FDR's Mileage Will Top 100,000 Mark

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 27—President Roosevelt will push his four year travel mileage well beyond the 100,000 mark during a fishing trip in the Gulf of Mexico, on which he departs late tonight.

He will go first by train to New Orleans, where on Thursday afternoon he will embark for a week or more of tarpon fishing off the Texas coast. The entire journey will cover more than 3,000 miles.

In Close Touch

He will keep in close touch with the capital by wireless. Two fast navy seaplanes, based at Galveston, Tex., will take mail to and from the U. S. S. Potomac, which the president will use as his sea home.

Four naval vessels with combined crews of 417 officers and men will be in the fishing flotilla.

The new 1,800-ton destroyer Moffett will take the president from New Orleans to a rendezvous with the Potomac. The Moffett and the older destroyer Decatur will act as escorts in the gulf, while the destroyer Schenck, based on the coast, will maintain wireless contact.

Break Train Trip

A motor trip from Biloxi to Gulfport, Miss., will break the train trip Thursday morning. The president will visit the old home of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy, en route to Gulfport.

The president will be making his first visit to Louisiana since he took office and will tarry only an hour or two at New Orleans.

He will visit the Bonnet Carre spillway, about 25 miles north of New Orleans and possibly will view the Roosevelt Mall, part of a Works Progress parkway in the city.

Stop At Fort Worth

En route home, he will stop for a day at the Fort Worth, Tex., home of his son Elliott, who will be in the fishing party.

Temporary White House headquarters, with Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre in charge, will be established at New Orleans until Friday night and then will be transferred to Galveston.

Means To End Occupation Of His Yard Sought By Man

LONGMONT, Colo., April 27 (AP)—Guy Johnson, target of a sitdown strike maneuver by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Genevieve Johnson, planned today to seek legal advice on a means of ending her occupation of his front yard.

Mrs. Johnson continued today to camp on the Guy Johnson doorstep, almost literally.

Moreover, she maintains she'll continue to do so until her husband, Ralph, agrees to a separation and until Ralph's father assures her separate maintenance funds. Ralph Johnson is out of work temporarily.

Action To Aid Farm Groups Being Urged

Amendment Would Have Given Counties And Cities Power To Require Examinations

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, April 27—The house today killed, 89 to 36, a proposed constitutional amendment which would have permitted counties and home rule cities to place their appointive employes under civil service.

Opponents contended county and city employes were more responsible to the people if chosen by elected officers.

The house adopted a resolution memorializing congress to pass pending bills to help tenant farmers and share croppers become home owners.

Deplorable Situation

The resolution recited that "a deplorable situation exists in our country, especially in the south, relative to the tenant farmer" and that "the number of farms operated by tenants has increased from 25 per cent in 1880 to 42 per cent in 1935."

PAY IS BOOSTED

AUSTIN, April 27 (AP)—The house passed to the senate today a proposed constitutional amendment increasing pay of members of the legislature to $5,000 a year and making them subject to call at all times. The vote was 104 to 35.

The lawmakers now are paid $10 a day when they are in session. They meet in regular session for 120 days and usually are convened in special session from 60 to 120 days each biennium.

The house killed, 88 to 33, a proposed constitutional amendment to provide for a unicameral legislature.

Action was taken after less than an hour of discussion. Sponsors contended the one-house system was working well in Nebraska, the only state now using it, while opponents maintained the federal government and states had been progressing satisfactorily under the checks and balances provided by two houses.

The lower chamber set for consideration Thursday night bills to bid $250,000 for the cotton research laboratory which the federal government proposes to establish in the south and to license architects.

Leaders Claim Figures Will Top Budget

Changes In Entire Spending Policy Claimed Necessary To Halt Big Outlay

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 27—Two prominent members of congress predicted today the government's deficit for 1938 would be more than the $418,000,000 mentioned by President Roosevelt.

Rep. Bertrand Snell of New York, the house Republican leader, declared there was a strong possibility the government would go "in the red" about two billion dollars unless the administration changes its entire spending policy.

Greater Expenditures

Senator Harry F. Byrd (D-Va), chairman of a committee studying government reorganization, said next year's deficit would approach $500,000,000 with expenditures $102,000,000 greater than this year.

His figures, he said, were based on the president's message of last week.

Snell said the president's estimate does not take into account the extra expenditures congress always approves.

"How many of these extra appropriations has he vetoed?" asked the New Yorker.

Wants Definite Statement

He said he wanted to see a definite statement from the president before he would believe legislation for farm tenancy aids, housing and crop insurance had been abandoned.

Speaker Bankhead said he believed the measures mentioned would not be enacted, although he personally hoped for passage of tenancy aids.

Bankhead added the administration's economy drive would put the house in a position to clear its calendar within a "few weeks."

He said President Roosevelt's court

HUGE DEFICIT FORECAST

Bilbao Totters As Defenders Retreat Before Deadly Fire

(By The Associated Press)

Bilbao tottered today before an advancing insurgent army that crushed its outer defenses and plunged its defenders into a disastrous retreat.

Gen. Emilio Mola's northern army occupied Eibar, an important munitions center about 20 miles southeast of Bilbao, and found flames throughout the evacuated city. Insurgents said communists and anarchists set dynamite blasts before abandoning the stronghold Sunday night. The Basques said insurgent planes fired Eibar.

Mutiny Is Hinted

Mutiny in the Basque ranks was hinted as the insurgents surged on Durango, gateway city to Bilbao, hoping to take it and reach the 16 miles of improved highway to the Basque capital.

Hundreds of civilians were killed at Guernica, former capital of the Basque county, and the city was left in blazing ruins after a fierce insurgent bombardment. Bombing planes soared over the city in waves, dropping heavy explosives and scattering hand grenades. Swooping machine-gunners strafed hundreds of inhabitants who fled into open fields.

Madrid Is Pounded

Fatalities in Madrid mounted to at least 270, with hundreds of others injured, as insurgent artillery batteries pounded the city for the 16th consecutive day. At daybreak a government aerial armada bombed the insurgent siege lines in retaliation but did not silence their heavy guns.

Two insurgent cruisers rained 30 shells into Valencia, temporary seat of the government on the Mediterranean coast. At least three women were killed, many other civilians injured and extensive damage inflicted on the city's industrial section.

Cooperation Studied

A sub-committee of the neutrality group in London studied whether to seek cooperation of non-European powers, including the United States, in the 27-nation patrol of Spain.

The Valencia government charged neutral patrol ships, particularly Germany's, stopped Spanish ships and came within 10 miles of the coast, both alleged violations of the patrol regulations. It declared an airplane catapulted from a German war vessel reconnoitered before an insurgent attempt to bombard the government-held seaboard.

Lovely Janice Jarratt Leaves Public Puzzling About Plans

JANICE JARRATT

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANTONIO, April 27 — The marriage of Melvin Purvis, the former G-man who trapped John Dillinger, and Miss Janice Jarratt, America's most photographed girl, originally set for Thursday night, was without a date today.

Tersely, and in clipped sentences, A. J. Rummel, Miss Jarratt's brother-in-law, said last night the season's top social event had been "indefinitely postponed."

Leaves For Ranch

Miss Jarratt left the city in her automobile with two girl friends, reportedly headed for a ranch near Victoria, Texas.

The Denver hotel in Victoria reported that she stopped there briefly with friends about 1 a. m. and left. Efforts to locate her at two nearby ranches were unsuccessful. Purvis, who flew here from San Francisco a week ago, was still registered at a hotel here, but did

Great Strides Made In Oil Promotion

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, April 27. — Eighty per cent of the land surface area of Texas is being actively developed for oil and gas, Tucker Royall, chairman of the board of the First National bank of Dallas, told the East Texas Chamber of Commerce convention today.

He said there is a mistaken idea that the problems of the Texas oil industry are matters of concern only to those engaged in the oil business and related enterprises, and only to those sections immediately near oil production. No section of the state fails to benefit from oil, Royall said.

Large Area Developed

"That the oil industry of Texas benefits practically the entire population of the state is evident from the fact that more than eighty per cent of its entire land surface area is being actively developed for oil and gas," Royall said.

"Thus, while 127 counties of the state's 254 are now productive of oil and gas, nearly every county in Texas shares in the distribution of money paid to landowners in the form of lease rentals and bonuses." An oil development map of Texas, illustrating the widespread activities of the state's oil industry, was distributed among the delegates attending the convention.

Spent Within State

Royall said that the income of the Texas oil industry is not taken outside the state as many people believe, but is actually spent within the state.

"The attitude of the public toward the oil industry," he said, "has not kept pace with progress. Few Texans appreciate the magnitude of the petroleum industry and its vital bearing on the general welfare of our state. Fewer still appreciate the changes brought about by our conservation laws which no longer make it possible to recover oil investments almost over night."

Ellis Parker Trial Opens

(By The Associated Press)

NEWARK, N. J., April 27—The Wendel-Parker sequel to the five-year-old Lindbergh kidnaping shifted to a federal court room today as the government moved the trial of Ellis H. Parker, 64-year-old country detective, and four other men on conspiracy charges under the so-called "Lindbergh law."

A brief sensation a year ago this month, Paul H. Wendel's "confession" he kidnaped baby Charles A. Lindbergh, jr., saved Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair for three days. But the "confession" was quickly repudiated. Wendel was absolved of connection with the crime and Hauptmann died April 3, 1936.

Abduction Charged

The government charged Wendel was abducted and tortured into making the "confession" to enhance Parker's reputation as a detective and to enable him and the others to profit through sale to magazines of the "true solution" of the celebrated Lindbergh case.

