Aid for rebels likely to be rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said today President Reagan's plan to provide $100 million to anti-government rebels in Nicaragua appears headed for rejection, and a White House spokesman said a last-minute compromise was possible.

With a House vote set for Thursday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration was ruling out compromise on the "fundamentals" of the $100 million package. But he said changes were possible that would delay delivery of military and other aid for up to four months to permit time for diplomatic negotiations.

O'Neill, D-Mass., and a vocal critic of the aid package, said opponents hold a 10-to-15 vote margin. He said there has been "no erosion" despite an intensive personal lobbying campaign by Reagan. O'Neill likened the issue to Vietnam. "I see this leading to war...I see a quagmire down there," he said.

Speakes said the battle for approval of the aid was "very, very close" and that the administration was listening to compromise ideas from members of Congress in hopes of winning their support.

"We have not made any agreements," Speakes said. He said some members of Congress want the president to sign an executive order calling for negotiations while the aid is delayed; other congressmen are seeking such assurances from Reagan in a letter.

"The White House has had some discussions with various members of Congress who have ideas on the proposals," Speakes said. "The White House is not changing its fundamental proposal for $100 million in aid to the Contras — split $70 million in military aid and $30 million in non-lethal assistance — and the other fundamentals of the programs."

Speakes said, 'We're committed to negotiations." He said any compromise "depends on the length of time. Some people are talking 30 (days); some are talking 90; some are talking 120."

'Million dollar' publicity...

Banquet expense said 'break-even'

With expenses now projected at near $24,000, Snyder's annual chamber of commerce banquet, which drew state and national attention last Saturday, is expected to be a "break-even" effort.

The extra benefit of "a million dollars worth of publicity" was pointed out also during a wrapup report offered chamber board members Tuesday.

Helen Hatter, who headed the chamber banquet committee, projected total income from the banquet at $23,970. She noted some expense billings are still to come in, "But at this point I think we'll just about break even."

Income was derived from 806 banquet tickets sold at $25 each; 142 box seats sold at $12.50; and 205 seats sold at $10 each.

Approximately 30 complimentary banquet tickets were given out to family members of the five entertainers honored Saturday, bringing attendance at the event to near the 1,200 mark.

Regarding the publicity, Hatter noted that TV Guide had filed a report covering Brad Maule and that this article is to appear within the next few weeks.

Entertainment Tonight had been scheduled to cover the banquet, but a last minute transportation problem prevented their representatives from arriving.

Media coverage at the event was provided by Dallas, Lubbock and Abilene television stations. The Associated Press also used the story as one of its "Texas Topic" features and as a statewide wire story released Monday.

Articles related to the banquet are also planned after the fact by "Us" magazine and several television soap opera-related publications.

23 schools compete here

Representatives from 23 West Texas high schools were in Snyder Tuesday as part of the third annual Western Texas College land and livestock judging events.

A total of 37 livestock teams and 17 land teams competed.

Lamesa High School won the team title in the land judging event with the Sweetwater No. 1 and No. 2 teams earning the second and third highest scores.

Robert Lee High School won the overall livestock judging team title while teams from Ira High School earned the second and third highest scores in that competition.

In the specific livestock areas, Ira High School won the cattle judging with Snyder and Robert Lee winning the sheep and swine judging respectively.

Complete contest results were as follows:

City engineer accepts position in Kerrville

City Engineer Rick Conner has accepted a similar position with the City of Kerrville and will be leaving Snyder in mid April.

At Kerrville, a city of some 20,000 with outlying developments numbering another 15,000 residents, he will serve as director of engineering.

Conner came to Snyder in December of 1982 from Paris, Tx., where he also served as city engineer.

Prior to that, from 1978-81, he served as municipal engineer for the city of Perryville, Missouri.

He is both a registered professional engineer and surveyor and holds two undergraduate degrees from the University of Missouri of Columbia. These include a BA degree in business administraion, received in 1971; and a BS degree in civil engineering, received in 1976.

In Snyder, he has served as a director for the United Way campaign and is a member of the Lions Club.

Chamber to review bids for computer

Plans to consider bids for a computer system and the organization of a new committee charged with developing membership were given board approval Tuesday by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The computer addition will come before chamber directors again in April. At that time, the board will review cost estimates and decide if the addition to the chamber operation is justified.

The decision to seek bids was approved by an 8-1 vote. Director Mike Banta voted against, commenting he felt the expense of a computer addition should be placed on hold "until the legal fees and lawsuit are behind us."

He was referring to the $2 million liability lawsuit now pending in the courts and involving the local chamber.

During discussion, it was estimated the computer expense might go as high as $10,000. These funds would come from the chamber's invested reserve monies. Reserves now total near $31,000, it was noted.

During Tuesday's regular March meeting, the chamber also voiced approval for suggestions regarding membership proposed by Ralph Williamson, who headed the recent chamber

The SDN Column By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "To learn the truth, one must first be able to spot the lie."

Last week we were in Dallas to attend a meeting and stayed at one of those fancy hotels which country boys can't afford--even at convention rates.

Following an afternoon meeting, ole-what's-her-name suggested we visit a nearby shopping mall. Naturally, we were enthused.

Stepping out of a nearby hotel elevator was the most awesome sight. Never in our West Texas years had we ever gazed upon two more pathetic creatures.

Knowing that Halloween is still several months away, we figured there must be some kind of costume ball. The couple passed through the spacious lobby and we felt some comfort that we were not the only folks gawking.

Outside the hotel was the longest limousine we've ever seen. Out popped an appropriately dressed driver who opened the door as the couple slithered inside.

We paused to ask the doorman, "Who were those people, and were we supposed to be impressed?"

The doorman informed that the fellow was 17-year-old Charles Sexton who presently has the nation's number one hard rock hit. It occurred to us that probably only his check book would impress us.

The doorman added that if we had a teen, surely he would know of him. Back in Snyder, we asked, and sure enough Marc knew who we were talking about. "Well, he sure couldn't sing with the Beach Boys," we said.

Much to the dismay of our teen, we didn't try to talk to him or get an autograph. All we could think of was wishing we had an extra can of Lysol in the car.

Q. — Is the overpass at U.S. Hwy. 84 and Ave. E lower than normal?

A. — State highway officials say the overpass was built when 15 to 15½ ft. clearance was the required minimum. The state minimum clearance for all overpasses built now is 17½ ft.

Acid rain

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever it is the United States is going to do for Canada about acid rain, it is "substantial action," according to Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

Mulroney, other Canadian officials and their U.S. counterparts were cagey all day Tuesday after a senior U.S. official, briefing reporters at the White House on condition of anonymity, said the prime minister and President Reagan had reached "agreement" on combating acid rain.

In their own briefings on the same condition of anonymity, Canadian officials said there was no "agreement," and that the United States had used the word "ambitiously."

They said the two leaders would make separate statements on acid rain after a private lunch today, the windup of Mulroney's two-day official visit.

French vote

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac kept France in suspense today over whether he would become the first premier in the Fifth Republic's history to serve with an ideologically hostile president.

Chirac huddled late into Tuesday night with his political allies following a 2½-hour meeting with Socialist President Francois Mitterrand.

