Officers Seeking Man Who Kidnapped County Woman

Officers in a wide area are searching for a man, believed to be armed, who Monday, April 2, kidnapped, robbed and criminally assaulted at gunpoint a Collingsworth County farm woman.

Sheriff John Rainey and District Attorney Allen Harp identified the woman as Mrs. Grace Bruton, wife of J. O. Bruton, who farms in the Nilholson community, along Highway 83, about 17 miles north of Wellington.

Sheriff Rainey said Mrs. Bruton was talking on the phone about 1:45 p. m. Monday when she heard the back door open, but thought it was her husband who was plowing on the farm. She hung up the phone and turned to be confronted by the man holding a pistol. He robbed her of between $25 and $30, then forced her to drive him in her own car through Wellington and Childress and to a point beyond there, then back toward that town to about two miles south of Childress and one-half east of Highway 83, where the assault occured.

He then forced her to drive south almost to the Tell road, then turn back toward Childress, and by that time the sandstorm had struck. Both Sheriff Rainey and Mr. Harp said after talking with her, the man forced her to stop at the Railroad underpass south of Childress, where he got out of the car and disappeared. All these events took place at gunpoint, officers were told. ....

The woman then drove to a service station at the intersection of Highways 83 and 287, where an attendant called police and an ambulance. She was admitted to the Childress hospital between 3.45 and 4 p. m. and was treated principally for shock until noon Tuesday, Mr. Harp said. She also was burned with matches and a cigarette lighter on the right leg, Sheriff Rainey said.

Sheriff Rainey, Deputy Bill Rushing and Police Chief Bill McCarver joined Childress County Sheriff Gaylon Smith, Childress Police Chief Roy Hassell, and their staffs, Cottle County Sheriff Elmer Clerk, and members of the Childress Fire Department in a search that lasted until midnight but brought no clues.

This description of the wanted man has been given by officers: He is believed to be either Mexican or part Mexican, talks with a brogue, is about 5 feet, 8 or 9 inches tall, slender build, bony slender hands, dark curly hair, a hooked nose and thick lips. Mr. Harp said he has either a peculiar pasty complexion or was wearing some kind of make-up. He was described as dirty and ill kept, wearing khaki trousers over dark trousers, a cowboy type shirt over a T-shirt, and cowboy boots.

After talking with Mrs. Bruton, Sheriff Rainey said the man told her that if she would do everything he told her to, he would not kill her, and as he left the car, he remarked that he could get away in the sand storm.

The district attorney said he learned from Mr. Bruton that the couple had discussed the unusual barking of their dogs Sunday night, but thinking it was probablp some small stray animal, they did not investigate. Monday night Mr. Bruton searched the premises and discovered someone had been in the cellar, made a pallet and apparently slept there.

Barney Walker, 66, Leader in Norwood Dies Monday

Barney Walker, 66, prominent farmer of the Samnorwood area, died at 12:25 a. m. Monday, a little more than an hour after he was stricken with a heart attack at his home. He passed away as he was being brought to St. Joseph's Hospital.

He had lived in the area near his home for 47 years, coming with his parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Walker, from Oklahoma.

While farming was his principal occupation during the years he lived here, Mr. Walker also operated the telephone exchange at Plymouth, and after its establishment, at Samnorwood, for a number of years.

That area had few men as community spirited as Mr. Walker. He worked in behalf of the Samnorwood school and his church, he took an active interest in improved farming methods, and he was likewise interested in recreation for the community, being one of those who helped develop the annual Samnorwood Rodeo.

Barney Harrison Walker was born October 5, 1886, in the Indian Territory, and grew up there.

He was first married to Miss Eula Montgomery, a member of another early family of the Plymouth area. She passed away a number of years ago, and on June 10, 1948, he was married to Mrs. Ruth Barton of Wellington.

Mr. Walker was an active member of the Methodist Church at Samnorwood and of the Masonic Lodge.

Funeral services were held Tuesday a 2 p. m. in the Samnorwood Methodist Church. Officiating were the Rev. O. C. Evans, pastor of the Shamrock Methodist Circuit, assisted by the Rev. Cecil Guthrie, pastor of the Wellington Methodist Circuit. Gathering to pay final tribute were a large crowd of friends made through his years of activity.