Jointly accused with the Burlington county detective chief were his son, Ellis, jr., and Martin Schlossman, Harry Weiss and Murray Bleefeld of Brooklyn. Schlossman and Weiss were convicted recently in a Kings county, N. Y. (Brooklyn) court of kidnaping Wendel and were sentenced to from 20 years to life in prison. Bleefeld pleaded guilty but has not yet been sentenced.

Windsor Asks For Damages

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, April 27—The Duke of Windsor today filed an action for alleged libel damages and an injunction against the author and publishers of "Coronation Commentary," a best seller dealing with his reign and abdication as Edward VIII.

The writ was filed through the duke's London solicitors, despite the fact that both author and publisher had proffered an apology and the publisher had announced the book was being withdrawn.

Proceeds With Suit

On advice of counsel, it was learned, the duke decided to proceed with his threatened suit for damages and for an injunction against further publication.

The action is directed against Geoffrey Dennis, author, and William Heinemann, publisher. The book purported among other things to describe Edward's "muddling, fuddling and meddling" while king.

Boost In Cash For U. S. Army Asked

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 27—The house appropriations committee, recommending $416,413,382 for the army next year, said today larger sums would be needed hereafter to relieve an "extremely disturbing" military situation.

The amount approved by the committee for the fiscal 12 months beginning July 1 was $25,037,598 more than was available for the current year, but was $358,079 less than the budget estimate.

Need More In Future

"Unless there is to be an appreciably larger allocation to the military arm in future budgets," the committee said, in submitting its recommendation, "our defense preparation very largely will consist of manpower, unequipped and unimplemented and virtually unprepared to offer resistance to any force equipped with modern offensive weapons."

The bill made no provision for non-military projects such as river and harbor improvements, usually handled by the army engineers. Officials said these would be carried in a separate appropriation measure, the size of which was not indicated.

Future Needs Discussed

Discussing future needs, the committee said there was a shortage of tanks, armored cars, semi-auto-

States Answer FDR's Appeal

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 27.—Millions of acres of farm land, unprotected today against the ravages of wind and water erosion, will become subject to voluntary soil conservation practices within the next year by virtue of recently enacted state legislation.

At least 11 states have passed enabling legislation in response to President Roosevelt's appeal to governors two months ago for soil conservation laws to bulwark the federal fight against dust storms and floods.

Virtually all of the laws provided for the organization of conservation districts, aided by federal funds.

Practices Planned

Conservation practices included: terracing of sloping fields to prevent rapid water run-off, construction of check dams to halt the rush of small streams, planting of trees and increasing acreage of grass land.

Other states which have enacted laws included: Delaware, which in 1936 had 433,386 acres under the federal conservation program; Georgia, Arkansas, Vermont, Oklahoma, Maryland, Montana, Washington and North Dakota.

The bill passed by the Texas house orders diversion of 10 cents on $100 valuation of state and valorem tax, and a $75,000 appropriation to provide the state's share of financing.

Workmen Dig Into Debris

Workmen with hammers and trowels this morning dug into Monday night's mystery—an unexplained wrecking of 60 feet of a 75-foot frontage of three buildings in 1100-block College avenue.

Bricks, mortar, steel, and concrete cascaded to the sidewalk in front of Vogue Cleaners, John Wallace Men's wear, Tech Shoe shop, and College cafe. Dropping with the debris was an uncataloged assortment of awning material, glass, signs, and other materials.

None Is Injured

Deemed almost miraculous, none was injured, despite the fact at least one person, a student of Texas Technological college, barely cleared the danger zone before tons of material fell with a rumble.

Firemen and ambulances went to the place directly after 11:20 o'clock.

G. O. Hubbert of 1005 College avenue, a student at Tech, said he had just walked into the cafe. Seven others were there.

"There was a rending noise and the falling of masonry and wooden awning," he said, "followed, I'd say, approximately 25 seconds later by a greater noise, as the ends of the loosened frontage wall followed the broken center section."

Family Row Appears Headed For Violence Until Judge Clamps Down With Warning

It started out a case in 99th district court, as a cause involving custody of a five-year-old girl and ended with adoption of unusual procedure.

The plaintiff, a woman, might have been assaulted in the courtroom after Judge E. L. Pitts had ruled in her favor, had it not been for the judge's adjuration he would clap a sister of the defendant, plaintiff's husband, in jail for contempt.

Service on an instrument citing the husband he had been named by the wife in divorce action was executed only Friday, hence the divorce hearing did not result. Thirty days period is required from date of filing to that of hearing. It was found he, formerly of Lubbock county, had gone to Crosby and, later, to Floyd county. Successive citation notices were required.

The two had been married seven years. He was 21, she 15 years old. Three children are living. The husband was set out as having taken the oldest child, leaving the wife with two younger children.

Thousands Are Driven From Their Homes

Five Persons Reported To Be Missing In Virginia; Five States Are Hardest Hit

(By The Associated Press)

Swollen by exceptionally heavy spring rains, rivers spilled over their banks onto low-lying cities and farmlands in five states and the province of Ontario, Canada, today.

Ten deaths were attributed, directly and indirectly, to the high waters. Five persons were missing in Virginia.

Driven From Homes

Thousands were driven from their homes. Turgid water lapped at the doors of business houses and crept into residential cellars.

But, barring further heavy downpours, prospects were for only light damage in contrast to the catastrophic floods of 1936 and January of this year.

Affected were areas in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia and Maryland. At least five communities in Ontario, including the city of London, felt the pressure of rain-burdened rivers.

Along the temperamental Ohio, lowland residents evacuated dwellings in East Liverpool, O.

In "Golden Triangle"

Water crept into the "golden triangle," Pittsburgh's billion-dollar business district at the junction of the Allegheny and Monogahela, and inched stubbornly toward an expected crest of 36 feet, eleven feet above flood stage.

Weather bureau officials said that unless further heavy rains occurred the danger was over. A drizzle was falling over a part of the vast watershed, reaching 150 miles from Johnstown, Pa., to Wheeling, W. Va.

Suburbs of Pittsburgh were hard hit. Residents of the north side, Freeport, Sharpburg and other nearby communities left their homes in boats and hip-boots the third time within a year.

Merchants Are Busy

Merchants in the billion-dollar "golden triangle" business area worked most of the night throwing up sand bags in front of windows; pumping out their cellars and hanging flood gates.

More than 3,000 persons were forced to leave their homes on the TULSA, April 27 (AP)—Education for the task of modern living was held up as a goal of thought and action for the General Federation of Women's clubs.

"There seems to be," said Mrs. Roberta Campbell Lawson, national president, in an address prepared for delivery to the yearly council meeting, "an ever-increasing need for education in living.

"It is a need for the sort of education that will direct our living into the realm of calm and quiet self-alalyzation of our personal fitness in community life and a check-up on the influence we radiate to those about us, especially the youth of the land."

The national president used that theme to direct the delegates' attention to a resolution taking a stand on President Roosevelt's plan for reorganization of the federal judiciary. She made it clear she did not seek to influence them on either side of the matter.

"'Education for living' would be a sham without real knowledge of the framework of our government," she said, "and the president's recommendation for reorganization of the supreme court has sharpened the wits of the people and brought our lethargic minds into activity."

San Angelo Girl Weds Student

The marriage of Miss Moy Cocreham, freshman student at Texas Technological college during the winter semester, and Maurice (Cotton) Wiginton, sophomore student from Stratford, which took place at the home of the officiating minister, Dr. Jack M. Lewis, 1310 Avenue N, Monday night came as a surprise to their college friends. Miss Cocreham had spent the week-end here.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Cocreham of San Angelo and was a pledge to the D. F. D. club.

Mr. Wiginton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Wiginton, is a member of the College club and played college basketball this spring. He is employed at the Varsity book store.

Delegations Of Other Towns At Legion Meeting Here

Food and light entertainment divided time with a discussion of chemical warfare methods at a regular meeting of the American Legion post at Legion hall here Monday night. Delegations were present from Spur, Snyder and Plainview.

Elton Plowman, guitar artist and singer, Tom Briggs and his "Lampford Product Boys," "Highpockets" Overton and his "fiddle band" from Tech furnished music and songs for the meeting.

Dr. R. C. Goodwin, head professor of chemistry at Texas Technological college, spoke on "Chemistry and Warfare."

"Stories of predictions that New York city can be destroyed by airplanes dropping gas bombs are without foundation and are fallacies," Dr. Goodwin said.

"The Present Economic Situation in Europe" was presented by T. C. Root, associate professor of economics at Tech.

Final plans were laid for the Legion dance to be held Thursday night in the Auditorium. Proceeds from the dance are to buy colors for the R.O.T.C. units at Texas Tech.

Leadership Contests Are To Be Conducted In City

Leadership contests will be held here when chapters from 61 schools gather at Texas Technological college May 8 for their Future Farmers of America convention, according to announcement Monday of O. T. Ryan, area supervisor.

Winners in the 10 districts of the area will come here for contests in public speaking, debate, one-act play, extemporaneous speech, chapter conducting and news writing. Approximately 200 students will compete.

In addition to the contestants, two delegates from each chapter and all vocational agriculture teachers of the area are to come here for the convention, at which they will discuss business, make recommendations for the state convention, and elect officers. Dillard Scott of Plainview now is president.

Ryan and Ray L. Chappelle, head professor of agricultural education at Tech, are directing plans for the events.

Winners in the area contests will go to state FFA contests in Huntsville June 28-29.

