SNOOK CONDEMNED TO DIE FOR SLAYING CO-ED

Raging Flood Torrents Continue To Take Huge Toll In New Mexico Towns

SAN MARCIAL RAIL BRIDGE IS DEMOLISHED

Men Fighting Leaks In Levee Stay on Duty Through Night

BUILDINGS COLLAPSE

Three Villages Under Water As Residents Seek Safer Ground

SAN MARCIAL, N. M., Aug. 14. (UP)—A swirling, rushing torrent roared through the valley of the Rio Grande tonight, crumbling some 150 buildings, leaving hundreds homeless, leveling crops in the fertile valley for 50 miles and doing damage estimated at from $300,000 to $500,000.

With two villages above San Marcial completely inundated and washed away, all male citizens here worked continuously for 60 hours attempting to save a crumbling levee from collapsing. A bridge, the only entrance to the town, was demolished.

Buildings Collapse

Water seeping through the levee had flooded San Marcial to a depth of several feet in many places and tonight a small strip of the mud banked levee was the only land visible for miles around. Every adobe building in the town had collapsed.

On the west the town was a veritable lake, composed of water backed in from the south. To the east the Rio Grande had widened from its natural spread of perhaps a city block to a rushing stream a half mile wide.

Men Battle Flood

On the strip of levee men struggled desperately to keep more water from entering the town and to save, if possible, their few remaining possessions.

The twinkle of lanterns along the bank marked the hunt for new dangers. At intervals there were sudden massings of men to check added perils as rat holes in the bank spouted water and threatened serious breaks.

On the railway bridge, before it went out, the struggle was fiercest. Men stood with grappling hooks and peered into the water for hours on end, searching for timbers that came catapulting from wrecked bridges above and gradually tore down the very bridge they were working on. A sudden snapping of girders warned them and they fled before the structure went hurtling down the stream. An airplane carrying a United Press representative made possible the first complete picture of the devastated area, a picture of vast desolation, of ruined homes and of desperate workers all along the narrow, crooked valley.

The town of San Acacia was not visible. Where it had been was nothing but a great sea of churning muddy water. Every home in it either had collapsed or had been washed away.

On a series of hills nearby, scores of citizens stood shelterless and

ZEPPELIN OFF ON WORLD TRIP

Eckener Expects to Reach Tokyo in Five Days

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 15. (Thursday) (AP)—The German dirigible Graf Zeppelin took off here on the second lap of its around the world flight at 4:52 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Hugo Eckener directed the ship's 20 passengers to go aboard at 4 o'clock Thursday morning to be ready for the ship's departure at 4:30 a. m.

As usual the Graf Zeppelin's commander requested the passengers and newspapermen to meet him at tea at the Kurgarten hotel where he made his last-minute announcements. In a confident and happy mood, he stated the weather conditions were such he could fulfill various wishes as to the route which had been expressed, namely to fly over Berlin, Danzig, Koenigsberg and Moscow.

He also expected to comply with the Russian wish that he enter that country by the usual route of airplanes, namely by way of Latvia and Duenaburg.

Doctor Eckener expected to reach Tokyo in 120 hours, or five days and there was even the possibility, in view of reports of favorable winds, that he might complete the second lap of his round the world flight in from 4 to 4½ days of flying.

"We expect, so long as we have the wind in our backs, to run with only four motors, thereby giving one a rest," he said.

Doctor Eckener was taking about 24,000 cubic meters of blau gas, 10,000 kilograms of benzine and 1,500 kilograms of motor oil, which last is about twice as much as he expects to use. He estimated the Graf's average speed was 60 miles an hour on a conservative basis.

Doctor Eckener warned the public not to be alarmed if for 12 hours at a time nothing was heard of the dirigible. "Nobody should get uneasy," he said. "It simply means we cannot be reached nor can we reach any station."

Debt Conference Relies on Talk

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 14. (AP)—The problem of where to get the money to satisfy the claims of Great Britain at the reparations conference is now the chief question before the delegates in session here.

The barometer of the conference went down today as the financial committee adjourned until Saturday. From now till then the whole time will be devoted to conversations which all delegates agree form the only means by which a settlement can be reached on the Young plan.

No one as yet has found the $12,500,000 a year necessary to satisfy the British claims. One suggestion was that the amount which the United States sacrificed in Paris on what is due it for the cost of occupation in the Rhine land might be handed over to the British.

ARGUMENTS IN CANYON DEATH TRIAL HEARD

Mrs. Stallworth's Case To Reach Jury After Counsels' Talks

DEFENDANT TALKS

Amarillo Woman Gives Her Version of Slaying; Others Heard

CANYON, Texas, Aug. 14. (AP)—The last direct versions of the killing of Mrs. Grace Morrison were given to the jury late today in Mrs. Levi P. Stallworth's murder trial. Counsel began arguments in district court here tonight.

The defense used 10 character witnesses and the prosecution called eight rebuttal witnesses to clarify some points in the actual shooting.

Shooting in Amarillo

Mrs. Morrison, of Plainview, was shot down in front of an Amarillo hotel May 13 by Mrs. Levi P. Stallworth, who lived in that city.

The final defense witnesses confirmed the story told by the slayer from the witness stand concerning Mrs. Morrison's reputation and declared Mrs. Stallworth's standing in her community was good.

The state is not asking the death penalty.

The defendant had sworn that she fired primarily in self defense. She cited Mrs. Morrison's alleged intimacy with Stallworth as a contributing factor. She wanted, she continued, "to talk with Mrs. Morrison and try to persuade her to leave my husband alone."

Tells of Threat

Mrs. Morrison, however, the Amarillo woman continued, took the advice with bad grace, produced a pistol and threatened to shoot.

"I grabbed the gun," Mrs. Stallworth declared, "and started to take her to the police station. In front of the hotel, she attacked my mother-in-law, Mrs. E. M. Stallworth (of Fort Worth.) After she had flung my mother-in-law aside, she turned toward me and I thought my life was in danger."

At this point, the testimony ran, Mrs. Stallworth shot down her rival.

Wealthy San Antonio Youth Wins Exoneration in $24,000 Holdup Case

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 14. (UP)—Burley Shipp, scion of a wealthy San Antonio family, was exonerated late today from participating in a $24,400 holdup while Joe Schwartz and Wilbur Lane were charged with robbery by assault with firearms.

Shipp was pointed out by Frank Weimer, messenger of the Guaranty State bank, as the one he believed drove the bandit car when he was held up early today. Officers said Shipp would be released, however, as result of statements from Schwartz and Wilbur clearing him.

Acting on a tip, officers arrested Shipp and Schwartz in a Collin's Garden house where the cash loot, amounting to $7,400, was recovered. Schwartz admitted throwing $17,000 in checks onto a vacant lot.

Weimer was held up while transferring funds of his bank to the federal state bank. He was accompanied by C. H. McClain, special officer acting as guard.

The bandit leaped from a roadster and covered the two men as they walked down the street. After grabbing the satchel containing the money and checks, the bandit raced off in a car driven by a confederate. Two shots fired at the car by McClain failed to take effect.

Hundreds of persons witnessed the holdup and shooting.

Shipp was free on bond charged with bombing the Victora uptown theater when he was arrested today. Previously, he had been returned from Dallas to San Antonio to face charges of robbing the theater.

DANCER FAINTS AS SHE TELLS OF ASSAULT

Eunice Pringle Gives Full Account of Asserted Attack in Office

HEARING IS SECRET

Pantages' Attorneys Cause Exclusion of Scores Of Spectators

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14. (UP)—After three hours of testimony in which Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old stage dancer, accused Alexander Pantages of attacking her in his private office, the millionaire theater man's preliminary hearing on two counts of a statutory offense was adjourned late today until Thursday.

The girl seemed pale and weak during her stay on the stand and when she described in detail the alleged assault she collapsed and caused a short recess to be taken.

Miss Pringle told her story in the privacy of a courtroom from which the public, storming barricaded doors, was excluded upon a defense motion. Newspapermen also were barred.

After relating the early part of her interview, the girl broke into tears as she made her accusation against the wealthy vaudeville circuit owner. She buried her face in her hands and could not continue.

Recess Ordered

At this point a recess was ordered that she might rest before resuming her testimony.

Only attorneys, principals in the case and court attendants were in the courtroom. All others including newspaper reporters, had been excluded upon a defense motion.

Even after many persons had left when entrance to the courtroom was denied them, almost 100 would-be listeners crowded the barricaded courtroom throughout the hearing. Earlier in the day three women fainted in the corridors when 50 persons were admitted only to be ejected later.

Girl Is Nervous

Pale and nervous after an apparently sleepless night, Miss Pringle took the stand shortly after the hearing opened and was questioned by District Attorneys Buron Fitts, conducting a case personally for the first time since he obtained the bribery conviction of his predecessor, Asa Keyes.

Fitts led the girl through a description of the interview with Pantages. She told of Pantages' asserted pleas that she become his sweetheart because he hated his wife, and how she attempted to prevent the turn in the conversation.

The girl said she had called on Pantages concerning booking for her act several times before last Friday, the day of the asserted attack. When she called Friday she was standing in the main office as Pantages left, but he returned and said he would grant her an interview, leaving her in the theater proper while he left the building, ostensibly to visit a barber shop.

She said that when he returned he took her to the little conference room on the mezzanine floor, that below the one on which the main offices are located. The defense stipulated that the room is 4½ feet by 13 feet and that the ceiling is 6 1-3 feet from the floor.

The girl said that she removed her velvet jacket and that Pantages, asking her permission, removed his own coat and began the interview. He reversed his previous decision and said that she had a "fine" act and promised to book it, Miss Pringle testified.

Then, the girl said, Pantages told her that she was very beautiful and that she had lovely hands, grasping one of them.

"Then he told me that he wanted me to be his sweetheart and that he hated his wife," the dancer related under Fitts' questioning.

"I told him that I didn't want to know about his wife or to be his sweetheart."

Acted 'Crazy'

She said that Pantages then began to caress and kiss her and that when she asked him to "be a gentleman" he "acted like he was going crazy." The defense objection was sustained.

The girl then accused Pantages of kissing her on the chin and on the throat and after tearing her dress, of biting her.

Visibly nervous Miss Pringle then related how she attempted to free herself from Pantages' arms and how he refused to release her. She continued her testimony, making through description a direct charge that Pantages overpowered her and committed an assault without her consent.

She said that she fainted and that when she recovered, Pantages pleaded that he would give her anything if she would make no trouble, but that she told him that she wanted to "get away from here." She said she finally broke from his grasp and rushed to the street.

As she finished, Fitts turned the witness over to the defense but a recess was taken to allow Miss Pringle to rest.

Former Operator of Air Field Here And Flier Held on Federal Charges

Bob Browning and Jimmy Cummins Arrested on Complaint Of 17-Year-Old Girl's Father

Bob Browning, former operator of an aviation field here, and Jimmy Cummins, flier, are being held in the Wichita county jail on charges of transporting Jeanette Rogers, 17-year-old girl, across the Oklahoma-Kansas line in an airplane, according to information given by Sheriff W. G. Bralley Wednesday evening.

The two were arrested in Crowell, Texas, and were brought here for a preliminary hearing in charge of the Foard county sheriff late Tuesday. They were lodged in the Wichita county jail early Wednesday morning in default of $2,500 bond set by United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz after the hearing. The prisoners will be held here until their removal to the Oklahoma division is ordered, Mr. Bralley said.

Browning and Cummins are charged with taking Miss Rogers in their airship from Oklahoma City to Protection and Cold Water, Kan. on or about Aug. 1, in violation of the terms of the Mann act. They were arrested in the course of a barnstorming flying exhibition in Foard county by an agent of the United States department of justice.

The young girl had returned to her home at the time of the arrest according to information given Commissioner Lantz in the course of the hearing here. Officials were told that the girl's mother had agreed to the projected aerial trip, but that the federal inquiry followed protests raised by her father, Mr. Lantz said. Neither Cummins nor Browning made any statement to the arresting officer or during the preliminary hearing.

AMARILLO MAN AND WIFE SHOT

Cafe Employe Kills Mate, Then Himself

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 14. (AP)—An early morning shooting here today resulted in two deaths—a man and his estranged wife.

Mrs. Hallie Parkie was shot and killed almost instantly as she lay asleep in her hotel room.

Her husband, O. H. Parkie, Amarillo cafe employe, was found in the room with a bullet wound in his head and a pistol clutched in his hand by the police. He died later in a hospital.

A note found in Parkie's coat pocket, addressed to his mother at Mangum, Okla., said: "I am tired of living. Am going to end it all. Am going to take the one that has caused me so much trouble with me."

Miss Ludie Raynes, Mrs. Parkie's roommate was the only witness. She said Parkie came to their room last night with another man and appeared in the best of spirits. He returned about 3 o'clock this morning, Miss Raynes said, and talked with his wife, finally leaving only to return about an hour later. This time, Miss Raynes said, he appeared extremely nervous and threatened Mrs. Parkie if she did not return to him.

Miss Raynes related the next thing she remembered was being awakened by a shot and seeing Parkie standing by the bed. She said Parkie fired four times at his wife then turned the gun on himself. Miss Raynes called the police.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT AFTER 28 MINUTES

Mercy Not Recommended in Report Adjudging Doctor Guilty

SNOOK STAYS CALM

Aged Mother of Prisoner Still Brave While Wife Grieves

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 14.—Dr. James Howard Snook, bald, bespectacled former professor of veterinary medicine at Ohio State university, was condemned to death today for the murder of Theora Hix, his college girl inamorata.

The jury which for two weeks had heard unprintable evidence of a sordid and illicit love, found the former American pistol champion guilty after 28 minutes of deliberation.

The jury—11 men and one woman—retired to deliberate at 3:53 p. m. with Prosecutor John Chester's demand for death ringing in their ears.

"Show this fiend mercy," Chester cried, "show him the same mercy he showed Theora Hix—death."

Quick Decision

The jury scarcely had had time to organize when Trial Judge Henry L. Scarlett was summoned. A moment later, 28 minutes from the time they had retired, the jurors filed in.

"We, the jury—" ran the verdict, to its fatal conclusion, "find the defendant guilty of first degree murder and do not recommend mercy."

Under state law failure of the jury to recommend mercy makes the death sentence mandatory.

Dr. Snook received the verdict without visible emotion. His face was flushed and his hands twitched but he was composed.

