22 PLANES TO BLAST SHIPS OF REVOLTERS

BUSINESS IS SLOW AS NATION AWAITS OUTCOME

(Copyright, 1935, by The Associated Press)
ATHENS, March 4.—Greek government troops, led personally by Gen. George Kondylis, minister of war, smashed in force today against the rebels in Macedonia and the government announced at nightfall that the rebels had been hemmed in.

ATHENS, March 4.—Harassed on two fronts like a nation at war, the Greek government today dispatched infantry, artillery, warships and airplanes into Macedonia, Crete, and the Aegean sea against rebels who had thus far swept all before them.

Twenty-two bombing planes flown by loyal pilots took off from Athens to bomb warships which put to sea under the command of rebel officers.

Loyal government troops in eastern Macedonia marched on Drama, the village of ancient Saloniki near the plain of Philip. It is one of the oldest battlefields in the world. It was there that Brutus and Cassius were defeated in 42 B. C.

(Across the Yugoslav border, heavy fighting was reported heard, the Yugoslavs saying that both the Greek government forces and the rebels were using artillery and that the engagement had taken on the characteristics of a major battle.)

Government air pilots reported that they had wrecked the home of the leader of the rebellion, former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos. They flew over his estate at Canea, Crete, and dropped a series of bombs.

(Another alleged rebel leader, Gen. Nicholas Plastiras, who ran a Greek revolution in 1922, was reported missing from his hotel in Cannes and it was rumored he might have sailed for Crete.)

Gen. George Kondylis, minister of war, took personal command of the government campaign in an effort to force a sudden end to the hostilities which broke out Saturday.

The military restrictions in Athens were tightened. All radio stations were ordered to stay silent. Private automobiles were forbidden to circulate.

The government announced it would open courtmartial tomorrow and that rebels would be tried solely by army officers.

The bourse was closed and business practically came to a standstill.

A number of prominent people visited President Zaimis this morning and asked him to intervene to prevent further loss of lives and property damage.

The government, however, declared that it could not permit any interference with activities.

Italy Agrees on Neutral Zone in Ethiopian Row

LONDON, March 4. (AP)—Authoritative British quarters stated today that Italy had reached an agreement on Ethiopia on the proposed neutral zone between the African empire and the Italian colonies of Somaliland and Eritrea. These quarters understood that the Italian envoys to Addis Ababa had been instructed to consult the Ethiopian government immediately regarding details of the neutral zone.

An official source said that although Italy's action meant only an acceptance in principle of the neutral zone idea, it was believed that it would lead to a peaceful settlement of the dispute between the two nations, thereby averting hostilities.

Mechanic's Car Is Found Here

The 1929 Oldsmobile sedan belonging to Cecil Cecil, mechanic at the Tom Rose Motor company, and stolen from in front of Mr. Cecil's home Thursday night, was found yesterday morning parked along the Santa Fe tracks east of Hobart street crossing.

One wheel was missing from the car, which had been driven about 150 miles since it was stolen. The car was found by a man driving in the Santa Fe section house. He called Mr. Cecil, who identified the car.

SAM BRASWELL in Clarendon News—Experts may know better, but the intelligent layman's opinion is that the airplane has far outdistanced the digible for all purposes of war and peace. The airplane can conquer any digible, it can fly faster, and its record in loss of life shows it to be far safer for its operators and passengers.

But there is something healthier about that—a rich young man scornful of gifts of position in order to get down on the plane of the laborer he is to employ and to experience some of the humanness that is impossible in a far-away office achieving without effort—than about the gime-gimme crowd's attitude.

Lost Flier Is Reported Found

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia, March 4. (AP)—Lady Young, lost since last Thursday on an airplane flight over the jungles, was reported today to have been found alive by searchers.

First reports were hazy as to the details of the reported rescue.

Major Sir Hubert Young, the governor of Northern Rhodesia and husband of the lost woman, had directed searching parties ever since her disappearance.

FIRST BANKER OF PANHANDLE PASSES AWAY

JUDGE PAUL IS DEAD; FUNERAL LIKELY TOMORROW

PANHANDLE, March 4.—Judge J. C. Paul, 82, founder of the first bank on the plains, died at 9:30 p.m. here last night of a paralytic stroke. He had been in a coma since he was stricken eight days before. He suffered a stroke in Long Beach, Calif., in March 1931, but recovered.

Funeral services had not been announced at noon today but they probably will be held tomorrow at the First Presbyterian church at Amarillo. It was said.

Mr. Paul established the Panhandle bank May 6, 1888 with John M. Moore, George C. Maslin, and W. F. Puckett as partners. A short time later, he bought their interests.

After the organization of Carson county, Judge Paul was named the first county treasurer, and held the office six years. He later served as county judge. The Normal James Christopher Paul was born Sept. 19, 1852, in Rockbridge county, Virginia. His father was a close friend of Cyrus H. McCormick, inventor of the reaper. He left Virginia when he was 21 years old and went to Illinois, where he attended the Normal at Bloomington and taught a school. He was married to Miss Nina Darby in Crystal Lake, Ill., in 1885. She died in Panhandle in 1892.

Moving farther west, Mr. Paul engaged in the real estate business in Wichita, Kans., and then came to Panhandle. He served as treasurer of the general offices of the Santa Fe, and assisted in moving the headquarters from Panhandle to Amarillo.

In the early days, the railroad ran to Washburn and Santa Fe trains went over the Fort Worth to Denver to Amarillo. In the early part of this century, a direct line was built to Amarillo.

Mr. Paul was chairman of the board of the Panhandle bank, First National bank, of Panhandle, and the State bank of Amarillo. Three years he was also interested in ranching and owned cattle.

Judge Paul married Miss Cora Bryant, who became his second wife. She died in 1911. Judge Paul and his son Howard opened a bank in Slaton in 1912. Another son, Frank A. Paul, is president of the First National bank and Panhandle bank at Panhandle. Howard is in the Paul bank in Amarillo.

During the last 18 years, Judge Paul spent the winters in California and Florida. He was interested in his native state of Virginia and about 15 years ago bought the old home place which was transformed into a farm and dairy. He usually visited in Virginia during the summer.

Judge Paul was a member of the Rotary club and both of his sons are past presidents of Rotary clubs.

Scores of friends from over this section called daily to inquire of his condition during his illness.

Holmes Passes Comfortable Night

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—Former supreme court justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, seriously ill with bronchial pneumonia, passed a comfortable night and his nurse detected no change in his condition, Mark Howe, a former secretary, reported early today.

Mr. Holmes' doctor were not called during the night and the former justice slept well, Howe said.

Still Believes That Sales Levy Is Wrong

AUSTIN, March 4. (AP)—Governor James V. Allred today recommended to the Texas legislature a tax of one cent per thousand cubic feet on natural gas, a "substantial increase" in the oil or levy, a selective luxury tax, a graduated chain store levy, and a higher levy on oil pipelines and inheritances.

The governor also urged a graduated income tax if additional revenue was needed. He said an income tax, with the payer permitted to deduct his ad valorem tax on property from which the income was earned, was "one of the fairest and most equitable levies the state could make."

"If an income tax is enacted it should begin with comparatively low brackets bearing an extremely low rate," Allred said.

The governor followed his policy of delivering important messages in person to a joint session. He reiterated his opposition to a general sales tax as wrong in principle.

Not Very Specific
He made a specific recommendation on the oil tax but asked lawmakers to investigate "with the view of equalizing the tax burdens borne by various natural resources of Texas."

