Storm hampers traffic, sets record of power usage

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The snow and ice that blew into Midland have hampered airport traffic, slowed down road traffic, chilled cattle and set an all-time winter power usage record.

No major problems have been reported, although plumbers say water may be flowing down the streets and into some houses when frozen pipes thaw.

The mercury this morning dropped to 6 degrees even as light snow flurries were falling. But as low as the temperature was, it missed toppling the record low of minus 1 degree set on Feb. 1 in 1951.

Single-lane traffic was moving on Interstate Highway 20 this morning even while the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation was working "problem areas" on the highways and service roads.

At Midland Regional Airport, city roadgraders and bladers were attemping to clear the snow and ice off a runway. But the clearing was hampered due to the lack of proper ice-cutting equipment and liquid de-icers.

"We've got three roadgraders from downtown," said Jon Mathiasen, assistant aviation director. "They're doing the best they can, but they're going 5 mph instead of 40 mph. We're behind the eight-ball."

In-bound and out-bound commercial airline traffic was canceled this morning but commercial traffic may resume this afternoon.

"General aviation (traffic) is up to pilot discretion," he said.

Air traffic was at a stand-still at Midland Air Park this morning. "I guess no one needs to go anywhere bad enough," said Lewis Travland, manager of Basin Aviation.

"Nothing's moving out here," Ernie Webb said of Sky Ranch Airport southwest of Midland.

The highway department is working 24 hours a day to clean up "problem areas" on the roadways.

"Everything we've got is on it," said Tim Zawerucha," maintenance foreman. He said the department has been adding rock and salt to overpasses to help thaw out the ice and to give better traction for truck and car traffic.

Meanwhile, ranchers are feeding and watering their cattle and trying to get them into shelter or within brush for protection from the freezing cold.

"The cattle sure are hurting," said Hoot Leonard. "We made the rounds yesterday and fed and watered. We broke the ice in all the water troughs.

"They do all right if you give them enough hay, cottonseed cake and grain cubes," said farmer-rancher Leonard. "And water is very important." The feed provides cattle the protein to maintain their energy and body heat, and water will prevent dehydration.

"We've got some brush, and they get a little protection (from the elements). It's not nearly like a barn."

The Midland Farmers Co-op gin shut down Thursday.

"We're just sitting here. We're in need of another week of pretty weather to finish up on the (cotton) ginning," Leonard said. "It looks like it may be July before we get it ginned," he said in jest.

"Ranchers have to see about that old stock, but farmers have got to wait for it to dry up and warm up."

On the homefront, plumbing problems have not yet emerged.

"You generally won't know what's broken until it thaws," said Corky Bosworth, president and general manager of C.A. Gray Plumbing, Heating and Air Conditioning Co. He suggested residents keep kitchen and bathroom cabinet doors open to allow house heat to flow in to keep water pipes from freezing.

Charles Hall of Hall's Plumbing said plumbing problems may show up this weekend when the temperatures warm.

"There'll be water flowing down every street," he speculated. "Right now, everything is at a standstill," he said.

"At all those mobile homes that are not underpinned, they'll have a lot of broken pipes.

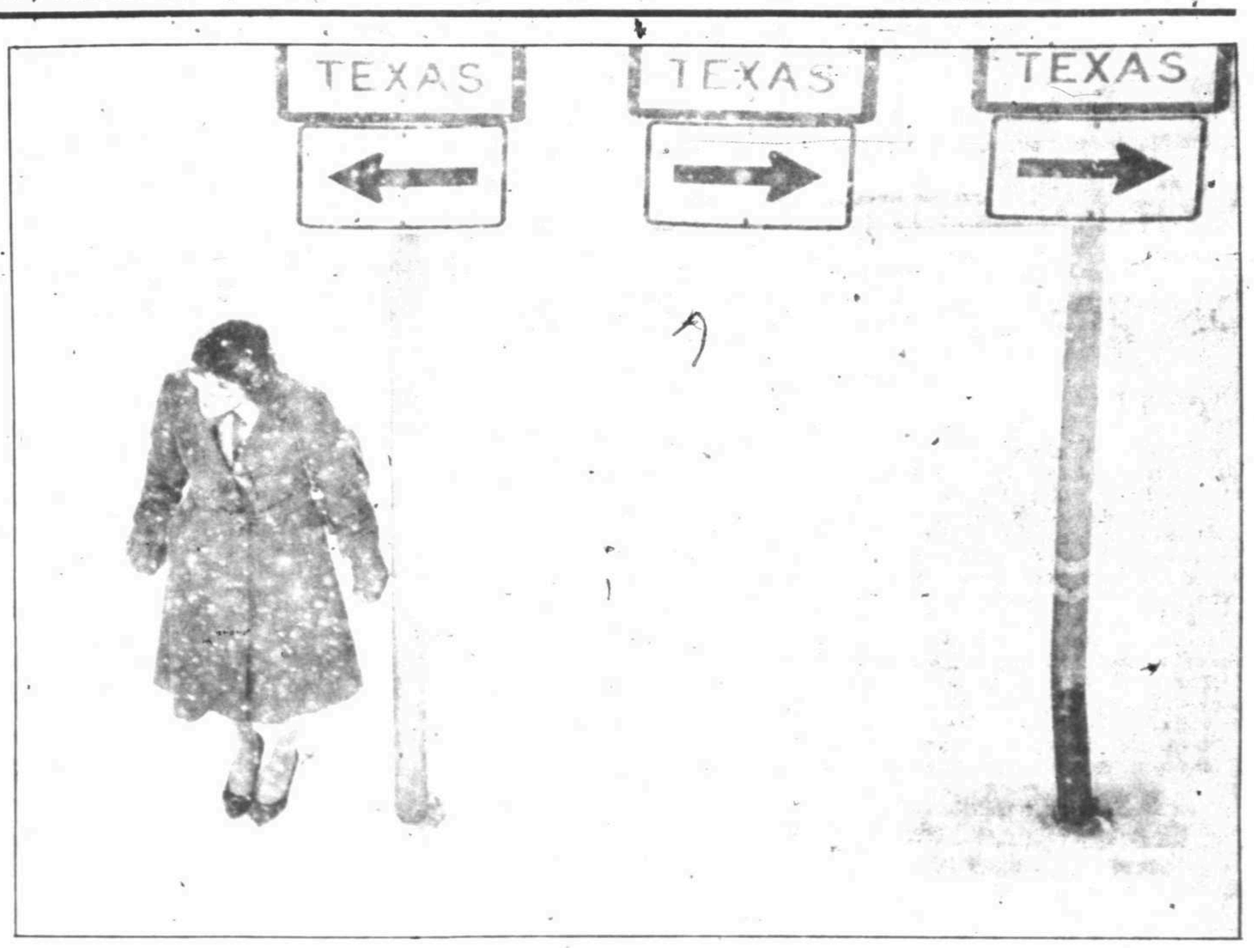

"We may be working Saturday, maybe Sunday, but I hope not," Hall said. "We've done it before."

At 7 p.m., Texas Electric Service Co. set an all-time state winter high power demand. The one-hour high demand peaked at 13,891 megawatts, although the power company could put out 15,000 megawatts. "That's a bunch," said Gerald Gotcher, customer services manager of the western division.

In the Midland area, TESCO has "no problems" in getting power to homes and businesses, he said.

"We've been fortunate that no cars have hit (power) poles."

Skies should be clearing late tonight, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. With a predicted low of 10 degrees tonight, the mercury should warm up to 32 degrees Saturday under sunny skies.

Chernenko: U.S. intends to gain superiority with 'Star Wars'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko, accusing President Reagan of "juggling with words," says the administration's "Star Wars" program is intended to gain U.S. military superiority over the Soviet Union.

In written statements to the Cable News Network, the Soviet leader said the Strategic Defense Initiative posed an "awesome danger" to the world. He disputed Reagan's contention that it was a humane research venture.

"This is an offensive, or to be more precise, aggressive concept," Chernenko said. He also accused the United States of raising tensions throughout the world and turning out armaments on an assembly line operating at full capacity.

"To put it simply," Chernenko said, "the aim is to acquire a capability to deliver a nuclear strike counting on impunity."

■ Weinberger missile testimony surprises Pentagon — Page 2A

He leveled his attack on the Reagan administration six weeks before the United States and the Soviet Union are scheduled to resume negotiations on ways to reverse the nuclear arms race. Still, State Department officials said they were not surprised by the tenor of Chernenko's remarks and called them consistent with previous statements from the Kremlin.

"Chairman Chernenko's description of the Strategic Defense Initiative, or SDI, reflect a continuing Soviet effort to distort the true purposes" of the program, the department said through spokesman Bernard Kalb.

"This is a research program fully consistent with the ABM (anti-ballistic missile) treaty, designed to determine the feasibilty of defense technologies," the department said. "It is not an offensive weapons concept."

The 1972 treaty limits defensive installations on both sides on the theory that the prospect of devastating retaliation would inhibit one country from attacking the other.

Chernenko said the U.S.-Soviet negotiations set to resume March 12 in Geneva, Switzerland, could solve the problems of nuclear weapons,

Woman uncertain man she raised as her son really her son

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Wilma Hennessey brought her newborn son home from a Denver hospital in 1936, something in the back of her mind said, "I'm not sure this is my baby."

Now, armed with two unmatched footprints and a firm belief that her 48-year-old son Barry was someone else's baby, Mrs. Hennessey is searching for a long-lost child and getting little help in her quest.

Mrs. Hennessey, who lives in the Washington suburb of Alexandria, Va., discovered the evidence four years ago when she was making an ashtray for Barry, using his footprint as the design.

Then, by coincidence, she came across his birth certificate from Mercy Hospital in Denver and noted the stark difference in the two footprints.

"The footprints are like night and day," she said in a telphone interview Thursday night. "The baby ones have three little "H's" in them. The adult print doesn't have them at all."

The prints reminded her of the many times that Barry's friends had joked that he didn't look like either Mrs. Hennessey, or her husband, an accountant who died several years ago. Barry's eyes are bluish, while everyone else in the family has brown eyes, Mrs. Hennessey said.

"I told my husband when we came home from the hospital, 'I'm not sure this is my baby. He seemed so shocked and I never mentioned it again," she said.

When a fingerprint analyst compared Barry's adult footprint with his baby footprint he found they were taken from two different people, she said.

Unemployment rate up, government says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civilian unemployment rose to 7.4 percent in January as the ranks of the jobless grew by 300,000, the government said today. Many of those were laid-off Christmas workers who failed to find new jobs.

The number of Americans holding jobs rose about 120,000 to a record 106.4 million, but the total of the unemployed grew to 8.5 million, the Labor Department said.

Department analyst Deborah Klein said that more seasonally employed wome laid off after the Christmas season decided to look for new jobs last month than had been the case in recent years, pushing the rate up.

In addition, she said, the January survey was done unusually early — in the second week of the month — meaning that the recently laid-off could have given up the search later in the month, in which case they would not be counted among the unemployed.

There was idespread stability among other worker groups. Jobless rate? stayed the same as in December for adult men, teen-agers, black, Hispanics and black teen-agers.

These were the January figures:

—Adult men, 6.3 percent; no change from December.

—Adult women, 6.8 percent, up from 6.4 percent.

—Teen-agers, 18.9 percent, unchanged.

—Whites, 6.4 percent, up from 6.2 percent.

—Blacks, 14.9 percent, no change.

—Hispanics, 10.6 percent, no change.

Among black teen-agers, the group with the highest unemployment, the jobless rate of 42.1 percent was also unchanged.

In January, the report said, the most significant jobs gains were in the retail trade, service and construction industries.

The overall jobless rate has been moving in a narrow range from 7.1 percent to 7.5 percent since last May, but analysts predict that it will move below 7 percent this year as the economy continues its modest growth.

Cox: Meese confirmation 'serious blow'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate confirmation of embattled Attorney General-designate Edwin Meese III would be a "very serious blow," suggesting tolerance of shoddy ethics, says Archibald Cox, the first Watergate special prosecutor.

Cox labeled as "incredible," "unbelievable" and "frightening" a conclusion by the government ethics office that Meese had not violated conflict-of-interest standards despite his "appearance problem."

Testifying as the Senate Judiciary Committee concluded Meese's confirmation hearings Thursday, Cox, chairman of the lobbying group Common Cause, maintained that Meese's ascendancy to attorney general would be "a very serious blow to the conduct of people in government and to Congress."

But William P. Rogers, attorney general during the last years of the Eisenhower administration, said he felt Meese "is the right man for the job now...He'll make an attack on crime nationwide."

Members of the committee, meanwhile, decided they will vote Tuesday on whether to recommend Meese's confirmation to the full Senate.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, told his colleagues there was an understanding among all panel members that "there will be no efforts to block a vote on Mr. Meese, and there will be no effort to lay the matter over."

Meese, who had been excused after two days of tough questioning, was absent as senators heard testimony from Cox, David H. Martin, director of the Office of Government Ethics, and two staff lawyers who concluded in an internal memorandum that Meese had run afoul of some ethical rules.

Ursula Meese, the nominee's wife, sat stiffly as Cox, referring to Meese's testimony that he would now do some things differently, said the statement "comes much too late to convince me."

Archibald Cox, the first Watergate special prosecutor, testified befor the Senate Judiciary Committee during confirmation hearings for Attorney General-elect Edwin Meese.

"I don't charge Mr. Meese with conscious wrongdoing. I think he should have known the rules," said Cox, whose dogged pursuit of Watergate crimes over a decade ago led to the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon and the convictions of Nixon's most trusted aides.

As the hearing dragged on through the dinner hour, tensions mounted.

Joseph L. Rauh Jr., legal counsel for the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, became outraged when committee chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., told him and subsequent witnesses they could only testify for five minutes.

"I deeply resent your trying to railroad this thing through," said Rauh, whose group opposes Meese's confirmation.

Thurmond shot back, "We're not going to railroad it through. You have heard (the same testimony) over and over for three days."

Martin had testified earlier that he was "totally satisfied that Meese was in compliance with conflict of interest laws."

F. Gary Davis, a staff attorney who had helped prepare the internal memo concluding that Meese had violated ethics rules, testified, "I probably misconstrued the facts." Davis and staff attorney Nancy Feathers said they now share Martin's conclusion that Meese did not violate ethics rules.

The ethics office mainly was concerned with the federal jobs obtained by two men who helped Meese financially — John R. McKean, chairman of the U.S. Postal Service Board of Governors, and Thomas Barrack, a California real estate developer who used over $80,000 of his own money to get Meese's California home sold, and subsequently got a high-ranking job at the Interior Department.

Cox pointed to Martin's conclusion that Meese did not violate ethics rules when he failed to disqualify himself from participating in a White House personnel meeting where McKean's nomination was initiated. Meese had testified he was guilty of no ethics violation because another White House official, Michael Deaver, brought up McKean's name.

"I find it unbelievable that anyone thinks it would matter who spoke first. I can't believe Mr. Martin intends to extend such a rule throughout the government of the United States. I find it frightening," Cox said.

Winter storm aims biggest punch at Texas

Associated Press

A winter storm aimed its biggest punch at Texas today after sending a light mixture of sleet, snow and freezing drizzle overnight that glazed the state's highways with a dangerous layer of ice.

The National Weather Service said up to 7 inches of snow could fall in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, beginning this afternoon.

Wichita Falls, which got 8 inches of snow on Thursday, including 3 inches in the six hours before midnight, was expecting another 2 to 4 inches today. Drifts as high as 18 inches were causing problems on city streets.

Another 6 inches of snow was predicted for the Panhandle, where almost that much fell Wednesday night and Thursday.

Virtually all of Texas was under a winter storm warning or watch for today, including the lower Rio Grande Valley and the resort beach areas all the way up to Galveston and beyond where snow is rare.

Brownsville, the state's southern-most point, had an overnight low of 33, and was the only one of the weather service's reporting stations that was still above freezing.

At Austin, weather officials said a search of their records failed to show a precedent for three winter storms hitting Texas' capital in one month. Austin received 7.5 inches of snow in January's two previous wintry attacks.

Mixtures of freezing drizzle and isolated snow flurries were falling last night in Houston, and school officials didn't bother waiting until today to cancel school.

Sheriff's officers throughout Southeast Texas were reporting most roads passable early today, but many of the roads had a thin sheet of ice, and officials said as precipitation continued to fall it would make the highways treacherous.

Interstate 45 was closed southbound out of Huntsville, 70 miles north of Houston, because of ice on the road. About 200 motorists were evacuated from their cars and taken to Huntsville.

Across the state, grocery stores reported long lines as residents got what they needed to wait out the storm. Store officials reported a run on everything from meat to milk, batteries and beer.

Although only sleet or light snow fell for much of Texas on Thursday, the combination of gusty northerly winds and temperatures in the teens and below had a numbing effect.

In Dallas, the city sent its employees home at 3 p.m. and told them not to report for work today until 10 a.m. Most people seemed eager to stay inside.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Crane, Upton, Reagan, Glasscock, Andrews, Gaines, Howard, Martin, Borden, Dawson, Sterling, Tom Green, Irion and Coke: Tonight: probability of snow decreasing to 20 percent with clearing late tonight. Continued very cold, with lows around 10. Wind north 5 to 10 mph. Saturday: sunny and not as cold with highs near 32. Wind becoming southwest 10 to 15 mph.

Correction

In a Wednesday article comparing Midland and Lee High schools, MISD Coordinator of Communications Becky Ferguson did not speculate for the reasons in the slight difference between SAT scores.

Concerning participation in extracurricular activities, she noted students from poor economic circumstances tend to participate in such activities at a lower rate than students from middle-to-high economic circumstances, not that students could not afford to participate. All students may participate regardless of income levels.

Weinberger testimony surprises Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon appears to have been caught off-guard by testimony from Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger that the Soviet Union shot down one of its own cruise missiles last month when it strayed over Norway and Finland.

The defense secretary had "not intended" to do that, a department spokeman said, adding that reports published about the incident in Britain are "false."

Weinberger had been explaining to members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee Thursday why he believes a "Star Wars" strategic defense system intended to counter incoming, long-range ballistic missiles cannot necessarily be foiled by slow, low-flying cruise missiles.

While the strategic, space-based system itself won't be able to cope with the earth-hugging cruise missile, Weinberger said, other defense systems can do the job.

For example, he then added, the Soviets "shot down one of their own cruise missiles that got away from them and was starting to work its way across Norway and Finland."

"So there are defensive systems" against the weapon, he said.

About two-hours after his testimony, the Pentagon issued a statement declaring that the secretary had "not intended to confirm the false reports" printed earlier in a British paper, The London Daily Express.

"There is evidence that the Soviets are attempting to develop a look-down shoot-down system to defend against cruise missiles," the Pentagon said. "The secretary was referring to reports that the Soviets may have a limited (cruise missile defense) capacity."

Later Thursday, Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said in a further "clarification" about Weinberger's testimony, "The secretary did not mean to imply that the missile was shot down. The Soviets didn't shoot the missile down. It ceased to fly."

A defense official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said it was believed the Soviet missile may have crashed after running out of fuel.

The Daily Express quoted authoritative sources in its Thursday editions as saying that the missile was shot down by one of two Soviet pursuit planes after a computer operator mistakenly used a war code to misdirect it on a path toward Hamburg, West Germany.

A Pentagon spokesman said as early as Wednesday night that the published reports were wrong.

"We find absolutely nothing to indicate that there is any truth to this article," a spokesman, Maj. Pete Wyro, said then.

Finnish authorities announced in Helsinki on Wednesday that they had found the wreckage of the drone target missile on a frozen lake in Lapland.

The Soviet Union has apologized to Finland and Norway about the Dec. 28 incident, offering the explanation that a target missile had gone off course during a firing exercise.

The Daily Express article said that the Soviet Defense Ministery and the Pentagon cooperated in keeping the cruise-missile error a secret to avoid damaging nuclear arms control talks between the two super powers.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, without dealing with the rest of the story, denied Thursday that the Soviet Union contacted the United States while the missile was in flight.

The Daily Express, again quoting unidentified sources, said the missile had been directed toward Hamburg on a war-plan flight path fed into its computer by mistake. It gave this account of the incident:

"The Russian operator suddenly realized the wrong flight plan had been fed into the computer instead of a target flight plan taking the missile over the Bering Sea parallel to their land-based testing site at Novazemla.

"Moscow was warned and within seconds, on a military hotline to the Pentagon, the Americans were told.

"Two Soviet Mig-25 interceptors, with pilots specially trained to shoot down cruise missiles after their depoloyment by NATO in Europe, were scrambled to chase after the missile.

"One jet did shoot it down."

Car bomb explodes in front of Tripoli mosque

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded in front of a packed mosque in the northern port of Tripoli today — the Moslem holy day — and police said at least 10 people were killed and 60 wounded.

Police said the blast at 12:45 p.m. punched a "huge hole" in the wall of Imam Ali mosque on Tripoli's Jumeizat street and heavily damaged scores of buildings in a 500-yard radius.

The Lebanese Red Cross appealed for blood donations to help the victims in Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city with a population of a half million 50 miles north of Beirut. Police reported that at least 10 people were dead and 60 were injured.