The atmosphere was tensely dramatic. Nearby, in the first row of the spectators' gallery, sat Mr. and Mrs. Melvin T. Hix, parents of the dead Theora. Tears streamed down Mrs. Hix's face as her husband, his arms about her, sought to comfort her.

Both broke down and wept when the verdict was read.

Mothers Bears Up

A few moments before Snook's wife, Helen, and his aged mother who had offered their bit of testimony in an effort to save the professor, stole quietly from the courtroom. They had come in earlier to murmur words of encouragement.

As Dr. Snook was led from the courtroom, his wife and mother, the former weeping hysterically, met him in an ante room. The mother, despite her 73 years, was the braver of the two. Tears trickled down her cheeks. She clasped her son's hands and kissed him.

Snook was then led away.

The doctor was noncommittal.

DEATH VOTED DOCTOR SNOOK

Jury's First Ballot Finds Defendant Guilty

Reporters were balked in their efforts to reach him and his attorneys spoke for him.

"We'll carry the verdict to the U. S. supreme court if necessary," E. O. Ricketts, chief of defense counsel, declared.

On hearing the verdict Ricketts and his associates immediately filed a motion for new trial. The motion will be heard Monday and formal passing of sentence meantime will be deferred.

Jury Complimented

Mr. and Mrs. Hix complimented the jurors as did Prosecutor Chester and Judge Henry Scarlett.

"You made a tremendous sacrifice," the judge said simply.

"Your verdict is fair."

If the law takes its course, Dr. Snook has but three months to live. He is not eligible to bond and will be transferred to the death house at the state penitentiary next week.

The defense had confidently predicted leniency and bettors had gone so far as to wager that Snook would be acquitted.

Theora Hix was murdered on the night of June 13 after she had accompanied Dr. Snook to the New York Central rifle range northwest of the city. Her mutilated body, her throat and abdomen slashed, and her head crushed, was found the following day.

The subsequent arrest and trial of Dr. Snook, member of the faculty of Ohio State university, former rapid fire pistol champion, the country club member, revealed one of the most sordid and gruesome stories in criminal annals.

Meeting in Office

Dr. Snook, quiet, unobtrusive, home-loving, met Theora Hix three years ago while she was employed in the faculty office. Their acquaintanceship ripened to friendship, and companionate marriage and sex were freely discussed.

This phase of their friendship passed into the more intimate stages and it was then that Dr Snook rented his first love nest for the girl. He loaned her money and opened charge accounts for her and their relations continued, almost unbroken, until the fatal night.

On the night of Theora's death, she met Dr. Snook and they drove to the Scioto Country club. Sandwiches, allegedly containing excitant drugs, were eaten meantime. From the country club they drove to the secluded rifle range. Theora, the doctor testified, had insisted that they go some place she "could scream, if she wanted to, and not be heard."

At the rifle range, according to Dr. Snook's version, Theora began quarreling with him because he planned leaving town over the week-end.

Theora Made Threats

He quieted her temporarily, he said, but the quarrel was resumed. She had threatened to kill his wife and baby, and then him, he testified. Theora then made a frenzied attack upon him, inflicting excruciating pain he said. He tried to ward her off, he testified, but had to hit her with his mechanic's hammer. A series of blows followed and as Theora lay writhing and moaning he stooped and slashed her jugular vein "to relieve her suffering."

From the rifle range Dr. Snook went to his home, washed the hammer and knife, then prepared himself a hamburger sandwich. He retired about 11 p. m. and slept soundly. Theora's body was found and identified the next day and the following day Snook was arrested.

The fifth day after his arrest Dr. Snook confessed. He was indicted for first degree murder and on July 24 was placed on trial.

The trial ranked in national importance with that of Harry K. Thaw and the Snyder-Gray and Hall-Mills cases. It set a record for speed. Final testimony was taken Aug. 13, two months from the day Miss Hix's body was found.

Interest in the trial reached its peak on Wednesday, Aug. 7, when Dr. Snook testified on his behalf. He told a story of sex relation, love potions, narcotics and murder that is without parallel in Ohio.

So "Skinny" Couldn't Work. Gains 21 lbs. and New Strength

Miss Donie Brison writes, "Before I took Ironized Yeast I was so 'skinny' I could not do my day's work. But now I can work hard all day and rest good all night.

"About 3 months ago my weight was 126 pounds. Ironized Yeast gave me 147 pounds of good flesh. You would think I was another woman, I feel and look so much better."

Stop being "skinny" and always tired. Thousands have gained 5 to 15 pounds in 3 weeks with Ironized Yeast. Scrawny bones change to graceful curves. Blotched skin becomes clear and fresh. "Lazy" feeling vanishes.

Only when Yeast is Ironized is it so wonderfully effective—for Iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Pleasant tablets in a handy bottle, safe for everybody. Never cause gas or bloating.

So certain and quick are the amazing health benefits of Ironized Yeast that the small amount you pay for the first bottle will be promptly refunded by your own druggist or the manufacturer if you are not delighted.—Adv.

FLOOD TAKES GREATER TOLL

New Mexico Towns Still Under Water

foodless, watching the rushing waters pour by, carrying within its grasp bodies of drowned livestock and walls and roofs of houses. The stranded townspeople were powerless to do anything save stare at the disaster which had changed their valley from one of the garden spots of the Southwest to a watery wilderness.

The hills were so isolated by the torrent that the problem of getting food to them was unsolved tonight.

The village of San Antonio a few miles further down the stream was in almost as serious a condition, with water standing in great lakes all around it and with roads turned into veritable rivers.

Over San Marcial, it was possible to observe from the plane the exact extent of damage there. Except for one area in the older part of the town the place slowly was succumbing to the flood as buildings gradually caved in at their foundations.

The entire population had left, the women and children going on relief trains to El Paso, Texas, and the men to the levee in a frenzied effort to hold back the water.

So harried were the workers that they hardly looked up as the plane whizzed by. Water ran so close to the top of the dike that it looked like a matter of inches before the rushing flood would cascade over the barrier and submerge the city completely. Railroad flat cars, carrying loads of sand bags, were shot back and forth along the tracks on the bank, hastily reinforcing the weaker spots.

It was believed, however, that the worst of the flood had passed tonight and that the dike would hold unless a totally unexpected rise in the river appears.

ATWATER KENT RADIO

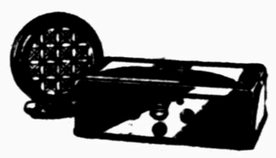

Listen!

There can't be anything truer than truth

THE very tap-tap of the orchestra leader's baton! The very personality of the man or woman who is singing or speaking!

Behind this truthful tone of the Atwater Kent Screen-Grid, there's mighty power that fairly leaps with seven-league boots to obey your slightest touch . . . Behind this power is the finest construction that can be put into a radio set. Behind this construction is the engineering experience of 27 years. And behind that are the resources of the largest radio factory in the world, with a capacity of 12,000 complete radio sets a day.

How a Radio Manufacturer Looks at His Own Job

"I could not be happy doing the same thing every day in the same way," said A. Atwater Kent at the dedication of his thirty-two acre radio factory. "I like a game which puts me on my mettle, makes me keep my wits about me, forces me to meet and beat new problems.

"Many people find as they grow older that they have an inclination to slow up, especially if they have achieved some success. I think that is a great mistake.

"Men are much happier if they are always ready to go ahead, to find a new way to do an old thing or discover some new thing to do.

"If a man relaxes and leans back and feels satisfied with what he has done, he is likely to find himself without the advantage of opportunity when new opportunities arise.

"The way to be ready to do something new is never to stop doing something new. This is one of the reasons I'm so happy to be in the radio business.

"I am sure you will pardon me when I say it is a matter of pride to realize that this is the largest and best-equipped radio factory in the world. Its capacity is 12,000 sets a day.

Gloucester Fishermen Trust All to Radio

When the Gloucester fishing boats—the fleet that Kipling wrote about in "Captains Courageous"—go forth to chase mackerel up to the Grand Banks, the fishermen receive information upon which their lives and fortunes depend, through Atwater Kent Radio.

There are 150 boats in the fleet, and every one has radio—not the flash-dot sets that trans-ocean liners use—but the same kind of sets you use at home.

The fishermen have their own broadcasting station, WHDH, which sends to the fleet the news of arrivals at Gloucester, prices of fish and the places where fish are being caught. The prices are broadcast in code. If they are low and a vessel receiving the information is only half loaded, it stays on the grounds. If the price is high, each boat races madly for port to cash in.

The fishermen's station also broadcasts weather reports and personal information about the health of the families at home. On chill days when fish are scarce and the boats are loafing outside the Cape, waiting for news of the mackerel run, the fleets are equally all

JEWS DESERT OLD QUARTERS

Chicago's Ghetto Is Called Thing of Past

CHICAGO, Aug. 14. (US)—The Ghetto is a thing of the past.

No longer will its colorful atmosphere, its thickly populated denizens and its somewhat squalid environment provide material for books and plays and sociological investigations, if the results of the latest expedition to the heart of Chicago's Ghetto prove true.

James B. Loebner, Jewish author and managing editor of the Jewish Daily Courier here, says it is true. He had just guided a party of students, teachers and professors of the Northwestern and Chicago universities through the so-called Ghetto district of the west side.

With Professors Frank Orman Beck and Ira L. Jenkins, the party walked through the various streets of the district, taking special note of conditions on Maxwell street, the main thoroughfare of the Ghetto. And here's what Editor Loebner said:

"The Ghetto is a thing of the past. Jews live now in the most beautiful parts of the city. We are now free citizens not only in the United States but in all other countries throughout the world. Those spots created to separate the Jew from the rest of the people of the land he lives in, are no more in existence.

"Even the Maxwell street market," Mr. Loebner said, "is not Jewish any more. The visitors to the market are of many nations, and this is true of the population around the market. You can see there now Mexicans, Poles, Russians and others, and you will find non-Kosher products being sold to non-Jews."

Douglas park, Humboldt park and Garfield park neighbors, which are mostly populated by Jews, cannot be called parts of the Ghetto.

"Of course, the Maxwell street district has many characteristics similar to the Ghetto times. You can see a patriarch pushcart peddler who in his hours of leisure recites chapters of the Talmud or other scriptures. He probably prays near his pushcart or stand, but he is already internationalized and is not any more a habitue of the Ghetto. He does not live on Maxwell street now. He lives in a fashionable neighborhood, and his children are fully Americanized, most of them of whom attend colleges or universities."

'Worth Weight In Gold,' Says Wichita Foreman

Didn't Think There Was a Medicine on Earth That Would Do Him Good Orgatone Did

"If forty men had sworn to me 'until they were black in the face,' that any medicine on earth would have helped me as much as Orgatone has, in only a few weeks' time, I would have laughed at them," said Lon Deatherage, who lives at 406½ Seventh St., Wichita Falls, Texas, and is foreman at the Wichita Model and Granite Works.

"This medicine is worth its weight in gold and if the price was $50 a bottle instead of $1.25, I would buy it just the same, if I had the money to pay for it.

"I had been suffering for about five years with stomach, kidney and rheumatic trouble, and since taking this Orgatone I feel like a different man, and I don't believe there is any other medicine that could have done me so much good in so short a time, as Orgatone. Although I am not a well man yet, it has certainly braced me up wonderfully and I am getting in fine shape.

"Before taking this Orgatone, I had tried so many different kinds of medicines that I was almost disguested. I will be glad to tell anybody what it has done for me, but I won't have to tell them, for the difference in my looks and feelings will show for itself."

Genuine Orgatone is manufactured by one of the world's largest laboratories and is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile treatment and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison Drug Store.—Adv.

The J. C. Penney Company first opened its store in Wichita Falls on March 31, 1917. In the 12 years they have been operating here, the store has endeared itself to the shopping hearts of the people in this section of the country. The enlargement of the business is the direct result of the liberal patronage given by the people who realize the shopping service the J. C. Penney Company is giving. It is this wholehearted support and confidence which has made the new and larger store both possible and necessary.

TIMBUCTOO

You're going to sail to Timbuctoo—
I'll be a giant pushing you,
We're going to go most everywhere
And see the things and people there.

We'll see peculiar animals
And maybe, too, some cannibals.
We'll go to China, for a cruise,
And see their funny pigtail queues.

We'll have an indian tiger hunt
A-riding on an elephunt.

The Sandwich islands, too, we'll see,
And have some sandwiches and tea,
And then we'll go to Timbuctoo—
There must be something there to do.

But if there's nothing much, why, then
I guess we'll come back home again.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14. (US)—What women are doing to their necks, is just nobody's business. I saw one yesterday with a heavy silver bow at the front of her throat, that had edges that would cut clear through the jugular vein if she fell down. It's all for the effect, and so many effects to be obtained, that they don't bother to get silver with the jagged edges filed off.

And one girl wore a gold plated sheaf of leaves, strung around her throat, and I wouldn't have given her even a small push, for fear of a fatality.

The loveliest thing yet to come to my vision, was in a shop in the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles, a chain of large crystals strung together with white gold. There was no chain or thread through the crystals but they were held to the chain by a white gold wire. There was a thread line cut in the stones, and the gold ring was put around the crystal in that hair line, so that nothing interfered with the beauty of the chain. Great tear drops that caught every light and shade. A beauty like no other necklace I ever saw!

The crystal chain lay on a rare piece of Chinese embroidery, in a shop filled with works of art. I've pressed my nose against the pane till I've worn it off, and still the crystals haven't crept out to me.

I'll bet someone gets them who speaks of them as "that string of beads" money doesn't care who has it.

A blonde deb just out of the swimming pool of a fashionable town hotel, with a turquois chiffon band tied around her hair, and hanging in ends at one side of her pretty face. Effective—altogether lovely.

But I hear Will Hayes, the movie personage, has a bright colored scarf and wears it all through the day when he is a country home guest. First he wears it around his waist, the ends hanging down gracefully then he puts it around his head and lets the ends hang over his ears. Then he puts it over his shoulders as he sits playing bridge.

Age has nothing to do with the fad. Only gaiety of spirit.

Many of the girls East, West, North and South, are stringing themselves with wooden beads. They are cut in every imaginable shape, carved, plain, long, short, thin, thick, combined with bright glass and the shape of watermelon seeds. The wooden things are light weight, and don't mark the neck—though I don't see what difference that makes, for it is always hung with something to cover the marks. Few women are going in for diamonds. "They are just too common," said a young snip, who knew what she was talking about.

