Day 4: War of wills goes on Both sides stand firm in Air Force One etiquette tempest

■ Congress sends White House new government-opening bill with catches; Clinton vows veto.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Defying a veto threat, the Republican-controlled Congress passed legislation Thursday night to end the three-day partial shutdown of government, but only if President Clinton agrees to balance the budget in seven years.

Clinton said the GOP proposal would lock in "crippling cuts in Medicare" and other programs and demanded — unsuccessfully — that lawmakers restore government services without preconditions. He also announced plans to recall thousands of furloughed workers to process claims for Social Security and other benefits.

With the two sides seemingly at gridlock, Democrats savaged House Speaker Newt Gingrich for claiming Clinton had snubbed him recently aboard Air Force One, and for saying he had toughened his terms on the budget battle as a result.

Several lawmakers trooped to the House floor with oversized copies of the front page of the New York Daily News. It bore a huge headline of "Cry Baby" and a cartoon depicting Gingrich in a diaper, holding a baby bottle and throwing a tantrum.

An archaeologist enters a 2,000-year-old burial cave near the Israeli town of Maccabim Thursday. A tractor broke open the cave.

Workers unearth 2,000-year-old Maccabean burial cave in Israel

Associated Press

MACCABIM, Israel — A tractor leveling ground for a new highway broke open a 2,000-year-old burial cave believed used by the Maccabees, a tribe of Jewish warriors whose revolt is celebrated in the festival of Hanukkah.

Excited archaeologists showed off their dusty find Thursday — the first physical evidence of the Maccabees, known until now only from ancient Jewish writings.

"This is the first time that archaeologists have evidence that there really was this family," said site director Shimon Riklin, as workers in hard hats cleared away sand that has covered the cave for nearly two millennia.

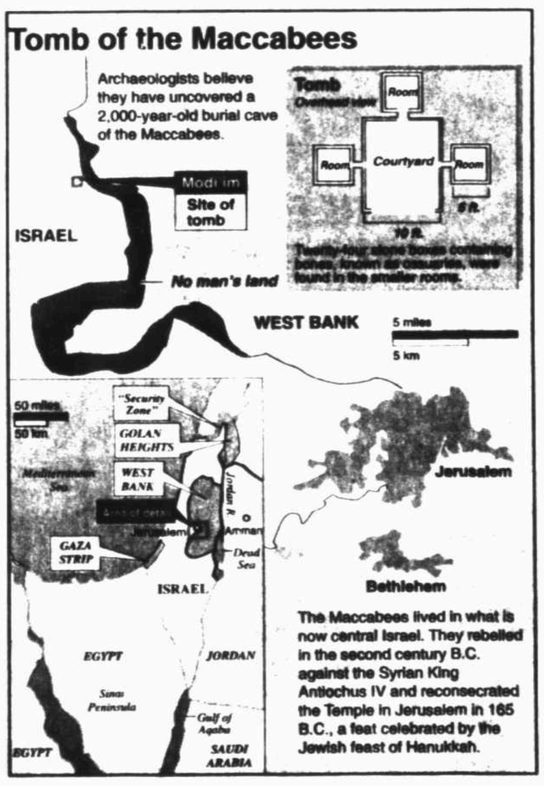

The cave was discovered Monday by workers building a highway 19 miles northwest of Jerusalem. It includes an entrance courtyard and three small burial chambers built of chalk blocks, in which archaeologists found 24 stone boxes, or ossuaries, containing the bones of the dead.

'This is the first time that archaeologists have evidence that there really was this family.'
— site director Shimon Riklin

The ossuaries are inscribed in Hebrew with Jewish names, Riklin said. The inscription on one is missing several letters, but is believed to read "Hasmonean," another name for the clan.

"This is the first time the word Hasmonean has been found on archaeological evidence," Riklin said. Coins and oil lamps also were found in the cave, helping to estab-

Man suspected in cross-country slayings slipped through cracks

By Michael Fleeman
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — When Glen Rogers stood before a Municipal Court judge in September, he could have gotten a jail sentence of 2 1/2 years for beating a girlfriend and violating probation.

Instead, he got two days for the beating, was credited for the time he had already served and was immediately released. Apparently, nobody at the Van Nuys courthouse knew Rogers was on probation for a conviction in a courthouse just a few miles down the freeway.

Glen Rogers could have gotten a jail sentence of 2 1/2 years for beating a girlfriend, violating parole.

Over the next two months, when he could have been in jail, Rogers is suspected of going on a cross-country killing spree, murdering four women in California, Mississippi, Florida and Louisiana.

He is wanted for questioning in a fifth slaying in Ohio in 1993. And police across the nation are scouring their files to see if Rogers could be a suspect in other murders.

Interviews and records show that before the murder rampage, Rogers was arrested dozens of times, convicted at least twice in California alone, and managed to spend little time behind bars.

Arrested Monday in Kentucky after a nationwide hunt, Rogers apparently benefited from overcrowded jails, jammed court dockets and police budget constraints.

"It's incredible," said Joan Burkart, daughter of the 71-year-old Ohio man Rogers is suspected of killing. "I just about believed that this man could get away with everything he did and they wouldn't do anything unless he killed somebody important — or a lot of people."

Don King insurance-fraud trial judge declares mistrial

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing promoter Don King found himself waiting for a decision Thursday.

U.S. District Judge Lawrence McKenna declared a mistrial Thursday afternoon in the insurance fraud case against King when jurors said they were hopelessly deadlocked after four days of deliberation.

King, who rose from the gambling halls of Cleveland to become one of the most powerful men in boxing, smiled broadly when the mistrial was declared. But prosecutors immediately appealed the decision, and won a hearing today before the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

After the appellate court agreed to hear the case, McKenna ordered the jurors back to court today for possible further deliberations. Both sides will argue their case before the appeals court today.

"I'm going to have to ask you to come back," the judge told the jurors.

Bigger, better children's Christmas parade holds very merry potential

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

This year's annual Midland Children's Christmas Parade, set for Dec. 2, is expected to be bigger and better than in years past, according to organizers.

"We anticipate twice as many people in the parade than last year," said Rodney Wilson with the Midland Shrine Club, which has organized the parade for the past 15 years. Last year, about 70 groups participated in the procession.

The parade will begin at 4 p.m. at Dennis the Menace Park, head north on Garfield Street, then east on Wall Street to Centennial Plaza downtown. Participants will begin organizing at the park at 2:30 p.m.

"It's going to be a good parade," Wilson said. "It's good for the community and it's for the children."

An exact number of participants this year wasn't available. "We're going to have a lot of them. They're still calling in," Wilson said.

One group that is expected will be the Indian Guides made up of children and adults. "They say they're going to have between 500 and 600 people in it ... but the more the merrier," Wilson said.

Other participants include miniature horse and riding clubs, antique

French nuclear testing corks sales of Beaujolais nouveau

PARIS (NYT) — The annual ballyhoo over Beaujolais nouveau this year was upstaged in many places by boycotts to protest French nuclear tests in the Pacific, dealers said on Thursday.

In an annual marketing tactic that brings in about $100 million to producers of the fruity red wine, the first bottles from this year's Beaujolais harvest went on sale around the world at 12:01 a.m. Paris time.

The Beaujolais nouveau madness has already peaked in many countries, but when France resumed nuclear tests in French Polynesia, the 25 million to 30 million bottles of Beaujolais nouveau that usually go to foreign markets became a target.

The Consumers Union of Japan, where 2.5 million bottles were sold at the height of Beaujolais nouveau hype in 1990, called on customers to shun it, and in Akita a liquor store invited people to come in and smash as many bottles as they liked. It was unclear who picked up the tab.

French wine professionals say that the market for the wine has all but collapsed in Japan, the Netherlands, and Scandinavia, and disappeared in Australia and New Zealand, which make plenty of wine of their own.

Indeed, Australian shiraz or New Zealand chardonnay sells in France for even less than Beaujolais nouveau, which went on sale briskly here on Thursday at prices ranging from $5 to $6 a bottle. "We sold a thousand bottles this morning," said a salesman at Gourmet Lafayette, an upscale food store in one of the biggest department stores in Paris.

Algerians defy threats, vote in multiparty election

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Defying death threats by Islamic insurgents, Algerians streamed to heavily guarded polling stations Thursday for their first multiparty presidential election since independence in 1962.

Opposition parties boycotted the election.

Gunfire crackled through Algiers shortly after midnight. It was unclear whether security forces were clashing with rebels or candidates' supporters were celebrating. The military-installed president, Liamine Zeroual, was favored to win the election.

State radio and television made no mention of clashes Thursday, and there were no reports of attacks by the insurgents, who went to war when Algeria's military canceled 1992 elections and installed Zeroual, a former general, as president.

The war has killed 40,000 people and violence has spread across the Mediterranean to France, Algeria's former colonial power. Militants angry at French support for the government have claimed responsibility for some of the bombings that have killed seven people since midsummer.

On Thursday, Algerians living in France voted at heavily guarded sites in Paris and other cities.

State television reported late Thursday night that 74.5 percent of Algeria's 16 million eligible voters had gone to the polls by the time they closed at 8 p.m. The Interior Ministry had kept polling stations open until 10 p.m. in Algiers and three other major cities to accommodate the crowds of voters.

Authorities had said they would announce results by late Thursday night, but had not done so by early Friday.

However, state television reported early Friday that based on its exit polls, at least 58 percent had voted for Zeroual, with the other three candidates sharing the rest. It didn't indicate how many polling stations were involved in the estimate.

If no candidate gets at least 50 percent of the vote, a runoff is to be held Dec. 15.

The most significant party missing from the election was the Islamic Salvation Front, a religious party that had been expected to win the 1992 election. The army has banned the party and jailed its leaders, who sought to rule according to strict Islamic law.

Zeroual hoped that a high turnout would validate the election despite the boycott. The parties that refused to participate received 80 percent of the vote in the 1992 balloting.

"I'm voting for democracy," said Safia, a 25-year-old economics graduate voting at Ecole Pasteur, a high school near Algiers University. "I just don't want the fundamentalists to win."

Nervously waving off television cameras brought in by foreign reporters protected by heavily armed soldiers, she said giving her last name would put her in danger.

"We've had enough. We have a wonderful country — resources, climate, young people — but we just have to get out of this crisis," said a bank employee who refused to be identified for the same reason.

Foreign reporters were taken to several of the most conflict-ridden areas of Algiers accompanied by military guards. The government didn't forbid them from traveling on their own, but urged them not to because the insurgents are targeting foreigners. The guards did not prevent the reporters from talking to voters or other people.

In central Algiers, metal blinds were drawn over most shops but traffic was heavy as voters streamed into polling centers from early morning through the evening. Heavily armed soldiers frisked voters.

In Algiers' Casbah, a maze of alleyways and an insurgent stronghold, several polling centers were closed and residents were instructed to go to a nearby neighborhood to cast their votes.

In the Belcourt neighborhood, another pro-insurgent area, the army guarded against car bombs by keeping traffic away from a high school used as polling center.

The election Thursday was the first to offer more than one candidate since the National Liberation Front set up one-party rule after independence.

WEATHER WATCH

Chance of showers to cloud day

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies in the morning with scattered showers becoming partly cloudy in afternoon with a high in the mid-60s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport.

Tonight's forecast is for cloudy skies with a low 35-40. The NWS said Saturday's forecast is for sunny skies with a high near 70.

After an overnight low of 46, Thursday's high was 64, compared to the record of 86 set in 1965. The record low was 21 set in 1952.

STATE

South Texas was cloudy and rainy Thursday with scattered showers. Light rain stretched along the Rio Grande Plains and the lower Texas coast but the rest of the state was mostly sunny.

Temperatures were mild statewide with 3 p.m. readings ranging from 58 degrees at Guadalupe Pass in Far West Texas to 74 degrees at Victoria and San Antonio.

Forecasters said high pressure across North Texas contributed to the fair skies while low pressure in northern Mexico caused the clouds and rain. In addition, a trough of low pressure was located in the northwestern Panhandle.

Forecasters said West Texas will have mostly cloudy skies and a chance of showers through Friday morning for most areas from the Trans-Pecos to the Edwards Plateau. Otherwise, clear to partly cloudy through Saturday. Highs Friday and Saturday generally in the 60s and 70s. Lows Friday night mainly in the 30s and 40s.

NATION

Snow showers and icy conditions moved through the northern Plains and upper Midwest on Thursday. Fog closed San Francisco's airport as most of the West enjoyed unseasonably mild weather.

The airport was closed for about 3 1/2 hours after a layer of dense fog settled over part of the main runway. Beginning at 2:30 p.m. EST, about 100 flights were diverted to surrounding airports.

Elsewhere, the storm that brought record snowfall to parts of the Northeast earlier this week shifted into southeastern Canada. But snow showers and lake-effect squalls were still affecting northeastern Ohio, northwestern Pennsylvania and western and central New York.

Another 6 to 12 inches of snow fell in the 24 hours since Wednesday evening in New York, and up to 8 inches of additional snow was reported in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

At least five people died in dozens of accidents on icy roads in central Indiana, including three construction workers riding in a pickup truck that plowed into a tree. Similar conditions were expected in the area Friday.

"This is only one of the many, many bad days we're going to have," said state police Sgt. Ron Russell.

Light snow and freezing rain also were reported across eastern North Dakota. Minnesota had the coldest temperature in the Lower 48 states as of 2 p.m. EST, with a low of 10 at Roseau and a wind chill of 10 below zero at Grand Marais.

A weak cold front brought gusty winds along the eastern foothills of the Rockies from south-central Montana through central and eastern Wyoming. Winds gusted to 40 mph at Cheyenne, Wyo., Thursday.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

CAVE: Tractor breaks open 2,000-year-old tomb

last is age.

Rikkin said the cave has revealed the remains of three generations of Hasmoneans, perhaps even its most famous members, Judah Maccabee and his brothers.

The Hasmonean revolt is what's now marked during Hanukkah, the Festival of Lights, which begins Dec. 2. This year, the Hasmonean festival, which begins Dec. 2, falls on Saturday.

The successful rebellion, which led to the establishment of an autonomous Jewish state, secured the continuation of Judaism and brought about a period of Jewish political and religious life.

The Maccabees revolt in 168 B.C., when the Temple was defiled by the Seleucids, Greek rulers of Jerusalem, is described in the Talmud, the section of Jewish religious commentary, and in accounts by the first-century Jewish historian Flavius Josephus.

Rikkin said the discovery of the burial cave is also significant because it pinpoints the location of the ancient city of Modi'in, where the Maccabean revolt broke out.

The find was initially kept secret so archaeologists could work without interference. The ossuaries were sent to a lab for examination, and bones found inside them were turned over to Israel's Burial Society, run by the ultra-Orthodox for reburial.

But after the discovery was announced Thursday on Israeli radio stations, half a dozen ultra-Orthodox protesters came to the site and shouted, "You are stealing bones," at workers who were guarded by police.

SLIPS: Suspect managed to spend little time behind bars resort in his hometown of Hamilton, Ohio, on charges ranging from arson to aggravated assault, is the latest in a Kentucky court's lengthy list of extradition hearings, authorities in four states are trying to decide who will charge him first.

Rogers left Ohio for California in 1993. In August 1994, he turned in in a Los Angeles jail on arson charges.

Los Angeles police notified authorities in Hamilton, who wanted to talk to Rogers about the disappearance of Mark Peters, a former roommate whose decomposed body was found tied to a chair in a shack in Kentucky owned by Rogers' family.

Hamilton Detective James Nugent made arrangements to fly to Los Angeles to interview Rogers. But the trip was deemed a waste of money and canceled at the last minute.

Hamilton police chief Simon Fluesinger figured Rogers would talk, after all, he said. Rogers had been arrested 26 times in Ohio — and had never given a statement.

"I've been in the business of a long time, and I've never seen an attorney allow his client to talk, unless you've got an airtight case or they're looking for a deal or bargain," Fluesinger told the Hamilton Journal-News. "We didn't know at that time the arson charges were going to be dismissed."

But they were, and Rogers was loose again.

Peters' family was outraged.

"He didn't get through the cracks," said Peters' son-in-law, John Burdam. "Police just didn't do their jobs."

In June, Rogers was back in a Los Angeles County jail, this time on charges he attacked two men with a knife, cutting one in them in an elevator as he held a blade to his throat.

After pleading to contest to assault with a deadly weapon, Rogers was given six months in jail and three years' probation by Hollywood Municipal Judge Michael Mims.

But he inadvertently alerted Sheriff's Department, which runs the jails, to Rogers, but after just 42 days because the overcrowded jail needed his bed for more dangerous criminals.

In August, Rogers allegedly choked his girlfriend, Maria Lopez, in their apartment in suburban Van Nuys in the San Fernando Valley. The attack was the latest in many the girlfriend alleged, and Rogers was arrested on suspicion of spousal battery.

As part of an agreement, Rogers pleaded to contest before Municipal Court Commissioner Rebecca Omens, who could have revoked his probation from the June conviction.

If she had known about the probation,

Omens declined to comment on the Rogers case specifically. But she said that in her high-volume courtroom — where justice is dispensed in a minute or less — all she has to rely on is the defendant's file.

"The court relies very heavily on the supporting agencies to follow through and know what their respective responsibilities are," she said. "The court is not an investigative agency."

Municipal Court is so jammed, it takes up to 20 minutes just to get into the building through the lone metal detector in the morning. In Omens' courtroom alone, as many as 400 cases are heard a day.

"This volume speaks for itself," said Omens, who handles misdemeanor pleas and traffic violations. "We need more courtrooms. We need more attorneys. We need more bench officers. We need more jails."

KING: Judge orders jurors back to court today

(From 1A)

King, who was acquitted of tax evasion in 1985 and has been the target of three grand jury investigations, is charged with faking an insurance contract to collect $350,000 in bogus training fees for a canceled 1991 fight.

He faces a maximum 45 years in prison and $2.25 million fine if convicted on nine counts of mail fraud.

The flamboyant promoter, whose six-week trial drew heavyweight boxer Mike Tyson, has handled virtually every big-name fighter of the past 20 years.

King promoted Muhammad Ali's historic Rumble in the Jungle" with George Foreman in 1974 and his "Thrilla in Manila" against Joe Frazier in 1975.

Tyson, Sugar Ray Leonard, Larry Holmes and Roberto Duran are among the other boxers promoted by King, a numbers boss who started a second life while behind bars for beating a man to death.

King wrote Ali from jail and established a relationship that launched his career as a promoter of nearly 300 championship fights.

During the trial, King testified that he never instructed employees to alter the contract with Lloyd's of London.

Defense lawyer Peter Fleming blamed accountant Joseph Maffia, the government's star witness. Fleming suggested that Maffia tried to cover up his own illegal actions by blaming King.

Prosecutors contended that King was behind every decision made by his employees. King admitted under cross-examination that he personally signed King Productions checks for as little as a nickel.

King's legal woes date back to his early days in Cleveland. In 1954, he killed a man who was pressuring one of King's numbers houses — but it was ruled self-defense.

Fourteen years later, he was convicted of beating a man to death over an unpaid debt. He served three years and 11 months in prison, and was pardoned after his release by Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

WILLS: By word, deed, president seeks initiative

vices through Dec. 5 cleared the Senate on a near party-line vote of 60-37. Seven Democrats sided with Republicans, but the roll call was still short of the two-thirds majority that would be needed to override a veto.

The House had approved the measure several hours earlier in a midnight-hour roll call that produced surprising Democratic support.

Clinton's resolve in the stalemate brought a swift rebuttal from Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

"He doesn't want a balanced budget. That's the issue."

At three days, the partial shutdown was the longest ever arising from one of the nation's periodic budget wars. And barring an unexpected concession, it seemed likely to stretch into Thanksgiving week.

Republicans are hoping to pass a separate measure containing their balanced budget plan by the weekend, a proposal that squeezes hundreds of billions from Medicare, Medicaid and other social programs, and also finances a tax cut. Clinton has threatened to reject it, as well, in part over Medicare. Republicans and Democrats alike said they doubted serious compromise talks would begin until that veto had been cast.

Republican leaders repeatedly said they were willing to reopen talks with Clinton on ending the impasse that has forced huge sections of the government to remain closed since Tuesday and disrupted normal Treasury borrowing. Gingrich, R-Ga., offered to meet Thursday night.

At the same time, the Republican-controlled Senate ignored Clinton's veto threat. The legislation would reopen the government through Dec. 5 on condition the president agree to work out a seven-year balanced budget based on Congressional Budget Office economic assumptions.

A Democratic attempt to pass the measure stripped of the balanced-budget provision — the legislation Clinton demanded — failed earlier in the day on a party-line vote of 53-46.

The House approved the measure early Thursday, 277-151, with 48 Democrats in favor. Democratic lawmakers said Clinton had lobbied them by telephone shortly before the vote to make sure the margin of support wasn't big enough to override his threatened veto.

It wasn't, but only by a dozen votes. And Clinton was told in one conversation that the time had come to begin thinking about a "gracious exit" from the standoff, said one lawmaker who recounted the exchange on condition of anonymity.

With Republicans insisting on a seven-year time frame for balancing the budget, both sides were dancing around the key issue of economic assumptions — estimates of growth, unemployment and inflation that have a major impact on government spending and revenue estimates.

Clinton made plain he would veto the GOP legislation. Signing it, he said, would be tantamount to accepting GOP plans for "crippling cuts in Medicare" and unacceptable reductions in Medicaid, education and environmental protection.

"Congress should act responsibly and pass straightforward legislation to open the government and enable it to meet its financial obligations," Clinton said. "It should do it right now."

The American people should not be held hostage any more to the Republican budget priorities," he added, repeating a veto threat he first made Wednesday night.

Gingrich expressed irritation at Clinton's customary charge that Republicans were seeking to cut Medicare. "There's just something profoundly wrong when the president of the United States uses information that is not factually correct."

Republicans propose sharply slowing the projected growth of Medicare over the next seven years, and insist that the $270 billion in savings over those years are needed to assure the program's solvency.

By word and deed, Clinton sought the initiative in the seemingly intractable dispute with the Republican congressional majorities.

His plan to reopen Social Security offices on Monday pre-empts legislation that Gingrich had suggested to do the same thing.

Within moments after Clinton spoke in nationally televised remarks, Gingrich and Dole, R-Kan., went before cameras in the Capitol to say they would favor legislation to do the same thing.

The White House said 1,700 Veterans Affairs workers and 54,000 Social Security employees would return to work Monday to help process benefit claims. Otherwise, Clinton said, the backlog of applications would be unmanageable when the shutdown ended.

Earlier in the day, more than 20,000 workers at the Transportation Department and other related agencies returned to their jobs after Clinton signed a routine spending bill affecting them. That bill provides funds for the agencies for the full 1996 fiscal year, which began Oct. 1. Clinton has signed four of the 13 such spending bills necessary to keep the whole government open for the year.

Other disruption persisted, though with more than half a million workers furloughed for the third straight day.

The FBI is not training agents from state and local law enforcement agencies today. The Justice Department is not assisting the attorney general in processing death penalty applications today for violent crime and narcotics cases. Cases against elderly fraud operators are not moving forward today at the Justice Department.

In the sideshow over Gingrich's perceived snub, Clinton sounded a more forgiving note than congressional Democrats. "If it would get the government open, I'd be glad to tell him I'm sorry," said the president. However, he said he didn't believe he had been discourteous during a recent trip to Israel for the funeral of slain Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.

Foreigners were beginning to snicker.

Gerry Adams, head of the political arm of the Irish Republican Army, joked at the White House that he was "going to offer myself as an envoy between Mr. Gingrich and Mr. Clinton" — but decided to stick with Northern Ireland's brutal struggle instead.

car and motorcycle clubs, the fire and police departments, twirlers, dancers and children's bands, he said.

"And we're going to have Santa Claus and his reindeer," Wilson said.

The top three participants will be awarded trophies at Centennial Plaza.

The parade and awards will be followed by the 42nd annual tree lighting, presented by the Midland Jaycees and the city of Midland. The tree will be lit up at the plaza at 6 p.m.

The tree will be decorated with "birdseed ornaments" made by Cub Scout Pack 156, according to Lee Bell Ulvestad with Merry Merry Midland.

