BILLY TALKS TO PRESS — President Carter's brother, Billy Carter, sports a recently grown mustache as he talks to the press in Long Beach Naval Hospital today. Carter had entered the hospital's Alcohol Rehabilitation Center March 6 as a voluntary patient under the direction of Capt. Joseph Pursch, director of the alcohol unit.

Billy Carter says he has given up beer, hard liquor, cigarettes

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A cheerful Billy Carter, calling himself a recovering alcoholic, said today he has given up beer and hard liquor after seven weeks at the Navy's alcohol abuse treatment center.

"I feel so damn good," the president's brother said at a news conference. "I quit smoking, too. I gave up everything that's good."

Carter was admitted to the Long Beach Naval Hospital's Alcohol Rehabilitation Service on March 6. He said he expected to be released by this weekend and would return home to Georgia for a long rest.

"The hardest thing to do was to admit I was an alcoholic," Carter said. But he added: "I am an alcoholic. I'm cured as long as I don't take a drink. If I take a drink, I'm not cured anymore."

Carter said his treatment at the military hospital would cost about $12,000 and he said he would pay the bill himself.

He said his drinking problems began before his brother's campaign for the presidency, but he said the publicity and pressures associated with a brother in the White House contributed to his problems.

Carter said the toughest part of the therapy was when "I made up my mind never to drink again — God knows I gave up one of my best friends."

The alcohol treatment center counts among recent graduates former first lady Betty Ford and Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga.

A week before Billy Carter entered the facility, the president told a news conference his 41-year-old brother was "seriously ill," but the statement was not explained. It followed a series of embarrassing statements, some allegedly anti-Semitic, made by Billy Carter.

Two drown in southeast Texas

By the Associated Press

Two persons, including a 4-year-old boy, drowned in Southeast Texas Sunday where swirling flood waters swamped wide areas of five counties hard hit by recent torrential rains.

Little Joel O. Cantu of Sugar Land died Sunday afternoon at a Houston hospital after he was pulled from a rain-filled, unfinished swimming pool by his father, Fort Bend County authorities said.

Officers said the boy was peering over the edge of the pool when he

Palestinian guerrillas kill four

Gunboats shell camp

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli gunboats shelled a Palestinian camp on the northern Lebanese coast after four Israelis, including a father and his two young daughters, were killed in a guerrilla raid on a resort town five miles south of the Lebanese frontier.

An Israeli civilian killed one of the four guerrillas. An army patrol killed another one and wounded and captured the other two.

The Israeli military command said the target of Sunday's naval attack was a training camp for Marxist guerrillas of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine at Nahr El-Berd, between the northern Lebanese town of Tripoli and the Syrian border. Palestinian spokesmen in Beirut claimed a refugee camp was shelled and said three persons were killed.

An Israeli spokesman said the shelling was not in retaliation for the terrorist attack early Sunday on the northern Israeli town of Nahariya. But Interior Minister Yosef Burg told Radio Israel the government would continue hitting Palestinian bases in response to raids, and Yasser Arafat put the guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Organization in Lebanon on "maximum alert" in expectation of a retaliatory strike.

An Iraqi-backed branch of the PLO, the Palestine Liberation Front, claimed responsibility for the attack on Nahariya. It was the seventh guerrilla strike or attempted strike across the border this year and the most costly in terms of civilian casualties in more than a year.

The four guerrillas landed in a rubber boat and stormed into a three-story, brown stucco apartment house 300 yards away, firing and throwing grenades.

The Israelis killed were Daniel Heran, 28, the manager of a textile factory; his daughters Einat, 4, and Yael, 2, and police Sgt. Eliahu Shahar, 24, who was shot and killed when he arrived on the scene. Four other Israelis were slightly wounded.

Charlie Shapira, 36, said he was awakened by pounding on his door about 2 a.m.

"First they shot through my door and then they started knocking it down," he said. "I let the first terrorist get in and then I shot him. He fell, but he still had a pistol in his hand, so I shot him in the head."

Meanwhile, two other terrorists had gotten into Heran's neighboring apartment and were dragging Heran and his older daughter out. Shapira said the father pleaded with the guerrillas to leave the child behind.

"I was scared to shoot at the terrorist holding my neighbor," said Shapira. "I thought if I killed him, the other one would kill the whole family."

An army spokesman said Heran and Einat were shot on the beach.

Five ownership maps ready for study by commission

Earl Dean, county tax appraiser, reported to commissioners court this morning that five ownership maps had been completed of county plats. Commissioners met at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.

Dean said the maps were essential for determining who owns county lands. The Sand Springs area, he said, may be "a can of worms" to map.

Without the maps the county can't be certain that all land eligible for taxes is being taxed. Dean said he didn't anticipate much land would be discovered that wasn't being taxed.

The maps are made from erasable material so that lines and numbers designating ownership can be changed if necessary.

A contract was awarded to Price Construction for gravel. Price submitted the lowest bid at $3.10 per cubic yard for grade six gravel.

A contract was awarded to Martin's Business Machines for a new adding machine for the Tax Assessor-Collector's office. The bid was the only one submitted. The machine will cost $177.

A new employee was approved by commissioners for the office of the county treasurer. They also moved to apply for a Vocational Office Education student to begin work in August. Funds will be transferred from the budget item providing the treasurer with funds to pay vacation help.

Farmers were warned not to turn their tractors on county roads. Sometimes plows drop gouging holes in roads when they turn, said commissioners, and the wheels damage the roads. They also warned "sharpshooters" to stop shooting holes in county signs.

Sheriff's Deputy Paul Silva was granted permission by commissioners to travel to Austin for a law enforcement conference on anti-terrorism, May 7 through 11.

Absentee votes now total 107

Persons casting absentee votes in the upcoming runoff election between John Massey and Polly Mays now total 107.

The two will vie for Mrs. May's expired city council seat Saturday. Neither candidate received the 50 percent majority vote needed to win the regular April 7 city election.

Absentee votes will be accepted at City Hall until 5 p.m. Tuesday if the ballot is delivered in person and until 10 a.m. Thursday if the ballot is mailed in.

Focalpoint

Action / reaction: Black's role

Q. With all the talk about city employees' salaries, it also raises the question about whether county salaries — about the same as those paid by the city — are also too low. Who sets county salaries, and why is Virginia Black always quoted as denying a raise? Does she set the salaries? How did she get her position?

A. Virginia Black, the able county auditor, doesn't grant or deny pay adjustments to county employees. She merely makes recommendations to the members of the county commission, who then establish pay scales. Commissioners, of course, have the final word. Mrs. Black is an appointive officer.

Governor's power slapped

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Unhappy Texas senators slapped down today Gov. Bill Clements' efforts to take over more power in spending taxpayers' money.

By a vote of 18-13, the Senate was three votes shy of approving debate on enlarging the governor's budget execution powers, one of Clements' main campaign proposals.

The vote came just after the Senate was read Clements' veto of the pawn shop regulation bill which had been approved by a large vote in the Senate.

"This is the most insidious proposal we will have before us in the form of constitutional amendments," protested Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena. He said a governor unfavorable to any particular state agency or program could destroy the legislature's efforts to finance it.

"This merely allows the governor to reduce line items in the general appropriation bill," said Sen. Ike Harris, R-Dallas. "He already has the power to veto such separate items."

Harris said his proposed constitutional amendment would allow the governor to veto riders or special provisions in the state spending bill, which already are questioned by many legal sources.

"This just means the governor can take any figure in the appropriation bill and do what he wants to with it," protested Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado.

Airliner missing

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — An airliner carrying 52 passengers and a crew of five was missing on flight from here to the southern city of Cuenca today, authorities said.

The plane, a Viscount belonging to Saeta Airlines, left Quito at 7:08 a.m. EST for the 250-mile flight and was to have landed at 8 a.m. The weather on the flight path was reported as good.

Marcelo Ypez del Pozo, director of Ecuador's Civil Aviation Administration, said the last radar contact with the missing plane was made by another airliner, which showed the Viscount flying at about 19,000 feet over the state of Canar near Cuenca.

Prison strike snagged

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The state moved to take away the gun-carrying privileges of its striking prison guards today following the latest pistol-waving incident in the strike.

Meanwhile, no progress was reported in the third day of mediated efforts to settle the walkout gripping the 20,000-inmate prison system.

Correctional Services Commissioner Richard Hongisto issued a directive shortly after midnight suspending the right to carry firearms for any guard "absent from duty without authorization."

His action theoretically makes felony convictions, and automatic loss of jobs, possible for any gun-toting guards arrested in picket-line incidents.

There were no arrests reported in an incident Sunday night that officials called the most serious confrontation yet in the 4-day-old guard's strike.

Several striking prison guards drew weapons on National Guardsmen returning to an armory from duty at a correctional facility and tried to "arrest" drivers of the troop trucks, said a Guard spokesman, Maj. Mike Kessenich.

Free press problems

NEW YORK (AP) — The 93rd annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association opens today with its chairman saying public support must be mustered to reaffirm free press rights guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Allen H. Neuharth, chairman and president of the ANPA, said in a statement issued during the weekend that the U.S. Supreme Court, in a recent decision, was "setting itself above the Constitution by its lack of sensitivity to a free society's need for a full and robust discussion of public issues."

Police beat House, church damaged

Malicious damage was inflicted on a home, a church and two businesses over the weekend. Criminal mischief appeared to be the intent of the destruction as nothing was discovered missing at any of the locations.

Alton W. Lewis reported that someone had broken four glass window blocks of Primitive Baptist Church, 713 Willa, around 4 p.m. Friday. The damage cost the church $100.

Between 1 p.m. Saturday and 12:30 a.m. Sunday, someone tore a screen and broke the glass of a window at the residence of Bob Allison, costing him $20.

A person wearing tennis shoes is suspected to be the culprit who threw a rock through the glass window of Circle J Drive-In, 4th and Settles, sometime between midnight Saturday and 6:15 a.m. Sunday. Damage is set at $50.

A large cement block thrown through the window of the Plaza Pub, 112 Main, between 1 a.m. and noon Sunday, resulted in an unknown amount of damage.

Mischiefous persons weren't the only ones out during the weekend. A number of burglaries were also reported.

Clothing totaling $518 were reported missing by Jimmy Marion. According to Marion, he left town at 8 p.m. Friday and returned at 11 p.m. Sunday, whereupon he discovered entrance gained through a window and his clothes gone.

Yeirid Villareal returned home from a night out early Sunday morning to find his color television, valued at $400, gone. The set was taken between 8 p.m. Saturday and 1:20 a.m. Sunday.

A $40 window was broken at Farm Bureau, 1318 E. 4th, in a burglary of $2 cash. A notary seal was also discovered missing. The theft took place at about 11:45 a.m. Sunday.

Despite two flat tires, a boy's bicycle at the residence of Frances Robinson was considered desirable by someone who carried it off between 7 a.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday. The bike was valued at $59.

The Thrifty Lodge, 1000 W. 4th, reported to police that a man and woman drove off Friday without paying their $44.30 room and service bill.

An open door on a parked vehicle aroused an officer's curiosity at 3:15 a.m. today. Upon investigating, the officer found that the vehicle appeared to have been vandalized. He contacted the owner who confirmed that an 8-track tape deck, worth $55, was missing.

