Wichita Bank Yegg Regrets Not Killing Officers Tuesday

"DAMN HILL BILLIES"

Bandit Gang Remorseful At Not Burning It Out At Balzoria

JACKSBORO, Texas, Nov. 26.—(Special)—Utterly remorseless except for the fact that they had been caught, but deeply chagrined that their brief but meteoric careers as bank robbers extraordinary had been halted by the efforts of some "hill-billy cops," three young men held in jail here last night sent cold chills down the spines of officers as they talked with deadly sincerity of the six-shooter law they had planned to establish.

The three, Lewis Tillman, Johnny Reed and Billy Keys comprised the major portion of the gang that for the past month has laughed at the law and robbed with impunity. The fourth member of the band, Alvin Ireland, was in jail at Wichita Falls at the time and to him cannot be attributed in fact the perverted sentiments that his pals expressed. Those who know him, though, have no apprehensions that he too, was not in complete accord with the aims and purposes of Tillman, Reed and Keys.

Penitentiary Waiting.

With overwhelming evidence piled up against them and an array of criminal exploits that can put them in the penitentiary for years to come laid at their door, the trio thought of nothing but revenge. Mentally they retraced the steps which had led to their arrest. Monday morning on charges of robbing the First State bank of Irving, and with the grim hand of the law fastened on them they cursed themselves only for allowing it to gain its grip.

Tillman, the ringleader of the quartette, was acting as spokesman for himself and followers in an impromptu interview with a number of Wichita, Jack, Wise and Young county officers. District Attorney James V. Allred and his assistant, Robert K. Crain of Wichita Falls were there; so were State Ranger W. W. Belcher, Chief of Police George Hodgins and Detective John Boone, also of Wichita Falls. Sheriff Middleton and his deputy, Porter, and Constable Richardson, were there from Jack county. County Attorney Ray of Young county was in the group, too, as were several others.

"My God," Tillman snorted, "here we got clean through you—up at Wichita and then come down here and let a bunch of damn hill-billies grab us."

Mr. Allred asked him what he'd have done if Sheriff Middleton, Deputy Porter and Constable Richardson hadn't seen him first.

"We'd have burned it out right there," Tillman told him. "I might not have been here now, but some of you other guys wouldn't either."

"You'd shoot me right now if you had a chance, wouldn't you?" the district attorney asked him.

Wished He'd Killed 'Em.

"Shoot! I'd kill every one of you and never look back."

Keys and Reed nodded their approval of Tillman's cheery jabber and added a few "damn rights" by way of emphasizing it. They glared malevolently at the "hill-billies," and every man in the room knew that they spoke the truth when they said they would kill every one and not look back. Hence the chills.

A merciful fate was kind to the officers and the robbers too, as it dodged their trials in the 24-hour manhunt that followed the Loving robbery. It was to it that the two factions—the representatives of law and order on one side and those of lawlessness and disorder on the other didn't get within effective shooting range until one side could "get the drop." The sheriff and his men ran onto Tillman and his gang Monday afternoon on a Jack county country road and pistols flashed immediately, but the bandits turned tail and ran in the face of the fire and no casualties resulted. They had an even chance of escape then and chose to take it rather than face capture or death. They couldn't run, though, when they finally were surprised in Balzora Tuesday morning. Their car was dead and escape cut-off. To have retained their liberty they would have to shoot their way out in the face of fire from Winchesters and shot guns carried by the law. That they would have battled to the end the officers have no doubt, but the businesslike muzzles of highpowered rifles were leveled at their heads before the thieves could draw their own artillery.

They "reached high" when they saw what they were up against and what might and probably would have been a tragic gun fight was thus averted. Ireland, who was arrested in Wichita Falls, was also covered before he had time to resist.

Four Badly Wanted.

The arrests by Sheriff Middleton and his party terminated the careers of four first class crooks whose journey down the broad highway of crime has placed them in jail, in the courts and before the grand jury on a score of different occassions. Tillman has, perhaps, the longest and most colorful record behind him. Still in his early twenties he is now under a five year suspended sentence, a perjury indictment, and has been arrested

Shades of the Pilgrims!

Where Once Was Peace And Quiet Come Now The Longhorns, Owls, Bears, Mustangs, Razorbacks, And Wildcats To Wage War On Thanksgiving Day.

PLYMOUTH ROCK, Thanksgiving day, in the year 1621.—While the Pilgrim fathers tucked trusty blunderbusses neath their arms today and sallied forth to bag the festive turkey, the women and children attended an early Thanksgiving seance put on by Priscilla Mullen at the Mullen loghouse over by the barricade.

Priscilla, in addition to being the best looking girl in the settlement, with the most winning ways, was getting so nutty on Egyptian ball gasing that even John Alden threatened to quit her. Curosity always got the better of the Pilgrim women, however, and they welcomed Priscilla's seance despite repeated warnings that they all might be thrown into the big lake on charge of witchery.

Priscilla was the oil well's riggin' on looging into the future today, however.

"Look! look!" she exclaimed. "What is in store for our future generation. There shall be a state called Texas in 1924: there shall have been a purchase of our colonies and a war with Spaniards who are coming to the land of Mexico.

"BUT WAIT! Let us pray." A terrible conflict is in store. I see Longhorns, Bears, Owls, Mustangs, Razorbacks, and Wildcats fighting. There is a gridiron, but instead of roasts, wild fowl and fish sputtering there are men, lots of them, fighting backwards and forwards before cheering thousands. All the wild animals of the new kingdom are fighting. I lamp the Horned Frogs, too; and as I gaze I read that "one of the most attractive gridiron feasts ever served is being distributed to the populace.

"A moment, I pray you, as I attempt to read further. Ah! It is football in the Southwest, eleven to each team to meet their rivals; and the papers say:

"The Baylor Bears meet the Rice Owls at Houston; the S. M. U. Mustangs will meet the Oklahoma Aggies at Dallas; the Texas Farmers will help the Texas Longhorns dedicate the huge stadium of the University of Texas at Austin; and the T. C. U. Christians will meet the Arkansas Razorbacks on Arkansas soil.

"Headlining the Thanksgiving day bill will be the Bear-Owl battle. If the Bears defeat the Owls, Baylor will win the southwest conference championship, for the Bruins would have the imposing record of four conference victories and one tie. Because of the great power of the machine Coach Frank Bridges has developed for the Green and Gold of Baylor, the team from Waco is expected to win decisively from the Owls. As a matter of fact, most southwest conference fans have turned their attention to the Longhorn-Texas Aggie struggle here."

NO championship hinges on the Texas university-Texas A. & M. game, unless, perchance, Baylor should yield to Rice. In that event, the Aggies, provided they win over Texas, would have a strong claim to a tie for the championship, for Coach Dana Bible's Farmers have lost but one game, Baylor defeating them 15 to 7.

Despite the fact that Texas is not in the running for the title, great interest has been aroused in the game, because the tilt of Turkey Day will mark the formal dedication of the varsity memorial stadium, and because the largest crowd to witness an athletic event in the south is expected to see the Red and White of the Aggies clash with the Orange and White of the Longhorns. Thirty-five thousand fans will watch the game.

Because of the crushing 20-0 victory of the Oklahoma Aggies last Saturday over Arkansas, Coach Johnny Maulbetsch's Aggies are conceded close to even chance against the S. M. U. Mustangs. The Oklahomans will doubtless excel in straight football; but the overhead game of the Mustangs will make them formidable.

It seems a tossup between the T. C. U. Christians and the Arkansas Razorbacks, with Arkansas conceded a slight edge, provided they are able to recuperate from their surprising defeat of last Saturday.

GRID CORONERS AWAIT INQUEST OF DAY'S KILLS

PENN VS. CORNELL

And In Texas The Undertaker Is Waiting On Every College Campus

By DAVIS J. WALSH.
I. N. S. Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Eminent coroners of the gridiron will hold what amounts to an inquest over Pennsylvania football at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, tomorrow when Alonzo Stagg of Chicago and Bob Zuppke of Illinois, assisted by Glen Thistlewait of Northwestern, will view the Penn-Cornell procedeings in their best post mortem manner.

Stories from the middle west have it that the three "big ten" coaches are spedeing east to the game and we see no reason to doubt them.

West to View East.

Stagg and Zuppke will want to see what manner of the team has the colossal temerity to attempt to swallow Yale next year, using Chicago and Illinois as a chaser.

Frankly, they will be there to see what Pennsylvania has, if anything. Neither of them esteem eastern football very highly but the writer feels they are due for a revision of attitude. The writer expects Pennsylvania to beat Cornell in a more or less convincing manner tomorrow.

Barring the Alabama-Georgia clash for the honor and glory of the south, the Penn-Cornell game takes precedence over all others on the holiday schedule. And with a waning sun, collegiate football for the season of 1924 will have all but expired. There remain only the army and navy game and the affair between Carnegie tech and Notre Dame on Sunday to conclude the campaign, the former meaning nothing particular and the latter only Notre Dame's final chance to lose a football game.

All But Curtain Bow.

The middle west and coast having spoken their pieces, the stage now is cleared for the curtain bow which the east, south and central west must

WAGES BRING A TRAGEDY

Infuriated Worker Kills Two Employers And Then Shoots Himself.

DUBOIS, Pa., Nov. 26.—Harry W. Jackson, president and manager of the Jackson Vitrified China company and William Darden of Chicago, the salesmanager were shot and killed at noon today by John Soukup of Cleveland, according to the police, who declared that Soukup then shot himself through the head, dying instantly. A dispute over wages claimed by Soukup to have been due from another company in which Jackson was interested was said to have been responsible for the tragedy.

Soukup came to Dubois from Cleveland last Saturday to press his claims against the china company, according to the police, but was told that the present concern had no connection with the company for which he declared he worked thirteen years ago.

JUDGE ILL; TRIAL HALTS.

Appendicitis Attack Comes to Court Trying Alvin Townsley.

GEORGETOWN, Texas, Nov. 26.—District Judge James R. Hamilton, before whom the trial of Alvin Townsley is being held here, became seriously ill this afternoon and was removed to a hospital where it was said he was suffering from appendicitis. The jury for the trial of Townsley on a charge of murder in connection with the death of State Representative Charles Fields of Giddings here October 17, was completed before the noon recess today.

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Nov. 26.—A shabbily dressed man held up a teller in the Security Trust and Savings bank in the business center of the city today, and escaped with $2,000. Rhinelander Says Bride of Negro Kin

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Nov. 26.—(AP)—Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of one of New York's oldest families, who married Miss Alice Jones of New Rochelle on October 14, today filed in the Westchester county supreme court to annul the marriage. Rhinelander alleged that his wife concealed from him the fact that she had negro blood in her veins.

Offers an Affidavit.

The papers were supported by an affidavit made by Rhinelander before a Kings county notary public.

The complaint declares that the "consent" of the plaintiff, Rhinelander, to the marriage was obtained by fraud" and that the defendant, formerly Miss Jones, told Rhinelander "she was white and had no colored blood." Rhinelander, the complaint states, entered into marriage on the basis of such representations, which he has since discovered to be wholly untrue.

Heir to 100 Million.

Rhinelander is 22. He is the son of Philip Rhinelander, heir to a fortune of $100,000,000 in Manhattan real estate and a member of one of Manhattan's most exclusive families. His Huguenot ancestors settled in New Rochelle in the seventeenth century.

The marriage of Rhinelander did not become public until a month or so after it was performed by Mayor Harry Scott of New Rochelle.

COLORED PRINCE TURNED "GREEN" IN BOUDOIR TRAP

AT BLACKMAIL TRIAL

$625,000 Scheme Worked Fine When Wife Left Door Unlocked

By DAVID M. CHURCH
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Nov. 26—If it's possible for a gentleman of color to turn green that's what "Mr. A" did

This testimony was offered today by Montague Noel Newton as a description of how the young millionaire prince of India acted when Newton broke into a Paris hotel bedroom and found "Mr. A" with Mrs. Maude Robinson.

Newton, who testified that Mrs. Robinson was the author of the $750,000 blackmail trap by which the young potentate was mulcted and that he himself was the brains of its execution, resumed the stand today and detailed the incidents of the plot's fruition. He is the star witness for the Midland bank in its defense of the suit of Charles Robinson, the husband, to recover $625,000 of the blackmail money he says his associates illegally withdrew from the bank.

Newton Was Ill

Newton testified that his own illness made it necessary that the plot be carried out quickly. There was uncertainty about being able to catch the young prince with Mrs. Robinson in London, he continued, so the English officer who was the prince's aide de camp suggested the scene of the "dramata denouement" be transferred to Paris.

Mrs. Robinson, her companion, Mrs. Lillian Bevan and all concerned were consulted. Mrs. Robinson had a daughter, Newton said, but she was not present at any of the conferences.

So the participants in the plot moved to Paris. On his arrival Newton said he met Mrs. Robinson and Mrs. Bevan at their hotel and Mrs. Robinson pointed out her bedroom.

"The doors will be unlocked," Newton said she told him.

He entered in the early morning, at about 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Robinson jumped out of bed and attacked him, crying, "my brute of a husband. It's just the sort of thing you would do" he testified.

"She mauled me about" the witness continued, "and scratched me so that I had to tell her to stop or she would tear the clothes from my back.

The young prince tried to calm Mrs. Robinson.

After all, "he's a husband, Maudie," he told her, but the moral philosophy of that point seemed lost on Mrs. Robinson, according to Newton.

At this point counsel asked how the young potentate took the situation.

"If it's possible for a gentleman of color to turn green, that's what he did," Newton replied.

To Hush It Up

Newton then left the hotel, he continued, and later the aides de camp came to him and said the prince had left the details of hushing it up to him.

That same afternoon Newton, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Bevan and the aide de camp returned to London on the same train.

Some time later the aide de camp produced two checks, each for 150,000 pounds. One could be cashed immediately and arrangements were being made to meet the second, Newton testified.

Newton admitted he was convicted of forgery in 1907. He admitted he went to India and tried to collect the second check from the prince. He denied however, that he had attempted intimacy with Mrs. Robinson, responding with some ire:

"I have honor among my friends."

He denied also that blackmail and forgery had constituted his means of livelihood.

Columbus Police Not Satisfied at Sheatsley Answer

Many Things About Bexley Furnace Crime Unexplained, They Declare, But His Family Will Be Left In Peace to Enjoy Thanksgiving, It Is Stated.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 26.—(INS)—That he has not yet found any evidence of human blood as a result of his tests seeking to clear the mystery of the death of Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, Bexley furnace victim, was the declaration made here this afternoon by Dr. H. M. Brundage, local pathologist.

Dr. Brundage told International News Service that his tests today disclosed that the stains on the table scarf, taken Monday from the Sheatsley home, were produced by grease and that the stains found on a carpet on the kitchen floor and on the kitchen door of the Sheatsley residence were grease and wood stains.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 26.—(INS)—With the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley and his four children scheduled to return to their home here today, County Prosecutor John R. King, investigator in the Bexley furnace mystery, was preparing to re-examine members of the family to clear if possible several points in the circumstances attending Mrs. Sheatsley's death.

Prosecutor King indicated the family would be questioned concerning their actions following finding of the body and after it was established beyond doubt the furnace victim was Mrs. Sheatsley. They will be asked to explain why no effort was made to extinguish the fire.

To Question Minister.

Questioning of the minister has brought out that after viewing the remains of his wife in the furnace, he closed the furnace doors and went outside the house to call a neighbor without attempting to smother the flames or reclaim his wife's body.

It is said Clarence, the 16 year-old son, would be interrogated again concerning his leaving the house to play football after finding what he said he believed might be his mother in the furnace.

Rev. Sheatsley probably will be called on to explain too why he reported smelling an odor resembling carbolic acid as he passed the furnace room window a few minutes before finding Mrs. Sheatsley's body.

Visit Is Withheld.

Also the prosecutor said the Sheatsley would be quizzed as to their motive for not revealing information of the visit of Mrs. Gladys Redel on the afternoon of the tragedy.

While authorities continued their probe for possible clews, C. F. Long, chemist, and Dr. H. M. Brundage, pathologist, were at work in their laboratories with samples of blood found in the Sheatsley residence. These specimens were being subjected to numerous scientific experiments in all of which time is one of the chief considerations, according to Long. Dr. Brundage, who was examining the charred bodies of guinea pigs thrust into the Sheatsley furnace by the scientist, said his tests also would require much time.

Clear Up Stained Coat.

Proof that the scorched and stained coat, turned over to police by a local dry cleaning establishment, has no connection with the mystery was forthcoming today. Tom Jones, who has just completed a five-day sentence in the work house convinced officials the coat belonged to him. King later announced no member of the Sheatsley family would be questioned before Friday because he wanted them to observe Thanksgiving unmolested.

SHEATSLEY RETURNS HOME.

Would Rather Think Wife Murdered Than a Suicide, Declares Pastor.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Standing in the doorway of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church Parsonage late today, the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, husband of Addie Sheatsley, Bexley furnace victim said:

"I would rather believe she was murdered—foul as the deed may be—rather than to believe she took her own life, but until such evidence has been definitely established, I will think she took her own life."

The Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children arrived here from Paris, Ohio, this afternoon and went directly to the parsonage where the practically incinerated body was found by him in the furnace on November 17. Several friends accompanied them to Columbus.

Members of the pastor's congregation greeted the party.

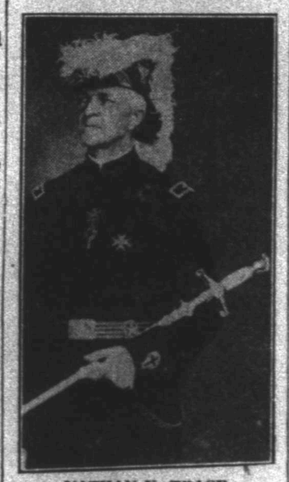

A theory upon which investigators were said to have been working today was that the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley, while connected with an orphange at Pittsburgh several years ago, had reprimanded a boy, who had threatened to "get him" was cast aside by the minister as trivial. He said he "had never reprimanded a boy while there as that was not part of his duties."

Another theory thatt the minister had created the enmity of a Hindu during a speech he made in Detroit a number of years ago, after his return from India and that the foreigner had murdered Mrs. Sheatsley and thrust her body into the furnace for revenge did not seem to impress the pastor.

Pedagogues Warm Up Over Attacks On Texas Schools

Dr. Works, Cornell, Survey Expert, Has Started Storm At San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Dr. George A. Works of Cornell university, director of the Texas educational survey, which recommended many drastic changes in the state educational system, was the potential center of a brewing storm among educators who were here today for the opening tomorrow of the Texas State Teachers' association. Dr. Works, among other things suggested in a report to Governor Pat Neff yesterday that the state supported too many state colleges and recommended that Sul Ross Teachers college at Alpine be discontinued. H. W. Morelock, president of the college, was reported on the way to San Antonio to discuss the matter.

In another part of the report Dr. Works asserted that the grade schools had over emphasized the teaching of algebra, due, he said, to undue influence of the University of Texas. Moreover, he declared, the schools did not teach it to the best advantage and that more time was spent on that

Unkissed, He Kissed Her, Now His Kisser's Kissing Half His Cash Goodby

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.—"Kirby the unkissed" is free. So is Daisy Belle Hicks McRill, the dairy maid of Leavenworth, Kansas. Both of them stepped unshackled the streets of Kansas City today after Judge Charles R. Pence had cut their matrimonial bonds—after much, much effort—late yesterday in district court.

It has been so many moons ago that Kirby McRill, possessor of much good Kansas land, startled Chicago's loop district by announcing to hotel reporters he had never been kissed. Kirby reached Chicago unheralded and unsung and departed therefrom much the opposite.

Kansas City remedied Kirby's troubles when he got home. He was pictured here osculating with two fair ones on the osculating end.

So Daisy Belle Hicks heard of Kirby and Kirby heard of Daisy Belle Hicks. He walked to Leavenworth after her, and he walked her to Kansas City and married her. For Kirby never, never rode.

Now the farm lands in Kansas, the barber college and the bird store in which the pair were interested have been divided.

So have Kirby and Belle. They're free today.

A meeting with the members of the clearing house association has been arranged for late today.

The directors said that if $75,000 can be realized on the assets, valued at $100,000 which Gant turned over, the bank will be able to pay depositors about 50 cents on the dollar. If the clearing house association helps more can be paid. There is due depositors $820,000 and the directors are investigating notes totaling $633,000, the signers of which they do not believe exist.

His suspended term was assessed by a jury in Navarro county when he was found guilty of complicity in a burglary in which another man was sent to the pen for 14 years. Because of his youth a jury allowed him his liberty under the terms of the suspended sentence law. This may now be made effective if the state chooses to revive it. He is also under bond and awaiting trial on an indictment charging perjury growing out of his testimony in the Carl Holcomb assault with intent to murder case.

Tillman and Ireland were both witnesses in this case, which involved a cutting scrape over two years ago between Holcomb and John Skaggs of this city. The latter was seriously wounded in the fight, which Ireland and Tillman witnessed, and their testimony when Holcomb was tried was such that indictments were subsequently returned against both.

Both of these, as were also Keys and Reed, were arrested about three months ago and questioned for some time in connection with the robbery of the Producers Creamery company office last summer. About $750 was obtained, and while officers thought then and still think that this quartette was responsible they have never been able to gather sufficient evidence to warrant an indictment.

Once Got 2 Years.

Ireland, in addition to his perjury charge, is also under a two year sentence in the pen for receiving and concealing stolen property. He has been at liberty on bond pending an appeal to the higher courts.

Johnny Reed is under bond on two indictments, one charging felony theft in connection with the disappearance of some oil field property from near Electra several months ago and the other charging robbery with firearms in connection with a recent Archer county hold-up. Billy Keys has no formal charges standing against him, although he was arrested in connection with the Producers Creamery job and has been held half-a-dozen times as a suspect in auto tire and other thievery jobs. The main indictment against him, as an officer has expressed it, is that he's "too thick with the rest of the bunch."

While recognizing the four men as desperadoes, officers, who have dealt with them in the Loving and Dundee bank robbery cases give them credit for shrewdly dodging arrest. North Texas and southern Oklahoma has been raked with a fine tooth comb since the First State bank of Dundee was robbed early in November, yet Tillman et al., who were the special objects of the search, artfully kept out of sight of the law. Instead of running in a straight line and attempting to put hundreds of miles between themselves and the scene of their crime they adopted the plan of hanging close by. In this they were for a time eminently successful. At no time have they been more than 75 miles from Wichita Falls, and officers have reason to believe that most of this time has been spent in Wichita Falls, probably within a few blocks of the court house.

Here After Dundee Job.

It has been revealed that the four boys were in Wichita Falls within less than four hours from the time they robbed the Dundee bank at 9:45 on the morning of November 1. They dropped off an automobile at the corner of Third and Burnett streets at 1:10 that same afternoon, split up and spent the balance of the day and night at their homes there. Officers have learned that definitely, but have been unable to get an accurate line on their movements since then. That they have been in and out of Wichita Falls and Dundee, Okla., has been established, however.

Information that the four were in Wichita Falls the day of the robbery was supplied by a brother of Reed, who was arrested by Ranger Belcher on the Monday following the robbery. This brother, a pumper on an oil lease in an isolated section south of Electra, "entertained" the four within two hours of the hold-up and brought them into Wichita Falls in his car after the Cadillac machine stolen from D. M. Harman and in which the four escaped from Dundee had been abandoned some 12 miles from the pump shack. Reed's brother averred, so officers report, that he was forced at the point of a gun to stop his work on the lease and drive to Wichita Falls with his brother and the other three.

Once here, he is reported to have said, he was given a $20 bill for his trouble. During the trip to town Tillman sat in the front seat of the Ford roadster with his pockets weighted to the bursting point with gold and silver coins. Reed rode a precarious perch behind with his feet braced against the spare tire rack. He had his pockets stuffed with choking wads of bills. The car purposely circled around Iowa Park coming down from Electra, reached Wichita Falls undetected and came into the Burnett and Third street corner through Scotland addition and the Burnett street bridge.

