'Average American' Energy Waste Hit

Carter Cites Cuts By Corporations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter compared the nation's energy problem to a cancer and said Tuesday it was "heartbreaking" to see such an issue "sapping away the basic strength of our nation."

In an informal speech to a group assembled by White House aides, Carter chastised "the average American" for not reducing energy consumption, as he said "the corporate world" has done.

He said the energy problem posed "one of the most serious threats to our nation in peacetime that I have seen."

It was also disclosed Tuesday that Carter would confer at the White House today with Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California on that state's gasoline shortage. They are due to meet in the Cabinet Room at 9 a.m. CDT.

Brown Asks Meeting

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Brown, a potential rival of Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination, had requested the meeting on Monday in a telephone call to the president.

The meeting is likely to delay briefly the release by the White House of a special Department of Energy report on the problems in California where gasoline lines appeared for the first time since the 1973 oil embargo. The report is being prepared at Carter's order when he visited San Francisco and Los Angeles on May 4 and 5.

At the daily White House briefing for reporters, Powell said the release would be held up out of courtesy to Brown so that his comments can be considered.

Carter Addresses Group

The White House group addressed by the President in the East Room was made up of business executives from small and medium-sized enterprises, small-town mayors, and other local officials.

Carter repeated his assertion, first made last week, that Congress showed "a remarkable demonstration of political timidity" in refusing to approve his standby plans for gasoline rationing.

The president praised efforts by business to substantially reduce energy consumption over the last two years.

"Among the average American consumer that has not been the case," Carter said.

"Festers Like Cancer"

"Our country is so strong, so able, it is almost heartbreaking to see some issue like this, which festers like a cancer, carry on from one month to another sapping away the strength of our nation," Carter said.

The president's brief speech did not reveal any new plans for winning congressional support for a rationing plan or his proposal to tax the increased income oil companies will receive from the removal of federal price controls on oil.

But he continued his campaign on behalf of the "windfall" profits tax and to encourage conservation.

"I do not want the increase in oil prices to go to the oil companies," Carter said. "Their profits are adequate."

Meanwhile, plans for a shutdown of service stations from Thursday through Sunday to protest federal price controls seemed about to collapse Tuesday amid fears of a consumer backlash and government retaliation. But many stations may close anyway because they've run out of fuel.

"If they're closed down it will be because they're out of gas," said James V. Cresente, executive director of the Northern Ohio Petroleum Retailers Association. He said the shutdown proposal "kind of petered out by the time it got here. Nobody wanted to go along."

California gas dealers may be the only ones to participate in the protest, although it is doubtful whether the leaders of the movement will get the kind of support they had expected. At one time, at least two-thirds of California's 14,000 dealers were expected to hang "closed" signs Thursday.

Jim Campbell, chairman of the California Service Station Council and leader of the protest, said he still expects the shutdown to take place in his state.

But a survey by the Sacramento Bee of 290 service stations in Northern California showed that 160 of them would close Saturday and Sunday. Another 62 said they would close for the full four-day period, but half of those said they were closing because of short supplies rather than the planned protest.

Testifying before the state Senate Committee on Energy and Public Utilities Tuesday, Campbell said, "We have the right to petition our government. The regulations we're living under basically are putting us out of business."

The committee passed a measure to make the anyone responsible for withholding gas supplies — from producers down to retailers — subject to a maxi-

Lease Disagreement Cancels Plans For GSA Office Building

RHONA SCHWARTZ
Avalanche-Journal Staff

PLANS to construct a General Services Administration office building in the Memorial Civic Center area have been canceled because a leasing agreement could not be worked out between a Plainview builder and GSA.

The Urban Renewal Agency Tuesday canceled a bid by J.B. Roberts of Plainview for $152,200 and decided to return to him a deposit of $7,600.

Roberts submitted his bid for the nearly 11/2 acres of land last December, contingent upon the ability to work out a suitable agreement with the federal agency.

The Urban Renewal Agency granted him an extension several months ago to work out the transaction, but he has been unable to do so and does not want another extension, deputy commissioner Robert Stack told the board.

Stack said that apparently one of the problems involved GSA's request for a larger building, which did not fit into Roberts' plans.

Land To Be Re-Advertised

The land now will be re-advertised for sale and development, the board said.

Stack also told the board that progress is being made on another Civic Center transaction, concerning plans to build a Holiday Inn in the area.

Architectural plans have been started, he said, and the building "could feasibly be under construction this fall."

During its monthly meeting, the board also accepted the resignation of chairman Betty Anderson and presented a letter of commendation and appreciation along with a plaque to her for "outstandingly acceptable and distinguished service which has been exemplary in all respects."

Mrs. Anderson, who served on the board for nearly nine years, including the last two as chairman, resigned her post to accept a position with RSVP (the Retired Senior Volunteer Program).

The board elected Tommy Stevens and J.T. Braxton to serve as chairman and vice chairman.

90 Degrees Due Area Again Today

A SLIGHT cool front which blew across Lubbock and the South Plains Tuesday afternoon should have no effect on the warm weather pattern currently dominating most of the High Plains.

Temperatures today should equal the 90-degree high mark registered Tuesday afternoon, before cooling to a nighttime reading in the middle 60s.

Winds should remain somewhat gusty throughout the day, changing to the south early this morning and blowing about 15 to 25 mph. Wind warnings will be in effect for area lakes.

A chance for precipitation was expected with the arrival of the front, but no rain was reported. The chance for precipitation should linger for several days, but none is expected at least through Thursday.

The clouds that could produce the rain will move into the South Plains as part of a southerly flow caused by a combination of a high pressure system to the east and a low pressure system to the west.

However, 10 hours of sunshine is expected today and eight hours should warm the area Thursday.

Humidity in the area should remain moderate, decreasing during the heat of the afternoon and increasing during early morning hours.

The 65 percent humidity expected early Wendesday will drop to 25 to 30 percent during the afternoon, and rise back to about 90 percent early Thursday. But evaporation from groundsoil is expected to be about 1/2 inch today and nearly 1/2 inch again Thursday.

AIRPORT BILL ADVANCES

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate approved a bill Tuesday prohibiting Houston or Dallas from denying any commercial air carrier access to their public airports unless the denial is in the public interest. Sen. O.H. Harris' bill was sent to the House on a 26-5 vote.

Initiative Plan Fails In House Vote

AUSTIN (AP) — A proposal to give Texans the right of initiative and referendum fell 11 votes short of House approval Tuesday night.

But the 89-33 vote keeps the proposed constitutional change alive for further debate and another roll call that could — if it produces 100 votes — send the measure to the Senate.

The House voted 48-40 to authorize future legislators to pass laws requiring equal access to the news media, other than paid advertising, by both sides of an initiative or referendum question.

Rep. Carlisle Smith, D-Grand Prairie, the sponsor, acknowledged the measure probably goes too far for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who opposes initiative and referendum and holds immense power as presiding officer of the Senate.

"I can't tell you the lieutenant governor can accept anything that will mean anything," Smith said.

But Smith added that he believed Hobby "could position himself" to accept the House measure.

Gov. Bill Clements says he would call the Legislature back in special session if they fail to submit an initiative and referendum proposal to the voters.

The measure that gained a House majority would enable voters to initiate new laws or constitutional amendments or recommend repeal of existing laws by referendum.

Groups wishing to propose a law for action by the Legislature would have 270 days to collect signatures of 15 percent of the voters — including 15 percent in each of at least 50 counties. If their petition drive succeeded, the proposition would go on the next general election ballot. If a majority of those voting approved the proposition, it would go to the Legislature.

The Legislature would have to act.

If legislators defeated a bill initiated by the voters, the measure again would be placed on a general election ballot, and the voters could enact it into law.

If the Legislature revised the proposal before passing it, the voters would make the final choice between the original version and the amended bill.

Girl Prefers Smoking To Washington Trip

HOUSTON (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Shawn Galloway is smoking again — despite an offer of a trip to Washington, a lecture from a Carter Cabinet member and severe pressure from her friends.

Shawn attracted national attention three months ago when Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano discovered, during a visit to Houston, that she was the only girl in her ninth-grade Scarborough Junior-Senior High class who smoked.

Califano offered her a trip to Washington, with a friend of her choosing, if she could kick the cigarette habit for six months.

Shawn, 16, hesitated at first. But a few hours later, she threw away her cigarettes and give her lighters away.

Then, about a month ago, she returned to the cigarettes she said she had replaced with chewing gum and fingernails.

"I could have quit for good," she said. "But I didn't want to. It's something to do with your hands. Anyway, I didn't care about that trip to begin with."

She recognizes her return to smoking might hurt her. "But then you only live once," she said. "You might as well live it good."

Shawn said she feels she was practically forced into quitting by friends and by reporters who kept "bugging me."

She said she was smoking up to three packs a day when she quit and is now back to one pack a day.

"I started back slow, but it didn't matter," she said. "Cigarettes keep me company when I'm bored. There's nothing else better to do."

Jones 'Death Squad' Hinted By Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators said Tuesday they can not rule out the possibility that a Peoples Temple death squad is stalking the nation's leaders, seeking to carry out the last wishes of the Rev. Jim Jones.

The investigators, reporting to the House Foreign Affairs Committee after a six-month probe into the murder of Rep. Leo J. Ryan in Guyana, said the possibility that cultists had a "death list" marking national leaders for assassination "should not be totally discounted."

"I think the people are there," staff investigator George Berdes told the committee. "They may no longer be part of an organized hit squad but I think they are there."

Hit List Developed

Berdes and two other investigators said Peoples Temple members developed a hit list of nearly 40 people, including congressmen and national leaders, immediately after the deaths of cultists in Guyana during a mass suicide-murder rite.

The investigators refused to give details of their evidence. Asked flatly if a death squad exists, Berdes replied: "Because of the delicate nature, the chemistry of the people involved, I don't want to turn the answer to that question into a self-fulfilling prophesy."

In a written report, the committee investigators concluded that "there is evidence to suggest Jones and some of his key lieutenants discussed and had 'understandings' to eliminate various individuals, including national political leaders. Time may diminish the possible threat of this factor."

Meeting Guarded

Underscoring their concern, the staff investigators delivered their report under heavy security. Police guarded each door, and those entering the room passed through metal detectors.

Ryan, three journalists and a cult defector were shot to death at an airstrip near the Peoples Temple settlement in Guyana last Nov. 18 while attempting to investigate reports that Jones, the cult leader, was holding people against their will. While Ryan and his party were under attack, Jones led more than 900 cult members in a ritual murder-suicide by cyanide poisoning.

Present at the congressional session to hear the report on the incident were several members of Ryan's family, including his daughter, Erin, and two sisters, Sheila Ryan and Shannon Torphy.

The investigators told the committee there is circumstantial evidence that Jones made advance plans with his lieutenants to assassinate Ryan if the congressman could not be deluded on true conditions at the settlement.

"Providing some moderate credence to the idea of a contingency conspiracy is the fact that the Jonestown suicide-murder ritual started before the Port Kaituma (airstrip) assailants returned to confirm the shootings of Rep. Ryan and others," the report said.

It said there also are unconfirmed reports that a large shipment of cyanide used in the mass murder arrived in Jonestown two days before Ryan's visit.

"Also related is the reported statement of a Jonestown survivor that several days before Mr. Ryan arrived at Jonestown, he heard Jones say that the congressman's plane 'might fall from the sky.'"

The House investigators agreed with

Jobs Plan Subcontractor Lashes SPAG 'Barriers'

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AFTER ticking off a list of complaints against the South Plains Association of Governments' CETA office, a CETA subcontractor concluded Tuesday that "there is a lack of cooperation, completely, on SPAG's part" in smooth operation of the federal job training program.

"We have the contract. Why not support us completely instead of putting barriers in our way?" queried Johnita Franklin, SER program director.

SER receives Comprehensive Employment Training Act funds for its training program. SPAG administers the overall CETA program for Lubbock, Hale and Garza counties through subcontractors.

After hearing Mrs. Franklin's complaints, the South Plains Manpower Planning Council, which recommends CETA action to the SPAG board, decided there is little it can do to resolve obvious communication and administrative problems between SER and the main CETA office.

Meeting Proposed

However, acting chairman Bert Darden of the Texas Employment Commission suggested that Miss Franklin meet with CETA administrator Juanita Forbes to iron out differences.

Both sides concurred, although SER board member Jerry Flores noted, "The other efforts we have made toward SPAG to resolve the issues have been less than satisfactory." That is why the SER representatives sought a meeting with the manpower planning council, he indicated.

Topping the list of Mrs. Franklin's grievances is what she calls fluctuating client referrals from the SPAG intake office.

The program went from no referrals in October and November to a high of 90 in January and back down to only seven so far in May.

"I cannot see operating a program under these conditions," she told the council, explaining that it plays havoc with monthly placement goals for the program.

Flores seconded that, saying, "SER is finding out that the intake center is performing a less than satisfactory job as far as we're concerned."

Interest Conflict Seen

And, he said in a further jab at SPAG, "Anytime you start having intake and administering your own program," there is a conflict of interest.

Flores explained he believes the intake office shows partiality in its referrals, sending better qualified clients to other CETA programs first, referring the remainder to SER, and that during times when there are few clients, SER receives none.

"We have one very basic fact," he said. "We've got a conflict of interest" because SPAG's main CETA office handles intakes, monitors program effectiveness and administers the overall program.

"I would suggest that if you're going to monitor and intake, get out of administering," Flores said.

Mrs. Forbes refuted the SER representatives' contentions, saying that different client criteria for each program determine which client is enrolled in

Christian Feud Rips Beirut; Truce Sought

By The Associated Press

PRIVATE ARMIES of Lebanon's two major Christian parties battled each other Tuesday for territorial control in the streets of Beirut. Their leaders sought desperately to enforce another cease-fire.

As their Moslem and Palestinian foes looked on, militiamen of the right-wing Christian Phalange and National Liberal parties fought in three residential areas of eastern Beirut. Police said the Christian feud that erupted in gunfights Saturday has left 15 known dead and 36 wounded.

Phalange leader Pierre Gemayel and former President Camille Chamoun, who heads the National Liberal Party and its Tiger militia, announced creation of a "unified command," ordered a cease-fire and said violators "will be referred to Lebanese authorities."

Witnesses in eastern Beirut said the firing of machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades tapered off after the cease-fire order, but sniping continued as night fell.

President Elias Sarkis and Premier Salim el Hoss returned to Beirut Tuesday from a two-day meeting in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad. Hoss told reporters in Damascus he would submit his resignation today.

Hoss heads an eight-man Cabinet of technocrats that tried for 29 months, with little success, to reduce tensions after the 1975-76 civil war that pitted Christian rightists against an alliance of Lebanese Moslem leftists and Palestinian

Disaster-Aid Programs Face Changes In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressured by calls for help from flood victims in Mississippi and Texas, the House Agriculture Committee cleared the way Tuesday for House consideration of major changes in the government's disaster-aid programs for farmers and ranchers.

The committee did not positively endorse the proposed changes, which are expected to be voted on by the House this week without the normal congressional hearings.

The committee instead heeded the request of Rep. Thomas S. Foley, the committee chairman, that it not assert its right under House rules to examine and amend the proposals, worked out secretly last week.

The small business committees in both House and Senate had approved changes in separate actions last month that did not affect Agriculture Department programs.

The new proposals, a compromise among those bills and Carter administration objections, do affect those programs, giving the agriculture committee an official say in the matter.

The principal changes would:

—Effectively get the Small Business Administration out of the business of lending money to farmers struck by natural disasters, a shift long sought by Carter.

—Add 200 persons to the field staff of the Farmers Home Administration so that it can accept applications for low interest loans that would have gone to SBA.

—Cut the subsidy to richer farmers who qualify for disaster aid.

Present SBA loans,unlike Farmers Home programs, do not require applicants to prove that they cannot get credit from private sources. Farmers with gross incomes of up to $1 million are eligible for 30-year loans of up to $500,000.

The changes were worked out last week in private by administration officials, House leaders, Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, interested senators and members of the Mississippi delegation.

The compromise was put into the form of a substitute for a bill already approved by the House Small Business Committee, which Smith chairs, and awaiting House action.

Carter vetoed 1978 legislation that would have continued interest rates of 3 percent on the main SBA disaster loans. Since then, the rate has been 7¾ percent or what the government was paying when it borrowed.

The compromise, expected to be voted on this week, would restore a 3 percent rate only on housing loans up to $55,000. Above that, the rate would be what the government pays, which has recently gone to about 9 percent.

Business applicants, including farmers, who cannot get aid from private financial institutions could qualify for a maximum loans of $500,000 from either agency, with a new interest rate of 5 percent on both.

Every two years, the borrowers credit rating would be checked and the loan shifted to private lenders if possible.

Disaster victims who had been seeking SBA's more favorable terms before the veto would have to seek Farmers Home aid first. Only if they are ineligible there could they turn to SBA.

Resident aliens, absentee landlords and farm operators whose primary income is from another business are ineligible for Farmers Home aid, which also has had lower individual ceilings than SBA loans.

Exxon Runs Afoul Of Pollution Cost Pass-Through Rules

DALLAS (AP) — The Department of Energy alleged Tuesday that Exxon Co. USA exceeded federal pricing regulations by more than $18 million.

Dan Rambo, regional representative for DOE, said Exxon violated the regulations in its determination of pollution control costs. DOE issued two notices of probable violation annd a proposed remedial order.

Federal regulations provide for refiners to pass through to the consumer certain pollution control costs in the form of higher prices.

However, Rambo said Exxon incorrectly considered certain costs to be pollution expenses which did not qualify under the regulations and thereby improperly included such amounts in determining its selling prices.

Exxon has 10 days to reply.

Rambo said DOE's special counsel has issued 75 enforcement actions against oil companies since December 1977 alleging violations totalling $3.5 billion.

Allegations against Exxon total $750 million.

'Blizzard Babies' Expected This Fall

Doctors at Michael Reese Hospital, where more than 4,000 babies are born in a normal year, report a 20 percent increase in pregnancies this spring. The blizzard, they say, is responsible.

The blizzard's baby boom should begin in mid-October, nine months following the Jan. 13 blizzard that virtually shut in most residents of the nation's second largest city for more than a month.

The storm was so bad it forced cancellation of sports events, most theatre and other organized entertainment. Cars were buried on some side streets for more than a month and even the Chicago Transit Authority's elevated service ground to a halt in some parts of the city.

"The snow-in gave people nothing much to do except eat food and make love," said Dr. Allan Charles, an obstetrician. "There was food in the house and it was available, so they ate and gained weight. Their mates were also available, and they couldn't kill time at the movies, so they spent unusually large amounts of intimate time together."

Dr. Ronald Metzler, another obstetrician, said many of his blizzard pregnancy cases are a bit depressed because the babies were unplanned.

"But they (expectant mothers) are not as irritable as during the winter," he said. "Then they were very picky. The temperature was never right in our office and they let me have it if I was 10 minutes late."

There is one consolation for the blizzard-related mothers-to-be, Metzler said. It's much easier to get to the hospital to deliver babies during the fall than it is during the winter.

He also predicted a run on snow-related names such as Noel, Gale, Snowflake and Rudolph.

Murder Trial Judge Hears Varying Tales

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A judge in the Theodore Bundy murder trial heard conflicting pre-trial testimony Tuesday about whether a slender man, seen several blocks from the Chi Omega sorority house shortly after two coeds were strangled in their beds, could have been Bundy.

Florida State University campus police Sgt. Clifford Norris Campbell testified that student Orlie Sorrell told him several hours after the Jan. 15, 1978, double murder that he saw a man duck into the bushes about 4:30 a.m.

The victims were found betweeen 3 a.m. and 4 a.m. when another coed, who was attacked by the same assailant, stumbled out into the hall of the dorm and awoke the sorority house.

Campbell said he questioned Sorrell again on Feb. 24, eight days after Bundy was arrested. Sorrell told him this time, he said, that the man he saw around the time of the crime resembled newspaper pictures of Bundy.

He said Sorrell told him he saw the man he thinks was Bundy on College Avenue, about a block from the rooming house where Bundy was living at the time and several blocks from the Chi Omega house.

Deputy Sheriff George Brand Jr. testified that two men who lived in Bundy's rooming house told him they saw Bundy going up the stairs to his room between 4:30 a.m. and 5:30 a.m. on the day of the crime. One of them, Henry Polombo, said Bundy was wearing light clothes and "looked clean the way he always did," while the other, Russell Gage, said he was hatless and wearing jeans. Campbell said the man Sorrell described was wearing a light jacket and dark knit ski-type hat.

The defense called the police officers in connection with a motion to suppress evidence the state expects to use at the trial to show that teeth marks imbedded in the breast and buttock of St. Petersburg coed Lisa Levy, 20, were made by Bundy.

Bundy, 32, a former Utah law student from Tacoma, Wash., is charged with strangling Miss Levy nd Margaret Bowman, 21, also of St. Petersburg, as they slept in their sorority house. He also is charged with beating two other Chi Omega women and a young dance student who lived in an apartment a few blocks away.

FBI Claims Arrest Of 'Mafia Kingpin'

MIAMI (UPI) — The FBI announced the arrest Tuesday of a Mafia kingpin and one of his henchmen on charges involving loan-sharking, racketeering and the murder of a gang member who was an undercover man for the FBI.

Aniello Dellacroce, 65, reported to be the underboss of the Carlo Gambino crime family, was arrested Monday at his Staten Island, N.Y., home and Anthony Plate, 66, was taken into custody at his Bay Harbor Island home near Miami Beach.

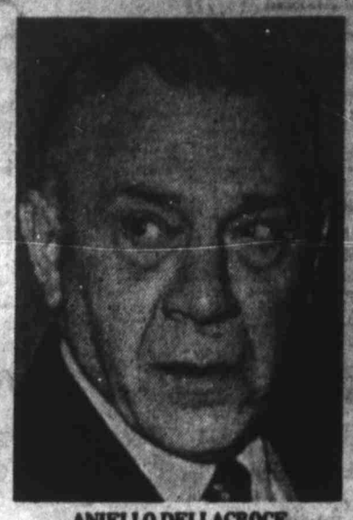
Plate appeared before U.S. Magistrate Patricia Kyle at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and was to be released after posting $75,000 corporate surety and $50,000 personal surety bonds. His arraignment was scheduled for next Monday in Fort Lauderdale. Dellacroce was to be arraigned later.

A federal grand jury at Fort Lauderdale handed down a sealed indictment Monday accusing the two of eight counts of racketeering, loan-sharking, conspiracy to murder, obstruction of an investigation and interstate travel for conspiracy over an 11-year period.



ANIELLO DELLACROCE

The indictment charged that Dellacroce ordered Plate to kill Charles "Charlie Bear" Calise because Calise was suspected of giving information to the FBI. Arthur Nehrbass, special agent in charge of Miami's FBI Office, said Calise had, in fact, served as an informant.

Calise's body was found in Rockland County, N.Y., in July 1974. He had been shot five times in the head.

Detailing the shylocking charges, the indictment said in July 1969, Plate loaned money to Sidney Karp, owner of Hallandale Motors Inc. in Broward County, Fla. Two months later, Plate "jumped on Sidney Karp's desk, placed a knee on Sidney Karp's chest, spit on Sidney Karp's face and threatened to bite chunks from Sidney Karp's face if ... Plate was not paid $40,000," the indictment said.

Nehrbass said Plate had about a quarter of a million dollars in loans "on the street" at any given time.

The investigation by the Southeastern Regional Task Force on Organized Crime that resulted in the indictment was assisted by Aladena "Jimmy the Weasel" Fratianno, a former Gambino member arrested last year on robbery charges in California, Nehrbass said.

Fratianno, who is in protective custody, agreed to cooperate with investigators as part of a plea bargain.

If convicted, Dellacroce could face a 40-year prison sentence and a $50,000 fine, and Plate could receive up to 150 years in prison and a $110,000 fine.

Nonexistent Bridge Chosen As State Historical Site

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — The Bay City Commission received official notice this week that the state government wants to designate the 90-year-old Bellida Street Bridge as a historical site.

The offer came as welcome news to the commission president, Mark Salegar, who at Monday night's meeting said:

Two years ago, the small bridge was torn down to make way for a modern, four-lane structure.

