HOTEL GAS LINES GO IN

Work began Monday morning on a pair of gas lines which will supply the needs of the Coronado Inn on N. Hobart St. A 5-foot ditch for the pipe extends from Gwendolen St. along N. Hobart and then diagonally to the hotel. The hotel will be fed natural gas through four-inch pipes from both the north and south in case one line should fail. Operating the ditch-digger (above) is Frank Kelp of White Deer, employed by Groninger and King. (Daily News Photo)

City Commission

Parking Fines Won't Be Hiked

By MARVIN OLSEN
Daily News Staff Writer

Pampa's City Commission this morning, bending to the wishes of a Roman delegation of downtown merchants, decided to drop proposal to raise parking fines in Pampa from 25 cents to 50 cents over the first 12 hours. In fact, the Commission proposed, that the 25-cent fine on courtesy tickets shall be extended to cover the first 24 hours. It was emphasized again and again at this morning's meeting that parking fines "are not intended as a source of revenue, but a means of keeping traffic moving."

Mayor Ed Myatt, expressing the general opinion of the Commission, said that since motorists seem to be abusing the city's "courtesy ticket" system, there must be a vigilant enforcement of all parking tickets written.

Since the coming to office of Corporation Court Judge Buff Maguire the city has begun a concerted campaign to wipe out a huge backlog of some 10,000 unpaid parking fines. Maguire proposed the hike in fines to discourage the practice of forgetting to pay parking tickets.

The several merchants who crowded the City Commission room this morning were unanimous in their objection to a hike in fines. It was felt that this would discourage out-of-county shoppers and aggravate an already serious parking situation downtown.

One spokesman for the merchants, C. V. Ingram of Kyle's Shoes, was one of many who felt that publicity on the downtown parking problem would be a greater help than higher fines.

He said that Pampa residents—whenever they knew a problem existed—always cooperated. Lucian Young of White's added that the "public should be made aware of the situation; that courtesy tickets are being abused."

Ingram added: "Give the people some statistics; they will act accordingly."

It was pointed out that Pampa's system of courtesy fines gives this city the distinction of having one of the lowest fine schedules in the state. Nonetheless, according to Judge Maguire, about 30 percent of all tickets written are not paid.

Turning to other matters the Commission accepted a bid from DD Boxes of Norman, Okla., for 10 additional Dempster Dumpster containers. The price submitted was $8,724 for the shipment of 10. That price is about

Gracie Roars Inland; Damage Runs High

EIGHT-FOOT WAVES POUND COASTLINE

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)—Crashing six to eight foot waves riding on dangerously high tides caused by the advance winds of hurricane Gracie "pounded the Georgia-South Carolina coast early today."

The powerful storm continued to zero in on the mainland with its 125 m.p.h. winds.

The Miami Weather Bureau stressed that Gracie "is an extremely dangerous hurricane and all island, beaches and waterfront areas must be completely evacuated if loss of life is to be avoided."

But despite the warnings, thousands of seaboard residents in the danger areas refused to take shelter. Others adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude, still hoping the mighty mass of swirling wind and water would swerve from its present course.

Hannah Is Brewing

Meanwhile, the weather bureau reported a new hurricane, Hannah, No. 8 tropical storm of the season, brewed up 85 miles an hour winds 1,500 miles east of the south Florida coast. Hannah posed no immediate threat, however to any land areas.

David McCutcheon, police chief at Savannah Beach, Ga., one of the areas where evacuation was ordered, explained:

"Some of the old timers just won't leave. They feel that everything they have is here, and if they lose their possessions, they may as well go too."

At 4 a.m. e.d.t. the storm was centered about 145 miles south east of Savannah and was moving along a west-northwest and north-west course at about 10 miles per hour.

Danger From Floods

Indications were that the center would roar inland about noon today in the Charleston-Savannah area.

The most immediate danger, however, was from tidal flooding and the weather bureau warned persons, waiting until the last minute to leave low-lying areas, that escape routes in many places would be cut off before daybreak.

"Storm tides and high seas will flood coastal lands from Wilmington, N.C., to Brunswick, Ga., particularly from Myrtle Beach, S.C., to Savannah, Ga., with heights of 8 to 11 feet or more above normal," the weather bureau said.

At Palm Springs

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower plans to fly by jet plane Wednesday afternoon to Palm Springs, Calif., for an eight-day sunny climate treatment of a nagging cold, the White House announced today.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the President would stay at the home of George E. Allen, long-time Eisenhower friend, at La Quinta, about 15 miles from Palm Springs.

Hagerty noted that the weather forecast for the Palm Springs area was "clear, warm and sunny."

That's the kind of weather the President's doctors have advised to shake the cold that has bothered him since his return from Europe earlier this month.

Hagerty said a sore throat has disappeared but that his head is still stuffed up and he has a little cough.

The secretary said Eisenhower would return to Washington Oct. 8, the day before the President of Mexico arrives here on a state visit. Mrs. Eisenhower will not accompany him.

Hagerty said that of the several golf courses in the Palm Springs area, the nearest one to the Allen home is the El Dorado course—only four or five minutes away.

Claims for unemployment compensation are down to normal for September, Bill Ragsdale, manager of the Pampa office of the Texas Employment Commission, reported this morning.

Claims are down over a year ago and reflect a better general condition throughout the nation, according to Ragsdale. However, the steel strike and the completion of local construction contracts have caused more people to be available for employment here.

Although the steel strike has not caused any mass layoffs in Pampa, it has caused lay-offs in some small drilling companies that have run out of contracts because of lack of pipe. Big companies, on the other hand, were able to anticipate the shortage and stock up on pipe.

Weeks claimed for unemployment compensation fell from 923 in August to 733 this month. Last year at this time 865 weeks were claimed.

Placements are up over last month from 141 to 152—but down from last year's mark of 218. New applications for September total 145 as compared to 152 in August and 208 a year ago.

FREIGHT CAR BROKEN OPEN

A freight car at the El Worth and Denver Railway was broken open Monday night and an undetermined amount of merchandise was stolen, police said this morning.

Losses are apparently light, probably no more than a few pairs of stockings, Police Chief Jim Conner reported. The break in was reported this morning at 8 by Railway Agent Carl Latham.

Ill Ike To Bask In Sun

Essentially, the President was the victim of a punishing schedule which caused him to be hauled from coast to coast as "the new Eisenhower," a man of bursting energy.

During this recent 12-day whirlwind trip into West Germany, Great Britain and France, the Chief Executive naturally experienced a great deal of fatigue.

'No Work' Claims Said Down Here

Just before Gracie hurried its force against the mainland, the Charleston weather-gauge was knocked out. Winds then were estimated 100 miles an hour.

Hurricane Hannah, No. 8 of the year, meanwhile was located 500 miles southeast of Bermuda and moving westward at 15 m.p.h. It was expected to hold the course for the next 12 hours.

Tree Kills Man

An unidentified man was killed in Beaufort County south of Charleston when a huge tree toppled on his car. His family escaped injury and were rescued by volunteers.

An elaborate amateur radio network was put into operation to aid state police and civil defense authorities in rescue operations. People were urged to stay off the streets because of the danger from falling trees and flying glass.

Red Cross rescue teams sheltered hundreds through the night, including many who were attending a two-state Methodist conference and were living in tents.

South Carolina Gov. Ernest F. Hollings, who lives in Charleston, was here to direct hurricane precaution operations.

As the boiled up through the Atlantic, Gracie's fringe winds raked the coastal area from Savannah north but caused no considerable damage until it neared the South Carolina coast.

125 mph Winds Leave One Dead

By TOM PRICE
United Press International

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI)—Hurricane Gracie swept inland south of Charleston today with 125-mile-an-hour winds that killed at least one person and did extensive property damage.

The hurricane, called "extremely dangerous" by the Weather Bureau, struck the coastline just southwest of Charleston.

"All precautions for the safety of life and property should be continued until the storm passes," an 11 a.m. e.s.t. advisory from the Miami Weather Bureau said.

The eastern seaboard from Savannah, Ga., to Wilmington, N.C., was battered down for the big blow, seventh tropical storm of the year. An eighth howler with winds of 85 miles an hour was building up in the Atlantic.

The howling winds stripped power lines from their poles in this great port city and interlaced them in wild confusion among littered, flooded streets.

Unprotected windows were smashed. All power in the city was out and hospitals turned on emergency generators. The governor set up hotel headquarters and directed relief and rescue operations. He was aided by the National Guard, civil defense and the Red Cross.

Gracie piled up high tides before her onslaught against the beaches. Waves 30 feet high pounded over the sea wall here. Urgent precautions had brought about the evacuation of all who were in danger. Emergency shelters were crowded.

The Charleston Evening Post, with the biggest local story in many years on its hands, could do nothing about it. There was no electricity.

The 11 a.m. advisory warned that storm tides and high seas would continue to flood coastal lands from Morehead City, N.C., to the Savannah area during the day.

This is an emergency—repeat emergency—warning from Wilmington, N.C., to Savannah, Ga., the weather bureau said.

Toward Major Cities

Land-based radar and reconnaissance planes found the storm center at latitude 32.5, longitude 80.2 west, a short distance south of Charleston. It was moving between northwest and north-northwest at about 14 miles an hour.

Hurricane winds were fanning out 75 miles to the north and 50 miles to the south of the center. Gales howled as far north as 200 miles and 125 miles southward.

The howler was expected to continue on a steady course. If it held direction, Columbia, S.C., the state capital, and Charlotte, N.C., that state's largest city, would be in the storm's path.

Just before Gracie hurried its force against the mainland, the Charleston weather-gauge was knocked out. Winds then were estimated 100 miles an hour.

Hurricane Hannah, No. 8 of the year, meanwhile was located 500 miles southeast of Bermuda and moving westward at 15 m.p.h. It was expected to hold the course for the next 12 hours.

IN LEFORS

$50 Reward Posted For Gas Thieves

LEFORS — The Lefors Volunteer Fire Department is offering a $50 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a person or persons responsible for stealing gasoline from fire trucks.

Someone has also taken a siren from a fire truck.

An open letter has been sent to citizens of Lefors and the surrounding area. It was signed by Fire Chief J. J. Archer, Assistant Chief J. C. Jernigan, Mayor W. F. Wall and members of the City Council.