Brother Squealed.

The first definite clue that Tillman and his crowd were the ones wanted came indirectly through the fear of Reed's brother that his shack had been spotted and that he might be implicated in the robbery. After taking the four into town he returned to Electra, phoned Wichita Falls and asked that officers be sent out to his place to get some "hot tips."

Ranger Belcher went out that afternoon and was shown an automobile on Beaver Creek that had been abandoned by a bootlegger. He was told an imaginative yarn about a bootleg ring operating in the neighborhood, but all this did not appeal to Belcher, who took Reed back to town and locked him up. At midnight, after a constant grilling by Belcher, District Attorney Allred and others, he broke down and told the complete story of the visit of his brother, Tillman, Ireland and Keys.

With this to work on officers set out on the trail that was now hot, now cold, and which finally ended in Batzora Tuesday.

There now remains but one unsolved angle of the Dundee and Loving robberies—that of the fifth man in the Dundee case. All reports agree that five men were implicated in the looting of the bank there, but at the oil field rendezvous of Reed's brother only four appeared. The fifth, it seems, abandoned the party immediately after they sped out of Dundee. A man, known to be a crony of the four youths, is also held in jail at this time and may turn out to be the fifth.

Later developments will tell that.

CHARGES ARE FILED ON THREE

Death Penalty Will Be Asked for Men Who Held Up Loving Bank.

JACKSBORO, Texas, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Charges of robbery with firearms were filed in both Archer and Young county courts today against three men captured yesterday at Bahora, Wise county, in connection with the robbery of the Loving State bank Monday. They gave their names as Lewis Tillman, 19, Billie Keys, 25, and John Reed, 27, all of Wichita Falls. Preliminary hearing on charges of possession of stolen property was held this afternoon.

The charges of robbery with firearms were filed by District Attorney James V. Allred of the thirtieth judicial district. In Archer county, where the men are accused of complicity in the hold up and robbery of the First National bank of Dundee, November 1. Charges also were filed against Alvin Ireland who was arrested last night in Wichita Falls by Constable Frank Morgan. In Young county they are accused in connection with the Loving bank hold-up.

Three women in the house where Ireland was apprehended were arrested in Wichita Falls today, according to reports from there. A fifth man has been under arrest in connection with the Dundee robbery since November 3 at Wichita Falls.

District Attorney Allred said description of the gang which last week robbed a bank at Shamrock, Okla., tallies with that of the men under arrest here and at Wichita Falls. He said he would fight all efforts to have the men released on bond and declared he would ask the death penalty when the men are brought to trial.

The three men held here were remanded to jail in default of $5,000 bond following the preliminary hearing on the charges of possession of stolen property.

make. A victory for Pennsylvania will place it with Yale and Dartmouth at the pinnacle of eastern football. A defeat will rate it along with Syracuse provided the Orange disposes of Columbia at the polo grounds tomorrow.

The Alabama-Georgia game will decide the outcome of the southern conference but by no means will it determine the southern champion, which will be something of a figure this year, in view of Vanderbilt's decision over Minnesota. A victory for Alabama would place Center college at the top, the Colonels having defeated Alabama in an earlier game. A victory for Georgia would insure its mutual consideration with Centre.

Our Own Little Battles.

The annual Penn State-Pittsburgh game has lost caste because of defeats sustained by both teams, although they are much improved now. State should win.

Quite a bit of action is due for the Missouri Valley when Kansas meets Missouri and Oklahoma takes on the Kansas Aggies while Texas will have its moment when Rice plays Baylor and Texas university dallies with Texas A. & M.

Intersectional games of distinction and no distinction at all are down for a decision. The Florida-Drake game should furnish quite an afternoon.

THE PROBABLE LINEUPS

35,000 Will Attend Texas A-M Classic At Austin Stadium Thursday.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26.—The eve of the annual Thanksgiving classic between Texas and A. & M. found Congress avenue in holiday attire with hundreds of early arrivals milling about the hotels, the campus and frat houses.

Dana Bible and his Aggie stalwarts reached here this afternoon and Bible, so far as newspaper predictions are concerned, had little to say. He put his men through light practice on the St. Edwards gridiron this afternoon.

E. J. "Doc" Stewart spoke more confidently today than usual. He said that while the Aggies were booked to win, according to the "dope", he recalled that the "dope" was always upset in this game. He declared that while the Longhorns might be outplayed, would not be outfought.

Tickets have been sold to 35,000. It was predicted by officials, however, that fully 5,000 more would jam their way into the half million dollar stadium. Governor Pat M. Neff will formally dedicate the huge structure with a six minute speech. Bishop Kinsolving will deliver the invocation. Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, governor-elect and James E. Ferguson, with President W. B. Bizzell of A. & M. college, President Splawn of the University and other notables will march in the parade and occupy boxes of honor at the game.

New Leading Lady Captures Chaplin's Elusive Heart

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—Announcing Charles Spencer Chaplin, great comedian and great lover, in "Matrimony." Not a re-issue, but an entirely new version.

For the most famous living man has chosen another bride. She is Miss Lita Grey, his new leading woman, who will be seen opposite him on the screen for the first time in "The Gold Rush," his coming feature-length comedy. She was an employe of the Chaplin studio when Charlie chose her to take the place of Edna Purriance, his leading woman for many years.

Edna is now a star in her own right, having been placed on a pinnacle by Chaplin when he created "A Woman of Paris" around her personality.

Miss Grey is a native Californian of striking beauty. The blood of the Spanish founders flows in her veins.

Although Chaplin said "Never again," after his marriage with Mildred Harris, screen actress, was dissolved in a divorce court, he has been on the verge of matrimony several times. His short and tempestuous engagement to Pola Negri, Americanized Polish star, is well known. Previously he was engaged to May Collins, a young actress little known to screen fans. From time to time his name has been linked in matrimonial rumors with several other members of the Hollywood film colony, including Claire Windsor, who lately has given her heart and hand to Bert Lytell.

In the divorce suit of Mildred Harris, she charged the famous comedian with cruelty.

Their one child died soon after it was born.

particular study than its relative importance warranted. Dr. Walter Splawn, president of the university, is on the program of the convention, and was expected to take issue with much of Dr. Works' suggestions.

Another feature of Dr. Works' report which caused considerable preconvention discussion, related to a recommendation that the office of the state superintendent be made appointive instead of elective. Dr. Works would, the report said, have the state superintendent named by a commission of nine appointed by the governor. It would, he believes eliminate to a great extent the necessity of college presidents lobbying for the state funds they believe they ought to have for the support of the schools of which they are the heads. It is understood that S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent, agrees in principle with the recommendation but talk today was that it would undergo a considerable verbal fire on the theory that about the only thing the change would accomplish would be to make the office appointive instead of elective.

Superintendent Marrs, according to reports, was coming to the convention primed to advocate biennial instead of annual meetings of the state association. He would, it is understood, divide the state into four geographical groups. The teachers in each would meet in those years when biennial sessions of the general convention were not held and discuss their own particular problems and thus be in a position to better present their peculiar needs to the general meeting. It would require an amendment to the constitution.

We Are Thankful

Thankful, is this company for the growth and improvements of Wichita Falls, in the last year. Having a hearty interest in the city, we greet every evidence of its betterment as if it were our own, and are thankful for it in the same way.

And we are both thankful and grateful for the patronage the people of Wichita Falls and this territory have extended to Texhoma products. We are especially thankful for the good will shown for our company, for that, we feel, is our greatest asset.

300 Years

Three centuries have passed since that first fervent Thanksgiving offered up in an untamed wilderness by the band of hardy and courageous Puritans who had braved the perils of the seas to reach a land of freedom.

It has been 300 years of progress and rapid civilization. Each century has been the development of more resources, on the surface of the land and below it. The years have seen the New World changed from a primitive land to the most modern and prosperous of the nations.

The hardships and inconveniences endured by the Puritans have vanished with invention and discovery. Life has been made easier and happier.

Not far from the top in the list of discoveries is natural gas and its use in the home and in industries. This modern resource has brought to homes a degree of comfort and convenience never known before. It has, too, enabled every class to enjoy it, for it is comparatively inexpensive.

It is only one of the things we should be thankful for on this day, but it is one of the most important.

FINE LADIES WEAR

If We All Don't Get Our Share This Year It Won't Be Because the Turkey Isn't Large Enough

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 25.—(Special)—Gov. Pat M. Neff issued a Thanksgiving proclamation, calling upon the citizens of Texas to assemble in devout observance of the spirit of the Thanksgiving season. The proclamation, said to be probably the most eloquent ever penned by a Texas governor on this subject, follows:

"To the people of Texas: In keeping with the well established and hallowed custom, sacred in its inception and cultured in its character, begun more than 300 years ago by the Christian fathers who planted upon this continent the sacred seed of civil and religious liberty and laid the foundation for our present-day civilization and prosperity, it is fitting and proper that one day in each year be set aside as a day of Thanksgiving.

"The people of this state have abundant cause for returning thanks for the material blessings which this year has given them. Peace and plenty has been ours. The state has been blessed with abundant yield of crops from the fields, and of great production of wealth from its mines. Our people have been blest with general good health. The state has made great progress financially and we are recovering along all lines from the disastrous effect of the late world war. We are not distracted by foreign wars, nor disturbed by domestic discord. Every citizen is guaranteed the unabridged right in life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"Aside, however, from present material blessings and benefits with which we have been abundantly showered, and for which we should be greatly thankful, this state, as a part of the union, should remember to be thankful upon this occasion with humble and grateful hearts for the bountiful and supreme blessings which the God of nations has so abundantly given to this the most fortunate and blest of the nations of the earth.

We should remember on this sacred day that besides and above the blessings common to mankind lifting the race of man above all other created things, even to the altitude of the image of the Creator, that we are of that favored race to which has been given by divine Providence the planting and cultivation on this continent, preserved for their reception, the true seed of that civil and religious liberty that recognizes the individual and his proper progress and highest happiness as the chief end of organized society and established government.

"We ought to remember on this occasion that on this continent, the favored asylum of the free, a race and civilization were developed that has preserved and fostered the ideal of individuali liberty and has given thereto glorious expression in the immortal language of the Declaration of Independence. Let us not forget that Providence established on this continent a form of government in harmony with this ideal of individual civil and religious liberty and caused to spring from the loins of this new American race men of minds and character capable of conceiving and drafting the constitution of the United States, which is the most unique, outstanding and perfect expression concerning human government ever conceived by the mind of man.

"We should also remember to be thankful that for nearly a century and a half, this government, so instituted, so conceived and so framed under this constitution, has through the vicissitudes of foreign and civil war, through the political and financial crises of that period, been faithfully, lawfully and patriotically preserved and fostered to the end that this precious boon of civil and religious liberty should not perish and that republican constitutional government should grow and prosper. The chief characteristics and the greatest achievement of our race is its genius for and its establishment of a government of and by the governed, holding that all people are inherently and inalienably entitled to a voice in the government under which they live, and that only by the intelligent and patriotic exercise of this right voiced in commanding tones in the affairs of this nation, and through this nation the preservation and perfection of liberty under law around the world.

"We should be profoundly and humbly thankful for the upward progress of mankind and especially for the glorious achievements of our race and this nation in making substantial additions to the sum total of human progress. Happy indeed should we be that the opportunity was given to our generation to further add to the uplift and happiness of humanity, by the preservation of those principles of liberty, law and justice which can only be preserved, maintaind and fostered under a constitutional government like ours.

"And lastly, let us be supremely thankful that in having achieved thus much for the material and moral welfare of this and the other nations of the earth, by creating a world-wide atmosphere of love of liberty, respect for law, and desire for justice which has brought peace and prosperity around the globe, we may hope for and strive to the end that this peace and prosperity may be lasting, and that from this fertile soil may grow and flourish that freedom of faith and action which insures to every man the right to choose according to his faith that true religion which glorifies this life, and vouchsafes to the people of God that most real and lasting of all things—an abiding faith and hope in the life everlasting.

"Therefore, as a grateful people, for the heritage of the past, the opportunity of the present and the promise of the future, and in conformity with a long standing and honored custom, let us observe Thursday, November 27, as Thanksgiving day throughout the state. Let every citizen residing within the broad borders of the state of Texas, riding the crest of time's civilization, join on that day, consecrated, by observing in thanksgiving to God for the bounteous gifts, material and spiritual, that have fallen from His lavish hand. As we gather about our family firesides and our church altars, let our hearts swell in a great symphony of gratitude to Him for the countless manifestations of His loving kindness; and mingled with our fervent thanks, let us offer a prayer of supplication to a benevolent Father for the continuance of Divine guidance to the peonle of Texas and the American government."

Forsakes His Boy To Please Wife

Now Father Faces a Charge Of Felonious Abandonment

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 26.—Walker Milner, farmer of Collierville, Tenn., had to choose between the two things that he loved best—his wife or his three-year-old son, child of Milner's first wife who died when the baby was born, according to the story told authorities after his arrest early today.

"She, my wife, just could not seem to endure my baby," he told police. "I loved my boy, but I loved my wife, too."

Yesterday morning he brought the boy to Memphis. He had nothing but a vague idea of getting rid of the child, but that idea crystalized when he saw an open freight car. He kissed the boy, set him inside the car and hurried away.

A passerby heard the child crying and calling for "Daddy" yesterday afternoon. Police were notified. They took the youngster to a hospital and today he is little worse for his experience.

A nurse in the hospital remembered that she had cared for the baby several months previously and gave her information to police. Milner's arrest followed.

A charge of felonious abandonment will be placed against the father.

Countess Marries A Truck Gardener

Daughter of Bavarian Duke Now Honeymooning In New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Countess Marie von Larisch, who has also held the title of Duchess von Wittelsbach, daughter of Duke Ludvig of Bavaria and niece of the late Empress Elizabeth of Austria, is honeymooning in New York with W. H. Meyers, a truck farmer of Melbourne, Fla., who came to this country in steerage 12 years ago.

The countess, who is 66 years old, was banished from Austria 35 years ago in connection with the tragic end of her cousin, Crown Prince Rudolph, and Marie Vetsera, who were found dead in a hunting lodge near Vienna. She accepted an offer of marriage from Meyers while she was working as a servant in Berlin. The farmer read of her plight in newspapers and proposed to her by mail. Neither had ever seen the other until the countess came here last August.

The marriage took place in a little cottage in Elizabeth, N. J., on September 2. After that they went to Oklahoma before returning to New York. Today they will return to the Meyers farm in Florida.

HOOF-MOUTH CLEAN OUT

Department of Agriculture Says the United States Is Now Rid of It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Complete suppression of the foot and mouth disease among cattle in the United States is indicated in reports made public today by the department of agriculture. There has been no spread or infection since Oct. 9, in California where eradication work was virtually completed several months before that date in most of the previously infested regions. In Texas where the disease appeared Sept. 27, active control measures apparently have suppressed it entirely, the department announced, no new infection having appeared there in a month.

The government is prepared to cope with any unexpected new development that may arise, Dr. John C. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, said today. The plans include a study of means for bringing about greater uniformity of state regulations and of discouraging ill-advised and unreasonable interstate quarantines, such as proved detrimental to both California and Texas.

The outbreak in Texas has demonstrated that the policy of destroying and burying all cattle on surrounding infected pastures, though drastic, is the correct means of suppressing the disease promptly, Dr. Mohler declared. Rigid enforcement of quarantine regulations, he added, was a contributing factor in stopping the Texas outbreak.

The more humble his beginning, the more deference he demands from his employes.

The thing that makes people hate a member of an inferior race is his superiority.

Seniors Will Get Their Diplomas January 8, Says an Announcement.

Graduation night for the seniors of the mid-year graduating class of the Wichita Falls high school has been set for January 8, according to announcement made Wednesday afternoon following a class meeting of the mid-year seniors. The baccalaureate sermon will be held in the Junior college autditorium Sunday morning, January 1, at 11 o'clock. The class of this year has 39 pupils against the 14 of last year.

The class flower and song committee reported that the violet had been adopted as the flower, and lavender and white the class colors.

Brooks Henderson, faculty committee head, talked to the seniors concerning their invitations. Miss Mary Beth Martin was appointed to take orders for invitations. Dave Paul, local jeweler, told the students that the class rings would be here by December eighth.

It was announced at the meeting that the cast for the senior class play which is to be given in December will be selected soon, and that first rehearsal will begin Tuesday. Miss Juanita Kinsey, head of the public speaking department, will direct the play.

Brandegee's Debt Totaled $180,000

Senator, a Suicide, Appeared To Be Heavily Involved

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Senator Frank Brandegee of Connecticut, who committed suicide here six weeks ago, owed debts in this city totaling $180,000 with assets here of $20,000, according to a petition filed in the District of Columbia supreme court today by W. Don Lundy, administrator of the estate.

Although the petition said Mr. Brandegee owned no real estate in Washington he was reputed to have owned during his life time very valuable real estate here as well as in nearby Maryland and Virginia. Lundy listed his Washington holdings as consisting of household effects, four automobiles and a small bank account.

A LEGISLATIVE PROGRAM

WASINGTON, Nov. 26.—A tentative legislative program for the house for the first four days of the approaching short session of congress was outlined today by Representative Longworth, Ohio, the republican floor leader.

He said the house after convening next Monday, probably would authorize the speaker to appoint a committee to serve with a similar senate committee to notify the president that congress was ready to transact business, and then adjourn out of respect to members who have died since the last session.

Tuesday the house expects to receive the annual message from the president, which, this year, is to be read to both houses separately unless the executive alters his decision not to deliver it in person and also any other messages that may be sent from the White ouse.

Wednesday, he said, will be set aside for the consideration of bills on the calendar. hTe naval committee he added, plans to bring up a measure providing for numerous changes in the administration of the navy.

The interior appropriation bill he announced is scheduled to be taken up Thursday.

Mr. Longworth said, in reply to a question, that he did not know of any concerted effort by members to attempt at this session to revise the section of the tax law deling with the publicity of income tax returns. He painted out that this yuestion already was before the courts and thought it probable that those interested in the matter might put off action pending a judicial decision on the subject.

As to the legislation other than the annual supply measures that might be taken up, the republican leader said the McFadden bill, proposing several major changes in the national banking laws, was the only one that had been promised special consideration by the rules committee.

MA'S PLANS APPROVED

AUSTIN, Nov. 26.—The board of regents of the University of Texas and board of directors of A. & M. college in joint session here today endorsed the plan of Governor-elect Mrs. Ferguson for holding conferences with various groups interested in legislation. A conference on educational matters was invited.

The conference discussed various recommendations of the educational survey. Until the recommendations are printed it was decided to hold in abeyance any pronouncements concerning the conclusion of the survey.

304 years ago our Pilgrim forefathers entered the harbor of Massachusetts Bay and laid the foundation of the greatest nation of the world—America!

On this Thanksgiving Day let us pause and give thanks for the many blessings that have come to us, some through our own sincere efforts, some through the efforts of others.

We, of this new firm wish to express our thankfulness for our kindly reception into the commercial life of Wichita Falls.

Approximately three months ago a new man's store was born. Its foundation was based upon Honesty, Friendliness, Quality, and Fair Pricing. That its basic principal was correct has been proven beyond all doubt, by the wonderful business it has enjoyed in its infancy.

We thank our patrons for the part that they have played in our success and will sincerely endeavor to keep that confidence which is essential to the survival of any reputable concern.

Vigorous Fight On Child Labor Laws Expected

Orgonized Forces With Plenty Of Funds Plan Campaigns.

GO TO STATE LABORS

They Charge Combine With Eastern Textile Concern.

By BASCOM M. TIMMONS
Record News Staff.

WASHINGTON D. C.—Two well-organized forces, with funds for a fast and furious campaign are preparing to harrass state legislatures on the child labor amendment to the constitution.

The refusal of Massachusetts voters to accept the amendment has heartened the opponents of the proposition, and they will battle now in every state. The advocates, realizing that they are in a real fight, have issued an appeal for help.

Five of 48 states have passed upon through their legislatures and one by upon the child labor amendment, four referendum, one state, Arkansas, voted to ratify it, and North Carolina, Georgia and Louisiana to reject it. Massachusetts voted against ratification, but the legislature can consider it, for the referendum is advisory, and not mandatory.

Blame Textile Trust.

The 23 organizations associated for the ratification of the child labor amendment with headquarters here, charge that their opponents are working in the interest of a Massachusetts textile trust.

"It is significant and the voters will soon realise it," declared an announcement here by the ratification committee, "that Massachusetts, a cotton mill state, should have joined with the two other great cotton mill states of Georgia and North Carolina, who have refused ratification."

"The textile mills employ more children than any other industry, and the ownership of southern mills is largely in Massachusetts. The campaign in Massachusetts was part of a nation wide campaign against it by the National Manufacturers' association of industries of Massachusetts."

Had By Majority.

Congress passed the amendment during its last session by more than a two-thirds majority, 297 to 69 in the house of representatives and 61 to 25 in the senate.

The amendment was submitted to the states for ratification in June. Six state legislatures had petitioned congress to pass the amendment; California, Massachusetts, Nevada, North Dakota, Washington and Wisconsin. The Massachusetts legislature petitioned congress in February. When the amendment has passed congress this legislature was still in session and could have ratified, but such action was blocked and the question was put to a referendum Nov. 4.

SHE WILL KISS THE BIBLE

"Ma" Ferguson On Taking Oath Will Repeat Age Old Custom.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26. — A woman's kiss bestowed in reverent obeisance on the sacred pages of the state's oldest official Bible—a book that has done service since the days of Sam Houston—will be one of the ceremonial features of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson's inauguration.

From a time so remote that the minds of living men run not to the contrary, this same Bible has been used in the inauguration of Texas governors. Eminent men of the state, to whom has fallen the inheritance of sovereignty bequeathed them by the great Houston, have kissed this Bible as their first official act in homage to a still greater sovereignty.

Book Is Worn.

The book, brown, worn and scar, lies in a safe in the supreme court, its abiding place for over 80 years. On its fly leaf is the following written inscription, penned in unfading ink:

"Supreme court of the Republic of Texas, 1841."

It is believed this book was used by President Houston at his inauguration in 1841. The hand writing on the leaf greatly resembles Houston's, according to those who have compared it with known writings of the first executive head of Texas.

Certain it is that the Bible has been used in inaugurations for the last 60 years. Fred Connerly, clerk of the court, said.

The ceremony of kissing the Bible has been retained in the Texas inaugural ritual from the earliest days of the state. And now a woman's lips will place the osculatory token on the pages that have been touched by a long line of masculine leaders before her.

When Governor Pat M. Neff was inaugurated, he used both this Bible and his mother's Bible. He desired to follow the long established custom of using the supreme court Bible used by Houston, but also wished to use the Bible his mother gave him when he was a child. As he stepped up to the platform to receive the oath of office, Governor Neff stopped to kiss his aged mother, who sat on the platform. He then kissed the Bibles, acknowledging by these kisses, he said, the two most powerful influences of his life, his mother and religion.

Just a Small Book.

This Bible is a small book, about five by four inches. It is covered in brown leather, which is much worn and easily rubs off. When placed in the hands, it opens near the middle at a page which has one corner turned, as though it were in the habit of being opened at this same place. On this dog's-ear page are the Ten Commandments and the one which catches the reader's eye first is this:

"Honor Thy Father and Thy Mother As Thy God Hath Commanded Thee; That It May Go Well With Thee In the Land Which the Lord Thy God Giveth Thee."

Mr. Connerly is the official custodian of this supreme court Bible, which is kept in the court safe and taken out only once every two years for the inauguration. The oath of office is administered by the chief justice of the court and Chief Justice C. M. Cureton will perform this function for Mrs. Ferguson's induction into office. The form of oath usually used by the supreme court for swearing in state officials will be employed at the January inauguration. It will be drawn up for the occasion by Mr. Connerly.