Pall bearers were members of his own family, his sons, a step-son-in-law, a brother and nephews: Dr. Jack Walker, Merle Walker, Dr. Doug Gallup, Bert Starkey, Paul Addington and James Brothers. Flower bearers were Mrs. Merle Walker, Mrs. Jack Walker, Mrs. Gallup, Mrs. Brothers, Mrs. Addington and Mrs. Randall Gill.

Burial was in the family plot of Plymouth cemetery under the direction of the Kelso Funeral Home.

Mr. Walker is survived by his wife; the two sons, Merle Walker, superintendent of schools at Idalou; and Dr. Jack Walker, professor in West Texas State College, Canyon; and two step-daughters, Mrs. Don Shea of Munich, Germany, and Mrs. Douglas Gallup of Rockport, Missouri.

All exhibits will be in place by 10 a. m. and judging will begin They will remain until about 4 p. m., show superintendents have said.

This is slated to be the best show in many years from the standpoint of quality, all those working with it believe. Quality of the animals is exceptionally good.

In addition there will be awards of first, second and third place of the girls winning the most ribbons, and for the schools with the best overall exhibits. Happiness may not depend entirely upon a better community to live in ... and to make a living in

...but it helps

Certainly there isn't much to be happy about in a lost job, a shrinking business, or declining property values . . . which are some of the inevitable products of a trade-robbed community.

So . . . let's be realistic . . . which is just a fancy word for selfish.

Let's keep the feathers in our own nest . . . instead of helping to feather somebody else's.

When we trade at home . . . and do all we can to make our neighbors satisfied to trade here . . . were building prosperous contentment . . . for OURSELVES and the home folks we can count on as friends and neighbors . . . instead of fattening the purses and the ego of the ambitious big-city builders.

We like the friendly and tranquil smaller towns like ours . . . or we'd move. But we can't prosper here by trading in the city.

It Pays to Buy where You Live

Wellington firms are the only business establishments in the world that are genuinely interested in this community's future . . . and in the future and prosperity of us who live here

Crossroads Report

Dear Editor:

I see where a lady sholer in Chicago put up a very strange and unorthodox argument on the subject of juvinile delinquency here the other day.

Whereas other experts blame his condition on parents, schools, comic books, TV, politics, sun spots, .etc.,she just comes right out flatfooted and blames it on the kids themselves.

My youth expert neighbor says he agrees in general with her diagnosis. He notes that most citizens, from babyhood on up, can control their anti-social tendencies all right, and do so about in proportion to how strong the odds are that they will be clobbered if they don't.

A Word of Appreciation

I have sold my cows, and after 35 years in the business, I am quitting the dairy business.

I want to take this means of saying "Thank You" to the nicest bunch of customers any dairyman ever had. Some of you have been my customers 30 years or longer, and I appreciate every bottle of milk you have taken.

It has been a real pleasure to serve you. While I won't be coming to your house every morning any more, I'll see all of you and keep up the friendships that have grown during these years.

PURINA RESEARCH TESTS SHOW

AN EXTRA $10-$15 PER HEAD RETURN

..when Steer Fatena with stilbestrol is fed

During recent years, tests on hundreds of cattle at Purina's Research Farm proved stilbestrol, Micro-Mixed just right into Purina Steer Fatena, is a money-maker for the cattle feeder. Here are the average results from all their tests when Purina Steer Fatena with stilbestrol was fed:

	Control lots	Stilbestrol-fed lots
Average daily gain	2.37 lbs.	2.65 lbs.
Average dressing percent..	61½%	62%

Tests also prove that stilbestrol is not a food nutrient . . . is no substitute for a good ration. Results are disappointing when stilbestrol is fed with rations of poor balance or quality.

When you empty a bag of supplement in your feed bunks, you are counting on getting your money back—and more besides—in increased daily gains at lowered costs. But before you lay down your hard cash for a supplement, it pays to know the facts about the feed you choose.