The homes and lives of Lefors citizens are being endangered, according to Chief Archer.

"Your ambulance and your fire trucks must be ready to move within a moment's notice. Delay may mean destruction or death. This need is being hampered by a thoughtless person or persons when gasoline is taken from the fire trucks," he said today.

The thieves did not stop at taking gasoline from the tanks but took a siren from one of the trucks. This may be equally dangerous since the siren is for the protection of the men on the truck and of private citizens.

Cancer Unit Will Name Chairmen

The Gray County Unit of the American Cancer Society Wednesday will appoint committee chairmen and outline plans for the coming year in cancer education, service and fund raising.

Jack Skelly, president, has announced the fall meeting for 7 a.m. in Johnson's Cafe.

Other officers are Mrs. R. E. McKernan, first vice president; Dr. M. McDaniel, second vice president; Mrs. W. A. Spence, secretary; and Bob Hudson, treasurer.

Also serving on the board are Curt B. Beck, C. P. Buckler, Mrs. Jess Clay, Mrs. Margaret Dial, Mrs. Nicholas Kadings, Mrs. Burton Doucette, Mrs. Jack P. Foster, Dr. Foster Elder, Dr. N. J. Ellis, John Evans, A. C. Houchin, Dr. Carl Lang, H. L. Ledrick, Cameron Marsh, Joe Page, Dick Stowers, Cliff Vincent from Lefors, and Dr. Harold Fabian and Sammy Haines of McLean.

Letter Clinic Well Attended

One hundred and 50 Pampa businessmen turned out for a two and one-half hour business letter writing clinic led by W. H. Butterfield of Texas Tech Monday night.

Butterfield returned to Lubbock today, after giving local Chamber of Commerce members some positive tips on business correspondence and a list of clichés that should not be used in any type of letter.

Trying To Melt Steel 'Ice'

By WILLIAM J. EATON
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Eisenhower, putting aside hands-off policy toward labor-management disputes, today tried to try to melt some of the ice in the frozen steel negotiations.

The Chief Executive made his startling move in the 77-day steel strike Monday by summoning industry and union leaders to separate White House talks Tuesday morning.

It was the first time that Eisenhower has intervened so personally in a labor dispute since his office nearly seven years ago. But it recalled many similar scenes during the Roosevelt-Truman administrations.

The President acted after a delay in reaching a settlement as "intolerable." He ended the walkout by 100,000 members of the United Steelworkers' must not continue."

Wednesday morning's discussions are expected to produce an early resumption of negotiations, probably in Washington. The White House said the President wants to get both sides talking again.

But at least one high government official said he doubted whether these new negotiations would break the deadlock that led to last Friday's collapse of contract talks.

The possibility that he might invoke the Taft-Hartley law to halt the steel strike for 90 days abated temporarily. The White House indicated he would not seek a back-to-work injunction before he consulted with the spokesmen for steel labor and management.

GRAND JURY INDICTS PAIR

Two men were indicted by the Gray County Grand Jury Monday in district court, District Attorney Bill Waters reported.

Indicted were Benjamin Alex Hassler of Skellytown, charged with the rape of a 16-year-old Pampa girl two weeks ago, and Lewis Neighbors, charged with driving while intoxicated, second offense. Both men will be brought to trial during the upcoming fall jury term.

A Face In The Crowd.... Who Is He? (Answer on Page 4)

Along with Henry Cabot Lodge, in many photos of Premier Khrushchev's trip to the U.S. that ended Sunday, another face showed up frequently, the one circled above. Who is he?

In San Francisco, he was close at hand as Khrushchev and his party paid a surprise visit to a busy market. He never spoke a word in English or Russian.

Here, he is shown in a jam of reporters, photographers and announcers at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, deathly quite at all times, who is he?

Rudy Vallee Says He's Not 'Tight'

By RICK DU BROW
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—The time has come, says Rudy Vallee, to destroy the myth that is a tightwad.

The reason: The world's first crooner, who describes himself as "The Pat Boone of the Stone Age," announced two weeks ago he may run for mayor of Los Angeles—and he wants to start with a clean slate.

"I know some people call me a tightwad," he said, "and I know it's not deserved. I used to refuse to park my car in Ciro's parking lot and my dates had to walk to a club with me from a side street."

Vallee, 58, explained: "I don't like to tip where a tip is not deserved. That's where the whole shibboleth began. I may have a chef five bucks, but a waiter only carries a tray. Even I may tip them sometimes."

Carries Own Suitcase

"I don't believe in paying two bucks for a 25-cent pack of cigarettes in a nightclub just because you have to tip. I like to carry my own suitcase to a train, and I should I pay ransom to a parking lot for my car?"

"And it's true I like to eat in restaurants—but only because the service is fast."

Vallee, the nation's top singer, bandleader and matinee idol in the early 1930s when he crooned through a megaphone, described his personal economics in the office of his hilltop mansion—easily the most extraordinary home in Beverly Hills.

Taylor Not Playing Great Over Anymore

Woman's View
By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The trouble with meeting one of our girl-matinee idols several years later is the shocking realization that not only is he older. But so are you.

So it was with seeing Robert Taylor, whose profile so far as I was concerned out-chiseled belonging to a Barrymore. The actor, who played leading roles in the 1930's and 1940's, came to this week to talk to reporters about his job in "For Him a Medium, Television." His press agent wanted to know, would I go to meet Mr. Taylor?

Could I? After all, in my youth I went quite a bit of my youth with millions of other females as Taylor made love to who or Dunne or Garson or who. Why not see what the hero my teen years really was like. Okay," said Taylor. "I'm used to people like you who remember me when they were little. I don't mind at all."

Enjoyed Fan Hysteria

Teenagers still have their crushes. But now they worship Marlon Brando or Paul Newman or Cary Grant. Different types of idol man.

"I don't mind that I'm not playing the great lover anymore. Ages in roles are inevitable. If I'm going to progress as an actor, just as age is inevitable."

At the time I was enjoying fan hysteria... when auto-graph seekers mobbed us at hotel entrances... I was young enough to appreciate it. I don't miss it. Fans have changed. They're different. Television has brought the personalities right into the home."

Taylor talked, I was busy taking at Taylor. Sunburned, tanned. More the outdoor than the drawing room. Same heavy arched brows, chiseled profile, only he did it heavier under the chin. But a hairline. No gray.

"Well," laughed Taylor. "I'm 48."

"I'm lucky," he said, when I asked there was no sign of lines. "I got a good crop from another, I guess. You should have a beautiful head of hair still."

"Want to know how I've aged?"

"Well, I don't run up the stairs anymore."

"I played tennis the other afternoon and Urs (his wife) had to tip me out of bed next day. I don't think I kept it by lying or working around the bed."

"I weigh the same as I did when I broke into the movies... 160 pounds. Maybe it's just not same distribution. The sands shifted."

Vallee, former husband of actress Barbara Stanwyck, now is married to Ursula Theiss, a German-born actress. They live on a 10-acre ranch near Los Angeles.

Nation's First Crime Census To Be Set Up

By LEON BURNETT
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials are planning to set up the nation's first crime census bureau to combat steadily increasing violence and thievery in the nation's capital.

Robert E. McLaughlin, a member of the District of Columbia commission, announced the plan. He also reported that Washington's crime rate has been on the rise all year, and that in August there were 22 per cent more serious crimes than during the same month last year.

Throughout the summer there have been almost daily reports of muggings, rapes and rape attempts, holdups and other deeds of violence.

Acid was thrown at a congressman. The widow of a sub-cabinet officer was knocked down during a robbery attempt in one of the city's most fashionable sections.

Thugs Attack Police

More than 100 policemen have been attacked by thugs so far this year.

One man was knocked down and robbed by two hoodlums at one of the city's business intersections in broad daylight, and with a number of persons looking on.

Every big city is plagued with this sort of thing nowadays. But Washington is the showplace of national prestige, so the problem is of particular concern here.

Police Chief Robert V. Murray asked Congress recently to provide funds for 500 more policemen. Congress appropriated enough for 100.

But within a matter of hours after McLaughlin issued his crime report, the district budget office slashed allocations for the police department, which could restrict Murray's efforts to beef up his force.

Juvenile Problem Acute

The juvenile problem is particularly acute. Authorities are rather hamstrung in coping with it, too, because Congress has refused to authorize additional juvenile court judges.

Last year, police brought 2,116 juvenile cases into court. More than 900 were dropped because the district's single judge just couldn't get around to them.

During the first six months of this year, the overall crime rate increased 15 per cent, the juvenile rate 25 per cent.

The most outspoken opponent of creating extra judgeships is Rep. James C. Davis (D-Ga.), chairman of the House District Committee. He has repeatedly tied up the proposal when it came before his group.

Davis, a segregationist, is reported to fear that a Negro would be chosen to fill any new position on the bench.

WATCHES SAVINGS BURN

CHICAGO (UPI)—Benjamin Brown, 50, supervisor of a truck garage, had stashed his life savings of $16,500 in a hole in the garage wall for safekeeping. When fire broke out at the garage Friday, he watched helplessly as the building, 17 trucks, the wall—and his $16,500—were burned.

Steel inventories have fallen below 11 million tons compared with minimum requirements of 14 million to 16 million tons as federal labor officials today stepped up their efforts to get the steel strikers back in the mills.

Conciliation experts met Sunday in an unusual session to determine the government's future course of action as a result of the collapse of contract negotiations. Pressure is mounting on the administration to invoke the Taft-Hartley law sending the workers back to the mills for 60 days.

Construction firms are feeling the pinch of steel shortages. "Uncertainty over steel deliveries and prices" is causing extensive deferment of non-residential and heavy construction projects according to F. W. Dodge Corp. Total building awards last month declined to around $3 billion—of nearly $600 million from July and 11 per cent below August 1958.

Gasoline users generally will be largely offset by new declines in motor fuel prices stemming from oversupplies. Over the weekend several Mid-Continent refiners cut bulk prices on branded gasoline another quarter cent a gallon.

Rachel In Passion Play Is Veteran

In addition to portraying Rachel, Mrs. Esther Jean Hagan will help supervise entries in the Black Hills Pampa Play, sponsored by the Pampa Noon Lions Club, Oct. 9-11.

Performances will be given in the Pampa Junior High School auditorium.

