GIANT BRUSH FIRE SWEEPS TOWARD PACIFIC — Huge flames leap from the hillside adjacent to the coast highway and the Pacific Ocean as a major brush fire continued out of control early Saturday in the hills inland from Malibu, in southern California. Hundreds of fire fighters were meeting success in keeping the flames from stores and homes lining the highway, but damage to homes in the hills was severe.

Blazing Brushland Fire Moves Across California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whipped by hot winds, a wall of flame roared across the Santa Monica Mountains north of here Saturday, destroying hundreds of homes and cabins and burning thousands of acres of brushland.

Residents fled their expensive homes as the mammoth blaze, completely out of control, swept through the tinder-dry canyons and hillsides of Malibu and Chatsworth to the Pacific Ocean.

More than 63,000 acres were blackened, about 150 homes and many more cabins destroyed, and some 400 homes and business buildings damaged.

Temperatures were in the 90s. Wind gusts exceeded 50 miles per hour.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, clad in blue jeans and a T-shirt, directed fire-fighting operations at his ranch in the fire area.

Reagan ordered his ranch stripped of its furnishings and evacuated several horses and other livestock. Still clad in his work clothes, Reagan praised firemen who turned flames from his property with a hastily built backfire.

Until early Saturday, the rampaging fire storm had been two huge fires that started Friday morning. They joined near Calabasas, about 30 miles northwest of Los Angeles, and raced through the hills, skirting populous central and eastern San Fernando Valley.

The Malibu-Chatsworth was the largest of many fires that burned out of control Saturday in under-dry brush throughout California.

More than 400 residents and 200 firemen suffered minor burns and smoke inhalation in the Malibu-Chatsworth fire. No deaths were reported.

It was the state's worst fire since November, 1961, when 424 houses in Bel-Air and Brentwood were destroyed.

Report On Campus Unrest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here at a glance are major findings by the Presidential Commission on Campus Unrest released Saturday.

The first step in preventing future campus violence and creating understanding rests squarely with the President of the United States.

"Only the President has the platform and prestige to urge all Americans, at once, to step back from the battlelines into which they are forming."

The President must seek to convince public officials and protesters alike that divisive and insulting rhetoric is dangerous.

"In the current political campaign and through the years ahead, the President should insist that no one play irresponsible politics with the issue of campus unrest."

The federal government should review its current policies to assure nothing threatens the independence or quality of higher education.

"... Nothing is more important than an end to the war in Indochina."

Students must avoid violence and recognize their responsibilities as citizens of a nation founded on tolerance and diversity.

Those students insisting on violence must be quickly expelled and prosecuted.

Universities have failed to preserve order and to discipline those who were disruptive or violent. Some faculty members have encouraged, or at least tolerated, disruptive acts — and those that have should be removed from the campuses.

The National Guard and police have often been unprepared and poorly trained to handle violence. The result has sometimes been "uncontrolled violence" on the part of authorities.

If the practice of sending civil authorities onto campuses armed only to kill is not changed, tragedy will come again.

"Shoulder weapons except for tear gas launchers are very rarely needed on the college campus; they should not be used except as emergency equipment in the face of sniper fire or armed resistance justifying them."

Students who bomb and burn are criminals. So are authorities who needlessly shoot or assault students. And any American who applauds such criminal acts must share in their evil.

Reviewing the . . .

Big Spring Week

. . . with Joe Pickle

Politics and weather appeared to be on the opposite ends of the see-saw here last week. While temperatures dipped to an unseasonable 47 degrees Wednesday and down to the low 50's Saturday, the political pot show signs of simmering after an unprecedented long period of lukewarmness. State office candidates making appearances here during the week were Gov. Preston Smith, asking for his job for another term, and Lloyd Bentsen, wanting to be U.S. senator. Both are Democratic nominees. Tempo of the campaign may be expected to step up progressively through October.

While the two northers which taxed the thin blood of summer lacked a lot getting down to the frost zone, they nevertheless did cause agricultural concerns. Foremost is the possibility that these repeated early frosts may presage a premature early killing frost. They had the immediate effect of slowing down growth of the cotton crop just when warm weather is needed. Although Big Spring got some heavy showers, there still was no significant rainfall over the lakesheds.

Our story Friday warning that your car inspection sticker may be in need of renewal this month may have created some confusion. The number which tells you if it's your month is the big black number — and if it's a bold 9, that's September.

The City of Big Spring got welcome news in the second quarter sales tax report. The city's share (from a one-cent tax) amounted to $98,106, up slightly from estimates and 20 per cent over the same quarter a year ago. A continuation of this pattern could help the city budget, which, (See THE WEEK, Page 3-A, Col. 1)

Last Of Hijack Victims Freed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Radio Amman announced Saturday that all remaining hostages from three hijacked airliners—believed to be 38 Americans—had been freed by Palestinian guerrillas and were in the hands of Jordanian authorities.

Later, an official Egyptian spokesman in Cairo said all the hostages had been handed over to the Egyptian Embassy in Amman and were free. They are the last of 54 hostages held by the guerrillas since the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine — PFLP — masterminded the hijack of the three western jetliners to Jordan Sept. 6 and 9.

Sixteen British, Swiss and West German hostages released in Jordan Friday arrived in London Saturday night, smiling but weary, aboard a British Royal Air Force plane.

The Popular Front announced at 3:30 p.m. (9:30 a.m. EDT) Saturday that the remaining hostages would be released "within 24 hours without any conditions."

The statement said "all the remaining hostages were safe as of last night."

Amman radio broadcasts monitored in Beirut gave the names of 23 hostages in Jordanian hands, but reception was poor and monitors missed some details.

Earlier, an Egyptian embassy official in Amman told newsmen in the Jordanian capital that the captives would be handed over to the International Red Cross through Egypt's embassy in Amman "without conditions."

The hostages were among some 400 passengers and crew aboard the three hijacked western airliners. Most of them were released and the planes were blown up.

Hussein Names Palestinian To Prime Minister Post

By The Associated Press

King Hussein of Jordan named a new government Saturday, hoping to placate his Arab critics, who from Cairo accused him of plotting to liquidate the Palestine guerrillas. They also charged that Jordan's army violated the cease-fire.

Hussein named Ahmed Toukan, chief of the royal court and former deputy prime minister, as prime minister. Toukan is a Palestinian but the king kept military men in key positions. It was guerrilla rage over the naming of a military regime that helped touch off the civil war last week.

The king replied angrily to a charge from Cairo by President Jaafar el Numeiri of Sudan, who said his peace mission in Amman was fired on Friday, blamed Hussein for this, and declared: "We are convinced there is a plot by the Jordanian authorities to liquidate the Palestine Liberation Organization."

Numeiri, who arranged the cease-fire Friday between Hussein and Yasser Arafat, guerrilla leader who heads the Palestinian Liberation organization, echoed the charge made earlier in the day by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt, who accused Jordan of violating the cease-fire and trying to liquidate the guerrillas.

Cairo radio said Hussein would fly to the Egyptian capital Sunday to talk with Nasser and other Arab leaders. It did not say whether the trip would be made on his initiative but after the day's exchanges it seemed a confrontation was clearly needed to clarify the situation in Jordan.

Hussein was conciliatory in his reply to Nasser, saying his army had observed the cease-fire "despite endless provocations" by the Palestinian guerrillas, groups of whom were trying "to sabotage the truce."

But replying to Numeiri's charges, Hussein in the message to Nasser accused the Sudanese president of "falsifying the facts" in making "grave charges against me and my army."

"I appeal you, brother Nasser, and to all the other Arab kings and presidents assembled in Cairo to prevent the situation from plunging to a new abyss in the conspiracy against Jordan."

Hussein denied he had any intention of liquidating the Palestine People—who make up more than half the population—as Numeiri had charged.

Hussein named Toukan to succeed the government of Gen. Mohammed Daoud, who resigned in Cairo last week as prime minister and sought asylum in Libya. The king accepted the Daoud Cabinet's resignation Friday.

Named with Toukan was a 13-man Cabinet, including six military officers held over from Daoud's government. Military men still hold the key Defense and Interior Ministry posts.

The formation of the new Cabinet does not change the position of the Palestinian resistance or alter the general situation in Jordan, a spokesman for the Palestine Liberation Organization said in a Cairo broadcast.

"We must now move into a new phase of reconstruction and unity," Hussein told Toukan in a letter. "We appoint you to form a new government . . . to deal with the traces of the black insurrection, heal the wounds and return normal life to the country."

Toukan's Cabinet should also re-establish fraternal feelings between the army and "honorable guerrillas," the king added.

The government should implement a four-point program reached on Wednesday between Hussein and captured guerrilla leaders to settle the civil war, Hussein told Toukan. This calls for Palestine guerrillas to recognize Hussein's sovereignty and to take up positions along the border with Israel.

Nixon Orders U.S. Aid For Jordanian Civilians

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon ordered emergency relief for Jordan's civilian casualties Saturday and also indicated the United States will provide Jordan with more arms assistance.

Announcing an initial $5-million relief allotment for victims of Jordan's bloody civil strife, the President named the new undersecretary of state, John N. Irwin, to head the U.S. relief effort and stressed the humanitarian aim.

"There's enormous suffering in Amman and other parts of Jordan," Nixon told newsmen. "Women, children, many others are innocent casualties of this struggle, as is always the case in a civil war," he said. "We think action must be taken immediately."

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler indicated the $5 million—for items such as food, medicine and transportation—is a first installment on what eventually may amount to a much bigger relief program.

There is still considerable uncertainty and lack of information about just how much outside assistance Jordan will need to recover from her war wounds.

Irwin said reports tell of shortages of water and food in Jordan. Besides the U.S. government effort, he said voluntary agencies will be helping as will other governments and international groups.

King Hussein has asked for some 2,700 tons of food, the State Department disclosed Friday, as well as for military aid.

Military Alert Is Modified

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Saturday modified major military precautions to cope with the Mideast crisis by relaxing the alert status of some 17,000 American paratroopers at home and abroad.

The Defense Department announced that orders have gone to the 82d at Ft. Bragg, N.C., and two battalions of the 509th Airborne Infantry at Mainz, West Germany, to "reduce the readiness posture" that has been in force for a week.

Rallies, Parades Throughout Italy Protest Nixon's Visit

ROME (AP) — Thousands of Communist-led demonstrators, some of them dragging American flags in the streets and carrying portraits of Yasser Arafat, marched in Rome and Milan Saturday night to protest President Nixon's visit to Italy.

He is due Sunday.

An estimated 15,000 leftists, called out by the Communist party, filled St. John Lateran Square in Rome, traditional rallying point for the largest Communist party in the West, following a march of over a mile.

Ten thousand demonstrators marched in the industrial center of Milan in the north, Italy's largest city after Rome. In addition to portraits of Arafat, the Palestine guerrilla leader, some Milan youths carried pictures of Mao Tse-tung. Placards denounced the United States and Israel, and some condemned the Soviet Union as well.

Lesser demonstrations were held in 29 other Italian cities as part of the Communist party's long-planned anti-Nixon campaign.

About 500 leftist students gathered at Rome University.

Although 12,000 policemen were positioned in the city, only four police vans, each with 10-15 men, made their appearance in Piazza Esedra as the march got under way without incident.

The President's visit includes talks with Italian leaders, Pope Paul VI and a trip to the U.S.

6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. Later Nixon will visit four other European countries.

The demonstrators held up signs reading: "Nixon: Even criminals die." "Italy is not an American province," and "The Mediterranean must stop being an American arsenal at the service of U.S. policy."

Police headquarters said 5,000 carabinieri—national police—were brought to Rome to bolster the 7,000-man capital police force for Nixon's visit.

A special medical team has been set up to deal with any medical emergencies during the visit. It is headed by Dr. Pietro Valdoni, Pope Paul's surgeon.

Nixon came to Rome on Feb. 28, 1969.

FAVORABLE REACTION COULD BRING ELECTION

Fire District Up For Airing Monday

By LINDA CROSS

Whether further negotiations on rural fire protection between city and county commissioners will be pursued should be determined at Monday's public hearing on a petition to establish a rural fire district. The hearing is set for 9 a.m. Monday in County Commissioners Court.

If the plan for a fire district is approved in Monday's hearing, it will go before rural voters in a county-wide referendum. If the fire district is organized, it will have the power to levy a maximum of a 3 cent tax per $100 valuation on rural property, according to Jack Watkins and Lanny Hamby, who introduced the plan in Commissioners Court. Watkins said that such a levy would furnish the district with $61,843 in revenue to support its operations.

Rural fire protection has become a major local issue in recent weeks. County and city fathers met in a luncheon at the Settles Hotel Aug. 27 to discuss the possibilities of a cooperative plan for rural fire protection. At that meeting, a joint city-county committee was formed to study the matter and submit possible plans to both governing bodies.

LIABILITY PROBLEM

Members of the committee are County Attorney Bill Eysen, County Commissioners Simon Terrazas, Bill Tune and Bill Crocker, City Attorney Herb Prouty, City Commissioners Wade Choate, and Garner McAdams, and City Manager Larry Crow. The committee last met Thursday and is scheduled to meet again at 2 p.m. Monday.

Liability for men and equipment has been the chief obstacle to any agreement.

"To say that we would be liable for damages is a better statement. It would be better if the county could pay the city a set monthly or annual fee for rural fire protection. The fee would be subject to revision," said Judge Porter.

Of the fire district, Judge Porter said that a petition had signers from all areas of the county. If the fire district is formed, it can enter a fire agreement with the city or maintain its own men and equipment, based on the revenue it obtains from rural property. As a taxing agency, the district can either assess and levy its own taxes or accept the city's valuations and allow taxation to be handled by the county tax assessor-collector's office, said Judge Porter.

SPECIAL ELECTION

"If the district is approved Monday, it will have to go before the voters in a county-wide election. I had first thought that it could go before them during the Nov. 3 general elections, but I have since thought that it would be better either before the general elections or afterwards. If we don't have a special election, it might not get the attention it deserves," said Judge Porter.

"It is possible from a legal point of view to execute the contract. The problem now is an agreement on cost," said County Attorney Eysen. Eysen said that the committee has discussed several plans and has discussed costs, although no plan with definite dollars and cents figures has been derived.

"One plan is that the city would obtain insurance for an interim contract to take care of the employees. The county would pay a fee and furnish a truck. The Fire District is pivotal to any city-county agreement at this time," said Eysen.

City Manager Larry Crow said that the committee has discussed costs and has come up with a tentative agreement to be considered by both sides.

$1,500 MONTHLY

The plan, according to Crow, would cost the county $1,500 monthly, and the county would furnish a truck. Initially, the city would use one of the trucks that the county has purchased.

"The $1,500 would cover salaries and costs. For the present, we are talking of adding two men to the fire department. If we added three men that would mean there would be a man on duty around the clock, academically speaking. This would allow for rotation and time off. There are 50 men on duty now," said Crow.

"The county is liable for the men and equipment as soon as they leave the station on a county call. It is not yet resolved whether the city would answer just structural fires or structural and grassfires," said Crow.

City Fire Chief H. V. Crocker has said that he would prefer to handle all fires, county-wide and not be bound by the five-mile radius plan that had been mentioned prior to the luncheon meeting.

Chill Competes With C-City Fair

COLORADO CITY (SC) — Dampness and the fall chill lessened the crowds attending the final day Saturday of the Mitchell County Fair. Approximately 2,000 attended the fair's opening Thursday at the county fair grounds west of Colorado City on US 80, according to Chamber of Commerce manager Seton Pickens.

Many persons braved the cooler weather Saturday to attend the Westbrook 4-H playday which was held in an arena adjoining the fair grounds. The carnival also attracted its share of fair-goers.

Flood Threats In Some Texas Areas

The Rio Grande rose sharply Saturday below Del Rio after a cold front doused much of South and Central Texas with downpours and covered the state with crisp, damp and cloudy weather.

Flash flood warnings were issued for areas around San Antonio, Austin and Del Rio.

Texas felt its first freeze of the fall—32 degrees at dawn at Dalhart, high in the Panhandle.

The Weather Bureau said rains of four to six inches fell in the Del Rio-Eagle Pass watershed of the Rio Grande.

At Del Rio itself, jubilant ranchers measured 5.48 inches of rain by 2 p.m. in downpours which began at 3 p.m. Friday.

The 2 p.m. readings gave Del Rio 8.80 inches for September—more rain than it had received in the previous eight months by .36 inch.

A rise of eight feet was indicated for the boundary river at Eagle Pass Sunday morning. A rise of five to six feet was indicated for Laredo Monday morning.

"All interests along the Rio Grande from Laredo to Del Rio are advised to take necessary precautions as soon as possible," the Weather Bureau said.

Heavy rains of over two inches fell in the San Antonio area, making low water crossings hazardous. The Weather Bureau said heavy rains of one to three inches were continuing in the San Antonio area and "flash flooding is likely along the creeks and numerous low water crossings."

The Hill Country north and west of Austin was drenched by rains that measured up to three inches and more, and flash flooding was reported.

Around Del Rio, the hardest rain fell over the south and east parts of Val Verde County, including Del Rio and its immediate vicinity.

By noon, the cold front had covered virtually all of Texas except a strip southeast of a line from Laredo to Lufkin. Rain persisted much of Saturday in large parts of South and East Texas.

Nearly all skies were cloudy though those in the Panhandle cleared.

Behind the front, temperatures usually were in the 40s and 50s.

'Expect A Miracle' Is Church Theme

Expect a miracle when Christ comes into your life was the theme of the personal testimony given in First United Methodist Church Friday evening by 75 church members. Tonight, witnesses will again tell of Christ's role in their lives.

Their belief in Christ has changed their lives according to their testimony which launched the weekend Lay Witness Mission. During the preparation of the mission, church members placed bumper stickers reading "Expect a Miracle."

Saturday was a time of intra-church witnessing, climaxed by a service of evaluation and sharing in the evening. Dwayne Lynch, a Ralls department store owner, is conducting the mission. Lynch's own church was profoundly changed by a similar lay ministry, which practice spread to other churches in the community.

The Lay Witness Mission was designed to assist interested Christians in becoming more effective witnesses for Christ. The mission is an effort to bring the church family together to hear laymen tell what Christ has done in their lives. The object of the mission is to reach out into the entire community in reconciliation and love.

Part of the mission was devoted to the consideration of Ben Campbell Johnson's "The Great Discovery." In his writing, Johnson tells of a sense of need, a spirit of quest, a point of commitment, a life of continuous growth, and of seven basic meditations.

Today, lay witness teams will be in all Sunday school classes, and Lynch will speak at 11 a.m. The mission will reach its peak tonight at 6 when the church family again gathers for an evaluation of the mission, and to testify of their blessings through Christ. Members of Wesley United Methodist Church are operating the First Methodist nursery to allow all members to attend the mission.

THE WEEK

by the way, is due for public hearing at 5:15 p.m. Wednesday.

the council may lick its calf again.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District has set Oct. 15 as the date for opening bids on construction of a new spillway for Moss Creek Lake. It is estimated to cost around a quarter of a million dollars. Another construction job Howard County Junior College hopes will come up is a $800,000 vocational-technical building, but one gets the uneasy feeling the state education agency is giving us the old stall on our share of the money, despite our No. 1 place on the list. The possibility of another job before the end of the year is the widening of the west end of the Andrews highway in Howard County.

The Oct. 23 graduation exercises all of a sudden are shaping as something big at Webb AFB. First off, there is confirmation that the famed Thunderbirds, the AF acrobatic team, will put on a show. Already an AF band had been booked in for the occasion. Last week, Cong. Omar Burleson sent word that the Army parachute team, the Golden Knights, will be on hand, too.