"In levying a tax against oil, I believe this legislature should consider that it is subject to depletion and eventually it will be taken forever from Texas soil," the chief executive said. "It should consider further that the oil industry is a money-making industry even in the midst of these days of economic depression. The legislature should consider the fact that about 85 per cent of oil produced in Texas is used outside Texas borders."

"The state auditor has estimated that the deficit in the general revenue fund on August 31 will be $9,443,822.89," Allred said. "There will be also a deficit of $5,181,783.98 in the confederate pension fund. In my judgment, it is not a sound business policy to try to liquidate the total obligations of the state and retire this deficit within a single year or even a biennium. The deficit, however, is of such alarming proportions that we should at this time begin a constructive effort toward its ultimate retirement; and, in any event, it should not be permitted to increase."

"Owners of real estate, particularly farmers, should be urged to contribute to the fund."

ROAD SURVEY NORTH DUE TO BE LAUNCHED

E. W. MARRS, ENGINEER FOR STATE, TO DO THE WORK

E. W. Marrs, state highway department engineer, and W. J. Van London, district engineer, were scheduled to arrive here today to begin immediate survey of a road north across the river to the upper Panhandle. Mr. Marrs will make the survey for the road which Pampa will urge be designated.

The proposed road would be an extension of the Pampa-Clarendon-Turkey-Laredo road. Under the plans of the Board of City Development which raised funds to rush designation of the highway, the road would achieve international distinction since it would be a highway passing directly through Pampa to Mexico City.

Mr. Marrs surveyed the Clarendon-Turkey road, recently designated by the state highway department. He will begin work immediately. His survey will be recommended for designation by the B. C. D.

In connection with the expected arrival of Mr. Marrs, Judge J. A. Mead of Miami was in the chamber of commerce office today.

Cards on Housing Survey Should Be Mailed to B.C.D.

Demand for houses in Pampa is being clearly reflected in the postal card survey being made by the B. C. D. and Junior chamber of commerce.

More than fifty families which would like to live here have been listed.

Pampans who have received the stamped postal card are requested to fill it out and mail it immediately. The question to be answered is: "Do you know of persons not now living in Pampa because of inability to find houses here?"

The names of such families are desired in order to avoid duplication.

FORMER WOMAN WARDEN GETS VINDICATION IN NEW REPORT

State Investigators Discredit Story Told Governor by Former Prisoner Recently.

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 4. (AP)—State investigators today announced Mrs. George A. Waters, former warden of the Granite state reformatory, was completely cleared of all charges of cruelty to prisoners.

The report of the special investigating committee, prepared by Senator Gerald Spencer of Chickasha, also found reports of sexual perversion among inmates were unfounded.

In particular, the report discredited the charges of George Matlage, former prisoner, who told Governor Marland he had been left handcuffed to iron bars after his arms had been broken by a guard.

The report vindicated Mrs. Waters, for eight years the nation's only woman warden of a male penal institution on every charge brought against her.

Garages Blown Down By Wind

The hard wind caved in a string of garages at the Dixon Creek Oil company camp west of Pampa yesterday afternoon when the dust storm that blackened this section struck.

Other small buildings in the community were damaged by the high wind which reached a velocity of around 50 miles an hour near Amarillo. The dust storm was followed by hail and sleet, then enough rain to more than settle the dust. The atmosphere was comparatively clear after the shower.

CURRICULUM PROBLEM IS THEME OF MEETING OF SCHOOL MEN ATTENDED BY SUPT. FISHER

Social Changes Cause of New Studies—Teachers Will Hear Report.

The problems that is uppermost in the minds of educators at this time is the subject of the theme of the convention of the department of the theme of the convention of the superintendents, National Association which convened last week in Atlantic City, N. J., according to Supt. R. B. Fisher who returned last night from the convention.

The theme of the meeting was "social changes and the curriculum," Mr. Fisher said.

There is a strong tendency to reorganize the college and high school curriculums to give a maintenance as well as cultural background to the student; in other words, to equip the student to be able to make a living. Mr. Fisher said. Educators are possessed of a bent to center the education of youth around social studies of practical value.

The Parent-Teacher associations of Pampa and of the entire state have made an extensive study of social changes in the curriculums during the last year.

About 10,000 attended the convention, including 7,500 superintendents from various parts of the nation. About 300 attended from Texas, and 200 of these rode on the president's special train which stopped in Washington where Mr. Fisher visited the capital.

The local superintendent it was elected secretary of the schoolmen's club, an organization indorsed and sponsored by the Lions, at a banquet. George Stevens of Kiowa, Kan., was elected president.

Mr. Fisher heard the newest and oldest trends in modern education discussed. Leading educators of the nation attended and many of them appeared on the program. He considered the trip was of great value, and he will "pass on" to teachers in the local school system some of the benefits received when he addresses teachers of the Woodrow Wilson school at 4 o'clock Tuesday, and the Junior high and high school and other teachers of the city later on.

Mr. Fisher's expenses were paid by the school board.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED—WOMAN RESIDENT HURT

PANHANDLE HAS WORST DUSTSTORM OF MANY YEARS

FORNEY, March 4. (AP)—Two children were killed and property damage in excess of $100,000 was caused by a tornado which swept through Forney just before dawn today.

Practically every building in town was damaged to some extent, some of them being demolished.

Filmy houses in the negro section were blown away. It was there that two negro children lost their lives in the ruins of their home.

A white woman, Mrs. B. C. Edwards, was the only other casualty. She was injured but not seriously.

The tornado tore into Forney, a Kaufman county farming town of about 1,000 population, from the south and raced on northward, inflicting some damage at Rockwall 30 miles away. Two Rockwall drug stores were partially wrecked.

The path of the tornado was marked by the debris of barns and outhouses, twisted trees, leveled crops and torn communication lines.

A quarter of an inch of moisture fell in Pampa Sunday afternoon, when rain was accompanied by a light hail. The hail was small, resembling sleet. A high wind and dust preceded the rain, but the dust was not as heavy here as at Amarillo and points west. Another dust storm was developing today.

In Forney, two huge cotton warehouses were demolished, the East Texas Cotton Oil company's mill was damaged to the extent of about $10,000. The Texas and Pacific depot was unroofed and otherwise damaged badly, the back end of the Knights of Pythias hall was blown in, and, downstairs in the same building the Anderson-Clayton undertaking establishment was wrecked.

Roads impassable
There were unconfirmed reports that rural residents in the path of the tornado had been injured, but roads were impassable and communication lines were down, making it impossible to verify whether there were casualties outside of Forney.

"It didn't last two minutes—just hit and was gone," was the way B. B. Hulsey, manager of the East Texas Cotton Oil company, described the storm.

Scout Leaders Attend Session In Sweetwater

Officials of the Adobe Walls Scout council attended a sectional Scout meeting at Sweetwater yesterday. Presidents, vice presidents, finance committees and other officers of councils in the Panhandle, West Texas, and New Mexico attended. Numerous delegates drove from Albuquerque, N. M., to be at the conference.

Speakers were T. J. Keane of New York, director of Sea Scouting, and Chas. N. Miller, also of New York, assistant director of the division of operations, Boy Scouts of America. Mr. Miller's remarks on the matter of financing the council were particularly interesting to the Adobe Walls delegation, which included A. W. Nelson, C. R. Stahl of Borger, President A. G. Post, Scout Executive C. A. Clark, and J. O. Gillham of Pampa, and Mark Paulin of Whittsburg. The conference was attended by 124 in all. The sessions began early yesterday morning and closed late in the afternoon.