But in a beauty parlor yesterday a woman was throwing somebody kisses over the telephone, and she had hundreds of small diamonds on her fingers and wrists, and as many freckles to be covered by them. The diamonds fought the freckles, as they invariably do. You know the kind.

An old man in Omaha is trying to sell a Canary diamond. It's a lovely thing, so beautiful that the woman he showed it to, a good woman at that, said if she could have pushed him into the incinerator and run away with the diamond she would have done so. Crime looked like a petty thing to commit for that ring. No one knows where he got it; he has been trying to sell it for a year that she knows of, but won't go to a dealer. I wonder why? If the lady ever gets the $3,000 he won't have to.

Mother Cruel Who Prevents Her Child's Marriage

Cruelty of Mothers Who Monopolize Their Children's Lives—How Can A Young Bachelor Protect Himself From Thrill-Hunting Married Women.

Dear Miss Dix—There are seven of us children, all grown, and not one of us has married as yet because of the strong effort of our mother to keep us from doing so. I have a brother 31 years old, who is very much in love with a good girl who would make him a splendid wife, but my mother never rested until she broke up the engagement between these two. My mother is forever urging us not to get married and tells us that if we will remain single we will always have money to spend on ourselves and lots of friends. Is she right? She says the reason she does not want us to marry is because she cannot bear to part from us, but she would not be left lonely, as my father is living and is very kind and generous to her. Do you think we should all stay single to please my mother? —ANGELA.

Answer—Certainly not. Your mother's attitude is utterly selfish and unreasonable and you should not let her bar your way to happiness and to living the normal life of men and women.

Unfortunately, there are a lot of women like your mother who have the mother complex so highly developed that they can never bring themselves to see that their children grow up and want to form new interests than those she supplies. Such women always want to keep their chicks under their wings. They want to think for them. They want to decide everything for them. They do not want them to have a thought or a desire of their own. They haven't even the intelligence of a sparrow that pushes its young out of the nest and makes them establish their own nest.

Mother love can be the most sublime thing in the world or it can be the littlest and the meanest. It can be the most generous and self-sacrificing or the cruelest and most heartlessly tyrannical. It can give all for a child or offer up a child on the altar of its own selfishness without a pang of remorse.

I have seen mothers give everything for their children and simply obliterate themselves by stepping out of their children's lives when their children's happiness was concerned, and I have seen a mother blight a gifted girl's ambition and doom her to a life of domestic slavery because she couldn't bear to be parted from Mary and made Mary feel that it was her duty to stay and take care of her instead of going to the city where fortune awaited her.

I have seen mothers kiss their children with breaking heart, but with a smile on their lips, as they sent them away from them to do their part in the world and I have seen mothers descend to the ignoble trickery of pretending to be sick when they were not and to putting the tremolo stop on their voices as they made weeping appeals to their children not to leave their poor old mother who wouldn't be long in this world I know dozens of men and women who have been waiting 40 years for their mothers to die so that they might be free to follow their own lives, and mother is still going strong.

I know families of old maids filling in their time with doing silly fancy work, making interests for themselves in causes or charities, petting cats or dogs or parrots because they are so starved for something little and tender to love, who would be happy wives and mothers with their own husbands and homes and babies except that their mothers drove every man away who came near the place because they didn't want the girls to marry and leave them.

And I know plenty of old bachelors whose mothers made them promise never to marry while they lived, who are dancing attendance on crotchery old women and getting funny, fidgety ways themselves. And most of them, denied their own homes, their own wives, their own children by mother, have established relationships for which mother is morally responsible.

These mothers, who are so devoted to their children that they can't give them up, never seem to reflect that they are denying to their own sons and daughters the thing in life which they consider the most precious. They have known the blessedness of love. They have had the companionship of their mates. They have had the joy of their own homes. They know how sweet it is to have a little child's arms about their neck, the thrill of a little head on their breasts. They know the absorbing interest of watching their children develop into manhood and womanhood and the pride they have felt in seeing their children succeed, which has in it a kick one never gets out of the gratification of any personal ambition, but they are willing to cut their children off from all these pleasures. Rockbound selfishness can go no further.

As for your mother's statement that if you don't marry you will always have plenty of money and lots of friends, that's utter tommyrot. Most men make their fortunes after they get married and most women who have money have married it. And whether you have friends or not depends upon your personality, not upon whether you are married or single.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What are poor young bachelors to do who are so unfortunate as to become useful to young married women who want escorts and who seek an affair just for excitement and whose vanity makes them interpret the young bachelor's courtesies as personal devotion? When such young married women call up very young bachelors and ask them to act as escort to dances, dinners, etc., in the absence of their husbands, asserting it is all right because everybody understands, how can the very young bachelors protect themselves?

—ANOTHER JOHN DOE.

Answer—Well, John, you recall what Joseph did when a married lady began dating him up? He fled. He got out of the way of temptation. And Joseph's example is about the best precedent you can have in dealing with a married woman who is a little bored with her husband and thinks she would like to pep things up by a flirtation with a young bachelor.

The Mrs. Potiphars are very dangerous, John, and very selfish and very cruel. They think of nothing but their own diversion, and to get a thrill or two they are perfectly willing to wreck a young man's life. They are wise about handling men and they know how to conjure a man's heart out of his bosom and involve him in a hopeless love affair, but they have no idea of throwing over their well-to-do husbands with fat pocketbooks for a young man who is just getting his start in the world. They are plenty of men, hard and cynical, who have had their faith in women and everything that is sweet and good killed by some young married woman who deliberately made them fall in love with her and then flouted them.

And it doesn't do any young man's reputation any good with other men for him always to be hanging around some married woman, fetching and carrying and dancing attendance on her in her husband's absence. He gets known as a tame cat, a boudoir pet, and that isn't the sort of man that real men put in places of power and influence.

And lots of young men are ruined by the young married women who are always phoning them to come and make one in a bridge game or a poker game, in which the stakes are too high for their purse. Many a defaulting cashier or trusted clerk who goes wrong has been driven into stealing by some married woman.

So my advice to you, John, is to emulate Joseph when Mrs. Potiphar's voice comes sweetly over the phone and say—"nothing doing." Flee from her as you value your life. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have two daughters. One of them is not popular with men and has no beaux. She is a nice pretty girl, but just isn't the type the boys like. The other girl is very popular with the young men. My daughter, who is not popular with men, is very jealous of her sister. Shall I keep the younger girl from having beaux because her sister has none?

—A READER.

Answer—Certainly not. Why sacrifice your younger daughter to the older one? Why penalize her for something that is not her fault and for which she is not to blame? Perhaps if your unpopular daughter would curb her jealousy and cultivate a sweet and generous disposition, the young men would like her also.

Vinegar catches no flies, and there is nothing that repulses men so much in a woman as for her to be bitter and disgruntled.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Before Baby Comes

Comfort and ease for the expectant mother

UNLESS the muscles, tissues and nerves "give" easily as the abdomen enlarges, much pain and untold suffering may result. As the abdomen increases in size strains increase in intensity, exhausting the expectant mother with perhaps ill effects upon the unborn child. More important still, is to have the tissues and muscles as "elastic" as possible when the great moment of childbirth arrives.

Countless thousands of expectant mothers for over 60 years have used "Mother's Friend"—that time-tested, scientifically-prepared skin lubricant and pain-reliever, which originated in the prescription of an eminent obstetrician—and have been relieved of the strain and the pain, the discomfort and the nervousness that come from the distention and the stretching of the skin and the tissues, which attend this delicate condition.

You owe yourself the comfort "Mother's Friend" gives during the waiting months. It is soothing, relaxing, comforting! It is not a drug to be taken. It is used externally only—gently rubbed into the skin. Clean and pleasant to the touch. Brings relief promptly. Very valuable in keeping the breasts in good condition. Also puts you in fine shape for the approaching ordeal. "Mother's Friend" is on sale at all drug stores. $1.21 per bottle. A massage with it tonight will relieve your strained condition. A booklet on "Things to Know Before Baby Comes" will be mailed in plain envelope, free, on request. Address Bradfield Regulator Co., Dept. D, Atlanta, Ga.

The mutilations, which were numerous if not deep, were administered in reprisal for several good beatings, the wife asserted. The husband was allowed to leave the Wichita General hospital after his wounds had received first aid treatment after the affray. The young woman paid her fine and left the courthouse to undertake the nursing of her patient back to health.

Locomotive Engineer Here Cited For Averting Serious Collision

Citation of C. E. Greenwood of this city, locomotive engineer, for preventing a serious railroad accident by the exercise of unusual caution, is mentioned in the current information bulletin of the M-K-T railway.

The incident referred to occurred recently near Gate, Okla., during wheat harvest in that community. The driver of a tractor, pulling a combine, was hastening to the next wheat field and stalled his machine on M-K-T tracks.

"A freight train was approaching," the bulletin states. "The engineer could not see the tractor, which had gone down into a cut, but he had seen it a few minutes earlier and figured on the possibility of its stalling in a hasty and difficult crossing. He approached the crossing cautiously, discovered that what he had thought might happen had happened, and by reason of his low speed, was able to stop his train and avoid a certain accident."

Mr. Greenwood received a letter of commendation from J. L. Walsh, superintendent of safety.

WET-DRINKING, DRY-VOTING CONGRESSMEN DRAW MABEL'S FIRE

ATTITUDE OF SOLONS HURTS

Special Privileges Given Officials Revealed

THE INSIDE OF PROHIBITION
XI. Are Congressmen Above the Law?

By MABEL W. WILLEBRANDT

(Copyright, 1929 by Current News Features, Inc. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.)

Mrs. Willebrandt

I have been asked often "How can you have the heart to prosecute a bootlegger send a man to jail for six months or a year for selling a pint or a quart of whisky, when you know as a fact that the men who make the laws and appropriate the money for prohibition are themselves patronizing bootleggers?"

The only reply I can make to this is that I took my oath to enforce the law, and enforce it I must to the best of my ability, regardless of my own disgust with the hypocrisy of personally wet politicians who vote dry.

I have not lived in Washington all these years without becoming well acquainted with the fact that many congressmen and senators who vote for bills designed to aid prohibition enforcement are persistent violators of the Volstead law. Senators and representatives have appeared on the floor of the senate and house in a drunken condition. During the closing days of a recent session of congress, one senator objected to and prevented the passage of important legislation while in such a condition of intoxication that he had to hold to his desk to keep himself upright. Colleagues argued with him in an effort to persuade him to leave the chamber, but he refused. His condition was apparent to every member of the senate and to hundreds of people in the galleries.

Bootleggers in the Capitol

I think that probably nothing has done more to disgust and alienate honest men and women who originally strongly favored the prohibition amendment and its strict enforcement than the hypocrisy of the wet-drinking, dry-voting congressmen. Bootleggers infest the halls and corridors of congress and ply their trade there. It is not the duty of the department of justice to "make" cases; its duty is to prosecute cases in which evidence has been gathered by the prohibition unit of the treasury department. Congress makes all the appropriations for evidence gathering to the treasury department.

So I have had no agents working under my direction whom I could command to gather the evidence. But I have urged that the treasury department direct agents to investigate a case thoroughly even though it may lead into the halls of congress, and if real evidence is found, I have guaranteed that the department of justice would prosecute the case just like any other either by United States attorneys or men from my office.

Why have no search warrants ever been issued to rout bootleggers in government buildings? I know of no reason in law to prevent searches and seizures for law violations in the capitol or in the house and senate office buildings. As a matter of fact it is my opinion, as a lawyer, that the constitutional immunity protecting a member of congress from arrest does not apply to criminal offenses committed by him and that upon a proper showing of probable cause a warrant may be issued for the search of the office of such member, either in the capitol or in the senate and house office building, and for the seizure of contraband articles found therein. I know one agent tried to secure such a search warrant but it was advised that no warrants could be issued to search any spot at the capitol. That is bad law and bad policy. I believe in using all legal steps for the enforcement of the prohibition law against members of congress and those who supply them with liquor to the same extent and with the same degree of diligence as against any private citizen and his source of illicit liquor. I believe to so enforce it would command respect.

Congressmen Who Sneer at Law

I have found, however, a curious impression or state of mind among members of congress and other government officials that they are above and beyond the inhibitions of the prohibition law. Their attitude would be amusing if it were not so tragic in its effect upon the great mass of people who abhor the hypocrisy manifested by dry-wet officials. There is no legal foundation for extending "freedom of the port" or special privileges of that character to congressmen returning from abroad. Yet only within the past few months a congressman wrote to the under-secretary of the treasury requesting freedom of the port on his return to the United States and the request was granted. The customs collector at the port of entry was told by his superiors in Washington to "extend the usual courtesies and free entry privilege" to the congressman.

When Congressman Michaelson, another whose case brought "freedom of the port" into the public attention, landed from abroad he declared fourteen pieces of baggage. He was accompanied by four other people, one of whom declared three pieces of baggage and the other six. Although the congressman was granted free entry privileges without examination of his baggage at the time of landing, he was asked if he had any liquor, and he replied that he did not. On the nine trunks brought in, three were checked to Washington and six to another destination from which they were rechecked to still another point. Before they were reshipped from the first terminal, however, they were searched and seized. One trunk contained nothing but a barrel of rum, the interior of the trunk having been cut so that the barrel rested neatly in a hole in the tray made for that purpose. One trunk, which was found to be empty, was likewise seemingly cut evidently to accommodate a keg of the same size. No doubt a keg had been in this trunk but had been stolen by someone en route. A third trunk contained wearing apparel, in which were packed 12 bottles of assorted liquors and there was the remains of another bottle which had been broken. It was this broken bottle which attracted attention to the trunk and caused the seizure.

Hypocrisy Prohibition Enemy

A few days after the seizure the congressman came to the offices of the head of the prohibition unit in Washington and demanded release of the trunks. The trunks were released, but the liquor was retained as evidence.

The congressman was indicted but recently received an acquittal from the jury in Florida. He denied knowledge that the trunks contained liquor. On the other hand, his brother-in-law who had been a member of the party entering the port testified that the trunks seized belonged to him and another member of the party, and not to the congressman. He refused, however, to answer questions which "might incriminate him." He now is awaiting trial.

