Iran fires missile into downtown Baghdad

By MOHAMMED SALAM
Associated Press Writer

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iran fired a ground-to-ground missile into downtown Baghdad Friday and Iraq retaliated with missile strikes on three Iranian border cities, an Iraqi military spokesman said.

The government gave no casualty figure from the powerful blast in Baghdad. It was the eighth huge explosion in the capital in just over three weeks, and the first that Iraq acknowledged was caused by an Iranian missile.

The military spokesman said on state television that Iraq fired five missiles — two each into Bakhtaran (formerly Kermanshah), and Ilam, and one into Shahabad. Iran said nothing of the attacks.

Iraqi missiles hit Bakhtaran and Hamadan Thursday, and Iran reported dozens of people were killed and scores wounded.

President Saddam Hussein's government has said it would intensify the "war of the cities" in an effort to force Iran to negotiate and end to the 4½-year-old conflict.

Iran has offered only an agreement to end attacks on civilians and its Shiite Moslem leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has vowed to continue the war.

U.N. Secretary-general Javier Perez de Cuellar was in Bahrain on his Mideast tour and renewed his offer to go to Tehran and Baghdad "tomorrow, the day after, or Monday even," but only if Iran was willing to discuss a "comprehensive" settlement.

The Soviet Union, one of Iraq's military supplier, told Foreign Minister Tarik Aziz last week in Moscow that it wants a negotiated solution. Its official news agency Tass said the same message was given Friday to Hossein Kazempur-Ardebili, Iran's deputy foreign minister and the highest Iranian official to visit Moscow in three years.

In announcing the Iraqi missile attacks, the military spokesman said Iraq would "continue the revenge strikes until they (the Iranians) accept total peace."

Hashemi Rafsanjani, speaker of Iran's parliament, said Thursday night that Iran would fire a missile into Baghdad and warned residents to flee the city.

Police and militiamen sealed off Baghdad's downtown area after the explosion at 3:25 p.m. and kept reporters out. Although Friday is the Moslem holy day, many shops remain open and the district often is crowded at midafternoon.

Iraqi policemen waved speeding ambulances through intersections. Telephone operators at government-run hospitals refused to answer questions about casualties.

A foreigner who lives near the area said by telephone the blast shook his house for several seconds and "I could hear the cracking of glass. Then the motorists who were in the street, scared by the explosion, started driving hysterically in all directions and blowing their horns."

A large plume of gray smoke rose from the blast area.

Tehran radio, monitored in London, said the missile was part of Iran's "policy of retaliation" for Iraqi attacks on Iranian civilians.

It quoted a military spokesman as saying he hoped Friday's missile would be the last fired at Baghdad and called on Iraq to halt strikes at civilians.

"Iran never wished to see Iraqi towns destroyed," the broadcast quoted the spokesman as saying. "However, the Iraqi regime must remember that should it continue its wickedness we shall be able to bring any part of Iraq under missile attack at any given moment."

The explosions in Baghdad began March 14 when a blast damaged a downtown building owned by the government's Rafidain bank. Iraq said it was caused by a saboteur's bomb and Iran said it was a missile.

Of the next six explosions, Iraq made the same explanation or none at all, and Iran claimed it was firing missiles into the city.

Jews celebrate their liberation

JERUSALEM (AP) — With traditional Passover feasts and ceremony, Israeli Jews on Friday night celebrated the liberation of the ancestors from slavery in Egypt and their birth as a people more than 3,000 years ago.

According to the Bible, the children of Israel were Pharaoh's slaves in Egypt, but God brought them out "with a strong hand and an outstretched arm," and then commanded them to commemorate the event every year.

Every year since then the Jews have celebrated their freedom with a traditional ritual, with four cups of wine and with flat cakes of unleavened bread to remind them that they left Egypt in such haste there was no time for their bread to rise.

Pesach (the Hebrew name for Passover) took on new meaning this year, as thousands of Ethiopian Jews brought to Israel since last fall celebrated their own return to the land of their forefathers.

Ethiopian Jews claim they are descendants of Jews who settled in the land of Sheba during King Solomon's time. Many were invited to join the Seder celebrations of local families.

Others held their own celebrations in the absorption centers where they have been living since their arrival, reading from a Hagaddah — the book of biblical quotations, hymns and commentaries used in the Seder ceremony — translated into their own language of Amharic.

The daily Jerusalem Post reported that Coleco, the U.S. manufacturer of Cabbage Patch dolls, flew 1,000 dolls to Israel to be given to Ethiopian children as a Passover gift.

Passover also fell on the same day as Good Friday this year, a reminder that Jesus' last supper with his disciples was itself a Passover celebration.

Thousands of Christian pilgrims mingled in the old city of Jerusalem with thousands of Jews going to pray at the Western Wall of the temple, which existed at Jesus' time.

Israeli soldiers observed their third Passover in Lebanon with hopes that the army would be back in Israel by early June. Army radio said many of the soldiers would get Kosher C-rations because their outposts were being dismantled and there were no kitchens to prepare Passover dinners.

Whatever the language and country of origin, Jews all over the world follow essentially the same ritual, which over the centuries has taken on the character of a play, designed to help the participants imagine that they are part of the exodus from Egypt more than 30 centuries ago.

Pope John Paul II holds a wooden cross in front of Rome's Colosseum during the Way-of-the-Cross procession Good Friday commemorating the final agonies of Jesus Christ.

Christian pilgrims trace Jesus' steps

JERUSALEM (AP) — Christian pilgrims shouldering wooden crosses made their way slowly through the narrow streets of Old Jerusalem on Good Friday, retracing the steps of Jesus on the way to his crucifixion.

Five thousand pilgrims followed the procession led by Franciscan monks along the Via Dolorosa, the Street of Sorrows, venerated since the Middle Ages as the route taken by Jesus after he was condemned to die.

Some preferred to walk alone.

"I am reading the Scriptures. It's very meditative," said the Rev. Michael Arms of the Church of St. Peter in Mendota, Minn.

The half-mile walk took the pilgrims from St. Anne's Church, near the site where tradition says Jesus was judged, to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the 12th-century sanctuary encompassing both Calvary and the tomb where his body was placed.

The procession stopped at all 14 Stations of the Cross. Each marks an event chronicled in the Gospels or in early Christian tradition, including the three places where Jesus is said to have fallen under the weight of his cross.

Israeli soldiers watched the march from the rooftops. The day before, hundreds of Palestinians staged violent protests in Jerusalem to object to Israeli treatment of Arab prisoners. Nine Palestinians and one Israeli were injured and 132 Palestinians were arrested.

In Rome, a somber Pope John Paul II carried a wooden cross through the city's pagan ruins in a torchlit procession commemorating the final agonies of Jesus.

The nighttime procession capped a day of religious ceremonies for the 65-year-old pope, including hearing 13 confessions and a three-hour celebration of the passion of Jesus at St. Peter's Basilica.

John Paul, wearing a purple cape of mourning over his white cassock, carried the cross pressed to his head as he led the Way-of-the-Cross procession from inside the Colosseum to the nearby Roman Forum.

The black cross, nearly head high, was made of poplar wood and weighed about two pounds.

Thousands of people holding candles stood silently in the cool, floodlit square outside the Colosseum as the pope, accompanied by two young men carrying torches, stopped and prayed at the 14 stations of the cross. Million more watched the 50-minute ceremony on television in Italy and 25 other countries.

Good Friday this year coincided with the beginning of the eight-day Jewish Passover holiday, when Jews celebrate the escape of the Hebrews from Egypt more than 3,000 years ago.

Jewish prayers at the Wailing Wall mingled with the Latin liturgy from Roman Catholic churches and Moslem calls to prayer at nearby mosques.

"This is the way it should always be — all the religions, everyone together in peace," said Betty Lou Weiss, member of a Jewish tour group from the Chicago area visiting Christian holy places.

Pilgrims were provided with 6-foot crosses at the start of the Via Dolorosa. Four or five people shouldered each cross, remembering Christ's solitary march with his burden.

Lines of pilgrims climbed marble stairs to the chapel built atop Calvary, where many lighted candles and said prayers.

Others knelt to kiss the Stone of Unction, where tradition says Jesus' body was placed and covered with a shroud after it was removed from the cross.

Legion of Doom targeted 'undesirables'

By CANDICE HUGHES

FORT WORTH (AP) — Their calling card was a swastika. They favored pipe bombs and once left a disemboweled cat in a student's car.

The small band of vigilantes who called themselves the Legion of Doom turned out to be the teen-age sons of affluent families. Some are athletes, others are on the honor roll. All nine are white.

For their parents, "it was broken hearts and shock," said police Detective Ken Henry.

In what they claim was an attempt to rid Paschal High School of theft, drugs and "undesirable elements," the Legion may have committed as many as 35 felonies themselves, police say.

Police have discounted the Legion's claims of widespread drug problems.

"It was just a typical, middle-class school in a fairly nice neighborhood," said Sgt. Craig Slaton of the police gang unit.

Whatever its motive, the Legion's message was harsh.

On sidewalks and parks in the pleasant neighborhood of tree-lined streets and comfortable homes near campus, they scrawled messages such as these:

"Democrats, communists and niggers shall perish under our wrath," and "We are the future Aryan lords."

The story of the middle-class gang with a name taken from comic books began to unravel after a weekend of violence in late March.

On March 27, a student's windshield was shot out. A note left on the car bore a red swastika and the message:

"Paschal is now Nazi territory. You are short-lived if you return. Heed our warning. There will not be another."

The next day, Saturday, another student's windshield was smashed and a gutted cat was placed on the steering wheel. The entrails were smeared on the upholstery.

On Sunday, a pipe bomb loaded with nails and screws damaged a student's car, a nearby house and another vehicle.

Within days two Paschal students and a recent graduate had been arrested, questioned and released. Six more students came in voluntarily for questioning, said Fort Worth police spokesman Doug Clarke.

According to police, crimes under investigation range from the attempted fire-bombing of a black student's home, to the manufacture and possession of illegal weapons, including a homemade bazooka, to arson, vandalism, terroristic threats.

State unemployment at 7.1 percent

STATE

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas work force swelled by 145,000 people in March from the previous month to help the state's economy rebound as unemployment hit 7.1 percent, a figure slightly below the national jobless rate, the Labor Department said Friday.

Nationwide, civilian unemployment held steady in March at 7.3 percent. The seasonally adjusted figure in Texas compared with 6.9 percent unemployed in the state in February, federal officials said.

"That is not enough to make a issue of; two-tenths of a percentage change in Texas is not enough to consider," said Nick Santangelo, an economist for the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. "For all intents and purposes, that's the same as saying that it is unchanged, and pretty much following the national series."

The number of employed in the state increased to about 7,484,000 in March, with 568,000 Texans jobless, said Mike Cimini, an economist for the bureau in Washington.

"That obviously is statistically significant and recoups the employment losses we suffered in December-January," Santangelo said. "So we went through a little dip and now we are back up at the place we were at the end of December."

In February, 541,000 people were unemployed in the state, the Labor Department said.

"There were an awful lot of people out there looking for work in Texas — re-entrants and new arrivals to the work force — and many of them found work but a few obviously didn't," said Santangelo. "What that says, in effect, is that's indicative of the slow-growth mode in the Texas economy since halfway through last year."

He said that the state recorded a 6.5 percent unemployment rate for March 1984. Santangelo said that in the year since, about 212,000 more Texans got jobs, with a gain of 66,000 in the number of unemployed, seasonally adjusted.

"Again, what it says is what we've got is a rather good economy for the state overall. But there are still and continue to be continuing pockets of problems we've named before — the Rio Grande Valley and the oil industry," Santangelo said.

Southwestern Bell, consumer groups agree to delay case

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwestern Bell and consumer groups that suspect the company uses ratepayer money to finance unregulated services agreed Friday to delay the consumers' complaint case until new Bell rates are set.

Attorney General Jim Mattox, Consumers Union and other groups filed the complaint Oct. 17. The first Public Utility Commission prehearing in the case was Friday, a delay that upset Consumers Union lawyer Carol Barger.

"Up to this date I have had the impression there has been a great deal of contempt from the commission on the handling of this, the fact that it took six months to get a prehearing," she told Crandal McDougall, a PUC administrative law judge. "That would certainly suggest to me a lack of interest in the issues."

The complaint says money from Bell ratepayers might be going to finance profitable, unregulated services, such as Yellow Pages and mobile telephones. Ratepayers should not be subsidizing those businesses, the consumer groups say.

Dallas mayor faces challenge from populist

Associated Press

Voters in Dallas decide Saturday on whether to keep a development-oriented incumbent mayor or his populist challenger who favors a monorail as a solution for traffic problems.

In McAllen, voters will choose between a veteran incumbent mayor and a city councilman who hopes to become the border city's first Hispanic mayor. In Austin, voters will choose a mayor with controversy about the incumbent's land deals a key issue.

In Dallas, incumbent A. Starke Taylor faces a challenge from City Councilman Max Goldblatt — perhaps best known for his proposal to use a monorail to unsnarl the city's mammoth rush-hour traffic problems.

Goldblatt, a 73-year-old hardware store owner, used the closing hours of the campaign to stump for votes alongside traffic-snarled Central Expressway as supporters held out a sign proclaiming: "Max Says You Could Be Working By Now."

Taylor, a 63-year-old retired millionaire cotton broker, assembled a campaign war chest of more than $500,000 against Goldblatt, who has dressed as a leprechaun and marched in a St. Patrick's Day parade and strolled through lunchtime crowds with a banjo player and two models.

Taylor often gets low marks from homeowner groups who say he is not doing enough to curb Dallas' growth and protect its neighborhoods. He enjoys wide support from businessmen and the wealthy north Dallas area.

Although a Goldblatt-sponsored campaign survey showed the challenger with 65 percent of the support, most political observers expect Taylor to easily win a second term.

In McAllen, incumbent Mayor Othal Brand faces a challenge from City Commissioner Richard Salinas, who hopes to be the city's first Hispanic mayor.

Brand, who says he has dedicated 20 years to McAllen's development, contends Salinas is not qualified for the mayor's job. Salinas counters that Brand, a wealthy agribusinessman, does not understand the needs of the area's poor.

In Austin, Mayor Ron Mullen is seeking re-election against challengers Frank Cooksey and Michael "Max" Nofziger.

Their race has been dominated by ethical questions raised since January over Mullen's business dealings, particularly ownership of some tracts of land near road projects he has supported.

Mullen, who says his record over the past two years will carry him to a second term, has put his land in a blind trust.

Man gets life in daughter's death

HOUSTON (AP) — A 41-year-old man was sentenced to life in prison after being convicted of suffocating his teen-age daughter to prevent her from testifying he sexually molested her.

Oscar McBride Jr., a four-time former convict, was found guilty in the murder last year of his 15-year-old daughter, whose nude, decaying body was found in an abandoned house.

McBride fell into his chair Thursday as State District Judge Thomas Routt read the sentence, reached by a jury after 40 minutes of deliberations.

Officers found the body of Verna Ann Bowden under the floor of an abandoned north Harris County house in February 7, 1984. Her hair had been cut off and a caustic substance had been applied to her face, authorities said.

During McBride's trial, a district attorney's investigator testified he found a human skull in the house after kicking aside a piece of plywood.

Harris County Medical Examiner Joseph Jachimczyk testified the girl had been suffocated.

Witnesses testified they last saw the girl with her father in a restaurant on Jan. 2, 1984. Her boyfriend, Marion Richard, 19, said that he saw McBride serve his daughter straight gin earlier the same evening.

Defense attorney Don Rogers did not call any witnesses during the punishment phase and waived his right to make a final statement to jurors. But he argued earlier that Richard was just as likely a suspect in the killing.

Prosecutor Don Smyth told jurors the teen-ager was the first of 17 relatives McBride had on a list of people to kill.

Germans launch campaign to stop 'forest death'

By MARK HEINRICH

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — In a campaign to save the nation's ailing forests, the West German government is fostering pollution controls on automobiles, promoting the use of unleaded gasoline and experimenting with speed limits on expressways.

West German experts have pinpointed car exhaust as a major cause of "Waldsterben" — forest death.

West German expressways — autobahns — have no speed limits and it is not unusual for drivers to go 100 miles an hour. Environmentalists say that cutting speeds would reduce automobile exhaust emissions by 20 percent.

But to avoid upsetting trade in the European Common market, West Germany needs the agreement from its partners that they also will put emission controls on their cars.

West Germany wants cars in the Common Market to be equipped with the state-of-the-art "three-way catalytic converters," believed capable of cutting emissions by 90 percent — the U.S. standard for years.

It has been negotiating with its Common Market trading partners to start installing them by 1988-89 if not by 1986.