A stolen Volkswagen was recovered by police at an abandoned service station on South Service Road at 2:53 p.m. Saturday. The thief left the ignition keys along with beer and empty cans and some men's and women's clothing. According to the report, both tags were missing.

Two shoplifting attempts were thwarted over the weekend.

Police were called to the Highland Center TG&Y Store at 5:30 p.m. Saturday after a woman had been spotted stuffing her purse with $10.50 worth of clothing.

A man at College Park Safeway Store was apprehended by an officer who observed him filling his pockets with $7.96 worth of merchandise.

An officer on duty was reported to have been kicked by a woman in the parking lot of Bogart's around 2 a.m. Sunday.

Other weekend reports included the loss of a wallet by Salvador Vidales at 21st and Main, 5 p.m. Friday. The wallet and contents totalled $112.

Troy Yale Jones, 23, 407 E. 8th, was released from Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital today after being treated for injuries received in a motorcycle-auto mishap Sunday.

According to police reports, a motorcycle driven by Jones went off the roadway after he swerved to avoid hitting an automobile driven by Chav Van Ut, 1110 E. 14th, at the intersection of 13th and Scurry.

Energy

CRMWD expenses up

Dip in sales to oil firms cut revenues

Decreased sales to oil companies as a conservation measure resulted in lower revenues for the Colorado River Municipal Water District during the first quarter of 1979.

Income declined by $76,000 while expenses, due in a measure to substantially higher energy costs, were up by $123,000. For the first three months revenues amounted to $1,479,688, of which $1,117,177 came from sales to cities, which were up by $115,000. Receipts from oil companies, because of the cutoff deliveries from Lake J.B. Thomas, dropped by $146,000. Recreational income of $23,993 was down 1,500, and miscellaneous income down $3,409 due to a non-recurring item from bond refinancing a year before.

The income picture was stable because rates had been adjusted in January, for the actual sales in gallons for the first quarter were off by 349,000,000 gallons. Of this, 2,361,192,000 gallons went to cities, an increase of 2 million gallons. The decline in gallonage to oil companies was 327,000,000.

Operating expenses for the first quarter were $810,601 up by $123,000, of which $85,000 was in higher energy costs. At the end of March Lake J.B. Thomas contained 10,151 acre feet of water, or 5 percent of its capacity; Lake E.V. Spence had 109,650 acre feet or 22.4 percent of capacity.

Exxon profits up 37 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp., the nation's largest oil company, said today that profits had risen 37.4 percent in the first quarter of 1979, the result of rising crude oil prices.

The company, the nation's second-largest industrial firm, said earnings for the first three months of the year were $955 million, or $2.16 per share, up from $695 million, or $1.55 per share, in the same period of 1978.

Revenues in the quarter were $18.7 billion, a 23 percent rise over the $15.2 billion sales Exxon reported in last year's first quarter.

The increase in Exxon profits exceeded the expectations of many Wall Street analysts, who had been predicting an increase of about 25 percent.

All oil companies are expected to report significantly higher profits for the first quarter because of the rise in crude oil prices brought on by the Iranian crisis and the accompanying jump in the prices of gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products in the United States.

The oil companies are expected to benefit from the rising prices because they are selling for higher prices oil bought before the price of crude oil rose.

Pipeline to Midland decision shaping up

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — State Air Resources Board chief Tom Quinn says a decision may be reached within "one or two weeks" on the fate of the proposed Sohio Alaskan crude oil tanker terminal and pipeline.

The South Coast Air Quality Management District gave unanimous approval Friday to the application by Standard Oil Co. of Ohio, which has been bogged down for five years. The ARB now must give final approval before the project can proceed.

In March, Sohio said it was cancelling plans for the $500 million project because of delays in the government permit process, but it has since reconsidered at the behest of local and state officials.

"I am absolutely delighted by the local air board's vote," Quinn said Friday. "I am optimistic that we can reach our decision within one or two weeks."

The proposed terminal would handle 500,000 barrels of Alaskan crude oil daily, with nearly all of it being sent by pipeline to Midland, Texas, where it would be refined and distributed through the Midwest.

Cuevas trial witnesses hard to find

HOUSTON (AP) — The defense rested its case today in the capital murder trial of Ignacio Cuevas after reporting three former Texas prison inmates sought as witnesses could not be located or had refused to testify.

Will Gray, chief defense lawyer, told State District Judge Miron Love two of the former inmates could not be located and the third refused to appear as a witness. All three were among the hostages taken when three convicts began an 11-day siege at the Huntsville unit of the Texas Department of Corrections in 1974.

On Thursday, Gray had asked Love to recess the trial until today so investigators could try to locate the three former inmates.

"This will be the only delay, I expect you to have your witnesses here by then (Monday)," Love told Gray. Gray replied "We have private investigators looking for them and we are sure we can have them here by Monday."

Gray has called four witnesses so far and says he wants eight more to testify.

Cuevas, the lone inmate survivor of the escape attempt, was convicted of causing the death of one of the hostages and sentenced to death in a 1975 trial. The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals ordered a new trial because of a judicial error.

$500 first place award won by Big Spring HS

By MICKIE DICKSON

Big Spring High School swept to victory in the HC Extravaganza Saturday night at Howard College. Five schools competed for awards totaling $900. Participating five schools included Coahoma, Forsan, Big Spring, Grady, and Borden County.

A medley of numbers from such famous American Broadway musical productions as West Side Story, Li'l Abner, Guys and Dolls, Chicago, George M., Oklahoma, and Grease played to a packed house.

Judges were selected from the West Texas area and included Mike King, KMD Midland; John McCall, KOSA Odessa; Ray Alloway, KWAB Monahans; Dorothy Haney, KPET, Lamesa; China Long, KFNE, Big Spring; Bill Kerns, Lubbock Avalanche Journal, Lubbock; and Joe Pickle, Big Spring Herald.

The BHS Meistersingers presented a polished version of Guys and Dolls and captured the $500 first place award. A student, Derrick Horton, president of Meistersingers, produced and directed Big Spring's winning effort.

A faculty resignation had left the choir without a sponsor and Horton stepped in, held auditions, with the arrangements, choreography, and production logistics. Derrick was joined by co-directors Cindy Cowan and Larry Wheat.

$300 and second place was captured by Pam Hansen and the Big Red Band of Coahoma with an electrically done version of West Side Story.

Third place and $100 dollars went to Forsan and their performance of Li'l Abner. The group will later perform a full length version of the play for members of the Forsan community.

The judges all remarked on how difficult it was to pick a winner. All of production numbers were well done.

The students in Extravaganza are to be congratulated. Few realize how hard most students had to work to be in the production. Many were involved in both academic and athletic UIL competition in the days and weeks immediately preceding the Saturday Night performance. Howard College students opened and closed the show with numbers from Chorus line and Grease but were not in competition for awards.

Members of the pit Band were from area schools and will receive scholarships to Howard College upon high school graduation.

U.S. heading for recession unless swift action taken?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is heading for a serious recession unless swift action — including imposition of mandatory wage and price controls, if necessary — is taken to control inflation, the president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department said today.

In remarks prepared for the opening session of the department's annual legislative conference, Robert A. Georgine complained that labor is being asked to bear the brunt of the nation's economic problems. "Only swift, effective action to control inflation, without increasing already high unemployment can prevent a deep recession," he said.

He cited a downturn in housing and said it "will soon affect other segments of the economy" unless action is taken.

"Administration officials have steadily disagreed with various private economists predicting a recession."

"The labor movement does not like controls," Georgine said. "But we recognize that inflation will not be halted so long as only workers are called upon to sacrifice."

Deciding against mass evacuation

Governor's 'toughest decision of all'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh told Congress today that all the actions he took during the Three Mile Island nuclear crisis, deciding against a mass evacuation was "the toughest decision of all."

Testifying before the Senate nuclear regulation subcommittee, Thornburgh defended his decision to limit the evacuation of the central Pennsylvania area around the stricken power plant to pregnant women and preschool children.

"I had to weigh the potential risks of Three Mile Island against the proven hazards of moving people under panic conditions," Thornburgh testified.

He said he would not have hesitated to evacuate the "entire area" had it ever appeared necessary. But, he added, "I could not in good conscience have ordered such a step with the facts at my disposal."

Thornburgh was the leadoff witness as the subcommittee stepped up its investigation into the incident at Three Mile Island, the worst nuclear power plant accident in the nation's history.

Both Subcommittee Chairman Gary Hart, D-Colo., and Thornburgh discussed confused and conflicting information on the accident. Thornburgh sharply criticized the handling of the crisis by Metropolitan Edison Co., the plant operator.

"The company issued statements in the early days that proved to be something less than accurate and its credibility as a reliable source of information eroded rather quickly," the governor said.

In other testimony, the president of General Public Utilities Corp., the parent company of Metropolitan Edison, told the panel the accident resulted from a series of "equipment malfunctions and human factors."

Herman Diekamp said that while it was too early to tell how long it would take to put the reactor back in service, cleaning it up and replacing the broken fuel elements "is technically manageable."

Also on the witness list was Walter Creitz, president of Metropolitan Edison.

Creitz acknowledged in an interview published Sunday that his company was not prepared for the accident and did not realize how bad it was for two or three days.

Transcripts of closed-door Nuclear Regulatory Commission meetings during the height of the crisis — made public last week — showed that on March 30, the day Thornburgh urged an exodus of pregnant women and small children within five miles of the stricken plant, some senior NRC officials were leaning toward a full-scale evacuation.

Hart said the transcripts laid bare a "crisis in leadership" among federal regulators in handling the accident.

Congress is also expected this week to receive formally President Carter's legislation for a "windfall profits" tax on oil companies.

The plan would tax 50 percent of the extra revenues firms earn from a companion presidential decision that does not require congressional assent — deregulation of domestic oil prices.

Attacks are expected from both political flanks.

Congressional liberals, claiming deregulation will aggravate inflation by sending fuel prices soaring, are trying to devise ways to block the plan.

And Republicans and oil-state Democrats are unhappy with Carter's proposal to use some of the tax revenues for social and mass transit programs. They are expected to try to amend the tax to allow the money to be "plowed back" into new oil company exploration.

A House-Senate Joint Economic Committee panel chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., holds a hearing on Carter's decontrol decision Wednesday. A House Commerce subcommittee has planned similar hearings for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Breznev's health

SALT summit might be held in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Refreshed by an 11-day vacation, President Carter is back at work amid hints this could be the week he finally gets to announce plans to sign a new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union.

State Department sources said last week — while Carter was still relaxing in Georgia — that there is a chance for an announcement by the end of this week.

But the sources, who asked not to be named, said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin would have to meet at least once more on remaining issues, apparently precluding an announcement of an agreement during the early part of the week.

When the announcement does come, the sources indicated it would be limited to saying that enough of the main issues had been resolved to warrant a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to add the finishing touches and sign an arms treaty.

There are growing indications such a summit might be held in Europe because of Brezhnev's uncertain health.

The White House press office was sponsoring a background briefing for reporters today on the impending treaty, but press secretary Jody Powell said it did not signal that an agreement had been reached.

Powell said the SALT session was designed primarily for reporters who have not specialized in the four-year-old arms limitation negotiations.

