Two Electrans Burn To Death When Plane's Fuel Explodes

C. L. SPILL AND J. S. PHILLIPS FATAL VICTIMS

Blast at Landing Field Claims 'Flying Jeweler' And His Pilot

MOTOR SPARK CAUSE

Plane Owned By Spill Goes Up in Smoke After Test Flight

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 5.—C. L. Spill, prominent jeweler, known in aviation circles here as the "flying jeweler," and J. S. Phillips, commercial pilot who also lives here, were burned to death when the gasoline tank of their plane burst and exploded on landing at the local airport late today. Both bodies were burned beyond recognition, and were identified only by a slight difference in the watchfobs worn by the two men.

Spill Owned Plane

The plane belonged to Spill, who lately took up aviation as a hobby. The two had circled over the town for several minutes doing stunts. A faulty landing was said by witnesses to have unduly jolted the plane, bursting the petrol tank. Sparks from the engine are thought to have caused the explosion.

Flames immediately spread over the plane, in the wreckage of which the two men were pinned. It was necessary to use an acetalyne torch to cut parts of the fuselage which held Phillips' body fast in the debris.

The fire department rushed to the field, located two miles west of town, and extinguished the flames. After the bodies were removed, they were taken to the local mortuary.

Widow Survives Pilot

Spill, about 33 years of age, was a passenger in the blast-wrecked plane. He had purchased it about two months ago, when he became interested in flying. He has lived in Electra for a number of years, and is survived by his widow and one child.

Phillips, a commercial flier between Electra and Amarillo for the last two years, is survived by his widow and three children, all of whom live here. He was 32 years old.

Funeral arrangement for neither had been completed late Monday.

Trio Falls in Plane Into River and Rescue Is Made

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (US)—Three men and a woman today fell 2,000 feet in an airplane, landed in the Hudson river near Irvington-on-Hudson, floated down stream helplessly until rescued by a rowboat, and returned to their homes none the worse for the experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Holderman of Le Roy, with Fred Anthony of the Loening Aeronautical company, and Pilot Beckwith Havens were flying the metal Loening amphibian to Le Roy, where the plane was to have been delivered to Donald Woodward. A broken piston caused the plane to drop near Tarrytown.

GIRL SLAYING CLUE FOLLOWED

Dallas Officers Go Into Oklahoma For Man

DALLAS, Nov. 5. (AP)—Unless the arrest of a man they were seeking in Oklahoma gave them a solution, officers here said today that the manner in which two young married women were clubbed to death at a lonely spot near Dallas at midnight Saturday might remain a mystery.

All clues, the investigators said, pointed toward this one man who is said to have made threats against the life of Mrs. Bessie Lynch, 21, who, with Mrs. Cleo Lieto, 19, was beaten to death shortly after the two young women had been seen at a dance.

Jealousy Blamed

Jealousy, officers said, was the probable motive of the crime, and they expressed belief that the man they are seeking in Oklahoma picked up the girls in his automobile after the dance, drove them to the lonely spot, clubbed one of them to death in a rage, and then struck the other down to seal her lips.

One man, arrested at Desoto, Texas, was released today, officers saying his alibi had been verified and that he could give them no additional information.

Another of the day's developments was a statement by Mrs. Beulah Richardson, who resides near the spot where the girls' bodies were found, that she heard an automobile pass her house about midnight Saturday, and a few minutes later heard women's screams. The machine shortly afterward drove back to the main highway, she said.

Boys Find Bodies

The bodies were found by two messenger boys who had gone pecan hunting. One of them was so badly mutilated identification had to be made by tattoo marks on a leg. Both bodies had been stripped of hats and shoes and their clothing was disarranged. The soft dirt showed that an automobile had driven to the spot, stopped, turned around and left.

Johnny Buck, five years for robbery, Young county.

Manuel Lewis, 17 years for assault with intent to kill and rob, Wheeler county.

Earl York, burglary and theft, Carson county.

Carrigan Inspects Farm

Less than an hour before the break occurred A. H. Carrigan of Wichita Falls, vice chairman of the prison commission, and W. H. Mead, manager of the prison farm system, had inspected the building. Noting their flimsy construction, they had decided to ask the 41st legislature for an appropriation of $200,000 for buildings which would withstand the attempts of unruly prisoners.

VOTING TODAY ENDS FRENZIED COUNTY FIGHT

Over 12,000 Expected To March to Polls In Battle of Ballots

STINK BOMBS HURLED

Leaders Deplore Prank At Final Rally of Anti-Smiths

With Wichita county divided into two hostile political camps, Smith supporters and opponents drew their campaigns to a close Monday night with the atmosphere murky with statements, letters, charges and counter charges, rumors and denials, and countless appeals to the voters which presaged a battle of ballots Tuesday such as never before recorded in a general election in Wichita county.

Action Deplored

Leaders on both sides, officially, were confident of victory, although some non-partisan prognosticators, if there are any, predicted the vote as unusually close, with the poll running over 12,000 in the county.

A crowd that packed the Memorial auditorium to capacity Monday night for the final anti-Smith rally was bombarded with "stink bombs" as the meeting opened. Anti-Smith leaders declared the work to be that of the "rougher element," and said it could not be attributed to responsible Democrats.

Wichita county Democratic leaders, when informed of the incident, hastened to express their regrets for the affair.

Unknown Factors Hold Fate Of Major Candidates On Eve Of Greatest March To Polls

Gamblers Back Hoover With 4 to 1 Odds While Victory for Smith Seems to Depend Entirely Upon Religious Tolerance and "Dry" Sentiment of U. S.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—It won't be long now.

Between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 voters will line up at the polls Tuesday to decide whether Herbert Hoover or Alfred E. Smith shall be the next president of the United States.

The final words were spoken by the two candidates tonight over nation-wide radio hook-ups which carried their voices direct into millions of homes all over the country. Hoover spoke from his home at Palo Alto, Calif., on "America's Men of Destiny." Following Hoover's speech, Governor Smith addressed the radio audience from Carnegie hall and dealt his final blows at the Republican candidate, in his second radio speech of the day. At noon he spoke criticizing the Republican attitude on farm relief in a special radio appeal to the agricultural states of the west.

Now the talking is over. But the voting still remains shrouded in more doubt than any presidential election in twelve years, due to three large unknown factors in this campaign, chief of which are religion and prohibition, neither of which ever has been tested in a national election, and the large number of new voters whose inclinations are a mystery.

Odds Are 4 to 1 on Hoover

Betting is 4 to 1 that Hoover will win. Straw votes are heavily in his favor. However, the judgment of many political observers and political correspondents is less positive. Most of these give Hoover an advantage. But they do not in most cases exclude the possibility of Smith being elected.

The situation is that Hoover can lose a number of doubtful states, and can lose New York, and still win, whereas Smith must carry New York and the majority of doubtful states, such as Massachusetts, Missouri, Wisconsin, Maryland, Tennessee and Kentucky.

That is about as definite as anyone ought to be in discussing what 35,000,000 or 40,000,000 voters are going to do tomorrow especially as many of them never have voted before and there is no way to judge what they may do.

Women will be a decisive factor in many states this year. This is the third presidential election in which they have had suffrage but it is the first one in which they have taken interest enough to vote in impressive numbers. In some parts of the United States registrations of women outnumber those of men. They have never run more than 40 per cent of the male registration and often less. Most politicians believe the outpouring of women this year is due chiefly to the prohibition issue and to the religious factor. In several states Republican leaders have said they will win because of the women.

Prominent Women For Smith

However, many women of outstanding position, professionally and socially, have campaigned for Smith. At his gigantic Madison Square garden rally Saturday night, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, dean of Barnard's college, made one of the most eloquent speeches a woman has made for Smith in this campaign. In Chicago a group of society women headed by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank are campaigning for Smith on the slogan that the "snobs of 1860" said the same things about Lincoln that are being said about Smith. However, in most western states the politicians on both sides say that the majority of women voters probably will support Hoover.

This election should be one of the most honest because both sides will be exercising unusual vigilance to get their full vote registered. Election fraud flourishes chiefly in localities where one side is apathetic and where party workers are able to sell out to the other side and get away with it. This year, however, few polls will be left unguarded by watchful volunteers on either side and the hired workers will therefore be under surveillance as never before.

The campaign closes on much the same note upon which it began. The Republicans are asking to be continued on the record of the Coolidge administration and on the claim that the country will be better off economically if there is no change at Washington. The Democrats end the campaign still appealing to the farm states with the charge that they have been betrayed by the Republicans. They are appealing to the east on Governor Smith's pledge to lead a fight against prohibition if sent to Washington, also, they are appealing to the country as apostles of prosperity. They insist the country will be just as well off under Smith as under Hoover and Smith has pledged himself to permit no radical changes in the tariff.

Religious feeling still is a strong undercurrent, but how much it will affect the voting, and in what way, nobody knows—and probably nobody will know even after it is over.

Each Party Claims Victory

Each side ends the campaign confident of victory. Republican National Chairman Work and Democratic Chairman Raskob each claims victory by about 400 electroal votes. Hoover expresses confidence in the result provided everybody votes. Governor Smith says victory is in the air for him. Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate for president, is the only one who doesn't claim he will win. He says Hoover will.

The hour has arrived for the climax of the most colorful political show that has been staged since the spectacular Bull Moose campaign of Theodore Roosevelt 16 years ago.

Between 35,000,000 and 40,000,000 voters, the greatest number ever mobilized in any election anywhere, are all lined up like a hungry mob in front of a soup kitchen, and the dash they are going to make for the voting booths tomorrow will break all records.

His majesty, the American voter, has been treated to royal promises for four months. He has been promised almost everything from a glass of beer and a chicken in the pot to a full garage.

Now the time has come for him to make his choice, not only for president and vice-president, but for the entire U. S. house of representatives, one third of the senate, 34 governors and many state legislatures and state and county officials.

This campaign and the record-breaking registration which it has produced have provided a loud answer to those who complained of the apathy of American voters, who have demonstrated they will turn out for a good show.

For the major part of this show the electorate is indebted to Gov-

500 PETITION COUNTY COMMISSION FOR SCOTT AVENUE BRIDGE

COURT WAITS OFFER OF AID

High Power Autos For Sheriff Purchased

A petition bearing more than 500 names urging the construction of a bridge across the Wichita river at the north end of Scott avenue was submitted to the commissioners court at its weekly meeting Monday.

The court ordered the petition filed to await later action when an expected proposition concerning the construction of the bridge will be submitted. The petition was headed by the name of Pat E. Simmons.

Split on Auto Purchase

The petition was submitted to the court by M. A. Bundy, commissioner from Wichita Falls. Members of the court were advised that property owners interested in the structure probably will submit a proposal later that the cost of the bridge be borne jointly by them and the county. For that reason, action on the proposition was deferred.

The bridge proposition was one of several matters which enlivened the weekly meeting of the court. Members of the body split sharply at one point during the session when a proposal was submitted to purchase two new automobiles for the sheriff's department.

The purchase of the cars finally was authorized after E. W. Nicholson, county judge and presiding officer of the court, had been required to cast the vote which broke a two-two tie between the other four members of the body. Objections arose when Mr. Bundy and F. R. Knauth, Burkburnett commissioner, objected to the purchase of cars costing $1,847 and $945, exclusive of trade-ins, on the grounds that they were too expensive. L. L. Kuntz, Iowa Park commissioner, and H. H. Haynes, Electra commissioner, voted in favor of the purchase, however, and Judge Nicholson then cast the vote which gave the necessary majority.

Division of Funds Delayed

The expected division of approximately $300,000 in road and bridge money among precincts of the county was postponed when members of the court decided that the action could not be taken until after Jan. 1, 1929.

The bond of the Southern Prison company of San Antonio, successful bidder for the contract to make alterations in the county jail, was approved. The bond totals $2,480, the amount of the bid. The approval of the bond definitely clears the way to the making of alterations designed to make escapes from the county jail more difficult, it was explained.

A petition asking that a short stretch of road be constructed from the Wichita Falls-Iowa Park highway to the northwest corner of the A. H. Fell land was submitted and filed.

The court will hold its next meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 13, after observing Monday, Nov. 12, as the official holiday for Armistice day.

RELIGION BIG ISSUE IN TEXAS

Voters Forget Farm Relief And Economics

AUSTIN, Nov. 5. (AP)—Rainy weather in some sections of Texas may reduce the size of Tuesday's general election vote, commonly expected to reflect the greatest interest the state ever has taken in a national campaign.

Rain fell intermittently today over Central and South Texas areas, including two large voting centers, San Antonio and Austin. The fall was continuing tonight.

If Tuesday is a generally clear day and rural roads remain in fair condition, the primary election vote of approximately 850,000 votes may be equaled or surpassed.

Many "Hoover Democrats," who stayed out of the primaries to avoid the Democratic pledge, will vote as units of the "bolt" from the Democratic national ticket.

Religion Big Issue

Farm relief and economic issues, which have ruled foremost in other sections of the nation, will have little effect in Texas' election. The main agitation in this state, usually a paragon of Democracy, has revolved around the prohibition views, religion and Tammany hall affiliations of Governor Smith.

Undetermined thousands of erstwhile straight ticket Democrats will vote for Herbert Hoover, Republican candidate, because of some or all of these three things.

Governor Moody's belief that Texas will remain "safely" in the Democratic column has not been changed by recent developments, he said today.

"I am confident that Texas will roll up a big majority for the Democratic presidential ticket" was his final election statement. He said he would go to Taylor, his home town, to cast his vote tomorrow.

Final Broadside

A final broadside at Alvin Moody, state manager of the anti-Smith forces, Thomas B. Love, "and others of their ilk," who have been in the forefront of the fight to carry Texas for Hoover, was fired today by Steve Pinckney of South Texas Democratic headquarters.

"No one of them is concerned with the welfare of the Democratic party, or the welfare of those individuals who declare fealty to it," he declared in answering their criticism of the announcement by D. W. Wilcox, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, that Democrats bolting the presidential nominees of the party would be barred from the 1930 Democratic primaries.

"They are not Democrats because they are unwilling to subscribe to the party's fundamental life-giving principle of majority rule," Pinckney said. "If they now have any party affiliation, I do not know what it is; they say the have not joined the Republican party. They should say they have not been permitted to join the Republican party. There is a reason for that. Alvin Moody and Tom Love profess to be leading into the Republican party in Texas a following greater in number than that party now has in this state. Republican leaders know this. They do not want Tom Love with the aid of Alvin Moody to take their party leadership away from them.

No Foothold for Tom

"They will barter and trade with Tom Love, but they will give him no foothold if they can help it; and whatever benefit may accrue to Tom himself by reason of his present manipulation will be as Dead Sea fruit to his misguided followers. These same Republican leaders know that if Tom Love were to become a factor in Texas Republican politics it would then be a question of whether it should be Republican 'Boss' Creager or Republican 'Boss' Love.

"Alvin Moody, who was a member of the state Democratic executive committee, which prescribed the pledge, now prates about Texas history and about Santa Anna, pleading with Texas Democrats to surrender to his gang with assurances that all will be well. He should not have mentioned Texas history, for all true Texans are at once reminded of Goliad, where their brave borebears gave ear to the Mexican proposal to surrender and that all would be well. A marble shaft now marks the spot where those same Texans faced the Mexican firing squad.

"It is high time that the real Democrats of Texas should see where the trail of these Hoover bell-wethers is leading."

600 TAX SUITS FILED HERE

Somerville Warns Others To Pay Levies

More than 600 delinquent tax suits have been filed since October 1, and more than 1,200 more will be filed before Feb. 1, 1929, according to information given Monday by Wayne Somerville, county attorney.

The suits filed thus far, Mr. Somerville said, are against persons who have not paid 1926 taxes. Suits also will be brought for 1927 taxes against those who have not made settlement for the past two years, according to the county attorney. Approximately 400 suits of the same yet are to be filed.

