Blumenthal In China

PEKING (AP)-China's finance minister asked Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal for help today in removing Taiwan from four international financial organizations as Blumenthal opened talks on settling $197 million in U.S. claims for property seized by Chinese Communists.

According to a U.S. official who attended the first day of talks, Chinese Finance Minister Chang Ching-fu said he "deplored" the fact that the institutions still recognize Taiwan, which he referred to as a "province of the motherland

Soviets Circle Earth

MOSCOW (AP)-Two Soviet cosmonauts circled the Earth today making preparations to dock with the Salyut 6 space station.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, reported that the flight by Vladimir Lyakhov and Valery Ryumin aboard the Soyuz 32 spaceship was proceeding normally in its second day. There was no indication when they would link up with the space station, which has been in orbit for 16 months and has been host to a number of space crews.

Begin Gets Invitation

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter wants Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to come to Camp David by the end of the week to try to complete peace treaty terms with Egypt.

The presidential announcement Sunday put Begin in the spotlight because it would be up to him to either approve or reject a combination of undisclosed U.S. and Egyptian proposals for dealing with the Palestinian issue.

The door was left open for Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to join the summit session in the Maryland mountains if the negotiations succeed. In the meantime, Egypt would be represented by Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil.

Heating Oil To Rise

NEW YORK (AP)-The price of oil used to heat homes and power factories may rise still further because of an apparent increase in the price of the fuel by a key exporter, Venezuela.

The world's fourth-largest oil producer decided over the weekend to raise the price of some of its oil by 15 percent, according to industry source.

There was no official confirmation of a price increase.

The oil affected reportedly would be mostly heavy refined oil used for heating homes and firing factory boilers. Gasoline prices probably would not be affected by the move, because that fuel is made with a lighter grade of oil.

Storms Hit Midwest

By The Associated Press

A nasty winter dumped more crippling snow on the reeling Midwest today and pushed streams and rivers to flood stage from North Carolina through New England.

Snow, ice and floods closed schools, stranded motorists and knocked out power as the storm pushed eastward.

And in the Northeast, a mattress of clouds thousands of feet thick threatened to block out North America's last view of a total eclipse of the sun until the year 2017.

Marijuana Found

HOUSTON (AP)-Sheriff's deputies found about 800 pounds of Mexican marijuana today in a plane they said was abandoned at a private airport when it rolled into a ditch after landing.

Narcotics detective V.R. Bone said a security guard called officers when he became suspicious after noticing the plane's landing lights were turned off immediately after touchdown.

Bond said the single-engine Cherokee received minor damage.

A search was under way for the occupants of the plane.

Carpools Pushed

Associated Press

Double up America:

That's the message the Department of Transportation is trying to get across in its campaign to persuade drivers to join carpools.

Surveys by the Department of Transportation show that just under 73 million people went to work by vehicle - public and private - every day last year. Almost three-fourths of the commuters - 52.3 million people - drove to and from the job alone.

SOLAR ECLIPSE — Snyder was among many cities in Texas and across the United States witnessing a solar eclipse this morning, and numerous Snyderites turned out to witness the spectacle. Above, 8th-grader Jeff Fowler, center, lends to John Gary, left, the assistant principal at Snyder Junior High School, a colored film strip to peer at the sun through. At right is Terence Dennis, also an 8th-grader. An eclipse occurs when the moon comes between the earth and the sun. At the height of the eclipse this morning, only about one-quarter of the sun was visible, giving it the appearance of a glowing quarter-moon. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

What There Was Of It...

Eclipse Visible Here, But Not In Northwest

Snyder area residents didn't have a chance to see the sun totally covered during the eclipse this morning, but what there was of it was much more visible than the fully covered sun in the northwest where cloud cover prevented a good view.

The eclipse, the last of this century, dimmed the sun's rays considerably in Snyder, but there was still plenty of light. People were using pieces of cardboard to get an indirect outline of the eclipse, which covered about 65 percent of the sun here.

Meanwhile, in Portland, Ore., the largest city where the total eclipse occurred, residents were denied a good view because of a heavy cloud cover. However, Portland was plunged into darkness at 8:13 a.m. PST. The skies began to darken there at about 7:45 a.m. and after the complete darkness at 8:16, the light began to re-appear at 8:16 a.m.

Disappointed skywatchers in the Pacific Northwest waited in vain for a view of the eclipse. A mattress of clouds several thousands of feet thick covered most of the area as the moon's shadow made it nationally-televised landfall at Agate Beach, Ore. Many of them went up in planes to beat the clouds with a view from above. Others only got to see it on television.

For many, the thick cloudcover turned the eclipse into the greatest cosmic disappointment since the Comet Kohoutek disappeared into the heavens five years ago without living up to its ballyhooed brilliance.

Repeated admonitions not to look at the sun during the period of the eclipse seemed academic as the grey skies drew a leaden sheet between the viewers and the solar spectacle.

The Federal Aviation Administration duty officer at Boeing Field in Seattle said "the airspace is saturated" with aircraft hoping to carry observers above the clouds for a view of the eclipse.

Says Teng...

China War May End In 10 Days

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP)-Chinese infantrymen striking from three directions attacked the strategic Red River transportation corridor that leads to Hanoi but were meeting stiff resistance today from Vietnamese forces, Hanoi radio said. In Peking, Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-Ping said the China-Vietnam war might end in about 10 days.

The Soviet news agency Tass, citing "reports reaching Hanoi," asserted that Chinese troops were preparing to invade Vietnamese-dominated Laos.

In a speech, Soviet Foreigh Minister Andrei A. Gromyko today reiterated the Kremlin's warnings to the Chinese to pull out of Soviet-allied Vietnam.

"The Soviet Union resolutely demands that the Peking leadership end before it is too late the aggression against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and immediately withdraw Chinese troops from its territory," he said.

The Vietnamese broadcast claimed that in weekend fighting counter-attacking troops and inflicted 1,400 casualities on the tank-and artillery-backed Chinese invaders around Cam Duong, south of Lao Cai in the Red River valley. Lao Cai, a provincial capital, was reported captured by the Chinese last week.

The area is about 150 miles northwest of Hanoi. But Chinese Vice Premier Wang Chen was quoted as telling British reporters that the invasion force would not try to advance down the valley toward Hanoi.

Teng was interviewed by Takeji Watanabe, chief of Japan's Kyodo news service.

The Chinese leader compared the war with the 33-day-long China-India war of 1962 and said the fighting might end in about 10 days "or a few days more because Vietnam is stronger that India."

Teng Welcomes U.N. Proposals

TOKYO (AP)—Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping said today that his government "wholeheartedly welcomed" proposals in the U.N. Security Council calling for the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Vietnam and Vietnamese troops from Cambodia, the Kyodo news service reported from Peking today.

Kyodo said Teng added: "We would not make that a bargaining condition." It said that was taken to mean that China might pull out its forces out of Vietnam even if Vietnam did not withdraw from Cambodia.

Teng's remarks were made to Takeji Watanabe, the president of Kyodo, who is visiting Peking, the news agency said.

Ask Us

Q–It was reported in Ask Us in December that stop lights would be up by mid-January. Why aren't they up yet?

A–The new traffic control system for which the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation let a contract several months ago was delayed at the outset because the manufacturer could not supply the materials and equipment immediately. Delivery was promised in January and preliminary work was done to prepare for installation at that time. However, delivery has been delayed again, and the most recent "promised" date is March 24.

Snyderite Robbed At Knife-Point

A large but unspecified sum of money was allegedly taken at knife-point from a Snyder man last night as he was preparing to make a night deposit at West Texas State Bank, roughly a block from the police station.

Wayman Holmes, 45, told officers that as he was leaning across the seat of his truck to get his night deposit key, someone pushed him down then held a knife to his back as the money bags were taken.

