Admirals Ask Retirement; Discord Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Disagreement with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's views on Pentagon control in shipbuilding programs appeared today to be the reason two Navy admirals who head the Bureau of Ships have asked for retirement.

Rear Adm. William A. Brockett, 51, chief of the bureau, and his deputy, Rear Adm. John A. Curtze, 54, filed their requests for retirement Wednesday.

MAJOR FACTOR

McNamara's official spokesman confirmed the fact that the requests for immediate retirement had been submitted, but declined to say more.

But another source in the Pentagon said unhappiness by the two admirals over top civilian management seemed to be a major factor in the retirement requests.

The Bureau of Ships is one of the most powerful divisions of the Navy. It is responsible for shipbuilding and ship maintenance, with an annual budget of $2 billion.

"PERSONAL REASONS"

Curtze, a resident of Falls Church, Va., a suburb of Washington, said Wednesday night when asked for comment on his sudden request:

"I have good and sufficient personal reasons. I plan to pick up a lot of loose ends that I allowed to slip during my 35 years of Navy service."

Brockett was not available for comment.

The Navy declined to comment on the reasons for "the concerted action."

A-Smasher Site Hunted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four proposed Alabama sites for the government's $348 million atom smasher will be inspected next week by a team from the Atomic Energy Commission, it was announced Wednesday.

The team will inspect proposed sites in Birmingham, Green County, Florence and Eufaula between Nov. 2 and 5.

Red Terror Spurs Java Emergency

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Martial law was today reported proclaimed in central Java to counter widespread sabotage and terrorism.

The army newspaper Berita Yudha said Brig. Gen. Surjo Soempeno, commander of the Diponegoro Division, had decreed a "state of war" (martial law) after widespread subversive activities by "counter-revolutionaries of the Sept. 30" rebel movement.

Riots apparently instigated by the Communists wrecked the city of Surakarta last Saturday, the newspaper said.

SLAUGHTER, KIDNAP

The Communists have murdered 200 people in east and central Java and kidnaped numerous others, it said.

They also seized control of local governments in some areas, raided police posts to get arms, disconnected telephone lines and sabotaged railway and road communications, the newspaper said.

Army commandos and units of the Diponegoro Division were reported chasing Communist rebels throughout east and central Java.

CONTINUES ROUNDUP

The army continued its roundup of Communists in the Jakarta area, and newspapers reped 172 were arrested in the latest sweep.

One newspaper quoted a ranking police officer as saying that security forces discovered documents linking the Communists to the Sept. 30 coup during one of the raids.

The newspaper added that security forces also seized documents revealing espionage activities by the Indonesian Communist party in the state apparatus.

NOT CURBED

Indonesian President Sukarno is opposed to the army's anti-Communist campaign, but so far has not succeeded in curbing it.

Canada Sells Peking Wheat

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP)—The Canadian Wheat Board today announced a three-year agreement with Communist China for the sale of at least 112 million bushels of wheat starting next Aug. 1, and added it may be renegotiated for as much as 466 million bushels over a five-year term.

The announcement was timed to coincide with the arrival here of Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, who said its value could range from a minimum of $200 million in three years to $900 million if the maximum five-year deal is worked out.

"On this basis," said the trade minister, "this would be the largest single wheat agreement ever concluded by the Canadian Wheat Board."

The board statement said the immediate agreement, signed earlier in Montreal, is for a minimum of 112 million bushels and a maximum of 186 million bushels over a three-year period beginning Aug. 1, 1966.

Crippled Children

The Howard County Rehabilitation Center (Crippled Children and Adults) has moved into its new home at Third and Lancaster streets, and continues to grow through the help of the United Fund. Jim Thompson, therapist and director of the Center, averages almost 30 patients per day. Larry Bristo, speech therapist, adds to the center's services. The agency operates on a budget of $23,000 per year, of which the United Fund is a participant. An open house is planned soon of the new facility, for all residents to visit and see the completely equipped center. Therapy is provided to all crippled children needing it at the center, without regard to their ability to pay.

John Roosevelt And Wife End Long Marriage

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — A Mexican divorce has parted John A. Roosevelt and his wife of 28 years, the former Anne Lindsay Clark of Nahant, Mass.

Roosevelt, 49, is the youngest of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's five living children. He is a New York investment executive.

The decree said Roosevelt will pay her $800 monthly alimony. A mutual agreement was reached on the disposition of common properties. No details were disclosed.

Custody of their daughter Joan, 13, was awarded to the mother.

Cong Raids Take Toll On Aircraft

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Marine patrols went on the hunt for the Viet Cong around Da Nang and Chu Lai today after Communist mortars and suicide squads destroyed 19 helicopters and two bombers in simultaneous attacks on the two Marine centers in central Viet Nam.

Another 21 helicopters were damaged. The Marines reported they killed 39 guerrillas and suffered only light casualties during the two attacks just before midnight.

It was the third sabotage raid on the Marine air and infantry complex on the coast of central Viet Nam.

AIR STRIP

The Communists did the bulk of their damage at Marble Mountain, an air strip two miles across the river from the big Da Nang air base. The attack destroyed or crippled two thirds of the 60 helicopters on the strip.

Seabees there also suffered light casualties from mortar shells. The main Da Nang base was not attacked.

Two AD4 Skyhawk jet bombers were destroyed at Chu Lai, 52 miles south of Da Nang.

Both airfields came under heavy mortar fire before Viet Cong suicide squads slipped in and attacked the aircraft with demolition charges and rifle fire but most of the damage was apparently caused by the mortars.

Maj. Gen. Lewis W. Walt, commander of Marines in Viet Nam, said several of the damaged helicopters would be flying again today. More than half of the wounded Marines were expected to be back on duty by tonight.

In the air, U.S. planes made their first successful drop of propaganda leaflets on Hanoi, a U.S. spokesman reported. The planes did not fly over the North Vietnamese capital, he said, but unloaded 640,000 leaflets over the populous Red River delta and winds carried them into Hanoi.

CHINESE GUNS

The leaflets contained the message that the North Vietnamese government was exchanging rice for guns with Communist China to wage the guerrilla war in South Viet Nam.

Reports from Phu Yen Province, 200 miles north of Saigon, said 383 Viet Cong had been killed in a major Vietnamese assault that began more than two weeks ago.

A spokesman reported heavy fighting in the province and said the largest casualties were inflicted by U.S. air strikes. The spokesman said about 340 other Viet Cong have been killed in the operation, but he added that this figure was not confirmed.

Birthday Gift: Purple Heart

SALISBURY, Md. (AP) — It took less than four months in South Viet Nam for an 18-year-old boy from Salisbury to become a 19-year-old man.

"You grow up fast — sometimes a little too fast," Pfc. William Layfield said at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel Layfield.

Although Layfield was shot down twice in helicopters, kidnaped by a terrorist and wounded in action, he said he was anxious to return to the Southeast Asian country soon after the end of his 30-day leave Oct. 30.

COPTER GUNNER

That's typical of his attitude, since he volunteered for duty as a helicopter gunner in Viet Nam in the first place.

Layfield arrived in South Viet Nam on June 1. On the same day, he came under fire after U.S. and South Vietnamese troops began an engagement with the Viet Cong about 20 miles north of Saigon.

The crew of Layfield's helicopter ran out of ammunition, landed in a battle zone, withstood enemy fire and picked up trapped and wounded GIs and South Vietnamese troops. For this, Layfield and his crew chief received the Distinguished Flying Cross.

In August, Viet Cong groundfire struck Layfield's machine gun, causing it to explode. He was hospitalized with fragmentation wounds of the hands, arms and legs.

PURPLE HEART

He suffered the wounds near his birthday on Aug. 9. He was awarded the Purple Heart, which he said was "quite a birthday present."

For another battle, Layfield and other crewmen received a medal called the "Green Hornet." And for his 170 hours of combat flight duty, he got the Air Medal with two clusters.

Helicopters carrying Layfield twice were downed by enemy ground fire.

"Some days, you never get shot at. Other days, all hell breaks loose," Layfield said.

How about the demonstrations here at home against U.S. policy in Viet Nam?

"These demonstrations make us feel like we are fighting without a cause and dying for nothing. I've had too many buddies killed to believe that they were fighting for nothing."

Weather Fine In U.S. Areas

By The Associated Press

Pleasant autumn weather prevailed over most of the country today, except in the Northeast where snow fell and in the Northwest where there was some rain.

Texas weather rocked along in its pleasant pattern of mild days and cool nights.

SCATTERED FROST

Scattered frost was noted around Brownwood for the second time this season as the mercury dipped to 39 degrees.

Two large high pressure areas, in the Western Rockies and in the Southern Plains, controlled the pleasant weather.

A cold front dominated the snow and rain areas. Up to 3 inches of snow fell in the New Hampshire mountains early Wednesday and 1 inch of snow covered the ground at Caribou, Maine, and at the Air Force base at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

RAIN, SNOW

Cold winds, showers and snow struck sections fom Upper Michigan to New England.

The lowest reading Wednesday was 21 degrees at Craig, Colo., and Elko, Nev. The day's highest mark was 100 degrees at Thermal, Calif.

Gemini 7 Flight Delayed Until At Least Dec. 8

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —The 14-day Gemini 7 flight has been delayed until at least Dec. 8 by a decision not to use the Gemini 6 booster for the launching.

When the Gemini 6 rendezvous flight was postponed Monday because of failure of the Agena target rocket to achieve orbit, space agency officials said they would move ahead to Gemini 7, using the same rocket.

This would have required replacing the Gemini 6 spacecraft with the Gemini 7 capsule. It would have permitted advancing the Gemini 7 flight from its original Dec. 8 date to about Dec. 2 because the Titan 2 had been thoroughly checked on the launch paid.

An analysis of engine capability of the Gemini 6 rocket showed the power of the second stage might be marginal for lifting the heavier Gemini 7 spacecraft into the desired orbit.

So it was decided Wednesday to switch rockets, putting the flight back on its original timetable.

AT&T Chairman Hits Investigation

Commission Will Probe Phone Rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission has ordered an investigation of telephone rates — an action blasted by the board chairman of AT&T as totally unwarranted and unnecessary.

The investigation, announced Wednesday by the FCC, will cover almost all the services offered by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The regulatory agency said one of its objectives is to see if it should prescribe maximum charges to the public.

FIRES BACK

AT&T Board Chairman Frederick R. Kappel fired back in a statement issued in New York: "The action taken today by the FCC is totally unwarranted and unnecessary, and in the final analysis the telephone-using public will be the loser.

"The energies of the many telephone people required to work on a case like this could be better expended to help keep our economy growing."

HEARING SLATED

The commission ordered the investigation — it said it will set a date later for hearings in Washington — after studying an AT&T report on costs and earnings.

Among other things the investigation will determine, the FCC said, is if Bell System's charges are just and reasonable under the Communications Act.

In his statement Kappel said: "Without resorting to such a painfully slow and costly investigation, the commission over the years has effected rate reductions which now amount to savings of about $1 billion annually to the American public.

LATEST REDUCTION

"The latest reduction of $100 million was made only a few months ago, and interstate telephone rates today are 22 per cent below the levels of 1940."

Kappel went on to accuse the commission of "casting aside regulatory policies that have been most effective and have produced excellent results through a minimum expenditure of time and money to both the commission and the users of telephone services."

BROAD PROBE

The investigation will cover almost all the services AT&T offers. This includes regular and private-line telephone service, private-line telegraph service and all other services except the teletypewriter exchange (TWX) and TELPAK. Those two are the subjects of separate investigations.

The revenue requirements of the Bell System and the basis on which the system determines the requirements will be decided by the investigation, the FCC said.

Klan Dragon's Silent On Mysterious Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional probers, pursuing reports of a mysterious Klan group called "The Underground," got no help today from Robert E. Scoggin, grand dragon of the South Carolina Klan.

Scoggin, appearing before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, declined to give more than his name. He refused even to say if it had originally been spelled Scoggins. There was no explanation of the question about the extra "s."

Committee Chairman Edwin S. Willis, D-La., said the secret Klan group had special training in acts of violence.

TRAIN SELVES

Chief investigator Donald T. Appell said members trained themselves in use of explosives and rifles, and "are advocates of violence."

Scoggin, 42, was described as a Navy veteran of World War II, a plumbing and electrical contractor in Spartanburg, S.C., and also exalted cyclops of a Klan Klavern in Spartanburg known as the 21 Club.

It was learned the committee expected to finish with South Carolina witnesses today and move on to the Klan in Georgia.

SUPERSECRET UNITS

The committee already has touched on special, supersecret Klan units. One in North Carolina was said to be called "Unit No. 100." Others referred to were "The Black Shirts" and "The Chessmen."

The committee heard a long series of refusals to answer questions Wednesday as it began calling South Carolina Klansmen.

One was Arthur Robert Nix, a thin young man wearing glasses who looked like a high school boy.

Rep. Joe R. Pool, D - Tex., asked, "Are you an adult?" Nix refused to answer. Appell stated, however, that Nix was 21 and was the son-in-law of Grand Dragon Don Cothran of Florida.

Nix was identified as an officer of the Spartanburg, S.C., Klaver, known as the Spartanburg Sportsmen's Club.

Dual Flights In Space Eyed

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson announced today the United States will try to put two spaceships into orbit at the same time, probably in January, so they can attempt to rendezvous and fly in formation.

Since each craft would have a two-man crew, this would put four American astronauts into space simultaneously.

If all goes well, the two American spaceships would fly in formation as close to each other as possible—"a matter of feet," according to press secretary Bill D. Moyers.

The Soviet Union in 1963 put two manned spaceships into orbit simultaneously but, according to American estimates, they were separated by at least three miles.

AT&T Drops To New Low

NEW YORK (AP)—American Telephone dropped to a new low as the stock market turned irregular early this afternoon. Trading was active.

AT&T, delayed slightly by an accumulation of sell orders, was reacting to news that the Federal Communications Commission would investigate its interstate rates and meanwhile authorized state regulatory bodies to order rate reductions of up to $75 million a year.

"Telephone" stock sank well over a point, making a new low for the year.

General Motors sank about 2 points. Standard Oil (New Jersey) was off a fraction.

Archbishop Stirs Hassle

LONDON (AP) — Controversy raged today over the archbishop of Canterbury's suggestion that Christians should support military action against Rhodesia's white settlers if they declare independence without Britain's approval.

Critics ranging from Conservative members of Parliament to the Socialist president of the Methodist Conference, Lord Soper, denounced the suggestion as irresponsible.

The Church of Scotland, with a long history of African missionary work, dissociated itself from the archbishop's views and from a resolution supporting the archbishop passed by the British Council of Churches in Aberdeen.

Castro Halts Boat Exodus

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro ordered a midnight halt to the small-boat exodus of refugees today—and hundreds of Cubans set sail for Florida in the face of bad weather.

"They are on their way," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Waves 10 feet high were reported in the Florida Straits which separate Cuba from the United States.

WILL FLY

Castro's move was a prelude to a U.S.-Cuban agreement to fly 3,000 to 4,000 refugees a month to the United States.

Gustavo Hidalgo, captain of a 23-foot fiber glass boat, arrived here today and said: "The Castro officials wanted to send out all boats that wanted to go, regardless of the weather."

Hidalgo said, "We radioed the Coast Guard to take off our women, children and old people; 11 were transferred to a Coast Guard vessel 20 miles from Cuba."

EIGHT STAY

Four refugees and four crewmen stayed on board.

"It took us 28 hours to make the 90-mile return trip," Hidalgo explained. "We made the voyage to Cuba in seven hours in good weather."

Hidalgo lives in Miami.

The U.S.-Cuban agreement to fly out refugees is expected to be announced in Washington and Havana Friday.

Fifty Proposals Spice Eight-State Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 50 proposals, ranging from a $1- billion plan to fight water pollution in New York to a constitutional amendment to change the size of the Florida state flag, spice next Tuesday's election menu in eight states.

Florida voters will decide on 12 constitutional amendments. Texans on 10 and New Yorkers on 9 plus 4 statewide propositions. Referenda also will be held Tuesday in Kentucky, Maine, North Carolina, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

LITTLE INTEREST

Election officials in most states report little apparent voter interest even though the proposals involve hundreds of millions of dollars and affect taxes, schools, highways and medical care. Top election day interest is in the mayoral contest in New York City and governors races in New Jersey and Virginia.

One of the hottest fights is in Ohio over a proposal to raise the state sales tax from 3 to 4 per cent. Education forces sponsored the measure in order to increase state school aid. Opponents include retail merchants and labor unions.

Kentucky voters will decide the fate of the largest bond issue in the state's history — $176 million of which $139 million would go for highways. The issue may run into trouble as a result of substantial increases in property assessments effective Jan. 1.

MAINE BONDS

Maine voters ballot on six separate bond issues which total $27.5 million, mainly for educational institutions.

Other major monetary proposals include a $300-million highway bond issue in North Carolina, a Texas proposal to increase state property taxes by 5 cents per $100 valuation for college construction and three New York proposals, one a $1-billion measure to finance a crash program against pollution of rivers and streams and the other two to extend the state's low-rent housing programs.

A number of the proposals would affect election laws.

NEW RESIDENTS

A Florida amendment would permit new residents to vote for president and vice president if they were properly registered in their former state, Maine proposes to eliminate voting restrictions on paupers, and New York would call a constitutional convention in April 1967 on legislative reapportionment.

Texas is seeking to extend terms of the governor, other state officials and state representatives from two years to four years, while New York is attempting the same for state assemblymen and senators.

The Florida amendment would change the dimensions required by the state constitution to conform with the actual dimensions of the flags as made by manufacturers. Otherwise, Florida's state flag would be a different shape from most other flags.

Kennedy Assists Democrat Beame

NEW YORK (AP) — Democrat Abraham Beame's campaign to become mayor of New York is getting a major assist in the closing days of the tight race from Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The senator is campaigning in the streets alongside Beame, who faces a strong challenge in next Tuesday's election from Rep. John V. Lindsay, the Republican-Liberal candidate.