But France, Italy, Britain and others felt their troubled auto industries could not afford to make the change in so short a time. The cost is $470 to $900 per car.

In March, West Germany accepted a compromise. The environment ministers of the Common Market agreed to a 1988-1994 changeover period, with the maximum permissible car-exhaust standard still to be negotiated.

In West Germany where the issue of the dying trees has become a passionate one, not everyone was pleased with the compromise. The left-wing opposition and ecologists denounced the pact as "an environmental scandal" and a "death sentence for the forest."

They accused Chancellor Helmut Kohl's coalition government of a "shameful" capitulation, maintaining that 60 percent of the cars produced in the Common Market will not be affected until 1991-93.

Commented the independent newspaper Sueddeutsche Zeitung of Munich: "After this lazy compromise, the only thing able to effectively and quickly benefit the dying forests would be a mandatory speed limit."

A Ministry of Agriculture survey last year estimated that half of the country's trees, most notably in tourist regions like the Black Forest, were sick — with possibly one tree in five terminally ill.

A Ministry of Research and Technology report said nitric oxide in car exhaust was a "decisive" culprit.

Midlanders vote in grassroots races

From Staff Reports

Today is election day and Midlanders will decide who represents their interests on the grassroots level.

Three positions are open on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees. K. Michael Conaway is unopposed for Place 5 and incumbent Joe Golding is seeking another term in Place 6. Vying for Place 7 are Geoffrey L. Barnett, Betsy Ann Robinson and Michael Butler.

Four persons are seeking election to three spots on the Midland County Hospital District board of directors. They are Jacqueline W. Allen, Dr. Walter S. Parks Jr., Gene Abbott and Frank Kell Cahoon. Parks and Cahoon are incumbents.

David Godfrey is the only candidate for City Council from District 1.

Competing for the council's District 2 seat are Jimenez Salazar, Tony Carrillo, Patrick Aleman, Clarence D. Meekins and Oralia "Lilly" Corrales. Running for the two at-large council positions are Manuel G. Carrasco, Gordon G. Marcum II, A.A. Thomas Jr., Katie Heck and Terry M. Lowry.

In today's elections all registered voters won't be able to vote in every race.

With the institution of the single-member district plan for the City Council, voters will choose representatives for District 1 and 2 and two at-large places.

Residents in District 1 will vote for their candidate plus two at-large seats on the council. Residents in District 2 will decide the person to represent them plus two at-large council members. Residents in Districts 3 and 4 can vote only for two at-large council members.

All city voters also can decide the fate of one charter amendment which reads: To allow the council to designate and expressly authorize an officer or agent to determine the most advantageous bid for the city and award a contract to such bidder for labor and materials; and to allow that contracts for less than $5,000 in any one transaction or related series of transactions may be awarded without advertisement and the taking of bids if waived by the council.

All voters can decide the winners of the Midland school district and hospital district races.

Greenwood voters can choose who they want on their school board and also on the Midland Hospital district board.

Precincts 1, 2 and 3 comprise single member District 2; precincts 4 and 5 make up single member District 3; precincts 6 and 7 comprise District 4; and precincts 8 and 9 make up single member District 1.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. today.

Polling places are as follows:

— Precinct No. 1, county voting precincts 208, 209 and 211 at Lee Freshman High School, 1400 E. Oak Ave.

— Precinct No. 2, county voting precinct 306, De Zavala Elementary School, 705 N. Lee St.

— Precinct No. 3, county voting precincts 201, 203, 304, 305, 301, 302 and 303, Midland Freshman High School, 100 E. Gist Ave.

— Precinct No. 4, county voting precincts 205, 307, 309 and 310, Central Fire Station, 1500 W. Wall St.

— Precinct No. 5, county voting precincts 104, 105, 308 and 402, Senior Citizens Center, 2500 Delano.

PASSOVER

The ritual opens with the host lifting the matza, or unleavened bread, and saying, "This is the bread of affliction which our forefathers ate in the land of Egypt. Anyone who is hungry, let him come and eat. Anyone who is in need, let him come and celebrate the Passover with us."

The youngest child present asks "Ma nishtana halayla hazeh?" (Why is this night different from all other nights?).

Part of the answer is already written in the Hagaddah's text: "If God had not brought us out of the land of Egypt and brought us to our own land, then we would still be Pharaoh's slaves."

But, especially in religious families, much of the play is improvised, with discussion going on long into the night about how the concept of slavery and freedom affects people today, and about how the Jewish people should live in their restored home in the State of Israel.

The festival is preceded by days or even weeks of preparation, as religious Jews clean their homes of bread.

DOOM

So far, none of the students has been charged. Instead, authorities said, they will take the cases to a Tarrant County grand jury, probably this month.

"It's a complicated mess. We're going to sort it all out and let the grand jury decide the final outcome," said Detective Tim Ellis.

"In the classroom these kids might be all-American, Jack Armstrong types, but in the real world they are no better than the criminal elements they are trying to stamp out," said Tom Hill, the father of a student whose car was damaged by a pipe bomb.

The Legion of Doom was born last fall, and began by harassing homosexuals in a park near school, a Legion member said.

"It got old real quick," the unidentified member said.

Frustrated at what they considered the failure of authorities to control crime on campus, the group then launched its campaign.

THFC approves MMH request

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Health Facilities Commission has approved a request by Midland Memorial Hospital to purchase replacement special procedures equipment and a replacement radiographic/fluoroscopic unit.

The project involves 710 square feet of minor renovation to accommodate the installation of the equipment, according to the THFC staff.

Commissioners approved the Midland Memorial Hospital's request by a vote of 3-0 on Thursday.

In other action, commissioners approved a request by Four Seasons Nursing Center of Odessa to extend the completion deadline and increase the project cost of a reclassification project.

The THFC previously authorized the nursing center to provide skilled nursing care through the reclassification of 56 intermediate care beds to skilled nursing care beds. Commissioners granted an extension to complete the project to May 15, and increased the project cost to $11,550, according to the staff.

Sims' annex bill passes Senate

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A bill sponsored by Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, which repeals a requirement that cities have a population of 12,000 or less before they can annex certain areas has passed the Texas Senate on a voice vote.

Sims' Senate Bill 967 relates to cities annexing an area less than 500 feet wide that has two sides contiguous with the city's boundaries. The measure passed without debate and was sent to the Texas House of Representatives for consideration.

Another bill by Sims aimed at clarifying the law regarding counties acquiring a public interest in a private road also passed the Senate without debate on a voice vote.

SB 966 amends current law which fails to address certain procedural requirements, according to Sims, whose measure provides for notice to be given to the owner of land by registered mail instead of through the commissioner's court records.

The bill also goes to the House for consideration.

Bill would make buyers post bond

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, has introduced legislation providing bonding requirements for cotton buyers.

HB 2402 would amend the Agriculture Code to provide that persons registering with the Texas Department of Agriculture as cotton buyers would be required to file a bond with TDA.

If the person is seeking to renew a registration, he or she would be required to file a sworn statement of the total amount of cotton purchases and contracts for cotton purchases made in the preceeding year.

The buyer also would be required to file a bond equal to one-half of the total of such purchases and contracts.

A person registering as a cotton buyer for the first time would be required to file a $500,000 bond.

The bill is proposed to take effect upon passage.

House passes rate reduction bill

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — The House has passed and sent to the Senate legislation by Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, relating to approval of gas utility rate reductions by the Railroad Commission.

The bill was passed on the House local and uncontested calendar Thursday without debate.

The bill provides that the RRC "may approve administratively any decrease in rates proposed by the applicant and agreed upon by all parties directly affected, unless the regulatory authority finds the proposed decrease not to be in the public interest."

The bill is proposed to take effect upon passage.

Fire damages vacant building

From Staff Reports

Midland firefighters late Friday responded to a blaze which broke out at a vacant building adjacent to J&S Laundry, 212 E. Florida, causing extensive smoke and fire damage.

According to a Midland Fire Department spokesman, the blaze broke out about 10:35 p.m. Two units including an emergency rescue vehicle responded to the fire. There were no injuries. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

Man seriously hurt in oil field mishap

From Staff Reports

A 53-year-old man was listed in critical condition after undergoing surgery for injuries he suffered in an oil field accident Friday, a Midland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman said.

Herbert Ross, address unknown, an employee of Johnn Drilling Company, W. Highway 80, was injured about 4:50 p.m. when a pipe rack fell from a flat-bed truck while he was working on an oil rig located east of State Highway 158, about two miles from High Sky Girls Ranch.

He suffered total amputation of his right leg, the spokeswoman said.

O'Hair: Fundamentalism scares me

AUSTIN (AP) — Religious fundamentalism is spreading throughout the nation "in a manner that frightens me," Madalyn Murray O'Hair said Friday at the opening of the 15th Annual American Atheist convention.

"And it is a thing that we must regret and apologize for to the world that we have a president who eggs them on," the president and founder of the organization's headquarters here told a news conference.

Several hundred atheist leaders from throughout the nation gathered at a hotel on the southern edge of Austin on Friday following the opening Thursday of a competing gathering on the north edge of the city.

C.E. "Buddy" Hicks, host of a local radio and TV talk show, opened the God and Country Rally with an appeal to "pack up the forces of evil and truck them down the road."

Hicks, who also is a part-time preacher, said he organized the rally of Christians after learning from William Murray, eldest son of Mrs. O'Hair, that the atheists planned to meet in Austin on Easter weekend. Murray, who has broken with his mother, is now a Dallas-based evangelist.

The atheist convention held organizational meetings Friday with representatives from 60 chapters throughout the nation. Featured speakers on atheism and personal freedom will be heard Saturday and Sunday.

"I see the fundamentalists as facists, reactionaries, thought police and basically are sick," Mrs. O'Hair said at the news conference.

She said atheists would work hard to take advantage of two favorable court decisons this year that she said would allow them access to public schools along with other religions and for tuition tax credits for atheist schools.

Her other son, Jon Murray, director of the American Atheist Center in Austin, sat by her side.

She was asked about a statement by William Murray on Thursday that atheists stand for anarchy, destruction of government, and a number of other things.

"I've got ying and yang for sons," Mrs. O'Hair replied. "I've got a good one and a bad one. There's always a bad apple in the barrel."

She said American atheists stand for "freedom from the oppression of religion, freedom from the censorship of human thought, freedom from the traditions that have been religious which have caused so much misery for humankind."

She said of the God and Country Rally, "This particular group was formed for one specific reason, to obstruct what we are doing."

Jon Murray told the news conference that the rally on the north side of Austin was "to get themselves a name. Prior to the American Atheist convention, nobody in Austin knew who Buddy Hicks was."

"We will continue to have our convention, and we will continue to ingore them," Murray said.

Mrs. O'Hair said there was no significance in the atheists holding a convention at Easter.

"We found that basically hotels are empty at Easter time.

Thieves sabotage lighted cross

EL PASO (AP) — Officials say thieves and vandals have sabotaged their efforts to keep the lights burning around the giant stone statue of Christ atop Mount Cristo Rey.

Lights and generators used to illuminate the 42-foot statue have been stolen or destroyed repeatedly in recent months.

The trouble started three months after a diesel fuel generator was installed. The machine blew a piston and batteries were later stolen when the equipment was replaced with a smaller battery-operated generator, authorities said.

The four lights used to illuminate the cross were stolen after the batteries were replaced.

The lights were replaced Wednesday, but the statue remained dark because someone had stolen the generator.

"Someone went through a great deal of trouble and work to steal that generator," Robert Munoz, vice president and general manager of KCIK-TV, said Thursday.

The station sponsored a telethon last fall to raise money to refurbish and light the monument.

"Either someone doesn't want the cross lit, or they are just stealing items for their own benefit," Munoz said. "We don't know what's going on, but we will find out."

The lighting of the stone statue was part of a $40,000 project that included restoration of its base and the ground around it. Individuals and groups throughout West Texas and southern New Mexico donated money for the project.

El Paso police will be notified about the thefts, said Munoz. He said a security guard may be stationed atop the mountain after the $1,000 generator is replaced.

Munoz said the generator was inside a 6-inch-thick concrete bunker behind a solid metal door an inch thick.

"They had to use a blow torch or a hacksaw for a long time to cut through the metal plate," he said. "And then they had to carry it all the way down the mountain.

A police sketch, center, was based on the description Cathleen Crowell Webb, right, gave authorities in 1977 of the man she said raped her. Gary Dotson, shown left after his 1977 arrest, was later tried and sent to prison for a rape Webb now says he did not commit.

Man's freedom depends on unanswered questions

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson spent his first day in six years outside prison on Friday, but how long he stays free depends on whether a judge accepts his accuser's word that she was never raped.

Two key questions must be answered before Dotson can be cleared: Will a judge believe the testimony of Cathleen Crowell Webb, who insists she wasn't raped in 1977 but can't remember some important details? Will sophisticated medical tests prove Dotson could not have assaulted her?

Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel, says he's confident his client will never spend another moment behind bars. Dotson is a bit more cautious.

"I hope this is my last day in prison," he said after he walked out of the Joliet Correctional Center on Thursday for his first breath of freedom since 1979. He was freed on $10,000 cash bond pending an April 11 hearing.

Dotson, 28, relaxed Friday at his family's home in south suburban Country Club Hills after an emotional reunion with relatives and friends that lingered on until 3 a.m.

He slept soundly Friday morning in his own room, and has no immediate plans but to do the simple things he dreamed about in prison, said his sister, Debbie Daniluk.

"He wants to take it day by day...and do what we take for granted," she said.

Dotson planned to take a long walk Friday and feast on homemade spaghetti, she said. On Tuesday he may attend the Chicago Cubs season opener.

Dotson's release, after he posted the money needed to cover $100,000 bond, capped a long day that began when Mrs. Webb calmly testified that she lied when she identified Dotson as having raped her July 9, 1977.

Mrs. Webb told Circuit Judge Richard Samuels, who imposed Dotson's 25- to-50-year sentence, that she fabricated the rape and kidnapping story to prevent her foster parents from learning she had had sex with a teen-age boy.

The 23-year-old mother of two, who now lives in New Hampshire, said earlier in an affidavit that she had feared she was pregnant.

Mrs. Webb said she ripped her clothes, tried to bruise her body with her fingernails and a broken bottle, and created a fictitious description of her attacker.

But while she could recall those specific incidents, she did not remember other important elements of the alleged assault.

For example, she was not certain when she had had sex with the youth, at one point saying it was a few days earlier and then later saying it may have been closer to July 9.

The prosecution's questioning also appeared designed to show that on the night she reported the rape, Mrs. Webb's behavior was consistent with other rape victims.

Firefighters battle blazes in Southeast

Associated Press

Tanker planes dumped water and exhausted firefighters tried "to keep their wits about them" Friday as they battled woodland blazes across eight Southeastern states that have scorched nearly 70,000 acres and injured at least 23 people.

Hot weather and flame-fanning wind gusts persisted in many burning areas.

"Low humidity and high winds make for a deadly combination," said Jerry Harrison, fire weather forecaster for the National Weather Service in South Carolina, where a firefighter died when trapped by a blaze earlier in the week.

Storms doused flames across Alabama and Georgia and dampened fires in Tennessee and Kentucky, while officials in Virginia pinned their hopes for relief on forecasts of rain showers Thursday night.

"It's raining hard and it's beautiful," forester Brad Remley said from his watchtower in Rockwood, in eastern Tennessee."It's wet the area pretty good...The flames are dying down a lot."

In Georgia and North Carolina, 22 people — most of them firefighters — were treated for injuries in the blazes. In South Carolina, a firefighter who suffered burns to the arms was treated and returned to battle a 1,000-acre blaze.

"I talked to a couple of firefighters — tired, exhausted," said Marlboro County, S.C., fire tower operator Janelle Rivers. "They're trying to keep their wits about them."

Govs. Dick Riley of South Carolina and Martha Layne Collins of Kentucky declared states of emergency because of the fires, which charred nearly 20,000 acres in South Carolina and 23,000 acres in Kentucky. North Carolina Gov. Jim Martin said the blazes caused "a major emergency" but he stopped short of a declaration. Officials estimated the fires caused at least $2 million damage in North Carolina.

Of 85 fires reported Friday in South Carolina, 56 were brought under control, officials said. Forester Rhett Bickley said Friday that more than 1,200 fires damaged nearly 20,000 acres for the week through Thursday.

In Colleton County, S.C., low-flying tanker planes dropped water as firefighters battled flames that threatened homes near Interstate 95, said Forester Alan Alexander.

I believe we should maximize usage of the hospital's current facilities: We need to try to make the most out of what we already have, before we spend our money to expand. The cost of expansion is not a "One-Time" expenditure- It cost you each day to maintain and provide utilities and staff for additional space-Let's move walls around before we build new ones.

