Approval Of Harding Said Given Oil Lease FOUR BOYS SENTENCED FOR THEFT HERE

VERDICT COMES ON CONFESSIONS IN COURT HERE

TWO GET SIX MONTHS AND OTHERS GIVEN 3 MONTHS EACH

Joe W. L. and Hubert Brown and S. E. Bates, four Lubbock young men arrested several days ago by city officers were tried in county court today on charges of theft, and following their pleas they were found guilty on two counts each. They were tried before Judge Charles Nordyke.

The boys, according to their own evidence, had been operating in Lubbock since the early part of September. Many of the stolen articles were taken from Tech college students, and have been identified. Some of the articles were taken from Cheri Casa hall, though a major portion was taken from automobiles parked in the downtown section.

One of the boys stated that he stole the goods in order to raise money to enable him to go to Fort Worth on the special train, but admitted that he continued the practice after his return. He disposed of two watches while in Fort Worth, but has since told the owners where they might be found. All the boys stated that they did not steal because they were hungry or because they needed clothing which they could have attended school without stealing.

Following sentence the boys thanked the court for leniency, and he told them that it was not a pleasure to punish them, but a duty to society that forced him to do so. Parents of the boys were present for the trial.

Express Co. Employee Is Killed By Train

PALESTINE, Dec. 1 (AP)—J. F. Brant, veteran employee of an express company here, was killed by a locomotive as he was transferring express at the depot here Wednesday. He was 65 years of age and leaves a widow and daughter, Mrs. J. N. Bliton of Houston.

New Auto License Plates Are Enroute

Auto license plates for 1927 will be available at the office of I. F. Holland, county tax collector here, it was announced Wednesday following receipt of a telegram from the manufacturing firm that a portion of the plates are being shipped today by express, and that the others will follow immediately by freight.

The number required in the county this year will be approximately 8,000, Mr. Holland said he believed, and this number has been ordered. Owners of autos are urged to purchase their plates immediately, so that the rush contingent on the usual first of the year buying may be avoided. Plates must be on all cars by midnight of December 31, according to terms of the law.

FIRE AT HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—Loss estimated at $30,000 was done by a fire of undetermined origin which destroyed the warehouse, stock and machinery of the Seaport Grain company here Wednesday.

Old Saint Nick To Return To Lubbock Next Tuesday Nite

Santa Claus is coming back to Lubbock. Jolly Old Saint Nick, who packed the streets of the city's downtown section last night, when he appeared under the auspices of the Avalanche-Journal, radioed back to Lubbock this morning from his home at the North Pole expressing his regrets that he did not get to see each and every little child last night before he made his hurried departure, but promising to reappear here next Tuesday evening.

Old Santa was rather roughly treated by the crowds of youngsters who surrounded him and it was only through superhuman efforts that he was able to escape. The children, each squirming to touch him, talk to him and ask for Yuletide gifts, formed a squirming circle about him until it appeared that he never would be able to get away to start his long, homeward trip to the Pole.

Police to Guard Santa. Next Tuesday night, however, he will have police protection. Chief of Police T. E. May having already promised to furnish a cordon of police to guard Old Santa as he makes his rounds of the various stores entering into the community event. Extra men will be deputized and traffic officers will be on duty at the principal corners and chief said today after he had designated last night's celebration as including the "largest crowd he had ever seen on the streets of Lubbock."

Advertised only through the columns of the Avalanche-Journal publications, thousands of fathers, mothers and children flocked to the retail section of the city to follow Santa Claus from store to store, where Christmas toys and other gifts were on display. Many people from the rural sections and from nearby towns were in evidence and a larger crowd is expected next Tuesday night, when Santa appears again.

Details of the next program for Santa will be given out soon.

THREE MEN HELD IN BORGER KILLING

BORGER, Texas, Dec. 1 (AP)—Three men are being held by police in connection with the gun fight on Main street last night, in which Captain I. R. Rigney, night police chief, was slain.

M. F. "Toughy" McWilliams, 31, who was shot three times and found lying on the sidewalk following the shooting, is in a hospital in a critical condition. He denies taking any part in the affair.

No weapon was found on the scene of the killing. Two men, who were said to have been with McWilliams early in the evening, were picked up by police later in their rooms, where an empty .45 shell was found. Rigney, who was shot five times, twice in the heart, died almost instantly, firing three shots himself as he fell into the gutter.

McWilliams had been here but two days and has no local or county police record.

Exchange Of Benches Ordered For Judges

AUSTIN, Dec. 1 (AP)—Governor Ferguson today ordered an exchange of benches by V. H. Clark, of the first judicial district at Orange, disqualifying with J. C. Campbell of the sixth district court at Beaumont, to sit in the case of Carrie L. Brown vs. J. S. Stark.

FORT WORTH, Dec. 1 (AP)—Waving to his parents from a borrowed airplane, Thomas Wilson, 17, was seriously injured a moment later when the machine, operated by his cousin, Robert Brooks, 18, student pilot, nose dived 200 feet to earth eight miles north of here today.

LETTER OFFERED AS EVIDENCE IN ELK HILLS CASE

POLICY USED BY FALL IN MAKING LEASES UPHELD BY EX-PRESIDENT

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A letter by President Harding, approving the oil leasing policies of Albert B. Fall while he was secretary of the interior, was brought into court today by the defense in the Fall-Doherty oil conspiracy trial.

The letter was sent to the senate in April 1922, in reply to the original report of inquiry into the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills lease. It was put into evidence while a prosecution witness was on the stand, and was a part of a deal to show that Fall did not himself bear the responsibility for award of the Elk Hills lease to the Doherty interests after Doherty had advanced him a "loan" of $100,000.

Submitted Before Adoption. In his reply to the senate President Harding said he was acquainted in detail with the policies of the interior department had been apprised of the exact terms of the various leases and approved and supported the entire program of the department.

E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior, a government witness, testified he personally had submitted much of the interior departmental detail incorporated in the president's message.

The president's letter did not go into details regarding individual leases, but he enclosed a statement by Fall, then secretary of the interior, outlining what had been done and saying that he was certain the contracts entered into "will rebound to the credit of your administration, both in the immediate present and the distant future."

Wants Real Thrill

NEW YORK—Would a woman want to get out of the house? Not Mrs. Paul Gibson. Arrested for the manner in which she was driving her expensive car on Fifth avenue she told police: "I don't want to get out on bail. I want to see New York jail. I want to get a thrill." After "Peaches" Brown, a 200 pound top watched her for five hours, friends put up $500 bail, since she refused to leave her diamond bracelets.

Doctors Puzzled As Investigation Of Strange Case Believed To Be Sleeping Sickness Is Discovered In Youth Here

Says Rudy Talks To Her From Beyond

Four physicians, members of the Lubbock clinic, are delving deep into a strange case which Dr. V. V. Clark, who is in charge of the diagnosing, believes may turn out to be a form of the dread sleeping sickness. W. W. Scott, 18, the employe of a Shallowater gin plant, is the patient and while laboratory work being done in connection with the case is not yet complete, information concerning the lad's condition thus far points to presence of sleeping sickness or a serious case of "hook-worm."

Youth Is Athlete

"Young Scott is one of the most perfect physical specimens I have examined in a long time," Doctor Clark told the Journal today. "He is an athlete and when taking violent exercise has no trouble in keeping awake. Let him sit down, however, and he will drop off to sleep and must be shaken to be awakened. Engage him in an interesting conversation and he remains awake but write a message on a card or talk to him on some dull subject and he invariably sinks into slumber."

According to information given the doctors by the young man and his father, his maldy dates back to a visit to the swampy sections of east Texas, two years ago, when he was bitten many times by insects. One strange insect, Doctor Clark says, carries the dreaded disease germ which has here-to-fore been discovered only in Charleston, South Carolina, within the borders of this country, although it is prevalent in tropical sections.

Other Doctors Aid in Case. In addition to Doctor Clark, Doctors J. W. Crawford, D. D. Cross and O. W. English, of the clinic, are all aiding in the case. Due to its strangeness and to the wide-spread interest being shown in the case by other physicians of Lubbock Doctor Clark said today that he was planning to call in other doctors to give them an opportunity to view the work, first hand.

"If the boy really has sleeping sickness there will be present in his blood a certain germ for which we are searching. This germ can be found only at night and we shall keep working until we have solved the trouble," Doctor Clark said. The boy is troubled more in the summer time than at any other time of the year. It is said, another symptom of sleeping sickness, according to doctors.

The illness is not at all contagious and can be transmitted only through the bite of a certain species of the fly family.

Gins In County Are Running Full Blast

E. A. Patterson, representing E. A. Patterson and company, cotton seed brokers, made a business trip to several gins over Lubbock county this week and reports every gin practically covered up with cotton. Out of ten gins visited, eight were temporarily stopped, just for an hour or such a matter, making repairs or cleaning out the machinery, said Mr. Patterson. He also stated that there were hundreds of bales of cotton piled up in the fields, waiting time to be carried to the now crowded gins.

Bull Spreads Terror SHOT DOWN BY OFFICER In Streets Of Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 1 (AP)—A wild Brahma bull, with blood streaming from his neck, terrorized the crowded streets of Dallas today before he was killed by a deputy sheriff.

The animal jumped an eight foot fence at a slaughter plant, was chased through river bottoms for an hour, and then tore through the downtown section, upsetting automobiles and driving pedestrians to cover. Several persons were slightly injured in dashing to places of safety.

The animal on his way to the business section passed the county jail, just as deputies with rifles were emerging to answer a call from the packing plant. A deputy shot him in the neck, but this only infuriated the beast. At a crowded corner, the deputy shot him again, but did not bring him down. Comandering an automobile the officer headed off the animal at another corner and killed him.

