Envoy, 2 others feared kidnaped

Robert O. Waring

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — American Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr. disappeared today while crossing the dangerous front line between Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors and was feared kidnaped, the U.S. Embassy reported.

Meloy, who arrived in this war-torn city last month, was on his way for his first meeting with President-elect Elias Sarkis in the Christian-held Hasmiyeh district. He left the seaside U.S. Embassy in the Moslem sector of Beirut in his bulletproof Chevrolet.

Embassy spokesman Christofer Ross said he was escorted part of the way by an embassy guard car. But the car left him and economic attache Robert O. Waring with embassy chauffeur Zoheir Moghbrabi to continue the crossing in the ambassador's car.

Unconfirmed reports said Meloy, Waring and the driver were kidnaped by two armed gunmen. The embassy refused to comment except to confirm Meloy and the two others were missing.

Several persons have been kidnaped, robbed and set free in the area in recent days. The Moslem side of the area is held by several Palestinian and Lebanese militias and groups of the Palestine Liberation Army.

On the Christian side are gunmen from the Phalangist and National Liberal party's Tiger militia. Militias on both sides reportedly were participating in the search for the missing ambassador.

Meloy was to see Sarkis at 11 a.m. — 3 a.m. CDT — the embassy said. Lebanese journalists quoted officials in Sarkis' entourage saying the presidentelect telephoned the embassy to inquire about Meloy's whereabouts three hours after he was scheduled to arrive.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman confirmed that Meloy and Waring "have been missing since late Wednesday morning ...

"The two men were traveling by car to make an appointment with President-elect Sarkis but failed to reach their destination. We are making every effort to locate the two men and are in touch with governments in the area."

White House spokesman John Carlson confirmed that the embassy learned of Meloy's disappearance after a call from Sarkis. Carlson said the United States would "do everything possible" and make contacts through diplomatic channels in an attempt to locate Meloy.

Carlson said the wife of Meloy's chauffeuer received a telephone call that the chauffeur had been kidnaped.

President Ford learned of Meloy's disappearance from his national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, shortly after 7 a.m. CDT, after the embassy in Beirut called Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Scowcroft.

Asked about unconfirmed reports that U.S. troops and planes were gathering at a British base on Cyprus, Carlson said he knew nothing about it. Defense officials said there are no U.S. troops on Cyprus.

The Defense officials said there are several C130 transport planes and a small number of ground crewmen on Cyprus.

Carlson said that a U.S. aircraft carrier, with a contingent of combat-ready Marines aboard, has been within a day's sailing distance of Lebanon throughout the crisis there. Carlson said the ship had been kept in the area for possible use in the evacuation of Americans from that country.

Meloy is a 59-year-old career diplomat who just finished a two-year stint as ambassador to Guatemala. His admirers view him as a man who can handle any situation.

Meloy was born in Washington, D.C., on March 28, 1917, and joined the foreign service at age 29.

Houston storm causes 3 deaths

HOUSTON (AP) — Additional rain fell today after cloudbursts Tuesday caused at least one death, disrupted medical facilities and flooded numerous buildings, homes, streets and freeways.

Two persons also died in storm-related traffic collisions.

The Tuesday rain ranged from 7.48 to 12.80 inches and knocked out normal electrical power at hospitals in the Texas Medical Center, one of the nation's largest.

Most of the hospitals, including Methodist, St. Luke's, and M.D. Anderson, were accepting only extreme emergency cases today. There was no evacuation of patients, however.

Practically all freeways were shutdown by flooded sections and stalled vehicles during the peak traffic period late Tuesday afternoon. Most were open today but hundreds of motorists who were forced to abandon their vehicles Tuesday were having difficulty finding them today. Some literally had floated away and dozens of others were towed out of the traffic patterns by police wreckers.

The area most seriously affected extended from South Main near the medical center and the Astrodome eastward toward Pasadena and Interstate 10 East.

Civil defense officials said they were continuing to receive evacuation requests but on an isolated basis.

Houston public schools closed all summer classes for the day and officials of HouTran, the city's bus system, reported routes of at least six east and south side lines were having to be cut short because of flooded underpasses or streets.

Hermann Hospital in the medical center radioed appeals for employes to report to work and promised to send trucks to assist those stranded by high water. Hermann officials also reported major damage to a multi-million dollar addition under construction.

The 12.80-inch rainfall was measured at Port Houston. An unofficial medical center area reading was 10.47 inches. The downtown weather bureau reported 7.48 inches. The Houston Intercontinental Airport on the deep north side, however, received only 1.24 inches.

Police said Patricia Wilhoite, 8, drowned when she fell in a storm sewer.

Jorge Ybarro Delgado, 18, was killed when struck by an automobile as he was attaching a tow chain to his stalled car. Police said an unidentified man was also killed when a car struck his stalled tractor-trailer truck.

High water around the Astrodome forced postponement of Tuesday night's Houston Astros-Pittsburgh Pirates baseball game. It was the first postponement of a sporting event because of weather in the 11-year history of the domed structure.

Police said they received reports of water lapping into about 100 homes around the city. Rescue boats were put into use in several areas by the county marine division.

Civil defense workers, marine division units and volunteers evacuated the Pleasantville area off Interstate 10 east of downtown with boats and helicopters. Refugee shelters were set up. Water in the Pleasantville area averaged three to five feet and was over the tops of some cars for a time.

A number of public buildings had water in their basements, including hospitals in the medical center.

Methodist Hospital in the center was the worst hit of any patient care facility.

Most power was cut off at Methodist for at least three hours due to more

Midland schools ordered to submit plans

By LUANNA CROW

A federal district court has ordered the Midland Independent School District to submit "alternate methods of achieving desegregation" for five of the city's elementary schools.

The order, received Tuesday by MISD attorney Thornton Hardie Jr., came as a disappointment to school district officials who have officially opposed submitting plans prior to a court hearing.

The court order's inclusion of Washington, De Zavala, Crockett, Milam and Pease elementary schools also is contrary to the desires of MISD officials who contend the latter three schools should not be involved in a court-ordered desegregation suit.

Copies of the order were to presented to school trustees this afternoon during a special session called to handle transfer requests.

Dr. James H. Mailey, school superintendent, said he is "disappointed that they (officials of the U.S. District Court for the Western District of Texas, Midland-Odessa Division) saw fit to include three additional schools beyond Washington and De Zavala, even after their (the Justice Department's) disclaiming in their brief to the Supreme Court that those schools were not included."

The order states, however, its entry "does not indicate that the court has determined the issues on remand, but rather only that the court desires that available options be before the court to assist in determining whether supplemental relief should be granted."

"We will study the order carefully," Hardie said, "and, of course, comply with it.

He added, however, the school board had "hoped we'd have a hearing (before submitting plans) and the court would recognize there are only two schools involved. We still hope for that."

Looking ahead to formulation of alternate plans, Hardie said, "Foremost in our plan, we'll have quality education in all schools and, at the same time, try to prevent massive busing and the attendant expenses involved in such a program."

The case was remanded to the district court last August by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans with instructions to "dismantle the dual system" of education in Midland elementary schools.

The opinion labeled all five schools "racially identifiable" but did not specifically call for the desegregation of Milam, Pease and Crockett. Prior to the August 1975 remand, only Washington and De Zavala had been named in court action.

The school district later made an unsuccessful attempt to be heard by the Supreme Court. A major contention in the MISD's brief filed in the nation's high court was that the three schools in question are racially identifiable only because of the changing racial composition of the involved neighborhoods.

The replying brief, filed by Justice Department attorneys, stated, "Nothing in the court's opinion or judgement requires the school board to correct racial imbalance where that imbalance is not the result of intentional segregation."

The Justice Department reversed its position last month when it filed a motion with the district court to "effectuate" the appellate court's remand.

The court order received Tuesday orders the alternate plans be filed by July 21. A hearing date was not set.

The order requires the school district to consider four methods of desegregating the five listed:

— Redrawing existing attendance zones "so as to maximize desegregation,"

— Pairing and-or clustering contiguous school zones,

— Pairing and-or clustering non-contiguous zones, and

— Relocating portable classrooms as a means of achieving desegregation and planning how future construction could be used to further the aim.

The court further instructs the MISD to include, for each set of alternatives, information such as projections of ethnic break down, building capacity, the number of students by race and grade who would be bused to school and the estimated cost of that busing.

The instructions demand the school district to present alternate plans "regardless of whether the (school) board considers the alternative legally required, feasible or desirable."

However, the order does give the Panel OKs oil firm break-up bill

By ROBERT A. ROSENBLATT
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A closely divided Senate Judiciary Committee Tuesday approved a bill that would split apart the country's 18 largest oil companies.

The oil industry suffered its defeat when Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), and Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr. (R-Md.) joined a group of Democrats to provide the winning margin in an 8 to 7 vote.

Scott, Mathias and Sen. Robert Byrd (D-W.Va.) oppose the break-up legislation, but said they voted for the bill to put the issue before the full Senate.

The bill would set a five-year time limit for the break-up of major integrated companies. These firms drill for oil, refine the crude petroleum into gasoline and other products, and market the fuels under their own brand names. Under the bill approved Tuesday, a company would be forced to choose one segment of the business: production-exploration, pipeline transportation, or refining-marketing.

The firms affected by the bill include Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil Co. of California, Mobil, Gulf, Atlantic Richfield and Union Oil Co. of California.

No date has been set for full Senate consideration of the legislation, but debate on the controversial issue probably won't start until after next months Democratic National convention.

In considering the bill, the Senate will be deciding the future of companies with assets exceeding $140 billion. The biggest legislative precedent is the 1935 Public Utility Holding Company Act, which forced power companies to divest assets worth $17 billion.

The committee's close vote on the bill, which is firmly opposed by the Ford Administration, reflected the uncertainty of several Senators about a measure with unknown economic consequences.

Declaring himself impressed with the "eloquent arguments on both sides," Mathias offered a substitute measure that would prohibit discriminatory pricing by integrated oil companies, establish uniform accounting procedures for the industry and require special public reports on all oil company financial activities.

Supporters of divestiture called the Mathias proposal too weak, the opponents called it too strong, and supported only by its author and Byrd.

The Committee-approved bill was sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh (D-Ind.). Also voting for it were Sens. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass.), Philip Hart (D-Mich.), James Abourezk (D-S.Dak.), Mathias and Scott.

Byrd, who actually opposed the bill, said he voted to get it out of committee "to give the Senate a chance to work its will." Agreeing with him was Scott who opposed a divestiture proposal that won 45 votes in the Senate last year. He has been embarrassed by disclosures of campaign donations from Gulf Oil Corp.

Mathias, who believes that breaking up the oil companies is a poor approach to solving the energy supply problem, said he will press his substitute legislation on the Senate floor. "My idea might grow on you," he told his committee colleagues.

Voting against the bill were Sens.

Insurance woes may halt swine flu shot program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials say the program to give swine flu shots to 215 million Americans this year might not get off the ground because of legal complications facing the vaccine manufacturers.

A threshold problem is how the four vaccine producers would insure themselves against legal claims arising from the $135-million vaccination program, the largest mass immunization program in terms of numbers of persons and speed.

Parke, Davis & Co., the nation's biggest flu-vaccine producer, gave notice Tuesday that its swine flu liability insurance was being canceled. The company, which represents about 50 per cent of U.S. fluvaccine production capacity, asked the government for reimbursements for any liability claims made by persons who might allege they were hurt by the vaccine.

Spokesmen for two other vaccine producers, Wyeth Laboratories of Philadelphia and Merck Sharp & Dohme of Rahway, N.J., said Tuesday they have not been able to obtain adequate insurance and that prospects for the manufacture of the vaccine remain uncertain.

The fourth vaccine producer, Merrell-National Laboratories, earlier had threatened to pull out of the program unless the government agrees to indemnify the firm for any damages in connection with the vaccine.

Parke-Davis did not explain why its swine-flu liability was being canceled and would not identify its insurance carrier. Industry sources said insurance companies could not estimate their actuarial risks because a mass immunization of this size has never before been attempted.

The statements by the three producers Tuesday were regarded by federal health officials as the most serious setback yet to face the effort to give most Americans a shot in the arm this year.

Referring to Parke-Davis, Dr. Delano Meriwether, director of the National Influenza Immunization

(Earlier Story, Page 10C)

Program, said, "For them to be forced out of product on would make it very hard to implement the program."

If the newest problem can't be worked out, he added, "then things may slowly come to a screeching halt."

E. Burke Giblin, chairman of Warner-Lambert Co., the parent of Parke-Davis, wrote President Ford, congressional health leaders and Public Health Service officials that Parke-Davis faced "an impossible situation" by losing its insurance coverage for swine flu vaccine production on July 1.

In asking the government to replace that liability coverage, Giblin said such a large-scale program made it "highly improbable" that standard vaccination safeguards could be followed in all instances.

"As a result less than full protection from illness, greater side effects than anticipated or even a subsequent unrelated illness may be considered in the minds of some as a basis for a liability suit against the company," he said.

"Such suits would be extremly costly even if successfully defended and could have uncertain outcomes for years."

In a private letter to HEW officias, Giblin suggested the company would be encouraged by a carefully worded opinion from the U.S. attorney general, absolving vaccine manufacturers of liability for injuries over which they had no control.

Public Health Service officials said they plan to ask Congress to approve an indemnification program.

Meriwether said that in addition to congressional resistance to such a request there was a question about whether the government should "protect these multi-billion dollar corporations" without offering the same protection for doctors, nurses and other health volunteers who also would be potentially liable for administering the vaccine.

Some HEW officials are doubtful an indemnification bill could pass, mindful of the Senate Appropriations Committee report last April directing that "the various governmental units shall be free from liability in terms of the vaccine" and that "the drug producers should remain responsible for the vaccine, its quality and any adverse reactions directly attributable to the vaccine."

Meanwhile, critics of the vaccination program are questioning the wisdom of giving flu shots against a disease that has not been seen since a brief appearance confined to Ft. Dix, N.J., early this year.

While these questions are being debated, the government is going ahead with its plans in the hope that the problems will be ironed out.

Results of experimental vaccinations on about 5,000 men, women and children will be presented to an open meeting of government scientists June 21 and that information will be presented the next day to the federal Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices.

Out of that session will likely come the recommendation for proper dosage of vaccine against swine flu, more properly called A-New Jersey-76, for most adults, and a combination vaccine against A-New Jersey and A-Victoria flu strains for the elderly and persons suffering from serious heart, lung, kidney diseases and diabetes.

The government plans to buy all the swine flu vaccine that the U.S. companies can produce and to distribute it to state health departments which, in turn, will be responsible for getting the vaccine to public immunization clinics and private doctors.

The vaccine will be free to recipients. Private physicians may charge for giving the shots in their offices, however.

Meanwhile, the Advertising Council Inc. on June 10 unanimously approved the government's $150,000 public service advertising campaign to inform Americans through television radio, newpapers and magazines about the importance of swine flu shots and how and where to get one.

The flu vaccine is made from so-called killed viruses, which have been fragmented by chemicals and cannot give anyone flu itself. There have been only two deaths from flu vaccine and none since 1946, as vaccines became more refined.

Houston chemical may be crowd control agent CS

HOUSTON (AP) — A chemical that sent 20 people to a hospital Saturday after being discarded in a vacant lot probably was a crowd control agent known to the military as "CS," authorities said Tuesday.

"We're 99 per cent sure it was orthochlorobenzylidrene malonitrile, or what the Army refers to as 'CS,' " said Dr. Ralph Coleman of Westside General Hospital.

Coleman said the effects of the chemical are generally temporary and that none of the 20 persons hospitalized was in serious condition.

"It's more potent than tear gas, but far less dangerous than cyanide gas," Coleman said. Symptoms of both "CS" and cyanide gas include a burning sensation, difficulty in breathing, swelling and nausea. Coleman also said some of the 20 experienced "transitory cardiac conditions."

"We talked to several military agencies and civilian chemical companies," Coleman said. "We still have no idea where the chemical came from."

Harris County Sheriff Jack Heard said Houston area law enforcement agencies do not keep stores of the chemical.

Civil defense officials asked residents within a mile of the area where the chemical was exposed in the suburb of Alief to check with their family physicians.

Gary Stevenson and his father, R.K. Stevnson, stumbled into the chemical when they were clearing an empty lot near their home.

"Gary was on a tractor mowing the lot and the tractor broke this little jar," the elder Stevenson said from his hospital bed Tuesday. "There was this yellowish powder and dust, and within seconds Gary's nose started burning and his face began to swell. He said he couldn't breathe. I tried to help him and then I got this burning sensation on my face and nose too. It felt like 100 bees had stung me."

Credentials committee to meet

HOUSTON (AP) — A temporary credentials committee meets today to kick off four days of activities for the state Democratic convention.

Forces of Jimmy Carter are expected to dominate the convention although the front runner for the Democratic presidential nomination has cancelled an appearance at a Thursday night fund-raising dinner preceding the convention.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe announced Tuesday in Austin that Carter cancelled because he is on his first vacation since starting his campaign 18 months ago.

The $25 to $250 box lunch dinner is to honor Robert Strauss, the Dallas lawyer who is chairman of the National Democratic Committee.

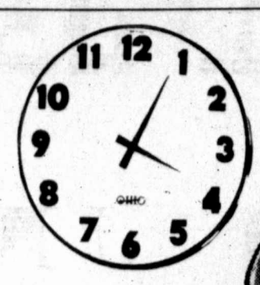

Scheduled to appear at the dinner are California Gov. Jerry Brown Jr. and Sens. Lloyd Bentsen, Frank Church, Hubert Humphrey, Edward Kennedy and Rep. Morris Udall.

Carter already has at least 92 Texas delegates pledged to his nomination and is expected to claim a majority of the additional delegates to be selected Saturday.

State convention delegates are to indicate their presidential preferences Friday night when they check in for the opening convention session.

The 32 delegates and 70 alternates then will be apportioned in accordance with results

Noncontroversial platform gets panel's okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jimmy Carter wanted a noncontroversial campaign program that would offend neither the left nor right in the Democratic party, and the party's platform committee has given it to him.

If Carter wins his party's nomination for President in July, as expected, he'll run on a platform that should go a long way toward uniting his party behind him. There was so little disagreement in two day's of meetings that ended Tuesday that the platform panel adjourned a day early.

"It's the first time in 16 years that the Democratic party has been so united," said a jubilant Stuart Eizenstat, the Atlanta attorney who was Carter's top representative on the committee.

He said there was nothing in the 89-page platform that Carter couldn't support. But he quickly added, "This is a Democratic party document, not a Jimmy Carter document."

The key features of the platform are support for a national health insurance program, minimum income guarantees for all poor Americans, a program for full employment in three years and a strong national defense while also pursuing detente with our "traditional adversaries."

All spending programs would be phased in gradually, and only as the nation returned to full employment. If there is not a return to full employment, then the programs would not be fully implemented, party spokesmen have said.

There was no breakdown on what the individual programs would cost, but party officials have said the cost of all the programs, excluding national health insurance, would be about $30 billion.

Party spokesmen say that the cost of the national health insurance program — to be financed through a combination of an employe-employer payroll tax and general revenues — would not exceed the $130 billion now being spent on health and medical care in the United States.

The delegates approved a proposal to delay any decision on production of the controversial B1 bomber until February 1977 at the earliest, a proposal that is before the House this week.

The unity on the 153-member platform committee was never more evident than after it handed the Carter forces their only significant defeat — approval of a proposal favoring a general pardon for persons who opposed the Vietnam war.

Supporters of the general pardon, after winning the vote, followed up with an amendment that would provide that pardons for deserters be considered on a case-by-case basis. Carter forces embraced the conciliatory gesture.

The platform committee easily defeated proposals to legalize marijuana and measures advocated by gay rights groups. Platform statements on busing and abortion did not go beyond simple expressions of support for court decisions on these highly controversial issues.

Mayor John Poelker of St. Louis, an uncommitted member, said the Carter supporters brought pressures on delegates to influence key votes, but he added that most delegates appeared willing to cooperate, not wanting another election-day debacle like that of 1972.

Dallas couple found murdered

DALLAS (AP) — The bound bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Locklear were found Tuesday in their home in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas. Officers said they had been beaten and stabbed to death.

The Locklears' two children, a 3-year-old boy and a 2-yearold girl, were found unharmed. Locklear was 36 and his wife Hazel was 28.

Police said the boy apparently is mute. They talked with the girl.

Authorities were summoned to the house by neighbors who were worried because they had not seen members of the Locklear family since Saturday.

The Dallas County medical examiner said Mrs. Locklear had been stabbed 10 times in the chest. Her husband was stabbed four times.

An autopsy indicated Locklear had been beaten with a BB gun, found at the scene bent out of shape with the stock shattered.

"The couple was found individually tied, with their hands and feet bound, on the floor of their living room," officer W.R. Temple said.

"They could have been dead several days and at this time we don't know what happened. It appears some kind of struggle took place," said Detective Sgt. Gus Rose.

Police have no clear motive for the slayings, Rose said. There were no signs of forced entry into the house.

The children were taken to the county juvenile home.

Locklear had been disabled by a lung illness. The family received welfare payments.

Siamese twins surgery unlikely

HOUSTON (AP) — A medical source at Texas Children's Hospital said Tuesday night that surgical separation to save both 12-day old Siamese twins from Kansas "seems virtually impossible."

Tests completed since Craig and Greg Bongiorni arrived here last week showed each twin has an arota but only one atrium for a total of seven chambers of their cojoined hearts.

The aorta is the main truck artery which receives blood from the lower left chamber of the heart and the atrium is the other upper chamber. Left and right ventricles are the other two normal lower units of the normal four-chambered heart.

Other tests to determine the degree of cojoinment of the boys' livers and other internal organs were proceedings at the hospital.

Apparently a key question facing Houston specialists asked to study the twins, who were born June 4 in Fredonia, Kan., is whether they think one of the boys might have a chance to live if surgery is done to give one child four heart chambers.

Women help each other to reach top in business

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

The business world has been a special enigma for women — so easy to get into as a clerk or secretary or bookkeeper, so difficult to get beyond that point.

We do see encouraging signs of change. The Future Business Leaders of America elected a young woman student as it's president last year. The Western States Advertising Agency Association changed its Man of the Year Award to Advertising Award of the Year, and gave the honor to two women executives.

Even so, the females entering the business field report back with many of the familiar complaints.

They say affirmitive action isn't enforced, and management training positions are still difficult to get.

Slow as it may be, we are making progress, and now that the change has begun, it's essential to keep it happening.

In a February, 1976, Glamour magazine editorial, suggestions were offered on ways in which women could help women (including themselves). Those relating to the workingwoman seemed especially helpful and worth repeating.

They say that if you hear of a job opening, suggest a qualified woman. If you hear of such opportunities regularly, keep a list of capable women on hand to recommend.

Glamour editors advise that you meet with other ladies in your business or profession to discuss and implement ways to improve the workingwoman's lot.

If you're a working mother, be helpful, cooperative and sympathetic with other working mothers. I would also suggest that you post names and addresses of good day care centers, and spread the word about poor ones. Consider forming a child care co-op with your associates.

Women in management, suggest Glamour editors, have a special opportunity to help other women. They can more effectively work for flexible office hours, and for the hiring and promotion of qualified women. They can watch for talented women and give them a break.

Most women in business have experienced jealousy and discrimination from another female, and I believe that is a result of the great difficulty these women have had in achieving a responsible position. When the worker finally got somewhere, she felt compelled to protect her good job.

Hopefully, when women find it possible to work for and keep good jobs on merit, they won't feel so dreadfully insecure.

THE WINE DRINKER

Mosel and summer seem to go together

By TOM GABLE
Copley News Service

WOMEN'S NEWS

There is something very special about a sunny summer day and a glass of Mosel wine.

It is made from the Johannisberg (white) Riseling grape, for the most part, and has a delicate, fruity quality that seems to be at its best with mild cheeses, fruit and bread — all the right ingredients for relaxing on a golden afternoon or warm evening.

The first thing to appreciate about a Mosel wine is that there is even enough of it to go around.

The grapes go through such a struggle each winter on awkward slopes and hillsides we are lucky they make it through to picking, crushing, fermenting and aging before finally appearing in a glass in some part of the world other than Germany.

Purists believe a grape has to struggle to develop character and there are few places where the battle would be worse than on the steep slopes above the River Mosel. Over the centuries, the river has cut its way down through slate and rock to form a serpentine path that leaves many vineyards with the right exposure to the sun.

Because of the steepness of the slopes, each Riesling vine must be individually staked. Picking is done by hand. They have yet to invent a tractor or machine that can climb rocks and do a good job on a 45-degree slope.

It takes a little work to seek out a Mosel wine.

First, you find the tall, gracefully tapered green bottle with the German label that says "Mosel-Saar-Ruwer." The latter two are tributaries of the Mosel. The next thing to look for is a familiar name of a village.

The most familiar town names are Bernkastel, Piesport, Trittenhiem, Wehlen and Zell-Merl. Wines from these areas are labeled with the name of the town and the vineyard. A few excellent examples to look for would be Trittenheimer Altrachen, Piesporter Goldtropfchen, Wehlener Sonnenuhr, Bernkasteler Doktor and Graccher Himmelreich. These names on a label mean quality wine inside, wine that is so good during the best vintages that one has to fight for enough adjectives to adequately describe their depth, balance and style.

The best wines of the Mosel, and all of Germany, are categorized and certified by minimum legal requirements. Knowing this little bit extra can help in your search.

"Qualitatiswein mit Pradikat" is the highest class of wines. It means wines with special attributes and is further divided into five more categories according to sugar content, alcoholic content and other considerations. From lowest to highest category, the Pradikat wines will have one of the following on the label:

Kabinett — These are quality wines by any measure, although the lesser vineyards have a far worse time of it in off-vintages than the better vineyards because of the nature of the slopes and climate.

Spatlese — This means wine made from late-picked, fully ripe grapes. Its natural sugar content is higher than that of a Kabinett.

Auslese — These wines are made from specially selected late harvest grapes and are still higher on the natural fruit and sugar scale.

Beerenauslese — Individual berries, or grapes, are selected for their ripeness.

Auxiliary party held

The Permian Basin Geological and Geophysical Auxiliary had a backyard couples' party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Blackman, 3201 Sentinel St.

Spanish moss from New Orleans hung from the trees to emphasize the "Sunset Down South" theme of the party. Hurricane lamps and hanging baskets decorated the yard and patio area. One-hundred and 54 members and guests attended.

Co-chairmen for the party were Mrs. C. Newton Page and Mrs. Wayne Woodside. Hostesses were Mrs. Charles Cary, Mrs. Bill Collins, Mrs. James L. Harben, Mrs. B. C. Largent, Mrs. Clement Roberts, Mrs. Lawrence Seright and Mrs. W. J. Vaughn.

The membership prize was won by Mrs. Wallace L. Saultz.

The next meeting will be a card party in July.

Women eligible for membership may obtain information about the auxiliary by contacting Mrs. A. E. Simmons, 682-7040, or Mrs. Clyde Pine, 683-3016, membership chairmen.

Mr. and Mrs. William Blackman, right, were host couple to a backyard party for the Permian Basin Geological and Geophysical Auxiliary. Mr. and Mrs. C. Newton Page are at left. Mrs. Page was one of the co-chairmen for the party.