Holmes, who operates a route for Tom's Peanuts, had parked the vehicle on College Ave., facing south. He told officers he had gone up to the night depository but discovered he did not have the key on him. The aggravated robbery is alleged to have occurred as Holmes went back to the truck to get the key.

The money, police said, was from the Tom's Peanuts route. The incident occurred about 7 p.m. Sunday.

Administration's View Asked In Oil Litigation

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today asked for the Carter administration's views in a prolonged, multi-million-dollar battle over Middle East oil.

The justices asked Solicitor General Wade McCree to submit a written brief appraising arguments by Occidental of Umm Al Qaywayn, a California-based corporation, that it should be compensated for certain Persian Gulf oil shipments to the United States.

Two lower federal courts ruled that they lacked the authority to consider Occidental's competitor oil firms, including Cities Service Oil Co.

The suits, born out of alleged industrial and international intrigue, apparently will never go to trial.

Occidental in 1969 acquired from the ruler of Umm Al Qaywayn, one of the sheikhdoms of the United Arab Emirates, a 40-year exclusive oil concession.

The agreement covered all offshore water Umm, then generally believed to extend to the three-mile territorial waters of the island of Abu Musa, situated in some 40 miles off the coast of Umm and Sharjah, another Arab Emirate state.

For centuries, Abu Musa had been under the exclusive soveriegnty of Sharjah, although there had been a longstanding dispute between Sharjah and Iran over who should control the island.

Buttes Gas & Oil Co., an American firm, was granted an oil concession by Sharjah about the same time as the Umm-Occidental agreement.

And in early 1970, Sharjah announced that it considered its territorial waters, incuding those of Abu Musa, to extend for 12 rather than three miles into the Gulf.

It was learned that Buttes had decided to explore for oil in the same area Occidental was drilling.

Two months later, Occidental was informed by the National Iranian Oil Co. that it should stop all drilling operations in its concession area because Iran owned Abu Musa and Iran recognized 12-mile territorial limits.

Iran and Sharjah agreed in late 1971 to jointly occupy Abu Musa and to grant Buttes Gas & Oil exclusive drilling rights.

Occidental's Supreme Court appeal contended: "Sharjah and Iran confiscated Occidental's concession in favor of Buttes. The confiscation was uncompensated, and therefore illegal."

Buttes soon began drilling in the area, and later sold interests in its concession to subsidiaries of Ashland Oil, Kerr-McGee Corp. Skelly Oil and Cities Service.

partisanship factor

During its very long day, the Vietnam war was a hot issue in American domestic politics.

There may have been considerable individual crossing of party lines and reversing of party commitments as the direction of U.S. involvement progressed from the Kennedy through the Nixon administrations. But always there was a strong partisan tone to the debate. In the end, what had begun as a Democratic adventure found a Democratic congressional leadership facing off a Republican administration on the war issue.

Partisanship also has figured in the Panama Canal treaties, African policy and the long debate on China way back to the argument over who lost it.

This is by way of a historical background for a current report out of Washington. Republican leaders have decided to take a critical stand on the SALT II agreement, broadening the debate to take in the total U.S.-Soviet military and foreign policy relationship. It is being read as a signal that the party may be ready to abandon bipartisanship in foreign affairs.

Bipartisanship as a supposed policy dates back to World War II and the conversion of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (R-Mich.) from isolationism. Vandenberg's support for an active U.S. international role was useful to the Truman administration in smoothing the way for the United Nations, the Marshall Plan and NATO. But in later decades, there has been more talk about than substance to bipartisanship.

Partisanship, in fact, is almost always a factor to one degree or another in the shaping of American foreign policy. As it should be. The nation's relations with the rest of the world are a legitimate public concern and as proper a subject for partisan debate as any other public issue.

So on with the broadened SALT debate. Whatever the GOP decision on the matter may be signaling, it's certainly not a revolution in the conduct of American foreign policy.

computer catch-up

The United States has been taking painful lumps in world trade during recent years in an area where it once was preeminent, the sophisticated products of an industrial society.

It has become a net importer of steel, autos, television sets and much else that it once not only produced for itself but sold to the world. The shift, the result of the postwar industrialization and rapid economic growth of a score of countries, would appear to be permanent. High production costs and aging plants put U.S. heavy manufactures and consumer goods at a price disadvantage in world markets.

Where the United States continues to lead, and where economists generally see its future to be, is in advanced technology. Computer science is a prime example, the superiority of know-how and hardware enable a number of U.S. firms to dominate not only the home but the world market.

A recent report in The New York Times, however, notes a cloud appearing on the Far Eastern horizon. Japan is moving into computer development on a large scale with prospects of soon becoming a major exporter, with none other than the United States as a probable prime customer.

The Japanese Ministry of International Trade is cited as estimating computer exports of $1.7 billion by 1985. An unofficial and alarmed American source, however, foresees a possible $3 billion in American sales alone by that date, 10 percent of the market and an ominous rival to smaller producers in the U.S. industry.

That industry is said to be as yet largely unconcerned. The technological lag Japanese producers must overcome is thought to be too great to permit them to become serious competitors.

Sure, sure.

It's coming and no one can stop it.

I'm talking about the pairing up of people who share common attributes. The division of smokers vs. nonsmokers, joggers vs. non-joggers, drinkers against teetotalers, those with exact change and those without.

Now it's a college in Maine which, in the hopes of cutting fuel bills, is asking students whether they're normally cold-blooded or hot-blooded. Once the division is made, all the cold-blooded students will be placed in the heated dormitories and the hot-blooded ones can sit by an open window and perspire.

Forgive my optimism, but I think this is definitely a breakthrough in the War of Differences. The reason why we have had so much trouble with human relationships in this country is we try to force mismated people into understanding one another.

In the future, I'd like to see an application for a marriage license (circle the response that fits best) that spells it all out.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In this pill-happy culture where drugs are often consumed as casually as candy, what you don't know can hurt you.

That is the thoroughly sensible conclusion of the federal Food and Drug Administration, which believes patients have both a right and a need to know a good deal more than they currently do about drugs prescribed for them by physicians.

The FDA is currently in the process of expanding the number of drugs and medical devices for which "patient package inserts" will be required.

Such "PPIs," as they are known in medical circles, are informational brochures or leaflets written in simple language and distributed with a drug each time it is dispensed to a patient. They typically include information about the appropriate use of a given drug, correct dosage and duration of use, storage conditions, expected benefits and possible side effects or risks associated with the medication.

Patient package inserts are nothing new. They have been required by FDA for anywhere from one to 10 years for a handful of products ranging from an asthma control aerosol to birth control pills and intrauterine devices.

But as FDA moves to require PPIs for more and more drugs, it is encountering a certain amount of hand-wringing and foot-dragging from both the medical profession and the pharmaceutical industry.

Critics fret that patients who learn of potentially dangerous or unpleasant side effects from a prescribed drug might be discouraged from taking needed medication. Some also suspect patients will start imagining adverse reactions where none exist — much the way second-year medical students are famous for experiencing symptoms of every deadly disease they are studying.

Physicians and pharmacists also fear some patients will use information in the PPIs to start treating themselves (or friends with similar symptoms) with leftover prescription medicine.

There is muttering, as well, about the cost of preparing and distributing package inserts, and about the difficulty of explaining the relative risks and benefits of a drug in language simple enough for the average patient to understand.

Advocates of PPIs, on the other hand, contend they will significantly improve patient comprehension of, and compliance with, drug treatment prescribed by doctors.

Far too many doctors simply hand a patient a hastily scribbled prescription without the slightest attempt to explain what the medicine is, how it works, what its side effects might be or what alternative drugs might be available for the same ailment.

Patients who are told in writing why it is important to keep taking a drug even after symptoms disappear might well continue their medication more faithfully, which can be especially important for certain chronic conditions.