On hand, collecting donations, will be the Salvation Army, Toys for Tots and Dress a Live Doll, Ms. Ulvestad said.

Groups interested in participating in the parade can register by mailing the name of their organization or group, how many will participate, and a contact person with phone number to: Rodney Wilson, 4613 Versailles Drive, Midland 79703.

The parade is being sponsored by Merry Merry Midland, the Reporter-Telegram and the Midland Shrine Club.

Fruit Loop wagon

Dylan Bout, 3, takes a ride on the Fruit Loop wagon on his way home from Miejer's in Muskegon, Mich., Wednesday. Mary Workman, Dylan's aunt, says he opted for a ride home because after walking all the way to the store and through the grocery aisles, he was completely tuckered out.

Stressless spending involves having plan for holiday season, sticking to it

By Yamil Barard
N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH — Want to stay solvent and lessen stress this holiday season?

The key, experts say, is to set a schedule and stick to it.

The savviest planners establish their special calendar early. It benchmarks shopping dates, tree purchases and other time-consuming projects.

Scheduling will help you avoid emotional decision-making or committing to more than you can reasonably expect to pay for or accomplish, say financial planners and counselors.

"Financial planners say don't overspend. I say don't overspend your time," said Pamela J. Bolen, a psychotherapist with offices in Grapevine, Bedford and Fort Worth. "Stop and think before you obligate yourself to a party or to fixing a meal. Learn not to overcommit."

To avoid overspending money, establish a budget and stick to it, said Ken Scott, spokesman for Consumer Credit Counseling, a nonprofit agency in Fort Worth that offers free financial assistance to clients nationwide. About 39 percent of the agency's clients have financial problems because of holiday overspending, he said.

Consumer Credit Counseling's Kaye Worden says: "Don't even go shopping until you've done these things:"

n Decide how much you can afford to spend. If you are planning to borrow money, this is a good time to shop for the lowest interest rate and best terms. Don't borrow more than you can pay back in three months.

Include all holiday expenses on your budget, remembering to include not only gifts but also decorating, travel and entertainment costs.

n Save money now for holiday expenses, setting aside as much cash as possible so you will not have to rely solely on credit.

n Decide which purchases you will buy on credit. Also, use credit cards with the lowest interest rates and have a plan to repay the debt within three months after the holidays.

After setting a budget, review it weekly to make sure it stays reasonable. Can you afford the amount agreed upon earlier or do you have unexpected expenses that need readjustment?

Explore cost-saving alternatives such as making gifts, giving homemade baked goods or donating a small amount to charity in someone's name. Suggest new family traditions, such as drawing names or setting spending limits, that help with expenses.

Finalize travel plans and budget accordingly. Book your airline and hotel reservations in advance to take advantage of "early bird" specials. Remember, though, that a fee may be charged for cancellations or changes in reservations.

And don't wait until the busiest shopping day of the year to purchase holiday gifts, Scott said. The day after Thanksgiving is when shoppers "lose it," he said.

"Right there the whole year goes down the tube," Scott said. "That's a dangerous day."

Begin taking advantage of sales and layaway plans, he urged. That way, shoppers can avoid last-minute "emotional" buying.

To avoid emotional stress at the holidays — marked by a faster-paced social calendar, gatherings with distant relatives and end-of-the-year soul searching — Bolen recommends inking in some personal time on the holiday planning schedule.

"Do something fun for yourself, something that you enjoy," she said. "Don't feel guilty about being selfish. If you're selfish just a little bit, you'll find that you're a lot more giving to other people."

In small Texas towns, 6-man football enjoys comeback

By Sam Verhovek
N.Y. Times News Service

ACKERLY — This cotton-farming town on the Texas prairie has lost three of its four cafes, all three gas stations, both pharmacies, both barber shops, the three-story Coleman Hotel and its picture show. It has lost more than two-thirds of its peak population and about half its school football team.

But only half.

All of which goes to explain why nearly the entire town of 243 people turned out in a rattling West Texas wind on Friday night to watch the undefeated hometown Mustangs take on the undefeated Klondike Cougars for the Division 5-A championship of the state Six-Man Football League.

Six-man football, a throwback to the Depression years, is enjoying a curious resurgence here on the Great Plains, in a broad arc of the country curving from eastern Colorado down into the remote reaches of far West Texas. Paradoxically, the sport is growing in popularity precisely because in the past few decades these towns have been losing people.

"We used to play 11-man ball here," explained 92-year-old Cartis White, a retired cotton farmer, matter-of-factly. "But we're running out of boys."

The six-a-side game is played on a smaller field than regular football, and the scoring is slightly different. Every player is eligible to receive a pass, and the pace and high scores seem more akin to basketball. The fans here in Ackerly — the younger ones huddled in blankets against the wind, the older ones seated in the heated cabs of pickup trucks that ring the 80-yard field — insist they would not go back to 11-man football even if they could.

"I love this game," says Zelda Bilbo, the principal of the elementary school. "I watch the Dallas Cowboys on TV, and I think, 'What's going on there? There are just too many guys out on the field.'"

In Texas, where Friday-night football is a revered institution, 84 public high schools, from Cotton Center to Lazbuddie and Sierra Blanca to Buena Vista, are now preserving the ritual by playing six-a-side football. Under state regulations for six-man ball, schools must have 79 or fewer students enrolled in grades 9 through 12. (Ackerly has 59.)

In the past 15 years, 27 schools have shifted to six-man ball, and at least six more Texas schools are expected to switch next fall. Several dozen more schools in Colorado, Nebraska, Kansas and New Mexico have six-man teams.

Although the towns are tiny, the interest tends to be intense, and some games, like the championship one here, drew several hundred more people from surrounding counties.

In September, at a sort of Super Bowl exhibition of six-man football, 7,832 people turned out to watch the Mullin, Texas, Bulldogs play the Warriors of Weldona, Colo., two towns whose combined population is 343. The Colorado boys won, 58 to 44.

But big cities and the suburbs barely follow the sport, and many feats of athletic achievement on the small gridiron garner virtually no notice outside the farm and ranch communities where they happen.

"There are some amazing stories," said Granger Huntress, the editor and publisher of the Huntress Report, the weekly bible of six-player football in Texas.

"Petey Salaiz just eclipsed 10,000 yards rushing for his high school career this weekend," he said, referring to a superstar on the Mullin Bulldogs. "It's incredible, the numbers he's running up. But nobody's talking about it, because it's six-man football."

A similar lament can be heard from the players themselves, who have no less natural talent or brawn than many schoolboys in other Texas towns where 11-man games are attended by college recruiters.

"There's not much chance of getting recognized when you play six-man, I guess," said Josh Richter of Ackerly, a 16-year-old tailback with a blond crew cut and bulging muscles who dreams of playing college ball for Texas Tech. "Not many people have ever heard of it."

On the day of the big game here, wisps of cotton from the harvest blow through the town like snow and gather on the vacant lots and along the empty buildings of Ackerly's Main Street.

"That there used to be the hardware store, and the building next door was a drug store with a soda fountain in it," said Laferne Webb, the assistant postmaster, pointing in the direction of some boarded-up buildings. "The variety store was there," she said, pointing at the tall grass in an empty lot.

"There used to be a lot of stuff here, but now there's hardly nothing at all," she said of the town about 70 miles south of Lubbock, Texas.

In a wide region here known as Texas' Rolling Plains, all 28 counties lost population between 1980 and 1994 except Scurry County, which had a net gain of 10 people, according to U.S. Census figures.

At the one surviving cotton gin in a town that used to have five, the general consensus among farmers is that Ackerly has lost people because of "progress" of a sort — farms are far more mechanized and efficient.

"It used to be that 100 acres was a good-sized family farm," explained M.E. Dyer, an Ackerly resident for 72 of his 75 years. "Now my son, he's farming 1,800 acres of cotton, and that's about an average-sized farm these days."

Joe Zant, 62, paused from a battle between his swatter and a fly to add with a small laugh, "But he doesn't make any more money than if he had 80 acres."

But others said that people have left the dusty plains simply because they do not need to live here anymore. "Supermarkets and paved roads, that's what did us in," said White.

As the afternoon wears on, an enormous dust storm blows in from the north, turning the big sky from blue to brown.

But none of the town's economic problems or the quickly dropping temperatures seem to matter much once it is time for the pep rally at the Sands Independent District School.

The gymnasium is packed with people of all ages, and the crowd goes wild when Eric Herm, a 1992 graduate of the school whom defensive coordinator Jerry Gooch calls "the epitome of football," rises to speak.

Herm played fullback and middle linebacker and led the Mustangs to the state semifinals in 1991 before making the Abilene Christian University team as a walk-on.

"I know your heart is going 100 miles per hour right now," Herm told the Mustang players. "Every weight you lifted, every sprint you ran, every drop of sweat that came out of your head is not going to mean anything if you get beat tonight."

The Mustangs had enjoyed a ferociously successful season, winning all nine games, eight under a special "mercy rule" in six-man ball that ends the contest early if a team builds up a 45-point lead at any point after halftime. Its last five victories had been 52-6, 49-0, 49-0, 46-0 and 50-0.

Asked in the locker room why the team had done so well, the players turned solemn.

"Dedication," offered Dallas Hopper, 17, a running back and linebacker.

"Attitude," said Jessie Cuellar, the team's kicker and both an offensive and defensive end.

Tribunal charges Serb leaders with genocide

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — An international tribunal today indicted the Bosnian Serbs' top two leaders for more war crimes, charging them with genocide in the Muslim enclave of Srebrenica.

Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic and army commander Gen. Ratko Mladic are already charged with war crimes against Bosnia's Muslim and Croat populations, including attacks on the capital Sarajevo.

The new indictments come just days after newspapers reported that Mladic and Karadzic agreed to relinquish power once a U.S.-sponsored peace deal is signed, in exchange for not being handed over to the war crimes tribunal.

Nevertheless, tribunal head Richard Goldstone told a news conference Thursday in Washington: "I am cautiously optimistic they will stand trial sooner or later."

The indictment charges Karadzic and Mladic with crimes against humanity and genocide, describing them as the architects of what is perhaps the worst massacre in Europe since World War II.

Karadzic and Mladic are accused of ordering atrocities committed in July 1995 against the Bosnian Muslim population of the U.N. designated safe area of Srebrenica. The tribunal called the massacre one of the cruelest and most bloody acts of the war in the former Yugoslavia.

The latest indictments against the two appeared certain to further isolate the Bosnian Serb leadership at a time when the leaders of Serbia, Bosnia and Croatia are trying to hammer out a U.S.-brokered peace accord.

The charges will have no immediate effect on peace talks near Dayton, Ohio, which Karadzic and Mladic were barred from attending because of the earlier indictments. Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic is negotiating on behalf of Bosnia's Serbs.

But the new indictments stand as a fresh reminder to Milosevic of the international pressure to dump Karadzic and Mladic as leaders, thereby ensuring they don't have prominent roles in any future Bosnian state.

The United States has said it would not send troops to monitor a peace agreement as long as the two remained in power.

After the fall of Srebrenica to Bosnian Serb forces, an estimated 25,000 Muslim refugees fled to the nearby town of Potocari, headquarters of Dutch peacekeepers.

But the Serbs deported thousands of Muslims to Bosnian government lines after reportedly separating out men and boys.

About 8,000 refugees have been missing ever since, according to the international Red Cross, and Western governments have said evidence, including satellite photos of alleged mass graves, suggests mass executions.

Tribunal documents give a grisly description of the massacre of Muslims after the fall of Srebrenica: "Thousands of men executed and buried in mass graves, hundreds of men buried alive, men and women mutilated and slaughtered, children killed before their mothers' eyes, a grandfather forced to eat the liver of his own grandson."

European Union assembly urges oil ban on Nigeria

STRASBOURG, France (AP) — The European Parliament demanded tougher EU sanctions against Nigeria Thursday, asking for an oil embargo to punish its military rulers for executing nine human rights activists.

But the EU's executive commission said Thursday it will not consider any new sanctions until it sees whether milder measures it already approved have any effect.

On Wednesday, EU diplomats approved a total arms embargo against Nigeria and tight restrictions on granting visas to Nigerian officials. Earlier, it cut off economic aid and withdrew its ambassadors.

The parliament, the EU's largely advisory assembly, welcomed those steps but urged EU nations to go further by embargoing Nigerian oil, freezing its assets in European banks and banning the country from international sports events.

Nigeria's economy is heavily dependent on oil, and oil products account for more than 90 percent of Nigeria's exports to the EU.

In South Africa Thursday, Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu, a Nobel Peace prize winner, urged the world to freeze the bank accounts of Nigerian leaders.

Nigeria has been the focus of international condemnation since the military government executed prominent playwright Ken Saro-Wiwa and eight other activists for the Ogoni ethnic group on Nov. 10.

The nine, convicted on murder charges they denied, had protested that pollution from the oil industry was wrecking their land and water.

The EU, the United States and other nations have been reluctant to boycott Nigerian oil, saying an embargo could hurt Nigeria's impoverished population.

EU spokesman Joao Vale de Almeida said the Commission would study the idea of an oil embargo and might back it later if the Nigerian government shows no sign of reforming.

Besides an oil embargo, Vale de Almeida said the EU could eventually consider a full trade embargo and a freeze of Nigerian assets.

Panel recommends approval of anti-obesity drug

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — A federal advisory panel on Thursday narrowly recommended approval for sale in the United States of the first new anti-obesity drug in more than two decades.

The panel for the Food and Drug Administration voted 6-5 to recommend allowing Interneuron Pharmaceuticals Inc. to market the drug, dexfenfluramine.

The FDA usually acts favorably on the recommendations of its scientific panels, but their was no immediate indication when the agency would act dexfenfluramine.

The drug has been available for sale in 65 countries for the past ten years, but the U.S. panel of experts was concerned about possible adverse side effects of taking the drug over a long period of time.

At the September panel meeting, Interneuron Pharmaceuticals said its dexfenfluramine helped 40 percent of patients in a study lose up to 10 percent of their body weight, twice the amount lost with diet alone.

The drug works by altering the brain chemical serotonin to make people feel full even though they have eaten less.

In France regulators allowed doctors to prescribe the drug for a maximum one year period. According to the FDA panel's recommendation, U.S. doctors could prescribe the drug for years at a time.

The panel's chairman, Dr. Henry Bone of Detroit, Mich., voted against the recommendation. Bone said more long-term studies were needed to determine whether dexfenfluramine causes widespread hypertension, one of the side-effects seen in a small number of patients.

"We are talking about an unrestrained usage," Bone said. "Of concern to me is that we have very little information about the long-term effects of this drug."

But Dr. Nemat Borhani of the University of California at Davis, a panel member who voted in favor of the drug, said, "The only thing I care about is that it helps people lose weight."

While the panel recommended approving the drug, it said post-marketing studies should be conducted to determine any adverse long-term effects. Panel members also said they want labels on prescriptions to include language warning that studies have not determined the long-term effects.

Karen Bergman, a spokeswoman for Interneuron, said studies by the company showed the drug to be safe, although tests on laboratory animals who were fed ultra-high doses showed signs of brain damage.

Parkinson's disease won't affect her work, Reno says

■ Attorney general's doctor says she has 'excellent, long-term pronosis.'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With medication controlling the shaking of her left hand, Attorney General Janet Reno says her newly diagnosed Parkinson's disease will neither force her from office nor cease her long weekend walks along the Potomac River.

"I feel fine now. I continue to take my long walks," the 57-year-old attorney general told her weekly news conference Thursday. "I don't feel like I have any impairment. I feel strong and feel like moving ahead."

She has "an excellent, long-term prognosis," her doctor, Jonathan Pincus, a neurology professor at Georgetown University Medical Center, said at a later news conference. "Her mild tremor was completely eliminated with modest doses," of medication, he said.

Reno disclosed that she was diagnosed three weeks ago with the progressive disease that undermines muscle control. Doctors assured her that, like hundreds of thousands of other Americans with Parkinson's, she could continue working without impairment.

For reporters, who previously had noted a tremor in her hand, Reno thrust out a steady left hand to demonstrate that medication has controlled her only symptom. She takes 1 1/2 Sinemet pills before each of her three daily meals.

Earlier in the morning, Reno had advised the White House. She said chief of staff Leon Panetta "was very supportive." President Clinton telephoned Reno later in the day.

"The president has complete confidence now, as he always did, that the attorney general will continue to pursue her job in the excellent manner she has in the past," said a statement issued by the White House press office.

Reno made clear she had no intention of resigning and said if Clinton won a second term and "if he wanted me back, this would be no reason not to do it."

"If I didn't think I could do the job, I'd be the first to tell President Clinton," Reno said. "Based on everything the doctors told me and what I know, there should be no reason why, if the president wanted me to come back in a second term, I wouldn't do so."

Reno would not be the first public figure to hold high office with Parkinson's.

Former Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., stayed in Congress for 12 years after his Parkinson's disease was diagnosed in 1979. The disease forced him to abandon hopes of seeking the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination. He was hospitalized in January 1991 after falling down a flight of stairs in his suburban Virginia home, and neurological problems resulting from that fall forced him to retire that May after 30 years in Congress.

It is estimated that nearly one million Americans have Parkinson's, but only half have symptoms severe enough to have been diagnosed, said Dr. Stanley Fahn, a neurology professor at New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"Easily hundreds of thousands of them keep working," said Fahn, who is science director of the Parkinson Foundation. "If Reno's the average patient, she should be able to go through two terms without a problem."

The disease, which worsens over time, destroys brain cells that produce a substance called dopamine, which transmits signals in the brain, Fahn said. Over time, it can cause tremors in the hands, shuffling gait, slurred speech and can eventually incapacitate people who have it. But Fahn said existing treatments can control symptoms for years and some experimental therapies show promise of reversing them.

"I first noticed my hand shaking over the summer and I thought it would go away," Reno said. "When it didn't, I went to see the doctor."

Reno said she had read that stress might exacerbate the symptoms. But Pincus said there was no evidence that job stress worsens the symptoms. She had noted to reporters that, "During the Waco hearings, I didn't see it shake at all."

Reno said the disease will not interrupt her personal routine. She has been walking in segments along the Potomac River from Washington's Georgetown section toward Cumberland, Md.

House adopts stricter limits on gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Worried out public disdain for Congress, e House on Thursday imposed a rtual ban on gifts its members ay receive from lobbyists and her favor-seekers.

Voting 422-6, the chamber opted a new rule for itself that rs members and their aides om accepting anything from orts tickets and vacations to uit baskets and free meals. The le takes effect Jan. 1, 1996, the me day as tightened gift stanards adopted by the Senate.

Lawmakers would still be llowed to receive expense-paid avel to make speeches, partic-ate in meetings or engage in fact-nding, and to have spouses or ildren accompany them.

But the rule would end the wide- criticized practice of House embers participating in charity olf, tennis and ski events. Critics all them thinly veiled free vaca-ons.

"The simplest, the cleanest and e clearest standard was to say, o gifts,'" said Speaker Newt Gin-rich, R-Ga., who proposed the hange.

There is an exemption for gifts om personal friends and family embers. Any gift given under the ersonal friendship exemption at is worth more than $250 must e approved by the ethics com-ittee.

The new rule leaves the House with tougher standards than the Senate, which tightened its own rules in July. The Senate rules limit gifts from lobbyists and favor-seekers to those worth no more than $50, with gifts from a single source aggregating no more than $100 a year. Gifts under $10 don't count.

"Under the new gift rule, members of Congress will do what their constituents do — pay their own way," said Ann McBride, president of the ethics watchdog group Common Cause.

Earlier, the House had voted 276-154 to reject a watered-down rule that would have let lawmakers accept gifts worth as much as $250 and allow them to attend tennis, golf and ski outings, as long as they disclosed the gifts. Critics said the measure, offered by Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., would have essentially preserved the current system, which they said invites abuses.

Reform advocates said a drumbeat of media reports about lawmakers vacationing in sunny resorts with lobbyists, or accepting theater and sports tickets or fancy meals, has added to public distrust.

"Restoring the public's faith in this institution has to be an absolute top priority," said Rep. Porter Goss, R-Fla. "If the people ... don't believe in us, they are not going to believe in the decisions we make."

After adopting the new gift rules, the House began debating a separate bill that would revamp, for the first time in five decades, the law governing how lobbyists register and disclose their activities, who their clients are and how much they are being paid.

BIG garage sale deserves support

Do you like garage sales? Do you want to go to a really BIG garage sale?

How about a Texas-Size Garage Sale?

That's right. Everybody knows that anything involving Texas is bigger and better, right? Well, Community and Senior Services (CSS) of Midland is holding its sixth annual Texas-Size Garage Sale today and Saturday with proceeds going toward programs CSS funds to assist needy older citizens.

That's a worthwhile cause, and as Fran Billingsley, CSS' community awareness coordinator and garage sale director, noted recently, "We will convert all of the merchandise that is in this 25,000-square-foot warehouse into cash that we can use for our programs of work at Community and Senior Services."

The programs benefit low-income elderly residents in Midland, one group of citizens who truly need and deserve the assistance other Midlanders can give them.

The sale is being held today and Saturday in the warehouse at Scharbauer Drive and Lamesa Road. If you are a garage sale aficionado — or if you simply have some time to kill either today or Saturday, go to the Texas-Size Garage Sale and look over the thousands of items that are calling out "Bargain! Bargain! Bargain" to you. Then make some purchases. The money will go to support a good cause and you'll have a good time in the process.

You can't lose!

Remembering Rabin: a mighty man of peace

WASHINGTON — Long before he became the world's most prolific peacemaker, Yitzhak Rabin was an expert in the art of war.

Drew Pearson, who founded this column in 1932, caught up with a young Rabin during a visit to Israel in 1966. It was 18 months before the famous Six Day War, in which Israel routed the combined armies of its Arab neighbors and captured the land that Rabin would later give back to the Palestinians in exchange for peace.

Anderson

Talking with Pearson, Rabin bemoaned the new threats to Israel borne by modern weaponry. With a weary eye to the future, he pointed to a map he laid out and noted that modern technology meant that a war plane could reach Tel Aviv in just nine minutes from Cairo. Bombers from nearby Jordan, Rabin noted, could reach Tel Aviv in a mere four minutes.

"We depend for our defense first, on being alert; second, on our ability to buy arms from the West to counterbalance Russian arms in Arab hands; third, on our reserves," Rabin said. "We cannot afford a huge standing army, so we depend on a small, well trained, well armed reserve, ready to be called up within 48 hours."

For a decade leading up to the Six Day War, Israel's neighbors had been systematically building up for a military showdown. With help from the Soviet Union, they had acquired modern weaponry to go with a sizable manpower advantage. With such a buildup, Rabin lamented, Israel was in danger of losing one of its most important advantages — the element of surprise.

Eighteen months later, however, with Rabin and then-Defense Minister Moshe Dayan planning strategy, Israel surprised its Arab neighbors by giving 100,000 reserve troops the weekend off just before the June 5, 1967, attack. As a result, Arab intelligence services reported that Israel was relaxing, and that the threat of war had diminished for the moment.

One week later, Rabin was a national hero in his native country, though Dayan took most of the credit for the successful strategy.

UNDER THE DOME — With little to cheer about in the past year, Democratic Party officials treated the results of last week's elections as the political equivalent of winning the Super Bowl.

In case you missed it, Democrats did slightly better than expected last week. While the Democrats lost their gubernatorial bid in Mississippi, they broke even in the Virginia Legislature and won the governorship and several key state offices in Kentucky.

But in a memo marked "urgent," Democratic National Committee Chairman Don Fowler reacted as if his party had just been brought back from the dead.

"You all should have received post-election talking points this morning," the memo begins, which was written to Democratic campaign officials. "As the talking points indicate, we have a lot to brag about. The American people are clearly repudiating the Gingrich 'revolution' and the extremism it represents."

Some Democratic staffers were less than impressed. One staffer, whose boss is facing a tough re-election fight next fall, said this may be a case of too little, too late. "When (Democratic lawmakers) switched parties, where were the press releases?," he asked. "Where were the talking points last year?"