HOROSCOPE

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(Thurs., June 17)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you may feel you have been treated badly by certain people, but such an attitude is untrue. If you continue this viewpoint you are likely to lose out where it means the most to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to important duties ahead of you instead of running off on some tangent that could lead to unexpected trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It is best to rely on your own resources today since a friend could disappoint you now. Show loyalty to trusted friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure not to jeopardize your good reputation in the community where you live. Don't neglect an important credit matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Trying to escape from a responsibility you have assumed could turn one in power against you. Avoid one who gossips.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some associates may laugh at your ideas now, but pay no attention, since you have the right slant on things. Remain steadfast.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Taking the treatments that will improve your health is wise today. Use extreme caution in motion today. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to duties awaiting you and handle them most efficiently. Sidestep a plan that a co-worker has in mind at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to be forceful with others at this time. Show increased devotion to loved one. Take needed health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Control your temper at home or there could be trouble ensuing. Forget all those devious angles you have been working on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Exercise real care in motion everywhere you go today and avoid possible accident. Strive harmony with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit others to pressure you into spending too much money. Make long-range plans for future. Be Logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do something constructive about a problem you have instead of avoiding it. Show others that you are an excellent citizen.

Demand rejected

GRASSE, France (AP) — A French civil court Tuesday rejected a demand by Pablo Picasso's 24-year-old granddaughter, Marina, that the executor of the painter's billiondollar estate be replaced.

Rejection of her motion cleared away one hurdle in the legal infighting over the Picasso estate, but still left Marina and each of the other five heirs veto power over any settlement.

Roland Dumas, attorney for Picasso's widow, Jacqueline, told the Grasse court that Marina was "blackmailing" the other heirs by systematic recourse to procedural delaying tactics."

Sources close to Jacqueline said they suspected Marina of obstructing a settlement in revenge for the death of her brother, Pablito, who committed suicide by swallowing bleaching fluid shortly after Picasso died in 1973. A widely accepted reason for Pablito's act was that he was refused access to the Picasso estate near Mougins to see his grandfather's body.

Volunteers met

The Midland Volunteers to the Big Spring State Hospital met in Christ Presbyterian Church for a business session.

Jean Smith, chairman, presided. Mrs. Ila Kory was the hostess.

The volunteers were hostesses to a recent picnic held at the Big Spring City Park for patients. Food for the Picnic was prepared by the volunteers.

Wedding anniversary observed

The 35th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde B. Payne was celebrated at their home with a backyard barbecue.

Hosting the event were children of the couple and their spouses. They are Mr. and Mrs. Billy Spears and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Payne.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Myron G. Dickson, who served as honor attendants for the couple at their wedding. Out-of-city guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dickson of El Paso and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Payne of Fort Worth.

Alexander fights to keep IRS honest

By JOHN M. GOSHKO
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — "People whose tax returns are singled out for auditing always believe they're being picked on for some special reason," says Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander. "Our job is to make sure that their suspicions are unfounded."

That assessment came during an interview in which Alexander discussed the damage done to IRS' reputation in recent years by allegations that private tax information had been misused.

In the wake of the Watergate investigation, IRS became the target of charges that it aided agencies like the FBI to harass political dissidents, allowed the information on tax returns to be used for partisan purposes and assisted the Nixon administration's efforts to intimidate its "enemies" through tax audits while soft-pedaling investigations of its "friends."

Most of these allegations including those involving the White House "enemies" and "friends" lists, remain unproven. But the suspicion that they triggered about the agency's impartiality continues to cast a shadow over IRS.

That's why Alexander, who became commissioner in 1973, tirelessly bombards IRS employees with reminders of "how damaging these imprudent actions were to the Internal Revenue Service." Basically, his message consists of two themes:

—The tax laws and powers are not to be used for political purposes.

—Only legal means are to be used in the enforcement of these laws.

"When law enforcement becomes a violator, it is both lawless and ineffective," Alexander is fond of saying. "Using illegal means is not just immoral; it's also self-defeating, because it's going to get your case thrown out of court."

Alexander's biggest personal difficulty at IRS resulted from his effort to restrict the agency's involvement in investigations not directly related to tax collecting. After months of controversy, the Justice Department in April cleared him of charges that he improperly halted an inquiry, code-named "Project Haven," into tax shelters in the Bahamas.

His critics contended that Alexander's intervention had scuttled a potentially major criminal investigation. The incident has been a factor in straining relations between the IRS and other federal law enforcement agencies.

Alexander's supporters say he stepped in because the probe was gettig into areas that violated his strictures about relevance to tax matters and respect for civil liberties. That, they add, led disgruntled IRS agents who want to be more free-wheeling in their choice of targets and investigative techniques to try to discredit the Commissioner by implying he was involved in a cover-up.

"I think that by now everyone who works here has the message," Alexander said in the interview. "We were just not going to get into questionable practices or areas where we don't belong."

Where IRS does belong, in Alexander's view, is "making sure that no one has a free pass when it comes to paying his proper taxes." That, he said should be the only reason for auditing anyone's tax returns.

"Most of our selections of whom to audit are computer generated," he added. "It's the most objective and effective way when you have a very large mass of taxpayers and a small audit coverage. And our computer system is geared to emphasize the highest amounts. We audit more than 10 times as many individuals with incomes of $50,000 and up as we do those of $10,000 or below."

What he means is that the returns isolated most frequently by the computers are what IRS officials call "automatics" — persons who report high incomes or who are involved in complex financial transactions that IRS feels should be scrutinized carefully.

Although some persons on the "enemies" list were audited, the sources insist that it was due not to political interference but to the fact that their financial situations put them in the category where the computers would flag them for further scrutiny.

In addition to the automatic categories, Alexander said, individuals can be singled out for audit for other reasons. These include persons who have a financial relationship to someone tabbed by the computers for auditing, individuals about whom the IRS has received special information relating to law enforcement and persons who are being considered for appointment to certain government posts.

But he insisted, at no time during his tenure at IRS has anyone been audited because of political beliefs or activities. In this respect, he pointed out that one of his first acts as commissioner was to abolish the Special Services Staff, a clandestine unit that had been set up within IRS in 1969 to keep tabs on the tax status of alleged radicals.

The SSS, as it was known within the agency, amassed files on approximately 8,500 individuals and 3,000 groups. There have been charges that it worked with the FBI to harass civil rights workers in the South and persons involved in the antiwar movement.

"I was sworn in on May 30, 1973, and I abolished the SSS on Aug. 17," Alexander recalled. "The only reason I waited that long was that it took me that much time to become aware of what they were doing."

Alexander is a strong advocate of restricting the access of other government agencies to tax returns and other confidential information in the hands of IRS. But, he noted, existing laws give relatively easy access by the White House, other federal agencies, certain congressional committees and state governments.

"We've instructed our people to be very strict about ensuring that agencies requesting access have valid reasons and follow all the prescribed procedures," he said, "but present law simply doesn't cover the problem in a way that's proof against abuse. That's particularly true of supplemental information provided by a taxpayer that should be just as confidential as what's on the return itself."

The answer, he believes, lies in new legislation. Specifically, Alexander would like to see Congress enact some IRS originated proposals that have been incorporated by the Senate Finance Committee into its version of a still pending tax bill.

These provisions would specify more clearly than is presently the case what agencies can have access to IRS files and for what reasons. They also would make some categories of taxpayers supplied information, such as data sought for criminal investigations of a non-tax nature, so restricted that access to it could be obtained only by a court order.

While waiting for Congress to act, Alexander has taken a number of other steps to insulate IRS from outside political interference. All IRS personnel, for example, have been instructed that any requests from the White House for confidential information must be referred immediately to the commissioner's office.

In an even more far-reaching step, the IRS is preparing a policy of making public all "contacts made by federal departments and agencies and members of Congress regarding matters pending before the service."

"All these safeguards are working well right now, because we're under an administration that believes they're needed," Alexander said. "There has not been a single request from President Ford or anyone in his White House for confidential information, and I cannot conceive that they will ever make such a request."

"Still," he added, "the fact remains that we are doing these things by means of administrative regulations that could be wiped out at any time by a future commissioner or a future President.

"That's why we need legislation," Alexander said.

Committee OKs break-up bill

John McClellan (D-Ark.), Quentin Burdick (D-N.Dak.), committee chairman James Eastland (D-Miss.), Roman Hruska (R-Neb.), Hiram Fong (R-Hawaii), Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.), and William Scott (R-Va.).

Bayh said his bill would create "real free enterprise, real competition in the oil industry."

"If there's one symbol of the establishment ripping off the people, it's the oil industry," he said during the brief debate preceeding the vote.

Fong responded, "What proof have we that divestiture can make the business better? This bill is based on emotion, on prejudice, not based on facts."

After the vote, Frank Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said, "There has been no explanation as to how America can produce more oil and natural gas or reduce consumer costs by chopping up efficient integrated petroleum companies and thus destroying what is recognized throughout the world as a national asset. We trust that economic wisdom will prevail when this legislation is considered by the entire Senate."

James F. Flug, director of Energy Action, a pro-divestitute group, said, "I am more confident than ever that a divestitute bill will pass this year." He invited Ikard to debate him, and suggested that oil company chief executives debate on television with Senators and other divestitute supporters.

Energy Action will ask the Federal Communications Commission for television time to respond to Texaco's commercials opposing divestitute, Flug said.

Stephen Combs' case again in local court

Efforts by convicted murderer Stephen Combs to be declared a pauper and for Midland County to take over his legal expenses were temporarily routed this morning when District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett asked attorneys to prepare briefs on the issues.

Combs, now 31, is serving a 15-year sentence in the state penitentiary for the stabbing death of his girlfriend, Vickie Berneathy, here in July 1970.

Combs said he is now paying his father, Max Combs, monthly payments toward repaying $21,000 in loans his father made to finance two jury trials and other legal expenses.

The younger Combs, a veteran of the Vietnam War, is drawing Veterans' Administration disability compensations.

Combs was convicted of the murder in June 1972 and sentenced to 25 years in prison, but Judge Pickett declared a mistrial and ordered the second trial.

Following conviction in the second trial, the younger Combs said his father, an independent landman, decided not to continue underwriting his son's legal expenses.

Combs said his father "elected not . . . to put any more money down the rathole, so to speak." Consequently, an appeal was not perfected.

The father said he could not afford another $18,000 to finance a new trial were one granted in an appeal.

Picket, however, indicated today he would not rule favorably on Combs' behalf in seeking pauper status.

"Who's going to reimburse the taxpayers of Midland County?" Pickett asked. "Who's going to repay them?"

Representing Combs in the hearing were Sally Ray and Andy Haner, staff counsel for inmates at the Texas Department of Correction.

Dist. Atty. Jim Mashburn and an assistant, Blake Hansen, presented the state's case against Combs' argument for county-paid aid in handling any appeals.

Pickett will rule on the matter after studying yet-to-be-prepared briefs.

Court asks plans on Midland schools

Mailey said the MISD's attorneys "will be exploring what legal options are open to us. At the same time, we're doing the planning that is called for."

Hardie said the order, "at first glance, leaves it wide open for the board to present several alternatives and present reasons by the board might favor one over another."

He noted the board must present "persuasive reasons" to the court in defending or opposing any given plan.

Mailey said he feels the trustees will continue to oppose the inclusion of Pease, Milam and Crockett in an integration plan. "The board has been quite clear on its desire to contest" involvement of those schools.

Midland's case is in district court for the third time since 1970 when the Justice Department, acting for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, demanded desegregation of virtually all-black Washington and virtually all-Mexican-American De Zavala.

School officials later devised a plan to desegregate Washington but was backed by the late District Judge Ernest Guinn in its contention that De Zavala is not a product of intentional segregation. A series of appeals has followed in ensuing years and elementary school attendance zones, therefore, have remained intact.

board an opportunity to state whether or not it would recommend each plan and state its reasons.

than six feet of water in the hospital's Fondren and Brown Building north of the main hospital.

Elsewhere in the center, St. Luke's Episcopal and Texas Children's Hospital complex, Hermann Hospital and Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute were all forced to use auxiliary power for varying periods. There were no reports of any patients dying because of the power failures in any of the hospitals.

Part of the ceiling in the emergency center at St. Luke's and Texas Children's collapsed. A wall in the garage between those two hospitals and Methodist also caved in but no injuries were reported.

Water was reported neck deep for a time in a sub basement of Hermann's new $35 million addition.

James Harithas, director of the Contemporary Arts Museum, predicted "catastrophic" losses of art objects as a result of what he estimated to be six to eight feet of water in the basement there at one time.

Downtown businesses suffered flooding as water standing in the streets washed through the doors.

ELAINE ROBERTS, who plans to attend the University of Texas at Austin, has been named recipient of a $300 alumni scholarship from the University of Texas Ex-Students Association. Miss Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip G. Roberts of 1003 Shirley Lane, is a Lee High School graduate.

Low temperature breaks record minimum mark

This morning's cool temperature in Midland of 53 degrees broke a record of 54 degrees set in 1933.

Area cities, however, reported warm weather this morning with temperatures ranging from 59 degrees in Andrews to 68 degrees in Stanton. Big Lake reported cool temperatures.

Andrews, Lamesa, Stanton, Rankin and Odessa reported clear skies and no wind this morning.

Tuesday's high was 81 degrees, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

The weatherman predicts partly cloudy skies today with fair weather tonight and Thursday and warm afternoons.

Temperatures tonight will not be as cool as Tuesday night, he said.

High today is predicted for the low 90s, low tonight in the upper 60s and high Thursday in the mid-90s.

Winds should be from the south at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

Nearly 13 inches of rain swamped the Houston area and lighter downpours drenched other sections of Central, East and Southwest Texas during the night and into today.

Police reported four storm-related deaths in and around Houston and water lapping into about 100 homes. Rescues by boat and helicopter were made in some neighborhoods.

Rainfall amounts ranged up to 12.80 inches at Port Houston, and unofficial measurements topped 10 inches across the south and southwest sides of Houston.

Thunderstorms which persisted this morning dumped rain at rates exceeding two inches per hour in some areas, the National Weather Service reported.

Some of the heavier storms rumbled through Southeast Texas from around Galveston and Houston past College Station, and in Southwest Texas between Eagle Pass and Hondo. Lighter storms dampened parts of North Central and Northeast Texas.

Skies were clear only in West Texas, behind a cool front blamed for the unruly weather. This morning the forward edge of the frontal system lay along a line from the northeast corner of the state across Central Texas to the Edwards Plateau.

Forecasts called for the front to ease slowly toward the southeast and trigger more showers and thunderstorms. Clear weather was promised behind it in West Texas.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 49 degrees at Dalhart in the Panhandle up to 80 at Galveston and Palacios on the coast. A low of 53 at Midland in West Texas bettered by one degree a 1933 record there for the date.

DEATHS

Littleton Rattan dies; rites set

Littleton Rattan, 82, retired Matador farmer, died Monday night in a Midland nursing home where he had lived for a month.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church of Matador, with the Rev. H. G. Verner of Petersburg officiating. Burial was to be in East Mound Cemetery, directed by Seigler Funeral Home.

Rattan, life-long resident of Motley County, was the son of a pioneer Baptist preacher, the Rev. William Hampton Rattan.

Survivors include a son, Albert Rattan of Midland; three brothers, Carroll Rattan of Folsom, Calif., Fred Rattan of Birmingham, Ala., and Ward Rattan of Matador, and three grandchildren.

JUDY GAYE JONES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Jones who reside on Route 2, has been named recipient of a $300 scholarship from the West Texas Kennel Club. Miss Jones, who plans to attend Sul Ross, is a Midland High School graduate.

Parks department to ask for funding on project

The Midland Parks and Recreation Commission Tuesday reaffirmed its desire for an additional nine holes at Hogan Park Golf Course and will urge the city council to apply for federal funds, especially revenue sharing funds, to finance the project.

Commissioners last month had approved the addition and use of federal funding. However, when the action went before the city council, emphasis was placed on applying for funds from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation.

Parks Director Robert Thomson told council during its session last week that the BOR has not funded golf courses in Texas for more than five years, so the request was sent back to the commission.

Commissioners Tuesday noted they were interested not only in BOR funds but also in community development and revenue sharing funds.

Mike Butler, the city's community development coordinator, appeared before the group and explained that CD funds go mainly for areas of low to moderate income in the city. He said about $100,000 of the $580,000 in the city's second-year CD application was set aside for park rehabilitation.

Richard Hennessy, the city's new planning director, told commissioners that revenue sharing is a more flexible program than the CD program. He said also the golf course project could be included in a CD application, but such an approach likely would be unsuccessful.

Commissioners agreed to urge council to look strongly at applying for revenue sharing funds for the project. However, the project will remain in the proposed $4.3 million bond issue for parks improvements, and if the federal funds are secured, that item will be deleted from the bond proposal.

In other action, the parks commission:

— Heard plans for the proposed downtown park from Charles Priddy and agreed to meet in special session at 3 p.m. June 29 for further discussion of park plans;

— Approved a request for use of the Showmobile Sept. 11 for Septemberfest;

— Approved a request by the Bicentennial Commission for use of the Showmobile, bleachers and the old Post Office building during the Bicentennial celebration;

— Approved a request for use of the tennis courts at Midland College for a benefit tournament; and,

— Heard progress reports from division heads in the parks department regarding the zoo, city parks and recreation.

College sanctions tax increase to finance construction bonds

BY LINDA SCHAFFRINA

Midland College trustees Tuesday approved a 10-cent tax increase following a public hearing on the school's budget of more than $4 million for the 1976-77 school year.

The addition of $17,845 to hire an instructor for a limited music program pushed the budget from the previously presented $4,069,206 to $4,087,051.

Debt service accounts for $1,072,518 of the budget and the operational budget is $3,014,523.

College president Dr. Al G. Langford called the document "a bare-bones budget" but "one I feel we can live with.

The 10-cent tax increase boosts the tax rate from 21 cents per $100 valuation (on 75 per cent of actual value) to 31 cents.

Taxes for a $30,000 house at the 31-cent rate will be $69.75, compared to $47.25 at last year's 21-cent rate.

Langford said the increase was advertised in the campaign for the construction bond issue which was approved by voters in February.

Although the meeting was a public hearing, no one from the public presented opinions on the budget.

In discussing the budget, Langford told the board the college will receive approximately $350,000 less in state funds than it will earn, based on the number of contact hours with students it will have.

Langford said the situation should be better for the 1977-78 school year because the appropriation from the legislature for that year will be based on this year's enrollment.

He said all junior colleges in the state are facing the same problems in funding because of the inadequate appropriation for the contingency fund, which is supposed to compensate junior colleges for increased enrollment.

In response to a question by one of the trustees, business manager Bob Phillips said the $10,000 item for gifts, grants and donations in the projected income for the college includes only what has actually been received.

Langford said other gifts have been promised, so the actual total will be higher.

Also at Tuesday's meeting, the board agreed to lend the Amateur Athletic Union $1,500 toward the purchase of electronic timing equipment. Langford said the college swimming team will use the equipment, which costs $7,040, about 10 per cent of the time.

Langford told the board plans for the new construction authorized in the bond issue are near completion. He said he expects a firm completion date within the next week or 10 days and he believes the board will be able to advertise for bids by the end of July.

Langford announced that eight of the planned 12 tennis courts are completed and in use by college classes and the public.

The courts are used by college classes from 7 to 8:30 a.m. and from 5 to 7 p.m. during the week. They are open to the public the remainder of the time.

In other action, the board approved the appointment of seven new faculty members.

They are Dr. Odene Forsythe, math; Dr. Timothy Green, English; Thomas G. Luce, biology; Dr. Robert Miller, English; John Pool, math; Edwin Poulter, petroleum technology, and Teresa A. Valero, physical education.

Mrs. Shirley Thompson was appointed director of library services. She is now a librarian at the college.

Trustees also approved the appointment of three divison chairmen, Dr. Robert Hollman for the division of cultural studies, Dr. Jack Schneider for the division of communication studies and Dr. Hosni Nabi for the division of scientific studies.

The position of division chairman is newly created as part of a reorganization of the faculty.

War-ravaged Lebanon quiet following blockade lift

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — No fighting was reported in Lebanon today following announcements by Arab mediators that Syria will lift its blockade of Beirut and other coastal cities and that Lebanese Christian leaders have given conditional approval to a pan-Arab peacekeeping force for their country.

For the first time in weeks, both Moslem and Christian broadcasts made no mention of any fighting anywhere in the war-ravaged country. Unconfirmed reports said the Syrian column advancing into Palestinian guerrilla country in southeast Lebanon had captured the garrison town of Marjayoun and pushed on to about three miles from the Israeli border. But there was no report of any opposition.

Libyan Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, after meetings in Damascus and Beirut, said in a broadcast Tuesday night that Syria had agreed to pull its troops back into eastern Lebanon. But he said they will remain there until the MoslemChristian civil war is settled.

Jalloud said the first stage of the Syrian withdrawal — from Sidon, 25 miles south of Beirut, and Bhamdoun, on the Beirut Damascus highway 12 miles east of Beirut — would begin "instantly."

"After the Syrian forces withdraw to the Bekaa Valley, all roads, sea and air routes will open. We will never accept the policy of starving the people," Jalloud said.

Diplomatic sources said Syrian tanks on hills overlooking Sidon were shelling food ships approaching the port, while Syrian navy ships were blockading Tyre, 26 miles south of Sidon, and Tripoli, 60 miles north of Beirut.

Beirut was blockaded by Syrian troops controlling the airport and the highways into the city. The capital's port is in the middle of the main downtown battle zone and has been closed for months.

The secretary-general of the Arab League, Mahmoud Riad, told newsmen that Lebanon's Christian president, Suleiman Franjieh, reversed his position and agreed to Arab troops from countries other than Syria after Riad "provided him with explanations and assurances on Lebanon's sovereignty and independence."

But another Christian warlord, former President Camille Chamoun, said he and Pierre Gemayel of the Christian Phalange party would accept the pan-Arab force only under certain conditions.

He did not specify the conditions, but one was believed to be that only Syrian forces would patrol Christian territory. The Christians welcomed the Syrian invasion because one of its purposes was to prevent their defeat by the Lebanese Moslems and their Palestinian allies. But they are hostile to the proposed Arab League force because it is to include troops from Libya and Algeria, which support their opponents in the civil war.

With Syrian forces reported driving into southern Lebanon and approaching the Israeli border, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin told the Israeli parliament in Jerusalem that Israel could be threatened "if Lebanon loses its independence and falls victim to the terrorist organizations and their allies, or is trampled under Syrian rule.

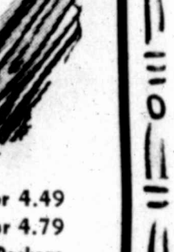

"We are following developments alertly, the army is on guard."

Letter bombs, threats continue to crop up in northeast Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — A letter bomb failed to explode at the home of a Houston oil executive Tuesday and a Dallas executive received police protection because of a threatening letter.

The incidents were not tied together by federal authorities, but the northeast part of Texas continued to gain mention as stories of letter bombs and threatening letters cropped up.

The Houston letter bomb was received at the home of U. J. LeGrange, president of Exxon Pipeline Co. It was postmarked in Texarkana, in the northeast corner of the state.

It was one of several delivered to businessmen and business offices in various cities, including Exxon Corp. headquarters in New York City. One of the letters was postmarked in Atlanta, Tex., also in the northeast part of the state.

The threatening letter received by the unnamed Dallas executive bore a Shreveport, La., postmark, a source told The Associated Press. Shreveport is just across the Louisiana border from the Northeast Texas town of Waskom.

"There was some mail out of Shreveport, but I don't know where they all went to," said Dallas FBI agent Glenn Rosenquist. He said the letter to the Dallas man was mailed from out of state but he thought the Shreveport reference was incorrect.

"They're pretty spread out and we can't say that they're connected (to the letter bomb incidents)," Rosenquist said.

Joe Sylvester, FBI agent in New Orleans, said he could not confirm any suspicious letter mailings from Shreveport.

Mrs. LeGrange opened the letter bomb in Houston, and then her son Brian examined it without knowing what it was.

"Both could have lost their eyes or been killed," said R. L. Swain of the Houston police bomb squad.

LeGrange recognized the letter for what it was and called police.

He said he and other executives were alerted Monday after a retired executive received a letter bomb.

"I have no idea why the bomb was sent to me," he said. "We will be watching what comes in the mail."

An Exxon spokesman said LeGrange had received no extortion demand either at home or at the Exxon office.

Swain said the bomb was an electric blasting cap attached to a nine-volt transistor radio battery. He said a defective splice prevented an explosion.

Roenquist said the Dallas exeutive received a letter Monday threatening him unless he delivered a sum of money.

Fumes leave 44 ill, thousands evacuated

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — Thick, white toxic fumes billowed through the night from a blaze at a swimming pool cleaning chemical plant, making at least 44 persons ill and forcing the evacuation of thousands of residents.

Fire Department spokesman Ed Arbuckle said initial reports indicated that some of the 44 persons taken to eight area hospitals were in intensive care units.

He said the 44 included 16 residents of the area, four police officers, two sheriff's deputies, and 22 firemen.

Van Nuys is 20 miles north of downtown Los Angeles. Police Sgt. Raymond P. Alaszewski said more than 5,000 persons from a dense residential section west of the Pool Brite Manufacturing Co. were evacuated soon after the blaze broke out at 10:28 p.m. Tuesday.

Fire officials said the toxic fumes were released when water sprayed by firemen came into nontact with "100 per cent concentration" trichloro-triazinetrione, a chlorine cleaning compound stocked at Pool Brite, a subsidiary of Leslie's Pool Mart.

"It's a major emergency," said Arbuckle. "The chem cals are emitting dangerous toxic fumes."

Arbuckle said chemical engineers were on the scene but they had not decided on how the flames should be battled without the risk of adding to the toxic-fumes, which initially formed a huge cloud.

"We're just going to wait it out," said Arbuckle. "We'll just wait till morning and let the cloud dissipate itself. We're not going to jeopardize any more of our firemen."

Alaszewski said most of those made ill complained of a tightness in the chest and of breathing difficulties after inhaling the fumes.

Federal aviation officials, meanwhile, suspended landings and take offs from nearby Van Nuys Airport and ordered a nearby Air National Guard facility evacuated.

Fire officials said they would begin an investigation later today into the cause of the blaze.

He climbs to perform

CHICAGO (AP) — Before Robert Lodine sits down to play at the keyboard, he climbs 68 steps or 235 steps, depending on whether he's in St. Chrysostom Episcopal Church or in Rockefeller Chapel at the University of Chicago.

Lodine is a carillonneur and president of the Guild of Carillonneurs in America. He is also professor of organ at the American Conservatory of Music; carillonneur, organist and choirmaster at St. Chrysostom's; and carillonneur at Rockefeller Chapel.

There are but 156 true carillons in the nation, he says, the largest of them a 40,880-pound set of bells in Riverside Church in New York.

Mao to meet no more with foreign chiefs

—AP Laserphoto

Mao Tse-tung

By JAY MATHEWS
The Washington Post

HONG KONG — An official Chinese spokesman Tuesday night made the strongest indication yet of Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung's failing health by revealing a Central Committee decision to end Mao's audiences with "foreign distinguished guests."

The statement to a Reuter reporter in Peking that Mao was "well advanced in years, still very busy" and would no longer see dignitaries came shortly after he failed for the first time in a year to greet a visiting head of state.

The Chinese spokesman's remarks appeared to confirm earlier intelligence reports reaching here that a decision was made two weeks ago to end what have been, in effect, the 82-year-old Chinese leader's only regular public appearances.

