Decision Is Withheld As Blum Ousted

Seek New Premier After Fall Of People's Front

GUARDS REMAIN IN FRONT OF SENATE

President LeBrun Summons Radical Socialist Chautemps

PARIS, June 21 (AP)—Camille Chautemps, radical socialist ex-premier who is attempting to form a new people's front cabinet, today offered a portfolio to Leon Blum, the outgoing prime minister. The socialist Blum, whose government fell early today, withheld his decision. It was indicated it would be delayed until a meeting of the Socialist National Council tomorrow. Truckloads of mobile guards rumbled through the streets as Chautemps sounded out leaders of various factions, particularly the socialists. Their participation in the cabinet seemed to depend on agreement on a financial program. Steel-helmeted guards deployed in front of the senate to prevent any demonstration against the body that overthrew socialist Premier Leon Blum and his people's front government yesterday by refusing to grant decree powers to deal with the financial crisis. Acting with significant speed, President LeBrun summoned the radical socialist Chautemps to the Elysee palace before dawn and designated him to form a new government.

Begin Conferences

Chautemps, secretary of state in the retiring cabinet, immediately began a round of conferences with party leaders to determine what support he could glean for a cabinet net probably uniting the same leftist elements that supported Blum. Among his first conferences was Joseph Caillaux, head of the senate finance committee who led the fight against Blum's decree demands, from whom he apparently sought to determine if there is a possibility of a new cabinet.

Anti-Lynching Bill Approved

Senate Judiciary Committee Approves Wagner-Van Nuys Bill, 13-3

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—The senate judiciary committee approved today by a vote of 13 to 3 the Wagner-Van Nuys anti-lynching bill. The committee's vote sent to the senate floor a measure similar to anti-lynching bills that have met with filibusters from the southern senators in the past. Senator Connally (D-Tex.), one of the three committee members who voted against the measure, said he did not believe the southern senators would filibuster this time. He said it looked as though the bill would be passed. The house already has passed the anti-lynching bill introduced by Representative Gavagnin (D-NY). The senate committee substituted for that measure the bill introduced by Senators Wagner (D-NY) and Van Nuys (D-Ind.). The latter measure would define lynching as physical violence by a mob of three or more persons against a person in custody of a peace officer, but would specifically exclude violence by gangsters or racketeers, or in connection with a labor controversy. A peace officer convicted of willful negligence in protecting a prisoner or in prosecuting a lynch mob would be guilty of a felony and subject to a fine up to $5,000 or imprisonment up to five years, or both. Counties where lynch mobs obtained a prisoner would be subject to civil liability to the injured party or his legal representative of from $2,000 to $10,000.

THIRD PRODUCING AREA TO BE OPENED

Opening of a third producing area for Gaines county appeared assured Monday with a flow from Amon G. Carter and Continental Oil Co.'s No. 1 A. L. Wasson. The well flowed 10 barrels of pipeline oil the first hour after it was turned into storage Sunday morning. The oil was tested at 34.5 gravity. Gas was estimated at two million cubic feet daily. The well is bottomed at 4,950 feet and flowed through 3-inch tubing set three feet off bottom, with two joints perforated. No. 1 Wasson, which ran high structurally, logged gas and oil at intervals below 4,555 feet. Location is 2,210 feet from the south line and 330 feet from the west line of section 45-AX-pal, 14 miles northwest of the Seminole pool, the nearest production.

Russian Fliers Believe Polar Route Feasible

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21 (AP)—A sun compass unaffected by strange phenomena within the "magnetic jungle" on top of the world brought three Russian fliers safely across the uncharted wastes of the North Pole region, Portland aviators said today. Only the sun compass would resist the "jitters" when all other instruments danced crazily under the influence of the magnetic area. The device, developed by Admiral Richard E. Byrd for his flights into the Antarctic, charts an unvarying course. Without it, air authorities said, Alexander Belakoff, navigator, on the flight from Moscow, probably would have worked with frenzied speed in a futile effort to solve directional problems among converging longitudinal lines. The compass, they explained, shows a true north during travel along a given meridian. Its clockwork mechanism automatically corrects itself with the changes in the sun's angles and records the position of this guiding light on a frosted plate.

VANCOUVER, Wash., June 21 (AP)—Dynamic, stocky Pilot Valeri Chekaloff, whose hands never left the wheel of a great red-winged monoplane in a 63-hour flight here from Moscow, Russia, which ended yesterday, was out of bed early today and he wasn't interested in air planes. Dressing while his companions, Georgi Babukoff and Alexander Belakoff slumbered heavily from near exhaustion after their amazing 5,300-mile non-stop hop across the top of the world, Chekaloff went briskly out into a rain-washed morning and took a walk. About 8:30 a. m., Belakoff and Babukoff came downstairs in the home of General George Marshall.

commandant of the post, where the fliers were housed, and joined the Russian ambassador, A. A. Trojansky, and Chekaloff in a breakfast. Soldiers said a special military board would meet at 9:30 a. m., with the fliers to inspect their single-motored plane which brought them from Moscow across the North Pole to North America in the first non-stop flight linking the two nations. After the inspection, the fliers expect to go into this seaport town and buy a few personal necessities. Soldiers said they understood the fliers and Ambassador Trojansky, who flew here from San Francisco. See RUSSIAN, Page 6, Col. 1

Mrs. Lillie Super, 45, of Houston, died in an automobile accident at Fairfield. Carl Grissom, 45, of Mount Pleasant, was killed in an automobile collision which also proved fatal to Mrs. Mattie Lee Millner, 32. E. B. Fox, 51, of Hillsboro, was fatally injured in an automobile truck crash near that city. Mrs. Hallie Granger, 72, of Liberal, Kas., was killed when her automobile in which she was riding overturned near Farwell. Sabine River Claims Five

Mass Funeral To Be Held For Youngsters Who Drowned Sunday

MANY, La., June 21 (AP)—A mass funeral was to be held this afternoon at Little Flock cemetery, in Sabine parish, for five young persons who were drowned in Sabine river Sunday afternoon. The dead: Dorothy Sims, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Sims, James Williamson, 18, Ebyll Williamson, 16, Jessie Williamson, 13, and Archie Williamson, 11, two sons and two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Williamson. The young people, accompanied by Mr. Sims, had crossed the Sabine river into Texas to look after the tomato crop on land rented by the two families. They had returned to the Louisiana side safely, when the quintet decided to go wading. Suddenly, the entire party stepped off into deep water and were swept down stream with the current. Mr. Sims went to the rescue and succeeded in getting Sybil Williams back to the bank, but when he returned to the water in an effort to save the other four who were struggling in the river, the young girl dashed back into the stream to help him. She was again caught by the current and drowned.

Gas Company In Possession Of Warehouse

Eleven Texas Rangers Sent At Request Of Lone Star Company

SHOP WORKERS ARE KEPT UNDER GUARD

City Manager Edwards Prepares Protest To Governor Allred

FORT WORTH, June 21 (AP)—The Lone Star Gas company at 8 o'clock this morning took possession of its warehouse and shops on South Main street under the protection of 11 Texas rangers, sent at the company's request. While 20 pickets watched from across the street, about 60 shop workers filed into the building under guard of the rangers. The peace officers, under the command of Homer Garrison, assistant director of the public safety, went to the shops before the workers arrived, the group of non-striking employes gathering downtown before proceeding to the strike-head building, which has been closed since May 27.

To Protect Public "We didn't come here to break the strike but are here in an impartial way to protect the public from a breakdown of service and prevent violence, Garrison said. Garrison said the rangers, gathered from all parts of Texas, were ordered here by Albert S. Johnson, director of the department of public safety. They arrived in Fort Worth Saturday night. Exactly a week ago today the strikers relinquished their hold on the downtown offices of the gas company. Garrison said the rangers will remain in Fort Worth until the strike is settled. There was no violence as the pickets and workers passed into the building. A gas company official said: "We had to go back to work in the interest of public safety." In the meantime, M. L. Perrin, one of the strike leaders and president of the Plumbers and Gas Fitters union, called on City Manager S. B. Edwards.

Edwards replied in the negative when asked if he had sent for the rangers and added that the city would continue its "hands off" policy. Edwards later was reported as preparing a protest to Governor Allred over the presence of the rangers here. Another development in the strike situation came during the morning when charges were filed in county court at law No. 1 against another man in connection with the flogging of J. E. Carpenter, Lone Star employe, who said he suffered a beating last week at the hands of five men believed to be strikers. The new charges were brought against Virgil Fryor. The complaint was signed by A. C. Howerton, homicide officer. Others who have been charged with assault in connection with the strike are Harold Wilkinson, John O. Sambaer, and Homer R. Williams.