Mrs. Hagan is the wife of Fred Hagan who will portray Judas in the play. Following her marriage, she toured with a company formed by her husband.

Touring United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Tasmania, with their company, the Hagans have also played at major Keith-Orpheum circuits in the US and Canada.

Reserved seat performances are slated for 8 each evening with a Sunday Matinee at 2:30. Seat prices with tax included are $2.90, $3.30 and $3.70.

A school matinee will be held at 2 p.m. Oct. 10. Student tickets are 75 cents with adult tickets, $2. Seats will not be reserved for this performance.

With Mrs. O. K. Gaylor in charge, the box office will open Thursday. Holders of exchange tickets may telephone their reservations in starting today.

The box office telephone is MO 5-2192.

Free China To Condemn Reds

By BRUCE W. MUNN
United Press International

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Nationalist China will condemn the Communist Peiping regime before the U.N. General Assembly today for the atrocities in Tibet and the slave-labor communist system on the China mainland, informed sources reported.

The sources said Chinese Ambassador Tsiang F. Tsiang will inform the assembly that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will not oppose full debate on the Tibetan issue here.

Both Nationalist and Communist China agree on one thing: that Tibet is essentially Chinese territory even though it enjoyed autonomy—self-rule—from the establishment of the Chinese Republic in 1911.

Tsiang is expected to put in the U.N. record Chiang's promise that Tibetans will be granted the right of self-determination if and when the Nationalists recapture the China mainland.

The informants said Tsiang also planned a condemnation of the Chinese system imposed on the Chinese farmers and peasants by the Peiping regime.

A demand for the full debate on civil liberties in Tibet was put before the assembly last night. Ireland and Malaya submitted to Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld a request for inclusion of the question of Tibet as an additional item on the assembly agenda.

The request will go before the assembly tomorrow. Tsiang is expected to meet before the end of the week to decide whether to recommend the inclusion.

Premier On Way To China

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI)—Globe-trotting Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev leaves by plane today for Peiping to report to his Chinese Communist allies on his historic journey to the United States and his talks with President Eisenhower.

Khrushchev had covered more than 15,000 miles when he returned to Moscow Monday after his two-week visit to the United States. Peiping is some 3,000 miles by air from Moscow.

Khrushchev is going to Peiping officially to take part in the 10th anniversary celebrations of the Chinese Communist seizure of power.

But he will undoubtedly compare notes and exchange views with his Asian allies in what may amount to a summit conference of the Communist powers.

The Soviet delegation Peiping will be joined by official delegations from other Communist nations in what will be the first assembly of Communist Party chiefs in two years. The last previous get-together was in 1957 when they met in Moscow on the occasion of the 40th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

At the Moscow meeting, the leaders of international Communism issued a manifesto calling for solidarity in the Communist camp—under Soviet leadership.

Typhoon Vera Rends Nagoya

NAGOYA, Japan (UPI)—Erd less rows of wooden coffins and sodden straw mats for the dying. Stricken peasants moving past in never-ending search for their families in this twice dead city.

The story of typhoon Vera, most destructive storm to hit Japan in centuries, could be outlined in statistics: 1,779 dead, 1,933 missing, 8,073 injured, 970,000 homeless.

But its horror lay in the faces of the people, their struggle for food and water, the dysentery which ravaged their bodies, the glazed look on their faces as they searched the rubble for those who were lost.

It lay in the face of an old woman dressed in threadbare kimono, her lips pressed tightly against toothless gums, watching intently as the lid of a coffin-like box was raised.

She steered herself and then peered within. Wordlessly, and with a slight shake of head she moved on to the next box and the next and the next.

There were not even enough of the wooden boxes to hold the bodies in this city which suffered more than 1,600 dead. Some of the bodies lay on straw tatami mats, their faces covered with scraps of cloth.

Long lines of survivors trudged past these boxes through the day, wondering when help would arrive from Tokyo. But communications were smashed by the fury of a storm that set off landslides and floods.

The wooden boxes themselves were hurriedly built for the gruesome chore of identification. The head end of each was hinged so it could be quickly opened and closed.

He got back from Europe on Labor Day and had only one week for intensive conferences preparing for the visit of Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. There was a mountain of legislation left for him by the departing Congress and he was in almost daily conference on the steel strike.

Khrushchev swept into town. There was the customary round of diplomatic dinners, crowded daytime schedules and finally, a nerve-racking week end of head-to-head diplomacy with the Soviet boss at Camp David, Md.

The result of all this was that the President showed up for his press conference Monday talking like a man with his head in a bucket. The cold had spread from his nose to his bronchial area, long a sensitive spot in his physique.

AUTO REDUCTION

DETROIT (UPI)—Automotive News said today the first auto plant shutdown because of the steel strike would occur Oct. 20 when Chevrolet plans to halt its assembly lines if no more steel is available before then. The industry trade paper said some General Motors fabricating plants will be closed this week because of shortages.

Open House To Honor Pampan

On the occasion of her 71st birthday anniversary, "Mother" Edith F. McPhillips will be entertained by her children and close friends with an open house Wednesday.

Setting of the role will be her home, 428 Christy.

Birthday greetings will be extended, and a love offering is to be left as a living memorial for her faith mission in Jamaica.

The faith mission is to complete a new chapel for the Jamaicans. One was completed last year from donations made by people all over the United States for approximately five years.

Mother McPhillips children include three sons, Tommy, R. W. Jr., and Jimmy, all of Pampa. Also four daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Storseth, Mrs. Pauline Watson and Miss Edith McPhillips, all of Amarillo; and Mrs. Winnie Evers, Lubbock.

Fair Winners
Are Announced

Arlene Wills of the Wayside 4-H club won third place in the District Better Baking contest held over the weekend at the Tri-State Fair, it was announced today.

Miss Wills was recognized on KGNCTV's Rural Youth program Saturday and was presented a $10 check. The district winner was Ellen Latta of Groom. She received $100.

Carl Hudson of Gray County won fifth place in the gift show, while Thomas Hudson, also of Gray County, won second place in the gift show in the Sears Area at the Fair.

Both of these boys are members of the Groom 4-H Club.

Guard Alerted

The Isle of Palms near Charleston, where Billings and former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes have their residences, was evacuated Monday.

The governor put the National Guard on standby alert from Charleston to Camden. The state civil defense setup and the amateur radio network operated close to Hollings at the Francis Marion.

Experts were preparing for the main force to strike Folly Beach 12 miles south of Charleston. The beach is a typical resort of cottages and fishing piers.

Breakers almost 30 feet high were pounding over the famous Charleston Battery and into Bay street.

Despite the high winds, there was still some traffic crawling through the flooded Charleston streets at mid-morning, mostly occupied by newsmen.

Carroll Godwin, assistant news director of station WCPC, said his station wagon was picked up off the ground about six inches by the wind.

At Garden City Beach, S. C., a small town 12 miles south of Myrtle Beach, Fire Chief J. J. Ammons said one beach-front home had been washed away and another damaged by high winds. All beach areas had been evacuated.

Approximately 5,000 refugees were gathered in 30 shelters between Georgetown, S. C., and Beaufort. Seventy persons were in the church at Folly Beach.

At Savannah some 150 miles to the south of Charleston, failing power lines set one luxury home afire when winds hit 60 miles an hour.

Twenty-one years ago today five tornadoes struck Charleston County within one hour, killing 32 persons and causing three million dollars in damage.

A Pampa man charged with theft under $50 was sentenced to 30 days in county jail Monday by County Judge William Craig.

Sentenced was LeRoy Welch, 30, who was charged with taking copper tubing Friday from the site of the demolished Gilking Apartments. Welch entered a plea of guilty.

Two Pampa motorists were also charged Monday in court with driving while intoxicated. One of the motorists, David J. Watson, 25, living at 120 S. Faulkner, was fined $100 and sentenced to three days in jail after entering a plea of guilty.

Pleading not guilty was Emmett Ray Hethcock, 52, of 1120 Buckler. Hethcock's release bond was set at $500.

T. P. Matthews Rites Pending

Funeral services are pending for Thomas P. Matthews, 57, who died in his sleep at 4 a.m. this morning on the John Bowers Ranch, where he had been employed for about a month. He was a resident of Higgins and prior to that had lived in Dalhart for 20 years.

Survivors are two sons, Albert of Amarillo, Delbert of Dalhart; and one daughter Mrs. Flossie Taylor of Vernon.

Services will be announced later by Duanel - Carmichael Funeral Home.

Taylor Firm Has Contract

PERRYTON — The North Plains Electric Cooperative has let the contract for construction of a new headquarters building to the construction firm of James T. Taylor and Son of Fort Worth.

The new building will be located three-fourths of a mile north of Perryton. The low bid was $129,750. Construction is expected to begin immediately.

The Taylor company is at present finishing up construction of the new Perryton elementary school.

DeHart Presents Initial Organists Guild Program

George DeHart, Minister of Music of the First Methodist Church, Midland, presented the opening program of the season for the Pampa Chapter of the American Guild of Organists Monday night in the Youth Building of the First Methodist Church.

Presenting colored slides of his travels this summer throughout Europe, DeHart gave a commentary on the background of the famous cathedrals and historical centers as they related to music. Beginning his trip with passage through the Panama Canal, the slides presented were of Notre Dame Cathedral, Paris; the Vatican, Rome; Oberammergau, home of the famous Passion Play in Germany; the birthplaces of Mozart in Salzburg, Austria, and Beethoven in Bonn, Germany; the gorgeous stained glass windows of the Chartres Cathedral; and Westminster Abbey in London.

Of special interest to the group was the visit to the Pels Organ Factory in Holland, one of the oldest and most famous organ concerns in the world. Scenes of the highland cities, castles, and lakes of Scotland concluded the program.

Tracy D. Cary, acting moderator of the Chapter, conducted the completion of the signing of the charter, begun in July, which will be sent to the National headquarters for formal approval. A nominating committee composed of Mrs. John Gill, Miss Eloise Lane, and Tom Atkin, was appointed for the election of officers which will take place at the October meeting.

Refreshments were served, from a table laid with an ecru damask and lace cloth centered with Irish Harp flanked with pink roses and tapers burning in crystal holders. Mrs. Fidelia Yoder presided at the punch service, and Miss Eloise Lane and Mrs. Lois Fagan served the pink-iced cake.

