Death toll reaches 37 in dam break

Associated Press Writer

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — Searchers slogged through debris littered red mud in search of more bodies today in the wreckage of a low-lying campus area where at least 37 persons died after a torrent of water burst from an earthen dam and smashed through the pastoral setting of a small Bible college.

About 45 persons were injured.

At midmorning, Stephens County Hospital administrator J. W. Warren said that the bodies of two persons reported missing had been found. But he said later he had been "misinformed."

Twenty youngsters, children of students or faculty members at the Toccoa Falls Bible College, were among those who died when the floodwaters hit at 1:30 a.m. Sunday. Most of the other victims were students or teachers at the college. Two volunteer firemen who were trying to reach the college's housing area to give the only warning of the flood also died.

Some of the students who died were trapped in a four-story men's dormitory, which had 40 residents. Twelve of the 45 persons injured were hospitalized.

The path of destruction was described as about 2½ miles long and 1,500 feet wide, most of it near the area where a creek, fed by a reservoir, makes a sharp turn at the foot of two hills in the campus community called Toccoa Falls, about two miles outside the northeastern Georgia community of Toccoa. Two trailer parks nestled at the foot of the hills, primary housing areas for married students, were leveled.

Eldon Elsberry, a volunteer fireman, said he and two other firemen saw the water cascade down Toccoa Creek about 1:30 a.m.

"I looked up and I saw red water that was really starting to move," he said. "We ran and got into a Jeep. We were going to turn the sirens on and wake people up."

He said the Jeep was swamped before they could cross a bridge to a trailer park. Elsberry got hold of a small tree but his partners were lost.

"I woke up last night and heard a noise and the lights went out," said one young man who recounted the disaster at memorial services Sunday. "I grabbed my wife and kids. I knew God had us in his hands."

First Lady Rosalynn Carter, who flew from Washington, was among those who inspected the disaster scene on Sunday. She later said the scene was "indescribable." She told a news conference, "It's a terrible tragedy." She visited survivors at a hospital, touching their arms and whispering encouragement.

She told Toccoa's 9,000 residents and the college students that President Carter had promised federal assistance.

Gov. George Busbee, who also inspected the flood area, said the dam that broke above Toccoa Falls had been declared a high-hazard dam by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The hazard designation does not mean such dams are structurally unsafe but that if they break, damage would be significant, a corps spokesman said.

The dam was constructed in 1940 to provide water and electrical power to the college, although in recent years it has been used only as a recreation area.

Students and faculty members held a memorial service Sunday. One young woman prayed, "Help Rick to be found, Lord, dead or alive. Not knowing is hard."

Another young woman asked prayers for a friend whose husband and daughter were missing. She prayed, "Put your arms around her."

Rain had fallen intermittently in the Southeast and northern Georgia in particular since Wednesday. The National Weather Service reported three inches of rainfall in Athens, Ga., about 40 miles from Toccoa Falls, fell Saturday.

Nine other persons, six of them children, died in flood-related incidents in North Carolina over the weekend.

The heavy rainfall weakened the Toccoa Falls Dam, sending tons of water from the 80-acre lake down the 186-foot Toccoa Falls and into the creek, which meanders through the campus area.

"There was this awful screaming and the ripping of metal," said Bill Stacy, 19, who lived in a mobile home with his parents, two brothers and a sister. "It is a miracle, but we all got out, and my parents helped hunt for the bodies later."

College President Kenn Opperman said an inspection of some road repair work along the reservoir was made last week but the check "had nothing to do with checking to see whether or not there was fault in the dam, but whether contracted work had been accomplished."

Opperman said the only previous problem in his four years in office occurred about a year ago, when water spilled over the dam and caused some $100,000 damage.

The college, established in 1907, had about 450 students living on campus. Another 100 commuted to classes.

Carter cancels foreign trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has postponed his foreign trip set for later this month because he wants to remain in Washington while Congress considers his energy program.

The State Department announcement today of Carter's decision confirms earlier reports that the president was going to scrap the tour of nine nations. The announcement also indicated Carter would make the trip later.

The announcement by Secretary of State Cyrus Vance said the governments of the nine nations had been informed of Carter's decision over the weekend.

Carter indicated in his postponement message to the nine foreign governments that he hoped a mutually convenient date could be found for a visit in the "near future," according to Vance's statement.

Carter had been scheduled to visit Venezuela, Brazil, Nigeria, Saudi Arabia, Iran, India, Poland, France, and Belgium from Nov. 22 to Dec. 2.

Carter asserted in his postponement message that his personal involvement was vital to the development of sound energy legislation, Vance said.

Vance added that Carter considers passage of the administration's energy program "crucial to the overall health of the American economy and of great importance to all energy-producing and energy-consuming nations."

Carter had said repeatedly that he would postpone his planned travels if Congress was still considering his energy program.

The four-continent trip was to have included visits to the four leading sources of U.S. oil imports. The four — Iran, Saudi Arabia, Venezuela and Nigeria — are members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Carter had been expected to press the OPEC members to hold the line on prices, arguing that any price hike would endanger the world economy.

The 13-nation members of OPEC meet in Venezuela next month to weigh a possible price increase.

School board to review renovations

The Pampa School Board will meet in emergency session at 4 p.m. Tuesday to review architect's plans for renovations and construction at the senior and junior high schools.

The meeting will be in the Carver Educational Service Center board conference room, and the school board also will meet in executive session to consider personnel matters.

Cubs create pushmobiles

Fifty-nine pushmobiles participated in the annual Cub Scout Pushmobile Derby Sunday. The event was sponsored by Coca-Cola.

The homemade vehicles were created out of such things as lawnmowers, kiddie cars, wagon wheels, tractor seats, boxes, kitchen chairs, and even a sled.

The simplest vehicles seemed to go the fastest, but many were a bit more complex and some cars looked heavier than the Scouts who were pushing them.

Cub Scout Pack 498 of Pampa entered a three-wheeled, triangular model painted red, white and blue.

The team of nine-year-olds included Lance Reader, Cliff Edwards, Patrick Webb, Greg Sokolosky, Jay Clark, Kevin Jacoby, Darwynn Nail and Dierk Milum.

Asked for his assessment of the team's chances of winning, Lance said, "Well, I don't know," but the other team members displayed more jubilant optimism, shouting, "Yeah, we'll win."

A crowd of spectators estimated at 3,000 turned out for the event. It was a beautiful, calm, warm Sunday afternoon and the Coke was flowing.

The eight racers of Pack 498 were chomping at the bits. When their age group was called they ran to get in place, screaming and yelling along the way.

Three cars raced at a time. Pack 498 got the middle lane. The blue checkered flag dropped; the crowd was cheering; all the energy that had been kept bottled inside the little blue-clad boys' bodies burst out in concentrated effort and they ran and pushed and tried.

It took them two minutes and 12 seconds, but the boys of Pack 498 crossed the finish line ahead of the other two teams and won the heat.

Next was the nine-year-old elimination race. All the winners of all the heats in that category lined up for the contest.

Site of the competition was behind the Coronado Shopping Center on Sumner Street. Cars, vans, campers and trucks lined both sides of the street.

Again Pack 498 lined up. Again they were fired up for the effort. Again they ran and pushed and tried.

But this time they simply were outrun. A team from Guymon, Okla., took the title.

The event was not without a bit of comedy because at some points the derby seemed to be demolition instead of pushmobile. Those who were not expert at steering would crash into the curb, fall over, or swerve into their opponents' lanes.

There is a 40 percent chance of showers for Pampa and vicinity today, with a 60 percent chance tonight and Tuesday. The high today will be near 70 (21 degrees C) with a low tonight in the upper 40's (8 degrees C). Tuesday's high will be in the upper 60's (19 degrees C). Winds are from the south at 10 to 15 m.p.h.

Light voter turnout expected

By Associated Press
and Pampa News Staff

A light absentee voter turnout was reported in Gray County for the Tuesday election which includes the choice of a state senator for this district.

Wanda Carter, county clerk, reported 122 absentee votes cast, but added emergency voting is still possible for those who became ill after the absentee voting polls closed Friday and are unable to go to the polls Tuesday.

Those interested may contact the county clerk.

Carter estimated 13,000 registered voters here with 14 polling paces.

They include Lefors Community Center, Baker School in Pampa, Grandview School, Alanreed School, Senior Citizens Hall in McLean, Processing Plant at Laketon, Horace Mann School, Stephen F. Austin School, Woodrow Wilson School, Courthouse, Lamar School, Courthouse Annex and William B. Travis School, all in Pampa.

Voting Tuesday will be 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The five candidates who are seeking the senatorial seat vacated by Max Sherman include Bob Simpson, Mel Phillips, Burk Whittenburg, all Democrats, and Jim Brandon and Bob Price, Republicans.

State and local officials predict a light voter turnout for Tuesday's election that will decide the fate of seven state constitutional amendments as well as numerous local issues and races.

Houston and Dallas, where local controversies have heightened voter interest, are expected to provide most of the votes. Polling is from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The Texas Election Bureau estimates about 20 percent of Texas' 5.9 million eligible voters will cast ballots.

The secretary of state has no estimate but hopes there will be a turnout of more than 20 percent.

In Houston, voters will choose among 12 candidates in the mayor's race, decide a city council contest, name a new city comptroller, and select four school board members.

In Dallas, the voters will name a new state representative and determine the outcome of a $215 million bond package designed to finance a new courthouse, jail and other capital improvements.

The seven proposed amendments on the ballot were approved by the 1977 Legislature along with eight other proposals that will be on the November 1978 ballot.

The first proposition would increase the Court of Criminal Appeals from five to nine members. It also would permit the justices to sit in panels of three to speed review of cases appealed from local district courts. Proponents say the change would speed up justice and relieve the court's workload. Opponents say Texas has too many judges already, and it would be better to merge the criminal and civil courts, rather than encourage separate divisions.

The sixth proposition, probably the most controversial on the ballot, would let the legislature authorize Texas' national and state banks to use electronic devices in shopping centers and other remote locations to pay bills, make deposits, withdraw money and make other fund transfers. Supporters says it would augment the present checking system, giving customers an optional and speedier method of handling their money. Opponents see it as a foot-in-the-door for branch banking, which is prohibited by the constitution.

Proposition No. two would provide another $200 million for the veterans land program, plus allowing unmarried widows of veterans to buy land under the low down payment, low-interest terms.

Proposed amendment No. three would allow a district court to deny bail to a person accused of a felony while out on bail following a previous indictment. It also would deny bail to a repeat offender who is caught using a deadly weapon in committing another felony.

Proposition No. four would allow the legislature to grant exemptions from state property taxes to preserve cultural, historical or natural history sites.

Another proposed amendment, No. five would permit the legislature to let producers of poultry, livestock and other raw agricultural commodities to form associations and collect assessment on sales of their products to promote their business.

Amendment No. seven would change the name of the State Judicial Qualifications Commission to the State Commission on Judicial Conduct. It also would enlarge body from nine to 11 members.

IRS meets stalemate in quizzing Pampans

Two Pampans who reportedly filed Fifth Amendment income tax returns met briefly today in a courtroom in the Gray County Courthouse with IRS agents from Amarillo.

Filing of the Fifth Amendment return is one method employed by income tax protestors who say they comply with laws requiring an income tax return be filed, but refuse to provide the information requested on the form, claiming that to do so would be self incriminating.