City commissioners voted last week to participate in payments to the employee retirement system on a 2-1 ratio instead of the current matching 1-1, in order to bring benefits up to more realistic levels. While not necessarily quarrelling with the objective, Jack Watkins took issue with the method, threatening suit because no advance notice had been given. The council contended this was not necessary because the proposal was called up from the "table," but the ground is so uncertain,

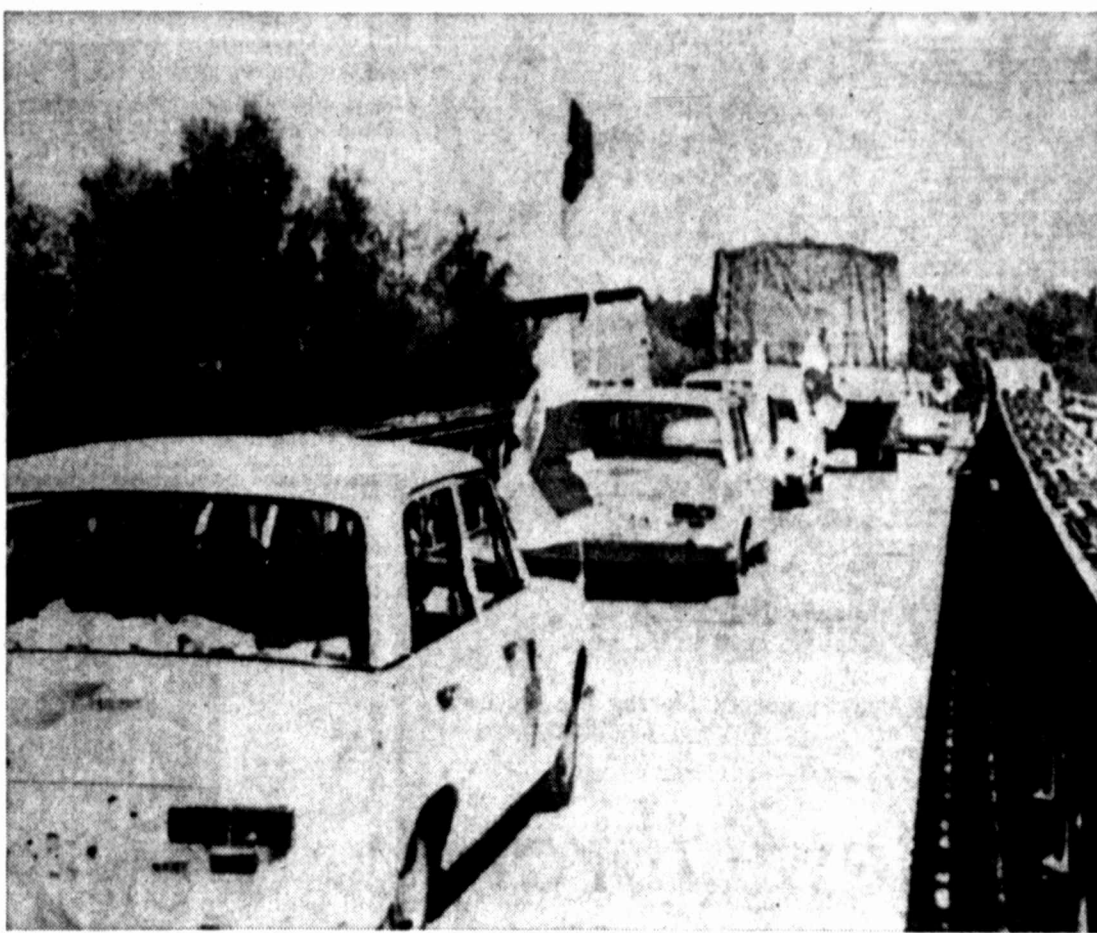

Police are beginning to get in their new blazer-type uniforms, and officers who have them are sharp in appearance. Maybe it's a personal fetish, but we've always felt that law enforcement personnel ought to get away from that cowboy syndrome in dress. They are, after all, in a profession.

United Fund divisions are beginning to swing into action, and this week will see activity popping on every front. Ken Perry, general chairman, has his campaign structure well organized; now the thing is for workers to work, and for everybody to have a fair share, and we do mean FAIR share.

The Big Spring Independent School District trustees last week adopted a $144,173,480 million tax roll, which, at the same rates, is calculated to yield $2,450,948.

A practical course for ministers in this pressure-packed world is coming up in weekly sessions from Oct. 15-Nov. 19 at the Big Spring State Hospital. Chaplain Lee Butler will direct the clinical course designed to help ministers help people in emotional trouble.

We can't recall (since the old days) a Big Spring High School team making so many long break-away runs as occurred against Snyder Friday evening. Some were exciting, others sensational. Without taking away credit, it should be observed, however, that we leaked badly on pass defense and never seemed able to solve the riddle of the draw. Nevertheless, we have a fine chance to work Abilene over here Friday.

AID FOR A WAR-TORN COUNTRY — An International Red Cross convoy of cars and trucks laden with food and medical supplies Friday crosses the Allenby Bridge from Israel into Jordan. Jordan was reported short of food and medicine after days of intense fighting between Palestinian guerrillas and Jordanian regulars.

Oil Man Charles Urschel Dies After Long Illness

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—late San Antonio oilman-rancher-explorer-philanthropist Charles F. Urschel, who moved from Oklahoma to Texas after he was kidnapped and ransomed by the Machinegun Kelly gang nearly 40 years ago, died here Saturday.

Urschel, who was in his 80s, died at a local hospital after a lengthy illness.

He was kidnapped from his Oklahoma City home in 1933 by a gang led by George "Machinegun" Kelly and ransomed for $200,000. He moved here afterward and avoided publicity from then on.

The retired oilman's wife died only last spring.

Urschel was a founding trustee of the Southwest Research Institute and the Southwest Foundation for Research and Education, both of San Antonio.

He was the stepfather of the Postal Service Board Selected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has taken the first major step toward turning over the U.S. Postal Service to an independent corporation-like federal agency, naming a nine-member board of governors that will be in charge of running it.

Postmaster General Winton M. Blount said the board named by Nixon Friday represents all sections of the nation and "provides the necessary expertise to direct the postal service toward a sound future."

The nine governors will decide the exact date the postal service will be reshaped into an independent agency, thus fulfilling Nixon's scheme for reform of the 181-year-old service.

Under terms of the bill approved by Congress, conversion must take place within a year.

Blount was absent from the list, but that did not rule out his chances of remaining postmaster general. The nine board members will choose a postmaster general as well as a deputy, boosting the size of the board to 11 members.

Nixon withheld his choices for the five-member postal rate commission that will determine charges for mail service.

The nine nominees were selected for staggered terms ranging from one to nine years. Eventually all board members will serve nine years, subject to mandatory retirement at age 70.

Selected for the nine-year term was M.A. Wright, 59, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Humble Oil and Refining Co., Houston, Tex.

The others, listed in order of decreasing length of term, are: Patrick E. Haggerty, 56, president, Texas Instruments Inc., Dallas; Charles H. Coddling, 51, rancher from Foraker, Okla.; Crocker Nevin, 47, chief executive officer, Marine Midland Grace Trust Co., New York; George E. Johnson, 42, president of Johnson Products Co., Chicago.

Also Andrew David Holt, 66, former president of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville; Theodore William Braun, 68, president of the California consulting firm of Braun and Co.; Frederick Russell Kappel, 68, director, American Telephone & Telegraph Co., New York, and William J. Curtin, 39, member of the Washington, D.C., law firm of Morgan, Lewis and Bockius.

Rabies Outbreak Feared At C-City

COLORADO CITY (SC) — The Colorado City veterinarian, Dr. J. D. Williams, warned Friday of a possible outbreak of rabies on the outskirts of Colorado City.

Dr. Williams said that care should be used in approaching any pet or domestic animal showing an abrupt change in disposition, "whether dog, cat, calf or horse."

Mike McClure, 15, and Lewis Vowell, living just outside the city limits of Colorado City, are both taking the painful 14 shots, given to ward off rabies.

Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob McClure, living on the south edge of Colorado City, was bitten by a skunk while sleeping outside of his home. The skunk was checked and found to be rabid.

Vowell, local farmer stockman, attempted to treat a sick calf "the first part of the week" and was advised by Dr. Williams that the calf had rabies.

Dr. Williams said that the disease was being spread by wildlife, and said that people on the outskirts of Colorado City should be particularly careful to be sure that all pets have their rabies shots.

Opening Of New Library Is Set Tuesday Morning

By LINDA CROSS

Throw away your old library card! Everyone will get shiny new white cards to go along with the new Howard County Library facility when it opens for business at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The library, formerly home of the U.S. post office at Fourth and Scurry, was deeded by the federal government to the county when the new federal building was opened. In it is preserved the famous Peter Hurd mural, his first fresco.

As the patron enters the new library, the bright expanse of turquoise carpeting catches the eye. All areas of the library, including the new children's story room downstairs, are fully carpeted. The walls are paneled half-way up in dark wood and the rest in a light, cloth wall-covering. The main reading area is brightly lit with skylights and lighting set into the ceiling.

GENERAL LAYOUT

The furniture is a blend of light and dark wood and bright vinyl upholstery. A lounge area has been formed to the right of the front entrance with couches and chairs grouped near a rack of current magazines and newspapers. The children's reading section is also to the right of the entrance. The shelves are of light-colored wood and the miniature chairs and reading tables have a very dark finish. The table-tops are slanted with a small ledge to rest books against.

There are tiny chairs and blackboards in the story room, over which Mrs. Noemi Vera will preside. Mrs. Vera will begin the story hours again Oct. 7 at 10 a.m. Storyhours will be on Wednesday each week instead of Tuesday, said Mrs. Vera.

Children's and juvenile literature has been separated from adult literature. According to library assistant Rebecca Taylor, there is now much more room for expansion in the children's and juvenile area than before.

A listening room equipped check-out counter. These books will be changed periodically. A combination lamp and world globe donated by the 1965 Hyperion Club has been placed in the front area of the library. The globe rests in a dark wooden stand, and the lighting causes the globe to glow from the inside.

STUDY CARRELS

Study carrels (compartments) have been added also to the new library. The six carrels have been placed in a study area behind the non-fiction shelves.

"Students may bring either electric or manual typewriters to use back here," said Mrs. Vera. Miss Taylor said that the carrels were equipped with outlets for the electric typewriters.

The area just outside the old post office vault has been converted into a conference room available to any club or civic group. The room has been paneled and outfitted with a long table and several turquoise upholstered chairs.

According to County Judge Lee Porter, formal dedication of the new library will be sometime in the latter part of November.

Regular hours for the new library will be from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. on week days except for Thursday. On Thursday, the library will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. The library will be open on Saturday mornings from 8:30 until 12 noon.

STUDENT TERRORISTS, TRIGGER-HAPPY OFFICERS BOTH GET BLAME

Leadership Held Key To Curbing Of Campus Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the President's Commission on Campus Unrest told President Nixon Saturday he must exercise greater leadership if violence is to be curbed and tensions eased between young and old.

Chairman William Scranton commented shortly before release of the commission's report to the President which blames government actions and inactions at all levels for the crisis on the college campuses. Both trigger-happy officers and student terrorists are called criminals.

The report accuses some law enforcement officers of unwarranted harshness but also asserts some school administrators have been too lenient.

In urging Nixon to assert moral leadership to achieve an understanding between opposing factions, Scranton, Republican former governor of Pennsylvania, said at a news conference: "Up to now—since the episodes of this spring—there has not been the kind of leadership to bring about the kind of reconciliation we have been talking about."

Scranton's statement pointed the finger more firmly at Nixon than did the words of the report.

The nine-member commission established last spring soon after the killings at Kent State in Ohio and Jackson State in Mississippi called for an end to the Vietnam war, and said this to

Nixon in its published report:

"It is imperative that the President bring us together before more lives are lost and more property destroyed and more universities disrupted. We recommend that the President seek to convince public officials and protesters alike that divisive and insulting rhetoric is dangerous."

Appearing at the news conference with the entire commission, Scranton said attempts to make political issues of hair styles and modes of dress are "rather infantile and kindergarten." The remark came in response to a question about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's commentaries on students.

Presidential aide Robert

Finch said Nixon already has implemented every recommendation of the commission in whole or in part. As for asserting moral leadership to lessen discord, Finch said, "I think he has taken steps in that direction."

As to the recommendation calling for a less volatile form of rhetoric, Finch at first said he didn't think the commission was referring to Agnew. Under pressure from reporters, Finch then said:

"You'll have to ask Gov. Scranton that. I'm not going to pass judgment on individuals in this administration."

Scranton declined to point specifically at Agnew, but said, "It's certainly not helpful for the vice president or anybody to make some of the comments made earlier this year."

The report states only a small minority of students, faculty members and agitators are bent on destruction of universities.

Nixon has not read the report. Scranton said the President plans to read it and confer with him after the presidential trip to Europe which begins Sunday.

A presidential aide said that when Scranton submitted the report Nixon told him, "I can assure you that your report will be controversial. I want to say don't worry about that. Worry if it's not controversial. We don't want a bunch of intellectual enunciations around here."

The report urges swift removal from campuses and vigorous prosecution of perpetrators of violence.

At the same time, the commission accused some authorities of abuse of power.

"Too many law enforcement officers have responded with unwarranted harshness and force in seeking to control disorder. Actions—and inactions—of government at all levels have contributed to campus unrest. The words of some political leaders have helped to inflame it."

"Law enforcement officers have too often reacted ineptly or overreacted. At times, their response has degenerated into uncontrolled violence."

The report came under attack even before it was made public, with some Republicans declaring the commission is packed with liberals who would try to whitewash the true picture of campus violence and excuse permissive college administrators.

However, the commission decries a weakening of disciplinary systems with the universities.

"At many universities today," the commission says, "student encounter little formal deterrence because university administrators and faculties have often failed to punish illegal acts."

The commission noted a study by the American Council on Education which found that faculty members were involved in the planning of over half the student protests which occurred. It adds:

"The relative freedom of students to act without fear of immediate serious consequences is reinforced by the partial survival of the custom of treating students as adolescents who may be forgiven their errors."

The commission reports American society as a whole, as well as campuses, has been divided by issues of war and peace. It recommends that Nixon take a lead in explaining to the American people the underlying causes of campus unrest.

To this end, nothing is more important than an end to the war in Indochina, the report says.

Cuban Hijack Pact Possible

MIAMI (AP) — Cuba's foreign minister Raul Roa said Saturday his government is willing to enter immediate agreement with the United States for reciprocal return of all boats and plane hijackers if no exceptions are made.

Roa made the offer in a statement read on all stations of the government-controlled Cuban radio monitored in Miami.

In the broadcast the Cuban government also revealed that the return from Cuba this week of Robert J. Labadie, a 27-year-old American hijacker, had been negotiated through secret diplomatic channels initiated by the United States Aug. 27.

The Cubans accused the United States of covering up the circumstances of the agreement which the Cuban radio said called for confining Labadie in a mental hospital.

Labadie's return was the first time the Cuban government had handed over directly to U.S. authorities any hijacker.

Roa's offer of direct talks on hijacking with the United States marked departure from the previous attitude of dealing only through third party government such as the Swiss.

Just Another Day, Until Bomb Threat

It was just an ordinary Saturday afternoon—that is until Big Spring police and Webb AFB security police received separate reports of bomb threats.

"There is a bomb in Hangar T-1," said the male voice to Webb officials about 7:20 p.m. Saturday. Security police, the fire department and office of special investigation agents searched the maintenance hangar located near the base operations center but could find no trace of a bomb.

"There is a bomb in your place, and it will go off in three minutes. I mean it," a caller told a Coronado Plaza Dairy Queen employee. The employee notified Larry Anderson, manager, who notified police.

"The call came in at 3 p.m., and we called the police at about 3:01, said Anderson. "They got out here and went over the place for about 30 minutes. They took the place apart, looked in the napkin holders, examined everything that had come in, and even examined the electrical wiring. They found nothing, absolutely nothing."

When the call came in, there were about 10 or 15 people in the restaurant and four cars loaded at the drive-up window, Anderson said. "It was nerve-racking. I had just gone home for a nap—what a rude awakening," said Anderson.

Rainfall Reports Vary In Area

Amounts of moisture accompanying the cooler temperatures in Big Spring and the surrounding areas Friday were varied. The Big Spring Experiment Station measured only .11 inch Friday; however, Texas Electric Service Company's switching station received 1.06 inch of rain Friday.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District's pumping station recorded .20 inch of moisture. Lake Spence reported .90 inch and 1 to 1.9 inch of rainfall was reported southeast of Big Spring.

Knott received a trace of rain Friday and Saturday, and Vealmore received 2 inch Friday. Elbow recorded .10 inch of rain, and Forsan received a trace.

MISSILE BASE?

Use Of New Cuban Naval Facilities Is Still Unclear

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said Saturday it will be some time yet before it is known how the Soviets intend to use new naval facilities in Cuba.

The White House served notice Friday that it views "with the utmost seriousness" the possibility that the Soviets may be building a base for missile-firing submarines at Cienfuegos, on Cuba's south coast.

U.S. policy since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis—reaffirmed by the Nixon administration—is to keep Soviet strategic weapons out of the Caribbean.

The officials said that although U.S. intelligence has spotted Soviet vessels moving barges and other equipment into Cienfuegos harbor recently, it is not yet clear whether the Reds are building an installation designed to support submarine operations.

U.S. intelligence is keeping a close watch, but there was no indication from the administration Saturday that the Cuban development had reached a crisis stage as far as Washington is concerned.

Some Washington authorities appeared surprised at the publicity given to the White House statement, which was made by an administration official in connection with briefing newsmen on President Nixon's trip to Europe.

SHE AND HER SHADOW — The U.S. aircraft carrier Saratoga, top, sailing with the 6th Fleet from the eastern Mediterranean to Naples, was led through the Strait of Messina by the Soviet destroyer of the Kashin class, which is shadowing the fleet movement. The vessels were sailing about a half a mile apart when they passed through the strait Saturday. President Nixon will board the carrier during his tour of Europe which starts today.

Today's program began with a 7:30 a.m. breakfast in the Civic House and was to be followed by a conference workshop on civic participation, world affairs, membership, public relations, finance and personal development. The program will conclude with a business meeting which will include the election of delegates and officers, the selection of a site for the next district meeting and a report of the resolutions committee.

Vice President Ky Changes Mind About Anti-War Rally

PARIS (AP) — South Vietnamese Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky said Saturday he would not visit the United States Oct. 3, as had been announced earlier, to address a "March for Victory" rally in Washington.

Shortly after making the statement, Ky met with Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's senior adviser on national security affairs, who came to Paris to confer with members of the U.S. delegation to the peace talks on the Viet Cong's 10-day-old "new peace initiative."

Officials said Kissinger's visit to Ky was a courtesy call.

Ky had accepted an invitation to address the rally sponsored by the Rev. Carl McIntire, but said diplomatic advice from Washington and Saigon changed his mind.

He made the disclosure during taping of the CBS-TV show "Face the Nation," to be broadcast Sunday. Ky is in Paris to "supervise" Saigon's peace conference team.

Several U.S. senators had protested Ky's planned visit and antiwar groups planned rallies to oppose the "March for Victory" and Ky's participation.

Informal sources said the decisive move was the arrival here Friday of Bui-Diem, Saigon's ambassador to Washington, who reminded Ky that McIntire did not have Nixon's blessing.

The informants said it was possibly Bui-Diem strongly conveyed official U.S. displeasure at the proposed Ky visit. Reached at his Collingswood, N.J., home, McIntire called the switch "international political blackmail."