Mr. Clark said this morning that more than $200 had been received on the local budget this year without solicitation. He commended the practice of paying pledges without a campaign.

EDITORIAL

ARE THE PEOPLE ASLEEP?

To this newspaper, it is both surprising and disconcerting that the American people remain apparently apathetic in the face of a pronounced and well-supported movement toward public ownership of the nation's railroads.

It is a matter of common knowledge that Senator Wheeler is preparing a bill providing for nationalization of the carriers. In furtherance of this purpose, the senator has announced that he will introduce a resolution asking investigation of railroad financing and operation. He, as chairman of the committee, would conduct the investigation. The senator knows, of course, that the Interstate Commerce commission for years has investigated railroad financing and railroad operation, approving or disapproving as it saw fit. He and those supporting him can hope to do nothing but promote sentiment for abandonment of regulation in favor of outright public ownership.

This newspaper is opposed to public ownership of the railroads first, because it believes the principle to be unsound, and second, because experience has proven it to be economically impracticable. Reference has been made in these columns heretofore to the experience of Canada with a successful privately owned railroad and a tragically unsuccessful publicly owned railroad running side by side. The subject was dealt with recently in an address before the Board of Trade and Service Clubs of Vancouver, by E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific, rival of the publicly owned Canadian National. Describing the Canadian railroad situation as unsound and unhealthy, Mr. Beatty said:

"I do not know why we should continue to be sick just because we have heretofore been able to pay the doctor's bills. The railway experiments of the past have left us with a publicly owned system which has a debt of no less than $2,895,799,134, as of December 31, 1933. These are astronomical figures. They still tend to increase. By no method of bookkeeping can they be reduced."

More than this, however, I should like to know if you people have ever given a moment's serious thought to the question of whether the ownership of one of the transportation systems of this country by private interests constitutes an opportunity for exploitation. Do you realize that the publicly owned and privately owned railroads of Canada make exactly the same charges for the same service, that, in fact, in the last analysis, neither company fixes these rates.

Nor is this all. May I point out to you that the Royal Commission on Transportation reported that during the nine years, 1923-1931, the Canadian National Railways failed by no less than $456,063,195 to earn the interest which the government of Canada was bound to pay to private capitalists who owned the securities of that system. Whence came this sum of almost half a billion dollars? You paid as much for the service of that railway system as you would if it had been privately owned, and you paid in taxes almost half a billion dollars in those nine years to private capitalists for the privilege of saying that you owned the Canadian National railways."

Nor is Canada alone in this experience. It is perhaps true that in every instance where public ownership was adopted as a national policy, it was thrust upon the country. In Germany and France, it was a military measure. In some of the smaller countries of Europe there was not sufficient private capital available. In each of these instances, the experiment has been costly, and, according to reliable observers, the trend in continental Europe of late is away from public ownership. In Belgium and Italy, for example, the roads have been turned over to private companies for private operation.

That has been the experience of other countries. And what has been ours with private ownership in the meantime? The answer was summed up tersely in this language several months ago by John J. Cornwell, general counsel for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in an address at Cumberland, Md:

"Here in the United States private capital and private initiative have constructed, taking the railroads of the United States as a whole, a system of 250,000 miles of railroad. This American system, privately owned and privately managed, has paid the highest wages and the highest taxes of any railroads in the world; it has given the best service at the lowest relative rates of any railroad system in the world, and, at the same time, the railroads have had a lower capitalization than those of any other country. From the standpoint of service, of wages, of taxes, and of rates, certainly the history of government owned and operated railroads elsewhere does not invite government ownership in this country."

The railroads are not at present in a flourishing condition in this country, it is true. But for that matter, what industry is? The railroads have suffered from the depression perhaps more than has any other business activity. But they are continuing to give efficient service and will ride out their financial difficulties if business generally is re-established on a sound basis. If business is not so re-established, it can't make much difference who owns the railroads or anything else. Certain it is that there is no public hope in adding the railroad burden upon the taxpayers, even if the properties could be thus operated economically and efficiently, which no thoughtful person believes.

In the light of the experience of other nations with public ownership of railroads, and our own war-time experience with public operation, this newspaper cannot believe that the American people are willing to take this step. But they may find they have taken it without their consent if they do not at once impress their views upon the gentlemen representing them in the congress of the United States.—Wheeler (W. Va.) Intelligencer.

Dusting The Covers Of Texas History For THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF 1936

To the little girl listening to Deaf Smith with her elders, war was not altogether undesirable. How thrilling it must have been to capture General Cos! She touched the fine china pitcher once more, to be sure she was not dreaming. Her tablecloth was still bound tightly around her head, pulled together underneath her chin. She had explained to Deaf Smith that her sun-bonnet had floated down the Trinity and that if her father sold his cotton, he was going to buy her two or three sunbonnets, for he was tired of looking at her cloth. The girl, Mrs. Dilue Harris, gave to future generations her story of Texas in 1836, in a story of her life.

Deaf Smith, dressed in the buckskin of the Texas soldiers, was the color of the soil. He had spent many days out in the open since war began in October of the previous year. He had been one of Houston's valuable men. He had helped burn Vince's Bridge, and he had captured General Cos. Sent with several other men to give Filisola a dispatch from Santa Anna, he had come across Cos near Stafford's Point, with a china pitcher full of water, and an ear of corn. Smith took him prisoner, and rode with him back to the battlefield. General Cos gave Smith the pitcher when Smith gave him a horse to ride. The Texan informed his captive that if he found General Cos he intended to cut off his head and send it back to Mexico, for, he said, "General Cos offered a thousand dollars for my head." It was not until they reached General Houston that Deaf Smith discovered who his man was.

Mrs. Harris says that Smith gave the pitcher to her uncle, James Wells, who in turn gave it to her mother.

Days of riding in the bumpy cart finally ended, and the families were back in the homes they had fled in such terror and excitement. Mrs. Harris tells in her "Reminiscences" of finding her home with the floor torn up, and books, medicine and valuables strewn all over the yard. The hogs had gone inside the house and finished making a complete wreck of the rooms in which the Mexicans had ripped up the floor boards, looking for food.

It was too late for a cotton crop to have a good outcome, but the runaways managed to begin anew with what little they had. When the schooner Harrisburg came from New Orleans loaded with provisions, it was given away to those who had a scarcity of food.

"Mother was very despondent, but father was hopeful. He said Texas would gain her independence and become a great nation," Mrs. Harris writes. Not a great nation, but a great state that has become great through hope and persistent endeavor.

The schooner, "Flash" of the Texas navy, captained by Luke A. Fairlee, was the vessel that rescued Texas officials when Mexicans sighted them out of Galveston harbor. The "Flash" was a sturdy boat, and on it were President Burnett and his family, Vice President Lorenzo de Zavala and his family, and other cabinet members. The "Flash" was the first schooner into Galveston harbor when word came of the San Jacinto victory.

Odd, significant names were given the boats of the navy, which the provisional government had provided for in 1836. The "Invincible" was armed with eight guns, "Liberty" with four guns, and "Brutus" with eight guns. The "Flash" had only four. Two privateers, the "Tom Toby," named after the purchasing agent for Texas in New Orleans, and the "Terrible" were equipped with two guns each.

First to cruise along the Galveston coast and explore the land as far as the mouth of the Rio Grande was Captain Hawkins in his schooner "Independence," which sailed from New Orleans. He and his crew of 15 hearty men took to their boat and followed the coastline. They met a few boats from the States, and some from Mexico. Anchored at Galveston March 21, 1836, was a cargo of young Africans, brought over by Maurice Edwards to be slaves on plantations.

