SIX DIE IN OKLAHOMA STORM

Storm And Accident Death Toll Is Heavy

FOUR MURDERED AND OTHERS HURT IN AUTO WRECKS

LUBBOCK WOMAN ESCAPES INJURY IN CAR WRECK NEAR ABILENE

Ten persons, including two small children, were killed, and five were injured, at least one of whom may be seriously hurt, as a result of a series of storms, accidents, murders and suicides that swept Texas and Oklahoma Wednesday night and early Thursday, a resume of the day's report of The Associated Press to the Daily Journal reveals.

Five were killed near Pawhuska, Oklahoma, five of whom drowned, and the other killed by lightning when a severe electrical and rain storm swept the northern part of the state. The five persons drowned were all members of one family, including one child seven months old, and a three year old girl.

At Dallas, a former special-deputy sheriff, 44, shot and killed a woman, 34, and then fatally wounded himself while four children of the slain woman looked on at the gruesome scene. No explanation has been given of the tragedy.

A member of the County Commis- sioners' Court in Childress county was shot to death late Wednesday, and a nephew of the slain man's wife is being held for the killing.

An innocent youth at Jacksonville, Texas, was shot to death by the pro- prietor of a filling station about mid- night Wednesday while engaged in taking gasoline from the tank of a truck near the station after being un- able to arouse the station proprietor to fill his tank.

One person was very painfully in- jured and three other less seriously hurt in an automobile collision at Abi- lene. Mrs. J. R. Barrier, of Lubbock, a passenger in one of the cars was un- injured.

Two Killed In Dallas

(By The Associated Press)
DALLAS, June 3. —James E. Duncan, 41, former special deputy sheriff, shot and killed Mrs. Octavia Penock, 24, and then fatally wounded himself with a pistol here Thursday, at her home. Police could find no explanation of the shooting. Duncan fired four shots. One turned to page 8, col. 3, please

Two Missing After River Boat Sinks

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Two pas- sengers are missing from the 365 per- sons who were aboard the steamer Washington Irving when it was rammed and sunk yesterday as it left a Hudson river pier for Albany.

Mrs. Lynn Arthur Hoag, New York, and her three-year-old daughter could not be found after the accident. Two other children of Mrs. Hoag, who were on the ship, were unable to give any clue as to their missing mother and sister.

Officials of the steamship line be- lieved they might be found in a hos- pital.

Women Rap Quack Reducing Methods

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 3. (AP)—Reducing may be a practice, but it is not a mania nor a habit, the Gen- eral Federation of Women's Clubs to- day decided before adopting a resolu- tion urging the women of America not to imperil their health by the use of reducing methods not advocated by reliable physicians.

A resolution endorsing the principles of a bill to subject prison made goods to the laws of the state into which they come also was adopted.

The original draft of the reducing resolution declared this practice a mania. Mrs. William E. Towne of Holyoke, Mass., moved to substitute a bill for mania and on suggestion of Mrs. Walter McNab Miller of New York, practice was substituted for habit.

Back Seat Driving Just Divorce Cause

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3. (AP)—"Back seat" automobile driving is a just cause for divorce, The State Supreme Court said yesterday.

Claude H. Harman, San Francisco, locomotive engineer, sued in the lower courts for a divorce on the grounds that his wife Jessie belittled his ability as a driver by constantly telling him from the back seat just how he should negotiate the dangerous curves ahead.

The trial court refused the decree and Harman appealed to the State Su- preme Court. The higher tribunal granted him the decree and thereby put "back seat driving" in the category of legitimate divorce grounds.

Crop Prospect Is Highly Promising D. F. Eaton States

With practically all crops planted and cultivation now the order of the farmer's day, agricultural conditions in Lubbock county are more promising now than they have been in years at this time of the calendar, County Agent D. F. Eaton told the Journal today. According to Mr. Eaton, tak- ing into consideration the great amount of moisture which underlies the top soil of all parts of the county 1926 should be one of the best crop years in the county's history.

There will be an increase of cotton acreage over last year, due to a mul- tiplicity of reasons, Mr. Eaton believes, and a rough estimate leads him to be- lieve that from 120,000 to 130,000 acres of the white staple have been planted thus far this year as compared to about 100,000 acres in 1925. The in- crease is chiefly due to an increased cultivation area and the fact that a great deal of the feed crop of last year is left over. The low price of grain sorghum at the present time is also given as a reason.

From one end of the county to the other, with but one exception of an eight mile strip, the stand of cotton is highly satisfactory and its little ham- pered by the weed crop. In the Union and New Hope communities, eight miles west of Slaton, where hail last week destroyed the early stand, the crop has been replanted and is show- ing a short stand at the present time, Mr. Eaton says. This is the only place in the county where the crop is at all backward, he added. "It should be expected from the Texas South Plains. The prudence and foresight of the pioneer railroad builder should be rewarded."

Flashes Of Life

By Associated Press

Seventh Heaven

ROCHESTER—Louis Calhern and Ika Chase believe that mar- riage will not interfere with their stage careers. At any rate they have wedded and will continue to appear in "Seventh Heaven." They only met five weeks ago, but it was a case of love at first sight, so they slipped away after a per- formance and had the knot tied by a Justice of the Peace.

Just a Mix-up

NEW YORK—There's always one adjunct of marriage that is never overlooked, the shower of rice. The proverbial rice mixed with confetti, sped Mr. and Mrs. David K. Bruce on their honeymoon to Europe. Mrs. Bruce, you will re- call, was the former Aileen Mellon, only daughter of the Secretary of the Treasury.

Need The Change

ALBANY, N. Y.—Court attaches here apparently have to keep a supply of change on hand. Two men have been fined fifty cents for illegal transportation and pos- session of intoxicants. The day's scale of fines, however, ran all the way from fifty cents to $10,000, the later on a conspiracy charge.

Saloon Keeper

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—While on the subject of liquor, some one has just dug up the information that Roger Williams, founder of Rhode Island, was one of the first licensed liquor dealers in the state. This reference was found in an old volume of colonial records. "It is granted unto Mr. Roger Williams to have leave to sell a little wine, or strong water to some natives in their sickness."

She'll Bob It

NEW YORK—Follow workers of Gaan Weiner often urged her to bob her hair, but she insisted in dressing her tresses in the old-fashioned way. Becoming loosened, her long hair became entangled in a book binding machine and she suffered severe laceration of the head and face.

A Real Martyr

CHICAGO—Domestic difficulties are driving Judge J. J. Lupe mad. They're not his, but he will resign as head of the domestic relations court, having served a year, the longest time any judge ever sat in the local arena.

SANTA FE ENTERS PROCEEDINGS IN PLAINS RAIL CASE

ADDITIONAL EXCEPTIONS TO BOLES' REPORT FILED WITH I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—Addi- tional exceptions to the recommenda- tions of an examiner regarding the proposed construction of new lines in the South Plains section of Texas were filed with the Interstate Commerce commission today by the Pecos and Northern Texas and the Atchison, To- peka and Santa Fe railroads.

The commission was asked to find that public necessity did not require the proposed construction by the Tex- as, Panhandle and Gulf, the Fort Worth and Denver South Plains and the Quanah, Acme and Pacific rail- roads, but did require the building by the Pecos and Northern of branches from Lida to Silverton and from Plainview to Dimmitt.

Construction by the Panhandle un- der the conditions proposed by the examiner, the brief asserted, "would prejudice the interests of the Santa Fe lines upon the South Plains, and like the Denver and the Quanah, in- crease the degree, would divert traf- fic developed by the long continued ef- forts of the Santa Fe which it could ill afford to lose."

"Unnecessary duplication and ruinous competition," the brief added "should be excluded from the Texas South Plains. The prudence and foresight of the pioneer railroad builder should be rewarded."

The South Plains committee also filed a brief taking issue with that part of the report recommending a condi- tional construction certificate be granted the Panhandle.

Supreme Court Of Texas Hears Plea In Bond Issue Row

Mr. Dumas Is Representing Tom Green County Which Seeks A Mandamus To Compel Attorney General Dan Moody To Approve A $500,000 County-Wide Issue

AUSTIN, June 3. (AP)—Decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Archer County district bond case does not involve county-wide bond issues, W. P. Dumas of Dallas con- tended today before the Texas Su- preme Court.

Mr. Dumas is representing Tom Green County which seeks a manda- mus to compel Attorney General Dan Moody to approve a $500,000 county- wide issue.

There was also submitted the case of C. C. Howley, et al, against O. T. Warlick, Wilbarger county judge, in which the plaintiffs charge unequal taxation, because of the formation of a subdivision of the county-wide road bond issue, which would increase taxes for that particular subdivision.

Moody refused to approve the bonds because of the decision of the United States Supreme court and this opinion was up-held by the arguments of C. A. Wheeler, assistant attorney general.

Although Harris county did not join in the proceeding brought by Tom Green county, John G. Logue, of Hous- ton, as "a friend of the court," spoke in behalf of the Tom Green issue.

Mr. Dumas quoted the last sentence of the opinion of the United States Supreme court in the Archer county case: "The act is repugnant to the due process of the Fourteenth amend- ment," he contended this language ap- plied only to that portion of the act authorizing the issuance of road dis- trict bonds. "The validity of county road bonds in Texas are not and cannot be affected by the court's opin- ion," he asserted.

