Concert due to lure 10,000

Willie sings for 'free'

By JAMES WERRELL

Willie Nelson will be singing for free at today's concert in Memorial Stadium, said Tommy LaRoux, Jaycee state director and member of the Snyder branch of the organization.

The concert has been sponsored by the Big Spring and Snyder Jaycees, and all proceeds will go to benefit the Jaycee Texas Campus for the physically handicapped in Gonzales. The Jaycees had originally agreed to pay Nelson the approximately $20,000 it would cost him to transport his band and equipment to Big Spring.

On Friday, however, Nelson contacted LaRoux and, in protest to negative publicity surrounding the concert, volunteered to play free of charge.

"He is highly aggravated about how the media is treating his friends. He said he couldn't believe how American people are treating a charity event this poorly," said LaRoux. "He also said that the concert wouldn't cost the Big Spring or Snyder Jaycees a cent."

Nelson is reportedly the most upset about an article issued by the Associated Press detailing the illegal activities of former radiologist John Young, a friend of the singer's. Young is presently serving a three-year term at the Big Spring Federal Camp for illicitly prescribing drugs for a number of show business personalities.

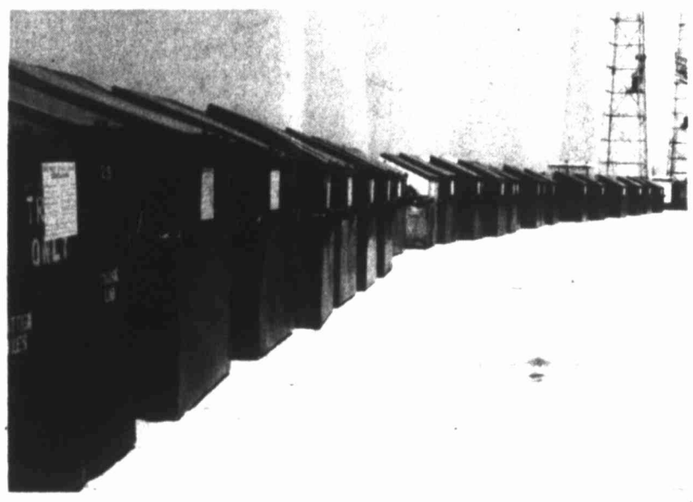

Young was instrumental in convincing Nelson to perform here.

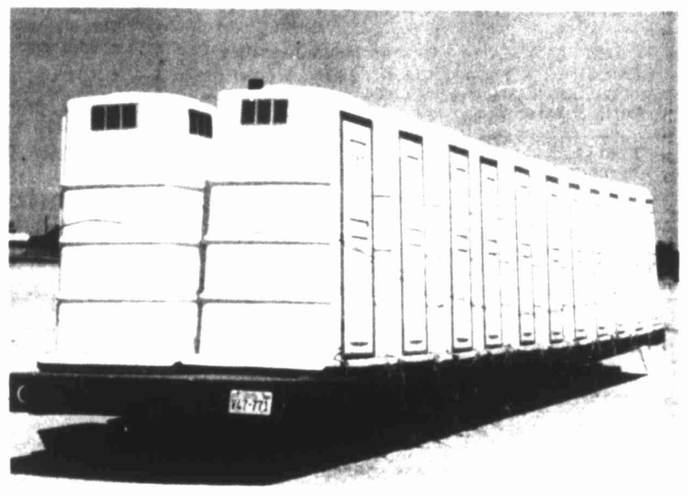

Despite the allegedly negative publicity, local coordinators estimate that between 8,000 and 10,000 tickets have already been sold in Big Spring and eight other area cities. Many more concert goers may arrive today to buy tickets at the gate, said Robert Spiller, local Jaycee vice president.

Gates will open at the stadium at 3 p.m. A warmup band will begin the festivities at 6 p.m., and Nelson is scheduled to appear at 8 p.m.

A construction crew spent most of Saturday installing a 40-by-60-foot stage, 30 portable toilets, and 25 trash dumpsters. In addition, Jaycees have prepared hundreds of pounds of barbecue to sell along with soft drinks and a variety of other snacks, said Spiller.

BE PREPARED — The Boy Scout motto also applies to gearing up for a concert where over 10,000 music lovers might congregate. Workers spent most of Saturday constructing a huge stage with pre-fab materials, left, and installing 30 portable toilets, center, and installing 25 trash dumpsters, right.

Casino bombers warn they may strike again

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — The bombers whose sophisticated weapon tore a big hole in a plush gambling casino in a botched attempt to extort $3 million threatened to try again "in the event of a doublecross," the FBI confirmed Saturday.

The explosion Wednesday ripped the side out of Harvey's Resort Casino-Hotel, leaving at least $3 million in damages and sprinkling the Lake Tahoe gambling strip with debris. TVHR LR NO INRIRIES. Authorities had evacuated the area before an attempt to disarm the bomb led to the explosion.

With the help of witnesses, agents this weekend prepared composite descriptions and profiles of three suspects, two men and a woman, believed in their 30s.

The bombers, in a three-page extortion letter left with the explosive device, told authorities, "In the event of a doublecross, there will be a time, sometime in the future, when another attempt will be made. We have the ways and means to get the bomb in."

The letter was quoted in a special edition of the Tahoe Daily Tribune. FBI spokesman Dave Spencer confirmed that the report was accurate.

FBI agent Joseph Yablonsky said artists were compiling composite drawings of the suspects, based on descriptions supplied by witnesses at the scene. Some of the witnesses, he added, provided their descriptions under hypnosisis.

The extortionists' letter described the bomb's complex array of switches and warned that even slight turns of screws would cause an explosion.

"This bomb is so sensitive that the slightest movement either inside or outside it will cause it to explode," the letter said. "This bomb can never be dismantled or disarmed without causing an explosion. Not even by the creator."

Meanwhile, gamblers filled Lake Tahoe's casinos, including a partially reopened Harvey's, for the Labor Day holidays, the mountain resort's busiest weekend of the year.

Other casinos put up a $200,000 reward hoping the bombers will be caught before they strike again. Yablonsky called the reward "a jackpot waiting for someone to pull the handle."

But agents on Saturday said they were far from finding the three.

"I can't say we've gotten anything currently that's going to bust the case," Yablonsky s id.

The extortionists elaborately disguised the bomb — which they said contained 1,000 sticks of dynamite — as an office photocopying machine and wheeled it into the casino on the south shore of Lake Tahoe early Tuesday morning.

In the next day and a half, authorites tried to contact the extortionists for more instructions. They even attempted to drop off the $3 million. But no word came.

Bomb squads eventually ringed the device with sandbags and attempted to disarm it with a robot. It exploded.

Two perish, three missing in rig blast

PORT O'CONNOR, Texas (AP) — Flames shot 100 feet into the air from a burning gas well Saturday, hampering a search for three people missing after the offshore rig exploded, killing two workers and injuring seven, the Coast Guard said.

High flames and intense heat around the rig, about 18 miles offshore in the Gulf of Mexico, hindered the search for the missing men by helicopters and Coast Guard vessels, officials said.

"There is gas burning on the water and the platform and the wellhead, which is broken about halfway up," said Coast Guard Lt. Steve Sparks in Corpus Christi.

The cause of the explosion is still unclear, but Sparks said 28 men were evacuated from the rig after it "experienced serious pressure buildups," about midnight.

"They must have drilled into an area of extreme pressure and their equipment just couldn't handle it," Sparks said.

Ocean Drilling and Exploration Co. of New Orleans, which owns the rig, was drilling the wildcat well for Cities Service, an ODECO spokesman said.

Killed were William Blanco, a rig mechanic, 55, of Daphne, Ala., and Parvin N. Bailey, a Cities Service drilling foreman, 42, Deridder, La.

Missing are Lonnie Bessonette, 46, Brookhaven, Miss., Gary Snelling, 32, Lafayette, La., and Sam Smith Jr., 23, Prentiss, Miss.

Chamber manager, trustees draw fire

Rev. Sims voices concern over moral value of local concert

By DON WOODS

The Rev. Sammy Sims Friday voiced concern over the moral value of tonight's Willie Nelson Concert and questioned the role Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce manager Leroy Tillery took in arranging it but Tillery maintained he was only peripherally involved in the show's promotion.

Tillery told Sims, who is pastor of Crestview Baptist Church, and four other church leaders assembled for the meeting, that the Snyder and Big Spring Jaycees should be given credit for arranging the musical show. The meeting took place in the Chamber offices.

"All we're doing is providing office space and telephone," said Tillery.

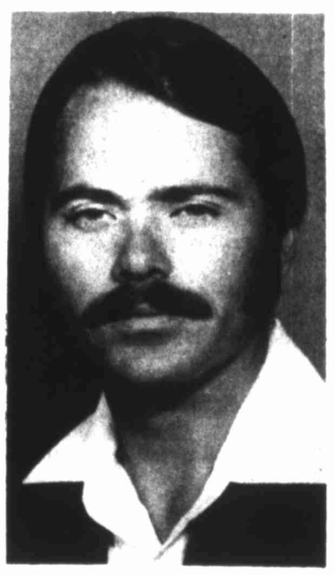

Present were East Fourth Street associate pastor Charlie Skeen; Kenneth Platte, Crestview Baptist youth director; Dan Wennerlind, Big Spring Bible Church pastor; Dr. Phillip McClendon, pastor Hillcrest Baptist; and John Walker Hillcrest youth director.

The pastors appeared as individuals and not as an organized opposition to the concert. "Sammy's not speaking for me or for my church," said Hillcrest pastor McClendon. He said he did not agree with some of Sims statements. McClendon said his appearance at the meeting was to determine "what we as Christians could do to help."

McClendon said his principal objection concerned the hours of the concert because it conflicts with Sunday evening church services. He said people should not be prevented from going to the concert.

WILLIE NELSON

SAMMIE SIMS

McClendon disclosed a petition referred to in the Thursday Herald contained only eight names of Hillcrest members because he had been out of town and most of his congregation had waited his reaction to the show before signing.

Sims maintained that the Herald had misquoted Tillery in the story which appeared in Thursday's paper but Tillery said later that the quote had correctly reported the content of his statement.

"It seems our local media doesn't always get things correct," said Sims.

Sims was referring to Tillery's quote that said "for the most part people can't wait for Sunday," and "most people are excited about the show." Tillery said these were not his exact words.

Sims said he has stopped taking the paper because, "I seem to get enough of the bad news just walking the streets of our city."

Sims said local leaders "should be better informed" before okaying the concert.

Tillery said officials were in contact with other cities where Nelson had performed." "There wasn't any earth shaking repercussions our city couldn't handle," said Tillery.

Skeen said, that "as church leaders we know the influence of cultic leaders."

Sims charged that the local school board should have informed citizens earlier about their decision to allow Nelson to perform in Memorial Stadium.

"Things of adverse effect are not publicized until after the event. In other cities we have been in, the school board announces these things," he said.

School Superintendent Lynn Hise had said at Thursday night's board meeting that school policy dictates that officials allow local organizations to use school facilities for legimate enterprises.

Sims suggested the district's decision might have an effect on future school board elections.

Wennerlind raised the question of law enforcement procedures in the area outside the stadium.

He predicted there would be many who would go and not buy tickets but would hang around outside the stadium to hear the music.

Tillery said it was his opinion that Jaycee involvement had intensified since concert arrangements had begun. Sims said he was displeased that the organization had "jelled" because of Nelson.

Skeen emphasized "love for people" as the attitude that should be behind any opposition to the concert. He suggested that Christians might witness to concert goers outside the stadium.

Sims also stated that the petition circulated among church goers did not propose that the concert be cancelled but rather was an objection to the fact that Nelson had been invited to appear publically in the community on the grounds of moral influence. The petition, Sims stated, had been in circulation about ten days and contained more than 700 names.

Action/reaction: Teacher's duties

Q. What are the duties of Mrs. Douglas Burke at the new Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf and what is her salary?

A. Mrs. Burke, Teacher of the Year in El Paso's Independent School District last year, will have duties in which she will develop a program that will enable students to develop study skills and receive academic reenforcement. This type of program is necessary because almost all of them have had serious learning problems since early childhood. Most deaf students who are preparing for freshman course work must overcome many of these academic deficiencies that have developed over the years. Many of these deficiencies are caused by teachers who cannot communicate very well with deaf students. Others are caused by students moving from one program to another and, finally, many education programs are poorly designed to meet the education needs of deaf students. Many deaf students also have additional learning disabilities. The tutorial center seeks to help students overcome whatever learning problems and education deficiency they may have. Mrs. Burke's annual starting salary will be $19,000.

Jerry Lewis Telethon

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The 15th annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon kicks off Sunday night with organizers hoping to raise more than $30 million to battle muscular dystrophy.

The 21 and one-half hour telethon, emanating from the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, will be carried by more than 200 stations across the country.

Last year, more than 93 million viewers watched parts of the telethon and pledged $31.1 million to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

This year organizers expect to do even better and have lined up an impressive list of entertainers to carry the telethon through to its Monday evening conclusion.

A new twist to the show this year is the addition of live remote broadcasts that will feature entertainers such as Frank Sinatra and Barry Manilow in concert from various parts of the country.

Money raised during the telethon goes to research and medical services for victims of muscular dystrophy and 39 other muscular diseases.

The $31.1 million raised by the telethon last year was part of a total of $78 million raised by the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

'Second City' now third

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago, America's long-time "Second City," is now only the third-largest in the nation, according to preliminary census data obtained by the Chicago Tribune.

The newspaper reported in Sunday's editions that Chicago lost 644,072 residents — or more than the total population of Boston — since the 1970 census and thereby fell behind Los Angeles in the ranking of U.S. cities.

According to the 1970 census, Chicago had 3,369,367 residents, but the preliminary figures indicate the city's population fell to 2,725,295 by 1980 — a decline of 19.1 percent.

Los Angeles, which was ranked third after the 1970 census, has a 1980 population of 2,878,039, the Tribune said.

The decline in Chicago's population is expected to cause the loss of hundreds of millions of dollars in the city's revenue from the state and federal governments, as well as the shrinking of its representation in Congress and the Illinois General Assembly.

San Angelo man charged with attempted murder

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — A man identified by law officers as William Worley, 31, of San Angelo, was jailed Friday on charges of attempted murder and aggravated robbery.

Police said Worley abducted Jose Loera from his Austin apartment at gunpoint about 2 p.m. Friday and forced Loera to drive him to Round Rock. Near the high school he jumped out of Loera's car, swatted A.R. Montemayor in the stomach with the gun and drove off in Montemayor's car.

Worley drove the second car off the road and entered the back door of the nearby Cedar Park resident of Gerald Jones, said chief investigator Ray Hardison of Williamson County.

Hardison said Jones kicked Worley and pushed him out the door, but Worley fired one round through the door, which had glass panes. The bullet hit Jones' wife, Patti, in the arm, and the shattered glass cut Jones slightly, Hardison said. Mrs. Jones was treated by a doctor but not hospitalized.

Police, who had been alerted by Loera, arrested Worley as he was returning to the gate of an eight-foot fence that surrounded the Jones property.

"I want to see him sent for all that he needs," said Jones.

Bandidos released from cells

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Six members of a Bandido motorcycle caravan were released from jail Friday after being arrested on drug and weapon charges by police who confiscated a small arsenal of pistols, shotguns and a rifle.

No charges were filed.

Two other members of the 12-bike convoy that was stopped on U.S. 183 in Cedar Park were released Thursday afternoon.

State police and officers from Austin, Leander and Cedar Park stopped the convoy, which was en route to Houston from a motorcycle event in South Dakota. The Department of Public Safety had broadcast an alert after a Lampasas convenience store attendant saw a motorcyclist in the convoy with a pistol.

Weapons seized included two sawed-off shotguns, a double-barreled shotgun, a new AR-15 rifle, knives and five pistols, including a .357 magnum.

Police later determined the guns were being carried legally since the owners were traveling between counties.

The six members of the Bandidos were held pending laboratory tests on substances found in a van traveling with the motorcyclists. The tests turned out negative, police said Friday.

Wichita Falls man murdered

McLOUD, Okla. (AP) — A 27-year-old Wichita Falls, Texas, man was shot and killed Friday night on Interstate 40 near here by another motorist who had been harrassing him with his pickup for several miles, authorities said.

Pottawatomie County Sheriff Billy Phillips said Clifford Berry was shot in the face with a large caliber gun. He was dead on arrival at a Shawnee hospital. Phillips said Berry's wife, Susan, said a pickup truck had been following them and flashing its lights at their car and then speeding past them and then dropping back and flashing its lights again.

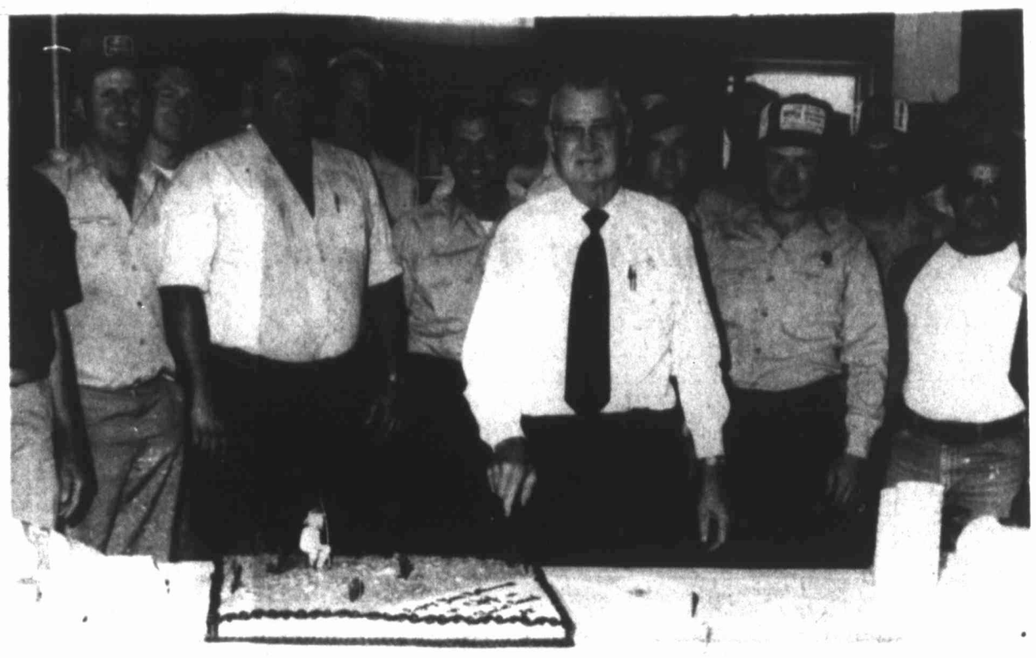

Berry pulled off the road and the pickup pulled up behind the Texas couple's car with its bright lights on.

Mrs. Berry said her husband turned off the car and walked back to the pickup. She said he heard a shot and saw the pickup speed off east on the highway.

Two passing motorists, who witnessed the shooting, told authorities Berry was gunned down by a white man driving a green pickup with a white camper on the back. The pickup had Arkansas license plates.

Phillips said he has no motive and no suspects in the slaying.

The accident occurred two miles west of the McLoud exit on I-40, west of Oklahoma City, about 8:45 p.m. Friday.

Medicaid conflict heats up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Chairman Hilmar Moore of the State Board of Human Resources said Friday he did not appreciate comments by a lawyer implying that Moore might be pushing an old friend for the job of analzying Medicaid contract bids.

The Medicaid contract became controversial after the board voted July 29 to reconsider its award two weeks earlier to Bradford National Corp., a New York data-processing firm.

The board has delayed a final decision until Oct. 15.

National Heritage Insurance Co., a subsidiary of H. Ross Perot's computer empire, now administers the lucrative Medicaid contract, which expires in a year.

The board decided this week to pay a consultant up to $100,000 to help it choose between Bradford and National Heritage for Texas' $2 billion four-year Medicaid contract.

Moore said Friday he did not appreciate comments by Bradford lawyer Sander Shapiro that one consulting firm should not be hired to do the bid analysis because of Moore's acquaintance with the head of the firm.

Moore said Thursday he had gone to a military-service school with Jack F. Ward, president of J.F. Ward Associates, a consulting firm in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The board interviewed consulting firms for the job Friday but no decision was made.

A 24-year-old northside woman told police that a man she knows sexually assaulted her inside an apartment on Northwest Fourth, 11:14 p.m. Friday. Police will investigate further.

A drunk entered the Seven-Elven Store at 902 Willia and started causing trouble, 12:35 a.m. Friday. According to reports, the man berated the clerk and then threw bags of corn chips and mixed nuts against the wall, spreading the contents across the floor.

Burglars entered the home of Melinda King, 404 E. 22nd, Friday night, and stole four pairs of blue jeans. The jeans were valued at $50.

The clerk called police, who took a report on the incident. A few minutes later, however, the man returned and threatened the clerk, saying "you're goig to be sorry for calling the cops." The clerk then called the cops again.

Math 1306 will satisfy requirements

Due to the amount of calls received this week from students enrolled in the nursing program at Howard College, a clarification on Mathematics course 1306 is necessary, says Sherill Easterling, math instructor at Howard College.

"Math 1306 is required for nursing students planning on achieving a bachelors degree in nursing," said Easterling. "This course will transfer to Angelo State University, and fits into the nursing degree plan there.

