Damon Runyon Says President Shows Symptoms Of Cub Leanings

(Copyt., 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA Oct. 14.—President Hoover sat with his hands folded across his stomach this afternoon and saw the Philadelphia Athletics win the championship of the baseball world by a last-minute rally against the Chicago Cubs.

I strongly suspect President Hoover of Chicago sympathy, possibly due to the fact that the Cubs trained out yonder in his California sunshine.

His hat would twitch in the Chicago pinches this afternoon and he was about the only man among the 30,000 packed in the premises, who didn't leave up in the last half of the ninth inning and let out a whoop when George William Haas, called "Mule" the gangling outfielder of the Athletics, slugged a blistering hot driver over the right field fence into the street outside, scoring a runner ahead of him and tying the count.

Pinch Hitter Whiffs

Perce Malone, forlorn hope of the Cubs, had the Philadelphians shut out, 2 to 0 up to that moment and had fanned Walter Edward French, the once great football player of the Army, for the first out of the inning, Walter Edward batting in place of Rube Walberg, the Athletics' pitcher.

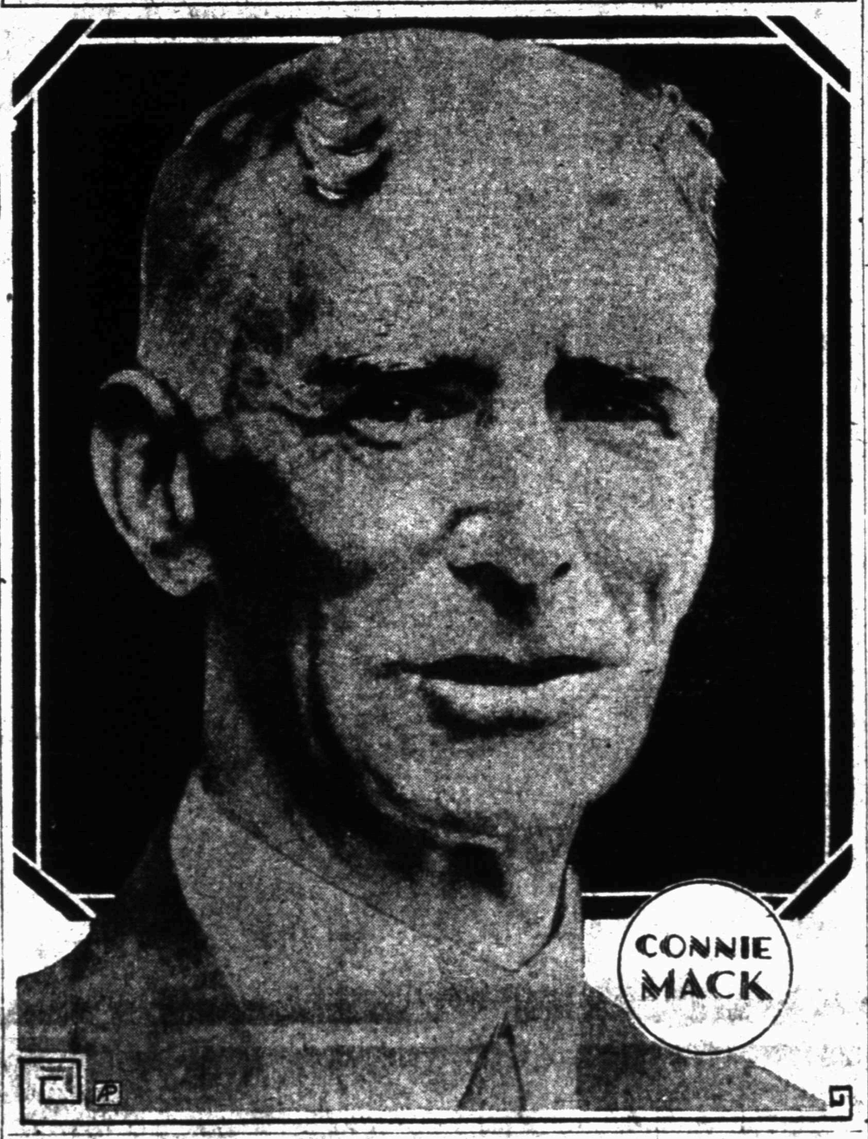

Then it was that Max Bishop, the second baseman of the Athletics, slugged a single down the third base line and George William Haas, called "Mule," stepped in with the homer. This Haas is

FOOD FOR SQUIRRELS

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Because the Athletics won the world's series today Forrest F. Cole of Dallas must knock flies all the way to Shibe park, Philadelphia. Ernest Luttrell, his betting opponent will accompany him, furnishing a fungo bat and balls. They will start tomorrow morning and hope to be in Philadelphia by Feb. 1.

CITY ORDERS PARKING TESTS

Autos to Stop at Angle Of 27 Degrees

In the hope of relieving traffic congestion on the downtown streets of Wichita Falls, the city council Monday night authorized an experiment to determine the advisability of parking automobiles at an angle of 27 degrees with the curb on the more busy streets where cars are at present parked at a 45-degree angle.

The suggestion was brought before the council following discussion of a similar ordinance recently passed in Houston. City Manager George D. Fairtrace stated he would mark off parking spaces according to the new idea in the block on Indiana avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets for the tests here.

In the event the system proves effective, it will be adopted for all downtown streets running north and south.

The aldermen authorized City Manager Fairtrace to present a new franchise, which has been prepared for some time, to the Wichita Falls Traction company for its approval and acceptance. In the event the company does not accept the franchise as presented by

Aged Skipper Of A's Confesses To 'Mental Treason'

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—Somewhere in Philadelphia, surrounded by a worshipping family, is a gray, worn old man tonight. His nerves are all but shattered, his heart is trying to pound through his ribs, but the spirit of perfect contentment at last has come to him—Connie Mack.

There are bruises on his back from the gleeful smashes of his ball players and his ribs are sore from hugging. In his ears still ring the shrieks, roars, goans of 30,000 thrill-crazy baseball fans. He'll be all right after a little rest though, for he's gained his life's ambition, another world champion crew of Athletics, after 16 years of struggle and disappointment.

Down the runway to the dressing room he charged today as Bing Miller smashed the double to centerfield that beat the Cubs for the fourth time in the world series. Behind him raged his herd of White Elephants, screaming, clambering all over each other in their excitement. Yet, despite his 67 years, there was none friskier than the veteran pilot of the A's.

He threw his arms about Mule Haas, the sun browned centerfielder who tied the score with a homer in the ninth and Mule, already as pleased with himself as a man can be, tried not to break down entirely in his biggest moment. He struggled to get his arms on Bing Miller as the players swept him into the dressing room.

Through the closed doors came a riot of noise, then a moment's silence, and Connie popped out again and ran frantically down the corridor to his office while it seemed as though every happy fan in Philadelphia tried to reach him with congratulations. Connie lost his hat, and what little breath he had left, on the way.

Once in his own sanctum, all the strain, worry and happiness over the result overcame the aged pilot. He stumbled to his couch, lay motionless for several minutes, hands over his eyes, and finally took a drink of water.

"I guess I overdid it," he said as he pulled himself together. "It

RANGERS HELP NOCONA PROBE

State Police Spend Monday In Montague

With two Texas rangers assisting in the case, Montague county authorities continued Monday their investigations into the shooting of Nocona Saturday night of City Marshal Ed Powell. Powell, in a Nocona hospital apparently fighting a winning fight for life, was shot while attempting to arrest Claud Dix, now held on a charge of assault with intent to murder. A second man has also been named in a similar charge, and his arrest is expected momentarily, County Attorney Temple Yarbrough announced Monday night.

Meanwhile, circumstances of the manner in which the shooting occurred were being discussed in Nocona, each version apparently being different from its predecessor, according to information obtained by The Record News. First reports of the shooting said that when the officer dropped his gun in the course of making the arrest, it exploded, the bullet striking him in the chest. Later county officials indicated the shooting was not accidental, but that the trigger of the gun had been pulled, releasing the shot that felled the city marshal.

County Attorney Yarbrough Monday night told The Record News he would neither confirm nor deny either of the stories. He said, however, that he would issue this state-

C.-C. PRESIDENT PRAISES WORK OF HARRISON

Manager Here Accepts Post As Leader of East Texas Chamber

SUCCESSOR UNNAMED

Directors to Fill Vacancy In Next 30 Days, Says Bullington

Regret at losing constructive leadership and satisfaction at Hubert M. Harrison's material promotion was expressed Monday afternoon by Orville Bullington, president of the chamber of commerce, following the announcement of Mr. Harrison's election as vice president and general manager of the East Texas chamber of commerce.

The selection of the general manager of the local organization by the executive committee of the East Texas chamber of commerce was made at Nacogdoches Monday morning to fill a vacancy created recently by the resignation of H. L. Blanton, now manager of the Houston chamber of commerce. Mr. Harrison left Sunday after receiving a request by telephone to come to Longview, headquarters of the organiaztion, for a conference with its directors and a number of other chamber of commerce officials from other points.

Work Commended

Mr. Bullington, in his statement, commended the work of Mr. Harrison during his 10 years of service here, and remarked the appointment as constituting a material advancement in the field of chamber of commerce work. The work of the retiring manager, Mr. Bullington said, was done "while the city was being transformed from a hec-

Killer-Elephant Wanted for Zoo

Despite indications that the city council will oppose the move, Dr. R. H. Graham, Lions' club president here, has hopes of securing for the Municipal zoo the giant elephant, Black Diamond, which was been slated for an early death by Al G. Barnes circus officials as a penalty for killing a woman and injuring a man at Corsicana last Saturday.

Doctor Graham wired circus officials Monday night asking that the animal be spared and shipped here. In so doing he pointed out that such an elephant couldn't be secured for less than $10,000 and that lodged in a proper enclosure it would be harmless.

The city council Monday night refused to discuss the matter.

Man Arrested Here Is Sentenced in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 14. (UP)—Judge Edgar S. Vaught sentenced 10 men in federal court today.

Edward L. McKenzie, arrested last week at Wichita Falls charged with altering a government check, was sentenced to six months in jail. Elz Pitts received the same sentence.

P. L. Walker, Oklahoma City, was given a year on a narcotic charge. Five men were sentenced for liquor violations. Two drew four month sentences for stealing automobile tires.

Appeal Denied Five Under Death Sentence

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (INS)—The supreme court today denied the petition of five convicts under sentence of death in Folsom prison, California, for murder of another convict in an attempt to escape in May, 1928, for a writ of review. The convicts are Anthony Brown, Eddie Stokes, Walter E. Burke, James H. Gregg and Eugene Crosby. They denied they had a fair trial.

More Duties Suggested For Federal Farm Board

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (UP)—Transfer of the grain futures department and the entire bureau of agricultural economics to the federal farm board was suggested today by Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma, in a letter to President Hoover.

The letter followed the recent announcement that the cooperative marketing division of the department of agriculture had been transferred to the federal agency.

Pilot Sans License Charged at Dallas

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Edward Vintell was charged today while operating an airplane without a pilot's license, the first charge of its kind to be lodged in this county.

The complaint was lodged by Preston Sneed, director of municipal airports and charged that Vintell flew an airplane yesterday and that he does not have a pilot's license. A new state law requires pilots to have licenses.

Former School Head Charged With Embezzlement Here

R. E. Brewster Makes Three Bonds of $750 in Alleged Appropriation of Iowa Park Funds

Charged with the embezzlement of school funds, R. E. Brewster, superintendent of schools at Iowa Park until last spring and now head of the system at Port Neches, was arrested in the south Texas city Sunday on three Wichita county indictments, according to information given Monday by Sheriff W. G. Bralley. The former school head, brought back here Monday morning in the custody of Dick Morris, deputy sheriff, was later released under three $750 bonds.

Brewster, who spent several years in Iowa Park as teacher, principal, and superintendent of schools, is charged in the indictments with embezzling school funds on three separate occasions in January, February, and March of 1929. The charges, returned by the 30th district grand jury last week, specifically accuse the defendant of turning to his own use two items of $250 each and a third amounting to $190, all the property of the school district.

When he was not re-appointed to head the Iowa Park schools by the district trustees last spring, Brewster completed a contract with the Port Neches schools where he had been employed during the present term, officials were informed.

Two Boys Killed As Car Hits Train

WEATHERFORD, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Two high school boys were killed and two were probably fatally injured here tonight as their automobile crashed into the side of a moving freight locomotive on North Main street.

Joe Bounds and Robert Chambers were dead when they were taken from the wreck of their car. Doctors said there was little hope that Clinton Jackson, or his brother Carl would live.

D. C. Wilmon, a fifth occupant of the car, was injured almost as badly but doctors had not completed diagnosis of his hurts. He was thought to have a fractured skull.

The boys were coming to town from the north side of the city when they approached the Texas & Pacific crossing which is partially hidden by an elevator. The freight train was moving out of town and had gotten up considerable speed when the automobile crashed into the locomotive, hitting it about halfway between the front of the locomotive and the cab. The automobile was demolished.

Miller Huggins Leaves Estate of $250,000

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Oct. 14. (AP)—Miller Huggins, late manager of the New York Yankees, left an estate of a quarter of a million dollars, the reading of his will here today disclosed.

Huggins' sister, Miss Myrtle Huggins, received the bulk of the estate, $200,000, and his two brothers, Arthur and Clarence, $10,000 each.

Four other legates, each receiving $500 each are Byron Clark Jr., and Byron Clark of Brooklyn, N. Y., and two aunts, Matilda Reid of this city and Emma Reid of Burns, Tenn.

Sky Traffic Opens Impenetrable Siam

BANGKOK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Siam's jungles, which once resounded only with the screech of parrots and the chatter of monkeys, have been opened by the airplane, according to Don C. Bliss, trade commissioner here.

In the last six years, planes in commercial service have flown 241,184 miles and carried 3,696 passengers without accident. More than 64,700 tons of merchandise and 17,000 bags of mail have been transported.

Government Wins Review Of Income Tax Decision

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (UP)—The government today was granted supreme court review of lower court decisions upholding an equal division of family income between husband and wife, for income tax return purposes, when husband and wife have made a contract for equal division of income.

Pat Neff Named To Fill Railroad Commission Post

AUSTIN, Oct. 14. (AP)—Former Governor Pat M. Neff of Waco was chosen today to succeed Clarence E. Gilmore, late chairman of the state railroad commission, who died Thursday.

Neff gained experience in railroad matters as a member of the United States board of mediation. He was appointed by President Coolidge to fill an unexpired term. President Coolidge selected him for a second term but the senate had not confirmed the appointment when President Hoover took office. The new president named former Governor O. B. Colquitt to the place.

While the railroad commission chooses its own chairman, it was considered that Neff would be given that position. His services as railroad commissioner will end in January, 1931, unless he runs for reelection next year.

SECOND OIL MEET CALLED

Drilling Committee to Report Wednesday

Oil operators and business men of Wichita, Clay, Archer, Young and Wilbarger counties are being invited to a luncheon at the Wichita club at noon on Wednesday, Oct. 16, to hear the report of the deep oil drilling planning committee appointed Sept. 27, according to Frank Kell, chairman of the invitation committee.

More than 75 men of the five counties were present at the first general meeting on Sept. 27, and at least that many are expected to be present Wednesday in response to letters now being mailed, it was said. The planning committee appointed on the earlier date consists of N. H. Martin, chairman; J. J. Perkins, W. M. McGregor, J. C. Mytinger, Dr. A. B. Edwards of Henrietta, Frank M. Power of Archer City, and Luther Webb of Vernon. They were instructed to incorporate the best views obtainable in a tentative plan for inaugurating a campaign of deep drilling in this section, and have held a public hearing since that time before which numerous citizens appeared to make recommendations.

According to the purposes detailed on Sept. 27, the report to be given Wednesday by the planning committee will be submitted for any amendments or revisions which the general meeting may see fit to make, or for rejection for some other plan.

Many Reported Killed In Soviet-Chinese Clash

LONDON, Oct. 14. (INS)—Tremendous casualties in a battle between Soviet and Chinese troops on the Amur river, Manchuria, were reported in Mukden dispatches today. Five hundred Chinest sailors were drowned in the sinking of three Chinese gunboats when Russian forces captured the town of Lahasusu. The Russians also sustained heavy losses.

LION SLAPS TRAINER

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Becoming enraged while he was being fed today a lion at the menagerie here for the state fair slapped its trainer, Hans Wolff with its paw, severely cutting Wolff's ear. Four stitches were necessary to dress the wound.

BORGER DEATH CASE APPEARS NEAR SOLUTION

Dallas Officers Believe Man Held Is Leader of Oil Town Criminals

PACE, OWNBEY RESIGN

Martial Law to End Soon As Result of Officials' Resignations

DALLAS, Oct. 14. (UP)—Belief that a suspect being held in jail here tonight may be the means of clearing up the mysterious slaying on Sept. 13 of District Attorney John A. Holmes at Borger is held by Dallas police.

The man, well known to police in this and other states as a bootlegger and a gambler, is thought to have been one of the leaders in Borger's underworld activities prior to the declaration of martial law there and to have made his "getaway" when the rangers arrived.

He is said to have been once charged with murder of a woman but escaped conviction.