Democratic strategists hope the popular Kennedy, 39, can offset the charm of Lindsay — and the lack of an endorsement of Beame's candidacy by President Johnson.

Beame, now city comptroller, told a rally Wednesday that a Democratic mayor can do more for the city because he can work better with Sen. Kennedy and President Johnson to get more federal aid. It's a point he has consistently stressed.

The President "does things in his own way," Beame said Wednesday night in his first comment on why Johnson's expected endorsement did not come at a $100-a-plate fund-raising dinner Tuesday. Johnson sent only his "warm regards."

Beame's advisers are counting upon Kennedy to inject some glamor into the Democratic campaign. They concede that Beame, a short, stocky, graying man of 59, doesn't project that sort of image, especially when he shares a platform with Lindsay, tall and handsome at 42, and William F. Buckley, the Conservative party candidate.

Mayor Robert F. Wagner, a Democrat, is not seeking a fourth term.

LBJ Against Congress Trying 'Authority Grab'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson and Congress don't see eye-to-eye on what the President considers encroachment into his field, but no serious rupture in executive-legislative relations is expected to result.

The President's views were expressed Tuesday in a strongly worded statement preceding his approval of a $2-billion rivers and harbors bill. The President didn't like a provision that could block appropriations for projects costing less than $10 million unless they were specifically approved by Senate and House Public Works committees.

"GRAB AUTHORITY"

He reportedly construed it as an effort by a small group of congressmen on those committees to take to themselves the authority to say what projects should proceed, by retaining a veto power over them.

Congressional public works experts took an opposite view. They claimed the provision would expedite progress on smaller projects by not requiring them to be held back for omnibus bills which sometimes are four years apart.

An anonymous but authoritative White House source said there was nothing personal in the President's attitude — that relations between him and the congressional committees were excellent.

Regardless of how well the system has worked out for other projects, the White House source said, "this administration takes a very strong stand on what it considers encroachment."

VETO POWER

The President, he said, has no objection to Congress retaining a veto power on public works projects — as it now does on reorganization plans — but does not believe this power should be delegated to congressional committees.

A House Public Works Committee spokesman said: "What we were trying to do was to speed up work on some of these smaller projects. None of them, large or small, can be financed without authorization for an appropriation. This provision simply would be a delegation by Congress to two of its committees of the power of authorization. We are not going to quarrel with the President over procedure. We will work out some new language that all of us can live with."

Food Prices Dip, Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food prices dropped nearly 1 per cent in August but have been edging up again since, the Labor Department reported Wednesday after a national spot check of supermarkets.

Soaring meat prices head the advance, with the prices of eggs, milk and most other dairy products high and expected to go higher.

AMENDMENTS—9

Legislators Would Be Given Pay Hike

(This is the ninth of a series of 10 articles on the proposed amendments, which Texans will vote on Nov. 2—Ed.)

AMENDMENT NO. 9

The proposed amendment would authorize the Legislature to establish the salaries of lieutenant governor and speaker of the house. It also would increase the per diem pay of members of the Legislature from $12 to $20 and increase the number of days that members of the Legislature would be entitled to compensation from the present 120 days to 140 days during a regular session. The same $20 per day allowance would be authorized for 30 days of any special session. Members are presently paid $12 per day for 30 days of a special session.

Prior to 1960, members of the Legislature received no annual compensation, but instead were provided an allowance of $25 for the first 120 days of each session of the Legislature. This allowance was in effect from 1954 to 1960.

In 1960, members of the Legislature were given an annual salary of $4,800 by the voters. The granting of a salary to members of the Legislature by constitutional amendment in 1960 did not eliminate the per diem allowance, however, Legislators were granted a reduced per diem allowance of $12 a day for 120 days of the regular session and 30 days of each special session.

Under the terms of the present constitution, the lieutenant governor receives the same compensation as members of the Senate while he is acting as president of the Senate. The proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to fix an annual salary for the Lieutenant Governor. The speaker of the House of Representatives is of course a member of the Legislature and is elected by the members of the house to serve as the speaker, or chairman, during its session. As a member of the Legislature, he receives the same pay as other members of the Legislature. The proposed amendment would allow the Legislature to fix a salary for the speaker which would be greater than the amount authorized for other members.

New Arch Tallest U.S. Monument

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — The Gateway Arch, symbol of America's thrust across the great Western wilderness a century ago, is being completed today with insertion of a 10-ton keystone 630 feet above the Mississippi River.

Some 10,000 persons are expected to witness the placing of the final section, expected to take eight hours.

The gleaming stainless steel arch, the nation's tallest monument and one of its most impressive, stands on the site where the westward movement began with Lewis and Clark's exploration and later with wagons moving west.

32 YEARS

The arch and the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, of which it is a part, were 32 years in the making. The idea was born during the great depression in the mind of a St. Louis mayor named Bernard Dickmann.

Dickmann wanted to replace riverfront slums with a permanent monument to the Western pioneers.

The project served to turn St. Louis' face to the future. The whole downtown area is getting a face-lifting. Some $8 million in construction, including a new sports stadium, is under way in the shadow of the arch.

EIGHTY ACRES

The Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, site of the arch, occupies 80 acres on the riverfront. One of the main features will be a museum of westward expansion beneath the arch. From the museum, visitors will ride in cable cars inside the leggs of the arch to an enclosed observation platform at the keystone.

The whole project has cost $29 million — three-fourths of it in federal funds — so far and will cost another $8 million before its completion next year. Of this, $6 million is expected to be allocated by Congress and $2 million is expected to come from a St. Louis bond issue.

Three Marines Wipe Out Advancing Squad Of Cong

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Three U.S. Marine mechanics who had never fired a gun in Viet Nam found themselves only 6 feet from a suicide squad attacking the Marble Mountain base Wednesday night.

The Marines, all expert marksmen, said they killed eight Viet Cong and wounded three.

Cpl. Eugene Mortimer, 21, of Las Vegas, N.M., an electronics technician, said he had just finished working a night shift and had gone to a workshop van where he found Cpl. Lawrence Brule, 21, of Rochester, N.Y., an aviation electrician.

MORTAR ROUNDS

"All at once," said Mortimer, "the van shook and I heard a boom. Then there were two more explosions. Brule hollered that they were mortar rounds.

"We grabbed our rifles and ran to a foxhole behind the tents."

Lance Cpl. Leonard L. O'Shannon, 19, of Portland, Ore., who was on watch, joined Brule and Mortimer in the foxhole.

"I turned around and saw a bunch of people," Mortimer said. "I first thought they were Marines. Then I noticed they had no helmets or clothes, just shorts. We all opened up on them with our automatic rifles.

FOE CLOSE

"The main body was about 15 feet away from us. The closest man was 6 feet away.

"I realized I had only one ammunition magazine. In all the commotion I had left my cartridge belt in the van. I was thinking of going back and getting it, but I had my shirt off and was bare chested and I thought the Marines might mistake me for a Viet Cong.

"O'Shannon and I ran out of ammunition. Brule had some rounds and we split them up. In all we fired about 70 rounds."

Brule said the three remained isolated in the foxhole for about an hour.

ROCKET LAUNCHER

"About three minutes after the fight a Viet Cong came up," he said. "We thought he was a Marine. He had a rocket launcher. The minute he fired toward the flight line I picked him off. The rocket hit a helicopter.

"Then another Viet Cong tried to get the rocket launcher and we opened up on him. After things quieted down, we decided to pull out so we could get closer to our people.

"When we pulled back, one Viet Cong stood up and O'Shannon hit him in the spine. He got up again and I hit him. Then there was no trouble. All we could hear was the three wounded moaning and crying."

Mortimer, Brule and O'Shannon were not injured.

All three went through the Marine basic infantry school but had not used their rifles since coming to Viet Nam.

O'Shannon has been in Viet Nam since May 19. Brule and Mortimer arrived Sept. 27.

'Free World' Peking Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, Army vice chief of staff, said today that the conquest of Viet Nam is only a small part of the objective of Communist China — destruction of the United States and the free world at large.

He emphasized the "widening breach between the Soviet Union and Communist China, with Red China trying to take the lead in the Communist world revolution."

In an address at the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, Abrams referred to pronouncement along this line by Mao Tse-tung and his military chief, Marshal Lin Piao.

The American general had this advice for the Chinese marshal:

"When you look at the American tiger, do not be too sure that it is made of paper. Remember instead the words of an older and wiser ancestor of yours — 'He who seeks to ride the tiger does not dare to dismount'."

Fiedler, Marsh Wow 'Em In Concert Series Opener

To use an uncultural phrase, Arthur Fiedler, the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra and Ozan Marsh wowed 'em last evening.

So enthusiastic was the audience for the first of the Big Spring Concert Association series, that the orchestra was applauded into five encores. At the end, Maestro Fiedler and his musicians got a standing ovation, which is the first time this has happened in a long, long time.

They deserved this accolade, for not only were the orchestra and Mr. Marsh superb, but Arthur Fiedler was a delight. Moreover, the repertoire was what many have contended is just the sort needed—enough of the classic and heavy works to demonstrate great depth and proficiency, and then something to please the musical appetites of most of us.

It is safe to say that a more versatile orchestra has never visited us. Through the first portion of the program, Fiedler led the orchestra with great feeling and through sublime passages. Playing the Busoni arrangement of Franz Liszt's "Spanish Rhapsody," Ozan Marsh more than lived up to advance notices. Seldom if ever has a concert pianist appearing here produced such delicate touch and then had the robust reserve for grandiose bursts. At times his notes were soft as freshly fallen snow, and he seemed to coax music from the piano. None could have ask for more excellent rapport than existed between him and the orchestra.

One of the richest experiences of the evening was the overture-fantasia from Tchaikovsky's "Romeo and Juliet." Here were beautiful interludes for the harp, flute and horns. In this, as throughout the concert, Fiedler achieved uncanny effects with his strings, and his handling of the percussions was like a master chef seasoning a gourmet dish. This was exactly right. Later, in the "Skaters' Waltz," the use of horns on the afterbeat was perfectly done—not too little, not too much, but again just right.

"The Three Cornered Hat" offered examples of virtuosity on the oboe, from the brass and percussion section, and for tricky, sudden tempo changes which came off with great ease.

Fiedler and his musicians hit the jackpot with selections from "Mary Poppins," and then when he swung to the popular tune, "More," he had the audience in the palm of his hand. Long before he had his orchestra simulate marching in the finale, "The Great Race March," Fiedler had stirred the juices and had the audience patting the floor. He did it again—and with a terrific piccolo trio, in Sousa's immortal "Stars and Stripes," the last of the encores which included "Hello Dolly," "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," and "Mack the Knife," and—if you can imagine on the same program with Handel, Liszt and Tchaikovsky—the Beatles' "I Want to Hold Your Hand."

But whether it was weaving a complex and classic musical pattern or cutting a rug with syncopation, or beating out a stirring march, Arthur Fiedler was the master of the situation. Bless his white head, he put himself in the class of the very few programs which could be booked every season and always be welcomed.

Pack 100 Has Rocket Derby

Cub Scout Pack 100 met Tuesday night at St. Paul Presbyterian Church, the sponsoring institution. About 80 persons attended the meeting to see the "rocket derby" directed by Frosty Robison, and other activities.

Den 3 opened the meeting with the Pledge of Allegiance; the invocation was offered by the Rev. E. A. J. Seddon, and Den 3 also won the attendance award.

Six heats were run in the rocket derby and then the winner of each competed for first through fourth place in the final derby. Mark Sheedy won first place. Wayne Burks second, David Duggan third, and James Milam fourth. Den three won the award for most points won in all heats —a Texas flag.

Den 3 members wore space helmets made as a den project, and Den 4 displayed a "monster" as its project.

Cub Master Joe Horton, assisted by Mrs. Mamie Lee Dodd, made awards.

Bobcat pins went to Kirk Shannon, Thomas Woolverton, Paul Dannamon, Wayne Burks, James Burks; arrow points went to Greg Horton, Steve Loudamy, Tommy Davidson and Mike Thomas.

Assistant Denner badges went to Greg Horton, Albert Valdez and James Milam. Denner badges went to Tommy Davidson and Steve Calhoun.

Steve Loudamy won a Wolf badge, and Timothy Dunn a Bear badge.

Service stars went to: Albert Valdez, two years; David Duggan, Timothy Dunn, James Milam, and David Bruce Wright, one year.

Refreshments were served to those present by Den 2. The next meeting will be held at the church Nov. 30.

Mahon Returns To District

Rep. George Mahon has returned to the 119th District this week after what he described as a "rugged and historic session of Congress."

The session set a modern record of 383 roll call votes in the House and 85 pieces of major legislation. Some of it he favored and some he opposed, but Mahon added that "the impact of the legislation enacted this Congress will be felt for generations."

Rep. Mahon, who is chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, thinks that it is time to pause and digest the huge amount of legislation to "avoid legislaive indigestion. I am anticipating a shorter session next year with a lesser amount of legislation."

Some refinement and modification of laws passed this session may be in order, and Rep. Mahon ventured that the ultimate success or failure on much of the legislation may rest with the administration of it." The congressman will work out of his offices in the federal building at Lubbock in an effort to visit in the 20 counties of his district.

Scaggs' Bond Set At $10,000

Dee Scaggs Jr., indicted Tuesday for murder with malice, will be represented at any future proceedings against him by Gil Jones, former district attorney, and Jack Little, widely known local lawyer.

The two were appointed to defend Scaggs when the man appeared before the court Wednesday afternoon and told the court he had no lawyer nor funds to hire one.

Judge Ralph W. Caton, in announcing the appointment of Jones and Little, said he would set bond for Scaggs, who is in the county jail, at $10,000. Jones agreed the bond was satisfactory.

Scaggs is alleged to have shot Norris Saddler and his son, Curtis Saddler, to death on the night of Oct. 1. He is under indictment for the death of Norris Saddler. No indictment was voted against him in the death of the younger man.

Scaggs is also indicted for assault with intent to murder in the shooting on the night of Sept. 30 of Willie Roy English. This affray, and that involving the Saddlers, were separate and unrelated incidents. Scaggs was at liberty on bond of $2,000 for the English shooting, when he allegedly killed the two Saddlers.

State Hospital Patients' Parade Called A Success

By TOM BARRY

Big Spring State Hospital's Wednesday Halloween parade and carnival was a whopping success, according to Mrs. Mary Cochran of the hospital's volunteer office.

"It was the first one we've had in a while," Mrs. Cochran said, "but it came off without a hitch, and, more important, the patients who were able to participate enjoyed themselves tremendously."

At 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, about 250 patients, dressed as witches, goblins, bunnies, were-wolves and other masked Halloween figures, struck the day's opening note with a 30-minute parade through the hospital grounds, and to hospital wards to entertain less fortunate patients.

Example of the work being done in rehabilitation was pointed out by Mrs. Cochran and Mrs. Otillie Jolley, nursing chief. The man who led off the parade had been almost completely withdrawn from the world until just a short time ago, they said, but there he was, waving and enjoying himself thoroughly, elevating his baton as though the music he was directing came from a 100-piece marching band, rather than three transistor radios staff personnel held.

A young man who probably has a "life-time problem" was awarded the parade costuming honors by four staff doctors who acted as parade judges. He was elaborately dressed as a sort of Shiek of Halloween, complete with a Foreign Legion burnoose and flowing robes. The prize—candy—was awarded him by judges-doctors Robert E. Tinley, Ernest Santoscoy, J. A. Fuentes and David Martz.

"We think the young man deserves the award," Dr. Tinley said, "because it took a lot of real effort and ingenuity to make that costume. We're real proud of him for showing an interest in the parade."

At 7:30 p.m., the carnival got under way in the Allred Building, and, Mrs. Cochran said, "there was real good attendance and all the patients made a real party of the affair. This was a community as well as hospital effort—a club group donated their services to make cotton candy, one man donated popcorn, Ace Ball and his band played for the dance." A radio station played march music starting at 2:30 p.m., so the marchers would have music for the parade.

Concert Listed For Homecoming

The homecoming queen will be announced in a special coronation to be held at 8 p.m. Saturday in the H-SU Chapel-Auditorium.

One of the major highlights Saturday will be the annual alumni luncheon when new officers are presented and the 1965 John J. Keeter Memorial Award will go to the H-SU ex-student who has contributed the most to the university during the past year.

James A. Cassle, Abilene, will become president of the H-SU Alumni Association for 1965-66, succeeding Truett Latimer, Austin. Candidates for the top office for 1966-67 are Dr. William Edgar King and Darrell Knight, both of Abilene.

Money, Battery, Tire Stolen

Three thefts were reported to police Wednesday.

Marcella Darton, 813 E. 3rd, told officers $77 in currency was taken from a dresser drawer in her bedroom late Tuesday. The money was in bills ranging from $10 to $1 denominations, she said. She told detectives only one other person other than herself knew of the cache. There have been no arrests.

A 12-volt car battery was stolen from a car owned by R. M. Myers while it was parked in the 800 block of East Fourth Wednesday, he told officers.

Late Wednesday or early today, Arnold Tonn, manager of Shasta Ford Used Cars, told officers, a tire was stolen from the car lot at 500 W. 4th.

Traffic Wreck Rate Declines

Traffic accident rate in Big Spring continued its fall Wednesday, when only one minor accident occurred. Police are elated over the situation, and attribute part of the decrease in fender-benders to stringent enforcement and use of concealed radar units. They feel the psychological effect is part of the reason for accident rate fall-off —drivers are never sure where radar is, and consequently slow down.

The Wednesday mishap involved the cars of Carl Dale Reid, Coahoma, and Edna Greener Ballard, 422 Ryon, at the intersection of Fourth and Birdwell Lane. Both cars were lightly damaged. Neither driver was injured.

At 8:03 a.m. today, the cars of Ludie Compton Dean, 2223 Lynn, and Mary Fields Bailey, 110 E. 15th, were in collision at the intersection of Eighth and Goliad, officers said. Again only light damage to the vehicles resulted. There were no injuries.

Former Engineer For City Dies

Samuel Clarence Cooper, consulting engineer at Lubbock for the past 20 years and former Big Spring city engineer, died Thursday in Lubbock. Services will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church at Lubbock.