Mao saw Pakistan Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto on May 27, but Madagascar President Didier Ratsiraka left China Tuesday night after a four-day state visit without receiving the customary summons to Mao's Peking villa.

Reuter quoted the official Chinese spokesman as saying: "Chairman Mao is well advanced in years and is still very busy with his work.

"The Central Committee of our party has decided not to arrange for Chairman Mao to meet foreign distinguished guests." The recurrent speculation caused by Mao's frail appearance at audiences "was just too hard on the Chinese people," said one analyst, attempting to explain the Central Committee decision. Another analyst said he felt the announcement would simply add to fears that Mao was near death.

Mao's last few audiences with foreign guests have been unusually brief. Photographs have shown him sitting slumped, his jaw slack and his head resting on the back of a chair.

His death now would almost certainly set off a tumultuous struggle to determine his successor. Already, so-called radicals in the Chinese leadership who forced the April purge of Vice Premier Teng Hisao-ping are making veiled progress rather than political fervor in China.

The warm reception given Ratsiraka during his visit ruled out any chance the lack of an audience with Mao was intended as a snub. The leader of the East Africa island nation is a frank admirer of the Chinese revolution. At a welcoming banquet he extolled China's achievements and declared he had "come finally to pay solemn homage to His Excellency, Chairman Mao Tse-tung ... " Yet he got no chance to do so in person.

The last visiting head of state to miss seeing Mao was President Hadj Omar Bongo of Gabon, who visited China a year ago. Analysts here have no ready explanation for this previous lapse.

New Zealand Prime Minister Robert Muldoon, who saw Mao for 15 minutes in May, said he had been told Mao suffered a stroke sometime ago. Pakistan Prime Minister Bhutto, Mao's last foreign visitor, said he thought the chairman had a bad cold.

Mao has always carefully rationed his public appearances and often taken long sabbaticals from the visible, ceremonial chores of government. As a result, recurrent rumors of his death have followed him throughout his 40 years as a leader of the Chinese Communist movement.

During one sabbatical away from Peking in early 1975, Mao saw few foreign visitors. But later in the year he had a long chat with President Ford. Late in May his frail appearance sparked intelligence reports that he was actually dead. A Chinese foreign ministry spokesman took the unusual step of officially denying the report, and Mao soon turned up to meet Bhutto.

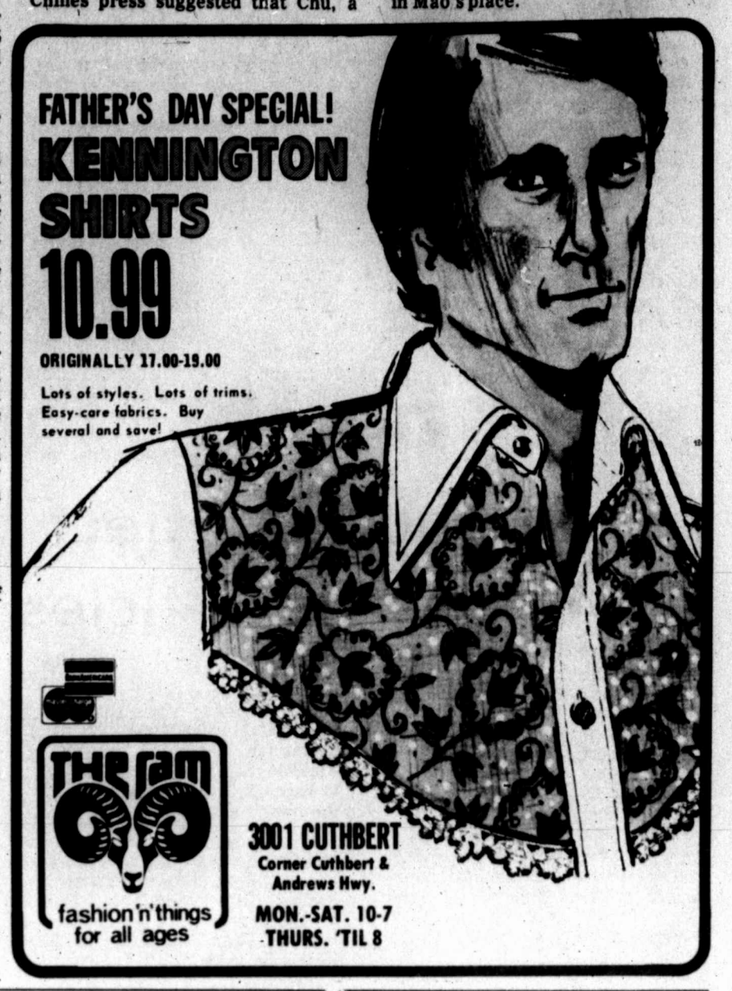

During Ratsiraka's visit here, the Malagasy leader was feted by Premier Hua Kuo-feng and had a meeting with Chu Teh, chairman of the National People's Congress. The attention given the meeting in the Chines press suggested that Chu, a military hero who is himself 89, might be called on to receive heads of state in Mao's place.

Nine named to honor rolls

CANYON — Nine Midlanders have been named to the president's and dean's honor rolls at West Texas State University.

Those students named to both are Virginia S. Day, Merriell Eyer, Richard W. Fairbanks, Nancy E. Hammett, Cerena R. Henderson and Iris R. McCampbell.

Those students named to the dean's honor roll are Steven W. Anguish, Raymond M. Folger and Jennifer A. Harris.

Briscoe predicts unity

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Gov. Dolph Briscoe says he thinks there is a statewide feeling among Texas Democrats of unity "and to unify behind the Democratic candidate."

"It is the first time this has happened in many, many years," he told a news conference Tuesday afternoon.

Briscoe also said he did not see any serious controversies ahead at the state Democratic convention this weekend.

"Nothing would suit me better than for it to be a dull convention," he said.

Briscoe told the news conference that the probable national nominee Jimmy Carter had cancelled his much-publicized appearance at a pre-convention dinner in Houston Thursday night.

"There comes a time when a candidate has to get some rest," Briscoe said, explaining that Carter is now in Sea Island, Ga., taking a vacation for the first time since he began campaigning more than 18 months ago.

In answer to a question Briscoe said he thought Brown would "get very little support, if any" from state convention delegates. "I hope Carter will have the entire support of the entire Texas delegation to New York."

Briscoe said he talked with Carter in Dallas Monday night, particulary about his energy program. "I believe he is moving in the right direction," Briscoe said. He said it was "my impression" that Carter now supports deregulation of new natural gas and a phase-out of federal control of domestic oil.

On other matters Briscoe said:

—He hopes the Texas Youth Council will take another look at a staff proposal of a $13.2 million budget for 1978-79, almost 50 per cent above current spending.

—He sees no need to call a special session on energy matters when legislative leaders have not come up with any proposal that would cut utility bills.

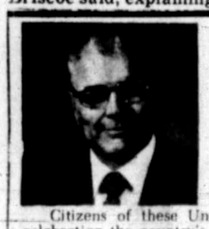

UTPB taps students

ODESSA — Five area students were named to the president's and dean's honor list in the College of Management at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Janice Poorman of McCamey was named to the president's list.

Named to the dean's list were Polly Lancaster, Ronald Newby and Jimmy M. Wright, all of Big Spring and Willia Williams of McCamey.

Students on the president's list have a perfect 4.0 grade average. The dean's list is limited to undergraduates with a 3.0 grade average or better.

"THINKING" with ODOM

PHILIPPIANS 4:8

Citizens of these United States are enthusiastically celebrating the country's 200th birthday this year. Flags are being proudly flown, speeches are made eulogizing our great forefathers, and past events are flashed on television to remind us of our historic past. While this scribe feels that we all should be grateful for the privilege of being called Americans, and be ready to give our lives for this freedom, there is also a sense of shame when we take inventory of our present condition.

Instead of the White House being a place of honour that it once was, in recent years it has become a place of debauchery and shame. The people that we Americans voted into office have made it that way. Today she stands in the nation's capitol as anything but a WHITE House. A house full of people who lie, cheat, and appear to be depraved with regards to their morals. It is pretty bad, my friends, when we have liars, drunks, and fornicators at the head of our government. Hopefully that part of our American way of life will change.

But that isn't enough! We cannot just bemoan corruption in high places, as despicable as we believe some leaders to be. Let us look first at ourselves. The institution of marriage is being mocked by our fellow-Americans. The divorce rate is higher now than ever before in our history. Crime is at an all time high. Bombastic attacks have been made in the class room against God and His righteous cause before our children, thereby destroying their faith. Morality is looked upon by many school teachers now days as something of the old school, and is therefore out of date. Hence young people have been fed satan's line that "whatever seems right for you is right, so do your own thing." Parents are allowing their children (even encouraging them) to live in insurrection to the powers that be. Now when you have that kind of a society, you don't have much to brag about.

America, when the next generation becomes the product of what we have produced—infidels, adulterers, drunks, disobedient to authority, and a disregard for the rights of others, then the future is not too bright.

I therefore can only urge those with whom I have influence to love our country enough to make it a land of honest, God-fearing, and loving people, so that if God allows man to see another 200 years, it truly can be said, "AMERICA HONORS GOD!

Test spots still open

A limited number of places still are open for the Aptitude Inventory Measurement System (AIMS) testing program that will be conducted at Midland College June 21 through 26.

The battery of tests, conducted periodically for Permian Basin residents at Midland College, is designed to give students better information regarding their future vocations. Ideally, the tests are administered to students who are in junior high and senior high grades.

Additional information and reservations may be made by contacting Dr. Elizabeth Robinett at the administration building or by calling 684-7851 or 563-0043.

Journalist expelled

Agence France Presse

LUANDA — Another American journalist has been expelled from Angola within a week.

Tuesday Georgie Anne Geyer, working for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate, was told to leave for sending out what the Angolan security service described as information attacking the Angolan government.

On June 8, Robin Wright, writing for the Washington Post in South Africa, who went to cover the trial of 13 mercenaries here, also was expelled.

Wright was accused of acting as a liaison agent for mercenaires during a previous visit to Angola.

Texas House passes bill: but 'all smoke, no fire'

AUSTIN (AP) — After two months of hearings and debate, a House subcommittee on natural gas has proposed a bill that one member calls "all smoke and no fire."

The committee approved the measure Tuesday, 8-1.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, said the legislation simply would give authority to the railroad commission that it already possesses and which it refuses to use.

The bill would require gas producers to convince the commission that a redetermination of a contract price was reasonable. The bill contains no definition of reasonable. And Wilson said gas producers could avoid coming under the act simply by making all of their contracts for less than six months, with no provision for redetermination of price.

Wilson earlier proposed a measure that he admitted was a "halfway approach" to the problem of high utility bills. It would regulate utility companies through a requirement of commission approval of all new gas contracts.

He said he rejected regulation of gas prices at the wellhead for political reasons. "I personally don't see regulation at the wellhead as a viable political option," he said, meaning the legislature would not pass it.

But even Wilson's halfway measure turned out not to be politically viable in the committee, which rejected the bill, 6-3.

The bill would have ordered the commission to use the reallocation power it already has, Wilson said.

When a utility company finds it lacks sufficient gas to satisfy all of its customers, the commission would direct the company to give priority to "human need" customers—homes, hospitals and schools.

Gas utilities oppose this approach, Wilson said, because they make large profits from their commercial customers, and those customers would be given lower priority.

"The moneychangers are in Central Texas and they're coming to West Texas and Dallas and Houston," Wilson said. "This piece of legislation drives the money changers out of the temple."

Asked after the meeting if he thought the other committee members wanted it to appear they tried to produce some meaningful recommendations when they knew in their hearts they had not, Wilson said, "I have to assume so."

Then he softened that to say, "I have to assume they simply didn't know. That's the kindest thing I can say."

The committee voted 5-4 to table a motion asking Gov. Dolph Briscoe to call a special session of the legislature to solve the problem of high utility bills.

It approved a resolution calling upon the commission to adopt a policy on passing through to customers the cost of finding new gas.

Reds claim water car

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Soviet engineers reported developing an automobile engine that runs on water, but U.S. sources acquainted with the project cautioned that it isn't the breakthrough that it might at first appear.

The car is fueled by hydrogen produced when water is fed into a miniature, on-board chemical reactor, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency. It added that a prototype of the water-fed car was produced by engineers in the Ukraine with assistance from other specialists from around the country.

U.S. sources who have recently interviewed a Russian delegation about the project emphasized, however, that the chemical reaction which produces the hydrogen from water is well-known and is not self-sustaining.

A local inventor has stirred considerable controversy and a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation with claims that he has developed an economical method of extracting hydrogen from water in a self-sustaining thermochemical reaction. Independent scientists dismiss the claims as violating the basic laws of thermodynamics.

Asked about the Russian development, William Van Vorst, chairman of the University of California at Los Angeles's engineering systems department, commented: "We have a mockup here to do the same sort of thing." Van Vorst said he discussed the project briefly with a group of Soviet engineers — including the son of President Nikolai V. Podgorny — at a scientific conference on hydrogen in Miami earlier this year.

Another source said the Russians told him at that same conference that the chemical reactant in their car must be replaced every 100 miles and that the cost is greater than that of gasoline.

Sterling prospect flows crude, gas

A scheduled Sterling County wildcat assures production with the recovery of oil on production tests, and probes have been staked in Schleicher and Kimble counties.

Anadarko Production, operating out of Houston, No. 1 E. Horwood, a 7,900-foot probe, ⅝ mile southwest of a lone northwest extension to the Proband (Canyon oil) field of Sterling, has assured production from an unidentified zone.

It flowed 210 barrels of 43 gravity oil in 24 hours, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,850-1.

The test was through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations at 7,157-7,306 feet.

Drilled to 7,820 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set at total depth.

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, has staked No. 1 Fuhrman, a 5,700-foot wildcat, 1⅜ mile northwest of the Page (Strawn) oil and gas field of Schleicher.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and 2,130 feet from east lines of section 48, block L, GH&SA survey, seven miles east of Eldorado.

Operating out of Big Spring, A. K. Guthrie Operating Co. has made plans to reenter and clean out to 3,500 feet, apparently for test of the Strawn, at the former King Resources Co. No. 1 Johnston.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 63, BS&F survey, 22 miles northwest of Junction.

Formerly drilled to 4,415 feet, it was abandoned June 6, 1969.

Discovery among exploration activity in New Mexico areas

Eddy County gained a discovery, and indicated discovery, while a drillstem test was taken at a test in Lea County, N.M.

Pennzoil Co. No. 1 Penn-Federal was completed as an Atoka discovery, 13 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

It finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 2.050 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 11,378-11,746 feet in 2⅞-inch casing set a 12,066 feet, the plugged back depth.

Originally drilled by Texas International Petroleum Corp., it was abandoned October 5, 1974.

It topped the Wolfcamp at 9,844 feet; Strawn, 11,067 feet; Atoka, 11,211 feet; lower Atoka, 11,518 feet and Morrow 11,955 feet.

The discovery site is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 31-20s-30e.

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, No. 1 Alscott, an indicated unident ified discovery, flowed gas at the rate of eight million cubic feet per day on a drillstem test.

It also recovered 115 feet of condensat and 10 feet of water, on the drillstem test from 11,050-11,111 feet, and through a ⅜-inch choke.

Tool was open one hour and 15 minutes.

Drilling below 11,199 feet on an 11,500-foot contract, the test site is 1,650 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 31-18s-29e, 12 miles west of Loco Hills.

Franklin, Aston & Fair, Inc., Roswell, No. 4 Aztec-State, ⅜ mile southwest of the same firm's No. 3 Aztec-State, opener of the Maljamar, South (Strawn) field of Lea County, reversed out 10 barrels of 36.8 gravity oil and 60 barrels of heavily oil-and gas-cut mud on a drillstem test.

On the Abo test from 8,685-8,740 feet, tool was open one hour and 20 minutes.

Earlier a 45-minute test at 8,300-8,525 feet recovered 30 feet of slightly oil-cut mud, and a previous 45-minute test at 8,100-8,280 feet recovered 10 feet of drilling fluid.

At last report it was drilling below 10,030 feet in lime and shale, on a 14,000-foot wildcat contract.

Project site is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 36-17s-32e, 5½ miles southeast of Maljamar.

Wildcat trio slated in West Texas areas

Three wildcat operators have been announced in West Texas.

Tejas Oil Operators No. 2 Frank B. Jones Jr. is a wildcat re-entry in Dawson County, six miles west of Lamesa. The project will be cleaned out to 5,600 feet.

Originally drilled to 12,340 feet and abandoned by General Crude Oil Co., the project is 5,820 feet from south and 660 feet from west lines of league 1, Taylor County School Land survey.

MOTLEY TEST

Jack F. Grimm No. 1 Frank Eiring is to be drilled as a 9,000-foot wildcat in Motley County, 15 miles northwest of Matador.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 66, block T, Arnold & Barrett survey. There is no nearby production.

GARZA OPERATION

Burk Oil Co. No. 1 Nance is to be drilled as an 8,250-foot wildcat five miles southwest of Justiceburg in Garza County.

Location is 900 feet from north and 2,173 feet from east lines of section51, block 6, H&GN survey and 2⅛ miles northwest of the Fluvanna, Southwest (Ellenburger) field.

D'Artois says he won't resign despite indictment

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Public Safety Commissioner George D' Artois says he won't resign despite his indictment last week on an attempted felony theft charge.

"Why should I?" he asked Tuesday. "I'm not guilty of anything. I have committed no crime, and will be completely cleared of this and all other allegations against me."

D'Artois, who returned to work this week for the first time since he entered a hospital for heart pains, was indicted Friday by a Caddo Parish grand jury. The indictment alleges he tried to pay a $3,500 bill for campaign expenses with city funds.

D'Artois said he will not leave office until the attorney general's investigation into his department is over.

The attorney general, who is assisting in the investigation, has ruled that D' Artois cannot be forced to take a leave of office during the investigation.

"It must be made clear to one and all that the district attorney, John Richardson, has stated that the indictment is a misdemeanor," D'Artois said.

"The Shreveport Times, on Aug. 13, 1972, editorially endorsed a local judge for election who was under indictment for a felony and stated, 'It should be understood that a grand jury is not a forum in which a trial is held. It is an accusatory body where the accused cannot defend himself. Its accusations do not prove guilt."

Fusselman tests slated

J. C. Williamson and D. W. Underwood of Midland have staked locations for a pair of 9,800-foot Fusselman operations in area recently opened to production from that zone in Glasscock County.

The projects, seven miles east of Garden City, are No. 4 Clark and No. 5 Clark.

No. 4 is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 18, block 32, T-4-S, T&P survey.

No. 5 is 1,980 feet from south and east lines of section 7, block 32, T-4-S, T&P survey.

The discovery well of the area was Williamson and Underwood. No.1 Gladys Clark. Operators suggested field designation of Apple Creek (Fusselman).

Vet may get flag back

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. John Dramesi, a Vietnam veteran who painstakingly fashioned an American flag out of his handkerchief and threads from his garments while held by the Communists as a prisoner of war, may get his flag back temporarily to lead the Bicentennial parade in Philadelphia.

The flag, which Dramesi presented to then-President Richard M. Nixon at a White House dinner in 1973 honoring Americans who had been imprisoned by the North Vietnamese, was impounded by the government along with some 42 million pieces of paper and 5,000 tapes after Nixon resigned.

Tuesday the former president asked a U.S. District Court to instruct the government to temporarily release the flag to the Air Force lieutenant colonel.

Bass stakes explorer

Bass Enterprises Production Co., Midland, will drill No. 1 C&K-Federal, as a 3,500-foot Delaware wildcat, ⅞ mile north of a 3,421-foot dry hole and one mile northwest of production in the Indian Draw (Delaware) field of Eddy County, N.M.

Test site is 1,980 feet from south and 330 feet from east lines of section 12-22s-27e, five miles east of Carlsbad.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were $3.85 a bale higher at midday.

Renewed speculative de-mand, based on price-chart sig-nals, firmed futures prices in early dealings.

Trading in cotton futures was suspended just before 11 a.m. due to communication diffi-culties. The last trade in cotton futures was recorded at 10:55 a.m., one broker said.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16-inch spot cotton declined 171 points to 71.94 cents a pound Tuesday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Ex-change.

Midday prices were 60 cents to $3.85 a bale higher than the previous close. July 76.20, Octo-ber 76.80 and December 74.35.

Stock mart rebounds slightly

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a slight gain today, rebounding from the spell of profit taking that set in on Tuesday.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.37 at 988.29, and gainers opened up a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The market had been a bit unsettled Tuesday when the Senate Judiciary Committee voted its approval of a bill to require the breakup of the nation's 18 largest oil companies. But analysts noted that most observers said the odds were against passage of the measure by the full Congress this year.

General Public Utilities topped the active list, down ⅛ at 16⅜. A 200,000-share block traded at 16⅛.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks gained .18 to 54.22. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .13 at 103.36.

Volume on the Big Board continued to set a moderate pace, with 8.77 million shares changing hands in the first two hours against 8.45 million in the comparable period Tuesday.

Stocks of the big oil companies were mixed today after a general decline Tuesday. Exxon and Mobil were fractionally lower, but Gulf, Texaco and Atlantic Richfield posted slight gains.

6 persons killed as riots erupt in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Thousands of blacks rioted today in an explosion of fury over the mandatory use of the Afrikaans language in schools, a symbol of white oppression. Police opened fire on the mobs, and at least six persons were reported dead and 33 wounded.

"We fired into them. It's no good firing over their heads," a senior police officer in Soweto told reporters. Hundreds of police armed with guns and tear gas and supported by helicopters moved in to seal off the rioters, most of them pupils. Some of the police had dogs.

The pupils waved their fists shouting, "Power!" and sang "God Bless Africa" as they overturned cars, set fires and threw stones.

Police said the dead included two white motorists who were dragged out of their cars and stoned to death. The full extent of casualties was not known because ambulances were being harassed by rock-throwing mobs.

Observers said it was the worst racial confrontation since police killed 72 blacks in Sharpeville in March 1960. That riot was over laws requiring blacks to carry passes.

The Afrikaans language, derived from Dutch, is used by descendants of the Boer settlers who dominate the white-minority government of South Africa. Africans prefer being taught in English, which they regard as a language of science and progress and a link with the outside world.

All whites were evacuated from Soweto, a suburb reserved for more than one million blacks about eight miles out of Johannesburg, as the rioting spread.

"The whole situation is escalating and it is impossible for me to tell you exactly what's going on," said an official at Soweto police headquarters. Estimates of the number of rioting pupils ranged to 10,000.

The rioting began as a march of several thousand pupils from around Soweto in support of pupils at the Phefeni secondary school who have been protesting the use of Afrikaans for the past five weeks.

All available police in the Soweto area and a large number of reinforcements from Johannesburg rushed to the area.

An official of the Johannesburg ambulance department said the bodies of two policemen and two children had been removed from the riot area. A white man and an elderly black man also were reported killed in the rioting.

Some of the pupils reportedly seized a policeman and were using him as a hostage to order police to withdraw from the riot area.

Of the known injured, at least 19 had bullet wounds, a hospital spokesman said.

Brigadier R. Le Roux, who was commanding police operations, said the situation was "very bad." He said houses and cars were being burned and stoned.

U.S. ready to sell fighter jets to Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Senior U.S. defense officials announced today agreement in principle to sell Kenya 12 Northrop F5 fighter planes at an estimated cost of more than $70 million.

The officials told reporters they believed the agreement represented the biggest single U.S. arms sale to any African country south of the Sahara, with the possible exception of Ethiopia, a major military aid recipient since World War II.

It would also be the first significant U.S. military sale to Kenya, the only pro-West nation on the East African coast.

Judge questions man's testimony

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Court Judge Stanley Kirk suggested Tuesday that grand jury testimony given by FBI Agent Lee Stephens be placed before another grand jury for consideration of perjury charges, but Stephens' boss said no perjury was committed.

Stephens had testified before a Wilbarger County grand jury in connection with a conspiracy trial of R.D. Brown, former board chairman of the First State Bank of Vernon.

Ted Gunderson, special agent in charge of the Dallas FBI office, said there were discrepencies in Stephens' testimony, but they "can be traced to the lapse of two years since he testified before the grand jury and based on the complexity of the matter."

Brown was accused of conspiring with two cotton brokers to steal more than $10,000 from the First State Bank of Vernon.

Kirk ordered a verdict of innocent and said Stephens had made misrepresentations to the grand jury. He did not specify what questionable testimony was given.

Gunderson said he saw no need for the grand jury investigation and "for somebody to say that something should be done with Mr. Stephens, I think it is too early to say that. I am in the process of obtaining a transcript of the trial and I will check it aainst the grand jury testimony."

The charges against Brown involved a $1,288,000 loan to R.E. Huntley and Gipson F. Hemphill, partners in a cotton company. Huntley and Gipson were convicted on federal charges of using bogus warehouse receipts as security for the loans.

Kirk told jurors in the trial, "To me, this witness, Lee Stephens, committed what was the most unconscionable abuse of governmental and prosecutorial and investigative authority that I have ever been personally connected with."

Zoning board postpones decision on variance

The Midland Zoning Board of Adjustment approved three requests for variances and tabled action on a fourth request during its session Tuesday at city hall.

Action on a request by Wayne LaGrone for a variance in front yard setback requirements and fence height requirements at 2006 Douglas St. was tabled by the board until its next regular meeting.

LaGrone told the board he wanted to construct a seven-foot high fence 17 feet from his property line to create a courtyard. He said he had just purchased the property and had hoped to improve its value and appearance.

The board noted that LaGrone could legally build a four-foot high fence there now, but the violation occurred with the additional three feet once's height the fen and its construction 17 feet from the property line rather than the required 30 feet.

Board members tabled action on the issue until LaGrone could show his neighbors what the fence would look like and see if they had any complaints.

In other action, the board gave its approval to:

— A request by James M. Alsup for a variance in back and side yard setback requirements at 1612 Winfield St. for construction of a grape arbor covering the entire patio;

— A request by for a variance Gilbert Bates in minimum sguare footage per lot at 2905 Princeton St. as the lots would be 9,840 sguare feet instead of the required 10,000; and,

— A request by Magnell Association Inc. for a variance in minimum square footage per lot at 4732 Wilshire St., as three lots would be 70 feet wide and one would be 60 feet wide.

Embryo transfer reported successful

By WARREN E. LEARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say they have produced a healthy baby baboon by transferring an early embryo from its original mother to another female who carried it until birth.

The development is a first for primates and raises the distant possibility that surrogate mothers also may be feasible for humans, a Texas A&M University researcher said Tuesday.

The idea of using substitute mothers for women unable to carry a baby full term has been discussed in recent years. Aside from the technical difficulties, however, the idea raises social, legal and ethical questions.

"The real impact of our work is in developing animal models for studying the process of pregnancy, rather than for an infertility treatment," Dr. Duane C. Kraemer said in an interview.

In the current issue of the journal Science, Kraemer and his colleagues, Drs. Gary T. Moore and Martin A. Kramen, describe how they removed a baboon embryo five days after ovulation from one female and put it into another.

Moore is with the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education in San Antonio, Tex., where the work was done, and Kramen is with the University of Texas at San Antonio.

The second female carried the developing male baby for about 170 days until it was delivered by caesarean section on Sept. 5, 1975, the report said. Normal average gestation for this type of baboon is 175 days.

Kraemer said the baby baboon, now nine months old, was "normal in every respect at birth and is the same way now.