Matador Mexican Is Arrested by Deputy

Joe Flores, Mexican, was arrested yesterday evening in "Little Juarez," by Deputy Sheriff Vernice L. Ford up- on advice from Morley county offi- cials, and turned over to Sheriff Claude Warren, of Matador, to stand trial for forgery. It was given out here today.

According to Deputy Ford the Mor- ley county sheriff came to Lubbock looking for Flores and when he and Deputy Ford went to the Mexican sec- tion of the city they found the Mex- ican in the second house they entered. Flores is charged with forging a check for $35 and according to officers was wearing clothing purchased with the check.

Ultimatum Issued To Mexico Priests

MEXICO CITY, June 3. (AP)—Presi- dent Calles has sent a strongly worded letter to the Catholic archbishop Mora del Rio in which he serves no- tice without qualification upon the archbishop and all other Catholic dig- nitaries in Mexico, that they must obey Mexican laws or suffer the con- sequence. The president charges Cath- olic prelates with provoking agita- tion both within and without Mexico and says this effort will not succeed in causing the Mexican government to change from their resolute purpose of enforcing the laws and constitution.

Robbers of Oak Cliff Bank Still at Large

DALLAS, June 3. (AP)—Officers searching for the robbers who help up an Oak Cliff bank and made off with $17,000 yesterday, had not caught them today. Several suspects were held for questioning but the robbers and the money are still out of sight, follow- ing the quartet's successful flight in an automobile after locking 11 bank attaches and patrons in the vault.

The case with which the robbers en- gaged the hold-up and dispersed indicates to police they probably were "old heads" at the game and the search is being conducted in accord- ance with that theory.

Passenger Boat Held By Mexican Bandits

MEXICO CITY, June 3. (AP)—Dis- patches from Tampico say that band- its held up a passenger boat plying between Tuxpan and Tampico on Lake Tamahubus and robbed the passen- gers of $5,000 pesos and their valuables.

The women passengers resisted vic- toriously some throwing their money and jewelry overboard and some being beaten by the bandits.

New Well Brought In At Cross Cut

BROWNWOOD, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Dave Gulley, oil operator, brought in a well three miles northwest of Cross Cut at midnight last night which is estimated as anywhere from one thousand to fifteen hundred barrel producer. A few minutes after coming in the well caught fire from a spark and was still burning at nine o'clock this morning, the blaze extending one hundred fifty feet upward and creat- ing intense excitement.

Accidents Hold Sway When It Rains It Pours

Here Late Wednesday

In keeping with the proverbial "when it rains, it pours," accidents came in multitudes just after the Journal came from the press Wed- nesday afternoon and they hap- pened almost simultaneously.

There was a resounding crash at the corner of Avenue H and Main street as two cars dived into a collision, turning one of them over and smashing the other consider- ably. Just as the crowd gathered for this, the fire siren sounded and the big wagon went clanging up the street to where a Yellow cab and a large touring car had run together, turning the cab over. There was no fire there but the alarm had been turned in in the excitement.

There was a fire, however, out in the west part of town that was creating excitement there and just at this time two cars ran together on Avenue Q, causing damage to both vehicles.

The fire was extinguished before it had gained much headway and the cars were all dragged to re- pair shops. No one was hurt.

Simultaneously with the sound- ing of the fire siren, a lady leaving the curb in a large automobile north of the Journal building, crashed into a delivery boy on his bicycle, but the lad escaped un- injured, and his wheel was only slightly damaged.

Civil War Veteran Awarded Back Pension

WASHINGTON, June 3. (AP)—Totally blind for many years but carried on the pension as merely disabled, Ben- jamin Garnett, 79-year-old civil war veteran of Salem, Ky., has just been awarded back pension money amount- ing to $7,495.

The discovery of his blindness was made by the pension bureau during an overhauling of its files. He had received $72 instead of $100 monthly which had been due him since 1904. Under a new law he will receive $125 a month.

Philadelphia Given Next Shrine Meeting

PHILADELPHIA, June 3. (AP)—At- lantic City was chosen today for the 1927 Shrine convention.

Five other cities were in the con- test for the honor of entertaining the ancient Arab order, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine. They were Atlanta, New Orleans, Cleveland, Springfield, Mass., and Toronto.

The annual session will be held on June 14, 15 and 16.

FIVE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY DIE IN HEAVY DELUGE

POWER CO. EMPLOYE IS KILLED BY LIGHTNING NEAR PAWHUSKA

(By The Associated Press)
PAWHUSKA, Okla., June 3.—Six persons were dead today as a result of a storm that swept over Northern Oklahoma last night, according to re- ports reaching here. Five of the vic- tims were drowned and the other struck by lightning. Those drowned were all members of one family. The dead:

F. L. Blocker, 45; Mrs. F. L. Blocker, 35; Mrs. Ruth Bailey, 31; Belle Ruth Bailey, 7 months; Lillie Blocker, six, all of Hominy; Albert L. Adams, 25, of Drumright.

The five members of the Blocker family were drowned when a four foot wall of water rushed down Rock Creek, two miles South of Hominy, washing away an approach to a bridge as the automobile in which they were riding approached.

The family was hurrying to Hominy to avoid the heavy rain which fell for two hours in this locality. Hearing the roar of the approaching wall of water, Blocker speeded up his car in an attempt to cross the stream before the rise struck the bridge.

The approach to the bridge went out just the automobile started across. Seven persons were in the car. Henry, a ten-year-old son, and a young daughter, were washed ashore.

At dawn the body of Mrs. Bailey was found lodged in a tree, with a body of her infant in her arms. Two others were discovered later, some distance down the stream. Blocker was a merchant. Mrs. Bailey was a daughter of the Blockers. Mrs. Blocker's body has not been found.

About six inches rain fell in the vicinity of Hominy during the storm. Water rose to over four feet in the houses of fifty families living on the creek bank. Rescue crews were at work this morning however, and further casu- alties were not expected. The creek was a half mile wide in places.

Adams was an employee of the power company at Drumright. He was re- pairing a fuse that had been blown out by lightning when another flash came that proved fatal. He was mar- ried and had one child.

Menus for the Family

(By SISTER MARY)

Breakfast—Shredded fresh pineapple, cereal, thin cream, French toast, maple syrup, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Vegetable timbale with tomato sauce, date and nut bread and waffles, rhubarb bread pudding, milk, tea.

Dinner—Roast veal, creamed macaroni, green beans with onions, ham and spinach salad, orange Spanish cream, whole wheat bread, milk, coffee.

The ham and spinach salad was up the left-hand side of the preceding dinner.

Vegetable timbale provides a delectable way to use up bits of left-over vegetables. The vegetables are added to a thick white sauce and eggs and then baked in individual molds surrounded by hot water.

Green Beans with Onions

One quart green beans, 2 medium sized onions, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon celery seed, salt and pepper, 4 tablespoons stock of gravy.

"Head and tail" beans and cut in diamond shaped pieces. Cook in boiling water until tender. Drain if necessary and add 2 tablespoons butter, lemon juice, salt and celery seed. Combine with onions finely chopped and cooked until tender in remaining butter and stock. Be sure the mixture is very hot before serving.

Her Own Way

A Story of a Girl of Today

A MYSTERY

There had been a queer atmosphere in the store the whole afternoon. I knew that gossip had been stirring about, but no one said anything to me.

About four o'clock I saw Mr. Robinson strutting complacently down the aisle, and my blood boiled as I thought of poor Miss Cleaver as I had found her in the rest room, her face covered with a cold clammy sweat. She wasn't a pretty creature. He probably would have thought she was not. He was looking for something fresher and more beautiful.

Evidently this man didn't know that I was the girl who had seen Miss Cleaver in her agony, for he said to me with an unctuous smile:

"I am afraid Miss Dean, that you have not been under the discipline of the workaday world long enough to know that all the rules of the store must be obeyed. I happened to observe that you were away at lunch for almost two hours. I am going to be lenient with you this time, however, because I think you didn't know."

"I returned in time, Mr. Robinson. I was only gone an hour. But when I went into the woman's room to hang up my coat I found Miss Cleaver very ill. I was afraid she was dying, and I stayed to help. Was that against the rules of the store?"

It did my heart good to see that man crumple.

He grew pale and leaned over the counter toward me.

"Don't please don't tell this to anyone. It would hurt the business of the store if anyone should hear the story. There would be all sorts of gossip going about. I am afraid that someone would even say that she had tried to poison herself."

"Well, didn't she?" I asked tersely.

"Of course not, of course not," answered Robinson quickly. "Doctor Flint told me that he thought it was a kind of epileptic attack. He has no doubt that she will not recover."

"I am glad you told me that, Mr. Robinson, for I thought it was poison she had taken. You see, I saw her, and I picked up a bottle on the floor with this label on it."

Before he could recover from his astonishment I thrust the bottle with the red skull and cross bones on it into his hands.

Reincarnated Jeanne D'Arc To Pose For Heroic Mural

MARIE LOUISE THOMAS

By NEA Service.

BOSTON, June 2.—To Marie Louise Thomas, child of France, Jeanne d'Arc has always been HER heroine.

Born of the same peasant race, coming from the same ancient village—Marie found in the life of the warrior saint her own ideal.

As a child, it's glamor filled her dreams.

And at 18, strangely—avowedly to make—the dream comes true: She was a dancing student and was seen by an artist. He pronounced her a perfect model of the famous maid, and chose her to pose for a mural of Jeanne.