We have the latest information on Purina Steer Fatena feeding programs. Whatever you feed in the way of grain, silage or roughage—there's a research-proved Steer Fatena to help you get the most from your operation. Stop by soon and we'll tell you more about Micro-Mixed Purina Steer Fatena, a feedlot favorite for more than 25 years.

KEEP YOUR CATTLE SPRAYED FOR EXTRA BEEF NEXT FALL

There's no argument that cattle do better when flies are kept away. And folks who've used Purina Range Cattle Spray tell us it can't be beat for this job. They like the way it mixes with water for spraying (one gallon makes 100 gallons of spray) and with oil for use in back-rubber devices (1 pint to 1 gallon of oil).

This powerful toxaphene-lindane combination knocks horn flies for 4 to 6 weeks. Controls ticks, too. And best of all, Purina Range Cattle Spray does the job for only 2½ cents per head.

Come in and see us soon for your summer Fly Spray needs.

'Your Movie House And The Man Who Runs It'

If somebody asked you to recite the names of, let's say, 20 persons whom you associate with motion pictures, it isn't likely that the request would catch you unaware. Quick as a flicker, you'd probably identify a dozen stars, a handful of directors, a few producers and —if you really know your films —a fashion designer and a writer or two.

But even if your list were 60 or 80 names long, it is doubtful that it would ever occur to you to include the name of the person who owns or operates your local theatre.

He may never be a candidate for anybody's roster of screen luminaries, but the motion picture exhibitor in your town, in your community or on the main street of your city is a rather remarkable person who presides over a rather remarkable business. You should know more about him.

HE'S A RETAILER

The man who runs the neighborhood picture house is essentially a retail businessman. Like other merchants, he has a weekly payroll to meet, machinery and equipment to maintan and replace; he's a client at the bank, advertises in the local press, worries about the influences of weather on his patronage, and hopes his ledgers will show a profit at the end of the year.

But unlike his colleagues in commerce the merchandise he has to offer can't be stored in pantries, ice-boxes, closet or garages. What he sells is glamor and drama, excitement and thrills laughs ad tears. Some of the packages come wrapped in tinsel, others in conventional black and white, still others in rainbow hues to match the mood of their contents.

To match the mood? It's a term you don't generally apply to eggs, bars of soap, dining room tables or automobiles. But motion pictures are alive. They deal with moods and emotions. And they have connection with the heart and the mind.

THEATRE TURNOVER FABULOUS

The theatre in your town never has an inventory or a stockpile of merchandise, but it has a fabuous turnover. If your exhibitor changes it twice a week, you see 104 pictures, and if he runs double bills, the annual total comes to 208. The packages are never the same and their contents are as diverse as life itself.

It has been said that there is no bigger bargain than a ticket to a picture house. If you've ever wondered aboutthis yourself, consider, as an example, the fact that Hollywood pictures shown in the average theatre in the course of a singe year cost the studios that make them anywhere from $40,000,000 to $100 thousand or more, depending on the number of features it plays. And it is a satisfying thought that the finest of these films get to be seen by audiences in the remotest communities as well as by patrons of the fancy movie palaces in the big cities.

If excursions to the pictures are measured in terms of value received, there is no other industry in the world that offers so much for so little money. The price you pay for a ticket buys an hour or two of drama and diversion; it buys comedy and adventure, fiction and fantasy, revelry and romance; it buys a round-trip passage to all corners of the compass and to all points in between.

IT'S A LABRARY TOO

Your theatre is a library that others a glittering array of textbooks — animated textbooks that show you how and where your neighbors in near and distant lands live and play. It's a market place displaying the wares of the world. Through the mirasle of the motion pirture, your theatre is a style center, an opera house, a travel agency, a sports arena and concert hall all rolled into one.

The picture theatre is more than just an oasis of entertainment. It has come to occupy a deep-rooted and irreplaceable part of community life in practically every country of the world. For millions of people who live outside the metropolitan pale, and for millions of others who cannot afford the luxuries of the legitimate stage or the concert hall, the motion picture theatre is a primary if not the only means of diversion. In additional respect, it performs an incalcuable public service.