Officers are in communication with military officials at Borger concerning the suspect, who will be further questioned when additional information concerning his activities in the oil town is obtained from that source.

MAYOR AND SHERIFF TURN IN RESIGNATIONS

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 14. (AP)—Martial law in Hutchinson county was climaxed today by announcement of the resignations of Sheriff Joe Ownbey and Mayor Glenn Pace of Borger.

Brigadier General Jacob Wolters in charge of Texas national guard troops, made the announcement and said he expected the county to be freed of military rule Wednesday or Thursday.

No successors were appointed, but General Wolters said he expected the county commissioners and the Borger city commissioners to fill Ownbey and Pace's places within the next day or so. The general also announced he expected the City Commissioners, J. W. Crabtree and J. E. Higgins, to resign after they appointed a mayor with the approval of Clem Calhoun, district attorney.

The resignation of Ownbey, General Wolters added, would automatically oust from office all of the sheriff's appointees.

General Wolters' announcement came on the heels of the convening the county grand jury by Judge E. J. Pickens. In a 45-minute address, the jurist told the inquisitorial body its investigation would enumerate every crime in the penal code of Texas, and asked the jurors to use every lawful means available to rid the county of its alleged criminal elements.

Martial law was declared for Hutchinson county Sept. 30 after Texas rangers, sent here by Gov. Dan Moody to investigate the slaying of John A. Holmes, had alleged there existed in the county a conspiracy between certain county and city officials and a criminal element.

Woman Jumps to Death From Dentist's Window

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 14. (UP)—Mrs. H. N. Reed, wife of a railroad employe here, waited in the outer office of a dentist for several moments today, then rushed to a window and leaped through, falling 11 stories to death in a court below.

A former county coroner, Dr. H. E. Moss, was the only other occupant of the waiting room, which adjoined the dental office of Dr. J. T. Longstreth. Doctor Longstreth said Mrs. Reed had made a similar attempt two years ago when he was working on her teeth.

Adverse Report Filed On Colorado River Project

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, formally submitted an adverse report to congress today on the proposed improvement of the Colorado river in Texas, calling for the construction of a channel suitable for the transportation of heavy freight as far up the river as possible. The district engineer at Galveston previously had disapproved the proposed project.

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

Gins over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma were at a practical standstill Monday with cotton picking almost suspended because of wet weather. Most of the gins ran around a dozen bales, consisting of cotton that had been picked before the showers over the week-end. Clear weather over a good part of the territory indicated that production would resume its normal level within a few days, unless hampered by additional rains. Prices were unchanged to 25 points lower over the territory. The following prices prevailed Monday, according to reports to The Record News from correspondents in the principal interior markets:

Oil Test Near Devol Begins Drilling Away

Special to The Record News.

DEVOL, Okla., Oct. 14.—Considerable interest is shown here in the Staley and Chenault No. 1 J. K. Crane test, one and one-half miles south of Devol, which was spudded in this morning. It will be drilled to 2300 feet and is located in the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 35, township 4 south, range 14 north, Tillman county. It is three miles northwest of the Burk northwest field in Wichita county, Texas.

Senate Begins Debate On Wheat Importation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (UP)—The senate today began debate on an amendment proposed by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, to prevent wheat from being imported into this country free of duty for milling in bond and export. The amendment would require the payment of the full duty on all such wheat.

Drydock Company Loses Review of Debt Suit

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—The supreme court today refused to pass on the claim of the Galveston Drydock and Construction company against the United States shipping board merchant fleet corporation for approximately $27,000 for repairs to the steamship Latham.

The dry dock company obtained judgment in the district court for Southern Texas, but it was set aside by the circuit court of appeals which held the suit could not be maintained against the fleet corporation. It took the view the fleet corporation in ordering repairs to the steamship was acting as agent for the shipping board and could not be held liable for costs.

Two Jurors Selected to Hear Case Of Former Officer Accused by Girl

Special to The Record News.

PAMPA, Texas, Oct. 14.—Two jurors had been selected late today in the trial of Tom C. Johnson, Wheeler county deputy sheriff and former Wichita county peace officer, on charges of a statutory offense brought by a young Chillicothe girl. The jurors are L. N. McCullough, Pampa lumberman, and L. D. Rider, tool dresser in the Gray county oil fields. A night session was ordered for further selection of jurors.

Defendant's application for continuance or postponement on account of the absence of two material witnesses, was overruled by ment: That Powell had been shot while engaged in a scuffle with Dix, whom he was trying to arrest. The manner of the shooting, he said, he would not comment on. What part the second man charged in the shooting played was not made clear.

Mr. Yarbrough was likewise reticent on the part played by Texas rangers in the investigation Monday. He said Rangers Jim McCoy and Purvis arrived at Nocona shortly before noon and departed about 5 p. m. He declined to say whether Nocona officers had asked assistance from the rangers in the case, or whether the rangers had arrived in Nocona in connection with some other investigation.

Attendants at the Nocona hospital late Monday night reported that Mr. Powell, after going through a slight relapse late in the afternoon, was resting well, having apparently regained the ground lost.

Mack Confesses Mental Treason

was almost too wonderful.

"Mine is the gamest team in baseball. All season long they have been winning games like the last two for me with desperate rallies and today I turned mental traitor to them.

"Mentally I was on the train to Chicago, wondering who I'd pitch Wednesday when Haas hit that high fast ball over the fence and tied the score. Almost before I could 'get back' in the ball park Simmons hit one, then Miller and the game was over.

"I had a feeling all along that I shouldn't give up and now I know that if it hadn't been Haas and Simmons and Miller it would have been someone else. All year they've done that nine out of ten times when we needed a game. I have a remarkable ball club.

"You've been wondering all along why Lefty Grove hasn't started a game. Now I can tell you that he hasn't been feeling well. Nothing serious, but not well enough to pitch and last nine innings. His pitching fingers have been sore, too.

"I started Ehmke today because he was anxious to pitch. Any time Howard says he's anxious to pitch I'm anxious to have him pitch. When he smiles at me and says he'd like to work I'll let him do it and he won't fail me often. Today he wasn't quite right.

"The Cubs have a great ball club and I can easily see how they won the National league pennant. They have a fine staff of pitchers a great infield, a superb outfield, and exceptional catching. We won because we outlucked the Cubs as well a diamond. They were speechless at the luck of the game that turned Pat Malone's masterful eight-inning pitching exhibition into defeat. Manager Joe McCarthy could only smile wryly and mutter incoherently about "breaks."

Later Joe pulled himself together and went in to congratulate Connie while the A's, still touched a bit with delirium, sang the chant of the mule that reared and kicked over the fence.

"I hope to live to see you win a world series championship, Joe," Connie said. "I know I will."

Then the worn McGillicuddy embraced the downcast McCarthy and the championship for 1929 was officially awarded.

400 "Good Turns" Daily Only Part Of Fine Program for Boy Scouts

Development of Good Citizenship Chief Aim of Organization, Says Creighton in Outline of Work

Four hundred good turns every 24 houss in Wichita Falls—and that is only an incidental service, say members of the Boy Scout committee of the community chest.

The "daily good turn" idea, observed by millions of Boy Scouts the world over, is probably the best known of the principles ahered to in scouting, but is only a small part of the benefits of the organization.

More than 100 men of Wichita Falls are working today as troop committeemen, merit badge counsellors and scoutmasters, according to Frank B. Creighton, executive secretary. Activities during the past year have included three camp periods, where 203 boys studied nature and woodcraft. More than 150 boys learned to swim, and 42 completed a course in life saving during the summer.

Statistics showing the advantage of Boy Scout work were used in recent statements from Mr. Creighton and J. H. Allison, chairman of the Boy Scout committee. Figures shown by J. A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, show that of the 186 cases of juvenile delinquency handled during the year, only two had ever belonged to any club or organization. The cost of convicting a juvenile was quoted at approximately $200, and the cost of supporting him in a reform school $400 a year. On the other hand, $40,000 is set as the value of an 18-year-old boy to his community.

"Crime costs the nation billions of dollars annually," says Mr. Creighton. "Robbery and murder are planned and carried out almost as casually as goods are bought and sold across the counter. Gangs carry on bloody feuds in city streets. The greatest tragedy of all is the waste, the useless appalling waste, of our nation's young manhood.

"For the majority of criminals are boys and young men. Eighty per cent of them are youths in their early twenties and their vicious careers could have been prevented. They were wantonly neglected during their impressionable years by an indifferent public, by heedless men who allowed them to stumble into citizenship with no positive moral instruction and no religious ideals."

Former Deputy Goes on Trial

Special Judge C. G. Engledow when the trial was called this morning.

The state charges the Chillicothe girl and another, also of Chillicothe were attacked by Johnson and W. W. Davis, former Shamrock, Texas, deputy constable, in Shamrock on the night of March 17 last. Davis likewise faces an assault charge and is scheduled to go on trial here Thursday.

The girls charge they were attacked after they had been released from custody of officers after paying fines on vagrancy charges which were filed against them and also against their two male companions. The boys, also from Chillicothe, were kept in jail for inability to pay the fines, it was said.

District Attorney Clifford Braly is assisted in the prosecution by W. M. Lewright of Pampa, special prosecutor. The defense is represented by Newton P. Willis, former district judge of Borger, Clayton Heare and Marion Reynolds of Shamrock, and Ben P. Allred, Stinnett, formerly district attorney at Wichita Falls.

Johnson formerly was a deputy sheriff at Wichita Falls.

HARRISON TO TAKE NEW JOB

C-C Secretary Accepts East Texas Post

tic boom twon to one of the most beautiful cities in the Southwest.'

Mr. Harrison is expected to return to Wichita Falls Tuesday night and a meeting of the board of directors will be called soon, Mr. Bullington said, for the consideration of his resignation. It was intimated that action on the selection of a successor to Mr. Harrison will be taken within the next 30 days.

The East Texas Camber of Commerce is considered one of the largest and best organized regional chamber of commerce units in the entire country, according to local officials. Mr. Harrison will probably move to Longview, where the headquarters of the organization is located.

Coming from the editorial staff of the Dallas News in May, 1919, Mr. Harrison began a term of service as general manager of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce which has continued for more than 10 years, a distinction achieved by few men thus far in that field of endeavor, according to organization records. His elementary schooling was received at Greenville, Texas, following which period he attended Baylor university, of which he is a graduate.

Bible Teacher

Besides his activities as chamber of commerce manager, Mr. Harrison has participated extensively in numerous civic activities, and has been active in the First Baptist church. He has for some time been teacher of the Men's Bible class there.

Mr. Bullington's statement given the Record News follows:

"I am very glad that Mr. Harrison was elected general manager of the East Texas chamber of commerce, but regret to see him leave Wichita Falls. I have known him for the past 10 years, during which time he has served as manager of the local chamber of commerce, and while I know the position he has accepted will pay considerably more than that which he holds here, and give him a wider field of operation, nevertheless I regret seeing him leave this city.

"He came here during the hectic boom days in 1919 and worked faithfully through the following 10 years, seeing the town grow from a boom oil town to one of the most beautiful cities in the Suthwest. A great many improvements have been started and completed during Mr. Harrison's administration, he having done a great deal of work on street improvements, highway development, park improvement, additional playground facilities; has been active in obtaining increased industrial and transportation facilities, and in all civic and religious affairs of the community. It is with regret that we have to lose Mr. Harrson, but we rejoice in his promotion.

County Cancels Licenses of Light Stations; New Jail Guard Approved

Formal cancellation of existing contracts between the county and the headlight testing stations, effective Oct. 19, was voted by members of the county commissioners' court in their regular session Monday. The commissioners acted at the request of the state highway engineer who is leading a campaign against dangerous night driving conditions. New application forms will have to be signed and new bonds accepted to renew the contracts, the court decided.

The court Monday afternoon authorized the employment of an additional day guard for the county jail at a salary of $100 a month for the coming six months. The order was entered at the request of Sam Spence, district attorney, who told the court that the jail would be filled with more than 100 prisoners, state and federal during the coming six months and that the task of caring for and guarding them is too much for any one man. The present arrangements involved not only overwork, but danger, the district attorney added. Sheriff W. G. Bralley, who will employ the additional guard to assist W. W. Allen, jailer, said Monday afternoon that he is awaiting the acceptance of a man who has already been offered the job before making any further announcement.

After an inspection of the conditions in the juvenile ward on the third floor of the courthouse the commissioners asked John P. Marrs, county judge, to work with the building superintendent in devising plans for additional safeguards for the wards. The request for new safety devices came from James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, and followed the escape of a second prisoner from the ward a few days ago.

They Called Her Scrawny but Not for Long

Is your face drawn and pinched? Your skin flabby? Are your cheeks sunken with great hollows under the eyes? Does your figure show unbecoming angles instead of the softly rounded slimness of youth?

All these conditions rob you of attractiveness and make you look old. But worst of all, these may actually be the symptoms of simple anaemia—that dread ailment so often suffered by women.

There's nothing so good as McCoy's Tablets to put on firm flesh, round out face and figure and build up rich, red blood.

So if you need a few pounds of flesh to round out the hollows, if you want to get back oldtime energy and health, get a box of McCoy's Tablets today. Just a short treatment will make you look and feel like a new person.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.—Adv.

A LOWER WIDER PRICE RANGE FOR NEW MODELS OF WORLD'S MOST HIGHLY PERFECTED CARS

CARRYING with them the class distinction which has always made Cadillac cars so desirable, the new Cadillacs, La Salles and Fleetwoods, introduced a few weeks ago, offer a contrast in value-giving so striking as to make them indisputably the greatest monetary values in the industry.

Whatever car you own or hope to own, see and drive these new Cadillacs and La Salles, for in every detail they surpass all highest previous ideals of luxurious motoring.

Test them in the most congested traffic, on the open road, under any conceivable driving condition, at all speeds.

See how amazingly easy they steer, due to the new harmonized steering system.

Gear-shifting in these new Cadillacs and La Salles is almost uncanny in its silence and simplicity. No clashing. No tugging or timing. The new Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Transmission is today's highest development in transmissions for the simplification of control. You cannot obtain it in any other car.

You will discover that the new improved Cadillac-La Salle Safety-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes are a revelation in smooth, responsive, powerful and positive control. These brakes assure more miles per hour with perfect safety.

And this is not all: New designs; lower, longer, racier lines; greater seating capacity; larger, smoother, more flexible V-type, 8-cylinder engines; more speed and power; adjustable front seats are even more easily adjusted than in previous models; larger head-lights; instrument panel recessed into cowl; double-acting windshield wipers.

And, of course, non-shatterable Security-Plate Glass is standard equipment in all Cadillac, La Salle and Fleetwood windows, doors and windshields.

Be prepared for the most exquisite examples of body design, upholstering and appointment that have yet been produced by the unexcelled craftsmanship of Fisher and Fleetwood—lavish and luxurious refinements and fitments are everywhere evident in these new Fisher and Fleetwood bodies.

In short, the whole significance of these new Cadillacs and La Salles lies in the fact that they are at one and the same time the world's price-value standard, and the most highly perfected and completely appointed motor cars in the industry today. Cadillac Motor Car Company, Division of General Motors, Detroit, Michigan; Oshawa, Canada.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values. Cadillac-La Salle delivered prices include only reasonable charges for delivery and financing.

The new La Salles are priced from $2285 to $2795; the new Cadillacs from $3195 to $3795; the new Fleetwoods from $3995 to $7500. All prices f. o. b. Detroit.

JOSEPH HERGESHEIMER also chooses COSMOPOLITAN

That distinguished novelist, Joseph Hergesheimer, chose Cosmopolitan to reach the audience which would most appreciate what he considers the best novel he has written—a keen analysis of a modern woman's soul.

A Story as Fascinating as "CYTHEREA"

The Party Dress

A Study of Nina Henry by RALEIGH

"If that is what a dress will do to you," Nina thought, "it is all wrong. It isn't fair. It's immoral."

NINA HENRY, who is destined to become one of the most discussed characters in modern fiction, for years had sat in the background of smart country club life.

Still beautiful, still romantic, she had played irreproachably the part of the unrebellious wife.

One evening she put on her new Paris dress. At first she was afraid of herself in the mirror. Suddenly she was a renewed, daring creature, amazing her husband, fascinating the men of her set.

Was the Paris dress to blame or did it merely evoke Nina's smoldering nature? Follow Joseph Hergesheimer in his revelation of the life of a woman of today—beginning in November Cosmopolitan, on sale today.

L. GOLDSTUCKER RITES TUESDAY

Services at Residence to Be Held at 10 A. M.

Funeral services for Leo Goldstucker, 72, who died at his home, 1314 Kemp boulevard, about 4:15 o'clock Monday morning, will be held from the residence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with Rabbi S. J. Schwab of Temple Israel officiating. Interment will be in the Jewish cemetery at Rosemont. Arrangements will be under the direction of the Merkle Undertaking company.

Active pallbearers will be J. Cohen, L. A. Fine, Sam Kruger, Al Horwitz, Dr. William Rosenblatt, A. Marks, Eugene Liepold and Sol Lasky.

Mr. Goldstucker came to Wichita Falls from Tyler, Texas, about three years ago. He was well known in Wichita Falls and had many friends here. He was a charter member of Edward Lasker lodge No. 347, Independent Order of B'nai B'rith, having joined at the time of organization 45 years ago. He was also a member of the Knights of Pythias lodge at Tyler, having joined about 50 years ago.

