

Mrs. Cummings, County Pioneer, Dies Friday

Mrs. J. L. Cummings, a pioneer who reached Collingsworth by covered wagon at Christmas 60 years ago, died in Morgan Nursing Home at 3:45 p.m. Friday, January 4. She was 92 years of age and her health was failing for several months.

Mrs. Cummings was born Cecilia Henrietta Dixon, daughter of Jim and Susanna Dixon, at Mt. Pleasant on August 21, 1870.

At the age of 12, she went with her parents to Ellis county. She and Mr. Cummings were married there August 27, 1885.

In 1890, they pioneered at Dundee in Ellis county, and again they chose to become pioneers in Collingsworth, making the 25-day trip in mid-winter. Their first night here, she often recalled, was spent in a blacksmith shop for shelter from the cold. A few days later she spent her first Christmas in a tent on their farm in the Salt Fork community.

As she recalled that part of the county at the turn of the century, Mrs. Cummings has said there was no church and no school, and only one 1-room house in the vicinity. Lake Creek, across Salt Fork, was the community gathering point. When they came to Wellington they drove cross-country — there was no road.

The Salt Fork community settled rapidly. She and her husband helped to organize the first Sunday school, and he hauled lumber for the first school. She was a charter member of Salt Fork Methodist Church in 1910. She boarded the first teacher in her home.

Mr. Cummings died February 19, 1935. Funeral services for Mrs. Cummings were conducted at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Trinity Methodist Church, with the Rev. J. W. Read, pastor, and the Rev. C. D. Dameron, retired pastor, officiating. Burial was in the Quail cemetery, under the direction of Kelo Funeral Home.

Pall bearers were grandsons. One hundred and fifty direct descendants survive Mrs. Cummings: two daughters, Mrs. D. W. Harris of Wellington and Mrs. B. B. Morris of Quail; a sister and two brothers, Mrs. Charles Bynum, W. O. Hollingsworth and C. O. Hollingsworth, all of Brownwood.

There are 13 grandchildren, 40 great grandchildren, and 95 great great grandchildren.

Arrest Clears Four Cases

The arrest of a Wellington juvenile Saturday night, Jan. 5, cleared not only the theft of 11 cartons of cigarettes and three cartons of chewing tobacco he had in his car, but also the entry of two delivery trucks and vandalism at Wellington high school in September, Sheriff John Rainey reported.

The boy implicated another Wellington youth in the school vandalism, and two Dodson boys in the truck entries, Rainey continued. All are 15 and 16 years old.

The youth's arrest came after the sheriff became suspicious as he drove by the youngster's parked car and stopped to question him.

Vandalism at the school included broken windows and electrical wiring pulled loose from school buses and distributors and air cleaners removed, Sheriff Rainey said.

Pies and cakes were taken from the bread delivery truck operated by Alton Wilkins and ice cream from the delivery truck belonging to Steve Owens, according to the sheriff.

The boy appeared before Judge C. C. Bishop Monday and was sentenced to the state training school. The sentence was probated and the boy released to the custody of his parents.

About 18 years ago he and Mrs. Young returned to Wellington. After he retired from farming, he became a plumber and worked at this until his health failed.

Thomas Earl Young was born December 25, 1889, at Myrtle, Mo., and came here 54 years ago from Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Group Protests New Cottonseed Delinting Plant

A group of 20 Wellington citizens, most of them living in the southeast part of town, met with the City Council Monday night, January 7, concerning the construction of a cottonseed delinting plant in the southeast corner of town.

Construction of the plant was started last week on property beginning approximately 800 feet south of Lucky Corner.

Half the plant property lies inside the city limits and half outside, according to City Manager Bura Handley.

The group attending the council meeting, with Charles Carson as leading spokesman, expressed concern from the standpoint of a health hazard and a nuisance.

Robert Davis, of Altus, owner of the plant, was in Wellington Tuesday morning, however, and assured city officials that any nuisance that might be created would be taken care of.

He also made an attempt to contact some of those who were at the meeting.

City officials also said that there is no city zoning ordinance covering the present situation.

Begin Work on Diversion

Work has started on a diversion that will take runoff water from 15th Street down the Fort Worth and Denver right of way, City Manager Bura Handley said this week.

The water at present is carried in a deep ditch down the north side of 15th Street, from the railroad to Lucky Corner.

Under the new diversion, the water will be returned to the Highway 83 bar ditch after traveling down the FW&D right of way to the north edge of the Sandy Parsons land, said Handley.

This will enable the city to continue its improvement of 15th Street which will include covering over the ditch and putting in curb and gutter.

A heavier than usual vote was cast in the election of three directors of the Collingsworth County Water Control and Improvement District on Tuesday, Jan. 8.

Cortez Barnett of Dozier, candidate for the place vacated by John Coleman, received 262 votes, while Louis Patterson of Dodson received 260 and J. T. Slay of Wellington 261.

The vote in the two precincts was:

|           | Wellington | Norwood |
|-----------|------------|---------|
| Barnett   | 191        | 71      |
| Patterson | 191        | 69      |
| Slay      | 192        | 69      |

One write-in vote was cast for each of the following: H. L. Duncan, P. E. Starr, Charles Allen, Allen Graves, and John Coleman.

This year's vote was more than three times the number cast a year ago.

A heavy vote was sought as a means of expressing support for the water board and its work.

