry. Muscle-flexing is hardly part of the scene. And so even is the level of discussion that many people assume the issues have died.

They haven't. What has happened is the presence of William "Mil" Batten, 69, who became chairman of the New York Stock Exchange in 1976, succeeding James Needham, a tough, sometimes combative chief executive.

Though assertive, as executives are, Batten's style is low key. "I don't think much is accomplished by confrontation," he said the other day. "We can get more done if we avoid it than if we seek it out."

It's Batten's management style. "I'm result-oriented," he said. The way to achieve goals is to have each group understand the other. If screaming would do it, if it would achieve goals, I'd be for it."

He is a reasonable man. "The objectives of the SEC (Securities and Exchange Commission) and people in this business are the same," he said. "We want a market in the public interest. We want integrity."

Although you can find an argument on almost any subject in this notoriously opinionated community, many people feel the Batten style is right for the times.

Under Needham, himself a former SEI commissioner, the hard in-fighting probably was required, since stock exchanges at the time assumed they were fighting for their lives. Few SEC opinions were left unchallenged.

But now the law is written. Under a 1975 act of Congress, the various exchanges are committed to linking their facilities into a central marketplace. Congress didn't specify the form, but it stated the goal.

As head of the biggest exchange of all, Batten's role is to maintain a constructive dialogue with other exchanges, with the SEC and with his own membership, and somehow to balance it all with the public good.

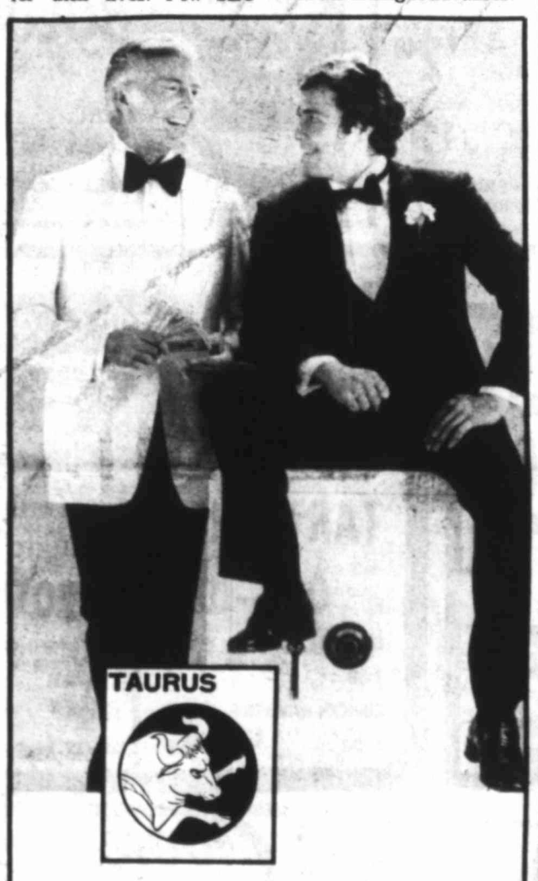

To date, as he sees it, the linkage is evolving smoothly and "in accordance with the act," although he concedes some disagreement with the SEC on the rate of progress — on the timing of advances.

Army Reserve benefits told

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Young men from 17 to 25 may now join an Army Reserve unit for a period of only three years, followed by three years in the Individual Ready Reserve (IRR), according to Lt. Col. Nicolas Vay, Commander of Army recruiting activities in New Mexico and West Texas.

This new enlistment program, already available to women in the Reserves, gives young men the opportunity for three years of up-to-date technical training and extra income while continuing their regular civilian jobs. During the second three-year obligation period, the Standby Reservists are not required to drill or attend annual training, Col. Vay explained.

Vay added that Reservists no longer simply receive their training during weekend drills in a Reserve center and annual training isolated from Active Army counterparts. Today many Reserve units regularly train with their fellow Active Army soldiers on military installations while others train overseas. These programs place Reserve units in a close physical and psychological relationship with the units they would augment during mobilization.

Cinderella District II winners bound for state

Another District II Cinderella Girl Pageant ended in success and excitement Saturday night as many contestants walked with top honors.

Thirty-two girls modeled and entertained a large crowd in the Howard College Auditorium while Jim Baum of KBYG Radio Station served as master of ceremonies.

The pageant was sponsored by the Cactus Chapter of the American Business Women's Association. All proceeds will go into their scholarship fund.

