Police arrest 1 in burglary; clerk beating

Man faces attempted murder charges

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Police arrested a Pampa man Saturday in connection with the brutal beating of a Minute Mart store clerk that apparently caught a burglary by surprise when opening the convenience store earlier than usual last Tuesday morning.

DeWayne Gordon Hickman, 30, faces charges of parole violation and attempted capital murder for the assault early last week. Authorities allege Hickman assaulted the 45-year-old clerk as she opened the convenience store at 1106

Alcock, about 4 a.m., which was earlier than usual. According to police, Hickman was inside the store when the clerk opened the doors.

The woman was brutally attacked by the alleged burglar and suffered two broken arms and had to have over 80 stitches for gashes to her head and body, said police. Because of the vicious nature of the attack, charges of attempted capital murder have been filed against Hickman.

"It was a heinous crime," said Sgt. Terry Young.

Hickman was arrested in connection with the burglary and assault on Saturday after the Pampa Police Department obtained information connecting Hickman to the crime, said Young.

"I can't go into how we developed probable cause," said Young, but he did say some evidence was received through an anonymous tip to the police department.

In addition, Young said Hickman has been identified as the alleged burglar through the course of the investigation.

District Attorney John Mann filed charges of attempted capital murder against Hickman Saturday. Hickman faces life in prison for the charges. If the clerk had been killed, which police believe was the purpose of the brutal attack, as a suspect, Hickman would have faced the death penalty under charges of capital murder.

Hickman was arrested Saturday "without serious incident" at his home, 2116 Coffee, according to a police department press release. He remains in Gray County Jail in lieu of a $250,000 bond for the assault charges and a warrant for parole violations, which allows no bond.

Police are still investigating the incident. And, although the suspect is being held in Gray County Jail, police are still not releasing the name of the victim. But, she has been released from the hospital and is recovering, said Young.

Siren fund within $9,000 of goal

By LAURA HALEY
Staff Writer

Due to the high cost of utility poles, an estimated $206,000 is needed to purchase, install and have a new emergency siren warning system in place.

"To meet our original goal of $200,000 — if our pledges come in — then we have $2,400 left to raise," said Ken Hall, emergency services coordinator.

However, if the cost of utility poles is included, then the Local Emergency Planning Committee, which has been coordinating the fund-raising drive for the new siren system, needs to bring in an additional $6,500, bringing to total amount still needed to about $9,000.

Hall explained the originally it was thought that the class A utility poles on which the new sirens would be mounted would cost $500 apiece. The actual cost is $1,750 apiece, he said.

"With that we would need our total money to be about $206,000," said Hall.

Although the original $200,000 goal does include some funds for utility poles, it will not cover all of the purchase and in: tallation costs. Despite the additional unexpected costs, Hall remains hopeful that the full amount need can be raised by the Dec. 31 deadline. At least $2,400 must be raised by then in order to meet the matching funds requirement of a $100,000 donation by the M.K. Brown Foundation.

A recent donation of $10,000 by the David and Nona Payne Foundation has brought the siren fund-raising drive within a few thousand dollars of the original $200,000 goal and closer to the $206,000 now needed. This is the second donation by the David and Nona Payne Foundation. Earlier this year, the foundation donated $15,000 to the project.

Approximately $31,000 remains outstanding in pledges that have not yet been received, according to Hall. This amount is included in funds already raised for the project.

Local companies have already been contacted about possible donation sources for the remaining $9,000, said Hall. He is hoping residents and companies will rally together to have the sirens replaced by next tornado season.

"You can adopt a utility pole or make a donation to buy one," he said. "We would be most humbled by that."

If all needed funds are raised by Dec. 31, it would allow the new system to be in place by next spring, giving ample time for the 60-to-90 day shipment period, installation and training.

"That would have it installed and online in March or April," said Hall.

The seven new sirens would replace the existing sirens. The current siren system has been in place since 1956 and does not encompass several areas in Pampa. The older sirens, once replaced, would be donated to surrounding communities, such as Lake McClellan, Lefors, McLean, and the Walnut Creek addition.

Cold spell sets new record low

The cold front that brought the much colder temperatures to most of the state had moved southward out of the state before dawn today. Temperatures dipped into the 30s and 40s and approached record low levels across the northern half of the state before dawn today.

It was 19 degrees at Amarillo just before midnight Sunday, making it the coldest October 26 ever, breaking the record of 25 set in 1957. Midland recorded a low of 31, breaking the record for the date set in 1967.

But the clearing skies will bring temperatures closer to seasonable levels tonight and Tuesday.

The warming trend should continue for several days. Highs Tuesday will be in the 60s and 70s.

Group of friends add unique perspective on life

By MIRANDA G. BAILEY
Staff Writer

Eighth-grader Monique Wilbon stands out in the crowd.

"She's always been a great friend to me and many others. Monique has a great personality — she's really fun to be with and she can make a dull room bright," said Monique's friend Chauntyl Martinez.

And that's exactly what happened last Friday afternoon — the room got brighter when the girls sat down to talk a little bit about themselves and their lives.

What started out as a quiet interview of two people, ended up as a happy party of five.

Slowly but surely, that afternoon, Monique's house became the refuge that it is on the south side of town; a place for Monique and Chauntyl and their young teenage friends to hang out ... to dance ... to laugh ... to consider the finer things of 14-year-old life.

First Marquita Nickelberry walked in on Monique's demonstration of appropriate teen fashion.

Camouflage is in. Mixing patterned clothes, even if they have the same colors, has never been in.

Oops, now Marquita is in.

"She's one of our friends that we hang out with," said Monique and Chauntyl.

So the three began to talk about the music they listen to: Jewel, No Doubt, — what's to be expected in young adult favorites.

Then it was a conversation drifting into career goals, when Shante Reed and April Green came in and joined the bunch.