"Students majoring in business math and education may also take this course, although it is applicable to all fields.

"The course description describes the class as a survey of basic statistical methods including distributions, central tendency, variability hypothesis testing and correlation. It also consists of a brief introduction to sampling techniques and non parametric methods," added Easterling.

The course will be offered from 10:40-11:55 a.m., Tuesday and Thursday, in the Science Building on the Howard College campus. Easterling will be the instructor.

SMILE — Tickling a 10-foot manatee is not so difficult, because some on these docile animals enjoy human companionship. Others, however, fear divers and will flee warm-water refuges to escape them. Florida, the manatee's home, is barring divers from a few wintering spots and also is setting rules for the animal's biggest enemy — boats.

Manatee is no match for Florida speedboats

By BARBARA S. MOFFET
National Geographic
NEWS Service

WASHINGTON — They aren't very pretty — sunken eyes, blubbery lips, a bristly mustache, and a bulbous body that tapers into a paddlelike tail. But the man who discovered America thought they were mermaids.

They spend most of their time browsing and drowsing in the sea, yet their closest relative is decidedly a land creature — the elephant.

Known as manatees, these animals are among the gentlest on earth. They can weigh more than 2,000 pounds, yet they refuse to fight, even to defend their young.

If the now-endangered manatee had not taken to the sea so many millions of years ago it would never have met what has become its archenemy: the speedboat.

The estimated 1,000 manatees living in the waterways and coastal areas of Florida use up much of their energy dodging the state's 500,000 boats. Almost every manatee studied by scientists there bears on its rubbery back the scars of an encounter with a boat propeller. Many others have not survived the collisions.

Most manatees are hit after they drift to the water surface to poke their nostrils out for a breath (which, as sea mammals, they must do about every five minutes). In winter, when manatees move from the chilly coastal areas to the warmer natural springs and effluent areas of power plants, they are especially vulnerable.

Scientists once counted 271 manatees clustered in a mile-long area where a power plant discharges warm water.

"If a boat ripped through an area like that, it could injure or kill several at once," said Patrick M. Rose, manatee recovery activities coordinator for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Part of his research on manatee deaths was funded by the Florida Power & Light Co.

Killing a manatee has been illegal in Florida since 1893. The animal received more help from the U.S. Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 and the U.S. Endangered Species Act of 1973. But manatees continued to die faster than they reproduced.

Two years ago the entire state of Florida was made a manatee sanctuary after research proved that people, especially their high-speed boats, were the main cause of the animal's troubles. The act gives the Florida Marine Patrol authority to ho[illegible] down boat speeds in [illegible] manatee winter refuges. Manatees can avoid boats if they have time, Rose explained.

Winter boating now has been outlawed in a few manatee haunts, such as Blue Spring State Park near Orlando. Officials hope to prohibit boating in other key refuges and even to restrict diving in a few small areas, such as part of the Crystal River, whose clear warm water lures hundreds of divers as well as many manatees from the Gulf.

"Very few people intentionally hurt manatees," Rose said. "But many just want to get near them to look at them or pet them, and that frightens them." Although some relish human companionship, many flee, moving on to colder and colder waters.

So far no solution has been found for problems with large boats, especially commercial tugs and barges, which can trap and crush manatees in shallow, narrow waterways. But tugboat captains heading through the Merritt Island National Wildlife Refuge waters to deliver cargo to the Kennedy Space Center are learning to recognize a manatee and how to avoid a collision with one.

Captains go to the classroom for a Fish and Wildlife Service course on the animal or are instructed by personnel who board tugs before they reach key manatee areas, where at peak seasons as many as 25 congregate.

Florida's manatee, or sea cow, is one of four species of the order Sirenia that survive in small numbers in the shallow marine waters and rivers of the tropics.

GENTLE SEA COW — Mermaids they're not, although sailors of old called them that. The blimp-like animal is a manatee, or sea cow, which lives in the rivers and coastal areas of Florida. Once abundant from the Carolinas to the Texas Gulf Coast, only about 1,000 survive. Manatees can weigh a ton, yet they are gentle animals.

WARM WATER — Winter hands of the manatee (indicated by symbols) include most of Florida's southern coast as well as some inland warm-water refugees connected to the sea. In summer manatees spread out in the state's creeks, bayous, and canals and can be found in the sea from Jacksonville all the way around the tip of the state and up to the Suwanee River.

Triple slaying suspect seized

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A second suspect in the July 6 slayings of three men at an Oklahoma City motel was arrested here Thursday night.

Police identified the man as Clifford Bowen, 49, and said he was being sought on a warrant issued Wednesday.

A former police officer, Harold Dean Behrens, 35, of Oklahoma City, was arrested Wednesday and charged with three first-degree murder counts.

Authorities also lodged three first-degree murder charges against an alleged accomplice identified only as "John Doe" in court records.

A police spokesman said Bowen was arrested following 27 days of surveillance in Tyler. The watch was initiated after a call from Oklahoma City police, the spokesman said.

The railroads refute San Antonio's claim

The City of San Antonio mounted a furious campaign some time ago against the railroads for making the City Public Service Board pay what it claims are exhorbitant rates to ship coal into the area for the purpose of generating electricity.

It is interesting to note that Texas Railways Magazine, in its Summer 1980 issue, strongly refutes the charge.

Walter Caven of the magazine writes:

"SAN ANTONIO officials, crying all the way to the bank, owe their electricity customers an answer to the $98.8 million question: What happened to all that money? That's the amount the City Public Service Board admits it has saved during the past three years by using coal instead of natural gas to generate electricity. But did they reduce their electric bills by that amount? No, sir. Instead, they continue to attack the railroads and blame them for high utility rates, contending that their charges for hauling the coal more than 1,000 miles are exhorbitant.

"Their argument does not make sense. How can railroad hauling rates be blamed for high utility rates when the City is saving approximately $33 million a year by using coal?

"Railroads are not immune to inflation — a fact that may come as a surprise to some politicians. The rates for hauling coal from Gillette, Wyo., to San Antonio have increased during the past few years to a grand total of 1.4 cents per ton-mile — much less than the average of 2.6 cents per ton-mile for all railroad freight. San Antonio's main trouble is geographical; it is buying coal from a mine 1,600 miles away.

"According to the latest figures from the U.S. Department of Energy, generating electricity from coal costs the City of San Antonio $1.67 per million BTUs, compared with $2.30 for gas. This represents a 'great train robbery?' Actually, the total cost of railroad transportation, at today's rates, represents only about 5 percent of the average customer's electric bill in San Antonio.

"How much would it cost you to drive your car those 1,600 miles from Gillette to San Antonio? Well, if your car weighed two tons and you average 16 miles per gallon, the cost of your gasoline alone would be approximately $120 (at $1.20 a gallon for 100 gallons). And that is just for fuel, without figuring all the other costs involved. But the railroads charge only a little over $20 a ton to haul coal from Gillette to San Antonio.

"SEVERAL UTILITY companies recently teamed up to finance an expensive, heavily orchestrated dog-and-pony show for the news media. It was led by U.S. Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston, a long-time nemesis of the free-enterprize system, but also featured several other anti-business politicians jumping through hoops and crying about 'ripoffs' and railroad 'monopolies.'

"Like that famous 600-word history of the world, the script omitted some of the facts. Among those admitted was the rate of return for the utility companies, which ranges from 11 to 14 percent, compared with 2 to 6 percent for the railroads. If the utility companies really feel sorry for their customers, why don't they simply reduce their rate of return to the same level as that of the railroads?

"Instead, such cities as San Antonio camouflage their exhorbitant profits on electricity by blaming the railroads for high utility rates.

"Where else can you get anything moved for just 1.4 cents per ton-mile? And what happened to that $98.8 million? The people of San Antonio would demand the answers from those public officials who seem outraged because the railroads cannot haul coal for free."

That seems to be placing the ball effectively in the other team's court.

Industrial band-aid

Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON — The more the wraps come off President Carter's plan for industrial renewal, the less it looks like what it was cracked up to be. Certainly, it is not an industrial policy, still less a program for re-industrializing America.

Instead, there emerges a bundle of measures to deal with the recession. Since the recession is largely regional, the package adds up to a depressed areas program.

INDUSTRIAL POLICY — to use the term exactly, as one should, given the prevailing confusion and obfuscation — refers to a selective promotion of some industries over others by government. That approach, though practiced in Japan and Western Europe, was never a serious possibility for this country. Administration officials, led by Chairman Charles Schultze of the Council of Economic Advisors, believe that the private sector does a much better job than government in picking winners and losers. Papers prepared for Assistant Secretary of Commerce Jerry Jasinowski show that industrial policy has not even worked particularly well abroad. The French have not been able to promote a computer industry, nor the Germans a strong nuclear power industry. The Japanese have been successful in shipbuilding and steel, but only in a limited way for a limited time. Their greatest successes have come in industries the government did not particularly push.

Re-industrialization refers to measures affecting the whole economy that are designed to rebuild this country's strong competitive position in the world of developed nations. As argued in this column and elsewhere, it envisions tax policies, loan guarantees, and other incentives to promote modernization of such basic industries as autos and steel, and more rapid advancement of such new industries as data processing and genetic engineering.

In the process, the arthritic nodes that now may make the economy unresponsive to challenge would be reduced or eliminated. To qualify for incentives, management and labor would have to cease inflationary price and wage increases, and eliminate wasteful practices. Government would be obliged to make hard trades between environmental quality and economic growth, instead of constantly going for progressively more stringent environmental standards.

Inside the administration, only a handful of officials — Mr. Jasinowski at Commerce and Assistant Secretary Arnold Packer of Labor — ever pushed for re-industrialization. Mr. Schultze and most of the other leading economists in government felt that the play of politics would inevitably cause this country to sustain losers rather than promote winners. To clinch their argument, the tight budgetary policy adopted in March ruled out any program that would cost more money. So, a full-blown re-industrialization policy went by the boards.

WHAT REMAINS is a determination to enlist existing government programs in the cause of fighting the recession. The big new program deals with the energy problem. The windfall profits tax is going to skim billions off oil company revenues. Congress has authorized the use of that money to develop alternate sources of energy and to foster conservation.

Big Spring Herald Mailbag

Dear Editor:

I would like to respond to James Werrell's article in the Rim reportedly "Defending Willie."

He said he is fed up with this town's reaction to the Willie Nelson Concert. Well, I'm fed up with this town's blindness toward those in power. This 'friend' of Willie's, who reportedly is also a member of the Jaycees (an organization whose members help handicapped children) is a doctor who was put in prison here because he was caught in the act of giving illegal drug prescriptions to his friends. Willie Nelson and his wife were allegedly among the ones who were getting them from him. The Herald did not print this but the Dallas paper (Times-Herald) did.

I would be ashamed to be a member of a club, knowing the causes I was working for and then having a member who helped put people on drugs.

I feel, for the Jaycees to sponsor a concert, where the person giving the concert has admitted indiscretions and the person who is responsible for getting him here is a doctor who has been sent to prison for prescribing drugs illegally, is going to help the 'handicapped children' is the biggest farce I've ever seen.

We have closed our eyes on what is wrong just so we can make a few more bucks. What Mr. Nelson wears or how he looks makes no difference to me or most of the people in Big Spring.

Willie Nelson is not a preacher. I guarantee if Billy Graham was to come to Big Spring it would not be on the invitation of a drug pusher. Nor would the city have to hire specially trained people to sift out the drugs.

Maybe Billy Graham or Oral Roberts couldn't sing "Hello Walls" the way Willie can but I would bet they could sing the entire National Anthem without forgetting some of the words like Willie did during the Democratic National Convention.

It is certainly James' problem if he likes Willie Nelson but I thank God there are enough of us old and young thinkers who still condone right and wrong.

Hurray for all the people who had enough backbone to stand up against this particular concert.

Dear Editor:

Recently, I read a newspaper article about 'Mad' Eddie Chiles, the 'self-made' millionaire.

My dictionary says many things about the word 'mad.' One so afflicted can be suffering from disorientation, can be frantic or agitated, can show strong enthusiasm, can be angry or biased, can lack reason, can be wildly foolish or be rabid.

Does Mr. Chiles have any of those symptoms or is he just mad at the Democratic party and a government that, according to Time magazine, has made available to him $100 million in loan guarantees? Funny have many 'self-made' people take full advantage of government largesse before they switch parties.

Dear Editor:

Texas and the rest of this nation should not forget the great state of California in November. They have sent us Herbert Hoover, Richard Nixon and now a 69 year old ex-actor named Ronald Reagan, who's doctor says if he becomes senile he will step down, can't you just see him or any old codger admitting this.

The way I see it, we should consider ourselves lucky to get Jimmy Carter for four more years.

Dear Editor:

Although I no longer live in Big Spring, I feel that having lived there for 19 years gives me the right to respond to Mrs. Scott's letter, published Aug. 25, concerning the Willie Nelson concert.

Mrs. Scott states that from "10,000 to 15,000 people are expected to attend. Does this not show that the youth (and others) in the Big Spring area desperately need some entertainment? Driving up and down Gregg street eventually gets extremely boring, not to mention hazardous, and since all parking lots are off limits, ask yourself if you hadn't rather see your children in an open stadium than in a parked car on a dark street.

As for the "drinking, pot smoking, etc." that will be going on, it seems logical that fever people will indulge in this kind of activity in the open stadium than when together with friends on a boring Saturday night.

Another aspect of Mrs. Scott's letter is the "damage to our football stadium." Just how do you go about damaging a stadium? If it has lasted through this many football seasons, packed with fans, bands, unleashed children and other spectators, it should survive one concert.

I will not go into the referral of "detrimental effect" of the concert itself, or the "questionable values" of Willie Nelson, since each has his own opinion. However, I am an avid fan of many of the concerts produced at Midland's Chaparral Center. Their concerts are usually well mannered affairs, no matter how "rock" or "country" the music, or how excited the fans, all without hundreds of police and security.

In closing, let me urge your entire city to stop raising a simple concert to hysterical proportion. With as much money as was spent of the Howard College Coliseum, booking a few concerts would only benefit the community, not to mention giving the kids some reasonable entertainment.

Dear Editor:

As Big Spring gets invaded by the so-called moral derelict, Willie Nelson, a great number of moral upright citizens have complained about the moral upbringing of their offspring.

As the night approaches, where were these fine people when an athiest named Marilyn O'Hair destroyed the moral upbringing of their children in school?

We have demonstrated for homosexuality and Equal Rights Amendment, an offspring of the aforementioned subject, but we have had no demonstrations for God.

Don't blame one person for your shortsightedness and inaction. You will reap what you sow.

The shortcomings of one's raising of our children belong not to society but to parents and their belief in the Almight, that, only that and nothing else.

Dear Editor:

The election of state judges is an anachronism and it is high time that it should be replaced with merit system.

A former Texas Supreme Court judge, Arthur V. McCall, very aptly remarked: "the average person does not know the difference between a justice of the peace and a court of civil appeals justice." It is difficult for a layman to judge the qualifications of rival candidates. Usually they depend upon the editorials of newspapers and their reporters.

In 1940, the State of Missouri introduced a scheme for the selection of state judges by merit which has since been adopted in different forms by some states.

The writer would advocate that the recruitment to the state judiciary should be by merit and merit alone. Every time recruitment is made to the state judiciary, the Governor should appoint a commission consisting of nine or 11 well known jurists in the state, or even outside, to interview applicants and select the best. The commission, after interviewing the applicants, will select two or three against each vacancy and send the names with qualifications to the Governor who will choose one irrespective of party.

How is recruitment to the state judiciary made? After graduation in law, the state should expect a candidate to have 15 or 20 years' practice at the bar and to be in possession of good health. At what age he should retire? At the age of 70. It must be made clear that the government will have the right to remove unfit or unworthy judges.

Take my house

Art Buchwald

LOS ANGELES — Everyone knows that Californians are different from the rest of us. They were the pioneers of pyramid games, they invented the candlelight dinner and hot tubs, and they were the first to put Gucci shoes on their roller skates.

Californians are into something new now. It's called "real estate." It isn't who you are or who you know that counts anymore. It's how much you're asking for your house.

I didn't realize how much real estate values mattered in people's lives out here until a very nice lady took me to a lunch in the Malibu colony at $2 million shack which resembled the stockade in "The Bridge on the River Kwai."

THE GUESTS WERE all gathered around the small swimming pool and my hostess introduced me to the people. "This is Ted and Jane, who are asking $950,000 for their villa in Ventura; Bob and Alice, whose English Tudor is now on the market for $1 million five; Don and Phyllis, who turned down $2 million one for their Spanish hacienda in Brentwood; and Mildred, who just split with Sam and is showing her $850,000 redwood contemporary by appointment only."

They seemed like really nice people.

The hostess apologized because lunch was late. "We're still waiting on Henry and Roz, who have just listed their Tarzana colonial for $2 million six, and Allen and Marjorie, who won't take less than $1 million seven for their place in Laurel Canyon."

"They're worth waiting for," I said.

Most of the people were in the movie and television business so I expected some hot gossip about the stars which I could take back East with me. But it was not to be.

The table conversation went like this. "Rhonda left Johnny's fabulous $2 million panoramic hillside retreat with four bathrooms and an indoor jacuzzi and moved in with Herb in his $60,000 condominium with a wet bar on Wilshire Blvd."

"What a fool. Rhonda is always trading down."

"When Rhonda falls in love you can't talk any real estate sense into her at all."

"SOMEONE TOLD me the Saudi Arabians are moving into Culver City."

"I can't believe it. They haven't gobbled up Bel Air yet."

"Do you know the mobile home on the highway near Trancas?"

"You mean the one that was set up after the waves washed away the seven-figure Cape Cod on the dunes?"

"The mobile went for $1 million six."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I seek to share my faith with other people as much as possible, and yet I seem to have very little success in my witness. What do you think the problem might be? — T.O.S.

DEAR T.O.S.: I am thankful for your commitment to Christ, and for your sincere desire to share your faith with others. The Bible tells us that we are all to be witnesses for Christ, and we must never lose sight of that central responsibility. Jesus said, "As the Father has sent me, I am sending you" (John 20:21.) He also commanded, "Go and make disciples of all nations" (Matthew 28:19).

I do not know what problems you may be encountering with your own attempts to share your faith. But let me ask three questions for you to consider. First, do you have a clear understanding of the Gospel? Remember that many people today do not know very much about Jesus Christ and the Christian faith. You may take for granted that they understand certain terms that you use, or that they know what you are talking about when you refer to Christ and his salvation from sin. But that is not necessarily the case. Learn what the Gospel is in its simplest terms, and then learn to explain it to others in simple terms. Study your Bible carefully; perhaps other Christians can help you also.

Second, are you sharing the Gospel with others in a loving and sensitive way? Sometimes in our zeal to share the Gospel we forget to listen to people as they share their hurts and problems with us, and we do not really show the love of Christ to them. Look through the Gospels, for example, and see how Jesus approaches different people. He used many approaches, but his ministry was always marked by love and sensitivity.

Will humans listen?

Computers ready to talk

DALLAS (AP) — Man and machine now have a new way to communicate: by talking to each other.

Texas Instruments, Inc., has reproduced the human vocal tract on a tiny chip of silicon and now is offering the technology to manufacturers.

Soon, TI officials believe, everything from washing machines to automobiles will be talking to their owners.

"It gives us the ability to have a machine or box talk to a person," said Dr. Bernard List, who will head TI's new speech technology centers in Midland as corporate speech strategy manager.

"It's the same type of breakthrough that the cathode ray tube was to television. That was a visual man-machine interface. This is an auditory man-machine interface."

TI president J. Fred Bucy, claiming the "electronic revolution is here," announced the available technology at a stockholders meeting.

TI expects speech technology to be the next major growth area, with a $3 billion industry worldwide predicted by the late 1980s. In 1979, the entire semiconductor market reached $10 billion.

To support growth of the market, TI plans to open Regional Technology Centers at "strategic locations" across the country. Centers in Chicago and Boston already are open.

TI employees at the centers will help customers develop vocabulary lists and quality speech for their products. Environmental factors, word and phrase choices and the type of voice best suited to the product and the audience will be considered.

Vocal passages will be recorded at Dallas, then translated into digital language. TI says the system will preserve the character of each speaker's voice, including intonation, accent, dialect and pitch.

The system compresses and reconstructs speech on two chips smaller than a button. Sound effects and music composition are possible, as are new words that never have been spoken.

In addition, TI is creating a new speech organization within the Semiconductor Group.

The two new semiconductor plants at Midland will produce the tiny solid state speech synthesis chips, which will be available for $13 per 100 words when purchased in quantity.

TI officials believe games and toys will be the first products available with the speech technology, since their design is relatively simple and their production time short.

TI already has created a Speak & Spell learning aid, a talking language translator, and peripheral speech equipment for its home computers and microprocessors.

List said research is continuing in voice authentication, "where a single individual voice can be used much like a fingerprint to determine that he is the person he is supposed to be."

The voice authentication also could lead to banking or shopping by telephone, he said.

Speech also could be used as a replacement for telephone busy signals, he added.

And "with some speech chips, you can make your phone put in words and phrases such that if you're not there, you can communicate that you are not there," or vary the response depending on the caller, he said.

The telephone also could team up with home appliances, he said. One could call home and tell the microwave oven to begin cooking at a certain time, for example.

Talking dryers, alarm clocks and other appliances could replace today's buzzers and bells.