However, neither Powell nor other White House officials seemed willing to preclude the possibility that Carter might have a SALT announcement by week's end.

Carter returned to Washington Sunday night after attending a dedication ceremony for his 4-month-old granddaughter and six other infants at the First Baptist Church in Calhoun, Ga.

The president was scheduled to address the annual meeting of the National Academy of Sciences this afternoon.

Powell said he would be talking about science and technology and making a fresh plug for enactment of a 50 percent tax on earnings the oil industry would net from the Carter-ordered gradual decontrol of domestic crude oil prices beginning June 1.

Apart from the address to the National Academy of Sciences, the president was meeting with his Cabinet today and lunching with Vice President Walter F. Mondale, recently returned from a goodwill trip to Scandinavia.

Carter visits Capitol Hill Tuesday to speak at a special ceremony honoring the 6 million victims of the World War II Holocaust and flies to New York City on Wednesday for a what is billed as a major address to the annual meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

From there he goes to New Hampshire for a town meeting in Portsmouth and a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Manchester.

Even as the signs pointed to an early announcement on SALT, questions remained about whether the treaty could win the necessary two-thirds support for Senate ratification.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a leading supporter, said Sunday that a treaty could not win Senate approval unless the administration provides better assurances the United States can verify Soviet compliance.

"I want a SALT treaty," Glenn said on CBS' "Face the Nation." "But I'm also with those 80 percent of the American people who say they don't trust the Soviets."

And in Moscow, the leader of a 17-member congressional delegation visiting the Soviet Union told Soviet officials they will have to be more open with the United States if they expect approval of a new treaty.

Weather

Dense fog noted in Abilene area

By the Associated Press

The Texas weather picture showed markedly less rain and more clear skies last night and early today.

Showers and thunderstorms southeast and northeast from Waco, but by early this morning the rains had ended except in a small area of extreme Northeast Texas.

The greatest amount of rain reported in the six hours ending at midnight was .14 of an inch at Lufkin, followed by .03 at Longview and traces at Waco, College Station and Beaumont.

Dense fog formed in the Abilene and McAllen areas.

At 4 a.m., temperatures ranged from the middle 30s in the mountains, the middle 40s in the Panhandle and the 50s in the remainder of West Texas to the 60s in East Texas and South Texas.

Occasional light rain or drizzle was expected in Southeast Texas today, with fair weather prevailing in the remainder of the state.

The state's highest temperatures today were around the 70s across the northern half of the state and the 80s across the south.

WEATHER FORECAST — Showers are expected in the forecast period today until Tuesday morning, from northern California and southern Oregon to the northern and western Plains with rain extending from the Plains to the upper Great Lakes. Showers are forecast from Mississippi to the Ohio Valley. Rain is forecast from the upper Mississippi Valley through the Midwest to the mid-Atlantic region. Mild weather is forecast from Texas into the central Plains but most areas will be cool.

Vietnam war lessons

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Two men who figured prominently in the news during the Vietnam war era, one a soldier, the other a protest leader, appear in public forums Tuesday in New Hampshire, about 100 miles from each other.

Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam during the mid-1960s buildup, is to speak to Dartmouth College students in Hanover on "Retrospective Views and Lessons of Vietnam."

In Durham, political activist Jerry Rubin will speak to University of New Hampshire students on "Twenty Years of Change."

Westmoreland was U.S. Army chief of staff from 1968 until his retirement in 1972.

Rubin was a founder of the "Yippies," the Youth International Party, and was one of the "Chicago Seven," accused of starting riots at the 1968 Democratic convention.

Westmoreland's lecture is free; Rubin's is $3.

Angela: Racism is worse

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Black activist Angela Davis says "the times they aren't a changin'," at least as far as racism is concerned.

"Racism is worse in this country now than it was 10 years ago, and we have to keep on fighting," she said at a rally here.

She said blacks have been hurt by an assault on affirmative action programs, noting the U.S. Supreme Court decision in the Bakke case.

In that case, the court ordered the University of California to admit Allan Bakke to medical school. He had been denied admission under a quota system that set aside 16 places out of 100 for minority applicants.

"The assault on the affirmative action program is based on an illusion that we're free. We must demystify this illusion," Ms. Davis told the crowd Saturday.

One vote for Woody Allen

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's brash young mayor, Dennis J. Kucinich, isn't impressed by President Carter's performance in office, and says he'd feel better having actor Woody Allen in the White House than Carter.

"I've met President Carter a few times, and I personally find him a very engaging individual, but I also believe that when history is recorded, he may have trouble elbowing out some of our more mediocre presidents," says Kucinich, a Democrat who won office two years ago without party support.

His comment was in an interview with Robert Scheer to be published in the June edition of Playboy, said the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which obtained a copy of the interview and published excerpts Sunday.

Kucinich also discussed his stormy administration, which has seen the city plunge into default, the recall attempt and bitter fights with the City Council.

He admitted that "I asked myself from time to time: Is it worth it? Am I in the right business? Sometimes I sit here at night and I think about hearing myself compared to Hitler or Jim Jones, and I just ask, 'who wrote this script — Salvador Dali?'"

He said one of his safety valves is "an appreciation for the absurdities of life — including those in which I participate."

City to obtain $100,000 loan

COLORADO CITY — The city council here has authorized Mayor Marion Bassham and City Secretary Brenda Tarter to execute a short term $60,000 loan from the City National Bank to put the city's general fund in the black at the end of the current fiscal year. The fiscal year ends Sunday.

City Manager Ray Mason said the loan will actually be handled in two parts. The $60,000 note will be paid back May 1 with a $100,000 note which will be executed with the bank at that time. The remaining $40,000 of that note will be used to meet the city's operating expenses.

Interest rate on the loan will be eight per cent.

Foreign cars pose bit of problem

Forbes Magazine, that good, grey magazine printed in the language of the businessman, notes that foreign-car manufacturers are hard at work, trying to clear an unforeseen road block.

Some of the firms' best-selling imports cannot be towed, according to the publication.

Nissan of Japan, for example, hopes to sell 80,000 copies of a luxury sports car. With sales at full throttle, the manufacturer recently found the vehicle was almost untowable. Front end towing damaged that end of the body and the rear-end lifting could wreck the rear-parking-brake cables.

Nissan and the American Automobile Association have now figured out how a tow truck can pick up the sporty looking vehicle by the rear bumper and are hard at work on a front-end solution.

Nissan is not the only manufacturer with a problem. The Volkswagen Rabbit's automatic transmission can be damaged if a rear-end tow isn't done precisely.

The Fiat Strada, which uses the Rabbit's transmission, faces the same hazard. The Japanese Mazda RX7, according to the magazine, should be towed on a dolly to avoid damaging transmission, rear axle or steering.

The reason for the sudden commotion, says Forbes, seems to be simple oversight. The conventional tow-truck, so familiar to Americans, is something of a rarity in Japan and Europe.

To correct the blind spot, Nissan and Volkswagen have purchased standard U.S. tow trucks to help their designers and builders.

That may not be a fair exchange, in view of the fact that the importation of American tow trucks won't make a big dent in America's trade imbalance, but at least it's a start. It's also a tribute to American ingenuity.

Let us pray

William F. Buckley, Jr.

Senator Helms' recent rider to a judicial system bill which would have the effect of permitting prayer in the public schools has been attacked for reasons either disingenuous or thoughtless. The problem, as we all know, is the Supreme Court, which a generation ago began to interpret the First Amendment in ways that would have astonished its authors. Not only — the Supreme Court ended up saying — is aid to religiously-oriented schools unconstitutional, so also is prayer in public schools, never mind if the prayer itself is sanctioned by the spokesmen for the major faiths, as is the case in New York where Jewish, Protestant and Catholic leaders came up with a prayer offensive only to Madalyn Murray O'Hair and Beelzebub.

WHEN THE prayer decision was handed down in 1962, 49 out of 50 state governors called for a constitutional convention (Rockefeller was the exception). But the amendment never came out of committee, where Emanuel Celler protected the only religion whose establishment has been permitted by the Supreme Court, namely secular humanism. Senator Helms' solution to the impasse is quite simple: remove from the federal courts jurisdiction over the question which prayers a community may promulgate for the schools that community finances and sends its children to.

The constitution speaks clearly enough on the subject: "The Supreme Court (and by extension the federal courts) shall have appellate Jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as the Congress shall make." In 1805 Chief Justice Marshall ruled that the clause in question was to be interpreted as imposing upon Congress specific responsibility for defining the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, except where the constitution gave it original jurisdiction, as in quarrels between the states. No one thought this odd, and as an example of the routine acceptance of the right of Congress to define jurisdiction, no criminal cases were appealable to the Supreme Court until 1891. In a case called The Francis Wright (1881), the Court upheld the power of Congress to regulate appellate jurisdiction.

The single vexing exception in an otherwise unchallengeable series of decisions arose in United States v. Klein in 1872. Congress had ruled in 1862 that those southerners who remained loyal to the union would be entitled to the return of their property or to make claims for it. But after the war, President Johnson granted a pardon to all southerners, with a few specified exceptions.

The Supreme Court ruled that that pardon constituted sufficient proof of loyalty. This outraged the Reconstruction Congress, which then passed a statute declaring that where proof is loyalty by a petitioner consisted exclusively of the pardon granted by the President, "the Supreme Court shall on appeal, have no further jurisdiction of the cause."

In the Klein decision, the Supreme Court refused to abandon its jurisdiction. The Court ruled that Congress could not have it both ways. Either the Courts did have authority to decide under the law who was or wasn't entitled to make claims: or not. Congress could remove jurisdiction entirely, but not partially. By analogy, Congress could not, in effect, say now to the Courts: Go ahead and exercise jurisdiction on the question whether prayer in the public schools is permissible. But if you decide against prayer in states where a plebiscite shows 51 percent or more in favor of prayer, we will deny you jurisdiction.

Tic douloureux surgery cautioned

Paul E. Ruble, M.D.

DEAR DR. RUBLE: Enclosed is a photostat of an article I read regarding a new way of treating tic douloureux. I am 51 and have this condition. I'm taking pills prescribed by my doctor. Why do I and other people have to suffer if this new method can help? Have you heard of it? I showed the article to my doctor and he told me to disregard it. How come this method is not in use in our area? — Mrs. F.C.

Your interest in a cure for tic douloureux is shared by many patients and doctors of patients who suffer with this painful problem. The attacks result in agonizing pain that spreads across the face along the path of the fifth (cranial) nerve.

The surgery in the article mentioned consists of inserting a tiny sponge between the nerve and an adjacent artery. Some neurosurgeons have used tissue matter rather than the sponge mentioned in the three-year-old clipping you sent. The hoped-for effect is relief of pressure on the nerve from the artery. One advantage is that the face is not left numb, as it usually is in older methods of relieving pain.

If I am not mistaken, the procedure was mentioned in this column a few years back, when it was first reported by the Eastern neurosurgeon mentioned in your article. Since then the procedure has not gained wide acceptance.

One criticism is that it involves major surgery, entering the skull in a delicate area (near the brain). There is also fear that the sponge might actually damage the nerve. Most doctors are understandably conservative about recommending such major operations until they are sure of long-term benefit, and the surgeons I talked to are not convinced. Injection of nerve-blocking material is still preferred because it is less dangerous, even though it does leave the numbness.