French press and television commentators said it was a virtual certainty that Mitterrand offered the 53-year-old Chirac the premiership during the meeting. What was uncertain were the conditions attached to the offer.

The traditional French right, of which Chirac's Rally for the Republic party is the largest component, scraped together a narrow parliamentary majority in Sunday's National Assembly elections, ending five years of undisputed Socialist rule.

Official paints dire picture of Mexican drug smuggling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Casting aside diplomatic niceties, the Reagan administration says corrupt Mexican officials have made the Southwestern United States "a modern-day horror story" of drug smuggling.

U.S. Commissioner of Customs William von Raab testified Tuesday that "with the kind of corruption we have (in Mexico), we would need to put men ... every three feet" along the 2,000-mile U.S.-Mexican border to stop the drug traffic.

Much of the trafficking is by air, von Raab said, with smuggler planes making air drops or "touch and go" landings and turning right back to Mexico.

Mexico has refused U.S. requests to place Mexican agents on U.S. planes, which would allow American aircraft to enter Mexican airspace and pursue the smugglers to their Mexican landing strips, the commissioner told the House Select Committee on Narcotics.

Panel chairman Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., told von Raab the State Department "has assured me we're receiving top cooperation" from Mexico.

"The Customs Service is not receiving cooperation from Mexico," von Raab replied.

At another point, von Raab told the committee, "The corruption and ineptitude of law enforcement in Mexico is not a laughing matter. If we ever hope to combat this threat to our nation, there must be a significant change in attitude from our southern neighbors."

Leonardo French, press spokesman for the Embassy of Mexico, said, "This kind of corruption exists unluckily on both sides of our border."

French said his nation "has done its best" to reduce drug trafficking and "is firmly determined to continue to do so."

Asked about corruption, he responded, "I wouldn't say it is a massive problem, but the problem unluckily exists. As a consequence ... several government officials, law enforcement agents, and even private businessmen have been arrested, prosecuted and submitted to trials according to law. This is not a problem that can be solved overnight."

Jon Thomas, assistant secretary of state for international narcotics matters, confirmed in an interview that the State Department also believes Mexican corruption is a serious problem in the drug war.

Thomas said, "One of the reasons for lowering of the effectiveness (of Mexico's anti-drug efforts) has been the problem of corruption."

He said Mexico has diminished its once-effective eradication programs.

Operation successful on eye

DALLAS (AP) — A Himalayan snow leopard underwent an operation for an eye ailment that a veterinarian treated with a device which freezes tissue with liquid nitrogen.

Zebulon, the a 150-pound leopard at the Dallas Zoo, was suffering from what zoo veterinarian Bonnie Raphael describes as "blunt trauma to the eye."

A closer examination revealed that Zebulon suffered from glaucoma, a disease that causes increased pressure within the eyeball and can cause blindness, the veterinarian who performed the surgery Monday said.

A keeper noticed that the 7-year-old animal's left eye seemed dilated. Robert J. Munger, a veterinarian who specializes in treating diseases of the eyes, offered his services to the zoo.

Workers tranquilized Zebulon with a blowgun, then loaded him into a van and took him to the North Dallas office.

Munger worked for more than an hour to treat Zebulon's ailment. Zebulon slept through the entire operation, with the help of an anesthetic administered by Dr. Raphael.

Munger said he didn't have any reservations about treating wild animals.

"As long as Bonnie keeps 'em asleep, I don't get uncomfortable," Munger told the Dallas Morning News.

Officials said Zebulon was born in a New York zoo.

AIDS not always the cause

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One man was told he had AIDS, but really suffered nothing more serious than muscle strain. Another man died of cancer that went untreated for four months because doctors thought he had AIDS.

Such cases reflect what officials at an AIDS clinic call "pseudo-AIDS" — patients suffering from heart disease, cancer, tuberculosis and other illnesses that were diagnosed incorrectly as deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

A study in the March issue of the Western Journal of Medicine found that eight of 80 consecutive patients sent to the clinic for treatment of AIDS or a less severe condition known as pre-AIDS really suffered other ailments.

"We were surprised to find that 10 percent of the patients referred to us with diagnoses of AIDS or related diseases actually had other diseases," said Dr. Harry Hollander, author of the study and director of the clinic at the University of California at San Francisco.

The misdiagnosis rate probably is higher than the nationwide rate, he said, because San Francisco-area doctors unconsciously overemphasize the possibility of AIDS when seeing ill people who belong to risk groups like homosexual men.

Your Birthday

March 20, 1986

Exciting opportunities will come your way in the year ahead from sources you have never previously tapped. They've always been under your eyes, but this is the first time you'll see them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) For best results today, don't appear too self-seeking regarding your ambitious aims. First, show others how they can benefit as well. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If there is something you want to do today that you think would benefit yourself as well as others, do it secretly. This will eliminate negative objections.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll be mentally restless today with a short attention span for worldly matters. Temporarily shelve serious issues and focus on having fun.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may derive a small profit today on something that is of little or no value to your associates. Be alert.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's not to your advantage to make hasty judgments today. You will find something that does not appear too promising at first actually has real merit.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you feel your ideas are better than those of your associates in a critical business situation today, don't allow yourself to be convinced otherwise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Sometimes it's wise to get an outsider's opinion. Today, if you and your mate can't agree on a specific issue, sound it out on someone you both trust.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Try to keep your agenda in order today. First, clear up essential tasks, then pursue leisure activities. Don't do the reverse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) See if you can get together socially this afternoon with one who is interested in something you're working on. Your discussion will be fruitful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Keep a confidential matter as secret as possible today. If you must talk about it, discuss it with your family, but don't reveal it to others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be flexible today regarding ideas that affect you and your mate. Even though you have bright thoughts now, you'll come up with something better later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It behooves you today to associate with people whose occupations parallel yours. An exchange of information could prove profitable for you.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I read with horror the letter from "Worried Mom," whose 17-year-old daughter suffered repeated beatings by her boyfriend. A few years ago I, too, was a worried mom with the same problem. I pleaded with my beautiful, blond-haired Laura to break up with her boyfriend, who had hit her with his fists and knocked out her front teeth. Once he rolled up her arm in a car window and drove off, dragging her down the street!

I also learned that he went to her dorm at college and terrified her when he held her over three flights, threatening to drop her. This kind of abuse continued for two years. I begged her to quit seeing him, but she "loved" him.

On May 31, 1984, my precious daughter was found dead in a field. She was killed by repeated blows to her head. The crime is still "unsolved" (insufficient evidence).

"Worried Mom," my daughter did not have the emotional strength to free herself from this monster. And neither does your daughter. You must help to free her by whatever means it takes—and do it immediately. Take legal action against her boyfriend and do not let him near her!

I pray that God will give you the strength to do whatever it takes, so you will not have to write such as I am writing, and will never have to sign your name:

PARENT OF
A MURDERED CHILD,
MURFREESBORO, TENN.

DEAR PARENT: Thank you for writing. I would like to repeat some advice to all women who have tolerated, first, repeated verbal abuse from a lover, then a few punches, slaps, shoves, and finally a full-scale beating: If you think you can change him, forget it. First charge him with assault, then run as though your life depended upon it, because it does.