Furthermore, package inserts can help patients distinguish between common, expectable side effects that can safely be ignored and more serious adverse reactions that should be reported promptly to their doctors.

There is another potential ramification of PPIs that FDA officials hope for and some doctors fear. They might just deter physicians from indiscriminate prescription of over-used drugs such as antibiotics for treatment of common colds.

In fact, antibiotics along with frequently abused tranquilizers like Valium will probably be high on the FDA list for new patient package insert requirements, along with medications for certain chronic conditions like hypertension.

Patients are a lot smarter than doctors like to think. Few will refuse to take drugs they really need if the relative risks and benefits are described accurately to them. But the patient has a right to know what he's being told to swallow and why.

Mesquite District Women's Clubs To Meet March 2-3

The Mesquite District 19th annual convention of Texas Federation of Women's Clubs will be held March 2-3 in Sweetwater.

Representatives from the 34 clubs in the Mesquite District are expected for the two day meeting at the Holiday Inn.

District officers, club presidents and members are invited to attend, said Mrs. J.C. McGee of Knox City, Mesquite District president.

Using the theme "Spring Fiesta: Unity in Diversity," pre-convention activities will begin with executive committee meetings at 11 a.m. March 2.

Following the opening of the convention at 2 p.m., a business session will be held. A dinner honoring the club presidents will conclude the day's activities.

Saturday's activities will include reports of projects and contests and a luncheon. Prior to the luncheon, John Crump, a noted artist of Anson, will complete an oil painting beginning with a blank canvas.

General chairman for the convention is Mrs. Eugene Schattel of Sweetwater, and Mrs. Frank Grevelle, of Sweetwater, is co-chairman. Mrs. A.J. Smith, Jr. of Anson planned the convention program.

Hostess clubs for the convention are Atheneum Study Club, Self Culture Club and The Sorosis Club, all of Sweetwater.

Business Center Important

COLLEGE STATION -- Plan a home business center as the first step towards a better family records system.

The most important part of such a center is a specific place of convenient access, a family resource management specialist, Lillian Chenoweth, says.

In other words, boxes in the attic or garage really do not qualify.

Having a specific spot helps to insure that receipts, cancelled checks, forms or bills will find their way to the appropriate place, the specialist points out. Mrs. Chenoweth is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Elaborate equipment is really unnecessary in establishing a home business center, she continues.

Of first importance is a filing cabinet.

Its function is even more important than a desk or lamp or calculator--add these items later.

In order for the filing cabinet to help, a usable filing system is essential.

Avoid filing everything under the heading of "money" or "documents" or "miscellaneous," the specialist recommends.

Also, avoid the other extreme of separating categories for every item--such as one for Social Security, one for employment records, and one for gas bills.

Try to develop more workable categories. For example, some categories may contain tax-deductible items--such as health expenses, contributions, or interest payments.

Other categories may include non-deductible items such as food, housing expenses, clothing and transportation costs.

Work at developing some filing system with meaningful categories appropriate for individual needs, Mrs. Chenoweth advises.

Time invested toward effective financial records is well spent.

Oswald: "There was a time when a cue bid always showed first-round control. Today, it is used to show a good hand when there is no other satisfactory forcing bid."

Alan: "The North hand is a good example of the modern use of a cue bid. With twelve high-card points and support for all unbid suits, North wants to be in game after his partner's takeout double."

Oswald: "In the old days he could jump to two spades as a game force, but no one likes to force with such a weak suit. Today a two-spade bid would show nine or ten points and be highly invitational, but not forcing and South would pass with its minimum double."

Alan: "South isn't too happy when forced to bid spades on when his partner jumps to game, but things look good when he sees the dummy."

Oswald: "East cashes two hearts and shifts to a club, taken by dummy's king. The nine of spades is led and allowed to ride. Then a second spade lead picks up East's king. The diamond finesse works also and South winds up with an overtrick."

Women Board Members Increase

NEW YORK (AP)-The number of women directors of corporate boards has increased 550 percent in the past 10 years according to Catalyst, an organization that monitors women's career trends.

In 1969 there were 46 women on Fortune's top 1,300 boards; today there are 275. This figure is out of a total of some 17,000 seats available.

Most women directors are in otr' of education, government or communications. Consumer-oriented companies have appointed the most women directors.

Eventually one third of all the cars used in major U.S. cities will be electric, according to experts cited in Plastics World magazine. By 1984 an estimated 10,000 electric vehicles will be on the road, they predict.

Executions, Floggings In Iran

TEHRAN (AP)-The execution of another official of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's secret police and public floggings for violators of Islamic law were reported today.

The newspaper Andegan reported that Mohammad Hossein Naderi, the secret police's torture expert in the central city of Isfahan, was brought to Tehran and executed by a firing squad Sunday night.

There was no confirmation of the report from aides of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, whose security committee has executed eight generals and a police commander accused of setting a theater fire that killed hundreds in Abadan last year.

Two other police officers were reported shot by firing squad Feb. 19 in Najafabad, central Iran, for killing anti-shah demonstrators. There have been unconfirmed reports of other executions by vigilante groups.

Execution sentences have been passed by special revolutionary tribunals set up by Khomeini. The ancient tradition of public floggings for violations of Moslem law has been revived by Islamic courts. They have been administering justice under the supervision of local religious leaders and applying Moslem law since Khomeini's revolution was victorious on Feb. 11.

Press reports said a large crowd in the city of Zanjan, 180 miles north of Rehran, looked on Sunday as a thief was given 25 lashes for breaking into a widow's house. A crowd of 5,000 turned out in the eastern city of Kerman when two youths got 30 lashes each for drinking liquor. In Yasooj, two men got 80 lashes each for drinking.

Tehran Radio reported Sunday that Khomeini called on foreign nations for the delivery of former Prime Minister Shahpour Bakhtiar, indicating that he had escaped abroad.

Bakhtiar, a longtime opponent of the shah who tried unusuccessfully to stem the Khomeini revolution by getting the ruler to agree to a limited monarchy, disappeared after he was reported under arrest or under the protective custody of his successor and former political ally, Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan.

Of the estimated four million qualified nurses in the world, only 15 percent work in developing countries, where 66 percent of the world's population lives, according to Dr. Halfdan Mabler, director-general of the United Nations' World Health Organization.

Museum To Show Wright's Photos

Photographs by Bill Wright of Abilene will be featured in an exhibit scheduled March 3-25 in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College.

The Amitie Study Club will host a reception for Wright from 7-9 p.m. on March 3 in the museum, and the public is invited to attend. There is no charge for admission.

Wright was graduated from Abilene High School and earned a BBA in Marketing from the University of Texas in Austin. He is president of Western Marketing, Inc., which operates a group of truck stops, restaurants and oil jobberships in West Texas and Kansas.

He is active in numerous professional and civic groups, and was chosen Outstanding Young Man of Abilene by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1968. He was named Abilene's Artist of the Month for June 1978.

In addition to his interest in photography, Wright is a pilot, a ham radio operator, and a naturalist.

Photographs and articles by Wright have appeared in Texas Parade, West Texas Magazine, American Outdoorsman, Wilderness, Camping, Pilot Magazine, American School Board Journal, National Petroleum News and other publications. His photographs are in collections in Santa Fe, Tucson, Houston, Austin and Dallas.

Mr. and Mrs. Wright have two sons, David and Mitch, and a daughter, Alison. Mrs. Wright is also involved in photography and specializes in portraits, especially those for children.

An exhibit of graphics by Marian Ford of Midland will follow Wright's exhibit in the Scurry County Museum, opening April 1.

The museum is open each weekday (9-12 and 1-5 Monday through Thursday 9-12 and 1-4 on Fridays) and from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays. Arrangements for guided tours may be made by contacting the museum office at 573-6107.