Small town cancels holiday celebration

TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP) — No firemen's fireworks display. No tavern business. No drinking in the streets. No gambling, either. Telluride, historic mining town of about 1,100, has had it with Fourth of July celebrations.

"We are just trashed out," says Rich Luhman, president of the Telluride Chamber of Commerce.

For years the town offered one of the most exuberant July 4th celebrations in the West. But as the years went by, word spread and the town's citizens found themselves outnumbered 5 to 1 by rowdy visitors, who cut down trees — for firewood or fun — and carried on as though they owned the place.

Town fathers conducted a poll of the residents and found that more than half didn't want a celebration this year, despite the fact that visitors account for half the annual gross sales during the holiday.

So the town council canceled the annual fireworks, ordered the bars closed, borrowed five police officers from neighboring jurisdictions and signed up 13 volunteers to keep the peace.

The town itself has three officers.

"We're not closing the town," said Luhman. "Some essential services — like gasoline and groceries — will still be available."

But the city's parks and campgrounds will be closed.

The town's two weekly newspapers — the Telluride Times and the Telluride Examiner — support the council's action. Tony Hebron, who writes for the Times, is one of the residents opposed to it.

"It's a tourist town and the reaction by government in the past has been bad," he said. "They're not reacting to the problem."

Hebron said the town shouldn't be trying to close down festivities, especially this year, the Bicentennial. Instead, he said, the city should make certain of the "type of police presence."

'Family' scores high in ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — A repeat of CBS' "All in the Family" was last week's mostwatched television show and an ABC undersea special by Jacques Cousteau the leastwatched program, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

The Nielsen audience samples, made public Tuesday, showed that the week's 20 most popular programs, including "All in the Family," were "Starsky and Hutch" and "Baretta" (both ABC); "M-A-S-H" and "Maude" (both CBS); "Jigsaw John" (NBC); "Phyllis" and Mary Tyler Moore" (both CBS); "Six Million Dollar Man" (ABC); "One Day at a Time," "Bob Newhart," "Kojak" and "Medical Center" (all CBS); "Sunday Mystery Movie" (NBC); "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC); "Switch" (CBS); "Streets of San Francisco," "Happy Days" and "Bionic Woman" (all ABC); and "Hawaii Five-O" (CBS).

Price hikes seen for canned goods

By LOUISE COOK
The Associated Press

Consumers can expect to see some price increases for canned fruits and vegetables this summer despite abundant supplies remaining from last year's harvest.

Retail prices for nanned goods in the first part of this year generally were lower than in the same period of 1975, but increases at the wholesale level signal an end to the bargains.

"Discounts have been on for most of the year," Lawrence VanMeir, economist for the National Canners Association, said Tuesday, adding that canning company warehouses were overstocked because of large crops and sales slowdowns. "Price cutting came about by companies trying to move the product."

VanMeir said canners were selling some products at a loss. "You've got all this stuff in the warehouse and you've got to move it," he said.

In February, for example, VanMeir said it cost 28.3 cents to produce a can of peas, including almost 11 cents for the peas themselves, 2 cents for labor, 7½ cents for the packaging, almost 3 cents for items such as taxes and about 5 cents for marketing, overhead, etc. At the same time, VanMeir said, canners were being paid 27.9 cents for a can of peas, a loss of four-tenths of a cent.

(The average retail price at the time was 38.3 cents, including four-tenths of a cent profit for the wholesaler and half a cent profit for the retailer.)

The government's Consumer Price Index showed that retail prices for some canned goods decreased from 1975 to 1976. The index for canned pears, for example, stood at just under 161 in January, 1976, a little more than 2½ per cent below what it was a year earlier. The index for canned peas declined about the same amount.

Supplies are still high. The 1975-76 supply of canned fruits is 79.3 million cases, up from 74.2 million in 1974-75 and 65.9 mitlion in 1973-74. The 1975-76 supply of vegetables is 204.5 mitlion cases, up from about 181 million in each of the previous two years.

The warehouses are gradually being emptied, however. The U.S. Department of Agriculture has indicated that farmers reduced their hlantings of six major vegetables this year. And the canners are trying to make up for previous profit squeezes.

Several manufacturers have boosted prices — generally about a penny per can. Libby, McNeill & Libby of Chicago announced increases ranging from 20 to 40 cents a case, effective July 5. Supermarket News, the trade publication, quoted Libby vice president and general manager Lloyd Duggan as saying: "Products were sold for less than usual last year and our costs have increased."

FBI investigating letter-bomb plot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI is trying to determine who tried unsuccessfully to extort millions of dollars from 200 corporations and later apparently mailed 13 bombs to the firms or their executives. One target says the demands did not contain revolutionary rhetoric.

Twelve of the bombs received Monday did not explode, but one did detonate at the Merrill Lynch Inc. brokerage in New York, injuring four persons.

An extortion note delivered last October to Beatrice Foods Inc. of Chicago, one of the 200 companies receiving notes, demanded $16 million to be paid over eight or nine months, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

"It was supposed to be paid to someplace in Mexico," the spokesman said in a telephone interview.

Company officials never considered meeting the demand and turned the note over to authorities soon after it was received, he added. Beatrice received a letter bomb Monday.

The spokesman said company officials don't recall the exact content of the threatening letter but believe it contained none of the rhetoric common to the better-known revolutionary organizations.

At a news conference Tuesday, FBI Director Clarence Kelley described the letters as "a terrorist attempt to evoke fear in the hearts of everyone." But he said the FBI doesn't know who is responsible.

"We do not know as yet just what is the genesis of this. It could be a single person or it could be an organization," he continued.

Kelley refused to say whether the extortion demands might be the work of revolutionary political groups. He declined to elaborate on the evidence linking the letter bombs to the extortion demands.

"Over a period of several months," he stated, "numerous large corporations in the United States have received a series of extortion letters wherein demands have been made for large sums of money to be paid with the threat of terrorist tactics unless these demands were met."

The letter bombs "appear to be part of this continuing crime," he added. "They are substantially the same as far as the context and the demands."

Kelley said none of the corporations complied with the extortion demands, which he said totaled "millions of dollars."

Kelley said all 200 recipients of the extortion letters have been warned to expect letter bombs. An FBI spokesman said extortion notes were received by all 13 companies which later were sent mail bombs.

He refused to name the recipients of the letter bombs and the extortion notes. Other officials said bombs were delivered to executives or corporate offices of:

The Bunge Corp. of New York and Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis, both grain-handling companies; the DuPont Co. of Wilmington, Del.; the Exxon Building in New York; McDonald's Systems Inc. in Oak Brook, Ill.;

Marathon Oil Co., Findlay, Ohio; Exxon Pipeline Co., Houston; Proctor & Gamble Co., Cincinnati; and the Combined Insurance Co. of America office in Worthington, Ohio, as well as Beatrice Foods and Merrill Lynch.

DEAR ABBY

Editorial changes style

By ABIGAIL VANBUREN

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is here, I notice so many teenagers driving much too fast and recklessly.

Two years ago I clipped the enclosed editorial from our local newspaper and showed it to our teenage son and daughter, and after they read it they became two of the most sensible drivers alive.

Please print it, Abby. It may do the same for others.—DAILY READER

DEAR READER: It's well worth an entire column. Who wrote it? And for which newspaper? I want to credit the author: PLEASE GOD, I'M ONLY SEVENTEEN

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I wheedled the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I pleaded, "all the kids drive." When the 2:50 bell rang, I threw all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow morning! I ran to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going too fast. Taking crazy chances. But I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard myself scream.

Suddenly I awakened: it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled, I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17, I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet. I can't be dead.

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please. . .somebody. . .wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And, I can't believe it either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17!

ENERGY
OIL & GAS

BERNERD A. RAY of Midland, left, a longtime member of the West Texas Geological Society and its president in 1946, was given honorary life member status Tuesday at the organization's annual meeting in the Hilton Inn. Presenting the certificate is John M. Hills of El Paso, a former Midlander, former president of WTGS and also an honorary life member. Another life member award was given to former Midlander H. A. "Bert" Hemphill of Houston. He was not present to receive his award which was made by George Gibson of Midland, another honorary life member and past president of the organization. Hemphill was president in 1938.

Texas House passes bill: but 'all smoke, no fire'

AUSTIN (AP) — After two months of hearings and debate, a House subcommittee on natural gas has proposed a bill that one member calls "all smoke and no fire."

The committee approved the measure Tuesday, 8-1.

Rep. John Wilson, D-LaGrange, said the legislation simply would give authority to the railroad commission that it already possesses and which it refuses to use.

The bill would require gas producers to convince the commission that a redetermination of a contract price was reasonable. The bill contains no definition of reasonable. And Wilson said gas producers could avoid coming under the act simply by making all of their contracts for less than six months, with no provision for redetermination of price.

Wilson earlier proposed a measure that he admitted was a "halfway approach" to the problem of high utility bills. It would regulate utility companies through a requirement of commission approval of all new gas contracts.

He said he rejected regulation of gas prices at the wellhead for political reasons. "I personally don't see regulation at the wellhead as a viable political option," he said, meaning the legislature would not pass it.

But even Wilson's halfway measure turned out not to be politically viable in the committee, which rejected the bill, 6-3.

The bill would have ordered the commission to use the reallocation power it already has, Wilson said.

When a utility company finds it lacks sufficient gas to satisfy all of its customers, the commission would direct the company to give priority to "human need" customers—homes, hospitals and schools.

Gas utilities oppose this approach, Wilson said, because they make large profits from their commercial customers, and those customers would be given lower priority.

"The moneychangers are in Central Texas and they're coming to West Texas and Dallas and Houston," Wilson said. "This piece of legislation drives the money changers out of the temple."

Asked after the meeting if he thought the other committee members wanted it to appear they tried to produce some meaningful recommendations when they knew in their hearts they had not, Wilson said, "I have to assume so."

Then he softened that to say, "I have to assume they simply didn't know. That's the kindest thing I can say."

The committee voted 5-4 to table a motion asking Gov. Dolph Briscoe to call a special session of the legislature to solve the problem of high utility bills.

It approved a resolution calling upon the commission to adopt a policy on passing through to customers the cost of finding new gas.

Sterling prospect flows crude, gas

A scheduled Sterling County wildcat assures production with the recovery of oil on production tests, and probes have been staked in Schleicher and Kimble counties.

Anadarko Production, operating out of Houston, No. 1 E. Horwood, a 7,900-foot probe, ⅝ mile southwest of a lone northwest extension to the Proband (Canyon oil) field of Sterling, has assured production from an unidentified zone.

It flowed 210 barrels of 43 gravity oil in 24 hours, with a gas-oil ratio of 1,850-1.

The test was through a 20/64-inch choke and perforations at 7,157-7,306 feet.

Drilled to 7,820 feet, it has 4½-inch casing set at total depth.

I. W. Lovelady, Midland, has staked No. 1 Fuhrman, a 5,700-foot wildcat, 1⅜ mile northwest of the Page (Strawn) oil and gas field of Schleicher.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and 2,130 feet from east lines of section 48, block L, GH&SA survey, seven miles east of Eldorado.

Operating out of Big Spring, A. K. Guthrie Operating Co. has made plans to reenter and clean out to 3,500 feet, apparently for test of the Strawn, at the former King Resources Co. No. 1 Johnston.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 63, BS&F survey, 22 miles northwest of Junction.

Formerly drilled to 4,415 feet, it was abandoned June 6, 1969.

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Soviet engineers reported developing an automobile engine that runs on water, but U.S. sources acquainted with the project cautioned that it isn't the breakthrough that it might at first appear.

The car is fueled by hydrogen produced when water is fed into a miniature, on-board chemical reactor, according to Tass, the official Soviet news agency. It added that a prototype of the water-fed car was produced by engineers in the Ukraine with assistance from other specialists from around the country.

U.S. sources who have recently interviewed a Russian delegation about the project emphasized, however, that the chemical reaction which produces the hydrogen from water is well-known and is not self-sustaining.

A local inventor has stirred considerable controversy and a Securities and Exchange Commission investigation with claims that he has developed an economical method of extracting hydrogen from water in a self-sustaining thermochemical reaction. Independent scientists dismiss the claims as violating the basic laws of thermodynamics.

Asked about the Russian development, William Van Vorst, chairman of the University of California at Los Angeles's engineering systems department, commented: "We have a mockup here to do the same sort of thing." Van Vorst said he discussed the project briefly with a group of Soviet engineers — including the son of President Nikolai V. Podgorny — at a scientific conference on hydrogen in Miami earlier this year.

Another source said the Russians told him at that same conference that the chemical reactant in their car must be replaced every 100 miles and that the cost is greater than that of gasoline.

Interest in a hydrogen car — both here and in the Soviet Union — is based partially on its potential as a low polluter. Tass also has reported recently on Soviet experimental cars powered by pedals and electricity.

Discovery among exploration activity in New Mexico areas

Eddy County gained a discovery, and indicated discovery, while a drillstem test was taken at a test in Lea County, N.M.

Pennzoil Co. No. 1 Penn-Federal was completed as an Atoka discovery, 13 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

It finaled for a calculated, absolute open flow of 2.050 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 11,378-11,746 feet in 2⅞-inch casing set a 12,066 feet, the plugged back depth.

Originally drilled by Texas International Petroleum Corp., it was abandoned October 5, 1974.

It topped the Wolfcamp at 9,844 feet; Strawn, 11,067 feet; Atoka, 11,211 feet; lower Atoka, 11,518 feet and Morrow 11,955 feet.

The discovery site is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 31-20s-30e.

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, No. 1 Alscott, an indicated unident ified discovery, flowed gas at the rate of eight million cubic feet per day on a drillstem test.

It also recovered 115 feet of condensat and 10 feet of water, on the drillstem test from 11,050-11,111 feet, and through a ⅜-inch choke.

Tool was open one hour and 15 minutes.

Drilling below 11,199 feet on an 11,500-foot contract, the test site is 1,650 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 31-18s-29e, 12 miles west of Loco Hills.

Franklin, Aston & Fair, Inc., Roswell, No. 4 Aztec-State, ¾ mile southwest of the same firm's No. 3 Aztec-State, opener of the Maljamar, South (Strawn) field of Lea County, reversed out 10 barrels of 36.8 gravity oil and 60 barrels of heavily oil-and gas-cut mud on a drillstem test.

On the Abo test from 8,685-8,740 feet, tool was open one hour and 20 minutes.

Earlier a 45-minute test at 8,300-8,525 feet recovered 30 feet of slightly oil-cut mud, and a previous 45-minute test at 8,100-8,280 feet recovered 10 feet of drilling fluid.

At last report it was drilling below 10,030 feet in lime and shale, on a 14,000-foot wildcat contract.

Project site is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 36-17s-32e, 5½ miles southeast of Maljamar.

Senate votes money for 'car of future'

By RICHARD C. PADDOCK
The Los Angeles Times

SHINGTON — The Senate, by a vote of 63 to 27, Monday authorized $155 million for the development of an energy efficient, smog-free "car of the future."

The legislation called for "the development of one or more production prototypes of an advanced automobile" within four years. In addition to the $155 million, the bill would authorize $175 million in loan guarantees to help develop an alternative to the internal combustion engine.

The House passed a similar bill June 3, but according to Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), sponsor of the Senate measure, the Senate version "goes further than the House bill."

Sen. Robert P. Griffin (R-Mich.), who opposed the legislation in Senate debate, called Tunney's bill "ridiculous" and said it would lead to nationalization of the auto industry.

Griffin charged that the government would first design auto engines, then manufacture cars, and eventually the government would be making "vacuum cleaners and can openers."

Tunney denied that would be the result and said, "I am sick and tired of hearing the red herring of nationalization thrown out" when the government considers development of an "energy efficient smog-free engine."

Vet may get flag back

WASHINGTON — Lt. Col. John Dramesi, a Vietnam veteran who painstakingly fashioned an American flag out of his handkerchief and threads from his garments while held by the Communists as a prisoner of war, may get his flag back temporarily to lead the Bicentennial parade in Philadelphia.

The flag, which Dramesi presented to then-President Richard M. Nixon at a White House dinner in 1973 honoring Americans who had been imprisoned by the North Vietnamese, was impounded by the government along with some 42 million pieces of paper and 5,000 tapes after Nixon resigned.

Tuesday the former president asked a U.S. District Court to instruct the government to temporarily release the flag to the Air Force lieutenant colonel.

D'Artois says he won't resign despite indictment

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Public Safety Commissioner George D' Artois says he won't resign despite his indictment last week on an attempted felony theft charge.

"Why should I?" he asked Tuesday. "I'm not guilty of anything. I have committed no crime, and will be completely cleared of this and all other allegations against me."

D'Artois, who returned to work this week for the first time since he entered a hospital for heart pains, was indicted Friday by a Caddo Parish grand jury. The indictment alleges he tried to pay a $3,500 bill for campaign expenses with city funds.

D'Artois said he will not leave office until the attorney general's investigation into his department is over.

The attorney general, who is assisting in the investigation, has ruled that D' Artois cannot be forced to take a leave of office during the investigation.

"It must be made clear to one and all that the district attorney, John Richardson, has stated that the indictment is a misdemeanor," D'Artois said.

"The Shreveport Times, on Aug. 13, 1972, editorially endorsed a local judge for election who was under indictment for a felony and stated, 'It should be understood that a grand jury is not a forum in which a trial is held. It is an accusatory body where the accused cannot defend himself. Its accusations do not prove guilt."

Liver upset may be invalid

The Observer, London

PARIS — The French citizen who eats well no longer knows where to fix the blame for what happens five hours after many a good meal.

In a verdict that confirms what British and American doctors have long scornfully maintained, French hepatologists have now admitted that the Frenchman's liver upset — the crise de foie — has no medical validity.

"The liver is not guilty," professor Daniel Dhumeaux, of the Henri-Mondor Hospital in Paris told the French Association for the Study of the Liver. The assembled specialists did not go so far as to say that millions of Frenchmen are imagining their liver symptoms. But they did suggest that the 300 liver cures on the market were imposters whose curatived properties had never been demonstrated.

Bass stakes explorer

Bass Enterprises Production Co., Midland, will drill No. 1 C&K-Federal, as a 3,500-foot Delaware wildcat, ⅞ mile north of a 3,421-foot dry hole and one mile northwest of production in the Indian Draw (Delaware) field of Eddy County, N.M.

Test site is 1,980 feet from south and 330 feet from east lines of section 12-22s-27e, five miles east of Carlsbad.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were lower in midday dealings today.

Continued liquidation by holders of long positions depressed futures prices, brokers said. One analyst said the market had been over bought.

The average price for strict low middling 11-16-inch spot cotton declined 122 points to 73.65 cents a pound Monday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were $5.65 to $8.50 a bale lower than the previous close. July 76.90, Oct. 76.80 and Dec. 74.65.

Livestock

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Livestock quotations Tuesday. Slaughter cows steady to 50 lower, slaughter bulls firm, slaughter calves not tested, feeder steer & steer calves 50-75 lower, feeder heifers & heifer calves steady. Demand good. Mostly feeders 400-600 lbs. Slaughter cows: Utility 2-3 25.25-28.50, canner & low cutter 22.50-25.90. Slaughter bulls: 2 900980 lbs 35.80-39.00. Feeder heifers: choice 300-500 lbs 32.40-35.50, good 400-620 lbs 30.75-34.00. Cow & calf pairs: good 200.00252.00.

Hogs 250. Barrows & gilts: steady to 50 lower, 1-3 200-240 lbs 49.00-50.00, 2-4 200265 lbs 48.00-49.00. Sows 300-600 lbs 40.0042.00.

Sheep: good & choice 75 lbs 45.00.

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Carlot quotations Tuesday. Demand for carcass steer and heifer beef moderate, trading both classes light, price unsettled. Not enough sales any class to establish price trends. However, a definite strong undertone prevailed for steer and heifer beef. Steer beef choice 600-800 lbs 57.25. Heifer beef 500-700 lbs 56.7.

Fairy tales, modern style:

By JUDITH MARTIN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A lot of soapy water is being slung around as dishwasher manufacturers are trying to defend themselves against charges of murkiness by the Federal Trade Commission.

According to the government agency, the dishwasher peodple are promising the consumer less than they can deliver. Their advertisements suggest that they will give back empty plates; in fact, it seems that they are returning the plates entrusted to them full of food. Nice, crisp food, which will not fall off the plate, accidentally or otherwise.

SPEAKING FOR THE WHOLE cycle of manufacturers, certain companies have suggested that no customer in his or her right mind would really believe that a dishwasher, other than one with tattoos on its arm, could remove burned-on food. Claims that pots and pans can be cleaned by the machdines "without prior soaking and scrubbing" are understood by the customer to mean pots and pans that have been used for boiling eggs, they seem to suggest.

They have a point. The sophisticated consumer should know what's what in the joyful world of home appliances. A world of information is "understood" between manufacturer and customer, except what time the man is coming to fix the machine after it flooded all over the kitchen.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that the dishwasher will clean dishes perfectly, provided they are properly prepared. All you have to do is to fill the sink with water and soap, dump all leftover garbage into the garbage disposal (which is, of course, now buried under a sinkful of soapy water), soak the dishes and pots, scrub them vigorously with steel wool, rinse and hold up to the light. If they pass the test, you can now put them into the dishwasher with the assurance they will come out clean, provided the machine has not picked this time to go into a back-up cycle.

Experienced homemakers, and even some homewreckers, know this.

They have cut their teeth beforehand on the electric can opener. As all intelligent consumers "understand," the purpose of an electric can opener is to make a jagged hole in one section of the can so that the enraged operator can take hold of it and use it to rip the top off the can, at the same time neatly emptying the contents all over the kitchen counter.

THEN THERE IS the electric plastic-wrap dispenser, a handy item that hangs on the wall and hangs onto the plastic-wrap for dear life. Worked properly, this appliance will trim your fingernails while you reach inside to tug at the plastic-wrap. A non-electric wrap holder will not perform this extra service.

Your ordinary toaster also requires a multi-leveled depth of understanding between manufacturer and user. When the instructions tell you that the toaster will automatically signal when the toast is ready, they are referring to the column of smoke that will appear at the top. It is then a simple matter to stick a knife into the machine and scrape out black crumbs.

THAT GARBAGE DISPOSAL also signals automatically when it wants attention. The sound of bones rattling around means that the machine is ready to be turned off so that you can put your hand in it, up to the elbow, and extract the more durable forms of garbage.

From simple appliances like these, you can proceed to complicated ones, such as the automatic garage door opener. The possibilities in that one are endless. But it is certainly understood that the consumer will spend rainy nights sitting comfortably in his car, fruitlessly pushing the button, preparatory to getting out and lifting the door.

7,000 ft. warehouse, 50 ft. wide, 140 ft. deep. Concrete block building. Large overhead door, 14 ft. ceiling. 808 N. Ft. Worth. A bargain at $3.00 a sq. foot. Total price $21,000.

TOP PHOTO of Tran Thi Het Nhanny lying in a cardboard box next to a brother who begged on the streets of Saigan was distributed by The AP in February 1973. The photo so touched the hearts of Americans that money was raised to bring her to the U.S. for surgery to correct a heart defect. Now a healthy, happy 4-year-old, shown below, the girl is being adopted by a Houston couple.

Judge questions man's testimony

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Court Judge Stanley Kirk suggested Tuesday that grand jury testimony given by FBI Agent Lee Stephens be placed before another grand jury for consideration of perjury charges, but Stephens' boss said no perjury was committed.

Stephens had testified before a Wilbarger County grand jury in connection with a conspiracy trial of R.D. Brown, former board chairman of the First State Bank of Vernon.

Ted Gunderson, special agent in charge of the Dallas FBI office, said there were discrepencies in Stephens' testimony, but they "can be traced to the lapse of two years since he testified before the grand jury and based on the complexity of the matter."

Brown was accused of conspiring with two cotton brokers to steal more than $10,000 from the First State Bank of Vernon.

Kirk ordered a verdict of innocent and said Stephens had made misrepresentations to the grand jury. He did not specify what questionable testimony was given.

Gunderson said he saw no need for the grand jury investigation and "for somebody to say that something should be done with Mr. Stephens, I think it is too early to say that. I am in the process of obtaining a transcript of the trial and will check it aainst the grand jury testimony."

The charges against Brown involved a $1,288,000 loan to R.E. Huntley and Gipson F. Hemphill, partners in a cotton company. Huntley and Gipson were convicted on federal charges of using bogus warehouse receipts as security for the loans.

Kirk told jurors in the trial, "To me, this witness, Lee Stephens, committed what was the most unconscionable abuse of governmental and prosecutorial and investigative authority that I have ever been personally connected with."

Zoning board postpones decision on variance

The Midland Zoning Board of Adjustment approved three requests for variances and tabled action on a fourth request during its session Tuesday at city hall.

Action on a request by Wayne LaGrone for a variance in front yard setback requirements and fence height requirements at 2006 Douglas St. was tabled by the board until its next regular meeting.

LaGrone told the board he wanted to construct a seven-foot high fence 17 feet from his property line to create a courtyard. He said he had just purchased the property and had hoped to improve its value and appearance.

The board noted that LaGrone could legally build a four-foot high fence there now, but the violation occurred with the additional three feet once's height the fen and its construction 17 feet from the property line rather than the required 30 feet.

Board members tabled action on the issue until LaGrone could show his neighbors what the fence would look like and see if they had any complaints.

In other action, the board gave its approval to:

— A request by James M. Alsup for a variance in back and side yard setback requirements at 1612 Winfield St. for construction of a grape arbor covering the entire patio;

— A request by for a variance Gilbert Bates in minimum sguare footage per lot at 2905 Princeton St. as the lots would be 9,840 sguare feet instead of the required 10,000; and,

— A request by Magnell Association Inc. for a variance in minimum square footage per lot at 4732 Wilshire St., as three lots would be 70 feet wide and one would be 60 feet wide.

Embryo transfer reported successful

By WARREN E. LEARY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists say they have produced a healthy baby baboon by transferring an early embryo from its original mother to another female who carried it until birth.

The development is a first for primates and raises the distant possibility that surrogate mothers also may be feasible for humans, a Texas A&M University researcher said Tuesday.

The idea of using substitute mothers for women unable to carry a baby full term has been discussed in recent years. Aside from the technical difficulties, however, the idea raises social, legal and ethical questions.

"The real impact of our work is in developing animal models for studying the process of pregnancy, rather than for an infertility treatment," Dr. Duane C. Kraemer said in an interview.

In the current issue of the journal Science, Kraemer and his colleagues, Drs. Gary T. Moore and Martin A. Kramen, describe how they removed a baboon embryo five days after ovulation from one female and put it into another.

Moore is with the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education in San Antonio, Tex., where the work was done, and Kramen is with the University of Texas at San Antonio.

The second female carried the developing male baby for about 170 days until it was delivered by caesarean section on Sept. 5, 1975, the report said. Normal average gestation for this type of baboon is 175 days.

Kraemer said the baby baboon, now nine months old, was "normal in every respect at birth and is the same way now.

Small town cancels holiday celebration

TELLURIDE, Colo. (AP) — No firemen's fireworks display. No tavern business. No drinking in the streets. No gambling, either. Telluride, historic mining town of about 1,100, has had it with Fourth of July celebrations.

"We are just trashed out," says Rich Luhman, president of the Telluride Chamber of Commerce.

For years the town offered one of the most exuberant July 4th celebrations in the West. But as the years went by, word spread and the town's citizens found themselves outnumbered 5 to 1 by rowdy visitors, who cut down trees — for firewood or fun — and carried on as though they owned the place.