Survivors include the widow, seven sons, M. G., R. P. and A. A. Goldstucker of Wichita Falls; H. L. Goldstucker of Austin; H. M. Goldstucker of New York city; N. A. Goldstucker of Tyler; and E. A. Goldstucker of Fort Worth; four daughters, Miss Pearl Goldstucker and Mrs. Joe Emold of Wichita Falls; Miss Amelia Goldstucker of Brooklyn, N. Y.; and Mrs. Irving Garfinkle of San Antonio; one sister, Mrs. Johanna Elias, Berlin, Germany; four nieces, Misses Tonie and Amelia Englander, Tyler; Mrs. Sam Johnston, St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Celia Toplitz, Pine Bluff, Ark.; and two nephews, Julian Englander, St. Louis, Mo., and Gerhart Goldstucker, Berlin, Germany.

Mr. Goldstucker retired from the mercantile business before leaving Tyler.

A. K. STEWART

A. K. Stewart, 72, whose Texas address was not known, died in a local hospital about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The body was taken in charge by the Hines mortuary. It was indicated that interment would probably take place Tuesday although efforts were being made to locate relatives said to live in South Carolina.

"Power for Service" Theme of Evangelist

"Power for Service" was the theme of Evangelist Albert E. Davis Monday night at the Wichita Falls Gospel tabernacle, 2001 Buchanan street. He stated in part:

"The trouble with the church in this day it has more machinery than it has power to manipulate. Before Jesus ascended to the Father He recognized the need of His intimate followers was more power. They had more concern for the material than they had for the spiritual. He directed them to tarry at Jerusalem until they were induced with power from on High. It is not for you to know the times and the seasons which the Father has placed in his own power. But ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you and ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem, and in Judea and in Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth. This means witnessing at home, witnessing among the neighbors, witnessing among your enemies, witnessing to the uttermost parts of the earth."

Services will be conducted each night at 7:30 o'clock. Evangelist Davis has accepted the invitation of Dr. P. H. Packard to speak over KGKO each morning from 10 to 11 this week, as Doctor Packard is now engaged in a revival at Enid, Okla.

Man Held in Electra Stabbing Given Release

A prisoner arrested in Electra Friday night in connection with the stabbing of Dee Pathune in an Electra dance hall was released from the Wichita county jail late Monday afternoon after prosecuting witnesses failed to file a complaint. He will be turned over to the Electra city officials, officers here declared. They quoted witnesses as admitting they could not be sure of the happenings in the dance hall. Mr. Pathune is reported to be recovering.

Beautiful hair!

Modern hair dressers arrange the hair so beautifully that it's bound to attract attention. That's why it's so important to guard its color and luster; keep it in perfect condition.

There is no surer, simpler way to do this than with Danderine. Each time you use your brush, just moisten it with this delicately fragranced liquid. Then as you draw it through your hair, it removes the excess oil; brings out the natural color; makes the hair fairly sparkle with new life and luster.

How much easier it is to arrange the hair afterwards. How it stays in place. And try "setting" the waves with Danderine. They stay in so much longer.

Danderine quickly dissolves the crust of dandruff; cuts the scalp in the pink of condition; helps the hair to grow long, silky and abundant!

Shoop Wins Contract For Hospital Work

The Shoop Plastering company of Wichita Falls, headed by F. E. Shoop, has been awarded the plastering contract for the male ward building No. 3 and for the tuberculosis building under construction at the Wichita Falls State hospital, according to information reaching here late Monday. The award came from J. E. Morgan and Sons, general contractors in charge of all the work, at El Paso. The local company, with an $8,000 bid, won the contract over the competition of 11 other bidders from all over the state, it has been announced.

County Closes Month With $474,000 Balance

Wichita county closed the month of September with a balance of $474,615.23, according to the figures in the monthly report submitted Monday to the court by Paul Barnett, county auditor. Receipts during September totaled $10,851.78, the report shows. Disbursements amounted to $51,743.10.

7 STRICKLAND JURORS PICKED

State Indicates Death Penalty to Be Asked

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, Oct. 14.—Hints that the state will ask for the death penalty, and indications that the defense will center its pleas around self-defense and amelioration of the penalty owing to a supposed accidental shooting featured the first day of the trial here of Paul Strickland on a charge of murder.

Seven jurors had been selected when court recessed at 6:30 p. m. today.

Strickland is charged with slaying Lee Williams, of Bowie, at the Strickland home on the night of March 18 last. The only motive for the alleged slaying now apparent, according to officials, is contained in a statement Strickland is said to have made, which stated he and Williams had quarreled over a girl they both had loved when they were young.

The jurors selected, all farmers, are: D. L. Wiggins, of south of Vashti; F. P. Stecht, of near Bellevue; J. A. Felty, Deandale; J. S. Hamm, Joy; A. J. Melugin and J. L. Harlow, both of south of Bellevue; and W. M. Hallian, Bellevue.

Court will reopen Tuesday at 8:30 a. m.

Two Arrested In Burk Liquor Raid

Two men were arrested and a quantity of whisky seized in two sheriff raids on residences in Burkburnett Monday afternoon, according to information given by Sheriff W. G. Bralley late Monday. Seven half gallon jars were unearthed from the back yard of one of the prisoners. The second man managed to smash most of the containers before the raiders reached him, Mr. Bralley reported, but enough of the liquor was seized to make good the case. The raids were conducted by Warren Belcher, Charlie Gant, and George Garrett, deputies. Charges of the possession of whisky will be filed before United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz Tuesday morning.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

City Council Drafts New Franchise For Traction Company's Approval

the city, the council will repeal the ordinance setting street car fare at seven cents and will reduce the rate to six cents, according to an agreement between the council and the company about six months ago. At that time the traction company asked for a raise in rates which the council granted on condition the company would make a new franchise on more modern lines.

The aldermen agreed to purchase 8.29 acres of land, adjoining the Weeks park golf course for the purpose of building the road through the grounds around two trees and away from a bend in the creek considered dangerous for motorists. They were not satisfied with certain restrictions in the deed presented Monday night, however, and decided to confer with W. F. Weeks on the matter before buying the land.

A contract for electric lights and power at the Municipal airport was approved by the council as submitted by the Texas Electric Service company and Mr. Fairtrace was authorized to sign the contract for the city.

Damages amounting to $15 were awarded by the council to Eldon Scott, who claimed his bicycle was damaged to that extent about three weeks ago when it was run over by a city motor grader moving at a speed of four miles per hour on Ninth street near Bellevue park.

City Attorney Thelbert Martin, instructed last week to report on the legal position of the city in the $10,000 suit brought by Henry Robertson, who claims to have lost his eyesight due to negligence on the part of the city, reported to the aldermen that he did not consider the city legally liable for the injury to Mr. Robertson. The council decided to let the claim continue in court and be settled there.

12 Join Church at Revival Services

With practically every seat in the large auditorium and gallery taken for the Monday night service at the First Baptist church, Evangelist Charlie Taylor preached on "The First Lion Tamer—Daniel." Following the sermon and the appeal of the evangelist, 12 persons united with the church. The service was designated as "Young Peoples' Night."

The pastor of the church, Dr. O. L. Powers, said that larger crowds are attending the present series of revival services being conducted by the Taylor evangelistic party than have attended any previous revival during the past 12 years. In addition to the evangelist, his father, the Rev. Charles Taylor Sr., conducts prayer and inspirational services, while the special musical features are given by a brother, Laurie Taylor.

Tuesday night, Mr. Taylor's sermon subject will be "The Cost of Salvation." An entire section of the auditorium will be reserved for those who attend the inspirational service of Rev. Charles Taylor Sr., at 7:15.

2 Glasses Water, Not Too Cold, Help Constipation

County Votes $3,200 For Hospital Refrigeration

Purchase of a $3,200 refrigerating unit for the Wichita General hospital was authorized Monday afternoon by members of the county commissioners court meeting in regular session. The court voted a special appropriation for the refrigerating system in order to stay within the $15,000 general maintenance fund for the year.

The hard surfacing of two strips of road in the Burkburnett precinct, including 1,560 feet of roadway leading to the Municipal airport, was authorized in an order for bids to be opened on Nov. 18. Another half-mile of the old Wichita Falls and Burkburnett road, running east is the second to be improved, according to plans announced by F. R. Knauth, commissioner for the precinct.

Paper Money Has Value!

AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

An ancient prejudice nursed the ignorant fear and distrust of paper money. AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE inspires the faith which completely accepts the printed obligation. In the interest of convenience and safety, its use is universal.

"toasting did it"—

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

TUNE IN—The Lucky Strike Dance Orchestra, every Saturday night, over a coast-to-coast network of the N. B. C.

"It's Toasted"—the phrase that describes the extra "toasting" process applied in the manufacture of Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Floral Heights W.M.S. Has Splendid Program

Members of Floral Heights Methodist Woman's Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon for mission study. Mrs. B. M. Bullard conducted a short song service and Mrs. S. E. Trevathan gave the devotional, followed by a solo, "Does Jesus Care?" sung by Mrs. George Thorburn.

Mrs. Austin Leach presented the following splendid program from the fifth chapter of "Roads to the City of God." Mrs. E. D. Malone told of the relation of Japan and America and of Japan and Korea. Mrs. Curt Buddrus stressed China's relations to other nations. Mrs. Leach gave items concerning India and England, and England and Africa.

Mrs. Charles Crowell recited facts given by the delegates at the Jerusalem conference, showing how American Christians have helped the conditions existing between other nations, and Mrs. C. E. Waller told of the action of the Jerusalem counsel on this subject. Mrs. L. E. Cowling closed the study program with prayer.

Mrs. M. T. Clements, president, held a short business session. In circle count, circle two led in attendance.

Those present were Mesdames J. M. Elliott, Paul Harding, Rhea Howard, R. B. Melat, Ed Reeder, Ed Ratcliff, Earl Stuckey, J. B. McDowell, R. J. Davenport, W. J. Stuckler, Henry Milliken, Val Land, S. Mrs. Barnhill Makes Gift to Kemp Library

By MRS. L. N. CASON
The Record News Staff

Very young people, as everyone acquainted with children knows, are usually lovers of nature. Puppies and kittens, birds and bees and butterflies, and later on wild animals, thrill them long before they are interested in reading.

For several years, Mrs. Anna Barnhill has been realizing this innate nature love, and has placed her collection of mounted butterflies in the children's department of Kemp library during children's book week. Their interest in it has never flagged.

Mrs. Barnhill is soon leaving Wichita Falls to make her home in Oklahoma City, and she has given this collection to the library. Two trays, with butterflies mounted against a background of native grasses, make lovely nature pictures. There are 69 butterflies, in browns so dark they seem black; in browns streaked and mottled with gold; in irridescent shades as brilliant as a peacock's feathers or the inside of a shining shell and in all lovely light colors.

Mrs. Barnhill received the national honor for being Camp Fire guardian for five years and when the honor was awarded her, the members of the council presented her with a new ceremonial gown and beads for a new head band. It is significant of her nature loving work that her headband is done in flowers and butterflies.

Crockett School To Hold Clinic Tuesday

The Crockett school P.-T. A. has announced a clinic to take place at the school building Tuesday at 1 o'clock for the children who were examined in the spring.

Drs. Wallace Masters, Austin Leach, W. B. Adams and J. B. Hathorn will be present and all mothers are requested to accompany the children who will go through the clinic.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We heard a man yesterday ask "Did you ever get on a three-line conversation over the phone?" And the lady to whom he addressed the query, answered with a twinkle in her eye, "No, I'm a lady."

We know nothing of a three-line break, but we have had our own experience over a party line, which we hope we will never have to repeat. People who have the same party line need as much adjustment as a newly married couple.

When we had a party line, there was a certain hour of the evening when the other party or parties, held an extended conversation that nothing could break; one had just as well not need a doctor or ambulance or police or fire department at that time. Take up the receiver and "Please get off this line," was said in a voice that doesn't go with the word "please."

We visited in the country once in Tennessee where everyone out of Lexington was on one party line. Each phone then had a certain number of rings so each party knew when he was called. But do you think that stopped them taking the receiver down each time? No. We were interested the few days we were there watching one of the females of the family run at every ring, then, after the conversation had been all overheard, retail the conversation to other members of the family.

Nothing else to do, they said. And we suppose people talk for hours in the city because they have nothing else pressing to do.

Yet there are so many things worth while. Personally if we had nothing else to do, we would spend more time in Kemp library or in the grounds. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp have counted more than can be told to the city of Wichita Falls, and Kemp library is a gift that will always be a monument to their names.

We have seen the children and young people who have crowded in there to get help with their school work. It has meant so much in an educational way.

And even if one did not like to read, there's beauty enough on the outside to keep a soul alive. The flowering quince bloomed Wednesday in a radiant glow. Arbor vitae wore silver berries on their green limbs; the mesquite were silver gray against the dark green of the locust trees and elms bordered the walks.

We have walked under their shade when it made a cool and lovely oasis. We have seen the moon shining through the leaves, making a tracery of lace on the walk beneath. And we have seen them in winter when bare limbs coated with ice made a fairyland of frosty brilliance.

Vinca beds are blooming thickly against the library walls; vinca (we would rather say periwinkle) beds bordered the rose garden, from which each day bowls of roses are cut to brighten the desk inside.

A block all beauty with an opportunity for hungry minds centering in the library itself.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CANDY

To Be Moderate Is Not to Gorge or to Undereat

A noted food authority states that attacks on candy lack a background of scientific insight. He reminds us that in addition to sugar, the best candies and confections of the present day contain also many other foods. He enumerates nuts, milk, cream, butter, gelatine, chocolate, and fruits, as being used along with sugar in delicious, modern candies, and he says that good candy as a dessert may become a wholesome part of a meal. Who, he asks, would deprive the world of one of its most delicious desserts?

Science and common sense are restoring sanity to the nation today. Don't gorge. Don't undereat. Prepare a great variety of all healthful foods. Flavor these so that they will be delightful to the taste. Those are some of the present-day precepts that will guide us to a better diet.

If a dash of sugar will encourage your family to eat cereals, fresh, canned and stewed fruits, and milk in the form of milk drinks and milk desserts, then — in the name of health—use a dash of sugar. Try a dash of sugar when cooking vegetables in a small amount of water, and you will be surprised at how much fresher, more colorful and more delicious the vegetables are. A little sugar sprinkled here and there throughout the meal will encourage children and adults to eat the varied diet that is so necessary to health. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

Those with axes to grind should journey to northern Ohio, which supplied four-fifths of the nation's grindstones.

Convention Headquarters Selected by Mrs. Potter

Mrs. W. R. Potter, president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, announced the new Baker hotel of Mineral Wells as headquarters for the federation convention to be held in Mineral Wells Nov. 11-15. A message from Mr. Baker of Dallas, manager of the Baker hotels, has just said the hotel will be open for the meeting.

The opening of this commodious building assures the success of the convention for comfort and convenience. All sessions will be held in the hotel. Local entertainment will be provided in the form of a tea, play and reception. Mineral Wells has said that one of the most unique and beautiful luncheons ever tendered the board of directors will be given there. Brilliant speakers, witty toasts, lovely favors and an original, colorful pageant will be some of the features of this occasion, which is to honor Mrs. W. R. Potter and members of her board. No expense is being spared, it is announced, to make the luncheon and dinners a success.

Local hostesses for these occasions are Mesdames J. L. Young, J. N. Chamberlain, E. Mayes and Sidney Webb.

Mrs. Walter Robertson is building a great program of speakers and musicians.

This convention promises to be the most largely attended of any in the history of the federation.

Last year, the federation, P.-T. A. and state Baptist conventions all fell on the same date. This year they are all on different dates, giving the women of the state an opportunity to attend each convention if they so desire.

Hostess for the Texas dinner is Mrs. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls. This is to be a brilliant affair.

Preventable Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago. It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—Sex appeal being about the most important subject today, women will be interested in this word from George Bernard Shaw, who admits he is an expert on the subject.

"There are two sets of people cultivating sex appeal by two entirely different methods. One seeks to minimize sex appeal by the maximum of clothes, and the other to maximate sex appeal by the minimum of clothes."

They are both wrong, he tells us. "The only method of creating sex appeal is by clothes."

The Victorian age, he explains, was a most immoral one, and women "emphasized every contour, and upholstered it."

No matter where we live, we can see in our home town, girls who trot merrily down street feeling confident that they are being looked at by males they meet, and with curiosity and delight. But why curiosity? They settle all questions for you at first glance, by dressing so that there is positively nothing left to your imagination.

In the days Shaw mentions, women used to think of tricks to let the men get a glimpse of their ankles. Fancy that! No wonder the age was immoral. Now they show their ankles, wear tights, and appear behind spot lights with a few jeweled ornaments court-plastered to their whitewashed frames. And the excitement they cause is practically nil.

Men used to carry fair damosels tightly corseted, down ladders and they got delicious thrills from accidentally spying their ankles, which they pretended not to see, as they lifted them into saddles and rode away with them—on white horses.

But imagine trying to trump up a thrill out of carrying a dame with no underclothes, and skirts only a yard long, down anything and tossing her any place! You'd have to have an imagination that refused to die just because there was nothing left to intrigue it.