About a half-dozen witnesses accompanied the two local citizens to a 9:30 meeting with the IRS agents.

Most of the witnesses were armed with tape recording devices.

Upon seeing this, the IRS agent conducting the session with the first of the two Pampans summoned drew from a briefcase her own tape recorder and fired it up.

The IRS agent then informed the witnesses with the recorders that there would be no recordings made of the meeting unless they were willing to sign a slip of paper idenlifying themselves. She asked if they would be willing to do so.

"Yes ma'am," one of the witnesses replied, "if you can show us a law where we have to."

She then referred to "Title 26 of the U.S. Code, Chapter 78, Section 7602."

The material referred to them was read, discussed, and its meaning disputed by the two sides.

Following a few minutes of discussion, the IRS agent said, "Our interpretation is they have to identify themselves, if not, this meeting is terminated."

The second of the Pampans summoned had sat in on the first meeting as a witness. His meeting was scheduled for the afternoon, but he requested it be moved up, since the agents and his witnesses already were there.

Another of the three IRS agents present took over for the second meeting.

He explained that the situation with the tape recorders, "probably isn't a law; this is more of an administrative procedure."

One of the witnesses then said they preferred to be governed by laws and not by department rules.

This agent asked the witnesses again if they would sign the slip of paper identifying themselves.

"I'm willing if you can show us a law," a witness replied again.

Shortly thereafter the second meeting was terminated.

Threats kept from Davis jury

By JIM BRIGANCE
Associated Press Writer

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Some of the startling testimony of a defense witness in the Cullen Davis capital murder will not be presented to the jury, State District Court Judge George Dowlen ruled today.

Sandy Myers, 27, testified Saturday that Davis' estranged wife Priscilla had hinted at trouble just before Stan Farr was shot to death. Mrs. Myers said that earlier Mrs. Davis said, "I've got to get rid of Stan."

Judge Dowlen told prosecution and defense lawyers of his ruling this morning before the trial was resumed.

The trial, which was scheduled to reconvene at 9 a.m., had not begun by midmorning.

The material that the judge will not allow before the jury includes threats allegedly made by W.T. Rufner against Farr and Mrs. Davis. Dowlen also said the jury would not hear Mrs. Myers' testimony about Mrs. Davis wanting to get rid of Farr.

Davis, whose pale, chiseled features betray little emotion, is the estranged, millionaire husband of Mrs. Davis and is on trial here in the Aug. 2, 1976 pistol-slaying of Andrea Wilborn, 12.

Miss Wilborn and Farr, Mrs. Davis' live-in boyfriend at the time, were gunned down in a puzzling bloodbath that left Mrs. Davis critically wounded along with Gus Gavrel, 22, a friend of family.

Mrs. Davis has claimed Davis shot her, Farr and Gavrel just as they arrived at the $6 million Fort Worth mansion shortly after midnight.

Davis and his girlfriend, Karen Master, have claimed Davis was asleep at Mrs. Masters' home at the time of the killings.

The trial, now running into its fifth month, was moved here from Fort Worth when attorneys were unable to seat a jury.

Short lesson on inflation

A recent item in the "Arizona Republic" points up how government intervention in the economy can ruin the best of well-laid plans.

According to the story, the town of Wyoming, Pennsylvania, population 4,000, had difficulty raising funds for its Bicentennial celebration last year. Being a forward - looking community, and hoping to make it possible for their descendants to profit from their experience, the townspeople came up with a plan to fund the Tricentennial 99 years from now. The plan:

The Bicentennial Committee last year wound up its business with a balance of $63 on hand which, with enthusiastic approval of the populace, was placed in a savings account payable to the Tricentennial planners, whoever they might be at the time.

Entering into the spirit of the plan, a local bank added $100 to the account, bringing the total to $163. This, under the plan, will remain in the savings account until the interest raises the principle to $500.

That plateau reached, the $500 will be transferred from the straight savings account to a certificates of deposit account, which pays a higher rate of interest.

Thus invested, the original $163 is calculated to swell to $100,000 by the year 2076 and be there waiting for the Tricentennial occasion when need for it arises.

Pretty clear, eh? A classic application of the "money working" idea.

"Maybe yes, maybe no," warned the Republic. For if the government continues to inflate the money supply at the present rate in the interim, by the time the Tricentennial rolls around the $100,000 on deposit won't be worth the original $163 in purchasing power.

Calling to mind, of course, inflation - ridden Germany where, in 1923, it took 6,000,000,000,000 marks to buy a pound of butter — if you could find the butter?

Exposure power

We have suspected that it is not the people in general of the northeast part of our nation who are against development of resources in their region. Those who oppose any industry engaged in bringing all of us our basic needs may be a little more noisy than their counterparts elsewhere. Or perhaps, the majority may be a bit more quiet in expressing their beliefs.

A speaker at a recent three - day gas and oil convention in Denver, bore out this premise. Former Gov. Philip W. Noel, of Rhode Island, said that a poll he conducted revealed 71 per cent of the people favored oil and gas development on the continental shelf; 70 per cent favored an oil and gas refinery in the state, 70 per cent favored a nuclear power plant and 68 per cent favored all three proposals.

The former governor said, "Most people in the Southwest and West think that people in the Northeast all graduate from Harvard, wear button down shirts and are against the oil and gas industry." The problem, he said, "is that the ultraliberals are a hyperactive group and we have a liberal press in the East. The conservative element likes to lead a quiet life."

Noel said the oil industry provided this country with the power to move the industrial revolution. "Without the efforts of the oil and gas industry to put a buck on the table and roll the dice, it wouldn't have happened," he added.

He said, "I'm a Democrat but I don't understand or accept Carter's energy policy. Nowhere in the policy is there a provision for developing the known oil and gas technology. More production means higher prices and higher earnings for oil companies. Who cares if someone makes a profit? Isn't that the incentive in free enterprise?"

Noel also urged oilmen to fight against further conversion of public lands to primitive areas used only by "animals and millionaires."

Running into these pungent comments while reading through the columns of the newspaper was like a bright ray of sunlight penetrating a musty, darkened room. We not only agree with the former governor but applaud his enlightened stand and forthright presentation. May his tribe increase.

We can add little to what he said but perhaps in our way, we can add somewhat to the exposure.

A weekly report on new developments in the marketplace that are expected to affect your life

SHOPPING: Over in England, scientists have come up with a new way to catch shoppers who switch price labels. And if it works, you can bet your last pound it will turn up in the U. S. Here's how it works: At each checkout counter, there's a microphone and a twin video display unit. The checker reads the item code number and the price into the microphone. A computer "hears" the information and displays the product data including the brand name on the checker's tube and the price on the customer's tube. If the customer has switched labels, the checker would be alerted by the product description, because the product data wouldn't match what he sees on the counter. One additional advantage (to the honest customer) is that she (or he) would be sure the correct price was being charged.

TELEVISION: There seems little doubt that the next "big ticket" appliance you buy is going to be the video cassette tape recorder, even at $1,000 and up and extras like your very own TV camera (about $400). No less than 18 different units are expected to be on the market in the near future. So (you may ask) how is it going to affect your life, aside from reducing your bankroll? Early surveys indicate that purchasers watch even more television than before to see programs they would otherwise have missed, and tape programs that will keep little kids quiet. All of which you might have expected. Bootlegged tapes also are beginning to turn up.

UTILITIES: The utilities call it a "radio controlled loan management system." Ordinary folks would call it a "black box." And what it does is permit the utility to cut off electricity to various appliances for limited periods when they can't cope with the demand for power. Basically, the "black box" is an FM radio receiver (which goes into the customer's house) and transmitter (located at the utility). About 30 utilities are testing the system and one, for example, notes that on an excessively warm day it can turn off a thousand air conditioners for a little while and thus inconvenience only a few customers.

TUNNELS: As land becomes scarcer, it's inevitable that more activities will move underground. Poland, for example, has a hospital in an old salt mine that soon will have 500 beds. In the Kansas City area, offices, factories, and warehouses now exist in caverns. All this is brought to mind by a new tunnel boring machine being tested at Thunder Bay, Ontario, which is reducing costs and work time. The usual method for lining tunnels, especially in soft ground, involves excavation and placing steel ribs and lumber supports, followed by lining with concrete. The new device is modified so that as it tunnels, the pre-cast concrete lining is being assembled in the machine's tailpiece and moved right into its permanent place.

COMPUTERS: A job breakthrough may be in the offing for many handicapped people, all because it's possible to hook terminals at remote locations to a computer. LIFT, Inc., a nonprofit Chicago firm, trained a small group of handicapped to do computer programming and to use the terminals (typewriters hooked to video screens). Then it got several large firms to hire them. Because the workers are stuck at home, they are able to work without the interruptions common in the office.

SPACE: Just how soon will we have colonies in space? Don't hold your breath. A small group of top scientists has pondered the matter and concluded that an essential first step is development of a self-replenishing "ecosystem." That's one in which carbon dioxide could be converted into usable oxygen (for breathing) and carbon (which could be synthesized into protein and carbohydrate). What's needed, the experts say, is sufficient funding to support the research.

Doctors warn of disaster

By RONALD KOTULAK
(Chicago Tribune)

Socialized medicine would be a disaster for this country, warned two doctors from England and Australia who said that nationalized health care has failed in their countries.

"It has flopped in Britain and I think we may see the pendulum swing back to more private care," said Dr. Patrick Wood of Ipswich, England, one of the few private practitioners in that country.

The doctors are part of a group sponsored by the Congress of County Medical Societies that is making a barn-storming tour of America to warn of the perils of socialized medicine.

"The Chicago seminar is one of 37 being held through the nation during October to alert the medical community and the general public to the fact that much of the national legislation now proposed can lead to deterioration of what is the finest health system in the world today," said Dr. Francis A. Davis of Shawnee, Okla., the congress group's president.

Congress is considering a number of bills that would set up a National Health Insurance program. The bills range from making only moderate changes in the nation's health care system to having the federal government take over all care. President Carter is expected to unveil his NHI plan early next year.

England, which nationalized health care 30 years ago, is suffering from inadequate care, a gross shortage of medical facilities and long waiting lines, Wood said at a press conference in Chicago.

The average patient with a non-emergency problem has to wait six to nine months to get into an English hospital, he said. For some procedures, such as a hip replacement, the wait can be as long as three to four years, he added.

Since the government pays for all care, doctors are swamped with patient visits and the average physician can only spend three to four minutes with each patient, he said.

"I want to advise Americans not to make the same mistakes we did," Wood said. "Socialized medicine doesn't work and it is falling apart in England, Australia, and Canada."

Australia attempted to socialize medicine in 1975 but it failed after five months, said Dr. Peter C. Arnold, president of the General Practitioners Society of Australia.

The Australian insurance program was supposed to cover everyone but many doctors and patients refused to participate, he said. Only one-fourth of the population is covered by the government plan and the rest pay for private insurance, he said.

Today in history

Today is Monday, Nov. 7, the 311th day of 1977. There are 54 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1917, the Bolsheviks overthrew the short-lived Kerensky government in Russia, and Lenin became the new head of government.

On this date:

In 1659, the Pyrenees were fixed as the boundary between France and Spain, ending a 24-year war.

In 1811, the Shawnee Indians were defeated in the Battle of Tippecanoe in Indiana.

In 1942, the Allied invasion of North africa began in World War II.

In 1944, Franklin Roosevelt was elected to an unprecedented fourth term.