Fire Damages Bingo Building At Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Firemen were called to the Bingo Manufacturing company here twice within eight hours last night and today. At 10 p. m. fire of undetermined origin started and was fought for more than an hour. At 8 a. m. the blaze was again raging, and damages estimated at $50,000 was caused before it could be stopped.

The concern manufactures a confection and is owned by Dallas and Denver residents. T. F. Price, general manager, said he would ask an investigation into the origin of the blaze.

12 BELOW LOWEST TEMPERATURE IN BLIZZARD'S PATH

WAVE MOVING SOUTH IS DUE IN IOWA AND ILLINOIS TODAY

CHICAGO, Dec. 1.—Winter, set off to attack on December 22, laid down a preliminary barrage over the middle west today as the new month was born.

Temperatures, which dropped as low as 12 degrees below zero at Devils Lake, N. D., brought a touch of the real thing to many localities but the weather man promised a counter attack would bring a reaction by Thursday over much of the territory.

Waves moving southward, and were expected to cross the Missouri and southern portions of Illinois and Indiana, with the intruding cold to a lesser degree. The weather generally was fair, although there was some snow and rain in the lake region.

Others See Sub-Zero. Other sub-zero temperatures were sprinkled over the northwest. It was five below at Aberdeen, S. D., nine below at Grand Forks, N. D., and eleven below at Fargo.

The heaviest northeast in fifty years has covered the roads and trails near Calumet, Mich., with snow drifts five to six feet deep.

Fears were expressed for the safety of ships in Lake Superior.

ASKS U. S. WARSHIP FOR FOOCHOW

The Woman's Daily Editorial

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

THEY MUST LEARN SOMEWHERE TO GET ALONG TOGETHER
One cannot escape the inevitable debate on co-education. The newspapers, reviews and magazines are full of articles that scale the ladder of literary and educational fitness from the greenest freshmen to the university presidents themselves.

We decide that since it is either too early, or too impossible, or too unnecessary to come to any definite conclusion in the matter and we would better drop it, and others should do the same—only to discover that the crop of periodicals for the coming month attacks the question anew more fully or more belligerently than ever, on either one side or the other.

Mr. Frank E. Arnold's article a short time ago called "The Maternal Season of Co-Education" brought forth a storm of letters. Some students protested that they had been so busy getting acquainted with life and people, as well as acquiring skill in, and knowledge of their professions, that they did not have time or inclination to be led by their emotions.

On the other hand many wrote enthusiastically the words of a co-ed graduate who said "It was true that a girl was considered a flat-tire socially and intellectually if she did not have a man with her every time she appeared on the campus."

Mr. Arnold goes still further and implies that not only pupils but teachers, when thinking of women, find it difficult to think of their work.
One cannot give a personal opinion without data, that it would be well nigh impossible to get. But I do know of check lists of at least three universities whose records for cases of immorality were almost negligible. As an English army officer said, "Let's face it" from now on we expect to live in a man-and-woman world—not a war world. We have to learn the gentle art of living shoulder to shoulder, learning the world's lessons and doing the world's work together and keeping sex in the background. A few weak ones will go to the wall, but every boy and every girl must learn that in the new world before them law must begin with self.

Miss Mary Tinker Is Delphian Lesson Leader

Miss Mary Tinker was leader of the Delphian club lesson Tuesday afternoon at a meeting at the First Baptist church with questions relating to English and early American history under discussion. The club members planned to combine the two December meetings next Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the society and decided to hold sessions after the first of the year in the Camp Fire girls' club house. Miss Tinker was assisted by Mesdames Harry Hall, J. H. Jenkins, R. I. Tubbs and Tom B. Zoller in the lesson discussion.

Little Theatre Players Rest Today But Will Take Last Practice Early Thursday On Initial Play Of Year

The first dress rehearsal held until the "see and hear" hours of this morning on the stage of the Palace theatre the cast of "Carmen" Lubbock's first Little Theatre production of the 1926-27 season, will take an "off night" tonight but will make up for lost time tomorrow, Miss Ruth Pirtle, director, said today.
The play, a four act comedy written by Booth Tarkington, will be presented Thursday night at the Palace theatre and the ten players will spend tomorrow morning going through their final practice. Every character now knows his lines, cues and the technique to be adopted by him. Miss Pirtle said and with all other arrangements completed the cast is ready for the opening curtain.
Other Members Working
While Miss Pirtle and her Thespians have been turning their time and talents to hard labor behind the footlights other members of the Little Theatre organization have busied themselves in getting the theatre ready for the season's opening. A record crowd is expected to jam the theatre tomorrow night as the result of the work the members of the organization have been doing.
The 1925 season Lubbock's first taste of Little Theatre work, was a huge success and advocated of the organization are hoping for even a better year this year. Mrs. J. H. Hankins is president.

Marines Suggested Aid To Dry Force

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—The marines are doing such a good job at guarding the mails that they are now suggested to the men to dry up the country.
President Coolidge has been requested in a resolution adopted here by the international reform federation to "suggest" such a course to Secretary Mellon. Employment of the army to stop the rum flow from the high seas was urged.
The action was taken after Representative Blanton, Democrat, Texas, had remarked briefly on the efficiency of the marines.

Oak Cliff Case To Be Heard Thursday

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 1 (AP)—Charges of ineeligibility respecting certain Oak Cliff high school football players will be heard here Thursday by the state executive committee of the Texas university intercollegiate league. Roy Henderson, athletic director, told the Associated Press today.

Demo Tax Reduction Plan Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1 (AP)—A democratic proposal for tax reduction was announced today a few hours after house republican leaders had mapped out a legislative program for the coming session that left no place on the immediate calendar for President Coolidge's tax credit plan.
The plan, with its scope and details still held secret, will be presented to the house soon after the opening session. It is being drawn by Representative Garner of Texas, under the direction and approval of virtually the entire democratic representation in congress.
Barney, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Graf, underwent an operation for the removal of his tonsils this morning. He was thought to be doing well early this afternoon.

Theft Of Tickets Termed Footballitis

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—Recognition of "footballitis" as an extenuating circumstance was given in United States court here yesterday when Thomas R. Graham, postal clerk, was granted a stay of sentence of one year when he pleaded guilty to taking from the mails two tickets to the recent Stanford-University of California football. Judge Paul J. McCormick cautioned Graham about his future enthusiasm for the game.

MARIE CALLS UPON CAROL IN PARIS

PARIS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Queen Marie, who arrived at midnight from her American trip, lost no time today in getting in touch with her errand son former Crown Prince Carol, who last January renounced his right of succession to the Rumanian throne.
She emerged from the Ritz hotel at 10 o'clock this morning, entered a taxi and was heard to instruct the driver to proceed to the Boulevard Vimeau, in Neuilly.
This is the street on which Carol's villa is situated, but she did not call there, meeting him instead in a private room at a fashionable restaurant on the edge of the Bois de Boulogne.
The chauffeur of the queen's taxi included the machines hastily commanded by the newspapermen, and made a clean get away. The queen and Carol were not discovered by the reporters until 11:30, when their conference terminated.
Marie decided to leave for Bucharest on the Simphon express at 8:25 o'clock tonight, instead of waiting until Friday evening, as she at first intended.

TEXAS RAIL FIGHT SOON TO REOPEN

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 1 (AP)—The unsuccessful fight of the Missouri Pacific lines before the interstate commerce commission to prevent the building into the lower Rio Grande valley of the Southern Pacific's San Antonio and Aransas Pass road, will be resumed at Houston Thursday when an interstate commerce commission examiner will hear testimony in the Southern Pacific's application to extend its valley line from Harlingen to Brownsville, a distance of about thirty miles, all in Cameron county.
At the same hearing the application of the Missouri Pacific to extend from San Benito, Cameron county, in an easterly direction to a connection with the Rio Grande railroad, will be heard. The Southern Pacific has announced its opposition to this extension only if it is intended as a "fence" to prevent it from extending from Harlingen to Brownsville. The surveys cross at right angles about eighteen miles northeast of Brownsville.
The proposed lines would open a large area of virgin agricultural lands in Cameron county, some of it irrigable and some beyond the reach of irrigation waters.
Numerous witnesses are leaving this territory today to appear at the hearing.

Two Trapped Miners Are Rescued Alive

POTTSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 1 (AP)—After spending 13 hours behind a wall of mud and rock that had trapped them in the Morea Colliery near here, John Micholovsky and Andrew Moskoszek were at their homes today celebrating their rescues. They were working about 300 feet underground when the rush of mud and water lying in the mines since the floods last week caught them. Retreating to a place of temporary safety, Micholovsky and Moskoszek hastily threw up a barrier of timber and rock to block the flow of water and mud down the slope.
Colliery officials set a large force at rescue work immediately after the accident.

One Dead, 12 Hurt In Ship Explosion

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—One man was fatally injured and 12 others hurt, five so seriously they are not expected to live, in two ship explosions in the harbor here yesterday.
An explosion on the Union oil tanker Warwick cost the life of Lorenzo Sejar of San Pedro, a mess boy, and injured nine others.
Three men were hurt, two of whom may die, as the result of an explosion on the speed launch Shallow, a converted sub chaser, last night.

'Human Eel' To Help Christmas Fund Here

"The Human Eel" has the Christmas spirit, too!
Jacques Moreau, who has been astonishing Lubbock people for the past week by his mystic powers which enable him to escape from palled up boxes, handcuffs and hard-knotted ropes, will "do his stuff" for charity tonight, all receipts from his demonstrations to go to the Lubbock Salvation Army Christmas fund now being raised.
Moreau's demonstrations will start between 7 and 7:30 o'clock, on the court house lawn facing Broadway. Collections will be taken between each stunt and he will keep the stunts up as long as his watchers will donate.