The most immoral women of the Victorian age flipped their ankles but wouldn't, under any circumstances display their knees in public. That's why it was immoral.

Someday they will be writing about what a decent age this is—full of sex reformers, who don't know a nice decent age when they encounter it.

The less clothes people wear in public the more moral they are. Clothes are lures, and when women overdress you have to watch the little devils clear around the corners.

Kemp Maer Wins High Honor at Hill School

Kemp Maer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Maer, who attends Hill school at Pottstown, Pa., won quite an honor when he made the highest average in the school last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Maer have just received this news. The Hill school is considered one of the best preparatory schools in the United States.

KEEP IT ON DINNER TABLE

Lady Says Pinch of Black-Draught, After Meals, Relieved Indigestion

Asheville, N. C.—"I suffered from indigestion for 12 months," says Mrs. Z. B. Cole, R. F. D. 4, this city. "I had a terrible soreness—could not eat anything that I enjoyed. I had smothering spells caused, I believe, from indigestion. I was also bilious. I tried medicine, but it did not help me.

"One day I was talking to a friend of our family, and he told me how he had been relieved of indigestion by taking Black-Draught. He told me to try it.

"I started then, taking a small dose after each meal. I kept it on the dining room table for weeks, and took it faithfully.

"I soon began to feel better. The indigestion gradually stopped and I gained in health and strength. I have recommended Black-Draught to my friends because it helped me."

Thedford's Black-Draught is a purely vegetable preparation of selected medicinal herbs and roots. Black-Draught is finely powdered, which enables the juices of the stomach to extract its medicinal properties in an easy, natural way.

Utility Earnings Lag Behind Rise in Stocks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—Holders of shares in public utility companies have profited during the past two years by rises ranging up to several hundred per cent of the stock's value.

Earnings of utility companies, however, as reported to the department of commerce, indicate an increase of barely 15 per cent.

Net earnings for 95 leading companies, exclusive of telephone and telegraph, were: $715,152,609 in 1926; $775,177,254 in 1927; $868,702,577 in 1928; and are estimated at $950,000,000 for this year.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

Every month, her mother must tell them at the office. Another business girl who has not discovered Midol! The menstrual process does not interfere with duty when these wonderful tablets are taken. They bring complete ease in five to seven minutes; no matter how difficult a time you've always had! Midol is marvelous, as countless women can tell you. And it is non-narcotic, as any druggist familiar with the formula can assure you. The quick and complete relief is due to its acting directly on the organs affected. Midol is obtainable at any drugstore for fifty cents, in aluminum case.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

Could Only be Accorded the New Britannica

New York Times Book Review—"The new Britannica represents a magnificent achievement in organized intellectual effort... Whoever makes it a part of his possessions can rest assured that its equal does not exist."

Professor William Lyon Phelps, of Yale University—"The latest edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica is an event of international importance. To those who own it, it will not be a luxury; it will be a necessity."

Henry Hazlitt, in the New York Sun—"By all odds the finest encyclopaedia in English, if not in any language, and a work on which our age may pardonably pride itself."

Joseph L. Wheeler, Librarian, Enoch Pratt Free Library, Baltimore, Md.—"The one preëminent American reference work for everyday library use, and for home use also."

A. G. Gardiner, Former Editor, The Daily News (London)—"There has probably never been assembled together in one enterprise such a wealth of learning as is represented by the 3,500 builders of this great temple of scholarship."

Frank H. Chase, of the Boston Public Library, in the Atlantic Monthly—"A startlingly new book—with a new perspective... and a new emphasis on the practical. It is the belief of this reviewer that no one who inspects the book carefully can fail to share his enthusiasm."

Leon Whipple, in Survey Graphic—"A world book, a new survey of universal knowledge—the most comprehensive, current and useful reference book ever published."

Remember this is a NEW work! Only a small amount of text that could not be improved in any way has been retained from previous editions.

An Up-to-the-minute Knowledge Book

This new Britannica is as up to date as the swift-moving age which has produced it. The latest discoveries in science ...today's developments in business... the newest trends in art and literature —all this is included in the new Britannica. Herbert Kaufman's

HE EXCAVATED TROY

Daily Editorial

AT the age of 14, Henry Schliemann was working in a miserable, little grocery store at Fuerstenberg.

"My occupation," he writes, "consisted of retailing herrings, butter, potato-whisky, milk, salt, coffee, sugar, oil and candles: in grinding potatoes for the still, sweeping the shop and the like.

"We were lucky to sell $10 worth of goods a day. There, of course, I came in contact with only the lowest classes of society."

Family misfortune had landed the lad in that malodorous mess, where he soon forgot his slight schooling and lost touch with every thing that might remind him of the pastorate in which he was born—every thing except a solemn compact with his father to excavate Troy.

And that fantastic contract was made by a seven-year-old child in the year 1829.

He sprained his chest lifting a heavy barrel, lost the grocery job and all but starved until destiny landed him on a cargo boat.

It was wrecked off the coast of Holland and, there, the penniless waif found employment with an Amsterdam firm at wages which hardly provided an unfinished gable room and one coarse daily meal.

Privation and bewilderment had practically destroyed his memory, but not that intention to excavate Troy.

He bought English books with his few spare coppers, read them while on errands and "waiting at the postoffice"—spent entire nights committing long passages to memory, and, in one year, could quote "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "Ivanhoe" verbatim.

Then he engaged a teacher to explain the meaning of the poll-parroted text.

BY the same method, he successfully acquired facility in Spanish, French, Italian and Portuguese. And, through his linguistic attainments, secured a post in an indigo importing house—adding Russian to his list of languages—became St. Petersburg representative of the concern—saved salary increases and launched his own commission business.

At 34, still set to excavate Troy, he plunged into the study of Greek, mastered the ancient dialect and, at 44, the little, blood-spitting, German shop-drudge had retired with a fortune to devote his career to archeology and the excavation of Troy.

No one even knew where Troy lay, but Schliemann found the spot, and not only uncovered the walls where Helen walked and Priam wept, but unearthed evidence of six other cities built, layer on layer, upon the same site.

His invincible will dragged Ilium from the grave.

A fragile, friendless, untutored pauper endowed the world with a more precious fund of classical knowledge than any scholar before or since.

He chose a definite goal, and in the face of hardships and discouragements such as few humans have encountered, "kept everlastingly at it."

Handicapped by the frailest of constitutions, smitten by every imaginable grief, he accumulated the requisite fortune and amassed the incredible wealth of information necessary for the task, and excavated Troy.

But, after all, that was the lesser benefaction. Humanity can peg along without the shards of vanished civilization—it's interesting to know where yesterdays delved and dared and died—but it's more important to know that there are no impassable bridges across the gaps of time—that adverse odds, physical disability and even illiteracy can never deflect a really purposeful man from his destination.

Schliemann excavated Troy, and so can you.

GIRL LOSES PEARLS

PARIS, Oct. 14. (UP)—Police were notified today that Mlle Patine, 18-year-old daughter of the Bolivian ambassador here, had lost a pearl necklace valued at $24,000.

A "War" That Is Dying

SOME of the things we do might look a lot different to us if we could only look at them the way our great-grandchildren will some day.

Thomas E. Mitten, Philadelphia traction magnate, leaves the bulk of his $10,000,000 estate to set up a fund to improve the relations between capital and labor.

Right now that looks like a very praiseworthy, public-spirited action. A century from now it is very probable that such a thing would be considered merely quaint.

Which is to say that times are changing. Among all the phenomena of present-day life, there probably isn't one that will seem more strange and senseless to our descendants than the thing that we describe with the two words, "labor trouble."

Capital and Labor are two peculiar words, the way we use them. We are just beginning to surmise that these words do not represent diametrically opposite forces, fated to strive for diametrically opposite goals; indeed, these unborn great-grandchildren of ours may eventually decide that our greatest contribution to civilization was our halting, long-delayed, somewhat confused discovery that the aims of Capital and Labor are, basically, identical.

Years ago, when the factory system was giving the world something new in the way of stupidity, greed and oppression, it was generally agreed that the working man and the employer were bound to be enemies. Some men, like Marx, urged the worker to recognize this and declare war to the death; others held that the worker could not conceivably better himself, and that he might as well make the best of it by accepting such thin trickles of prosperity as might seep down, from time to time, from the upper strata of society.

Remnants of that notion are still with us. Indeed, many people do not seem to realize that that theory has been exploded, once and for all. So it is that an intelligent, social-minded man like Mr. Mitten felt the need of devoting his fortune to the task of reconciling these two opposing forces.

Meanwhile, what has been happening? Simply this: the progress of industrialism has slowly been making it apparent that the working man and the employer are seeking the same goal. There is not, fundamentally, any conflict between them. What helps one, helps both; what is bad for one is bad for both.

Thus far we have barely got more than a glimmering of this. But the next hundred years will see the idea carried forward amazingly. It is quite absurd to suppose that strikes, lockouts, furious challenges and ultimatums, wasteful and crippling to all concerned, will be tolerated by an industrialism that once understands its true functions.

There will be a day—not so far distant, either—when no one will dream of leaving money to improve relations between Capital and Labor. It simply won't be necessary.

Good News From Burkburnett

BURKBURNETT, which broke into the headlines a few weeks ago as the scene of the worst typhoid epidemic in the state in years, has featured farm and cotton news of the county for the last two weeks by leading all other towns in Wichita county in the total number of cotton bales ginned. The change is a pleasing one to this newspaper, and should be to all Wichita county residents.

There was no redeeming feature about Burkburnett's typhoid epidemic, except the determination with which it set forth to stamp out the disease. Carelessness in enforcing state and municipal sanitary laws brought Burkburnett its typhoid, but its leaders were big enough to face the music of unfavorable publicity and public criticism. They called in the state health officer, the state sanitary engineer and the district sanitary engineer. They placed their town under the direction of these officials, brought the epidemic to a halt, and launched a program that would prevent its future repetition.

Now Burkburnett is in the headlines because it has ginned more cotton than any other Wichita county town, and more than many larger cities in this section. The cotton crop in its trade area must be fairly good, and many bales are coming across the free bridge from Oklahoma. All of which means money in the pockets of Burkburnett residents. The Record News has been pleased to chronicle this recent good news from Burkburnett.

Two Sons of Destiny

HERBERT HOOVER is the president of the United States. He was born in a little Iowa village, his father was a humble blacksmith and Herbert Hoover worked his way through college. James Ramsay MacDonald is prime minister of the British empire. He was born on a little farm in Scotland, born in poverty where the soil was rocky and sterile. Now the president and the prime minister, sitting on a stump in old Virginia, smoking their pipes of peace declared for an early conference in London to push forward their hopes for further limitation of naval armament. Japan and France and Italy will be invited to join the American and British governments for the purpose of framing an agreement to limit the sea power of the five nations. This conference to start on Monday or Tuesday of the third week in January, in the year 1930.

Isn't truth stranger than fiction? A Quaker president and a British prime minister, perhaps the greatest labor chieftain and statesman the world has known, are responsible for this conference to usher in lasting peace for the sons of men.

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXVII

About 2 o'clock we start the meal. It lasts till 6. We drink coffee from the supply dump—and smoke officers' cigars and cigarets—also from the supply dump. Punctually at half past seven we begin the evening meal. About 10 o'clock we throw the bones of the sucking pigs outside the door. Then there is cognac and rum—also from the blessed supply dump—and once again long, fat cigars with bellybands. Tjaden suggests that it lacks only one thing: Girls.

Late in the evening we hear mewing. A little gray cat sits in the entrance. We entice it in and give it something to eat. And that wakes up our own appetites once more. Still chewing, we lie down to sleep.

Burning houses stand out like torches against the night. Shells lumber across and crash down. Munition colums tear along the street. On one side the supply dump has been ripped open. In spite of all the flying fragments the drivers of the munition columns pour in like a swarm of bees and pounce on the bread. We let them have their own way. If we said anything it would only mean a good hiding for us. So we go differently about it. We explain that we are the guard and so know our way about, we get hold of the tinned stuff and exchange it for things we are short of. What does it matter anyhow—in a while it will all be blown to pieces. For ourselves we take some chocolate from the depot and eat it in slabs.

Almost a fortnight passes thus in eating, drinking, and roaming about. No one disturbs us. The town gradually vanishes under the shells and we lead a charmed life. So long as any part of the supply dump still stands we don't worry; we desire nothing better than to stay here till the end of the war.

Tjaden has become so fastidious that he only half smokes his cigars. With his nose in the air he explains to us that he was brought up that way. And Kat is most cheerful. In the morning his first call is: "Emil, bring in the caviare and coffee." We put on extraordinary airs, every man treats the other as his valet, bounces him and gives him orders. "There is something itching under my foot; Kropp, my man, catch that louse at once," says Leer, poking out his leg at him like a ballet girl, and Albert drags him up the stairs by the foot. "Tjaden!" — "What?" — "Stand at ease, Tjaden; and what's more, don't say 'What,' say 'Yes, Sir,' — now; Tjaden!" Tjaden retorts in the well-known phrase from Goethe's "Getz von Berlichingen," with which he is always very free.

After eight more days we receive orders to go back. The palmy days are over. Two big motor lorries take us away. They are stacked high with planks. Nevertheless Albert and I erect on top our four-poster bed complete with blue silk canopy, mattress, and two lace coverlets. And behind it at the head is stowed a bag full of choice edibles. We often dip into it, and the tough ham sausages, the tins of liver sausages, the conserves, the boxes of cigarets rejoice our hearts. Each man has a bag to himself.

Kropp and I have rescued two big red armchairs as well. They stand inside the bed, and we sprawl back in them as in a theater box. Above us swells the silken cover like a baldaquin. Each man has a long cigar in his mouth. And thus from aloft we survey the scene.

Between us stands a parrot-cage that we found for the cat. She is coming with us, and lies in the cage before her saucer of meat, and purrs.

Slowly the lorries roll down the road. We sing. Behind us the shells are sending up fountains from the now utterly abandoned town.

A few days later we are sent out to evacuate a village. On the way we meet the fleeing inhabitants trundling their goods and chattels along with them in wheel-barrows, perambulators, and on their backs. Their figures are bent, their faces full of grief, despair, haste and resignation. The children hold on to their mother's hands, and often an older girl leads the little ones who stumble onward and are forever looking back. A few carry miserable-looking dolls. All are silent as they pass us by.

We are marching in column; the French do not fire on a town in which there are still inhabitants. But a few minutes later the air screams, the earth heaves, cries ring out; a shell has landed among the rear squad. We scatter and fling ourselves down on the ground, but at that moment I feel the instinctive alertness leave me which hitherto has always made me do unconsciously the right thing under fire; the thought leaps up with a terrible, throttling fear: "You are lost"—and the next moment a blow sweeps like a whip over my left leg. I hear Albert cry out; he is beside me.

"Quick up, Albert!" I yell, for we are lying unsheltered in the open field.

He staggers up and runs. I keep beside him. We have to get over a hedge; it is higher than we are. Kropp seizes a branch. I heave him up by the leg, he cries out, I give him a swing and he flies over. With one leap I follow him and fall into a ditch that lies behind the hedge.

Our faces are smothered with duck-weed and mud, but the cover is good. So we wade in up to our necks. Whenever a shell whistles we duck our heads under the water. After, we have done this a dozen times. I am exhausted.

"Let's get away, or I'll fall in and drown," groans Albert.

"Where has it got you?" I ask him.

"In the knee. I think."

"Can you run?"

"I think—"

"Then out!"

We make for the ditch beside the road, and stooping, run along it. The shelling follows us. The road leads toward the munition dump. If that goes up there won't be a man of us with his head left on his shoulders. So we change our plan and run diagonally across country.

Albert begins to drag. "You go, I'll come on after," he says, and throws himself down.

I seize him by the arm and shake him. "Up, Albert, if once you lie down you'll never get any farther. Quick, I'll hold you up."

At last we reach a small dug-out. Kropp pitches in and I bandage him up. The shot is just a little above his knee. Then I take a look at myself. My trousers are bloody and my arm, too. Albert binds up my wound with his field dressing. Already he is no longer able to move his leg, and we both wonder how we managed to get this far. Fear alone made it possible; we would have run even if our feet had been shot off—we would have run on the stumps.

I can still crawl a little. I call out to a passing ambulance wagon which picks us up. It is full of wounded. There is an army medical lance corporal with it who sticks an anti-tetanus needle into our chests.

At the dressing station we arrange matters so that we lie side by side. They give us a thin soup which we spoon down greedily and scornfully, because we are accustomed to better times but are hungry all the same.

"Now for home, Albert," I say.

"Let's hope so," he replies. "I only wish I knew what I've got."

The pain increases. The bandages burn like fire. We drink and drink, one glass of water after another.

"How far above the knee am I hit?" asks Kropp.

"At least four inches, Albert," I answer. Actually it is perhaps one.

"I've made up my mind," he says after a while, "if they take off my leg, I'll put an end to it. I won't go through life as a cripple."

So we lie there with our thoughts and wait.

In the evening we are hauled on to the chopping block. I am frightened and think quickly what I ought to do; for everyone knows that the surgeons in the dressing stations amputate on the slightest provocation. Under the great pressure of business that is much simpler than complicated patching. I think of Kemmerich. Whatever happens I will not let them chloroform me, even if I have to crack a couple of their skulls.