In 1956, the British and French proclaimed a cease-fire in the Suez War in Egypt.

In 1966, Chinese diplomats walked out of the Bolshevik anniversary celebration in Moscow after hearing Soviet criticism of the Peking government.

Ten years ago: Egypt called for an urgent session of the United Nations Security Council to try to bring about a Middle East settlement between Israel and the Arab states.

Five years ago: President Richard Nixon defeated Democrat George McGovern in a landslide. Democrats retained control of both the Senate and the House.

Today's birthdays: Soprano Joan Sutherland is 51 years old. Evangelist Billy Graham is 59.

For 118 years, between 1795 and 1918, Poland did not exist. The last of three partitions among Russia, Prussia and Austria, in 1795, erased the nation of Poland from the map of Europe and not until after World War I did it reappear.

Your Birthday

Nov. 8, 1977

This coming year you may surprise others and even yourself by your imaginative approach to money matters. Put those ideas to work for you. There's a good chance for increased income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your concern for others is commendable today. However, you should be very careful not to overextend yourself in a misguided attempt to do good.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Inside tips on big deals from well-meaning friends should be carefully eyed today. They could be like a gittering watch with no mainspring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) For the sake of good public relations today, treat everyone impartially. As soon as you bestow the least bit of favoritism, someone will be hurt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your advice is quite sound today and will be very helpful. The problem is that you don't take to heart the same wisdom you impart.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) To begin with, this isn't a good day to take gambles. The odds against you are even greater if you have no voice in calling the shots.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to impress others today, you may resort to embellishing the facts. This will probably have exactly the opposite effect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, you desire grandeur. Bigness isn't always beautiful or best, so stay within the realm of practicality.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Although your judgment is amazingly accurate in many ways, in financial affairs you miss the boat by failing to see the small parts that make up the whole.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, relying on Lady Luck and your good looks may be a mistake. Both can help, but it will take some honest effort to finish the job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be able today to distinguish between optimism and false hope, or the sand castles will be swept way with the first tide.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions contributing to your stability are a mixed bag today. Unfortunately, misplaced faith may lure in the wrong direction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's very important today that an influential contact continues to hold you in high regard. Do nothing that would lower you in his eyes.

Flag Display

The U.S. flag should be displayed on all days when the weather permits, especially on legal holidays, on official buildings when in use, in or near polling places on election day and near schools when in session. A citizen may display the flag at any time he wishes.

Bad eggs can wear white collars, too

By JIM FITZGERALD

The honorable legislator was talking about me when he stood up in the Michigan House of Representatives and said:

"... He's just a rotten egg in the news editorial media that should go the way of all rotten eggs, but he hasn't got enough guts or the sense to correct his miserable mistakes and do credit to the newspaper industry by applying for an assembly line job in the nearest factory."

The message was clear. I am so dumb I should quit the newspaper business and go to work on the night shift at GM or Ford, where rotten eggs belong.

The legislator was trying to insult me. He really insulted factory workers.

It happened in 1966. The legislator was James Del Rio of Detroit. He was angry because I'd written that a lot of crummy legislators didn't deserve a $5,000 raise they had just voted themselves.

Del Rio's name is better known today. He left the Legislature and moved on to greater glory as a Detroit judge. Recently he was bumped off the bench, charged with a long list of indiscretions, all of which were well chronicled by the media and require no repeating to help me make today's point.

The point is that factory workers are too often labeled dumb, simply because they wear sweat socks to work and get their shirts dirty. It is past time for someone to holler "Foul," so here I am, hollering.

I was reminded of my 11 - year - old hassle with Del Rio by two angry letters to the editor which recently appeared in my favorite newspaper. The writers had been angered by an article entitled "Daughters Following Dad's Footsteps."

The article told about four daughters who work at the same occupations as their fathers — lawyer, dentist, business and assembly line. The duo who work on the assembly line are black. The other three pairs are white.

This is what made the letter writers mad. They accused the newspaper of racism, in that the blue - collar workers are black, and the white - collar workers are white. Why didn't the newspaper publicize a black father and daughter who are practiing law, for instance? There are several such duos in Detroit.

The implication is clear: There is something degenerative about being a factory worker. It is a marvelous thing to tell the world that a daughter has followed her father into dentistry. It is an insulting thing to reveal that a daughter is working on the assembly line, the same as her old man.

This is the same sort of judgment that Del Rio made in suggesting I should trade my typewriter for a punch press. It is a judgment based more on snobbery than on reality.

I used to work in factories, but I was so dumb at it that I went into the newspaper business.

My first real job was in a Chrysler parts plant. I moved skids on a little truck. The second day I dropped a skid on my foot, and I limped for a month. This was the first time I heard a foreman call me dumb. I soon got used to it.

In another factory, I was a stock picker. Written orders would come down from heaven, or somewhere, and my job was to fill them by picking the right auto part out of the correct bin. Please excuse the vulgarity, but after one week, this foreman told me I couldn't pick my nose.

There were other similar jobs — even a return engagement at Chrysler where my co-workers ran a betting pool based on what time of day the foreman would first curse me. But you get the idea.

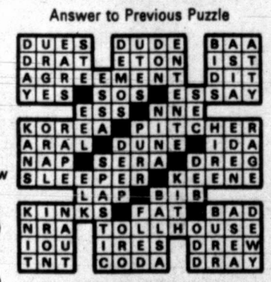

Their motives were more noble, but those letter wriers were as wrong as Del Rio in looking down on factory workers. To each his own.

There are a multitude of factory jobs that I can't perform adequately. And I proved it by flopping at comparatively easy tasks. If I had been allowed near the complicated machinery, I might have become an integral part of a Chrysler fender.

Factories require better fathers — and daughters than many of us desk jockies who need help changing our typewriter ribbons. Otherwise, this mechanical world would fall apart.

There are no more rotten eggs in factories than there are on newspapers, or in legislatures. And they come in all colors.

GREETING:

YOU, AND EACH OF YOU, ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear before the 223rd Judicial District Court of Gray County, Texas, to be held at the Courthouse of said County in the City of Pampa, Gray County, Texas, on or before 10:00 o'clock a.m. on the first Monday after the expiration of forty-two (42) days from the date of issuance hereof, that is to say, at or before 10:00 o'clock a.m. on Monday, the 19th day of December, 1977, and answer to the Petition of IRA J. YOUNG and wife, LOUISE G. YOUNG, Plaintiffs in Cause No. 20,644, styled IRA J. YOUNG and wife, LOUISE G. YOUNG, Plaintiffs, v. R.R. FIELDS, ET AL, Defendants, which Petition was filed in said Court on the 3rd day of November, 1977, and the nature of which suit is as follows:

A Trespass to Try Title Suit in which Plaintiffs claim that they have been lawfully ceased and possessed of the following described property, land and premises situated in Gray County, Texas, to-wit:

TRACT NO. 1:

Lot No. 22, Block No. 3, in the HAGGARD ADDITION, an Addition to the City of Pampa, Gray County, Texas, according to the duly recorded map or plat of said Addition filed in the office of the County Clerk of Gray County, Texas;

TRACT NO. 2:

Lot No. 24, Block No. 3, in the HAGGARD ADDITION, and Addition to the City of Pampa, Gray County, Texas, according to the duly recorded map or plat of said Addition filed in the office of the County Clerk of Gray County, Texas;

That on September 30, 1958, R.E. KIRKPATRICK and wife, IRENE KIRKPATRICK, acquired ownership of an undivided one-half (½) interest in said Tract No. 1, and since said date, the said R.E. Quit smoking for one day cancer society challenges

Cigarette smokers are being challenged nationally and locally to stop smoking Nov. 17.

Paul Simmons, president of the Gray - Roberts Unit of the American Cancer Society, announced today the local unit will join the national organization's Great American Smokeout on Thursday, Nov. 17.

The "smokdout" is scheduled locally as part of the nationwide effort to point up the fact that close to 100,000 Americans soon will be dying from lung cancer.

The American Cancer Society hopes to get at least 10 million of the estimated 53 million smokers in the nation to stop.

Based on the statistical assumption that cigarette smokers comprise 35 percent of the population, Pampa would have around 8,000 smokers. Add Gray and Roberts Counties and the figure climbs above 10,000.

Locally, in Pampa and surrounding area, these 10,000 persons are the ones the Gray - Roberts Cancer Society unit hopes to reach.

"We're simply asking them to sign a pledge to give up this death - dealing habit and stop smoking for at least one day," Simmons said.

He added it is the hope of cancer society officials that smokers who realize they have the will-power and self-control to stop for a day will decide they can stop for good.

Emphasis is being placed on the fact that smokers are not being asked to quit — they are being asked only to stop smoking for just one day.

Here's how the local campaign is set up:

Pledges will be taken Nov. 14, 15 and 16. Volunteer pledge takers will be in the lobbies of both the Citizens and First National banks from 9 a.m. to noon on all three days. At other times during banking hours persons wishing to sign pledges may contact Diane Enterline at the Citizens Bank and Debbie Stokes at the First National.

Pledges will be taken at Dunlap's store in Coronado Center from 9 a.m. until noon on all three days; at Pampa Junior High School pledges will be taken outside the cafeteria from 11:50 a.m. to 1:50 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 14 only; pledges may be signed at Pampa High School in the main hall from 8 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. and from 11:30 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. on all three days.

School children in both Pampa and Miami wil be given pledge cards to take home to parents who smoke. They should be signed with name and address and returned to the school.

Gene Hodges is chairman of the smokeout in Roberts County. Hodges says pledges will be taken Nov. 14, 15 and 16 in Miami at schools, bank and postoffice.

Simmons said volunter workers are manning the pledge tables in the banks and stores and assisting with the campaign in general.

The local cancer society president said the special attempt to get smokers to stop for at least one day will "dramatize once again the concern of the American Cancer Society for the grim link between smoking and cancer and other serious health hazards."

"And, perhaps more importantly," Simmons said, "it will focus attention of smokers on the kind of support they can find from the American Cancer Society for that difficult battle of will power."

Conferees work on energy plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House and Senate conferees are returning to work on proposals they hope to shape into a national energy program while most of their congressional colleagues are out of town for a three-week recess.

The conferees slated a session today on President Carter's proposal to force utilities and factories to stop burning oil and natural gas and switch to coal.

The committee plans to take up other non-tax portions of differing energy bills passed by the House and Senate, leaving the tax provisions to a second conference panel due to meet later in the week.

While the two committees will work separately, they may join on issues involving taxes and regulatory legislation.

President Carter plans to seek public support for his beleaguered energy proposals in a nationally televised speech Tuesday night.

Democratic congressional leaders who support the Carter energy package say the speech may improve the chances that a compromise meeting the president's criteria will emerge from the conference panel.

But critics say it is too late for Carter to have any significant impact.

With most other business out of the way for the year, congressional leaders hope the conferees will reach agreement on an energy measure. But it appears unlikely a final version will be completed before mid-December.

The House passed most of Carter's energy proposals, but the Senate changed some parts greatly and rejected key provisions in others.

The conference committee handling the non-tax sections met 13 times without resolving any of the major differences between the House and Senate.

The panel still faces conflicting proposals on natural gas pricing and electric utility rate reform.

The tax conferees must consider proposed taxes on crude oil and gas-thirsty automobiles. Both provisions were passed by the House but rejected in the Senate.

Civil cases called

Eleven civil cases, inlcuding two condemnation proceedings, were scheduled for docket call today in 223rd District Court with Judge Don Cain presiding.