Monique wants to be a third-grade teacher, Marquita wants to be a business woman, and Chauntyl, wisely, has decided she wants to work at Microsoft. April wants to be a model and Shante wouldn't mind being a baby doctor, she loves kids. "So do I!" Monique adds.

After some giggling and a few "Shut-up, don't say that!" lines, the girls were ready to show off the dance they all choreographed and will perform together at the middle school variety show the next day.

"Monique loves to dance," Chauntyl whispered and sat down to watch.

The other four got up and showed their stuff — very talented stuff.

Following the dance came some secrets; among those some truths about Monique.

"She will eat anything," April said.

And she's had the gall to fight a boy.

And eat cereal with Kool-Aid.

"Monique is a character!" they said between giggles.

"We always act silly — we don't mean to, but we do," Marquita added.

Their love for one another and the fun they have in each other's presence was so obvious and contagious ... and at the center of it all was a smiling Monique.

"It has been a great and fun time knowing Monique," Chauntyl wrote about her friend. "She makes people laugh."

Water development board holds public meetings

The Texas Water Development Board will hold a meeting for public comment on state and regional water planning Tuesday night in Panhandle.

The TWDB is holding public meetings this month across the state to hear public reaction to the initial draft of water planning proposals and 14 regional water planning areas.

One of two public meetings scheduled for the area, the Panhandle meeting will be from 6:30 p.m. to 9: p.m. Tuesday in the Square House Museum's Grady Hazelwood Building. The TWDB is also holding a meeting Thursday night in Plainview at the Plainview Country Club.

Senate Bill One (SBI), the water bill passed in the last state legislative session, requires the TWDB to designate regional water planning areas and approve regional water plans, which will be incorporated into the next state water plan.

"TWDB is holding statewide public meetings on proposed guidelines that will ultimately govern how regional water plans will be developed," said Janice Cartwright with the TWDB.

SBI requires cities, counties, water districts and other local entities to map out how they will conserve water supplies and respond to future droughts in their planning areas and requires regional water planning groups, comprised of representatives of the various interests in each area, to plan how the area will meet future water supply needs.

Planning areas are required to submit regional water plans to the TWDB for approval every five years beginning September, 2000. The TWDB will incorporate approved regional water plans into the next comprehensive state water plan, which is due September 1, 2001.

Pampa United Way Agency profile: Community Day Care

State briefs

This article is one in a series of profiles on the agencies and organizations supported by Pampa United Way. This information is being provided by Pampa United Way as part of its 1997 "The Power of U" fund-raising campaign.

The Community Day Care Center is a state-licensed child care facility that provides, conscientious care for young children in our community. Very often, the Day Care Center is some parents' only hope for providing safe, concerned day care while they struggle to recover from adverse circumstances and earn a living for their families.

Operated by a trained staff of dedicated care providers, the Center provides quality care for children aged newborn to 12 years old. Enrollment is affordable to all socioeconomic levels in the Pampa area and is based on a sliding-fee scale. Its services include nutritious meals prepared at the Center, developmental activities and necessary transportation such as to and from school. Last year, the Day Care Center provided 25,290 total days of child care, along with 41,030 meals.

Community Day Care Center is governed by a Board of Directors, a Center Director and 12 staff members. The staff members receive continuing education and training in child development, as well as training in CPR and first aid.

The Center is located at 1100 Gwendolen and is open Monday through Friday from 6: a.m. to 6 p.m. Inquiries can be made by appointment with the director at the Center.

Community Day Care Center is one of 18 agencies providing vital, real-life solutions for Pampa-area residents and is supported by Pampa United Way. Your help is needed to make them possible. If you have not yet been contacted by a United Way volunteer, call 669-1001 to receive your pledge card, or mail your donation to Pampa United Way, P.O. Box 2076, Pampa, Texas 79066.

UT pays staff below average Austin wages

AUSTIN (AP) — A study has found that 94 percent of University of Texas secretaries, computer technicians, librarians and other nonteaching employees are paid below average for the Austin market.

That means just 380 of 6,281 employees surveyed were making the same or more than those in similar jobs outside UT.

Even for officials, the results were an eye-opener.

Since Buck Consultants of St. Louis took the salary snapshot in April, workers have received a $100-a-month raise from the Legislature, and selected workers got even more. As a result, fewer employees might be in the below-average pay category.

Jarrell twister didn't fit patterns

AUSTIN (AP) — A scientist studying the tornado that devastated Jarrell last May says the twister had several unusual aspects that contributed to its deadliness.

The May 27 storm killed 27 people in the central Texas town, leaving nothing behind of several homes but their concrete foundations.

Baylor University meteorology professor Don Greene spent six days studying the tornado's path. It was his first opportunity to investigate an F5, the rarest and most powerful of tornadoes.

He plans to present his findings to the Texas Academy of Sciences at a meeting next spring.

Only one in 200 tornadoes is powerful enough to be classified as F5, with winds blowing at least 261 mph — strong enough to carry away sturdy frame houses, turn cars into missiles and suck trees out of the ground.

Promise of college money inspires Amarillo students

AMARILLO (AP) — The odds were stacked against Amanda Polk and Natalie Guerra when it came to going to college.

The girls' parents never finished high school. Miss Polk's older siblings dropped out. Miss Guerra's older siblings graduated from high school, but none went on to college.

Miss Guerra says she never thought about going to college until she heard about a unique program at Palo Duro High School. The program rewards students with free local college tuition if they maintain at least an 80 percent grade-point average and a 95-percent attendance all four years of high school.

U.S. industry looks to China for nuclear market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. nuclear industry, which has not sold a power plant in this country in 24 years, is looking to China and a potential $60 billion bonanza that could be a path to a long-term revival.

Intense lobbying to open the China market for U.S. reactor builders may pay off this week when President Clinton meets with Chinese President Jiang Zemin at a White House summit. The two leaders hope to sign an agreement to open China's civilian nuclear market.