Mosques in predominantly Moslem Tripoli normally are packed for the Friday prayers that begin at noon.

A Tripoli resident reached by telephone said the bombing occurred in the Tel neighborhood, which is controlled by the fundamentalist Tawheed Islami militia.

"It was pretty loud...From my house four blocks away, I can see thick black smoke billowing," said the resident, who asked to be identified only by his first name, Mustafa.

Mustafa said he heard machine gun bursts as ambulances raced into and out of the blast scene with wailing sirens.

The city is the hometown of Prime Minister Rashid Karami, who brought Lebanon's principal warlords into a Syrian-supported national coalition Cabinet last April in an attempt to resolve the nation's almost 10-year civil war.

There have been a number of car bombings and other explosions recently in Beirut and central Lebanese mountain towns.

Sheik Saeed Shaaban, head of the Tawheed Islami, or Islamic Unification, left Tripoli earlier this week for a visit to Tehran and a meeting with Iran's revolutionary patriarch Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

But Shaaban, who advocates a return to the caliphate government system of the early days of Islam, returned to Tripoli on Wednesday and said he decided to cancel the trip. He gave no explanation.

Privately owned Lebanese radio stations said at the time that Shaaban was banned from crossing the border to Syria to take the plane to Tehran from Damascus because Syrian authorities disapproved of his visit. The report could not be independently verified.

Shaaban's militia had been engaged in an on-again-off-again war for Tripoli's dominance with the Syrian-backed Arabian Knights militia of the Arab Democratic Party. The two sides signed a peace agreement under Syria's sponsorship three months ago.

A few hours before today's car bomb blast, Shaaban's fighters were involved in a shootout with a patrol of the Lebanese army, which is responsible for policing the cease-fire.

One Tawheed militiaman was killed in the early morning clash, local radios said. But it could not be determined whether the shooting and the car bombing were related.

Last week, a car bombing attack devastated a three-story apartment building housing the home and office of Mustafa Saad, a prominent Sunni Moslem in Sidon in Israeli-occupied south Lebanon. Saad's 12-year-old daughter, Natasha, died of injuries she suffered in the bombing.

ARMS

but only if steps were taken to prevent the militarization of outer space.

Otherwise, Chernenko said, the Strategic Defense Initiative "would become a catalyst of an uncontrolled arms race in all directions."

Reagan has defended the program, known popularly as Star Wars, as research to determine whether the United States could be shielded with futuristic technology from attacking missiles.

Future presidents, he said, would have to decide whether the goal was attainable and defenses should be deployed. Reagan agreed with visiting British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher last December that there would have to be negotiations on that point with the Soviets first.

But Chernenko, without referring to the president by name, disputed Reagan's description of the program as well as his justification of concentrating on missile defense as humane and moral.

He said the American atom bomb was developed as a result of scientific research under the Manhattan Project. "Everyone knows how it turned out for the people of Hiroshima and Nagasaki," Chernenko said in reply to questions submitted by Stuart Loory, the CNN bureau chief in Moscow.

Challenging Reagan's definition of Star Wars, the Soviet leader said "using the term 'defense' is juggling with words. In its substance this is an offensive, or to be more precise, aggressive concept. The aim is to try to disarm the other side and deprive it of a capability to retaliate in the event of nuclear aggressions against it."

He said the Soviets, if compelled, would do their utmost to protect the country's security as well as allies and friends.

JOBLESS

The rate, which topped out at 10.7 percent near the end of the 1981-82 recession, dropped to 7.2 percent last June, but headed upward to 7.5 percent the next month before resuming its decline to a low of 7.1 percent in November.

Testifying before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics, attributed the unusual January gain in construction employment to unseasonably warm weather in much of the country.

An alternate overall unemployment rate, combining the 114.8 million-member civilian labor force with the roughly 1.7 million members of the armed forces stationed in the United States, rose to 7.3 percent from 7.1 percent.

Civilan unemployment in December stood at 7.2 percent.

Unemployment rate in Texas rises to 6.9 percent, TEC says

AUSTIN (AP) — Unemployment in Texas rose to 6.9 percent in January, up from the 5.6 percent recorded in December, the Texas Employment Commission announced today.

The Texas figures show 7,218,900 people had jobs in January, down from 7,459,000 in December.

The January unemployment rolls included 536,000 Texans, up from 443,000 in December.

The nation's unemployment rate hit 7.4 percent in January as 300,000 people joined the jobless ranks, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. Many of the newly unemployed were Christmas workers who could not find jobs when their holiday season employment ended.

SON

"Any mother would want to know," Mrs. Hennessey said, justifying what has become a four-year quest for her son. "It doesn't mean you don't love the other one any less."

Barry, a real estate broker in northern Virginia, is equally eager to find out what happened, but said he was shocked at first.

"I felt like I wasn't a human being; all of a sudden I had no idea who I was," Barry said.

Mrs. Hennessey's search began with a request that the hospital open their records of babies born at the same time as her son so the footprints could be compared.

But they wouldn't.

Michael T. McConnell, a Denver attorney representing the hospital, said, "practically speaking it would be impossible to do anything about this." He said it would be a breach of the confidentiality laws to grant Mrs. Hennessey's request.

Dr. Richard B. Lehmann, the director of the Colorado Bureau of Investigation's forensic lab, said a judge could order the hospital to look at the records, but he added: "This whole thing is bizarre," and hinges on the issue of balancing privacy rights and public rights.

Even the fingerprint expert who compared the footprints, Eugene W. Whitwam, a retired FBI agent, said, "If she raised him as her son, he is her son. This is just going to cause a lot of hard feelings."

Former cadet convicted of destroying evidence

BRYAN (AP) — A former Texas A&M University cadet convicted of destroying evidence in a hazing death deserved probation because "he is a salvageable young man with a future," the prosecutor said.

A six-woman jury deliberated about 2½ hours Thursday before convicting Gabriel Cuadra, 21, of Houston and ordering him to pay a $500 fine. He had faced a maximum one year in jail and a $2,000 fine for the misdemeanor conviction of tampering with evidence.

Cuadra, who now attends school in Florida, testified earlier Thursday that he destroyed a list of exercises administered to the student who died because he did not want to hurt the school.

"It was the most difficult thing I ever had to do," jury forewoman Carolyn Hayes, 59, said, fighting back tears. "It just tore me up because I'm a mother and a grandmother and a woman."

Brazos County Attorney Jim Kuboviak told jurors Cuadra should not be sent to jail.

"I do believe probation is probably the best thing for this young man. We do have a salvageable young man with a future ahead of him," Kuboviak said.

The court will determine the length of the probated sentence, Brazos County Court-at-Law Judge Carolyn Ruffino said. The judge would not discuss the possible length of the probation.

Cuadra was charged in connection with the Aug. 30 death of Corps of Cadets member Bruce Goodrich, 20, of Webster, N.Y., who died of heat stroke.

Authorities said Goodrich collapsed after three upperclassmen corps members got him up from his bed and forced him to perform "motivational exercises" that included about an hour of running, push-ups and sit-ups.

The three cadets who allegedly led the exercises were also indicted by a Brazos County grand jury in September on misdemeanor charges of criminally negligent homicide and hazing. Their trial dates have not been set.

Driver won't be charged with criminal negligence

SHEFFIELD (AP) — The driver of a pickup truck that overturned, killing five men, has been charged in connection with transporting illegal aliens, but will not be accused of criminal negligence in the deaths, Terrell County investigators say.

Authorities said five other people riding in the truck were injured in the accident near Sheffield. A Dallas man, the driver of the vehicle, was not seriously injured.

"He just walked off and left people dying and dead," a witness at the accident scene told police. Two other witnesses who reported the wreck at 7:15 p.m. told police they saw two men leaving the scene of the accident.

A man identified as the driver of the pickup remained in Val Verde County Jail in lieu of $30,000 bond.

The accident occurred when the pickup descended a steep hill while traveling north on Texas Highway 349. According to police reports, the driver lost control of the vehicle while rounding a sharp curve.

The truck struck a rock embankment on the left side of the roadway, skidded across the road and rolled down an embankment on the right side of the road.

Killed were Adolfo Loancornejo, 34; Joe Patino, 30; and Francisco Monrroy. The identities of the other two men who were killed had still not been determined Thursday.

The injured were listed as Samuel Sacundo, 27; Guadalupe Torres, 19; Juan Manuel Nunez, 23; Andres Flores, 25; and Raul Torres, 22. They were taken to Iraan General Hospital for treatment.

The dead men's bodies were taken to Richard Box Funeral Home in Iraan where services, or possibly return to Mexico, were pending.

Investigators said Border Patrol agents stopped the driver and another man — an illegal alien — about 11 miles from the accident scene.

Federal marshals took the driver into custody and arraigned him before a federal magistrate in Del Rio on a charge of transporting illegal aliens, officials said.

"There is really nothing we can file on him" in connection with the wreck, said Dennis Brown, an investigator with the Department of Public Safety in Sanderson. "It was real foggy and that's a bad curve. It was an accident."

Jerry Joplin, an agent with the Border Patrol in Marfa who is assisting in the investigation, said it would be up to the state to file any charges alleging negligence in the deaths.

State investigators said there would be no charges filed.

Former Arlington Congressman adjusting to life after first defeat

ARLINGTON (AP) — The man who never lost a race during almost 30 years as a candidate is now adjusting to private life after his first defeat.

Democrat Tom Vandergriff lost his bid for a second term to Congress in November 1984, swept out in a Republican landslide that gave Dick Armey the seat.

As the former mayor of this booming Tarrant County city between Dallas and Fort Worth, Vandergriff is credited with masterminding much of the area's growth.

He resigned the mayor's post in 1977 after serving for 26 years to devote time to his family's automobile dealership.

He returned to politics with his successful congressional bid in 1982. This time, the adjustment to a life outside of politics is more difficult, he said.

"The emotions are quite different. It isn't that I can't live with that judgment of the voters. I certainly can abide by it. But still I can't remove my mind from the fact that I truly wish I could have been allowed to continue, for a while longer," he said.

Tom Vandergriff

Vandergriff plans to continue to mix civic with business interests, working at the car dealership while co-chairing the Tarrant County Hospital District's bond election efforts in March and Arlington's sesquicentennial celebration.

"He realized that he, like so many others, was a victim of a Republican (sweep)...he really didn't lose to Dick Armey, but to Ronald Reagan and Phil Gramm," said Vandergriff's son, Victor.

Vandergriff says he hasn't decided whether he will challenge Armey in two years, but he has left the door ajar.

"It wouldn't take much," he said. "I suppose I would have to be convinced there was something important doing and certainly I would be able to do it, that I could perform that service...We'll just keep that door open so if those two circumstances ever coincide and then I'll be like the old fire horse. I'll be off and running."

But his decision won't be made because he wants to avenge an embarrassing defeat, his son said.

Rather, Vandergriff will decide to run after he looks at Armey's record, gauges the district's political climate and determines what effect the governor's race will have on local elections, his son said.

Anthropologist date duck decoys to be more than 2,000 years old

Hearst News Service

NEW YORK — Two duck decoys in the collection of the Museum of the American Indian have been positively authenticated by anthropologists as more than 2,000 years old — making them the oldest known to man.

"This is a major rediscovery of rare items from antiquity which has significant historical and archeological impact," said Dr. Roland W. Force, director of the Museum of the American Indian which has housed the artifacts for 60 years.

Dr. Don Fowler of the University of Nevada at Reno used the Carbon 14 method to date two of 11 decoys excavated from a Nevada cave in 1924. The two were authenticated at 100 B.C., which predates the age of Julius Caesar and the ancient Roman Empire.

The preservation of such fragile material from antiquity is attributed to the arid Nevada region and the in-cave protection location where they were found.

The decoys are made of reed, shaped with an elongated, sloped head and neck that is characteristic of the wild North American canvasback duck. Some of the original skin and feather covering remains on the 11 specimens.

Florida brush fire destroys eight homes

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — An uncontrolled brush fire, one of more than 1,400 that have burned 100,000 acres, destroyed eight homes in a subdivision where residents fought back with shovels and hoses as the governor called in helicopters to battle the flames.

Homes surrounded by firelines stood as green islands amid gray, smoldering forests. Some homes were half burned while others were little more than concrete blocks, melted lawn furniture and ashes.

Gov. Bob Graham surveyed fire damage in the Naples area Thursday and declared a state of emergency. More than 1,400 brush fires have been reported since the first of the year and the blazes have accelerated since the Jan. 22-23 freeze combined with bone-dry weather to turn vegetation into kindling.

At least five new fires broke out Thursday across the state, each claiming more than 100 acres, but they were brought under control by nightfall, said Larry Amison of the state Division of Forestry.

Three major infernos remained: one in the thinly populated Golden Gate subdivision east of Naples, one near Interstate 75 northeast of Naples and a third on the east side of the state, in the grasslands of the Florida Everglades.

"It's more severe than I had anticipated," Graham said. His emergency declaration will enable the National Guard to put two water-carrying helicopters into action and the Department of Transportation to lend two bulldozers.

"They've done all they can," said state Sen. Frank Mann, who toured the area with Graham. "At this point, it's up to the good Lord, because somebody's got to bring us rain."

The Everglades fire was the largest, consuming about 50,000 acres of uninhabited grasslands in northwest Broward County. Paul Wills, a forestry division spokesman, said the fire easily could double in size.

Wills said that if winds turn, the fire could obstruct Alligator Alley, one of two highways crossing the Everglades.

The fire near I-75 was under control. There was no acreage estimate available.

The only fire that threatened homes was the Golden Gate blaze, where some 100 people were evacuated Wednesday as the flames inched closer, Amison said.

"We're not trying to stop the fire," said John Webster, another Division of Forestry spokesman. "We're trying to protect residences."

Although dense smoke made it difficult to tell how many homes were destroyed, Amison said he believed eight homes were lost.

Citizens shooting would-be assailants

By STEVE ELLWANGER
Associated Press Writer

A Georgia man shot a 14-year-old alleged burglar in the head, while a husband and wife chased three robbers from their Connecticut store with gunshots, comparing it to a recent New York subway shooting and warning, "It's either them or us."

In another case involving an armed citizen, police in Highland Park, Michigan, said they won't arrest a 78-year-old woman who yelled "Stop or I'll shoot," then killed a 17-year-old who tried to enter her home with another youth Wednesday morning.

But in Decatur, Ga., David Harold Meyers was jailed on a charge of aggravated assault Thursday after he shot one of two youths he found in his apartment. Meyers, 49, told police he discovered a rear window open and saw his stereo system stacked up.

He found two boys hiding in a laundry room and beat them on the head with his gun, said DeKalb County police spokesman Chuck Johnson. The gun discharged and a bullet lodged in the head of one youth, he said.

The boy was listed in critical condition today at Northside Hospital, officials said. The second youth fled but was arrested later by police and charged with burglary.

"People might compare this to the New York subway case, but this was different," Johnson said, referring to the Dec. 22 shooting of four youths on a New York subway by a man who said the victims had asked him for money.

"Meyers, instead of holding them at gunpoint and calling police, instead began striking them in the head with his gun. We feel his actions justified the aggravated assault arrest."

Two proprietors of a neighborhood grocery store in New Haven, Conn., compared their routing of three robbers to the case of Bernhard Goetz, who faces weapons charges for his actions on the New York City subway.

When one of the robbers pointed a gun between the eyes of William McGilton, his wife Carmen pulled a .22-caliber pistol from her pocket and started firing.

McGilton drew his gun and got off two shots, sending the men fleeing, at least one with a wound.

"If it's war they want, it's war they're going to get," said McGilton, 45. "I was in the service and I know what it's all about. I wasn't scared...It's either them or us. You have to protect yourself."

Mrs. McGilton, 33, said she has kept her gun in her pocket ever since the couple were robbed of $1,000 at gunpoint six months ago. The McGiltons say they "will be damned if it's going to happen again."

Asked to compare her actions to those of Goetz, Mrs. McGilton said, "It's the same, more or less. It's either me or you."

New Haven police were searching for two of the would-be robbers, but arrested the third after he went to a hospital for treatment of a gunshot wound.

In Michigan, Marie Morrison, 78, told police she warned a teen-ager and his companion not to try to enter her home before shooting him dead Wednesday morning. The 17-year-old died Thursday.

"She was home alone and feared for her life," said Inspector John H. Holloway. "It's unfortunate that some people here have to protect themselves. Police wish they could do more, but we just don't have the manpower."

Highland Park Police Chief William Ford said he did not anticipate seeking a criminal warrant against Mrs. Morrison.

Mrs. Morrison's son James, a lieutenant with the Detroit Police Department, said his mother had lived at the house in the Detroit enclave for 27 years and had no problems there. But a neighbor said the woman's purse was snatched last year while she walked along a nearby street.

Spermicide ingredient may prevent spread of AIDS

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Tests on humans should determine whether an ingredient that kills the deadly AIDS virus in the laboratory and is found in most over-the-counter birth control foams will work on people, researchers say.

Nonoxynol-9, the active ingredient in many spermicides, killed the AIDS virus during laboratory tests conducted by the U.S. Centers for Disease Control last year, researcher Bruce Voeller said Thursday.

"We believe this prevention measure can reduce the number of persons who might otherwise contract AIDS over the next several years while an effective treatment is being sought," said Voeller, president of the Mariposa Foundation, a non-profit research and educational foundation in Pasadena.

It also "worked very well against gonorrhea in (tests on humans) San Francisco," but the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has not yet approved the substance for that use, he said. Voeller stressed that the ingredient is a preventive measure and not a cure.

Centers for Disease Control spokesman Don Berreth said the substance killed the AIDS virus — HTLV-3 — in the laboratory. But he said clinical trials on people are needed to determine if it can prevent then from contracting AIDS.

"There have been other things that have killed the AIDS virus in the test tube, but when you use it in humans it doesn't do anything," Berreth said by telephone from Atlanta. "From our standpoint, it's very preliminary to say anything but what it did in the laboratory."

Voeller said he came across nonoxynol-9 while developing a new brand of spermicide that doubles as a prophylactic against sexually transmitted diseases. Nonoxynol-9 is one of the active ingredients in the formulation.

Voeller said 75 percent to 80 percent of the creams and gels on the market also contain nonoxynol-9 as an active spermicide.

O'Neill tips hat

We've taken House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill to task more than once for his unabashed liberalism, particularly on issues wherein the good of the country will be served by conservative policies. Now comes an opportunity to give credit to the Massachusetts politician for a political gesture of no small consequence.

It wouldn't be difficult to misinterpret the relatfonship between O'Neill and President Ronald Reagan. They're at opposite ends of the political spectrum and make no bones about bemoaning the views of the other.

In all the areas of domestic and foreign policies the President proposes and the speaker frequently opposes. So in public they present the picture of an adversarial relationship.

The difference of philosophy isn't all bad and under the American system of government it actually can and often does breed beneficial debate which is good in the enactment of laws.That isn't always the case, however, and at times that difference of opinion between two such high-ranking political figures can sidetrack needed legislation and programs.

In private, these two gentlemen of Irish descent do not always look like adversaries. They are realistic enough to understand and respect each other's position.

When President Reagan began his second term, for instance, he received a respectful tip of the hat from O'Neill during a private conversation. Said the speaker to his country's chief:

"In my 50 years in public life, I've never seen a man more popular than you are with the American people."

That fact is substantiated in the notification this week that Reagan enjoys a 68 percent approval rating by Americans, as reported in a Los Angeles Times survey.

The speaker is realistic enough to know the president has the American people behind him. He said he told the president on the first day of his second term that he would not block the administration's economic plans in the House. O'Neill said he explained it this way to the president:

"I said to him, 'We can read. You got 59 percent of the votes.' "

Whatever one says about Speaker O'Neill, give him credit for being a realist. He is a political literate who, as he says, "can read" election returns.

With his more cooperative attitude toward the president's programs and policies, perhaps the nation can realize great strides both domestically and on the international front during these four years.

Another View:

What did he say?

It is human nature for a politician to latch onto a catchy phrase and to stick with it until it becomes a part of the vocabulary. That's how cliches are born — and sometimes survive to find their way into Bartlett's Familiar Quotations.

President Reagan has a repertoire of phrases extracted from American history, sometimes in slightly mangled form or meaning. His particular favorite, it seems, is a quotation from that Revolutionary firebrand Thomas Paine. The president insists on using it over and over, even though he once was severely upbraided for this practice by George F. Will, the conservative columnist and former philosophy professor.

Will pen-lashed the president in Newsweek last Oct. 22 when he said, "Reagan is inexplicably fond of — he is constantly quoting — that stupendously dumb statement by Tom Paine: 'We have it in our power to begin the world over again'."

"Oh no, we don't," Will said. "Paine's statement is the most unconservative statement that ever issued from human lips."

But the president was not about to shed the words of the gadabout pamphleteer. In his recent inaugural the president referred to Jefferson and John Adams as "members of that remarkable group who met in Independence Hall and dared to think they could start the world over again." In a speech to his aides Friday, he urged them to rest over the weekend "because Monday the world starts over again."