"She has the same—and a saint-like expression, a most remarkable combination," enthuses Richard Andrews, the artist.

"Her face has the pure and placid strength of a mediaeval saint, and yet she has the muscular body."

Her measurements, too, are exactly those of Jeanne d'Arc. Andrews says. These are: height, 5 feet, 2½ inches; weight, 127 pounds; chest, same in diameter as the distance from her chin to the top of her head; foot, 4½ shoe; hand, No. 6 glove. Her hair is in the style that Jeanne wore.

The artist has a commission from Massachusetts war veterans to paint a memorial Sainte Jeanne for the famous old State House here.

Marie Louise is shining armor!

Bacon-Atkins Nuptials Of Wife Interest Here; Wedding Will Be At Baptist Church This Evening

The wedding of Miss Kathryn Atkins and Lawrence Bacon at the First Baptist church at 8 o'clock this evening is one of wide interest in Lubbock and a large crowd is expected to witness the ceremony. Both of these young people have lived in Lubbock virtually all of their lives and have many friends here.

Rev. W. A. Bowen, pastor of the First Baptist church, is to read the ceremony for the young couple who are leaving for a honeymoon for the remainder of the month.

Miss Atkins has chosen as her attendants Mrs. Frank Jones and Miss Margaret Smith, Evelyn Posey, Mamie Wolffarth, and Gladys Babcock, of Fort Worth. Virginia Bacon and Dorothy Rushing. The groom's attendants are Paul and Ted Sams, Charles Bacon and Henry Benson. Other attendants are to be Monte Joe Brashers, Jeannette Brashers and Evelyn Brashers, Plainview, Jerry Stone and Charlotte Hopkins. Members of the bridal chorus are Mrs. J. T. Krueger, Mrs. Howard Parsley, Misses Kathleen Hawkins, Fort Worth, Alma Spikes, Elizabeth Clarke, Mary Alice Stanton, Edith Carter, Mary Louise Middleton, Frances Hoffman and Lula Mae Cravens.

A reception is to be given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Atkins, following the ceremony at the church.

Heart To Heart Talks With Cynthia Grey

PITY OFTEN CRIMINALS TOO OFTEN MAUDLIN

An outburst of sympathy from feminine America greeted Gerald Chapman when he was sentenced to death. The execution of the Nevada murderer by lethal gas the other day brought a flood of letters of protest from well-intentioned women.

Nearly any criminal, however atrocious his crime, can depend upon the pity and championship of a certain group of emotional women, who have lost sight of the crime and its effect on society.

It is even reported that one unbalanced woman in Boston committed suicide, because the event preyed on her mind.

Play on Sympathy

The warden of a state penitentiary once told me that convicts soon learn that this maudlin sympathy can be played upon to gain their ends. They write pathetic letters to women who have visited the prison, and reap a harvest in gifts and food and money.

Sometimes a woman's interference even brings a parole or a pardon for a man who is a menace to society. Now that women vote, governors must listen to feminine opinion when a pardon is being considered.

I have no quarrel with womanly tender-heartedness. It relieves the needy and brightens the world in many ways. But applied to these hardened criminals whom society has found it necessary to confine for its own safety, it works disastrously.

Governor Miriam Ferguson of Texas as pardoned and paroled nearly 1500 convicts in one year. It is said there were twelve loose on the state many of the most dangerous outlaws of the southwest. Perhaps every case fully deserved clemency. Or it may be a prime example of a sentimental woman in office causing wholesale trouble.

Can Sway Courts

Women in private life can and do sway the courts in many cases, by their tendency to make a hero of every man who has a sob story to tell on the stand.

Women at large are not qualified to judge the merits of any criminal case, because they cannot gain complete knowledge of the facts. Women jurors, who hear the testimony, are not inclined to maudlin sympathy. It is the great body of women outside who do the meddling.

Emotionalism has been man's great charge against women. It seems a pity that she cannot prove herself free from it at least in the matter of crime and punishment.

Her energies are better spent in rearing children who will avoid crime than in sending white robes and cap custards to murderers or circulating petitions for the release of highway-men.

Vases of Roses Are Bridge Score Favors At Shufflers Party

Vases of roses were given as score favors at a meeting of the Shufflers' Club Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Joe Hilton, 602 Avenue M. The high score favor, which was awarded Mrs. Ernest Conley, was a luster vase of Dorothy Perkins roses and the guest favor, a green vase of red cluster roses, was awarded Mrs. Henry McFarly. French kiss and peppermint ice were served at the close of the afternoon.

Guests and members of the club, who were present were Mesdames Ernest Conley, Joe Dick Slaughter, Joe Flaig, Carl Roberts Jr., B. U. Malone, Henry D. K. Bonduant, Clark Smith, Bud Johnston. Tea guests were Mesdames Houston Spikes, John Connor and George Boles.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SHEPARD, of Lovington, N. M., are visiting his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Shepard, and his sister, Mrs. E. M. Smith, and family.

Huggins' Yanks, After Sensational Spring Drive In East, Leave Tonight West End Of Loop For Supreme Test

(By Associated Press.)

Seven full games in the lead after the most sensational spring push in the club's history, the New York Yankees tonight take their blueprints and pennant hopes Westward for a supreme test of their strength—a running fight on the road with Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis.

Eastern opposition today appeared to have been temporarily subdued by the terrific clouting of Huggins' men. Washington Senators, champions of a year ago, clung only by a thread to fourth place, nine and one-half games behind the leaders as a result of the double defeat they received yesterday, while the Athletics, although advancing slowly to challenge the Yankees, have been unable to match the record-breaking gain of the pace-makers.

Whether the New York club is to retain its run-away race or whether the morose of the re-organized team will be shattered by the rising opposition of the West will be told in the next three weeks. A crowd of 35,000, extending attendance figures to a spring record at Yankee Stadium, watched the Senators bow twice before the Huggins batting ram yesterday, 5:5, 5:4. A home run by Lazzeri led an opening game attack which forced Joe Bush to retire in the seventh, while another four-bagger by Combs proved the winning blow of the second game. Gehrig and Ruth also batted timely in both games.

The Boston Red Sox battered five Philadelphia pitchers freely to take the initial brush of a double header, 5 to 4, but dependable pitching by Quinn and Grove balanced the account for the Athletics in the second, 5 to 1. Cochran and Simmons delivered home runs.

Chicago, Washington, Detroit and Cleveland are bunched in a blanket fight for places in the first division as a result of yesterday's contests. Chicago moved into third position as Washington crumpled, a four run rally in the ninth giving Collins' cohorts a verdict over the Browns, 8 to 6. A single, triple and home run from the bat of Mott were potent factors in Chicago's triumph.

One sided victories marked an even division of the Detroit-Cleveland double header, four hits booming from Ty Cobb's bat to heck the Indians, 7 to 0, after they had swamped the Tigers in the opened, 13 to 1.

The Boston Braves reached up from the National League pit and dealt Brooklyn two lousy clouts, clustering thirty-four hits to win by 12.5 and 12-11.

The St. Louis Cardinals took advantage of the even break to vault past the Giants into fifth place by overwhelming the Cubs, 14 to 6.

AMERICANS CINCH WALKER CUP AT ST. ANDREWS

(By the Associated Press.)

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 3.—The Walker cup, premier team trophy of amateur golf, will remain in the United States another two years. The American stars, after gaining a field of three matches to one in yesterday's forsmes, came successfully through the singles today.

Walter Gunn of Atlanta defeated W. G. Browder, 3 and 8.

Roger Wethered, former British champion, defeated Francis Oulmet of Boston, 5 and 4.

George von Elm of Los Angeles and Major C. O. Hazlet ended their thirty-six holes all square, giving each a half point. This made the total point score at that time 6½ for America and 2½ for Great Britain, clinching the American victory.

Robert Harris, former British champion, defeated Jess Guilford of Boston, 2 and 1.

Arthur Jamieson defeated Robert A. Gardner, captain of the American team, 5 and 4.

E. F. Storey defeated Roland Mackenzie of Washington, 2 and 1.

The British put up a gallant fight, however, and the final point score was: America 6½, Great Britain 5½.

George von Elm's feat in holding Major C. O. Hazlet to a tie gave the needed margin to win. Bobby Jones, Jess Sweetser and Walter Gunn won their matches by good margins. Francis Oulmet was defeated by Roger Wethered, the bright star of the British team; Jess Guilford fell before Robert Harris, another former British champion; Roland Mackenzie was defeated by E. F. Storey, in a close match, and Robert A. Gardner bowed to Arthur Jamieson, Jr.

AMERICANS STILL LEAD BRITISH GOLF MEET

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 3.—America's golfers were leading their British opponents in five matches out of eight when the morning rounds were completed in the second day's play for the Walker cup. With an advantage of three matches to one, achieved in the four-somes yesterday, the overseas stars were in a fine position to go out this afternoon and clinch the victory.

Bobby Jones and Walter Gunn, both of Atlanta, made the most impressive showings, piling up the overwhelming lead of nine holes each over Cyril Tolley, former British champion, and W. G. Browder, the Irish star, in their respective matches.