List said the greatest opportunity for the speech technology will be in education.

"Our first two products are primarily educational learning devices," he said. "We believe that the success of Speak & Spell gives a child motivation because the product talks and opens communication between the child and that box. For the first time, the child has a box that talks to it."

The learning aids provide individual attention, while in most classrooms, the child only gets a certain percent of the time with the teacher, he added.

He said the language translator can "show the word visually and then pronounce it. And you can cause it to say something like, 'How much are shoes?'"

TI's new learning aids include Speak & Math, Speak & Read and Math Marvel.

Speech also could aid military and industrial training, he said.

Another industrial use would be a spoken alert to persons who must keep their eyes elsewhere, like on a microscope.

As for entertainment, List said, "Speech is going to add another dimension to video games and so on."

Uses in transportation would be primarily in "crisis situations," List said.

"The (Detroit) management is convinced by a car that says your oil temperature is high, you're out of water or gas," he said. "The message could be, 'Your engine temperature is too hot. You may drive three more minutes.'

"Or it could give you diagnostics that say you should replace your spark plugs ... It's like having a mechanic under the hood."

List said the possibilities for uses of the speech technology are limitless.

"It's up to the creativity of the designers," he said.

TI spokesman Jim Muller said the new technology may conjure up visions of the talking computer Hal in the movie, "2001: A Space Odyssey." But he brushed aside such concerns, saying Hal was "a human mistake in programming."

Besides, Muller said, "computers still can't think creatively. Only people can do that."

Fiber Glass Systems, Inc. lists semi-annual dividend

Fiber Glass Systems, Inc. is proud to announce its semi-annual dividend for the first half of the company's 1981 fiscal year.

This dividend is the twelfth paid by the company and is based on 80 cents per share to shareholders of record Aug. 1, 1980. This dividend totals $123,402.00 and brings the company's total dividend distributions to $770,713.00.

"We are also pleased to announce the construction of the new facilities in San Antonio are on schedule," H.F. Michael, president, said. "The pipe production machines for the first two lines; which have been fabricated here in Big Spring, will be shipped to San Antonio Tuesday. We expect to have production from these two lines by mid-October 1980 with total completion of the plant by the second quarter of 1981."

"The completion of this new plant will more than double the production and sales capacity of the company, and we are now looking at other expansion projects to continue our growth and development through the second half of 1981," he added.

Lackland airmen dodge bullets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — One 18-year-old and three juveniles were arrested for disorderly conduct with a firearm in an incident in which a squadron of 20 trainees at Lackland Air Force Base had to hit the dirt to escape live ammunition whizzing by.

No one was injured, but San Antonio Police and a helicopter were sent to the scene and arrested the four youths who were target practicing near the base with a .22-caliber rifle about 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

Police said the four youths were shooting at a target hanging on a chain-link fence behind a house on the perimeter of the base.

"As far as we can tell, the kids were shooting a .22-caliber rifle at the target and weren't shooting at the trainees," said Police Sgt. James Calvert. "But when they shot at the target, the shells went through the target area and about 150 yards out onto the base."

Some of the bullets struck 5 to 10 yards from the marching security police trainees and the 20 fell to the ground, he said.

"Some of them tried to hide behind weeds in the field," said base spokesman Joe McAnally. "None of them was armed. They didn't know who was shooting at them. They were moving across an open field at the time."

The police helicopter spotted the youths and directed officers on the ground to the scene.

Gary Mercado, 18, was arraigned before Night Magistrate Quon Lew and jailed in lieu of $500 bond early today. The three juveniles were facing action by juvenile authorities.

Ma Bell wants more money

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Southwestern Bell's recent rate request could increase the state's intrastate long-distance telephone bill by 140 percent, a state official estimates.

George Rutherford, chief of communications for the State Purchasing and General Services Commission, based his estimate on the June billing for the state's "TexAn" long-distance system and Bell's rate request. TexAn enables state agencies to dial direct at a bulk rate.

Bell filed a request with the Texas Public Utility Commission in July for a $326 million increase. If the request is approved, the monthly bill for TexAn — based on the June bill — would increase from $540,000 to $1.33 million.

After hearing Rutherford's estimate, the commission's three-member board voted unanimously to make the commission a party in the Utility Commission's Sept. 15 hearing on Bell's rate request.

Zaragoza dedication

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements and the governor of Puebla, Mexico, Dr. Alfredo Toxqui Fernandez de Lara, will dedicate a monument honoring Mexican Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza at Goliad (Texas) State Park on Sept. 13.

Dedication of the 10-foot, 3,000-pound bronze statue will follow de Lara's official visit to Austin on Sept. 12. The statue is a gift from the Mexican governor.

Zaragoza was born at Goliad in 1829 and is best known as the hero of the battle of Puebla, where he defeated French forces in May 1862. Zaragoza died of typhoid fever in September 1862 at the age of 33.

Clements clouts 'bleeding hearts'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has told electric utility executives he is not concerned about "bleeding hearts" who oppose his proposed wiretap program.

Clements said Friday Texans are "sick to death of the drug traffic," and he added, "Bleeding hearts that talk to me about invasion of privacy don't really impress me."

In a speech to the Electric Reliability Council of Texas, the governor predicted the 1981 Legislature would adopt his wiretap proposal.

He said he is not worried about invading the privacy of drug pushers, that he just wants to "lock them up" and stop the $3 billion-a-year drug traffic in Texas.

Jaworski criticizes president

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — President Carter should have issued a public statement saying his brother was representing the governmente of Libya, former Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski said Saturday.

"Regardless of whether any laws were violated in the process, moral and ethical principles may well have been circumvented" in Carter's handling of the affair, the Houston lawyer said in a speech at Abilene Christian College.

Jaworski used the Libyan matter as an example of "questionable morality in government," saying Carter should have expressed a desire to avoid any misunderstanding or any intimation that special privileges were expected.

"Such a public pronouncement was not only indicated, it was essential, because of the involvement of a nation rightfully suspect in the minds of Americans," Jaworski said.

"No one knew better than the president that his brother Billy, expert though he may have been as a peanuts raiser and gasoline seller, had no expertise in industrial, technological or governmental affairs," Jaworski said.

"He had nothing to offer to Libya except a willingness to misuse his relationship to the president of the United States."

Used properly and ethically, Jaworski said, Billy Carter's kinship to the president had no value to Libya.

"For many months, ever since Billy Carter was consorting publicly with the Libyans and boasting of his friendship with their leaders, Jaworski said."

"But the president did nothing officially, nothing to contain this potential danger of impropriety," he said.

Youth training funds measure splits Texans

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how the Texas delegation voted the week ending August 28:

YOUTH ACT OF 1980:

By a vote of 337 to 51, the House Tuesday passed the Youth Act of 1980, authorizing $3.7 billion for youth training and employment programs.

The measure provides jobs and job training for unemployed youths, consolidates existing programs, and creates new programs for special training for disadvantaged and minority youngsters.

The Youth Act, the administration's major policy initiative this year, now goes to the Senate for consideration.

VOTING FOR THE YOUTH ACT: Reps. Hall, Pickle, de la Garza, White, Kazen.

VOTING AGAINST THE YOUTH ACT: Reps. Gramm, Lerath, Hightower, Wyatt, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler.

NOT VOTING: Reps. Wilson, Roberts.

BILINGUAL EDUCATION:

If the House has its way, the Department of Education may not require schools to provide bilingual instruction for youngsters poor in English.

By a vote of 213 to 194, the House Wednesday passed an amendment to the Labor-Education-Health and Human Services appropriations bill prohibiting the use of appropriated funds to enforce regulations requiring education agencies to "address the educational needs" of students for whom English is a second language.

VOTING FOR THE AMENDMENT: Reps. Hall, Wilson, Gramm, Leath, Stenholm, Loeffler.

VOTING AGAINST THE AMENDMENT: Reps. Roberts, Pickle, Hightower, Wyatt, de la Garza, White, House, Kazen.

HAIRLESS BROTHERS — The brothers Yang Tianzhao, 26, right, and Yang Tianshun, 21, are shown recently in a village of China's Yunnan Province. The two men, totally hairless, are currently undergoing tests at China's Kunming Medical College to find the cause of their baldness. The parents and sisters of the two young men have normal hair growth.

Man charged with rape, strangulation

CONROE, Texas (AP) — A high school custodian was charged with capital murder Friday afternoon in connection with the rape and strangulation of a 16-year-old girl last week, officials said.

Clarence Lee Brandley, 29, held without bond at Conroe city jail, was arrested about 4 p.m. Friday on the school campus, said Justice of the Peace James W. Dinkins.

Cheryl Dee Fergeson's nude body was found Aug. 23 beneath a plywood board in the rear of the high school auditorium by another custodian after an intensive search of the building when the girl did not return to play in a scheduled vollyball tournament, police said.

The Bellville girl had gone off to find a restroom when she arrived at the school shortly after 9 a.m. Her body was discovered around 11 a.m., police said.

Dinkins said the case was filed as a capital murder because rape was involved.

Freeway sniper kills motorist

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Police were searching Saturday for a sniper who killed a city shop foreman as he drove home from work on a busy freeway Friday afternoon.

Donald Messenger, 32, of Watauga, was struck once in the shoulder and once in the abdomen by shots fired through the right side of his pickup, said police Sgt. L.C. Henderson.

He said investigators have no clues or suspects.

"The way the shots were fired leads us to believe the sniper was stationary," Henderson said.

CDC reports hike in deaths from rare swimmers disease

ATLANTA (AP) — The number of deaths from a rare disease associated with fresh-water swimming increased sharply in the United States this summer, national health officials said today.

Seven cases of primary amebic meningoencephalitis, or PAM, were documented in four states and Puerto Rico, while an eighth case was suspected but not confirmed, the Center for Disease Control reported. Four of the cases were traced to lakes in Florida.

The eight cases represented the highest number reported in one year since the disease was identified in 1965, the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report. The previous record was five cases in 1978. Prior to that, the highest number in a year was three.

PAM is almost always fatal, but is so rare there is little cause for worry, said Dr. Bruce Weniger of the CDC's parasitic diseases division.

"We can't say how many people have gone swimming in fresh waters this year, but common sense tells you it's a vast number," he said. "Only these eight individuals were affected out of countless millions."

Weniger said the chance of contracting the disease is less than one in 2.5 million exposures.

PAM, which affects primarily children and young adults, destroys brain tissue and causes swelling of the brain, Weniger said. Its initial symptoms include headache, fever and a stiff neck, and some patients also suffer vomiting, confusion and delirium.

Weniger said PAM usually is caused by an organsim that enters the brain through a nerve in the nose. The organism "can be found in just about any lake," he said.

Since the disease was identified in 1965, only one person in the United States has survived PAM, the CDC report said. Weniger attributed that patient's survival to "a combination of early diagnosis, very aggressive medical treatment and a lot of luck."

The sharp increase in the number of PAM deaths this summer probably was due to the unusually hot weather, which prompted more people to go swimming and encouraged the growth of the PAM organism in lakes and streams, according to Weniger.

Nixon target of gunman in Wallace shooting

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The man convicted of shooting presidential candidate George C. Wallace also trailed then-President Richard Nixon and wanted to assassinate him, according to a recently discovered section of diary allegedly written by Arthur Herman Bremer.

Construction worker Sherman R. Griffin found the 148-page diary under a Milwaukee viaduct on Tuesday. It was wrapped in aluminum foil and stashed in a plastic briefcase circled with plastic adhesive tape. Griffin's lawyer, Jack McManus, announced the find Thursday.

A signature alleged to be Bremer's appears on page 56, McManus said.

Above the signature was written, "Life has been only an enemy to me. I shall destroy my enemy when I destroy myself. But I want to take a part of this society that made me with me. I choose to take Richard M. Nixon."

Bremer, a Milwaukee busboy, was convicted of shooting Wallace during a campaign apearance in Laurel, Md., on May 15, 1972. The attack left the former Alabama governor crippled.

Bremer, serving a 63-year sentence at the Maryland Correctional Institution in Hagerstown, Md., declined to be interviewed Thursday, prison officials said. He becomes eligible for parole in 1982.

A 113-page portion of Bremer's diary, found in his car, has been copyright by him and published. The discovered pages predate the published diary, spanning March 2, 1972, to April 3, 1972, McManus said.

The diary puts its author in several places Nixon, then running for re-election, appeared in the 1972 presidential campaign and records frustration at being unable to get near the candidate, McManus said.

Body found, bond denied for suspect

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — A peace justice denied bond Saturday for an auto mechanic accused in the abduction-slaying of a teenage runaway from Fort Worth.

David Allen Gardner, 25, was arraigned on capital murder charges before Justice of the Peace Roy Glen Densmore.

Gardner was arrested Friday because, authorities said, his car matched a description given by the victim's wounded companion.

Rocky Crecy, 14, says he and 15-year-old Kandi Kae Reynolds were picked up Tuesday while hitchhiking.

Crecy, who remained hospitalized Saturday for treatment of four stab wounds, said the motorist attacked him and dumped him out of the car after Crecy tried to protect Miss Reynolds from the man's advances.

After being arrested, Gardner accompanied Parker County Sheriff Billy Cain and other searchers to a clump of trees near Lake Weatherford, where they found Miss Reynolds' body.

Cain said the girl's body was fully clothed in blue jeans and a shirt.

The teenagers had run away together last weekend. But the victim's mother, Carolyn Bouldin, said Kandi had called from Waco Monday to say they were coming home.

Tuesday night, Crecy staggered to a rural Parker County farmhouse, saying he had been stabbed and thrown from a car on Farm to Market Road 5 near Anneta.

"I just hope that if there are any kids out there who think they can take off for three or four days and everything will be just fine, that nothing will happen, I hope they look at this and think about staying home," he said.

'Fun' exercise class for men starts Sept. 15

On Monday, Sept. 15, at 12:10 p.m., the Big Spring YMCA will begin a new exercise class for men. The classes will be held Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays for 30 minutes.

According to Bob Cappel, executive director, and leader of the class, "The exercises that will be performed during the class will touch every muscle group in the body. The routine used will be the same every exercise period and to the same music."

Cappel said, "The objective behind a program of this type is to allow the participant to memorize the routine, so if they miss or wish to exercise on the off-days, they'll know what to do. The exercises are done to John Phillip Sousa Band Music. This takes some of the boredom out of doing the exercises."

"Having fun while not noticing the boredom or pain sometimes associated with exercising," Cappel said, "is one of the main factors why men take part in these classes. While serving as a physical director for 9 years, over 250 men took part in the same structure class that will be offered by the YMCA.

"The ladies enjoy exercising at the YMCA because they do it with other ladies and it's set to music, referring to the aerobic dance classes. Now the men of our community can reap the same benefits from this type of exercise program. There will be no fee for the classes, but will require a physical membership."

Cappel said, "I encourage anyone who has been sedimentary and is above 35 years old, to have a fitness evaluation from the Physical Director Jerry Zambrano."

'School prayer bill' chances still slim

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Some observers on Capitol Hill doubt the controversial bill that would bring God back into the school classroom has a chance this year.

But supporters of the legislation are working furiously to get enough signatures to bring the measure — the so-called "school prayer bill" — to the House floor for action before Congress adjourns Oct. 4.

Since the Supreme Court outlawed public school-sponsored religious activities in 1962, there have been a number of amendments and bills sponsored to allow public school prayer.

Earlier this year, a bill sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., passed the Senate. Those supporting the Helms bill say it would provide for voluntary prayer and therefore not be subject to the Supreme Court's ban.

A similar bill was introduced in the House but was sent to the House Judiciary Committee, where chairman Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., has had a big hand in squashing its progress.

"Rodino is opposed to any school prayer amendment like this so he has just buried it," says Randy Rader, an aide to Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill.

Paul Wattles, who works for Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., agrees that "it (the bill) passed the Senate but it will never get out of the House."

Crane, a former Republican Presidential contender, has taken what his aides see as the only step possible to get the legislation to the floor of the House.

He has convinced 178 fellow representatives to sign a petition demanding the bill's discharge from the committee. Under House procedure, 218 signatures are needed to do that.

"It's virtually impossible to beat the legislative clock," Rader, the Crane aide, adds.

Crane or staff members on the House Judiciary Committee won't release the names of congressmen who've signed the discharge petition. However, non-denominational organization called the Religious Roundtable has polled each member of Congress on the prayer bill.

According to the group, 11 members of the Texas delegations have signed the petition and several more have indicated they plan to sign it.

Kim Knight, a spokesman for Crane, says at least 30 other House members have said they would like to sign the petition "so we haven't lost faith. Sure, the bill is pretty much sitting in committee but we're still trying to get the signatures."

The push for the school prayer bill has coincided with the rise of the new, conservative evangelical movement throughout the country.

Newly organized groups such as the Moral Majority, founded as a political organization for evangelist Jerry Falwell, and the Christian voice, a Washington-based born-again Christian lobby, are pushing for the prayer bill.

Moral Majority, with chapters in 46 states, has begun sending newsletters to its members about the bill and plans to publicize the names of congressmen who don't support school prayer. Christian Voice, founded about a year ago, has a similar plan and is in the midst of a multi-million fund raising campaign to help finance it.

But some mainline religious groups oppose the Helms initiative because they feel it would violate the principle of separation of church and state.

"We're strongly opposed to it (the prayer bill) by all means," says John Baker, counsel for the Baptist Joint Committee of Public Affairs, which represents eight major black and white denominations including the 13.5 million member Southern Baptist Convention.

"There's no doubt in our mind that what this does is return this country to government mandated prayers. Those supporters don't consider that it might be a Mormon prayer in Utah or a Buddhist prayer in Hawaii or a Catholic prayer in Chicago or Baltimore. Government has no business in the business of prayer."

Bergland tours New York state

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland is on a swing through New York state and is plugging away at how important China and Taiwan are as customers of American farmers.

At Syracuse, N.Y., Wednesday night, for example, Bergland said exports to both nations "have increased sharply since the normalization of relations with China."

In comments released by his office here, Bergland told a farm audience that in the year following establishment of U.S.-China diplomatic relations on Jan. 1, 1979, exports to Taiwan climbed by $250 million to $1.1 billion and this year are expected to exceed $1 billion again.

Sales to China, he said, will approach $2 billion, rising from "virtually nothing" in 1976.

FARM FORUM

By RONNIE WOOD

One hundred sixteen billion, four hundred eighty-four million, three hundred thousand, six hundred . . . or putting it all together numerically 116,484,300,600. That's the number of sandwiches (standard slicing, one-pound loaves) which could be made from the food stocks DONATED by the United States during the past year to countries designated by the World Food Conference as MSA (Most Seriously Affected). Enough for a pretty impressive picnic. Also a good example of the importance of American production to world food supply. Donations to the MSA, although impressive in terms of sandwich counting, are only a small part of the total exports of American grain crops since over twenty-five times as much grain as that given away was sold on the world market. Now to figure out the importance of world trade use your own calculator . . . this one doesn't go that high.

SEES COMPUTERS IN HER FUTURE — National Astrological Society director Barbara Somerfield of New York states at a Saturday interview during the society's national conference in Danvers, Mass. that the computer revolution has just started for her members and "soon we'll be in the middle of it." The computers are used to speed calculations and show that astrology is emerging from the crystal ball age.

Street parking is restricted

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Street parking in a 16-block area north of the Capitol will be restricted to two-hour zones in an effort to provide more parking for persons conducting business in state office buildings.

The State Purchasing and General Services Commission approved the change Friday. Homer Forester, commission director, said it would be at least three weeks before the parking signs are changed.

Electrification of trains on coal routes drawing look

(Special to The Herald)

ST. PAUL, Minn. — America's freight railroads, which already use only a small percentage of the petroleum consumed by U.S. transportation modes, could cut that percentage even more in the future — yet continue to do the vital job they do now.

How? By electrification of high traffic density segments of their systems, using power generated by the nation's virtually inexhaustible supply of coal.

"Coal is America's energy ace-in-the-hole, and railroads and their potential for electrification can be regarded as something of a national transportation insurance policy," notes Thomas J. Lamphier, president of the Transportation Division of Burlington Northern, the nation's longest railroad and leading single carrier of coal. "We are fortunate that — of all transportation modes — railroads can be electrified readily. Moreover, coal can be used directly for power generation, whereas it would have to be converted into oil and gas for use by trucks and barges — and conversion is as yet a relatively uncertain and uneconomic process."

Railroads consume only about three percent of petroleum used by U.S. transportation, but handle more than 36 percent of the nation's intercity freight traffic.

But tightening supplies of diesel fuel and sharp increases in its cost are prompting BN and some other railroads to look anew at the possibility of electrifying some lines. For BN, the move would probably involve its main coal train routes, Lamphier said. The railroad carried about 80 million tons of low sulfur coal from western mines to electric power plants last year and expects to haul about 96 million tons in 1980.

At one time, electrified train service was rather extensive in this country.

"In the half century following the first electrified train service in the 1890s, 20 railroads had electrified more than 6,000 miles of line," Lamphier said. "But the diesel engine brought all the advantages of the electric locomotive without the maintenance worries of electrified track, and the fuel was very cheap. So, electrification passed into railroad history, for the most part; today, only about 1,200 miles of railroad are electrified."