Find Body In Crude Grave Under House

Identified As Wife Of Wealthy Optical Company Owner

LOS ANGELES, June 21 (AP)—The body of the red-haired woman, lying under a house near what appeared to be a crudely dug grave, was tentatively identified today as Mrs. Alice Jones, wife of a wealthy optical company owner. Harold Jones said his wife disappeared last December from a nursing home when seeming recovered from a nervous ailment. Ten-year-old Malcolm Alberts found the body yesterday. He crawled under the house to retrieve a baseball thrown wildly by a playmate. A moment later, he emerged screaming with terror. The woman had been dead about two months. A preliminary examination indicated she had been shot in the head after having been attacked. She was apparently middle-aged. The woman wore a plain gold wedding ring, on which was an inscription: "Hal to Alice, Aug. 31, 1912." The building under which the body was found is a four-family flat in the Wilshire district. The ground floor apartments were vacant until recently. Mrs. Lotta Myers, who lives on the second story, provided police with the only clue to the puzzle. Provides Clue Mrs. Myers, an aged invalid, said she was awakened early in the morning by strange cries about two months ago. Mrs. Myers reported that she sent her nurse to investigate. When the nurse descended to the floor below, the cries ceased completely. The nurse went outside and saw an automobile speed away. Finally, said Mrs. Myers, she summoned police. She did not know what the police discovered, she added, because she and her nurse, decided that the screams were from a drunken party, went back to sleep.

McCaulley, in the Knott community. She had been ill for three weeks. Resident of the Knott community since 1922, Mrs. McCaulley had resided with her children since the death of her husband in 1926. CRIMINAL CASES SLATED FOR TRIAL IN COUNTY COURT

Robinson Would Curb Spending

Tongues Wag Over Senator's Relief Revolt

WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—Senate administration forces, ignoring economy pleas of their own leaders, rejected today an amendment to the relief bill designed to put more of the cost on local communities. The amendment of the $1,500,000,000 measure would have required states and local communities, where able, to contribute at least 40 per cent of the cost of WPA projects. Just before the test, administration forces won a tactical victory by rejecting a modification of the amendment proposed by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, a Democratic leader. Robinson's amendment, which would have required 25 per cent local contribution instead of 40 per cent, was beaten 49-34.

House Acts To Forestall Pension Cut

AUSTIN, June 21 (AP)—The house decided unanimously today on quick action in an effort to forestall a possible cut in the old age pension rolls. It voted to spend much of the last four days of the session investigating whether state funds were ample to continue the present pension policy and whether the federal government would keep matching Texas money for grants to 120,000 aged.

Sanctuary Hunting Bill

Senator James V. Allred submitted a bill making state dove hunting seasons conform to those established by the federal government and more than a score of local measures. He asked the lawmakers to repeal house bill 915 of the regular session, which he said took territory from one of the school districts represented by Rep. S. A. Jones, Jr., of Lufkin. The senate joined the house in See HOUSE ACTS, Page 6, Col. 2

EARHART TO HAVE PLANE OVERHAULED

BANDEONG, Dutch East Indies, June 21 (AP)—Amelia Earhart decided today to take a three day rest and have her plane overhauled before taking off on the next leg of her flight around the world. She landed at Bandoeang at 10:17 a. m. today (10:37 p. m. EST) after a flight from Singapore over the Java sea and a part of mountainous Java. Military planes went aloft to lead her to the landing field when she circled for 15 minutes, apparently unable to see air-drome markers. After her plane is checked by workmen of the Dutch Air Service, K.L.M., she plans to take off for Darwin, Australia.

TUPELO, Miss., June 21 (AP)—Separate funerals were to be held here this afternoon for Gerald Burdine, 20-year-old aviation instructor, and Lyle Downen, Jr., 15, his flying student, who crashed to death yesterday at Carroll Cone field. Bowen was believed to have been at the controls as he was taking his third lesson.

GARNER PREPARES FOR SQUIRREL HUNTING

By WILLIAM E. KEYS UVALDE, June 21 (AP)—The nation's assistant chief executive cleaned his squirrel rifle today preparatory to "hunting out" the numerous rodents in the giant trees that surround his home. That, to all intents and purposes, together with a prospective fishing trip, was the most weighty matter on John N. Garner's mind. He established a precedent last week by leaving Washington with congress in session and in face of rumors of a possible rift in administration ranks, purportedly due to disapproval by some members of President Roosevelt's policies. The vice-president remained silent on political matters as he prepared to relax in familiar surroundings and declined to

Santander Is Next Goal Of Franco Troops

(By the Associated Press) Thousands of insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco's troops streamed through captured Bilbao today to the hills west of the city in the start of a campaign against Santander, 45 miles away, last stronghold of the Basques. Footbridges were thrown across the Nervion river to speed the movement. Insurgent officers considered subjugation of Santander province necessary to overcome the menace of water famine in Bilbao. Water conduits were broken from territory still held by government forces. Roads to Bilbao were jammed with insurgent trucks bringing food to the city's 300,000 inhabitants. Five food ships were reported en route to the city from San Sebastian, insurgent-held port. Basque government troops were reported entrenched three miles west of Bilbao for a new stand against the invaders. At Madrid, a huge government mine exploded in suburban University City, where insurgent troops are entrenched. The government commander reported the explosion split in half the University City clinical hospital, insurgent stronghold.

Judge Davidson told him that he must serve the sentence unless he pays all of the taxes due within 15 months, and pays half of the fine within 90 days, and the remaining half within 18 months.

Summer Gets Started Today

Old Sol got up early this morning, and was to stay up late this evening for an annual beaming spree that results, nominally, in the longest day of the year. It is the official beginning of summer, and the weather was right in line. The mercury at the department of commerce station at the airport had climbed to 93 at noon, with the likelihood it would touch a considerably higher mark during the afternoon. Absence of a breeze that has been a comfort in recent weeks, helped create a real summer day. High of 93 A high of 93 degrees was recorded Sunday. The warm weather helped to bring out a near-record crowd for the season at the municipal swimming pool, 373 swimmers having registered for the day. There were 211 adult, 161 children's tickets sold. The pool was crowded throughout the afternoon and evening. The city's total take on swimming pool and golf course Sunday was $110.95. Sunrise was according to the records, at 5:40 Monday, and sunset was at 7:55, giving a day of 14 hours and 15 minutes. The beginning of summer is the summer solstice, the time the sun reaches the northern extremity of its annual vagaries across the equator.

Allred Favors A Return To Fee System

Will Campaign Actively For Adoption Of Amendment In August

By RAYMOND BROOKS (Herald Austin Correspondent) AUSTIN, June 21—Gov. Allred will actively campaign for adoption in August of the amendment restoring the old fee system, he has announced.

The officers who would go back on the fee system did not have any part in getting the amendment submitted, Gov. Allred said. Rather, they oppose it, so far as they have expressed themselves.

He pointed to the action of the County and District Clerks association at Houston, opposing restoration of the fee system, as proof.

Gov. Allred does not believe the fee amendment will take the limit now in the constitution off the pay of legislators.

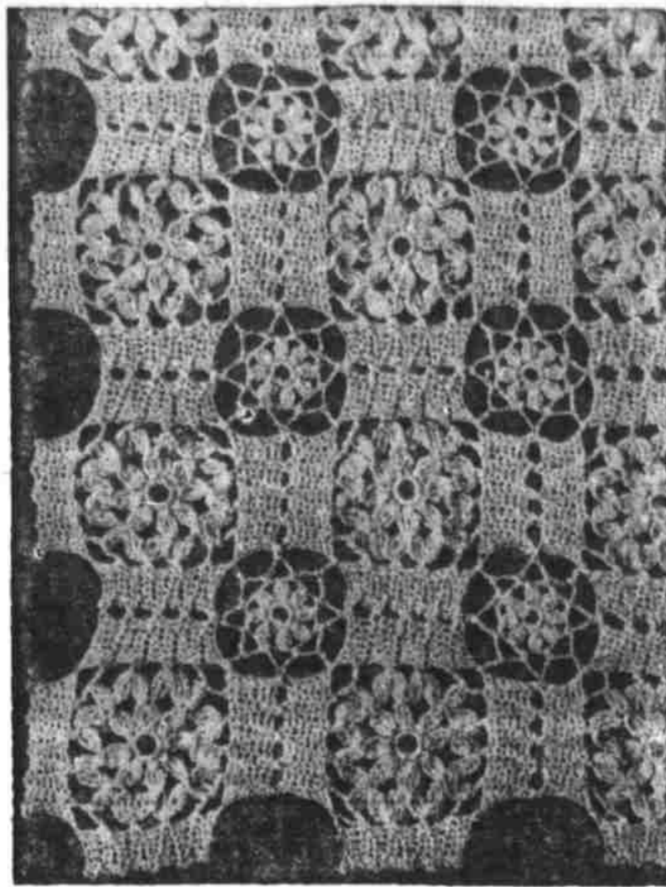

Rep. A. T. McKinney has been quoted, and the conclusions of three members of the attorney general's department, unofficially expressed, have been cited, in support of the idea that the blanket fee amendment will cancel the limitation on lawmakers' pay. It is general; if adopted, subsequent to that on lawmakers' compensation, it will say, without exception, the special pay section, that the legislature may fix the pay of ALL DISTRICT, county and precinct officials. Lawmakers are district officials.