He said, "We believe they've been trying to break this dear man. They've been sneaking around in the dark trying to stop us. Ky is our fellow combatant and we're not going to let Nixon deny us the principle of freedom of speech."

The National Hurricane Center ordered the gale warnings up at 7 p.m. EDT, from Marathon in the Florida Keys to Vero Beach.

"Emergency preparations to secure small craft and for protection against sustained winds up to 60 miles per hour in the warning area should be completed as fast as possible," the National Hurricane Center said.

The rapidly developing tropical disturbance built from a wave to a depression to a storm in just a few hours.

Greta was moving northwest about 14 miles per hour with winds of 45 m.p.h., the National Hurricane Center said.

The storm was forecast to continue moving northwest for 12 hours before beginning a gradual turn to the north.

"This should bring the center inland over South Florida near or just south of Miami about 8 a.m., Sunday," the Hurricane Center said.

"All interests should remain ready for fast action," the bulletin said.

Gale Warnings Hoisted For Tropical Storm Greta hand, is pegged at $1,904,265, which means that the negative balance will be reduced by $329, which is the margin of balance for the proposed budget. The general fund deficit (which is actually money borrowed from other city funds with a cash balance) had been $144,485 at the start of this fiscal year, and City Manager Larry Crow said there was a good possibility that this could be cut substantially below the $38,335 estimated for the end of the fiscal year. The general fund revenue figure is a net one after the transfer of $38,335 to the interest and sinking fund.

SAME TAX RATE
In arriving at the proposed budget, the city commission has held to the current tax rate of $1.40 per $100 assessed valuation. The projected tax levy for the year is $987,137, on a roll of $70,509,750, which represents 60 per cent of the true value. Net yield of the current roll is set at $890,000, based on a 90.15 per cent collection. The distribution of the tax is (12.58 cents) $80,000 to interest and sinking fund and (1.2741 cents) $810,000 to general fund.

The proposed budget envisions $95,000 revenue for the interest and sinking fund, which is considerably down from a year ago when the amount was $143,000, but this year the bond repayment schedule is $16,000 less, and interest charges also are down $4,000. This is reflected in interest and sinking fund expenditures of $155,869 as compared with $175,779 for the current year. At the end of the projected fiscal year, the fund will still have a balance of $79,586. At the end of the fiscal year, the city will owe $1,068,000 in general obligation (tax supported) bonds.

OTHER ADDITIONS
There are several reasons for increased expenditures. For one thing, hours of policemen have been reduced from 44 to 40 per week, and the hours of firemen will be reduced from 72 to 63. The city plans to begin extending commercial type of centralized garbage container collection to the residential area and has made provision for 325 containers, accounting for an increase of $9,000, which will be more than offset by a proposed 25 cents per month increase in the garbage collection fee estimated to yield $7,800. If the idea works, the container plan will expand over all the city.

The budget also contains an appropriation for the water line to serve the Intech industrial facility, and it is planning to spend $10,600 to clean and rehabilitate a digester tank. Almost a like amount will be used to operate the Hayes unit to bring the city's effluent up to purity standards required by the Texas Water Quality board. Increased sale of effluent to Cosden will result.

MORE INSURANCE
The budget also includes $8,500 more in insurance outlay to protect itself under the new state Tort Claims act. A new item is $5,000 for participation in the city-county museum.

The parks and recreation proposal of $60,000 is up $4,400, due principally to provision for sealing the deteriorating paving in Comanche Trail Park. Two substantial increases have to do with the city's employees. One is a $20 per month across-the-board pay increase, effective Jan. 1, intended to partly cover the cost of living. This will add up to $40,000. Also included in the recommended budget is $22,600 as the city's additional share in increasing its share of participation in the retirement fund from 1-1 to 2-1. The participation applies only on salaries up to $7,200 per annum. Merit pay increases for the police also are included.

There may be some adjustments of service fees, for instance the $1 water cut-off charge will be raised to $3 to be more realistic and yield $1,500 more, and the whole matter of charges for services will come under continuous scrutiny.

CUTS MADE
A number of cuts were made from the original budget proposals. For instance, an administrative assistant to aid the city manager in handling of state-federal programs and in emergency service, was passed over, as was the proposal that the municipal auditorium be air conditioned (which some think will cost upward of $130,000). After an interview with the Chamber of Commerce Committee on governmental economy, the commission executed reductions of $29,750. One item of $500 for a second new mower at the city golf course was deleted; certain cemetery improvements of $1,350 were put off; $1,500 was taken from the water department; $5,000 set up for the operation of the Cosden County Club, which is due to be given to the city, was deleted. The proposed $44,000 additional cost for the retirement system was reduced to $22,600.

WATER-SEWER
Other sources of projected revenue, over which the city admittedly has no control, is the possibility of an adjustment in the Webb AFB water rate and the possibility, also, that there might be created a rural fire-fighting district. Should a contract accrue from this contingency, the city estimates $11,000 more than for operational costs.

Part of the total budget outlay is the water and sewer fund which envisions net revenues (after transfer of $81,500 to the general fund) of $1,114,379. Expenditures are pegged at $1,102,113, leaving a position balance of $12,266. The current water-sewer budget has the net resources set at $1,072,091 and the expenditures at $1,047,312. (The fund will have outstanding at the end of the year $2,867,000 in revenue bonds; during the year $92,000 in bonds will be paid off along with $105,303 in interest.)

Directors Hear Reports On Major Goals Of AHA

The board of directors of the Howard County division of the American Heart Association met Thursday evening for a buffet dinner at the Big Spring Country Club to hear reports from local committee chairmen and the area representative of the Texas Heart Association.

Dr. Jim White, presiding over the meeting, stressed the importance of planning and committee functioning to accomplish local goals, chief of which is education of the public regarding the purpose of the heart association in research and preventive measures to control cardiovascular disease.

"Workers in the American Heart Association are performing services that will help everyone even worldwide," he said. "Everybody is subject to heart disease, especially as they grow older."

Bo Bowen, chairman of the public education committee, was unable to attend the Thursday meeting, but she had sent a report on four of the main educational programs: smoking, biology and science, career incentives and education through the press.

Dr. C. A. Aagesen, head of community service program, said the October-November-December project will be one of three proposed projects: a heart clinic, a heart screening program or a teaching program. He reminded directors that the local heart association chapter meets the second Tuesday of every month at noon.

Phil Davis, area representative of the Texas Heart Association, Lubbock, met with local directors to report on the annual conference last month in Dallas. Bob Knight was elected vice president; and Dr. R. S. Griffin accepted chairmanship of the professional education committee.

Warns Against More Red Tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elliot L. Richardson has a favorite sermon he preaches almost everywhere he goes. It warns of the evils of too many fragmented government programs, red tape and bureaucrats.

The trouble, says the secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is that nobody seems to be listening. He says Congress keeps adding to the mess and his call for reform has attracted little attention.

The sermon's warnings are severe. As grant programs proliferate in the morass of his vast department, Richardson says, he sees a "virtual strangulation of federal efforts."

"I believe we are now at or near the point where our ability to reform and renew the federal grant effort could determine the fate of our entire governmental system."

In Congress, he says, no one seems to heed his call because new aid programs are proposed almost every day.

These, he says, "reflect the view that because there is an urgent current problem we should pass a new piece of legislation creating a new categorical program on top of existing categorical programs."

In bureaucratic lexicon, a categorical program is usually set up to solve a specific problem. In Richardson's sermon, it is an evil spirit.

So many of these categorical programs abound in his department that they fail to solve domestic ills because they are inflexibly focused on small facts of larger problems, the secretary said.

For example, he said, a neighborhood health program in Denver used 12 different funding sources from the government.

The problems proved immense. The grants ran for different periods of time, cash flow was uncertain, reporting requirements to the government agencies audited the Denver project within 45 days. "As a final insult," Richardson said, "some agencies cut back funds based upon more generous allocations by others."

The secretary, in speech after speech around the country, has hammered at the need for consolidation of the hundreds of separate grant programs; for streamlining of grant requirements; for decentralization of grant administration, and for transfer of funds between programs depending on need.

ATTENTION HOWARD COUNTY RESIDENTS RESIDING OUTSIDE THE CITY OF BIG SPRING COME TO THIS MEETING

If you are concerned about the adequacy of your fire protection then your attention is called to a hearing to be held in the Howard County Commissioner's Court Room at 9:00 A. M. Monday, September 28.

The purpose of this meeting is to determine whether or not sufficient interest exists for the calling of an election to establish a County rural fire prevention District. A County rural fire prevention District is a logical, fair, and economical method of providing adequate fire protection for rural residents.

BASICALLY, HERE IS HOW IT WORKS:

1. THE DISTRICT, AS PROPOSED, WOULD COVER ALL OF HOWARD COUNTY EXCEPT THAT AREA WITHIN THE CORPORATE LIMITS OF THE CITY OF BIG SPRING.
2. IT IS ESTABLISHED BY THE POPULAR VOTE OF THE RESIDENTS RESIDING IN THE AREA.
3. THE LAW PROVIDES THAT THE GOVERNING BODY OF SUCH DISTRICT IS TO BE A BOARD OF FIRE COMMISSIONERS DULY APPOINTED FOR TERMS OF ONE OR TWO YEARS BY THE COUNTY COMMISSIONERS COURT.
4. THE FIRE DISTRICT, ACTING THROUGH ITS BOARD, WOULD BE RESPONSIBLE FOR FURNISHING FIRE PROTECTION FOR ITS RESIDENTS. THIS COULD BE BY ANY METHOD DECIDED BY THE BOARD, BUT COULD PROBABLY BE DONE MOST EFFECTIVELY AND ECONOMICALLY BY CONTRACTING WITH THE CITY OF BIG SPRING FOR THE FURNISHING OF ITS FIRE PROTECTION FACILITIES. CONTRACTS COULD ALSO BE ENTERED INTO WITH COAHOMA VOLUNTARY FIRE DEPARTMENT AND FORSAN VOLUNTARY FIRE DEPARTMENT FOR ADDITIONAL OR SUPPLEMENTAL PROTECTION.
5. ANY KIND OF FIRE PROTECTION COSTS MONEY BUT A COUNTY RURAL FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT IS REASONABLE IN COST. THE FIRE PROTECTION DISTRICT IS SUPPORTED BY AN ASSESSMENT OF PROPERTY LOCATED WITHIN THE DISTRICT WHICH CANNOT EXCEED 3 CENTS PER $100 VALUATION. THIS MEANS THAT AN ASSESSMENT ON A $20,000 HOME COULD NOT EXCEED $6.00 PER YEAR. ANY INCREASE IN ASSESSMENT RATE WOULD REQUIRE A CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

If you favor the establishment of such a District then please attend the Commissioner's Court hearing next Monday.

Extra Safeguards For President's Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's European tour that begins Sunday has his security agents troubled. Besides guarding against the usual hazards, they are expanding protection to prevent an aerial hijacking of the chief executive's plane.

As a direct result of airliner hijackings by Palestinian guerrillas, all persons and baggage making the Nixon flight will have to pass rather rigorous scrutiny.

Even newsmen, most of them on a first-name basis with Nixon's Secret Service bodyguard, can expect their hand baggage to be searched if they are chosen to fly aboard Air Force One as a pool member responsible for reporting to colleagues flying separately aboard two press-chartered commercial airliners.

Moreover, such is the concern that even those aboard press planes hired from Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines must, under most circumstances, have their baggage at the White House ready for inspection by early this evening.

Such precautions have been taken for perhaps a decade on a spot-check basis. This time, it would seem, the scrutiny will be more thorough.

Air Force One and the two chartered Boeing 707 press planes will be under armed guard whenever they are on the ground. It can be assumed that at least one man with a loaded weapon will be aboard all three as they move to Italy, Yugoslavia, Spain, Britain and Ireland.

What will prove most unusual to newsmen who have followed presidents for years will be the care taken to make certain that potentially lethal "foreign matter" is not placed in their suitcases in hotels where they will stay along the nine-day route.

The Secret Service is prepared, of course, for some hostile demonstrations, even riots, in such cities as Rome. That sort of thing happened both in Rome and Paris and, to a lesser extent, in London, during Nixon's 1969 European tour.

However, despite a mounting leftist campaign against the Nixon visit, the President's communications director, Herbert G. Klein, said in Rome Friday he expects no anti-American demonstrations.

Klein was sent to Rome to make advance arrangements for the visit.

Dr. Henry Kissinger, the President's aide for national security affairs, leaves for Paris today to confer with U.S. negotiators at the Vietnam peace talks. However, Nixon's schedule for the tour does not include a Paris stop.

Ask Assurance On SST Noise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Operators of major airports have asked the federal government for definite assurance the supersonic transport (SST) plane now under development will meet noise standards recently established by the Federal Aviation Administration.

The Airport Operators Council International (AOC) said tolerable noise standards must be among design requirements set by FAA regulations which cannot be compromised for production aircraft.

AOCI president Matthias E. Lukens made public Friday a letter from William M. Magruder, director of SSR development for the Transportation Department, assuring him that during the SST prototype and research program there will be no SST takeoffs or landings at any commercial airport except for initial departure from Seattle's Boeing Field.

Magruder added, "The established criteria for noise level will be met."

Magruder's letter was released as Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott urged Congress to ensure that no large-scale SST commercial flights will be allowed without a guarantee the environment will not be endangered.

In a Senate speech, Scott said he will not support production of the SST "unless the essential environmental problems are solved following the completion of the prototype plane."

Former Resident Given Important School Position

Mrs. Peggy J. Craig was appointed by the Tucson District One school board Sept. 15 to be the intermediate curriculum coordinator for the system. She will be responsible for the curriculum in grades four, five and six.

Mrs. Craig taught school here beginning in 1953 at Washington Place School, 1955 for one half year at Bauer, and from 1955-1961 at Boydston School until moving to Tucson.

Mrs. Craig received her BA degree from Wayland Baptist College in 1952, her masters of education from the University of Arizona in 1965. She is now working toward her educational specialist degree and has qualified for her admission to the doctorate program at the University of Arizona.

Mrs. Craig is the daughter of Mrs. T. E. Stringfellow, Big Spring resident and the late T. E. Stringfellow. She is the daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. White, Big Spring. She and her husband, Bob L. Craig, are the parents of Melody Jane, a freshman student in Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff, Eddy Bob, and Cindy Lou, a junior and sophomore, respectively, in Palo Verde High School, Tucson, Ariz.

RECEIVE AWARDS — Capt. Deane A. Burbank, 3561st Pilot Training Squadron receives the first of two awards, the Silver Star, the nation's fourth highest award, from Brig. Gen. James H. Watkins, Air Training Command's deputy commander for Operations. The captain also received the Distinguished Flying Cross, the nation's fifth highest award. Waiting to receive their awards are Capt. Jeffrey B. Geagley, Silver Star and Distinguished Flying Cross with first Oak Leaf Cluster and Col. John W. Crow Jr., base commander was presented the Legion of Merit.

Prussic Acid Poisoning Is Danger At This Time

Prussic acid poisoning of grazing livestock becomes a potential danger this time of year due to climatic effects on hybrid sorghum-sudan pastures. County Agent Paul Gross points out that the poisoning usually occurs right after a hard freeze or when a rapid growth period follows a period of drought. He adds that the danger period usually lasts only about four days, so analysis of the prussic acid content is not feasible. By the time the results of an assay are determined the content will be back to normal levels.

The poisoning results from breakdown of the sorghum's plant material by its own enzymes, producing hydrogen cyanide which is the actual cause of the animal's death. The cyanide is very volatile, and therefore stays in the plants a very short time, but while it is present animals must be kept off the pasture.

Hay that is improperly cured can also present prussic acid poisoning problems, but they too are only temporary and will be gone when the hay dries.

Gross explained that nitrate is also common about this time and on into winter, when cloudy weather results in nitrate buildup in the plants. In the absence of direct sunlight the conversion of nitrates into protein is hampered leading to the buildup.

Cyanide poisoning affects the animal's respiration and turns the blood a cherry red color. Nitrate affects the blood color the opposite way, turning it chocolate brown.

There seems to be no "painless" way of avoiding the problems. Gross said the only advice he could offer was the old home remedy of turning the most scraggly cow in the herd into a pasture first. Then, if it survives, you know it is safe to turn in the rest of the herd.

Bond Sales Total $66,815

United States Savings Bond sales in Howard County during the month of August totaled $66,815, according to County Savings Bond Chairman Robert Currie. Sales for the eight month period were $453,361 which is 76 per cent of the 1970 goal of $600,000.

District 4 of Texas, of which Larson Loyd is chairman, reported August sales of $163,180, eight-month sales of $959,422, or 64 per cent of a $1,500,000 goal. The district includes Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Fisher, Gaines, Howard, Martin, Mitchell, Nolan and Scurry counties.

Texas sales during August amounted to $15,063,651 while the year-to-date sales totaled $121,269,825 for 67 per cent of the 1970 goal of $179.9 million. Series E Sales alone during August, 1970, were $14,841,344 compared to 1969 sales of $14,036,564 — an increase of 5.7 per cent. The January-August sales for Series E Bonds totaled $114,763,654 in comparison with $108,378,640 during the same period of 1969.

But It Cashes

RENO, NEV. (AP) — Industrialist William Lear presented the Internal Revenue Service with a $779,724 check for back taxes Friday. It was painted on a small metal wheel which "is the heart" of a smog-free, steam-powered engine he is developing. The IRS cashed it.

'Big Four' In Texas Sets Population Growth Pace

AUSTIN (AP) — Ninety-eight per cent of the population growth in Texas in the 1960s can be accounted for by the four largest metropolitan areas, says a University of Texas professor.

Other areas increased, but their growth was nearly cancelled by areas that lost population, Lamar Smith wrote in the September issue of Texas Business Review.

"This state contains at least two of the country's most important experiments in urbanization: the Dallas-Fort Worth area and the Houston area. In addition, San Antonio seems poised on the verge of urban explosion, awaiting only the economic catalyst. El Paso, a very special case, is showing the nation how to build a truly international city," Smith said.

Nearly all cities that had 150,000 or more population in 1960 grew rapidly during the decade, but of the next 10 largest cities, all but Lubbock lost population. "Texas' biggest urban areas experienced extremely high growth rates largely because they proved to be economically efficient locations for industry," Smith said. They also drew in population because of the "attractive style of life they offered," he said.

The very bigness of the four largest cities itself acted as a catalyst for added growth, he said. Both the Houston and Dallas Metropolitan areas grew at a rate of 38 per cent during the decade.

The largest growth occurred outside the city limits but still within the metropolitan area: Houston 55 per cent, Dallas 60, San Antonio 68, Fort Worth 70, Austin 67, Galveston-Texas City 43 and Amarillo 47.

At The First Sign Of Business Success

A Man Should Have His Portrait Made!

The first promotion or major business achievement so changes the appearance of a man! Eyes look more directly, posture grows a little straighter. His walk, somehow surer, the handshake firm and hearty.

It's an important time for a fine professional portrait. Though the years ahead may bring many occasions for special exuberance, this is the first and most physically influential.

If the sweet smell of success has just greeted you (or someone you love), make arrangements now to preserve it with a professional portrait. There's no time to lose.

IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK!

Bufs Upset Penn State

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Fired up Colorado ambushed Penn State's fourth-ranked Nittany Lions Saturday, 41-13, in a nationally televised football game and smashed the longest major collegiate football winning streak in the nation.

Penn State came out to the mountain country with a 23-0 game victory string and hadn't been defeated in 31 games.

But the aroused Buffaloes intercepted a Penn State pass on the first play of the game and 90 seconds later went in for a touchdown.

The opportunistic Buffaloes never let up and the baffled Lions were unable to make a contest of it after early in the second period when they cut the Big Eight team's lead to 13-7.