My wish is to help provide the best possible patient care services and facilities at a reasonable cost to Midland County residents. Bank stores wealth in jars full of glycerol

BEVERWIJK, Netherlands (AP) — The wealth on deposit at this Dutch coastal city's most unusual bank sits in simple jars, each containing skin donated by the dead for recycling on the living.

The nine-year-old Dutch National Skin Bank processes about 50 donated bodies a year, using a method of preservation through glycerol immersion that it claims is inexpensive, long-lasting, and lends itself easily to transportation.

"We are the only skin bank in the world, as far as we know, currently using high concentrations of glycerol for skin preservation," claimed researcher Hans Hoekstra in an interview.

And he added that skin preserved by the bank's method was not rejected by recipients' bodies as quickly as skin preserved by other methods, notably freezing, freeze-drying and deep-freezing through immersion in liquid nitrogen.

Glycerol is a syrupy substance commonly used as a preservative in other skin banks, notably in the United States, but in such low concentrations that the skin must also be frozen to preserve it.

The Dutch bank's procedure begins with the removal of superficial layers of skin, measuring 12-15 thousandths of an inch thick and up to two inches wide, from the legs and backs of donor bodies, using a specially designed electrically-operated shaver.

Standard organ transplant forms are required for the operation, which generally takes about two hours per body.

The donor skin must be shaved off within 12 hours of death and then treated with the glycerol, which replaces the tissue's natural water content. The strips of skin are rolled and put in jars, which are then refrigerated.

"With this method you can keep the skin without changing its structure for at least 20 months," said Rudolf Hermans, a surgeon and burn specialist at the hospital and one of the skin bank's founders.

One of the advantages of the Beverwijk method is that the preserved skin can be shipped without refrigeration, said Hoekstra, adding that "you can put the skin in your own car and transport it anywhere in the world."

Sticker retribution for first-time drunk driving offenders

By OWEN CANFIELD

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Around Christmas, Del City resident Delmar Warren was arrested in Midwest City for drunken driving. As part of his retribution, Warren, a first offender, was ordered to place a bumper sticker on his car.

The sticker, in short, tells other drivers that the person at the wheel has been convicted in Midwest City of either driving under the influence or driving while intoxicated, and that other motorists should "report any erratic driving to the Midwest City police."

The bumper sticker program began early this year in the Oklahoma City suburb. Since that time about 10 people have been given the stickers as part of their punishment, Municipal Judge Ken Spears said.

Which offenders receive the stickers and which don't is up to Spears. Some drunken driving offenders get them, some don't.

Other penalties for drunken driving are a jail sentence, a $200 fine or a sixth-month deferred sentence. The stickers can be handed out with any of the other penalties, or separately.

Warren, 40, doesn't like that kind of law.

"If you're going to make a program work, make it work for everybody," said Warren, who said the main problem he has encountered with the sticker is other motorists being discourteous or laughing at him.

"I saw people in there (court) who I know personally and who I know had been in there before, but they didn't get chosen because they had a lawyer.

"If you paid $500 in lawyers' fees, you could get off."

Warren said he was not bitter about being chosen; simply that he wanted to see the stickers handed out to everyone.

Judge Spears said the way he does it is best.

"If you gave it to everybody ... it really loses its effect," he said.

Spears said he uses several factors in determining who should be given a bumper sticker, including prior DUI offenses and — particularly for first-time offenders — blood-alcohol content at the time of the arrest.

Midwest City Police Chief Jim Cox said that just because someone doesn't receive a bumper sticker doesn't mean they have not been punished.

"The bumper stickers are just one program," Cox said. "We also have sentenced people to DUI schools, made them attend Alcoholics Anonymous. ... There are several ways we can go."

Midwest City appears to be going in the right direction. Cox said that in 1984, there were 531 drunken driving arrests made in the city limits, including 368 by officers who work only in that area and 163 by other officers.

Of the 2,176 reported accidents in Midwest City last year, only 116 were alcohol-related, Cox said.

"Those numbers show we seem to be having some success fighting the battle," the chief said.

So do the punishments. People found guilty a second time of driving under the influence, "have 30 days in jail, period," Cox said.

There are also several provisions that go along with the sticker, which must be displayed for six months. The driver cannot show any erratic tendencies on the road and cannot park in front of a liquor store or an establishment which serves liquor, among other things, Cox said. They also must drive the car and cannot simply park it in a garage for six months.

Protesters found not guilty

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Thirty-one women charged with trespassing during a protest at a Sperry Corp. plant that manufactures missile guidance systems were found innocent Friday.

The six-member jury deliberated nearly 11 hours Thursday and Friday before announcing their decision in Ramsey County Municipal Court.

Defendant Nance Mosier said jurors told her that they believed the women when they testified that the world faced danger from nuclear armaments.

"One of our major purposes all along has been to educate the public," she said. "It is an incredible encouragement to us. We're all just thrilled that these people have come to understand the imminent danger the world is in."

Sperry officials declined comment on the verdicts.

'Deportees' re-enter U.S.

COLUMBUS, N.M. (AP) — A Mexican family whose son has a congenital heart defect left the United States as deportees on Friday, but were back in the country legally just 15 minutes later.

"We'll make a fresh new start and see how it feels," said Guadalupe Tena after walking the 200-yard roundtrip between the Columbus port of entry and Las Palomas, Mexico, with her 4-year-old son Victor in her arms.

Victor is the only member of the Las Cruces family who is a U.S. citizen and suffers from a congenital heart defect.

An immigration judge in El Paso ruled Tuesday that Mrs. Tena, her husband Raul and their 6-year-old daughter Daniela must be deported to their native Mexico. But he allowed them to return to the United States on a six-month parole so Victor can be treated.

The Tenas had said they would not return to Mexico without Victor and the family's doctor had told immigration officials the child cannot receive adequate medical care in northern Mexico.

Gas injures 10 people

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — A cloud of deadly chlorine gas spewed from tanks at a pool supply company Friday, injuring 10 people and causing a massive traffic jam as it hung over the main route to this seaside resort.

Valves were open on the six tanks, leading authorities to blame vandals for the leak. It was reported about 3:15 a.m. and dissipated around dawn, although U.S. 501 remained closed until shortly before noon as traffic backed up five miles.

Pentagon stops all payments to General Dynamics

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon announced Friday it has decided to stop all payments to the General Dynamics Corp. for work on weapons contracts until it recovers the entire $154 million identified in a new audit as excess claims paid out in past years.

Since General Dynamics collects an estimated $700 million a month for the work it performs on various weapons, it will take the Pentagon less than a month to recover the disputed claims.

The Defense Department decision was disclosed in a one-page memorandum issued to reporters late in the day. Phone calls to General Dynamics' office seeking comment went unanswered.

In its statement, the Pentagon also disclosed that General Dynamics submitted a list of proposed changes in its internal billing procedures last week; and said that even though the money will be recovered in less than a month, the Pentagon is going to continue withholding claims relating to current administrative expenses until certain conditions are met.

The memorandum follows the disclosure Thursday that Pentagon auditors had identified $154 million worth of excess overhead claims in a special audit ordered on March 5 by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger.

Weinberger ordered that audit at the same time he imposed a 30-day suspension on all overhead payments to General Dynamics. Both actions followed congressional testimony during which it was disclosed the firm had submitted claims for such things as the cost of boarding an executive's dog at a kennel, country-club expenses and questionable travel costs.

Spokesman Michael I. Burch, in disclosing the audit results on Thursday, had noted the payment freeze ordered by Weinberger had cost General Dynamics roughly $30 million over the past month. That "leaves an owed balance of $124 million," Burch said, adding: "We will collect that amount."

"Under the circumstances," the memo states, "the department has determined to withhold additional amounts from the contractor pending satisfactory resolution of these open items.

"The total additional amount to be withheld for this purpose is $154 million. The general and administrative expenses withheld over the past 30 days will be netted against this sum. The additional withholding will be made against current billings submitted by the contractor until the total has been reached."

In the case of General Dynamics, the Pentagon has said the firm normally receives $700 million a month. Of that, roughly $670 million is for work actually performed on new weapons such as Trident submarines, while the remaining $30 million or so is to cover administrative and overhead expenses.

Even though it will soon recover the entire disputed $154 million, the Pentagon said it will continue the freeze on administrative payments until certain conditions are met.

General Dynamics must adjust "current billing rates...to conform to auditors' recommended rates." The company must also "alter its internal management and accounting practices...to assure that claims for unallowable costs will not be made."

"The department is evaluating the adequacy of these procedural changes at this time," the statement said.

CARDELLA—A COLLECTION BLENDING ITALIAN COUNTRY HOSPITALITY AND CENTURY'S SKILLED CRAFTSMANSHIP

During the 17th and 18th centuries, the French craftsmen of the provinces developed simpler, less sophisticated versions of the graceful furnishings seen at court. In Italy a similar transition was taking place—early provincial artisans derived their designs from the elaborate baroque styles popular in the great palazzos of Milan, Rome, Venice and Florence. Then later, strongly influenced by the French, they created the neo-classical style that is known as Italian Provincial. Today, Century® blends these early influences in Cardella, a new collection replete with the grace in form appropriate to its lineage. Skillfully reproduced in heavily distressed and antiqued cherry solids and highly figured cherry veneers, Cardella is intricately detailed with brass fittings, caning, molding and medallions.

Expansive, warm and hospitable, Cardella is at home in the palazzo as well as in the welcoming surroundings of a typical Italian albergo or inn. Now thanks to ben trovato or well conceived artistry, Cardella by Century® can be yours.

Shown, the Cardella dining room featuring a magnificent china, caneback chairs, upholstered and enhanced by carved medallions, a graceful abaco or buffet hunt board, and an expansive table intricately detailed with curved moldings surrounding an inlaid surface.

From Antipasto to Cappucino, Cardella by Century® provides an atmosphere conducive to pleasurable dining with family and friends.

Mexican drug baron, wanted in agent's death, deported

WORLD

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Mexican drug baron Rafael Caro Quintero was deported Friday to Mexico where he is wanted for questioning about the murder of an American narcotics agent, Costa Rican and U.S. sources said.

A U.S. Embassy source, who spoke on condition of anonymity for protocol reasons, said Caro Quintero and the five people seized with him left Friday afternoon aboard two Mexican government planes.

In Mexico City, reporters found heavy security in place at government hangars at the international airport.

Caro Quintero, 33, was captured Thursday at an estate outside San Jose. He is a prime suspect in the kidnap-murder of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena Salazar in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Costa Rican officials had said they did not plan to file charges against Caro Quintero and would turn him over to Mexican authorities.

Earlier Friday, a U.S. official said it was hoped that documents seized when Caro Quintero was arrested may lead police to others involved in the murder of Camarena.

"We feel there might possibly be evidence that would permit us to assist the government of Mexico in arresting others involved in the murder of Enrique Camarena," said Donald Clements, DEA attache at the U.S. Embassy in San Jose.

Clements declined to elaborate, but said police had found "documents with evidenciary value to the United States."

He told reporters he would ask that the documents be studied in Washington, then returned to Costa Rican authorities.

Police who arrested Caro Quintero also found $150,000 in travelers checks plus jewelry and several weapons, including a gold-plated pistol with Caro Quintero's name engraved on the handle and a diamond-studded handgun, according to Clements.

The man in custody has said he is really Marcos Antonio Rios Valenzuela, but "we are sure it is Caro Quintero," Clements said.

He added that Washington does not now plan to ask that the suspect be extradited to the United States.

Caro Quintero entered Costa Rica on March 17, according to Clements.

Mexico major drug source for U.S. market

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Planes, boats and tanker trucks cross the border to supply an eager U.S. market with tons of drugs from La Familia, a Mexican traffickers' alliance in which Rafael Caro Quintero is said to be a leader.

Caro Quintero, a prime suspect in the murder of American narcotics agent Enrique Camarena Salazar, was arrested Thursday outside San Jose, Costa Rica.

Mexican police burn the marijuana crops and many cargoes are lost to the U.S. Coast Guard, border police and Customs agents. But the border and the coast are long and not every mile of them can be watched, so most of the contraband gets through.

Profits in the drug business are enormous and the traffic has made many millionaires in La Familia — The Family — a network of dealers who stopped killing each other and united for mutual profit.

Camarena was seized Feb. 7 within sight of the U.S. consulate in Guadalajara, a center of the drug trade 320 miles northwest of Mexico City. His body was found March 5 with that of a Mexican pilot who worked with him.

Caro Quintero, 33, was born to a poor farm family in the drug-growing region of Sinaloa and now is a rich man with hundreds of properties. He was last seen before his arrest giving a high Guadalajara police official a farewell embrace before boarding his private jet Feb. 9.

A U.S. official who demanded anonymity for protocol reasons said it was believed that Caro Quintero was involved in the slaying. And U.S. Ambassador John Gavin has called Caro Quintero "one of the intellectual authors" of Camarena's murder.

The U.S. attorney general, Edward Meese III, called Caro Quintero "one of the major drug traffickers in the world."

Drug trafficking in Mexico is nothing new, but in recent years the drug barons have developed it into a multibillion-dollar industry. Their boats are fast, their planes get bigger and better, and methods of hiding drugs in vehicles become more ingenious.

U.S. officials estimate up to 30 percent of the marijuana and 38 percent of the heroin used in the United States comes from Mexico. They also say 30 percent of the cocaine passes through this country en route from South America.

Much of the marijuana is grown in the Sierra Madre mountains in Sonora, Sinaloa and Durango states, and stored in warehouses near the border until it can be moved across.

Most goes overland. Tanker trucks are becoming popular because each can carry up to 10 tons of the weed, which is only profitable in large shipments.

The vehicles that get through are those in which the contraband is expertly concealed or that cross into uninhabited and infrequently patrolled areas of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Boats are used to move move marijuana up the coast, especially to points in the San Diego area, and nearly everybody uses aircraft.

"The bigger the operator, the bigger and fancier the planes," the U.S. official said. "They have everything from single-engine aircraft to private jets."

Demand for Mexican heroin has increased in recent years, largely because the traffickers' chemists have developed techniques of refining the brown "Mexican mud" heroin into a white powder that is 80 percent pure.

Because of their high street value, heroin and cocaine can be smuggled profitably in small amounts by individuals, called "mules," or in personal vehicles.

The transhipment of cocaine appears to be concentrated on the Yucatan Peninsula, along the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean coast. U.S. officials say 49 secret airstrips have been discovered in the area.

Mexican officials blame the large-scale traffic on the great U.S. demand for illegal drugs. They also contend they are doing all they can to combat it and eradicate drug cultivation in Mexico, but some American officials feel that corruption impedes the battle.

Mexicans re-enact Christ's crucifixion

IZTAPALAPA, Mexico (AP) — Miguel Aviles, barefoot and wearing a long purple robe, said he lifted weights for five months to get in shape for Good Friday.

He was one of about 1,000 "young Nazarenes" who carried a tall pine cross Friday in this community's annual Easter pageant. They led the way up the Hill of the Star, a river of crosses preceding the staggering Christ.

Aviles's burden weighed 130 pounds (59 kilos); he weighed 125 pounds.

"The desire to do this was born in my heart," said the 17-year-old, who joined the marchers for the fourth year in a row.

Once an Aztec market center, Iztapalapa is now a crowded community in the eastern part of the Federal District, Mexico's equivalent of the District of Columbia. Except for a few years during the Mexican revolution, it has put on its pageant annually since 1833, when survivors of a cholera epidemic started the tradition.

On Maundy Thursday, the 80 actors in the pageant enacted the Last Supper, which this year featured beans, chicken and mole, a native sauce made of chile and chocolate.

On Good Friday — a holiday in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country — Iztapalapa was the focal point of the capital, as hundreds of thousands of people jammed the streets to watch the trial before Pontius Pilate and the procession up the Hill of the Star for the crucifixion. Organizers had estimated the crowd would reach a million people.

Many of the costumes, which the actors themselves pay for, were elaborate. One Roman soldier who rode a horse wore a pounded-copper breastplate.

The pageant had the air of a subdued carnival. Families sat in the park eating cotton candy, peanuts and fresh pineapple slices. But people listened respectfully, some with solemn faces, as the Roman authorities condemned Jesus Christ to die.

Brazil's president-elect rallies after operations

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Tancredo Neves, Brazil's 75-year-old president-elect, showed signs of rallying from his critical condition Friday following five abdominal operations within three weeks, the government said.

Tens of thousands of people attended special religious services Friday for Neves. Crowds of well-wishers gathered outside Sao Paulo's Heart Institute of Clinical Hospital, where he is being treated. Many carried signs saying, "Tancredo, Brazil is waiting for you."

Spokesman Antonio Britto said Neves was breathing without a respirator and that a lung problem was better Friday, one day after his latest bout of surgery.