Gly-Cas Restores Her Pep, Energy

For 15 Years Indigestion, Kidney Trouble Had Made Her Miserable; Gly-Cas Wasted No Time In Giving New Health; Now Feeling Fine Again

"It is a pleasure to tell others of a medicine whose merit is as commendable as Gly-Cas," said Mrs. Charles Carson, R. R. No. 3, Wichita Falls, Texas. "For 15 years I had been suffering with constipation and indigestion until my entire system had become clogged with poisons. My kidneys were disordered too, felt sluggish all the time and simply had no pep whatever. Night risings greatly disturbed my rest and I was weak and nervous. Gas would form in my stomach after eating and at times breathing would become most difficult. Every day I did my housework—but forced myself to it when I should have been in bed. The least exertion would exhaust me and you can imagine the miserable years I endured until I began Gly-Cas."

MRS. CHARLES CARSON

"Why as yet I have only completed half the treatment of this new remedy and already I am feeling fine," she continued. "My stomach and bowels are again normal, eat and enjoy my foods without any ill effects afterwards. My strength has been gaining rapidly, my former pep and energy is fast returning and I am a new person in every way. Even my kidneys have been regulated until I get my sleep and rest and enjoy life as otherwise now. Suffering people should realize Gly-Cas outstanding merit and profit by it."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug, 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

Annual April Grid Party Will Be Staged At Tech; Muckers Promise Tough Competition

Move over for football!
That's the command of the king collegiate sports to regular spring athletic activity as Texas Tech prepares to stage its annual April grid-on party. The date is Friday, April 30, and the time is 8 p. m.

Red Raiders of Tech clash with Muckers of Texas College of Mines, branch of the University of Texas, located at El Paso.

The game, a regulation affair under the Tech lights, will climax spring training for these Border conference schools and give fans an insight regarding potentialities for the autumn campaign.

Muckers "Coming Back"

Coach Mack Saxon, an unhappy man where football was concerned the past few years, is coming back with what is considered the best Mucker team of the decade. An influx of new junior college and freshman talent last year laid the foundation for a team that did very well considering everything last fall. The same boys are back, have been working hard, promise a good team next September and warn the Red Raiders that they'd better not do too much "experimenting" Friday night if they wish to win their first game of 1937.

A quarterback by the name of Kenneth Heineman, husky, lusty triple threater said to be the equal of Sammy Baugh and Jim Neill as forward passers who shoulders most of the running and punting duties, features the Miner attack.

Coach Saxon has two complete teams, one made up altogether of varsity regulars from last season, the other consisting of sophomores and transfers, many of whom played last year.

Fans Hopeful Here

As for Texas Tech, opinion is divided—with coaches on one side, observing fans on the other. The coaches, as usual, are pessimistic, particularly so is Head Coach Pete Cawthon regarding his backs. He loses the 1936 regular backfield, and is rebuilding. "Green but willing," is Cawthon's statement. He enlarges the latter qualification by admitting that "these boys seem to WANT to play football more than any we've had in years. Their attitude and their spirit is fine. If they can just play football, we'll do all right. But that's a mighty big if."

Line Coach Dutchy Smith is not so unhappy. Many of his linemen are veterans, including the ends, Captain-Elect Red Ramsey and L. W. West, both of whom seem recovered from 1936 injuries sufficiently to take over the jobs, at least by next fall.

Jesse Browning, senior tackle regular last year, and Line Captain Louis Jones are available, and running with the first team at present. Abe Murphy, the Beaumont redhead giant and only sophomore to win a varsity letter last year, is the other tackle on the No. 1 string just now, with Frank Guzick of Sherman, letter man in 1935 but out with injuries last season most of the time holding down the center job. Pete Owens of Littlefield is a veteran regular guard, thus giving Smith an entire line of lettermen. Until J. W. West completely recovers, a boy from last year's freshman crew, Thurman Bostick of Millersview, is leading the pack for the right end position.

Ex-Westerners Look Good

Running with this line is a backfield containing only one letter man, Quarterback Ed Smith of Del Rio, the scholastic champion of the club. Alan Plummer, heavyweight sophomore fullback understudy of last year, is running at right half with Charlie Calhoun, former Lubbock High mainspring at the other halfback and ball carrying slot. Calhoun looks like a real comer in spring training.

Handy Elmer Tarbox, all-round athlete from Higgins, so far looks better at fullback. George Winters, regular fullback last season, is being trained for a quarterback position, but has been unable to do much work this spring due to an old leg injury. He would afford another backfield letterman if able to do full time duty.

Giving Plummer and the other halfbacks a race for a backfield berth is a former popular Lubbock High ace, Rufus Ryan, who has looked exceptionally good, in everything but size, this spring. He is due to see considerable service in the Friday night game, and next fall.

Four Other Lettermen

Seven freshmen of the 1936 season and four varsity lettermen holdovers are running in a second string combination that at the moment compares favorably with any team of "shock troops" seen in recent years.

The coming sophomores are Ryan, left halfback, Bill Davis of Grapevine, heavyweight tackle; Hold Waldrep of Slaton and Dixie White of Lubbock, guards, and Rex Williams of Sherman, center. Two lettermen ends are George Philbrick of Dallas and Jim Brown of Kerrville, the latter a reformed guard. Babe Curfman, who lettered at end, is calling signals from the quarterback position. Charlie Barnard of Tulsa, Indian star who was injured last season, and Fred Byrd, speedy halfback from Oklahoma out last season with injuries, complete the backfield. Byrd running at fullback, Barnard at right half.

TICKETS ON SALE

Tickets for the second annual Texas Tech fiesta and football game went on sale yesterday at the Hotel Lubbock cigar counter. The price for reserved seats is $1 each. Only one section will be reserved for paying customers, the 750-seat section S, on the east side of the field. General admission tickets also are $1 each.

High school students other than seniors, who will be admitted free, will be charged 25 cents, general admission.

IT'S A TREE CAPITAL, TOO

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's capital city has 121,625 trees on its streets. It's the largest tree city in the world. Average spacing is 52 feet. If planted in one row they would extend 1,200 miles. Spraying them once each year takes two to three months and requires 20 tons of arsenate of lead.

HOW DO OUR LOCAL wrasslers look in the movies? Very few of them could pass screen tests for Don Juan parts, but a lot of 'em should make good villains.

Two of the more villainous types may be seen on the silver screen tonight in a drammer, "When Sailors Meet," or "What Happens When One Wrestler Runs Another's Head Into the Rope Corners."

We have often wondered how a motion picture of a local mat match would look, so we'll be one of the free customers at Sled Allen's hall tonight for Bill McMillan's release of the January Watkins-Moran tiff.

From a perch suspended over the ring, Cameraman McMillan shot most of the proceedings during that eventful battle of the sailors, wherein Sailor Tex Watkins slips the kibosh to Sailor Jack Moran, thus ending the latter gob's reign of terror over the circuit.

It's doubling up the wrestling show business this week, Wednesday night being the usual date for the merry mixups. But tonight's show is free to the public, and you may go back and re-live the sailormen's scrap, or see it for the first time if you were not one of the 2,200 who packed the house that night.

There'll be other scenes on McMillan's screen tonight, including shots of the Tech-Loyola game at Los Angeles last fall. This picture is in color and quite good—except the final score.

DOTS AND DASHES . . . SHORT, SHORT STORIES

Ross Ayers, Texas Tech grid captain and star guard in '32, is a candidate for the Vernon High school head coaching job, recently vacated by W. C. Heinie Weir who goes to Schreiner Institute. . . . Ross, who has done well on the Lubbock High staff for three years, would make Vernon a good coach. . . . And here's a hope he gets it. . . . That would be a pretty fair Texas Tech combination at Vernon, with Will Gilmore helping with football and coaching basketball. . . . Incidentally, Will gave Vernon one of its best cage teams in history last year—and all 13 of his squadmen return next season! . . . Nine of that number have two more years, and Willy is already finding a place in the trophy case for the state cage title two years hence. . . .

Swell bunch of fellows—and ball players—that Amherst baseball club, and due to win some games . . . if they'll wise up and give Mr. Lefty Gaut Hambright the pink slip. . . . He's about washed up around here, what with his superior airs, his beefing and bellyaching and his profanity on the field. . . . Lubbock wants no more of him. . . . And Amherst would be much better off without him. . . .

In Catcher Bennett, Amherst has the best backstopper of the South Plains district. . . . He was the best last year, and he started off Sunday where he left off last summer. . . . Probably the most valuable man on the club, Bennett is, for, besides playing his position almost faultlessly, he's the toughest to get out when he's batting. . . . The outfield is good, the infield as nifty as you'd want. . . . The two errors the club made here Sunday didn't cost a thing, so far as losing the game was concerned . . . but as it generally goes, the two top players on the club made the bobbles. . . . Daddy Gee, who is a spring chicken no longer, who is, in fact, one of the most feared hitters and base runners in the territory, dropped an infield fly, but nobody was hurt. . . . A beautifully quick throw that was a mite too high, made by Bennett to Weaver at third, let in a Lubbock run, but the game had already been won, as it turned out. . . . With another pitcher or two, and without Hambright, the Amherst club can be very popular this season. . . .

Lubbock High school boxers are going on the warpath. . . . Coach Ross Ayers plans to take a team to the McLean tournament Friday night. . . . Babe Ritchie is to fight in the A.A.U. tournament at Amarillo . . . the Westerners are dated up for a team match against Amarillo High there on May 5, and the Sandies return the bouts here May 14. . . .