Town fathers conducted a poll of the residents and found that more than half didn't want a celebration this year, despite the fact that visitors account for half the annual gross sales during the holiday.

So the town council canceled the annual fireworks, ordered the bars closed, borrowed five police officers from neighboring jurisdictions and signed up 13 volunteers to keep the peace.

The town itself has three officers.

"We're not closing the town," said Luhman. "Some essential services — like gasoline and groceries — will still be available."

But the city's parks and campgrounds will be closed.

The town's two weekly newspapers — the Telluride Times and the Telluride Examiner — support the council's action. Tony Hebron, who writes for the Times, is one of the residents opposed to it.

"It's a tourist town and the reaction by government in the past has been bad," he said. "They're not reacting to the problem."

Hebron said the town shouldn't be trying to close down festivities, especially this year, the Bicentennial. Instead, he said, the city should make certain of the "type of police presence."

'Family' scores high in ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — A repeat of CBS' "All in the Family" was last week's mostwatched television show and an ABC undersea special by Jacques Cousteau the leastwatched program, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

The Nielsen audience samples, made public Tuesday, showed that the week's 20 most popular programs, including "All in the Family," were "Starsky and Hutch" and "Baretta" (both ABC); "M-A-S-H" and "Maude" (both CBS); "Jigsaw John" (NBC); "Phyllis" and Mary Tyler Moore" (both CBS); "Six Million Dollar Man" (ABC); "One Day at a Time," "Bob Newhart," "Kojak" and "Medical Center" (all CBS); "Sunday Mystery Movie" (NBC); "Laverne and Shirley" (ABC); "Switch" (CBS); "Streets of San Francisco," "Happy Days" and "Bionic Woman" (all ABC); and "Hawaii Five-O" (CBS).

Petition to recall Frank Rizzo filed

AARON EPSTEIN
The Washington Post

PHILADELPHIA — Leaders of the drive to oust Frank L. Rizzo as mayor of the nation's fourth largest city Tuesday filed a petition bearing 211,927 signatures to force Rizzo to quit or face a recall referendum.

The signatures, filed for verification in City Hall, purportedly represent nearly 25 per cent of the city's registered voters and nearly 45 per cent more than the number required by law to compel the recall question.

A three-member election board — composed of one pro-Rizzo Democrat, one anti-Rizzo Democrat and one pro-Rizzo Republican — and its staff of 124 will examine the signatures. The board has 15 days to determine whether enough of them are valid to force a recall vote.

Nearly 2,000 petition-carriers collected signatures during the last 60 days under the leadership of an arry of Rizzo's traditional liberal enemies, some of whom struck a timely Bicentennial theme by likening Rizzo to King George III.

One of the recall leaders, black lawyer Charles Bowser, who finished a distant second to Rizzo in last November's election, said the voters face a choice of "continued repression or recall."

Since Rizzo amassed 57 per cent of the votes to win a second term last November, his popularity has plummeted to the lowest point in his political career.

The major causes were a galaxy of increased taxes, the announced closing of the city-owned hospital for economy reasons, and a mob demostration outside a newspaper critical of the mayor.

Last year, Rizzo boasted of a balanced budget and campaigned on the slogan "He held down taxes." This year, the Rizzo administration peeled away all fiscal disguises, revealing a perilous 82 million-dollar-deficit. The mayor blamed rampant inflation.

To prevent the city from sliding into New York-style chaos, the mayor and the city council enacted the biggest tax increases in history.

Starting July 1, there will be a 29.3 per cent higher property tax, a wage tax up by 3.2 per cent, a business license tax increased by 33.3 per cent and a new 5-cent-a-barrel levy on oil refinieries.

At the same time, Rizzo is being buffeted by sharply increased water and sewer bills and multi-million dollar deficits in the transit and school systems.

Rizzo had no comment on the filing of the recall petition. In one of his few comments on it Rizzo noted sarcatsically several weeks ago that he knew "Friends of mine who have signed it — Mickey Mouse, Al Copone, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

The mayor's top political adviser, Albert V. Gaudiosi, said Rizzo will challenge the recall on every procedural and constitutional ground he can muster, both to preserve himself and the stability of future city administrations.

"If the recall process is allowed to continue on in its muddled form, it will hang over the political process like a sewer," Gaudiosi said.

He complained that the recall method "allows a guy who exercised his right to vote for or against Rizzo to have his vote wiped out by a guy who sat on his duff on election day."

If the election board certifies the signatures of at least 145,448 registered voters — 25 per cent of the total votes cast in last November's mayoral election — Rizzo has 10 days to resign. If he does not resign, an election would be held within 90 days and Philadelphia's 855,000 registered voters would be asked to vote "yes" or "no" on a single question.

"Shall Frank L. Rizzo be recalled and removed from the office of mayor?"

If a majority votes, "yes," Rizzo will be replaced by City Council President George X. Schwartz, a veteran of the Democratic Party machine here. Schwartz would become acting mayor until a replacement could be named at another election.

If ousted, Rizzo could not hold city office for two years. But he could seek federal or state office to run for mayor again in the next general election in 1979.

The last successful mayor recall election in a major U.S. city was in 1938, when Los Angeles Mayor Frank L. Shaw was recalled after accepting payoffs from racketeers.

Mercenaries accused of mass murder

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — Prosecution witnesses accused the 13 white mercenaries on trial in Luanda of mass murder, looting and robbery during the Angolan civil war.

Fernando Baires told the People's Revolutionary Court Tuesday he saw Daniel Gearhart of Kensington, Md., one of the three Americans on trial, "threatening some FNLA soldiers with death." Under crossexamination by defense attorney Bob Cesner of Columbus, Ohio, the Angolan admitted he might have seen Gearhart wave a gun but couldn't have understood what he was saying because he didn't understand English.

The FNLA was the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, the Western-supported faction for which the mercenaries were fighting in northern Angola. It was defeated by the Popular Movement, or MPLA, which is now the ruling faction in Angola.

The other two American defendants, Gary Acker of Sacremento, Calif., and Gustave Grillo, a native of Argentina from Jersey City, N.J., were not mentioned in testimony on Tuesday, the fifth day of the show trial. The other 10 defendants are British, and most of the testimony concerned their leader, Costas Georgiou, the British Cypriot mercenary commander known as Col. Callan.

Alfonso Carlos told the court he saw white mercenaries loading 70 black prisoners on trucks outside the San Salvador jail. He said black soldiers told him later all the prisoners were killed.

Carlos said he saw Georgiou kill a boy who tried to keep Georgiou from taking the boy's sister away with him.

Henrique Moises, an FNLA sergeant who fought alongside the mercenaries, testified that Callan and his chief assistant, Andrew McKenzie, made him and 16 of his men strip and line up.

Moises said Callan told the men, "When I say one-twothree, run." He said when they ran, two were shot.

"You lying bastard!" McKenzie shouted.

Baires and schoolteacher Joao Leitao told of a shooting spree by Callan and his men in San Salvador.

"They looted the safes in the finance department and the post office, lit their cooking fires with the currency, burned piles of money and tore up stacks of bills," Leitao said.

Lobbying measure wins Senate okay

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first major attempt in 30 years to increase federal regulation of lobbyists faces attempts in the House to dilute or kill it after the plan won lopsided Senate passage.

Legislation, passed 82 to 9 Tuesday in the Senate, would provide for strict disclosure requirements for the lobbyists who seek to influence legislation or the award of government contracts or grants worth more than $1 million.

The bill would extend lobbying registration and reporting requirements to executive branch activities for the first time in history.

The executive branch was included because of disclosures that certain large aerospace and defense contractors routinely spent large sums entertaining military and civilian officials responsible for contnazsawards, research, development and procurement.

Common Cause, the public interest group, lobbied for the bil, while Ralph Nader's associates, traditional allies of Common Cause, were vehemently opposed. They say the bill would hit hardest at small, public interest groups with limited resources. They are expected to fight it in the House.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, DConn., floor manager of the bill, said the hearings by his committee revealed that while "10,000 persons may be paid at any one time to engage in lobbying efforts ...under 2,000 of these lobbyists are now actually registered."

These are the major requirements in the Senate bill:

—That an organization register as a lobbyist if it made 12 personal contacts with a member of Congress in any quarter, spent more than $250 to hire a lawyer to lobby for it or spent more than $5,000 on a campaign to have citizens write their congressman.

—That all registered lobbyists file quarterly reports outlining their total lobbying campaign.

—That the reports include major issues in which the organization was interested, all persons in Congress it had contacted, all substantial gifts to members of Congress, total amounts spent and sources of contributions over $2,500.

So-called home-state organizations which only make contact with that state's representatives or senators are exempted.

Fred Wertheimer, a Common Cause spokesman, said the bill would cause disclosure of the true dimensions of lobbying in Washington.

But Public Citizen, a lobbying arm of Nader's Congress Watch, called the legislation "anti-democratic."

Diana files for divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Entertainer Diana Ross has filed for divorce from Robert Silberstein, her husband of three years, her manager said Tuesday.

The couple, who have three daughters, was reported to have worked out the divorce agreement and is "still friendly," according to her manager, Michael Roshkind, who said the court action wasfiled in California.

"There were no racial overtones," he added. Miss Ross is black and her husband white.

The girls were to remain with their mother, who is performing at the Palace Theater here.

Handsome tan may spell disaster

By BETTY OMMERMAN
Newsday

NEW YORK — Without proper precaution, that lovely tan you strive so hard to get every summer may, at best, start out as a painful sunburn. At worst, it could be a cause of skin cancer.

And, if neither of these extreme possibilities causes you to reach for the sun block or lotion, there's always the threat of dry, flakey skin, wrinkles and dark blotches. It's enough to make you wonder if great-grandmother was right when she shielded her face under a parasol.

"Any type of skin can suffer from too much sun," said Dr. Christopher M. Papa, acting chief of the division of dermatology at Rutger's University Medical School, New Brunswick, N.J., and director of clinical research for the dermatological division of Johnson & Johnson at New Brunswick. "In fact, you don't even have to concentrate on sitting in the sun. Driving a car with the window open on your side exposes you to the harmful effects of too much sun, without adequate protection."

He cited the case of a salesman, less than 30 years of age, who developed skin cancer on one side of his face and on one hand. "He was driving the car with the window open and that's where he got the sun," Papa said.

THE MOST COMMON PROBLEM is a burn followed by peeling skin. Wrinkles, caused by dehydration, may follow. but it's the threat of possible skin cancer that makes the idea of a suntan frightening.

Fair-skinned people are more susceptible to skin cancer than dark-skinned people; the Scandinavians and the Welsh are among the most susceptible.

The early symptoms — rarely fatal, or even painful — are often ignored. Sometimes, changes in pigmentation, often called oversized freckles or liver spots, may be such a sign.

Two other early signs to watch for are small, reddish, dry spots that become scaly, and mottled pigmentation that scales, bleeds, heals, then bleeds again.

There are other dangers in seeking out the sun's rays. Anyone taking Vitamin A acid medication for acne should make sure his or her face is protected by a cosmetic sunscreen; without it, painful irritation and burning will occur. The sun's ultraviolet rays can also cause a certain type of acne and lip blisters, and some rare diseases, such as lupus, can be aggravated.

However, Jonathan Zizmor, a New York dermatologist who teaches at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, believes that "the dangers of the sun are being exaggerated and its beneficial aspects ignored." Benefits include the unblocking of pores and the opening of plugged oil glands, through the peeling of the top layer of skin, and the improvement of such conditions as eczema and psoriasis. He does concede, in the June issue of Woman's Day magazine, that certain people "are allergic to a combination of sun and certain chemical substances."

AS A GUIDE, he lists seven substances that, when mixed with the sun, can cause an excruciating sunburn after short exposure. These include thiazide water pills, prescribed for high blood pressure, oral antidiabetic pills; most artificial sweeteners; many tranquilizers; perfumes containing oil of bergamot; decorant soaps containing haligenated saliclanolids, and essenses of lemon and lime, found in everything from soaps to cocktails.

"Other natural flavorings may also cause burning," Zizmor said. "These include parsnip, fennel, dill, parsley, carrots and celery. It doesn't matter whether you ingest them or rub them on the surface of the skin. Many natural cosmetics and herb soaps cause terrible sunburns."

The "mask of pregnancy" (brown blotches on the face, technically known as chloasma) is a result of interaction of the sun with hormones such as estrogen or progesterone. Women who are not pregnant but who are taking birth control pills containing those hormones also can be prone to this condition.

FOR ANY ONE WHO STILL CHOOSES to acquire a suntan, thought of by some as a status symbol, certain precautions are advised. Most important, according to experts, is gradual exposure.

"Limit the initial exposure to 10 minutes and avoid the hours between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., when the sun is at its strongest," Agnes Timor, a skin therapist and cosmetic chemist, advised. "Above all, never use a sun reflector. It will intensify the sun's rays and cause your skin to fry rather than tan." She advises upping the exposure time to 15 minutes for the next two days and then increasing it to 20 minutes for the fourth and fifth days.

"USE A MOISTURIZER and an eye cream and then apply a sun cream with paba (a chemical filter)," added Ms. Timor, who received specialized medical training for skin care in her native Budapest before emigrating to this country. "Never expose the face for more than 25 minutes a day and avoid mascara, eye liner and eye shadow in the sun. Eye makeup, even those said to be waterproof, can burn into the skin. You may even develop an allergy to the products, even if you weren't allergic before hand. This is due to perspiration opening up the pores, which then become clogged by the makeup."

People with sun-sensitive skins should use sun blocks to prevent any tanning. This is the most-offered advice. "But no (cosmetic) product is a total block," said Dr. Charles Rowland, vice president of research development for Avon, in Suffern, N.Y. "Only sinz oxide, a white cream, will block out all the sun's rays. Most sun blocks made by cosmetic firms only have 75 per cent blockage and allow for a slow tanning."

SUNSCREEN PRODUCTS also filter out a great amount of ultraviolet rays. Suntan oils, lotions and creams contain less blockage and therefore should be used with caution, depending on natural skin shade. Most products should be reapplied after swimming, after excessive perspiration and after 20 minutes in the sun.

MELISSA DAWN LOFTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lofton who reside on Route 2, has been named recipient of a $1,000 scholarship from the Faskin Foundation. Miss Lofton, who plans to attend Angelo State University, is a graduate of Greenwood High School.

MC to start new class

Xerox aborts project to underwrite articles

NEW YORK — The powerful Xerox Corp., challenged by an American writer on its plan to underwrite magazine articles in the same way it sponsors TV programs, has conceded that he is right and says it will not do it again.

In an exchange of letters between Xerox and author E.B. White of New Yorker fame, the corporation said it was canceling projects similar to the one it sponsored by Harrison E. Salisbury in Esquire magazine earlier this year.

White, writing from semiretirement in his saltwater farm in Maine, told Xerox that such corporate financing of a reporter threatened an independent press. There was something "ominous and unhealthy" about it, he wrote. "In the case of Salisbury, it was as though Esquire was accepting its first welfare payment, and was not its own man any more."

W. B. Jones, communications director for Xerox, wrote White that "your letter has stopped us in our tracks. We're trying to sort out our dilemma now." In a follow-up letter in May, Jones said: "We had two projects in development at the time we received your letter. Since then we've aborted them both, and, although that process involved some discomfort, we now feel better for it." The exchange appears in the current issue of the Authors Guild publication, the Bulletin.

The Salisbury article, "Travels Through America," a lengthy examination of the state of the country, was a "first" in the magazine publishing business in that it had been directly contracted for by a corporation. Xerox paid Salisbury former associate editor of the New York Times, $40,000 and $15,000 in expenses. Esquire which benefitted from ads that Xerox ran in the issue, justified the transaction on the grounds that it retained editorial control and that Salisbury was free to write whatever he liked.

Xerox said it regarded the sponsorship "as an extension of what we've done for years on television: sponsoring programs of substance that might not otherwise have gotten on the air."

White, in his lengthy letter to the corporation, written at its request as an expansion of an earlier protest he had made, said he didn't know anything about television and would limit his remarks to newspapers and magazines. "The press in our free country is reliable and useful not because of its good character," he argued, "but because of its great diversity. When a large corporation or a rich individual underwrites an article in a magazine, the picture changes."

He said it would be "hard to resist the suspicion that Esquire feels indebted to Xerox, that Mr. Salisbury feels indebted to both, and that the ownership or sovereignty of Esquire has been nibbled all around the edges. Sponsorship in the press is an invitation to corruption and abuse."

Senior portraits scheduled

New seniors at Lee High School may begin making appointments immediately to have their senior yearbook portraits made.

Rebelee advisor Paul C. Foraker said seniors should call 684-4343 for their appointments, if they have not already done so.

All seniors are eligible to make appointments immediately because photographs will not be made in alphabetical order this year as in the past.

No seniors will be photographed for the Rebelee after Oct. 1.

That's lots of sausage

NEW YORK (AP) — The annual output of sausage casings at a new Columbia, S.C. plant, when it is in full operation, will be sufficient to encase over 500 million pounds of sausage with a retail value of nearly $1 billion.

A Public Service Announcement from Walgreens:
It's Wise to Have Your Blood Pressure Checked.

High blood pressure is a "silent killer" . . . you can have it and not know it . . .
23 million Americans have it . . . only 11 million know they have it . . .
only 6 million do anything about it . . . only 3 million keep it under control

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE CAN BE CONTROLLED!

HOW DO YOU FIND OUT IF YOU HAVE IT?
Have your blood pressure checked at a clinic or at your doctor's office. Takes only a couple minutes!

HOW DO YOU CONTROL IT?
By following the doctor's instructions regarding weight control, by eating less salt, and medication. If he prescribes medicine, take it EVERY day, and have your blood pressure checked at regular intervals.

Everyone has blood pressure. It is the force of the blood against the walls of the arteries. This force is generated by the heart as it pumps blood to all parts of the body. In some people, blood pressure is nearly always higher than it should be because their arteries tend to clamp down, thus making it harder for the blood to pass through. This makes their blood pressure rise, and this, if neglected, can result in stroke, heart attack, or kidney failure.

Most people with high blood pressure have no symptoms at all! That's why it is so important to have your blood pressure checked to find out if you do have high blood pressure. If you do, then follow medical advice about taking medicine, and changing your diet and health habits. All this, plus regular blood pressure checks, can help you control high blood pressure, and permit you to lead a more normal and longer life.

More withholding (?)

The Internal Revenue Service, knowing full well that withholding is the surest way of bringing in all of the funds due it from the taxpaying public, has asked Congress to broaden its withholding powers.

The agency has requested authority to withhold taxes from the billions of dollars in interest and dividends paid each year to millions of Americans.

The present law requires only that a bank, corporation or other organization which pays dividends or interest report such payments (Form 1099) to IRS.

Individual taxpayers are required to list such payments on their tax returns, but there apparently are those persons who somehow fail to follow through on this requirement.

Donald C. Alexander, commissioner of IRS, told the Senate Finance Committee that a lack of funds precludes IRS from checking to see that every payment reported by a bank, for instance, is in turn reported by the taxpayer as income.

And Internal Revenue, of course, doesn't like this one bit.

The Treasury Department, which reportedly has not endorsed the proposed plan of withholding, estimates, however, that it could increase collections of such taxes by as much as $2.4 billion in 1977.

"Withholding is the way to go" because "there is a lot of tax evasion out there," Alexander said.

But just think what it would cost the dividend- and interest-paying firms in time, money and personnel to start and maintain such a collection system.

It is no wonder that the banking, savings-and-loan, life insurance and securities industries oppose withholding of taxes on dividends and interest payments, arguing that the system would be highly complicated and would result in over-withholding from small savers.

A spokesman for the U.S. Savings-and-Loan League suggested at the Senate committee hearing that if failure to report is a concern, taxpayers simply should be required to attach 1099 Forms to their tax returns. This seems to be a practical and much less expensive measure than withholding. The spokesman also noted the costly paperwork burden of the present system.

Russell B.Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said at the time of the hearing that he might offer the withholding plan as an amendment to the panel's tax cut bill.

It is interesting to note that in 1974, according to IRS figures, 40.4 million tax returns, including 25 million with income of under $15,000, reported receiving interest totaling $40.3 billion. Dividends were reported on 8.9 million returns, including 4.7 million filed by persons or couples with incomes under $15,000. The dividends reported totaled $21.5 billion.

A great deal of money is involved regardless of how one looks at it.

Internal Revenue Service is of the opinion that it must have such a withholding plan or additional funds in order to increase its personnel, if it is to fulfill its assigned duties..

On the other hand, the opponents feel that they are doing their part and more in reporting payments, and, further, that some of their clients would be penalized.

A lot of pro and con arguments will be heard both in and out of Congress before a decision in the matter is reached. And the summer temperature in Washington already is spiraling.

EYE ON CUBA

Havana is readying new attack on U.S.

By WILLIAM GIANDONI
Copley News Service

Communist Cuba is laying the propaganda foundation for a new attack on Puerto Rico and the United States.

Havana is spreading the word that the United States is systematically violating United Nations' resolutions by obstructing the independence of Puerto Rico.

As Rafael Hernandez Colon, governor of the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, said in Washington recently, the future of the freely associated state of U.S. citizens "is debated at the U.N. as another Vietnam or Angola or Mozambique by people who do not have the faintest idea of what or where the island is.

"In Paris it was even stated recently that life in Puerto Rico today is worse than in France under the Nazi occupation."

Hernandez Colon says that is a fiction, of course.

Puerto Rico has economic and social problems, what with unemployment running around 20 per cent and the construction industry in a shambles, but agriculture and tourism are climbing and industry is recovering rapidly.

However, the Socialist Party of Puerto Rico, whose views are regularly aired over the Cuban Communist radio propaganda service, points up only the negative side of the picture.

Never do the broadcasts from Havana mention that per capita income of the three million people in Puerto Rico has risen from $121 a year in 1940 to over $2,000 now.

Or that life expectancy has increased from 46 to 72 years. Or that illiteracy has been all but eliminated.

The Puerto Rican Socialists complain only of the alleged repressive campaign against their militants, of the arrests of 10 of their members, of the continued incarceration of party activists who shot up the U.S. Congress in the 1950s, and other such.

Never do the Marxists confess that they have gone to the polls time after time, espousing Puerto Rican independence from the United States, without being able to gain more than a few per cent of the total vote.

Most Puerto Ricans think the choice for their crowded little island is between a continuing commonwealth relationship and statehood.

In any case, Gov. Hernandez Colon and many other Puerto Ricans would like to improve the relationship between their homeland and the United States which dates back 78 years now, to the Spanish-American War.

That is why the governor was in Washington recently, to urge the U.S. Congress to give Puerto Rico additional self-government so as to strengthen its position as the "democratic stronghold" in the Caribbean.

He pointed out in a speech that "recent events have made the Caribbean area as a whole very unstable" and that the ferment and instability appear to coincide "with a new, militant phase of Cuban revolutionary activity.

"Already, the Cubans have shown by their willingness to serve as a sort of 'foreign legion' for the Soviet Union that they could pose a new threat to tranquillity and security in the Western Hemisphere.

"I do not believe it is exaggerated to suggest that Cuba hopes to convert much of the Caribbean area into a totalitarian, Communist bloc hostile to the United States," the governor declared.

Subsequent to the governor's address there were two items broadcast from Havana that suggested the possible guidelines for future Cuban action on Puerto Rico.

One was a commentary in which the Havana radio recalled that in 1973 the United Nations had approved a resolution declaring that Puerto Rico was a colony of the United States and that the United States had been violating the U.N. disposition. The other was a report attributed to the Soviet news agency, Tass, lauding Cuba's contribution "to the emancipating struggle of the Angolan people."

Tass was quoted as saying that Cuban aid to Angola "constituted a concrete response to the call from the United Nations General Assembly to aid morally and materially all those peoples who are found under colonial and foreign domination and who are struggling for their freedom."

That Marxist logic would be as applicable to Puerto Rico as it was to Angola.

WASHINGTON MERRY—GO—ROUND

'Supply is more than adequate'

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — While the public spotlight is focused on sex in Washington the State Department is quietly promoting sex abroad.

In faraway Indonesia, for example, U.S. Ambassador David Newsom has been notified that he will soon receive a shipment of over 50 million prophylactics as a foreign aid offering from the American taxpayers.

He solemnly pledged in a "priority" cable that he would strive to "greatly expand present usage rates." But he pleaded that the available supply is more than adequate and begged headquarters to "ship Indonesia no, repeat no, condoms" in the coming year.

The contraceptives have been consigned to Jakarta under a perfectly legitimate program to control birth rates in underdeveloped countries. But, as is their wont, the foreign aid bureaucrats have wound up accomplishing a service far removed from their mission.

Each year, the State Department's foreign aid agency ships millions of prophylactics, birth control pills, inter-uterine devices and cans of contraceptive foam to underdeveloped nations. This year alone, the agency plans to distribute some $11 million worth of condoms and $14 million worth of pills around the world.

The bureaucrats run into a problem, however, when they go shopping for the best buy. To get a good price, they purchase huge quantities. This creates a surplus, which the bureaucrats must dispose of. So suddenly, American ambassadors around the globe find themselves inundated with pills and prophylactics.

This is what has happened in Indonesia. The harassed ambassador was "surprised to learn," he cabled, "...that AID plans supply Indonesia 51,442,757 condoms during 1977."

He took a quick inventory of the birth control devices already on hand and concluded that the Indonesians already have far more than they can be expected to utilize, given the state of romance in the country.

Newsom cited some alarming statistics in his cable. "At March 1976 rate of condom usage (8077 gross) Indonesia has three years condom stock presently in country. Further 200,000 gross from (United Nations agencies) will soon be arriving, which will extend in-country stock to calculated level of over four years supply."

Not that the Ambassador is unwilling to do his part to advance sex in Indonesia. He would "try to greatly expand present usage rates," he promised. But he still felt he must "urge AID ship Indonesia no, repeat no, condoms during 1976-1977."

But in Washington, officials were not impressed with his problem. A spokesman told us that the ambassador had based his projections on "last year's figures."

WATCH ON WASTE: Coal companies will save millions of dollars at the taxpayers' expense if the Army Engineers have their way. Millions are going into the mammoth Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, which may turn out to be the biggest boondoggle of the decade before it is completed. The Tenn-Tom project, as it is known less formally, will be a connecting canal along the Alabama-Mississippi border. Already, a staggering $1.8 billion construction bill has been run up. The purpose of the waterway ostensibly is to cut freight transportation costs. Coal will be the main commodity that will be hauled on the canal. Army engineers estimate that the coal traffic will reach 40 million tons a year when the waterway operates at full capacity. This means the private coal companies, which will pay nothing for the use of the waterway, will get their transportation costs subsidized by the taxpayers to the tune of millions.

About half the coal that travels on the canal won't even be used in this country but will be shipped overseas. The Army Engineers contend that the coal exports will help the national trade balance and will create additional employment.

CIA FOOTNOTE: A group of conservative leaders, led by Rep. Philip Crane, R.-Ill., was entertained and briefed on the wonders of the Thieu regime during a visit to Saigon in 1974. Now it turns out that the sponsors were secretly funded by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The trip was partially financed by the Vietnamese Council on Foreign Relations. The American guests came back parroting the council's line about the glories of South Vietnam. They also denied the existence of the vicious "tiger cages" where Thieu's prisoners were kept.

No mention was made that the council got $170,000 in 1974-75 from the CIA. Not even all the directors and patrons of the council knew about the secret CIA support.