It is all right. The surgeon pokes around in the wound and a blackness comes before my eyes. "Don't carry on so," he says gruffly, and hacks away. The instruments gleam in the bright light like malevolent animals. The pain is insufferable. Two orderlies hold my arms fast, but I break loose with one of them and try to crash into the surgeon's spectacles just as he notices and springs back. "Chloroform the scoundrel," he roars madly.

Then I become quiet. "Pardon me, Herr Doctor, I will keep still, but do not chloroform me."

"Well now," he cackles and takes up his instrument again. He is a fair fellow, not more than 30 years, with scars and disgusting gold spectacles. Now I see that he is tormenting me, he is merely raking about in the wound and looking up surreptitiously at me over his glasses. My hands squeeze around the grips. I'll kick the bucket before he will get a squeak out of me.

He has fished out a piece of shell and tosses it to me. Apparently he is pleased at my self-control, for he seems to be more considerate of me now and says: "Tomorrow you'll be off home." Then I am put in plaster. When I am back with Kroop I tell him that apparently a hospital train comes in tomorrow morning.

"We must work the army medical sergeant major so that we can keep together, Albert."

I manage to slip the sergeant major two of my cigars with bellybands, and then tip the word to him. He smells the cigars and says, "Have you got any more of them?"

"Another good handful," I say, "and my comrade," I point to Kropp, "he has some as well. We might possibly be glad to hand them to you out of the window of the hospital train in the morning."

He understands, of course, smells them once again and says, "Done."

We cannot get a minute's sleep all night. Seven fellows die in our ward. One of them sings hymns in a high cracked tenor before he begins to gurgle. Another has crept out of his bed to the window. He lies in front of it as though he wants to look out for the last time.

Out will come tourist wrapped in a sheet!

The idea behind the bus "sleeper" is to make the automobile tourist more comfortable. That's irony for you. Anybody tough enough to get any comfort out of a berth in one of those bounding behemoths of the automobile world, doesn't deserve any steps in his behalf. He could sleep on the fenders of a horse van and be happy.

A fellow who could go to bed in one of those things with the idea of resting would look for sweet dreams in a runaway road roller and seek to cure insomnia by retiring for the night on the bumpers of a rum truck.

If "sleeper" buses become common the fences of our country will be strewn with tourists in torn nightgowns. There won't be a telegraph post on a trunk highway without an uneonscious pajama-clad traveler coiled around it.

A passenger will start counting sheep in his bus berth and finish counting them in an open field.

One of the night time diversions will be looking out the port holes and counting the posts that miss you.

And those sudden stops! A passenger will go to bed in a bus berth and wake up on the radiator of a Ford milk wagon.

There will be a buffet kitchen on these de luxe buses, too. This will make it possible to serve meals en route provided the dishes are properly shackled. The hard part will be keeping the soup under control when passing over plank bridges.

Waiter, another kupper coffee! But wait until we get across this detour.

Lucy Booth-Hellburg Ordered to Africa

DRUGS EXCITE THE KIDNEYS, DRINK WATER

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good soft water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.—Adv.

WAR CLOUDS IN CHINA GAINING

Serious Revolution Appears About to Begin

By JAMES P. HOWE
Associated Press Correspondent

PEKING, Oct. 14.—China appears today to be developing one of the biggest civil wars known in the country for some time. Troops are mobilising in nearly every province with the object of overthrowing the regime headed by Chiang Kai-Shek and installing Feng Yushisang, the "Christian general," and Yen Hsi-Shan, the "model governor of Shansi" as heads of the administration.

The development is coming, too, just when the troubles with Russia along the Manchuria border are increasing, with the government treasury empty and with famine putting millions of people on the verge of starvation.

Punitive Expeditions

The civil situation is being brought to a head as a result of the Nationalist government's order that punitive measures be taken against the Kouminchun, or "peoples army" as the troops of General Feng call themselves. This order followed upon denunciation of Chiang Kai-Shek by commanders of those troops, in which the titular head of the government was accused of enriching himself at the expense of the state.

Resignation of President Chiang probably would bring a halt to the movement.

His most recent pronouncement was that he would die rather than relinquish his post in the face of rebellion.

In their denunciation of Chiang, Kuominchun leaders charged he had been drawing a million dollars a month from the national treasury for personal expenses, they asserted that he had usurped dictatorial powers and that while had been ordering demobilization of the troops of other leaders, he had been recruiting his own forces.

Nepotism Charged

They said that within two years, he had floated loans for $400,000,000 of which the public knew nothing in so far as the expenditures of that amount were concerned. He was accused of nepotism in that the most lucrative government posts had been given to his own friends and relatives.

They said that whereas Sun Yat Sen, father of the republic, had declared the state belongs to the people, Chiang Kai-Shek had adopted the policy of making the state a matter of private ownership.

The document asserted that 400,000 men were being assembled for a campaign against Nanking, the avowed object being the death of Chiang Kai-Shek as the only positive measure that would insure the safety of the country.

Reliable reports reaching here assert that anti-government troops are mobilising in at least seven provinces—Shantung, Anhui, Honan, Shensi, Kansu, Hunan and Kwangsi.

ACIDINE

EASY--The Love Story of a Modern Girl--

By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Unlike her bold and modern flapper sisters, Jeanne and Alice, Ann-Marie Macy refuses to compromise her high ideals by petting. Ann-Marie has more serious ideas. She saves the money she earns in her father's bookstore to study art. When John Lawler, catch-of-the-town, invites her to the Christmas dance, her happiness is short lived as Alice selfishly requests Ann-Marie to stay home while she attends the party in her place. Alice and Jeanne further infuriate Ann-Marie by pilfering her Christmas bottle of rare perfume. When Florence Lawler brings her visiting cousin, Neal Forsythe, and his friend, Jim Goodwin, to the Macy store, Ann-Marie secretly falls in love with the fickle Neal. It is the more serious Goodwin, however, who is enamored of Ann-Marie. He leaves the dance to visit her in the bookstore. Ann-Marie belatedly attends the dance at his suggestion. She really wants to see the handsome Neal Forsythe. In the cloak room, she discovers Neal embracing Leota Ingram, notorious town character. She forgives Neal, but later he humiliates her by leaving her outside the clubhouse in a parked car. After the dance, a gay party is held in the Macy home for which Ann-Marie is requested to make waffles. Later in bed tired and fagged she is roused by the housekeeper's screams. Neal Forsythe has passed out as a result of the drinking party. Late Saturday night, in the store, Ann-Marie hears a mysterious tapping. Howdy, her brother is in tears and trouble with Leota Ingram. Ann-Marie sets out to see her.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XII

"Howard asked me to come to see you, Leota," Ann Marie answered in her gentle way. "That's why I'm here."

The soft answer did nothing to turn away Leota's wrath. Angry color came flaming up into her face, and she shook her red-gold head impatiently.

"Look here!" she cried. "Do you think this is the way he ought to treat me? — sending his family around to talk to me instead of coming, himself?—You tell him for me that, if there's anything he wants to get over to me, he can tell it to me. I ain't goin' to listen to no third parties!"

Ann Marie just sat and looked at her with her blue eyes troubled and thoughtful.

"He asked me to marry him—and now he's got cold feet," the other girl went on in a voice that rang like brass. "But cold feet or not, he's not goin' back on his word 'cause I ain't goin' to let him! I ain't goin' to be no laughing-stock in this town, let me tell you, and don't forget it!"

Ann Marie gasped . . . She tried to speak but she could think of nothing to say. What was there to say in the face of such determination as this?

"Howard Macy knows that he'll never care about anybody but me," Leota ran on. "There's a lot of things about him an' me that you don't know — that he ain't told you. Why, last winter when I was sick in bed with bronchitis so long, Howdy paid all my doctor bills and my rent here . . . I know he loves me and that's why I ain't never goin' to give him up!"

"He must love her," thought Ann Marie, "if he's ever given her any money."

For she never had heard of Howdy giving anything to anybody before. Instead, he was always taking things from other people.

He was a born "taker."

. . . Ann Marie had lost count of the five-dollar bills she had let him take, during the past few months, for his weekly half-gallon of gin. And she knew that he borrowed small sums from his father and Mrs. Leezy constantly.

"Where does his salary go?" Ann Marie had often asked herself, and now she was finding out where part of it, at least, had gone. . . . To this girl who sat before her, blooming like a great big beautiful cabbage-rose, in her cheap finery!

"You probably think Howdy makes a lot of money, Leota," she said suddenly, "but he doesn't. The job of assistant cashier sounds like a big job. But it isn't much of a job down in Mr. Lawler's little bank. It's nothing but a clerk's job."

She paused a moment to let that sink in.

Then she went on:

"And the only reason Howdy has that job is because he goes around with Florence Lawler! If he breaks with her he'll lose his place at the bank—and his whole future will be gone, glimmering!"

Leota's big shining eyes narrowed and she gave a nasty little laugh. "And what about me and my future?" she asked. "That doesn't count, I suppose. . . . It doesn't make no difference what happens to me, does it?"

She caught her breath angrily, and then answered her own question.

"Well, maybe it doesn't make no difference to you," she all but yelled, "but it does make a difference to me—and Howard Macy's going to make good his promise to marry me, or I'll know the reason why! Get me?"

She thrust out her lower jaw and her eyes gleamed.

"Now you get out of here!" she finished breathlessly. "And you can tell him everything I said!—See!"

Ann Marie saw. . . . She saw clearly that she was no match for Leota.

"I ought to find out if she wants money," she thought as she stood up to go.

But she was afraid to even mention the word "money" to Leota, who stood looking at her with fire in her eyes.

"I don't know how Howdy will ever support a wife," she said weakly, turning at the door, "because he really has very little money."

Leota sneered. "He'll have less than he has now when I get through with him!" she answered. "Because if he gets funny with me, I'm going straight to the Lawlers with my story about him! And, buleeve me, sister, it's some story!"

Sunday dinner was ready when Ann Marie got home.

Mrs. Leezy was ringing the bell when Ann Marie walked into the front hall, and Howdy was coming down the stairs, two steps at a time.

He was fresh from a bath and a shave. His black hair had been "slicked" down with water and pomade, and he was wearing a Persian silk dressing-gown that Florence Lawler had given him for a Christmas present.

"Hello!" He greeted Ann Marie with cheerfulness. There was nothing about him now of the frightened Howdy who had come down to the book store the night before. . . . Trouble always seems blacker and more terrifying at night than it does in the sunshine, somehow or other.

But at the sight of her face, as she waited for him at the foot of the stairs, he became grave-eyed and solemn once more.

"Been to see her?" he asked, and Ann Marie nodded.

"Well, what did she have to say?" he asked then.

It didn't take long for Ann Marie to tell him.

"She says that if you don't marry her she'll go to Florence Lawler and to Mr. Lawler—and you'll lose your job," she said. "I'm just sick about it!"

To her amazement Howdy took this piece of news with great calmness. He shrugged his shoulders.

"Oh, I guess she won't do that," he made up his mind. "She's just pulling a lot of hooey on you . . . Suppose I did ask her to elope with me? I was just kidding her. She can't hold me to a thing like that . . . I'll go down and see her after a while. I'll fix it up."

He went in to dinner and ate three big helpings of chicken pie and peas and mashed potato as if he hadn't a worry in the world.

A little after four that afternoon, when the family was taking its regular Sunday-afternoon nap, Florence and Johnny Lawler came driving up Pleasant street and stopped in front of the house with a great screeching of brakes and honking of the horn.

"What you all doing?" Florence shouted to Ann Marie who ran out to the porch to see what they wanted.

"Dozing." Ann Marie answered with a laugh, and trying to blink the sleep out of her eyes.

"We want you to come up to our house," Johnny called. "The folks have driven over to Mercersburg—"

"We'll come back and pick you up in 10 or 15 minutes!" Florence interrupted him. "We're going down to the delicatessen for some oranges."

They drove away, knowing that their invitation would be accepted. None of the young folks in town ever turned down an invitation to a Sunday evening supper party at the Lawlers' house.

They were gay rough-and-tumble affairs, and they had become a sort of weekly institution among the young crowd to which the four young Macys belonged.

"You'd better run down and see Leota—or at least call her up—before you go up to the Lawlers," Ann Marie said quietly to Howdy when she went back into the house. "I know she's going to make trouble for you!"

He shook his head. "Aw, rats! Don't let her get your goat, Ann Marie," he replied half-angrily. "Suppose she did go to Florence and her dad and told them a lot of bunk?—who'd believe Leota Ingram on her oath? Who'd even listen to her?"

He went upstairs to dress and Ann Marie followed him.

She found Jeanie in her room, going through her dresser drawers with great speed.

She flushed a little when Ann Marie came in.

"I—I was just going to borrow a pair of your stockings," she explained. "All of mine need darning."

"I have only one decent pair, myself," said Ann Marie, "and I'm going to wear them."

Jeanie drooped pathetically. "Gosh, its misery not to have any money, isn't it?" she sighed. "They always want me to do my tap dance and—Oh, dear me, how will I do it tonight in these socks?"

She stood up and held out one slender silken leg. There was a wide "Jacob's ladder" that went from the knee right straight down to the toe of her stocking.

"I'll just have to stay at home, that's all!" she wailed. "I'm not going to go up there, and have everybody looking at my stockings and pitying me because they're all darns and runs."

She started out of the bedroom but Ann Marie stopped her.

"Here!" she said, "you can have these to wear!"

She took out her one new pair of silk stockings, all rolled neatly into a ball, and threw them to Jeanie.

"Thanks, terribly!" Jeanie was all smiles instantly. "That pair you have on really looks fine, Ann Marie. And I'll take good care of these, darling. Thank you so much!"

Jeanie and Alice were still dressing when the Lawlers came back to the house.

"Come in and sit down!" Howdy called to them from the front door. "The girls are still painting on their faces!"

"No, thanks, I'll wait here," Johnny answered.

But Florence got out of the car and came into the house. She always did what Howdy told her to do. She adored him.

Her adoration of him shone in her pink, plump face as she smiled at him.

"How's my Lotsa Mamma?" Howdy asked her with a laugh. He was always joking with her about her plumpness and she did not seem to mind.

Ann Marie left them alone in the parlor, and as she turned away she saw Howdy's arms go around Florence's big ample figure . . . She knew from the sudden silence that he was kissing her.

And, thinking of Leota Ingram, she found herself marvelling at the double-dealing of men with their women.

"Howdy's just as bad as Neal Forsythe," she thought. "Worse, because he's half engaged to Florence, and so deep with Leota that she's going to try to make him marry her."

The front door bell rang. Turning Ann Marie looked through the glass panel of the door . . . Outside, on the porch, resplendent in a purple sweater suit and pink felt hat, stood Leota herself!

Arab Council Will Protest New Rules

LONDON, Oct. 14. (UP)—The executive council of the Palestine Arab congress has decided to call a general strike next Wednesday in protest against new regulations governing Jewish worship at the Jerusalem wailing wall, a dispatch from Jerusalem to the Daily Mail said today.

The Arabs alleged that the regulations, recently issued by Sir John Chancellor, British high commissioner in Jerusalem, would convert the holy place into an open synagogue.

The executive council also decided to protest vigorously against the infliction of Sir John of collective punishments on Arab villages in the vicinity of recently raided Jewish settlements. If the protests were unavailing, it was understood the council contemplated advising the Arabs not to pay local taxes.

Mexican Candidates Reveal Their Platforms

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 14. (UP)—Mexico's two rival candidates for president in the election Nov. 17 disclosed their platform to the United Press today. They disagree, among other things, on woman suffrage.

Jose Vasconcelos, anti-reelectionist candidate, said he would be willing if elected to grant feminine suffrage immediately.

Pascual Ortiz Rubio, the administartion candidate, would not do so, saying, "the time is not yet ripe; Mexican women at present are too easily influenced."

Ortiz Rubio is the generally favored candidate because he has the present regime behind him. Vasconcelos, however, predicted that the force of popular opinion would sweep him into the presidency, "despite all obstacles."

Russia's Morals Intact Despite Easy Divorces

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—Easy divorce in Russia by no means has proved provocative of immortality.

Despite facile means of serving matrimonial bonds, the family persists as a sturdy unit. Children are treasured.

These impressions, strikingly at variance with some propaganda, have just been brought from Russia by Albert Ottinger, formerly attorney general of the state of New York and Republican candidate for governor last year.

Whereas one might expect Russia to abound with "ladies of easy virtue," owing to lax divorce law, the contrary is the fact, Ottinger said in an interview today.

Stadium Planned on Contested Cuban Site

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (US)—Published reports that the Cuban government has granted a concession for erection of a $2,000,000 stadium on the Mangiares de Urrutia, in Havana, were referred to the state department today by Joseph E. Barlow.

The Mangiares de Urrutia is the $10,000,000 property which the aged American inventor alleges was seized from him by connivance of the Cuban government. Barlow's claim is now before the state department.

OLD BOGEY OF NEUTRALITY UP

Freedom of Seas Has Long Been in Dispute

By RICHARD L. TURNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—In taking up the freedom of the seas as one of the Anglo-American differences of international friendliness and mutual understanding, President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald will have before them a problem that has mocked statesmanship and diplomacy since the beginning of the American republic.

