Garnier Moves to Luxurious Suite

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Although Speaker Garnier may continue to decline "invitations out" as Vice President, he's already equipped for more lavish entertaining at home.

He and Mrs. Garnier have moved into a luxurious suite, with large drawing room and private dining room, two baths and telephone extensions galore, especially remodeled for them during the summer recess, at the Washington Hotel.

All through the last session, the simple-living Garniers were quite content with a smaller suite with no dining room. Often they took their meals, by preference, in the hotel's coffee shop. When they went to a reception at the White House, just across the Treasury grounds, they rode in a taxicab and walked back, for Speaker Garnier refused an official car.

But furniture done in old ivory, green brocade hangings and carpets soft to the tread have taken their place in the busy days of the Garniers, indications of the social prestige which goes with the vice presidency.

Their seventh floor windows look out upon Sherman Park, and the mall beyond; the Treasury facade and Fifteenth street along which the inaugural parade will pass.

In the new suite of their same hotel, the Garniers expect to spend his entire tenure in the vice presidency.

"We're home lovers," said Mrs. Garnier, "and we like to stay in the place where we know everybody from the bell hops to the manager."

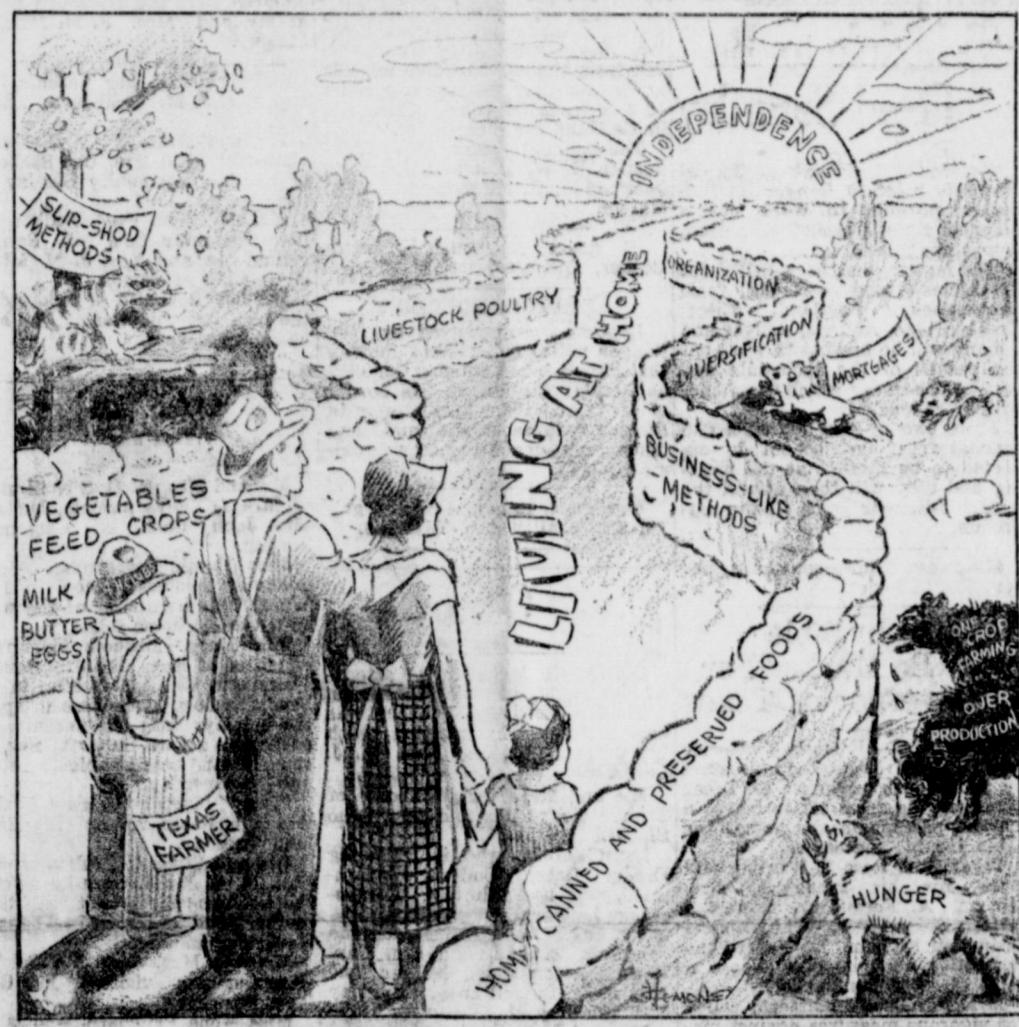

Upon the piano, she placed framed photographs of her son Tully and his pretty wife, and her granddaughter, Genevieve.

Cisco Gas Case Is Reset For Dec. 6

On postponement, at Abilene in United States district court Friday hearing on the Community Natural Gas Company's application for temporary injunction to restrain the City of Cisco from interfering with a new schedule of gas rates was reset for December 6, in Fort Worth.

Judge James C. Wilson granted postponement upon petition of Cisco's counsel attorney stating they had had insufficient notice in which to prepare for hearing in the case.

Cisco commission in October, 1931, passed an ordinance cutting the gas rate from 67 1-2 cents to 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The company appealed to the railroad commission and, by posting a bond, kept the lower rate from going into effect pending final settlement of the controversy.

In the suit for injunction, the company is seeking to restrain the city from promulgation of a sliding rate, starting at $1.60 per 1,000 feet and working down to 45 cents. The petition sets out that the company losses in Cisco under present rates amounted in $7,000 for the year ending August 31.