DEAR ABBY: I have a trivia question for you. Why is it that the abbreviation for "number" is no. and not nu. or nr.?

This question stirred everyone up in the office and no one can come up with the answer, so we decided to ask you.

CURIOUS FROM SAN MIGUEL

DEAR CURIOUS: According to Webster's New International Unabridged Dictionary, Second Edition: The abbreviation for "number" is no.—from the Latin "numero." I don't know why it's not nu. or nr. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: A good friend of mine in Farmington Hills, Mich., recently sent me some of your columns from the Detroit News. The subject: "Where do the people of Scotland, Great Britain and Wales get their strange eating habits?"

I think the question should be, "Where did you Americans acquire yours?" Although I am a Welshman, I believe I know the answer.

Much of the early eating in the States was done on the trail. Since it was probably more comfortable to eat in the saddle than to sit on the ground, the cowpoke remained mounted, feeding himself with his right hand while using his left hand to prevent his falling off his horse. This undoubtedly accounts for the predominant use of the right hand in the United States.

Further on the subject of insularity, while on a flight from Chicago to Akron, Ohio, I was engaged in a conversation with a matronly woman. After some time she asked, "What is your mother tongue, young man?" She looked at me with astonishment when I replied, "It's English."

After she had recovered her composure, she drawled grudgingly, "Well, I guess they can speak it over there, too."

No doubt, Shakespeare turned in his grave.

Diagnosing eye problems

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — For 16 years, I took eye drops for glaucoma. Then my doctor gave up his practice, and the new doctor says I don't have glaucoma. I stopped the drops and my eyes got worse. Another doctor also said I didn't have glaucoma. A third doctor was uncertain and said I had nerve damage, but not to use the drops. My eyes just keep getting worse and I have lost much of my sight. How can I find out what I have and how it should be treated?

DEAR READER — When doctors are unsure about the presence of a disease, the patient is usually best served by an evaluation in a teaching or university hospital. In such an institution, specialists have the training and sophisticated equipment to analyze the more difficult and puzzling health problems. If your doctor cannot seem to help you and your vision is failing, I suggest you make an appointment to be seen in the eye clinic of a large medical center.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What tests should be given when one asks for a physical? When blood is taken from the arm, what is it tested for?

DEAR READER — The answer to your question depends on the age and health of the patient and the preferences of the examiner.

Children need periodic evaluations to monitor growth, general health and the need for immunizations. Blood tests are seldom necessary for youngsters.

On the other hand, adults have individual requirements that may include X-ray examinations, cardiograms or stress tests, Pap smears, fecal-blood evaluation and analysis of other body fluids.

In my opinion, a complete history and physical examination, including a urinalysis and blood count, usually suffices for a healthy young adult. Elderly patients need additional evaluation that may include blood chemical analyses, sigmoidoscopic examinations and other more involved testing, performed at regular intervals.

The history and physical are the cornerstones of the medical evaluation. I believe that additional testing is a subject more properly addressed by the patient and the doctor, depending on individual needs.

As a general rule, most examinations of adults (over age 40) usually involve blood counts, blood chemical analyses (including sugar and cholesterol), urinalysis, cardiograms, chest X-rays and smears for blood in the stool. These tests are not necessarily required every year, but should be performed at appropriate intervals.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My doctor says one must take vitamin D along with calcium or it won't be absorbed. Are people just wasting their money and getting no good from taking calcium supplements without the D?

DEAR READER — In theory, yes. However, very little vitamin D is required for calcium absorption, so vitamin D in a well-balanced diet is usually enough to ensure proper calcium balance. Older people need more calcium; therefore, they may have to take supplemental D, too. Check labels. In general, 125 units of vitamin D is considered sufficient for each 250-500mg. of calcium. Remember that D is present in many foods (including fortified milk) and the vitamin is activated in the body during exposure to sunlight. The Recommended Daily Allowances for calcium and vitamin D in adults are: 800-1200 mg and 400 units, respectively.

What is cholesterol and how can it be controlled? For more information, write for Dr. Gott's new Health Report, UNDERSTANDING CHOLESTEROL. Send 75 cents plus a long self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this newspaper to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Style show, handi-crafts contest set

The county 4-H fashion show and handi-crafts contest is scheduled for March 20 at 7 p.m. at Western Texas College Fine Arts Auditorium.

Judging will begin at 7 p.m., followed with the fashion show. Contestants need to be in place by 6:30 p.m.

The 4-H fashion show gives youth the opportunity of exhibiting their clothing skills in clothing construction, fashion interpretation, good grooming and modeling.

The crafts and hobbies projects will also be judged. This project helps 4-H youth to display their special talents in creative arts. Winners from this group will compete at the Texas 4-H project show to be held in June at College Station.

Makeup trends

This spring, brown-tone lipsticks and smudgy eyeshadows are really out. Color, ranging from bright to muted, is back in makeup.

One group features coral, rose, orchid and pink in tones that stop short of looking harsh.

Peach or pink for blusher is enough, while eyes get blue, sea-green and copper gleams. One makeup house is offering a special group of youthful colors, including poppy red and flaming orange.

Another makeup creator prefers romantically muted tones of rose and mauve, while a third uses a California theme of bright lips, pastel eye colors and sunny blushers.

Hair treatment

Hair care expert Philip Kingsley believes that hair care should be similar to skin care.

If you shampoo your hair daily, or just more than once a week, use the conditioner and scalp treatment meant for frequent use on your hair, just as you cream your face daily.

Weekly shampooers get his more intensive conditioner and scalp stimulant, just as a weekly facial gives the complexion extra care. Hair care, advises Kingsley, should be as regular as skin care.

Nail hardeners

Nail hardeners, painted on like enamel, can help prevent breaking and splitting of nails, especially in winter.

However, some hardeners contain formaldehyde, which is an efficient hardener but can cause an allergic reaction. At least one hardener is made with polyester resins as a substitute for formaldehyde.

If you've had problems using hardeners, read the labels for ingredients before you buy.

North American championships had a distinctively Canadian flavor last year, with the spring meeting in Montreal and the fall tournament in Winnipeg. Those of you who have not tired of traipsing north of the border can look forward to July of this year, when the championships will be held in Toronto. The Canadian climate must agree with Roger Bates of New York. He won the Life Master Men's Pairs with John Mohan in the fall, and last March finished second in the Men's Teams in Montreal. Note his expertise in the play of today's six-heart contract.

After leading the diamond ace, West continued with diamonds, thinking his partner might have a singleton. Bates ruffed high in dummy, played a heart to his 10 and ruffed his last small diamond with another high trump. He now drew trumps and stopped to consider what the defenders' distribution might be. East had shown up with only four red cards, and he probably would have pre-empted if he had seven or more clubs. If he held three spades, was there a way to bring in the contract? Roger Bates found the answer. He ran off all his trumps and then the good king of diamonds. Dummy was down to A-K alone of spades and the Q-6 of clubs. East now had to either unguard the spades or blank the king of clubs. On the diamond king East discarded a spade. Declarer cashed dummy's A-K of spades and came to his hand with the club ace to make the 12th trick with what was now a good nine of spades.