Girls between 3-17 were judged by J. Gordon Lunn, and George Duesler, both of KOSA TV, Odessa; and Lynette Theutt of Post.

Winners are:

Cinderella Miniature Miss — Melynda Grifford, winner; Kimberlee Wing, talent winner and second alternate; and Wendi Gregory, first alternate.

Cinderella Miss — Dawn Underwood, winner; Cynthia Mason, first alternate and talent winner; Mary Helen Weaver, second alternate and Miss Congeniality.

Cinderella Teen — Dawn Estes, winner; Felicia Ford, talent winner and first alternate; and Paula Allen, second alternate.

The audience was also entertained by vocal and disco numbers. Scott Underwood, guest vocalist, sang the Cinderella Theme Song.

All contestants and winners of District II 1978 participated in a production number entitled "Disco Cindy", written especially for Cinderella Pageant. Casey Mauldin, dressed as a clown, joined in on the performance, presenting each contestant a balloon.

Another pageant highlight was the presentation of Cinderella Mom Mrs. Loyd Underwood. She was voted on by all the members of contestants and she received a trophy.

Gifts for the judges and master of ceremonies, were donated by Thornton's Department Store. State decorations were donated by G's Garden Center. Gibson's Discount Center donated concessions.

Winners, talent winners and first and second alternates are now eligible to participate in the State Cinderella Girl Pageant which will be held the week of June 25 at TWU in Denton.

Local pageant director and co-director Nelda Colclazer and Gail Earls, respectively, along with Esther Trantham, have been chosen to serve on the staff of the state pageant.

"We will have at least 25 girls competing for state titles from Big Spring and the surrounding areas," revealed Mrs. Colclazer.

"It is a tradition of the Cinderella Pageant for each participant to bring gifts from her town. Girls then exchange at the pageant, signifying the goodwill of the people from that town."

Mrs. Colclazer concluding by saying "We are truly looking forward to state pageant and hope to bring home some state titles."

Supper enjoyed

The National Association of Retired and Veteran Railway Employees met at the Kentwood Older Adult Center for a pot luck supper, 6:30 p.m., followed by a business meeting at 7:30 p.m. with H.J. Eastham, first vice president, presiding.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Louis Skalisky.

A slate of new committees will be appointed during the June meeting.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. C.F. Whittington, Mrs. G.W. Hill and Mrs. W.C. Cole.

Visitors present were Mrs. Mattie Glenn and Mrs. Cleo Byers.

Next meeting, June 21, at 6:30 p.m., will be a pot luck supper followed by a business meeting 7:30 p.m.

Mrs Autry wins doll

Norma Lee Autry, 1313 Settles, of the Fairview Home Extension Club won the Peggy Nisbett model of Betsy Ross at Cy's Doll Museum drawing May 17.

Danny Valdes, Big Spring Herald photographer, drew her name from the box as he waited for people for London, England to arrive.

Another drawing will be held in December. Everyone who visits the museum may enter.

This John Is Flushed With Rage

DEAR ABBY: Women recently set up a howl because hurricanes were being named after them. Considering the destructive nature of hurricanes, they had a legitimate beef. To satisfy the women, weathermen started calling hurricanes "himacanes" and even named some after men. Last year there was a beaut off the coast of Mexico which was called John.

Well, John happens to be my name, and it has already been badly abused.

John was perfectly respectable name until women started using it to refer to the toilet. Then streetwalkers began calling their customers "johns."

Also, when a woman wants to break off a relationship with her boyfriend, she writes him a "Dear John" letter even though his name might be Harry.

I object.

JOHN IN FLORIDA

DEAR JOHN: Object if you will, but Johns have also been honored over the years. We've had popes named John, kings named John, and four presidents named John. And don't forget the Johnny-come-latelys. Objection overruled!

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm too sentimental, overly sensitive, or just plain petty, but I have to get this off my chest!

For all the years before my daughter was married, on Mother's Day she'd remember me with a lovely card to which she'd add a sweet personal message. Now that she's married, she still sends me Mother's Day cards, but they are always "TO GRANDMA, from Little Julie, Jack and Jim."

Now, Abby, I adore my grandchildren, but I am not their mother! Although my daughter buys, signs, and sends those cards "to Grandma," they are not an adequate substitute for a Mother's Day card from her. It would mean so much if she would scribble a little message, saying, "Mom, I love you. Have a nice day . . ." or something like that.