BRECKENRIDGE, Nov. 29.—J. P. Gilchrist, 40, superintendent of the Hanlon Gasoline company of Breckenridge, was in a local hospital today, suffering from three pistol bullet wounds received in a gun battle three miles south of Breckenridge late Monday afternoon.

The shooting occurred after Constable L. D. Slaughter had served the wounded man with some civil papers. Slaughter was accompanied by Deputy Constable Jack Ellington when the shooting occurred.

According to the officers a charge of buckshot, alleged to have been fired by Gilchrist, entered the door of the car just under the glass on the side on which Ellington was seated. Ellington drew his gun and fired six shots, three hitting Gilchrist, who was wounded in the left side, left arm and in the fleshy part of the knee.

Doctors at the hospital said that the wounded man would recover. No charges had been filed to date.

Passage In Bible May Be Marked For Governor of Texas

AUSTIN.—Former Governor Pat M. Neff originated a custom by which each governor of Texas upon retiring from office leaves a marked passage in the governor's Bible for his successor.
What Gov. Ross S. Sterling will mark for his successor, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, is now a matter of curiosity. The Biblical derivation of name has led to the suggestion that he can choose a verse directly naming her.
Mrs. Ferguson's platform called for vigorous measures against motor trucks and busses. Railroad men will therefore probably agree with a suggestion that Governor Sterling mark Numbers, twelfth chapter and fifteenth verse.
If your Bible is not handy, it says:
"And Miriam was shut out from the camp seven days and the people journeyed not until Miriam was brought in again."

AUSTIN.—Mrs. Ferguson may have been elected to the governor's office but she hasn't been elected to the governor's chair. In fact unless the state board of control provides one before Jan. 17, she may lack a place to sit in her office.
The chair formerly used was sold by the board of control with consent of the legislature for former Governor Dan Moody. It was not replaced and Governor Sterling is occupying a borrowed one.
Major Paul Wakefield, the governor's secretary, also is occupying a chair the state doesn't own so the new governor's secretary may have to stand.

BADLY BURNED
GRAHAM, Texas, Nov. 25.—Edna Easterling, a waitress, was probably fatally burned in her room in a hotel here today. She was believed to have fainted and fallen against the stove where she was found when the proprietor investigated an odor of smoke.

The woman was crouched with a smoldering woolen blanket wrapped about her. The lower part of her body was burned to a crisp and little hope was held for her recovery.