City Dads Frown On Curb Gasoline Pump

Every filling station in Lubbock must be a "drive in" station in the future, according to a new regulation passed yesterday afternoon by the city commission. The regulation also provides that all sidewalk and alley pumps now in operation here must be removed within a period of twelve months.
At the same session the commissioners also decided that the paving resolution recently discussed, was a good one and it was unanimously passed at its second reading. Advertisements for bids will be issued in the near future, and contracts let immediately thereafter.

Good Buying starts with shopping

How could you select just the right crystal for your table if you didn't first compare? Only by comparison can you really obtain the best value and greatest satisfaction. Good buying starts there.

The same holds true in coffee. Only by comparing the flavor of coffees can you really choose the one coffee you like best.

We could use many fine words to describe Folger's Coffee. Its rich, full flavor, its inviting aroma. The delight and satisfaction to be found in each steaming cup of this fine coffee.

Instead, we ask you to compare Folger's Coffee with the brand you are now using by making the Folger Coffee Test. It is the logical, easy way to shop for coffee.

The Folger Coffee Test: Drink Folger's Coffee tomorrow morning; the next morning drink the coffee you have been using; the third morning drink Folger's again. You will decidedly favor one brand or the other. The Best Coffee Wins. That's fair, isn't it?

MAJOR LEAGUES FEAR FOR STAR

Those Who Are So Good Seem To Fail In Managerial Role Too Often

By NEA Service NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Major league club owners are convinced that it is a mistake to make a star player a manager while he still is at the top of his game.

There are two reasons for such a belief. First, the added responsibility of handling the club invariably affects the work of the player. Second, only a limited number of stars have been successful as managers.

One drawback of most managers who are stars is the fact that they cannot condone the faults of their players, since they seldom err themselves. Only few players are outstanding stars, hence the fault is a most serious one.

Christy Mathewson, one of the smartest pitchers that ever matched wits with a batter, was a failure as manager.

Ty Cobb, greatest ball player of all time, the perfect player if there ever was one, was far from a managerial success. No one knew the game better, yet he lacked the ability to handle men.

George Sisler, baseball's premier first baseman, was a dismal failure as manager. Likewise his play suffered badly as a result.

The successful star player-manager who are stars is the fact that they cannot condone the faults of their players, since they seldom err themselves. Only few players are outstanding stars, hence the fault is a most serious one.

Christy Mathewson, one of the smartest pitchers that ever matched wits with a batter, was a failure as manager.

Ty Cobb, greatest ball player of all time, the perfect player if there ever was one, was far from a managerial success. No one knew the game better, yet he lacked the ability to handle men.

Hitting Sports Highspots With James R. Dow

Here is the 'All-Texas Conference selection:

- First Team Rhone (Trinity) left end. Cochran (Trinity) left tackle. Boggs (Trinity) left guard. Pittman (Simmons) center. Reynolds (Southwestern) right guard. Morris (Simmons) right tackle. Bounds (Simmons) right end. Keeling (Austin) quarter. Estes (Simmons) left half. Boyd (Howard-Payne) right half. Schley (Trinity) full. Second Team Cook (Howard-Payne) left end. M. Hodges (Howard-Payne) left tackle. Rathmell (Simmons) left guard. Wright (Howard-Payne) center. Roland (Trinity) right guard. Duncan (Southwestern) right tackle. Price (Austin) right end. Caldwell (Howard-Payne) quarter. Nelson (Austin) left half. Blackburn (Southwestern) right half. Henderson (Austin) full.

This selection was made by the Abilene Morning News after considering the selections of the coaches of the Texas conference. Two of the Texas conference eleven were met by the Matadors this season—Simmons, who won the conference title; and Howard-Payne, who was runner-up in the conference race.

Simmons was held to a scoreless tie by the Tech eleven and the Yellow Jackets were defeated by a score of 23 to 6.

In considering these two clubs and the all-conference selection the chances are a few of the Scarlet and Black members would have landed a berth on the mythical eleven (that yet remains unknown).

But nevertheless, there is 'Ox' Reed at guard; Walker at half, who is fast and shifty; Woodbridge at quarter, with a quick thinking noodle and who is capable of a triple threat—he can run, pass and kick; then there is 'Satchel' Hill, as powerful a fullback as can be found in West Texas football.

All Jennings, powerful wingman of the Freeland crew, who was handicapped throughout the season with an injured knee might have handled any of the Texas or T. I. A. A. all selection ends.

But there is no use of 'fing' around Tech is not in any conference and is only hoping that the time will not be far off—then no fooling—we will see how many of the Matadors are placed on these mythical eleven.

I guess maybe you think the Waco lads did not show the Temple grid crew the way back home—27 to 10—and to think that only a few weeks ago they played a scoreless tie. Paul Tyson must have romped on the Waco lads with both feet.

Prexy Anderson's selection of an All-T. I. A. A. conference eleven included one West Texas State Teachers College Buff—Red Keith.

Red Keith is a Falls high school product and was a member of both the Jackrabbits championship football and basketball teams.

But 'Red' is not the only Falls lad that was plied on the Anderson selection—Theo. Powell, A. C. C. flash, is also a Falls product. Powell, was the whole life and power of the Morris crew of Christians. He turned in several victories for his Alma Mater this season.

Anderson's selections for the T. I. A. A. conference are:

- Tranmer (Daniel Baker) and Dally (Southwest Texas) left ends; McLinn (Daniel Baker) and Elkins (West Texas), left tackles; Head (Daniel Baker) and Kallina (Southwest Texas), left guards; Hill (A. C. C.) and Stevens (Southwest Texas), centers; Palmer (Sam Houston) and Miller (McMurry), right guards; Rogers (North Texas) and Durrenburger (St. Edwards), right ends; Keith (West Texas) and McCall field (Sam Houston), quarters; McCall (Southwest Texas) and MacWilliams (Daniel Baker) left half; Flack (Daniel Baker) and Vjha (Daniel Baker)

BABE CONNAUGHTON

"One of the best linemen I've ever seen." You're listening to Lou Little, football coach at Georgetown University, the school that whipped Syracuse and made the great Navy team hustle to win. The enthusiastic Mr. Little is talking about his star guard, Babe Connaughton. Babe, as you might surmise by the nickname, weighs around 265. He's a veritable rock in the Georgetown forward wall. Syracuse gained but 17 yards through Little's line, mainly because of Babe. They don't make 'em any bigger or better than this bird.

right half; Rowell (A. C. C.) and Johnson (Southwest Texas) fullbacks.

NO CHANGE IN DATES

LONDON, Dec. 1.—There is no prospect of a change in the dates of the 1927 British open golf championship, scheduled for the week of June 21, to avoid a conflict with the American open event, Henry Gollen, secretary of the royal and ancient club, announced today.

Fighting Champion In the death of Harry Greb the fistie sport lost its only fighting champion. Greb was of the old school.

It has always been an accepted belief in the sport world that a champion should have no fear of 95 per cent of the men able to make his weight.

As a matter of fact, in the old days, it was not at all uncommon for champions to go out of their class, when worthwhile competition dwindled among the men of their weight.

Attell, McGovern, Fitzsimmons and Ketchel were fighters of that type. To my way of thinking I never saw a more interesting fighter to watch than Stanley Ketchel.

Colorful Ketchel "Any fighter I can hit on the button, I can whip," Ketchel once told me. That was just before he met Jack Johnson. When I questioned him as to chances if such a bout was arranged, he simply answered:

"Well, I am positive that I can hit Johnson. All I need to do is crack the right spot."

Johnson, a great fighter, then at the top of his game, panther-like in his movements, was a fleeing target. Many of the experts didn't give Ketchel much of a chance to hit him.

Ketchel did reach Johnson in that fight, scoring a clean knockout. However, it was that knockdown that caused his defeat. Having sublime confidence in his punching power and encouraged by the knockdown, Ketchel threw science to the winds and started slugging, feeling he had Johnson on the verge of a knockout.

Wide open, he was made to order for Johnson, a master sharp-shooter, and a few rounds later paid the penalty of that one punch.

Business Fighters The fighters of today are business men rather than fighting champions. Nowadays the winning of a title costs for a cessation of ring activities. The champion seeks to capitalize on the prestige that goes with a title.

First comes a vaudeville tour, in which the champion rather dumbly tells how he won his fistie honors. He may also box three one-minute rounds with pillow-like gloves.

Second comes a movie contract and then follows the life story of the champ. All champions must become literary at some time in their career.

Greb's Policy Dempsey spent three years in idleness while Tunney was being built up for him, and can charge his defeat to that long layoff.

Tunney's plans call for practically a year's rest before he engages in another bout involving the championship.

Greb believed a champion should defend his title any time a logical contender presented himself, and religiously adhered to his belief.

The ring could well stand a few more fighting champions after the style of Stanley Ketchel and Harry Greb.

Tech Officials Will Attend Meeting Of Coaches

According to announcement made at the offices of the athletic director of Texas Tech, Coach E. Y. Freeland and business manager H. C. Hervey will attend the general conference meeting of the three Texas conferences, the Southwestern, the Texas, and the T. I. A. A. which will be held in Dallas on December 10th. At this meeting Freeland will arrange basketball, baseball, and track schedules with the different members of the Texas and T. I. A. A. conference coaches—very little hopes are for any schedules with the Southwestern members.

No workouts in basketball will begin until the gym is completed it was announced. The completion of the Matador's gigantic gym will be soon after the Christmas holidays—at least it will be far enough along that workouts can be had.

