Austin. — Both ultra-liberals and ultra-conservatives have indicated they want a place on the 1966 general election ballot.

Texas liberal spokesmen hint they may run a candidate for governor and perhaps one for the U. S. Senate if Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr is the Democratic senatorial nominee.

Conservative party already has adopted a resolution of intent to nominate state candidates next year.

CANDIDATES ANNOUNCE — Two new candidates have announced for statewide office. They are State Sen. Galloway Calhoun of Tyler for attorney general; and State Rep. Paul B. Haring of Goliad for railroad commissioner.

Haring will take on Commissioner Byron Tunnell of Tyler. Tunnell was appointed by Gov. John Connally last January to fill the unexpired term of Ernest O. Thompson, who resigned because of ill health.

Secretary of State Crawford Martin of Hillsboro and State Sen. Franklin Spears of San Antonio announced earlier for attorney general.

NEW WEAPON FOUND — A significant new weapon has been acquired by the State of Texas against a federal lawsuit to abolish the poll tax as a voting requirement in this state, reports Attorney General Carr.

U. S. Senate Judiciary Committee has made available to Carr testimony of federal Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach purportedly acknowledging the Texas poll tax is not used for racial discrimination.

Carr maintains that, in view of testimony, Congress could not have had Texas in mind when it authorized suits against the levy as a voting requirement under the new voting rights act.

Case is set for trial December 1 in Austin.

REAPPORTIONMENT OVER-RATED? — Equitable reapportionment of the Texas Legislature will bring no major switch toward liberalism, according to University of Texas Institute of Public Affairs study.

Both theory of constant urban-rural conflict among lawmakers and assumption of big city liberalism are mainly myth, study concludes.

Votes on 45 selected roll-calls were carefully analyzed. Reapportionment, the study maintained, will bring few if any major changes in the State Legislature. A number of experts and would-be experts strongly disagree.

STIGATED — Planting and plow-up dates were established in Pecos, Ward and Reeves Counties due to "serious increase" in pink bollworm infestation, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Voluntary program in that area calls for February 15 as plow-up date for destruction of all cotton stalks, gin trash and overwintering places. Texas Department of Agriculture will supervise a mandatory control program the following year.

No cotton will be planted before April 10, 1966, under agreement of cotton farmers.

SALES, BUILDING DOWN — Both building and retail sales in Texas took a drop during September, according to University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

Sales were off 2.2 per cent after adjustment for seasonal variation. September dropoff follows a decline of 15.4 per cent in August.

Building permits were down 33 per cent from August and 17 per cent below September, 1964.

Big drop is in non-residential building, down 53 per cent from August. September index was within three per cent of monthly average for 1965, excluding the August peak.

AMENDMENTS ADOPTED, REJECTED — Texas voters split down the middle in the November 2 elections. They approved half of the 10 amendments presented, disapproved the other five.

Amendment No. 4, proposing four-year terms for state-wide officials, was vetoed by almost 50,000 votes. It received more attention than any of the others.

Also defeated were proposals to grant state representatives four-year terms; extend the veterans land program; authorize salary increases for lieutenant Governor and Speaker of the House and raise lawmakers' expense allowance; and exempt certain charity hospitals (Hermann Hospital, Houston) from ad valorem taxes.

Voters approved amendments to raise state property tax five cents for college building purposes; provide more state leeway in meeting matching fund requirements of federal programs for needy; liberalize teacher retirement system investment authority; establish an $85,000,000 loan fund for college students; and provide for compulsory retirement of judges at 75 and authorize machinery for removing judges who are ill or incompetent.

Alcorn Says Outlawing War On Moon Is Right Idea But It's the Wrong Place

Editor's note: Achin Alcorn, philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sulphur disagrees with some experts this week.

Dear Editor: This newspaper I found buried under a pile of leaves—I wasn't bothering the leaves, the wind did it—was fifteen days old but anytime I'm not more than 15 days behind I figure I'm about on schedule, the same as the State Department, so I took it in the house and settled down.

On an inside page was an article about a conference of international legal experts in Athens, Greece, who have been struggling with the problem of law on the moon and other planets we may land on, and they raised home interesting questions.

For example, if a murder occurs on the moon, do you have to try the murderer up there in the county where the crime was committed? Does a patent for a valuable invention hold good up there? What would keep a company from borrowing the formula for the newest wet-and-improved laundry soap from another company and selling the stuff to the moon colonizers, who are going to need a lot of soap in all that volcanic dust. And, can the first astronaut to land there claim the entire moon for his country, or just the part he can stake out, if the volcanic ash will hold a stab?

But the suggestion that threw me was one by a Hungarian expert who argued the earth ought to get together now and outlaw war on the moon.

This is what comes of being an expert. He's got it exactly backwards. The best place I know to fight a war is on the moon. The place to outlaw is on the earth.

Up there, there're no buildings in the way, no shrubbery to hide behind, no rivers to cross, no mud to contend with, the ground is always dry, you've got 365 fighting days a year, and when you get through the place doesn't look any different than it did before you started.

If man needs anything, it's some place to fight a war off the earth, and it's just like some lawyer to try to keep us from switching it to the moon.

I'm afraid though that not enough people in Red China and Russia will read this issue of this newspaper, and we'd better sit by our guns for a while longer.

Yours faithfully, A. A.

Veterans Day

Veterans Day — November 11 — is a day which takes on a special meaning in these challenging times. Adding to the significance of this Veterans Day is that fact that Americans are once again actively defending the frontiers of freedom against an aggressor seeking to dominate the world.

This day — which was once known as Armistice Day — was originally observed in celebration of the cessation of World War I. But, this year's observance of Veterans Day is in no way a consecration of the memory of any past conflict.

Veterans Day is a time to honor the 20 million men and women who performed the highest obligation of their citizenship — active service in the defense of their country in time of war. This day also calls for a universal expression of dedication to the cause of peace with honor throughout the world.

The citizens of this community can contribute much to a meaningful Veterans Day to help make it, in the eyes of a watchful world, an expression of our national unity at a time when a godless aggressor awaits any sign of internal weakness. This is a day for each of us to express our deepest thanks for the courage, the loyalty, and the sacrifice of our veterans — our soldier citizens.