In another case involving a congressman entering the port of New York, the members of the grand jury of the southern district of New York made a statement from which I cull the following:

"We regard it as un-American and contrary to the fundamental principle of equality before the law that any citizen merely because he is a congressman or other official should be exempted from inspection of baggage or from the operation of law or departmental regulations, while others who are merely part of the plain people, are required to submit thereto. On the contrary, public officials should be the first to set the example of scrupulous acceptance and observance of the burdens of the law. While under the technical rules of the criminal law and in view of the non-examination of the baggage following the grant of free entry, a criminal prosecution may not be possible in this case, nevertheless an official who prevented examination of baggage by claim of free entry and by threat of causing trouble in Washington cannot complain of the consequences when weighed in the forum of public opinion."

I think that every citizen, whether wet or dry, will agree with that statement of principle. Until politicians are made to obey the laws which they enact, we cannot expect respect for the law by those who are opposed not so much to prohibition as hypocrisy.

A common form of congressional relaxation during which numerous legislators seem to regard themselves as beyond the inhibitions of the prohibition law are the so-called tropical junkets—trips of "inspection" to Panama, Porto Rico, Santo Domingo, Haiti, and other spheres over which this government exercises influence.

Of course, it is frequently necessary that those who promote laws pertaining to our possessions should get first-hand impressions of the effect of such enactments and understand local island conditions. Unfortunately, however, the activities of some members of these committees of inspection have not always been confined to that work, and have left inhabitants of our possessions with impressions anything but favorable concerning respect for our laws, and the men who make them.

How greatly disregard for our laws by our own legislators contrasts with the attitude of Sir Esme Howard who as ranking member of the diplomatic group renders a sportsmanly respect that the law does not compel.

(In her next installment Mrs. Willibrandt will discuss the curse of patronage.)

None of our journeyman wizards has yet duplicated that particular performance, but General Electric laboratories recently went it a dozen better, by broadcasting, through a national linkup of radio stations, the sound of electrons discharging in a fragment of uranium.

Those of you who listened-in seemed to hear hailstones beating against glass, and probably read the public announcement that it takes a million million electrons to cover sparsely a pinpoint.

After which achievement, subsequent programs will doubtless feature the ear-splitting din of mushroom growth and the piercing shrieks of plucked roses.

Impossibility will soon be defined as a lazy-brained generation's alibi for soldiering on the job.

A Mile in 10 Seconds

LIEUTENANT ALFORD WILLIAMS, the U. S. navy's crack speed flier, has a new seaplane of unique design in which he is going to try to break the world speed record of 318 miles per hour at the international speed races in England in September.

It is reported that he will try to reach a speed of 400 miles per hour in his tiny plane, nearly all of which is motor and which looks a lot like an overgrown mosquito.

The little ship is said to be the fastest airplane ever built. It is of 1,100 horsepower and weighs only four pounds to the horsepower, a ratio never before achieved. It has a 24-cylinder motor with 48 sparkplugs, four carburetors and four distributors. The wings are so tiny in proportion to the motor that if the engine stopped the ship would fall like a plummet, as it could not glide. In other words, it has to go through the air like a bullet, mostly on its momentum.

It has a minimum speed of 100 miles per hour, meaning that Lieutenant Williams must land and take off at a speed greater than the maximum of most planes. This makes landing on the water especially dangerous, because if a pontoon struck even a small piece of driftwood at this terrific speed there might be a disaster.

Four hundred miles per hour is approximately six and one-half miles per minute, or a mile every 10 seconds. Consider a speed like that; consider how much even the slightest misjudgment of direction or altitude on Lieutenant Williams' part would mean. In the time required to bat an eye he might be hundreds of feet off his course. He might crash before his brain could re-act on his muscles to shift the controls.

It's interesting, all right—and it will be heroic and thrilling if he does it. The test may add to the knowledge of airplane design and of motors and thereby benefit practical aviation.

We fail to see where very much is going to be accomplished for aviation by a stunt like this, but we can't help but admire Lieutenant Williams for his courage and the tremendous risk he will assume in making the attempt. If he succeeds in breaking the record in this frail, bullet-like plane on which the experts have labored so long, it will not be because of the machine, but because there was a man who was daring enough to fly it.

We wish him well; we hope he makes it. It's going to be a thrilling attempt and his bravery should be rewarded with success.

But, after all, it will be only a stunt and—succeed or fail—of slight value to sane, sound, common sense, business-like commercial aviation.

Promoting Peace

GERMANY, the maker of war, has become Germany, the maker of peace.

Fifteen years ago, scientific minded Germans were toiling in their laboratories, devising machines of horror to spread destruction throughout the world.

Hated, and feared, they perfected a giant gun to shoot projectiles 75 miles into Paris. Their use of deadly gases appalled the world.

But today, the same scientific and technical skill is perfecting mechanical emissaries of peace to spread good will.

The mighty Graf Zeppelin is an outstanding example. Coming to the United States to start its round-the-world flight, it probably has done more to promote friendship than all Germany's statesmen put together. People don't fear things or persons they can see and understand. It's the hidden and unfamiliar things that arouse fear.

The German-built Bremen, fastest steamship afloat, is making a bid to regain the nation's passenger business on the seas, and it is also creating good will.

And another German giant—the 100-passenger Dornier seaplane—is planning a transatlantic crossing and, perhaps, a regular transoceanic passenger line.

Swifter transportation always has been a silent ambassador of peace. It brought the East and the West in the United States closer together. And it will break down international barriers, as well.

When man can walk and talk with his neighbors more often, and do business with them, he will hesitate much longer about going to war with them.

Mr. Senter Presents a Bill of Indictment

E. G. SENTER opened his campaign for the gubernatorial nomination Wednesday at Alvarado with a terrific indictment of the conduct of public affairs in Texas.

Indicating the nature of his campaign he said: "I charge and shall prosecute this campaign on this indictment: That, considered from all points of view, Texas is the worst governed state in the Union; that it pays more for what it gets in the way of public service than any other state; that its laws are not enforced; that its legislature is infinitely worse than a joke; and that its administrative departments are so grossly maladministered that the public now despairs of material improvement."

Mr. Senter elaborates this general indictment with a bill of particulars which he presents in a most forceful manner. He also outlines a plan for a remedy of the situation.

The people of Texas are the jury before whom Mr. Senter lays his case. He has drawn his indictment in strong terms. Now he must summon his witnesses and get the evidence before them, and he must also convince them that the remedies he proposes are the proper and best ones. It is a tremendous task and one calling for great skill and courage. The prosecutor has started the case with all the courage and enthusiasm of a crusader. We shall see presently how he goes in making his case.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

By BEATRICE BURTON, Author of: "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "SALLY'S SHOULDERS," "MONEY LOVE," "LOVE BOUND," etc.

COPYRIGHT 1929, CENTRAL PRESS ASS'N, INC., CLEVELAND, OHIO.

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty is a born gossip. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, and through her Chatty gets a job as switchboard operator in the Van Nuys bond house. There she meets and falls in love with David Jordan, handsome young bond salesman, and becomes jealous of his friendship with Agnes Herford, Mr. Van Nuys' secretary.

Billie Langenau, who wrks in the office, comes to live in the flat across the hall from where Chatty lives. Chatty's brother, Pud, goes to high school and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he delivers gin for Ben and begs him to stop before he is arrested, but Pud refuses to do it.

One day Chatty sees David hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty tears some of the pages out, and sends them to Mrs. Van, and Agnes is discharged. Dave Jordon, alone knows that Chatty is responsible, and he drops her. Winnie Talcott, the office "vamp," gets Agnes' position. Winnie gets quite chummy with Chatty, and at a party Chatty meets Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman. Winnie shows Chatty how to paint her face and "doll up." Bryant is married, but tells Chatty he has left his wife.

Agnes calls at Chatty's house and tells Chatty that Mr. Van had never suspected she was in love with him until the diary turned up. Agnes says she has seen Mr. Van at his office, and Chatty promises not to tell a soul.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXVI

Pud had come into the front room. He was sprawled in the easy chair under the lamp, rocking with noiseless and mocking laughter, when Chatty stepped back into it.

"Aw, no, you won't tell!" he said. "You never tell anything! Oh, boy! If that girl wants anything kept quiet she might just as well tell it to some radio announcer as tell it to you! Oh, boy!"

Chatty stood still and glared at him.

"You're the last person anywhere who can accuse me of telling things I shouldn't tell!" she snapped. "Why, I don't tell certain things that I ought to tell! I ought to have told mother long ago about you and Ben Tomlinson—"

She broke off, thinking hard.

Then sudden determination flashed into her little face.

"But I'm going to tell her now!" she cried, her mind made up. "I'll show you that I can keep things when I want to keep them. And I'll show you that I can tell them when I feel like telling them!"

But the story of Pud and his bootlegging employer was not to be told that night, after all. For just as she started for the kitchen, where Mrs. Chatterton was washing up the supper dishes, the doorbell rang and Bryant's quick knock came on the door.

"Oh, there he is!" Chatty exclaimed. "Open the door, Pud, and tell him I'll be ready in two minutes."

"I should be your doorman," said Pud, grumbling and resentful, "when all you do is try to stir up trouble for me! You're one swell sister, you are!"

But he got up and went to open the door for Bryant.

Chatty could hear them talking and laughing together as she dressed.

It took her a long time to get ready to go out with Bryant. Much longer than it ever had taken her to go out with Dave Jordan, who had hated make-up and loud clothes.

Tonight it took Chatty 20 minutes to make up her face.

She made it up the way she had seen Winnie do it.

First a tiny bit of cream, rubbed all over it. Then powder rubbed over the cream. Then rouge on the cheek bones, the chin and the lobes of Chatty's small ears. Lipstick on her mouth, mascara on her lashes and brown pencil on her eyebrows.

Mrs. Chatterton came in while she was doing it.

"I certainly never would paint myself up like that, if I were you!" she said severely, sitting down on the edge of the bed where she could see the show. "What do you do it for? You don't think it looks nice, do you?"

"Please don't make me talk, mother," said Chatty, shortly. "I have to hold my mouth open or this stuff gets in my eye."

"You have to hold your mouth open so that brown stuff you're putting on your lashes won't get in your eyes?" she asked. "What tom-fool nonsense is that? What has your mouth to do with your eye. I'd like to know!"

"Ah, no, you won't tell! You never tell anything!"

But Chatty couldn't tell her. All she knew was that Winnie had told her to hold her mouth open when she was making up her eyes.

"Then the mascara doesn't get into your eye and make it burn," Winnie had said. "Your eye seems to stay open when your mouth's open. Funny, isn't it?"

There were a lot of things like that that Winnie knew.

She knew how to blow cigaret smoke through her nostrils. She knew that the juice from a tin of canned tomatoes makes the very best kind of breakfast on the morning following a drinking party.

She knew how to mix cinnamon with brown henna to make her hair that shade of coppery red.

There were four kinds of drinks that she knew how to make.

And Chatty, in her innocence thought that she was wonderful.

Winnie was making a drink that she called "white silk" when Bryant and Chatty reached her little flat that hot June night.

She was in the tiny kitchen with Jim Bowen. The two of them were at the table, carefully mixing equal parts of white grape juice and ice water and gin.

"Hello, there!" she hailed them when they came walking in at her back door. "Well, where are the Famous Four going tonight? How about the old Lollypop inn, Bryant?"

The Lollypop inn! The silly name brought back to Chatty the memory of an evening she had spent there with Dave Jordan weeks before. For just a second her heart gave that familiar twist of pain once more.

"It's closed up, isn't it?" asked Jim. "Wasn't there a raid out there or something a while ago?"

Bryant nodded, standing close to Chatty, his hand closed around her arm just above the elbow.

"Yeah," he said. "But its open again under a new name. Opened last Monday night. Let's go out there, hmm—?"

He pulled Chatty close to him and kissed her.

"How about it, Babe?" he asked, and kissed her again.

He made love to her openly, just as Winnie and Jim Bowen made love to each other when the four of them were together.

There was no embarrassment among them now. They all understood each other—as people do understand each other after they have been on at least one "wild party" together.

And if they all had a little contempt for each other, they got along wonderfully well, nevertheless.

"You take your car and I'll take mine," Bryant said to Jim, when they were out in the driveway, where the two roadsters were parked. "If you get there first you get a table for four, and if we get there first I'll get one. Don't break your bottle, whatever you do!"

Each of them had a ginger ale bottle filled with the "white silk."

"I won't," Jim promised. "It sure is a good drink, isn't it? Mellow as sunshine, what?"

Jim knew very little about drinks, as a matter of fact.

Younger than Bryant or Winnie, almost as young as Chatty, he was a nice, inexperienced boy. Exactly the kind that would be taken in by Winnie's dash and her air of know-it-all.

"We'll let them get there first," Bryant said, as they drove off. "I want to show you where I live."

He lived in an old-fashioned house that had been cut up into small suites.

It stood in the once-fashionable street known as Hampton Crescent—a street now given over to boarding houses, small dressmaking establishments and little neighborhood stores.

Bryant's rooms were on the top floor. They were in darkness when he and Chatty walked into them that night, and seemed to be filled with the fumes of Turkish cigarets.

"I shouldn't have come here," Chatty murmured. "To a man's flat, alone with him—should I?"

"But, after all, why not?" she asked herself. "Who'd know, and who'd care what she did? Her mother, perhaps, but nobody else. And her mother didnt count much in Chatty's life these days.

Bryant switched, on the lights, and she gave a little start of surprise. For Bryant's sitting room didn't look at all like a man's room.

The couch between the windows was piled with flowered silk cushions—the kind that a woman would pick out. The curtains were made of the same soft, gray material.

There was a glass bowl filled with pink china tulips on the table behind the couch, and a pair of lamps with ivory silk shades. An empty bird cage hung from a tall brass standard.

Everywhere, it struck Chatty, there was the touch of a woman's hand. And instantly she knew that Bryant's wife once had live here and furnished this little place. The white walls of the room no doubt had echoed to the sound of their love talk and their quarrels and bickering.

"Let's go, Bryant!" she said, suddenly. "It makes me uncomfortbale to be here . . . in a man's flat. I want to go."

He had come close to her, and she knew he wanted to take her in his arms and make love to her. She knew that that was why they had come here . . . She put out her hands and pushed him away from her.

"No!" she said so sharply that he backed away.

"All right. But don't scratch my eyes out." He said with a laugh. "Sit down a minute. I don't care so much for this drink of Winnie's. I'll get my flask."

He disappeared between the swinging curtains that hid a room behind the sitting room, and Chatty sat down upon the bright colored cushions of the couch.

Against the opposite wall stood a little writing desk of some pale, glossy wood. It was open, and the pigeon holes were filled with writing paper and envelopes.