Silkwood Case Goes To Jury After 47 Days

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination jury selected a Tuttle, Okla., housewife as its foreman at the start of deliberations Tuesday.

Martha Hodges, whose husband is a U.S. Postal Service clerk, will be the in-ourt spokeswoman for the other two women and the three men on the jury.

The other jurors are: a retired teacher, Myrtle Blan of Chickasha; Doris Estus of Oklahoma City, a state employee; Richard Ford of Edmond, a telephone repairman; Richard Royse Jr. of El Reno, a city utility supervisor, and Robert Guyer of Edmond, a structural engineer.

Two alternates were exused at the start of deliberations and advised not to talk to reporters. They were Max Hall, an electronics engineer from Norman, and Helen Roberson, a Lindsay housewife.

When Mrs. Roberson was excused, the jurors lost one of their favorite cooks. She brought slow-cooking pots and other appliances to the jury deliberation room and many times during the 47-day trial the jurors did not leave the building for lunch breaks. A law clerk had to help Mrs. Roberson carry her gear to her car.

Mrs. Estus and Mrs. Blan reportedly also cooked for the other jurors.

Mrs. Roberson, as the time drew near for her dismissal, reportedly joked about somehow getting rid of one of the regular jurors so she could participate in deliberations.

Lawyers for the Kerr-McGee Corp and the Silkwood estate have complimented the jurors several times on their attentiveness during the long trial.

U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., thanked Mrs. Roberson and Hall for their service and invited them into his chambers for a chat after court recessed.

'Apple Energy' Used To Heat Firm's Offices

LEWISTON, N.Y. (AP) — With a few apples a day, Cliff Toenniessen has found he can keep the meter reader at a distance.

While watching the apples grow on his 150-acre farm in western New York, Toenniessen observed that they give off heat. And that gave him a juicy idea how to save money on fuel.

Toenniessen has a large building in which he must store apples at 31½ degrees from September through early June. In another part of the building is a packing room and sales room that must be kept warm.

Using two compressors, a 300-gallon water tank, some copper tubing and three fans, he worked out a way to capture the heat given off by the apples in the storage room and send it over to the packing and sales rooms.

Take-It-Or-Leave-It SALT II?

THE "PITCH" on the great SALT II Debate, from both the Carter administration's and opposition's standpoints, is becoming crystallized in a hurry.

On the one hand, the White House is marshaling its big guns, from the Secretary of Defense to Secretary of State, to say that the pact is safe, that it guarantees the world its only chance at a weapons halt, that it can be verified.

And, this is no little addition, if it is not accepted in toto as now drawn, there is a good chance the whole thing will go down the drain.

ON THE OTHER side of the fence, such persons as Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and others "still neutral," say that definite changes must be made for the treaty to be acceptable.

Results of various polls are cited by both sides, but particularly by President Carter and his aides, as showing the American people definitely favor some sort of arms limitation pact.

What neither Mr. Carter nor some of the surveys reveal is that by about the same margin, most Americans also say they do not trust the Russians to keep any agreement they make.

THE PAST WEEKEND, both the "pros" and "cons" had their say before nationally televised audiences.

The two major new items to come out of all the talk was that the White House does not want any changes in the pact itself. The second thing was that, unless they change their position, some key senators are going to insist on changes.

As the treaty is now drawn, we would have to make major changes in it—including guaranteed, perhaps on-the-spot verification of weapons cutbacks and control, before giving approval.

THE SOLUTION to this key worry—and there are numerous others as far as we are concerned—may be one of those famous "letters of intent," an extra piece of luggage appended to the formal treaty saying that the "intent" of this and that proviso is "so and so."

This, the Carter people, may argue, and wavering senators and a gullible public may buy, would avert the head-on clash of major changes which Moscow might reject outright.

Fortunately, some three months, at least, has been set aside for full study and discussion of SALT II. That is enough time to get down to the nitty-gritty of what it all means, says and implies, or enough, as was the case with the Panama Canal giveaway, confuse the whole issue with rhetoric, false claims on the part of the administration and the lulling of millions of Americans who unfortunately have shown a tendency to back away from hard survival decisions in too many foreign policy decisions in recent years.

In the final analysis, the key issue is "What does Salt II do to this nation's ability to maintain an equal or superior position with an enemy which has sworn 'to bury us' with our own shovels?"

It's just that simple.

Keeping A Roof On Interest

A TEMPORARY PATCH designed to get Texas home buyers through the briar patch of inflation for the next couple of years without making 12 percent mortage interest rates a permanent home fixture has cleared one House of the Texas Legislature.

The measure represents a reasonable compromise that Gov. Bill Clements insisted upon before he would sign any bill into law raising the state's 10 percent interest ceiling on mortgage loans.

As approved in the House, the bill would self-destruct in 1981 unless reapproved by the Legislature then.

MORTGAGE LENDERS have warned that funds to finance the purchase of homes in Texas are drying up because other states do not have a 10 percent ceiling.

A maximum "floating" rate of 2 percent above the average monthly interest rate on 10-year U.S. Treasury notes and bonds, up to a 12 percent ceiling, is authorized in the bill now awaiting Senate action.

This would make interest rates in Texas competitive with those in other states and enable builders and lenders to fill the continued strong demand for new homes.

At the same time, Congress and the Carter administration would be put on notice that Texas fully expects them to bring inflation under control and, thus, interest rates back down to tolerable levels within two years.

This can be done only by balancing the federal budget and adopting monetary and regulatory policies which will free the American economy from government-imposed and costly restrictions.

Whether the Legislature would continue to legalize 12 percent mortgage loans in Texas after 1981 if federal officials fail in their responsibility is conjectural.

All the legislators, and the consumer, can do for the moment is cope as best they can with the harsh realities forced upon them by the big-spending, misled federal moguls.

HENRY J. TAYLOR:

Equality With Soviets Would Be Step Back

COMMUNIST PARTY leader Leonid I. Brezhnev made a speech in Alta Vista comparing the U.S. to the great progress in the USSR. Hokus, hokey, hokum!

Let me be specific:

Today Moscow has about 90,000 apartments, more than half shared by two families and many by three or four. Brezhnev himself has stated that Moscow alone would need at least 1.6 million more apartments to provide unshared quarters.

And as for houses, the U.S. would have to destroy 60 percent of them to equal the USSR.

Soviet telephone service is ghastly. Three top telephone officials have been sentenced for negligence and sent to Siberian slave-labor camps. Moscow does not even have a publicly issued telephone book. We would have to destroy nine of every 10 U.S. telephones.

A SOVIET HIGHWAY system is practically non-existent. The only important connecting highway leads from Moscow north to Leningrad, west to Minsk, south to Kiev and Kharkov and to the Yalta peninsula. But ours exceed 3.5 million miles—about 135 times around the earth.

The Soviet has fewer miles of paved roads than we have in the single state of Florida. To equal the Soviet we should have to destroy 90 percent of our automobiles. Moscow has only one automobile outlet. It has a waiting list of about 60,000 dreamers.

Soviet red tape in buying a car is horrendous. First you apply at Moscow's one outlet and then repost to the precinct police station, producing your dwelling and occupation license, your work permit and your zone identification pass.

THE POLICE match your fingerprints with those from the police files. You sign an oath disclaiming that you own another automobile; it is unlawful for an ordinary buyer to own two cars. Twelve copies are made for official distribution.

You take your copies to the Registration Office and again swear you do not own an automobile and then haul everything back to the sales outlet.

But, next, the Soviet KGB secret police calls on you, asking where you got the money. If the KGB clears your story, it stamps your receipt. But you wait another year.

When the glad day arrives you return to the police station and take another oath that you will not sell the car for three years.

This prohibits you from making a fast black market ruble. If you violate the oath, the KGB confiscates your car.

TO EQUAL THE Soviet, America would have to destroy 19 of every 20 automobiles and trucks, two-thirds of our railroad mileage and roll it back to 1917; all but 10 percent of our commercial airlines, 60 percent of our steel mills, two out of three hydroelectric plants, all but five percent of our electric motor output, two-thirds of our petroleum use, another two-thirds of coal production, half our mines and 10 percent of our natural gas.

We must destroy half our 120,000 schools and colleges, padlock most of our 220,000 churches and destroy 70 million television sets.

Moreover, we must enact the Soviet workweek of 51 hours—with six-hour Saturdays—and outlaw strikes.

To do so, we must put about two million more men and women into our Army and change their pay. A Red army lieutenant receives about 100 times more than a private.

THE U.S. must duplicate the KGB's 250,000 secret police, seal the borders with 200,000 guards and reduce the death penalty to children of 14.

We must destroy the free enterprise system, giving us the world's highest wages and the shortest working hours. Russia's gross national product is less than half of ours.

We must abandon our right to govern ourselves, make everything that is not prohibited compulsory and abolish the free press.

Brezhnev's Alta Vista speech is totally unimpressive.

"I had many frustrations as a child," Genius At Work recalls. "Once I asked my mother where I came from, and she gave me a phoney address in Seattle."

GEORGE F. WILL:

Residues Of Racism

WASHINGTON—In the lushness of spring here, when lacy blossoms soften the heaviness of the city's architecture, Washington has the delicacy of a Japanese print, an impression recently reinforced by Japanese flags fluttering prettily during the visit by Prime Minister Ohira.

What is not pretty is the growing potential in the United States for anti-Japanese feeling.

There used to be a "Yellow Peril" category in the annual catalog of books published in the United States.

Just three decades ago, some states were cleansed of laws restricting the rights of American citizens of Asian descent to own land. Now added to the residue of such racism is resentment of Japanese economic power.

What Americans call "dumping" or "predatory pricing" of television sets and other goods is (to the extent that it is real) Japan subsidizing American consumption.

But it does cost jobs in particular American industries, and these losses radiate through whole communities. And the sense of Japanese power exacerbates Americans' sense of impotence.

Today America is susceptible to one of its recurring fevers of economic nationalism. Democrats are susceptible because of their concern for jobs, and for organized labor; Republicans because protectionism is one form of state interference in commerce that they frequently favor.

RELATIONS BETWEEN the two nations are being injured by relations between American businessmen and Japanese bureaucrats.

Japan is a nation of contradictions, of delicacy and toughness, as suggested by the title of Ruth Benedict's book about Japan, "The Chrysanthemum and the Sword."

The Japanese can, of course, be elaborately courteous. A Western visitor has marveled that a letter seeking payment of an overdue bill may begin: "Now that spring promises to come, first buds of the cherry blossoms can be descried climbing the far-off mountains.

"Although we hesitate to break in on your very busy schedule, troubled as you are with many worthy pursuits, it is time that necessity compels us to remind you that your firm's indebtedness..."

BUT JAPANESE bureaucrats have a reputation for pettiness, arrogance and capriciousness when dealing with Americans. And American firms are sending to Japan a higher caliber of executives, who will not take the abuse quietly.

Japan plays a role within the framework of U.S. security plans, but it could do more, and doing so might ameliorate some of the feeling that Japan is getting a free ride off the free world, doing well without doing much good.

Japan does not emphasize its contribution because (so an official says) Japan's proximity to the Soviet Union requires "ambiguity."

In one respect, Japan's relations with the United States are like Israel's. The U.S. Department of Defense Annual Report contains this agreeable, if cryptic, statement:

"THE SOVIET Mediterranean squadron would lead an exciting, but brief, existence, in the event of war..." This seems to be a not very veiled reference to the role of Israel's superb air force, which could be counted on to deal with the Soviet squadron in less than 10 minutes.

For several reasons, including Israel's perverse genius for making the least of its public relations assets, most Americans think of Israel simply as a burden—an admirable burden, perhaps, but a burden nonetheless.

And for whatever reasons, Americans also know little of the security services Japan renders.

The Japanese government may calculate, perhaps correctly, that foreign policy considerations converge with concerns about Japanese public opinion—on the right and left—to compel it to minimize the emphasis it places on military assistance to U.S. interests.

BUT FINANCIAL aid, however generous, to developing nations, such as Egypt, is no substitute as a means of winning American friends.

As a political entity, Japan is older than England; Italy, France or Spain. Japan was emerging as a nation when the Roman Empire was disintegrating. And the transformations enforced by the industrialism of the modern age have perhaps been more testing for Japan than for any other nation.

Japan is a nation on a treadmill—densely populated, utterly dependent on imported energy and raw materials, and, hence, dependent on a relentlessly dynamic push for exports.

Japan must export frantically, up close to, but not past, the point that provokes protectionism by its trading partners. Thus Japan is condemned to perform one of the high-wire acts of world politics.

Overheard: "He's very meticulous about the way he speaks. The only time he has trouble with his English is when he mixes in a little Scotch."

ANDREW TULLY:

Tory Of My Life

WASHINGTON—On a brief holiday in England several years ago, I got a phone call from a friendly journalist.

In the self-deprecatory British fashion, he suggested I "might not be too bored" to join him and a couple of his colleagues in a chat with a woman politician named Margaret Thatcher.

"She could be going somewhere," he said. "Of course she's a true-blue Tory (he was, and is, strongly pro-Labor) but she's an interesting woman. She's a bit different."

It didn't sound promising. I had perceived Mrs. Thatcher as a sort of right-wing Jane Fonda, loud and aggressive. But I went along—and discovered my perception of her sprang from the depth of ignorance.

SHE WAS not charming in the American mold. But she was soft-spoken, businesslike, and nowhere near a right-wing radical. She wanted to end socialism in Great Britain, but not with a broadsword.

It would take time, she said, to persuade Britons that socialism was "destroying" their country.

I was reminded of that Mrs. Thatcher, who became a celebrity in 1975 by knocking off Edward Heath for the leadership of the Conservative Party, when the news tickers carried one of her comments after she became Britain's first woman Prime Minister.

She promised "a calm but resolute return to the politics and economics of the free world."

That promise reflected the impression she gave at that earlier tea-and-crumpets conversation.

THEN, AS NOW, she believed it would be fatal to the Conservative cause to try to force-feed free enterprise to the average British voter. Apparently, she will move cautiously.

She is not Jane Fonda or Bella Abzug. But as that pair tries to make over America as a peace-first, Big-Government Republic, they might learn something from Margaret Thatcher.

She recognized long ago that she couldn't bellow and harangue her way to power; that way lay defeat for her Tory ideology.

She also knew that as a woman in Britain she had two and a half strikes on her, that a majority there preferred women to raging shrews. She is, in short, a pragmatist.

Mrs. Thatcher didn't give Ted Heath a Cabinet post. That shouldn't surprise anyone. They were bitter enemies, and Heath had said a lot of naughty things about her.

SHE EXPLAINED simply that she "couldn't waste time having any internal arguments" in her Cabinet.

But she was secure enough to give the Minister of Agriculture post to Heath's loyal lieutenant, Peter Walker. And her Cabinet is carefully balanced between her own kind of right-wingers and moderates.

This grocer's daughter with her sense of values—the worth of hard work, the importance of thrift, a deep religious belief in the difference between right and wrong—is indeed an interesting woman.

If she can curb her inclination to assume the role of a stern, no-nonsense nanny, she just may convince her countrymen that capitalism is not, per se, a crime.

JAY HARRIS:

A Second World...

NO MATTER HOW bad things may seem "over here" at present, there are millions around the world who would give their birthright to endure them.

We learned this more or less the hard way on our recent visit to India.

While there is in some cases a distrust of the U.S. and its motives, the vast majority of Indians, especially among the educated, would jump at the opportunity to emigrate here.

As a matter of fact, thousands have done just that in Britain, creating all sorts of problems and tension. Indians, like their counterparts elsewhere, still view America as a land of opportunity, if not milk and honey. And many, as students and businessmen, do come, some to stay, others on a temporary basis.

WITH THAT IN mind, what follows is not a "put down" of the greatest nation and way of life yet conceived. On the contrary, it is to point out some things which tarnish the image of America the Beautiful.

Not only were we away from the constant horror of what passes for music here today, but "news on the hour every hour." And instead of hearing the same ideas and opinions over and over, we were exposed to what "the other side of the world" thinks.

Basically, people everywhere yearn for two things: 1. Peace, for themselves, their neighbors, the world in general; 2. A decent way of life, food, shelter, a chance to better themselves.

Ironically, peoples everywhere seem to go to great lengths to thwart the realization of those age-old dreams.

IN INDIA, WE asked almost everyone we met, from the cab driver to the government official, "If you were prime minister, what three things would you do to help India?"

First, most reacted with a chuckle. The thought that an average person in India might be prime minister never enters most minds. Unlike America, the issue in India is to survive, not grow up to be president.

Anyway, in order, the answers were: A. Control the population explosion; B. Sharply increase agricultural production and bring electrical power into the villages; C. Massive, free and enforced education.

These three things won't change India into Utopia tomorrow, or in the next ten years. But, they are the keys needed to start "turning things around."

We would have to add, and most educated persons with whom we talked agree, that a drastic change in the archaic approach to religion is needed in that part of the world. The revival of religious fanaticism, from the Islamic bloodbath in Iran to renewal of the ban on cow slaughter in India, is doing as much to set back basic human rights as any other one thing, in our opinion.

ONE OF THE ironies of visiting a place like India is that after a few days, you become accustomed to the slums and beggars living in the shadows of skyscrapers and wealth.

The question arises as to what right one may have to go in and change things. We recall a doctor friend in South Africa who found that the natives who had gone to work in the cities soon had the same health problems the whites did.

"Come back in 10 or 15 years," he said, "and see what kind of favor we have done these people by dragging them into our type of civilization..."

As we breathed the pure air of Kanha's beautiful forest, we also wondered. But, Kanha is not India. The real India is a place of the monsoon, near and real hunger in some cases, great hopes and progress in others.

But, in India, as in Mexico and elsewhere in the Third World, something must be done soon about "making babies" for which there is no more room, no more bread and no more hope.

AT TIMES, IN India, the U.S. and home seemed far, far away. In comparison to the hovels of India, our homes are castles indeed.

And now, back home, India seems far away. But not nearly so far as it did. In many ways, it is a most beautiful and unusual land, certainly one worth visiting for any number of reasons, an Aladdin's Lamp journey on one hand, a culture shock on the other.

But, all is not well back home, either. As we flew back, we again faced the "scare" headlines of a world on the brink of "disaster," of often unfounded claims by people who knew better, repeated and printed and given stature by those who knew better.

We came back to a world of comfort and, in comparison, a world of untold riches, despite gasoline shortages and a mental and moral morass inexcusable in a "civilized" world.

WE CAME home to petty squabbles by petty people, in Austin, in Lubbock and in Washington.

It is not enough to say: "Oh well, it's always been like that. It's not going to change." But, it is...

Even though we live in Utopia compared to much of the world, it is not enough. The "have nots" of the world now expect, yea, demand more. If we, as the alleged educated leaders of the Free World can't meet the challenge and find the right solutions, at home and abroad, none of us are long for this world.

It is one thing to preach Democracy and Godliness, another to practice it. All too often we pervert both for political and personal reasons.

The world is still beating a path to our door. It is still America the Beautiful. But, it didn't get that way by default, and it won't survive by default. What can we do about it? Learn as much as possible about the world, choose the right leaders, make the right decisions. That has never changed. History has proved that fact.

L.M. BOYD:

...Pass It On

ALMOST HALF the world's population lives within 100 miles of an ocean. To be specific, 44 percent.

If you want to swat a fly, strike just a little behind it. Flies take off backwards.

Odds run 900 to one that you won't stay on the same job for as long as 10 years.

Was none other than Christopher Stone who said of horses: "They're uncomfortable in the middle and dangerous at both ends."

No, the moon is not the heavenly body that routinely comes closes to earth, am surprised to learn. Two asteroids—a couple of rocks between Mars and Jupiter—swing in orbits that actually bring them closer to earth than the moon.

Family Allows Youth To Die

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Domingo Martinez, along with his family, had a decision to make — whether to let his son live or die.

The decision was to let him die, since living for Robert Martinez, 19, of 2618 Duke St. would have meant merely existing on life-supporting equipment at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The younger Martinez virtually was dead when he arrived at the HSCH's emergency room shortly after 2 a.m. Friday.

He had lost at the game of Russian roulette — in which a player spins the cylinder of a partially loaded pistol, then places the weapon to his head and pulls the trigger.

If the chamber does not have a bullet in it, the player wins. If the gun discharges, the player loses.

The victim's life-supporting equipment was unplugged at about 6 p.m. Monday. Martinez died minutes later.

"The doctor told me there was no hope," Domingo said Tuesday at the funeral home. The father said the decision to bless his son with death was unanimous among the family.

"All I know is that it was something where we couldn't let him go on the way he was," the elder Martinez said, his voice breaking at times while talking to a reporter on the phone.

"We don't know if it was right or wrong; it was just a decision we had to make," the father said. "I couldn't see my daughter-in-law going out there and seeing him like that."

Police officer John Blythe, who made the initial report of the shooting Friday, stated that, "according to medical authorities, a decision will be made at a later date whether to remove the (life-supporting) devices."

However, the victim's father said the decision was made solely by the family, and not by hospital personnel.

Reports indicate a .38-caliber bullet entered Martinez' right temple and exited the opposite side. Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy said Tuesday he had not made a ruling in the death.

Two men, ages 19 and 20, told police they were driving around early Friday, talking and drinking beer, while Martinez sat alone in the back seat, playing Russian roulette with a .38-caliber pistol.

The two said they heard a shot, and turned around to find Martinez, a bricklayer, lying in the back seat, bleeding and unconscious. The driver said he drove around about 20 minutes before taking the mortally wounded man to the hospital.

The two companions said Martinez had been known to play the dangerous game in the past.

Services for Martinez will be at 10 a.m. Thursday at the Henderson Funeral Directors Chapel with the Rev. Adolph Cortinas, pastor of the Pentecostal Holiness Church in Lubbock, officiating.

Burial will be in Peaceful Gardens in Woodrow under direction of Henderson Funeral Directors.

Survivors include his wife, Beatrice; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Martinez of Lubbock; four brothers, Domingo Jr., stationed with the U.S. Navy in the Philippines, and Freddy, David and Richard, all of Lubbock; and his grandparents, Fidel Martinez of Vernon and Catarena Ochoa of Austin.

In final arguments Tuesday afternoon, Assistant Criminal District Attorney Everett Seymore said Salgado was involved as "a front man" in the operation so that the shop could appear to be a legitimate business.

Officers testified Tuesday that a .38-caliber revolver and a .25-caliber automatic pistol were found in drawers behind the barber chairs.

Raul Fuentes Sauceda, 30, of Carlisle, the shop owner, and Luciano Garza, 40, of 4642 Grinnell St., also have been charged and are scheduled to go to trial in the next two weeks.

Man Shoots Self Playing With Gun

Steven Lacy Parrish of 1303 65th St. was shot late Monday night while riding in a station wagon on Loop 289 near the South Plains Mall.

Police said a .38-caliber pistol fell from Parrish's lap when he was pulled from the vehicle at the hospital. Another pistol was found wrapped in a towel in the front seat of the station wagon, according to police reports.

Parrish's 17-year-old wife told police her husband was playing with one of the pistols in the front seat while she drove. She said the weapon fired as the man was holding the weapon with both hands, the barrel pointed at his face.

Reports indicate the bullet entered near the victim's right eye, and exited from the top of the head.

In other activity, two men said they were assaulted by a 20-year-old white man, described as tall, thin and blond early Tuesday.

Body Of Rig Collapse Victim Recovered

GALVESTON (AP) — The body of a man missing since an oil rig collapsed in the Gulf of Mexico was recovered seven miles from Freeport Tuesday as the Coast Guard convened a board of inquiry into the accident.

Six men are still unaccounted for and a multimillion dollar suit has been filed on behalf of one of the missing men.

The body found floating off Freeport was identified as that of Cruz Palomarez Jr. of Fresno, 27, an employee of the Halliburton Co.

"The motor vessel Orka was anchored about 7½ miles southwest of Freeport when the body was spotted floating on the surface," said Coast Gard Petty Officer John Cook.

That area is 40 to 50 miles southwest of the spot where the oil rig Ranger I sank in 57 feet of water Thursday night.

"She was too big to pick him up so the crew boat Alicia was called in," Cook said. "She picked him up at 9:45 a.m. and took him to the Coast Guard station at Freeport where he was identified on the dock by Frank Kinley of Halliburton Services."