You asked me to return the article, but there was no return address on your letter. Please write again and put your address on the letter itself, not just on the envelope.

Dear Dr. Ruble: My husband has been drinking non-fat milk for many years. Recently I found out that non-fat milk has no fat but does contain some cholesterol. Should he stop drinking it? — V.V.

The food value of the milk outweighs the danger in the cholesterol content. The amount of fat in milk is shown by percentages. Whole milk is 3.7 percent fat. That is, there are 3.7 grams of it for each 100 grams of milk.

Mailbag

Dear Editor,

The federal government (not the oil companies) is the culprit responsible for grabbing a tremendous portion of the American people's income.

The price of gasoline has increased substantially because the entire program of development, production, transportation and refining a barrel of crude oil has skyrocketed. The oil companies endeavor to make enough profit to pay their employees and stockholders a fair price for the use of labor and capital.

The oil companies are the life blood of the economy in several states. They have made possible royalty payments to farmers and ranchers by development of oil and gas resources on their property. Lack of capital and know how would have prevented most land holders from drilling on their land.

The leadership in Washington has attacked the oil companies with a spirit of revenge. The profits of oil companies are not as great as many industries, yet the risk is greater. The older oil fields were drilled with cheap labor and material. The 100 percent allowable has depleted the older field very rapidly. Less than a third of the 33,000 wells drilled in the East Texas field are producing. Many of the large reservoirs such as Snyder, and Andrews are rapidly declining.

It must be remembered that much of our "cheap oil" was used up when the petroleum industry was called on to supply fuel for World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

The oil companies were able to meet the demands of war, because their efforts were not constantly threatened with government regulations. In those days it seems a spirit of trust existed between the oil companies and the U.S. government.

Does the governing body in Washington feel that deficit spending can be reversed by slamming a windfall profit tax on oil companies. This money grab is nothing more than a "windfall tax" designed to shackle the oil companies.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I hear a lot of criticism about hypocrisy in the Christian church, and I have seen evidence of it myself. How do you answer such criticism? — H.D.

DEAR H.D.: The reason for this criticism is that many Christians, in all honesty, fail to live up to the standards of their own beliefs and teachings. But you should know that often no one is more aware — and more concerned — about this than Christians themselves.

There is hypocrisy in every walk of life. Teachers sometimes do not live up to what they teach. Doctors may not live up to the health rules they prescribe for others. It is important for you to realize that Christians also are not perfect. They go to church not because they are better than other people, but partly because they realize their failings and shortcomings and hope to find help within the church. The Christian knows he is a sinner and knows he needs God's forgiveness and strength.

Many churches throughout the world have a weather vane with a rooster on top of their steeples. This is a constant reminder of the way one follower of Jesus, Simon Peter, denied Jesus three times before a cock's crowing awakened him to his sin (see Matthew 26:69-75). That rooster reminds everyone as they walk into church that they are sinners also, and need God's forgiveness as Peter did. The wonderful thing, of course, is that Peter — a hypocrite on that occasion — was restored to fellowship with Christ.

Jesus condemned hypocrites among the religious leaders of his day, men who claimed to be holy but were not. Anyone who talks about their commitment to Christ and then deliberately shows by his life that he does not really love Christ, deserves to be called a hypocrite. But the majority of Christians prefer to talk about the greatness of their Savior, who forgives sinners like them. Look at Christ, and realize the forgiveness and new life He can bring to all who come to him by faith.

Unusual watch

Around the rim

Carla Walker

It could be a reporter's best friend, a dream come true for the gullible ones like me.

"It" is a watch that can tell the wearer, so the manufacturer claims, whether someone is lying or telling the truth.

The watch is written up in the April 24 issue of "Esquire", and, according to the article, should be sold over retail counters by Christmas. The cost?

Would you believe, it is only expected to sell for $29.95?

ACCORDING TO "Esquire," the process began several months ago when a privately owned New York company quietly delivered a secret blueprint to fourteen of the world's most sophisticated electronics manufacturers.

None of the companies was ever told what the tiny silicon chip was intended for, but they bid on the device, which is to be placed in a watch made by Communication Control Systems, a manufacturer of security devices. The device supposedly measures voice-stress to determine whether a person is lying.

Imagine (wouldn't I love it) asking a source on one of my stories, "Is it true that you were taking kickbacks from the oil companies?" Then, when the source answered "no," I would be able to tell whether he was lying. Better yet, I'd like to try the watch on the ever-smiling candidates for public office.

Imagine using the device on door-to-door salesmen offering that "miraculous do-all" device at an unbelievable discount. And, what about the scene when a man returns home at 2 a.m., and tries to tell his wife he was working late — the potential is endless.

Looking at it from all angles, though, the watch could mean, as "Esquire" points out, the "end of trust in America... widespread invasion of privacy..." There are many complex angles; suppose, after being asked if I liked a person's clothing, I politely answered yes, not wanting to hurt the person's feelings.

Tax steal

Jack Anderson,

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon is rushing to the rescue of American manufacturers who got stuck with more than $10 billion worth of canceled arms contracts when their favorite customer, the Shah of Iran, was overthrown.

If Congress approves the bailout, much of the armaments already in production will be purchased by the Defense Department, at an ultimate cost to the taxpayers of almost $2 billion.

The idea has the support of the defense industry's friends in Congress and of Administration officials who are reluctant to press contract claims with the new Iranian regime.

Dubbed by insiders as "the great Iranian fire sale," the proposed purchase of weaponry intended for the Shah would be at relatively bargain prices. But close scrutiny of the items involved shows that many are obsolete or unnecessary.

THE MOST EXPENSIVE and controversial are the four Spruance-class destroyers with which the Shah had planned to modernize his navy. Testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary Graham Clayton said it would be "criminal to let the opportunity to buy the destroyers go by." He noted that they carry "the same armament, the same guns, the same detection apparatus, the same everything" as the Navy's newest guided-missile cruisers.

It was a poor comparison to make; the committee vetoed further production of the cruisers back in 1975 because their anti-aircraft tracking systems were found to be obsolete. The committee report on that decision called it "inappropriate to build any ship...with a weapons system that is clearly inadequate to meet the projected threat within a relatively short period of time after delivery of the ship."

The four destroyers would cost the Navy $1.3 billion, plus another $2 million or so to refit them from Iranian to U.S. specifications.

Despite the enormous cost and the dubious value of the ships, the Navy's purchase request sailed smoothly through the committee, headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss. By no coincidence, the shipbuilder, Ingalls, a subsidiary of Litton Industries, is located in Mississippi.

"It's a bailout for Litton," said a congressional aide. "They're saving 1,500 jobs for $1.3 billion. Even by welfare standards that's pretty gross." At $866,666 per job, "gross" is an understatement.

Another Iranian Fire Sale bargain the Navy wants to grab up is 150 Phoenix missiles for $77.1 million. The missiles are carried by F-14s, and

Then, the lights on her watch would blink and I'd be in worse trouble than ever.

Technically, the watch works by voice-stress analysis, a product of post-World War II military intelligence research.

Originally housed in a casing the size of a record player, it was first used for identification purposes, since people have individual voice patterns, just as no two have the same fingerprints.

IT WAS SOON learned that the voice prints would mark changes in stress, perhaps a reflection of guilt, deception or both. In 1971, the product was made available to law enforcement agencies, although now a subject must voluntarily submit to the test and results cannot be considered courtroom evidence.

There is debate on two issues — whether voice stress is an actual indicator or a lie or perhaps, could be an indication that the subject is simply scared of authority or the machine, and whether the technology exists to encapsulate a voice-stress analyzer in such a small chip.

CCS contends that they have mastered the technology, and their proposed line of products includes several variations that spots untruths either by the number of flashing diodes digital readout of the measure of voice stress, has printout or memory type displays that can be recalled later to avoid constant watching of the watch during a conversation and an attachment which allows use with the telephone.

"The liar of the future is going to have a difficult time," quipped CCS vice president Carmine Pellosie to "Esquire." "People are going to be afraid to open their mouths; you can look for a land-office business in pencils and pads."

"But wouldn't such an intrusive product be immoral?" asked the magazines reporter, interviewer Dan Dorfman.

Pellosie's immediate response: "I've always thought it was immoral to lie."

only Iran and the United States have them.

THE TROUBLE IS, officials have admitted there's no way of knowing whether some of the Phoenix missiles or their operation manuals fell into Soviet hands after the Shah's ouster. "We prudently have to assume that the Russians have them," one knowledgeable source told our associate Peter Grant.

Several congressmen feel the proper course is to develop a new Phoenix missile, instead of buying more of a model that may no longer be a secret to the Soviets. In fact, this is being done by the Hughes Aircraft Co., and 60 of the newer missiles are included in next year's budget.

The Pentagon's rescue effort for its friends in the munitions industry is encountering opposition on Capitol Hill.

Footnote: It's not just the manufacturers who will get off the hook under the purchase proposal. If it passes, the new Iranian government would actually get back much of the $500 million deposit the Shah put down.

CRIS OF ALARM: A well-intended bill designed to encourage competition in American industry has raised cries of alarm from federal regulators. They fear the legislation would hamper their efforts to enforce safety and environmental standards.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., would require federal agencies to consider the impact their regulations will have on competition in the affected industry. If a regulation would have "substantial impact on competition" or encourage monopoly, the agency would have to show that the regulation's benefits would clearly outweigh the ill effect it might have on competition.

An internal memo to the White House from an Environmental Protection Agency lawyer warned that the legislation could undercut EPA's rules setting permissible levels of pollutants.

"Under the bill, the affected industry could suggest that the additional costs will increase concentration in the industry," the memo states. "The bill gives industry lawyers new opportunities to drag out the regulatory process."

Beyond more delaying tactics, the bill would give industry a chance to market products of doubtful safety by arguing that competition's needs would be served, the memo warns. In the case of a new pesticide, for example, the memo explains: "Agency determination that the new ingredient carried with it an unreasonable risk would be subject to challenge."

PARK SCENE CONTINUES — The relaxed, family atmosphere in this park in the middle of Columbus, Georgia's Wynnton neighborhood belies the terror which permeated the same neighborhood one year ago. Wynnton was the site of six of seven Columbus trappings in which elderly women were sexually attacked and strangled. The killer was never caught.

Residents still live in fear

By PEGGY WALSH

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Children play now in the park. Joggers run down the tree-lined streets. But the tranquil atmosphere lasts only as long as the sun in the middle-class neighborhood terrorized a year ago by a stranger who killed seven elderly women.

When darkness falls, residents still live in fear.

It has been almost a year since the "Columbus Strangler" claimed his seventh victim, 61-year-old Janet Cofer, a first-grade teacher.

Police are no closer than a year ago to solving the crimes. But the passing of time hasn't made residents of the area complacent.

Daisy Tucker, 66, says she's just as careful now as she was on Sept. 16, 1977, when the body of the first victim, Fern Jackson, 60, was found strangled with a stocking.

"I was a free person before," said Mrs. Tucker, who lives alone, only three blocks from the Jackson home. "But the stranglings have changed my whole lifestyle. I never go out at night."

Mrs. Tucker was one of the few persons who would agree to discuss the stranglings, six of which took place within a one-mile area. The last victim, Mrs. Cofer, lived about two miles away.