On the tips of her toes, Chatty crossed the room and took out a sheet and an envelope. She thrust the paper into the envelope and tucked them into her little silk purse.

When Bryant came back into the room, screwing the top on a silver flask, she was sitting quietly on the couch, looking up at the empty bird cage.

"It looks so sad, doesn't it?" she asked plaintively. "Hanging there, empty? I suppose your wife took the bird away with her when she left you, didn't she?"

Bryant shook his blond, close cropped head.

"It died," he said, shortly. "Come on, let's go."

The Day Book of a New Yorker
Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—I have been called to task by an indignant reader, who objects to what he calls my frivolous remarks concerning the number of seemingly unemployed men who throng the motion picture theaters, baseball parks and other places of amusement during daytime working hours.

The reader insists that most of these, whom I have inferentially called persons who are sloughing on the job, are night workers and as much at liberty to go to the movies at noon as I am at night!

"New York," he says, "is a 24-hour town. Thousands of men and women—telephone operators, subway employes, newspaper men, milkmen and waiters in all-night restaurants, find their recreation in the daytime and should not be criticized for it."

Well, then, it must have been a bunch of milkmen I saw out in front of a motion picture theater on Broadway the other lunch hour. I counted them. There were 37 waiting in line to get tickets—the picture (adv) was "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu"—and all were grown males. A mother and her small son were rather helplessly fluttering about, trying to find a place in the line so that they, too, might see the show.

Statistics

Speaking of night workers, I have made a particular study of newspaper employes—pressmen, printers and circulation men, rather than those of the editorial staff. I don't know how many ball games and theaters they support, but I have learned that the average newspaper will provide profitable business for one all-night, one-arm lunch room and three speakeasies. The men are very loyal, and would not consider patronizing either the restaurant or the bar next door.

It's a Small Town

Sophisticated as the Broadway theaters may be, those in the Bronx, Brooklyn and Queens are the last word in naivete. The neighborhood movie house is often the only social service or community organization in the neighborhood—and great are the awards for the theater manager who learns the knack of making everybody just one big family. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, in his autobiography, complains that there is no neighborly feeling any more, and that persons living on the same floor in an apartment house do not even know each other's names. The governor is right. The movie, however, is the last remaining hope for some sort of community feeling.

I dropped in on one such big barn of a theater the other night. I saw there films that would never get a Broadway showing. Innocent amusing things they were—little short subjects that appealed to the children. There was no gaudy stage presentation, the only personal performance of the evening being that of the organist.

Everybody knew the organist by his first name, Bill. Bill talked to everybody. "Folks," he said, "theme songs are the rage right now. The picture that's coming has one, and I've got lots of them in my head—enough, I guess, for every person here. Now, before the picture starts, let's sing some of our own."

And Bill turned toward his console. A colored lantern slide with a silly picture of two pink-faced lovers up in one corner displayed upon the screen the first verse of the first song. Bill played with the organ wide open. With all that noise to give one heart, everybody sang. Mushy, silly, sentimental songs, one after another. At Bill's command, only the women would sing. Then the men would have a chance. Just for variety Bill would command everyone to whistle, and whistle they did.

I'm just a worldly, sophisticated, hard-boiled, cynical New Yorker, and who am I to know that that sort of thing is probably being done in every town between here and there? But my point is that we are all small town people at heart, and it is men like Bill and theaters like the one where he works that provide our only element of community life.

Bill's theater adds one perfect touch that assures the limitless patronage of the kids. Twice a day—at noon and just before dinner time—the neighborhood youngsters are invited to come to the concrete courtyard behind the theater in bathing suits or trunks. There they are treated to the inestimable luxury of a spanking, sloshing shower bath, administered through a fire hose.

The Once Over

The Pullman Steward

"The steward on this dining car is Mr. Emmanuel Xavier Groggins."—Note on a Pullman diner menu.

Passenger: Waiter!

Waiter: Yes, sah.

Passenger: Can I depend on it?

Waiter: Depend on what, sah?

Passenger: On the statement that the steward on this diner is Emmanuel Xavier Groggins?

Waiter: Yes, indeed.

Passenger: No fooling, now?

Waiter: No foolin'.

Passenger: I had a very annoying experience on another train the other day when the menu stated that the steward was Macy McArthur Breckinridge, and I had chatted with him under that name all through dinner before I discovered that his name was really Carlos P. Schmalz.

PHILLIPS

Waiter: It must have been some other railroad. Now on this line when a menu tells you who the steward is you can depend on it. We're very particular about it.

Passenger: It was on this very road.

Waiter: Well, then, Mr. Breckinridge must have been taken sick or something and they had to substitute Mr. Schmalz on such short notice that they couldn't print his name on the bill of fare.

Passenger: No, that wasn't it. You see, whenever I eat on a diner I always look at the menu to see who is the steward and then I ask for him at once. I like the personal touch. Well, I asked for Macy McArthur Breckinridge and what do you think the waiter replied?

Waiter: I dunno, sah.

Passenger: He replied that he had never heard of Macy McArthur Breckenridge. I said, "Why, my good fellow, he is the steward on this diner. It says so in black and white." The waiter just shook his head and said, "No, sir; the steward on this diner is Herman K. Austin." This annoyed me, and, showing him the menu, I pointed to the name of Macy McArthur Breckenridge and told him that unless he was the steward the road was deceiving its customer.

Waiter: I see, sah.

Passenger: Well, the steward himself heard the argument and he came over to my table and announced that he was Herman K. Austin and that he was the steward on that diner. I demanded to know what had happened to Macy McArthur Breckenridge. He told me he had taken a week off to get married!

Waiter: What did you do next, sah?

Passenger: I stood on my rights and on the menu. I looked Mr. Austin in the eye and I told him that the menu called for Macy McArthur Breckinridge and that I wanted him and would accept no other.

Waiter: Did you ever get Mr. Macy McArthur Breckinridge, sah?

Passenger: No, I had to accept Herman K. Austin.

Waiter: It was must unfortunate, sah. But nothing like that will happen on this diner. Do you wish to see Mr. Groggins?

Passenger: Yes, fetch Emmanuel Xavier Groggins.

(There is an interval of five minutes.)

Steward: You sent for me, sir?

Passenger: Yes, Mr. Groggins.

Steward: Wortleberry is the name, sir; Lucius H. Wortleberry.

Passenger (slipping out of his chair): Awk-k-k-k-k-k!

Musical Star to Make Talkie Here

LONDON, Aug. 14. (INS)—Evelyn Laye, London's most famous musical comedy queen, is to make a musical comedy talkie in Hollywood early next year, it was learned today.

Miss Laye told International News Service she has received an offer from Flo Ziegfeld of $5,000 a week, with a guaranteed minimum of $50,000, to make a talke under his direction.

She expects to arrive in Hollywood next February, after starring in a play in New York this coming autumn.

"Mr. Ziegfeld telephoned to me recently, offering me $5,000 a week to appear under his direction," Miss Laye said. "We talked for a quarter of an hour and I accepted.

"He hopes to star me in a New York theater this fall, and is trying to hit upon a piece which can first be done as a musical comedy and then as a talkie."

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who enforces the law should keep it inviolate."

A few days ago I watched an officer break the law three times, while exploding his wrath upon a negro for turning left across the street at an alley to drive on to a used car lot. The officer made the same turn, parked his car in the alley while he went to curse the negro out, after which he backed his car across the street and headed on his original course. When will he realize that he owes the negro an apology and the city a fine on three counts?

LONGHORN

A NAME EVERY TEXAN KNOWS ON A PRODUCT DEDICATED TO THE BUILDING OF A STILL GREATER TEXAS

After many months of effort by a small army of men, the new plant of the Republic Portland Cement Company is completed and has been in actual operation for several weeks. It has been our privilege to conceive, organize and build this modern institution which is a monument to the progress of a great industry and another step forward in Texas' manufacturing supremacy. To be worthy of the name 'LONGHORN'—a name so typically Texan and so symbolical of the greatest of states—and to keep faith with the cement consuming public by maintaining exacting standards in every detail of manufacture and distribution, shall be our inalterable purpose.

PAYNE SCORES SEASON'S 21ST

Spuds' Resourceful Attack, Brilliant Fielding, Wins

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

That flapping in the breeze you hear emanating from the northeast part of town is not Mirandy's washing on the line; it is the 1929 Texas league pennant floating at Athletic park. Of course, there still remains the somewhat important matters of winning the second half and beating Dallas in the playoff. But the consummation of at least that first business at hand became visibly nearer yesterday as the Spudders took the first of the four-game decisive series with the Fort Worth Panthers.

The score was 7 to 2 and the victory increased the lead of Wichita Falls to four and a half games over the Cats.

Again proving their indubitable right to rank with the best as a money ball club, that is, one that arises to its greatest heights on important occasions, the Spudders fought from behind to win yesterday. Following the example of their courageous and great pitcher, George Payne, they battled with a resourceful attack and brilliance on the defense in an inspiring display of spirit and superb baseball.

Cat Defense Demoralized

Trailing 2 to 1 in the sixth inning, the Spudders literally bunted their way into a tie, and with the Cat infield and pitcher demoralized by the attack, Pete Turgeon smote a characteristic mighty clout over the wall with three comrades on the lines. Six runs, and the ball game was won in that round.

Pounded for three hits, which with a sacrifice netted two runs in the first inning, Payne held the hostiles scoreless thereafter. Only once was he in danger again, that in the third when the Cats got two hits, but a double play averted trouble and George was master of the situation after the third. In four innings the "screw ball" master turned back the hostiles in order. He yielded eight hits, only two after the third inning, and with his customary marvelous control did not issue a single base on balls.

It was the twenty-first victory of the season for Payne against nine defeats.

Meadows Starts Strong

Rufus Meadows, young southpaw, pitched great ball in opening frames, holding the Spudders hitless the first three innings and runless for four. But after giving up all the tallies and nine hits he was replaced in the seventh by Steve Myers, rookie right-hander from the West Texas league, who limited the Galloways to two blows the remaining two innings.

Benton, Fitzgerald, Sullivan, Payne, Urban, Bonowitz and Grimes were batting leaders with two knocks each.

Brilliant fielding marked the pastime. The entire Spudder infield had hands in glittering plays and Red Bennett backed against the fence to pull down a potential hit. Urban and Bonowitz flashed some particularly sparkling bits of defensive work.

Cats Score in First

The Cats tallied two runs in the first inning. Urban singled to center after one was out and advanced to second when Bonowitz beat out a bunt to Hermann. Grimes singled to center, scoring Urban and sending Bonowitz to third. Cox's long lift to Sullivan tallied Bonowitz. Turgeon made a fast play on Harrington's grounder to his right to force Grimes at second.

Meadows struck out two and Bonowitz ran to the foul line to pull down Fitzgerald's hoist.

Meadows hit to center in the second but two were out and he was left.

Bennett was passed to start the Spudder half but to no avail.

Urban led off in the third with his second hit, a single to left, but Turgeon, Benton and Stapleton completed a double play on Bonowitz' grounder to Pete. Grimes singled to right but Hermann took Cox' spop.

Nary a Spudder got on base in their third.

Bennett Makes Great Catch

Red Bennett crashed into the fence to make a great catch of Harrington's drive and the Panthers were turned back one-two-three in the fourth.

Fitzgerald beat out a tap in front of the plate with one out but was forced by Bennett when Cato made a fine stop, of Red's harsh liner. Sullivan slashed a hit to left and Bennett flashed some speedy and heads-up base-running to make it all the way to third. Cato threw out Hermann.

Moore hit to center in the fifth after one was out and Urban was called out on strikes and Fitzgerald took Bonowitz' fly.

The Spudders tallied one in their half. Stapleton started it with a hit to center and advanced to second when Payne popped a single past Harrington. Benton beat out a roller to Meadows, filling the bases. Turgeon forced Benton, Cato to Harrington, Stapleton scoring.

Benton, Turgeon and Hermann retired the Panthers on successive ground balls in the sixth.

Spudders Win in Sixth

Galloway's gallopers bunted their way into a tie and then Turgeon hammered his homer to score six runs in the sixth. Bennett, first up, was hit by a pitched ball, and went to second on Sullivan's bunt to Grimes, which went for a hit. Both runners moved up on Hermann's sacrifice, Cato to Grimes. Lapan was purposely passed, filling the bases. Payne struck out. Benton tapped to Meadows and Sullivan slid safely under Baker. Turgeon whanged his circuit drive over the left field wall, scoring three comrades ahead of him. Fitzgerald beat out a hit to Meadows but Rufus tossed out Bennett.

George Washington turned back the hostiles in order for the second successive round in the seventh.

Myers went to the hill for the Panthers and stopped the run-getting, though Hermann singled.

Bonowitz doubled to left in the eighth after two were out and Hermann threw out Grimes.

Payne dropped his second hit into right but Benton lined to Urban and he was doubled off first.

Myers skied to Sullivan to start the ninth, Hermann made a great stop and throw to retire Harrington and Benton went back for Baker's lift.

Right-handers Toil Today

Bill Goff or Andy Messenger will be Jim Galloway's chucker today while Skipper Pancho Snyder of the Cats indicated last night that Charley Sullivan, the right-hander, will be his selection.

The Panther pilot still is forced to watch play from the dugout as the result of a severe spike wound sustained to a foot more than a month ago but expects to get back into uniform and play soon. While the Cats are fighting and playing in a pleasing manner, they miss the drive of the hustling Pancho, in the game or at least on the coaching lines.

HEAVY BOXING HAZE LIFTED

Clearing of Situation in New York Indicated

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (UP)—The ever complicated, and at times exceedingly boresome, heavyweight controversy seems to be straightening itself out for the benefit of all concerned in the tangle which was precipitated by Max Schmeling, the hard-headed (not hitting) German, and his advisers.

One possible outcome of the muddle may be that the big heavyweight shot of the year may be dumped right into the lap of Signor Humbert J. Fugazy, the mild-mannered Italian promoter who has been taken for more buggy rides than any other fistic impresario of memory.

Fugazy Keeps Trying

"Down but never out," seems to have been Signor Fugazy's motto for years. At one time or another almost everyone in the boxing game, it seems, has taken the signor for a joy ride. Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey and all the rest have talked business with Fugazy but when the contracts were drawn up the signor was left holding the fountain pen in his hand and Madison Square garden got the signatures.

After yesterday's meeting of the New York State Athletic commission it appeared that Fugazy, who never squawked when things were breaking bad, would be in a position to stage a series of heavyweight bouts which will produce an outstanding candidate for the vacant championship.