Mr. Cooper served here briefly during World War II, resigning to set up his own consulting service. In this capacity, he did the surveys and engineering on the studies which led to the first city zoning and planning code in 1945-46. He also had done many other projects throughout this area. Surviving are his widow and one daughter.

Woman Accosted, Prowler Escapes

Police reported two sex-tinged incidents Wednesday night.

A local woman's husband told officers late Wednesday his wife was the victim of an attempted attack about 10:55 p.m. Officers said the woman said the attacker grabbed her blouse and ripped it, then ran away.

The attack took place in the 900 block of Goliad Street, officers said. The woman was unable to identify the man, but detectives are investigating.

A prowler peeping in a window of the Howard County Junior College women's dormitory was surprised by a night watchman late Wednesday, but got away, officers said today. Police said today there was no link between the two incidents, because the watchman said the window-peeper was a white man, while the man who ripped the woman's blouse was described as a Negro.

State Baptists Weigh Issues

HOUSTON (AP) — The new president of the 1.7 million-member Baptist General Convention of Texas says the race issue is one of several problems confronting Baptists.

He is the Rev. Carroll Chadwick, 50, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Center, who was elected Wednesday by a 1,501 to 751 vote. The other nominee was the Rev. L. L. Morriss, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Midland.

The Rev. Mr. Chadwick succeeds Dr. Abner McCall, president of Baylor University. He takes office as Baptists weigh the issues of federal aid to religious private colleges and effects of the civil rights movement are being felt in East Texas.

CONVENTION ENDS

The convention's 80th annual session ended today.

Chadwick told newsmen integration was "a matter of record" and Baptist churches are learning to live with it.

He declined comment on whether his church at Center would admit a Negro as member, adding that no such an application ever had been received there.

"I would never refuse to minister to any man, including a Negro," he said.

FROM SHELBY

The Rev. Mr. Chadwick, a robust and soft spoken son of a black land farmer from Shelby County in deep East Texas, has held several executive posts during his 24 years as pastor of the Center church.

The 71st president of Texas Baptists also declined comment on the acceptance of federal loans and grants by Baptist schools and welfare institutions. He said he would leave that to a committee studying the issue.

Dr. McCall, a proponent of federal aid to Baptist colleges, urged Tuesday that the decision rest with the special committee. This group is not expected to make a recommendation for more than a year.

PROBABLY "NAIVE"

The Rev. Mr. Chadwick told newsmen he probably was "naive" when it comes to dealing with controversial issues but is convinced he knows East Texas problems as well as any man.

The Rev. R. H. Dilday Jr., pastor of Houston's Tallowood Baptist Church, was elected first vice president of the convention. Dr. James Harris, pastor of Fort Worth's University Baptist Church, was named second vice president.

Dr. Herbert Howard of Dallas, delivering the convention's annual sermon, said Wednesday that Baptists would compromise the church's freedom if they accepted federal aid.

The pastor of Dallas' Park Cities Baptist Church termed race relations "the greatest single scandal of the church in our times."

He said the gospel proclaims an unmistakable answer to the question of federal aid.

"The gospel of the kingdom says, no! no!", he said. "We cannot, we dare not, we shall not forsake our Christian, our Baptist position, regardless of the consequences of our institutions, by making the state tax others to pay for them."

RACIAL QUESTION

On the racial question, he said:

"We have been shortsighted and faint-hearted and must confess that strange ways and strange names have supplanted us in our arena of influences. Changes have come about for the better lot of the Negro but they have come about in far too many instances, in the wrong way and for the wrong reasons."

A resolution offered Wednesday applauded an announcement that Carling Brewery Co. is closing its Fort Worth operation. The resolution said the "messengers of this convention give praise and glory to our Lord for the circumstances and factors in the failing . . ."

Messengers approved a record budget of $11,677,892, an increase of about $300,000 over the 1965 total.

The biggest item is $3,892,636 for worldwide mission work through the Southern Baptist Convention. The next largest sum is $3,157,500 for Christian education.

Other major allocations are $1,899,009 for human welfare causes, $1,542,912, for state missions, and the bulk of the balance for administration and miscellaneous uses.

Dirksen Set To Fire Away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen is busy these days loading his long rifles for a fresh assault in January on the Johnson administration he alternately plagues and comforts.

The Senate Republican leader, who will turn 70 on Jan. 4, emerged from the first half of the 89th Congress as the Senate's most influential member. He expects to take up in the second session where he left off in the first.

Dirksen's first task will involve a new effort to prevent Senate passage of a House-approved bill to outlaw state bans on the union shop. This is legislation President Johnson wanted.

His second, and perhaps more difficult task, will be to try to line up the necessary two-thirds support for Senate passage of a proposed constitutional amendment to permit voters to apportion one house of their state legislatures on factors other than the Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision.

Johnson hasn't taken a public stand on this but Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, operating under White House guidance, fought it in the last session.

His close relationship with the President has permitted Dirksen to play the alternate roles of political dragon and bedside comforter to the Democratic administration.

While he was whacking away at some of the Johnson domestic proposals and smoothing the way for others, Dirksen has stood solidly behind Johnson on Viet Nam. He upheld the President's hand when many Republicans were firing off blasts at the chief executive's conduct of the war.

Blagrave Is Back As Farm Bureau Prexy

Durwood Blagrave has been returned as president of the Howard County chapter of the Texas Farm Bureau.

Other officers returned at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday evening with W. Arliss Yater, vice president; and Jimmy Taylor, secretary-treasurer.

Directors had been elected at the county convention Oct. 16 at the Howard County Fair Barns. Approximately 350 turned out for this and heard C. H. DeVaney, Coahoma, TFB president.

In Precinct No. 1, Lloyd Robinson was elected a director and B. M. Newton was returned to serve with Durwood Blagrave and Larry Shaw.

From Precinct No. 2, both Jimmy Taylor and Arliss Yater were re-elected to serve with Ralph White and Donald Lay, holdovers.

R. V. Fryar was the new director from No. 3 and J. W. Overton was returned to serve with Neil Fryar and Ross Hill.

Both Ray Walker and Leonard Hanson were re-elected from No. 4 to serve with J. L. Baugh and James Barr.

Homecoming To Close Tech's 40th Anniversary

LUBBOCK—The final weekend of Texas Tech's 40th anniversary celebration will fall on Homecoming (Oct. 29-30), and a galaxy of events are scheduled to make it a time to remember.

Honor guests will be administrators, teachers, employes and students who were on the campus during the 1925-26 school year, members of the Century Club and members of the first Red Raider football team.

Tech's School of Arts and Sciences will conduct open house in all of its departments from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Saturday. The traditional Exes luncheon has been scheduled at Lubbock Municipal Coliseum at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Saturday morning will find the usual multitude of receptions, coffees and teas, plus the big Homecoming Parade. The fifth annual dinner meeting of the Texas Tech Century Club is planned for 6 p.m. Friday in the Tech Union Ballroom. E. F. (Gar) Laux, vice president of Ford Motor Company, will be the speaker at the dinner.

The Homecoming Queen will be crowned in elaborate ceremonies inside Lubbock Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Friday. The coronation, under the sponsorship of the Ex-Students Association and the Student Union, will feature the 10 Homecoming finalists, and campus beauties of 1925 and 1926.

Home Economics ex-students and their families will be honored by the faculty of the Home Economics School at a Homecoming coffee from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the dining room of the Home Economics Building.

The Homecoming Parade, starting at 10 a.m., will start in downtown Lubbock and continue west along Broadway, finally breaking up at the campus entrance. Climaxing Saturday's activities will be the 2 p.m. football game between the Red Raiders and the Rice Owls.

Fur Flies As Election Nears In Philippines

MANILA (AP) — The most free-wheeling democracy in Asia is about to elect a president.

Nowhere do campaigns last longer or raise tempers higher. By election day Nov. 9 the politicians will be exhausted and the people almost deafened.

The men responsible are President Diosdado Macapagal, running for re-election; his opponent, Sen. Ferdinand Marcos; plus 21 contenders for 8 Senate seats and a host of congressional candidates.

LOUD VOICES

The candidates seem to have covered every coconut tree in the Philippines with flamboyant posters. In some 60 major dialects, radio stations shout American-style political jingles. Jeeps with loudspeakers lurch through remote villages that hardly see an automobile from year to year. The old and the young troop to political rallies that last up to 12 hours and end near dawn.

When it is all over, the politics of this young pro-Western and free-enterprise country will be little changed. Of Macapagal and Marcos, a cynic recently remarked with some accuracy: "The only thing they really disagree about is who should be president."

On that score, however, their disagreement is deep, violent and indicative of the complexities of Philippine politics.

Unit two years ago they were political allies of the uneasy sort. They had clashed before, and the final battle seemed fated.

Both hold an honor that marks a man for high office in the Philippines. Each, in his student days, had scored the top mark in the annual nationwide bar exams. In a country that holds learning in deep respect, this rates top headlines. The recipient is expected to go places. The president, 55, naturally had a head start on his opponent, 48.

JUMP AHEAD

In the postwar years they were both members of the Liberal party, early contending for leadership. Macapagal managed to stay one jump ahead each time their interests clashed. In the last presidential campaign, to win the support of Marcos, Macapagal promised to step down after four years and let his younger rival run.

When it became evident that Macapagal would not keep that pledge, Marcos bolted the party and joined the Nacionalistas. This practice is common in the Philippines, where the two major parties differ mainly over spoils and not issues.

In a whirlwind campaign, aided by his wife, Imelda, a former beauty queen, Marcos won the Nacionalista presidential nomination. Macapagal easily won the Liberal nomination, and the stage was set.

Both conventions were more than a year ago. In jeep, outrigger canoe, planes, and whatnot, both candidates have been campaigning ever since.

Going into the final days, the election is rated the closest in Philippine history. Some professionals give Marcos a possible razor-thin popular edge but quickly hedge their bets by noting that Macapagal controls administrative machinery with the inherent ability to sway votes by handouts and other means at the last minute.

WOMEN ACTIVE

One unknown factor will be watched closely, the influence of women. Never before have they taken such an active role as this year. Mrs. Marcos has stumped the country almost as completely as her husband and is widely popular.

Macapagal awakened belatedly to this threat and countered with a more professional attempt at a women's organization on a nationwide level called Kakambimi '65 (the Muses of 1965). Under influential socialite Chito Madrigal Vasquez, the Macapagal women are now moving strongly, but the effort may have come too late.

Marcos, the most decorated Philippine fighter of World War II, has attacked Macapagal's obscure war record. He also has blasted admitted corruption in the government but has failed convincingly to pin anything on Macapagal personally.

The counting also will be complicated by a third-party candidate, Sen. Raul Manglapus, who may get as much as 15 per cent of the total.

Great Society Measures To Affect Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Poverty - stricken women with a knack for making fruitcake, but no customers; the worker whose assembly line world has collapsed because of automation; the girl too embarrassed to go to school because her shoes are worn out; the fatherless child for whom breakfast is something other people eat.

The motorist irked by billboards between him and autumn's splendors; the soul who finds enjoyment in music, painting, ballet, theater; the man-in-a-hurry wondering how to get from place to place in megalopolis; the nature-lover bemoaning the reported slaughter of wildlife by pesticides.

All these people and millions more could be affected, in greater or lesser degree, by what President Johnson calls the "Great Society" measures passed at the first session of the 89th Congress.

PEACETIME HIGH

It was a session in which appropriations for all purposes hit a peacetime high of about $119.3 billion; in which one supplemental appropriation of $4.7 billion, to help finance 35 "Great Society" programs and other activities, equalled the entire cost of government in the fiscal year 1932.

While critics cried "Pedernales panacea" and accused the Johnson administration of a mammoth boondoggle, Congress took what the President's backers called "a great leap forward" in social welfare. Pedernales is the name of the river at the Johnson Texas ranch.

Almost doubled was the money for Sargent Shriver's anti-poverty campaign—from $800 million last fiscal year to $1.5 billion this year. However, the project operated only seven months last year, so the monthly spending rate stays about the same.

Where will this money go, just how will it affect people?

By way of example, Shriver's aides like to tell the story of some Negro women in Lafayette, La. They cooked toothsome fruitcake, but too few customers stopped at their roadside stand.

NOW PROSPERING

Then, with a $25,000 antipoverty loan, they started a cooperative to run a bakery and market the cake.

"Last Christmas saw them over the hump; they are prospering, and thinking of expanding into candy," a Shriver assistant said.

Award Going To First Lady

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The Texas State Historical Survey Committee, opening its annual meeting, will present an award to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson tonight.

The President's wife is among several winners of distinguished service awards. Hers is for work in restoring Johnson's birthplace on the LBJ Ranch and his boyhood home at Johnson City.

Another history-minded group, a Texas Legislative Council committee studying plans for preserving historical forts and missions, also met today.

The committee planned to question witnesses familiar with former frontier outposts. Committee members are Sen. J. P. Word of Meridian and Reps. Gene Hendryx of Alpine, Wayne Gibbens of Breckenridge, R. G. Pendleton of Andrews and Richard Slack of Pecos.

Connally Hits Birch Society

MCALLEN, Tex. (AP)—Gov. John Connally lashed out at the John Birch Society Tuesday when newsmen asked his opinion on the group.

He said members of the society have "drifted somewhat into the background, which I think is fine. I wish they would stay there."

Connally added:

"Actually and seriously, it's an organization, I suppose, where people band together to try to express their feelings. I think it's a pretty poor way to do it, however."

Connally visited here after speaking Monday night at a migrant school seminar attended by some 400 teachers and administrators.

Farm Total Down, But Products Climb

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—The number of farms in Rhode Island declined by 280 between 1959 and 1964 but the total value of all farm products sold rose by $200,000.

Mike Jordan Is New 2-4A Rushing King

New rushing leader in District 2-AAAA football is Mike Jordan of Odessa Permian, who had a field day against Midland Lee last week.

After three conference games, Jordan has rushed for gains netting 237 yards in 29 attempts for a robust 8.1-yard average.

Terry Collins of San Angelo, the former pace setter, dropped to second place with gains totaling 211 yards in 28 tries for a 7.5-yard average.

Only one other player, Julio Guerrero of San Angelo, is over the 200-yard mark in total pickups, with 205 paces in 27 rushes for a 7.5-yard average.

Tony Conley of Permian has been the busiest of the ball carriers, having carried the ball 51 times. His net yardage is 197, which averages out to 3.8-yards a carry.

Top passer in the league is Eddie Harris of Odessa High, who has gained 264 yards on 20 completions. He has had four aerials intercepted and thrown two for touchdowns.

Frankie Stringer of San Angelo is the leading receiver, with ten catches good for 179 yards and three touchdowns.

No. one punter is Mitch Robertson of Cooper, with a remarkable 47.7-yard average while four boys share the lead in scoring, each with 18 points. They are Stringer, Collins, Jordan and Guerrero.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

A District 2-AAAA school has been scouting Big Spring in every game it has played this season.

That's strictly contrary to conference rules but no penalty was set up for violations by the executive committee.

* * * *

It uses other terminology but the Abilene High coaching staff likes to credit the football team's winning tradition to a nobility of spirit.

Coach Wally Bullington remarked following last Friday night's game with Big Spring that the Eagles made up their minds at half time to win the game and did just that.

The local coaches prefer to think the Steers' own mistakes, which are correctable, led to their own demise.

Be that is it may, it's going to take "pride in product" or a nobility in spirit, if you prefer, for the Longhorns to keep going in the District 2-AAAA race, now that they are on the brink of extinction from the championship race.

It's not easy to get off the mat and make a run at the opposition after you've been down twice but perhaps the Longhorns fight better after they've been given a going over. Time will tell.

Abilene Cooper, the Steers' next opponent, will prove no easy hurdle. The Cougars have come on strong after that humiliating defeat at the hands of Brownwood a few weeks ago. They haven't won but they're hungry, as they so conclusively proved against Odessa Permian recently.

In order to play better than .500 ball within the conference, the Steers must win three out of their last four games.

* * * *

Opponents of the Steers have mastered the technique of putting the big rush on Van Tom Whatley, the Big Spring quarterback, because they know he has trouble seeing over surging linemen in upright positions.

He stands only 5-feet-9. Big Spring's 1964 navigator, Benny Kirkland, was 6-1 and, because of his statute, had far less difficulty spotting a receiver down field.

* * * *

Probably West Texas' best example of a one-man team was Aspermont, which opened the season as one of the favorites in District 6-A.

The Hornets did reasonably well until 250-pound James Ray injured his knee. Aspermont all but collapsed when the big fullback limped to the sidelines.

Ray, who gave Coahoma a lot of trouble last year before the Bulldogs ultimately prevailed, 33-14, underwent a knee operation last week and will never play another down of high school football.

* * * *

Some observers say Coahoma's high-riding Bulldogs may be a little weaker this year than last due to an absence of big linemen, but the figures don't prove them out.

In 11 games last year, the Bulldogs averaged 35.5 points a start, compared to 9.2 for the opposition. Through seven contests this fall, the Howard County club has averaged an incredible 40.9 points a start while giving up an average of only 5.7 to the common foe—and coach Spike Dykes had made more liberal use of his substitutes this year than last.

Through seven starts last year, the Bulldogs were averaging 34.1 points a game while surrendering an average of 3.9.

South Plains Is First In Race

One of the biggest upsets in West Texas athletics this fall has been the manner in which South Plains College of Levelland has taken charge in the Western Conference golf race.

Odessa College ordinarily dominates the scramble for the championship but the Wranglers are no better than third now, and it's the No. Two tandem for Odessa that occupies that position.

South Plains' twosome shot a 150 at Amarillo last Saturday for a first place finish and has 24 points after two rounds of competition.

Odessa's No. Two team posted a 152 in Saturday's round to build their current point aggregate to 17½ points.

Frank Phillips College of Borger was third Saturday, with a total of 154 strokes but Amarillo College held onto second place The Badgers were fourth Saturday, having used 155 strokes.

Odessa's No. One team, sixth behind NMMI Saturday, is fourth in the standings with 17 points.