Injured Football Player Taken Home

AUSTIN, Dec. 1.—Captain Charley Wolf of the Austin high school football team, who was injured in an automobile collision Tuesday while en route to see the Waco-Temple game at Waco, was brought home here last night.

He received three broken ribs, a cracked chest bone and minor lacerations.

W. T. C. C. ORGAN FEATURES MANY GROWING TOWNS

RED RIVER SECTION TOPIC OF DISCUSSION IN 'WEST TEXAS TODAY'

(Special to the Journal) STAMFORD, Dec. 1.—Almost a score of towns in the Red River district of the West Texas chamber of commerce are featured in the November issue of "West Texas Today," official organ of the West Texas organization released from the press this week. This play of commercial and industrial centers in sections served by the big body is in accordance with the program inaugurated by the editor with the October issue, featuring towns in the various divisions of the territory served by the West Texas chamber of commerce. The October edition played up the North Plains district of the West Texas organization.

"Wichita Falls, the City That Faith Built," "Bowie-Father Fort Worth," "Bellevue City of Civic Pride," and "Burkburnett—Gateway to the West," are among the towns of the Red River district featured. Other places about which interesting and informative articles are written are: Graham, first founded as a salt town; Jacksboro, an old oil town; Alvord, practicing "living at home"; Bridgeport, forging ahead; Olney oil and agricultural center; Archer City, bonanza for hotel men; Newcastle, with buried treasure; Electra, substantial city; Henrietta, making most of opportunity, and Margaret Holliday, Vernon, and Oklahoma, all thriving towns of West Texas. Additional towns of the Red River district which officials of the West Texas chamber of commerce were unable to cover in their first special tour, will be written up at a later date.

"Southern Problems and their Solutions," are explained by J. R. Masterson, county agent of Taylor county. Acting upon a suggestion similar to the one proposed by Maserson, the West Texas chamber of commerce has inaugurated their "More Feed" contest, which is told about in an article entitled "Food, Feed and Conservation, West Texas' New Slogan." The first of a series of six farm forestry articles prepared by C. B. Webster, state forester, is in the November issue of West Texas Today. Two transportation items are given in the issue, one discussing air mail service West Texas, written by Charles Braun of the National Air Transport company Inc., and one discussing the operation of the West Texas coach line through the picturesque sections of the state.

In addition to these outstanding special features of the Red River district, November issue of West Texas Today, regular sections, newspaper notices and secretaries service page, and other articles of general West Texas interest are run.

Now YOU TELL ONE DEL MONTE, Calif., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Now James A. McKenzie, former president of the California golf association, will tell one. While golfing with Governor Morris, author, McKenzie's maulie shot was caught on the first bounce by a sea gull which flew out to sea and dropped it. Morris claims it was lost in a water hazard.

Negro Beats Fine But Arrested Again

Two fines is better than no fine at all, and that is why one Lubbock negro is in the city jail today. He was arrested several days ago for speeding, but as the officer could not state the exact speed he was making he cited a lawyer and beat the case. Yesterday he was arrested again, and this time for driving over a stop signal. There is no doubt about his innocence or guilt and he will be forced to pay off this time whether he thinks himself guilty or not.

Explorer Dies

NARIOLI, British East Africa, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Carl Alekey, American explorer, sculptor and inventor, died yesterday at Nairobi, Uganda, where he had been collecting specimens for the American museum of natural history.

Good Year Is Seen For Tech Cagers; Much Material

Texas Tech's basketball prospects are bright for the season of 1927 and it is thought by the officials of the athletic department that one of the finest combinations will be worked out that can be found on any floor in West Texas colleges. With an influx of material together with the material that was left from the 1926 quintet, many are available.

'Dope' White, who declares that he is not at all a football player; but is at his own on the floor, is captain of the Tech quintet and as competent guard as may be found on any Texas college floor will work in hand with his running mate, 'Ransome' Walker. Other members of the 1926 Higginbotham crew who will be back for action are: Vin Zant, Hunter and Hemphill.

The new material that will greatly add to the strength of the floor machine includes: 'Al' Jennings, Stockton, and 'Buck' Weaver. All of these lads have had previous experience in the floor performance.

The gigantic gymnasium, which is now under construction, will be ready for the quintet soon after the Christmas holidays and actual training will not be engaged in until the first of the year.

Walker Is Favorite In Flowers Scrap

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Mickey Walker, former king of the welterweights, has shown such sterling form in training for his tilt with Tiger Flowers, middleweight champion, in Chicago Friday night, that New York fans have made him a favorite. Although Walker lost to the late Harry Greb, and Flowers twice defeated the Pittsburgh windmill, Flowers had been knocked out several times and Mickey packs a wicked wallop, the experts point out.

MARYLAND'S WIN OVER YALE ONE OF BIG UPSETS

Perhaps the outstanding surprise of the football season was the defeat of Yale by the little Maryland eleven. Maryland. It will be recalled, trimmed the Bulldogs 15-6.

The Yale whipping becomes even more of a shock when it is further brought to mind that Maryland a few weeks previous was soundly trounced by Chicago. The Maroons trimmed the Baltimore boys 21-0 with one of the worst eleven the veteran Stagg has ever put on the field. On comparative scores (which don't mean anything) Chicago stands out 34 points better than Yale. Imagine the lowly Maroons chewing up the Bulldog to that extent. Never!

NAME PRINCETON CAPTAIN PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Charles R. Roesser of Cincinnati, Ohio, today was elected captain of the 1927 Princeton eleven. Meiser has been a member of the varsity for two years and played right end the past season.

Carrigan Signed As Manager Boston Red Sox

BOSTON, Dec. 1.—(AP)—William F. Carrigan who piloted the Boston Red Sox to two successive world's championships and then went back to his home town, Lewiston, Maine, to lead the comparatively humdrum life of a banker, is in the harness again.

Bill accepted President Bob Quinn's offer of the managership yesterday after a five minute conference. He was promised the highest salary ever paid a Boston manager, it is understood, although no official figure was made public.

Carrigan was the original boy manager when he succeeded Jake Stahl at the helm of the Red Sox in 1913.

Now at 43 he will take up at once the reins relinquished by Lee Fohl, whose regime saw the once pennant winning aggregation firmly entrenched in the cellar.

FINANCIER DIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—William H. Porter, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan and company, died suddenly this noon.

Army-Navy Referee Protests Reports Of Laxity

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 1.—(AP)—Wilbur G. Crowell, referee of the Army-Navy game which ended in a 21-21 tie in Chicago last Saturday, took exceptions Tuesday to reports the officials were lax.

Denying that Army's second touchdown was scored after left end Harbold had kicked a fumble by Ransome, Crowell declared Walter Eckersall and other officials told him the touchdown was legal and there had been no kicking of the ball.

"The officials who were on top of the play said it was a legal touchdown," continued Crowell.

Crowell still is in possession of the ball and has written both institutions asking about its disposition. Crowell says he warned both teams he would hold the ball in case of a tie.

Reports of an Army-Navy play off would be held here December 19 in the Sesqui Centennial stadium, were denied by stadium officials and Navy academy officials.

NEW YORK TRADING

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 2 to 3 points under renewed southern hedge selling apparently combined with further local and Wall street selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reiterated reports of freer spot offerings in the south. January sold off to 12.17 in early trading and March to 12.42, the general list showing net declines of about six to nine points. Trade interests were buyers on scale down orders.

NEW ORLEANS FUTURES

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Cotton opened steady, December 12.90; January 12.20; March 12.36; May 12.50; July 12.65; October 12.78.

NEW ORLEANS TRADING

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1 (AP)—Dry and favorable weather for picking and ginning cotton caused the market to open 7 to 8 points down. The weather showing and the bearish character of the weekly weather and crop report created considerable selling. Pre-bureau liquidation and hedge selling was also a feature. December traded down to 12.17, January to 12.20 and March to 12.34, or 9 to 11 points below yesterday's close.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE
Admired by ERIC WATERS, radical leader in Pen-dleton University, JUDITH MARTIN, young teacher, is in the M. A. group of DEAN TIMOTHY BROWN of the discipline committee.

DR. PETER DORN, astronomy professor, is attracted to Judith and anxious to reconcile her and the dean. MYRA ALDRICH, living in Judith's boarding house, is in love with Eric, and jealous of Judith. Judith's boyfriend, MRS. BROWN, the dean's wife, who "KITTY" SHEA, town bootlegger, tries to blackmail her. Eric promises to silence Shea.

Shea's body is found in a creek, and Eric is arrested as material witness. Mrs. Brown secures his release by spinning an alibi which endangers her own reputation. This is kept secret by the prosecuting attorney.

When Dr. Dorn is arguing with Judith in her classroom, over the reform campaign which the dean is planning, he says Eric is to blame for every mistake she has made.

Eric appears in the door, smiling insolently.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLII

Eric stood just inside the door, one hand in his pocket. Judith saw that he was extremely pale and that he swayed unsteadily on his feet.

He smiled lazily at Dorn and Judith. When they did not answer, he walked past them to the benches and began to rummage about.

"Somebody's swiped my Florate pony," he muttered. "I left it right here. It was a damn good little trot, too."

Judith was watching him, horrified. He smiled at the expression of her face, and came toward her. "Ready for me to take you home now, Buttercup?" he asked, ignoring the professor.

Dr. Dorn took a slow step forward. "Miss Martin isn't going yet. Waters' she's going home with me, when we finish talking."

Eric raised ironic brows at him.

"Get up!" he sneered. Then he turned his back on the professor. "Ready, Jude?"

The girl could not speak. Her worried gaze traveled from Eric to Dorn and back again. Eric took the same indolent pose in front of Judith's desk, swaying on his heels.