I hope you publish my letter because my daughter never misses your column. There! I feel better already. Thanks, Abby.

ME IN SUFFOLK, VA.

DEAR ME: Mission accomplished.

Evers invites chapter to Memorial Day ceremonies

The Big Spring Chapter of American Gold Star Mothers met May 17 in the home of Mrs. S.R. Nobles, 405 Washington Blvd.

Mrs. Nobles, president, presided at the business sessions. The meeting was opened according to the Ritual.

Mrs. A.W. Moody reported that coffee and cake was served to the veterans at the Veterans Administration Medical Center on May 16. She was assisted by Mrs. Herbert Smith and Dad A.W. Moody.

Mrs. Nobles reported that the Americanism Program given at the Christensen-Tucker Post May 14 was very impressive. This is an annual program written by Mrs. Mamie Lee Dodds and those taking part in the program are Mrs. Dodds' students from Marcy School. Gold Star Mothers and Dads were Special Guests of the DAV Auxilary.

An invitaiton was read from Garland E. Evers, Director of Medical Center, inviting the chapter to the Memorial Day Ceremonies May 28. This celebration will be held at the front entrance of the Medical Center near the flag pole beginning at 11 a.m.

This year the Vietnam Era Veterans will receive special recognition.

Evers said "Your presence will ensure an apporpriate salute to all who have served so honorably in all wars and especially those who fought so gallantly in the Vietnam Conflict."

President Carter has proclaimed May 28 to June 3 as Vietnam Veterans Week.

Door Prize was won by Mrs. Domingo Abrero.

The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Herbert Smith, 901 Scurry Street on June 21.

Sonya Worthan elected National OEA treasurer

SONYA WORTHAN

Five Howard College students and their sponsors attended the National Leadership Conference sponsored by the Office Education Association, May 10-16, in Cincinnati, Ohio.

The students, Ray Abelar, Cindy Butler, Susan Thomas, Pam Warneke, and Sonya Worthan, qualified for the national level by placing in state competition earlier in the year. The club sponsors, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Deats, accompanied the students.

OEA is the national organization for Vocational Business and Office Education students at the secondary and post-secondary levels. Over 4000 students and advisors attended the conference.

Ms. Worthan, local OEA officer, was elected to the office of Naional OEA Treasurer at the conference. A business major at Howard College, she was nominated at the opening session and received 98 per cent of the delegates' votes. She is the first member of the Howard College chapter of OEA to ever hold a national office.

The five students competed in the events of Accounting Practice, Accounting Concepts, Job Application-Accounting, Data Processing, Job Application-Data Processing, Business Law, Business Math, Proofreading and Spelling, and Citizenship.

Big Spring Art Association announces committee members

The Big Spring Art Association met for a covered dish supper at the Citizens Credit Union Building. Mrs. Walter Witte and Shirley White served as hostesses.

Incoming President Becky Smiley, welcomed two new members, Derek and Patricia Klotz. Guests were Jan Bell, Joe Carter, Bill Duggan, Jean Jenkins, Billie Knoop, Mel Prater, J.H. Talton and Gilbert Webb.

Roberta Ross and Alice Webb, show chairmen, reported that more than 100 artists participated in the Area Show, bringing 289 entries.

Carolyn Walker, of Colorado City, is conducting a three-day workshop at the Hobby Center this week-end.

San Angelo will have its Fiesta and Area Show at the Kendall Gallery on 1st Street in San Angelo from May 30 through June 27. There will be a three-woman judging panel.

Texas Fine Arts Association will have a juried summer exhibit with a "Texas Theme". Deadline for slide entries is June 15.

J.D. Keel will conduct a week's workshop at The Treasure Chest on June 18, emphasizing the Wyndberg method.

During Rodeo Week, local artists will again display work with a Western theme at Big Spring Savings and Loan Association.

President Smiley announced the following committees: Membership - Paul Warren, Londa Henry, Corma Stovall; Goodwill: - Ruth Sweatt, Linda Rupard, Hazel Duggan; Program Chairman - Jean Hensley; Newsletter - Martha Conway, Arlys Scott; Scrapbook - Roberta Ross; Publicity-Public Relations - Alice Webb, Mary Smith, Letha Lewis, Carol Strong, Al Scott; Year Book - Bess Wagner.

Outgoing President Roberta Ross, was given a vote of appreciation for her services and presented with a golden necklace in the shape of a palette.