BOMB PLOT SUSPECTED IN GRAND RAPIDS P. O. BLAST.

Postoffice inspectors are investigating the circumstances surrounding an explosion on the loading platform of the postoffice in Grand Rapids, Mich., in which three persons were killed and twelve injured. The present theory is that the blast was caused by the premature explosion of a bomb being sent through the mails. The rear of the postoffice is a mass of wreckage, as seen.

MELBA BIDS PUBLIC ADIU

Prima Donna Appears Last As Mimi In "La Boheme."

MELBOURNE, Nov. 26, by mail.) —Mme. Nellie Melba, the famous prima donna, made her farewell appearance at a gala operatic night in His Majesty's theatre here October the 31st.

She chose "La Boheme" and sang it only as Melba can sing.

"I feel tired after it is all over," she said when the final curtain fell, "and it was all I could do to keep from breaking down. The people were so wonderfully sympathetic, and sympathy brings one to tears. I have put away Mimi's dress and resigned myself to retirement."

From all ove rthe world messages came to the great singer. From the Metropolitan opera house in New York where she made her debut in 1893, came the tribute of men who were present at that appearance. From London and Paris she received the best wishes from her friends and admirers.

The night of the 13th His Majesty's was crowded. Those in the boxes paid 100 pounds for their seats. The stalls brought 50 pounds a seat and even the back seats were sold for high prices. The reason for this was that Mme. Melba had decided to give the proceeds of the final night to a disabled soldiers' club.

Premier Bruce told her of the part she had played in the development of Australia. The chief civic representatives paid their tribute. The tears of women expressed the feeling of the people. It was a scene with few parallels in Australia.

Madame Melba announced she would sail for London November 25.

Irrigation

WATER.

Amount of Water Reserved for Use of City of Wichita Falls.

Yesterday we started discussing the contract between the two districts with a view of learning the general provisions concerning the water supply but more particularly to find if there was any authority whereby the use of water on the irrigation project might be limited. Paragraph No. 7, which describes district No. 2's share in the irrigation system and the water supply, was as far as we reached.

Paragraph No. 8 deals with the question of the place of water delivery to each parcel of land.

Paragraph No. 9 tells how assessments to cover the cost of maintenance shall be levied. There is nothing in this paragraph or in the entire contract that states that the people of district No. 2 shall not pay more than $1.05 per acre per year maintenance. It is generally understood that the cost of maintenance is to be limited during the life of the bonds to the above figure.

Paragraph No. 10 has a direct bearing on the matter in hand. Here is where Wichita Falls, the builder of the project, reserves to itself sufficient water for its own needs. Wichita Falls reserves as a prior right over all other rights 50,000 acre feet of water. This is not much water out of a total storage capacity of about 600,000 acre feet. In case Lake Kemp should ever go dry, it is provided that all the water in the Diversion dam shall be reserved to Wichita Falls.

This, you will note, cuts out both districts. In the case of a severe drouth the irrigated lands in district No. 1 would suffer the same as in No. 2, but the city itself will be protected. This is as it should be.

Paragraph No. 7 said, that district No. 1 guaranteed to district No. 2 sufficient water to irrigate their lands. From paragraph No. 10 it would seem that this guarantee only amounts to giving district 2 a prior right or first call on all water other than that reserved to the city of Wichita Falls. Certainly it would seem that district No. 2 has been amply protected.

Tomorrow we will discuss paragraph No. 11 which has an important bearing on the matter of water supply for district No. 2.

Coolidge To Pep Up Enforcement Of Prohi Laws

TO INCREASE GUARDS

Will Give More Men Power To Take Up Fight On Bootleggers.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Record News Staff.

WASHINGTON, Nov. —Prohibition enforcement is to be more vigorous, friends of President Coolidge assert. The administration is pledged to the carrying out of the Volstead act and those who expect a more liberal attitude from the White House will be disappointed.

The program of the president is to strengthen the coast guard and give it all the swift power boats and other equipment necessary to cope with rum runners, rigidly regulate all the major sources of supply and make a more aggressive fight against those engaged in interstate traffic.

Users of industrial alcohol and handlers of medicinal sacramental liquors are not to be annoyed by meddling agents or handicaped in legitimate business by regulations and rules that stretch the laws.

President Coolidge, through the treasury department and the department of justice, will try to get better co-operation from all of the states. He believes that prohibition should be made effective in every law-abiding community where federal, state and municipal authorities work together to that end.

Republican leaders charge the democratic leaders of congress with the failure of prohibition, because the prohibition enforcement law of October, 1917, authorized the commissioner of internal revenue and the attorney general to appoint all persons necessary to carry out the enforcement act, but exempted from the civil service rules all experts, persons authorized to issue permits, all prohibition agents and all prohibition inspectors.

This, the republicans contend, made the prohibition unit a political machine, not for the enforcement of the law, but for the collection of graft and the corruption of officials.

Now that the republicans are soon to have a working majority in congress they will be in a position to enact supplementary legislation. Democrats doubt if they carry out their campaign promises on this subject.

Sacred Heart Altar society will hold a bazaar at 912 Indiana avenue. Come and see their beautiful fancy work, aprons, and hand-dressed dolls. Also plenty of good things to eat. Lunch will be served at noon.—Adv.

Ben Williams Is Loser in Appeal To Higher Court

Wichita County Man Must Serve a Two Year Sentence

OTHER DECISIONS

Faulty Indictment Leads To Another Reversal Wednesday

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26.—(Special)—The criminal appeals court held today that Ben Williams, Wichita county, must serve a two-year prison sentence for embezzlement of $76.00 from A. H. Boycan.

WHO KILLED VICTIM LEADS TO REMOVAL.

AUSTIN, Nov. 26.—Doubt as to which of three Brown brothers killed Josh Cox, their brother-in-law, caused reversal today by the court of criminal appeals of the five years sentence against Hugh Brown of Swisher county.

According to the evidence, Cox and John Brown were fighting when Hugh Brown hit Cox on the head with an automobile pump and immediately afterward, the testimony said, Jim Brown fired three shots into Cox. Whether the blow with the pump or the shots caused death was doubtful, and the court held the trial judge should have given instruction on aggravated assault.

The anti-jitney ordinance of El Paso was upheld by the court today in refusing to release Luis Luna, arrested for operating a jitney in violation of the ordinance.

Use of the name "Denby" instead of "Denty" in an indictment caused reversal of the $100 fine against John Short of Randall county, charged with assault with a deadly weapon. The complaining witness was J. M. Dendy, but because of the misspelling of his name the indictment was declared faulty.

BANKS MUST PAY WHEN FORGER DUPES.

AUSTIN, Nov. 26.—The First National bank of San Angelo must pay Mrs. W. A. Glasscock of that city $95 because they paid a forged check out of her deposit, the supreme court decided today. The decision settles a law principle in dispute for a long time in Texas.

The question is whether one who makes a check that later is illegally raised must stand the loss or the bank which pays such a check. The court holds the bank must stand the loss because the proximate cause is the act of the former and not the negligence of the drawer.

Mrs. Glasscock made out a check for $5 to her son-in-law, M. J. Rose. The check was raised to $500. Courts of other states differ on the question settled by the case.

NEED NO ATTORNEY IN SETTLING ACTIONS.

AUSTIN, Nov. 26.—Lawsuits accepted under contracts by attorneys may not be compromised without the attorney's consent, the supreme court held today in the case of A. J. Gibson against the Texas Pacific company. Gibson assigned his claim against the company to his attorney, J. R. Stubblefield. A judgment of $15,000 was recovered in the lower court, but while the case was pending in the supreme court, Gibson compromised with the company. Stubblefield claimed his original fee of one-third the judgment and was sustained by the high court.

Dolly Iree, American dancer, is now the talk of Paris. Her eccentric jazz dancing act has made her one of the biggest attractions in the French capital.

AUSTIN, Nov. 26—The supreme court today denied the state of a writ of error in the Humble Oil and Refining case in which it was charged the company was violating the anti trust laws because its majority stock was owned by the Standard Oil company. The lower court held mere ownership of stock did not constitute a breach of the state laws and this was in effect sustained by refusal of the high court to grant a writ of error.

Vanishes At Pier; Believed Drowned

Naval Lieutenant Suddenly Disappears Near Waukegan, Ills.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Nov. 26.—Lieutenant Lew W. Bagby, 29, attached to the Great Lakes naval training station, who formerly lived in New Haven, Mo., vanished from a pier at the station today and is believed to have been drowned.

Lieutenant Bagby's hat, gloves and a match box were found in the water by a pier and led to the belief that he fell into Lake Michigan and was accidentally drowned.

Early reports that he was related to former Secretary Josephus Daniels of the navy were without foundation, it was said at the commandant's office.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

A WISE MORMON.

By Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald.

Senator Reed Smoot of Utah is chairman of the committee on finance. His is said to be the best business brain in the senate. Senator Smoot is in hearty accord with President Coolidge that there is no necessity for a special session of the sixty-ninth congress in the spring of 1925. He agrees with the president that congress' action on taxes must wait until the end of the fiscal year.

Senator Smoot is a stalwart. His political enemies call him a reactionary. He classified himself as a business man. He does not believe in relief legislation of any stripe or brand. He believes that a man must work out his own destiny regardless.

Senator Smoot is a Mormon churchman. He is close to the top in the calendar of living saints. He does not believe that the world owes a man a living. Neither does the president believe that the world owes a man a living.

Senator Smoot knows something else—that it is impossible for a senatorial tail to wag the presidential dog.

VICTORY FOR THE HOME BREWER

Congressman John Phillip Hill of Maryland, stalwart Republican and ultra-advocate of wines and beer, has won a victory for himself at least and for the wine makers and cider makers of the nation.

Congressman Hill was indicted by a federal grand jury and charged with unlawful manufacture of 11.64 per cent wine and 2.7 per cent cider in his home in the city of Baltimore. This Maryland congressman provoked the trial to test the power of the Volstead act over home brewing.

Federal Judge Morris A. Soper presided. After the evidence had been submitted and the attorneys had made their arguments the jury retired. After 24 hours' deliberation a verdict was returned which found the defendant not guilty on each of the six counts in the indictment found against him.

According to the interpretation of the verdict the manufacturer of wines and cider of ordinary alcoholic content in private homes is permissible.

It has been announced that the federal government will not appeal from Judge Soper's ruling, holding home manufacture of cider and fruit juices in excess of 1-2 of 1 per cent alcoholic content to be permitted by the Volstead act. Judge Soper had made this ruling before the evidence in the case had been given to the jury but instructed the twelve good and true men to retire and agree upon a verdict.

Judge Soper in charging the jury told it that its verdict must be considered as passing upon the question of whether the beverage manufactured by the congressman was intoxicating. He said the issue of intoxication must be decided on the question of whether or not a practical amount consumed by any man would produce drunkenness.

The Soper ruling may go in Maryland but the people of Texas should beware. Texas has a Dean law. The courts have held that the Texas and Federal prohibition run parallel and do not conflict.

Home manufacture of wine and cider containing over 1-2 of 1 per cent alcohol is punishable upon conviction with from 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary. This is the Dean law punishment. It has a double row of shark's teeth.

What Today Means to You

SAGITTARIUS.

A lot of high tension vibrations manifest themselves today and if one persistently maintains poise and acts with deliberation these aspects will prove helpful for new ideas and encourage skill in the execution of mechanical and business pursuits. These conditions prevail until the early part of the evening. Thereafter, they become unsettled and doubtful, with a tendency to impulse in action and speech—and a disposition to quarrel, or to nag. Light recreative amusements, or reading, will possibly promote that atmosphere which it is desirable to maintain and all contentious subjects liable to produce argument and engender difference should be eschewed.

A child born today, although it will experience the usual ailments of infancy, will successfully combat these, and attain exceptional physical strength and prowess. It will be magnanimous, open hearted, robust and jovial. Its friends will always know where it stands, and whilst sometimes brusque in speech, it will never do or say intentionally anything unkind. It will possess a marked amount of sentiment and be excessively loyal to kith and kin. It will be demonstrative and affectionate, and will receive constant love in return.

If today is your birthday, you are original and aggressive, and have the ability to lead, whether it be in society or business. Your aggressiveness is not disagreeable and those who follow you do not resent your leadership; on the contrary, they appreciate it, and are happy in giving you their loyalty and devotion.

You are humorous and affable, an omnivorous reader, a careful student, and lucid thinker. You have a pretty wit, and a very keen sense of humor, and often tell unpleasant truths without creating a sore or leaving a sting. Your studies, like your reading, cover a wide range of subjects, with the result that your general information is great, whilst your information on any one subject is limited. You generalize, but do not specialize.

You love to excel, and put the same vigor into a game that you put into your most serious undertaking. You are an exponent of the creed that if anything is worth doing at all, it is worth doing as well as you know how.

More Truth Than Poetry

CONSOLATION.

Though books we'll have in plenty,
As time moves on his flight,
They'll all be mild as Henty,
And tame as Harold Wright.
But still we'll be contented;
Some books are bright and gay,
For censors weren't invented
In Mr. Shakespeare's day.

Thought folks from North Dakoty
May read with moral pain,
The deeds of Don Quixote
Upon the fields of Spain,
Like wine they still are ageing
And over them we'll gloat,
For censors were not heard of
When Mig Cervantes wrote.

Cellini's glowing story
Is still upon our shelf,
To tell of deeds of glory
Accompanied by himself.
His pages would be fizzy
And never hold a thrill,
If censors had been busy
When he took up the quill.

And still for mental fuel,
When winter winds blow drear,
We'll follow Pantagruel
Throughout his gay career.
We will not miss a word of
That narrative sublime,
For censors were not heard of
In good old Francois' time.

PROHIBITION.

"Over 65,000 bootleggers and moonshiners arrested by federal agents last year can testify that prohibition is being enforced," said Federal Prohibition Commissioner R. A. Haynes, speaking the other day at Dayton, Ohio.

He added that this number did not include the many thousands of arrests made by state, county and other local officials.

In the course of his address Mr. Haynes went on to say that prohibition had not been a drain on the public purse; that it cost last year some $8,350,000, while the fines were more than $7,000,000 to which should be added about $1,000,000 paid by brewers into the treasury in compromise suits.

It seems that the bootlegger is paying his own fare to prison. We have it also, on the authority of Mr. Haynes, that there is less drinking now than before prohibition. Certain groups may be drinking more but they are small in comparison to the total.

To be noted, in the good order obtained at all large gatherings during the last year and the fact that our streets are practically free from drunks. There is so much loose talking and loose writing upon the subject that unthinking people immediately conclude that prohibition is responsible for all the ills of the country.

On the contrary, there is practically no open and above-board drinking anywhere and what drinking is done is so guarded that disguised agents are required to secure evidence that will convict them.

Home manufacture of liquor has been practically eliminated, and with the augmentation of the coast guard, the smuggling problem will soon be solved.

This is a good antidote for those who claim that prohibition cannot be enforced and that the sentiment of the country is against it. The country is more in favor of prohibition than ever and the constitutional amendment has come to stay. There will be a good deal of objection raised by those who are fond of their liquor, and others who are in favor of them, but these cannot overcome the overwhelming majority of the United States against the liquor traffic. Much opposition is expected in combatting a custom that for centuries had a hold upon the minds of the people. It still remains that the prohibition amendment was the greatest moral gesture ever taken by a free people.

STOUT WOMEN—TAKE NOTE.

The only way to inspire a fat woman to reduce is to make slimness so attractive to her that she will go through the agony of diet, exercise and training to regain her girlish figure.

I'm not going to say a word about what I think when a woman has let herself grow unattractive by losing her shape, because I do not want to hurt anyone's feelings.

I will quote here what two great poets thought about the beauty of women, and I will say this much—that most men are of the same turn of mind, and that all the Johns and Henrys we know worship beauty in the same manner.

"Down the long street she passed, with her chaplet of beads and her missal, Wearing her Norman cap, and her kirtle of blue, and the ear-rings
Brought in the olden time from France, and since, as an heirloom, Handed down from her mother to child, through long generations.
But a celestial bright—a more ethereal beauty
Shown on her face and encircled her form, when, after confession,
Homeward serenely she walked with God's benediction upon her.
When she had passed, it seemed like the ceasing of exquisite music."

THE BEGGAR MAID
By Tennyson.

Her arms across her breast she laid;
She was more fair than words can say.
Bare-footed came the beggar maid
Before the King Cophetua
In robe and crown the king stept down,
To meet and greet her on her way;
"It is no wonder," said the lords,
"She is more beautiful than day."

As shines the moon in clouded skies,
She in her poor attire was seen;
One praised her ankles, one her eyes,
One her dark hair and lovesome mien.
So sweet a face, such angel grace,
In all that land had never been;
Cophetua swore a royal oath:
"This beggar maid shall be my queen!"

SMOULDERING FIRES

BY LAIN C LANE

CHAPTER XIII.

Let four women be thrown together in one dwelling, no matter how large, and placed in intimate daily contact, and it is inevitable that ill feelings will develop between two or more of them. The feeling may not be apparent; it may even be unsuspected; but it will be there. It will smoulder until some spark of jealousy, some drop of phosphorescent human frailty, sets it aflame.

Grace Kingston, Mabel Smith, Margie Stone and Stella Hanson, partners in adventure, shared beds and meagre meals, but remained comparative strangers.

Mabel, the oldest and the most sophisticated, took upon herself the responsibility of ruling the apartment, and expected homage and deference. Margie and Stella, younger than Grace, yielded with good natured indifference to her bullying, but Grace rebelled with cold resolution. This accounts for the feelings expressed by Mabel in a little scene which took place late one afternoon, a scene that had an enormous but undisputed influence on Grace's life.

Mabel was lolling about in a kimono, manicuring her nails. Margie was washing a pair of silk stockings in the bathroom and humming an aggravating tune reminiscent of a current song success. Stella was reading and gnawing at an apple.

"I'll tell you what let's do," Stella exclaimed, suddenly slamming her book down. "Let's give a party up here. I know some perfectly swell fellows to invite."

"When?" asked Mabel, with sufficient enthusiasm to indicate her approval.

"Oh, some night next week." Stella's spirits arose. "We can decorate the place and make it a real live party." She whirled in her chair and called into the bathroom: "What do you think, Margie?"

Margie appeared at the door clad only in shoes and stockings and lavender step-in, a dripping stocking in her hand: "Think about what?"

Stella repeated the details of her plan. Margie evidenced her approval. "I know a girl we can invite who will bring a portable victrola. We can pile up the chairs and junk and dance."

Mabel let be known what she considered necessary to the success of the party: "I can get a fellow who can mix the best cocktails you ever tasted."

"How many shall we invite?" asked Margie, walking to the door to throw her wet stocking into the bathtub and then returning to sit perilously on the arm of a chair.

Stella replied: "Let's see. There'll be you and your fellow, and Mabel and hers, and the girl with the victrola and her fellow, and Betty and hers—"

"How do you know she'll join in?" Mabel interrupted.

"Why of course she will," Margie answered.

Mabel poised her nail-file. "I don't know. She is getting awfully uppish lately. Getting too good for us since she played that one little old scene with Courtleigh Curtis."

Margie and Stella glanced at each other. Alice said: "Well, of course we'll have to ask her. I think she will." Alice liked Grace.

Mabel shrugged. She decided that Stella Hanson was a little fool.

"Do as you like," she said belligerently.

The sound of a key in the doorlock warned them that Grace was about to enter. Stella and Margie wondered what Mabel would say now.

POEMS THAT LIVE

SNOWY EVENING.

Whose woods these are I think I know.
His house is in the village though;
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.

The little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near,
Between the woods and frozen lake,
The darkest evening of the year.

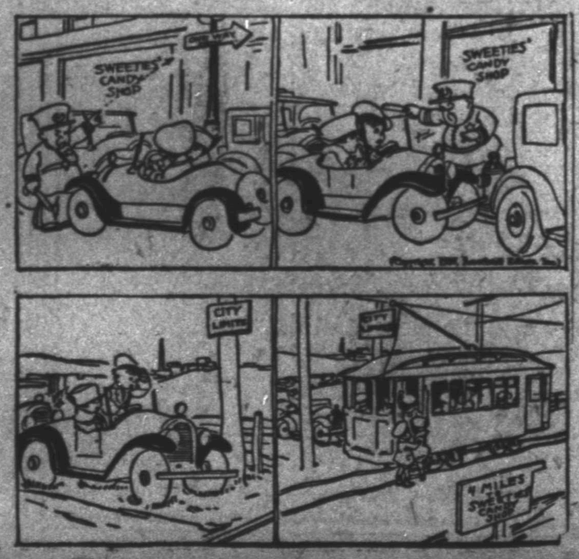

He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound's the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely, dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep

WHAT TEXAS EDITORS SAY

We hear a great deal of the kangaroo court that is being carried on and to us it sounds like ku klux doctrine. We were talking with a man the other day who had been confined in the jail for a few days and if what he said was true the kangaroo court has nothing on the ku klux. When a person is thrown in jail six members of the court call court and if he has six dollars to divvy up nothing is done, but if he is short of the necessary amount a large strap is applied to his body. The number of licks are governed by his behavior while the licking is being administered. Once in a while some big stiff is thrown in who does not appreciate said treatment and the court waives action. It is said that the money taken from new comers is used in buying extra food and other little articles for the convenience of the inmates. Just who started kangaroo court in jail houses is unknown, but we might say here that if some of the arresting officers were treated to harsh treatment administered to some of the prisoners it would soon be eliminated. Many a man is thrown in jail who is innocent of the charge perferred against him and is treated to kangaroo court and other out of place things until he becomes a hardened criminal. Jail is a place for prisoners and it is bad enough to be lodged therein without subjecting themselves to something that tends to harden their minds and make of them worse characters than if they were at liberty.—Wichita County Promoter, Iowa Park.

The republicans now have an opportunity to strengthen their party organization in Texas. The vote received by Dr. Butte is the most impressive ever accorded a republican nominee in this state. He and his supporters have ample justification for a feeling of pride, although much of their support was of a negative character in that it was anti-Ferguson rather than pro-Butte.—Vernon Record.

Having made their mark on their ballots many citizens should make one on checks paying off their overdue bills.—Burkburnett Star.

How Can He Break Away From the Girl Whose Love He Does Not Return?—The Unappreciative Husband Who Could Make His Wife Happy With a Few Words. Is It Possible to Reform a Flapper?

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man, twenty-three years of age, and with a personality like William Jennings Bryan's. I have been keeping company with a young lady for about three years, and all this time she has been proposing marriage to me. As a matter of fact, I am not in love with her as much as she thinks I am. Please tell me how I can break away from such a friendship without causing bitter enmity.

HERBERT.

Answer.

I do not understand how a young man with the personality of William Jennings Bryan can be so wavering in his desires, for the outstanding characteristic of the silver-tongued orator is the faithfulness with which he has stuck to a single ambition and desire.

However, I presume that you mean that you look as Mr. Bryan looked thirty years ago, that you are magnetic, and have a glib and persuasive tongue.

But, alas, Herbert, these are all characteristics that get you in bad with women, instead of getting you out easily, and it is no light task to extricate yourself from the love toils in which you have involved yourself.

Of course, the quickest way and the most effective way is to gather your courage together and tell the girl that you do not love her, and that you are not for her. Very likely it will let you in for a bad quarter of an hour of tears and reproaches. But when you have a bitter dose to take, the sooner you gulp it down the sooner the agony is over.

If you haven't the nerve to do this, the next best thing is to go away, and let absence do its perfect work. Just fade away to some place where no telephone connects with your dungeon cell. Don't answer any letters, and sooner or later it will dawn on the forsaken maiden that you are gone for good.

In the old pre-Volstead days men used to use the Demon Rum as an ally in breaking off love affairs of which they were weary. They would appear disgustingly drunk before the lady and thus try to disillusion her. But this move was unreliable because it so often convinced the girl that she had a sacred mission to marry the poor sinner to reform him.