Several women refused to open the doors of their modest porch-front homes when asked to discuss the slayings. Others said memories of the grisly murders were too fresh. Other said they were simply afraid.

But Mrs. Tucker, who well remembers the initial panic surrounding the slayings, talked freely about the fear and the changes in her life since the slayings abruptly stopped on April 20, 1978.

"They told us if this levels off, some of the women would get complacent," said Mrs. Tucker. "But I've never gotten careless. I got a dog and I keep it inside. I've had security precautions taken."

Police officials admit their frustration in the case, which is unique in the recent history of this west Georgia city of 175,000. But they emphasize that the case is still a "top priority."

"We're assuming he's still here and assuming he's still alive," said David Hopkins, a spokesman for the Columbus Police Department. At the height of the investigation, 50 to 60 local and state police officers patrolled the Wynnton Road area, stopping passersby and noting any changes that might indicate the strangler had struck again. Between 30 and 36 investigators followed up leads.

Thirteen investigators remain on the special task force. The street patrols continue with help from nearby Georgia State Patrol posts. About $100,000 in rewards have been offered for information leading to the conviction of the strangler, $70,000 of that from the state.

Computer records at the police department show that 16,500 individuals have been interviewed in connection with the case. The number includes potential witnesses, suspects and neighbors. Some, said Hopkins, have been questioned from 10 to 20 times.

"If a woman doesn't take the time to take care of her skin, time takes care of it for her," stated Mrs. Spivey.

The district meeting held in Andrews was reported on by Mrs. Zula Rhodes. She also urged members to save postage stamps, a special project designed to help the Salvation Army in an effort to feed the hungry people of the world.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Rhodes May 3. At that time, members will observe a travel film.

Another view on marijuana

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: This is the second letter I've written you in two years — the first was a request for advice, this one is not.

I've been reading your column for almost two years now, and I happen to think you sound like a person who is in tune with today's youth scene however, I would like to present an opinion the opposite of yours so far as use and legalization of marijuana are concerned.

I'm about a month away from being 19 and I've been smoking pot for almost six years. Contrary to popular opinion, my friends did not nag me into smoking. The day I decided to find out what it was all about, I went up to a friend and asked for a joint.

Due to the fact that I liked it, I've continued to smoke and still do to this day. I smoked all the way through high school and I graduated a year early with a B average. I also played basketball, volleyball and softball, and was the most valuable player on my volleyball and softball teams.

I don't watch TV much because there's not anything worth watching on very often. I'd rather listen to my favorite music and talk intelligently with my friends.

I am a contributing member of society — as are most of my friends. However, due to the fact that we smoke pot we are labeled as "drug addicts," but we are no more addicts than you are — it is a proven fact that marijuana is not physically habit forming — the only way it can become habit forming is mentally.

My brain has not been destroyed by marijuana, I do not have hair growing on the palms of my hands and I have not felt like ax-murdering my parents and sisters (one of whom also smokes — not due to my influence). — Vicki, Radcliff, Ky.

Vicki: I never intended to portray all users of marijuana as freaks or monsters. I just think that people should get "high" on love, not drugs, even the non-addictive types which includes marijuana.

Dr. Wallace: My friend and I have been the best of friends for a long time. People call us the inseparable twosome. We stick together like glue — where one goes the other follows. We also told one another NOTHING would come between our friendship, not even BOYS!

A while back, I started dating a certain guy and I thought I was in love. (I always think I'm in love with the guy I'm dating.) But as usual, after a few dates I lost interest in him and told him so.

Well, this guy then asked my friend out and she accepted. At first she hesitated to tell me but then she did.

I told her I wasn't mad or hurt but our friendship just has not been the same.

Every time we see each other, she brings "him" up and says how sorry she feels for me. Can you please tell me what happened? — Heather, Modesto, Calif.

Heather: Your girlfriend cannot or does not want to accept the fact that you dropped this guy. That would make her second-best. If she believes she took him away from you, it puts her in first place.

Her Step-Children Need Stepping On

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I married George—a sweet, generous man with five grown children, all married with families of their own. My complaint: George and I have spent only six weeks alone since our marriage!

Whenever one of George's children considers a divorce, loses a job, or wants to save for a vacation, he (or she) and their kids move in with their father and me. We have to clean up after them, watch their kids and treat them like guests. I am sick of kids living with us for weeks and sometimes months at a time!

We have a large home, but we're far from rich, and when they're here our grocery bills are sky high. They've yet to contribute one dime.

George and I get along fine until the kids move in, then we argue all the time.

I love George, but if these free-loaders don't leave us alone, I'm leaving him. Any advice?

HADIT

DEAR HAD IT: It's obvious that George is a soft touch for his kids, so don't YOU be the heavy. (Let George do it.) Tell him that you are through being a pigeon for a flock of homing pigeons. Then prepare to (a) live with the ill you know or (b) fly to others you know not of.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you had a letter from someone who said the minute he opened his newspaper his nose started to run, his eyes watered and itched, and he went into a sneezing fit. You said he was probably allergic to the ink in the newspaper. You were right.

Years ago my son was being treated by one of the most highly regarded allergists in the country. After many tests it was discovered that he was allergic to newspaper. The doctor advised him to dry out the newspaper thoroughly in a warm (200 degree) oven before reading it. My son followed the advice, and it worked!

CHELMSFORD, MASS.

DEAR CHELMSFORD: Thanks for the tip. And if any of you readers out there try it, let this serve as a warning. DO NOT overheat the newspaper. It contains highly flammable material!

Refugees not wanted anywhere

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Special Correspondents Peter Arnett and Eddie Adams, a prize-winning reporter-photographer team, traveled 45,000 miles over four continents to document the plight of the world's 10.5 million refugees in this series.

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent
MENDOZA, Argentina (AP) — They live with their parents on four continents where their world is usually ringed by barbed wire and ruled by poverty.

Along the steep path of a camp in northern Thailand, a group astride a rickety three-wheeled cart bears down noisily on a pair of visitors. Two others run by, giggling, a live chicken in their capture.

A tumbled trio in flowing Moslem robes chants loudly from the Koran as elders walk past their crude slum home in Djibouti. They, too, break into giggles when a stranger nears.

In the northern African mountains where the sun beats down harshly on their rocky abodes, two curly haired charmers in gaily printed dresses need no encouragement to smile.

Their miles light a sad world. Half of the globe's 10.5 million homeless — refugees from wars and persecution — are children. They face a bleak future, unless their parents can find a place to settle.

Fittingly, the United Nations has declared 1979 the International Year of the Child as the organization steps up its program for refugee relief.

"Children feel the refugee condition more sharply, they are less able than adults to bear hunger, unhygienic conditions, ailments, cold or heat and the lack of shelter or medicine," reads a U.N. pamphlet.

That means, simply, they get sick and die.

This was all too evident in Bangladesh, where 200,000 Moslems had fled last Spring to escape alleged religious persecution in Burma. By year's end, according to U.N. officials, malnutrition, congested living quarters and disease had taken the lives of 6,739 children.

A country away, in northern Thailand, Kia Vue, 4, was found sitting on a grass mat. Her stomach was distended grotesquely, a result of parasitic infection and malnutrition.

Thirteen children had died at the small Nongkhai clinic in the past three weeks. Doctors feared little Kia Vue would be the next.

The little girl, her eyes big and shining, had hardly murmured in the three weeks since they had crossed the Mekong River from Laos, her mother said.

"Many arrived here after 20 days on the trail, and the children seem to stay alive until they reach here," said Larry Persons, a field representative for the Christian and Missionary Alliance. "Then they die."

But the needs of homeless children go beyond food and medicine.

Here in Mendoza, Maria Nela Munoz, 5, peered solemnly through the torn mosquito netting hanging over a window of her shabby little house.

"I want to go to school," she said in Spanish, "but the other children don't want me."

Maria was born in exile in Argentina. Her parents had fled Chile several years ago after the left-wing Allende government was overthrown. Still she is a stranger to her schoolmates.

Just down the road, Anna Morales, 13, posed unsmilingly for a portrait. "They hate us here," she said. "We do so much want to leave Argentina."

The Morales family has been unable to obtain local residency papers since arriving from Chile four years ago. No other country has offered them admittance either.

In Cyprus, the Ioannou family, which was among 200,000 Greek Cypriots displaced in the 1974 war, also knows frustration.

"We discovered that our daughter was spending a lot of time at a vantage point overlooking Famagusta where she could see our old home," said Floria Ioannou. "She was so morose, we had to send her away from here to the capital at Nicosia."

But now the family has found that their youngest daughter, Elena, 13, is similarly haunted by their lost home.

"She writes school essays about what life used to be like before," Mrs. Ioannou said. "We can't get her on any other subject."

Many refugee children don't have time to fret. They inherit a legacy of hard work from an early age.

Ibrahim Hassan's eight children worked with him tending his flock of sheep in the hills of Somalia before the family fled across the border to Djibouti in 1977 and life in the Al Sabieh refugee camp.

Work is also the lifestyle of the Yao and Hmong children in a camp in Nan, Thailand.

Moua Zang, 9, wearing a cap with red pompoms and the gaily decorated vest of the Yao people, used to help his mother harvest the opium poppies in Laos.

But his father was killed in the war and the family fled. Now he helps his mother weave scarves and bags for the tourist trade in far away Bangkok.

Do refugee children have any fun?

Few camps visited by The Associated Press in four continents had even radios, not to mention television. Many of the children in Africa and Asia had never been to a movie.

Toys were rarely seen. Two Chinese children at Nongkhai, Thailand, who owned dolls, clutched them possessively. One had never removed the plastic wrapper for fear her treasure might become soiled.

Bad times socking scholarly center

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions sits on a serene hillside where in earlier days a good thought could spread its wings, float lazily toward the blue Pacific or gently meander among the eucalyptus trees.

But bad times have brought the harsh outside world so close to the edge of the scholarly center that its sponsors are thinking of boarding up the white stucco mansion and leaving town.

There are only seven full-time employees — once there were about 60 — and 30 of its 42 acres have been sold to pay the bills. The banging of hammers and the buzzing of saws — new homes going up all around — make it hard to think in peace.

The prospect of selling the other 12 choice acres for at least $1 million is tempting.

Maurice Mitchell, the center's president, said the center may sell its land and become associated with the local branch of the University of California.

"The center will either be associated with an institution like UCSB or it will be gone from Santa Barbara," Mitchell said. And he adds, "The center will not close."

Other possibilities are joining the small, prestigious St. John's College of Santa Fe, N.M., or going to New York City.

"We could go to St. John's this afternoon if we wanted," Mitchell said in a recent interview. "If I had to pick a place right now and go by tomorrow, I'd go to New York. It's where the people are, the money is, the action is ... We have been invited to come to New York by some interesting people and groups."

Mitchell went to New York to talk to St. John's representative and others last week. Afterward he said, "The center has made no final decision. No formal arrangements have been made with any institution."

The center was formed 20 years ago by famed educator Robert M. Hutchins, to ponder great social issues. Hutchins gathered a brain trust from various universities and spent $26 million over the next 16 years, producing books, transcripts of intellectual discussions and reports.

But the peak membership of 100,000 supporters, who paid $15 a year, has dwindled to about 25,000. Hutchins died in 1977.