Dr. Dorn advanced upon him. "It's time for you to be leaving Waters," he said, calmly. "Miss Martin and I want to talk."

"Fine," answered Eric, flippantly. "If you haven't finished razzing me to Judith, I'll just stand by and listen. Ought to be interesting."

Dr. Dorn whet out a long arm and grasped Eric's collar. With the other hand he jerked open the door and sent Eric sprawling into the hall. Then he closed the door again and turned to Judith.

"This is a vulgar mess. I'm sorry it had to be done," he said. "I'm also sorry you insist on looking at that young cur with rose-colored glasses. If you're ready, I'll take you home now."

Judith threw her head back. "You have not the right to supervise my selection of friends," she said. "And as for that 'cur,' he at least has the courage to fight for anyone he loves."

The professor laughed. "Yes, we've just had a good example of his fighting powers."

She pushed past him and left the room. When Dr. Dorn came up, a moment later, he found her holding Eric's head in her lap, and rubbing his limbs frantically. The boy's eyes were closed and his face was white, save where the scar above the left eye still showed livid.

The professor bent over Eric, but Judith pushed his hand away. "You brute," she said, "he's fainted."

Dr. Dorn answered calmly. "No, he hasn't. He's drunk. Judith bent over Eric's lips. Then she drew back from his whiskey-laden breath.

"I'll get a taxicab for him," said Dr. Dorn, coolly, "or I'll rub his hands while you get one."

"No you won't," snapped Judith. "You've done enough damage for one day. I'll manage alone."

The professor looked at her for a moment, and then, with a shrug, walked away.

When he was out of sight, Judith made for the telephone booth down the hall. She got the Sigma Psi house after several moments of ringing, and asked for Will Wetherel. He greeted her facetiously, but pruned when he heard her breathless words.

"Why, sure I'll come. Just sit tight and try to keep him out of sight. I'll meet you at the east door with a cab in less than fifteen minutes."

When she reached Eric again, he was sitting up, leaning weakly against the wall. "What's matter with me, Jude? Where's that damn schoolteacher?" He closed his eyes wearily and again slumped to the floor.

Judith tried to rouse him. She pulled at his arms, shook him, tried with all her strength to lift him to his feet. At last his eyes flickered open again, and with a scowl he said, "What's matter?"

"Get up," said Judith, sharply.

He laboriously heaved his body to an upright position, and, conquering her repugnance, Judith put her arm under his and began the long walk down the stairs. It was precarious going, for Eric hung heavily upon her and the steps were almost in total darkness. Once he said to her, piteously, "I'm not drunk, I'm sick."

The glass doors of the eastern entrance glimmered in front of them, when the sound of a motor horn outside brought Judith relief. Wetherel sprang to her aid and, without a word, Eric was transferred from her arm to his. She was turning back when Wetherel asked, "Aren't you coming too?"

Judith shook her head. "I don't want to see any more of him like this. I'm going to my classroom for my things. Then I'll leave by the other door. Thank you for coming."

She shot the bolts into place and turned back into the hall. She had progressed some twenty yards down the passage when she saw Dean Brown standing in the open door of his office.

He beckoned to Judith calmly, as if he had been waiting for her. He did not step out of her way until she had nearly reached the door. Then he retreated slowly and stood at one side until she had passed into the room.

The inner study was in heavy shadow, its ponderous desk and chairs looming blackly in their places. The dean reached for the green-shaded desk lamp, and a circle of light sprang out of the blackness.

He sat down heavily in the swivel chair, and his face, under the green-shaded bulb, was stolid and grim, like a sleeping stone gargoyle. Outside the circle of light the room was in deepest gloom.

He began to speak. "There are many things to be discussed between us, Miss Martin. The incident this afternoon makes it necessary for me to speak at once." Judith stiffened.

"I do not permit my women teachers to loiter about the building after closing time with men students. I hope that is quite clear. I do not know who your companion of this afternoon may have been, nor do I know why you were walking almost in his embrace. I only know that the performance was unseemly, and must not happen again."

Judith smiled very faintly. The dean saw the smile. "This is not the worst indictment against you," he began, his voice rasping still more harshly. "From the beginning, I have not considered your conduct appropriate to your position. I have information which, if presented to the board of curators, would result in your instant dismissal."

"If I present it to them, it will be because you have forced me to do it, much against my will."

He gave her a quick glance. "You are prepared, I hope, to do your share of the work in the reform campaign?"

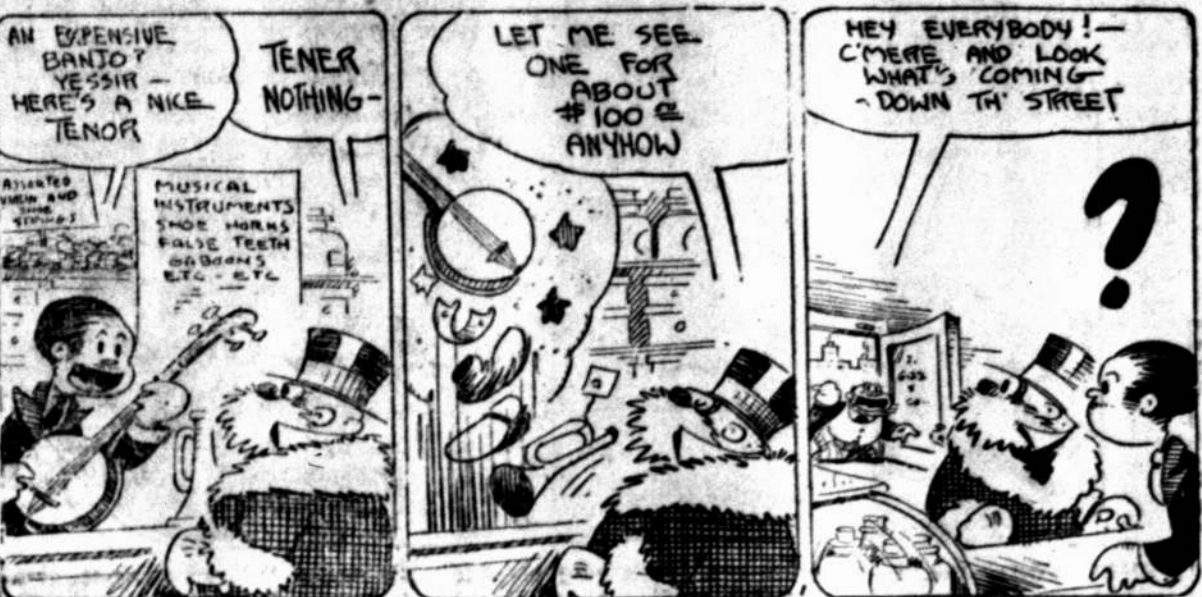

Judith bit her lip. "What is my share?" she asked, after a moment.

Prosecutor Moves For Mistrial In Hall-Mills Case Charging Jurors With Irregularities And Rank Unfairness

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 1 (AP)—Justice Charles W. Parker, presiding this evening in a motion by the state for a mistrial in the Hall-Mills case.

The motion was made at the completion of the state's case against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brother, Willie, and Henry Stevens. They have been on trial for four weeks on charges of killing Mrs. Eleanor R. Hall, soprano in the church of which Mrs. Hall's husband, the Rev. Edward W. Hall, was pastor.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Dec. 1 (AP)—Alexander Simpson, special prosecutor in the Hall-Mills murder case, today moved for a mistrial alleging that members of the jury had committed irregularities which made it impossible for him to obtain a fair trial.

That members of the jury had been improperly guarded, one member having been observed in consultation with members of the defense, and the manifest hostility of some members of the jury to him and to the state's case.

Simpson went on to state that the first affidavit was made by Ralph Crim who stated that he had been in the court room every day and that he had seen Juror number two, John W. Young, farmer of Middlebush, nodding and apparently asleep.

The next affidavits were by Frank Barnhart and his wife, Elise. Mrs. Barnhart is a sister of Mrs. Mills. They alleged that another juror had been seen conversing with McCarter and Mr. Studer of defense counsel. This incident was also set forth in the Barnhart affidavit.

After listening to all the affidavits, Judge Parker said he would take under advisement the motion for a mistrial.

One of the affidavits was by Charlotte Mills, daughter of Mrs. Mills, who said she had seen Juror No. 5 talking with McCarter. This was the incident which was also set forth in the Barnhart affidavit.

For Stanley, who is a coal miner in Lansford, Pa., has fourteen persons to provide for, besides himself. There have been eighteen children, but only thirteen are living now. Mrs. Scygiel, who is just 32 years old, found it a hard job to manage a home on a coal miner's wages. She often spoke of the low prices in "the old country."

So the husband, as his family grew, decided to send them back to Poland, where his American dollars could support them in comfort. After long, careful saving, they accumulated enough for the trip. So now, on the same ship which is carrying Queen Marie back to Roumania, are Mrs. Scygiel and eleven of the thirteen little Scygiels.

"Some day," said Stanley, "a few of them will grow up and I'll bring my family back again. They'll be Americans yet."

MARGARET SMITH RESTING WELL

Miss Margaret Smith, daughter of J. O. Smith of the Hotel Drug, who was injured in an automobile accident last week at Austin, has a fracture of the vertebrae in her neck and is in a serious condition in a hospital there.

Her father stated here this morning that although the fracture was of a serious nature, she will recover from the accident in a short time. He is receiving word from her mother every day concerning her condition, and stated that she will be taken to her home there in a few days. A brace has been designed to be placed on her neck until the fracture can heal sufficiently.

Miss Smith, a popular student of Wichita Falls high school before coming here, was one of the most popular students of the Tech the past year. She has been attending the University of Texas, three months. Her mother, spending the winter with her. They will return to Lubbock as soon as Miss Smith's condition permits.