Other men make poverty their excuse for their getaway, and nobly refuse to marry a girl to whom they cannot give limousines. Others hide behind mother's skirts, and swear they promised never to wed while mother lived. Others just dilly-dally along until they wear the girl's patience out, and still others fall back upon the time-honored custom of our ancestors who simply kissed and rode away.

You can take your choice of methods, and may God have mercy upon your soul if the girl means business.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—From your experience, do young girls of the flapper type know of their faults? Is my procedure in attempting to induce one to take a more serious view of life likely to be satisfactory?

SAMUEL.

Answer.

My observation of the flapper, Samuel, convinces me that she considers herself utterly and entirely perfect, the noblest work of God, and the dressmaker and the barber, and that she considers that every one who disagrees with her is an antiquated ass, whose views are a matter of derision. I wish you joy in your effort to reform a pleasure-mad flapper, but I am not sanguine of your success.

Woodrow Wilson and Mary Peck

Evolution of the Single Track Mind. At Princeton and at Bryn Mawr the "first class mind" found ample employment in writing books and essays on jurisprudence and governmental problems—Burke, Gladstone, Pitt, Bagehot, Birrell were his heroes—and as he read and wrote of them visions of Woodrow Wilson as a man of destiny emerged. In all his political heroes he found something of himself. Once he wrote of Gladstone, "He must have been a sober, thoughtful boy, full of spirit without being boisterous; eager and impetuous without being imperious—straightforward in everything, even his hatreds, half-souled in nothing, not even his faults," a description that might well have fitted his own career. Again the author of the biography finds "a strange prescience" in one of Wilson's collegiate orations about William Pitt, earl of Chatham: "Under the deepening shadow of a gathering storm we obtain a last glimpse of Chatham, as he stands, himself a wreck, holding up before a blind ministry a picture of the dark ruin which was awaiting them. With some of his old haughtiness the austere old man rises to answer and who dared to reply to him, and falls, never to rise again."

He was prone, says Mr. White, to visualize himself as a center of such dramatic scenes of parliamentary history—the desperate struggles of a "forward looking" man with inimical forces around him. As one Princeton friend said of him, "Tommy seemed to have an uncanny sense that he was a man of destiny. I feel that he was always looking forward to the time when he might be called to high service. When he walked alone, it was, as he explained, to have an opportunity for calm reflection." And it was out of these "calm reflections," in the solitude of an intellect he deemed self-sufficient, that the Woodrow Wilson of "the single track mind" was evolved, a designation he was proud of throughout his career. In all his early writing work—his essays on government and his lives of great men—Mr. White finds a Narcissus complex. They represent the "single track mind" in search of itself as a director of men and events. They were all mirrors in which Woodrow Wilson visualized himself.

Mary Peck, Intellectual Affinity

With the women who entered into and influenced the life of Woodrow Wilson the biographer deals with a broad sympathy and a gentle understanding. "Wilson," he tell us, "was a tremendously uxorious man. He needed a woman around." There were three women who entered deeply into the currents of his life—two of them he married and the third became a center of sinister mystery. She appears in these pages an intellectual affinity, abeolved of all the scandal which whispering tongues once webbed around her—the confidante of a man who was unable to find a lasting confidant among his own sex.

His first wife was Ellen Axson, a Presbyterian preacher's daughter, refined, conventional, an artist in a small way and a home body. "The love affair," we are told, "was destined to be the greatest episode that ever came into the life of Woodrow Wilson. From it came 29 years of happiness, three splendid daughters, and the cheerful, wholesome background of a useful life." When she died Wilson said of her: "She was the most radiant creature I have ever known. Something like an aura of light always surrounded her." Then, a few hours after her death, he wrote to Mary Hulbert Peck—the intellectual affinity—"I want you to be the first to know from me of Ellen's passing." Ellen Axson died August 6, 1914. Mr. Wilson married Edith Bolling Galt December 18, 1915. And again Woodrow Wilson said to his friend, Mary Hulbert Peck, "I want you to be the first to know of my great happiness." In Mrs. Galt, says our biographer, "Woodrow Wilson found devotion, high spirits, an infinite capacity of sprightliness, play, joy and lightness of contact, together with an untiring, beautiful, self-merging common sense that sustained him for nine years." It is significant that after Ellen Axson's death there were no more letters from Mary Hibert. No one knew why. The romance of the "third woman" was dissipated. Let Mr. White, for the first time, tell the story of its romantic beginnings and its curious phases:

No Scandal in Relations With Mrs Peck

"No man ever had a more faithfully than Woodrow Wilson had in Ellen Axson, his wife. It was in 1907 that she packed him up and sent him for a rest in a journey to Bermuda, after a hard campaign in which blows fell and he gave blows, from which he came out worn and weary. . . There, on the veranda of the big hotel, he saw another kind of lady-bug; many brilliant-hued, bright-faced, care-free lady bugs. . . . And at the end of a few days he found himself walking, talking, expanding his soul and expounding his philosophy with one of them and, as it were, minusting through the high and lovely galleries of the lady's mind. The lady's name was Mrs. Mary Hulbert Peck, the wife of Thomas B. Peck of Pittsfield, Mass., a wealthy American business man.

Uncommon Sense

UNCOMMON SENSE.
By JOHN BLAKE
"Every Task Is A Test."

The too common idea that opportunity disappeared with the extension of business and the forming of great combinations, is upset so often that it would seem hardly to need disproof.

Yet you hear it everywhere.

All failures use it to account for their lack of "luck."

And many earnest young men become discouraged at the outset of their careers, because there seems such a gulf between them and the high places in life.

To all these Otto H. Kahn, one of the most successful of financiers, gave some excellent advise at the Harvard club the other day.

Mr. Kahn began as a poor boy, with no other equipment than that of intelligence.

He succeeded because he never lost sight of the following rules which he laid down for himself, and which he now lays down for others:

"Remember that the most serviceable of all assets is reputation.

"Think! Exercise the springs of your brain.

"Go for a ride on the horse of your imagination from time to time.

"Be ready, be fully prepared, but be patient.

"Be neighborly.

"Be a good sport.

"Work hard, don't spare yourself, but don't become a machine.

"Meet your fellow men with confidence.

"Take an interest and due share in public affairs.

"Avoid ostentation."

In addition to following these rules, Mr. Kahn has made it his business to make every task a test, putting into it all the intelligence and all the energy he had in him.

It would be foolish and harmful to tell any boy, no matter what his leanings may be, that following these rules, or any set of rules, would make him a many-times millionaire.

But there are many situations in life which are as desirable or more desirable than that of the millionaire.

And while the highest places are not open to the dull and stupid they are open to many thousands of people who never try to attain them.

Mr. Kahn's remarks are addressed to those who waste good brain power by idling and dreaming when they ought to be alert and energetic.

If he were heeded by everyone who heard him, a great many careers which now have no promise at all would become highly useful to the world and incidentally to the people most intimately concerned in them.

One can attain independence if he works for it and keeps his health.

And by trying constantly, making every task a test, he certainly can go a far greater distance than if he sits about bewailing his lack of opportunity, and crying out that business has grown so big that only those who begin on the inside can ever get anywhere in it.

In the slang phrase, Mr. Kahn "crashed the business gate." And thousands of other earnest young men are doing the same thing all the time.

HOW IT STARTED

"IT DIDN'T PAN OUT"

This expression we hear daily to express disappointment or failure of any venture that did not justify one's hopes as to how it would turn out; and it was in an atmosphere of failure, many failures, interspersed with an occasional magnificent and unbounded success, that the phrase had its origin.

"It didn't pan out."

It is a product of mining regions and its popular use in our language today dates from the gold rush of '49. In those days it was the lucky man who struck "pan dirt," but, as one on the scene is known to have said, "For every one that panned a dollar, a hundred went broke." The latter were the ones for whom "It didn't pan out!"

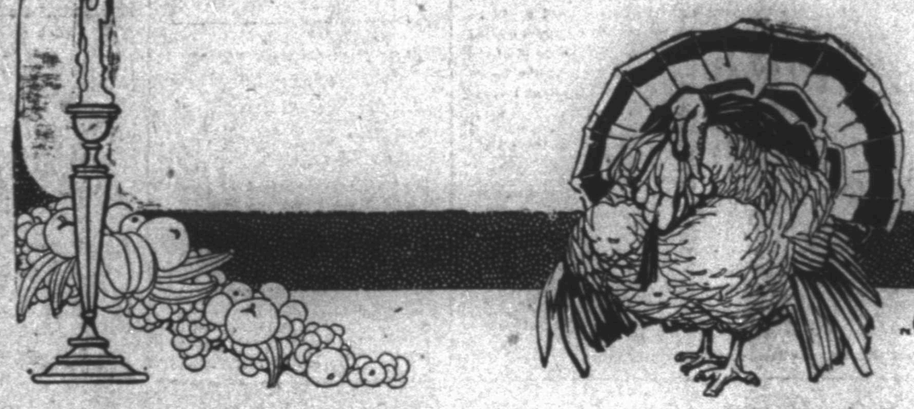

To-morrow: "The Overskirt."

HELP FOR THE MAN WHO WANTS TO BUILD

BUILDING A SMOKELESS FIREPLACE

By the Architects Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc.

Someone has said that the eighth wonder of the world is a fireplace that doesn't smoke.

It is certain that a smoky fireplace, one that fills your room with ashes and fumes, is both an annoyance and poor investment. Nine times out of 10 faulty construction is the cause.

A fireplace that throws heat into the room and the smoke up the chimney is a joy forever. It is a work of art.

Fireplace Throat That Won't Choke

Nothing more directly affects the success of your fireplace than the throat, both as to its size and direction.

If what follows about fireplace throats is somewhat technical, it is only because we want to give you accurate directions, which, if followed, should insure a fireplace that will give you the thing you want—heat in your room and not smoke.

First, let us consider the oblique surface, which we call the roof of the fireplace. This ought to carry up high enough so that the smoke can be thrown against the front arch of the fireplace. If the finish of the fireplace roof comes down to a lower level, the smoke quite certainly will be thrown out underneath the front arch, and some of it may find its way into the room.

The space between this roof of the fireplace and the front arch must be wide enough to let all the smoke out and narrow enough to hold some of the heat in. What is the proper dimension? Happily, we have a rule to guide us here.

Dimensions for Fireplace Throat

There must be at least sufficient horizontal area in this restricted place, called the throat, to equal one-tenth the area in the front of the fireplace. Thus, if the fireplace is three feet high and four feet wide, you have 12 square feet. One-tenth of 12 square feet is 1.2 square feet, or 173 square inches. If the throat is made as wide as the fireplace, as it should be, and the fireplace is four feet wide—that is, 48 inches—you must have a little over 3½ inches for the depth of the throat to get the required 173 inches of area. Let us say again that this is the minimum. Four inches of depth would be better.

A fireplace throat works best when the fire is hot. There is not so much smoke. Then you will not need so much area in the throat. On the other hand, at the beginning of the fire, when there is a large amount of smoke and very little heat, perhaps the throat is not large enough.

More heat and less smoke at one time and more smoke and less heat at another time—just exactly the combinations that do not go for the best operations of a fireplace.

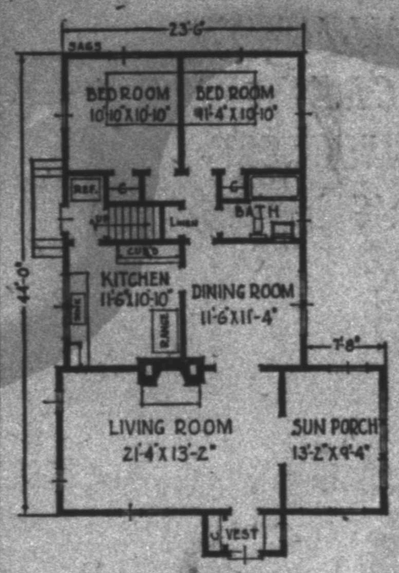

Engineers have studied this problem and have devised a mechanically operated throat made of metal that can be opened more or less depending on the condition of the fire. The principle is to have a damper in this throat that can be operated from the hearth or front of the fireplace and that can be adjusted to the conditions of the fire from time to time as may be necessary.

The second of three articles on "How to Build a Fireplace That Won't Smoke."

FIVE ROOM BUNGALOW—40 FOOT LOT

Copyright, 1923—Architects' Small House Service Bureau. Plan No. 5A65.

THIS plan should appeal to homebuilders who demand the bungalow type of house at the lowest cost consistent with good construction. It has been designed to build inexpensively, as bungalows go. It can be placed on a 40 foot lot, although a wider frontage would be desirable, of course.

Sun Porch Adds Space to Living Room

There are five rooms, bath and sun porch, and plenty of closet space. If desired the sun porch can be made a part of the living room, and not separated from it by doors, or a plaster arch can be substituted for the partitions.

A fireplace occupies the inner wall of the living room in such a manner that the chimney stack may be had without additional expense to serve a coal burning kitchen range.

Study of this plan will reveal many conveniences and economies, not only in housekeeping, but in construction. It is a frame house with exterior finish of wide siding, though shingles or stucco might be substituted. Even though this house is designed to minimize costs, it does not lack in attractiveness and architectural distinction.

The Cost to Build This Bungalow

The cost to build this house, including heating, plumbing, lighting, painting, ready to live in, but not including wall decorations, should range between $6,500 and 7,500. In certain localities where costs are high, the highest figure quoted would be too low. In other localities, the lowest figure quoted would be more than sufficient. The range of $1,000 is given to cover differences in the way the house is built, how thoroughly it is equipped and completed and in what district it is erected.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The plans for small homes are furnished by the Regional Bureaus of the Architects' Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., an organization made up of the representative practicing architects from leading architectural offices throughout the United States. This bureau is controlled by the American Institute of Architects, and has the endorsement of the Department of Commerce, United States government. It is practically a non-profit making public service, and has as its purpose the furnishing of a very complete and dependable small house plan service at modest cost. For information regarding the blue prints and specifications, address the Home Building Editor of this paper. The United States bureau maintains an information department to answer home builders' questions at no charge. Enclose stamped addressed envelope.

WHAT YOU MAY WANT TO KNOW ABOUT BUILDING

Questions addressed to the paper will be answered by the Architect's Small House Service Bureau of the United States, Inc., controlled by the American Institute of Architects and endorsed by the department of commerce, United States government. Inclose selfaddressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Q—We have determined to insulate the outside walls of our new home. Someone has told us that a double course of sheathing paper or oldfashioned "back plaster" on the inside of the sheathing is cheaper and better than the special insulating materials that are advised. What is your opinion?

A—Double sheathing paper or back plastering as insulation is inferior to the standard insulating materials.

Q—After a heavy rainstorm we get water in the cellar. The three leaders from the house empty into a dry well five feet from the house, and the wall nearest the dry well is always the first place to get wet. What shall we do?

A—Run the leaders in a tight jointed drain to a new dry well located as far from the house as your lot will permit. Get at least 50 feet away.

Q—Are there different grades of stucco cement for home building? If so please state how each grade is designated.

A—There is only one grade of cement stucco we know of that is worth putting on a building, and that is the first grade. We recommend that you have your plasterer follow exactly the specifications prepared by the Portland Cement association.

Q—The man who loaned us money on a first mortgage on our home made us take out fire insurance payable to him as his "interests may appear." What does this mean?

A—It means that in case of damage to your house by fire the man who loaned you the money will be protected to the extent of the amount still owing him on the mortgage.

LONDON SOCIETY REVIVES AS LABOR CABINET RETIRES

London official society, somewhat repressed during the regime of the labor cabinet, is blossoming out again, now that the conservatives are back in power. Some of the ladies of the cabinet who are prominent in the social revival are: Above (left to right), Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the minister of the exchequer; Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the premier; the American-born Marchioness of Curzon, wife of the secretary of the council. Below, Lady Worthington-Evans (left) whose husband is war minister, and Mrs. Austen Chamberlain, wife of foreign affairs minister.

A number of organizations have withdrawn their support from national education week and are criticizing John J. Tigert (above), U. S. commissioner of education, because he permitted political propaganda to get into the program prepared for the week by his bureau. The Young Women's Christian association with a membership of 600,000 was one of the first to withdraw its aid, which has been given to the week in previous years.

CHICAGO, Nov. 4.—Mathilde McCormick married a man old enough to be her father, will her mother go to the other extreme and marry a man young enough to be her son?

Talk of a wedding with Mrs. McCormick, who is the daughter of John D. Rockefeller, and her protege, Edward Krenn, has been revived now that Krenn has risen to the millionaire class.

Aided by Mrs. McCormick's millions and prestige, Krenn has amassed a fortune in the real estate business in Chicago within a short time. He is a member of the firm of Krenn and Dato, which advertises itself extensively as manager of "the Mrs. Rockefeller-McCormick properties."

Mrs. McCormick is the divorced wife of Harold McCormick, "harvester king," now the husband of Ganna Walska, struggling songbird. She brought young Krenn, a landscape architect, to this country a few years ago to work on the McCormick estate. Since then there have been recurrent rumors of an impending marriage.

Mayor Clayton C. Townes of Cleveland, is head of an organization of Ohio mayors formed to fight for legislation wanted by municipalities. The organization will attempt to break the control of the legislature held by rdral representatives.

Miss Willie Trammel is suing the city of Rock Hill, S. C., for $70,000 damages because she was threatened with arrest for wearing a knickersuit in the streets. Miss Trammel, 22, is proprietor of a store in Ogden, a village near Rock Hill.

Cleveland has joined the list of cities with women's police bureaus. The director of its newly organized department, which will have a force of 20 when complete, is Miss Dorothy Jean Henry, prominent welfare worker.

The most popular man in France is M. Fontaine, founder of the Green Ribbon League, an organization having for its purpose the bringing together of eligible bachelors and hopeful spinsters. Burk-Divide and Texas Red River Claimants Clash December 10

Final Fracas Of Rival Factions Set For That Date

Nation's Legal Talent Will Finish Fight That Started With Gunmen

AT WASHINGTON

Government Has $3,000,000 To Hand Favored Parties

December 10 has been set by the Secretary of Interior, Hubert Work, for the hearing of arguments on applications of the principal placer mining law claimants, Texas permittee claimants and others for the award of valuable oil producing areas lieing in the Red River bed north of Wichita Falls and until recently in the hands of a federal receiver, Frederic A. Delano.

Five Groups.

At that time four other groups of claims will have already been disposed of, none of which, however, are regarded with as much interest and have as much importance attached to them as the fifth group, claims in which comprise practically all of the producing wells in the valley.

It is in this group that the Burke Divide claim will be heard, which, because of its conflict with certain Texas claims and the bitter fight which has been waged between the various contestants for the most valuable of the Red River properties, holds more than ordinary interest for Wichita Falls operators. The government holds about $3,000,000 in cash to be distributed to the parties to whom awards are made in this group.

Land Office Say-So.

It will be remembered that much to the disappointment of Texas claimants last summer when the land office recommendations were made to the secretary of interior for making awards the Burke Divide company was favored in every instance.

These recommendations occassioned much bitterness among Texas claimants, who could not see any title for the placer claimants when the basis for that title had been rejected by the supreme court of the United States. At the time the land office warned the parties favored by their recommendations not to become unduly elated over their find, that an oral hearing before Secretary Work was probable, and that in case of such, there would be little dependence on the recommendations in assisting adjudication.

The date for the oral hearings were finally set by Secretary Work, this, in the instance of this particular group of claims, being December 10.

Prominent Attorneys.

The Burke Divide company, it is understood have employed, among others to represent them at this hearing former Senator T. P. Gore, John A. Fain of Oklahoma, former special assistant attorney general, W. E. Peters, and others.

Among Wichita Falls attorneys who are expected to be present at the hearing are Judge A. H. Carrigan, Geo. Smoot, Walter Nelson, and others.

Major W. W. Dyer, who assisted Fain on behalf of the government in the investigation that led to the United States supreme court declaring the south bank of Red River the Oklahoma boundary, will present the argument of the attorney general against the secretary delivering the lands to the claimants at all, argueing that they belong to the United States and that all development was in the nature of a trespass.

Sell 60,000 Bbls. So. Archer Crude At $1.50 a Barrel

A general betterment in the crude oil spot market in the past thirty days is one of the most encouraging factors in the present situation to oil producers of this territory. Despite the fact that posted prices have thus far failed to take a higher level certain large quantities of crude oil are known to have been sold from this district for as high as twenty-five cents above posted price.

A sale of early this week was reported yesterday, 60,000 barrels of south Archer product to a northern refiner for $1.50, with numerous offers being made for similar lots at $1.45.

TULSA, Nov. 24—(Special)—Indicating an increased popularity of mid-continent crude oil in the general petroleum market, the Prairie Pipe Line company reports an increase in shipments during October. During that month it shipped 3,239,588 barrels, a gain of 215,264 over September, when shipments were smallest since September, 1923, and an increase of 738,717 over October, 1923. The daily average shipments during October totaled 104,503 barrels against 100,811 in September, and 80,673 in October, 1923. Shipments in the first ten months of 1924 were 35,294,454 barrels, against 42,845,732 in the same period of 1923.

The Sinclair Co. was inadvertently mentioned as a defendant when news of the action became public on November 24.

Other defendants are George L. "Tex" Rickard, Archibald Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt, W. Forbes Morgan and one Smith, whose first name is unknown to the plaintiff.

The Sinclair Co. appears in the papers only as the corporation with which Blanco-Fombona originally began negotiations and which advised him to 'take up negotiations with responsible parties by cabling Kermit."

Last reports indicated a lower producing strata in this well covered by 90 feet of cavings; yesterday's information does not say whether this trouble has been removed or not.

The Clark-Harbin-Baldridge test in section 37, Coombs and Worley fee, is reported drilling past 2,200 feet.

JUDGE DENIES ALL CHARGES.

On Trial for Immoral Conduct William E. Baker Says Allegations False.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 26.—Denial of every charge of immoral conduct brought against him by District Attorney T. A. Brown was made by Judge William E. Baker of the United States court for the northern district of West Virginia at his hearing today before the sub-committee of the judiciary committee of the house of representatives. Practically during the entire session, Judge Baker was on the stand.

Relative to the alleged falsifying of the records of his court, in order to bring a sentence imposed by him within the law, Judge Baker swore that whatever changes were made in the affidavit against Mike Sawia, in the Wheeling court, were made by an assistant district attorney in open court before a plea of guilty was entered.

While admitting that he was not adverse to cock tails, the accused jurist declared he had kept a vow not to touch a drop as long as he held a judgeship.

Yeats Letter To Georgia's Father Figure in Trial

Most Of Yesterday's Session Devoted To Arguments

NOWATA, Okla., Nov. 26.—Argument over the admission of a letter said to have been written by Joseph E. Yeats, former minister at Alluwee, to Albert W. Fields, father of Georgia Fields, 15-year-old girl whom Yeats is charged with abducting, occupied most of the session of Yeats' trial in district court here today. A jury was obtained late yesterday.

The county attorney declared it "irrelevant," while defense attorneys indicated the letter threw a strong light on the motive of Yeats in eloping with the girl who had been a member of his choir at Alluwee.

Before the hearing settled down to a legal argument Fields testified that Yeats had taught Miss Fields to play the violin and that the lessons had thrown the two much together.

NOWATA, Okla., Nov. 26.—(INS)—A letter that Georgia Fields, pretty 14 year old daughter of A. W. Fields of Alluwe is alleged to have written to her parents when she eloped September 22 with Joseph Yeats, the fallen shepherd of Alluwe and deposed pastor of the Southern Methodist church here, furnished a vigorous contest at Yeats' trial this morning. The jury to try Yeats charged with abducting and then marrying the girl, was completed last night and the introduction of testimony began before Judge Charles H. Baskin this morning.

Say Girl the Author.