Mitchell says the trimmed-down center's economic situation is better today than it was a year ago. "I think I've got the place streamlined now so it's got a very real and honest economic base and it can function."

"The center's real hope is in broadening its membership, getting ordinary people in. I think the dream of finding a millionaire just dying to leave his fortune to the center is unrealistic and might even produce an outcome that you'd regret."

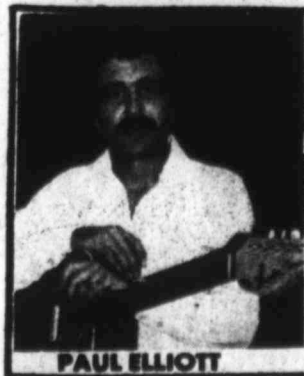

Mitchell said Santa Barbara would not greatly notice the departure of the center. "If I were moving the gasworks out of here and all the stores were going to go dark, that would be a problem. But the community doesn't seem to care one way or another."

POP FOUL ATTEMPT — San Francisco Giants first baseman Mike Ivie makes a diving attempt to catch pop foul off the bat of Los Angeles Dodgers Dave Lopes in the fourth inning Sunday afternoon in San Francisco. The Dodgers won the game 9-2.

Sutton fans 12, passes Koufax

By the Associated Press

Don Sutton leads the Los Angeles Dodgers in career wins, losses, games started, innings pitched, hits and walks and is tied for the lead in shutouts. He travels in some distinguished company, with names like Sandy Koufax and Denny Drysdale.

On Sunday, Sutton passed Koufax on the Dodgers' career strikeout list, fanning 12 Giants in a 9-2 victory over San Francisco. Sutton, half of whose strikeouts Sunday came on called third strikes, now has a career total of 2,402, 17th on the major league's all-time list. Koufax has 2,396.

Drysdale is the only Dodger with more career strikeouts, 2,486, and he is tied with Sutton in career shutouts, 49.

"Those two men are special to me because when I joined the club, they were the two big stars but were not too busy to help out a 20-year-old kid," the 34-year-old right-hander said.

Sutton came to the Dodgers in 1966 from Albuquerque, the year that Drysdale lost twice and Koufax once in Baltimore's 4-0 World Series sweep of the Dodgers. Sutton did not play in that series.

Sutton and Koufax were reunited in spring training this season when the Dodgers Hall of Famer came out of retirement to become a pitching instructor for his former team. Sutton's admiration for Koufax and Drysdale was very apparent.

"To share any records with them gives me great satisfaction," Sutton said.

In other National League games, the New York Mets downed Philadelphia 4-2, Houston edged Pittsburgh 3-2, the Chicago Cubs whipped Montreal 4-1, Atlanta beat San Diego 8-7, and St. Louis got by Cincinnati 4-3.

Sutton, 2-2, scattered six hits, did not walk a batter and was working on his 50th shutout until the sixth inning when the Giants scored an unearned run on a fielding error by Joe Ferguson in right. Sutton also yielded a solo homer to Jack Clark in the seventh.

However, as Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda pointed out, "We finally were able to give Sutton a cushion to work with."

In Sutton's last start April 16 at home against Houston, the Dodgers were shut out by Ken Forsch, who had recorded the season's only no-hitter nine days earlier.

But on Sunday, Los Angeles wasted no time getting untracked. The Dodgers scored seven runs in the fourth inning to lead 9-0. Steve Yeager had a two-run homer and Von Joshua a three-run shot in the inning. Steve Garvey and Derrel Thomas — with his second hit of the inning — drove in the other runs.

Yeager's homer came off Giants starter Ed Halicki, 1-1, and Joshua connected off reliever John Curtis.

Mets 4, Phillies 2

New York ended a string of 26 scoreless innings when Joel Youngblood led off the eighth with a solo homer, and newcomer Frank Taveras drove in the winning run with a single that snapped a six-game Mets losing streak.

Youngblood's homer came off lefty Steve Carlton, who had given up only two previous hits in the game, and it ignited a four-run eighth-inning rally.

Taveras, traded to the Mets last week by Pittsburgh for shortstop Tim Lincecum, also aided the Mets in the sixth with a clutch play at short on a hard grounder by Jose Cardenal into the hole. With two out and two on, Taveras' throw to first just beat Cardenal.

Astros 3, Pirates 2

While Taveras was a hero of the Mets game, shortstop

Foli was the goat of the Pirates' game. Foli let Bob Watson's grounder get by him into left field for an error, and Craig Reynolds scored from second with the winning run in the eighth inning.

Reynolds had doubled, and losing pitcher John Candelaria, 0-1, walked Cesar Cedeno intentionally before Watson came to the plate. Joaquin Andujar, 3-0, picked up his second victory in two nights in relief for Houston.

Cards 4, Reds 3

St. Louis struck for two runs in the eighth inning on RBI singles by Ted Simmons and Ken Reitz, and the Cards snapped a three-game losing streak.

Ray Knight drove in all three of Cincinnati's runs with a pair of singles.

Watson hunts 'Golden Bear'

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — His current credentials are in order, but Tom Watson is not yet ready to claim the No. 1 spot in world golf.

"Jack (Nicklaus) is still the man to beat," Watson said after scoring an impressive, front-running, 6-shot victory Sunday in the prestigious Tournament of Champions, an elite event that brings together the winners of PGA Tour titles from the past 12 months.

"He's the greatest player," Watson said. "He's not playing very well right now and I know he must be burning inside. But he'll be back. He's too great a player not to."

Watson, a dedicated student of the game, mentioned some of the greats of the past: Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and the more current stars, including Gary Player.

But he came back to Nicklaus.

"Jack's record is fantastic," Watson said.

Since the start of the 1977 season, however, Watson's has been better.

In that period, Nicklaus has won six American tournaments and the 1978 British Open. Watson has 11 American tournaments, including the Masters, and the 1977 British Open. For the period, Nicklaus has won $573,740, Watson $903,048. And Watson won the coveted Vardon Trophy, Player of the Year honors and the money-winning title in each of the last two seasons, the only man to win all three in consecutive seasons.

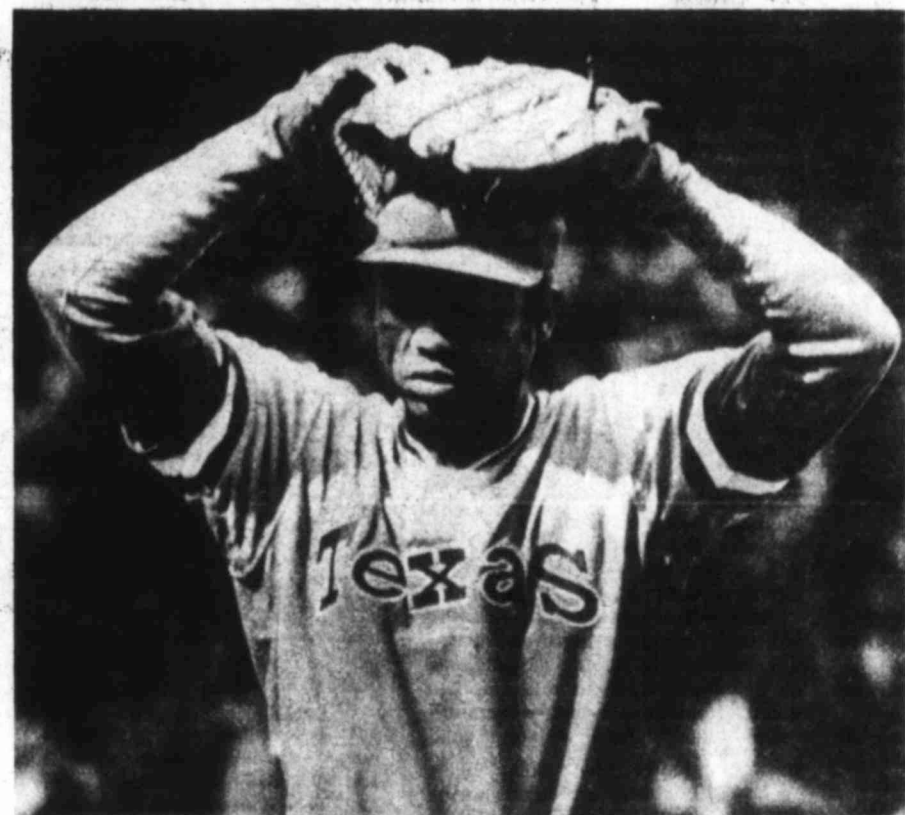

But the 29-year-old Watson is adamant. "I have a while to go before I can consider myself a great player," he said, then grinned and added: "But it's sure sweet right now. It's an honor to be called the No. 1 player."

REACTS TO HOME RUN — Texas Rangers pitcher Dock Ellis holds his hands to his head after giving up a two-run homer to the New York Yankees Craig Nettles in the third inning of Sunday's game at New York's Yankee Stadium. Yanks won 5-1.

Yanks get revenge

NEW YORK (AP) — It was a scene the New York fans had been anticipating. Sparky Lyle with his poison pen and wicked slider facing the good guys in the pinstripes, especially Reggie Jackson and Graig Nettles.

The roar began as Lyle climbed into the bullpen car beyond the center field fence in the seventh inning. It grew as he stepped out onto the grass behind shortstop and the Bronx cheers reached a peak when his name was announced as the fourth pitcher for the Texas Rangers.

The Yankee Stadium organist often played "Pomp and Circumstance" when Sparky Lyle, king of baseball's relief pitchers with 194 saves, strode to the mound during his seven seasons in a New York uniform. Rarely did he hear anything but cheers.

This was different. The boos outweighed the applause thanks to Lyle's best-selling book "The Bronx Zoo," a so-called "astounding inside look" at the Yankees' incredible 1978 season. And Lyle had returned to try, as he promised, and break owner George Steinbrenner's heart "like he broke mine."

Unfortunately, the game was not a heart-breaker. The Yankees led 4-1 on Bucky Dent's two-run single in the second inning and Graig Nettles' two-run homer in the third enroute to a 5-1 victory. Ron Guidry rarely blows that kind of a lead.

The Yankees led the Bronx cheers for Lyle. "It was very loud of the people in New York," said Guidry, who fashioned a six-hit, four-strikeout effort.

Thurman Munson, who doubled, was on second base as Lyle faced Jackson, whose fabled ego took a pounding in the book. Jackson looked at a third strike and gave umpire Dick Nelson's call a lousy review.

Next came Nettles, one of the book's main men for allegedly committing a deliberate error in an exhibition game against the

New York Mets last season. Nettles, who received a Gold Glove before the game as the top fielding third baseman in the American League, had singled, homered and singled.

"I didn't look at him; I didn't want the commissioner to get excited," said Nettles, the Yankees' resident wit, referring to Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's promise to look into Lyle's charges.

Nettles swung half-heartedly and missed two sliders, took one for a ball and then lined a run-scoring single to center, his first four-hit game since Sept. 29, 1976.

"I was setting him up," he said with a grin while standing in his dressing cubicle, which used to be Lyle's, and holding a note from Sparky. He refused to divulge the contents but, knowing Lyle, it probably was unprintable. Lyle was unavailable as the Rangers closed their dressing room to the media because a woman writer was present.

Spurs look like sure winners, but...