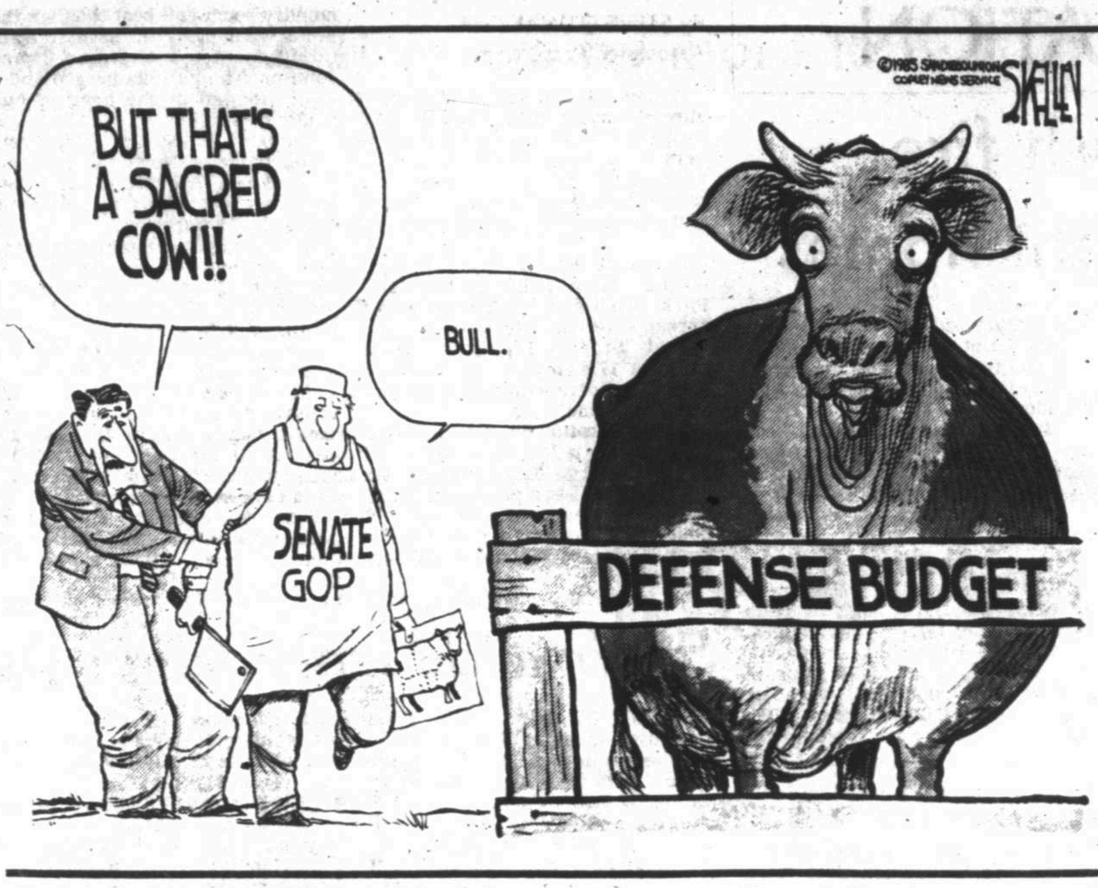

The president did not say what exactly would happen on Monday except that his staff would begin the real work of the second term — fulfilling, presumably, Reagan's Painesian desire that: "We can change America forever." Now, that is something of a radical notion. Most conservatives do not particularly want to change America forever.

At the Executive Forum on Friday, White House counselor Edwin Meese III said that the goal of the administration is to institutionalize the Reagan Revolution. But chief of staff James Baker said to those who have watched changes under Reagan, "They ain't seen nothing yet."

The president said, "What has gone before is prologue." (Bartlett's 15th edition, p.247). He added, "That's some great and beautiful music we've been playing the past four years. But the way I see it, from here on it's shake, rattle and roll."

Maybe we'll stick with Paine. And please check the White House flag staff for a banner that says "Don't Tread On Me." (Bartlett's p.920).

Taiwan admits role in murder

WASHINGTON — Last Oct. 13, a Chinese-American journalist named Henry Liu fired off a terse letter to me about the Taiwanese government's attempts to intimidate Chinese-language newspapers in this country. The China Times, he wrote, "was a victim of political interference which our laws prohibit." It was to be the last letter Liu was to write.'

Jack Anderson

The next day, two assassins scouted Liu's suburban Daly City, Calif., neighborhood on bicycles. A day later, they returned, waylaid Liu in his garage, whipped out pistols and shot him three times. Then the killers pedaled off on their bikes, which police found abandoned.

The day after the tragedy, Liu's wife, Helen, wrote me an anguished letter. "I have terrible news to inform you," she began. After the shooting, the assailants fled, she reported, "before I caught sight of their faces." But she thought she knew who they were: hired assassins of the Taiwanese government.

"They were not interested in money," she noted. Valuables in the garage "were not touched at all." It was perfectly clear to her. "The assassination is politically motivated," she wrote bitterly.

Helen Liu was right. The Taiwanese authorities, after vehemently denying having any part in the assassination, have now reversed themselves. They have admitted that Taiwan's military intelligence agency was involved in the shooting and have arrested the official believed to be responsible.

Though the Taiwanese deserve credit for accepting responsibility, intelligence sources believe the Taiwanese decided to make a clean breast of the affair and claim it was an unauthorized, isolated incident. If they can make an arguable case that Liu's assassination was a regrettable aberration, they might avoid retaliation by Congress.

For an amendment to the Export Control Act authorizes Congress to cut off weapons shipments to countries that engage in systematic harassment of their critics in the United States. Taiwan receives some $800 million a year in military aid that could be threatened by the Liu murder. Already, Rep. Tom Lantos, D-Calif., the Liu family's congressman, has asked for hearings on the case.

There is evidence of a pattern of harassment, which I have documented in the past. Here's the record:

— Five years ago, I reported that Taiwan had sent streams of agents into the United States to infiltrate Chinese-American groups that favored Communist China. This was confirmed by a secret 1979 Senate report, which also reported that the Taiwanese government had even considered sending letter bombs to prominent Americans who were pro-Peking.

— Three years ago, I reported that Chen Wen-cheng, a Carnegie-Mellon University professor who had dared to criticize the Taiwanese government, had died violently during a visit to his native Taiwan. There was evidence that he had been viciously tortured during 13 hours of interrogation by the security police. But the Taiwanese authorities claimed he had committed suicide by jumping off a high-rise building.

The Taiwanese admission of involvement in the Liu murder came as a surprise. Intelligence sources confirmed to my associate Donald Goldberg that the killers belonged to the notorious Bamboo Gang, one of Taiwan's largest organized crime combines. The government had just begun a massive crackdown on organized crime in Taiwan; intelligence sources believe the Bamboo killers murdered a troublesome government critic as part of a deal to win immunity for their organization. The sources aren't certain which side initiated the arrangement.

COMPUTER HANGUP — The Pentagon is having serious problems keeping track of its inventories, as everyone knows by now. Unfortunately, it's also having serious problems with a fancy computer system that was supposed to keep track of weapons inventory and maintenance schedules.

The system was begun in October 1982, and given a nifty acronym, MARS (Material Readiness Support), but has been going downhill ever since. According to an internal Pentagon analysis, the project is already a year and a half behind schedule, and will cost at least $600,000 more than its original $2 million budget.

Even worse, the MARS system can do only a small portion of the work it was supposed to be capable of. Instead, the new system will be hooked up to "interface" with existing computer systems so it can carry out its original mission.

Slander only issue for Demos

WASHINGTON — The contest for Democratic national chairman, which began after the 1984 election in a spirit of reform, culminates Friday in the petty politics and factional strife that have so long burdened the world's oldest political party.

Rowland Evans

Less important than who is picked by the Democratic National Committee is how the race has degenerated the last three months. In its closing days have come threats and recriminations, revival of feuds that began a decade ago, geographical chauvinism, labor union pressure and just plain personal nastiness.

Robert Novak

Probable winner Paul Kirk faces accusations that one of his leading supporters leaked Jimmy Carter's 1980 briefing book to Ronald Reagan. Organized labor's stalwarts lean hard on politicians to support Kirk. Allies of ex-North Carolina governor Terry Sanford threaten political reprisals for Southerners who go elsewhere.

"Hardball" is the word one Democratic politician after another uses to describe this mayhem. But it is a game where Democrats aim the high, hard ones at each other, not Republicans. Therein lies a partial reason for the party's descent in the 1980s.

Finding a prestigious national chairman to help halt that descent was the party's priority after last November's Reagan landslide. Democratic governors led by Virginia's Charles Robb conducted a manhunt whose failure presaged the hardball. Robb found that serious ex-governors and ex-Cabinet members simply would not venture into the snakepit of internal Democratic politics.

Kirk, former aide to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and currently Democratic national treasurer, emerged slowly from a pack of nine original candidates. It was then that Sanford, retiring at age 67 as president of Duke University, surprisingly entered the race. Correctly foreseeing unpleasantness ahead ("The only issue in this campaign will be slander," he told a friend.), Sanford had declined to run. What made him change his mind?

The answer from some politicians is Spencer Oliver, long Sanford's adviser and a controversial figure inside the party. In the murky background is a blood feud dating back to the early 1970s between Oliver and former Democratic national chairman Robert S. Strauss. Although Oliver denies he talked Sanford into running, his friend's candidacy is seen by many insiders as the way to keep Strauss from the halls of power.

Once Sanford announced, the unpleasantness began. Whether or not it was prodded by Teddy Kennedy's political apparatus, the AFL-CIO's political action arm under John Perkins mobilized for Kirk. Organized labor, which like the Bourbons remembers everything and learns nothing, could not forget tiffs with Sanford when he headed the party's Charter Commission in the early 1970s. The Bricklayers Union sent a full-time operative to Kirk's headquarters, and the full-court press began.

State party chairmen backing Sanford — such as Robert Slagle of Texas and Edward Mezvinsky of Pennsylvania — found national committeemen from their states herded into Kirk's corral. One Pennsylvanian was told by a labor operative not to support "a Southern racist" like Sanford (a 1960 John Kennedy backer and a civil rights liberal). Former California state chairman Nancy Pelosi, running third for chairman, has been called "an airhead" by AFL-CIO agents.

For their part, Sanford's Southern lieutenants sought regional loyalty. Texan Slagle, Oliver's longtime sidekick, wants no Southerner who backs Kirk to get a regional seat on the party's executive committee. Two pro-Kirk Southerners –Kathy Vick of Louisiana and Don Fowler of South Carolina –have been threatened with expulsion from the executive committee.

The nastiness intensified when a pro-Sanford Southern chairman spead the nonsensical story that Mark Siegel, a Washington political consultant and Democratic National Committeeman supporting Kirk, was the culprit who slipped Carter's 1980 briefing book to the Republicans. In fact, Siegel had quit as a Carter aide two years earlier.

Such poison courses through the Democratic Party, stymieing desperately-needed reform. Indeed, "slander" does seem the only issue; the three candidates agree on everything else. All carry gilt-edged liberal credentials (Southerner Sanford's aborted 1976 campaign for president was headed by McGovernite Jean Westwood). None demands an end to the caucus system, which has carved the party into special interest groupings.

Bob Strauss, the party's most credible figure in the outside world, is involved only as a stray target for abuse. "I do not have a dog in that fight," he says. The party that chose Strauss to attain respectability by forsaking the excesses that produced the 1972 debacle this time is persisting in the behavior that led to the fiasco of 1984.

CHARLEY REESE

Reagan not first press critic

It is well known that Ronald Reagan is not enthralled with the press. The White House, in fact, has begun its own news service that distributes the texts of White House announcements and statements. The reason: It says the press frequently distorts the president's views.

Charley Reese

What may not be so widely known is that this is not a new phenomenon. Tom Jefferson, one of the greatest defenders of a free press, had no illusions about the press and was hardly fond of it.

"It is a melancholy truth," President Jefferson wrote to John Norvell, of Danville, Va., in 1807, "that a suppression of the press could not more completely deprive the nation of its benefits, than is one by its abandoned prostitution to falsehood.

"Nothing can now be believed which is seen in a newspaper. Truth itself becomes suspicious by being put into that polluted vehicle. The real extent of this state of misinformation is known only to those who are in situations to confront facts within their knowledge with the lies of the day. I really look with commiseration over the great body of my fellow citizens, who, reading newspapers, live and die in the belief that they have known something of what has been passing in the world in their time.

"I will add, that the man who never looks into a newspaper is better informed that he who reads them; inasmuch as he who knows nothing is nearer to the truth than he whose mind is filled with falsehoods and errors."

Though words from a man who also said that if he had to choose between a nation without a government and a nation without a free press, he would choose the one without a government.

The CBS libel lawyer who has claimed that retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland should not have sued over a CBS television special Westmoreland believes libeled him would find no ally in Jefferson.

Jefferson believed in protecting truth. He believed erroneous opinions could be corrected in public debate. But he was all for punishing falsehood.

In his second inaugural address, President Jefferson said state laws against false and defamatory publications should be enforced. "He who has time, renders a service to public morals and public tranquility, in reforming these abuses by the salutary coercions of the law."

Jefferson's words show that conflict between press and politician was not born in the Watergate scandal. They also demonstrate something much more important. The modern libertarian view of virtually unrestricted free speech has no foundation in the First Amendment or in the beliefs and thoughts of the men who wrote the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. Their goal had been the protection of ideas. The modern claim that the First Amendment is a license for commercialized sex, obscenity and loose-with-the-truth potshots at public figures would have outraged them.

Both Jefferson and his contemporaries and the press in those days were more manly and robust than today's counterparts. Jefferson respected and fought for the concept of a free press but he was never shy about publicity denouncing its abuses. Nor did editors worry about the "chilling effect" of any of the blasts unleashed at them. They gave as good as they got. Early Americans were not much for making excuses and believed very strongly in personal accountability.

It's almost unthinkable tht a modern president would be gutsy enough to include a blast at the press, as Jefferson did, in an inaugural address. If one did, the howls of injured ego could be heard on Mars.

Our republic will be healthier if both the press and public officials regain their manhood. The press should never apologize for doing its job, and no public official should allow himself to be intimidated by the press. And neither public official nor the press should shrink from being held fully accountable for their respective errors or misfeasance.

In a repulbic, conformity and congeniality are not necessary, but honesty and accountability are. And respect of the people must be earned, not claimed as a privilege, by all the participants in the great drama of a free people engaged in self-government.

Defendants in Aquino case plead innocent

WORLD

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The armed forces chief and 25 other men pleaded innocent today as their trial for murder in the assassination of Benigno Aquino opened.

Gen. Fabian C. Ver and his co-defendants each answered "Not guilty, your honor" twice as Justice Manuel Pamaran called out their names after the court clerk read two sets of charges for the deaths of Aquino and Rolando Galman, the man the military claimed had shot President Ferdinand E. Marcos' political rival.

The soldiers and officers accused in the case stood as Ver, who is on leave from his military command post, entered the courtroom and saluted them.

"I feel very well. I'm confident of the judicial process and the rule of law," said Ver, a distant relative and close friend of Marcos, after the 20-minute arraignment. All the defendants except Maj. Gen. Prospero Olivas wore civilian clothes.

Justice Manuel Pamaran, head of the three-judge panel hearing the case, set the next trial session for Thursday, saying that from then on sessions will be held morning and afternoon every weekday "until the case is terminated."

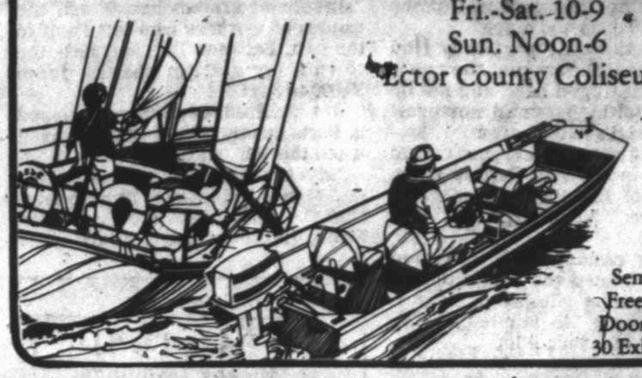

Court clerk Minita Nazario read the charges, accusing the aviation security commander, Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, and 16 other soldiers as "principals" in a conspiracy to kill Aquino and Galman. Businessman Hermilo Gosuico, the only civilian defendant, was named an accomplice. Ver, Olivas and six other soldiers were charged as accessories for covering up the alleged military role in the August 1983 shootings at Manila's airport.

More than 150 people, including scores of reporters and photographers, packed the small courtroom, which has a seating capacity of 110.

Galman's mother, Saturnina, and 11-year-old son, Reynaldo, were applauded by more than 100 people waiting outside when they arrived at the court. The Galmans were not able to enter the courtroom, however, because Pamaran angrily ordered the door looked following a commotion at the entrance.

Ver's attorney, Antonio Coronel, told reporters he agreed with Pamaran's estimate that the trial would not last more than one year.

German industrialist shot by terrorist group

GAUTING, West Germany (AP) — Left-wing terrorists forced their way into the home of a prominent West German industrialist today, tied up him and his wife and shot the man in the head, federal investigators said.

Ernst Zimmermann, 55, chairman of the giant Motoren-und Turbinen-Union of Munich, was hospitalized in critical condition after the 7:20 a.m. attack, the Federal Prosecutor's Office said.

The assailants, a man and woman armed with an automatic pistol, escaped after leaving Zimmermann's wife bound and gagged on the living room floor, a statement from the office said.

"There are numerous factual points of evidence that the attack was committed by members of the terrorist Red Army Faction," the statement said.

The Red Army Faction has vowed to assassinate prominent West Germans if any imprisoned gang members on a two-month-old hunger strike die. West German businessmen, politicians and other leaders — as well as NATO facilities — have been targets of terrorist attacks by the left-wing extremist group.

Alexander Prechtel, spokesman of the prosecutor's office in Karlsruhe, said a young woman rang the door bell at the home and told Zimmermann's wife she had a personal letter that he had to sign for.

"When Dr. Zimmermann appeared at the door, a male armed with a machine pistol forced his way into the house along with the young woman. The Zimmermanns were forced to lie on the floor and were tied up by the culprits," Prechtel said.

"After Mrs. Zimmermann's mouth was taped, Dr. Zimmermann was taken into a side room and placed on a chair. Then at least one shot was fired at Dr. Zimmermann," the spokesman said, reading a statement by telephone to The Associated Press.

Prechtel's statement said Zimmermann's name and other personal details had been found last July in a newspaper clipping confiscated with other papers in a police raid on a Red Army Faction hideout in Frankfurt. The papers listed a number of potential terrorist targets.

"The Federal Prosecutor has thus taken over the case and the Bavarian State Criminal Office in Munich, supported by the Federal Criminal Office in Wiesbaden, ordered to conduct investigations," Prechtel said.

In Bonn, the federal Interior Ministry's Hans-Guenther Kowalski said there have been more than 60 arson and bomb attacks by terrorists in West Germany since December, with more than 30 linked to the Red Army Faction.

Zimmermann has been chairman of his company since 1978, company spokesman Odilo Muehling said. The couple has no children, he said.

Gauting is a southwest suburb of Munich, where Zimmermann's company has a major factory that produces large turbines for ships, generators and aircraft engines.

The company — which primarily develops and builds turbines for military aircraft — is jointly owned by M.A.N. and Daimler-Benz. Among its projects are the engines for West Germany's new Tornado fighter-bomber.

Bavarian Interior Minister Karl Hillermeier ordered stepped-up police controls throughout the state and at border crossings, a statement said, expressing "revulsion at the attack by brutal murderers."

Twenty-seven accused or convicted terrorists and seven sympathizers in West German prisons launched the hunger strike in early December, demanding to be treated as prisoners of war and to be housed together in large groups.

West German justice authorities have rejected their demands.

Reagan, head of Australia to meet

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Prime Minister Bob Hawke and President Reagan will discuss the future of their nation's alliance — and the reliability of New Zealand as a partner — when they meet next week, Australian officials say.

Hawke leaves on Saturday on an official visit to the United States, then goes to Belgium for trade talks with officials of the Common Market.

Defense, disarmament, trade and economic issues will be the main topics of dicussion when Hawke meets with Reagan and other top U.S. leaders in Washington, according to Australian officials.

But the decision this week of New Zealand to deny an American request for a port call by a U.S. warship means that the future of the alliance between the three nations will be the main topic of dicussion. The growing dispute within the alliance, known as ANZUS, adds urgency to Hawke's long planned trip.

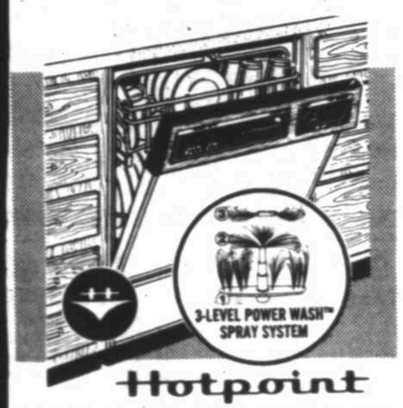

Australian officials today declined to say if Hawke and Reagan would discuss forming a new alliance without New Zealand to replace ANZUS.