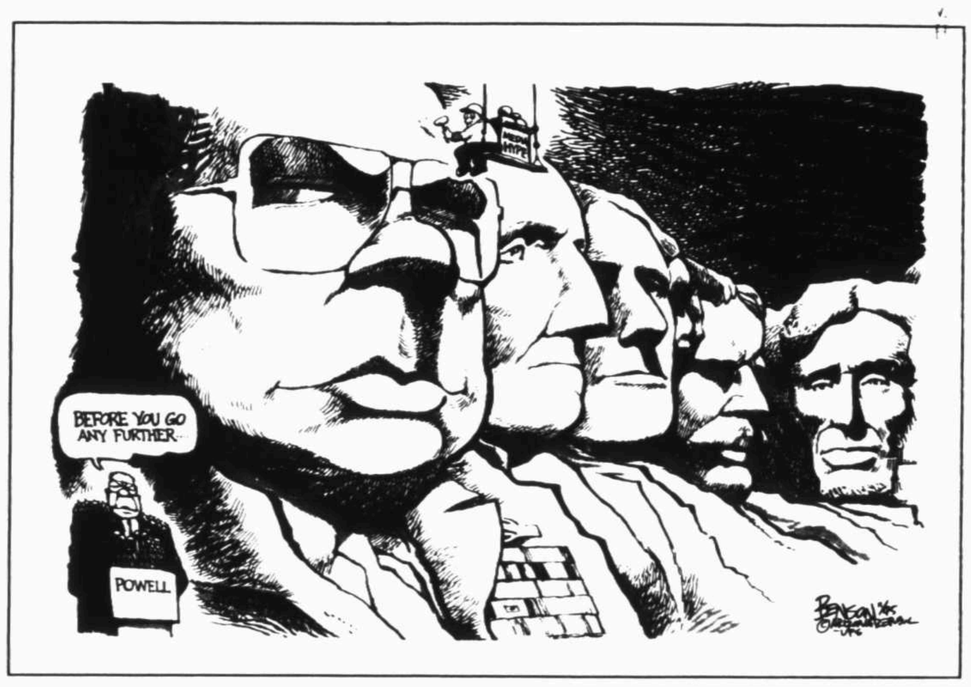

HEART OF GOD — Senate Chaplain Lloyd John Ogilvie is doing his best to make sure that congressional staffers pay attention to the good book: his own.

Many Senate staffers recently received complimentary copies of Ogilvie's new book, "The Heart of God," as an invitation to show up at his weekly Bible study group. "Hope you enjoy this personal gift of my book" a note accompanying the invitation read.

The book is one of more than 40 Ogilvie has written, including a 1985 tome entitled "Making Stress Work for You."

Ogilvie may have the perfect background for preaching to the rich and powerful members of the Senate club. Before taking the Senate job in March, which the taxpayers support to the tune of $117,300 per year, Ogilvie plied his trade in another place known more for egos than righteousness: Hollywood.

WILLIAM MURCHISION

GOP needs to hang tough against Clinton now

Leon Panetta, the president's chief of staff, lets us know just how nice and well-mannered the controversy over welfare reform and budget balancing is going to be. "This is the Republicans against the American people!" snorts Panetta, not even bothering to wink.

Murchison

Well, those scum, those no-goods! If they're against the American people, let's hang 'em all! Come to think of it, hanging's too good for them. Let's take away their parking places.

Amid all this furor and foofaraw, let us bear in mind that the spectacle now under way is as necessary as it is nasty. It's the political process trying to clean up the political process. Perhaps we should modestly avert our eyes, but, apart from the entertainment value of watching a head-on collision, too much is at stake here.

If Panetta's evaluation of the GOP is accurate, the Republicans should have a mental examination. They propose to disembowel the American people by strengthening and enriching the American people. This by bringing the federal budget into balance over the next seven years, by junking a federal welfare system culpable in the destruction of the family and the culture, and by pulling back Medicare from the precipice of bankruptcy.

These are signal services. Yet, Panetta and his boss, the president, object to them. Maybe "object" isn't the right word. "Resent" is possibly better. The Clinton administration hates ceding to the other party the credit for doing things the Clintonites might have attempted a long time ago — but for their fixation on homosexuals and health care.

The Clinton-Panetta remonstrances might sit better if all along the administration had put forth ideas about these projects. But that didn't happen. When, for instance, the Clintonites did offer a budget-balancing plan, it didn't even compute — the Congressional Budget Office found the plan would produce $200 billion deficits in perpetuity. Clinton, campaigning for office, promised to end "welfare as we know it." He never offered a serious plan to that end.

You know, Mr. President — this is what happens in life, as in politics. You fail to do what you say you'll do, and somebody else comes along to fulfill the promise and claim the credit.

The Republicans, to be sure, run a risk here. The risk is that Clinton and Panetta will convince various voters of the Republicans' evil intentions — how they want to starve helpless children, let the old die in misery, that sort of thing. At such an awful prospect, various Republicans may wince or cry aloud. They will go to their leaders, saying: Get us off this hook — let's do a deal with the White House.

All that some of us can say is that they'd better not. Not if they know what's good for them. Talk about the penalties that pour down on those who fail to fulfill solemn undertakings. Those penalties will pour down on the Republicans with double force if they are seen to back away from the present fight. And Bill Clinton will win re-election.

Afterward, when Republicans promise change, a chorus of yawns and Democratic votes will suffocate them.

The irony is that Clinton and Panetta are engaged in an ultimately fruitless task — propping up the old New Deal-Great Society superstructure. Social, moral and economic trends are against them. What they have left, chiefly, is rhetoric — Republicans at war with America, that sort of thing.

Likewise, there is Clinton's perception, 34 months deep into his presidency, that toughness gets you further than constant yielding and back-pedaling. The Republicans may too loudly have broadcast their expectation that Clinton would knuckle under once the going got tough. This amounted to double-dog daring him. On welfare and on the budget, Clinton now may thumb his nose at Congress just to show he hasn't forgotten where his hand is.

Politicians love to be loved. Republicans, being politicians, must hate the bashing they are in for from the White House and its well-wishers. Nonetheless, if they want to know real pain, let them drop to their knees before the president, shrieking "Stop!"

ANOTHER VIEW

Hatred begets hate as peacemakers die

Hopes for peace in the Middle East have often been carried by old warhorses — Arab and Israeli leaders who fought each other for decades but eventually came to see that peace was essential to both sides.

Sad to say, their spirit of reconciliation hasn't always been shared by their more fanatical followers.

So it was with Yitzhak Rabin, the Israeli prime minister who was assassinated (Nov. 4). His violent death at the hands of an Israeli gunman was a horrifying victory, however temporary, for hatred and stridency. ...

Hatred begets hatred. When news of Rabin's death spread to Arab lands, some people in the streets expressed sadness. But others cheered and laughed. They, too, are out of step with the tradition of peacemaking for which men like (Egyptian President Anwar) Sadat and now Rabin have given their lives.

How sad it is when the greatest threat to peacemakers comes from their own countrymen.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Friday, Nov. 17, the 321st day of 1995. There are 44 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 17, 1800, Congress held its first session in Washington in the partly completed Capitol building.

On this date:

In 1558, Elizabeth I ascended the English throne upon the death of Queen Mary.

In 1869, the Suez Canal opened in Egypt, linking the Mediterranean and the Red seas.

In 1889, the Union Pacific Railroad Company began direct, daily railroad service between Chicago and Portland, Ore., as well as Chicago and San Francisco.

In 1917, sculptor August Rodin died in Meudon, France.

In 1925, actor Rock Hudson was born in Winnetka, Ill.

In 1934, Lyndon Baines Johnson married Claudia Alta Taylor, better known as "Lady Bird."

In 1962, Washington's Dulles International Airport was dedicated by President Kennedy.

In 1970, the Soviet Union landed an unmanned, remote-controlled vehicle on the moon, the Lunokhod 1.

In 1973, President Nixon told Associated Press managing editors meeting in Orlando, Fla., that "people have got to know whether or not their president is a crook. Well, I'm not a crook."

In 1979, Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini ordered the release of 13 female and black American hostages being held at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

Ten years ago: Lon Nol, the U.S.-backed general who overthrew Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk in 1970 and was ousted five years later by the communist Khmer Rouge, died in exile in Fullerton, Calif., at age 72.

Five years ago: President Bush, on the first visit to Czechoslovakia by a U.S. president, told a cheering crowd of 100,000 in Prague that "America will stand with you" through hard times ahead.

One year ago: Francisco Martin Duran, the Colorado man accused of an assault-rifle attack on the White House, was indicted on a new charge of trying to assassinate President Clinton. The Andrew Lloyd Webber musical "Sunset Boulevard" opened on Broadway with Glenn Close as faded movie star Norma Desmond.

Today's Birthdays: Olympian-turned-politician Bob Mathias is 65. Singer Gordon Lightfoot is 57. Movie director Martin Scorsese is 53. Actress Lauren Hutton is 51. Actor-director Danny DeVito is 51. Baseball Hall-of-Famer Tom Seaver is 51. Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad is 49. Vermont Gov. Howard Dean is 47. Actress Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio is 37.

Thought for Today: "I am not afraid of tomorrow, for I have seen yesterday and I love today." — William Allen White, American journalist (1868-1944).

CHARLEY REESE

Republican procrastination won't balance budget

Suppose your spouse came to you and said, "Not to worry, honey, I've got a plan. In seven years I can stop bouncing checks." Would you give your spousy-poo a big hug and say, "My, what a financial genius you are!" I don't think so.

Reese

Then don't let the Republicans con you into thinking they have saved America with a plan that they alleged will do at the end of seven years what they ought to do next year.

The best you can say of the Republican plan to balance the budget at the end of seven years is that it is better than nothing — but not much better.

It will add hundreds of billions to the national debt during the next seven years — even if all of their assumptions and plans work perfectly.

Let's put matters in perspective.

Among civilized adults, it is axiomatic that governments balance the budget routinely on an annual basis and don't resort to deficit spending (borrowing) except in time of war. As soon as the peace is signed, the first duty of government is to create surplus budgets in order to pay off the war debt.

The behavior of American politicians in both parties since the 1950s has been a national disgrace. The American people are also to blame because we elected and re-elected them. We and our posterity are now saddled with a $5 trillion debt. We are forced to tax ourselves over $200 billion a year just to pay the interest.

This cursed interest burden will continue indefinitely. Don't forget: At the end of the seven years, the Republicans will not have a paid a penny to reduce the national debt.

Periodically, as Congress is now doing, we have to perform the disgraceful act of expanding the debt limit in order to borrow new money to pay a bit on the old loans. In short, rather than acting like a great nation, we are acting like a broken-down pseudocountry in some fly-infested corner of the world.

It is also axiomatic, among adults, that a politician's promise of future benefits is about as dependable as a condom with a hole in it.

In the first place, no Congress can bind a future Congress. There is no way the present Congress can prevent a future Congress from tossing its plan into the trash can.

In the second place, no one in Congress can foresee what will happen in the future. The Republican plan is a house built of assumptions. As Patrick Henry said, the only way we have to judge the future is by the light of the past. When we shine the lamp of experience on past promises and past assumptions, we see nothing but debris consisting of broken promises and outrageously wrong assumptions.

If the promises of past Congresses had been kept, if their assumptions had been accurate, we would not be in the mess we are today.

Rep. John Kasich (R-Ohio), the House mastermind, boasts that this plan has been certified by the Congressional Budget Office.

Who created the Congressional Budget Office? Who pays the salaries of its employees? Who buys their computers? Who can cut their salaries, abolish their jobs, even abolish the office?

Either Kasich thinks we have the mentality and experience of a kindergartner, or he has. A Congressional Budget Office stamp of approval is about as reliable as a serial killer's promise to his parole board.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich's revolution is a phony revolution. If we are to survive economically, we must elect more representatives and senators who are genuinely serious about restoring fiscal sanity and constitutional government — and doing it now, not seven years from now.

It's a worn-out Washington trick to take the credit on the front end for promised benefits that won't materialize — if they do at all — until far in the future.

Tell the Republicans the truth: You have not balanced the budget. You have only promised to do so seven years from now. We are not impressed.

Woman turns recovery into quest for rights of mentally ill

By Denise Gamino
Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — Mary Dees is a self-taught stand-in for an estimated 2.6 million Texans with mental illness.

By turning her personal journey of recovery into a public quest for civil rights on behalf of people with mental illness, Dees has forced historic changes in the Texas mental health system.

She has gone to federal court as a star witness and argued that Austin mental health officials illegally excluded people with mental illness from their meetings. She won.

She has marched into the offices of powerful bureaucrats and argued relentlessly that people with mental illness should be hired to monitor conditions in state-run psychiatric hospitals. She won.

She was outraged by sexual assaults in state hospitals in 1989 and insisted that police, prosecutors and hospital staff coordinate efforts to protect patients. She won that argument, too — and designed the rape response posters that went up on every ward in state hospitals.

"Each day, Mary makes the world a better place," said Stella Mullins, president of the Mental Health Association in Texas. "She is not just a productive member of society, she is one who has made a difference for thousands of others."

As a leading mental health advocate, Dees has broken decades-old barriers by gaining a seat on several state committees that in the past devised policies for — but rarely listened to — people with mental illness.

Dees, 42, was honored Monday with the "Rising Phoenix" award at a state conference sponsored by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation. The award is for Dees' tireless efforts to condemn prejudice against people with mental illness and secure their civil rights.

For Dees, the moment of glory will carry an unwelcome poignancy.

Just hours after her honor, Dees must report to a hospital for surgery on a tumor near her brain. It will be the fifth time in 20 years that Dees has required surgery for the recurring tumor, which so far has been benign. The delicate operation is life-threatening, and Dees postponed it just to attend the award ceremony.

Dees believes the stress of living with the constant fear of cancer has escalated the depression that has plagued her since childhood. Dees, who takes anti-depressant medication and sees a psychiatrist, has attempted suicide three times.

Twice, Dees was committed to Austin State Hospital. She cannot forget her unpleasant experiences there, and she uses those memories to guide her work for improved living conditions and therapeutic treatments.

During her first admission in 1982, hospital workers tied her ankles and wrists to a bed in the dayroom. With too few staff and too many patients that was the preferred method of keeping watch over a suicidal patient.

"I thought they'd put me in prison," she said. "Nurses were fighting with patients. Patients were fighting with nurses. The place was dirty. The TV was up high in a cage. It was really like 'Bedlam.' I'd be awakened by screams and yells and hollers and things that go bump in the night."

She also said she was assaulted by patients and staff.

"One day a mental health worker took me into a room and held both my hands until they turned blue," she said. "She said, 'You remind me of my daughter, and I abuse her so I'm going to abuse you as well.'" Staff members just laughed at Dees when she complained about abuse, she said.

Dees said her depression and staff members' aloofness led her to believe that "I deserved this kind of treatment."

Her awakening came in 1987. Dees attended a mental health advocacy training seminar for people with mental illness. When she saw that no one was laughing as people stood to talk about their psychiatric experiences, she stood, too.

Dees felt acceptance for the first time and soon helped found Texas Mental Health Consumers.

Since then, she has steadily increased her forceful advocacy for better mental health treatment. Armed with her trademark question — "What are you going to do about this?" — she has forced state officials to reflect on the consequences of their actions more times than they care to remember.

Texas-born soft drink is subject of new book 'The Legend of Dr. Pepper/Seven-Up'

By Michele Brinkmann
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO — There is no prune juice in Dr Pepper.

Exploding that long-lived myth was the most interesting thing author Jeffrey L. Rodengen says he learned while writing his book about the legendary soft drink.

On Saturday, Rodengen will visit Waco, where Dr Pepper was first formulated in 1885 by pharmacist Charles Alderton, to sign copies of his book, "The Legend of Dr Pepper/Seven-Up."

A devoted Dr Pepper drinker, Rodengen has spent the last two years traveling the country researching and collecting photographs about Dr Pepper and Seven-Up for his book.

"It is absolutely my favorite soft drink," Rodengen said Wednesday, sipping a homemade Dr Pepper at the Dr Pepper Museum. During his research, he spent countless hours with museum officials collecting facts about the origin of the drink and about the history of Waco.

"I was drinking Dr Pepper long before it was cool," he said.

Rodengen, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is a nationally syndicated columnist, producer, director and industrial historian who has written hundreds of articles chronicling American technology and industry. "The Legend of Dr Pepper/Seven-Up" is his 14th book.

The book covers the time from when the two soft drinks were formulated until their recent purchase by Cadbury Beverages.

But Rodengen said it focuses on Dr Pepper because it has a more interesting and longer history.

"I had no idea Dr Pepper was invented in Waco when I first started," Rodengen said. "The book includes how Dr Pepper grew from a regional to a national favorite."

The book contains reproductions of many original photographs of Waco from the 1800s and more recent photos of the museum.

"This is a lovely book that brings the history of Dr Pepper up to date," said Mildred G. "Milly" Walker, curator of collections at the Dr Pepper Museum. "This is a very readable book. It does not read like a calendar."

Walker said Rodengen's book is the second that has been written about Dr Pepper. In the 1970s, author Harry Ellis wrote "Dr Pepper: King of Beverages," which was updated in 1985 for the 100th anniversary celebration of the drink's invention.

Rodengen said although he is only promoting the book in Texas, he expects it also will be a best seller out of state.

Pointing to his drink, he said, "All this is is a little flavoring and carbonated water. It's not like writing about engines or nuclear submarines."

Man faces charge in cyclist's death

Grand jury returns lesser indictment of DWI in September accident

■ County Attorney Mark Dettman to review case to determine how to prosecute.

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

A grand jury indicted a Midland man on charges of driving while intoxicated, rather than the more serious charge of intoxication manslaughter, in connection with a Sept. 14 accident that resulted in the death of a bicyclist.

Joel Mario Munoz, 28, was charged with DWI, which is a misdemeanor.

"The grand jury had several options and they elected to charge him with DWI," said Midland County District Attorney Al Schorre. "The evidence has to show that the intoxication contributed to the wreck. I guess the grand jury didn't think there was enough evidence of that."

Robert Eugene Goudeau, 42, was pronounced dead at the scene after the bicycle he was riding was struck by Munoz about 6 a.m. Sept. 14 on the eastbound service road of State Highway 191.

The accident occurred on the eastbound, outside lane of the service road about one-fifth of a mile east of County Road 1275.

Schorre said the two Department of Public Safety troopers who were at the accident presented the case to the Midland County grand jury.

He said one of the two cyclists riding with Goudeau testified. Munoz and a friend he was with the night before were summoned to the grand jury.

The bicyclists were wearing helmets, and the bikes had headlights and rear reflectors, officials on the scene said.

"The evidence shows he was well into the roadway and near the center stripe," Schorre said. "It was about to rain and it was dark and overcast."

The district attorney said Munoz was apparently not speeding and had his lights on. However, his blood-alcohol level tested above the legal limit for intoxication.

"They didn't see the car soon enough to get out of the way and he didn't see them in time," Schorre said. "He did swerve."

Schorre said Munoz had no previous criminal record.

County Attorney Mark Dettman said he would have to review the case to determine how he would prosecute it. He said the maximum sentence for first offense DWI is six months in jail and a $2,000 fine; the minimum sentence is three days in

Day of collection wraps up city's Recycles Week

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

It's not just aluminum cans any more.

Keep Midland Beautiful and Builders Square, in conjunction with several local businesses and organizations, are hosting a citywide day of recycling 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

The collection area will be the Builders Square parking lot at Loop 250 and Andrews Highway. Builders Square personnel and others will be on hand to organize drop-offs at the collection site.

The collection area for a citywide day of recycling Saturday will be the Builders Square parking lot at Loop 250 and Andrews Highway.

A wide variety of materials will be accepted for recycling, so this would be a good time for Midlanders to clean out those old storage areas, said Cindy Botes of Keep Midland Beautiful.

"This is kind of like spring cleaning in November," Ms. Botes said.

Among the many materials being accepted at the recycling event are automobile and household batteries, which should not be disposed of in landfills because they contain toxic chemicals that could seep into the environment, she said.

R&R Recyclers of Pecos will be picking up the used batteries, she said. "They're doing us a favor, since they usually charge for picking them up."

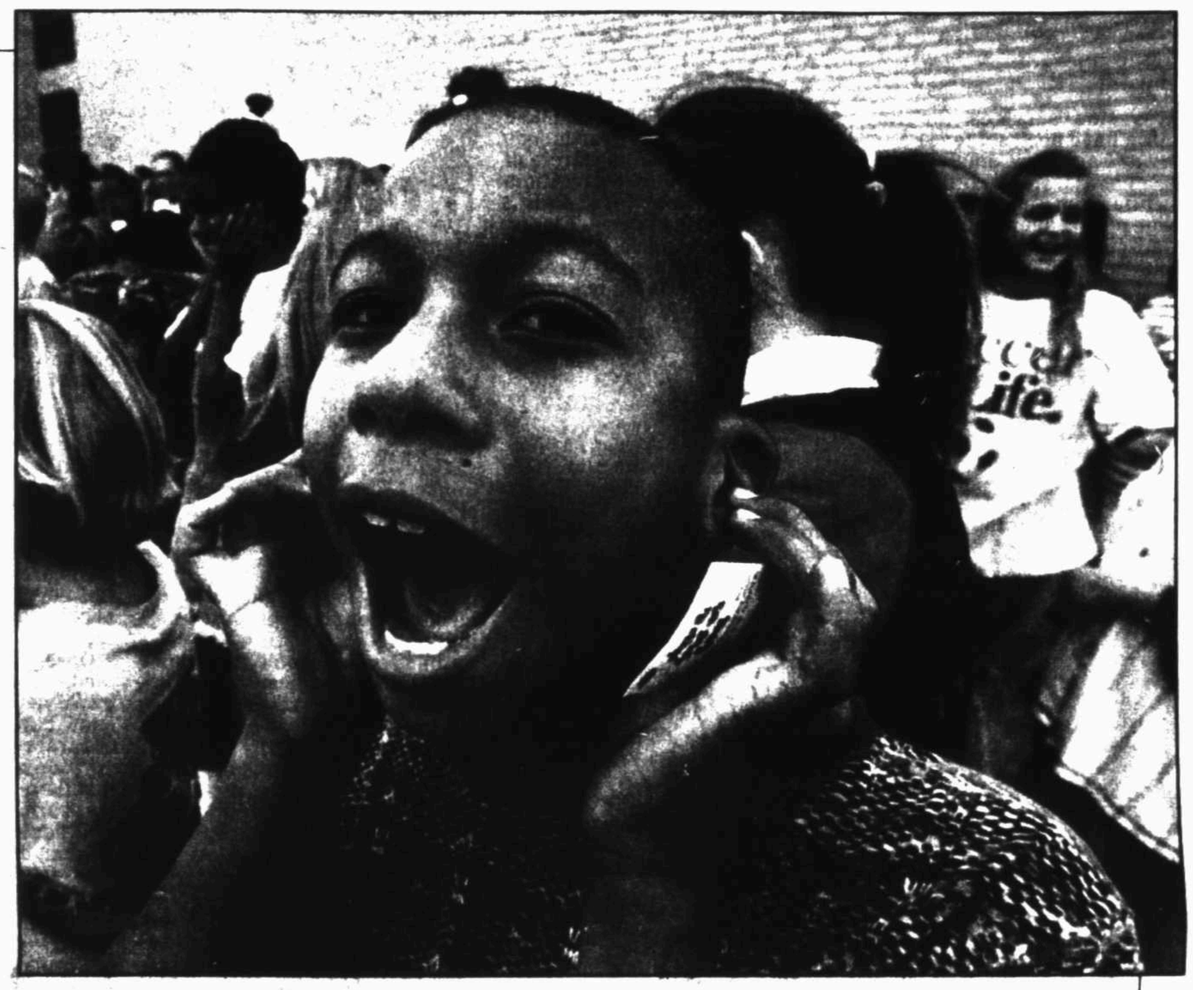

Other materials being accepted Saturday include Styrofoam® egg cartons, eye glasses, any unwanted building materials, most kinds of paper and cardboard.

Also being accepted are plastic (HDPE #2 only), used tires and used motor oil. All metals are being accepted, including steel, aluminum, scrap iron, copper, brass, alloys, radiators and even old washers and dryers, Ms. Botes said.

Metal parts from old air conditioners or refrigerators will not be accepted unless the gas refrigerants have been properly removed and recycled beforehand, she said.