Area organists and choir directors attending were, Mrs. Lavinia Webb, director First Christian; Miss Eloise Lane, organist First Baptist; Tom Atkin, organist-director First Methodist; Mrs. Fidelia Yoder, organist First Presbyterian; Tracy D. Cary, organist St. Vincent de Paul Catholic; Ben Gollehon, director, First Presbyterian; Mrs. Lois Fagan, organist St. Paul's Methodist; Bill Haley, director St. Vincent de Paul Catholic; James Chenoweth, St. Matthew's Episcopal; Mrs. J. J. Rance, Mrs. Patay Martin; and Miss Rosemary Lawlor, all from Pampa.

Also Joe W. Erickson, organist First Baptist; and Ray S. McEntire, organist First Methodist, all from Perryton; Miss Jaunita Haynes, organist First Baptist, Midland; Miss Sheila Cable, organist First Baptist, Lefors.

Also Miss Tommie Kay Kelley, organist First Presbyterian; Mrs. Joe Seltz, organist First Baptist; and Mrs. Kelley, all from White Deer; Mrs. W. R. Weddington, organist Calvary Baptist Church; and Patsy Weddington, Borger; and Mrs. Robert J. Dillman, organist, First Baptist, Canadian.

W. D. Duncan Rites Pending

Word has been received of the death of Wayland DeB Duncan, 54, in Albuquerque, N.M. Mr. Duncan resided at 516 S. Somerville.

Included in the immediate survivors are J. B. Duncan Sr. of Pampa; J. M. Duncan Jr. of Borger; A. C. Duncan of Quanah, Ella Carter of San Angelo, Jewel A. Pendery of Alaska and H. R. Wren of Lubbock.

Completion arrangements will be announced later by Duanel-Carmichael Funeral Home pending the arrival of the body from Albuquerque.

PARKING

$30 higher per container than the cost a year ago.

The Commission also signed a rent contract with the Railroad Commission which is leasing office space from the city in City Hall.

James Hart, chairman of the Pampa Traffic Commission, attended today's meeting and offered to examine the loading-zone situation on downtown streets with a view toward finding more downtown parking space.

He informed the Commission that the revamped Traffic Commission plans to hold meetings the first Monday of each month at noon in the Pine Room of the Pampa Hotel.

At press time today the Commission was in discussion on the city's dog ordinance. Although some 100 stray dogs are being captured a month, the city's stray dog population seems to be on the rise.

POLICE SEEK BLONDE
LONDON (UPI) — Police today sought a 16-year old blonde girl believed to be leader of a group of Jewish youths who have been terrorizing Jewish club dances in northwest London. The group's latest attack was on a synagogue dance Saturday. The girls were believed to be led by the girl, described as "well-dressed with pointed shoes, Italian style suit and with their initials embroidered on their pockets."

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are both college graduates. Our business dealings are with rural people. My husband thinks he has to talk to them like they talk to him in order to be a "good fellow." It is disgusting to hear a college educated man say "He don't," "He got nothin'," and "He has."

When we are out socially, my husband forgets and starts talking like a hick. This embarrasses me because I have the feeling that friends think he doesn't know.

We've had some heated arguments about this. Don't you think it is wrong for me to intentionally use bad grammar so these "hicks" won't think he is high?

DORA

DEAR DORA: Those who deal with rural people need not butcher language to be a "good fellow." If your husband intentionally uses poor grammar he has belittled himself. It is not his way of speaking. It is a habit. Most modern farmers are as well-educated as city dwellers. But those farmers who do not have the benefit of education would hardly accuse a man being "high hat" because he speaks correctly.

DEAR ABBY: Do you feel a man should keep a picture of his deceased wife in the living room after she has remarried? I think he should remember her just as well with a picture in the drawer. I would hate to see this in the paper because I think I know your answer and I would like a certain to see it. Thank you.

STEADY READER

TRUTH MILLETT

Long ago I wrote a column giving a few hints on how to be a successful grandparent.

Now grandparents from all over country are writing me sizzling letters. It seems I stirred up a hornet's nest by that innocent little column.

Who wants to be a successful grandparent? ask my readers. Then they go on to tell me they aren't interested in the subject.

They feel that if they make an attempt to be "good grandparents" it just be used by selfish parents who want to push kids off on them.

Why should I spend my life being an unpaid baby sitter, who am then for granted and imposed upon when I can spend my time doing the things I never had time when I was rearing my own child?

There are too many grandmothers today bringing up a second child. "Mama" can hold down the house and pay for luxuries the mother never had and never will have," writes another.

Once our children are grown and married, our duty is to our children, not to our children's children. Says one grandmother who has been back to school and is now spending her leisure years in a better educated person.

"That way maybe my children and grandchildren will be happy," she says.

She adds, "I don't see the kids who are spending their lives being helpful grandparents as much love and respect as from their children or their children."

It's the way a lot of today's parents feel about being grandparents. They've got a perfect right to do as they please. Can't help feeling sorry for those whose grandparents don't intend to devote much to being grandparents. For a parent can be such a special to a child.

DEAR READER: With all due respect to the deceased wife, her picture should not be displayed in the living room. Only the most insensitive "second wife" would be able to live with it comfortably. When a man remarries, he owes his second wife that comfort.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I was in the Third grade I have had eye trouble. Next year I'll be in the Seventh grade and it seems to be getting worse.

We had an eye check-up in school and I got sent home with a letter saying that I should have an eye specialist check my eyes as soon as possible. That was last January. Every time I ask my mother when she is going to take me she says, "Don't worry, I will get you there." I don't want to upset her, but I would like to get this over with so I could see everything all the time. Put your answer in the paper, please, but don't sign my name. Thank you, Honey.

"NEEDS AN EYE CHECK UP"
DEAR LITTLE GIRL: Ask your mother once more to please take you to the eye doctor. Tell her that you cannot see well. If she does not take you within one week, talk to your school nurse. If you have no school nurse, tell your favorite teacher. Arrangements can be made through your school health program for an eye examination. Do this at once and let me know the results.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MATURE PARENT

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Muriel Lawrence is on vacation. This is the fourth of six articles that will appear during her absence, reprinted by permission of Random House, Inc., from "The Happy Child," by Irene M. Josselyn, M.D. Copyright, 1955, by Irene Miliken Josselyn.)

Wise discipline gives a child a choice when a choice is acceptable. But if the choice has more implications than the child can comprehend, or if parents will accept only one answer, the child should not be given a choice.

Parents often make tyrannical noises because they have such a poor concept of their own strength. They assert themselves as if certain that they will not only be opposed but probably defeated. They give to fight windmills.

Hiding behind the windmills is the surprised child. The battle is then on, anger-arousing for the parents and often frightening to the child. Both want to win. The parents fear they won't. The child may be terrified because he doesn't know what he'll do with his victory.

Many times when a child forces the parent into battle he does so with the hope that finally the parents will win because it is their victory, not his, that gives him security.

Parents forget they are in control. Unaware of themselves when confronted by the obstacles created by the child, they fear him as the "immovable object." Unless parents give away their secret, the child evaluates the situation quite differently. To him parents are the "irresistible force" to which he will finally have to bow.

Though the parents may be weak, to the child they are very big and very strong. Confident parents will achieve their goal. They are not wishy-washy in their discipline. They are reasonable in a request, certain that it will be carried out and tolerant of an understandable delay.

Some parents are ineffectual in discipline because the child's particular behavior is in an unconscious way vicariously gratifying to them. When parents gleefully recount some mischief of their child, they are obviously enjoying it.

Such a sense of humor in indirectly experiencing a less-steady life than their own can lighten an overly solemn hand of discipline. But if the parent unconsciously gains gratification out of serious violations by the child, out of every successful evasion of parental or other authority, unfortunate consequences can result.

Studies have indicated that many delinquent children are acting out the unconscious wishes of their parents.

Christmas In September Banquet Honors Missionary Link In Africa

A silver Christmas tree was turned green with money at the "Christmas in December" Missionary Banquet held Thursday evening in the Fellowship Hall of the First Christian Church.

Donations were given to assist Ben Hobgood with missionary work in the Belgian Congo; the banquet was given in recognition of his work as the living link missionary in Africa.

Guests were welcomed by Mrs. John Gill who also introduced Mrs. James Webb, soloist who sang "The Birth of the King" and "My Task."

Rev. Richard Crews led the recognition service for Mr. Hobgood. Slide pictures of the Juliette Fowler Children's Home and Home for the Aged were shown with narration by Mrs. Gill.

Fellowship Hall of the church was decorated with palm trees and Christmas decorations in silver and green. The silver Christmas tree was surrounded with pictures of the Hobgoods and their missionary field.

Approximately 120 guests were served at the turkey dinner.

Christian Women's Fellowship business session was held on Wednesday morning preceding the banquet.

The board approved the selections of the nominating committee for the 1960 CWF officers. New officers to take over in January are Mmes. John Gill, president; C. L. Mason, first vice president; Vernon Hall, second vice president; E. K. Haner, secretary; Bill Morris, treasurer; C. W. Moot, worship chairman; Chris Groninger, program chairman; Frank Hogsett, Glenn Nichols, Lester Stewart, service chairman; Herman Gantz, Roy Williams, banquet chairman.

Mrs. Gill led the meeting, opening with prayer. She reminded members of the retreat at Lake Brownwood on Oct. 8-11 for women of the Christian Church with pre-school children.

Members discussed visits to shut-ins. Mrs. Gill announced that the next CWF meeting will be in the church on Oct. 21 at 9:30 with the Cherryhomes Group presenting the program and the Cuppy Group as hostesses.

FULLMER "KAYOED"—National Boxing Association's midweight champ Gene Fullmer (right) found that hypnotist Nat Fleischer could do to him in one minute what stronger men have tried and failed to do after 15 rounds of boxing. At the country club in Grossinger, N.Y., Fullmer is shown sound asleep after Fleischer put him into a hypnotic trance.