That the girl was the author of a letter upon which the defense of Yeats places much importance, was developed during the examination of the girl's father. He testified that on the night his daughter disappeared Ralph Magnus, an Alluwe school boy, brought him an envelope containing two letters. One of the letters was addressed to Fields and his family, the witness said. It was written by the minister who is alleged to have stated he was running away with Fields' daughter and that they were en route to Muskogee to be wed.

The other letter, according to the witness, bore a notation that Fields should read it alone. The presence of this letter had never been announced before. It is said to have been written by the Fields girl and judging from the character of the questions the defense asked Fields it was a "confession" the exact character of which has not been announced.

In Spectacular Plea.

E. J. Giddings of Oklahoma City, counsel for the former pastor, made a spectacular plea to compel County Attorney Angelin to produce the letter in court and to surrender it to the defense. The court overruled the motion, temporarily at least. Angelin admitted that he had the letter in his possession. It is hinted that the defense obtained a copy of it sometime ago. It is also said that in the event the prosecution does not produce the letter the defense will attempt to introduce its alleged copy of the missive and spring a distinct surprise.

Following the examination of Fields, the latter's wife testified, corroborating her husband's testimony. The Magnus boy testified Yeats employed him to deliver the letters to the Fields home, paying him $1 for performing the errand.

BERKELEY, Cal.—When Rudolph Banning, wealthy San Francisco and Honolulu resident, died a year ago he left one-quarter of his $1,000,000 estate to his niece, Miss Ida Eleanore Weaver, University of California student, it was learned here today.

CANBY, Oregon.—The school board of Canby will meet this week to decide what to do about Rosamund Lee Shaw, 27-year-old high school teacher, who on November 10 married Clifford LeRoy Samuelson, 17, student in the high school and known as "the best boy in his class." The marriage at Vancouver, Wash., was kept secret until yesterday.

Margaret Anglin's Coming Dec. 3rd An Event of Events in the Theatre World Seldom Equaled in Wichita

MARGARET ANGLIN.

Co-starring with William Faversham in "Footloose" at the Palace Theatre December 3, matinee and night.

No theatrical event of the present season holds greater promise than the joint appearance at the Palace theatre, December 3, of Margaret Anglin and William Faversham in Zoe Akin's drama, "Foot-Loose."

These two celebrated players have this season been brought together by George C. Tyler who, in the past, has sponsored many of the most brilliant "all-star" acting combinations that have ever appeared on tour. Mr. Tyler brought together the late Kyrle Bellew and Eleanor Robson in a brilliant revival of "Romeo and Juliet" he produced Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" with William H. Crane and Ellis Jeffreys; "Oliver Twist," with Nat Goodwin, Marie Doro, Constance Collier and Lynn Harding was another; while this season, in addition to sending Miss Anglin and Mr. Faversham on tour as co-stars, he is commemorating the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the production of Sheridan's immortal comedy, "The Rivals," by sending it to the important cities of the country with an "all-star" cast composed of Mrs. Fiske, Thomas A. Wise, James T. Powers, Chauncey Olcott and Lois Fisher.

It is seldom that the present generation of play-goers has an opportunity to witness such a play as "Foot-Loose," with two such stellar lights as Miss Anglin and Mr. Faversham. The piece is a modern version of "Forget-Me-Not," one of the most famous and successful plays ever produced in this country; and as rewritten by the brilliant Zoe Akin, author of "Declasse" and "The Varying Shore," provides many fine moments for acting. Genevieve Ward and Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson were the first to appear at Stephanie de Mohrivart and Sir Horace Welby its two leading characters, so threatre goers can appreciate the rare treat that awaits them in the performance of two such players as Miss Anglin and Mr. Faversham at the very maturity of their powers.

Hugh Ford has directed the staging of "Foot-Loose," and the famous stars are supported by a distinguished cast of players including Edith Campbell Walker, Gertrude Hitz, Mrs. Edmund Gurney, Paul Porcasi, Stapleton Kent and Charles White.

BALL PLAYER A KILLER

Latimer, Once of the Majors, Slays a Man At Xenia, Ohio, Wednesday

XENIA, Ohio, Nov. 26.—Cliff W. "Tacks" Latimer, former major league baseball player, pleaded not guilty of first degree murder late today when arraigned before a magistrate in connection with the killing of Charles Mackrodt, 52, former lieutenant of Pennsylvania railroad police here. Latimer was held to the grand jury without bond.

The shooting followed months of hard feeling between the two men, precipated when Mackrodt resigned from the railroad police force. Mackrodt is said to have blamed Latimer for the difficulty which caused him to leave the railroad police service. This morning Mackrodt met the former ball player and is said to have started the argument which ended with the fatal shooting.

Latimer in a statement said, "it was one life against another."

"My only regret is for my family," he said, adding that Mackrodt had threatened his life.

McClelland Will at Waco May Have Assured City $80,000 Hospital.

WACO, Texas, Nov. 26.—Out of the tangled web of the Peter McClelland fortune there emerged today the vision of an $80,000 charity hospital for Waco.

On a yellowed paper in the McLennan county clerk's office is a will written by Mrs. Joanna McClelland February 2, 1891, providing that in case her stepson, Peter, died without children, the McClelland homestead and other property shall revert to the city of Waco, "to build, establish and maintain a ward or wards as part of the city hospital of the city of Waco, connected therewith or in a separate place in said city, to be called the 'Joanna McClelland Ward,' for the sole purpose of females entitled or to be entitled under the ordinances of the city of Waco to entry and care therein; requiring only of the city of Waco through its proper officers discretion in the use and application of the bequest in a spirit of charity."

The property covered by the bequest, according to John K. Rose, executor, is worth between $80,000 and $100,000. It reverted to Waco today when McClelland died in Dallas three weeks after gaining possession of the $800,000 estate for which he had waged a legal battle for 38 years.

STOCKS SHOW NEW LIFE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—A spirited rally in steel shares infused fresh strength into a flagging stock market today and prices again shot forward to new high levels. Scores of prominent industrial issues were bid up from one to five points and when adjournment was taken for the Thanksgiving recess, the average price of this group stood at the highest point in several years. Total sales exceeded 2,000,000 shares for the eleventh time since election day.

United States Steel common led the upward swing in steel stocks, which quickly spread to the rest of the market, halting general liquidation which had broken out in the early trading and galvanizing the entire list into renewed activity. The premier industrial issue sold at 119 1-8, the highest price in seven years, before falling back at the close to 118 1-4, where it still maintained a net gain of almost a point.

The enormous demand for the steel shares was based upon a series of favorable developments affecting the industry. E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, predicted that orders soon would exceed capacity if the present rate of buying were maintained; the weekly steel reviews reported a marked expansion in tonnage orders and mill operations and prices of pig iron and finished steel were advanced further.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are selling at the phenomenal rate of more than two million packages a year, and the fact that they are so economically priced is largely responsible for this record. B., on the Maine-New Brunswick border, was taken tonght, under heavy guard, to the York county jail at Fredericton, N. B. The authorities feared that attempts might be made to lynch Williams, who had been threatened by an angry crowd. The girls, his nieces, were found last night with their hands tied behind their backs, shot through the head.

Pro Agents' Transfer Recommended.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Bodily transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury department to the department of justice is among the recommendations adopted by the judicial conference of senior circuit judges, it became known today when Chief Justice Taft, as chairman, addressed a letter to Attorney General Stone, transmitting a request that he embody the proposal in his annual report to congress.

The senior circuit judges, familiar with court conditions and reflecting the opinion of federal district judges, take the position that the transfer should be made at once. Basing their recommendations on abundant experience with prosecutions arising under the prohibition law, the judges, with Chief Justice Taft concurring, declare that such a transfer "would make much for effectiveness in enforcing the law."

Medics Name Dallas as 1925 City.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—The executive committee of the Southern Medical association tonight selected Dallas, Texas, as the next meeting place.

Derelict Rum Chasers Offered And Accept Charity of Their Prey As Fast U.S. Boat Goes Adrift At Sea

Quality Of Mercy Bestowed By Crooks Found To Be Of Highest Type Is Developed In Strange Tale Brought Back By Federal Sleuths.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Rescued by a rum runner after twelve days at sea, three starved and thirsty rum chasers of the treasury department reported here today with a strange tale involving the quality of mercy dispensed by bootleggers.

In the speed boat King Bird II, November 13, Agents James Lynch, William Mangin and Frank Brunner set out from Atlantic City for Boston, where the King Bird II had been assigned to customs marine patrol duty.

Their Last Sandwich.

As the boat swung outward from Long Island to inspect the far flung rum fleet, rain, snow and fog enveloped her. The gasoline ran low; the compass became capricious; the drinking water frone; the food supply dwindled to nothing.

Nine days after leaving Atlantic City the treasury department mariners ate their last sandwich.

At last the desperate crew sighted No Man's Land, an island off Martha's vineyard, and scouting power craft running to and from the shore. One of these speedsters drew near the King Bird. But when she learned that the megaphoned shouts for aid came from government officials, the speedster turned tail and frothed away, leaving behind only derisive catcalls and invitations to "go drown yourself."

Machine Gun Wins.

Another speedster hove in view some hours later. This time the agents didn't announce their calling. Instead they talked about the rum business and when the speedster drew closer, swung a machine gun upon her. "Give us a tow," and "take us ashore" became commands rather than entreaties. Soon the King Bird was bobbing at the end of a line, towards Woods Hole, 55 miles away.

There was food for the marines at the coast guard station that night, and there was sleep. And the next day, which was yesterday, there was a purse for the rum running Samaritan, presented to him, according to the treasury agents, as they departed for New York.

FORTUNE IN BELL COUNTY.

Many Have Searched for Hidden Gold Believer Buried There.

BELTON, Texas. Nov. 23.—(AP) Buried treasure, whether planted by a buccaneer of gold or a bandit of today, has a glamor that will not fade; but the buried treasure of Belton seems to outlive them all.

When Jess Newton a few days ago testified he had buried near San Antonio in glass jars a small fortune alleged to have been taken in a train robbery at Rondout, Ill., several months ago, he excited the imagination to dwell on all the hidden wealth which may lie beneath the soil of Texas. But his story outshone for only a month the mysterious gold that glitters somewhere in the bosom o fthe earth hereabouts.

10 Mules Carried It.

This great treasure, all that 10 mules could carry, is one among many strange and curious accounts related by J. Frank Dobie, secretary of the Texas Folklore society. A pirate's love for a woman and the romance of war are woven into the story.

It seems, according to the tale, that almost all the people in the rural districts of Bell, Falls and Williamson counties must know something of it. The search has extended to many places. Some claim that the treasure is buried at Read's Lake; others at Burgess Lake, but the general opinion, according to this account, is that it must be buried at what is known as Three Forks, the confluence of the Nolan, Lampasas and Leon rivers which form the Little river not far from here.

The legend begins with one Karl Steinheimer, born near Sjeryer, Germany, in 1793. He ran away from home at the age of 11, became a pirate while yet in his 'teens and commanded his own priate craft at 21. In 1817 he broke with his partner, one Aury, over a question of piratical policy, left his rendezvous on Galveston island and journeyed far into the interior of Mexico where he engaged in mining. The years brought great prosperity. In 1838, how it is not explained, he learned that a boyhood sweetheart was in St. Louis and unmarried. He closed up his affairs, loaded his fortune of silver and gold on 10 Mexican jacks and started with two guards in the general direction of the Missouri town.

Hears Santa Anna Defeat.

When Steinheimer got to Matamoras he learned that notwithstanding the defeat of the Mexican general Santa Anna at San Jacinto nearly three years before, Mexico still hoped to repossess Texas. Preliminary to the proposed conquest Manuel Flores, with a few men, was preparing to start from Matamoras in 1839 for Nacogdoches to instigate an Indian uprising. Steinheimer finally joined him in the spring of 1839. At the Colorado river they were dismayed to learn that General Burleson was advancing upon them and that an engagement was but a matter of a few hours. Apparently pursuant to an agreement with Flores, Steinheimer left the command and began a detour several miles north. Flores, history relates, proceeded to a point near Austin where in a battle with Lieut. James O. Rice, he was killed on May 14.

Meanwhile Steinheimer cautiously picked his way across the prairies, avoided all trails and finally came to a place where three streams intersect. Here he decided to bury all of his fortune except one small pack designate the spot was a large brass immediate use. The only mark to age of gold that might be needed for spike driven into an oak tree a few feet away. The spike was of the type used as a bolt in early boat construction.

"Bunch of Knobs."

Steinheimer and his two men then set out in a southeasterly direction. About 14 miles away Steinheimer judged, according to the meager description that has come down to posterity, he came to a "bunch of knobs on the prairie." While they were getting their bearings Indians attacked the three men and Steinheimer's aids were killed. Badly wounded, Steinheimer concealed himself in the center hill where he buried his remaining gold with the exception of six Spanish coins. The spot was not marked. Finally, his assailants failing to locate him, he dragged himself wearily along until he fell in with a party of travelers. Realizing, however, that the was about to die, he made a crude map of the region where he had buried his hoard and wrote to his sweetheart an account of his fortunes and misfortunes. He requested that she keep his message secret for three months and if at the end of that time he had not arrived in St. Louis she was to understand that he was dead and that his fortune was hers. These were the last tidings of Steinheimer.

In the course of time the letter reached its destination, the legend has it, but a number of years passed before conditions in Texas were such that relatives of the lady were able to look for the treasure with any degree of safety.

"Then after months of search," the story concludes, "they were convinced that the three streams referred to were the Nolan Lampasas and the Leon which unite not far from what became the town of Belton to form what is now the Little river. Here must lie the vast fortune. In consequence it is decided that the smaller parcel of gold could not be over two or three miles from the town of Rogers in Bell county, as near it are the knobs, a small bunch of hills lying between the Santa Fe and the Katy railroads at about the charted distance from the three forks."

No evidence exists that any part of Steinheimer's wealth was ever found, despite the great amount of time and money spent in its quest.

The Low Down on This Turkey Stuff

Contrary to general belief, roasted turkey, with giblet gravy and cranberries, has become the standard Thanksgiving piece de resistance in comparatively recent years. Once New England rejected it at the Thanksgiving dinner table.

The story that turkey was the mainstay of the Thanksgiving day dinner of the early colonists of New England seems to have come from the pen of a visiting Englishman at Plymouth, who described his travels in a book published in London just after the great fire.

He also told the absurd story of the starving condition of the Pilgrims and their being reduced at one time to a dinner of three grains of corn. The fact was that none of the early or late colonists could have starved at Plymouth or elsewhere along the north or the south shore, as the sea teemed with fish and shellfish and the woods were alive with game.

What They Preferred.

What the Pilgrims and the Puritans craved for in the early years of he settlements was roast beef and mutton, pork, wheaten, oaten and barley bread, venison pasties made from the red deer stock, native of England; jams and jellies from English fruits preserved with brown sugar from the Orient and English mead, ales and Holland spirits.

Most of them disliked Indian corn in all forms of products for human consumption, and they disliked oysters, clams, lobsters, mussels, scallops, turkeys and native venison. It was only when marriages of the early English settlers and their descendants in New England with Indians brought about many persons of mixed blood that the English prejudices against certain native American food products passed away.

As lately as 50 years ago many families in New England of undoubted descent from the Pilgrims and Puritans regarded roasted or baked turkey as an Indian dish and would have none of it at any time, preferring for Thanksgiving day dinner of roast beef, a saddle of mutton, pork spare ribs, roast goose with apple sauce or farm raised ducks with barberry sauce.

Truly a Dish for Kings.

Turkey certainly is a kingly dish. More than one king has had a liking for it.

When Louis Napoleon was a visitor in this country, he shot wild turkeys in parts of New Jersey. As emperor, Napoleon III. had a system of getting regular supplies of turkeys, wild ducks, celery, cranberries, oysters and preserved peaches from the purveyors to the Stevens family.

King Edward VII., traveling here in 1860 under the name of Baron Renfrow, conceived a liking for roasted turkey with oyster and chestnut dressing and with cranberry sauce. In after years, when he became king, he caused arrangements to be made by his steward whereunder those delicacies were forwarded from New York at regular times.

SHE SPURRED HARDING ON

The Person Behind the President Was His Wife.

WASHINGTON, Nov.—It has fallen to few women to play such a big part in the making of a president and influencing White House policies thereafter as did Florence King Harding, widow of the late President Harding, who died in Marion, Ohio.

Many individuals are given credit for helping elevate the late Warren Harding to the White House, but none of them did as much as Mrs. Harding. It might be said that the "person" behind the late president was Mrs. Harding. Certainly got in the last few decades has one woman exercised as much influence on governmental matters as did she. This was generally known in Washington.

The Harding family relationship was a real partnership. The late president was of the easy going type with capacity and ability, but not bursting with ambition. Mrs. Harding furnished the spur and ambition for the two. She was constantly behind his various political moves, encouraging him and urging him on. The former attorney general, Harry M. Daugherty, who had more to do with managing Harding's political campaign than any other person, always knew that when Harding needed stirring up a word to Mrs. Harding was sufficient.

During the 1920 campaign the senator became discouraged after a defeat in the Indiana primaries and desired to get out of the race. Mrs. Harding insisted he stay in. In fact she, with Daugherty, was primarily responsible for getting him into the race in the first instance.

Friendships that Mrs. Harding made during her several years as a senator's wife in Washington had much to do with his candidacy. To the front porch campaign at Marion Mrs. Harding was acquainted with every move of strategy in the campaign. If she didn't approve she very frankly said so. Her judgment was good. Mrs. Harding always liked politics and made no secret of the fact.

It was no secret in Washington that Mrs. Harding's voice carried much influence in many of the decisions the president had to make. She knew what was going on all the time. Many of the political leaders sought her to talk with her about affairs. The president and she talked over many of the problems together. If Mrs. Harding thought mistakes were being made she would say so and urge the president to adopt a different course.

The widow of the late president unquestionably exercised more direct influence on running the nation than any one woman in recent years, if not in the nation's history.

Facts About Child-birth

IT has been proven conclusively that much of the suffering, pain and dread experienced during expectancy, as well as at child-birth is entirely unnecessary.

An eminent physician, Dr. J. H. Holmes, expert in this science, first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend," which aids the muscles and tissues to expand more easily, during the constant readjustment, month after month, right up to the climax of child-birth.

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally. Three generations of expectant mothers have used it. "Pains disappeared in two days after using 'Mother's Friend,'" writes a user. "I owe my life to 'Mother's Friend,'" declared another. Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Start today and experience the wonderful comfort it will give you.

GOOD PUBLIC UTILITIES MAKE A GOOD TOWN

Everybody in every good Texas town has an answer to the question; What makes a good town?

Naturally, the answers are not all alike.

Good citizens working together for their mutual interests and the common welfare are community builders. But there are basic factors of modern community life that must exist to make a good town.

For instance, without adequate telephone service according to size and conditions, no town can be a good town.

As a community's public utility service is good or bad so is that community a good place or a poor place to live in.

Three Wichita Falls Elevens Wind Up Football Season This Afternoon

AT'S ANKLE TO GIRAFFE'S NECK T STAKE IN NATION TODAY WITH IIGHTY GRIDSTERS AWAITING TOOT

nnsylvania's Undefeated Eleven Makes Final Bid For Title In Attack Upon Cornell; In The South It's Georgia Against Alabama, Both Undefeated And Not Scored Upon issouri University's Hold To Top Place In Jeapordy As That Squad Goes Against Kansas, To Say Nothing Of The Tulane Louisiana State Battle In The Far South.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Championship hopes will be at stake the east, south and middle west tomorrow in the Thanksgiving day programs which mark the close of the gridiron season in many sections.

Although western and Pacific coast conference title races have been concluded football fans anticipate keen battles in the east, where Pennsylvania's undefeated eleven will make its final bid for title honors by tackling Cornell. In the south, where Georgia and Alabama, both undefeated and the former unscored upon so far, struggle for southern conference honors; and in the middle west where Missouri university's hold on the top in the Missouri valley conference race depends upon the outcome of her game with Kansas.

All three of these games will hold unusual sectional interest in a day which also marks the renewal of many ancient rivalries. In the east, besides the Cornell-Pennsylvania game which goes back over a 30-year period of conflict, traditional foes meet in the West Virginia-Washington and Jefferson contest at Morgantown, W. Va., and in the Penn State-Pittsburgh battle at Pittsburgh.

The middle west has two important intersectional games with Vermont at Milwaukee seeking revenge for the 20-0 defeat administered to the New Englanders a year ago by Marquette, while the Oregon Aggies invade Lincoln to play Nebraska. Florida and Drake clash at Gainesville, Fla., in an intersectional fray involving the south and mid-west.

Tomorrow's important games also include Tulane at Lousiana State.

Knute Rockne's Notre Dame eleven may well be crowned champions of 1924. There is no doubt but what it is the most powerful and best built team that has represented a college the past season.

Consider the east. Yale stands out as one of the few unbeaten elevens there. Army tied Yale and Notre Dame licked the Army.

As to the south. Georgia Tech has always represented all that is powerful in that section. Granted the Golden Tornado was weak this year Notre Dame's 34 to 3 victory indicates how clearly the southerners were outclassed.

As to the west. Notre Dame defeated Wisconsin by a score four times as overwhelming as any run up by a conference eleven against the Wisconsin eleven.

As to the far west. Nebraska was as clay in the hands of Rockne's men. Nebraska licked Kansas and Missouri, and held other westerners to tight scores.

Pick a stronger team than Notre Dame.

Coolidge Hits Real Problem On Farm Questions

Will Try to Work Out Formula for Better Farming Conditions.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS, Record News Staff.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Coolidge is confronted with a real problem in the movement for better farming conditions.

The doctors of agriculture disagree as to the needs of the dirt farmer, but out of a confusion of ideas several plans have been suggested, none of which congress is ready to accept.

Many Interested.

Men prominent in business circles in New York and other cities have interested themselves in this subject. Representatives of farm groups are demanding anything from artificial price-fixing to government controlled markets. Members of congress who have labored on farm relief bills for several years but failed to produce satisfactory results are afraid President Coolidge's farm commission cannot agree on recommendations for legislation.

They pointed out today that representatives of the organizations represented on that body have appeared before house and senate committees many times, and that the records of the hearings show no two of them ever agreed on a program.

Many members of congress like the McNary-Haugen bill, which would establish an export corporation.

Others like the Curtis-Aswell bill, which embodies what has become known throughout the country as "the Yoakum plan," developed by B. F. Yoakum, New York financier.

Others Help Out.

Mr. Yoakum, Bernard M. Baruch and other leading business men of the nation, including Louis W. Hill of the Great Northern railway, Fairfax Harrison of the Southern railway, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, Senator Sheppard of Texas, Senator McNill McCormick of Illinois, Senators Warren and Kendrick of Wyoming and former Governor Henry C. Stuart of Virginia, who are trying to solve the farmer's problems, believe the market and transportation systems are partly responsible.

SUSPENDED FOR REFUSING TO MEET SOUTH AMERICAN.

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 26.—The Montgomery county boxing commission today fined Mike Conroy, Rochester, N. Y., heavyweight, $300 and suspended him for 90 days for his refusal to meet Romero Rojas, South American, here last night.

He was charged with unsportsmanlike conduct. His forfeit of $2... was given to the Dayton community chest.

Junior College And McMurry At Spud Park

COYOTES IN AMARILLO

Each Local Team Doped To Find Going Hard

Although gridiron interest turns to a great degree to the final tilts of the Southwestern conference this afternoon when Southern Methodist university clashes with Oklahoma A. & M. in Dallas, Baylor squares off with Rice institute in Houston, the Texas Aggies invade the varsity stadium for annual clash with Doc Stewart's Longhorns, and Texas Christian university hooks up with the Arkansas Razorbacks in Fayetteville, Wichita Falls has her own three teams once more in the limelight. A great football day it is, this Thanksgiving day, for Bud McCallum's Coyotes are playing up in the Panhandle with the Golden Sandstorm of Amarillo, Montgomery's Coyote Pups are doing battle with the Archer City eleven at Archer City, and Coach Mosley's Junior college Indians are meeting McMurray at Spudder park in the first of a series of annual games between the two clubs. The Indians and McMurray are scheduled to get underway promptly at 3 o'clock, according to Mosley, and there is to be absolutely no delay in starting the contest.