Twenty-six of the 34 men aboard the drilling rig were rescued when one of three legs collapsed, dropping the platform and housing into the ocean 12 miles south of Galveston.

The body of Eddie Fredericks of Abbeville, La., was recovered Sunday on the rig.

Those still missing are Lawrence J. Guidry, 35, of Lafayette, La., offshore surveyor for John Chance and Associates; Barton Sealy, 22, of Houma, La., Southwest Oil Products; John Perkins, 24, Merryville, La., electrician for Atlantic Pacific; and Dennis Smith, 19, Walter Fontenot, 29, and Clarence Hanks, 50, all of Morgan City and all employed by International Hammer Services of Lafayette.

The Coast Guard called off the search for survivors or victims after divers found Fredericks' body Sunday.

Inquiry board members flew over the site Monday and met Tuesday behind closed doors.

The hearing opens again this morning and five of the survivors will testify. They include a tool pusher, a roustabout and a driller, along with the master and mate of the Delta Sea Horse, a motor vessel tied to the rig when it collapsed.

The sixth witness will be a representative of Mitchell Energy and Development Co., the Houston firm which leased the rig. It had not yet taken control of the rig, owned by Atlantic and Pacific Corp. of Houston.

Meanwhile, a $2 million negligence suit was filed in federal court in New Orleans on behalf of Hanks, who is still missing.

Plaintiffs in the suit are Hanks and his wife, Billie.

The suit alleges that Mitchell Energy and Atlantic Pacific "failed to provide a safe place to work and perform duties."

The suit said Hanks believes he has suffered permanent injury and disability. It also states the company "failed to provide a competent master, officer and co-employees and failed to enforce proper rules."

In the event Hanks is not found alive, the suit asks $8.5 million.

Youth Arrested In Dallas Sniper Case

IRVING (AP) — A youth arrested and charged with shooting at taxi cabs denied Tuesday he was the sniper who killed two persons in a similar incident last December.

Craig Franklin Foster, 18, was charged Tuesday following his arrest shortly after midnight.

Seven cabs and a truck were struck by rifle fire from at least two overpasses on Texas 114, the major artery from Dallas to the north entrance of Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport.

Three persons were injured, one by a bullet and the other two by flying glass when their windshields were shattered.

Foster was taken before Municipal Judge John Chandler, who set bonds totaling $76,000 on five counts of attempted capital murder and one count of criminal mischief. An Irving police spokesman said the capital murder charges may be reduced later.

Foster was arrested by two Irving patrolmen who stopped him on Texas 114 not far from the scene of the snipings.

He took officers to his parents' home, where they recovered a rifle.

Police said Foster's statement to them said he was just shooting at headlights and also fired at a building in the area.

The youth denied any involvement in the slayings last Dec. 8 of two persons in Irving on Texas 183, the south approach to the airport.

Police Capt. Joe Lowe said Foster would be given a chance Wednesday to take a polygraph test about the December slayings. The first to die was Steven Thomas Gaulden, 12, of Plano, who was struck in the head. Minutes later, Raymond Douglas Andrews, 43, of Arlington was shot between the eyes.

Monday's sniping incident began about 11:30 p.m. and lasted about 15 minutes, officers said. They said the youth took the rifle home and then returned to the scene.

"I don't know why, but I'm glad he did, because we caught him," Lowe said.

The sniper only shot at cabs belonging to the Terminal Cab Co. The driver of the first cab hit, Nathaniel Lewis, was cut by flying glass.

The driver of the truck, Kent Burnett, about 40, was treated and released after a bullet went through his pickup truck windshield and struck him in the thigh.

The other victim, cab driver Leon Benny McGriff, also was cut by flying glass.

Lowe said the rifle confiscated from Foster was a .22-caliber while the rifle used in the fatal December snipings is believed to be a .30-caliber rifle.

The sniping at two of the cabs occured when they went to assist Lewis' cab.

Tuition Rate Boost Opposed In Senate

The bill, as passed by both houses, would require foreign students to pay the same tuition at state-financed colleges and medical and dental schools as out-of-state students pay.

TVA SLOWS N-WORK

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority says it is slowing construction on three nuclear plants in Tennessee and Mississippi originally scheduled for completion in the mid-1980s. George Kimmons, manager of the government utility's engineering and construction office, said that as a cost-saving measure the reactors will be built in sequence instead of simultaneously.

WARM-UP FOR FILIBUSTER — Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado, is shown as he began a rambling discussion on the Senate floor Tuesday on an amendment to a bill that would revise procedures for handling primary election filing fees by the secretary of state. Patman admitted he was saving himself for an expected filibuster today against a bill to raise Texas usury limits from 10 to 12 percent. (AP Laserphoto)

Stand-In Filibuster Launched In Senate

AUSTIN (AP) — Senate debate took a new turn Tuesday.

There was a stand-in filibuster against a bill that really was not the object of the delaying action.

"These extended remarks are really against the presidential primary bill," said Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, after he put on his white sneakers and took over from Sen. Bill Patman, D-Ganado.

Patman, who displayed a new pair of blue and white jogging shoes on his desk, admitted he was saving himself for an expected filibuster today against the House-passed bill to raise Texas usury limits from 10 percent to 12 percent.

Patman began the rambling discussion after offering an amendment to a bill by Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, that would revise procedures for handling primary election filing fees by the secretary of state.

"If we pass this here, this could be amended in the House to include the presidential primary bill," Patman protested.

His wife, Carrin Patman, a national Democratic committee member, sat on the sidelines. She and her husband have fought efforts by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, to pass a Senate bill providing for a separate presidential primary in March, before the regular May primary elections.

Ogg has been unable to get the necesssary 21 votes to bring up his bill for debate.

"The amendments added in the House could call for presidential primaries at odd times that would not be true to our Democratic system," Patman said. "We are going to argue this thing to death."

"Allow me to discuss your amendment," Doggett told Patman, as he took over. "You can save yourself for tomorrow."

Motor Vehicle Agency Bill Gets House Okay

AUSTIN (AP) — The House voted Tuesday to continue the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission and turned down two efforts to slap new restrictions on automobile dealers.

House members tentatively approved on voice vote the bill (HB225) extending the commission's life. It must be considered once more before it can be sent to the Senate.

The commission, which licenses new car dealers, must shut its doors in 1980 unless the Legislature approves the bill and Gov. Bill Clements signs it.

House members eliminated, 72-61, a section that would prohibit a governor from appointing to the commission anyone who had contributed $1,000 or more to his campaign.

Rep. Matt Garcia, D-San Antonio, said it was "embarrassing" to impose such a restriction when every governor swears he has not promised any office to any supporter or contributor.

Rep. Lance Lalor, D-Houston, the sponsor, said the restriction resulted from testimony to the Sunset Advisory Commission.

He said the commission was told some state occupational licensing boards were packed with "pals of the governor" who were out of touch with the public.

House members also rejected, 107-25, an amendment requiring dealers to give customers 30 days' notice before repossessing cars and to seize the autos only between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

"It's unconscionable to take your car late at night while you are asleep," said Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, author of the amendment.

"Basically it means repossessions are not going to take place at all," Lalor said of the amendment.

The bill requires that two of the six commission members represent the public at large instead of new car dealers. It also requires the commission to follow up on consumer complaints by reporting at least quarterly on the status of each complaint.

Repeated failure to honor written agreements with consumers, such as warranties, would be grounds for cancellation of a dealer's license.

Dealers would have to inform customers in writing of their right to complain to the commission if warranty work is not done properly.

The House failed, 42-92, to approve an amendment that would have prohibited new car dealers from requiring used car customers to waive their "implied warranty" that a car is serviceable.

Rep. Tom Uher, D-Bay City, said he offered the amendment to protect "the little guy."

Hobby Names Five Senators To Panel

AUSTIN (AP) — Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby named five senators to a conference committee Tuesday to work out differences in public school finance bills passed by the Senate and House.

The Senate bill totals $1.03 billion for 1980-81, while the House bill amounbts to $1.1 billion.

The big difference is the fact that the Senate bill includes $452 million that had been earmarked for covering school districts' revenue losses from the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

O'Neill Says, 'No Gas Ration Plan Now'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Tuesday that Congress cannot meet President Carter's challenge to write a new gasoline rationing plan at this time.

"Right now, the votes aren't there for any type of plan," the Massachusetts Democrat said in turning down an invitation to join Senate leaders in trying to devise a new standby rationing proposal.

O'Neill said no purpose would be served by such a meeting.

However, staff members from energy committees in both chambers will get together in a search for a rationing formula that might eventually win support in both chambers, he said.

"In view of the fact that we don't see any prospect for rationing at this time ... we would rather work at the staff level," the House speaker told reporters.

He said he doesn't see any way Congress can meet President Carter's challenge to come up with its own rationing plan in 90 days.

"At the present time, I see it as hopeless to bring up any kind of plan," O'Neill said.

Carter threw out the challenge last Friday after the House rejected his standby plan for gasoline rationing by a 246 to 159 margin.

O'Neill declined a request by Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd and Senate Energy Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson to meet on Tuesday to discuss the possibility of writing a new plan.

Jackson had proposed that top Democratic and Republican leaders from both chambers sit down, roll up their sleeves and try to produce a compromise rationing plan capable of passing.

Assistant Senate GOP Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska also agreed to participate in the effort to reach a compromise.

But O'Neill scotched plans for the congressional energy summit, saying a compromise was not within easy grasp.

O'Neill said he personally favors repeal of a 1975 law requiring the president to submit standby rationing plans to Congress for a 60 day review — the process that led to the killing of Carter's proposal last week.

"We ought to scrap that law and give the power to the president" to order gasoline rationing without requiring Congress to pass on the merits of the plan, O'Neill said.

But he said the two top House energy leaders — the chairman of the Commerce Committee, Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., and the chairman of the energy and power subcommittee, John Dingell, D-Mich. — told him such an approach "wouldn't sell" in either chamber.

O'Neill said that if a compromise rationing plan is to be written by Congress "concessions will have to be made. It has to be written on a bipartisan basis."

Carter Asked To Promote U.S. Coal Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert C. Byrd called on President Carter Tuesday to appoint a federal coal policy coordinator to promote increased use of the fuel. Byrd, D-W.Va., told a Senate Small Business subcommittee that coal is supposed to be the nation's energy "ace in the hole," yet federal policy is impeding its use.

"At the very time we need to be increasing our production of coal, a welter of federal regulations, agencies, and red tape is restricting our ability to increase such production," Byrd, who represents a coal-producing state, told the panel.

He criticized a proposed tightening of federal air pollution standards which would limit markets for Appalachian coal, which has a higher sulfur content than coal from western states.

When Congress passed the clean air laws, Byrd said, it "never intended to precipitate economic stagnation and massive unemployment."

Byrd said inter-agency red tape has delayed for 14 months a rail line to serve a new $100 million coal mine near Pigeon Creek in Mingo County, W.Va. An average of 100 coal cars would carry 10,000 tons of coal daily over that line, the senator said.

The administration has held up funds for a Morgantown, W.Va., project which would convert coal to fuel oil. Byrd said federal spending on this project should proceed "full speed ahead."

He also said his constituents feel the Office of Surface Mining has exceeded the authority given it by Congress in drafting strip mining regulations.

Gasoline Prices Scheduled For Another Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department announced Tuesday it is considering increasing the price "markup" that service stations can charge for gasoline, a move that probably will result in higher pump prices.

Retail gasoline dealers currently are allowed by federal price regulations to charge, on the average, no more than 10.3 cents per gallon on top of what it costs them to obtain the fuel.

That margin represents the average dealer markup of 7.3 cents per gallon which prevailed on May 15, 1973, plus a three-cent allowance for costs other than the gasoline itself.

The announcement said the department's Economic Regulatory Administration opened an inquiry into this allowed margin in response to petitions from gasoline dealer associations and in recognition of marketing cost changes in the past five years.

The agency was also considering replacing the specific limit on dealer margins with a system which would calculate permissible dealer margins on actual current costs rather than the 1973 historic basis.

The Energy Department announcement said the Economic Regulatory Administration also was considering requiring service stations to post cost and price information which could help consumers to determine whether they are being overcharged.

There was no indication by the department on how long the review might take.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Next month, I will receive a lump-sum settlement from the retirement plan where I work. My employer's contribution into that plan — approximately $25,000 — will be eligible to be "rolled over" tax-free into a special Individual Retirement Account (IRA).

I feel that the maximum rate of 5.45 percent compounded interest paid by most banks savings and loan associations and credit unions on IRA accounts is a very poor return. I would like to direct my own IRA investments — in stocks, bonds and other investments.

I have read that I can do this by setting up an account at a brokerage firm and having a bank trust company or some other "outside" organization act as trustee for my IRA investment. But I am afraid the fees of the brokerage house and the bank would "eat up" the benefits of my plan.

Can I set up an IRA by selecting a responsible individual to administer my funds, at my direction?

A. You can, if the "individual" you pick as trustee is approved by the Internal Revenue Service as trustee. Each such "individual" must receive specific IRS approval. The time and paperwork is mighty extensive and expensive.

So, if your "individual" has to set up IRA bookkeeping and get IRS approval just for your account, you can be sure that "individual" would have to charge you far higher fees than organizations already in the IRA business.

Even under such an arrangement, you would have to pay brokerage commissions when "directing" your IRA account by buying and selling securities.

It's most unlikely that your notion for saving expenses on an IRA roll over account would work. You'll have to pick an organization which already administers such plans. I suggest you look at the no-load mutual fund organizations.

Q. My husband has several thousand dollars in Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds which have matured. They are made out in his name, "P.O.D." my name. If he predeceases me, will the interest on these bonds become taxable at that time? Or can the tax be postponed until the bonds are redeemed?

A. Assuming that your husband dies before you do, there will be no federal income tax due on the interest which has built up on those E bonds at that time. (There is never any state or local income tax on accrued E bond interest.) "P.O.D." stands for "payable on death" — meaning that you would become the sole owner of those bonds, upon your husband's passing.

This does not, however, remove the value of those bonds from your husband's estate. The value of the bonds will be included in your husband's estate for federal estate tax and state inheritance tax purposes. That could result in some unanticipated "death tax" levies.

The federal income tax bite will come, when the E bonds are redeemed or reach final maturity. Because of the recent edict of the U.S. Treasury Department, older E bonds will reach final maturity after 40 years — beginning in 1981.

Q. Talk about "responsive government." I wrote to W. Michael Blumenthal, U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, regarding my displeasure about the changes in the U.S. Savings Bond program.

Enclosed is the "form letter" I received from some minor functionary in the Treasury Department. I doubt that Blumenthal knows how unhappy long-term, loyal owners of E bonds are. May I suggest you inform your readers that their comments fall on deaf ears?

A. Your message came as no surprise. One corner of this desk is piled high with copies of that, or similar, "form letters" — forwarded by irate E bond owners.

The shocker is that some members of the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives in response to constituents screaming-mad complaints, send out their own "form letters," with the Treasury Department's "form letters" attached.

Deaf Ears? Maybe, now. But let's see what happens when all members of the house and one-third of the Senate stand for re-election in 1980.

Acquitted Defendants Protest Retrial Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — Two Croatian nationalists acquitted of charges stemming from the takeover of the West German Consulate last August have appealed a scheduled retrial on similar charges.

In their appeal before the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, attorneys for Bozo Kelava, 36, and Mile Kodzoman, 32, contended that the two would be facing double jeopardy if tried on a charge of imprisoning Consul General Werner Ickstadt. After being acquitted because of a judge's error during their first trial, the Croatians were reindicted in January on four slightly different charges. A hearing on those charges, scheduled May 21, could be delayed by their appeal.

Weekend Service Station Bill Offered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department announced Tuesday it is considering increasing the price "markup" that service stations can charge for gasoline, a move that probably will result in higher pump prices.

Retail gasoline dealers currently are allowed by federal price regulations to charge, on the average, no more than 10.3 cents per gallon on top of what it costs them to obtain the fuel.

That margin represents the average dealer markup of 7.3 cents per gallon which prevailed on May 15, 1973, plus a three-cent allowance for costs other than the gasoline itself.

The announcement said the department's Economic Regulatory Administration opened an inquiry into this allowed margin in response to petitions from gasoline dealer associations and in recognition of marketing cost changes in the past five years.

The agency was also considering replacing the specific limit on dealer margins with a system which would calculate permissible dealer margins on actual current costs rather than the 1973 historic basis. Such a system would allow each dealer to charge a markup appropriate to his own costs, rather than adhering to a standardized markup that could be too high or too low for the individual dealer's circumstances.

Plastic Cards Destroyed By Boiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — The recipe is simple: put the fiche in a crock pot, cover with water and boil it from 75 to 105 minutes. When finished, discard immediately.

That's fiche, not fish, and the recipe is one the Social Security Administration has cooked up to deal with the problem of destroying its microfiche — little plastic cards that contain a wealth of information about people's Social Security benefits.

It seems the microfiche files, which are revised four times a year in all Social Security offices, were proving hard to get rid of. The plastic cards were dulling the blades in office shredders, and could only be inserted one at a time.

They could be burned, but that's smelly, a Social Security spokesman said.

Then somebody discovered that boiling them would do the trick. All the vital infrmation vanishes after the hot bath.

So on April 30 the word went out from Social Security headquarters outside Baltimore that the agency's 1,300 district offices could buy crock pots to do the job.

The funds were to come from a $100 office equipment budget recently authorized for all the branches. The spokesman said the crock pots usually sell for less than $20.

Acting associate commissioner Fred Schutzman said in his directive that the slow cookers were only an interim measure. Within two years the agency plans to give every branch "a paper shredder capable of destroying microfiche," he said.

And in a note to gourmets, Schutzman warned: "This crock pot should never be used to cook food."

The Arno river overflowed its banks in 1966, damaging large parts of the Italian art city of Florence.

... COMPLEXION PERFECTION

GENTLE VACUUMING PROCESS

If you are young enough to dream; but figure you are too old for miracles ... you may be in for a surprise!

If skin that glistens with cleanliness and presents a texture as sleek as that of the typical apple-cheeked four year old is what you want, it is available as the end product of a treatment at the DermaCulture Studio, 4902 34th Terrace Shopping Center. In fact, DermaCulture is the proven way to "complexion perfection."

The sophisticated procedure, first developed in 1938, requires months of intensive training on the part of its technicians. Because of this, only dedicated and caring technicians complete the training requirements.

The DermaCulture method was originally developed for problem skin. It has even restored severely damaged complexions and enjoys an enviable reputation for creating fragile, flawless complexions. Treatment begins when the patron reclines on a comfortably padded table with legs elevated for circulation promotion and complete relaxation. The first step of the procedure consists of a satiny facial cleansing administred by quick, cool fingers of an expert therapist. Most women go through only the motions of skin cleansing and generally speaking, only the surface soil is removed. Very few people have the correct conception of what constitutes a really clean skin.

After the cleansing, a vaporizing solution is applied to soften scaly facial cells so often found in the average complexion. The face is not subjected to the normal friction of other parts of the body that helps the skin to constantly renew itself. The solution softens pore-trapped bits of film that clog the natural cleaning and lubricating factories working below the skin.

Next comes applications of an infra-ray mask which opens pores and further softens any unwanted accumulation. Superfluous material is then gently vacuumed away by a vacuum cleaner which very much looks like a bent drinking straw. It is a very gentle process. Then a technician deftly plucks away blackheads, white heads, or as we prefer to call them, "pore-plugs".

The final step is a pleasant firming technique using highly perfected patented equipment. The customer's reward is a superbly smooth skin.

Every skin can look better in only one treatment, some skin problems require a series before real correction is effected. DermaCulture, effective in the removal of acne, pimples, skin blemishes of every type, scars and other severe skin problems, is used by several airline schools including American, Delta and Texas International, who regularly send the stewardesses and trainees for treatments when skin problems ar discovered. In the Dallas studio, as many as thirty will come at one time.

SCRUB WITH HONEY AND ALMOND GRAIN

A number of TV and screen personalities in California, where the first DermaCulture Studio was established, have discovered the great benefits derived from DermaCulture, as might be expected, since the repeated application of stage make-up can cause problems.

The procedure was developed by a German specialist who came to this country and found no therapy treatment available. Since then it has been improved with newly invented aids.

After the initial treatment, the supercleanliness can be renewed in the home, with products such as a cleanser made with barley, honey and almonds — a cleanser which again, gives the skin a neweness and silkiness possible only with the removal of excess lubrication. One soap, made especially for excessively oily skin, has kelp as its main ingredient. Another new product in the line is a soap for normal skin. The astringent, the mildest and most gentle ever developed, is a boon for the woman who must be careful with a fragile complexion. This green, herb-based liquid has a natural fragrance coming only from the herbs necessary to make it.

DermaCulture has a complete line of cosmetics that are excellent for all types of skin. In fact, all of our cosmetics are free of any perfume and the ones used on the face are totally free of oil as well. These cosmetics can be purchased without taking the treatments, although we prefer to give at least one is order to thoroughly cleanse the skin and demonstrate the proper use of the cosmetics.

It has been proven in other cities in Texas that DermaCulture treatments and the use of our skin care items are most effective in the protection of the skin of the most avid tennis players and all other outdoorsy people. The skin retains a softness that belies the many hours spend in the sun. All sun-loving people should be patrons of DermaCulture for the sake of their skin.

The skin is the largest organ of the body, and one of the most important. Not only is a lovely skin important to you personally, but your complexion is the first thing other people notice. You can paint it-you can powder it-you can tan it-but unless your skin is so clean and healthy that it needs no improvement, DermaCulture treatments may be the only way to your natural skin beauty.

'People's Park' Finally A Peaceful Place

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Ten ars ago several hundred young people rted turning a three-acre vacant lot o a landscaped kiddie playground and e campground they called the "Peo-'s Park."

The result was rioting, injury and ath.

Tuesday was the 10th anniversary of Bloody Thursday," the day the park came a battlefield. A rally and a arch to the park was scheduled at the niversity of California to mark the oc-sion.

Today it is still People's Park, a een oasis of grass and flowers and ees three blocks from the main cam-s of the university, which owns it.

When People's Park was created thout permission a decade ago, the niversity administration was aghast. It as viewed as an attempt to rob the hool of property intended to be used the future for student housing.

Some nearby residents also com-ained about loud noises at night, publ-ic nudity and sexual activity in the park.

Then, at 3 a.m. on May 14, 1969, university workmen installed 51 "no trespassing" signs. The signs had all been ripped down by 9 a.m.

The following morning at 4:30 about 250 California Highway Patrol officers arrived to aid police and Alameda County deputy sheriffs officers in a sweep through the park, rousting and evicting the sleeping inhabitants. With the dawn came a bulldozer to clear away the young people's handiwork, and a chain link fence to keep them out.

It was a time of strong anti-establishment feeling, especially in Berkeley, where the anti-Vietnam War movement was nurtured with frequent demonstrations and violence.

On what came to be known as "Bloody Thursday," about 5,000 turned out at a noon rally at Sproul Plaza, traditional birthplace of numerous protests, to hear student body president-elect Dan Siegel urge them to "take the park."

The crowd moved off toward the park, only to be met by a solid line of law enforcement officers dressed in riot gear. Tear gas was fired, and thrown back among the officers. Insults and rocks were hurled.

Before the violence subsided about 6 p.m., more than 130 persons including 19 police officers, had been treated for wounds.

James Rector, who was watching the rioting from a rooftop, was hit by a shotgun blast fired by a deputy sheriff and died. Another observer on an adjacent roof, an artist-carpenter named Alan Blanchard, was blinded by a shotgun blast.

Then-Gov. Ronald Reagan called out 2,000 National Guardsmen to help quell the daily turmoil that lasted three weeks, finally ending with a massive peaceful march where young women kissed the soldiers and stuck flowers in the barrels of their rifles.

The chain-link fence remained for exactly three years. It was ripped down by rioters protesting the American bombing of Haiphong harbor.

The university turned the land into two parking lots, two tennis courts and two basketball courts, rarely used because of a boycott by almost everyone in the neighborhood. The asphalt too was ripped up by protesters.

Five years ago a new People's Park development began, first without university cooperation.