Other standings, after the second round of competition, include:

(5) NMMI No. 2, 16½; (6) Frank Phillips No. 1 and Frank Phillips No. 2, tied with 14 each; (8) Amarillo No. 2, 10½; (9) NMMI, 9; (10) HCJC No. 1, 5; (11) HCJC No. 2, 4½; (12) Lubbock Christian, 4.

Joe Arrendodo of South Plains was medalist for the day with a 74. Norman Patterson was the leading HCJC scorer with a 78. HCJC's first team posted a score of 163 Saturday while the Jayhawks' No. 2 twosome wound up with a 167, tying it with NMMI for tenth place for the day.

LCC was dead last in Saturday's play, with an aggregate score of 178—28 strokes off the winning pace.

Next round of competition will be held in Levelland Nov. 6.

Baseball May Select Czar In December

NEW YORK (AP) — Ford Frick, who will retire as commissioner of baseball when his seven-year-term comes to an end this winter, feels confident his successor will be elected at the winter meetings in Miami Beach in December.

"If they don't," he said today, "I'll be disappointed."

The major league owners delayed action of a new czar at their recent meeting in Chicago but empowered a four-man committee to investigate, interrogate and recommend a candidate for nomination at the winter meetings.

HE'LL STAY

Asked whether he would stay on if a commissioner were not named in December, Frick said:

"I don't intend to fight a war with the owners, but I'll stay only within reason. I don't propose to be a lame duck forever, just hanging on from week to week.

"If they elect a man from within baseball, there will be no reason for me to stay around. If they go outside for a commissioner, he'll have to have a little help and I'll stay on for a little while. In that event, I'll be shooting for January of next year."

If it were up to Frick, the owners would replace him with a man from baseball.

"I'm about to retire and officially I have no voice in the choice of my successor," he said. "But all things being equal, I'd like to see them name a baseball man.

"Having been commissioner for 15 years, I know the main problems that are faced in the commissioner's office. They are mainly baseball problems and, therefore, a baseball man is better equipped to handle them.

"Another thing the owners should recognize is that it is a working job and not a show-window job. In other words, you want a man who knows baseball and will work 24 hours a day at it."

GROUP DOUBLED

The screening committee, originally comprised of owners John Fetzer of Detroit and John Galbreath of Pittsburgh, has been doubled to include owners Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs and Bob Reynolds of the California Angels.

"We will not recommend a candidate without unanimous agreement," said Fetzer. "It could be one candidate or it could be as many as four or five. The election will be done by the 20 owners."

Frick's discourse on the commissionership took place following a press conference in which he revealed that the Los Angeles Dodgers each collected $10,297.43 for winning the 1965 World Series. The losing Minnesota Twins each pocketed $6,634.36.

Neither figure was a record. The 1963 Dodgers earned $12,794 and the losing Yankees that year got $7,894.32.

Second place money amounted for $1,873.52 for the Chicago White Sox and $1,856.31 for the San Francisco Giants.

Poliwogs Slash Baylor Frosh

FORT WORTH (AP)—Texas Christian lashed Baylor 25-6 Wednesday night to push into first place in Southwest Conference freshman football.

The Wogs were winning their third straight. Southern Methodist and Texas also are undefeated but have played only two games.

Ross Montgomery scored two touchdowns, Mike Hall one and Norman Bulaich one in the TCU conquest.

Steve Lane got the Baylor touchdown at the end of a 75-yard drive.

Scout Promoted

DETROIT (AP) — Vince A. Desmond, a subscout with Detroit and before that a scout for the Baltimore Orioles, has been named director of group sales and special events for the Tigers.

Aerial Traffic Is Due To Be Heavy

By The Associated Press

The footballs are expected to fly right, left and obnoxious in Southwest Conference football Saturday if a hint can be taken from the way the boys are practicing.

Arkansas, the conference leader that tries to fight off a challenge from Texas A&M, spent most of its time Wednesday working on pass-defense.

The Razorbacks have had 105 passes completed on them this season and the Aggies are quite cognizant of it. The Aggies warmed up for an air assault on Arkansas by throwing 22 against Baylor last week.

Texas Christian coach Abe Martin named Kent Nix as his starting quarterback for the game with Baylor after Nix had shown some nifty tossing in practice.

That makes two since Baylor passes just for exercise and then doubles the production in a game.

Baylor coach John Bridgers had more worries than the TCU passing attack. Regular guard Benny Brott may not be able to play for Baylor's offensive unit because of a practice field injury.

Texas tried to stop the Southern Methodist offense when the freshmen worked against the varsity and the results, said a spokesman for coach Darrell Royal, were negative.

The Longhorns also had difficulty handling the SMU defense, Southern Methodist used its freshmen to simulate the Texas offense and defense and apparently had better luck since the results of the project weren't revealed.

Rice was a trifle dejected when offensive tackle Leroy Ryza sprained his ankle during scrimmage and may not be able to play against Texas Tech at Lubbock Saturday. And coach Jess Neely didn't think the Wednesday workout was very good. The team didn't show much life, he observed.

Coach J. T. King of Texas Tech shifted some players in order to bolster his defense that has sagged because of injuries. The chief change was to send offensive starting tackle John Porter to first team defense. King said Porter rated well in the workout.

Texas A&M lost a player to an injury while he was studying in the dormitory. Defensive end Grady Allen's bruised thigh hemorrhaged and he will be out for the rest of the season.

Allen couldn't recall definitely when he hurt the thigh but it must have been against Baylor Saturday, since there has been no contact work this week.

PATE TAKES OVER

Six B Teamers Promoted Here

Six boys have been promoted from the Big Spring High School B team to replace the half dozen who resigned from the squad Tuesday.

The former B teamers who are now performing with the varsity are Jerry Ryan, Steve Riordan, Lonnie Clanton, Ronnie Wrightsil, Francis Ethum and Chuck Smith.

Ryan and Riordan will be available for tackle duties against Abilene Cooper Friday night. Clanton is a back, Wrightsil a linebacker, Ethum a back and Chuck Smith a center.

Gregg Pate, who distinguished himself at the position in the annual spring game, will take over as the regular quarterback. Pate has been used principally on defense in games this fall.

Gregg is a brother to Dexter Pate, a former all-state center for the Steers.

In the wake of the resignations Tuesday, some of the boys are going to have to play both ways for the Steers Friday night.

The six who quit the squad were Van Tom Whatley, Freddie Stiehl, Terry Fields, Ronnie Dale Smith, Donnie Baker and Harrell Newton, all seniors.

Most of the boys brought up from the B team are sophomores.

Gary Rogers, a regular on defense for the Longhorns, will back up Pate at the quarterback spot Friday night.

The Steers, 4-2 on the season, have four games remaining this season.

Runnels Teams To Meet Travis On Snyder Sod

Two Runnels Junior High football teams hit the road today, moving to Snyder for games with Travis Junior High.

The eighth graders play at 6 p.m. while the ninth graders take the field about 7:30 p.m.

This will be the first meeting of the teams. Travis sends its clubs here next week to return the visit.

Runnels' ninth graders are 2-3-1 this season. The Yearlings beat Snyder Lamar, 30-6, and San Angelo Edison, 22-14, tied Sweetwater, 6-6, and lost to Sweetwater, 8-6, San Angelo Lee, 32-8, and Snyder Lamar, 18-16.

The eighth grade Yearlings are Big Spring's only undefeated team that has been in competition with out-of-city clubs. They have five straight decisions.

The Runnels team opened with a 14-6 decision over Sweetwater, then knocked off Snyder Lamar, 8-6, Sweetwater again, 28-6, San Angelo Edison, 22-6, and Snyder Lamar again, 28-8.

After the series with Travis, the two local clubs have only one game remaining. Those will be against each other the evening of Nov. 13.

Griffin Is Named

ANDREWS — C. G. Griffin, one-time Big Spring resident, has been named president of the West Texas PGA. The election took place here Wednesday.

Player Sets New Record

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Gary Player of South Africa shot a sizzling 11-under-par 62 and clipped four strokes off the Kooyonga course record in the first round of the Australian Open Golf Championship today.

Player, the U.S. Open champion, fashioned a nine-under-par 28 on the outgoing nine. The score is believed to be a world record for nine holes in open title play.

Jack Nicklaus of Columbus, Ohio, was ready to tee off when Player's nine-hole total was posted. "I have never seen anything like it," Nicklaus exclaimed.

Player carded a 34 for the last nine holes to wind up with the 62. He and seven others had held the previous course record of 66.

Goliad And Edison Collide At 7:30

Goliad's ninth graders seek their third victory of the season in a 7:30 p.m. game here this evening with San Angelo Edison. The Mavericks have lost four times.

Goliad opened with a 26-6 victory over Snyder Lamar and followed up with an 18-14 decision at the expense of Snyder Travis.

The Mavs have fallen upon hard times since then, however. They lost a return game to Lamar, 24-0, then yielded to San Angelo Lee, 20-0, Snyder Travis, 12-0, and last week were cuffed around by Sweetwater, 30-18.

Goliad has been beset by physical infirmities but their quarterback, Ford Farris, will probably return to action on a regular basis tonight.

Edison brings a 3-3 record here. The Crimson Tide has shown a lot of improvement in its last couple of games, having blown down Lamar, 22-0, and routed San Angelo Lake View, 34-6.

The other Edison win was in the season's opener with Sweetwater. The Tide won that one, 8-6.

The Edison defeats have come at the hands of the San Angelo Sophomores, 24-6; Brownwood, 28-0, and Big Spring Runnels, 22-14.

Up until the game with the San Angelo Sophs, the Edison team had won 19 games in a row over three years.

James Amos coaches the San Angelo team while Jack Tayrien is the Goliad mentor.

Danny Trusler, who weighs 139 pounds, will be at the controls for Edison. Other San Angelo backs are Mike Ingram, Pete Gober and Junior Luna.

Probable starters on offense for Goliad, listed with weights: E—Richard Walling 128 and James Newman 136; T — Cliff Cook 153 and Jimmy Wilson 140; G—Bill Henry 163 and Gary Chrane 134; C—Kyle McAlister 132; QB—Ford Farris 139; HB—Gregg Lewis 141 and Kenneth Barfield 136; FB—Ronnie Broadrick 147.

On defense, Terry Jenkins, 144, goes in at linebacker for Broadrick; Kenneth Brown, 117, for Farris at halfback; and Charles Kimble, 136, at rover for Walling.

Coach Tayrien will suit out about 32 boys. Missing from the fray will be Charles Lewis, a guard; fullback Steve Russell and Gary Kelly.

Navarro Shines

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Right-hander Julio Navarro of the Detroit Tigers scattered three hits and struck out nine in pitching the Caguas Criollos to a 4-1 victory over the winless Santruce Crabbers Wednesday night in a Puerto Rican winter league baseball game.

Calgary Blanked

CALGARY, Alta. (AP) — The Winnipeg Blue Bombers blanked Calgary 22-0 Wednesday night and moved into a first-place tie with the Stampeders in the Western Conference of the Canadian Football League. Fullback Art Perkins scored a pair of touchdowns for the Bombers.

To Defend Crown

PANAMA (AP) — Ismael Laguna, the world lightweight boxing champion from Panama, will make his first defense of the crown in San Juan, P.R., on Nov. 13 against Carlos Ortiz, the former champion, it was announced Wednesday.

Texas Grid Races Near The Stretch

By The Associated Press

District championships go on the line in many instances this weekend as the Texas schoolboy football race pounds into the stretch.

All attention surrounds conference play with no district title to be mathematically determined but top favorites to be decided in every area.

Texarkana, the No. 1 team of Class AAAA, clashes with Lufkin in search of a second district triumph that would keep the Tigers in at least a tie for the lead.

Dumas, the top-rated team of Class AAA, takes on Canyon while the other two teams tied for the district lead with Dumas—Hereford and Perryton—battle at Perryton.

Alpine, ranked No. 1 in Class AA, meets McCamey in the start of the district race. There are only four teams in Alpine's district. Crane and Marfa, the other two, tangle at Crane.

Three Rivers, kingpin of Class A's ratings, rests atop its district and plays twice-beaten Stockdale.

Probably the feature game of Class AAAA sends highly ranked Dallas Woodrow Wilson against Dallas Kimball in a fight of the leaders in the south zone of the Dallas district.

Corsicana and Bryan, the only unbeaten teams in the north zone of District 13, get together at Corsicana in another top game.

In Class AAA, Conroe and Huntsville vie for the lead in district 10. So do Bay City and Lamar Consolidated in District 11 and Del Rio and South San Antonio in District 15.

Class AA also has some leadership battles, such as Abernathy and Friona in District 3, Marlin and West in District 12, Columbus and La Grange in District 19, Needville and Sweeny in District 24 and Freer and Hebbronville in District 31.

There are plenty of clashes to decide district leaderships in Class A—Wellington vs. White Deer, Plains vs. Seagraves, San Augustine and Timpson, Franklin and Groesbeck, Thorndale and Rogers, Schulenburg and Smithville.

Forty-four undefeated, untied teams are left and this number will be reduced to about 35 when the firing ceases.

Supporting Viet Nam Policy

Students from the Educational Institute of Pittsburgh and the University of Pittsburgh display signs supporting the U.S. policy in Viet Nam at a rally on the Pitt campus. The rally ended with the singing of The Star-Spangled Banner. (AP WIREPHOTO)

Viet Nam Dissenters Said Only A 'Small Hard Core'

By The Associated Press

Viet Nam protest movements on U.S. college campuses involve only a small hard core of dissenters, top officials of 85 colleges and universities told The Associated Press today.

Put into perspective, members of the protest organizations — anti- Viet Nam and antidraft — represent only a minute fraction of the total number of students on each campus.

In some cases the number is fewer than 25 among enrollments of 12,000 and more.

An Associated Press poll of college officials from coast to coast showed a large number of schools having no organized dissent at all to U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

And the antidraft movement involves even fewer students.

"The rank and file of American college students are pretty conservative," said Dr. Hurst R. Anderson, president of American University in Washington, D.C.

"Some like to shock their conservative parents by going home and saying things like 'I've turned Socialist'," he said. "They are sincere about it, but maybe the sincerity is pretty thin."

Noting that 500 students among the 7,500 at Texas Western College at El Paso paraded in support of U.S. policy, the president, Dr. Joseph Ray, said: "We think our students show that good citizenship is not new to a college campus. Their responsible voices can be heard above the bawling of a few social dissents."

NOT OVER 25

Dr. Ralph Bursiek, senior vice president of the University of Cincinnati, said he estimates that no more than 20 to 25 of the school's 14,000 day students and 10,000 night students are involved in the protests.

"I don't think reports of thousands of students participating gives an accurate picture," he said. "When you divide that by the number of colleges you wind up with a very minute particle."

At the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, where students were among the 38 persons arrested during a sit-in at the Selective Service office, Richard L. Cutler, vice president for student affairs, said he believed only 100 to 150 students are engaged in anti- Viet Nam activities. The school has an enrollment of 34,453.

Asked if he thought the movement is Communist-inspired, Cutler replied: "I think not. However, hard core Communists — professional Communists — are always attracted to centers of disorder. They are eager to assist in the disruption of order. I do not believe these movements are Communist-dominated, but I dare say there are a few Communists participating in this."

AID COMMUNISTS

On the Michigan campus senior Stanley Nadel, 21, of Ann Arbor, said he is chairman of the Committee to Aid the Vietnamese. He said about 25 students are selling Vie Cong postage stamps and lapel pins to aid the Communists.

Three organizations promoting protests at Michigan State University at East Lansing are the May Second Movement, Students for a Democratic Society and the Humanist Society.

Louis Hekhuis, director of student affairs at MSU, said, "My personal, unofficial estimate of the strength of this entire movement is less than one per cent of the student body — and I'll go even lower if pressed."

"If you look at the membership roster of any of these groups you'll find members of some of the others," he said.

The university has an enrollment of 35,000 students.

Charles McClure, associate dean of students at UCLA, Los Angeles, said, "There are 15 to 20 people who run all the protest groups and are the sole members. They have a very, very small following in terms of their absolute position, but a large following in that people are interested in any issue."

McClure said he did not think more than 100 students among the more than 20,000 would be sufficiently dedicated to hold a protest sign or make a speech.

A spokesman for the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque, where 12,000 students are enrolled, said there is a W.E.B. DuBois Club that is not sanctioned by the university. It has about eight to 12 members.

Demonstrators Given Delinquency Sentences

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Nine teenage civil rights demonstrators, branded juvenile delinquents by a judge, received indefinite sentences to reformatories Wednesday.

County Judge Amos Gates sentenced six girls to the Crockett State School and three boys to the Gatesville School for Boys. Another was placed on probation.

The nine were arrested along with three adults Tuesday during a demonstration in the halls of all-Negro Sam Houston High School.

Gates said the teenagers were juvenile delinquents, guilty of habitually violating Huntsville city ordinances.

Highway patrolmen arrested the husband of a woman charged in the demonstration, the Rev. Richard Boone of Alabama. He was charged with failure to have a Texas driver's license and Texas license plates on his car.

Big Overhaul For Catholics

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI and the Vatican Ecumenical Council decreed a drastic overhaul of the government of the Roman Catholic Church today and bound their Church's half billion members to a new and friendlier approach to Jews and other non-Christians.

Meeting in the splendor of St. Peter's Basilica, the 68-year-old Roman Catholic pontiff and 2,200 prelates from around the world formally proclaimed five decrees previously approved by the council.

By their action in the public council meeting, the Pope and his bishops wrote a new chapter in the 2,000-year chronicle of their Church. They moved to modernize the structure of church government that has grown up since the Inquisition.

NOTE ANNIVERSARY

The decrees were proclaimed on the seventh anniversary of the election of Pope John XXIII, who brought the council into being. And the Pope and the bishops promulgated as many council decrees as were approved in the first three sessions of the assembly that John convened.

One decree, titled "On The Relation of The Church to Non-Christian Religions," declares that the Jewish people as a whole "cannot be charged" with the crucifixion of Christ. Ordering a new course in Catholic relations with other non-Christians, it alludes to the Christian-Moslem wars of the Crusades and "urges all to forget the past."