Gov. Allred has written John Gould, Wichita Falls editorial writer, pointing out the fee amendment changes a different section of the constitution from that fixing legislative pay.

Can the courts say whether the constitution is constitutional? Chinese railroad lines are installing small libraries on passenger trains for the entertainment of travelers.

Thirteen thousand men and boys in the United States left other kinds of work to take up farming last year.

All-Purpose Crochet Motif

By RUTH ORR PATTERN NO. 453 There are so many good things about this design that we scarcely know where to begin. First, it's a square, and so it will work up especially well for luncheon sets, runners, and chair sets. Then, it has only three rounds, so you'll have the instructions memorized in no time. Also, since it's made of No. 20 mercerized crochet cotton, the work will progress rapidly enough so that you can complete a luncheon set or dinner cloth in record time.

READING AND WRITING

By John Selby

TAKE CARE OF YOURSELF

by Jerome W. Ephraim; (Simon & Schuster; $2).

There is a school of thought which considers that the current rash of expose books dealing with patent medicines, diseases and such like is a serious danger. There is another school which believes that although there may be misinformation in the books, and people may depend on them when a physician should be called, still people are bound to be fools any way, and most of the books are better than quacks and their products.

Jerome W. Ephraim believes quite obviously, that he has a mission. This is to help the public out of several superstitions and (of course) to put a book to his credit. Dr. Logan Cleodening apparently agrees with him; he writes a good natured introduction to Mr. Ephraim's "Take Care of Yourself." Mr. Ephraim is not a doctor. He does not get into the more serious diseases, provides no cancer remedies. He does talk long and well, however, on the care of the hair and skin. He does not have much new to offer on either subject, to be sure. His dissertation on skin troubles runs largely to soap—he repeats the well known dicta of past writers in his field to the effect that soaps can only clean, that floating soaps float merely because air has been whipped into them, that germicidal soaps smell badly, often, but according to Mr. Ephraim do no good—you know that story as well as I do.

He reduces scalp care to four pretty simple things: cleanliness, lubrication, stimulation and disinfection. He not only believes good cosmetics intelligently used are harmless; he actually declares that they are helpful. Shoes are mostly to blame for bad feet, but athlete's foot is one condition you can't attribute to them. Three out of four have athlete's foot, by the way. Some other chapters are headed "The Truth About Antiseptics," "The Truth About Pain Killers," "The Truth About Vitamins." The truth about Mr. Ephraim's book seems to be that it's a good rewriting job, useful in its field and not too ambitious.

Father's Day Is Observed At First Presbyterian Church

The Father's Day service at the First Presbyterian church was appropriately observed Sunday at the 11 o'clock service.

Flowers were given from gardens of Mrs. W. C. Barnett, #90; Mrs. H. W. Taylor in honor of fathers. The blossoms consisted of an artistic arrangement of astatia daisies, English lavender, gladioli, snapdragons, perennial sweet peas, pink roebuda, flowering privet, yellow roses and fern, pink yucca and vitex, placed in gayly colored baskets of rainbow tints.

The organist, Miss Elsie Jannet Barnett, played a beautiful selection dedicated to fathers. The sermon was one of inspiration to make an effort at better living especially appealing to fathers.

THE SPORTS CIRCUIT—N.M. Champ On Hand For Local Tourney

By HANK HART
ELINOR JONES, 17-year-old Indian lass who has held the New Mexico golf championship for women the past two years, arrived last night and was expected to play practice rounds at the country club today in preparation for the exhibition matches tomorrow.

She is a senior in the Albuquerque high school and her father is coach at the Albuquerque Indian school. Quite naturally she follows along athletic lines, starting in basketball and tennis as well as golf.

EVERYTHING IS in readiness at the Hamlin Lakeview golf club to make the fourth invitational a big success, writes Iris V. Pribble, chairman of the public-committee. Golfers may qualify any time between now and Thursday. A stag barbecue and calcutots is ticketed for Thursday. Pribble advises that a large number of Big Spring golfers are planning to enter the Hamlin tourney.

DISCOUNTING THE obvious effort of promoters to build up the champion and tear down the challenger with the idea of selling an interesting contest to fight fans, it is apparent that Champion Jimmy Braddock has gained many supporters by the spirit and form he showed in training, expert observers believe.

There has been a careful spirit around the champion's camp. At all these years in the ring game, Braddock went through his paces with a zest and confidence that he would hardly expect to find in a lamb being led to slaughter. Even roadwork, a drudge and a bore to veteran fighters, was no ordeal to Jimmy. He was anxious to get into the best possible shape and willing to do whatever was asked.

Experts insist Joe Louis is not the bomber of old. But how much of his former efficiency Joe must possess to beat Braddock is a poser. He has youth in his favor, speed, and the punch. In training Louis did not set the world on fire. His sparrows were hardly fit for the caliber of a long, grueling contest. The whole was a bore to him. But, then, Louis has not been a lion in training for any of his recent bouts. In the ring he is something else again.

Tom Paprocki, Associated Press writer, tells us that hungry fighters generally win the championship. Of the two, oddly enough, Braddock, the champion, is apparently the hungrier. Having attained a measure of affluence unreamed of two years ago, Louis seems satisfied he has collected plenty of this world's goods. He has been living like a prince. Even the chance of gaining the title does not seem to inspire him.

ACE FEMINE GOLFERS ENTER INVITATION MEET

MATCH IS SCHEDULED ON TUESDAY

West Texas' ace feminine golfers will start gathering here tomorrow for the second annual invitation tournament of the Big Spring Women's Golf Association. Due to attract a large and fast field.

Eighteen hole qualifying play over the sand green country club course is not scheduled to start until Wednesday, but an exhibition match Tuesday is expected to attract a large gallery.

In the exhibition match will be Elinor Jones, youthful New Mexico state champion, Mrs. Will O'Connell of San Angelo, runner-up in the recent Women's West Texas tournament. Obie Bristow, long-driving Big Spring veteran, and John Edminson, Lubbock ace. Play will start at 3:30.

Favorites are listed as Miss Jones, Mrs. Jesse A. Rogers, Amarillo country club champion; Mrs. Theron Hicks, winner of last year's Big Spring invitational; Mrs. C. L. Dean, Lubbock city champion, Mrs. Gordon Phillips, local country club champion; Mrs. Joe Brown, Mineral Wells country club champion.

Mrs. Ben Harrison of Austin, who played in the recent Trans-Mississippi tourney at San Antonio, is due here tonight. Mrs. Hicks, as defending champion, will not be required to qualify, but will probably try for medal honors.

A $1 registration fee will entitle all non-players to take part in the social functions, members of the tournament committee said this morning. Qualifying will start Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock. A buffet supper is scheduled for Wednesday evening and Calcuts Pool in the ballroom of the Settles hotel Wednesday night.

A dance will be held at the country club Friday night.

GRANT IS LISTED AS DOUBTFUL STARTER
LONDON, June 21 (AP)—Al-though Bryan (Bilky) Grant was listed as a very doubtful starter, the American delegation including nearly a dozen good players was nearly about the strongest for any one nation as the annual all-England championships began today.

Grant, who caught a severe cold just before leaving the United States, remained in bed as Don Budge led the American Davis cup forces into action.

Budge, top-seeded player in the tournament above the German team, Gottfried Von Cramm and Henrich Henkel, drew the toughest opposition on today's list. He faced Norman G. Farguherson, South African Davis cup player who once beat Fred Perry at Wimbledon.

Bedford Titlist
CISCO, June 21 (AP)—Fred Bedford of Brady held the championship of the sixth annual invitation golf tournament of the Cisco country club today.

Enters Tourney

Mrs. Will O'Connell of San Angelo, finalist in the recent women's West Texas Golf Association tournament, will compete in the Big Spring women's invitational this week and will play in an exhibition match Tuesday with Elinor Jones, Obie Bristow and Johnny Edminson.

HARRY TODD SIX UNDER PAR TO PACE THE INVADING BRIGADE
DENVER, June 21 (AP)—Blistering scoring in practice rounds on the wooded Cherry Hills course is presaging a bitter battle for the Trans-Mississippi golf crown this week.

Harry Todd, husky young Texas open champion from Dallas, paced the invading brigade with a 66, six under par. Ed Kingsley of Magna, Utah, who last year was the first amateur to win the Colorado open, has reported a 69 and 70.

Jimmy Manion of St. Louis, "trans" champion in 1924, and Don Schumacher of Dallas, hung up 70s. Johnny Dawson of Chicago, defending champion, and Jack Munger and Reynolds Smith, members of the select Dallas delegation, all have turned in 71's.

Dawson teamed with Manion yesterday to pin a 2-and-1 defeat on John Kraft, of Denver, and Frank J. English, Denver.