Although the Texas navy was small, it did valuable work in carrying supplies to inland stations, and in destroying Mexican commerce. Even though an infant country, a navy did not seem at all improper or improbable. It was more important after the republic was established, however. Texans who celebrate the Centennial in 1936 will not forget that one hundred years ago there was a real Texas navy.

New Campaign Against Carlo Mendieta Begins

HAVANA, March 2. (AP)—A new alarmist campaign got under way to the rear of bombs today as Col. Carlos Mendieta, veteran of many political upheavals, held steadfastly to the presidency in the face of insistent demands that he resign.

With Col. Fulgencio Batista, army commander-in-chief, still behind him despite intimations that he himself might take the office if things came to crisis, Mendieta ignored the demands of the new opposition "common front" and 300,000 striking students and teachers that he resign.

Terrorists set fire to 40 mail boxes over Havana, partly destroying correspondence, and placed two bombs, one at the home of Gustavo Herrero, political writer for the newspaper El Pais, and the other at the residence of Carlos Nario, former mayor of the nearby town of Hoyo Colorado.

The two buildings bombed were badly damaged. A political meeting was going on at Nario's home when the blast there went off, but none was injured.

8 TEAMS WILL COMPETE IN STATE BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT IN WEEK-END

ATHENS QUINT WILL NOT BE REPRESENTED

LAMESA TO TRY AGAIN FOR STATE TITLE AT AUSTIN

(By The Associated Press.)
Eight schoolboy teams, class of their regions, battled their way into the final round of the interscholastic league's titular race with victories in widely scattered tournaments Saturday.

They clash next Friday and Saturday at Austin for the title.

Lamesa's Tornados, runners-up for the state championship last year, used long shots that found the hoop to trounce the Pampa Harvesters, 41 to 26, in the final game of the region one at Canyon. They spurred in the last half to win. Previously they had defeated Amarillo and Pampa, while the Harvesters had dropped Crowell in two games.

The Athens high school Hornets, last year's champions, were eliminated in district competition leaving this year's tournament without a defending champion.

It was Brownwood in region two that came through, dusting off Tuscola in a one-sided final game, 22 to 9. The Lions yielded only five field goals in a fine defensive display. Coffey, Brownwood forward, repled 14 points to lead the pack. Cottonwood previously had ousted Cottonwood while Tuscola eliminated Crews.

That topped on Laredo, 47 to 37, to top a regional title at Kingsville. Ben Avey, Taft center, paced the scoring with 11 field goals and a foul toss for a 23-point total. The Greyhounds led throughout. They defeated Weclach in an early game while Laredo won by default from Bay City.

A hard, fast driving Hughes Springs quintet carried off region five honors with a 48 to 25 victory over Emory. Wilson flipped in 12 points before Emory scored its first point. The Lions played a one-point game, passing unerringly to outclass their opponents. East Texas fans likened Hughes Springs to the famed Athens clubs of recent years. Hughes Springs barely beat Gilmer, 39 to 38, to go into the finals while Emory likewise scored a one-point, 26 to 25 victory over Stockman.

Killeen joined the Harlandale high school quintet of San Antonio in the finals of the San Marcos region, 25 to 23. Harlandale led throughout the entire game, only to sink in the last minute of play when Reid, Killeen center, dropped a field goal to tie the score and force the game into an extra period. Douglas, Killeen guard, scored a field goal to break the deadlock. Killeen earlier had defeated Eagle Pass while Harlandale took care of Yorktown.

The Bowie Braves of El Paso started slow but gained the lead in the second quarter to beat out Sanderson, 36 to 19, for the region eight title. Bowie earlier had trimmed Wink while Sanderson bowled over Fort Davis.

Denton's Broncs took the regional meet played in their town, shoving aside Necona, 36 to 16 in the finals. A spurt in the last 10 minutes brought them victory. J. D. Wright led the Broncs, accounting for 11 points, along with Barnes.

The classy Huntsville Hornets classed a smaller but game Beaumont purple club 31-19. Beaumont time and again failed to make easy crisp shots and the fast-breaking Huntsville team grabbed the ball and swept down the court for points. Earnest and Oliphant paced the Huntsville attack while Gernand was Beaumont's ace.

Laffoon, Pickard Are Setting Pace For Pro Golfers

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP)—A couple of comparative youngsters who blossomed out only a few years ago—Ky Laffoon of Denver and Henry Pickard of Hershey, Pa.—are setting the scoring pace for touring professional golfers this winter.

Laffoon, who also tops the money-winners so far and the tall Pennsylvania professional are tied for shot-making honors with averages of 71.12-13 strokes per round, each, for 26 rounds.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Kansas City, the scoring sensation and pace setter during January, slipped a bit and finds himself in second place with an even average of 72 for 22 rounds.

Included among the more active players with a respectable average is the veteran Walter Hagen. The "Hag" has played 26 rounds for an average of 72.23-26, tying him with Horton Smith of Chicago.

Venerable MacDonald Smith, who tied for the national open 25 years ago, logs both Laffoon and Pickard but he has played only 10 rounds, good for an average of 71.3-10.

Grid Training To Start Here This Afternoon

Harvesterettes To Compete in Girls Tourney

Miss Kathleen Milam will take the Harvesterettes of Pampa high school to Plainview to compete in the A. A. U. tournament to be held in that city March 20-23. The Harvesterettes will go through an intense training period for the next two weeks.

Teams from all over the state will attend the meet in Plainview, which is expected to draw nearly 50 outfits. Besides the Harvesterettes, teams from Allison, Mobette, Stratford and other Panhandle cities are expected to enter.

The Conlen Lassies will not defend their title this year, that school not having enough students out for basketball to enter a competing team. The Conlen team of 1934 went to the national tournament and made an excellent showing.

Dunaway, Green On Region Team

Two members of the Harvester basketball team which was runner-up in the regional meet at Canyon Friday and Saturday were named on the all-region tournament first team along with two from Lamesa, winner of the event, and one from Crowell, third team in the race.

The Pampa players to be honored were J. R. Green and Bill Dunaway. Green, center on the Pampa quintet, was moved to a forward position on the team.

The team was selected by officials, coaches and sports writers who saw every game played. The first team selections were: Taylor, Crowell, forward; J. R. Green, Pampa forward; Harrell, Lamesa, center; Jordan, Lamesa, guard; Dunaway, Pampa, guard; Second team: Middlebrook, Crowell, forward; Russell, Crowell, center; Dunno, Crowell, guard; Harlow, Amarillo, guard.

Cage Tourney to Be in Galveston

GALVESTON, March 4 (AP)—The state cage tournament of the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation will be held here March 8 and 9. The record entry list, made up from champions and runners-up in the various federation cities, is expected.

This year the Galveston Amateur Athletic Federation will pay the expenses of the meet and all gate receipts will be prorated among championship clubs.

The state champions will be presented with a trophy and a dozen gold medals to be distributed among its players. The team winning the consolation prize will receive a trophy, and players on the runner-up teams will receive 12 silver medals.

Cotton Belt Ball Loop Is Ready

VERNON, March 4.—Organization of the cotton belt semi-professional baseball league for the 1935 season has been perfected with E. P. Storms of Truscott president, R. R. Swindell of Quanah vice president and Clyde Cobb of Crowell secretary-treasurer.

The league was permanently formed to include Quanah, Medicine Mound, Crowell and Truscott, Texas, and Eldorado and Elmer, Okla. The season will open April 14 and close August 18, and will include double-header games July 4. The Shaughnessy play-off plan will be used.