INSIDE REPORT:

President Jerry Ford's wayward bus rolls on and on

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration's seriousness of purpose about busing can be measured by the languishing of White House legislative suggestions, untouched and forgotten, in the Justice Department for two and one-half months until dislodged by election year commotion.

Current feverish efforts to draft a Ford anti-busing bill are widely interpreted as another example of President Ford adjusting public policy to Republican politics. Actually, the administration's performance on racial school busing the past month stems not only from Mr. Ford's irrepressible political opportunism but also administrative incompetency and a hopelessly amateurish Attorney General.

The result is what Mr. Ford often manages: the worst of two worlds, with both the anti-busing majority and the pro-busing minority furious at the President. The administration's wayward bus, moreover, helps explain why an incumbent President, presiding over peace and prosperity, now struggles for his own party's nomination.

The administration's last orderly reaction to busing came March 12 when James Cannon, director of the White House Domestic Council, wrote a busing memorandum that included a legislative option: attempt limiting the scope of court orders. Cannon sent the memo to Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi at the Justice Department (as well as Secretary David Mathews at the Health, Education and Welfare Department) and asked for proposals.

Nothing happened. The Justice

Evans Novak

Department ignored the memo, and the White House ignored the Justice Department. This may be unavoidable because of Mr. Ford's dismantling Richard M. Nixon's Prussian-style staff system. But it also indicates that busing was mighty low on the President's list of priorities during those 10 weeks of inaction.

The nearly universal political inference in Washington (and at Boston's city hall) is that the intensifying struggle with Ronald Reagan rekindled the administration's interest in busing. The truth, however, seems less political and more mindless.

On May 5, Solicitor General Robert Bork perused routine invitations to intervene in Supreme Court appeals on Boston busing and brought it up with his boss, Atty. Gen. Levi. Bork and Levi, both resolutely anti-busing and non-political, thought it would be a good idea.

J. Stanley Pottinger, Assistant Attorney General for civil rights, objected on both legal and political grounds.

Nevertheless, Levi and Bork decided to go ahead. By Monday, May 10, Bork had drafted a petition for the Supreme Court.

Incredible though it sounds, the White House now entered the picture for the first time with a telephone call to the Justice Department from Presidential Counsel Philip Buchen asking what in the world was going on.

Levi and Bork had mindlessly detonated a major political explosion. Two prominent Republican blacks, Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Secretary of Transportation William Coleman, angrily protested to Levi. As for Pottinger, he at least would not sign Bork's petition to the Court and at worst would resign (undoubtedly accompanied by most of the government's civil rights lawyers).

But the President appeared delighted and sought benefits from the Levi-Bork initiative. On May 18, the White House reported that Mr. Ford had instructed Levi last November to get the Supreme Court to "reexamine busing." That was news to just about everybody in the administration. Yet, Levi privately told colleagues, there had been a November conversation — but not quite the way the White House said it was; it was Levi who proposed going to the high court and Mr. Ford said okay. Like the legislative proposal, it had hibernated for months.

Although non-political in its origin, the proposed busing initiative quickly became supremely political. Just before the May 25 Kentucky primary, word was leaked about an intervention in the Louisville busing case (a step never contemplated by Levi). At a May 26 press conference, the President suggested even reviewing the basic school desegregation decision of 1954 (though this was recanted the next day at the White House).

Levi's decision on May 30 not to intervene in the Boston case, based mainly on fears that this would reward anti-busing violence, produced White House exhortations to do something as an alternative. So, after all those weeks of lassitude, Justice Department lawyers spent Memorial Day weekend slapping together a bill. The rush job was predictably faulty and is still being refined at this writing.

Those same lawyers were astonished by what they heard on CBS's "Face the Nation" June 6, just before the last primaries: President Ford endorsing the right of private schools to practice racial segregation, which contradicts the government's official position. Having ignored the busing mess throughout his presidency, Jerry Ford suddenly becomes Jim Crow. That brand of politics wins nobody.

U.S. presidents' wills become increasingly complex

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — George Washington used both sides of 15 sheets of specially prepared paper bearing his personal watermark to write his will.

Calvin Coolidge did it in one sentence.

Except for the four U.S. presients who died intestate, the chiefs of state made their wishes known in wills of varied styles and lengths.

Now these documents have been dug out of county courts, state archives, halls of records and libraries across the country and for the first time the verbatim texts have been published in a book, "Wills of the U.S. Presidents."

David B. Weaver, professor of law at George Washington University, wrote the legal notes accompanying the 31 wills. Herbert R. Collins, associate curator of the Smithsonian Institution's division of political history, supplied the biographical sketches of the 35 presidents, including Lincoln, Andrew Johnson, Garfield and Grant, who died without wills.

"Ulysses Grant at the time of his death was broke, and maybe he thought it was no use making one," Weaver said in an interview here. "He spent the last months of his life after he was stricken with throat cancer working on his memoirs in order to provide for his wife. But most presidents were financially well off."

A number of presidents wrote their own wills, especially in the early days, but later they were written by lawyers and the occasional inspirational or patriotic sentiments in them had disappeared.

"The earlier wills are short and sweet," Weaver said. "But the whole process of will drafting for people of wealth has changed. There are new complications in law, new practices. A well written will now provides answers for all questions that could conceivably come up, though most will not.

"The plain fact is that the personality of the president tends to be less evident in later documents. Presumably they express his own ideas but not in his own words. They're written in legal draftsman's language and they have become progressively longer and more technical."

The first president began his will, written in the summer before his death, simply enough: "I George Washington of Mount Vernon — a citizen of the United States, — and lately President of the same ..."

"Washington's will was unique in his tendency to explain what he had in mind," Weaver said. "He included his philosophy, that young people should be able to get an education here, that they ought not to go abroad for schooling."

Many of the early testators made disposition of specific personal possessions, often of patriotic significance. "There were what seems like dozens of walking canes made from the wood of the frigate Constitution," Weaver noted with a laugh.

While most of the later wills have been long and complex because of taxes, trusts and various legalities, Calvin Coolidge's was the shortest and simplest of all:

"Not unmindful of my son John, I give all my estate both real and personal to my wife Grace Coolidge, in fee simple — Home at Washington, District of Columbia this twentieth day December, A.D. nineteen hundred and twenty six."

"It contains a simple idea, basically 'I leave everything to my wife even though I realize my son is around.' By mentioning the son he shows it was not a matter of oversight," Weaver explained.

"It's completely consistent with Coolidge's reputation for succinct expression. But it's too short. It does the job and gives everything to his wife. But it would have been better if he had named her executrix, saving additional expense incurred in the administration of the estate."

Nine presidents referred to the presidential papers in their wills, with John Quincy Adams directing his son Charles Francis as executor to create a special fireproof place for the papers.

"But with the exception of the two Adamses the handling of papers is rather haphazard until we get to Franklin Roosevelt, who got a library and museum established," Weaver said. "It is abundantly apparent, from Washington to Johnson, all thought and acted on the belief that the papers belonged to them personally."

The figure of four out of 35 presidents who died intestate is much lower than the national average, Weaver pointed out, since "probably something like 50 per cent of the population dies without a will.

Slender Ade solves widespread problem

In our society, thin and young equal beauty. That's a harsh fact, but it does explain some of the reasons for wanting to lose weight. Being overweight nearly always results in a loss of self-confidence, and without self-confidence, a youthful outlook on life is rare indeed. Understandably, in a society where the consumer is king, a loss of self-confidence results in a malady, common to most overweight persons known a "snack addiction." And the usual home remedy for snack addiction is larger meals. Common sense and your doctor will probably agree that this is a good example of the cure being worse than the disease.

The problem of being overweight has been widespread for some time in our society, as evidenced by the many fad diets available today. Many people try them all, usually to discover that the only thing getting smaller is the pocketbook. The reason most diets fail is because they are inhuman; they are opposite to human physical and emotional needs. The best diet is one that reduces fat with a minimum loss of lean body tissue. This is one of the reasons why Slender Ade is so good. Slender Ade provides all of the important nutrients so that your body can metabolize the maximum amount of fat without losing the lean tissue.

Slender Ade is a complete, satisfying and convenient meal. Mixed with milk or juice, you can trim down while you actually enjoy losing weight. The product is formulated to burn off those extra calories and helps shrink the intestine so that you want less to eat. You'll discover such other benefits as better sleep, more energy, stronger nails and healthier hair.

The Slender Ade program also offers the expert nutritional counseling necessary to promote the self-confidence needed to feel, think, and look young.

Slender Ade is the diet that is most revolutionary, most effective and most delicious. This summer can be your slender season. Your Slender Ade representative has a weight loss program designed with you in mind. Call Dave Sandidge at 682-8775 for free delivery in Midland or call Kay Sandidge in Odessa at 366-3334.

Yarbrough loses damage lawsuit

HOUSTON (AP) — Two Houston businessmen who sued Texas Supreme Court nominee Donald B. Yarbrough have been awarded $97,350 in damages by a state district court jury.

The judge will issue a final judgment in the case later.

The plaintiffs, Rex L. Cooper and Douglas Ford had sought about $539,000 in actual and exemplary damages.

However, Yarbrough was cleared of most of the fraud allegations against him in the verdict returned Tuesday by the 11-member jury which had deliberated four days.

Most of the allegations brought by Cooper and Ford stemmed from a 1974 bank purchase agreement the two men said they had with Yarbrough.

They claimed they gave him $117,500 in cash and gold coins to buy control stock in a bank. They testified they had nothing to show for their money.

The seven-man, four-woman jury ruled that Yarbrough failed to provide the legal advice he promised Cooper in order for Cooper to get a tax shelter investment. The jury decided such action constituted "gross negligence" and entitled Cooper to recover $43,000 actual and $37,500 exemplary damages.

The jury also ruled that Cooper forfeited $100,000 when he signed a document releasing himself of a $300,000 promissory note with Yarbrough and that no fraud was intended.

Michael Maness, Yarbrough's attorney, had argued that the $100,000 was like earnest money in a home purchase deal and that Yarbrough was entitled to it when Cooper backed out of an agreement to purchase $400,000 worth of stock in Commercial Bank of Victoria. The Victoria bank was one of three banks mentioned during testimony as being considered for purchase.

Yarbrough testified his purchase of the bank was not part at the group effort which included Cooper and Ford but he said he agreed after the purchase to sell the two men stock in the bank.

The jury found Yarbrough committed fraud when he represented to Ford that Ford would be paying the same price as Yarbrough for the control stock in any bank the three might purchase together.

Such a finding entitled Ford to recover the value of $9,350 worth of gold coins used in the early planning to buy the bank, the jury ruled.

The jury also found that Yarbrough made misrepresentations to Cooper and Ford which resulted in their execution of promissory notes and the delivery of cash.

The jurors' decision voided a $22,600 promissory note signed by Ford and will require Yarbrough to return $7,500 in cash.

Maness, along with plaintiffs' attorneys, Grant Cook and Charles Moore, will present arguments to State District Court Judge William Blanton in another week before the final judgment is rendered.

Top university scholars foresee future pressures

By TERRY KIRKPATRICK

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — "It's nice to have the pressure off." David Germany said as he leaned back on the bed in his Princeton University dormitory room after his last exam.

His mind was pulling into focus the impressions of his four years at Princeton, which he later condensed into a thousand words for his valedictory address — a duty of the university's top-ranked graduate.

"I will give a speech and after that I will not be the valedictorian," he said quietly. "I was the valedictorian. It implies nothing about who I am or what I'll be in the future."

Across the tree-shaded campus, Susan Hurley, this year's salutatorian, was leaving her room to find the professor who was translating her commencement greeting into the Latin she used to deliver it, an old Princeton tradition at June commencement.

"Intellect is really very important to me," she says. "But I think there are too many people who get too caught up in it."

Although their thoughts are turning now from what has been to what will come, each of these 21-year-olds speaks freely but modestly of past achievement. If their experience is any indication, honors graduates at America's top universities are strongly motivated, practical, often introspective, pleased but not overwhelmed by academic excellence, and easily diverted by music and other pastimes.

Princeton's top two students — they had nearly all A's all four years—also are concerned that being labled valedictorian or salutatorian may increase the pressures on them to succeed.

He didn't expect academic superiority four years ago. Now he is aiming for a doctor of philosophy degree in economics, his major, at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

"There are many things that are beyond me. Applied math, calculus, things like that always came pretty easy to me. But I got into a course that started teaching math theory and I just sat there lost, dazed and confused. And there was a 15-year-old behind me who thought it was simple.

Classical music can distract him from books, as can his girlfriend and friends across the hall. Much of his time was devoted to campus activites, including intramural athletics and the yearbook he edited.

Eventually he hopes to find a teaching position or a job in the business world — a practical role, close to a final product.

Susan says, "... I want a law degree, to have some clout in the real world."

She studied philosphy at Princeton and will emphasize international law at Harvard Law School in the fall. Her home is Santa Barbara, Calif. She wants to travel and hopes to spend a year in France and Italy studying their languages. Free time at Princeton went to singing with the glee club and studying Japanese art.

High grades were something "I just kind of took for granted," she says. "I don't think I consciously set the goal. I just never thought of doing anything else.

"It takes a lot of work. I'm extremely nervous and I can channel a lot of nervous energy into it."

"My desire is to experience life as fully as possible before I die. I'm really aware of how brief life is and that's why I want to live a life of adventure, instead of riches or status."

Railroad will participate in birthday celebration

BALLINGER — To help celebrate this town's 90th birthday June 29, the Santa Fe Railroad, which helped the town get started in 1886, will dispatch its red, white and blue bicentennial exhibition car to be a part of the day-long festivities.

Also on hand will be the Texas Department of Agriculture's big rolling theater exhibit which includes a 900-slide show featuring what Texans are accomplishing with their land.

Santa Fe officials, who have agreed to throw in a shiny red, white and blue engine as part of their exhibit, said the special train houses a collection of railroad artifacts and visual information.

Since Ballinger is one of the relatively few Santa Fe stations which will host the bicentennial exhibition, the display will be open a full eight hours — from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Also open to the public on a free basis during the same hours, the food and fiber mobile unit of the Texas Department of agriculture will include recipes and other information about Texas agriculture.

The exhibit will be located at the Runnels County Court House.

Organization taps Hensley

ODESSA — Malcolm Hensley, Odessa College business manager, was elected president-elect of the Texas Public Junior College Business Officers Association at its annual meeting in Austin Friday.

After serving one year as president-elect, Hensley will assume the duties of president.

Hensley has been business manager at Odessa College eight years.

Nine will represent region in foreign exchange project

Nine area high school students will leave this month for eight weeks abroad, learning about other cultures and sharing their heritage with foreign families.

One student is a part of the American Field Service program and the other eight are part of the Youth for Understanding program. All nine will live with a family in another country during their stays.

Cindy Michael, Midland High School student, will leave for Brazil this week as part of the American Field Service program. Miss Michael is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan C. Michael of 2004 North I St.

Five of the students participating in Youth for Understanding are from Midland and three are from Big Spring.

Cindy Morales, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felipe Morales of 2590 Dengar St., will go to Chile, while Amy Dwyer will go to Greece. Miss Dwyer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Dwyer of 3313 W. Dengar St.

Going to Uraguay will be Karen Bumpus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald G. Bumpus of 2002 Oaklawn St.

Susan Lamkin, daughter of Mrs. Birdie Lamkin of 1405 Westcliffe St., will spend her summer in Sweden. Kathy Fisher will go to Germany. Miss Fisher is the daughter of Mrs. Marion Fisher of 2502 Frontier St.

Miss Bumpus is a Midland High student and the others are Lee High School students.

Michelle Coffee, Reina Hamby and Mary Cherry are all from Big Spring

Miss Coffee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Coffee' will go to Germany. Also going to Germany will be Miss Cherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Cherry.

Reina Hamby will go to Sweden. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lanny Hamby.

Lions set installation banquet

Charlie Dunn will be installed as new president of the Greenwood Lions Club during an officers installation banquet at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Greenwood school cafeteria.

Master of ceremonies for the covered dish supper will be past district governor Carl Hyde of Midland. Happy Bond of the Southside Lions Club will serve as installing officer.

Various awards will be presented, and the group will recognize outgoing club president Max Anderson.

Fewer entering U.S. hospitals

The number of patients entering U.S. hospitals is dropping for the first time in 15 years, says the American Hospital Association.

If it continues, experts believe it will be a major step in slowing the climbing costs of health care.

The Oakland A's sold the contracts of Joe Rudi, left, and Rollie Fingers, center, to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each Tuesday, and the New York Yankees reported the purchase of A's pitcher Vida Blue, right, for $1.5 million.

Finley dismantles A's for cash...lots of cash

OAKLAND (AP) — Charles O. Finley is $3.5 million richer, but his once mighty Oakland A's are three more star players poorer and calling it the end of the championship line.

"We don't have much of a team anymore," conceded Sal Bando, an unclaimed item in the biggest one-day sale in baseball history. "But he built it. I guess he has a right to tear it down."

"There's no way those three can be replaced," said Gene Tenace, another survivor of the Tuesday night housecleaning in which Finley peddled left fielder Joe Rudi, relief pitching star Rollie Fingers and left-handed starter Vida Blue.

RUDI AND Fingers were sold for $1 million each, moving from the Oakland clubhouse to the Boston locker room two hours before the game against the Red Sox, which the A's won 3-2 on the strength of Tenace's two home runs including one leading off the bottom of the ninth inning.

Blue went to the New York Yankees for, according to Finley, $1.5 million. Just before baseball's midnight trading deadline, the Yankees acquired Ken Holtzman in a nine-player deal with Baltimore, thereby reuniting the A's former pitching big three of Catfish Hunter, Blue and Holtzman.

Rudi, Fingers and Blue were among the seven unsigned players on the A's roster, and Finley said, "I made every effort to sign them, but when it got down to the last day, I had no alternatives."

WHEN ASKED what he was left with, besides cash, Finley replied, "I don't even want to talk about that."

He sounded like a beaten man, one who had lost $3.5 million rather than gaining that amount. But later in the evening he vowed, "I'll rebuild. I'm going to use the money to buy players and I'm going to do it immediately."

Bando, Tenace and shortstop Bert Campaneris are the only remaining front-line players from the team that won world championships in 1972-73-74.

Hunter was the first to go, being declared a free agent after the 1974 season on the grounds Finley had breached his $100,000-a-year contract. Second baseman Dick Green retired, predicting correctly that the A's couldn't win another title without Hunter.

A few days before this season began, Finley traded slugger Reggie Jackson and Holtzman, both unsigned, to Baltimore for pitcher Mike Torrez, first baseman-outfielder Don Baylor and pitcher Paul Mitchell. Baylor is unsigned, as are Bando, Campaneris and Tenace, so could play out his option this year and move next spring.

"I can't see any reason to sign now," said Tenace.

MANAGER CHUCK Tanner defended the owner's decision to sell, saying, "He did the best thing."

But Bando said, "I was shocked more than anything over the fact he took money instead of players. But he might have financial problems we don't know about."

And, shaking his head, he added, "He got $3.5 million for just three guys. They're paying $9 million for the new expansion teams."

Billy Williams of the A's said, "I can't figure it out, unless he doesn't want a team anymore."

But Tanner said, "I guarantee you Charlie Finley will be operating the A's in Oakland next season."

In the Red Sox clubhouse, catcher Carlton Fisk said, "I wasn't shocked, just surprised—pleasantly surprised."

JOHNSON, sizing up his defending champs' chances of catching the frontrunning Yankees in the AL East, said, "We're both tremendously improved. We got what we wanted and they got what they wanted."

When asked where he'd use Rudi, with Jim Rice, Fred Lynn and Dwight Evans now comprising the outfield and Carl Yastrzemski holding down first base, Johnson replied, "I haven't had a minute to think about it."

The Yankees acquired pitchers Doyle Alexander and Grant Jackson and catcher Elrod Hendricks from Baltimore with Holtzman in exchange for pitchers Rudy May, Tippy Martinez, Scott MacGregor and Dave Pagan plus catcher Rick Dempsey. The sale of the three A's and the nine-player deal between Baltimore and New York was the big personnel shifts in baseball, but there was more shuffling.

Outfielder-infielder Reggie Smith was sent by the St. Louis Cardinals to the Los Angeles Dodgers for catcher-outfielder Joe Ferguson plus minor leaguers Bobby Dethrage and Fred Tinsdale.

The Texas Rangers purchased outfielder Joe Lahoud from the California Angels.

The Chicago White Sox sold Pete Varney to the Altanta Braves and purchased former A's pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom from Richmond of the International League, placing him with Iowa of the American Association.

The Red Sox sent catcher Andy Merchant and Steve Dillard to Pawtucket in the International League to make room on their roster for Rudi and Fingers.

And the New York Mets activated outfielder Mike Vail, optioned pitcher Rick Baldwin, placed catcher Ron Hodges on the disabled list and called up catcher Jay Klevin.

Feeble Cubs lose again

BY TED BATTLES

Midland's Cubs find themselves in a position of wondering where their next base hit is coming from. With El Paso, the Texas League West Division leaders, coming to Midland for a six-game series starting tonight, it's no time to be treading water.

"We've got to get some offense going," Manager Denny Sommers said after the Cubs lost their third in four starts to Amarillo's streaking Gold Sox at Cubs Stadium Tuesday night.

"The way we're going right now, we can't afford to make defensive mistakes. We aren't generating enough offense to overcome a four or five run lead."

The Amarillo loss was a good example. Lefthander Dave Geisel, now 3-4, lost 5-0 with a route-going performance, but it probably should have been more like 1-0.

A TWO out misjudged fly ball in center went for a two-run double in the second, a single that went for a triple in the fourth when a diving catch failed, gave the Gold Sox an extra run in the two-run fourth, and then in the ninth a two-out error, passed ball and a single produced the other run.

The Cubs lost the heart of their offense when Bill Droege, off to a blazing start in the American Association, and Wayne Tyrone were called up to Wichita. And to compound matters, no one in the lineup is swinging a hot or timely bat while several players are battling slumps.

Sommers hasn't been informed whether help is on the way or not. "Most of the other clubs are getting some help from AAA," points out Sommers.

Galen McSpadden, who blanked the Cubs on five hits Tuesday, is down from AAA, as was Mike Allen, who won over Midland Saturday.

WITH WICHITA having problems of its own, Sommers is looking toward Florida and the rookie camp for relief.

It is hoped that the recent draft will produce a prospect off the college campus capable of stepping into AA ball and producing like a Mike Umfleet, Steve Hamrick, Ray Burris or a Jerry Tabb.

On the bright side, Umfleet, out for two weeks after a beaning, may give it a try tonight for a few innings. The Cubs certainly can use his .306 bat.

While McSpadden blanked the Cubs, the fourth time it has been accomplished this year, Sommers didn't feel the southpaw was that overpowering, "but he did a good job of mixing speeds and placing the ball."

Steve Hamrick, 6-5, a 2-1 loser the last time out, will go for Midland against the Diablos tonight and perhaps the appearance of Max Patkin, baseball's loose-jointed madcap, will help change the Cubs' luck.

CUBS BRIEFS — Midland will play El Paso in a Ladies Night doubleheader Thursday...Mike Sember had two of Midland's five hits while Jose Ortiz made a sliding catch of Rick Sweet's sinking liner in the fourth for the Cubs' outstanding defensive play...Outfielder Rocky Craig knocked in two runs in the second with a double and another in the fourth to pace the Gold Sox to their 14th win in 17 games...

Foreman cries for Ali after smoking Frazier

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — "I can whup any man I can hit—the Lord's always with the puncher—and the man I want now is the champion."

Was Muhammad Ali, winging across the Pacific for his $6- million travesty against wrestler Antonio Anoki, listening?

The measured, confident words came from the unmarked lips of a new George Foreman after the one-time junevile delinquent from the streets of Houston hammered dead-game Joe Frazier into retirement with a fifth-round knockout Tuesday night at the half-filled Nassau Coliseum.

THE END of the ballyhooed brawl between two slugging exchampions came with stunning suddenness. The bull-strong, 27- year-old Foreman nailed Smokin' Joe with a whistling combination of punches midway in the fifth round, sending him to his hauches. Moments later, Foreman landed a left to the chin followed by a thunderbolt right.

Frazier fell against the padding in the corner of the ring, blood gushing from a cut over the right eye. He staggered to his feet at the count of seven, his legs rubbery anf his eyes glazed.

HIS CONCERNED manager, Eddie Futch, rushed to the apron and whispered into the ear of Harold Valan, "Stop it, we've had enough."

Valan obliged. The time was 2:26 of the fifth—even at that more than twice as long as Smokin' Joe lasted on that historic night in Kingston, Jamaica Jan. 22, 1973, when Foreman, a 3-1 underdog, floored him six times before wresting the championship from him in less than two rounds.

"I wanted to keep fighting," Frazier said after Tuesday's defeat, which ended his ring career. "I begged Eddie to let me go on but Eddie always knows best."

Some 45 minutes after the fight had ended and the crowd had poured out of the Long Island arena, Frazier emerged from his dressing room, a patch covering a stitching job over his right eye, and announced:

"I guess it's time to hang the gloves on the wall...From now on, it's boogie, boogie, boogie." Both he and Foreman were guaranteed a million dollars for the fight.

EVEN WHILE he ruled the heavyweights of the world, Frazier led a rock and roll band called "The Knockouts."

There's nothing musical about his conqueror, George Foreman, grim and mechanically merciless, deadly hitting power, who is now intent on reclaiming the world crown he lost to the tricky, rope-swinging Ali in Kinshasha, Zaire Oct. 30, 1974.

It's the only fight Foreman has ever lost—and he admits the memory of it tears away at his innards.

"I want to be an active fighter, I'm ready to take on anybody, but I think I should fight the top challengers," the 6-foot-3 contender said.

"The man I want—and I think I deserve to get—is Muhammad Ali."

After Ali's burlesque act with Inoki in Tokyo June 25, the heavyweight king has a Sept. 28 date at Yankee Stadium with an old adversary, Ken Norton, who split two decisions with Ali, once breaking his jaw.

Trinity, Stanford forge net dominance

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Defending champion Trinity and Stanford were tied for the lead going into today's rounds of the U.S. Tennis Association Women's National Collegiate Tennis Championships.

The tournament at the University of Utah continues through Saturday.

After four rounds of singles and two rounds of doubles competition, Trinity and Stanford were tied at 20, followed by Southern California 15, UCLA 14, Texas-Austin 13 and Texas-Permian Basin, Miami and Southern Methodist, all at 11.

Top-seeded and defending singles champion Stephanie Tolleson of Trinity defeated UCLA's Cindy Thomas 6-3, 6-2 Tuesday.

Miss Tolleson and Sandy Stap of Trinity downed Kathy Fink and Alison Carter of Nevada-LasVegas 6-3, 6-2 in doubles competition.

The No. 1-seeded doubles team of Miss Forood and Barbara Jordan defeated Agnes Murchison and Cindy Neel of Auburn 6-2, 6-1.

Midlanders post wins

ABILENE—Midlanders Vicki Vasicek and Jeff Bramlett won the Girls' 18-under and Boys' 16-under championships respectively at the Abilene Open Tennis Tournament Sunday.

Miss Vasicek defeated Lynn Davis of Hurst, 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the finals. She had previously beaten Eleanor Bidd, Wichita Falls; Susan Shealy, Ft. Worth; and Stacy Steimer, Ft. Worth.