The comission allotted the Brooklyn promoter Sept. 11 as a date for the proposed Phil Scott-Max Schmeling bout. Fugazy assured the boxing board that the German was ready to fulfill his contract to meet Scott. In reply the commission set aside a tentative date and advised Fugazy to bring Schmeling and his managers to the commission's office next Tuesday and an effort would be made to untangle the situation.

Max Wants Revenge

In boxing circles it is whispered that Schmeling is anxious to align himself with Fugazy as a means of revenge on Madison Square Garden corporation for the recent turn of events which caused Tommy Loughran to be substituted for him against Jack Sharkey.

The one hitch in the Fugazy plans is that the garden will make every effort to prevent Schmeling from fighting in the United States after he has fulfilled the Scott contract because of a two-year option on the German's services. That's a bridge, however, which need not be crossed until it's reached.

Helen and Betty In Same Bracket

May Meet in Semi-Finals of National Tennis

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (AP)—Helen Wills and her 18-year-old English rival, Betty Nuthall, landed in the same half of the draw today when the names of the 64 entries for the national women's tennis championship next week at Forest Hills were taken from a hat in the office of the United States Lawn Tennis association.

If both come through the early rounds the prospective battle royal between the champion and the English girl who forced her to play two hard deuced sets to win in the Wightman cup series last week will be waged in the semi-finals a week from Friday.

Miss Wills was seeded at the top of the American list and Miss Nuthall headed the foreign seeded group.

The players expected to dispute Miss Nuthall's progress toward the semi-finals are the American veterans, Mrs. Bundy and Mrs. Mallory, both of whom are old enough to be her mother. In the same quarter with Miss Wills the most formidable players are Miss Wade, Miss Gladham and Mrs. Michel.

In the lower half of the bracket, America's second ranking star, Miss Helen Jacobs, and Mrs. Watson, the English woman who beat her in the Wightman cup play, stand out as favorites to reach the semi-finals.

Clubs May Acquire New Athletes For League Playoff, Ruggles Rules

DALLAS, Aug. 14. (AP)—Baseball observers were busy today forecasting the result of acting President William Ruggles' decision that "anything goes" in the impending playoff for the Texas League title.

The consensus was that Ruggles had, figuratively, opened the gate when he ruled that the playoff was part and parcel of the regular playing season and that any player signed up to the day of the series would be eligible to compete. There had been an impression that a man would have to be signed by Aug. 15 to be eligible.

Ruggles' edict will make it possible for either or both of the contending clubs to "load for bear" on the eve of the series. Predictions were rife that two powerful aggregations would clash in the playoff. The winner would have to revert to its roster as of Aug. 15 for the Dixie series.

Dallas, a certainty for the playoff, was known to be seeking some help from the majors. Bob Tarleton, Steer business manager, was said to be bending every effort to land Bill Clancy and a couple of other White Sox reserves. In view of the close relations between the two clubs this year, it was deemed almost certain the pale hose will ship the Herd some help.

Wichita Falls, now a favorite to capture the second half, probably could obtain reinforcements from the St. Louis Browns if Manager Jim Galloway decided his outfit needed bolstering for the playoff.

The Duffer's Rebuttal

"To improve your golf game you must work at golf—not play at it, as most golfers do."—George Duncan.

I stalk all day in the sun and sand
Until my hide peels off;
With a steel-shod niblick in my hand
I slug in the sand-filled trough;
I hew my way by swamp and glen,
No stagnant stream I shirk,
And then I plow the sand again—
Who says this isn't work?

I climb steep hills to find far greens,
I dig deep in the sod;
My spoor leads on through deep ravines,
With many a futile prod.
I enter traps above my neck,
Where yawning heel prints lurk,
And when I finish I'm a wreck—
Who says this isn't work?

I slice and top and overswing
Upon my somber rounds;
I hear the cheering caddie sing
The old dirge, "Outerbounds!"
I wrench my neck, I twist my spine,
I slug with jab and jerk,
And still I go an 8 or 9—
Who says this isn't work?

Two Champions

The rumor is abroad and around that Helen Wills will give up championship tennis after this summer—and that Bobby Jones will retire from tournament golf after next summer.

You can discount both reports. They may turn out to be true, but the human psychology doesn't point that way. When one is the best in the world at a certain thing it isn't so easy to quit that line of enterprise and become merely one among many. There are times when every champion gets sick of his or her game for the time being and yearns for rest from the strain and struggle of modern competition. Ball players in October will often tell you they are through, but these are usually the first to catch the train for spring training.

Helen Wills and Bobby Jones are among the champions who stand above other champions. Tennis and golf have given them thrills that few can know from sport. Joyce Wethered retired for two years—and then came back. Either Helen Wills or Bobby Jones might retire for a season, but if so, each will return.

Considering Loughran

It will be impossible now to assign any heavyweight crown to any of the current heavyweights without considering Tommy Loughran. One reason is that he is so much more anxious to meet the few leaders than they are to meet him.

The other is that it is quite doubtful that any of the present crop could beat him. Loughran at his natural weight, around 183 pounds, will be a barrier for Schmeling, Sharkey or any one else.

He can't punch a lot, but who is there around who can punch him? Like most good boxers, he is better against the big fellows than he is against the smaller, faster flock. He has at least shown enough to deserve his lot.

Half-Strides

The rating for the golf championship at Pebble Beach is: 1, Jones; 2, Von Elm; 3—name your own candidate.

The Cubs are keen against left-handed pitching—but they haven't been swinging at many Groves.

One of the surest, best and easiest ways to miss a golf shot is to tighten your grip so that your hands no longer have the feel of the club head.

Minnesota, Michigan, Notre Dame, Princeton, Illinois, Stanford and Georgia Tech are among those who see no reason to start sobbing over next fall's football outlook.

Some heavyweight is going to do some real fighting pretty soon and then get thrown out of the union.

GOLF'S AMATEUR Challengers

DR. O. F. WILLING

By BRIAN BELL

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (AP)—O. F. Willing, Portland, Ore., dentist, first became associated with golf more than 20 years ago but did not begin to take the game seriously until 1917 and 1918.

After service in the navy during the world war, he returned to Portland and won the city championship for his first title. He has won the Oregon state title five times, the Pacific northwest amateur twice and the Pacific northwest and Oregon open. He is now the Oregon open and amateur champion.

Doctor Willing became famous in 1923 when he won the deciding match given the Walker cup team from the United States an exciting victory over the British team at St. Andrews.

He fell in the third round of last year's amateur championship before George Voigt.

Doctor Willing has an accurate iron game and is an able putter. He is one of the most deliberate players in the game and goes his unhurried way about a golf course, be the round for a championship or merely for recreation.

The Oregonian has had no luck in the amateur. Although he usually has qualified among the leaders, his skill never has carried him beyond the third round of match play.

LAYOFF HURTS JACK

The sharpsters figure that Jack Sharkey's inactivity will hurt him in his match with Tommy Loughran.

Where Th' Money Goes

NEW YORK.—It has been estimated that the average American woman spends $50 a year on her face. U. S. department of commerce figures report that the average woman's expenditure goes one-sixth for powder and rouge; one-sixth for creams; one-sixth for perfumes, toilet waters and talcum; one-sixth for dentifrice; one-sixth for hair tonics; and the remainder for beauty treatments.

M'CARTY AND HAYNES DRAW

City Tennis Title Will Be Decided Today

Clifton Haynes and Tom McCarty battled evenly, each winning two sets, when darkness halted play yesterday in the finals of the city municipal tennis championships. McCarty won the first set, 7-5; Haynes the second, 6-4; McCarty the third, 6-3 and Haynes the fourth, 6-0.

The fifth and decisive set of the match is to be played today, starting at 4:30 o'clock on the courts at Junior college.

The winner, with other city champions, will represent Wichita Falls in the state municipal tennis tournament to be held here tomorrow and Saturday.

Wrong Ump Injured By Bottle Barrage

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 14. (UP)—A free-for-all fight that broke out in the ninth-inning of the Columbus-Milwaukee baseball game at Neil park yesterday resulted in the wrong umpire being hit on the head with a pop bottle.

Umpire Goetz walked to the Columbus bench to order a player out of the game. Umpire Rue joined him. The pop bottle, the first missile in the fight, hit Rue, who was knocked unconscious and suffered a slight concussion of the brain.

Fans ran onto the field, and tried to attack Goetz. Several struck at him. Police and players quieted the crowd, which returned to the stands, and permitted the game to resume.

Columbus players carried Rue from the field.

Missouri 'Pony' Backs Supplanted by Heavies

COLUMBIA, Mo., Aug. 14. (AP)—The University of Missouri's spectacular "pony" backfield, will be replaced by huge line-crashers this year.

Only Russell Dills, 150-pound back, remains to represent the "ponies." All other prospective backs weigh 200 pounds or more.

Coach Gwinn Henry used the all-pony backfield two years ago when their larger teammates were injured. The midgets became regulars and won the final championships of the old Missouri Valley conference.

SINGER READY FOR BIG FIGHT

Al Stops Charles and Is Set For Chocolate

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (UP)—Al Singer, leading featherweight contender, cleared the way for his impending battle with Kid Chocolate by knocking out Gaston Charles of France in the second round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Queensboro stadium.

Charles went down for the count of 32 seconds after the second round started. He had been floored for the nine count in the first, and was entirely outclassed.

Singer had been signed to meet the sensational Chocolate but had he not demonstrated his superiority over Charles there was some chance that his bout with the Cuban would be canceled. The Chocolate-Singer fight, scheduled for the Polo grounds on Aug. 29, promises to be one of the most important non-title engagements fought among the small men in recent years.

Sunbathing Suits for Children

Due to the researches of science and the friendly publicity given by the newspapers and magazines, people have come to realize the benefits of sunshine and we, as a nation, are fortunately emerging from the "sun starved" era.

It is realized that a lack of sunshine may prevent a normal bone development in children. Rickets is a disease of winter months, dark houses, and lightproof, bundlesome clothes.

Since the sun-tanned vogue has swept from face powder to bare legs, it is to be expected that the modern bathing suits would develop into the "sun-tanned back" form. This is especially desirable for babies and young children. The modern sun-suit consists of a brief part of shorts held up over the front by porous material or a set of straps to admit the sunlight to the child's chest and back. The spine is almost entirely exposed. These can be used as play suits as well as bathing suits. The cut should be well fitting so that no chaffing is experienced.

The valuable ultra-violet rays of the sunshine cannot be felt because they are not warm nor can they be seen because they are higher in the spectrum than can be observed by our eyes. The ultra-violet rays are obstructed by clouds, dust, fog, smoke, window glass and by clothing, and for these reasons a direct exposure of the skin to the sunlight is most valuable.

The exposure to the sunlight should be very gradual and of short duration at first until the skin becomes darkened. No burning should be permitted, as this is injurious to the skin, and should be avoided just as any other burn would be.

It is generally recognized that direct sunlight is superior to cod-liver oil or other foods in treating rickets. The aim should be to tan the skin, but not to burn it. The head should be protected especially on hot days.

Hypocrates of ancient Greece recognized the value of the sun in treating disease, but this knowledge was lost during the dark ages of Europe, and rickets was common. It is not unusual to observe rickets in practically every picture painted by the old masters. The models of babies used by such masters of painting as Raphael and DeVinci show the unmistakable square head and rib formation of rickets.

At first babies should be exposed only for about 10 minutes, but this sunbath can be increased to three to five minutes daily until an exposure of an hour to the sunlight morning and evening will not be excessive.

Sunbathing may also be given in enclosed screen porches sheltered from the wind, but the sun must shine directly on the child unobstructed by glass.

Endeavor to avoid sunburn, but should this occur, a good treatment is to cover the skin with oil and use cold compresses.

Remember that the sun's rays are used in both prevention and cure of rickets and other disorders. Give your child and also yourself the benefit of these chemical sun's rays to help build up a normal resistance to all diseases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Shortness of Breath

Question—Mrs. H. W. J. writes: "I suffer from shortness of breath and have for 10 years. Our family doctor says it is caused from nervous indigestion. Have taken loads of medicine, but still suffer. It causes me to yawn and gives me a tired, weak feeling. Have pains around my heart and gas on my stomach."

Answer—Get rid of the gas pressure by living on the proper diet, and then take diaphragmatic breathing exercises. Any physical culture instructor will be able to show you these exercises, or I will be glad to send you some articles I have written on this subject.

Ginseng Root

Question—P. K. asks: "Will you please tell me something about the medicinal value of the ginseng root? I have heard that the Chinese value it highly, and was informed that by taking the tea for about 18 months my hearing could be made normal. I am a little hard of hearing."

Answer—Ginseng is the root of an herb known as the panax ginseng in Asia, but a similar plant is produced in North America known as the panax quinquefolia, which has a mucilaginous substance supposed to be slightly healing when applied to abrasions. It is also supposed to be somewhat of a stimulant to the nerve and sexual centers, but I doubt very much if it has any value for the restoration of hearing.

Orange Juice

Question—Mrs. F. D. asks: "Is there any danger of the orange juice to be used in your cleansing diet course causing any discomfort to the bladder or kidneys on account of the acid?"

Answer—The citric acid of the orange juice is not eliminated by the kidneys, but is burned up internally. However, during the fast, elimination takes place so rapidly that this causes temporary irritation of the bladder until the toxins have been completely eliminated.

Oklahoma Employment Heads Called Together

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 14. (UP)—Superintendents of the federal-state free employment bureaus at Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Muskogee and Enid have been called to the capitol for a conference Saturday by W. A. Pat Murphy, state labor commissioner.

The conference is to discuss the unemployment situation among unskilled laborers, Murphy said.

The employment situation among the skilled trades is good in Oklahoma, Murphy said, but there is an excessive amount of unemployment among unskilled laborers, he said.