Jess Sweetser, after being held all square by Sir Ernest Holderness for the first nine, achieved a lead of two up at the end of the morning round. George von Elm of Los Angeles, was four up on Major C. C. Hazlet, while Jess Guilford led Robert Harris one of the British mainstays, by one hole. Arthur Jamieson, Jr., had Robert A. Gardner two down at the turn and had increased his lead to four when they went to the club house. Roger Wethered was again in his most brilliant form and was three up on Francis Oulmet of Boston at the end of the 18 holes.

Roland Mackenzie of Washington had a ding-dong battle with E. F. Storey, the lead going first to one and then to the other, but the Englishman had a one hole advantage at the noon hour.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 3.—Bobby Jones showed the way for the rest of the American Walker cup golfers today by defeating Cyril Tolley, 12 up and 11 to play. The match, the first to finish, brought the American point score to four, against one for the British.

Not that we wish to become impatient or anything but would it be out of order to remind Mr. Amundsen that an American by the name of Peary once got reasonably close to a place called the north pole, too?

Putt Real Sure

In putting, the ball is definitely struck. It is firmly dismissed upon its journey. It is not scraped up to the hole. The grip is generally a divided one. The left hand may be, if anything, rather under the shaft than over it, and the right hand is also slightly underneath. The blow which is delivered is a level blow, which causes the ball to glide over the green with the least possible desire to disturb its surface.

For the less fortunate individual who finds this part of the game a thorn in the flesh, and who is compelled to labor heavily over the process, some essentially workmanlike method must be adopted. He may get the ball into the hole, but he puts less naturally.

The difference in the running of the ball is at this point apparent. There is not the same purposeful freedom of motion. It moves in a more sober manner over the ground.

Still the ordinary person is thankful for satisfactory results, however they are obtained, and he has the additional consolation that the artistic putter may not by any means be the best hole out.

WARNING IS ISSUED BALL PLAYERS OF COLLEGES

(Special to the Journal)

AUSTIN, June 3.—Dr. D. A. Penick of the University of Texas and president of the Southwest Athletic Conference has called the attention of baseball players of universities and high schools to the following summer baseball rules of the conference:

"No student in any conference institution shall participate as a member of any summer baseball team without the consent of his faculty chairman of athletics, endorsed by the president of the conference; and such player when given permission to play on such team shall submit at the re-opening of college to his faculty chairman of athletics and to the president of the conference a certified statement that he has not received pecuniary compensation therefor.

"No student shall be eligible to play on a college team in an inter-collegiate contest if he has played on a summer baseball team which played more than three games a week while he was a member of it.

"To the list of professional teams thus prescribed shall be added all the teams in any state which the conference institutions of such states declare professional and from which they desire their own players. In the event said conference institutions cannot agree on prescribed teams, the appeals committee shall have the power to decide the issue and the action of the committee shall be final.

"No student shall be permitted to participate in any form of inter-collegiate athletics who has played baseball on any team under the National Association, or in any other organization, recognized by the National Association, or who has received money for signing a baseball contract for services to be rendered, or who reports to a baseball club and receives salary or traveling expenses, whether he plays or not."

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

In what situation must an umpire, after ruling infield fly on the batter, reverse his decision?

A high wind has several times in the major leagues and often in the minors and the amateur ranks, so embarrassed the umpire.

When the umpire with first and second, or first, second and third occupied, and less than two out, rules infield fly, it is supposed to automatically retire the batsman.

The moment the umpire believes an infielder can handle a fly ball with such conditions existing, he should at once declare infield fly.

With a high wind blowing it is possible for such a fair hit ball, that has been ruled an infield fly, to finally drop into foul territory without being touched by any player.

This, of course, makes the drive a foul ball. Since there can be no infield fly on a foul ball, the umpire must reverse himself and permit the batsman to hit over.

The vagaries of the wind upset the umpire's original ruling.

Burling Grimes, one of Brooklyn's pitching stars, turned in a nifty record during the 1925-1926 period.

Over that stretch Grimes won more than 20 games four times. He got 23 in 1920, 22 in 1924. The 1922 campaign was the only one in which he failed to reach the 20-winners class. That year he was returned victor on 17 occasions.

Grimes' best season to date was in 1918, his first with Brooklyn. The big fellow copped 19 tilts against nine defeats, a percentage of .679.

BAND BOOSTERS LAY PLANS FOR AMARILLO TRIP

COMMITTEE MEETS AND MAKES ARRANGEMENTS TO SEND BOYS

The arrangements committee for the high school band on the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention trip composed of J. R. Macey, F. A. Norman and James W. Crowley, met Thursday morning at the Chamber of Commerce offices to work out detailed plans for the band. The committee hopes to send the boys to Amarillo on the special train with the other delegates in order that they will all be together and can be mobilized on quick notice for special parades and booster jaunts, over the convention city.

The band which is the youngest of the eleven high school bands entered in the high school band contest but the local boys are going up to give the other bands a hot contest, according to James W. Crowley, director. Lubbock is the smallest town, entering a high school band, according to Crowley, and the local band has less material to draw from but they are going up against the big boys who will be the Lubbock spirit and pluck-expecting victory.

"Lubbock has about as good a chance as any of them," Crowley said this morning. "The band has the best instrumentation of any of the bands in the contest."

This is the first time the high school band has entered the contest and they expect to bring home the bacon. They will be competing against the high school bands of San Antonio, El Paso, Breckenridge, Fort Worth, Brownwood, San Angelo, Amarillo, Abilene and Wichita Falls.

The band will be in the big delegation parade leading Lubbock's delegation which is going up to try for prizes in the various contests. The band will play all over Amarillo during the convention, thus giving Lubbock much good publicity with visiting delegates from all parts of West Texas.

SECRETS OF STARS INSIDE BASEBALL as told to BILLY EVANS

BY BABE RUTH

There are few batters without a certain weakness no matter how great their reputation.

While some have no glaring fault, yet of three styles—the fast, slow and curve ball—the curve ball may prove more troublesome than the other two. That might be referred to as their weakness.

Since 1921 opposing pitchers have been trying to figure my weakness. They seem to differ on the type of ball that is hardest for me to hit, so perhaps I have more than one.

I have heard it said that a slow ball, low and outside, a fast ball, pitched inside, later high, a slow ball in the pinch and various other deliveries bothered me.

As a matter of fact, the pitching in the two big leagues is so good that I am of the opinion most any style is pretty hard to hit. Once I set a home run record, it seemed to me every pitcher put more stuff on the ball when pitching to me than against the rest of the team.

I suppose that was the result of a desire on the part of the pitcher to make the "Babe" look like a sucker. And I must confess the boys have often made me look that way.

On the other hand, I have turned the tables myself many a time. After looking foolish on a slow one, taking it for the third strike, I have knocked the ball out of the lot the next time when the pitcher went to work on me again with the old slow stuff.

Every batter has a certain style of delivery that bothers him most. Some of us have several. To overcome one or more faults, make the pitchers in the morning, or batting practice feed you that style of pitching. That has been my system.

Any player can remedy a batting weakness at least 50 per cent if he will work to eradicate his fault.

Miss Bruckner Is Busy, Report From Her Office Shows

With a visit to forty homes just completed and organization meetings for two adult health clubs set for today and tomorrow, work in the office of Miss Anna Bruckner, Lubbock county public health nurse, has assumed "rushing proportions," the Journal discovered today.

Yesterday Miss Bruckner toured the Wolfarth community following up the health work done in the school there, and found that numerous corrections of a minor nature had been brought about by the earlier examinations. She stated that she was highly pleased with the results.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. McCray, in the southwest ward community a meeting was set for this afternoon when an adult health club will be formed. At three-thirty tomorrow afternoon a similar organization meeting will be held at Idalou, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Yates.

MISS MAE MORRISON, WHO HAS been teaching in Hereford, is visiting her aunt, Miss Margaret Huff. She plans to study at the Tech this summer.

MR. AND MRS. J. C. SANDERS expect to go to Abilene Friday to attend the commencement exercises at Abilene Christian college. They are both ex-students of the institution and have many friends among the graduates.

THAT MILK ORDINANCE

Although it is almost two months old as far as the city's law books are concerned, the much berated and criticized milk and butter ordinance is being subjected to still more hard knocks—which are coming principally from those who do not understand it.

Anyone with half a thought must realize and admit that the general public must be protected in the retailing of butter and milk. To permit the sale of milk and butter from tubercular cows or to permit products of this nature to be broadcast over the city when they are not compatible with good health and sanitation is no better than turning maniacs loose in our streets, armed with machine guns. In the long run the casualties resulting from these two dangers would be about equal.

The Journal urges the opponents of the milk ordinance to become acquainted with it before condemning it. Past records prove that those who first opposed it chose to support the move after becoming familiar with it. What one clear-thinking group of men, unprejudiced from personal motives, will do, others will also do.

In urging and passing this ordinance the public spirited citizens, the Chamber of Commerce and the city commission were not, as has been charged, trying to run "rough-shod" over the rights of individual dairymen. Instead they were acting on what they knew to be best for the people as a whole. As long as any group or organization acts in this manner it can be assured of the undivided support of The Journal.

What Lubbock needs is not the repeal of its few sanitation laws but rather for the more strict observance of them—with a few more thrown in for good measure. The code which we have been following was all right in the days that Lubbock was in the "small town" class. What we need now is to follow the metropolitan idea in our health rules as well as in the other departments of civic government.