Munger and Rufus King, Jr., of Wichita Falls, beat E. J. Rogers, Oklahoma City, and Reynolds Smith, Walker cup player, 1 up. Kingsley, who reported a 72, even par, joined O'Hara Watts, Dallas, in posing out Todd and Leland of Paris, Tex. Trans-Mississippi champion three years ago, 1 up.

COSDEN OILERS RUN OVER BROWNFIELD 25-3

J. MORGAN TALLIES FIVE RUNS

Paced by lanky Jake Morgan who tallied five runs, and Pitcher Charley Morgan who accounted for four, Pepper Martin's Cosden Oilers had a "field day" against Brownfield here Sunday afternoon, clouting three pitchers for twenty hits and scoring 25 runs for a 25 to 3 victory.

Herring, who was pounded for nine runs in the first three innings, gave way to Estes who was also ineffective on the mound, and West took over hurling duty for Brownfield in the sixth.

The visitors managed only six hits.

TOLEDO STAYS HOT AFTER MINNEAPOLIS
CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—Toledo stayed hot at the heels of Minneapolis in the American Association game here today, while a duel developed in the circuit's hitting leadership last weekend.

Johnny Rizzo of Columbus had held the lead, but Enos Slaughter's outfield mate, took it over yesterday with a .395 against Rizzo's .386.

Toledo whipped Milwaukee 6-2 in the second game of a double bill after dropping the first 13-2. Kansas City came out with a pair of victories over Columbus, 10-5, and 15-8, collecting 18 hits in the second.

Calm Settles Over Scene Of Title Fight

No Last-Minute Legal Attempts To Halt Championship Contest
CHICAGO, June 21 (AP)—The world's heavyweight championship fight between James J. Braddock and Bomber Joe Louis, set for Comiskey park, home of the Chicago White Sox, tomorrow night, moved toward its climax with amazing calm today.

There were no arguments about the selection of a referee, no last-minute legal attempts to halt the contest, no ticket scandal and very little if any—wagging on the outcome.

Yet the bout, scheduled for 15 rounds or less, will be assured of financial success, with indications pointing to an attendance of 60,000 and gate receipts of from $700,000 to $750,000. Out of this will go perhaps $300,000 to Braddock, who only four years ago was on federal relief, and possibly $100,000 to Louis, who only four years ago was a $9-a-day automobile factory worker.

All the ballyhoo about Louis being sluggish in his drills and the champion being too old to retain his title against the dynamite-laden fists of the 2-year-old negro have failed to stimulate betting. The bout is liable to go down as one of the lightest wagers in ring history, for fear of Louis' devastating punching power.

Louis probably will enter the ring a favorite at odds that may be 3 to 7, one of the few times a challenger ever has become a favorite over the heavyweight champion, and the only time a challenger went into the ring in a heavyweight bout at such long odds.

Braddock left his training camp at Grand Beach, Mich., today, motoring to Chicago to remain in seclusion until time to weigh in at noon Tuesday at the Auditorium theater. Louis intends to remain in his palatial quarters on the shore of Lake Michigan six miles north of Kenosha, Wis., until coming to Chicago tomorrow to jump on the scales. He figures to weigh about 198, with Braddock coming in at 196.

Braddock was in high spirits as he brought to an end his long training siege and predicted he would win by a knockout in eight rounds.

If Braddock goes he'll go early, according to the experts, and the longer he stays the longer and sadder the night will be for Louis.

SPORT SPARKS
By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT
DALLAS, June 21 (AP)—Final exams left the majority of Southwest Conference footballers firmly on their feet, a survey revealed. Only Rice Institute, where scholastic requirements come high, reported heavy casualties.

Quarterback Jack Russell and Frank Goodell of the second string and "Speedy" Moore, promising sophomore end and halfback, failed to make the grade. Coach Jimmie Kirts, however, wasn't too down hearted for none was considered a star. All varsity players made the rifle at Texas Christian and the registrar's office revealed Ki Aldrich, bruising center, stunned all by batting five for five in the textbook league.

Coach Tommie Thomsen at Arkansas reported all made the grade there, as did Texas A. and M., Baylor and Southern Methodist. The Grades won't be available at the University of Texas for several days.

Odds and ends: For the benefit of those who wondered about the brief absence of Umpire Chet Fowler from Texas league games, he was "farmed out" to the Evangeline league. One of Walter Morris' umpires suffered a broken leg and Fowler was hurried over into Louisiana until a replacement could be made. Sciply Milton Price of the Texas league confides that attendance figures show the circuit is better than five per cent ahead of last year's figures.

Dallas high schools should have ready by September 1, 1938, a half million dollar athletic plant, including a stadium with 32,000 seating capacity. David (Spec) Goldman, who can't forget that 1934 national amateur finals match when he lost to Lawson Little, will come out of retirement to play in the amateur links classics again this summer. The freckled lathe worker quit golf two seasons ago when it interfered with his work.

Jelly Sorelle, third of a string of Southwest Conference stars, Dallas Steers have tried this season, came through nobly in his first job on the hill. Ex-Texas Longhorn Norman Branch, once the conference's best hurler, is chinking winning ball with the Norfolk Tars over in the Piedmont league—and Johnny Rizzo, Houston's leading cardener last year who didn't quite stick with the Cardinals, was hitting .396 with the Baltimore Orioles in last average released. Jim Moore, dropped by the Fort Worth Cats, believes at 30 he is through with baseball. The veteran righthand pitcher says "it's a fine game but I'm ready to quit now."

OSORAS CLINCH TITLE
Pitcher Smith for the league-leadering Ozoras of the Permian Basin, blanked the Texas Oilers, 4 to 0, Sunday afternoon in Sonora in a game cut short in the seventh inning by rain. By virtue of the victory, the Ozoras clinched the first half title in the league as Crane lost the second straight Sunday to Irann, 12 to 11. The slugfest was played in Crane.

Red Sox And Cards Feature Big Weekend
The Boston Bees joined the Cincinnati Reds in the National League cellar, and the Athletics did the same with the bewildered Browns in the American League.

Here was the set up:
The Cardinals were in second place in the National League. Lon Warneke pitched a four hitter and Dizzy Dean a five hitter to belt the stragglers Bees 2 and 9-1 yesterday. Dizzy's doings made him the first ten game winner of the year, and Ducky Medwick walloped homer No. 15.

The Giants, still minus the winning ways of Carl Hubbell, sagged to third place, although they won their single game from the Reds yesterday, 4-3, with the aid of the breaks.

The year's top crowd, 68,939, packed Yankee stadium to see Murderer's Row pound the White Sox all over the lot and win twice 8-4 and 7-4, with the aid of five homers, including No. 15 for Joe DiMaggio. Lefty Gomez turned in a six hitter in the opener and Monte Pearson made his first start after a month long layoff in the nightcap.

After extending their winning streak to six straight, longest in two years, by taking the double bill opener from the Indians, 5-2, the Red Sox dropped the nightcap 8-7, but still retained fourth place. Detroit's Tigers took advantage of tight throwing by Elden Auker and Tommy Bridges and flogged the floundering Athletics in a pair, 6-3 and 8-1.

Yankees Turn In Homer-Hitting Specialty For Record Crowd
By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer
Week-end baseball left standings in both loops almost unrecogized.

The Red Sox stayed hot; the Cardinals were hotter; the Tigers were rather warm themselves. The Yankees teed off in their home hitting specialty for the entertainment of the season's biggest crowd; the Giants' nose dive turned into a landslide.

The Boston Bees joined the Cincinnati Reds in the National League cellar, and the Athletics did the same with the bewildered Browns in the American League.

Detroit's Tigers took advantage of tight throwing by Elden Auker and Tommy Bridges and flogged the floundering Athletics in a pair, 6-3 and 8-1.

This twin whipping dropped the A's into a last place tie, as the Browns were unable to do much with Wes Ferrell and lost 5-3 in their single game with the Senators. It was three straight for Ferrell since he traded his Red Sox uniform for the Nat special.

After spending a day in the National League cellar, the Phillies decided it wasn't what they wanted, and not only climbed out again, but advanced all the way to sixth with a 6-5 conquest of the league leading Chicago Cubs. The victory boosted the Phils past both the Reds and Bees, and cut the Cubs' pace setting margin to one slim game.

It was Van Mungo to the rescue again as the Dodgers split with the Pittsburgh Pirates. After dropping the opener 4-2 to Joe Bowman's effective elbowing, the Brooklyn team teed off on Red Lucas in the nightcap, and then had to call on their fireball ace to save the situation and a 4-2 decision.

Pitcher Smith for the league-leadering Ozoras of the Permian Basin, blanked the Texas Oilers, 4 to 0, Sunday afternoon in Sonora in a game cut short in the seventh inning by rain. By virtue of the victory, the Ozoras clinched the first half title in the league as Crane lost the second straight Sunday to Irann, 12 to 11. The slugfest was played in Crane.

