Flashes Of Life By Associated Press

ANGORAS, Turkey—Angora cats are in danger of becoming extinct. The years of war, famine and neglect in Turkey had made great ravages on the breed of long-haired, bushy-tailed, pink-eyed tabbies, which, with the Angora goat, made this section of Turkey famous. The only varieties the traveler to the Turkish capital sees nowadays are scrawny, half-starved, ill-colored cats, whose interbreeding with the common back yard cat have caused them to lose most of their former "aristocratic" characteristics.

Guard Prelates

CHICAGO—Fashion note from the police department: garbes in Prince Albert coats, silk hats and morning trousers—and sixshooters—a squad of policemen formed a guard for visiting prelates to the Eucharistic congress.

Campaign Cheap

DES MOINES—Victory in nothing flat was registered by Smith W. Brookhart in the recent Iowa primary. His expense account shows that his campaign for Senatorial nomination did not cost him a penny.

John D. and Turkeys

AUBURN N. Y.—John D. Rockefeller earned his first money raising turkeys. Yesterday he visited the turkey and Geese where he lived as a boy and decided out to friends the scenes of his youth, including the wood where he captured the turkeys that gave him his financial start.

SPEAKS HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Dan Moody, Attorney General of Texas, will speak here Saturday night at the interest of his campaign for Governor. He will be escorted from Post here in the afternoon by a large delegation of Lubbock people, speaking at Post and Station enroute, and will appear here at 8:30 in the evening.

DENVER TROPHY PASTOR IS HELD TO BE EXHIBITED FOR IMMORALITY

Formal Flag Raising Ceremony To Be Held At Merrill Park Next Friday

A flag raising ceremony, one of the first of the kind ever undertaken here, is being planned by officials of the Lubbock amateur baseball association through the Lubbock chamber of commerce when the piece of bunting signifying Lubbock's win of the Denver Post trophy last year will be hoisted to the top of a pole that is being erected in the Merrill park here.

Angoras Losing

ANGORAS, Turkey—Angora cats are in danger of becoming extinct. Plano Visitor Is Honor Guest At Bridge Luncheon

Honoring her house guest, Mrs. C. H. Gerard, of Plano, Mrs. Earl Sproule was hostess to the Idle-White bridge club Thursday with a bridge-luncheon. The guests assembled at 11:30 o'clock and played bridge until noon when cherries on stems, fried chicken, potatoes, creamed peas and carrots, tomato salad, olives, fig preserves, hot rolls, lead tea, apricot ice and chocolate iced cake were served to the following guests: Mesdames Ray Gris, ham, F. N. Payne, Paul Barrier, J. R. Germany, J. B. Crisler, Ralph Lemmon, Anna Fausk, Murray Jones, Joe Flaig, R. D. Benson, Homer Pharr, Joe Webb, Homer Grant, Glen Hess, R. J. Murray and W. P. Jennings.

Mrs. Joe Flaig received the high score favor and Mesdames Grisham, Germany, Webb and Murray. Mrs. Sproule presented her guest with a favor.

Menus for the Family

LUNCHEON—Tomatoes stuffed with spinach, white bread and butter sandwiches, chocolate rice pudding, milk, tea.

DINNER—Broiled lamb chops, new potatoes in cream sauce, buttered carrots and peas, Swiss chard salad, cherry pudding, milk, coffee, whole wheat bread.

Needless to say young children will not indulge in the new potatoes nor cherry pudding suggested in the dinner menu. A cooky might be provided to "help the milk go down."

Chocolate Rice Pudding

One-fourth cup rice, 2 cups milk, 1 square chocolate, 5 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Wash rice. Put chocolate in top of double boiler over hot water and melt. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Stir in rice and sugar and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly with a fork until the rice is tender and the mixture is of the consistency of thick cream. Stir in egg well beaten and cook five minutes longer. Let cool and stir in vanilla. Pour into individual glasses, chill and serve garnished with whipped cream.

Rival For Lillian Cannon

Gertrude Ederle, great woman swimmer who nearly teamed the English Channel last summer, here is starting from New York on the Berengaria to renew the attempt. Lillian Cannon, the famous mermaid, already is in Europe training for the same ordeal, and it is expected she may make the great plunge before Miss Ederle. Both girls are to have the same trainer, the famous Bill Burgess.

The Woman's Day

By ALLENE SUMNER

Husband Farmers

"The farmer husband may make less money on the farm than he might as a commutator; his wife may never have a diamond pin or a mink coat. But if he works out-of-doors energetically every day, he may at thirty-five or forty enjoy his children more and feel less like running away from the burdens of family life than a torpid-livered white-collar man, fretted to hysteria by conditions of life unsuitable for him."—By Dorothy Canfield.

The Road Home

"I think of you in a wee small house. At the end of a slim, green lane. In a land that is free of care and doubt. In a land that knows no pain; I think of you with blue, smiling eyes. But your mouth has a wistful line. As if it longs—oh, I know it does!—For a fleeting touch of mine!"—By Margaret Sanister

A Word From the Wise

"I think women ought to go to separate universities from men. They are too many distractions and you want to dance. I tried to pass my first examination for Sumerville at Oxford three times and I was sent down for not working." This confession wells from the 23-year-old soul of Sylvia Thompson, whose novel called "Hounds of Spring" has been a spring best seller.

Beard and Mesh Bags

Both beard and mesh bags are dead as the doornail, according to Fashion's High Mogul, even if shops are frantically attempting to sell left-over stock. Fans, too, except for evening when their gorgeous plumage makes a jewel and not a fan of them.

The Crowning Glory

Long hair does not seem to come back into style to any extent, hair-dressers and wig salesmen to the contrary. Women insist on the sleek head outline. Many are compromising, however—have both sleek head and a few swirls of hair that cloak the rather awkward neckline. Like this. The hair is cut very short with the exception of the side pieces, which may be swirled in "snails" or "twisted buns" over the ears, or crossed in the back, making an soft neckline.

Summer Play

Tweed, homespun, kaskax, all the rough, woolly sport clothes, play their part in the summer fashion revue. Plaids, checks and stripes make a Roman holiday. Plaid or mixture coats worn with plain sports material skirts or dresses are most chic on the One and Only Avenue.

Miss Frances Sawyer Is Complimented At Morning Party

Miss Frances Sawyer, of Henderson, Ky., house guest of Mrs. D. K. Bondurant, was honored at a party given Thursday morning by Mrs. Hankin Dow at the home of Mrs. Clark Smith. Games of bridge were played during the morning and a two course luncheon was served at noon. Sweet peas were used in decorating. A guest favor was presented Miss Sawyer and Miss Elma Pierce made high score.

The guests included Mesdames Frances Sawyer, Alma Spikes, Mary Alice Stanton, Frances Conley, Doris Bondurant, Marjorie Leland, Julia Johnson, Ella Norine O'Neal, Elizabeth Clarke, Blanche Bacon, Elma Pierce, Mary Louise Middleton and Mesdames D. K. Bondurant, K. I. Kimbro, Frank Jones, Lawrence Bacon, and Ira Townsend.

Miss Lucille Payne To Be Honoree At Dinner Party

Misses Mary Lou Bayless and Ruby Arnett will be honorees at a dinner party Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Arnett, 1627 Broadway, complimenting Miss Lucille Payne who is moving to Shreveport, La., with her parents.

Heart To Heart Talks With Cynthia Grey

LOVE BUCCANEER EVERYWHERE SO BE ALERT

Cynthia Grey cautions Women That Rivals Always Are Ready to Coax Men Away

The love pirate we have always with us. When humanity inhabited jungles and won its mates by unceremonious methods, predatory woman prowled the wilderness with the other beasts of prey, in search of that man who could best defend her against danger and want.

And when she found him, no matter what previous engagement he had, she took him, by any wiles at her command.

Judging from the letters in my mail, I should say that civilization hasn't changed woman's nature much. Dozens of young and trusting girls are losing their sweethearts and writing to me about it for consolation.

The general tenor of their letters is "Don't you think she is a wicked woman to steal him?"

I'm sorry to say I don't, unless the "him" in question is a married man. I do think that any woman of common decency will observe the rights of a wife to her husband's loyalty. If an attraction springs up between a husband and an unmarried woman, it is clearly the duty of both to nip the affair by separation.

There may be some question whether an engaged man is equally bound in loyalty to his betrothed. Certainly a man who disappoints his fiancée after their marriage plans are made is no very admirable character. But even if a seriously doubt the kindness of marrying one woman while in love with another, convention notwithstanding, I should prefer the more honest treatment of the situation. What woman could wish to hold a man to a bargain that lured him?

As for the sweetheart-stealing that goes on among the single girls and men—one may deplore it, but can hardly condemn it. It is natural and inevitable.

I wish the heart-broken little girls who write me these complaints of love pirates could see that in love the battle is not so the strong, and the best woman wins—not best in a moral sense, necessarily, but best equipped to capture the man.

Then there is always another angle that the aggrieved woman seldom sees. The other woman may not have been altogether guilty of the theft. Perhaps it was the man himself who transferred his affection voluntarily.

Love is not a deliberately planned affair. It blazes where it listeth, and overweighs considerations of prudence and loyalty.

And how much better for it to strike only upon a betrothal or puppy-love affair than upon an established house of marriage.

The True Blue Sunday School class members of the First Baptist church have planned a picnic for this afternoon at the County Park.

MR. AND MRS. BRUCE GENTRY ARE EXPECTING TO ATTEND THE MEETING OF THE WEST TEXAS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN AMARILLO NEXT WEEK.

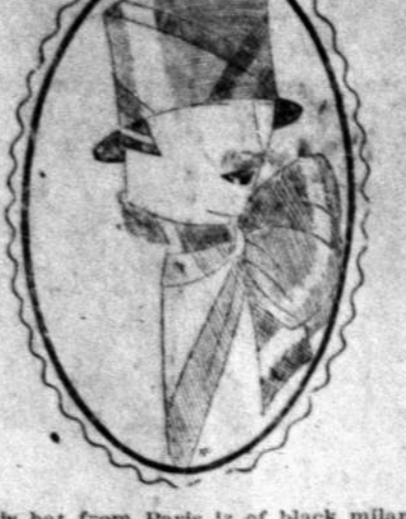

Between Acts

LEE BARNES

It isn't very often you have the opportunity of glancing at Lee Barnes, sensational Southern California pole-vaulter, at close distance. For Lee is usually to be seen soaring close to 34 feet in the air as he hoists himself over the bar. Here, however, you get a good near view of the curly haired star. And, girls, he's rather handsome, too, isn't he?

Paris Hat

This hat from Paris is of black millan trimmed with rose and black grosgrain ribbon. The matching scarf is of wide black and rose satin ribbon joined together.

Select Your Bathing Suit As You Would Your Husband, Use Best Of Judgment, Says Hortense Saunders

(By HORTENSE SAUNDERS) NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, June 18.—Any vacation schedule that does not include a stop at the beach—at least long enough to warrant investing heavily in beach attire, may be put down as incomplete.

No more does the summer traveler stick a bathing suit of indiscriminate purchase and carelessly cut into her suit case and consider that she has done her duty by the wild waves.

She ensembles for bathing just as she has for day and evening. She has decorative and swanky bags in which she carries her sea togs, and fuzzy little kits with a complete assortment of waterproof powder, and first aid to sunburn, and rouge that doesn't wash off.