LBB Added Teachers' Raise As Afterthought

AUSTIN (AP)—Gov. Bill Clements, whose proposed budget slashed a raise for schoolteachers recommended by the Legislative Budget Board, says the board added the teachers' pay raise only as an afterthought when it realized it had a surplus of funds.

"I just don't agree with that kind of budgetary control and discipline," Clements said in a "Capital Eye" news interview program broadcast Sunday.

Clements trimmed the budget board's recommendations before passing on the proposed spending plan to legislators in hopes of giving $1 billion in tax relief, as he had promised during his campaign last year.

"The Legislative Budget Board was working on their budget and they reached the last day and they found out that they had a $600 million or $700 million, surplus, so they said, 'Let's just give a big raise to the teachers,'" the governor said.

"I don't think their foresight and their judgment in this regard should override," he said.

"They end up with a lump sum, so they say, 'Well, we've got to get rid of this some way, so we just throw it into this pot.' Well, I just don't agree with that kind of budgetary control and discipline."

The budget board recommended an annual 5.1 percent raise for schoolteachers, who now get raises from the state ranging from 3.2 percent to 4.9 percent annually, depending on their experience. Clements' proposed budget included a 5.1 percent raise for state employees, and he was asked about the gap between them and teachers.

"What I think may well happen in the legislative is that our schoolteachers and our state employees will be put on exactly the same basis," Clements said. The teachers and the state employees should receive the same percentage increases."

2 Snyderites Are Promoted By Tretolite

ST. LOUIS—Terry J. Allen and Floyd P. Lindsey, both of Snyder, and sales engineers for the Tretolite division of Petrolite Corp., have been promoted to the position of district sales manager with the division.

Allen, who joined Tretolite in 1975, will manage the newly created Snyder oil field sales district, a part of the division's Permian Basin East sales region.

Lindsey, who has relocated to Odessa, will manage the Odessa West oil field sales district in the Permian Basin West sales region. He has been with Tretolite since 1974.

PHOTOGRAPHY CONTEST

WIN ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS IN CASH AND A GREAT TROPHY!

ELIGIBILITY-The contest is open to any photographer of any age residing in Keaton Kolor's market area. For the purposes of this contest the market area will be defined as all territory within a fifty mile radius of ANY Keaton Kolor facility. The photographer must own the camera used to shoot the photograph and the photograph or photographs entered must have been shot since March 1977. (See notice to employees)

AWARD CATEGORIES-There will be three categories of competition. Either color or black and white can be submitted for each category. The categories are:

1. SCENIC-Where the obvious and predominant theme of the photograph is of landscape, seascape, etc. "etc."

2. PEOPLE-Where the obvious and predominant theme of the photograph is a person or persons. Model releases will be required for all entries in this category unless the person or persons included are unrecognizable.

3. GENERAL-Any photograph whose theme is not covered in categories one or two. Leaves greatest latitude for creative techniques, experimentation, etc. etc.

AWARDS-$100.00 in cash and trophy to first place in each category. Awards will be presented to the top entries in each of the three categories. Only the first place winners will receive prizes, but recognition ribbons will be awarded the other top finishers. Any one contestant may win no more than one award. In the event of a contestant placing more than once, the contestant will be given the right to select which award he wants. The entry he does not select will be eliminated from the final standings.

ENTRY REQUIREMENTS-Each entry must be either 8x10 (for rectangular format) or 8x8 (square format). No other sizes will be accepted. Each entry will be mounted on matte board no larger than 11x14. Matting is not required though it may add significantly to the total appearance of the entry. All entries must be hand delivered. No mailing!

ENTRY FORM-The official Keaton Kolor 10th Anniversary photo contest entry form must be completely and legibly filled out and affixed in a secure manner to the back of each entry.

NUMBER OF ENTRIES-The contestant may enter a maximum of three photographs...one for each category. No more than one photograph per photographer per category will be permitted.

JUDGING-Selection of the winners will be made by a panel of competant judges to be selected by the management of Keaton Kolor. This panel will include both professionals and amateurs qualified to make a fair and impartial decision. This will insure judging that will emphesize different areas, for example: composition, impression, mood, appeal, technique, etc.

AWARD ANNOUNCEMENT-Names of winners will be announced the following Thursday, April 5, 1979. Local store managers will contact you personally in the event of an award.

COMPETITION DISPLAY-Depending upon available space, entries will be displayed through March and early April in various stores throughout the Keaton Kolor chain. Prints receiving awards will become the perminant property of Keaton Kolor for display purposes. Keaton Kolor reserves the right not to display any print judged inappropriate or in bad taste. Keaton Kolor will not in any case, claim rights to reproduce any entry in any form, whether it receives awards or not. Each photographer will retain reproduction rights, copyrights, etc.

RETURN OF ENTRIES-Those entries NOT receiving awards will be returned to the contestants. Entries must be picked up at the Keaton Kolor location at which they were left. Prints left at Keaton Kolor locations past June 1, 1979 will automatically become the property of Keaton Kolor or destroyed.

LIABILITY-Though Keaton Kolor will take whatever means it can to protect entries, it is in no way liable for damages incurred prior to, during or after the contest and display period. Keaton Kolor is NOT responsible for damage in ANY way!

U.S. Would Use Arms To Save Mideast Oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is prepared to use its military forces to protect the flow of oil from the Middle East, say two members of President Carter's Cabinet.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said Sunday the United States would "take any action that's appropriate" to protect the Mideast oil flow, which he said "is clearly part of our vital interest."

In a separate interview, Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, said the administration is considering the "issue of a U.s. military presence" in the Persian Gulf area.

"That would involve military personnel," he said. "Whether it would involve a deployment of troops — combat arms of the ground forces, is another question."

Only days ago, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said the administration had shut the door on using American Troops abroad "except under the most extreme, compelling circumstances."

Brown, questioned on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," described the Middle East oil flow as "clearly part of our vital interests."

"In protection of these vital interests, we'll take any action that's appropriate, including the use of military force, but military force is not necessarily appropriate in every instance," he said.

Brown, who recently returned from a Middle East trip, said countries in that area are concerned about possible threats from outside the region and from nearby, more radical states.

Of the Soviet Union, he said, "It's well known that the Soviets are not responsible for all the problems in the area, but they clearly are willing to — in fact, eager — to fish in muddy waters by aiding one country against another."

On a Soviet threat, he said, "The U.S. is prepared to counter such a threat from a major power with whatever means are necessary. Again, let me say, the United States is prepared to defend its vital interests with whatever means are appropriate, including military force where necessary."

Schlesinger, questioned on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press," declined to specify what action might be taken.

"I think that the point I made ... is that the United States has a vital interest in the Persian Gulf area, that we have been prepared to discuss the question of a military presence in the area with the states involved and that would have to be worked out in response to their desires and with some flexibility."

Water District, New Car Bills Top Agenda

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas legislators started the eighth week of the 66th Legislature today with an agenda headed by bills to please new car buyers and create new business for water districts.

In the House, which had an afternoon session, action was expected on a Senate-approved compromise that would give the Texas Railroad Commission an emergency appropriation of $521,682 to help administer the federal Natural Gas Policy Act.

Sen. Walter Mengden, R-Houston, said he planned to ask Senate debate on a committee-approved bill that would allow two or more water districts to organize and operate a sewage plant.

Some water districts operate a sewer system within their own boundaries, but it would be more economical for water districts to bind together and operate a sewage plant and system on a regional basis.

Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, indicated he would ask debate on a bill that will give new life to the Texas Motor Vehicle Commission and at the same help out consumers.

The Sunset Advisory Commission recommended that changes be made in the commission because it said the agency that oversees new car dealers had not done enough to inform new car buyers of their rights and privileges.