Each of the three will serve a two-year term.

Two Jailed on Forgery Complaint Here

Two men, who told Sheriff John Rainey they lived near Dallas, were arrested at a road block west of Hollis Monday, Dec. 31, on complaints of forgery.

The two gave their names as James Travis English, 22, and Willie Clyde Sears, 27. The men bought a sweater at Town and Country and gave a check for $28.35, to which the name of John Jackson was forged, and one for $26.75 with the name of Bill Jones forged, at Hatch Dry Goods, after buying a pair of levis, Rainey said.

Both garments were hidden above the springs under their old model car and the sweater was lost before they were arrested by Harmon County Sheriff Pete Cunningham, Rainey continued.

Sears admitted giving the checks and appeared at an examining trial before Judge Raymond Horton, English, who denied taking part in the crime, was heard before Judge Claude McKinney Monday, Jan. 7.

Bond was set at $2,000 and they are being held in Wellington City Jail. The men are also wanted on similar charges at Memphis and Clarendon.

English is due to be run on a polygraph test at Lubbock Friday, according to Rainey.

Wellington Ends One of Best Business Years

"The best business ever in 1962!" "Every bit as good as 1961." This is the way Wellington merchants feel about business conditions in the year that has just closed out.

While conditions varied a little with the different types of business, and from store to store, none of Wellington's merchants feel they have fallen below the 1961 business level.

More than this, they look for 1963 to be as good or better, and they think business during the first few months will be definitely better in most lines.

Tied closely to this is the revolution in cotton harvesting the county has seen in the last three years. Some merchants feel this has rounded out the business activity, others feel it has helped, and others have been hurt.

Wellington merchants were optimistic about the Christmas business, and all of them felt this was as good or a little better than in 1961.

One veteran merchant who has observed the business community for more than 40 years noted the increase in "buying at home" during Christmas.

"I think our merchants ought to appreciate this," he added. Several pointed out that the fall business was slow getting started.

One dry goods merchant said that because of the warm fall, Mexican laborers coming here did not buy clothing as they usually did, but the overall business of the year made up for it.

"The early months of 1963 should be better. Lots of people are just now getting their cotton out and they have more money to spend. I think it will be good in 1963," he added. Grocery stores have been hurt by the mechanization of cotton harvesting. Heavy food purchases during the fall months formerly were the rule.

"Fall was a disappointment, but overall it was good," one commented.

"I just hope 1963 is as good as 1962," he added. Merchants in other lines had this to say:

"Machine harvesting has left more money in the county. We feel it helped our business."

It may have cost a little more to operate a business in 1962 than in 1961, but on the whole, most Wellington business men feel there was more money in the county.

New Chapter in Shameful Story Of Oxford Occupation Is Written

The latest chapter in the shameful story of the Kennedy family's military occupation of Mississippi was written Dec. 21 when the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers opened bids in Mobile, Ala., for the construction of barracks to house troops on duty in Oxford.

The Army has estimated the cost of the barracks for 300 soldiers to guard Negro James Meredith in his forced attendance at the University of Mississippi will be $750,000. As of Oct. 31, more than $4,250,000 had been spent by Jack and Bobby Kennedy in a display of armed might to demonstrate their determination to force whites and Negroes to mix with each other.

The Jackson Daily News has brought out that the new barracks will be too late to keep the troops from spending a bleak Christmas Day in cold tents. As a gesture of goodwill to show that Mississippians do not hold the troops responsible for the degrading duties they must perform under the Kennedy's direction, the Daily News has suggested that citizens might wish to send Christmas cards to the soldiers.

Observing that the troops at Oxford "are lonely people carrying out one of the most distasteful assignments American soldiers have ever been called upon to perform," the Daily News summarizes their plight as follows:

"Under strict orders from Washington, the troops are not permitted to talk to anybody; they can't dare be caught dating a coed. Fraternization, permitted in South Korea, Germany, France, Italy and presumably in the Congo, is not allowed at Oxford. Except for a quick coffee stop at cafes in the area, these troops are completely ostracized from the community — totally segregated from society — if you pardon the expression."

Obviously, the Kennedys have no hope of ever forcing the people of Mississippi to accept Negroes in their schools unless armed might is used. As a result, they are planning for a permanent occupation of what once was the sovereign state of Mississippi.

How long will the people of America stand for this military dictatorship? — The Shreveport (La.) Journal.

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where the Bay of Pigs survivors who just got back from Cuba do not show any public grudge because the U.S. promised them some help and then chickened out.

My short-odds neighbor says this is not due to Cubans being freer forgivers but to their knowing all the time it was a gamble to bet on a Washington promise.

Like most U.S. voters know it's a long shot, and the cards are stacked against them, when they take the come-on of politicians promising economy in government.

I see where science is about to discover how to doctor human genes so as to produce whatever type of citizen the social planners think is needed.

My natural born neighbor says this might not bring about much species improvement, but ought to be a splendid way to reduce political friction.

Says harmony and conformity of viewpoint could be promoted no end by not issuing people any permits to have Republican babies.

I see where an academized citizen by the name of David Bell has been made Chief High Money Pusher in our Foreign Aid department.

And likely he is about right for the job, as he has now had two years' experience as head keeper of the national budget to condition him, so he will not get buck fever looking at big red figures.