She has as many bathing suits as she has tailored suits—or more, some severely plain and others laden with choice rubber flora. She has shoulder corsages and fancy parasols. She has zipper bags—even a beach flask, and rubber-lined cigar cases.

If she is the Lillian Cannon type, that is, if she swims for speed and distance and dispenses with all unnecessary baggage. Either she attires herself in a plain Annette Kellerman, as the young lady in the photograph, who wears more stripes than a Sing Sing uniform, or one of the new suits that is very masculine in cut and consists of a white jersey shirt and striped flannel trousers with a nifty belt between.

If she is the Loretta type, who sits on the beach, fascinating all the men within the radius of her smile, and keeping them from swimming, a more decorative attire is devised—say an ensemble suit of rainbow tinted taffeta—or a printed crepe outfit.

A coat or cape to match the suit, lined with brilliant color is advisable both for comfort and appearance.

Pajamas outfits of brilliant silks and satins and with gorgeous combinations of color, have been popular for several seasons at the Lido and the Mediterranean summer resorts, and there is no doubt they will be in evidence at all smart resorts this summer.

Pajamas are frankly beach costumes, and have nothing more than a bowing acquaintance with the water. They are decorative and becoming and do not offer any further excuse for being.

It is well to consider beach hostery, since the most exclusive bathing beaches usually demand hostery. They should match the outfit in color. Besides the regulation rubber sandal and the usual beach slippers, this season there are clogs of lacquered wood and woven leather that are highly attractive.

As in all other realms of fashion, color is extremely important in beach attire, and the brilliant and vivid colorings are preferred to delicate pastels.

MRS. J. R. WALKER IS VISITING in Clovis. She expects to return to Lubbock Sunday.

MRS. NEIL WRIGHT AND CHILDREN, who returned to their home here this morning, were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. George Wicker, of Austin. Mrs. Wright has been visiting Mrs. Wicker, her sister, in Austin for several weeks. She visited in Dallas and other points while away. Miss Mary Meador joined Mrs. Wright for a part of her visit in Austin and is now visiting in Dallas.

NEIL WRIGHT, SAM C. ARNETT and S. C. Arnett, Jr., are expected home this week-end from Crede, Colo., where they have been on a fishing trip.

H. E. HATCH, OF BIG SPRING, was a business visitor in Lubbock Thursday. Mr. Hatch is connected with the Rix Furniture and Undertaking company and very likely will move to Lubbock in the near future, according to W. W. Rix.

ABSENT VOTERS TOLD HOW THEY CAN HAVE VOTE

LAW EXPLAINS METHOD OF RECEIVING BALLOT IN SPITE OF ABSENCE

Lubbockites who will be out of the county on July 24th, the date of the first Democratic primary and who desire to vote a ballot for their favorite candidate must follow the provisions of the absent voters' law in order that their votes may be counted.

Those who are leaving early and will not be here on primary day, should take their poll tax receipt with them so that difficulties may be avoided.

Voters who will be out of the county as early as July 23rd, in order to comply with the law, must appear before some notary public, exhibiting their poll tax receipt, and make application for an official ballot. This application must be made not more than 30 days before nor less than 10 days before the primary. The poll tax or an affidavit that poll tax was paid must be delivered to the notary who, in turn, will forward it to the County Clerk of your residence, after checking over the certified poll tax lists. The County Clerk will then forward to the Elector, and official ballot, which must be sealed in an envelope. This envelope must not be opened except in the presence of the notary. The elector must make an oath before said notary that said ballot was then and there marked separate and apart from anyone and without the assistance of anyone. The ballot is then to be folded, and placed in a sealed envelope, together with the affidavit, and on the outside must be written, "OFFICIAL BALLOT OF (Give name of elector)."

The notary will mail the marked ballot to the County Clerk, of the county of your residence, who will deliver it to the Judge of the precinct in which the elector lives.

Voters who will be in the county after July 12th, but will not be here on primary day can personally appear before the County Clerk, not more than 10 days before or less than three days before election, and if unknown to the County Clerk, be identified by at least two reputable citizens. The elector shall deliver his poll tax receipt, exemption certificate or affidavit that a poll tax receipt has been paid, to the County Clerk, who will then supply him with a ballot. The ballot is to be marked in accordance with the election laws, placed in a sealed envelope and delivered to the County Clerk, who will also retain the poll tax receipt, exemption certificate or affidavit.

MOODY WORKING SOUTH WHILE FERGUSONS TURN EASTWARD

WICHITA FALLS, June 18. (AP)—Irish Davidson was to face one of the busiest days of his campaign today, climaxed with an "all West Texas rally" here in the evening.

The rally, to be attended by representatives of 15 or more communities is planned as the culminating feature of the West Texas swing during which the candidate has been forced to battle with rain-soaked highways additional to delivering a series of addresses daily.

Today he was to speak at Seymour and Electra before returning to Wichita Falls for a dinner attended by 50 local business men. The rally will follow.

Moody At Amarillo
AMARILLO, Texas, June 18. (AP)—Attorney General Dan Moody continued to emphasize his contention that the present gubernatorial campaign is wholly on the issue of "Fergusonism" in an address before an overflow crowd at the city auditorium Thursday night.

The candidate devoted practically the whole of his address to an attack on the present administration, making James E. Ferguson's purported statements at Wichita Falls relative to the invalidated district road bonds his particular target. Moody charged that Ferguson would take advantage of technicalities to escape payment of a "just debt."

The Attorney General's announced speaking program for today includes Canyon, 10 a. m., Tulsa, 2 p. m., and Plainview, 8 p. m.

Ferguson At Midland
MIDLAND, Texas, June 18. (AP)—A typical crowd of West Texans heard James E. Ferguson continue his attack on Dan Moody here Thursday night. He declared that Mrs. Ferguson had reduced a debt overhanging the prison system from previous administrations by $500,000 and that she had done much to improve educational opportunities for rural children.

H. E. Webb, of Odessa, a State Representative, presided over the meeting and Mrs. John Haley, who said she had been a friend of the Ferguson family for 25 years, introduced the speaker. Ferguson is to speak at Abilene Friday night and at Cisco Saturday.

Joint Complaint Filed On Cotton Seed Rates

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—A joint complaint against freight rates on cotton seed, cotton seed products and related commodities between producing points in the Southwest and destinations throughout the United States was filed today with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the Texas and Oklahoma cotton seed crushers' association.

More than 500 railroads were named as defendants.

The complaint attacked specifically these rates:

On cake, meal and oil from the Southwest to all points East, on cake meal and hulls to Western Colorado and certain New Mexico points, on vegetable oils and mixed loads of meal and hulls to "magnifying Pacific territories. It was charged the rates were preferential to competitors shipping these products to Eastern territory.

SAYS BRAZIL WILL TRY TO AVOID ALLIANCES

RIO JANEIRO, June 18. (AP)—The members of the Chamber of Deputies who have intimate knowledge of the Chamber's attitude regarding the withdrawal of Brazil from the League of Nations today informed the Associated Press that there was an expectation of a national desire to keep Brazil from European alliances.

Pinto Campelo, floor leader of the anti-government minority, said membership in the League would inevitably result in national embarrassment, either by complications arising through Brazil becoming involved in intricate European diplomacy or by her participation in attempted settlements of difficulties arising between nations.

The government's withdrawal from the league, said Augusto Lima, acting president of the committee of foreign affairs, has the approval of the entire nation. Its action means Brazil's closer relations with the American republics, especially the United States. All the nations support Brazil's withdrawal. It became inevitable when it was seen that Latin-American would not secure a seat in the league council. Woodrow Wilson's peace ideas are our ideals, but as a nation, we cannot see how they can be attained by league membership.

GENEVA, June 18. (AP)—League of Nations circles were stirred today by a dispatch from Rio Janeiro saying the American ambassador had congratulated President Bernardes upon Brazil's attitude toward the League of Nations.

The dispatch has revived and given strength to reports here that the United States government had been influencing Brazil to adopt a strong policy for attainment of a permanent seat on the League council. These reports were circulated in Geneva during the March session of the league assembly, when Brazil threatened to veto the election of Germany.

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—American diplomatic officials made swift and emphatic denial today that they had been involved even indirectly in the League of Nations controversy which resulted recently in Brazil's withdrawal as a league member.

Hundreds of American envoys have been in circulation both in Geneva, the seat of the League, and Rio de Janeiro, the Brazilian capital. Even before the report had reached Washington in news dispatches, E. V. Morgan, the American ambassador at Rio had cabled the State Department a categorical denial of a story that he had congratulated President Bernardes upon Brazil's resignation from the League.

Published statements that he had called upon the Brazilian president for any such purpose, or had otherwise taken such action, were said by the ambassador to be unqualifiedly false.

Spread of the reports from Rio to Geneva had been made known to the State Department meantime by Hugh Gibson, the American minister there. The department immediately forwarded Ambassador Morgan's statement to Mr. Gibson.

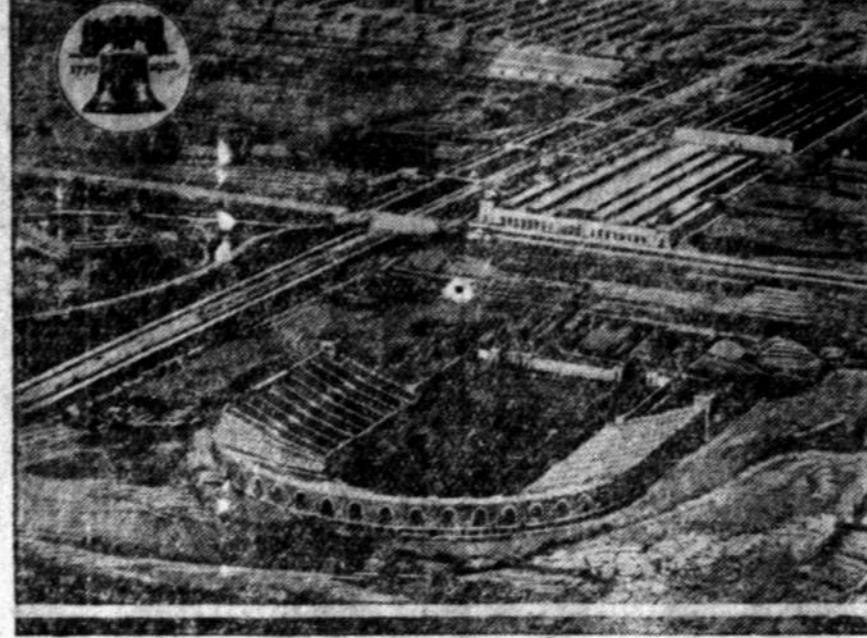

Secretary Kellogg and other State Department officials believe that to issue a formal denial of reports that the Washington government had been influencing Brazil would be unduly to dignify the reports.

GIANTS DEFEAT PIRATES WHILE REDS HELD IDLE

RED LEGS AGAIN FLAUNT COLORS FROM TOP OF NATIONAL LOOP

(By the Associated Press)

Once again the Red Legs of Cincinnati swing from the top of the National League ladder, a position retained without effort.

The Reds kept out of the rain in Philadelphia yesterday, while the New York Giants pulled the Pittsburgh Pirates back into second position, 5 to 5, in the most exciting battle seen at the Polo Grounds this season. It went 13 innings, youth eventually beating age.