But last Jan. 5 the university administration signed a "letter of understanding" with a non-profit student organization called People's Park Project-Native Plant Forum.

The letter gives legal standing to a garden area where a wide variety of native plants, vegetables and flowers now grow.

"I think the university recognizes this has to be a park," said David "Salty" Axelrod, one of the leaders of the gardening group. "It can't be anything else except with bloodshed."

PEACEFUL, NOW — Ten years ago this area in Berkeley, Calif., known as the "People's Park," was the focal point of a confrontation between street people and authorities. Now it's a peaceful spot where mother like to take their children to walk. (AP Laserphoto)

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR MAY 16, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 12, 23, 35, 46, 58, 69 ..... Don't exert yourself
Highs: 13-22, 36-45, 59-68 ..... Plunge into it, tiger
Lows: 1-11, 24-34, 47-57, 70-75 ..... Nice and easy is the rule

Lows: 1-12, 30-45, 63-78 ..... Limit brain work

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

Nitze Proposes Changes In SALT Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the foremost critics of SALT II suggested four amendments Tuesday to the proposed treaty and said outright rejection of the pact "would not be the end of the world."

Paul Nitze, a former deputy secretary of defense, said he thought the Soviets might accept at least some of the changes.

But an administration spokesman, Hodding Carter, said no changes were necessary, and reiterated Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's statements that substantive amendments risked killing the treaty.

Senate votes on amendments to the proposed treaty are likely to be the key battles in the ratification struggle. Nitze was one of the first major critics to propose a specific list of changes. He spoke at a breakfast meeting with reporters.

Nitze's proposals were:

—A stipulation of the right to adopt the "shell game" basing system. Under a shell game, the United States would dig thousands of dummy holes and move its missiles secretly from one hole to another. The idea would be to protect them from increasingly accurate, multiple-warhead Soviet missiles by giving the Soviets too many targets to cover.

The administration claims the treaty as written would allow a shell game deployment, which it now has under consideration. It says the treaty would only require it to devise a way for the Soviets to spot check some holes and satisfy themselves that the United States was not actually deploying more missiles than the treaty allows.

Nitze maintains, however, that the treaty as written is at best ambiguous about whether the shell game would be allowed. He says the rules prohibiting concealment of launchers would give the Soviets a strong case to argue against the shell game.

—An amendment to equalize and reduce the number of heavy missiles allowed to each side. As the treaty stands, the Soviets would be allowed to keep their 308 "heavy missile launchers" which contain mammoth SS-9 and SR,18 rockets.

New missiles for either side would be limited to a size about half that of the SS-18. Since the United States has no heavy missiles, this would effectively preclude it from developing any.

Administration spokesmen justify this by noting that the United States has never wanted huge missiles, because it has always been able to build smaller, more accurate ones.

—A verification amendment, to make certain that the Soviets are not able to encode vital data from their missile tests.

The administration says it is satisfied that the treaty will prevent the Soviets from encoding data needed for verification and that the United States would be able to detect cheating.

—An amendment to include the Soviet Backfire bomber on the list of strategic weapons. Each side is permitted only 2,250 such weapons.

Carter Puts SALT Ahead Of Re-Election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter considers Senate ratification of SALT II "more important" than his own re-election, White House press secretary Jody Powell said Tuesday.

When asked about news reports, Powell commented that Carter will delay formal announcement of his 1980 candidacy until after the Senate SALT debate is concluded, so as to keep presidential politics out of the issue.

Powell did not directly confirm those reports but he seemed to imply they are correct, saying, "Ratification of SALT II is to him more important than a second term."

He said the president had expressed that sentiment to him "on a couple of occasions."

Carter complained in a recent interview that the press and the public attribute political motivations to everything he does. He said he now believes presidents should be limited to one six-year term, eliminating even theappearance of self-serving politics from the policy-making process.

While a delay in formally announcing his 1980 candidacy would be consistent with that view, it could create problems for his campaign managers because the final SALT ratification vote might come very late in the year.

That would leave little time to stump for February's prestigious New Hampshire primary, where supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., are expected to mount a write-in campaign and where defeat could be disastrous for Carter.

The administration announced last week that Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev will sign the second-stage strategic arms limitation treaty, limiting each side to fixed nuclear arsenals, at a June 15-18 summit in Vienna.

Airline Ruling Stance Revised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former astronaut Frank Borman ate crow Tuesday, saying he was "totally wrong" two years ago when he did everything he could to block deregulation of the airline industry.

Borman, president, chairman and chief executive officer of Eastern Airlines, told of his change of heart in a speech before the National Aviation Club — the same forum where he had predicted dire consequences if airlines were free to decide which routes to serve and which to avoid with only a minimum of government oversight.

That is what is happening under a three-year phase-in of an airline deregulation bill initially proposed by former President Gerald Ford and later championed by President Carter and Alfred Kahn, then chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Carter signed the bill Oct. 24. The airline industry was split over the measure, but Eastern Airlines, under Borman, was among the most outspoken opponents.

"We were the voice of reason, of candor and of enthusiasm in telling you all how absolutely futile it would be to deregulate the airline industry," Borman said. "We fought it, we did everything possible to convince the Congress the airline industry should remain a quasi-public utility.

"As I have reason to acknowledge, I now believe I was totally wrong," he said.

He said he had become a convert to the philosophical proposition that the marketplace is the best place for economic decisions to be made.

Borman said he tried without success to sell his new views of the benefits of deregulation to "my friends in the trucking industry."

Marines Vary In Opinions Of Garwood

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — Fellow Marines had differing opinions about Pfc. Robert Garwood as the accused collaborator ambled through a day of processing Tuesday at this home of 38,000 servicemen.

It was the first day of military duty for the 33-year-old Marine since he left Vietnam and learned he had been accused of desertion and collaboration with the enemy during his 14 years in Southeast Asia. His 30-day convalescent leave ended Monday.

"I think a lot of people would like to hang him. There's a lot of hardfeelings from what people say," said Lance Cpl. Patrick Behrndt, 20, a resident of the motel-like barracks where Garwood has been assigned a room with two other Marines.

"I'd be worried about myself if I was him," Behrndt said.

But some Marines took a calmer view of Garwood's situation.

"I think it's hard for any human to decide what to do with him. In war, seeing your friends killed, how can anybody say they would react in that?" said Pfc. Nicholas Serrano, 19, also a resident of the barracks.

"He fought for his survival," Serrano added. "What else is there to life than survival?"

Garwood has not been formally charged and must remain in te Marine Corps at least until the allegations against him are resolved.

The allegations include desertion, disloyalty and collaborating with the enemy in allegedly helping Vietnamese guards supervise American prisoners. He has denied the allegations.

Camp Lejeune's commander, Brig. Gen. David B. Barker, will decide after an investigation whether Garwood will be prosecuted. Military authorities said that it could be weeks or months before the case is resolved.

RYAN FAMILY HEARS JONESTOWN REPORT — Three family members of slain Rep. U.S. Strike Force Consideration Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph R. Biden raised the question Tuesday of whether the Carter administration is considering a 100,000-member mobile military force to "defend American interests overseas," particularly in the oil-rich Persian Gulf.

Biden, D-Del., asked a State Department official for confirmation at a meeting of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He did not get it.

Later, Biden said his question was based on "unofficial" reports reaching his staff. The reports indicated the possible creation of such a force is "under discussion" in Washington, he said.

Biden said he had no direct information of his own.

Considering Possibility

He raised the question with Walter L. Cutler, newly appointed as U.S. ambassador to Iran. Cutler repeated previous statements from top defense and diplomatic officials who have said the United States is considering the possibility of some type of flexible military reaction to any outside threat to the nation's Middle East oil supply line.

"There is a place in miltary diplomacy for a military presence," said Cutler, who presently is U.S. ambassador to Zaire.

Biden said he sees nothing wrong "with the idea of having a special force capable of responding to a national emergency." He said he doubted, however, whether such a force might be stationed in a threatened area itself.

Question Of Provocation

And the senator said the question remains of whether creating such a force would in itself be provocative.

Cutler said a military presence "can sometimes be quite reassuring for countries that feel threatened." He said it also could help create regional stability.

"A decision to move in that direction has to be very carefully considered," he told the committee.

Cutler's comments came just before the panel voted 9-0 to recommend Senate confirmation of his nomination and of Alfred L. Atherton's nomination as the new ambassador to Egypt.

In hearings in April, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown told the committee that no decision had been made on "a U.S. military presence" in the Persian Gulf, including the possibility of stationing warships there.

No Policy Decision

"We have not made a policy decision to increase our permament presence in the region," Brown said at the time. "We have not adopted the policy that we are not going to have a military presence."

But he added that "if Saudi Arabia were threatened in a major war from outside the region, U.S. security interests would be involved and we would be prepared to offset the threat."

On another subject, members of the committee expressed outrage at the execution in Iran of a Jewish community leader with ties to Israel and said they were concerned that his death might be the first signal of wider killings of Iranian Jews.

"Speak For Us"

"I hope you will speak for us and not pussyfoot around and walk on tiptoes in the face of outrageous violations of human decency, not to mention human rights," Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y. told Cutler.

"This is getting out of hand," Javits said of the executions in Iran. "This is getting to be more than a post-revolutionary phase."

Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., said many in Congress "would not sit by and passively accept a spreading of an attempt at genocide or for anything of any dimension at all along those lines."

Cutler replied that whil the situation is not clear, "there are grounds for concern that this might not be just an individual case — that it might extend to others.

He said the United States is making its views on the matter clear to Iranian government officials and to religious associates of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Cutler, currently the U.S. ambassador to Zaire, noted that Khomeini has recently said that future executions will be restricted to cases of persons responsible for killing Iranian citizens in the old regime of the Shah of Iran.

The committee also recommended Senate approval of the nominations of Lawrence A. Pezzullo, presently the U.S. ambassador to Uraguay, to be ambassador to Nicaragua; and of Sally Shelton, currently special adviser to the U.S. mission to the United Nations, to be ambassador to Barbados, Grenada and the Commonwealth of Dominica and to serve as minister to St Lucia.

Carter Says Energy Task 'Heartbreaking'

mum of six years in prison and a $1 million fine. The bill's sponsor, Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, said he hoped to push it through the Legislature and have it on the governor's desk by Friday.

In other developments in the gasoline crunch Tuesday:

—California Gov. Brown signed an order requiring some stations in that state to stay open on weekends regardless of the gasoline shortage.

—House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said Congress could no meet President Carter's challenge to come up with a new gasoline rationing plan.

—The nation's large car-rental agencies say their business has not suffered because of the gasoline situation, but many smaller companies, lacking national reservations networks and not doing a lot of airport business, say times are hard.

The proposed "gasless weekend" was designed to protest limits on the mark-up service stations can charge on gasoline.

But Fred Bowman, director of the Evergreen Service Station Association, a Washington state group, described the plan as "untimely, unwarranted, unwise and illegal."

"Would Hurt Consumer"

"This would not hurt the Department of Energy or the oil companies and it would hurt the consumer and in turn would hurt the service stations," said Maurice Langelier, executive director of Massachusetts' Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association.

The concept for the "gasless weekend" originated in California last month. Regulations say a dealer's mark-up — which covers rent, salaries and other expenses, and provides the station's profit — can be no more than what it was in May, 1973, plus 3 cents. Dealers say that fails to take inflation into account. They want to be able to mark up a gallon of gas 25 percent above the wholesale price. That would raise the cost to the motorist about 3 cents.

Many state groups which had said they would back the shutdown have reversed their positions. "While most service station dealers in Idaho agree government regulations must be changed, they have mixed feelings on how best to achieve this," said Clyde Linzy, executive director of the Idaho Service Station Association. Idaho dealers were among the earliest boosters of the plan.

Affect Only Customers

"If we shut down, we would not have an effect on anyone but our customers," said Irving Turetsky, chairman of the Florida Service Station Operators.

But the dealers may also have been deterred by rumblings from the Justice Department. A spokesman for the department said the closings could violate the Sherman Antitrust Act's regulations against conspiracy and restraint of trade and warned that dealers involved in an organized shutdown could face legal action.

The proposal also lost some steam from reports from Washington that the Energy Department was considering changing price regulations, either going to a percentage mark-up system or adding a few more pennies to the existing mark-up.

In Washington, House Speaker O'Neill said he thought the chances of Congress would come up with a standby gasoline plan in 90 days, as asked by President Carter, were "hopeless."

"Votes Aren't There"

And in some cases, customers were renting cars just to get the gas.

"We have found that people are renting cars in California just to avoid the odd-even rationing. There are others who rent a car with a full tank of gas, drive it until it runs low, then turn in the car for another with a full tank of gas," said Andrea Benjamin, spokeswoman for Budget Rent-A-Car Inc. in Chicago. Cars rented for less than 30 days are not covered by the California odd-even rules.

Jobs Plan Affiliate Raps SPAG

which program. No program gets preference, she said.

And, she said, SPAG took over the intake function because when it was conducted by subcontractors, other programs complained of partiality in referrals.

Mrs. Forbes acknowledged, though, that CETA has intake problems.

"We are having a problem at intake. Period." She explained that few clients are seeking CETA's services at the intake center and that SPAG is falling short of its intake goal.

Flanked by Flores and another SER staffer and facing Mrs. Forbes across the table, Mrs. Franklin detailed another problem:

Dropout Rate Increasing

"I can go back to the last two years and this year and in evaluating the program, it's very evident as fast as we're placing people, we're losing them. They're not staying. Our dropout rate is tremendous."

She and Flores indicated part of the problem stems from the referral problem. Because of the feast-or-famine situation, they indicated, there is little time to ensure a client is suited for a job. And, because of the dropout rate, some potential employers are becoming disillusioned with the program, they indicated.

"The only way we can function is if we get a steady flow, some type of order" from intake so the SER counselor can work with and place "people in the right job," Flores said.

Mrs. Franklin aired several more grievances before the planning council, including that SER needs a secretary. It has none in the three-staff office.

Additional funds for CETA programs were available last month, she said, but she "didn't know" about it until the SPAG board meeting. SER received none of the money.

She complained she never is informed of planning council meetings. The one she attended last year left her feeling she was "not wanted," she said.

Mrs. Franklin also pointedly noted for the record she wishes CETA administrators would bring their directives to her instead of speaking through her staff.

A SER counselor, at Mrs. Franklin's request, related to the council that Homero Rodriguez, a CETA staffer, warned him not to not to develop Johnson Manufacturing Company as a client placement station because the main CETA office had plans for it.

That, Mrs. Franklin indicated, should have been told to her rather than to one of her employees.

Flores summed up SER's position by saying, "The problem is there is a lack of coordination all around."

'Death Squad' Hinted In Jones Report

State Department findings that the department had failed to pursue earlier warnings of possible mass suicide at the cult.

As a result, the House report said, the State Department had four reports of potential violence scattered in files but told Ryan that danger was "unlikely."

Ryan was advised more than once by his own staff of "gut feelings" that there might be violence, the report said. But the congressman discounted them, believing his position and the presence of reporters would protect him.

"Moreover," the report said, "he apparently was willing to face whatever danger might be present."

The House report also concurred with State Department findings that one of the department's worst errors was to take no action on the written warning of cult defector Deborah Layton Blakey in May, 1978 that mass suicides were being rehearsed.

Miss Blakey's warning was one reason U.S. Ambassador John Burke cabled the State Department for authority to ask Guyana to watch the cult more closely.

But Burke's request was so cautiously worded — apparently out of fear it would fall into the cultists' hands — that the department tersely rejected it, saying the overture "could be construed by some as U.S. government interference."

In his testimony, Berdes called the murders "a horribly tragic lesson" for the State Department. "The smoke was overwhelming; the fire was there," he said. "But they constantly turned away from it and hoped it would go away. But it didn't."

Howeve, investigators praised the "crisis management" of State Department officials after the murders in taking charge of survivors and getting them out the next day.

The House investigators also discounted allegations that former U.S. Consul Richard McCoy had a sexual liaison with a woman cult member and was therefore compromised. But the investigators said "there are repeated charges of a sexual liaison between Peoples Temple member Paula Adams and Laurence Mann, Guyana's ambassador to the United States."

The report said the cult could not have operated without some cooperation from Guyanese officials.

Sources in Damascus said both the Lebanese and Syrian leaders tried to persuade Hoss, a 50-year-old banker, to remain as premier. The outcome of those efforts was not known.

Sarkis is a Christian and Hoss a Moslem, following the Lebanese tradition of balancing the two offices between the country's two major religious groups.

Officials in Beirut, who asked to remain anonymous, said Sarkis and Assad had reached agreement on a broad plan for national reconciliation between the Christians and Moslems. They gave no details, but said "tangible results will begin appearing" at a Cabinet meeting today.

The latest Christian feuding adds yet another element of violence and frustration for Sarkis' government.

Clashes Spread

It began Saturday when Phalangists and Tiger militiamen, both trying to exert control over the Christian residential area of Furnel Shubbak, began shooting. Clashes quickly spread to two other Christian districts.

If the casualties reports are correct, the inter-Christian fighting would be the deadliest since Phalangists attacked ex-President Suleiman Franjieh's stronghold town of Ehden last June, killing one of Franjieh's sons and about three dozen other persons.

In other Mideast developments:

—Egyptian President Anwar Sadat accused the Soviet Union of instigating hardline Arab countries to break relations with Egypt and impose economic sanctions against it.

General Strike Set

—West Bank Palestinians called a general strike Tuesday to protest the continued building of Jewish settlements in the area and to demonstrate opposition to provisions of the Israel-Egypt peace treaty.

—Jewish settlers and Arab youths clashed briefly in the West Bank town of Bir Zeit when armed settlers forced some Arabs to remove a stone barricade on the road to Jerusalem, an Israeli military government spokesman said. There were no injuries.

—An Israeli taxi driver and his passenger were being held by Jordanian authorities after they "accidentally" drove across the Allenby Bridge into Jordan, an army spokesman said. The Allenby Bridge connects Jordan and the Israeli-occupied West Bank.

Living Cost Jumps

—The Israeli government anounced the cost of living jumped 8.7 percent in April, bringing inflation for the first four months of the year to 23.4 percent. That is nearly half of the 48.1 percent total for all of last year. Opposition Labor Party leaders called for an urgent debate in Parliament and said Prime Minister Menachem Begin's conservative government has lost control of the economy. There were calls for Finance Minister Simgha Ehrlich to resign.

—In Iran, the head of Tehran's revolutionary court said revolutionary guardsmen will fight alongside Palestinians to drive Israeli leaders "and their gangs from the Palestinian homeland." The leader, Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, spoke at a rally organized by the Tehran office of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

—An Israeli government minister vowed revenge for two teen-age victims of a terrorist attack Monday in Tiberias. "We promise before your open grave that the hand that committed this horrible murder will be cut off," Housing Minister David Levy said at the funeral for one of those killed.

Authorities said nine persons remained in serious condition from the blast, which occurred Monday afternoon on a crowded downtown street. Thirty-two Israelis were wounded, including several Arab residents of Tiberias.

The PLO claimed responsibility for the bombing and on Tuesday placed its guerrillas in Lebanon on maximum alert, anticiating Israeli reprisals.

Seek To Ease Friction

The Damascus talks between Sarkis and Assad were aimed at easing Syrian-Christian friction and working out new regulations for Palestinian guerrilla activity against Israel from Lebanon.

Syria has 22,000 troops policing the civil war armistice, and they overwhelmed the guerrilla-leftist alliance to rescue Christians from a crushing defeat during the last months of the war that took more than 37,000 lives.

Senators Ask Lift Of Ban On Rhodesia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 75 to 19 Tuesday to urge President Carter to lift trade sanctions against Rhodesia no later than 10 days after the installation of a black majority government in Rhodesia.

While the action is not binding on Carter it increases the political pressure on the president to lift the sanctions.

The president already has pledged to decide next month whether conditions set in existing law for the lifting of the sanctions have been met.

The Senate also approved, 83-11, an amendment that would require Carter to make a final decision on the sanctions — one way or another — within 30 days after the new government in Rhodesia is installed.

The first resolution, sponsored by Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., declares the "sense-of the-Senate" that the Rhodesian government has has taken two key steps to removing the roadblocks that have kept the sanctions in place.

One is the declaration that Rhodesia "has demonstrated its willingness to negotiate in good faith at an all-parties conference, held under international auspices, on all relevant issues.

The other is that Rhodesians "have approved through free elections the transfer of power to a black majority government."

The action sidestepped a campaign for the immediate lifting of sanctions against Rhodesia led by Sen. Jesse Helms, D-S.C.

Instead it adopted legislation requiring President Carter to decide by June 30 at the latest whether Rhodesia has met requirements for dropping the sanctions set by a law passed last year.

The government headed by Prime Minister designate Abel Muzorewa, a bishop of the United Methodist church, now is scheduled to be installed June 1.

"The administration has been deliberately dragging its feet, pretending to accumulate information on which to base its decision," Helms complained in debate.

Failure to lift sanctions immediately will represent "a breach of good faith by the Congress," Helms said.

Marston Wins In Philadelphia

By The Associated Press

Former federal prosecutor David Marston, who became famous in a fight with the Carter administration, won the Republican mayoral primary Tuesday and will try to become Philadelphia's first GOP mayor in nearly three decades.

Voters in Denver also cast ballots in a primary election Tuesday.

With 23 percent of the Philadelphia vote in, Marston led management consultant Larry Greene by a 14,945-to-2,083 vote margin.

In the Democratic mayoral race, former congressman Bill Green, who served in Congress 12½ years, led Charles Bowser, a Philadelphia lawyer trying for the second time to become the city's first black mayor. Green had 55,502 votes; Bowser had 24,624.

The winner in November will succeed Democratic Mayor Frank Rizzo.

Marston hopes to become Philadelphia's first Republican mayor since Bernard Samuel won in 1947. But it will be tough going in the fall, when he'll have to overcome a huge Democratic voter registration edge — currently better than 7-2.

Marston, 36, was ousted as U.S. attorney here in January, 1978, a move which cast President Carter in a dim light over political patronage.

Pressure Viewed Rising For OPEC Price Hike

NEW YORK (AP) — Pressure mounted on the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Tuesday for an increase in the price of crude oil at the cartel's meeting in Geneva in June.

The pressure came from two of OPEC's most radical members, Kuwait and Algeria. And Saudi Arabia, the 13-nation cartel's biggest member and the one considered most friendly to the United States, said it might not be able to resist a price hike in Geneva if the other members desire it.

But a published report said one OPEC nation that had been considering raising the price of its oil had decided to hold off.

A Caracas English-language newspaper, the Daily Journal, said Venezuela does not now plan to impose a 60-cent increase in the price of its oil, to $16.35 a barrel. Government and industry sources had said such a move was imminent.

"Venezuela is considering what it should do in face of the fact that other OPEC nations are adding price surcharges," Deputy Energy Minister Jose Ignacio Moreno said. "No decision has been made."

Iran boosted its oil price 60 cents last week.

The OPEC base oil price is currently $14.55 a barrel, plus any surcharges individual members believe the market will bear. Saudi Arabia is the only OPEC nation not to institute a surcharge; the other nations have added from 60 cents to $2.40 per barrel to their prices.

There have been rumors in the oil industry that Kuwait will be the next country to increase its surcharge, now set at $1.80 a barrel. While Kuwaiti oil minister Sheik Ali Khalifa refused to comment on the reports, oil ministry sources in Kuwait said, "the surcharge is under constant revision and could be raised at any time."

He noted that the current tight supply of crude oil on world markets — the result of the cutback in Iranian production from pre-revolutionary levels — is pushing up prices on the spot market, where oil not covered by long-term contracts is traded. For that reason, he said, "It will become unavoidable for OPEC to raise oil prices substantially, whether it likes it or not."

Billy Carter Denies Funds Shift Charge

ATLANTA (AP) — Billy Carter has denied a published accusation that he diverted $500,000 in loans to his family's peanut warehouse to his brother's 1976 presidential campaign, The Atlanta Journal reported Tuesday.

The accusation was contained in a copyright article written for The Nation magazine by free-lance journalist Peter Peckarsky of Washington, D.C. The article is to appear in the May 19 issue of the magazine, a spokesman for The Nation said.