WE WILL KEEP FAITH

The Journal has been literally showered with congratulations on the additional features which it has added through contracting for the full NEA service—the largest and best feature news and pictorial service available. We take this opportunity and method of thanking the Journal's many friends and large clientele for their good words of commendation and praise.

While the success of The Journal thus far has been even greater than its publishers expected, its readers need not for a moment think that it will not continue along the pathway of progress, a pathway smoothed by the publisher's program of "A Bigger and Better Journal."

It is the earnest wish of the staff of this newspaper that each successive edition of the paper be a better one than the predecessor, and with this wish in mind will continue to toll onward. The Journal is appreciative, always, of the whole-hearted, loyal support which it has received from Lubbock and the surrounding territory and with another milestone just passed will say again that as Lubbock grows and The Journal grows, "We Will Keep Faith."

NOT ONE

The Fort Worth and Denver City South Plains Railway company, due to the adverse ruling made several months ago by the Interstate Commerce Commission, may be down—but it most assuredly isn't "out."

Recent news dispatches bore the glad tidings to Lubbock that officials of the road had appealed their case to the commission and had opened a new fight to bring another rail line to the great Plains of Texas. Let's hope it is a successful one.

BROADWAY

NEW YORK.—See-sawing up and down Broadway I was noting all the gorgeous sounding names that flare in the lights and leap in black from the billboards, when I came upon one Nicola, "master of magic." And this caused me to ponder, since he is none other than William Nichols, of Burlington, Ia.... Yet how far could he get as a worker of magic with such a name as Bill Nichols?....

All stardom and filmdom is made up, foresooth, of folk who were born with ordinary names, but how mysterious and grand they sound, thanks to a little invention....

And so, I was led to compile a list as one name after another hit my eye. Here I see Romney Brent and Hardwick Nevins.... There I behold the intriguing moniker of Zaidie.... Next I noticed Wellington Cross, Diana D'Arle, Nikola Cunningham, Ransom Ber, Hede Norcross—and so on down the line.... All names to roll around on your tongue and recall some pet of fiction.... And I am given to wonder how many of them were born under the name of Mary Smith and Sam Jones....

Note many of the city's statues and most of the public buildings are getting a much needed spring cleaning....

And I lingered long to watch the much discussed "Civic Virtue" having its face washed with sand. Washing Virtue perhaps might go in the same class with painting the lily.... Innumerable tons of sand are needed to scrub the walls of Manhattan's municipal buildings....

Saw "Wild Bill" Lyons who, although he is credited with discovering one Dempsey, functions as a suit and clothes man.... Saw John L. Kearney, one-time athlete who started the stunt many years ago—of racing a horse around the Forepaugh circus arena....

Now he plays a detective in a comedy, "Not Herbert," and bemoans the fact that he has gradually begun to fade out of the spotlight.... Saw Dagmar Godowsky, late of the films, and now threatening to be a night club hostess, or something like that....

Jack Pickford, just before his trial separation from the lovely Marilyn Miller, staging a birthday party in an uptown night club.... And the party seemed saddened, somehow, by Marilyn's absence.

WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—Never came law-maker to Washington who was more generally beloved of his associates than Senator Underwood.

And Underwood, liked by everybody, quits for good when the 69th Congress ends.

Nominally Underwood is retiring voluntarily from public life. He announced some time ago that he would not be a candidate this year or later.

But nobody's fooled. It isn't much of a secret that he knows he couldn't get a renomination. He can see the writing on the wall in letters a foot high. Such being the case, the wisest policy for him, naturally, is not to try.

Underwood has convictions that do not go down, in these times, in his state and he refuses to compromise. That, in itself, stamps him as an individual of honesty and nerve. You may not agree with him in all respects but you've got to recognize him as a character who stands or falls by what he thinks right.

He's a wet southern democrat, which is a paradox. He's an ultra-conservative, which would be all right, since it makes him solid with Alabama's multigetting "big interests," only he ought to make a demagogic bluff at a certain amount of radicalism as an appeal for mass support and he won't.

It's natural to think of a conservative as narrow and hidebound, and of a liberal or radical as a believer in the maximum of freedom for all and sundry.

Underwood draws the curtain of his couch around him and lies down to pleasant dreams, and Congress has tears in its eyes.

Still, there's this to be said—Underwood's finish has dignity. Senator Pepper disappears from the picture to a chorus of ill concealed snickers. He tried to hang on and was trimmed.

A THOUGHT

Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain it.—Ps. 139:6.

Sense shines with a double luster when it is set in humility. An able and yet humble man is a jewel worth a kingdom.—William Penn.

But, in practice, the more radical a man is, the more intolerant he is likely to be. He's apt to want everybody else to be radical, too, in his own particular way, and to favor extermination of all who object. And a conservative can be extremely tolerant.

Underwood is tolerance itself, and it's a beautiful quality.

The senator has been in Congress a long time—20 years as a representative and nearly a dozen in the upper house. He's been a strong contender for the democratic presidential nomination more than once.

He isn't a mere politician. He's a statesman, in the real sense.

It's true, undoubtedly, that he no longer represents his state. It has grown away from him, not he from it. But it's a melancholy thing to see such a career draw to a close under what can't be described otherwise than as a cloud.

Still, there's this to be said—Underwood's finish has dignity. Senator Pepper disappears from the picture to a chorus of ill concealed snickers. He tried to hang on and was trimmed.

No immunity.
The common cold, technically known as "coryza," also has the unenviable distinction of conferring little or no permanent immunity or resistance to the disease after an attack.

Formerly it was believed that drafts, exposure to cold and chilling of the body were immediately responsible for colds. Now it is thought that these factors weaken the body's protective forces, rendering the organism more susceptible to disease.

Fatigue, loss of sleep, insufficient food, or too much food, and work in stuffy or overheated rooms are conditions upon which colds may be engendered more readily than when the individual is in robust health.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

THE FORTY WINKS
GREET THE TWINS
"I'm one of the Forty Winks," said the Eye.

"I'm one of the Forty Winks," said the Eye as it looked solemnly at the Twins from under its three-cornered hat. "Didn't you ever hear of the Forty Winks of Drowsy Land?"

"The name seems familiar," said Nick politely. "Where are the others?"

"They're coming," said the Eye. "This place is called Shut-Eye Town. We sleep most of the time with our hats down over our faces like this." And the Eye's three-cornered hat slid down until he was covered entirely—all but his arms and legs. Then it flopped all over him and no tail. Flops, the clown was on him. They both ran off! The Fairy Queen told us they had come to Drowsy Land. Did they?"

"Answer the other questions first," said the first Wink. "One question never answered another. How about the measles?"

"We've both had them both ways," answered Nancy. "Wheat-cakes or buns—which?"

"Wheat-cakes!" shouted the Twins with one voice. "Weather! That's important. Do the earth folk like it?"

"Well," said Nick. "I guess it's all right when it doesn't rain." At this all the hats on the Forty flew up again where it had been before. "But when there is the slightest noise we wake up," he went on. "I heard Snugglesnuggles, the gatekeeper, open the blue gate to let you in. So I came to see what was up. Here are my brothers now. I thought they would wake when they heard us talking."

The other thirty-nine Winks now came out of the same tall tree that the first Wink had come from and stood staring in a silent row. They were of different colors, all the Winks were. Some were blue, some were brown, some black, some gray, some hazel, some even green.

"We're the policemen of Drowsy Land," said the first Wink. "We have to ask everybody who comes exactly what he is here for, if he's had the measles, whether he prefers wheat-cakes to buns, and what the earth folk think of the weather. Commence!"

The Twins couldn't help laughing, which had a peculiar effect. The hats of the forty Winks slid down and then instantly slid up again. No doubt they were showing their surprise.

"T'll tell you what we're here for," said Nick. "We are hunting for Inca, our china elephant door-stop. He had

Helpful Health Hints

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Director General U. S. Public Health Survey

Because it occurs so frequently, the disagreeable condition known as the common cold is usually lightly regarded. But the malady causes suffering, inconvenience, economic loss and is often the forerunner of more serious affections. It should be regarded as a serious disease.

Colds have a definite economic import. In one division of a large life insurance company in New York, there were 2824 colds among 6700 workers during a year. The average time lost by those having colds was 2.2 days.

School Factor.
Recent studies among school children disclosed that common colds are responsible for approximately one-fourth of all absences. As the school system must be maintained even when many children are absent, the economic factor is readily discernible.

It also was found that the children in open-window school rooms, while often pale and undernourished, were almost free from colds.

The exact cause of the common cold has not been definitely determined. Probably a number of factors are concerned. However, for practical purposes it may be considered that the causative agent of most colds is conveyed from person to person through direct or indirect contact.

No immunity.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN, to whom a baby girl has just been born, buy a home of their own when the advertising agency in which John is a partner lands an important new contract.

John does all the firm's copy writing. His partner, NATHANIEL GRAHAM, takes care of the business details.

Previous chapters told how John, while Fay was in the hospital, met NELL ORME at a swimming party and was attracted by her beauty and puzzled when PAT FORBES, his host, told him Nell was having trouble with her husband. Forbes, who has a wife and three children, hints to John that he is dissatisfied with his own marriage.

DR. DICK MENEFEE, John's best friend, gets married to MARGARET WAYNE and John is best man. During the ceremony John drops the ring and suffers much embarrassment as well as the contempt of CLIFF-TON LANE, who had recently eloped with CLARA WAYNE, sister of Margaret.