It was a youth, Eddie Farrell, who hurled a throw in the ninth which set the stage for Pittsburgh to tie the game. It was the hero of the world's series of 17 years ago, Babe Adams, who then went upon the firing line for the Pirates and held the Giants safely for three innings. Then the youth, Rhyme of Pittsburgh, belted a homer inside the grounds in the thirteenth, giving the Pirates a two run lead, only to fumble with a double play at hand in the New York park and leave Frank Frisch and Pop Young on the bags.

At this point the youth Lindstrom, of the Giants, lifted the first pitch delivered by the aged Adams into the right field stands and won the game. This verdict led New York, Chicago and Brooklyn tied for fourth place with a percentage of 569, three games behind the leaders.

Phil Rhen and Vic Keen, each allowing six hits, set back the Boston Braves in a double-header, 4 to 2, and 4 to 2. Triples by Hines and Bell of the Cardinals had much to do with the decision in the second contest.

Bill Marriott returned to third base for Brooklyn and celebrated with three singles. In the tenth, his sacrifice fly scored the run that defeated the Chicago Cubs, 10 to 9. Twelve errors were made during the afternoon.

In the American League, the New York Giants, including Babe Ruth, found themselves helpless before Ted Blankenship and bowed to the White Sox, 6 to 2. Lazzeri made a homer for New York while Sheeley responded in like manner for Chicago.

Washington accepted another beating at the hands of St. Louis, 9 to 7, the Browns scoring three circuit blows by Williams, Schang and Durst. The Williams blow scored four runs in the second.

Victory came to the Philadelphia Athletics when they piled up eight runs in the last innings to beat Detroit, 12 to 9. Summers of Philadelphia and Manush of Detroit made homers.

Sherrod Smith gave the Boston Red Sox five safeties and won for Cleveland, 3 to 1.

Billy Evans Says

HORNSBY'S SLUMP — TEAM DISAPPOINTS — MANAGERIAL WOE — BATTING CROWN

Seems strange to look at the National League batting averages and not see the familiar name of Rogers Hornsby heading the list.

With the season about one-third over, Hornsby, one of the greatest batters in the history of the game, is No. 25 in the ranking.

However, Hornsby isn't so far away from the top as the difference between 1 and 25 would make it seem. Measured in percentage figures, just 25 points separate Hornsby from Cuyler, the league leader.

The only possible explanation that can be offered for Hornsby's slump is that the added responsibilities of managing the St. Louis Cardinals have affected his batting average.

It is also possible that Hornsby has been hitting in hard luck. By that I mean he has been meeting the ball hard, but always straight at somebody.

The element of luck plays its part even with the greatest of batsmen.

Hornsby's present batting average, which is at least 50 points below normal, is certain to be considerably better before the close of the season.

If he fails to lead the National League in batting this year, it will eliminate the only big league player with a chance to equal or better Cobb's remarkable feat of leading a major league at the bat for nine consecutive years.

At the close of the 1925 campaign Hornsby had six consecutive batting championships of the National League to his credit.

In the south, during spring training, he expressed to me the belief that he had an excellent chance to equal if not better Cobb's mark.

With the season one-third over, his chances of capturing the 1926 crown are not so bright, but I am still of the opinion that at the close of the campaign he will be showing the way to the rest of the procession.

I am positive Hornsby is deeply disappointed at the showing of his club to date.

Not inclined to boast and always reticent about offering predictions, Hornsby made this remark to me at San Antonio this spring:

"There are only two ball clubs in the National League I fear, New York and Pittsburgh."

"You can take that as a prediction that I believe the Cardinals will finish third. And a team able to stick in the first division is always within striking distance of a pennant."

"I am going to be decidedly surprised unless my club is in the thick of the fight."

Away to a poor start, the St. Louis Cardinals have failed to live up to the spring predictions of Manager Hornsby and the baseball experts in general. I must admit the Cards looked mighty good to me in the south.

Hornsby was fearful of his pitching and with the exception of Rhen and Keen, he had ample grounds.

While Hornsby isn't the type to worry, I am sure the failure of his club to deliver has been the greatest contributing factor to his present slump at the bat.

Batting championships are decided in October rather than June 15, so don't count the great Hornsby out of the running.

He is sure to be there or thereabouts.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

Fly ball bounces out of the hands of the left fielder but is recovered by the center fielder, who is backing up the play, before it touches the ground. What are the rights of the baserunner to advance on such a play?

All baserunners on such a play shall have the right to advance the moment the ball strikes the hands of the first player handling the drive in this case the left fielder.

If the runner properly holds his base until the ball strikes the hands of the first player who tries to handle the ball, he will have done his part.

In some quarters there exists the belief that the runner shall not leave his base until the ball strikes the hands of the player who actually completes the play. This is wrong.

GEORGE DUNCAN Iron Club Play

In iron-club play the transference of the weight is not quite the same as with wooden clubs. What we all wish to do when using an iron is to hit the type of shot that starts low, gradually rises until it reaches the end of its flight, and then comes nearly straight down. In other words, we want to hit the ball a descending blow beneath its center.

There are two ways of playing this shot. One consists in a marked transference of weight onto the left foot during the upswing; the other in standing more in front of the ball when addressing it. I recommend the first method. It seems to me much easier to time the transference of the weight when the swing is in action than it is when the weight is put in front before the swing is started.

When I say that there is a difference in the weight movement between wood-club shots and those with irons, I mean that the weight goes forward on to the left foot sooner in the case of an iron shot.

The swing is a shorter one, therefore, less pivoting is required and so the transference of the weight forward feels like a gradual leaning forward from right to left.

(By JOE DUGAN)

The bluff bunt, a play much used when I broke into the American League, but now rather obsolete, tests not only the mechanical play of a third baseman but his thinking apparatus as well.

When Ty Cobb was in his prime he used to pull this play often, having the batter work with him in confusing the infielder.

The play is best worked, of course, when least expected. We will say Cobb is on second, or any other good baserunner. Max Carey for instance, and there is none or one out.

With the pitch, the runner on second starts for third. If the third baseman dashes in, figuring to get a bunt, the batsman merely bluffs, purposely missing the ball but going through all the motions to befuddle the catcher.

Properly pulled, the runner steals third practically unopposed, as it is physically impossible for the third baseman to retrace his steps to the bag and be in any position to put a throw on the runner.

In like manner, if the third baseman decides to cover, hoping to retire the runner trying to steal third, it is up to the batsman to shift from the bluff to an actual attempt to bunt.

If the batsman is fortunate enough to get the ball far down the first base line, there is hardly a chance of retiring anybody on the play.

There is no chance for the custodian of the bag who is covering to make a play on the ball and it is asking almost too much of the pitcher to get

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—The Missouri Kansas Texas Railway was tentatively valued by the Interstate Commerce Commission today at $81,884,000 as of June 30, 1918.

On the date of valuation the railroad had outstanding total par value of $184,628,874 in stocks and long term debts of which $53,232,257 represented common stock, $12,000,000 preferred, $7,000,000 funded.

Investments in the road and equipment, including land, was given in the company's books as $172,530,501 but with readjustments required by the commissions accounts, this would be reduced to $121,444,162 of which $81,260,991, less a portion assignable to off setting items recorded at $45,875, represented considerations other than money.

Guard Placed At American's Home After Arica Ro

ARICA, Chile, June 18. (AP)—Chilean army and navy contingents were guarding the residence of General William Lassiter today following yesterday's demonstrations, in which the plebiscitary chairman was the object of hisses and anti-American cries. The residences of the Peruvian delegates were also under guard.

The demonstrations were staged by Chileans in disapproval of General Lassiter's course in moving that a plebiscite to decide the sovereignty of Tacama and Arica, as between Peru and Chile, would be fruitless in view of Chile's alleged unfair tactics. The motion was carried at a recent meeting, the Peruvians voting with the Americans.

The United States cruiser General Scott has arrived to take General Lassiter home. The five-day period allowed for a Chilean appeal, under provisions of the arbitral award, not expire until tomorrow night, consequently the departure of General Lassiter and his legal advisers is not absolutely certain.

Construction Begins On Harbor Project

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, June 18. (AP)—Actual construction on the harbor project at Brazos Santiago Pass on Point Isabel, has begun. Major J. L. Schley, Galveston, United States District Engineer, announced here today.

Unofficial estimates of the expenditure are at $500,000. The work is to be done by government engineers and government dredges, no contracts being awarded.

Several years ago citizens of this section financed the construction of a 400-turning basin at Point Isabel, and a 16-foot channel 14,900 feet long in the Laguna Madre, much of which has been completed. The immediate work calls for an eighteen foot channel across the bar, connecting the inner channel with 36 feet of water. Jettying 1,300 feet long will be constructed seaward from the North end of Brazos Island and the South end of Padre Island. The work will require a year to complete.

WOOL MARKET BOSTON, June 18. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin will say: The past week has witnessed further distinct improvement in the wool market. Sales to the domestic mills have increased, especially for domestic wools, and while prices are not quotably lower, as a general proposition, it can be said that the decline in values has been halted and that the market is now against the buyer. The better feelings seems to be reflected in slightly increased activity in the West. The foreign markets are quiet with prices hardly changed. Mohair, while not especially active, is firm. Wool quotations: Secured basis: Texas fine 12 months (selected) $1.19; fine 8 months 98c@1.00.

NO TRACE YET FOUND OF MISSING MUSICIANS DALLAS, Texas, June 18. (AP)—No trace of A. A. Demond and Mike Valvulus, Dallas musician and dancer, who left here ten days ago for Chicago to attend school, has been found by Dallas and Chicago police asked to investigate their disappearance. The automobile in which they traveled has been found at a home in Chicago. Demond had $600, two valuable diamonds and a violin valued at $1,000 in his possession when he left here.

FIVE CARS OFFERED FOR TRIP SATURDAY Mrs. W. O. Stevens, L. C. Ellis, Frank T. Dwyer, James H. Goodman, and Homer L. Pharr have volunteered free transportation to members of the Lubbock high school band for the trip to Fort tomorrow, where the band will meet Hon. Dan Moody and be the official escort into Lubbock. A bus carrying twenty-five boys and their instruments has been secured from the Union Bus Terminal to make the trip also. The band, with a hundred or more Lubbock citizens who will make the trip also, will leave the high school at exactly twelve o'clock noon Saturday. Other cars have been promised for the trip if it is possible for their owners to leave at that time.

HOW TO MAKE BEER WITHIN LAW PROMISED WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—A demonstration of how to obtain 2.75 per cent beer without violating the law or spirit of the Volstead law, has been promised members of the House alcohol-bureau traffic committee by Representative Laguardia, Progressive-Socialist, New York. He said unless the committee in regular meeting did not wish to see the operation, he would do the job in his private office. He promised to give committee members an opportunity to sample the product if they so desired.

Christian Endeavor Group Returns From San Antonio Meeting

Misses Madeline Hester and Nannie Rush Cooper and Elmer Hester, J. W. Cox and T. W. Waddill returned Thursday afternoon from San Antonio where they represented Lubbock at the State Christian Endeavor convention, which closed Tuesday evening. There were about 600 delegates at the convention, according to Townsend Waddill, and the Panhandle district was represented by 15, seven of them going from here. The other Lubbock delegates have not returned to Lubbock yet. The convention will be held in Fort Worth next year.