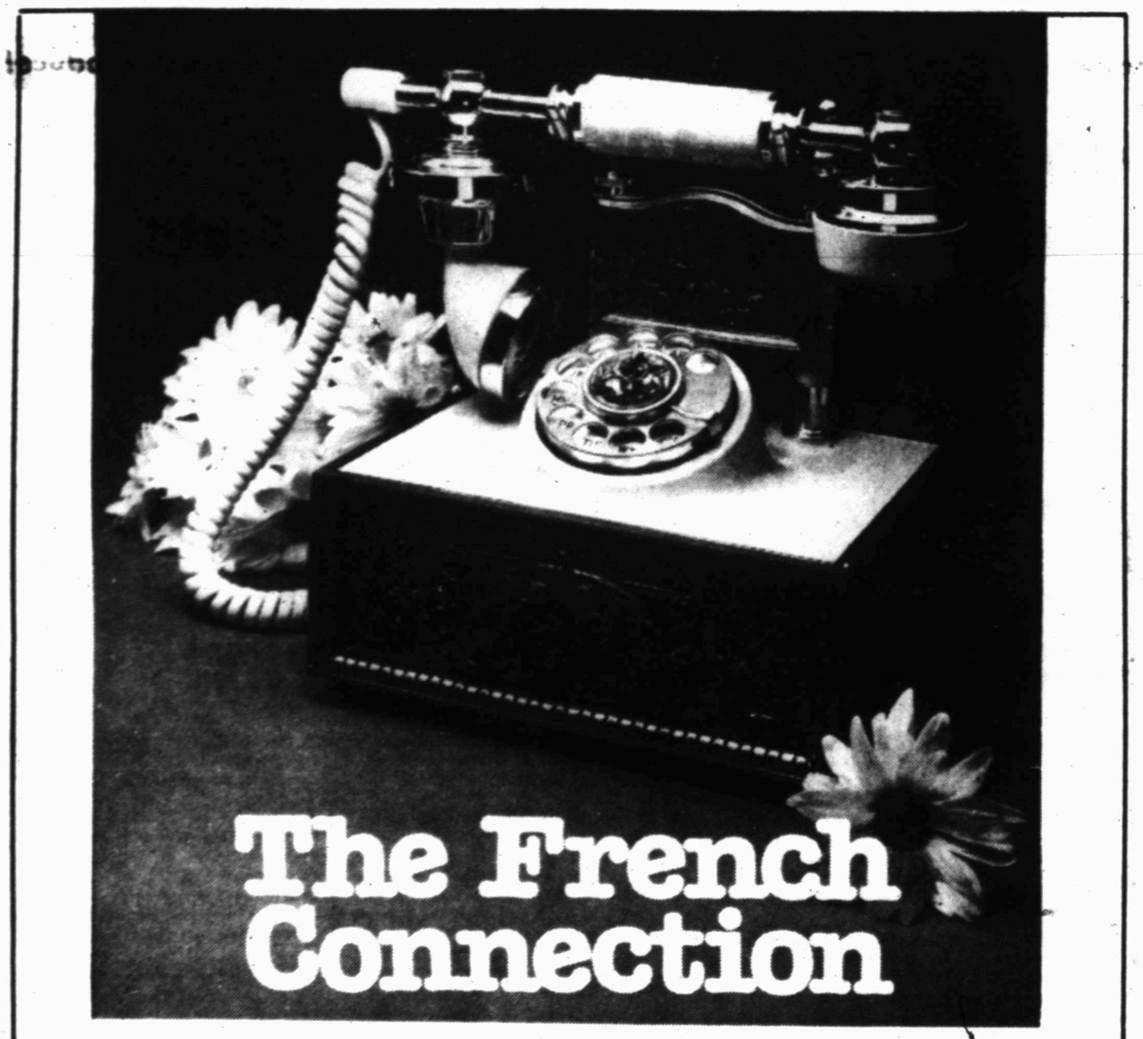

The bill, as approved by a Senate committee, would extend the life of the commission to 1991.

"Probably the main thing this bill would do for the consumer is require that a dealer inform the buyer that the Motor Vehicle Commission will hear any complaints about the car and do something about them," said Gene Fondren, executive director of the Texas Auto Dealers Association.

The bill not only would require that the commission listen to complaints about new cars, but make sure auto maufacturers and distributors be informed of each complaint.

The present commission is made up of auto dealers and two "public members." Moore's bill would require that no "public member" have any connection with an auto manufacturer, distributor or dealer. The same would apply to employees of the commission.

Annual license fees would be increased from $200 to $300 for manufacturers and distributors doing business in Texas, $50 to $100 for dealers selling over 200 cars a year and $25 to $50 for smaller dealers.

The glamorous French cradlephone has been reborn in America, where it's known as Antique Gold*. Its carved gold-colored figures and rich ivory trim make it the last word in period-style decor.

And, because it's genuine Bell, you know you're getting top quality. You never have to worry about repairs, either, because the Bell System retains ownership of your phone's working components and repairs them without additional charge anytime there's a problem.

Make your French Connection at your nearest PhoneCenter Store, where you can also choose from a variety of other colorful and attractive styles. Or call your local Southwestern Bell business office. Choose a phone that's genuinely you and genuine Bell.

Unhappy Hooker Hooked on Love

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I just lost the only man I ever loved. When I came home last evening I found a note from Jimmy saying, "Goodbye" — after we lived together for a year.

In his note he said that my job was changing me into a hard person, and he couldn't ask me to quit because he thought it was what I really wanted to do. (It's not true. I hate my work, but the money is too good to pass up.)

Abby, I am a prostitute. The money helped pay our bills. Jimmy's job didn't pay much, and we needed the bread.

I know there will never be another man in my life like Jimmy. He loved the real me — not just my body.

Should I quit my profession and go after him? I know he still loves me.

Please don't say where this letter is from. My father is a minister and my folks don't know what I do for a living.

WORKING GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Quit your job and go after him. Jesus forgave a woman in your profession. Could Jimmy do less?

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to SPARKLING, who feels that her engagement ring is "on loan," disturbed me. (The ring was purchased by her fiance's mother and given to her with the understanding that in the event of a divorce, it would be returned.)

Abby, a marriage that begins by working out a possible divorce settlement doesn't sound like it has too much going for it. And returning Mama's ring — as you suggest — just might speed up a split.

The first year of marriage is hard enough without playing hot potato with an engagement ring.

I say SPARKLING should keep the ring. It, like her husband, now belongs to her — not Mama.

LONG ISLAND LAURIE

DEAR LAURIE: A marriage with the divorce settlement worked out in advance is sometimes preferable to one without, should the couple split. (And today, one in three do.) I still think since SPARKLING feels that her engagement ring is "on loan" she should return it and do without until her husband can buy her one.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from the woman who was disgusted with stupid TV commercials: She asked, "What ever happened to those wonderful free samples companies used to send out to acquaint people with their products?"

Well, I know what happened to several cases of free samples that should have been delivered but weren't.

They were taken home and kept in the family.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: If you are absolutely sure of your facts, the person responsible for delivering those free samples should be reported.

DEAR ABBY: Do you happen to know what the Alcoholics Anonymous credo is? It starts, "Oh, God, grant me the ability to accept the things I cannot change . . ."

DEPRESSED IN DES PLAINES

DEAR DEPRESSED:

"God grant me the serenity
to accept the things I cannot change,
Courage to change the things I can,
And wisdom to know the difference."

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Drilling In Basin Steady

Drilling activity kept a steady pace last week in Permian Basin oilfields, with 220 rigs running, the same number as the week before.

However, this year's activity is well below that of last year when there were 302 active rigs in the Basin.

Eddy County, N.M., was the leader with 23 units making hole. Pecos County, the West Texas leader, had 15.