Nowhere in the world will the need for energy in the coming decades be greater than in China, which envisions building hundreds of power plants — including as many as 150 nuclear reactors — over the next 40 years to meet the skyrocketing electricity needs of its 1.2 billion people.

"A great deal of that business could come to the United States," said Robert Newman, head of nuclear programs at ABB Inc., one of the country's leading reactor builders. He estimates the China market for new power reactors at as much as $60 billion over the next two decades.

The U.S. nuclear industry has been lobbying frantically with the administration and Congress, arguing that U.S. companies should be allowed to compete with France, Canada and even Russia for China's burgeoning reactor market.

American and Chinese negotiators resolved some key concerns last week, but Secretary of State Madeleine Albright said Sunday that a final decision rests with Clinton.

U.S. companies are barred from selling nuclear technology to China until the Chinese government gives assurances it will stop helping other countries — particularly Iran and Pakistan — in developing their nuclear programs, and possibly diverting technology to weapons.

Congress a dozen years ago agreed to allow civilian nuclear technology sales to China but required that the president certify China's commitment to nonproliferation. It is this certification that Jiang is seeking as part of his upcoming visit.

"We will not be selling (reactors) until we feel that we have clear and unequivocal assurances" from the Chinese on the nuclear proliferation issue, Albright said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Sixteen 16 senators, many from states that would significantly benefit economically from sales to China, urged Clinton last week to issue the certification. In a letter, they argued it is in America's best interest to provide China with the safest civilian nuclear technology and that nuclear power would help China deal with global warming concerns.

As much as three-fourths of China's electricity need — which is expected to double over the next 15 to 20 years — likely will come from coal plants that, unlike nuclear plants, emit large amounts of heat-trapping "greenhouse" gases.

While Congress is unlikely to overturn a certification, opposition remains, especially among some lawmakers who say they simply do not trust the Chinese to keep their word.

"China's nuclear proliferation record is on trial," said Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., chairman of the House International Relations Committee. While not totally opposed to civilian reactor sales to China, he wants them to be used as leverage to get Beijing to stop dealing with countries like Iran. "We should make the most of it," Gilman said.

Nuclear proliferation watchdog groups urge caution, noting China's record of past assurances that later were found by U.S. intelligence to be broken.

"One has to be very nervous about whether we know everything that the Chinese are actually doing and will be doing," said Paul Leventhal, president of the private Nuclear Control Institute.

U.S. officials insist that the pressure from the U.S. nuclear industry — as well as a desire to cut into America's huge trade deficit with the Chinese — is not guiding the discussions on certification, which they say must focus on national security.

"Our objective is trying to get greater control over their cooperation with other countries that are developing nuclear weapons," said Sandy Berger, Clinton's national security adviser.

Industry lobbying for an agreement — and to thwart possible congressional intervention — has been intense.

Reactor manufacturers Westinghouse, General Electric and ABB Inc., teamed up with construction companies such as Stone & Webster and Bechtel in the effort.

ABB's Newman has made more than 20 trips to China and has met with both Jiang and America's top negotiators on the certification issue. These companies and smaller subcontractors have peppered Congress with letters saying business with China could mean 25,000 jobs in 13 states.

Thursday — 8 a.m., Parade Committee meeting, Nona Payne room.

That is quite an accomplishment and lots of backslapping is in order, but the real cause for celebration lies in understanding what a difference these additional funds mean for Pampa United Way agencies and the lives they touch. We thought you might like a behind-the-scenes look at what your contributions mean for the most deserving people in our town — our children.

The Girl Scouts have been around for a long time; many of us participated in Scouts or have kids or grandkids in Scouts. Nearly all of us understand what the Scouts are about and agree that their influence in the lives of young people is a good thing. Pampa United Way agrees with you wholeheartedly, and we know we don't need to sell you on their merits.

Because of your dedication, PUW has been able to offer some of our agencies additional support and we elected to cooperate with the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council in funding a summer outreach program aimed specifically at recruiting young girls in low-income neighborhoods here in Pampa. The goal has been to reach out to underprivileged girls and offer them an all too rare opportunity to interact with positive role models and participate in the wholesome, creative, character-building activities that make modern Scouting such a challenging and enriching experience.

Invitations went out and preparations were made for two special Girl Scout camps during the summer, one in June and one in August. Special activities introduced new girls to the concept of Scouting and existing Scouts were on hand to assist them. Playful science-oriented programs and interactive events got everyone involved. The girls responded enthusiastically, to say the least, and the two events netted 36 new Scouts for newly formed troops.

Stop and think — that is 36 young, impressionable, energetic girls given equal footing to take a bold, positive step in their personal development. This is a chance to learn, to achieve, to support each other, to set their own paths to successful, meaningful lives. 36 girls can influence a class, a school, a street corner, a neighborhood, a community, a nation, a world. All of us can, through Pampa United Way, join them in their desire to make that influence a positive one.

Some of these girls cannot afford dues or books or uniforms or materials, but they have pledged themselves to be Scouts. Pampa United Way and the Texas Plains Girl Scout Council do not intend to let them down. They will have their uniforms and a decent place to congregate. They will have the resources their counterparts do in other neighborhoods. They will be able to hold their heads up among their peers, proud of their eagerness and determination to better themselves and the world around them.

These girls could not, would not have become Scouts without you and your support above and beyond past levels. Many people are hard at work to ensure that your contribution is put to work making lives better right here at home. It's a powerful thing, and through Pampa United Way and the Girl Scout Council, you have the power to make a difference.

When a United Way volunteer calls, say yes — to those who need you most, to the power of you. If you have not been contacted, you can get in touch at 669-1001 or stop by the Pampa United Way office in the Pampa Community Building at 200 N. Ballard.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the covenanted commandment.