That is the smallest percentage of electrified railroad of any major industrialized country, representing only about one half of one percent of U.S. rail mileage. In contrast, electrification is extensive in Europe, Lamphier said. Switzerland has the highest percentage, with 99 percent of its rail system electrified, and the Soviet Union has the most miles of electrified track, about 18,000. France is building a line for a train that will run at almost 200 miles per hour from Paris to Lyon, with the electricity for it coming from nuclear power plants.

BN first looked at electrification several years ago. The cost of it was high then and is higher now because of inflation — "the gross investment would be about $780 million for 740 miles of line," Lampher said. But, he added, "we are examining electrification because fuel prices have reached the level at which electrification would present an attractive return on investment."

FORCED AT TWO — Houston Astros' Joe Morgan is forced at second base by Chicago Cubs' Ivan DeJesus during third inning action Saturday in Chicago.

Brett gets 3 hits but Texas wins

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Mickey Rivers drove in two runs with a two-out single in the top of the 11th inning to lift the Texas Rangers to a 7-5 victory over the error-plagued Kansas City Royals Saturday.

"I'm just trying to be a little more relaxed and play ball like I know I can play," said Rivers after his bouncer up the middle scored Dave Roberts and Jim Sundberg, who had reached base on errors.

The Texas center fielder extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a first-inning single and kept his average at .327 with the game-winning hit.

"You like to see him up there in a situation like that because you know that if he hits a chopper he's got a chance to beat it out," said Texas Manager Pat Corrales, whose team scored five unearned runs on four Kansas City errors.

Roberts opened the 11th by reaching base when first baseman Pete LaCock dropped a throw from shortstop U.L. Washington. Then catcher Darrell Porter fielded Sundberg's sacrifice bunt and threw wildly past first to put runners on second and third.

Reliever Dan Quisenberry, 10-5, got the next two batters on ground balls before Rivers singled to hand him his first loss in over two months.

"Today was a day we amde the mistakes, when we gave them most of their runs," said Kansas City Manager Jim Frey. "The pitching was good, our defense wasn't."

Texas reliever John Henry Johnson, 2-2, who struck out five in 22-3 innings, picked up the victory.

Amos Otis slammed a two-run single in the bottom of the ninth inning to tie the game 5-5 after a walk to U.L. Washington and Hal McRae's ground-rule double. Otis also turned in the game's top defensive play when he fielded Pat Putnam's two-out single in the 10th and nailed pinch-runner Doc Medich at the plate.

Kansas City's George Brett had three singles in six at-bats to boost his major league-leading average to .406.

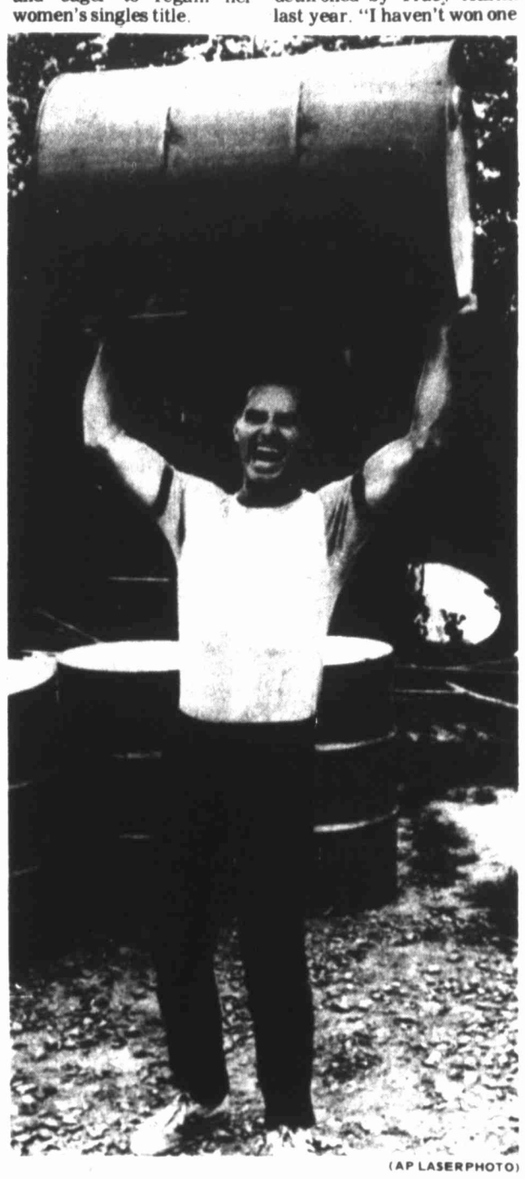

John Ellis gave Texas a 3-0 lead in the first inning with his first homer of the season. The shot off Larry Gura followed a single by Rivers and an error by shortstop Washington.

In U.S. Open

Chris Lloyd confident

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert Lloyd routed Wendy White 6-1, 6-1 for her third straight-set victory at the U.S. Open tennis championships Saturday and pronounced herself ready and eager to regain her women's singles title.

"I feel motivated because it would be something special to prove I can win this tournament again," said the 25-year-old Lloyd, who took the Open crown four years in a row before being dethroned by Tracy Austin last year. "I haven't won one of the majors, Wimbledon or the Open, for two years now."

(AP LASERPHOTO)

TRAINING TO THE BEAT OF A DIFFERENT CAMP — Joe Don Looney lifts an oil drum in South Fallsburg, N.Y. recently. Looney, the former gridiron misfit, is now a follower of the Swami Muktananada. He says he is much happier as a monk than he was as a running back.

Austin, meanwhile, fell behind 4-1 in the first set but won the next six games and struggled to beat Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-4, 6-4, advancing to the fourth round. Like Lloyd, the 17-year-old Austin has yet to lose a set in this tournament.

Bjorn Borg of Sweden, the No.1 seed in the men's draw, was scheduled to play Australia's Peter McNamara in a night match.

For the second straight day, the afternoon session at the National Tennis Center was a sellout, drawing a paid crowd of 17,875 and a total of 20,049. Attendance for each of the first five days has been better than last year.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, the 1977 Open champion and No.4 seed, dropped the first two sets but then rallied to defeat Francisco Gonzalez of Puerto Rico 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

The hard-hitting Gonzalez, who upset Jimmy Connors in the semifinals of the ATP Championships in Cincinnati earlier this month, stayed on the attack throughout the match, taking advantage of these cement courts which do not suit Vilas' patient, baseline game.

But the Argentinian finally got untracked in the third set and began scoring effectively with strong returns and passing shots, eventually wearing down Gonzalez.

Lloyd, who is seeded third behind Austin and Martina Navratilova, has lost a total of just six games in advancing to the round of 16 and was far too strong for White, a 19-year-old from Rollins College who is rated 28th in the world.

"She was really moving me around," observed White. "She kept me deep and never gave me a chance to attack. I think she's playing very well, very tough."

That toughness, says Lloyd, is coming from a different source than in the past.

"Last year there was outside pressure on me to win my fifth Open," she explained. "This year I'm putting more pressure on myself from inside, because that's the only way I can motivate myself. Now that the pressure is off me, I have a tendency to relax too much — and that's dangerous for me. I have to go out there and be fiery to be at my best."

Like Lloyd, sixth-seeded Dianne Fromholtz also had an easy time moving into the fourth round, beating fellow Australian Susan Leo 6-0, 6-2. Virginia Ruzici of Romania, rated No.10, outlasted Pam Teeguarden 6-2, 2-6, 6-3 and Pam Shriver, No 13, topped Bettina Bunge 6-3, 6-3.

Buckeyes favored in poll

By the Associated Press

The Ohio State Buckeyes are the preseason choice in The Associated Press poll to end Alabama's two-year reign as college football's national champions.

In nationwide balloting by sports writers and broadcasters, the Buckeyes, who finished fourth in the final 1979 poll behind Alabama, Southern California and Oklahoma, received 36 of 65 first-place votes and 1,253 of a possible 1,300 points.

This time, Ohio State led the pack, trailed by Alabama, Pittsburgh, Southern Cal and Oklahoma.

"I don't know what to say. I hope we can live up to it," was the reaction from Coach Earle Bruce, in his second season at Ohio State. "I'm pleased to be No.1 now, but the big thing is to be No.1 at the end of the season when it really counts.

"I don't know who knows who No.1 is. There are a lot of good teams like Alabama, Pitt, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Texas ... and I better mention Michigan and Purdue since they're in our conference.

"But it's not cut and dried; we've got to go out and work for it. I hope we're picked No.1 a lot while I'm here. If we're not up there, we've got worries. You're supposed to be No.1 at Ohio State, I think."

Actually, Ohio State edged into first place ahead of Alabama in the final regular-season poll of 1979 with an 11-0 record but the Buckeyes were beaten 17-16 by Southern Cal in the Rose Bowl.

Alabama, which has a chance to win an unprecedented third consecutive national championship, received 24 first-place votes and 1,217 points in the preseason balloting. The Crimson Tide owns the nation's longest winning streak at 21 games.

Astros win another

Ruhle, Puhl shine

CHICAGO (AP) — Right-hander Vern Ruhle yielded just five hits and Terry Puhl drove in both runs as the Houston Astros blanked the Chicago Cubs 2-0 Saturday.

Ruhle, 8-3, struck out four and walked two in pitching his first shutout of the season. Ruhle had to work his way out of jams in the third, fifth and seventh innings.

The victory gave Houston all 11 games in the meetings between the teams this season and 13 straight, extending back to last season.

The Astros got their first run in the third as Ruhle led off with a double. Joe Morgan followed with a single and, after Chicago starter Lynn McGlothen, 9-10, struck out Enos Cabell, Puhl hit a grounder to first, allowing Ruhle to score.

Houston added an insurance run in the ninth. Consecutive one-out errors by first baseman Dave Kingman and shortstop Ivan DeJesus on routine grounders by Morgan and Cabell put runners at first and third. Puhl made it 2-0 with a sacrifice fly.

The Cubs threatened in the bottom of the inning on consecutive singles by Tim Blackwell and Steve Dillard, but Ruhle got McGlothen, DeJesus and Lenny Randle on fly outs.

In the fifth, Chicago loaded the bases with one out on consecutive walks to Scot Thompson and Blackwell and a single by McGlothen, but Ruhle then got DeJesus and Randle to pop out.

After striking out Blackwell starting the seventh, Ruhle gave up a single to pinch-hitter Jesus Figueroa and an error by Joe Morgan at second on pinch-hitter Mike Vail's grounder put runners on first and third. However, DeJesus grounded to third baseman Cabell, who threw home to get Figueroa, and Randle flied out.

Randle was hitless in four at bats, ending his 21-game hitting streak.

Steelers rout Dallas Pokes

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Terry Bradshaw, no stranger at bombing the Dallas secondary, rifled one touchdown pass and set up another score Saturday night to carry the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 31-10 National Football League exhibition victory over the previously unbeaten Cowboys.

Bradshaw, who had only played four quarters in the preseason, found the groove in second half against a Dallas team he has twice riddled in the Super Bowl.

After both teams traded field goals for a 3-3 standoff at intermission, Bradshaw completed five passes for 76 yards on a 96-yard scoring drive to put the Steelers in position for running back Russell Davis' five-yard touchdown run.

For Davis, a fourth-round draft pick from Michigan two years ago, it was his first professional touchdown. He missed the 1979 season with a broken arm.

After Mike Wagner intercepted a Danny White pass and returned it 25 yards to the Dallas 24, Bradshaw hit Randy Grossman for the touchdown on the next play.

The Steelers added two other touchdowns in the fourth quarter. Backup quarterback Cliff Stoudt flipped a six-yard touchdown pass to John Stallworth for one and Sidney Thornton ran four yards for the other.

Dallas' first score came in the second quarter on a 35-yard field goal by Rafael Septien, which was negated by a 26-yard field goal by Matt Bahr with five seconds to go in the half.

Dallas finally struck for a touchdown in the closing 80 seconds of the game on a 42-yard touchdown from Glenn Carano to tight end Billy Joe DuPree.

Both the defending NFL champion Steelers and the Cowboys finished the exhibition with 3-1 records.

Cards defeat Bears, 21-13

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Hart completed 15 of 26 passes for 258 yards and one touchdown and set up two touchdowns by Ottis Anderson Saturday night to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 21-13 victory over the Chicago Bears in a National Football League preseason finale.

The triumph gave the Cardinals a 2-2 record in exhibition games while the Bears finished with a 1-3 record including three successive defeats.

Anderson pounded across from the 1-yard line and then the 8-yard line for touchdowns to give the Cardinals a 14-3 halftime lead.

Yanks KO foe, 9-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Aurelio Rodriguez lined a two-run single off the glove of third baseman Dan Meyer to spark a six-run fifth inning and the New York Yankees went on to crush the Seattle Mariners 9-3 Saturday night.

The victory, coupled with Baltimore's loss to California, boosted the Yankees' American League East lead to 2½ games over the Orioles.

Rice triggers winning rally

BOSTON (AP) — Jim Rice triggered a four-run ninth-inning rally with his 17th homer, then led off the 10th with another homer Saturday, as the Boston Red Sox extended their winning streak to six games with a 7-6 victory over the Oakland A's.

Rice led off the ninth with a homer into the bleachers in straight-away center off Oakland starter Matt Keough and then drilled a pitch from reliever Bob Lacey, 2-2, into the same sector. It was the Red Sox' first Saturday afternoon victory at home this season after eight losses.

Reliever Bill Campbell, who replaced Boston starter Dennis Eckersley after a three-run homer by Tony Armas gave Oakland a 6-2 lead in the eighth, checked the A's on one hit for 2-3 innings to pick up his fourth victory without a defeat.

Expos lose to Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dusty Baker sliced a two-out, two-run double to right field in the third inning, and Jay Johnstone singled home the eventual winning run in the seventh, lifting Los Angeles to a 4-3 victory over Montreal Saturday night.

The win was the Dodgers' ninth straight over the Expos and kept them 2½ games behind Houston in the National League West.

Baker's double gave the Dodgers a 3-2 lead, and the Dodgers went ahead 4-2 in the seventh on consecutive singles by Mike Scioscia, Dave Lopes and Johnstone.

The run became decisive when Montreal scored in the eighth. Ron LeFlore, who had three of the Expos seven hits, doubled to lead off the inning, took third on Rodney Scott's long fly to center and came home on an infield out by Roland Office.

Burt Hooton, 12-5, earned his ninth win in 11 decisions with relief help from Don Stanhouse, who recorded his third save. Bill Gullickson, 6-4, took the loss despite striking out eight.

In Little League World Series

Taiwan still in charge

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Shuh-Shin Li pitched a four-hitter and smacked a home run as Taiwan continued its Little League World Series dominance with a 4-3 victory Saturday over a Tampa, Fla., team that battled back after a shaky start.

A heavy thunderstorm delayed the start of the game by more than an hour and threatened the first rainout in the 34-year history of the event. But the skies cleared and Taiwan won its fourth straight title and its ninth in 12 years before a crowd of 20,000, including many Chinese-Americans.

After the rain delay, Republican vice-presidential nominee George Bush threw out the ceremonial first pitch.

Tampa, represented by an All-Star team from that city's Belmont Heights Little League, helped Taiwan score two runs in the first inning by committing three errors. Li also had a single in the inning.

Tampa shortstop Tyrone Griffin connected for a solo home run over the centerfield wall in the bottom of the first.

In the third inning, Li and cleanup hitter Sheng-Dean Chen hit consecutive homers off Tampa pitcher Kirk Walker.

Tampa cut the margin to 4-2 in the fourth. Clayton Wilson doubled, took third on a ground out and scored on an infield single by Walker. In the bottom of the sixth, Gary Sheffield doubled and came home on a pair of ground outs, trimming Taiwan's lead to one run.

But Li struck out Greg Hornsby to end the game and the Taiwan players ran around the field carrying their flag and doffing their caps to the crowd.

Last year, Taiwan needed two extra innings before gaining a 2-1 victory over a team from Campbell, Calif.

In this year's eight-team tournament, Taiwan outscored its first two foes by a combined margin of 29-0. Tampa won its first two games by a combined margin of 36-3.

Lewis, Sutton reach finals

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — A sales representative for his family's steel tubing business and a 22-year-old with intentions of entering his father's oil business will meet Sunday in the finals of the 80th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

Bob Lewis Jr., a former member of the Professional Golf Association tour, captured a berth in the 36-hole finale with a 4-and-2 victory over Pennsylvanian Dick Von Tacky Jr. Saturday.

Moments earlier, 1980 North and South Amateur champion Hal Sutton qualified for the finals with a 3-and-2 triumph over Jim Holtgrieve of Kirkwood, Mo.

Lewis went 1-up with a birdie at the fifth hole, a par 5, 518-yard hole and went two-up with a birdie at the par 3 eighth hole.

But Von Tacky rallied with a birdie at 10 to cut his opponent's margin in half. Lewis came up with a par at the 11th hole, while Von Tacky bogeyed to return Lewis' advantage to 2 up.

Lewis lost the 13th hole, carding a double bogey 5. But birdies at the next three holes built an insurmountable lead for him on the par 72, 7,161-yard layout.

Lewis of Warren, Ohio, said after his match that he developed a blister on his right heel, but that it seemed to have a positive effect on his game.

"It's helping my putting, so I'm not worrying about it," Lewis said.

Lewis said he had never played with Sutton before Sunday's final round, but he said he was not worried about Sutton's past performances, which include three amateur championships in four tries this year.

"It'll be a difficult match," the 35-year-old Lewis said. "If I continue to play like I've been playing, it'll be a good match."

Yields only 11 yards to Lamesa

Steer defense shines

Big Spring's No. One defensive unit looked especially strong in a controlled scrimmage with the Lamesa Tornadoes here Friday evening.

Lamesa piled up 81 yards in gains against the Steers but only 11 of that was against Big Spring's first unit.

Each team scored once but Big Spring's touchdown came against the Lamesa regulars whereas Lamesa's touchdown was driven across when Big Spring's second unit was on the field.

Bobby Earl Williams, benefitting from some excellent blocking up front, went across for Big Spring's score from 12 yards out.

Big Spring gained a total of 283 yards all told but most of that came on the ground. Coach Ralph Harris said the coaches' biggest job this week would be to continue to build confidence among his athletes. Harris said the Steers had made giant strides since the beginning of practice toward becoming a cohesive outfit.

"We learned we can be physical and tough," Harris said, "we need polish and finesse."

The Steers will begin preparations Monday for their opening game with Snyder Friday night, a club Harris described as "well coached, and the team is possessed of good talent."

The Longhorns threw the ball only six times against Lamesa, completing two of them for 48 yards. One went from QB Chuck Gibbs to Tight End Mike Sauls for 20 yards and the other to tailback Bill Brown on a swing route, good for 28 yards.

Gibbs and Tracy Spence are now running neck and neck for the quarterback's job, said Harris. Gibbs is a 5-9, 145-pound senior, Spence is a 155-pound, 5-10 junior.

The Steers got to Lamesa's one without scoring one time and advanced as far as the enemy 15 on another try.

Up front, Greg Jones and Tony Molina looked outstanding at defensive tackle. Middle linebacker George Bancroft and outside linebackers Danny Stephens and Sauls distinguished themselves with their fine play, too. Defensive ends Scott Barnes and Greg Scarbro were stinging the Lamesa ball carriers, too.

Richard Evans, a 5-10, 145-pounder, had a good night for Big Spring. He is probably the quickest player Big Spring has.

Harris suited out 28 players and all got into the game. The coach also had words of praise for under classmen who "came to play."

In the junior varsity scrimmage, each team scored once. The Big Spring JVs open their season at home Thursday night against Snyder at 7 p.m.

Pooley, Trevino tied for lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Perennial tour qualifier Don Pooley and $2 million career winner Lee Trevino were tied for first place Saturday at 10-under-par 203 after the third round of the $275,000 B.C. Open.

Pooley started a stroke behind Trevino and three other halfway leaders, but made up the deficit with a five-birdie, 13-par round of 66 on the 6,941-yard En-Joie Golf Club course.

Trevino, who followed a 1-over-par 72 Thursday with a sparkling 64, fired a 4-under 67 for the tie going into Sunday's final round.

First prize in the Professional Golfers' Association tour event is $49,500.

Deadlocked in third one stroke off the pace were Brad Bryant, whose 6-under-par 65 was the second-lowest round of the tournament, and unheralded Doug Johnson, a non-tour professional who qualified on another course Aug. 21.

Tied for fifth at 205 were defending champion Howard Twitty and Peter Jacobsen, both with 69s.

Phil Hancock was alone in seventh with a 54-hole total of 206, while Mark McCumber, Woody Blackburn, Terry Diehl, Lanny Wadkins, Bob Murphy and Gary Hallberg formed a six-way jam at 207.

Five shots off the pace and 5-under-par for the tournament were Pat McGowan, Tom Jenkins, Mike McCullough, Jaime Gonzalez and Artie McNickle, who was tied with Trevino, Twitty and Jacobsen after two rounds.

Trevino began his round with birdies on the first two holes and was 10-under by the turn. However, he pushed his tee shot behind a tree on No.11, a 433-yard par-4, and hit the tree coming out, forcing a pitch to the green and a two-putt bogey.

Pooley started methodically, sinking putts of 20 feet and 1 foot for birdies on the front nine. Then — starting with No. 12 — he hit a rhythm with alternating birdies and pars for six holes and made a routine par on No.18.

Bryant and McCumber had rounds of 65 — the best scores of the tournament except for Trevino's effort Saturday. But McCumber was starting from even-par 142 and was unable to make up much ground on the leaders despite an eagle-3 on the 528-yard eighth hole.