She just missed capturing another title when she went three sets with Marla Watson of Ft. Worth before falling in the Girls' 16-under finals, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Arizona State foiled by Eastern Michigan

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Arizona State came to the 30th College World Series with 19 straight baseball victories, the favorite tag and a team batting average of .348.

Eastern Michigan lefthander Bob Owchinko changed all that in a little more than two hours Tuesday night with a masterful seven-hitter to give his club a 2-1 victory over top-rated Arizona State.

"Owchinko was just a much better pitcher than we've had to face in some time," said Arizona State Coach Jim Brock. "When you sit back and analyze it, it was probably a super performance by him."

The victory left Eastern Michigan, 46-14, the only unbeaten among the four remaining series contenders and ended the possibility of Arizona and Arizona State title game.

Arizona State, 64-9, tangles with Maine, 29-8, in a elimination game Wednesday night, while Arizona, 53-17, will try to stay alive against Eastern Michigan.

If the two Arizona schools are victorious, they would battle Thursday night and Eastern Michigan would receive the bye into the title game.

"I can't say enough about Owchinko," said Eastern Michigan Coach Ron Oestrike after his senior southpaw won his second straight series game and outdueled touted Floyd Bannister.

"His breaking stuff was the best it's been all year. He faced six of those kids in a summer league so he knew them pretty well."

Eastern Michigan gave Owchinko plenty of support in the field, including three double plays.

"I tried to keep them off balance with the breaking pitches and I used an awful lot of them toward the end," said Owchinko. "I went to my curve especially with men on base. It was working so well, that on a couple of occasions I almost turned to my shortstop and said, 'be ready.'

"After I got by the eighth inning, I had no doubt I was going to win."

All the game's runs came in the first three innings and what proved to be the winning tally came on an error.

In running his record to 13-3, Owchinko struck out six and walked three.

Starless A's grab win

By The Associated Press

Gene Tenace, one of Oakland's few remaining stars, hit his second home run of the game leading off the bottom of the ninth inning to give the decimated A's a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night.

The Red Sox took a 2-1 lead in the eighth when Glenn Abbott, who had a no-hitter for seven innings, gave up his first hit, a single by Jim Rice, and Carlton Fisk followed with a homer. The A's tied the score 2-2 with an unearned run in the bottom of the eighth.

Abbott, making his first start since May 8, was a last-minute choice because Vida Blue, the scheduled starter, was sold to the New York Yankees a few hours before the game. A's owner Charles O. Finley also peddled outfielder Joe Rudi and relief ace Rollie Fingers to the Red Sox.

ELSEWHERE in the American League, the Baltimore Orioles ended a nine-game losing streak by defeating the Chicago White Sox 4-0, the Kansas City Royals pounded out a club record 24 hits in walloping the Detroit Tigers 21-7, Gaylord Perry moved into sixth place on the all-time strikeout list in pitching the Texas Rangers past the Cleveland Indians 3-2, the New York Yankees shaded the Minnesota Twins 4-2 and the California Angels edged the Milwaukee Brewers 1-0.

In the National League, the Cincinnati Reds downed the Chicago Cubs 6-4, the Philadelphia Phillies thumped the San Francisco Giants 10-2, the New York Mets nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1, the San Diego Padres squeaked past the Montreal Expos 2-1 and the Atlanta Braves nosed out the St. Louis Cardinals 5-4.

THE SCHEDULED game between the Houston Astros and Pittsburgh Pirates was postponed because of high water around the Houston Astrodome.

Lee May's two-run homer and a pair of run-scoring doubles by Mark Belanger backed the five-hit pitching of Jim Palmer as the Orioles snapped their nine-game skid.

Amos Otis drove in five runs and Dave Nelson four to lead the red-hot Royals to their seventh consecutive triumph. Otis' hits included a three-run homer while Tom Poquette had two singles, two doubles, an inside-the-park homer and scored five runs.

TEXAS' PERRY handcuffed his former Cleveland teammates on six hits and passed Bob Feller and Warren Spahn with six strikeouts for a career total of 2,586.

Thurman Munson slammed four straight hits, including a game-tying homer in the sixth inning and a tie-breaking two-run single inthe seventh, to lead the Yankees over the Twins.

California's Nolan Ryan hurled the eighth two-hitter of his career and Bobby Bonds drove in the only run with a seventh-inning single.

BOB BAILEY delivered a tiebreaking pinch single in a three-run eighth inning to help the Reds beat the Cubs for the 16th time in the last 17 meetings.

Jay Johnstone and Garry Maddox each drove in four runs as the Phillies routed the Giants. Dave Kingman's single in the eighth inning gave the Mets their victory over the Dodgers.

San Diego's Alan Foster limited the Expos to six hits while Earl Williams slugged his seventh home run and Ken Henderson slammed a two-run double to lead the Braves over the Cardinals.

Tanner plays grass tough

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Roscoe Tanner, one of the hardest hitters in tennis, thinks the whole world calendar needs shaking up if Wimbledon is to keep its place as the greatest of all tournaments.

"There should be several grass-court events before we go to Wimbledon," said the star from Lookout Mountain, Tenn. "It is absurd that some of the world's best players have to go into Wimbledon with one week's preparation on grass, or even less."

TANNER, whose service has been electronically measured at 140 miles an hour, is a difficult customer to deal with on grass, where the ball skids and bounces unevenly.

He has made a big splash in English tennis these last two weeks, winning grass court tournaments at Manchester and Beckenham. To do that he had to forego the French Championship on clay.

His run of success came to an end Tuesday when Ray Moore of South Africa humbled him 7-6, 3-6, 9-7 in the second round of the John Player Tournament, the last warm-up event before Wimbledon begins next Monday.

Tanner's plan is to turn the whole year's program upsidedown.

"I would like to see us play three or four weeks on grass in England before Wimbledon," he said. "Never mind the French and Italian championships. They are played before Wimbledon simply because it's traditional. Why not move them back into the summer?

"We could have our English season, culminating in Wimbledon, and then move on to Europe for a season on clay. There is no need to keep Forest Hills until August, when the weather is so hot and sticky.

"Now that they have clay courts at Forest Hills, the U.S. Championships could be put back to October, when the weather in New York is still good. The professional tennis council should study the whole year's program and start replanning it afresh."

TANNER SAID he has had plenty of practice on grass in the last two weeks and is not greatly concerned over losing at Nottingham. "I was beginning to feel tired," he said. "I could do with a few days of rest before Wimbledon."

Seven Americans are still in the hunt for the $18,375 first prize. The final is scheduled for Saturday.

Mike Estep of Dallas staged a major upset Tuesday with a 6-0, 4-6, 6-3 win over Italy's Adriano Panatta, the winner of both the Italian and French titles on clay. Estep meets Ove Bengtson of Sweden in today's third round.

Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., seeded No. 2 at Wimbledon behind Arthur Ashe, whipped Australian Colin Dibley 6-4, 6-2 Tuesday and plays fellow American Dick Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., today. Stockton struggled to defeat Tim Gullikson of Datyon, Ohio, 6-4, 7-6.

Bob Lutz of San Clemente, Calif., meets Tom Tkker of The Netherlands, Billy Martin of Palos Verdes, Calif., faces Mexico's Raul Ramirez, Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., plays Ilie Nastase of Romania and Sherwood Stewart of Goose Greek, Tex., takes on Roger Taylor of Britain.

Evert adds flair to court

EASTBOURNE, England (AP) — America's Chris Evert returned to Britain Tuesday and wasted little time giving the English another glimpse of the royal behavior on the court that has made her the queen of tennis.

But off the court, the tanned 21-year-old from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., confessed she is like many women of more ordinary standing.

"It's been very frustrating," she said in a rasping voice made hoarse because of an attack of laryngitis. "I like to talk."

She managed a smile and a slight chuckle at her confession, but she could afford to be pleased despite her vocal discomfort. It has not affected her tennis game.

Making her first appearance in Britain and on grass since Wimbledon last year, classy Chris, now sporting a shorter hair style instead of her familiar ponytail, easily breezed through her first two matches in the Eastbourne Women's Grass Tournament.

Top-seeded here—and again for Wimbledon next week—Miss Evert wore down Sweden's Christine Sandberg 6-3, 6-2 in a second-round match, then returned later in the day to demolish Mrs. Jan Duplooy of South Africa 6-1, 6-1 before an appreciative center-court crowd.

Open means Nicklaus

DULUTH, Ga. (AP) — Over them all, on the eve of the 76th United States Open Golf Championship, looms the menacing presence of Jack Nicklaus.

There's Hale Irwin, that fiercely competitive man with the burning desire and happy habit of playing the difficult courses so very, very well.

There's Tom Weiskopf, the enormously talented man tiptoeing on the edge of greatness, restrained only by a temperament that defies control.

There's Johnny Miller, the golden gun from the west, capable of reaching in his bag and jerking out a 63, or a 62. Or even a 61.

THERE'S RAY Floyd, the reformed playboy who celebrated his sobriety with a record-setting, runaway victory in the Masters and fully expects "to have a very good tournament here."

There's Hubert Green, the year's leading money-winner, author of a rare sweep of three consecutive titles earlier this year.

There's Ben Crenshaw, the dynamic young man who now, at last, is fulfilling the bright promise of his fantastic start.

There's John Mahaffey, who almost won last year, and Lou Graham, who did, and British Open champion Tom Watson.

There are the kids, seemingly immune to pressure, unawed by the great stars and the great traditions—Tom Kite, Joe Inman, Mark Hayes, Jerry Pate.

THERE ARE the veterans, seeking a last hurrah in the most important golf tournament of them all—Arnold Palmer, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Gene Littler, Don January, Al Geiberger.

There are the longshots, whose counterparts in other years on other courses have written so many suprises into the Open history—Jerry McGee, Mike Morley, Lee Elder.

But over them all—the greats, the near-greats, the once-greats, the not-yet-greats—there's Nicklaus.

"Nicklaus is the greatest player of all time," said Weiskopf, who has spent his career in Jack's shadow.

"HE IS the favorite. He is the favorite every time he tees it up. When you get to the major championships, he's even more of a favorite. He is the man you have to beat.

"He hasn't had that great a year this season. But he's had a lot on his mind. He's been awful busy working on that new (Memorial) tournament of his.

"But that's behind him now. I played an exhibition with him a couple of weeks ago. He told me, 'That's like two years out of my life.' Now he's got that behind him. He'll be ready."

Nicklaus agrees.

"Actually, I've played pretty darn good all year," he said. "I haven't won as much as I have other years, but I've been in contention almost every tournament I've played."

His only victory of 1976 was in the Tournament Players Championship. But, in only nine starts, he's won more than $100,000. He's been second once and third another time and in the top 10 in all but a couple of starts and was in position to win maybe five or six tournaments.

THOSE LAPSES, those uncharacteristic failures to win when he had the opportunity, have led to speculation that he has, at last, begun to slip.

Nicklaus scoffs as the idea.

"I'm still a relatively young man. I'm 36. I believe the majority of my golf is behind me. But I believe I'm still improving, that my best golf is still ahead of me, that I have yet to reach my peak."

It's an awesome prospect. In 14 years as a professional, he's won a record 14 major championships. He's collected more than $2.5 million in winnings. He's acquired more than 75 international titles. He's won everything worth winning which the game can offer.

"I still have my goals," Nicklaus said.

Bickham picks Baylor Bears

PLANO, Tex. (AP) — Texas' top blue chip football choice decided Tuesday he'd rather attend Baylor University than accept a "substantial" bonus to play baseball for the San Francisco Giants.

Sammy Bickham Jr., 18, will attend the Waco school on an athletic scholarship to play baseball and football for the Bears.

Shirley misses 'Series' spotlight

By BRUCE CAMPBELL

Bob Shirley could have been in the national spotlight this week at the College World Series, possibly as the University of Oklahoma's first 20-game winner, and before packed crowds and television cameras.

There were only 513 fans--and no television cameras--at Cubs Stadium Monday night when Shirley and the Amarillo Gold Sox stopped Midland, 12-2, but the lefthander wasn't looking back. To him, his college days are just a pleasant memory and an Amarillo uniform is a realization of a boyhood dream to become a professional baseball player.

"I can't look back," said Shirley after tamming the Cubs on nine hits. "The College World Series is a good tournament but I would rather be here (Texas League) where I can get some experience instead of just starting out now."

WHILE IN Midland, Shirley had more memories of OU and previous College World Series as Cub third baseman Mike Umfleet was an instrumental force in making him the Sooners' all-time winningest pitcher. Although Shirley gets "kinda of a weird feeling" when he faces his old teammate, he was sorry to see Umfleet out of the lineup Monday.

"Up untill now he's the only guy in their lineup I could get out," Shirley laughed. "I had lost three times before. Mike's just a good player."

Shirley could be seeing some more familiar faces here soon. The Cubs selected Sooner second baseman Keith Drumright in the fourth round of the recent pro draft and the Amarillo southpaw believes Drumright could help the slumping Midland nine.

"If he's given a chance I'm sure he can play, "Shirley said. "He hits the ball real well and plays a good second base. If his attitude improves, and it looks like it has, he should have no problems. He's such a natural player, some people think he's not putting out but that's just because he makes the difficult plays look easier than they were."

SHIRLEY SAID he's heard Drumright has been offered $100,000 to play in Japan but predicted the Cubs will sign the OU second baseman.

"I doubt Keith would sign with a Japanese team,"Shirley said. "His parents like to follow his progress, they came to every game they could at OU."

No one would have blamed Shirley if he went to Japan after the first month of the season when he dropped his first four decisions. Instead of committing hari kari though, Shirley won his next five decisions to raise his record to 5-4.

"I felt I was pithcing well but just not winning," Shirley said. "The other players kept telling me winning was right around the corner so I never letdown."

Shirley currently leads the Texas League with 60 strikeouts in just under 73 innings. "I'll take the strikeouts," he said. "This (Monday) was the first time in a long while I've gotten my fast ball where I wanted it. I'm getting my curve over when I need it."

SHIRLEY HELPED out his competition some, however, when he struck out Monday in the ninth inning in his first official plate appearance in four seasons.

"I'm going to protest a couple of pitches which were called strikes," he smiled.

Shirley compared the transition from college to professional baseball to jump form high school to college.

"Every hitter is a little bit better here than in college," he said."Pitchers here can pitch a strong six to seven innings and then have a reliever come in. In college, you can set your schedule around the number one pitcher, but you can't here because you have to play every day."

The rookie noted a more businesslike approach in the pros.

"In college you play for recoginition and for a future in professional ball," he said. "When you get paid to play for a certain organization there's certainly more pressure to win."

SHIRLEY was a high draft choice of the San Francisco Giants last summer and "is glad I did't sign with them."

"The Giants didn't really act like they wanted me; San Diego acted like they did so I'm glad I signed with the Padres,"Shirley said.

Current Padre ace Randy Jones went from the Texas to the National League in one step and although Shirley doesn't have a timetable to pitch in the big time he has ambitions to join Jones soon.

If I can have a good year here and maybe get to play winter ball, I hope to get a chance at spring training next year but I really don't know how fast I'll get there."

If history keeps repeating itself, San Francisco may have wished they had offered Shirley more after his junior year at OU. Shirley was classmate in both high school and college with NBA rookie of the year Alvan Adams. The Amarillo pitcher has acheived every award in baseball that Adams did in basketball before this season.

Swedish civil servants become object of concern

By BERNARD D. NOSSITER
The Washington Post

STOCKHOLM — When Actress Bibi Anderson was hauled into a police station here last winter, she was grilled for three hours before she discovered why: her Lichtenstein corporation was suspected of tax fraud.

The police, and the tax inspectors who are supposed to remain silent, questioned her with a Kafka-like intensity, according to unpublished but authoritative reports here. Anderson was obliged to prove her innocence of a charge that had not been made.

She pleaded to telephone her child. Permission denied. She insisted on calling a lawyer. Which one, her inquisitors asked? She named him. He wouldn't do. She proposed four more. All were turned down.

ANDERSON was stripped to guard against her suicide and thrown in a cell for the night. The next morning she named another lawyer. He was acceptable and had her out in 30 minutes.

Unsurprisingly, Anderson talks of never returning to Sweden again. Her friend, Director Ingmar Bergman, who was pulled from a rehearsal by police to explain his Swiss corporation, has already renounced his native land. The fact that it is governed by their close friend Premier Olof Palme only adds a stroke of irony.

The tax troubles of these artists and those of Astrid Lindgren, a fabulously successful writer of children's books, have been seized on by Palme's foes at home and abroad to demonstrate that a soulless bureacracy dominates the world's most advanced welfare state. After a week of talking with knowledgeable people in and out of government, it is unclear whether these cases are characteristic or simply expressionist symbols of a much less malign disorder.

ONE THING is certain: from Palme on down, Swedes have become sensitive to the problems that flow from half a million civil servants in a state of eight million, problems that every modern society faces.

Lindgren, 68, a lively woman with a fey sense of humor, is the creator of Pippi Longstocking, the strongest nine-year-old in the world. Even Pipp's feat of lifting her own horse is not as impressive as the force her author unleashed with a single question. What must I pay, she asked the tax authorities, on royalities of two million kroner ($450,000)?

They answered, two million and twenty thousand or 101 percent. "There aren't that many percents," Lindgren replied, and wrote a mock fairy tale for Expressen, the biggest selling daily, to prove it.

"It was like an avalanche," Lindgren recalled in her modest apartment the other day. She was swamped with several thousand letters and phone calls from grateful Swedes, enchanted to find a voice for their rage against government. People complained of arbitrary tax assessments, of idnadequate pay for property that had been seized, of too many forms, of bureaucratic refusals to correct mistakes.

SVEN LUNDQUIST is a leading leftwing author of reportage on China and Latin America. He staunchly defends the social democracy and its civil servants, "as honest and as efficient as any in the world." Their arrogance, he says is nothing compared to that in India and China.

But Lundquist senses that something has gone wrong, that civil servants are too remote from the Swedes they are supposed to serve. As a Marxist, he blames this on class. The bureaucracy, he observes, is largely drawn from upper income and better educated groups.

In his newest book, "Change of Work," he proposes a Chinese-style solution, a system encouraging and finally compelling officials to leave their desks for a spell of common work. A judge might become a prison guard, an education ministry official a teacher. This, he argues, would make bureaucrats respond more readily to those they administer and give the working class greater influence over decision-making.

Prime Minister Palme is pulled in two directions by a debate he himself is encouraging. On the one hand, he speaks of his "pride" in the "loyalty, independence and incorruptibility" of the civil servants who carry out the reforms he zealously pilots through the Riksdag. On the other hand, he is now beginning to speak out in public about the need for "a more gentle society."

IN A CHAT at his austere office in the Parliament building, Palme said with a faint smile:

"We could say to the tax inspector, 'My dear, see here. The law gives you the right to be human.'"

He denied that the issue of bureaucratic arrogance would figure in the coming election campaign. But he readily agreed that the three notorious cases — Andersson, Bergman and Lindgren — had caught his Social Democrats off balance, provided a focus for accumulated grievances against the government and accounted for his party's depressed standing in current polls.

Palme, an interesting blend of ice-cold, calculating politician and mystical reformer, has made a cautious start at solving the problem.

He has put one under secretary or deputy minister to work on a plan transferring tasks from the central government to the regions and towns. Decentralization is a major demand of the biggest opposition group, the Center Party.

In addition, Palme, has placed a professor of linguistics in his personal office to propose simpler and more understandable government communications. As author Lundquist observed, "The language bureaucrats write is something inhuman. It is an insult to the intelligence and feeling. Emotionally, for the quality of life, language is an important thing."

Palme, however, strongly resists any suggestion that the sheer size of the bureaucracy, the number of tasks it undertakes, accounts for the weight of oppression felt by ordinary citizens.

"We don't have too many but too few bureaucrats," he insisted. "They are often overloaded."

Palme has been slipping out to watch his bureaucrats at work. He spoke with feeling of a hospital ward for the aged where a nurse told him she put her charges to sleep with a pill when she worked alone, but when she had a second nurse, each had enough time to talk to the patients until they dropped off by themselves.

"We need a strong society," the premier said. "But a gentle society which shows concern for the individual."

DESPITE the furor over bureaucratic behavior, few Swedes show any disposition to give up the world's highest living standards, most extensive welfare benefits, full employment and an economy run with such skill that it continued to expand while the rest of the West suffered a severe recession. Even opposition political parties — apart from the conservatives who represent a business bureaucracy — do not pose any real challenge to the farflung civil service or the high taxes that pay for the benefits. At bottom, the opposition says simply that it will run the same things better. Unlike Norway or Denmark, no anti-tax party has emerged here.

Palme's contention that more bureaucracy will mean more humane government was unknowingly echoed by Carina Freden, a former journalist on a leading paper and now a researcher for the building trades union. Carina and her bureaucrat husband are currently at home in their splendid apartment, sharing a seven month maternity-paternity leave to care for their new baby.

Both are anxious to put the baby in a state-run day care center — "She will get far more professional care than I can give her," Carina said — and go back to work. But there are 24 babies ahead of them in their stockholm district where the day-care center is already filled. For Carina, more not less is better.

Some 167 years ago, Sweden invented an institution for citizens to bring complaints against the all-powerful authorities whom Ibsen was later to describe so vividly. The ombudsman has been copied in other nations, but now many Swedes say it is a weak instrument. Rules. They toss out six of even seven complaints presented to them and receive only 3000 a year.

THE OMBUDSMEN are said to be timid in the face of ultimate authority. They declined to crack down on the Swedish intelligence service when, CIA-style, it was caught spying illegally on Swedish citizens. Similarly, an ombudsman excused police who unlawfully held some children for eight hours.

A thoughtful outside observer would agree that Swedish civil servants are as efficient and honest as any. Indeed, a foreign correspondent touches the bureaucracy at several points and must award high marks. The state airline, SAS is unique in its ability to cut red tape and switch a frantic, crisis-chasing reporter from one flight to another; the Swedish Foreign Office is a model of speed and tact; passport inspectors run from the surly to the indifferent, but Stockholm policemen are polite and helpful, at least to those not suspected of an offense.

Honesty and efficiency, however are not the issues. What Swedes are questioning is arrogance, high handedness and inhumane treatment. Apart from conservatives, they are not ready to link these traits to the bureaucracy's sheer size.

The issues now being discussed here, however cautiously, are not unique to Sweden but exist everywhere that tasks are administered by hierarchies according to fixed rules. This country, as Palme likes to observe, has pioneered in many welfare measures. But is it now capable of finding human solutions to the problems created by a growing bureaucracy?

Courtesy mail box planned

A special courtesy mail box for persons desiring a "hand-applied" postmark showing the name of the city and the date, July 4, 1976, will be installed in the lobby of the main post office, postmaster D. E. Holster has announced.

The letter collection courtesy box, available for use beginning June 28, will be identified to show that mail deposited in that box will not be dispatched to its destination until July 4.

Additional information may be obtained from the main post office.

Rhodes would cool presidential fever

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Republican leader says members of Congress should be barred from running for president so they would attend better to their legislative duties.

Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona made the proposal in a new book, "The Futile System."

It is a wide-ranging attack on the performance of Congress under Democratic control. It criticizes Democratic leaders by name.

Congress can only be reformed by turning leadership over to Republicans, wrote Rhodes, who presumably would be speaker if this happened. He said the GOP, now out-numbered 287 to 145 in the House, has a realistic chance of taking over in the November election.

While professing friendship and admiration for Democratic leaders with whom he deals as leader of the minority, Rhodes aimed some barbs at most of them. House Speaker Carl Albert he described as "an intelligent man who is very fair." But Albert's insistence on seeking the concurrence of committee chairmen "has frequently brought utter chaos to the floor and caused great delay in the passage of key legislation."

Writing before the sex-scandal storm broke over Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, Rhodes described Hays as a bully — "there is really no other way to put it." But he also said "few members ... are more valuable and adept in the treatment of sensitive foreign policy matters."

The Republican leader argued congressional reform is stymied because too many vested interests, in and out of Congress, have made their arrangements with the present structure and resist any change.

DENNIS OWENS, shown here, must go to a beauty shop to get a permanent wave because a Kentucky state law prohibits barbers from giving permanents. Barbers in Louisville and other Kentucky cities have gone to court to overturn the law. Atty. Gen. Guy Shearer said barbers want to give waves without attending cosmetology school which, in his opinion, is wrong.

SEPTUAGENARIAN CYCLIST Ellef Ellefson, 72, stands by the nickel-plated bicycle he hopes to ride 300 miles to promote the idea of a bikeway from Lake Superior to New Orleans. Ellefson, of West Salem, Wis., is an enthusiastic backer of bicycling for health.

Early Americans used bumpy road

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — American revolutionaries may have won life and liberty, but if the pursuit of happiness occurred on colonial roads their problems were far from over.

No one wanted to spend hardearned money for a transportation system that would only send horsemen tramping all over their land, so roads were allowed to degenerate. King George III could have used taxes to ameliorate the situation, but perhaps he saw the wisdom of keeping his dissatisfied subjects apart.

THE KING ALSO took responsibility for constructing and maintaining township roads through the county court system, but the roads were adequate only for tax rounds, not public travel.

In determining their routes, colonists tended to avoid trail blazing by sticking with Indian trails. The Indians apparently had also valued convenience above haste, for their trails were circuitous and narrow, frequently following animal runs and almost always on high ground and avoiding swamps, marshes and wide river crossings.

A GOOD EXAMPLE of road building as the path of least resistance was the Danbury-to-Norwalk route believed established by area Indians to get to Long Island Sound. The route followed high ground at all costs and was beaten down in following years by Danburians taking their beans to market in Norwalk.

Visiting a friend or relative in another town was a real mark of commitment because where the town ended so did the road. The king's highways connecting townships were mediocre at best and the logs and trunks that served as bridges were allowed to rot and wash away.

WATER TRANSPORTATION consisted of a scow with sails and oars, a rather slow and cumbersome means of travel, but better than the long canoes preceding them. Steam ferries didn't improve matters until 1835.

Popular transportation modes were human feet for short distances and horses' hooves for great distances.

Whatever towns lay along the key routes were responsible for providing fresh horses, food and shelter. Local policy dictated only one inn every six miles. So, however bad the food might be, it was not spurned.

Caltech students good jokesters

By JACK SMITH
The Los Angeles Times

Now and then, through the years, the bright but mischievous undergraduates of Caltech have given us a great laugh, sometimes even awed us, with their daring and ingenious practical jokes. Remember the Rose Bowl game when they fixed it so a Washington card stunt turned out to be a salute to Tech? A triumph. Millions saw it on TV.

We who live nervously in their magnetic field are likely to think of Caltech students as mad geniuses who could blow up the world if given two hours, an abacus and a monkey wrench, but are immune to ordinary human foibles and follies.

This myth is undone with wit, candor and a durable affection by Kent Clark, professor in English, in the Caltech quarterly Engineering and Science. In a letter to the editor, Clark warmly eulogizes his old friend Paul Eaton, former Caltech dean of students, who died last fall of a heart attack in Kennebunkport, Me.

Recalling Eaton's humor, wisdom, humanity and strength, Clark incidentally gives us a look into the enormity of his problems as dean. "Paul's career at Caltech is, among other things," he says, "a refutation of a national cliche. The conventional patter says that during the '50s all college students slept quietly under Eisenhower, untroubled by creative thought or boat-rocking passions. This Sunday-supplement wisdom is probably false in general, and it is certainly wrong where Caltech is concerned.