"This news should comfort us," Ulysses Guimaraes, speaker of the House of Representatives, told the nation on television.

A government official, who has close contacts with the hospital doctors but who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the critical medical problems now were "because of infection or complications arising from infection."

Reading a medical bulletin Friday night, Britto said that Neves' recovery was "normal." He added that the president-elect was given blood transfusions for anemia.

Sao Paulo state Gov. Andre Franco Montoro described Neves' situation as "serious" but said he was "a man of steel."

A banner headline in Friday's edition of the newspaper Ultima Hora read, "Only a Miracle Now."

Neves, a popular politician whose career spans 50 years, underwent initial emergency surgery for intestinal inflammation on March 15, hours before he was to be sworn in as Brazil's first civilian president in 21 years.

Newspapers on Friday quoted the archbishop of Sao Paulo, Cardinal Paulo Evaristo Arns, as saying, "More than ever, Tancredo's democratic ideas, his strength as a fighter, his enormous capacity to conciliate and his deep religious spirit should unite the nation in a new era, one of social justice." Press reports said Neves was weak after undergoing operations for diverticulitis, which is inflammation of the small intestine; to remove a blockage; to repair a hemorrhage; to mend a hernia, and to remove spots of infection.

Vice President Jose Sarney, 54, was inaugurated and has been acting president.

Cholera epidemic threatens thousands in Somalia

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A cholera epidemic sweeping through Somalia has killed at least 1,000 people and endangers as many as 300,000 others in the East African nation, the Red Cross said Friday.

"Indications are that the number of new cases is increasing...but that the number of deaths is going down," the League of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies said in a release.

It quoted league official Lucianne Phillips as saying 1,000 people had perished, among them Ethiopian refugees who had fled their drought-stricken homeland.

The first cholera cases were reported March 27 at the Gannet refugee camp, near Hargeisa in northwestern Somalia.

Since then, new cases have been reported in Hargeisa and at other refugee camps nearby, the release said.

On Thursday, the Somali Health Ministry said more than 700 people had died of cholera, an intestinal ailment spread by tainted water.

Violence continues in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police said one black was shot dead and another hacked and stabbed to death Friday in the eastern Cape province where anti-apartheid violence has resulted in dozens of deaths in the last month.

A spokesman at national police headquarters in Pretoria said police opened fire with shotguns on a crowd of blacks who had attacked a police patrol with rocks. He said the crowd fled, and police found the body of one black. The spokesman refused to be identified.

About 12 miles away, near the auto-manufacturing town of Uitenhage, police came upon a crowd of blacks trying to set fire to the body of a black who had been stabbed and hacked to death, the spokesman said.

He said the crowd fled and police recovered the body. Identities of the dead were not released.

Black anger at white-minority rule often expresses itself in attacks on fellow blacks who are seen as collaborators with the system.

Since September, black riots have broken out almost daily.

WORLD in brief

Writer donates prize to Peru's war orphans

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Mario Vargas Llosa on Friday gave the orphans of Peru's guerrilla warfare zone the $50,000 he received last week as the first winner of the Ritz Paris Hemingway Prize for literature.

"I would like to contribute the money to the home for orphaned war children which is being built in Ayacucho," the 49-year-old Peruvian novelist said in a letter to Violeta Correa, wife of President Fernando Belaunde Terry, who has promoted construction of the orphanage.

"By doing this, I want to make public my solidarity with the innocent victims of the homicidal violence and pay homage to those who quietly and nobly work to alleviate the pain of Peru's disinherited," he said.

The orphanage will house at least 120 orphans of the guerrilla war between security forces and Maoist guerrillas of the Shining Path organization in Peru's Andes region. It was the idea of Andres Vivanco, an 80-year-old retired teacher from Ayacucho.

Thousands protest missiles

Associated Press

Thousands of people in West Germany and Britain marched on U.S. military bases Friday to protest the deployment of nuclear missiles, beginning the annual Easter weekend peace demonstrations.

In Frankfurt, West Germany, a statement from the headquarters of "Easter March '85," said marches and demonstrations were being held in more than 200 cities and towns.

West German Justice Minister Hans Engelhard called on the demonstrators to remain peaceful and within the law. No incidents or arrests were reported.

In Britain, hundreds of banner-waving people gathered at the Molesworth U.S. Air Force base to begin a four-day protest against the deployment of NATO cruise missiles there.

India rejects firm's offer

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government has rejected a $200 million offer by Union Carbide for an out-of-court settlement to compensate victims of the Bhopal gas disaster, the Telegraph newspaper reported Saturday.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi had earlier said India turned down an offer by the American company but he did not disclose the amount.

In an interview published Thursday in London's Financial Times newspaper, Gandhi said the figure was too low and that it was likely India would sue Union Carbide in U.S. courts.

The leak of methyl isocyanate gas from the company's plant on Dec. 3 killed more than 2,000 people. An additional 200,000 were affected by the leak, the world's worst industrial disaster.

Petrified trees unearthed

BERLIN (AP) — Construction workers digging a foundation for a new apartment building uncovered petrified tree trunks estimated to be 250 million years old, the state-run East German news agency ADN said Friday.

It said the discovery was made in Karl-Marx-Stadt, a city in the southeastern part of East Germany near the Czechoslovak border.

Sunny skies in store for Midland area

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders remaining in the Permian Basin area for Easter will enjoy sunny skies and fair temperatures, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Today's forecast calls for clear skies and warm temperatures with the high expected near 80. Winds will be southerly at 5-15 mph. Tonight will be fair with the low in the mid-40s. Sunday calls for clear skies and fair temperatures with the high in the mid-70s.

Friday's high of 73 was 19 degrees below the record set in 1959. The low of 44 was 19 degrees above the record set in 1936.

STATE

Not a cloud marred deep blue skies over the Lone Star State late Friday afternoon, and the forecast for the Easter weekend promised more fair weather.

Friday afternoon temperatures warmed to the 60s and 70s across the northern half of Texas. The lower valley and coastal plains were in the 80s and 90s.

Extremes ranged from Dalhart with with 62 degrees to McAllen, with 94.

The forecast called for more clear skies and mild to cool temperatures at night. Temperatures will gradually increase through the weekend, the National Weather Service said.

High temperatures in West Texas Saturday and Sunday should range from near 70 in the Panhandle to near 80 in the Concho Valley, with highs in the Big Bend area in the upper 80s. Overnight lows should drop to the mid-30s north to near 50 in southern areas.

NATION

Thunderstorms, hail and high wind pounded much of the Mississippi Valley on Friday, with tornadoes striking Indiana, while winds near 60 mph killed one person in Illinois.

Along the East Coast and in the upper Ohio Valley, temperatures rose into the 70s and 80s, with record highs in four cities. A vigorous storm brought whiteouts, road closures, and up to 10 inches of snow to the Colorado mountains.

One man was killed in an unincorporated area near Tilden in southwestern Illinois when high winds demolished his mobile home, said Randolph County Coroner Neil Birchler.

"It just looked like a disaster area," said Birchler. "It was apparently tossed about 20 to 30 feet from its pads and there was just nothing left of it."

In nearby Washington County, the winds damaged several homes, said sheriff's dispatcher Jo Ann Weihe.

Roosevelt's Martin .02 off record

Bulldogs' Davis lofts career best to win shot put

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — Dallas Roosevelt's Roy Martin, rated the nation's top boy athlete by Track and Field News, blazed to a Texas Relays record and second best all-time United States high school 100 meter mark of 10.18 seconds Friday night.

Martin's time on a windless Memorial Stadium track was just .02 seconds off the all-time best by Houston McTear of Baker (Florida) in 1976.

Joe DeLoach of Bay City finished second in 10.26 seconds, which was the fourth best all-time time. The third best of 10.23 is held by Johnny Jones of Lampasas, Texas.

Martin, who says he plans to attend Southern Methodist, was behind coming out of the blocks but caught and passed DeLoach in the last 30 yards.

The old Texas Relays record of 10.42 was set by Herkie Walls of Garland, Texas, in 1979.

CALIFORNIAN HENRY Thomas, the top rated schoolboy sprinter in the nation by Track and Field, was disqualified for a false start earlier in the 100 meter preliminaries.

"It's great," said Martin. "I came here for the national record but I'll take this.

"I had to get down into fifth gear to come from behind. I felt Joe DeLoach being real close at the finish."

Thomas, last year's California state champion in the 100 and 200, had already run a 10.3 manually and a 9.2 manual, wind-aided this year.

However, he leaned out of the blocks ahead of the field in the second heat and was disqualified by the starter under the Relays' strict rule against false starts.

Martin, the Texas Class 5A 100 meters champion who was selected the outstanding male performer at last year's Texas Relays, ran the 100 meter qualifying in 10.30.

DeLoach, winner of the State 4A 100 meters and won the 100 at the Pan American Junior Championship last year, qualified in 10.32 seconds.

Martin has anchored Roosevelt to the 1600 meter relay title in the last three Texas Relays. Roosevelt has run a 3:12.28 this year. He also was an alternate on the U.S. Olympic team.

IN THE high school shot put, Midland High's Darrell Davis let loose with a career best toss — by almost two feet — to win the high school shot put with a throw of 63-feet-3¼.

Earlier this spring, Davis set his previous career best mark of 61-feet-4¾ in the Mustang Relays in Andrews.

On the day, three high schoolers broke 60 feet in the shot put. Frank Mazza of Riverridge, La., threw 62-feet-1¾ to take second and Duane Duncum of Westlake lobbed the shot 60-feet-7¼ for third.

"We're just kind of jumping up and down about it," Davis' coach Johnny Williams said via telephone. "He threw real well after his first throw. He looked real tight and uncomfortable, but then he started throwing very well."

The Bulldogs' 110-meter hurdler Randy Simmons also made the trip and finished second in his heat in a time of 14.4 but failed to make today's finals.

The Midland Lee contingent met with fair success also.

In the finals of the 3,200, sophomore Mike Garza wiped out his personal best by 23 seconds and powdered the six-year old school mark by eight seconds en route to a sixth-place finish with a 9:14.

"It was just the level of competition that made him do it," assistant coach Eddie Wolski said. "And that is exactly why we brought him down here."

Lee's excellent 1,600 relay team also fared well Friday. The foursome of Brad Cooper, Craig Swearingen, Walter Jones and Marq Brackens also shattered a school mark with a 3:15.00. The time was the third fastest of the day and qualifies Lee for today's finals at 5:45 p.m.

The Rebel 400 relay team botched a pair of handoffs and finished fifth in their heat, failing to make the finals. Walter Jones, running in the 100, cruised to a 10.8 and also failed to make the cut.

IN THE men's college division, Odessa College's Vernon George placed second in the long jump with a leap of 25-feet-2¾. Yussif Alli of Missouri won the event with a jump of 25-feet-8¾.

Louisiana State's 3200 meter relay team of Lana Zimmerman, Jackie Bobien, Camillo Cato and Christine Slythe ran a Texas Relays record 8:34.1. The old mark of 8:36.17 was held by Tennessee.

Other Texas Relays records set Saturday included:

—Florida State's 3:14.70 in the collegiate sprint medley relay beating the old time of 3:15.2 by Kansas in 1967.

—Ranger Junior College's 9:41.65 in the distance medley relay, beating its old record of 9:46.41.

—The Arkansas Razorback foursome of Fred Cleary, Rod Haley, Mike Conley, Wallace Spearmon set a meet mark of 1:20.93 in the collegiate 800 meter relay. The old mark is 1:21.1 by Arizona in 1984.

MHS girls second in district golf

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — The Tall City girls golf teams got their first taste of District 4-5A action Friday at the Big Spring Country Club and MHS came home with a strong second-place finish. San Angelo paced the field and holds a 23-stroke advantage.

The Lady Bulldogs were paced by Stacy Owens who shot a 91, good enough for fourth place in the individual standings. Abilene Cooper's Michelle Hapack, an individual entrant, paced the field with an 82.

The Bobcats cruised to their big lead over runner-up MHS with a solid 377 team score. MHS finished at an even 400. Midland Lee was well back in the field after shooting 488. Each team counts its best four individual scores for the 18 holes to determine the team score.

The second leg of the three-weekend, 54-hole district tournament will be held next Thursday at the San Angelo Country Club before finishing with 18 holes in the Tall City on April 18.

MHS coach Mary Baird thinks highly of her squad's chances of finishing among the top two teams and advancing to regional play, particularly after Odessa Permian, which nicked MHS by a stroke last week in Amarillo, limped home at 429.

"That really gives us a break, especially in districts," Baird said of the 29 stroke-lead MHS now holds on the Panthers. Big Spring shot a 425 for third place.

THE LEE and MHS boys golf teams wound up the third round of a scheduled five-round, 90-hole tournament with 18 holes Friday at Abilene's Fairway Oaks Golf Course.

For the Rebels, struggling with MHS for sixth place, Bobby Gee topped the scores for the round with a 77. Jason Hancock shot an 82 and Donnie Fagen followed with an 83. Lee managed to up its inch its lead on MHS to 26 strokes with a 54-hole total of 994.

The Bulldogs were paced on the afternoon by M.J. Miller who shot an 80. Ted Fergeson and Tommy Nittle followed at 84. MHS has a three-round total of 1,024.

Abilene Cooper's A squad heads the district list at 935, while its B squad is second with 947, just two strokes ahead of San Angelo's No. 1 team.

FORT WORTH — A strong performance by Texas Christian pitcher Dwayne Williams along with heavy hitting led the Frogs to a 9-5 victory over Rice in their SWC opener at home.

TCU stands at 24-8 overall and 2-5 in SWC play, while Rice dropped to 23-11 on the year and 3-6 in the conference.

SWC Baseball

The Frogs took an early 1-0 lead in the bottom of the third inning. Freshman Lenny Bell drove a double through the gap in left center and later scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of catcher Darrin Roberts.

The Owls tied the score in the top of the fifth when Jeff Tousa drove a Williams' fastball for a triple off the fence in center field, and then scored on a ground out.

After TCU scored one in the fifth and four in the sixth to take a commanding 6-1 lead, Rice cut the lead to one run in the seventh when right fielder Bobby Eggleston cleared the bases with a grand slam home run.

Williams went the distance for Texas Christian. He is 5-2 and 1.3. Steve Blackshear, 4-3, 1.2, took the loss for Rice.

The two teams finish the series with a doubleheader at noon Saturday.

A&M improved its record to 26-10, 3-4 in the SWC. Tech fell to 17-19 and 2-8.

Phillip Taylor, 6-1 and 3-0, went the distance for the Aggies. Clay Hollock, 3-5 and 0-2, took the loss.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Dave Patterson had four hits to lead Arkansas to a SWC victory over Houston.

The Razorbacks, 25-8 overall and 6-3 in the SWC, lashed Houston starter Mike Walker, 8-2, for seven runs in the first inning, with Derrick Richardson contributing a two-run, bases-loaded single and Ellis Roby smashing a three-run, bases-loaded double. Jeff King got his ninth game-winning hit of the year.

Arkansas Pitcher Rick Huntze, 4-0, went seven and two-thirds innings in his first conference start. He allowed 13 hits and two walks, giving up 10 runs, six of them earned. Pat Rice finished on the mound for Arkansas.

Mike Ingle had three doubles and a triple and drove in three runs for Houston, 29-5 for the year and 5-2 in league play.

Richardson and Roby had three hits each for Arkansas, and Mike Loggins added a solo homer.

M-Angels win fourth straight

From Staff Reports

TEMPE, Ariz.— The Midland Angels picked up their seventh Cactus League exhibition baseball victory over the Chattanooga Mariners Friday in a 10-6 slugfest.

The win, along with a 2-1 upset over Midland's big brother Edmonton of the AAA Pacific Coast League Thursday, gives the Angels a four-game winning streak.

Friday's hitting hero was "light-hitting" shortstop Kevin Davis who pounded out a double and two home runs good for four RBI. Davis, considered as a fielding prospect by the Angel organization, now has three homers in the spring season.

Leftfielder Greg Key added a double, a triple and three RBI to the Midland cause, and second sacker Mark McLemore recorded three sageties and an RBI.

Kevin Pryce (2-0) went four innings and was tagged for three runs on six hits but held on to earn the victory.

Righthander Don Timberlake started and went three innings allowing three runs on five hits. Timberlake is slated to start the Texas League opener Tuesday in El Paso. On Thursday in Mesa, Az., Midland's other shortstop, Juan Cruz, tripled and scored the winning run on a wild pitch in the ninth inning to lead the AA Angels. McLemore drove in Midland's other run with a single.

Starter Ken Angualo, Ed Delzer and closer Julian Gonzalez combined for the six-hitter. Gonzalez (2-0) picked up the win with 1⅔ innings of no-hit ball. He is expected to be the short man in manager Joe Maddon's scheme this summer.