THREE TURKS HELD ON PLOT CHARGE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—Intrigue and mystery, attributes by which the Hindu is best known outside his native land, came out of the east to the United States yesterday when three East Indians were arrested at Beaumont, south of here, by immigration authorities, who said their move had frustrated a plot against the life of Sir Tukaji Row Holker, deposed maharajah of Indore.

The maharajah had just arrived in Los Angeles on his tour of this country. The former maharajah was forced to abdicate his throne last February as the result of an international scandal growing out of his affair with Mumtaz Begum, a dancing girl belonging to his harem.

Immigration authorities pointed out that his three Hindus arrested here had come from the same section of Central India in which the dancer's mother lives and indicated that the plot against the former maharajah's life might have been hatched as revenge.

The Nauch girl recently was quoted in newspaper stories published in this country as vowing revenge on the former potentate for the death of her baby.

The three alleged conspirators are said to have been smuggled across the Mexican border at Calexico and were being brought to Los Angeles in automobile when arrested. The driver, an American, also was taken into custody.

Two men, believed to be Mexicans, escaped. The Hindus were heavily armed. All were held on technical charges of violation of the immigration laws.

At the mention of the name of the exiled maharajah, the Hindus spat upon the ground, the arresting officers reported.

Tubercular Hospital Proposed By Masons

WACO, Texas, Dec. 1 (AP)—Erection of a tubercular sanitarium for master masons and their families was proposed today by Grand Master Ed R. Bryan of Midland as the Masonic grand lodge of Texas went into annual session. The suggestion that a great benevolent institution be placed in operation in Texas was made in a supplementary report to his annual address, delivered today. His recommendation was referred to the committee on grand officers report, which is to report Thursday.

Former U. S. Marshal Dies At Brownsville

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—October earnings of the Gulf Coast Lines were better than a year ago, gross gainings, $191,268 and net operating income $11,395. Net for the ten months this year was $421,128 smaller than his same period of 1925, although gross gained $1,318,784.

Miner Turns International Financier

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—"America—yes, it's a good place to make money, but you spend it quick, too." And that is why Stanley Scygiel is sending his family back to Poland, a country, he explains, where money, once acquired, will go a long way in buying shoes and filling hungry mouths.

For Stanley, who is a coal miner in Lansford, Pa., has fourteen persons to provide for, besides himself. There have been eighteen children, but only thirteen are living now. Mrs. Scygiel, who is just 32 years old, found it a hard job to manage a home on a coal miner's wages.

ANDERSON BROS JEWELERS

SAINT AND SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

COPYRIGHT 1925 NEA

It was on Saturday, November 13, that Madame Denise put the finishing touches on the last frock in Cherry's truly marvelous wardrobe, took one last prideful look at the most enchanting trousseau she had ever designed, once more adjusted the deep, mechanical waves of her hennaed hair before the old pier glass, gathered up the paraphernalia of her trade—or her art, as she called it—and with dim, shabby little old Mrs. Hogan following meekly, took her departure—and a check for fifteen hundred dollars, signed by Ralph Cluny, Cherry's aged fiance.

"She stayed two weeks longer than we had bargained for," Cherry explained to Faith. "The original price was a thousand, but Ralph said I was to keep her just as long as I liked, and really, darling, you've got to admit that I've accumulated the most marvelous trousseau any girl ever had."

While Faith, tired from her strenuous day of Saturday baking and cleaning, was setting the table for supper, she heard Cherry's high, happy voice at the telephone.

"Absolutely gorgeous. I'm dying for you to see everything. Selma's coming over, Fran, and bring her bridesmaid dress, and I want you to come and bring yours. Faith's is ready, too—yeah, a perfect dream! I almost got jealous the way Madame Denise simply staved over it, as if Faith's dress was more important than my wedding dress. No, don't let Bill come. This is going to be a chicken party. Maybe we'll all dress up in some of my delicious new pajamas. Oh, my dear! You'll be surprised!—Oh, my dear! He won't either! He's too old!—He is sweet, isn't he? All right, eight o'clock, sure. Bye!"

She waltzed into the dining room and flung her arms about Faith, in an ecstasy of vanity and anticipation. "We'll all dress up, and give Dad and Muggy and Joy and Junior the kick of their lives! Oh, Faith! I'm simply proud of my trousseau! Don't you think we ought to have a policeman to guard the house nights? Ralph's really afraid someone will try to steal it, since that long write-up in the paper, with sketches and prices hinted at and everything."

Faith only smiled, and went on to the kitchen, closely followed by the excited, flowing girl.

Junior catapulted himself violently through the kitchen door, shedding a sheepskin coat as he did so.

"Hello," he grinned. "Oh, boy! Eat! Say Faith, you said I could bring Fay Allen over some time, and I've asked her for this evening. You said at breakfast you'd be home this evening. Be nice to her, sis—"

Cherry beat with small, clenched fists on his broad chest. "Just when I've got Frances Warren and Selma Pruitt coming over to see my trousseau and try on their bridesmaid dresses. You can just simply phone her and tell her it's not convenient today, that's all. Long Lane! Fay Allen!"

"Long" thrust his sleek dark head down and forward so that his face almost touched hers. Round spots of color glowed on the tan of his high cheek bones. "Not on your life!" he snarled at her. "You ain't the only chicken on the roost, even if you are makin' a fool o' yourself, marryin' that old monkey-gland! Fay's comin', see, and you can like it or lump it, I don't care! And you're goin' to be decent to her, see, or I'll tell where I saw you last night. Get me? I guess you do, all right, all right?"

"Squealer!" Cherry flung over her shoulder as she ran into the dining room. "Oh, dad! Your best girl, Selma Pruitt, is coming over tonight! Shave off your funny old whiskers and dress up, won't you, honey? I'm going to show Frances and Selma my trousseau, and all of us are going to put on the dresses we're going to wear in the wedding. Fay Allen is coming over tonight, too. Won't that be nice?"

"When do we put the feed bags on, Faith?" "Long" drew a chair screeching to the table and began to tap out a jazz tune with his fork and plate. "Hurray! Wainnie and sauerkraut! Aitangi! 'At's the kangaroo's canoodle!"

"Well," Mr. Lane, going to the table, "ain't your Ma comin' to supper?" "She'll be in in a minute," Faith said. "What are you looking so pleased about, Dad? You look like the cat that swallowed the canary."

"New job o' work," Mr. Lane acknowledged with a gruffness that did not hide his pleasure. "Oh, hello, Martha. Feelin' better today, honey?"

"I been nearly dead with a sick headache all day," Mrs. Lane advanced slowly into the room, her shadowed eyes mournful under a camphor-soaked bandage that encircled her brow. "What's all that about a new job? Got a barn to build, I guess," she concluded bitterly.

"Barn, your aunt!" Jim Lane surprised them all by chuckling with more wholehearted pleasure than he had shown since the announcement of Cherry's engagement. "Lincoln Pruitt's give me the contract to build a big ten-car garage for him, back of his wholesale grocery. Concrete floor, two stories, upper floor for mechanics, and an elevator to take cars up for overhaulin'. Guess you might call a twenty thousand dollar garage a barn."

During the rejoicing that followed, no one heard Faith's softly uttered, "Dear George!"

Sesqui Celebration Closes With Deficit

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1 (AP)—Celebration of the 150th birthday anniversary of the nation ended officially today with a deficit of more than $5,000,000 for the Sesqui-Centennial exposition.

Plans to re-open the Sesqui next year were abandoned yesterday. The directors opposed such a plan, chiefly because of financial reasons. The exposition opened May 31.

One Way To Win Readers

Alexander Crosby

By NEA Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Dec. 1.—Alexander Crosby wanted to make people read the Astor, San Diego State college weekly, of which he was editor.

So he wrote an editorial about the oath of allegiance to the flag, such as is used in many public schools.

It was a rather sarcastic editorial. The pupil, wrote Crosby, "places the flag at his altar and, forgetting his own spotted record, calls on God to guard it from the unclean touch of the Filipino, the Chinese and the Italian."

He went on: "He allows his secretary of state to prohibit a distinguished Russian diplomat from passing through the country, trembling lest a new thought penetrate the nation's smug intellectual prosperity."

"When the American Legion, the G. A. R. and the Brothers and Sisters of the Mexican War are forgot, the time may be ripe for a Krishnamurti of freedom to write a different oath: 'I pledge allegiance to no flag, but to any nation which gives freedom to itself and fairness to the world.'"

Then the storm broke. American Legion officials descended on him. Now, the legion men say, Crosby has promised to print retraction.

GIVE 'EM AIR

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1 (AP)—A daily fresh air bath with "as much of the skin exposed to the air as possible" is recommended as a means of maintaining good health by Dr. Charles Wharton of the department of physical education of the University of Pennsylvania. Commending the cult of bare headed he declares the abolition of hats would result in better health.

LEGION NOW IS IN POSITION TO BE OF SERVICE

NEW OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED AT MEETING TWO WEEKS HENCE

The local post of the American Legion is now in a position for the first time to be of real service to the community as a civic organization, and on the shoulders of the officials of the Post who will be elected at the next regular meeting, will rest a great responsibility. This was the consensus of opinion expressed by several speakers last night at the regular bi-monthly meeting of the organization when nominating committees were appointed to draw up two tickets for submission to the Post at the next meeting.

The confidence of the public in the organization, which for a time was on rather tottering stems, has been restored in a large measure during the past year, and the Legion is now being looked upon as one of the really valuable organizations in the city's program, one of the speakers said.