Mel Prater reminded the artists that reservations for the Arts and Crafts Festival in October must be paid for by June 1.

Meeting was adjourned for the supper with invocation given by Paul Sweatt.

Mrs. Morgan raises nearly $200,000

Mrs. Kent (Jan) Morgan has honored May 18 at the Big Spring Country Club for her extensive work with the Gayla, a fund-raising benefit for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

She is stepping down as chairman of the project after raising nearly $200,000 for the local rehab center.

Mrs. Jerry (Jan) Iden will now take over as Gayla chairman.

Rotary holds second anniversary banquet

Officers of the Greater Big Spring Rotary Club were installed at the club's second Anniversary Banquet May 15 at the Big Spring Country Club. Bill Smythe was installed as the club's third president.

Other officers are Richard Lowstetter, vice-president; Jim Shelton, secretary; Carl Bradley, treasurer; and Mike Faulkner, sergeant-at-arms. Directors installed were Mike Bruner, Stan Garrison, Paul Keele, and Terry Newman.

Ralph McLaughlin, past district 573 governor, presided at the installation service. Faulkner, master of ceremonies, introduced the guest speaker, Parker Humes, manager of Midland's Radio KCRS. Terry Wegman, a charter member of the club, was awarded the club's outstanding service award as "Rotarian of the Year."

Scott McLaughlin was given a past president's pen for serving as the club's charter president. Other awards included two-year attendance pens received by Jim Shelton and Bill Smythe and one year attendance pens going to Richard Lowstetter, Newman, Keele, McLaughlin, and Wegman.

Special guests at the banquet were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McLaughlin; Past District Governor and Mrs. John Tyler, Midland; President-elect of the Big Spring Rotary Club and Mrs. Cliff Chapman; and District Governor Louis Rochester, Odessa.

Rochester pledged a contribution to Rotary Foundation in honor of Bill Smythe's terms as president of the local club. The contribution elevated the club to a 500 per cent membership in the foundation as well as established Smythe as a sustaining member in the foundation. McLaughlin, in conducting the installation service, made an additional contribution in Smythe's honor toward his becoming a Paul Harris Fellow in the Rotary Foundation.

Entertainment for the evening was piano dinner music played by Julie Rainwater Shirey and a vocal medley sung by Dianne Lewis and Denita Kionka. Table decorations were planned by Ms. Lewis and Maria Faulkner.

The Greater Big Spring Rotary Club was chartered in April, 1977 with 20 members. Presently, the club has 38 members.

Officers installed

Mrs. Jack Y. Smith installed 1979-80 officers, using the theme, "My Dream with B'rer Rabbit and Friends," as the Woman's Forum met for luncheon at the La Posada Restaurant May 18.

Officers installed were Mrs. Helen Stewart, president; Mrs. Cecil McDonald, vice-president; Mrs. T.A. McCann, secretary; Mrs. Merrill Creighton, treasurer and Mrs. E.P. Compton, corresponding secretary.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. J.D. Jones and Mrs. E. P. Driver.

Mrs. Helen Stewart, president, presided, introducing Mrs. Clarence Percy, Midland and Mrs. Roger Kionka, as guests.

Cousin is ugly duckling

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Tim from North Tonawanda, N.Y., doesn't want to take his "ugly duckling" cousin to a college sorority dance. Palmer Johnstone, 18, of Newton, N.J., and Karla Zaskawalski, 17, of Fort Smith, Ark., tell him what to do about it. Welcome.

Doctor Wallace: My cousin is an "ugly duckling" who is not popular and a real bore. In fact, I don't think she has ever had a date.

A sorority she belongs to is having a dance and my aunt asked me to take her and said she would pay all expenses and even let me use her car.

I told her I was busy that night, but my aunt talked to my mother, and now I have to take her.

I know I'll be embarrassed and I don't want to go. What can I do to get out of this frame-up? — Tim

Tim: Apparently there is nothing you can do but curb your inflated ego and present a young lady with an enjoyable and memorable evening. — Dr. Wallace.

Hello Tim: I hate to say this, but you are the real "loser," not this girl. You should be embarrassed, not because of the reason you state, but because you are not a gentleman.

I sincerely hope that you will discover soon that "beauty is only skin deep." — Karla.

Hi Tim: I think you are making a lot out of a little.

In good conscience, I cannot tell you how to get out of your "embarrassing" situation, because I think you should take this young lady to the dance and show her a good time.