Midland will play two games, one today and one Sunday, before breaking camp to prepare for Tuesday's opener.

Froemming will 'run 'em': Mangers, players, press...

VERO BEACH, Fla. — If Pete Rose was born to play baseball, if Gene Kelly was born to dance, Spencer Tracy to act or Frank Sinatra to sing, then Bruce Froemming was born to umpire.

Pete Rose may be the world's oldest living 10-year-old but Froemming is the country's only 45-year-old going on 12.

You look at Froemming and he couldn't be anything else but an umpire. His face looks like a baseball with these two bright blue eyes in it. It's the face of a kid who just got his first two-wheeled bike. It is a little boy's face in a beer-truck driver's body. It has a pink, well scrubbed, innocent look.

You imagine Froemming played an angel in the Christmas play as a schoolkid in Milwaukee. It is the face of a boy who would wait up for Santa Claus. It looks out of place without a baseball cap on it and fishing pole over the shoulder.

But Brucie is all umpire. It's all he ever wanted to be since he was 16. Roy Campanella said you got to be a man to be in big league baseball but you got to have a lot of little boy in you, too. Froemming qualified. On both counts.

For him, it's a calling, not a job. Something like holy orders. A sacrament, not a profession.

Nobody loves baseball like umpires. Nobody sacrifices more to stay in it. Lots of guys say they would play baseball for nothing but umps are the only ones who often do.

Froemming is a great umpire precisely because he treats the grand old game as if it were one of the great religions, and umpiring as a kind of priesthood. No breath of scandal ever touched an umpire, even though it was the logical place for one to start.

Froemming took his responsibilities so seriously that, in one of the first games he ever called, he not only threw out players, he also ordered the inhabitants of the press box off the field.

No one had ever done that before but, in Froemming's mind, he was well within his rights and, when the scribes didn't move fast enough, he decided to forfeit the game.

That was awkward. The incident took place in Duluth, in Class D, and the thunderstruck owner tried to explain the facts of life to his impetuous arbiter, which were that the club couldn't afford to fork over 1,600 refunds.

"We stood there like dummies, trying to figure how to get out of it," remembers Froemming today. There he was, a baby-faced, teenaged umpire who had just banished the flower of minor league journalism from the swift completion of their sacred rounds.

Froemming thought he had right on his side. "My partner had this runner sliding into second and my partner banged him out when the shortstop came down with his glove on him. Only the ball wasn't in the glove, it was rolling over by third base.

"So, I walked out and told my partner, 'I think we better keep that runner on second base because the ball hasn't stopped rolling yet.' So, we correct the play. Only these guys in the press box set up these catcalls. So, I say 'Time!' And I run these guys. Them and their typewriters."

It got Froemming a lot of ink. People thought it was funny. But it didn't exactly make his career take off. He continued to gypsy around the chicken-wire leagues in Nebraska and points west, where the pay was $250 a month and the arguments frequent.

The $250 a month was not net, Froemming explains. Out of that, you had to pay for your uniform, whisk broom to sweep the plate, ball-and-strike indicator and the $1-a-night room with the toilet two flights down and the towels extra. He drove a beer truck in the off-season to keep body and soul together, both of which were expanding.

"I umpired in spring training for $10 a week and room and board," he said. "And, at night, I carried trays in the dining room, and I took the garbage out in this truck and dumped it on the other side of town to make ends meet."

Froemming loved it. After all, it was show biz. The only trouble was, he could never get out of the minor leagues. Bruce never had any resiliency. He got kicked upstairs to the Pacific Coast League where the pay was $3,000 a year. And, in his first spring training game, he kicked out the manager of the San Diego Padres.

That was a fellow named George Metkovich, a local hero. Froemming spotted a loose ball near the dugout, cluttering up his field. "Pick that up!" he ordered Metkovich.

"Pick it up yourself!" retorted Metkovich, adding some suggestions as to further disposition of the ball in question.

"I ran 'im," remembers Bruce.

Froemming's reputation for brashness even surfaced one afternoon when the great umpire, Al Barlick, offered him a crew job in a big league exhibition here.

"How about if I take home plate?" countered Froemming.

Barlick hit the roof and all but screwed himself in, till Walter O'Malley, the Dodger owner himself, who liked Froemming's style, soothed feelings and suggested that Barlick accede to the rookie's request.

"You don't need the home plate experience," he pointed out to Barlick. "He does."

The manager of the visiting club that day was Ted Williams. No better judge of umpiring ever lived. So, when the great Williams recommended "that fat kid" as a good umpire, baseball listened.

If the big leagues changed Froemming's style, it wasn't noticeable.

When he got in his first World Series in 1976, he couldn't believe his eyes when the Yankee Manager, Billy Martin, threw a baseball out of the dugout at the home plate umpire, Bill Deegan.

Froemming called time. He walked over to Manager Martin.

"What do you think you're doing?" he demanded.

"None of your (bleeping) business!" roared Martin, brandishing a fist.

Froemming, a rookie National League umpire, threw Billy Martin, an American League legend, out of the World Series.

He did not, let it be noted, add the press box to the ejection — even though a few white handkerchiefs fluttered there.

Still, Froemming had handled the situation as he had all those years before in Duluth.

He remains to this day a legend, the guy who has done something a few presidents of the United States wished they might have — run the press right the hell out of there when they got on his nerves.

Astro homers nip Chisox

Exhibition Baseball

KISSIMMEE, Fla. — Jim Pankovits led off the bottom of the ninth with a home run to left — his first of the spring — against White Sox pitcher Al Jones as the Astros nipped Chicago 2-1 Friday night in exhibition baseball.

It was the second run Jones has allowed for Chicago this spring. Houston is 13-17 with two games left.

Joe Niekro pitched five scoreless innings, allowing three hits, walking one and striking out three in his final start of the spring. The effort lowered his earned run average to 6.75.

Julio Cruz singled in a run in the top of the seventh, but the Astros rallied to tie on Phil Garner's hit in the bottom of the inning. Julio Solano, who learned earlier Friday that he had made the team, allowed two hits and the seventh inning Sox run in a two-inning stint that featured only one walk and four strikeouts.

Yankees 7, Rangers 2

Ed Whitson pitched six scoreless innings and Don Baylor, Dale Berra and Henry Cotto drove in two runs apiece as New York rolled over Texas.

Whitson allowed three singles, did not walk a batter and struck out five. The Rangers did not advance a runner beyond first base against him. It was the best outing for the right-hander who pitched for San Diego last year and came to the Yankees in the re-entry draft. Whitson finished the spring with a 3.90 earned run average, yielding 12 earned runs in 27 2-3 innings.

Texas starter Charlie Hough pitched two perfect innings and Hooton retired the Yankees in order in the third before they jumped on him for three runs in the fourth inning and four in the fifth.

Tigers 6, Mets 5

Nelson Simmons belted a home run and a double, driving in three runs Friday, as Detroit beat New York.

The Tigers rallied from a 5-2 deficit with four runs in the eighth inning.

Simmons belted his seventh home run of the spring and his fifth in the last four days, off Bruce Berenyi in the second.

Willie Hernandez, who worked the last two innings, got the victory. Gorman was the losing pitcher.

Red Sox 7, Reds 6

Pitcher Steve Crawford, Jim Rice and Mike Easler belted home runs to offset a grand slam homer by Cincinnati's Nick Esasky and power the Boston Red Sox to a victory over the Reds.

Rice drilled his second homer of the spring in the fourth inning, a two-run shot off Tom Browning to wipe out a 1-0 Cincinnati lead.

Expos 5, Royals 3

Herm Winningham drove in three runs with a pinch-hit single and a two-run triple as the Montreal Expos rallied for a victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The Expos trailed 3-2 in the eighth inning before singles by Roy Johnson and U.L. Washington, who has 20 hits in 39 at-bats this spring, for a .513 average, and Dan Driessen's walk loaded the bases with one out against Royals reliever Mike LaCoss.

Braves 7, Orioles 6, (10)

Brad Komminsk's two-out single scored Glenn Hubbard in the 10th inning giving Atlanta a victory over Baltimore.

The victory was the Braves' ninth in a row, and gives them a 17-10 spring record. The loss left the Orioles with a 14-13 mark in exhibition play.

Komminsk led the Braves with two hits and three RBIs. Hubbard and center fielder Dale Murphy each had two hits and the Braves were aided by four Orioles' errors.

Pirates 4, Cardinals 2

Sixto Lezcano, Johnny Ray and Jason Thompson rapped RBI singles to key a four-run rally in the ninth inning and give Pittsburgh a victory over St. Louis.

The setback was the fourth straight for St. Louis, dropping its spring record to 7-14. Pittsburgh has a Grapefruit League mark of 7-16.

Going into the ninth, St. Louis held a 1-0 lead that vanished when the Pirates erupted against reliever Andy Hassler on the run-scoring singles plus an error by shortstop Jose Oquendo.

Phillies 12, Beavers 4

Gary Maddox drove in three runs with three hits and Ozzie Virgil and John Russell slammed home runs to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a victory over their Triple-A farm club, the Portland Beavers.

Carter gives Mets the nod

NL East Preview

At least one veteran of the National League East believes the trade that brought Gary Carter to the New York Mets has tipped the balance of power in the division.

"The Montreal Expos have made the New York Mets even more solid contenders than they already were," says Dick Williams, who managed the Expos for five seasons before going to the San Diego Padres in 1982. "Carter, I think, makes the Mets the team to beat in the East."

"The Cubs will be strong again," Williams says, "but they're going to have their hands full with the Mets."

In 1984, the Cubs won by 6½ games, followed by New York, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Montreal and Pittsburgh.

This season, it will look more like this: New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Montreal.

Carter's presence — in a lineup that already includes big hitters such as George Foster, Darryl Strawberry and Keith Hernandez — not only improves the Mets offensively, but his impact on the Mets' young pitching staff could be hard to measure.

LED BY right-hander Dwight Gooden, the 1984 NL Rookie of the Year, the Mets' starting pitching staff was probably the only question mark on a team otherwise solid in all aspects.

Gooden and Ron Darling are in their second full seasons, while left-hander Sid Fernandez has had only brief stints in the majors with Los Angeles and New York. The only veterans are Bruce Berenyi and Ed Lynch, neither of whom has a .500 record.

In relief, the Mets are set with Jesse Orosco from the left side and Doug Sisk from the right.

Carter, Foster and Hernandez each have been 100-RBI men, while Strawberry, in his third season, seems poised to join that group. Carter also will make the Mets very difficult to run against.

A lot of Cubs had great seasons in 1984, including Cy Young winner Rick Sutcliffe, Most Valuable Player Ryne Sandberg and leadoff hitter Bob Dernier. Some age, however, is showing in the likes of Larry Bowa, 39, Ron Cey, 37, and Gary Matthews, who is about to turn 35. Bowa is being replaced at shortstop by rookie Shawon Dunston.

The Cubs also have to answer some pitching questions. There's no reason Sutcliffe, 16-1 last year with the Cubs, can't have another fine season, but he'll probably lose more than one game. Steve Trout, at 13-7, had the best season of his career. Dennis Eckersley was 10-8 after coming over from Boston, where he would not even have been a .500 pitcher had it not been for a 20-8 season in 1978. Lee Smith anchors a bullpen that is mediocre.

Despite front-office chaos, the Pirates made some moves that should considerably improve their club. George Hendrick came over from St. Louis, and he'll play rightfield. Steve Kemp arrived from New York and, if he's healthy, he'll play left. That gives the Pirates the potential to score more than they did in '84, when they were 10th in the NL in run production.

THE PIRATES still have fine starting pitching with Jose DeLeon, John Candelaria, Larry McWilliams and Rick Rhoden. The question is the bullpen, where 38-year-old Kent Tekulve had only 13 saves and a 3-9 record.

Philadelphia has so many good role players, it may be hard to find nine guys who want to start. Still, there is the one Phillie constant, Mike Schmidt, who has one fine season after another despite, at 35, getting a little long of tooth.

The one thing the Phillies have over any other team in the league is speed. Juan Samuel, Von Hayes and Jeff Stone combined for 147 stolen bases last year, more than six other NL teams.

Steve Carlton and John Denny anchor a pitching rotation that could be adequate. The Phillies need another reliever, however, to help Al Holland, who can't do the job alone despite a good fastball.

St. Louis, meanwhile, is a team decimated. Gone over the last two seasons are players like Keith Hernandez, George Hendrick and Bruce Sutter. Jack Clark arrived from San Francisco to take Hendrick's spot, and the Cardinals might have gotten the better of that exchange. But there's no way they can replace Sutter's 45 saves.

Neil Allen, who once had 22 saves for the Mets, and Ricky Horton will work in short relief, backing up starters Joaquin Andujar, Bob Forsch and John Tudor, acquired in the Hendrick deal. Andujar was the only 20-game winner in the NL last year, but even Manager Whitey Herzog admits he doesn't have a great staff.

THE EXPOS may be on the right track to rebuilding, but this is no short-term project. Montreal has replaced the entire middle of its defense, besides losing the 106 RBI Carter gave them last year.

Three of the replacements — catcher Mike Fitzgerald, center fielder Herm Winningham and shortstop Hubie Brooks — came from the Mets, and the Expos got the other one, second baseman Vance Law, from the Chicago White Sox. Both Brooks and Law have recently switched from third base, so there could be a troublesome period of adjustment.

Manager Buck Rodgers calls the good health of outfielder Andre Dawson and pitcher Steve Rogers his pluses.

His minuses include injuries to pitchers Charlie Lea and Gary Lucas. Lea probably will start the season on the disabled list, but Lucas, who has recurring back problems, may be OK. Rodgers would like to use the left-hander Lucas in certain situations to help Jeff Reardon in the bullpen.

The Expos' real strengths are in the speed of Tim Raines, the power of Dawson and the lift they could get from the competition at first base between veteran Dan Driessen and Terry Francona.

Reagan admits budget compromise faces uphill battle in Congress

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan acknowledged Friday that he faces a fight in Congress over the budget compromise he struck with Senate Republicans, but said Democratic critics "will be lying in their teeth" if they charge he went back on a pledge not to cut Social Security benefits.

"How is adding a 2 percent raise each year cutting it?" Reagan asked as he spoke with reporters before flying by helicopter from the White House lawn to Andrews Air Force Base, Md., and boarding Air Force One for a flight to California.

Reagan plans a 10-day stay at his secluded ranch, high in the Santa Ynez mountains near Santa Barbara. Aides said he would return to Washington on April 14.

The president announced agreement with Senate GOP leaders Thursday on a budget that provides for less growth in military spending than he proposed initially and limits cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients.

"Do you think the Democrats are going to beat up on you on that Social Security?" Reagan was asked.

He replied, "Well, if they do, they'll be lying in their teeth, as they did in 1982" in a previous debate over Social Security.

Reagan had opposed any decrease in Social Security benefits, saying he would accept such a move only if there was an overwhelming bipartisan demand for it in Congress.

But he accepted a formula that limits cost-of-living increases over the next three years to 2 percent if inflation was 4 percent or less. If inflation climbed above 4 percent, recipients would get the 2 percent hike plus any additional percentage points above the 4 percent.

Reagan said this was not a reversal of position because "they were talking about totally canceling it; that regardless of what inflation might be, that there would be no increases."

"We're providing a guaranteed — more than 6 percent, because it's compounded over a three-year period — regardless of what inflation is."

Reagan met with Senate Majority Leader Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., just before leaving.

"We all agree; it's going to be a fight," he said. "It's been a fight since 1981. There are factions in there that just want to keep on spending in the Congress."

But he said he and the GOP senators were "very optimistic and hopeful."

Domenici told reporters, "We talked about how difficult it is going to be, and it will be."

Asked about his agreement to limit the growth of military spending to 3 percent per year after inflation, about half of what he wanted, Reagan said, "There are things that I think were worthwhile that will not be done now for a while — be delayed — but no weapons systems will be slowed down or cut out of the military budget, so that we can honestly say that with this our national security capability has not been reduced."

"Is 3 percent the bottom line?" he was asked.

"Yep."

"— not go any further?"

"Nope."

Asked how he would go about selling his budget, he said, "I think we will use all the normal methods to tell the people about it, because I think the people are most interested in it."

The proposal calls for $52.1 billion in cuts in a move to reduce next year's deficits to $175.3 billion.

GOP budget could hurt elderly, poor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new budget proposal endorsed by President Reagan and Senate Republicans will cost the average elderly Social Security recipient at least $1,631 over the next five years, the Center for Budget and Policy Priorities said Friday.

In addition, the new package of cuts agreed to late this week will chop programs directed mainly at the poor by nearly $25 billion, said the center, a nonprofit think tank with a generally liberal viewpoint.