Haven't heard any more about the American Legion-sponsored amateur boxing team that Milt Coffey wishes to promote. . . . It might go over, amateur boxing we mean, in inter-city team matches. . . . There's a rumor about that another stab at professional boxing may be made soon. . . . This time with Lubbock a one town in a circuit. . . . Maybe more news later. . . .

Another amateur sports "source" is about to be established by the ladies, who have shown a desire to organize a softball league. . . . A story says that coeds of Texas Tech are warming up for a league campaign. . . . Local business men are toying with the idea of organizing a town team. . . . Morris Levine says his team is ready, and thereby challenges any girls softball club in town, or out of town. . . . Too bad they weren't ready when the Hollywood softball gals were touring this end of the state. . . . Girls softball, maybe; boys or men's softball, on an "amateur" footing. No! Not for this department, who got more than a stomach full last year. . . .

Long-Driving Cup Star Is Field Pacer

BY WILLIAM T. RIVES

TEXARKANA, April 27 (AP)—The field forgot about the champion today and took out after Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, long-driving Curtis cup star and medalist, as Texas' state women's golf tournament reached the match play stage.

But the school girl champion, 17-year-old blonde Betty Jameson, who was worried almost as much by the approaching necessity of writing a 15-page term theme in physiology as that of disposing of Mrs. Goldthwaite's challenge, was unruffled.

Conquers High Wind

Mrs. Goldthwaite conquered high wind and an unpleasant thin blanket of dust, to finish the qualifying round over the country club course yesterday with an 81, four strokes better than Miss Jameson's 85. Neither was expected to encounter insuperable difficulty today although Mrs. Goldthwaite met a dangerous opponent in Miss Betty Edwards, Brook Hollow country club mainstay from Dallas.

The title-holder teed off with Mrs. Frank McNally of Longview.

The treacherous rolling greens and tree-lined fairways teamed with the elements to make miserably futile all efforts to approach within hailing distance of par.

Toughest Of Them All

"It's the toughest course I have ever played," mourned Mrs. Goldthwaite, who practically has played them all, from America to Scotland. "If you miss a shot or get in trouble, look out. I hope I miss all mine in the fairway," she said.

Tying with the two leaders in interest was vivacious Jo Henson, 17-year-old Paris schoolgirl, who admitted that in her first major tournament "I was so nervous some of the time I could hardly hold a club." She fashioned an 87, thanks to a fine 40 on the back side after overcoming the jitters. Miss Henson faces a hard campaigner in Miss Kathryn Pearson of Houston.

Other Leading Contenders

Other leaders were: Mrs. F. E. Pearr, Texarkana, and Mrs. H. A. Peterson, Dallas municipal players who carded 86; Mrs. Ralph Randolph, Dallas, 87 and Mrs. E. H. Wehlfahrt, Dallas, 91. They met respectively Mrs. R. P. Dodge, Port Arthur, Mrs. J. R. Morriss, Texarkana, Mrs. George Thompson, jr., Fort Worth, and Miss Anna Bland Thompson, Fort Worth.

Mrs. John Parnell, Dallas, state municipal queen who qualified with a 93, met Mrs. Jake Hamon, another Dallasite.

The Houston country club was awarded the next tournament and Mrs. Syd Hurst, Dallas, the only one of highly-regarded candidates who failed to qualify, was re-elected president of the state association at a meeting yesterday afternoon.

Close Games Result In Texas Circuit

(By The Associated Press)

Texas league games yesterday made up in quality what they lacked in quantity with not more than two runs separating the teams in any of the three contests played. For the second straight day pitching was the big noise.

The Beaumont Exporters, leading the league, were idle along with Houston. Oklahoma City went from fourth place to second with a 3-1 victory over the Fort Worth Cats, the loss, incidentally, dropping the Panthers to a tie for third.

Continue Their Streak

The Dallas Steers continued their winning streak by nosing out the Tulsa Oilers 2-1. It was Dallas' third straight victory, and all of them have been scored over the Oilers.

San Antonio defeated Galveston 5-3 in the other game played.

Buxton of Oklahoma City and Lee Blanc of Fort Worth hooked up in a pitcher's duel with each allowing but seven hits. Paul Easterling led the Indian offensive with three hits, one a homer. He batted in two runs, enough to give his team victory.

Al Baker limited Tulsa to four hits as Dallas scored twice in the sixth to win.

San Antonio made it two in a row over the hapless Pirates with Ewald Pyle besting Eddie Cole in a mound duel.

Derby Queen

ELLEN BENTLEY, Louisville railroad employe, will reign over the revelries, May 2-8, in connection with the 63rd running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs — enthroned with "King," Orris S. Reynolds, jr., at the Carnival night parade, Derby eve ball and other events.

Weber Returns To Mat Wars

In considerably better fettle and more determined to show his real power, Vic Weber of New York comes back to the Auditorium Wednesday night for his second spasm of wrestling since returning from a long siege in other locales.

Weber, who found the sudden change in altitude and climate most unfavorable for such a match as he figured in last Wednesday night, meets Gorilla Pogi, hard-working ape-man from South America, in the special event. The New Yorker, one of the most popular grapplers in local mat history, has been acclimating himself for the past week, doing a lot of roadwork, playing a lot of golf, exposing his pale skin to the sun and otherwise trying to "get in shape." From a health standpoint, he was in fine fettle before his losing match with Joe Kopecky last Wednesday night, but within thirty minutes of the one hour and ten minute first fall he was fairly tuckered out.

Gorilla Pogi will give Weber considerable trouble, no doubt, tomorrow night, but over the 30-minute route, or less, Weber should be more impressive.

Further supporting this week's main event, which finds Joe Kopecky coming back in for a go with Nick Bozinis, Sled has arranged a preliminary between scientific grapplers, Ace Freeman of New York and George Bennett of Oklahoma City. They should stage a real wrestling match, free from strife and illegal practices.

Kopecky, in great fighting form, and Bozinis, also well trained and acclimated, should get the job done in a rough and tumble main event that will see no quarter given nor asked until the finish.

Champions At The Top In American

BY BILL BONI
Associated Press Sports Writer

Once again in first place in the American league, the Yankees already are a step ahead of their blistering 1936 pace.

As they man-handled their way to victory in the junior circuit's pennant race and the World series last year, the Yanks skipped few team and individual batting honors.

First Triple Play

Now they have achieved one peak they missed in their record-breaking 1936 climb with the major leagues' first triple play of the week-old season.

Credit for setting the three-ply killing in motion goes to Tony Lazzeri, the crafty veteran from San Francisco.

Tough Tony has done a lot of neat jobs for the Yanks, but few neater than that in the eighth inning of yesterday's 7-1 defeat of the Athletics.

With runners on first and second, Chubby Dean drove one of Johnny Broaca's offerings straight at Lazzeri. Tony trapped the ball, then flipped it to Shortstop Frank Crosetti.

Others Are Trapped

Before the A's or the frost-bitten customers knew what was going on, Bob Johnson had been forced at second, Dean was thrown out at first and Wally Moses was tagged by Red Rolfe as he went into third.

Though the weather man washed out all but three games yesterday, those three provided enough excitement to go around. The Boston Bees' 9-5 trimming of the Brooklyn Dodgers was marked by Brooklyn Manager Burleigh Grimes' second consecutive expulsion from the field.

In Boston, Bobby Doerr, 19-year-old Red Sox recruit second baseman from the Pacific coast league, was beaned by Washington right-hander Ed Linke, in the course of Boston's 12-5 slaughtering of the Senators. Doerr went to a hub hospital for x-rays and observation.

THE BOYS at the firehouse know their smoking tobacco. Listen to Ben Burgess (the fellow about to twirl up one of those fragrant P. A. "makin's" cigarettes): "Prince Albert is the cooler-smoking, sweeter-tasting tobacco for grand 'makin's' cigarettes. It draws easy and burns slow and cool."

PRINCE ALBERT'S rich, tasty mellowness is due to choice tobaccos treated under a special "no-bite" process. This insures that Prince Albert will be easy on the tongue. Dutcher's News And Views Of Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

WASHINGTON, April 27—The attempts at play and counter-play on religious groups by opposing forces warring over the administration Supreme court plan have been among the most interesting behind-the-scenes phases of the struggle.

Dutcher

No large religious denomination or group has taken any position for or against the plan. But the contest has been marked from the beginning by:

The effort of anti-Roosevelt forces to persuade members of all creeds that the bill was a threat to religious liberties.

The effort of administration strategists to belittle such persuasion.

Men of various religious beliefs have been caused to testify for and against the plan as part of a conscious program of appeal to church groups.

Backstage, the men who have been running the opposing campaigns have privately congratulated themselves and colleagues on their ability to capitalize or discount the religious angle.

This sort of thing isn't new in politics, but it seems fair to suggest that if religious men had played in politics to the extent politicians have sought to play with religion, there might be a loud howl as the proper place of gentlemen of the cloth.

Answer Right Back

The opposition scored early with testimony against the judiciary plan of Dr. Norman J. Gould Wickey, executive secretary of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran church; and Prof. Theodore Graebner, professor of theology at Concordia college, St. Louis, and editor of the National Journal of the Lutheran church.

But soon administration forces were circulating a statement by Rev. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri Lutheran synod, which has a national membership of 1,000,000. He said: "If, by the appearance of two Lutheran ministers before the judiciary committee in opposition to President Roosevelt's proposal, the impression has been created that the Lutheran church is engaged in political activities, I would like to state emphatically that such is by no means the case . . . . The church's work is spiritual, not political . . . . The court proposal is a political matter."