The longest decree, a 10,000-word document titled "Concerning The Pastoral Office of Bishops in The Church," endorses a synod or senate of bishops to advise the Pope and urges a reorganization of the predominantly conservative Vatican Curia — the central administration of the Church — to make it more representative of the entire Church.

STATE SUBSIDIES

A third decree, "On Christian Education," suggests that parochial schools be included in any subsidies given to education by the state. It also goes into general principles of education, proposing among other things that children be given a "positive and prudent" sex education.

The other two decrees deal with the modernization of priestly training in seminaries and of life in religious orders.

With their promulgation the decrees were made public for the first time since the council started work on them. However, most of the essentials had become known during the lengthy council sessions of debate and voting.

The decree's guidelines for reform of the Vatican Curia had been awaited with particular interest.

HOLDS SURPRISE

As expected, the decree calls for a more international representation in the Curia, which has been largely Italian. But it had a surprise, saying that diocesan bishops — those living outside Rome — should also "be chosen as members" of Curia departments.

Such bishops presumably would continue to head their dioceses outside of Rome, unlike present Curia members, who take up residence in the Italian capital.

Water Laws Pose Doubts

AUSTIN (AP) — New water planning legislation providing trans - basin river diversions contains a provision that may create serious problems, two authors report in the Texas Law Review.

Law professor Corwin Johnson and law review article editor Larry Knippa analyzed laws passed by the 59th Legislature, including a provision aimed at protecting East Texas water sources.

The statute authorizes the Texas Water Development Board to consider diversion of water from one river basin to another in preparing a statewide water plan. But it prohibits planning of any trans-basin diversions unless enough water is left to supply the first basin's reasonably foreseeable needs for 50 years.

"The probable impact of this provision upon the course of development of the water resources of the state is uncertain, but could be severe," the article says. "The severity of the impact of which 50-year limitations will depend largely upon the manner in which the board does its job."

Johnson and Knippa said the 50-year provision seems to create a preference for needs of the basin of origin, "regardless of the nature and importance of such needs compared with the needs of other regions."

Donkey Settles Court Squabble

LUBUSKI, Yugoslvia (AP) — Simum Kolabaric, 80, a farmer, lost his 16-year-old donkey in the hills. Later Simun's grandson, a taxi driver, thought he recognized the animal at a nearby village.

Ante Medic, another farmer, said the donkey belonged to him.

While a court argument went on, villagers led the donkey to a farms and turned the animal loose. The donkey ambled straight to Simun's stable. The court ruled Simun the owner and ordered Ante to pay trial costs.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Try Baking Potato With Onion Slice

Dear Folks:

Sometime ago, a sweet woman wrote and suggested that I cut a big baking potato in half, and insert a large, thick slice from a cooking onion between the halfs before wrapping it in foil and baking it.

It's out on cloud nine again! (I wish we lived there; don't you?)

HELOISE

I cut my big slice of onion nearly a half-inch thick, but you can slice yours thinner if you like.

I also learned to salt and pepper both cut halves of the potato before baking it.

One day I used garlic salt in place of the salt and pepper, and it was a knockout, too, but be sure to serve this only on weekends, if you don't want your husband going to work with garlic breath the next day!

When this onion-potato is served, cut through the foil and all with a big X, and either mash it a little bit or use a fork to break up the center, so your butter or sour cream will go down into the spud.

The aroma and taste is out of this world. Why not give this a whirl some day when you are in the potato baking mood? . . . Potato Gal Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I put a small flashlight inside the Jack-o'-lantern that the children carry at Halloween. It can be used all evening, with no fear of fire, either indoors or out. . . Mrs. Lena Stroheker

* * *

Dear Heloise:

The casters on my bedroom furniture slipped out every time I moved the furniture, until I finally came up with the idea of wrapping a strip of adhesive tape around the stems of the casters 'til they fit snugly in the holes.

Sort of first aid for ailing casters, huh? . . . Mrs. L. C. Munn

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I found a beautiful old decanter in mother's attic, but the cork had gotten down into it.

Is there any way I can remove it, without risking chipping or breaking the bottle? . . . Jan Sims

* * *

Sure is, Jan. Pour enough ammonia into the bottle so that the cork will float. Forget about it for several days, and the ammonia will have "gnawed" the cork down to a size where it can be poured right out of the decanter! . . . Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Often, during the week, I see things about the house that I want to include with my next wash, such as rugs, doilies, etc., but cannot put them in the hamper just then because they are in use.

I attach a note to my hamper to remind me to include those articles in my next wash.

I also pin a note to the ironing board to press a certain article the next time the board is in use. . . M. W.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

Not being one to throw out anything if it can possibly be used, I eyed the plastic ice cube tray my wife was ready to discard.

The thought hit me that it would be ideal for keeping various sizes of screws, bolts and washers separated in my work shop.

If you don't happen to have an old ice cube tray, the bottom half of an egg carton could be used for the same purpose . . . Elmer Gray

Lobbyist Knack: Subtle Persuasion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evelyn Dubrow is 48 years old and 5 feet tall and she flits about Congress like a merry bird, doing her chores for the Ladies' Garment Workers Union.

She is a lobbyist.

Clarence Mitchell is 54, a quiet-spoken Negro who combines gentleness with the toughness that comes from self-discipline. He used to be a newspaperman, but for 20 years has been with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP).

He is a lobbyist.

With the session over, they'll be busy again in January.

Like a monstrous iceberg, the U.S. government is eight-ninths hidden. Far below the surface many forces heave and tug to shape it to their image.

Among these heavers and tuggers toil the professional lobbyists—to some the most misunderstood and to many other the most maligned of the many groups that hover around the mammoth federal government.

Lobbyists are nothing new to this nation.

Long before the republic was born, almost every colony kept paid agents in London to defend interests, legislatively and commercially.

CLICHE IMAGE

A cliche image cling to the lobbyist: That he is a sinister, oily character who gladly turns to bribery, either with cash or with its recreational equivalent, wine, women and song to corrupt legislators.

With stakes so high — a juicy federal budget of $100 billion a year — hanky panky is bound to slither in. But repeated congressional investigations and private studies show that this is most likely to occur among another group: The influence peddlers, those who know, or pretend to know, the right people to latch on to a government contract.

Today's lobbyist works more subtly, at least at the national level. He prefers to persuade congressmen that the bill he wants is what the lawmakers' constituents want, too, and to persuade constituents they should write their congressmen and tell them so.

Since Clarence Mitchell has helped shepherd through a succession of civil rights bills, he has to be ranked among the most successful lobbyists in history.

No one really knows what a lobbyist is. "One who tries to get legislators to support certain measures," is the customary definition, but this is too limiting to be realistic. A smart lobbyist scurries all over town — and far into the country, too — pushing his wares.

AROUND 1,200

Washington has around 1,200 lobbyists, including 20 former senators and about 80 onetime members of the House of Representatives, but precise figures are hard to come by.

Although lobbying may be respectable — Abe Fortas, the new Supreme Court justice, was a lobbyist — its practitioners shun the word. They call themselves legislative consultants or executive secretaries or lawyers who happen to have clients who happen to be interested in certain bills.

Because he has been made so mysterious, it is easy to overestimate what a lobbyist can do.

Consider the plight of the American Medical Association.

For 20 years its lobbyists skillfully fought what they called the threatened encroachment of socialized medicine. But in 1964 when Lyndon B. Johnson won big, and carried with him a big Democratic majority into Congress, their cause became desperate.

They fought on. They spent almost a million dollars on a write-your-congressman campaign in their attempt to block medical care for the aged under Social Security.

AGAINST THEM

But the votes were against them, and they knew it.

It grieves AMA officials that they are so closely identified with lobbying. In a normal year, they say, out of a budget of $20 million they may spend only $60,000 on lobbying.

NAACP headquarters are a few blocks from the Capitol. Here Clarence Mitchell gave his tenet for successful lobbying:

"One basic thing is trying to be fair with everybody, and not play any tricks."

Mitchell attempts to know, and to get along with, all 535 members of Congress. While his relationship with some ardent segregationists is understandably cool, he may have a unique distinction: Nobody else, including the Southerners, has heard so many arguments against civil rights.

Evelyn Dubrow believes her lobbying extends beyond her employers, the garment workers, into the general welfare.

"We're for anything in education," she said. "We're made up of so many women — and none of them wants her children to go into the garment industry."

Lobbyists for foreign countries have been severely criticized, mostly because a few have hidden motives while a few others have taken speculative accounts; that is, their income was tied to the amount of legislation they got.

In leading a fight to tighten regulations, the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said:

"Lobbying has been held by the court to be an important expression of the right to petition — 'the healthy essence of the democratic process,' as a federal court has said.

"A foreign government or interest does not have the same right of petition under our Constitution. Should it be permitted to acquire such a right by hiring and directing a U.S. agent?"

Commercials Interspersing Movie Fought

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie - TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Does a movie maker have the right to prevent his work from being cut and interspersed with commercials on television? George Stevens thinks so.

This week he took on NBC, Paramount, sponsors, ad agencies, et al, to prevent his classic "A Place in the Sun" from being "disjointed and dismembered" on television. The movie is scheduled for "Saturday Night at the Movies" this season, but Stevens hopes to prevent it.

Stevens called a news conference to announce his suit. He told of watching "Stalag 17" on NBC last Saturday and he enumerated in detail the 42 commercials during the show. "Each was a story in itself," said the director.

"LIKE SYMPHONY"

"'A Place in he Sun' was designed like a symphony," he declared, adding that it couldn't possibly be appreciated with 42 interruptions.

What are his chances? Otto Preminger sued to prevent showing of "Anatomy of a Murder" on three ABC stations. A New York Supreme Court justice refused to stop the showings but said a trial could determine whether the film could be cut on television.

PROUD OF EX

Richard Burton is astounded, and just a bit proud, of the way his ex-wife Sybil Burton Christopher has become the darling of the "In" crowd of New York. The reason: Sybil's hostessing of the city's swingingest discotheque, Arthur.

"Why, her table at Arthur is the most favored spot in all of New York," said Burton. "Customers call on the telephone to make sure Sybil is there before they come to Arthur's."

Burton, who is an investor in the night club, said his former wife had offers to open Arthurs in Chicago, Denver, San Francisco, Hollywood and elsewhere. "I advised her against it," he remarked. "She would be spending most of her life in airplanes."

Job Program Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department announced today it is stepping up its efforts to help members of minority groups find jobs.

Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz said 50 new full-time specialists will be put to work in federal-state employment service offices, some on a statewide basis and others to concentrate in metropolitan areas.

The specialists will be state employes, paid out of federal grants to the states for operation of employment service offices.

"Despite the exceptional gains in employment made in recent years the unemployment rate for nonwhites continues at more than double that of white workers" Wirtz said.

"Intensified efforts to develop more job opportunities for members of minority groups are obviously necessary."

Wirtz said the specialists will work with private employers, civil rights groups and civic, business and labor organizations.

Oil Pollution Hearings Due February Start

AUSTIN (AP)—A legislator-layman committee studying water pollution problems will resume hearings Dec. 8 in Houston.

The committee spent Monday and Tuesday questioning witnesses on problems in the Galveston Bay and San Antonio River Basin areas.

Sen. Culp Krueger of El Campo, the chairman, said hearings also will be held at Dallas, probably in February, on upstream pollution, and in the Midland-Odessa area on oil and gas pollution.

Parade Protests Yule War Toys

HAWTHORNE, Calif. (AP) — Eighteen young pickets paraded here to protest the manufacture of war toys.

A marcher, John Gazurian, explained that with the approach of Christmas, it's hypocritical to preach "peace on earth, good will toward men" and "then give the kid a machine gun."

Plane-On-Skis Pilot A Legend

SION, Switzerland (AP) — Hundreds of Alpinists owe their lives to the daredevil skill of a man who has revolutionized mountain rescue.

Nineteen years ago Hermann Geiger first confounded the experts by using skis to land a small American plane on a glacier. Since then he has rescued 3,182 injured mountain climbers. He has also accomplished the grisly task of recovering 622 bodies from the mountains.

HERO, LEGEND

Geiger, 52, has become a national hero and a legend throughout the Alps. He has made 35,000 mountain landings, including 10,000 on glaciers, and logged 20,000 hours of flying without a major mishap. Many of the climbers he rescued, by two-seater plane or helicopter, probably would have died had they waited for conventional climbing teams to reach them.

One of 13 children in a mountain family, Geiger decided in his youth that country life was not for him. He managed to get fliers to teach him at Sion's airfield and when only 16 years old won his pilot's license. After World War II Geiger became convinced that aircraft could be used to save lives in the mountains.

CALLED CRACKPOT

The authorities strongly disapproved of what they thought was a crackpot idea, especially as he was experimenting with planes bought with public money. One wrecked plane would have ended his career.

But Geiger never crashed. His dramatic rescues began getting notice. After three years press and public opinion forced the Swiss government to recognize his activities.

Geiger's exploits have won him enough medals to fill a sack. Most treasured is the St. Gregory Knight of Honor Medal, complete with uniform, awarded to him by Pope John XXIII for rescuing more than 300 injured Italians in the Swiss Alps.

KNOWS GLACIERS

"I know these mountains and the glaciers like the back of my hand," Geiger said. "I don't take any risks. Of course it wasn't so easy at first making those pioneer landings on snowfields and glaciers. But even then I made a thorough study of the area before setting off."

In the climbing season, from April to October, Geiger and his colleagues get an average of two calls a day to help distressed climbers.

They are also called upon to perform a wide range of other tasks, such as dropping food to isolated mountain villagers and to cattle marooned by snow, helping fight forest fires, carrying materials to building sites, and restocking mountain huts.

An unusual task this summer was rescuing tons of cheeses which would have otherwise frozen in high mountain farms cut off by sudden snowfalls.

Although Geiger has now trained other rescue pilots, no one has yet appeared who can match his record. When a climber is injured in a seemingly hopeless position there is still only one call in the Alps: Send for Geiger!

West Berlin A Tense City

BERLIN (AP)—Beneath its glitter of prosperity, West Berlin is a city of tension and loneliness. Each day on the average, two or more persons commit suicide in the Communist-encircled city. Half a dozen more attempt to kill themselves.

"The wall and the fact of being enclosed create an atmosphere of tension," says Dr. Berthold Moldenhauer, a chief psychiatrist at Karl-Bonhoeffer Mental Hospital.

Last year there were 881 known suicides, or 40 for every 100,000 inhabitants. It was only 110 less than Denmark, which has more than twice the population.

Ellen Balaszeskul, a psychiatric social worker, says "one of the most frequent reasons is loneliness of one kind or another." But she finds no single answer to why the suicide rate is high.

"The suicide rate in Berlin was high even before World War I," she said.

More than half of West Berlin's people are 45 or older, and about a quarter of the suicides are 50-60. The attempted suicides predominantly involve persons in the 20-30 age group.

Dr. Moldenhauer said most of the persons sent to the mental hospital after trying suicide are in an alcoholic and depressed state. The younger ones usually are treated in regular city hospitals.

Births In 1964 Under Estimate

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were 4,027,490 babies born in this country during 1964, the Public Health Service said today in final statistics for that year.

The figure was slightly below the estimate of 4,054,000 births, announced by the service last March 1.

It is generally conceded now that the number of babies born in 1965 will fall below 4 million by a considerable margin, making this the first year since 1953 with less than 4 million live births.

Texas Solons Return Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bells adjourning the first session of the 89th Congress sent most Texas members hurrying homeward to do a bit of politicking.

Reapportionment of their districts has put in a new light. Several of the veteran House members find themselves in a position not unlike candidates seeking office for the first time —beating the bushes to seek support among strange faces in unfamiliar places.

The courts yet may hold the Texas redistricting invalid, but until they do most of the Congressmen affected are assuming it will stand and are acting accordingly. An exception, because he is in a somewhat different and more favorable situation, is Rep. Wright Patman of Texarkana, the dean of the state's 23-member House delegation.

PLANS UNCERTAIN

"I'm proud of the counties which the new legislation adds to my district," he said. "But until the issue is settled in the courts, you don't know with certainty the district lines."

Patman's plans also are uncertain because of the serious illness of his wife, who has spent much of the time in a local hospital for the past several weeks.

Under the redistricting, five counties now in Rep. Lindley Beckworth's 3rd district would be put into Patman's 1st district. Beckworth's four remaining counties, including his own home county, would be put in with Rep. Ray Roberts' 4th district, so presumably Beckworth will eventually announce for election from the 4th.

Asked whether he plans to speak this fall at places in Roberts' present district—Roberts already has been appearing publicly in the four counties to be added to the 4th—Beckworth said:

"I'll go wherever I want when I get home."

Beckworth said he plans to spend the rest of the year in Texas, where his family has been all fall. His children are enrolled in the Union Grove School in Gladewater.

WILL COMMUTE

Some of the Texas members with children enrolled in schools here will be commuting back and forth feeling it would be too hard on the youngsters to transfer then in the middle of a semester only to return to Washington schools after the new session of Congress begins in January.

Rep. Richard White of El Paso, a freshman member of the delegation, finds himself faced with considerable less campaigning as a result of the redistricting. He loses seven counties. But until the courts uphold the reduction, he isn't taking any chances.

"I'm heading my cat out for all the counties in my present district," he said. "Until a new man is elected for them I'm their representative."

Reps. Jim Wright of Fort Worth and Joe Pool of Dallas hope to keep themselves before the voters on a state-wide basis during the fall. Their schedules should achieve that goal.

Wright, potential opponent of Sen. John Tower in the latter's expected bid for re-election, has scheduled speaking engagements from the Panhandle to the Rio Grande, from East to West Texas. Pool is a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities which is currently investigating the Klu Klux Klan. That hearing will keep committeemen busy, and in the news, for the next several weeks.

Reps. John Dowdy of Athens, Clark Fisher of San Angelo, Graham Purcell of Wichita Falls, Jake Pickle of Austin, Omar Burleson of Anson and George Mahon of Lubbock all plan to fill speaking engagements in counties being added to their old districts.