My agrarian neighbor says time will tell about Mr. Bell, though, as no foreign aider is any good unless he hates money and feels a compulsion to purge the U.S. of the stuff.

Get Inspection Stickers Early

AUSTIN.—Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, today urged Texas automobile owners to "do their shopping early" this year to reduce the last minute rush for inspection stickers.

All vehicles coming under the provisions of the Texas Vehicle Inspection Act must secure the 1963 inspection sticker by April 15, 1963. After that date, vehicles not displaying the new inspection sticker will be operating in violation of the law, and the operators of those vehicles will be subject to arrest, Garrison said.

He reported that approximately one half of the vehicles in the state have been inspected. Unless the number of inspections is increased appreciably soon, he added, long waiting lines will be forming at inspection stations as the April 15 deadline approaches.

"There are approximately 5,000 authorized inspection stations in the state and they are ready and capable of handling the inspection of all vehicles without delay if the owners of uninspected vehicles do not wait until the last few days before the deadline," Garrison said.

Oil Needs Higher for January

Longer Terms Seen for All Schools

STILLWATER, Okla. — A longer school term definitely is in store to prepare an individual to live effectively in the space age and, concerning the two basic requirements of teaching, what to teach is now more important than how to teach.

These are beliefs of Dr. Ware Marsden, education department head at Oklahoma State University, in connection with the 42nd annual observation of American Education Week several weeks ago, when schools and colleges reported on their aims, methods, accomplishments, and needs.

Reasons for the expected longer school term are the "explosion" of knowledge; there's more to be learned now, and the increased tempo of living due to automation and other advances in technology.

Length of the current school term is 180 days, Dr. Marsden believes it will be increased first to 190 days, then to 200. He cites lack of funds as the main reason the present 180-day term is not longer. Some areas in the nation, he says, already have 9½ months of school.

In the last 20 years, emphasis was placed on how to teach,

Marsden says. Presently, what to teach is more important, and this, he explains, is an outgrowth of scientific achievements such as splitting of the atom and advent of the space age.

There is a nation-wide swing in the direction of requiring more solid, or basic, courses for high school graduation. Also, there is strong encouragement toward inclusion of languages as part of the high school program for college-bound students.

"The public's attention should be called to this point: If we develop the mathematics and science programs in schools, a parallel development must come in communications, and human behavioral programs," Marsden says.

"We are moving toward a re-evaluation of the overall school program to the extent of giving more consideration to the basic courses, and also to health and personality development. The attempt is being made to hold these latter programs within a reasonable balance."

Students at OSU preparing to teach in elementary schools are being trained to give individualized instruction, Marsden reports.

Students preparing to teach in high schools learn the program instruction, and going beyond the program materials to the goal of development of ideas through individual instruction, group discussion and understanding and working with others.

The O-State educator emphasizes students should be prepared insofar as possible to teach not only in 1962 but also as far ahead as the year 2000. A great need, too, is well done and well controlled research to solve some of the problems facing educators.

A "thank you" is due the public for its stand to improve teacher salaries, Marsden says. From the salary standpoint the teacher is in better position, relatively speaking, than that of 25 years ago, and has fared better than average in recent years.

"To further increase teaching prestige, we need to make improvement in the relative position of teachers in the salary scale. And a 'must' in American education is the attracting of more high quality persons to the teaching profession."

Bobby Keller of Clarendon visited here recently with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Keller.

Growth in Texas student population now requires about 3,500 new teachers each year in public schools.

USDA Studies Farm Accidents

COLLEGE STATION.—Farm accident fatalities are not declining in proportion to the decline in farm population, according to a report received by the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

One reason cited for the continuing high death rate in farm accidents is the increasing average age of people on farms. Another is that farms are somewhat more isolated, with little supervision work and not much opportunity for an injured person to obtain first aid immediately. Also, traffic on rural highways is less controlled than on urban streets.

Accidents resulting in non-fatal injuries occur to about a third of the farm population annually, the report said. About 19% of farm people are injured seriously enough in these accidents to lose time from their work, and about 3% are permanently disabled each year.

Traffic accidents account for many of the serious injuries of farm people away from the farm. Accidents on the farm are often associated with farm machinery and falls are the most common cause of accidents in farm homes.

The report stated that hospitalization and medical treatment are believed to account for less than a fourth of the total cost of farm accidents. As yet, little is known about the economic loss of wages or production, which probably accounts for a considerable part of the total costs.

The information developed by USDA's Economic Research Service, points out the Safety Council, is aimed at stimulating more effective accident-prevention programs for farm people. The Council encourages farm people to make farm and home safety a part of community planning and program building.

"We can no longer take safety for granted because the ever increasing use of machinery, electricity, chemicals and other labor saving devices and materials make training in safety a must for farm people," emphasizes the Council. "The safety record of agriculture can stand a lot of improving and it is up to those in the industry to do something about it," concludes the Council.

Farmers Spend $42 Billion for Goods, Services in 1962

U.S. farmers last year spent $42 billion to buy goods and services from the rest of the population, and from other farmers.

Though farm people make up only 8% of the nation's population now, they bought 13% of the petroleum produced in the U.S.; 8% of the rubber; twice as much steel as the railroad industry—about 5 million tons; more electricity than was used by the cities of Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Chicago, Boston, Detroit and Houston combined; more tractors and trucks than any other industry; 50 million tons of chemicals and much, much more.