He has an altercation with his partner about a raise in salary for their artist, and, deciding to stay down and work that evening, he encounters an acquaintance, ELEANOR MASON, as he is going out to dinner.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XVI

ELEANOR's blond head wagged vivaciously as they walked along. "What makes you work in the evenings?" she asked.

"Inability to do enough during the day, I suppose," he smiled. "How about yourself?"

"Oh, I never keep regular hours," she told him. "I work only when the spirit moves me—or I see a new hat that I like." She laughed.

John stopped in front of the Adolphus. "Well," he said, "I'm ready to eat. If I'd eaten alone I probably would have gone to some hole in the wall, but it's a real party now. Suppose we go in here?"

"Right-o," she squeaked his arm.

"I suppose," she started when a waiter had found a table for them, "that your partner, Mr. Graham, was terribly disgusted with me at your nice party."

"Disgusted? Why should he be?" he fenced.

She wagged a forefinger at him. "Now, you know very well that he's told you I should be spanked or something."

In spite of himself, John laughed, and at her inquiring look he said, "As a matter of fact, that's exactly what Nat told me the day after the party."

"You see," she told him, "you mustn't try to conceal any thing from me. I'm psychic."

"Of course," he explained in defense of Graham, "Nat's a teetotaler and you must make allowances for him."

She shrugged. "Oh, I can't be bothered about him. You know," she went on, "I've heard a lot lately about your advertising agency. It strikes me as odd that you and Graham ever hooked up together."

"We haven't much in common, I suppose," he confessed, "but it was a case of two of us, each equipped to do a certain job, getting together. Nat and I, you know, worked for years in the same agency. I wrote copy and he got clients."

"Both are gifts," she encouraged him, and he went on. "Salesmanship is certainly a great gift. I wish I had it."

She opened her vanity case and studied her face. "You have," she said. "What is salesmanship? After all, it is the ability to make other people see your point of view, isn't it?"

"Why, I suppose it is." He looked at her narrowly and encountered her loving eyes, shifted his gaze to the fur piece that was thrown carelessly around her shoulders.

"That's exactly what you do in your copy, isn't it?" she went on.

"Perhaps," he admitted. "But sitting in an office and putting things down in words is a lot different from tackling some hard-balled egg in his office and trying to sell him the virtues of Graham and Milburn."

"Successful salesmanship," she continued, "depends a lot on personality. I don't understand how Nat Graham gets along. He hasn't it. You have, you know."

"But Nat has logic on his side. Logic, a great deal of facts and vast energy." He shook his head. "No, it's no use. Nat's the brains of the outfit. All I can do is try to tell interesting stories about toothbrushes and dill pickles." He laughed.

She was silent a while, busying herself with her salad. John, watching her, felt that some restless force was at work within her. It expressed itself in ceaseless motion. First her hands, then her eyes, then her taking lips, then her shrugging shoulders.

"I sometimes think," she said, "that I'd like to try my hand at writing advertising copy."

"No reason why you shouldn't if you think you'd like it," he encouraged. "You do a lot of publicity work, don't you?"

"Yes. For publishers."

"I saw your article on press agents in last month's Mercury," he remarked. "Very good. I thought."

"Do you think so? I also write fiction now and then."

"Yes, I knew that, too. Have you ever done advertising copy?"

"No, I haven't."

"Well, it's not exceptionally difficult, or I wouldn't be doing it myself. I think I might be able to use you some time, if you'd care to try it. My work is piling up on me, and I'd thought somewhat of taking on another man, although we're not ready yet to put anyone on at full time."

"I'd love to try it," she said, and then, "I heard about your friend, Dr. Menefee's wedding."

He colored. "And I suppose," he said tartly, "you heard about my gumming things up."

"You mean about dropping the ring?" she asked, and saw the resentment on his face.

"Yes," he said shortly.

"I wouldn't worry if I were you. As I heard about it, the thing was just an unavoidable accident and one for which you could hardly be blamed."

"You lie very beautifully," he accused.

"Of course," she said apologetically. "I realize how you must feel—the uselessness of people even mentioning the thing."

"Yes," he answered. "And not only that, but the malice of it."

She was silent, and he went on, rather heatedly: "It's a trivial thing, of course, and Dick and Margaret both have been mighty sweet about it. Nevertheless, it's enough to let the gossip have their fling. I've been painted variously as an awkward ass, a practical joker and a downright nincompoop. A lot of ancient superstitions have been unearthed, and I know I will be held personally responsible if anything happens to their marriage."

She looked at him curiously. "You're a sensitive soul," she said, and touched his hand for an instant with one of hers.

"Maybe," he admitted, rather pleased at her diagnosis. He switched the subject. "You're a good friend of Noel and Vera Lloyd, aren't you?"

"Why, yes," she answered. "Why?"

"Nothing. I've often wondered, though, whether Noel is really as much of a cynic as he appears or whether some of it isn't a pose with him."

"All cynics are poseurs," she answered. "I don't know that Noel is any exception. Do you know him very well?"

"Not terribly well. I've known him off and on for about two years. Met him through Pat Forbes. Noel's all right, I guess, although a little odd. His wife, though, has me puzzled more than he has. I very frankly don't understand her at all."

"It's Vera you've been leading up to, isn't it?" she said, smiling sweetly. "By the way," and she studied him to observe the effect of her words, "Vera's rather keen about you."

"About me? He laughed. "I had better keep out of Noel's way, hadn't I?"

"Oh, Noel wouldn't care. What each one does is the other's business, you know. There's a strictly modern marriage."

"I've read about such things," he said slowly, "but I never dreamed of encountering one among my friends."

"You haven't said," she told him after a pause, "what you thought of Vera's being interested in you." She was studying him.

"What am I supposed to think?" he asked. "It's all very interesting—and rather flattering. But after all, you know, my own marriage isn't quite so modern. No, I am unmoved, Miss Mason."

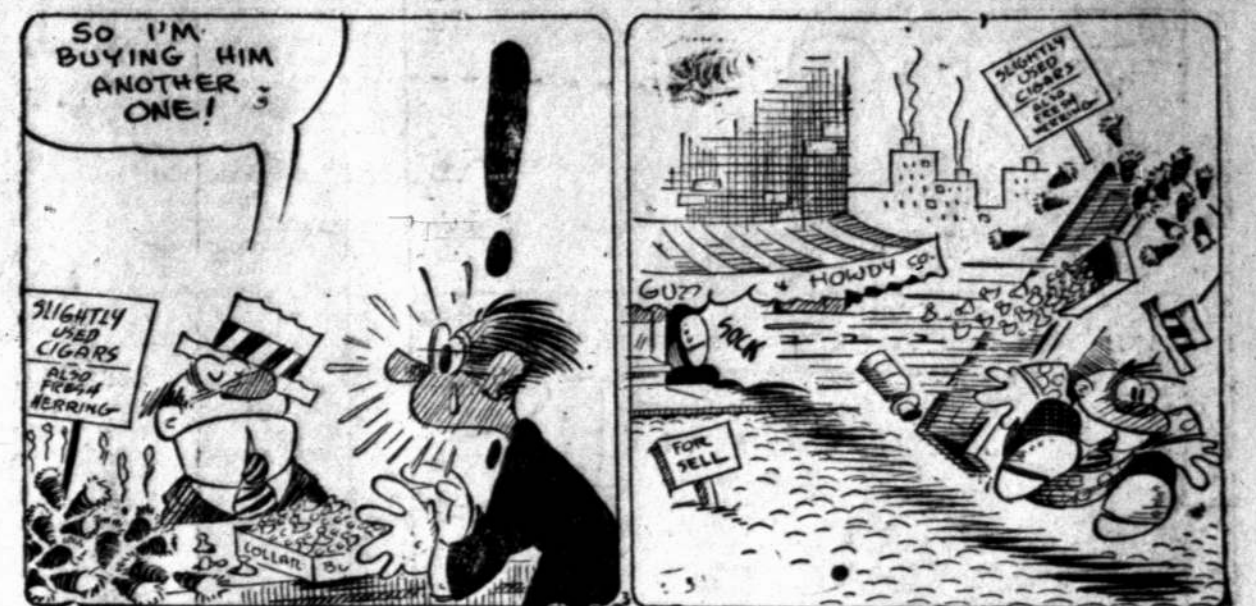

"Don't call me that," she said, a trifle impatiently. "Call me Eleanor."

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK President, The American Nature Association.

It is all a matter of how you go about it in making friend with birds and animals. Jim Crow is one of the easiest friends to make if you tackle the job right, and the story that Grace F. Hadley writes in to us is interesting enough, to repeat.

"Jimmy Crow was brought from the country when only a few days old," she tells us. "His only food for days were fish worms, raw meat and bread crumbs soaked in milk. Many times during the day he was taken out of the box and exercised his wings and legs.

"A few days more and he was able to hop on the edge of the box unassisted. Each day he ventured a little farther, flying back many times and seeming to try to tell us where he had been.

"On rainy days Jim was busy playing with toys, among them a rubber ball. He would bring bones and food to play with. He loved to hide things. Jim would pull the corner of a rug back with his bill, stand on the rug until he put the article under, then step off and let the corner flop back.

"He would follow us down the street, walking on the pavement just behind us or at our side. When I drove, he would fly just behind the car, along side or over the hood.