Merchants and shopkeepers don't have to be ardent picture fans to know that the movie theatre also has a lot to do with keeping the business wheels rolling. When people go to the pictures, they come in contact with the goods and services of other commercial establishments. They shop more and they buy more. By sharing its customers with businesses that have sprung up around it, the theatre often plays a key rcle in the economic wel-being of its village, its town or its island of trade in the big city.

Just how important is the movie theatre? For an answer, try to imagine a situation in which the pleasures of the screen were suddenly and totally cut off. The world no doubt would continue to rotate, but some of the zest and poys of life in thousands of communities would be gone. The loss would be felt.

CLOSINGS PROVE WORTH

The value of the picture theatre as an economic and social force was dramatically demonstrated a few years ago when many movie houses in the U. S. A. were forced to close. That was the time when film business in this country started reeling under the blows of burdensome taxes, wholesale shifts in population and the emergence of television as a competitive factor.

What happened in scores of communities when theatres rang down their last curtain adds up to one of the most eloquent tributes ever paid any industry. In town after town, the announcement that the movies theatre had closed or was about to close was met with dismay and consternation, Here, culled from press reports of that day, are examples of how the towns-people reacted:

In Milltown, Wis., the Comercial Club took over the closed Milltown Theatre and started operating it as a civic project. Heading the committee was the mayor of the town.

The Schaller Theatre in Schaller, Iowa, after being closed for two months, was opened with the assistance of the local Chamber of Commerce. The group said it was sponsoring the reopening "as a service to the community." When the owners of the Ione Theatre in Ione, Calif., decided to call it quits, the towns Civic Society said it musn't happen moved in on the situation and reopened the house with its own manager.

TOWNSFOLK HELP REBUILD

The only theatre in a town called Lone Wolf, in Oklahoma, burned down. It wasn't covered by insurance. Townspeople and local farmers offered their services to get the theatre rebuilt. The farmers used their own trucks to haul stone and the town merchants donated a new site. The Civic and Commerce Ass'n of Lake Lillian, Minn., reopened the Lae Theatre which had been closed for a year. The organization declared: "Our theatre is indispensable as a promoter of trade and as a rehreation center for our town's young people."

After a neighborhood picture hoose in Chicage, the Bugg Theatre, closed its doors shopping traffic in the vicinity steadily dwindled. A group of Chicage businessmen, among them a city official, financed the reopening "to restore the area as a major shopping point."

When the manager of the Town Theatre in Ovid, Mich., announced he'd have to close down, the local Community Ass'n stepped in without permitting it to go dark. "A closed theatre," said the group's chairman, "is a symbols of a dead town."

These are only a few of several hundred situations in which citizens, businessmen, civic groups and municipal officials mobilized forces on their own iniative, to revive, rescue or rebuild their local theatres.

Film business in America, aided by the new techniques in photography and in screen presentation, has more than recovered from the economic jolts of that time. But it's easy from these accounts to get some idea of the impact of the theare and the signifinance of its loss.

If the welfare of a community is linked with its picture house, then it also is true that the local picture house relies for its success on the wilfare of its community. That's why you generally find the exhibitor taking a prominent part in all sorts of endeavors that concern civic betterment and proagress.

When you hear about the "big heart" of show business, the movie exhibitor exemplifies it every time he donates his theatre and his screen to help raise funds for warthy charities and humanitarcauses.

The man who runs the neighborhood theatre is more than a businessman. Hes a public servant. And he performs the dual role with pride.

If he isn't already on your list of Fildom's important people, he belongs there. Life would be pretty dull without him.

A Navy photographer with the expedition preparing United States bases for participation in the forthcoming International Geophysical Year snapped this rare picture. B&PW Members Honor Bosses and Hear Discussion of Agriculture in Area

Cotton John Smith of Amarillo, guest speaker at the annual bosses banquet of the Wellington Business and Professional Women's Club Tuesday night, March 27, reminded the group that they were living in an agricultural town and urged them to be loyal to the agriculture of the Golden Spread.

"There is a lot wrong about Agriculture, the weather, politics. but what wrong more than politics or the drouth is a lot of little things," he said, and continuing, took up those agricultural products of this area that are being displaced, principally by synthetics.