Texas traffic fatalities were 3% below 1961 for the first half of the year; nationwide traffic deaths rose 7% over last year, an all-time high.

About 5,500 persons visit the White House daily.

Six Million City Job Holders Depend on Farming

Millions of "city" jobs depend on farming. Some six million people are involved in providing the goods and services that farmers buy.

Another 10 million work at transporting, processing, storing and selling farm products.

It is estimated that 4 out of 10 jobs in private employment are related to agriculture.

Across the nation it would be hard to find a more important customer than American agriculture.

NO WARNING

New Cotton Padding Holds Its Shape

COLLEGE STATION.— The old type cotton batting that flattened out and became lumpy under use may again become popular due to a new chemical treating process.

US Department of Agriculture scientists report that the process, developed by the USDA's agricultural research service, makes padding hold its shape and remain resilient after long use.

The treatment, in which a latex compound is added to the chemical solution to prevent lumping and unevenness, is not yet ready for commercial use. However, several cotton batting companies are making plans for extensive testing and evaluation of the material.

The problem of applying the chemical to the batting, which contains 60% cotton linters and 40% textile waste, was a major one. Researchers learned that they could spray it onto a fine web of fibers and then put the webs together in layers to form padding that fits smoothly and gives a neater appearance on furniture and automobile dashboards.

The scientists anticipate a renewed use of cotton in fine upholstered furniture, mattresses, and seating material for automobiles and airplanes due to the new process. They say that in addition to holding its shape well the new batting is less expensive than synthetic fibers and foam rubber.

Julius Caesar apparently had it coming to him. He was the first ruler to enforce "no parking" on the main stem of his home town, Roma.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

The prospects of a commercial feed lot near Wellington gives me a certain sense of optimism about the future development of our economy on a sound and lasting basis. Just as I pointed out last week it is sound business when a new enterprise is built upon the solid foundation of an established industry. In all of the chamber of commerce meetings I have never been enthusiastic over some of these impractical ideas such as paying a bonus or subsidy to get a buttonhole or some other type of garment making industry in our town. Far too often this is just a bunch of promoters who are seeking cheap labor or tax-free benefits. Our labor of this type departed ten or fifteen years ago and promoters of this type will depart when their bonus period and tax-free period is ended.

We have industries in Wellington. Gins, cotton compress, trucking, locker plants, feed mills, seed delinting plants, not to mention spraying and fertilizing services. All of these are based on products we produce here and which the exploding population of our nation will continue to need. All of these and more are local, operated by local capital and there could be more.

Right at this moment I am thinking of an alfalfa dehydrating plant. We have the water and the natural gas that are essential for such a plant. All we need is the alfalfa and once upon a time we raised it in abundant quantity. Aphids and other insects caused it to be unprofitable, but since that time aphid resistant varieties of alfalfa have been developed and we have a much greater knowledge of the control of insects by insecticides. We raised alfalfa profitably at one time and we can do it again.

Plenty of alfalfa would be a natural complement to the commercial feed lots that are being discussed. Tests have shown that weaner calves fed 3/4 pound of cottonseed meal and 2/3 pound of alfalfa meal made faster and cheaper gains than the standard 1 pound of cottonseed meal normally used in the experiment stations tests.

Crop and Stock reports that 18 years ago operators were able to market a little over 200,000 tons of dehydrated alfalfa. Last year feed manufacturers purchased more than six times this amount. There is a big future in alfalfa and we can grow it here and it should be remembered that alfalfa like grass builds soil instead of wearing it out.

Here in the Wellington area our cotton production for 1962 will be so close to 1961 that the difference will be scarcely noticeable and our wheat crop was fairly good, but over the state as a whole the picture was different. Weather caused production to hit the lowest point since 1957 according to the USDA. Wheat was down 49 per cent below 1961, citrus down 6 per cent, sorghum down 12 per cent, and cotton down 106,000 bales. Incidentally 1961 was the second largest crop year the state ever had.

We have surpluses in most crop and food supplies now, but you can't help wondering what will happen when our population reaches 200 million and that is what it is expected to do sometime between 1980 and 1990. If we keep using up farming land for super highways, urban development, giant factories, mammoth airfields, vast lakes, sprawling military establishments and so on, we may find it difficult to feed our own people in the near future. In the past twenty years millions and millions of fertile acres have been taken out of production forever. In the near future our problem won't be stored surpluses, but it will be growing enough foodstuff to feed our own people.

Bernice Welch says he hates for Wednesday afternoon to come around, because people start coming around 1 o'clock to ask if The Leader is out yet and keep it up until 4:30 when the papers generally arrive unless they are late due to a breakdown or something. We appreciate this interest in reading the paper, but it is really a waste of time to go to the newsstand before 4 in the afternoon, and 4:30 is better.

With more than a third of a million dollars in new construction here in 1962, the building trades enjoyed one of their best years.

One merchant saw a good year but thought Congress' actions would have some bearing, as would the tax situation. A stronger stock market was an optimistic indication to him.

Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Watts returned their daughter, Glenda, to Austin, where she attends school, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Wells and the Rev. and Mrs. Ben Johnson of Lubbock spent Thursday of last week with Mr. Wells' sister, Mrs. J. G. Gardner.

rest. Here is a clipping from the column of Mrs. Anton Koch:

"The man called before break of day. Our telephone by our bedside leaped a foot in the air and a gruff voice told us he was sending his son-in-law to Quana with a horse.