Mrs. J. M. Wilcox returned last Friday from a trip to Ft. Worth and Lawton, Okla. She accompanied her mother-in-law, Mrs. Katie Wilcox, to Lawton where she will spend the winter with a daughter.

Mavericks Trim
Brownwood Lions

The Eastland Mavericks rounded up and caged the Brownwood Lions Thanksgiving day on Maverick field with a score of 34 to 7. Starting early in the first quarter the Eastland boys drove through the Brownwood defense for five touchdowns. Joe Simmons kicked for the extra point after each touchdown except the third.

After the first few plays it was plain to the fans that the team that met the Lions yesterday morning had snapped out of their lethargy and nothing was going to stop them. Most of the gaining was done through the opponents' line. Burgamy called for very few passes or end runs. The Lions attempted several passes but they were all knocked down or intercepted except one.

The Lions' lone touchdown was due to a blocked punt on Eastland's 40-yard line and a 25-yard penalty against Eastland which placed the ball on the seven-yard line. Harlow carried the ball over for the touchdown on the third attempt through the Eastland line. Thomas kicked for the extra point.

The drive for the Mavericks' first touchdown started on their own 45-yard line. With Burgamy and Mackall alternately carrying the ball they marched down to Brownwood's 30-yard line where Burgamy, on a play through right tackle, rambed through the entire bunch of Lions for the touchdown.

The second counter came almost immediately after Vaughn covered a fumble on Brownwood's 20-yard line and Burgamy went over on three plunges through the line. Another marker was chalked up late in the second quarter with Mackall carrying the ball. Garrison went over in the third quarter for the fourth touchdown. Incidentally this was the first time he ever performed this feat. The fifth and last was due to a 15-yard gain by Burgamy and a line plunge by Mackall for the last two yards.

It would be hard to pick out any certain players for the Mavericks that stood out above their teammates. However, Burgamy was the individual star with Mackall and Allison close seconds. Garrison and Vaughn also deserve special mention. For Brownwood Thomas and Harlow were the outstanding players.

Oklahoma Cowboys
Of Radio Fame
Here In Person

Ever see a group of real cowboy entertainers, sometimes termed as a cowboys' band? You have probably heard Ken Hackley and his Oklahoma Cowboys many times from various radio stations throughout the United States, as they have broadcasted from over sixty-five of the leading and larger radio stations for the past few years and just recently been featured from Station KRLL at Dallas.

You will soon have a chance to hear and see them in person at the Connellee Theatre, where they will appear Saturday and Sunday.

This is the original Oklahoma Cowboys which was featured on the National Farm and Home Hour over the coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting company, the ones that create a sensation in every radio station with their fast and diversified radio programs.

Each and every member is an accomplished cowboy musician, playing and using a total of twenty-two string instruments. Of course, they dress in what might be termed their native costumes, large ten gallon hats, cowboy boots, chaps, loud shirts, etc. Yes, sir, honest to goodness cowboys, with their quaint and queer entertainment which they have learned around ranch bunkhouses. As they say, they do plenty of play, "sinin', dancin' and ropin'", and many novelties new to the show going public.

Watch for their special built and decorated car in which they travel. You can't help but see and notice it, as it will be close to the Connellee Theatre while they are appearing there Saturday and Sunday.

ALL DISTRICT ELEVEN
By JO CARROLL
There is a custom among sports writers to pick an all star or each district team at the close of each football season. This writer has no done that, but a few who were interested have suggested such an eleven. For the benefit of the fans the names are given as follows:

Ends—Bray, Ranger; Teddie, Breckenridge.
Tackles—Barker, Abilene; Daniels, Eastland.
Guards—Martin, Breckenridge; Williams, Ranger.
Center—Allison, Eastland.
Quarter—Burgamy, Eastland.
Halves—Thomas, Brownwood; Enn's, Breckenridge.
Full—Jones, Ranger.

Some may object to this line up because there is not a first class punter in the backfield. When it becomes necessary to punt, Jones and Daniels will exchange positions and we have the best and most consistent punter in the district. This eleven could win.

WHAT IS THE "PLANT OF LIFE?"