BABE RUTH IS EN ROUTE TO FLORIDA CAMP

HAS NO REGRETS THAT HE IS LEAVING YANKEES

BY ALAN GOULD, Associated Press Sports Writer.
EN ROUTE TO ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 4 (AP)—Busy contemplating his chances of assaulting National league pitching this year on behalf of the Boston Braves and impatient to get into uniform tomorrow for the start of his twenty-second campaign in the majors, Babe Ruth said today he had no regrets over leaving the Yankees and the American League.

"I mean from the standpoint of baseball and what it holds for me from now on," he explained as the train sped south.

"Of course it's tough to pry myself away from the old surroundings. I will miss a lot of the fellows I've played with. It will be funny to find myself heading for the Polo Grounds instead of the Yankee stadium when I make my next visit to the big town."

"But I gave the Yankees everything I had for 15 years. I guess I left a few records for 'em to shoot at during my 21 years in the American League."

"They were satisfied to let me go and that's their business. I have no regrets. In fact I think I'm a lucky guy. I have to pinch myself to realize that I'm in the National League—that it isn't a dream—but I can truthfully say I never looked forward to a season with more enthusiasm than I do this spring."

"Maybe I was getting a bit fed up on the game after being so long in the same spot. A change is good for anybody in any line of work. I guess, though I am ready to admit that one trip around the world is good enough for me for all time."

"They invited me to make a trip to Australia, next winter, but I declined with thanks. The last part of the trip I just finished was when I got home and found out there was really a job I could land with the Braves."

The Babe had a "hunch" he might go to Boston, before he sailed for the Orient, he revealed, although nothing definite developed until he returned.

He insisted there was no "inside" angle or story to the negotiations, that the situation simply came quickly to a climax and that he was happy to have his new boss like "Jake" Ruppert, willing to do him a favor.

"I've got at least three years to look forward to with the Braves but I'm primarily interested now in getting into condition and helping Bill McKelvey in every way I can. I'll be disappointed if I do not play in at least 100 games during the championship season."

Ruth added he expected to take part in all exhibition games, including the one when the Cincinnati Reds next Saturday. A total of 26 are listed for the Braves, including nine with the Yankees, who also train in St. Petersburg.

The Babe, it is believed, will share in the profits of the spring training trip as well as in the profits of the Braves may clear during the championship season.

"The Braves need more power and I sure hope I can add some to the batting order," ventured the former major league slugger, who has been hitting. He has had to take the brunt of the cleanup job for the Braves. It's tougher on the opposing pitcher to have to pitch to two fellows who can take a toe-hold and that's what he does in any case. Looking backward, Ruth suggested that the Yankees of the 1921-23 vintage probably were the greatest combination he worked with during his long stay in New York—they had superlative pitching as well as plenty of power—Earl Whitehill, the die-wheeler, gave Ruth as much trouble over a stretch of time as any pitcher he can recall off-hand—but he says "they are all tough when you are not hitting"—he has taken heavy six bats he had with the Yankees and hopes to make good use of them all.

TEXARKANANS WIN

GILMER, Tex., March 4 (AP)—A thrilling, see-saw battle for the district junior college championship went to Texarkana college Bulldogs here tonight, 36 to 35, after a struggle with the Jacksonville Baptist college.

Exile Leads War Against Hitler

Most relentless foe of Adolf Hitler is Dr. Otto Strasser, above, chief of the Black Front, who wages war by radio and every other means, at his command against the Nazi dictator, from his refuge in Prague. Strasser was one of Hitler's champions during his rise to power, but turned against him, branding him betrayer of Germany.

CAMPBELL TO AWAIT BEACH HE APPROVES

ROUGH COURSE PUTS HIM IN TROUBLE SUNDAY

DAYTONA BEACH, March 4 (AP)—The prince of speed put his foot down all the way today, not on the throttle of hard pressed old Bluebird, but flat on continuance of record runs on Daytona's sands until the beach definitely improves.

"That might possibly be today—on the low tide at 1:07 p. m. (EST)—or it might be 35 years from now, but hot or cold, high water or low, the big blue thunderwagon stays in the garage until there is no danger of Sir Malcolm Campbell's head getting torn away by the wind, or joints breaking straps that hold him in the cockpit and hurling him into the neighboring ocean."

The Englishman, who will stand just so much of anything including behind-the-hand heckling of local officials who insist on telling him what he's doing wrong, and swivel chair athletes who hold their hats over him, had a hard time of it at 20 miles an hour, maced once down the beach yesterday. He hit 270 miles an hour, a shade under the record, but for the second straight day he was in trouble all the way.

Saturday when he ran 205 miles an hour, shooting his two-year-old record of 272.108, the cowering broke loose on both sides of his motor, and he nearly was gassed by fumes that poured into his cockpit. Yesterday, the beach was so rough that half the time his head was jammed about his ears, and his shield, the pressure nearly scalding him. His goggles were driven down over his nose and mouth, almost choking him, he skidded after a bump and swerved badly after another hit his tires were out, and the truck lurched forward to wearing it more. That break alone he sees adding three or four victories to his string for the year.

The Chicago uniform must have some secret charm. Tex Carleton former side arm hurler of the Cubs, looks forward to wearing it with the same keen anticipation that marked Bush's reluctance to give it up.

"Don't waste your sympathy on me," he says. "I think it's swell. The Cubs weren't in the series last year, but they're rebuilding, and they are always up there. I'm tickled to death to join them."

225-POUND GRID TACKLE MAY FIT FOR GOPHERS

MINNEAPOLIS, March 4 (AP)—The baseball fever hasn't hit snow-covered Minnesota yet, but nevertheless Coach Frank G. McCormick has his candidates for the 1935 Gopher nine working out daily in the huge field house.

Ten lettermen, headed by Milton Bruhn, compose the backbone of this year's squad. All but one, Spencer Wagnild, captain of the hockey team, are available for practice now.

Three of the veterans are pitchers, Tom Gullivan, and Everett Grossman, right-handers, and Elroy Hendrickson, a southpaw. Even so, McCormick hopes to find a couple likely sophomores.

He may solve part of his problem in Edwin Wiseth, a 225-pound football tackle, who pitched speedy ball for the freshmen squad last year but lacked control. He is a southpaw.

Other key positions are well fortified.

ASKS PEACE PARK

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—Establishment of an international peace park on the Mexican border in the Big Bend area of southwest Texas was recommended to President Roosevelt today by Secretary Ickes. In a report concerning advisability of setting aside a triangular area of 5,500 square miles there for a national park, Ickes said the peace park would be similar to the United States-Canadian peace park established in 1932, linking Canada's Waterton Lakes park and the Glacier National park in Montana.

"I want to tell the world that I am a better pitcher today than I ever was, and that I'll be as good as I am for two or three years yet," he declared. "I'm only 31. I've averaged about 17 victories a season over a 7-year stretch."

Can't See Cub Chances.
"See this arm?" holding up his long, powerful right. "It's got 20 victories for the Pirates this year. Last year I won 18 in spite of being laid up for quite a spell, but now I'm rarin' to go, with my arm in better condition than ever."

Bush says he wouldn't have minded being traded half as much if he could see how the Cubs were going to benefit by parting with him. But he cannot. Nor can he see much hope for the Cubs in the coming pennant race.

Quite naturally, he picks the Pirates to be in the thick of the National league fight. He looks for a three-cornered "dog fight" between the Pirates, Cardinals, and Giants.