After January 1, he warned, an examination of the 1927 tax rolls will be started and suits will be brought against all delinquents for this year, regardless whether they are paid up for previous years. Somerville estimates that at least 800 suits will be filed on 1927 taxes alone.

Diogenes Can Blow Out His Lantern

Newsboy Proves Honesty Still Exists

Mr. Diogenes, the prominent Grecian citizen, may now blow out his lantern.

If he doesn't, it will reflect a trait of obstinacy on his part, because one person—a youthful Record-News boy—has been discovered who should satisfy the most exacting requirements of honesty. Mr. Diogenes, be it remembered, was the gentleman who paraded the Athenian streets with a lighted lantern in daylight in the search of an honest man.

But, back to the newsboy—

A youth of eight or nine years years walked hesitantly into the constable's office Monday and shifted nervously from foot to foot before he addressed A. J. Chambers, civil process deputy.

"I guess I ought to give myself up, mister," said the boy.

"What's the matter, sonny?" asked Chambers.

"Well," said the boy, "I met a drunk man a little while ago and he asked me if I would sell him my papers for a dollar. I told him I would, he tok them, gave me 50 cents and then slung the papers in the street. I had seven papers. After he left, I picked them up and sold them. They were his papers—not mine."

There was no pretense on the boy's part, according to Chambers. The youth was genuinely distressed and genuine in his desire to surrender the money realized from the sale of the recovered papers.

It was for that reason that Mr Chambers went into detail to explain that the law—which may or may not exist—entitled him to recover the property which another had willfully tossed away.

Best Remedy for Obstinate Cough Made at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It also promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and at the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

AH! Pain Stops

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

SUDDATH ANSWERS GLASGOW'S LETTER

To the people of Clay county: I have just read W. J. Glasgow's statement in the Bellevue News and Henrietta Independent, regarding the reason he has not signed the pledge to support the nominees of the Democratic party, he being a nominee for county attorney on that ticket.

His entire and only purpose in publishing this statement when he did was that he could create a prejudice that we could not answer before the election.

I state now that he did not state all the facts in this matter.

The entire truth is, that when he objected to the pledge I sent to him, I told him to mark out the objectionable part or to write one that did meet his approval, and he refused to do that. He said he would not write anything, and he did not.

I notice in his appeal to the religious prejudice of you people, that he did not state that the Republican party had put a man at the head of the enforcement who has never been a "dry," and one whom Senator Norris refered to, as follows: "And there are now unnumbered graves in this country filled by men who drank too much Mellon whisky."

He did not state that Hoover said he was satisfied with the way the Republicans had enforced the liquor law, and that Al Smith was not satisfied, but wanted it enforced or changed so it could be.

He did not tell you that the president cannot change the law, and that no other man on earth can do it, because it takes two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives, and they are "dry," and then it takes three-fourths of the states to ratify it after they pass it.

He does not tell you that Hoover's own department shows a great increase in the profits of the cork and bottle business' profits.

And then, he didn't tell you that Hoover was satisfied with all this, that he said that a party could never look over a period with more satisfaction.

His further statements with regard to Al Smith being responsible for wet candidates is absurd. I quote from Smith's acceptance speech the following:

"The corruption in enforcement activities which caused a former Republican prohibition administrator to state that three-fourths of the dry agents were political ward heelers named by politicians without regard to civil service laws and that prohibition is the 'new political pork barrel,' I will ruthlessly stamp out. Such conditions cannot and will not exist under any administration presided over by me."

Does this sound like "saloons?" Bill Glasgow knows better, too, but he won't admit it.

I state now that I have never refered to W. J. Glasgow, or any other person, as either a "mugwump" or a "renegade," and that he knew it when he wrote his article, and that he only wrote it to cause prejudice.

Why doesn't Bill Glasgow tell you that Philadelphia has 13,000 saloons under the Republican period of satisfaction that Hoover brags about? He doesn't want you to know the facts—he wants you prejudiced like he is.

While I have not said the things that Glasgow accuses me of, and would not, I want to state here that I think his action is unwarranted, and shows that he wants to take advantage of me when his words to me when we talked were those of friendship, and after I had told him that I was instructed by the state committee to make the publication to which he objects.

He knew that I would publish that, but he did not advise me what he intended doing, and he intended making a lot of prejudicial statements that we could not answer before the election—a regular Republican practice.

I can state further that if he wants to withdraw any vote for the Democratic party and vote for Herbert Hoover and his bootlegging gang, then he is at perfect liberty to be released from any pledge he might have made in his own mind, as far as I, county chairman, am concerned.

I respect Mr. Glasgow for having service in France, but do not understand what right that gives him to misstate the facts in this case. I would not have been surprised had he mentioned Florida along with it.

Of the many people who have talked with me, none are greatly impressed with his sincerity in his promise to vote for Al Smith, and I think his statement is merely "sour grapes" because the Democratic party wanted him to be for it or against it. Do you remember the Scripture which says: "He who is not for me is against me!"

Mr. Glasgow's reference to the Bible reminds me that the Bible and the Democratic party in this instance are in about the same position with him, that is, being used to serve his private ends and he has no confidence in either.

The committees over the state have been removing nominees' names from the ticket who have refused to make the pledge I sent Mr. Glasgow, but I have not even tried to do this, which ought to show that I have no malice against him, and I cannot, therefore, understand his attitude.

It also seems strange to me that he should suddenly become so desirous of making a pledge through the newspaper when all I asked him to do was to write a letter. The other candidates did this, and we have no stir about that, and he is no better than they are and is entitled to no more consideration. He is evidently "hurting" or he would not "holler so loudly." Bill, why don't you honestly admit that you are not going to vote for Al? You know you have fought him ever since he was nominated and that your article was for the sole purpose of turning votes against him.

I do not know what allegiance the members of a party are bound on to a nominee who does a trick like this, so I leave it to the people.

Therefore, all that the Democratic party asks is that, when the day of election comes, all voters go to the polls with the knowledge that it is the oldest and best party in existence, that Al Smith is merely an incident in it, and that you should not bolt your party any more than your church, if you think it is right and best.

DONLEY SUDDATH,
County Chairman,
Clay county, Texas.

GLASGOW EXPLAINS POSITION IN RACE

Editor Record News: In the issue of the Henrietta Independent of Oct. 12 a list of nominees of the Democratic party who had signed the pledge sent out by the State Democratic committee was given. At the bottom of the list were the words, "Other Democratic nominees have not shown their colors." My name was not set out in this article, and I was one of the "other Democratic nominees" referred to.

In the November 2nd issue of the Henrietta Independent I addressed a letter to the people of Clay county, and I have been told that this letter will be answered in the Wichita Times prior to the election.

I am a subscriber and a reader of the "Times," and as county attorney of Clay county, and in fairness, if the chairman of the local Democratic campaign committee answers the article in your columns, I respectfully request that you print my letter to the people in order that they might have information on the letter answered. This letter is inclosed herewith.

Yours very truly,
W. J. GLASGOW.
County Attorney.

To the People of Clay county—In a recent issue of The Henrietta Independent there appeared an article by the chairman of the Democratic campaign committee listing the names of nominees who had signed pledges to support the Democratic ticket in the November election. In that article the statement is made that other Democratic nominees have not shown their colors.

My name is not set out in this article, and naturally, I am one to whom the allusion of cowardice is made by the statement that I have not shown my colors, I can not in fairness permit this charge to go unchallenged.

These pledges, already prepared with a line for signature were sent out by the state Democratic committee to the several counties for distribution to the various nominees. One of these was sent to me for my signature to be placed on the dotted line and placed there regardless of statement contained in the pledge the truth of which I was unable to verify.

This pledge was not sent out by the state committee with any idea of a bona fide effort to secure information as to how a candidate stood. The sole and only reason prompting it was for the purpose of intimidation and misrepresentation, an intimidation of the nominee with a threat of political ruin if he did not sign; and if he did sign a representation to the public that the particular subscriber sanctioned and espoused everything that Alfred E. Smith stood for.

I did not sign this pledge. I did not stand for everything espoused by Alfred E. Smith. I have never believed in, and will never believe in the licensed liquor traffic, whether under the name of saloon or any other name. And there is no magic in the name saloon. Any place where intoxicating liquors are sold as a beverage is a grog shop. The pledge contained no reservations, and I refused to sign this unrestricted pledge and hold myself out to the men and women of Clay county as being in favor of the licensed liquor traffic.

I am going to vote for Smith solely because as a nominee of the party I am pledged by the convention to vote for him. I have always in the past voted every Democratic ticket, but let me say to everyone that I have not yet reached that point where I can call my neighbor who bends his back to our southern sun and pays his taxes and feeds his family from our Clay county soil a mugwump or a renegade because he happens to conscientiously and honestly feel that he should vote for Hoover, and hail as a courageous hero a Republican senator Norris or a millionaire Raskob because he votes for Smith.

If Smith is elected, will the dry Democratic senators and congressmen from Texas be loyal to prohibition, or will they vote to sustain a Democratic president pledged to hundreds of thousands of voters to change or nullify the 18th amendment?

Again, let me tell you who have read that article that I have never been afraid to show my colors at any time nor anywhere. Voluntarily and without one word or thought of relunctance I served my country in France during the world war an even yet I am in the army reserve and subject to my country's call. And when she wants me she will find me ready.

Candidates in this county have been told by the committee that those not signing a pledge and "coming in on this" will be "awfully conspicuous in a year or two from now." But, in spite of this I am unafraid; and I say again that the man who casts his vote fearlessly for principles, and for men in whom he believes, has a right to expect better of his fellow citizens than insult and intimidation.

Believe it or not, the Democratic party in Texas can not long afford to fight and coerce men and women who have nerve enough to vote for what they honestly believe to be right. Politicians and parties belong to the people.

To protect their party and to crucify Jesus, the Jewish chief priest could say "We have no king but Caesar," but the chief priests and the Caesars are gone. The principles of Jesus and of justice and of right still and always will survive.

—W. J. GLASGOW.

WHY HE WOULD NEVER VOTE REPUBLICAN TICKET

Editor, The Record News: I would like to tell the dear people of Texas why I am not for Hoover or any Republican. We will go back to when I was a boy in 1872-73. All farm crops were a good price, cotton was a good price, we got 25 cents and 27 cents.

The Republicans demonetized silver in 1873 and cotton went down to 8 cents. In 1874 we had a dry year and made but little cotton. My father never made enough to pay what he owed. We kids of the South had no shoes nor much of any other clothes, and I remember for several years after '74 we were awfully bad run. We kids of the South played in the snow in wintertime barefooted and in our shirt tails while the crooked bunch at Washington manipulated our laws to make millionaires out of the favored few.

When Cleveland was elected, the money power shut down still harder, but after a period of years of legislation and hi-jacking they fell out among themselves and Wilson was elected. The first thing of any note that he passed was the federal bank law so as to scatter the money out to help all agriculture so the grafters could not centralize the money and cause a panic. That was one of the many constructive laws the Democrats made, and would be good under the Democratic administration, but is hell under the Republican rule.

We all know how Wilson was betrayed by Taft and Hoover on the League of Nations. They worked that so as to defeat him, so we have got what we call the Harding or Coolidge administration. What did they do for the farmers and stock raisers? Then Mellon was appointed treasurer. The big chief said: "Money was too plentiful, the farmer had gone to speculating." The big bunch could not stand for that, so Mellon called on our federal banks for the money. Then the federal banks called on all our home banks and they in turn called on the stockmen and farmers, which caused us to sell, and it broke most all of the stockmen, and farmers were not much better off. When the money all came in Andrew Mellon had a big bonfire and burned the money up, and they called it deflation. Do you call that good government? I do not. I call that "legalized hi-jacking," and when our boys came home from the war, all down and out, they finally got a bill through to help these boys that had saved this country from the Hun, but Mellon said it cost too much, so Harding vetoed the bill.

What do you think of a man who will burn up our money and then can't help our soldier boys because it costs too much? I don't see how any ex-soldier could vote for any one of the Republican cabinet after all that oil scandal. There is not a one of them but what has some kind of a "teapot" on his dome. That is why a true Oklahoma Democrat cannot vote for Hoover.

To the "Daily News" and dear friends of the "Lone Star state of Texas." —G. M. RODGERS.

HOW CAN YOU WEAR SMITH BUTTON, JUDGE?

Mr. H. J. Bruce,
Hamilton Bldg.,
Wichita Falls, Texas.

Dear Mr. Bruce: I don't understand how any good red-blooded American can vote for Al Smith. I am surprised that good Christian Protestants can be for Al Smith. The biggest shock that I had during this campaign was when I saw an Al Smith button on the coat of a Protestant Sunday school teacher of whom I had said was the best Sunday school teacher I have heard in Wichita Falls, Texas, Judge Bruce. Judge, just think—the things that you teach us not to do and the things that you try to hold up and build up, those are the things Al is against and is trying to tear down. Judge, did you hear the missionary in our church last Sunday night? He was telling about how the Mexican Catholics one time threw bricks on the roof of the chapel in which he was preaching, and they yelled, "Kill the Protestants." How can you wear an Al Smith button? You are not the man I thought you were.

—FROM A FRIEND.

P. S.—If you will read this in your class next Sunday I will tell you who wrote it.

ADDRESSED TO LABORING MEN

Editor, The Record News: The following two editorials, from the Southwestern Bricklayer, official journal of the Texas State conference, B. M. & P. I. U. of A., I think should be of interest to all laboring men on the election day:

Supports Smith and Why

"The Celeveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer, one of the country's great independent newspapers, is supporting Governor Smith and succintly states its reasons, as follows:

"Pussyfooting is as foreign to Smith's colorful character as it was to Andrew Jackson's. He showed this in his telegram to the Houston convention. He has showp it in repeated official actions during his eight years as governor. He shows it again in his proposal for modifying phohibition.

"As governor of New York state, Smith put through a reorganization of government that has saved the people of his state many millions of dollars. The government at Washington needs similar reorganization, which Republicans have promised over and over again, but never effected. We believe Smith could and would accomplish this great reform.

"During the last eight years the country has been shocked by scandal and corruption in the federal government at Washington. We believe that Smith as president would wield the scourge against corruptionists there as he has at Albany."

Another Mask Off

When Senator Borah delivered his speech in Nashville, Tenn., he was introduced to his audience by former Senator Newell Sanders, Republican, who said in presenting the Idaho statesman, according to press reports:

"Tennessee is a Protestant state and wants at Protestant president."

When Senator Borah arose to speak, almost his first words were: "Senator Sanders has made my speech."

Is the Republican party seeking to make religion an issue in the present campaign?

Anti-Tuberculosis Body Asks Vaccine Analysis

The vaccine is said to exist in natural form instead of being an artificial composition. It was discovered in 1912 and experiments with it on warm blooded animals have been reported successful.

Can't Mop Kitchen. Gas Presses Heart

"When I mopped my kitchen I was all in, stomach gas pressed so on my heart. Adlerika ended the gas and I can walk fine now."—Mrs. C. Thompson.

Adlerika, a simple glycerin, buckthorn bark, saline compound, acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel and brings out foul matter you would never believe was in your system. This old matter may have poisoned you for months and caused GAS, sour stomach, headache or nervousness.

Try this simple proof: Take any medicine which acts on lower bowel only—most laxatives do. After your bowels have moved, take Adlerika and in a short time you will be astonished at how much MORE sour, old matter and GAS is brought out!

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

Give your stomach and bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel! Just ONE spoonful relieves GAS and chronic constipation. At leading druggists. Sold in Wichita Falls by Allison's Drug store. Send for FREE checkerboard. ADLERIKA, Dept. D-171, St. Paul, Minn.—Adv.

'IT CERTAINLY HAS PROVEN A BLESSING'

Another Well Known Wichita Falls Woman Gains Daily on Orgatone—Now Understands Why So Many Praise It

Among the many Wichita Falls, Texas, people who have recently expressed their hearty and sincere approval of Orgatone after putting the medicine to practical tests and deriving convincing results from it, none is more genuinely enthusiastic than Mrs. J. J. Bullard, residing at 1903 Holliday street.