Cotton exports this year will be the lowest in 100 years, with the exception of one year during the Civil War and one year during World War II. He urged that cotton producers use cotton products over synthetics. He pointed that the equivalent of $18 per bale is being spent to advertise synthetics, yet many in the cotton industry will not spend a cent to advertise their product.

Turning to wheat, he remarked that it was amazing how much wheat is not used.

He praised the beef industry for its advertising campaign to get the nation to eat more of its products and explained that last year the average consumption of 81 pounds of beef per person was an all-time record.

"Farmers have got to advertise their products if they sell them," he declared.

Miss Dorothy Robertson, president of B&PW, presided at the dinner and Mrs. Lottie Brock introduced the speaker.

An Easter-egg tree, hung with gilt sprinkled eggs, and sheltering an Easter Rabbit and nest of eggs, surrounded by snapdragons, centered the speaker's table. Ducklings and gaily colored eggs were used at intervals to decorate the tables.

Organ music was furnished by King Bowen.

We'll Be Seeing You

At The Project Show

And You'll See Things We Can't Do Without!

If we counted up the money value of the projects of the boys and girls who are exhibiting Saturday, it would be considerable. We don't suggest that you attend the show with this angle in mind. We do urge that you go down and see the fine slick calves and fat hogs that have been grown on the farms of Collingsworth this year. We can't get along without the improved quality of livestock if we continue to prosper.

BUT MOST OF ALL WE CAN'T GET ALONG WITHOUT THE INITIATIVE AND KNOW HOW THESE BOYS AND GIRLS ARE PROVIDING IN THEIR SCHOOL WORK NOW, AND WILL PROVIDE THE COMMUNITY IN THE FUTURE.

5,000 Treatments per Year

ANTIRABIC VACCINE HAS COME LONG WAY SINCE PASTEUR

AUSTIN-In a small laboratory in a suburb of Paris in the year 1884 a mother comforted a frightened boy as a bearded man in a white smock inserted a hypodermic needle into the lad's abdominal muscle.

The bearded man was Louis Pasteur, the brillant French bacteriologist. The boy was Joseph Meister, from the porvince of Alsace. His mother had brought him to Pasteur as a last resort, knowing that only a miracle would save him from one of the most horrible of deaths.

Pasteur supplied the miracle, for the syringe held in his skilled hands contained a fluid of his own concoction--an emulsion prepared from the spinal cord of a rabbit dead of rabies. At the precise moment he pressed the plunger on the syringe, the world had its most powerful weapon against a vicious disease which had plagued mankind since the dawn of recorded history.

Joseph Meister lived many years after the incident in the laboratory, despite sustaining 14 mad dog bites. He became celebrated as the first human being to receive vaccine against rabies. Prior to that time, the only treatment for mad animal bites was a red hot iron applied to the site of the wound as the victim writhed in agony.

Today, 71 years later, white-garbed technicians at the Texas Health Department make more than 5000 treatments of antirabic vaccine every year in a tediously exacting process requiring six months to complete. They use a modification of Pasteur's technique, but their product is vastly superior to his.

Six batches or "lots" are made in the spring and six in the fall. Each batch consists of 450 seperate treatments, and each is carefully double-checked by the National Institute of Health before being released.

Still, even in this day of modern immunology, and despite the fact that countless thousands of lives have been saved by promptly administering it to victims of mad animal bites, the vaccine is not perfect. No vaccine ever is.

Says Mrs. E. B. M. Cook, in charge of biologics production at the State Health Department:

"The perfect vaccine is a myth, an unattainable ideal. We make our rabies vaccine from the brain tissue of rabbits. Some people are allergic to the material, just as some are allergic to penicillin or poison ivy."

It is a curious fact, Mrs. Cook says, that any vaccine or therapeutic drug--whether it be for smallpox, whooping cough, polio, or pneumonia--may completely protect 999 people from the disease, yet cause a severe reaction, or perhaps even kill, the thousandth person it is given to.