The Journal said the Peckarsky article alleges that Billy Carter took $500,000 from the peanut warehouse account at the Atlanta-based National Bank of Georgia and deposited it in his personal NBG account "in the month before the decisive April 27, 1976, Pennsylvania Democratic primary."

The Journal said the Peckarsky article quotes an anonymous source "close to the Justice Department investigation now in progress" as saying the money left Billy Carter's personal account before the primary, reappeared in the account in May and June 1976 and then was transferred back to the warehouse account.

A federal grand jury in Atlanta is looking into allegations that money loaned to the Carter warehouse in Plains, Ga., by the National Bank of Georgia when the bank was headed by Bert Lance was diverted to Carter's 1976 presidential campaign. Lance served as federal budget director under Carter but has since resigned.

A special counsel, Paul Curran, was appointed earlier this year by U.S. Attorney General Griffin Bell to head the inquiry.

The president has denied the allegations.

The Journal said Peckarsky's article said money from the NBG loans to the warehouse was passed by Billy Carter to his brother's campaign organization. The article reportedly says the organization used the money to buy media time.

During that time, federal subsidies to presidential candidates had been halted temporarily by the Supreme Court, the newspaper said.

EMS Plagued By Phoney Calls For Assistance

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Emergency Medical Services has been plagued by crank phone calls in the last two weeks and the phone company has begun tracing the calls, the acting head of EMS told a county hospital district committee Tuesday.

Doak Enabnit told the Lubbock County Hospital District administrative committee that in the last two weeks EMS has received 11 crank calls, as compared to four or five it generally receives in a month.

He noted the potential danger of such pranks, saying that the ambulance service was out on one such call last week when a shooting occurred that resulted in a man's death.

He added that he didn't think the delay by EMS in answering the call had caused the victim's death, but said he wanted to make the public aware that the risk of such an occurrence is real.

The ambulance service has had a special "line lock" device installed on its phones so that all calls to EMS can be traced by the phone company, Enabnit said.

He said EMS has the names and addresses of 11 crank callers and the problem has been brought to the attention of the criminal district attorney who will file charges "if needed."

Placing such a crank call would be classified as a Class A misdemeanor, said Enabnit, and could bring a $2,000 fine and one year in jail.

Two proposals for alternative funding of the emergency ambulance service were outlined for the committee by LCHD Executive Director Gerald Bosworth.

He said that one proposal would involve turning over the operation of EMS to a private company. Bosworth said he has been in contact with Medical Services Inc., of Eugene, Ore. about assuming the responsibility.

The company currently is negotiating for a similar ambulance service contract in Amarillo, however, and the availability of its services to Lubbock is not yet known. Bosworth said he hopes to meet with firm representatives sometime in the next week "to explore what they have to offer and acquaint them with what's here."

He also said that such a private service would have to be able to handle transfering patients as well as emergency system work. Two other local services currently provide transfer service between hospitals and between other health care institutions and hospitals.

Bosworth said he also was considering a proposal to add a $1 surcharge to city water bills every month to subsidize EMS.

"You would pay $12 a month for your family to be covered by emergency services," Bosworth said.

He noted, however, that he did not yet know the legalities of such an action, and committee head Jack Flygare agreed that legal advice on the proposal would be necessary.

"It sounds great, but there's so many legal ramifications, there's no point in guessing about it," Flygare said. "In the meantime, why don't you pursue the private enterprise proposal. It seems like it would be our answer," he told Bosworth.

In other EMS business, Enabnit reported that a request by that service to locate a station at 5012 50th St., is now before the Zoning Board of Adjustment and has been tabled until the board's June meeting.

A mobile home would be needed at the site to house EMS employees, but Enabnit said the area is not zoned for location of a mobile home. Thus the board of adjustment will have to approve an exception for the ambulance service.

The committee also tabled a request by Bosworth to recommend to the hospital board that a higher salary be offered a candidate for EMS coordinator. Members of the committee agreed that the hiring of a coordinator should be put off until the funding for EMS is known.

Bosworth needs the authority of the board to offer a salary to a potential employee in the "C" category, which he said includes wages of about $24-27,000 a year.

He said he could not hire a coordinator for any less than the minimum in that range, and noted the need for someone to oversee the administrative as well as operations areas of EMS.

Flygare, however, said, "we don't want to put the cart before the horse" and added that "we want to evaluate" the funding proposals first.

In other business, Bosworth notified the committee that the district will take bids for the purchase of two new EMS vehicle chassis.

Flygare said that spending the money on new equipment would be contingent on the funding process for EMS, but agreed to initiate bidding. Bosworth suggested that no bids have to be accepted should a private company take over the service.

The committee adopted a resolution that employees who are discharged or who resign without notice should receive no paid leave, as is currently the practice, in order to contain costs for the hospital.

The committee also heard a proposal by Bosworth to stop the hospital-on-rotation system as practiced by EMS.

He explained that patients who do not request a specific hospital when being transported by EMS are brought to St. Mary's, Methodist or Health Sciences Center on a rotation basis.

He suggested that suspension of the practice would "increase the utility of the hospital", because such patients would automatically be taken to Health Sciences. "We need to add more patients," he said.

Board members questioned whether the hospital would pick up more "bad debts" through suspension of the practice, however.

Bosworth said he would gather more statistics on the impact on the hospital of dropping the rotation system.

He also announced the resignation of Bill Stinnett, the assistant director for fiscal and administrative services for the hospital district.

Jurors To Get Look At Horse

CHICAGO (AP) — A judge has summoned a horse to Circuit Court today so jurors can see what one looks like.

The trial concerns Vladas Valinevicius, a 79-year-old retired maintenance man, who claims he was knocked down by a police horse during a demonstration in a park in 1977. Valinevicius says he broke his hip and is suing the city for $200,000.

His attorney suggested that the jurors ought to see just how big a horse is, city dwellers not being all that familiar with the subject.

On Monday, Judge Edwin Berman agreed and ordered that a policeman bring a stallion to the Civic Center Plaza complex. He said it would not be necessary to subpoena the actual beast in question.

Hughes AirWest Says Attendant Rehired

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Acknowleding it had received a rash of critical telephone calls and letters, Hughes AirWest has rehired a flight attendant fired for taking two magazines off a jet.

An airline spokesman said Patricia Eala, 32, had been reinstated effective two weeks ago and would receive retroactive pay, minus a five-day suspension which it agreed she has already served. Fellow flight attendants massed outside the airline's headquarters here a week ago and dumped a batch of bundled magazines in the lobby to protest Ms. Eala's firing. She said she removed the magazines to have something to read duing a layover in Las Vegas.

Reese Flier Recalls Southeast Asia War

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

His wartime assignment was airlifting weapons and supplies wherever needed in southeast Asia — to a jungle or a beleaguered embassy. Airlifting evacuees came later.

Now and then, Capt. Art Nickell put the tail number on his C130 Hercules so it could be recognized easily and took off on a unique duty — ferrying North Vietnamese peace negotiators between Saigon and Hanoi.

Today he is an instructor pilot at Reese Air Force Base and project officer for Armed Forces Week, coordinating activities like the all-service exhibits at South Plains Mall.

For the flights carrying members of the Four Power Team, he had clearance from Hanoi, but still he was an American warplane in enemy territory. So, he took precautions.

A big worry on the Hanoi approach was hand held and fired heat-seeking missiles. Two watchdogs — men armed with guns loaded with white phosphorus shells, carrying radios and wearing oxygen masks — leaned from the two parachute doors as the Hercules spiraled down to Hanoi.

The lookouts could give directions if a missile were sighted heading up to follow the hot exhaust trail to the C130. The plane would break toward the missile which would take off after the phosphorus heat trail instead.

On the ground, the crew changed to civilian clothes for a few hours in Hanoi with escorts who "seemed to go out of their way to go by the bombed out areas."

Hanoi was "a very drab scene" except for some bright red banners waving above the streets. Nickell felt they told how the war was going.

Vietnamese on the streets were not hostile, some even smiled at the obviously American crewmen.

"You could tell they were winning the war."

The situation was set up, Nickell explained, during peace talks whereby "the allies" would furnish a plane for transporting members of the team to and from Hanoi.

Nickell would fly in with supplies for Saigon, pick up the team and anything they wanted to take to Hanoi — the crew was not allowed to see what was put aboard — then fly to Hanoi, spend a few hours and fly back.

They were not allowed to take pictures on the ground, but the cockpit was noisy with clicking shutters as the C130 neared and landed at Hanoi.

The last trip, just before Saigon fell, was made without clearance from Saigon. Nickell took off with only the hope that word would reach Hanoi that the plane was coming as usual. He expected attack on the flight.

"The Viet Cong got the word through that it was coming."

By then, Nickell noted, it was much safer to go to Hanoi than stay in Saigon which "was full of hysteria and people were beating down the gates."

The C130 turned transport during the Saigon evacuation when "they could have shot us down hauling out refugees, but we were doing them a favor getting undesirables out of the country."

Earlier, evacuation of an attache had taken six hours to load and get clearance.

"Evacuating refugees, we hit the ground, spun around, opened the back, they ran on like cattle and we shut the door. We were on the ground less than five minutes."

There was a gunman on the flight deck with orders to shoot anyone who set foot on it.

"We didn't know who we were picking up and were taking no chances."

Earlier, the C130 had been used to "fly 10 lines a day" into Cambodia dropping supplies to friendlies on the ground as per instructions of unidentified Americans in the jungle below. Nickell thought they were CIA agents.

He was on alert for the Phnom Penh evacuation and supported the embassy in Laos by airdrops when it was "under house arrest" and the river approaches were heavily mined.

During the Mayaguez incident, Nickell was "standing by to drop the Blue 82 bomb" which explodes above the ground and "vaporizes everything" in the area. It had been used for instant helicopter ports in the jungles of Vietnam.

"We were on alert to drop it, were qualified to drop it, but the situation was so ticklish that the wing deputy for operations from Clark (AFB) flew out and dropped it."

The Middletown, Ohio, native trained in T37s at Laredo AFB and, when it closed, went to Moody AFB for the T38 phase. He entered the Air Force in 1972.

Two Sav-X Drug Stores To Open Here

The Abilene-based Sav-X Drug Stores chain has opened two new locations in Lubbock, with grand opening ceremonies scheduled May 23, according to James Burke, vice president and general manager.

An official opening program, expected to be attended by representatives from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and the City of Lubbock, will be held at 10 a.m. for the store at 82nd Street and Indiana, and at 10:45 a.m. at the Lubbock Square location, 4360 50th St.

Abraham Allen, Sav-X board chairman, Don Hanks, president, along with Burke and department heads from the Abilene home office, also plan to be on hand for the opening event.

"We are particularly pleased to open two full-line stores here because Lubbock offers us the opportunity for the continuation of our strong commitment to the people of West Texas and our philosophy of providing convenient and competitively priced merchandise with friendly, professional service," Burke said.

Each location, containing over 8,000 square feet of floor space, will be a full-line drug store in addition to a mini-grocery store. Total initial employment in Lubbock for the operation will be 28 persons, with additional employees expected during seasonal periods.

The mini-grocery, a new concept in drug store retailing first introduced in Texas by Sav-X, will provide dry grocery and snack foods, milk, eggs, ice cream, frozen convenience foods and chilled beverages.

Discounts on prescription items will be available to junior and senior citizens.

Store hours at both locations are 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. every day, with pharmacy hours 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

Presidential Contender Visits Lubbock

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

You see, the son of Mexican immigrant parents who was born in a Kansas City boxcar is running for president of the United States.

"Unheard of things" have been happening in the world, he says, indicating there is "change in the wind."

We have a Polish Pope, a female prime minister of Britain and a Republican governor of Texas, don't we?

Next, he says, is a Mexican-American Republican president.

Fernandez, at a news conference here Tuesday, said he thinks his story can be an inspiration to Americans who are "going through a national nervous breakdown."

The Los Angeles, Calif., resident spent his childhood in the produce fields, worked his way through college with "respectable jobs" like dishwashing, and started his own economic consulting company.

Although he says it's "ostentatious" to say he's a millionaire, he acknowledges his net worth now is $1.2-1.3 million.

Fernandez has never run for elective office before, but neither had six former presidents, he notes.

He is convinced that the Republican candidate who "works the hardest and has his finger on the pulse of the country" will be the man facing Jimmy Carter in the 1980 election.

To cope with inflation, which Fernandez calls the "most insidious problem" facing the country, the economist has a four-part plan:

—Cut back on government waste.

—Begin deregulation of industry after industry, beginning with the oil and coal industries.

BEN FERNANDEZ

Fernandez says he would refuse to deregulate the oil industry until the oil companies agreed to divest themselves of ownership of coal companies.

"I want to force competition between the oil and gas companies," he said, which likely will lead to a "drop in the price" of both fuels.

He also wants a plan from the oil companies on how to build up the oil inventory in the northeastern portion of the U.S., which Fernandez said is going to "get it in the neck" this winter.

His energy program would involve energy consumers, he said, because we waste about 30 percent of the energy which is produced.

That might even mean lowering the speed limit to 50 miles per hour, rather than the controversial and much violated 55 mph speed now in force.

The country needs a "person who can get the message across and who can convince the American public we have a crisis," he said.

"We need to move swiftly to develop other sources of energy," he said, adding "we have enough coal to provide our energy needs for the next 200 years," but the industry is in a "slump" because of government regulations.

Development of nuclear energy needs to be "slowed down" until the American people receive "absolute assurances the problems found at Three Mile Island in Pennsylvania will not reoccur... and that nuclear waste will not come back to haunt us."

Good relations with Mexico will be crucial in the future because of that country's large supply of oil, he said, asking "Who better than Fernandez in the White House to deal with (President Jose Lopez) Portillo of Mexico?"

Fernandez is convinced the future of the U.S. heavily depends on this country's relationship with other countries in the Western Hemisphere.

The U.S. needs to "begin taking care of its backyard," he said, noting communism is "running rampant" in the Caribbean and Cuba's Fidel Castro is introducing communism into Central America "without fear" of reprisal from the U.S.

FEVER OUTBREAK

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Health officials here report an outbreak of dengue fever and have mounted an intensive spraying program to reduce the mosquito population. The fever, transmitted by mosquitoes, causes severe aching in the joints and back, high fever and a rash.

Officer Proves Point, Accidently

It may not have been the shot heard round the world, but it was heard round most of the courthouse — and when the echoes had died away, the embarrassment more than equalled the surprise.

Some investigators in the criminal district attorney's office were discussing whether a pistol in a homicide case could have discharged accidentally. To demonstrate his theory, one of them took out his own pistol.

The gun discharged — accidentally — sending a bullet through the ceiling. It richoceted off concrete above the ceiling and zipped back down into a snack bar area refrigerator.

"It happened, and we did an official investigation and the subject concerned received an official reprimand," Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford said Tuesday.

The pistol went off in the hand of an officer who Montford said "is a fine officer and a fine investigator."

"He didn't try to alibi for it," Montford said. "People make mistakes. What can I say? I wasn't real happy about it."

The officer said it was his first such mishap in 30 years of law enforcement work.

Montford said there is an office regulation that pistols are not to be unsheathed in the office.

"There were a bunch of red faces, I'll guarantee you that," Montford said.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL E. RUBLE

Dear Dr. Ruble: I had pernicious anemia 25 years ago and was put on vitamin B-12 shots for it. Well, about a year ago I started getting a dryness in my mouth. I had tests, but they showed no pernicious anemia. My doctor suggested I see a nose and throat doctor. He told me I had Sjogren's disease. He gave me medicine for the dry mouth but it hasn't helped. Can't the dryness be a sign I still have pernicious anemia? Is that a form of cancer? — Mrs. L. A.

First of all, I have to question the matter of your pernicious anemia. As you know that involves the B-12 vitamin and the body's inability to ingest it. Thus no matter how much vitamin B-12 food a person eats he or she still has a deficiency. The answer is periodic injection of the vitamin to bypass the digestive system.

Once you have the problem you have it for life and must take the injections for life. There are other similar vitamin deficiencies. Some can be temporary — such as folic acid deficiency (during pregnancy) or with liver disease.

The Sjorgen's problem is the likely cause of your dry mouth. There would be eye dryness as well, because with Sjogren's the problem stems from the failure of various glands to lubricate properly. Special eyedrops help the eye dryness. Treating the mouth symptoms is more difficult.

Neither pernicious anemia nor Sjorgren's disease is cancerous. Note: with Sjorgren's a chief concern is that the discomfort may interfere with proper nutrition, and that can cause mucous membrane problems. You should be checked for other forms of anemia. The tests you had for pernicious anemia are quite reliable.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)." Write to Dr. Ruble, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enolosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope afd 50 cents.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

The next Civil War in this country will be between roller skaters, bicyclists and joggers.

The problem is there isn't enough room for the three of them on the same bike paths. As the summer approaches, they are forming less than a perfect union.

Roller skaters say that bikers ride side by side and fill up all the paths. The joggers say the roller skaters line up in packs of six or seven and run them off the road, and the bikers say the joggers think they own the road.

Before it reaches violent proportions, I think we should all sit down and work something out before the leisurers become militant.

The solution seems relatively simple. The bicyclists could use the bike paths on the odd days and the odd joggers on the even days with the exception of full days on Wednesdays when the skaters could hold forth.

The mornings, however, would have to be set aside for the skateboarders and the late evenings for the trail bikers except on windy days.

On windy days the paths would play host to the kite flyers. This schedule will apply in all areas with the exception of the bike paths routed around water. In this case weekends would be reserved for the boat and canoe people who would have to use the facilities as a portage to put their boats in and out of the water.

This would also apply to snorkelers, water skiers and fishermen who are casting from the banks.

Thursday mornings of alternating weeks would, of course be set aside for hula hoopers and baton twirlers, as anyone could see the logic of not having them on the same day.

In the event the bike path is adjacent to a golf course, right-of-way would have to go to the golf carts en route to the greens.

This is the basic summer schedule and would of course change during the winter months with cross-country skiers, ice skaters (on the bike paths near the pond) and snowmobilers (those near golf courses).

There, now, I think we've taken care of everyone who shares the out-of-doors for leisure with the exception of the walkers with biting dogs. When can they use the bike paths? Do you want to tell 'em?

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the woman who split her slacks at a party and blamed it on "sloppy workmanship" points up a common misconception — blaming poorly-made products on the workers.

If a garment (or any other manufactured article) is shoddy, it's because the manufacturer planned it that way. They use cheap material and production shortcuts to keep the price down and/or the profits up. Inspectors in all factories follow orders and work within the precise guidelines of their employers.

So please place the blame where it belongs, Ann — on the greedy owners of such firms, be they manufacturers of slacks, shoes, automobiles, ranch houses, monkey wrenches, or what have you. — Mad As Hell And Not Going To Take It Anymore.

Dear Mad: Your point is well taken. "Planned obsolescence" is indeed a fact of life and we've all seen proof of it. But so is shoddy workmanship and goofing off, as well as flagrant disregard for equipment and material. Dedication to the job and pride in doing one's absolute best ain't what it used to be.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: I am in no way trying to sound off about my parents because I know that they love me very much.

I have some good advice for anybody out there who is willing to listen. This is going to sound a little strange, but I am dead serious when I say people over 40 should think twice before they have children.

Every parent knows how difficult generation gaps can be, especially when the kids are in their teen years. So, think how a 14-year-old feels when her 54-year-old parents are TWO generations older.

I don't go around telling people about all the insane rules I have to put up with, but life around here is not easy. And please, Ann, don't tell me my parents grew up in an entirely different world. I know all that. I also realize it's natural for them to expect their kids to see things the way they saw them at the same age. But the fact remains that my Mom and Dad are as old as some of my friends' grandparents.

This letter probably won't help me any, but it might give some older parents something to think about. — Newport Victim

Dear Victim: Sorry you weren't more specific about your beefs. If you consider your parents old-fashioned because they want to know where their 14-year-old is at all times, who she's running around with, and insist that she be home at a certain time, you get no support from me, Buttercup. If, on the other hand, they won't permit you to have boys over to the house or go to school dances — that's another story.

• • •

Dear Ann Landers: You have an only child — a daughter, so I'm sure you will understand. Please tell me if you think it is "sick" for a married woman (age 29) to telephone her mother five or six times a day if she feels like it. My husband says I'm a little nuts but actually he gets mad when he tries to call me from the office and the line is busy. What do you say? — Stockton, Cal.

Dear Stock: It may not be "sick," but it certainly is excessive. Jot down on a piece of paper the things you want to say after the second call and save them for the next day. Then phone someone else — like maybe your mother-in-law.

Columnist Speaks, Gives Tips To Writer's Club

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

"Once you're a writer, you're a writer for life; you just can't give up," author Evelyn Nace of Pampa told the South Plains Writers' Club at a banquet here Monday evening.

In an interview before the program, she said she had started writing in 1935 and, although she has stopped for other employment for brief periods, has been writing ever since. Whenever other endeavors have called her away from her first love, she has managed to return to writing and pick up other projects.

Her most pressing present project is keeping up with the demand for her column called "Mending Mature Marriage." Several Texas newspapers currently run her column and her agent is offering it for syndication.

"Stay informed on what's going on in the world," was one bit of advice which Mrs. Nace offered to local writers. She said her column was a good example. "Back a few years ago when the kids were in charge of the country, nobody cared about the older folks, but now there is a real interest and a real concern."

Mrs. Nace, who also writes under the name of Louise Pierce, has written over 300 short stories and numerous books and magazine articles. Her topic Monday was "Winning at Writing."

She had several other suggestions which grew out of her own experience for members of the local group. "Have an authority in every profession," she advised. These persons, she said, are invaluable to a writer in checking authenticity of facts and technical details.

"Prune your prose," she suggested. She said writers, especially beginning writers, often have difficulty in being precise and at the same time grabbing the attention of editors and other readers.

Mrs. Nace said that material for her column has been gathered over the years. She has kept a large box full of stories and related ideas. Each separate column deals with a problem or particular situation and contains the elements of humor, pathos and facts.

Her writing is quite personal. "We're a happy family or I couldn't write such a happy column," she said.

Evelyn Nace agrees with the description of a life of a writer she once read in a magazine. It said: "Writing isn't hard work. You just sit down at the typewriter and sweat blood."

South decides not to make any slam try and is mighty glad when he sees the dummy. There is an almost sure club loser and three potential spade losers. Of course, if East has the spade ace all South's worries are over.

He wins the diamond and draws trumps with three leads stopping in dummy. Then he leads a club to his 10, West wins and leads a second diamond. South wins and plays his king of clubs, leads a club to his ace and notes that East still holds a high club.

If clubs had been 3-3, South would be able to discard a spade. If West held the fourth club South could have led dummy's last club and discarded one of his three spades. West would have been caught in an end play.

As it was, South still could do something better than lead a spade to his king. He ruffed dummy's last club and led a low spade from his hand. If West won the trick, South's worries would have been over, but East won and led the queen of spades.

South rises with his king of spades just in case East has underled the ace, but West produces that fine high card.

Moonie's Mother Upset By 'Perfect Match'

NEW YORK (AP) — Silvia Vogel got the news on Mother's Day: The Moonies had picked her Jewish daughter and a black seminary student she hardly knows as one of 705 "perfect matches" for marriage.

It was "a hammer on the head and a knife in the heart," said Mrs. Vogel of the engagement arranged by Korean evangelist and businessman Sun Myung Moon in a mass ceremony.

Ellen Vogel, 24, and George Whitfield, 28, were "matched by the inspiration" of Moon in the ceremony Sunday at the Unification Church's world headquarters. They are to wed in a mass marriage sometime in 1981.

"I've known for about a year now that I would marry a black man," Ellen told reporters Monday. She said she was following Moon's call to make the world's population a "love race" through intermarriage.

At her home in suburban Yonkers, Mrs. Vogel wept over the daughter she feels she has lost, a daughter she said "was emotionally bankrupt when the Moonies found her."

"She started having severe emotional problems when she was 13 years old," said the mother. "Her father had a massive coronary and was seriously ill for four years until he died. She became a loner."

She said Ellen met a man who told her about a "one-world crusade."

"He said he'd take her to one of their meetings," said Mrs. Vogel. "He never mentioned anything about a church, only the one-world crusade."

After her daughter met the Moonies, Mrs. Vogel said, "She came home and said, 'They're all wonderful. They're young and happy and so beautiful.'