"I certainly do give Orgatone the credit for my great improvement," said Mrs. Bullard, "for it has helped me over a nervous, rundown condition that has honestly been with me for the past two years, and for the past several months I had been going from bad to worse until I simply felt like I had no life left in me at all.

"My stomach just seemed to go back on me entirely, for almost everything I tried to eat would ferment or form sour gas and give me such a puffed-up, miserable feeling that sometimes I felt like I couldn't get another breath to save my life. My kidneys bothered me considerable and this would make me so weak and nervous I could hardly stand it.

"I couldn't sleep at all well at night and I became so badly rundown I was simply not equal to anything, especially my work around the house. If I hadn't heard about this Orgatone and give it a trial! I don't know what would have become of me.

"I have taken it about three weeks now, and I can say positively and candidly that I have never felt better or stronger in a good long time. My stomach trouble and constipation has left me, and my kidneys are getting much better.

"My food agrees with me perfectly now, and I'm not bothered with gas or nervousness in the least. I sleep just fine, and if there's any reason to believe I haven't been helped, I don't know what it is. I want to recommend Orgatone to my friends for it surely has proven a blessing to me."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

O' These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, Nov. (US)—Most of the divorcees are brunets.

In all the years in divorce courts, I have seen mostly brunets, some blondes and a few red heads.

The women in the courts of domestic relations fighting with their husbands are mostly brunets.

The supposition is that blondes are easier to get along with.

Blondes are vainer than brunets. Some New York author was quoted the other day as saying that a man's underwear indicates the man's opinion of himself. It's the same with women. If they take care of their hair, their skin, their nails and their clothes, and make themselves lovely, there's no question about it, they will be popular with men.

It always seems like advertising their poor judgment, and their failure in life to be seen with a carelessly dressed, poorly groomed woman. No wonder men object to it. Brunets are much more inclined to be serious and money-saving, and to do more for the family and less for themselves. And the pity is that it too often makes them the losers. The man wanders off with a dainty blonde who realizes the importance of a carefree look and some dainty clothes.

Not that men are ungrateful of a wife's efforts at helping when difficulties arise, but a woman doesn't have to make a slave of herself and then be forever hating herself because she is one. After all, wives set their own price on themselves, and if it's cheap no one is to blame but themselves.

I've noticed many brunets looking in show windows while the blondes were inside—buying.

One can be too serious about life and men. Brunets are, very often. It's the blonde who makes a man fold up his troubles and steal away to a good show, a party or a Sunday picnic. The brunet is likely to ask him if they can afford it, and try to help him sidestep all frivolity. And it's the woman's fault if her man has to find someone else in order to "make whoopee."

I'm a brunet, but as I think back over the folks I know I can't deny the blondes are the gayest, the happiest and the most desirable company for an evening when one wants to forget work.

A pretty girl just walked in and said she was glad she wasn't a brunet, and her eyelashes are black and her hair dark brown.

"What do you call yourself?" I asked her.

"A brown-et," said she, gayly, and she had the blonde laugh that tells me there may be a difference.

W. M. S. Pays Honor To Memory Of Mrs. W. B. Chauncey

Members of the W. M. S. of the Floral Heights Methodist church paid tribute to the memory of Mrs. W. B. Chauncy with resolutions which were drafted by Mesdames J. W. Donehoo, R. E. Schoolfield and S. A. Barnes at the meeting of the society at the church Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The resolutions are as follows:

Whereas, in the Providence of God there has been removed from our midst one of the most faithful, consecrated Christian women of our missionary society, Mrs. W. B. Chauncey, who for four years was the faithful president and an untiring worker from its organization, being a charter member:

Therefore be it resolved; First: In the death of our dear friend and sister, our society has lost one of its most efficient workers; that her beautiful Christian character was an inspiration and an incentive to the entire society, and much of the success and good work and Christian cooperation of our church is due to her beautiful unselfish spirit.

Second: While we bow our heads to the will of our Divine Heavenly Father in permitting her to pass from this earthly life, we grieve for her, but not as those without hope. We feel so lonely without her and our hearts are sad. Yet she lives in the hearts and lives of those she leaves behind, and this cannot die. We recommend that the song she so deeply felt and requested sung at her funeral: "Jesus Paid It All, All to Him I Owe" be adopted as our memorial song.

Third: Be it resolved that a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes and a copy sent to the bereaved husband and son, and one sent to the daily papers.

ALL YOUNGSTERS NEED CEREALS

Sugar as a flavor makes these healthful foods enjoyable

Growing bones and teeth require the health-giving minerals and vitamins that are freely found in grain cereals and breakfast foods. Grains are nature's foods and they supply elements necessary to growth and nutrition. They are excellent in connection with milk, but is it sometimes hard to get children to eat them?

A judicious and reasonable amount of sugar added to these foods will work wonders in making them palatable, tasteful and enjoyable. No ingredient adds so much to the taste appeal of other foods. Sugar adds to the enjoyment of all kinds of fresh fruits and vegetables, so valuable in the diet of growing children. Use sugar as a condiment in making healthful foods acceptable to the palate. Sweetness, as the perfect flavor in foods, stimulates the flow of saliva and of gastric juice, thereby aiding digestion, as well as enjoyment.

Medical authorities warn parents to guard the nutrition of their children. See that your children eat regularly of varied, nutritious foods—thereby being safeguarded against such diseases as tuberculosis. Far better that your child be slightly overweight for its height and age than a single pound underweight. Sound nutrition is absolutely necessary to health and proper development. RECIPE GIVEN FOR HAPPINESS

Woman Tells Dorothy Dix Of Success

One Woman's Recipe for Domestic Happiness; Straight Talk to the Foolish Man Who Would Marry a Flapper—Should a Woman Work After Marriage?

Dear Miss Dix—Here is the happiness schedule on which I have run my home for years, and which has worked out perfectly:

Our week begins Sunday. On that day of rest and worship, we rest and worship. After morning service, whenever the weather permits, we take our lunch to some fascinating spot out of doors and there spend the remainder of the day.

Monday night all family problems are discussed. The children present their little troubles, are sympathized with and advised. Then we all go for a ride. Upon our return the children are put to bed while husband and I discuss the business and financial side of our home, as well as the children's welfare. At no other time during the week is money mentioned nor domestic troubles of any kind brought to my husband's attention unless they are of the utmost importance.

Tuesday night is husband's liberty night. He is free to go wherever he pleases. I never ask questions, but when he tells me of his own accord I am interested and pleased that he enjoyed himself. On his night out the children and I go to the movies, after which we walk around until the kiddies are satisfied with seeing things.

Wednesday is home night. The children play games, we read, I play the piano and husband sings.

Thursday is my night. My husband plays the gallant role of suitor once more and takes me out to dinner or some place of amusement or goes with me to visit friends, whatever I choose to do.

Friday night is children's night. They plan cunning little programs for the entertainment of their parents. Often they make us little presents. They may invite their playmates and I always serve them some little dainty I have specially prepared for them.

Saturday night father and the kiddies go shopping and buy the family supplies, while I stay at home and prepare for Sunday.

Quarreling is prohibited in our home and punished by the quarrelers being banished from their father's companionship. The children enjoy making home happy for their father, whom they regard as the best man alive. He never is cross, crabby or indifferent. If you think my system good enough to pass on to other home-makers, it is yours.

—MRS. SCHEMING-TO-MAKE-HUSBAND-HAPPY.

Answer: I do think your system good enough to pass on to others, and I am sure that in thousands of other homes it could be put into effect as successfully as it is in yours.

Making a happy home is not a matter of luck. It is just bringing good, hard, common sense, unselfishness and self-control to bear on the problem, and then its difficulties fade away like mist before the sun.

You and your husband seek each other's happiness before your own, and so you find love and peace in your home. You make comrades of your children and teach them that they must do their part toward making a happy home and you fill their young minds with a sense of gratitude and obligation and respect for their parents. You may depend upon it that children brought up with these principles and in this atmosphere will never give you a minute's trouble. On the contrary, they will grow up to be fine men and women who will be a crown of honor to you.

You and your husband find happiness in simple things, in your home and in your family, and in that you have found the secret of knowing how to live. I hope that many of the readers of this paper will follow your example.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 39 years old and going with a nice girl who is 35. She understands how to get along, as she has had a start in life that they could never get otherwise by the wife's working for a while after marriage.

But it is true that it is a dangerous experiment for a woman to try, for many men turn loafers on the wife who can support the family, and let her do it.

When a woman has children she should never work outside of the home unless it is a matter of starvation. Rearing children is a job that cannot be relegated to any one but the mother, and it takes all of the time and strength that any woman has.

—DOROTHY DIX.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Kitty has thought of something else she wants and in case you think Kitty lies awake nights thinking up new requests we want to reassure you. It's no effort for Kitty at all. Kitty is wearing the new tuck-in shirt with its collar and tie all in one, buttons down the front and a severe and smart and efficient air.

What Kitty wanted was a new fur coat and you might have thought she was dying of the cold. Emily commissioned Cherie to buy her some heavy underwear and Cherie is on that errand—dressed in a smart frock of tweed with a one-sided lapel and a short fur jacket that has a long scarf collar (attached at the back).

Cherie sent the underwear, of course, but her heart simply bled for a poor child who asked for a fur coat and got heavy underclothes, so she also bought this scarf ensemble of fur. A fur hat, a fur scarf and a fur muff, quite the newest device to make the furiest coat fashionable. Kitty's dress is hardly visible, but note that it is wool crepe with insets of printed wool jersey. Kitty's best friend, in the background, is holding with a certain distaste a new nightgown that came in the same package. We regret to say that neither Kitty nor her friend has yet discovered that a high collared, long-sleeved nightgown is really smart for school.

(Copyr't. 1928, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Dear Miss Dix—I am a girl who comes up to their ideal and then have the nerve to complain that marriage is a failure.

It would be all right for a man to marry a girl because she is young and pretty and cute if he were going to be satisfied with her being merely young and pretty and cute, but he isn't. The minute he gets her for a wife he wants her to have all of the domestic virtues besides, and to be steady and reliable and economical and homestaying, and a good cook.

Here you are, a man of 39, with certainly some experience of life and at least one degree of intelligence. You know perfectly well that the little flapper, whose ways you do not like, is in no way fitted to make you the sort of wife you want, but you are going to marry her, nevertheless, and then be dissatisfied with her.

And all the time there is the woman waiting around the corner who would make exactly the kind of a wife you want and whom you could have for the asking!

But here is the tragic part of it. You won't be happy if you marry either one of these women. You won't pe happy with the flapper because she isn't industrious and economical and a good cook, and you wouldn't be happy with the industrious, economical girl because she hasn't the looks and the charm of the flapper. My advice to you is not to marry either one, but to wait until you find a girl who combines the good qualities of both.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—You seem to think that a woman can work after marriage—I mean office work—and still make a success of her married life. I feel sure that you are wrong. A man likes his wife to be dependent upon him. It makes him love her more, and if she supports herself and furnishes money to run the house on, there is going to be serious trouble. I know six couples who are contemplating separation, and in every case the trouble resulted from the wife's working. A man just doesn't like it, and a woman should know better than to expect to make a comfortable, happy home for a man and be a bread-winner at the same time.

—MRS. J. W. S.

Answer: I do not advocate a woman's working outside her home after marriage unless it is necessary or there are exceptional conditions which make it advisable. I agree with you that, generally speaking, it is best that a man support the home alone and that the woman devote herself to making the home, but there are many men who are fine and noble and lovable who are not endowed by nature with the gift of moneymaking.

Strive as they will they will never make more than a small salary, not enough for two people to live upon in even ordinary comfort, and in such a case a woman who loves such a man must give him up entirely or sink into dire poverty with him or help him make the living. Often also, a young couple can get her own way in the world. She is industrious and thrifty and a good housewife, and would make a splendid wife. On the other hand there is a pretty little flapper in love with me. I do not like her ways, but she is awfully pretty. What I want to know is, would I be happier with the girl who is 35 or the one who is 16?

WORRIED THIRTY-NINE.

Answer: This question is really too silly to answer, except that it presents the point of view of so many men. They marry the woman who is the desire of their eyes for the minute instead of the woman to make her own way in the world.

Dallas Woman Paralytic Victim Defies Doctor's Edict and Walks

DALLAS, Nov. 5. (UP)—The chief topic of discussion in medical circles here today was the surprising feat of Mrs. Helena Ravitt, who walked for the first time in four years after having been pronounced an invalid for life by 10 doctors.

Mrs. Ravitt was suffering from paralysis. For four years she was unable to move a limb. A year ago her case was given up as hopeless. After that 10 doctors failed to give her any relief.

She said today she had a sudden feeling recently that she could walk. She rose and made her way about 30 feet. Today she is able to walk and move all extremeties except her right arm.

SUFFRAGE CERTAIN TO ALL DEMOCRATS VOTING FOR HOOVER

The newspapers of this state on Saturday quoted an article from D. W. Wilcox, Democratic state chairman, to the effect that he is going to use his influence to prevent any persons from voting in the primaries of 1930 who voted for Mr. Hoover's electors for president, the statement being in effect that the Democratic state committee can prevent such persons from voting in Democratic state primaries in 1930.

THIS IS ANOTHER BLUFF BY THE TAMMANY POLITICIANS who now have control of the Democratic party in Texas. The state committee and its chairman made this same threat in 1924, threatening to refuse any Democrat the right to vote in any Democratic primary held in 1926 if they voted for Dr. Butte for governor against Ferguson in 1924. Of course there was no attempt to execute this threat because the Democratic chairman and committee know that they have no right to do anything of the sort.

The supreme court in the state of Texas in the case of Westerman vs. Mims, 111 Texas, 29, has held that not only is a Democrat participating in Democratic elections or Democratic primaries, not required to support the nominee unless he so desires, and the court also holds that the legislature has no power to enact any law that would prevent a person participating in Democratic primaries on account of not voting for the nominee, because the same would be "an interference with privilege of free suffrage guaranteed by the constitution."

Then again the statute itself provides that no test can be required of any voter except the pledge to support the nominee of the primary in which he is participating, and the statute further provides that no person may be denied the right to participate in any primary election on account of any previous vote he may have cast.

This is pure bluff and bunkum, and no one knows it any better than the state chairman and state committee. They would not dare attempt this if they could, and they couldn't if they wanted to.

We urge all Democrats who favor Mr. Hoover to go to the polls and vote for him without fear of any interference whatever with their right to vote in any future Democratic primary.

We will pay a reward for any information leading to the arrest and conviction of any election official or any other official who tries to interfere either directly or indirectly with the right of any voter to vote as he so pleases. Any such interference is a violation of not only the state law, but a violation of the laws of the United States of America, and may be prosecuted either in the state courts, or the United States court.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—The Hoosier housewife's taxi driver had decided to make a left turn off Fifth avenue, so he swung a trifle in that direction as the light changed against him. Behind was another cab, the driver of which had a right turn in mind. But he was blocked by the diagonal position of the cab ahead.

He met the situation in a method dear to the heart of many a motorist. He played the lightning of his tongue over the offending driver for what seemed a good two minutes and wound up with a vigorous query whether he thought he was "one of them Germans a-drivin' the Graf Zeppelin?"

The driver who had the Hoosier housewife for a passenger was a large man, almost monumental as he occupied his box. He turned slowly, craning his neck at the source of the epithets. Then, in that querrulous and dulcet tone which Moran and Mack have made famous in regard to the necessity of "that" being brought up, he inquired, "Oh, why get so excited?"

And settled back to wait for the light.

A crack automobile salesman resigned the other day. He was so crack that he had been given what the shrewd bosses thought was the choice job of the staff. He was not only to get a handsome commission but leads were to be handed to him. And such leads! He was to be furnished with names and addresses of persons who had come voluntarily into the salesrooms and inquired about cars and said they would come back later. All he was to do was to go to their homes and sign them up. He was all set up, was that young man, when he heard about the conditions of his job. But he resigned the other day.