Colorado led 20-7 at the half, then Cliff Branch, speedy Colorado safety, caught a Penn State kickoff on his 3-yard line and dashed straight up the middle for 97 yards and another score.

Right after this dazzling run, Penn State struck back to hammer 71 yards to Colorado's two. But on the fourth down, quarterback Mike Cooper was hurled back to his five on a keeper play.

Colorado turned two interceptions and two recovered Penn State fumbles into scores as the Buffaloes kept the favored Lions off balance.

Bengals Claw Rice, 24-0

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State, upset in its season opener last week, showed flashes of power Saturday night but settled for a 24-0 victory over outmanned Rice.

The Tigers appeared ready throughout the game to break it open but never seemed to get its offense fully untracked.

LSU carried a 17-0 lead into the dressing room at half-time after Rice lost two fumbles and had three passes picked off. The Tiger scores came on one yard bursts by Tommy Casanova and Art Cantrelle and a 43-yard field goal by Mark Lumpkin.

The Tigers manhandled Rice in the third period, but couldn't score. The final touchdown came in the fourth period, three plays after a 46-yard pass from quarterback Buddy Lee carried to wide receiver Andy Hamilton at the nine. Lee got the final six yards with a pass to tight end Jay Michelson.

Lumpkin kicked three extra points and set a school record of 11 points by kicking on his final bout.

Rice did not cross the LSU 40-yard line until 5:16 remained in the game.

GETTING IN HIS LICKS — Tom Seaver, who started for the New York Mets Saturday against the Pittsburgh Pirates in the second game of the three-game series at Pittsburgh's Three-Rivers Stadium, got his turn in the batting cage in the pre-game warm-up. His mound opponent was Steve Blass. The Pirates won, 4-3.

Pittsburgh Clinches Tie For East Title

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pinch runner John Jeter raced home on a short sacrifice fly by Jose Pagan in the seventh inning to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the New York Mets Saturday and clinch a tie for the National League East Division title.

The victory left both the Mets and the Chicago Cubs, who lost to the Philadelphia Phillies, 4 1/2 games behind. The Pirates have four games remaining. The Cubs and Mets have five.

With one out in the Pirates' seventh, Bob Robertson singled to center and the ball went past Tommie Agee for a two-base error and Robertson was at third. Manny Sanguillen was safe at first when Donn Clendenon dropped a throw from Ken Boswell, while Jeter running for Robertson, held at third.

Pagan batted for Richie Hebner and hit a short fly to Agee, but the speedy Jeter beat the throw to the plate.

The Pirates had taken a 2-0 lead with runs in the second and third innings, but the Mets tied the score in the fourth when starter Tom Seaver boomed a triple to center with two men on base.

Hebner hit a solo home run in the second inning and Willie Stargell cracked a bases-loaded single in the third for two Pirates runs.

The Pirates went ahead 3-2 in the fifth on consecutive doubles by Stargell and Robertson, but the Mets tied the game again in the seventh when Agee led off with a triple and Wayne Garrett hit a sacrifice fly to Alou.

It was a decade ago when the Pirates last won a title and that year, 1960, they took it all including the World Series under Manager Danny Mortaugh, who is the present manager.

The defeat all but ended the hopes of New York to repeat as the world champions as well as those of the Cubs.

Both teams were even in number of touchdowns scored, but Andrews made the extra point attempts and Big Spring failed to convert twice on running plays.

Dick Conley scored the first touchdown for Big Spring in the second quarter on a three yard dash off tackle. The other visitor's tally came on a ten yard gallop by Scott Carlisle.

The Big Spring Junior Varsity will next see action when they travel to Abilene Saturday. The game is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

Dick Graham Sparks OSU To Victory

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Dick Graham ran a kickoff back 85 yards for one touchdown and set up the clinching score with a 35-yard punt return Saturday afternoon to spark Oklahoma State to a 26-17 upset over 11th ranked Houston.

Houston's 10-game winning streak in the penalty-marred, non-conference football game. The Cougars started that streak a year ago after the Cowboys had pulled an equally stunning upset, 24-18.

The win was the first for OSU this season after back-to-back losses to Mississippi State and Arkansas. The loss levelled the Cougars' season mark at 1-1.

Houston scored first, with Carlos Lopez booting a 43-yard field goal late in the opening quarter. A 37-yard pass interference penalty set up the kick. But Oklahoma State reeled off 20 points in the second quarter to move ahead for keeps. Quarterback Tony Pounds hit Graham for 16 yards to cap a 70-yard drive and put the Cowboys on top.

On the Cowboys' next possession, Pounds galloped 43 yards on a keeper for another tally that increased the Cowboys' lead 14-3. Houston moved 62 yards after taking the ensuing kickoff, with Tommy Mozisek going the final six yards.

That cut the OSU lead to 14-10, but Graham fielded the Houston kickoff after another Cowboy fumble and broke tackle after tackle to return it 85 yards for a score.

Houston rallied behind the passing of sophomore quarterback Joel Despain to bolt 80 yards in nine plays just before halftime to cut the Cowboys' lead to 20-17.

BROCK MEETS TEXAS TYPE BLOCK — John Brockington (42), Ohio State back, charges into the line and meets a Texas A&M leg block by Boice Best in first quarter of their non-conference football game Saturday in Columbus, Ohio. At left is Aggie Todd Christopher.

Buckeyes Bury Aggies Under 56-13 Score

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State turned four fumble recoveries and a pass interception into touchdowns and the top-ranked Buckeyes rolled 513 yards Saturday, making their season's football debut a rousing 56-13 triumph over young Texas A&M.

Fullback John Brockington scored twice for the defending Big Ten Conference co-champions and six others accounted for touchdowns as the Bucks handed the Aggies their first setback in three 1970 games.

Ohio State's veteran defensive unit forced three fumbles and a pass interception by the Aggies in the third quarter. The Buckeyes converted the breaks into four touchdowns in an eight-minute span to make the game a rout.

Woody Hayes used his Ohio State regulars little more than one half with Brockington bowling over from the two and one yard lines, leading the Buckeyes to a 25-7 halftime lead.

Quarterback Rex Kern scored on a six-yard run and directed the Buckeye offense with 142 total yards.

Ron Maciejowski, Ohio State's No. 2 quarterback, ran one yard for a touchdown and threw five yards to Jan White for another score.

Halfback Leo Hayden's 89 yards led the 415-yard Ohio State ground attack and the 214-pound senior ran three yards for a touchdown.

Larry Zelina dashed 11 yards and Jim Coburn, eight yards, for the other scores for Ohio State, winning its 23rd game in its last 24 starts.

Texas A&M sophomore quarterback Lex James struck 29 and 22-yard touchdown drives to Homer May and tried to keep the Aggies in contention via the air.

James, whose daring play led the Aggies to opening victories over Wichita and Louisiana State, solved the Buckeye defense for 18 completions in 30 tries for 271 yards.

But the Texas A&M ground attack could contribute only 50 yards.

Aggie mistakes were especially costly in the third quarter, setting up two Ohio State touchdowns within 47 seconds to shoot the Buckeyes into a 42-7 bulge.

Two fumbles by Steve Burks, another bobbie by Marc Black, and James' errant pass, all deep in A&M territory, rattled the Southwestern Conference team to just seven plays from scrimmage to 31 plays for the Buckeyes in the third period.

Ohio State, a 24-12 victim of Michigan in the 1969 finale that cost the Buckeyes their No. 1 rating, gave the Aggies little chance to spring another upset.

The Buckeyes mounted a 21-0 lead in the first quarter, needing no more than eight plays in any drive to move 7, 37 and 64 yards.

One of three fumble recoveries by defensive end Ken Luttner set up Brockington's first score and the miscue was a tip-off of the problems the Aggies were to encounter.

Ohio State lost regular offensive Phil Strickland on the opening kickoff and he did not play afterward. Guard has been one of Ohio State's problems this fall. Strickland reportedly suffered a slight concussion.

TCU, Badgers In 14-14 Tie At Madison

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Texas Christian and Wisconsin battled to a 14-14 tie Saturday afternoon in an intersectional college football game before a record opening day crowd of 61,539 at Camp Randall Stadium.

The largest previous opening day attendance at Wisconsin was 53,559 for the 1955 opener against Marquette. It also was the largest crowd since the 1967 season when 61,918 watched the Wisconsin Badgers battle Northwestern.

TCU and Wisconsin fought evenly through the first two periods. After the visiting Horned Frogs turned an early break into a touchdown, the Badgers tied it up on a one-yard quarterback sneak in the second period.

Wisconsin went out in front in the third quarter when quarterback Neil Graff connected with tight end Larry Mialik on a 50-yard bomb. Mialik, on a fly pattern, had streaked past the defenders and had two steps on his closest pursuer. Graff laid the ball cleanly into his hands and Mialik was untouched as he sped to the end zone.

FROGS REBOUND

Texas Christian rebounded with a six-pointer of its own as Bobby Davis roared in from four yards out just before the third quarter ended. John Bishop's extra point knotted the score at 14 points.

Texas Christian turned a Wisconsin error into a score and the Badgers pushed across a touchdown in the second period as the first half ended in a 7-7 deadlock.

Lance Moon fumbled the opening kickoff and Texas Christian recovered on the Badgers' 26. It took only three plays for the Horned Frogs to crank up the scoreboard as quarterback Steve Judy wheeled around right end for 19 yards and a TD.

Busty Underwood's kick was good and TCU led 7-0 with less than a minute gone in the game.

Despite frequent forays into the Horned Frog defensive backfield by Alan Thompson and Rufus Ferguson, Wisconsin's attack failed to roll until in the second quarter when Danny Crooks grabbed a 30-yard punt in heavy traffic.

Thompson and Ferguson gained the first five yards, then Neil Graff passed 12 yards to Randy Marks for a first down on the TCU 43.

Texas Christian 7 0 0-14 and then uncorked touchdown passes of five and 20 yards to the versatile Hammond before the Aggies from the cactus country of New Mexico realized the game had started.

Po James, New Mexico State's fabled ground gobbler, was bottled up by the eager Pony defense and held to 28 yards in the first half. James showed his potential on kickoff returns, however, almost breaking twice.

Hogs Batter Tulsa Back Of Texan

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas quarterback Bill Montgomery, a poised senior, directed touchdown drives of 90 and 88 yards and scored once as the Razorbacks blitzed Tulsa 49-7 in a non-conference football game Saturday.

The victory lifted Arkansas' record to 2-1 and dropped Tulsa to 2-1.

Montgomery, a 180-pounder from the suburbs of Dallas, Tex., retired four minutes deep in the third period with 67 yards rushing on eight carries and an additional 124 yards on 7 of 11 passes.

He scored once from a yard out and flipped a 13-yard scoring pass to split end Chuck Dickson with 52 seconds left in the first half.

The pass to Dickson ended an 88-yard march and gave the Razorbacks a 14-7 lead. Arkansas wrapped it up early in the third period, scoring twice in 82 seconds. Montgomery's touchdown climaxed a 35-yard push and gave Arkansas a 21-7 lead with 12:22 left. Seconds later, defensive tackle Dick Bumpas recovered a Tulsa fumble at the Tulsa 23 and the Razorbacks scored in two plays—Jon Richardson covering the final 19 yards.

Richardson, the first Negro to play football at Arkansas, scored again on a one-yard punch later in the third quarter. Tailback Bill Burnett scored Arkansas' first touchdown on a five-yard run late in the first period. The touchdown capped a 90-yard march that included a 24-yard run by Montgomery on third and five and 11-yard gain on third and six also by Montgomery.

Tulsa's only touchdown came on Drew Pearson's one-yard sneak and was set up by a pass interception by James Stuenkel. The Razorbacks revamped their defense this week, moving outside linebacker Mike Boschetti to middle linebacker and moving middle linebacker Guy Parker outside. Bonnie Jones was moved up to the first team at the other outside linebacker. Jones and Boschetti led the defensive statistics with eight unassisted tackles each on 10 possessions against the first team defense.

The victory may prove costly for the Razorbacks. Defensive tackle Roger Harnish was injured on the first play of the game and may have to undergo knee surgery.

Burnett, who has scored 41 touchdowns as a Razorback, may have suffered a shoulder separation in the second quarter.

FOLLOWED CLOSELY — Gordon Dilder (22), Southern Methodist University running back, breaks away for a nine-yard gain with Mike Russell (75), right tackle, and another New Mexico State University tackler hot on his heels.

HIXSON TOO QUICK

New Mexico State's plan for victory was to use its hefty defensive front four to put pressure on Hixson, but the quick-armed Hixson stung the Aggies' secondary with eight of 10 completions in the wild first half for 100 yards and the two touchdowns.

Substitute running back Paul Morris capped SMU's first half explosion with a one-yard touchdown plunge in the second quarter for a 34-7 halftime lead as the Mustangs sewed up their first victory after losses to Oklahoma and Tennessee. The Aggies now are 1-2.

The Aggies obviously were tight as the game started. They were unable to gain a first down until the final minutes of the first quarter.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Fleet Gary Hammond ripped off four touchdowns in an explosive first quarter to ignite victory hungry Southern Methodist to a 34-21 triumph over startled New Mexico State.

Quarterback Chuck Hixson, SMU's aerial artist handed off to Hammond for two one-yard plunges into the Aggie end zone.

Will Be Monday Cup Races Set Back By Fog

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — A heavy fog that shut down visibility forced postponement Saturday of the American Intrepid's bid to clinch the America's Cup yachting series against Australia's rallying Gretel II. The fifth race in the best-of-seven fog and protest-played series will be held Monday.

Intrepid, leading by a 3-1 margin in this duel of expensive 12-meter yachts, narrowly escaped damage to her bottom and skipper Bill Ficker asked for a delay immediately after the postponement.

While Intrepid was leaving port in preparation for the fifth race, her tow line snapped and she drifted toward a rock.

Ficker feared the yacht's bottom was damaged and asked that no racing be held Sunday so that, in the event of damage, the craft could be repaired.

A diver was sent down and he found no damage. The difficulty was that when the tow line parted it went under the boat and caught on the trim tab rudder.

This made it difficult to steer the boat.

The diver got the tow line off. He reported the boat was all right.

But the decision to race next on Monday still stood.

Monday will be the 14th day of the challenge — making it the longest series in the 119-year history of the showcase yachting event. The 1903 and 1920 series both lasted 13 days.

Saturday's race was the third called because of weather in this series and followed only hours after the New York Yacht Club race committee rejected a protest by the Australians concerning the much-discussed second race.

In that race, Gretel II finished first but was disqualified for ramming Intrepid at the start. The Aussies asked that the case be reopened Friday night and it wasn't until Saturday morning after an evening of deliberation aboard the fog-hidden committee boat that the request was refused.

Three Way Defeats Kats With First Half Surge

THREE WAY — Inconsistency hurt the Garden City Bearkats badly in their 42-0 loss to Three Way here Friday night.

The Kats, a young club, played inspired ball at times but on other occasions slowed to a trot.

Last fumbles on two plays early in the game hurt the Garden City team, too.

Alan Joyce put Three Way ahead to stay in the first on a six-yard run, after which Larry Nuetzier added he two extra points on a run.

Garden City then had a high snap from center and Kenneth Meyers recovered it in the end zone for another Three Way score.

In the second, Joyce went over again from three yards out, then ran across the extra points. Joyce soon scored again on a one-yard jaunt to make it 2-0.

Partlow, good for 25 yards, gave the home team still another touchdown before the half ended.

Three Way got a lone touchdown in the second half. Joyce made it from one yard away and Johnny Waldrup added two extra points.

Three Way substituted freely in the last half but the regulars couldn't move very easily when they were in there, too.

Garden City moved to Three Way's 20 once but was stopped. A rash of penalties hurt the play of both teams.

QB Steve Livingston of Garden City suffered an injured knee in the first half and coach Jack Woodie didn't use him after the intermission. He went instead with freshman David Smith, who did a creditable job under the circumstances.

Garden City will be at home to Snyder next Friday night. Snyder was routed by Sterling City Friday, 50-26.

Ken Buchanan Wrests Title From Laguna

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Scotland's Ken Buchanan came on strong in the final rounds Saturday to wrest the world lightweight boxing title from Panama's Ismael Laguna on a split decision in a spirited 15-round bout.

Cut under the left eye as early as the third round and around the right eye in the 12th, the 5-2 underdog carried the fight to the defender with a strong burst in the last six rounds to become Britain's first world lightweight champion since Freddy Welsh reigned from 1914 to 1917.

There were no knockdowns in the lively scrap, fought under a broiling sun in oppressive humidity.

Buchanan weighed 134 pounds to Laguna's 134½.

The fight was beamed by satellite to the United States and telecast over ABC's television network.

Voting on the 10-point must system, the officials had the following scores: Judge Pito Lopez 145-144 for Buchanan; Judge Jose A. Soto 144-143 for Buchanan, and referee Waldemar Schmidt 144-143 for Laguna.

Eagles Lose To Brownwood

ABILENE — Abilene's Eagles went down to their second straight loss here Friday night at the hands of Brownwood, 22-20. The Eagles had lost to Cleburne a week ago, 21-16.

Abilene came back strong in the second half against Brownwood after trailing 22-0 at intermission.

Pulling to within two points late in the contest, Abilene tried for the win with a field goal from the toe of Chuck Springer from the 25-yard line. The attempt missed and Brownwood held on for the victory.

The win hiked Brownwood's season mark to 2-1.