The center's analysis said the cuts — if adopted — would hit Social Security recipients in two ways: reductions in cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) and increased premiums for Medicare benefits.

The budget proposal would limit COLA increases to 2 per cent, regardless of inflation, unless the inflation rate goes over 4 per cent. The formula also guarantees that recipients would receive 2 per cent increases even if inflation is less than that.

The center estimates the cuts in COLAs would cost the average recipient a total of $1,221 through the next five years, starting with $81 in fiscal 1986 and rising to $198 in fiscal 1987.

The increases in Medicare premiums would start out at $15.60 in fiscal 1986, rising to an annual increase of $174 in 1990. The five-year sum would be $410.

Thus, the total first-year impact in cuts and premium increases would cost the recipient $96.60, while the five year-total would be $1,631.

Citing Congressional Budget Office figures, the center said that under current law the average beneficiary would receive $5,256 from Social Security in 1986 and rise to an estimated $6,248 in 1990.

The center also concluded that the compromise proposal would chop $24.7 billion from low-income programs over the next three years. That compares to $34 billion in cuts originally proposed by Reagan in his first budget this year.

Unemployment rate remains at 7.3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The civilian unemployment rate remained stuck at 7.3 percent in March, the Labor Department reported Friday, but analysts said the creation of 434,000 new jobs should dispel fears that the economy might be headed for trouble.

Job growth in business and health services was 145,000; the construction industry added 130,000 people to its payrolls; and there were 80,000 new jobs in retail trade.

"The expansion is alive and well," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc. "This report should shatter the notion that we might be on the verge of or fading into recession."

Analysts had been concerned because a government report two weeks ago showed the economy growing at a sluggish 2.1 percent in the first quarter.

The unemployment report for March "seems to indicate that the growth recession isn't being converted into any kind of conventional downturn," said Roger Brinner, chief economist at Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass.

A growth recession occurs when the unemployment rate doesn't decline, despite growth in the economy generally.

The jobless rate has been moving in a narrow range from 7.1 percent to 7.5 percent since last May. The rate was unchanged from February because 430,000 people entered the labor force looking for jobs, most of them women seeking a second family income.

Aside from the stagnant rate and the number of unemployed people in the nation remaining at 8.4 million, the most troubling aspect of the March report was manufacturing employment. It was mired at an unchanged level of 19.7 million people. Hurt by import competition, employment in the manufacturing sector has shown no growth since last August.

"The dollar has declined a little bit but so many firms moved their manufacturing operations overseas in the past year or two that they're going to continue to import even if the dollar does go down another 5 or 10 percent," said Michael Evans, chief economist at Evans Economics in Washington.

The average factory work week in March, however, showed dramatic improvement from the weather-depressed level of February, rising 30 minutes to 40.4 hours. And employment generally in the goods-producing sector rose by 100,000.

The department reported that 1.25 million people were counted as "discouraged workers" in the first three months of the year, little change from the previous quarter and down just 100,000 in the last year. Discouraged workers are people who say they want jobs but have not looked for one in at least a month because they thought they would be unable to find employment.

MC golfers fall from No. 1

From Staff Reports

ROSWELL, N.M. — It was a hot one out at the New Mexico Military College golf course Friday, and the scores reflected it on the fourth leg of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference golf tournament.

Midland College, despite a par-71 round from Leon Van Rensberg, fell from the top spot but hung on to a share of second place in the WJCAC overall standings with a third-place finish, one stroke behind Odessa College. NMMI moved into the top spot in the standings with a five-stroke victory.

Michael Krantz paced NMMI with a five-under par 66 as the Cadets shot 282 — that's -2 as a team for the day. New Mexico Junio College's Don Yreme was runner-up at 69.

Other MC scores on the day were 72s by sophomore Chris Gomez, and freshman Randy Wynn. Ex-Midland High star, freshman David Pritchett, was one notch behind with a two-over par, 73.

The Chaps and the rest of the WJCAC will return to action next weekend with the fifth stop on the six-round tour in Hobbs, N.M., before finishing up at Odessa College the following week.

FOOTBALL

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech will unveil its newly-installed option offense in the annual Red-Black scrimmage at Jones Stadium at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The Raider squad will be evenly divided with the No. 1 offense and No. 2 defense against the No. 2 offense and No. 1 defense. "This will give us a good indication of just who is improving and who isn't," said head coach Jerry Moore. "There has been a lot of learning this spring, especially offensively. With only three weeks work of work with the new offense, I imagine we won't look as polished as I would like."

One phase of the new flexbone offense that pleases the coaches is the performance of the running backs. Senior halfbacks Ansel Cole, San Antonio, and Jerry Zachery, Midland, have shown a knack for reaching the corner. At fullback, sophomore James McGowen, Lindale, and freshman Isaac Garnett, Midland, have been inside threats.

The quarterback battle thinned when juco transfer Tim Tannehill, Post, went down with a shoulder separation. Sophomore Aaron Keesee, Ballinger, freshman Billy Joe Tolliver, Boyd, and junior Monte McGuire, Monahans, are the frontrunners.

The Raiders conclude spring drills April 13 in the fourth annual varsity-alumni game at 1 p.m. in Jones Stadium.

BOXING

SAN ANGELO (AP) — A change in the fight card will pit Olympic gold medalist Meldrick Taylor against Elias Martinez in a lightweight bout Saturday, a promoter said Friday.

Taylor, 3-0 in professional action, was scheduled to fight Victor Flores, who was dropped from the card Thursday because of an eye injury, according to Ray Nicosia.

Martinez, from Bronx, N.Y., has a 6-4 record with four knock-outs. Taylor, from Philadelphia, has two knock-outs.

Also Saturday, Olympic gold medalist Mark Breland, of Brooklyn, faces Steve Little in a welterweight bout. Breland, 2-0, will be going for his first KO. Little, of Reading, Pa., is 10-2 with four KOs.

The two fights, part of a six-fight card, will be televised by ABC.

BASEBALL

A preview of the Midland Angels 1985 Texas League season will be shown on KTPX at 2:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Sunday. The half hour show will feature spring training interviews with Manager Joe Maddon, Angel players and administrators of the parent California Angels.

Bill Bavasi, director of California Angel minor league operations, will discuss the type of team Midland can expect in 1985 and in the years to come.

Ranger moves drop roster to 25-man limit

ARLINGTON (AP) — The Texas Rangers reduced their roster to the opening day 25-man limit Friday with a pair of roster moves.

Pitcher Mitch Williams has been optioned to Salem (Va.) of the Class A Carolina League. Williams was selected by Texas from the San Diego Padres in the major league draft in December, the Rangers said.

In order that the American League club be allowed to keep Williams in the organization on the minor league level, Texas has agreed to send third baseman Randy Asadoor to San Diego. Asadoor played at Tulsa in 1984.

In addition, non-roster pitcher Chris Welsh has been sent to the Rangers' minor league complex at Plant City, Fla., for reassignment.

Wings beat 'Kicks to gain playoffs

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Steve Wegerle scored two goals to spark Wichita to a 6-4 Major Indoor Soccer League triumph over Dallas Friday night and clinch a playoff berth for the Wings.

Wichita dominated the game early, rolling to a 5-1 lead on goals by Omar Gomez, Tommy O'Neill and Gregg Willin, but had to hold off a late Dallas rally and kill off four minutes in penalties over the final 4:19 of the game for the win.

Astros option Sambito to Class AAA Tucson team

KISSIMMEE, Fla. (AP) — Houston Astros relief pitcher Joe Sambito, trying to make a comeback from elbow surgery, was offered an option to the Astros Class AAA affiliate at Tucson, Ariz. Friday, Astros General Manager Al Rosen said.

"We have determined today that Joe can't make our staff at this time," Rosen said. "If he will not accept our assignment to Tucson, the club will give him his unconditional release, which is the only alternative we have."

Mavs clipped in overtime; hopes for 2nd on hold

Associated Press

DALLAS — Forward Derek Smith scored a game-high 33 points and pulled down a critical rebound with 17 seconds left in overtime as the Los Angeles Clippers surprised the Dallas Mavericks 126-122 in National Basketball Association action Friday night.

Dallas, 42-35, got 32 points from Mark Aguirre and lost a chance to pull within 1½ games of the idle Houston Rockets for second place in the NBA's Midwest Division.

With Los Angeles leading 122-120, Smith rebounded his own missed shot. After a timeout, the Clippers' Michael Cage was intentionally fouled and hit a pair of free throws with 16 seconds left to seal the win.

Baskets by Dallas' Sam Perkins and Cage completed the scoring.

The win was only the season's 10th on the road for Los Angeles, 29-49. The Clippers were playing without center Bill Walton, who was out with a hip pointer.

Norm Nixon added 28 points for the Clippers, including a pair of free throws that sent the game into overtime at 114-114. He missed a 23-footer as time expired in regulation.

The Mavericks' poor fourth-quarter shooting — they hit only five of 21 shots — cost them the 95-87 lead they held going into the final period.

Aguirre gave Dallas its last lead at 118-116 with 3:30 left in overtime. But Los Angeles' Marques Johnson, Nixon and Cage hit consecutive baskets to put the Clippers up 122-118.

Perkins hit a layup to pull Dallas to within 122-120, with 1:42 left, setting up Smith's shot and rebound.

Cavaliers 119, Pistons 118

Guard John Bagley hit a layup with three seconds on the clock as Cleveland fought off a Detroit comeback.

The Pistons had taken the lead, 118-117, on a three-point jump shot by guard Isiah Thomas with 43 seconds remaining.

The Pistons called time out with two seconds remaining. But forward Kelly Tripucka, who had a team-high 25 points, threw an errant inbounds pass to center Bill Laimbeer and Detroit could not attempt a final shot.

The Cavaliers saw a 68-56 halftime lead evaporate in the final quarter, as Piston reserve guard Vinnie Johnson sank two free throws with 5:07 remaining to give the Pistons their first lead of the night, 107-105. The Cavaliers regained the lead, 115-113, on a layup by Bagley with 2:14 left and never trailed again until Thomas hit his three-pointer.

Guard World B. Free scored 23 of his game-high 37 points in the first quarter to give Cleveland an early 39-28 lead.

The victory gave Cleveland a 34-43 record in the Central Division, while playoff-bound Detroit fell to 41-36. With the victory, the Cavaliers took a three-game lead over the idle Atlanta Hawks in the battle for the final Eastern Conference playoff spot.

Celtics 115, Bullets 104

Larry Bird scored 28 points as Boston leaned heavily on bench players Friday night to defeat Washington.

Boston used all its available players through much of the second half while building leads of up to 22 points and clinching at least a tie for the best record in the NBA's Eastern Conference.

Bird, the NBA's second-ranked individual scorer, scored only six points in the first half but ended with a game-high total as Boston notched it 11th win in the last 13 games.

Boston Coach K.C. Jones started using reserves before the first half was over and referee Earl Strom helped Jones with his substitutions.

Strom ejected Boston's Robert Parish with 28 seconds remaining in the third quarter when the official ruled that Parish had punched Washington's Tom McMillen.

Before the game, the Celtics activated injured swingman M.L. Carr, who had been idled since March 21 with a leg injury, and placed rookie guard Rick Carlisle on the injured list.

76ers 116, Bulls 113

Moses Malone scored 27 points and garnered 19 rebounds and Julius Erving added 19 points to lead Philadelphia past Chicago.

Michael Jordan scored 40 points to lead Chicago before fouling out, making it the seventh time this season he has scored 40 or more points in a game.

Philadelphia led 89-78 going into the fourth quarter, but Chicago battled back behind Quintin Dailey's 11 points and eventually tied the score at 107 at the 2:16 mark on two Jordan foul shots.

Jordan gave the Bulls a 109-107 lead at 1:54. Then Bobby Jones tied the score with two foul shots at 1:36 and Maurice Cheeks put Philadelphia in the lead for good with two foul shots to make it 111-109 at 1:02.

Jones scored on a breakaway slam dunk with 55 seconds remaining to put the game out of reach for Chicago.

Philadelphia trailed only once in the first quarter at 7-6 and built a 14-point lead with four minutes left in the second quarter at 47-33.

Two gain tie for Shore lead

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Muffin Spencer-Devlin had an eagle and three birdies on the last seven holes Friday en route to a 5-under-par 67 that gave her a share of the lead with Judy Clark after two rounds of the LPGA's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore golf tournament.

Clark shot a second-round 68 as she and Spencer-Devlin, both of whom have never won an LPGA tournament, were at 7-under-par 137 after 36 holes at Mission Hills Country Club.

Betsy King and Alice Miller, who carded second-round 68s, and Patty Sheehan, with her second 69, were one stroke off the pace at 138. Jane Crafter, Denie Strebig and Jan Stephenson were another shot back at 139.

Myra Blackwelder, the first-day leader at 68, ballooned to a 76 to fall seven shots behind the leaders.

Ueberroth reinstates Blue

NEW YORK (AP) — As expected baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth has reinstated pitcher Vida Blue, who is in training camp with the San Francisco Giants, his office announced Friday.

Blue had been suspended for the 1984 playing season by former Commissioner Bowie Kuhn as a result of Blue's 1983 conviction for drug possession.

Kuhn's decision required that prior to reinstatement in 1985, Blue establish that he no longer was involved in any drug use. It further required that Blue document his full compliance with his federal probationary program and that a satisfactory after-care program, to include testing, be in place so as to ensure Blue's continuing non-use of drugs.

All of these conditions have been fully satisfied, the commissioner's office said.

In making the announcement, Ueberroth said, "I am very pleased that Vida has apparently put his drug use problems behind him. I wish him well in the resumption of his baseball career."

"This is another burden off my mind," Blue said after a workout Friday at Candlestick Park. "When the Giants announced I had made the team I thought that meant I was reinstated. Evidently I wasn't. Now it's all official."

Blue and the Giants agreed on contract terms two weeks ago in Arizona after Blue's first four appearances, all impressive, in exhibition games. Blue said his attorney, California Assembly Speaker Willie Brown, will handle the final contract arrangements.

General Manager Tom Haller said he expects the official signing to be this weekend.

Blue is scheduled to pitch Saturday or Sunday against the Oakland A's in the Bay Bridge exhibition series, and he is scheduled to open the season as a relief pitcher.

Blue, 35, began his major-league career in 1970 with the Oakland A's. He led the American League in shutouts with eight in 1971, the same year he was named the AL's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young winner after compiling a 24-8 record. He also won 20 games, posting a 20-9 in 1973.

Oakland traded Blue to San Francisco in 1978, when he posted an 18-10 record. He was traded to Kansas City in 1982, compiling a 13-12 record. In 1983, he was 0-5 before being released by the Royals Aug. 5.

In postseason play, all with Oakland, Blue had a 1-2 record in nine games in the American League Championship Series and was 0-3 in eight World Series games.

Natt, English set Nugget pace in win over Spurs

DENVER (AP) — Calvin Natt and Alex English combined for 57 points Friday night as the Denver Nuggets defeated San Antonio 118-109 and reduced their magic number for clinching the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division title to one.

One Denver victory or one Houston defeat will clinch the title for Denver, which ran its record to 50-27 while the Spurs fell to 39-39.

It was the second time since Denver joined the NBA that the team had reached the 50-victory plateau.

Newport Jazz Festival record swings with best of them

ENTERTAINMENT

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

The Concord record label's basic formula is simple: Present classic jazz straightforwardly and with taste and elegance.

The theory that belies that approach is that with such a rock-solid concept you can't go wrong.

And Concord seldom if ever does.

It just turns out one sublimely intricate product after another by a stable of artists that includes some of the most famous names in jazz: Mel Torme, George Shearing, Dave Brubeck, Woody Herman, Rosemary Clooney and many more.

"The Newport Jazz Festival All-Stars," a two-disc set recorded at Arizona State University (Concord Jazz CJ-260), consists on the other hand of lesser-known but equally capable players. It's a great, swinging session that features George Wein (the Newport festival's longtime overseer) on piano, Scott Hamilton on tenor sax, Warren Vache on cornet and flugelhorn, Oliver Jackson on drums, Slam Stewart on bass and Norris Turney on alto sax and clarinet.

The music they make sounds twice the size of the group, though.

The arrangements are so irresistible and the talents of the participants so formidable that it has all the punch and sumptuousness of a fully orchestrated big band. Not only that, but the veteran savvy of Wein, Stewart, Jackson and Turney meshes so well with the comparatively fledgling expertise of Hamilton and Vache that there's hardly a bumpy moment in almost 90 minutes worth of imperiously exact playing.

The opening side is perhaps the most impressive. It is made up of only two numbers ("Exactly Like You" and "Centennial Blues"). However, they set the fluent, soulful pace for everything that follows, and what follows is a challenging array of numbers indeed.