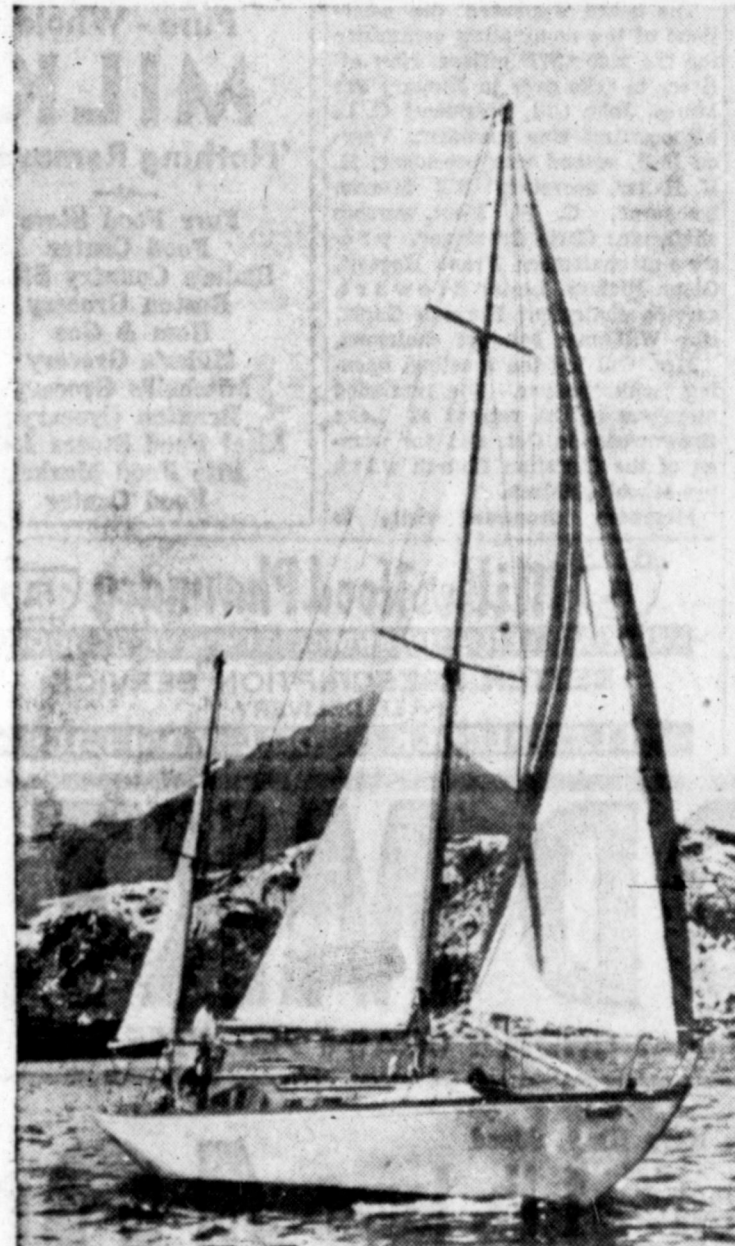

FINAL OUT—Umpire Ed Hurley calls the final out of the game as Yankee Bobby Shantz (center) is doubled off second base in the ninth inning of the New York-Chicago game in New York. Shantz tried to go from second to third on teammate Hector Lopez' blooper to Chicago's Manuel Rivera, who made a shoestring catch and threw to shortstop Luis Aparicio (left) who missed the ball. Third baseman Phillips (right) grabbed ball for putout.

NAILING HIM DOWN—Pretty Ann Ferran is taking no chance on losing her man in Florida's Silver Springs. He's Carswell Ponder and Ann seems to be driving a huge stake right into the top of his head. It's all a gag, of course, and that enormous hammer she's wielding isn't made of the usual ingredients.

HOOK, LINE AND BLINKER—After running afoul of electronics, as well as a fishhook, this 4 1/2-pound trout was the prize of John Vachowski on Sebago Lake, at Naples, Maine. A portable depth and fish finder was used, and it sends out ultrasonic signals that fish can't hear. When a boat passes over large fish, red flashes appear on a dial.

NO JUNK—Sleek and trim, this 42-foot yawl was photographed as it made a test voyage off Hong Kong, where it was built for shipment to the U.S. The yacht is just one of many built by Hong Kong shipyards which are cashing in on the American boating boom. Last year, one builder in that city did nearly two million dollars worth of business in boats for export to this country. This yawl is a thing of beauty to behold, and may be a joy to sail.

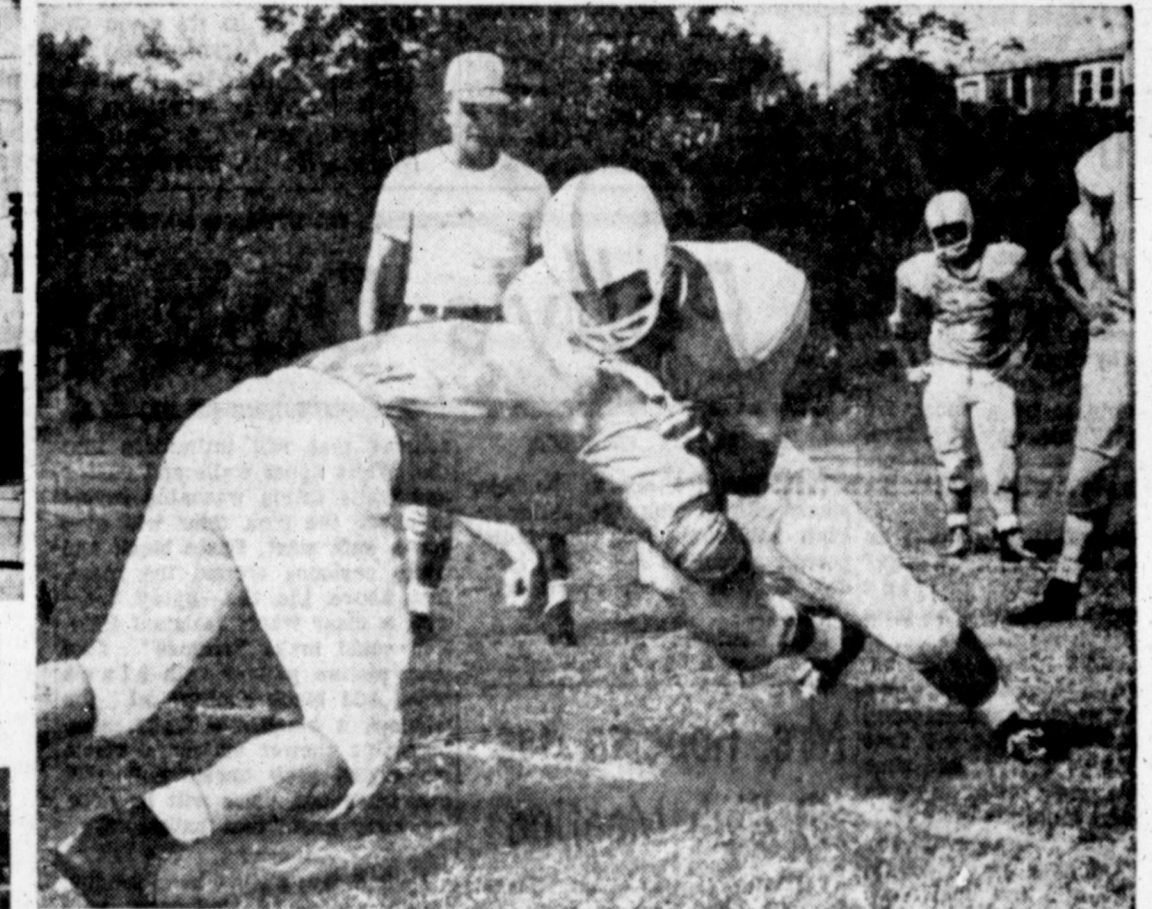

LOOKING AT YOU—On California's Catalina Island, lissome Isabel Guthrie is putting the double whammy on the photographer with the use of a magnifying glass. The pretty visitor from Topeka, Kan., was giving the place—and its visitors—a thorough once-over, and apparently liking both.

WELL WORTH WHILE—TV star Perry Como is extending congratulations to his son, Ronnie (right), after the lad boated a 7-foot 2-inch sailfish off West Palm Beach, Fla. The elder Como failed to click but Ronnie, whose luck was much better, also boated a 40-pound amberjack.

TEAMMATES—Maurice Richard, hockey's highest scorer and veteran star on NHL Montreal Canadiens, took a breather on ice with younger brothers Claude (left) and Henri in Montreal, Que. The younger men are going to man the Canadiens' forward line with brother Maurice this season.

FREE WHEELING—The Lyons family of La Crescenta, Calif., traveled light as they started out on bicycles for a 300-mile trip to Big Sur, Calif. They carried only necessities like a pup tent, stove, sleeping bags and changes of clothing.

THE SLIPPERY SIDE—Mud makes hill-climbing a rough business for these Boy Scouts and their leaders, who have plenty of opportunities for good turns by helping each other up. The gooey ooze was one of the hazards at a Boy Scouts jamboree near Manila, the Philippines, where there were a lot of other obstacles to match this one.

BIRD MESSENGERS—Lenora Abdullah, Tamar Benjamy and Nancy Steele are about to release those pigeons from the roof of a hotel in New York City. The birds were supposed to fly to Washington bearing U.N. delegation messages to President Eisenhower.

WINNING TEAM—Driving "Betty Elkington" across the finish line to win the 10th annual "Applesauce Derby" at Palmyra, N.Y., is Benjamin J. Miles, who's looking back at the field. The same team won last year. It seems to be becoming a habit with them.

Red Griggs the pipeline

Pampa fans did a pretty good job last year of supporting a losing football team. We're curious as to whether they'll do as well this season in supporting what may well be the first winner in a number of years.

There are two good barometers of public support for a football team — attendance at games and membership in the quarterback club. So far, both have been lagging, but there have been reasons for the lag.

Only about 4500 showed up for the home opener against Bowie, which proved to be Pampa's first win since the '58 home opener — also a flop at the gate with about the same 4500 attendance.

In contrast, Harvester Park was almost packed for Pampa's game but losing efforts against Tascosa and Palo Duro last year. The fans must be worse at picking the winner than I am! (and that's pretty bad).

Quarterback Club membership has been lagging this year, too. It's right about the 50 mark now. Of course, the rain last week practically wiped out Tuesday's meeting — which should have been packed to the gills after the 12-0 win over Arlington Heights.

The 40-0 Wichita Falls debacle didn't help the attendance at next week's game, so there's an excuse for the poor attendance at the Arlington Heights game, too. But now the time for excuses is past, and the time for some action is at hand.