"He'll be coming home shortly after noon. Women folks want him to bring them a Quana Tribune-Chief so they can read the special in the ads and won't have to wait until they get to Quana Thursday to buy a paper."

We explained that the paper did not come off the press until around five and it would be impossible to send them a copy of the Tribune-Chief as early as after lunch.

"My god, woman, I don't want a hummered paper. I just want one," he retorted.

We were never able to convince him we were not being stubborn, unfriendly and unappreciative of his wanting a paper. He hung up muttering it would not hurt us a dam bit to let him have just one paper early.

LOOKING AHEAD

by Dr. George S. Benson

THE REACH FOR POWER

Everybody wants it, but no many persons use it well.

Very few who possess it know its dangers and pitfalls well enough, yet people distrust it most when it belongs to others.

It has corrupted kings and magistrates who have possessed it. Even the mighty have been consumed by it. They often become its victims, along with the ruled and the oppressed.

Democracies are born when people wrest it from princes and dictators to establish popular government. Republics try to safeguard it through representation and free elections. Citizens of free societies fear it.

This thing is POWER. It is related to money, for one is not long separated from the other. Each seeks the other.

This can be seen in the tremendous accumulation of power in the federal government — power which has accompanied vast outlays of tax money.

It can be said that the executive branch of our government is the world's biggest business, in terms of power and money involved. (The term business, however, is hardly appropriate to describe a non-productive organization which nearly always operates on deficits.)

The Big Reach

A total budget approaching $100 billion only begins to tell the story of federal power.

Other multi-billion funds and aid programs are in its care. Some 5.2 million employees (civilian and military) are on its payroll. It maintains 2,283 agencies for conducting its programs and scatters billions of dollars around the world.

It owns real estate more than 2 1/2 times the size of Texas. Its debt ceiling apparently has no limit, having been recently raised to $303 billion to permit more borrowing for more spending. This Administration has sent to Congress more than 200 requests for action involving money and credit.

With its great spending, lending and contracting authority, the federal government is more powerful than any single segment of business.

These powers are feared generally by business, especially since that awesome demonstration of power last April during the steel crisis. That display of federal power involved economic pressures and government orders as well as police power. Was this not the same reach for power that despots have shown through the centuries?

Toward Nationalization?

Was it a calculated step toward nationalization of industry, to bring still more power to the central government? As one reviews the steel episode, it is difficult to see how that display of power can be explained except as part of a general reach for power that tends more and more to take industry under the wing of government.

The economic facts did not justify the decisions made by the White House at that time. It is no secret that some government officials are ready to shove any sick or crippled industries another step toward nationalization.

Steel was, and is, an industry in trouble. Over a ten-year period in which prices were raised 50%, hourly employment costs rose 88.7%, so that profits came down 20.7% on each dollar of sales. Faced with competition from abroad, steel needs desperately to invest in modern plants and new machinery. But who wants to lend to an industry that is not allowed to make profits?

The industry has been operating at little more than half of its capacity, and profit have been impossible for some of the companies. Several of the very largest producers have had to pay out more money in dividends than they earned.

Power Can Ruin U.S.

The attempt of U.S. Steel to test the market last April with an increase amounting to less than three-tenths of a cent per pound, was denounced by the Administration as a threat to the welfare and security of the nation.

Steel still faces the same problems. If it can keep down its costs of making steel, it can weather the crisis. But if and when it believes the market justifies it, steel producers ought to ask the public not the government, for price relief. There is not one law against business determining the fair prices it will ask. The market determines whether it can do so.

Congress has given no power to the executive branch to control prices. Yet it reaches for the power to control private industry.

Each example of power leads to demands for more, until the ultimate in government power is reached in "socialization" of industry.

Such a goal is not in this nation's best interests and is a sure road to decay and ruin.

Power, whether granted by Congress or assumed gradually without legal basis, can take away all freedoms and make America no longer a land of opportunity.

Wilson Lauds Newspapers

AUSTIN.—In his final press conference as attorney general, Will Wilson paid tribute to Texas newspapers for helping to expose graft and corruption.

Wilson said that Texas newspapers, large and small, deserve a lot of credit for the progress he made during his six years of administration.

"In our system," he said, "the light of day, brought thru the news media, is the most efficient enforcement agency we have."

He gave special credit to the press for bringing the slanted hole oil well probes of East Texas into the open, exposing the anhydrous ammonia tank maneuvers of West Texas, and calling for fast action in other scandals.

He remarked that he considers a probe for corruption of local governments the field that offers the most investigative opportunity to his successor, Waggoner Carr.

Stockmen Try Seep Type Ponds in Area

Increasing in popularity among livestock men in some parts of Salt Fork Soil Conservation District are seep type ponds, which provide a permanent water supply, as essential as grass.

Bob Crawford, work unit conservationist for Soil Conservation Service, points out they must naturally be built in areas where a high water table exists.

"Generally the water should be less than four feet under the surface," Crawford said. "At least six feet of water is needed for permanent storage." "All runoff water should be diverted from the excavation to avoid silt problems," he continued. "At least one side should be sloped for easy access to livestock."

Only a few of these ponds have been built here, due to limited number of sites and the lack of equipment to build them.

"Generally a drag line is best suited to this type of pond construction," Crawford said.