Also, for this day only, the city of Midland has agreed to accept yard waste for

Lee High to present 'Watch on the Rhine'

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Lee High School Theatre Arts Department is presenting the drama "Watch on the Rhine" at 8 p.m. Saturday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday at the school auditorium.

The play concerns an idealistic German who flees Hitler's tyranny in the spring of 1940. He takes his wife and children to the United States, but soon learns that he has left his heart in his home country. He struggles with his yearning to return to the resistance movement, which could lead to his ultimate destruction.

"His desire for personal safety comes into conflict with the deeply held beliefs that have made him an active anti-Nazi," said Horace Griffin, LHS drama teacher and production director. "The play is an eloquent and stirring tribute to the brave men and women who, despite all odds, struggled for freedom."

Griffin said the show is unique in that some elementary school children will be performing in the show: Matthew Noble from Sam Houston Elementary School as Joshua Muller, Tara Turner from Jane Long Elementary School as Babette Muller and Clay Herriage from Crockett Elementary School as Bodo Muller.

The LHS cast includes Mae Guiterrez as Anise, Keri Abbey as Fanny Farrely, Robby Weidmann as Joseph, Jason Haney as David Farrely, Michelle Burns as Marthe de Brancovis, Michelle Pruitt as Teck de Brancovis, Diane Leeper as Sara Muller, Christopher Jacobson as Kurt Muller and Darren Roegner, Jimmy Severino and Tiffany Turner as the servants.

The production crew includes special assistant Christi Johnson, Kevin Fischer and Eric Guame on lights, and Tim O'Hara, Darren Roegner and Jimmy Severino on sound. Construction was done by the theater production class and other theater classes. Design was by Griffin.

The show is presented in three acts. There will be a 10-minute intermission between acts.

Kurt Muller (Chris Jacobson) kills Teck de Brancovis (Michael Pruitt) for betraying Muller's family as Sara Muller (Diane Leeper) watches in the Lee High School production of "Watch on the Rhine."

Magical journey

Area storytellers to promote ancient art

By Jimmy Patterson
Staff Writer

"Telebration — A World-Wide Celebration of Storytelling" will be presented 2-4 p.m. Saturday at Midland County Public Library.

Telebration, an event for the entire family, will feature local professional storytellers who — along with other storytellers around the world — will promote the ancient art this weekend under the theme, "A Magic Carpet Ride Around The World."

Ritzi Williford, public relations director for the West Texas Storytellers Guild, said it is impossible to gauge the number of storytellers who will be taking part worldwide. But all major cities have storyteller chapters, she said.

"Storytelling is such an ancient art," Ms. Williford said. "First there was fire, then there were stories told around the fire. Storytelling is used as an enhancing element for not only education but for moral values."

Stories at Saturday's Telebration will be multicultural, in fitting with the "Magic Carpet Ride Around the World" theme. Ms. Williford said for the first time, Telebration has expanded to include Japan and parts of Asia.

'Storytelling is such an ancient art. First there was fire, then there were stories told around the fire.'

Telebration will be presented in the library's second-floor meeting room. Admission is free. For more information, call 699-7820.

State prepares death chamber for families of murder victims

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — The Texas death chamber has a new look that makes it ready for relatives of a murder victim to watch their loved one's killer be put to death.

Continuing a tradition that started more than 77 years ago when inmates first built the death house at the Walls Unit in downtown Huntsville, prisoners have erected a wall down the center of the death chamber, cutting the viewing area into two separate rooms each less than 6 feet wide.

"We sat down and decided about all we could do is divide the room in half," Neill Hodges, the assistant warden at the prison, said Thursday.

One room will hold witnesses selected by the convicted murderer. The room on the other side of the wall will house relatives of the murder victim.

Under procedures to be approved today by the Texas

Air quality fine

AUSTIN — The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission has hit an East Texas plant with a $446,500 fine for violating air quality laws. The fine, against J.M. Huber Corp., was issued Thursday. It is meant to punish the carbon black plant for what the commission called chronic violations of air quality laws. Carbon black is a petroleum-based material used mainly in the construction of tires and rubber goods, like hoses and belts. J.M. Huber agreed to the fine, but did not admit liability, the TNRCC said.

POLICE REPORTS

Drug arrest

A Midland man had posted $10,000 bond and was out of jail Thursday night following his Wednesday arrest for possession of crack cocaine.

Billy Norris Penn, 23, was arrested about 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Junction Apartments, 1902 N. Midland Drive, police said.

Officers exercised a search warrant and confiscated approximately 14.8 grams — 1/2 ounce — of crack cocaine, along with a small amount of marijauna from Penn's apartment. The cocaine's street value is $3,000, according to police reports.

Other arrests and federal charges are pending in the investigation.

Justice of the Peace Keith Jobe set the bond.

Morning fire

Midland firefighters put out a fire at Emerald Terrace, 4405 N. Garfield St., Wednesday morning.

The Fire Department was called at 10:22 a.m. Smoke was seen coming from an apartment. It came from within the walls, according to police reports.

CHAMBER: Victims' families soon to witness executions

(From 1B)

Board of Criminal Justice at a meeting in Dallas, up to five relatives of a murder victim will be able to witness the execution of their loved one's killer.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice ordered the rules drafted after hearing testimony from victims' family members who urged that relatives be given such an option.

The new procedures could take effect as early as Dec. 1, depending on what the board does today.

The renovation required some air conditioning changes, addition of a second speaker so people in both rooms can hear the inmate's final comments and new carpeting.

Also, a blind was placed over the window through which the executioner watches the inmate. Officials determined the shade was needed because the mirror surface of the one-way glass window allowed people standing on either side of the chamber wall to see each other in the reflection.

Hodges estimated the work, which took about a week to complete, cost about $2,000.

Under the new policy, as many as five "close relatives of the deceased" could witness the execution. Those relatives are defined as a spouse, parent or stepparent, or adult brother, sister, child or stepchild.

At the prison director's discretion, another individual with a close relationship to the victim could be a witness. And if fewer than five relatives of the victim wish to attend, relatives of another victim for whose killing the inmate was convicted could attend.

They'll join in the death chamber up to five relatives or friends designated by the inmate as personal witnesses. Also in the chamber are up to five news media witnesses, a chaplain, criminal justice board members and prison staff.

The new rules follow a legal opinion by Attorney General Dan Morales that cleared the way for victims' relatives to attend executions. The new policy would reverse a 1985 ban that stemmed from concerns over possible confrontations between the murderer's and victim's families.

The rules also stipulated there be sight and sound separation between relatives of the victim and those of the condemned.

The renovations in death chamber are the first since mid 1993 when a sound system was installed along with a clear plastic shield over jail bars that separate the inmate strapped to the gurney from the witnesses. Drapes also were put along the interior walls.

In the mid 1980s a new gurney was bolted to the floor, the jail bars were put in along with new lighting. The chamber also was painted light blue.

The chamber first was constructed in 1923 and 1924 and housed "Old Sparky," the Texas electric chair made out of oak. The chair first was used Feb. 9, 1924 when five convicted murderers were put to death. The last electrocution, the 361st, was carried out in July 1964.

Since 1982, when lethal injection was initiated as the method of capital punishment in Texas, 100 men have been put to death. Texas has 414 convicted killers awaiting execution. Six are women.

CYCLIST: Grand jury returns indictment on lesser charge jail with no fine.

Local bicyclists are upset about the grand jury's decision.

Mike Rice, who commutes to work from Midland to Odessa on his bicycle, said he is worried that drivers won't feel responsible if they hit a bicyclist.

"This is like saying bicyclists are fair game now," Rice said. "That person in the car with headlights should be able to see better than a bicyclist."

"I feel like I'm totally responsible if I get run over or not. This sends out a signal to the community ... it's a shame," Rice said.

Andrew Cole, an avid cyclist, pondered what the grand jury would do if the deceased rider was a child or group of children.

"Just because it was an adult bicyclist doesn't mean he is fair game," Cole said. "From what I hear the driver tried to swerve, but if he had not been impaired would he have had time to miss the bicyclist?"

Cole said he heard Goudeau had head and tail lights on his bike.

"It is hard for me to believe an unimpaired motorist could not see these cyclists for at least a mile," Cole said.

Proposed cuts to federal funding worry small hospitals

QUANAH (AP) — For Hardeman County Memorial Hospital, the budget stalemate on Capitol Hill comes down to this: funding cuts of $44,000 a year.

Sixty-four percent of the patients here in Quanah are on Medicare, said hospital administrator Charles Hurt.

"I'm not an alarmist," Hurt said. "We're going to lose some money ... but I don't see any changes that would close the hospital."

Others in rural Texas — home to 2.9 million people and 170 small hospitals — foresee gloomier scenarios in Congress' proposed savings target.

Changes that would pare down Medicare and Medicaid by $440 billion over the next seven years are key to the Republican plans to balance the budget by 2002. President Clinton vows to veto the measure.

"These cuts will be especially devastating to rural communities and to rural families because Medicare and Medicaid are the backbone of the health care system in so many rural areas," Clinton said in October to administrators from rural facilities.

"Hospitals in rural areas already are struggling to make ends meet and are closing at far more rapid rates than hospitals in urban areas," he said.

Statistics from the Center for Rural Health Initiatives in Austin show that the biggest reimbursement source to small-town Texas hospitals is the government's health program for the elderly. Medicare patients in 1990 made up 42.5 percent of admissions at rural hospitals, versus 18.6 percent in urban hospitals.

Observers see the potential for medical cutbacks that could drive away new doctors and put adequate care farther out of the reach of rural residents.

"I have heard predictions ... that there will be some hospitals in rural areas that will not be able to weather the storm," said Laura Jordan, director of the Center for Rural Health Initiatives.

"If the communities want to keep their hospitals open, there's the potential they're going to have to put in more local dollars, perhaps cutting back on services just to keep the doors open," she said.

That assessment fits Hardeman County Memorial Hospital.

The public hospital in Quanah — a town of 3,450 people, midway between Childress and Vernon — got out of the baby-delivering business several years ago. A home health agency has taken over vacant space on the second floor.

Quanah hospital officials say they've changed with the times but still might have to raise taxes 3 1/4 cents to offset the expected Medicare losses.

"We've just about trimmed all the fat off," Hurt said.

In Muleshoe, about 80 miles northwest of Lubbock, hospital administrator Richard Murphy calculates that the Muleshoe Area Medical Center will lose as much as $65,000 a year if the federal cuts go through.

Does Texas face another round of hospital closures like the one in the '80s, when dozens shut down? Murphy wouldn't be surprised.

"I consider it significant," he said. "Any reduction to the rural hospitals will have a spiraling impact."

Jim Houdek, senior vice president for health care economics for the Texas Hospital Association, said Thursday that the Medicare and Medicaid cutbacks would also hurt teaching hospitals and those with poor populations.

Houdek said he hopes that rural hospitals strapped for cash will choose to change — maybe become a clinic — rather than close altogether.

"The community will have to decide if they want to enhance tax support of those that are publicly funded," he said. "It's going to be a real test of the community."

Man accused of dismembering wife takes stand; jury deliberates

EL PASO (AP) — Jurors began deliberating Thursday afternoon in the murder trial of a man charged with shooting his wife, dismembering her body and scattering the parts around the city.

In Thursday testimony, James Patrick Bradley said he didn't plan the Feb. 15 slaying of 33-year-old Suzy Gae Hahn Bradley, which followed an argument during which the couple came to blows.

He said he only responded out of the fear that he was going to be shot when she came out of a bathroom holding a 20 gauge double-barrel shotgun.

"She sure scared me," said Bradley, who testified for nearly three hours in a calm, low voice.

Bradley said he then reached under the bed he had been lying on to grab a rifle he kept there for protection. "I sat up and said what are you doing? She didn't say a word," Bradley said. "I fired at her where she was holding the shotgun."

He said he did not immediately know that Mrs. Bradley's wounds were fatal, but soon found out as he approached the body.

El Paso District Attorney Jaime Esparza is trying to show Bradley intentionally killed Mrs. Bradley, then tried to conceal the evidence. In his closing arguments, Esparza called Bradley a liar.

"He never saw a weapon. He thought there was a weapon — maybe," Esparza said. "He was lying in wait for her."

Esparza said Bradley's decision to chop up his wife's body and throw away the rifle was clear evidence that he tried to cover up the killing.

"How about telling us the truth," Esparza said. "He knows one thing: cover it up, clean it up and maybe he'll get away with murder."

Bradley, a 48-year-old truck driver who suffers from a viral infection that forces him to use a wheelchair or walker, is charged with a single count of murder. He could face up to life in prison if convicted.

He has confessed to the killing and also admitted to chopping up his wife's body with an ax, spray-painting some of the parts to destroy finger prints and scattering them around El Paso and southern New Mexico.

Defense attorneys argue that Bradley was defending himself against a wife who beat and tormented him, particularly after he contracted the HTLV 1 virus, which has symptoms that mimic multiple sclerosis.

Defense attorney Gary Hill told the jury to focus on the shooting, rather than the dismemberment, which he called an extraneous offense.

"I will concede that this a highly irrational, horrific, idiotic thing for someone to do. It doesn't make any sense to me. It doesn't make sense to you," Hill said.

Hill said the fact that the body was scattered where it could easily be found showed the crime was not planned.

"A 3-year-old kid could have done a better job than this if he was going to plan it. It's obvious that there was no plan," he said.

Bradley testified he was beaten on several occasions and that his wife was prone to rages.

He said that on the night of the killing, she had struck him in the head with a flashlight and later punched and pushed him out of his walker. Bradley said he also punched his wife in the face during the altercation.

Police have previously said the couple had a stormy relationship.

disposal at no charge, Ms. Botes said.

"Just take your yard waste to the landfill (on Garden City Highway) and dispose of it at the mulching pad," she said.

Other organizations participating in this recycling event include Midland Morning Lions Club, Safe Tire Disposal, Permian Basin Food Bank, KGEE Radio, Habitat for Humanity, E&E Enterprises, Commercial Metals, KODM Radio and the Reporter-Telegram.

This recycling event ends the city's weeklong Recycles Week, proclaimed by Mayor Bobby Burns in conjunction with Texas Recycles Day, which was Wednesday.

Texas Recycles Day is a statewide event that sparked several recycling events in the Midland area. "We've had all kinds of stuff going on (this week)," Ms. Botes said.

ONE OF THE VERY BEST WORDS

Many years ago in the great days of writer Rudyard Kipling, it was reported that his words were worth "fifty cents each." Students from Oxford, a bit skeptical, sent him fifty cents and requested, "send us back one of your very best words." Kipling sent a cable with this reply, "Thanks."

And, it's still one of the very best today. Not heard as often yet always needed so much. As you hurry along today, just keep a little note. How many times did I hear it said to me? And how many "thank yous" did I pass out? Yes, it is a little word packed with warmth and sincerity.

David in Psalms 100 says, "enter his gates with Thanksgiving and his courts with praise; give thanks to him and praise his name. For the Lord is good and his love endures forever; his faithfulness continues through all generations." What a gracious God He is!

So, decide to hand out a few extra "thanks" next week as we celebrate Thanksgiving with all. It will make a difference!

High-risk areas to receive state grants to fight juvenile crime

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' fight against juvenile crime hasn't stopped with a crackdown on offenders. It will send millions of dollars to high-risk neighborhoods for programs to keep youths from turning to crime in the first place.

Eleven neighborhoods with high rates of violent juvenile crime will share $10.5 million for crime-prevention programs designed by local leaders, state officials announced Thursday.

"Each neighborhood in this state is different and unique, and addressing the factors that lead to juvenile crime will vary according to the community," said Sen. Royce West, D-Dallas.

West is one of several legislative sponsors of the program, which is part of the 1995 juvenile justice overhaul that also imposes harsher punishment on youthful offenders.

"I know that you've often heard individuals say that 'If we had the resources, we could do something about this problem,'" West said. "For those individuals that are just demagogues and continue to just talk about it ... now it's time to walk the walk."

The chosen neighborhoods, identified by zip code, were selected using the juvenile violent crime arrest rate per 100,000 youths and choosing the top counties with more than 97 arrests, according to the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services.

They are in Amarillo (zip code 79107), Austin (78744), Brownsville (78520), Corpus Christi (78415), Dallas (75216), El Paso (79924), Fort Worth (76106), Galveston (77550), Houston (77081), McAllen (78501) and San Antonio (78207). The communities are being briefed on how to apply for the money.

The grants are part of more than $100 million that the state will spend to try to prevent juvenile crime over two years, said Rep. Garnet Coleman, D-Houston.

Although the $10.5 million targets selected neighborhoods, its effect will reach further, said Sen. Chris Harris, whose district includes suburbs outside of Dallas and Fort Worth.

"The bulk of the criminal activity that takes place in my suburbia is young people coming from these high-crime areas using our fast freeways and coming into my area and committing the crimes," said Harris, R-Arlington.

"This is not only something that is going to help specifically in those zip codes, but it's also going to help the peripheral areas."

People who might not be involved in traditional efforts to prevent crime should be part of this program, West added.

Rep. Toby Goodman, R-Arlington, called the effort to prevent juvenile crime crucial.

"God help us all if these programs don't work, because we've got a lot of kids we can save, and that's what this is designed to do," he said.

Austin considers creation of camp for its homeless

AUSTIN (AP) — The Austin City Council is considering a recommendation to create a $3.5 million campus to shelter the city's homeless.

The recommendation came from the Homeless Campground Task Force, a 34-member group of city officials, business leaders and homeless advocates. The group, appointed by the City Council, was asked to recommend how to help the city's estimated 6,000 homeless.

The proposal came as the City Council prepared Thursday to adopt a ban on public camping in the city.

"We understand that the city doesn't have to be the only (group involved)," said David Gomez, a task force member told the council Wednesday. "But we would like you guys to be a lead agency."

Mayor Bruce Todd said the city, even through a partnership with other government agencies, can not take on all the costs and responsibilities for following through with the task force's recommendation.

He said commitments from the city's business community and other private groups would be vital if Austin wants to take on a large-scale program as recommended.

"We're not living in a fairy land here," Todd said. "This does cost money and that will be a critically important issue."

The task force's recommendation and its cost estimates are based on programs offered at the Homeless Coalition campus in Orlando, Fla.

Orlando's campus offers a covered pavilion that sleeps up to 500 people, separate sleeping areas for about 100 men, women and families, laundry and storage lockers and an array of health and social services.

The campus' activities are paid for with money collected from public and private groups, including contributions from Walt Disney World, which owns nearby theme parks.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1995

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: New professional success comes when you reconcile with a partner. Your present employment has the greatest opportunity for long-term gains. Stay put. Set a major project aside until economic trends indicate better times ahead. Heed the voice of experience when traveling. A love relationship that has survived various challenges takes on new luster. You ponder the benefits of marriage to someone whose values are in harmony with your own.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Include prominent people when entertaining for business and pleasure. They will provide valuable guidance. Pay attention to the manipulative behavior of a competitor; you cannot afford to ignore it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get as much work done as possible, then enjoy a relaxing weekend. Any questions left dangling could irritate you. Concentrate on working out details. A partner has a strong say in your life.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your intuitive feel for the nuances of a situation helps you separate fact from fiction. Empathize with someone who is upset. Rumors float freely; do not believe everything you hear. Romance is favored tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): When spending on a financial portfolio, starting a business or making home improvements, deal with people who have a proven track record. Answering letters promptly lets others know that you are on top of things.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take time to count your blessings and acknowledge recent gains. Your generosity is appreciated by loved ones. Organizational tasks and paperwork may occupy you later today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Good news from someone at a distance brightens your morning. Do not allow yourself to get caught up in a business-home conflict. A hands-off policy is best when faced with a confusing situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let your intuition be your guide today. Aim high! Go all-out to impress an influential person who can help your career or business. Someone makes an interesting proposition.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Intellectual pursuits bring great satisfaction. Expand your horizons. Rethinking your priorities will help you boost profits. You will make more money than you dreamed possible!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A partnership is working in your favor. Mate introduces you to interesting opportunities as well as new friends. You move closer to a long-sought goal. A wish comes true. Be supportive of parents.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Seminars, lectures and long phone calls prove enlightening. Keep the lid on spending by shopping for bargains. Difficult times with your mate or partner can be forgiven and mostly forgotten. Remember your initial attraction!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your specialized knowledge serves you well in a leadership position. Overtime may be necessary, but it will fatten your paycheck. Show family members more affection. Spending quality time with children cements your relationship. Be attentive.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Adopt an attitude of greater give-and-take when dealing with co-workers. You will need their goodwill. A stock market tip pays off in a big way. Host a modest celebration. Compromise at home.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ◇

Be wary when shown a holding in just one suit and being asked how you would play it. Consider the club suit in the diagram. If there are entries to both hands, it is slightly better to lead low toward the two honors first. That will enable you to hold your losers in the suit to one trick should West have been dealt any four clubs. But is that the right play here?

The auction is simply a matter of arithmetic. In the modern style, South's opening bid shows a good 20 to 22 points, and North has an easy raise to the no-trump game.

West led the queen of diamonds, and declarer had no sound reason to refuse the first trick. A club to the jack was allowed to win, and a club to the king revealed the break. But now declarer could not score more than two club tricks, since East held two stoppers in the suit and there was only one entry to dummy. With the heart queen offside, declarer had to settle for eight tricks.

Correct technique is to lead the king of clubs to the second trick. If it is captured by the ace, declarer will always be able to get three tricks in the suit, so East must allow the king to win. Now declarer leads the eight of clubs and, if West follows, declarer can afford to contribute an honor from dummy. That will produce four tricks in the suit if the suit splits 4-1 and West holds the length.

As the cards lie, West shows out and the eight is run to East's ten, but declarer is in control. Any return is won in the closed hand, and a club to the queen guarantees three tricks in the suit since the ace of spades is still on the table as an entry. Declarer makes the nine tricks that fate intended.

Winding road to Beatles' reunion apparently driven in part by cash

NEW YORK — The long and winding road that led to this weekend's "Beatles Reunion" apparently was driven in part by cash.

"Kicking and screaming" all the way, George Harrison agreed to participate in "The Beatles Anthology" TV special mainly because he needs the money, Geoffrey Giuliano told the New York Post. Giuliano has written 20 books about the Fab Four.

Harrison will earn $80 million for his part in the production of the three-part, six-hour documentary to be shown on ABC. The group will also release six CDs of Beatles songs and two songs with new music originally performed by John Lennon before his 1980 death.

Lennon's former personal assistant, Frederic Seaman, told the paper Harrison "didn't want to participate until his accountant ripped him off for millions of dollars."

Harrison filed a $25 million lawsuit in January against Denis O'Brien, his former business partner and financial manager. Harrison accuses O'Brien of mishandling his investments for years and cheating him out of millions.

MESA, Ariz. — With tongue firmly in cheek, Barbara Bush joked that she isn't sure she wants a school named after her.

Barbara Bush plants tongue firmly in cheek.

"This new experience of having people want to name things after us is really quite flattering until you realize they usually do it for people who are very, very old or dead," Mrs. Bush, 70, said Wednesday.

The Mesa school district is naming an elementary school after the former first lady to recognize her long advocacy of literacy and education, said school board member Marilyn Wilson. The school opens in mid-August.

ATLANTA — What do Johnnie Cochran Jr., Nat "King" Cole, Atlanta Hawks coach Lenny Wilkens, country singer Charley Pride and opera singer Kathleen Battle have in common?

They are all receiving Trumpet awards from the Turner Broadcasting System. The career achievement awards for black Americans take their name from a sermon by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr.

The awards will be presented Jan. 22 in Atlanta and will be televised Feb. 24 on TBS. Turner officials say the O.J. Simpson lawyer will attend.

Vanna White is mentioned as a possible replacement.

In an interview set to air Thursday night, Gifford tells CNBC's Charles Grodin that she's ready to quit as co-host of "Live With Regis and Kathie Lee" if she doesn't get to start calling some shots.

She complains that she's a better judge of guests than Michael Gelman, who produces the syndicated morning talk show.

Kathy Lee Gifford pokes fun at her "young" producer.

"Most of our audience is women," she says. "Most of them are mothers and they don't live in an urban environment, they're out in middle America."

Gifford, whose feud with Gelman is mentioned in Regis Philbin's recent book, pokes fun at the 34-year-old producer: "After we burp him, we get him to book a guest."