Stuffed vegetables: Easy and Italian

STUFFED ZUCCHINI or eggplant are easy main dishes or antipasto.

Serving stuffed vegetables as a main dish or as part of an antipasto is an Italian favorite.

This is easy to do at home. An example is a very special sausage-stuffed zucchini. It sounds difficult, but with today's prepared ingredients, it is far from time-consuming.

SAUSAGE-STUFFED ZUCCHINI

- 4 medium (8 ounces each) zucchini
- 8 ounces sweet Italian sausage links
- 3 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce, divided
- 1 cup Italian-style bread crumbs, divided

Cook zucchini in boiling, salted water to cover until tender but firm, about 5 minutes. Drain and cool. Cut a lengthwise slice from each zucchini. With the tip of a spoon or serrated knife, remove pulp from each zucchini, leaving a ¼-inch-thick shell. Chop pulp and reserve 1 ½ cups (use remaining pulp in soups).

Remove sausage from casing. In a medium skillet heat 1 tablespoon of the olive oil. Add sausage and reserved pulp. Cook over medium-high heat until sausage is browned, about 5 minutes. Drain off drippings.

Add ¼ cup of the tomato sauce; bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, for 15 minutes. Meanwhile, preheat oven to 350 degrees. Stir ¾ cup of the bread crumbs into the sausage mixture; spoon into the zucchini shells. Place in a shallow greased baking pan. Bake, uncovered, for 20 minutes.

Mix remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil with the remaining ¼ cup bread crumbs. Sprinkle over the zucchini. Bake until golden, 8 to 10 minutes. Heat and serve remaining tomato sauce over zucchini. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 portions.

In 1829, scientist-explorer Alexander von Humboldt exhausted 12,244 coach horses as he traveled 11,500 miles over a nine-month period in Asia, says National Geographic.

Doctor, patients contribute money for girls' operation

DALLAS (AP) — An eye doctor and two of his patients combined to donate thousands of dollars toward surgery for a 2-year-old Mexican girl who suffered from impaired vision.

The opthalmologist donated all his time to perform the last in a series of surgical procedures that cured Gabriela Guadarrama.

The girl's parents said their first and only child had been born in their Mexican hometown of Piedras Negras with eyes so clouded with cataracts that local physicians had performed one operation, then given up trying to treat her.

"Go to the United States," Anna Guadarrama said the doctors told her. "Maybe someone there can help."

The benefactors, who asked not to be identified, contributed money for the last surgery.

"It is a miracle," Carmen Gonzalez of Dallas, Anna's aunt, told the newspaper. "Thank God for this doctor. Thank the Lord that Gaby's OK."

When the child ws 5 months old, Mrs. Guadarrama, 19, and her 27-year-old husband Rogelio first learned that she was not normal. A doctor noticed during a physical examination at a Piedras Negras hospital noticed she did not react properly to noises.

She was deaf in one ear, subsequent tests revealed. Physicians, three months later, found the lenses in her eyes had begun to turn opaque with cataracts. They ordered surgery and part of the lenses were extracted.

But, within months, the remainder of the right eye's lens capsule had started to cloud again.

"She would just sit there and hold her hand up to her face and move it around," Ms. Gonzalez said. "She was just seeing blurs of light and dark. She couldn't really make out anything."

The couple faced mounting medical bills. Guadarrama, an automobile mechanic who ran a repair shop, said it was difficult to make the hospital payments.

The Guadarramas moved to Dallas where Anna's aunt, Ms. Gonzalez, and about 20 other family members had already taken up residence.

Gaby's first operation to excise her cloudy right eye lens was paid for by the Texas Commission for the Blind. Guadarrama, who found a job as a mechanic, struggled to make payments for hearing aids and special schooling for his deaf child.

Mexico has no plans to underprice its oil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The head of Mexico's giant state oil monopoly said Tuesday that Mexico slashed its export prices further this month, but cautioned that the nation "will not underprice its oil" despite the turmoil in the international market.

Mario Ramon Beteta, director general of Petroleos Mexicanos, or Pemex, also said the government had no plans to offer discounts on crude or take part in speculative efforts.

"Our presence in export markets will depend not only on the cost of the barrel (of oil) and its relation to prevailing prices, but on deeper concerns, among which stands out the safeguarding of our national interests," he said.

Beteta spoke at ceremonies marking the 48th anniversary of the nationalization of the nation's oil fields by then-President Lazaro Cardenas.

"No one should forget that starting from Cardenas ... the oil is, for always, Mexico's and no one else's," he said.

Beteta noted that the price of light Isthmus crude tumbled from $27 a barrel in November to $13 in mid-March and the price of the heavy Mayan brand plummeted by $11 to nearly $12 a barrel over the same period.

It was the first announcement of March prices, set daily under a new Pemex policy. Specific prices under a policy that differentiates among geographic regions are scheduled to be announced at the end of the month.

Average prices in the second-half of February were $14.46, down 61 cents from the average $15.07 of the first two weeks of that month.

Maya crude makes up about 60 percent of exports, and Isthmus accounts for the rest.

Beteta said that Mexico, the world's fourth largest producer, wanted other oil exporters to reach an agreement on production levels in an effort to bring order to the market. As a result, he said, "Mexico is prepared to pursue its dialogue with the other countries."

He took note of the recent sharp fall in oil prices, which has hit Mexico particularly hard. It gets 70 percent of its foreign exchange from oil sales to meet payments on the $96.4 billion foreign debt and purchase needed imports.

"The obvious result of this reduction in oil prices has serious consequences for the Mexican economy. It is well-known the dependency of the balance of payments and public financess regarding the earnings derived from oil," Beteta said.

In an effort to hold onto its clients, Mexico has cut its prices sharply and recently announced it would make daily adjustments in prices.

Beteta said Mexico earned $13.3 billion from oil sales last year, off $1.7 billion from the previous year.

President Miguel de la Madrid said late last month that the fall in oil prices would translate into a $6 billion loss in revenues this year, about half of what the nation had previously expected to earn.

Beteta said Mexico extracted an average of 2.6 million barrels of crude a day last year and sold an average of 1.4 million barrels a day to foreign customers, less than its target goal of 1.5 million barrels.

Last June, Pemex only exported 783,000 barrels a day, winding up the first half of the year with a daily average of 1.3 million barrels, he said.

Mexico has proven reserves of hydrocarbons estimated at 70.9 billion barrels.

Play all the hits...

SHS Tigers boogie around Levelland, 30-9

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Tuesday's game here had more hits than a K-Tel anniversary special but only the real true-blue fans stayed to hear "Goodnight Sweetheart".

The final was Snyder 30, Levelland 9 and it answered the question of, yes, there can be too much action in a baseball game. In fact, fans starting exiting Moffett Field when Chris Fryar's grand slam homer had 'em "Reelin' and a Rockin'" around the basepaths to the tune of a 13-3 lead.

And that was just the second inning. In the third, Ricky Hunter made it "Sweet Little Sixteen" with his two-run double. The score was 22-3 before the inning was over.