"Conventional equipment becomes mired when working below the water line. However under certain conditions, seep type ponds can be built with dozers."

Among the Salt Fork SCD cooperators who have built the seep type ponds are Oran Starkey, Dan Henard, Andy Bell, John Coleman, Wayne Reynolds, L. A. Gilmore and Charles Allen.

Short Terms on Study Committee

Six new members of Texas House of Representatives were appointed to interim study committees by Speaker James A. Turman. But they'll serve as committeemen for less than a month.

Terms of all committees, established by the 57th Legislature, automatically end when the new session begins Jan. 8. The odd situation was created by Atty. Gen. Will Wilson's recent lame-duck legislator ruling.

Appointees include Reps. Don Cavness, Jack Ritter Jr., and Pat Cain, all of Austin; and Jack McLaughlin, Hugh Farmer and Dave Finney of Fort Worth.

Book Features Life of A Pioneer Texan

AUSTIN.—A University of Texas graduate who successfully combined scholarship with athletic prowess is author of the first biography of John H. Reagan, one of the most important figures in Texas history.

Dr. Ben H. Proctor, a member of Phi Beta Kappa and a Longhorn football star before his graduation in 1951, is now an associate professor of history at Texas Christian University. His new book on John H. Reagan, "Not Without Honor," was published recently by the University of Texas Press.

Proctor chose the academic life after playing professional football one year with the Los Angeles Rams. He returned to the University of Texas for his Master of Arts degree and went to Harvard University to earn the Doctor of Philosophy degree.

UT FOREIGN LANGUAGES IN ACCELERATED PROGRAM

AUSTIN.— Accelerated foreign language courses, now in their third year at the University of Texas, are proving that some students can do two semesters' work in one.

Yet the students attend classes only one additional hour each week—six daily sessions instead of five.

The accelerated groups are able to go twice as fast as regular sections, while usually making higher grades, because they are well prepared, well motivated and have a higher degree of linguistic sophistication.

To be admitted to the hot-rod sections of beginning French or Spanish, a student must have had three semesters of some other language. This acquaintance with one foreign language enables him to grasp more quickly the fundamentals of the second.

Classes are small, 12 to 15 students, and the teachers are chosen from the most experienced instructors in the Romance Languages department.

While all foreign language instruction at the University emphasizes understanding and speaking the language, the accelerated courses place even a greater stress on the spoken word.

Earlier, Reagan served in the Texas legislature and represented the state in the U.S. Congress. During the Civil War he was one of the leaders of the Confederate cause and, after the war he helped to guide his fellow Texans through the difficult years of the Reconstruction.

A new state office building in Austin has been named for Reagan in recognition of his public service during Texas' formative years.

Double-dose courses are offered in second-year French and Spanish, but classes meet twice as often as the regular sections—six hours, instead of three. The heavier schedule permits students to advance more rapidly toward junior and senior courses.

Intensive beginning courses in Portuguese and Italian are offered for advanced and graduate students. Freshman and sophomore courses in those languages maintain a more se-date pace. In addition to the accelerated courses, the Romance Languages department provides special sections in Spanish for native speakers. The teachers also are native speakers.

The department's aim in offering all the special courses is to give flexibility to the curriculum and provide a wide choice to fit the individual needs of students.

Wellington Girls, Shamrock Boys Win Tourney Saturday

Wellington Rockettes and the Shamrock Irish won Wellington's invitational basketball tournament in the finals Saturday night, January 5, in an action-packed session.

The Rockettes defeated the Irish Lassies 44 to 38 to win the title, while the Irish defeated the Skyrockets 48 to 32 to win first. The losers of these two games received second place trophies.

Earlier in the day, the third place bracket was won by Paducah girls and Memphis boys and Lefors boys and Wellington B team girls won the consolation play.

Coach James Stavenhagen called this one of the most successful tournaments Wellington has had and "one of the best tournaments I have ever given."

Crowds were among the best to attend tournament play since Rocket gym went into use.

Finals

The Rockettes took the lead early in the finals game and at the end of the first quarter had a two point margin 8-6. At the half, the game was tied 19-19. After the lead changed hands several times, Linda Millsap hit a long shot to put Wellington ahead 30-29 at the third.

Betty Courtney did most of the scoring during the game. With a five point lead and two minutes to go, Wellington stalled the ball, and Betty was able to pick up 3 points during this time to end the game 44-38.

Betty Courtney was high scorer with 24 points, while Diane Gragg of Shamrock made 14. Wellington held Shamrock to 13 field goals during the game.

In the boys' finals, the Rockettes took the lead early, then Shamrock forged ahead 3-2. Wellington made three more baskets and a free throw to end the quarter 9-5. The Rockettes were unable to keep this lead, however, and at the half, Shamrock led 18 to 13. At the third quarter the score was 27 to 18, and the game ended 48 to 32 in the Irish favor.

Craig Bengvall was high pointer for Wellington, with 8, and for Shamrock Ronny Rainey hit for 14.

Third Place

Paducah girls defeated Arnett 46-40 for third place in a close game.

Paducah led 10 to 7 at the first quarter; 23 to 18 at the half; and it was tied 31-31 at the third period. Paducah forged ahead during the last period, after the lead changed hands several times.

Paula Rogers made 21 points for Paducah's high, and Elliott of Arnett had 31.