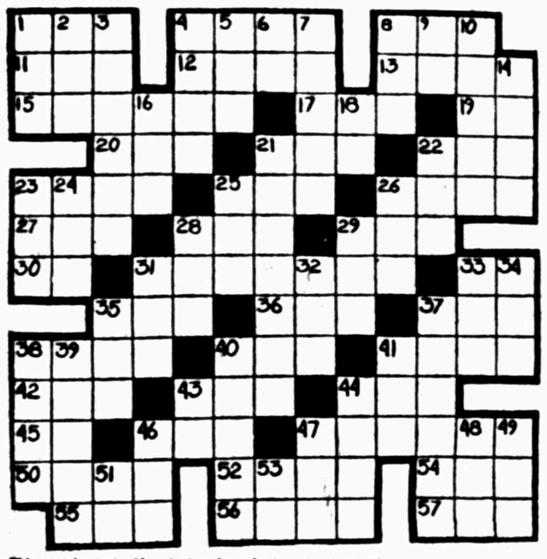

Sleuths Smash Scheme For Theft of New Fords

CHESTER, Pa., Aug. 14. (INS)—Discovery of a colossal scheme for the theft of new Fords as completed at the plant here and the arrest of 15 youthful members of one of the largest and best organized auto theft gangs ever uncovered in the country was revealed here this afternoon by District Attorney William J. McCarter Jr.

The youths all have made signed individual confessions, McCarter said.

Although the world generally has recognized Edison as inventor of first successful electric vacuum lamp some Parisian newspapers can't resist temptation to claim de Changy, a Frenchman, as real inventor.

SWIM PARTY FOR NETSTERS

Entertainment Program for Tennis Players Made

A swimming party at Westmoreland park pool has been arranged for Saturday night for all entrants in the state tennis meet to be held in Wichita Falls Friday and Saturday, it was announced Wednesday by C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent. Otto Lazenby, manager of the pool, has announced that suits and towels will be furnished to the players in addition to the free swim.

The swimming party, free admission to all Dent theaters on both days and a dance at Lakeside park Friday night complete the entertainment program arranged by Mr. Bunnenberg and C. C. Frazee, city recreational director, for the visiting tennis players.

It was also announced Wednesday that representatives from the following Texas cities would be entered in the meet: San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, Waco, Austin, Houston, Amarillo, Denison, Plainview, Georgetown, Lampasas, Chillicothe and Wichita Falls. Fort Worth stated that 20 players from that city would be entered and San Antonio stated that there would be 19 players from there, with entrants in all except the veterans' doubles sets. Wichita Falls will have about 17 entrants, Mr. Bunnenberg said. Several other cities are expected to register for the meet Thursday and Friday.

Parents Seek Missing Maid

Juvenile Officer Asked To Aid in Search

Search for a 17-year-old girl who disappeared from her home last Friday night was widened Wednesday afternoon when the investigation was placed in the hands of James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, by the parents of the missing girl.

Radio broadcasts and a network of telegrams are inquiring for a "good-looking red-headed" girl last seen at the end of a dance here Friday night. The girl went to the dance in a borrowed dress, she and a girl chum having exchanged frocks before they started for the dance, so that the mother can not give an accurate description of the girl's appearance. The girl friend said that "Bobby," the missing 17-year-old, left the dance in the company of a young man who was not known to her friend.

The growing anxiety of the parents after private investigations were futile Wednesday led them to place the search in official hands, with the hope that the girl can be traced within the next 24 hours.

Man Suffers Burns When Automobile Takes Fire

Willie McLester, who lives in Arkansas, visiting at the home of E. L. Windham, 1504 Holliday street, suffered painful burns on both hands while attempting to extinguish flames which damaged an automobile belonging to Mr. Windham at the residence about 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

The young man was taken to the Wichita General hospital for treatment. Attending physicians stated that the burns were extremely painful but not serious in nature.

Firemen were called to extinguish the blaze in the automobile, which was badly damaged. Mr. Windham's car was the second to be damaged by flames Wednesday. An automobile parked at the corner of Brick and Humphreys streets, belonging to a negro vaudeville troupe, was practically destroyed by flames about 3 a. m. Wednesday. Damage was estimated at about $400. Firemen used 40 gallons of chemical and laid several hundred feet of hose before they could bring the fire under control. No cause for the blaze was determined.

Sooner Game Commissioners Accused Of Illegally Seining Nebraska Lake

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 14. (UP)—Charges that Mark E. O'Brien, conservation commissioner for Oklahoma, has seined fish out of a Nebraska lake and had transported them illegally out of the state were made today by Frank O'Connell, Nebraska chief game warden.

The fish, about 1,500 and presumably perch, were shipped out of Nebraska without authority of the fish and game department in a federal fish car. The car was routed to Kansas City and left Seneca, Neb., July 10, O'Connell said.

Seining at Night

O'Brien, until two years ago, was superintendent of the state hatcheries at Valentine. He resigned to become conservation commissioner for Oklahoma.

O'Connell said he received reports several weeks ago that fish were being seined around Seneca, Neb. He investigated and learned, he said, that O'Brien, accompanied by two others, had seined Alkali lake one night in July.

Approximately 1,500 fish were seined out of the lake, O'Connell charged, and were kept in a "live box" in the Loup river until July 10 when they were shipped.

The fish car was obtained from the federal government by Dan A. Batton, mayor of Tulsa, Okla., O'Connell said. In obtaining the car, federal records revealed that O'Brien was represented as an employe of the Nebraska fish and game commission.

Fish Car Routed

Advices from Washington to O'Connell revealed that fish car No. 8 had been routed out of Seneca to Kansas City July 10.

O'Connell has wired to the governor of Oklahoma to learn whether O'Brien did the seining with the sanction of the state of Oklahoma.

Witnesses have been obtained to corroborate his charges, O'Connell said.

What action may be taken against O'Brien had not been determined by O'Connell, who said that O'Brien could be sued for damages amounting to approximately $7,500 as provided by a state law of $5 a fish damage; or a charge would be filed of taking fish without a seining license, or a charge of a non-resident fishing without a license.

O'BRIEN NOW OUT OF STATE SERVICE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 14. (UP)—Walter A. Hadley, secretary to Gov. W. J. Holloway, today notified Frank B. O'Connell, secretary of the Nebraska game commission, that M. E. O'Brien has not been an employe of the Oklahoma fish and game commission since April 18.

O'Brien now is fish culturist for the city of Tulsa. He has charge of Spavinaw lake there, it was reported.

O'Brien could not be reached today. Gov. W. J. Holloway is out of the state on his vacation.

Marines Are Coming Home

Devil Dogs Removed From Distant Points

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14. (US)—Uncle Sam's marines are homeward bound by the boatload from Nicaragua, China and other distant places, thanks to more peaceful conditions where they have been assigned to do police duty.

For the first time in two years, half of the enlisted strength of the marine corps is in the continental limits of the United States or homeward bound, the navy department revealed today.

More than two-thirds of the 18,000 enlisted personnel had been fighting bandits or protecting American interests. Secretary of the Navy Adams, however, said he does not look for any large additional withdrawals.

There were more than 6,000 marines and bluejackets in Nicaragua a year ago. Today there are 1,430 officers and men, an aviation detail of 200, and 200 with the Guardia Nationale.

President Hoover recently ordered 1,200 men withdrawn from Nicaragua. Of these, 800 are due to arrive aboard the transport Henderson at the marine base, Quantico, Va., Sept. 2. The remaining 400 are to be taken to the Pacific coast by the Henderson on her return to China, with 500 replacements authorized to relieve men there whose enlistments have expired.

There were 5,000 marines on duty in China during the recent revolution there. The 4th regiment has been cut to 1,300, but the legation guard at Peking continues at 470.

Marine guards at Guam, the Philippines, Virgin islands, Cuba, at American Samoa, and in canal zone and aboard warships account for a large number of marines away from their homeland.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (AP)—Most of yesterday's advances were lost in cotton here today. December contracts sold off to 18.42 and closed at 18.45, with hte general market closing steady at net declines of 11 to 18 points.

October sold off to 18.13 and March to 18.68, making net declines of about 15 to 21 points on the active months, but trading was comparatively quiet, and later fluctuations were irregular. Closing quotations were within a few points of the lowest on most positions.

Private cables said that covering and continental buying in the Liverpool market had been supplied by realizing.

Exports today, 5,422 making 65,797 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,763. U. S. port stocks, $544,197.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 14. (AP)—Cotton was quiet today, the failure of the census bureau to issue its July consumption report serving to restrict trading. Prices worked slightly lower, October dropping from a high of 18.28 to 18.08 and closing one point above the latter figure for a net loss of 14 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 12 to 15 points.

Liverpool cables were slightly lower than due and the market opened steady 3 to 6 points lower. Selling on the lower cables caused a further recession which carried October to 18.16 and December 18.43, or 7 to 8 points net down.

The weekly weather and crop summary was considered favorable and December rallied to 18.56, or 12 to 13 points above the highs. December dropped to 18.33 or 23 points under the highs. The close was at or near the lowest.

Early Gains Lost as Stock Market Worries About Reserve Statement

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (US)—Part of early gains of the stock exchange were wiped out in closing reaction today influenced by nervousness as to showing to be made in the federal reserve statement to be issued this afternoon. Steel forged ahead in sensational manner early in the day, recording new high record price of $245 a share but subsequently sold off to finish with a point gain at $238. A few individual stocks held good gains to the close as a result of special influence with American Can showing 6 point advance, Chesapeake & Ohio advancing 6½, Johns Manville 5½, and Industrial Alcohol 4 points. Standard Oil of New Jersey added 2⅞ to its recovery in advance of a strong and fairly active Oil group. Coppers rallied for a time while the Rails held fairly firm in quiet trading. The call rate declined from renewal of 7 per cent to 6 per cent while turnover held around the 4,000,000 share level.

One can hear almost any kind of tale regarding the coming split up of Steel common. It is doubtful that the directors themselves have made up their minds as to what form it will take. With bond retirement etc., to take care of it is thought probable that no action on melon cutting can be expected until the end of the year. The most important factor in the meantime is the sustained earning power that influences large holders to stick with their commitment and at the same time brings in new long-pull buyers. Those who have held to Steel rather than to try for trading profits have been the winners in the past. Managers of investment trusts and other important market interests believe such policy will continue to prove advantageous. About two score of years ago Steel could be bought at receivership prices. Those who bought and held—and undoubtedly there were several—only have about 5,400 per cent profits on their "speculation."

American International, Allied Chemical and other holding companies as well as investment trusts are holding Steel common and could not find better work for their money if they sold. The same condition is found in American Can and it influenced renewed group operations in that stock, today, coincident with report that prospects were for substantial gain in foreign demand for its output over the next several months. Motor shares continue to disappoint but strong interests in General Motors, Chrysler, and others hold to their opinion that third quarter business is going to prove better than generally expected.

Announcement of the Petroleum Institute that crude oil production decline during the week enhanced the optimism of the bulls on the stocks. Standard of New Jersey remained the favorite but there were further favorable advices regarding Skelly, Asphalt, Pan American and others in which special groups were interested. Evidence of group work was seen in the Amusement shares with talk of those interested mostly concerned with mergers. At least two companies would like to get Paramount but those in control are not over anxious to sell as their organization is making more money now than ever before. Further attempt was made to revive the Coppers also with those associated with Anaconda maintaining there would be no further reduction in the price of the Red Metal.

The street thinks the reserve directors ought to raise the rediscount rate again. At least it hopes for a "warning." After every "warning" or "action" of the last year the market has ultimately gone higher than ever. Of course, the small man who believed a governmental body like the reserve was concerned only with domestic conditions was squeezed out but until the reserve issues a daily stock market letter the citizen who has not money enough to hold good securities through its disturbances is in a precarious position playing the market. It is expected that the reserve's statement tomorrow will show brokers' loans at a new high peak with most brokers expecting increase of at least $25,000,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 14. (AP)—Lively jumps in wheat prices today accompanied reports that frost is menacing what drought has left of the wheat crop of Canada. Decided falling-off in the amount of rural marketings of wheat in the United States tended strongly further to swing the wheat market upward, and so likewise did a big increase of flour trade, as well as notably higher price for corn.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled 2⅞ to 2⅞c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 2¼c to 3⅛c up, oats ⅛c to 1⅛c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10c.

Official reports of freezing temperatures in Canada last night were supplemented by predictions of a recurrence of frosts there tonight, threatening to damage the quality of wheat yields if not also the quantity.

Indications were that export buying of North American wheat is continuing, and it was shown furthermore that domestic primary receipts of wheat in the last three days have dropped to 12,256,000 bushels compared with 18,167,000 bushels for the corresponding time last week.

Corn prices advanced almost vertically. Oats sympathized with the upward trend of corn and of wheat as well.

Influenced by the action of grain, provisions recovered from early losses, notwithstanding that hog values averaged lower.

Jury Panels Drawn For September Terms

Three jury panels of 100 men each were drawn Wednesday for service in the local courts during the second, third and fourth weeks in September, Judge W. W. Cook announced Wednesday afternoon. The names were the first to be drawn from the newly filled jury wheel into which the names of 1,100 Wichita county voters were dropped on Tuesday.

The panels were drawn by Miss Eunice Jackson, district clerk, and by W. J. Duncan, deputy sheriff, in the presence of Judge Cook. They will be used by the 78th and 89th district courts, both in session during September, and by the Wichita county court. No juries have been impaneled in the local courts during August.

DOLORES TELLS OF ROMANCE

Affair With 'Affinity' Earle Disclosed

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 14. (US)—Dolores Salazer today partially told about the romance she alleges she had with Ferdinand Pinney Earle, internationally known as "Affinity" Earle.

It was revealed when there was filed in superior court the deposition made by Miss Salazar in her $180,000 breach of promise and breach of contract suit against Earle, artist and erstwhile movie director.

She declared that at one time Earle promised to create a $100,000 trust fund for her.

Miss Salazar, in her deposition, declared that when Earle asked her to marry him he promised to deposit $15,000 in the bank for her.

"He did this," she declared, "because my father had disowned me. Father had told me that if he ever caught Earle and myself together again it would make trouble. So I had no home and no one to support me. Mr. Earle said he would put the money in a Hollywood bank."

Later, Miss Salazar declared, Earle told her he had not put the money in the bank feeling she was "too much of a child" to manage that much money and also because her father had "insulted" him.

Miss Salazar's suit against Earle is now pending and is set for trial Sept. 30. Taking of the deposition was the first move in Earle's campaign of defense.

Earle, in his answer, denies he ever promised to pay Miss Salazar anything and also holds that he is out of the jurisdiction of the United States court, because he lives in France.

GUARDSMAN IS SHOT TO DEATH

Lawton Negroes Held for Investigation

Special to The Record-News.
LAWTON, Okla., Aug. 14.—Ted Culber, 22, Marble Oklahoma Service company, 180th infantry, Oklahoma National Guard, was shot and fatally wounded at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday night in Lawton-View addition, a negro settlement southwest of Lawton.