Disc jockey Albert Lewis said attitude played a big part in the win.

"We just didn't have any enthusiasm over the weekend," he said, referring to the Snyder Tournament. "Today it was a lot better. All of us (Lewis and coaches Ricky Howell and Levon Webb) talked to them about that. After the Lamesa game we had a little family conversation and today the kids came out more relaxed."

Relaxed might not best describe a team that slammed 20 hits, but whatever it was that pumped up the Tigers should be bottled and sold.

Snyder gave up a couple of runs in the top of the first inning to spot Levelland a 2-zip advantage. Hunter was doing the mound honors for the Tigers and he settled down to earn his fourth victory after struggling in the first couple of innings.

The Tigers came back in the bottom of the stanza to take the lead for good. Pitcher Danny Leaks had control trouble early and played "Walk Right In" for Fryar, Todd Odom and Steve Parker. The next two batters, Justin Webb and Jimmy Velasquez, cracked sacrifice flies to tie the score at 2-all.

"Walk, Don't Run" was Leaks' next disc, too, and he played it for Brad Holcomb and Mike McWilliams to stack the bags once more. When Parker raced home on a wild pitch, Leaks was yanked from "Blueberry Hill" in favor of Angel Ochoa.

David Martinez came up next and he greeted the new pitcher with a two-run single. Hunter then walked and Fryar followed with a double to push across two more runs.

Ochoa got a little revenge in the top of the second when he planted a home run shot over the left field fence. His happiness was short-lived however.

Steve Parker led off in the bottom of the second for Snyder and walked. Webb then played an "Alley-Oop" shot over the left-center fence that had the home team in front 8-3. The hits just kept on happenin' as Velasquez doubled and Holcomb singled. Mike McWilliams cracked into a fielder's choice that had Holcomb out at second, but Martinez and Hunter both walked to load the bases once again.

Up came Fryar, who took the role of "Big, Bad Leroy Brown" in this game. The senior third-sacker punched Ochoa for a grand slam homer that left no doubt as to which team would end up with the victory.

Still later in the inning, Webb singled in another run.

A cruise through the third-inning highlights had Hunter cracking a two-run double and Fryar following with a two-run single. Five more runs came in on singles from Webb, McWilliams and Martinez, a double from Holcomb and a sacrifice fly from Velasquez.

Coach Lewis moved Holcomb from his usual position at short stop to pitcher in the fourth, and Levelland came up with five runs. It made a "Half Heaven, Half Heartache" day for the glovesman, who made some stellar plays in the field and was three-for-four at the plate. The coach expressed confidence in the senior's potential.

"We can use him as a reliever. It was his first time out. But he keeps the ball down in the strike zone and we think he can be a help to us," said Lewis. "At short stop he's really been a key for us. He's played as well as any short stop we've seen and he's getting some notice around the area."

It didn't matter that Levelland got the runs because the Loboes simply couldn't stop the Snyder bats from cracking. The Tigers added three more runs in the bottom of the fourth - two on a single from Webb.

Webb made it a five-for-five, six RBI afternoon when he went "Downtown" for a three-run homer in the fifth inning.

Fryar took top batsmen honors for the day, however. He went four-for-four, scored five times and drove in seven runs. "...baddest man in the whole (bleep) town..."

Todd Odom took over catching duties while Hunter was atop the hill and he did a good job. He proved once again that Snyder has some capable batsmen who aren't always starters. He was two-for-three with two walks.

Levelland, 1-7-1, got nine hits. Angel and Mike Ochoa each rocked two apiece.

Next up for the Tigers will be a 4 p.m. game with Permian in Odessa this Friday. The club is not expected to have a return engagement at Moffett Field until the District 2-4A opener April 1 against Lamesa. Coach Lewis did note, however, that the Tigers are looking for an opponent to play on March 29.

Western golfers to compete in two events this weekend

Western Texas College golfers will compete in two tournaments this weekend, including the Lone Star Intercollegiate in Conroe.

One team of golfers will tee up Thursday and Friday in the 36-hole Abilene Intercollegiate. The tournament, hosted by Hardin-Simmons University, will be held at Maxwell Golf Course in Abilene.

Playing for WTC will be Barry Fletcher, Frank Schuster, Scott Sawyer, Jimmy Walsworth and Ken Livingston.

Five other Westerners will compete in the 72-hole Lone Star Intercollegiate at Club Del Lago in Conroe.

"This will be the best junior college field in the nation this year," predicted WTC Coach Dave Foster. "It will be stronger than the national tournament because some of these teams won't make it to nationals."

Twenty-seven teams have entered the competition, including Brevard College, Florida Junior College, Scottsdale, Ariz., and all of the Texas junior college teams. Squads from Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, New Mexico and Tennessee will also be competing.

Play will be 36 holes Friday and 18 each on Saturday and Sunday.

Playing for WTC will be Pat Fitzpatrick, Mike Harrison, Bo Kay, Brent Wilson and Matt Smith.

Ballesteros says suspension unfair for foreign players

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - Seve Ballesteros said his one-year suspension from the American PGA Tour - with certain exceptions - is "not fair ... not right."

The Spanish star, arguably the finest player in the world, admitted "OK, last year I didn't play what I signed for," but he said he was unaware of the consequences of his failure to play in an agreed 15 American tournaments.

"I thought we just go back to the old rule. I lose my (PGA Tour) membership and I play (several tournaments) on sponsor exemptions," Ballesteros said Tuesday.

Instead, he was stripped of his membership for one season and prohibited from playing on the American tour for one full year.

The exceptions are this week's USF&G Classic, in which he is the defending champion, and the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA, which are not tour tournaments.

Ballesteros, a globe-trotter who competes around the world and plays most of his golf in Europe, appeared in only nine American tournaments last year after agreeing to play in 15.

"Fifteen is too much, too tough. I can't play 15 American tournaments and perform my best," said Ballesteros, a two-time winner of both the British Open and the Masters.

He added that "my case is on the agenda" for a meeting of tour players and PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman Wednesday night.

Beman has said he was simply administering the tour's regulations - which provide for a specific penalty in this case - when Ballesteros was suspended for one season after failing to play in the minimum number of tournaments.

Ballesteros appealed, but was denied by the Tour's Policy Board.

"The Board felt strongly that the basic structure of the PGA Tour, in which players impose on themselves the obligation to support the tour and honor their playing commitments, was important to uphold; more important in this case than the wishes of an individual player, however prominent he might be," Beman said at the time.

Ballesteros disagreed.

"Everyone should be free to play where they want. If this (the United States) is the best place to play, anyone competitive would want to play here," he said, and called on Beman to take a more global view of the situation.

Ballesteros played 15 American tournaments in 1984 but said he "burned out a little bit. He said he would apply for reinstatement on the American tour next year only if he could limit his schedule to 10 American tournaments.

NFLPA planning anti-drug program

WASHINGTON (AP) - The National Football League Players Association planned to unveil an anti-drug program featuring more extensive regular-season testing not included in the collective bargaining agreement.