Five other eagles were posted Saturday, including the second in two days by Mark Hayes, who was unable to break 70 either day.

Texas' speediest back is still questionable

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Left halfback Rodney Tate, the fastest back on the Texas team, is listed as "questionable" for the Arkansas game Monday after missing eight straight workouts with a sprained right ankle.

Texas' other starting halfback, A.J. "Jam" Jones, returned to practice Friday with his right upper leg wrapped to protect a strained groin muscle.

"He's ready," Coach Fred Akers said of Jones, who gained 918 yards as a sophomore in 1979 although he missed three games with injuries.

Akers in an Aug. 22 interview called Tate "the most pleasant surprise" of pre-season workouts. "He's fully recovered from his shoulder injury, has gained 17 pounds (to 192) and hasn't lost any speed. He still looked like a skinned rabbit, but he is strong and is the fastest back we've got."

Now, Akers says, "Tate's going to be a question mark right up until game time. I won't rule him out for playing him or starting him, but he's probably not going to start (if he cannot practice). We've got to go with what we know we can count on, but I'm not going to name a starting lineup yet."

In Tate's absence, sophomore Carl Robinson has been running with the first team. Robinson, 6-1 and 200, rushed for just 47 yards in 22 carries as a freshman and missed a month of the season after he separated his right shoulder in the Arkansas game.

Texas and Arkansas open major college football in the 1980s with a nationally televised game in Memorial Stadium here on Monday. Kickoff is at 8:10 p.m. CDT.

Pirates lose 6th straight

PITTSBURGH (AP) — George Foster and pitcher Tom Seaver each drove in two runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat Pittsburgh 5-3 Saturday, extending the Pirates' losing streak to six games.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first inning against Jim Bibby, 15-5, as Dave Concepcion singled and scored on Foster's double and Dan Driessen followed with an RBI single.

The Pirates tied the score against Seaver in the bottom of the first on a leadoff triple by Omar Moreno, a single by Tim Foli, a double by Bill Madlock and Mike Easler's sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati went ahead 5-2 in the fourth when Foster led off with his 20th homer of the season and second in as many games. Driessen singled and advanced to second on a hit by Joe Nolan. After Ray Knight hit into a double play, Ron Oester was walked intentionally and Seaver doubled to score Driessen and Oester.

The victory raised Seaver's record to 6-7 and was the 241st triumph of his career, tying him for 37th place on the all-time list.

Dolphins blank Saints, 20-0

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bob Griese and both of his understudies led scoring drives, and a fierce defense kept New Orleans off the scoreboard, as the Miami Dolphins whipped the Saints 20-0 in a National Football League exhibition game Friday night.

Griese was at quarterback for 10 of the Dolphins' points, engineering a push to a 41-yard first quarter field goal by Uwe von Schamann. Running back Delvin Williams kept a 10-play, 58-yard second quarter drive with a 1-yard burst for a touchdown with Griese at the throttle.

Griese left the game after that drive. His final statistics showed 141 yards on 8 completions in 11 attempts.

Rookie David Woodley took over at that point and directed a 64-yard, 4-play drive, capped by an 11-yard touchdown pass to rookie receiver Elmer Bailey.

The final Dolphins score came with Don Strock at quarterback in the fourth quarter. That drive, which covered 83 yards in 12 plays, ended with a 27-yard field by von Schamann.

Twins beaten by Blue Jays

TORONTO (AP) — Roy Howell's seventh homer of the season tied the game and Steve Braun's pinch-hit single broke the tie as the Toronto Blue Jays scored twice in the bottom of the ninth inning to defeat the Minnesota Twins 3-2 Saturday.

Jackson Todd, 2-1, scattered nine Minnesota hits in going the distance for the second time since joining the Blue Jays Aug. 8 from Syracuse of the International League.

Minnesota right-hander Roger Erickson was breezing along with a six-hitter when Howell lined a one-out solo homer that tied the game 2-2.

Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon is scheduled Sept. 27

Would you walk a mile for a t-shirt? Would you jog two miles for a mug? Would you crawl three miles for a warm-up suit? If you would, then you are needed to help in a fund-raising Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon to be held Sept. 27 at the Big Spring Memorial Stadium, sponsored by the Howard College Hawk Club and the Herald.

The fund-raiser, which will last only one hour, is being held in order to raise funds for scholarships, recruiting, and un-budgeted expenses for both men's and women's athletic departments at Howard College, the HC cheerleaders and the HC rodeo teams.

Anyone may participate; athletes, cheerleaders, administrators, students, boosters, clubs, organizations, and friends of Howard College.

And according to Harold Wilder, athletic director at Howard College, "I want people to know that this is not to be viewed as a race. It is a fund-raising endeavor. The success of the Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon depends on the amount of pledges a person receives per lap. It's not how far, or how fast, but how many sponsors they can get."

Joggers, walkers or crawlers must obtain sponsors using forms provided by Wilder. They must then get pledges of a specific amount PER LAP that they will complete. Then, return the forms with a personal note, and they will be mailed out for you.

Wilder also wants to emphasize the fact that the person doing the jogging will not have to collect the money. "All pledges are collected by a computer," said Wilder. "Once you have asked the sponsor for the pledge, and you jog, your part is finished. I do the rest."

Prizes will be given away to joggers. A Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon t-shirt for each 25 mail out sponsor forms turned in; a Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon t-shirt for each walk a round sponsor form completed and turned in; a Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon mug to each jogger who brings in at least $100; and a Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon warm-up suit to each jogger who brings in at least $500.

There will also be a celebrity contest, where each player on the Howard College men's and women's basketball teams will have a local celebrity as their partner to see who can raise the most money.

"I'm expecting 450 entries," said Wilder. "As of right now, the Big Spring Band Boosters are joining the Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon to raise funds for the promotion of all band activities in the Big Spring Independent School District.

"My goal is to raise $15,000," concluded Wilder.

Anyone interested in running in the Jog-Walk-Crawl-A-Thon should contact *Harold Wilder at the Jog-A-*Thon headquarters in the Athletic Director's Office in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum at Howard College.

A CYCLING CHAMP, TOO — Olympic skater Beth Heiden smiles for newsmen after winning the women's road racing title at the World Cycling championships in Sallanches, France, Saturday. The sister of American Olympic ice skating sensation Eric Heiden covered the 36.7 mile course in 1 hour, 45 minutes, 15 seconds.

Cleveland Indians triumph

CLEVELAND (AP) — Miguel Dilone rapped three hits and drove in two runs and Victor Cruz pitched 22-3 innings of scoreless relief as the Cleveland Indians downed the Chicago White Sox 6-2 Saturday.

Dilone doubled twice and singled, lifting his batting average to .348, and delivered the game-winning RBI for the second straight game.

Winner Dan Spillner, 13-9, was bailed out of a jam by Cruz in the Chicago seventh with runners on first and third and one out. Cruz retired Kevin Bell on a line drive and struck out Todd Cruz, protecting a 3-2 Cleveland lead at the time.

Cruz then went on to record his 12th save, insuring Spillner his sixth victory in his past seven decisions.

Cleveland scored in the first against Ross Baumgarten, 2-9, when Jorge Orta walked, took second on Mike Hargrove's single and scored on a single by Joe Charboneau.

Baltimore is routed

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie Reggie Smith's 96-yard return with the opening kickoff triggered an explosion that saw Atlanta build a 41-7 lead before the Falcons held on for a 51-35 National Football League preseason victory over the Baltimore Colts Friday night.

The Colts' comeback was keyed by 12-year veteran Greg Landry, who threw four touchdown passes and scored one after entering the game midway through the second quarter. Landry completed 25 of 42 passes for 353 yards for the Colts, 2-2.

Smith, a 5-foot-4, 168-pounder from North Carolina Central, ripped up the middle of the field on his kickoff return, reaching the Atlanta 30 before he headed for the right sideline and raced the distance.

The Falcons, 1-2, took advantage of a 42-yard pass interference infraction at the 1 to set up a touchdown plunge on the next play by Lynn Cain to take a 14-0 lead after less than five minutes had elapsed.

Seattle flogs Pats, 30-23

SEATTLE (AP) — Quarterback Jim Zorn returned to the Seattle Seahawks lineup Friday night and directed his team to a 30-23 National Footbal League exhibition finale victory over the New England Patriots.

Zorn, who missed two preseason games because of an injured left knee, completed 13-of-24 passes for 139 yards and one touchdown in an aerial battle with Patriot quarterback Steve Grogan.

Grogan was 14-of-30 for 266 yards and two touchdowns, both to tight end Russ Francis.

The victory allowed the Seahawks to finish with a 3-1 record in preseason play, while New England wound up 1-3.

New England took a 10-0 lead in the opening quarter as Grogan completed a 2-yard touchdown pass to Francis and John Smith booted a 42-yard field goal.

The Seahawks came back to score on a 2-yard pass from Zorn to tight end John Sawyer in the opening quarter.

Lewisville, Breckenridge favored

By the Associated Press

Lewisville in Class 5A and Bay City in Class 4A, two teams that narrowly missed state championships last season, Breckenridge in 3A and Pilot Point in 2A head up their classifications in The Associated Press Preseason Schoolboy Football Poll.

Lewisville advanced to the state 5A semifinals last season before suffering a disappointing 3-0 loss to eventual state champion Temple, which returns to the rankings this season in the No. 3 position.

Port Arthur Jefferson, led by the pass-catch duo of Todd Dodge and Brent Duhon, placed second in the preseason balloting by a poll of Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Bay City, despite the loss of blue chipper Greg Williams, is rated the favorite to take one more step in Class 4A than it did last year when the Black Cats lost to McKinney 20-7 in the state championship game.

Second-ranked Lubbock Estacado out-polled Bay City in first-place votes, 7-5, but Bay City got the top ranking by a 128-117 margin. Beaumont Hebert, which lost a 7-0 battle to Bay City in the 1979 semifinals, goes into the season with the No. 3 rank.

The AP panel gave Breckenridge the most dominating position of any classification, gathering in 13 first place votes and outpointing runnerup San Augustine by a 145-94 margin.

Breckenridge returns 14 starters from a team that went unbeaten in 1979 and exited the playoffs in the quarterfinals after a 13-13 tie with Van, the eventual state champion. Van advanced on penetrations, 4-3.

Childress, 13-1 last season and also a playoff victim of Van, got the early No. 3 selection in Class 3A.

Only seven points separate the next four teams in the voting including No. 4 Cedar Hill with 66 points, Refugio, 63, Hallettsville, 61, and Pittsburg, 59.

Pilot Point returns 15 starters from a team that lost in last year's quarterfinals to eventual state runnerup China Spring.

Waskom was a solid runner up in Class 2A with four first place votes while Troup and Rotan will share the No. 3 spot going into the first week of the regular season.

Flipping halter costly to filly in trial run

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) — Last week, the brilliant 3-year-old filly, Jaimie Jay, was left standing behind a closed gate in the richest horse race in thoroughbred and quarter horse history.

The culprit that cost Jaimie Jay a shot at the first-place All-American Derby purse of $500,000 turned out to be a $15 device — a flipping halter.

A flipping halter is supposed to work like a safety belt by preventing a horse from flipping backwards in the starting gate, injuring the horse or the jockey.

A pin on the halter attaches to the starting gate. The halter holds a horse's head steady until the starting gates open, then automatically detaches itself from the animal.

But Jaimie Jay's halter malfunctioned when the filly pulled back just at the instant that starter Dean Turpitt hit the button to open the gates at Ruidoso Downs.

The pressure that Jaimie Jay applied on the pin prevented her gate from opening with the rest of the field and the filly never left.

On Monday, the $1.2 million All-American Futurity will be run at the same south-central New Mexico track, and the use of the flipping halter has become a pre-race point of contention.

Only two of the 10 horses in the Futurity field will use flipping halters. They are Six Fols, a large colt, and Chick Called Mito, a filly.

The trainers of the two speedsters say the halter is a chance they've got to take to control their sometimes unruly horses.

"I'd rather take the chance than risk getting the horse or jockey hurt," said Shirley Montgomery, trainer of Six Iols. "My horse is big enough that if he decided to flip, the gateman wouldn't be able to hold him."

Matt Baker, Chick Called Mito's trainer, said the filly has run better since she started using the halter.

"She had the tendency to sit back and turn her head," Baker said. "The halter makes her sit closer to the gate and that has made her a better runner."

Money, acclaim motivate Ali

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

What motivates the remarkable Muhammad Ali?

Is it money? Is it the necessity to replenish coffers left barren by the squandering of some $40 million earned over two decades with his hammering fists? Or is it the heady elixir of fame, the need for the spotlight and constant attention which must be fed into the veins like some addictive drug?

"Both," snapped the 38-year-old fighting wonder when the question was shot at him Thursday after a seven-round sparring session at Madison Square Garden.

The single answer came from the lips of an aging man. The clean-cut, boyish look is gone. The gray spots have been touched up in his thick black hair. Flab and bulges are now noticeable on the body that once was so lean and sleek it resembled a bronze statue.

He wears a dark mustache, which gives him a dour middle-age look rather than his old puckish charm. "I'm the black Clark Gable," he boasts but it's just a means of masquerading a fading facade.

There is a symbol of a bee with butterfly wings on his boxing shorts but it is the only replica of an age when the a young gladiator came out of Louisville and felled an awesome brute named Sonny Liston to win the heavyweight championship for the first of three times.

The great Muhammad, who changed his religion and his name, no longer "floats like a butterfly and stings like a bee." In the ring, he looks slow and ponderous, easy to hit.

Ali admirers — and the numbers are both legion and worldwide — worry that, although he has undergone another of his stern training regimens, he will be unable to avoid embarrassment when he goes against his unbeaten, 30-year-old protege, Larry Holmes, in Las Vegas Oct. 2 for the World Boxing Council version of the heavyweight title.

There are a faithful few who believe "The Great One" may pull still another miracle from his magician's pouch.

"But why even attempt it?" much of the world asks. He has climbed the heights of his profession. There is no other way to go except to come down.

Ali addressed himself to this conundrum after an unimpressive workout before scores of fans and critics at the Garden.

"What's wrong with wanting money?" he replied to a question. He went on to say if J. Paul Getty and other multi-millionaires get theirs, why shouldn't he, a black, get his.

Yet it's obvious that mercenary considerations are secondary in the former champion's drive. He regards himself as an example for the down-trodden and underprivileged blacks. The black-white theme forms a heavy thread through his litany.

More than that, Ali feeds on the spotlight. It is sustenance for his blood. Without it, he is just a shell of a man. When he retired after winning the title a third time, he sought other avenues to world acclaim.

He got into TV commercials. He dabbled in politics. He even became an unofficial ambassador. He went to the United Nations to announce plans for a worldwide organization.

None brought him the attention he craved. He had to pick up the gloves again. He had to reestablish that lifeline with his adoring public.

Course to be improved

Grand Prix race saved

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Money has been obtained to make improvements at the Watkins Glen Grand Prix course and save the 1980 Grand Prix auto race, the track president said Friday.

Henry Valent declined to say exactly how much money has been obtained, but said, "It has been arranged for. We've got enough to make the improvements."

He said the money had been raised through David G. Schlosser, 44, a Rochester financial consultant who also is an amateur race driver.

Schlosser had said earlier this week that he was trying to obtain about $200,000 that would be needed to make improvements before the Oct. 5 race.

He hoped to raise an additional $550,000 for the track later, so that the state would funnel another $500,000 in federal money into the financially-ailing track.

The International Auto Sports Federation, which sanctions Grand Prix races around the world, has been demanding improvements at the track for over a year.

The federation had talked of driver complaints about bumpy surfaces on some parts of the 3.37-mile, 11-turn road racing course.

The federation also had complained of unruly crowds, insufficient security and inadequate press facilities.

President Jean-Marie Balestre of the federation had said at Zandvoort in the Netherlands earlier Friday that a federation inspection team would look over the Watkins Glen course next Thursday and meet with track officials and contractors. Balestre said a decision would then be made whether to permit the Oct. 5 race to proceed.

Valent and Malcolm Currie, executive director of the Watkins Glen course, said work on the track would begin early next week.

Bob Kelly, the track press director, said, "Primary emphasis will be placed on the resurfacing of 10 areas of the racing circuit; sand-blasting, priming and painting of extensive guardrail around the 3.37-mile circuit; paving and graveling in the paddock areas to eliminate muddy conditions that have existed there during rainy Grand Prix weekends in past years, and additional press facilities for journalists covering Grand Prix weekend."

Mackey is homesick; may play for Sooners

SEATTLE (AP) — Apparently stricken by severe homesickness, tailback Ray Mackey has quit the University of Washington football team and may be headed for Oklahoma, according to a report in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

But OU coaches may violate National Collegiate Athletic Association rules if they contact the Texas native without permission, said Washington's athletic director.

After winning a starting assignment, the sophomore from Luling, Texas quit the Washington football program Monday.

Athletic Director Mike Lude said he received a one-paragraph letter "around the first of this month" from his counterpart at Oklahoma, Wade Walker, saying Mackey had contacted the Sooners and asking permission to talk to him.

"I got in touch with (Washington Coach) Don James, and at that time we expected Willis Ray (Mackey) to be back," Lude said, "so obviously I didn't give them my permission, and I didn't respond to the letter."

He also said that as far as he knew, Mackey had followed the usual pre-enrollment process last spring and still was enrolled to attend Washington this fall.

Upon withdrawal, Mackey becomes free to talk to any other school, but unless Washington frees him from his letter of intent to play for the Huskies, other NCAA schools are barred from offering any athletic scholarship aid for the next year.

Lude said he believed if would be an infraction for Oklahoma to talk with Mackey either without the Huskies' permission or before he officially withdraws from Washington.

He added that he hadn't released Mackey from his letter of intent "and I'm not going to. We never have (released a player). We just feel that's inappropriate.

"Now, if a person's father is dying of cancer in the hometown or something of very, very extenuating circumstances, we would sit down and evaluate the seriousness of it," Lude continued, "but this is not such a case."

Whitey Herzog has mixed feelings about desk job

ST. LOUIS (AP) — After eight years as a major league player and 929 games as a manager, Whitey Herzog is leaving the playing field to take a job behind a desk — the general manager's desk of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I like to hunt, I like to fish, I like to go skiing," the 48-year-old Herzog said Friday after being named the Cards' general manager. "I've never had to sit still before. I don't know what it will be like."

The naming of Herzog to the post was a surprise, almost as much to the new executive as to the baseball world in general.

"I think it was toughest on my wife," Herzog said at a news conference of his decision to accept club President August A. Busch Jr.'s offer.

"She said to me, 'Are you sure? Do you think this is what you want?'"

Herzog said the 81-year-old Busch had contacted him earlier in the week and followed it up with a meeting Friday morning.

"I didn't want to manage the Cardinals if I didn't have control of my own destiny. I want the Cardinals to get out of the doldrums. They don't have to butter me up — I just work hard and everything will turn out OK."

An announcement from Busch said Red Schoendienst will replace Herzog on the field as interim manager, returning to coaching duties in 1981.

Schondienst, 57, was in the dugout as Herzog's temporary replacement Friday night.

Herzog takes over as general manager for John Claiborne, who was dismissed Aug. 18 after only 22 months at the helm.

Busch, in announcing Herzog's reassignment, praised the new executive's experience.

"The fact that Whitey has served both on the field and in the front office represents a particular advantage," Busch said.

"Decisions made this season can have a very great effect on the team's performance in the 1981 season and beyond. He's come to know our players as well as any field manager we've ever had."

Herzog's debut as a manager was with the Texas Rangers in 1973.

He piloted California for four games on an interim basis in 1974. Then, after taking over the Kansas City Royals early in 1975, he steered the American League club to three West Division titles in three years, 1976-78.

Herzog, an advocate of speed and defense, said he was not prepared to identify the areas of St. Louis' greatest need.

"I'm not making excuses, but when we swept the (Los Angeles) Dodgers and got within five games of .500, we lost Gary Templeton and never recovered," he said of the Cards, who posted a 38-35 record during his 11-week term as manager.

"When you lose a Templeton, you lose so much. I think the team has played as well as it can."

Game films available

ALBUQUERQUE — The U.S. Army — where physical fitness is an important part of daily life — is sponsoring the 1980 Major League Baseball All-Star Game highlight film, according to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

"This is the first time the Army has sponsored the All-Star film and we're delighted that baseball and the Army, both of which stress fitness and ability, have gotten together," the commissioner said. The Army will also sponsor the 1980 World Series highlight film.

Shortly, Army recruiters will have prints available of the exciting 30-minute All-Star film to show at no charge to school and community groups. You can contact your local Army recruiter by looking up the phone number in the yellow pages under recruiting.

Steve Garvey, of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and Ken Singleton, of the American League Champion Baltimore Orioles, will deliver brief messages about the Army in the films.

Garvey, a career .304 hitter, has appeared in six All-Star games and was selected Most Valuable Player in the 1974 and 1978 contests. Singleton, with a .289 career average has been in two All-Star games. He also played in last year's World Series while Garvey has played in three Fall Classics.

The first All-Star game was in 1933, but because there was no game in 1945, and two games each year from 1959 to 1962, 1980 marks the 51st mid-summer classic.