Scurry County had four rigs running last week, a gain of one over the previous week. Figures for other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 2 and 3; Dawson 3 and 4; Garza, 4 and 2; Howard 6 and 8; Mitchell 2 and 1.

Don't Blame Your Age For Poor Hearing

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid of its kind will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Send for this model, put it on and wear it in the privacy of your own home. While many people with a hearing loss will not receive any significant benefit from any hearing aid, this free model will show you how tiny hearing help can be. It is not a real hearing aid, and it's yours to keep free. The actual aid weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 5818. Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Illinois 60646.

Fluvanna Youth On Navy List

Rene Bilano of Fluvanna is among 43 Texas students nominated for the four service academies, Senator John Tower has announced.

The nominations are submitted to the academies for further screening and evaluation. Final selections will be made by the academies' admission boards.

Bilano was nominated for the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md.

Strike Ends At Gulf Refinery

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Striking workers at the Gulf Oil Co. refinery here were called back to work today for the first time since Jan. 8.

Striking machinists ratified an agreement with the refinery in a vote Sunday afternoon, bringing to an end a 48-day strike that has kept about 2,900 union workers off their jobs.

Gulf had to settle with six different labor groups, and the machinists, with about 160 employees, were the last ones to approve an agreement. A tentative settlement was reached Saturday night, and a vote was held Sunday afternoon.

Union officials said all groups generally got raises of about 8 percent the first year of a two-year contract and a 5 percent hike guaranteed on the second year with the option to reopen wage talks next year.

Notices were being sent out to the refinery's workers Sunday night, telling workers to report beginning with today's 6 a.m. shift. Supervisory personnel at Gulf have been operating the refinery since office workers, members of the Oil, Chemical and Afomic Workers union, set up picket lines. The other unions honored those picket lines.

Office workers, comprising about 150 of Gulf's employees, settled a week ago, but as they signed their two-year contract, the International Association of Machinists called a strike, and the work stoppage continued.

The biggest union, comprising general plant workers, never set up picket lines, but reached agreement Thursday. The chairman of that group, A.T. Lackey, said he was satisfied with the results of the settlements.

"Overall we are satisfied, but we were looking for a whole lot more," he said. "Most workers got a pay raise of 73 cents an hour, which is about 8 percent. We are guaranteed 5 percent in the second year but we have a wage reopener clause." He said some smaller groups got 80 cents an hour hikes.

Gulf officials were not available for comment.

Perhaps prostate trouble

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 59-year-old man and am very active. There must be an obstruction of my urinary tract or my bladder or my kidneys aren't functioning properly. I drink a lot of fluids, consisting of water, milk, iced tea and a six-pack of beer once or twice a week, but very little coffee.

When I relieve myself I have to keep making trips to the bathroom and have to go immediately for I can't put it off. I have a hernia and have put the repair job off and am wondering if there may be pressure from the hernia that is affecting the bladder or kidneys. Is there any medicine that could relieve this condition? I don't recall having this problem when I was younger.

DEAR READER — Many people develop problems they didn't have earlier. Of course, you'll have to have an examination to find out exactly what is wrong. You could have a urinary tract infection. Another very likely probability is that you have an enlarged prostate.

The prostate gland surrounds the urethra and can obstruct the outflow from the bladder. That's the main reason many men have to have a prostate operation. Your description of your difficulties isn't sufficiently detailed for me to have a very good idea if this is the problem or not.

A person with an enlarged prostate usually has trouble starting his stream and may have trouble stopping it. The stream is often small as opposed to the large easy flow of younger years.

If there is a lot of trouble in passing urine, the bladder may be overdistended with retained urine, often causing a person to urinate frequently. The overfilled bladder keeps signaling that it needs to be emptied, but the person never succeeds in emptying it because of the obstruction from the enlarged prostate gland.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 14, Prostate Gland, to give you a better idea of how this can affect you and what can be done about it. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now regarding your hernia, if you're talking about a hernia in the groin, the pressure from such a hernia, if there is any at all, isn't near the urethra or bladder area.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you tell me the benefits, if any, derived from taking alfalfa tablets? The man at the health food store said I should take them for hay fever and would not need antihistamines. I bought a bottle and the directions say take four tablets with each meal. They smell and taste so bad I can hardly get one down, much less four. Please let me know about these alfalfa tablet's benefits so I can continue to force them down or throw them away.

DEAR READER — The benefits from alfalfa tablets are for the person who sells them. Don't expect them to do anything for your health, much less prevent or cure hay fever.

These and a host of other highly advertised products are the modern equivalent of snake oil sold by a carnival barker at the traveling medical show. There are plenty of people who will listen to the claims because they want to believe some magic substance will cure all their problems. Life isn't that simple.

Take 1st, 3rd At Local Tournament...

WTC Golfers Dominate

Western Texas College shared first and third places in the first annual T W Holder Intercollegiate Golf Tournament held here Saturday and Sunday.

WTC Green team came up with low rounds of 293 and 300 each day, winning the 36-hole meet by six strokes over New Mexico Junior College.

Medalist was Scotty Barrett of the WTC Green team. Barrett fired rounds of 69 and 76 for a total of 145 - to finish one stroke under second place medalist Mark Polites of NMJC (146). Kelly Eng of Midland College was third with a two-day score of 147.

Only two rounds played par or better in the tournament which was besieged with adverse weather. WTC golfers Barrett drilled his one-under 69 on Saturday and Phil Kuss came up with even par (70) Sunday. Cold winds of 15 to 20 miles per hour - mixed with rains Saturday - plauged the T W Holder tournament which was originally set to kick off last year, but was cancelled when snow hit the area.

Final results were 1. WTC Green 293-300 -593; 2. NMJC 294-305 -599; 3. WTC Blue 309-301 -610; 4. Hardin Simmons University 312-310 -622; 5. Midland College 309-315 -624; 6. Cisco Junior College 218-319 -637; Abilene Christian University 313-325 -638.

WTC Green: 1. Scotty Barrett 69-76 -145; 2. Brent Jacobs 75-76 -151; 2. Phil Kuss 81-70 -151; 4. Don Cofer 75-78 -153; 5. Clarke Turner 74-80 -154.

WTC Blue: 1. Billy Sitton 76-75 -151; 2. Mike Waller 78-74 -152; 3. Britt Lindsey 78-75 -153; Greg Reynolds 77-77 -154; 5. Lee Baird 78-80 -158.

Other individual scores for WTC included Mike Mahan 75-78 -158, and Ken Lawrence 80-78 -158.

The next tournament for Western Texas College will be the Sam Houston Intercollegiate at Huntsville, March 5-6.

HOLDER MEET--Western Texas College teams took first and third place at the first annual T.W. Holder Intercollegiate Golf Tournament held here Saturday and Sunday. Dusters Rip South Plains; Conclude Regular Slate Tonight

Western Texas College's Dusters dumped South Plains College 72-59 here Saturday, and to hear Coach Joe Cushing talk, that could be only one of the high points for the team this year.

"We're really totally excited about the prospects ahead of us," the coach, in his first year as Duster head, commented. "I feel we're peaking at the right time. The girls are playing extremely good basketball right now and we should have a lot of momentum going into the regional tournament.

"Whatever these girls do from here on would not surprise me in any fashion. They've got their minds made up and they can do just anything they want to."

Well, first on the agenda for the Dusters is South Plains again. This time, however, it will be in Levelland, and there's a conference co-championship riding on the line when the teams meet at 6 p.m. tonight.

"I know they are going up there to play basketball. These girls don't want second place, they want a co-championship," Cushing added.

He says co-championship because the possibility of a championship is entirely out of WTC's hands. Odessa needs only to defeat winless Frank Phillips in Borger tonight to sew up a 10-2 record. A victory for the Dusters would give them an equal mark. Obviously, should WTC win and Odessa lose, the Dusters would win the conference - but that's highly unlikely.