A spokesman for the program said Gelman would not discuss the interview.

Gifford's contract expires in August.

LONDON — Ah, there's nothing like a good royal spat to liven up a dreary November.

Buckingham Palace growled at the BBC on Thursday, expressing doubts about its account of its exclusive interview with Princess Diana.

The interview is widely regarded as Diana's revenge for her husband's nationally broadcast confession last year that he had strayed from his marriage vows.

FAMILY MATTERS

Holiday church services are important part of season

By Jim May, Ph.D.

DEAR FAMILY: I've promised myself every year that I would write you to ask you this, but I always waited too late. Every holiday season we have this battle in our family because I want our children to participate in church activities starting with Thanksgiving, and my husband and his family don't want to participate. My parents are both deceased, so we do our holiday activities with his family here in Midland. His parents and brothers and their families are all very nice and we (and our children) have a good time together.

May

The problem is that his family is not very religious, so none of them is interested in going to the various church holiday services. In my family, religion was very important and we always went as a family to all church services, period, but especially during holidays. At first it didn't really bother me that I wasn't going and having to get three babies ready and keep track of them at church. Now that our children are older, I want them to have a connection with the church like I had. But I can't get any support from my husband or his family for us (just our family) to go to church on the holidays. They plan their activities like always and don't want to change any of the times so we could do both. Naturally the kids want to stay and play rather than go to church.

I'm really stuck on this one because I truly believe that it's a parent's responsibility to teach his or her children about God and Christ. I feel like my children don't have any idea what goes on in the church during the holidays. I feel guilty for not insisting that they go, but I don't want to be the grench that stole Christmas by making everyone do something they don't want to do. We go to church fairly regularly most of the year and that may be enough, but I still feel guilty.

I also believe that our children are missing a very special experience that comes from participating in the holiday programs. We belong to an active church and there are many opportunities for service. So what do I do? If I insist that we go as a family, I'm not even sure my husband will go. But I do know it will cause a problem. If I don't insist, they won't go and my children will be missing out another year. CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: I admire your determination to try to get your family into the true holiday spirit. I also agree with you that we as parents must teach our children about faith by our example. Very few children will want to go to church, of their own volition, rather than play with their cousins.

Pray about this first. Then perhaps discuss the situation with your husband and try to identify at least one holiday church activity that he would be willing to attend. This year, arrange for your children to participate in that one activity. Go as a family and let God's spirit work. Rather than trying to convince people about something when they do not want to be convinced, take them and let them have the experience. God works in very mysterious ways. Then perhaps next year you can add another activity, and so no.

Your desire to establish a family ritual of faith participation is far more important than the children can realize at this time. Just as your parents taught you, one of the most important legacies we leave our children is helping them establish a personal relationship with God. We all need God in our lives to help us in our spiritual journeys.

THE CENTERS FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES OFFER THE FOLLOWING TIPS FOR "HOLIDAY FUN FOR CHILDREN AND PARENTS":

- Make a Dec. 1 date with your children.
- Sit together and talk about what the holiday season means to your family.
- Let them know what the following weeks will involve.
- Make your own December calendar with special family activities noted for each day — for example, purchasing the Christmas tree, decorating the house, going caroling as a family, attending Midnight Mass, etc.
- The activities calendar helps children look forward to tomorrow almost as much as Christmas.
- Planned activities allow parents to set their own "spirit of the season" and to ensure that the children are included in all of the festivities.
- As you write holiday cards, encourage children to draw or write their own special notes.
- The adult/child greeting is a pleasant surprise for family and friends.
- This involves the children in the activity rather than them just being a bothersome distraction.

Experts recommend bone-density scan for older women

By Dr. Michael L. Freedman

NEW YORK (AP) — Here's a test that women over 50 should think about having regularly: a bone-density scan.

It's an X-ray examination that gives information about the strength of bones, and thus of an individual woman's risk of osteoporosis. Considering that half of all American women will have an osteoporosis-related bone fracture at one time or another, a test to determine risk seems wise.

Yet polls show that most women are unaware of the test, and that too many ignore the risk of osteoporosis. The disease develops when bone mineral is lost faster than the body can replace it. It generally occurs after the menopause, but it can develop in younger women and in some men.

One reason why too few bone-density scans are done is that the machines most often used for the exam generally are available only in large academic medical centers. Another reason is that many women are unaware of their risk of osteoporosis and that measures can be taken to prevent it.

Women start losing bone mass at the rate of 1 percent a year after age 35. The rate of loss increases after menopause, so that a typical woman has lost half of the original bone mass by age 55. The women at greatest risk are thin, white, inactive physically, eat a diet low in calcium and have little exposure to sunlight.

A bone-density scan provides a comparison of the patient's bone mass with what is expected for her age and size, and a comparison with the estimated peak bone density of young women.

Until recently, the only treatment to reduce bone loss was hormone therapy, either estrogen replacement or the hormone calcitonin. Now the Food and Drug Administration has approved a new prescription medication, alendronate (brand name Fosamax), to help prevent osteoporosis.

One problem with bone-density scans is economic. Many health insurers will not pay for the test, which can cost in the neighborhood of $200. Groups such as the National Osteoporosis Foundation are crusading to get coverage.

Dr. Michael L. Freedman is the Diane and Arthur Belfer Professor of Geriatric Medicine and Director of Geriatrics at New York University Medical Center.

ACTIVE TIMES

Volunteer devotes time to others

By Lana Cunningham

"When we walk with the Lord, in the light of His word,
"What a glory He sheds on our way.
"While we do His good will, He abides with us still,
"And with all who will trust and obey."

Trust and obey — those words out of the Methodist hymnal summarize the spirit of Bessie Rankin. She raised eight children, earned her GED after the children were gone, worked for many years and now volunteers much of her time at Hollowell United Methodist Church.

"There's a joy in serving the Lord," she said. "You do what the Lord says and then you'll reap the joy. He opens our understanding. If the Lord says do such and such, we usually want to whine. But if we do it, we'll be glad. If we just learn to obey."

At the mention of the hymn, she begins humming the tune. Singing is only one part of herself that she shares with others at nursing homes. "I'll go and visit nursing homes and see how people are doing. Sometimes I sing if they have a favorite song. Or I see if they have a favorite Bible verse they want me to read. Some have a favorite passage in the Bible they want to hear. Some of these people can no longer read.

"I get a kick out of it," she added. "Sometimes I don't feel perky myself when I go, but I have a joy when I leave."

At Hollowell U.M.C., Mrs. Rankin serves as chairman of the Nurture and Membership Committee. "That includes trying to keep in contact with the members and people who are slow in coming or miss a lot. We call and see if they're ill or have a problem. We care about each other."

Visitors often meet Mrs. Rankin the first time they attend the church. She contended that it's a church policy for members to greet visitors, but admitted she often is the first person they meet. "I'm just a bold person" she said, laughing. "After a while in life, you start to think of the feelings of others as your own. I try to be sensitive to others," including visitors who may feel awkward in a new church.

Mrs. Rankin works with the United Methodist Women at her church and in the city-wide organization. And she serves as a communion steward, working with the minister in setting up communion and baptisms and taking communion to sick members at their homes. "I like to go with The Reverend to do this," she said.

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Since her eight children have grown, Bessie Rankin has devoted much of her time to volunteer work. And many of those volunteer hours have been spent with Hollowell United Methodist Church in Midland.

"The Reverend" is Hadley R. Edwards, who calls Mrs. Rankin one of his favorite members. "All I have to do is say, 'Mrs. Rankin, can you...' and she does it. She is really a support. I can call on her any time day or night and depend on her to follow through. She is a super dynamite woman."

She also likes to travel, and Rev. Edwards invites her to accompany him when he has church meetings in Lubbock.

Chuckling, she said, "I put the 'G' in the word 'go.' Whenever he drives and asks me, I just go. I don't drive out of town and this gives me an outing.

"He's my sixth son that the Lord provided. He has such good patience with us old folks. He's a good listener and I resect his opinions."

Mrs. Rankin raised five sons and three daughters, admitting she didn't spare the rod in disciplining them. "I don't regret it for one minute," she said, recalling some instances in her children's lives. "They weren't bruised or battered. I don't believe in beating a child. But they grew up knowing right from wrong."

After the children were grown, Mrs. Rankin decided it was time to earn her GED. Classes were being offered at night at Hollowell U.M.C., and "they gave me an evening of something to do. I should have done it years before." After earning her diploma, Mrs. Rankin considered going to college, but other circumstances in her life detoured her plans.

At 65, Mrs. Rankin sees many things she still wants to do, "as long as I stay in good health. I still mow my yard and trim my rose bushes. I live life to the fullest.

"I don't mind being called 'old.' 'Old' doesn't always mean you're sick, blind or immobile. I want people to know 'old' means being everything you want it to be."

Pausing for a moment, she added as a joke, "Antiques are old and people look for antiques. I'm not broke down; I can still go. I may not be able to go as long, but I still go. And I love to get with some of my friends and talk and laugh and act silly. Young people do it, so why can't we?"

The idea of following the Lord is never far from her thoughts. "Being happy in the Lord is the way our lives should be. Life is good, really good. It's a joy and I'm very happy in the Lord."

"Trust and obey, for there's no other way
*"To be happy in Jesus, but to trust and obey."

*Words by John Sammis

DEAR ABBY

Some of life's most memorable events are better left unfilmed

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Flash in New Hampshire," who was all bent out of shape because a minister refused to allow flash photos during a wedding ceremony to capture those precious moments on film.

Van Buren

My minister and I fully support that minister's refusal. No sacred religious ceremony should be disrupted by flash photos — they are an intrusion upon the dignity of the occasion.

As for understanding the need to prevent guests from doing this, a professional photographer must take many shots, thus intruding on the ceremony so that one or two memorable moments may be captured.

We are in the personal intrusion information age when photographers and journalists tend to become part of the ceremony, thus detracting from the intimacy of the occasion.

If "Flash" thinks so little of the religious beliefs of the couple, perhaps a justice of the peace would have been a more appropriate option. Your suggestion to "shop around" for another church or elope shows a disturbing lack of understanding of the deep meaning of a religious ceremony.

What will be next? Capturing the last moments of a person's life on film? Or, heaven forbid, the actual birth of a child? I suggest that "Flash" should try another business. — NO FLASH, PLEASE

DEAR NO FLASH: Both the "last moments of a person's life" and the actual birth of a child have already been captured on film. What can we expect next? The conception?

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "From the Old School in Florida," who were upset that their granddaughter had become a stripper. You told them to try to be tolerant, and that jobs for young people are hard to come by. You were absolutely right.

I am 23 years old and have been dancing topless for three years. Becoming a topless dancer was not an easy decision for me, but I have never regretted it. I had goals that my parents could not afford to help me attain.

Dancing is not a career for me — just a stepping-stone to help me secure my future. It has enabled me to travel across America and see places I would not otherwise have been able to. I can afford to work out at a good gym and eat properly. Best of all, I am a premed student with a 3.5 grade average. I will be the first doctor in the family, and my parents are very proud.

I hope people realize that "strippers" are not all immoral bimbos. Many of us are trying to achieve our goals and move forward in life. — DANCING IN NEW ORLEANS

DEAR DANCING: Thank you for your perspective. I hope "From the Old School" will read your letter and take heart.

DEAR ABBY: Marie E. Limmer of Baltimore asked, "Would it be the worst thing in the world if he (a husband) were fat and paunchy?"

I can testify that it can be. Last summer, my husband died of an abdominal aortic aneurysm when the main artery from his heart ruptured. He was fat and paunchy. — A NEVADA WIDOW

DEAR ABBY: I received the enclosed flier from my insurance company. I think the information it contains could be helpful to many senior citizens — because it addresses the issue of health care fraud. The Medicare program in this country is very vulnerable to waste, fraud and abuse. All of us can help by reporting any fraudulent activity on the part of a physician, laboratory, ambulance service, chiropractor or psychologist to our health insurance companies.

I hope you think this is worth sharing, Abby. — NO NAME, GALESBURG, ILL.

DEAR NO NAME: The information is well worth sharing; it should be of interest to many readers.

MEDICARE SCAMS ARE RAMPANT!

When you see an advertisement that promises "all costs are covered" — beware! Health care is not normally free. If it seems too good to be true, it probably isn't true.

QUESTION anyone who tells you they "work for Medicare." Medicare does not solicit door-to-door.

NEVER disclose your Medicare number to people you do not know. Your number might be used to file fraudulent claims for services you did not receive.

FRAUD TIPS!

Protect the Medicare Trust Fund by reviewing your Explanation of Medicare Benefits as you would your bank statements.

If you have been charged for a service you did not receive, notify your health insurance provider immediately.

If your Explanation of Medicare Benefits form is unclear, call your health insurance provider and ask that it be explained to you.

Ask your doctor to explain the procedure that is being performed and the reason you need the laboratory or radiology tests that have been ordered.

REMEMBER: Any money lost to Medicare fraud could have been used for legitimate health care services. By reporting Medicare fraud to your insurance provider, you help to protect Medicare program dollars.

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Hospitals produce 'report cards'

By Linda A. Johnson

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Those feel-good ads touting hospitals as havens of caring and compassion are being replaced by cold, calculated numbers. "Report cards" evaluating the quality and cost-efficiency of hospital services have become the industry's latest sales pitch.

Experts say that as managed health care expands, information allowing the public and insurers to compare hospital performance, in general or for a particular treatment, will get increasing use. This trend is of special interest to older people, who use hospitals more than the rest of the population.

"It used to be, 'We're nicer, we treat you well,' " said Jeff Frommelt, a partner at Coopers & Lybrand, a national accounting and consulting firm. "Now it's, 'We're better, we're cheaper.' "

So said St. Peter's Medical Center recently, when it publicized the first such report card by a New Jersey hospital. "We really did well in all the indicators," said hospital president John Matuska, especially on the rate of unexpected complications, which was 27 percent lower than would be expected for the hospital's mix of patients. The six-page booklet discusses the hospital's "commitment to quality and value," then outlines its findings.

The report card said, for example, that 94 percent of St. Peter's patients surveyed last year were satisfied, and the hospital's average cost per stay is 9.4-percent less than expected, or $4,631 compared to $5,113. Those figures were determined by three outside evaluators hired by the hospital: Healthcare Design Systems of Sea Girt, Press Ganey Associates of South Bend, Ind., and U.S. Quality Algorithms, a 4-year-old subsidiary of Blue Bell, Pa.-based U.S. Healthcare that evaluates the quality of hospitals and doctors the HMO uses.

St. Peter's staff picked the highlights for the report card, which will be updated annually.

"We plan to mail it to all of the employers in the area" to encourage them to select insurance plans that include St. Peter's, Matuska said. "We're going to give it to every patient who's admitted to the hospital."

Just how accurate are the figures? Matuska, Frommelt and others said too much of the data are available to the public — and more important, to competitors — for a hospital to risk lying.

"Might somebody publish only positive information?" added Frommelt. "Yes!"

While hospitals are just starting to rate themselves, others have been doing so since the federal government first released mortality data on Medicare patients, by hospital, in 1985, said Ron Czajkowski, spokesman for the New Jersey Hospital Association. Those figures, criticized because they didn't allow for differences in severity of cases among hospitals, are no longer released, but more sophisticated, "risk-adjusted" data have been compiled by insurance companies, industry consultants and employer groups for several years.

The hospital-funded Joint Committee on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations last year began doing public reports after each hospital inspection and has 1,200 completed so far, said spokeswoman Alice Brown. By 1997, numerous quality factors will be added to the current data, which mainly cover how well hospitals are organized and staffed.

Industry-funded state hospital associations have gotten into the act, too. Colorado's association has released some comparative data on the state's 61 acute-care hospitals for eight years. Pennsylvania's collaborates with a quasi-governmental council that has been doing such a report for six years and Maryland's state hospital association is about to start a project that will compare cardiac care at hospitals there and in Colorado, Ohio, New Hampshire and New York.

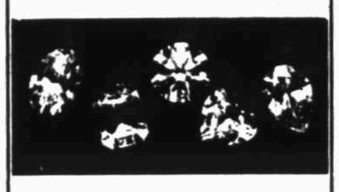

The New Jersey Hospital Association will release the first of several planned reports comparing the state's 83 acute-care hospitals by year's end.

Frommelt and some hospital executives said that while report cards now target the public, that will fade as the spread of managed care usurps the public's choice of hospitals or doctors. But the report cards are expected to be a mainstay of hospital marketing to insurers, HMOs and employers.

"Hospitals that are on the leading edge of health care trends are doing report cards or preparing to do it," said William Erwin, spokesman for the American Hospital Association. In markets where most people are in managed care, such as Southern California, hospital prices vary little and the hospitals now compete on quality. Thus report cards, which initially focused primarily on costs and length of stay, will switch to more data on quality, he said.

Hospitals among the first to put out report cards say they have been deluged with requests for them — from thousands of residents and from hundreds of hospitals considering the same thing.

AL MVP Award

Voting for the 1995 American League Most Valuable Player Award, with first-, second- and third-place votes and total points on a 14-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

PLAYER, TEAM	1st	2nd	3rd	Tot.
Mo Vaughn Boston Red Sox	12	12	4	308
Albert Belle Cleveland Indians	11	10	7	300
Edgar Martinez Seattle Mariners	4	5	12	244
Jose Mesa Cleveland Indians	1	–	1	130
Jay Buhner Seattle Mariners	–	–	1	120

Mo named Al MVP

NEW YORK — Mo Vaughn beat out Albert Belle for the AL MVP award Thursday in one of the closest elections ever, a vote that called into question whether the Cleveland star's surliness cost him the honor.

The two sluggers tied for the AL RBIs lead with 126. Belle, however, led the majors with 50 home runs in the shortened season and became the first player to get 100 extra-base hits since Stan Musial in 1948.

Belle has earned a reputation, however, for being uncooperative and downright rude to reporters — who do the voting. He is expected to be penalized by major league baseball later this month for verbally abusing a television reporter during the World Series, although that outburst came after all 28 ballots were returned.

A letter that accompanies the official ballot to members of the Baseball Writers Association of America lists the five rules — which have remained unchanged since the original ballot in 1931 — to consider. The third guideline: "General character, disposition, loyalty and effort."

Vaughn, regarded as one of the nice guys in baseball, hit .300 with 39 home runs as the first baseman for the AL East champion Boston Red Sox. Belle batted .317 as an All-Star outfielder for the Indians, who had the best record in baseball.

Had just one more first-place vote changed positions, Belle would have won.

Nothing unusual: Rebels vs Sandies again

■ Midland Lee and Amarillo High battle tonight for the seventh time in 13 years. Lee holds a 4-1-1 record to date.

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

When November arrives, one almost expects Midland Lee and Amarillo High to be on the playing field when the Class 5A Small School playoffs arrive.

Well, it's no different today when the Rebels and Sandies go to bi-district warfare for the seventh time in the last 13 years. The only thing that is different this season is the fact that the two teams have never met at Memorial Stadium — Rebel country.

Lee has had a lot of success against the Sandies, owning a 4-1-1 playoff record over AHS, advancing in five of those six games. The winner of tonight's game will play the winner of the El Paso Soccoro (8-3) -El Paso Coronado (5-5) bi-district game, which is also tonight at 7: 30 p.m. MST.

And if No. 8 state ranked Lee (8-0-1) can pull off a win tonight against the Sandies (6-3), the Rebels will play at home again next week against either Soccoro or Coronado. Lee is on a home playoff roll. Tonight's game is the fourth consecutive playoff game for Lee at Memorial Stadium and the fifth will be added with a win.

Big test awaits Lee, MHS in Tall City tourney

Both the Midland High and Midland Lee varsity girls basketball teams will get a crash course in Hoops 101 this weekend as the Tall City Tournament begins today at Chaparral Center.

"Everybody in the field is tough. It's really going to be a competitive tournament," Midland High coach Jim Raughton said. "Andress and Hanks are supposed to be the two best teams out there (in El Paso). Lee has a good team, and Monterey is good every year. Bowie and Andress are going to

Nashville: This Bud's for you

■ Although, Oilers' owner Bud Adams signs a deal to move the team to Nashville by 1998, it could happen in 1996.

By Karin Miller
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — While Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams signed a deal Thursday to move his team here by 1998, his general manager was in Memphis checking out the possibility of playing there next fall.

The 50-page document that lays out the $292 million deal includes a provision that the city will help find an interim stadium if the Oilers buy out the two years remaining on their Astrodome lease.

"As a lame duck team, I would hope we could work something out," Adams said after the signing ceremony at Nashville's Metro Courthouse.

He said Memphis and its Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium, where the team has played two preseason games, would be his preferred site, and that Oilers GM Floyd Reese was heading there. Adams said he has not talked to Astrodome officials about breaking the lease.

"This is all exploratory," said Pepper Rodgers, general managing partner of the CFL's Memphis Mad Dogs, who would have to allow the Oilers to play at the Liberty Bowl.

"Floyd and I talked. He said he was coming incognito and then Bud spilled it on TV. I'll have to call Bud up and say this is not the way it's done," Rodgers said by telephone, chuckling.

The NFL said it is evaluating the proposed move and that commissioner Paul Tagliabue would make a full written report to the league membership after completing his review of the situation.

Adams spent several minutes during the ceremony talking about his loyalty and what he considers to be "binding."

His true intentions regarding Nashville had been questioned because of a 1987 flirtation with relocation to Florida that resulted in a $70 million improvement to the Astrodome.

Last year, Adams asked Houston to build him a stadium, but the mayor refused to use taxpayer money.

Chaps win high-scoring game 111-105 over Central Arizona

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Correspondent

The Midland College Chaparrals are putting too many gray hairs in coach Pat Rafferty slicked back hair style too early in the season.

The Chaps survived a furious second-half run by Central Arizona College and took a 111-105 non-conference victory Thursday night at Chaparral Center.

The 111 points marks the first time the Chaps have scored over 100 points in a game this season. The win was their second straight and improves the season record to 3-3.

Midland played a brilliant 30 minutes before it relaxed and allowed the injury-riddled Vaqueros to climb back into the contest.

Central Arizona (0-2) entered the game without starting point guard Rodrick McClure and their No. 1 center Justin Lyons.

The Chaps have to be thankful that Lyons and McClure were not suited up, because the joke could have been on them had they not hung on in the last 10 minutes of the game.

With the Chaps leading 100-79, Lamont Young brought down the house with his thunder dunk to give Midland a 23-point lead and finished with a team-high 28 points.

Rangers ready to climb playoff mountain in Alpine

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

The rivalry. The rematch. The injury.

That sums up the major issues in Greenwood's Class 3A bi-district playoff with Alpine tonight at 7: 30 in Crane.

Greenwood's Rangers will try for their second playoff win in history against a team it has developed quite a tradition with over the past nine years. The Rangers (7-2) have gone 4-5 against the ninth-ranked Bucks (10-0) over that span, losing to Alpine 30-23 Sept. 29. But an injury to Alpine quarterback Kevin Losoya could change to outcome of today's game.

"Without him playing it kind of changes the whole scene," Ranger coach Bob Purser said. "The first time we played them he was their whole football team."

Losoya scored three touchdowns and ran and passed for over 200 yards in the Five 1995 Midland Angels assigned to protected list

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

The California Angels have added Midland Angel infielders George Arias and Tim Harkrider as well as pitchers Geoff Edsell, Ryan Hancock and Ben VanRyn to its 40 man roster, the Reporter-Telegram learned Thursday.

"That's a real good sign for those players," Midland Angels' General Manager Monty Hoppel said. "There has been a lot of talent that has come through Midland with the Tim Salmons, Garret Andersons and Jim Edmonds the past few years and its nice to see that California is taking advantage of it."

The five players — along with pitcher Pete Janicki who spent time in Midland in 1994 but played for Triple-A Van-

4-5A going for third sweep against 3-5A

District 4-5A enters the the Class 5A bi-district football playoff round with 3-5A tonight on three fronts, hoping for a third consecutive playoff sweep from the Boys of the Northland.

Williamson

And although each of the 4-5A teams enter tonight's outings with a few less bullets in blazing guns, history says that the sweep is much more than possible. All 4-5A teams have major injury problems after going through their own home wars, but 4-5A owns a huge 35-5-2 on-the-field playoff record against 3-5A since 1964.