At a time opponents of the plan were remarking happily that a large section of the Catholic religious press of the country seemed to be against the plan, the other side thought it staged a coup by getting Dean Thomas F. Konop of Notre Dame law school, to testify in favor.

Then the opposition countered with Dean Ignatius M. Wilkinson of Fordham university law school, another Catholic institution, and then with Notre Dame law school's Professor William M. Cain. Finally the New Dealers came back by citing an editorial by Editor Michael Williams of the influential Catholic weekly, The Commonweal. This editorial called the Roosevelt plan "the most common-sensible, direct and helpful method now possible for getting forward with the nation's business expeditiously."

More ecclesiastical persons appear to have been articulate against the President's plan than in favor of it. But most of the major figures in American religious organizations have kept silent. And there is no evidence that efforts to use religion as an issue have had any marked effect.

Shouse Party Canceled

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse—the former remembered as head of the American Liberty league—were going to have a large party. They engaged the concert master and second violinist of the National Symphony orchestra.

The musicians happen to be members of that race whose life has been made miserable in Germany by Adolf Hitler. They heard the German ambassador was to be a guest and canceled the engagement. For that or some other reason, the party was called off.

F. D. R. Leads 1940 Poll

Some time ago this column reported that a national Catholic magazine had shown Roosevelt to be far ahead in its poll of Washington correspondents as to whom they believed would be the Democratic presidential candidate in 1940. Final returns showed 19 correspondents picked Roosevelt as most likely; 13 Gov. George Earle of Pennsylvania; seven Secretary of Agriculture Wallace; five Governor Murphy of Michigan; and three Philippine High Commissioner Paul McNutt. Counting second and third guesses, however, Earle led with 27 mentions, followed by Roosevelt with 25, Wallace 24, McNutt 14, Murphy 13 and John L. Lewis 10.

'Eve's Orchard'

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield and gay, city-loving Denny Carter are on the verge of marriage when they quarrel and he walks out. Eve is left in her 200-year-old Connecticut house with kind old "Uncle" Henry and serious little Judge Featherstone whose parents have deserted him and gone to Hollywood. Her steady, dependable neighbor, George Cleveland, who loves Eve intensely, offers his help, for Eve is stranded financially. She resumes her aunt's baking business. Then comes a shattering letter saying Denny is to marry wealthy Mitzi.

Chapter 34

Eve Collapses

As soon as Eve had carefully torn her letter to Denny into very small pieces and burned them, she went downstairs to the kitchen. Her hands were still numb, but her mind was very clear, and she worked until three the next morning. Then she went to bed. She lay awake and thought it all over and over and over. In between she thought about the wallpaper and tried to plan her work ahead.

She could not eat anything at breakfast, but she talked in a metallic voice to the others as she drank black coffee.

"Mother's letter says they have the grandest pink house, and a police dog," Judge said timidly across the table. "Did she send you the money?"

"I don't know, Judge. I didn't read her letter."

She regarded him, sitting there over his oatmeal. The weeks since his parents went away had given him added health and serenity.

She had paid over all her happiness for the welfare of this child who was nothing to her. Things were odd in this world. She wondered if she would go on liking him when she got so she could feel anything again. Oh, yes, she must read Marylin's letter.

There was little more as regards herself and Denny than "You naughty girl to throw poor Denny over, when we all thought it would be a match!" . . . and then a long delightful description of the circumstances under which they had fallen on their feet this time.

"The darlingest old lady—and a cousin of Sarah James in Buffalo, so she felt she knew all about us—" an old lady, it seemed, who didn't like children, so it was a mercy Eve was such a darling about Judge—and who wanted Peter to do her portrait, and simply loved having them, and was going to take them on a trip to Honolulu when she was out of the hospital; where she'd had to go to after three days. Meanwhile, it seemed, the Featherstones were living with all expenses paid, waited on by a corps of servants in her pink stucco mansion. The old lady collected poets; she was excited because Peter was a painter. There was not a word about paying Eve.

"Well, after all, why should they?" she thought with a new cynicism. "They've been supported by experts! Probably they feel they did wonders in signing a paper saying they'd pay board."

To Keep From Thinking

But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered. Nothing but finding enough hard physical work to do to halfway keep from thinking. Denny and Mitzi — Mitzi and Denny. Denny had laughed at Mitzi for being so old. He had made fun of her affections and pretenses. . . . And he was marrying Mitzi. Oh, it couldn't be Denny, gay passionate loving Denny! "God, let it not be true," she whispered. But it went on being true.

When the day's routine of baking was done and labeled for delivery, Eve went feverishly to the attic. The afternoon sun pouring down made it an oven but she was glad, it had seemed to her she would never be warm again. She piled and unpiled trunks and boxes aimlessly. Halfway through she stopped and tried to recall what she was looking for. Of course. A spinning wheel. Somebody wanted to buy one. Emily had said at the post office yesterday, hadn't she? Great-grandmother Denton's spinning wheel.

She carried it down in her arms when she found it. She caught a glimpse of herself in the lone mirror at the head of the stairs. Streaked, crimson-flushed, drenched with perspiration, she looked like a caricature of herself. She walked on out of the house without knowing she carried the heavy wheel still, straight through the lawn and to the orchard path. She did not know where she was going. Something in her subconscious, she supposed afterward, had some idea of selling the wheel to Mrs. Cleveland.

It was George who faced her, as she staggered mounting the stile between the orchards.

"Eve, Eve, what's the matter?"

His arms were strong, and she let go the wheel. She mustn't tell him that her Denny was that kind of man.

"Marylin is going to Honolulu," she said wildly, and sank against him, strengthless.

"Enough to make anybody sick," Uncle Henry was saying angrily when she opened her eyes on the front-parlor sofa. "Worked most of the night and then started cleaning the attic this weather."

George held a glass to her mouth and said quietly, "Drink this, Eve."

She drank it and said again weakly, "She didn't send the money and she's going to Honolulu—"

"Don't, Eve, you break my heart!" George said harshly.

Uncle Henry said: "Nonsense, child, we're more than making our living. She's all shaken up. You lie right there!" he added sternly.

Judge, in the background, clasped a pitcher of water in the hope she might have use for it. They surrounded her with their loving anxiety and anger. Through all her misery a little comfort sifted because of George's kind arm lifting her shoulders, and Uncle Henry's affectionate scolding and Judge's devoted eyes.

Bread-And-Butter Of Life

They made her rest all that day and the next. One of the three stood guard over her most of the time; Adriano waited on her hand and foot; George's housekeeper, Mattie, hovered about with all possible comforts. George came in the next day with his mother's check for $150 for the lacquer cabinet, and she heard Adriano and George taking it away.

"I'm using it, for the present, for my own papers!" he said matter-of-factly. "Mother's in Southampton for some time to come."

She'd know about Denny and Mitzi then . . . Of course. Everyone would. She hoped George would not talk about it to her just now.

He never did, whatever he heard or knew. Ellen came out over the weekend, full of the failures and successes of her stock company near Sharon, gay and friendly with George, indignant about Marylin, the same stable decisive Ellen. She said nothing more to Eve about George. And Eve could not bring herself, even to Ellen, to tell about Denny. Ellen would know, soon enough.

Somehow as the summer passed, Eve was well and put herself to work once more. The appleblossoms fell and the little apples began to come; and the flowers along the lawn changed with the seasons, larger and brighter for July.

There would never be any Denny again. She must get used to that. She must go on with a life that had nothing in it. Get on with the plain bread-and-butter of life — earning her living, being kind to the old man and little boy, making friends and doing her work.

George asks Eve to a tennis and swimming party, tomorrow.

Asphalt is not a modern building material. It was used in ancient Babylon.

ANOTHER SLAP AT THE FARMER

"Just blame it on the farmer, let it go at that, and who'll know the difference."

That just about sums up the attitude of the average American in recent years when things have gone wrong with the country. Makes no difference in what line of endeavor—the farmer, Heaven pity him, is always in line for a stiff jolt.

Texas cotton men, in meeting at Dallas last week, came forth with the latest blast.

Bewailing the loss of export markets and the decline in quality of the state's greatest money crop, one of them, Burris C. Jackson, of Hillsboro, put the blame squarely on the farmer who refused to join efforts to improve cotton. He called them "leeches, loafers and hitchhikers on the sore backs of their neighbors."

A strong statement, Mr. Jackson. The South Plains of Texas boasts of a well-stocked rural population. Folks out here should know if they have "leeches and loafers" as next door neighbors. Years of steady progress in this section of the state have failed to bring such a fact to the surface. The farmer makes some mistakes, is often wrong. But, who in the name of goodness doesn't? And, on the South Plains, we certainly don't brand a man a "leech" because he happens to be endowed with plain old human qualities.

We like the answer J. P. Maxwell, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Paris and Lamar Chamber of Commerce, made to Mr. Jackson.

Said Mr. Maxwell, himself a farmer: "We farmers distrust this group. We have been exploited too much and heard ourselves called fools too often. It isn't the farmer who is to blame. The farmer says 'if we must take our wives and children out of homes and schools to provide five-cent cotton in competition with coolie labor abroad, we are going to tell you to go to hell with your export trade!' "

So, after all, if we'd dig into the actual facts, maybe we'd find that the farmer isn't to blame for everything. Why not give the farmer's sore back a chance to heal and hurl our abuses elsewhere, on the backs of those most likely deserving of it?