"In the '50s and early '60s, Caltech students seemed never to sleep at all, except in class. Instead they spent their time devising ways to get into implausible kinds of trouble. Then, as now, they had a genius for what might be called creative destruction or constructive tort. When I mention the great plane robbery, the penetration of the SAC telephone system, the fake bank robbery holdup, the burning palm trees ... you will remember what I mean.

"You will remember too that these, like the caper with the Washington rooters' cards, were only spectacular variants of a routine depravity — an ingenuity almost guaranteed to make a dean's life exciting, if not impossible. The most modest misdemeanor was apt to bring hot complaints from random citizens, and the more diabolical brought the Pasadena police, and, sometimes, the FBI. The Dean's office, naturally was the focal point of all the heat, both official and unofficial. There Paul ... separated the pecadillos from the felonies, soothed the injured or outraged, and sometimes arranged for bail."

Exasperating as the planned misdemeanors might have been, Clark thinks they probably gave Eaton fewer headaches than the scrapes his students managed to get themselves into without trying.

"Caltech students were just as apt to be ruined by their innocence as by their guilt. For one thing, few of them knew how to drink like gentlemen, and so they drank like trolls. They passed out in strange places, or showed up drunk and disorderly at very bad times."

Caltech students, like most of us, also tended to be unlucky or too lucky in love. "In this area our Teachers probably fared worse than they did as drinkers, and for the same general reason — social innocence. Though our raw troops fought gallantly they suffered grievous losses. Inevitably some of the walking wounded ended up in Paul's office. Usually, I should add, they did not come for counsel or protection but because they were flunking out of school. At Caltech, an attack of love is even more lethal to grade point averages than a passion for bridge."

Paul Eaton was ideally set up to deal with such delinquents. He was big, ruddy, salty (ex-Navy, South Pacific); wore saddle shoes and drove a '40 Ford convertible. He knew something about original sin from his Congregational ancesters, though without a Caltech background, Clark points out, "they could scarcely have suspected how original sin can be."

From his years at MIT, Clark suggests, Eaton also knew the "unrelenting pressures — institutional, parental and self-generated — that afflict students in science, and he had developed an abiding sympathy with the victims."

In a sense, Clark admits, Eaton was the superintendent of a sanitarium; on the other hand, as a colleague once pointed out, "the Caltech students and faculty, though sometimes capable of behavior that would startle Sigmund Freud, are nevertheless on the average much nicer than most people, (and) may be ... among the nicest people in the world. Among their many virtues, which include a high degree of honor and integrity, is a great toleration for individual differences, not to mention eccentricity."

Collegians changing hair, dress styles

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

"Cut it over the ears. I'm going for a job interview," the red-haired student told the barber as he eased into the chair at a shop a half-block from the University of California at Berkeley.

The shorn student is by no means alone. The Associated Press found, in a series of interviews conducted across the nation, that the trend among college men is not only toward shorter hair but toward more neatness in general.

That does not mean a return to the crewcut, or that the ubiquitous blue jean is fading from the scene.

It does mean busier barbers and clothing stores as students turn to trimmer hair and to fancier jeans, corduroy slacks or — Leaping Levis! — an occasional suit.

"People who were in school back in the '50s would still find clothing styles a shock, but less so than before," was the way Roger Howard, assistant dean of students at the University of Wisconsin, saw the campus scene.

"The olive drab stuff and overalls are not nearly as predominant as they were a few years ago," he added.

What's replacing olive drab, according to clothing stores near colleges, are stylized jeans that fit tight, wool, cotton or corduroy slacks and nylon sports shirts, sometimes worn with beads or other kinds of necklaces.

David Graff, manager of a men's store near the Carleton College in Northfield, Minn., said neck jewelry "took off" after students returned from spring vacations with pendants and other jewelry they bought in Florida.

Graff, other clothiers and campus officials noted that blue denim is — and probably always will be — popular campus wear. The reason, they say, is that blue jeans are easy to take care of.

"Students now tend to be practical," Graff said.

Practicality also enters into the purchase of suits — for job interviews — but they are also worn for parties occasionally.

"You used to hear students say, 'I don't even own a suit,' but you won't today," noted Kay W. McHenry, associate director of student activities at the Univeristy of Miami.

While she agreed that blue jeans and T-shirts remain popular, she said there was one difference from the jeans of five years ago: "They are clean."

And barber Virgil Meuth, whose shop is near the University of Texas, says the same thing about hair, and he says it very succinctly: "Cleaner, seems like."

Barbers, students and college officials all said that hair was generally shorter, though still longer than pre-1960s haircuts.

There are several reasons for the new neatness, in clothes and hair. One, of course, is that given by the Berkeley students sitting in the barber chair: the need for a job and the fear that employers will be more particular in today's tighter economy.

Another reason is that men have discovered, particularly with summer coming, that long hair can be troublesome. Students, too, no longer see long hair and messy clothes as testifying to their ideology.

Smokers' social lives suffering

The social standing of American cigarette smokers is taking a beating.

It is becoming unfashionable to smoke in many U.S. social circles and even unconscionable in others, reports the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health.

You can't lose it

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — There's a self-service parking garage here for 4,000 vehicles where it is impossible to lose your car.

The garage is under Crown Center, a city-within-Kansas City. If you descend to the garage after working in the office buildings or shopping in the boutiques and can't remember where you parked, all you have to do is hit a button to locate your car.

The button is one of many in the garage's intercom system that links patrons to a security office. An officer listens to the description of the car, then scans the garage with 75 closed circuit television cameras. When the car is located, the officer gives the patron walking directions to the car.

Writer prepares for bike trip

By CYNTHIA GORNEY
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — I have come to think of her as "The Poncho." I don't know who she is, but for the last three months I have been looking at her in a photograph on my kitchen wall. The young woman in a poncho, her back to the camera, is pushing a bicycle through six feet of snow at McKenzie Pass, Ore.

The photo is on my wall because I keep hoping I'll get used to it. In three weeks I should be approaching McKenzie Pass. The snow will still be six feet deep, I am told. And I'll be on a bicycle.

Next weekend, from a small city on the Pacific coast, nine other bicyclers and I are going to begin pedaling east. Our route, mapped out by the Montana-based organization called Bikecentennial, takes us from Astoria, Ore., to Jackson, Wyo., a thousand miles of terrain so varied that we are told to bring wool sweaters for the snow and extra water bottles for the desert.

We'll carry our belongings with us, in bicycle saddlebags called panniers. Sleeping bags will be strapped to metal racks over the rear wheel. Each night we'll sleep in churches, school gyms, meeting halls — any place towns-people will put up a bunch of exhausted bikers. Each day we'll cycle 35 to 75 miles.

Which is not all that much, I tell people firmly. Real bicyclers, the seriously crazy people who spend their weekends and lunch hours zipping around on 10-speeds, will go off for the day to do a "century," bike language for a 100-mile ride. The Bikecentennial pace is designed for the rest of us, I insist, and doesn't worry me.

Lying through my teeth.

Calling myself a bicycler is streching it. I am a mildly athletic person, 22 years old, who has always thought of bicycles as a handy way to get from one place to the next without having to look for a parking space. Two years ago I sold my three-speed, a wonderful ol Raleigh with all the maneuverability of Mack truck, and bought a flashy orange purple-striped 10-speed.

With a glossy publicity campaign, advertisements in bike shops, and legions of enthusiastic organizers, Bikecentennial is trying to appeal to people like me — owners of bicycles bought for their purple stripes. To people who fantasize about long solo expeditions while lying on the back porch. Sunday bikers, would-be mechanics, all of us whose eyes glaze over at the first mention of freewheel removers and cotterless cranks.

The appeal is very, very sneaky. On first inquiry they send you glorious photographs of shimmering lakes and waving sheat. They excerpt the diaries of long-distance bikers before you: "Narrow valleys appear as dark green fortresses against a heavy overcast sky. The tops of hills disappear in a ragged layer of clouds ..."

Once they've hooked you, they get serious. Little instructional folders begin arriving in the mail: "How to load a bicycle." "Bicyclists' Cookbook." Tool lists, instructions on packing a bike for airline luggage compartments, a reminder to cancel the newspaper delivery (which adds, somewhat ominously, "Do not tell them when you expect to return.")

Being a compulsive list-maker, I paid great attention to all these instructions. I read bike repair books. I bought bike trail maps. I began haunting bicycle shops, which are wonderful places full of silver bikes and crimson jerseys and mysterious tools that fit even more mysterious parts.

I stuided an issue of Bicycling magazine, in which a young man describes cycling through Thailand — avoid the raw egg desserts, he suggests — and a doctor examines the effect a strap-on water bottle has on the cyclist's speed.

In the "Question Man" column a 16-year-old kid whose knee had been hurting for a month and a half plaintively asked what he should do. "Stop pulling so hard," said the Question Man.

These people are crazy. The kid should get off his bicycle immediately. But this, I've discovered, is what bikers are like. One fellow I called, a 24-year-old chemical engineer who was listed as a local tour leader, was headed up to Delaware for something he called a "double century." this means you get out of bed at about 3:30 a.m. and ride 200 miles before sundown.

Slowly, with ragged lungs and arching calves, I am working my way into this masochistic world.

Chautauqua tent pitched again

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — That Chautauqua tent in the Kennedy Center rooftop's "America on Stage" exhibit has had some use by live performers and soon will be getting more.

Actress Eugenia Rawls will star in three of her own stage portraits starting with "Tallulah, A Memory" July 6. The next night she will present her latest in the one-woman genre, "Women of the West" and on the 8th, offer "Affectionately Yours, Fanny Kemble."

The entertainments will be repeated at 7 p.m. nightly, Sundays excepted, through July 31. Each performance will last about 50 minutes and admission will be free.

Besides AFI films, the tent also has served for presentations by the National Endowment for the Humanities Bicentennial programs and other special guests.

A century ago, the Chautauqua circuit and its tents had a strong role on the American cultural scene, politicians, religious leaders, musicians, singers, monologuists and "proper" plays touring the land in the summer months to enormous crowds at "popular prices."

Founded by Lewis Miller and John H. Vincent, who became a Methodist bishop, the Chautauqua movement was a "celebration of God, of self and mankind." Though the tents have vanished, their foundations remain. Glen Echo Park is settled around one and the Ashland, Ore., Shakespeare Festival is performed within the area's original Chautauqua foundations.

Chautauqua also continues in its original upstate New York setting, where the 100th year was celebrated in 1974 with a special commemorative U.S. postal stamp. This year's season of plays, operas and lectures begins there June 28 to run through Aug. 29. Each week there are visiting chaplains.

Considering Chautauqua's discernible religious strain, Rawls was asked about starting her series with her portrait of Tallulah Bankhead, whom some consider a nonreligious figure.

Rawls threw her head back and gave out with a throaty, Bankhead-like chortle: "Chautauqua is just right for Tallulah. She had curiosity and respect for all faiths, went to Catholic schools and was buried an Episcopalian. Some of her best friends were priests, nuns and ministers.

Students swig swampwater

The Los Angeles Times

U.S. college students have started drinking swampwater.

Worse. They're drinking it through straws from mason jars.

And irreverently they're using one of France's most venerable liqueurs to give it bounce — 110-proof Chartreuse.

The Carthusian monks who developed Chartreuse 200 years ago would never understand. But the French company which now distills the liqueur for the monks has become resigned to the funky drink and the profits that are coming from it.

"Years ago, Chartreuse would have been ashamed," says Paul Goiffon, chairman of the French company. "Even 10 years ago it would have been a scandal, but today we are promoting it."

Swampwater is something like a spiked Gatorade. In fact its symbol is a supremely contented, heavy-lidded alligator sipping from his swamp pool through two straws.

The proper recipe is about three quarters of a jigger of green Chartreuse, about four ounces of unsweetened pineapple juice and the juice of a quarter lime, served over crushed ice — in a 16-ounce mason jar.

Supposedly, Florida college students "spontaneously" created the fad, mixing the first Swampwater as a "long drink" to enjoy in the summer. Then there is another version which says that it was developed on the auto racing circuit. This could account for its being drunk from the classic goblet for white lightning, the mason jar.

But if you aren't satisfied with either of these, Schieffelin and Co., which distributes Chartreuse, is perfectly willing to accept credit for its invention.

Schieffelin, hoping the drink will be another Harvey Wallbanger, has been promoting Swampwater parties across the country and says that sales of Chartreuse have taken off.

Roger Davis, manager of the Ground Round, a roaring'-20s-style restaurant in Anaheim, Calif., says he held Swampwater parties four nights running and his liquor sales doubled. "Those were the busiest nights we've had since we opened a few years ago. We had plastic alligators hanging around and all our girls wore swampwater T-shirts. We sold the drinks for 75 cents and the crowd thought they were great thirst quenchers. In the summertime I really expect this drink to go."

The Ground Round seems a long way from the monastery beneath the bleak cliffs of Chartreuse in the French Alps, where one of the world's oldest and most jealously guarded liqueurs is made.

Goiffon, in the United States to check on the new trend, says the secret formula is so well kept, that not even he knows it. "I am chairman of La Grande Chartreuse, but I am not privy to the secret, only three monks know it."

The Carthusian monks, who turned from manufacturing steel weapons to making booze when the world turned to gunpowder, make Chartreuse from a mixture of 130 herbs, fine brandy and unprocessed honey.

At first it was used as a tonic, given by the monks to the ill, infirm and aged who came to the monastery seeking relief from their maladies. It grew into a popular digestive aid and from that into its present use as a liqueur. Now it is the base for swampwater.

At $13-plus a bottle, maybe that's not so degrading.

Taxis subject of art exhibit

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Emilio Ambasz, the hotshot design curator of New York's Museum of Modern Art, couldn't get anyone to listen to him at the Department of Transportation when he talked about taxis. But when he said "para-transit vehicles" they were all ears.

Even if you call taxis para-transit vehicles, that doesn't alter the remarkable, almost unbelievable statistics compiled by a MOMA study. In 3,400 communities in the United States, taxicabs are the only means of public transportation. Not only that, taxis move somewhere between 60 to 80 per cent more people than do all the mass transporation systems combined. Ambasz thinks that in many instances taxis are cheaper and more feasible than instituting billion-dollar-a-mile people movers.

Ambasz, who mostly takes the subway himself (he doesn't own a car), decided that in the face of these figures taxis should be a lot better than they are. He mused that taxis are the only mass transit vehicle that isn't designed specifically for its purpose. As a Volkswagen spokesman put it: "To turn family sedans into taxis, they change only the color."

So Ambasz organized "The Taxi Project: Realistic Solutions for Today." The result — five prototype taxis plus a London cab for comparison — opens this week at the Museum of Modern Art and continue through Sept. 7. The winning designs are all three inches taller and 10 inches wider than the standard London cab, widely considered a most comfortable vehicle for the passenger Ambasz at 5 feet 8 can enter all of them standing erect. All are shorter in length. And all are quite light, and therefore more energy-efficient. All of the cabs are easy enough for a person to enter with a baby carriage or a wheelchair. The cab driver can open the doors without leaving his seat. And all meet federal emission standards.

It is sad, but not surprising, to report that not one Detroit manufacturer was interested in entering the project, even though Ambasz tried to interest Ford, General Motors, Chrysler, American Motors and Checker Motors as well as a number of others.

But when the Department of Transportation (through an open bid competition) offered $1 million each to two companies, the American Machine and Foundry Inc. and Steam Power Systems Inc. put together prototypes. The MOMA show, with its jazzy graphics and a voom-voom multi-media display, is supported by modest $60,000 grants from DOT's Urban Mass Trasnporation Administration and Mobile Oil Corp.

The other two prototype taxis are by Volvo and volkswagen, European manufacturers invited by MOMA to participate because they will soon have American factories. They spent about $2 million of their own money on development of the prototypes, which suggests to Ambasz that the companies are serious about the manufacturing possibilities if the designs are well-received. Alfa Romeo, which was not invited, went ahead on its own and developed a cab that met Ambasz's standards. That taxi, which is expected to be marketed in Europe, is also included in the show.

Folklore being revived for Washington festival

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The children know the story by heart, of course, but there is a warm glow on everyone's face as the family gathers before bedtime to hear Mamma tell it again.

"Well," she says, "what Humphrey Bogart wants to hear is the song from when he and Ingrid Bergman were courting. So he says, 'Play it, Sam.' But Sam pretends not to know what he's talking about ..."

The scene is from "Harmonize!" a short film which will be shown at the Family Folklore section of the Smithsonian's Festival of American Folklife on the Mall. (You know as well as the children do. It's "Casablanca." It was Bergman who wanted to hear Bogart's courtship song, but that's what happens when tradition is passed orally, as all good folklorists know).

Five Washington area families were selected from among 1,000 interviewed in the Family Folklore tent at previous festivals, and their family traditions recorded on film by Steve Zeitlin and Paul Wagner. Other anecdotes have been put into a booklet, which will be sold at the festival.

The hope is to encourage this year's festival goers to think about their own lore, and more material will be collected this year, possibly for another book.

Retelling the plots of old movies may seem a loose definition of folklore. The other scenes in the film also show bits of standardized culture — a name from a fairy story or nursery rhyme, a variation on a traditional birthday or anniversary celebration — as they have been woven into the life of a family.

So what comes across is not any contribution to American mythology, but the method by which routine is used to express love. Simply by repeating a shared experience, the family identifies itself as a unit with a history.

Arthur Maas's grown-up daughters make him tell again his personalized version of the story about cooking being invented when the house burned down with the pig in it.

Werner and Anne Janney and their children added a line to the nursery rhyme which goes "Oranges and lemons, say the bells of St. Clement's," and came up with "Rasins and prunes, say the bells of St. Grunes." When they feel like perking up a dreary day, they announce that it is St. Grunes Day and use that as an excuse for a festive dinner.

BRIDGE

Polish Slam Story

By ALFRED SHEINLD

Ask a bridge player for his favorite hand, and he's sure to tell you about a slam that he managed to make against bad breaks that would have overwhelmed anybody else. Few stories of this kind can top that of Andrzej Wilkosz, of the Polish national bridge team, during the 1963 European Championships.

South should have lost two club tricks and two trumps. If West had led a club, South would have gone down three. Even if West had led a trump, South would have gone down. West actually led the jack of hearts, and then the Polish master took over.

Wilkosz took the ace of hearts, ruffed a heart in dummy and cashed the three high diamonds to get rid of his two clubs. Then he ruffed a club, while East moaned pitifully at the disappearance of the two club tricks.

South ruffed another heart in dummy and ruffed a second club in his hand. Then he ruffed his last heart in dummy and returned a diamond, ruffing with the eight of spades.

NINE TRICKS IN

By this time South had taken the first nine tricks, and West was reduced to his four trumps. He had to overruff with the nine of spades and then had to return a trump up to South's A-K-J. Six spades bid and made.

"There was no way to make seven," Wilkosz said apologetically to his partner.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: SQ1095 HJ1093 DJ95 CK7. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades. This promises trump support, with about 6 to 10 points, including distribution as well as high cards.

Let bells ring out for July 4th

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

Unlike some people, public spirited citizen Michael Thomas of New York City expects to get nothing but a thrill out of his Bicentennial idea. In fact he gets goose pimples, he says, when he thinks of it.

What he has been trying to promote through friends and some patriotic organizations is a mass demonstration of patriotism by having church bells and home bells toll all over the United States on July Fourth — sort of a "Liberty Bell Day."

"As I visualize it we would all synchronize our clocks so the bells would be rung at the same time across the country, perhaps for 5 to 10 minutes. The time could be adjusted to noon in each time zone. The great ground swell of patriotism should give us all a united feeling of togetherness on this great day."

Thomas, former president of a jewelry firm and now president of his own public relations firm, has no thought of commercializing the venture in any way. He says he abhors the little plastic bells that are being promoted as Bicentennial souvenirs, and he would like to see all bells in some handsome metal. But he thinks it would be great to ring any bell you can get your hands on to celebrate.

"The Bicentennial has been a series of hit-and-miss celebrations for the last year. But I have a feeling towns will give their all to the Fourth of July with their bands and floats, parades and parties and that will be the big Bicentennial day if ever there is to be one!"

Lots of bells make beautiful music, he says. All a bell needs to be a bell is a cup shape and to give off a tone when its clapper strikes.

Bells were known in China 2000 years before Christ. And throughout man's history they have been treasured over the world. In Ireland a tiny bell, 6 inches high and 5 inches wide, is inscribed 1091. In the 13th century bells were being made for monasteries. By 1400 there was a six-ton liberty bell in Paris and some made for other countries — China and Russia — were even larger.

But size has been no clue as to whether a bell rings in the name of liberty or tyranny. Our own Liberty Bell is a mere one ton but its ringing signified the birth of a free nation.

Churches for the celebrations of the bells can ring their carillons on the 200th birthday celebration. But many towns may have no carillon or carillonneur (who hits the keys with a closed hand, protecting his fingers with guards), who bring out musical tinkles or great thundering roars from such bells. In such a setting bells can be mighty.

But any town with a little bell can have a big message all its own on July 4th. Even the old milk bell of bossy's in the attic or barn might be resurrected by citizens to provide that certain tone on Liberty Bell day.

And for those who have no bells, a little bell poetry might stir one's soul.

Edgar Allan Poe's poem devoted to bells says: "... from the molten golden notes all in tune -what a liquid ditty floats..."

While Ophelia reminds us in her lament about Hamlet that bells should be musical. His were "... sweet bells jangled, out of tune and harsh ..." as she put it.

The best of bells can lose their tunes and even become cracked like our own Liberty Bell. But the message can still ring out clear and true.

Trouble besets swine flu plans

By JOHN STOWELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government officials are for the first time openly discussing the possibility that the campaign to give 215 million Americans a swine flu shot this fall may not get off the ground.

The mass immunization effort on a scale never before attempted has, they say, run into massive and perhaps insurmountable legal obstacles.

One of the nation's four influenza vaccine manufacturers is holding out for a new federal law indemnifying it for human injuries beyond its control. Organizations representing health workers, volunteers and local governments are deeply concerned about their own liability. Major newspapers are questioning the wisdom of giving flu shots against a disease that has not been seen since a brief appearance confined to Ft. Dix, N.J., early this year.

ALL THOSE FACTORS have led to an air of pessimism in certain quarters of the U.S. Public Health Service.

"Even if it does fail to fly, I think the scientific basis is sound," said Dr. Delano Meriwether, director of the National Influenza Immunization Program.

"The decision was the right one. It was the right one last March and it would be the right one next year, knowing what we do," he said.

While questions are being raised to which there are yet no answers, the government is going ahead with its plans in the hopes that the problems will be ironed out.

BIDS HAVE BEEN advertised to the four drug companies — Merrell-National Laboratories, Parke, Davis & Co., Wyeth Laboratories and Merck Sharp & Dohme — as the prelude to price negotiations for swine flu vaccine.

Results of experimental vaccine tests on about 5,000 men, women and children will be presented to an open meeting of government scientists June 21, and that information will be presented the next day to the federal Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices.

Out of that session will likely come the recommendation for proper dosage of vaccine against swine flu, more properly called A-New Jersey-76, for most adults, and a combination vaccine against A-New Jersey and A-Victoria flu strains for the elderly and persons suffering from serious heart, lung, kidney and diabetes diseases.

MORE TESTING is expected to be ordered to determine the proper dosage and age cut-off for children

The government plans to buy all the swine flu vaccine that the American companies can produce and to distribute it to state health departments which, in turn, will be responsible for getting the vaccine to public immunization clinics and private doctors.

THE VACCINE, being purchased with $135 million appropriated by Congress, will be free to recipients. Private physicians may charge for giving the shots in their offices, however.

Meanwhile, the Advertising Council Inc. on June 10 unanimously approved the government's $150,000 public service advertising campaign to inform Americans through television, radio, newpapers and magazines about the importance of swine flu shots and how and where to get one.

On the legal front, a draft bill indemnifying vaccine manufacturers against injury lawsuits has been written and is being actively considered. The White House has not yet given a green light to introduce it.

SOME OFFICIALS in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare are doubtful that the bill could pass, mindful of the Senate Appropriations Committee report last April directing that "the various governmental units shall be free from liability in terms of the vaccine" and that "the drug producers should remain responsible for the vaccine, its quality and any adverse reactions directly attributable to the vaccine."

Contract language offered by HEW to the manufacturers holds the government responsible for informing patients about the benefits and risks of getting a flu shot. Three companies seem to believe that it would reduce the threat of liability suits, although they know they would remain responsible for their own negligence.

MERRELL, WHICH can produce between 20 and 25 per cent of the nation's flu vaccine needs, is threatening to pull out if there is no indemnification law.

"They would all prefer indemnification, that's certainly the case," said HEW lawyer Bernard Feiner. "Whether the contract clause will be satisfactory has yet to be determined."

Even more perplexing is the question of malpractice liability for doctors, nurses and other health workers serving as volunteers in community flu vaccine clinics. The law varies in each state. Some indemnify public health workers, some provide insurance coverage and some promise government attorneys to defend against malpractice suits.

"I DON'T KNOW if we can resolve that question," said Feiner. "We can't do much more than inform public employes and volunteers about their laws."

There is a prevailing belief, however, that anyone injured in an immunization program would "go after the big money" — the vaccine manufacturers or state government.

The flu vaccine is made from so-called killed viruses, which have been fragmented by chemicals and cannot give anyone flu itself. There have been only two deaths from flu vaccine and none since 1946, as vaccines became more refined.

THAT SHOULD REDUCE the risk of vaccine injuries and lawsuits, according to legal experts interviewed. As a precaution, however, persons allergic to eggs are advised not to get a swine flu shot because the vaccine is grown in fertilized chicken eggs.

Dr. George Galasso, chief of the infectious diseases branch in the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, said the computer data bank hasn't been tapped yet to determine how many of the 5,000 persons who received experimental flu shots experienced adverse reactions such as a sore arm, headache or fever.

THE 10 PER CENT adverse reaction rate reported in some publications "is really way off base," he said. "For anything that can realistically be called reactivegenic, its a very low per cent, at least in adults. In children, it's really too early to say because not enough have been involved."

Galasso was one of the first to get an experimental test shot. Ironically, he was classified as a minor adverse reaction when, in fact, he received a placebo shot without any vaccine in it.

"In adults all we can say right now is that the reactivity certainly is no worse than the influenza vaccines of the last year or two which is to say there isn't much reactivity," he said.

PERHAPS THE MOST difficult task the government health experts are facing is the negative opinion expressed by some influential publications and spokesmen such as Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe of Ralph Nader's Research Group.

Colonial lifestyle displayed

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — A Bicentennial display, depicting life in the American colonies between 1755 and 1789, is open to the public at the Henry Ford Museum here through October.

The display, entitled "The Struggle and the Glory," includes a major unpublished collection of Revolutionary period diaries, cartoons, letters and broadsides.

Other Bicentennial displays range from typical 18th-century household settings to a dramatic theater-in-the-round, where visitors are encircled by the colors and noise of Revolutionary battles.

"The Struggle and the Glory" is designed so that visitors walk through exhibits dramatizing life in the colonies under British rule, and become aware of the sources of colonial discontent. An examination of life in the new American nation after the Revolutionary conflict is also included.

Old house restored

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Bill Gay, a community college photography instructor, and his wife, Frances, have spent five years and about $10,000 to spruce up an 80-year-old friend they call "Victoria."

Actually, "Victoria" is their 15-room turreted house, and for their efforts the couple was given an Award of Merit for Historical Preservation and Recreation by the North Carolina chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The Gays, both in their 30s, bought the house for less than $30,000.