A. What was known by the aborigines and the early Mormon settlers in this country as the "Plant of Life" is an herb growing wild on the American Desert and containing properties most beneficial to health and bodily welfare.

Q. Is the "Plant of Life" obtainable by the public generally?

A. Yes, it is now available for general consumption under the name of "Yerbavida."

Q. How does Yerbavida work upon the human system?

A. The endocrine glands are the alchemists which transmute chemical elements into physical stamina and mental power. Premature old age, disease, low vitality and fatigue result when endocrine glands become sluggish. Yerbavida revives the endocrine glands.

Q. Will Yerbavida eliminate constipation?

A. Although it contains no laxative of any kind, it wakes up the liver, which regulates bowel action.

Q. Will Yerbavida eliminate sleeplessness, nervousness and irritability?

A. Yerbavida is an anti-spasmodic which, by calming and quieting the nervous and muscular systems, promotes sound and refreshing sleep.

Q. Will Yerbavida relieve poisonous acidity and indigestion.

A. Although Yerbavida contains no drugs of any kind, it has shown marvelous results in eliminating heartburn, gas and acidity, thereby allowing Nature to heal even an ulcerated stomach.

Q. Is Yerbavida pleasant to drink?

A. You will find Yerbavida a very delicious and satisfying beverage; and if used regularly, you will prefer it to tea, coffee or any other drink.

Q. What does Yerbavida cost?

A. Yerbavida is very economical—a large package, enough to make 240 cups, can be purchased for only $1.00.

Q. How can I obtain Yerbavida?

A. If your local druggist cannot supply you, accept no substitute, but send $1.00 direct to Yerbavida Sales Co., 612 Southwest Bldg., Los Angeles, California.

What Is ATHLETE'S FOOT

Over 30 Million Americans Now Have It—
Is This Dreaded Disease Becoming a Plague?

Athlete's Foot is a fungus germ (Tinea) which appears on the feet in the form of a little yellow blister, causing severe irritation and itching—especially between the toes. This disease is very contagious and is spreading with alarming rapidity among all classes of people.

The failure to successfully treat Athlete's Foot in the past has been due largely to the fact that these germs hibernate in the pores of the shoes. Salves and fluids applied only to the feet DO NOT PENE-TRATE THE PORES OF THE SHOES.

Medical Science has recently developed an amazing treatment known as Meritt Foot Powder, which laboratory and clinical tests have proved will positively kill these germs and restore feet so infected to a normal, healthy condition. It is simply sifted on the feet and into the shoes.

Meritt Foot Powder quickly eliminates excessive perspiration and itching of the toes. It heals irritation and is unsurpassed for chafing and as a deodorant. Why suffer another day when this fast working treatment is positively guaranteed to overcome these distressing conditions or your money refunded?

WHAT HAS HAPPENED

Under fear of being jailed for three months on a charge of vagrancy, Mae Kense tells the magistrate that she is an out-of-control. The magistrate orders MacKenzie, who had arrested her, to put her on a train. However, she leaves the train at 12th Street. She gets in a cab there and drives Jimmy Doyle, the cab driver, out of his fare. Getting some money from Lt. Blair, a friend of hers, she returns to Jimmy's van to pay him just as he is telling his fellow drivers that he had her put in jail. Everything is smoothed over and Jimmy starts out with her. She is always fearful that he will discover her past. After showing her a gas station that he intends buying a partnership in, Jimmy asks her to marry him. She does. They go on their honeymoon at Palisades Park. Upon returning to Mae's room to get her clothes, they find MacKenzie waiting for them.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Mae couldn't tear her gaze from the detective's face. Her head began to swim.

"You'll have to come downtown with me, sister. The judge'll want to see you."

Stunned by the unexpectedness of the thing, Mae felt her eyes fill with tears. Jimmy's eyes were also glued on MacKenzie. He was afraid to speak.

"You made a big mistake, sister," said the detective. "The judge told you to get outa town and stay there. If you had any sense, you'd never come back."

Jimmy's face was a mask of complete stupefaction.

"What—what's she wanted for?" he asked dully.