"I said, 'What about your religion? They never told you anyting about this being a church.'"

Ellen was raised a conservative Jew with 10 years of Hebrew schooling. She could read, write and speak Hebrew, and she has studied French, Russian, Japanese and Korean.

"Her brother is a rabbi," said her mother. "This is a girl who knew all the prayers. She didn't even have to open a book."

Two days after her father died in September 1973, Ellen moved out telling her mother she was leaving to work with the church.

"When she left she told me, 'I'm Jewish and I'll always be Jewish,'" her mother said. But since then, her mother said, she has had little to do with the Jewish religion.

It wasn't until several months ago that her mother learned that Ellen planned to marry under Moon's direction.

"All of a sudden she started using makeup, becoming conscious of her hair and the way she looked," the mother said.

"I asked her if she was seeing someone and she said she wasn't but she would be getting married.

"'To someone Moon picks out?' I asked her. She said he had the Divine Principle and could match her to the perfect mate."

On Mother's Day, Ellen called home and said she was engaged.

"I asked if I could meet him and she told me he was black," Mrs. Vogel said. "She said she had seen him before, and she had feelings about him. I made no comment."

About all she can do for the present is "hope and pray," Mrs. Vogel said, adding there isn't a night she goes to bed that she doesn't "think about my baby."

Campaign Funding Bared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reps. Phil Gramm and Marvin Frost, both of Texas, say there is nothing wrong with accepting campaign funds from special interest groups.

Gramm, a Democrat from College Station, headed the list of 77 freshmen in the U.S. House who had contributions from such groups, reported the citizen lobby, Common Cause. His campaign records showed he accepted $119,387 from special interest groups.

Frost, a Democrat from Dallas, had $110,145 reported fm such groups.

Other Texas freshmen representatives included in the report, and the amount of contributions, are:

Marvin Leath, D-Marlin, $58,425; Joe Wyatt, D-Bloomington, $72,050; Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, $54,400; Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, $43,250; Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, $47,299; Ron Paul, R-Lake Jackson, $47,370, and Mickey Leland, D-Houston, $37,350.

"My position on issues has never been for sale," Gramm said when questioned about the report released Monday. "I had a record on issues a decade ago so I assume they thought I was qualified and agreed with my positions on the issues."

Frost, who acknowledged he got more from aerospace firms in his district than other interests, said: "I don't consider myself indebted to anyone. Anyone who represents that district is going to be interested in helping those companies because they provide jobs. I was pleased to have their support."

House Overrides Veto

AUSTIN (UPI) — Shouting and cheering Texas House members voted 90-42-1 Tuesday to override Gov. Bill Clements' veto of a seemingly uncontroversial game law bill affecting only one county.

If the Senate goes along with the House move and votes by a two-thirds majority to override the governor's veto on the bill allowing Comal County commissioners to exempt their county from uniform state game and fish laws, it will mark the first time in 38 years the Legislature has overturned a governor's veto.

Not since the Legislature overturned 12 vetoes by Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel during his 31 months in office — the last time in July of 1941 — has a Texas governor's veto been voided.

Clements, the first Republican to govern Texas in more than 100 years, sent the House a message shortly after noon saying he was returning unsigned the bill by Rep. Bennie Bock, D-New Braunfels. The governor said he believes the state should have uniform statewide game and fish laws, and should not allow individual counties to exempt themselves from the laws. Previous sessions of the Legislature have exempted 26 other counties from the fish and game laws.

When Bock approached the microphone to make his motion to override the veto, members of the heavily Democratic House shouted, "Get 'em Bock," and applauded.

"I understand the governor's position philosophically, and I hope he understands my position as well," Bock said. "We need to debate the issue not as a partisan issue, but on whether the governor is right or wrong."

Some House members were perturbed that Clements had vetoed what they considered a "local bill" — one affecting only one county and supported by officials in that county. Local bills ordinarily pass the Legislature with little debate or objection.

"To allow something like this (veto) to happen is outrageous," said Rep. Hugo Berlanga, D-Corpus Christi. "I think we need to show this governor we're not going to allow local bills to be shot down by the governor after your constituents come to you and ask you to carry a bill."

Bock's motion to override the veto first failed on a 90-46 vote, with four members present but not voting, to achieve the necessary two-thirds majority. But on a second attempt, the motion to override the veto carried 90-42 with one voting present.

The last time the House attepted to override a governor's veto was a move by former Rep. R.C. Nichols, D-Houston, in 1973 to overturn Gov. Dolph Briscoe's veto of a Workmen's Compensation Act, but his motion failed 51-86.

Hazardous Waste Disposal Law Enforcement Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel on Wednesday will study problems encountered by state officials in enforcing state and federal laws on the disposal of hazardous wastes.

Attorneys general from New York, Michigan and Louisiana will testify along with representatives from the Justice Department at the session to be held by the House Commerce Committee's subcommittee on oversight and investigations.

"The purpose of the hearing is to provide a general overview of the statutes and regulations governing the disposal of hazardous wastes and the problems of enforcement from the standpoint of the officials who are responsible for carrying them out," said Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, the panel's chairman.

County Crime Council Short On Funds

By JEFF McCASLIN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

While Operation Identification moves forward at a snail's pace, the Lubbock County Crime Prevention Council is faced with finding swift answers to some pressing financial problems.

LCCPC members were told at their regular meeting Tuesday that the executive committee will meet today to discuss fund-raising strategies to cover approximately $6,000 in outstanding debts.

Mal Cleland, LCCPC president and Better Business Bureau director, said that although he is not worried about the council's ability to raise the money they have a time limit of about 30 days to find solutions.

Meanwhile, Operation Identification, which began two weeks ago, is proceeding at a slow but methodical pace in an effort to get local citizens to mark their valuable household items.

Hal Hensley, chief administrator for the criminal district attorney's office and coordinator of Operation Identification, said about 100 to 150 marking devices have been distributed to area residents so far.

Hensley said problems are arising in getting the materials (brochures and marking devices) distributed to volunteers and then to homeowners. He added that area residents have been very cooperative in volunteering their services to help get the project off the ground.

Homeowners are advised by the council to complete their marking procedures as quickly as possible so the chemical pens and electric marking devices can be distributed to other residents, Hensley said.

Volunteers have been instructed to leave the marking devices with homeowners and return to pick them up one day later. Volunteers also will provide participants with stickers warning potential burglars that all the valuable items in the home have been marked and can be readily identified by any law enforcement agency.

Montford, pleased with the outcome of the Business Crimes Symposium held May 3 in the Civic Center, suggested the council sponsor another symposium in the fall.

Texas Fireman Held In Colombia Denies Marijuana Connection

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Texa fireman arrested by Coombian authorities after landing in a private plane in northern Colombia two weeks ago, Tuesday repeated his denials that he was involved in trafficking marijuana.

In an interview broadcast by the Radio Caracol network, William A. Spradley, 45, of Houston, said he and the pilot, Roy McLemore, also of Houston, were attacked by machine gun-firing Indians after their plane had engine trouble and they were forced to land April 29 in an area popular with marijuana smugglers.

But Spradley, who was wounded, said he had "absolutely nothing to do with marijuana trafficking," and again said the plane was en route to Venezuela to pick up oil drilling bits. He is held for investigation of Colombian air space. (The New York Times reported McLemore, 49, speaking by telephone to another Houston firemen in the country to arrange for Spradley's release, admitted he flew the plane to Colomobia to pick up 1,500 pounds of marijuana, and that Spradley knew it. McLemore said he was being held for a $100,000 ransom by a gang of Indians.)

Spradley says he was captured by the Indians, wounded, robbed of $650 and turned over to police, while McLemore reportedly escaped. But the account heightened suspicion of military authorities who patrol the northern area like a war zone in an effort to cut down the multi-billion dollar smuggling.

He is being held today in a hospital in the city of Rioacha, 300 miles north of here, hoping that several dozen Texas firemen who arrived in Rioacha last week will be able to "rescue me."

"We were headed for Maracaibo, Venezuela (100 miles southeast of where they landed) to pick up some oil drilling equipment. We had problems with our engine and we had to make an emergency landing on a strip near the beach," Spradley said in the broadcast.

Radio Carcol asked him why he didn't inform Colombian authorities that his plane had engine difficulties and he responded: "our radio system went out."

The fireman repeated he didn't know the name of the Venezuelan company handling the drilling equipment he sought in Maracaibo, saying "I had the name in my briefcase but this was confiscated by Colombian authorities."

Because of the crackdown on smugglers, the Colombian air force has orders to shoot down small planes violating Colombian air space.

Mart Posts Slight Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a modest rally in early trading Tuesday, but the upswing faded toward the close.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up nearly five points at its mid-day week, settled for a 0.86 gain at 825.88.

The average had closed Monday at a 2½-month low after falling more than 53 points over the past five weeks.

As world gold prices jumped to new highs of better than $255 an ounce, Dome Mines climbed 5¾ to 112¾ as of the 4 p.m. close in New York, trading at record prices; Campbell Red Lake Mines was up ⅜ at 36¼, and Homestake Mining added ½ to 34.

Dome, whose stock changed hands as low as 65½ within the past year, reported first quarter earnings of $1.82 a share against $1.70 in the like period of 1978.

New York (AP) — Tuesday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

200 Tour Field Lab Facilities In Texas Tech Ag Exhibition

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

From hydraulic dipping vats at the feedlot to a nursery for newborn hogs and nutritional studies on sheep, more than 200 persons visited exhibitions Tuesday at an open house for the Texas Tech University Lubbock County field laboratory of the College of Agriculture Sciences.

Visitors, who came from as far away as Clovis, N. M., commenced the tour from the feedmill in the center of the 980-acre laboratory located five miles east of New Deal on Farm Road 1729.

The mill, with its modern micro-ingredient room, feed mixer, pellet mill and pellet crumbler, provides feed for most livestock in the animal science department and is essential for animals involved in nutritional studies.

The effects of processing methods on nutrient utilization, feedmill energy consumption, the effects of chemical and mechanical treatment of crop residues are some of the areas being researched.

A feedlot, located next to the feedmill, features 25 pens with 10 head per pen, unloading chutes and covered working facilities, weighing scales and 10 individual pens for feed consumption studies.

The hydraulic dipping vats, constructed in a circular position so the cattle can't see what is ahead, are more efficient and cause less stress on the animals, according to C. Reed Richardson, supervisor of the feedlot.

Dr. Robert Long, beef cattle supervisor, said yellow ear tags attached to each steer activates an electronic feeder which records individual feed consumption as the animal enters a feeding stall.

The computer records the animal's number, how much he consumes each day and other data such how much feed is in the feeder on a printout.

Dr. Mark Hellman, dairy center supervisor, demonstrated the flushing system. By pulling a lever, a 700-gallon flood of water is released through the milking parlor to clean the facilities.

Located outside the milking parlor and milk room are three lots with a capacity of 20-25 cows per lot. The lots are built on a 3 percent slope for drainage and 46 acres of irrigated pasture are available for grazing.

The swine facility, under the supervision of Drs. Leland Tribble and Donald Orr, consists of a sow-boar building, a farrow-nursery building, a growing-finishing building and a baby pig building.

Efficient production of pork is being researched by considering methods of increasing the value of sorghum as a feed for swine, management practices for improving swine performance and utilization of facilities, and improving reproductive performance of the sow herd by selection, breeding system, nutrition and management.

Most animal sceince studies revolve around the Research Center, supervised by Dr. James Clark. The center has a physiology unit and a metabolism unit.

According to graduate student Dennis McCarthy, three nutritional studies with restricted intake are being performed on sheep with results expected by the end of the summer.

Utilization of treated mesquite, treated gin trash, and cotton linters mixed with gin trash is being considered with the outcome being applicable to cattle, he said.

Dr. Dwane Miller, plant and soil science supervisor, said water use is the main point of research at his 75-acre facility.

"Water stress, photosynthesis, management studies, and minimum tillage are some of the items being researched, " Miller noted, "all in an effort to find ways to conserve moisture throughout the year."

Sheep, which are becoming a popular addition to farm income in the area, are being researched at the farm under the supervision of Dr. Frank Hudson.

Two livestock areas, one to house the permanent teaching flock of three purebred breeds and the other for transient research sheep, along with weighing, shearing and storage areas make up the sheep facilities.

Nutritional studies are one objective of the center and, as the flock increases, data will be accumulated for use in genetic and productive research.

Increasing interest from students has been generated with the completion of the horse barn, under the supervision of Dr. James Heird.

The horse program, with emphasis on Quarter Horses, has more than tripled both in horse judging and horse production in the last two years, according to Heird.

"When to handle horses and how little to handle them will be the center of future research," Heird said. "The amount of handling has been tied to the behavior of the older horse."

A new stallion, Bar H Raider, which was recently added to the horse herd, is expected to further improve the horse program. The stallion is one of 40 supreme champions in the world.

Cattle Futures

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 40 to 117 points lower Tuesday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

October led the decline. Sales totaled 34,670 cars. The market rebounded 127 points from lows after slumping 150 points limit down in June through January.

Prices fell to 5 1/2 week lows, off nine cents from highs, before uncovering support.

Early selling was triggered by the bearishly construed cattle on feed report, released by the U. S. Department of Agriculture after the market closed Monday. The report showed 10 percent fewer marketings during April.

BEEF PRICING AND REPORTING SYSTEMS need certain improvements as the industry continues to change, but in the main the current systems have reflected changes in supply and demand and have served the industry and consumers well.

This has been pointed out by the National Cattlemen's Association in testimony before the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Beef Pricing and Reporting Task Force.

No valid evidence has been presented to support allegations that beef prices have been illegally manipulated, NCA said, and proposed legislation imposing government controls on the beef marketing system would create more problems than they would solve.

The NCA's views and comments, presented by Marketing Committee chairman Tom Remington, were based on an extensive analysis of industry developments and allegations about beef pricing which have been made by politicians and others. The task force's Washington hearing was the last of a series held before the task force reports to USDA, which will use the information and advice in responding to legislative proposals.

THE NCA RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE task force included:

— The task force should note that there is no valid evidence that prices have been illegally manipulated or that prices reported by the reporting services have been inaccurate.

— The task force should recommend against any attempt, by legislation or regulation, to have government force new marketing, pricing or reporting systems upon the industry. It should oppose H.R. 91, introduced by Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, a bill which would put all aspects of meat marketing under government regulation.

— As the wholesale beef market continues to evolve from a carcass to a fabricated (boxed) beef market, new price reporting tools need to be developed. The NCA will assume a leadership role in bringing industry together to develop an accurate method of determining a carcass equivalent price based on prices received in the fabricated beef market.

— Voluntary cooperation by meat sellers and buyers in reporting wholesale beef prices should be encouraged. The task force should: (1) Point out the "chilling effect" upon voluntary reporting which results from civil suits alleging anti-trust activities and price fixing. (2) Recommend that the USDA's Market News Service publish names of firms refusing to confirm prices voluntarily or to report prices when called.

— NEW MARKETING INNOVATIONS should be encouraged and tested. Electronic marketing is one possibility and its refinement and testing should be encouraged but not to the exclusion of other potential marketing systems.

— Significant structural changes are occurring in the beef industry. The USDA should do more to provide timely information to the industry — such as monitoring and periodically reporting the extent of formula versus negotiated selling of beef carcasses and fabricated cuts.

— Despite actual or alleged shortcomings of the present pricing and reporting systems, the systems have reflected long and short term changes in supply and demand. Consumer beef supplies have been relatively dependable; changing supplies have been rationed or liquidated by changes in prices. The current free market should be allowed to continue to evolve and operate with a minimum of government interference.

— With a rapid increase in use of boxed beef and other fabricated products, the wholesale beef trade is becoming much more than just a carcass beef trade. Analysis of data on sales qualified to be used in reporting carcass beef prices shows that the reporting services are doing a creditable job of measuring that portion of graded carcass beef traded in carlots on a negotiated basis. Based on data from USDA's recent beef pricing report, the Yellow Sheet sample represented about 24 percent of qualifying sales. However, the advent of central fabrication and formula pricing are diminishing the validity of carcass beef prices as the basis for the entire market. Meanwhile, USDA's beef pricing report does not substantiate the allegations of impropriety against the reporting services, including the Yellow Sheet.

THE PACKING INDUSTRY NOW HAS substantial excess capacity. With some plants much less efficient than others, plant closings and packer failures will present a significant problem. The possibility of growing concentration in the packing industry is a valid concern. However, current con centration of beef slaughter is less than existed in the 1950s and 1960s.

— Approximately two-thirds of the carcass beef is sold on a formula basis (with prices based on reporting service quotations on the day of sale). However, carcass beef now represents, at most, only half of the wholesale beef trade. The other half is sold as fabricated beef, of which 85 percent is sold on a negotiated basis. At a minimum, 55 percent of the total wholesale beef trade involves negotiated pricing — or much more than some critics and politicians have claimed. For many smaller packers and buyers, formula buying or selling, involving standing orders, is an economical way to trade beef. At this time, NCA cannot support a ban on formula pricing but believes that the basis for price reporting needs to be enlarged.

— Within a few years, the carcass beef trade will become predominantly a raw product market for fabricating operations. What will be needed most in price reporting is an expanded and comprehensive reporting system for fabricated cuts.

— Mandatory reporting of all meat trade, with more government control and red tape, would create more rather than fewer problems for the industry and the public. Attempts to license private market news publications also would present problems. Establishment of an exclusive government reporting service would provide the potential for political manipulation of prices.

— Electronic marketing and reporting have potential, but other innovations also should be considered. Before electronic technology can be adapted to beef, more accurate trading criteria are needed.

— Proposed legislation in the marketing, pricing and reporting area would inject the "heavy hand of government" into all aspects of the beef business and would hinder, not help, the beef marketing system.

HIGH PLAINS COTTON
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Trading on the Lubbock spot cotton market was slow on Tuesday. Supplies of cotton for sale were moderate to heavy and demand was weak.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Reports of rapid progress in planting the U.S. spring wheat and corn crops helped depress wheat and corn futures Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Selling on improved planting weather especially influenced corn prices. The government reported that corn plantings are about 34 percent complete, more than double the plantings as of last week, compared to the average progress rate at this time of year of 55 percent.

Wheat futures erased most of the gains of Monday that set new life-of-contract highs. Exporter selling and disappointment with the government's report that wheat exports last week were only about half of last year's levels were factors in the decline.

Chevrolet's first economy car of the '80s.

CHEVY CITATION

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel!

EPA ESTIMATED MPG: CITY ESTIMATE 24; 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE
With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".

Carter Sends Congress Mental Health Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, saying 10 to 15 percent of Americans have an emotional problem of some kind, sent Congress legislation Tuesday to revamp mental health care in the United States.

"We have still a very serious problem for those who are mentally ill or emotionally disabled," Carter said.

Joseph A. Califano Jr., secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, identified the three main aims of the bill:

—Improving services for the 1.5 million chronically mentally ill, moving as many of them as possible from large institutions to smaller community facilities.

—Granting money to link the mental health programs to the general health care system. Califano pointed out that 54 percent of those who seek help for mental problems go to general health practitioners.

The legislation would set aside $700,000 to encourage states to devise a bill of rights for the mentally ill so they are aware of their legal rights. It also would emphasize preventive measures.

The act would attempt to place more mental health personnel in underserved areas by requiring that those who receive federal aid for training work for a period in areas with a shortage of personnel.

Mrs. Carter, who has been an advocate for mental health since her husband was governor of Georgia, praised the legislation as "a very important first step."

She said she would meet with the White House congressional relations staff to "work out a strategy for getting the legislation passed."

Carter said the legislation would be introduced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., the chairmen of health panels in Congress.

Though the legislation would cost $99.1 million the first year, Califano said it would add only about $70 million to the budget because other, unrelated mental health programs have been consolidated and their budgets reduced.

Califano said if the legislation is passed, the mental health budget would increase from $542 million in fiscal 1979 to $611.9 million in 1980.

In a message to Congress, the president said the commission's report found "unmistakable evidence that there are unmet needs in every region of our country."

The president reiterated the commission's finding that between 20 and 32 million Americans will need some form of mental health services and that "substantial numbers of Americans" do not have access to high quality care at reasonable cost.

Vietnam, China Slate Prisoner Exchange

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The first exchange of prisoners captured by Vietnam and China during their recent border war will take place next Monday, two days earlier than scheduled, the International Committee of the Red Cross announced Tuesday.

A request to have the Geneva-based ICRC act as mediator in the exchange has been accepted, the statement added.

It said the initial exchange would involve only wounded and sick prisoners held by the two countries and that the prisoners would re-enter their homelands at the Chinese-Vietnamese frontier.

But ICRC spokeswoman Francoise Bory told The Associated Press the figure would probably be between 100 and 200.

She said it was not known how the repatriation program would afterwards proceed. "We would like to think that eventually all prisoners held by both sides will be released."

Wiretapping Okayed In Narcotics Cases

The presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals would authorize wiretapping on a case-by-case basis, Sen. Ed Howard, D-Texarkana, said of his bill. Listening devices could not be used in marijuana cases, he added.

"Is this the same bill we buried the other day, the Nixon Memorial Bill?" asked Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur. Howard switched two votes from last week, when he failed to bring the measure up for debate.

"Suppose a person got wiretapped, got convicted and appeals to the Court of Criminal Appeals," he said. "Then the appellate judge would be called on to decide if he had done something illegal."

Howard said the nine-member court sits in panels of three and could avoid Parker's scenario.

"But they sit en banc (as a whole) if it's an important enough case," Parker answered.

District attorneys or the attorney general would have to include in their wiretapping request the name of the investigating officer; other methods used to gain information sought in the tap; the specific time for the tap; and whether phone taps had been requested earlier for the same case.

Individual police and sheriff's departments could not own monitoring equipment. All listening devices would be housed at Department of Public Safety facilities.

The sponsor said persons convicted of making unauthorized wiretaps would be subject to two to 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

"We have penalties against beating people up and throwing them in the bayou but that still happens, doesn't it?" Parker said, referring to a Houston case. Joe Campos Torres's body was found along a bayou after he had been in police custody the night before.

Pro Umpires Expected To End Walkout

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league umpires have reached a contract agreement with the American and National Leagues and will return to work this weekend, The Associated Press learned Tuesday.

A marathon negotiating session which carried into Tuesday morning apparently settled the final issues which have kept the regular umpires on the sidelines since the beginning of spring training.

Pressure for the settlement built last week when minor league and sandlot umpires who have been replacing the regulars were involved in a series of uproarious arguments punctuated with bench-clearing brawls in Atlanta and Minnesota.

The settlement apparently will be presented for approval of the major league owners at a joint meeting of the two leagues in Chicago today. If approved, it then would be announced at a joint press conference Thursday in New York.

Both American League President Lee MacPhail and attorney Richie Phillips, who has represented the umpires in this dispute, said the two sides were close to a settlement but stopped short of announcing a final agreement. But a source familiar with the talks said the matter has been resolved and all that remains is the initialing of the agreement.

"We still have a way to go," MacPhail said. "I would prefer not to discuss the issues."

But MacPhail agreed that almost daily meetings between the two sides had helped close the gap. "We're a lot closer than when we started," MacPhail said. "We were eons apart then. Obviously, we've been trying to get it closed out and it's been a good faith effort on both sides. I'm hopeful, certainly more positive about this than I've been until now."

Phillips, speaking from his Philadelphia office, said, "We are on the threshold of reaching a comprehensive agreement between the umpires and major league baseball which should satisfy all parties and insure labor peace for at least three years and beyond."

Details of the contract settlement were unavailable, although it was learned that the leagues agreed to employ an extra team of umps, allowing one unit at a time to have breaks during the season. The umpires also had demanded improvements in per diem expense allowances which had been $53 per day and in salaries.

Throughout the work stoppage, the umpires had said it would take only $20,000 per team, a total of $520,000, to settle the matter.

The umpires have been demanding salary equity with officials in other major sports. Major League umpires had been making between $17,000 and $40,000 with a 10-year man earning $32,500. A 10-year official in the National Basketball Association earns $45,000.

Baseball had attempted to force the umpires back to work in March, going to federal court in Philadelphia and charging that the union was in violation of its five-year collective bargaining agreement which runs through 1982. But Judge Joseph L. McGlynn, Jr. ruled that the umps, who work under individual contracts, could not be in violation of the collective agreement until those individual pacts were signed.