Even though Midland Lee is hosting 3-5A's third place team, Amarillo High, the Sandies have had the most success against 4-5A with a 4-6-1 record. In fact, Amarillo High eliminated two 4-5A teams (San Angelo and Odessa Permian) from the playoffs in 1992.

Only one other team, Amarillo Palo Duro, has managed a win over a District 4-5A team since 1964. The Dons, not a playoff team this year, defeated Lee in 1988, 29-8. The Dons also tied Odessa High in 1990, advancing on first downs. Palo Duro, however, also has the most playoff losses to 4-5A with nine.

Lubbock Coronado, 3-5A's second place team this year, goes into its match with 4-5A's Abilene Cooper tonight with a woeful record against 4-5A. Coronado is 0-3 in playoff games with 4-5A on the field. Coronado does own an official win over Permian in 1993 when the Panthers had to forfeit a 37-14 win over Coronado for playing an ineligible player earlier in the year. Not counting the forfeit, Coronado is 1-20 against 4-5A overall and has lost twice to 4-5A teams (21-19 to Odessa High and 29-27 to San Angelo) this season. Coronado's one on-the-field win against 4-5A was against Midland High in 1989 in a regular season game.

Lubbock Monterey, Permian's opponent tonight at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa, is undefeated at 10-0, but is 0-6 against 4-5A and 0-4 against Permian in the playoffs. The Plainsmen, however, have beaten three 4-5A teams (Cooper, 21-7; Abilene High, 19-13; and San Angelo, 20-10) this season under Buster Leaf, a former assistant coach at Lee who knows the ways of 4-5A. Leaf has turned Monterey into a playoff contender and is 20-0 in regular season play the last two years. Monterey, however, lost to Cooper in the first round of the playoffs last year, 28-10.

Other 3-5A playoff records against 4-5A include, Plainview, 0-4; Amarillo Tascosa, 0-6; and Hereford, 0-1.

District 3-5A teams have never swept District 4-5A in the playoffs since the UIL began two teams to the state playoffs from each district in 1982. District 4-5A has swept 3-5A nine times since then. The record still stands at four straight from 1982 to 1985.

With a 35-12 (.745) record in the District 4-5A picking game, here is how bi-district action turns out tonight.

Midland Lee 28, Amarillo High 12: Lee owns a 4-1-1 playoff edge against the Sandies, advancing five of the six times the two have played. No. 6 is on the way.

Odessa Permian 20, Lubbock Monterey 17: This is the key first round game in the state and the major scare is that old Mojo is a banged up football team. Still, the Panthers find a way to win in Ratliff Stadium.

Lubbock Coronado 14, Abilene Cooper 13: This has turned into a major shootout with Cooper quarterback Michael Anderson out with a broken finger. That alone may end Coronado's woes against 4-5A. The 4-5A sweep is out this year.

Terry Williamson is sports editor of the Reporter-Telegram.

ing two home games to start the playoffs). Now I guess we have to do our part and win the game against Amarillo High," said Lee coach John Parchman.

But the game should be played in Big D because defense should be the name of the game. It's no secret that both teams have made their living by cracking opponents' heads this season. The defense that arrives tonight should be playing again next week.

Lee and Amarillo High tied 21-21 a year ago with the Rebels advancing 4-3 on penetrations. The Sandies were 9-0 and ranked No. 10 in the state while Lee was 6-3. It is now the complete turnaround.

"We were state ranked last year and Lee got past us. Maybe, that is a good omen for us this year. We hope so," said AHS coach Larry Dippel, who has been with the Sandies for all six previous meetings with Lee and in 11 overall playoff berths. "But Lee is just awesome this year. I think they might be right up there with that 1983 team that went to state.

"We may have to be lucky to win the game. Lee is just overpowering defensively. They've just shut down good teams — and that's not to say that their offense is bad. They have a great tailback (Alex Strambler) and a big fullback (Stephen Hunter), and still, the quarterback (John) Thurman is the glue for them."

Defense has been the backbone of both teams, however. So, both coaches are looking for the offense to rise. That could be another key to the game.

"We've been pretty good on defense all year," says Dipple, "but we have to put some pressure on the Lee defense. If we go three and out a lot, we could end up getting beat bad. Not many teams have kept the ball long against Lee, except Cooper and that was a tough game for them since Lee had nothing to play for and Cooper was battling for its life."

Parchman said, "Their defense can present some problems for you. We don't really know how good they really are. They've got some pretty weak teams in their district, but they played a good defensive game against Odessa Permian (a 14-11 Permian win) early in the year. We need to play better offensively than we did last week against Cooper."

Comparative Scores

Lee		AHS
Opponents	Score	Opponents	Score
EP Irvin	48-0	Clovis	35-7
SA Marshall	63-7	Pampa	7-6
Palo Duro	50-12	Permian	11-14
Midland High	45-3	Monterey	14-24
Abilene High	37-7	Plainview	16-7
Odessa High	21-10	Coronado	7-21
San Angelo	37-7	Tascosa	26-7
Permian	14-7	Palo Duro	40-8
Cooper	21-21	Lubbock High	37-3

Both teams were idle last week and have had a lot of preparation time for this game.

"Both teams ought to be ready to play," says Dipple. "We've had enough practice time, so it's time to play the game and see where it goes from there. It would have been more to our advantage if Lee had to play Permian for the district championship on the last week. We would have like that, but it didn't happen."

The Rebels have had to stew for two full weeks after the only blemish on their season record, a tie to Cooper, 21-21.

"I think our kids realize now that you have to play every week out," Parchman said. "The tie got the attention of our kids and we've had some great workouts the last two weeks. I think we are a little more focused than we were after beating Permian."

But it hasn't been all fun and games for Lee since the Rebels learned that they had lost senior linebacker B.J. Honeyman for the season. Honeyman was injured in the Cooper game, breaking a non-weight bearing bone in his right leg.

Junior Corry Pertile will step in to fill the shoes of Honeyman, but Parchman has shaken up his defensive outlook.

"We've got a pretty good team when you look at our starters, but we're really thin," Parchman said. "We've had to look at a lot of things this week and we have a few ways we can go on defense."

Backup defensive lineman Chito Subia, a 228-pound junior, will also carry a larger role. Offensive tackle Richard Carroll may also be seen on defense some as will tight end Joel Warren.

"We're just trying to find ways to get some of our best athletes on the field," Parchman said. "Honeyman got hurt last year and now again this year. I feel really bad for him because he has been a major reason for some of the success we've had this year."

The good news is that junior middle linebacker Michael Hall is back at full strength after missing one game to a leg injury.

Mustangs look to get Happy

By Mike Butts
Sports Writer

Granbury Happy Hill Farm has made the state playoffs for the second time in three years. But because of the Pioneers' first-round opponent, things haven't been too happy on the hill this week.

Happy Hill (8-1) must face Texas Association of Private and Parochial Schools six-man behemoth Midland Christian today at 7:30 p.m. in Hawley. The Mustangs (9-1) should wrap up their fifth straight state championship this year. They have 45-point ruled every TAPPS team they played this season.

"For the most part it's been just kind of Midland (Christian) against the field," Happy Hill coach Gary Rickard said. "The other teams just fight to see who doesn't get into Midland's playoff bracket. It's been my misfortune the two times I made the playoffs we had to play Midland in the first round."

The Pioneers finished behind Fort Worth Temple Christian in District 2 and lost to Midland Christian in the first round (the quarterfinals) two years ago 64-8. That game was stopped at halftime because of the 45-point rule. The Pioneers and Mustangs both beat Arlington Texas Christian this year. Midland Christian 54-6 and Happy Hill 48-26.

As it was two years ago, Happy Hill is a passing team, throwing the ball about 90 percent of the time. Rickard said. Quarterback James Boyce has thrown for 42 touchdowns and 2,379 yards and Daniel Hamilton has 74 receptions and 20 touchdowns.

"They've got a pretty good ball club," Midland Christian coach James Blake said. "They were pretty high up in the state track meet last spring, they've got a lot of speed."

But as with every school in TAPPS six-man, Midland Christian has a numbers advantage. Happy Hill's enrollment, Rickard said, is 48. Midland Christian's is 198.

"They've had the numbers, they've had the participation and they've had the coaching," Rickard said. "They make very few mistakes and when they play a strong team that can hold their rushing down they can go to the spread and pass effectively."

Rickard said his quarterback is not as good as the one he had two years ago, but that his defense is better. Blake feels is team, as it seems to do every year, is peaking now.

HOOPS: Eight-team tourney starts at 10 a.m.

(From 1C)

some of the top teams in El Paso. Lee's got a strong team and Greenwood just beat the socks off Semi-pole."

The Lady Dawgs (1-0) open the tournament at 10 a.m. against El Paso Andress (1-0) followed by Andrews and Lubbock Monterey (1-0) at noon and El Paso Bowie (0-1) taking on Greenwood at 2 p.m. The final game of the day has Lee (1-0) taking on Austin Lanier at 4 p.m.

The championship bracket semi-finals are at 8 and 10 a.m. with the championship game that evening at 8.

Both MHS and Lee come into the tournament winning their season openers on Tuesday; Lee beat Big Spring 64-44 and MHS defeated Stanton 69-31.

The Lady Rebels got 23 points from Jamie Rhoads in their win, but faces a much taller Lanier team in its tournament opener.

"Lanier's got two 5-foot-11 kids and one six-footer so they're going to be a lot bigger than us," Lee coach Elise Kail said. "It's going to be an awful challenge for us. We are just going to try and pack it down inside and hope we can get some position on them."

Lee struggled in the first half against Big Spring, leading by only five at the break, but a second-half surge broke the game open in the third.

"Tamika Thurman really stepped up for us and Colleen McCarty was a real surprise for us," Kail said. "Our other two post players couldn't get anything going and Tamika did a good job in there. Colleen looks like someone whoc can do some damage for us."

The tournament champion will have to play three games in a little more than 24 hours, but Raughton said it is a good chance for everyone to get some experience before the District 4-5A season begins.

"We would have liked to have played some more games before but its just an early tournament, that's all," Raughton said. "It will give us an opportunity to play a lot of kids and get them some quality playing time under a little bit of a pressure situation."

Midland High started with a 22-point win over Stanton, but the Lady Dawgs will have to put three good games together in a row to win the Tall City Tournament again.

"We don't have a great deal of cohesiveness right now as a team, and that's only because it's still real early in the season," said Raughton, who led the Lady Dawgs to a tournament championship in 1994 over Lee. "It was a pleasant surprise that we played pretty well."

G'WOOD: Alpine will go out Losoya

(From 1C)

September game. But Alpine coach Ronny Stooksberry has an experienced backup under center.

"It hurts. He's a big part of our offense," Stooksberry said. "But we have a quarterback that's been working (behind) Losoya for two years and he's played in a lot of second halves this year.

"We're not a one-man team. We had a lot of people out there helping Kevin this year."

Losoya's combined rushing and passing yardage topped 2,000 this season. He broke his collarbone with four minutes to play in Alpine's last game of the year. Fullback Jason Valenzuela is second on the team in rushing with 560 yards.

The Rangers began the year with several injuries but have everybody back for the playoffs. They have had trouble with turnovers and inconsistent play this year. In their last regular season game against Kermit, Greenwood scored on its first two possessions but then "slacked off" Purser said.

The District 8-3A co-champion with Colorado City was tied with Alpine 8-8 at the halftime of this year's regular season game. But a 22-point Buck third quarter doomed the Rangers.

Nonetheless, the Rangers coach thinks his team can reverse the outcome of the first meeting.

"We felt good about our changes even with (Losoya) in there," Purser said. "But sometimes these things motivate a team when they lose somebody like him."

The Rangers won their first-ever postseason game last year, beating Clint in bi-district 57-21. They beat the Bucks in '94 48-34 in the only game between the teams Purser could remember as not being close.

MHS, Lee boys kick off hoops action

Staff Report

The Midland Lee and Midland High boys basketball teams both get into action this weekend with hopes of getting off on the right foot on the journey back to the playoffs.

And both begin that journey on the road as Midland High travels to Del Rio and Midland Lee opens the season in Levelland. The Bulldogs will play the Del Rio Rams at 7:30 p.m. on Friday and then the Victoria Stingrays at 11:30 a.m. on Saturday. The Rebels play Pampa at 6 p.m. on Friday and Levelland at 7:45 p.m. on Saturday in the South Plains Shootout at the Texan Dome.

The Bulldogs are back from a second-place District 4-5A finish with a 24-8 overall record as they won a bi-district contest over Lubbock Monterey before falling to El Paso Irvin in the area round. The loss was especially tough because the Bulldogs were coming off a state tournament season.

The Rebels finished third place in the league after battling San Angelo Central in a tie breaker. In the bi-district round, Lubbock High defeated Lee, ending its season at 14-17 — a bit quicker than they have been used to over the last few years.

Leading the Bulldogs will be seniors Josh Lane and Terry Johnson and junior James Whitfield. Lane and Johnson had significant time on the varsity last year while Whitfield was one of Jack Stephenson's best sophomores last year and played some on the varsity as well.

The Rebels will be led by third-year post Mark Holly as well as senior guards Keith Sawyer and Israel Boyd. All were on the varsity last year but Holly has the most experience coming back, having spent his entire high school career on the varsity for Lee.

Engram heads list of Biletnikoff finalists

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Ohio State's Terry Glenn and Southern Cal's Keyshawn Johnson joined 1994 winner Bobby Engram of Penn State on Thursday as finalists for the 1995 Fred Biletnikoff Award which goes to college football's best receiver.

The award is named after former Florida State and Oakland Raider great Fred Biletnikoff, now a receivers coach for the Raiders. The winner will be named Dec. 7 in a nationally televised awards program from Walt Disney World.

Engram has caught 50 passes for 888 yards and eight touchdowns this season for the Nittany Lions. He won the award last year — the first time it was given.

Johnson has caught 78 passes for 1,102 yards and six touchdowns. Although he has the most catches of the finalists, his 14.1 yard average is the lowest of the three.

Glenn has caught 48 passes for 1,141 yards and a gaudy 23.8 yards a catch and 15 touchdowns for the second-ranked Buckeyes.

dumped in 18, followed closely by Phillops' 15 and Todd Jones chipped in 14.

The lead seemed safe, however Central Arizona began chipping away as the Vaqueros — led by Jacque Collins 28 points — moved to within eight points at 104-96 thanks in part to a 17-6 run with 2:14 left to play.

But the Chaps refused to fold as they kept their composure to hold off the Central Arizona threat. "Gary's (Heintz) team don't let you rest," said Rafferty.

"Down the stretch we didn't do anything silly, we got to the line and we handled the preassure," Rafferty added.

In the first half the Chaps showed flashes of brillance as they raced out to a 16-9 lead. Midland primarily used their perimeter game to gain the early advantage.

Three-point bombs by Young, D'Juan Baker, and Devon Phillips ignited the Chaps offense in the first four minutes of the game. "I was really pleased with their effort and purpose of play tonight," Rafferty said.

Midland shot just over 40 percent in the first half, and 48 percent for the game. Rafferty also expeirmented with different lineup combinations, something he might continue to do before conference play begins in January.

St. Louis closer to hosting title game of Big 12

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The building is awesome, and the city is ecstatic.

Big 12 Conference athletic directors voted Wednesday to recommend that the first league championship football game be played in the Trans World Dome in St. Louis.

"It's new and it's awesome," Big 12 Commissioner Steve Hatchell said of the new building that was the site of its first football game Sunday when the St. Louis Rams beat Carolina.

"We have known some of the people there for a long time. ... We need to go to bat in the first year on this venture with someone who knows what it's like to run a big activity, and to do it in a classy way."

The athletic directors voted in Dallas to award the game, which will pit the winners of the new league's North and South divisions against each other.

University presidents must vote on the idea of the game and site when they meet Nov. 30 in Kansas City, but the presidents already have endorsed the concept of the game.

Athletic directors approved the game and the site after ABC upped its offer from $2.5 million to $4 million for the rights.

The game is scheduled for Dec. 7, 1996, and is expected to net each school about $575,000. If it were played today, it would match top-ranked Nebraska, the school most opposed to the game, against Texas.

"The Red Cross would have to check blood pressures and pulses if that didn't get people excited," said Joe Castiglione, athletic director at Missouri.

St. Louis was picked over bids from Kansas City, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio and Lincoln, Neb.

"They had a terrific package," Castiglione said. "They were all together on the same page. They knew what it would take to stage an event like this. They knew how to bring all the necessary groups together to administer the game."

St. Louis guaranteed a sellout for the game as did other bidders and offered to stage other Big 12 events such as the first women's soccer tournament.

PERMIAN BASIN AUTO DEALER FORCED TO SELL PRE-OWNED CARS, TRUCKS & VANS AS LOW AS $99.00 THIS SATURDAY DURING ONE DAY SALES EVENT

ODESSA, TX. A regional used car and truck dealer, General Fleet Brokers Inc. has just announced plans to hold the largest one day sales event in their history. The event will take place at 6101 E. Hwy. 80 this Saturday, Nov. 18, 1995. According to the General Sales Manager of General Fleet Brokers Inc., Larry Robinson, record sales the last few months have resulted in the need to carry an increased number of used vehicles. Out of need to satisfy increased consumer demand, We've increased our sales rate from 50 used vehicles a month to many times over 100, Robinson commented. "In order to accomplish this We've had to stock a much larger number of used cars. We used to carry 100 vehicles in stock, but now it's a whole new ball game, Robinson added. We have just purchased additional used cars and trucks. If we don't eliminate over 150 used cars, trucks and vans in the next few weeks, we will be forced to store them on unimproved storage lots. Rather than adding expenses through transporting and storing, the management of General Fleet has decided to slash prices on the entire used car and truck inventory. I've been instructed to sell $1000.00 cars for just $99.00 to make room. Normal profit structures will be abanded. The savings will be incredible! All vehicles will be moved to the General Fleet sales lot at the corner of Hwy. 80 E. and Loop 338 on the service road. All vehicles will be open for inspection at 8:00 AM on this Saturday to allow the public time to look at all cars, vans and trucks before sale prices are put on each vehicle. At approximately 10:00 AM this Sat. Whoever is sitting behind the steering wheel will have the first opportunity to buy the vehicle at the posted sale price. Robinson said that this innovative approach should make it easy for anyone in the market for a used car or truck to get a great deal at a low price with no hassle. "pick it out, drive it if you like. You already know the price, what could be easier?
Some vehicles will be sold "AS-IS", but most will have been through the reconditioning center, and therefore are eligible for all of our normal used vehicle warranties & service policies. "Word of mouth is the best form of advertising and as you sell someone a good used car at a good price,they are sure to tell others where they purchased it" Robinson said, expressing the General Fleet Brokers Inc. philosophy.

HALO: Designation could mean promotion

couver most of the season — were added to the Major League 40-man roster to avoid any chance of losing them to other clubs through the waiver wire or a procedural technicality.

"If they didn't protect them, the might have been open to other clubs," Hoppel said. "They were some of the top 40 guys the organization wanted to protect and keep."

Arias hit batted .279 with a league-leading 30 home runs and 104 runs batted in and was named the Texas League's Most Valuable Player. Harkrider hit .291 and helped solidify a Midland defense which helped the Angels reach the Texas League Championship Series.

Hancock was the Angels' winningest pitcher last season, compiling a record 12-9 with a 4.56 ERA in 28 starts. Edsell came to Midland late in the season but managed to put up a 2-3 mark in five starts.

VanRyn, a hard thrower who was a Texas League All-Star a couple of years ago with the San Antonio Missions, was shuttled between the starting rotation and the bullpen in 1994 for the Angels and had a 1-1 record with one save.

"Arias and Harkrider were no surprise and VanRyn is a real hard thrower and can get the ball into the 90s," said Hoppel, who was named Texas League Executive of the Year in 1995. "Our owner Miles Prentice always wanted them (California) to go the way of the farm system and tried to get the Angels to look at what they had."

The 40-man roster designation is an indicator that many of these players might not be returning to Midland for the 1996 season. Arias and Harkrider are almost guaranteed a roster spot in Vancouver with former teammate Todd Greene.

When Prentice bought the Midland club in June, 1990 he began to forge a good working relationship with the Major-League club and try to get them to call up young players out of the minor-league system, rather than spend a lot of money on a high-priced free agent.

"In early 90s they weren't too high on using the minor-league system," Hoppel said. "Prentice helped us to work as one team and they have been using the minor-league talent steadily since then."

Part of the problem, though, was owners who didn't look at the long-term benefits of a successful organization and focused only on the bottom line.

"When the majors renegotiated their deal with the minor-league clubs, GMs and farm directors knew how important they were but some owners just didn't see how much they helped," Hoppel said.

When former Kansas City and St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog was brought in to turn the California franchise back into a contending team, he signed a number of big-dollar free agents who didn't deliver and has since been replaced.

"This (the 40-man roster) is an economical way to protect players and develop talent and if they flop, at least the team hasn't wasted a lot of money on a free agent.

Thomas named a finalist for Butkus Award

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Junior Ray Lewis of Miami joined seniors Kevin Hardy of Illinois and Zach Thomas of Texas Tech on Thursday as finalists for the 1995 Butkus Award symbolic of college football's top linebacker.

The award, named after former Chicago Bear and University of Illinois great Dick Butkus, will be presented to the winner Dec. 9.

The 6-foot, 236-pound Thomas has 113 tackles, including 10 for losses to go along with three sacks and three fumble recoveries. Thomas returned his lone pass interception of the season 23 yards for a touchdown to seal Tech's 14-7 victory over Texas A&M earlier in the season.

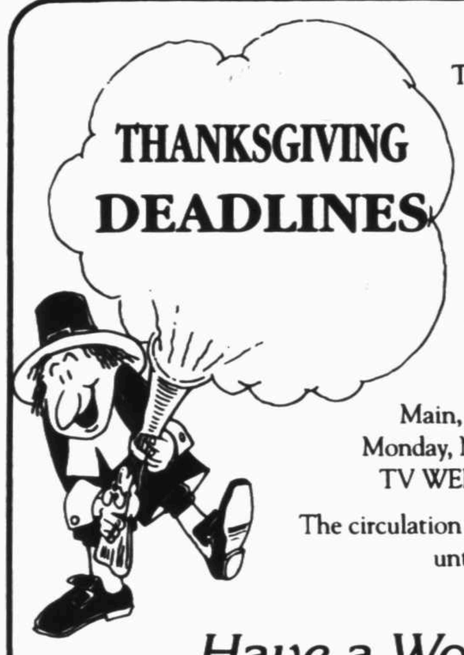

Hardy has 89 tackles, including 11 for losses and has a pair of interceptions.

Smith: Throw the tape in the garbage and keep moving

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Once again Emmitt Smith is being called up to rally the Dallas Cowboys.

Hard times have hit Valley Ranch. The Cowboys have just been embarrassed by the San Francisco 49ers. Players, coaches, and owner Jerry Jones are surveying the damage.

On such occasions, Smith becomes the team philosopher.

His analysis of the 38-20 loss to San Francisco, dropping the Cowboys to an 8-2 ledger, was succinct and to the point:

"Throw the tape in the garbage and keep on moving."

Smith said the worst thing the Cowboys can do is keep thinking about the painful loss to the 49ers.

He said: "I don't listen to the radio or read the newspaper because I don't want to listen to all those armchair quarterbacks. They know it all but they've never played the game."

Smith called the loss "a disaster. But we have no choice but to bounce back. I hope we're 110 percent better against Oakland this Sunday. Just don't ask me coaching questions. I don't want to talk about that."

Smith said he didn't think the loss would hang with the team but it might be hard to tell because of the tough club the Cowboys face on Sunday.

"Oakland is a strong team and it would be a big win for us," Smith said.

Smith, leading the NFL with 1,237 yards per game and 17 touchdowns, could be the primary offensive weapon for the Cowboys because of injuries to quarterbacks Troy Aikman and Wade Wilson.

Smith, bothered by hamstring pulls last year, has had an injury-free season as he shoots for 2,000 yards rushing.

"There can't be any more of a load on my shoulders than what there already is," said Smith, who also leads the NFL in total yards from scrimmage with 1,511. He has 274 receiving yards on 44 catches. He has carried the football 234 times.