Man Gets 35 Years For Robbery of $7

KANSAS CITY, June 18. (AP)—A unique plea for mercy backfired here today when Judge Thad B. Landon sentenced Carl Keen, 23-year-old bandit, to 35 years in the penitentiary for a seven dollar robbery. Keen had pleaded guilty. Keen was arrested recently after taking part in a $29 grocery store robbery with his 13-year-old brother, George. George Keen told police that Carl was teaching him to be a bandit and that the grocery store robbery was the first lesson. Carl Keen pleaded guilty today to robbing a street car conductor of $7 and then presented his own plea for mercy. "Your honor," he said, "I was doing the best I could for my brother. I wanted to see him amount to something. I wanted to take him out of ordinary class and make a real steky man out of him." "Thirty-five years," said the judge.

Officers Named For Texas Traffic League

PUBLIC URGED TO BE CAREFUL IN CHARITY

AUSTIN, Texas, June 18. (AP)—The public was urged to be more discriminating in the dispensation of its charities by 75 alumni of the Texas School for the Blind who met here May 31 to June 2. Official proceedings of the meeting were released today.

"Under the discussion of why so many of the blind are on the street, it was manifested that the sentiment of the alumni association was in disfavor of this practice," minutes of the meeting read.

"The contention was made that any normal, energetic blind person can find some means of earning an independent livelihood, but it was admitted there are many on the street from necessity and not from choice. This fact led to the stressing of the urgent need for an industrial home for the adult blind."

"It was shown, however, that there are many blind persons soliciting alms who have ample means, and others who are fully qualified to earn a livelihood by honest work. There are also many who are passing themselves off as blind who are really not without sight. Therefore, it is respectfully urged that the public be more discriminating in its charities."

The report of the committee of the loan fund—a fund for assisting worthy blind in obtaining special educational training, and for starting them in business on a small scale—showed there is now nearly three thousand dollars in the fund, and that much good has been accomplished by lending to worthy blind.

In discussing ways in which the work of the State school for the blind might be improved, it was suggested that more business training and vocational education courses be made available, and that more domestic training be given the girls.

Resolutions of regret were occasioned by the death of three members of the association: Miss Rhoda Hamilton, Houston; W. S. Stepter, Palmer; and Carl Hocker, Austin, and by the death of Floyd Reeder, Fort Worth, the husband of a member of the organization.

Nothing Yet Heard Of Missing Airmen

PARA, Brazil, June 18. (AP)—No news had been received here this morning of the missing Argentine aviators, Duggan and Oliver, who were on a flight from New York to Buenos Aires and who have not been heard from since last Sunday when they passed over Cayenne, French Guiana. A searching party left here yesterday.

Brownsville Gets Wholesalers Meet

BEAUMONT, Texas, June 18. (AP)—Brownsville was chosen for the next annual convention of the Texas wholesale vegetable dealers association, and Ed Siedman, of Beaumont, was elected president.

An invitation for the next convention to be held in El Paso came from the Chamber of Commerce of that city.

AMARILLO READY FOR BIG C. OF C. CONVENTION

AMARILLO, June 19. — "All Set" This is the message Amarillo is broadcasting to the world on the eve of the 5th annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Fifty thousands of people who will swarm this city during the convention June 21, 22 and 23 will find this sort of welcome to greet them, a welcome that has been the result of weeks of careful preparation and determined effort in the face of obstacles. Never before in the history of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has a convention loomed with such magnitude nor attracted such widespread attention as this.

Among the many thousands who will be here will be visitors from every portion of the United States, men and women drawn here by the influence development of West Texas and especially of that section of West Texas of which Amarillo is the center, is exerting.

To all these, Amarillo is opening her homes and her institutions with a hospitality not unworthy of her reputation. Everything that would assist or permit of greater convenience to her visitors and their entertainment while here has been done in so far as it has been possible. The citizens of Amarillo have shown themselves eager and energetic in their efforts, cooperating with their own Chamber of Commerce and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at all times in a manner that has meant much toward the successful consummation of the plans which have necessarily been attended with a great mass of detail.

All that is humanly possible to do has been done, and Amarillo is ready. Her homes are open and her people are eagerly awaiting this opportunity to fulfill the pledge made at the convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at Mineral Wells last year.

Legion To Honor Officials of Army

AMARILLO, June 18. — A banquet will be given at the Amarillo hotel here on the evening of Tuesday, June 22, by the American legion post of this city honoring General Paul B. Malone, U. S. A., General John A. Huber and General James F. Walters, of the Texas National Guard, who will be in attendance upon the annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held here June 21, 22, and 23. General Malone, commanding Fort Sam Houston, at San Antonio, will be the principal speaker Sunday afternoon at a gigantic patriotic and social celebration to be held at the city auditorium under the auspices of the legion.

Covers are being laid for 150 guests including National Guard officers, units of the National Guard and Reserve officers in addition to members of the American legion and the guests of honor. The banquet will start at 7:30 p. m.

WOOL SALE CLOSES AT SAN ANGELO THURSDAY

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 18. (AP)—The West Texas Wool and Mohair association today increased its sale of spring wool to approximately 600,343 pounds, when Robert P. Buell, of San Antonio bought for Cordling and Company, Boston, the remainder of the firm's eight months fleeces, 125,000 pounds.

The association's sealed bid auction, opening Wednesday, closed Thursday, after 177,843 pounds of long and 64,000 pounds of short clips had been sold during the day. These sales, with those Wednesday and Friday, increased the total to 361,343 pounds of long and 239,000 pounds of short wool. The association still had unsold in storage nearly 400,000 pounds.

Prices Thursday were understood to be unchanged, averaging around 35 cents for twelve months and 30 cents for eight months clips. No Merton sales exceeded the season's peaks for the state of 28 1-8 cents for long and 11 cents for short wool.

ONE MAN KILLED NEAR ABILENE BY LIGHTNING BOLT

Colorado, Hamlin and points in Fisher County report rainfall of from two to six inches. More than one inch fell at Sweetwater.

Fall destroyed a number of crops in the West part of Lynn County and also in the Southeast portion, a report from the County Agent stated. The rainfall a Tahoka totalled two inches.

Rail Tracks Washed Out
 SEYMOUR, Texas, June 18. (AP)—Held up here by railroad washouts and impassable roads, Lynch Davidson was planning today to take a railroad motor car to Wichita Falls where he is due to speak tonight.

Reports from Dundee stated that four miles of track were washed out near there, with telegraph and telephone poles down and shocks of wheat stacked high against railroad embankments. Dundee is between here and Wichita Falls.

When some of Davidson's party reached Dundee ahead of the candidate this morning, they found a motor passenger train, one car of which was almost full of babies who had slept through last night's storm. Many wheat fields are reported to have washed away by the rain which was estimated at eight inches.

Two Trains Lost
 ABILENE, Texas, June 18. (AP)—The two Wichita Valley passenger trains stalled by washouts, had not been heard from by the local terminal's offices of that line at noon Friday due to broken telegraph wires. The fourth-round train was due here at 4:35 A. M. today and the other in Wichita Falls at 11:35 A. M.

Inch Rain At Amarillo
 AMARILLO, June 18. (AP)—Following an inch rain here last night, the temperature today dropped to 58 degrees.

Food Prices Show Slight Decrease

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—Retail food prices showed a slight decrease during the month ending May 15, the Bureau of Labor statistics today reported. The index figure for the month was 161.1, a decline of three-fourths of one percent from the month ending April 15, but an increase of more than six percent since May 1925. Of the 51 cities for which figures were collected, 39 reported decreases in the average food cost and 11 increases.

Cotton Deliveries Will Be Extended

NEW ORLEANS, June 18. (AP)—The referendum vote of members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange on the subject of Galveston and Houston deliveries contracts has resulted in a large majority for the proposition to extend deliveries to Galveston and Houston. The total vote was 412 out of a total membership of 336 of which 264 votes were for the Galveston-Houston deliveries and 148 against.

Lubbock People To Attend Singing Meet

Some thirty people from Lubbock county will leave tomorrow for Clovis, N. M., where the Plateau chorus organization, the West Texas Singing convention, will be in session Saturday afternoon and night, and Sunday. Several hundred singers are expected to attend, according to L. M. Brooks, of Lubbock, who is vice president of the convention.

ARICA DISPUTE REACHES CRISIS

Chilean Ambassador Informs Kellogg of Positive Stand of Country

(By The Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, June 18. —The Washington end of the Tacna-Arica negotiations apparently was brought to a crisis today, when the Chilean ambassador visited the State Department and informed Secretary Kellogg of the positive stand taken by his government.

No one at the department or at the embassy would discuss the subject, but it was assumed Ambassador Cruceaga handed to Secretary Kellogg the note sent him from Santiago, saying that Chile considers the diplomatic negotiations for the settlement of the Tacna-Arica dispute with Peru to have terminated automatically by abandonment of the plebiscite arrangement at Arica.

The Chilean plenipotentiary was in conference with the Secretary nearly an hour. Immediately afterward Mr. Kellogg left for the White House where the cabinet was assembling for its regular semi-weekly session.

Administration officials manifestly were much concerned over the prospect of a complete collapse of American intervention in the dispute, and particularly over the unusual statement made a public here last night by former President Alessandri, of Chile in which he declared had not been treated fairly in the negotiations and that consequently the United States had lost the friendship of the Chilean nation.

Record Leap

DAYTON, Ohio.—The army "chute" has again proved its worth. Lieutenant James T. Hutchinson and P. H. Stanley jumped 8,000 feet and landed safely after their airplane caught fire. It was the second longest parachute "leap for life" on record. Twenty-nine persons now owe their lives to the army parachute.

Schooling Costly

DE KALB, Iowa.—The community has paid dearly for Easy Froth's progress as a detective. Froth, student of a sleuth correspondence school, aroused suspicion when he offered to trace the culprit responsible for several fires, and finally confessed that he was responsible for the blazes. The fire loss here in six months has been $700,000.

Veiled Begum of Bhopal

The Begum of Bhopal, shown arriving on a visit to London, for years was the only woman ruler in India, until she abdicated in favor of her second son, Nawab Zada Hamidullah, left. Her action ended 50 years of female rule in the little mountain state, during which time few, if any, of the subjects saw their ruler's face.

Wife Of Condemned Man Fights Halt In Hunger Strike

CHICAGO, June 18. (AP)—Catherine Scott, wife of Russell Scott, who is fighting to escape the noose for the slaying of Joseph Maurer, sought an injunction in Circuit Court today to prevent police interference with her public hunger strike.

Police yesterday notified the management of a local theatre that Mrs. Scott could not go on with her starvation exhibition in a glass cage on the theatre stage. Ernest Stum, lessee of the theatre, appeared with the woman before Judge Friend today.

Mrs. Scott told the court her efforts were not in behalf of her husband, whom the State is endeavoring to have adjudged sane, so that he may be hanged, but in behalf of her three children, who are in an orphan asylum.

If she is permitted to resume her hunger strike, Mrs. Scott will attempt to exceed the record of 44 days without food recently made by Herr Jolly in Berlin.

The petition for an injunction was withdrawn when Judge Friend indicated he would deny it. Counsel announced a second petition would be filed in Superior Court.

Judge Friend stated that such a display would violate the statute prohibiting exhibitions relating to crime and Mrs. Scott's performance would incite morbid curiosity.

Separate Demands To Be Given Labor Board

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 18. (AP)—Separate demands for wage increase will be presented to the railroad by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

An eight-day conference of sub-committees of these two organizations, in an effort to reach a basis for a joint demand, ended last night in a deadlock.

A. Johnston, grand chief of the engineers, announced that the general chairman of his brotherhood would formulate their own wage requests separately today. He declined to say what proved the stumbling block in the conference.