Your ego is hindering your ability to be considered a man. — Palmer

If you would like to be a guest writer, please write to me in care of this newspaper stating your age and sex.

For Dr. Wallace's teen booklet, "Happiness or Despair," please send $1 and a 28-cent stamped, large, self-addressed envelope to Dr. R. Wallace, in care of this newspaper.

New members welcomed

The Rook Club met May 18 from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Country Kitchen with Mrs. J.P. Allen serving as hostess.

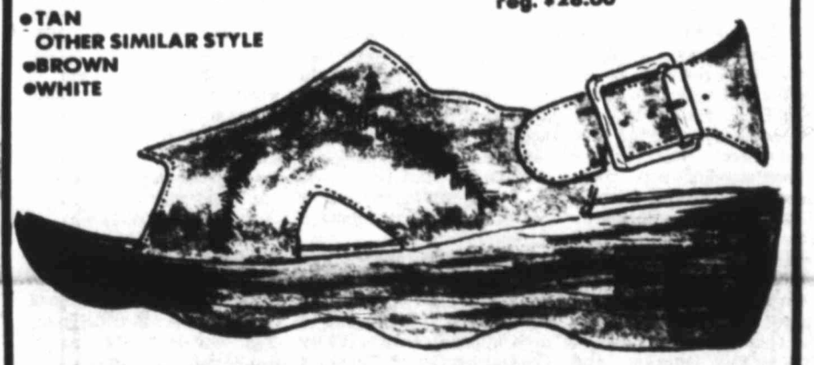

The three high scores were Mrs. S. P. Jordan, Mrs. Hugh Duncan and Irene Smith.

Twila Lomax was welcomed as a new member.

Extras enjoy after-game treat

Chicken doesn't have to be barbecued

By ROBBI CROW
Family News Editor

"Batter Up!"

If you've been hanging out at any of the area softball diamonds, lately then you should be relatively familiar with those two words.

However, you must now take into consideration that you're reading the food page and "batter up" could convey a whole new meaning.

Now, here's the $1,000,000 question.

How do you interrelate softball and food?

Simple. After a victorious game, you have a chicken barbecue.

At least that's what the Herald Extras did a couple of weeks ago following one of very few games ending in their favor.

Over 25 people, including team members, spouses, coaches and kids, gathered at a nearby pavillon for barbecued chicken, potato salad and pinto beans.

All agree several things were learned from this after-game event, the first of which is barbecued chicken must be cooked longer.

Acting as chief chefs and chicken barbecuers, Gary Bishop and Dewayn Crow were volunteered for the job.

I won't mention the fact that most of the evening was spent sending 'raw' chicken back for more cooking.

Both Bishop and Crow, however should be commended for their efforts. The chicken tasted great the second and third time around.

The Herald Extras haven't had the best of luck in their first year of league softball play, but as expressed in the words of Coach Danny Valdes, "We may not have the best team in the league, but we have the most fun.

It's also a proven fact that the Herald Extras are better in the kitchen than they are on the field. Here are a few chicken recipes that were swapped by 'Extra' members at the barbecue. All agree barbecuing isn't the only way to fix chicken.

POLLO ASADO
(Baked Chicken)

1 large chicken
1 lemon
Salt and pepper to taste
2 teeth garlic or (1 teaspoon garlic)
1 teaspoon oregano
½ cup cooking wine
¼ cup olive oil

Squeeze garlic, lemon juice and other seasonings over chicken. Then pour over wine and cover. Put in 250-degree oven and cook 1½ hours.

After cooking, garnish with pimientos and onion slices. Serve with cooked rice or mashed potatoes.

Marie Homeyer's
CHICKEN A L'ORANGE

Season two quartered chickens with salt, pepper, paprika, tarragon and melted butter. Bake in hot oven at 425 degrees, about 30 minutes until cooked through and well browned.

Meanwhile, prepare sauce. Cook 1 tomato, 1 small onion, 2 cloves garlic and two ribs celery all finely chopped in 4 tablespoons butter until mushy. Add ¼ cup tomato paste, juice of 1 lemon and 2 cups beef broth. Cook until thickened. Arrange chicken pieces on a heated platter, strain the sauce over and garnish with thin slivers of parboiled orange zest and chopped parsley. Makes 8 servings.

Carla Walker's
CHICKEN SUPREME

Saute one medium onion and ½ cup butter. In large pan, mix onions and butter with large can evaporated milk, one can cream of chicken soup, one can cream of mushroom soup, ½ cup uncooked rice, ¾ teaspoon crushed dry tarragon leaves, ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper to taste.