TEXAS ANTI-TRUST LAWS

Validity of Texas anti-trust statutes is upheld in the state supreme court's decision in the long-pending oil suits instituted by James V. Allred while he was attorney general, and prosecution of the cases in which Texas asks more than seventeen million dollars in penalties will be reinstated. The court's opinion contains a blanket approval of the anti-trust laws as well as a reversal of lower court decisions applying the laws to the oil companies involved in the litigation; and the way is made clear for the institution of general enforcement of the statutes which for the past three years or more have been completely inoperative.

The oil suits involved a number of interesting questions. A first contention of the defendants was that the NRA codes had superseded the state anti-trust laws and made them invalid. A second defense was that the codes constituted an industrial agreement among the several companies had been approved and authorized by the federal trade commission, and that this approval gave immunity from prosecution under state laws. A third contention was a general attack upon the anti-trust laws on the ground that they were discriminatory because of the exemption of agricultural products and livestock while in the hands of producers.

The supreme court passed adversely upon all these claims. The NRA has been invalidated by the United States supreme court. The federal trade commission has no authority to set aside state statutes governing intrastate business and industry. Exemption of farm cooperatives and similar organizations is not discriminatory, and does not vitiate the anti-trust laws insofar as their application to illegal combinations in restraint of trade is concerned.

What may be the ultimate outcome of the oil suits is uncertain, of course. The cases will be tried through the courts on their merits, and final decision will be deferred for a long time. The people of the state find a great deal of satisfaction, however, in the state supreme court's decision. There seems to be no menacing prevalence of business and industrial combinations in restraint of trade within Texas, but certainly there is a need for statutory protection against them and for means of prosecuting them if and when they appear. If a state were powerless to give its citizens this protection then indeed there would be occasion for fearing the downfall of democracy.

+ Man About Manhattan +

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Billy Rose, the smug and contented, bobbed up with the right idea when Cleveland invited him to do something nice for the Great Lakes Exposition this summer. The man who would like to take a small Balkan war on tour, if he can find one, has a rosette palace, on pontoons, hitched to the shores of Lake Erie, and in it is America's No. 1 water-baby, Eleanor Holm Jarrett, plus Johnny Weismuller, the No. 1 Tarzan, and all the current diving and swimming champions who competed in the Olympics last fall. The result has been startling in the extreme.

For Rose, who likes to produce circuses in opera houses and whose stunts have enlivened state and world fairs, has now come through with a musical comedy that takes place in water.

It's like this. You're seated at a table, dining on pheasant or brook trout, in a blue, cool theater as large as a football stadium. Suddenly the stage backs out into Lake Erie, leaving twenty feet of water (in depth) between you and the stage. On each side towers rise to startling heights, each adorned by half a dozen diving boards. From these boards all to music, that is just as good, if not better, than the diving champions go into an exhibition of fancy diving, judges themselves saw at the Olympics.

After that about 200 shapely lassies come out and slip gracefully into the water, swimming to music, forming beautiful patterns in the water and achieving an almost unbelievable effect in rhythm and beauty. The most breathtaking scene is when the mermaids, adorned with luminous bathing caps and gloves, dip into the waves and frisk like porpoises while exotic lights play upon them and casts an enchantment that lasts for hours after the show is over and the audience has left its seats to dance to the strains of Wayne King's romantic waltzes.

They do things in Cleveland in a big way, and a lot of people are wondering why New York has never had such a show as Billy Rose's Aquacade, with its world champion divers spinning pin-wheels from a height of 60 feet, to music, and its swarms of water-nymphs engaged in languid routines through the crystal waves of Lake Erie.

(Hey, Billy, New York's gonna have a world fair in 1939. How about it?)

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

THE NEW GAME

One of our columnist colleagues, Mr. Jay Franklin, who is an apologist for the Administration with which he has been, and may still be, connected, called my column of June 11 an "avalanche of tosh." Then he proceeded in his own column to demonstrate that it was not tosh at all.

For in that column I submitted a series of bills had been introduced by the Administration which add up to a revolution in the American form of government.

I submitted that these bills for the reorganization of the executive, the reorganization of the executive, the regulation of hours and wages, and water and flood control—taken together, are nothing less than a proposal to do away with the government of checks and balances, make the Supreme Court a party instrument, break down forever the right of the states, and give us government by a set of party commissars from a central executive and an anonymous secretariat.

Now, Mr. Franklin, after courteously calling "tosh" and "lory" on that plane of argument which more and more becomes typical of higher criticism in our democracy, proceeds to explain that "what is coming out of Washington is no longer the New Deal. It is the New Game."

The correction is excellent. A New Deal suggests that a new hand is being dealt in a game whose rules are established, and which every one is playing. A New Game means just what it says: The whole game has been changed. It happens, in this case, to have been changed without consulting most of the players. The Dealer apparently knows what it is, but the rest of us haven't been quite sure. Formerly he was the New Dealer. Now he is just the Dealer.

Mr. Franklin claims that he has an inside track in Washington, to the anonymous little groups who are at present writing most of our legislation. I am prepared to take his word for it. And he tells us what this New Game is.

It is, he says, "the substitution of party government for a government of checks and balances, the creation of a new Constitution, by judicial interpretation of direct amendment, the union of organized labor and organized agriculture with the young, so as to hold a decisive advantage in the elimination of sectional politics, and the construction of a legislative program which will promote all of these objects at one and the same time."

So it turns out that although my column was "tosh," Mr. Franklin agrees with my analysis. The "tosh" is in my not agreeing with Mr. Franklin that this is all hunky-dory.

And Mr. Franklin agrees that this is revolutionary. "This is more than a political battle," he said. "It is a political war—a war fought within the framework of our semi-democratic institutions as yet without serious violence, but a war for the greatest stake something more—the control of the wealth and energies of 125,000,000 Americans." Mr. Franklin's description is not tosh. He has described what is going on very clearly.

We are to change the traditional governmental system for party government. Now, we always have had party government, but Mr. Franklin obviously means something new. He tells us it is to be party government "with new party disciplines," which "will continuously attract the young and unsatisfied." Mr. Roosevelt's personal leadership is to be transformed in to a "party leadership."

I hope that I understand Mr. Franklin correctly. The President of the United States is not to be an executive charged to carry out policies designed by a Congress in which there is minority representation. He is not to be the President of a whole people. He is to be the President of a party, a party continuously purged of minorities and continually disciplined. He is to be an authoritarian party leader, of workmen, peasants, and youth, who lay down the principles which the party shall follow, or otherwise be "purged."