Well paid Winfield very generous with money to kids cause

By the Associated Press

The lean, long-legged man sitting in front of locker No.31 in the visitors' clubhouse at Shea Stadium was leisurely preparing for another day's work when he was suddenly interrupted by an attendant.

PAUL WINFIELD

"A man at the front door to see you, Dave," said the attendant.

"Excuse me," said Dave Winfield to a couple of writers, raising his 6-foot-6 frame to full height. "I will be right back."

Moments later, he returned, reached in his locker for a brief case from which he extracted a checkbook.

"A little bill we owe for the kids in the pavilion last year," he explained, half under his breath. Then he proceeded to scrawl out a check for $1,255.

Thus was seen just one other side of the 28-year-old rightfielder of the last place San Diego Padres — team captain, inspirational leader, 300-plus hitter, Golden Glove fielder, base stealer, philanthropist and legitimate super star in search of identity.

"Nothing gives me greater pleasure than this," he added, referring to his contributions as chief architect and driving force behind the David M. Winfield Foundation, which spends hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in behalf of underprivileged kids.

When the Padres face the New York Mets tonight, a special section of Shea Stadium will be cordoned off for some 9,000 of these youngsters — guests of Winfield, all admissions paid in advance.

"This is only part of the program," says Winfield, with obvious pride. "We are heavy into nutrition, exercise, family relationships, education and self-care.

"We follow up on most of these kids. If they have medical or family problems, we provide the necessary help."

Winfield's program, which started with the $20,000 Winfield Pavilion in San Diego Stadium, has been spread to a dozen other cities.

The rangy All-Star athlete manages to carry on his humanitarian endeavors, which also includes a yearly college scholarship program, while battling to achieve what he considers his rightful place in the profession which is the source of his foundation's "hope chest."

"I feel I am a winner who has never been able to gain a winner's status," he said. "I led the league in runs-batted-in last year (118). I've been on the All-Star team the last four years.

"But nobody knows who I am. I have been scarred, banged-up, mired in mediocrity. It isn't money that is forcing me to rock my boat at this time. It's the realization that baseball life is short and I have never had the personal satisfaction that comes to a winner.

Boxing has beens ruin quality

By the Associated Press

After losing a 12-round decision to Ron Lyle and suffering a burst ear drum and broken ribs in 1977, Joe Bugner told a British newsman he was getting out of boxing because it just wasn't worth it.

Then, a few months ago in an interview, Bugner, who once lost a title bid to Muhammad Ali, told another British reporter that at age 30 he was going to fight again.

Well Joe Bugner is back in a big way.

Weighing 240 pounds, the 6-foot-4 Bugner beat a Costa Rican heavyweight named Gilberto Acuna at the Forum at Inglewood, Calif., Saturday night, 39 days before the 38-year-old Ali will try to win the heavyweight title for the fourth time when he fights Larry Holmes in Las Vegas.

Why Joe?

Money!

The heavyweight division currently is so thin in talent that there is good money to be made still by fighting on memory — as the presence of 36-year-old Earnie Shavers, 31-year-old Jimmy Young and 38-year-old Ron Lyle attests.

Lyle, in fact, fought on the same card as Bugner Saturday night and knocked out one George O'Mara in the 10th round. Lyle needed the knockout to win.

It's a wonder Joe Frazier and Ken Norton don't come back.

"When you see some of the black American heavyweights like Leon Spinks and Larry Holmes, who become champions after just a few fights, it make you ask how much experience you really need to win the title," Bugner said.

It's true that Holmes and Spinks together can't match Bugner's 65 fights, but they have something that Bugner has never exhibited — toughness. And, in the case of Holmes, there is a desire to excel that never has been displayed by Bugner.

Bugner, a former European champion, went 12 rounds with Ali in 1973 and 15 with him in a title bid at Kuala Lumpur in 1975 and lost decisions. Neither time did Bugner seem distraught about losing. In fact, he seemed pleased that he had gone the distance with a legend.

Bugner, who was born in Hungary, moved to Beverly Hills, Calif., after he retired following the Lyle fight, got divorced and remarried, bought a big cattle ranch in Australia and acted in three Italian-financed films.

The feeling here is it would be better if Joe Bugner concentrated on putting on a good show for the people on the silver screen. The heavyweight division needs full-time fighters.

Pioneers Veeck, Finley leave baseball with many memories

By the Associated Press

A note to Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball:

How about a special game sort of like the one they hold every summer at the Hall of Fame induction ceremonies in Cooperstown, N.Y.?

Only this one would be different. It would be played with orange baseballs. Each team must have at least one midget in the lineup. When the midget draws a walk, have an Olympic champion sprinter ready to go in as pinch-runner.

Hook up a telephone between the dugouts and the home plate umpire. When the manager wants to blow his stack, he doesn't have to storm onto the field. He just picks up the phone and dials the ump. Put a couple of clowns on coaching lines.

That's just half of it. Give out free dishes and orchids at the gate. Present a thoroughbred race horse to the patron who guesses the exact score, inning and identity of the game-winning run-batted-in. Let a barber shop quartet or a rock'n'roll band provide changeover music.

And don't forget the fireworks.

The game would be a fitting farewell by baseball to the sport's two foremost innovators, Bill Veeck and Charles O. Finley, who announced their valedictories over the weekend.

The imaginative, sharp-witted Veeck, a 66-year-old diamond brat, ended another of his several sorties into big league baseball by selling his Chicago White Sox stock to Ed DeBartolo, a shopping center and sports franchise tycoon. Finley unloaded the Oakland A's to the Haas family (Walter A., Jr. and son, Walter J.) of Levi Strauss, the blue jean moguls.

Their departure leaves a tremendous void in the entire realm of sports, baseball particularly. These two maverick Barnums, men of contrasting backgrounds and styles.

YMCA youth soccer not a play forkeeps environment

"It doesn't make a difference if you win or lose. It's how you play." This is the philosophy of the 1980 YMCA Youth Soccer program. "Everybody's a winner." The purpose is to teach young people the principles of good physical fitness, sportsmanship and Christian conduct.

Soccer is not only a new sport in West Texas, but the United States as well. The average citizen doesn't know the basic techniques of soccer.

Eleven players make up a team. The defense consists of the goalie and two fullbacks. The offense is made up of five forwards. Between the defense and offense, a halfback line operates to assist both the defense and the offense.

At the beginning of the game, a player takes a place-kick. The ball is stationary on the ground in the center of the field of play. After a goal is scored, the game is restarted in like manner.

A goal is scored when the whole of the ball crosses the line between the goal posts and under the cross bar. The ball can not be carried, thrown, or propelled by the arm or the hand. Other terms used in soccer are "free-kick," "goal kick" and corner kick."

Although soccer is a game of teamwork, individual skill is essential. Without ball control, the ability to manipulate the ball with feet and head, a player simply isn't playing the game. The three basic skills necessary to play soccer are kicking, heading and trapping. Kicking is done with either the inside of the foot, outside of the foot, or with the instep. Dribbling is advancing the ball by alternating short passes with the inside and outside of the foot. Punting, also called volleying, is kicking the ball while the ball is in the air.

Heading is used for passing, trapping and shooting when the ball is in the air and too high to kick. The ball should be headed with the forehead only. It should not be headed by the top or back of head. Trapping simply means getting the ball under control. Every part of the body, except the hands and arms, can be used. There are skills such as the head trap, billy trap, chest trap, and foot trap.

Skill development and instruction is one of the top goals of the YMCA youth Soccer program. Registration forms are availble at the Herald, 7-Eleven Stores, sporting good stores and the YMCA. For more information, call the "Y" at 7-8234.

Billie Sol's homestead to be sold

PECOS, Texas (AP) — The old homestead of Billie Sol Estes is about to be sold at public auction to pay off the convicted swindler's tax debts, but officials admit the home has fallen on such hard times that it probably won't bring nearly enough money.

For one thing, the backyard swimming pool where the Estes family once frolicked in high style is now a vegetable garden. The estate is occupied by a home for women in trouble, and they had the pool filled in with dirt, where the cultivation of tomatoes and peas offsets their grocery bills.

The eight-bedroom, six-bathroom estate — not counting a bathhouse by the former pool — sits on an acre and a half of land and has been appraised by local officials at $82,115.

But the Internal Revenue Service has a tax lien against the house of $185,000, and local authorities are demanding $30,000 in unpaid ad valorem taxes — for a total of $215,000.

"It'll be a cold day in hell before anybody'll put out that much money for Billie Sol's house," admitted City Attorney Ted Painter. But he said whatever is collected will go first to pay off local property taxes.

Not so, says Michael Henry of the IRS' collection division in Fort Worth. "The proceeds will have to go in sequence, and the federal tax lien takes precedence," Henry said.

Painter predicted the matter of who gets first crack at the money from the sale of the home would end up in court. "We figure the ad valorem taxes should be paid first and we will fight to insure ourselves of collecting it," he said.

U.S. Marshal Eddy Markham, 42, who will serve as auctioneer, said prospective buyers must have at least 10 percent of the purchase price at the end of the auctioin. He said the balance is due in 30 days.

Estes, 55, is now a prisoner in the federal penitentiary in Big Spring, where he was transferred earlier this month from La Tuna, just north of El Paso. Prison officials said the move was made to allow Estes to be closer to his family home in Abilene.

Estes moved his family to Abilene in 1963 after a bullet was fired through a window in the Pecos home and a cross was burned on his front yard. The incidents came two years after the scandal erupted that led to indictments and convictions against Estes for fraud.

Before he moved from Pecos, he tried to use the house to raise money by offering tours at $5 a head, plus $2 extra if they wanted to take pictures.

The Justice Department has said Estes, who won freedom on parole in 1971 but was convicted again last year for tax evasion, will become eligible for parole Dec. 15, 1983.

The home that will be auctioned on the steps of the Reeves County Courthouse Tuesday was built on the site of a former swimming pool after Estes, a farm implement salesman, moved here in 1951. It was small at first, but as Estes' wealth grew, he added on until the cottage became one of the finest and biggest mansions in Pecos at that time.

Today it is occupied by a group called "The Way In," a locally sponsored home for battered or deserted wives, unwed mothers, and other women going through a crisis who who need a place to stay temporarily.

Jackson sheds spiv rock image

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It wasn't a good day for rock star Joe Jackson.

At his best, the tall, 26-year-old native of Portsmouth, England, looks like a young, stretched-out Don Knotts. But as he sat under an umbrella at the deserted poolside area of his West Hollywood hotel, the gangly, Cockney-style magnetism he exudes on stage was gone.

He said he was feeling ill and looked it. He said he doesn't enjoy life on the road and the smothering public attention accorded rock stars — an attitude evident in some of the lyrics in his recent songs — — and proceeded to prove that too, glaring menacingly at a young man who tried to take a snapshot from 15 feet away.

And things didn't improve any when he was asked about Spiv Rock, the name he coined for his act when he first burst on the American misic scene less than two years ago.

Spiv is a British slang term for a petty criminal, the kind of lowlife that hangs around sleazy racetracks or tries to sell hot watches on city streets. And on his first two albums, Jackson portrayed himself in the smart-alecky rebel mold favored by many punk-New Wave bands.

The self-taught pianist, singer and songwriter — who started his career playing in pubs at 16 — dressed in cheap black suits, porkpie hats and pointy white shoes. On the cover of his second album, "I'm the Man," he was pictured opening his suit coat surreptitiously to display a lining full of merchandise.

His music was perfectly in tune with the image — too much so, he now feels. But its peppy appeal was undeniable. His debut "Look Sharp" album, featuring songs like "One More Time" and "Is She Really Going Out With Him" has since gone gold.

During a summer tour here, Jackson is pulling in thousands of fans, who bob and wriggle delightedly as he jumps about spasmodically and attacks the microphone with gusto.

But he is going through some changes now, and he wants very much to put Spiv Rock behind him.

"That was a joke, and it's about time people saw it was a joke and forgot about it," he said irritatedly.

Jackson is heading in a new musical direction as well. He's making his producing debut on his new LP "Beat Crazy," due this fall.

"I've shifted the emphasis more away from the guitar and more onto the bass, avoiding the standard New Wave four-piece band sound, because I listen to our first two albums now, and they sound pretty much like a lot of other bands," he said, his initial hostility vanishing with a subject more to his liking.

Director of sequel doesn't like them

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "I hate sequels," says director Hal Needham, whose latest work is "Smokey and the Bandit II."

Does that make sense? Maybe not, but then, it's a mistake to seek too much logic in the movie business. It was inevitable that Universal Pictures would want a follow-up to the 1977 "Smokey and the Bandit," which amazed most people in the trade. Including the bosses at Universal.

"They told me they thought the picture would make between 18 and 20 million," Needham recalls. "I was a little more ambitious; I said it would make between 30 and 35. Well, it blew the socks off everybody. It has grossed 250 million world-wide."

Such a figure makes a sequel imperative, and Needham says that he agreed on the stipulation that the original cast be reassembled. That was done. "Smokey II" brings back Burt Reynolds, Sally Field, Jackie Gleason, Jerry Reed, Paul Williams, Pat McCormick, Mike Henry, David Huddleston and John Anderson.

And there is more. Gleason not only plays Smokey, the Texarkana sheriff, but two other roles as well: a Canadian mountie and a Texas highway officer. And Dom DeLuise appxmewhat shady Italian gynecologist.

The economics of "Smokey II" are interesting. The original film cost $4.3 million. The new version ran $16 million, not including studio overhead, which could add 25-30 percent. Half of the cost, Needham reports, was "above the line," meaning salaries to the major contributors to the film. Such has been the explosion of payments to the likes; xxxds, Oscar-winner Field and director Hal Needham.

What was behind the popularity of "Smokey," which began a whole screen genre of country cop-chasing?

"I think it was a combination of things: the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, the popularity of CB radios, the conception of truckers as heroes," Needham theorizes. "Everything jelled at the right time."

"There ain't a director in town who knows action better than I do. That's not just bragadocio on my part. I've been in the business for 25 years, and I ought to know it by now."

New edition of 'Stars' opens in Canyon, Texas

To celebrate fall, the theatre in the Palo Duro Canyon will have a new show opening on August 29 and running through September 14.

It will be the third edition of "STARS," dance and song and sound and light exploding and gliding on the stage against the magnificent cliff of the theatre in the Canyon, presented by the Lone Star Ballet Inc.

Tractors will form the background for the western number. The use of clowns and their antics will be the basis for another. The fantasy on a child's story this year will be "Beauty and the Beast."

And by request, the company will repeat the Can-Can from the famous Offenbach show about a Paris cafe "Gaiety of Paris" (Gaite Parisiennce).

Guest stars from the Ballet Companies of New York, Utah and Los Angeles will join the company and will present numbers of their own.

For tickets and information write "STARS," Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 806-655-2181.

"STARS" BUTTERFLY
. . . Lori Patane

Dancers for the Lone Star Company form the dancing corps for "TEXAS" which plays in the same theatre in the summers. The artistic director is Neil Hess whose dancers have been delighting audiences for many years in this region and who has more than forty students appearing with professional companies. He is working intensively in New York with the eight members of the company who are three this summer, while his assistant, Cora Mueller, does the preliminary preparation of the western number and "Beauty and Beast" in the Canyon. In the last two weeks before the opening, they will begin to put the parts together.

"STARS" plays nightly except Wednesdays, August 29 through September 14. Enjoying a fall diversion in the open air, audience members may sit where they choose. Performances will be at 8:00 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $2 for children.

Dinner will be served each evening by the company which caters for "TEXAS". There will be several different menus.

After the intermission the mood will change. The focus will lift from the stage to the wall of the great Canyon and Paul Green's story of the abyss, told in Sound and Light, will unfold. The great lights will focus on the cave where pre-historic man is chipping flint, and on the battleground where the Indians were finally defeated and their horses killed. And the sounds of the Indian drums, the Spaniards' horses, and the jet age planes will tell the story. In these moments, free of human diversion, the Canyon has a voice.

'The Blue Lagoon': A spellbounding movie

Natural. Provocative. Beautiful. Daring. Those words describe the spellbinding story of "The Blue Lagoon" and the superb motion picture Randal Kleiser ("Grease") has created in paradise.

It begins with an explosion at sea as a sailing schooner — bound for San Francisco — becomes a blazing inferno. Two small children, among the few survivors, clamber onto a white crescent beach on a tiny uncharted island.

They do not realize it, but this will be their home ... perhaps forever. They learn survival from a scurrilous old sea cook, their lone companion, who reels drunkenly into the surf one night ... and drowns. They share their azure cove with phosphorescent sea life, their rain forest with exotic birds and wild creatures.

They grow, sun-bronzed and lithe. They reach adolescence, and innocent of sex, become lovers. A child is born, and while they are baffled by the miracle of birth, they love and protect him

There are visitors to their island, strange, chanting figures who leave the stone god — in a clearing in their forest — smeared with blood. With some animal instinct to protect their young, they leave paradise, drifting onto an endless open sea.

When Randal Kleiser first read Henry DeVere Stacpolle's Victorian masterpiece eight years ago, he was determined to film it. First would come the extraordinary impact of "Grease," the highest-grossing movie musical in box office history. Then would come a commitment from Nestor Almendros, Academy Award winner for "Days of Heaven," heralded for "Kramer vs. Kramer," to join him in bringing "The Blue Lagoon" to life.

Brooke Shields is the beautiful Emmeline ... teasing ... taunting ... touched by shifting emotions within her ... a whisper of gold in a dark green glade. Newcomer Christopher Atkins, selected from a nationwide search which saw some 3,000 youngsters screened and tested, is Richard, plunging into crystal waters, springing over coral shoals. He is one of the screen's most exciting new talents, with the looks and vitality to set teenage hearts thumping.

Leo McKern co-stars as the old sailor who teaches the children how to stay alive in paradise, then succumbs to his taste for demon rum. William Daniels is Richard's father, whose search through the South Seas to find them becomes a lifelong obsession.

Filmed on a tiny, privately owned island in the Fiji archipelego, which incredibly duplicates Stacpoole's exotic vision, "The Blue Lagoon" was produced and directed by Kleiser and co-produced by Richard Franklin from a screenplay by Douglas Day Stewart.

'The Island': Terror on the map

In the time period between 1973 and 1977, according to official Coast Guard figures, 610 pleasure craft and over 2000 people sailing aboard them vanished without a trace from one certain area of the Caribbean. Even during the filming of "The Island," which opened recently at the Cinema Theater, several boats disappeared in this area, including one carrying a prominent Miami lawyer and his party.

What's behind these mysterious disappearances?

Peter Benchley came up with an answer in his best-selling novel, "The Island." (As of March 27, 1980, the Doubleday hard cover edition sold 130,000 copies, and the recently released paperback from Bantam hit the 2,143,000 mark.)

The motion picture gives a new and startling dimension to the terrifying tale Benchley wrote. And it is Benchley himself who adapted the contemporary action-adventure drama into a tightly woven screen play.

To accomplish this feat, director Michael Ritchie and producers Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown have assembled a first rate international cast headed by Michael Caine. The star plays an investigative reporter-writer for a major national news magazine who sets out to unravel the puzzling mystery.

England's David Warner and Australian newcomer Angela Punch McGregor also star as major characters in the strange saga.

Also contributing their skills to this tale of terror are such talents as Colin Jeavons, Frank Middlemass, Reg Evans, Don Henderson, Dudley Sutton, plus a talented teenager — Jeffrey Frank.

Even casual moviegoers know what to expect from the Zanuck-Brown-Bechley triumvirate for it was this trio which gave the world one of the all-time megahits — "Jaws."

"The Island" is the third major Benchley novel to be brought to world-wide movie audiences. "The Deep" was also a smash hit two summers ago.

In joining this successful team, Michael Ritchie brings to it the skills of one of Hollywood's most versatile directors. His impressive list of credits range from the realism of "Downhill Racer" and "The Candidate" to the rich, ribald humor of "Smile," "The Bad News Bears" and "Semi-Tough."

"The Island" was filmed entirely on location, beginning production on May 13, 1979 in Antigua in the West Indies. This volcanic and coral isalnd located in the Caribbean 1600 miles south of Miami and 600 miles north of Venezuela, has a population of 75,000 living on its 108 square miles.

Discovered in 1493 by Christopher Columbus, it was named for the Santa Maria la Antigua Church in Seville, Spain. The namss of the island's six parishes — St. John, St. George, St. Peter, St. Mary, St. Phillip and St. Paul—belie its early heritage. However, discovering the ancestry of some of the villages takes more in-depth research. Among these you find such places as Rotten Town, Ffyers, Betty's Hope, Ebenezers, Shirley Heights, Jabberwock, and Blubber Valley.

The key filming on this location took place in an area known as Indian Creek. Here, production designer Dale Hennesey ("Fantastic Voyage") and his staff constructed the village inhabited by the strange characters Becnhley created in his novel. The crude huts and trails were literally carved out in the midst of a large mango grove which bordered a small inlet to the ocean.

Other pivotal sequences were shot aboard the U.S. Coast Guard Cutter "Dauntless," first while it was berthed in Antigua for eight brief days and later in Miami for another 10 days.

"The Island" marks the eleventh major film produced by the Zanuck-Brown Company in an association with Universal which began in 1971.

NOW SHOWING AT THE CINEMA — Nau (David Warner) instructs young Justin (Jeffrey Frank), in Universal's film version of the best-selling novel, "The Island," now playing in Dolby Stereo at the Cinema Theatre in the College Park Shopping Center.