What is likely is that the Dusters will smack South Plains in similar fashion again tonight.

With Katie Fisher, Brigette Hamilton, Joyce Plagens and Nodia Vaughn leading the charge, the Dusters galloped to a 38-25 halftime lead here Saturday, then sunk the visitors by a total of 41-27 in the second half.

Fisher and Hamilton scored 21 and 16 points to pace the effort, while Plagens had 12 and Vaughn scored 10 as the Dusters hit 48.5 percent from the floor and 86.6 from the line.

Lou Ann Davis was the only South Plains player in double figures hitting 16 points. The visitors were 10 of 18 from the line and hit well from the floor, but fell victim to 23 steals and 3 blocked shots by the quick-handed Dusters.

WTC (79): Vaughn 4-2-10; Hooper 1-1-3; Marsh 3-0-6; Brzozowski 2-1-5; Ray 1-0-2; Fisher 10-1-21; Peden 2-0-4; Plagens 5-2-12; Hamilton 5-6-16. Totals 33-13-79.

SPC (52): LouAnn Davis 6-4-16; Shelia Hrbacek 0-2-2; Renee Southers 3-2-8; Mary Essary 2-0-6; Bobbie Blevins 3-0-6; Becky Williams 1-0-2; Linda Caughn 3-0-6; Tonya Aslin 2-1-5; Sharon Brown 0-1-1. Totals 21-10-52.

Halftime: WTC 38-25.

College Cagers To Try South Plains Today In Levelland

LEVELLAND - Western Texas College basketball teams will be flying high tonight when they enter South Plains College gym at 6 o'clock.

South Plains may be just as high, trying to unseat the Snyder duo.

Coach Nolan Richardson's Westerners, who clinched a fifth consecutive Western Junior College Athletic Conference title last week, enters the contest 8-p with an impressive 14-2 record.

With its nearest competitor three games back at 11-5, the Westerners are assured of a top seed in the March 7-10 regional tournament. But South Plains (8-8) MUST win tonight for any remote chance of making the tournament, and that had Richardson worried a little earlier in the week.

"The thing that concerns me is that we might have a tendency to let up since we've already won the thing (conference title)," he spoke on Friday morning. "We've got to play like every game is our last one."

Opening the double header will be Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters, who tied for a conference lead with a victory over South Plains in Snyder Saturday.

Chances for the Dusters to win the conference are slim - Odessa posts an equal-to-WTC 9-2 record, and hosts winless Frank Phillips College tonight.

But as Cushing noted last week, "We don't want second place. We want the championship or a co-championship."

That means defeating South Plains tonight. An Odessa loss would give the Dusters a title. A victory would put WTC tied for the conference lead, and with no more regular season games left - some decision would have to be made as to seeding the two teams in the regional tournament which begins Thursday in Abilene.

The Westerners will conclude the regular season by hosting New Mexico Military in Scurry County Coliseum on March 1 at 8 p.m.

Cats Look Strong, Take 2nd At Meet

FORT STOCKTON--Snyder High School pulled down a half-dozen first place finishes to take second overall in the first area track meet of the season here Saturday and Sunday.

The Tigers roped a total of 106¾ points to grab the position, behind host Fort Stockton with a total of 134¾. San Angelo Lake View was third with 89.0.

Dale Jenkins snapped the only meet record here at the Commanche Relays which was held - in the running events - in meters for the first time. Jenkins, Snyder sophomore, bested the previous record of 14-6, also his own prior best, with a vault of 14-7.

Other firsts came from Keith McClain, who posted winning times in the 110 high hurdles (15.2) and 300 meter intermediate hurdles (42.1); Robert Schooler in the 1600 meter run (4:51.8); Lloyd Benson in the 400 meter dash (52.5) and Thomas Selmon in the broad jump (21-11¾).

"The kids did real well. I'm very pleased with them," commented Coach Winfred Shipp. "We need to improve some things though. We need more depth. We're going to have to have those second, third, fourth and fifth places to win any meets."

Snyder bobbled a handoff in the 400 relay and finished third with a time of 45.2. The Tigers were fifth in the mile relay and failed to place in the 800 meters - all areas in which Shipp plans to stress before the Lamesa Track and Field Meet which comes up Saturday.

Teams Totals (both days)--1. Ft. Stockton 134½; 2. Snyder 106¾; 3. Lake View 80; Sweetwater 56.

Lewis Pleased With Duffers

Snyder High School's Tiger baseball team completed scrimmages with Abilene and Lubbock Coronado over the weekend and Coach Albert Lewis indicates he is pleased with the results.

The Tigers, defending District 3-3A champs, will begin the regular season here Thursday, hosting a tough Lubbock Monterey team.

"In both scrimmages our starting pitchers did well. Mackey (Mitch) pitched first Friday and (Tony) Degrate Saturday, and I was impressed with them," Lewis noted.

"Defensively we did well. We did better Saturday when we had several basketball players out there," he added, refering to a number of students who had been involved in basketball playoffs until Saturday morning. "Our defense looked in mid-season form Saturday...but that was Saturday," he smiled.

Lewis also indicated a nod for the efforts of catcher Mark Davis, and the hitting of Bryan Vincent (5 hits) and Bobby Degrate (3 hits).

"All in all, I was impressed with our performance. It was Abilene's third scrimmage (Snyder's first) and Coronado's second. Coronado is favored to win their conference, but I suspect they'll have a tough time with Monterey."

When Snyder hosts Monterey here at 4 p.m. Thursday it will be entertaining the state runner-up team from 1978.

Snyder was defeated in scrimmage action by Abilene, 5-4, and popped Coronado 8-2.

Wadkins Wins Campbell Open

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Lanny Wadkins, who delayed his tee shot on the 18th hole when a bird flew by, sank a 10-foot putt on that final hole to win the Glen Campbell-Los Angles Open with an 8-under-par 276 and a 1-stroke margin.

Persistent rains forced postponement of the final round of the $75,000 LPGA Orange Blossom Classic tournament. Officials of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tried three times unsuccessfully to start the third round.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

Second time around

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I said I would never marry again. But — like everyone else I know — I decided to try it just once more.

My second wife and I have been married only four months, but the problems have already started.

My wife's gripe is my friendship with my first wife. My "ex" and I enjoy getting together for coffee about once a month to talk about the children and the happenings in our lives. She has also remarried, so we have lots in common besides having lived together for 12 years.

Please help me explain to my wife that my friendship with my ex-wife is no threat to our marriage. I just can't bring myself to discuss the subject with her. Maybe we will begin to fight and I will find myself heading toward another divorce.

I'm counting on you to straighten things out with my wife.

DEAR READER — First, you are 100 percent right about the value of a friendly relationship with your ex-wife. If your wife were more secure, she would see that friendship as a positive force in an otherwise potentially tense situation.

Second, you had better find some way to talk about this subject with your wife. Discuss it with understanding and reassurance — but discuss it!

One of the most common mistakes of people beginning a second marriage is not discussing problems they would have fought out in their first marriage. That happens because they want so much to make marriage work the second time around.

Finally, if you and your "ex" have the time and energy, please fill me in on how you remained friends through a divorce that ended 12 years of marriage. Many readers are asking for advice on that subject. And I'm looking for some answers.

I urge other readers who enjoy friendly relationships with their ex-spouses to send me their secrets of success. Please address your comments to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Portions of those letters may be printed in future columns.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I am thinking about a second marriage. Paul, the man I want to marry, is entirely different from Joe, my ex-husband. Isn't that the best way to assure that this marriage won't end in divorce?

DEAR READER — Since you are still the same person who married your first husband, it is likely that either Paul has similarities to Joe that you have not yet observed or that Paul's differences from Joe are so great that they will eventually cause problems for you.