Growing in Favor

It is sad but true that the public until recently has not had confidence in the Legion, and this applies not only locally, but nationwide. Apparently it has been looked upon as an organization of broken down ex-servicemen, who though they did their part in the recent World war, are now useless so far as public good is concerned. But this feeling is now being overcome throughout the nation. Hubert L. Allen, assisted by Vaughn E. Wilson and Dr. V. V. Clark, will submit one of the tickets for new officers, and the other will be submitted by Homer L. Pharr, A. C. Jackson, and Chas. Whitacre. Some lively voting is anticipated, and plans are being made for one of the biggest meetings in the history of the Post.

Appeal For Finances

In order that a small deficit of the Post may be assumed, and the new administration be given a working capital on which to start the new year, it was voted that a letter be sent out to members of the Post appealing for financial aid, this aid to be on a voluntary basis.

The matter of a permanent home for the Post also was discussed briefly, but no definite action taken. Vaughn E. Wilson, Post Adjutant, was named by the Post Commander to take the matter under advisement, and give it serious thought, calling in such aid as he deemed necessary to give the situation careful attention.

Editorials DOESN'T IT MAKE YOU SORE?

There is one type of individual who gives most everybody a pain. He is the kind who never speaks to you unless he wants something for nothing. His mind is always occupied—although this last statement may have been an unjust accusation—as he walks down the street and he just doesn't see you that's all.

But let him want something you can give him and he's all different. He'll come to your office and scribble up until the world looks level and to say then that you're the best fellow in the world is putting it mildly for him.

Oh, yes! Lubbock has some of these birds but thank Heaven most of us know them for what they are. But doesn't it make you sore? You bet it does!

SOME THOUGHTS OF HATRED Some United States of America have 6 per cent of the world's population and 40 per cent of that same world's wealth.

One need remember nothing else to have an answer ready to every query why we are not altogether popular with the world at large.

Envy is no provincial emotion. It is universal, international, knowing no bounds of color or speech. Envious John Smith of Main street, who chokes down his spleen at sight of his neighbor's limousine while he himself drives a Buick, or walks in no different from the envious nations, tax-idlers occupied for expansion, who see the vast areas of a neighbor across the sea.

Some may argue that this is no new story for America, that we have been just as prosperous for years with no checking, envious tongues wagged against us.

"Call me mother" again is the answer; the word that made all the world kin and brought into open daylight things rarely thought of before, or wondered about the war, too, that it took prosperity from others, made our prosperity the more visible.

If we are hated, why hatred? We can afford to be tolerant of a purely human quality, asking for tolerance in a possible day when our own leaders may not be so full of facts and strains.

"CALL ME MOTHER" Two queens have been touring our country recently—Queen Marie and Queen Ernestine.

Royalists for half a century these two have been—both revolvers of radically different types.

One properly is addressed as "Your Majesty." "Call me mother," the other commands.

LINES FROM THE Old Masters

The poplars are felled; farewell to the shade And the whispering sound of the cool solanade. The winds play no longer and sing in the leaves; Nor Ouse on his bosom their image receives. My fugitive years are all hastening away. And I must ere long lie as lowly as they.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING and BROADWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—Manhattan sights not to be found in the guide books: Those million-dollar barns! One at Seventh avenue and 37th street—The other on 39th, just off Fifth avenue—They are called the million-dollar barns because of the value of the property on which they stand.

Even as its barns and houses pass, so passes also the interest of the crowd to the social leaders.

Time was when crowds jammed the entrance of the Metropolitan Opera House on gala nights waiting for a glimpse of the social aristocracy. Publicity and the movies have changed all this. Now the mobs gather in front of a motion picture theater at an important opening, waiting for a peep at a favorite star.

A thousand know Ricardo Cortez, Lois Wilson and the rest to one that could recognize a Vanderbilt or a Gould. A few stalkers for the "good flash days" still tarry to glimpse the flash of jewels or the extravagant upper coat of a society queen.

They tell me of a time when the Blue Book leaders rushed from their carriages and autos, covering their faces with wraps to keep off prying eyes. There is little need for such precautions now. The crowd gives them little heed. It trails the folk who are in a newer highlight.

Stage celebrities, too, are quite safe from the eyes of the thousands. I saw John Drew, looking strangely old, ambling about Broadway the other day, without so much as a head turning after him. I saw Jeanne Eagler enter a theater with little more than a few bobbing heads to note her. But let one of the celebrated movie folk arrive—whether it be flapper or veteran character man—and heads go twisting off their necks.

After all, the number of persons who can watch a stage artist is woefully less than those watching the performance of a film mine.

Perhaps the least attention of all is attracted by the celebrities of the business world. I have seen, time and again, the wizards of finance stalk into a first night on Broadway and be greeted by nothing more than a perfunctory nod from acquaintances.

Journal Jobs

When Willie Shakespeare came to London and secured a job holding horses and helping to shift the scenery in a theatre, and got the notion that he could write plays himself, it no doubt made "the beautiful laugh and the judgmental grudge." Then he proceeded to make all former dramatists and poets look cheap and tawdry. In picking out young men to laugh at we ought to be very careful.

WASHINGTON LETTER

DOHENY TO TESTIFY, FALL TO KEEP MUM, WASHINGTON'S GUESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—A crisis in the Teapot Dome-Elk Hills oil investigation, as well as a high point in the lives of two men who prospected together for gold in the west, comes with the trial of Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government.

The trials come 23 months after Doheny admitted under oath that he lent $100,000 to his old friend, Fall, who was secretary of the interior under President Harding.

The legal expenses of the defense may well run close to a million. Doheny will fight to the last ditch to retain his freedom.

The case is so involved, so important and so comprehensive that the cost of assembling evidence and preparing the prosecution and defense has been huge. Both sides spent much time, trouble and money in lining up their witnesses, willing and unwilling.

While the government has been running on a low cost basis—because the government is the government—the defense has not stopped at any expenditure.

Avoids Newspapermen Fall, some time back reported as a "broken, tired, old man," has come back to Washington appearing in excellent health, and he continues to avoid newspapermen and will not talk to them. Photographers hounded him so that he was finally forced to pose, but he maintained his silence.

Will he take the witness stand in his own defense? The impression here is that he will not, following the example of former Attorney General Harry M. Doherty at his recent trial for conspiracy in New York.

Doheny, however, may testify. He has never been as reticent as Fall. Many of his friends believe that when he sent the $100,000 to Fall, it was merely an act of charity.

Fall is staying at the fashionable Waldman Park Hotel, the finest in Washington. Doheny and his retinue have an entire floor at the Carlton, the most expensive in Washington.

The two old-time prospectors who went their separate ways finally to be reunited as co-defendants in this trial will be brought to the bar of justice in a courtroom which has just disposed of the cases of two negro housebreakers.

To the colored population here the trial of these two members of their race meant certainly as much as the case which the entire nation is now watching. Negroes filled the benches while Associate Justice Adolph A. Hoehling, who is sitting in the Fall-Doheny trial, listened to the evidence.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

TOLERANT, BUT TERRIBLE WHEN ANNOYED

BY ARTHUR N. PACK President, American Nature Ass'n.

Here is a creature that has made for himself a name respected in every home. He is about the size of a cat. Some say his peculiar black and white pattern is for the purpose of camouflage—that it looks like moonlight and shadow on befoiled. Perhaps so, but this defense should have been given to some animal more in need of it.

Most of North America is the home of the skunk, except the far north.

Prairie, wood and mountain are habitable, for each furnishes him with all he needs, food and shelter. Small mammals and insects both injurious to man's interests, are his principal and normal food.

Shelter is furnished by the abandoned burrow of woodchuck or fox, or even that of some smaller creature, for the skunk is a burrower himself and can enlarge an underground home if it is too tight to fit. A den in rocks is safest of all.

Often he will turn his back on all such and bring up his family beneath a shed or barn, coming out at night to forage and seldom giving any trouble unless the family dog is indiscreet.

The musk of the skunk surpasses in quality all similar scents thus far known to man. The French term him the "Child of the Devil." How ever, the skunk is a gentleman and never goes out of his way to inflict it on other creatures. He is extremely tolerant, and needs to be very much annoyed before he decides to do his worst.

When danger merely threatens, he will stamp his foot and perhaps even jump a few inches toward the foe. But if all such hints are ignored, then he looks out for a surprise of the most dreadful nature is in store. In all probability someone's clothes will have to be buried, and it will not be the skunk's and in the meantime he is on his way remarking, "I told you so," or something to that effect.

Helpful Health Hints

WASH YOUR NECK WELL TO WARD OFF BOILS

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene and Health Magazine

Those frequent and unwelcome visitors—boils—always are due to skin infection. The greatest preventive is constant cleanliness of the skin particularly of the back of the neck or other parts commonly affected.

In men the back of the neck is the part most commonly affected, usually because of the constant rubbing of the collar on the hair of the lower part of the back of the head.

Certain diseases, such as diabetes, seem to predispose the person to infection of the skin, and the constant recurrence of boils should be the signal for a visit to the doctor.

The person who succumbs readily to skin infections lacks bodily resistance. This resistance of the skin is associated with the presence in the blood of substances that will overcome bacteria.

The constantly recurring warning to keep the body in the best physical state by proper diet, proper cleanliness and prompt attention to infections in the ear, nose and throat is here of the greatest importance.

When a boil occurs the parts around it are usually shaved, since the infection spreads from one hair follicle to another. All sorts of antiseptics may be applied, and fall in control the boil unless the tissues of the body wall is off and cause it to "come to a head." Heat aids this process by bringing a good supply of blood to the part affected.

A boil should not be opened by some friend who happens to think himself a surgeon merely because he does not faint at the sight of blood. Improper opening or drainage of a boil may be exceedingly serious by spreading the infection to the body generally.