The current league contract allows drug testing at the opening of training camp and for "reasonable cause" during the season. However, NFLPA vice president Mark Murphy said the Players Association has devised a "comprehensive proposal" including provisions for further drug testing that was to be presented today at a news conference.

The news conference comes just nine days after NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle called for unilateral drug testing of league players, declaring that drugs are eroding the financial health of the NFL as well as the physical health of its affected players.

While Rozelle has argued for random drug testing, Murphy said last week that drug testing "is not a cure-all" and "the most important thing is preventing (drug usage) in the first place."

Murphy, claiming "there are no easy answers," said the executive committee of the NFLPA gathered Saturday to hammer out the plan being presented today. Asked on Tuesday to reveal the particulars of the plan, Murphy declined.

NFLPA exectuive director Gene Upshaw could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Reportedly, the union's plan will acknowledge the need for testing during the season of first offenders, but it is unclear how that would differ from the current plan, which allows testing of a player who has a positive preseason test.

Last week at the NFL meetings in Rancho Mirage, Calif., Rozelle challenged the NFLPA to approve his plan for random testing or have it imposed unilaterally. The commissioner said on March 11 that if he and Upshaw have not worked out an agreement by the opening of training camps next July, the league will impose random testing.

"It can affect the money that comes into the NFL, so it's a pure economic problem," Rozelle said. "We'll lose ratings, we'll lose television advertising, it will have a long-term effect."

Murphy also said drugs have had an adverse impact on the game. "There's no doubt that drug use in the league is a problem," Murphy said. "It's a disease that's got to be stopped."

Tar Heels must close down Perkins look-alike, Ellison

by The Associated Press

Dean Smith didn't have to search very hard to find an apt description of Pervis Ellison, Louisville's freshman center. It was in his recent memory.

"Ellison is built a lot like Sam Perkins," said Smith, whose eighth-ranked North Carolina Tar Heels play Ellison and his teammates in the West Regional of the NCAA basketball tournament on Friday in Houston. "He shoots a little like Sam, and (in attitude) he seems a little like Sam - 'What, this is an NCAA tournament? So what.'"

Perkins, of course, was the center on Smith's only national champion, in 1982.

Smith is just as impressed by the rest of the Cardinals, who have won 13 straight games.

"They're a confident team, but I have said momentum is built during the course of the tournament, not going into a tournament," Smith said. "But we really have to play better than we're playing."

Smith knows he will need a big game from Brad Daugherty, his 6-11¾ center, and from Kenny Smith, Steve Hale and Jeff Lebo, the guards who must handle the Louisville press and the Cardinals' star guard, Milt Wagner.

The Tar Heels slumped at the end of the year as injuries to Hale and backup center Warren Martin proved costly as North Carolina split their last 10 games and lost three of four entering the NCAA. But North Carolina apparently got back in the groove with NCAA victories over Utah and Alabama-Birmingham.

In the Southeast, No. 6 Georgia Tech plays Louisiana State and No. 3 Kentucky takes on Alabama.

Louisiana State won two squeekers on its homecourt last weekend to advance to Atlanta. Now, the Tigers must play at the Omni, which Georgia Tech has used for some of its games.

"I would hope that it gives us a slight advantage, but you never know. I certainly hope it doesn't hurt us," Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said recalling that heavily favored Syracuse lost last Sunday to Navy 97-85 in the Carrier Dome.

Cremins didn't think LSU would be intimidated, especially the way the SEC team has been performing in the postseason.

"LSU is playing smart," Cremins said. "They have a lot of character, are on an emotional high and I just think people are overlooking them."

Nobody is overlooking Kentucky, which is ranked third in the nation and is the top seed in the Southeast. The Wildcats had little trouble with Davidson and Western Kentucky in their first two tournament games.

Now the SEC champs must beat Alabama for the fourth time in as many meetings this season. Kentucky won 76-52 at home and 73-71 at Tuscaloosa, Ala., during the regular season and 83-72 in the SEC tournament final at Rupp Arena.

Does that give Kentucky a mental edge over the Crimson Tide?

"I can't answer that," Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton said. "I'll tell you after Thursday's game.

"We beat them here when we played one of our two or three best games of the season, in Tuscaloosa when they didn't shoot free throws very well, and in the SEC tournament when they got into early foul trouble.

"Alabama and Kentucky are very evenly matched in makeup. The chemstry is good on both clubs."

Sutton said the Wildcats are approaching the regional in good shape, particularly with the emergence of 6-foot-9 reserve center Cedric Jenkins.

"The team believes they can win," he said. "They also know that if they don't play well, any of those 15 teams can beat us."

On Friday, top-ranked Duke 34-2, plays DePaul, 18-12, and Cleveland State, 29-3, takes No. 17 Navy, 29-4 in the East Regional at East Rutherford, N.J.

Coach credits BYU defense for 93-80 win over Anteaters

PROVO, Utah (AP) - In a game where 173 total points are scored it may seem odd for Brigham Young University Coach Ladell Andersen to credit his Cougars' defense for a National Invitation Tournament victory over UC-Irvine.

But Andersen said that in beating the Anteaters 93-80 on Tuesday night the Cougars showed they know how to frustrate the opposition's offense.

"The score may not indicate it, but at times during this game we played some defense," he said, adding that BYU's overall effort against UC-Irvine was "as good as this team can possibly play."

The victory sent Brigham Young, 18-13, into the NIT quarterfinals against Ohio State, 16-14, on Friday night in Columbus, Ohio.

Anteater Coach Bill Mulligan agreed there was more to BYU's triumph than five players scoring in double figures. He said it was BYU's defense that made the difference.

"That matchup zone caused us all kinds of problems," Mulligan said. "It caused us confusion and it was evident.

"BYU's defense was the difference in the ballgame," he said. "We scored 80 points, but we were defensed."

Forward Jeff Chatman led all BYU scorers with 20 points.

BYU held its biggest lead of 22 points at 76-54 with 7:56 left in the game, allowing the Anteaters to chip away in the closing minutes.

UC-Irvine finished its season at 17-13. Thursday's NIT Games:

Wyoming Coach Jim Brandenburg, looking ahead to the Cowboys' meeting with Clemson in quarterfinal action on Thursday, said the Tigers are "out of the ACC and played good competition all year, and they're obviously playing very well.

"They've got height, strength, inside quickness on the perimeter. They beat Maryland this year. They're an excellent team and we'll have a tough time," Brandenburg said of Clemson, which invaded Georgia and rode 24 points apiece from Horace Grant and Glenn Corbit to a 77-65 victory over the Bulldogs.

Rick Pitino of Providence said the Friars "are pleased because it's a good draw" against Louisiana Tech's Bulldogs. "We're happy with it. Athletically speaking, we know something about them. You're talking about one of the better opponents in the NIT."

The Bulldogs were among the final 16 in last year's NCAA tournament. "We've got to be up to the challenge," Pitino said. "If we can just keep the intensity and rebound like we did (against George Mason, outrebounding the Patriots 49-37), we'll be all right."

Pitino said the Friars, who squeaked by Boston University 72-69 in the first round before blasting George Mason 90-61 last Monday, "are more under control now. They look to get inside, wear you down."