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Short takes: A certain film producer, according to Irving Hoffman, has become so secretive lately that he doesn't let his right hand know what his left hand is talking about.

Overheard — on every street corner, in every cocktail lounge, on every sound stage: "Yes, I had all my plans made to attend the coronation. I was to be the guest of some pals of mine, Lord and Lady Trelawney-Bunk at their Sussex place, Trelawney-Bunkshire. But the studio just won't let me go; I hear I'm to have a very big picture soon. And one just must think of one's career, mustn't one?"

REWARD

A veteran yes-man was fired by a producer the other day. "That's a pretty raw deal," sympathized a friend. "Especially after you had given him the best yeahs of your life."

Hollywood husbands are beginning to emerge from their respective chimney corners. Gladys George's husband, Leonard Penn, gets an acting contract at Metro and is to have an important place in the cast of "The Firefly."

Alice Marble, the net star, will take no chances on losing her amateur standing by signing a movie contract now. She wants to play at Forest Hills and Wimbledon.

But she has made some screen tests, which turned out fine, and she has an agreement giving Paramount first claim to her services when she decides to become an actress.

Melita Brunner, the Viennese skater, likely will be built by Warner Brothers into a rival of Sonja Henie.

Louise Rainer is another of the few actresses who like mood music played for them between scenes. But Miss Rainer has no syncopated moods. She likes Brahms, Bach, and choirs. Others on the set find the tune depressing.

Style Notes

Did you ever notice that actresses still like to put on a few pounds of diamonds and emeralds while posing for "simple little sports frocks"? It's a hangover from the days when Mae Murray gave informal beach parties and appeared in slinky gold-cloth dresses, red satin slippers, and pearls in her hair.

An equally temperamental character actor became despondent the other day and told friends he was going to hang himself. But he didn't, of course. Later he explained that he couldn't endure a rope around his neck.

Purchase Of Road Maintainer By County Is Ordered

Purchase of a road maintainer from McWhirter-McClure Machinery company of Lubbock at a net cost of $4,565, less 2 per cent for cash on delivery, was authorized by county commissioners at their biweekly meeting Monday.

The company's bid was $4,865 with an allowance of $300 as trade-in for a used tractor.

The matter of refunding $92,000 in park and jail warrants into bonds was approved, but definite announcements will not be made immediately pending figuring of interest charges, retirement dates and the like. Six per cent interest is being drawn on the warrants and the bonds will draw 5 1-2 per cent, or a saving of one-half per cent per annum.

The commission authorized Joe Y. Boyd, county auditor, to change fire insurance protecting the county jail to explosion insurance. The jail is considered fireproof.

The maintainer was described as an Allis-Chalmers Diesel speed patrol equipped with a moldboard, pneumatic tires and rear wheel hydraulic brakes. It would be used in precinct 4, that of B. O. McWhorter.

Other business consisted of approving current accounts and "general routine matters," said County Judge J. J. Dillard.

Regional Student conference at Hollister, Mo., June 4-13 will be considered.

J. I. Kilpatrick, chairman of the board, will preside. Miss Jonnie McCrery is making dinner arrangements.

Dutcher's News And Views Of Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

WASHINGTON, April 27—The attempts at play and counter-play on religious groups by opposing forces warring over the administration Supreme court plan have been among the most interesting behind-the-scenes phases of the struggle.

Dutcher

No large religious denomination or group has taken any position for or against the plan. But the contest has been marked from the beginning by:

The effort of anti-Roosevelt forces to persuade members of all creeds that the bill was a threat to religious liberties.

The effort of administration strategists to belittle such persuasion.

Men of various religious beliefs have been caused to testify for and against the plan as part of a conscious program of appeal to church groups.

Backstage, the men who have been running the opposing campaigns have privately congratulated themselves and colleagues on their ability to capitalize or discount the religious angle.

This sort of thing isn't new in politics, but it seems fair to suggest that if religious men had played in politics to the extent politicians have sought to play with religion, there might be a loud howl as the proper place of gentlemen of the cloth.

Answer Right Back

The opposition scored early with testimony against the judiciary plan of Dr. Norman J. Gould Wickey, executive secretary of the Board of Education of the United Lutheran church; and Prof. Theodore Graebner, professor of theology at Concordia college, St. Louis, and editor of the National Journal of the Lutheran church.

But soon administration forces were circulating a statement by Rev. J. W. Behnken, president of the Missouri Lutheran synod, which has a national membership of 1,000,000. He said: "If, by the appearance of two Lutheran ministers before the judiciary committee in opposition to President Roosevelt's proposal, the impression has been created that the Lutheran church is engaged in political activities, I would like to state emphatically that such is by no means the case . . . . The church's work is spiritual, not political . . . . The court proposal is a political matter."

At a time opponents of the plan were remarking happily that a large section of the Catholic religious press of the country seemed to be against the plan, the other side thought it staged a coup by getting Dean Thomas F. Konop of Notre Dame law school, to testify in favor.

Then the opposition countered with Dean Ignatius M. Wilkinson of Fordham university law school, another Catholic institution, and then with Notre Dame law school's Professor William M. Cain. Finally the New Dealers came back by citing an editorial by Editor Michael Williams of the influential Catholic weekly, The Commonweal. This editorial called the Roosevelt plan "the most common-sensible, direct and helpful method now possible for getting forward with the nation's business expeditiously."

More ecclesiastical persons appear to have been articulate against the President's plan than in favor of it. But most of the major figures in American religious organizations have kept silent. And there is no evidence that efforts to use religion as an issue have had any marked effect.

Shouse Party Canceled

Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse—the former remembered as head of the American Liberty league—were going to have a large party. They engaged the concert master and second violinist of the National Symphony orchestra.

The musicians happen to be members of that race whose life has been made miserable in Germany by Adolf Hitler. They heard the German ambassador was to be a guest and canceled the engagement. For that or some other reason the party was called off.

F. D. R. Leads 1940 Poll

Some time ago this column reported that a national Catholic magazine had shown Roosevelt to be far ahead in its poll of Washington correspondents as to whom they believed would be the Democratic presidential candidate in 1940. Final returns showed 19 correspondents picked Roosevelt as most likely; 13 Gov. George Earle of Pennsylvania; seven Secretary of Agriculture Wallace; five Governor Murphy of Michigan; and three Philippine High Commissioner Paul McNutt. Counting second and third guesses, however, Earle led with 27 mentions, followed by Roosevelt with 25, Wallace 24, McNutt 14, Murphy 13 and John L. Lewis 10.

'Eve's Orchard'

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER
Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

SYNOPSIS: Eve Mannersfield and gay, city-loving Denny Carter are on the verge of marriage when they quarrel and he walks out. Eve is left in her 200-year-old Connecticut house with kind old "Uncle" Henry and serious little Judge Featherstone whose parents have deserted him and gone to Hollywood. Her steady, dependable neighbor, George Cleveland, who loves Eve intensely, offers his help, for Eve is stranded financially. She resumes her aunt's baking business. Then comes a shattering letter saying Denny is to marry wealthy Mitzi.

Chapter 34

Eve Collapses

As soon as Eve had carefully torn her letter to Denny into very small pieces and burned them, she went downstairs to the kitchen. Her hands were still numb, but her mind was very clear, and she worked until three the next morning. Then she went to bed. She lay awake and thought it all over and over and over. In between she thought about the wallpaper and tried to plan her work ahead.

She could not eat anything at breakfast, but she talked in a metallic voice to the others as she drank black coffee.

"Mother's letter says they have the grandest pink house, and a police dog," Judge said timidly across the table. "Did she send you the money?"

"I don't know, Judge. I didn't read her letter."

She regarded him, sitting there over his oatmeal. The weeks since his parents went away had given him added health and serenity.

She had paid over all her happiness for the welfare of this child who was nothing to her. Things were odd in this world. She wondered if she would go on liking him when she got so she could feel anything again. Oh, yes, she must read Marylin's letter.

There was little more as regards herself and Denny than: "You naughty girl to throw poor Denny over, when we all thought it would be a match!" . . . and then a long delightful description of the circumstances under which they had fallen on their feet this time.

"The darlingest old lady—and a cousin of Sarah James in Buffalo, so she felt she knew all about us—" an old lady, it seemed, who didn't like children, so it was a mercy Eve was such a darling about Judge—and who wanted Peter to do her portrait, and simply loved having them, and was going to take them on a trip to Honolulu when she was out of the hospital; where she'd had to go to after three days. Meanwhile, it seemed, the Featherstones were living with all expenses paid, waited on by a corps of servants in her pink stucco mansion. The old lady collected poets; she was excited because Peter was a painter. There was not a word about paying Eve.

"Well, after all, why should they?" she thought with a new cynicism. "They've been supported by experts! Probably they feel they did wonders in signing a paper saying they'd pay board."

To Keep From Thinking

But it didn't matter. Nothing mattered. Nothing but finding enough hard physical work to do to halfway keep from thinking. Denny and Mitzi — Mitzi and Denny. Denny had laughed at Mitzi for being so old. He had made fun of her affections and pretenses. . . . And he was marrying Mitzi. Oh, it couldn't be Denny, gay passionate loving Denny! "God, let it not be true," she whispered. But it went on being true.

When the day's routine of baking was done and labeled for delivery, Eve went feverishly to the attic. The afternoon sun pouring down made it an oven but she was glad, it had seemed to her she would never be warm again. She piled and unpiled trunks and boxes aimlessly. Halfway through she stopped and tried to recall what she was looking for. . . . Of course. A spinning wheel. Somebody wanted to buy one. Emily had said at the post office yesterday, hadn't she? Great-grandmother Denton's spinning wheel.