For a century and a half this question of the right of neutral vessels to sail the seas free from molestation by warring nations has lurked continuously and menacingly in the background of Anglo-American affairs. Several times it caused strained or ruptured relations.

Trouble Maker

It was the direct cause of the war of 1812. During the civil war and again early in the world war it brought diplomatic relations between Washington and London almost to the breaking point. It led America into the European maelstrom of 1917.

It is regarded by many commentators as one of the most important of all British-American differences, transcending, in their opinion, even that of the limitation of armaments and woven inextricably into that question. So often has the tissue threatened to result in war, that a final settlement acceptable not only to Great Britain and America but to the other principal powers as well would be one of the most practical steps that could be taken to assure world peace.

Like other grave international issues, the problem has been treated historically in the light of war already at hand or feared for the future. A century and a half have seen little advancement toward a general agreement. But now, with the Kellogg treaty and the assumption that war cannot take place as the fundamental principle of negotiations, MacDonald and Mr. Hoover may bring order out of the mass of confused precedents and establish by mutual agreement among the nations a definite and abiding law of the sea.

Nations' Attitudes Differ

Generally speaking but with one important exception, America has championed the right of neutral merchantmen to trade as they see fit without interference from belligerent nations. Great Britain on the other hand has traditionally stood for the right of warring nations to prevent food and supplies from reaching the enemy, regardless of the neutrality of the vessel on which they might be carried.

America's one important deviation came with the civil war. Anxious to make the blockade of the Confederacy as effective as possible the southern ports were closed by edict and the blockade made effective in fact as rapidly as a navy could be built. Deprived of a profitable trade, British merchantile interests entered vigorous objection and a strained situation resulted.

The policy of the London government has fluctuated as the influence of the admiralty and the mercantile interests has risen or declined.

The outbreak of the world war found the admiralty in power in Great Britain. Orders in council and lists of contraband virtually nullified the declaration of Paris and England returned to its historic policy of stifling all trade with the enemy. A serious situation between London and Washington resulted, only to be obscurred by the much more serious factor of unrestricted German submarine warfare and the entry of America into the conflict as an enemy of the central powers.

New Point of View

MacDonald and Mr. Hoover may undertake to approach this old, vexatious problem from an entirely new point of view.

With the proclamation of the Kellogg treaty and the joint declamation of the British prime minister and the American president that the pact is to be an active factor in shaping their individual policies, the problem of freedom of the seas has taken on a different aspect.

The suggestion has been made that in the coming discussion, America may recede from her traditional policy of demanding unlimited trade in time of war and agree to refrain from commerce with any nation judged to be a violator of the Kellogg treaty. Such a proposal would involve also a concession on the part of Great Britain and an agreement to unrestricted trade upon such a basis. It has been proposed, too, that new definitions of contraband and blockade may be evolved.

"Would you say 'Yes' if I asked you to marry me?" he asked cautiously.

"If I should say: 'Yes,'" she replied, with equal caution, "would you ask me?"—Tit-Bits.

Are You Insured with a Texas Life Insurance Company?

Then you can be proud of this: every premium you pay to these companies enjoys the highest asset protection in the U. S.

IN considering Life Insurance investment, many people believe that the bigger and older the company, the safer it is. All legal reserve life insurance companies are safe and size does not enter into the question.

For instance: Texas Companies are comparatively young and not among the nation's largest; yet among these companies, the ratio of assets to insurance in force is equal and in many cases larger than the similar ratio of companies with offices outside Texas.

The agents of Texas Companies wear this Texas emblem; symbol of mercy, protection and progress and the mark of an honorable calling entitled to your esteem and respect.

Surprising! Isn't it? Especially so to newcomers from the North and East. Insurance executives of Texas are of a high type of integrity and ability. But even so, the strict requirements and accountability of state supervision makes loss to a policyholder virtually impossible. The rates for service rendered being equal, is it strange that loyal residents of Texas invest their money in Texas?

WHAT TEXAS BUILDS — BUILDS TEXAS

MACKMEN STAGE HEROIC LATE RALLY TO WIN SERIES, 3 TO 2

'MULE' HAAS IS HERO OF GAME

Howard Ehmke Is Knocked From Box

a sad eyed looking lad from Montclair, N. J. He nailed the first one offered and as the ball sailed over the right field wall beyond which are a row of dwellings stuck closely together and identically alike, "Kiki" Cuyler stood under it, his orbs following its flight.

Bing's Single Wins

A moment later, after Mickey Cochrane, the great catcher of the Athletics, had been thrown out by Rogers Hornsby, Al Simmons, the slugging left fielder of the Philadelphia club, smashed the ball to the center field wall for a double and Edmund John Miller, called "Bing," rapped out a single that gave the Athletics the game by a score of 3 to 2 and the series by four games to one.

President Hoover hastily departed, the crowd remaining seated while he passed out of the premises with his party. The Athletics' dugout was burbling with the glad cries of the baseball players as they pulled and wooled "Mule" Haas, Al Simmons and "Bing" Miller around, and the pleasant autumn air was sizzling with the shrieks of the Philadelphia fans and hazy with bits of torn paper, but President Hoover didn't linger.

I insist that his demeanor was that of a man of Chicago leaning. Sort o' downcast like. What's more, he "stretched" on the Chicago "stretch" at the start of the seventh inning, and he didn't "stretch" on the Philadelphia "stretch" at the beginning of the last half of that frame until the crowd insisted.

President Surprised

I suppose President Hoover came here today in the first instance to see if such baseball disorder as that seventh inning of Saturday's game really went on under his government, and to investigate the rumor that the Cubs were a menace to the baseball culture of the land.

He was pleasantly surprised to find Percy Malone pitching airtight, copper-lined ball right up to the awful explosion in the ninth, though he did see the Chicago outfit hang up a new world's series record by running their total of strike outs in five games up to 50.

But with the Cubs' two runs ahead and one out in the ninth, Mr. Hoover was conceivably mulling over in his mind a proclamation to the effect that they really were not as bad as reported. It would require a presidential proclamation to that effect to convince the Chicago fans who have followed this series.

Only two hits had been made off Malone and only 26 men had faced him. The blow-off was almost as surprising as when the Athletics came on from eight runs behind to win out Saturday in a single inning. It just wasn't in the cards for the Cubs to beat this American league club.

Even Scribes Upset

The newspapermen trailing the series were already bustling around with arrangements for their departure to Chicago tonight and wiring for hotel reservations. It didn't seem possible that the Athletics would squeeze through Malone's pitching, though they had been connecting rather solidly on it all day, but always hitting the ball to his support.

The Cubs knocked Howard Ehmke, the hero of the opening game, off the pitching peak in the fourth when a double by Cuyler, a single by Grimm and another single by Taylor, scored two runs. But the Chicagoans couldn't do much with the left-handed Rube Walberg, though they were supposed to be death on left-handers.

So ends the world's series of 1929 with the title still with the American league.

The Cubs of this series pass into baseball history as one of the most futile outfits that ever sought for the world's championship.

Connie Blushes

Old Cornelius McGillicuddy, the lean leader of the Philadelphia outfit, who is as skinny as a rail, and as sprightly as a spring chicken despite his 67 years, walked across the field from one bench to another before the game today and the early arrivals applauded until Connie doffed his hat and bowed and blushed.

Connie hasn't worn a baseball uniform in many years. He sits with his ball players on the bench during a game, and it is rarely he exposes himself to the public peering. It must have been important business that brought him into view today.

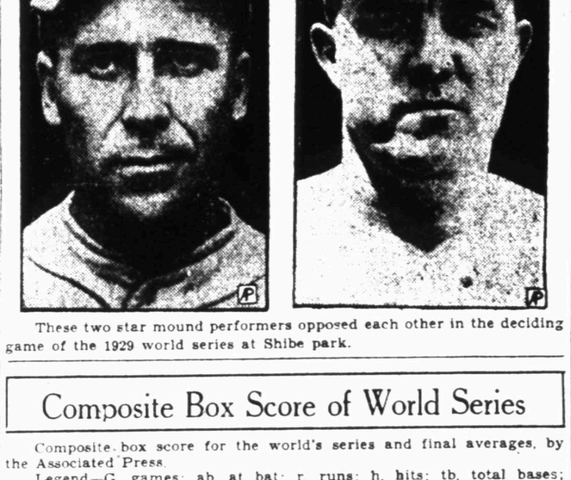

Enough Philadelphia coppers to suppress a Nicaragua revolution marched into the yard about 1 o'clock and formed a ragged hollow square on the field in front of the box assigned to President Hoover. There were so many of them they cramped the Athletics' batting practice.

The president's box was in the lower stand near the Athletics' bench. The Athletic owners sprung themselves for a few flags and a bit of bunting to brighten up the box, the only decorations seen in the Philadelphia yard since the series opened here. The local owners haven't shown much disposition to let loose of their profits on the season.

The use of a radio to dispense music on an occasion of this kind is about to pay-off in economy.

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Football is rather an exact science at the University of Missouri where the boys learn tricks from Coach Gwinn Henry by the slow motion process. The Tigers must walk through their plays, placing their cleats in Henry's tracks as he shows, to the inch, where each man must play.

Walberg Versus Malone

These two star mound performers opposed each other in the deciding game of the 1929 world series at Shibe park.

Rockne Is Recovering From Old Leg Injury

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 14. (UP)—Knute Rockne, famed Notre Dame football coach and developer of some of the greatest teams in history of the game, was reported recovering in his home here tonight from a serious infection.

His leg began to swell while he was watching a football game Oct. 5. The condition, apparently caused by aggravation of an old injury, became so critical that at one time amputation of his leg was considered.

The swelling began to recede today, however, and it was expected Rockne would be back with his team on the gridiron before the end of the week.

J. FOXX SAYS BEST TEAM WON

Team Work Outstanding in Series

By JIMMY FOXX

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14.—I feel sorry for Pat Malone. But I guess there is no doubt that we proved ourselves the better team, not only this afternoon, but in the entire series.

Like in the fourth game, it looked as though we were a beaten team, but when "Mule" Haas socked one we all felt that it was only a matter of an inning or so when we would be victorious.

Predicted Time

Far be it from me to pose as an expert forecaster, at which I am purely amateur, but I said before the series opened that I thought we would win four out of five games, which we did. Anyway it was a lucky guess.

Connie Mack sent Ehmke to the mound at the start of the game, because he felt that Howard had plenty of rest and that he could mow down the Cubs again just as he did in the first game in Chicago.

Ehmke wasn't striking 'em out the way he did in Chicago, but his control was excellent and the Cubs were having their customary difficulty in connecting with the onion squarely.

Ehmke Driven Out

The Cubs kept pecking away at Ehmke and drove him from the box in the fourth, scoring two runs. Then Walberg went in. Rube is a fast-ball pitcher and his pitching is as different from Ehmke's as night is from day. With two men out in the fourth, Rube retired the side by fanning the batter. He also made the Cubs look sick in the fifth. When Walberg is in form he is almost unhittable.

There was a break in our favor in the fifth when, with one out, Hornsby fumbled my easy grounder and Miller singled. But that was all for then.

Walberg Pitching Great

I gummed up the works in the so-called unlucky seventh by hitting into a double play. It was too bad that we couldn't give Rube a lift, for he was pitching magnificiently. In the sixth, seventh and eighth the Cubs did not threaten seriously. But we were not much better.

Then came the ninth and the finish.

Looking over the world series as a whole, it seems to me that there were no outstanding heroes although some of the baseball writers may disagree with me on that. Every man on the team did his part and the result is now history.

The Cubs are a great team, but I think we are, too.

In the last two games we came from behind to win. As a famous college coach once said: "It is impossible to beat a team that won't be beaten."

That was the Athletics of 1929.

The Oldtimer

He hears old echoes call him from long and long ago,
Where ghostly shadows beckon him
from days he used to know,
And after backs had flunked the charge, or stricken forwards
reeled,
The mocking memory of youth has blurred the open field.

The old thrill leaps to life again, and through the roaring
cheers
He sees the youth that used to be beyond the drifting years,
He feels the old stir in his breast,
where time has galloped back
To place his slashing speed again in front of the attack.

Why, it was only yesterday he heard the whistle blow
And fought his way for 50 yards against the yielding foe;
The sun of spring is in his heart,
and yet with mantle spread,
He knows the snows of winter soon will gather on his head.

Sometimes I wonder if the years that slip beyond recall
Are marked upon the Book of Time as week ends after all?
We hit the line with unchecked
youth—and as the vision
gleams
We find that we are gray and old along the road of dreams.

We hear the plaudits of the crowd
in some off-tackle play,
We throw our speed into the charge
amid the golden day;
And as we turn to look again upon the selfsame sod,
We see forgotten youth walk by without a careless nod.

Three of Them

Messrs. Warner, Zuppke and Rockne can be beaten here and there, but given the material they all three carry this fall and you will find at the end of the season that such trimmings will be about as close together as the outposts of a Siberian frontier.

These three all ran into a number of shocks last season, Rockne losing four games, Warner failing to beat either of his coast rivals and Illinois unexpectedly slipping in front of a Michigan team that had lost every game up to that spot.

But 1929 is likely to present another yarn. That is not to say that all three may not be stopped at one point or another, but in addition to the talents they bring to the game, all three have about as good material as a coach could ask for.

Ghosts From the Past

Dear Sir: Two elevens were engaging in scrimmage in Michigan stadium during the early days of the season. Watching them from the side lines were Fielding H. Yost, the grand old man of the Wolverines, and Willie Heston, the famous back of the point-a-minute days. Both of the oldtimers were deeply interested in that scrimmage.

For playing halfback on one team was Willie Heston Jr., and on the other Fielding H. Yost 2d. Young Yost was working out with the Wolverine squad, preparatory to returning to North Carolina, where he is studying.

On the first play a pass from Simrall to Heston was knocked down by Yost. Papa Yost reached over and took a cigar from Papa Heston's vest pocket.

Another pass to Heston was knocked down by Yost, and again Pere Yost snagged himself a cigar, while Father Heston began to look disgusted.

The young Heston took a pass right out of Yost's arms and ran for a touchdown. Judge Henson slapped Director Yost on the back knocked him sideways and then recovered his lost cigars. Later the two famous figures marched off to dinner to discuss the chances of the Wolverines. C. F. B.

Dear Sir: Dick Hanley, the Northwestern coach, was looking at his squad in practice. "Tackles are the backbone of any team," remarked Richard. That being so, the Purple has plenty of spine, for its tackles are: Woodworth, 190; Hutchinson, 230; Marvil, 250; Riley, 220, and Vanderberg, 185.

EVANSTON ED.

A Harvard Problem

Any team that meets the Army has one main problem it must first settle before there is any great hope of winning. That is the matter of stopping Chris Cagle. Some teams have checked his running game, only to face trouble from his passes. Others have broken up his passing attack, only to find him dashing from spot to spot. Murrell is a fine back, and there are other stars on the Army team, but Cagle for the last three years has been the main trouble for all bpposing elevens, because his ability to pass and run constitutes a double threat that is not too easy to tie into knots and keep in place. Cagle runs with his head as well as with his feet, and he passes with his head as well as with his right arm. Harvard has first-class defensive strength this season, but keeping Cagle suppressed is not the softest of all the autumn assignments.

About 10 good teams, still among the unbeaten, will have to take it on the chin by Saturday night. And the season is just beginning to warm up and break out in a rash.

Texas A. & M. and T. C. U. Clash Opens Conference Slate of Title Threats

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 14.—Backed 2,600 strong by the Texas Aggie cadet corps and the A. & M. 100-piece band, Coach Matty Bell's Aggie gridsters will make their biennial invasion of Fort Worth Saturday, Oct. 19, to engage the T. C. U. Horned Frog charges of Coach Francis Schmidt on the T. C. U. gridiron.

The game will be of unusual interest to Southwest conference grid fans since it will mark the opening of conference schedules of two of the leading contenders for the championship flag this season, neither the Aggies nor the Frogs having yet met a conference opponent. Of added interest will be the fact that the game will mark the first invasion of T. C. U. by Coach Bell, who last year piloted the Horned Frogs, since he became coach of the Aggies. The contest Saturday will also be the first conference contest for Coach Francis Schmidt, former Arkansas mentor, in his new capacity as head coach of the Frogs.

Results of the Horned Frog-Aggie contests of the past few years indicate that the T. C. U. elevens have held a "jinx" over the Aggies which still remains unbroken. While Bell was coach of the Frogs, the Aggies were able to win only one game, the Horned Frogs winning two and tying two more. Twice championship Aggie teams were held in check by the fighting Frogs, once being defeated and once playing to scoreless tie. Last season the Frogs defeated the Aggies on Kyle Field, 6-0.

Adding even greater color to the occasion will be the khaki-clad cadet corps and 100-piece band, who after parading through the business section of Fort Worth in the morning, will attend the game in a body.

ROOT PRAISES MACK'S CLUB

A's Won World Series In Dramatic Way

By CHARLIE ROOT
Star Pitcher of the Cubs
Written Expressly for Universal Service, Inc.

(Copyright 1929, Universal Service, Inc.)