The surgeon will open the boil with proper precautions against extension of the infection and will see to it that the boil drains properly.

The germs that cause boils are small round organisms, commonly seen in the case when stained and studied with a microscope. Some physicians build up the resistance of the chronic sufferer from boils by preparing a vaccine from the patients own bacteria.

WOMAN SLAYS AT URGING OF ANGEL, CLAIMS

MURDERER MOTHER SAYS ANGELS INSISTED SHE STRIKE FOR SON

BY JAMES HASWELL NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (AP)—An Angel of Vengeance in gleaming white floated out of the dusk above the altar of the church where she knelt in prayer and caused her to kill the man she believed had slain her son. Mrs. Josephine Cagnino says. Donna Peppina—as the Italians of the crowded East Side tenement know her—has been indicted on a charge of first degree murder.

But the gray, shawl-clad mother cares little now about the law or man may do. Serenity and comfort have come to her for the first time in six long years as she waits behind steel bars.

Donna Peppina has made her peace with God.

More than a year ago the angel first appeared. It was radiant in flowing white, as she described it, and descended on broad-sweeping wings from the darkness of the rafters of the church where she prayed.

"The voice of thy son cries out," it seemed to say, stretching out an accusing arm. "And you must be the instrument of vengeance."

That had been five years from the day she had stumbled, breathless, from the tenement at Delancy and Goerck streets, to find her son, Ignatius, 21, lying dead on the sidewalk.

Andrew Picarella, "that bad man," had laughed, she said, thrust a gun into his pocket and run away as she screamed at him. Police searched for him awhile, and then the law forgot. Years passed. Donna Peppina prayed.

The vision came, and then she met Picarella on the street. He laughed again and jostled her in the crowd. Again she met him, and he ducked into a cellar way.

"Not I, but Ignatius will be avenged," she called after him down the black hole.

DAUGHERTY IS CALLED IN OIL TRIAL OF FALL

DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF ANY LEASES ISSUED BY GOVERNMENT

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general of the United States, and himself under indictment on a conspiracy charge was called to the witness stand yesterday in the Fall-Doherty oil case.

The former cabinet officer made his appearance unexpectedly to lend his appearance to the humdrum tenor of more or less technical testimony which the prosecution had been presenting to strengthen its claim that former Secretary Fall of the interior department and Edward L. Doherty, wealthy oil operator had entered into a conspiracy in connection with the navy oil leases.

Daugherty Tried Daugherty, with Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, was tried in New York recently in a case involving the disposal of alien-owned property, the case resulting in a mistrial. Today the prosecution called him for questioning concerning the part taken by the department of justice in connection with the Elk Hills naval oil reserves and the Pearl Harbor naval base.

As a matter of fact, Daugherty said he did not know such leases and contracts ever had come to the department of justice in any way. He added that he did not know Doherty.

Has Own Legal Staff On cross-examination the former attorney general said that each governmental department had its own legal staff and that it was customary to present legal questions to the attorney general only when the departmental staffs were in doubt as to the law.

The prosecution called Clarence C. Chase, of El Paso, son-in-law of Fall as today's first witness. He testified Fall arrived in El Paso, December 5, 6, 1921, with approximately $100,000 cash and opened negotiations at once for taking over the Harris ranch near Three Rivers New Mexico, which he had desired to purchase for many years. Fall did not say where he got the money, Chase said.

G. W. Holland, geologist of the interior department, identified documents from the department's files which both sides presented in evidence.

On direct examination, he submitted first in behalf of the prosecution bids of several oil companies for the Pearl Harbor oil storage plant in Hawaii, the contract for which ultimately was awarded Doherty's Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company. He also presented correspondence between Fall and E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the interior during Fall's western trip in December, 1921.

The government objected to Daugherty's answering a general question as to the usual custom in legal procedure within the department. The court over ruled the objection and the witness told of the process through which departmental questions came to the attorney general when they did.

He said every opinion he ever had rendered as attorney general was a matter of record in the department of justice bearing his own signature. He never had been asked for a "curbside" opinion of the oil lease negotiations in a cabinet meeting, he said.

PROPER TRAINING OF YOUTH URGED

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 1 (AP)—Nine tenths of America's subnormal children could be made into solid and useful citizens if the right training were given them in early childhood, Howard C. Shelton, executive secretary of the big brothers and big sisters federation, today told the international boys work conference.

The youth of any age reflects the adult mind of the preceding decade, Charles Brandon Booth, son of Maude Hallington Booth, told the conference. The Cosmopolitan and congenial nature of America's fabrics was blamed for the disrespect of law by Wilfred Andrews of England.

Jazz and prohibition were among the score of subjects brought under the microscope. Booth said jazz was merely an expression of proper spirit. Sheldon held the belief that young people are drinking more than they did before prohibition.

PUTS RUM ON RUN IN DIXIE STATES

BY NEA Service NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1.—Tune in the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi and Alabama on the prohibition news broadcasting circuit, strange—

Tune in these four states where eight million souls, more or less, vied with Kentuckians at making drinking an art in days gone by—

Tune in these four states where more than anywhere else in America the setting is made to order for illegal trafficking in the beverages that the law forbids—

And get a jolt. For be the news from other prohibitions enforcement districts of the U. S. A. what it may, the bald-headed administrator of District No. 10 is making his district dry, they say.

The plump, clean-shaven, ruddy-cheeked, jovial O. D. Jackson is the Big Dry Boss in question. And it's during the last year that the great change from exceeding wetness to tangible aridity has come over this storied land.

College Men on Force There's an army of 75 field agents and 50 clerks at Jackson's command. Most of them are college graduates.

It's from the hills of Arkansas—native home of dark and mysterious dolines by marking—down through cosmopolitan New Orleans, along a thousand interlacing Gulf coast bays and bayous, and on out to the plantations of Mississippi and Alabama that they operate.

Somehow, while prohibition enforcement north, east and west, have been besmoking failure, Jackson's army has been attaining success.

"In five years," says the administrator, "we will have the prohibition law as well enforced down here as any other law on the statute books."

There are statistics galore to back up Jackson, such as the walloping moonshiners, rum runners and their kind for 1,248,160 gallons of stimulant in 10 months.

Two hundred per cent is an average increase in the price of wet goods since Jackson and his men hit their gait.

Rum rings whose scope almost staggered credulity have surrendered to Jackson after being hit for seizure losses amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

A Versatile Crew Jackson's college-boy agents are interesting.

They include men who can slug their way through the roughest waterfront "rough house," men who know their triggers when shooting starts, men who are at home in evening dress at formal balls, men who can talk banking with bankers, the stock market with brokers, and business with business men.

Jackson trusts them implicitly. There's a reason. Every man agent is secretly tested for his honesty of purpose before he goes on any important "job."

And the administrator himself? His years in the navy made him, he says, Jackson enlisted in the navy at 18, and served all around the globe. During the World War, he was with the Naval Intelligence Service.

FOUR ROB BANK POCAHONTAS, Ill., Dec. 1 (AP)—Four robbers today held up the Bond County State bank here and escaped in an automobile with all the cash on hand, roughly estimated at $16,000. Ten or twelve shots were fired, but no one was wounded.

Key is doing his third year at college and is credited with editing one of the best college papers in Texas. He is a graduate of the Lamesa high school where he received several honors as well as at McMurry this year. He is making an enviable record at the Abilene institution this year.

French Buy Rail And Mine Interests

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 1 (AP)—Purchase by a French syndicate of the Arizona and Swansea railroad and the Clara-Swansea mining interests in Yuma county, Arizona, was announced here Monday with the arrival of representatives of the buyers. The purchase however, was said to have been made last June, and although the fact has not been made public, has been operated by the French interest since that time.

The railway is 22 miles long and runs from the town of Swansea to Bourse, a point on the Santa Fe.

Women Drivers

AIX LA CHAPPELLE.—Women should be forbidden to drive automobiles, because their nervous systems prevent them acting rationally in times of danger, in the opinion of Dr. Alexander Crappell, psychiatrist. The court before which he testified disagreed and sentenced a business woman to a year in jail for killing two persons with her car.

SEEKS TO SET UP NEW GOVERNMENT

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 1 (AP)—Dr. Juan Sacasa, former Nicaraguan vice president, is en route to Puerto Cabezas to establish a liberal government in opposition to the present conservative government of Adolfo Diaz, and it is expected that he will be recognized by Mexico. American Charge d'Affaires Lawrence Dennis said today.

Dr. Sacasa, accompanied by former Minister of Public Instructions Leonardo Aguillo, and Rodolfo Espinosa, left Puerto Barrios, Guatemala November 27 on the schooner H. S. Albert and should arrive on the east coast of Nicaragua today.

Government officials here say that American intervention is the only solution of the fighting in Nicaragua. They assert that if Mexico should recognize Dr. Sacasa, this would be a direct challenge to the United States which has recognized the Diaz regime.

ONTARIO VOTES TODAY

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 1 (AP)—Ontario will go to the polls today nominally to elect the seventeenth provincial legislature, but particularly to decide whether wartime prohibition shall remain on the statute books or be superseded by a measure providing for sale of liquor under government control.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (AP)—Fire which started in the Flosay Dental Manufacturing company in Evanston today burned through the block along Benson avenue between Emerson street and University avenue and caused a loss estimated at $600,000.

Roosevelt Memorial Stadium Is Proposed

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 1 (AP)—Erection in Washington of a stadium as a memorial to Theodore Roosevelt is proposed in a bill being drafted by representative Fish, republican, New York.

Other memorials have been suggested but in the opinion of Mr. Fish, none would be more appropriate to the character and sportsmanship of the former president than an athletic stadium.