Helen Sprinkle, district clerk, said an estimated 150 registered voters were to report for possible jury duty at 1:30 p.m. today.

Were horses switched?

NEW YORK (AP) — A five-man task force, which spent four days in Uruguay investigating the Belmont ringer scandal, planned to return to New York today with evidence that a horse called Lebon actually is South American stakes winner Cinzano.

The task force took blood samples from horses that shared common ancestry with Lebon and from Lebon's dam, Talavera, in addition to interviewing five witnesses who identified Cinzano in pictures that the team had brought from Belmont. The pictures were taken of the horse called Lebon.

BOB Simpson makes sense...

. . . because he is the only candidate with any state legislative experience. Bob Simpson has a proven record of hard work, responsiveness and effectiveness.

. . . because he believes in open and candid government. Bob Simpson is the only candidate making full public disclosure of all his personal financial records. He is known for his honesty and integrity.

. . . because he has farming and ranching interests in this district, and is committed to solving the problems of farmers and ranchers.

. . . because he opposes a state income tax. Bob Simpson has never voted for a tax increase.

Sure there are candidates in this race who make lots of noise and are full of promises. But campaign rhetoric isn't what this district needs. We need a Senator who will work for us. A Senator who can find realistic solutions to the problems facing our state. Bob Simpson will be the Senator we need . . . because Bob Simpson makes sense.

Brownsville midwife to face injury trial

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Midwifery, an accepted practice among the predominantly Mexican-American population of South Texas, takes the legal center stage this week when a Brownsville pharmacist-midwife goes on trial on injury to a child charges.

The trial of Miguel Orihuela was to begin today before State District Judge Darrell Hester, who granted a change of venue from Brownsville to this South Texas coastal city.

"We're just trying to feel the pulse—test the waters—of public opinion of midwifery," said Cameron County Assistant District Attorney Joe K. Hendley. "And I'm very relieved we got a change of venue."

The 44-year-old Orihuela was arrested June 24, six days after the birth of Juan Martinez Valenciano, and charged with injury to a child.

A Cameron County grand jury issued a July 19 indictment that alleged Orihuela grasped the head of the infant with an unknown instrument during delivery and "did then and there mash the head of said child."

The child remained in the hospital for about three weeks and is now at home with his parents. Although officials say the shape of the infant's head appears normal, the prosecuting attorney said he had been told by attending doctors that the child may have suffered brain damage.

The defense contends, however, that Orihuela followed accepted midwife procedures in the delivery of the child and did nothing to cause injury.

If convicted, Orihuela faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Orihuela's initial arrest led to an almost daily barrage of charges against him from the Cameron County district attorney's office.

He has also been arraigned on charges of delivery of dangerous drugs, practicing medicine without a license and destroying the life of an unborn child. Orihuela has been held in the Cameron County jail on bonds totalling $197,000.

About 35 persons staged a march outside of the jail shortly after Orihuela's arrest, protesting the arrest of the midwife.

Orihuela's wife, Linda, 29, has also been charged with practicing the art of healing and possession of controlled substances after police officers confiscated "half a trash can full" of federally controlled substances at the Orihuela residence.

It was during a similar raid on the Orihuela pharmacy in June that officers made the grisly discovery of three human fetuses floating in pickle jars in a refrigerator.

Israel releases Catholic bishop

ROME (AP) — The Vatican today expressed "deep satisfaction" for the release of gun-running Greek Catholic Archbishop Hilarion Capudji from an Israeli prison.

Vatican sources said the 55-year-old prelate, who was expelled from Israel and flown here, would recuperate for about three months and then would be given a new post, probably in the Americas or Australia. Associates said he lost about 25 pounds in prison.

The archbishop had served nearly three years of a 12-year sentence for smuggling arms to Palestinian guerrillas in Jerusalem and the West Bank. The Israeli government acceeded to a direct appeal for his release by Pope Paul VI.

A Vatican announcement said "news of the archbishop's liberation was received with deep satisfaction by the Holy See, which during these years has not ceased being interested in Msgr. Capudji's situation, worried also for his precarious health."

The pope in his letter to Israeli President Ephraim Katzir assured him that the release "will not be detrimental to the State of Israel." Capudji told a Lebanese newspaper that the Vatican agreed he could not return to Jerusalem and would be kept out of the entire Arab world permanently.

Looking pale and weak from hunger strikes, Capudji was greeted on his arrival Sunday by a delegation from the Palestine Liberation Organization, a representative of the Vatican and other church officials.

An envoy of PLO leader Yasir Arafat told reporters: "We consider him a hero, a symbol of resistance, a man who really loves his people and his land."

Capudji, a native of Syria, refused to talk to reporters at the airport. But the Beirut newspaper An Nahar said he gave it an interview in which he paid tribute to the Palestinians who during his imprisonment hijacked planes or seized hostages in Israel and then demanded his release.

"I shall never forget the martyrs who sacrificed their lives to win my freedom," he was quoted as saying.

The archbishop expressed gratitude to the pope but complained about being barred from Jerusalem.

Capudji was arrested Aug. 8, 1974, and charged with smuggling four submachine guns, two pistols, 220 pounds of explosives and a quantity of grenades and bullets from Lebanon to Israel in his limousine. An Israeli court rejected his demand for immunity from prosecution, found him guilty and sent him to prison Dec. 9, 1974.

Names in the news

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An Indiana attorney who helped prepare a brief for the Alan Bakke reverse-discrimination case said he believes special school admission policies for minority students are immoral and destructive to a democratic society.

William Harvey, dean of the Indiana University Law School at Indianapolis, said in the brief prepared for the Pacific Legal Foundation: "If equal protection of the laws is to maintain its constitutional integrity, it must apply to each individual, regardless of race, color or national origin."

Bakke, whose case is before the U.S. Supreme Court, claims minority students who scored lower on admission tests were admitted to the University of California at Davis medical school ahead of him. Bakke, who was twice denied admission to the school, claims the school's special minority admissions policy is unconstitutional.

OYSTER BAY COVE, N.Y. (AP) — Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre, the 72-year-old French prelate suspended by Pope Paul VI over his opposition to updating the Catholic liturgy, has dedicated the U.S. headquarters of his traditionalist sect.

"This is a nice church for you and for all who want to keep the Catholic faith," Lefebvre told 700 of his followers in heavily accented English during Sunday's cermeonies.

The archbishop and his Society of St. Pius X believe the Roman Catholic Church has changed so much in recent years that it has lost true faith. Lefebvre said he has defied the Pope's suspension "because I think it is my duty to continue the Catholic Church."

MONTREAL (AP) — Premier Rene Levesque of Quebec wore a French Legion of Honor insignia in his lapel when he returned from an official visit to Paris.

Levesque, who was greeted at an airport Sunday by about 10,000 supporters, is in the center of a diplomatic wrangle over his acceptance of the honor — one of France's highest civilian awards — last Thursday.

The Canadian government sent a "reminder" to the French government which said the award should have been cleared with the Canadian government first.

But Levesque described the government's attitude as "petty."

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are about equal in overall military strength, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown says. The two nations have "a rough parity" in nuclear arms, and "we are roughly comparable militarily," Brown said Sunday on the ABC program "Issues and Answers."

He said there may be fears that a Strategic Arms Limitation Talks agreement would give the Soviets a military edge, but added, "We have no intention of arriving at a SALT agreement that doesn't preserve our nuclear capability."

Brown refused to discuss specifics of treaty negotiations "until the details are settled."

Judge Hinton to here five cases this week

Five jury cases are scheduled to be tried this week in Pampa. Charges range from possession of marijuana to making alcohol available to a minor.

Others include two charged with driving while intoxicated and unlawfully carrying a weapon — a club.

County Judge Don Hinton will preside.

The case scheduled for trial today was postponed due to lack of a sufficient number of jurors.

Sixty notices were mailed and only 14 residents answered the call.

County Attorney David Martindale said it is necessary to have 18 present before a jury can be chosen.

Prosecutor promises to try all in Bolles case

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — All the conspirators have not been identified yet, chief prosecutor William Schafer III says, but the state eventually will prosecute all those responsible for the death of newsman Don Bolles.

"We have always maintained that there's a small band of conspirators," Schafer said. "As I said before, we don't have all the conspirators, but we will."

A Superior Court jury convicted suburban plumber James Robison and Phoenix contractor Max Dunlap of firstdegree murder and conspiracy Sunday afternoon in the Arizona Republic reporter's death. The conspiracty conviction also included the plot to kill Arizona Attorney General Bruce Babbitt and Al "King Alfonso" Lizanetz, 51, a former employee of multimillion liquor wholesaler Kemper Marley Sr., whose name has figured prominently in the investigation of Bolles' murder.

Robison and Dunlap face possible execution by gas when Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson pronounces sentence Dec. 6.

Bolles was fatally injured June 2, 1976, when a bomb exploded beneath his car as he backed from a space in the Clarandon House hotel parking lot. He mumbled the names "Adamson," "Emprise," and "Mafia" to passersby as he lay on the pavement.

Hospitalized 11 days before his death, Bolles lost both legs and an arm to infection.

Robison, 55, and Dunlap, 48, were arrested Jan. 15, after John Harvey Adamson admitted his role in the car-bomb slaying.

Adamson, the state's key witness in the murder rial, admitted planting a homemade dynamite bomb beneath Bolles' car after luring him to the midPhoenix hotel with a false news tip. Adamson claimed Robison triggered the blast with a radio-control transmitter.

Dunlap, Adamson testified, hired him to kill Bolles, Babbitt and Lizanetz. Babbitt was reportedly a target because of an antitrust suit against the liquor industry and Lizanetz because of his constant barrage of letters to legislators reporting alleged Marley crimes.

Adamson said Dunlap told him Marley would finance the assassinations.

Neither Babbitt nor Lizanetz was harmed.

Phoenix police detective Jon Sellers, chief state investigator, said after court, "We have got some new information as a result of the trial...This gives us more avenues of investigation, leading towards more conspirators. This isn't the end."

As the verdict was announced for Dunlap, his eldest daughter, Pam, burst into sobs and threw her arms around her mother, Barbara.

Several of Dunlap's five daughters and two sons cried.

Mrs. Dunlap clutched the back of the court bench and closed her eyes. Occasionally, she said, "Hush, children. This is not the place."

Dunlap struck the defense table with a hesitant fist after the verdict was read and looked toward his family.

Pam Dunlap reached toward her father as he was ushered out the door and pleaded, "Can't we speak with him?"

The deputy responded with a brusque, "No, not now."

Dunlap said, "They won't let me talk to you kids. Everything is normal...I'll see you later."

The stocky Robison contained his feelings and said to his court-appointed attorney, David Derickson, "That's the breaks."

Derickson, who tried to prove Robison was across town at the time Adamson claimed the plumber met him, said he was "extremely disappointed."

"I can't believe that 12 people could not find sufficient doubt in the evidence presented to return a verdict of not guilty," Derickson said.

John Savoy, assistant defense attorney for Dunlap, said, "The verdict was wrong. They refused to let in evidence concerning the defense theories of why Bolles was killed."

Paul Smith of Boston, head of Dunlap's defense team, contended Phoenix attorney Neal Roberts was behind the killing and framed Dunlap. Roberts and Robison are charged with the attempted bombing of a federal building in Phoenix.

Roberts took the stand, but refused to answer any quesxtions, saying his answers might be used against him in the pending federal action.