World Auto Deaths Placed At 30,400

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—A world survey showing that about 30,400 persons were killed and 868,000 injured in automobile accidents last year was made public today by Charles M. Light, managing director of the American Road Builders' association.

Accidents in the United States accounted for more than 80 per cent of the fatalities, he said, placing the United Kingdom second with 958 followed by France with 723 and Canada with 702.

"The enormous toll of automobile accidents in the world is partly the result of highway construction," Mr. Upham explained, "although the greater number of deaths are caused by careless and incompetent driving."

TEXAS SOLON RAPS CONSOLIDATION OF OIL FIRMS

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—The Department of Justice was assailed in the House today by Representative Connally, Democrat, Texas, for sanctioning the recent mergers of the Associated Oil Company with the Tidewater Oil Company and the Standard Oil Company of New York with the General Petroleum Corporation.

"It is notorious," he said, "that gasoline prices have materially increased within a very recent time. If the increase is such as to justify the president in asking for an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission, it seems that the truth could at least in part be ascertained by turning over to the House the secret information in the files of the Department of Justice upon which was based approval of two significant mergers of large oil property."

He recalled that he recently had introduced a resolution requesting such information, and it had been reported adversely by the Judiciary committee, on advice of the Department of Justice.

Connally added that the department "on more than one occasion has shown its sympathy for what it calls business."

Negro Lynched On Kentucky Highway

GUTHRIE, Ky., June 18. (AP)—Thomas Kirby, 35, negro, was lynched on the Elkton road two and one-half miles from here early today.

Officers had come here to arrest Kirby on a charge of killing his former wife, Parthenia Kirby, Monday. Chief of Police Mimms and S. H. Kelly had gone to the front door of Kirby's mother's home and Edwin Bringhurst went to the rear. The negro shot Bringhurst in the stomach, dangerously wounding him, and fled, but was arrested and officers started with him to the county seat at Elkton, when a crowd of men took the negro, hanged him and fired a number of shots into his body.

Pro Leader Faces Fiery Missouri Solon In Spectacular Battle Of Words During Investigation Campaign Expenditures

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—Under a machine gun fusillade of questioning by James A. Reed, the wet Democratic Senator from Missouri, Wayne B. Wheeler, of the Anti-Saloon League, maintained today before the Senate campaign funds committee that the League had played only a legitimate role in politics, in legislation and in litigation arising under the dry laws.

The league's entire financial chest for 1925, the witness estimated, would not run over $150,000 and $200,000. He said that he himself received a salary of $655 a month from the organization, and had no other source of income.

Several times Reed accused the witness of failure to make definite replies and asked that exact facts and figures be produced later for the committee. This Wheeler promised to do.

Although the league leader was called as a result of his public statements about expenditures in the recent Pennsylvania primary, that subject scarcely was broached by Reed during the hour and a half Wheeler was on the stand before adjournment for luncheon. Just before the session closed the Senator began to lead up to the Pennsylvania situation, into which he said he would go more thoroughly after the committee had re-convened at 2 p. m.

WASHINGTON, June 17. (AP)—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, faced Senator Reed, of Missouri, today before the Senate campaign fund committee in a spectacular battle of words over Wheeler's public charges of expenditures by the "liquor interests" in Pennsylvania's $2,000,000 Republican primary.

The long awaited clash of witnesses between the dry leader and the fiery Missourian, a consistent foe of the Anti-Saloon League and its prohibition policies, brought an overflow crowd to the big committee room and provided a breathless climax to the committee's colorful inquiry into Pennsylvania politics.

Takes Many Papers Wheeler took with him to the witness stand, a bundle of papers as if he were prepared for a long siege of questioning, running over many phases of the league's activities. At the outset Reed warned him that he "had better cancel" other engagements for the morning, as the committee had considerable business to transact with him.

Wheeler held his right hand high as he took the oath administered by Reed as committee chairman. He took a seat directly across the table from the Missourian.

After bringing out that Wheeler was born in Ohio 56 years ago, Reed asked:

"What salary do you get?"

"Six hundred and sixty six a month."

"How long have you drawn it?"

"Four or five years."

"What did you get before that?"

"$7,500."

"What was your first salary with the league?"

"A hundred dollars a month, and sometimes I did not get that."

"When did you start with the league?"

"In June, 1894."

First Made Only Expenses He at first only made speeches for the league, while he was in college and got only his expenses.

"The first four or five years of the fight were very difficult," Wheeler said, "and funds were slow in coming in, and sometimes the speakers returned part of their salaries to make up the deficit."

He figured that in the early years he received about $32 a month, plus expenses while on the road.

"What salary were you getting in 1917?" Reed asked.

"I can't recall definitely. I think it was $150 or $200 a month."

Polite and soft spoken, thus far, Reed explained that he was trying to "get at Wheeler's history" in a general way.

But he pressed for a definite answer to his question and Wheeler said he would have to look his records to get his salary from year to year.

"Don't let's talk too much; let's answer the question."

Wheeler then said his salary rose to $4,500 when he became State superintendent in Ohio in 1900 or 1901, or "somewhere along there."

"Did you collect that?"

"Most of it. I may have donated part of it along toward the end of the year."

The salary went to $5,000 some four or five years later.

"The subpoena did not mention any of these things," Reed said, "I did not refresh my recollection," Wheeler said.

"Oh, I'll give you plenty of time to refresh your recollection," Reed said. "I just want it in a general way."

Wheeler said he was transferred to Washington in 1916 or 1917.

"What was to be your position here?"

"General counsel of the Anti-Saloon League. Later on I became legislative superintendent."

"What was your salary as counsel?"

"I think it was $5,500 or $6,000."

"When were you made legislative superintendent?" persisted Reed.

"Five or six years ago."

"Were you a man of any means when you started into this business?"

"No."

"So that whatever you may have made out of this was salary?"

"Yes."

"You've not been practicing law on the side and making fees?"

"No. I've given my whole time to this work."

"Did you ever appear in court with any officer accused of crime committed in the attempt or the pretended attempt to enforce the prohibition law?"

"I don't recall any such case."

"You would remember?"

"Yes, I have called the attention of local officers to the facts in cases where I thought officers were being framed."

"In what cases have you done that?"

"Well, in the case of the young officer in Maryland who was assaulted by moonshiners and then taken to court and imprisoned on a charge of assault."

"That's hearsay," warned Reed.

"You asked for it," retorted Wheeler.

"I want the name," said Reed.

"It was a man named Welch."

Wheeler said they succeeded in getting Welch's sentence reduced.

"We felt it was an outrage," he added.

"I do not ask you what you felt," Reed shot back. "Please answer the questions."

Wheeler then was asked about Heber Nations, a Missouri State prohibition officer, who, Reed said, was accused of accepting a bribe from a brewer. The drys in Missouri wanted Nations tried somewhere else on the ground that they could not get a fair trial at the Federal Court at St. Louis.

"I urged our people not to press the matter since the case already was on trial," Wheeler said.

"Nations was tried and convicted wasn't he?" Reed asked.