No Easy Assignments.

As far as the dope is concerned each of the Wichita Falls teams seems slated for tough sledding. Amarillo, champion of the Panhandle and defending the home fort, is rated a favorite to defeat McCallum's hard fighting Coyotes, which, of course, does not necessarily mean that the Maroon and Black of Wichita Falls is not given a chance to win. By rising to the heights of supreme fighting qualities which the Coyotes have shown in games prior to this one, the local lads may be returned the victor. Otherwise the Panhandle invasion doubtless will be a failure from a Wichita Falls standpoint. McCallum and his athletes departed Wichita Falls yesterday with the firm determination to battle to the last inch and windup the final run of the 1924 football gauntlet with a glorious victory.

Pups The Favorite.

The Junior high school team seems more or less the favoriate over Archer City, but there is always the element of a slip-up or bad breaks of the game. The Coyotes Pups by their play to date have proved themselves capable of carrying through in winning form over the majority of junior high school teams in this section, and if dope means anything, although playing in foreign territory, Coach Montgomery's youngsters should conquer. They will leave Wichita Falls for Archer City this morning.

Mosley's Junior collegians, now a fast and fairly smooth running grid machine, should by dent of superb fighting and speedy play take the number of the McMurray outfit. McMurray, like the local college is a comparatively new institution, and like the Indians has not reached its apex in collegiate athletics as yet. The two teams statistically speaking should be about on a par, but the Indians playing at Spudder park should have a meager advantage. The contest is destined to be a heated one with either team grabbing off the larger end of the final tabulation, but should Captain Steve West of the Indians, slightly injured, manage to perform in the brilliant manner he has shown of late at plunging the line, and should Quarterback Thurman toss forward passes with the unerring accuracy he has recently developed, and should the Indians function in the form Mosley has diligently attempted to instill them with these past several months Wichita Falls' team is almost sure to win by a neat margin.

Lots of Rooters.

Junior college students have been planning many days for this contest, and if moral support can bring victory the Indians are already returned the victors. Rousing pep rallies and parades have been the order of the Junior collegians all the present week. There will be enthusiasm and college spirit this afternoon at Spud park in abundance. All the loyal Wichita Falls rooters will be on hand, and there'll be a band, too. The college pep squad is slated to do its stuff, also, during the game and between halves. If the Indians don't win it won't be because they themselves did not fight hard, and it won't be for lack of cheering from the grandstand.

Fred Fulton Must Answer a Charge Of Faking a KO

Confesses He Was Out Of Condition And Agreed To Lay Down

MANAGERS ARE HELD

Accused Of Violating The State Boxing Law In Recent Fight

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26.—Fred Fulton and Tony Fuente, heavyweight prize fighters, and their managers, J. E. Reddy and Fred Winsor, all were held to answer in justice court here late today on charges of violating a state boxing law.

Two days before he met Tony Fuente, Mexican heavyweight, in a boxing bout at Culver City, November 17, last, Fulton said he was not in condition and that he had agreed to "lay down" with the consent of his manager, Joan E. Reddy, according to testimony in a court hearing on the fight here late today.

The court action followed a hearing at which testimony was presented to show that Fulton, Minneapolis plasterer-fighter, had "laid down" in a bout with Fuente at Culver City, November 17.

The four will be tried jointly in superior court here on a charge of conspiring to violate the boxing law. With the exception of Fuente, who was released on his own recognizance, all were held under $1,000 bail which they placed with the court.

YALE TO KEEP JONES

Tad Signs Contract For Three More Years With Bulldogs.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 25.—John Blossom, graduate director of athletics at Yale, announced that T. A. D. Jones had been re-engaged as football head coach for three years. Mr. Blossom said that the vote of the board of control of the athletic association was taken at a special meeting held Wednesday night and was unanimous.

Jones has been head coach of Yale football teams for the past five seasons, his contract expiring this year.

TRIBE STILL IN NEED OF FIRST BASEMAN

CLEVELAND, Nov. 25.—When the Cleveland Indians sold Frank Brower to the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league the other Brower simply joined the ever growing list of "first base fizzles" that has mounted to considerable size in the record books of the Cleveland ball club.

When the late Jim Dunn bought the ball club from Charley Somers eight years ago one weak spot on the team was first base. Chick Gandil was holding down the job then. He had a trick knee and a trick disposition and was allowed to depart to the White Sox by the next campaign. Then Marty Kavanagh, Ed Miller, Alva Williams, Doc Johnston, George Burns, Stuffy McInnis and Brower drew cracks at it. Burns was turned loose that McInnis might be acquired to "save the day and solve the situation." Stuffy fizzled and public clamor forced the club to regain Burns' services.

But Burns is getting on in years. The club must develop a youngster and one who can be counted on to fill the bill for several campaigns before much headway can be made in constructing a smooth working infield.

The best bet right now is Bob Knode. He looked good last spring. Should never have been sent to the minors. He was, however, and proceeded to show his worth with Birmingham. He has been recalled and will be given his chance next spring.

WOMEN SEEK GOLF RIGHTS.

Miriam Burns Calls on Sisters to Do Battle for Privileges.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 25.—Miss Miriam Burns, Kansas City golfing star, calls on her sister golfers, famous and lowly, to fight to equal suffrage on the golf links.

She points out that on many links about the country, women are barred from playing Saturday afternoons or Sundays or both.

This rule is obviously unfair to women who work during the day, teach or attend school.

The old belief that women slowed up the game does not hold good these days. Not with Glenna Collett equaling the men's score in tournament play.

Those who believe that women shouldn't learn while the men want the course are the ones who fought against women driving autos.

Rabbit Season Opens In April for Chicago Fans

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—This is the open season for rabbits in most districts.

But around Chicago baseball fans expect the Rabbit season to open officially about the middle of April.

For they are counting on one particular rabbit, Walter Maranville, to give them many of their baseball thrills in the 1925 season. And Maranville himself is confident that he will defy father time and the bugaboo of all infielders—bum legs—another year and play his old game around second base for the Cubs.

Traded by Pirates.

A year ago this time Maranville, then a member of the Pirates, was slated to fill a utility role, if the Pirate's young infielders delivered. For a time down south Bill McKechnie held to the idea. Then Maranville showed such scintillating form that he forced his boss to make room for him at second. And what a whale of a game he played all year.

His speed afield and his work at bat and on the bases was one of the high spots in the battle of the Buccaneers. Apparently 12 years of pounding about the big league infields had left no marks or lameness in his nimble legs.

And the Cubs, who obtained him in a trade since the season ended, are figuring on him playing the same kind of a game next season for them.

Will Steady Cubs.

"The Rabbit," as he has been called ever since he made his debut alongside "The Crab," was traded with Charley Grimm and Wilbur Cooper by the Pirates to the Cubbets for Aldrich, Grantham and Neihaus. Killefer wants the Rabbit's steadying influence around second as well as his —and baseball

Bicycle Races At Fair Today

The Wichita Falls Bicycle club will stage its first series of races this morning on the fair grounds course at 10 o'clock, and many fast riders are expected to compete. The meet is to be composed of four events, all sponsored by the Grover Bullington company. Prizes will be given by The Cycle Trades of America through this company.

Race number one will be a half-mile novice event for boys under 14 years old. First prize will be a gold pen knife and chain, second prize a gold pencil and chain, and third prize a frame bicycle pump.

Race number two is to be a two-mile class A event with a gold medal as prize.

Race number three is to be a class B affair with three prizes, a silver medal, bronze medal, and a third prize of mud guards.

Race number four is to be a two-mile handicap free-for-all event, also with three prizes up for competition. First prize will be a bicycle seat, second a bicycle tire, and third a bicycle siren.

A special race is to be staged over the mile between Robert Abnot and Oliver Austin.

No boys are barred from entering the first four races, and all are invited to either compete or to watch the races.

CHICK MEEHAN AGAIN.

Syracuse Mentor Again Comes Through With a Winner.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Once more Chick Meehan stands out as one of the best coaches on the grid today. The fifth successful season Syracuse university has enjoyed in football under his guiding hand draws attention to his achievements since assuming the role of coach there.

Over a span of five campaigns Meehan's teams have won 36 out of the 44 games played. Two of the other games were deadlocks. This record was made with schedules that annually included such teams as Pittsburgh, Penn State, Colgate, Holy Cross, Washington and Jefferson, Alabama, Columbia, Nebraska, Boston college and (this year) Southern California. No setups in that list.

Meehan won All-American honors at quarterback during his grid career on Syracuse and his selection afterward as head coach made a big hit with Syracuse followers. That the judgment of the athletic officials was not in error is proved by the record he has made to date.

BAN TURKEY DAY GAME.

Jayhawkers and Missouri May Change Date of Their Tangle.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.—When the Kansas Jayhawkers invade Missouri tomorrow for their thirty-second annual battle with the Missouri Tigers, it probably will be the last Thanksgiving game between the two state universities.

Dr. Forest Allen, athletic director at K. U., is on record as favoring playing the annual game on the Saturday before Turkey day to enable students to be at home for the holiday. C. L. Brewer, Missouri athletic director, has made no statement regarding the proposed change.

From 1911 to 1913 the two schools played their annual gridiron classic on the Saturday preceding the holiday but in 1914 returned to the holiday date.

RETIRED TO STUD

Zev, Champ 3-Year-Old, Has Seen Last Days on the Race Track

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(INS)—Zev, champion 3-year-old 1923 racing season and Mad Hatter, one of the best handicap horses in training, have been retired to stud, according to statements credited today to Sam Hildreth, trainer of the thoroughbreds for Harry Sinclair. Zev is the greatest money winner in the history of the turf and successfully defended America's honor against the invasion of Papyrus, English champion, in the international match last year. He had an indifferent season in 1924, however.

Mad Hatter, now 8 years old, was prevented by his temperament from becoming one of the great thoroughbreds of modern times, in the opinion of many.

Kerr May Regain His Place in Big Show

DICK KERR

"Wee" Dickie Kerr, the outstanding pitcher of the lamented 1919 world's series, may reappear in a big league uniform next season. The dope is out that Judge Landis will heed his request for reinstatement before spring.

Kerr never should have departed from organized baseball. The White Sox owners are more to blame than the little pitcher that he decided to spend four seasons of what promised to be a brilliant career in the oblivion of the outlaws.

Kerr helped pitch the White Sox to the pennant in 1919. In the world's series that followed he won two games despite efforts of his teammates, since revealed, to throw those games for the gamblers.

The next spring Kerr asked for what he believed a reasonable increase in salary. Despite the fact that Harry Grabiner, Sox secretary, was busy signing Joe Jackson, Buck Weaver and others implicated in the scandal to new contracts (although the moguls knew of the pillow incidents), Kerr's request was turned down.

He joined a fireman's ball club.

Failure of Owner Comiskey to hear his pleas for fair reward simply added another "boner" to the records of the magnates in dealing with the deserving players.

Kerr is still the property of the White Sox. He will not rejoin them, however, if he is reinstated.

Weekly Legion Fight Program Billed Tonight

Roughhouse Smith Boxes Trammel Instead Of Young

Cop Bentley Squares Off With Griffin In Prelim

Roughhouse Smith of McAlister, Oklahoma, was substituted by the American Legion at the last minute for Sid Young in the feature ten-rounder of the Legion double windup fight card billed for tonight, it was announced yesterday. Young has been billed to step with Duke Trammel, Fort Worth welter, but was injured in an earlier bout and had to call off his Wichita Falls engagement. Smith has performed before Wichita Falls fandom, and many believe that his go with Trammel will be a bangup, slugging affair.

The other ten-round bout of Johnny Simpson, San Antonio welter, versus Jimmy Guest of Houston will be carried through with, declared Wofford. So fans are assured of two bouts which will rate probably as highly as any ever pulled in the city.

The dopesters in picking the winners have chosen Trammel and Simpson. However, Smith has shown himself to be a tough, rushing type of scrapper, and should he tear into Duke as he has done many other boxers the Fort Worth lad may not find the going any too easy. Guest is clever, and many believe that he can outbox Simpson, and hit just as hard. But few realize the ruggedness of Johnny, and his willingness to mix it whereas Jimmy is the defensive type of battler. And Guest, although victorious in all his bouts staged here, has not necessarily shown that he can sock and take 'em too, for not one of the boys Guest has met rates as good as Simpson.

Earl Griffin of Wichita Falls and Cop Bently of Electra, two slugging welters, are slated for a four-rounder.

There is to be a five-man negro battle royal as an added attraction.

MUCH CREDIT FOR WALTER.

Johnson Can Get Money in 24 Hours to Buy Himself a Team.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. — Financial backing sufficient to purchase the St. Paul American Association club can be obtained by Walter Johnson within twenty-four hours in St. Paul, President Thomas Hickey said tonight, in discussing reports that the star pitcher of the Washington Americans may become interested in the club.

People don't keep old wine in new bottles, but frequently they use old ideas in new books.

LEONARD-BENJAMIN TILT WOULD FIZZLE

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Benny Leonard is considering an offer to meet Joe Benjamin in a title bout in California this winter season. Benjamin is being called "the logical contender" and all that sort of bunk to help make the match look good.

That's the stuff! That's the thing that will kill the game in California just as it is born.

Benjamin showed clearly while in the east that he is no match for Leonard and need hold no hope of being such until Benny the king gets older and grayer and slower. Benjamin did have good battles with Benny Valgar and Pete Hartley, I believe it was, when he made his eastern debut. Then Johnny Dundee took the boy on and gave him a boxing lesson. Dundee was then slipping.

Benjamin then went back to the coast. His record there shows that he is credited with victories over nine of 10 men he has met. But the list of opponents isn't impressive.

If the California promoters put on a Leonard-Benjamin bout at fancy prices they will give the region its first frost under the new law which permits 10 and 12 round bouts—the 10 rounders to a decision.

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Yesterday Billy floated down stream, landed in a grassy meadow and started a conversation with two cows pastured there. They wanted to know where he came from.

"Not so fast, Dame Crumply Horn!" said Billy.

"Don't call me Crumply Horn. That is not my name and I don't like it, anyway."

"Pray, then, if you will favor me with your name, I shall be only too glad to address you by it."

"My, isn't he the polite one?" said the other old cow in a sarcastic tone. "What might your name be?"

"Oh, my name is just plain Billy Whiskers. Ever heard of me?"

"Well, I should say we have!" spoke up the first cow. "My sister lives on the very farm where you were born, and where your wife and children live now."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed Billy, all excitement. "When did you hear from them last?"

"Only last week, when a carrier pigeon stopped here in the meadow for a drink and to eat a few seeds on her way back to the old farm up in Wisconsin. She had been sent with a message clear through to Philadelphia, and was returning when she stopped."

"But what did she say about the people on the farm? I am all impatient to hear."

"Well, for one thing she said that your grandchildren, the twins, were just as mischievous as you were at their age, but that they were growing fast and bid fair to be as good looking as their grandfather."

Billy swelled up with pride at this flattery.

"She also said," continued the cow, "that your little wife Nannie was anxiously awaiting your return, and that she expected to see you soon, though she had not heard directly from you for some time, although she had sent several messages to you by different birds, dogs and horses, but they all reported they had heard no word whatever about you on any road they had traveled."

"I know why," said Billy. "It is because I have been kept shut up in a studio doing movie stunts. But I am out now, and your conversation has made me homesick to see my wife, children and grandchildren, so I am going to start this very day if you will be so kind as to tell me in what part of the country I am now."

"You are about twenty miles from Chicago in a line directly west of it."

"Thank you so much! Then all I shall have to do will be to travel in a straight line to the northwest until I come to the Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, and then follow it until I get to within six miles this side of Fond du Lac, then leave the track and go for half a mile east, and I will be on the dear old farm, as I am feeling fine after my bath, and the wound in my leg is all right now for I see the bandage has come off while I was in the water. I think I shall wish you both a pleasant day and say good-by."

Color Cut-Outs

"We have an awful lot to be thankful for, Sarah," said Betty Cut-out, as she helped set the table. She was visiting at her grandmother's farm for Thanksgiving, and she and Sarah, who lived down the road, were having great fun helping to get dinner.

"We have an awful lot to eat," admitted Sarah.

"But that isn't all," said Betty gravely. "I guess that's all most of us think about on Thanksgiving, though—eating. But the Pilgrims didn't have such wonderful things to eat, you know, and they were a lot more thankful than we are for all the things we have."

"That's right," nodded Sarah cheerfully. "I guess we don't always remember that Thanksgiving means being thankful for other things than stuff to eat. When we remember that, we're real Pilgrims, too."

A HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO ALL.

You can set a whole Thanksgiving dinner table for your Color Cut-outs if you cut out and color all the good things you see ehre today.

Yesterday's Puzzle Answered.

FIND TEXAS HIEROGLYPHICS.

Indian Writing Is Discovered on Stone Bluff Near Paint Rock.

PAINT ROCK, Texas — Indian hieroglyphics have been found on the D. O. Sims ranch a few miles from here in a stone bluff. These characters are not the least faded though they were put there by the Indians in early pioneer days of Texas and have been exposed to the elements all these years.

An old Indian chief came down to see the bluff and tried to explain to Mr. Sims just what all the sign writing meant. For example in one place there is a picture of a church and above it is a black cloud. Flying north from the church are six birds. The old Indian interpreted this as meaning that six Indians had burned the church of some white settlers in the neighboring territory and were fleeing north. It is historically true that a mission church was burned at San Saba by a few Indians in early times.

A hand drawn by an Indian always indicates the number of people in the group, it is said. If the hand is red, it stands for Indians, if white it means the white settlers.

As the bluff is located in a central place, most of the tribes passed it at some time. Each tribe or group seems to have left a message for the Indians to tell what direction to take and to warn them if the whites were near.

This bluff has not been taken care of and at present a number of the hieroglyphics have been mutilated by people scratching their names over the surface of the painting.

UNUSUAL VALUES IN DEPENDABLE USED CARS

We think in terms of customers, not cars. It doesn't pay us to sell you a used car that it doesn't pay you to buy. One used car more or less is not important, but one used car customer more or less is important.

For your protection make your used car purchase from a reputable dealer.

MARS MAY SUPPORT LIFE.

Recent Observations Strengthen Belief, Astronomer Says.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov.—An interpretation of the recent observations of Mars, when the planet was at its closest point to the earth, "strengthens the probability Mars is fitted to support life," Robert G. Aitken, astronomer at Lick observatory of the University of California, declared in a lecture here recently.

He went on to explain, "if, as many observers believe, the greenish tinge of great surface areas in the early Martian summer is due to vegetation, then undoubtedly animal life, at least of low form, is present, for the two were always coexistent on our earth. This is not at all improbable, but it cannot as yet be regarded as definitely established."

Mr. Aitken pointed out that from observations astronomers in general have reached the conclusion Mars has both air and water on its surface, but not enough water to create any permanent ocean or even a great lake and hardly enough air to make the atmosphere as dense as our own at the height of our highest mountain tops.

Noon Temperature Above Freezing.

"Because of this relatively low density of atmosphere and the fact that area for area Mars receives less than half as much light and heat from the sun as falls upon the earth, the general opinion has been that the mean temperature of Mars must be very low, probably far below freezing. No general agreement can be said to exist as to the precise form and interpretation of the finer detail of the planetary markings.

"The decided advance made at the recent observations is along two lines. At the Lowel observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., and at the Mt. Wilson observatory, near Pasadena, Cal., extremely delicate and sensitive thermo-electric instruments have been used in conjunction with powerful reflecting telescopes to measure the heat radiation from the planet as a whole and from different parts of the surface.

"The distance of the planet, 35 million miles, and the absorption effects of our own atmosphere, make the problem an extremely difficult one, and it is not surprising that, numerically, the results obtained at the two observatories are not entirely in accord. The important fact is both put the noon day temperature of Mars well above the freezing point, the Mt. Wilson observatory at about 45 degrees Fahrenheit, the Flagstaff observers at from 45 to 60 degrees.

What Photographs Show.

"Even if the temperature falls far lower in the Martian night this is by no means an impossible temperature for the support of life."

Mr. Aitken reviewed the results of photographs taken in light of different parts of the spectrum, that is, on plates sensitive to red light, on others sensitive to orange and yellow light, and on ordinary photographic plates sensitive to violet light.

"The contrast between the red sensitive and the violet sensitive plates is remarkable," he said. "The photographs taken with red light show a great amount of surface details and a marked decrease in brightness at the outer edge or rim of the planet's disk and give a disk decidedly smaller than the one imprinted on the ordinary plates by violet light. The others show no detail except the polar cap and do not show the fading of light at the outer rim of the disk.

"Now it has long been known our own atmosphere does not permit light of any short wave length to pass through it. In fact, the blue color of our clear sky is due to the scattering bit of atmosphere of this short wave length.

"By analogy we are led to the inference that the images of Mars on the ordinary photographic plates are the images of its outer atmosphere, whereas those on the red sensitive plates give pictures of the true surface of the planet. If this is correct, it follows Mars has a considerably greater depth of atmosphere than had been supposed, possibly a depth of 100 to 120 miles, and in its general qualities it may resemble our own.

Can't Tell About Canals.

"It will not be so dense as our own because the attraction of gravitation on Mars is only two-fifths as strong as at the surface of the earth. The polar caps on the ordinary photographic plates will then be cloud or haze caps, which may cover a smaller true ice cap on the surface of the planet.

"This interpretation fits the observed facts well, and taken in conjunction with the temperature measures, strengthens the probability that Mars is fitted to support life.

"Further than this, we cannot go. The nature of the so-called canals is still in dispute, but it may be said positively we have so far no observational evidence they are artificial or that intelligent beings exist on Mars. All stories of signals from Mars are absurd."

HEAR THE ATOMS ROAR!

New Device Brings Out Noise In Iron Near Magnet.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov.—The roaring of the atoms in iron when they are attacted by the magnet can be heard by means of a device recently perfected in the research laboratory of the General Electric company here. The device indicates that magnetism is not a silent phenomenon; in fact the roaring when the magnet is brought near a piece of iron plainly can be heard from an ordinary radio loud speaker, according to experimenters, and consequently it now will be possible to listen to the effect of a magnet on iron or other material.

The apparatus carries out the idea of Dr. H. Barkhausen of Dresden, Germany. A piece of soft iron is inserted in a coil of 17,000 turns of small wire. The coil is attached to an amplification set, which in turn is connected to head telephones and loud speakers.

When the magnet is brought near iron a rustle is heard, experimenters say. If the approach is rapid the noise is loud and abrupt; if slow, the sound is soft and more permanent. When the magnet is removed, similar sounds are heard. If, while the magnet is brought near the iron, the poles are reversed, and extremely loud and abrupt noise is heard.

Scientists believe the phenomenon is caused by the motion of magnetic particles in the iron. When the magnet is near, groups of atoms turn and face in the same direction. The stronger the magnet, the more particles turn and consequently the greater the noise made in turning. Similarly when the magnet is removed, the atoms rustle back to disarrangement. When the magnetic poles are reversed the atoms turn about quickly, causing a louder noise.

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The cotton market was quiet today with trading attributed largely to the evening up of accounts in preparation for tomorrow's holiday in the American markets. January sold off to 23.60 in the early trading, but later rallied to 24.08, or 17 points above yesterday's closing quotation. It closed at 23.90 under a renewal of realling or liquidation, the general market closing steady, net 1 point lower to 6 points higher.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 3 points and eased off under a little southern selling, local and commission house liquidation. Active months sold about 8 to — points net lower, December declining to 23.63 and March to 24.10. Further light offerings of December were absorbed against sales of the later months, however, and the market steadied up at mid-day on reports of steady southern spot markets and rumors that trade interests were accumulating contracts in a moderate way on the declines.