Monterey Reaps Spring Harvest

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

PAMPA — When Monterey coach Bobby Moegle made a second trip to the mound in the first inning, third baseman Ricky Pinkerton passed the time by kicking the dirt to see which direction the wind was blowing. What Pinkerton didn't know at the time was that he was going to need the knowledge for pitching.

When the mound conference ended, Moegle called on the Plainsman righthander to take over for starter Kent Potts, with two outs, the bases loaded and a two-ball count on Pampa batter Keenan Henderson.

Pinkerton struck out Henderson to end the threat and then Monterey settled down to record an easy 10-3 victory in the opener of the best-of-three-game bidistrict series.

"I definitely feel it made a difference to get out of the (first) inning without giving up any runs," said Pinkerton. "I really didn't feel any pressure. I knew I just had to throw strikes. All the pitches were fastballs."

With one out and runners on first and second, Plainsman Bart Burgess hit a slow roller toward third base. Harvester third baseman Greg Quarles fielded the ball cleanly, but his throw to first baseman Jeff Copeland was wide of the mark anf Potts and catcher Kelly Smith — who had singled — came streaking home from second and first base, respectively, with the first 2 runs.

Burgess, meanwhile, ended up on third and later dashed the last 90 feet when designated hitter Steve Coleman grounded out to short.

"Mistakes, like the throwing error, cost us the game," said Pampa coach Steve Scott. "We've learned a lot by playing Monterey today. We're going to work the kids out pretty hard the next couple of days to correct things.

However, for all practical purposes, the Harvesters were out of game 1 in the third inning as the Plainsmen again scored 3 runs.

Chaps Face Tough Foes

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

PHOENIX, Ariz. — At the NAIA's District VIII tournament last weekend in Dallas, Lubbock Christian College survived largely by the grace of its opponents.

If they're going to repeat that tourney win this weekend, the Chaparrals are going to have to look elsewhere. They're playing the big boys now.

All three of the other teams invited to the Area II tournament that starts here this morning are nationally ranked — in Dallas none were — and all of them polled considerably higher than LCC. In fact, two of them (Grand Canyon and William Carey) were ranked Nos. 1 and 2 in the nation, respectively.

Today the Chaps face District 30 winner William Carey in the first game (11:30 a.m. CDT). Now 45-9 on the year, William Carey is the team that knocked LCC out of the Area II tournament in the title game in Lubbock last year.

The two other teams, Grand Canyon (55-10) and Sam Houston State (36-12 and seventh in the nation), will play at 2:30 p.m. CDT, then the losers of those two games will play at 5:30 p.m. to narrow the tourney field to three.

Thursday, the winners of the first round contests meet at 2:30 p.m. with the loser facing the winner of today's last game at 5:30 p.m. for a finals berth.

The championship will be played at 1 p.m. Friday. Only the winner advances to the NAIA World Series which starts May 28 in Nashville, Tenn.

In the district tourney just completed, the rest of the teams seemed ready to concede the title to the Chaps almost from the start. After all, LCC had won the tourney five of the last six years.

In three games, LCC opponents allowed 18 walks, left 33 men on base and committed nine errors. The Chaps, meanwhile, didn't do much better, walking 15, stranding 34 and committing five errors. But still they won all three games rather easily, two by 7-2 margins and one 6-3.

In Sunday afternoon's championship, Dallas Baptist issued 11 walks while allowing the Chaps only three hits. In Saturday's second-round game with DBC, the Indians left 13 men on base to LCC's seven. And in Friday's opener, the University of Dallas commited four errors while LCC was spotless.

There's little chance that kind of luck will fall LCC's way this weekend. Instead, the Chaparrals will have to provide their own means and that will take some improvement over last weekend's efforts.

Only five players ended the three-game tournament with three hits. Steve Brigante was the star at the plate, going 4-of-9 with 6 runs scored and 2 RBIs. Included in those stats is one of only two homers hit during the series, a crusher that hopped out halfway between the 410-foot center field marker and the 370

A's May Move To Miami Area

MIAMI (AP) — A Los Angeles businessman is negotiating with Charley Finley to buy the Oakland A's baseball team, pay off the American League club's 8-year lease with the city and move the team to Miami, an official of the AFM Corp. said Tuesday.

AFM Chairman Joel Nelson had contacted A's owner Finley last week and meetings should take place soon, AFM Executive Vice President Bernie Warren said in a telephone interview from the firm's Los Angeles headquarters.

"We're about to begin negotiating," Warren said. "We would like to bring the Oakland A's to the Orange Bowl for awhile and eventually we would like to build our own stadium."

Finley, reached at his home in Chicago, said Warren had contacted him about a possible sale, but no meetings had been set up.

"He sent me a telegram indicating that a Mr. Nelson was intereested in purchasing the Oakland ball club," Finley said. "That's all I know."

An announcement could be made within two to three weeks, Warren said. Nelson wanted to buy an existing club or a new franchise and locate either in the Miami area, he said.

Rangers Fall In NHL Action

MONTREAL (AP) — Yvon Lambert, Guy Lafleur and Bob Gainey scored in a 7:53 span of the first period Tuesday night as Montreal shrugged off an early two-goal deficit and roared to a 6-2 triumph over the New York Rangers to tie their National Hockey League final playoff series.

Steve Shutt and Jacques Lemaire scored in the second period and Mark Napier completed a string of six consecutive Montreal goals in the third period as the Canadiens evened the best-of-seven set at 1-1.

The series shifts to Madison Square Garden for Games 3 and 4 Thursday and Saturday.

The game got off to a wild start as Montreal goalie Ken Dryden — who had expected to watch from the bench for the first time in 109 career playoff games — gave up goals on two of New York's firstthree shots.

Steve Vickers picked off a pass from Montreal defenseman Serge Savard and fed Anders Hedberg for a screened 35-foot shot that gave the Rangers the lead just 1:02 into the contest. Then Pat Hickey collected an errant pass by the Canadiens' Brian Engblom before feeding Ron Duguay for a 30-foot shot that glanced off Engblom and past Dryden at 6:21.

Moe Plans Gamble Against Washington

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — It's a calculated gamble, but San Atonio Coach Doug Moe says his Spurs will continue to double-team Washington's explosive forwards tonight in the sixth game of their best-of-seven playoff series.

"You have to give up something to get something," said Moe, who plans to again sag back on Washington's much-maligned — but recently rejuvenated — guards in an attempt to slow down Bobby Dandridge and Elvin Hayes.

Moe has gambled with the defense for the entire NBA Eastern Conference championship series, but it backfired Sunday.

Washington guards Kevin Grevey and Tom Henderson combined for 49 points as the defending NBA champion Bullets, on the brink of elimination, hung on with a 107-103 victory to trim San Antonio's lead in the series to 3-2.

Meanwhile, Dandridge, whom Moe feels is the key to the Bullets, was held to 13 points. He was shut out in the first half of Friday night's 118-102 San Antonio victory and finished with only six points.

Hayes has been held to an average of less than 20 points per game.

"We realize that we've got to give up something, but we also realize that Dandridge is a hell of a player. We think he's the key to their team. He's the catalyst," Moe said after practice Tuesday.

The Washington guards had been mired in a playoff slump, allowing the Spurs to get away with double-teaming Dandridge and Hayes near the basket. The Spurs have concentrated more on Dandridge and have usually kept a man on Grevey, allowing Henderson to roam free.

Washington Coach Dick Motta dismissed the defensive ploy as a "gimmick defense" and said Sunday's success by his guards would force the Spurs out of the strategy.

"We've exploited their double-teaming and I don't think they can aford to keep gambling like that," said Grevey, who had 23 points Sunday. "It will be an honest game Wednesday night. What I mean by honest is that they won't be able to gang up on our forwards as much. The Spurs have to make an adjustment."

"They must think we're crazy," scoffed Moe. "I'd much rather take a chance on stopping Hayes and Dandridge and force them out of their game. I'm sure they'd be much happier if we left Dandridge and Hayes one-on-one."

And Motta, says Moe, should have learned a lesson sooner about double-teaming.

"They were stupid not to double (George) Gervin earlier," Moe said of his high-scoring guard who is averaging 31 points per game in the series. "That let us get an advantage in the series."

Monterey Trips Pampa

With a 20-mile-an-hour wind blowing out from home plate, both teams were able to hit the long ball. Six home runs went out of the park. Besides Bevins, Coleman also hit a home-run shot to left centerfield for the Plainsmen's final runs.

"The long ball didn't hurt us, because of Ricky's ability to throw strikes," said Moegle. "That's also why I went to him in the first inning. We needed someone right then to get the ball over the plate."

The win raised Monterey's record to 25-7, while the loss dropped Pampa to 19-6.

Sid Sizzles Bulldogs; Tigers Take 3-2 Win

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

SNYDER — History, as any history teacher will tell you, has a history of repeating itself. And Tuesday afternoon here at Moffett Field history was nearly repeated. But the Snyder Tigers fought off tradition to defeat the Burkburnett Bulldogs 3-2 in the first game of their AAA bi-district series.

The Tigers travel to Bulldog country Friday to settle the dispute with a double-header scheduled— if two games are necessary.

Snyder pitcher Sid Everton walked to the mound in the top of the seventh with a 2-0 lead and only three outs away from a no-hitter. But the Bulldogs scored two runs on two hits to tie the game and for Everton it meant a serious case of deja vu.

Last year in the first game of the bi-district series Everton took a 3-0 lead into the final frame only to see Burkburnett tie the score and eventually win the game in 12 innings.

After they tied the score in the top of the seventh, Snyder came to life in the bottom of the frame. With one out, Bobby Degrate smashed a single up the middle to start things rolling for the Tigers. After Brian Vincent walked, Snyder had men perched on first and second. Pitcher Everton hit into a fielder's choice and there were men at the corners.

Up to the plate stepped Mitch Mackey. He'd hit the ball solidly all day but was hitless in three trips. Mackey lashed a 1-1 pitch through the right side of the infield and the game was over.

"I thought I'd been hitting the ball pretty good," said Mackey. "But there were always people there to catch it. I knew I was due in the seventh."

Earlier it had appeared that Snyder would be able to claim the victory without the benfit of Mackey's clutch hit. But Everton, who had been nearly perfect through the first six innings, got in trouble in the seventh.

He started the seventh by hitting Lester King to put a man on first. Then, after King stole second, Chris Hanks hit a grounder that bounced off Everton's glove. Hanks was already safe at first by the time the Snyder second baseman fired a wild throw to first.

That bad toss allowed King to score and then, with two away, the Bulldogs got their first solid hit of the day as Jeff Baber lined a shot to right. That tied the score at 2-2.

On the day Everton struck out 12 and allowed only two hits— both in the seventh. But last year, when Snyder dropped a bi-district decision to Burkburnett, Everton fanned 17.

"All I could think about in the seventh inning was last year," admitted Everton. "I didn't want another game like that."

"I was sure history was repeating itself," said coach Albert Lewis. "I'm just glad it didn't. It's going to be a lot nicer going up there with a win behind us.

"But Sid wasn't real sharp today," added the Tiger coach. "He was having problems with his control. Usually he has excellent control."

The Tigers jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first fram when Everton singled and scored on a Scott Crenwegle liner to left. Snyder picked up another run in the fourth on another Crenwegle single and a couple of Burkburnett errors. But Snyder had opportunities to do much more damage to their visitors but couldn't come up with the clutch hit— until the seventh.

"That has been a characteristic of this team all year," said Lewis. "We just don't score many runs. We've been getting by on good defense and good pitching."

And Tuesday the Tigers got all the defense they needed in the form of the Everton strikeout. The Tiger ace is 9-2 on the year with an incredible 0.94 ERA. Snyder is 21-8 on the year now while Burkburnett is 13-6.

Also getting a hit a game were designated hitter Tommy Inman (3-of-9 with 6 runs and 1 RBI); first baseman Tim Leslie (3-of-7 with 2 runs and 2 RBI); shortstop Bobby Doe (3-of-10, 1 and 1) and center fielder Brady Brashear (3-of-11, 1 and 3).

Since 1973, LCC has been to the Area II tourney five times and won it once, in 1977. Its other finishes have been third twice (1973 and 1975) and second three times (1974, 1976 and 1978).

The Chaps have already played Grand Canyon College twice this year, losing both times during their spring break trip west. The first game went 10 innings with LCC coming out behind 7-6 and Grand Canyon took the second game 9-6.

In private though, many coaches at the district tournament felt that GCC was not as good as its No. 1 ranking. "They're a good team, no doubt," said one coach. "But if you match them up with Texas Wesleyan (a Texas Athletic Conference powerhouse this season that missed the tourney because of forfeited games), it's one of those 'on-any-given-day' deals."

Skins Release Kilmer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Kilmer, the 16-year veteran quarterback known for his wobbly pass and courageous heart, was given his release Tuesday by the Washington Redskins.

Kilmer, who will be 40 when the 1979 National Football League season rolls around, was caught up in the Redskins' youth movement which last week saw the release of veteran linebacker Chris Hanburger just a couple of months after defensive end Ron McDole was given his walking papers.

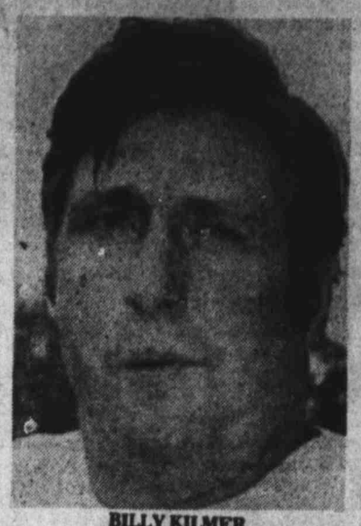
Reached at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where he has a home, Kilmer said he wasn't bitter about the release. But he said he had sort of expected it, although he thought he still could play in the NFL.

"They're on a new path, so it's not surprising," he said. "It's just too bad these things have had to happen to all of us.

"I'm still interested in playing. I'm in good shape, my weight's down. I'm doing my exercises and swimming. I would like to play for someone if they want me.

"Everything comes to an end. I'm not bitter. I know what they are trying to do. I had some great times there. I had a great association with Washington. There have been some great years. I can look back to playing with a great coach like George (Allen) and some great players. It's been a great time. The town's been great."



BILLY KILMER

General Manager Bobby Beathard, who called Kilmer earlier Tuesday to notify him, said, "We're fully aware of our obligation to Billy and we're prepared to honor that contract.

"He's a tough guy with a lot of charisma," said Beathard. "But there comes a time when ... well, we have a young squad and decided to go tha way."

Coach Jack Pardee, who played with Kilmer on Washington's 1972 team that went to the Super Bowl, said, "It was a vey difficult decision to make because of the personal admiration as well as the many great and courageos contributions he has given the Redskins the past eight years.

"We felt we should devote our time and attention the final two months prior to training camp to Joe Theismann, Kim McQuilken and Gary Valbueno, a free agent we signed Monday.

"He has had a great career and we wish him well," said Pardee.

Kilmer, an All-America at UCLA in 1960, started his career as a shotgun-style quarterback with San Francisco. In 1967, he was selected by New Orleans in the expansion draft, after missing both the 1963 and 1965 seasons.

He became a Redskin on Jan. 28, 1971 in the first trade made by then coach George Allen.

During his career, he completed 1,585 passes out of 2,984 attempts, a 53.1 per cent average, for 20,495 yards and 152 touchdowns and 146 interceptions. He rushed 362 times for 1,509 yards, a 4.2-yard average, and 21 touchdowns.

Guidry Places Yankees First

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Apparently they didn't teach Ron Guidry how to spell at the University of Southwestern Louisiana. For some reason, he insists on spelling "me" w-e.

"The team comes first. There's nothing else on my mind," Guidry said when the New York Yankees disclosed May 5 that the 1978 American League Cy Young Award winner had volunteered to become a late-inning relief specialist until Rich Gossage returned from the disabled list in about two months.

Once they got over the shock, Guidry's teammates realized that they not only had the best pitcher in baseball in their clubhouse, but the No. 1 team man, as well.

"It's a heck of a thing he's doing. Not many pitchers of that quality will do something like that," said young Jim Beattie, who moved into the starting rotation when Guidry moved out.

"It shows you right there what kind of a guy he is," marveled Tommy John, a veteran pitcher but a new Yankee. "Only a real pro and a guy who wants to win would do something like that. You're talking about a Cy Young winner and an MVP. It takes a big man to do that."

Well, Guidry is a big man, even if he stands only 5-foot-11 and has to be chock full of his beloved Louisiana gumbo to tip the scales at his listed 160 pounds.

"I didn't get it (the Cy Young Award) by myself," he said. "We had a good team and they played great ball behind me and scored for me. Maybe I'm the guy who owes them something."

If Guidry ever owed the Yankees anything, the debt was paid in full with last year's 25-3 regular-season record, including the dramatic playoff victory over Boston, plus one triumph each in the AL playoffs and the World Series.

Guidry even tried to deny that he had volunteered for the relief role and those who know him insist it was because he didn't want to be portrayed as some white knight charging to the rescue of the Yankees' floundering bullpen.

The bullpen experiment, however, was short-lived. After two brilliant relief outings, Guidry returns to the starting rotation Wednesday night against Detroit.

Veteran baseball observers tried recalling if any other pitcher of Guidry's caliber had gone from staff ace to bullpen specialist. The name that kept cropping up was Allie Reynolds, who made 33 starts and 44 relief appearances with the Yankees in 1953-54.

"There's always a first time for something, but I didn't do it to be the first one," Guidry said. "I'm just gonna go as hard as I can for as long as I can. That's what I've been doing ever since I came up here. If my arm flies off, it flies off.

"The only thing that matters to me is that the team wins, the Yankees win. I don't care who gets the win or the save."

Locals Ink Track Pacts With Tech

Archie Moore of Coronado and Daryl Hicks of Lubbock High have both signed letters-of-intent to run track at Texas Tech, according to head coach Corky Oglesby.

Moore, a three-time qualifier to the regional track meet, was used primarily a 220-yard sprinter until last season. However, he was switched to the quartermile. He placed second—to Hicks—in the District 4-AAAA meet, running a 49.4. At the region competition, Moore was fifth with a 49.9.

As a junior, the 6-1, 175-pounder posted one of the state's top times in the 220-yard dash, a 21.7. At region that year, he was fourth with a 21.8.

Hicks, like Moore a short-distance sprinter for the Tom Phelps-coached Westerners, won the loop quartermile title with a 49.4. However, he failed to place in the regional competition last year.

Cubs Put 'Foote' To Phillies

By The Associated Press

Barry Foote slammed a bases-loaded homer against his former Philadelphia teammates —the first grand slam of his career — powering the Chicago Cubs to a 7-1 victory over the Phillies Tuesday.

The homer, Foote's fourth of the season, came in the fifth inning after the Cubs had loaded the bases on singles by Dave Kingman and Jerry Martin and a walk to Steve Ontiveros.

Nino Espinosa, 5-2, was the victim of the blast. The triumph went to Lynn McGlothen, 4-4, who lost his bid for a shutout when Mike Schmidt led off the seventh with his 11th homer of the season.

The Cubs nicked Espinosa for three runs in the first, keyed by Bill Buckner's triple. Ivan DeJesus led off with a single and, one out later, left fielder Del Unser slipped and misjudged Buckner's fly ball. Kingman singled to score Buckner and later came home on a double by Martin, who had three hits.

RANGERS 9, TWINS 8

John Ellis' two-run single capped a five-run eighth inning hat vaulted the Texas Rangers to a 9-8 victory over Mike Marshall and the host Minnesota Twins.

The Rangers entered the inning trailing 8-4 and, after John Grubb's single, made two quick outs. But Richie Zisk doubled to right for one run and he scored on Pat Putnam's single to right.

GIANTS 8, ASTROS 1

Jack Clark and Larry Herndon hit two-run doubles to back the five-hit pitching of Phil Nastu, who posted his firstmajor league victory as the San Francisco Giants beat the Houston Astros 8-1 Tuesday night.

Nastu, 1-2, struck out four and walked three. Houston's only run scored in the second inning on a single by Art Howe and a double by Alan Ashby.

INDIANS 5, BLUE JAYS 3

PADRES 2, REDS 1

Pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua doubled in two runs in the top of the ninth to give the San Diego Padres a 2-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

METS 3, PIRATES 0

Joel Youngblood hit a two-run homer to back the combined six-hit pitching of Craig Swan and Skip Lockwood as the New York Mets beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

The Mets, who went into the game with a 2-9 record on their current 14-game road trip, took the lead on Youngblood's fourth-inning home run off Don Robinson, 2-3. Youngblood's homer, his fifth of the season, followed a two-out walk to John Stearns, one of nine walks issued in seen innings by Robinson.

DODGERS 5, BRAVES 4

Dusty Baker opened the 10th inning with his third home run of the season, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers their eighth straight victory, 5-4 over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

YANKEES 11, TIGERS 3

Unbeaten Tommy John hurled a seven-hitter for his eighth victory, two more than anyone else in the major leagues, and Chris Chambliss hit two home runs, leading the New York Yankees to a 11-3 rout of the Detroit Tigers Tuesday night.

John, who pitched his fifth complete game in eight starts, had a three-hit shutout until the eighth when the Tigers scored all their runs on a walk and three singles. The 35-year-old left-hander walked one and struck out five.

CARDS 1, EXPOS 0

Mike Phillips lined a two-out, ninth-inning single to score George Hendrick from third base and give the St. Louis Cardinals a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos behind John Denny's two-hitter.

Denny, 3-2, faced only 33 batters en route to his ninth career shutout. He struck out five and walked four, outdueling Steve Rogers, 3-2, who surrendered eight hits.

ACC Rejects 30-Tick Clock

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams will not have to shoot the ball in 30 seconds next season. The controversial shot clock proposal was rejected by league athletic directors on a 5-3 vote.

The rules change would have required a team with the ball to take a shot within 30 seconds of gaining possession or turn the ball over to the defense.

Austin Whips Indians In Opener

EL PASO (Special) — Doug Woods tossed a one-hitter to lead Austin High to a 9-2 bidistrict win over Ysleta here Tuesday in the opener of the best of two out of three series.

The second game will be played at El Paso's Dudley Field Friday at 5 p.m.

Austin High (18-6) took advantage of 8 Ysleta errors for the victory. In the first inning, centerfielder Polo Miranda led off with a single and advanced to second when leftfielder Gregg Quinn walked off losing pitcher Sam Hernandez (9-4). Both players came around to score when Ysleta third baseman Hector Femath committed an error on a ball hit by Ray Lopez. Lopez was later singled in by catcher Fernie Salas.

In the top of the second, rightfielder Eddie Burciaga knocked in third baseman Gilbert Cavillo with a sacrifice fly and came around to score on a double by Lopez. This gave Austin High a 5-0 lead.

Woods (9-1) led off the top of the third with a walk, and Hernandez was relieved by Willie Tapia. AHS proceeded to jam the bases and Cavillo hit another sacrifice fly to score Woods. The relay from rightfield was wild and Tony Bravo came in to score to make it 7-0. Later in the inning, Ray Macias scored from third on a wild pitch.

A LIVING WAGE — Basketball star Bill Walton tells the press that he'll be making a living wage with his new contract to play for the San Diego Chippers. The Chippers held a press conference Sunday morning in San Diego to announce that Walton had signed a seven-year contract that will make him the highest paid player in the NBA. (AP Laserphoto)

Levin Produces Another Winner

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Throw away the Hollywood script. Irv Levin, former war hero, motion picture producer and pro sports executive, has outdone himself again.

The wheeler-dealer owner of the San Diego Clippers capped a storybook year by signing super center Bill Walton to the largest contract in National Basketball Associaton history.

A year ago, Levin startled his NBA colleagues by trading his Boston Celtic franchise for the downtrodden Buffalo Braves. Then a team of castoffs — his freshly-minted San Diego Clippers under Coach Gene Shue — almost qualified for the playoffs.

Then came the coup Sunday for the man who won Hollywood's prestigious Motion Picture Pioneer of the Year Award in 1970.