In the boys' game, Memphis took an early lead over Paducah and held it all the way. Scores by periods were first, Memphis 20, Paducah 4; half-time, 33 to 17; third quarter, 35 to 25, and the game ended 53 to 27 for Paducah.

Consolation

Wellington B team girls won over Quail 45 to 37 for consolation, after the game was even closer for three periods. At the first quarter, Wellington led 10-9; half, 21 to 20 for Wellington; and the third, 35 to 30, again for Wellington.

Joyce Holton was high for the game with 21 points and Lavelle Harper of Rockettes B made 18. For Quail, Sanders scored 19 and Blevins 12.

Lefors boys dominated the consolation finals game with the Dodson Mustangs, to win 52 to 37. At the first quarter, Lefors led 22 to 5; the half, 32 to 15; and the third quarter, 45 to 28.

NEWS LETTER

from Congressman
WALTER ROGERS

THE 88TH CONGRESS

The convening of the 88th Congress will bring a flood of proposals for changes in the Constitution and laws of this country. Some good, some bad.

Contrary to the thinking of many, the passage of a bill through the Congress is not an easy undertaking. The legislative gauntlet through which it must pass provides for a most exhaustive examination of its contents. This should result in practically no mistakes being made; however, many are made, which is proof of the fact that it is "human to err."

All measures introduced during one Congress which do not become law within the two-year term of that Congress, die with its adjournment. Hence, it is necessary to re-introduce them. Several measures which I have long advocated and have submitted in prior Congresses but which have not yet been adopted will be re-introduced.

One of these will be a Joint Resolution to amend the Constitution as follows:

"No treaty with respect to which the advice and consent of the Senate is required by section 2 of Article II of this Constitution may be made without the advice and consent of the House of Representatives."

Another is a Resolution providing for a special subcommittee to investigate and study the problem of obscenity, lewdness, salaciousness, and immorality in connection with the production, distribution, and exhibition in the United States of motion pictures and in connection with advertising related thereto.

I will also re-introduce a Resolution to amend the Constitution of the United States to limit the power of the Courts of the United States to determine that statutes of the United States or of any State are repugnant to the Constitution.

This proposal would make it possible for the Congress, by a two-thirds vote, to overrule a decision by the Supreme Court declaring a statute enacted by the Congress of the United States or any State unconstitutional.

Another Resolution will be the one calling for a complete investigation of the State Department with relation to personnel, background and capabilities of personnel, including those employed directly by the Department of State, as well as by other departments having duties or assignments directly or indirectly connected with the operations of the Department of State.

In my opinion, this is a matter of prime importance and should be acted upon with the least possible delay.

Juniors Split Pair With Shamrock Mon.

Firecrackers and Crackerettes played the Shamrock junior high teams there Monday, Jan. 7, the first games since the Christmas vacation.

The Crackerettes won 22-8, but the boys lost 19 to 24.

The girls scored six points the first quarter to two for Shamrock; 12 in the second to four for their opponents; then in the third quarter, Wellington was held to four points, but at the same time Shamrock got only two.

In the final period, Coach Harvey Millsap played his second and third stringers, and nobody scored anything.

The Crackerettes came to life in the second to step out and get ahead of the Shamrock girls and this provided the turning point of the game.

Becky Brewer scored six baskets for 12 points and Rebecca made 10. Joan Paken made six points for Shamrock. Neither team scored on a free shot.

This was the Crackerettes' tenth straight victory.

Firecrackers

During the first quarter, Coach Millsap's boys scored 5 points and Shamrock 4. In the second, Wellington made only 2 to 5 for Shamrock; so the first half ended with Shamrock leading by only two points.

At the end of the third, the Shamrock team led by only one point, Wellington having made four points and Shamrock three. Up to two minutes before the game ended, they led only one point, and Shamrock's victory came during that period.

Wellington's high pointer was Randy West with eight points. Shamrock's high was Freddy Hughley, with 13.

Economic Health Shown by Dec. 28 Bank Reports

Texas bank deposits are continuing to set records almost everywhere.

A survey of major cities was made after the state banking commissioner and the U. S. comptroller ordered condition reports as of Dec. 28.

The Dec. 28 date caught many banks by surprise. They were anticipating the call date to be Dec. 31.

Some bankers said the difference in dates prevented them from reporting even higher figures. Last day of the year usually is a high mark for bank deposits.

New Target Set By Atty.-Gen.

Texas' new attorney general has pledged a positive campaign against juvenile delinquency as one of his major projects.

Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr addressed an overflow crowd at his swearing-in ceremony in the Courts Building in Austin.

He said that delinquency is neither normal nor universal among our juveniles. "On the contrary, a respect for the law is far more common among young people than is disrespect," Carr stated.

Carr also pledged to "continue vigorously" investigations begun by his predecessor, Will Wilson, into the East Texas slant-hole oil well scandal and the Billie Sol Estes case.

Although pledging no encroachment on local responsibility, Carr warned that in any instance where local officials "fail in their trust to this state" he will not hesitate to step in "to correct the situation within the boundaries of power and authority."

When some people consider traffic rules and laws, their minds become like concrete: thoroughly mixed and permanently set.

Fin-Feather-Fur In Collingsworth

The Quail season in the Panhandle counties will end Wednesday, Jan. 16. This also applies to counties under the general law, which has the same closing date. These latter lie immediately south of the Panhandle and also include Hardeman and Foard counties.