"I am not conscientious enough for this job," he wrote to his immediate chief the day he did not turn up for duty. "If I were I would first provide myself with a diving suit in order that I might scrupulously visit some of the addresses that turned out to be somewhere in the North river.

"Take a tip from one who has been there, chief; your best prospects are those you go after. These birds who come in voluntarily and give your their names and addresses and say they are coming back later are all the bunk. Nine out of ten, chief."

Reward For Football Game Thugs Offered

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 5. (UP)—In an effort to solve the robbery of the Kansas-Nebraska football receipts Saturday afternoon, the Kansas University Physical Education corporation today offered $500 reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

A check-up of the amount stolen revealed a total of $4,903. No insurance was carried on the receipts, athletic officials said. Yeggmen took the money from the safe in the gymnasium during the second half of the Kansas-Nebraska game.

Although officials said they are working on several clues, they would not divulge the nature of their findings.

Illinois Sees a Light

DR. MARK SULLIVAN has made the rounds of the state of Illinois. Illinois gave Coolidge 800,000 majority. Dr. Mark has found a lot of Smith sentiment and he lets it be known that Republican leaders let him know they hoped for a majority in November of 180,000. Illinois is the home state of former Governor Frank O. Lowden. Lowden isn't active in this campaign. He was active for one brief moment at Kansas City and then the master minds stamped out his political life.

Our Modern Daffodils

THE English gentleman who is trying to exchange code messages with the mysterious long-eared lady on Mars is entitled to our respectful sympathy. Probably most of us have already written him down as cracked—as, indeed, his own earth-bound spouse seems to have done; but there is no need for us to be unduly critical.

After all, the borderline between pure genius and ordinary lunacy is pretty hard to locate. We classify a man as a half-wit and find, to our surprise, that his particular brand of lunacy is quite sensible; he turns out to be an Orville Wright or a Guglielmo Marconi, and we replace "half-wit" with "genius."

There are men in this world who cannot quite accept the universe as the matter of fact. Cut and dried affair that the majority considers it. They keep seeing vague shadows moving behind the outer shapes of the material world; they catch hints that the rest of us cannot get. They refuse to accept life or its surroundings as settled and unalterable.

In short, they believe in the possibility of miracles. They live in a world where anything can happen, where man merely needs to dream a thing to make it possible.

Some of them, of course, go off on woetul tangents. They try to communicate with Mars or with the spirits of such dead men as Julius Caesar or Frederick Barbarossa. They lose contact, as we say, with the real world; and we, who do not share their enthusiasm, chuckle and agree that the world is, indeed, full of daffodils.

But what is this "real world" we talk about? The world of houses and railroads and states and factories and movie theaters? Such things do not last very long. They are little more than shadow shapes, clothing for a time the eternal universe in a manner that disguises it. They come and go, changing with the changing years. Back of them, unaffected by them, remains something greater; something that never changes, that was the same in the streets of old Athens and on the hills of Judea as it is today.

What is that? A spirit and a whisper; a vague mingling of all the hopes and prayers and ideals of the world since the first cave man was struck dumb with wonder at the sunshine and the wind and the night. It is the only reality.

To be in touch with it is to see visisons and to dream dreams. Sometimes the visions and dreams do not go quite right; then we adopt a superior attitude and talk about addled wits. But sometimes the visionary dreamer gets hold of something solid—and London talks to New York through the air, or man develops wings for his travels about the earth.

Beware how glibly you poke fun at the London radio fan. No living man can tell you just where genius leaves off and foolishness begins.

This Man Would Find South Pole Too Cold

A RETIRED American business man, now living in Europe, crossed the Atlantic as one of the passengers on the dirigible Graf Zeppelin on its westbound trip. He has returned to Paris—by steamship—and he is quite, quite sure that he does not ever again want to see a dirigible.

"Our lives were in the greatest danger all the time," he told Paris reporters. "There was only one parachute aboard, and if the airship had touched the ocean we all would have drowned."

After the airship's fin was ripped, said this weary traveler, the trip was "a nightmare."

"It was impossible to sleep, bathe or shave," he continued. "The passengers lay huddled around like animals, many almost unconscious from exhaustion, illness, foul air, and the way the ship rolled in the gale made us think it was going to fall to pieces any minute."

It is hard to withhold sympathy from this gentleman. No one is quite so unhappy as the man who wanders into a situation for which he is not fitted temperamentally; and this man had the misfortune to board a transatlantic airship when he should have been occupying the presidential suite on the Leviathan.

But there is another reason for sympathy. This man had the experience of a lifetime and didn't know it. He was pitched into one of the greatest adventures of the ages as an active participant—and all he could think about was the fact that it was uncomfortable, nerve-racking and cold.

And that is cause for real pity.

Most of us have moments when we feel that we were really meant to be bold, daring and intrepid. We feel that we could have sailed with Magellan, trudged through the Amazonian swamps with Raleigh looking for the city of Manaos, followed Cortes down to barbaric Tenochtitlan; but we never get the chance. We live out our lives in office and shop and never know the thrill of carrying through a dangerous achievement against long odds.

The Graf Zeppelin's flight was an epic feat like these. This man had the rare privilege of being a part of it. It was an experience to be stored up in memory; an experience that could lift a man out of his prosaic shell and test him to the limit by confronting him with cold, darkness and death for 100 hours at a stretch. And this luckless rich man never guessed it! One could not get a decent shave; the ship rolled and pitched considerably; below was a foaming expanse of hostile ocean; it was not at all comfortable.

Of all the Americans we have read about, we don't know of one we pity more than we pity this airship passenger. He had the experience of a lifetime; and it simply bored him and made him unhappy.

THE TRUE SOLDIER

Again we are to celebrate Armistice day. Already the war is almost forgotten; America is back to peace-time conditions; the wound of conflict has healed swiftly and former foes are friends.

Many are the persons the world over, however, who are still grieved because of the loss of their nearest and dearest, a loss that no circumstance can make less tragic. It is those who live, whose loved ones laid down their lives for their countries, who are the sufferers. Their sorrow shall last the length of their lives and on Armistice day it is only fitting to give to them and their noble sacrifices.

The INN of the HAWK and RAVEN

By GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

"Hi! Look out! Make way! Here comes the bold highwayman! Hi!"

CHARACTERS

GERANE, only daughter of JONIFER THE HAWK, a robber chieftain who is planning a raid on a rich merchant who is to pass along the King's highway, begs to be allowed to accompany the bandits. Her father commands her to remain at home.

INSTALLMENT II

Darkness settled down upon the valley, and Gerane sat at the window, her chin in her cupped palms.

She was by no means sure that her ultimatum, such as it was, had had any effect upon her father. There was not the slightest indication of weakening on his part. If she could only catch a glimpse of Selim, saddled and bridled, her spirits would have soared, for that could have never meant but one thing. But the horse was not to be seen. And the band was making ready to ride away. It looked extremely dubious. She was determined to follow, whether or no; once she reached the highway they would not dare to turn her back. Now the first riders swept down into the pasturelands between Jonifer's house and the defile, a mile or so to the south. Presently a second group departed, and then another. A dozen men were left to bring up the rear.

Gerane knew that her father was at the head of the first detachment.

She also knew that the rear guard would be in charge of Julius "Broadaxe," the blacksmith, fiercest and strongest of all the men in the valley. He came by the soubriquet honestly (although his generously forgotten family name was Snook) for had not he severed a four-inch sapling with a single blow of his ax?

Gerane knew that "Broadaxe" was fond of her; she knew that he would lay down his life for her; she also knew that, if he caught her following him down into the defile, he would pluck her from Selim's back, tie her to a tree, and leave her there until the band returned in the morning. But, if she once succeeded in squeezing through the mysterious opening at the bottom of the fissure and gained the road—well, she could laugh at him then. And she would promise to stand between him and her father when the latter prepared to slay him for his carelessness.

So, as soon as Julius and his little troop of horesemen were safely on their way across the fields, she made her way to the stable.

She was but a few yards from the stable when she heard footsteps behind her.

"Gerane Davos!" panted a woman's voice, "what in heaven's name are you thinking about? Do you mean to say you intend to start after those men—"

"Oh, it's only you, is it?" exclaimed Gerane. "You made noise enough for a man. Don't bother me, Matilde. I haven't a second to waste. I don't want them to get too far ahead."

"Oh, my dear—my dear," wailed the distracted Matilde. "You are never going to do anything so rash, so foolish—"

Gerane held the lantern on high and peered toward the house. "Eljie and Rosa, too! Go back to the house, all of you—do you hear me?"

Two wheezing women came up and halted beside Matilde. Gerane planted her heels firmly, as if determined to resist their combined assault.

"Heaven preserve us!" gulped old Eljie. "She is all dressed for—"

"Come into the house this instant, Gerane," commanded Matilde. "Your father will flay you alive, if he catches you at this sort of trick."

"We're wasting time," broke in Gerane, turning on her heel. Then, over her shoulder, as she hurried to Selim's stall: "You'd better get out of the way, if you don't want to be trampled on—all of you—because, as soon as I get him saddled and bridled, we're going to—"

A chorus of wails drowned out the rest of the sentence. The distracted women stood outside the door, watching her. Not one of them had the hardihood to put a stop to her preparations. They saw her throw blanket and high-pommeled saddle upon the back of the horse, and draw the girth tight; they witnessed her successfully struggle to get the bit into the animal's mouth; and they fled as she led him into the open. Ten seconds later, with the grace of a cat, she was in the saddle. She laughed nervously, uncertainly, but with the elation of one guiltily bent on mischief as she settled herself, feeling for the great stirrup with her foot. Selim was snorting with eagerness to be off.

"Don't forget to put out the lantern, Eljie," she called out. "And good-by, Matilde. Don't worry. I will come back all right, dearest. Tomorrow's my birthday, you know. I wouldn't miss it for anything."

As Selim dashed through the gate, she raised herself in the stirrups, waved, and shouted:

"Hi! Look out! Make way! Here comes the bold highwayman! Hi!"

An instant later she went galloping down the road. Far ahead, perhaps a mile away, lights danced like jack-o'-lanterns. Gerane knew them to be the lights from scattered riders. Even these soon would be lost to view, for Broadaxe's riders were nearing the forest-hidden cleft in the mountain.

Many a time she had traversed by day this appalling crevasse, a matter of two or three miles, and always she had shuddered as she looked up to the thin strip of sky above. It seemed to her, although she knew better, that the opening at the top was so narrow that one could have stepped across it with ease. As a matter of fact, it was a good hundred feet from side to side—as wide, indeed, as the floor at the bottom of the long gash. The middle of this passage had been cleared of bowlders many years ago, leaving a fairly smooth gravel road, some eight or ten feet wide, the sides of which were heaped high with rocks, tree-limbs, and debris of like character.

There was a gradual descent from the valley in which the robbers made their home to a point several hundred yards from the lower end of the slit. Here nature had played another incomprehensible trick. The same mighty upheavel that had split the gigantic mass as cleanly as if hewn with a clever had almost closed the lower end by tumbling a vast quantity of stone and earth down upon it. But it had left a tunnel through the great pile, with a jagged mouth yawning in the face of the hill at the outer end, almost on a level with the far-reaching, peak-girdled plains of Graustark.

This mouth, however, had been skillfully concealed a couple of centuries before by the progenitors of the brothers Digman; they had built a stone tower or fort in front of it. Succeeding Digmans ultimately had turned this grim fortress into a stable that was large enough to accommodate half a hundred horses or cows or whatsoever beast they chose to shelter. To this day it still stands, a squat and gloomy ruin. At the time of which we write, it was a most unwar-like structure, facing a stable-yard, wherein chickens and geese and ducks dwelt in peace with pigs, the property of Samon and Seege Digman.

Huge slabs of rock, sliding down from the mountain in that mighty upheaval, formed an uneven roof over the 200-yard outlet, and it was by means of this subterranean passage that the robbers made their way to and from their stronghold—an entrance and exit as yet undiscovered by the minions of the law, whose efforts to trace the brigands had always been frustrated by what, to them, had come to be looked upon as a piece of black magic. Nothing short of magic could account for the manner in which the robbers vanished. A skillfully, perfectly devised door of considerable dimensions had been fashioned in the rear wall of the stable. This could be opened and closed only by those who were familiar with its construction, and then only from the cavern side. It was a thick, solid section of woodwork so adroitly joined that even the most searching examination would have failed to detect its presence. The Gigantic Digmans and their two stable-boys were the unsuspected guardians of this doorway; they never opened it except at the command of Jonifer the Hawk.

All this was known to Gerane. Several times she had passed in and out through this gap in the wall of the stable in company with her father (on peaceful adventures, to be sure) and she knew the difficulties that faced her in the attempt to get through in the wake of Julius Broadaxe. Her only hope lay in the chance that she might be close enough upon the heels of the men to slip through before the door was closed by one or the other of the ponderous, slow-moving Digmans.

She had always been a little afraid of Samon and Seege, although they were conceded to be good-natured, jovial monsters, if one could believe all that was said of them. They were such huge, bewhiskered men. Big as Julius Broadaxe was, he was barely shoulder-high to Samon and Seege. They were well over seven feet tall. She remembered the time that Seege playfully picked her up and set her upon the limb of a tree nearly ten feet from the ground as gently and easily as if she were the tiniest babe—and she was a sturdy girl of 12. And once she had seen Samon put an apple into his mouth and crunch it as if it were a cherry.

Now she rode at a gallop across the turf, keeping away from the hard dirt road, so that the clatter of Selim's hoofs would not reach the ears of the riders ahead. Not more than a quarter of a mile separated them when the last of the bobbing lanterns disappeared from view. She slowed down to a gentle lope, knowing that the sharp descent through the rift, where horsemen usually rode single-file, would require Broadaxe's men to reduce their speed to a trot, or even a walk. For heart was thumping, but her lips were set, her eyes aglow with excitement and purpose.

The moon had not yet risen, and only the biggest and brightest of stars were to be seen. While it was very dark, she was able to distinguish the black upright cut in the towering mass ahead. Then, almost before she knew it, she was catching her breath convulsively, for Selim had entered the chill gap and was picking his way down the narrow road.

MY NEIGHBOR

A widow past the fifty mark lives 'cross the street from me—
The finest sort of happy soul that one could wish to see;
She sends us luscious pie or cake, or flowers—every day!
She radiates her happiness by giving things away.

I understand she's swamped with bills, and owes the bank a lot,
But never does she "give away" a trouble that she's got;
Instead, she smiles and jokes and gives, and laughs her cares away;
She's always just the same kind soul, ne'er changing day to day.

If worries make her ill at ease, she keeps it hidden well,
And if I'm blue, or if I'm sad, her presence breaks the spell.
She works and smiles and jokes and gives, and does her humble task;
I'll bet she'd loan her last red cent if one would only ask.

Some day she'll face her reckoning, and they'll review her life;
There'll be a thousand sins she did while in this earthly strife;
But she will go on to her goal; she wasn't made for hell,
For Heaven needs the chosen few who laugh as well.

SWILLEY LOSES FIGHT FOR BAIL

Widow Tells of Slaying Near Liberty

LIBERTY, Texas, Nov. 5. (AP)—John Swilley, 65, farmer, was denied bail at the close of his preliminary hearing here today on a charge of murder in the killing of J. H. Hendrix, 40, of Houston, at Swilley's home last Thursday night.

Swilley was granted $2,500 bond on an assault to murder charges filed after Mrs. Hendrix had alleged that he beat her into unconsciousness the night her husband was slain.

J. P. Rogers of Houston, attorney for Swilley, announced that habeas corpus proceedings would be instituted.

Possibility that robbery was the motive for the slaying was emphasized by Horce D. Grogan, county attorney, in cross examination of witnesses in the preliminary hearing.