Victory earns Rockets berth in NBA playoffs

HOUSTON (AP) - Houston Rocket Coach Bill Fitch had to censor his description of the Rocket's final three minutes of play in their 112-109 win over the Phoenix Suns that clinched a Western Conference playoff spot.

"Don't ask me about the final three minutes. I can't find a word to describe them. This is a family show," Fitch said after the Rockets allowed the Suns to cut a nine-point lead to two with four seconds left in the game Tuesday.

The Rockets lead was shaved to 110-104 late in the fourth period. With 13 seconds left, Walter Davis hit a three-point shot and Alvan Adams stole an inbound pass that resulted in a bucket by Mike Sanders and pulled the Suns within one.

"I'd gone to Vegas and bet everything I owned that Davis was going to hit that three-pointer," Fitch said. "There's nothing we practice more than the inbound pass against pressure. I was just hoping for the nightmare to end. We played lousy."

The Rockets have to rely on point guard Allen Leavell, who moved into the starting lineup three games ago after John Lucas was waived because of a drug violation, Fitch said. Leavell ended the game with a season high 23 points, incuding two free throws with four seconds left.

Phoenix, 26-41, were led by Davis with 29 points and 25 by Adams.

"They packed it in a little early and they made a few turnovers and we got a few breaks that got us back in the game," Davis said.

Houston, 43-26, was led by Ralph Sampson's and Leavell's 23 points plus Lewis Lloyd and Akeem Olajuwon who added 19 each.

The Rockets held a 59-56 halftime lead and never trailed in the third quarter, leading 75-65 at the seven-minute mark. Houston reeled off seven straight points to take the biggest lead of the quarter, 83-71, with 3:42 left in the period.

Dallas paper still attempting to get private school records

DALLAS (AP) - Dallas Morning News officials are "continuing to pursue legal avenues" in efforts to obtain records of private schools within the Southwest Conference, a newspaper executive said.

"We are naturally disappointed in the outcome of this portion of our efforts to gain public access to records of college athletics in Texas," said Ralph Langer, vice president and executive editor of the news said after a state district judge released a ruling in the matter.

Judge Craig T. Enoch of Dallas ruled that SWC private schools don't have to release documents from NCAA investigations under the Texas Opens Records Act.

Enoch ruled against A.H. Belo Corp., publisher of The Dallas Morning News, which had sought access to the records of investigations involving the athletic departments at Southern Methodist, Baylor Texas Christian and Rice universities. The NCAA and the conference considered those records confidential.

In a seven-page opinion released Tuesday, Enoch said the private schools receive public funds from the conference's state schools in the form of television revenue and money from postseason appearances.

However, he ruled, the private schools provide a "measurable service" to the public schools by being SWC members, playing conference games and agreeing to conference bylaws.

"The court is of the opinion that the 'public' funds received by the SWC and distributed to the 'private' schools are not distributed for the 'general support' of the institutions," Enoch ruled. "Consequently, SMU, TCU, Rice and Baylor are not 'governmental bodies' as contemplated by the Texas Open Records Act."

The News has lawsuits pending in state and federal courts against the SWC, NCAA and three state schools - Houston, Texas and Texas A&M. The other Texas state school in the SWC, Texas Tech, provided records requested and is not part of the lawsuit.

Bob Hitch, SMU athletic director, said after Enoch's ruling: "We are pleased with the decision of the court. Needless to say, I thought all along that we were protected from the Texas Open Records Act because we are a private institution. And that pertains to our athletics also.

"We just feel there are certain rights we need to protect as a private institution and that was the reason that we got involved in the case. We were trying to protect those rights."

Lone Star lays off workers

LONE STAR, Texas (AP) — Turitt Williams had worked at Lone Star Steel for 38 years. But Saturday was his last day.

Because of collapsing world oil prices, imports and excessive inventories of oil drilling pipes, Williams, 58, is a part of the more than 50 percent workforce lay off plan at Lone Star Steel.

"I'll be honest with you," Williams said. "I don't have much to look forward to."

Employment will fall to about 1,800 from the current 3,800, a spokeswoman said. At its peak in 1981, the company's manufacturing plant in Lone Star, north of Longview, employed 7,200 workers.

Officials, who said 35 to 45 workers also will be laid off at the corporate offices in Dallas, attributed the cuts to a depressed market for oil drilling pipes, tubes and well casings.

"Drilling is very depressed, and people aren't buying tubular goods," said Ike Kerridge, chief economist at Hughes Tool Co. in Houston. "As long as people don't know what oil prices are going to do, they aren't going to drill."

Last month, Lone Star announced it would lay off in March between 400 and 600 employees, or 10 to 15 percent of its workforce.

"Before that action could occur, market conditions declined dramatically and everything worsened," said Judith A. Murrell, a Lone Star spokeswoman in Dallas.

Lone Star has recorded losses since 1983, reflecting the first decline in world oil prices. It reported a net loss of $117.1 million in 1985.

Many expected the layoffs.

"We've been through it all before, but you're still never ready for it," said Lone Star Mayor C.E. "Nick" Nichols.

Bob Hampton, president of the United Steelworkers of America local union, said, "This time, we've been living with it and experiencing it and expecting it."

Meanwhile, Lone Star residents have quit relying on the Lone Star plant to maintain the city's economic health.

Obituaries

Minor injuries noted in mishap

Three traffic mishaps — one called major on police reports — were reported in Snyder Tuesday.

Diana Rodriquez of 1508 21st St. reportedly sustained minor injuries for which she declined medical treatment.

She was involved in a 3:30 p.m. accident in which her 1983 Chevrolet was in collision with a 1977 Dodge driven by Frank Benjamin Ault of 2406 O'Neil Ave. It occurred in the 1500 Block of 24th St.

The day's first mishap was reported at 12:56 p.m. by Benny Bollinger of 1708 Ave. R.

Bollinger told police his 1985 Ford van had apparently been struck by a hit-and-run driver sometime between 6 p.m. Monday and 7:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Location of the accident is unknown.

The third accident was logged at 3:37 p.m. in the 1500 Block of 25th St.

Involved in it were a 1978 Ford driven by Jimmy Trevino of Rt. 3, Snyder and a 1981 GMC driven by Doug Orba Wilkinson of the Clairemont Rt.

No injuries resulted from that collision.

Parolee murders 2nd time

DALLAS (AP) — The killing didn't attract much attention — it was 350th in a year of 390 homicides in Dallas.

But the family of the victim, Thomas Christopher Glynn, is outraged because the killer committed the crime 11 months after he was paroled on a life sentence for an earlier murder.

Glynn's family blames the shooting not only on convicted murderer Thomas Edward Williams, but on the system that set him free.

"I'd not say Thomas Williams is responsible for the murder," said one of Glynn's friends, who met Glynn when both were members of a conservative Republican club.

"I'd hold the parole board responsible for letting this man out again," he told the Dallas Times Herald.

But the parole board, faced with overcrowded prisons, has little choice but to release convicts who they think have reformed, prison officials said.

Williams — a middle-aged man who had earned a college degree in prison — fit that description, said a member of the parole board that released the convicted killer.

He was paroled 10 years into the life sentence.