"If a tie or a shoe string were handy Jim did enjoy untangling them. Candy he would take from the lips and never once touch the mouth. These are only a few of Jim's tricks.

"But on wash day he had to amuse himself alone, shut up in the basement. This peeved him very much, but it was a case of have to, or do the washing over. Left out, he would take the pins out as fast as one could put them on.

"He would catch on the garments cup of tea."

"Well, then—Eleanor."

"Then you want me to tell Vera that you are, as you say, unmoved?"

"I'm not sure that I want you to tell Vera anything," he said half angrily. The idea of Eleanor acting as a messenger between him and Vera struck him as a schoolgirl trick.

"Oh," she bit her lip, and he added boldly, "Besides, I don't mind telling you that I find you a great deal more interesting than Vera Boyd."

A minute later he was turning his head to avoid her suddenly serious eyes.

A long silence fell on them, and she broke it finally to say, "You seem to be quite interesting to someone over there."

"What do you mean?" he asked, puzzled.

She waved a jeweled hand toward the door behind him. "The man and woman just went out, stayed at you as if you were a long lost brother."

He turned to look and got a fleeting glimpse of a narrow back and shoulders passing through the door. Something about the man seemed to him familiar, but he couldn't place him, and after searching his memory for a minute or two he gave it up. "Looked like somebody I knew," he said to Eleanor, "but I didn't get a good look at him."

She stirred. "Well, I must be going. I've kept you terribly long, as it is."

He glanced at his watch. "Great Scott! Nearly eight o'clock. I must move."

Nat Graham glanced up, disappointedly as he entered the office. Miss Kinsely was putting her hat on.

"Met a friend," John said to Nat, "and got delayed at dinner. Have to work later than I intended, to pay up for it."

Graham left soon afterward and John, left to himself, found himself staring vacantly at the blank paper on his desk. He got up and began pacing across the room. Before him, he thought the image of Vera Boyd, with her black hair, her burning eyes, and her face with its strange pallor, and in his ears was something Eleanor Mason had said.

He reached suddenly for the telephone. "That you, Fay?" he said presently. "I'm starting home now."

The next evening Fay was non-committal during dinner, and rather tart, he thought, in answering his routine questions.

The explanation was forthcoming a little later. When the dishes had been cleared away and they were sitting in the living room, Fay glanced up from the paper which she was making a pretense of reading, to remark, "I thought you were so busy yesterday evening."

"I was," he said defensively. "What makes you question me?"

"You had time, it seems," she observed coldly, "to take dinner with a woman."

It made him angry, the way she said "woman." "What if I did?" he flared. "There was nothing wrong in this, was there?"

"You said you were working, and you were out dining with a girl," she pursued, ignoring his question. "Who was it?"

"I'd like to know who told you," said John.

"Oh," said Fay quickly, "then you hadn't intended telling me yourself?"

NO-NOX

MOTOR FUEL

STOPS KNOCKS

Turns Mountains into Mole hills

FOR many years mechanical engineers struggled to build automobile engines of higher compression. As compression is increased the power line goes up and the fuel consumption line goes down—ordinary gasolines would not withstand this higher compression without knocks, clicks, or detonations—accumulated carbon deposits increased this compression by decreasing the size of the combustion chamber—and the audible sounds of the engine distress grew louder.

It has been our good fortune to produce a gasoline that positively eliminates clicks, pings, and knocks.

Gulf No-Nox and Carbon are Power Twins

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel withstands compression to a high degree; carbon, increasing the compression of the engine, ceases to be a nightmare as long as it does not interfere with valve action. In other words, it puts carbon to work. More power and greater efficiency is thereby accomplished, resulting in greater mileage.

With GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel in your tank—step on it—you will get the story better than we can tell it.

This Guarantee goes with it

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline—that it contains no dope of any kind—that the color is for identification only—that it positively will not heat the motor summer or winter.

GULF No-Nox Motor Fuel is priced three cents per gallon higher than ordinary gasoline—and is worth it.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK TRADING
NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at an advance of seven points to a decline of one point, active months selling about three to six points net higher in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, reports of further rains in the Southwest and talk of an increased spot demand. July sold up to 18.42c and December to 17.58c in early trading. Offerings were comparatively light, and prices held within a few points of the best at the end of the first hour.

The market turned a shade easier near the forenoon under near month liquidation which sent July off to 18.32c or about 2 points net lower. Later months eased off in consequence, but were relatively steady on the prospect for unsettled weather in the Southwest with December ruling around 17.57c at mid-day, when the general market was net 3 points to six points higher.

The market showed little further change, prices holding around 18.32c for July and 17.57c for December at 2 o'clock, or about 2 points net lower to 5 points net higher.

Grain Markets

CHICAGO WHEAT

CHICAGO, June 3. (AP)—Unexpected strength in wheat quotations at Liverpool with reports of less favorable conditions for European crops, gave an early upward swing to the wheat market here. Excessive wet weather in France, Italy and Czechoslovakia were said to have caused damage. Starting ½ to 1½ cents up, wheat made some further advance but later reacted a bit.
Corn and oats were firmer, corn opening ½ to ¾ cents up, and then advancing further.
Provisions scored material gains.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET TRADING

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Stock prices headed upward at the opening of today's market as operations for the rise encountered little resistance. Nickel Plate and Chesapeake and Ohio were strengthened by reports that a revised merger plan would soon be ready, but other rails were sluggish. Dupont advanced more than 2 points following yesterday's brisk rise in General Motors, while Mack Trucks gained 1½ points.
Brisk rallies in all the Van Sweringen rail stocks were the center of interest in the early dealings, strengthening the belief that new terms were being mapped out for the consolidation plan. Pere Marquette soared almost five points to a new top price above 51. Nickel Plate extended its gains to more than two points and the Erie common and preferred issues all gained about a point. Meanwhile favorable trade news including the report of freight loadings in excess of a million cars for the second week this year, a reduction in surplus gasoline stocks and an increase in steel specifications, stimulated buying of other stocks. Kresge Department Stores preferred jumped five points and gains of one to two points were recorded by U. S. Steel, Woolworth, Hudson Motors, Fish Rubber, Worthington pump and U. S. Alcohol. Despite the House ratification of the French debt pact, French francs and most of the European exchanges lost ground.
Demand sterling ruled slightly under $4.86.

GRAPE VINE PEST EASILY HANDLED BY SPRAY

The eight-pointed forer bug, the pest that is causing so much trouble and doing so much damage to grape vines in Lubbock can be controlled and killed only through poison that is sprayed on leaves of the vines upon which he feeds. Don L. Jones, Supt. of the Lubbock Experiment station told the Daily Journal Thursday.

He suggested a spray mixture of arsenate of lead in water, with about one and one-half ounces of arsenate of lead to the gallon of water, which must be thoroughly sprayed on the vines where the pest is feeding. The pest is a worm which grows to a maximum length of more than an inch, and is vari-colored along its body, with a distinct hump on the rear end. The worm saps the foliage with the result that the grapes do not mature, Mr. Jones said.

Another grape vine pest which usually puts in his appearance about the middle of June is a similar worm, though not of the same size or coloring that must be controlled by a poison spray through contact route extermination. This pest, Mr. Jones said, cannot be killed unless the poison is applied to his body, the poison going in through the pores of the body. It works on the under side of the foliage, also sapping the juice from the leaves, leaving the foliage white and lifeless. The same spray may be used on this pest if it is used when the worm first puts in its appearance. If this pest, however, is not killed in the nymph or larva stage, it is almost impossible to kill it, Mr. Jones said, in urging that close watch be kept for it, and the spray used on first appearance.

pierced the woman's heart, another hit her head, and the other two went wild. The woman was the mother of four children who witnessed the killing. Her husband, away at work, could give no reason for the shooting when summoned shortly after. One of the children, Louise, 15, who was laying out her grammar school graduating dress when Duncan came, said that he had called at other times when her father was absent.

Duncan came in without a word, children said, and sought out Mrs. Fowler in the kitchen. After the first shot, Louise said, her mother ran out of the kitchen, pursued by Duncan who fired another shot through a closed door at her. He burst through the door and fired another shot, she said. Duncan is survived by his widow and five children, two of whom are married. Mrs. Duncan was unable to account for the tragedy.

"He has always been a good husband," she said. "We were married in 1898 and have always been happy. He left home this morning and kissed me and the children good-by."

Childrens Man Slain
CHILDRESS, Texas, June 3. (AP)—The killing of W. H. B. Moore, 60, Childress County Commissioner, shot to death Wednesday just over the Hall County line, was brought before the Childress County grand jury on Thursday, while W. B. Fowler, nephew of Moore's wife, is held at Memphis, charged with the shooting. The shooting, said to have been the outgrowth of a family quarrel, was enacted a hundred yards from the Childress County line in Hall County on the farm Fowler was leasing from Moore.

Moore, who is said to have come to the field where Fowler and a brother were plowing, was shot five times with a pistol, which then was used to club him on the head.

Moore left Childress Wednesday noon to visit the farm. There, after a quarrel, Fowler is said to have sent a younger brother of his wife, a bride of two months, to the house for a pistol, which was returned in a box.

Fowler was arrested by Hall County officers.

The grand jury of either county has jurisdiction over a case arising within 400 yards of the line.

Moore was serving his fifth term as commissioner and leaves a family.