Widow Testifies

Mrs. Hendrix who accompanied her husband to the Swilley home and who was beaten into unconsciousness after her husband had been shot to death, testified that just about the time of the first shot she heard her husband say "I beg your pardon" and that Swilley replied "then your—old woman has it."

Asked what she thought they meant, Mrs. Hendrix said she supposed it was their purse.

Mrs. Hendrix told how their automobile stalled near Liberty and she and her husband were directed to the Swilley home to spend the night.

Mrs. Hendrix said that both her husband and Swilley took two drinks and that she retired about 10:30, leaving the two men together in a room.

Near midnight she heard a shot and her husband stumbled into her room and shouted "Sweetheart, he shot me," Mrs. Hendrix testified. "I tried to catch him in my arms but couldn't," she added. "Just as he fell over on the bed the old man (Swilley) exclaimed: "Yes, and—I'll finish you."

Second Shot Fired

"He fired a second shot at my husband. I reached to catch him but he rolled over on the floor."

Mrs. Hendrix said Swilley then hit her on the head with the butt of a pistol and she swooned. About an hour later, after regaining consciousness, she said, Swilley struck her with his crutch and then his walking stick.

"He made me sit down on the bed," she testified, "laying his shotgun across his knees and said if I cried he would blow my brains out."

Missouri Closes Riotous Campaign

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 5. (UP)—With Herbert Hoover and Alfred E. Smith quoted here at 4 to 5 odds, take your pick, to carry Missouri, the state campaign definitely ended tonight with leaders of both parties claiming victory.

"I feel that the Republican organization has come thundering down the home stretch in Missouri with impressive momentum," Bert G. Voorhees, chairman of the Republican state committee, said in a final statement.

"Reports from all counties in the state indicate that Mr. Hoover will come to St. Louis Tuesday with approximately 90,000 majority," Voorhees said.

"A careful checkup and analysis of reports from every county in the state," said Charles M. Howell, chairman of the Democratic state committee, "warrants the statement that a most decisive victory for the entire Democratic ticket will be recorded Tuesday. The size of the majority will depend to some extent upon the weather."

Lindy's Rumored Betrothal Denied

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5. (AP)—Reports published in Mexico City newspapers that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Miss Anne Morrow, daughter of Dwight W. Morrow, American ambassador to Mexico, will be married in Mexico City during the coming visit of the famous airman here were denied today in circles close to the Morrow family.

The colonel's visit to Ambassador Morrow will not be made to see Miss Morrow and the colonel is not engaged to her, persons in a position to know said today. In addition they expressed belief that there was no foundation to various stories to the effect that there was a romantic attachment.

Coalition Government Advised in Roumania

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Nov. 5. (UP)—Vintilla Brattianu, who resigned with his cabinet on Saturday on demand of the regency, recommended today the formation of a coalition government.

Received in audience, Brattianu told the regents of his party, the National Liberty, was willing to participate in such a coalition. Nicholas Titulescu, who resigned as former minister in the Brattianu cabinet to become ambassador to London probably will play an important part in forming the new government. He left London today and is due here today.

Thugs Shoot Up Town In Chicago; One May Die

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. (AP)—Gangsters invaded La Salle street, the heart of Chicago's financial district, today in an attack on Leon Mongovan, alleged hoodlum and bootlegger, shooting him three times as he sat in his automobile.

At St. Luke's hospital doctors said his wounds perhaps would prove fatal. A man was seized after the shooting and held as the assailant. Several pedestrians narrowly missed being shot as the gangster fired wildly at Mongovan.

Burns Prove Fatal For San Antonio Woman

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 5. (INS)—Painfully burned about the back and legs when her clothing became ignited from a blazing pile of rubbish, Mrs. Annie Bernhardt, 70, succumbed to her injuries at a local hospital today.

The accident occurred in the yard of her home here Sunday.

Congress Likely to Be Republican Regardless of Who Wins Presidency

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (INS)—The next congress will be Republican, regardless of the outcome of the presidential election, with the insurgents holding a balance of power in the senate but with a real and slightly increased Republican majority in the house, it was indicated today by a national survey taken by International News Service.

The Republicans appeared certain to gain seats in both senate and house, with the certainty that they can hold their present majorities in both branches even in event of a landslide victory by Gov. Alfred E. Smith. A victory for Herbert Hoover, it was indicated, will bring small congressional gains to his party while a landslide to him should greatly increase Republican strength in both branches of congress.

Demos at Disadvantage

Democratic hopes of sending a friendly congress to Washington in event of Smith's election to the presidency seemed defeated for two reasons. First, the Democratic party made great gains in the senate in 1922 when the seats now being contested were last filled. Many of these are in normally Republican states. To win the senate, the Democrats would have to hold their gains of 1922, made in an off-year and defeat a handful of incumbent Republican senators in normally Republican states. The survey indicated this feat is virtually impossible.

Second, the "holdover" senate stands 35 Republicans and 26 Democrats, with Vare of Pennsylvania still seeking admission. Of the 34 seats being contested tomorrow, the Republicans seemed to have 14 won beyond reasonable doubt. This would give them a nominal "paper" control, with the insurgents holding the balance of power. To win absolute control, the Republicans would have to win 24 of the 34 seats at stake, a highly improbable feat. The Democrats faced an even greater task to win control as they would have to capture 23 of the 34 seats and even Democratic spokesmen refuse to make such a claim.

G. O. P. Rules House

In the house, the Republicans now hold a majority of 39 votes, with the lineup as 237 Republicans, 195 Democrats, two Farmer-Laborites and one Socialist. To win control, the Democrats must retain all their present seats and put Democrats in the place of Republicans in 23 northern normally Republican districts. This feat appeared impossible, with the survey indicating few Democratic gains even in the northern states conceded to Smith.

The senatorial survey indicated 14 Republicans, 11 Democrats and one Farmer-Laborite (Shipstead, of Minnesota), fairly certain of winning with eight contests in doubt.

The indicated Republican victories were:

California, Senator Hiram W. Johnson; Connecticut, Frederick C. Wilcott to succeed Senator McLean, retired; Idaho, Senator John Thomas; Illinois, Otis F. Glenn to the seat once won by the ousted Frank L. Smith; Indiana, Senator Arthur R. Robinson; Michigan, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg; Nebraska, Senator Robert B. Howell; New Mexico, O. A. Larrazolo for short term and Senator Bronson cutting for long term; North Dakota, Senator Lynn J. Frazier; Ohio, Theodore E. Burton for short term and Senator Simeon D. Fess for long term; Pennsylvania, Senator David A. Reed; Vermont, Senator Frank L. Greene, and Wisconsin, Senator Robert M. La Follette.

Democratic Senators

The indicated Democratic victories were:

Florida, Senator Park Trammell; Massachusetts, Senator David I. Walsh; Mississippi, Senator Hubert Stephens; Montana, Senator Burton K. Wheeler; Nevada, Senator Key Pittman; Rhode Island, Senator Peter G. Gerry; Tennessee, Senator Kenneth McKellar; Texas, Tom Connally to succeed Senator Mayfield; Utah, Senator William H. King; Virginia, Senator Claude Swanson, and Wyoming, Senator John B. Kendrick.

The contests listed as "doubtful" follow:

Arizona, between Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Democrat, and former Senator Ralph E. Cameron, Republican; Delaware, between Senator Thomas F. Bayard, Democratic, and Augustine Lonergan, Republican; Maryland, between Senator William Cabell Bruce, Democrat, and Phillips Lee Goldsborough, Republican; Missouri, between Charles M. Hay, Democrat, and Roscoe C. Paterson, Republican, for James A. Reed's seat; New Jersey, between Senator Edward I. Edwards, Democrat, and Hamilton F. Kean, Republican; New York, between Senator Royal S. Copeland, Democrat, and Alanson B. Houghton, Republican; Washington, between Senator C. C. Dill, Democrat, and Kenneth Mackintosh, Republican; and West Virginia, between Senator M. M. Neely, Democrat, and Henry D. Hatfield, Republican.

VOTELESS CITY DONS MOURNING

Washington Voices Protest Against Rule

By CORINNE RICH

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. (US)—While the rest of the nation is exercising the franchise in the great presidential election Tuesday, the national capital will go "in mourning" over its own voteless condition.

A "day of humiliation" is being arranged so that the attention of the millions of voters in every city and hamlet of the United States might be called to the peculiar fact that this city of half a million, the seat of the federal government, is the only spot in the length and breadth of the land which has no voice in the selection of a president.

Legion to Protest

Commander Harlan Wood of the American Legion of the District of Columbia has issued a call for all legionnaires hereabouts to gather at a designated spot on Pennsylvania avenue bright and early Tuesday morning.

There will be a protest ceremony centering about a float decorated with appropriate somber colors and emblems. The public is asked to come and join in.

Under the auspices of the joint committee on national representation, many civic organizations, aroused over Washington't plight, have planned to send large delegations to the float to add their voices to others.

Stunts Varied

Various spectacular stunts will be carried out during the day by organizations and groups. Ballot boxes will be placed at street corners draped in crepe and padlocked, mute symbols of a voiceless city.

These little boxes will be put in place by the voteless League of Women Voters, which is the District of Columbia branch of the League of Women Voters. They will be in charge of league members dressed in anything but bright and cheery hues.

At high noon, airplanes will fly over the city, dropping streamers and literature and balloons bearing the legend, "Give Washington National Representation."

Considerable interest among the social set is being shown in this particular feature of the all-day demonstration.

Moody Orders Rangers to Preserve Order in Hidalgo County Election

AUSTIN, Nov. 5. (INS)—State rangers today were ordered to Hidalgo county, down on the border, by Gov. Dan Moody. They will preserve the peace in tomorrow's general election.

Governor Moody said he was complying with requests from both factions in the bitter political controversy which will be settled with the election of county officers tomorrow. He directed Adjutant General R. L. Robertson to send a detail of rangers to Edinburg, county seat of Hidalgo county. The rangers will merely quell disturbances, should there be any.

It is charged that leaders of the Republican party are cooperating with the regular Democratic county leaders in blocking the efforts of those favoring the slate of independent candidates.

Watchers Guard Chicago Polls

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. (AP)—To prevent a repetition of the fraud and terriorism which marked the April primaries, 15,000 poll watchers will guard Chicago's ballot boxes tomorrow.

This, the largest array of election day watchers in the city's history, has been enrolled despite official's confident predictions that the election will be free from disorders.

Ten thousand watchers have been recruited by the Citizens Non-Partisan association. A city policeman will guard each polling place. Detectives, 300 of them, will cruise the streets in automobiles. From the Chicago Bar association there will be 500 watchers. Special policemen and 600 university students will assist wherever needed.

MONCADA WINS IN NICARAGUA

Liberal Apparently Elected As President

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 5. (UP)—Gen. Jose Maria Moncada, liberal candidate for president of Nicaragua, appeared to have been elected today from 275 precincts of a total of 432 in yesterday's election.

General Moncada had approximately 19,000 votes more than his conservative opponent, Adolfo Benard. Precincts still to be heard from were expected to balance each other, indicating a victory for Moncada by possibly 20,000 votes.

Voting for congress, however, indicated the house of deputies would remain conservative, with the senate still in doubt.

INDIANS START WORK FOR GAINESVILLE GAME HERE SATURDAY

TRIBE TO FACE CAPABLE TEAM

Coyotes Should Score Victory at Quanah

By GORDON FULCHER

After a week's rest and with one victory and one defeat marked up in the conference race the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians began practice Monday for the highlight in home conference games Saturday when they take on Gainesville Junior college at Athletic park.

The game with Gainesville promises to be one of the hardest on the Indian program for the rest of the season. Gainesville scored a conference victory over Hillsboro Junior college and held the formidable John Tarleton Aggies to a 13 to 12 score in early conference games.

Two Unbeaten Leaders

Texarkana and Paris Junior remain as the only undefeated members in the Junior college circuit while the best that the Indians can obtain from the remaining part of the conference race is a tie with one of these teams provided that the Tribe wins the remainder of the conference games this season.

The Indians' record has been somewhat unimpressive so far, though bad breaks, ineligibilities and injuries have severely marred the local collegians' chances of victory in the greater part of their games.

Two reserves, Piner Avis and Ed Howell, are the only members of the squad who grace the ineligible list this week while the injuries of two first stringers, Gabbert Stephens and Bill McMillan, will handicap the Indians in their contest Saturday.

McMillan May Play

McMillan, who has performed well both in the backfield and line, may be sufficiently recovered from a knee injury to participate in the game Saturday while Stephens, who suffered a broken hand several weeks ago, probably will not be able to resume play this season.

Coach Bud McCallum's high school Coyotes began work Monday for a clash with Quanah high school on the Indians' field Saturday. No strenuous competition is expected at Quanah Saturday as the Indians' showing has been far from impressive this season.

PAULINO WINS VICIOUS FIGHT

Von Porat Floored Twice In 10-Round Battle

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (US)—Paulino Uzcudun won a 10-round decision tonight over Otto Von Porat, the Norseman, at the Madison Square Garden tonight, but it was by a slim margin.

It was one of the best fights seen here in many a month, with both men being groggy several times throughout the battle as the result of absorbing terrific lefts and rights on the face and body.

It looked as though the fight would end in the first round when Paulino had Otto on the floor for a count of eight, but the latter came back strong in the closing rounds and in the final stanza he had the Basque groggy.

This was the first of the elimination bouts Tex Rickard is staging in his effort to find a successor to the toga so calmly discarded by Gene Tunney.

The fans got a great run for their money, but they saw nothing that smacked of a potentional champion. Paulino, although he was the aggressor throughout the fight, was wilder than a wild hawk with many of his blows, and once he missed so hard that he fell to the ropes.

Von Porat was game and cool when things looked worst for him, but his punches lacked steam for the most part. Otto gave Paulino a boxing lesson during most of the rounds and gave a clever exhibition of side-stepping and dodging, but such tactics, however, did not win the judges' decision.

Jack Dempsey, who saw the fight, said that he thought Von Porat had great possibilities and that Otto will have to be figured on in the final reckoning of the leading heavyweights.

Baer Facts

(Copyr't, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—Over 43,000,000 citizens have registered for the presidential stampede next Tuesday.

Which leaves a scattered vote of 77,000,000 still on the loose.

It is incredible to imagine that 77,000,000 human binks are so heedless as not to care what happens to the future before it gets here.

We congratulate the 43,000,000 kinds of people who had the ambition to pass the literacy test.

They are the backbone of the nation. And where there is a backbone there is a chiropractic.

However, we ain't voting for a massage. We are voting for a message.

We are forced to admit that 77,000,000 human binks do not care a fiddler's tutt-tutt about the destiny of America.

They are interested in baseball, football and golf. Election day is the only date on which they refuse to work up enough spasmodic corpuscles to ask:

"What's the score?"

We endorse the 43,000,000 human binks who will go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for the man who will lead America through the wilderness to the nearest filling station.

They are the shoulder-blades of the country. They are honest, industrious and far-seeing.

You do not have to be honest and industrious in America. But they are making motion picture theaters so big that you are forced to be far-seeing.

The 43,000,000 who registered are the kind of men and women who are making this nation the kind of loyal cafeteria it should be. They are sincere, intelligent and ambitious.

Of course, most of them will guess wrong. But they registered. We denounce the hokies who earn their living in the United States and who have not enough pride and glory of garage ownership to vote.

Still, on the other knob, if we remember early days in Philadelphia correctly, the birds who didn't register were the ones who did most of the voting.

IOWA AND OHIO IN TITLE GAME

Saturday's Battle to Determine Big Ten Honors

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. (UP)—The Hawkeyes of Iowa and the Buckeyes of Ohio State will battle next Saturday at Columbus to settle the dispute as to which has the better claim to the Big Ten conference football championship.

Last Saturday's upset, which virtually eliminated the champion Illini eleven from consideration, left the Iowans and Ohioans as the only two teams with a clean record of victories. Wisconsin was tied by Purdue to blemish their claims to the title.