New Zealand's prime minister, David Lange, banned visits by nuclear-powered or nuclear-armed warships when he was elected in July, saying that they made the country a nuclear target.

The United States has strongly objected to the ban on its warships, saying it threatened the survival of the alliance.

Residents bothered film wasn't made in Paris

PARIS, Texas (AP) — An award-winning movie titled "Paris, Texas," doesn't bother the residents of the real Paris, Texas, too much.

In fact, the only part they find unsettling is the fact that the movie wasn't even filmed here, and has little to do with the small northeast Texas town it's named after.

"It might as well be titled 'Kokomo, Ind.,'" said Patrick Ryan, manager of the Paris Chamber of Commerce. "None of it was shot here."

Another resident also wondered why they named the film after the town. Only one glimpse of Paris is included in the 145-minute movie — a snapshot of a vacant lot.

"It's about a man who wants to come to Paris, Texas — God only knows what for," said Bill Lamb, managing editor of the Paris News. "If they used us for the title, they should have filmed some of it here."

The movie, which won the 1984 Cannes Film Festival, was made by a German director and financed by French investors.

The film's main character, Travis, turns up wandering in the Texas desert after a mysterious, four-year absence. He tries to reunite with his family and dreams of moving to Paris, Texas — the town where he believes he was conceived.

At one point, Travis holds a snapshot of a vacant lot in Paris where he plans to build a home. But Travis never reaches Paris, which is in the Red River Valley about 100 miles northeast of Dallas.

His quest becomes a symbolic search for lost roots.

Portions of the film were shot in Texas — "just about everywhere except in Paris" — said Joel Smith, Texas Film Commission director. Locations included Port Arthur, Houston, Nordheim, Terlingua and El Paso, Smith said.

"There's no question we'll get lots of exposure," said Paris banker Thomas Steely, 66. "But will it be good or not?"

Steely's great-grandfather founded Paris in 1839. He said he is protective of the reputation of the 25,000-population town.

"Our character froze in the 1920s. It may sound strange to you, but I like seeing the people I've known for 50 years," Steely said.

Paris has escaped much of the turmoil of modern life, he said.

During the 1930s, Paris was a cotton-farming boomtown and railroad center. The cotton gins stand idle now and the railroads have long declined.

Industry is now the town's major employer. Campbell's soup and Huggie's diapers are made in Paris.

"A Campbell's soup plant is nothing to sneeze at," Steely said. "It's better than an oil well."

Industrial growth has slowed the exodus of workers who left Paris in the past. Between 1920 and 1960, the town's population shrank from 55,000 to 34,000.

But hundreds of soldiers stationed in Paris during World War II stayed when the war ended.

"My husband was a Bostonian," said Mildred Plummer, 78, who married a soldier. "He liked good old Texas. He never had a desire to go back to Yankeeland."

Fire destroyed the town in 1897 and 1916. Disaster struck again in 1982 when a tornado killed 11 Paris residents, injured 165 and caused at least $50 million in damage.

The town rebuilt within a year.

"There's a stickability here," Ryan said. "That's the best way I can describe it. People keep on keeping on."

To attract tourists, Paris celebrates Bastille Day. The festival includes a quiche supper served at the local YMCA.

"Everybody thinks because our name is Paris, it will look French," said Linda Suarez, a Chamber of Commerce official. "It doesn't."

And despite being the town's namesake, the movie didn't open in Paris. "We thought it was a good idea at first, but it didn't work out," said Ann Cochran, publicist for the film's distributor, 20th Century-Fox.

Instead, the Texas premiere of "Paris, Texas" was Friday in Houston, Austin and Dallas.

Otis Huff of Paris, Texas, is one of many of the town's residents who worry that the film "Paris, Texas," may project the image that the town isn't a friendly place.

Cambodians flock to see 'Killing Fields'

HOUSTON (AP) — Cambodian-Americans now living in the nation's fourth largest city are flocking to see "The Killing Fields," a movie that brings back memories of friends, relatives and their homeland in the early 1970s.

Paul Messiah, manager of the Galleria Cinema, the lone Houston theater running the movie, said entire families of Cambodians are showing up to see the film.

The movie centers on the friendship between a New York Times reporter covering the war in Cambodia and his interpreter as the U.S.-backed government of Lon Nol falls to the Khmer Rouge.

"The film is wonderful and gratifying," said Kimberly Huon, whose family is among 6,000 Cambodians who have settled here.

"All of my family died in the labor camps that were 'The Killing Fields,'" added her husband, Howard, 42. "My mother, my father, my nieces and nephews."

Estimates have put the death toll at nearly 2 million in the subsequent reign of terror under the Khmer Rouge.

Huon's father, a lumber merchant, was one of the many killed in the Khmer Rouge purge.

"The rich and the educated were killed indiscriminately," said Huon, who holds an agronomy degree from Mississippi State and now is an IBM computer technician. "Those who were educated abroad were particularly suspect."

He added that "most of the friends who studied with me and graduated from American schools that year (1960) were killed, too."

Sotah Chhay, who grew up on a farm and remembered seeing people killed, was among seven people in his party of friends and family members to view the film.

"This is my story — the fighting, the killing, all of it," said the 22-year-old Chhay. "I was young."

"We were hoping to go home to Cambodia, but we heard news that people were starving," said Kouy Ang, who was 12 when her family fled by boat to a refugee camp in Thailand. "We decided to come to the United States."

She enjoys this country, she said, but "it's not like home."

Columbus mayor in search of pandas

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Dana Rinehart says he's going to the White House in his quest for a pair of rare Chinese pandas, bearing letters from members of a powerful lobby — first graders.

Members of Gloria Bartell's first-grade class in Lima who heard that the mayor was leaving today on his panda pursuit wrote him letters of support that include their artistic conceptions of what the furry beasts look like.

"My experience has taught me there is no more powerful lobby in America than little children," Rinehart said.

Iowa center Greg Stokes battles for a rebound with Indiana's Winston Morgan, Uwe Blab (33) and Todd Meier (30) Thursday.

Iowa rips Indiana, 72-59

Knight's problems not Raveling's

Associated Press

Although he apparently had solved the quandary of Bobby Knight's revolving lineup, Iowa basketball Coach George Raveling wanted no part of the controversy surrounding it.

"I have enough problems coaching Iowa without worrying about what other coaches are doing in the Big Ten," Raveling said.

Iowa held onto its share of the Big Ten Conference lead with a 72-59 victory Thurdsday night over the Hoosiers in Bloomington, Ind., even though Coach Knight decided to return his veteran upperclassmen to the lineup.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Hoosiers, who hadn't lost that many conference games in a row since 1972, and came as Knight dodged verbal bullets from angry alumni and fans.

In Sunday's third loss in the skein, at Illinois, Knight had benched four of his five starters, including leading scofer Steve Alford. Only Uwe Blab, a 7-foot-2 senior, remained in the starting lineup.

With the rest of the regular supporting cast surrounding him, it was Blab this time who sat. He spent 14 minutes of the first half on the bench with three fouls and finally fouled out with 6:11 left.

"If we're trying to get our inside game going, we're going to have trouble when Blab gets in foul trouble," Knight said, avoiding direct reference to his change of lineups. "Blab continued to play well tonight ... we didn't give Blab a lot of help."

Even Knight's players were instructed not to discuss the shakeup. "We're not supposed to talk," Blab said. Even to questions about his fouling out, Blab would say only: "It was just bad luck."

Raveling said he intended to force the ball inside, using his big front line of 6-10 Greg Stokes, 6-11 Michael Payne and 6-8 Gerry Wright to get Blab into foul trouble "because we feel that they are a weaker team on the boards without him." Iowa had a 29-22 rebounding edge.

The victory kept Iowa tied with 10th-ranked Michigan, a 76-52 winner over Northwestern, in the Big Ten at 6-2. Iowa is 17-4 overall. Indiana fell to 11-7 and 3-5 in the conference.

Stokes wound up with a game-high 21 points and 10 rebounds for Iowa. Despite the foul trouble, Blab led Indiana with 17 points, but he had only four rebounds.

The Hawkeyes went on a 21-8 spree midway in the second half to put the game away.

Michigan was the only Top Ten team in action. In games involving other ranked teams, California upset No. 14 Oregon State 42-36, No. 15 Louisiana Tech defeated Arkansas State 80-73, No. 16 Nevada-Las Vegas beat San Jose State 70-56 and Old Dominion edged No. 20 Alabama-Birmingham 59-58.

Iona, meanwhile, lost the distinction of having the best record in the nation when it was beaten 102-85 by Holy Cross and dropped to 17-2.

Top Ten

Roy Tarpley, who missed two days of practice this week with the flu, scored 16 points as Michigan beat Northwestern for its sixth straight victory. Richard Rellford and Gary Grant had 12 each for the Wolverines, while Shon Morris led Northwestern with 17 points.

Michigan led 37-27 at halftime and scored the first eight points of the second half to open up an 18-point lead. Northwestern cut the lead to 49-37, but Michigan again took control, scoring six straight points to go ahead 55-37.

Second Ten

Sophomore guards Kevin Johnson and Chris Washington scored 16 points apiece, and Johnson's four points in the final minute helped California hold onto its lead in a Pacific-10 Conference upset of Oregon State. California led throughout the second half en route its first victory in seven conference games. Oregon State fell to 15-3 and 5-2 in the Pac-10; Cal is 10-8 overall.

Karl Malone scored 21 of his 26 points in the second half to help erase a two-point halftime deficit and lead Louisiana Tech over Arkansas State in the Southland Conference. Tech, 17-2 and 4-1 in the conference, did not take the lead until Wayne Smith's layup made it 53-42 with 13:23 left. With a little more than 10 minutes left, Malone hit a slam dunk that put the Bulldogs up 54-44, and Tech was never threatened.

Nevada-Las Vegas got 13 points from Anthony Jones, and the Rebels extended their winning streak to 15 games. The 16-2 Rebels have not lost since Dec. 8 to Georgetown, the team from which Jones transfered to UNLV. Nevada-Las Vegas, 9-0 in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, led 36-21 at halftime.

Kenny Gattison scored the game's final six points, including the go-ahead basket with three seconds left, as Old Dominion rallied to beat Alabama-Birmingham in a Sun Belt Conference game. Gattison ended with 21 points. Old Dominion led by as many as 11 in the first half, but the Monarchs trailed by 58-53 with 2:20 left when Gattison took over. Alabama-Birmingham fell to 18-5 and 7-1 in the Sun Belt; ODU is 12-6 and 6-2.

Unranked

Jim McCaffrey scored 46 points and had 15 assists to pace Holy Cross over Iona in the Metro Atlantic Conference. Iona's only previous loss had been to third-ranked Memphis State. Holy Cross is 5-14 overall and 4-3 in the conference.

MHS, Lee postpones play

Snow forces delay of 4-5A shootouts

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Business will go on as usual in District 4-5A basketball, one day late. The snow that fell Thursday, combined with the three to five inches expected today, forced all Midland and Odessa games to be delayed until Saturday.

Not only has the day been changed, but one site as well. Instead of playing in Chaparral Center, the Midland Lee boys will host Odessa Permian at Lee Gym. Game time is slated for 12 p.m., 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. for sophomore, junior varsity and varsity.

Midland High will still be playing at Odessa High gym. The boys times are the same as Lee. For the girls, Midland High will host Odessa High at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. while Lee plays at Permian at the same time.

Most of the teams in Midland and Odessa — girls and boys — are heading into games that are crucial for playoff hopes.

For example: Saturday's matchups between Lee and Permian. In the girls game, at Permian, the two teams are in a deadlock for first place with 9-2 records. Waiting one game back for a chance to move into the playoff race are San Angelo and Midland High. Both teams could join Lee or Permian in a three-way tie for the second and final available berth.

Chaps hold off Bulldogs, 69-49

From Staff Reports

CLARENDON — In a game that was not as easy as the final score indicated, the Midland College Chaparrals took off fast and had a 21-9 lead midway through the first half. The Clarendon Bulldogs started cutting the margin but the Chaps had a comfortable 35-23 lead at halftime.

The second half started for the Bulldogs but not for the Chaps, who made only two field goals in the first nine minutes, and with 12:06 left in the ball game, Clarendon had narrowed the gap to four points, 37-33 but then MC came alive and in the next eight minutes blasted for 20 points and held Clarendon to only four to put the Chaps up 57-37 with 4:30 left to play. From there, the Chaps coasted home for a 69-49 victory in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play Thursday night.

After the game, MC coach Jerry Stone said, "I think everyone expected us to come up here and win, but we looked tired. I had to call a timeout and remind the players that we weren't executing on the floor. I thought our shot selection was good although we missed some easy backets, particularly in the first half.

Stone also had compliments for Ricky Grace, saying, "he has the head and composure to be a leader on the floor."

Tevlin Binns led the Chaps in scoring with 22 points despite a horrible first half when nothing would fall. Binns, who is shooting near 60 percent from the field, was hitting only about 30 percent of his shots in the first half as the Bulldogs double and triple teammed the Chaps' big man.

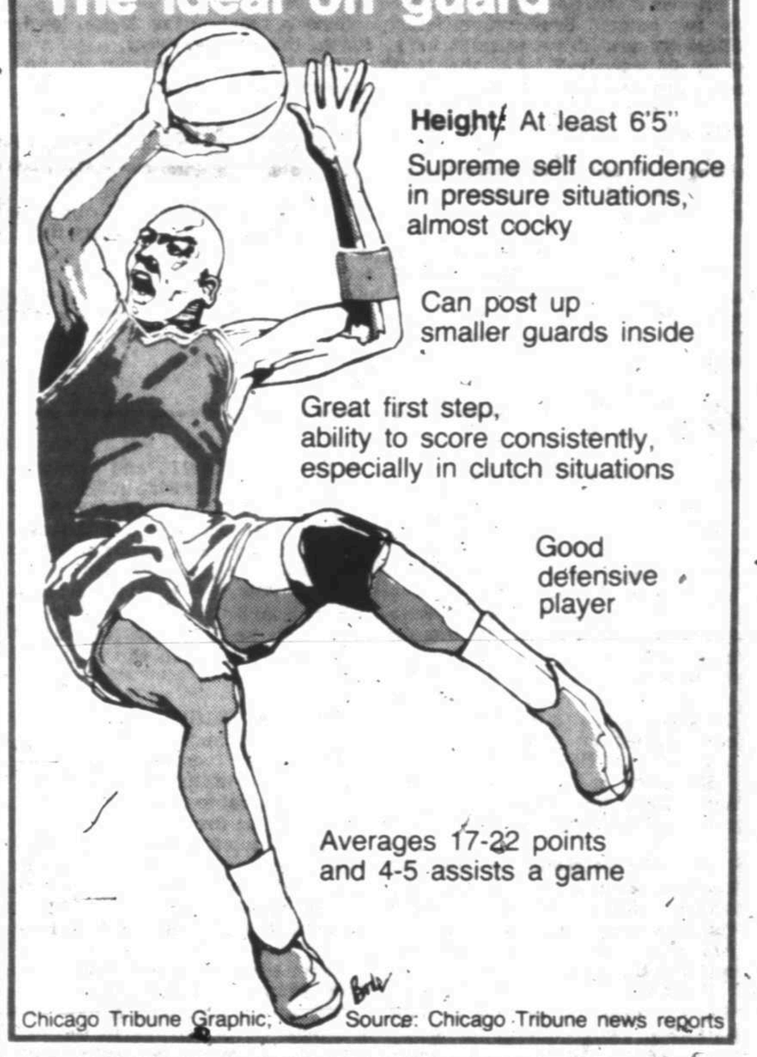

Midland College improved to 18-3 on the year, 9-1 in WJCAC play while Clarendon is 1-9 in league play.

Monday night, the Chaps will go for their 10th conference victory when they host South Plains at 8 p.m. at Chaparral Center.

They will also be trying to hold onto the WJCAC lead. Thursday night, Odessa College was stunned by New Mexico Junior College, 87-83. The No. 5 ranked Wranglers fell to 20-3, 8-2 in loop play.

Midland College (69): Zeke Williams, 8; Pookey Wigington, 2; Deon Hunter, 4; Ricky Grace, 6; Chuckie Graves, 8; Vernon Coleman, 2; Derrick Lewis, 6; Tevlin Binns, 22; Lawrence Chumbley, 7; Eddie Frazier, 2; Tony Wright, 2.

Clarendon (49): Keith Kubicek, 5; Vincent Mason, 13; Andre Harris, 7; Carl Curry, 8; Adam Richards, 3; Roderick Davis, 3; Shawn Reid, 2; Virgil Riggins, 8.

JIM MURRAY

Old-time outlaws holding modern-day revival

It was in the middle to late '40s. I was a young reporter on the paper. The city editor handed me the assignment as if it were to be a break-in at the Kremlin. He almost used tongs.

"Now, you got to be careful," he warned. "These are dangerous gangs and they're running up and down Sepulveda Boulevard after midnight in souped-up old cars. They call it drag racing. They mark off this one-mile strip and they've caused some fatal accidents.

"The last thing they want to see, next to the cops, is a newspaperman and a photographer. So, take a photographer and go down and get us pictures for Sunday."

Jim Richardson was all heart, a good game editor.

I remember going down to the suspect site and cowering in the bushes with the photographer — it may have been Sam Samsone. And I saw my first live in-the-flesh dragstrippers. They were supposed to be a breed of early-day Hell's Angels. Tattoos. Teeth missing. Earrings. Scars on the cheeks. Chains in the belt.

Terrorists in junkyard jalopies rescued from four-car pileups at the harbor. Urban guerrillas in midnight suicide pacts.

THE FIRST one I saw was a spindly, pimply-faced kid with his hair in a ducktail, a cigarette behind his ear and a pack probably rolled up in his T-shirt sleeve.

He didn't look like a menace to society to me. He looked like what he was — a kid in the throes of his first grand love affair. With a car.

His sweetheart was a collection of spark plugs, hubcaps, chrome block and leaded iron. Marc Antony never looked at Cleopatra the way he looked at that hunk of metal and rubber which looked, with the windows out, like a toothless hag to the rest of the automotive world.

Far from threatening to run us down or chase us out of the strip with iron pipes, these quasi-criminals were as anxious to have their pictures in the paper as Liz Taylor. They didn't see themselves as outlaws. They saw themselves as romantic knights of the roaring road, legends of the stripe of an Eddie Rickenbacker or Barney Oldfield.

They posed happily next to their gleaming heaps. They ran starts into the camera. They would have staged a crash if asked.

They were inventing a sport as uniquely American as a turkey shoot and as old as the wheel.

I BRING this up because this one-time outlaw game from the straights of Sepulveda is being staged in its modern revival this weekend at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona, where 40,000 people will pay $20 to $29 a head to watch something called the Chief Auto Parts Winternationals.

The sport the kids on the lube racks of Torrance dreamed up all by themselves has become a multi-million-dollar fixture on the American sports scene. The races the kids on Sepulveda used to risk their lives running for nothing are now contested for cash and contingency awards totaling $787,750.

The automobile as a sporting vehicle has a checkered past. Stock car racing probably derives from the illegal still operators trying to outrun the revenooers on the hills and flatlands of Carolina and Georgia. And drag racing owes its origination to the scofflaws of the wheel generation that followed good old World War II.

They never dreamed what might come out of their lawbreaking but one man, Wally Parks, himself an illegal road racer, did.

Wally Parks initially formed an organization called the Southern California Timing Association, which attempted to codify the rules for the clandestine sport and pull it out of the closet and onto the sports pages.

He had the enthusiastic support of the police agencies, particularly the California Highway Patrol, which had a vested interest in keeping 100-m.p.h. vehicular traffic off the roads, especially that part of it that could outrun their patrol sedans.

Parks put the sport on the dry lake beds of Southern California, particularly on Muroc – until the military and the guys with the right stuff came along. He linked up with an ex-MGM screenwriter, Robert Petersen, who started a string of hot rod and motor magazines and changed the sport's image from that of a hit-and-run accident going somewhere to happen to that of a respectable fixture in the fabric of world sports.

Detroit was skeptical but the sport became as staid and permanent a part of the sports calendar as the World Series. The first nationals were staged in a cornfield in Kansas. Admission was free. First prize was a cup. But the enthusiasm was boundless.

The standard distance of a quarter-mile for drag races was not an arbitrary selection, it was accidental. "When we raced on air strips, we found that the distance needed to stop cars with those antiquated braking systems was just over a half-mile," Parks said. "Therefore, the race had to be terminated at a quarter-mile.

"We put the race in Detroit in 1959 to show the auto industry we were not just a bunch of crazy road bums. I remember one auto exec got up to complain, 'Can't you do something about that name "Hot Rod?" It suggests some kind of a weirdo.' And this auto writer got up and said 'What would you call it, knitting? You ever see these cars?'"

From the two-dozen kids disturbing the pre-dawn sleep of the west L.A. suburbanites in the postwar '40s, hot rod racers have grown to some 40,000 in number. The best are millionaires. Their careers, like Shirley Muldowney's, are the subjects of hit movies.