Smith, who has led the NFL in rushing three of the last four years, said he enjoyed playing the Raiders, who usually work with the Cowboys in training camp.

Raiders go for bay area sweep over Boys

The Associated Press

After last week, when the battered 49ers beat the cocky Cowboys, will anyone ever take any NFL game for granted?

Already this season, the two expansion teams have more wins (7) than New York's bedraggled franchises (5).

So what are the Cowboys doing as 3-point favorites at Oakland, even with Troy Aikman limping?

America's Team, baby. America's Team.

The Cowboys' loss to the 49ers should be a wakeup call for owner Jerry Jones, coach Barry Switzer and all the front-runners who rush to the local sporting goods store to buy blue and white jerseys with 8, 22 and 88 on them every time the Cowboys become good.

Is it possible the Raiders will line up Tim Brown in the slot to be covered by Darrin Smith? Brown is No. 81, which is the number of yards Jerry Rice ran for a touchdown when he was covered by Smith.

OK, the Cowboys should make adjustments. But the weaknesses that showed up last week can be dealt with again, particularly the lack of a consistent wide receiver to go with No. 88, Michael Irvin, and the lack of defensive line depth with Leon Lett still out.

Not to mention coaching.

Fox's telecast of Cowboys-49'ers lands highest rating in 10 years

NEW YORK (AP) — Fox Sports' telecast of the San Francisco 49ers' 38-20 victory over Dallas on Sunday earned a Nielsen rating of 21.3, highest for a regular-season Sunday NFL game in 10 years.

Also, it is the highest rating for any regular-season game since Dallas and Philadelphia did a 22.3 on an ABC Monday night game on Oct. 5, 1992. A Cowboys-Bears game did a 22.5 rating on CBS on Sunday, Nov. 17, 1985.

The game was the third highest-rated program in Fox history, surpassed only by two playoff games last year, including a 34.2 for the NFC Championship between San Francisco and Dallas.

Fox's season average now is 12.4, a 4 percent increase of last year and 19 percent better than NBC's coverage of the AFC. Last season, NBC edged Fox in season's average ratings.

Ruling judge admits receiving contribution from Art Modell

CLEVELAND (AP) — A judge handling the city's lawsuit to block the Cleveland Browns' move to Baltimore said Thursday he received a campaign contribution last year from Browns owner Art Modell.

Judge Kenneth R. Callahan of Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court, who was randomly assigned the case when it was filed last week, told lawyers for both sides that he was not aware of the contribution until it was brought to his attention on Wednesday.

He asked the lawyers on Wednesday if they objected to him continuing to handle the case. No one objected.

A hearing in Callahan's court is scheduled for Monday on whether he should block the Browns from leaving Cleveland until the end of 1998 season due to a lease commitment. The Browns maintain they do not have to play in Cleveland Stadium if the rent due the city is paid.

Callahan's campaign committee received a $500 contribution from Modell on Oct. 17, 1994, when Callahan ran for election, according to campaign finance reports.

Michael Chen and his wife, Lisa, owners of Hunan Garden, offer a quiet atmosphere, tasty Chinese food and great service. They are located in the Courtyard at Midland Park, Midkiff and the Loop.

Hunan Garden has cuisine worth seeking

by Pat Knight

When you seek it, you cannot find it.
Zen saying

Hunan Garden is in a great location, if you know where it is. It's on Midkiff at Loop 250, in the Courtyard at Midland Park, facing the loop.

It's worth finding.

As soon as you enter, you're impressed with that classic Chinese courtesy. Lisa Chen sees to it. She and her husband, Michael, have owned Hunan Garden for about four and a half years. He cooks and she greets customers with a sincere smile which promises the excellent service which is soon delivered.

The decor includes Chinese tapestries and murals that give the whole room a warm golden glow. It's a very relaxing way to spend a lunch hour or a leisurely dinner.

With all this relaxing timbre, the food was served less than ten minutes after we ordered, which makes lunch on a tight schedule very possible.

We had the triple delight and won ton soup off the dinner menu, and pepper steak which is on both the lunch and dinner menu. The triple delight consists of beef, chicken and shrimp with vegetables such as broccoli and watercress in a tasty sauce.

The won ton soup had a pleasant surprise; pockets in the noodles filled with meat.

The egg roll that came with the pepper steak was obviously home made. Its crust was tender and flaky and the vegetables inside were light and crisp.

They don't skimp on any portions here. The triple delight had generous servings of chicken, beef and plump shrimp, along with the crisp vegetables. The Chens know we Americans like our meat.

When you spoon the triple delight or the pepper steak over your rice, be sure to scoop up plenty of the sauce at the bottom. This is what really gives it that deep, savory character.

A unique example of the extra flourishes at Hunan Garden is the flower that comes with each Chef's Special selection. Wait a minute. That's not a flower. That's a turnip, carefully crafted to look like a pink flower. And I was beginning to wonder how it would look as a boutonniere.

For lunch, they have 17 choices for $4.95, and food is usually served in ten minutes or less. My triple delight, off the dinner menu, was $9.95 and was more than I could eat at one sitting. The soup was extra.

Any dish that's spicy hot is listed with a red star by it on the menu. Lisa Chen says, however, they can make any dish spicy or mild, just like you want.

Hunan Garden can handle Christmas parties of up to 50 people in-house. They can also cater for any number.

A Chinese proverb says, "No feast lasts forever." In the case of Hunan Garden, that's definitely too bad.

Hunan Garden is located at 4410 North Midkiff, at Loop 250, in the Courtyard at Midland Park. They're just a bit off the road, with access from both Midkiff and the Loop 250 access road (south side.) Call 697-9818 for reservations or for catering or party information.

MOVE: New stadium expected to be finished in 1998

(From 1C)

Under the deal with Nashville, the city will build a 65,000-seat open-air stadium, and Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen said it will be done without raising taxes.

Adams said he has lived in Houston 50 years, including more than 44 in the same house. Most of his employees have been with him at least a decade and the Oilers have been in that city for 36 years.

"My proudest accomplishment is that I have kissed the same woman every night for 49 years. I won't say it's a record, but it's quite a while," Adams said.

Bredesen, a millionaire businessman, said the Oilers organization is one of few where the people are so reliable.

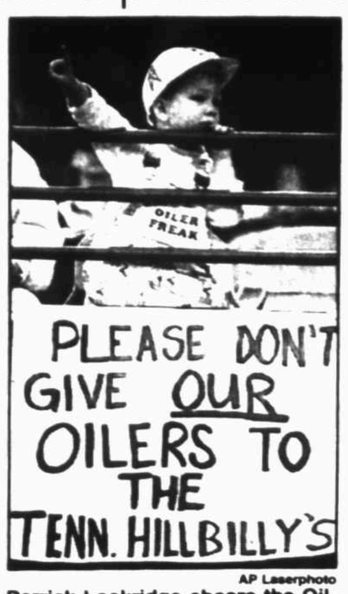

"Bud Adams is somebody who I trust," Bredesen said. "He has done everything he said he would do in this process."

This is the second proposed franchise shift in less than two weeks. On Nov. 6, Browns owner Art Modell signed a deal to move his team from Cleveland to Baltimore.

Two other teams relocated before this season — the Rams from Los Angeles to St. Louis and the Raiders from Los Angeles to Oakland.

The NFL shuffle made many Nashvillians nervous that Adams might leave soon after moving here.

But Bredesen said he would face substantial penalties, including the threat of an injunction and financial responsibility for the stadium bonds, if he tries to leave before the 30-year agreement ends.

AP Laserphoto

Derrick Lockridge cheers the Oilers to victory earlier this season. The Oilers have agreed to move the team to Nashville.

Several milestones must be met before the deal is final, including the sale of luxury suites and permanent seat licenses, which guarantee buyers the perpetual right to buy season tickets.

The next hurdle is the city's Metro Council, which is scheduled to vote on the agreement next Tuesday. In October, the council approved a scaled-down version.

The NFL owners also must approve the move, which Bredesen hopes will come during their March 15 meeting.

Bredesen hopes to begin construction on the stadium by next April and have it ready for the Oilers by the fall of 1998.

Oilers' Timeline

The timeline Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen and Houston Oilers owner Bud Adams hope to follow in their efforts to move the NFL team here:

NOV. 21, 1995
— Metro Council approval of the project agreement.

JAN. 29, 1996
— Sports authority approval of development agreement, stadium lease and team agreement.

FEB. 15, 1996
— Finish sale of $71.5 million in permanent sale licenses.
— Finish sale of $11.5 million in premium club seats.
— Agreement on interim stadium site for 1996-1997 if the Oilers break their lease in Houston.

FEB. 20, 1996
— Submit formal relocation application to NFL.

MARCH 1, 1996
— Oilers' board agreement to the development agreement, stadium lease and team contract.
— State Board of Regents and sports authority approval of Tennessee State University agreement.

MARCH 6, 1996
— Final city approval of funding and approval of the development agreement, which is more detailed than the project agreement, stadium lease and Oilers contract.

MARCH 10, 1996
— State approval of funding and putting the state funding mechanism in place.

MARCH 15, 1996
— NFL approval of transfer of Oilers' franchise to Nashville.

MARCH 22, 1996
— Execution of the development agreement, stadium lease and Oilers contract.

APRIL 3, 1996
— Ground-breaking for stadium.

AUG. 1, 1998
— Stadium completion.

Sampras clinches No.1 ranking, loses to Ferreira

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — An hour after he clinched the No. 1 ranking for the third straight year, Pete Sampras promptly went out and lost to Wayne Ferreira on Thursday at the ATP Championships.

The loss did nothing to affect Sampras' status in the round-robin event as he already qualified for the semifinals with two earlier victories. His No. 1 ranking was assured earlier when Jim Courier beat Thomas Muster, the only man with a chance to move ahead of Sampras.

Sampras lost in three sets one hour after Courier topped Muster. Ferreira, who was invited to the tournament of the eight top-ranked players to replace the injured Andre Agassi, won 7-6 (7-1), 4-6, 6-3.

Ferreira, with a 2-1 record, must await the outcome of Friday's match between Boris Becker and Yevgeny Kafelnikov. Becker needs to win in straight sets to advance, otherwise Ferreira goes to the semis.

Sampras, the Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion, never found his touch against Ferreira, even struggling with his usually reliable serve. He said he knew he had clinched the top ranking before the match, but was unaware he had already qualified for the semis.

"My goal was to finish the year as strongly as possible and get No. 1 and I feel great now."

Courier's 6-4, 4-6, 6-4 victory not only prevented Muster from reaching the semis, it also ended the French Open champion's hopes of reaching No. 1.

Earlier, Thomas Enqvist, a rookie at the annual season-ending contest, powered his way to a 6-1, 6-4 victory over Michael Chang and a place in the semifinals. Muster is 0-2 in round-robin play.

Courier and Chang, both 1-1, will meet Friday to decide who will join Enqvist from the Red Group in the semifinals.

The eight players are split into two groups in a round-robin format, with the top two from each pool advancing to the semis.

Graf survives scare at WTA Championships

NEW YORK (AP) — Steffi Graf survived a baseline slugfest Thursday night, powering her way past Mary Joe Fernandez 6-3, 6-4 and grabbing a spot in the semifinals of the WTA Tour Championships.

Graf, the top seed in this 16-player, season-ending tournment, will next take on defending champion Gabriela Sabatini or surprising Natasha Zvereva, who play their quarterfinal match Friday night.

In Thursday's late match, Kimiko Date of Japan took on Germany's Anke Huber, with the winner to face the survivor of Friday's match between Conchita Martinez and Brenda Schultz-McCarthy.

With Fernandez hitting just as hard as the world's top-ranked player, the two provided the Madison Square Garden crowd with the best played match of the week.

Not content with trading heavy artillery from the far reaches of the court, both players forced the issue, taking a short ball and either putting it away or hitting a deep approach and taking the net.

When they finished their 75-minute match, Fernandez had five aces, one more than Graf. Yet Graf used her big serve to set up numerous easy points.

"I think the serve makes quite a big difference," Graf said. "I can earn quite a few free points with it."

She also needed every other part of her game to prevail over Fernandez, the eighth seed.

Dow Jones closes in on 5,000 mark

■ Markets soar on possibility of lower interest rates.

By Patricia Lamiell
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Stocks plowed further into record territory Thursday, as investors looked beyond the budget fight in Washington and focused instead on the possibility of lower interest rates.

Traders said stocks were also supported by Friday's double expiration of options and futures contracts, a quarterly event that often adds to trading volatility.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 46.61 to 4,969.36. While it ended more than 30 points beneath the 5,000 mark, the blue-chip index did record the sixth record high in the last seven trading sessions.

Traders said a 5,000 Dow in the near future was possible. "It's literally a fractional move in the Dow stocks to get there," said Greg Nie, a technical analyst at Everen Securities in Chicago.

Broad market indexes also rose. The NYSE composite and the Standard & Poor's 500 composite both topped record highs set on Wednesday, with the NYSE index rising 2.01 to 318.48 and the S&P adding 3.38 to 597.34.

The Nasdaq composite index rose 2.63 to 1,044.48. The American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 2.24 to 529.46.

On the NYSE, advancing issues led decliners by about 7 to 4. Volume was heavy at 418.43 million shares, up from 373.06 million on Wednesday.

Stocks got a big boost from the bond market. The 30-year Treasury rose 1 point, pushing its yield, which falls when prices rise, to 6.22 percent, the lowest level since early 1994.

Bonds rose in response to further indications of a softening economy. The Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia said its index of area business activity plunged to 7.9 in November from October's 25.5. And the National Association of Home Builders said its Housing Market Index dropped 7 points to 50 in November.

The data stoked investors' hopes that once the budget tussling was over, the Federal Reserve would be free to lower interest rates before the end of the year.

"Inflation's under control," declared Barry Berman, head stock trader at Robert W. Baird & Co. in Milwaukee. "I think people want to be in the (stock) market, one, because the performance has been so phenomenal, and two, yields (on fixed-return investments) aren't real attractive."

Stock investors were cautious in the face of continued budget wrangling between Congress and the White House.

Republican strategists offered to pass a short-term spending bill if it contained a provision to balance the federal budget in seven years. President Clinton rejected the proposal, but took steps to recall some government workers who had been furloughed because the government has run out of money and borrowing power.

Many stock investors believed the budget fight would result in a move toward balancing the budget, which would ultimately be good for the financial markets.

"There is general enthusiasm that the problem is political, not financial," said Robert Stovall, president of Stovall/Twenty-First Securities, "and that we'll all be financially better off when it's over."

The weak economic data and the Washington budget impasse prompted stock investors to concentrate their buying in safer blue-chip names.

Reports disclose possible merger talks between Boeing, McDonnell Douglas

By Jim Salter
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS — Boeing Co. and McDonnell Douglas Corp. are reportedly talking merger, a combination that could reshape the world's aircraft industry.

Analysts said Thursday that a full-fledged merger of the two largest U.S. aircraft manufacturers is unlikely but that Boeing and McDonnell Douglas could end up working together on some projects. A merger also could face an antitrust challenge.

Merger talks are taking place in New York, The Wall Street Journal reported Thursday, quoting unidentified sources. It said the discussions also might lead instead to an exchange of major assets.

Boeing spokesman Harold Carr and McDonnell Douglas spokesman Tom Williams refused to comment.

Seattle-based Boeing is the world's No. 1 maker of passenger planes. St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas is the largest aircraft supplier to the Pentagon. About 70 percent of McDonnell Douglas' business is with the government, while defense contracts account for about 20 percent of Boeing's revenue.

They have combined sales of around $35 billion.

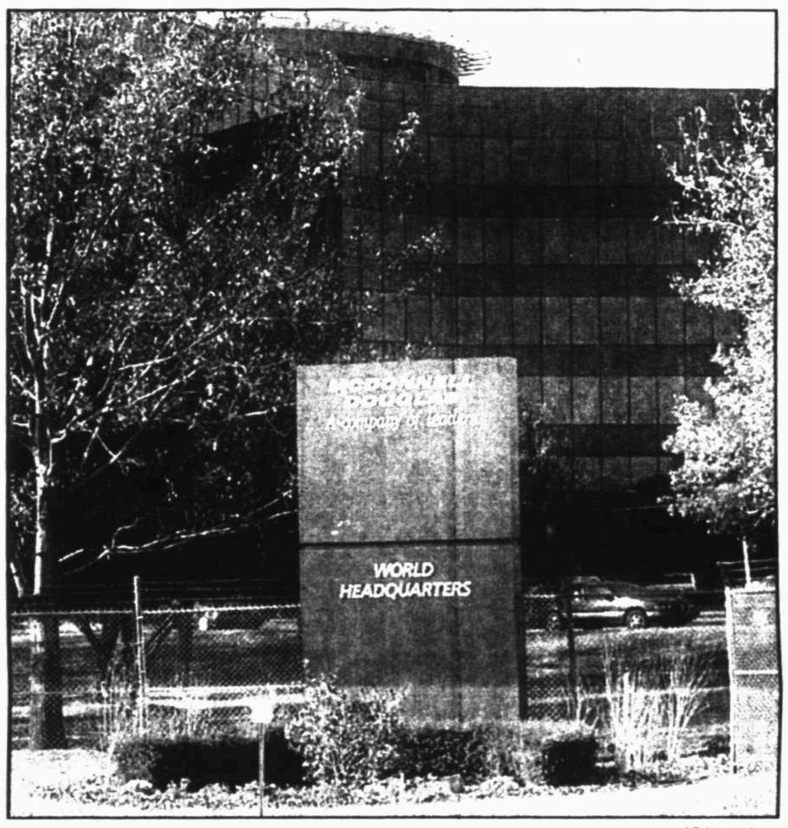

"I can't imagine the government would allow that to happen," said Bill Whitlow, an analyst for Pacific Crest Securities in Seattle. "Boeing already has 60 percent of the (worldwide) market and this would bring it to 70-plus. That just smacks in the face of antitrust."

The new company would rival Lockheed Martin Corp., the current aerospace and defense leader, and such overseas competitors as Europe's Airbus Industrie consortium, which has been gaining an increasing market share.

"I'm sure the Europeans would be alarmed," said Steven Lewins of Gruntal & Co. in New York. "It would be more than an antitrust issue — it would become a diplomatic issue."

Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon seemed to signal support for a merger Thursday, at least for military aircraft.

"As a broad statement of policy we have said that we are in favor of consolidations in the defense industry that reduce overheads and increase efficiency," he said.

OPEC not expected to raise ceiling

By N.Y. Times News Service

Vienna — OPEC oil ministers probably won't change the group's daily production ceiling when they meet here next week because they can't afford to.

Even a small production increase risks driving prices lower in a market where oil supplies are abundant. A large jump in output in a bid to grab market share could send prices crashing without producing a commensurate sales gain.

Moreover, even if such a move looked more like a winner, many cash-strapped OPEC members would shrink from the prospect of risking any revenue loss.

"For OPEC, this is not a healthy picture," said Ann-Louise Hittle, a director at Cambridge Energy Research Associates in Boston, Massachusetts. "On a global basis, supply is more than adequate."

That's why even retaining the current cap of 24.5 million barrels a day won't necessarily avert a slide in prices.

"At best, an OPEC roll-over stalls a downward move for prices," said Abe Glass, a trader at Daiwa Securities America in New York. "It doesn't mean that it will create a rally."

What's especially frustrating to OPEC members is that production increases from outside the 12-member group are outstripping this year's 2 percent gain in world oil demand. As a result, though prices over the past 12 months averaged $16.83 a bbl., up $1.27 a bbl over the preceding 12 months, they're still lower than producers had hoped they'd be.

Non-OPEC production has climbed 7 percent to 43.2 million barrels a day since OPEC slapped its current lid on output in Sept., 1993. That squeeze isn't going to ease anytime soon because new technology makes finding oil a lot cheaper.

"There's a lot more oil to be discovered outside OPEC than in it," said Herman T. Franssen, economic adviser to the oil minister of Oman, a Persian Gulf oil producer that isn't a member of OPEC.

Worse yet for OPEC, Iraq, an OPEC member barred by the United Nations from selling its crude oil, will one day resume exports. It's capable of producing more than 3 million b/d.

As the bad news piles up, the strain on member states' budgets grows worse. Even Saudi Arabia, the would-be cartel's biggest producer and possessor of the world's largest petroleum reserves, has been running budget deficits after years of surpluses.

The cash squeeze has prompted some OPEC members to ignore their allotted quotas, which is why the group's now exceeding its supposed ceiling by about 1 million b/d, according to estimates.

Venezuela, the group's third-biggest member, is the biggest cheater. With its economy in a shambles and its foreign exchange reserves dwindling fast, the country is currently pumping about 300,000 barrels a day more than its quota of 2.36 million b/d.

CBS shareholders approve networks's sale

By N.Y. Times News Service

New York — CBS Inc. shreholders Thursday approved selling the company to Westinghouse Electric Corp. for $5.4 billion, to create the largest U.S. broadcasting company.

Pittsburgh-based Westinghouse is to pay $81 a share for the slumping network and its television and radio stations in an acquisition that still must be cleared by the Federal Communications Commission.

About 51 million shares, or 79 percent of CBS's shares outstanding, were voted in favor of the transaction, which was announced Aug. 1.

"The merger makes tremendous economic sense," said CBS Chairman and Chief Executive Laurence Tisch, who will receive $11.6 million as payment for his CBS stock options and $1.2 million in severance pay when the sale is completed.

Tisch won't head Westinghouse-CBS. The top post will be held by Westinghouse Chairman and Chief Executive Michael H. Jordan, whose move last summer to acquire CBS was a departure from his previous plan to rebuild the company's struggling industrial businesses.

"Westinghouse will make the investments and provide the resources for our combined broadcasting enterprise to be a leader in news, sports and entertainment," Jordan said today. "We fully intend to make CBS the cornerstone of a broader media organization, grounded in its strength as an over-the-air broadcaster.

Jordan said Westinghouse won't announce the structure and leadership of the combined company until the FCC considers the sale. The FCC's clearance is expected by year-end.

Analysts said they think Westinghouse plans to retain CBS Entertainment President Leslie Moonves and CBS Broadcast Group President Peter Lund.

If the sale is approved by the FCC, Westinghouse would own 15 television stations and 39 radio stations, more than either General Electric Co.'s NBC unit or Capital Cities/ABC Inc. Walt Disney Co. is paying $19 billion in cash and stock to acquire Capital Cities.

Prices climb

NEW YORK — A sharp rise in crude oil prices led other energy futures upward Thursday as the market tried to balance increasing demand, tight supplies and the uncertainty of a top-level OPEC meeting next week.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in December settled at $18.19 per barrel, up 26 cents at the New York Mercantile Exchange. It traded as high as $18.20, blasting through the $18 level that had been a psychological barrier in the oil market for weeks. Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $16.50 a barrel.

"The only thing between the current oil price and $20 crude is the OPEC meeting," said George Gaspar, oil analyst at Robert W. Baird & Co. Inc., a Milwaukee investment firm.

Prices have been steadily rising up as non-OPEC production has declined in recent weeks. The latest inventory reports in the United States were lower than expected, providing another jolt to prices.

Natural gas prices were also higher, with contracts for delivery in December settling at $1.969 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 5 cents.

Car dealer honored

Wheeler Motor Co. in Stanton has been named "World Class" by the Buick Motor Division's Southwest Zone.

A "World Class" dealer must achieve an overall rating of 95 or higher for a 12-month period in customer surveys conducted after the purchase of a new vehicle regarding dealserhip performance. The dealer must also meet standards in areas of customer warranty satisfaction and service experiences as rated by the customer.

The award was presented by Sally Coppersmith, Buick's Southwest Sales Manager and Todd Nelson, Buick's Southwest Service Manager.

Wheeler has been in the Buick business in Stanton since 1947.

Dollar edges up

NEW YORK — The dollar edged up Thursday as traders paid little heed to the beltway budget battle, spurred by rallies in the U.S. stock and bond markets.

The dollar was aided in its climb against the Japanese yen by a sizable cut in Japan's trade surplus. It was helped higher against the German mark by falling interest rates in Europe.