Culber died 30 minutes later in a local hospital and Will George and his wife, Mary, negroes, are held in the county jail in connection with the shooting.

The shooting, according to Sheriff George Frampton, who conducted the investigation, followed a fight between Fort Sill regulars and Culber who with several other guardsme. are said to have stopped at the negro's place for a barbecue sandwich and a glass of water.

Mary George, believing that her husband was engaged in the melee with the soldiers, stepped to the door of their home and fired a shot. A bullet struck Culber in the back and passed through his body over the heart.

Other soldiers involved in the affair were Sergt. E. T. Schintoch, Sergt. John L. Ford, Oklahoma national guardsmen, and Private R. S. McCrea, 18th field artillery, Fort Sill.

Military authorities at Fort Sill are also conducting an investigation of the shooting and are holding all soldiers involved in the fight.

'Amical' Divorce Defended as Pleasant Means of Home-Wrecking

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 14. (UP)—A good, bright viewpoint on divorce, very refreshing after headstrong attacks on this well known institution by the Rev. John Roach Straton and others, has been concocted by Owen Johnson, the novelist.

It is Mr. Johnson's measured opinion that if marriages are made in heaven, so are a good many modern divorces. Mr. Johnson, a bold and inventive man—indeed, he is generally credited with having invented an Edison standby known as the questionnaire—thinks that it is quite possible to be happy although divorced. Mr. Johnson goes further. He thinks you can be happy although divorced in Paris.

American Institution

"Divorce," Mr. Johnson told the United Press today, "has become an American institution and might as well be accepted as such. We have taken divorce and developed it and spent time thinking about it and labored to make it fit our particular needs. And we have accomplished something. We have evolved a new wrinkle in divorces—the "amical" divorce.

An "amical" divorce, the author explained, is what rich people go to Paris or Mexico to obtain. It is an amiable, friendly, amicable sort of a home-wrecking, in which the ex-mates agree to disagree and also agree to pick up as many pieces of the debris as possible.

Writes Book on It

This sort of divorce, according to Mr. Johnson who has just written a new book about it called "Sacrifices," is "as much an American innovation as mass production."

The European point of view, said Mr. Johnson, is that when lightning strikes a marriage it is safer and more comfortable in the long run to pretend that nothing has happened. The master merely moves his bedding into his wing of the house, the little woman lifts her eyebrows and breezes up, and the homelife goes on outwardly as usual. The children and the estate are protected. All the neighbors know it, but nothing is said because it is an old European custom.

It's Different Here

But in America it has always been different. The blasting of love's dream from Maine to California has always been accompanied by repercussions to the uttermost edge of the bridge circle. Everyone knows it and every one is of the opinion that something ought to be done about it publicly and with a satisfying noise. This something is either to eat crow, get a divorce or both.

Thus, roughly according to Mr. Johnson, divorce has taken a strong hold on America. It has become a folk need, a necessity. Until recently it was also a thoroughly satisfying public spectacle. Mama hated papa, who was a brute and she could prove it, or else papa hated mama, who was a wild woman given to painting china and neglecting her ladies' aid work. The children could choose which one they wanted to hate, but in the primitive form of American divorce the children had to hate one or the other. The community expected it of them. Self-respect was involved.

Deeply Rooted Custom

Mr. Johnson, in common with many religious teachers and members of the judiciary, believes that the American love of divorce as cure-all for unhappiness around the dinner table is too deeply rooted to be done away with. He cannot picture Americans deliberately winking at spousely peccadillos or putting up for a lifetime with, say, a desire for philosophical discussions and classical music in a home where jazz and gossip have the upper hand. They may do those things in Europe, but here even the neighbors would intervene.

Johnson's extraordinary quality lies in that he is not depressed by the general spectacle. Instead, he finds a comforting trend in it. Divorces in the United States, he believes, are not only getting more numerous but they are becoming friendlier. Since the laws of most states require hatred before divorce there is a fine good fellowship developing between separating husbands and wives in getting around the laws. It is now fashionable to be friendly, although divorced.

Good for Society

Mr. Johnson noted and verified these things in doing his research work before writing his book. He is pleased. He thinks it is good for the social order and the immediate offspring to have divorced parents trust and respect one another.

The only thing that surprises Mr. Johnson about it is that "amical divorces" haven't been named and catalogued as an American phenomenon. During his researches in Hollywood, for instance, he encountered a number of cases where one or both of the parties amiably announced their engagement to their next choice before the last divorce had been fully legalize.

STANLEY TRIAL SET SEPT. 9

Silver Store Robbery Case Scheduled

Trial of Hub Stanley, charged with theft in connection with the loss of $700 from the local Silver store two months ago, has been set for Monday, Sept. 9, according to a list of filing made public here Wednesday afternoon by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney in charge of the district attorney's office.

The case against Hugh Butler, former acting assistant manager of the store, similarly charged in an indictment, is also set for the week of the ninth, but will probably result in a bond forfeiture, Mr. Anglin explained. Butler escaped from the Dallas county jail several weeks ago and has not been recaptured. Members of the sheriff's department here are holding a warrant charging murder against him, sent here for service from Groesbeck, Texas. Butler is accused of murder in connection with the shooting of two men near Groesbeck during a county fair two years ago. He has been acquitted on one of the charges.

Other defendants to be called to trial the week of Sept. 9, announced by Mr. Anglin Wednesday afternoon, are Frank Houston, charged with burglary; Douglas Harvell, accused of car theft; Louise McBride, indicted for transportation and possession of whisky; Bailey Craig, charged with assault to rape; Alfred Jennings, accused of driving while intoxicated; Lewis Wilkerson and E. O. Brannon, indicted for child desertion; G. H. Vaughn alias G. F. Vaughn, charged with disposing of mortgaged property; E. E. Mosley on false entry charges; and Neal Gaynor, indicted for receiving and concealing stolen property.

Downton Hostelry Dismantled by Wreckers

Dismantling of the large frame building at Ninth street and Lamar known for many years as the Belmont hotel is now under way following purchase of the building from J. J. Perkins by the Texas Wrecking company.

The Texas Wrecking company formerly was the Texas Lumber company and has a large yard at Sixteenth and Lamar. According to Charlie Miller, owner and manager, the retail stock of the latter concern was closed out about three weeks ago. The business will now be devoted to wrecking of houses and sale of salvaged materials, it was said.

No plans for the use of the lot on which the old Belmont hotel is located have been adopted, according to Mr. Perkins, the owner.

The shortest air mail route between Europe and the Orient will exist in the near future between the straits of Belle Isle on the north coast of Newfoundland to Vancouver on the Canadian Pacific coast.

A brief perusal of the various subjects which have been utilized extensively at different periods in United States motion picture history reveals interesting facts concerning the public's capacity for self-entertainment. There are numerous chapters in recent world, national and provincial affairs which have been reflected promptly in the motion picture mirror, before which the author-public smiled (or cried) a while, and went its way.

◇ ◇ ◇

One of the earliest "cycles" of screen interest was contributed by the automobile, in the pre-war days when the automotive development was getting into its stride. Films were guaranteed a land office business by the inclusion of an auto race. A few years later Wallie Reid capitalized this avid interest in racing cars and distance runs to become a foremost star. It takes a good automobile derby now to break into the news reels.

◇ ◇ ◇

Every detail, real and imaginary, of the old cow-punching, gun-toting West was dragged hastily into pictured reality to comprise one of the largest and most successful blocks of entertainment ever developed by the movies. Various phases of this field were commanded by Bill Hart, Art Acord and Tom Mix—all of whom have now passed practically into the limbo of forgetten shadows so far as motion pictures are concerned. The last real "ace" of the saddle and lariat, Tom Mix, is now with a riding circus on one-day stands.

◇ ◇ ◇

It is probable that the West drew from its screen exploitation one business institution (of questionable advantage) through the entrancing conception of bold, brown, broad-shouldered men of sagebrush and mountain given the effete East through the myraid of western films. The patronage which occasioned the maintenance of numerous "dude ranches" in the foothills of the Rockies came largely from those who have to travel many miles from home to see a barbed-wire fence. A gradual realization that job-lot cowboy clothing and dejected, disillusioned horses lacked something of the splendor radiated by screen versions of ranch life undermined the foundation of success which the "dude" ranch first promised. It will receive but a small paragraph in the history of the twentieth century.

◇ ◇ ◇

Then came the war. "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," probably Rudolph Valentino's most effective appearance; Charley Chaplin's "Shoulder Arms," a haromny in humor and pathos; "The Big Parade," and greatest of all, Stallings' "What Price Glory." Both those who fought and those who read propaganda at home flocked again to the terrible, fascinating spectacle of moralized holocaust.

◇ ◇ ◇

Lindbergh in New York today— in Paris tomorrow night, alone across the Atlantic then the mad rush of airplanes to moving picture locations, and moivng picture cameras to flying fields. Timely perfection of the sound mechanism to add whirring motors, doubling the realism of pictured air feats.

◇ ◇ ◇

Other cycles, still with us but preparing to reitre, we hope: gangland and night clubs.

◇ ◇ ◇

The public's refusal to accord preeminence to motion picture aspirants whose sole claim to the limelight rests in sensational misdemeanors or mischief comprises an encouraging chapter in screen history. Among these flares may be remembered Clara Smith Hamon, numerous "Miss America's,"—and Ruth Elder! Don't forget Miss Elder's modest announcement that her flop in the Atlantic was a prelude unparalleled screen revelation. And little Roscoe Arbuckle's prize publicity achievement proved happily to have all the faculties of a well-made boomerang.

◇ ◇ ◇

These definitely rendered verdicts accomplished to date engender new hopes for further film edification in the future. For instance, there probably are at least three out of 10 movie patrons now who have no stitches under the ribs from paroxysmal laughter when a lemon meringue pie is wrapped about the features of some pseudo-comedian. Appreciation of humor more subtle than custard pie crust has been registered along Main street, and—

When Marx brothers in "The Cocoanuts" arrives at the Majestic late this month (the same brothers who frolicked through "Animal Crackers" with delightful disregard for all sanity rules) this same growing appreciation of more refined fun-making will be offered great nourishment.

KATY ROAD'S REVENUE GAINS

Gross Income Increased By $1,413,884

Large increases in gross revenues and in net profits during the first half of 1929 over those of the same period in 1928 were gained by the M.-K.-T. lines, according to information given by local offices Wednesday.

The first six months of this year showed a gain of $1,413,884 in gross operating revenues over the same period a year ago, the increase on freight revenues amounting to $992,772, it was said.

The ratio of operating expenses to revenues was materially reduced, and the net income after all charges for expenses and interest on funded debt were deducted, exceeded by $479,251 that for the first half of 1928.

An increase of $893,593 in operating expenses for the period is largely accounted for by the expenditure of $806,235 for maintenance of way and structures. This program included the construction of about six and a half miles of new line near St. Jo, Texas, made necessary for the elimination of a grade long known as "St. Joe hill," which had materially impaired tonnage capacity of Katy freight trains. About a mile of rebuilt line is near Nocona, approximately a half-mile east of St. Joseph, and five miles west of that point. The tonnage rating for trains on the Wichita Falls Katy line has been increased by about 525 tons per train as a result of the alterations near St. Jo, which entailed an outlay of about a half-million dollars.

Construction of new locomotive facilities at Fort Worth, Texas, embracing a new roundhouse and a new heavy service turn-table, with power house, storeroom and other service buildings, and this grade revision, are two of the chief projects of the Katy improvement budget in Texas for this year. The locomotive facilities and accompanying buildings at Fort Worth are of brick and concrete construction and involve an expediture of an additional half-million dollars.

In addition to these improvements, the usual rail replacements and the regular program of replacement of wooden culverts and bridges with steel and concrete structures, both involving heavy expenditures, are going forward according to schedule, officials stated.

Spudder Night Set For Friday at Lakeside Park

"Spudder Night" at Lakeside park, as a feature of "Joy Week," has been set for next Friday evening, it was announced by the management Wednesday.

Along with a program of entertainment being worked out by park officials and the Spudders, each member of the baseball team will be introduced by George Hodgins, it was said. "Joy Week" will close Saturday night with a Mardi gras celebration all over the park, the announcement said.

Blair Community Hit By Texas Windstorm

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, Aug. 14. (AP)—A wind storm of considerable intensity struck the Blair community, between Timpson and Garrison, 20 miles north of here, late yesterday, blowing down the Baptist church and several residences. The only store of the community also was unroofed. No one was injured.

Printing Company Exceeds 1929 Quota

Business both satisfactory and profitable in volume will mark the first fiscal year of the Buchanan Printing and Stationery company, which ends on Oct. 1, according to information given by the management.

At the time this firm was organized, in September of 1928, its incorporators set a quota for the first 12 months' business, basing their figure upon estimates drawn as carefully as possible. General expressions at that time relative to business outlook were perhaps brighter than they have been during the early months of 1929, and the estimated quota for the new concern was predicated on that situation. Business thus far recorded, and the rate of current sales, indicate that by the end of September the total volume of business will equal or exceed the quota tentatively established last fall, it was said.

Demands for printed forms, office supplies and office furniture, described as a fair index to general business activity, were said to be little if any under normal, and particularly good for the month of August.

Heavy Orders Keep Machine Shop Busy

Steady operation of the machine shops, constant shipments of manufactured equipment in large quantities over a large area, and expansion of the physical units of the plant have featured the summer activities of the Wilson Manufacturing company, 707 North Scott avenue.

Several large shipments of winches have been made recently to oil fields of various countries, the last going out on Tuesday of this week to an oil company in Old Mexico. The machine shops are running 10 hours daily with a full complement of men, and the factory is booked further ahead on orders than at any time since January of this year, it was said.

A new four-room office building of brick has just been completed. Plans are now being prepared for the erection of a new warehouse, which is to be followed by the construction of a new heat-treating unit. Additions to the present machine shop also are included in the building program now under way, and new machines are to arrive in September to increase the capacity of the machine shops.

The Wilson Manufacturing company's plant has been located at its present site about three years.

THE modern, high-compression, high-speed motor demands an oil that will stand up under the excessive heat generated and will function as near perfectly as is humanly possible under the conditions prevalent in today's motors. ¶ The problem has been to secure in one oil the best qualities of the finest paraffine and naphthene crude oils. ¶ In our laboratories we have perfected a blend of lubricating oil made from two crude oils. It has advantages only to be found in a two-base oil. ¶ If you regard your motor with the affection you have for a favorite dog (as some of us do) you should at least try