Smith, who was absent from court Sunday, also tried to show Adamson was working for the New York-based Emprise Corp. Reorganized under the name of Ramcorp, Inc., Emprise owns all six of the state's greyhound tracks and one horse racing track. It was the target was the subject of several of Bolles' investigative pieces.

Two of those articles were read to the jury during eight weeks of testimony, but Thompson barred other references.

Adamson explained to the jury during his eight days on the witness stand that Marley wanted Bolles killed because of articles the reporter wrote that spoiled Marley's 1976 appointment to the State Racing Commission.

Marley was not charged and strongly denied any involvement when he testified during Dunlap's defense. Marley said he did not want the post to begin with, bul was pressured into accepting. Marley called Bolles "just another reporter", one of many covering Marley's activities, and said he "didn't pay any attention" to Bolles' articles.

During closing arguments, Schafer called Marley's commission defeat "ignoble," and said, "Don Bolles was writing and dredging up old things from the past. Bolles is the only one who sticks out like that...What really made Mr. Marley mad was not that he didn't get the appointment, but the way he didn't get it."

In a brief press conference shortly after the court session, Babbitt, himself allegedly marked for death, said he was "very happy about the jury verdict."

Babbitt said Schafer would try to prove during the Dec. 5 pre-sentence hearing that circumstances warrant the death penalty.

By statute, Babbitt said, five standards justify the death sentence and Schafer will try to show four of those exist. They are:

1—if one of the defendants has a previous violent felony conviction Robison was convicted earlier this year in the beating of a Scottsdale talent agent.

2—if the defendants knowingly created a grave risk of death to other persons besides the victim.

3—if there was payment involved in the crime.

4—if the offense was committed in an especially heinous, cruel or depraved manner.

Babbitt said, "The murder file remains open...We will do everything humanly possible to bring to justice everygne involved in this outrageous and heinous act."

Babbitt would not name additional suspects, but said the trial evidence would be considered carefully before any arrests are made.

"I think the complete extent of hhis case will only be known many months down the road," Babbitt said.

"But," he added, "two more have gone down today, continuing the process."

Guy Lombardo dead at 75

NEW YORK (AP) — Guy Lombardo, who made millions and delighted millions by ignoring every popular music trend of the past half-century with his "sweetest music this side of heaven," will be buried Wednesday but his band of Royal Canadians will go on.

A family spokesman said Sunday that funeral services would be held at Freeport on Long Island for the bandleader, who died in Houston Saturday at the age of 75.

Lombardo's youngest brother, Victor, who was leading the band during Lombardo's illness, will take a day off for his brother's funeral, then he will take the band to Connecticut for a tour of that state.

On Dec. 31, when New Year's Eve revelers turn on their radios it will still be Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians playing "Auld Lang Syne," as they have for nearly 50 years.

Lombardo once said he got in the habit of ending each program with "Auld Lang Syne" — a practice copied by many other bandleaders in the days of big swing bands — because he started out with his first orchestra in Western Ontario, which was "heavily Scottish."

"Every dance ended with the playing of that song," he said.

And since Dec. 31, 1929, when the Royal Canadians first played the Scottish air on radio, every New Year has been greeted with the song's strains on millions of radios and later on television sets.

Even the crowds that braved winter's wrath to welcome the New Year in Times Square sang "Auld Lang Syne" to the music of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians, piped out over the crowd.

Lombardo succumbed about 9:45 p.m. Saturday at Houston's Methodist Hospital. His wife of 51 years, Lillibelle, was at his bedside.

The hospital said he died of a breathing problem which had led to his hospitalization Oct. 27.

A spokesman for famed heart surgeon Michael DeBakey, who operated on Lombardo Sept. 23 for an "aneurism of the descending thoracic aorta," the main heart artery, said later the "respiratory insufficiency" was not related to the surgery.

The bandleader was born Gaetano Lombardo Jr., son of an immigrant Italian tailor, in London, Ontario, and was only 12 when he formed his first band with four other youngsters, including his brothers Carmen and Lebert.

The Lombardo brothers went to Cleveland in 1925, and in 1927 moved the band to Chicago. In an era when jazz history was being made in the Windy City by Louis Armstrong, Bix Biederbecke, and the like, Lombardo managed to become successful with his light, straight-melody music because it suited the dancing style of white Middle America.

Among the songs he made famous and profitable were "Little White Lies," "Boo Hoo," "You're Driving Me Crazy" and "Seems Like Old Times."

Lombardo once said of his success against the musical tides that "we lose 'em in their teens, but we catch 'em up later ... and when we get 'em we keep 'em."

Mrs. Carter sees flood survivor

TOCCOA, Ga. (AP) — A man who lost his wife and son in the flood that overwhelmed this northeastern Georgia community found words of encouragement for President Carter's wife, who sought to comfort him in a hospital.

"We'll be praying for you and the big things you have to do," Jeffery Metzger said Sunday as Rosalynn Carter left his room.

Metzger and a daughter, Debbie, survived the flood. But his wife and son were among the 37 persons killed in rampaging waters.

A rain-swollen lake burst through an earthen dam early Sunday, sending tons of water crashing down a falls and through Toccoa. Especially hard hit was the Toccoa Falls Bible College.

Metzger was among several persons Mrs. Carter visited in a brief stopover at the hospital on a hill just above the area where the flood waters struck as most of the college's students and staff slept.

She flew by jet from Washington to Anderson, S.C., then by military helicopter to Toccoa. She returned to Washington Sunday night.

When Mrs. Carter arrived, she saw dozens of bulldozers churning through muddy debris, clearing away remnants of homes and school buildings.

"It was indescribable," the first lady said at a news conference. "It's a terrible tragedy."

She added: "I've learned a lot about dams since this happened, and I learned there was a bill passed by Congress to provide for inspection of such dams, but it has not been funded.

"Jimmy wanted me to come here and express his concern and to tell them the federal government will do what it can to cooperate."

Gov. George Busbee has asked Carter to issue a disaster declaration for Toccoa and the surrounding area so that federal loans and grants will be available to residents.

During her hospital visit, Mrs. Carter lightly touched the arms of survivors and whispered encouragement.

Mrs. Carter was accompanied by a secretary, several Secret Service agents and a hospital official, but she entered one room alone.

Behind the closed door she visited Patricia Sproull, who lost her three children in the flood. Her husband, professor Jerry Sproull, was missing.

Sproull was a teacher at the non-denominational Toccoa Falls Bible College, founded in 1907 by missionaries who left their children there while in foreign countries.

The portion of the college campus that was destroyed was located at the foot of Toccoa Falls, one of the most scenic spots in Georgia.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Fog, high, gusty winds and rain mixed with sleet prompted the National Weather Service to issus traveler's advisories for two areas of Texas early today.

The fog was reported in an area from the Dallas - Fort Worth area southward to the Port Arthur area. The NWS office at Port Arthur warned that fog in that area would likely reduce visibility to near zero and dense fog was reported in the Houston area.

In far West Texas, high, gusty winds with rain mixed with sleet prompted the NWS to issue a warning for that area. The rain mixed with sleet was reported in the Sierra Blanca area of West Texas.

Skies were partly cloudy over West Texas early today and mostly clear over the eastern half of the state.

Early morning temperature readings ranged from the middle 40s in the Panhandle to the upper 60s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Crime statistics told

Chief of Police Richard J. Mills reported 112 Class 1 crimes were committed last month, with four crimes unfounded and 42 of those crimes cleared. This year there have been 766 Class 1 crimes committed. Class 1 crimes are classified as homicide, rape, robbery, assault, burglary and theft.

For the month of October, 169 Class 2 crimes were committed, with one crime unfounded. Actual Class 2 crimes are 168, with 104 of those crimes cleared. This year, there have been 1494 Class 2 crimes. Class 2 crimes are everything not covered in Class 1.

Drug cases totaled eight for October with 95 so far this year. At this time last year, there were 73 drug cases.

In October there were 21 driving while intoxicated cases, with 152 cases for this year. Last year at this time there were 117 cases.

Last month there were 40 vandalism cases, with 233 this year and 214 last year at this time.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY:
Roses are red,
Rabbis are kosher,
If it weren't for Dear Abby,
We'd all be much gaucher.
Try that on your piccolo.

FRANK KLOCK

DEAR FRANK: Your poem arrived during the High Holy Days, so I tried it on my ram's born. It was beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: As far as I'm concerned, that self-proclaimed "liberated" woman who thought her boyfriend should pay for her birth control pills is far from liberated.

Her attitude is typical of most "liberated" women. They prefer to open their own doors and light their own cigarettes, but when it comes to money—the liberation's over!

Most men spend between $15 and $25 for an evening out. Multiply that by the number of times they go out during the month and it's a lot more than the $3 or $4 a month she pays for birth control pills.

When was the last time this girl picked up the tab for an evening out? And when did she last invite him over for dinner? And when was the last time they used HER car on a date?

I think she should pay for her birth control pills, don't you?

REALISTIC

DEAR REALISTIC: Not necessarily. A man who's asked to shell out for his girlfriend's birth control pills would be a fool to refuse. It's peanuts compared to what his monkeyshines could cost in terms of child support.

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with HOT STUFF ON THE HILL—the 19-year-old girl who has passes made at her because she has a 38 bust. Well, I'm only 5 feet tall and I also have a 38 bust. I've had it since high school, and I've suffered terribly because of it. Blouses and dresses gapped. (I used a safety pin for every space in between.) Sweaters at least stretched, but I had to wear a size much too big in the shoulders so I wouldn't look like I was on the make.

I am now a happily married mother, but I still get come-ons from men I didn't know existed until we were face to face. Therefore, I know it wasn't my language or the look in my eye that provoked their passes.

I'm not ugly, but I'm no beauty queen either. My oversized bust has embarrassed me since I was 13. I get catcalls, whistles and even dirty remarks from men when I pass.

Abby, those women who feel cheated because they're small-busted should walk a mile in my bra.

38 AND HATES IT

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.M. IN MPLS: Don't quit trying. Sometimes it's the last key in the bunch that opens the door.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular; You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Ask Dr. Lamb
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB – I have had two heart attacks, both mild, and am on a low cholesterol diet. What are vegetable fats? Are they polyunsaturated or not?

Can I have peanut butter sandwiches without too much damage to my system?

DEAR READER – Judging from the enormous number of letters I get about fats that is one of the most difficult concepts for the public to understand about foods.

The term vegetable fat includes all fats that don't come from animals or animal products. Hence it includes safflower oil which is low in saturated fat and high in polyunsaturated fat, and coconut oil, which is just the opposite, high in saturated fat and low in polyunsaturated fat. If you want to limit saturated fat and use polyunsaturated fat, don't depend on a food label that just says vegetable fat – it is often coconut oil, saturated fat.

The other point people have trouble with is understanding that the fat in food is made up of several different types of fat. Part of the fat is saturated, part monounsaturated and some polyunsaturated fat. The ratio is important. If you want to eat food that contains fat that is low in saturated fat and and relatively high in polyunsaturated fat, you will choose fish, or not quite so good, poultry. The red meats tend to contain fat that is relatively low in polyunsaturated fat.