It's not a sport that came in from the cold but one that came in off the streets. It wasn't invented, it just grew. The cars that used to strive to break the 80-m.p.h. barrier now go 260-plus. Parachutes now stop the propulsion that old drum brakes couldn't halt without the help of a tree.

There's probably a bunch of old geezers in bifocals and ear batteries somewhere today who once were leather-jacketed car junkies. They only knew they were scaring the neighbors and the drivers coming home from the swing shifts in 1946-48, and didn't know at all they were inventing a modern sport.

WOO—Week helps Miller survive Spyglass Hill

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller has this new putter, an elongated club of his own making. It's 46 inches in length, the longest in his bag. He putts with the handle tucked under his left elbow.

He said it keeps his wrist from breaking down, may extend his PGA Tour career, and "might make me a factor again."

It's a gimmick. Sure. He used that word himself.

"I just hope it's not a WOO-Week," Miller said. "That's what I call a gimmick that works only one week."

WOO-Week or not, it worked Thursday in some of the most difficult weather ever produced in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am, a tournament infamous for weather that blunts and frustrates the efforts of golf's more celebrated performers.

This was among the worst. Bright and sunny, yes. But cold. Very cold — in the low 40s. And extremely windy. Gale force. So windy that 38 pros shot in the 80s, only 8 broke par.

"Throw grass in the air to check the wind, and if somebody gets hit with it, they get lacerations," Miller said after he'd hit 16 greens on the way to a 4-under-par 68 in the howling blasts at Spyglass Hill.

Most of the damage, however, was in the form of bruises to pride and patience and poise at Cypress Point, the most exposed — and thus most vulnerable to the wind — of the three courses used for the first three rounds of the Crosby.

It was at Cypress Point that Lanny Wadkins' subpar string came to an end. Wadkins, a record-setting winner of two of the three tournaments held this year, was 4-under-par after six holes. But he played the 12th and 13th holes 7-6, triple bogey-double bogey, and came home in 73, his first round of the season over par.

Actually, that wasn't so bad. At least by comparison. Par 72 was the best recorded on that course. And it was much, much better than these other developments at Cypress:

Tom Watson and PGA champ Lee Trevino each had a 75. Jack Nicklaus was one shot higher.

Others were not so fortunate. Defending titleholder Hale Irwin had a 77. Masters champ Ben Crenshaw shot 79. Cal Peete, who led the Tour in scoring average last season, withdrew after an 81.

And Hal Sutton, runner-up to Wadkins last week in the Los Angeles Open, had the highest number of his pro career: 87.

George Archer, who won this title in 1969, had a 69 at Pebble Beach and led the group within one shot of Miller's pace — T.C. Chen, who played at Spyglass, and Willie Wood, at Pebble Beach.

Tied at 70 were Lee Elder and Mark O'Meara at Spyglass and Mike Reid at Pebble Beach.

Miller, who won this title in 1974 in the glory years when he was golf's Golden Boy, said his new, longer putter may "give me a few more years out here.

"It's kind of an anti-yips putter."

He said he lays the long shaft along the inside of his left forearm, tucks it inside his elbow and uses "the same posture, the same stroke.

"It works good, believe me," he said.

"I've got more confidence with it. I'm putting a foot harder on every putt, on some putts ramming it right through the breaks.

"It gives me a new dimension. I felt like a kid again."

He made a pair of birdie putts in the 15-20 foot range and holed another from some 45 feet.

But it was his ball-striking that may have been the key.

Bruins post 6-5 win over Nords

Associated Press

NHL Roundup

Although they didn't prosper during the last two weeks, the Boston Bruins survived their most critical stretch of the season.

The Bruins played all four of their Adams Division rivals over a seven-game stretch which ended Thursday night with a 6-5 victory over the Quebec Nordiques. The win moved Boston into a tie for third place with the Nordiques, three points behind Buffalo and five in back of Montreal in the National Hockey League's tightest divisional race.

Boston posted a 4-3 record against its Adams rivals, even though All-Star defenseman Ray Bourque joined high-scoring Charlie Simmer and several other injured regulars on the sidelines.

"We thought this stretch would be the turning point of the season," said goalie Pete Peeters. "We didn't win every game, but we beat every team we had to beat. We ended 4-3 and beat everybody in our division. That's what we needed to do."

The Bruins did what they needed late in the contest. Trailing 5-4 after Quebec's Paul Gillis completed his first NHL hat trick, defenseman Mike O'Connell tied it on a third-period power play. Two minutes later, rookie Dave Reid got the winner.

"It was a wild game, but it's nice to take two points," Peeters said. "We've got nowhere to go but up. We're working hard and the guys always give 100 per cent. You've just got to ride with the rough times."

"It was a struggle, but we'll take the two points," Bruin coach Gerry Cheevers said. "We weren't very sharp defensively. We gave them too many opportunties.

"I'm not too happy with the fact they got five goals, but I'm really happy we got six goals. If it takes giving Quebec five goals for you to get six goals, then that's the way to play them."

Blues 3, Red Wings 2

St. Louis moved four points ahead of the field in the Norris Division when Brian Sutter and Bernie Federko scored 27 seconds apart early in the third period. With the host Blues on top 1-0, Sutter capped a 2-on-1 break by converting a perfect feed from Greg Paslawski at 5:24. Federko made it 3-0 when Joey Mullen stole a clear pass by Detroit's Dave "Tiger" Williams and fed Federko for a backhander.

Then the Blues held on.

"The 3-2 score doesn't indicate how the game went," St. Louis coach Jacques Demers said. "We played well in every zone. We were patient for 60 minutes. We played a very intelligent game.

"It was not an exciting game to watch, but Detroit made it tough with their clutch-and-grab style of play."

Flames 7, Rangers 2

Calgary spotted the visitors two first-period goals, then scored the next seven, four in the middle period. Mike Eaves had two goals and an assist, while Kent Nilsson added a goal and two assists for the Flames, who fired 45 shots at goalie John Vanbiesbrouck.

Flyers 3, Devils 1

Philadelphia continued its home-ice mastery of the Devils' franchise (which also has played in Kansas City and Denver), winning for the 26th time in 28 meetings as Ilkka Sinisalo had a goal and two assists. New Jersey is winless in seven games and has lost four straight.

Dave Brown and Thomas Eriksson had the other Philly goals, while rookie Kirk Muller connected for New Jersey.

Sinisalo reached the 20-goal level for the third straight year.

"I'm playing a lot now, not only on the power play but also killing penalties," Sinisalo said. "I really enjoy the chance to kill penalties and it shows the coaches have confidence in all parts of my game."

Kings 5, Whalers 3

Linemates Steve Shutt, Terry Ruskowski and Bernie Nicholls each scored a goal for the host Kings against goalie Steve Weeks, who was making his first start since Dec. 3. Greg Millen had started 22 consecutive games.

Texas grows outstanding bluechip crop

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — This year's top high school football prospects, say the experts, include a gifted passer from North Carolina, a trio of cat-quick running backs and a hulking youth from the Texas Panhandle who also stars in the classroom.

Texas, always a hotbed of gridiron talent, has apparently outdone itself in sheer numbers, said Dale Smith of the NCAA.

"Texas is the state this year," said Smith. "There is an unusually big number of solid, outstanding blue-chippers coming out of Texas."

Each year the NCAA Enforcement Department interviews high school and college coaches around the country and compiles a list of the top 100 or so prospects to monitor their recruitment in what is called "Operation Intercept." The NCAA does not make its list public. But Smith agreed to identify the so-called "super blue-chip" athletes.

"They are among the ones who everybody believes will be the stars of the future," Smith said. "But of course nobody can predict for sure."

One of the nation's most unusual athletes is Ed Cunningham, a 6-foot-7, 265-pound offensive lineman from Sanford-Fritch High School, a tiny community in the Texas Panhandle.

"He's an absolutely super offensive lineman and he averages 31 points and 17 rebounds in basketball," Smith said. "He's being recruited as a power forward in basketball by schools like Houston and DePaul. He's also an honor student whose father is a superintendent of schools. Each year there are two-sport stars in both football and basketball. But it's usually a kid who plays a skilled position in football, like wide receiver or quarterback. We've never known of an offensive lineman who had enough quickness to play major college basketball."

Two quarterbacks top most recruiters' lists this year, said Smith. The most talented passer may be Todd Ellis of Greensboro, N.C., who hit 203 of 322 passes for 3,110 yards and 19 touchdowns in leading Page High School to a 13-0-1 mark. Chris Osgood of Moss Point, Miss., who was president of his senior class, is more of an option-type quarterback who runs a the 40-yard dash in 4.6 seconds.

"There are three running backs mentioned prominently by everybody," Smith said, "Brian Davis of Washington, Pa., Sammy Smith of Apopka, Fla., and Aaron Emanuel of Quartz Hill, Calif."

Davis, 5-11, 196, missed two games because of injury his senior year but still rushed for 1,600 yards and 24 touchdowns on 166 carries. Smith, 6-2, 210, also missed time with injury but still managed to average more than 10 yards per carry while scoring 16 touchdowns. Emanuel, 6-3, 208, scored 17 touchdowns and amassed 1,962 yards on 284 carries, said Smith.

"All three run the 40 in about 4.5 and Sammy Smith has been timed in 4.45," said Smith.

Among the defensive standouts are two in New Jersey — Ned Bolcar, a 6-3, 210-pound linebacker from Phillipsburg, and Quintus McDonald, a 6-3, 225-pound end from Montclair.

"McDonald runs a 4.6 40 and had eleven quarterback sacks," said Smith. "Coaches feel he could be a great outside linebacker."

A wide receiver courted by virtually every big-time program in the country is Hart Lee Dykes of Bay City, Texas.

"Any list of top prospects would have to include him," Smith said. "He's 6-4, 210, runs a 4.65 40 and most coaches believe he's going to be the next Lynn Swann."

The junior college ranks include a brilliant running back in Ronnie Ducksworth of Tyler, Texas.

The Rebels are tied for first with the San Angelo Bobcats, both at 7-2. Abilene High and Permian are tied for third place at 6-3.

Like their girls, the Midland High Bulldogs, fifth at 5-4, are looking for their chance to move a step closer to the leaders.

The only teams in the Midland-Odessa area that are out of playoff contention are the Odessa High boys, 3-6 and OHS girls, 0-11.

Elsewhere in 4-5A play, AHS meets San Angelo and Abilene Cooper takes on Big Spring.

IN THE first meeting between the Lee and Permian boys, the Panthers staged a fourth quarter rally and came away with a 56-55 victory, the first of two losses the Rebels have suffered this year.

What was successful for Permian then is likely to be the game plan for Saturday. Using bombs-away tactics from Terry Williams and Tony Lewis, the two helped open up the Lee defense, allowing Jimmy Davis and Orlando Ontiveroz to work the middle. All four scored in double figures.

Meanwhile, Lee's Brian Marczynski was popping in buckets from all angles on the court — long and short — but was the only Rebel scoring consistently in the game.

Those same four Permian shooters have benn the Panthers' bread and butter all year on offesne. Three are averaging in double figures in 4-5A play led by Williams at 18.2. Lewis brings up the rear at a respecrable 8.0.

In 4-5A play this year, Marczynski is the leading Rebel scorer with a 16.3 average, mostly from long range, while Raymond Morney has been working the lane for 13.9 per game. Derek Westbrook adds to the outside attack at 11.7 and Anthony Dickens helps out inside at 7.8.

All year long, the Lee girls have been living with the press defense and a balanced offensive attack that has no real dominant scorer.

Becky White has had the best season with an 8.8 average while Diane White, Denise Hatch and Roz Eaden have been scring in the six-point range.

MIDLAND HIGH, which is coming off an all-important victory over Abilene High Tuesday night, needs another one Saturday when the Bulldogs travel to Odessa to take on the struggling Bronchos.

With the top four teams in the district playing each other, Midland High could conceivably move within one game of first place.

For that to happen, however, Permian would have to beat Lee and Abilene High down San Angelo to force a four-way tie for first place.

Offensively, the Bulldogs have the league's leading scorer in Darrell Davis at 27.2 points per game. Matt Sears and Elvin Mackey are also hitting double figures for MHS at 11.3 and 10.2 respectively while Gil Brassard has a 9.4 league average.

Defensively, MHS has to stop the scoring of Allan Bailey, 16.2; Keith Smith, 11.9 and Paul Chavez at 10.1.

Of all the district's top teams, the MHS girls probably have the best chance at an easy night and will likely be in a tie for second after the final game results are in.

With a victory, the Bulldogs will move into a tie for second with the loser of the Permian-Lee game. A loss, to 0-11 OHS, would be devastating.

Offensively, Midland High has the only Tall City double digit scorer with Denise Lanz averaging 15.3 per game. The Bulldogs also have Diedra Knapp scoring at an 8.3 click and Tina Knight at 7.0.

Snow forces postponment of Greenwood-Wall game

From Staff Reports

Tonight's basketball games between Greenwood and Wall have been cancelled due to snow and hazardous road contitions and will be replayed at a later date.

Also, Saturday's junior varsity boys and girls basketball tournament has been cancelled.

The Greenwood girls, the No. 3 ranked 2A team in Texas, have a 24-1 overall record and are 2-0 in the second half of district play. The Lady Rangers won the first half with a 5-0 record.

The boys haven't quite matched the girls record but are highly respectable non the less. For the year they are 19-6 and 2-0 in the second half. The Rangers tied Wall and Reagan County for first place in the first half of the season.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, February 2, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Football patriarch George Stanley ("Papa Bear") Halas, poet James Dickey, Farrah Fawcett, Chicago Cubs pitcher Warren Brusstar and San Francisco Giants coach Don Buford were born on this date. Let your intuition protect you in both your professional and personal life. A lesson you learned a long time ago helps you cope with a new challenge. A raise or promotion will be yours by autumn. Be aggressive when cultivating business contacts: write follow-up letters after meeting prominent people. Everyone likes to be praised. Be generous with compliments and stingy with criticism. A rewarding romance could lead you to the altar.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Put work aside and make this a weekend for rest and travel. A special reunion is part of the picture. Family members develop new rapport with each other. Show your affection openly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your fears are unfounded. Shake off those doubts and go after what you want. Mate helps you regain your confidence. Spend part of the day with loving family members.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A new understanding makes this a happy time for you and mate or offspring. Help a loved one who has lost his or her confidence. A change in attitude benefits an important relationship.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You conquer an old fear. Research gives you new confidence. Call a brother or sister and have a heart-to-heart talk. Romance and travel go hand-in-hand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Give romance top priority this weekend and you will have a wonderful new experience. Hold onto something that has given you strength in the past. Help a family member.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A stable relationship grows out of a romantic weekend. You and mate find that you draw great strength from each other. Let loved one know that he or she inspires you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Temporary separations strengthen a personal relationship. Travel gives you valuable experiences and a sense of well-being. Keep in touch with the friends you make. Overseas contacts help business.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your influence is a positive force in a sibling's life. Although money does not mean that much to you, you would be wise to learn more about managing your finances. Build savings.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A good relationship requires hard work and a strong sense of commitment. Be willing to agree on intelligent compromises. The result will be worth any sacrifices you must make.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Goodness and mercy follow you when you launch an innovative project to help others. Your inner strength lets you accomplish miracles. Give a loved one the benefit of the doubt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A visit to a special place or person gives you a new feeling of optimism. Accept a last-minute invitation and you have a wonderful time. A blind date turns out fine.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Children are a source of joy this weekend. Be objective about a personal problem and you will quickly solve it. Follow your instincts if presented with an unusual proposal.

The bidding:

Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Fear of an overruff can prove almost as damaging as the overruff itself. Witness this hand from the recent Fall North American Championships in San Diego.

East-West were Karen McCallum and Rita Rand of New York. In theory, McCallum's weak two spade opening bid showed a six-card suit, and that had important repercussions later in the play.

Against four hearts, Rand found the excellent lead of the king of spades. She continued with a spade to the ace, and East played a third spade. If East had started with six spades, declarer was trapped. If she ruffed high, she would certainly promote a trump trick for the opponents, and she feared that, if she ruffed low, she would be overruffed. So she made what she thought was a clever move—instead of ruffing, she sluffed her losing diamond.

All would have been well had East shifted to another suit. But East persevered with a fourth spade, and now declarer was truly caught in an overruff situation. No matter what she did, she was down one.

Declarer's loser-on-loser play would have been the correct technique had here been a high trump in dummy. Since that was not the case, declarer's only hope was that trumps would split 3-3 and that a low ruff would stand up. Even though it appeared certain that she would be overruffed, it could have cost declarer nothing to ruff the third round of spades. If there was going to be an overruff, it was simply a matter of choosing which way to go down.

SCRAM-LETS ANSWERS

Sailor — Cheek — Bilge — Deadly — DO the DISH

A friend living alone for the first time was telling me how he adjusted. At the end of every meal he would push himself away from the table and say, "It's time to DO the DISH."

Mr. T doesn't like criticism of his involvement with his 'tots'

CASTAIC, Calif. (AP) — As the second car of the day is demolished before whirring cameras, Mr. T takes a break on the "A-Team" set to talk about "his tots."

"I'm their protector," the actor said, the ghost of a smile flickering across his solemn, powerful face. "I call them Mr. T's tots because Charlie has his angels. Jerry's (Lewis) got his kids.

"Mr. T has his tots. The kids like it, too."

Mr. T's tots are the 41 children who allegedly were abused at the McMartin Pre-School in Manhattan Beach.

The 32-year-old former bouncer and bodyguard to boxers Leon Spinks and Muhammad Ali has appointed himself guardian for the McMartin children, encouraging them not to be afraid and to tell the truth as they testify.

So far, he has talked to 18 of the children, and plans more trips to court to support them.

Mr. T, whose involvement in the McMartin case was requested by one of the children, says his involvement is his "Godly duty."

He sharply criticizes anyone who questions the motivation for his recent appearance, amid packs of reporters and cameramen, outside the preliminary hearing in Los Angeles where the children are testifying. Seven teachers, including the owner of the now-closed McMartin Pre-School, are accused of 208 counts of conspiracy and child molestation.

"I think it should be plain as day and night why I'm doing this here, but people figure I'm Mr. T, I'm in it for publicity or to capitalize," the actor said as he sat in his makeup trailer, a well-worn Bible beneath his clasped hands.

"I don't need no publicity," he said. "I'm already twice a week on TV (on the 'A-Team' and in a cartoon show based on his character). I've got dolls. I've got a cereal. I've got, you name it. I'm a millionaire. I'm not bragging. I'm blessed by God."

But Mr. T — born Lawrence Tureaud — seems to thrive on controversy and the publicity it brings.

Mr. T, who began his acting career as Sylvester Stallone's nemesis in "Rocky III," sees no contradiction in the rough action of NBC's "The A-Team" and his concern for the children.

"Kids know it's fake and fun," he said. "A little girl said she wants to be tough like me. She goes to testify shortly. She's 10 years old. If I wasn't on this show, she couldn't reach out to me..."

"They were afraid of what might happen to them if they tell the truth. That's why I told them, 'Don't be afraid to tell the truth. Mr. T will not let that happen to you again,' and I made them a promise and I'm sticking to it."

On television, Mr. T has a soft side. His character, B.A. (Bad Attitude) Baracus, is afraid to fly. He's astonished by a thank-you kiss from a lovely lady.

He says his feelings for his own daughter prompted him to get involved.

"If I wasn't a father, do you think I'd be there? I'd be like everyone else. I wouldn't be involved in the thing," he said. "But if it happened to their daughter today, it could happen to my own daughter tomorrow."

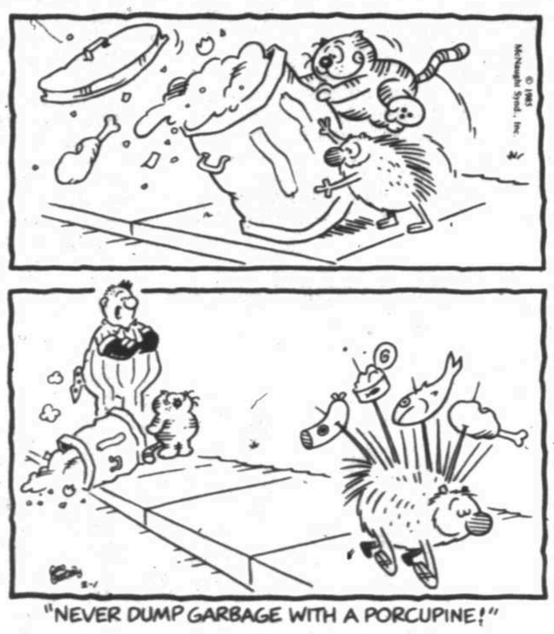

Would Mr T allow his 13-year-old daughter to face the hardships of court testimony if she were a victim?

"If that had been my daughter, there would be no need for a trial. Case closed," he said emphatically. "I'm not going to explain what I would have done."

Purple clothing items sold out for Prince concert in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP).— You can still buy purple underwear, and there's a new shipment of purple sashes, but anything else in purple was sold out well in advance of tonight's concert by rock dynamo Prince.

"We're out of purple belts," said Gina Misenhelter, a sales clerk at a shop catering to young suburbanites."No purple socks. No purple pants. Out of purple sweaters, too."