Trade standoff was nonsense

The trade confrontation between the United States and Japan over shipping was not an entirely foolish dispute, but it was one that should never have reached the edge of a foreign-policy crisis.

The result of handling it through fines, threats and pressure from the U.S. government rather than through private negotiations is that both governments will have just a bit more arbitrary control over economic decisions. That will make the economies of both countries a little weaker and less productive than they could have been, and consumers in both countries just a bit worse off.

What was behind the recent vote by the Federal Maritime Commission, an 81-year-old relic of a regulatory agency facing a Senate bill to dismantle it, to close American ports to ships from Japan's three largest shipping lines, was a long-standing dispute over Japanese harbor fees and practices.

The Japan Harbor Transportation Association, a politically powerful non-governmental body — something like a trade association, but one burdened by persistent rumors that it's really run by gangsters — has long imposed archaic and complex rules on ships entering Japanese harbors. Even minor port calls have to be booked weeks in advance, and tiny changes can cause further delays. The bottom-line result, shippers say, is that it costs 25 percent to 100 percent more to dock in Japanese harbors than in most world ports.

The Maritime Commission has been trying to get the Japanese government to force the JHTA to loosen up its rules for years. Finally, it announced it would impose fines on shipping companies until the Japanese government acted. It imposed a total of $4 million on the three Japanese shippers. They didn't pay, so the commission voted to bar the three companies' ships from American harbors.

Think about that for a moment. Imagine if the Japanese government told American companies: "We don't like your governments policies. We know the government is nothing more than the tool of big corporations, so we're going to fine American companies until the government changes its policies. Pay up or we'll keep you from doing business here. Have a nice day." American port workers and people concerned about national sovereignty would be outraged — as happened in Japan. Anger and "face" would make it more difficult to arrive at a settlement.

Top administration officials — perhaps influenced by the fact that billions of dollars worth of goods were affected, perhaps aware that President Clinton on the very same day was lecturing Latin Americans to the effect that "none of us can pretend that we can compete in a global economy by closing ourselves off" — worked out the rudiments of a compromise that was expected to give the Maritime Commission a face-saving way to reverse itself.

Washington insiders speculated that the commission acted as it did mainly to prove itself relevant and save itself from the budget ax. What it did was to strengthen the case for abolishing it.

Texans get out and vote!

Tony Garza
Secretary of State

Here we go again. Another constitutional amendment election is coming up on Nov. 4. Will we disappoint ourselves at the polls, like we did with the poor voter turnout in August (6.9 percent — the lowest for a Constitutional Amendment Election ever)? That dismal turnout should be a wake-up call for all of us.

Granted, voter turnout for constitutional amendment elections is historically bad. It generally hovers around 12 to 15 percent. And it's pretty pathetic when even a 15 percent turnout starts to look good in comparison.

People do, however, take action when an issue affects them in a relevant way. Thirty point six percent turned out to vote in 1987, when horse racing was on the ballot. And 26.2 percent showed up at the polls in 1991 to decide on the Texas lottery. Have you ever heard of someone refusing to buy a lottery ticket because "just one won't make a difference" the way people use the same excuse to stay away from the polls on election day?

The 14 proposed amendments on the Nov. 4 ballot are all relevant. Among them are amendments that would allow homeowners to secure loans using the equity of their homes, to pave the way for tax relief for those who initiate water conservation measures on their property and to constitutionally protect the Texas Tomorrow Fund prepaid college tuition program to prevent it from going broke.

The right to vote, once a patriotic duty, has become as important to some people as a weekend chore that never seems to get done. "Yeah, yeah. I'll do it — if I get around to it." At a time when many already believe there are too many elections on too many issues, it's no wonder some people ask, "What's the point?" But when it comes to the Texas Constitution, the "point" has been and always will be, its role in shaping the very way all Texans live today.

If you are concerned about how state government utilizes your tax dollars, your vote is crucial. If you consider the economic future of you and your children a priority, your vote is significant. Your vote allows our State Constitution to remain a living document. But it lives only if all Texans choose to play an active role in shaping it.

Yes, our State Constitution is rather lengthy, but in a sense that's part of the beauty of this grand old parchment. Texans voting on amendments in 1997 play just as significant a role as those who took part in drafting it so many years ago.

Thanks to our State Constitution, we remain forever linked to our proud Texas' past. It is the people of the State of Texas who have always decided what goes in and what remains out of our Constitution. It is the people of the State of Texas who must now decide whether they will keep playing this essential role in our government.

Will we disappoint ourselves on Nov. 4? Let's not. Let's wake up and let our voices be heard on election day. By combining your voice with many others, before long there will be a loud clamor that's hard to ignore. Make your approval or disapproval clear where your voice still speaks loudest — at the ballot box.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Oct. 27, the 300th day of 1997. There are 65 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Oct. 27, 1787, the first of the Federalist Papers, a series of essays calling for ratification of the U.S. Constitution, was published in a New York newspaper.

On this date:

In 1795, the United States and

Spain signed the Treaty of San Lorenzo (also known as Pinckney's Treaty), which provided for free navigation of the Mississippi River.

In 1858, the 26th president of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, was born in New York City.

In 1880, Theodore Roosevelt married Alice Lee.

In 1904, the first rapid transit subway, the IRT, opened in New York City.

In 1914, author-poet Dylan Thomas was born in Swansea, Wales.

In 1938, Du Pont announced a name for its new synthetic yarn: nylon.

In 1947, "You Bet Your Life," starring Groucho Marx, premiered on ABC Radio. (It later became a television show on NBC.)

In 1954, Walt Disney's first television program, titled "Disneyland" after his yet-to-be completed theme park, premiered on ABC.

In 1967, Expo '67 closed in Montreal.

In 1978, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin were named winners of the Nobel Peace Prize for their progress toward achieving a Middle East accord.