For one thing he is glad he won't have to pitch to Paul Waner any more. That break alone he sees adding three or four victories to his string for the year.

The Chicago uniform must have some secret charm. Tex Carleton former side arm hurler of the Cubs, looks forward to wearing it with the same keen anticipation that marked Bush's reluctance to give it up.

"Don't waste your sympathy on me," he says. "I think it's swell. The Cubs weren't in the series last year, but they're rebuilding, and they are always up there. I'm tickled to death to join them."

There is no urge on the part of coaches St. Clair, Jimmy Kirts and Glen Rose for a play-off between the last night that he considered the season closed.

Arkansas closed with the best offensive average per game, clicking with 377-12 points each game. Southern Methodist averaged 354 points per game, and Rice dropped in 335-6 points per game. All three featured strong defensive averages per game. Southern Methodist with 25-5-6, Rice with 29-5-12 and Arkansas with 29-2-3.

WINGS ON HIS FEET

Schreiner Wins Junior College Conference Title

SAN ANTONIO, March 4 (AP)—Schreiner Institute became district 3 champions of the junior college conference here Saturday by defeating San Angelo junior college, 32 to 21. The Mountaineers now face the playoffs for the state championship.

Schreiner entered the finals by crushing Brownsville, 67 to 17, early in the day, while San Angelo bumped San Antonio junior college in two extra periods, 38 to 35.

Schreiner bottled Le Pevre, San Angelo ace, and from the start made all but a rout of the game. The half ended 18 to 2 for the Mountaineers. The San Angelo gang came back with a vengeance in the last half to materially cut the Schreiner advantage but the handicap was too great.

TWO HUNDRED YOUNG PEOPLE PLEDGE TO BETTER RECREATION

Women of Gray County Have 120 Entries in Fat Stock Show at Amarillo

ASK THAT OLDER PERSONS IN CITY PROVIDE AMUSEMENTS WHICH WILL BE WHOLESOME

WILL BOYCOTT PLACES OF QUESTIONABLE ENTERTAINMENT

Two hundred Pampa young people yesterday afternoon asked that older people of the city provide for them some type of wholesome recreation, such as an open gymnasium or recreation center.

The young people signed a resolution agreeing to boycott questionable places of amusement and to avoid all harmful pastimes. "A better youth for Pampa and a better Pampa for youth" was chosen as a motto.

Members of the ministerial association approved the meeting, which was held at the First Methodist church at 2:30 o'clock. Pastors of the city, as well as presidents of various organizations and persons who took part on the program were seated on the platform. John Martin presided. Edwin Pearce was song leader, and Mrs. Jack Skelly played the organ.

"The duty of young people is to choose the good and spurn the evil," said J. G. McConnell, one of the principal speakers. "The duty of the older people is to furnish the right kind of amusement. Some-

TIRED OF POTATOES? THEN SUBSTITUTE BANANAS, SAY DENTON COLLEGE STUDENTS

Urge 'Salad Habit' And Use of More Colors

Menus and Recipes Prepared by Department of Home Economics Texas State College for Women.

DENTON, March 4.—One of the very things that one thinks of when starting to prepare a meal is "how am I to fix the potatoes?"

Is this not true of the housewife? Most of us think that there cannot be a complete meal without including potatoes in some form. Why not use other starchy foods and omit worn potatoes in its ordinary form or find some new ways of preparing it so that it will not be so monotonous. Why not use brown rice or polished rice in its stead or use turnips in their many forms or even try baking bananas for a change. Bananas are always on the market and can be made into very palatable dishes.

It is from the leaves of vegetables, from meats and from cereals and fruits that we obtain the mineral salts like iron, calcium and phosphorus that we need. Encourage the use of more fresh vegetables and fruits in the diet. Get some color in meals to encourage the lagging appetite. Get the "salad habit."

MENUS

Breakfast: Sliced Oranges, Oatmeal, Cream, Fried Apples, Bacon, Whole Wheat Muffins, Butter, Coffee, Milk.

Dinner: Broiled Steak, Gravy, Brown Rice, Buttered Onions, Whole Wheat Bread, Butter, Caramel Spanish Pudding.

Supper: Asparagus and Green Peas Salad, Brown Bread, Pineapple Cream, Cookies, Cocoa.

For Another Day
Breakfast: Applesauce, Ready-to-Serve Cereal, Cream, Bacon, Toast, Coffee, Cocoa.

Dinner: Salmon Puffs, Brown Diced Potatoes, Jellied Vitamin Salad, Bread, Butter, Peach Cobbler, Cream, Coffee, Milk.

Supper: Asparagus on Toast, Shredded Lettuce and Egg Salad, Coconut Tapioca Pudding or Baked Bananas, Cocoa.

Asparagus and Peas Salad: One half can asparagus, 1 small can sifted peas, 1 cup boiled salad dressing, 1 tablespoon French dressing, 1/2 pint cottage cheese, and olives or pickles to garnish.

Canned asparagus and peas may be used when fresh vegetables are not in season. Drain off all water from asparagus. Arrange in bowl with the French dressing and allow to marinate. Add three tablespoons of cottage cheese to salad dressing while still hot. Beat thoroughly, then chill. Shape remainder of cheese into balls size of hickory nuts. Dust with paprika and chill.

No Flu—But What a Spell Of Sneezing!

HEREFORD, March 4.—Ripley would not believe this one:

Louie Nowak, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Nowak, has been undergoing a severe attack of sneezes for the last four weeks.

During the second week of the spell he sneezed six times per minute for hours at a time. This condition lasted several days. Then during the third week he would have seizures of violent sneezing every time he entered a warm room. Last week it fell off to a spell every half hour with four to six sneezes per spell. Through it all the lad did not have a cold or influenza or any other illness. Strangely, he can go to sleep normally and is not bothered until he awakes.

Arrange salad on plate on a bed of flat lettuce leaves. Heap peas in center and asparagus arranged like spokes of wheel. Garnish with balls of cheese. Chill. Serve with dressing.

Caramel Spanish Cream: 1 t gelatin, 2 egg whites, 3 cups milk, 1/4 tsp. salt, 2 egg yolks, 1 T vanilla, 1/2 cup sugar.

Scald milk in double boiler and add gelatin. Melt 1/2 cup sugar until caramel in color. Add to scalded milk and gelatin. Add other sugar to beaten egg yolks. Pour gelatin mixture over egg yolks and beat well. Return to double boiler and cook until thick. Remove. Add salt, vanilla, and fold in egg whites beaten stiff. Pour into wet molds and chill. Serves six.

Jellied Vitamin Salad: 1/2 package lemon Jello, 1/4 cup chopped apple, 1/2 pint boiling water, 1 tsp salt, 1/2 cup shredded cabbage, 2 T lemon juice, 1/2 cup boiled raw carrots, 1/2 pimiento chopped fine, and mayonnaise.

Four boiling water over Jello, stir constantly until clear, let stand until cool. Fold in chopped vegetables, salt and lemon juice. Set in ice box for two hours. Serve with mayonnaise or Thousand Island.

TALK MADE ON INTENSITY OF JESUS CHRIST

FORTY-SIX MEN HEAR BAPTIST PASTOR'S ADDRESS

Forty-six members of the Everyman's Bible class heard C. E. Lancaster, pastor of the First Baptist church, deliver an address on the intensity of Jesus at the city hall Sunday morning.

"Christ had an intensity of purpose, a determination to accomplish the task He was sent to do, that of giving his life as a ransom for many," said Mr. Lancaster.