Purple is the color associated with Prince since his semi-autobiographical movie "Purple Rain."

At least 50,000 people were expected to attend his concert tonight at the Louisiana Superdome.

"And you've got to wear purple," said high school student Tara Brown, who has a floor-level seat for the concert. "It says so on the ticket."

Donna Reed

NEW YORK (AP) — Donna Reed says she's still "very nervous" about replacing another actress on the CBS television series "Dallas," but admires Miss Ellie, the character she plays.

"I feel comfortable with (the character of) Miss Ellie, so I hope that comes through," Miss Reed said in an interview published Thursday in Parade magazine. "She's one of the few good female role models on television. She's strong and sturdy."

Although she won an Oscar for her role as a prostitute in the movie "From Here to Eternity," the 63-year-old actress is better known for maternal roles, first as the happy homemaker in the 1960s "Donna Reed Show" and now as the kindly matriarch of the Ewing clan, Miss Ellie.

She was semi-retired from 1966 until her big comeback in "Dallas," when she replaced Barbara Bel Geddes in the part.

Carl Lewis

HOUSTON (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis, who has been booed by spectators and criticized by the press for his inaccessibility, says what matters most is that he is respected.

"Whether people like or dislike me is one thing," said Lewis, 23. "As long as people respect me, then I can't ask for more. When you can make your own decisions, you're doing alright."

Lewis, who captured four gold medals in track and field events at the 1984 Summer Olympics, spoke at a news conference Wednesday for the 1985 Heart and Sole Fun Run. He and his sister Carol are co-chairmen of the 3.1 mile run scheduled for April 21, which benefits Houston's American Heart Association.

The athlete said his main goal, other than being respected, is to "improve in every performance."

"If I do that, I'll be happy," he said.

CADIZ, Ohio (AP) — The birthplace of Clark Gable is marking the 84th anniversary of the late actor's birth with a celebration including the showing of his film, "It Happened One Night."

Gable was born in Cadiz in eastern Ohio, on Feb. 1, 1901. He died in 1960. By mayoral proclamation, his birthday now will be Clark Gable Day.

NEW YORK (AP) — Filming is set to begin March 18 on "Death Wish 3," a sequel to actor Charles Bronson's vigilante movie, Cannon Films Inc. has announced.

The Los Angeles-based company said on Thursday that the timing is unrelated to the case of Bernhard Goetz, who said he was acting in self defense when he shot four teen-agers who asked him for $5 on a city subway.

"One can hardly not be aware of the vigilante in New York," said Cannon spokeswoman Priscilla McDonald, "but no, that did not determine our start date."

Bronson and the studio had been looking for some time, she said, "for a property (script) that was mutually agreeable."

Dollar rises

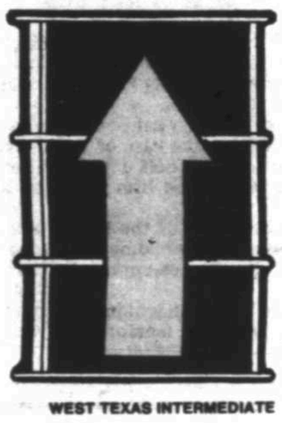

LONDON (AP) — The dollar rose against all major currencies except the Canadian dollar in early European trading today in the wake of open-market dollar sales by the Bank of Japan. Gold bullion prices eased in quiet trading.

The dollar briefly rose to a 26-month high of 255.60 Japanese yen in Tokyo before intervention by the Bank of Japan and selling orders from exporters pushed it back down, dealers said. It closed at 255.45 yen, up from Thursday's close of 254.78 yen.

Frankfurt dealers said the market was quiet, with the dollar firmer following the Japanese central bank intervention and an increase from 5.5 percent to 6 percent in the West German central bank's Lombard rate, a key official interest rate.

In London, gold opened at a bid price of $304.80 a troy ounce and the city's five major bullion dollars later set the same recommended trading price. It was down from Thursday's closing bid of $306.50.

Housing sales at highest level since 1979

By The Associated Press

The federal government reported that 1984 housing sales increased at a rate not seen for five years and a top mortgage banker predicted 1985 will be another good year as more buyers take advantage of falling interest rates.

Meanwhile, most major U.S. retailers Thursday reported healthy sales gains for January and their full fiscal years, which ended late last month.

Sales of new single-family homes totaled 639,000 for all of 1984, a 2.6 percent increase over 1983, the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development said Thursday.

A 3.1 percent increase in December lifted housing sales for all of 1984 to their highest level since 1979, the government said.

Last year's percentage increase was far below the 51.2 percent jump recorded in 1983, but that increase represented the largest yearly gain on record as home sales rebounded from the 1981-82 recession. The sales level last year was the best since 709,000 homes were sold in 1979.

Analysts said they looked for further gains this year, basing their optimism on a steady decline in interest rates since last summer.

Fixed-rate mortgages dropped to 13.8 percent in early December, down from a high of 15.2 percent in July.

Warren Dunn, a vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, said "1985 should be a good year for housing. More and more people will enter the marketplace as interest rates reach their low point this spring."

K mart Corp., the nation's second-largest retailer, said its January sales spurted 16.3 percent from a year earlier, while third-ranked J.C. Penney Co. said sales rose 7.4 percent. For the year, K mart and Penney recorded 12 percent sales gains.

Industry leader Sears, Roebuck & Co. said it would release its January results next week.

Retail analysts said severely cold weather during January was a mixed blessing for the stores. The cold prompted purchases of warm clothes, but also kept many shoppers at home.

In other developments Thursday:

—Orders to factories for manufactured goods fell 0.7 percent in December, the Commerce Department said. But economists discounted the drop since it mainly reflected a decline in the volatile defense orders category. Factory orders rose 10.5 percent in 1984 overall, the strongest gain since 1979.

—Help-wanted advertising in the nation's major newspapers rose sharply in December after stalling at about the same level for nine months, the Conference Board said. The business-supported research group said its Help Wanted Index rose to 145 in December from 137 in November.

—The nation's basic money supply expanded by $4.7 billion in mid-January, the Federal Reserve said.

Eastern reaches pacts with 2 of its 3 unions

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines reached tentative agreement early today on new labor contracts with two of its three unions, hours after a midnight deadline imposed by creditors who threatened to declare the carrier in default.

Agreements in principle for 1985 and 1986 were reached between Eastern and negotiators for its flight attendants and pilots, but not with the machinists' union, officials said. A company spokesman predicted a pact with the machinists would come shortly.

The flight attendants, represented by the Transport Workers Union Local 553, agreed tentatively to 18 percent pay cuts and an increase in productivity of five percent, unidentified sources were quoted as saying in today's editions of The Fort Lauderdale News and Sun-Sentinel.

Larry Schulte, chairman of the Air Line Pilots Association, said "we're through for the night," when he walked out of the negotiating room at a Miami hotel at about 4:30 a.m.

"We believe we have a good basis for an agreement in principle," Schulte said, adding that negotiations would resume probably later today. He declined to comment on what the pilots' union had agreed.

Charles Bryan, president of the International Association of Machinists District 100, which represents about 12,000 Eastern employees, said he was "disappointed" that an agreement had not been reached.

He refused to go into details. Earlier, however, Bryan had indicated that his offer to the Eastern focuses heavily on increasing productivity, rather than more employee wage concessions.

Without labor contracts with the unions, which represent more than 20,000 of the airline's 37,000 employees, Eastern was in technical default on $2.5 billion in loan and leasing agreements from some 60 financial institutions. That would subject it to accelerated payment of its debts.

"Because the company has not yet reached agreement with IAM, the company is presently in noncompliance with certain of its loan agreements," Eastern said in a news release.

"The company is presently seeking from its lenders an extension of the January 31, 1985 date to enable it to conclude an agreement with the IAM as well as to acquaint the lenders with the company's revised financial program for 1985 and to seek appropriate revisions to its financial covenants."

UAW, Jeep come to agreement

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — An all-night bargaining session produced a tentative three-year agreement between the United Auto Workers union and Jeep Corp. today, averting a walkout less than three hours before an extended strike deadline.

Negotiators who extended contract talks because of "several stumbling blocks" late Thursday night reached agreement about 4:30 a.m., said Danny Wilson, chairman of the 7,000-member Jeep unit of UAW Local 12.

"We have a very good agreement to take back to the membership," Wilson said from the downtown Hillcrest Hotel, where talks that began Dec. 3 continued after the original midnight Thursday deadline.

"We, the company, are satisfied with the agreement that was reached," said Jeep negotiator Bob Prossen. "We still have some language to pull together, but ... we do have a tentative agreement without a work stoppage."

Prossen said workers should be "more than happy" with the contract.

Wilson declined to release any details of the pact until it is presented to the membership, but said they probably will vote on it Jan. 10.

The union used radio announcements to notify workers to report to work as usual today, beginning with the 7 a.m. shift.

Shop steward Ron Szymanski, said there was little reaction at the main plant among night workers to a radio announcement of the settlement.

Pickens may be after Union Oil

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — T. Boone Pickens Jr. refuses comment, but the Texas oilman whose corporate takeover tactics have brought fear into the boardrooms of Big Oil reportedly may have another acquisition in mind, Unocal Corp.

Pickens was in Los Angeles on Thursday when Munifacts, a news service dealing mostly with municipal bonds, reported that he might be planning a $10 billion takeover of Unocal, the parent of Union Oil Co. of California.

The report was enough to send Unocal's stock soaring $4 a share Thursday to close at $42.25.

Pickens, scheduled to address a group of oil and gas investors in San Francisco today, declined to confirm whether Unocal was a target, but said he would probably try to take over another oil company.

In Los Angeles, he criticized oil company executives for making decisions that undervalued their company's stock and said buying companies with assets worth more than their stock price was a cheaper way to get oil than exploration.

"Many oil company executives don't know their assets well," Pickens said. "They don't see the potential value of the stock because they don't see the potential in the company itself."

Pickens would not comment on the Munifacts report, which quoted unidentified sources as saying he had already made financing arrangements to build a $4 billion treasure chest for acquiring a majority interest in the company.

Unocal recently reported it earned $700.4 million on revenue of $11.54 billion in 1984.

Pickens is chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. in Amarillo.

MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 255 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT (R) of Holliston, Mass. 01746 decreased $3.1 billion to $204.4 billion during the week ended Jan. 29, 1985. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield decreased to 7.85 percent from 7.93 percent. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield decreased to 8.04 percent from 8.14 percent. The taxable funds' average maturity increased 2 days to 49.

William E. Donoghue says, "Assets of taxable money funds declined $3.1 billion this week as institutional money fund investors moved $2.6 billion out of these funds. Individual investors appear more cautious about moving from money funds to equity funds as only $600 million left the consumer money funds. Tax-free money fund assets increased for the fourth consecutive week and reached a record high $28.1 billion this week. The average maturity for the taxable funds lengthened by 2 days this week, making it the longest in 4 ½ years." OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Reeves strike flows 111 barrels

Staff Reports

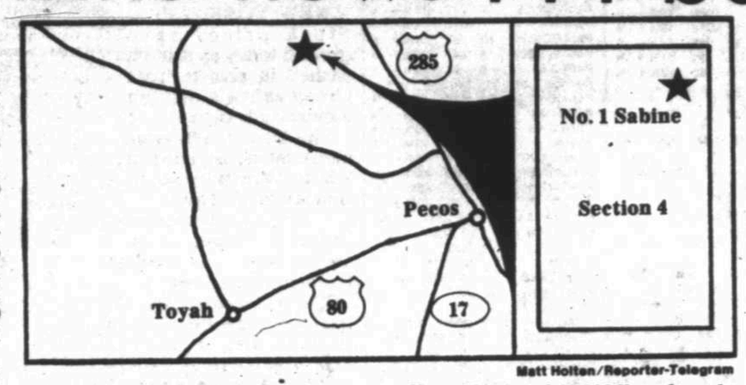

A new producing zone has been uncovered by a probable Ramsey discovery well in Reeves County.

ENERGY RESERVES GROUP tested the No. 1 Sabine to flow 111 barrels of 33.1 gravity crude, 150 Mcfpd and 264 barrels of water on a 20/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 140 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 1,350:1. The well is flowing from perforations 4,054 to 4,064 ft., which had been acidized with 750 gals. 10 percent acid and fractured with 17,000 gallons and 30000 lbs. sand.

Drilled to 4,362 ft., the well is plugged back to 4,307 ft. Final casing size set is 4 1/2 inches at 4,362 ft.

On an elevation of 2,789 ft., formation tops include the Rustler at 794 ft., Anhydrite at 1,964 ft., Delaware at 3,987 ft., the Ramsey at 4,016 ft., the Olds SS at 4,110 ft., and the Hays SS at 4,190 ft. The top of the pay zone is 4,054 ft.

The well is located 1,980 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from east lines of Section 4, Block 54, T-4, T&P survey, 18 miles northwest of Pecos.

Matt Holton/Reporter-Telegram

Cisco gas well flows 4.1 Mmcf per day

A prolific Upper Cisco gas producer has been finaled in the Credo, East field of Sterling County.

TEXAS AMERICAN OIL CORP. tested the No. 1 Cecile McDonald for a calculated absolute open flow of 411 Mcfpd on a flowing tubing pressure of 50 psi. The Cisco Sand was perforated from 7,537 to 7,924 ft. acidized with 3,500 gallons and fractured with 31,350 gallons and 39,450 lbs. 20/40 sand.

Drilled to 9,130 ft., the well is plugged back to 8,950 ft. Final casing set was 5 1/2 inches at 9,124 ft.

On a ground elevation of 2,527 ft., formation tops include the Cisco Sand at 7,511 ft., Strawn at 8,659 ft., Woodford at 8,938 ft., Fusselman at 8,980 ft., Montoya at 9,046 ft., and the Ellenburger at 9,088 ft.

The well is located 1,980 ft. from north and 1,980 ft. from ast lines of Section 6, Block 30, W&NW survey, 17 miles northwest of Sterling City.

The operator performed a one point test rather than a four point test because of the well's low volume.

Eddy County strike flows 1,002 Mcf

An undesignated field has been opened in Eddy County.

YATES PETROLEUM CORP. tested the No. 1 Tanque Rojo "AAT" State to flow 1,022 Mcfpd on a 3/8 inch choke with a flowing tobing pressure of 290 psi. The Morrow was peforated from 8,131 to 8,141 ft., acidized with 1,500 gallons of 7.5 percent acid and fractured with 70,000 gallons of gel and 11,500 lbs. of sand.

Drilled to a total depth of 8,393 ft., the well is plugged back to 8,327 ft. Final casing set was 4 1/2 inches at 8,393 ft.

On a ground elevation of 3,905 ft., formation tops include the San Andres at 238 ft., the Tubb at 2,950 ft., the Abo at 3,614 ft., Wolfcamp at 4,690 ft., Cisco at 6,021 ft., Canyon at 7,000 ft., Strawn at 7,568 ft., Atoka at 7,772 ft., Morrow Clastics at 8,124 ft., and the Chester at 8,308 ft. Top of the pay was 8,131 ft.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and 660 ft. from east lines of Section 11, T19s, R23e.

District 7C gains three field extenders

Three field extensions have been completed in TRC District 7C.

TXO PRODUCTION CORP. added to the Brooks (Canyon K) field of Irion County with the testing of the No. 3 Brooks "A" for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,550 Mcfpd. Gravity was 49.3, and gas-oil ratio was 11,286:1. The well is flowing from perforations 5,753 to 6,071 ft., which were acidized with 6,150 gallons and fractured with 46,000 gallons and 69,000 lbs. of sand.

Drilled to 6,580 ft., the well is plugged back to 6,230 ft. Final casing size set was 4 1/2 inches at 6,578 ft.

The well is located 1,980 ft. from north and 1,650 ft. from east lines of Section 16, Block 3, H&TC survey, seven miles east of Mertzon.

The well is the third producer in the zone.

GEO—BASS, INC. extended the Celery field of Menard County 2 3/4 miles southwest with reclassification of the No. 1 George W. Kothmann.

The well tested for a calculated absolute open flow of 1,024 Mcfpd. The Strawn B gas zone was perforated from 2,859 to 3,005 ft. and had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Location is 3,661 ft. from south and 1,178 ft. from west lines of the F. Rau survey No. 4, nine miles northwest of Menard.

The former Stran B oil zone was originally potentialed to pump eight barrels of 29.7 gravity crude and two barrels of water on June 17, 1984.

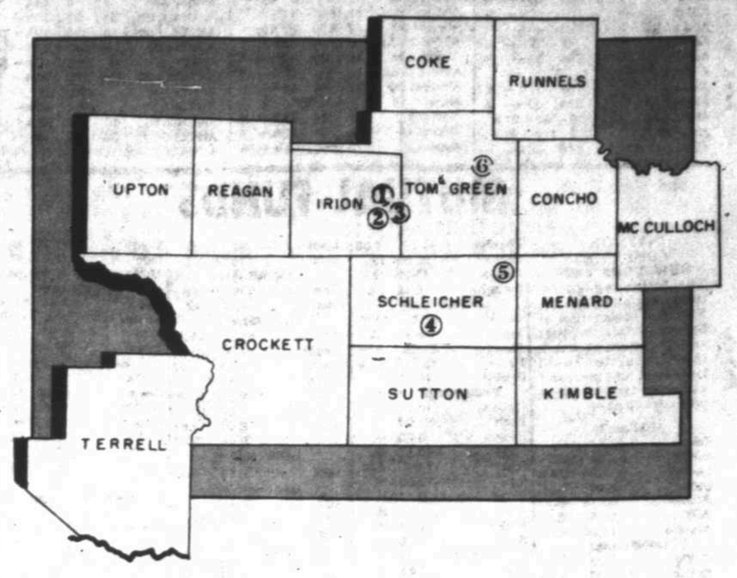

TXO PRODUCTION CORP. extended the Canyon zone of the Probandt field of Tom Green County seven miles east with the testing of the No. 1 Sprague "A".

The producer potentialed to pump 10 barrels of 42.5 gravity crude and three barrels of water. Gas-oil ratio is 2,200:1. The Canyon zone was perforated from 5,926 to 5,944 ft., acidized with 3,250 gallons and fractured with 28,000 gallons and 45,00 lbs. sand.

Drilled to 6,050 ft., the well is plugged back to 5,995 ft. Final casing set was 4 1/2 inches at 6,050 ft.

The well is located 1,988.3 ft. from north and 755.9 ft. from east lines of Section 79, Block 6, H&TC survey, 17 miles southwest of Carlsbad.

Council plans for city's future water needs

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

The impact of Stacy Dam on the city of Midland's future water supply won't be known until after that facility is developed, which should take another eight years, according to Utilities Director John Lowe.

Meanwhile, the City Council is proceeding with other plans to expand Midland's water supply, including drilling 12 wells at Paul Davis Well Field and leasing more land about 65 miles west of the city.

Midland is getting its water from two sources: The well field north of the city and Colorado River Municipal Water District. T-Bar Ranch in Winkler and Ward counties is being held in reserve for a time when the well field appears to be depleted. And Stacy Dam appears to be a fourth alternative as CRMWD and Lower Colorado River Authority agreed on a compromise earlier this week that would allow construction of the dam.

Although CRMWD had obtained a permit in 1979 to construct Stacy Dam, LCRA appealed it to the State Supreme Court. In November 1984, the court overturned that permit and sent the original application back to the Texas Water Commission for another hearing.

WITH A WATER package pending in the House Natural Resources Committee, Lowe said he was surmising the agreement was the result of political pressure from groups wanting to get that bill passed.

He said LCRA is one of the oldest water authorities in the state and gets its authority from the state Legislature. "The state Legislature giveth and it taketh away," he said.

He expects to see a permit for Stacy granted by the end of May or June, but it may require eight years before the dam is constructed and ready to deliver water to subscribing municipalities.

Stacy would delay the time when Midland would have to develop T-Bar Well Field, according to Lowe.

"My preference has always been with surface water over ground water," said the utilities director of the proposed above-ground water supply. "Surface water is renewable."

In November the council announced it had signed an agreement with four landowners in Ector and Winkler counties to expand its water rights holdings at T-Bar Ranch and nearby lands. This agreement entitled Midland to 120,000 acres of land near Notrees, Kermit and Wink. This property is being evaluated for the amount of water and its quality, said Lowe.

"It appears to be high quality water there," he said.

T-BAR RANCH was evaluated extensively last year to determine its yield and water quality. The results, said Lowe, showed it contains about 800,000 acre feet of water and is of a good quality.

Councilman David Godfrey, who assisted in negotiations for the additional leases, said the acquisition "at least doubled our reserves. We are still pursuing two other alternatives for additional water. One is relatively small; the other is as big in terms of potential water as this one."

Without Stacy Dam, Godfrey said, Midland "is in excellent condition. But we want to keep as many options available to the city as we can."

Midland is in competition with Lubbock, San Angelo and CRMWD for water rights in West Texas, said Godfrey. "I can see how in the future water will become an important resource to attract industry to West Texas."

When Midland will have to develop T-Bar and the other land "depends on the growth of the city," said Lowe, who reflected on 1981-83's "explosive growth" which ran 7 to 10 percent a year.