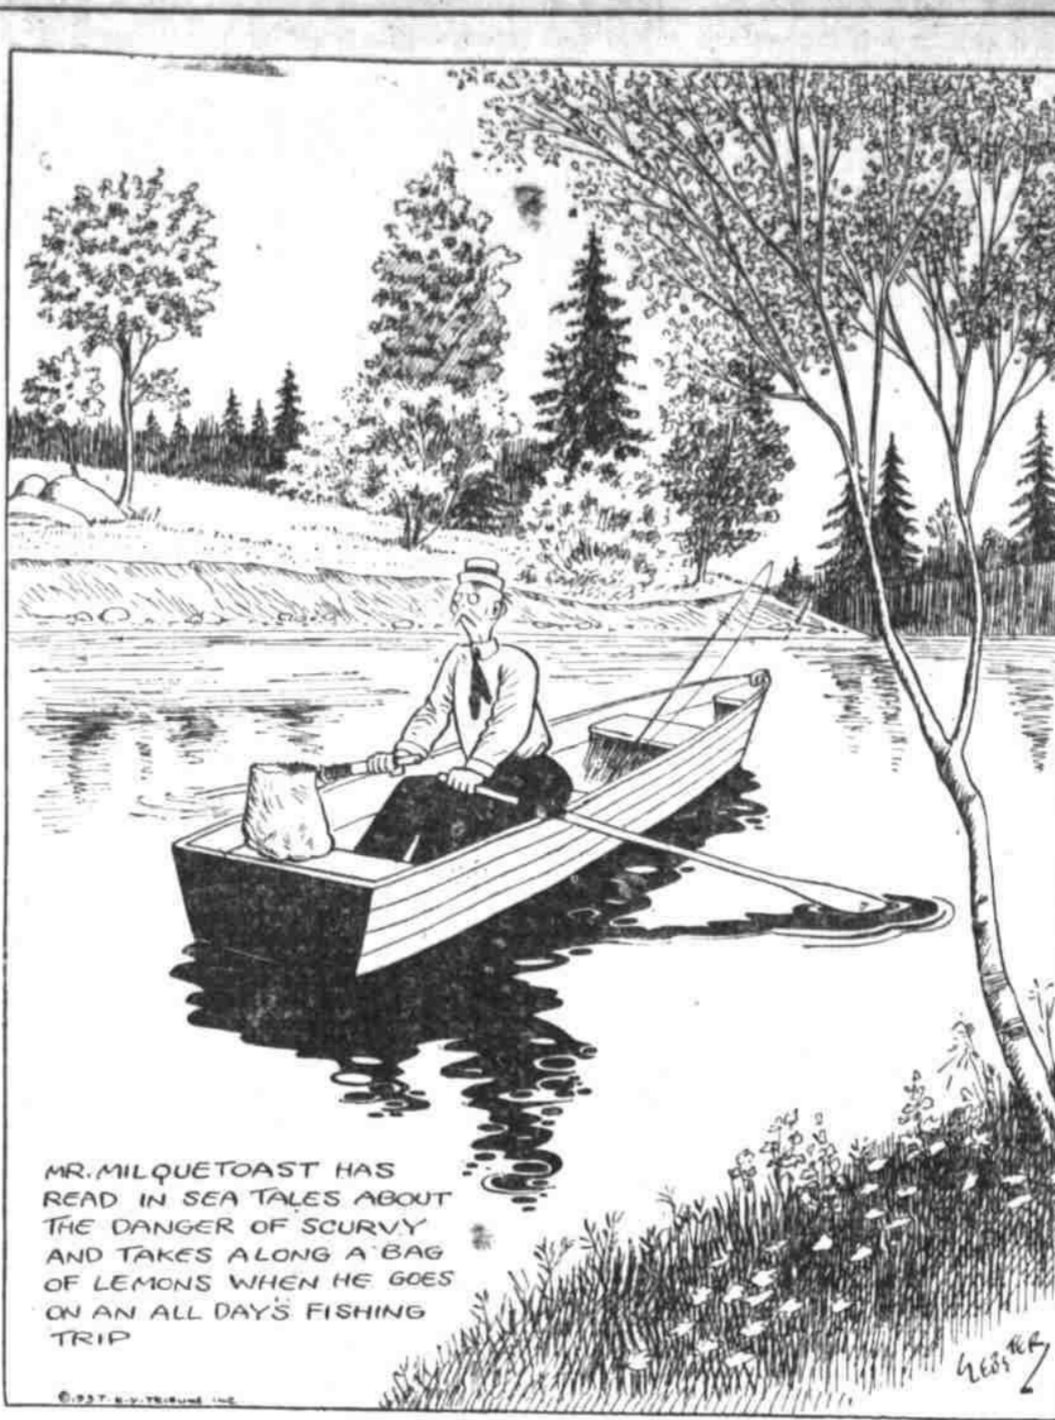

Interesting. And this kind of party government is one-party government. Mr. Franklin hopes that the purge will be automatic. Those who don't like the program will get out and keep still. And if they don't do so?

Shall we turn to the Russian news, any day these days, or to the Germans, for the answer? We are, according to Mr. Franklin, in a war fought as yet without violence. The words as yet are realistic and ominous. And the war is for the control of the wealth and energies of 125,000,000 Americans. And whoever opposes this program of "general welfare" is a "tory." And those who are for it are "liberals."

I had always thought that liberals believed that the wealth and energy of 125,000,000 Americans should be controlled by themselves. But it seems that I am wrong. Liberalism means that they should be controlled by a "purged" and "disciplined" party.

I remember that Mr. Franklin is a great admirer of the Russian Communist party, and that some time ago he wrote a book called "Our Lords and Masters," which contained an able defense of Adolf that Garbo doesn't like her billing (defendant) in this legal drama. And she doesn't want to play opposite David Strasser, the former European film producer who wrote the screen play. She doesn't like, especially, the story that Strasser advanced her $10,000 12 years ago when she needed help on a screen career. And she wants a change of title because she thinks "L.O.U." is a misnomer.

A big help, all of that. But will Garbo be there, in person, June 21 when the curtain goes up on the second "take"? Or will it fizzle, like the first, when the star failed to show?

Fros And Cons
Garbo's excuse, that time, was that she was working on a picture. It looks as if she'll still be working on a picture. Strasser's legal second argued that picture-work was no reason to skip a date with the court. Garbo's legal ditto, winning the postponement, said she'd be there next time.

And that's how it stands, that you're sure, as Hollywood is, that if there's any way for Garbo to escape the rude stars of the multitude she'll take it.
Garbo puzzles, too—and this is Garbo.

CHAPTER XXVIII
"He ain't come yet, Miss O'Malley," said Rosetta, in answer to Fritzie's frantic query when she got Brookdale on the telephone. "You say he's on his way? Then you just rest yourself easy. I'll answer the bell myself and he won't be in the door before I tell him he's to call you right off."
"Be sure now, Rosetta," insisted Fritzie. "It's very important—to everybody."
She waited until Rosetta had repeated her promise before hanging the phone on the hook and turning to Kiffie.

"This is going to shoot the devil out of Duke's plans," she said, "unless Rosetta sees him before Carol and Madison get at him. Me go to Europe with him! Would he roar at that one? Don't you know he's crazy about Carol and she is about him?"
Kiffie's voice was plaintive when he answered her.
"But Kiffie, if Carol is in love with Duke, why would she double-cross him—and us—by taking Dixie away?"
Fritzie looked at and spoke to him as one does to a child.
"Women are queer ducks. Especially when they're in love."
"Men, too, I guess; because when Dixie told me that about you and Duke, I fell for it."
"Never mind, Kiffie," said Fritzie loyally. "You were a fool to swallow that one. But I know it was because you love me."
"But look what I've done," moaned Kiffie. "Maybe you won't marry me now—I couldn't blame you if you didn't. But it would break my heart."
"I'm going to marry you, Kiffie," Fritzie promised, "but I tell you this: I'll never let you out of my sight for a single minute. Another snake-in-the-grass like Dixie, might slide up to you and the Lord only knows what kind of a cock-and-bull story he'd tell you and you'd fall for it."
"If you really will forgive me—and marry me, I promise I'll never be jealous again as long as I live," Fritzie squeezed his hand.

"You can order the Lohengrin march any time, honey. It will be O.K. with me. It's a queer thing—you're jealous, you hate horses, even if you do buy 'em for me, you can't stand being around races, and that's where I come alive, and you've just pulled a class A boner! But nevertheless and notwithstanding, I love you."
"And I love you," Kiffie stiffened. Fritzie saw it. "There you go again," she sighed. "I can't even mention the city's name without your being jealous. Can't I even feel sorry for him—after all you've let him in for?"
"Yes, yes, of course, I won't be jealous any more—honestly I won't."
Fritzie glanced at the clock anxiously. Kiffie did not need to be told what she was thinking.
"Yes, he should be there by now," he said. "You'd better call him again, dear."
Rosetta had not failed Fritzie. She opened the door before Duke had rung the bell.

"You're to call Miss O'Malley right quick, Mr. Duke. She just phoned and she is something powerful important."
"All right, Rosetta—I'll phone just as soon as I've spoken to Mr. Madison. He's waiting for me and that is powerful important, too."
"But she seemed all excited," protested Rosetta. "She said you was to phone right away quick. And I promised her I'd be there."
"O.K., Rosetta. If you say I'm to phone her first, who am I to do anything else?"
He went to the little room off the entrance hall. He was just about to call the number, when Hartley Madison came in.

"Oh, you're here," said Madison. "We've been waiting for you."
"Just got in this minute. Rosie told me there was a message to call Fritzie right away."
Madison had had long experience in big business deals, in appearing calm on the surface, when he was racked with anxiety. It stood him in good stead now. His voice was quite even and casual when he spoke.
"Oh, did she? Well, Carol ought to be getting back to her guests. Let's get our little matter settled first—it won't take but a minute."
"Fine," said Duke rising from the chair and following him into the next room. "That's what I came on for. Whether Fritzie wants isn't so important."
Carol had never looked so beautiful before—or so Duke thought when she joined them. He was seeing her for the first time with the knowledge pounding through his brain that he loved her. He thought she looked like sunlight and flowers. He did not see the tiny gleam of revenge behind heavy lids or her quick glance at Madison. He saw only a beautiful girl whom he loved. It was hard to take his eyes from her, but he must. This was not the time to tell her all that was in his heart—even his face might betray it. He turned to Madison.

"Still want to bet on Moon Ray?" he asked jauntily.
"That's why I got you here, Duke. She's my horse. It wouldn't be quite cricket, would it, if I didn't bet on her?"
"Don't forget," said Carol, a de-colving note of warning in her voice, "that I've told you how I feel about it."
Duke turned to her.
"You can't blame him, Carol, if you and Madison don't see eye-to-eye on this. Even with Dixie on Lightning, Madison still has a darn swell horse in Moon Ray."
"That's what I say, and I'm willing to prove I mean it," said Mr. Madison. "What odds can you get?"