Side Two kicks off with Duke Ellington's "I Didn't Know About You" and moves on confidently to James Cox's "Nobody Knows You When You're Down and Out" and Earl Hines' "Rosetta."

Side Three offers more Ellington: "The Jeep Is Jumpin'" and "The Mooche" along with "Body and Soul."

The final side is distinguished by George and Ira Gershwin's "The Man I Love" and Lil Armstrong's "Struttin' with Some Barbecue," which some 60 years ago provided Louis Armstrong with one of his most remarkable solos.

The last cut of all is "Moten Swing" by Buster and Bennie Moten, a tune that is tied up in so much lore and romanticism that it personifies all the depth and devotion that makes jazz the key music of the 20th century.

For Carl, left, and Paul Ray, songs which have been dancing in their heads for more than 60 years have now been copyrighted. The brothers' love affair with music began when both were youngsters growing up in Dallas.

Brothers still playing after all these years

By CAROL CIRULLI

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Songs have been dancing in their heads for more than 60 years, but until now, that was the only place they could be found.

Carl and Paul Ray say they have been composing Christmas carols, jingles and love songs for as long as they can remember, without ever taking the time to write them down. As time passed, the two brothers went their separate ways and the songs remained only a memory.

It took misfortune to reunite the Rays, who now live in Irving, and although they are now in their 80s, they feel they have a new lease on life. Several of their songs have been copyrighted and they hope young musicians will perform them someday.

The Rays' love affair with music began when Carl, 80, and Paul, 82, were youngsters. The two brothers grew up in Dallas in a household where music was an important part of their lives.

"We've been musicians ever since we were born. Our mother and father were musicians. I played the organ when I was 6 or 7 and he (Carl) used to pump the pumps at the bottom," Paul says. "That was the start of our musical life."

Paul continued playing the piano and younger brother Carl took up the violin. Another brother, Charles, also joined in the musical group.

As they grew older, each took traditional jobs and music became a mere pastime. Paul began working for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad where he stayed for 33 years and Carl began a 41-year career with International Harvester.

In 1928, Paul began doing a radio show for WFAA in Dallas. Paul says he's not sure just how it came about, but one day he got the opportunity to do his own 15-minute show on the radio.

They called him the Katy Sunburst because he had lots of red, curly hair. His brothers Carl and Charles joined in on the act and every day from noon to 12:15 p.m. they took time off from their jobs to go to the radio station during their lunch hour.

"You didn't get paid, the honor was all it was," Carl says.

"We got lots of fan mail," recalls Paul. "I tell you I never saw so many love letters from girls."

Their hearts, though, belonged to their wives. Paul says he used his music to charm his wife.

"I used to sing to my wife, and whistle to her and play the piano and look in her brown eyes and sing, 'Brown Eyes, Why Are You So Blue?'"

After about a year, their radio show ended and Paul began playing with bands in Dallas. The Adolphus Hotel and the old Baker Hotel were two of his regular night spots. He also played at nickelodeons where five or 10 cents would buy a few tunes on the piano.

"I played with a band and I was the only one who couldn't read music," Paul says. "I had my music up there but I couldn't read it. But I could sit down and play 100 tunes."

Although Paul eventually learned to read some music, Carl never did.

"All he had is what we learned together," Paul said. "I took some piano classes at SMU but my mother made me quit because she said it was ruining my playing. I played mostly by ear."

After they were married, Carl and Paul each went their separate ways. It was only after their wives' deaths that they ended up together again.

"In the past two years our wives passed away, and we were just rattling around, so we got together," Carl said.

Initially, Paul came to visit every weekend from his home in Denison. Eventually he got his own apartment in Irving but was still over at his brother's every morning for breakfast. So finally they decided to move in together.

One of the first Bible verses that we learned as children was: "and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." Ephesians 4:32.
There is a crying need for simple, human kindness today.

Since the first Easter, the Cross has remained the one great and enduring symbol of Christianity because it best expresses the meaning of faith. Like a precious jewel, the Cross shines with many facets of truth.

The Cross signifies the hope of faith. It reveals God's love for us in the sacrifice of His Son. It is our assurance of His promise of salvation.

The Cross signifies the challenge of faith. It reveals God's love for all people which we must share. It is the motivation of Christian action.

The Cross signifies the victory of faith. It is the pledge of God's loving purpose in saving the world. It is the source of peace.

What does the Cross mean to you? On Easter—this greatest festival of our Faith, will you come to Church and discover its message?

Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan, will celebrate the vigil of Easter at 11 p.m. today. The service will be made up of four parts: the Service of Light, the Service of Readings, the Service of Baptism and the Service of Holy Communion.

The light of Christ, which had left the world at the time of His death, will return and be honored in the Sacraments. The special Saturday night Vigil is designed to provide Christians an opportunity to remember all that God has meant in their lives as they await the resurrection of the Lord.

Easter services will be held at 8:30 and 11 a.m., Holy Communion will be observed at both services.

What do your children have in common with Beatrix Potter?

A lot — if your children have a free and independent spirit. A lot — if you want your children to explore many religious paths to truth, not just one. A lot — if you're the kind of parent who wants your children to grow up knowing a richly diverse group of people.
Children learn to respect themselves and the uniqueness that is each person — and to celebrate all humanity because of it. Today, the faith of Ralph Waldo Emerson, Susan B. Anthony, Louisa May Alcott, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, Dr. Linus Pauling and people down the street from you is practiced by congregations across America. It's a faith with a tradition of hope and purpose. Perhaps this is the kind of religious education you want for your children.
Think about it. If you would like to visit a Unitarian Universalist congregation this week, welcome!

Book about Passover creates stir during holy days

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

At the table with his men, the teacher said, "I have earnestly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer." It was the age-old Jewish seder, and also the last supper of the Jew, Jesus.

That foundational link between the head of Christianity and the mother faith, Judaism, both of which are observing key festivals this weekend, was causing some incidental and uncharacteristic friction this time.

Ordinarily, kindred themes of redemption are pointed up at Passover, the Jewish commemoration of ancient liberation from slavery in Egypt, and Easter, the Christian celebration of Jesus' resurrection from death.

Furthermore, joint Christian-Jewish observances of the Passover seder, the ceremonial meal recounting the old story of freedom from bondage, have spread in many communities to deepen understanding between the faiths.

But this year, with the eight-day Passover beginning this Friday at sundown, the same day Christians mark Jesus' crucifixion before celebrating his resurrection Sunday, a hassle developed over a small book.

A broad front of national Jewish organizations, along with the Jewish Book Council of the Jewish Welfare Board, an umbrella group, protested publication of a children's Passover storybook that briefly mentions Jesus.

Blue Greenberg, the JBC president, deplored what he called the storybook's "mixing Christian and Jewish concepts as though they are one.... It is beneath the dignity of the new ecumenical encounter."

The book, "The Story of Passover for Children," a 24-page, color-illustrated paperback in verse, was issued by Ideals Publishing Corp. of Milwaukee, a subsidiary of Thomas Nelson Publishers of Nashville.

"It's a lovely little book, a way for children to get better acquainted with each other," says Donald Gottschalk, president of Ideals, noting that Passover has significance both for Christians and Jews.

He says the book, by Jewish writer Naomi Galbreath of Milwaukee, was intended to make for better interfaith understanding.

The book, telling of God's loving deliverance of the Jews from Egyptian oppression, includes an illustration of Jesus sharing the seder, which marks that event, with his disciples. The only mention of him reads:

"Years past, a Jew from Nazareth, a carpenter, broke bread with friends at his last supper when Passover prayers were said.

"His name was Jesus and he knew the meaning of the feast, that God has shown his goodness; men from bondage were released."

POSITIVE THINKING

Power exists 'if thou canst believe'

I was in a hotel about to go to a hall where I was scheduled to speak when two young men asked if I would speak with their mother.

"She's confined to a wheelchair," one said, and added: "She's a wonderful person."

When I met the mother, I got a strong impression that this woman was somehow a victim of self-pity. Had she, I wondered, unconsciously allowed herself to be disabled in order that these two sons would dance attendance on her?

I requested the two boys to let me talk with their mother alone. When they had left us I asked, "What is it you want, madam?"

"Well," she lamented, "look at me in this wheelchair! I want to get out of it and walk. But I can't."

"You know, it's a funny thing," she answered. "The doctors tell me there's nothing wrong with my legs. It's because of the hard blows I've had."

"What are these blows?"

"God took my husband away from me." As if to say He was a mean God. "And I'm so afraid my sons will leave me." So it seemed my hunch was right.

"Well, do you think your husband would want you to be sitting in this wheelchair when there's nothing organically wrong with you?"

"No, he would be very sad. I was always so active."

"I'm going to tell you something," I then said. "If what you say of your physical condition is correct, then through right thinking and real faith you can stand and walk." Intuitively I continued, "The Bible says, 'If thou canst believe...' — and that means if you can drive a powerful belief thought through your self-pity thoughts — then nothing will be impossible for you, because 'all things are possible to him that believeth.' How about it?"

At length she said, "I believe that. I believe that I can be healed by faith. I guess I just wanted you to tell me that."

I said, "It isn't your legs that need healing; it's your thoughts."

The boys told me afterward that as they wheeled their mother toward the hall after our interview she kept saying aloud to herself, "If thou canst believe...." Then suddenly she told them: "Stop. I'm going to walk."

"Mother, mother, please!" they entreated. "You'll hurt yourself!"

But she insisted, "Stay away. Let me alone. I have Someone supporting me."

The Newspaper BIBLE

THEY COULDN'T TRAP HIM

Then the Pharisees met together to try to think of some way to trap Jesus into saying something for which they could arrest Him. They decided to send some of their men along with the Herodians to ask Him this question: "Sir, we know you are very honest and teach the truth regardless of the consequences, without fear or favor. Now tells us, is it right to pay taxes to the Roman government or not?"

But Jesus saw what they were after. "You hypocrites!" he exclaimed. "Who are you trying to fool with your trick questions? Here, show me a coin." And they handed Him a penny.

"Whose picture is stamped on it?" He asked them, "And whose name is this beneath the picture?"

"Ceasar's," they replied.

"Well then," He said, "give it to Caesar if it is his, and give God everything that belongs to God." (Matthew 23:15-21)

One of them, a lawyer, spoke up: "Sir, which is the most important commandment in the laws of Moses?"

Jesus replied, "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul, and mind."

This is the first and greatest commandment. The second most important is similar: "Love your neighbor as much as you love yourself." All the other commandments and all the demands of the prophets stem from these two laws and are fulfilled if you obey them. Keep only these and you will find that you are obeying all the others." (Matthew 23:36-40)

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, April 7, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Look for imaginative ways to promote yourself and your career. Mate has an idea worth serious consideration. Financial backing is available when you need it most. Let those in charge see that you are true executive material. Encourage your colleagues to cooperate by emphasizing the benefits that teamwork can bring. Although romance makes great demands on you, the rewards will be sweet. Let offspring know your plans. Loved ones resent being kept in the dark. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: "Cotton Club" director Francis Ford Coppola, James Garner, David Frost, former California governor Jerry Brown, the Dallas Cowboys' Tony Dorsett, Percy Faith, Billie Holliday.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your business prospects are bright, thanks to the encouragement of an influential person. A new partnership is possible. Those looking for romance should attend more social events.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A short trip to the country proves invigorating. A direct approach is best when handling problems with parents. A brother or sister gives you loving support. Show your affection openly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Talking with a highly educated individual gives you new insight into a personal problem. You enjoy getting together with old friends in familiar surroundings. Keep any entertainment simple.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Speaking too frankly with the object of your affections today could lead to a quarrel. Choose another time for a heart-to-heart chat. Respect other people's wishes and keep secrets.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A sermon or talk gives you new inspiration. A social gathering can be both entertaining and informative. Keep your ears open. Someone influential offers to help further your career.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Do not allow minor irritations or setbacks to slow you down. Treat yourself and your loved ones to an evening out. A young person needs advice. Be helpful but not bossy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A very good day for short trips, especially if you take the family along. Just be sure to keep spending down. Artistic or musical talent could play a role in romance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): An emotional upset could interfere with family plans. Talking things out relieves tension. Member of opposite sex boosts your spirits. Pay more attention to mate's wishes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid petty arguments and silly complaints by tackling projects you can handle alone. Afternoon or evening features a reconciliation with loved one. Squelch the urge to mention past grievances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Protect your reputation. Choose your companions and associates with greater care. A newcomer is not all he or she seems. Go slow. A newspaper ad or article gives you a great idea.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Mate or sibling could be difficult today. A change of scenery improves everyone's mood. An evening social event could be fun with the right person! Invite someone you would like to know better.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The atmosphere at home improves, giving you a chance to discuss pressing financial matters. Welcome a youngster's questions and suggestions. He/she may know something you do not!

'We Are The World' raises coast-to-coast goose bumps

By MARY MacVEAN
Associated Press Writer

The sounds of "We Are The World" raised "coast-to-coast goose bumps" and reached to the far corners of the world Friday as thousands of radio stations simultaneously broadcast the superstar hit song for African famine relief.

Tens of millions of people in 25 countries heard the song by 46 American artists during the 10:50 a.m. EST broadcast, said Randy Quick of WKCX in Rome, Ga., which helped organize the effort.

About 6,000 U.S. stations, the Voice of America, Armed Services Radio, 400 Canadian stations, and stations in Britain, France, Switzerland, Austria and West Germany were among those that dropped their regular programming to play "We Are The World," Quick said, adding he got the figures from the trade magazine Radio and Records.

"I like to think that, for six minutes and 22 seconds (the length of the song), we brought the people of the world together," Quick said.

Muzak, which had previously broadcast a voice only to mark the release of the hostages in Iran in 1981, and the cable rock channel MTV also joined in. The Associated Press Radio Network transmitted the song to about 1,100 U.S. stations.

At President Reagan's request, Air Force One picked up a radio signal playing the song, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said. Reagan had never heard it before, Speakes said.

"We appreciate the effort that is being made to raise funds for the famine victims in Ethiopia," said Girma Amare, the charge d'affaires at the Ethiopian embassy. He added that he didn't hear the song being played.

Recorded last month, "We Are The World" — the single and album along with T-shirts, sweat shirts, other items and outright donations — has netted "very near the $16 million mark" for the USA for Africa relief fund, a non-profit organization founded by the singers, said Nancy Marcussen, foundation spokeswoman in Los Angeles.

"I've just been elated," said Jim Mickelson, program manager at KZAN-FM in Ogden, Utah, which also helped organize the simulcast on Good Friday morning, hours before the start of Passover. "I never dreamed it would go this far."

"It touched me and I've heard it over and over," said Allison Wing, a disc jockey at WAYV-FM in Atlantic City, N.J.

Several hundred people sang along with "We Are The World" on the steps of St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City, and during the line, "We stand together as one," people pointed their index fingers to the sky.

In Richmond, Va., radio station WRVQ broadcast from outside City Hall and about 800 people turned out to listen, said Treeda Smith, news director.

In Gary, Ind., hometown of Michael Jackson, who co-wrote the song, telephone request lines at WLTH-AM were jammed for more than an hour after the broadcast.

"There was a great pride among the listenership that Michael Jackson was able to help put this song together," said Gary Law, program director. The station had called for a boycott of Jackson's music last year after city officials claimed he had snubbed his hometown by failing to include it on his concert tour.

Station WVWI in St. Thomas, U.S. Virgin Islands, urged listeners to sing along.

Gregory, Lewis get 'Drum Major for Justice' awards

ATLANTA (AP) — Activist comedian Dick Gregory and Olympic medalist Carl Lewis received awards at a dinner marking the 17th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination.

The awards, sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference founded by King, were presented Thursday night.

The Drum Major for Justice awards take their name from King's statement, "Just remember me as a drum major for justice."

In accepting his award, Gregory said, "You know Martin and all of us hit that door in the 1960s in a way that they'll never be able to close it again. Nothing but light is coming through that door now."

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — John Z. De Lorean, trying to help defray legal costs of the drug conspiracy trial in which he was acquitted, has sold the rights to his film biography to a new movie company for a reported $1.3 million.

The former automaker signed the deal with the De Lorean Plus Film Group, The Los Angeles Times reported Friday.

De Lorean Plus is a limited partnership of a group of local companies with little experience in filmmaking, but the deal will give De Lorean more creative control and a larger share of the film's profits than a deal with an established studio, a spokesman said.

De Lorean Plus, a Newport Beach company, hopes to raise $30 million in a public offering to finance the De Lorean film and other movies, according to attorney David Tedder, who represents the film group. The De Lorean movie is expected to cost about $15 million.

PEKING (AP) — Tickets for the first major rock tour of China — by the British singing duo Wham — sold out quickly Friday to young people who waited in line for hours in chilly weather.