"We're back to a normal 2 to 3 percent a year. People in the early '80s were predicting that in 10 years we'd have 160,000 population. We couldn't have expanded the water system fast enough to meet the needs."

Lowe said he judges growth based on water meter connections and not on usage, which depends on weather.

TO HANDLE needs in the near future, the council approved $3 million to drill 12 more wells in the Paul Davis Well Field, the money coming from interest earned on the $20 million to build a new sewage disposal facility. A 13th well that was drilled in the 1950s and never used will be evaluated for its potential, Lowe said.

To find the best locations for producing wells, surveyors are drilling 18 test holes, he said. "We found out last year the test drilling program is very important. Some channels are not suitable for the kinds of wells we need to construct."

During a 1980 expansion, the city drilled a well in a section of clay and it could not be used.

With the cost of drilling each well about $40,000 — before it is added to the gathering system — the city discovered it was a costly mistake.

Developing the well and tying it into the system is estimated at $125,000, he said.

McMillen Well Field west of the city is utilized as a recharge-discharge facility. During the winter it is filled with 500 million gallons from Paul Davis, and during the summer the water is pumped out on peak usage days.

Looking at the city's supplies and reserves, Lowe estimated Midland has enough water for the next 50 years.

But supplies are not the only answer for future needs. Lowe expects to see conservation stressed in the water package coming out of the Legislature and also recommends setting up a long-range planning committee in the city.

"FROM A conservation standpoint, there are many areas that could prolong what we have today far into the 20th century," said Lowe. "I'm aware that we have water running down the streets in the summer and the winter. We (Midlanders) are not conservation minded."

The long-range planning committee should include some citizens to keep the continuity flowing because elected officials come and go. But Godfrey said he preferred the two-man committee on which he served.

"We had some thoughts about it a year ago," he said of a larger committee. "Then we got involved in negotiations with the landowners in Winkler. With four landowners and two of us (Tom Sloan was the other city representative), that's enough people throwing ideas into the pot."

Craddick says legislation will be in House next week

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Tom Craddick, R-Midland, says the House Natural Resources Committee should complete work on statewide water legislation next week, sending the proposals to the House for an early vote.

The committee had stopped work pending an agreement between the Lower Colorado River Authority and Colorado River Municipal Water District in the dispute over construction on Stacy Reservoir.

LCRA and CRMWD are expected to finalize their agreement next week. Natural Resources plans to meet after the House session at 2 p.m. Monday to resume work on the water legislation, which includes $600 million in additional financing authority through the Water Development Fund bond program.

Craddick reports amendments have been drafted for consideration during the Monday session.

He said he expects work could be completed Monday or at a session Tuesday. Amendments to be considered are "wording, mainly," but some substantive issues, he says.

Rep. J.W. Buchanan, D-Dumas, has indicated he wants to change provisions on ground water, Craddick says, to provide that the state create ground water management districts in areas where districts aren't created locally.

Other changes also may be considered, he says, but he expects action on the bill to be completed rapidly so the measure will be returned to the House next week.

Midland police report 131 traffic accidents Thursday

From Staff Reports

A Canadian man trying to escape the cold and a California woman on her way back to the San Francisco Bay area were only two of the many motorists who tumbled into treacherous drifts during the snowstorm Thursday, when 131 minor accidents were reported to city police. On a normal day, nine or 10 accidents are reported, police said.

Only one death was reported in the area as a result of the snow — a Pecos man was killed in an accident on Interstate 20 in Ward County. Odessa police reported 141 minor accidents Thursday and another six to 12 overnight, but Midland police reported only one accident between midnight and 8 a.m.

A Department of Public Safety spokesperson said there was only the usual number of accidents outside the city limits — "I guess everyone was staying in."

But DPS, sheriff's office and police department officers were called to investigate a couple of afternoon accidents at the junction of Interstate 20 and State Highway 80, where they stood on snowy and slick highway shoulders and watched truckers continue to speed despite the icy conditions.

"There could be a couple more if people don't slow down," Deputy Dyrel Collins of the sheriff's office said, sitting for a moment in a warm patrol car with the California family that found themselves stuck in Midland while their car is repaired.

Jody Doppie was traveling from Atlanta where she and her children had been visiting her sister when she was struck from behind by a car driven by a Canadian, "who said he came here to get out of the bad weather," according to Deputy Dean Cook of the sheriff's office.

The two-car collision on U.S. Interstate 20 at the 144-mile marker was the second to occur at that site about 3:30 p.m.

An eastbound tractor-trailer already had slid across the median and was blocking the inside westbound lane. No serious injuries resulted from the accident.

"Another truck may have hit him but I'm not sure," said Cook, who was the first on the scene. "He (the second truck driver) went on over the overpass before he stopped. That lady was probably slowing down for this other one and the people from Canada probably hit them from behind."

Although the DPS had reported three accidents at the scene, only two were investigated by the sheriff's office.

Ms. Doppie, who had left from Abilene Thursday morning, said, "It was snowing there but not as heavy as here." Although she and her children weren't hurt, they were delayed.

"If today would've been a full day, it would have been two more days" before she reached San Franciso, where "it sure is warmer than here," she said.

"I was scared," said her 3-year-old son, Justin, sitting in the back seat of Collins' patrol car.

"He was but I wasn't," said older brother, Aaron, 5.

Wide-eyed 4-year-old Erica didn't say much at all.

Manuel Osio Trujillo, 60, of Pecos, was pronounced dead in Reeves County Hospital at 10:22 p.m. after being injured in an 8:45 p.m. accident on Interstate 20 about seven miles east of Barstow in Ward County, according to the DPS. Trujillo's 1981 Buick was involved in an accident with a 1979 Peterbilt and a 1968 Freightliner. Injured were Juanita Trujillo, 67, of Pecos, who was listed in fair condition in Reeves County Hospital with back and chest injuries and facial lacerations, and George Mata, 42, also of Pecos, who was treated and released. The two truck drivers were uninjured, according to the DPS.

Rancher capitalizes on lifelong hobby

Kent Porter/Reporter Telegram

Midlander George Jackson displays his invention the "Port-a-grill." Constructed of 16-gauge sheet metal, the grill collapses into a small package for convenient storage.

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

In good times, George Jackson makes a living as a West Texas rancher.

But in bad times, he turns to his lifelong hobby and manages to capitalize on it.

Jackson has found that invention is the spice of life. And his own invention, the "Port-a-grill" is proof.

Constructed of 16-gauge sheet metal, the barbecue is about one-foot-square when assembled and collapses into a small package for convenient storage, he notes.

"Space is the main problem when you're camping or traveling in a motor home. This grill folds down into such a small package you can store it just about anywhere," says Jackson.

Retailing for about $35 each, the barbecue operates on wood or charcoal, and serves as either a conventional grill for preparing steaks, hamburgers and chops or as a chimney stove for roasting chicken and vegetables.

"I'm always building something," he says. "One of the reasons I got into this was because of the drought. You have to prostitute yourself pretty bad with the ranching industry the way it's been."

Jackson claims he first thought of designing the collapsible barbecue grill following a fishing trip to Alaska last June.

"There we were in the motor home with all this fish and no barbecue to cook it on," he says. "By the time I got home, I already had the plans drawn out in my mind. So I built one."

Since then, Jackson has constructed more than 30 grills and currently is waiting for approval to patent the invention.

Decrease in patient days cause of operating loss

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

A loss in December operations due to a decrease in patient days, a proposed $10,000 study for handling indigent high-risk infants locally and the introduction of a new director of marketing and planning highlighted Thursday's monthly meeting of the Midland County Hospital District trustees and the Midland Memorial Hospital board of directors.

"The $1,600 loss in December operations was the first in quite some time," said Ron Peterson, vice president of finance at MMH. "What we have is an ever-decreasing length in stay.

"We budgeted for an average stay of 5.3 days," he said. "The actual stay was one day less."

Peterson said the daily census of patient days was back up to 170 per day, "from an average in December that was way, way below that."

"We're hoping that December was an unusual month," he said. "Activity is picking up."

A drop or rise in the average number of days that a patient stays at the hospital also affects the scheduling of staff, according to Kay Hawks, vice president of nursing.

"Staffing is a considerable problem when the census is down," he said. "We have tried to get flexibility by combining full and part-time staff rather than lay people off. We set up this system so that we have enough labor to meet peak periods and still not be overstaffed when we are down."

There has been no replacement of nurses in two months, said Hawks. "We've done a good job in cutting back staff to deal with the low census. The nurses are taking days off without pay and letting attrition take its course.

Three sentenced to life in prison for child abuse

DALLAS (AP) — A state district court jury has sentenced to life in prison for child abuse a mother, aunt and uncle who held the hands of three young girls over a gas flame as punishment for taking food.

The six-man, six-woman jury took only 40 minutes to assess the maximum punishment Thursday for Samella Brumfield Gill, 35, the mother; Vera Mae Brown, 31, the aunt; and Mrs. Brown's husband, Henderson George Brown, 33.

On Wednesday, the trio was convicted of abusing all six of Mrs. Gill's children and of taking part in the gas-stove burnings of her 11-year-old twin girls and 12-year-old daughter Aug. 27.

"I tried to pull away...but my mother pushed me back," one of the twins testified, describing the burnings. "I was pushing, pushing back using my feet. Then I fell down."

Doctors said her hands were so badly burned that bones were exposed and doctors had to amputate a finger.

"They had to cut some of it off," said the girl, who removed a cloth covering the injured hand and laid the hand on a ledge in front of jurors.

Authorities arrested her mother, aunt and uncle after Mrs. Gill took the twins to Parkland Memorial Hospital for treatment of their burns.

Police said earlier the injuries were among the worst instances of child abuse they had ever seen.

All six of Mrs. Gill's children now live with their father and an aunt in Wichita Falls.

During the trial, the girl and two of her sisters, aged 12 and 9, testified that their mother and aunt stuffed rags in their mouths and "doused" them in a shower with hot water.

The three defendants waived their right to testify in their own behalf. The Browns' lawyer conceded that the injuries were "undeniably horrible" but asked jurors to consider the pressures of raising 13 children in a three-room apartment.

An attorney for Ms. Gill said the mother didn't know that Mrs. Brown was going to burn the children's hands.

'Amazing Grace' gets the job done

WEATHERFORD (AP) — The payoffs have come in spades for conservationist Grace Woodruff Cartwright and her environment.

Referred to by her friends as "Amazing Grace," Mrs. Cartwright is a peripatetic pragmatist who is modest about her achievements, which range from refurbishing a cotton community to transplanting hundreds of trees and shrubs from her ranch near Weatherford, 30 miles west of Fort Worth, to the North Texas State University campus in Denton.

"Most people just sit around and think about doing things," one of Mrs. Cartwright's acquaintances said. "She jumps right in there and does it."

"I just know you have to operate that way," Mrs. Cartwright said. "I get in there and get with it. I have never thought in any other way."

She doesn't waste time or words. Asked her age, Mrs. Cartwright said, "I don't flaunt it. But I graduated from North Texas in '29. That ought to give you some idea."

Her work has had an impact on her environment. Mrs. Cartwright, who owns and manages extensive ranch and oil interests, instigated the rebuilding of the Tin Top community near Weatherford and also worked to form the Brazos Valley Association after the flood of 1957. This earned her the reputation as "the lady who tamed the river."

She played a key role in the soil conservation movement in Parker County. "I blazed the trail for women to get interested in conserving our soil," she says. During her term on the Texas Water Quality Board she helped set anti-pollution rules for the state waterways.

The Parker County resident recently went to Washington, D.C., where she received the prestigious Lady Bird Johnson Award for Conservation from Keep America Beautiful Inc. She also has been recognized by the Ford Foundation, The National Sears Foundation, the state of Texas, Parker County and Weatherford for her efforts.

She has been given the Texas Conservation Award for Distinguished Service, the Distinguished Alumni Award for 1984 from North Texas State University (where she was the first woman on the board of regents) and (her favorite) the District Soil Conservation Award, for restoring a busted-out 500-acre Parker County farm to prosperity.

Mrs. Cartwright's energy came from a healthy upbringing on a Wise County farm where loving the land was a way of life.

At North Texas, she studied home economics but was encouraged to pay attention to conservation.

She says that rather than dwell on past achievements she prefers to work for the future. Now her priority is landscaping Weatherford's new municipal center.

Mrs. Cartwright is optimistic that environmental awareness will take a stronger hold on the nation.

"I think it's a very growing thing," she said. "When I was in Washington for this award luncheon there were 467 people and every person there was there because they were concerned with the environment.

"Two-thirds were young executives whose companies are real interested in the environment and keeping it clean. And that's a big step.

"From the flower bed to the board room, you could say."

School administrators back college tuition hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Administrative officers and the regent chairman at the University of Texas have joined Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby in supporting a college tuition increase that also may win the backing of Gov. Mark White.

In a January budget speech to the Legislature, White proposed tuition increases at state colleges but specifically omitted Texans who are undergraduates.

At a Thursday news conference, however, White noted that there has not been a tuition increase since 1971, and said, "I think it's appropriate" for legislators to look at an across-the-board increase.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby on Wednesday proposed raising undergraduate resident tuition next year from $4 to $8 per semester hour and to $12 per semester hour in 1987. Tuition for others also would be increased.

White said, "I am hopeful there will be provisions made to make certain that no person in this state who is otherwise qualified to attend one of our state universities will be deprived of that opportunity because of any increase in tuition.

"The whole reason I was opposed to raising tuition in the first place was to make certain that no person would be deprived of an opportunity to go to school," the governor said.

At a separate Capitol news conference, UT regent chairman Jon Newton said the last major tuition increase was in 1957, when the rate was doubled from $25 to $50 a semester. "A tuition increase is part of the solution to the budget problem," Newton said. "Our tuition could be increased severalfold and it would still be below the national average."

UT-Austin President Peter Flawn also said he fully supported Hobby's proposed tuition increases, and he added that faculty, students, alumni and parents should support the plan.

Four family members found dead in Houston

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) — The bodies of four family members, including one that had been set afire, were found today in a southwest Houston residence, police said.

"The father was shot, possibly strangled and possible stabbed and set afire," Houston police Sgt. J.C. Mosier said.

Mosier identified the victims as Henry Lewis, 42; his wife, Mary, 42; and their two sons, Henry Jr., 22, and Byron, 13. They were found by Reginald Lewis, another son.

"According to the son, he came home shortly after 2 a.m. and found his mother, two brothers and his father dead in the house," Mosier said.

Mosier said at least three of the victims had been shot at close range and were found in different parts of the house, which was ransacked.

"There was no forced entry into the house that we can see, so obviously they were let in," Mosier said of the victims' assailant. Or, Mosier said, the family may have left the door to the house unlocked.

The home is located in the Missouri City subdivision, a quiet, middle-class area.

Houston Fire Department spokesman Russell Dunnem said firefighters arrived at the scene shortly after 2:30 a.m. and found the burned body of a man in the hallway.

The body apparently had been doused with a flammable liquid, ignited, and a neighbor extinguished the flames, Dunnem said.

Authorities said the woman's body was found shot in bed. The body of the couple's 13-year-old son was found shot in another bed and the other son was found shot in the kitchen, investigators said.

Meanwhile, friends and neighbors of the victims said they were still in shock after the early morning violence.

Jean Price Grant, who identified herself as a close friend of the Lewises, said a neighbor of the family called her saying, " 'You'd better get over here quick.' They told me what had happened and I said, 'Oh no, it couldn't happen here.' "

"We were the best of friends," said Mrs. Grant.

Auditor not sure he has authority to start probe

AUSTIN (AP) — State Auditor George McNiel says he is going to find out exactly what authority he has before starting an investigation in alleged misuse of state funds in the office of Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle.

"I can't find anywhere that I have authority to look into the affairs of local officials," McNiel said Thursday after receiving the probe request from Attorney General Jim Mattox.

Earle is the prosecutor in a commercial-bribery case involving Mattox.

"I have not taken any action and will not formulate any plans until I talk to my bosses" on the state audit committee, McNiel said.

Mattox said earlier his office had received a complaint from an unnamed citizen about alleged personal use of state-owned automobiles by members of Earle's staff.

Mattox said he "turned the allegations over to the proper auditing authority."

A spokesman for the district attorney said Earle thinks Mattox's request is "ridiculous."

Steve McCleery, Earle's chief assistant, suggested Mattox was trying to divert attention from his trial, scheduled to start Feb. 11.

McCleery said he spoke for Earle "because he (Earle) doesn't think it merits his saying anything personally."

Speaker Gib Lewis said Thursday the State Audit Committee, of which he is chairman, received the investigation request from Dave Richards, Mattox's executive assistant.

"I can't reveal anything that was in the letter," Lewis said. "It would be speculation for me to say anything about it. We just received the letter and passed it on to the auditor," Lewis said.

Mattox said the complaint was handled under the Texas Whistle Blower Act, a 1983 law that authorizes such complaints to be filed with the attorney general's office.

"During a routine investigation into the complaint, allegations were made regarding the misuse of state funds by the Travis County district attorney," Mattox's statement said.

"If the state wants to look at our books, they can look at our books," said McCleery.

"Our policy is that state-owned automobiles are to be used for official business only. They are not for any personal use," he said.

Earle's office received a $205,670 state appropriation for 1984-85 for its Public Integrity Unit, said McCleery. The money goes for salaries of two attorneys, two investigators and a secretary, and also pays expenses for the automobiles used by the investigators.

McCleery said office policy allows the investigators to take the automobiles home because they are on duty 24 hours a day. There also has been a problem with vandalism in the downtown parking lots.

"They still are not to use them for personal business," he said.

Mattox is scheduled to come to trial on felony charges of threatening to halt the bond business of a Houston law firm, Fulbright and Jaworski, unless one of its partners, Tom McDade, ceased efforts to question Mattox's sister in an unrelated proceeding.

McDade represented Mobil Oil Corp. in a lawsuit against South Texas rancher and oilman Clinton Manges. Mattox sided with Manges, saying the state stood to gain millions of dollars if Manges prevailed.

Mattox has denied that he threatened McDade's firm. He said he was merely trying to stand up to "big oil" and protect the state's interests.

Efforts by Mattox to get the indictment dismissed have failed in district court and in the 3rd Court of Appeals.

MMH

"January is usually a good month but it hasn't been up to expectations. We budgeted for 152 average patient days and we only had 135 to 140. We're talking about a 10 percent reduction and when you're talking about staff, that's quite hard to do."

Tom Bruner, chairman of the finance committee, stressed that although the census is down, "people are having the same amount or more of medical work done. It's just being done in less time," he said.

The average patient stay has increased recently, causing some problems, said Hawks. "Now that the census is back up, we are having considerable trouble meeting our staffing needs."

A motion to approve $83,504 for reimbursement of indigent care to MMH brought up a discussion on the large amounts of money being paid to Fort Worth Children's Hospital for high-risk infants from Midland.

The authorization by the board for a $10,000 study "in the shortest time possible" was approved. MMH President Ray Branson estimated the study would take 60 to 90 days.

"We currently have two infants at Fort Worth Children's Hospital," said Branson. "One has a bill for $60,000 and the other for $130,000."

Fort Worth Children's Hospital has an agreement with MMH to transport newborn indigents (those whose families cannot pay for medical services) to Fort Worth for discounted rates. The hospital offers advanced neonatal (0 to 28 days) care.

"I am concerned that MCHD is paying out these large amounts of money to hospitals outside the county," said Pat Estes, a board director.

Last year, $800,000 was paid out of district with $500,000 going to Fort Worth, said Branson. "It's the single costliest factor in the budget."

The financial study will focus on level II and level III neonatal care.

"We want to address whether or not the care can be provided locally," said Branson. "At this point, this means Midland." MMH will have a five-bed neonatal capability when a current expansion project is completed.

"The difficulty is planning without input from the health facilities in Odessa," said Branson. "We have got to know what their plans are — I believe that each one has some sort of a plan."

The meeting included introductions to new staff and a salute to outgoing chairman of the board, Gene Abbott. Abbott has been nominated for the board but will be replaced as chairman by Tom Bruner. The new director of marketing and planning, Kevin Skipper, and an adminstrative resident from Trinity University, Bob Bregnant, were also introduced.

In other action, payments relating to the hospital's expansion project were approved. A partial payment of $658,540 to Area Builders and a monthly payment of $10,963 to the project's architects were approved.

Also OK'ed were several bid proposals totaling more than $40,000. The bids included such items as a new van for the blood bank, computer software, a microscope for the pathology lab, cardio-pulmonary equipment and addressographs.

White says state's lobbyist doing good job

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's lobbyist in Washington, Sarah Weddington, is doing a good job and isn't a political liability, Gov. Mark White says.

White's comments came Thursday in response to news reports saying Ms. Weddington has claimed more than six months of compensatory time off to maintain a lucrative speaking sideline.

"I have been informed that there has been no violation of the law, that the job's been done. I have contacted people in Washington who inform me that she has performed her tasks ably and I am satisfied that's the answer," White said.