GATHERS REBOUND — Sixers' Maurice Cheeks, left, snatches rebound away from Coby Dietrick of the San Antonio Spurs Sunday at National Basketball Association playoff game at Philadelphia. Spurs won the game, 115-112, and now lead the Sixers, 3-1, in the best of seven playoff series.

By the Associated Press

Doug Moe isn't taking anything for granted. "Yeah, we're in the driver's seat," said Moe, coach of the San Antonio Spurs, "but we can still have an accident."

Or to put it another way, a 3-1 lead in a best-of-seven playoff series — even with the homecourt advantage for two of the three possible remaining games — is no guarantee of victory.

"The biggest thing we have to guard against is overconfidence. We can't afford that," warned Moe, whose Spurs took command of their National Basketball Association Eastern Con-

62 wins it

A score of 62 won the Louisiana Draw Match at the Big Spring Municipal Golf Course, Sunday.

The team of Robert Caffee, James Petty, Jerry White, Bob Clark and J.T. Morgan took top honors in the tournament.

One stroke behind in second place was the team of Gary Grissam, Lloyd Duncan, John Stanley and Noel Reed. The team of Mac Wilkenson, W.H. Smith, Paul Selden, Ansel Finley and R.M. Winslow shot a 64 to take third.

A total of 43 players competed in the tournament, which was sponsored by the Big Spring Golf Association.

Holes-in-one

Two Big Springers managed aces at the Big Spring Municipal Golf Course, Sunday.

Odell (Red) Womack used a five-iron to score a hole-in-one on the 165-yard seventh hole.

Witnessing the act were Wally Slate, Daryle Hohertz, Bill McClelland, Dr. Jim Mathews and George McAlister. It was Womack's first ace and he says he's been playing golf for over four decades.

Tano Chavarria shot a hole-in-one on the sixth hole. It was also the first ace of Chavarria's golfing career, and he used a six iron to perform the feat. Fellow golfers were Joe Montez, John Subia and John Scott.

ference semifinal series by edging the Philadelphia 76ers 115-112 Sunday. The Spurs will try to wrap it up at home Thursday night.

Moe's words also apply to the two Washingtons, city and state, whose teams also lead their respective series 3-1.

The Washington Bullets, who snapped Atlanta's home-court winning streak at 17 games Friday night, did it to the Hawks at home again Sunday, beating them 120-118 in overtime. They'll try to close out the series at the Capital Centre in Landover, Md., Tuesday night.

"This loss might deflate a normal team, but the Hawks aren't a normal team," said Washington forward Bobby Dandridge, who scored 31 points Sunday. "You don't know what to expect from them. They are the kind of team that you just can't relax on."

Seattle took a 3-1 lead over the Los Angeles Lakers with a 117-115 decision Sunday at the Forum in Los Angeles behind 53 points from guards Gus Williams and Dennis Johnson, who have plagued the Lakers all series.

With the Kingdome committed to a baseball game, the Sonics will try to end the series Wednesday night at the smaller Seattle Center Coliseum. That was their home court prior to this season, and because of its low roof and high noise factor, it was always a tough place for visiting teams to win.

The home team has won every game so far in the other Western Conference semifinal, with the Phoenix Suns grabbing a 2-1 lead with a 108-93 rout of the Kansas City Kings on Sunday. That series resumes Wednesday in Kansas City.

George Gervin, the two-time NBA scoring champion, netted 32 points to lead San Antonio past Philadelphia. At the other end of the floor, the Spurs' Larry Kenon limited Julius Erving, who had scored 39 points in the Sixers' only series victory Friday night, to just 15 points on 6-for-17 shooting.

In fact, Kenon took Erving right out of the game. Dr. J played just 31 minutes, and Sixers Coach Billy Cunningham explained, "I didn't use Julius more because he couldn't get going."

Mike Green's jumper

snapped a 90-90 tie with 7:13 remaining and the Spurs led the rest of the way. Gervin had 12 points in the final period, including a pair of free throws at the buzzer after Philadelphia had closed to within one.

Rookie guard Maurice Cheeks topped the Sixers with a career-high 33 points.

Dandridge was the hero of the Bullets' victory, scoring 15 of his points in the final period including a running one-hander that tied the game at 107-107 with seven seconds to play.

Atlanta guard Eddie Johnson was the goat, twice. He wasted too much time dribbling the ball and the Hawks were unable to get off a shot before the buzzer ending regulation play, then he missed a shot that would have tied the game at the end of the overtime after Kevin Grevey had helped the Bullets to the lead with a pair of 25-footers.

Williams scored 30 points and Johnson 23 for the Sonics against Los Angeles, giving them 208 points in the four games played thus far.

The Lakers, who trailed 112-102 with 3:20 to play, battled back behind 5 late points by Ron Boone and had a chance to tie the game after Williams missed on a second free throw attempt with two seconds left, but guard Norm Nixon — who had 21 points and 19 assists — missed a 20-footer at the buzzer.

Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led all players with 31 points and 13 rebounds.

CART wants answers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Championship Auto Racing Teams gave Indianapolis Motor Speedway President Joe Cloutier until tonight to reply to a telegram asking clarification of the U.S. Auto Club's rejection of Indianapolis 500 entries by six CART teams.

If Cloutier does not reply, or if his answer does not satisfy the leaders of the breakaway racing organization, "... we will be compelled to resort to our available remedies," said CART President Pat Patrick.

He did not say what those remedies might be. Patrick, whose own racing team was one of the six singled out by USAC on Friday, said he wants to know who runs the Indy 500 — USAC or the Speedway.

"We've got to find out who we're fighting before we start shooting."

USAC says it has the authority to accept or reject entries based on its position as sanctioning body for the Indianapolis race.

Cloutier was unavailable for comment on the telegram, sent Saturday night from Atlanta, where the CART owners and drivers were preparing for Sunday's Twin Dixie race won by Johnny Rutherford.

The telegram read in part: "If USAC is acting in your behalf with regard to those entries, we must request immediate clarification of the grounds of the rejection for the entries. Since some 25 CART entries have apparently been accepted and a select few refused, none of which are USAC members, we must immediately know the basis of this distinction."

The six CART teams, representing 19 entries, were turned down on Friday.

LOCKING HORNS — Light-heavyweight boxers Matthew Franklin (left) and Marvin Johnson lock gloves in Indianapolis Sunday. Johnson, the World Boxing Council champion, was knocked out by Franklin of Philadelphia in the eighth round.

Temper costs Card

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals third baseman Ken Reitz says his temper has cost him $1,250, stemming from an incident April 11 at Lambert Airport.

Reitz, at a hastily arranged weekend news conference, said the amount represents damages he and two teammates caused to a Trans World Airlines waiting room plus a fine of an undisclosed amount.

Cards General Manager John Claiborne identified the other two players as first baseman Keith Hernandez and righthanded pitcher Silvio Martinez.

Claiborne said the damages totaled $1,086. Reitz said he broke a sliding partition costing $700 and threw a chair during an incident he attributed to a lengthy delay before the flight.

The episode occurred when St. Louis's charter plane to Pittsburgh was delayed 10 hours at the airport by conditions during a heavy rainstorm.

"I don't like to fly anyway, and I always drink some beers to relax me," said Reitz. "We just sat there for so long that I was getting edgy. I'm sorry for what I did."

Five areas 'inundated' with syphilis

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Five areas in Alabama have been "inundated" with syphilis, State Health Officer Ira Myers said in his annual report to the Medical Association of the State of Alabama.

Myers said Saturday that for the first two months of 1979, the state's reported incidence of syphilis "increased 222 percent over the same period last year." He said five areas — Huntsville, Florence, Montgomery, Phenix City and Mobile — reported the largest increases in the venereal disease. "After 12 years of a general decrease in syphilis — nine years of being much below the national average — suddenly an epidemic exists," said Myers.

'Radioactive' water' found

CHARLEVOIX, Mich. (AP) — There was no release into the environment of leaking radioactive water at Consumer Power Co.'s Big Rock nuclear power plant, state officials say.

A "rivulet," or small stream, of "highly radioactive water" was discovered Friday after workers repaired a defective valve, according to Russell DeWitt, manager of production nuclear for the utility. The plant will be put "in a cold shutdown condition" immediately, DeWitt said, adding that he could not estimate how long the plant would be out of operation.

No injuries were reported and tests showed that no workers were exposed to excessive radiation.

Bush told about

'bloody the nose'

FORT DODGE, Iowa (AP) — Former CIA Director George Bush says he was told by Chinese Premier Deng Xiaoping (Teng Hsiao-ping) about two weeks before the Feb. 17 invasion that China planned to "bloody the nose" of Vietnam.

Bush said in an interview the comment came during the Chinese official's visit to the United States. Bush, viewed as a possible Republican presidential candidate, said he gave the information to the State Department.

Fatal shooting trio quizzed

HOUSTON (AP) — Bobby Lee Nentwig, 30, was stabbed to death Sunday night as he and a female companion were walking to the Summit for a rock concert.

Police said three men took the woman's purse and a scuffle ensued. The woman received minor injuries.

Investigators said the purse was recovered and three young men are being questioned.

Arson hinted in $575,000 school fire

HOUSTON (AP) — Arson was suspected Sunday as a three-alarm fire caused an estimated $575,000 in damage to an elementary school.

Les Burton security chief for the Houston Independent School District, said most of the damage at Dogan Elementary on Liberty Road was in the office area and it appeared that several rooms had been vandalized.

Burton said it was the third major school fire in recent weeks in northeast Houston. He said all three apparently were started by juvenile burglars.

$1.10 dividend will be paid

DALLAS — The Board of Directors of American Petrofina, Inc., meeting here Friday, declared a semiannual dividend of $1.10 per share on the Class "A" and Class "B" stock for the first half of 1979.

The dividend is payable May 10, to shareholders of record at the close of business on May 2.

Farm Electronic marketing of meat

WASHINGTON (AP) — With rare exception, Americans for years have bought meat that has been neatly cut, packaged and arranged in refrigerated supermarket counters.

According to a report by the Agriculture Department, changes in the way meat is produced and marketed were major factors in the development of the supermarket, with the accompanying demise of small grocery stores where a customer told the "butcher" exactly what was wanted.

That development is outlined in a recent report to Congress about the feasibility of still another new way to market meat: use of electronic marketing in the wholesale trade.

The report, which was released last week by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, chairman of the House Small Business Committee, said wholesale meat "appears well-suited" for electronic trading, perhaps the next major change in the industry. Smith and other critics contend that the nation's $37.5-billion-a-year wholesale meat industry is so huge and impersonal that opportunities exist for a relatively few big packers, brokers and food chains to manipulate prices.

A computerized system of marketing could help eliminate those opportunities by putting more buyers and sellers into direct contact with each other, he says.

The report included background on how the meat business developed from American colonial times when townspeople relied on retail butchers who bought cattle and hogs from nearby farmers, selling the meat the following day.

Then, in 1805, the beginning of commercial cattle feeding in Ohio enabled slaughtering to be separated from retailing as farmers drove their animals over the Appalachian Mountains to eastern seaboard cities and sold for slaughter.

Instead of buying live animals from farmers, retailers began depending on a new class of middlemen — slaughterers — for carcasses of beef and pork.