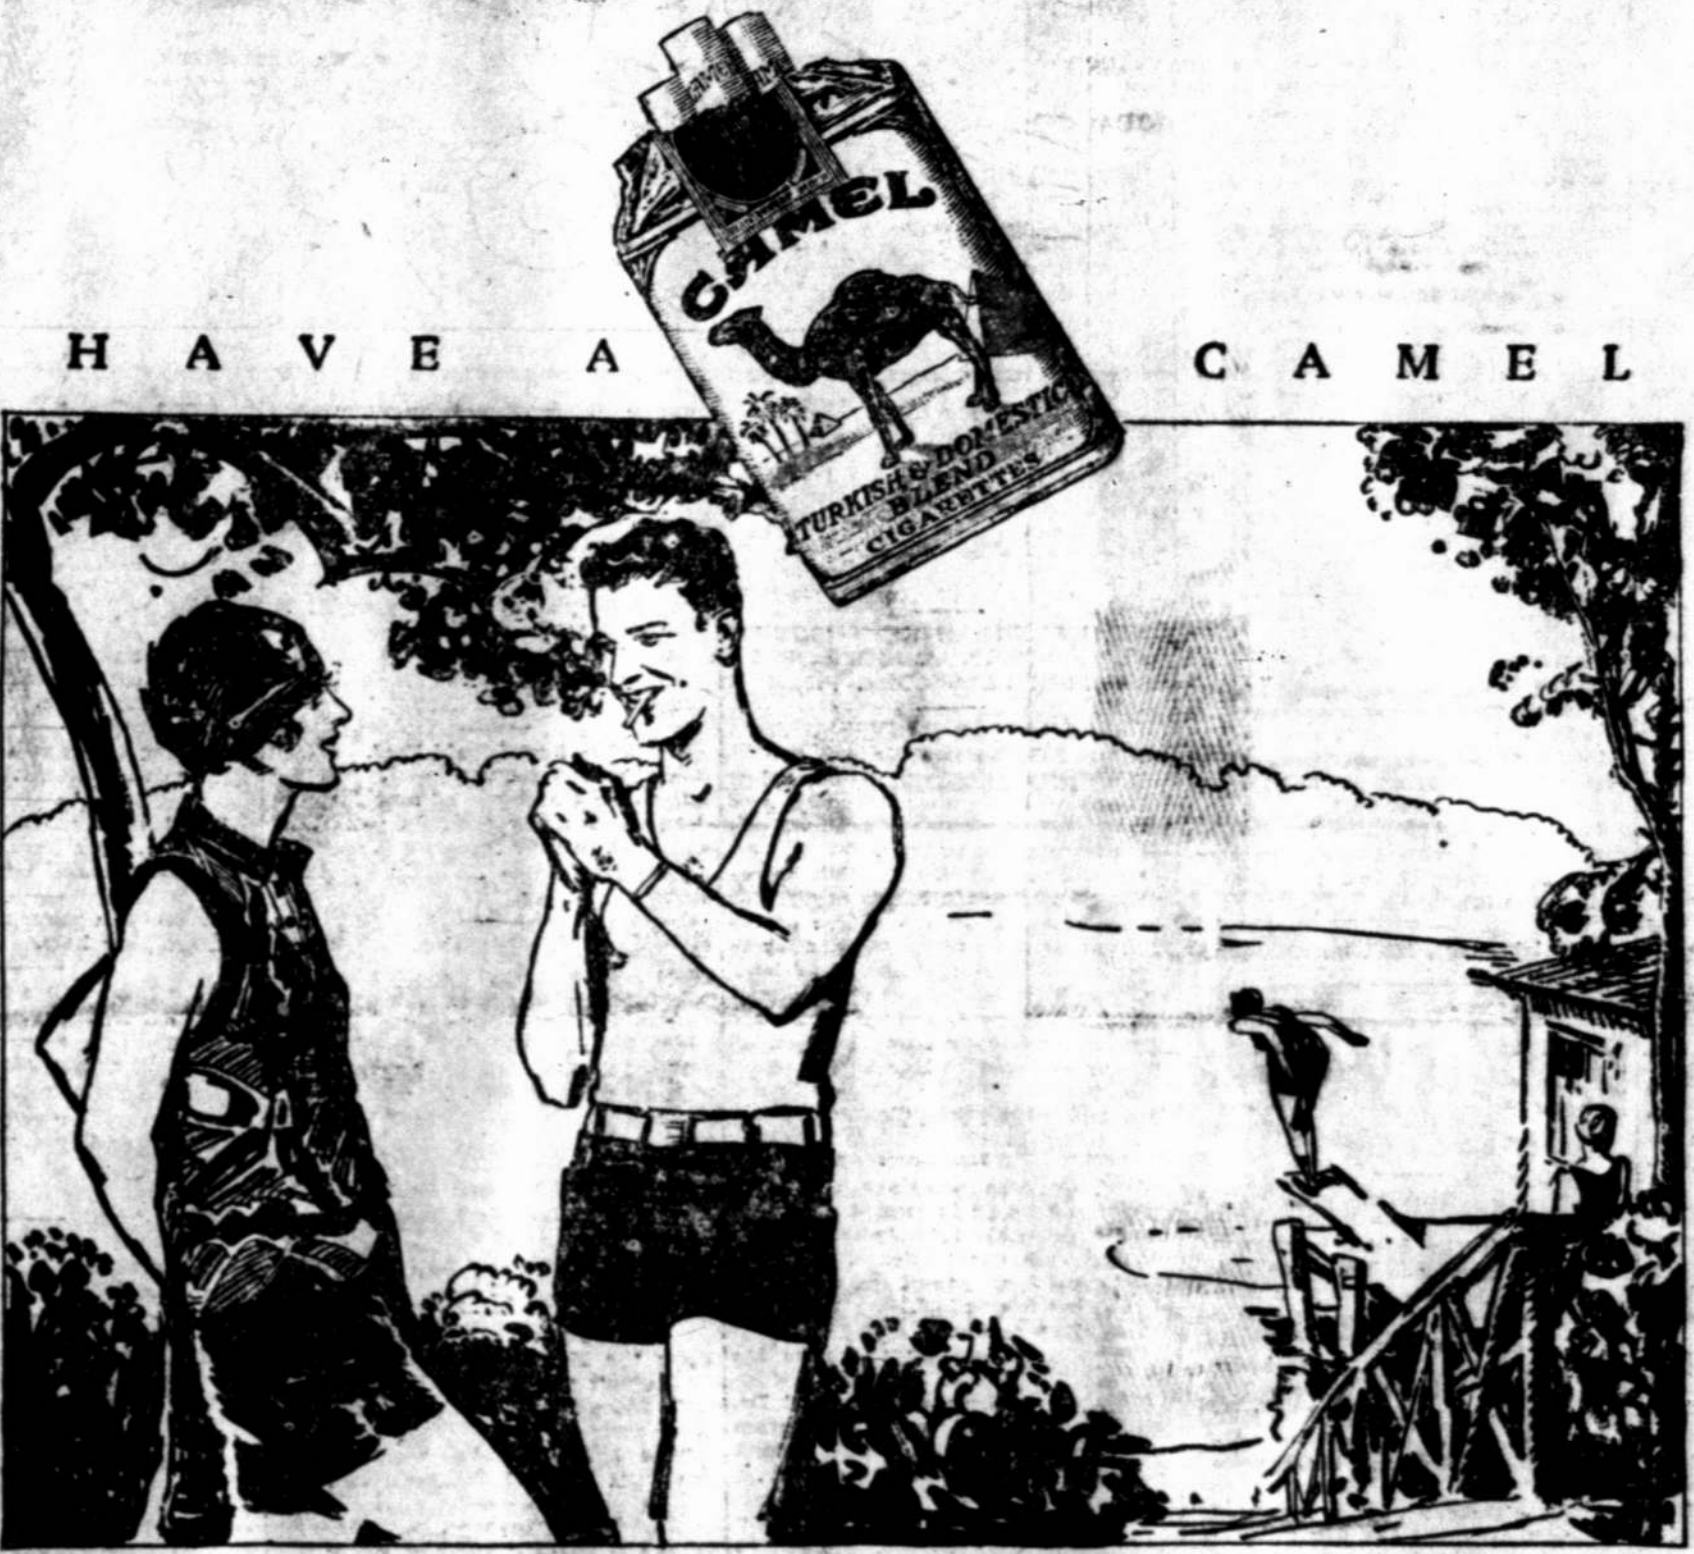

"He was."

"What other cases have you interfered with?"

"I can't recall. Our general policy is to see that a man gets a fair deal. If we think he is crooked we help to prosecute him."

"That means your organization undertakes to pass on the guilt or innocence beforehand," remarked Reed.

"No," protested Wheeler. "We investigate, and if we think the accused is being framed by the liquor people, we go to the officer and ask that he see that the man gets justice."

All that's best in a cigarette

AFTER glorious exercise nothing is so refreshing as the fragrant smoke of a Camel. Wherever Camels go—to the seashore, to the mountains, to the office—they bring pleasure, full smoking enjoyment.

No other cigarette made ever gladdened the taste of so many millions, for Camels are made of the choicest tobaccos grown. Camels alone satisfy the taste for all that's best in a cigarette, for Camel blending can be found nowhere else at any price. Camels never tire the taste, never leave a cigarette after-taste.

Camel leadership over all other cigarettes shows that the smokers of America want smoking quality. Camel success is built up on goodness, by the world's largest tobacco organization. Each year the makers of Camels spend millions for quality, and not one cent for frills or fancy wrappings.

No two ways about it, Camels are the finest pleasure, the richest contentment that ever came from a cigarette. If you haven't yet found the utmost in cigarette goodness, answer the most popular smoke invitation ever sounded—Have a Camel!

One wonders just how much glory young Paul will reap for his accomplishment. Someone once opined it was harder for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven than for a camel to go through a needle's eye.

And by the same token, harder is it for a rich man's son to get credit for work well done than for an elephant to sit in a ten cup.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING UP and down BROADWAY

NEW YORK, June 18.—In the upper west end of Manhattan numerous mystical cults echo an exotic Orientalism.

Not all are Oriental and not all are occult. Some are obvious pandering to faded and neurotic souls.

One woman, said to have come from California, donned a red wig recently and, during her cut raves, asked her listeners what they craved to bring them happiness.

Another mixes slick American business methods with her occultism. She caters to those superstitious ones who visit palmists, mind readers and such.

The subway station at Seventy-second street and Broadway is a favorite bill-posting point for cultists great and small.

This belt is the very heart of New York's mystical and occult life. Frequently the subway dodgers are a bit startling.

Still another teaches one how to defy emotional expression and to make to personal attachments. Breathing exercises and sun worship are the basis of another group.

But the subway sign that never fails to attract me—and some day I shall attend a meeting—is one which reads: "Spiritual Exercises, or how to attract an ideal love mate."

So vast is the response for this alluring morsel that, I am told, Carnegie Hall recently had to be hired to hold the throng.

The rocker legs are badly scratched. The front room 'em most soon be patched. The curtains in the door are torn. Ah, well, the day when they were bound.

The pitty-pat of tiny paws is heard throughout the day because ya just can't keep the wee things still. They've nothing else but time to kill.

And eat? Why, say, you'd show surprise, if you could only realize the appetite that comes from play. They drink four quarts of milk a day.

Yes, I'll admit they're mighty cute. Most kittens are, I guess, but shoot, their frets and cares much worry brings—does any body want the things?

Whither Away, Old Thing?

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

THIS FISHERMAN KEPT FISHING FOR 21 YEARS, AND HE FOUND WHERE EELS COME FROM

By CHARLES P. STEWART, NEA Service Writer. WASHINGTON, June 18.—As a boy in Denmark, Johannes Schmitte, now Dr. Schmitte, was very fond of eels—not as pets but as food.

He was so fond of them that he resolved to devote his life to a study of the eel family. In the course of his investigations he found the answer to a puzzle which scientists have been racking their brains over since man caught his first eel, and we know they were a popular dish as far back as the days of ancient Rome.

He found the place where eels are born and where they die, if they escape being caught and eaten.

Anybody who imagines that this didn't rank as an important discovery from a scientific standpoint knows precious little about science.

Eels had been one of the mysteries of the ages to scientists. The mystery was—Why did there seem to be no infant eels?

All the eels ever caught, until Dr. Schmitte went fishing for them, were pretty well grown up. It didn't stand to reason they were born that way.

Well, Dr. Schmitte fished for baby eels until he caught some. He caught a lot. He found their nursery, in fact. It's at the bottom of the Sargasso Sea.

So Dr. Schmitte was made an honorary member of the National Academy of Science a few evenings ago and all of scientific Washington is nearly crazy about him.

Hydrographic and pictorial and oceanographic circles regard his discovery much as geographers regard the conquest of the poles.

Dr. Schmitte deserves a prize for his patience as well as for his researches on eels. He started out in a little old schooner of the Danish government's—no fit craft for deep sea cruising at any stage of the game—with the announcement that he meant to keep going until he caught an eel in its earliest infancy.

He did keep at it—for 21 years. He kept sailing 'round and 'round the Atlantic in ever narrowing circles until finally, as he drew in toward the Sargasso Sea—that almost currentless expanse of water off the Azores, where all the ocean's derelicts are popularly but erroneously supposed ultimately to come to rest—he really began to net some very small eels.

But it wasn't until he got into the sea itself that he struck the real thing. There they came up, millions at a haul—tiny little wigging things. Eureka! Baby eels!

The problem was solved. Eels are born in the Sargasso Sea. Thence they make for fresh water, growing up as they travel. Eels bound for Europe take three years to get there. American eels, full of the rush and enterprise of the new world, reach their destination in about a year. Most of their lives are spent in river waters, but at the end, back they go to the Sargasso Sea to spawn and die. Great travelers, eels.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS Olive Roberts Barton

"So you want me to help to find your china elephant and toy clown?" said the Dream-Maker Man to the Twins. "Are you sure they came to the moon?"

At this the Dream-Maker Man clapped his hands three times and a queer servant appeared.

"It says on us that we have to return," said the tickets. "If you don't need us any more we'll be going now. The date stamped on us says we are no good after tomorrow."

"You may go then," said the Dream-Maker Man. "I'll look after these two young people now."

"Good-bye," said the tickets. And jumping out of their pockets the pink tickets rolled themselves into hoops and started down the hill. That was the last the Twins saw of them.

"Now, then," said the Dream-Maker Man, "tell me what your china elephant was like. Did he come from China or was he made of china, or what?"

"He was made of china," said Nancy quickly. "He was a door-stop in our room and he had pink roses painted all over him. The other toys all made fun of him, all except the clown."

"Nip sut mat a hon choo," said queer servant, making a bow, and appearing.

"That's moon language," explained the Dream-Maker Man. "And it means, 'I thought it would be better to suit the queen's taste. He is his hands in a muff so they will be clean. He's gone now to bring something to eat. You must be off after so long a journey; and we have another long journey at hand. I thought it would be better to some, sandwiches and cakes lemonade.'"

"I'm hungry, thank you," said politely. "So am I," said Nancy. "At that the door opened and in it blink with the lunch."

Helpful Health Hints By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING

Director General U. S. Public Health Survey

THE DANGER IN WATERS By the term "dangerous water" is meant any water that may cause illness or death if used for drinking purposes and there are many such waters.

Few realize that millions of deaths have been caused in times past from drinking water that was contaminated with such germs as those of cholera and typhoid fever.

Streams and Lakes. By serving as channels of communication, by furnishing opportunity for recreation and by providing water supply, streams and lakes rank among the foremost of our natural resources. Not by any means the least useful function of such bodies of water is that of providing healthful recreation in the form of fishing, boating and swimming.

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home of their own shortly after their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer leads a new contract.