Heat slowly five minutes, pour into 10x14 pan. Arrange two cut up frying chickens seasoned with salt in pan. Pour one stick melted margarine over chicken. Cover pan and bake at 300 degrees for two hours. Remove lid or foil and bake ½ hour. Can save boney parts afor chicken and dumplings.

Carla Walker's mom's
CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

Pressure cook or boil several pieces of chicken in slightly salted water until tender. Roll out 10 canned biscuits and cut into strips 1-inch wide strips and drop in singly to prevent from sticking together. Wait until dumplings are almost done, and add large can evaporated milk. If chicken is not lean, add a pat of butter. Pepper to taste and heat until hot through.

For thicker soup, add a thin four-and-water paste to thicken.

Theronne Baker's
SWISS CHICKEN CASSEROLE

4 cups diced chicken (cooked)
2 cups diced celery
2 cup croutons
1 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
½ cup milk
¼ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
dash of pepper
1 8-ounce package of Swiss cheese cut in thin stripes
slivered almonds

Combine all ingredients except almonds. Spoon into a greased 2-quart casserole; sprinkle with almonds. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30-40 minutes.

This casserole can be made the day before serving. Omit baking, refrigerate overnight; then bake, covered at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Uncover and continue baking 10 minutes.

Robbi Crow's
CHICKEN AND SPAGHETTI

1-3rd cup onions (diced)
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 10½-ounce cans cream of chicken soup
1 medium-sized chicken (or substitute 2 small cans boned chicken)
¼ cup olives
1 jar pimientos
Velveeta cheese
1 12-ounce package spaghetti

Melt butter in saucepan and add onion. Simmer 5 minutes. Add soup and 1 cup water. Bring to boil and simmer for 15 minutes. Add chicken, olives and pimientos. Simmer 5 more minutes.

Pour sauce over cooked spaghetti in casserole. Cover with cheese and heat in 350-degree oven until cheese is melted.

CHICKEN CONFETTI

4 to 5 pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup salad oil
½ cup chopped onion
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cans (16 ounces each) tomatoes
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon basil
¼ teaspoon pepper
7 or 8 ounces spaghetti, cooked and drained
Grated Parmesan cheese

Wash chicken pieces and pat dry. Season with 1 teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. In large skillet or Dutch oven, brown chicken in oil; remove chicken. Pour off all but 3 tablespoons fat. Add onion and garlic; cook and stir until onion is tender. Stir in chicken and remaining ingredients except spaghetti and cheese.

Cover tightly; cook chicken slowly 1 to 1½ hours or until tender, stirring occasionally and adding water if necessary. Skim off excess fat. Serve on spaghetti; sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. 4 to 6 servings.

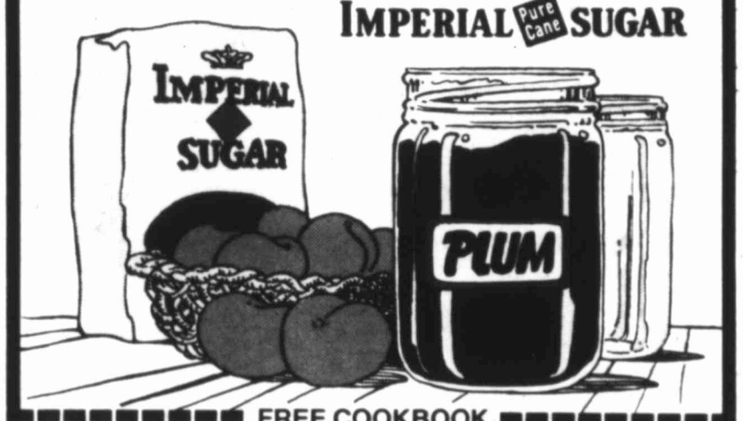

PLUM JAM CLIP AND SAVE

PLUM GOOD JAM

2 quarts chopped, tart plums (approx. 4 lbs.)
1½ cups water
¼ cup lemon juice
6 cups Imperial Granulated Sugar

Combine all ingredients in a kettle. Bring to boil slowly, stirring occasionally until Imperial Granulated Sugar dissolves. Cook rapidly almost to jellying point, about 20 minutes. To prevent sticking, stir frequently as mixture thickens. Pour mixture, boiling hot, into hot jars, leaving ¼-inch head space. Adjust caps. Process 15 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield: about 4 pints.