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELphia, Oct. 14.—The Athletics were the better team. They beat us in a dramatic series—a series in which the Cubs fought hard all the way.

The Athletics, however, had the better pitching and the more dramatic punch and their victory was well deserved. Pat Malone deserved a better fate today, but that is baseball.

I thought we would win today's game, for when Ehmke started against us as we figured that he would be the easiest of the Athletic pitchers to beat—this in spite of Howard's marvelous performance against us in the first game in Chicago. In this respect we were right, but we didn't figure on Walberg.

I kept watching President Hoover during the early innings and it was plain to see that he did not have to be told the fine points of the game. It was the first time most of us knew the president was a ball fan.

We finally got next to Ehmke in the fourth and drove him from the box. From where I was sitting on the bench, it looked to me like the balls Ehmke was hurling were coming up to the plate as big as balloons. They were, and a change in pitchers was inevitable. That two run lead looked very large at that stage of the game, but then none of us could forget about that seventh inning in the fourth game.

Malone was pitching magnificently and he retired the Macks without much difficulty in the fourth and fifth. The sixth was the same. Ditto the seventh and eighth. Then came the ninth and it was all over.

I will glady admit that in this short series, the Athletics were the better team, but I think over a season's play it might be different. Or in another seires just now. But, of course, these are only hypothetical questions which can never be answered.

McCarthy is a great manager and our defeat by the Athletics was a bitter disappointment to him.

"Get in there and give them everything you have," McCarthy told us after those first two defeats in Chicago. And we did just that and put ourselves in the running by capturing the third game. The fourth and fifth games slipped from us when they appeared to be in our grasp. Over a league season, such defeats can be easily overcome, but not in a world series. Much hinges on every play, on every pitched ball and an error once made is hard to retrieve. I could cite a lot of "if's and "and's" but it would be of no use.

The Athelics beat us in a hard fought series that was cleanly played. Sportsmanship was always evident.

My hope is that the Cubs and the Athletics will win the pennants in their respective leagues next year. Then there may be a different story to tell.

"Wait Until Next Year" Is Cub Reply

CHICAGO, Oct. 14. (AP)—Sympathy mingled with hope for better returns next season was the mental reaction of Cub fans today as their favorites blew up and out of the now historic world series picture of 1929.

To three-fourths of the fans, who congregated everywhere a radio report was available, it was no surprise when the Cubs lost their lead and the game in the ninth inning. Most of them feared it, knowing full well the comeback habits of Connie Mack's Elephants, and the blow-up temperament of Pat Malone and his mates.

"But wait until next year," most of them countered. "Owner William Wrigley wanted a National league pennant and got one. He wants a world's championship and he'll get it. He's funny that way."

There is no secret that Wrigley is planning to do some more spending during the winter to get a star pitcher or two and a third baseman, who can hit as well as field. Several well established stars of the game have attracted his attention as well as that of Manager Joe McCarthy and what they want they usually get.

The greatest disappointment of all to the Chicago fans was that the world series circus would not return to Wrigley field.

One thing the series did, however, was to intrench Hack Wilson more firmly as the outstanding favorite of Cub fans. The pudgy Bruin centerfielder was one of the few players who didn't get a "razzing" during the series and his difficulty with the sun last Saturday was overlooked.

Series Sidelights

By JOHN H. REITINGER
Associated Press Staff Writer

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14. (AP)—President Hoover, who is said to have worked up a desire to see a ball game after listening in on the historic seventh inning of last Saturday, came to Philadelphia to see a hot finish and saw it.

A single, a homer, an out, a double, a pass and then another double is what he saw—enough to elect the Athletics the baseball champions of the world.

The president of the United States almost failed to see an exciting game for all the exhiliration was packed into that ninth inning. He stayed for the excitement, however.

The ball clubs were only two outs from making the long trip back to Chicago to finish the series. The way Malone was pitching it looked like a sure trip, but you never can depend on those Athletics losing.

"Those boys are dangerous at all times," said Tyrus Raymond Cobb, who is well known in baseball world, speaking of his former team mates.

The Athletics nearly tore the shirt off Bing Miller, as he came running in after touching second base with the hit that won the ball game and the series.

The scene when Haas hit his homer tieing the score was as exciting and as noisy as the seventh on Saturday. Up to that time the crowd did not have much opportunity to use its lungs.

In 1911 the A's scored seven runs in the seventh inning of a world's series games against the New York Giants. Last Saturday they scored 10 in the seventh. Today Connie Mack crossed McCarthy by passing up the seventh and pulling his rally in the ninth when the Cubs had been lulled almost to sleep.

PACK GETS AXE ON FOUR MATES

Watson, Skeen, Ray, Allen Off Team

The old axe of misfortune in the form of ineligibility and domestic difficulty has fallen upon the necks of four members of the Coyote football squad this week. The three players who were rendered ineligible by reason of failing grades are Harlan Ray, John Skeen, Raymond Allen. Loyce Watson is out of school on account of "domestic difficulties," so it is said.

The three ineligible players, it is thought, will not be permanently off the squad. They may "make up" their grades and resume their places on the eligible roster. But Watson, right guard, is definitely out of the program.

May Hinder Team

This blight is likely to cast a shadow of gloom over the training quarters of the Pack in the coming titular race, if that work is not "made up." One redeeming aspect of the present outlook is that the coming week's game presents one of the weaker teams of the district conference. Also if it becomes necessary to make permanent changes in the lineup, enough time is at hand to do this without serious handicap to the ultimate chances of the team.

Hutcheson Fills Gap

Just now it looks as if Earl Hutcheson will be Coach Holton's choice to fill the gap at left guard left vacant by Skeen's demise from the team. A large reserve of second squad men is at hand to choose from in picking successors for the deposed players.

The Pack was out for light limbering up exercises and signal drill Monday afternoon. No serious injuries were sustained in the Sherman game and the bunch will be ready for a stiff workout on Tuesday when they engage in their first weekly scrimmage after games.

Coach Is Pleased

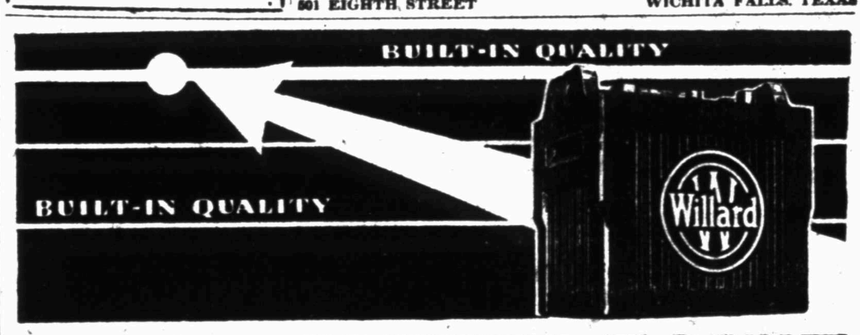

The coach was not at all displeased with the showing of last week, but on the contrary was rather elated that his boys were able to hold the East Texans to the low count that they did.

Coach Barry Holton is impressing on the squad the really serious nature of the training from now on. Every game henceforth will count either for or against the Pack in the conference rating. And from the closeness of the titular race this year no team can take too much for granted. It will be a tight race and the best won't be too good.

CHICAGO, (AP)—Red Grange, one-time "galloping ghost" of the gridiron, will return this season. He got a leave of absence from the movies to play with the Chicago Bears.

There is a SAFETY POINT in Battery Value

You never save by paying too little for a battery. An unusually low price usually means low quality and scant capacity. Trouble, expense and a need for early replacement are sure to follow. What you may save in first price is lost many times over.

But at the safety point of fair price and high quality, you'll get full value in a Willard—selected materials, dependable construction, built-in durability and correct electrical size that mean many added months of money-saving service.

You wouldn't trust your personal ailments with anything less than the BEST DOCTOR AVAILABLE, yet your body has means of rectifying some of its own troubles unassisted, but your car IS PURELY MECHANICAL and cannot replace wear of its own accord. WHY TRUST IT WITH ANYTHING LESS THAN THE BEST IN SERVICE AND PARTS.

Health and Diet Advice

CHOP SUEY

The term "chop suey" comes from the English word "chop" plus the Chinese word "sui," meaning "bits." It therefore means chopped into bits, which is good to remember in preparing chop suey, as the meats and vegetables used should all be cut to about the same size.

Chinese food is chopped before being served so that it can be handled with chop sticks. Somebody has said that chop suey is Chinese for "clean up the kitchen," since it is really a Chinese form of hash and may consist of chicken, fish, mushrooms, bamboo shoots, bean sprouts, or almost anything handy.

Although chop suey is closely associated in our minds with the Chinese, as a matter of fact, it is not supposed to have had its beginning in China, but to have first seen the light of day in San Francisco. Gossip has it that some clever Chinese there made a fortune by serving this dish, which is so easily digested and relished by almost everyone.

The Chinese cook uses no milk, cheese nor butter. The frying is done in peanut oil or olive oil. One of the fundamental rules of Chinese cookery which dates back from 3,000 B. C., is that meat dishes should contain about one-third as much meat as vegetables. This is a very good rule to follow, as it makes a well balanced meal.

Chop suey usually contains onions, but this is not necessary, as the other ingredients are quite appetizing and more wholesome if the onions are omitted. Chop suey is usually fried. This method cannot really be considered wholesome, but the frying of the non-starchy vegetables and meat cannot be considered as harmful as when starchy foods are fried.

Chop suey, while not particularly healthful, can be used occasionally for the sake of variety by those who are in good health. Meat chop sueys are prepared with a soup stock which is made from equal parts of chicken and pork cooked slowly for about two hours and strained. Here is a recipe for chicken chop suey:

3 pounds of chicken.
3 stalks of celery.
1 dozen white mushrooms.
1 dozen water chestnuts.
½ pound of bean sprouts.
4 tablespoonfuls of suey sauce.
½ cup of soup stock.

Chop the raw chicken meat into small pieces and fry in a hot greased skillet, using olive oil. After the chicken begins to brown, add the chopped celery and water chestnuts, after which the stock may be added. Then add the Chinese sauce, bean sprouts and mushrooms. After simmering for a few minutes this dish is ready to serve.

Most of the chop suey recipes are made in similar manner except other meat may be used in place of the chicken, for instance, lean beef or pork. In Chinese recipes, suey sauce takes the place of salt.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Twitching in Legs

Question: G. H. K. writes—"I am 73 years old, and am bothered with a twitching or jerking in my legs when retiring, sometimes keeping me awake for an hour or more. Will you please let we know the cause, also if there is a remedy?"

Answer—The jerking in your legs is doubtless caused by a poor circulation of blood. I would advise you to take some exercises about an hour before retiring. After the exercises, sit in a tub of warm water, immersing the legs in the water for about two or three minutes. This will help the circulation and should prevent the jerking.

Clabbered Milk

Question: F. D. asks—"Is clabbered whole milk healthful and nutritious for an elderly person who dearly loves it? Would a person who craves it be likely to be benefited by going on a diet of this kind?"

Answer—Clabbered whole milk is a very good food, and one could live on this diet for many years without needing any other food. If green vegetables are taken with the clabber (about three quarts used per day) it makes a very well balanced diet but so simple that most people would not be willing to live on this diet exclusively for any length of time.

Losing Mental Control

Question: G. S. writes—"I have lost confidence in myself and others—also have lost control of my will-power which causes me to have a nervous fear almost constantly. Will you tell me what causes this, and how to cure myself?"

Answer—You should seek the advice of a good psychologist or psycho-analyst. You can receive much help by reading good books on the subject of mind-power and mental control, but the personal advice and encouragement of a mental practitioner are often necessary to help you in effecting a complete cure, after you are conscious of having lost your mental control.

Two Youths Held in Series of Auto Thefts

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 14.(UP)—Two boys who confessed they had stolen six automobiles were held here today for action by juvenile authorities after their arrest in one of the cars while they awaited two girls with whom they had appointments. The youths, Jack Swinn, 18, and Harry Wheatley, 20, said they were tired of "the racket and ready for a rest," in jail.

Hundreds at Moose Lodge Convention

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., Oct. 14. (UP)—Hundreds of members of the Moose lodge were here today for the Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma convention which was opened by Albert H. Lander, Philadelphia, yesterday. Mrs. Vera Fulton, Mooseheart, Ill., is in charge of the women's auxiliary sessions.

Berlin's Mayor to Be Greeted in Kansas City

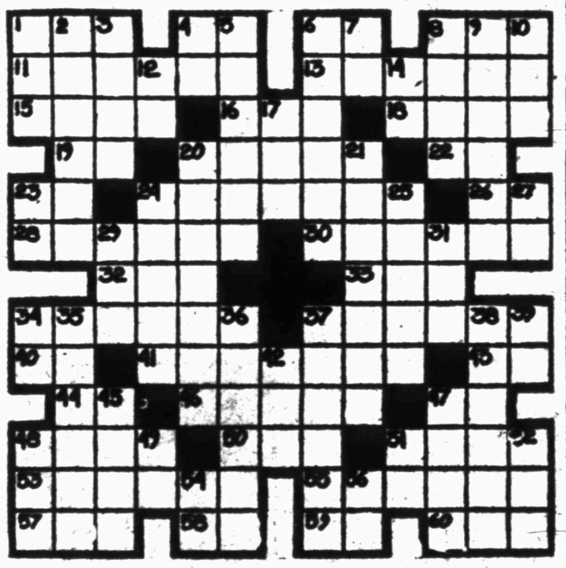

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 14.(UP)—Dr. Gustave Boese, lord mayor of Berlin who will arrive here Thursday for a tour of Kansas City, will be greeted by members of German-American societies of the Missouri-Kansas area.

BABY BABOON GIVEN NAME

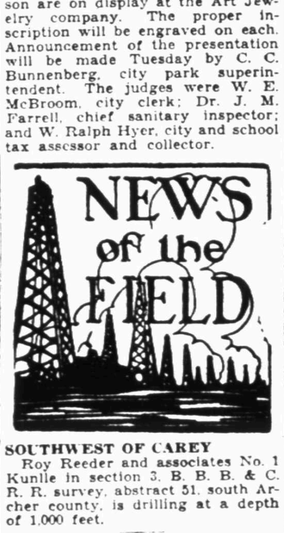

"Nemo" Selected as Title For Zoo Infant

The baby baboon has a name.

After due consideration of the hundreds of letters sent to the park department and no little disagreement, the three judges agreed on "Nemo" as the best name for the municipal zoo baby. The suggestion was submitted by J. J. Noble, 907 Fourth street, who explained that the word signified "no man," and was therefore "evolutionarily appropriate."

The name "Amos" was selected for second prize. Mrs. Viola Dodson, 1108 Scott avenue. Honorable mention was awarded the suggestion "Moko," sent in by Mrs. Howard Gillham, 313 Bluff street.

The silver cups which will be awarded Mr. Noble and Mrs. Dodson are on display at the Art Jewelry company. The proper inscription will be engraved on each. Announcement of the presentation will be made Tuesday by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent. The judges were W. E. McBroom, city clerk; Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector; and W. Ralph Hyer, city and school tax assessor and collector.

Temperamental Stocks Seldom Follow Rules

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Professional stock market operators say that constant daily association with ticker tape and the important little numbers printed on it tends to endow the security list with a kind of personality.

The list can be stubborn, temperamental, cheerful, deceitful, dejected, whimsical, flattering, threatening and belligerent. Another and even more fundamental characteristic, they say, is being perverse.

Seldom has the stock list been known to perform in exactly the manner everyone expected at the expected time.

AD CLUB PROGRAM

R. E. Shepherd will speak to members of the Advertising club at their luncheon Tuesday on "The Community Chest" and H. C. Federer will discuss "Advertising the Community Chest." A surprise is promised in the way of entertainment.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (AP)—Cotton was lower today under continued southern selling and liquidation which probably was influenced by reports of favorable weather for the movement in eastern and central belt sections and the apparent absence of aggressive support. December contracts sold off to 18.20 or 21 points net lower and into new low ground for the movement. They closed at 18.21 with the general market closing easy at net declines of 13 to 23 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 1 to 7 points under southern selling orders. Offerings were absorbed by trade buying and covering on the scale down and after showing net losses of about 6 to 10 points.

The lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading when October sold at 18.05 and March at 18.60 or 17 to 23 points net lower. Last prices were within a point of the lowest and about 15 to 20 points below the low levels touched after the publication of last week's government crop report on the more active positions.

Liverpool cable advices said that hedging and scattered liquidation had been absorbed by Continential and Bombay buying in the market there.

Exports today 56,206, making 1,387,771 so far this season. Port receipts 102,287. U. S. port stocks 1,709,285.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14. (AP)—Cotton, while moderately active today, developed an easier undertone under pressure of hedge selling and more or less long liquidation.

Opening 1 to 3 points down prices eased until the early afternoon when they showed losses of virtually a dollar a bale. There was more resistance to the decline in late trading from shorts covering and prices rallied a point or two at the closing. Demand after opening one point down at 18.34 gradually declined to 18.13, closing at that figure for a net loss of 22 points. The general market closed easy at net declines of 18 to 22 points.

Liverpool came in 4 points lower than due and first trades here showed losses of 1 to 2 points.