Quarterback Set Ladies' Night

If there's an empty seat at tonight's Quarterback Club meeting, in Pampa Junior High Cafeteria at 7:30, something's wrong somewhere. It should be "standing room only" after Pampa's 41-6 massacre of Bowie. Films of that game will be a feature of tonight's meeting.

Tonight is Ladies' Night, and all club members and prospective members are invited to bring their wives. Babe Curfman will be there to brag on his Harvesters, and one of the coaches will give a scouting report on this week's opponent, Tascosa, which is rated the number six team in the state. Refreshments will be served after the meeting.

The Quarterback Club has set a membership goal this year of from 350 to 400. This may seem high, but considering the fact that 40 joined last year when the Harvesters were 1-9, it certainly isn't unreasonable.

Harvesters Much Improved Over '58

Hardly anyone would deny that the Harvesters have an improved team this year, but there may be some question about just how much improvement they've shown over what they did in the first three games last year.

The improvement has been very noticeable in the only two things that really count — scoring and non-loss percentage. The Harvesters were 1-2 last year, and now, of course, they've won two and lost one. That one loss, to Wichita Falls, was a foregone conclusion.

The Harvesters have now outscored their combined opposition, 46 to 46. Last year at this time, Pampa trailed in the scoring column, 56 to 24. Excluding the Wichita Falls games of both this year and last, the totals are 53-4 this year, and 22-22 last year. Quite a difference!

On the average, the opposition has been about the same. Pampa has played the same three teams, Wichita Falls, Arlington Heights, and Bowie. Wichita Falls was better, Arlington Heights better, and Bowie worse.

In the statistics which don't really mean much — first downs, rushing yards, passing yards, etc. — the Harvesters are slightly ahead of last year's team. Here are the comparative figures with last year's being given first:

First downs — 37 and 29; rushing yards — 569 and 459; passing yards — 124 and 87; total offense — 693 and 746; passes completed — 8 and 5; passes intercepted by — 2 and 2; fumbles lost — 8 and 5; penalties 17 for 193 and 23 for 220.

Pampa's combined opponents have fared worse in rushing, passing, and fumbles lost, but have done somewhat better in passing — though the passes completed against the Harvesters have been mostly short ones, not as damaging as some completed against last year's team. Here are the figures on Pampa's opponents, last year's given first:

First downs, 45 and 47; yards rushing, 522 and 461; yards passing, 204 and 298; total offense, 726 and 759; passes completed, 17 and 24; passes intercepted by, 4 and 2; fumbles lost, 3 and 6; penalties, 15 for 135 and 14 for 160.

In the main event Funk recovered from his unscheduled semifinal bout pouncing to decision Nasty Mike Roberts. Funk applied a beautiful spinning toe-hold to cop the opening fall, but Roberts snatched fall No. 2 by holding Funk's trunk to the canvas, despite a mighty bloody forehead.

While Sheriff Jordan was escorting Funk back to his dressing room after he dropped the second fall, Roberts screamed at him from the ring to return and fight and the big, blond rancher from Urmberger did.

Jordan had to persuade Funk not to carry a chair with him into the ring after Roberts. Despite the loss of his heavy wooden weapon, Funk managed to win the third and deciding fall as he pinned him with one foot outside of the ropes, an illegal act that was allowed to stand up.

It was the most vicious match local wrestling fans have viewed here in the past several months. In the opener Hamilton did a lot of beard pulling against Myaki and the Jap did a lot of choking, but neither managed to struggle through for a fall and the event wound up in a draw.

Pampa wrestling promoter Doc Miller, well pleased with Monday night's wild activity, promises another top-flight card next Monday night. Advanced tickets are on sale in downtown Pampa at Layne's Department Store.

Dodgers Shoot For Pennant Today

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Dodgers, trying to make their third try a charm, came out on side-wheeling Don Drysdale today in an effort to win the National League pennant and the right to meet the Chicago White Sox in the World Series.

Now based here, after a lot of golden years at Brooklyn, the Dodgers were favored to break the jinx which has seen them lose two previous playoffs. They got off on the right foot Monday when they beat the Milwaukee Braves, 3-2, in the first game at Milwaukee.

Drysdale, a strong-armed right-hander, usually is more effective against the Braves than any other club, although his season's record this year against Milwaukee is an even 3-3.

So the Dodgers hope to close it out today, and then fly to Chicago for the opening of the World Series Thursday. If a third game is necessary, in this best two-out-of-three series, it will be played here Wednesday, delaying the start of the series until Friday.

The Braves, who have been short-handed on the odds before this season, rested their hopes on Lew Burdette, their World Series hero of two years ago. They pointed out, too, hopefully, that they had beaten the Dodgers six of the 11 games played this season in this vast football stadium in Milwaukee.

"We've been coming from behind all year long," said Braves manager Fred Haney. "We might as well keep on doing it."

The Dodgers had different ideas. "We're on top," Pee-wee Reese, one of the former Dodger greats and now one of their coaches, explained. "I have a hunch we're going to stay there."

The Dodgers still were hailing catcher John Roseboro, whose sixth inning home run in the dusk at County Stadium in Milwaukee Monday, turned out to be the deciding run, and pitcher Larry Sherry.

Sherry came on in relief of starter Danny McDevitt in the second inning when the Braves scored both their runs, and turned back the Braves on four hits from home run stand up.

There was only a small crowd of 18,297 and they sat through a steady rain and mist that delayed the start for almost an hour.

The Dodgers got the jump in the first inning when Charlie Neal singled, advanced to second and scored on Norm Larker's single. But the Braves roared back in the second with an assault to route McDevitt. Johnny Logan walked, moved to second on Del Crandall's single, and scored on Bruton's single over second base. Sherry replaced McDevitt on the mound, but a bobble on Carleton Wiley's hot grounder loaded the bases. Bobby Avila slammed a grounder up the hole to Maury Wills, who forced Wiley at second while Crandall scored to put the Braves in front, 2-1.

Los Angeles, however, squared the account in the third when Wally Moon was safe on a fielder's choice, advanced to second on Larker's single and scored to tie it at 2-all on Gil Hodges hit to left field.

That set the stage for Sherry, and Roseboro's game-winning blast.

Sooner Players Were Drugged

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—The University of Oklahoma football team physician said Monday night he believed 20 Sooner players were poisoned "by some kind of chemical or drug" before their 45-13 loss to Northwestern University Saturday.

Dr. D. G. (Mike) Willard said he hopes to have a complete report within a day or so on investigations made by Chicago and Evanston, Ill., authorities into the sudden sickness of the players Thursday night, about 42 hours before the game.

There is no question in my mind, and this is my personal opinion, but that these boys were poisoned by some kind of chemical or drug," Willard said.

Several of the Oklahoma players became violently ill after dining at a large Chicago night club. Team officials suspected they had suffered food poisoning as a result of a fruit salad they ate, but Chicago health officials ruled this out Friday morning after a quick investigation.

Quarterback Club Sets Ladies' Night

The Quarterback Club will hold its fourth meeting of the year tonight at 7:30 p.m., in Pampa Junior High School cafeteria. Club President Charlie Robinson has urged all football fans to come to the meeting and help support the Harvesters.

Tonight has been set aside as Ladies' Night. All members and prospective members are invited to bring their wives. A membership goal of 350 to 400 has been set this year, compared to 240 last year. Dues are $2.50 per season, and all dues money goes toward the annual football banquet.

Harvesters Prepare For Tascosa Rebs

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

Pampa's Harvesters, with their biggest win in several years behind them, began preparing Monday for their district opener Saturday night against Tascosa, the sixth ranked class 4A team in the state.

Babe Curfman had his players concentrate mostly on running and running defense — a couple of things they had no trouble with last week in their 41-6 rout of El Paso Bowie. The Harvesters made 376 yards on the ground and held Bowie to 33.

However, as Curfman pointed out Monday, Tascosa is not Bowie. The Rebels have a powerful ground attack which the Harvesters must cope with, if they are to make a good showing on the road against the district favorite.

One of Pampa's big problems this week will be replacing regular starting end Kent Mitchell, who was stricken with appendicitis before the Bowie game. Mitchell's appendix was removed Friday, and he is expected to return to Pampa with his parents sometime this week.

Jimmy Storms, a junior, played in Mitchell's place last week. He did a good job on offense, catching one pass for 12 yards. He is considered one of the Harvesters' better pass receivers, and may strengthen Pampa's aerial attack, but he does not match Mitchell in defensive ability.

The Harvesters' other starting end, Charles Warren was one of the defensive standouts of last week's game, along with Benny Stout and Duke Garren.

Many other Harvesters also played an outstanding defensive game. Included among them were Butch Dunham, Terry Rexroad, Steve Dobbin, Roy Stephens, Jimmy Broyles, Harold Stokes, Bobby Stephens, Mert Cooper, Charles Giese, and Lynn Schoellkopf.

Halfbacks Sherrill Miller, Mert Cooper, and Duane Urbanecyk, and quarterbacks Bobby Stephens and Ronnie Smith, sparked the Harvesters' offense last week.

Miller, who hadn't carried the ball before Friday, jumped to third place in Pampa's individual rushing with 114 yards, and to second place in scoring with 12 points.

Cooper, with 84 yards, boosted his team-leading total in rushing to 157. Urbanecyk made only 47 yards, but he caught two very important passes — one for a touchdown and one which set up a touchdown.

Smith did a fine job of calling signals, as he guided the Harvesters to a touchdown almost every time he was in at the quarterback slot. Stephens did Pampa's best clutch passing of the year, completing both of his tosses to Urbanecyk — the two passes which scored one touchdown and set up another.

LSU Tigers Keep Number One Spot

NEW YORK (UPI)—Louisiana State's defending national college football champions retained the No. 1 spot in the United Press International ratings today with Northwestern and Iowa, a pair of Big Ten powers, second and third. The first big week end of the season produced a shakedown of the leading teams in the ratings of the 35 leading coaches who comprise the UPI board. Beside Northwestern and Iowa, two teams which made big advances in the second weekly rankings were Southern California and Notre Dame.

LSU, which has yielded only three points to its opponents in winning its first two games, was the No. 1 choice of 23 coaches on the 35-member UPI rating board. The Tigers' total of 330 points also was 57 more than Northwestern's.