"For the same thing she's doing now—pickin' guys up off the streets."

Jimmy felt something snap inside of him. He stared at the detective, aghast. Slowly the significance of the detective's statement penetrated. Mae, a prostitute! Just a cheap, common, everyday prostitute. The bouncing on his brain was like a trip hammer. His whole head seemed on fire.

"I hope you haven't made the mistake of fallin' for this dame," went on MacKenzie. "If you have, I'm sorry for you. You look like a good kid. He turned to Mae. "Come on, sister. Better take some things. I don't think you're comin' back here."

Mechanically, she started to pack. Jimmy looked from the detective to the pathetic figure of Mae. Despite his bitterness, an instinct of protectiveness toward her stirred in his soul.

"Wait a minute," he told the detective. "You're wrong, about what I'm doing here, mister. About what Mae turned and looked at him, fearfully.

"We're married," said Jimmy throatily.

MacKenzie was skeptical. "Yeah?" "We were married this morning," Jimmy said slowly.

MacKenzie placed his hand on Jimmy's shoulder. "That's very nice of you, son, but it's no go. He turned back to Mae. "I've heard that story before."

Jimmy tried to appear stoical. "Do you think I'd lie about a thing like that?" He reached into his pocket bitterly, and withdrew the certificate. MacKenzie examined it carefully.

"This looks legitimate, all right. When'd you say you were married?" "This morning."

The detective walked over to the door. "Okay, son. I'll check it up. If you're really married, I guess everything'll be all right." He stopped at the door, slightly ashamed. "I'm sorry if—"

She watched Jimmy, afraid to speak. He started for the door, without even a glance in Mae's direction. She watched him, frightened. He was leaving her.

"Jimmy!" His lips were curled in contempt as he faced her. His hand swung and he brought it down forcefully on her cheek. She winced, but did not move. He turned on his heel and left.

Jimmy walked dazedly. He went to a speakeasy with the intention of getting drunk but caught himself before he took the first drink. He brooded. He smoked incessantly, driving around in the cab without looking for fares and refusing them if they succeeded in attracting his attention.

Mae was leaning against a window jamb when Jimmy returned. Crushed, but dry-eyed, she peered penetratingly into space. She was startled at the opening of the door, but made no move toward Jimmy when he saw him.

His tear-choked voice belied the appearance he tried to give.

"We're goin' through with it, see?" he sobbed with finality. "And that's that!"

She took several steps toward him, but he moved away.

"You don't have to do this, Jimmy," she said hesitatingly. "Just cause you feel sorry for me."

"Who said anything about that?" he asked her harshly.

"I guess I shoulda told you."

"What're you gonna do?" he asked evasively. Still trying to appear gruff. "Stand there and argue with me? Go on, pack your things."

She turned slowly and began packing. Jimmy paced back and forth across the room.

Unable to keep silent under the strain, he berated himself soundly for being a fool. "Sure!" he muttered in disgust. "Nobody can tell me nothin' about dames!" He uttered a semi-hysterical laugh. "Wouldn't the fellows get a laugh if they heard about this?"

Grabbing her by the shoulder, he pulled her around.

"Let me tell you something," he said tensely. "If I ever catch you chiselin'—if you ever as much as talk to any of them tramps you usta hang around with—I'll kill you!"

As he finished, he found himself looking directly into her eyes. Despite himself, a feeling of great tenderness descended upon him. He gathered her in his arms.

"Oh, Mae," he sobbed, "I wish I didn't love you so much!"

Mae realized it was his only reason for taking her back. "Oh, Jimmy," she murmured.

Thus they started on their round of domestic bliss and, strangely enough, lived happily together. They put away ten dollars a week, and the bank account swelled from three hundred and eighty to four hundred and twenty dollars. At least that was what Jimmy thought it was until one morning he opened his bank-book to dream about his new gas station.

"If we ever get the five hundred saved up. Why don't you let me take my job back, hon?"

"Shut your face! I'm doin' this, see?" What kinda guy you think I am? Lettin' a dame work for me! We'll get that five hundred quick enough. Don't you worry."