The number of letters about peanut butter also attests to its place as an American favorite. Half the weight of peanut butter is FAT and about 20 per cent of that fat is saturated fat. You would be better off to choose breast of chicken and eat chicken sandwiches if you want to limit your fat consumption.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis. It will give you the general principles you need to follow a diet that helps keep your level of fatty-cholesterol particles down. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB – I am 69 years old and had a hysterectomy at age 53. A year ago, we moved and I went to a new doctor. He proceeded to do a Pap test. Now it's been a year since the negative test and I received a notice it is time for my yearly Pap test. Is this necessary? I always thought that after the uterus was removed that was it.

Please find it in you heart to answer this old lady.

DEAR READER – From a purist point of view, you could develop cancer of the vagina, but of course your days of worrying about cervical cancer are over. The risk of cancer is indeed small in anyone who has had both the cervix and body of the uterus removed.

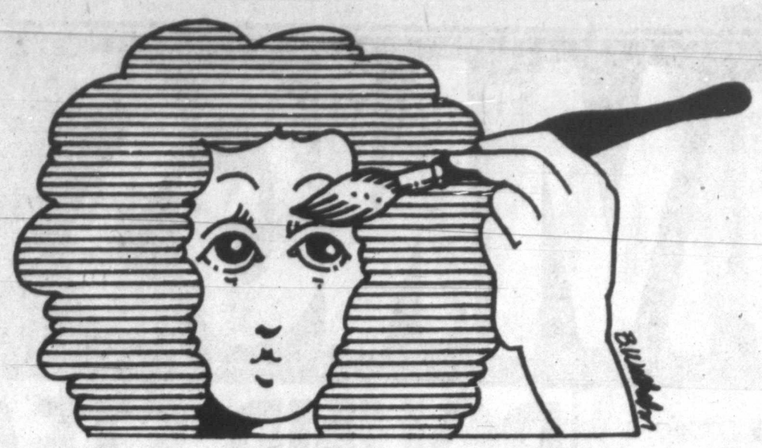

I still think you should have an annual examination with or without a Pap test. You need to be sure you don't have any lumps in your breasts. You are in the age group for the peak rate of breast cancer (between 55 and 74 years of age). When there, talk your Pap test question over with your doctor.

Unless your ovaries were removed with your uterus, you should have an examination anyway, because ovarian cancer can still occur and is the fifth most common cause of cancer deaths in women in the same age group.

Polly's pointers
Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—I would like to share the way I keep flowers brought in from my garden for a longer time. I always cut them in the early morning or in the evening after the sun goes down and put them in water as they are cut. When ready to arrange the flowers I cut each stem on an angle, remove all leaves below the water line, put warm water in the container and add an aspirin. Always keep a flower arrangement out of the direct sunlight and change the water about every three days and always add an aspirin to the fresh warm water. — JEAN S.

DEAR POLLY—Always keep a nut pick handy to use for untying difficult knots or removing stubborn corks from bottles. — MARY B.

The eyes have it...

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Why don't you go paint your eyes? Draw on them. Create a persona men will find bewitching.

At the least, it passes time on a rainy day.

Vivian Lee knows precisely how to do it. She's a make-up artist at New York's fashionable Pierre Michel hair salon, a suite of mirrored rooms where whirring dryers compete with throbbing disco music and feathery male operators saunter around with shirts unbuttoned to their waists and gold chains on their necks.

"I distinguish make-up according to eye color and skin tones, not hair color," says Miss Lee. "If a woman has a ruddy complexion, I won't put a red blusher on her. I'll tone her down with brown and rust. And if she has a yellow cast to her skin, I'll tone her over to rose."

But on to the eyes. On them, she uses her most treasured tools — crayons and brushes — which she stores in a fishing tackle box.

"Always use sable brushes," she says, "because you get an even application and the product will stay on."

The first step is to apply concealing cream under the eyes "to hide the dark." Then, a dab of lid foundation on the upper lid for an even skin tone and to provide a base for the shadow.

"Now, say I'm doing brown eyes," she says. "Using a medium width shadow brush — or any size you're comfortable with — mix brown and green shadow on it. Working from the outside corner of the eye in, apply the shadow three-quarters of the way in. Next, I may take a light shade of apricot and, with a rounded brush, work in the apricot in the inner corner of the upper lid and on the eyebrow bone. This opens up the eye and gives it a smoky, smudged look."

Get ready: here come the crayons.

"Using a green crayon," she says, "stroke it on the inside of the lower lid and in the inner corner of the top lid. Instead of using eye liner, now, apply a brown crayon on the upper lid, but don't forget to bring it all around the eye and under it. That prevents the eye from looking top heavy."

Blending after each application is essential, of course, so that all this labor isn't obvious.

She recommends lilac shadow for green and brown eyes, too, and gray shadow for blue eyes. "But I won't put green eye shadow on a green-eyed woman without mixing it with brown or gray because all you'll notice, then, is the green eye shadow and not the eyes."

To finish the job, use an eyelash curler and "a couple of coats of mascara — black or, for a more subtle look, brown."

Madeleine Mono has a less detailed eye in mind. A transplanted English actress, she opened her own cosmetic company in 1974, specializing in eyes. Indian Eyes she calls her crayons and brushes which are sold in better department stores.

"My crayons," she says, "are flat or elliptical for better application and they come in six colors, from brown to violet and silver."

Color, she says, should complement the eye. "I have brown eyes and I stick to beiges, browns and gold for evening.

"I apply eye shadow by gently stroking the brush across the shadow, then covering the entire eyelid with gentle strokes, working outwards and upwards. I like to see it carried right up to the brow and a little bit deeper in the crease line."

Miss Mono, a fairly complectioned woman with dark hair, prefers a rather stark, dramatic look. She wears brown lipstick, no apparent blusher and likes to emphasize her eyes with a short black crayon lightly stroked on the lower lid.

Her crayons sell for $3.50 each and her bamboo-stemmed brushes are sold as one unit, five for $17, including a bamboo caddy.

Any brushes or crayons that succeed will do, though. As Vivian Lee points out, "Color and consistency of the product are what you consider. It takes time and money to find what works for you, but it's worth it."

Once you find it, sit back and practice. Even Cher didn't learn to make-up overnight.

The original McDonald's

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — The pilgrim approaches the historic shrine in awe, trembling.

Searching for the marker he knows must be there, his palms moisten, his breath quickens. He feels the anticipation Dr. Leakey must have felt in the dust of the Olduvai Gorge, the seedbed of humankind.

At last, on locating the bronze marker at the base of the flagpole, he knows the unrestrained joy of Archimedes when his search was over. Eureka.

There before the pilgrim's gaze stands the absolute original, the archetype, the primordial, the very first McDonald's hamburger joint on earth. The bronze plaque gives its date of birth:

"The national chain of McDonald's was born on this spot with the opening of this restaurant on April 15, 1955."

"We do take great pride in it, yes, we do," said Jim Cherry, the manager. "When I hire new employees I always explain to them that this is no ordinary McDonald's, this is the first, and they should try to reflect the pride that goes with that honor."

Well, certainly. Think about it.

Of all those 23 billion sold, the very first was sizzled on this griddle. The very first french fry was deep-greased, salted and sacked right here. Of all the 4,454 McDonald's that were to follow, this was the first. Wow.

Touring the shrine, the realization slowly comes that they don't make 'em like this anymore. The colors are wrong.

"That is correct," Jim Cherry said. "The first ones were called red-and-whites. The sign — yes, that's the original sign — remains red and white. The red and white tiles are still on the rear wall. Would you like to see?"

Who wouldn't!

Jim Cherry led a rare private tour back into the sanctum sanctorum, past the original red and white wall down into the basement.

"That's the original walk-in refrigerator," he said, pointing to a relic. "We've added more, of course. Back when this was built they thought that would be enough. They just had no idea."

The arches are wrong, too. They are the right color, but they are the wrong shape. They are on the roof, front to back, one on either side and they are perfect half-circles. Today's jaunty "M" that decorates nearly every intersection, shopping mall and exit ramp from horizon to horizon is clearly an improvement, esthetically.

Inside, the tourist discovers there is no place to sit down. Alongside the parking lot, though, are concrete tables for dining al fresco.

The builders of that first small hamburger stand had one thing going for them: the location. It is at the intersection of three thoroughfares in this suburb of Chicago and has plenty of customers but not much competition, just Aggie's Red Hots.

To the pilgrim it is plain that from this lowly origins change has been sweeping, progress dramatic. Leaving the shrine, one thought lingers: They did it all for you.

Who's hassling whom?

Strange as it may seem, sometimes people call a crisis line and act as if they don't want or need help! Recently, a volunteer at the Norman Vincent Peale Telephone Center in New York City had such a call. The following excerpt from that call shows how the volunteer, despite a barrage of abuse, managed to respect the caller – and got results.

HOT LINE

Ms. J: I just took five pills that I got from a guy on the street. I don't know what they are and I don't care. I only want to sleep forever – and just what are you going to do about it? I'll bet you can't do anything about it, can you? Maybe I'll just take a few more and listen to you squirm.

Volunteer: Squirm?

Ms. J: Yeah – you and all your white, rich, married friends. I'm tired of being spit on. I'll get back at you – at all of you. No one should have to go through what I've been through.

Volunteer: What happened to you?

Ms. J: Oh no, you won't get me talking, using those cute psychology techniques. I'm going to keep you on the phone and not tell you anything.

Volunteer: And then, if you made me feel rotten, you'd feel better?

Ms. J: I wouldn't want to give you the pleasure of knowing if, if you did help me. Now, what do you think of that?

Volunteer: Well, you sure sound mad; I know that much. But I have the feeling that you're not really angry with me – maybe what you think I stand for – but not with me. Who are you mad at?

Ms. J: Boy – you sure learned all the tricks, didn't you? And just recently, I bet. You're new at this, aren't you? And another thing, you really know how to hassle somebody, don't you?

Dallas defense dominates NY, 24-10

Joe Pisarcik, quarterback of the New York Giants, had a chance to meet each of them on a personal basis Sunday as the unbeaten Cowboys scored a 24-10 victory, running their National Football League winnning streak to eight games.

Between them, the four lineman had six of the eight sacks that Pisarcik suffered. Linebacker Tom Henderson and safety Randy Hughes recorded the others.

"We just kept coming, like we always do," said White. "I don't key on anything. I just keep coming."

Pisarcik, an alert quarterback, noticed all the Dallas visitors.

"We called our extra pass blocking 'Joe protrection,'" he said. It really means the backs stay back to help the ends. But Dallas messed us up by calling delayed blitzes all the time.

"Then there is 'the Henderson problem'" Pisarcik continued. "He's so quick I'd look up and say, 'What are you doing here?'"

Henderson, who had a piece of six tackles to go with his sack, understood Pisarcik's dilemma.

"Our defense dominates a game," he said. "I feel sorry for the teams we play."

The Giants, of course, can use all the sympathy they can get. From the Cowboys, all they got was trouble.

With Dallas defenders swarming all over him, Pisarcik was able to complete only 6 of 17 passes for 61 yards, but when you deduct the 59 yards he lost on those eight sacks, New York's net air gain come to just 2 yards.

Roger Staubach had a comfortable 15 completions for the Cowboys, including three long ones to Drew Pearson that kept Dallas scoring drives moving. Pearson's catches were for 25, 23 and 41 yards, stretching his streak to 39 games in which he has had at least one reception.

"Our offense is No. 1 and our defense is No. 1" said Saldi. "Now, we want our special teams to be No. 1 too. That punt return by Hammond hurt."

Tsk, tsk. The Giants hurt a lot more than that.