Score by quarters:

Abilene	0	0	14	6-20
Brownwood	7	15	0	0-22

Buz Belongs In Shrine

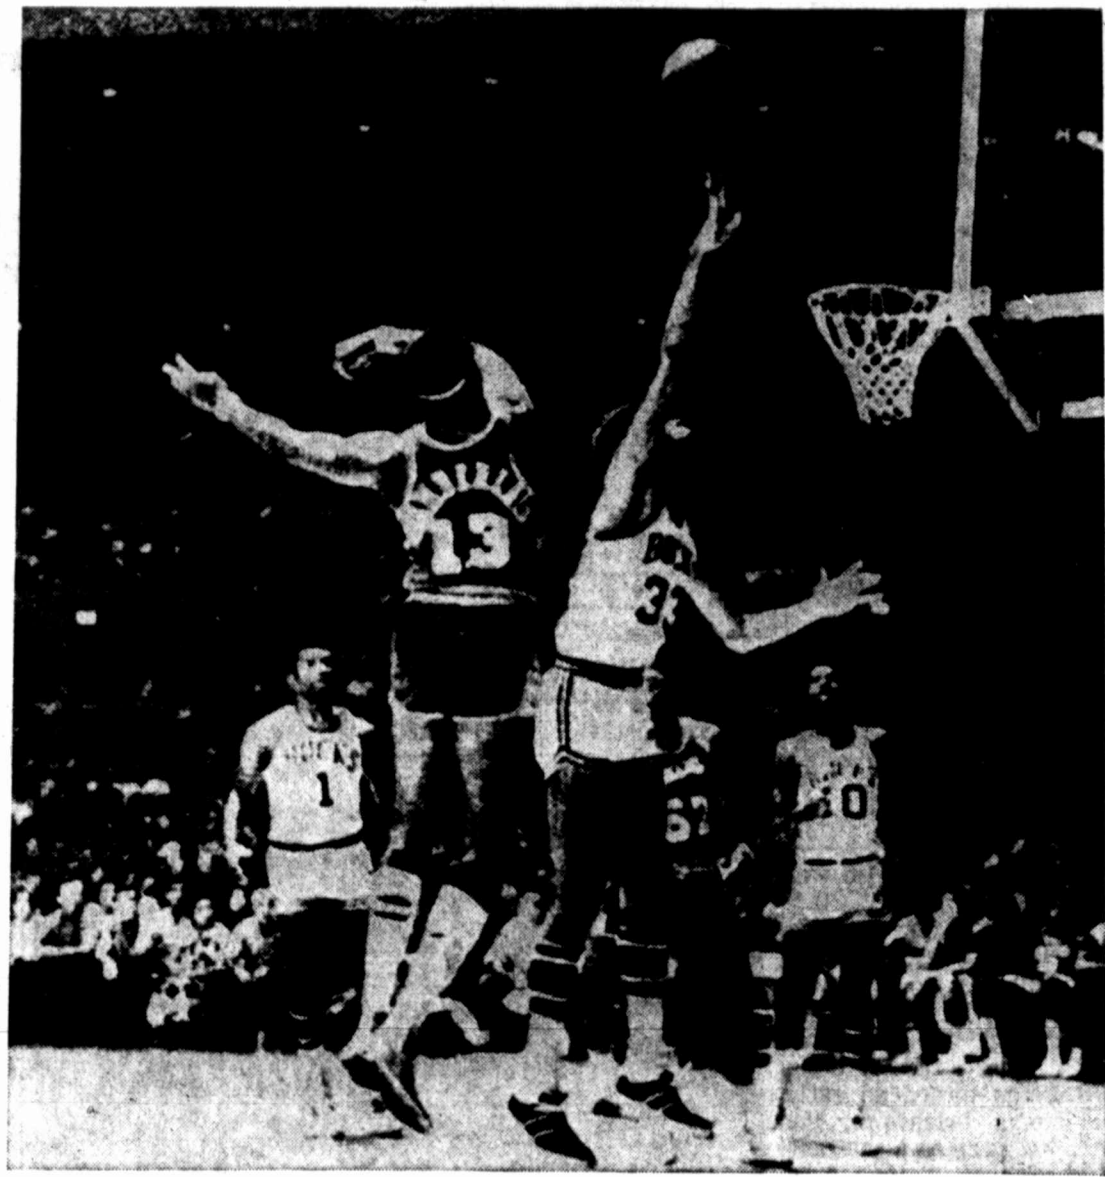

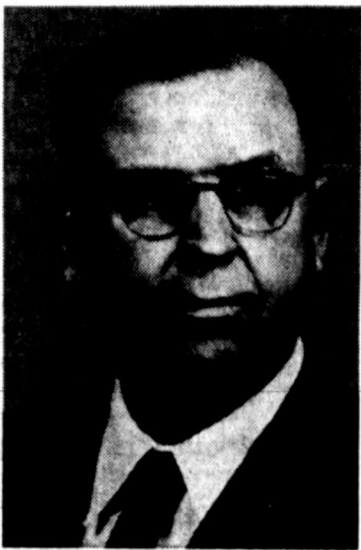

By TOMMY HART

I don't know about you but I think Buz Sawyer belongs in the Texas Sports Hall of Fame. . . . Auto racing star Dan Gurney, mindful that this year has been the blackest for drivers since 1955 and the infamous disaster at Le Mans, will likely retire at the end of this year. . . . Several other well-known speedsters may join him on the sidelines. . . . Jochen Rindt, the Austrian who was killed in Europe several weeks ago, had planned to pack it in after the 1970 season had ended. . . . High school sports in many sections of the country are in jeopardy because of booming costs. . . . School budgets are being cut back in some areas because of voter rejection. . . . In such cases, the first thing to go has been the athletic budget. . . . Student violence at games help the arguments of the athletic critics, too. . . . Sports programs on the high school level have already been abolished in such places as Portland, Ore.; Vestal, N.Y.; Bay City, Mich.; Westerly, R.I., and Chardon, Ohio. . . . Adult groups subsequently organized in all places but Chardon to raise the money to finance the interscholastic programs. . . . In Portland, $450,000 had been allotted annually to underwrite the cost of sports — the city has 13 high schools. . . . Los Angeles, with 43 high schools, came close to losing its schoolboy athletic program last year. . . . Bill Russell, commissioner of the California Interscholastic Federation, governing body of California's 853 public high schools, said recently: "Let's face it, America is being taxed to death, and money's tight. People want some relief from the tax load and, unfortunately for us, the best way to get immediate relief is to vote down a school budget. The next time it comes up, they know it's going to be smaller. As for sports in high school, I think more and more schools are viewing them, from a dollars and cents standpoint, as an extravagance." . . . If athletics are abandoned on the high school level, what are some school officials going to use as whipping boys? . . . School systems which abandon athletics are asking for trouble in student unrest and vandalism. . . . Edinburg will host the state's only NBA game the coming season, an Oct. 10 contest between the Detroit Pistons and the Phoenix Suns. . . . The Nov. 28 contest between Notre Dame and USC will be ABC's "wild card" football game for TV distribution this fall. . . . UT-El Paso passing whiz Billy Stevens, who didn't make it with the pros, is now doing radio work in El Paso.

The champion Texas Tech football fan in the Southwest is, no doubt, Olen Puckett of Big Spring, who has missed seeing the Red Raiders play only one home game in over 24 seasons. . . . He was called to another part of the state on business that time. . . . Until Texas A&M turned the trick this year, LSU hadn't lost an opening game since Rice turned the trick, 16-3, in 1961. . . . That season, the Tigers regained momentum to finish with a 9-1 season and beat Colorado in the Orange Bowl. . . . Ex-Big Springer Spike Dykes saw his Alice team miscue their way to their second consecutive loss last week when the Coyotes yielded to Harlingen, 14-12. . . . A pass interception and an 80-yard return gave Harlingen one TD. . . . A fumble set up the second Cardinal score. . . . Bill Morgan, the SWC publicist, says synthetic turf is spreading so fast in Texas that the Department of Agriculture is working to develop a chemical that will eradicate it before it spreads to cow pastures. . . . Darwin McBeth, who wrote sports for this paper several years ago, is a candidate for the Odessa College basketball team. . . . One of the most promising Odessa College players is 6-6 Allen Carter, who hails from Detroit, Mich. . . . Glenn Whittington and Lanny Hamby, who have ramrodded the Big Spring Ex-Lettermen's Association since it was organized, say they'll turn over the reins to someone else after the Oct. 23 Hall of Honor ceremonies here. . . . "Three years is long enough to work on something like this," they say in unison. . . . San Francisco's Giants, who are supposed to have three $100,000 players on their payroll, are going to draw about 130,000 fewer customers at home this year than last. . . . However, dollar receipts will be about the same because the Giants went up 50 cents per ticket at the beginning of the year. . . . That 19-7 win achieved by the Houston Oilers in Pittsburgh last week was the first road opener they had won since 1962 and the first of any kind since 1966. . . . Instant replays run on TV prove that NFL officials are right in their calls 98 per cent of the time. . . . So writes Stanley Frank in an article for TV Guide. . . . Notre Dame football games this fall are being aired over more than 400 radio stations. . . . Brownwood, once a doormat in football, won more games during the '60's than any other high school team in Texas. . . . The Texas Aggies never had to punt in their opening game with Wichita State.

SORRY, WILT — Milwaukee's center Lew Alcindor prepares to snag a rebound as his Los Angeles counterpart, Wilt Chamberlain, gets out-positioned. The Bucks, sparked by the nearly invincible combination of Alcindor and newly traded No. 1 Oscar Robertson, playing together for the first time, downed the Lakers, 129-114, in a NBA exhibition match in Honolulu Friday.

Bengals Face Detroit In NFL's Headliner

By The Associated Press

"We amazed ourselves," said Coach Joe Schmidt of the Detroit Lions. "The big job now is to come back to earth in a hurry after a fantastic orbit. We know Cincinnati is tough."

"I'm very proud of the way we played," said Coach Paul Brown. "We're still an expansion team but we're maturing. There's no question that Detroit is one of the very best teams in professional football."

Those words underline the potential for one of the key games on Sunday's National Football League schedule, a clash at Detroit that should further amplify the title hopes of two teams who surprised with their opening-game performances.

The game between the Bengals of the American Conference and the Lions of the National Conference is one of three inter-conference battles on the 12-game program. In the others, Cleveland, AFC, is at San Francisco, AFC, and Los Angeles

NFC, is at Buffalo, AFC.

GIANTS IN DALLAS

In NFC games, New Orleans is at Minnesota, the New York Giants at Dallas, Washington at St. Louis, Atlanta at Green Bay and Philadelphia at Chicago. In AFC action, Oakland is at San Diego, the New York Jets at Boston, Miami at Houston and Pittsburgh at Denver.

The other AFC game matches Kansas City at Baltimore Monday night in a game that will be nationally televised by ABC starting at 9 p.m., EDT.

As in the coaches' words, the Lions amazed themselves last week by blasting the Green Bay Packers 40-0 and establishing themselves as distinct threats to defending champion Minnesota in the NFC's Central Division while the Bengals matured in a 31-21 upset of Oakland.

Both teams relied heavily on their ground games. The Lions got 74 yards from Albie Taylor and 70 from Mel Farr. The Bengals totaled 247 yards rushing in all—130 accounted for in 15 carries by Jess Phillips.

The Browns are coming off a 31-21 victory over the Jets and Joe Namath while the 49ers also are 1-0 after toppling Washington 26-17 as John Brodie completed 17 of 20 passes. San Francisco will be seeking its fifth straight home victory.

The Rams started off with a 34-13 victory over St. Louis as Roman Gabriel hit on 16 of 26 passes for 185 yards and three touchdowns. O. J. Simpson seems to be the only thing the Bills have going for them. He gained 101 yards rushing and receiving in a loss to Denver.

The Saints, who lost their opener, will have big backs Tony Baker and Andy Livingston ready to go but face a Vikings' defensive unit that limited Kansas City to 63 yards rushing in a 27-10 victory over the Chiefs in a Super Bowl rematch.

HOME DEBUT

The Giants' game will be the home opener for the Cowboys, who posted a 17-7 victory over Philadelphia last week. Giants lost to Chicago 24-16. The game at the Cotton Bowl puts the spotlight on a pair of scrambling quarterbacks, Fran Tarkenton of the Giants and Roger Staubach of the Cowboys.

Sonny Jurgensen, who needs two completions for a career total of 2,000, will try to get the Redskins their first victory against the Cardinals. St. Louis also will be looking for victory No. 1 in its home opener.

The Falcons are 1-0 after beating New Orleans and will be looking to post their first victory in history against Green Bay, which has won all four previous meetings. Packers' quarterback Bart Starr will be facing the boo birds who jumped on him in the loss to Detroit.

The Bears' home opener will be held at Northwestern's Dyche Stadium with quarterback Jack Concannon going against his former Eagle teammates for the first time. Philadelphia bowed to Dallas last week as its offense failed to click behind the quarterbacking of Norm Snead.

Both the Raiders and Chargers will be seeking their first victories, San Diego after bowing to Baltimore, San Diego is hurting with running back Dickie Post out after knee surgery and wide receiver Lance Alworth hobbled with a leg pull.

Rotan Nips 'Dogs Despite Comeback

COAHOMA — Coahoma came on too late with too little here Friday night, losing to upstart Rotan, 21-20.

The defeat was the second in three assignments for Coahoma. Rotan built a 14-point advantage in the opening period and then Coahoma recovered a fumble in the second to set up its first score, coming into possession around the enemy 23. The Big Red powered it in, with Wendall Walker traveling the final yard. Inability to convert was to hurt the Coahomans, however.

Shortly before the half, Coahoma blocked a punt. It was retrieved by tackle Don Richters, who raced 25 yards to tally. Again the Bulldogs failed on the PAT try.

Mickey Early counted the third Rotan touchdown on a three-yard run in the second and Hargrove again converted.

Coahoma rebounded in the third, Walker going over from the one. QB Roland (Snicker) Beal ran in the two points but it still left Coahoma a point shy of a tie.

The Bulldogs surged to Rotan's five in the fourth period but time ran out before they could capitalize on that opportunity.

Coahoma had a slight edge in rushing yardage but Rotan was more effective in the air.

Coahoma 0 12 8 0-20
Rotan 14 7 0 0-21

Coahoma's defense was rotten. Quarterback Walter Hargrove opened the scoring for Rotan by throwing a pass to Norville Kennedy, the play covering 19 yards. Hargrove then booted the point.

Later in the first period, Hargrove sought out Hank Day with a 15-yard scoring pitch, then kicked the conversion try.

Panther Gordon Jarman intercepted a pass and returned it 27 yards for a score early in the second quarter and Permian was never headed.

Coach Gene Mayfield's charges begin district 4-AAAA play next week when they entertain Midland. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

In addition, Tony Gillespie caught a helmet in the mid-section during workouts and will be out about 10 days.

Permian Rips Highlanders

EL PASO — The mighty Permian Panthers invaded El Paso Friday night and came away with their third straight win of the season, 55-7 over Ysleta Bel Air.

Fumbles played an important role in the non-district contest as the Panthers fell on four misuses by Bel Air. Permian defenders also swiped three aeriels from Bel Air passers.

Permian sewed up the contest in the second period with two touchdowns. Ysleta had carried a 7-6 lead into the second quarter.

Panther Gordon Jarman intercepted a pass and returned it 27 yards for a score early in the second quarter and Permian was never headed.

Coach Gene Mayfield's charges begin district 4-AAAA play next week when they entertain Midland. Kickoff is set for 8 p.m.

Bobcats Rally To Top Temple

SAN ANGELO — The home-standing San Angelo Bobcats came from behind in the last half Friday night to beat the Temple Wildcats, 21-14.

Trailing 14-7 at the half, the Bobcats scored twice in the final two periods while holding the Wildcats scoreless.

Bobcat fullback John Myers scored the go-ahead touchdown for the winners when he blasted over center from the five-yard line in the third quarter. His score followed a four-yard tally by halfback Walter Lewis.

San Angelo tangles with strong Abilene Cooper in Abilene Friday night. The game will get under way at 8 p.m.

Score by quarters:
San Angelo 7 0 14 0-21
Temple 6 8 0 0-14

Champ Ousted By J. Dudley In City Meet

Jerry Dudley ousted defending champion Jerry Barron 2-up this week as action continues in the Big Spring City Golf Tournament at the Municipal course.

Dudley moves into the next round in the championship flight against Bernard Rains, 1-up winner over Jimmy Welch.

Other first round winners in the championship flight were Ted Gross over Ed Wilkerson, Bob Smith over B. A. Brunson, Jim Newsome over Royce Cox, Jerry Clements over Jackie Thomas, Charles Bailey over Buck Drake and Richard Pachall over Bob Waters.

In the first flight, Burl Dennis advanced to the semi-finals with a 2-1 victory over Hack Spivey.

Don Horton moved into the second flight semi-finals with a 4-3 win against Harold Davis.

In the third flight, three players, Richie Arnold, Clyde Green and Hershell Davis, advanced to the semi-final round.

Semi-final pairings in the fourth flight pit Mayberry Wilbanks against Bill Grace and Charles Burdette goes after a final berth against Sherrill Farmer.

Marquez scored the winner's only touchdown on a dive play good for eight yards. The score came in the third period. Marquez added the two-point conversion, which proved to be the winning margin.

The Shorthorns had taken the lead in the second quarter when Jimmy Douglass booted 60 yards around end for a tally. The Shorthorn quarterback tried a dive over the middle for the PAT but was stopped by James Zapp and Scott Robb.

Both elevens had threatened twice during the contest and the final whistle blew shortly after the Shorthorns had driven to the Longhorn 30.

Wichita Falls Tops Cougars

WICHITA FALLS — Two of the giants in Texas schoolboy football collided here Friday night and number one ranked Wichita Falls prevailed over Abilene Cooper, 23-13.

After a scoreless opening quarter, Wichita Falls denied the scoreboard in the second period when ace running back Joe Abosie capped a 35-yard drive with a two-yard smash over the middle. Terry Fanchier kicked the point. Coyote Vaughn Roberts booted a 43-yard field goal before the teams left the field at halftime.

Cougar quarterback Leroy Polnick unleashed his passing arm in the final quarter and threw two TD aerials to Willie Burton. It was too late for Cooper however, as Wichita Falls lived up to its top billing in Texas 4-AAAA high school football.

Score by quarters:
Wichita Falls 0 10 7 6-23
Cooper 0 0 0 13-13

Defense Paces Odessa Eleven

ODESSA — Paced by a tremendous defensive effort, the Odessa Bronchos played Rider to a 7-7 stalemate here Friday night.

The Bronchos repeatedly rose to the occasion in the tilt when a top defensive effort was needed.

Tommy Dunaway scored Odessa's only touchdown in the first quarter when he grabbed a blocked punt out of the air at the Rider 35 and raced into the end zone untouched. Tom Worley booted the conversion.

Odessa mentor Joe Means said after the game, "I am really proud of the defense. It rose to the occasion, time and time again." "Our kids have cut out the silly mistakes and are beginning to look like a football team," he concluded.

Odessa travels to Midland Lee for a contest Friday night. The game will mark the opening of 5-AAAA district play for both squads.

Fall Of Tigers Puzzled Experts

DETROIT (AP) — The rise and fall of the Detroit Tigers may present baseball historians with the same problem that has faced chroniclers of the rise and fall of the Roman Empire—dozens of theories but no positive conclusions.

However, experts need only examine a few years to theorize on the Tiger's rise and fall, whereas those researching the Roman Empire must study centuries.

Just two years ago the Tigers were atop the baseball world, victors of the World Series after a full dramatic seven-game set against the seemingly invincible St. Louis Cardinals. It took Detroit 23 years to get that championship after languishing much of the time around the middle of the American League.

But their reign was astonishingly short as last year they finished second in the East Division, 19 games behind Baltimore. Now they're fourth—some two dozen games behind the division champion Orioles—and this after being only three games behind July 19.

HE WAS CONFIDENT
"I don't expect us to have a baseball dynasty like the one the New York Yankees once had," said Manager Mayo Smith at a banquet the January after the 1968 Series. "But I think we can win again."

At another banquet before the start of this season, Tiger owner John Fetzer said: "As I look back 10 years ago on the Tiger organization and see what 10 years of hard work has done, I can only hope in the 1970s we will have good fortune smile on us."

Good fortune hasn't smiled on the Tigers, something Fetzer may have sensed when he added, "In this business, like in any other, it's not machine all the way. All we can do is hope the problems will be visible and we can see soon enough how to solve them."

PROBLEMS
Here are some of the problems Smith, General Manager Jim Campbell, and even Fetzer, tried to face this season alone:

1. The Denny McLain suspension plus the tensions and morale problems connected with them.

2. Catcher Bill Freehan's controversial book "Behind the Mask" which contained criticism of Smith's handling of McLain.

3. The July 24th ankle injury to slugger Willie Horton which put him on the disabled list for the rest of the season—beginning just six days after Detroit was within three games of Baltimore.

4. Freehan's absence the final month of the season because of back surgery.

5. A number of other injuries, including a pulled hamstring muscle that sidelined Jim Northrup for several key weeks.

6. Continuing rumors that Smith would be fired and replaced by someone else—rumors which evaporated for a time when Detroit moved close to the Orioles.

GENERAL SLUMP
7. The over-all slumping play of virtually every Tiger, including ace pitcher Mickey Lolich who didn't take up the slack in McLain's absence as had been

Campbell, in an interview two weeks ago, said he thought the team had the nucleus to win the pennant again.

"I definitely think so," he said. "Without Denny McLain this team closed the gap to three games late in July. Doesn't that indicate they're competitors? If all the pieces fell together they would have won."

He also said Smith had done a good job "under the circumstances," but Campbell refuses to discuss the managerial question until the season ends Oct. 1.

Now it is rumored Billy Martin will replace Smith.

Regarding team morale, which has been questionable, Campbell said: "This club has had its ups and downs in morale this season... When we closed the gap to three games it was real good. The whole year has been a year of ups and downs. But all baseball teams have ups and downs."