Ordinarily it takes 14 shots of vaccine, administered one per day, to give protection against the bite of a rabid animal. Last year 2,379 of these "treatment series" were dispensed by the Department for exposed persons.

This is a joint meeting of the American Legion and the Auxiliary and a number from the Frank King Post and Auxiliary unit are expected to attend.

HARMON COUNTY
IRRIGATED FARMS FOR SALE

Eighty acres, well improved, on highway four mi. west of Hollis, Okla. 62 acres under irrigation. 26 acres cotton base, balance in alfalfa. Improvements worth $10,000.00 total price $28,000.00. Immediate possession.

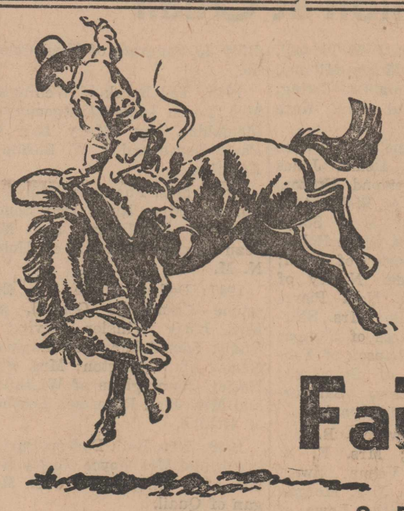

This tract has just been listed with me:

232 acres just south across highway from above tract. 150 acres in cultivation. 69 acres cotton base, balance in wheat and feed crop. Four room house. This tract was owned by a non-resident who is now deceased; therefore, no irrigation well has ever been drilled on same; however, good eight-inch wells on all four sides. Rented for 1956. Priced at $25,000.00 with one-fourth minerals reserved.

Both of above tracts are mixed sandy land, but are tight enough to water by dtich and not a sprinkle system.

Would like to sell both tracts together as they would make a nice unit; however will split them.

Get acquainted with the Most Valuable Asset This Area Has

You'll see fine cattle and fat hogs and attractive home projects. You can enjoy yourself all afternoon.

But what we really hope you'll do is get acquainted with these sturdy boys and lovely girls. They are our finest product . . . . our most valuable asset . . . . potentially our greatest resource.

If they must hunt greener pastures for their adult activities, then some other community or some city will be the richer–and we will be the greater loser. If we can help them establish themselves here at home, we will profit in every way from their abilities and their knowledge . . . . and they will be the richer for the heritage that comes from the land in which they grew up.

Why The Catholic Church Says "INVESTIGATE!"

Probably not more than a handful of people hate the Catholic Church as it really is.

But many have heard anti-Catholic calumnies from sources they have been taught to respect, and have come to fear and suspect the Church as it has been falsely represented to them.

It is hardly reasonable to believe that 25 millions of Americans would remain in the Catholic Church if the rumors circulated against the Church are true. Nor would thousands of others become Catholics every year if they believed such things — without inquiring into the facts.

That is why the Catholic Church says again and again to people everywhere: "Investigate! Investigate!"

The Church makes this appeal not merely to settle an argument, nor primarily to win the good-will of the non-Catholic people, although this is a hoped-for result.

Its more important aim is to invite people to inquire into Christ's truth as taught and preserved by the Catholic Church down through the centuries. For no man, seeking the salvation of his own soul, can conscientiously discount the Catholic claim to be Christ's Church on the basis of mere rumor and slander when the truth is so readily at hand.

The Catholic Church therefore invites you to inquire into its teaching and practices . . . to find out for yourself if what you believe about the Church is true or false.

Learn for yourself, for instance, if it is true that Catholics give divine worship to Mary, the Mother of Christ . . . or if this is not just another calumny. If you have been led to believe that Catholics worship idols and statues . . . buy and sell the divine worship of the Mass . . . are opposed to the religious freedom granted all religions by our Bill of Rights, then you have been deceived and misled.

If you have harbored these or any other false beliefs about the Catholic Church and its teachings . . and if, above all, such misunderstanding has kept you from examining the Catholic claim to be the Church established by Christ Himself . . . you owe it to yourself in good conscience to seek the truth.