Gilbert-Jones wins World Golf title

LAKE BUENA VISTA Fla. — It was a weary, emotionally exhauuted Gibby Gilbert who issued an eyes - lifted sigh of relief.

"Thank God he had that putt - not me. I'd have putted it in the sand trip," Gilbert said.

It was one of those knee - knocking four - footers. Grier Jones had it for birdie on the 72nd hole Sunday to win the Walt Disney World National Team Golf Classic with teammate Gilbert.

Riding on it was a $20,000 check for each man.

Jones boldly rammed it in, capping off a better ball, 6-under-par 66 that produced a one-stroke victory over the team of Andy North and Steve Melnyk.

Gilbert and Jones finished with a 253 total, a whopping 35 strokes below par on the 7,197 - yard Magnolia Course at central Florida's spectacular entertainment complex.

Pampa harrier places seventh

AMARILLO — Pampa's Jana Vaughn placed seventh in the varsity girls' division and Robert Thaxton finished 38th in the varsity boys' division at the Amarillo Invitational Cross Country Meet here Saturday.

Vaughn's time of 13:07 was 45 seconds behind winner Lorie Scott of Amarillo High. The Sandies won the girls' division with 26 points, three less than runnerup Tascosa.

Curtis Conway of Monterey took the boys' division in 9:59. Thaxton finished in 11:32.

Midland High won the event with a 40 - point margin over Monterey.

Big E ends slump on Jazz

By The Associated Press

Elvin Hayes was apologizing to his Washington Bullets teammates, castigating himself for the paltry 52 rebounds he'd contributed in six previous games.

Nearby, a near-record crowd was filing into the Superdome to see the hometown Jazz, who had acquired a surpising habit of winning in this National Basketball Association season. The fans numbered 26,474, the third largest crowd in NBA history, but it didn't help the Jazz.

"It's something I felt I had to do," Hayes said Sunday. "I've been standing back, thinking, 'Let someone else do it.' I felt I owed my teammates an apology and told them I was sorry."

Then Hayes backed up his apology with 21 points and 20 rebounds as the Bullets broke the Jazz habit and disappointed all of those fans, 108-97.

In other NBA action, the New York Knicks downed the Los Angeles Lakers 106-102, the Portland Trail Blazers beat the Indiana Pacers 108-106 and the Kansas City Kings defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 99-83.

New York 106, Los Angeles 102

Jim McMillian burst out of a shooting slump — one that had cut deeply into his playing time for more then a year — to score a season-high 22 points for the Knicks, 10 of them in the fourth quarter. His 20-foot jumper with 6:59 remaining put the Knicks ahead to stay at 89-88.

McMillian led a troupe of five Knicks who scored in double figures, including Bob McAdoo with 18, Earl Monroe with 17, rookie Ray Williams with 12 an Lonnie Shelton with 11.

Ali asks $12 million to fight winner Norton

LAS VEGAS, Nav. (AP) — When the bell rang sending Ken Norton and Jimmy Young into action for the 14th round, Muhammad Ali shouted from his ringside seat: "I'm tired of fighting Norton. Win, Jimmy!"

But this time boxing's leading mover and shaker didn't get his way. Instead, Ali will have to risk the heavyweight championship against Norton, who has given him three tough fights, or risk losing at least a share of the title by "ducking" Norton.

Norton put Ali on the spot by scoring a split decision over Young Saturday night in a 15 - round fight sanctioned as a heavyweight elimination by the World Boxing Council.

Ali made the Norton-Young fight by suggesting he would meet the winner. But over the past several months, he has been saying he would need $12 million for such a fight.

"Now he Ali says he will fight the winner for the proper price. "Now his proper price is something no promoter will meet."

Promoter Don King hopes Ali will find $8 million proper enough, for that is what he has offered the champ to meet Norton. Biron said he has given King 30 days to make the fight, and King said Ali's manager, Herbert Muhammad, and his attorney, Charles Lomax, were considering it.

The WBC doesn't care who Ali fights for or how much he fights for, only that he commit himself within 60 days to fight Norton within six months or be stripped of title recognition.

Should Ali refuse to fight Norton within 60 days, Jose Sulaiman, WBC president, said he would favor Norton being named WBC champion. Such action would require approval by the council, Sulaiman said.

Simpson-less Bills upset Patriots

By ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

O.J. who?

The Buffalo Bills, who lost superstar O.J. Simpson for the season with a knee injury last week, have found a new running star in Roland Hooks, who rambled for 155 yards Sunday to help the Bills upset the New England Patriots 24-14 in National Football League action.

"They pulled themselves together," said Buffalo Coach Jim Ringo, whose team put on its best offensive show of the season despite the absence of Simpson. "They knew it wouldn't do any good to panic."

"We had something to prove — that we weren't the worst team in pro football," said Hooks. "We had to get our self respect back."

It was only Buffalo's second victory in eight starts, and it left New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks confused and upset.

St. Louis, Cincinnati and San Francisco also posted upsets, the Cardinals whipping the Minnesota Vikings 27-7, the Bengals edging the Cleveland Browns 10-7 and the 49ers beating the Atlanta Falcons 10-3.

But mighty Dallas easily survived the rash of upsets, defeating the New York Giants 24-10 to raise its record to 8-0, the only unbeaten mark in the NFL.

Washington plays at Baltimore tonight.

Lions 20, Chargers 0

"I was really nervous before the game," conceded Kane, Detroit's new hero. "They slowly brought me into this (starting) position. I think I was ready for it."

As for his touchdowns, both of which were scored on short dives over a stacked-up goalline defense, Kane reasoned, "Up and over is the shortest way to the goal. It's the easiest way to go because the defense is usually down tight."

Cardinals 27, Vikings 7

Jim Hart threw two touchdown passes and running backs Wayne Morris and Terry Metcalf each scored twice. Morris rushed for 1n2 yards in 27 attempts, the second highest total in Cardinal history.

The Cardinals, 5-3, remained in the running for a wild card playoff berth. The Vikings, also 5-3, lead Detroit in the NFC Central race by one game.

Raiders 44, Seahawks 7

Oakland scored seven of the first eight times it had the ball in routing the Seahawks. Ken Stabler threw three touchdown passes, Errol Mann kicked three field goals and Willie Brown intercepted two passes.

Broncos 21, Steelers 7

Denver's Orange Crush defense allowed Pittsburgh across midfield only three times as the Broncos kept pace with Oakland.

Special teams star Rick Upchurch provided the offensive spark, returning five punts for a team-record 167 yards including an 87-yard scamper for a touchdown. That was the first punt return for a touchdown against the Steelers since 1969.

Chiefs 20, Packers 10

Ed Podolak rushed for 98 yards and one touchdown as the Chiefs won their first game under interim coach Bettis, who took over after popular Paul Wiggin was fired on Monday.

Bengals 10, Browns 7

Chris Bahr's 47-yard field goal in the third period gave Cincinnati its victory and tightene AFC Central Division race. Cleveland still leads at 5-3, but Cincinnati, Houston and Pittsburgh are all at 4-4.1

Oilers 47, Bears 0

Houston's defense left Chicago with a net passing yardage of minus 16, while the Oilers' big-play offense overwhelmed the Bears. Billy Johnson broke loose for two scores, racing 75 yards with a free kick and 61 on an end-around, and Dan Pastorini hooked up with Ken Burrough for touchdown passes of 85 and 43 yards.

"It was the worst game I have ever been associated with in any form," said Bears Coach Jack Pardee. "We were humbled."

Rams 31, Bucs 0

It was the 22nd consecutive loss for the Bucs and spoiled the homecoming of Tampa Bay Coach John McKay, who had been a highly successful college coach at Southern Cal before going pro. Pat Haden, a Southern Cal grad, threw two touchdowns as the Rams, 5-3, moved to a one-game lead over Atlanta in the NFC West.

49ers 10, Falcons 3

San Francisco knocked Atlanta out of a tie for the NFL West lead, sacking Falcons quarterback Steve Bartkowski seven times for losses of 76 yards. The only touchdown of the game came on a 2-yard run by Wilbur Jackson in the third quarter.

Eagles 28, Saints 7

Ron Jaworski passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more, but the hero for the Eagles was punte Spike Jones, who pinned the Saints within their 10-yard line four times. Ironically, Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil had spent the week trying to find a new punter, but came up empty.

Dolphins 14, Jets 10

Bob Griese threw scoring passes of 20 and 24 yards to Duriel Harris and Miami's defense kept the Jets out of the end zone until the final minute. The victory moved Miami within one-half game of Baltimore in the AFC East race.

Bob Price has a program for the Texas Panhandle!

In Tuesday's Special Election for State Senator, one man has had the experience and the background to step forward with a bold new program for the Texas Panhandle.

That man is Bob Price of Pampa.

TAXES A fiscal conservative, Bob Price has called for an immediate tax cut for all Texas citizens, followed by a decrease in unnecessary State spending.

BUSINESS AND JOBS A successful small businessman, Bob Price has called for positive steps to maintain a sound business environment in the Panhandle, assuring more jobs, more job opportunities and better wages for workers.

FARMING AND RANCHING A Panhandle rancher and farmer, Bob Price stands for 100% of parity, and for special programs to assure adequate supply—at reasonable rates—of oil and natural gas for irrigation and other farm and ranch needs.

SENIOR CITIZENS Bob Price has strongly urged an increase in Homestead Exemptions for our Senior Citizens, thus decreasing the tax burden they face on fixed incomes.

EDUCATION Bob Price thinks it's time to return control of our schools to our hands—and get the Federal Government out of the local school business.

Bob Price of Pampa. For eight years, he fought for our needs as our United States Congressman. Now, he's ready to serve us in Austin. Bob Price—the proven voice of the Texas Panhandle who will speak with authority, with experience, as our State Senator!

Price is right for Texas.

Shopping for a lawyer via the ads

Sylvia Porter

As you almost surely know by now, you can shop for a lawyer via his or her public ads. But this may intensify your confusion over prices and the extent of services. Will you get competent legal service for the advertised fee? What guidelines should you follow in selecting a lawyer through the media as a result of price advertising? Will you be subject to the hard-sell tactics so prevalent in many areas of hard goods services?

This past June, the Supreme Court ruled that, for the first time in 69 years, lawyers can advertise their fees and publicize their services. A month later, in another precedent-shattering action, the New York State Board of Regents voted unanimously to permit physicians, dentists and other professionals to advertise not only their services but also their prices in newspapers and magazines. The New York action is certain to have a ripple effect which ultimately will touch every community in the nation.

For millions of Americans, shopping for a professional through ads will be a new experience. Thus, read with care these valuable guides put together for this column by Richard Morris, assistant executive director of the American Bar Assn. in Chicago.

—Don't take any ad literally. Use your common sense. Before you retain your lawyer, ask for bar association references or get client references. Normally, this is considered a matter of confidence, says Morris, but lawyers have increasingly been willing to do it. Client references are a matter of privilege, but if available, the service can be very useful.

—Don't let your communications lapse with the lawyer you ultimately select and don't let time and dialogue drift once you have started an action. Don't pester your lawyer, but don't be afraid to ask questions either. You are dealing in abstracts in law, so "talk it out," Morris urges. If you are concerned how your case is being handled, check with your local bar committee. Litigation goes back and forth for months, the ABA spokesman points out. You are entitled to a monthly report as well as billing.

—Know the extent of services provided in the lawyer's ad. What is a simple will, for instance? What is an uncontested simple divorce? Learn how to ask the right questions and then ask them.