City, county, PEDC, Chamber — all made valient effort to acquire youth facility

Although we were not successful in our recent proposal to acquire a Youth Correctional Facility here in Gray County, the outstanding effort exerted by our citizens was most gratifying. The city, county, PEDC and our chamber made a valiant, collective and cooperative effort in formulating a superb proposal. With the full support of the above entities, our potential for success in future projects will only improve.

We were obviously disappointed at the outcome, but it was not due to a lack of effort and a quality product. Our proposal was in excess of $5.8 million, consisting of $3.1 million in cash and $2.7 million in the form of utilities, site preparation and road work. At this point, I have not been made aware of any proposal which met or exceeded our total dollar value.

Other criteria were used in the proposal evaluation such as available housing, medical facilities, labor force, cultural diversity and academic resources. It is obvious to me that the above criteria excluded Pampa as well as most of the other communities submitting proposals. We could have all saved ourselves much time, effort and money had we known from the very beginning that we did not fit the tangible and political parameters.

We will continue to aggressively pursue additional opportunities as long as they provide diversity, appear viable and are environmentally sound.

Bob Neslage, mayor
Pampa

PEDC thanks the many involved in concentrated effort to get youth facility

I am writing on behalf of the Pampa Economic Development Corporation to thank the people of Pampa for their outstanding support and involvement in the recent competition for the Texas Youth Commission Juvenile Corrections facility.

As you know, we received the news this past week that we were unsuccessful in our attempt to locate this project in our area. Although this was disappointing news, there has still been a very positive aspect to the project. The support for this project was outstanding. Had we been rated solely on the basis of community support and enthusiasm we would have easily won this competition. I believe that this project has laid a very solid foundation for our area to be even more competitive for all types of economic development projects in the future. Economic Development is a long term process, and it is those communities that maintain a consistent, organized and positive effort to achieve their development goals will ultimately be successful.

The extent of support and participation in our TYC proposal was unprecedented. Because the list of those who were involved was so extensive it will be very difficult to list all those who had a role without overlooking someone. But I do want to specifically acknowledge the tremendous commitment made by the City of Pampa and Gray County. We are fortunate to have local officials that are so deeply committed to our area's economic future.

Following is the list of people and organizations who contributed to this effort through attending planning meetings, offering incentives for the project, assisting with preparing the proposal or sending letters of support:

Texas Plains Girl Scout Council will offer Mobile Workshop

The Texas Plains Girl Scout Council will bring its Mobile Shop to Pampa from 5-7 p.m. Oct. 28 Pampa Girl Scout Office, 736 W. Foster, to make it easier for Pampa, Lefors, McLean, Alanreed, Miami, Mobeetie, Shamrock, Skellytown, Wheeler and White Deer Girl Scouts to obtain official Girl Scout items.

Items available include uniform components, handbooks, tee-shirts, camping equipment and accessories.

Girl Scouts may use their "Cookie Currency" they earned from selling cookies earlier this year to purchase items. Cookie Currency, which is spent just like regular money, must be used by Nov. 26, 1997.

The council's Mobile Shop is a service providing Pampa, Lefors, McLean, Alanreed, Miami, Mobeetie, Shamrock, Skellytown, Wheeler and White Deer Girl Scouts an opportunity to buy Girl Scout items without having to go to Amarillo. For more information call Linda Cotter, council shop manager, at 1-800-687-4475.

Schooling At Home Gets Low Marks From Teachers

DEAR ABBY: I had to write you after reading the column on the merits of home-schooling. I am a fourth-grade teacher who has taught for many years.

Abby, I cringe every time I hear the words "home-schooling." I am sure that the students who wrote you were sincere; and yes, there are some advantages to being home-taught.

However, my experience has taught me that without exception, children who come into my class after being home-taught have large gaps in their education. They tend to read well and write using proper grammar and spelling, but their writing is stilted and disorganized. Social sciences are lacking and science is a foreign word. Furthermore, they can't problem-solve in cooperative groups, which is an essential skill in the job market of today.

Today's education involves more than just the basics. Students need to understand concepts, and that problems can be approached in more than one way and can have more than one solution.

Teaching is a full-time job, and I have never met a parent who can give his/her children the quality of education I can offer.

BETTY MONTGOMERY,
DIAMOND BAR, CALIF.

DEAR BETTY: Thank you for writing. I heard from many enthusiastic home-schooled students; however, it is important to hear the views of professional educators. Read on:

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Parents who teach their children at home should think carefully about what they're trying to accomplish and examine the teaching materials. The content and quality of teaching materials are rarely mentioned in judging home-schooling but are extremely important. Books used at home are usually well-written and illustrated, but those published by the fundamentalist movement may be slanted to their beliefs, and parents should examine them carefully to make sure the material is compatible with their own beliefs.

For example, one social studies book makes negative comments about Catholicism, Buddhism, Hinduism, Shintoism, Greek Orthodoxy and Islam.

A book on science claims that God created the universe from nothing in six days; that evolution is an imagined process in which things form by themselves without a creator and somehow keep improving; that problems on the Earth are due to God's cursing it; and that the age of the Earth and fossils is merely guesswork.

A book on history and geography claims that Indians declined after Adam's fall, remembered the Flood, worshiped spirits and lived in fear of nature; it minimizes Puritan intolerance and omits their witch-hunts. Some books on American literature contain sermons as examples. These books provide few discussion questions to develop critical thinking.

Some home-schooling has a narrow agenda that deprives students of a well-rounded education.

SWIMMING

ABILENE — The Pampa High School boys' and girls' swim teams opened the season last weekend at the Abilene Invitational.

In the girls' division, Ashlee David had the best finish for Pampa. She placed third in the 50-yard freestyle with a time of 27.23.

Pampa finished 13th in the girls' division with 46 points.

In the boys' division, Justin Nelson had Pampa's best finish, placing fourth in the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 2:00.33.