"Another characteristic which marked Him was the intensity of His humility. Though endowed with greater gifts than any man before or since, Jesus went about doing good with a true spirit of humility. He profits most who serves best. Ambition in men is worthy if it is pursued in a spirit of service, devotion, and humility."

President C. V. Edwards urged that members of the class lend their thoughts, time, and influence to improving conditions for the youth of Pampa.

James Erwin was appointed chairman of the program, committee. He announced that D. B. Jamison and Ernest Fletcher would assist in providing interesting features.

Bob Rose and Ernest Fletcher sang Does Jesus Care.

The president requested each member to bring a visitor and to broadcast the information that every man in Pampa is welcome to attend the class.

County Assessed Valuation Likely To Be Advanced

Although Thos. Y. Pickett of Dallas, oil tax assessor for Gray county, was not able to estimate the amount of oil valuation for the county when he was here this morning, he is expected to advance the valuation of the county since the last valuation was established.

The highest valuation of the county was in 1930 when the total figure was $27,755,856 when the rate was over $1. The valuation in 1931 was $120 and the valuation over 27 millions. The rate last year was $98.

The first valuation fixed after the county was organized was in 1902 when the figure was $392,898. In 1926, the valuation was $3,785,404. Before that time it had never exceeded about four millions.

President Talks To Hopkins About Big Relief Bill

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—President Roosevelt went over the work relief problem today with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, who was called back to the capital by airplane from Chicago.

Mr. Roosevelt has given every indication he intends to stand by the $4,880,000,000 work relief measure which now is stranded in the senate, but there was no comment at the White House.

There were indications that he and Hopkins went over figures on the relief situation at today's conference.

TORNADO

ed the tornado, which hit town about 5 a. m.

He estimated that at least 100 homes were damaged, many of the weakly-constructed ones being torn down and blown away.

The worst dust storm in years, driven by a 47-mile wind obscured the Panhandle yesterday afternoon. Visibility was so obscured in Amarillo that one could scarcely see. Light rain followed the blinding dust.

East Texas had rain in the early morning hours today, accompanied in places by electrical disturbances. Strong winds lashed Northeast Texas as the tornado cut its northward path.

A downpour of rain drenched Longview at 9 a. m. Precipitation there during the night amounted to .35 of an inch. There was a strong wind.

Rain Downstate

Corsicana's streets were flooded for a short time. The town had a violent electrical display, as well as high winds. Rainfall in Corsicana and surrounding area amounted to 1.12 inches.

Electrical flashes illuminated the night in Dallas, where rain fell in the early morning.

Fogline had rain, driven by wind but no damage.

A heavy downpour soaked Borger. Hail fell there late yesterday afternoon. A strong wind blew during the night and today.

Rainfall at Wichita Falls totaled .37 of an inch. There was a brief electrical storm there last night. No damage was reported.

Light hail fell at San Angelo but did no damage. There was a sprinkling rain. Brady had a heavy rain with Brady creek flooded to the point where it halted traffic for several hours.

Rain, followed by an electrical storm, was reported in Fort Worth early today. Precipitation was .73 of an inch. Austin had .02 of an inch. It still was misting there.

An unusually dense dust storm struck Lubbock yesterday afternoon, blotting out the sun. For a time the city was in darkness. Rain fell as the dust abated. Skies were clear this morning and the wind had moderated.

San Antonio reported westerly winds dispelling rain clouds after 16 of an inch precipitation. The skies had cleared there.

FOX LOSES 2 ISSUES

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—A double defeat was suffered today by William Fox in supreme court invalidation of talking picture patents upon which he sought to collect more than $100,000,000.

It declared invalid patents for making and developing separate picture and sound films and then printing them on a single film, as well as patents on a projecting machine for exhibiting the films.

WINTERS WILL PLAY TUESDAY NIGHTS IN CITY

Beginning his first full week in Pampa, Jerry Winters and his orchestra will play for the regular Tuesday night dance at the new Pla-Mor, 303 Combs-Worley Bldg., Tuesday night. The new orchestra proved its popularity at its first dance in Pampa last week.

The Winters orchestra comes direct from Lincoln, Neb., where it entertained for an extended period at one of the city's leading dance palaces. The high recommendation which preceded the orchestra caused the Pla-Mor management to secure it for the Pla-Mor dances.

The admission will be 25 cents with a change of 5 cents per dance. The Pla-Mor management invites you to join the group which will enjoy the entertainment Tuesday night. This is the opportunity to hear one of Nebraska's leading entertaining groups. (Adv.)

MARKET BRIEFS

STOCKS ARE OFF

NEW YORK, March 4. (AP)—Stock market prices drifted to moderately lower levels today in one of the duller sessions in several weeks. Traders apparently were perplexed by the declining British pound and a further advance in the London gold price to a new record peak. The close was easy. Transfers approximated 430,000 shares.

Montana Rides Again

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: The Montana Kid and Mateo Rubiz have stolen the crown of Our Lady from General Estrada, who had stolen it from the church. But before Montana and Rubiz can return the crown to the bishop, Rubiz is captured. Montana and half the crown are safe; Rubiz has lost his half to the general, and now the general hopes to force Mateo to betray the meeting place he has arranged with Montana, just as the lovely Rosita had betrayed Montana and the Kid to the general a few hours back.

TORTURE

Rodita slunk out of the room, her hands pressed over her ears. "Is Rubiz chained?" asked Estrada.

"See, Excellence."

Estrada, with a sense of luxurious content, surveyed the heavy chains that weighed down the hands of Rubiz. There was an iron ball of twenty pounds weight hitched to his ankles, and the chain from the ball passed up by a special chain and was fastened to a collar that fitted close around that great neck.

"Leave him, then," said Estrada. "I may need you again in a moment. Wait outside the room."

When they had withdrawn, Estrada said: "Rubiz, the fact is that you worked with El Keed. You made a gringo your partner to steal from me today."

Rubiz said nothing. There was merely a sort of idle curiosity in the eyes with which he scanned the face of the general. But in Estrada there was a mighty confidence. It was as large as his soul and rooted as deep.

"When you stole the emeralds," said Estrada, "you took half and El Keed took half. You went by different ways. And by God! you almost escaped, as he did. Bad luck stopped you. And yet, Rubiz, it may not be such very bad luck, after all. You have fallen into the hands of a man of understanding."

"The poor have never had any reason to fear you. Now, then, I was once a poor man, myself. I remember those days very well. And I want to tell you that I can feel such sympathy that I could give up all the noise and the reputation that will come from all over Mexico because I am the man whose grip at last closed on you. I could arrange matters so that you would be able to slip quietly away. Rubiz, one of these nights. And all that I want you to leave behind for me is a little information—just a little information, Rubiz."

"Something for nothing is not what a man can expect in this world, Rubiz. But the payment I ask from you is very small. I begin by pointing out to you that there are certain jewels in the hands of El Keed—that El Keed was your partner in the work of this night. I merely ask you where I can find the gringo."

There was no answer.

The general said: "You note, Rubiz, that the man is not one of us. You note that he is a gringo?"

Rubiz smiled. And at that, with a touch of anger in his voice for the first time, the general continued: "If you will talk willingly you receive your freedom. But if you put me to it—if I have to tear the answers out of you, I shall have them, with blood dripping from every word of them. You hear me, Rubiz?"

General Ignacio Estrada could not believe his eyes. Yet he saw that the prisoner continued to regard him in silence, without greater emotion than a mild curiosity. The general leaped to his feet.

"You fool!" he shouted. "Do you know what I am?"

"A dog and the son of a dog," said Rubiz.