—Do you know what are add-ons? You should, for they mean extra charges in your case. Find out. Are there add-ons in your alimony action? Add-ons in property settlement costs? Jurors fees and court costs can be add-ons. Have your lawyer spell it out thoroughly.

—Is your lawyers's contingency fee off the top or not? The recovery on the net, for example, can make a big difference on what you might get in a successful action versus off-the-top.

—Have a checklist approach when you go to the lawyer so that a profile can be established on your case. Get your file of documents together so you can provide your lawyer with relevant material. This can save hours of work and can mean lower legal fees.

—Be clear about your legal fees and inquire how the fee is fixed. If your lawyer charges $30 or $50 an hour, get it in writing and try to ascertain the number of hours of work involved.

—And consider arbitration, Morris emphasizes, as at least an option. In Cleveland and San Francisco, among other cities, arbitration is becoming increasingly popular as a means of putting a lid on costs.

The ABA also suggests these six guides for shopping for a lawyer which can be significantly helpful.

(1) Check the lawyer's qualifications. Ask about his or her experience in your type of case.

(2) Don't hesitate to discuss fees and what the lawyer will do — with an understanding that there may be unforeseen legitimate costs to be added.

(3) Get a receipt if you pay a retainer.

(4) Be fully informed on what you're paying, what moves are projected and how the case is going.

(5) Be aware that you can change lawyers even if you have signed an agreement.

(6) And, Morris strongly suggests, keep the ad. If you hear it on the radio, take notes. Your bar association wants to make sure that lawyers are not over-reaching with ads. You can help the profession in its self-policing efforts and thereby help yourself too.

No-fault insurance idea fades

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four years ago, no-fault auto insurance seemed to be an idea whose time had come. Now, it appears to be an idea whose time has gone.

Both the House and Senate commerce committees quit for the year last week without taking action on no-fault legislation. And no state has enacted no-fault legislation since North Dakota in 1975.

Supporters of no-fault in Congress and the insurance industry say the problem stems in part from vigorous lobbying by trial lawyers. "They've bottled it up in a lot of legislatures," said Les Cheek of the American Insurance Institute.

Trial lawyers say no-fault is making no headway because "there's no public interest. It's about as popular as typhoid fever," says attorney Robert Began of the American Trial Lawyers' Association.

And even a supporter like Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, concedes the idea lost ground because there's no clear evidence that it has substantially reduced rates in the 16 states that have it.

The no-fault concept was first broached in the 1920s, but it was not until Massachusetts adopted it in 1971 that it became a major issue in Washington and in state legislatures.

A total no-fault system puts auto insurance in the same mold as health insurance. A driver who has an accident collects damages from his insurance company, no matter who caused the crash.

Under the traditional system, one driver may have to file suit to recover damages from the driver who was at fault.

No-fault advocates said the system would return more of the premium dollar in benefits and give less of it to the lawyers. Therefore, they said, it would reduce rates.

In fact, the results have been mixed. One State Farm official told the Senate Commerce Committee this year that his company's premiums had gone up 24 per cent since 1970 in no-fault states and 27 per cent in states without it.

In the few states that have added no-fault laws without restricting the right to sue, rates had risen 47 per cent, he said.

A Department of Transportation study released this year found that no-fault can help in keeping rates down. But the trial lawyers' Began says that was "a non-study."

Eckhardt said several factors helped muddy the financial picture. One was the rampant inflation that pushed the cost of medical care and automobile repair higher in the years after no-fault was enacted. As a result, insurance costs also rose.

Another was the weakness of the no-fault laws enacted by states such as Florida and New York. There, a plaintiff can sue if damages exceed a "threshhold" amount, such as $1,000.

Eckhardt said lawyers and doctors have found it easy to push costs past the threshholds in those states. He said the threshholds appeared to have given them an incentive to do so.

He said it will be up to no-fault advocates to point to states like Michigan to show how true no-fault statutes have reduced rates. Michigan has a nearly pure no-fault law.

The Transportation Department study found that, adjusted for inflation, auto liability rates in Michigan had declined under no-fault. The department found that the average Detroit driver's six-month premium went from $74 to $56 in constant dollars from 1974 to 1977.

In Florida, however, the average Miami driver's six-month premium went from $71 when no-fault took effect to $163 this year, in constant dollars.

Eckhardt said he still hopes to push no-fault through his commerce subcommittee next year. Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., has also said he intends to act next year.

A Magnuson aide said the Senate would have acted this year except that other bills, such as airline deregulation and airbag legislation, took priority.

Began is confident that the bills will not pass. No-fault, he said, is "an experiment which failed."

Vetoes breeder reactor

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter used his first veto Saturday, rejecting a bill that would have authorized $80 million for a breeder reactor that would produce weapons-grade nuclear material.

Carter said the reactor project, located on the Clinch River in Tennessee, would imperil his effort to stop the spread of nuclear weapons and technology.

The president indicated he would consider impounding funds for the project if his veto is overridden "to ensure that no further unnecessary expenditures on this facility are made."

Carter said the government-industry venture at Oak Ridge, Tenn., designed to demonstrate the feasibility of breeder reactors, would be "technically obsolete and economically unsound."

The bill cleared Congress on Oct. 20, winning 366-52 approval in the House and passage by voice vote in the Senate. It would take 67 votes in the Senate to overturn the veto and 290 in the House.

"There are now on the drawing boards better technologies," said Stuart Eizenstat, Carter's assistant for domestic affairs and policy.

Eizenstat said Carter was confident the House and Senate would sustain the veto.

The measure authorized funding for fiscal 1978, which began Oct. 1, for the Energy Department's nuclear and non-nuclear energy research, development and demonstration projects. New legislation for projects other than the Clinch River project, would have to be passed if the veto is sustained.

Breeder reactors produce more nuclear fuel, plutonium, than they consume. The fuel can be converted for use in atomic bombs and Carter has stated that his efforts to end the project were part of his program to halt the spread of weapons-grade nuclear material.

The federal government's share of the project had increased from $250 million, when it was first authorized in 1970, to $2 billion.

"That is $2 billion we feel will be spent on technology that, by the time the project is built, may not be the best technology," Eizenstat said.

Carter said in his veto message that his administration is committed to "a strong research and development program for advanced nuclear technologies" but that the Clinch River project was not needed.

The bill, Carter said, was "inconsistent with my strong belief that proceeding beyond completion of the systems design phase of the Clinch River facility would imperil the administration's policy to curb proliferation of nuclear weapons technology."

Appeal cases stack up

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Presiding Judge John Onion of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said Saturday cases are stacking up faster than the court can handle them — even though the appeals judges work at night on the weekend.

The workload is so great, Onion said, that "To be truthful, I think that in many instances" the quality of the judges' opinions suffer.

Onion said if the voters fail to approve a constitutional amendment Tuesday enlarging the court from five to nine members, "I don't know what we're going to do."

Onion's remarks came on the weekly radio show, "State Capitol Dateline."

Onion said the court disposed of 2,167 cases last year but received 2,458 to add to a backlog of 1,075 cases.

He said he wrote 269 opinions in 1976, compared to the national average for an appeals judge of 35.

"We're just being overwhelmed with cases," he said. "We have very little time for home life or anything else ... we have to work at nights on the weekend to keep the cases flowing."

The appeals court is one of only two state criminal appeals courts of last resort. The five judges have four commissioners who help with opinions. The proposed amendment would allow a nine-member court to split into groups of three to handle cases.

Theoretically, Onion said, productivity would be three times as great.

Important cases, such as the death penalty, would be heard by the entire court, Onion said.

"What good are speedy trials if there are not speedy appeals?" he said.

Onion was asked if he thought a proposed amendment denying bail to repeat offenders would cut the crime rate, and he replied, "I don't think we're going to see any appreciable change. I don't think it's any cure-all for our crime problems."

"The thing that worries me is it is putting a man in jail for crimes he might possibly commit," Onion said. "It kind of rubs against the grain of presumption of innocence."

Onion said he thought there would be a light voter turnout Tuesday, but the amendments enlarging the court and denying bail would be approved.

Journalist Walter Lippmann was born in 1889.

Prospective jurors summoned in Hughes' Mormon will case

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)— Two hundred prospective jurors have been summoned for the beginning Monday of a trial to determine if the so-called Mormon Will was the authentic last testament of the late Howard Hughes.

It is one of two scheduled this month regarding the purported will. A Houston probate court judge has set a Nov. 14 date for a hearing to determine Hughes' legal residence.

Texas, which could gain millions of dollars in inheritance taxes, claims the Houston-born celebrity was a resident there at the time of his death. Hughes' relatives claim he was a resident of Nevada, where he lived for several years. Nevada has no inheritance tax.

The large number of potential jurors was called for the Las Vegas trial because of anticipated difficulties in selecting a six-member panel to decide the validity of the three-page, hand-scrawled document.

Clark County District Judge Keith Hayes noted that pre-trial coverage by the news media has been extensive, and the beneficiaries named in the purported will also pose some possible conflicts in the selection of jurors. Additionally, Hughes' gaming and hotel empire here is the state's largest employer, and there is a good chance that several Hughes employees will be among the 200.

Hughes left a vast empire when he died April 5, 1976. An accounting of the estate filed with the court shows assets totaling about $169 million.

Prior to the filing of the report, which will probably be disputed by the Internal Revenue Service, Hughes' fortune was variously reported to be in the billions.

More than 30 Hughes wills were received by the court here, but the so-called Mormon Will is the only one which has gained any recognition, and revelations of the past year involving Melvin Dummar of Ogden, Utah, have cast doubt on that document.

Dummar, who used to operate a service station in Willard, Utah, has admitted delivering the will to the Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City, where it was found on April 27, 1976.

Dummar is named in the will to receive one-sixteenth of the estate.

Dummar's only explanation for being named in the will is a story about meeting a bedraggled old man in the desert north of here in the late 1960s.

Dummar claims he gave the old man a ride to a Las Vegas hotel where Hughes was known to have been living at the time, that the man indirectly identified himself as Hughes.

Other beneficiaries are the Boy Scouts, the University of Texas, the University of Nevada, the University of California, Rice University, orphans, the City of Long Beach, Calif., and the Mormon Church.

Hughes' relatives contend that the Mormon will is a forgery, an opinion shared by the FBI.

While some of the handwriting is similar to that of Hughes, FBI analysts have declared the document a "rank forgery." Some of the misspellings in the document also are suspect, as is the general format of the will. Hughes was a fussy man, one who demanded perfection.

The style of the Mormon Will does not suggest it was done with care.

Defending the Mormon Will is Los Angeles attorney Harold Rhoden, who represents former Hughes aide Noah Dietrich.

Dietrich, 89, is named by the will as executor of the estate, and Rhoden has been named special executor as it pertains to the Mormon Will because of Dietrich's advanced age.

Rhoden has admitted in court that there is little about the will above suspicion.

Hayes has saddled Rhoden with the burden of proving that the document is genuine, a task which is formidable.

Rhoden also must appear Nov. 14 in Houston before Probate Judge Pat Gregory.

Little things are important

Small in size, but performing an important function when needed . . . what would we do without razor blades?

Classified Ads are like that too! In fact, they do more things for more people at lower cost than any other form of advertising!

Buying . . . selling . . . hiring . . . finding . . . renting . . . or just telling, a small, low-cost Classified Ad will do a big, important job for you.