Pampa placed 14th in the boys' division with 49 points.

San Angelo Central won both the boys' and girls' titles. Amarillo High was second in the girls' division and Pecos was second in the boys' division.

BASEBALL

MIAMI (AP) — The only place Livan Hernandez's mother got to see him pitch was the bullpen.

Still, she arrived from Cuba on Sunday evening in time to see her son win — the World Series, the MVP trophy and the adulation of fans all over.

"It's the happiest day of my life," the 22-year-old pitcher said after the Florida Marlins beat the Cleveland Indians 3-2 in 11 innings of Game 7. "My mother's here and we're champions."

FOOTBALL

HOUSTON (AP) — An NCAA official says a "bad decision" allowed Texas Tech defensive star Tony Daniels to finish the 1996 season despite proof he was ineligible, the Houston Chronicle reported today.

Daniels, who avoided being suspended this season by turning pro, was one of 76 Tech athletes recently found to have been improperly certified to play in the last six years.

The school discovered Daniels' error last November and could have forced him off the field immediately, but instead cut a deal with the NCAA to delay punishment until this fall.

Daniels told the Chronicle at least one member of the Tech athletic department knew he was turning pro, which could call into question whether the school knew he would essentially go unpunished.

"It just looks like a bad decision on our part — trusting the institution that (the penalty) would be fulfilled, and it never was," said Carrie Doyle, NCAA director of eligibility appeals.

Doyle said there was a precedent for allowing Daniels to finish out the season and serve a suspension the following year.

Tech athletic director Gerald Myers insisted that though there had been "some talk" of Daniels leaving early, the player was believed to be undecided about his future.

"We didn't assume, 'Well, he's going to the NFL, so this (deferring the penalty to 1997) is going to be meaningless,'" Myers said. "We didn't look at it that way. We looked at it like, 'He's going to lose this option. He may go. He may come back. But at least he's going to lose this option.' And we didn't want him to lose that option. We would have liked for him to come back."

Daniels announced he was turning pro Jan. 3, but he said "darn near the whole team knew" of his plans.

Daniels said he had made the decision after undergoing knee surgery in 1995. He said he had no idea he was ineligible until the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal reported it a month after he declared for the NFL.

The Chronicle reported that documents showed Daniels had been wrongly certified because a self-paced fitness course at Lubbock Christian University had been improperly credited to his coursework. The school discovered the error last November.

Marlins edge Indians for World Series title

MIAMI (AP) — This is what baseball is all about.

Coming oh so close and falling oh so far.

The exuberance of youth fulfilling dreams.

A curse seemingly dooming one of baseball's oldest teams to unending failure.

It was one of the great ones Sunday, a seventh game of the World Series going to extra innings for only the fourth time. And in the end, eight months after the season's start, baseball had its youngest champion, a Cuban defector who relished in rewards and reunion all at once, and a team that just couldn't believe what slipped through its hands.

"I guess every little boy imagines this might happen at one time. It's a total fantasy for me," Marlins manager Jim Leyland said after Florida's incredible 3-2, 11-inning victory over Cleveland.

A fantasy for one team was a nightmare for another.

Two more outs. That was all Cleveland needed in the ninth inning to wrap up its first World Series title since 1948.

But singles by Moises Alou and Charles Johnson, and Craig Counsell's sacrifice fly tied the score against Jose Mesa in the ninth. And Tony Fernandez's error in the 11th set up an Edgar Renteria's game-winning hit off Charles Nagy.

In just their fifth season, the Marlins had won it all, the fastest title ever for any franchise in the majors. The $89 million they spent on free agents last winter showed money can buy success in baseball these days.

"I'm very disappointed that we lost. I can't describe how disappointed," Indians manager Mike Hargrove said on his unhappy 48th birthday. "I don't really know what to tell the team, other than they played hard all year long."

Only once had baseball's season been stretched this far, in 1924, when the Washington Senators beat the New York Giants in the 12th inning of Game 7. The tension in extra innings was immeasurable. Players knew even the tiniest mistake could blow it apart — just look at the way Cleveland right fielder Manny Ramirez nearly let Alou's two-out, two-on fly in the 10th pop out of his glove.

"I was too nervous to watch," Florida first baseman Jeff Conine said. "I don't think you can find a better finish than that."

The World Series had been bashful for 10 days: The Marlins were a wild-card team than finished nine games out of first; the Indians, at 86-75, had just the fourth-best record in the American League; neither team could manage a well-pitched game; television ratings were at an all-time low.

Well, all of that was true. Yet none of it mattered Sunday night.

Players and fans spend their entire lives hoping for night like this. Most never make it.

"We haven't given up all year," Leyland said, "and tonight wasn't a night to give up."

Fernandez had the biggest turnaround of all. His two-run single off Al Leiter had put Cleveland ahead in the third. Jim Thome walked, Marquis Grissom singled and Jaret Wright moved the runners over.

For most of the night, it appeared Wright would become the first rookie to win Game 7 since Babe Adams led Pittsburgh over Detroit 8-0 with a six-hitter in 1909.

He gave up two hits in 6 1-3 innings. One of them turned out to be critical — a leadoff homer by Bobby Bonilla in the seventh. Because of what happened in the ninth, none of what Wright did mattered.

"My performance is separate," Wright said. "It's a team. We go out there together. Next year, there'll be a fire to go out there and celebrate like the Marlins did tonight. All you can do now is wait."

Hargrove, like he has through the postseason, used a bunch of pitchers to get to the ninth, trying to get to Mesa with a lead. Paul Assenmacher, Mike Jackson and Brian Anderson followed Wright with scoreless relief.

Pampa girls close volleyball season with district win

AMARILLO — Pampa finished the volleyball season last weekend with a 16-14, 15-9 win over Amarillo Caprock.