Married Men Induction Eyed

AUSTIN (AP)—Col. Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said today draft boards will be authorized in December to draft any young married men without children if needed to fill the state's largest draft call in 12 years.

The state draft quota for December calls for 1,714 men, the largest since June 1953 when a call for 1,749 was made. The November quota has been increased from 1,231 to 1,456, Schwartz said.

The December state quota is part of a national call of 40,200 men for the Army and 5,024 for the Marine Corps.

Schwartz said married men without children would be selected only after local boards exhaust their lists of examined and acceptable single men 19 through 25 years old.

He stressed no married men with children, or an expected child, will be selected for December.

"Draft boards, of course, must have the information about children and an unborn child must be certified by a physician. Otherwise, a young husband and father may find himself selected," he said.

The December local board quotas for induction and examination will be mailed about Nov. 10, Schwartz said.

U.T. Publication Study Set By Twelve Editors

AUSTIN (AP) — Twelve newspaper editors will make a study of University of Texas student publications authorized by the university regents.

W. W. Heath, chairman of the regents, named these news executives:

William P. Hobby, Houston Post; Jack Krueger, Dallas News; Jack Butler, Fort Worth Star-Telegram; Thomas Thompson, Amarillo Globe - Times; Charles Guy, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal; Robert Jackson, Corpus Christi Caller - Times; Ed Hunter, Galveston News-Tribune; Richard Brown, Newspapers, Inc.; Charles Green, Austin American - Statesman; Clayte Binion, Houston Chronicle; Charles Kilpatrick, San Antonio Express, and Dwight Allison, San Antonio Light.

The committee will meet in Dallas Saturday. Regents asked the newsmen to pay particular attention to whether the Daily Texan should be a laboratory for the journalism department.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	5 ◇
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡

Altho the defensive campaigns varied when today's hand was dealt in a recent team-of-four match, a swing was avoided on the deal when both declarers in the South seat managed to bring home their five diamond contracts.

The bidding was identical at each table. West chose to open the bidding with four hearts as the dealer, influenced perhaps by favorable vulnerability conditions. When the bidding reverted to South, the latter was unwilling to surrender without a struggle, and he took a calculated risk by bidding five diamonds.

At one table, West opened the ace of hearts and then continued with the queen. Declarer put up North's king, discarding a club from his hand. A third round of hearts was ruffed in the closed hand and trumps were drawn in two rounds, ending up in the dummy.

A small club was now led and, when East played the three, South put in the ten. West was in with the queen of clubs, and he had only hearts and spades left in his hand. A heart lead would obviously present the declarer with a ruff and discard, so West led a small spade. South won the trick with the queen and claimed his contract, having lost one club and one heart.

At the other table, West also led the ace of hearts; however, he decided to look elsewhere for additional tricks, and he switched to the queen of clubs at trick two. Declarer played the ace from his hand, drew two rounds of trump ending up in dummy and discarded the five of clubs on the king of hearts.

South was convinced that West was short in clubs and he decided to play him for a singleton. He therefore continued with the eight of hearts from dummy. However, instead of ruffing in his hand, he merely discarded his remaining club —the ten. West was in and, like his counterpart at the other table, he was hopelessly endplayed. The spade return provided South with the trick he needed to land his contract and the result on the deal for the two teams was a stand off.

Harmones Play Key Physical Role

NEW YORK (AP) — Driving your car, you almost have a terrible accident.

And almost instantly, your heart speeds up.

Your heart of course couldn't "see" the threat. Neither could the glands inside you that spurted out adrenalin to make your heart start thumping.

Then how does such an astonishingly quick reaction come about?

The answer is fantastic. For at least eight separate events take place, in chain sequence, in perhaps three seconds or less.

The story is another example of the remarkable workings of the human body, plus new insights as to how vital hormones, such as adrenalin, really do their jobs. It's also an example of basic medical research digging ever deeper toward knowledge that might lead to new means of safeguarding human health.

WHAT HAPPENS

As for those eight steps:

1. Your eyes spot danger, and register images in your brain, so you slam on brakes, steer away, or just luckily escape collision.

2. Your brain flashes nerve signals to your adrenal glands, sitting atop your kidneys, as well as to your heart and various other organs.

3. The nerve impulses stimulate the adrenals to release some adrenalin—about 1,000 times as much as when you're just resting—and stimulate nerve endings in the heart to release some noradrenalin. Adrenalin and nonadrenalin are the hormones that mobilize energy to fight or run away.

MUSCLE CELLS

4. The hormones reach the muscle cells of your heart.

5. But they don't act within these cells, and this is one new finding. Instead, they activate an enzyme, or chemical governor, which appears to be located in the cell membrane or wall.

6. This activated enzyme then brings about the release inside the cell of a special chemical, nicknamed cyclic amp.

7. Cyclic amp then activates one or more enzymes inside heart muscle cells.

8. And this enzyme — or enzymes — actually does the job of making your heart speed up and work harder — all because of what your eyes saw an instant ago.

KEY ROLE

Hormones are chemical messengers playing powerful roles in maintaining health and normal body functions. Different hormones are produced by the adrenals, the sex glands, the pituitary, and other glands. Each hormone affects only one or a few body organs or tissues.

Now, from research at Vanderbilt University, it appears that hormones carry their "messages" only part way. Upon reaching their target organs, they turn over the job of delivering the message to a kind of errand boy inside cells of the organ. And this errand boy is cyclic amp.

This chemical can mimic or do the job of at least some hormones, the researchers find.

These new studies of hormone action were described to the American Chemical Society recently by a team of Vanderbilt researchers, including Dr. Earl W. Sutherland, who first discovered amp; and Drs. B. W. Butcher and G. Alan Robison.

Cyclic amp seems to mediate or control the action of a variety of hormones, they said.

Time Sharing Computer Set

CHICAGO (AP) — Students, small businesses and the man in the street now can solve problems by computers — for $350 a month, an industry official said today.

A General Electric Co. computer expert, Charles Thompson, told about the time sharing computer at the National Electronics Conference.

He described a time sharing computer as an approach which permits as many as 40 users to work out problems on the same computer at the same time.

Although the computer actually solves only one problem at a time; it operates at such speed that many persons can use the machine simultaneously and "each has the feeling that he is the only one working with the machine," Thompson said.

He said a major feature of the computers, now coming on the market, is programming language which permits persons with no previous computer experience and only a few hours of training to converse rapidly with the computer about their problems.

Legislation Provides Education Revolution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 89th Congress — pushed, pulled, prodded and cajoled by President Johnson — has planted the seeds of an educational revolution the likes of which this country has never seen.

It brings almost instant benefits to millions of young Americans. Yet, like any revolution, its final assessment must be left to the future.

Even the experts can only guess now what it all will mean.

Much of the new legislation is designed to encourage potential dropouts to stay in school and get the best education they can absorb. Suppose — just to pick a number — it salvages five million such youngsters.

THE QUESTION

How many of those five million will become teachers, doctors, inventors, scientists, engineers, or creative thinkers in the arts and humanities?

What will be the impact on the national economy if those five million, instead of spending useless lives on the welfare rolls, become wage-earning, tax-paying, home-owning, car-buying, contributing members of society?

The legislation will ease the college crush by providing new federal funds for dormitory and classroom construction. At the same time, it may make the crush even more severe by putting a college education within the financial grasp of more thousands of American youth.

FOR YOUTHS

Most of the new educational measures are designed primarily for the nation's young people. It will be a rare young American who, at some point in his lifetime, won't or can't derive some good from it.

And on some uncertain date in 1968, an even half of the total U.S. population will be age 25 or under — a factor that makes any estimate a hazardous guess.

The education legislation passed by the first session of the 89th Congress literally has something for everyone.

It spreads its benefits like the morning dew over preschool tots and college graduates, over struggling junior colleges and wealthy universities, over the gifted student and the mentally handicapped, over the children of poverty, the sons and daughters of middle income families and the scions of the rich.

So varied, and yet so all-encompassing, are the programs that conceivably a 3-year-old urchin living in the slums could have Uncle Sam's helping hand at his shoulder for the 26 years it would take before he could hang out his shingle as a practicing M.D.

"HEAD START"

For the first time there is national legislation to strike away the chains of ignorance, poverty and incredible isolation in which millions of American children live.

It's called "Operation Head Start."

The idea is to give some semblance of a preschool experience to children so economically and culturally deprived that they are doomed without it.

There were more than 560,000 children, aged 4 and 5, enrolled in eight-week Head Start programs last summer.

There were 5-year-olds born in Daytona Beach, Fla., who got their first look at the Atlantic Ocean and the broad beach which has made the city famous; children who had their first taste of a fresh tomato, who saw their first movie, who had their first ride on an elevator.

In Rockford, Ill., a Head Start teacher passed out crayons. The children, who had never seen a crayon before, began eating them.

These children never held a pencil in their hand, heard a story, saw a magazine or book. They had virtually no vocabulary. Many had never been toilet trained.

Such children are two years behind the average child on the very day they enter first grade. Lost from the beginning, they keep falling farther behind. By the time they have been automatically promoted to the fourth grade, all escape routes are closed.

They are well on the way to becoming hopeless, helpless derelicts in an affluent society.

Operation Head Start is no cure-all. First, it now reaches only a fraction of the children who need its help. Second, there needs to be a follow-up program through at least the first three grades of school.

The program already has been expanded. By the end of next June, it is expected that at least 200,000 children aged 3, 4 and 5, will be in a year-round program. Another 300,000 will have an eight-week program.

In the view of many experts, Operation Head Start is the most urgently needed of the new programs, the one with the greatest potential impact.

Will it really work? The final answer probably won't be known until the children involved do or do not drop out of school 10 or 11 years hence.

The one great hope of Head Start is that it will break the generations-old vicious circle of deprived children growing up to be deprived parents producing yet another, and bigger, generation of deprived children.

The same hope is held for the $1.3 billion Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. More than $1 billion of the total is to help local school districts strengthen educational programs where there are concentrations of disadvantaged children.

Finals Near In Teen Event

DALLAS (AP) — The tension ends in the Miss Teenage America Pageant for 53 contestants today but it begins anew for seven finalists.

One will don the crown of 1966 'teen queen Friday night before a national television audience. With it go a $10,000 college scholarship, a guaranteed $5,000 in personal appearances and other prizes.

Few girls spent sleepless nights worrying about getting into the finals. Nearly all insisted they entered not expecting to win and they'd made so many friends the trip was worthwhile.

And then they were exhausted from a day of rehearsal topped off by a party at the posh Dallas Club, 49 stories high with floor to ceiling windows looking out from downtown Dallas.

SINGING CADETS

The Singing Cadets—61, which meant one left over after they paired off with the girls—of Texas A&M gave a 40-minute informal performane with the girls at their feet.

"I started crying when they began singing, and I never stopped the whole time," said Barbara Van Brunt, 16, of Los Angeles.

The eating, jingling and singing around a piano continued until midnight, but breakfast was at 7 sharp this morning.

"GOOD LUCK"

Classmates of Janet Heft, 17, at Wichita, Kan., Smith High School sent her a newsletter and good luck message that was three feet wide "and stretched from the boys' gym to the girls' gym." It took her more than half an hour to unwind it and read the scrawled notes.

Laura Struckmeyer, 15, hugged a live good luck symbol Wednesday night: Her father, Fred Struckmeyer of St. Louis, who took off from his position as a certified public accountant and brought her 13-year-old brother Steve along.

The tallest contestant, 5-foot-10½ Jan Gjovik of Chicago, said a friend sent her a jade necklace, also a token of good fortune.

Blonde Suzanne Scott, 17, received personal congratulations from Shreveport, La., Mayor Clyde Fant. Suzanne, whom the other girls named Miss Congeniality, lives in Marshall but competed in a Shreveport preliminary.

Oil Industry Problems Blamed On Communications

"Trouble among the oil and gas industry, the public and the government is caused by poor communications," Nelson Jones, general counci and member of the board of directors of Humble Oil and Refining Co., told a gathering of Lions, Rotarians, local bar association members, Jaycees and city officials Wednesday noon at the Settles Hotel.

PROBLEMS

Problems causing major industrial headaches are, Jones said, air pollution control by industry; attacks on oil and gas conservation; and attempted regulation of natural gas pricing by the Federal Power Commission.

"The public is not going to be put off on the problem of air pollution by bland industrial assurances," Jones said. "Industrial attention must be given to the preservation of our natural environment."

He said the proper attitude for industry in the problem lies between two extremes—those who want to put our air back in its pristine, pre-Industrial Revolution condition immediately, and those few industrialists who claim there is no air pollution problem and want to hide behind interminable industry "studies."

"Industry needs to work with proper government authorities in a mutual understanding to clear the air," Jones said. But regulations need careful application, he added. "Regulations appropriate to Los Angeles would be silly in Big Spring."

Growing attacks on conservation practices in the oil and gas industry, and the states, are made, he said, by uninformed persons.

CHAOS

"Before regulation, for instance in Texas," Jones said, "there was chaos. Companies stored huge quantities of oil in dry river beds, fields were used up with very little of their potential realized. At one time in a Texas oil field, crude oil was selling at 10 cents a barrel while chili was 15 cents a bowl." Even though critics say the regulations are a conspiracy between industry and commissions, Jones said the states which have conservation regulations made the rules for the public benefit, not for the benefit of industry.

"With conservation, the price of gasoline has decreased so much that it is cheaper than 40 years ago," he said. "Conservation has aided in the development of new techniques of oil recovery."

PRICE REGULATIONS

He blasted price regulations on natural gas set up by the Federal Power Commission as unrealistic, unreasonable, and reeking of federal encroachment on business.

"The finding and producing of natural gas is not a utility, it is a commodity," Jones said. Local regulations take care of problems in the distribution of the gas, and federal regulations take care of interstate transportation problems, he said, but he felt that the finding and production of gas has inherently a flexible cost that FPC cannot set properly.

"The Permian Basin decision of 1961 arbitrarily set a price difference," he said. "It's like playing baseball by football rules. They said gas discovered before 1961 is "old" gas and set a price ceiling of 14.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Gas discovered after the decision is "new" gas, and has a ceiling of 16.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet.

"That's like playing a football game and then having the referee tell the two teams, after the game, that the touchdowns scored in the first half are worth six points, but those in the second half are worth eight points."

UNDERSTANDING

"All these difficulties could be more easily resolved if we somehow could develop better understanding, communication, among industry, the public and the government," Jones said. "That's why I welcome the opportunity to speak to a gathering, such as this meeting."

There were about 150 persons present in the Settles main dining room for Jones' talk.

Convicts Get Class Study On Computer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)— Twice a week 23 men stroll into a classroom here and listen to an instructor explain the art of computer programming.

The students have met nine times and have 35 weeks to go before they complete the training for the much-in-demand jobs.

The class grade average is 97.8, but the students are not geniuses, electronics experts or young scientists.

They are convicts in the Atlanta federal prison, part of a pilot project to rehabilitate prisoners and meet a space age need.

There are no chains, striped suits or guards in class. There is only pipe-smoking George Smith of the General Electric computer department, fielding questions tossed at him by the "computer cons."

For Road Cooking: Under The Hood

BOSTON (AP) — Chalk one up for women drivers: "We're cooking under the hood of the car. With the youngsters in the back seat and the wheels rolling.

"Forget about the oil, just check the roast," one pioneer chef told her filling station attendant. Sure enough there it was, a foil- wrapped package riding on the exhaust manifold, hottest spot under the hood.

We tried it following the lead of Norma Bidwell, Canadian housewife whose been roasting-while-rolling all summer.

Mrs. Bidwell, food editor of the Hamilton Spectator, said: "My husband scoffed the first time I handed him a three-pound foiled wrapped package of raw meat and said, "We'll cook it under the hood."

"But 10 minutes after we arrived at the cottage the six of us were munching happily on hot roast beef sandwiches with tender-crisp onions and seasoned with cook-on sauce."

The rules for road cooking:

Wrap a two-to-three pound roast, not over two inches thick (for a three-hour drive) in a large sheet of extra heavy duty foil, fold edges together twice to make a lock seam; Use a wire hanger to anchor the meat to the manifold;

Stop halfway to your destination to turn the roast;

Don't stop to visit with friends for your roast needs three hours driving time;

Don't try turkey.

"During the early stages of a turkey's cooking, it gets bouncy. It sticks its elbows out and pushes away from the heat. You try to push it back and it sticks a drumstick through the foil."

This means trouble — like grease burning on the manifold.

Blood For Viet

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A drive to collect blood for American troops in Viet Nam was started Wednesday by the Circle K Student Club at Midwestern University here.

Interest High For School's Adult Classes

Interest in more education was indicated this week when 123 adults ranging in ages from 18 to 62 years, enrolled in classes running from 7 to 9 p.m. each Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The first class met Tuesday night, Dr. Len Ainsworth, director of educational services, said, and will run for 120 clock hours.

Forty-three signed up for courses in grades one through three; 37 for grades four through six, and 18 for grades seven and eight. Others are to be assigned.

Special material is being provided for people speaking very little English in the primary section. All courses and materials are free to the students. The curriculum is primarily designed to cover the "3 Rs" and citizenship.

"We have a few more women enrolled than men," Ainsworth said, "but the difference is slight. If enough are enrolled for one class desiring to meet in a school closer to their residential area, we can move these from the high school, but we have access to the library there, and will continue for the major portion of classes."

Ainsworth also said that cost of courses and teacher pay is paid by the Vocational Department of the Texas Education Agency.

Faculty for the adult education courses are: Eulalia Mitchell and Leonila Cantu, primary; Wendell Ware and William Irwin, intermediate, and Paul Sweatt, advanced studies.

Brazil Calm After Decree By President

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Brazil was reported calm today and most political leaders were silent after President Humberto Castello Branco dealt himself dictatorial powers.

Some 200 students demonstrated briefly in Rio de Janetro, but no other unrest was reported after Castello Branco issued the sweeping new law Wednesday.

"We need tranquility for the nation's economic development," he told a television audience.