He looked at his watch. "Hey—I gotta beat it," he declared as he kissed her tenderly. "Well, s'long Mrs. Doyle."

Soon after he left, Mae, in answer to Gert's call, visited her to find her in bed, looking pale and wan. She would have to be operated on immediately, she told Mae, and she needed money. She showed Mae a telegram signed "Uncle Harry" that stated that he could not send her money until the following week.

"But I can't help you out, Gert," protested Mae. "I can't give you any money. What I got belongs to Jimmy."

Gert looked at her piteously. "He don't have to know about it. It's only for a week." She started to sob quietly. "You gotta help me out, Mae. It's only two hundred dollars. The doctor said if I'm not operated on right away—I'd—"

Mae put down the telegram she had been reading and walked away from the bed, determined to be strong.

"I wouldn't ask you to do this, Mae," she sobbed. "If I had anybody else to turn to."

Mae was desperate. "I can't, Gert. I can't take a chance. Don't you see—if something should happen—if something should happen and you can't pay it—what then? It's his money, Gert. I can't give it away. We've been savin' it up for the gas station—and—"

The sick girl smiled wanly. "That's all right, hon. I know how it is—just forget it."

She threw the covers off her weakly and swung into a sitting position. Thrusting her feet in the slippers under the bed, she dragged herself into the bathroom. Mae watched her sympathetically, fighting off a gnawing desire to help her friend. Suddenly she was electrified by a piercing scream coming from the bathroom, followed by a crash of glass. For a moment she stood frozen to the spot, then she rushed into the bathroom. Gert was stretched out on the bathroom floor, a broken poison bottle lying near her.

—THEY KNOW"

Statement of Facts

We want it distinctly understood, we have not bought any inferior merchandise for this sale. This is an EXPANSION, OPPORTUNITY and CONTEST SALE! We are selling this merchandise out of our own staple, up-to-date stock. All of you know the good quality of merchandise this store has always carried and sold. If not, "Ask Your Neighbors—They Know." You cannot find a cleaner, better assorted, and more up-to-date stock of hardware, with its kindred lines, in the State of Texas. Of course, as all institutions of this size, we have accumulated some broken sizes, odds and ends, but the prices on this class of merchandise will be many times below the value of same.

During this sale, we hope to gain the friendship and patronage of many new customers. We are anxious for you to visit our store during this BIG SALE, and SEE FOR YOURSELVES the many MERITORIOUS BARGAINS we have, whether you buy anything or not. We trust this sale will draw community interest.

For these reasons and the determination to CLOSE OUT ENTIRELY certain lines of merchandise, thereby making room for more furniture, we are staging this gigantic slaughter of the largest and most up-to-date stock of hardware between Fort Worth and El Paso.

We have employed Mr. Ben F. Pigg of the Ben F. Pigg Sales Service Company of Kansas City, Missouri, to assist us in making this big transaction one that you should long remember.

Story of RUTH CHATTERTON by Warren Williams

If Ruth Chatterton had lived two hundred years ago... she'd have probably dwelt in an intriguing little castle on the edge of a king's estate... ruling rulers in her sophisticated salon... telling chancellors how to balance budgets... poets what words to save in their latest lyrics... courtesans how to woo... and ladies-in-waiting how to keep their bustles becoming.

As it is, she's the first lady of a more modern world's capital... Hollywood... the capital of the film world which sends its ambassadors of entertainment and education to the common courts of every country.

Ruth Chatterton is one of the few persons in pictures who is exactly like her screen self in private. She makes you think of a Palm Beach hostess by Hergesheimer... there's a richness and culture to her mind that commands instant respect... a warmth and generosity in her heart which has won her more loyalty than many who sit on the uneasy thrones of Hollywood's social dictators.

She's of the theatre... and yet apart from it. For though her life has been spent putting on and taking off grease paint... her soul is as lacking in artificialities as a minister's wife.

She's a keen conversationalist... a brilliant musician... and has a flair for directing that may some day supplant her acting. She reads old books, new books, good books... she's as widely read and as well posted on literature as a publisher's purchasing editor. She likes negro jazz and Chopin... Riviera's murals and Percy Crosby's cartoons... fast automobiles and slow boats to Europe.