The Lady Harvesters placed fourth in the final District 1-4A standings with a 5-7 record. For the season, the Lady Harvesters were 14-11.

Tandi Morton led Pampa with 7 kills against Caprock, going 15 of 16 in hitting. Lisa Kirkpatrick, Katy Cavalier and Lisa Dwight had 6 kills each and Tiffany McCullough had 5.

Morton had six blocked shots while McCullough, Kirkpatrick and Morton had five each, and Dwight 4.

In serving, Keili Earl was 10 of 12 with 7 points and one ace.

April Lopez was 12 of 12 with 6 points and one ace.

In setting, Lopez was 38 of 39 with 14 assists while Deirdre Crawford was 37 of 38 with 12 assists.

Earl was 11 of 11 in passing and 8 of 9 in digs. Morton was 10 of 10 in passing and 9 of 9 in digs.

In serves received, Earl was 15 of 17 and Cavalier was 12 of 13.

Dumas, Hereford and Randall are all tied for first place in the district with 10-2 records and must play a round-robin to determine seedings.

Pampa won the junior varsity match against Caprock, 15-10, 15-12.

No. 3 player

(Pampa News photo)

Russell DuBose (above) is one of two juniors on the Pampa boys' varsity tennis team this year. He posted a 9-6 singles record as the No. 3 player for the Harvesters. The Pampa boys' and girls' team won the District 1-4A Team Tennis title this fall and will compete in the regional tournament Friday and Saturday in Lubbock. Pampa won the district team championship for the first time in school history.

Peete and Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — While a woozy Troy Aikman struggled to make sense of it all, Rodney Peete made something crystal clear to Philadelphia Eagles fans who don't want him to be their quarterback.

"They should know that I haven't lost a game at home that I've started and finished," said Peete after running his record in such circumstances to 9-0 in the Eagles' comeback 13-12 victory over the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday.

The trend bodes well for Philadelphia, which plays four of its next six games at Veterans Stadium. And it gives Peete a strong foundation as he builds his case to remain a starter.

Since taking over from an inconsistent Ty Detmer last week, Peete has played poorly most of the time, then well enough at the end to eke out two close victories.

"We did struggle for three and a half quarters, but... as long as we're in striking distance, I feel very comfortable about our chances of winning," said Peete, who finished 13-for-31 for 126 yards.

That the Eagles were still within striking distance, trailing only 9-3 going into the fourth quarter, is a testament to Philadelphia's defense, which knocked Aikman out of the game in the first quarter, and Dallas' continuing inability to produce touchdowns.

The Cowboys defense did their part. It limited the Eagles to 81 yards in the first half, only 23 on the ground.

And Dallas' special teams came through, setting up three scores with two long kickoff returns and nearly blocking a punt that instead traveled only 8 yards.

The Cowboys offense enhanced that excellent field position — until the end zone came close into view. Then, as they have often during the season, the Cowboys froze.

On their first drive, the light turned red at the Eagles 8, and Richie Cunningham kicked the first of his four field goals.

On their second scoring drive, the stop sign materialized at the Eagles 6, and Cunningham trotted out to pad the lead.

A missed field goal by former Cowboy Chris Boniol once again gave Dallas good field position late in the first half. Again, after the Cowboys stalled at the Eagles 18, Cunningham connected, but instead of the 21 points the dominating Dallas offense would have had in its heyday, it had only nine.

Northeastern State takes over second in Lone Star Conference

By The Associated Press

Northeastern State halted Southwestern Oklahoma State's uncanny Lone Star Conference mastery, wresting away second place in the North Division along the way.

SWOSU fell to 2-5 overall, but both victories had been against league rivals while the team had lost all four of its non-conference games. Northeastern State (3-5, 3-1) clinched the 7-6 victory Saturday only when SWOSU kicker Kyle Bengs missed a late 29-yard attempt.

SWOSU, 2-1 in conference play, fell to third place.

In other games Saturday, North leader Central Oklahoma beat Ouachita Baptist 31-14, Abilene Christian defeated Tarleton 23-17, Eastern New Mexico edged Texas A&M-Commerce 10-9 and Harding beat East Central 41-21.

Additionally, both South leaders won: Angelo State beat Midwestern State 30-9 and Texas A&M-Kingsville routed West Texas A&M 33-0.

Ryan Logan's 217 rushing yards and four touchdowns paced Central Oklahoma (7-1, 3-0), while the defense collected five turnovers by Ouachita (3-5, 2-2).

Angelo State improved to 7-0 and 4-0 despite being outgained 264 yards to 252 by Midwestern State (2-5, 0-4): ASU capitalized on a blocked punt to ring up 20 points in the third period.

Texas A&M-Kingsville's top Division II defense held sway, holding West Texas A&M (4-4, 1-3) to just 97 total yards and just 1 rushing yard. TAMU (6-1, 4-0) scored a touchdown and a safety on two blocked punts.

Jose Rabe came off the bench for Abilene Christian (6-2, 3-1) to throw for 279 yards and two touchdowns, including the go-ahead score in the third quarter. Tarleton fell to 2-6 overall and 1-5 in Lone Star play.

Eastern New Mexico (5-3, 2-2) shook off a below-zero wind chill to overcome a nine-point deficit in the second half against Texas A&M-Commerce (3-5, 2-2).

Baseball has bittersweet memories for Leyland

MIAMI (AP) — This was a victory for every baseball lifer.

Jim Leyland cried the day he had to release his first player. He was all of 26 then and managing Detroit's rookie club in Bristol, Va. And through 11 seasons in five different towns at different levels of the minors, and a dozen seasons more managing in the bigs, the memory never left him.

So Leyland fought back tears a few minutes into Monday morning, nearly 30 years later, when he hoisted the World Series trophy above his head. His time in the game has been laced with as much bitter as sweet, and all of it came rushing back.