She carried it down in her arms when she found it. She caught a glimpse of herself in the long mirror at the head of the stairs. Streaked, crimson-flushed, drenched with perspiration, she looked like a caricature of herself. She walked on out of the house without knowing she carried the heavy wheel still, straight through the lawn and to the orchard path. She did not know where she was going. Something in her subconscious, she supposed afterward, had some idea of selling the wheel to Mrs. Cleveland.

It was George who faced her, as she staggered mounting the stile between the orchards.

"Eve, Eve, what's the matter?"

His arms were strong, and she let go the wheel. She mustn't tell him that her Denny was that kind of man.

"Marylin is going to Honolulu," she said wildly, and sank against him, strengthless.

"Enough to make anybody sick," Uncle Henry was saying angrily when she opened her eyes on the front-parlor sofa. "Worked most of the night and then started cleaning the attic this weather."

George held a glass to her mouth and said quietly, "Drink this, Eve."

She drank it and said again weakly, "She didn't send the money and she's going to Honolulu—"

"Don't, Eve, you break my heart!" George said harshly.

Uncle Henry said: "Nonsense, child, we're more than making our living. She's all shaken up. You lie right there!" he added sternly.

Judge, in the background, clasped a pitcher of water in the hope she might have use for it. They surrounded her with their loving anxiety and anger. Through all her misery a little comfort sifted because of George's kind arm lifting her shoulders, and Uncle Henry's affectionate scolding and Judge's devoted eyes.

Bread-And-Butter Of Life

They made her rest all that day and the next. One of the three stood guard over her most of the time; Adriano waited on her hand and foot; George's housekeeper, Mattie, hovered about with all possible comforts. George came in the next day with his mother's check for $150 for the lacquer cabinet, and she heard Adriano and George taking it away.

"I'm using it, for the present, for my own papers!" he said matter-of-factly. "Mother's in Southampton for some time to come."

She'd know about Denny and Mitzi then . . . Of course. Everyone would. She hoped George would not talk about it to her just now.

He never did, whatever he heard or knew. Ellen came out over the weekend, full of the failures and successes of her stock company near Sharon, gay and friendly with George, indignant about Marylin, the same stable decisive Ellen. She said nothing more to Eve about George. And Eve could not bring herself, even to Ellen, to tell about Denny. Ellen would know, soon enough.

Somehow as the summer passed, Eve was well and put herself to work once more. The appleblossoms fell and the little apples began to come; and the flowers along the lawn changed with the seasons, larger and brighter for July.

There would never be any Denny again. She must get used to that. She must go on with a life that had nothing in it. Get on with the plain bread-and-butter of life — earning her living, being kind to the old man and little boy making friends and doing her work.

George asks Eve to a tennis and swimming party, tomorrow.

"Just blame it on the farmer, let it go at that, and who'll know the difference."

That just about sums up the attitude of the average American in recent years when things have gone wrong with the country. Makes no difference in what line of endeavor—the farmer, Heaven pity him, is always in line for a stiff jolt.

Texas cotton men, in meeting at Dallas last week, came forth with the latest blast.

Bewailing the loss of export markets and the decline in quality of the state's greatest money crop, one of them, Burris C. Jackson, of Hillsboro, put the blame squarely on the farmer who refused to join efforts to improve cotton. He called them "leeches, loafers and hitchhikers on the sore backs of their neighbors."

A strong statement, Mr. Jackson. The South Plains of Texas boasts of a well-stocked rural population. Folks out here should know if they have "leeches and loafers" as next door neighbors. Years of steady progress in this section of the state have failed to bring such a fact to the surface. The farmer makes some mistakes, is often wrong. But, who in the name of goodness doesn't? And, on the South Plains, we certainly don't brand a man a "leech" because he happens to be endowed with plain old human qualities.

We like the answer J. P. Maxwell, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Paris and Lamar Chamber of Commerce, made to Mr. Jackson.

Said Mr. Maxwell, himself a farmer: "We farmers distrust this group. We have been exploited too much and heard ourselves called fools too often. It isn't the farmer who is to blame. The farmer says 'if we must take our wives and children out of homes and schools to provide five-cent cotton in competition with coolie labor abroad, we are going to tell you to go to hell with your export trade!'"

So, after all, if we'd dig into the actual facts, maybe we'd find that the farmer isn't to blame for everything. Why not give the farmer's sore back a chance to heal and hurl our abuses elsewhere, on the backs of those most likely deserving of it?

Hollywood Chit-Chat

BY PAUL HARRISON
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, April 27.—Short takes: A certain film producer, according to Irving Hoffman, has become so secretive lately that he doesn't let his right hand know what his left hand is talking about.

Overheard — on every street corner, in every cocktail lounge, on every sound stage: "Yes, I had all my plans made to attend the coronation. I was to be the guest of some pals of mine, Lord and Lady Trelawney-Bunk at their Sussex place, Trelawney-Bunkshire. But the studio just won't let me go; I hear I'm to have a very big picture soon. And one just must think of one's career, mustn't one?"

Hollywood husbands are beginning to emerge from their respective chimney corners. Gladys George's husband, Leonard Penn, gets an acting contract at Metro and is to have an important place in the cast of "The Firefly."

Morgan Hill, married to Fifi D'Orsay, has a ticket with Producer Douglas MacLean and played in "Twenty-three and a Half Hours' Leave."

Sports Department

Alice Marble, the net star, will take no chances on losing her amateur standing by signing a movie contract now. She wants to play at Forest Hills and Wimbledon.

But she has made some screen tests, which turned out fine, and she has an agreement giving Paramount first claim to her services when she decides to become an actress.

Melita Brunner, the Viennese skater, likely will be built by Warner Brothers into a rival of Sonja Henie.

Louise Rainer is another of the few actresses who like mood music played for them between scenes. But Miss Rainer has no syncopated moods. She likes Brahms, Bach, and choirs. Others on the set find the tune depressing.

Style Notes

Did you ever notice that actresses still like to put on a few pounds of diamonds and emeralds while posing for "simple little sports frocks"? It's a hangover from the days when Mae Murray gave informal beach parties and appeared in slinky gold-cloth dresses, red satin slippers, and pearls in her hair.

Bing Crosby turns fashion commentator: "This year it's Queen Mary's turn to laugh at other women's hats."

Food For Thought

In a stormy session with her agent, a temperamental actress accused him of losing a coveted assignment. He shrugged and asked, "But why should I bite the ham that's feeding me?"

An equally temperamental character actor became despondent the other day and told friends he was going to hang himself. But he didn't, of course. Later he explained that he had laryngitis so bad that he couldn't endure a rope around his neck.

REWARD

A veteran yes-man was fired by a producer the other day. "That's a pretty raw deal," sympathized a friend. "Especially after you had given him the best yeahs of your life."

Purchase Of Road Maintainer By County Is Ordered

Purchase of a road maintainer from McWhirter-McClure Machinery company of Lubbock at a net cost of $4,565, less 2 per cent for cash on delivery, was authorized by county commissioners at their biweekly meeting Monday.

The company's bid was $4,865 with an allowance of $300 as trade-in for a used tractor.

The matter of refunding $92,000 in park and jail warrants into bonds was approved, but definite announcements will not be made immediately pending figuring of interest charges, retirement dates and the like. Six per cent interest is being drawn on the warrants and the bonds will draw 5 1-2 per cent, or a saving of one-half per cent per annum.

The commission authorized Joe Y. Boyd, county auditor, to change fire insurance protecting the county jail to explosion insurance. The jail is considered fireproof.

The maintainer was described as an Allis-Chalmers Diesel speed patrol equipped with a moldboard, pneumatic tires and rear wheel hydraulic brakes. It would be used in precinct 4, that of B. O. McWhorter.

Other business consisted of approving current accounts and "general routine matters," said County Judge J. J. Dillard.

Regional Student conference at Hollister, Mo., June 4-13 will be considered.

J. I. Kilpatrick, chairman of the board, will preside. Miss Jonnie McCrery is making dinner arrangements.

island constituting one of the better residential sections of Wheeling, W. Va.

Workmen began clearing away debris in Johnstown, Pa., where torrents swept in yesterday from the Conemaugh and Stonycreek rivers.

The Thames river, bordering London, Ontario, was 30 feet above normal and, fed by unceasing rain, was still rising. At least 6,000 of the city's 80,000 inhabitants quit their homes. The communities of Woodstock, Stratford, St. Mary's and New Hamburg were threatened by the Thames or its tributaries.

Fredericksburg, Va., was estimated to have suffered $500,000 damage from inroads of the Rapidan.

Business was suspended for a time in Cumberland, Md., when waters from the Potomac flushed onto downtown streets.

DIVORCE GRANTED

CHICAGO, April 27 (AP) — When Theodore Kohn, 81, of suburban Oak Park, testified in superior court that his wife, Johanna, 76, beat him on the wrists with her false teeth, Judge John J. Lupe granted him a divorce. They were married in 1918.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, April 27. (AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 2 to 6 points off, under May liquidation against 303 notices and commission house selling with trade houses the best buyers. May 12.91; July 13.03; Oct. 12.74; Dec. 12.70; Jan. 12.71; March 12.77.

The market ruled steady late in the morning. Although May liquidation continued fairly active with the further circulation of notices there was a good spot demand for the near month at the prevailing discount of 15 points under July. This attracted fair trade and commission house demand for forward deliveries. Buying was also influenced by the firmer technical position of the market. July was 13.11 at midday after having sold at 13.14. Prices showed net advances of about 5 to 8 points while May was selling at 12.97 or 1 point net lower.