If however you go farther from home and hunt in Wilbarger, Wichita, Knox, Baylor and counties southeast of there, you have until Jan. 27.

The bag limit in these counties is 15 and possession limit 45.

If you are going away to hunt, check your county before you make the trip.

A revolving light on a vehicle wandering over a pasture at night means coyote hunters.

Danny Garcia, who furnishes a considerable amount of material for this column gave the following account of a coyote hunt earlier this fall.

It was a cool fall afternoon, ideal for hunting. I hunt coyotes very little, but the more I go, the more I like it. I had not been this year.

I drove to a farm a few miles out of town where the owner would welcome a little thinning of the coyote supply. I parked the car out of sight in a gulley at the base of a bluff, walked ahead a quarter of a mile, hidden by brush, and found the place I was looking for.

A grassy flat ran out from the foot of the bluff for 300 yards, dropping away in broken gullies dotted with mesquite trees. If there was a coyote around I was sure he would be in those gullies.

I was carrying a Remington .22 semi-automatic, with open sight, and was using .22 long rifle hollow point shells. This combination has proven successful on some 23 coyotes for me in the six years I have been in Wellington.

Twenty-three coyotes are not many for six years, but as I said, this is only a minor pastime for me. Some hunters that hunt coyotes as a favorite sport have killed as many as 150 a year.

I was wearing my hunting suit which blended perfectly with my surroundings. A light cross wind was in my favor.

AT THE RITZ SUNDAY THRU TUESDAY

Sandra Dee exhibits her three engagement rings to her bewildered parents, Michelle Presle and John Dund, in this scene from "If A Man Answers." Ross Hunter production being released by Universal. Bobby Darin, Cesar Romero and Stefanie Powers also star in the romantic color comedy.

I was sitting just below the rim of the bluff, with a clump of brush behind me to break my own outline from behind. It didn't occur to me that the clump might serve another purpose equally well.

I sat still for some 45 seconds, not moving a muscle. I then started my call. I start with a long wailing, let it die away, wait half a minute and repeat, omitting the first long scream and shortening the calls.

The shortened calls should be repeated every 30 seconds until you decide to move or until your game is in sight. Do not use call as long as the coyote is moving. If he stops to locate the screams, or out of caution, start calling shortly with call muffled under the hands.

I had just about given up and the sun had disappeared behind the skyline, when with no sound or hint of movement behind me, I suddenly felt hot breath on my neck.

I twisted my head slowly and looked a snarling coyote in the face at arms length. He had come up the slope behind the bluff. He was the meanest looking animal I had ever seen, with his ears laid flat and his eyes blazing.

I didn't even try to lift my rifle. We stared at each other for what seemed like hours. Then he took a careful step back, and another, and then turned and started walking off, never taking his eyes off of me.

I now had room to maneuver. I whipped my .22 around and blasted a shot into him, killing him in his tracks.

Nothing quite like this has happened to me before and I hope it never happens again, but it serves to illustrate the kind of hair-raising action you can expect when you call predators.

After it was all over, I had the worst case of buck fever a man ever had. After a few minutes, still shaking, I got into my car and drove home.

As soon as I quit shaking, I plan on going back.

H. M. WILLIAMS BUILDS RANCH IN GREAT PLAINS PROGRAM

H. Milton Williams, a co-operator with the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District for many years, has 1,760 acres on his ranch. In July of 1959, he decided to take advantage of the assistance offered by the Soil Conservation Service thru the Great Plains conservation program.

Engaged primarily in a cow-calf operation, Williams utilized 336 acres of cropland to grow his allotted acreage of wheat. The remainder was used to grow feed and forage crops for his cattle.

He decided that he did not care to cultivate his cropland any more, and since he did not wish to rent it out, to seed it to native range grasses. As Mr. Williams did all of his operations by himself, he will save nothing on hired labor charges, but will save himself extra work. His stocking rate remains the same.

In 1961 he seeded his first grasses, 161 acres of it, and thru 1962, 207 acres. His last cropland will be seeded in 1963. Grasses he has sown are side-oats grama, buffalo grass, blue grass, little bluestem, sand blue stem, switch grass, and Indian grass.

Most of Mr. Williams' land is good for cropping as he was doing it, as it is Class III and IV primarily. He was cropping a little Class VI.

Mrs. Walter Deger and her sister, Mrs. Guy Sibley of Clarendon, left last week to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Marshall of Compton, Calif.; and Mrs. Sibley's sons, Alvin Turner of Norwalk, and Jack Turner of Garden Grove. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and the Turner brothers formerly lived in the Lutie community.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Shoff and their four children of Dallas spent Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Collins of Arlie. Mrs. Shoff will be remembered as Miss Erma Dell Collins.

Take-Home Pay

...to spend <sup>anywhere</sup> as we please

WE MAY get our money from a job in industry, from a one-chair shoeshine business, or for working as janitor, bank president, or some other useful activity. But what we do with what's left after taxes is our own personal business.

Of course, with some necessities coming first, we may not always get to buy WHAT we'd like to, but there isn't much to keep us from spending our money anyWHERE we please.

And this decision...WHERE to buy...is pretty important...because WHERE we spend a dollar has considerable bearing on WHERE and how handily we can get our dollars in the future.

When we choose to spend our money in our own community, where its circulation can create many more dollars of trade volume to boost our local economy, then we can make a better living easier here.