In late New York trading, the dollar bought 102.09 yen, up from 101.38 at the same time Wednesday. The dollar also traded at 1.4069 German marks, up from 1.4062.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Wednesday: 1.1385 Swiss francs, up from 1.1377; 4.8545 French francs, down from 4.8550; 1,591 Italian lire, up from 1,588; and 1.3543 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3540.

The British pound was quoted at $1.5557, down from $1.5570.

Kmart loss

DETROIT — Lower profit margins, aggressive clearance sales and the costs of liquidating closed stores contributed to a $69 million third-quarter loss for Kmart Corp.
The discount retailer said Thursday its loss, which equaled 15 cents a share, compared with profit $39 million, or 8 cents a share, in the 1994 quarter.

IRA trustees have tables handy to set withdrawals

By Bill Doyle

Q: I am retired and will turn 70 in March. My Social Security benefit is only average, so I must draw on my small savings to help pay my bills. My home is paid up.

I have individual retirement accounts at banks and also in Exxon Corp. stock — approximately 250 shares. Which should I cash first and by how much? Will I have to pay a commission each time I cash Exxon stock?

Doyle

A: You will be required to start taking money out of your IRAs by April 1 following the year in which you reach age 70 1/2. For you, that will be April 1, 1997.

The rules mandate that your annual withdrawals be at least equal to amounts that will exhaust your IRAs over your life expectancy or the joint life expectancy of you and your IRA beneficiary.

The amount you must withdraw each year is determined by dividing the total value of all your IRAs on Jan. 1 by the appropriate life expectancy number.

All IRA trustees and sponsors have those life expectancy tables handy. So your banks and Exxon will be able to tell you the exact size of the withdrawals you will be required to make.

As a participant in more than one IRA, the rules permit you to pick the one from which you make the first withdrawals — leaving the other intact until later.

Based on current prices, your Exxon stock is valued at about $19,000. If your other IRAs are worth more, my advice is to leave the Exxon shares alone for now — as a hedge against inflation.

Start your withdrawals from the bank IRAs, which probably are in certificates of deposit — beginning with the CD paying the lowest interest. When the total amount remaining in your bank IRAs gets near the value of your Exxon stock, that will be a logical time to switch your withdrawals and take money out of that stock IRA.

Exxon is one of a small but growing number of companies offering IRAs as extensions of their dividend reinvestment plans. Assuming that's the way you got into the Exxon IRA, there will be no broker's commission when you unload shares — just as there was none when you bought. But if you have that stock in a self-directed IRA at a brokerage firm, you pay a commission on every purchase and sale.

Q: Can stocks, bonds, mutual fund shares, etc., be transferred out of an IRA into another account I have at the same brokerage firm and be treated as an IRA distribution equal to the market value of the securities so transferred?

I'm getting a "yes" answer from one broker and a "no" answer from another.

A: You're talking about a "distribution in kind." The Internal Revenue Service insists on calling withdrawals from IRAs "distributions."

No federal regulation prohibits the transfer you mention. However, various brokerages might have "in house" rules preventing it. That, no doubt, is the reason you're getting different answers and might be a good reason to move your IRA.

Q: Because I am past age 71 and still employed, the taxes on my IRA withdrawals are relatively high. I have heard of a ruling that, in my circumstances, IRA withdrawals can be based on contributions made only after 1986.

That, of course, would lower the required annual withdrawal and reduce the tax. Is there such a ruling?

A: No! It's a nice thought for IRA participants who are well along in years and who would like to leave large sums in IRAs for their heirs. But it has no basis in fact.

After you pass age 70 1/2, you must make withdrawals based on all the money in your single IRA or multiple IRAs. You can no longer put money into your IRA, but you are required to take money out.

Horry gets career-high 40 to make up for Drexler's absence

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Robert Horry made up for Clyde Drexler's absence with a career-high 40 points in the Houston Rockets' 115-87 rout of the Milwaukee Bucks on Thursday night.

One night after giving Houston a 96-93 victory over Toronto with a 3-pointer at the buzzer — his only basket of the game — Horry hit eight 3-pointers against the Bucks, including five in the second half.

One of them, just before the third-period buzzer, put the Rockets ahead 94-67 and broke his previous career high of 30 points, set against Sacramento on April 14, 1994.

Horry was 16-of-26 one night after a 1-for-5 shooting performance. His eighth 3-pointer gave the Rockets a 107-82 lead with six minutes left.

Hakeem Olajuwon added 24 points and 12 rebounds as Houston won its fourth straight game.

Magic 89, Pacers 80

ORLANDO, Fla. — Anfernee Hardaway scored 30 points and Dennis Scott 21 as the Orlando Magic continued to win without Shaquille O'Neal, beating the depleted Indiana Pacers 89-80 Thursday night for its sixth straight victory.

The Pacers were without four starters due to suspensions and injuries.

Orlando improved the NBA's best record to 7-1, including a 6-0 mark at home, despite the absence of O'Neal. He will be sidelined until late December with a broken right thumb.

The Pacers played without starters Reggie Miller, Dale Davis and Mark Jackson as well as reserve Fred Hoiberg, who were serving suspensions for their roles in a bench-clearing brawl with the Sacramento Kings last week.

NBA readies itself for life without refs

NEW YORK (AP) — The NBA presented a new proposal to its locked-out referees Thursday, and said a third official will be added to two-man replacement crews if there is no agreement by Dec. 4.

The sides met for more than five hours, a day after they talked for the first time since Oct. 28. The NBA said its proposal provides average 10 percent annual increases over five years.

The proposal, the league said, would pay starting officials $85,000 per year and top-scale officials $261,000 this season. In the last year of the deal, starting officials would make $90,000 and top-scale referees would be paid $328,000.

Brown's son dies of complications

DALLAS (AP) — The 10-week-old son of Dallas Cowboys cornerback Larry Brown died Thursday of complications resulting from his premature birth.

Life support that had sustained Christopher Brown, who weighed one pound when he was born three months prematurely, were disconnected Wednesday, the Cowboys said.

Team spokesman Brett Daniels declined to provide more details Thursday. However, Cowboys free safety Darren Woodson disclosed the death of the child.

Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said he did not expect Brown to join them for Sunday's game against the Oakland Raiders.

"That's a tragic situation," Switzer said. "It has been in the back of our minds all along ... Obviously, he has to handle his business."

Rookie Alundis Brice, a fourth-round draft choice with one interception to his credit in limited play, will substitute for Brown.

Carrey on, wayward son

'Ace' star holds all the cards with high asking price

By Bob Strauss
N.Y. Times News Service

■ 'Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls' is playing at Midland Park Mall.

LOS ANGELES — The who-knows-how-many-million-dollar question of the moment is: Who's afraid of Jim Carrey?

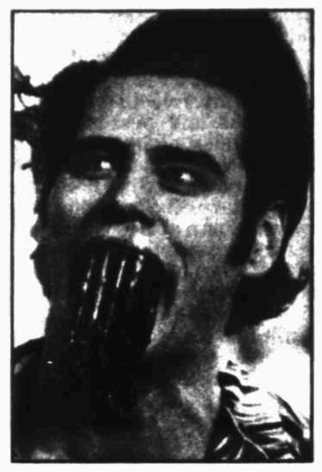

Apparently, anyone who can't afford his $20 million asking price. The superstar comedian's new feature film, "Ace Ventura: When Nature Calls," opens nationwide today with no new studio competition in sight.

Expectations are that the sequel to "Ace Ventura, Pet Detective" will be the biggest hit of what has been a dreadful fall box-office season, and no one wants their movie to be in its way.

The Wesley Snipes-Woody Harrelson action picture "Money Train" and Martin Scorsese's three-hour Vegas mob epic "Casino" were recently moved from projected Nov. 10 release dates to Nov. 22. And "Jumanji," a Robin Williams fantasy that also features lots of animals, is now opening in mid-December after initially being scheduled for Nov. 17 — when, presumably, the "Ace" tsunami will still be cresting.

Of course, release date juggling happens all the time, especially as the lucrative and highly competitive holiday season approaches. But something about "When Nature Calls" definitely smells like an 800-pound gorilla, and you don't want to open your expensive holiday picture in the same multiplex with it.

As more and more people flock to see films made by Jim Carrey, right, more and more dollars flock to the pet detective's pockets.

Meet the Beatles — one more time

"They were doing things nobody was doing. Their chords were outrageous, just outrageous, and their harmonies made it all valid. ... Everybody else thought they were for the teenyboppers, that they were going to pass right away. But it was obvious to me that they had staying power. I knew they were pointing the direction where music had to go."

LOS ANGELES — When Nathen Maxwell wakes up most days, he slaps on "Rubber Soul," a Beatles' album released more than a decade before he was born.

Maxwell, 17, considers Fab Four tracks among the greatest music he has ever heard.

He even has a favorite Beatle: Ringo.

Take that, Michael Stipe, the R.E.M. singer who has said the Beatles produced nothing but "elevator music" and are irrelevant today.

But Beatlemania is alive and well — and bridging generations.

Tight security surrounds new release

By David Bauder
Associated Press Writer

Extra security is stationed outside the Capitol Records compact disc plant in Jacksonville, Fla., where millions of copies of the first new Beatles music in 25 years are being produced.

Capitol is hoping to dump the first of three boxed sets on the market the day after ABC-TV's Nov. 19 airing of "Free As a Bird," the first of two newly completed Beatles songs.

In addition to the curiosity factor involved in the new recordings, the anthology series promises to be a treasure trove for Beatlemaniacs who are starved for something — anything — different from the limited body of work the group left behind.

Stones crash Fab Four's party with latest album, 'Stripped'

Associated Press

NEW YORK — They're a pair of perfect hosts, with drastically different styles: Mick Jagger and Keith Richards.

Jagger, in a sport coat, welcomes a guest to his 50th-floor suite in the posh Four Seasons hotel. "Have we met before?" he inquires, a spectacular view of lower Manhattan unfolding behind him. He sits politely for 20 minutes of questions, sipping an Evian water.

Richards, in a black vest over a denim shirt over a silk shirt, immediately steers his guest to the well-stocked bar of his Upper East Side hotel suite, offering this raspy encouragement: "Help yourself, man. E.M.G." What's that, Keith? "E.M.G. — everything must go," he smiles, handing over a bottle of Beck's.

Jagger and Richards, bandmates since 1962, have evolved into rock's yin and yang. Jagger has thrived, Keith has survived, and both were in Manhattan a week apart to plug the band's new live acoustic record, "Stripped."

Jagger, 52, still has the lean body of a dancer. He spins amusing anecdotes — one involves the Stones opening for Petula Clark at a Paris theater in the early 1960s. He is alternately funny, charming, witty, self-deprecating.

Richards, 51, chain-smokes between sips of two industrial-sized cocktails parked in front of him. His answers are more stream of consciousness, the questions mere interruptions. He flits from recording studio technology to Louie Armstrong's big

'American President': Airing the chief exec's laundry

By Michael Price
N.Y. Times News Service

■ "The American President" is playing at the UA Cine 4.

Call him Norman Rockwell with a camera, and an agenda: For better than a decade now, Rob Reiner has been Hollywood's most productively polarized filmmaker.

A liberal in political terms but an arch-conservative in terms of plain filmmaking technique, Reiner has artfully used these bearings to infiltrate the entertainment mainstream with notions of kindliness and common decency that might get short shrift in films of more "artistic" pretensions. "When Harry Met Sally ..." and "The Princess Bride" are typical of Reiner's well-received pleasantries.

His new one, "The American President," is Reiner's most upbeat effort yet, and it deserves to become a hit, if only for the generous opportunity it provides to see Michael Douglas break loose from erotic-thriller typecasting.

Douglas has the title role, playing a chief executive in the style of an idealized Kennedy. A widower with a daughter to raise, President Andrew Shepherd (Douglas) is distracted from his pursuit of difficult human-rights legislation by the arrival of Annette Bening. She is intense and witty as a hot-shot environmental lobbyist who reawakens the chief's romantic interests.

Their dating, of course, makes irresistible bait for the Capitol Hill gossips. This wholesome, hesitant romance ignites a vicious assault on Shepherd by Republican grouch Bob Rumson (played by Richard Dreyfuss), who uses the courtship as an example of collapsed "family values" within the very heart of the government.

BEATLES: Even '90s youths feel band's influences

(From 1D)

Beatles' songs, for instance, are about the only music Maxwell, who attended high school in Redondo Beach, and his parents agree upon.

"There are bands today that are great in different ways, but nobody has material that will last as long as the Beatles' stuff," he said.

Fans of all ages will get a chance to take a second look at the life and times of history's most influential and best-loved pop group Sunday night when KABC (Channel 7) airs the first part of a British-made six-hour Beatles documentary. The following Tuesday, an album of obscure Beatles tunes called "Anthology, Vol. 1," will be released, with two more volumes arriving later.

The new single, "Free as a Bird," links a recording of John Lennon's voice with backing vocals from the three surviving Beatles.

Fans — many of them today's musicians — couldn't be happier with the new Beatles bonanza.

"They were beautiful songs," said Chanteuse Amel Larrieux, 22, half of the hit soul-r&b duo Groove Theory, who fondly recalls hearing Beatles albums playing around the house as she was growing up.

"I loved them along with Stevie Wonder, Marvin Gaye, Billie Holiday and others from that time. I still love them," she said.

The influence of the Beatles can be seen all over the charts. Boyz II Men, Phish, Oasis and Pearl Jam, among many others, cover Beatles tunes. Smashing Pumpkins' new double album is full of ambitious Beatles-like material.

Last year's "Live at the BBC" (Capitol), a two-disc set of rare radio performances from the early '60s, sold close to 10 million copies.

"People take it for granted how influential the Beatles were," said Kevn Kinney, 34, of Atlanta's rootsy Drivin' N' Cryin', which sometimes performs "Tomorrow Never Knows." "Rarely does a band these days ever say in interviews that the Beatles were a major influence because it's a moot point. The Beatles influenced everyone."

Even the Beatles' longtime producer, George Martin, never imagined the four leather-jacketed rockers he signed in 1962 would develop into the sort of writers and musicians that would create such works of everlasting value as "Strawberry Fields Forever," "Fool on the Hill," "A Day in the Life" or many of the songs on the "White Album."

"The songs they were writing at the beginning were not as good as they became," Martin said. "They grew enormously and very, very quickly after their first recordings ("Love Me Do," "Please Please Me," "I Want to Hold Your Hand"). 'Love Me Do' was the best they could offer at the beginning. Then, gradually, they got better and more enthusiastic and realized they could create stuff in the studio they couldn't do outside. It was wonderful to see them grow in that way."

The question is, why now? Why have Paul McCartney, George Harrison, Ringo Starr and Lennon's widow, Yoko Ono, come together today, a full quarter-century after the quartet officially disbanded with the release of its swan song, "Let It Be"? Call it the long and winding road to the bank.

Paul McCartney told the November issue of the British music magazine Mojo that it was when longstanding business problems were resolved that the surviving members began planning a TV documentary and anthology.

"Looking at it was an amazing replay of your own life, the official version of my life," McCartney, 53, said in Mojo. "It was a bit shocking to see my personality so clearly portrayed because you don't know it — people always know you a little bit better. The biggest shock was to see I was cornier than I thought I was."

The remaining Beatles may have been seeking a sense of closure after the band's acrimonious split in 1970 and Lennon's murder in New York a decade later, said Martin Lewis, who is producing and hosting a salute to the band for E! Entertainment Television, to be shown Nov. 24.

"None of the others had a chance to say goodbye to John," Lewis said. "He was taken suddenly, and that was that. And the way the band ended was ugly and not very happy. Here, they had a chance to blend modern technology with old-fashioned heart. The survivors had to do it in their own time. They wanted the story to have a happy ending."

Whatever the reason for the Beatles' return, the group's legions of fans keep growing. Capitol Records consultant Lewis, host of the annual Beatlefest fan conventions in New York and Los Angeles, said the Beatles' enduring music is drawing new audiences all the time.

"When I first started hosting the conventions, I expected aging baby boomers looking for a chance to relive the glory days of the '60s," Lewis, 43, said. "But fully half the people are 25 and under, born after the breakup. The Beatles aren't about nostalgia. It's the music, which is wonderful, joyous and timeless. And more importantly, the Beatles lived in difficult times but always found the positive. They were optimistic and looked for the best things in human nature. And they didn't take themselves so seriously.

"John, Paul, George and Ringo didn't sit around in grungy jeans and complain about their lot in life. And that communicates to young people. You put on a Beatles song and it makes you happy. Not naively, stupidly happy, but an intelligent sort of happy."

That sums up the feelings of Maxwell, one of the younger fans who never got to see the band play live.

"They wrote real songs," he said. "They're timeless."

Not everyone agrees. In fact the old Beatles-Rolling Stones debate is still around.

"I heard 'The White Album' for the first time and it seemed so self-indulgent and quaint," said computer worker Joel Canter, 22, of Sherman Oaks. "They barely had enough songs to make a good record. The sound is wimpy, but maybe that's because people my age are used to loud guitars. Paul McCartney's songs have always been syrupy, but I like John Lennon because he sounded like he meant it. As far as music from that time, the Rolling Stones are exciting to me."

SECURITY: Fab Four anthology, under tight wraps, aims toward Tuesday release

(From 1D)

The first anthology contains several unreleased recordings, including two that date back to 1958, some live performances and alternate takes of many old favorites.

Those who have heard most of the material, while not trying to dampen the hype surrounding part one, suggest the more intriguing and valuable recordings will come with the second and third sets next year.

"Free As a Bird" is attracting the most interest. The three surviving Beatles went into the studio to add voices and instruments to a home recording left behind, and never released, by the late John Lennon. It reportedly was written in response to Lennon's victory over immigration authorities in the 1970s.

The set also will include two 1958 recordings by the Quarry Men, the Liverpool band that featured Lennon, Paul McCartney and George Harrison and predated the Beatles. They cover Buddy Holly's hit, "That'll Be the Day." Three other original songs from pre-Beatlemania days also are included.

Five songs are featured from the Beatles' January 1962 audition with Decca Records, when they were turned down by executives who thought guitar groups were on the way out.

Other previously unreleased material on the CD from the Beatles' early days include "How Do You Do It," a song later recorded by Gerry and the Pacemakers, and "Leave My Kitten Alone," an old rhythm and blues number sung by Lennon.

Several "alternate" versions of well-known songs show how the Beatles experimented before settling on an approach.

"Listening to the songs, the working versions of the songs, enables one to feel almost as if you're working with them in the studio. It's a chance to eavesdrop on the creative process," said Mark Lewisohn, author of six Beatles books.

Lewisohn, who's writing the liner notes for all three anthology CDs, and Capitol executives won't discuss the material on the succeeding discs. But Lewisohn suggests the material improves simply because the Beatles spent much more time in the studio.

"There is somewhat of a paucity of material during the early years," he said. "Once they got into working in the studio, at Abbey Road, the material got a lot more interesting. I think this is an interesting first double CD. I think the other two doubles will be better."

The second "new" Beatles song, "Real Love," is another Lennon recording left behind and sweetened by the others. It's actually been released before: on a soundtrack to the movie "Imagine." The Beatles use a slightly different version, according to the CD newsletter, Ice.

An attempt at cobbling together a third "new" song from Lennon's archives reportedly failed.

Alternative versions of "Lucy in the Sky With Diamonds," "I'm Only Sleeping," "Yesterday," "Getting Better" and "Magical Mystery Tour" are expected in the later sets.

The second set will be released in February — to have "Real Love" in the stores for Valentine's Day romantics — and the third sometime in the spring, said Bruce Kirkland, Capitol's executive vice president.

The company already is planning to combine all of the CDs in a boxed set, together with still more material mined from the archives, for release before Christmas 1996.

CARREY: 'Ace' opens Christmas movie season

(From 1D)

"The waters have parted around Nov. 10," said Barry Reardon, president of distribution for Warner Bros., which releases the "Ace" films. "As we moved closer in the fall, all these pictures started to peel away and find different dates. Basically, all the exhibitors and distributors said, 'Watch out, "Ace Ventura's" coming.' "

It is no surprise that other studios cleared the way for the popular comedian's latest movie, leaving "the film a wide berth," said David Davis, entertainment analyst for the investment banking firm of Houlihan, Lokey, Howard and Zukin.

"Carrey's momentum is continuing to build," he said. "When you have a film that appeals across the board to a wide demographic, sometimes those films are so huge no kind of counterprogramming works. Anything that gets in its way could be swallowed up."

Analysts are predicting "When Nature Calls' " box office gross over this semi-holiday Veterans Day weekend will land somewhere between $20 million and $30 million. And while that has scared competitors away, it has attracted exhibitors like happy, hungry flies.

" 'Ace' really starts Christmas for us; today is our Christmas Day," said a film buyer for a major West Coast theater chain who didn't want to be named. "We've suffered through a bad fall, mostly because of movies people didn't want to see. Frankly, we can't really get the movie on screens fast enough."

And Hollywood's A-list celebrities, including such seemingly unlikely "Ace" fans as Dustin Hoffman and Al Pacino, apparently couldn't see it too soon, either. A huge contingent of stars turned out for "When Nature Calls' " glittery Westwood premiere Wednesday night. One wonders how many in that crowd were afraid not to show up.

'It Takes Two' entirely too cute for words

By Michael Price
N.Y. Times News Service

Looks like a real power year for Steve Guttenberg, who has three pictures in near-simultaneous play.

But no — hold on: The poor guy's showcases are a lesser supporting role in "Home for the Holidays," a lame juvenile sports comedy called "The Big Green," and now this new sticky mess called "It Takes Two."

Opening this weekend in too many theaters, "It Takes Two" wastes not only Guttenberg but also the radiant Kirstie Alley, who remains altogether too good for the kind of sitcom dreck that has long defined her career.

Anyway, it's back home to Cute City for both Guttenberg and Alley, who wind up playing second banana to the toxically precious Olsen Twins. In "It Takes Two" Alley portrays a social worker with a special attachment to a feisty, streetwise urchin named Amanda (Mary-Kate Olsen). Guttenberg plays a fantastically wealthy widower whose daughter, Alyssa (Ashley Olsen), is the center of his very universe; even so, he's a neglectful jerk.

Neither Guttenberg nor Alley thinks much about the glories of love, until these two vexatious little girls chance to meet and, discovering that "they look exactly alike," conspire to exchange places and manipulate these two lonely grown-ups into marriage.

You've heard the tale before — "The Prince and the Pauper," "The Parent Trap," "The Patty Duke Show" and so forth — and director/co-author Andy Tennant adds only a veneer of sugar and sass.

PRESIDENT: Urgency underlies pleasure

(From 1D)

Reiner two years ago on "A Few Good Men," has come up with a sufficiently novel concept. But he and Reiner deepen the situation with realistic, characterizing dialogue (as opposed to clever chatter), a sense of urgency underlying the basically lighthearted yarn, and as true a portrayal of Washington protocol as the screen has seen. If you've ever wondered how the president of the United States might go about making a confidential telephone call, here's a glimpse inside.

The scenario is just lifelike enough to make the audience wonder: Who are these guys supposed to be based on?

Actually, the picture is pure what-if? fiction, but most viewers will have their own ideas of what life-models might have been used. The chief antagonist is easy enough to guess — a Gingrich? a Dole? a Gramm? — but the president himself is a stumper. Probably no chief executive in history has had so unsullied a personal background as Douglas' squeaky-clean politico.

STONES: Limits to commercialization

bands to the relationship between record companies and arms dealers.

A silver skull ring gleams in the light as Richards waves his right hand to emphasize his words — this time, about the Stones' megabucks deal with Microsoft for the rights to use "Start Me Up" in its "Windows '95" campaign.

The agreement was a first for the band, which once mocked commercialism in "(I Can't Get No) Satisfaction."

"I have no sell-out phobia," Richards growled. "This is '95, baby, and the world's changing. ... I never said, 'Buy heroin.' Leave that to me!" He laughed heartily.

Jagger, who dismissed reports that the Stones collected $12 million from Microsoft, acknowledged that he was not thrilled by the deal.

"I did have concerns, and I voiced them," Jagger said seriously. "I'd rather not go into all the details, but I did have concerns. I think the product you're involved with is kind of important.

"I don't want to do dog food," Jagger continued. Then, with a smile coming to his famous lips, he continued: "Though if you're out there, Purina ..."