Banjos and country music featured at Odessa show

Prize winning banjo picker Gary Boren of Midland will head the line up of great talent at the Odessa Brand New Opree, 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 6.

Also featured will be Fort Worth singers Mike and Becky Fulgium, Hal Goodson, and Ralph Venne. Texas Country from Pecos will be the featured band with Bill Kelly hosting the show.

Gary Boren, 16-year-old newcomer to Midland, has been playing the banjo for 7 years. He has performed with Earnest Tubb and appeared on the Grapevine Opree. He is a sophomore at Midland Lee High School.

Mike and Becky Fulgium are a brother and sister team hailing from Fort Worth. They have delighted audiences throughout East Texas and Oklahoma with their unique style and singing ability.

Rounding out the show are Hal Goodson and Ralph Venne. Hal Goodson has earned the praise of Opree audiences for his rich voice and delightful yodeling. He appeared on the Opree several times last spring. Ralph is a relative newcomer to the Opree having appeared once last spring. He is developing into a talented performer.

Texas Country, under the direction of this week's host Bill Kelly, hails from Pecos. Their hard driving, good humored brand of music appeals to audiences in this part of Texas.

At Howard County Library

Entertainment for free

By JUDY FRANKLIN
Children's Librarian

With the cost of good family entertainment getting beyond most people's budgets, it's nice to know there is something available for everyone and it has the perfect price tag — FREE!!

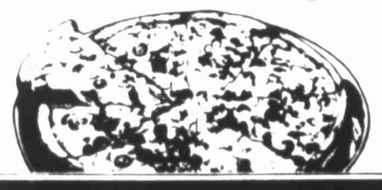

The Howard County Library would like to invite the people of Howard County to join us every Saturday at 2 p.m. for our Young-At-Heart Film Festival. It is open to all ages.

The 6th of September we will offer Walt Disney's "Incredible Journey." This enchanting film concerns not only one animal's devotion to his master, but three animals' devotion and loyalty to their human family. In this beautifully told story, two dogs and one cat make the impossible trek across 250 miles of Canadian wilderness to rejoin their beloved family. For anyone who has lost a pet only to have it return from parts unknown after all hope was given up, this film is a celebration of such happy reunions.

One great Walt Disney film deserves another and the following week we will show "Old Yeller." This heart-rending story of a young man's entry into the adult world of the 1860's is as valid today as when it was written 25 years ago. The hero of this film is an old, dingy yellow mongrel dog that wanders up to join a family and in spite of the misgivings of the eldest son, manages to prove his worth not only as a good all-around dog, but as a life-saving friend.

These true-to-life animal stories are inspiring by themselves and the effort and skill needed to bring these stories to life is one of the most fascinating subjects in movie making. William R. Koehler was the chief animal trainer at the Disney studios for over 21 years and lets the world know some of the behind-the-scenes stories in his book "The Wonderful World of Disney Animals." In his revealing look at the dedicated training that must go into each animal movie, Mr. Koehler shows himself and his helpers to be not only masters of their profession but true animal lovers themselves.

Come down and join us for the movies and bring a friend or two. They are free and everyone is invited.

Pioneer builder built lasting edicices

Vintage homes continue to save

By MICKIE DICKSON

Recent changes in vintage residences reflect the agelessness and continued usefulness of these pioneer homes to the area.

An update on a part of the 1975 fall series by Mrs. Wallace (Carol) Hunter which appeared under Marj Carpenter's by-line reveals interim changes plus some homes that did not appear in those articles.

The 1905 I. B. "Doc" Cauble ranch home one mile west of Elbow School, has been renovated twice. The 1907 L. T. Deats home at 708 Main has been turned into a law office by John A. Burgess and Robert H. Moore III. The 1909 J. J. Hair home, originally at 1901 Gregg, is now at 404 Ryon. The 1909 J. M. Morgan home, 1500 Scurry, is now the dental office of Dr. James R. Cave. The 1910 Fred Poffenbach home, formerly at 410 Gregg, is now 4.6 miles north on Gail Highway FM 669, having been moved recently.

The 7 room Doc Cauble white frame ranch home with front "gallery" or porch on two sides, screened in back porch and hallway, was remodeled in 1929 by Doc and Mary Elizabeth Cauble. Brick columns replaced the wooden ones on the gallery, a bath and a half added, hardwood floors put over the original tongue in groove flooring and minor changes to the kitchen made. Mr. and Mrs. T. Willard Neel (Melba "Totsy" Cauble), who inherited the home, remodeled it again in 1976-77, making a utility room, bathroom and closet out of the extended back porch, lowering the 11 foot ceilings to eight feet with the exception of a cathedral ceiling in the den and living room area. The Neel's removed the eight long double windows and four long single windows and replaced them with two single short and two double short windows. A double garage was added. The house how has a combined living, den and kitchen in one long room, two bedrooms and the original large hallway with the original front door with glass pane and transom with narrow panes on each side. Two full baths and two huge closets are also in the home.

Four of the nine Cauble children were born in the ranch home of Doc Cauble who was the first Hereford cattle breeder in West Texas.

Central heat and air conditioning were installed in the Cauble home which now has a brick exterior. The original wooden slatted fence still runs in front of the home and one original elm tree is still in the front of the house.

The L. T. Deats moved into their frame "Dream home" at 708 Main with four of their nine children when the late Charles Willis, father of Mrs. Noble Read, 503 Washington, finished building it. Three of the Deats children had died and two married while they lived on Scurry St.

The house originally had the front entrance opening off a gallery across the front that wrapped around to the left of the house to the south window into a large hallway "pie-crust" and staircase. The parlor and dining room doors opened into the hall to the right and the front bedroom door opened to the left. Behind the front bedroom was a large L-shaped bath wit a claw-footed bathtub and lavatory only. The kitchen was behind the dining room. Another bedroom with entrances from the dining room, bathroom and back porch was behind the hall. The L-shaped screened-in back porch held a tin-lined "hopper" with faucets where rise water from the washing was emptied then ran out into little ditches onto the trees in the yeard. Tubs for washing clothes were on the back porch. The stairway curved in the shape of a piece of pie up into the upstairs large hallway which had two bedrooms opening off it.

Martha Deats (Mrs. Alfred W.) Moody has many fond memories of the Deats home where she grew up and raised her children as do Wesley and Richard Deats, sons of Dr. Charlie Deats, dentist, who raised his family at 710 Main.

The house caught fire due to defective wiring upstairs in 1916 and destroyed all of Mrs. Deats treasured articles of children's costumes, toys and sporhs equipment. The stairway was modernized at that time, taking out the narrow, pie shaped curve.

Robert D. Moore, attorney, who occupies the premises with his luw partner, John A. Burgess, said, "we 'gutted' the house in order to refurbish it into our office."

The front door now opens into the large reception area with a counter use and a small office, formerly the back porch at the rear. Burgess' office opens off the reception room to the right and is basically unchanged from the 'parlor' of the original home. The second room is used as a law library, opening from Burgess' office and Moore's office immediately behind it. Two walls of books adorn this room. The third room, opening off the hallway which begins at the end of the reception room, is Moore's office. The back door opens off the end of the hallway and the bath opens to the right off the hall behind Moore's office. The wrap-around gallery had been changed to a concrete porch with metal banisters and columns re placing wooden ones across the front before Moore and Burgess purchased the property. Fortunately, the gingerbread on the roof is still intact. The stairway, at the front of the reception area, leads to the two bedrooms and hallway upstairs which are basically unchanged and at present unused by the law partners. The office has central heating and air conditioning.

The 1907 J. J. Hair home, originally located at 1901 Gregg, was moved to 404 Ryon the summer of 1945 by A. G. Albert, owner. This seven-room and two bath house is white stucco and originally had a wrap-around gallery across the front and to both sides of the house. Mrs. Raymond J. ("Toby" Boatler) Kelley, Andrews Highway, granddaughter of U. M. Boatler who owned the home from 1919 to 1927, said, "grandfather's home faced West. The entrance opened into the left into the living room with a fireplace and the stairway leading upstairs. The dining room and kitchen area with large pantry opened from both the living room and hallway. The bath opened to the left off the dining room. To the right of the hallway to bedrooms opened off thehall. The home was piped for city water was used for cooking and drinking. However, there was a large cistern on the open back porch which filled from gutters along the edge of the roof for washing with a hand pump attached. "Grandmother wasn't able to do the washing, so grandfather and I did it. I loved to see him pump that water into the tubs. If the clothes were clean after washing he'd tell grandmother he did it, but if they weren't clean he'd say I did it. He had a wonderful sense of humor. The front porch on the house was beautiful." Boatler's rented the upstairs so the granddaughter didn't know how it was arranged.

Mrs. Jimmy Foresyth, who now owns the house at 404 Ryon, said that the porch was demolished when the house was moved and a small one is attached now. Some changes include a bathroom built downstairs and another upstairs, probably in the 1920's. A bedroom and closets, were added. In the early 1970's the living room and front bedroom were made into one room and the stairway was moved to the kitchen area. Since Mr. and Mrs. Foresyth bought the house in February 1977, in addition to painting, they have built a linen closet into the bathroom downstairs and redecorated the little nursery. Foresyth is building a two-car garage and rebuilding the front gallery or porch which will be square and wrap around to each side of the house, with old-fashioned columns supporting the roof. Plans include refinishing the antique hand-carved front door by stripping the paint off and varnishing it, and doing the same to all the hand-carved door facings. Three transoms remain in the house. The windows will have wrought iron coverings and the yard enclosed with wrought iron fencing.

The J.M. Morgan home at 2500 Scurry, now Dr. James R. Caves dental office, was built in 1909 of native stone quarried and hauled from Scenic Mountain in a horse-drawn buggy. The carriage house and barn were used as a two story garage by Kathleen Williams and James Morgan, her brother, from whom Dr. Caves purchased the property. The small concrete wash house still stands and the fish pond is intact, used as a planter by the doctor.

The reception area and receptionist's office feature the original hardwood polished floors with a blue Persian rug in the reception area. A restored original light fixture is in the receptionist's area and another in Dr. Cave's office. The front door is the original one. Four transoms are left over the doors, one in Dr. Cave's office, two in the reception area and one in the laboratory. The mirrored door to the lab is original. The back door is original as is the one to the doctor's office in which there is stained glass. The bookshelves in the doctor's office were the original litchen cabinet restored with original hardware. Some of the ceilings were lowered from 9 feet 9 inches to about 8 feet. The fireplace was removed from the living room as were the three chimneys from the roof. One solid oak medicine cabinet and one armchair which Dr. Cave found in the top of the barn are original furnishings.

The original home was six rooms and a bath with a screened in back porch. A staircase at the front entrance led to two narrow bedrooms with two closets upstairs. The stairway has been moved to the back of the house with a private entrance, and the upstairs area has been opened up to one large room serving as kitchen, dining room and living room with a bedroom and bath serving as an efficiency apartment.

All the rooms are wall-papered, the exterior walls are plastered over 18 inch solid stone and the interior walls were wood lathe and plaster. One wall in the reception area is original. All windows have been sealed with sheets of thermo-pane on the outside. Central heating and air conditioning keep it comfortable downstairs.

The 1910 Fred Poffenbach home at 410 Gregg stood on the original site of the First Baptist Church which was destroyed by fire after having been previously swept away by a tornado. Florence Poffenbach Luker, Fort Worth, the eldest daughter, said, "Entrance through th efront door on the East led into a foyer which led through two columns into the living room to the right or front bedroom to the left. The original home had no hallway between the dining room and bedrooms as there is now, so the rooms were larger. Sliding doors are between the living and dining rooms. A door to the left in the dining room leads into the large hall off of which are the bedrooms and at the end of which is the bath. The kitchen is off the dining room. A long, screened-in back porch was used as a sleeping porch in summer." The original house had a front porch which rounded to the south as many homes did in those days, with a solid railing and square columns." Mrs. Poffenbach had her piano in the living room where she taught piano lessons. Poffenbach was a mail clerk for the Texas and Pacific Railway to El Paso. There were three children in the family, the youngest of whom, Frederick Jr., was born in the home on Gregg.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat (Wanda Heckler) Buske bought the Poffenbach home recently and had it moved 4.6 miles north on the Gail Highway, on one acre of land given to them by Wanda's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. Heckler, 1808 in. The property had previously belonged to an aunt, the late Loleda Marino. Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kaufman and Katy Kernodle, owners and operators of the Fenstra Restaurant which occupied the house a short time, renovated it in 1977, installing central heat and air conditioning. These owners completely stripped the walls of paper and canvas to reveal solid 1x6 wood walls and left them stripped to show their customers how well the house was built. The house now has seven rooms and a bath. The dining room and one bedroom has bay windows. The distinctive oval window in the front of the house has plain glass in it since the Fenestra owners sold the stained glass one that was in it. The fishscale roof with the gingerbread on top is still on. The high ceiling and walls are fully insulated.

The Buske's found some burned timber that had been used in the bathroom when they were re-doing it, and assume that it was from the Baptist church that burned on the original site.

The couple have preserved the hardwood floor in the living room, covering it with polyurethane, but plan to carpet the rest of the house. The bathroom has been re-arranged and paneled, preserving the claw-footed bathtub. The living, dining and kitchen are to be paneled, but they will wallpaper the bedrooms. Bookshelves are planned for one side of the hallway. A concrete porch was poured on the front recently on which will be installed a rail banister. The Buske's are re-doing one room at a time as they have time and the means to do it.

These five homes have witnessed much happiness and sorrow over the years as they sheltered the various Big Spring families that have come and gone from them. Each is a monument to the concern man has for his loved ones.

Bus rules help insure safety of your child

Buses are a way of life five days a week for more than 1,500 Big Spring students. That trip to and from school each day can be safer if parents do their part, according to Leslie Earnst, president of the Big Spring Council of the Parent Teacher Association.

Parents should stress the importance of these common sense bus policies of the Big Spring Independent School District, emphasizes Mrs. Earnst.

- The driver is in charge of the pupils and the bus. Pupils must obey the driver promptly.
- Scuffling, fighting and obscene language are forbidden.
- Bus riders shall not eat or drink on the bus or litter it.
- Pupils must not, at any time, extend arms or heads out of bus windows.
- Riders must be on time. Buses cannot wait beyond their regular schedule for latecomers.
- Pupils must not move about or try to get on or off the bus while it is moving.
- No loud talking and shouting.
- Students must board and exit in an orderly manner. No pushing or shoving at any time.
- No smoking.

Mrs. Earnst adds several tips from the PTA.

- Allow plenty of time to get from home to the bus stop safely.
- Find safe places well off the road in which to await buses.
- Be alert to traffic when approaching or leaving the bus.

All cars approaching loading or unloading school buses which are flashing red lights must be law stop, administrator Don Green reminds local motorists.

Cars meeting a school bus on an undivided highway must stop as well as cars behind the bus. Only when the bus driver turns off his lights, motions the motorist to pass or starts the bus moving should cars pass the bus ... and then cautiously.

A veritable fleet of the familiar yellow vehicles serves Big Spring. Green as school district assistant business manager oversees transportation logistics.

He relates that 17 buses cover regular routes, while two drive special education routes and two more Headstart routes. Three other buses transport building trades, vocational laundry and bowling students. The full fleet of Big Spring school buses also includes six spare buses and three athletic buses.

All this adds up to big business. The tab for keeping the fleet manned, fueled and in good repair comes to a $253,268 slice out of the local school district's budget, and a big slice of responsibility for students who ride the buses to help maintain optimum safety conditions.

"Pretty nice kiddos," Green says of the children who rode the buses the first several days of school. "They've had some brainwashing or something. It's been a good start."

A WAY OF LIFE — Buses are a way of life five days a week for more than 1,500 Big Sprim students. That trip to and from school each day can be safer is parents do their part in stressing the importance of common sense bus policies.

Mrs. Horn runs a tight bus with 'lots of love'

Forty miles a day on the road with more than 200 children would do many people in. Christene Horn has been getting Big Spring kids to school for 15 years, though, and it's obvious she loves it.

Mrs. Horn joins the Big Spring Council of the Parent Teacher Association in urging parents of the more than 1,500 local students who ride buses daily to stress the importance of following bus safety rules.

A familiar face to scores of children, Mrs. Horn drives 55 to 70 Headstart to high school age children in one morning run and 50 Headstart and kindergarten children in a second morning run. She also returns the same children home in two runs each afternoon.

"It's a must that the children sit quietly and observe bus rules," said Mrs. Horn. "I'm a hard disciplinarian. I fear for their safety. I love them."

What kind of person does it take to drive a bus? "A person who loves children," answers Mrs. Horn, herself an old-time PTA worker who raised seven children and is now a grandmother.

Mrs. Horn runs a tight bus with lots of love. She reports that perhaps only four times in her 15 years of service has she had to resort to help from a principal with bus discipline problems.

The few children who do step out of line on Mrs. Horn's bus take home a list of bus rules on which their infraction is circled. Mrs. Horn also writes a personal letter to their parents.

"It is hard to drive, watch traffic and watch children," the veteran bus driver reiterated.

If parents could see the accidents which can happen when even one child ignores bus safety guidelines, they would know how important it is to stress that children be orderly and quiet on the bus, according to Mrs. Horn.

Reporting about the first day back in buses, Mrs. Horn related, "The children were great. All seemed very excited to be starting back to school."

Just like teachers, bus drivers live on in the memories of children. "Are you still driving that bus," Mrs. Horn hears from children of years past now grown and with children of their own riding her bus.

At least two more Big Spring school bus drivers are veterans of at least 15 years behind the wheel like Mrs. Horn, said Don Green who supervises the school district's bus program. They are Mrs. Bonnie Coker and Mrs. Pat Prater, who now directs the bus barn. All but three of the district's bus drivers are women.

Parents can be assured that Big Sprign school bus drivers are specially trained. Green says that each bus driver must hold a bus driver's certificate which is earned by taking a 20-hour bus driving course. Then every three years, drivers must take an 8-hour refresher course.

State law also requires that school bus drivers hold a current Texas chauffeur's license, pass an annual driving record check, have an annual physical exam and be at least 18 years old, according to Green.

Sleepless nights?

How to summon the sandman

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Occasional difficulties in falling asleep are nothing to stay up nights worrying about. Even the most well adjusted person can expect a night of tossing and turning once in a while. Below are some tips on how to summon the sandman, from the September issue of Seventeen.

1. Try to turn in at the same time every night. Set a regular bedtime routine of precise but mundane tasks — such as pulling the shades, laying out the next day's clothes — and perform them in exactly the same order every night. Once it becomes a habit it will automatically trigger a sleep response.

2. Never read, write or eat in bed. Any activity other than sleep that you associate with being in bed will aggravate insomnia.

3. If you like a fast game of racquetball, play it in the morning or afternoon. Overstimulation may sabotage your slumber. On the other hand, a good workout early in the day will help you feel tired enough to fall asleep at night.

4. Say no to coffee, tea, chocolate, and cola drinks after dinner. A good soporific "midnight snack": a cup of warm milk or some cheese.

5. Unless it's absolutely impossible, sleep in a dark, quiet room. Earplugs, masks, even the hum of an air conditioner, are all safe ways to block out unwanted light and noise.

6. Try "progressive muscle relaxation" at bedtime. This is a technique developed by Dr. Edmund Jacobson, a Chicago psychologist, in which you first tense and then relax the muscles in various parts of your body until you're totally relaxed and ready to drift off.

7. If you wake up during the night and can't go back to sleep, don't reward yourself by raiding the refrigerator or watching the late-late show. Such rewards will serve as an incentive to make a habit of waking.

Organization is key to success

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Teens, just 10 minutes a day could make the difference if you want to get organized in order to accomplish more this school year. The key, according to CO-ED Magazine, is choosing priorities — and sticking to them.

Now is a good time of year to make two important lists:

The first should innumerate 10 things you think you should accomplish within the coming year, such as getting an "A" in geometry or losing 10 pounds.

The second list should be a "wish list" of goals you dream of attaining, such as making the varsity swim team.

All items on both lists should then be carefully studied. Is a particular goal really important and what would happen if it were not achieved? Could the attainment of the goal simply be postponed?

After honestly evaluating each entry, the goals should be ranked A, B, or C depending upon their relative importance to one another. From the two lists, one final list should be compiled of the top 10 goals.

Wishing won't make it so, of course, so you should purchase a small 3 x 5 notebook as well as a weekly calendar with room in it to make daily notations. The small notebook should be carried at all times and can be used to jot down all the little day-to-day reminders and chores which will help realize the bigger goals. For example, if an A in math is the big goal, there should be regular notations for extra study sessions. The trick is to decide what must be done daily and then to follow through.

The weekly calendar can be stored at home. On it should be written all the priorities for each day, ranked according to their importance. This calendar also provides space to block out a schedule for achieving long range plans. Ten minutes should be set aside every day in order to consult this calendar. It sounds simple, but done regularly this habit can help you develop good work patterns for the rest of your life.

Bennett descendants gather for reunion

Descendants of early Texas pioneer David A. Bennett, grandfather of John Bennett, Big Spring, are gathering for their first family reunion today.

Approximately 70 family members are attending from points as far away as California and Virginia.

David A. Bennett is credited with building the first house in Dickens County (100 miles north of Big Spring) in the middle 1800s. He and his wife were the parents of 19 children.

The reunion will be highlighted with a barbecue at Comanche Trail Park beginning at 1 p.m.