Campbell says the team has the nucleus to win the pennant but what else could a general manager be expected to say?

The question which he and whoever is the Tiger manager next season must face is: "Can we pick up the pieces that have scattered since October, 1968?"

Many observers feel that to do this some major trades must be made—something Detroit usually hesitates doing, relying instead on a minor league system that has faltered upon bad times.

THE QUESTION WHICH HE AND WHOEVER IS THE TIGER MANAGER NEXT SEASON MUST FACE IS: "CAN WE PICK UP THE PIECES THAT HAVE SCATTERED SINCE OCTOBER, 1968?"

MARK II SERIES, TOYOTA — During its second year of availability in the U.S., the Toyota Corona Mark II series features a newly designed front grille and restyled rear deck, coupled with new safety and economy features that mean luxury at low price. The Toyotas are on display at Jimmy Hopper Toyota, new dealership at 6th and Gregg.

Toyota Line Presented By Hopper's New Dealership

The full line of Toyota imported automobiles, including 1971 models with various styling refinements and an addition of power, is being presented by Jimmy Hopper Toyota, Gregg at 6th.

The showing is in the nature of a formal opening for Hopper, who recently was named authorized Toyota dealer in Big Spring. Hopper has been associated in the auto business here for several years.

The Toyota series boasts the Corona line of 4-door sedans and 2-door hardtops; the compact, economical Corolla 2-door sedan, station wagon and fastback models; three versions of the sleek Corona Mark II — the newest entry in Toyota's all-star line-up including a 2-door hardtop, 4-door sedan and 4-door wagon; the Crown line of luxury 4-door sedans and station wagons; and the competition proven line of Land Cruiser 4-wheel drive recreational and utility vehicles; and the new Hi-Lux half-ton pickup truck.

The new Corona's powerplant has been beefed-up. The horsepower has been raised by 20 per cent to 108 at 5500 rpm by the installation of an overhead cam engine that produces better acceleration and a higher cruising speed, yet still retains the Corona's traditional 25 mpg economy of operation.

Other innovations in the new Corona's power-plant include the use of more aluminum in the engine to lighten the car's weight and to dissipate heat faster. A five main bearing crankshaft instead of the former three — and the use of a dual exhaust manifold system to improve performance.

The new Corona also features a new power braking system

Local Architect Named To Post

A local architect was recently chosen to serve for three years as a director of the Texas Society of Architects. Daryle Hohertz, a partner in Gary and Hohertz Architects, was elected by the members of the West Texas chapter of the society at their September meeting in Midland.

Elected to one-year posts were: Bill Badd, Midland, president; Gene Sellers, San Angelo, vice president; and Jim Shelton, Odessa, secretary-treasurer.

The chapter's October meeting will be held at the Big Spring Country Club.

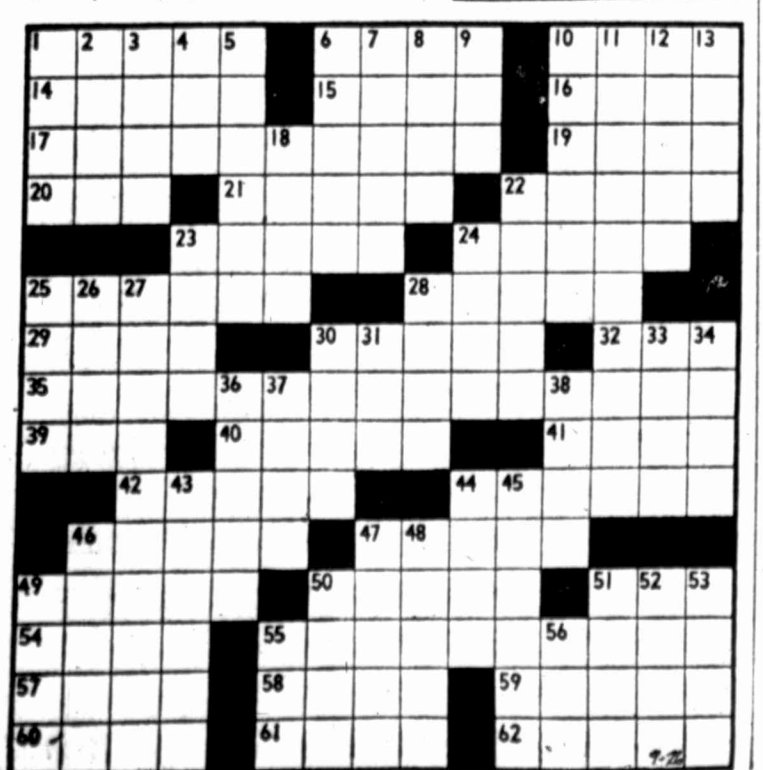

Red-Faced

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — One police car, its red lights blink- ing, diverted freeway traffic around two other police cars as red-faced officers drained gasoline from one cruiser into the other.

Puzzle of Friday, Sept. 25, Solved

Dear Abby

—ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old happily married woman. My problem is my brother who is 19. Rick was the "favorite" and always knew how to get what he wanted. Mother waited on him hand and foot, and dad gave him money for just breathing. He was spoiled rotten. For his 16th birthday the folks gave him an expensive car, although his grades were barely passing.

Rick didn't qualify for one of the better schools, so dad pulled some strings and got him into a junior college. He flunked out and came home. Now my parents have decided to wash their hands of him. My father says a psychiatrist friend of his advised him to throw Rick out and let him sink or swim.

Rich has taken up with some "way out" characters. I'm sure they're going the drug route. Rick has a lot of good in him and I can't stand to see him ruin his life. I want to offer Rick a home with my husband and me. My folks say if I take to me again — that bailing him out now will only convince him that someone will always come to his rescue. I need your help.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old girl with a problem. I have a whole collection of dolls. Some are old and some are new, but they are all in excellent condition. I have doll houses and clothes — lots of them.

My father says I am too old adult. Your parents, the well-intentioned, "crippled" Rick, and now they're blaming him because he can't straighten himself out and becomes a contributing member of society. And if you folks never speak to you again, it will be their loss.

Take Rick on the condition that he gets a job, tries to straighten himself out and becomes a contributing member of society. And if you folks never speak to you again, it will be their loss.

How can I explain to my parents that I want to keep my dolls?

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS
DEAR CONFIDENTIALLY: I don't know how many dolls you have, but perhaps there are some you could give away to little girls who have no dolls at all. Why not keep those dolls you are especially "attached to," and give away the rest? And don't be ashamed of "playing" with dolls at your age. Doll collectors come in all ages.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69790, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

"I DIDN'T COME HERE TO ARGUE"
Mrs. Clyde Angel, guest reviewer

Emerald Room Scene Of Hyperion Luncheon

The Emerald Room of Big Spring Country Club was the setting Thursday for the annual Hyperion Club luncheon for members of the six local affiliated clubs. The Hyperion Council, headed by Mrs. H. M. Jarratt, sponsored the luncheon which brought together approximately 75 women who received a review of Hyperion club studies and project aims for the coming season.

The featured program was a book review by Mrs. Clyde Angel, who chose Peg Bracken's "I Didn't Come Here To Argue." The humorous presentation lived up to one of the book's newspaper reviews — it was "laced with laughter and filled with common sense."

Beginning with the observation, "If you stay here long enough, you'll get that lived-in look," Mrs. Angel viewed the life style of a middle-class, middle-aged woman who has discovered that life is best lived with equal amounts of love and laughter. She concluded with a witty accounting of "things I know, things I suspect and things I surmise."

Mrs. Jarratt presided, introducing other council officers, Mrs. Tom Barber, secretary, and Mrs. Ralph Caton, treasurer, along with the six club presidents who serve as vice presidents of the council. They are Mrs. Horace Reagan, 1905 club; Mrs. T. J. Rowland, 1946 club; Mrs. Toots Mansfield, 1930 club; Mrs. H. W. Smith, 1948 club; Mrs. Wade Choate, 1953 club; and Mrs. Walter Wheat, 1955 club.

As each club president or spokesman was introduced, she gave the club's study theme along with its chosen service project. The studies include "Frontiers and Fundamentals," 1905 club; "There's Nothing New Under the Sun — Or Is There?" 1930 club; "Shifting Sands — Our Indian Heritage," 1946 club; "The Great Religions of the World," 1948 club; "There's A New World A'Coming," 1953 club; and "Happiness Is —" 1955 club.

Various projects included Howard County Library, the Boys' Club, Westside Community Center and support of the proposed museum.

Mrs. Jarratt extended the welcome, introducing a guest, Mrs. Jo Bright, and expressing appreciation to the 1946, 1953 and 1955 clubs for arranging the program, menu and decorations for the luncheon. Business reports were given by Mrs. Caton and Mrs. Barber, and the invocation was by Mrs. Walter Wheat.

Tables were strikingly decorated in patriotic colors with the use of red linens and blue crystal. The head table was centered with an arrangement of white chrysanthemums, blue daisies and red roses accented with small United States flags. Similar arrangements marked the side tables of the U arrangement. One of the floral pieces was presented to Mrs. Angel, along with a gift of appreciation, and another went to Mrs. Wheat as president of the 1955 club which had the most members in attendance.

Coming Events Announced By Church Circle

Several coming events were announced when the Board of Church Circle, Wesley United Methodist Church, met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Jim Hogan, 407 Eighth.

Mrs. Don Morgan presided, announcing that the World Community Day will be held Nov. 6 at First Presbyterian Church. On Nov. 20, the circle will hold a bazaar at Wesley Church, and on Dec. 4 the Woman's Society of Christian Service will hold a birthday party for patients at Big Spring State Hospital.

Members were asked to bring shoe boxes to church today. The boxes will be used to package gift items for hospital patients. They were also asked to save magazines for the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mrs. E. A. Guinn presented a program, "Risk and Reality," which stressed willingness to risk self in getting involved to help others.

The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 29 in the home of Mrs. Homer Pendergrass.

Quotable Quotes

By The Associated Press

Some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"I try to hit a tennis ball as hard as I can; if I have trained myself close to a masculine degree of efficiency in this respect, it does not mean that I have forsaken any of my femininity." — Margaret Court, after winning the U.S. Open.

"I call the book an extravaganza — but evidently it is not quite as extravagant or fantastic as I had supposed." — Mystery writer Agatha Christie, publishing her 80th book, which features the hijack of four airliners.

"I guess if I show my legs to a million people, I can wear minis." — Phyllis George, on the new Miss America, on miniskirts.

"In the rooms we just played cards or walked around or slept. Outside there was always shooting. Sometimes they would take us down to a shelter in the basement and we'd wait, but you would still hear the shooting." — Ruth Smith, 12-year-old who was among the hijack hostages released by the Arab guerrillas.

"Women should get in there and work and quit fooling around with this women's liberation thing." — Joy H. Burham, chairman of the women bankers of the Georgia Bankers Association.

WHILE DRESS DESIGNERS SING MIDI BLUES

'Having Biggest Year In History' Claim Jubilant 'Fun Clothes' Firms

By MILDRED WHITEAKER
LOS ANGELES — It's "happy time" for manufacturers of California sportswear.

Although dress designers may be singing the midi blues and eyeing diminishing revenues, many firms specializing in pants and fun clothes report that business is up 25 per cent and more over last year.

"We're having our biggest year in history," grinned Sam Bretzfeld, president of International Set, a label synonymous with posh pant costumes for leisure living.

"We can't decide whether we want this midi muddle to continue so pant sales will keep zooming or whether we want the hemline question settled so we won't have to work so hard."

Mr. Bretzfeld is past president of the California Fashion Creator's Association, which is currently holding its 20th national spring press week for 90 newspapers and television editors from around the country.

Pants have always been part of the California "life style," but now they are becoming a cross-country uniform. At least half the editors here for press week are attending the sessions in pant costumes — chiefly knits.

International Set opened a daylong program devoted to the sportswear story, an area in which California designers excel. Sharing honors were Alex Colman, White Stag, Koret, and a neighbor from the Pacific, Malia of Honolulu.

NO TRUE MIDI

Nobody showed a true midi skirt (mid-calf, that is), although longer lengths stalked the runway in sleeveless midi coats over pants and occasionally in wrapped or buttoned skirts which just covered the knees. These are extensions of fall silhouettes in spring fabrics that are cool, carefree and colorful.

Interestingly, in a time when dresses are often controversial and "costume," sportswear is endorsing the classics — tunics, jumpsuits, straight-legged pants, blazers, and sharp-looking belted vinyl and canvas toppers. Even those cropped pants of 1956 — "clam diggers" — are playing a return engagement. Only this time around they're being called "sand diggers," and the legs are wider.

A not her common denomination in the showings is the return of black to active sportswear. Sometimes black and white are combined as in White Stag's handsome black sailcloth, mid-length deck coat bordered in white and worn over white pants.

Bamboo is a classy new neutral, and watch for coral to be a favorite come spring. Also lime. Prints are splashed throughout sportswear in lush color combinations that are trademarks of California. Coming on strong is brandy — laced with white.

Terrycloth is bidding for attention, both in terry velour and in a cotton seersucker version. International Set is enthusiastic about a new woven jacquard polyester which joins the long-popular polyester knits.

And International Set is endorsing silver in big buckles and buttons.

Throughout all the lines, the layered look is giving way to the two-piece pant suit, another "classic" signature.

MISSIONARY

Adding a different dimension to sportswear are "missionary" dresses from talented journalist-turned-designer Mary Foster of Malia of Honolulu. Former East Coast residents, Bill and Mary Foster are owners of the successful and mushrooming island firm.

Malia is noted for swimsuits and cover-ups, coffee and patio dresses in imaginative and exclusive prints.

Mary said she deviated a bit this season with the "missionary" dresses for several reasons:

"They were inspired by the magnificent new book, 'The Hawaiians,' a history of the islands. The dresses use the collage technique of mixing several fabrics and prints in a single garment (the missionaries were frugal and never threw anything away). And the dresses are very much a part of today's fashion mood."

The colorful, calico-like dresses in ankle lengths feature yokes, puffy sleeves, tiny buttons, ruffles and ruching. They're reminiscent of the granny dresses of several years back and would be fun for dorms, patios and informal parties. But who knows? Perhaps they'll be the new streetwear. Word from Paris is that young girls are wearing ruffled calico-like maxi dresses by day as well as by night.

Hope Dennis, fashion editor of the Honolulu Advertiser, told me, "Any of these missionary dresses could be worn anywhere in the islands right now, even to the office. They fit in with our wonderfully relaxed life style."

Malia also showed the kind of clothes which have put the label in stores throughout the states in only a few years — swirls of color in play dresses and pant costumes and wrapped hostess gowns.

My only disappointment at this writing is that I haven't had an opportunity to see what young Californians are wearing on the streets. Press week headquarters, the new Sheraton-Universal Hotel, overlooks the vast Universal Studios and the Hollywood freeway and isn't within easy distance of shops or schools or community centers. Here, we see tourists.

The centerpiece of pink carnations was flanked by pink candles in ironstone holders, and appointments were crystal and silver. The couple will be married Oct. 16 in the Eleven and Birdwell Lane Church of Christ.

BARNES & PELLETTIER

'ROUND TOWN

By LUCILLE PICKLE

In a recent news story I was saddened by the fact that a certain group of people felt called upon to review flag etiquette and to see what should be done to bring it up to date.

What has been good etiquette for all these years seems, to me, good enough to serve for many more. Not until the past few years has anyone been so without feeling for the flag that represents all of us who are United States citizens, that he would sew it to the seat of his pants or burn it. Why rework a good set of guidelines for those who don't respect them regardless of what rules are laid down.

Patriotism isn't something that can be bought or sold. You either have it or you don't. I never have known anyone personally who I knew did not love this country, and respect what it stood for. Oh, I've certainly known plenty that don't like the way the country was run years ago, now, and probably I will know many who won't like the future administrations. But, as far as I know, they are still in there working and trying, even if not successfully, to do something about it. But they are not lacking in love for their country. If they lacked love, they would let it go right on to the dogs, which has been predicted more times than I can remember.

Now, for an evening of bringing up the juices of patriotism, I would recommend another round of the Big Spring High School's marching band show that is entirely made up of martial music, songs and numbers that are dear to the hearts of Americans. It would be a shame for this patriotic show to be shelved after a couple of performances. Just the presentation of the Colors makes me swell with pride. But, when you add all that those colors mean to us, just don't talk to me of doing over the rules of how we should treat our flag which is not just some bunting.

When all those band youngsters paraded before the football fans at the Lubbock game and then the first one here, I'm sure many felt as I did, just pretty 'puddly' with tears of love, appreciation and pride. And the pride included a great big armload for all those band boys and girls, their instructors and their parents. Especially a great big posey to their parents because it's through them that those students have learned the discipline that they must have to work all those long hours that it takes to bring a show like this one together. Also thanks to their directors who have to channel all the parents taught the kids at home into one great big effort.

Well, that's my say for today.

Sorry to have missed seeing the oil paintings of MRS. LENORE REDDOCH ABERNATHY who was over from Midland at mid-week to visit her sister, MRS. PERRY PHILLIPS. Mrs. Abernathy has done well at painting although she only had two formal lessons. She has developed a unique style and enjoys the work.

JONES LAMAR who had surgery in Lubbock Monday was due home this weekend. . . and MRS. RIP SMITH who underwent hip surgery in El Paso is back here feeling fine.

Come Wednesday KENNETH GAFFORD is to leave for Panama City, Panama, where he will work in maintenance at the computer center at Albrook AFB for several months. Mrs. Gafford and little Kelly will go down in mid-October when Ken finds living facilities. The family expects to be back here before Christmas.

Had a short note from MRS. FLOYD PARSONS (former Big Spring resident now living in Little Rock, Ark.) saying she and Mr. Parsons were to leave Dallas Saturday at noon for Honolulu, Hawaii. They had gone to Waco to see Paul who is a Baylor freshman, before leaving on the trip.

Had a nice visit with the W. D. McNAIRS in Snyder Friday night before and after the game. The McNairs formerly lived here. Although they haven't any boys at home, Terry is at Baylor and Lee at San Angelo State University, football is still a big thing to them as the eldest son, Larry, is on the Snyder High School coaching staff.

BETROTHED — Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Green, 801 W. 18th, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lynn Anne, to Gaylan Floyd Goddard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Goddard, Olton Route, Plainview. The wedding will be an event of Nov. 14 at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church, Lubbock, with the Rev. Tom Iribeck officiating.

Take High Tallies At La Gallina

La Gallina bridge games were held Friday at Big Spring Country Club where first place went to Mrs. Jerry Jenkins and Mrs. Joe Moss. Other winners were Mrs. Clarence Peters and Mrs. Pete Cook, second; Mrs. Delnor Poss and Mrs. Harold Davis, third; and Mrs. Ken Gafford and Mrs. Monroe Gafford, fourth. Mrs. Edmund Tom of Stanton was a guest player. The group will meet again next at 10 a.m. next Friday.

'Noah's Ark' Slated At Episcopal Church Today

"Noah's Ark," a religious playlet, will be presented today at 10:30 a.m. services in St. Mary's Episcopal Church. The presentation, by a speech group composed of young people at College Baptist Church, is directed by Bob Lewis.

Known as "The Messengers," the group is composed of Jerry Price, David Draper, Billy Truette, Nan Whittington, Debra Blackshear, Teri Hull, Kathy Newton, Debbie Grigg and Kelly Draper.

In narrating the story of the flood and God's Covenant, the cast uses choral speaking, plus individual lines spoken from the audience, balcony, front and sides of the sanctuary.

Attend Stanton Birthday Party

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Graves of Lenora were in Stanton Sept. 18 to attend a family birthday celebration for her father, S. F. Goolsby, 83. Mr. Goolsby was honored by his children with a party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Langston.