The confident Illini aggregation, which had brushed aside previous conference opponents, met an unexpected surprise at Ann Arbor Saturday when the Wolverines nosed out a 3-to-0 decision. Michigan had been defeated thrice in conference competition and once in an outside game, and appeared an easy victim for another Illinois victory.

Instead, Zuppke's men met a formidable foe that rushed at them in the first quarter with a determination to end a losing streak. A place kick from the toe of Gembis accounted for Michigan's three points in the first quarter; it was the only scoring in the game, but practically ruined Illinois' hopes for another title.

The heavy Minnesota eleven also experienced a surprise and the dope bucket was given a second kick when Northwestern squeezed out a 10-9 victory from the Gophers. There was an element of luck in the opening quarter when Calderwood, Purple halfback, scooped up a Gopher fumble and ran 70 yards for a touchdown. This advantage gave the confidence that carried Northwestern to victory.

C. O. Steppe, codefendant with Lewis and Bennett, was fined $1,000.

Election Carries Hornsby's Future

Massachusetts Sunday Ball Bill of Vital Import

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. (UP)—The inside story of the proposed purchase of Rogers Hornsby of the Boston Braves by the Chicago Cubs was claimed to be revealed today in a story by Harry Neily published in the Chicago Evening American.

According to The American, the vote on whether or not Massachusetts is to have Sunday baseball will determine largely whether Hornsby comes to the Cubs. If Sunday baseball is permitted in the Bay state, the Braves may want a larger sum for Hornsby than the Cubs will pay; if Sunday baseball is defeated, the Boston club, it is believed, will let Hornsby go to the Chicago club at a price now agreed upon by the Cubs.

The American states that no official of the Cubs has intimated this is the real situation but points out it appears reasonable that this is the "low-down" on the Hornsby deal.

A statement as to the deal is expected to be made probably Wednesday, after the result of the vote in Massachusetts is known.

Huge Crowd to See Army-Irish Battle

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (UP)—A record crowd for the Eastern football season, numbering more than 80,000, will squeeze into Yankee stadium next Saturday to watch the fifteenth encounter of the elevens of West Point and Notre Dame.

The Army, unbeaten this year, rules a favorite over the Irish, but the wizardry of Knute Rockne accepts no such pre-game limitations, and if the South Benders can stop Chris Cagle they may provide the big upset of the 1928 season.

With a shifty backfield of their own, the Irish will throw everything they have into this game with the Cadets in an effort to make up for early season disappointments they sustained this season at the hands of Wisconsin and Georgia Tech.

The Army will rely upon Cagle, whose brilliant running helped defeat Notre Dame 18 to 0 last year. Of the games between the two schools, which began in 1913, Notre Dame has won 9 and lost 4, that of six years ago ending in a scoreless tie.

GEORGIA TECH MEETS VANDY

Southern Title At Stake In Contest Saturday

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 5, (UP)—Grant field will cut one of the choicest tidbits on the Southern conference football menu this week, when Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt, undefeated titans of the Southern conference, struggle for the mythical group title here Saturday.

Records of both teams show that the game will be a tight one, Tech having upset three conference teams and an intersectional opponent, while Vanderbilt has taken on the same number of conference contestants and turned them back. Chattanooga, Colgate and Texas Scalps are also on the Vanderbilt belt.

The game probably will break the deadlock in the conference. At present, there are six teams boasting stainless records on games within the group, unless L. S. U. is considered a seventh, by virtue of its one conference tilt. These include Tennessee, Florida, V. P. I. and Georgia.

Florida and Georgia will stage a good show in Savannah, and on the same day, Maryland is taking on Yale and the Generals are playing Princeton in the latter's territory.

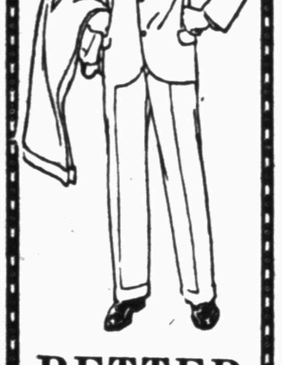

Redman Hume May Play In Thanksgiving Game

DALLAS, Nov. 5. (AP)—Redman Hume, Southern Methodist university backfield star, injured early in the second quarter of Saturday's game at Austin, has a chance of returning to the lineup for the Ponies' closing conference game with the Texas Christian Horned Frogs here Thanksgiving day, physicians who examined his injured ankle told Coach Ray Morrison today.

An X-ray of Hume's ankle revealed two ligaments were torn and a cartilage broken, but the bone was intact. The Mustang ace probably will be on crutches another week.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

SOME FOOTBALL teams which are champions, or think they are, are going to take it on the chin this week. That is inevitable in another day of meetings between unbeaten or leading elevens of different sections. It may occur right here in our own Southwestern conference. S. M. U.'s Ponies, sole unbeaten leaders of the loop, face Texas Aggies at Dallas and without Hume may sustain a reversal, although it is in the cards that the Mustangs will win. Texas, still with a chance to cop the title by winning all remaining games should S. M. U. take a trouncing, plays Baylor at Waco and a royal scrap it will be.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE OUTSTANDING battle of the South will be fought between Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt. These mighty elevens, who have all-victorious records to date against some foremost teams of the country, resume their duel where they left off last year following a scoreless tie. Tennessee, also unbeaten but which hasn't met quite the opposition as encountered by the Commodores and Tornadoes, faces Sewanee.

◇ ◇ ◇

There are numerous other feature games down below the Mason and Dixon line. Alabama plays Kentucky. Florida meets Georgia. Tulane takes on Auburn, or Alabama Poly, if you will. Virginia engages Virginia Poly. Centenary has a date with Mississippi Aggies.

◇ ◇ ◇

NEBRASKA, undisputed leaders of the Big Six, battles Oklahoma at Norman. Following the reversal of the Sooners by Iowa State last week the Huskers will lbe topheavy favorites. Missouri meets Kansas Aggies.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE FEATURE game of the Middle West will be the clash of Iowa and Ohio State. These teams are only undefeated leaders of the Big Ten. Chicago plays Wisconsin Minnesota meets Indiana and Northwestern faces Purdue in other Western conference contests.

◇ ◇ ◇

THE SCHEDULE in the east is replete with colorful intersectional games or affairs involving rivals of ancient and honorable tradition Army's mighty team faces Notre Dame and while the unbeaten Cadets are favored to win they will meet an eleven that has been coming along at a fast clip in recent weeks. Navy and Michigan have another intersectional fray of importance, despite the unsuccessful season of both teams. Harvard and Pennsylvania, who have been meeting at football for more than half a century, renew hostilities again.

◇ ◇ ◇

Carnegie Tech and Georgetown, two of the few remaining clubs which have not been defeated or tied, meet next Saturday. Oklahoma Aggies engage West Virginia at Morgantown. Other outstanding games this week in the east include Boston college and Fordham, Brown and Dartmouth, Princeton and Washington and Lee, Williams and Wesleyan in a "little three" engagement, and Yale and Maryland.

◇ ◇ ◇

EIGHT TEAMS which have played representative schedules with major opposition have not been defeated or tied. They are Georgia Tech, Vanderbilt and Tennessee in the South, Nebraska and Iowa in the Middle West and Army, Carnegie Tech and Georgetown in the east. Army seems an outstanding contender for national honors. If they hurdle the opposition yet to be met in Notre Dame, Nebraska and Sanford there hardly will be dissenting voice to their claim to the national title.

◇ ◇ ◇

VANDY OR Georgia Tech, however, will likewise have a voice in deciding that mythical but much-disputed honor in playing hard schedules and winning all games. Tennessee hardly has a heavy enough program to advance great claims. Nebraska and Iowa play some outstanding teams, the Cornhuskers in particular. Georgetown defeated New York U., the first reversal for the Violet, and if they get by Carnegie Tech will rate as among the leaders. The same goes for Carnegie Tech, as the Skibos have beaten some worthy foes already and have more hard games ahead.

Runyon Ranks Firpo With Irv Cobb, Babe Ruth and Other Great Eaters

Diamond Jim Brady Could Only Assimilate Ham and Half and Fails to Get Name With Other Immortals

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (US)—Among the great eaters of history, Senor Looey Angel Firpo, the Wild Bull of the Pampas, takes high rank.

In fact, I would place him among the first nine all-time eaters, who might be classified as follows:

George Herman Babe Ruth, (baseball player).

Napoleon Jack Dorval, (heavyweight fighter).

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, (baseball president).

Irvin S. Cobb, (author).

Jim Thorpe, (football player).

The Emperor Nero, (old Roman).

Senor Paolino Uzcudun, (heavyweight fighter).

George Godfrey, (heavyweight fighter).

Luis Angel Firpo, (heavyweight fighter).

If I enlarged my list to 10, I would have to include the late Diamond Jim Brady, who was an eater of great skill and capacity. He was a famous man who sold pressed steel railroad cars, and wore diamonds as large as Mr. Tunney's bump of ego.

But I am reliably informed that he couldn't eat more than a ham and a half at a sitting, so you wouldn't call him a real big time eater like George Herman Babe Ruth, or Napoleon Jack Dorval. I place this pair almost even. There is little more than a side dish of asparagus difference between them.

Firpo Not Smooth Eater

I am reminded of Senor Looey Angel Firpo by the discourses of the eminent Rickard down Miami way. I judge that the silence hung so heavy on the eminent Rickard down there that he finally took to talking just to get up an echo to keep him company.

He was quoted as saying that Senor Looey Angel Firpo might attempt a comeback. If the old Wild Bull comes back, it will be only to take another swing at the cuisine of a little Italian joint in the feverish Fifties that he infested during his stay in America.

My operatives in South America infrom me that Senor Looey is fat enough to kill. Everything he eats goes to his stomach. I give him high rating more on his capacity than on his technique. He is a huffle-scuffle sort of eater, rather than a steady, smooth workman, such as Ruth, or Dorval, or even your Uncle Wilbert.

George Godfrey, the Black Shadow of Leiperville, who learned to eat under the tutelage of the master eater, John Arthur Johnson, is another great eater who lacks only finesse to put him up among the best of them.

But where Godfrey can eat say half a dozen fat pullets at a sitting, highly accomplished eaters like Ruth and Dorval will eat the same number of chickens "smothered in sirloins." They are real championship eaters.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, isn't the man he used to be when it comes to eating. In fact, he is going back. He is in my list of immortals only on his past record. Looking at the Dodgers has impaired his appetite of late years.

But there was a time when your Uncle Wilbert Robinson was a mighty man against the trenches of food. (Not trenchers, Mr. Printer). A trencher wouldn't have been big enough for your Uncle Wilbert in his best form.

Cobb of Old School

Irve Cobb, the writer, is another of the old school of eaters, who has commenced to slip. I am privately informed that today Irve Cobb finds it an effort to eat two small suckling pigs at a sitting, whereas he formerly tossed off that many infant porkers as an appetizer.

Jim Thorpe, the Indian, greatest all-around athlete of his time, rose to his finest eating efforts when he was a member of the New York Giants. In those days, Jim would hand the menu card back to the waiter saying, "just bring me all that, with some bread."

Senor Oo-Scray Umbay, the Beezark of the Basque, otherwise Paolino Uzcudun, is comparatively a new eater, but my operatives who have been scouting him tell me that he is a real stand-off eater. They claim that on straight enchiladas, or any other food of strictly Spanish concoction, he would be a good bet, at a price, against Ruth or Dorval.

To correst a rumor that is being circulated to the effect that I am supporting Herbert Hoover, I wish to state that I am going to vote the straight Democratic ticket from Gibbs on up to Al Smith for president.—Guy C. Raley, tax collector Wichita county. (Political advertising).

Athlete, 17, Indicted In Young Girl's Death

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Vincent R. Rice, 17-year-old former high school athlete, was indicted by the Richmond county grand jury today on a charge of first degree murder in the death of Alice Joost, 15-year-old Staten Island school girl.

Young Rice has confessed, according to police, that he strangled the girl after he had struck her with his fist as the outcome of a quarrel.

Two More Robberies Added to List Here

The week's total of burglaries was swelled to seven major robberies yielding loot of more than $4,000 when reports at police headquarters Monday revealed that ticking valued at $100 had been stolen from the Wichita Mattress company, 601 Elm street, and that plumbing materials valued at $50 had been taken from the Calvert company at Virginia and Pecan streets.

The activities of burglars last week-end included three knob knockings and four house and business burglaries.

Southern Keeps Martin And Quits Split Season

MEMPHIS, Nov. 5. (AP)—The split season in the Southern association was discarded by the league directors at their annual meeting today, at which President John D. Martin was re-elected for a five-year term at an annual salary increase of $1,000 and the opening of the 1929 season set to conform with the major leagues' opening, which probably will be April 16.

South California Looms Champion

Trojans Favorites After Beating Stanford

By CARLE H. BENNETT

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5. (UP)—University of Southern California's football team, a group of players thoroughly trained in fundamentals of the game, was securely entrenched in first place of the Pacific Coast conference tonight.

Conquerors of Stanford in the most surprising game on the coast in recent years, the Trojans had mounted to the top of the ladder with only two games against much weaker opponents remaining on their schedule. The Bears of California must beat Stanford before they can share top position with U. S. C. at the end of the season.

Southern California had not cinched the championship or even a tie for it, but it held the most impressive position of any team in the 10-college circuit.

California and Stanford found solace in the memory of a game at Los Angeles three years ago, when the Trojans, virtually assured of a tie with Stanford for second place, were beaten by Washington State college. Washington State is one of the two teams that U. S. C. must meet before this season is ended.

The Cardinals, despite their 10-to-0 loss to U. S. C. Saturday, were confident they could beat California, their oldest rivals, on Nov. 24. The Bears, however, due to their 13-to-0 victory over Oregon Saturday, will undoubtedly enter that game with an even chance to win for the first time since the regime of their "wonder team" from 1920 to 1924.

MISS RAYZOR NAMED QUEEN

Northwest Texas Towns Send Princesses

the business section shortly before noon.

The coronation ceremony was opened with the dainty "Dream Dance" by Miss Wilma Brown. Miss Brown is one of the cleverest young toe dancers of the city and executed the difficult dance with credit.

Preceding the crowning of the queen, the court of Her Majesty passed in review. First in the procession was Mrs. Bert K. Herron as Princess Lita of Archer City who bore red poppies and was gowned in a dress of soft pastel shades of chiffon, the baste semi-fitted and the skirt a shower of chiffon ruffles.

Beautiful Costumes

Miss Frances Thomas as Princess Frances of Bowie was among the loveliest of the court. She wore a long gown of taffeta and real lace sprinkled with rhinestones and imitation pearls. She carried blue-bonnets in an arm bouquet.

Miss Virginia Gains of Bellevue wore as court costume a gown of pale yellow and gold, the skirt of filmy ruffles and the bodice tight-fitted. She carried on her arm a grouped mass of yellow chrysanthemums. Princess Virginia of Nocona (Miss Virginia Hood) was lovely in a gown of shimmering white and silver slippers, the group of red carnations she carried forming a striking color relief.

Miss Vera Prince of Electra as Princess Vera was one of the most striking of the attendants and appeared in a gold and cream costume which brought out her dark beauty. She carried zinnias.

Miss Mae Fields of Henrietta wore a gorgeous gown of sparkling sequins and carried a bouquet of daisies. Miss Louise Scott of Olney wore a bronze and gold gown, the sash shading into brown. She carried a mass of bronze chrysanthemums.

Following the visiting princesses, in the procession was the Duchess of Wichita Falls, Miss Adell Jarrell, who wore a beautiful gown of silver cloth, the uneven hemline revealing a lining of rich green. A green shower bonquet fell from her shoulder.

Wichita Princesses

Miss Joline Woods and Miss Elizabeth Langford as the Rosebud Princesses came in together, carrying cascades of pink rosebuds. Miss Woods was dressed in a flesh colored gown of ruffled chiffon with silver accessories while Miss Langford was lovely in a model of green point d'esprit shading from a green tint to a deep hue.