"I have been waiting since 3 p.m. yesterday," said Ma Zhiliang, a 24-year-old student at the front of a line of more than 1,000. "I have never heard their music."

Western pop music was once banned by the Communist Party but has become increasingly popular among youth.

Wham singers George Michael and Andrew Ridgeley arrived Thursday for the tour at the invitation of the All-China Youth Federation.

The singers, whose hit single "Careless Whisper" has been translated and recorded in Chinese, said they wanted to play in China to "make a bit of history."

Ticket buyers had to show a letter of introduction from their work unit and could buy blocks of up to 10 tickets, which cost $1.75 each for the 12,000 seats for the Sunday concert.

• • •

SLANE, Ireland (AP) — Village elders and merchants in this hamlet, recalling violence during a Bob Dylan concert here last July, don't want American rock star Bruce Springsteen to perform this summer.

Village elders Thursday night voted 13-8 to block any plans for a Springsteen show at nearby Slane Castle, ancestral home of Lord Henry Mountcharles. Merchants voted 49-3 against a performance.

"There's simply no protection Lord Mountcharles could offer which would make the people here change their minds," said Gerard Breen, chairman of the Slane Village Residents Association.

During the Dylan concert, police barricaded themselves inside their station as mobs of fans besieged them, broke windows and overturned cars.

No date has yet been set for a Springsteen concert, but Mountcharles is negotiating with the singer's managers to add Irish dates to Springsteen's British tour in the summer.

NEW YORK (AP) — The ASPCA and Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus butted heads Friday over whether this year's star attraction — "The Living Unicorn" — is really just a goat with a surgically implanted bull's horn.

John Kullberg, president of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, said the four animals he saw were definitely goats and unless the circus answers his charges he will take it to court.

Kullberg said it looked as if someone removed the animals' own horns and surgically implanted a bull's horn in the middle of their heads.

Though the operation is not necessarily life-threatening, Kullberg called the publicity stunt "cruel and severely unethical."

He called on the public to boycott "The Greatest Show on Earth," which opened this week for a nine-week run at Madison Square Garden.

"Unless their (circus officials') attitude changes and that doesn't seem likely right now, I don't think the public should be paying for surgically produced freak shows," Kullberg said.

Circus vice president Allen J. Bloom called the ASPCA's charges of animal cruelty ludicrous.

Father, son craft fine instruments

By MILES WRIGHT

AUBREY, Texas (AP) — In a time of space-age plastics and computers, Steve Cundall and his father, Jim, adhere to ancient standards of craftsmanship in the patient production of fine hand-made musical instruments.

Their shop, east of Denton off Highway 380, is located on the rocky, mesquite-lined north shore of Lake Lewisville. To restore and produce violins and violas, for example, they use only select hardwoods, such as maple, willow and poplar.

Steve, a 1977 graduate of Denton High School, says he became interested in instrument repair and construction as an elementary school student. He built several miniature instruments out of wood, jet and ivory, and soon moved up to full-sized instrument repair. Even his earliest attempts at violin-making show remarkable dedication to quality and authenticity.

He's also an accomplished violinist, winning all-region band honors in high school for four years and attending North Texas State University as a performance major.

Before entering college, though, father and son team started the Luthier Shop, one of the few area music shops that rents stringed instruments other than guitars.

"My main desire is to promote music in the Southwest. We want to make good instruments available to students in the area," Steve said.

"There are a lot of string students in the Southwest who are playing terrible-sounding instruments. Since the methods I use for restoration and creating instruments give a consistently good sound, I want to make as many instruments available to as many students as I can."

The road to becoming a craftsman was a long and arduous one. After Steve's first year at NTSU, he was accepted into the prestigious Bein & Fushi of Chicago, a producer of exceptionally fine violins and violas.

"I knew nothing about making or restoring violins. Maybe that was the best way to learn. I worked hard, 16 hours a day, and really learned their method," said Steve.

"Restorers, at one time or another, learn to replace virtually every part of the violin, so building comes rather naturally," he said.

It is not uncommon to find Steve concentrating on an instrument costing up to $100,000, or an occassional Stradivarius. His father, Jim, and wife, Cynthia, say the small shop has become a meeting place for area string players.

What makes Cundall's instruments so special is the European "interior mold" process of construction. A single instrument may require 80 hours to make and cost up to $3,700.

"I use an inside mold process. That's the traditional Italian method. The French developed the outside mold method, but it doesn't give the instruments as much character as the inside mold process. Each instrument is different using the inside mold. They're basically symmetrical, but different," he said.

The bows require special attention, too, since many can cost as much as $7,000. The white hairs used on bows come from Europe, where they are gathered from specific breeds of ponies.

While Steve spends most of his hours at the shop, Jim Cundall promotes several Suzuki schools in the area. The noted method of violin teaching focuses on letting children try to imitate what they hear instead of repeating monotonous musical scales. Recently he opened one of these schools in Denison.

The Luthier Shop is a hive of activity — people and telephone calls compete for attention. When a half-dozen people amble among the 100-plus violins hanging on walls amid the craftsman's tools, it's exciting and educational.

For rarely can people watch the work of a time-honored craft — and enjoy learning from a patient and gifted artist.

VOA van cruises Texas in search of stories

By DENNY ANGELLE

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — One blue and white van is taking Texas into the living rooms of the world, beaming a bit of Lone Star style behind the Iron Curtain.

The van is actually a recording studio on wheels belonging to the Voice of America, an international shortwave radio station operated by the U.S. government. The Voice speaks in 38 languages and broadcasts worldwide, primarily in Communist countries.

It spoke recently from the Port Arthur Civic Center.

Three VOA correspondents and one engineer are currently taking the van through Texas on a trip that will wind up in Fort Worth at the end of April. The present crew will be relieved by another crew, and the van will continue to crisscross the country.

"We're talking to the people, getting to parts of the United States that don't normally get covered," said Robert Sivak, the English language correspondent on the van.

The other two correspondents currently on duty serve the Oriental and Spanish languages.

"The van is constantly on the road, recording interviews and doing all types of stories," said Sivak. "The people we meet are truly the 'voice of America.'"

The traveling van is a relatively new concept for the VOA. Engineer Bob Cole said the van went into operation on Jan. 18 of this year, beginning its never-ending trek in Nashville.

Built in San Antonio, the van carries complete multi-track recording and broadcast equipment. It houses a small studio, where the interviews are made and sent to the VOA's headquarters in Washington, D.C.

"We have bureaus in some of the bigger cities, like Houston and other places," said Sivak. "But the correspondents in those bureaus can't get out too far, so they came up with the van idea. It literally puts all of America within our reach."

The Voice of America was established in 1942 as part of the U.S. Office of War Information. The main broadcast signal is propelled by two million watts of power and supplemented by over 100 relay stations around the world.

Programs, everything from news to rock and roll, are offered in mainly English, Russian and Chinese languages. The VOA is charged with promoting a positive image of the United States, a duty some consider to be pure propaganda.

"By giving the listeners an accurate picture of America, by going around the country as we're doing, we hope to maybe erase that image," said Sivak. "Our visibility in this country has never been very good. But the fact is, we depend on Congressional appropriations and we're paid for by the American taxpayers.

"You are the Voice of America too, as is everybody. We want to give that picture to other countries," Sivak said.

Secret Service discusses closing off 90-acre area

By MAUREEN SANTINI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service, in its quest to increase presidential security, is discussing the possibility of closing off a 90-acre area around the White House to vehicles.

But any such proposal, if it were sent forward, would guarantee controversy.

A much more modest idea to close a two-block stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue to traffic, acknowledged publicly by Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III 10 days ago, created an uproar from those who said it would choke traffic in downtown Washington and turn the executive mansion into an isolated structure.

The more ambitious idea hasn't gone beyond the talking stage yet, according to a White House official who discussed it only on condition that he remain anonymous.

"I have heard them (the Secret Service) mention their ultimate idea would be a vehicle-free zone all around the White House," the official said. "They have never formally done any proposal because I think the obstacles are so tremendous."

Asked how serious the idea was, the White House official replied: "From their point of view, I think it's serious."

He said the idea has been discussed at all levels within the Secret Service, including by its director, John Simpson, and has been brought up in private conversations with administration officials who deal with the agency.

But he added that there was "a lot of opposition to the notion," and ventured the opinion that it would never be adopted.

The idea would be to ban traffic on all streets stretching from Lafayette Park north of the White House through E Street south of it, and possibly including the Ellipse.

The traffic ban, perhaps accompanied by a tunnel to absorb the heavy traffic that normally flows in front of the White House, is envisoned as an added measur of protection against potential terrorist truck bombers and other security problems.

Secret Service spokesman Mike Tarr refused to confirm or deny the tentative proposal.

"We talk all the time (within the Secret Service) about different security procedures and techniques and so on," Tarr said. "We're not going to discuss our internal debates on how to enhance presidential security until we feel they reach a stage where they may merit consideration by other government agencies."

However, Tarr added, "Having unrestricted traffic flow that close to the White House we feel certainly has the potential to cause some security problems."

At the White House, Chris Hicks, deputy assistant to the president, said neither he nor Reagan had heard of the expanded idea. "It seems a little overreaching to me," he added. "You're not going to have perfect security."

At this point, Hicks said, the White House is not even considering the narrower proposal to close two blocks of Pennsylvania Avenue. But he said that plan would be considered if the Secret Service formally presented it.

Under the more far-reaching concept, the streets that would be included behind the White House are E Street — a major-rush hour artery — as well as Alexander Hamilton Place and State Place between 15th and 17th Streets. The idea apparently would include closing the internal roads on the Ellipse, a two-block wide park south of the White House, now used for parking for the White House staff.

In front of the White House, Pennsylvania Avenue would be closed, as would Jackson and Madison Places flanking Lafayette Park. East Executive Avenue, separating the White House from the Treasury building, was closed months ago.

While huge concrete barricades were placed on Pennsylvania Avenue in front of the White House in 1983 to thwart potential suicide truck bombers, the belief is that a vehicle-free zone would not only prevent penetration of the White House compound but also detonation of any bomb.

Rep. Frank Wolf, R-Va., a member of a House Appropriations subcommittee which has jurisdiction over the Secret Service budget, said in a telephone interview that he believed it would be difficult to persuade Congress to appropriate money for such a plan.

"The White House belongs to the people of the United States, so we can't develop a fortress mentality to the point where we close off all the streets," he said.

"The Secret Service has a very difficult job in protecting the president, particularly in these days of terrorism," Wolf said. "From their perspective, they'll do anything they possibly can...I think we would have to strike a balance."

"These are major thoroughfares," he said. "It would be like putting a roadblock across the downtown D.C. area." He said the two-block stretch of Pennsylvania Avenue alone handles about 31,000 cars daily.

Chemical Bank to buy Home State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Chemical Bank of New York on Friday formally announced its intention to buy Home State Savings Bank, but officials cautioned it will be at least another week before Home State's 49,000 depositors could get their money.

Gov. Richard Celeste announced that Chemical Bank had written state Savings Superintendent Robert McAlister of its intent to purchase Home State of Cincinnati, with 33 branches in Ohio.

Chemical Bank representatives will be at Home State's main office Monday to begin examining the books and work toward specific terms for the deal.

Legislation would then be needed to detail terms of the sale, including an infusion of taxpayer funds that could run into strong opposition in the General Assembly.

Officials said the legislation probably will not be ready until April 15, and depositors would not be able to get their money until that-is completed.

"We believe the orderly transfer of the banking business of Home State customers to a commercial bank with federal deposit insurance protection is in the best interests of the nation's banking system and Home State's depositors, employees and customers," Chemical Bank President Robert I. Lipp said in a statement.

Home State closed March 8 after a three-day run on deposits prompted by the collapse of a Florida securities firm, ESM Government Securities Inc., in which Home State had invested heavily. Runs began on deposits at other privately insured Ohio thrifts a few days later, and Celeste ordered all state-chartered savings and loans closed March 15.

At a Friday press conference in Columbus, Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste announces he has received a letter of intent to purchase the closed Home State Savings Bank from Chemical Bank of New York. Seated, at left, is Raymond Sayer, Celeste's chief of staff; at right is Rober B. McAlister, Ohio superintendent of savings and loans.

All have since been given permission to reopen for at least limited service.

Celeste, a Democrat, expressed hope Friday that members of both parties, who have worked together to reopen the state's thrifts, "will continue that bipartisan effort with a minimum of political wrangling."

However, almost as Celeste spoke, Senate President Paul E. Gillmor, a Republican, issued a statement in which he said the state should consider taking over Home State.

Under the Chemical Bank proposal, he said, the state would put up a major share of the money but would enjoy none of the benefits of ownership.

The governor declined to provide numbers on the proposed Chemical Bank deal, but Gillmor — who sat in on most of the negotiations — said it calls for using $90 million remaining from the private Ohio Deposit Guarantee Fund and $80 million in tax funds, while Chemical Bank would put in $21 million as a premium for entering Ohio's markets.

Raymond Sawyer, Celeste's chief of staff, shrugged off Gillmor's proposal.

"We have a very solid and positive proposal to consider right now," Sawyer said.

In addition to paying a premium, Sawyer said, Chemical Bank will have to recapitalize Home State, which has liabilities in excess of $500 million. He said the deal could also require a buyer to repay at least some of the tax funds from future profits.

Sawyer said the state also will push to recover tax funds from lawsuits pending against Alexander Grant Co., Home State's accounting firm, and Home State's directors. The suits seek damages totaling about $700 million, he said.

Some lawmakers said the use of taxpayers' money could run into constitutional problems, but Sawyer said the public funds could be channeled through a non-profit Depositors' Assistance Corp., which he believes would be allowable under the Ohio Constitution.

U.S. Navy can't find mother's missing matzohs

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — Two months ago, Thelma Goldfinger shipped three 40-pound packages with all the fixings for a proper Passover to her son, a Navy lieutenant on an aircraft carrier somewhere in the Indian Ocean.

But Passover neared, and the matzoh was missing. That's when the U.S. Navy met Mrs. Goldfinger.

"I spent a lot of money to give these boys a nice holiday," she said Friday. "The Navy encourages that you should make things easier for the boys. But what good is it? They have no compassion."

Mrs. Goldfinger called her congressman, Republican Rep. Dean Gallo, the Navy and the White House. The Navy said the boxes could not be located. The White House told her to call the Navy.

Molly Newell, a caseworker in Gallo's office, said she had been on the phone with Navy officials daily for the past week trying to determine what happened to the shipment.

She was told that the boxes might be on a ship en route to the USS Carl Vinson, where Jeffrey Goldfinger is serving, or at a naval cargo depot in the Indian Ocean. Lightweight mail is flown to the vessels, but delivery of heavier items could take longer, she said.

"It could be in the Philippines or just about anywhere," she said. "I don't think the Navy is going to try to contact every base and find those boxes."

She added that it is possible Jeffrey received the shipment. The Navy sent a telex to the vessel on Thursday inquiring about the packages, but there will be no response before Monday and there is no way to telephone the ship because it is on the high seas.

Lt. Commander James Kudla said the Navy sent a message to all Pacific commands on Thursday and called a naval post office in San Francisco inquiring about the packages. So far, there has been no response.

Judge denies bond for suspect in talk show host's killing

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — White supremacist David Lane, linked by the FBI to the slaying of a Jewish talk show host, was denied bond Friday and will be returned to Idaho to face charges of aiding in a $3.5 million armored truck robbery.

Lane, 46, has been held in North Carolina on counterfeiting charges filed in Philadelphia and is wanted in Colorado for questioning about the January 1984 machine-gun slaying of talk show host Alan Berg.

After Lane waived the probable cause hearing in North Carolina, U.S. Magistrate Russell Eliason said Lane would be sent to Boise for a similar hearing on charges of aiding in the July 19 robbery of a Brink's armored truck in Ukiah, Calif.

Eliason said he denied bond because of Lane's link to the holdup and because "the defendant has been leading an unstable existence in terms of employment and residence."

Lane was at the scene of Berg's slaying, FBI Agent Don Wofford of Butte, Mont., testified at the bond hearing.

"Our investigation, which includes confidential sources, indicates that David Lane and other members of The Order were responsible for the murder of Mr. Berg," said Wofford, who called Lane a founding member of The Order.

The Order is a faction of the Aryan Nations, a white supremacist organization.

Armed agents captured Lane March 30 in a parking lot in Winston-Salem.

U.S. Attorney Ken McAllister said Lane didn't participate in the actual robbery of the Brink's truck but "helped facilitate it, knew it was occurring and received (money) from it."

According to a search warrant and other federal court documents, Lane was carrying a 9mm black automatic handgun when he was arrested. Agents also found a fully loaded 45-caliber semi-automatic firearm.