"Ten to seven."
"That's all right with me."
"How much do you want?"
Duke held his breath. This was the big moment. He took his cigar from his mouth and put it down on an ash-tray. It was placed in exactly the same position as the one had been in Carol's bedroom in the Los Angeles hotel. Hartley saw it. His suspicion was confirmed. There was violence in his voice when he answered Duke's question.
"Fifty thousand."
"O.K.," said Duke and in his excitement he did not wonder why Carol, who had appeared sullen, now looked grimly triumphant. "You can make it more, if you want to."
"What's the most you could cover?"
Duke didn't answer for a moment. He strolled over to the window and looked out across the garden to the white stables, gleaming in the moonlight. When he spoke, there was a new note in his voice.
"A great spot here, Madison. A few thousand would make it just about the loveliest place in the world—with some new barns stocked with thoroughbreds."
"I asked you what's the most you could cover," said Madison sharply.
"So you did. Would you want to make that bet?—he paused—"a hundred thousand?"
"O.K.," Madison agreed. They shook hands on it. Madison was jubilant. But Duke was on the mountain tops. There was a knock on the door and Rosetta stuck her head in.
"Excuse me everybody," she said. "But Miss O'Malley is on the wire again—says she's got to speak to Mr. Duke right away, fast."
Duke excused himself and walked briskly into the next room. Carol and Hartley looked at each other but they did not speak until they were alone. Then he spoke.

"That was Duke's cigar you smoked that morning in Los Angeles?"
"What did you say?" Carol asked in a cold voice.
"Duke had been in your bedroom! Hadn't he?"
She stared at him. His face was ugly with jealousy, anger and something like hatred. She felt that she was choking, but by a great effort she spoke and there was icy scorn in her voice.
"If you want to believe that, all right. You can believe he was hidden under my bed, even, if you want to!"
Her words and her tone disconcerted Madison.
"I don't want to believe it!" he said.
"But you do—do you?" she asked, looking him squarely in the eye.
She had conquered him, for the moment at least. He took her hand.
"Darling," he cried.
Duke came back into the room. He had his hat. He knew the truth—one look at his face and Carol and Madison knew that in some way, Fritzie had discovered what had happened and had told him.
"Goodnight, folks," said Duke.
"Going, Duke?" asked Madison.
"Yes," he answered. "I've got to help Fritzie dig up another jockey to ride Lightning."
Madison saw the look on Carol's against her will, she admired Duke for the way in which he was taking it. But there was a chance he could show him up. It was worth taking. There was a challenging note in his voice when he spoke.
"You suppose, Duke," he said, "that now you'll want to watch on that bet?"
"Would you?" Duke shot at him.
For a moment Madison was stunned.
"Why—why, certainly not," he said.
"Then, it is still on."
Duke started for the door. He stopped short before a shelf full of silver cups that the long line of Brookdale horses had won. For a moment he studied them. He picked up the smallest one. It was shaped like a mug.
"Mind if I take this along?" he asked with a wry smile.
They looked at him, unable to answer. He tucked it under his arm.
"Thank you for the silent consent," he said. "It won't be missed here. And I may need it after the Hopeful, tomorrow, you know."
Carol and Madison still could not speak. Duke said no more. He walked quickly to the door. Then he was gone.

"Have Hartley and Duke shown Carol of what they are made in this crisis? Does she now think that revenge is not so sweet? She earns more about her two men in tomorrow's installment. Don't miss it!"

also yesterday to greet his countrymen after their unscheduled landing 692 miles short of their California goal, would leave for San Francisco at 3 p. m. They will not fly in the pole-hopping plane but instead will ride southward in a great Douglas cabin monoplane chartered from United Air Lines to bring the ambassador here yesterday. The fliers plane will be dismantled here and shipped back to Russia. The fliers, landing after sleepless, nerve-straining hours at one point of which the Polar air force even their drinking water, were pleased when from among a group of Americans whose English left them stumped they heard a young man shout: "Sidetrachi!" ("hello" in Russian). It was the first word they understood in a strange land and thereafter until a guard of soldiers was assigned the distinguished visitors, George Kozmetsky was their companion. The men, despite the long hours, did not appear exhausted although they swayed slightly, regaining their land legs. In a subsequent radio broadcast in which Ambassador Troyanovsky acted as interpreter, paraphrasing the fliers' remarks, Chelakoff revealed that the most trying parts of the flight were in stormy weather over the Bering Sea, Franz Josef Land, Patrick Land and near the North Pole. But for the weather, the pilot said he could have made San Francisco, as he had enough gasoline left out of the original 2,000 gallons to fly 750 miles. Bellakoff in answer to questions of the ambassador said in Troyanovsky's words: "They think that the problem of a regular air route is very much physical. They believe that over such a course planes should be equipped to fly high—say 7,000 to 10,000 meters." They said their flight was made at altitudes ranging from 4,000 to 6,000 meters, and the plane, not built for speed, averaged 100 miles an hour.

ren, 14 miles from Youngstown. The threat developed immediately after Judge Lynn B. Griffith, in a courtroom crowded with grim strikers, granted the Republic Steel Corp. an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets. "If a general strike is called, it will be done quickly and without advance notice," said John McKeown, C.I.O. organizer at Warren. In Cleveland, John L. Lewis, the C.I.O. strike generalissimo, stalked silent from the federal mediation board conference after an hour and a half of discussion on the moot question of signed labor contracts—the prime matter of dispute in the 7-state "battle of steel" which has set more than 100,000 men idle in the Great Lakes region. Bethlehem officials declined to close the mills that have kept smoke rolling despite CIO's picket line. They bowed to the governor's will only when he invoked martial law and told Bethlehem he would close the mills by force of arms, if necessary. Gov. Earle planned to fly to Johnstown for a brief survey of the strike situation today. Under the same roof at the Cleveland mediation conference will be two bitter enemies of the steel-labor controversy: Tom Girdler, Republic Steel's chairman who generally chooses strong words, and John L. Lewis, leader of the Committee for Industrial Organization which seeks mass rather than craft unionization. Back-to-work movements, which have been persistent in some sections, brought from CIO yesterday the threat of a general strike. At Warren, O., Jack McKeown, CIO organizer, said that "if John Q. Public persists in back to work movements to break the strike at the Republic Steel Corporation plant, a general strike of all union labor will be called in Warren by the central labor board, representing 6,000 to 7,000 CIO and AFL members. Casualties in the Youngstown bullet-punctuated battle numbered 30 wounded or injured, police said, but CIO leaders claimed 50 fell in the clash.

Purnell Starts Fire-works The first blast in the "back-to-work" movement came from Frank Purnell, president of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, who announced in defiance of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' plea for maintenance of the status quo—that he would attempt to re-open the three strike-sieged company plants in Youngstown at 7 a. m. tomorrow. At the same time Republic Steel Corporation announced it would attempt to re-open one of its mills tomorrow morning. Two were killed and 26 injured at the mill Saturday night in a battle between strikers and city police. The defiant orders to re-open came as strike leaders, headed by John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, entered a conference with federal mediators here in an effort to find a peaceful solution of the Great Lakes steel strike. Sit-down strikes in sheet and tube mills have been threatened by union leaders if there was any back-to-work attempt. Informed observers believed the re-opening orders may have been issued with advance knowledge of a truce to be reached at the Cleveland conference. It was believed that the conference may agree to appeal the issue to the national labor relations board, and thence to the supreme court for final decision on the moot question whether the Wagner act requires signed contracts. The strike hinges on this point—the refusal of the steel companies to sign contracts. Significant of that belief were the remarks of Mr. Purnell as he left Youngstown for Cleveland today. "Why let women and children go hungry on an abstract question that can probably be settled in the court?" he asked. At Warren, Ohio, Judge Lynn Griffith in Trumbull county common pleas court granted a petition of Republic Steel for an injunction restraining the activities of strike pickets. On the Johnstown front of the strike, the great Cambria works of Bethlehem Steel were closed under a martial law proclamation of Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania. "Right tipped as to plans and hopes of the mediation conference, the steel union leaders and the federal mediation board continued deliberations behind locked doors in a Cleveland hotel suite. Headed by Charles P. Taft, the board has as other members Lloyd E. Garrison of the University of Wisconsin, and Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor. "We are mediators, not arbitrators," said Charles P. Taft II, chairman of the board-of-three which swung into action for the government in the seven-state tie-up of steel plants. "We have no power to compel" settlement. We cannot make the four steel corporations sign contracts, as the CIO demands; nor can we compel the CIO to call off the strike that has put 100,000 men out of work. We can only try to find a meeting ground for peace. There was fresh blood on the 26-day-old strike as it was spread today upon the mediators' table in a Cleveland hotel room; the blood of James E. Spurgeon, a strike picket. He died last night, his chest ripped by charges of buckshot fired in a three hour fight between pickets and police at Youngstown, O., Saturday night. Another picket had died during the fighting. They brought the strike death list to 12 "Bloody Homestead, Pa." early one July day in 1892, saw only ten die. Steel came to the mediation conference with a new grievance, born of the enforced closing by order of Pennsylvania's Governor Earle of Johnstown Steel's great mills at Johnstown, Pa. The governor asked that the mills be closed "to avoid bloodshed," for he feared the tense feeling between strikers and non-strikers might flare beyond control of local officials. Bethlehem officials declined to close the mills that have kept smoke rolling despite CIO's picket line. They bowed to the governor's will only when he invoked martial law and told Bethlehem he would close the mills by force of arms, if necessary. Gov. Earle planned to fly to Johnstown for a brief survey of the strike situation today. Under the same roof at the Cleveland mediation conference will be two bitter enemies of the steel-labor controversy: Tom Girdler, Republic Steel's chairman who generally chooses strong words, and John L. aining decree powers to deal with a rapidly emptying treasury. Paris took the cabinet resignation calmly, though unverified reports of a general workers' strike were heard. The franc strengthened immediately after Blum's resignation. It was quoted at 22.30 to the dollar in the morning unofficial market, as compared to 22.4575 at Friday's official close. At the official close today, however, the franc was only slightly stronger than Friday at 22.4475 to the dollar. The fall of the Blum government was regarded in all quarters as of great international importance because of the role it played in the Spanish situation and its efforts with the United States and Great Britain through a tri-pa. its monetary accord to work for currency stabilization.