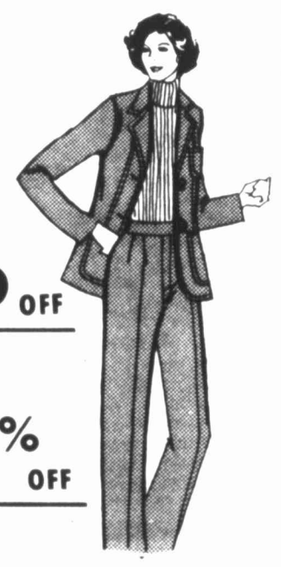

"Big Spring was chosen as the reunion site because it is centrally located among most of the Bennett family members," explained John Bennett.

Expected to be on hand for the festivities is Mrs. Tom Stead, wife of Muskogee, Okla., congressman Tom Stead and first cousin to John Bennett.

Candlelight ceremony solemnized Saturday

MRS. ALAN ROBERT HILL

Kathy Suzanne Shelton and Alan Robert Hill exchanged wedding vows Saturday evening in the Calvary United Methodist Church in Paris, Tex.

Two 15-branch brass candelabrums flanked by two seven-branch candelabrums holding votives enhanced the sanctuary setting as the Rev. Glenn Vickers, pastor, read the 7 p.m. rite. Baskets of greenery and white doves completed the altar scene.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Patricia Hollingsworth Shelton, Paris, Tex., and Thomas Oklan Shelton, Fort Towson, Okla. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Choate Hill, 1419 Sycamore.

Wedding selections were performed by Rodger Keys on the organ; Billy Smith on the guitar; Gene Lockhart on the trumpet; and Robert Lloyd, vocalist.

The bride was presented down the aisle attired in a gown of ivory peau de soie embellished with Alencon lace. The empire bodice was veiled with re-embroidered lace and fashioned with a bateau neckline and brief sleeves.

The bell-shaped princess skirt swept into a wide chapel-length train. She wore a mantilla of ivory imported Alencon lace encircled with delicate edging and sprinkled with lace motifs.

As a accent to her ensemble, the bride carried a white Bible covered with white roses, English ivy, and baby's breath.

Mrs. Thomas Michael Shelton, Lexington, Ky., attended her sister-in-law as matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Sheryl Denise Tucker and Mrs. Timothy Andrew Horner, both of Dallas; and Mrs. Eric Andrew McQuitty, Tacoma, Wash.

Attending the groom as best man was Steve Lawlis, Grand Prairie. Groomsmen were Thomas Michael Shelton, brother of thebride; Robert Judson Lloyd, and Dickie Lepard. Guests wece seated by Don Weeks, Dick Conley and Terry Westbrook.

Laura Ann Shelton and Jennifer Kaye Shelton, both nieces of the bride, served as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Following the ceremony, the Gordon Country Club was the setting for a reception held in honor of the newlyweds.

The refreshment table was decorated with floor-length cloth of ivory and enhanced by a brass wine cooler holding long-stemmed talisman roses. Brass apointments were used.

The bride received her Bachelor of Science degree from East Texas State University where she was a member of Alpha Chi National Honor Fraternity, Gamma Phi Beta Social Sorority; and the society of Advancement of Management, Pi Sigma Epsilon. She is currently employed by Pennzoil Co. in Houston.

The groom received his Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees in education from East Texas State University where he was a member of Phi Mu Alpha Sin Fonia. He is employed in the management program of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., Houston.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. Hill will reside in Houston.

Couple exchange vows in Plainview

Vikki LeAnne Box became the bride of Gerald (Jerry) Eugene Rush in a double-ring ceremony solemnized Saturday evening in the Trinity United Methodist Church, Plainview.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Weymon L. Box, Plainview; and Mr. and Mrs. L.E. Rush, Big Spring.

The Rev. Tommy Ewing, pastor, officiated the 6 p.m. rite before an altar enhanced by an archway of boxwood and gypsophila accented with white bows. A kneeling bench was ced in the center.

Completing the sanctuary setting were matching bouquets of white, yellow and bronze daisy mums. Large white bows marked the pews.

Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Joe Berry, organist and vocalist; and Joe Berry, vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose to wear a gown of imported chiffonet. Fashioned with a molded bodice and frosted with shiny Venice lace, the gown featured a high sheer neckline encircled with petite Venice lace. Sheer, layered angel sleeves fell to the wrist.

A full, fluid skirt extended to chapel length from a crescent waistline. It was enhanced with a split overlay edged with matching lace.

To complete her ensemble, she wore a waltz-length veil of imported silk illusion outlined with petite Venice lace and attached to a Juliet cap.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white daisy poms tied with lace and satin streamers.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was Liz Dunning of Lubbock. Bridesmaid was Karen Shelby, also of Lubbock.

The maid of honor wore an apricot flock dot organza gown which fell to floor length. It was fashioned with an A-line skirt which featured a lace flounce ruffle at the hemline.

The bridesmaid wore an identical gown of maize flock dot organza.

Serving the groom as best man was Chris L. Arias, Lubbock. The bride's brother, Kevin Box, Plainview, was groomsmen.

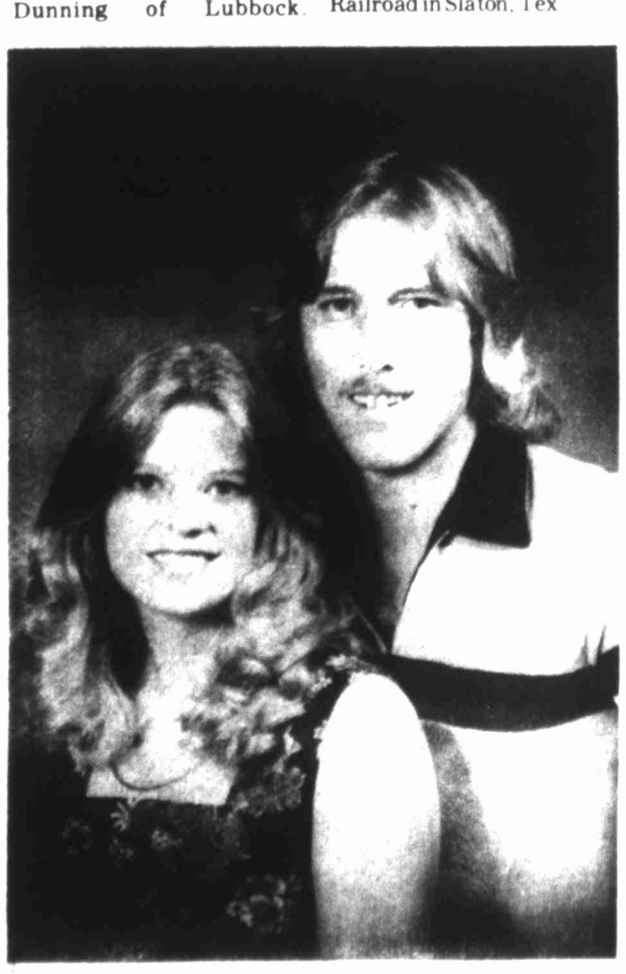

Immediately following the ceremony, the newlyweds were feted with a reception in the church fellowship hall. Guests were registered by Mrs. Peggy Jones, sister of the groom, of Farmer's Branch, and Mrs. Faynell Hawks of El Paso, aunt of the bride.

Lace cloth draped the refreshment table which was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with yellow roses. Enhancing the setting as centerpeice was an arrangement of yellow, bronze and white daisy mums.

Serving were Mrs. Joe King, Belinda Fortenberry and Sheri Hawks, cousin of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of Plainview High School and attended West Texas State University. The groom graduated from Big Spring High School and received his Bachelor of Science degree in zoology from Texas Tech University.

Upon returning from a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., Mr. and Mrs. Rush will make their home in Lubbock where the bride is employed by the A. B. Dick Company as a secretary. The groom works as brakeman for Santa Fe Railroad in Slaton, Tex.

Methodist church wedding site

Baskets of white gladiolus and giant chrysanthemums decorated the altar setting as wedding vows were spoken between Marianne Murphy and Ralph Hayden Norris Jr., Saturday afternoon in the First United Methodist Church.

Focalpoint of the scene was a white silk velvet kneeling pillow trimmed with ropes of pearls and white satin ribbon. Miniature palm trees completed the sanctuary setting as Dr. Edwin Chappell, pastor, officiated the 2 p.m. rite.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Patti Lummus Murphy and William Thomas Murphy, both of Paris, Tex. Parents of the groom are Mrs. Doyle Conway, Sand Springs, and Ralph H. Norris Sr., Fort Worth.

Providing music at the organ was Charles Parham. Serving as vocalist was Mrs. Charles Parham.

The bride was presented down the aisle attired in an original gown from the House of Priscilla. The nostalgic creation of candlelight silk organza and hand-run re-embroidered Alencon lace embellished with iridescent paillettes and pearls, featured a molded bodice with high lace collar and short lace sleeves.

Sculptured ovals of pearls and paillettes were traced on the gown's candlelight silk illusion yoke. The controlled skirt fell in soft folds from the natural waistline and swept into a chapel-length train.

The bride's court-length mantilla of imported silk illusion and re-embroidered Alencon lace was held by a tiny bridal toque.

She carried five long-stemmed, antique white roses tied with ribbons and greenery.

Mrs. Mike Rhodes, Paris, Tex., attended her sister as matron of honor. She wore a gown of dusty rose pink fashioned with double spaghetti straps and an empire waistline from which fell soft pleats. A matching chiffon capelet completed her ensemble.

Dennis Warrington served the groom as best man. Guests were seated by Patrick Murphy, brother of the bride, Paris, Tex.; Kenneth Conway, brother of the groom; and Don Anderson.

Flower girls were Kristen Leigh Murphy and Meredith Lee Rhodes, both nieces of the bride, Paris, Tex.

Mr. and Mrs. Norris were feted with a reception in Garrett Hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

An heirloom cloth of delicate Normandy lace, handmade by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Clarence Murphy, decorated the reception table. A multi-branch silver standing candelabrum filled with a mixture of white flowers enhanced the setting as centerpiece.

Members of the houseparty included Tracy Brady, Mrs. Steve Lacy, Mrs. Dennis Warrington, Lee Ann Newberry, and Mrs. Pat Murphy, sister-in-law of the bride.

Having received her Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees in communication pathology from Texas Christian University, the bride is currently employed as speech pathologist for the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

The groom received his Bachelor of Business Administration degree from North Texas State University and his Master of Business Administration degree from Sul Ross State University. He is assistant personnel director of the Big Spring State Hospital.

Following a wedding trip to Mexico City and Acapulco, the newlyweds will make their home in Big Spring.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Sue Drake, Odessa. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fulesday, 4039 Vicky.

Garage sales:

Marketing tips from the pros

You'll earn twice as much money on a garage sale if you use the marketing techniques of garage, tag and estate sale specialists. The following money-making tactics from the pros are selected from a current Family Circle magazine feature, "Garage Sales: How To Double Your Money."

To begin with, says the article, think of your sale as "tag" rather than "garage," and separate your merchandise according to type and value. Items such as furniture, tableware, jewelry and clothing will sell best in the house itself, while pots and pans, appliances, old books and magazines, toys, tools and garden equipment should remain in the garage.

Advertise. Make signs on brightly colored oaktag and tack them onto trees and telephone poles, especially on main streets near your home. Make your message big, bold and brief (example; "TAG SALE, SAT. — SUN., 10-5 1525 Oakland") and draw an arrow on the sign to point drivers in the right direction. (Decency requires you to take your signs down as soon as the sale is over!) Also pin up messages in your supermarket, library and bank. Use an eye-catching graphic, like a cardboard cutout of your house imprinted with your message.

Advertise in newspapers in your town and neighboring towns as well. It pays. Be specific in your ads. For example, don't say: "Garage sale, moving, appliances." Instead, say: "KitchenAid dishwasher, 7' refrig-freezer, lawn tractor like brand-new."

Display your merchandise with both sales appeal and security in mind. Arrange more-or-less valuable jewelry in a cabinet with shelves and a clear glass door. Or, in a pinch, cover a suction with dark velvet and pin each item to it. Put small, valuable items on a windowsill and mantel behind a table where you'll be positioned. That way they're visible and safe — if a customer wants to examine a piece, he'll have to ask you to hand it over.

Naturally, setting the right price is essential. To find out what your more valuable pieces might go for, take them to a few antique dealers and try to sell them, anything you later get over the price(s) they offer you is pure gravy. The Family Circle article also gives a guide to garage-sale pricing on everything from appliances to TV sets.

Last, and certainly not least, Family Circle recommends the following security measures:

Have at least one "guard" stationed in each room open to the public.

Rope off areas of your home not in use and post signs to that effect.

Have only one door through which customers can leave, and seat the cashier near that door.

List your major items with their prices and keep this list near the cash box. This way the cashier can double-check each transaction.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Texas with a B.S. in English. He has done graduate work at the University of Virginia.

Both have taught at Midland College and are currently teachers in the Odessa School System.

A YOUNG ADVENTURER — Michael Cogswell points to the Appalachian Trail while his stepfather, Jeff Cogswell, holds him, and mother, Reina, looks on. Michael, 6, is halfway to becoming the youngest person ever to walk the entire trail, from Maine to Georgia while accompanying his parents.

For wild flowers and dried foods

Hikers give up routine life

NEW YORK (AP) — When Michael Cogswell finishes a 2,100-mile trek along the Appalachian Trail — making meals, drinking spring water, hiking as far as 28 miles a day — he intends to start first grade.

Michael, 6, is halfway to becoming the youngest person ever to walk the entire trail, from Maine to Georgia.

His mother and stepfather, Reina and Jeff Cogswell, are also looking beyond their Appalachian journey: they hope for a lifetime of romantic adventures.

Jeff Cogswell is 33, a beefy former yacht deliverer whose mustache serves as a lid for a broad smile. He says he's always had a penchant for adventure — bicycling cross-country, floating on a flatboat down the Mississippi, crossing the Pacific on a Polynesian canoe without food, water or navigational aids.

He settled down to deliver yachts last year, and met Reina, 23, a cashier at a Miami sandwich shop. They married a month later.

"Everybody wants to meet someone and fall in love and live happily ever after," said Cogswell. "I had met a lot of girls, but none who would want to pick up and just seek adventure."

Reina is different. "I like the idea of escaping from the hustle and bustle and the crime, and going out and doing things. And this way, we can all be together as a family all the time," she said.

They sold everything they owned — their car, their home in Miami, all their belongings — and set out on the trail April 1.

The Cogswells are making their journey in two parts. First, they hiked from the trail's southern terminus to its midpoint in Harper's Ferry, W.Va., arriving there Aug. 10.

To avoid New England's capricious autumn weather, they plan to drive to Maine in a van, then hike the rest of the trail south to Harper's Ferry, arriving at Thanksgiving.

The hike, they said, was to be a tune-up for other adventures. The question was whether to take Michael, Reina's son by a previous marriage, or send him to stay with his grandmother in California.

Michael made the decision: he wanted to go. Officials for the Appalachian Trail Conference say they believe the youngest "through-hiker" (one who hikes the whole trail) to have made the journey in one trip so far was 12.

"One day," said Cogswell, "Reina asked me how to spell 'relief.' Before I could say anything, Michael said, 'R-O-L-A-I-D-S.' I couldn't find a rope to string him up with, so I decided to take him along, where there would be no more TV...

"At first, I didn't know if Michael would be able to do it or not. I fully expected to have to send him home after a week," he said.

And at first, Michael did have his problems. He tired easily and fell a lot — "584 times so far," said his mother. "We've been counting."

But then, Cogswell said, came a "transformation." The 40-pound, blond youngster now carries his 8½-pound pack without a whimper. He's learned the names of 20 wildflowers and how to cook the dehydrated camp meals. He says he likes watching the "Peter Cottontail" rabbits, but still misses television.

One day, in the Smoky Mountains, Cogswell heard his son screaming so loud he thought "he'd been bitten by a snake or caught by a bear. He wouldn't stop screaming, and I thought about what you see in the movies and I slapped him. It worked."

Michael pointed in the direction of "big black thing." It was the first wild boar he'd ever seen.

"It scared me half to death," said the boy.

For only the third time in his life, Michael saw snow and threw snowballs. He slept in a firehouse-hostel in Waynesboro, Va., and climbed on the trucks, quite an occasion for a boy who wants to be a fireman when he grows up.

He lost a baby tooth along the trail, and the "Tooth fairy" put a toy truck and two quarters under his sleeping bag.

"Even the Easter Bunny found him along the trail," Cogswell said.

Right now, the family is surviving on money from the sale of their home and car. They hope to sell books and photos of their exploits and give lectures to make "enough money to survive. We don't want to be rich."

Cogswell said he hopes to take Michael along when on as many of the adventures as possible, teaching him with correspondence courses.

Granddads of today don't fit stereotype

NEW YORK (AP) — There are an estimated 11 million granddads in the United States today, and the majority are young in spirit, dedicated to their work, their families and their communities, a recent survey indicates.

"The comprehensive portrait of the typical granddad of 1980 does not conform to traditional stereotypes — either that of the kindly, old bewhiskered gentleman rocking away his golden years on the front porch or the more tragic image of the lonely soul cut off from society," says research director Dr. John Crothers Pollock.

"Both types certainly do exist today but they are in the minority," he adds, citing the study, "Granddads in America: The Young at Heart," conducted by Research & Forecasts Inc. of New York City, a national research organization, and sponsored by Old Granddad. The grandfathers surveyed ranged in age from 33-92.

Granddads show a deep involvement with their families, reports Pollock, a social scientist. Almost 90 percent of American granddads are married to their first and only wife, and three of five see their grandchildren at least once a week.

"At a time when polls indicate Americans are concerned about declining morale and a slippage of traditional values, this profile strikes a largely positive note," Pollock points out. "It suggests that family life may be stronger than is generally believed."

Among the key findings of the survey:

— Despite the fact that granddads enjoy an extremely close relationship with the grandchildren and feel they are being brought up properly (only 8 percent often disagree), there is noticeable disapproval of the behavior of youth today. Just over half (53 percent) say that today's youth behave less well than those of yesteryear.

— Home-oriented granddads tend to be active with hobbies, gardening, doing odd jobs about the house (42 percent), playing cards and visiting family and friends. Sixteen percent often perform volunteer work and are active in their communities. Traveling as a leisure activity is enjoyed by 65 percent, while 24 percent go dancing regularly — and that includes disco.

— American granddads today are completely in step with the trend to fitness and health, with the age having little significant relationship to health. They engage in a whole range of physical activities, from walking (73 percent) to yoga (1 percent); 25 percent swim regularly; 22 percent bicycle; 18 percent engage in calisthenics; bowlers number 17 percent and golfers 15 percent.

— Of granddads who are working full time, 76 percent report good to excellent health, compared with 59 percent of those working part time and 57 percent of those who are retired. And 74 percent of those surveyed have no plans to retire.

"The current life expectancy for males is 74 years of age," says Pollock. "It is therefore reasonable to assume that a substantial number of today's youthful, spirited, fully involved granddads are likely to become great-granddads. Their affirmative views about family, work and life represent a strong sign of hope for the future. Granddads are a social resource for younger Americans, positive examples of what youth should become."

Are you smarter than your younger brother?

NEW YORK, N.Y. — True or false, firstborns tend to be somewhat brighter than later children? If you're a firstborn, you probably said true. And you'll be happy to learn that you're absolutely right. On the average, firstborns do score higher on intelligence tests than their siblings.

In recent years, scientists have exploded old myths and developed new insights into personality and behavior. Below are some findings that might help you figure out what makes people tick, from September's Seventeen.

It is a myth that women have a weaker sex drive than men. The sex research of Masters and Johnson in recent years shows that women's basic physical capabilities for sexual response may actually surpass those of men.

We used to think that personality and behavior patterns became fixed in the first few years of life. A host of newer studies show that dramatic change can take place throughout a person's life span.

There is little correlation between the divorce of parents and the later divorce of their children. What affects a child is the quality of his or her relationship with the parents, regardless of whether the marriage breaks up.

Typically, a young woman will marry a man with a background similar to her father's — in economic level, occupational class and general life style.

Contrary to the image created by some movies and books, gifted children do not generally grow up to be unhappy or maladjusted. In fact, one study showed that gifted children tend to be blessed with good social adjustment and, later, are relatively free of marital and sexual problems.

Studies now demonstrate that men are just as capable of "mothering" children as women. Whether it's the mother or father who holds, feeds and stimulates the baby appears to be unimportant: Babies develop strong feelings of attachment of whichever parent is the primary source of such comforts.

Denita's Beauty Basics

Q: I'd like to line my eyes with an eye liner, but I don't quite know how. Please help me in this area.

A: Lining the eyes can be a marvelous asset to your eye make-up.

If your eyes are small and deep set, avoid lining the entire eye. Remember, the idea of eye make-up is to give the eyes a larger look. Lining the upper lid may give the appearance of a heavier, deeper set and smaller eye. If this is the case, stick to gently lining the lower lid below the lash line with a soft kohl pencil. If you are just beginning, choose a soft brown and barely stroke on the lower lid. Never make this a heavy, definite line. Lucky you if your eyes are large, but if they are not, use your pupil as your guide when lining. Later you may want to work with different colors to coordinate with your eye shadows.

This may take some getting use to — so experiment, you may discover a beautiful new set of eyes!