The market in final trading registered new lows in spite of the late resistance. The close was at the lowest with it closing at 18.28 and March at 18.32, or 20 to 22 points net lower.

Quiet Session Brings Orderly Slump In Stocks; Autos, Oils and Katy Gain

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 14. (US)—Stocks slipped off in orderly manner in a very quiet market today. A number of traders were away from the street and while a few stocks moved forward as a result of individual influences the list as a whole succumbed to rather light offerings of professionals. Steel finished 3¼ points lower while General Electric lost 5, American Can dropped 2⅝, American Telephone 2¼, Consolidated Gas 3⅜, American & Foreign Power 6½ and Anaconda declined a point. Short covering put the motor shares higher with Chrysler gaining 5¼ and General Motors finishing 3⅜ higher and the Katy gaining 1⅞. Oils were firm in dull trading. Call money remained at 6 per cent with light demand. Turnover dropped to 2,700,000 shares.

It was the time money market that aroused most interest today. Although the banks and other loans eased the rates there were very few takers. Thirty-day funds were offered at as low a 7¼ per cent with few brokers showing any interest while 90-day money went to 7½ and six months money dropped to 8 per cent for the first time in many months. There was no demand for the six months accommodations. The easing in the time money market was regarded as further evidence that there has been a definite change in money policies of the administration. There has been no contradiction of reports that Secretary Mellon agreed not to resign on understanding with President Hoover that he would have complete charge of money affairs so that there would be an end to the wild fluctuations in rates that threatened to undermine business confidence.

Bulge in the automobile shares reflected the improved sentiment in trade circles. There was report that the Studebaker people were considering announcing a higher price schedule for some models soon. General Motors interests look for business to hold around the current level so that the last three months of the year should show better results than the same period of 1928. Chrysler has been quietly picked up by insiders for several weeks and while they are not taking an aggressive stand in the market their attitude indicates the stock will have better support from now on.

There were further favorable reports concerning the plans for Public Utility interests. Western Union responded to expectation that splitup of the shares would be definitely decided upon in the near future. Reports concerning American Telephone plans for forming a new investment company continued in flotation. Electric Bond stockholders meet tomorrow and the acquisition of Electric investors, which will make it the greatest investment company in the world, is expected to be consummated. Italian Superpower is being quietly taken due to knowledge that the company will earn $2.50 a share this year. Buying of Johns Manville and International Cement reflects expectation of improvement in the building and construction industries as a result of the easier tone of the money market.

Oil shares reflected their strong technical position and gave rise to hope there would be general advance in the group but there was insufficient public interest in dealings to bring about a real move. Barnsdall and Pure Oil stood out by reason of annbuncement of bringing of new wells. The new well of Pure Oil proves up a big acreage of the company in Texas. That of Barnsdall was the first American well to be drilled in the ocean. By use of floats the company has been able to sink pipes. Further wells are to be drilled. The main influence of recent quiet accumulation of the oils, however, has been confidence that stabilization will be effected before next spring.

CHURCH TO USE MODERN TEXT

Revised Prayerbook Is Adopted by Episcopalians

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14. (U)—Protestant Episcopal churches throughout the United States will use the new revision of the book of common prayer for the first time at Sunday morning services on Dec. 1, in accordance with a proclamation of the Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of Ohio and temporary presiding bishop of the church.

Signature of the proclamation was the last official act of Bishop Murray as head of the Episcopal church, before his unexpected death while presiding over the house of bishops in the convention chair on Oct. 3.

In appointing Dec. 1 for the first use of the new praper book, Bishop Murray called upon all communicants of the Episcopal church and others who habitually attend its services to attend the Sunday morning service on that date. His proclamation addressed to the clergy and laity of the church expressed belief that "a great spiritual awakening and deepening will come from the general initial use of the new book on this day."

The standard book of the new revision is being presented to the church by J. P. Morgan and is an elaborate volume, the printing of which has occupied an entire year. Mr. Morgan's father, J. Pierpmont Morgan Sr., presented to the church the standard book of the last previous revision in 1892.

This volume is the official prayer book and is in the keeping of the Rev. Lucien M. Robinson of Philadelphia, custodian of the standard book of common prayer.

Conformity of the new revision with modern requirement is indicated, not only in the marriage ceremony from which the word "obey" has been omitted, but in other parts of the book. This is evidenced by the inclusion of a prayer for all who travel by land, sea or "air." The longer services have been shortened and greater flexibility and variety given to the prayers and services as a whole.

Court Refuses to Pass On Local Store Row

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14. (AP)—The supreme court today refused to passed on the controversy between creditors for settlement of affairs of the Tucker Mercantile company, adjudged bankrupt at Wichita Falls, Texas.

The Peters branch of the International Shoe company in December, 1927 had E. T. Duff appointed receiver for the Tucker company over protests of the Graham Brown Shoe company, the Higginbotham-Bailey-Logan company and the Monnig Dry Goods company, which insisted that the affairs of the insolvent company should be closed by an assignee for the creditors then in charge.

The federal court of appeals sustained the district court in appointing a receiver, holding it had properly taken jurisdiction notwithstanding an assignee was in charge of assets of the failed company at the time.

It is estimated that 1.07 per cent of the children born in the United States are twins. Only about 20 per cent of these twins are of the identical type.

The salary of the secretary of state under President Washington was $2,500 a year. All other members of the cabinet drew $2,000 a year.

COUNTY ORDERS PAVING OF ROAD TO MUNICIPAL AIRPORT

BIDS CALLED FOR NOV. 18

Hard Surface Road to Lead To Landing Field

In recognition of the growing importance of aviation and the need of a modern landing field for Wichita Falls, a third group Monday added its support to development of the Municipal airport when the county commissioners court authorized the paving of the road leading from the Burkburnett highway to the airport entrance.

Knauth Submits Plan

The auditor of the court was instructed to advertise for bids to be submitted on Nov. 18. The work of hard surfacing the road will begin immediately upon the letting of a contract. The matter was brought before the court by F. R. Knauth, commissioner from Burkburnett, who asked that the county cooperate with the city and airport company in providing a suitable field for air travel.

The paving work will extend 1560 feet east from the paving of the Burkburnett highway, allowing a large surplus beyond the entrance in case of further expansion needs. Appreciation of the county's support and cooperation was expressed both by city and airport company officials Monday evening.

A working fund for the airport has already been provided by the city council, which voted an appropriation of $10,011 for operation, maintenance and certain improvements several weeks ago. Permanent improvements for the field will be installed by the Wichita Falls Airport company, whose stockholders will hold a meeting at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the directors' room of the City National bank building.

Improvements Planned

The company's program has already been begun with the laying of a system of semi-hard runways at the field. Further improvements will be discussed at the meeting Tuesday morning. These will include proposed concrete runways near the hangar, an office building and several other permanent improvements, according to Wilbur Cahoon, president of the airport company. The needed improvements were itemized and discussed at a meeting of the board of directors last week and action on the proposals awaits only the approval of the stockholders.

Myers Explains Chest Drive for Kiwanis

Provision of $70,000 for the use of the community chest during the coming year was discussed by Raymond Myers before the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon in anticipation of the coming campaign.

Mr. Myers condensed his thought to the statement that only one direction can be given for raising the required fund, and that is to do it cheerfully.

C. P. Brewer of the extension department of the University of Texas, who is to conduct a two-weeks' course in salesmanship and personal development here, spoke briefly on the Kiwanis motto, "We Build."

Wichitan to Attend Toronto Dairy Meet

E. B. Lehrack, manager of the Lehrack Ice Cream company, left Sunday for Toronto, Canada, where he will attend an international dairy products exhibition on Oct. 21-26. Mr. Lehrack went by way of Houston, where he was to join a party of other representaitves of the dairying industry in Texas for the trip to New York by water. He is expected to return about Dec. 5, it was stated.

Wasn't Able to Do Housework

Takes Orgatone and Now Feels Like a New Person; Can Do Her Own Housework

The remarkable merits being obtained by the use of Orgatone is further evidenced in the case of Mrs. Alive Welch, of 1616 Ninth street, Lubbock, Texas, who in telling the story of her recovery from a serious complication of troubles, said:

"A little over two years ago I began having trouble with my stomach and would get so tired and fagged out, I couldn't get through with my housework without having to stop and lie down to rest. Everything I ate disagreed with me, and what I did eat would lie in my stomach undigested and form gas and my heart would palpitate like it would jump out of my body. I had liver trouble, too, and had severe pains in my back and side, and I felt tired and sluggish and the least excitement would upset me. I was badly constipated and was so nervous I could hardly sleep and many times I lay awake all night long suffering and worrying about my condition. I was getting so pale and thin, all of my neighbors were noticing it. I was tired and worn out all the time, and never felt like doing a thing and was just losing interest in everything.

"Orgatone had helped so many people I decided to try it, and I honestly feel like a new person and can do all my housework without the slightest trouble. I noticed an improvement right after I began taking it. I eat anything that I want, and have been relieved of that burning sensation in my stomach, gas has stopped forming and the pressure has been relieved so my heart does not palpitate as it did. My nerves are quiet and my sleep is delightful and refreshing. I am so much better and stronger that I can do all my housework, without getting tired and fagged out, and don't have to stop and rest as I did. I am now convinced all my troubles were caused from a disordered stomach, and Orgatone has done me more good than anything I have ever taken and my relief is due to nothing else but this great medicine, Orgatone."

GEM: Tim McCoy in "The Bush Ranger." Western picture. Comedy.

Selection of "Twin Beds" for the introduction of Jack Mulhall and Patsy Ruth Miller as a new talkie co-starring team leaves no doubt whatever as to the position taken by the producers at Hollywood. With an elaborate array of expensive new sound-recording equipment on hand, and a public willing to pay to have its curiosity satisfied, the talkie magnates hastily dug into the old rag bag, pulled out the dusty but fine old garments which had been relegated only because of age, tacked on some new trimmings here and there, and while new and peculiar designs are being slowly devised for the new offspring, he goes forth to bring in new shekels in old pockets.

And "Twin Beds" has deep pockets. Despite its many presentations on the legitimate stage from coast to coast, and later in the silent movies, its delectable assortment of compromising situations for the newlyweds will, it seems, always catch our fancy. The talking-version swings back noticeably toward the version used on the stage, with Jack and Patsy Ruth giving some very nice entertainment in their apartment home.

"And it's too little sadness they're for havin' in them American movies, is it?" says Colleen Moore, her shamrock-green eyes snapping in the shadows of her humble home in county Kerrick. "Shure, and its too hard their hearts are for tears? Arrah, me lad! It's tears they'll be sheddin' when little Colleen makes a show-play."

And bless Pat if it isn't! We're talking about "Smiling Irish Eyes," at the Strand, Colleen's first talking picture. Not that it contains very much talking, so far as she is concerned. It couldn't, you know, because talking is very difficult of accomplishment when one is sobbing clear down to her boot-heels (yes they were boots, for this was really in auld Oirland). Anyway, you may be guided in mood by the title for the first and last flashes of the picture, but for all the rest of it, don't be misled: Colleen will deliberately, painstakingly wrestle with your tenderest sentiments, and will set the example with many, many large, glistening tears.

Everything of Irish atmosphere was included except the four-leaf clover; perhaps the moisture was too salty for its successful culture. But even Colleen Moore couldn't let the hills of Erin supply the big moment for her Rory. Guess what? Rory comes to New York, and knocks our very own old Broadway cold with his song, pairs off with the ringleted blonde, and so forth. Get it? But the picture has some very pleasing photography in spots, presents a really exciting greased-pig chase, and the songs include some of the genuine old Irish melodies.

There's Johnny Arthur to help out Colleen's bill at the Strand this week, with a comedy styled "Adam's Eve." Johnny took a new hold on local audiences last week with a scintillating performance in "Divorce Made Easy." And isn't it amazing that such a skinny little neck as Johnny's manages to support and turn such a heavy looking head?

The corps of erect, precise attendants at the Majestic with white trousers starched to stand alone, are not importations from West Point. They represent the idea of E. W. Watson, head usher, of how patrons of a Publix show-house should be "ushed" to their seats. Mr. Watson came here recently from the Kirby theater at Houston, and has militarized the ushers' staff at the Majestic.

TWO GIVEN PRISON TERMS

Montgomery Starts Work On Criminal Docket

Two defendants drew two-year prison sentences, one was sent to jail for 60 days, and a fourth was transferred to the juvenile court for trial within a few hours after Judge Allan D. Montgomery called the criminal docket in the 30th district court Monday morning.

The two-year sentences were assessed against Jack Hollis, charged with attempted forgery, and A. D. King, accused of burglarizing the Wooten Grocery company last May. Both young men entered pleas of guilty. In accordance with an agreement between state and defense attorneys, a jury sent Frank McDaniels to jail for 60 days for stealing chickens after the defendant had entered his plea of guilty. McDaniels is believed to be the first man tried on a chicken stealing charge in Wichita county since the offense was made a felony, court officials said. In all the cases the state was represented by George W. Anderson and Mike Anglin, assistant district attorneys.

Immediately after the burglary trial of Hugh Butler, set for Monday morning, had been set over until Wednesday, the state called its case against Willie Jones, negro, who pleaded not guilty to a burglary charge and claimed to be only 16 years of age. The boy told the court that he had confessed to city officers about two weeks ago only because he had been intimidated by blows from fists. Judge Montgomery entered a mistrial on the dockets and turned the prisoner over to the juvenile authorities.

The trials of Alfred Jennings, charged with driving while drunk, and of P. E. Wood, indicted on two forgery counts by the grand jury last week, are set for Tuesday's session.

Rare Booth Portrait Found by Kentuckian

WALTON, Ky., Oct. 14. (AP)—After two years of search C. Spencer Chambers of Walton, has found an oil painting of John Wilkes Booth, Abraham Lincoln's assassin, believed to be the only on in existence.

The canvas which he purchased is 8 by 8½ inches, and was painted by John Aubrey, Cincinnati artist. Painted shortly after Booth appeared in the old National theater in Cincinnati, in 1863, the picture shows the famous actor wearing a small goatee. Sold by Aubrey to Frank A. Waltz, a saloonkeeper, the picture remained in obscurity for many years before Chambers found it.

McCorkle Trial Again Postponed by Court

Trial of Bob McCorkle, charged with negligent homicide in connection with the death of Tom Bennett in an automobile accident here two months ago, was reset for Oct. 28 when it was called in the county court-at-law Monday morning. Mr. Bennett succumbed to injuries received when he was struck by an automobile driven by McCorkle between Fifth and Sixth streets on Ohio.

ROTARIANS TO VISIT BOWIE

Wichitans Charter Bus for Anniversary Trip

Numerous members of the Rotary club are planning to attend the anniversary banquet and soiree to be given by the Bowie Rotary club at Bowie Wednesday night, Oct. 16, according to Horrace Robbins, chairman of the committee appointed to make arrangements for the trip.

Abe Cline, a brother of Walter Cline of this city, is president of the Bowie club, which was organized some years ago by Mr. Robbins. An elaborate program has been prepared for the Wednesday night party, it was said with provisions for a large number of guests from this city.

A large bus for those making the trip is being arranged by L. L. Allbritton, it was stated, with a price of $2 for the round trip. It will leave the Kemp hotel at 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Reservations should be made at once with Mr. Robbins, or Tom B. Smock, secretary, it was announced.

Five of the signers of the Declaration of Independence lived to be 90, eight over 80, and 10 over 70.

Outselling all previous Packard models

THE NEW PACKARD STANDARD EIGHT

NO CAR in Packard history has met with such instant sales success as the new series Packard Standard Eight.

August deliveries of Packard cars were greater than in any previous month. And when the new series Standard Eight models were introduced in mid-September, sales continued to increase in such gratifying degree that Packard is assured a record-breaking Fall season.

It was inevitable that today's Packard Standard Eight would win new thousands to Packard Eight ownership. This distinguished car is so outstandingly more advanced, more beautiful, more luxurious that it is already establishing itself as the most popular Packard of all time.

Improved in Engineering —Refined in Details

In the new series Standard Eight Packard has surpassed all previous achievements — both in engineering and designing—and in addition has given particular attention to the refinement of incidental comforts and conveniences.

Notable among the body refinements are improved-vision pillars; adjustable sun visors; newly perfected shatter-proof glass; dashboard lockers; adjustable steering gear and driver's seat—together with greatly enriched fittings and upholstery.

Engineering advances include the improved powerplant with its new four-speed transmission and still further refined straight-eight motor. Packard performance—noted the world around—is greater, more brilliant than ever in the new series Standard Eight.

Packard Ownership Costs No More

We cordially invite you to see the new Standard Eights—to ride in one and drive it. You will find it luxurious beyond your expectations—and no more expensive to own than your twelve or fifteen hundred dollar car.

Operation and maintenance costs of the Packard Standard Eight are not greater because first cost is more. Even if first cost is twice as much, final cost is no greater if the Packard is driven twice as long!

Analyze ownership figures in the light of these facts and you will find that you, too, can enjoy the luxury of Packard transportation at your present motoring expense.

Thousands of motorists have found that Packard ownership costs no more. Two out of three who buy Packard Standard Eights give up other makes of cars to do so!

You are paying for a Packard—why not have one? Your old car will be accepted as cash, and you may buy out of income if you prefer.