Army was ranked fourth behind Iowa and Mississippi, followed in order by Southern California, Clemson, Texas and Wisconsin, with Notre Dame and Ohio State tied for 10th place.

Northwestern, which dropped an 18-13 loss to Iowa, was the top choice of six coaches; Iowa, 42-12 conqueror of California, attracted two first-place ballots. Southern Cal and Texas each received one.

The ratings are bound to be shaken up more following next weekend's games. Northwestern and Iowa clash in a meeting of football champions retained the No. 2 and 3 teams. LSU plays Baylor, Army meets Illinois, while Southern California and Ohio State clash Friday night in another of this week's leading games. Clemson takes on 12th-ranked Georgia Tech.

Henry Rose Wins Medalist Honors In Club Tourney

Henry Rose won medalist honors in the first round of the Pampa Country Club tournament. Max Hickey was runnerup. Entry deadline for the tournament is Thursday, and more entries are needed. Pairings will be announced sometime Thursday. There are 13 entries so far in the junior division of the tournament, for boys 10 to 18. They will begin play Saturday morning.

Wrestlers Play Second Fiddle

Local Lawmen had almost as much fun as the wrestlers at a night at the Top O' Texas Sportsmen's Club as did the grapplers Monday night as a jammed house must have thought it was "Audience Participation" night.

Time after time Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan and his men led to restrain anxious spectators who were jumping about like every seat in the house was covered with fire-ants.

A Bad Man team of Taro Myaki and Ripper Leone copped a special tag-team semi-final event from Hamilton, when the latter's partner turned on him and joined forces with the evil winners.

Hamilton opened by whipping Myaki with a body press after wringing him with a liberal pinch salt in the eyes. In that the Jap did not explain himself in English to the referee, the dirty play went unnoticed.

Tandon made a wild kick at Myaki in the second round, but missed and hit his partner, (Bob Orton) and the Jap leaped forward to pin him. Orton then turned on his mate, and then there were three big Bad Men, who worked over Hamilton before main-eventer Jerry Funk sprang into the ring only to have Orton lay him out.

Fear Or Freedom

Fear is a most interesting and at times a most useful emotion. Among primitive peoples fear plays a very large role. The ignorant savage, sunk into the squalor which is the product of his fear, is a denizen of dark places. Superstition saddles him, and saps his courage and his energy. He lives to propitiate the gods of which there are an enormous number. And these gods are frequently demons of dreadful visage who scare the sanity out of these early men and reduce them to gibbering ineffectiveness.

Man rises out of savagery on the basis of his education. Knowledge and wisdom are the only antidotes to fearful unreason. And it can be claimed that fear is a useful feeling, causing us to anticipate problems and to solve them in advance if we are able. The usefulness of fear in a modern world has been greatly overrated.

In many respects, modern man is just as fearful as his hairy ancestors. If he does not fear multiple gods, he fears multiple bureaucrats. If he does not imagine a hierarchy of superhuman beings inhabiting some shadowy Olympus, he does believe in the concept of superhuman abilities which somehow he imagines enshrine the brows of those mouthed scoundrels of power who inhabit a Washington Olympus not nearly so shadowy.

Today the average man does not grasp the opportunities that lie before him. Rather, he bends and scrapes before the thrones of power and tries to secure political permission before he dares to raise his eyes to the glories he might otherwise achieve.

There may have been an excuse for primitive man. Wallowing in the ignorance of centuries, he could not imagine the true nature of his will, nor the true nature of his energies. He lived at each moment under the awful weight of Authority. If he lived at all, it was only because the gods were kind and forgave him for his weakness. These avenues of fear to our subconscious minds are very wide. But our progress is related to those rare individuals who can tell.

Less Freedom

Most people are probably going to feel quite a number of things the Congress of the United States has done to them during 1959. Some of them are going to be hurt rather severely by the enactment of laws which have set this Congress indelibly into history's record.

So let's have a brief rundown on some of the more important things Congress has done while you were going on about your business, and hoping against hope that things would get better rather than worse.

To start off, Congress appropriated a whopping $73 billion. This doesn't mean that $73 billion is all that it plans to spend. Rather, it means that this sum is to be taken away from you by force and violence.

Additionally, other sums will be wheeled out of you thru borrowing or by simply turning on the printing presses. Congressional spending and governmental excesses are to continue unabated.

Some new curbs were voted against labor unions. Many people will feel that this is an important new step. Actually, it will not work out that way. Union bosses haven't been curbed, they have only been provided with new obstacles around which or thru which they will quite readily pass. The new laws will cost much money and will have the unhappy faculty of causing people to imagine that union racketeering has been curbed. It has not been curbed.

Hawaii has been voted in as our 50th state. Federal "aid" to Hawaii will now begin crossing the Pacific at an additional cost to you. People in Hawaii will feel the strong arm of federal regulation a lot more than they have in the past.

Gasoline taxes have been raised one cent a gallon across the nation. This will cut into everyone's income in direct ratio as they use their vehicles. The sum will not be enough to get the federal highway building program off its present stall, but it will be enough to hurt all drivers of cars.

The military draft act has been extended to July 1, 1963. This will prevent thousands of young men

Nymeyer Quotes
Christian Leaders
Promoting Socialism

In the last issue I was quoting from Frederick Nymeyer's essay on "The Hebrew-Christian Law of Love" showing how E. Stanley Jones, in his various books, had repeatedly advocated changing the realistic meaning of "Love thy neighbor as thyself" to mean, from each according to his ability, to each according to his need. Then Nymeyer quotes the well-known Japanese, Toyohiko Kagawa, as to his ideas, which were very similar to those quoted of E. Stanley Jones in the last issue. Then Nymeyer quotes a resolution of February, 1951, of the World Council of Churches which was sent out to all member churches, which reads:

"The peoples have seen the vision of social justice. It is for us to help transform it into reality. All people in privileged countries — particularly Christians — must strive to enter sympathetically into the social DEMANDS of the needy. FROM EACH ACCORDING TO HIS ABILITY AND TO EACH ACCORDING TO HIS NEEDS, HAS ITS ROOTS IN THE TEACHING OF JESUS CHRIST." (Emphasis supplied.)

"We have quoted the ideas of two famous missionary leaders and a letter of the World Council of Churches. They associate the welfare of men, and the very essence of the Christian gospel, with certain ideas on brotherly love and on the social order, which tie together the acceptance of the Christian gospel (so-called) with the social structure of communism."

"We do not, of course, declare that either E. Stanley Jones or Kagawa approves the notorious methods of communism — violence, coercion, oppression, murder, assassination. We say merely that they approve the basic principle of communism, from each according to his ability to each according to his need. It is that objective, that principle which is the real issue, between communism and Christianity. The atheism of communism is not its really relevant characteristic. It is perfectly clear from the fact that the men who have just been quoted are not atheists."

How Do Christian Leaders Accomplish Identification Of The Two Laws Of Love?

"How do both orthodox and liberal Christians accomplish an identification of the Christian Law of Love with the Communist Law of Love, from each according to his ability to each according to his need?"

"That question fascinates us. How arrive at the erroneous conclusion that Christianity teaches, regarding the relations of men to men, the same thing that Marx, Lenin, Hitler, Stalin, Mao, and all of them basically socialist, taught, namely, that the right relations between men require a socialist order described by the socialist — communist law of love, from each according to his ability to each according to his need?"

"The answer is very simple. A limited requirement to love the neighbor was changed to an unlimited requirement to love the neighbor. And this was accomplished by sound requirement to love the neighbor was changed to an unlimited and unreasonable and psychologically unsound requirement to love the neighbor. A sincere relation between men as prescribed by Biblical ethics became a hyper-pious, sanctimonious, sickening relation. Socialism — communism had literally outdone Christianity in its demands for love between men. Socialism-communism were like politicians who had out — promised the politicians in the opposite party. There appeared to be nothing for Christians to do other than to alter their definition of brotherly love so that it would promise as much as the socialist's communist law of love. Political demagogues compete with each other in making ever greater and greater promises. The clergy and the socialists — communists have engaged in a similar competition — an extension of the law of love between men to infinity. This is wholly contrary to Scripture. Scripture speaks of a potential infinite love between man and creature. But nowhere (as has been shown) does it speak of an infinite love between man and man.

"Modern leaders of the Christian church have led the church into a trap. Competition from the socialists-communists has brought the church from sincerity to insincerity, from realism to sanctimony, from wholesome ethics to vicious ethics, from wisdom to folly.

The Principle of Extension As Known To Logicians

"The ridiculous thing about the action of the teachers of so-called Christian ethics is that they were not run into a trap but that they ran into it themselves of their own accord.

PAUL SCOTT

EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott are on vacation. During their absence a prominent Chicago businessman, in blunt and forthright manner, today voices some unusual views on the widely discussed question of business's actively participating in politics.

BUSINESS INVOLVEMENT IN POLITICS DANGEROUS FOR DEMOCRACY — AND BUSINESS

CHICAGO — Instead of getting into politics, business, for its own good, ought to stay out of politics. I am profoundly convinced that the present campaign to inject business as business — into politics is ill-conceived, extremely dangerous, a violation of our sacred democratic system, and — even worse — perhaps illegal.

The corporation is not a political entity; it is a legal entity. It was never intended to be a political entity. It is wholly different from the human entity which is the foundation stone of our Declaration of Independence and our Constitution.

I should like to raise several questions which should be answered by those who would involve business institutions in politics.

Under the law, it is well established that a corporation cannot do indirectly what it is forbidden to do directly. How then, being forbidden to contribute money to political campaigns, can a corporation legally permit its employees, on company time, and paid by company funds, to act as poll watchers, or as gettys, precinct captains and such?

If business gets into politics as business, how can it prevent the development of those very factions which Madison described in the great 10th Federalist Paper — "a landed interest, a manufacturing interest, a moneyed interest, with many lesser interests" — and who would settle the policy questions when all of these interests begin their inevitable struggles for supremacy in government?

If business organization enters the political arena, who chooses the party which will be favored with its support? The directors, the shareholders, the chairman of the board? Where does it find the authority to use shareholders' money for such purposes?

Will not the employees who belong to different organizations, unions, or political parties develop a profound antagonism for the corporation and creature? But nowhere (as has been shown) does it speak of an infinite love between man and man.