The opening decline which carried May about 12 to 13 points under July attracted covering and cooperative buying in the near months at the wider differences. Some commission house buying appeared in later months as the spot position steadied and shortly after the first half hour July sold up from 13.01 to 13.12 and was holding at the best.

Prices generally showed net gains of 1 to 8 points. The 303 notices at New York combined with 91 reported from New Orleans reported a total against 39,400 bales on first notice day or practically the entire certificated stock available for delivery against contracts. There was considerable exchanging from May to later months and the buying of the forward positions against sales of May accounted for part of the support.

At Liverpool early liquidation influenced by weakness of outside markets attracted trade buying and short covering.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, April 27. (AP) — Cotton futures opened irregular today one point up to 4 points down. Continued liquidation in May contracts at the start apparently accounted for the downswing in that option which showed the major decline.

May opened at 12.79, July at 12.96, Oct. 12.75 and Dec. 12.81. The July and Oct. positions were 1 point net up.

Liverpool cables were slightly lower than due at the start here and there was a slight accumulation of overnight selling orders. Notices for delivery of 9,100 bales of May contracts were issued but apparently were being taken up.

After the start shorts began to cover in May contracts and that month rallied to 12.86, or 3 points over the previous close. Towards the end of the first half hour prices generally were 1 to 6 points net higher.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, April 27 (AP)—An apparently over-solid stock market bounded back today for recoveries of fractions to 2 or more points.

Brisk short-covering and quick-turn speculative buying, brokers said, accounted largely for the about-face.

Activity was pronounced at the opening with the ticker tape a bit behind for a time. Volume later narrowed, but most rallying leaders were at their tops near the fourth hour.

Conspicuous on the advance were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Chrysler, Yellow Truck, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Deere, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power & Light, Anaconda, American Smelting, Inspiration Copper, Standard Oil of N. J., Texas Corp., Continental Oil, Seaboard Oil, American Can, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Baltimore & Ohio, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Loew's, Celanese, International Hydro-Electric and American Shipbuilding.

Selling by foreign sources, blamed principally for yesterday's wash-out, appeared to have dried up appreciably. Bonds and commodities also regained some of their previous declines.

matic rifles, anti-aircraft guns and accessory equipment, ammunition and motors.

Military housing, the committee report added, is "practically at a standstill" although a bill calling for $162,000,000 for construction at military posts is pending before the budget bureau.

"The situation is extremely disturbing," the committee said, "and unless funds are to be forthcoming without stint, it would seem that there has to be deferment of personnel expansion, and perhaps contraction."

Pleased With Plan

The committee was pleased with the war department's recently adopted protective mobilization plan.

"The new plan obviously will result in a very considerable reduction of war reserve requirements," the report said. "It is the purpose of the committee to insist, so far as practicable, upon a crystallization of the plan before consideration of the next appropriation bill begins in order that it may be used as a guide in recommending appropriations in the future."

The new mobilization plan provides for war-time infantry divisions of 13,000 men, instead of the present 22,000. These smaller units, the army high command has said, are susceptible of swift movement to points of military need.

not answer the door or telephone.

"The wedding has been indefinitely postponed," said Rummel.

No Comment To Offer

He was asked if a future date would be set.

"I have no comment," he answered.

Previously, Rummel had telephoned society editors of the San Antonio Express and Evening News, requesting that an announcement of an affair in honor of the couple scheduled for today be cancelled. Both Miss Jarratt and Purvis attended a breakfast honoring them yesterday.

A dinner party honoring the couple was cancelled at a late hour yesterday afternoon.

A newspaper reporter said he had been informed that an automobile, loaded with luggage, which left a hotel last night belonged to Purvis and was driven by Purvis' chauffeur.

Figured In Car Crash

Miss Jarratt figured in an automobile collision a few days ago but was not injured, Rummel said. He added that possible court action arising from the accident was not responsible for Miss Jarratt's sudden departure. He also denied that a movie contract Miss Jarratt cancelled in order to wed Purvis had anything to do with the wedding postponement.

Wedding attendants from Chicago and South Carolina had arrived for the event, expected to be the most brilliant of the social year.

Building Permit Totals Are Nearing Mark Of $100,000

Building permit totals shoved a little nearer the $100,000-mark for April during the forenoon today with the issuance of three for construction to cost $2,000, to boost the amount for the month to $94,965.

The total was that as officially revised by Miss LaVerne Garrison and reported to City Building Inspector D. J. Schlag. While the total thus far is higher than for any entire month this year, civic minded officials are hoping for April to be the first $100,000 month of 1937.

Another permit for air-conditioning a downtown building at a cost of $4,000 has been prepared, but cannot be included in the month's totals until claimed by the builder and payment of the necessary fees.

Permits issued today included one for $1,000 to E. McElroy for a frame residence at 2105-B Fifteenth street; to J. D. Jones for a frame and sheetiron warehouse costing $500 at 1701 Avenue H, and to Dake Keeler, for a one-story frame residence costing $500 at 1610 Twenti-third street.

Ray, convicted of driving an automobile when intoxicated, also was assessed imprisonment of 90 days and suspension of the right to operate a motor vehicle for three years. He did not pay his fine and now, it was estimated, has approximately 84 more days imprisonment to serve in default of satisfying the levy. School Reform Being Sought

AUSTIN, April 27 (AP)—An investigating committee told the house today that immediate steps should be taken to segregate inmates of the boys' reformatory at Gatesville, to remove dependent and feeble-minded children from the institution and to create an adequate juvenile parole system.

The committee of three representatives said certain conditions in the reformatory were deplorable but did not blame officials of the institution.

"Once a boy is committed to the institution," the committee said, "his only hope of parole is by an order from the court which sentenced him. We found a number of boys who now are serving in their fourth year, who were sentenced to serve one or two years, and under the present system those boys can be retained in the institution until they have reached the age of 21.

Immediately Forgotten

"Once a county judge has sentenced a boy, the boy is immediately forgotten. The county judge may go out of office and be succeeded by another who knows nothing of his case and for that reason no recall or parole is extended. This has resulted in the boys being held in confinement so long that they have become depressed and demoralized and have lost all hope in the future. . . . . Such a condition breeds within the minds of these boys a criminal attitude and a hatred towards society which completely defeats the purpose for which the institution was established."

The committee said it found a deplorable condition in that orphans or neglected children "of young and tender years are confined in the same institution and upon the same ground with boys who are incorrigible and have a definite criminal nature."

Inmates Of Reformatory Are Said Satisfied

GATESVILLE, April 27 (AP)—Committing courts, parents of the boys, and the inmates themselves are "satisfied" with conditions and treatment at state reformatory, Supt. E. H. Nesbitt declared today.

A special legislative investigating committee told the Texas house of representatives today that sanitary and other conditions at the school were "deplorable."

"I have not seen the report of the house but I will make this statement without seeing it," Supt. Nesbitt said. "I have the assurance that the committing courts of Texas and the parents and guardians of the inmates of this institution and the boys themselves are satisfied with the conditions and treatment received at the institution."

of those inside hunting the outside was expressed by T. W. White, cafe proprietor.

"Willie Scott (negro dishwasher) took the entire screen door with him when he left and made it easy for the others to follow," he said. Scott told White he thought "my time was here—or nearly."

A. M. Leftwich, owner of all buildings in the group, including those not damaged, said he had insurance, "but am not certain how it applies in a case like this." He explained it had not been determined officially whether weight of the awning and of a recently hung expensive neon sign contributed to the wreckage or whether wind puffs motivated the damage. The buildings, built in 1926, were bought by Leftwich in 1929. He did not estimate damage.

Reconstruction, which may include renovation, will be completed within 30 to 60 days, said Leftwich.

Apprehension attaching to possible weakening of other structures on the block partially was dissipated late this morning after builders had gone over their fronts.

Only the cafe was open at the time of the mishap.

Roosevelt Baseball Team Wins Battle

Coach Roy Boyd's Roosevelt High school baseball team pushed over three runs in the ninth inning yesterday to defeat Shallowater High, 11 to 8, in an interscholastic diamond game on the Shallowater field.

Originally scheduled for seven innings, the game was knotted at 8-all in the seventh and two extra frames were necessary to determine a winner.

It was the second victory in three games played by the Roosevelt team this season. The club played in shiny new uniforms.

Searsy and Bartlett pitched for Roosevelt, Tidwell and Crossland dividing time behind the plate. Scott and Maguire tossed for Shallowater, with Gibson receiving.

Idalou plays Roosevelt next Friday, Boyd said.

Free Movies Are Offered Tonight

Free motion pictures of wrestling, football, hunting and exploration are offered tonight at Sled Allen's Auditorium, the party beginning at 8 o'clock.

"Frolics of the Fleet," the picture might be called, or "Wrestling Gobs," featuring those two bad sailors of the mat, Tex Kirby Watkins of Post and Sailor Jack Moran of Little Rock, was filmed by Bill McMillan, Lubbock amateur movie photographer, when the two fought a main event at the Auditorium recently. McMillan filmed the entire match from a specially constructed platform above the ring, and reports the results are all that could be asked for considering the lighting effects.

It will be the first pictorial reproduction of a wrestling match here.

For the supporting card, McMillan will screen the all-color picture of the Texas Tech-Loyola football game, made in Los Angeles' Coliseum last fall. This picture has been previewed by local "grandstand