December later rallied to 23.89 and March to 24.41, making net advances of about 15 to 24 points but the market met another flurry of realizing or liquidation in the last few minutes and sold off several points from the best.

Additional December notices representing about 2,800 bales were reported today but were evidently without much effect on the market as December closed within 15 points of January compared with 17 points at the close of Tuesday.

Private cables reported rather freer offerings of actual in Liverpool but that the market was steady on trade calling. According to one of the reports reaching here from a Liverpool firm, trade buying there was due partly to fears regarding the adequacy of supplies of cotton with a good strong staple.

Exports today 29,426, making 2,936,230 so far this season. Port receipts 61,027 bales. U. S. port stocks 1,498,202.

New York Cotton Letter.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—[illegible] has been a typical pre-holiday market. The steadiness may be ascribed to reports of stiffening spot basis in the south with cotton difficult to buy in some localities while Liverpool cabled that spinners there were calling cotton freely, fearing a sacrcity of good staple. A prominent Texas crop reporter now says that he expects Texas to raise 4,750,000 bales of 500 pounds weight and goes on to say that he thinks the government is right on Oklahoma. There can be seen here a disposition to expect another increase in the government figures on December 8, while the ginnings are beginning to be figured around 12,000,000. Under expanding trade a difference of one or two hundred thousand bales will make but little difference, except it will serve to check buying until the next government figures are known, and in absence of such outside support, liquidation may be expected to increase.

New Orleans Cotton.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 26.—The cotton market was comparatively quiet affair today, trading being checked somewhat preparing Thanksgiving holiday in both the American markets tomorrow. While the bulk of the trading consisted of realizing and evening up transactions there was also moderate trade buying and price fixing by mills. This served to cause a moderate netadvance of 12 to 14 points on spots which was lost in the last quarter of an hour of trading.

At the start Liverpool came in rather better than due but this fact was ignored by the local contract market, first trades more or less irregularity being 4 to 5 points down on near months and one point up on more distant positions. The market eased off after the call mainly on realising in advance of the impending holiday. Prices soon became steadier and advanced gradually during the greater part of the session on more or less trade buying, some short covering and on price fixing as well as on the strength of the stock market. Prices eased off near the end on realising all the day's gain being sacrificed. The close showed a net gain of 1 point on December and net losses of 1 to 3 points on later months.

Trading was mainly professional there being little interest shown in the market by the outside public. Total exports for the day 29,426 bales.

New Orleans Cotton Letter.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 26.—Cotton was quiet and steady today. It looks like those who wanted to liquidate in advance of the holiday did so yesterday, and buying and selling was pretty evenly divided. The strength of the steel stocks, bullish spot news from the interior, heavy exports and optimistic cables tended to restrict shorts selling and induced some shorts to cover. Advices from the eastern belt told of a steady advance in the basis in that section during the past week with demand in excess of offerings. There were also reports of many more buyers than sellers in the northwestern part of the belt, though demand was less active in other parts of Texas owing to holiday and filling of November commitments. Farmers are very firm everywhere and are being encouraged to hold for better prices by the offer of cheaper money with which to carry their cotton. Statement of the weather bureau that the crop is practically packed except in the extreme northwest and northeast is encouraging belief that the next ginners will show nearly all of the crop. The fundamentals of the markets are bullish and higher prices are probable in our opinions.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Owing largely to a report that the United States at present has an unsold wheat surplus of only about 46,000,000 bushels, the wheat market developed sudden new strength today. Closing quotations on wheat were firm at 1¼ to 2c net gain, December 1.54⅝ to 1.54½ and May 1.62½ to 1.62¾, with corn ½ to ⅝c up, oats unchanged to ⅛c higher, and provisions varying from 10c decline to a rise of 40c.

Upturns in the value of corn and oats were due almost entirely to wheat strength. Fine weather prevailing was a bearish influence and the country was said to be selling a little more freely to arrive.

Prospective scarcity of hogs before the winter is over continued to stimulate a good demand for provisions especially lard.

CHICAGO GRAIN LETTER.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Wheat: Sold off early in a slow trade but rallied briskly as good buying entered the pit, considerable of which was against expert business. The market had several reactions but came back strong. Leading commission houses were buyers on the dips. The local trading followed the close of the Liverpool market, which was 1 to 1¼ pence lower, a rather stubborn resistence to the weakness in our markets on Tuesday. Export sales of wheat were placed at 500,000 bushels. Reports from Kansas City said milling grade of wheat were scarce and that No. 2 red wheat sold out of store there today at $1.62. Minneapolis noted a brisk milling demand for wheat. The scattered liquidation of December holdings in wheat has passed into strong hands and does not in anyway alter the underlying bullish, foreign situation. We continue to favor purchases on all setbacks.

Corn: Showed a relatively weak undertone but managed to hold up well, dually with wheat. Commission houses were on both side of the market. Cash corn was in good demand with basis of ⅛c up to ⅛c down.

Total sales 2,115,200

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Stock prices were carried into new high ground today when the entire list surged upward in the wake of a vigorous rally in the steel shares. Many premier industrials responded to a heavy outpouring of buying orders, coming on an early period of irregularity and resisting a final outburst of selling in the last few minutes. Total sales exceeded the 2,000,000 share mark for the eleventh time since election day.

Predictions by E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation that the steel industry soon would be operating at capacity, the cheerful tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews and further increases in pig iron and finished steel prices stimulated the broad demand for the steel shares. U. S. Steel common, leading the rally, sold at 118¼, the highest price in seven years. Last minute selling drove it back at the close, however, to 118¼, where it showed a net gain of ⅝.

The rise in the steel shares, which began with a spectacular jump of eight points in Crucible, brought about an upturn of prices in the general list, which had displayed marked irregularity in the early trading. American Can, General Electric and U. S. Coast iron pipe were forced to absorb heavy liquidation at the outset and again were subjected to selling pressure at the close, yielding 2¼ to 3¼ points.

Strength of the leading industrials however, was well sustained in addition to U. S. Steel and Crucible. New 1924 top prices were established by seven other steel shares, including Steas Sheffield and Gulf States.

Scoring a ten point advance, commercial solvents "B" was one of the features of the late trading. Net gains of two to five points were registered by a wide variety of issues, including U. S. Realty common and preferred, American Water Works, Savage Arms, American Wool, American Radiator and Federal Light and Traction preferred, several of which sold at their maximum prices. Other new high records embraced Studebaker, American International Corporation, Corn Products and Texas Gulf Sulphur.

The revival of interest in industrials diverted attention from trading in railroad stocks although Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Western Pacific preferred responding to favorable dividend rumors, led a number of issues to new high ground. Among these were St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Southern railway.

An advance in the call money rate from 3½ to 3 per cent in the last hour failed to stop the trading. Time money rates showed little change, 60-day loans remaining at 3 per cent and 90-day accommodations ¼ of 1 per cent higher. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges were firm, reflecting an improvement abroad resulting from the success of recent foreign loans and the lessening influence of cotton and grain bills on the market. Sterling is nearly a cent higher at $4.63¾, and French francs moved up about 2 points to around 5.38 cents.

MONEY AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

The ore in a mine and the timber in a forest are "dwindling assets" when used as security for a bond issue. Ore veins run out and timber is cut. How are the bondholders protected?

There are several ways in which this protection may be provided. Bonds may be retired annually and the entire issue paid off before the ore or timber is exhausted. A heavy "depletion" reserve may be set up (putting aside so much on each ton of ore mined or tree cut) in order to purchase other properties when present holdings are worked out. A sinking fund may be established, payable out of current earnings.

It is not customary to finance mines by means of bond issues. Stock issues are commoner and more desirable. Stock financing enables the stockholders to share in the successful years and to take the risks of the lean years.

Trees may be regrown, but ore taken from a mine is gone forever. Thus most banking houses require a deposit with a trustee of a certain fixed sum for each ton of ore mined to protect the security holders.

"Petticoat Cabinet" For Ma Now Possible With Experts Already Working

AUSTIN, Texas.—A "petticoat cabinet" for "Ma" Ferguson is the latest suggestion in capitol circles to assist the first woman of the state when she becomes governor.

There may be many things Mrs. Ferguson will want to know, and it is conceded, even by the male members of the official state family, that she need not go outside the feminine circle for her information.

In the state government of Texas there are many women holding responsible positions and doing efficient work. In fact, it is observed by those familiar with state work, that many heads of departments, especially while they are new at the job, would be somewhat "at sea," were it not for the thoroughly trained and intelligent women of the state service.

Can't Name All.

Not all the women holding state positions could be listed, and it is even difficult to name all the important ones, but the Associated Press has gathered enough information on the subject to indicate the large responsibility which the women share in running the government. At least, the first woman governor need not feel lonesome or lost for want of feminine companionship in executing her great task.

Long years of patient study and work have brought some of the women to high positions of trust and honor, and made them pivots around which the real work of the government revolves. Mrs. Ferguson will find she can gain from these women information on all subjects ranging from money to cotton seed.

In the secretary of state's office is Mrs. Nellie Atkinson, cashier and bookkeeper. She is responsible for the orderly collection and deposit of more than $1,300,000 in fees which come into the office every year. Her service has covered a long period of years and she is said to have mastered every detail of the position.

A Military Expert.

For military information, which the governor as head of the militia may frequently require, Mrs. Ferguson need not go futher than Mrs. Lillian L. Haynes and Miss Edith Heiligbrodt. Mrs. Haynes is confidential secretary to Adjutant General Barton and by virtue of her position has carried many military secrets between the governor and the adjutant general. When either the governor or the adjutant general is absent from the city she is the confidential link between the two. Miss Heiligbrodt issues all the general and special military orders, both federal and state, being responsible for the accuracy of the orders.

Information on practically every item which the state buys may be obtained from Miss Alice Miller, assistant purchasing agent of the board of control. Miss Miller came to the state service 12 years ago from Bell county, near Mrs. Ferguson's home city of Temple, and in those 12 years has risen to be one of the most efficient women of the state. She is reputed to know merchandise better than the men who sell it. She knows how to buy anything for the state from a carload of hulls to an automobile. A large portion of the everyday work of the board passes over her desk. Members of the board state she is also one of the most efficient secretaries in the capitol.

Legal Lights, Too.

In the attorney general's department, no one knows the legal requirements of bonds as does Miss Mary Maguire, secretary to the bond attorney. She has held the position for 15 years. Among her duties are to make out the certificates by which the att

Chest Fund Lacks $8,000 Is Report Wednesday Night

Final Spurt In Community Solicitation Will Come Friday

CONFIDENCE BLAMED

Thanksgiving Services' Collections Expected To Add Much

Workers in the community chest drive reported at a meeting at the Kemp hotel last night that they lacked eight thousand dollars having the total funds of the $52,000 subscribed.

"Over confidence is mainly responsible for the shortage," declared Marvin Smith, general chairman.

Collections at Thanksgiving services to be taken today are expected to aid the fund materially. Workers will pause in their drive on Thanksgiving, but at 9 o'clock Friday morning in the chamber of commerce rooms, they will gather for a final spurt.

Hold Noon Meeting.

According to the concensus of opinion expressed Wednesday noon at the joint meeting of worker's teams, with members of the Lions and Optimists clubs at the Kemp hotel, Wichita Falls people are slow in the manner in which they are opening their purse springs on the Welfare drive.

With $10,000 short at that time of the required $52,000 for the budget, workers analyze carefully the conditions of calls made so far on prospective givers, and planned for an intensive drive Wednesday afternoon in a last attempt to collect the large deficit which still remained, $42,512.50 having been pledged at that time.

Wichita Falls people will not fail us in this crisis," declared Wilkie Talbert, captain of team number 13, in a short talk before the workers, "we have a splendid city of public spirited citizens who will not allow a thing of this sort to fail if they know of our need."

Lamar Fain, Jack Barnard, C. U. Daniels, and other speakers urged the public be informed of the situation and be called upon through publicity to enter pledges immediately, no matter how small, raising quotas that had been cut, and subscribing additional amounts to cover the shortage.

Will Use Telephones.

At the suggestion of Claude Miller, a committee of three was appointed by manager Hubert Harrison to work at the chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon on telephones, reaching Wichitans who had hitherto been unavailable, and urging that they rush their contributions.

Ed. Goodner suggested the use of the telegraph to reach many local men who are out of the city and thus have not been reached by workers.

Declaring that the time to call names had come, Hubert Harrison referred to a case reported by a captain where a firm refused to subscribe, and after a frank discussion, it was suggested to appoint a "strong arm" committee to deal with local establishments who evidently are not awake to the need for taking part in the annual Welfare drive.

Dr. Grafton gave the invocation for the luncheon, after which the group sang two verses of America, accompanied at the piano by Miss Katherine Kilander of the Optimist's club.

"JAPAN IS U. S. ENEMY."

"Frank Admission" Is Seen in Naval Maneuver Plans.

OSAKA, Japan, Nov. (by mail)—(AP)—Plans for maneuvers of the United States navy in the Pacific base at Hawaii next year "can only be taken as a frank admission that Japan, and Japan only, is the potential enemy in the minds of the American naval authorities," declares the Osaka Mainichi, one of Japan's most influential journals, in an outspoken editorial.

"Fortunately," the editorial continues, "the cruise to the south of Hawaii is not yet substantiated by any official announcement, and it is not too much to expect that this part ultimately will be dropped."

The Mainichi refers here to reports that "the maneuvers will not end with exercises in the defense of Hawaii, but will be extended further south, with the Philippine islands as the destination. It also is reported that America will carry out these maneuvers in certain co-operation with Australia, her potential ally in a future naval war. We call this a blunt gesture, at any rate.

From 7,000 To 35,000 In 10 Years

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26.—The growth of interest in football in the south is indicated by a comparison between the crowds expected at the Texas-A. & M. game Thanksgiving afternoon and the number which attended games about 10 years ago.

An attendance of 35,000 is expected Thursday afternoon in the new university stadium. This is but little less than the entire population of Austin. Ten years ago a crowd of 7,000 was considered enormous.

The seating capacity of the first two units of the stadium, completed in time for the A. & M. game, is 27,000.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL
Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germs.
Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.
Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Britain Troopers Parade Streets Of Cairo in Arms

Fixed Bayonets Gleam Before Egyptians As a Warning

POLICIES NOT KNOWN

New Premier Says He "Hopes" Country And England Co-operate

CAIRO, Nov. 26.—(INS)—British troops again paraded the streets of Cairo with fixed bayonets today after a day of quiet had led British authorities to hope the Egyptian crisis had passed.

Ahmed Zimar Pasha, the new premier, had not stated what his policy would be, but said he hoped for peace and expected that Great Britain and Egypt would be able to co-operate.

With parliament adjourned until Christmas to give Premier Ziwar an opportunity to determine Egyptian policy, there were hopes that no outbreak would complicate the situation during the month intervening.

Evacuation of Egyptian troops from the Sudan continues with British forces moving in to replace them, in accordance with the British demands.

Lieut. General Sir Richard Hanking, commanding the British troops in Egypt, reviewed three battalions of British concentrated here under orders to prepare reinforcements for the Sudanese detachments.

The students, describing themselves as Zaghloul Pasha's army, have pledged a 10-day strike in support of their protest against the British demands.

A WARNING TO FRANCE.

British Press Is Annoyed at Criticism Now Being Voiced.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The British press today expressed annoyance at the criticism voiced in the United States, France and elsewhere regarding the swift and stern action of the Baldwin government in the Egyptian crisis.

The Daily Express warns France that she still owes Great Britain money and it won't require too much of this sort of French criticism for Great Britain to consider her position and press for payment."

SAYS LEAGUE DESTROYED

Bernard Shaw Condemns England For Action in Egyptian Crisis.

LONDON, Nov. 26—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw in a lecture here tonight said the British government had absolutely destroyed the League of Nations.

The league, Mr. Shaw declared, depended on its recognition by the great powers, but the British government had declined to refer the Egyptian trouble to the league and announced the intention to refer it to brute force. This he considered a calamity.

PROTEST SENT THE LEAGUE

It Is Not Distributed To Members By Secretariat As Yet, However.

GENEVA, Nov. 26.—(AP)—The Egyptian chamber of deputies has addressed a protest to the League of Nations against the British demands bearing on the assassination of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army. This protest was taken under consideration today, and after an hour's meeting of the department chiefs of the secretariat, under the chairmanship of Sir Eric Drummond, it was decided not to distribute to the members of the league the Egyptian protest.

The decision was based on the constitutional procedure of the secretariat, which is not to circulate documents that do not emanate from governments.

URGES STUDENTS BE CALM

Ex-Premier Talks To Strikers Before Leaving For the Pyramids.

CAIRO, Nov. 26.—(AP)—Former Premier Zaglou's last words before departing for the pyramids today were an exhortation to the striking students to return to the schools and remain calm. The former premier received an ovation from the students and other citizens.

In a brief speech he asked the students why they were striking and said he could not too strongly urge them to set a good example to others by resuming their studies and ceasing their demonstrations. It was a most critical hour in the country's destinies, he declared, but the nation's interests would best be served by remaining calm.

WHAT A BOY THINKS.

Expression Pupil's Ode on Thanksgiving Submitted by Mrs. Pitman.

Thanksgiving through a boy's eyes has been capably expressed by Mrs. J. S. Pitman in a bit of original verse inspired by one of her young expression pupils who is in a position to give it realistically. She submits it as follows:

A Boy's Thoughts on Thanksgiving Day.

Morning.

Too bad Thanksgiving only comes around but once a year;
I wish cranberries grew on trees, and turkeys weren't so dear.
I wish all cakes and tarts could be five times their regular size,
And I could eat five pounds of nuts,
and two whole pumpkin pies.

Night.

I wish there wasn't quite so much of everything to eat;
'Cause I'm all headachey, and dizzy—
just can't stand on my feet.
It's funny that this morning all the good things looked so small;
And now I wish to goodness there was no Thanksgiving at all.

PRESTO—AND A NEW DRESS.

Nashville Woman Prisoner Does Quick Change in Taxicab.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov.—Houdini should take lessons from Mrs. Minnie Nichols, according to Deputy Sheriffs Burris and Lanier, who arrested Mrs. Nichols recently on a charge of stealing clothing.

When the arrest was made, the officers said, Mrs. Nichols was wearing a black silk dress, which was listed among the articles alleged to have been stolen. After she had put a coat on over the silk dress they placed her in a car and took her to the county jail. There she threw open the coat and the officers were astonished to see her attired in checked gingham. The black silk dress had disappeared.

Play Square With Your Fellowman and Dig Up For the Community Chest

The American Red Cross, famed for its humanitarian work in times of stress, has and is carrying on a work no less effective in times of peace than that in times of trouble. Noted as the relief of thousands rendered helpless by flood, fire or storm; noted as a world-wide Florence Nightingale when the guns of war are roaring; noted as one of the greatest and most unselfish organizations in the world when a crying need for aid arises, it is less noted but none the less important in the every day work it does for those minor ailments that need correcting.

Nurses Maintained.

In Wichita county, for example, the local chapter maintains skilled nurses whose hygenic work among the school children has meant much. Its clinics have been the means of restoring to hundreds of youngsters that perfection of health to which they were entitled and which might not have been obtained but for the Red Cross. Medical inspections, care of the teeth, the eyes and the ears, suggestions as to regulation of diet—all these come within the daily routine that goes for the building of better physically and mentally equipped Wichita youngsters.

As a sort of protective bureau for ex-service men, the Red Cross has, in the period extending from Dec. 1, 1923, to Nov. 1, 1924, filled out compensation blanks for 273 vets, secured hospitalization for 36, secured compensation for 21 disabled soldiers, given financial assistance to 17, reported 25 home conditions to military authorities, assisted in the finding of 10 lost men sought by the veterans bureau, secured bonuses and attended to other details almost without end.

The chapter's financial statement for the 11 months ending Nov. 1 shows a balance on hand of $2,899.25—a total which will be none too much on which to operate the rest of the year. It shows total disbursements of $6,080.53 for that period.

A detailed report on the chapter's activities from Dec. 1, 1923, to Nov. 1, 1924, has been made as follows:

ROUND UP DAKOTA BANDITS

Bands Operating In Two States Broken Up By Arrests.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov.—The past few weeks have been an "open season" in South Dakota for the running down of bank robbers and store and postoffice thieves, and as a result of the vigilance of the officers many criminals with national reputation either have been placed in the Sioux Falls penitentiary or are in county jails awaiting trial on robbery charges. Bankers of several districts in the state offered standing rewards of $1,000 for each dead bank robber and $500 each for those who were captured alive.

Early in the fall eleven robbers from different parts of the country assembled at a remote point on the Missouri River, in the north central section of South Dakota, where they took up their residence in a little "shack," far from the prying eyes of the officers of the law or other curious persons. They congregated there for the purpose of planning robberies.

Band Split After Quarrel.

They had little success in their bank robbing operations in a limited district in that part of South Dakota and adjoining territory in North Dakota. Later they quarreled among themselves, with the result that the eleven men split up into two bands. Several of them went to North Dakota, where after a few weeks they became entangled in the meshes of the law, some of them being given prison terms.

Of the original eleven men, James Ryan, alias "St. Louis Billy;" Ben Mahwicz and "Bill" Berg decided to take South Dakota as their field of operations. Ryan has a long criminal record in various parts of the United States, Mahwicz is a nitroglycerin expert who has a long criminal record. Berg, who was reared in the reform school of North Dakota, also had a long criminal record in many states.

Robbed Six Banks.

In a period of less than thirty days these three entered no less than half a dozen banks. The last robbed by them was at Greenway, a village in the extreme northern part of the state. Doubtless to vary the montony of bank robbing, they then went to southern South Dakota, where they robbed several stores and a postoffice. They then returned to the scene of their former operations in northern South Dakota, but had not been there long until they were identified by a detective, and their arrest followed. They afterward entered pleas of guilty and were sentenced to terms of seven years each in the Sioux Falls penitentiary, where they now are.

Recently Fred Cline, alias "Whitey" Cline, and John Linden, alias "Devils Lake Red," who were among the original eleven men who assembled in the "shack" on the Missouri River early in the fall, also were arrested, the charge against them being the robbery of a bank at Morristown, S. D. Both are notorious bank robbers and gunmen and are wanted on many charges in various parts of the northwest.

DANGER IN DISARMAMENT.

World Should Be Cautious, Japanese Envoy to Britain Says.

OXFORD, England, Nov.—The world should proceed most cautiously in any scheme of disarmament, Baron Hayashi, Japanese ambassador to Great Britain, told the Oxford international assembly in an address recently on "The Foreign Policy of Japan."

The league of nations was yet too young—"the Americans think it still a child"—the ambassador said, adding: "Let it wait until it reaches full age before it attempts such a great task as disarmament. I think the question of disarmament should be talked over slowly."

Baron Hayashi also advised a waiting policy with regard to the present situation in China, declaring the powers should not be in a hurry to intervene. On the other hand, China should not be overhasty in terminating extra territorial rights and concessions, even though she was less independent now than Turkey or Afghanistan.

The ambassador characterized self-determination as a danger in the far east, adding that for the present the Philippines, Borneo and Indo-China should remain under foreign protection. He also advocated a waiting policy as regards Siberia, but said Russia had no right to exclude the rest of the world permanently.

PHAFF TO SEEK REDRESS

New Yorker, Accused of Rum Piracy Will Sue Frenchmen.

NEW YORK, Nov.—Max Jerome Phaff, New York lawyer, who recently spent some time in jail at Brest, France, and some days in court on trial on charges of rum piracy, returned home on the steamship President Harding today.

He announced he would file an action for damages against the French owners of the stolen liquor, which was aboard the French steamer Mulhouse. It was they, he said, who caused his detention and trial.

Phaff, now at liberty on five thousand franc bail pending further action, asserted his trial had been irregular, newspaper men had been barrd from what he termed the "star chamber sessions," and garbled report of the proceedings had been given out by the French officials. Finally, he was released on small bail and handed a passport in an obvious effort to put an end to the proceedings.