Not for the first time that night, the rage of the general was so great that he remained calm.

In a sense it would be better this way. More than once General Estrada had enjoyed putting his questions by force, but he had never had such a complete man to deal with. There was pleasure as well as answers to be extracted by the method he had in view. Therefore he almost wondered that he had, in the first place, offered any sort of a bargain to Rubiz.

The little cell in that old dungeon which was supposed to be disused was the lowest of the entire cellar of the building. It was so low that the river water, seeping aslant through the soil, kept coming thru the walls and covering them with mold. And on the floor there was slime from which sprang up a disgusting odor of decay. But though the iron were thick with scales of rust, they retained a strong core.

By pulleys, and by ropes which were fastened to the iron rings at the base of the opposite walls and also to the feet and the hands of Mateo Rubiz, his body had been stretched taut.

After that, in order to increase the strain, a low hurdle had been passed beneath his huge, naked body. He was now left alone with the general, who had for his equipment only some buckets of perfectly innocent water and a large leather funnel.

The general did not begin at once. He first admired the immensity of the body of his victim, the great thighs and shins pulled so tight that they stood out in a high relief. It reminded the general of the strings of a musical instrument, properly tuned. So was Rubiz tuned, an Estrada felt that he knew how to extract the most exquisite pain.

"After so many days in the desert, after so many hot days with sand in the face and the throat, what could be better for you than a little water, Rubiz?" asked the general. "And you shall have some. You shall have such a drink as you never tasted before. We begin with a drink, and afterwards we ask a few questions. But when you are willing to talk, you can signify by the lifting of one finger. For I shall be watching, my friend!"

With that, he pried open the jaws of Rubiz; using a cold chisel as a leverage for that purpose. Then into the gullet of the prisoner he forced the small end of the big leather funnel. Out of the nearest bucket he filled the funnel, and stepped back to wait.

Gradually the liquid ran down into the body of Rubiz. Stretched to rigidity as it was, the least pressure from within was a frightful agony.

It was that old torture called "the question," of all abominations the most terrible gift from brute to brute in the history of man, with that device, more frightful than all instruments for tearing flesh or bruising bones, murders in the old days were given the pains of ten deaths before the law permitted them to expire under the merciful hand of the executioner.

And the governor, looking down at the immense bulk of his victim, filled the funnel again, and watched the liquid work like twisting fists inside the body of Rubiz. He stood directly above the face of the man, so that Rubiz could not help but look back into his eyes. He saw the sweat brighten the face of the outlaw, and the perfect agony brighten his eyes.

A thin tremor of joy, like sound, ran through the body and the heart of Estrada. He leaned still closer and forced his gaze into the eyes of Rubiz.

He could gain no real satisfaction in this manner, however. For the agony of Rubiz did not seem increased by this personal supervision of his pains.

Estrada sent down another funnel of water. He could see the whole body of his victim begin to work now. And presently, almost beyond his hope, he could hear the voice of groaning agony. He thought for a moment that it was the appeal for mercy. When he saw that it was merely the involuntary reaction that accompanied breathing, the face of the general grew black with an almost virtuous anger.

Rubiz had begun to wish for death. He wished for it more passionately than he ever had wished for another thing in his life. There was no part of his body that was not in pain.

The frightful drawing of the ropes cut into his wrists, into his feet and ankles. Bones might be broken under the strain, but the numbness and the agony combined so that he could not even particularize the regions of the torment.

Sometimes it was ice that filled his veins, and then it was swelling fire. And then it was the pure essence of pain, and nothing else except that frightful and increasing music.

General Estrada was no longer calmly contented. He had begun to curse. More than once he beat the body of his victim with his fists. And every stroke left a great swelling purple mark on the tensed flesh. And then, lifting the eyelids of Rubiz, he saw that the life was ebbing rapidly from his body.

'My Home Town' Oratory Contest To Be Promoted

An oratorical contest open to high school students was announced this morning by George Briggs of the Board of City Development and Principal L. L. Sone of the high school.

The winner will be sent to Plainview when the West Texas chamber of commerce convenes there to compete in the "My Home Town" contest which will be held in connection with the convention there in May. The oration must pertain to Pampa, extolling its virtues, benefits and personality. A cash prize, in addition to the trip to Plainview, will likely be awarded the winner.

Students who plan to enter the contest were requested to see either Mr. Sone or Mr. Briggs for details.

ALLRED

Early farm and home owners, are borne down with tax loads too heavy to bear. . . In equalizing the tax burdens you and I are going to tread on somebody's toes.

We are, however, confronted with a patriotic duty of necessity. "Various groups keep well organized, well financed and intelligent, paid representatives at the scene of legislative battles to protect their interests. The great masses have no protection other than that which you and I afford them."

In suggesting various tax levies, I want you to bear in mind that my only desire is to be of assistance, if I can, in straightening out injustices under our present system; and in the hope that thereby we can give needed relief to the average man, the home owner, the farmer, the harried business man."

The governor estimated a one-cent tax on natural gas would raise more than $4,000,000 annually. He said the present levy of two per cent of value brought in only $228,956 last year. He asserted approximately five sixths of the gas tax would be shifted to consumers in other states who burn gas piped from the Panhandle.

Hits Sulphur Profits

There is no doubt that the large sulphur companies operating in Texas have paid themselves out many times over," Allred said.

"Their profits have been stupendous. There is likewise no doubt that in the past they have not contributed anything like their fair share to the support of either state or local government."

All recommended a tax of one per cent on the gross assets of oil and gas pipelines. He states 20 oil pipe lines reported net profits last year of $78,000,000 and that the tax he suggested would be only one seventy-eighth of that amount.

In all-inclusive claim-store tax, without exemption of filling stations, lumber yards, or other establishments, was suggested. The governor said he did not desire "to interfere unreasonably with operation of the local chain store but the legislation should be designed to compel the foreign chain, now escaping taxation, to contribute its part toward the financial upkeep of the state."

Other recommendations included: Resubmission of property classifications, so securities may be added to tax rolls—meanwhile no note, bond, mortgage, or other security be collectible at law unless it first be registered with the county clerk.

Wants More Reports

That tax collectors and assessors make quarterly reports to the state tax commissioner, reflecting efforts to collect taxes that have become delinquent and to obtain full renditions, and that the state comptroller suspend payments to officials who fail to discharge their responsibilities.

That the state tax commissioner be given six experts to assist county boards or equalization in determining the value of oil, gas, sulphur and other mineral interests, as well as properties of public utilities and similarly organized corporations.

Allred said the sales tax issue was squarely raised in the campaign for governor, and the people already had voted upon it.

"I want it distinctly understood," he said, "that I do not intend to criticize or question the motives of all who advocate a general sales tax. Many are patriotic citizens sincerely concerned with the welfare of their state. They have, however, perhaps unconsciously, become followers of the chief proponents of a general sales tax—the so-called American Taxpayers association and other lobby organizations which congressional records show have been financed by contributions from the utilities, the investment bankers, the Mellon interests and others."

CCC Applications

In County Must Be Filed At Once

Names of Gray county youths interested in enrolling in CCC camp work are desired immediately by Mrs. W. H. Davis, relief administrator.

It is not at all certain that the CCC work will be continued, but the surveys now being held will doubtless have a bearing. Applications should be made to Mrs. Davis.

Lists must be made of applicants from families now on relief rolls, or which will soon be on relief rolls.

and from families that are needy but not likely to ask for relief. No applicant who has been discharged from a CCC camp, honorably or otherwise, will be accepted.