"If I had planned it, I couldn't have written a script any better. It's almost unreal," said Levin, 57, who produced "Operation Thunderbolt," a film based on Israel's bold Entebbe rescue in July 1976.

"It's a Frank Merriwell story. The hero comes back to his hometown a changed character, on Mother's Day, before live television."

With Walton as the center attraction, Levin is betting he has more than a big winner at the box office. And, like a good movie, the drama went down to the wire.

"I must say that until 1:30 Saturday morning, I wasn't 100 per cent sure we had a deal. It had been such an on-and-off thing," Levin said in a telephone interview.

It was achieved, said Levin, with "low-key pressure. I hadn't talked to Bill about business in three or four months. At one we were close, but Bill said 'my foot isn't ready and I can't negotiate in good faith as long as there is doubt.'

"That showed me something about the man," said Levin, a much-decorated B-17 pilot who later headed a major motion picture company.

He signed Walton, 26, to seven years for what Levin called the best contract in the NBA. In return for Walton, Levin expects Portland to demand a heavy price in compensation. He meets with Trail Blazers officials later this week to work it out.

In the meantime, he rejects the notion that Walton, with his long history of injuries, is a gamble.

Inman Expects Compensation From San Diego For Walton

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — There are five players on the San Diego roster who could provide marketable trade material for the Portland Trail Blazers, according to Portland's player personnel director, Stu Inman.

Inman mentioned Swen Nater, Kevin Kunnert, Kermit Washington, Lloyd Free and Randy Smith Tuesday as he discussed possible compensation for the Clippers' signing of Bill Walton Sunday.

Whatever the outcome, Inman expects the compensation award to be the the largest in the history of the National Basketball Association.

"Oh absolutely," Inman said. "It will the be the biggest ever, I'm sure, now that Bill's got a clean bill of health."

The problem, Inman said, lies with the San Diego roster, which he said contains only "modest pickings" for the Blazers.

Portland could use a center or small forward. San Diego's best players, besides Walton, are guards Free and Smith and power forward Washington.

The Blazers have two top power forwards in Maurice Lucas and Mychal Thompson; and four guards in Lionel Hollins, Ron Brewer, T.R. Dunn and Dave Twardzik.

So where does that leave the Blazer management? They are thinking about trades, perhaps even before the June 25 draft of college players.

"I would think it would be advantageous to both parties to resolve this as soon as possible," Inman said,, "So we'll just have to sit and work as judiciously as possible and hopefully there is a chance something could be done prior to the draft. But there certainly is no guarantee of that, given the history of compensation rulings."

The Clippers owe the Denver Nuggets compensation for siging Brian Taylor, but hat is expected to be cleared up long before th Walton issue is resolved.

If the Blazers and Clippers can't agree on compensation for Walton, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien will make a ruling.

Historically, such compensation awards have been generous. Seattle received Lonnie Shelton, a first-round draft pick and $450,000 when New York signed Marvin Webster.

"Kermit Washington is respected in the NBA as a good, journeyman power forward," Inman added, "and Lloyd Free certainly did a great job for them this season."

Smith may the best of them all, but he'll be 31 this December and his age could reduce his value in any trade, Inman said.

Rookie guard Freeman Williams hasn't been around long enough to determine his value in the NBA, he said.

If the Blazers deal for a top draft pick, Inman said, they probably would go after the best guard or small forward available. There are no top centers in the draft, except for perhaps Bill Cartwright of San Francisco and Cliff Robinson of Southern Cal, he said.

There aren't many top centers available in the NBA either, Inman said.

Whatever the Blazers do, Inman said, they won't be fully compensated for the loss of Walton, the NBA's most valuable player in the 1977-78 season and the man who led Portland to the NBA title in 1977.

"You're not going to get another Bill Walton," Inman said. "He's one of the great players who've ever played the game."

Top Tracksters Set For Tri-Meet Event

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Track coach Cleburne Price promoted the upcoming Tri-Conference track and field meet Tuesday, calling it "one of the greatest" — if not the reatest — track meets ever held in the Southwest.

The Friday night meet will match from three conferences — Southwest, Southeastern and Western Athletic — against each other. Two athletes will represent each league.

Price said this is the first time such a meet has ever been held.

Individual competitors include:

• James Mallard of Alabama, whose time of 19.8 seconds in the 200 meters in the recent SEC meet is faster than the listed American and college records. Mallard's race was hand-timed, however, and only fully automatic times can be counted for records.

• James Mays of Texas Tech, second in the nation in the 800 meters in 1:47.14. (Mays was invited but his performance will not count for the SWC.

• Svein Walvik of Texas-El Paso, second in the discus.

• Curtis Dickey of Texas A&M, two-time NCAA indoor 60-yard dash champion.

• Jerome Deal, Texas-El Paso, fourth in the 100 meters in 10.19.

• Frank Lyons of Texas, fourth in the javelin, 261-8.

• Jeff Woodard of Alabama, third in the high jump in 7-3¾.

Sixty-four of the 96 athletes competing for points have already qualified for the 1979 NCAA championships, including 24 from the SWC, 22 from the WAC and 18 from the SEC.

"These will be the greatest races and the greatest competitors ever to appear in Memorial Stadium," Price told a news conference.

"If not the greatest, this will be one of the greatest meets ever held in this part of the country," said Price. "No one has ever put three conferences together before."

Texas has the nation's best 1,600-meter relay time of 3:04.64, and LSU is fourth, but Texas anchorman Michael Paul of Trinidad will miss the meet to compete in his country's Pan American trials.

Also entered in the meet from Texas Tech is miler Ricky McCormick. McCormick placed third at the SWC championships Saturday night but was invited when Baylor's Todd Harbour, who finished second, decided not to compete in the event.

Observers Praise Spectacular Bid's Workout

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Luis Barrera tempered his enthusiasm with realism after Flying Zee Stable's Screen King worked five furlongs in 58 4/5 seconds at Pimlico Race Course Tuesday.

"He can't work better than that," Barrera said after the workout, the best yet for any of the five expected starters in Saturday's $200,000-added Preakness Stakes. "How many horses go that fast on this track?"

The son of Silent Sreen, the 2-year-old champion of 1969, broke off at the five-eighths pole and was caught in fractions of 11 4/5, 23, 35, 47, and 58 4/5 before galloping out six furlongs in 1:14.

But as he came off the track, after watching Hawksworth Farm's Spectacular Bid and Bertram R. Firestone's General Assembly gallop two miles, Barrera was singing the praises of Spectacular Bid, the Kentucky Derby winner who is rated a 1-2 favorite in the 1 3/16-mile Preakness.

"I think both my horse and General Assembly will need a little bit of luck to beat Spectacular Bid," Barrera said. "But I am satisfied the way he's working. I think he likes the track."

Screen King, sixth in the Derby after going off as the third choice, has been installed as the 12-1 longshot in the Preakness by Pimlico oddsmaker Earle Hart.

Hart lists General Assembly, the Derby runner-up, as the 9-2 second choice, with Bernard J. Ridder's Flying Paster at 5-1 and Oldknow and Phipps' Golden Act at 6-1. Flying Paster, the second choice in the Derby, finished fifth at Churchill Downs and Golden Act was third.

With five starters, the 104th Preakness would have its smallest field since Citation whipped three rivals on the way to winning the Triple Crown in 1948. On only three other occasions since the turn of the century have there been five or fewer starters.

Even with the small field, however, the Preakness will gross a record $235,300 because the added value was increased by $50,000 this year. The winner will earn $165,300.

A victory Saturday for Spectacular Bid would make him the youngest millionaire in racing history. The son of Bold Bidder already has earned $958,287, while winning 13 of 15 starts, including 11 consecutive stakes triumphs.

Golden Act rallied from seventh to third over the last quarter mile of the Derby, which is one-sixteenth of a mile longer than the Preakness, but didn't gain on Spectacular Bid in the stretch. Screen King didn't show his usual late kick.

"I'm going to be coming from behind," Barrera said of Screen King, "I don't care what the pace is. You can't send him to the lead. The only time he did was in his first start. Ever since then, he's come from behind."

Screen King won his only start of 1978 at Belmont and then won three of six outtings at Aqueduct this year. His Derby start was his first outside the New York area.

Gerulaitis Takes Crack at Tennis Refs

NEW YORK (AP) — Vitas Gerulaitis, the jet-setter on the tennis circuit, doesn't count most tennis officials among his wide circle of friends. He says referees and umpires are trying to turn tennis players into mindless, emotionless automatons.

"Tennis isn't as much fun as it used to be," Gerulaitis said Tuesday. "Now, with all the rules and super referees, they've taken a lot of fun out of the game.

"There's so much money involved that everybody is taking it so seriously. The tournament referees and umpires are taking it so seriously that everybody is looking at everybody else to see who's doing something wrong.

"And it's just gonna get worse. It will be worse for the kids coming up. Now they're penalizing you points if you throw your racquet down. There's a lot of pressure out there. . .To me, there's nothing wrong with showing a little bit of emotion.

Gerulaitis isn't displeased with all aspects of tennis, however. He was happy to attend a Tuesday luncheon publicizing the second $300,000 Forest Hills Invitational tennis tournament, which he won last year, pocketing a first prize of $100,000.

The 24-year-old Gerulaitis, ranked fifth in the world, was one of five metropolitan New Yorkers who have been penciled in to play in the 12-man round-robin event at Forest Hills, N.Y., July 9-15. The others are third-ranked John McEnroe, who beat Bjorn Borg and Jimmy Connors enroute to capturing the recent World Championship of Tennis final at Dallas, Peter Fleming, and Sandy and Gene Mayer.

Mike Davies, executive director of the WCT, said there have been negotiations with Connors to play, but Jimmy's wife, Patti, is expecting a baby around that time. Borg is highly questionable because Sweden probably will be playing Davis Cup that week in July.

Despite the $100,000 first prize, Connors and Borg passed up the Forest Hills Invitational last year, in part, because it came the week after Wimbledon. The scheduling is the same this year.

Gerulaitis has been one notch below the very top players the past couple of years. He was a semifinalist at Wimbledon in 1977 and 1978 and a semifinalist at the U.S. Open last year, but he has yet to make the big breakthrough to win one of those major titles.

Gerulaitis says his preparations for Wimbledon this year include working on attacking the net more to offset the stronger games of Borg and Connors.

President Receives Award From Country Singers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter received a special award Tuesday from the Country Music Association, and made a joke of singer Willie Nelson's beer drinking.

Country stars Nelson and Charlie Pride presented the award at an Oval Office ceremony recognizing Carter's enthusiasm for country music.

As Nelson handed over an inscribed glass bowl from the association, the president joked, "This is the first time I ever saw you with a glass in your hand without beer in it."

'30s Play Still Relevant In Present Day

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "You Can't Take it With You" often is referred to as the grandfather of all situation comedies.

Art Carney, who plays eccentric Grandpa Vanderhof, calls it that. "It's hard to realize the play was written more than 40 years ago," he said. "We see something of all our families in the characters."

But the TV adaptation's director, Paul Bogart, doesn't agree that the play is inspired situation comedy. Bogart has directed "All in the Family" for the past four years.

"It's about a group of very positive individuals, all with firm personalities," he said. "Some call it the granddaddy of situation comedy, but I don't see it that way.

"It's a play about real people who are dealing with their lives in what was then a very unusual way.

"People conformed back in the '30s. That's the power of the play — you better hurry up and do what you want to do before it's too late. That's why the third act works so beautifully. Grandpa is voicing feelings people have put away. They've settled for careers and money, and they're missing life and had better hurry up."

"You Can't Take it With You," a Pulitzer Prize-winner by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, airs in Lubbock at 8 p.m. today on Channel 13. It stars Carney, Jean Stapleton, Barry Bostwick, Blythe Danner, Marla Gibbs, Howard Hesseman, Polly Holliday, Beth Howland, Robert Mandan, Kenneth Mars, Harry Morgan, Mildred Natwick, Tim Reid, Eugene Roche, Paul Sand and Joyce Van Patten.

Bostwick said it's a simple story of boy meets girl, boy loses girl, boy gets girl. It revolves around Miss Danner's family, the Sycamores, and his courtship of her.

"The play starts very slowly and leisurely," Bogart said. "All the Sycamores are introduced and all their peculiarities are expressed. The first hint of conflict appears when the girl (Miss Danner) comes in. She brings in the conflict, the only conflict in the play."

Despite an extensive background on Broadway, Bogart had never seen the play before. "It was on Broadway when I was a kid," he said. "I was deep into the theater then and read everything about it, but I couldn't afford it, even at 55 cents for a balcony seat.

"But I read the play and it devolves that 40 years later I get to do it. When I was a kid I wanted to be a part of the Algonquin Round Table, and this gets me closer to them."

Its adaptation to television wasn't a simple matter. First, Bogart had to struggle with the dated references in the play. Two central points, however, remain current. They are Paul Sand's run-in with the FBI over printing revolutionary slogans, and Grandpa's troubles with the Internal Revenue Service because he's never paid income tax.

"We also had to work on the language," said Bogart. "There were a lot of 'darlings' and 'my dears' that made it very Broadway. We also found there were a number of different printed versions of the play. We combined those, and we trimmed the repetitions and we trimmed it for time."

Bogart got his start in the early days of live television. He began as a puppeteer, but soon became a stage manager, then an assistant director. "I became a director before I even knew which end of the camera you looked in," he said.

He went on to become one of television's top directors of drama, then directed for the stage and movies. His films include "Skin Game" and "Class of '44." "I'm not desperate to make a picture," he said. "I'll make one if a good one comes along, but right now I'm saying no to everything."

Case Of Flu Leads Young Woman To Off-Broadway Writing

NEW YORK (AP) — Many playwrights say they wanted to do what they do even as kids. Not the new kid in town, Robin Swicord, 26. She just wanted to write. She had no idea it'd lead to Off-Broadway.

But it did. Her first full-length play, "The Last Days at the Dixie Girl Cafe," just opened here this week. And she's writing anothern "Souvenirs," about a lady who shoots pin-up photos in Florida.

Florida is where she grew up, in Panama City, to be exact. She's an ex-reporter, having worked on the Florida Flambeau in Tallahassee while attending Florida State College there.

She's also an ex-news photographer. She used to work at a TV Station in Panama City, filming car wrecks and such. She also was a copywriter at a New York ad agency, but retired from that last year.

"It wasn't very creative," she says. "They actually could have programmed a computer to do the ads I did. I'd come up with a funny headline now and then, but there was no way to make my mark."

Robin, brown-haired, possessed of a pixie sense of humor got in the drama business in an odd way. She was working in Tallahassee in 1977, caught the flu, repaired to bed for a week and wrote a one-act play just to pass the time.

It was called "True Love Will Never Die," a comedy. Just for fun, she took it to a little theater group she knew and showed it to friends there. To her surprise, they produced it.

She then began learning the arts of playwriting from a pal, director Lynn Thomson, who later moved to New York — and is directing Miss Swicord's "The Last Days," a romantic comedy.

The rookie author had studied theater in college, but not the writing end of it: "I just wanted to learn technique, how to light, how to record sound, because I was interested in film."

When director Thomson set up shop here, she asked Robin to write another one-act play. "The Last Days" was it, and premiered, along with "True Love," last year in an off-off Broadway production.

But during rehearsals, Miss Swicord says, she realized "The Last Days" had potential to be a full-length play and could be expanded. Expansion work occupied her last summer and fall.

About the play: She says it concerns a middle-aged woman who runs a cafe in Bainbridge, Ga. The lady, a fundamentalist Christian, believes the end of the world is at hand.

She's engaged to a man who owns a fallout shelter firm. He also feels the grand finale is afoot — but only because the U.S. military dispenses A-bombs too freely, thanks to liberals in government.

ROBIN SWICORD

It sounds like a farce, Robin concedes, but it isn't: "I wanted to write about religious fervor in a way that wasn't laughable, didn't make fun of it. And about what happens to this family."

In theatrical matters, playwright Swicord tends to be a heretic. She's glad she didn't start her career in drama, but first experienced life as a reporter and photographer instead.

"I might have wound up in the same place, the theater, but I wouldn't have been as enriched," she says. "The work I've done with my camera, it's been a passport into a lot of worlds."

Nor does she believe the theater's rumor that life begins and ends on the stage: "I have to keep myself open as much as possible to as many different worlds as I can.

"Otherwise, I'm going to wind up with nothing to write when I'm 40. I'll have made the inside of the theater my life, and it's not just that interesting."

Heartline

(Editor's Note: Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems fast. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 East Dayton Street, West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.)

HEARTLINE: I heard that Medicare will help cover the costs of purchasing or renting an air conditioner if that air conditioner is needed for medical reasons. My doctor has advised that I purchase an air conditioner as I have respiratory problems. Will Medicare help to buy one?—F.S.

No. Medicare will not help to pay for an air conditioner under any circumstances.

Heartline has a booklet that lists the most common things that are and are not covered by Medicare. For Heartline's complete explanation of Medicare, send $1.75 to Medicare Guidebook, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381.

HEARTLINE: An insurance man came to my home and explained about his Medicare supplement policy. The policy sounded good, but I always talk insurance matters over with my son before I buy a policy. This insurance man politely insisted that if I was to have his policy at all, I must take it out then because he could not come back. I almost gave in, but fortunately I have your excellent booklet (Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance), and I did not, as your book suggests, let him pressure me into buying. I just don't understand why insurance companies let their agents act that way. Can you explain?—K.W.

These pressure tactics are common. Most insurance agents selling Medicare supplement policies are paid by commission. In other words, no sale, no pay. In many cases, the insurance agent who insists that he or she cannot come back really could if he or she wanted to. The fact is, the agent probably would come back if it appears that you are really going to buy, but if not, he doesn't want to waste his time. Most insurance agents who sell Medicare supplement policies work on some type of lead system. The agent's philosophy is usually: If they don't buy right away they won't buy later. Why waste time when I have other leads to follow?

Many Medicare supplement agents do work large territories, even as much as a quarter of half of a state. There is sometimes a situation where the agent really cannot come back because he might be 150 miles away the next day and may not be back in your area for months. These are only a few of the reasons why insurance agents may pressure the prospective buyer.

No matter what the reason, you should not buy unless you are sure. In most states, however, there are state laws that will protect you. These states allow you a period of a time, normally 10 days, to read your policy when it arrives and return it for a full refund if not satisfied. Heartline does have a booklet on health insurance, which is available for $1.75 from Heartline's Guide to Health Insurance, P.O. Box 11934, Chicago, Ill. 60611. We also have free literature which gives you tips on purchasing health insurance. Send for Tips on Buying Health Insurance, 114 East Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45381. Please send 25 cents when requesting free literature to cover postage and handling.

HEARTLINE: I was hurt in a water-skiing accident and won't be able to go back to work for about four months. Can I get disability benefits from Social Security for the months I am unable to work?-B.B.

From what you say, it appears you would not qualify. Under Social Security, you are considered disabled if you have a severe physical or mental condition which prevents you from working and is expected to last (or has lasted) for at least 12 months or to result in death.

United States Recalling Envoy To Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department expressed "grave disappointment" Tuesday and announced the recall of the U.S. ambassador to Chile after a Chilean judge rebuffed an extradition request in the Orlando Letelier murder case.

Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance personally ordered the recall of U.S. Ambassador George Landau for consultations and to participate in a "thorough review" of U.S.-Chilean relations.

Letelier, a socialist Chilean exile leader, was killed in a 1976 car-bombing in the Embassy Row section of Washington. On Monday, Chilean Supeme Court President Israel Borquez said the United States had presented insufficent evidence in its request for the extradition of three Chilean army officers, retired Gen. Manuel Contreras Sepulveda, Col. Pedro Espinoza and Capt. Armando Fernandez.

Disputing Borquez's finding, Carter told reporters, "The evidence submitted by the United States to the Chilean Supreme Court was clearly sufficient to support extradition."

At the Justice Department, Attorney General Griffin Bell issued a similar statement. He called Letelier's murder a "heinous crime" and said the department is "committed to ensuring that this case sets no precedent for this type of terrorist act."

Spokesman Carter said the strength of the U.S. evidence against the three officers was confirmed last February when a Washington jury convicted two other defendants in the case.

"We do not believe that yesterday's decision was consistent with international norms of justice," Carter said.

The U.S. case against the three rested largely on the testimony of Michael Townley, an American citizen who worked for the Chilean secret police. He confessed his involvement in the slaying and was sentenced to 40 months to 10 years in jail.

Carter also disclosed that the United States will appeal and urge reversal of the Borquez decision. He said the administration hopes the panel of the Supreme Court conducting the review will order extradition.

"We strongly believe that extradition would permit the most expeditious and fair method for pursuing justice in this case," Carter said.

After Borquez's decision was announced Monday, Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., sent a letter to President Carter calling for a suspension of all U.S. military and economic assistance now in the pipeline to Chile.

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, said the administration stopped short of such punitive action because the case is under appeal and because the possibility that the three might be tried in Chile has not been ruled out.

The death of Letelier has strained U.S.-Chilean relations ever since the car in which he was riding was blown up on Sept. 21, 1976. A colleague who was accompanying Letelier, Ronni Moffitt, also was killed.

Letelier served as Chile's ambassador to Washington during the government of President Salvador Allende and also held three cabinet posts under Allende.

He was arrested and jailed for a year after the military junta took power in 1973. After his release, he came to the United States and became an outspoken critic of the junta. A few days before his death, Chilean authorities stripped him of his citizenship.

Statue's 'Plastic Surgery' 2,500 Years Old

ROME (AP) — The Ephebus of Selinus, a famous bronze statue of an Athenian youth, underwent "plastic surgery" 2,500 years ago, restoration experts reported Tuesday.

The finding cleared away suspicions that the bronze was merely a poor imitation of a high quality original, the Central Institute of Restoration said.

Experts determined that the original casting, dating to the fifth century B.C., deteriorated because of the poor quality of the alloy and another artisan was brought in. He inserted a tiny bronze plate in the thorax while other work was done on the legs.

As a result, the statue is believed to be about 2 inches taller than the original. It also appears that the head and the arms differ in style.

Police Nab Terrorist In Turkey

ISTANBUL (AP) — Police have captured one of the leaders of the leftist terrorist gang, the Turkish Peoples Liberation Front, the newspaper Hurriyet reported Tuesday. It said police have gained valuable information from his interrogation as to identities and whereabouts of other leading terrorists.

The paper claimed that a medical student, Ahmet Yazi Harman, recently detained, was a member of the "central committee" of the front and prepared most of the plans for the slayings or bombings carried out by this organization or another militant arm of it, the Marxist-Leninist Armed Propaganda Union.

The latter has claimed responsibility for the slaying of two U.S. servicemen in Turkey within the last month. Aceording to police, its members also have killed policemen and political rivals and have pulled off several big robberies.

Hurriyet said Harman, code-named "red doctor," had the final say on any plans of terrorist action submitted by the "action cells" of both organizations but he did not take part in them. In his interrogation, Harman named five other members of the "central committee," all fugitives from prison sought by police, the paper reported.

Officials in Istanbul declined to comment on the report.

Harman was also described as the brains behind the daring daylight holdup several months ago of a payroll truck that netted the organization 15 million Turkish lira, or $600,000.

Two terrorists who actually carried out the robbery, "Uncle" Omer Cimeken and "Ivan" Tamer Tabak, were killed in a shootout with police last week in Istanbul.

The Turkish Peoples Liberation Front first surfaced in 1971 and was responsible at the time for the kidnap murders of Israel's consul general in Istanbul and three NATO technicians. It went underground and stopped its activities after a two-year (1971-2) martial law crackdown on Turkey's extreme left.

But four years ago the remnants of the group reorganized, started recruiting new members and resumed terrorist activitities.

Escalating political violence between extreme leftist and rightist gangs as well as rival leftist factions has claimed about 1,400 lives in Turkey since the beginning of last year

CHINESE ACCUSED

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam's Committee for the Investigation of Chinese Crimes, set up after China began a month-long invasion of the country on Feb. 17, accused China Tuesday of crimes "more ruthless than those of the Nazis and more cruel than those of the Chinese medieval tyrants. The report said that Chinese troops wantonly killed Vietnamese civilians, especially women and children, using machetes to chop off their heads and iron bars, axes, shovels, hammers and rifle butts to crush their skulls.