WEBB SLATES ORIENTATION

Family Services orientation will be held Wednesday at the NCO Club at Webb Air Force Base for all interested military dependents. The orientation will begin at 9:30 a.m. and conclude at 2 p.m. with a free luncheon included. There will be speakers representing the medical and legal services and the Red Cross. For reservations call the Family Service office, 267-2511, Ext. 2446, by Tuesday.

Reveals Findings Of Committee On Aging

"Seven per cent of the population in Howard County is 65-years-old or older," said Mrs. Delaine Crawford, county home demonstration agent, in a talk or the work of the Howard County Committee on the Aging. Mrs. Crawford spoke at the Health and Welfare Committee luncheon Friday at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

"The number of people in this aging category has nearly doubled in the past 30 years,"

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Cash, Nevada, Mo., announce the engagement of their daughter, Constance Viva, to Capt. Thomas James Tallon, son of Mr. and Mrs. James I. Tallon, Akron, Ohio. Lt. Cash and Capt. Tallon are stationed at Webb Air Force Base. They plan a Nov. 7 wedding in Webb AFB Chapel.

Mrs. Crawford said. "In 1940 3.7 per cent of the population was over 65-years-of-age. The council has found that older people are more interested in the necessities, than in social gatherings. Only 55 out of every 100 older persons are completely self-sufficient. Most are living with friends or relatives. Five out of every 100 say they would rather enter an institution or rest home.

The council on the aging recently received its charter as a non-profit organization, Mrs. Crawford announced.

Lt. Joseph Saint presided at the meeting and welcomed representatives of the Nursing Care Home Unit which is affiliated with the VA Hospital. The next meeting will be Oct. 23 followed by a recess until January.

Instructive Talks Given At Meeting

Permian Basin Dental Assistants Society met at Dr. H. M. Stover's office in Lamesa Thursday evening for clinical discussions. Mrs. E. G. Miller, Big Spring, presented "First Aid Kit for Dental Assistants" suggesting that the assistants keep a supply of pocket combs, sample lipsticks, plastic rain hats, safety pins and similar items for their patients' convenience.

Mrs. Ralph Wilson, Big Spring, spoke on "Shot of Energy for Dental Assistants". Miss Lula Wilson, Lamesa, "The 'I Do's' of a State Officer", and Miss Joyce Clements, Midland, "I'm A New Member." The next meeting will be Oct. 22 in Odessa.

Author Tells Of Work At Hospital

Mrs. Georgia Smith of Kansas City, Mo., author of children's books, was a guest at the Homemaker's Class luncheon at the First Christian Church Thursday. Mrs. Smith was accompanied by Mrs. Lucille Steers, also of Kansas City. Both are houseguests of Mrs. George Hall.

Mrs. Smith described her volunteer work with mental patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Kansas City, and how writing stories and verse is therapeutic to the patients. Mrs. Smith edits the patients' work and sends it to publishers. In addition to writing children's books, she contributes to Hallmark Cards. To entertain the group Mrs. Smith recited several of her compositions.

Hostesses for the luncheon were Mrs. John Beard and Mrs. C. A. Murdock. Carrying out the autumn theme were multi-colored napkins and fall flowers accenting the table. The next meeting will be Oct. 22.

Special Care Beautifies Face

With today's emphasis on beautiful skin all over, and the baring summer clothes, special pre-bath skin care is almost a necessity.

An especially invigorating pre-bath or shower rub down that will rev up circulation and remove old dry skin cells — without damaging the tender young skin underneath — can be made by adding some ordinary table salt to pure baby oil. The salt provides the friction and the baby oil keeps the skin baby soft.

It's a wonderful way to stir up your tired winter circulation and give your skin a fresh new spring look. The mixture is pure enough that you can also use it as a facial.

Involvement Urged By Speaker

"Open your mind to world affairs and be concerned with other people's needs," advised Mrs. Steve Baker at the Altrusa Club luncheon Thursday at Coker's Restaurant.

Mrs. Baker, chairman of the international relations committee, was in charge of the program and described the duties of her committee and its aims for the year.

In asking each member to become personally involved in world affairs, Mrs. Baker suggested that members be involved through Altrusa grants to foreign women graduate students; through foster parent plans such as "Save The Children"; through the Hand of Friendship program; and United Nations projects.

Mrs. G. C. Broughton Jr. presided. It was announced that Mrs. Willard Hendricks has been appointed to serve on the elections committee of the District 9 Altrusa conference in Abilene Oct. 16-18. The next regular meeting will be Oct. 8.

Forum Unit Starts Year At Brunch

Big Spring Progressive Forum opened the club year with a brunch Thursday at the home of Mrs. Bill Draper on Wilson Road. Mrs. Donald Priddy was cohostess. Guests were Mrs. Jerry A. Phillips and Mrs. Earl J. Newell.

Mrs. Roy Cederberg presided, announcing the theme for the year, "Creative Thinking," and describing the programs. Mrs. C. K. Orr was appointed vice president, and members discussed selling pecans as a fund-raising project. The club annually presents a nursing scholarship to Howard County Junior College.

Brunch tables were covered with white and yellow linen and accented with nosegay arrangements of fall flowers. The next meeting will be Oct. 21 in the home of Mrs. Maxwell Green, 1902 Main.

Old Challis Fabric Makes Comeback

Fabrics, like movie stars, can make a comeback after years of anonymity. One fabric on this year's comeback trail is challis, popular at the turn of the century for pajamas and nightgowns. It's a soft fabric of plain weave in wool, cotton, nylon, or rayon, either in a solid color or, more often, a small print. Challis is being translated into smart, belted shirtwaist dresses for winter.

Wedding Solemnized In Baptist Church

Miss Randy Jean Woods and Sgt. Philip David Clary were married Saturday evening in Grace Baptist Church. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Woods, Route 1, and Sgt. Clary, of Kelly Air Force Base, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Clary, Fort Worth.

The Rev. Roy Honea conducted the ceremony before an arch of greenery flanked by tree candelabra and baskets of gladioli. Kenneth Roach sang the "Twelfth of Never," "Whither Thou Goest" and "Oh Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. C. B. Underwood, organist.

The bride was attired in an A-line gown of bridal satin fashioned on princess lines with rounded neckline. The long lace sleeves ended in scalloped flares, and the lace was trimmed with seed pearls. Her fingertip-length veil of illusion was held by a cluster of satin roses. She carried a nosegay of miniature white pompon mums topped with a white orchid.

Miss Cathy Mayes served as the maid of honor in a blue, sleeveless satin gown overlaid with matching blue floral lace. She carried a nosegay of blue carnations.

Leslie Woods, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Philip Medlin and Jonathan Honea.

The bride is a graduate of Coahoma High School and Howard County Junior College. She attended Angelo State University and plans to continue her studies in San Antonio, where the couple will make their home. The bridegroom is a Lubbock Tech High School graduate and attended classes at Howard County Junior College. He served in Vietnam last year.

For their wedding trip the bride wore a brown linen Empire dress accented with a white leather belt and trimming at the neckline.

Mrs. Walter Brumley registered guests at the wedding reception held in the Woods' home. The tiered cake, accented with white bells and blue sweetpeas, was topped by a miniature bride and groom. The refreshments were served from a table covered with a white cloth trimmed with blue netting and centered with the bride's bouquet. Serving were Mrs. C. L. Daves, Mrs. Elmer Belcher and Mrs. W. C. Ward.

Out-of-town guests were the Rev. and Mrs. Don Way, San Angelo; Larry McLean, Denver, Colo.; and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Woods, Carrollton.

Woman's Work

In the United States, a working mother has an average of 2.8 hours of free time on an average weekday and 7.1 hours on Sundays. The non-working mother has 3.5 hours free on weekdays and 7.5 hours free on Sundays.

Tunic Top Makes Style Difference

The difference between this year's pants suit and last year's lies at the top. The new jacket or tunic top to be smart must be nearly dress length. The two parts needn't necessarily match, but many European designers made a short dress, a narrow underskirt and a pair of slacks as a three part costume.

Miss Sheila Kennedy Weds Ralph Hensiek

Miss Sheila Charlene Kennedy, the Rev. C. R. Burt officiating, and Airman 1C Ralph William Hensiek Jr. were united in marriage Saturday evening at 1606 E. 16th, and the bride, Hillcrest Baptist Church with Mrs. Ralph W. Hensiek Sr., St. Louis, Mo.

Arrangements of white gladioli with emerald foliage and seven-branch candelabra formed the background for the ceremony. Leonard Moody sang "Whither Thou Goest," "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer," accompanied by Mrs. Moody, organist.

The bride was attired in a satin Empire gown with scooped neckline and long full sleeves gathered at the cuffs, which were banded with lace. The gown was softly draped and gathered at the sides with lace edging forming a bolero-effect on the bodice. Her floor-length veil was held by a large satin bow. She carried a triangular bouquet of white gladioli, English ivy, and leather fern tied with streamers of yellow and blue satin.

Miss Martha Palmer was the maid of honor, attired in a blue satin Empire gown and matching bow headpiece with brief veil. She carried a hand bouquet of yellow gladioli accented with blue satin leaves.

Sgt. Bill Huttegger of Webb Air Force Base was the best man. Ushers were Daryle Hensiek, St. Louis, Mo., brother of the bridegroom; and Bobby Dykes, Houston, nephew of the bride.

Tony Kennedy, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer, and Delores Daily, Houston, niece of the bride, was the flower girl.

The wedding reception was held at the couple's future home, 3006 Cherokee. Refreshments were served from a table covered with white lace. Members of the house party were Miss Rhonda Daily, Houston; Miss Gayla Kennedy, and Mrs. E. G. Kennedy.

The bride wore a blue knit A-line dress and corsage from her bridal bouquet for a wedding trip to St. Louis.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School. The bridegroom is a graduate of South County Tech, St. Louis, and is stationed at Webb Air Force Base in the field maintenance shop.

DITTY BAGS ON THEIR WAY
Mrs. Tom Allen, Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Roll

Christmas Ditty Bags Sent To Servicemen

One hundred fifty ditty bags — Big Spring's full quota — are on their way to the American Red Cross Field Director, 24th Evacuation Hospital, hopefully making a brighter Christmas for 150 servicemen overseas.

Mrs. Tom Allen, local Red Cross executive secretary, said the bags contain assorted items such as pens, address books, canned nuts and candy, socks, bottle openers, tissues and powdered soft drinks. Each bag costs approximately $4 to make and fill, with the Red Cross furnishing fabric for the bags and paying mailing costs.

"We owe a debt of gratitude to many local merchants, clubs and individuals for donating money and merchandise," said Mrs. Allen. Local women as well as those at Webb Air Force Base donated their time to sew the bags, which were packed by Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Joyce Conner and Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Roll. Seven cartons of the bags were delivered to the post office for shipment Thursday.

Choose Hemline Suitable For You

The commentator at the Chester Weinberg collections noted that "Chester has taken several looks at the hemline."

A printed release at the show further explained trumpeting — "Obviously fashion is past the hemline hangup, but realizing the length that is right for you is the going length, how do you handle that reality? Doesn't proportion still dictate right from wrong, whatever the length?"

Homemaker Soon To Be Thing Of Past?

"A Woman's Place As A Homemaker" was discussed by Mrs. Frank Perry at the Thursday meeting of Alpha Chi Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha. Mrs. Jack Price, 604 N. George, was hostess.

Mrs. Perry enumerated the many jobs of the housewife from laundering to chauffeuring and estimated what the housewife's salary would be if she were paid for her services. In conclusion, Mrs. Perry quipped that "the homemaker may soon be a thing of the past."

Mrs. N. R. Holcombe presided as members agreed to do volunteer work at the Veterans Administration Hospital with elderly patients, and a Big Spring State Hospital by helping at parties.

A surprise baby shower honored Mrs. Clovis Hale, who recently gave birth to a son. Gifts, including a gold jacket, were presented for the baby. Refreshments were served from a table set in an autumn motif with an arrangement of fall flowers. The next meeting will be a rush party Oct. 8 with the place to be announced.

New Size Made For Better Fit

The National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers says it has just completed a 14-month scientific study to help make sure that pantyhose fit correctly.

The findings are being translated into industry-wide size definitions so that a woman will now be able to buy a pair of pantyhose with assurance that the size will correspond not only to her height but also her weight, the association said.

BIG SPRING EXPERIENCE

Cosden's new Calumet City Plant for polystyrene manufacture is one of the most efficient plants of its type in the United States today. Knowledge and experience gained during twelve years of manufacturing the plastic at Big Spring have enabled Cosden to make the most efficient use of space and to optimize the flow of process operations at the new facility.

Although the basic design, process and hardware are essentially the same as in the Big Spring Plant, there are incorporated some innovative ideas in the areas of space utilization, packaging, loading facilities and operation.

IMPROVEMENTS

Major improvements were made in the color blending facility and extrusion operation. Hardware was redesigned to a higher efficiency and individual elements of the color blending operation are in a better relationship to each other. Cosden engineers modified the design of the extruders used for pelletizing polystyrene. An increase in extruder horsepower and optimization of the machine's throughput resulted in a marked increase in extruder capacity.

Bagging, boxing and pelletizing of the finished product are done largely by automatic machines, resulting in time and manpower savings. Bulk loading operations also benefit from an automatic system which weighs a railroad carload and shuts off flow at a predetermined weight.

16 GRADES

Primary product of the Calumet City Plant will be polystyrene. It will be furnished in 16 basic grades, including medium-impact, high-impact, furniture grade and appliance grades. Users can choose from a full line of more than 2,000 colors. In addition, this newest Cosden facility will custom manufacture polystyrene to meet service requirements of a demanding application.

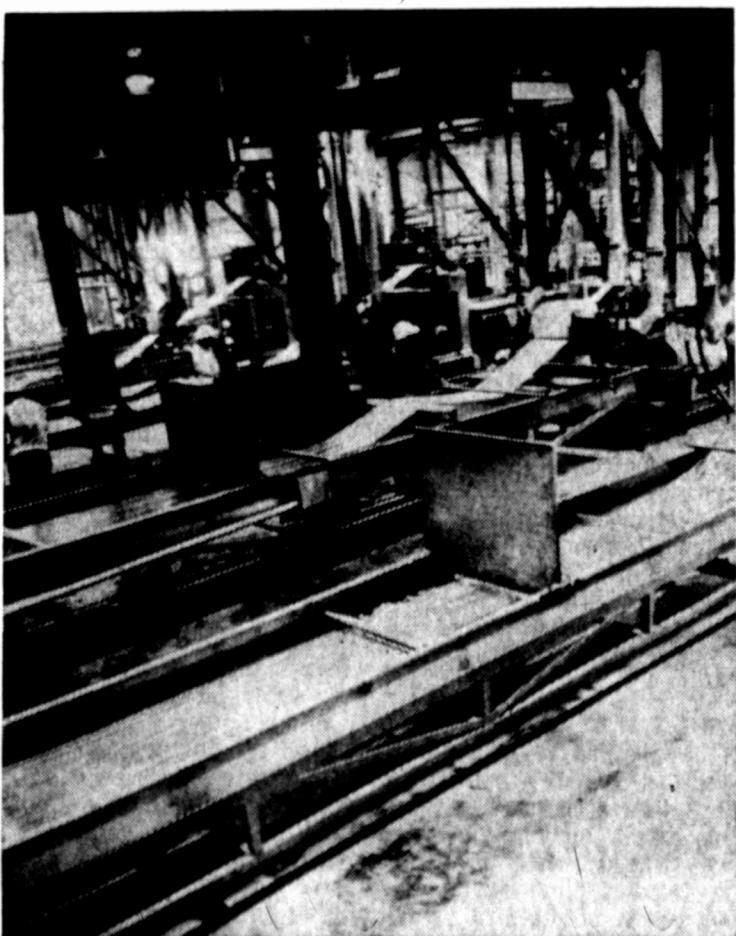

This is the first domestic facility to be built by Cosden using the experience of the Big Spring Plant. Several foreign plants of Cosden licensees are based on the Big Spring operation.

Pollution Eliminated

Full Safeguards Built Into New Cosden Polystyrene Plant

Pollution has been a problem for as long as man has inhabited the earth. Not until recent years, however, have people become generally concerned about the problem.

Today, nearly everyone is very concerned about ecology. But long before the U. S. became "Eco-land," Cosden Oil & Chemical Company was keenly aware of the problem and felt it was good business to eliminate the discharge of undesirable materials from its plants into the air, water and earth. This long-established concern, and the experience gained from it, is strongly evidenced in the design and construction of Cosden's new Calumet City Plant.

This plant produces polystyrene, polyethylene emulsions, formaldehyde and aqua ammonia, and is located 20 miles south of downtown Chicago.

CONVERSION

The new Calumet City Plant incorporates an existing facility. One of the first undertakings by Cosden's design engineers was to convert four large boilers already on the site from coal to natural gas. This switch in fuels eliminated all smoke and particulate discharge from the boilers.

Dryer lines in the polystyrene section of the plant have two-stage cyclone separators in their vents. This system is effective in the removal of dust and particulate matter.

Process water necessary for the operation of the Calumet City Plant is drawn from the Little Calumet River which borders the north side of the 64-acre site. Raw river water is routed first to a series of sand filters which remove visible solids. From the sand filters one stream is chemically softened, then used for boiler make-up. A second stream goes directly to closed-loop cooling towers. In both instances the water is recycled.

TREATED WATER

There is virtually no residual river water from the boilers. From the cooling towers there is a small amount of blowdown. This water is collected and channeled to a treatment plant where its pH is adjusted to an acceptable balance and any oily waste or solid matter which may be entrained in the water is removed. The treated water is then sent into the drainage system of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago. Process waste waters receive the same treatment before being disposed of into the same drainage system.

Total flow into the disposal system is only 150,000 gallons per day of treated, clarified Calumet City Plant are removed by a contractor who disposes of it in the manner required by local authorities.

NO DISCHARGE

No liquid of any type is discharged directly into the Little Calumet River, not even runoff rainwater. All runoff from rain falling on the plant area drains into a system of open ditches and is collected in a holding basin where it is sampled and tested. If it meets standards for cleanliness, it is released into the river. If it fails Cosden's tests, it is cycled through the water treatment plant, then discharged into the Metropolitan Sanitary System of Greater Chicago.

GIBSON'S WORK

Primary responsibility for the environmental health engineering which went into the Calumet City Plant is that of W. E. Gibson Jr., coordinator of air-water conservation, and a veteran of 19 years service with Cosden.

"We set out to reduce all possible sources of pollution to the point of elimination," said Gibson. "Not only now, but in the future as well." He explained: "We designed this plant on a basic building block system which will enable us to install additional equipment as future demands require."

At a time when there is a great deal of talk about air and water pollution, Cosden has put into practice an effective system of controls which have been evolved through many years of concern about the quality and conservation of man's irreplaceable lifebloods — air and water.

COSDEN IS GROWING, GROWING, GROWING

This week Cosden's new polystyrene plant at Calumet City, Illinois will be dedicated. A showplace of polystyrene manufacture technology, the plant capitalizes on the knowledge and experience gained during twelve years of polystyrene manufacture right here at Big Spring. Designed to produce 150 million pounds a year, the facility will double the company's polystyrene capacity, making Cosden the third largest producer of this important plastic.

Cosden is also introducing its new symbol. The "C", open-ended, suggests a wide-open future indicative of one of the fastest growing chemical producers. Look for it. You'll be seeing it often.

Bentsen Qualified For Senate

Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., in a talk to a group of business men in Big Spring Wednesday, revealed characteristics that people who know him well have long pointed out: He is a sincere, straightforward man of judgment who takes a positive approach to problems facing our state and nation.