NOVEL BEEF-POTATO COMBO

The beef and potato man presents a menu planning problem to the wife who wants to serve exciting varied meals. The answer demands ingenuity.

Round steak roulades stuffed with potatoes and dry onion soup mix are one tasty and novel beef-potato partnership that solves the problem, according to meat cookery authority Reba Staggs, National Live Stock and Meat Board. The flavorpacked rolls brim with high-quality protein, iron and vitamins for your man!

BEEF-POTATO ROULADES

1½ to 2 pounds beef round steak, cut ½ inch thick
3 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 envelope (1⅜ oz.) dry onion soup mix
1½ cups grated raw potato (about 2 medium-sized)
3 tablespoons lard or drippings
1 cup water
Flour for gravy

Combine flour, salt, pepper and paprika. Pound seasoned flour into meat. Cut meat into 5 to 6 serving-sized pieces. Combine dry onion soup mix and raw potato. Place approximately 2 tablespoons of potato-onion mixture on each piece of meat.

Roll as a jelly roll and fasten with small wooden picks. Brown meat in lard or drippings. Pour off drippings. Add water. Cover tightly and cook slowly 1½ to 2 hours or until meat is tender. Remove meat to heated platter. Thicken cooking liquid with flour for gravy, if desired. 5 to 6 servings.

Entertain under the stars

Entertaining under the stars can be fun with fancy feasting and easy fixings, too. Plan to cook almost the entire meal in the covered grill to make good use of the fuel and to save trips into the kitchen.

Begin with colorful, flavorful corned beef for oven roasting. It will cook fork tender in an hour and a half in the covered grill. If desired, brush the roast with a barbecue sauce during the last half hour. Use your own favorite sauce or a bottled one from the supermarket. Remember to allow about a 15 minute resting period before slicing the meat into thin slices, cutting across the grain.

The balance of the menu might be fluffy baked potatoes, herb-buttered squash and baked onions. Crusty bread, sliced, pre-buttered and wrapped in foil can be heated on the grill while the roast rests. A tossed salad and whipped cream frosted angel-food cake with strawberries will complete the outdoor feast that is easy to fix.

CORNED BEEF FOR OVEN ROASTING COOKED ON A COVERED CHARCOAL GRILL

Follow manufacturer's directions for preparing grill for indirect heat. Place charcoal on each side of a drip pan. Put Swift Premium Corned Beef for Oven Roasting fat side up on grill over the drip pan. Cover grill. Add more charcoal when necessary to maintain heat. After 1 hour, baste corned beef with barbecue sauce. Cover and continue cooking for 30 minutes. Test for doneness (if a sharptined meat fork can be inserted and removed easily, the meat is done). Let roast stand for 15 minutes before slicing across the grain.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MAY 25, 1979

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to wind up whatever projects that have not been completed and to study new means by which you will be able to put your ideas and viewpoints across to others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Keep busy at unfinished tasks and clear the slate for a new week. Evening is fine for visiting congenials and having a good time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to have added income in the future and take initial steps now. Make sure to keep your side of an agreement.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Tap your subconscious mind for ideas that can help you get ahead. Come to a better understanding with loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A different approach at private matters can see them vastly improved now. Study every phase of them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are able to gain a personal aim with relative ease at this time. Handle correspondence with clarity of purpose.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are capable of handling an annoying civic affair very well. Take no risks with your reputation at this time.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Some far-away interests are still on your mind, so attend to them quickly and well. Your intuitive faculties are working accurately now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use a sensible way of taking care of your responsibilities. Try to be helpful to those who are less fortunate than yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A long talk with associates can help clear up misunderstandings and make operations better in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't jeopardize your reputation by some unwise act today. Take the right health treatments you need. Act more sensibly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend to civic affairs in a most intelligent way and improve your position in the community. Don't lose your temper with anyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use tact today since you could run into delays. Meditate and you establish more harmony. Don't be too trustful of others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young persons who has many talents and will likely jump from one thing to another without finishing anything, so teach to finish whatever has been started and success will follow.

Models not good enough for Pins

A love in the life of an attorney

NEW YORK (AP) — Among the great loves in the life of George A. Pins are the Pennsylvania, the Shenandoah and the Virginia Beach.

Pins, a lawyer, likes trains so much he has his own cars. And they're not models. His cars, their scenic names conjuring the glory days of railroading, are the real thing.