Muted strains accompanied the entire processional with Mrs. Cortez Slaughter at the piano and Joseph Rabinowitz playing the violin.

Miss Marguerite Fisher was in charge of the coronation ceremony.

Members of the Woman's Forum were hostesses at a reception especially complimenting the ladies-in-waiting and members of the cast of the musical extravaganza following the ceremony.

EXHIBITION OPENS AT NOON TODAY

A colorful and spectacular parade, led by a car trimmed with 280 pounds of California everlasting flowers, will announce the opening of the annual flower show and carnival of the Woman's Forum at noon Tuesday. Cars in the parade will be driven by chairmen of the various divisions of the flower show. Flowers on the first car are a gift from the Fritz Motor company, whose building is being used by the forum as a setting for the flower show and carnival.

These samples will be auctioned off Wednesday evening by R. E. Shepherd, former mayor of the city, and the proceeds added to the forum flower show fund.

GYPSY SINGERS WIN ACCLAIM

Production Called "Most Successful" Ever

By FRED THOMPSON
The Record News Staff

What patrons of the dramatic and allied arts proclaim the most successful amateur production ever presented before a Wichita Falls audience was staged Monday night when the Woman's Forum, as a prelude to the coronation of the Rose Queen, staged "Twilight in Gypsyland," a musical symposium, in the club auditorium.

Pleasing Program

The musical fete and coronation formally opened the annual flower show of the Woman's Forum, which will continue through Wednesday evening. The production was staged by the ways and means department of the forum, and was directed and supervised by Mrs. Lois Parker. It was the second benefit production of the forum, the first being "Naughty Marietta," given here recently, and proceeds will go to the building fund.

An appreciative audience packed the auditorium.

High spots in the musical entertainment were easily accorded to the efforts of J. Fitzhugh Crain, former opera singer, and Mrs. Wayne Holmes, while Mrs. C. N. Cameron, Katherine Sullivan and Minnie Baker, who appeared in the vocal trio, "Gypsy Life," and Misses Juanita Burgess and Rose Marian Art, who with Harley Herndon, gave dancing numbers, drew generosity of applause.

Mrs. J. Will Gray and her partner, Dr. O. T. Kimbrough, were also given an ovation after their rendition of "Carmena," by Lane Wilson, and Mrs. Gray was honored with a gift of flowers. Chorus work of the singers, directed by Mrs. Parker, was also appreciatively received.

The program was introduced with a prologue by Miss Joline Woods, who gave a reading. Then as the curtain was drawn, the typical gypsy setting was revealed, including the tarpaulin-covered wagon, the campfire, scattered stools and cots, all surrounded by the chorus of "gypsy" singers in flaming costumes.

The program easily divided itself into two parts, the first of which began and ended with chorus selections. The first, "Gypsy Band of Dreams," featured Miss Modena Howell, Mrs. C. N. Cameron, Katherine Sullivan, Minnie Baker and Lewis Bond. The second number, "Gypsy Trail," also choral, featured Wayne Holmes, Dr. J. H. Fletcher and L. R. Thurman. This selection led into the next, "Just Like a Gypsy," which was sung immediately following the chorus number by Miss Frances Phillips and Trent Hill.

Violin Solo

The last numbers in the first part were choral, with the exception of a violin solo, played by Joseph Rabinowitz.

The second division in the program opened with a dance number, given by Miss Rose Marian Art and Harley Herndon, which broadened into a colorful tambourine chorus and dance as members of the chorus in groups made their appearance on the stage. The gypsy chorus, in this latter part of the presentation, reached its height with the singing of the "Anvil Chorus" and "The Gypsies," by Brahms. Several soloists were featured in the latter, including Mrs. Wayne Holmes, Mrs. C. N. Cameron, Mrs. Guy Airey, first sopranos; Tillie May Schaefer, Francis Phillips, Mrs. Hermoine Vaugh, second sopranos; Minnie Baker, Katherine Sullivan and Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, alto. Mrs. Mahaffey gave the only single solo in the number.

Crain Scores

"Trembie, Ye Tyrants," from Il Trovatore, was sung by Mr. Crain in a solo which drew the most prolonged applause. He appeared later in another selection, "Where My Caravan Has Rested," by Lohr, with Mrs. Wayne Holmes, who likewise received generously of the audience's favor.

Other soloists included Miss Virgie May Adams and Bob Spencer, who sang "An Old Guitar," and Baldwin Montgomery, who sang "Slumber On, My Little Gypsy Sweetheart," receiving much applause.

Dancing and vocal numbers were accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Cortez Slaughter, Mrs. A. H. Mahaffey, Lorene Tucker and Mrs. R. E. Shepherd, and on the violin by Joseph Rabinowitz.

The flower show which Monday night's program introduced begins proper at noon today at the Fritz Motor company under the direction of Mrs. E. B. Lehrack.

"Dead Man" in Street Blocks Traffic Until Police Reveal Fake

Police were given an emergency call Monday night to Polk street and Avenue I to remove a "dead man" from the street. The alleged dead man proved to be only a dummy dressed in overalls and a sweater.

More than 100 persons had gathered at the intersection of the two streets but apparently none of them would venture close enough to discover that the form was only a dummy, according to Fred Fountain and Elmer Thornton, city officers who investigated the case.

Many of the persons who were gathered around the dummy had become hysterical and traffic was jammed for two blocks around the scene, the officer asserted. Persons who placed the dummy in the street had arrayed a paper stained with red paint around the headless figure.

Lay Speakers to Give Talks In Wichita Falls Churches Nov. 25

Four-minute speakers will appear in all the Wichita Falls churches which are members of the Ministerial Alliance Sunday, Nov. 25, according to a decision made by the alliance at a meeting held Monday in the First Christian church. Rev. W. H. Townsend presided at the meeting.

The speakers are to be laymen of denominations or churches other than the one, in which they will speak, it was decided.

The ministers also voiced their unanimous approval of the community chest drive for the present year and expressed their willingness to co-operate to make the drive a success.

Rev. A. F. White was named to succeed Dr. S. A. Barnes on the Salvation Army board. Dr. F. A. Bash was selected to preach the Thanksgiving morning union service sermon.

Resolutions of good will to Dr. Paul Henry Packard and Dr. S. A. Barnes, both of whom are leaving for work in other fields, were adopted.

Doubt Swathes Voting Results

ernor Smith, whose brown derby and personality have viewed the campaign much as Roosevelt's spectacular Bull Moose movement with its red bandanas woke up the voters in 1912.

Candidates Contrast

Herbert Hoover has provided a marked contrast to Smith. His blue serge suit, which he wears day in and day out, characterizes him as much as the brown derby stands as Smith's political trade mark. Senator Moses has been the chief Republican fun-maker.

Just one notable contribution to the gaiety of the campaign has been made by Hoover—when he refused to kiss babies "for publication." Smith quickly came out against "baloney pictures" when he was asked to pose as a bricklayer.

Smith has given the campaign theme-song in "The Sidewalks of New York" just as Roosevelt stamped 1912 with "Onward, Christian Soldiers."

The most notable remark of the campaign probably is that addressed to a heckler by Senator Curtis: "You're too damn dumb."

The phrase which was aroused most discussion probably was Hoover's reference to prohibition as a "noble experiment."

Smith Worshipped

Smith has been greeted by tremendous crowds in most of his appearances and if some of the opposition to him borders on the fanatical, the worship of him by some of the Eastern crowds has been almost hysterical. Not in years has a public figure aroused so much enthusiasm—and its reverse, personal hostility. The campaign has revolved around Smith.

"It has been a long, hard job," he said today, "especially the traveling. And the speech-making was not easy. But I feel satisfied with the campaign I have made. I am making no predictions. That is not my job. But things look all right to me."

Never before have the millions of voters had such an opportunity to get the views of the candidates direct from their own lips. Hoover and Smith by use of the radio have addressed millions in each speech, more than Bryan reached in his whole career.

Smith attributes the great volume of votes expected to the interest aroused by radio.

Thimbles for Women

Just as brown derby clubs on the men's side have featured the Smith campaign, the Hoover ampaign has been featured by political teas and political sewing bees among women. Several million sewing thimbles inscribed "Hoover, Home and Happiness" have been distributed to women all over the country. In some of the Southern sections it is reported that women held prayer meetings, praying for a Hoover victory.

Smith leaders say they have distributed 18,800,000 campaign buttons, 11,500,000 pictures of Smith and Robinson, 4,000,000 automobile stickers, 1,000,000 window cards and 36,000,000 pieces of general literature, almost one for each probable voter. Republicans probably have distributed as much or more campaign material.

Considering the antagonisms that have been aroused in the campaign there has been remarkably little violence. Two killings have been reported in Georgia within the last few days. One was killed for calling another an "Al Smith Man." The other is said to have been killed while hanging an anti-Smith poster.

Some trouble may be expected election day due to the intense feeling. Elaborate precautions are being taken in many places to protect against fraud.

Voting Today Ends Battle

wish anything but a fair hearing for its opponents, and condemns and deplores such activities at any political gathering," it was said.

Anti-Smiths Sing "Dixie"

J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth, Baptist pastor, and Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker of Little Rock, Ark., pastor of the First Methodist church there, were the chief speakers on the anti-Smith program. The orchestra of the Highland Heights Christian church gave a musical program, and the anti-Smith supporters devoted the early part of the meeting to a singsong, one of the songs being "Dixie."

Warning that the use of a poll tax issued since Oct. 1, 1928, is a violation of the law and a criminal offense was issued Monday afternoon by Edgar Scurry, Wichita county Democratic chairman. A reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of any person using such a poll tax was offered by Mr. Scurry.

Polls Open at 8

Polls for the election will open at 8 o'clock and close at 7 o'clock. Judges for the various precincts will meet at 7:30 o'clock at their boxes to make final arrangements for handling the election. Counting of ballots will begin at 9 o'clock, and the first results will be announced shortly after the close of the balloting at 7 o'clock. Standing of the various candidates, under the law, is to be announced every two hours following the close of the polls.

While the official end of the Democratic, Republican and anti-Smith campaigns was scheduled Monday night, in reality the workers for the two presidential candidates will continue their frenzied activities throughout Tuesday. Both sides offered to provide transportation to the polls for voters who have no method of conveyance. A statement issued from Democratic headquarters said:

Autos Offered

"Call Democratic headquarters, Hamilton building, telephone 2-1004, if you desire someone to take you to the polls as we have provided cars for those without means of transportation.

"Vote early and draw a line through each ticket all the way down, except the Democratic ticket. Be sure to leave it unmarked.

"Call your friends on the telephone and see that they go to the polls and vote the entire Democratic ticket."

A joint statement issued by the anti-Smith club and the Women's Hoover club said:

"Call anti-Smith headquarters, telephone 2-4895, or Women's Hoover headquarters, telephone 2-4852, for any information concerning the election. Cars will be furnished in accordance with the law to any one unable to get to the polls.

"Vote early. Be sure you know how to mark ballot before you go to vote. Call at either headquarters for sample ballot."

CITY RETAINS BUILDING LINE

Council Refuses to Repeal Ordinance

Members of the Wichita Falls city council Monday night refused to pass a repealing ordinance that municipal law establishing building lines at certain distance from the sidewalk.

The aldermen voted unanimously to table the proposed repealing ordinance prepared by Thelbert Martin, city attorney, at the suggestion of the council last week.

The aldermen expressed themselves as believing they should leave intact the present ordinance establishing the building line as the distance at which buildings already erected stand from the sidewalk.

Protest Filed

The matter was brought before the council last week when L. W. Tarkenton requested permission to erect an apartment house at Brook and Victory which would be only seven feet from the sidewalk on the Victory street side. Other houses along the street are located at a greater distance from the walk, it was explained.

Walter S. Curlee, chairman of the city zoning commission, appeared before the council protesting the repeal of the present building line ordinance. At the same time he stressed the importance of regulating the establishment of commercial enterprises in residence districts of the city as much as possible until the commission completes its present work.

A petition bearing the signatures of several property owners residing in the vicinity of Brook and Victory was placed before the council before the vote was taken on the repealing ordinance.

Tax Polls Approved

The council approved the 1928 city tax roll as presented by W. R. Hyer, city tax assessor and collector. The roll was approved totals $51,913,700 and is divided as follows: real estate property value, $41,945,830; personal property value, $9,961,880. The 1928 city tax rate was set at $1.40 per $100 a number of weeks ago.

An emergency ordinance providing for an appropriation of $16,426.85 from the unappropriated balance of city revenues to meet certain bills not provided for in the general appropriation ordinance was passed without a dissenting vote.

Among the bills which this amount will pay is one for $10,862.91 to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel company as the balance due on the erection here of a water tower and $3,000 to cover payment of municipal waterworks bonds that were due Nov. 1.

An ordinance providing for the construction and enforcement of all city ordinances was passed on its first reading. The purpose of this ordinance, it was explained, is to make the city laws more easily construed and general terms more easily defined.

Wichita Convicts Gain Freedom

said that the search for the 21 prisoners still at large continued unabated Monday night. Seven were recaptured during the day Monday and three Monday night. Three packs of bloodhounds were being used in the search. Those still at large presumably wear the prison white uniforms.

The prisoners squeezed through a small prison window while their fellow inmates lulled guards with guitars and songs. The bars on the window were first cut.

Farmers, with memories of a bloody break from a nearby prison farm several months ago, were reported to have carried weapons to their fields Monday, according to the Associated Press.

Reeves Wounded Here

Reeves was arrested in Oklahoma after a series of the most daring burglaries and knob knockings this and surrounding cities have experienced in recent years. He and three companions were lodged in the city jail from which all but one escaped. Several weeks later Reeves was wounded when police officers engaged in a gun battle with a man they said had entered the Monroe street Pharmacy. He escaped that encounter but was arrested the next day.

Reeves was given a five-year suspended sentence for burglary and later was convicted of conspiracy to commit burglary and was given a two and one-half year sentence.

Stell was arrested at the time Reeves was first placed in the city jail. He was released due to inability of officers to find sufficient evidence for holding him. He was later arrested and accused of participating in burglaries at Benjamin when the night watchman of that town was kidnaped and tied to a wagon wheel some distance from the town.

Webb, a Wichita Falls youth, was convicted of automobile theft at Vernon.

Child Injured In Auto Accident

Joline Norwood, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Norwood, 1319 Grant street, suffered severe bruises and cuts about the face and head Monday night when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a car driven by Russel Haddock at Tenth and Holliday streets.

Haddock was held by police after the accident.

The little girl was not believed to be seriously injured, Mrs. Norwood said.

$5,000 Pool Wager On Smith To Carry Wichita Goes Uncovered

$1,000 in Hoover Money Offered, Says Report; Absentee Vote Tends to Demos, Courthouse Observers Believe

Wagers on the vote in Wichita county swung definitely to a favoritism for the chances of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, according to reports Monday night, as some of the "election barometers" were said to have indicated that a majority of voters here will choose the Democratic candidate Tuesday.

According to one story of wide circulation and accepted as being true among some of conservative belief at the courthouse, takers could be found for only $1,000 of a pool of $5,000 which was offered on the chances of Governor Smith to carrying the county.

According to the current rumor, a small group of men pooled the $5,000 for the purpose of "calling" a similar amount reported to have been raised by those believing in Mr. Hoover's chances. It was said Monday night, however, that only $1,000 of the Smith money had been "called," with little prospect of the remainder finding takers.

Opinion was divided as to just what had brought about the swing. Up until two weeks ago, many frequenters of the courthouse—most of them Smith supporters—had been frankly of the belief that Hoover probably would carry the county by a small majority. They were of the opinion Monday, however, that sentiment had been swinging toward the Democratic candidate.

All declared they had not participated in any wagers, but were of the opinion that if men who are interested only in winning have chosen the New York governor, it probably has been due to two factors.