John is fascinated in meeting NELL ORRIS, or whom PAT FORBES, one of John's best friends, hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

DR. DICK MENEFEE marries MARGARET WAYNE and John is best man. Margaret's younger sister, CLARA, runs away and marries CLIFTON LANE, whom John cordially dislikes.

A party is given by NOEL and VERA BOYD, and Vera shows an interest in John which he does not return. Nevertheless, Fay Milburn notices it, and there is a quarrel between her and John.

Two days later because of the arrangement between him and his wife, Vera, whereby each leaves the other free to do as he pleases John and a few others show some surprise and Noel angrily accuses them of being "conventional liars" and hypocrites.

Fay takes the baby to Houston to visit her parents, and during her absence John runs around a good deal with Pat Forbes, whose wild tendencies have caused some trouble between him and his wife, MARIAN.

An old friend of John's, DOROTHY FRANCIS, now a musical comedy star, comes to town, and the two act together on several occasions. Although Dorothy's chief interest in John is the advice he can give her in regard to theatrical publicity, he has a hard time convincing several people who see them together that it is not an affair.

NATHANIEL GRAHAM, his partner, takes him to task and accuses him of "running around" and thus endangering the firm's reputation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXIX

"Hold on, Nat," said John, raising his voice. "If by that looking actress you mean Miss Francis, then you're talking about a girl who is a real artist, who is ambitious to make a great success and who used to be a friend of mine when I was in college. I don't know what you mean by 'running around,' but you might be interested to know that I've done nothing that I'd be ashamed to tell my wife. If people see me eating lunch with an actress and then immediately proceed to cook up a scandal about it, I can't help it. And I don't purpose to let my actions be regulated by the interpretations your scandalized friends put on them."

John was angry, and he fixed Graham with a cold stare. The other, looking fixedly at the pencil he had in his hand, said, "Just the same, what you're doing isn't helping you any, and it isn't helping the firm any, either. I'll be glad when your wife gets home."

John started to make a heated reply but Nat's words about his wife amused him and he laughed.

"Nat," he said, "I wonder if you realize how much like an old woman you're acting. Good Lord! ... So you'll be glad to see Fay come home?"

"I happen to know," Nat went on, ignoring the other's mockery, "that a new advertising agency is coming to town very shortly and they're going out after some of our business—especially our local stuff and our merchandising service clients."

"How did you know that?" John asked quickly.

"I found out over at the Chamber of Commerce. I joined the Chamber not long ago, and a friend of mine told me that these people have been writing for all kinds of information about the town and the business here."

"Kelly and Jones. I don't know anything else about them. But what I've been telling you is right in line with it all. Unless we mind our P's and Q's pretty well, this new outfit is going to be treading on our toes."

"If we lose any business," John said stubbornly, "it won't be because of what I do after office hours but what you and I do during office hours. You can put that in your pipe and smoke it, Nat," and he walked out of the room.

"That afternoon Briggs informed him that a new list was coming to work the next morning."

"Graham hired him Saturday," Briggs explained. "Pretty good man, too. I've known him some time."

John went out, feeling added resentment against Nat Graham. It was as if Nat had decided to ignore him entirely in the conduct of the business, and he decided to bring the subject up the next time Nat had any more complaints to register.

Fay wrote daily and kept him informed as to Judith's activities. It seemed that she was walking unaided now and had acquired quite a vocabulary.

At times, reading Fay's letters, a powerful yearning would come upon him to see them both, and he felt self pity. On such occasions he would rise angrily from his chair and pace around the office, always winding up by inflaming all of Judith's latest bright sayings and tricks on Briggs, who listened with a patient grin.

He was surprised one afternoon to get a telephone call from Eleanor Mason, whom he had almost forgotten, it had been so long since he had seen her.

"Are you busy tomorrow evening?" she asked. "Now, don't say you are," she broke in before he could answer. "I want you to take me to a party. I'll tell you first, before someone else tells you, that you're filling in."

He raised an objection at first. There was his work. But under her persuasive arguments he yielded. Well, yes, he admitted finally, he thought he could make it.

He called for her in his Ford coupe and felt rather ashamed of its dinky appearance. "Have to get a decent looking car," he told himself.

She was glad to see him. "It's been a perfect age, John. How have you been and what have you been doing since your wife has been away?"

Being a bachelor, he told her, was not what it was cracked up to be, and he was getting homesick for Fay and Judith.

"Of course you are," she agreed. "I thought this little party tonight might cheer you up. You'll meet some interesting people."

John found them quite interesting. They were a lit- erary crowd, and the host, a man named Sanford, he thought a charming fellow. There was music, but not many cared to dance, most of them preferring bridge or just "talking," as they put it.

Dinner was served at nine o'clock, and there was champagne. Later, a handsome young chap with an odd looking streak of gray running through his black hair—they called him Nels, but John didn't catch his last name—produced a guitar and played for them.

Nels, it seemed, was one of those unusual geniuses who played any instrument in the world and played it by ear. He even played acceptably on a comb with these paper wrappings around it. What Sanford termed a "yokel orchestra" was formed, with Nels leading, and various of the guests adding to the general racket.

The day had been hot, but now a cool breeze was blowing, and with the French doors open the living room was quite a comfortable place. John was really beginning to enjoy himself and wondering how it happened that he had never before met Sanford, who, it seemed, was an architect, when Eleanor Mason came over to him and asked if he would take her home.

He looked at her in surprise and she explained that she had a headache.

"It's terrific," she told him. "Mrs. Sanford asked me to upstairs and lie down for a while, but I've had them before. Do you mind?"

No, he told her, he didn't mind, although he thought that she might have followed Mrs. Sanford's suggestion, and on the way home who laid her head on his shoulder.

"I can't hold it up," she explained.

John said, "You know, you live right next door to the apartment building Fay and I were in before we moved."

"I know it," she told him. "By the way, what time is it?"

"Eleven-thirty," he answered, glancing at his watch.

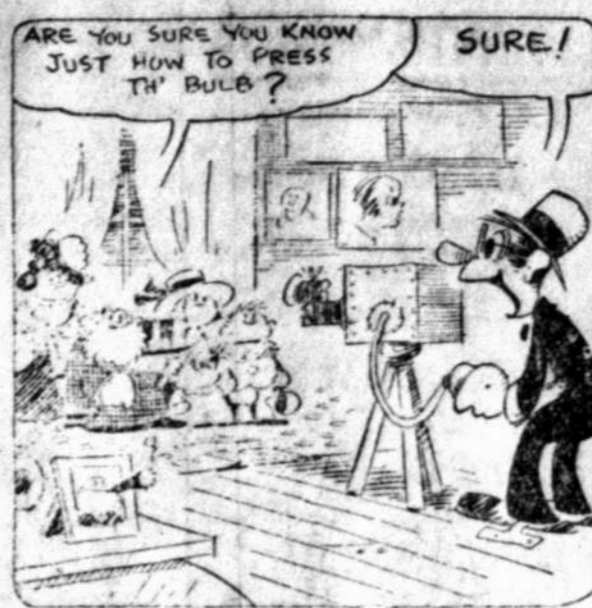

"A shame," she murmured apologetically, "to take you away from the party so soon. Never mind, I'll mix you a drink when we get inside."

He helped her out and she leaned on him heavily. A tall youth passed them and started up the path that led to John's old apartment. It was John saw, Geoffrey Bixby, the gawky son of the neighborhood gossip. There was recognition in the boy's eyes, but his awkward shyness probably kept him from speaking.

Marking Progress IN WEST TEXAS

By West Texas Chamber of Commerce

BALLINGER—The sum of 200,000 pounds of wool are in storage at the Texas Compress Company's sheds here. This wool will be placed on sale June 15 with ten or fifteen buyers here from Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia.

CISCO—The local Chamber of Commerce has agreed to pay the railroad fare of all boys and girls who qualify to attend the farmer's short course to be held at A. & M. College in August. The county agent will pass on the qualification of the club members.

CHILDRESS—Childress will soon let contract for more than 30 additional blocks of paving. During 1925, the city contracted and laid 60 blocks of paving.

SNYDER—The membership committee has been busy the past three weeks soliciting members for the new Snyder county chamber of commerce. A nice monthly budget has already been subscribed.

LITTLEFIELD—During the past week a modern and up-to-date tourist park has been completed here costing the sum of $10,000. This park is equipped with every modern convenience that would speak for comfort and pleasure. The management owns its own water system, camp cottages, electric lights, stoves, cots, tables, and chairs. Many shade trees are scattered over the grounds also the park is equipped with showers.

BIG SPRING—The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has secured teams, graders, and other road machinery for work on the road from

Big Spring to the oil fields southeast of town about sixteen miles. A pipe line is being laid from the new field to Coahoma which is located on the T. & P. nine miles east of Big Spring.

LUBBOCK—George Briggs, secretary at Eastland, and J. E. J. Peters, secretary at Cleo, will be two of the principal speakers at the convention of Texas commercial secretaries to be held here July 22 to 24 inclusive. This conference is the twentieth in the history of the organization, and is considered a school for commercial secretaries.

VERNON—More than seventy-five delegates are expected to attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Amarillo. Three cars of the special train has been reserved for Vernon, which will arrive in Amarillo the morning of the 21st starting at 5:45 the morning of the 24th.

COLORADO—The Colorado band, the official band of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, will make its journey by auto-caravan to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Amarillo, with a number of concerts rendered in the larger cities en route.

CISCO—O. Lee, president, West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has just completed his heart of Texas diversion tour, which included Coleman, Brownwood, Brady, San Saba, Mason, Fredericksburg, Llano, Burnett, Marble Falls, Goldthwaite, Hamilton and Hico. This is his last tour as president of the organization.

WICHITA FALLS—Bob Penick has been elected chairman of the On-To-Amarillo committee of the local Chamber of Commerce. Wichita Falls will operate a special train and will contest with San Antonio and Lubbock for the 1927 convention.

DECATUR—Almost a car load of sheep has been made up for distribution in Wise county. This idea was suggested and is being sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

By ARTHUR N. PACK, President, The American Nature Association

Sow-bugs are known to every country boy whose mother makes him stay home on Saturday to clean up the woodshed and the back yard, when he wants to go fishing with his chums.

As he rakes but the rubbish, he finds under the damp boards, in the shaded spots, hordes of slime-loving creatures, which scurry about seeking some similar noisome but essential retreat.

They have flat bodies made up of jointed, flattened rings and on each of the principal shell-like segments is a pair of short legs—about seven pairs of them.

If the creatures cannot find shelter they roll up into a ball, looking somewhat like a steel. This habit has given them another name, the pill-bug; for they resemble somewhat the old-fashioned, roughly shaped hand-made pills.

To the boy and his mother, and to most of us, then, they are sow-bugs, and it is somewhat of a surprise to learn that they are not bugs at all, not even insects. They are related to the lobsters and crabs and crawfishes.

Had we counted their legs, we would have known they were not insects, for all insects in their adult state have only six legs. The sow-bugs, like their close relatives, breathe by means of gills, and, unlike most true insects, their young are like in appearance to themselves.

Under ordinary circumstances sow-bugs are harmless creatures, living their blameless lives about the borders of salt marshes, or in our back yards. In other surroundings, however, as in greenhouses, where the moist air helps to provide a congenial habitat, they may feed on the tender roots of orchids or ferns, and become somewhat of a pest.