Once Heard Nails Building Trap To Spring His Neck

Now This Negro, Houston Rioter, Is Freed From Leavenworth

LEAVENWORTH, Kansas, Nov. 26.—Four former negro soldiers, convicted for participation in the Houston riot of 1917, were released from the federal penitentiary tonight on parole. Their names were among nine for whom certificates of parole were received by Warden W. I. Biddle on Thanksgiving eve.

Those freed are John Geter, John H. Gould, Edward Porter and James Mitchell. Their life sentences had been commuted to twenty years by a special war department clemency board last spring.

Mitchell, especially had reason to be thankful, he told Warden Biddle when notified of the parole. Once he heard carpenters erecting the scaffold at Fort Sam Houston from which he was to be hanged.

"I tell you, warden," Mitchell said, "that was the most mournful sound I ever heard." His sentence was commuted to life imprisonment by President Wilson.

Mitchell has been leader of the prison orchestra.

The destinations of the men were kept secret when they left the prison. All have been provided with employment, it was stated.

Only thirty-one of the sixty-seven Houston rioters brought here remain in prison.

DAWES PLAN TAKES HOLD.

American Observers See Confidence Restored in Germany.

NEW YORK, Nov.—America's reparation experts, who have been in Europe to straighten out the post-war financial muddle, returned on the steamship Homeric today convinced the Dawes plan had restored confidence to Germany.

All agreed the installation of the plan was proceeding with greater success than its framers had anticipated. The party included Rufus Dawes, brother of the vice-president elect, who had charge of the Berlin office of the agent general of reparations; Owen D. Young, originator of the technical features of the plan; H. M. Robinson of Los Angeles, who had charge of the organization of the reparations bank, and George P. Auld, who organized the accounting service.

Germany Is Paying Up.

Germany had met all payments under the Dawes plan, Mr. Young said, adding that as a result of the recent 200 million dollar loan, payments for the year terminating August 31, 1925, already were in the hands of S. Parker Gilbert, now agent of the reparations commission.

The general effect of the application of the plan was so encouraging, he continued, it was not expected Germany would have to float another loan next year. German industry, he said, had taken kindly to the plan.

Two things have surprised me and everyone else who has had anything to do with the installation of the plan," Mr. Young said. "First, the ease of its installation and, second, the simpicity of its working and the small force required to operate it."

Only Small Staff Needed.

The staff of the commission, not including clerks and stenographers, will not exceed twenty persons, he added.

"Mr. Gilbert and his associates made a most profound impression in Paris and Berlin," Mr. Young said and turned to a discussion of the revival of industry in Germany, saying:

"There has been the greatest improvement in the spirit of the people of Germany and a marked reduction in unemployment. The increase in industrial activity is due chiefly to a returning spirit of confidence. The morale of the German people is improving. As to politics there is a drift on the part of the nationalists and the communists to the central party, which is essentially democratic in spirit and liberal in its program."

Concerning the French attitude toward Germany, Mr. Young said he believed "Mr. Herriot is convinced the greatest security of France lies in the establishment of more complete democracy within Germany." The French and Belgian evacuation of the Ruhr was being made in the finest spirit and was doing much to heal the breach which had widened with the continued occupation, he added.

STUDENTS HOLD A RALLY

Parade Will Be Staged Preceding the Game With McMurry Today.

Preceding the closing game of the football season between the Junior college Indians and the McMurry college team of Abilene, the student body of the college will stage a parade today at 1:30 o'clock, beginning at Scott between Eleventh and Twelfth streets and going through the business section of the city. A loving cup has been offered by the executive committee of the student body for the best decorated car, it was announced.

Enthusiasm was high among the students last night in their pep rally at the college campus. They were having stunts around the bonfire when the fire department was called and the fire put out. The snake dance by the students in the down town section was stopped by the cops because of suspension of traffic.

W. B. Hamilton addressed the student body urging them to stand behind the team and root for the players.

CHAMPION ARMY DESERTER.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26.—(INS)—The army is looking for what it terms its champion deserter.

Luther C. Billings, under 39 aliases, has, during the past 14 years, enlisted 41 times in the army, navy and marine corps. All recruiting stations of the three services are now trying to find him.

Billings began his evanescent military career in 1910 when he enlisted at Columbus, Ohio. He has a mania for enlisting under prominent names. Among his numerous aliases is John Quincy Adams, James Monroe and Owen Moore.

The champion deserter has evidently found the fountain for which Ponce De Leon searched in vain. At his first enlistment he gave his age as 18, which would make him 32 today. But his last enlistment this year showed him to be only 24.

Seven times in one month is Billings' record for enlisting and deserting.

He enlisted one time at Dallas, but records at Fort Sam Houston do not include him unless he is there now under a new name, officials said.

CAR CRASH INJURES THREE.

San Antonio Party Smashes into Box Cars Along M. K. and T. Railroad.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26.—Three young men were seriously injured, one probably fatally, early today when a car in which the trio were riding crashed into a string of box cars on the M. K. & T. tracks here.

Harold Peavier is expected to die from his injuries which consist of two broken legs, a broken arm, body bruises and internal injuries.

Fred Garrish and Sid Neal each sustained a broken leg.

Four railroad men, sitting on top of a box car escaped injury although the car and automobile were tangled in a mass of wreckage following the crash.

Press Cracks Back At U.S. Tax Suits

Kansas City Post Says Freedom Of Newspaper Involved

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.—The publication of income tax returns in his newspapers was an attempt to arouse public opinion against a law believed detrimental to the welfare of the country, Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal Post, said in a statement today. The statement was issued in connection with the indictment by a federal grand jury yesterday of Mr. Dickey and Ralph Ellis, general managing editor of the Journal Post.

Publication of the returns, the statement said, also was a challenge to an attempt to abridge the freedom of the press.

Southwest Backs New Cotton Mart

Futures Market At Chicago To Be Given Hearty Support

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The solid southwest stands back of the new cotton futures market which will open on the Chicago board of trade Monday, Joseph W. Evans, former president of the Houston Cotton Exchange, told directors of the board today.

"Creation of the cotton futures market in this city," said Mr. Evans, "is an important constructive step in marketing.

"Virtually all the surplus cotton is now raised in the southwest, the mills in the southeast consuming the production of that section. Western cotton has superior spinning value and is eagerly sought after, especially by foreign spinners.

"Under the Chicago cotton contract all deliveries will be made at the joint port of Houston-Galveston, which will eliminate the haul to New Orleans or New York, saving vast sums in freight charges."

MAYBE NEFF WILL MOVE

Rumor Has It In Austin He Will Locate In Houston After 1924.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26.—Gov. Neff emphatically refused to confirm a report which was circulated that he will move to Houston when his term closes, to practice law there. He declined to furnish any information about his plans, other than that previously stated that he will resume law practice in January.

It has been thought likely that Neff and Attorney General Walter A. Keeling, who will retire from office at the same time, will establish a law partnership; but there has been no confirmation of this from either.

Placecards in yellow also carried out the autumn color scheme.

Toasts, echoing good wishes, greetings, appreciation and love were given by all the members, and Mrs. Bailey, on behalf of the club, presented Mrs. Anderson with a beautiful gift book in which names of the members were inscribed.

Covers were laid for Mesdames Anderson, Bailey, A. R. Bleakeley, Hubert Harrison, W. B. Jarrell, J. M. Martin, C. D. Shamburger, C. P. Burton, and C. W. Boller.

Amateurs Scoring Radio Successes

Average Radio Operator Can Easily Pick Up European Programs

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Trans-Atlantic radio casting of words, singing and instrumental music so plainly that the average amateur can pick it up is an accomplished fact today.

Reports are pouring into the Garden City offices of Radio Broadcast, the publication which fostered the project of a week of radiocasting, of success of amateurs in picking up programs last night from Newcastle, Bournemouth, Aberdeen and Madrid.

Monday night scattered reports were received of partial success, but not until last night had foreign programs been generally picked up with satisfactory clarity.

One amateur in Bronxville picked up a piano recital from Aberdeen so clearly that he was able to transmit the sounds emitting from his loud speaker to the Garden City laboratory by telephone.

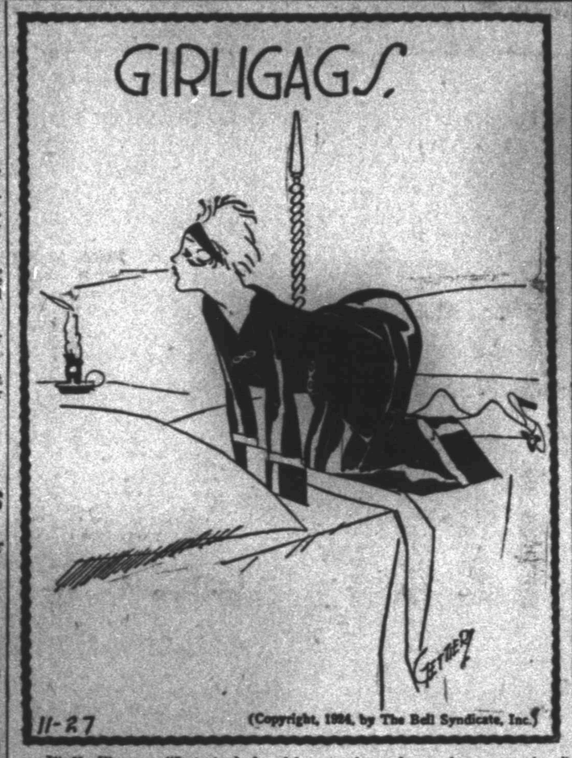

PICK UP MANY POINTS.

Amateurs Hear London, Aberdeen and Glasgow Say Radio Week Reports.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—(INS)—London, Aberdeen and Glasgow were today radio suburbs of New York. Amateurs pouring in reports to officials of international radio week of successfully tuning in on the second trans-continental broadcasting hour, reported that the programs were heard distinctly from England and Scotland.

HEAR EUROPEAN PROGRAMS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(INS)—A score of radio amateurs today reported having received European programs last night in the first of a series of international radio tests. James Phillip, using a four tube set, reported picking up Lo, London, at 10:16 and holding it until 10:42. Robert Mandell reported having picked up PLL Lyons, France, during a rendition of the "Marseillaise" at 10:30.

Sisters Of Tender Ages Found Slain

Man Held By Townspeople In New Brunswick After Crime

HOULTON, Maine, Nov. 26.—Cynthia and Neotia Foster, sisters, 14 and 10 years old, were found dead last night in a shack occupied by Harry Williams, in the town of Fosterville, N. B., 18 miles from this town, according to a report made to the police here today. Williams, who was arrested after an all-night search, is being held by the townspeople pending the arrival of the sheriff from Fredericton.

POISON FEARS GROUNDLESS.

Carpenter, Texas, Woman Had Told Officers Life Was Threatened.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26.—(INS)—The fear of Mrs. Alejandro San Miguel DeValdes of Carpenter, Texas, that members of her family were marked as victims of a poison plot proved groundless when Herman Nester, city chemist, reported that specimens of fruit and candy sent by mail to the woman showed no traces of poison.

Mrs. DeValdes told police her suspicions were aroused when the package was received because three members of her family, two daughters and a nephew, died in August after eating meat sent through the mail from this city by the same person who sent the analyzed package of fruits.

The Wilson county grand jury is said to be investigating the three deaths.

Fight In Juarez Jail Involves 3 Visitors From U.S.

Washington Newspaperman May Dies As Result Of Injuries

TWO UNIDENTIFIED

They Are Found Unconscious By Drug Addict In Jail Cell

JUAREZ, Mexico, Nov. 26.—(INS)—American and Mexican officials today joined in an investigation of the fight in the Juarez jail yesterday which resulted in severe injuries to three Americans.

The three, Harry L. Rogers, Washington, D. C., newspaper man, and two unidentified men, today were hovering between life and death, their skulls crushed open. Rogers, physicians said, probably will die.

According to Mexican police, Rogers and his two companions were slugged into unconsciousness by John Doble, an American said to be a narcotic addict, while they were asleep on the floor of a jail cell where all had been lodged, Rogers on a charge of intoxication. Doble, crazed by drugs, authorities say, pulled loose an iron bar and started his unprovoked attack on Rogers.

Rogers' skull was crushed in several places and today he did not regain consciousness. His companions, it is believed, were delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention but because of their critical condition no attempt to question them has been made.

Rogers came here to accompany the federation delegates to Mexico City for the inauguration of President-elect Calles.

BIGAMY CHARGE IS LODGED.

Police Disprove Man's Confession, However, That He Is Guilty.

CAMDEN, N. J., Nov. 26.—Two gun shot scars on the right leg of John H. Morgan, held for trial on bigamy charges, police said today, upset Morgan's contention that Mrs. Francis McDonald Morgan, one of the two women involved in the case, is the widow of his "twin brother" killed in France.

Morgan's statements regarding the "twin brother" have been at variance, county detectives alleged. Morgan is said to have told Assistant Prosecutor Varbelow he invented the tale to free himself when arraigned before a magistrate. Later, however, he is said to have given another version of the story. Morgan is said to have married Miss Julia Walsh of Woodcrest, N. J., under the name of Robert T. Crofton. Morgan claims his real name is Robert Morgan Crofton and that of his "twin brother" Charles James Crofton. He gave his home as Nogales, Ariz.

But prison routine will be broken for the day, no work will be done and in the afternoon a vaudeville program will be given.

TO DRUGGISTS FOR CLUE.

Mystery Surrounding Murder of Kansas City Woman Baffling.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 26.—Druggists of Kansas City are being questioned by police today to learn if they recently sold chloroform and absorbent cotton to a one-armed man, following the indictment late yesterday of T. O. Puckett for the murder last Thursday of Mrs. Nina B. Powell.

The woman's murder followed correspondence by Puckett through a matrimonial agency.

After their marriage, the woman and Puckett opened a laundry. She is said to have furnished the money.

Chief of Detectives I. B. Walston started a thorough inquiry today into Puckett's relations with the matrimonial agency on information that he might have used it to get well-to-do women as business partners.

Thanksgiving!

Instead of harboring any thought that we should be thankful "because things are no worse," let us look about a little and recall the struggle and hardships other nations across the seas have undergone—Their battles for rehabilitation of devasted lands—their struggles for the supremacy of moral standards—for peace and harmony.

How thankful we should all be that we live in America! A country of contentment, freedom, peace and prosperity.

Here, we wish to express our thankfulness and appreciation for the generous patronage given us this year and hope that in years to come we shall serve you in an even better way and continue to hold your friendship.

Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving—the great American festival. For it is still a time of thanksgiving for a rich harvest time in a land of plenty—a time of yellow pumpkins ripening, of garnered grain and that first touch of frost in the still, clear air—a time of crackling fires on broad hearths with corn popping—

Then, too, Thanksgiving seems to be celebrated partly in memory of the stern virtues of the Puritan fathers who, with untold courage, braved every danger in pursuit of an ideal.

We Wish You a Thankful Thanksgiving

League Twist Is Certain in Fight To Fill Vacancy

Demos And G. O. P. To Lock Horns In Connecticut Soon

BRANDEGEE SUCIDIDE

Untimely Death of Standpat Veteran Is Cause For Special Election

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Political leaders of all shades of opinion in the capital are going to watch with unusual interest the senatorial contest in Connecticut in which a successor to the late Frank B. Brandegee is to be chosen three weeks hence.

Whether either party desires or not, there is bound to be a decided league of nations twist to the battle there because the democrats have nominated for the post a man who perhaps deserved the title of the outstanding league advocate in American public life—Hamilton Holt, former editor of the Independent, and in the closing days of Woodrow Wilson's life, one of his closest personal friends.

Rally to Holt.

Friends of the league are going to rally to Holt's support in the three weeks' campaign that is to precede the election on Dec. 16. His candidacy will be pushed not only by democratic orators generally, but by league advocates in particular.

Holt has conducted an unceasing campaign for America's entrance into the league, both with his action and from the lecture platform ever since Woodrow Wilson proposed it to a war weary world five years ago. His enthusiasm for it and his incessant labors in its behalf finally brought him very close to Mr. Wilson.

The republican nominee is Governor-elect Hiram Bingham, explorer, historian, aviator and finally professor at Yale.

Led Big Expedition.

At the age of 30 he led an exploring expedition which traced Bolivar's route across Colombia and Venezuela; two years later he led another expedition that explored the Spanish trade route from Buenos Aires to Lima; he headed the Yale Peruvian expedition in 1911 and on that trip located Vinces, the last of the Inca capitals. The first ascent of Mount Corpuna was another of his exploits.

Over forty years old when the war broke out, Prof. Bingham joined the air service and was one of the few men of that age to learn to fly. Rising to the rank of lieutenant colonel, he went to France and for months was in command of the largest A. E. F. flying centers.

Prof. Bingham's election as governor only a few weeks ago would seem to augur well for his senatorial aspirations next month, but the democrats here are planning to give him a strenuous fight.

REPORT ON PHONE RATES

C. of C. Committee Announces Results of a Preliminary Investigation.

Telephone rates of Wichita Falls are lower than those charged in El Paso, Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Oklahoma City and Tulsa, according to information obtained by the members of the chamber of commerce committee appointed to investigate telephone rates and service of this city. The rates are higher here than those in Beaumont, Port Arthur, Waco and Galveston, the committee found and made public at the first meeting held Wednesday morning in the offices of Weeks, Morrow and Francis.

Show Financial Statements.

M. T. Caldwell, superintendent of the company, and C. C. Kirby, local superintendent, appeared before the committee. The financial statement of the telephone company to the company showed that the company last year realized a dividend of 14 per cent on its investment of $1,484,998 in which the capital assets there appears an item of $216,000 for good will.

T. K. Baker, expert rate representative of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company reviewed the progress of the telephone company in meeting the needs of Wichita Falls. In 1900 there were 39 telephones in the city; in 1910, 725; in 1920, 3,242; January 1, 1923, 5,619; and January 1, 1924, 6,823, or 17.5 telephones to every 100 of the population.

Ready For Service.

The report pointed out, also, that the company at this time is in position to care for practically all who desired service. At the present time there are 121 applications for telephones in the Sibley-Taylor and Scotland additions. These will be cared for in December, Mr. Baker stated.

The next meeting of the chamber of commerce committee, composed of C. I. Francis, chairman; G. C. Wood, Carter McGregor, T. H. Lawson, and A. E. Myles will be held Wednesday morning, December 2, at 10 o'clock.

Commencement Sermon For Sunday School Workers Date for Sunday Here

Dr. P. E. Burroughs, educational secretary of the Baptist Sunday school board, Nashville, will deliver the commencement sermon at the First Baptist church, corner Ninth and Burnett, next Sunday morning, November 30, to more than 300 members of that congregation who have completed one or more study course books during the last year. He will also preach at the evening hour, 7:30 p. m. Dr. Burroughs has had much to do with bringing the educational department of the Baptist Sunday school board to its present standard, and is the head of this outstanding department among southern Baptists. He was at one time pastor of the local First Baptist church.

During the last year every book in the normal course and B. Y. P. U. study course has been taught. Nearly seven hundred examinations have been given to about three hundred different members. LeRoy Moore, educational director of the church, has directed the work and arranged for this commencement service, at which time all awards earned during the year will be granted.

Every member who has completed one or more books in either of these courses is expected to be present Sunday morning. Seats will be reserved for the entire class in the center section of the main auditorium. The class will assemble in the prayer meeting room immediately after Sunday school—promptly at 10:45 a. m., where the processional will be formed.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—The malady of the mysterious unidentified girl found in a faint in the union station last week who has baffled efforts to learn her name, is 90 per cent fake and 10 per cent hysteria, according to Dr. Clarence Neyman, psychiatrist of the Northwestern Medical school.

Dr. Neyman has made two attempts by hypnotism to solve the question of her identity. Each time she seemed to pass readily under the spell and answer questions, none of which developed any clues.

OUTLINE FORBES' DEFENSE

Alleged Bribe of $15,000 a Fake and Physically Impossible Is Claim

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. — (AP) — Counsel for Charles R. Forbes declared late today that it would be shown during Forbes' trial for defrauding the government that the story of Elias H. Mortimer, giving Forbes $10,000 in a Chicago hotel as part of $15,000 obtained from a contractor interested in government contracts, was entirely untrue and a "physical impossibility."

The count in the indictment against Forbes and J. W. Thompson which charges that Forbes gave Mortimer, for Thompson, a list of sites selected for veterans' hospitals, likewise is baseless, it was declared by Colonel James W. Easby-Smith, Forbes' counsel, in delivering his opening statement to the jury late today.

TRIAL GETS UNDER WAY

Taking of Testimony in Forbes Case Delayed Over Thanksgiving

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—(INS)—The trial of Col. Charles Forbes, former head of the United States veterans' bureau, and John W. Thompson, Chicago and St. Louis contractor on charges of bribery and conspiracy to defraud the government in hospital construction, got formally under way today with the opening arguments.

Indications were taking of testimony would not start until after Thanksgiving. Virtually all of today's session, it was said, would be occupied with the addresses of counsel.

The first witness to be called probably will be Elias A. Mortimer former close friend of Forbes, who, the indictment charges, acted as gobetween for Forbes and hospital contractors He is expected to repeat his testimony given before the senate investigating committee, in which he told of having delivered a check for $5,000 to Forbes while he was in Thompson's employ. This is the specific transaction on which the charges against Forbes and Thompson are based.

Red Heel Torture Of Soviets Told By Greek Sailors

Famine Is Predicted In Parts Of Russia This Winter

ATTACK GEORGIANS

Wholesale Slaughters Reported Together With Outrages

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 26.—Officers and crew of the Greek steamer Margarita, arriving here today 40 days out from Pita, Russia, on the Black Sea, with manganese ore, told tales of cruelty and outrages against the president of the state of Georgia in the soviet empire. The vessel touched at Pita ten days after wholesale murder of Georgians, whose population of that unfortunate country is said to be beneath the red heel of Russia.

A famine is predicted in parts of Russia this winter, food being scarce.

The Greek seamen report that the Russian reds are conducting a campaign of extermination against the Georgians. A huge mound just outside of Pita bears mute evidence to the holocaust of 450 Pitans who dug their own grave at the point of red guns and then were executed.

RUNS THE SOCIAL SCALE.

Noblemen and Mechanics Sit in Swedish Chamber.

STOCKHOLM, Nov.—Nothing short of an American jury can compare with the newly elected personnel of the second chamber of the Swedish Riksdag for variety of occupation and social status. The list of members contains more than ninety different titles to describe the pursuits and positions of the 230 persons constituting the full membership.

The social-democrats gained enough strength to dictate a new cabinet headed by the veteran statesman, Hjalmar Branting, who has twice before been social-democrat premier of Sweden.

Among his cabinet members are F. V. Thorsson, minister of finance, who rose from shoemaker's apprentice to his present place at the king's council table. Per Albin Hanson began his career as a grocer's boy and is now minister of defense.

But the stories of obscure beginnings are no more fascinating than a perusal of the titles by which the present members of the second chamber describe themselves. They show blacksmithe and iron workers side by side with admirals and university professors. Farm hands, shoemakers and stone masons rub elbows with noblemen, governors, army officers of high rank, prominent lawyers and judges.

No less than seventy-two describe themselves as proprietors of farms. The list contains twenty editors, eleven teachers and professors, nine carpenters and cabinet makers, four locomotive engineers and firemen and several other railroad employes.

Other occupations selected at handom from the list are: mechanician, chaplain, baker, miller, glass blower, clergyman, physician, merchant, dairyman, gardener, mail carrier and accountant. Of the three women members, one is a trained nurse, one a photographer and one sets herself down as "wife." There is one baron, one count and several other noblemen of Sweden's bluest blood.

He decided to try it on a friend, one J. Murphy, by placing a bottle on top of Murphy's head. Lancaster stood off several paces and fired from a .38 automatic. Murphy will recover from a wounded knee.