These are qualities that entitle him to strong voter support for the U.S. Senate seat, in the Nov. 3 election.

Bentsen is a man of impeccable personal record, with solid educational background, an outstanding military career in World War II, six years' service in the national Congress; a business man of acumen and success. He has strong family roots in Texas, a state he obviously loves.

He gives the impression that here is a man all the public — regardless of social or economic station — can trust; that he is above yielding to paltry ideas and visions; that he can meet problems and people fairly, with understanding, good grace and candor. He has demonstrated in his campaigning that he can reach a level of understanding with the younger generation, as well as a sympathetic working relationship with minority races.

These are important in the makeup of a man who will be representing Texas in the U.S. Senate.

Bentsen runs as a Democrat, and we feel that he has the qualities to represent equitably various shades of thinking within that party, regardless of past contests.

Texas ought to think seriously about continuing Democratic representation in Washington, where 20 of its 23 congressmen are Democrats, several of them in powerful committee chairmanships. There is a great deal to be said for close working relationships with all the Texas delegation — House and Senate — if you want to consider the state's interests. His prior experience as a congressman for several terms equips him for this close team work.

The present administration wants badly to build its own strength in the Senate and would like to see Bentsen's defeat. We feel the issue before the voters on Nov. 3 is not what the administration would like to have, but what is best for Texas and what manner of leadership and influence the people of Texas want in the U.S. Senate. Bentsen can establish influence, and he has the built-in qualities of sound leadership.

Your Community Can Use You

Every income-earning person in the county shortly will be asked to do a fair share in this year's United Fund campaign — and if response is widespread enough, the goal of $109,975 will be met quickly.

Meanwhile, the United Fund is just as badly in need of public-spirited citizens, both men and women, who are willing to give a bit of time in solicitation work. Generally, when campaigns have lagged, it is when volunteers were in insufficient supply. This is no great task, but a civic assignment that can be done with honor and with pride. It represents a bit of effort toward sustaining the youth and welfare agencies that add to the heartbeat of our community.

There are few of us who could not help to some extent. Your services are needed and will be welcomed, and if you have community well-being at heart, you will help. All you have to do is call the United Fund office and let it be known you are available and willing.

David Lawrence.

U.S., Russia Must Work Together

WASHINGTON — Pressure — applied separately or jointly by the United States and the Soviet Union — upon all the nations involved in the crisis in the Middle East is now the only hope of averting a larger war.

While the Soviets have openly declared that they would not tolerate any foreign military intervention in the "fratricidal" or civil war in Jordan, and have called upon the Arab guerrillas and Jordanian army to stop fighting, it is evident that the Palestinian rebels have not gotten the word. The prospect of an armed intervention by the United States is being treated as something that really might happen, and the official news agencies of the Soviet Union are telling the Arab countries that the Russians "cannot put up with such a development."

BUT, AT THE same time, the Soviet news media are pointing to the movement of the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the eastern Mediterranean and the public discussion of intervention.

All this could mean that the Soviets, while engaging in some propaganda of their own at the moment, may after all join with the United States, and settle the Middle East problem very quickly. Moscow can do so by urging the withdrawal of Syrian forces from Jordan and the cessation of hostilities by the Palestinian commandos.

THE DEPARTMENT of State recognizes that the Soviets have urged Syria to withdraw its troops from Jordanian territory with the direct purpose of making a peace agreement possible. The United States, on the other hand, is reported to have received a request a few days ago from the Jordanian ruler for possible military aid in his army's struggle with the guerrillas and the Syrian forces which have invaded his country.

CERTAINLY it may be assumed that, with Russia using its influence with the Arab countries while the United States withholds for the time being any military action, there is an opportunity for a solution to be reached. It would, indeed, be surprising if the United States and the Soviet Union working together were unable to halt the Middle East flare-up. Until the attitude of the Soviets is more fully developed, however, and there have been more interchanges between Washington and Moscow, the policy of the Nixon administration is one of watchful waiting and restraint.

THE UNITED STATES, of course, hopes that as soon as the fighting ceases, one of the first questions to be resolved will be the release of the hostages who were seized aboard the airplanes recently hijacked. Unquestionably, the four nations whose citizens are among the 54 hostages — namely, Great Britain, West Germany, Switzerland and the United States — will wish to participate in any negotiations for the recovery of the prisoners. But it appears probable that, unless the Soviet Union and the American governments make it the first order of business after the ceasefire is obtained, the problem might not be resolved until the future of all the Palestinian commandos is determined.

THE WHOLE Mideast situation, therefore, now appears to the world to be unsettled and full of threats. But behind the scenes there are important diplomatic moves being made involving both the United States and the Soviet Union. These two powers can be the main influences in an effective cease-fire and then a settlement of the issues which have caused the uprisings.

Some Signs Of Inflation Let Up

By LINDA RUBEY
By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Two events this week strengthened the contention that inflation is coming under control: the cutting of the prime rate from 8 per cent to 7½ per cent and the drop in the consumer price index increase in August.

The August price rise brought the Consumer Price Index to 136 per cent, meaning that it now costs $13.60 to buy goods and services that could be bought for $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Herbert Stein, a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, called the news "the most solid evidence we've had yet" that the administration's anti-inflation strategy is working.

But the same time three Democratic economists—Walter Heller, Gardner Ackley and Arthur Okun—said present economic policies would lead to "chronic and creeping paralysis." They called for a "significantly more expansionary policy" to stimulate the economy.

MODERATE UPTURN
Stein maintained that the economic recovery will be forthcoming as expected and that the economy will show a moderate upturn before the end of the year, as the administration has been forecasting.

Other top government analysts said they were cheered by the relatively small increase in consumer prices but warned that the price climb could gain momentum. "Although we've convinced the underlying trend shows moderating prices, this is a volatile area and prices might bounce back again for a month or two," cautioned one administration economist.

The unemployment rate has climbed from 3.3 per cent to 5.1 per cent since President Nixon first assumed office in January

MIXED PICTURE

- Interest cuts, slower COL rise said to be encouraging
- Others warn unemployment reflects creeping paralysis
- New factory orders continue persistent decline
- With $50 billion more for year, consumer is pivot man

1969. Observers have consistently called this one of the trickiest political problems facing the administration.

Stein also emphasized that even a prolonged strike against General Motors would not affect the over-all course of the economy very much.

NEW ORDERS DOWN
At the same time, the Commerce Department reported continued weakness in the manufacturing sector of the economy. Declines in new orders showed up in every major category of industry except for producers of household durable goods.

Another member of the Council of Economic Advisers, Hendrik Houthakker, adopted a slightly differing view when he said the administration might have to think about ways of offsetting the economic impact of the auto strike if it lasted several months or longer.

Analysts said the prime-rate cut and lower money-market interest rates could force a reduction later this fall in the rates on Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration mortgages, currently at 8½ per cent.

WATCH OUTFLOW
Meanwhile, on the international scene, Treasury Secretary Kennedy tried to reassure the International Monetary Fund meeting in Denmark that the United States wouldn't let inflation and dollar outflow mount again.

He said administration officials are "as fully aware of the danger of too-fast expansion and renewed overheating as we were of deep recession." Foreign economists and financiers have expressed fear that the administration has given the economy too much stimulus, in order to help Republican chances in the upcoming elections.

Meanwhile, economists continued to check the pulsebeat of the consumer. They emphasized personal income provides the basis for buying power which is in turn the biggest stimulus to business activity. In terms of this, observers noted that personal income in the U.S. last month reached an all time high of $807 billion yearly, a rise of nearly $50 billion over the past year.

QUESTION MARK
But when the consumer will start to exercise this buying power is another question, though no one disputes the impact this could have on turning the economy around.

The National Industrial Conference Board did report however that the business outlook improved for the first time in more than a year in July and August. As verification they pointed to an increase in buying plans for automobiles and new homes.

Around The Rim Make Money Out Of Good Grammar

Awhile back this corner, in response to some criticism of taking liberties with the language, admitted to frailties as regards the avoidance of such things as split infinitives and dangling participles. Never have gotten the darned things straightened out.

BUT SOMEBODY still is trying to tell us something. A person who may or may not be a friend has dispatched a "Handbook of Writing," which, in essence, is an old style grammar. Old-style may be the word, because the text was first printed in 1924, and came out of an odds-and-ends book shop.

One must go on the premise, however, that the stauncher rules of grammar haven't changed in all these years, so some study has been given to the handbook.

AND THERE must follow the confession that a perusal of the rules leaves me just as confused as the study of grammar did back in the dim days of school. Do you remember about the parsing of sentences, when diagrams were drawn on the blackboard with various words and phrases wandering off on connecting lines? I never did understand the architecture of this.

NEVERTHELESS, the study of this Handbook of Writing now leads us off into such pitfalls (to be avoided) as a "squinting modifier," and so help me, I never before in my life heard of a squinting modifier. There are also such ominous things as faulty subordination, u p s i d e - d o w n subordination and excessive predication; not to mention the comma splice and faulty idioms.

THERE is the feeling that the strict rules of word usage, sentence construction and punctuation no longer carry the authority they once did. Most of us read on the run and listen with only one ear, so that violations of good grammar make little impression. After all, a cigarette company has sold a lot of packages of fags in bearing down on the incorrect phrase, "taste good like a cigarette should," when all along the purists knew that it should read "as a cigarette should." But there is no evidence that the country has been shaken by this transgression.

THERE'S A reason for being correct, though. The little book gives an illustration:

"Suppose you write 'He is twenty one years old'. The instructor asks you to put a hyphen in twenty-one. You cannot see why a hyphen is necessary. But tomorrow you may write 'I will send you twenty five dollar bills.' The reader cannot tell whether you mean twenty-five-dollar bills or twenty-five dollar bills. In the first sentence, the hyphen in twenty-one did not make much difference. In the second sentence, the hyphen makes seventy-five dollars worth of difference."

For seventy-five bucks, most of us would defer to the use of the hyphen. I suppose the same goes for a squinting modifier. Personally, I would drop the squint, if I recognized it, for that kind of dough.

A Slick New Television Plot

WASHINGTON — Washington has become the setting for several new television programs. The Bold Ones, starring Hal Holbrook, features a U.S. senator dealing with the problems of legislating for the country. Nancy is about a president's daughter who lives in the White House and is in love with a veterinarian.

Another one in the planning stage and written by a Hollywood friend of mine is titled John and Martha, the story of a simple attorney general of the United States named John and his simple fun-loving wife, Martha.

MY FRIEND said in John and Martha he hopes to answer the question of whether a man and woman who hate students, professors, educators and Sen. J. William Fulbright can find happiness in Washington.

"We're working on the pilot now," my friend said. "It's really a lot of laughs. We open with the Atty. Gen. John attending his fourth cocktail party of the evening. He's talking to a woman and tells her professors are 'stupid so-and-sos' who are ruining the educational institutions. He calls Henry Kissinger, the President's assistant, an 'egotistic maniac' who likes to have his picture taken with Jill St. John, and he blames the Democrats for all the woes in the country."

"WELL, WHAT John doesn't know is that the woman he's talking to works for Women's Wear Daily and everything he's told her is printed in the paper. John reads it in bed the next morning with an ice bag on his head."

"You can imagine the flap," my friend said, chuckling on the phone.

"The first thing John decides to do is deny he spoke to the reporter. But Martha has a better idea. While John is putting more ice in his ice bag, Martha sneaks to the upstairs bathroom of their Watergate apartment duplex and telephones a United Press reporter and tells her the Women's Wear Daily story is ridiculous."

I started to chuckle myself.

"NOW HERE is where it really gets funny. After denying what John said, Martha makes matters worse by saying the academic society is responsible for all the troubles in the country, and is destroying the United States. She tells the reporter that professors make her sick to her stomach, and they're a bunch of sidewalk diplomats and they don't have any right to say anything."

My friend was roaring with laughter. "It's pretty funny so far," I admitted.

My friend continued. "In the next scene Martha has the ice bag on her head and she's reading what she told the United Press. John doesn't know what to do, so he sneaks up into the bathroom of Watergate and he calls his office and tells them to deny everything."

BUT WHILE John is on the telephone in the bathroom, Martha starts calling other reporters confirming what she said.

"The next day John has the ice bag on his head and he reads all the things Martha has added to the story."

"Here's where the thing really takes off," my friend said. "Guess who comes to visit John while he's in bed?"

"John Kenneth Galbraith?" I asked.

"NO, STUPID. Henry Kissinger and Jill St. John! They announce that, thanks to John, they're going to get married. Martha gets so excited when she hears the news that she rushes upstairs to her bathroom and calls the Associated Press."

"That's great," I said truthfully. "But what are you going to do for the next episode?"

"I don't know yet," my friend said. "But John and Martha will think of something."

Trade Bill: Lack Of Leadership

WASHINGTON — The Headless Horseman, as he rampaged up and down Washington Irving's tight little preserve in the Hudson River valley, sent ripples of dismay among the simple people of that simple time. There may be no horseman but a dismaying headlessness pervades this capital.

Nowhere is it more apparent than in the backing and filling between Congress and the Executive over the trade bill. That bill, as reported out of the House Ways and Means Committee, imposed quota restrictions on imports of shoes and textiles, and gives the President authority to use the quota system on other goods coming into the country when imports reach a certain level.

WHILE INDICATING that he favors restrictions on textiles, the President has said he would veto a bill fixing additional quotas. The concession on textiles was laid down even before Mr. Nixon was nominated as part of the Southern strategy, with a deep bow in the direction of South Carolina's Sen. Strom Thurmond. As forces within the Administration pull in opposite directions, doubt has been cast on the President's resolve to veto the bill if it finally passes both houses.

PRESIDENT NIXON'S Congressional aides have failed to give a sense of direction to what the White House wants. This has accentuated the drift, which leaves only one element knowing exactly what it wants — the powerful and persistent lobbyists for the commercial interests that would benefit by the quota system.

Various ways to kill the bill are still being worked at. Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri believes that in the Senate or the House it can be hung with so many amendments that a veto will be inevitable.

BUT ON THE other side of the fence the protectionist backers are working on strategy to slip it around the hurdles of regular procedure.

The news on every front is so ferocious that the public seems hardly aware of the long reach of the quota measure. That is not true in the rest of the world. The profound concern in Western Europe is that the United States is going protectionist again with the ruin of the structure of the 1948 GATT agreements and a trade war at the end of the road.

THE PARALLEL is striking with 1930 when Congress pushed through the Smoot-Hawley tariff despite the warning of a thousand leading economists who saw that a protectionist wall could only deepen the growing worldwide depression with incalculable political consequences. That is just what happened, with Nazism and Hitler one of the consequences.

TRADE IS FAR from being the only area where leadership and direction have been sadly lacking. Again and again, between the fumbling in Congress and the failure of guidance from the Executive, the rule is drift. In black moments it must seem to those trying to keep the train on the tracks that multiple, overlapping crises are beyond the reach of government. Leaderlessness — pale horse, headless rider — is an affliction the times can ill afford.

Actress Takes 'Unpretty' Role

At an age and stage when many young actresses are more concerned with flattering make-up and lighting and exhibiting their best profile, Liza Minnelli is portraying a girl whose face is permanently disfigured with acid by a maniacal boyfriend in "Tell Me That You Love Me, Junie Moon," opening Wednesday at the Cinema Theatre.

The young actress, who was nominated for an Academy Award for her second film — "The Sterile Cuckoo" — asserts there are two reasons she accepted the role of Junie Moon.

First, there is her general attitude toward roles; she accepts them "if I like the person." And she liked Junie Moon. The second reason Miss Minnelli gives for accepting producers-director Otto Preminger's offer was because "I think there are few women who would take the course of having their face disfigured. I guess I'm a little strange. Junie Moon didn't have the choice."

New Compensation Law Benefits Texas Workers

The Texas Employment Commission says that the new federal unemployment compensation law will result in the largest single increase in the coverage of workers since the beginning of the federal-state unemployment insurance program.

In Texas an estimated 400,000 more workers will be covered, and 100,000 more employers will be liable for unemployment insurance tax, beginning Jan. 1, 1972.

The federal law provides for the payment of extended unemployment insurance up to a maximum of 13 weeks in times of high unemployment. The federal government will pay half the extended benefits. Extended benefits will be paid once regular benefits are exhausted.

The bill also makes more job-holders eligible for benefits, makes more employers subject to unemployment insurance tax, and increases the federal unemployment insurance tax paid by employers who are already covered by the law.

In Texas, about 100,000 jobs in non-profit organizations are added to coverage. These are organizations employing four or more persons in 20 weeks of the current or preceding calendar year, which have the option of either paying taxes or reimbursing the state for benefits paid. Employees of a church, association of churches, or school other than institutions of higher education are not covered.

More than 183,000 Texas jobs in small business are covered by defining an employer as one who employs one or more workers in 20 separate weeks in a year, or an employer who has a payroll of $1,500 in a calendar quarter.

Jobs in state hospitals and state institutions of higher education in Texas totaling about 88,000 come under coverage; but faculty, research and administrative employees of institutions of higher education are not eligible for benefits during the summer vacation if they have a contract to resume work after the vacation.

An estimated 10,000 agent drivers and outside salesmen in Texas, formerly excluded from coverage as being self-employed, will be brought under coverage by changing the definition of "employee."

As many as 9,000 Texas workers in agricultural processing will be eligible for benefits.

State law must permit states to extend coverage to each of their political subdivisions, covering employees in county and municipal hospitals and institutions of higher education.

The bill does not cover farm workers, clients in sheltered workshops, certain students or their spouses, or minors engaged in work-study programs.

To finance the extended coverage, the law raises from $3,000 to $4,200 the wage base for the unemployment tax, beginning in 1972 and hikes the net federal tax of 4 per cent of covered payroll to 1-10th of one per cent to .5 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1970. Certain exclusions are written into the law, and provision is made for research and training of administrative personnel.

Repairs Scheduled For Sewage Plant

Repairs will be under way Monday on the Hays portion of the sewage treatment plant as authorized Tuesday night by the city commission.

Bo Anderson, utilities superintendent, said the intermediate settling tank will be drained Sunday night so the repairs can begin on a crack found running down the center of the rectangular tank.

He explained that because of the crack, the floor of the tank had buckled up in the center. Air hammers will be used to break out some of the concrete in the area of the crack, and then a new floor slab will be poured on top and anchored to the walls of the tank.

This will raise the level of the floor about six inches in the center and about nine inches at the sides, he said. The tracks that guide the redwood flights that rake the sludge off the bottom of the tank will have to be raised, along with the sprocket wheels that pull the chain driven rakes.

Anderson estimated that the repair operation will take at least five days, even if there are no unforeseen delays. Reactivation of the Hays plant is one of the steps that will be taken in an effort to increase the quality of the treated sewage effluent that is pumped to Beale's Branch, to bring it up to standards set by the Texas Water Quality Board.

Suit Charges Discrimination

BEAUMONT (AP) — Gulf States Utilities Co. and an electrical union local have been named defendants in a federal suit charging the firm with racial discrimination.

Local 228 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is one of the defendants.

The suit was brought by eight Negro employees of the firm for themselves and others employees.

PHARMACY HAS ITS LIGHTER SIDE

"Do you have Prince Albert in a can? You do! Well, please let him out." Youngsters just cannot resist calling us with this age-old joke. But frankly, we have never really minded this or the occasional other inoffensive joke. For it keeps our sense of humor alert in a profession that is mostly concerned with the seriousness of helping to treat sickness.

It also gives us a lift when a customer tells us a humorous incident about their child or family. For it makes our relationship more personal and we consider ourselves to be a personal service pharmacy. We feel that a good laugh can sometimes be the best available medicine and we try to always have it in stock.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.