"I love them because there's something deep in me that likes trains and can't be explained in logical or rational terms," says Pins. "It's like asking me, 'Why did you marry your wife?' I don't know."

He does know, he says, that he likes seeing the country from the windows of his private rolling stock, and he likes owning a small part of the luxurious heyday of rail travel. The attraction is strong enough for him to spend many hours and thousands of dollars maintaining and operating his minirailroad.

Pins owns a classic private car — the elegant, mahogany-paneled Pennsylvania — which was built in 1928 to carry top executives of the Pennsylvania Railroad. It has a parlor, four bedrooms, two showers, a dining room that seats eight, a pantry, a kitchen and quarters for a cook and a steward.

Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy rode in it, Pins says, and it carried the coffin of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy from New York to Washington.

To keep his hobby going, Pins offers the cars for charter as business promotions and for tour groups. He makes what he calls an "operating profit." The revenues of the charter are more than expenses. But add in the costs of maintenance, he says, and he winds up $20,000 to $30,000 a year in the red.

It takes some money to keep a hobby like this going. Nonetheless, Pins says he's "only one poor guy."

Pins started with the Pennsylvania. He says he picked it up in 1971, when the Penn Central was in the throes of bankruptcy and "disposing of some of its more exotic possessions."

It was, he says, dirty and drab. Yet ...

"The light bulb went off inside my head and I was just going to have that car and that's all there was to it," he says.

Have it he did — for about $50,000, plus repairs. Even if railroad cars are no longer playthings of the rich, they're not cheap. Pins says he paid less for the other two, but they wound up costing almost the same because they needed more repairs.

He does as much of his own repair work as he can. It's cheaper. It's also hard to find someone who can repair the old, obsolete equipment.

Assuming the equipment is running, there's the problem of getting on the track. Generally, that means hitching onto the back of an Amtrak train, which, he says, takes some diplomacy.

'Invisible Hand' and profits

Congressman
Charles W. Stenholm
Congressional Comment

WASHINGTON, D.C. — In "Wealth of Nations," Adam Smith argued that profits are the legitimate return for risk and effort and that the "Invisible Hand" of market forces would convert private greed into public benefits.

The economic theories of Adam Smith are as applicable to the marketplace of today as they were 200 years ago. The free enterprise system works because it allows a person to reap the benefits of his labor. Profits are the invisible hand that motivates individuals to make a product or perform a service that will benefit the community as a whole. The better an entrepreneur is able to perform this service, the bigger the reward (profits) he receives.

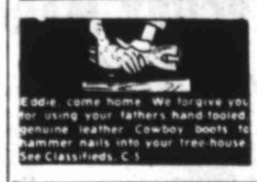

Profits are called by many names these days — obscene, exorbitant, and excessive. Granted, profits can be improper if they are exploitative or the result of price-fixing schemes or monopolies. But we must remember that in a capitalist economy the promise of monetary reward is a prime motivator. Without hope of a reasonable rate of return, no one would start a business, introduce a new product or service, or even continue producing an old one. And without the reality of profits, no business in the long run can keep itself alive — except by government subsidies. Also we must remember that even if profits are excessive in the short run, the market will adjust the force prices downward. Pocket calculators are a good example. Today a good calculator can be bought for as little as $10 from a variety of companies. Just a few years ago only a limited number of firms made calculators at a price many times that of the present rate. The same will happen in our energy industry if only permitted. The profit incentive will attract new firms into the market and production of additional hydrocarbons and alternative sources of fuel will become more feasible. In the long run excess profits will disappear as competition increases and the public will benefit.

The basic principles of free market economics are understood by people everywhere whether they admit it or not. The Russian people understand free market economics. The state takes 90 percent of the production of collective farms in the Soviet Union, but lets workers keep what they earn by farming their backyards. Soviet state agriculture is perpetually in poor condition and a third of farm output is backyard production. The Soviet leaders have tried everything but increasing the size of backyards.

The hostility towards profits largely rests on the myth that dividends flow mainly to the pockets of wealthy individuals. In terms of dollar value, nearly half of the corporate shares these days are owned by institutions such as pension funds, college endowments, and even churches. The assurance of a retirement income and the availability of a college scholarship, all depend heavily upon the profitability of U.S. corporations. So the next time you hear that somebody's profits are up, remember the invisible hand might be working for you, and rest assured that the competition is looking for a way to cash in if government will only let them.