"Modern leaders of the Christian church have led the church into a trap. Competition from the socialists-communists has brought the church from sincerity to insincerity, from realism to sanctimony, from wholesome ethics to vicious ethics, from wisdom to folly.

poration's political activities? Seeing the officers use company funds and time for political action, will they not sharpen their own demands and opposition?

What will be the effect upon the customers of the corporation, who again are of many political persuasions and interests — who are property owners and renters, union members and white-collar workers, protagonists or antagonists of a myriad of contesting causes and ideas?

The American people will, with comparative equanimity, accept business in our corporations. But you try to tell them what is good for General Motors is good for the country, and you have a real row on your hands!

I agree completely with the statement of industrialist Thomas J. Watson, who said:

"All great questions of politics and economics come down in the last analysis to the decisions and actions of individual men and women. They are questions of human relations, and we ought always to think about them in terms of men and women — the individual human beings who are involved in them."

A corporation is a consensus of a great many personalities, divided into categories of importance, directed from the top by persons who have prejudices as violent as you will meet anywhere. They are the ones who have set out to provide, to stimulate, and to get it if you don't like it. Barbers and hair washers and elevator men in a hotel don't have to give you the blood and bones of their livelihoods. Such gifts mean more than silver and crystals and gewgaws.

Such gifts mean more than silver and crystals and gewgaws. When it came with a cool, simple lunch, a split of champagne, the captain joined me in the lunch, in suite chairs, and he said his assistant could handle the dining room. It was late anyway, and this was Chandon of a good year and we touched glasses. "When it was over he became the European."

"Well, then," he said, "Take your shower. I'll have your things ready for you. I like the shorter sleeves on the jacket. Some linen should show below the cuff. I'll help you dress."

At 3:45 we both went downstairs to the garage and he got in behind the wheel.

"Don't disturb yourself," he said. "I'll drive, park and join the other people. I'll send the keys back to you after it is over so you can drive away in peace."

At 3:58 we got there. I stood in the right place with the man I selected alongside but a little behind and at 4 o'clock I was married to the most beautiful woman I ever met in my life and 16 years later she's still is.

"pros" lost ground in most states, and even a great professional politician like Governor Lawrence of Pennsylvania could not carry his ticket with him. We have rid ourselves of the Hague Machine in New Jersey, the Crump Machine in Tennessee, the Pendergast Machine in Missouri, and a host of lesser political machines in other areas.

In my humble opinion, the worst course business can take is to conduct political action programs which, inevitably, will lead to "company machines" not unlike those political machines which have passed into limbo. Ultimately, business will pay a heavy price for such corporate political activity.

I expressed such opinions at a meeting of the American Management Association in New York. Since then I have been overwhelmed with letters, 99 percent of which agreed with me.

If my views seem non-conformist, let me relate what Senator Thurston H. Morton, Republican National Chairman, said recently in a panel discussion in which I took part. These are his words:

"It would be disastrous for the nation and for the party itself if any single economic group were to win unchallenged control of the Republican Party. It would be equally disastrous if such a situation developed within the Democratic Party."

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — It was 16 years ago. Sixteen years today, exactly. It was one of those golden days to which Los Angeles aspires all of the time and only achieves perhaps five, maybe six, times in a whole year. The sun was warm, but not oppressive. The wind from the vast Pacific on by Malibu and Santa Monica was cool and seemed to have brought all this long way a hint of the Spice Islands, a kind of heady thing of ground pepper and frangipani and cinnamon, all put together and borne upon the wind as a gift.

It was 10 in the morning when I wakened in a Beverly Hills hotel. It was a full hour before breakfast came. There was no hurry. It was pleasant to walk about the cool room through which one bar of sunlight lanced like a polished spear. I circled the telephone five times that I was aware of. It could have been more. Two of those times I went so far as to lift the receiver from the black, dustless cradle and then I put it back. It was best not to call, not to break in on whatever was going on in that house on the hill in the canyon in the San Fernando Valley's broken side. There, too, the sun must be slanting as warmly and the wind trifling as easily. The other things I wanted to say had been said often before and would be often again.

Later, around noon, I went downstairs to the barber and he gave me a precise haircut. He was in a good mood and when it was over and I had tidied under a dozen themes he said: "It's on the house. My pleasure. Also, take them in good spirit, my good wishes." I shook his hand, with sincerity and a deep affection, touched by his gift. I went down into the garage under the hotel, a shadowed cavern filled with gleaming Cadillac's, all more than two years old. There was a war on and no even Cadillac could provide Beverly Hills with new cars, with new toys. Charlie stood by the 1941 Mercury convertible. It shone like a mirror, its white sidewalls (also two years old) were immaculate, freed inside or out. It was like new.

The red leather, not plastic, upholstery looked waxed, the windshield and all the windows were spotless and limitless, too.

"May you always drive it this way," he said. I reached for my wallet.

"Not today," he said. "My pleasure. All the boys worked on it and they wish you the best, all the best. See you sometime."

I walked over to the elevator. I didn't want him to see my eyes. These were all older men, not material for wars and combats, and in their own great way were making my day for me. I avoided the elevator man's face, looking toward a side wall of the cage. He was 51 years old and he knew. He didn't try to make me turn to him. He stopped at my floor and as the door swung away, he said: "My best all the time. All the years ahead."

All right, I cried in my room. I did and that's that and sue me for it if you don't like it. Barbers and hair washers and elevator men in a hotel don't have to give you the blood and bones of their livelihoods. Such gifts mean more than silver and crystals and gewgaws. Europe Sees Ike As Leader of Free Powers

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

GOTEBORG, Sweden — There is a portent no bigger than a man's hand, in the happy acceptance by Europeans of President Eisenhower as "leader" of the "free" powers. This development may seem to be emotional and beneath our serious notice, but it is dangerous to the tattered remnants of our constitution. Such adulation is not the expression of mere joyous feeling. These nations are hard-headed and selfish and they don't want us to lead because we are pretty.

During Ike's European swing, European papers published editorials indicating an unnatural desire to surrender national responsibility and duty to the United States. The most emphatic that I discovered was published in the London Daily Telegraph, which commented on Ike's "royal reception" and fell to dreaming about the role of the next and further presidents.

"Like a snail, the President cannot move anywhere without carrying the White House on his back," the Telegraph said, wherein his job differed from that of the Queen and the Prime Minister. "But are these difficulties irredeemable? The role of America in the world has changed so that there is surely a case for breaking this tradition of relative immobility. The President is the leader of a great alliance whose members surely have a right to see in the flesh the man who holds their destinies in his hands."

So, arguing from a windy, sentimental elation about the tumult and the shouting, the Telegraph, in a few lines, came to the conclusion that the President of a Constitutional Union of Constitutional Republics now holds in his hands the "destinies" or a rabble of socialist kingdoms, most of them unwilling to fight Russia, who are banded without responsibility in a "great alliance." And if they have a "right" to see him, then the President has a duty to put the show on the road more and more often. A young socialist in the Danish government yearned for the right to vote in our elections. His immediate preference was Adlai Stevenson.

The Telegraph argued that Stalin's house-bound isolation in the Kremlin the American President should do likewise. This shows ignorance of history. Our Presidents went nomadic in Wilson's time. F. D. Roosevelt became a barnstormer after his first false step across the Rio Grande at Monterrey. Thereafter he was often in Canada, presently in North Africa — and, finally, Gpd help us, at Yalta where lover-boy Elliott told us, in a neglected revelation called as he said it, of a ghastly vodka party that sealed the fate of the Daily Telegraph's "great alliance."

There were interim junkies to Latin America, one of which yielded, tax-free, to the First Lady of the World an aquarium the size of a Swedish match-box appraised at $40,000 to which she still holds title although we pay for burglar insurance on the museum at Hyde Park. The donor was the owner of a big gambling joint who was momentarily secretary of the Brazilian treasury. The presentation occurred over brandy after lunch, the sort of thing that irresistibly ensues when free men yield to the illusion of preternatural personalities and "leadership."

We do not elect presidents to "lead" us. We elect presidents and pay them well to perform the executive duties of a constitutional office. Woodrow Wilson was the first of them to regard himself as God's agent, a thought appropriate to kings, but F. D. R., of course, thought Stalin was God and politely yielded precedence. The Europeans who grease our vanity with praise have closed their minds to the truth about Roosevelt and Russia.

We ought to reflect that, however pure the desires of the Daily Telegraph, we and the world have suffered more than we deserved from the leadership of carpetbag presidents, starting with Versailles and descending through other hellish pits in the years since '45. I can forgive any penitent, but neither Ike nor Truman ever has asked anyone's pardon for a gutless failure at Potsdam. So I sorrow only for the millions who won the victory which they tossed away and for those pitiful Russian prisoners of the Germans who were delivered to the Soviet Union in violation of the rules of war and the dictates of humanity.

World leadership is not the duty of our country. We are not that wise, moral or competent as our own domestic, criminal situation and the union terror show.

And all those presidents who were not decent, ordinary men, except Washington and Lincoln, were willful scoundrels.

MAYORS, OR PANHANDLERS? (N. Y. Daily News)

About 300 mayors are in annual convention assembled at Los Angeles. Up to this writing, the discussion has been mainly about the cheapness of the federal government.

It seems Uncle Sam ought to give the cities a lot more money than he does, considering his heavy spending on foreign aid, farm price supports and space research.

We're no foreign-aid or price-support fans ourselves; but these mayors sound to us like a bunch of panhandlers.

How about more effort on their part to solve their own cities' financial problems, and fewer inflationary, budget-queering raids on the U. S. Treasury?

Bid For A Smile

Ruth rode in my new car. In the seat beside me. I took a bump at fifty-five. And rode on blissfully.

A preacher was trying to bring religion to the working classes. One day, while passing among some laborers during the lunch hour, he put his hand on the shoulder of one of the men.

Preacher — Do you hear that relentless ticking of the clock? Are you aware of what day it is? Inevitably bringing you closer and closer to death?

Workman (taking half a sandwich at a bite) — Sure, payday.

The man was awakened by the ringing of the telephone. He called — Is this one-one-one? Man — No. This is eleven-eleven. Caller — Oh, pardon me. Wrong number. Sorry I disturbed you. Man — That's all right. Had to get up to answer the phone anyway.