Williams' first life sentence was for the 1974 murder of 27-year-old Kenneth Minor at a Fort Worth barber school where Williams taught. The dispute was over $20 missing from a cash register.

"I got drunk one night ... so I just flat out wasted him," Williams said.

The severity of Williams' sentence for Minor's murder reflected the fact that he was tried as a habitual offender, officials said. He had served two previous two-year terms for larceny, burglary and arson.

Another parole panel had turned Williams down five months before because of the "nature and seriousness of the crime" and the fact that he was a multiple offender.

The killer and his victim lived in the same diverse Dallas neighborhood, but they had little else in common.

Williams, 47, was a high school dropout and a convicted arsonist, burglar and murderer. He moved to Dallas when he was paroled after serving 10 years of his life sentence.

Glynn, 35, attended Harvard and Syracuse universities, where he majored in art history and learned five languages, family members said.

Truck winds up in roadway ditch

An Odessa truck driver sustained minor injuries in what was initially reported as a major traffic accident about 2 miles north of the Chevron North Plant on the Clairemont Hwy. just before 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Department of Public Safety troopers discovered James McKee — a driver for Steere Tank Lines of Odessa — had run his rig off into the ditch with negligible damage caused to the truck.

No accident report was made for the incident.

McKee was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by units of Aid Ambulance-Snyder where he was examined for possible injuries and released.

Membership due new committee membership drive.

The net result was Williamson's appointment to head a permanent committee charged with developing and staying in contact with chamber members.

The board asked him to contact individuals to serve on this committee now.

As outlined by Williamson, it will be chartered to develop and maintain the chamber membership year-round rather than only once a year with an annual drive.

Part of this effort would be an up-to-date identification of all new businesses and related chamber visits with these. Communication between the chamber and its current members was also cited as a goal.

During the recent chamber drive headed by Williamson, it was noted some 50 new members were added generating an additional $4,400 in membership dues.

The vote to approve the committee was unanimous.

During Tuesday's meeting, the board also commended the work of Tim Riggan and Diana Allen, who sold program ads for the recent Region V basketball tournament.

The board was informed also that Snyder hosted eight high school basketball playoff games recently.

In addition, they were told the chamber-sponsored leadership group now has two meetings remaining. These will be April 10 at SACROC and in May for a final meeting.

Directors attending included Chamber President Jack Denman, who presided, Fred Castillo, Max von Roeder, Phil Fortune, Harley Bynum, Donna Gray, Barbara Williamson, Elizabeth Potts, Margaret Drum and Mike Banta. Absent were John Daniel and Jerry Vestal.

Teacher competency...

2nd test will be scheduled

AUSTIN (AP) — State education officials have promised teachers who did not get enough time to finish the recent competency test that they will be allowed to retake the exam at a later date.

Of the 205,000 educators who were registered to take the test March 10, only 5,969 did not report to their assigned exam sites.

Nine hundred of the absentees had notified the Texas Education Agency they were either retiring from the education profession at the end of the school year or were out of the country on the day of the test.

"We paid a heavy price to give that test," State Education Commissioner William Kirby told the PTA on Tuesday. "That price is paid in terms of lowered teacher morale and a feeling on the part of the teachers that no one really respects them. They feel that their credibility has been severely attacked because of giving the test."

Kirby said in a statement that the "few problems" with the test "dealt primarily with time delays and with some test sites that shut down before a few teachers had enough time to finish the exam. We are looking at all these complaints individually and will make sure everyone is treated fairly."

No date has been set for the retest, but educators who registered to take the exam March 10 but were unable to do so because of illness or other emergencies are scheduled to take the test Saturday.

Another 1,325 teachers and administrators whose registrations were not received in time for the first test also will be tested Saturday.

"I don't think anyone who did not take the test can fully appreciate the kinds of stress and anxiety that teachers experienced," Kirby said.

Survivors remain in hospital

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The two survivors of a head-on car collision that killed seven people on Interstate 40 in this Panhandle city remained hospitalized, one in critical condition, officials said.

Wayne Scott, 38, of Fritch, was still in critical condition at Northwest Texas Hospital late Tuesday night and Norlaili Mohamed-Yunus, 21, of Malaysia, was listed as serious.

Seven others died after two cars, including one carrying seven Malaysian college students from North Texas State University, collided about 9:50 p.m. Monday.

The university identified the dead students as Mastura Sharif, 21, a senior computer science major; Roseuzana Othman, 22, a senior English major; Maizarah Abu Bakar, 21, a junior in the accounting masters program; Hartini Ismail, 21, a senior finance major; Marina Taha, 21, a biochemistry senior; and Salmiah Mohamed Ismail, 21, a senior English major.

Scott's wife, Linda, 38, was pronounced dead at the scene, police said.

The seven Malaysian women, who all came to NTSU in 1983 and enrolled for more than the usual number of classes and would have finished their degree requirements early, were traveling westbound in an Oldsmobile on the westbound lane of I-40, just inside the city limits, police said.

NTSU officials told police they believe the seven women were on their way to visit friends during spring break.

Two of the six women in the Oldsmobile were dead at the scene, police said. Four others died at Northwest Texas Hospital, said nursing supervisor Jay Davis.

Judge nominee passes hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freshman Republican Phil Gramm said he wondered if he had "bitten off more than I could chew" when Democrats took to the Senate floor to oppose his 32-year-old nominee to a Texas federal judgeship.

But Sidney A. Fitzwater, now set to become the nation's youngest federal judge, was confirmed by the Senate on Tuesday, 52-42.

Fitzwater drew fire for his participation in a 1982 Dallas GOP "ballot security" program that involved posting intimidating anti-vote fraud signs in black precincts. He became the first Reagan judicial nominee hit with a full-fledged block attempt by Democrats.

Fitzwater, then a state judge up for re-election, posted three signs in a black precinct. He testified at his confirmation hearing that he was told the signs were approved by the sheriff and that they were being posted throughout the county and said he believed they accurately represented Texas voting law.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who marshaled the Democrats against Fitzwater, called the sign-posting "disgraceful." He said the signs misstated the law and that if Fitzwater posted the signs knowing that, "he should have been impeached."

Families live below poverty level

AUSTIN (AP) — Most needy Texas' families with dependent children live on less money than half the national poverty level, according to information furnished the House Committee on Human Services.

Members of the committee, meeting for a workshop session Tuesday, were told that Texas ranks 46th in support of Aid to Families of Dependent Children.

Rep. Erwin Barton, D-Pasadena, the panel's chairman, said the committee would decide later what recommendations it will make to the 1987 Legislature.

David Latimer, a committee clerk, briefed the committee on a report drawn up by the staff after a November public hearing.

Latimer said statistics show 22.2 percent of the nation's children subsist at or below the poverty level.

"It seems to be getting worse, including in Texas," he said.

Latimer said the average monthly AFDC payment in Texas is $57.57 per needy person. The state pays 46 percent and the federal government 54 percent.

This adds up to about $184 for a mother and two children. A family also can get about $185 in food stamps plus Medicaid for illnesses.

"This means an average of $369 which is less than half, about 42 percent, of the poverty level," Latimer said.