She's a shrewd business woman, an exacting employee... demanding and getting a voice in the selection of story, director and supporting cast in all her pictures... a bitter discenter from cob-webbed conventions... and an impulsive bridge player. Some say she is beautiful... some say she's only good looking... but one and all agree that Ruth Chatterton, both on the stage and before the screen, is one of the greatest actresses America has yet produced.

FOOTBALL IN THE OIL BELT

By JO CARROLL

MAVERICKS UPSET THE DOPE

In defeating the Brownwood Lions by a score of 34 to 7 Thursday morning the Mavericks furnished one of the biggest dope upsets of the season in the Oil Belt district. The dope showed that the Lions were due to come through on the long end of the score. To win by any margin at all was a dope upset for Eastland and each touch-down scored by the Mavericks spilled more dope from the bucket.

Taking into consideration the showing the two teams made against Ranger it looked as if the Mavericks had but little chance to defeat the Lions. The attitude of the faithful fans seemed to have been to stay with the boys to the last, although they had little hopes that they could handle their opponents. But the team, in some way, had acquired the not to be denied spirit. It took them but a few minutes to pass this spirit on to the fans by putting on a steady drive goalward and Burgamy removed the last doubt from the mind of the fans by weaving thirty yards through the entire opposing team for the first counter.

Then followed some of the best football the Mavericks have exhibited this year, football that furnished the fans with thrill after thrill even to the last moment. Mackaill, each time he was called to perform, refused to stop under five yards and frequently made it ten and fifteen. Burgamy, while not so consistent with his yardage, frequently got away with longer and more thrilling gains. Garrison added his part whenever called upon.

But praise is no talisman due to these backfield ball toters. There were seven Mavericks in the line all the time and very seldom did one of them fail to do his duty. Allison at center turned in one of his best games of the season, blocking, tackling and covering his territory when a pass was due. Fulcher gave a great exhibition of what a tackle can do when he was right. Daniels looked after the other tackle position perfectly and had his best punting foot out there with him.

Vaughn at end showed that he was capable of handling his position. For lack of space to mention each player individually let it be remembered that every Maverick was in there fighting all the time. However, Joe Simmons stood out above the herd in his goal kicking. He was called on five times, delivered a perfect kick on four occasions and centered a goal post the other, which was really a more difficult feat but did not add anything to the score.

BURGAMY SCORES HIGH
Burgamy gained third rank as a ball carrying backfield man in the Oil Belt District. He got off to a slow start but gained steadily as the season progressed until he reached the position of third best with a total of 45 points. Brady Thomas of Brownwood ranks first with a total of 169 points and Ennis of Breckenridge second with 60 points. Anderson of Ranger ranks next to Burgamy with 44 points. it will be recalled that Brownwood and Breckenridge played at least three weak teams during the season and that fact will account for the high points scored by backfield men of those teams.

Mrs. R. B. Goodman of El Paso is visiting her mother, Mrs. P. L. Parker and family.
Ira Clement of Fort Worth was a business visitor in Eastland Monday. He is a brother of Mrs. F. A. Jones and visited them while here.

Useful Gifts For The Whole Family

Dad Mother Sister Brother

"Make Them Happy with Things Electrical"

One useful gift for the whole family—that is sound advice to the modern Christmas shopper. In bygone days we picked individual presents for every member of the family—one for Dad, another for Mother and the same for Brother and Sister. And most of the time, knickknacks and baubles were the rule because for the average giver, four or five useful, sizeable gifts per family meant too great an expense.

We've solved that problem—in our store are dozens of low-priced, high quality electrical appliances, any one of which takes care of the gift requirements for the whole family. Look them over—electric ranges, percolators, irons, heaters, lamps—real, honest-to-goodness "family" gifts that will for years and years remain as reminders of your thoughtfulness. "Make Them Happy with Things Electrical!"

Convenient terms may be arranged on any electrical appliance selected from our Christmas stock.