NIGHT DEBATE

The decree overriding parts of the constitution came after an all-night debate in which Congress balked at approving the administration's proposed constitutional amendment increasing the scope of federal intervention in Brazil's 22 states.

With the measure facing defeat, the military government slammed the lid down.

The decree included these provisions:

—The abolition of all existing political parties;

—Presidential power to declare a state of siege for up to 180 days;

—Federal power to intervene in the states;

—Expansion of the Supreme Court from 11 to 16 judges;

—Presidential power to oust federal and local legislators and authority to suspend political rights of any citizen for 10 years.

BY CONGRESS

The act also abolished direct election of the president by the people. Instead he will be chosen by Congress before next Oct. 3, and Castello Branco cannot succeed himself.

Justice Minister Juacy Magalhaes repeated a government prime that state governors who were elected earlier this month would be allowed to assume office.

The Brazilian Labor party of leftist ex-President Joao Goulart, who was ousted by a civil-military movement last year, said Castello Branco's decree "mortally assaulted what remains of republican institutions."

Report Released On Rice Holdings

WASHINGTON (AP)—Stored stocks of rough rice declined and holdings of milled rice showed an increase in the Agriculture Department's Oct. 1 survey. Rough rice stocks totaled 1,547,000 bags, the second smallest holding since estimates were started in 1956. Milled rice stock totaled 944,000 bags, a year earlier.

Additional Rules Told For Halloween Night

By JO ANN PHINIZY

When the hex is on the moon, it should be a night for small children, is the opinion of Mrs. Vernon D. Farmer, 3601 Hamilton. They're the ones who really feel the mystic of Halloween masks, noisemakers and sacks of candy, she explained.

In preparing for trick-or-treat night, Mrs. Farmer put in a supply of wrapped bite-size candy, gum drops, and, in case of a prolonged rush, a supply of home made popcorn balls.

There are several rules that Mrs. Farmer believes spooks and goblins and parents should follow. For one thing, costume wearers should be in a figuratively roped off area.

Following that prescription, and making the neighborhood rounds on Halloween, will be three Farmer representatives. Confined to a two-block area, "on both sides of the street," will be eight and six-year-olds, Tony and Kim.

Bringing up the rear, but not yet in the "free roving" bracket, will be two-year-old Shari, who will be chaperoned by her mother.

"The range," Mrs. Farmer says, "will be one or two houses, and the round trip should take about 15 minutes."

Another point that Mrs. Farmer would like to stress is that drivers should maneuver with caution, remembering that little people are out in force.

PORCH LIGHT CODE

She also hopes that children will honor the code of the porch light: If it's off, it means (a) the family is asleep, (b) they're out of candy, or (c) they hope to avoid the whole evening.

Post-Halloween will find Mrs. Farmer back to the everyday tasks of being the main focus of her family. She says that by now, her cooking schedule is fairly well organized.

Living "almost next door to Marcy Elementary School" the children are home for lunch. She added that since they are usually in such a rush, the meals sometimes consist of "soup and sandwiches."

The main meal is in the evening when Lt. Vernon Farmer is home from his duties as an instructor at Webb AFB.

"Feeding my husband," Mrs. Farmer said, "is almost too easy. With him, steak and potatoes will do nicely for everything but breakfast."

In cooking family meals, Mrs. Farmer likes to choose basic menus of foods that have the same cooking background. She explained that when she is using the oven for baking the main course, she very often bakes as many side dishes as possible.

In the culinary art, Mrs. Farmer admits defeat by biscuits. She describes her attempts as being more fiascos than triumphs, and that it was a happy day when baking products could be found in boxes and tubes.

MRS. VERNON D. FARMER

DRAWING CLASS

Mrs. Farmer is an active member of the Officer Wives Club. In her spare time, she is in the beginning stages of learning the cares and woes of an artist. "It's really drawing class," she explained, "but I'm learning."

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer are natives of Duncan, Okla., and someday, hope to do a tour of duty in England or Germany. Mrs. Farmer believes that in a foreign country, she would enjoy trying exotic or unusual foods.

She also believes that, even if the menu were in Swahili, her husband would still order, "meat and potatoes."

The recipes Mrs. Farmer selected are those that her family recommends for almost any appetite. She says that the peppermint dessert is one of her mother's and is ideal for special occasions; the Hash Brown Omelet is a perfect quick family supper.

ENCHILADA CASSEROLE

1 lb. hamburger meat
1 small onion, chopped
2 tsps. chili pepper, hot
1 can mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 small can condensed milk
1 lb. cheese, mild American
1 pkg. tortillas

Brown hamburger meat and onion together. Season. Then add chili pepper, soup, sauce and milk. Bring to a boil. Grate cheese into mixture.

Make layers with tortillas in casserole with meat sauce. Bake in 350 degree oven for 45 minutes. Serves eight.

SPANISH RICE

8 slices bacon
1 finely chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 can tomatoes
1½ cups water
¾ cup uncooked rice
½ cup chili sauce
1 tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1 tsp. brown sugar
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Cook bacon until crisp. Remove and pour off half the fat. Cook onion and green pepper until tender but not brown.

Add remaining ingredients. Cover, and simmer 45 minutes. Crumble bacon. Arrange on top and trim with parsley.

PEPPERMINT-GRAHAM DESSERT

3½ cups crushed peppermint
2 pts. whipping cream
Graham crackers

Crush peppermint until fine, and whip cream until thick. Layer graham crackers, whipping cream, and peppermint in casserole, ending with peppermint. Makes three to four layers, depending on size of casserole dish. Chill in refrigerator about 6 hours.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

4 lbs. spareribs
2 tbsps. margarine
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 cup water
1 cup ketchup
2 tbsps. vinegar
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 tbsps. Worcestershire sauce
2 tbsps. brown sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper

Cut spareribs in serving-size pieces. Brown slowly in skillet. Put in a baking dish. Pour fat from skillet, melt butter, add onion. Cook until brown. Add next nine ingredients; simmer 20 minutes. Set oven at 350 degrees. Pour sauce over ribs. Bake, covered, 1½ hours. Makes four to six servings.

HASHED BROWN OMELET

4 slices bacon
2 cups shredded cooked potatoes
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped green pepper
4 eggs
¼ cup milk
½ tsp. salt
Dash pepper
1 cup shredded sharp American cheese

In 10 or 12 inch skillet cook bacon until crisp. Leave drippings in skillet. Remove bacon and crumble.

Mix potatoes, onions and green pepper; pour into skillet. Cook over low heat until the underside is crisp and brown.

Blend eggs, milk, salt, and pepper. Pour over potatoes. Top with cheese and bacon; cover and cook over low heat. When egg is done, loosen omelet. Fold. Makes four servings.

Many Uses Told For Pumpkins

It's a real native American—the pumpkin.

The Indians introduced this cucurbit to the Pilgrims at the first Thanksgiving.

And it's become an institution in American living too -- especially about this time of the year. For there is nothing so enticing for a child as making his own Halloween Jack o' lantern from a "real, live" pumpkin.

You'll probably want to have at least one extra pumpkin on hand for use in a pie — because the meat is seldom usable after the pumpkin is carved for a Jack o' Lantern. And you won't want to miss the delicious taste of a pumpkin pie — so right for Halloween.

The Consumer and Marketing Service reports adequate pumpkin supplies now moving to all markets. So you should find all the pumpkins you want, just right for your particular needs.

Goblin Party Needs Plenty Of Surprises

The younger set, dressed as black cats, long haired witches, and masked goblins, like to come to a Halloween party in full costume. An evening playing spooky games and eating foods that they can prepare themselves, pleases most young goblins. Let your own young goblin invite friends in for the evening and help him with foods that can be easily served and cleaned up. Decorative paper plates and cups add a gay touch to the table and are perfect for taking care of a large crowd.

Peanut butter sandwiches, always a favorite, take on a Halloween look. Bread rings, spread with circles of peanut butter and orange marmalade, can be easily decorated with raisin faces by helpful young hands. With the sandwiches, a ready pitcher of fruit punch lets each guest pour his own cupful during the evening.

For nibbling, have such foods as popcorn, dry toasted peanuts and Halloween candy within handy reach. Popcorn, now ready for popping in its own handy foil package, can be popped in a jiffy by young guests and served right from the container in which it was popped.

PEANUT BUTTER GOBLIN RINGS

9 slices bread
1 cup creamy peanut butter
½ cup orange marmalade
Raisins

Cut circles from bread slices with a 3 inch biscuit cutter. Spread a wide outer circle of peanut butter on each slice of bread. Spoon marmalade in the center of each peanut butter circle. Decorate with raisins. Makes 9 open-faced sandwiches.

HALLOWEEN PUNCH

1 (6 oz. can tangerine or orange juice concentrate
3 pts. chilled ginger ale

Just before serving, mix the concentrate and ginger ale together. Stir well. Makes about 1 quart punch.

Pineapple Idea With Cheese

Beat together until soft 1 (3 - ounce) package cream cheese, ¼ cup mayonnaise and 2 tablespoons lemon juice. Fold whipped, along with ¾ cup chopped dates and 1 drained 8¾-ounce can crushed pineapple.

Freeze firm in refrigerator tray. Serve in cubes on lettuce with salty crackers.

GINGER CAKE

Spook Night Calls For Black Cat Decorations

The night when the small goblins and witches are gathering goodies from door to door, it's a bet mother will want to make a cake for the traditional Halloween party. A wonderful answer to her dilemma is Ginger Coconut Cake, made from crushed ginger snaps, coconut and orange rind. You frost it with Special Halloween Orange Icing and decorate with Pumpkin Faces drawn on whole ginger snaps. Serve the cake with a big bowl of assorted ice cream scoops, and watch the fun the youngsters have enjoying it. Here's how:

GINGER COCONUT CAKE

1 box Ginger Snaps (1-lb.)
2 cans flaked coconut, (3½-ozs. each)
2-3 cup shortening, room temperature
1 tsp. grated orange rind
2 cups sugar
6 eggs
2-3 cup milk

Set aside 12 whole ginger snaps. With blender or with rolling pin, crush remaining snaps into very fine crumbs. Mix well with coconut and set aside. Cream shortening and stir in orange rind. Gradually add sugar and mix well. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Fold in crumb mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry material. Distribute batter evenly in lightly greased 9-inch slip-bottom tube pan; smooth top gently with back of spoon. Preheat oven at 300 degrees, and bake for 1½ hours, or until cake feels firm and springy when pressed gently with the fingers. Let cool in pan on rack for 30 minutes.

SPECIAL HALLOWEEN ORANGE ICING

1 tsp. grated orange rind
⅛ tsp. salt
2 egg yolks, beaten
1 box sifted confectioners' sugar, (1-lb.)
2 tbsps. lemon juice

Cream shortening with orange rind and salt. Stir in egg yolks, blending well. Add sugar alternately with lemon juice, beating until smooth. Frost cake and decorate with pumpkin faces.

Use Sugar Cookies For Any Holiday

This delightful cookie, similar to shortbread but crisper, is appropriate at holiday time. And it's easy to make!

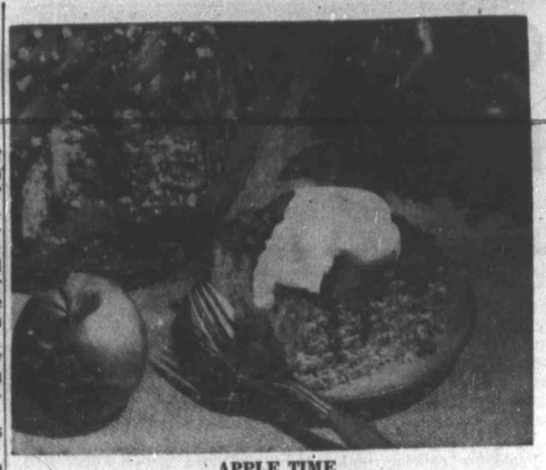

MRS. F'S ALMOND CRESCENTS

1-3 cup butter
¼ cup granulated sugar
½ tsp. vanilla
¾ cup grated blanched almonds
2/3 cup sifted flour
¼ cup confectioners sugar

Cream the butter, granulated sugar and vanilla. Add the almonds and flour; blend thoroughly with your fingers. Hand-shape into small crescents about ½-inch thick.

Bake on an ungreased cookie sheet in a slow (325 degrees) oven about 20 minutes, until bottom surface of cookies are tinged a golden color. Remove to wire rack to cool slightly; while still warm, roll in confectioners sugar.

Makes 2 dozen. Store cold cookies in tightly closed container. This recipe does not call for salt, and we use unsalted butter in it. If the almonds are blanched at home, they should be dried at room temperature, not toasted in the oven; grate them in a small hand - operated rotary - type nut grater so they are fine.

APPLE TIME
Golden flavors of autumn

Festival Days Sparkle With Topsy-Turvy Cake

Autumn is the time of the great harvest of beautiful apples. The season brings to mind the delicious homespun favorites such as Apple Pandowdy, Apple Pie and Apple Dumplings.

While apples are plentiful and cooler days have renewed your zest for baking, try something different. Apple Upside-Down Cake is the suggestion from Imperial Pure Cane Sugar.

This recipe is an unusual apple version of that old favorite, the upside - down cake. Brown sugar, apples and pecans combine to harvest the irresistible flavor which ends up on top when the cake is turned out of the pan. The batter is lightly spiced and has a buttery brown sugar flavor.

APPLE UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

2 tbsps. butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup chopped pecans
3 medium apples, pared sliced
2 tbsps. lemon juice
½ cup (1 stick) butter
2-3 cup brown sugar
1-3 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
½ tsp. vanilla
2 cups sifted flour
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. nutmeg
½ cup buttermilk
Whipped cream

In 9x9x2-inch pan, melt 2 tablespoons butter; spread ½ cup brown sugar in bottom of pan. Sprinkle with pecans; arrange apple slices on top; cover with lemon juice and put aside. Cream together ½ cup butter and remaining sugars until fluffy, light. Beat in egg and vanilla thoroughly. Sift together remaining dry ingredients; add alternately with buttermilk. Spread batter over apple slices. Bake at 375 degrees 45 minutes or until done. Place on cooling rack 10 minutes, then turn upside down on plate. Serve warm. Cut into squares and top with whipped cream.

Attract Attention With Frizzle Dish

Egg and Beef Frizzle always commands attention, and it's a fixed-to-order item. To prepare: Saute chipped beef in butter until slightly crisp. Add one or two slightly beaten eggs and a sprinkling of salt and pepper. Stir as for scrambled eggs until done as desired.

Serve on buttered toast points with a garnish of cherry chutney.

A Devotional For The Day

Fear none of those things which thou shalt suffer: . . . ye shall have tribulation . . . . : be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life. (Revelation 2:10)

PRAYER: Our Father, we thank Thee for the blessings Thou has bestowed upon us. We thank Thee for those who have remained faithful to the end for Thy name's sake. Bless us in Jesus' name. Amen.

(From the 'Upper Room')

Four More Favored

In previous comments, we have favored the adoption of proposed constitutional amendments No. 1 (increasing the state ad valorem tax by 5 cents and earmarked this for 17 senior state colleges outside the university system in order to finance buildings); No. (which would increase the terms of state officials, including governor, to four years); and No. 6 (which would authorize issuance of state underwritten bonds to finance a student loan fund).

Let us hastily recommend four others for approval.

One of these would authorize the redrafting of state statutes to conform with federal requirements for participation in assistance to the aged, and medical care for the aged needy. Without conforming, Texas could lose federal participation by July 1, 1967. Right now 230,000 aged Texans are looking to these funds for sustenance if not survival. Of this number 15,000 are being maintained in nursing homes due to the program.

Howard County has 637 of these elderly people who will have their medical benefits jeopardized. Last year, they were helped to the extent of $146,000 for special aid and medical care. Multiply Howard's situation by 254 (we are something of an average county in population) and you see something of the huge burden which would fall back entirely on the state. Thus old folks will be advised to vote for this amendment and to urge their families to do likewise.

Amendment No. 5 would permit greater latitude in investment of teacher retirement funds. Government agency and government - guaranteed bonds could be acquired along with certain corporate issues. Both types of investment would be restricted to certain amounts or percentages, but the result would be to give the fund substantially more earning power.

No. 8 would provide for the removal of cause, or the involuntary removal for disability, etc., or the automatic retirement at age 75 for judges.

No. 9 would authorize the legislature to fix annual salaries for the speaker of the house and the lieutenant governor, the sum $12,500 being the most frequently mentioned figure. Currently these top officers receive only the same as other legislators, plus an apartment. The amendment would also provide an additional $1,000 during each regular session for each legislator's expense. This is not an unreasonable sum, seeing how it must pay for a secretary, postage, and other expenses of keeping in touch with constituents.

'US SUPERIOR FOLKS GOTTA STICK TOGETHER'

Refreshing Program

Maybe we could borrow a phrase and call it Operation Late Start, but the evening education program for adults promises to be a fine thing.

The 123 who reported for these special sessions was at least 50 per cent more than expected, which certainly reflects a keen interest. More than a third were non-English speaking adults who wanted to learn English enough to attain third grade level. Others are placed on up the ladder through elementary school level. A natural outgrowth of this might be some sort of program which would enable ambitious adults to achieve high school graduate competence, and thus put them in line for going on. It's refreshing to know that there are people with this much ambition.

Humphrey Meets His Challenge

WASHINGTON — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey has been practicing the difficult art of being in two different places at the same time. Even for the redoubtable Hubert Horatio this is a strain on nerves, blood pressure and will power.

Long before President Johnson's illness Humphrey had signed up for a speaking schedule that would have kept him bouncing back and forth between the two coasts like a ping pong ball. Then came the President's operation and the call to stand by.

WHEN THE immediate emergency was past the Vice President resumed speaking engagements within an overnight range. His strenuous practice has been to leave in the late afternoon, make a speech in a not too distant state, fly back in the watches of the night, resume his schedule in the morning. The common assumption in this administration is that everybody is superman but even for superman that is asking too much of flesh and blood.