I don't like to be pessimistic. People being what they are, however, you will probably not be able to elude entirely the difficulties that ended your first marriage.

Premarital counseling is probably the best way to gain confidence in your new choice of marriage partner.

Is your television set becoming more and more difficult to turn off? Send for Dr. Blaker's hotline, "Taming the TV Beast." Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Campaign To Organize Farmworkers Continues

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN (AP)—Cesar Chavez, whose United Farm Workers Union has stalled in previous efforts to organize Texas farm workers, used a day-long pep rally-like convention here to launch a new drive in the state.

A crowd that swelled to upwards of 1,000 here Sunday offered enthusiastic rhythmic applause to a lineup of union leaders and clergymen who told them that a solid union offers the quickest route to a better life.

"I can assure you it will be much easier for you than it was in 1962," Chavez said, referring to the beginning of the UFW in 1962. "The people were scared then. Nobody should be afraid here."

The UFW effort in Texas has been plauged by a split in the ranks. But, with solidarity as the key word here, the 320 delegates worked themselves into a minor frenzy unanimously approving a resolution calling for "Una Sola Union" - one union.

"We don't want to be confused with that man with the black hat," one speaker said.

The "man with the black hat" is Antonio Orendain - a former Chavez aide who split from the UFW in 1975 and started the Texas Farm Workers Union.

Orendain's group was some 500 miles away - in Dallas on a march to Austin - as the delegates here shouted the "one union" cheer.

At a press conference later, Chavez said he is "open" to allowing the TFWU to re-join the UFW. He said he knows of no philosophical differences between the two organizations.

The solidarity theme carried through the day as some 33 resolutions were approved unanimously. The resolutions call for increased wages, better working conditions, workmen's copensation coverages and other issues.

Chavez also backed resolutions opposing President Carter's seven percent wage guidelines and the Bracero program.

The longtime farm workers leader said the presidential wage guidelines do not apply to growers and therefore should not be applied to field laborers.

The resolution opposing the Bracero program branded the system as "semi-slavery." The Bracero program ended in 1960. For two decades it had allowed Mexicans to work in the U.S.

"It would wreck the entire wage system," Chavez complained.

Scuba Diving Course Opens On March 5

A Scuba diving course open to men and women is scheduled to open March 5 and continue through March 16 at Western Texas College.

Lee Burke, WTC instructor, and Jerry Bell of Arlington will be instructors for the class. They will accept students as young as 12 who demonstrate swimming ability, and recommend Scuba as a family activity.

Classes are to meet from 6-9 p.m. five nights per week for the two-week duration of the course. Students are to furnish their own personal gear and will pay fees of $75 per person. The instructors will furnish tanks and air.

A minimum of 10 will be required to form the class, which will be limited to 15. Persons wishing to pre-register are to call the Community Services office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Program Set On Preparing For Tornado

ROBY—A program on how to prepare for a tornado has been scheduled for 2 p.m. Thursday in the courthouse annex in Roby.

A film of an actual community which was prepared when a tornado struck and the results of preparation will be shown. It presents information on what individuals, city officials, schools and everyone else involved in the community can do to prepare for this type of disaster.

The program is made available by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Beef Going High At Houston Show

HOUSTON (AP)-Ranchers say the high prices being paid at the Houston Livestock Show sales give evidence to the short supply of beef cattle.

Heifers sold Sunday at prices 140 percent higher than a year ago and bull prices were 70 percent higher at the 12th annual all-breed commercial female and registered range bull auction.

"Buyers acted like they have a lot of confidence in the future," said J.D. Sartwelle Jr. of Port City Stockyards at Sealy.

Tires Punctured By Vandals Here

A tire-puncturing vandal hit Hometown Motors sometime during the night and left in his wake damage estimated at $600 to nine tires that was discovered this morning.

The incident was reported to police about 8:15 a.m. today by Pinky Ferguson. It was only one of several incidents investigated either this morning or during the weekend by officers.

Ray Derrick reported someone entered his 415 20th St. home and made off with a stereo turntable, radio and eight-track tape player. That matter was investigated by police Saturday night.

Approximately $100 worth of slip covers were removed from a van at 409 East Highway, reported Guy Allen Sunday afternoon.

On the Old Lubbock Highway, Jamey Baldwin told officers Saturday he was missing about $105 worth of tools. He said the tools were taken from Baldwin Auto and Supply between noon and 1:30 p.m. Feb. 22.

Four traffic accidents also were reported.

The first occurred in the 500 block of East Highway at 1:41 p.m. Saturday. It involved a truck and trailer driven by Stephen De Barbee and a telephone pole. Damage to the telephone pole was set at $75.

The second traffic accident of the weekend took place 24 hours later, at 1:40 p.m. Sunday. It occurred in the 1100 block of 25th St. and involved a 1975 Lincoln driven by Edna Hamilton and a 1974 Buick driven by Mabel Clark Belsher.

Minor damage was reported to the Hamilton car, and the Belsher vehicle, which sustained heavier damage, was removed from the scene by a wrecker.

A 1974 GMC driven by Romie Lee Page collided with a tree at the 2502 Ave. F home of Clint Rivers. That accident took place at 9:34 p.m. Sunday, and resulted in the vehicle having to be removed from the scene.

One accident also took place this morning. It occurred at the intersection of 23rd St. and Ave. M and involved a 1974 Ford pickup driven by Antonio Perez and a 1965 Chevrolet pickup driven by Richard Castillo. It was reported at 7:39 a.m.

Gaines County Oil Project Approved

AUSTIN (AP)-An application of Knox Industries Inc., Midland, to operate two oil fields in Gaines County as a unit and to start a secondary recovery program has been approved, the Texas Railroad Commission said Thursday.

The order calls for the unitization of the Robertson and Robertson, North Clear Fork 7100 fields, for an expected recovery of an additional 680,000 barrels of oil as a result of waterflooding. Leases in the unit have produced nearly 1.3 million barrels of oil to date.

Firemen Called

Snyder firefighters doused a grass fire at the intersection of 20th St. and Ave. I Sunday afternoon.

The fire was reported at 1 p.m.

Burns Named To New Post By Sun Co.

DALLAS—Sun Production Co. has announced the appointment of Samuel M. Burns, former district engineer at Colorado City, to the newly-created position of coordinator, development projects at Dallas, effective April 1.

In his new position, Burns will coordinate a series of development projects and will report to L.F. Ellison, manager, reserve development.

Burns joined Sun Oil Co., now Sun Company, as an engineer trainee at Paramont in 1963. He then served successively as district engineer at Colorado City and at Newhall, Calif. He was named manager of Newhall District in 1973 and was appointed manager of operations engineering at Tulsa in 1976 and Nabors Project manager at Shreveport in 1977.

Clean-Up Plans Readied In Denver

DENVER (AP)-Health officials are drawing up plans for decontamination of sites in the Denver area where potentially hazardous levels of gamma radiation have been detected.

The Colorado Department of Health said Friday that one Denver brick and tile firm must tear down or move two buildings to allow removal of a radioactive dump abandoned more than 40 years.

But Jim Montgomery, radiological health expert with the department, said there are no plans to evacuate an office supply company's four-story building in downtown Denver where lower levels of gamma radiation were found this week on walls and in woodwork.

"We've decided to let people stay there temporarily until we can complete our testing," Montgomery said. "But when the clean-up begins, it's likely the people will have to vacate" to avoid contact with radioactive particles during clean-up work.

New President

NEW YORK (AP)-Author-historian Barbara W. Tuchman has been elected president of the American Academy and Institute of Arts and Letters.

She replaced Jacques Barzun, who had served as president for two years.

Ms. Tuchman, whose most recent work is "A Distant Mirror," became a member of the Academy in 1971 and had been serving recently as vice chancellor for literature.