PLANES ARE POISED FOR LONG FLIGHT

SAN DIEGO, Calif., June 21 (AP)—A squadron of 12 huge navy twin-motored patrol planes were poised today for the longest mass non-stop flight in U. S. naval history. The ships, carrying 16 officers and 56 enlisted men, are bound for Coco Solo, Canal Zone. The air base there is 3,000 miles from San Diego. The flight is described as merely a "routine" delivery of the new ships, which were constructed here at the Consolidated Aircraft corporation plant. These last additions to the navy's air armada have wing spreads of 104 feet. Navy authorities have guarded with customary secrecy all construction, offensive and performance details of the new ships. The trip, set to begin sometime today, will be almost entirely over water—down the coast of Mexico and Central America. It is expected to be ended within 30 hours.

Detectives Pose As Traveling Salesman To Capture William Hutto

TULSA, Okla., June 21 (AP)—Two police detectives who impersonated traveling salesmen by carrying brief cases and handbags captured a man wanted for kidnaping in Dallas today. The man gave the name of William Hutto, 19, of Dallas. Police Captain J. D. Bills received information that Hutto was in the alleged abduction of a deputy at Dallas three weeks ago would be at the bus depot today. Detectives L. D. Kern and A. M. Smith, supplied with salesmen's accoutrements to ally suspicion, made the arrest after observing Hutto's actions for an hour following the arrival of a Texas bus. At headquarters the detective said Hutto told them a deputy sheriff came to his home to arrest him on a theft charge. He and members of his family overpowered the deputy and drove him to his own car toward Denison. Just outside Denison the deputy was handcuffed to a tree and left there with two lunches. Hutto and his companions then drove into Oklahoma. Hutto signed a waiver of extradition and information was received that Texas officers were en route here to return him.

LOCAL THEATRES NOT INCLUDED IN SALE

Three motion picture houses in Big Spring, the Ritz, Lyric and Queen, are not included in the deal whereby the Robb and Rowley organization disposed of half interest in most of its theatre holdings. It was announced Monday by J. Y. Robb on his return from California. The three theatres here have been owned by Harold and J. Y. Robb as a separate unit. The brothers are retaining complete ownership, Robb said. Half-interest in some 80 theatres in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas was sold by Robb and Rowley to the United Artists Theatres, Inc., in a deal announced last week. Management of the circuit will remain unchanged. J. Y. Robb returned Sunday night from California where he, Harold Robb and Ed Rowley have been during the negotiations. He was accompanied home by Roy Carter.

Faces Murder Charge In Slaying Of Negro

HOUSTON, June 21 (AP)—John Elmore, 39, faced a charge of murder today in connection with the slaying of Frank Wright, 30, a negro, who Elmore said attempted to attack his wife. The shooting occurred yesterday at a camp where Elmore and his wife, Mrs. Bertha Elmore, 34, and his stepson, Willie Weaver, lived. Elmore told officers he and his wife and stepson were sleeping outdoors due to the heat and that they were awakened by a dog barking and saw a negro lying in the grass nearby. Elmore said Willie leaped out of bed and threw a stick at the negro, who jumped up, ran to the bed and stuck a pistol against Elmore's back and told him to "get going." Elmore said he ran to a nearby home and borrowed a pistol and that when he returned to the trailering camp and the negro was struggling with Mrs. Elmore on the bed he shot the intruder. He said the negro fired at him but missed, and ran after Elmore shot him again. The negro was found lying across a railroad track near the camp. He died in a hospital.

75 4-H BOYS RETURN FROM ANNUAL OUTING

Howard county 4-H club boys, 75 of them, returned Saturday from their annual recreation outing on the Concho river. The boys, supervised by County Agent O. P. Griffin and six adult club leaders, spent a day and a night on the North Concho on the J. E. Hall ranch, two and a half miles north of Water alley. It was strictly a recreation camp, the boys putting in their time swimming and fishing. In a camp organization, Woodrow Robinson was named commandant, and Joe Lusk and Elvin Logsdon served as sergeants.

UNLOCKED DOORS INVITE BURGLARIES

City officials suggested Monday that operators of some Big Spring business houses could protect their property better against possible burglary by the simple process of locking doors at night. The suggestion came as a report from the police department, which in a six months period, patrolmen have found business doors unlocked no less than 48 times—an average of about two a week. There were many "repeats" on the list, unlocked doors being reported several times for the same business. It was urged that simple precautions be taken to supplement the regular police patrol.

Postmaster Nat Shick, accompanied by Mrs. Shick and their daughter, Lillian, returned Sunday night from San Antonio, where last week Shick attended the annual convention of Texas postmasters. Mr. and Mrs. Shick were joined in Alamo City by Miss Shick, who had been on a trip to Mexico City. They returned by way of Hillsboro and Eastland, where they visited relatives.

Death Calls Twice In Half-Hour, To Claim Twin Babies

Death called twice within a half-hour Sunday to claim twin babies, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Neal W. Cobern of Kermit. The children, six months old, succumbed at a local hospital, where they had been brought for treatment a few days previously. Both were victims of colitis. Henry Gene Cobern died at 6:30 p. m. Charles Deane Cobern was taken at 7 p. m. The bodies were carried early Monday to Stephenville, former home of Mrs. Cobern, for burial. Local arrangements were in charge of the Eberley Funeral home. Survivors besides the parents are a two-year-old brother, Neal W. Cobern, Jr., the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Cobern of Coleman, camp, Big Spring, and the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Eddleman of Lingleville, Texas.

May Get Good Producer In Continental Area

Strong indications of a good producer west of the Continental area southwest of Big Spring was seen today in reports of shows in the Moore Bros. No. 1 J. B. Harding, well equipped Continental No. 1 Harding, and located some seven miles southwest of the city. It was reported that fluid was standing 400 feet in the hole, and that operators had set seven-inch casing. The well is bottomed at 3,229, a report to The Herald said. The location is one of three located recently by Moore Bros. in the area southwest of here, other tests going down on the I. B. Caudle and Mabel Quinn lands.

Big Spring Included In Survey Of Drug And Allied Industries

Big Spring is being included in a survey of the drug and allied industries in Texas and New Mexico, which is being made by Burt C. Blanton, consulting industrial engineer, of Dallas, for financial interests desirous of ascertaining the potentialities and market for establishments of chemical industries in the region being analyzed and studied. This fact was brought to the attention of J. H. Greene, manager of the chamber of commerce, who conferred with Blanton here today. Blanton stated that the project would be completed on or about Jan. 1, 1938; and that the survey is specifically planned to provide all basic data and information pertaining to raw materials, manufacturing facilities of respective localities and marketing potentialities in so far as these constituents relate to chemical industries whose products embrace general drugs and pharmaceuticals. The engineer advised that particular study is being given in the survey to current sources of supply to druggists throughout Texas and New Mexico, especially the volume of pharmaceuticals purchased directly from wholesale drug firms and manufacturers; and the factors determining source of supply predicated on such constituents as: price, service, completeness of line, salesmen, credit terms, etcetera. Advertising in the retail drug business will constitute one phase of the survey, with computations relating to the relative allocation of expenditures for such mediums as: handbills, newspapers, mailing list, theatre, radio, billboards, etcetera. Blanton stated that the survey would cover practically every principal distribution center in the two states and all metropolitan trading areas.

OFFICIAL CAUGHT IN TREASON PLOT

MOSCOW, June 21 (AP)—Important new treason trials were indicated today in a state for the soviet union today as another high party official joined the list of those apparently imprisoned in the sweeping purification of party ranks. Josef Stanislavovitch Umschicht, acting secretary of the union executive committee, whose position was equivalent to the speakership of the United States house of representatives, disappeared June 16. Similar disappearances in recent months have preceded the placing of treason charges against numerous Russian leaders, but there was no hint of what accusation might be made against the secretary.

TO CUT EXPENDITURES WASHINGTON, June 21 (AP)—

Government department heads have received instructions from President Roosevelt to arrange for reduced expenditures in the 1939 fiscal year. Department heads are to submit figures to the budget bureau by September 15.

Three persons entered pleas of guilty here today in federal court on charges of violating the securities act of 1933. They were W. L. Bridges, W. Bridges and R. L. Bridges. The indictments were based on their activities with the Atlas Holding company.