There is gratification all around that while it was not unexpected the interval of the President's illness and recovery in the hospital went off so well. The relationship between the President and the Vice President was if anything strengthened. Without any publicity Humphrey has been seen many of the people, including high ranking visitors from abroad, that Mr. Johnson could not see.

HE WILL continue to do this while the President is following, as his doctors fondly hope, an easier regimen at the ranch. But obviously Humphrey cannot continue to speak around the country and assume important responsibilities in Washington. With the approval of the President he is curtailing his speaking rounds in order to be on tap and fill in whenever possible.

If not only Humphrey but the cabinet would stop playing superman this could be a creative interlude in which sober and thoughtful consideration might be given to the baffling problems of foreign and domestic policy. Rather than running from one meeting to another, constantly prodded by urgent telephone calls, the men at the top might discuss with leisurely calm the problems that seem insurmountable in the atmosphere of perpetual crisis.

WITH THE abandonment of the belief that the Vice President was just a standby it has become a cliche for each President to say that his No. 2 is the best informed, best prepared man to occupy the office. But solid evidence backs this claim for Humphrey. At the President's insistence he has been in on every important conference and all decisions taken at the top level.

It has been far from an easy assignment quite apart from the physical strain of 14-hour days. In contrast to his freewheeling past, Humphrey, speaking on the average once a day, has had to guard every word. In the private corridors of power the jealous guardians of rank and position would be only too happy to seize on some encroachment. He can speak only as a legate for the man who holds the real authority.

WHEN THE President went to Bethesda Naval Hospital in January with a bronchial infection the stock market had a fairly serious sinking spell. When his forthcoming operation was announced it wavered hardly a point or more in the upward surge toward unprecedented highs. This may be an indicator of the confidence the Vice President has won.

Billy Graham

I have a serious personal problem that is constantly on my mind. I want to solve it God's way, but it seems impossible. Can you help me? H.F.

First of all, you know that God knows about it. Also, He is concerned that you shall find the right answer. Finally, He will help you find it. The problem reserves itself into two things: your willingness to surrender your own will and desires to God, then, to accept and act on His leading. You do the first by coming to Him in the Name of Christ, asking Him to forgive your sins and to give you a heart completely surrendered to Him. Then you pray specifically that God will give you clear leading as to the solution of your problem. This leading may come as you pray; or, it may come as you read your Bible; or, God may send someone to you who, under the leading of His Spirit, will direct you in the thing you should do.

This all may sound theorectical and mechanical, but actually it is just taking God at His Word and expecting Him to honor that Word. In Proverbs 3:5-6 we find these words: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not to thine own understanding; in all thy ways acknowledge Him and He shall direct thy paths." Honor God by accepting and acting on His Word and He will surely honor your faith.

Missing: LBJ Public Explanation On U.S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Missing for months has been a detailed address to the nation — and thus to the world — by President Johnson on the aims and actions of American foreign policy.

He has made such explanations in the past, particularly on this country's role in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic, when the United States was initiating or stepping up action in those places.

This was especially true last spring when he considered it necessary to send 22,000 troops into the Dominican Republic.

But tension finally dwindled there, American action in Viet Nam although greatly increased had lost its novelty, and more and more of the President's time was taken up with getting his programs through Congress.

AND FOR months now he has not attempted a lengthy, detailed, and carefully reasoned explanation to the world. Thus he left a vacuum and the critics of American foreign policy stepped into it.

The criticism has come not only from abroad but from American school campuses and not only from Republicans in Congress but, much more vehemently, from some of Johnson's own Democrats there.

In particular one Democrat, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, chairman of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, attacked American policy in the Dominican Republic, and another, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, has been a thorn to Johnson on Viet Nam.

The House Republican leadership has raised questions on and off but never with the same head-on assaults of Fulbright and Morse.

And protests on college campuses, even though only a minority of students was involved, have reached the point of parades and demonstrations. All this is ammunition for American critics abroad.

TWO NIGHTS ago the need for a single, careful, authoritative American voice — meaning the President's — to discuss American foreign policy was illustrated by the CBS television show, "Town Meeting of the World."

Through a satellite relay students in London, Belgrade, Paris and Mexico City were able to appear on television to question former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, Arthur J. Goldberg, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, and Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall.

It was an unsatisfactory performance all around and, on the part of the students, a hostile one. Amid sneers and apparent contempt the students quizzed the three distinguished Americans about this country's policies in Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic.

Dad Feels Loss, Too

NEW YORK (AP)—Women get more sympathy in life than men.

This is because they have learned the truth of the saying "It pays to advertise."

As Henry David Thoreau pointed out early in the last century, most men "lead lives of quiet desperation." This is why their plight gets little general pity.

WOMEN, on the other hand, tend to lead lives of noisy desperation. Thus they lay claim to more sympathy—and they get it.

When a woman suffers a loss in life, she announces it and complains aloud about it to high heaven. She is immediately surrounded by solacing friends and neighbors who tell her she must calm down, take it easy, drink some tea, and have something to eat.

When a man suffers a loss, he usually must face his misery alone. He is supposed to take it in Spartan silence, and even his oldest male friends are embarrassed to mention it. He must suffer by himself, and pull himself together with little outside help.

THESE THOUGHTS are stirred by a rash of articles in women's magazines about what one called "the empty arms syndrome."

This describes the predicament of many a middle-aged mother after her children are grown and flown. She misses her nestlings, and life seems empty and purposeless without them.

For years she slaved to please and placate them, to admonish and advise them. Now she feels useless, barren and unneeded. "What is there left for me to do?" she asks aloud in her grief.

A thousand psychiatrists rush to her rescue. They pat her on the back, hold a handkerchief to her nose so that she can honk away, tell her she is still vastly important to the world, and made even more beautiful by her Indian summer loss. Well, well, well.

BUT WHAT about dear old Dad? Isn't he a victim of "the empty arms dyndrome," too? Doesn't he, after the nestlings have winged away, feel depressed at coming home to a house that no longer echoes with the music of his children? Doesn't he feel lonely, lost, and somewhat vague about the importance of his future?

There is only one young echomaker in our house. She is only 12 now, but I fearfully foresee the day when she will grow up and fly away with a husband of her very own. And my arms will then be as empty as her mother's.

Love Important In Helping Mental Patients

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Five years ago I had a complete mental breakdown and was sent to a sanitarium. The condition had been building up for years, of course. Later I was told I had schizophrenia.

After I had been there two months the doctor decided to give me electric shock treatments because I wouldn't or couldn't come out of my little dream world. I had three treatments a week for four weeks.

I believe this was the turning point in my illness. I don't mean the shock treatments cured me, because I still had several months of hard work ahead of me, but they put me on the right road.

Oh, they have their drawbacks, the same as everything else.

I wish I had the ability to write so I could tell people what it means to be mentally ill—how love and understanding are needed by the patient. Most of my family will not even admit that I was mentally ill.

Before I had the breakdown I would go home and get a razor blade and cut my legs. I will always carry the scars. I learned later that I was really trying to hurt the people who I thought were trying to hurt me.

Keep up the good work and try to make your readers understand that although someone is mentally ill, he or she needs love more than ever. It might make the difference between coming back to reality or staying in that nice safe dream world where you can't be hurt and nothing or no one can get to you.—MRS. L. C.

I've been trying to present some of these same ideas, but people may learn more, hearing it from you, than from me.

First, the mental patient (at certain stages, and in many cases) is aware of the illness and may, or may NOT, want to be cured.

Second, many patients strongly dislike shock treatment, and I can't blame them. There are, as you say, drawbacks. They are scary and can be uncomfortable. Let's not pretend that shock treatments are a picnic. Neither are some medications or operations. The point is that the benefits outweigh the discomforts.

Third, love is superlatively important. Relatives and friends may not fully understand what goes on in the patient's mind. How could they? Mental illness is, indeed, a very lonely experience. But love and helpfulness and consideration can make the difference between staying well, after recovery, or slipping back into the secret dream world which is a retreat from reality.

Thank you, Mrs. L. C., for writing. Tomorrow I will print a letter of a different type of mental illness, a case that did not come out as well. It ended tragically. It, too, points a lesson.

Pie In Sky

MELBOURNE (AP)—Guests at a Victoria State Air Rescue Service display recently ate pie from the sky.

The meat pies—dropped 600 feet without a parachute—were wrapped in inflated plastic bags. Not even a crust was broken. The air pressure in the baggs cushioned the shock when the packages hit the ground.

Around The Rim

In-Service Police Training

In almost any line of work today, training and more training is being provided by employers. It is a rare industry or firm that feels it can afford not to maintain a continuing training program for its employes—some to help their employes advance to higher positions and others to allow them to learn new skills for product changes.

Municipalities have followed these guidelines, and our city is no exception. Each year it has expanded its program of training for city employes.

ONE OF THE AREAS benefiting significantly in this training area is the police department.

Last year, the Southwest Law Enforcement Academy was established here, a pilot program in training rookie policemen at the local level, under the auspices of a junior college. At minimum expense, officers from throughout this area may be sent to the school, which provides expert instruction in police work. This program does not supplant any existing schooling, but was a new program entirely.

CURRENTLY underway at the police department is a training program for reserve officers, another landmark program. Although the reserve force gives additional manpower to the department, it is not manned by fellows with no training. They receive substantially the same course of work as regular officers—indeed, many of them have joined the force after serving on the reserve staff.

AND FINALLY, the city hopes to send at least one officer annually to the FBI Academy, considered by some as the top training center for law enforcement officers in the country.

This training has all but eliminated the fellow who once carried a gun and club, but couldn't write his name. Today's police officer, by the very nature of an increasingly complex society, must be better trained. He must know the law—know how best to enforce it.

THESE ARE examples of training being provided in one area of the city's program. Similar programs are underway for other departments, all of them designed to upgrade the individual in his job, which in turn gives the taxpayer a better job for his money.

Regrettably, many cities sometimes lag far behind the general trend of the times. Our own is catching up in many ways—this being one of them.

Professor On Trial

WASHINGTON — There seems to be a trend in universities these days to have college students rate their professors. Some schools are even setting up student boards to decide whether a teacher should get tenure or not. If it continues, we can well imagine the following scene.

A board room with three somber students studying a dossier. There is a timid knock on the door. "Come in," one of the students shouts.

ENTER PROF. Higgins, nervously biting his lip. The three students study him for almost a minute. Then the chairman speaks: "You can smoke if you want. Professor, this report does not look very good. It says you slur your words, have a very annoying habit of clearing your throat, and your handwriting on the blackboard leaves much to be desired."

"All I'm asking is another chance," Prof. Higgins pleads.

One of the other students says, "Higgins, I would like to remind you that your parents went to a great deal of trouble to make you a professor. Is this how you repay them?"

"I'm SORRY, gentlemen. It's just that I've been writing my book on Antartic philosophy and I haven't had enough time to work on my lectures."

"A likely story," another student says. "If you ask me, you're probably spending too much time thinking about your wife and children. This is not a country club, Higgins, and the sooner you discover this the better off you're going to be."

THE CHAIRMAN says, "The report also states you give too many exams and rely too much on outside references. What do you have to say to this?"

"I don't want to complain, but the students are always picking on me. I just can't seem to do anything right."

"Higgins," the chairman says, "I don't want to get off the subject, but it also says in the report you seem to concentrate on the coeds in the first row when you're lecturing. Do you have any excuse for this?"

"No, sir."

"WHAT ARE we going to do with you, Higgins? What are we going to do with you?"

"Maybe I could take an aptitude test. Perhaps I'm teaching the wrong subject?"

"If we let every professor teach the subject he was most qualified for, Higgins, where would the university be?"

"Higgins, we're going to put you on probation. We are going to assign a student to tutor you and you will report back in two months. If you don't show any improvement, we're going to have to ask you to leave."

"THANK YOU, gentlemen. I'll prove your faith in me. You won't regret it."

"We like your spirit, Higgins. Now let's see you measure up. Good day."

The chairman takes out a new dossier. "Who is next? Oh, no. Not the Dean of the Law School again?"

The Issue In New York City

WASHINGTON—The political eyes of the nation next week will be on the election of a mayor in New York City.

Ordinarily a contest for mayor in a city, no matter how large it is, is not a reflection of political currents across the country. But the mayoralty vote in New York on November 2 could reveal evidence of a trend that will have a bearing on the congressional elections of 1966 as well as on the presidential campaign in 1968. For if a protest vote of substantial proportions is cast against "boss rule" and political corruption in New York City, it may symbolize the beginning of a nationwide reaction against such abuses.

EVERY NOW and then, the people get tired of seeing public funds and public power misused, and they react to "boss rule" in an emphatic way. In past decades, the people have at times administered a severe rebuke to Tammany Hall in New York City, as the voters, irrespective of party, supported a reform movement and elected the nominee of the opposition party or the candidate of a fusion party.

In many instances, when a strong protest is voiced, American voters do not vote for the candidate of the opposition just because of his likeable personality or even his record. They vote primarily to repudiate or punish the party in power. Essentially, they vote for a change.

THE BASIC ISSUE in the New York City election is whether the voters there, including independent-minded Democrats, want to let the Democratic political organization stay in control or are ready to turn out the incumbents and clean house with a reform program.

The Republican nominee for mayor, Rep. John Lindsay, isn't emphasizing his connection with the Republican party, but is endeavoring to get Democratic votes by stressing his independence of party. It happens that he did not support Barry Goldwater in the last presidential campaign, and this has alienated a good many Republican voters who think he should have remained loyal to the party's candidate in 1964.

THE FUNDAMENTAL issue in New York City is honest government. This is more important than worrying about any candidate's individual record in the past as a party regular or as an independent. Differences of opinion inside a party on the national level also have proved to be the way to lose elections, and it takes time for the factions to see the error of their ways.

It isn't easy, of course, to bring about internal peace in a political party within a year after a debacle like that which occurred in 1964, but the only argument that has ever made any headway in bringing opposing factions together within a party is the desire for victory.

THE QUESTION really is how much good is accomplished as a result of wreaking political revenge. In the long run, the only thing that matters is whether the party in power can be dislodged, and whether the abuses perpetrated by those who have held office continuously for many years will be corrected by a change in administration.

A significant result in the New York City election would be the recording of a substantial vote against the party in power. If, by chance, the Democratic nominee proves the winner by only a narrow margin, perhaps a lesson will have been learned and the cause of efficiency and honesty in public service will be taken more seriously than in the past.

Gives Blood

BUFFALO, Wyo. (AP)—Buffalo Policeman Bill Hepp started to give a speeding ticket recently—and wound up giving a pint of blood.

Hepp chased a speeder through Buffalo and caught him near the Johnson County Memorial Hospital. The offender didn't wait for Hepp to write the ticket, but interrupted and asked what type of blood the policeman had.

Hepp had stopped a laboratory technician making an emergency call for blood. The policeman had the right type, gave a pint of blood and forgot about the ticket.

In 42 years, he traveled 400,000 miles delivering mail. He also wore out two 2-wheel carts, one closed mail wagon, three buggies, eight horses, two Jeeps and 15 autos.

DEAR ABBY

She Needs A Lawyer

DEAR ABBY: I am sure you have never received a problem like this in your entire career. I am a 24-year-old divorcee, and the mother of two children, ages 5 and 3. I live alone, support myself and up until I met this young man I have lived a very respectable life. The young man I am in love with is 16 years old. He is a nice person and lives at home with his family, who knows nothing of this. I am well aware that this is completely wrong, and I make no apologies for it, but I can't help myself. I love him. I suppose you are wondering how a 24-year-old woman in her right mind could be "in love" with a 16-year-old kid. Believe me, I am sane and am not a tramp.

The problem is that I think I am expecting his child. I don't want to hurt this boy in any way, Abby. I would die before I would reveal his name. He is much too young to marry, but if I am pregnant, I want to keep the baby in hopes of marrying him later. If this is found out, could I be put in jail and my children taken from me? I would go to a lawyer but I am afraid he might press charges. Help me? "LOOKS LIKE 17"

DEAR LOOKS: GO TO A LAWYER. He will protect you and advise you of your rights and obligations. Confide in him and have no fear.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have not been able to find a satisfactory answer to something that has bothered me for a long time. Maybe you can help me. How does a person know when to tip and when not to?

For instance, the carry-out boys at the supermarket. Do they get paid by the market, or do they expect tips? How about doormen at swanky restaurants and hotels who do nothing but open the door for you?

I once spent the weekend at the country home of a friend. The maid made my bed and pressed my clothes and I felt that I should have given her something, but I wasn't sure it was proper so I didn't. Also I tried to tip a hairdresser once and he informed me indignantly that he was the OWNER of the shop and didn't accept tips. Is there any rule to follow?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Yes. Common sense. If you assume that almost everyone who serves the public depends on tips, you'll be right. (I happen to dislike this system, but it's true nevertheless.) When in doubt, ask.

Doormen should be tipped if they perform a special service, such as hailing a taxi, or handling luggage. All beauty operators should be tipped. (Most shop owners will decline.) Servants in the home of friends deserve a gratuity for extra service. (It's not expected, but usually appreciated.) If there is a NO TIPPING sign, don't attempt to violate it.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the southpaw problem: Can you tell me if Vladimir Horowitz, Artur Rubinstein, or Leonard Pennario are ambidextrous? Also, can you tell me if Jascha Heifetz, Yehudi Menuhin and Gregor Piatigorsky are left-handed?

If those hard-working people can accomplish such miracles with both hands with equal ease, can't those natural-born lefties master the simple art of writing with their right hands without developing an assortment of emotional problems?

CURIOUS IN INGLEWOOD

DEAR CURIOUS: We would all probably amaze ourselves with the "talents" we could develop if we had to. When one loses a right hand, he can learn to write with his left. If both hands are gone, even the feet can substitute. But few learn Braille until they're sightless.

Truancy Unlawful Again In East

BOSTON (AP) —School kids in Massachusetts didn't know it, but for the past month they lived in a truant's paradise.

In a new law passed Sept. 26, there was no provision requiring children of any age to attend school.

But Gov. John A. Volpe ended that situation when he signed special legislation restoring the mandatory school attendance for children between 7 and 16.