TWO KINDS OF BASS, AND THEIR HABITS

(By ARTHUR N. PACK), President, The American Nature Association

The small-mouthed blue bass has been characterized as the gamiest fish that swims.

It was originally found only in the clear cold rivers on either slope of the Alleghenies, and in certain tributaries of the Mississippi, from Manitoba, south to Arkansas and South Carolina.

Within this area are many streams which for various reasons were not inhabited, but introduction to these waters has been successful and the fish seems perfectly at home. It has also been transplanted to many of the streams of Europe, with favorable results.

The large-mouthed species, the subject of the illustration, differs from its cousin in the character indicated by its name, and in other respects. Its original range was more extensive, especially southwardly, where it delighted to live in many streams whose tepid waters were scorched by its more sporty relative.

This species is less esteemed as a game species than its small-mouthed kinsman, but is still an excellent fish from the standpoint of both the angler and the epicure.

The pursuit of these fish by the commercial fishermen who have found means to net them in large numbers during the colder months has recently resulted in the passing of a law prohibiting their shipment in interstate commerce and their sale at all times.

Many of the states have already banned the sale of bass, but they have been shipped in large quantities, disguised in various ways, from such states to those on which no prohibition existed.

There is another danger, however, which seriously threatens the bass in these days of many fishermen. While the eggs are hatching in late spring or early summer, the male fish guards them from enemies, and being especially pugnacious, is easily caught.

SENATE ADOPTS DRASTIC MEANS IN FUND PROBE

SEEK TO FIND BOTTOM IN BIG EXPENDITURE IN PENNSYLVANIA

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Political Republicans of William S. Vare in his successful campaign for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Pennsylvania, were jolted along a nerve-racking road of cross examination today as the Senate campaign fund committee pursued its quest for the inside story of the Teystons state's $2,000,000 primary.

In prime form, Senator Reed, of Missouri, the committee chairman conducted the questioning. Almost without a let-up during the two-hour session, he prodded toward the inner workings of the Vare organization, its sources of revenue and its methods of battle, and in particular its operations in the Vare stronghold in the first twenty wards of Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Drastic tactics were adopted today by the Senate campaign funds committee to get at the bottom of the situation which resulted in an expenditure of some $2,000,000 in the republican primary campaign in Pennsylvania.

Waving aside Harry A. Mackey, the Vare campaign manager, just as he was about to resume his testimony, Chairman Reed summoned to the stand another Vare supporter, Joseph

In many cases the open season includes this period, and many of the males are taken from this important duty, resulting in the loss of myriads of eggs. Sportsmen who have the future of these splendid fish at heart will refrain from their pursuit during the spawning season and "work" for them making their capture at this season illegal.

N. Mackrell, of Pittsburgh. "Who were you talking to on the long distance phone in the adjoining room just now?" demanded Reed. "Albert Cooper at Harrisburg," Mackrell replied. "A political matter?" "What political matter?" Mackrell was hesitant but Reed insisted.

"Well, I supported Beidelman (the unsuccessful Vare candidate for governor) and I understood I was to be penalized in my county for that," the witness finally said.

"Mr. Beidelman was to arrange to keep me from being penalized." "That all?" "What else?" Mackrell again hesitated.

"What did you mean by saying 'I understood nothing from nobody'?" "If you will give me a little more time, perhaps I could tell you."

"That's all I'm going to give you for the present. What did Cooper say to you?"

"He said, 'You know what is being done here.' He said he had been talking to the governor—that's Beidelman—and those things would be as had been talked over."

"Where's the sentence 'I understand nothing from nobody'?" Reed demanded as he chewed impatiently on his cigar.

"I didn't pay much attention to the conversation. It wasn't important." "You didn't pay much attention to what he said?"

"Well, the main tenor was that Beidelman would protect us from political reprisals."

"Reprisals from whom?" "I don't know. It's just street talk. My term as registrar of wills expires in a year."

Reed suddenly switched from the phone conversation to Mackrell's activity for Vare and Beidelman. "Did you contribute any money?"

"Yes, $5,000." "Where did you get it?" "I'd saved it over a period of years." Mackrell said he had kept the money in a vault at his office. His salary was $5,000 a year and his expenses that would average $11,000 a year.

Rutherford Found Guilty of Murder

PROVINSWOOD, Texas, June 18 (AP)—The trial of Dave W. Rutherford of Santa Anna for the murder of Deputy Sheriff J. H. Gierath of that city on February 16, 1924, was concluded Wednesday night. The jury was out about an hour and returned a verdict of guilty, assessing the punishment at life imprisonment. The case was brought here on a change of venue from McCulloch county, where Rutherford was given the same sentence at the first trial last year.

A motion for a new trial will probably be filed, according to counsel for the defense.

Perhaps nothing about the risen generation amuses the rising one more than the kind of slang which it seems to consider up to date.—Ohio State Journal.

RAPS IN TALK SWEETWATER

DAVIDSON LAUDED AT BRECKENRIDGE

(By The Associated Press) SWEETWATER, June 17. (AP)—James E. Ferguson was to carry the gubernatorial campaign to Midland, deep in West Texas, Thursday afternoon after having delivered here last night the fifth address he has made in Sweetwater since rising to political prominence in 1914.

Midland will be his farthest point: West for the present, at least, as he turns East again from there, to speak Friday night at Abilene.

Ferguson's address last night continued to make Attorney General Dan Moody the target for his attack. He charged that "Moody's record as a student disproves that he is a brilliant young man."

Moody took issue with Ferguson's purported statement. The Attorney General declared that payment of the bonds is a moral obligation which people of the State do not wish to escape.

The bonds were sold to parties who held them in good faith, Moody declared. "The people have received the money, and it has been spent on the roads. The bonds constitute a just debt and the people desire only an opportunity to make the debt legal one."

Moody's speech was for an address at Amarillo tonight.

DAVIDSON LAUDED Breckenridge, June 17. (AP)—Lynch Davidson was hailed at the only gubernatorial candidate "with the courage to fight monopoly" by Frank E. Roberts, local attorney, who introduced the candidate here Wednesday before a capacity crowd at the city hall auditorium.

H. A. Leaverton, another speaker, predicted that Davidson would be elected and will "give us the kind of government that will let Texas hold its head up in the eyes of the world."

Davidson's campaign address followed a non-political speech at a noon luncheon of the Breckenridge Chamber of Commerce. He warned there that growing taxes menace the national life.

Three addresses were included on Thursday speaking program, at Goree in the morning, Stamford in the afternoon and Haskell in the evening.

LABOR HEAD RAPS GENERAL STRIKE

Says Will Oppose Strike in Violation of Regular Wage Agreement

DENVER, Colo., June 17. (AP)—General strikes which would involve the violation of wage agreements, were condemned today by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address before the convention of the Rotary International.

A general strike, he said, means that the line of the industrial conflict is immediately changed so that it seems to become a contest between employees and government rather than between employees and employers. He contended that the real issues of the strike are lost sight of in the mad scramble of public opinion and public inconvenience. The original grievance which caused the general strike, no matter how meritorious, must remain unsettled until after the general strike has ended. This, he declared, works untold hardship and makes more difficult the bringing about of a sound adjustment of the real grievance.

Fate has ordained that I should speak for the millions of men and women directly associated with the American Federation of Labor," he said. "So far as I can influence the policies of this great organization no general strike will be experimented with where such strike would involve the violation and abrogation of wage agreements."

President Green enumerated some of the outstanding achievements of organized labor in the United States including the shorter work day, increases in wages, abolishment of the Saturday and tenement house slavery, legislation for the health, compensation and safety of wage earners and compensation laws. He told of the "senseless fight" to bring about the adoption of the proposed amendment to the constitution to forbid child labor.

Validity of Road Bond Issue Upheld

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 18. (AP)—Validity of about $1,500,000 of outstanding special road district bonds in Missouri was upheld today by the state supreme court on appeal. The court sustained the validity of special road districts and bonds issued by them in a test case brought by the Little Falls special road district of Pemiscott county against State Auditor L. D. Thompson.

BRIAND SEEKS TO FORM ANOTHER CABINET

PARIS, June 18. (AP)—Premier Briand is seeking to form a "national union" cabinet to replace the ministry which resigned yesterday, but is finding the task more difficult than he anticipated.

The Premier was given the mandate by President Doumergue this morning after most of those called into consultation at the Elysee Palace had urged the need of such a cabinet. The ministry would include groups as far to the right as the Union Republicaine, or the old "Bloc national," headed by Louis Marin, as far left as the groups whose leaders are willing to participate.

Edouard Herriot, radical leader, is understood to have refused to enter a national union ministry, and it is expected that his party will formally decide against entering a "national union" combination.

The Socialists have excluded themselves from such a combination by the decision of their Congress at Clermont-Ferrand not to join any other than a purely socialist ministry.

Former premier Poincare has indicated that he prefers to remain out, side, but is willing to waive his personal preferences if it is possible to form a "sacred union" just as was maintained during the war.

CATHOLIC PRIEST COMPLAINS OF U. S. ACTIONS

WASHINGTON, June 18. (AP)—Laying his case before Secretary Kellogg, Monsignor George J. Caruana, the Catholic prelate recently expelled from Mexico, has taken the position that the State department and the American ambassador did not use every justifiable means at their command in his behalf.

His letter to the secretary dated June 4, was made public by the Nation Catholic Welfare conference after the Mexican Consul-General at New York had issued a statement charging Monsignor Caruana with classing himself as a Protestant to gain admission into Mexico.

Before leaving Washington, he said, he had been assured by the Mexican ambassador that no legal obstacle existed at that time "which could interfere with the entry of an American clergyman into that country," and his subsequent dealing with the Mexican immigration authorities, he asserted, were straightforward.

His passport, he said, "showed clearly that I was the Right Reverend Bishop of Porto Rico."

"I bring these facts to the attention of your Excellency and of the government of the United States because my observation convinces me that under the present government of Mexico, citizens of the United States having legitimate interests in Mexico and obliged by these to reside in that republic, are being denied the rights which it is customary for one government to concede to the citizens of another friendly nation, and because I feel that the protection of our citizens and their legitimate interests in Mexico calls for a policy and action more precise and more energetic than was exercised by my government in my case and for such further use as your Excellency may deem proper."

At It Again

WASHINGTON—Senator Blewett of South Carolina believes that "so-called education" has ruined the farmer. "When a good cotton hand gets a smattering of an education, he has got to be a preacher with a long-tailed coat and a beaver hat, or a doctor or something, and he won't work," he told the Senate.

Battle To Death In Snake Land Is Told

SAN ANGELO, June 18. (AP)—Comes now an eye witness to mortal combat whereby a Missouri black snake put a rattlesnake out of commission. Otto Atkinson, local dairyman, former Missourian, saw the duel to the death under a crab-apple not in Missouri. Attracted by a strange noise, he saw a flash of black vent that circling streak and then like greased lightning, the black snake had seized the rattler just back of the head in its own mouth, and led its body about that of the rattler, and suddenly released it after having apparently unjointed it. The rattler was limp and dead. Circling its kill three or four times with head high in the air as though to say, "I'm cooking the walk," the black snake then made off in the weeds.

Is It Worldly?

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Mennonite girls may be given permission to bob their hair. One minister attending the annual conference of the sect said that if bobbed-hair is proven not a worldly idea, to the satisfaction of the elders, opposition to the fashion, now officially banned, would be withdrawn.

It takes most people a long time to learn that the proper time to save money is when they are earning more than is required for necessary expenses.