"This is for all the minor league managers, the guys in the instructional leagues. I'm a Double-A backup, flunky catcher. So," Leyland said, "don't give up guys."

The moment Game 7 ended, in those chaotic seconds after Edgar Renteria lined a shot into center and Craig Counsell raced home to secure Florida's Game 7 win, Leyland raced out of the dugout with both hands lifted skyward in celebration. The first player to join him, fittingly, was Bobby Bonilla, who was with him in Pittsburgh, where Leyland got his first big-league managing job and came so tantalizingly close to a World Series several times that you wondered how he ever got over the heartaches.

"It's such a grind to be able to capture something so special," Bonilla said. "That's why I had to give him such a big bear hug."

For a moment, Leyland's pencil-thin frame nearly disappeared in Bonilla's muscular embrace, a scene that framed his style of running a ballclub better than any other could. No manager is better loved by the guys who play for him, nor quite so self-effacing.

Leyland signed his first pro contract with the Detroit organization in 1963, and the day he arrived at training camp he looked around at the collected talent and knew he didn't have a chance. The best he ever hit was .243 playing in a little bus-stop town called Rocky Mount, N.C. Soon after, he offered to do everything — anything — to be able to hang around the game.

He got his wish. But like any love that outlasts infatuation, baseball gave him plenty to regret, too. Enough so that one season ago, he nearly walked away from the game.

As mightily as Leyland suffered losing the NL Championship

Series three straight years while managing in Pittsburgh, what finally drove him out of that town was the realization he might never get the chance to do it again. He had settled into Pittsburgh, married late in life, started a family and made a home there. But first the cost-conscious Pirates' organization let guys like Bonilla and Barry Bonds go, and then they started cutting to the bone.

Leyland had hung on in the minors with teams so bad that a half-dozen errors and 10 walks per game were routine. He endured eating in truck stops and being stranded on two-lane highways alongside buses with flat tires at 4 o'clock in the morning. All without complaint. But he let go of Pittsburgh, reluctantly, after the 1996 season, because he knew they had no chance to win.

What convinced him to come back, in Florida of all places, was the promise that owner Wayne Huizenga's deep pockets would restore that opportunity. He looked around the Marlins clubhouse in the spring, knew the talent was there and then set about melding it into a unit that would breathe life into the slogan, "25 players, one heartbeat."

The Marlins' Gary Sheffield, a quiet type, reminded players how much they owed Leyland in a closed-door, players-only session before Game 7, and afterward they went out and kept their part of the bargain. Meanwhile, Leyland played cat-and-mouse with Mike Hargrove, his Cleveland counterpart. They matched wits, pitchers to hitters, lefties to righties, and didn't quit until Renteria's line-drive single split the night.

Seattle's Moon shows rookies how to play quarterback role

By The Associated Press

Warren Moon proved that he's not too old to be a starting quarterback in the NFL.

Moon, in his 20th season of professional football, passed for 409 yards and five touchdowns to lead the Seattle Seahawks to a 45-34 victory over the Oakland Raiders (3-5) on Sunday.

Rookies Jake Plummer and Tony Graziani, each making his first pro start, showed they aren't yet ready to lead their teams. Graziani completed just four passes and threw two interceptions before being pulled at halftime of Atlanta's 21-12 loss to Carolina. Plummer threw four interceptions in Arizona's 41-14 loss to Tennessee.

Moon, who completed 28 of 44 passes, including three TD tosses to Joey Galloway, was so hot his own coach was afraid to stand too close to him on the sidelines.

"I didn't want to touch him," Dennis Erickson said. "I didn't want to burn myself."

Led by Moon, who will be 41 on Nov. 18, the Seahawks rolled up 554 yards, their second most in history. The Seahawks (5-3) won their third in a row and fifth in their last six games.

"Too much is made of the fact that I'm 40 years old," he said. "I can still read defenses and throw the football. As long as I'm surrounded by good people, I'll be OK."

Moon had his seventh 400-yard passing game in his 14th NFL season, tying Joe Montana for second place behind Dan Marino's 13.

"He plays like he's in his 20s," admired Oakland quarterback Jeff George.

In other games Sunday, Denver edged Buffalo 23-20 in overtime, Pittsburgh beat Jacksonville 23-17 in OT, the New York Giants beat Cincinnati 29-27, Minnesota

Amarillo Symphony announces replacement artist for tenor Harrison

AMARILLO — The Amarillo Symphony announced that tenor Steven Harrison has canceled his appearance as vocal soloist on Oct. 25 due to illness. Replacing Harrison will be tenor Philip Webb. The program of French and Italian opera highlights will be unchanged.

Philip Webb has earned reviews for his "tenor of power and passion" (from the Venice Gondolier) and his "elegant musicality" (Opera News).

His performance of Rodolfo in La Bohème inspired The Buffalo News to exclaim, "When Webb uncorked the famed Che gelida aria with a good sustained lyric quality and an engaging bright ring up top, the production was on really solid ground."

Webb will perform this aria on Saturday with the Amarillo Symphony. Last season, Webb performed a program of Italian arias and songs under the baton of Doc Severinsen with the Milwaukee Symphony and the Minnesota Orchestra.

In the 1997-98 season Webb will sing La Bohème with the Florentine Opera, Travatore with the Virginia Opera and Madama Butterfly with the Mobile Opera. Recent orchestral appearances include the Verdi Requiem with the Toledo Symphony, the Mozart Requiem with the Colorado Springs Symphony, and Beethoven's Ninth Symphony with the Roanoke Symphony. He has also appeared with the Tulsa Opera, the Vail Music Festival, the Pittsburgh Opera Theater, the Dayton Philharmonic, the Fort Wayne Philharmonic, the Grant Park Symphony and the Lyric Opera of Chicago.

You may sample Philip Webb's artistry on the Internet at: <http://www.geocities.com/vienna/7132/pwint.html>.