Autist Shot To Death
JACKSONVILLE, Texas, June 3. (AP)—Frank Dixon, 22, was shot and instantly killed just before midnight on Wednesday as he was helping himself to a small quantity of gasoline to replenish his depleted supply at a filling station after his knock had failed to arouse the proprietor.

Dixon ran out of gasoline near Craft and went to the Gas Station Filling Station and Garage, operated by W. S. Ault, which was closed. Unable to get any response from Ault's sleeping quarters, the youth started to help himself to gasoline from the tank of a truck nearby. Ault thinking a burglar was at work, fired, twice.

Dixon was the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Dixon, Jacksonville.

Lubbock Plane Is Speedy One, Jaunt Shows Wednesday

With Pilot Jimmie Cole, World War aviation veteran, at the stick, the Lubbock Transport company's plane made a record trip to Kress yesterday afternoon, a distance of more than sixty miles. A. J. Hamilton, of the Lubbock Paint and Wallpaper company and one of the owners of the plane, said today.

According to Mr. Hamilton the ship landed in Kress exactly 21 minutes after taking off from the field here. He says the plane is in tip-top condition and that Pilot Cole shows his ability as a first class pilot. The plane was erected here by Mr. Cole and is being used by the Lubbock Transport company's aviation school. It is painted a bright yellow and carries the name of the Lubbock Paint and Wallpaper company across its bottom.

IVE MEMBERS OF ONE FAMILY DIE IN HEAVY DELUGE

The storm in Osage, Pawnee and Tulsa counties. At Cleveland, several buildings were blown away. Railroad transportation was held up north of Hominy, where tracks were washed out. Many other sections of the state reported heavy rainfall and high winds but little damage was done.

Rivers Overflow
OKLAHOMA CITY, June 3. (AP)—A wind, rain and electrical storm swept northern Oklahoma late last night, bringing telegraph, telephone and railroad facilities and causing small creeks and small rivers to overflow. At Hominy water stood three feet deep in places and about 50 families, marooned in lowlands south of the town were awaiting arrival of rescue parties today.

A similar situation prevailed at Cleveland, Pawnee county, where rainfall in one hour amounted to nearly six inches. One side of a business house was blown away by wind.

Efforts were being made to restore traffic on the Missouri Kansas and Texas Railroad between Cleveland and Osage which was suspended after part of the tracks were washed out last night.

CARROLL GIVEN PEN SENTENCE

Two Years and Day On Each of Two Counts and $1,000 Fine Assessed

NEW YORK, June 3. (AP)—Earl Carroll, Broadway producer, convicted of perjury in connection with grand jury investigation of a party in his theatre at which an unclad chorus girl served drinks from a bathtub in which she was seated, was sentenced today to serve a year and a day in Atlanta Federal penitentiary on each of two counts, the sentences to run concurrently and to pay a fine of $1,000 each. The court ordered the jail sentence on the two counts to run concurrently so that Carroll will serve a year and a day and pay a fine of $2,000. Sentence was imposed by Judge Goddard before whom Carroll was tried and convicted.

Carroll was originally indicted on six counts, two referred to his testimony that there had been no liquor served at the party, two on his statement that no one occupied the bathtub and two to his assertion that he had no list of guests at the party.

The guest list indictments were dropped on recommendation of the prosecution. The producer was found not guilty of the liquor indictment, but guilty of the two indictments concerning the nude woman in the bathtub. During the trial Joyce Hawley, 17-year-old chorus girl, testified that she had occupied a bathtub on the stage of the Earl Carroll theatre at Carroll's invitation and that she had been drunk at the time from drinking liquor served her in the theatre. The jury by its verdict asserted their belief in her first statement but not in her second.

United States Attorney Buckner, after Carroll had been sentenced, consented to a motion by counsel for the producer to admit Carroll to bail pending argument on appeal before the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Past Month Wettest May On Record In Last 15 Years With Records Bearing Out Predictions For Rains As Needed

Last month was the wettest May that has been experienced on the South Plains during the past fifteen years when a total precipitation of 5.14 inches of rain fell during the 31-day period. It is revealed in records of Don L. Jones, Supt. of the experiment station here. The normal precipitation for May over the fifteen year period as shown by records at the station is 1.72 inches, bringing the total rainfall received during last month above normal to 3.42.

May 1914 is the closest approach to the heavy precipitation last month in the fifteen years, when 4.04 inches of rain fell during the month. Sixteen days out of the thirty-one the past May saw rain fall at the station to the extent of .01 of an inch or more, and as May is usually a fairly dry month, conditions at the present indicate a repetition of the season of 1914 when the biggest crop ever harvested on the South Plains was garnered by farmers.

June Normally Wettest Month
The records disclose that June is normally the wettest month of the year, with a normal fall during the month of 2.93 inches, the records being taken over a fifteen year period, indicating that the chances for rain during this month are exceptionally good, even though the moisture is not needed at the present time.

Conditions approaching the ideal have prevailed during the planting season that has just closed, even though rain fell in a little heavier volume than is usual. The month was marked by a general absence of hail storms that usually prevail more or less during May, and the absence of destructive standstills also was very welcome, not only to the farmer, but to the city man. Sections of the South Plains experienced occasional hail storms that did more or less damage, but as a general rule over this section, little hail fell, the records show. Practically no replanting has had to be done.

It is true that the ground was a little slow in warming up to the proper temperature for good germination of seed due to the heavy rainfall, but the mean temperature during the month was about normal, although the mean maximum temperatures were lower than any on record at the station the past five years. This is attributed to the fact that the rains acted as an even for temperatures during the day and night, holding the day temperatures down nearer a par with those that prevailed at night that are usually a great deal lower than during the day.

Evaporation Under Normal
The total evaporation during May was 6.951 inches as against a normal evaporation of 7.237 inches. Evaporation during the month is the lowest on record for May the past five years, due to course to rainfall which works adversely to evaporation.

The total wind run for the month was 5,294 miles, or 1,667 miles under the average for May. Only one year out of the past twelve has had a lower wind run, and this was in 1924.

Speaking generally, farmers throughout this section of the state are in better condition than has prevailed for several years, with a good season in the ground and records bearing out.

Gulf Seeks Damages Against Derby Oil Co.

WICHITA, Kans., June 3. (AP)—Suits asking damages for alleged infringement of patents on processes used in the manufacture of hydro-carbons and gasoline has been filed in Federal court here against the Derby Oil Company by the Gulf Refining company, a Texas corporation.

The Derby company is alleged to be using patented processes which the plaintiff purchased in 1913, and which have been duly recorded in the patent office.

The petition asks that an injunction be issued against the Derby company preventing it from further use of the process and also that the court fix the amount due the plaintiff.

have you Enough Insurance

HOW much is enough insurance? Some think that a thousand dollars is a fortune, though it is usually less than the remaining doctor bills and funeral expenses. Some think a hundred thousand is enough, but even that sum might prove too little for the families accustomed to income larger than it will earn.

Every man's insurance problem is a problem in itself. Your problem is based upon your circumstances, your income, your responsibilities.

Would you like to discuss your problem with the kind of insurance agent who will look at it from YOUR viewpoint—an agent who is honestly more interested in rendering you a helpful service, than in selling a policy?

The Southland Company's creed is: "Service to the Policyholder first." We agents are committed to that ideal. And the fine part about it, that IT PAYS. Let me help you arrange your insurance plans and specifications to fit your individual needs.

T.T.T. ASSOCIATION MEETS JUNE 10 AT ASPERMONT

The officers and directors of the Texas Transcontinental Trail, Dallas-Fort Worth-Lubbock highway association will hold an important meeting June 10 at Aspermont, according to a letter received today by W. K. Dickinson, who is vice president of the association.

The chief object of the meeting is to discuss plans for a general betterment program on the entire route, including steps for hard surfacing the remainder of the road.

"We've got to put a road down between Lubbock and Dallas that will be good the year around, in good or bad weather," Dickinson said this afternoon. "Then we will get the travel."

The meeting will be held at Aspermont, June 10, and representatives from all towns between Dallas and Lubbock will be represented. The business session will be held at ten o'clock, to be followed by a chicken barbecue and fish fry at Lake Sellers, near Aspermont.

A number of the new log guides of the route will be distributed at the meeting and plans will be completed for marking the T. T. T. according to Dickinson.

Local men connected with the organization are W. K. Dickinson, vice president; S. E. Cone, director; R. J. Murray, by-law and constitution committee; Joe Griffith, advertising committee; and R. J. Murray, legislative committee; and A. B. Davis, publicity and promotion committee.

'SWAT THE BUG' EATON ADVISES

Grapevines Menaced by Horde of Insects: Agent Has Sure Remedy

Lubbock people who have grape vines and who want to save their crop either for the making of jelly or 'otherwise' had better see that the vines are purged from bugs and worms, County Agent D. F. Eaton stated today.

According to Mr. Eaton's report a bug known as the "Eight Spotted Forer" is attacking the vines in the city and in many instances has already ruined the grape crop, although the vines may still be saved.

The agent has a quantity of calcium arsenate, which he will sell to persons wanting it for fifteen cents per pound. By wetting the vines thoroughly and dusting them with the preparation the bugs are easily exterminated.

"Anyone who has an infected grape vine is urged to call Mr. Eaton's office. He will do the work of spraying at a nominal cost, it was said.