Another big development came in 1870 when refrigerated railroad cars made possible the slaughter of livestock nearer the farms where they were produced and then shipping carcasses to big city markets.

By World War I, slaughter by retail establishments had dropped to about one-fourth of the cattle and less than one-tenth of the hogs. But local slaughterers and "branches" owned by big nationally-known packing companies still were important sources of supply in the wholesale meat trade.

Thousands of truckers stay idle

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of wary steel-hauling truckers stayed off the job today, waiting for a first-hand look at a new agreement negotiated by Teamsters union bargainers.

Even that tentative agreement did not cover the entire industry.

One result of the confusing situation: more than 5,000 steel plant workers were laid off as growing stockpiles jammed storage yards.

A spokeswoman for Trucking Management Inc., a bargaining for about 500 trucking companies hauling a wide variety of freight, said the group "settled by itself" Sunday with the national Teamsters union on a new supplemental contract for the steel haulers.

Spokeswoman Anne Banville added a second group, the Motor Carrier Labor Advisory Council representing 165 firms, "is going to go along with the same settlement." And then the Teamsters announced that the Irregular Route Carriers Conference also had come to terms.

However, the National Steel Carriers Association, a group of companies specializing in steel hauling, rejected the agreement.

And the Teamsters for a Democratic Union, organizers of the strike by dissident steel haulers, said there was some question whether the dissidents would go along with the agreements.

The lack of a settlement with National Steel Carriers Association also might keep many drivers from going back to work, a dissident spokesman said, because "we've got a strong tradition of 'if one's down, they're all down.'"

SEN. CHURCH ISSUES WARNING — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, addresses the Foreign Correspondents Club of Japan in Tokyo, Monday. He warned that Japan cannot expect to reap the benefits of trade surpluses with the United States, Taiwan and South Korea without contributing more to the defense of the Western Pacific. Church was on his way home from a week-long visit to China.

Consumer Association accused of deception

AUSTIN — Gene Fondren, lobbyist for the Texas Automobile Dealers Association, today accused spokesmen for the Texas Consumer Association of "false, misleading and deceptive" representations in their lobbying efforts against S.B. 359, the documentary fee bill.

In a statement prepared for a scheduled hearing of the House Financial Institutions Committee, Fondren says that the TCA has flooded the legislature with misinformation.

"Characterizing the documentary charge as being 'presently illegal' is entirely without foundation," Fondren said. "The Consumer Credit Commissioner, the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Court have all recognized its legality and dealt with it responsibly in trying to determine a proper method of disclosure under both State and Federal law."

Fondren called TCA's comparison of the dealer documentary fee to a 65c fee received by the County Tax Assessor-Collector for license receipts "the rankest kind of distortion. The most cursory look at the service performed by the dealer relating to the documentary fee and the most elementary knowledge of functions and fees of the Tax Assessor-Collector's office reveals the absurdity of this position."

TCA's claim that S.B. 359 is opposed by the Tax Assessor-Collector's Association is typical of TCA's disregard of fact, according to Fondren. "The letter circulated in support of TCA's statement doesn't even purport to be an official position of the Association, and its author verifies that it is not. Mae Barnes, president of the Tax Assessor-Collectors Association, advises that the letter was written on the basis of her personal views and intended to express her concern that the public might think the fee went to the Tax Assessor-Collector."

Fondren labeled as "deceptive" TCA's intimation that class action enforcement of a documentary fee violation would be eliminated by other legislation. "A violation of the Consumer Credit Code is punishable by penalties, court costs and attorneys fees in either an individual action or class action."

"TCA's calling the bill an attempt to get a 'subsidy from the legislature' defies all logic," Fondren said. "A substantial portion of the service for which the documentary fee is charged relates to documents and the collection of fees and taxes which, if not performed by the dealer, would be performed at the Tax Assessor-Collector's office at the general taxpayers' expense. The documentary fee charge system places the cost where it belongs, on the parties to the transaction."

Fondren said, "The bill should stand or fall on its own merit and its outcome not be dictated by innuendo or distortion."

Harris County morgue enlargement needed

HOUSTON (AP) — A study committee says the Harris County morgue is so small it could never handle a major disaster with many casualties.

"Our committee fears unless steps are taken soon there will be an embarrassing crisis," said Dr. Edwin H. Basden, staff pathologist at St. Joseph Hospital.

Basden is one of 20 physicians in the Harris County Medical Society study committee that has checked coroner facilities in Dallas and major cities in Florida, California and Ohio. The Harris County morgue has not been enlarged since it moved into the 4,607-square-foot area in the basement of Ben Taub Hospital in 1963.

Basden said the committee will recommend enlargement to 50,000 to 60,000 square feet to meet current needs and expansions over the next 25 years.

Local students in state meet

Two Big Spring High School students, Glenn Margolis and Jan Whittington, qualified for the State Literary Meet in Regional competition at Lubbock the past weekend.

Margolis finished third in the spelling event. His sponsor is Ed Loveless.

Miss Whittington wound up second in prose reading. Her sponsor is Janice Cook.

The State Meet will take place in Austin May 3-4.

Skylab: Bringing it down gently

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — What goes up must come down. And if it weighs 85 tons, gently, it's hoped.

Yet man launched Skylab, an 85-ton space laboratory, in 1973 and left its destiny to the sun and the winds and to scientists' brains, figuring they'd have an answer when it was time to land.

It is, and they don't. "We're still working hot and heavy seven nights a week," reports Dr. Marshall Kaplan, a professor of aerospace engineering at Penn State University who has been hired by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to help find a quick solution.

"I've been as busy as a beaver," he said in an interview. "We're anxious. We're trying to anticipate all the situations. A lot of things can happen at the end."

The end, according to NASA, is the latter part of June when Skylab is expected to tumble out of orbit and into a blazing dive on a collision course with Earth.

"The bird is coming down relatively fast," reports Larry Edwards, manager of Skylab studies for NASA in Washington. "The only thing that can be said with any confidence right now is that it's between plus and minus 50 degrees of latitude, which extends up into Canada and down almost to the tip of South America."

"Between those limits it can come down any place. And we can't predict where until the final day."

Actually, the $2.3 billion spacecraft will begin breaking up about 60 miles above the Earth's surface. About 500 pieces — half weighing over 10 pounds with the biggest about 5,000 pounds — will shower an area 3,000 miles to 4,000 miles long and about 50 to 100 miles wide, according to Edwards.

He said the pieces of debris are expected to land about eight to 10 miles apart, and it's hoped they'll strike water, which makes up about three quarters of the Earth's surface.

And if they don't?

"The probability of a single casualty is one in 150," figures Kaplan. "It's expected to crash somewhere between the 50th parallels where 95 percent of the world's population is located. Moscow is the only major capital in the world that's not in its path."

Edwards, too, says it's possible the predicted re-entry will be across a densely-populated area, perhaps Europe. He concedes there are recognized hazards. But he says NASA doesn't think they're very great.

According to both men, scientists originally expected the spacecraft to remain aloft into the 1980s. By that time, scientists figured, refinements in the space shuttle program would make it possible to boost it up to a higher orbit where it could enjoy extended life.

Instead, according to Edwards, "solar activity, known as sun spots, was more active than expected, causing the atmosphere to rise up further. This in turn made more drag, speeding up Skylab's decay."

Kaplan, a private pilot, spends his nights with three assistants trying to better understand the spacecraft's behavior as it orbits the earth 190 statute miles away — it's lifespan on each trip being shortened by the ever-increasing atmospheric drag.

Most of the time, he says, is spent modeling the dynamics and motion of Skylab through computer simulations. He's also working on a computer-generated animation of its motion — "like a Walt Disney cartoon to demonstrate what we think is happening up there."

Some 1,000 miles away, scientists at NASA's Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., also are studying the spacecraft as it logs the final laps of its fatal journey.

"We're still in the midst of developing the whole scheme of things," reports Herman Thomason, director of the center's systems analysis and integration laboratory. "We have quite a ways to go yet."

Each week, the North American Air Defense Command provides NASA with the latest Skylab fixes and with updated predictions on when it will come down.

The 83-foot-long space station orbits the Earth 16 times daily, passing over both heavily and sparsely populated areas.

JACKASS CLOVER — Spectacle Pod is the only species of Wislizenia that grows in Texas. The genus is refracta and it is in the Cappareae Family. This species covers the sandy soil in Howard County. The seed pod resembles a pair of spectacles, thus the name Spectacle Pod. The jackass with its well-known lack of taste finds the ill-smelling foliage palatable, so some areas call this species "Jackass Clover."

Two speakers praised

By Bill Albright

Executive Vice President,
Big Spring Area Ch. of Commerce
Industrial Growth and Development

It was a real pleasure this last week to hear one of our young people speak to a very important issue. And he spoke with conviction and authority. The occasion was the monthly Ag Breakfast. The speaker was Van Gaskins of the Knott 4H and a student at Sands High School.

Van will be competing at Alpine and will use as his topic, an editorial taken from the February 15 issue of Texas Farm & Ranch Journal. I want to share with you excerpts from that article concerning the American farmer.

"The farmer of America, just who is he? He is a passive, God-fearing stable person and at one time was looked upon as a pillar of our free society. In an effort to survive in the sea of intolerance, indecision, and governmental tyranny of the last 30 years, he has become the most effective producer the world has ever known."

He is the single most important person in your life. He and his 3 million counterparts feed you — and you and 217 million other Americans, plus about 1 percent of the balance of the world. His survival should be your greatest concern. Without him, you will starve."

He cannot draw unemployment compensation. If he qualified for food stamps or welfare, there would be no food. Last year he provided 28 billion dollars worth of exports. Never have so few provided so much.

Secretary Bergland says that the protesting farmers in Washington came from a small area of West Texas and Nebraska, which is underlaid by the Ogallala Underground Water Formation; an area with high energy costs. He went on that this was a local problem, not a national problem, that was dramatized by a handful of farmers seeking publicity; victims of bad judgement in investments and plain old fashioned greed.

Just so the record is set straight, that local problem Beland refers to is a 102 county area located around Lubbock. In 1978, this area produced 26 percent of the total farm income in the U.S.

The area is the largest producer of beef cattle in America. It is an important hog and vegetable and grain area. Yes, it has problems with high energy costs as does every other area in our country.

He has been a patient, stable, reliable producing member of our society. Do not forget the first law of nature; survival. If you are to survive — so must he survive."

Van did an excellent job with a very important subject and we wish him good luck in his endeavors.

I was privileged to hear another talk on Friday when Representative Charles Stenholm addressed the Free Enterprise Seminar held at the Coliseum.

Congressman Stenholm pointed out that the Congress is trying to satisfy the American people with the kinds of legislation that we have asked for. Of course, it can not always be just like we want it and most often the legislation will reflect the view point of the majority of the American Voters.

He expressed his support of "Sunset Laws" which will reduce the undue perpetuation of unneeded agencies, regulations and controls.

Mr. Stenholm noted that there appears to be a trend for so me of our less conservative law makers to be shifting more to our West Texas, approach to solving problems. He was also positive in his praise of the Free Enterprise system and its impact on the prosperity of our American economic well being. He cautioned that we must protect it, nourish it and strengthen it.

I was very impressed with his positive attitude and his optimism and speaking for the community, we appreciated his presence and his contribution.