We shall be glad to send you free on request, a booklet dealing with the points mentioned here and many others . . . including the attitude of the Church toward Birth Control . . . secret societies . . . the salvation of non-Catholics . . . why Catholic priests are called "Father" . . . the Inquisition, and the alleged goings-on behind convent walls. It will come to you in a plain wrapper — and nobody will call on you. Write today . . . ask for your copy of Pamphlet No. KC-7.

Modern family minus electricity

What would you do without low-cost electric service in your home? Well — you could use candles. And build fires. And use elbow grease for all the jobs Reddy Kilowatt does automatically. If you did, you would be reminded quickly — and forcefully — how much your electric service does at such low costs for each of the many jobs.

Your electric service is the biggest bargain in your family budget. What else gives you so much value in comfort, health, ease and fun? Keeping your electric service high in usefulness, low in cost is the main job of your electric service company.

Ralph Yarbrough Announces for Governor of Texas

Ralph W. Yarbrough of Austin, pledging to "build a structure of morality" in state government, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor of Texas.

Yarbrough announced a platform "of progress including water conservation, drought relief, higher old age pensions, improved schools with adequate teacher pay and adequate retirement pay, adequate classroom space, a youth development program, a juvenile delinquency program" based on "broad general humanitarian principles." He said he would take his campaign in person "to the people in every corner of this great commonwealth."

Yarbrough made his announcement simply, to the press, in contrast to the statewide radio and television broadcasts of other gubernatorial contenders.

"Humbly I accept," Yarbrough said, "the commission of duty you have given me in tens of thousands of messages .... to lead the fight for the good name of Texas.

"The people of Texas want a new state government, free of entangling allances and partnerships with the outgoing administration. Texas wants a state government free of the policies of the past and capable of independent action."

Yarbrough added. "I pledge the people of Texas the restoration of honor, integrity and diginty in their state government."

"To every one of the 683,132 Texas who voted and worked with us in the hard campaign of 1954, I extend my thanks and gratitude, I urge each of you, and all Texans who believe in the triumph of honesty and morality, to join us in this crusade for a new administration in Texas."