White named Ms. Weddington, 39, to run the 19-member Office of State-Federal Relations, which serves as liaison between state and federal officials.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported that Ms. Weddington, who is paid $49,700 in her state job, earns nearly $50,000 a year as a speaker.

The newspaper also said some former aides accused her of occasionally using office employees for personal tasks and errands, including doing research for her book on women and leadership.

Ms. Weddington said she couldn't recall the research assignment and denied that she would order employees "to do personal things on state time."

Asked about the reports, White told his weekly news conference that Ms. Weddington has his support.

"The important thing is that she has gotten her job done. Everybody I've talked to in the Washington area says they are very pleased with the services that are performed by that office. I'm pleased by the way they've operated," White said, adding that he doesn't consider her a political liability.

Ms. Weddington, who reportedly has talked of running for Texas attorney general, had hoped to be appointed secretary of state, but White passed over her in favor of Myra McDaniel.

Task force chief says killer hasn't left many clues

FORT WORTH (AP) — The head of a police task force investigating the slayings and disappearances of young women says that officers are having trouble finding a common element.

"Psychologists tell us that the killer wants to be caught," Lt. Ray Armand, head of the task force, said Thursday. "But if he does, he hasn't left any good clues laying around to help us find him — at least none that we've found yet."

Authorities believe the suspect could be a smarter-than-average loner whose friends and neighbors think he is a nice person.

"He will be well-liked by neighbors and friends," said Armand. "When caught, we're going to have to have our facts together because we won't be able to buffalo him."

He said the task force is working with psychological studies of cases detectives believe are similar to the ones now under investigation. He said the FBI is also preparing new profiles for the task force.

"Since the task force started, there have been no violent acts."

Two educational events canceled

Two events slated for the weekend have been canceled.

Young Peoples University, scheduled to meet Saturday at Midland College, has been canceled due to the weather. Plans to reschedule the event will be announced at a later date.

The Regional Academic Decathlon, scheduled Saturday at Odessa College, also has been canceled because of the snow and icy weather conditions. The event will be rescheduled at a later date.

Bar association commends judge

The Midland County Bar Association passed a resolution earlier this month commending James Fitz-Gerald III for his service as municipal judge, according to C.D. Martin, association president.

The association praised Fitz-Gerald for serving faithfully and impartially as municipal judge, demonstrating fairness and maintaining and preserving "the finest traditions of a jurist."

Fitz-Gerald resigned from the bench in November.

DEATHS

Woodrow Robinson

BIG SPRING — Woodrow "Woodie" Robinson, 66, died Wednesday in a Big Spring hospital.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Midway Baptist Church. Burial will be in Coahoma Cemetery, directed by Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Robinson was a Baptist and a veteran of World War II. A lifelong resident of Howard County, he was a farmer and rancher, a self-employed carpenter and an employee of Meads Auto.

GRILL

The next step will be to develop marketing strategies for selling the barbecue through sporting goods stores and magazines.

"So far, I've sold only one grill. The rest I've given away to friends and family.

"We just completed a patent search on it and found there are several patents on portable barbecues but they're so complicated." This one is easy to assemble, he claims.

Jackson says the patent procedure for inventions normally takes about one year to complete with today's cost exceeding $2,500.

He notes, however, that only about 10 percent of all patented inventions are profitable. "You can consider yourself lucky if the invention ever turns a profit but I'm optimistic that we won't fail with this one."

AT WIT'S END

Hemlines stir horror

By ERMA BOMBECK

I know you're all familiar with the woman at the party who gets attention by saying outrageous things. The one who, if Mary announced, "I'm expecting a Savior," would say, "Me too!" Well, this person proclaimed the other night that by this March everyone would be wearing miniskirts again.

Can you imagine what it's like to have 50 women suck in their breaths at the same time? All the hors d'oeuvres were airborne for a full three minutes.

One woman in a baggy jacket that hung loosely over eight yards of skirt with an elastic waistband asked for a stronger drink. Another one went to the phone with tears in her eyes and said she was getting a second opinion.

For awhile, we talked among ourselves of what it was like when miniskirts lived among us.

You could never pick up an object that had fallen on the floor unless you were (a) in the room alone (b) were closely surrounded by three walls (c) had been married to the other occupant for at least ten years.

When you were offered a chair, you had to turn up the thermostat on your underwear, slide onto it from front to back and make sure there was always a napkin, handbag, or pillow nearby to cover your knees.

Finding your eight-inch slip was an exercise in aerobics. Once I remembered going through an entire afternoon, only to be told in a whisper, "Your blouse is hanging out from under your skirt."

Getting into a car and driving in a miniskirt would have gotten most of us arrested, had we not been home room mothers, car-pooling children to a bible study meeting.

We all sat there and numbly looked forward to a future where everyone backed out of a room.

"Why don't they want us to be happy?" said one of my friends. There was a moment of silence when one of the women said, "How about crossing our legs once more in comfort for old times sake."

Everyone in the room crossed their legs. We would have to remember it for a long time.

Scientists search for artificial blood

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Almost 20 years have passed since a medical researcher startled the scientific world by submerging a live mouse in a clear liquid and showing that the mouse could continue breathing.

Today the oxygen-dissolving liquid, called a perfluorochemical, is the focus of increasing efforts by researchers and companies to develop a "blood substitute," a product that could carry oxygen through the bloodstream.

Such a product, if successful, would be worth hundreds of millions of dollars a year, according to some estimates.

The U.S. government, the Japanese and several U.S. firms are pumping millions of dollars into the effort to develop a blood substitute, with varying degrees of success. One company has begun testing its oxygen-transport liquid on human patients in Japan. Others say blood substitutes are about two to 10 years away from commercial availability in this country.

"Artificial-blood substitutes have progressed from what was only an idea a little more than a decade ago to a present-day clinical reality," according to a report by the National Institutes of Health. "For people with special needs, an alternative to blood is now possible."

NIH is spending $1 million a year to support outside research into perfluorochemical blood substitutes. E.I du Pont de Nemours & Co. is donating $1 million to the University of Pennsylvania to sponsor such research. Sun Co. Inc. has formed a subsidiary to develop a blood substitute. Green Cross Corp., of Osaka, Japan, is testing an oxygen-transport solution on patients in that country, while its U.S. subsidiary, Alpha Therapeutics Corp., is seeking permission to do so in this country.

"There is more activity in the area today than at any other time, on both sides of the Iron Curtain," said Robert P. Geyer, who supervises blood-replacement research at Harvard University's School of Public Health.

Researchers caution that they are not trying to produce a substance identical to human blood, with its many components and roles. The term "blood substitute" refers to perfluorochemical products that could fill in for blood as carriers of oxygen through the bloodstream.

The first generation of so-called "blood substitutes" would not include white cells, platelets or other blood elements. They would not fight infections and clots, or supply nutrients.

Technically, they would substitute only for hemoglobin, the protein in red blood cells that binds with oxygen and delivers it throughout the body.

Advances in gene-splicing techniques have made it possible to produce other blood components, such as proteins necessary for clotting, in the laboratory in commercial quantities. Antibiotics are used widely as substitutes for white blood cells.

But none of these substances do the job of hemoglobin, or is useful in maintaining blood volume in a patient who has suffered severe blood loss.

DEAR ABBY

Breast implants necessity

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Help me, please! My doctor has informed me that I have to have both breasts removed. He said a reconstructive plastic surgeon could give me implants that would make me look normal — even pretty!

My problem is my husband. He's against it. He says it's just for "looks," and I don't need breasts for him. Abby, I am not a vain woman, but I want breasts for myself. I've already seen the plastic surgeon, who explained the implant operation, and my hopes are so high. It would mean the world to me.

My husband is very tight with a dollar and says he's not going to waste his money on breasts I don't need, and for a woman my age it would be just that — a waste. (I'm 48 and he's 70.)

Abby, do you think I'm a terrible woman to want breasts? Please help me to persuade my husband. I have no money of my own and I don't have much time. Thank you. — NEEDS YOUR HELP

DEAR NEEDS: You are not a "terrible woman" to want breasts; you're honest and courageous.

Some reconstructive plastic surgery can be classified as essential to one's mental health, in which case it's covered by insurance. (Your physician can attest to this.)

Enlist your doctor's help in explaining to your husband that the implants are not a waste — they are vital to your emotional well-being. They are! Good luck and God bless.

DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend and I have been in love for three years. We've talked about marriage, but there were always complications. I knew he had been married and divorced, but I recently found out that he married his second wife without having been divorced from his first. His first wife (whom I never knew about) came to town a month ago and now she wants him back. She claims she is still his legal wife because they never were divorced. She moved in with him and has threatened to send him to jail for bigamy if he doesn't play her game.

We love each other very much, but it's beginning to look like our relationship is going down the drain.

Should I go on with my life and let my boyfriend deal with his? Or should I hang in there? I really want to marry him. — CRAZY IN LOVE

DEAR CRAZY: Don't plan on marrying him for a long time — if ever. He already has one wife too many. What he needs right now is a lawyer to straighten out this bigamy business.

You'd be wise to go on with your life, and let him deal with his.

DEAR ABBY: What advice have you for a lady when she is out to dinner in a top restaurant with an older gentleman she knows to be very well-to-do, and he leaves a very poor tip? The service on all of these occasions was excellent. Abby, I'm talking about a "tip" of $1 for a dinner check in the neighborhood of $50.

This has occurred several times with the same gentleman. So far, I've pretended not to notice, but I've been so embarrassed that I've considered leaving a few dollars of my own on the table. Of course, I'd do this subtly so he wouldn't see me. — EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: (A) Tell him you'd be glad to "pitch in" for the tip if he's a little short. (B) Add enough of your own money to his to make it a respectable tip. But why be subtle? If he sees you, so what? It might help loosen the old tightwad up a bit.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Disease has many names

ATLANTA (AP) — If you have "clergyman's knee," "tailor's seat," "tennis elbow" or "trigger finger," what you really have is a form of bursitis or tendinitis, the Arthritis Foundation points out.

— Clergyman's knee, an inflammation of the bursa (a cushion in front of the kneeecap) just below the knee, is actually bursitis.

— Tailor's seat or weaver's bottom describes inflammation over the bone in a person's "seat," caused by remaining seated for long periods at a time.

— Tennis elbow is an inflammation of the ligaments below the elbow, which can affect anyone who uses the muscles in the hand and forearm frequently.

— Trigger finger is due to an inflammation of the tendons used in bending the fingers.

Royko poll's results revealed

CHICAGO (AP) — The results of syndicated columnist Mike Royko's "Sex or Bowling" survey are in, with 66 percent of the men responding saying they prefer sex over "bowling, drinking, golfing, cuddling or just about anything else."

In a column titled "Cuddle Up With This Survey, Ann," the Chicago Tribune writer reported today on his poll, which he said drew responses from about 10,000 men and "several hundred angry female persons who wrote to condemn me as a male chauvinist pig."

Royko said 22 percent of the men indicated they would opt for bowling, drinking, golfing, cuddling or almost anything else.

He said the other 12 percent included men who couldn't decide "or took this as an opportunity to write a creepy note to my secretary."

Royko's poll was inspired by advice columnist Ann Landers' recent survey in which the majority of the more than 90,000 women responding said they would be content to be held close, treated tenderly and skip sexual intercourse.

Royko said thousands of his male respondents "talked about the joys — emotional and physical — of their married life." But he also said, "There are many miserable, frustrated men out there."

Wrote Royko: "Thousands of the men who responded say that their wives are cold, unresponsive and about as exciting as a cup of herbal tea. ...

A few responses:

"Talk about cuddling!" said Big B of Cleveland. "I should be the one cuddled so I could get turned on by my wife, who has developed a figure like the Pillsbury Dough Boy. The only part of her that is in shape is her right wrist, from turning the TV knobs all day."

Charlie from Virginia described intimacy with his wife as "so incredibly dull, perfunctory and mechanical that I would much rather do one of the following: Watch the grass grow, watch them unload the trucks at the supermarket or go down to the highway and count out-of-state license plates."

But Royko said just as many men wrote about the happiness of their lives.

Take Tony of New York. "I don't know what it is," he wrote. "Maybe just luck. But I'm 72; it's still as great as it ever was. Maybe a little slower, but so what? I don't have anything else to do."

And there was Macho Jack of San Jose, Calif., who told Royko that "the trouble with the unhappy broads in this country is that the wimps don't know how to treat them."

"Believe me," Macho Jack wrote, "women like a guy who tells them what to do and when to do it — and if you have to rough them up a little, they might complain, but down deep they love it."

By the way, Macho Jack said he's divorced now.

Women's law group formed

NEW YORK (AP) — A new organization geared for women supporting innovation in legal education has been formed at Yeshiva University's Benjamin N. Cardozo School of Law here.

"The organization is designed particularly for working women, community leaders and philanthropists, who can significantly shape the school's vision as it relates to the growing involvement of women who are making careers in the law and legal concerns which relate to women," said Monroe E. Price, dean of the school.

Francesco Scavullo

Actress' haunting beauty inspired photographer

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — For Francesco Scavullo, the magic began with a haunting beauty who made privacy a religion — Garbo.

The stylish fashion and portrait photographer saw the legendary actress in a movie when he was a child and he was fascinated by her face and how it had been caught on film. He had to have a camera.

Today, at $10,000 a sitting, he has immortalized stars and politicos, tarts and has-beens, the model of the moment, the singing idol. He made the late Martha Mitchell a raving beauty for a cover story in New York magazine. And he stripped Diana Ross of her makeup and dressed her in a wet T-shirt to reveal an unpainted, sexy beauty.

His photographs are on display in his newest book for Harper & Row, "Scavullo." It is a coffee table book that does more than provide peeks of the rich and famous, because the book has a soul.

There are poignant portraits of parents and children, of the innocent young and the frightened old.

"If you look at the child in the beginning of the book — in 1948 — you see a peace and an innocence. There's no fear, no disturbance in her," said the photographer in an interview. "But if you look at the child in the '80s — people say she's exposed to all the violence on TV.

"I did Brooke Shields in 1975. She was a child, but a woman inside."

Scavullo has always photographed children and once did portraits of youngsters for Harpers Bazaar. "I'm interested in all human beings; I can't leave out children," he said with a barely discernible smile from beneath his jaunty black cap.

The cap, with its rhinestone airplane, is his current trademark, replacing the more Fellini-esque wide-brimmed hat he sported in the '70s. He was sitting in the living quarters of his eastside townhouse-studio. Enormous silk-screened photographs framed his tiny body clothed all in black.

The silk-screen photo is his latest venture. He plans one on the rock star, Sting, posed as Christ.

Scavullo was born 56 years ago in Staten Island. He was one of five children. His father owned the old Central Park Casino and was in the catering business.

There was an early fascination with glamorous women, starting with Garbo and continuing with his mother. "I have a passion for taking pictures of beautiful women," he said. "I was fascinated when my mother got done up. My mother made the transformation from Cinderella every day of her life, but she could walk around a mess because she had five children."

When he was in high school, young Scavullo knew he wanted to be a fashion photographer. "If I had any inkling of Francesco at 13 and Francesco in 1985, it would have been mind boggling," he said.

But the youngster had no mentors or role models. "I had nothing to compare myself to as a child," he said.

Luck, however, intervened and he landed a job setting up the cameras and lights for the famous fashion photographer, Horst. "I learned a lot from Horst," said Scavullo.

He worked for Vogue for a while and eventually landed a job at Seventeen magazine by asking the editors to take a chance on him. "I said, 'let me shoot the picture.' It was a boy-meets-girl cover. 'If you like it, take it. If not...'"

ENTERTAINMENT IN BRIEF

Los Angeles Ballet folds after 10 years as company

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Ballet, which is $400,000 in debt, has folded after 10 years, the company's founder and its bankruptcy attorney say.

"I believe (the company's) unsecured creditors are owed $400,000, but it appears there will be no money to pay them," attorney Don Rothman said after the ballet's board of directors voted to disband the company.

"The company has so few assets — just the costumes and some scenery, which they are hoping to sell off — that I'm not sure we can even justify spending the filing fee for bankruptcy. The case may be too poor to warrant it. Therefore, we'll probably just wind up and dissolve," Rothman said.

Artistic director John Clifford, who founded the ballet a decade ago after 10 years as principal dancer and choreographer at the New York City Ballet, did not seem discouraged at the board's decision.

"I may have to go through four different companies before I have a Los Angeles Ballet," he said. "I never really expected us to get this company off the ground in one try. It would have been nice, but many ballet companies have to start and restart."

Clifford added that the board's decision came in the wake of "probably the worst year" for the ballet, including its eviction from a Hollywood rehearsal studio last September after two months' non-payment of rent.

Coppola takes refuge from 'hamburger culture'

By LETTA TAYLER
Associated Press Writer

ROME — Francis Ford Coppola buffeted himself against the cold with a trenchcoat and red woolen scarf, as he sat at an outdoor cafe musing, over a glass of glowing red chianti, about his plans to move to the land of his ancestors.

Italy, said the film maker, is the ideal environment for an artist, a refuge from what he calls the "hamburger culture" of the United States.

What the stocky, bearded director-screenwriter has in mind is to write a screenplay in Italy showing parallels between the decadence of modern-day New York and life under the ancient Roman Empire.

"For the past 15 years I've been on a kind of carousel, making film after film," said Coppola.

"So I'd like to take a year and come here to write something truly worthy of being a film," he said in an interview with The Associated Press.

"I'd be like Audrey Hepburn on her 'Roman Holiday,' " he said, grinning, of the 1953 film classic.

The 45-year-old Coppola was in Rome for a brief vacation after the opening of his latest film, "Cotton Club," which was generally harpooned by reviewers.

The film is a gangland story starring Richard Gere, Gregory Hines and Diane Lane played out against the backdrop of the legendary Harlem club in the 1930s.

"Mainstream critics are like wicked stepmothers to me," Coppola said. "They slammed 'The Godfather.' They slammed 'Apocalypse Now.' But the public loved both films. The same thing is happening now with 'Cotton Club.'

"On the other hand I would never have chosen the script myself. It was just a job to be done. You know, here's the book and here's the salary and go make the film. And I did."

Coppola once led the vanguard of a new generation of college-trained film makers who tried to revolutionize the industry in the early '70s. His name was gold when he made "The Godfather" in 1972. Not only did it win the Academy Award for best picture, but it passed all box office records. In 1974, Coppola was named best director for "The Godfather II."

His next project, "Apocalypse Now," was the beginning of his decline. But despite disappointing reviews, the movie sold well — $35.6 million in U.S.-Canada rentals alone.

He next pursued his vision of a self-sustaining studio that would combine a creative haven with the latest technology. He paid $6.5 million for the Hollywood property. Zoetrope was sold at auction last February for $12.3 million.

His Zoetrope film, "One From the Heart," cost $27 million, was panned by critics and only made $1 million at the box office. Such later movies as "The Escape Artist" and "Hammett" did just as poorly.

Coppola said he made most of his films to keep his debt-ridden Zeotrope film studio afloat. Last month he payed a $1.7-million debt from his own pocket to head off the auction of the Zeotrope building in San Francisco.

A U.S. bankruptcy court in Los Angeles had ordered the sale of Zeotrope's production arm, Hollywood General Studios, to pay off other debts.

"Once I get these debts out of the way, I can write my dream script — something that gets away from the 'hamburger culture' invading American cinema," he said.

Kentucky now backdrop for feature films

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — From the thoroughbred farms around Lexington to the barracks of Fort Campbell, Kentucky scenery is serving as the backdrop for an increasing number of feature movies.

Four films have been shot here within the past year. That makes Kentucky one of the more successful states at luring production crews away from California and New York.

"There are only about 30 or 40 feature films made in the United States every year, and of those probably three-quarters require a specific location," said B.J. Dollase, director of the Kentucky Film Office. "So you get down to only a small number that can have an 'Anywhere, U.S.A.' look."

Film and television producers spent about $6 million on location filming in Kentucky last year, she said, an increase of 25 percent over 1983.

Recent movies shot in the state include "River Rat," "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," "Sylvester" and "Sweet Dreams."

All but "River Rat," the story of a boatman and his daughter, are still in production. "River Rat," starring Tommy Lee Jones, premiered last September in Paducah, where the production crew stayed while filming along the Ohio River.

"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" was filmed along the river in northern Kentucky near Maysville. "Sylvester," the story of a girl who aspires to be a champion horse rider, was filmed around the breeding farms around Lexington.

"Sweet Dreams," in which Jessica Lange portrays the life of famed country music singer Patsy Cline, was filmed in part at Fort Campbell army barracks.

"If you're looking for anything except ocean and palm trees, you can find it in Kentucky," said Jim Moore, an editor at The Hollywood Reporter who prepared a series of articles on the state for a recent edition of the film industry journal.

Moore, a native of Bowling Green, credited the state's Film Office with luring many of the producers who have filmed in Kentucky.

The agency was created in 1976 as an arm of the Commerce Cabinet to attract movie business to the state. The agency tells producers what types of locations are available, and acts as a liaison between producers and local officials.

"What really decides where a film is going to be shot is how much participation you can get from local officials," Moore said. "Things like how willing the mayor is to take down the street lights for awhile, how willing the local unions are to work with the crews, how willing people are to bend the rules."