FARM SURPLUS BUGABOO—EXPOSED

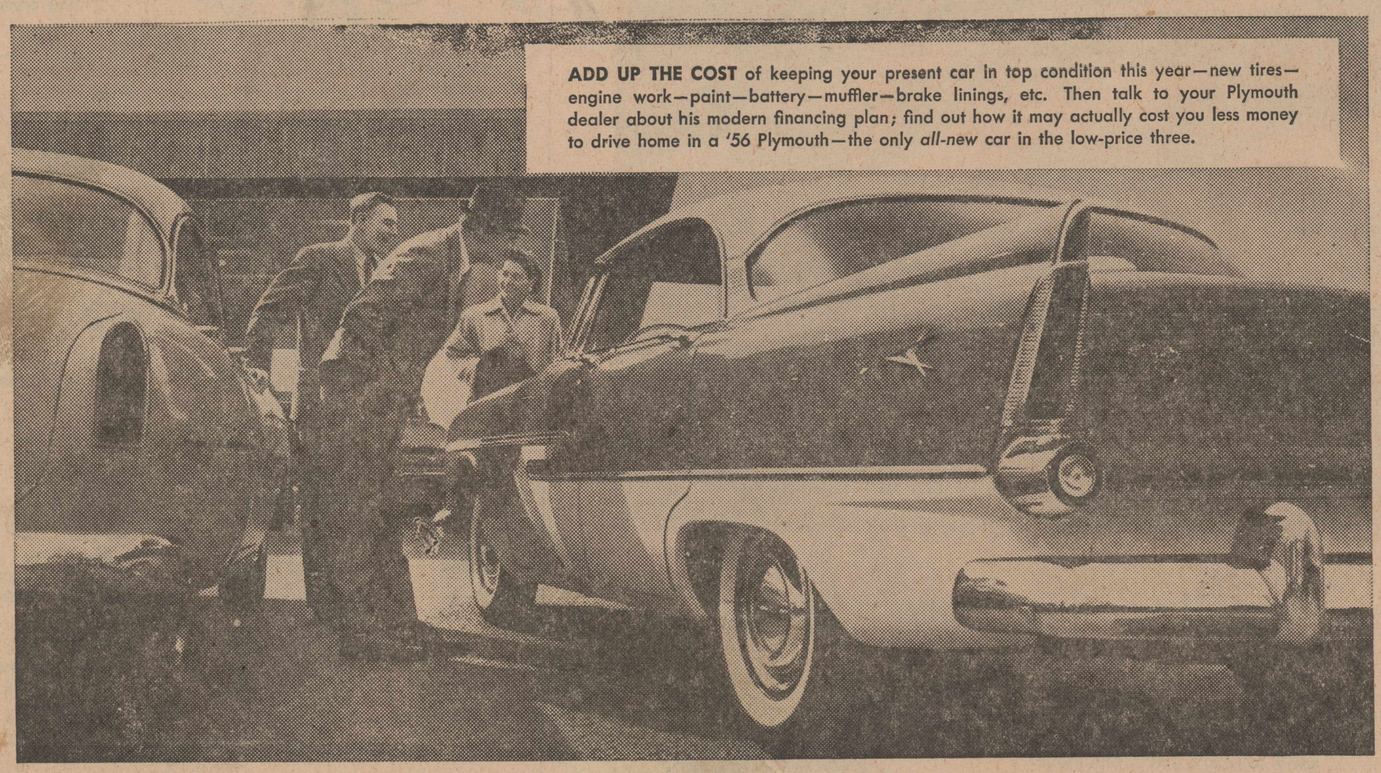

What has caused the present sad plight of the American farmer? The generally accepted answer in this country to this question if "farm products surplus". This is not true. If it was true, the answer to the farm problem would be very simple. Simply destroy the surplus. Many would say that it would be criminal to destroy food products. I would agree. But if I was confined to a choice between destroying some food products or destroying farm families all over this country, the choice would be an easy one for me and for you. The truth is that the destruction of such surplus would not solve the farm problem. If it would, you can rest assured that the surplus would have been destroyed long ago and the farm problem settled.

The farmer is simply going through another post war era as he has in the past history of this country and is being victimized by the same identical methods and by the same group of tricksters as in the past. The "farm products surplus" song and dance is nothing more than a smoke screen behind which the same kind of sharpies that followed World War I are hiding. It is simple to see that if the surplus was causing the trouble, you could kill two birds with one stone by destroying it. First, it would do away with the trouble and thereby solve the farm problem. Secondly, by destroying the surplus products, you would have the amount of money that it costs to pay storage and rental thereon.

I am not guessing about this because I know that in economics if surplus depresses the market in one phase of the economy, to wit, farm products, it should have the same identical effect in another segment of the economy, to wit, automotive equipment. To find the answer that farm surplus is not causing the problem all we have to do is to look at the figures that have been complied as both types products. Using the year 1947 as the beginning year we find that automotive equipment enjoyed an increase of 37.8 per cent by November, 1955. Yet there has been a continual increase in the production of automotive equipment and great SURPLUSES have accumulated. The retail automobile dealers recently had a meeting in Washington and one of the great complaints was the fact that the SURPLUS cars that were being produced were being forced on them by the manufacturers. I think it could be taken as a fact granted that there is a tremendous surplus of new cars and used cars. Yet according to the index car could have been bought in 1947 for $1,800.00 would have cost you $2,600.00 in 1955. Now let us look at the farm products. Using the same years 1947 to 1955 we find that cotton also in surplus decreased 3 per cent which made an overall differential in value between a bale of cotton and an automobile over 40 per cent. In wheat we find a greater differential. A bushel of wheat during that period decreased 8.1 percentage points making a differential between the value of wheat and the value of an automobile of over 45 per cent. Looking at cattle, we find a like picture except greater. A cow decreased in value during that period of time 21.4 per cent. This created a differential between the cow and the automobile in so far as value was concerned of almost 60 per cent. And then let us look at hogs, which have suffered a tremendous drop recently. Here we find a greater differential during the same period of time. We find that hogs dropped 57.5 percentage points or a differential between a hog and an automobile on the value scales of 85 plus per cent.