One factor was the current report about the courthouse that absentee voting has been in favor of Governor Smith. The absentee vote of past years, they declared, has proved an accurate barometer of the election total, particularly when such vote has been heavy, as has been the case for Tuesday's election.

Admittedly, veteran observers said, they do not know positively or from first hand knowledge, how the absentee vote has run.

The second factor considered by those reported to have offered bets on Governor Smith is said to have resulted from extensive surveys in various communities in the county. Those surveys, according to courthouse rumors, have indicated the following general results. Wichita Falls, Electra and Iowa Park for Smith; Burkburnett for Hoover; Clara and Thrift probably for Hoover; Cashion probably for Smith; Mount Carmel strongly for Smith; most of the other boxes close or for Smith.

Election Eve Sidelights

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Turning to the radio to carry a final appeal to the voters of the nation, Alfred E. Smith declared tonight that he could "enter upon the duties of the greatest office in the world without commitment to anybody except the American people."

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 5. (AP)—Herbert Hoover, in his final utterance of the campaign, tonight appealed to the electorate of the country to disregard sectional lines in balloting at the polls tomorrow.

Returns By Radio

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (UP)—As the climax of a campaign which has been conducted with radio broadcasting as one of its most important factors, the presidential race will be concluded by an elaborate election night program on a coast-to-coast linking of radio stations.

Beginning at 6 p. m., eastern time, the most carefully arranged and comprehensive broadcasting of the results of a national election in the history of either politics or radio will be undertaken by the National Broadcasting company. The program was first scheduled to begin at 7 p. m., but was advanced an hour.

The New York studios of that organization will be converted into a news room for the night. A large staff of newspaper men and tabulators have been engaged by the N. B. C. for taking returns furnished by the United Press and other great press associations and converting them into language understandable by the average radio listener.

Under the supervision of David Lawrence, well known political writer and editor of the United States Daily of Washington, D. C., the radio news staff will assemble returns which will then be interpreted by Lawrence for the listener. N. B. C. officials state that in their ambitious election night program, confusing figures will be kept to a minimum and the interpretation of results in various sections of the country will be the paramount object of the service.

The program will continue until the required 266 electoral votes have been obtained by the successful presidential candidate. A musical program will be interspersed with the returns.

Coolidges to Vote

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. (UP)—President and Mrs. Coolidge left here at 10 p. m., tonight for Northampton, Mass., to vote Tuesday in the general elections.

"Won't Matter"

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for president, in a final campaign address broadcast over a network of 11 stations, declared tonight that "it won't matter much" which of the major parties wins the election tomorrow.

"It will matter profoundly," he added, "that whichever wins will take office alarmed and chastened by the size of the Socialist vote."

Mr. Thomas praised both Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover as "able men," but assailed them as champions of the same economic system.

FAIR WEATHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 (AP)—Fair weather and moderate temperatures will greet the voter in most parts of the United States Tuesday when he goes forth to cast his ballot in the national election.

Slight cloudiness and unsettled conditions were predicted for portions of the Middle West but the majority of voters will find the weather no excuse for remaining away from the polls, reports indicated.

Herbie's Town Hot

WEST BRANCH, Iowa, Nov. 5. (UP)—The ol' home town, where Herbert Hoover in his boyhood days played along "Main street," and swam in the ol' swimming hole, will return a "landslide" for the Republican presidential nominee Tuesday.

Normally heavily Republican, the town of "Herbie's" birta, will poll but a few Democratic votes, a canvass along Main street showed today.

W. C. T. U. Splits

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 5. (AP)—Thirty members of the State Women's Christian Temperance union had resigned their membership in the union today and more had promised to do so as a result of the W. C. T. U. taking part in a Republican rally here Sunday and Monday.

The Democratic women charged that the W. C. T. U. was allowing itself to be used as a Republican political machine not only to elect Hoover as president, but also to elect the entire Republican state ticket.

Moody Confident

AUSTIN, Nov. 5. (UP)—"I believe as I have all during this campaign, that Texas is safely in the ranks of the Democratic party for the general election Tuesday," Gov. Dan Moody said in a pre-election statement today. He will cast a straight Democratic ticket at Taylor, his home town, tomorrow.

Radio Campaign

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—Thousands upon thousands of American citizens saw the four principals of the major parties in the campaign which closed today, but the radio made it the most personal, man-to-man presidential contest the country has ever known.

In the number of states visited radio hours consumed and speeches made, Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic nominee for vice president, had a wide edge on all the others, but because of the extensive radio chains, Herbert Hoover and Governor Smith were heard by the greatest number of persons.

While Governor Smith made nearly twice as many formal speeches as the Republican candidate, both he and Mr. Hoover were seen by the residents of more than a score of states.

Exactly 19½ radio hours were used by Mr. Smith to carry his ideas of government to every city and hinterland of the country. Mr. Hoover used only nine, an hour each for the nine formal addresses on his campaign. The Republican candidate, however, made more informal speeches than Governor Smith, the number running to around 100, but this number includes even the short speeches of welcome Hoover made to visiting delegations at his Washington headquarters and the brief platform utterances he made from the rear of his train.

Secret Is Out!

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (US)—Mrs. Alfred Emanuel Smith has a birthday tomorrow.

She wants only one present.

It's the same kind, she says, that she got 10 years ago today, when her husband was elected governor for the first time.

Mrs. Smith said she had intended keeping her secret to herself, but the information was "admitted" at an interview when her attention was called to her birthdate. She said:

"You see—it's a good luck omen—but—after all—"

Just Like a Man

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Nov. 5. (US)—Isn't that just like a man?"

Thus spoke "Aunt Polly" Merrill, 100, who cast an absent voter's ballot today "straight Republican" to later learn that Otis Ballard, 95, of Niles, had done the same thing—except he voted it "straight Democratic."

Mrs. Merrill claims the right to call her vote the "killer," since she is the older and should have the "say-so."

Love Closes Fight

VAN ALSTYNE, Texas, Nov. 5. (AP)—Closing his Texas campaign for Herbert Hoover, State Senator Thomas B. Love, Democrat, said here tonight that if all Democrats who had intended voting for Hoover in the general election had stayed out of the July primaries, "Wardlaw and not Moody would have been the nominee of that primary."

Mexico Interested

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 5. (US)—The presidential election in the United States just closing has been followed in Mexico with much interest, but with a taking of sides for either candidate totally absent. What were considered the principal speeches of both Governor Smith and Secretary Hoover were given ample room in the Mexico City morning dailies, but all comment on them was withheld.

Eggs for Heflin

ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 5. (AP)—J. Thomas Heflin, senior U. S. senator from Alabama, was the object of an egg bombardment here tonight while in the midst of an address against the candidacy of Governor Smith, Democratic presidential candidate. No egg found its mark.

William Bratton Jr. Reported Improving

William Bratton Jr., 10, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. D. Bratton, 1826 Huff, who suffered concussion of the brain when he was struck by an automobile Sunday afternoon, was reported to be improving by attendants at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital Monday night.

The accident occurred when the boy started across a road in Weeks' park and was hit by a passing automobile. Rev. Mr. Bratton is rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd.

RALLY DRAWS HUGE CROWD

Norris and Knickerbocker Attack Smith

Dr. J. Frank Norris, pastor of the First Baptist church of Fort Worth, and Dr. H. D. Knickerbocker, pastor of the First Methodist church of Little Rock, Ark., addressed 3,500 persons at the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium Monday night in the final anti-Smith rally of the national campaign in Wichita Falls.

Collection Taken

A collection, amounting to $700, was taken up after N. H. Martin, president of the anti-Smith organization of Wichita Falls, asked the crowd if they didn't think that Dr. Knickerbocker, who had just spoken, "deserved some mention in The Times Tuesday." The crowd yelled "yes," so Mr. Martin suggested taking the collection to pay the rental of the hall and the four and a half hours the meeting was being broadcast over radio station KGKO.

Dr. Knickerbocker attacked Gov. Alfred E. Smith as a "regular drinker," and asked "where the governor got his liquor."

"I denounce Governor Smith as a willing tool and worker for Tammany hall in his early life when Tammany was at its worst. I now denounce him as the boss of Tammany hall."

The recent Democratic convention at Houston was attacked as having been arranged by Tammany months before it took place.

Robinson Rapped

"Three months before the convention, Sen. Joseph T. Robinson was asked to help defeat Tammany," Dr. Knickerbocker continued.

"Robinson replied, 'Shh, lay off of that stuff and put on the soft pedal,' and from that minute on, I would have been willing to wager, if I was a betting man, that Robinson was to be the next vice presidential candidate.

"Tammany has already accomplished the impossible by nominating a wet, Roman Catholic, Tammany, provincial, New Yorker and a Tammany-made Democrat on the Democratic ticket for the presidency.

"Tuesday, we will show Tammany that it can pour something down our throats in a Tammany controlled convention, but that it cannot make us keep it on our stomachs."

The meeting opened with a concert by the Highland Heights Christian church orchestra and a singsong led by Joel H. MacGregor. Mr. Martin then introduced Dr. Knickerbocker.

After Dr. Knickerbocker's talk came the collection, more music, and the talk by Dr. Norris of Fort Worth.

Dr. Norris, who was introduced by Dr. Paul Henry Packard of Wichita Falls, said he had been warned to look out for eggs.

"I am looking out for the eggs," Dr. Norris said. "And I warn any would-be egg thrower that before he throws any, he had better go home and kiss his wife goodbye.

Dr. Norris ridiculed the local Democratic organization for distributing copies of Cullen Thomas' prohibition speech to those coming into the meeting.

"They haven't been able to get a big crowd together here this year," he said. "They have failed to get more than 1,800 persons and they wanted to get their message before the largest possible crowd by giving out their literature here."

Bitter Attack on Smith

Dr. Norris said that when Gov. Alfred E. Smith was 18 years old he was dancing in a saloon on a table for the entertainment of a bunch of "drunks." He then compared the lives of Hoover and Smith, saying that one came from the clean and wholesome atmosphere of a western farm while the other came from the east end of New York's Bowery.

"I don't blame the New York governor from coming from the environment, but all of you folks should know that while other men rise from that kind of environment with its foreigners and wets, he has gone right back there. Tonight, he is closing his campaign on Oliver street, the east end of New York's Bowery and slum district from which he came and in which he maintains his home.

Dr. Norris then told of a recent protest which he said was lodged with the radio commission against his station, KFQB, at Fort Worth, for the anti-Smith and pro-Hoover speeches he has delivered over it.

"That petition was made up by Tammany hall and several Knights of Columbus," he charged. "I'm not going to quit, and I won't be cut off."

On a standing vote in the auditorium, 12 stood as being a favor of Governor Smith and the balance stood as favoring Herbert Hoover.

Salvation Army Will Recover Stolen Drum

A silver-plated snare drum which was stolen from the Salvation Army here Friday was located in Chillicothe Monday, according to Chief of Police Frank Burns. The drum which is valued at $37.50 was pawned at Chillicothe for 75 cents.

The instrument will be shipped back to the Salvation Army headquarters here immediately, Chief Burns said.

The body of Mrs. Tiny Harries, 76, who died in a local hospital at 8:15 o'clock Sunday night, was forwarded to Georgetown by the Hines mortuary Monday morning.

W. A. OLDHAM

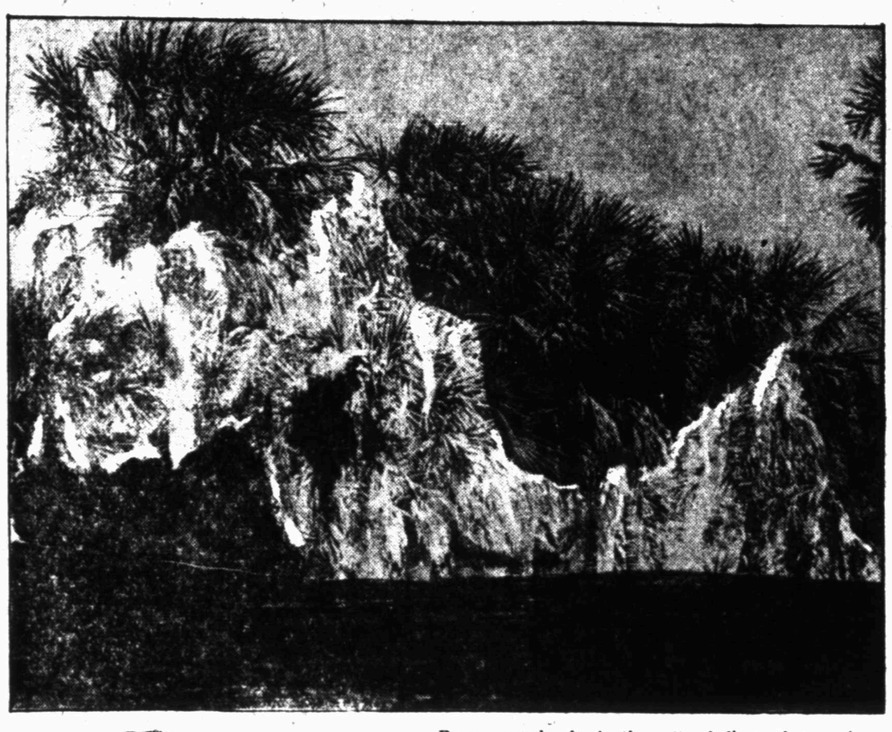

Funeral services for W. A. Oldham, 41, who died at the family residence on Westlake drive Sunday night, were held from the Hines mortuary chapel at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. Burial was in Riverside cemetery.

The body of Joseph W. Payton, 46, who died in a local hospital Saturday night, will be forwarded to Glazier, Texas, Tuesday by the Hines mortuary.

An ICE FREE WORLD—What Then?

Science Informs Us That if Earth's Polar Icecaps, Twin Objectives of Commander "Dick" Byrd, Were Suddenly to Melt, the Oceans Would Rise Fifty Feet or More and Sea-Level Cities, Such as New York, New Orleans and San Francisco, Would Be Engulfed

Frozen remains in Arctic wastes indicate that much of that immense region once bore tropical vegetation. Perhaps in future ages the ice will again melt away and palm trees flourish in its stead

New York and other coastal cities would be flooded by water from melting polar ice if our climate should change sufficiently to drive Jack Frost away from the vast areas of ice and snow at the ends of the world

Taking measurements of a fissure in Switzerland to obtain data on glacial movements

By John Leo Coontz

WHAT would happen if all the ice at the polar caps of the Earth was suddenly, as if by magic, made to vanish?

Antarctica, which Commander Byrd will shortly visit for purposes of study, is a continent larger than the United States. It lies under a sheet of ice the depth of which science has not yet fathomed. An ice-ridden plateau defines its interior, 7000 to 10,000 feet above sea level. Here the Storm King brews his most terrible storms—blinding, icy storms such as overwhelmed the gallant Scott and his men, blizzards that exhaust themselves only after they have spent their fury. These storms directly affect the weather of South America and the Antipodes.

Arctalia is an ice sea. It is unlike the southern domain of the Storm King in this respect. Open water abounds there, the cold throughout the year is not so severe. But storms arise in Arctalia as in Antarctica, storms that affect the weather of the Northern Hemisphere. Great icebergs break off the ice sheets in Arctalia and come drifting down into southern waters following cold ice currents which originate there.

What, then, if these two icy storm centers of the world should be removed suddenly? How would life conditions upon the Earth be affected? How would climate be affected? Would man vanish? Would vegetation cease because of changed temperatures? What temperature changes would occur? Would animal life become extinct?

RECENTLY sea captains crossing the Atlantic reported, upon docking at New York, the encountering of phenomena in midocean indicative of a possible change in the Gulf Stream. Such a change, if undergone, scientists point out, would materially affect the climate of Great Britain and Ireland and certain portions of Northern Europe. It would result in a colder climate for Western Europe as far north as Spitsbergen, a climate comparable to other land areas in the same latitude not today enjoying a warm Gulf Stream.

Similar in kind but reversed in temperature and land application would be the climatic changes of the world if all the ice at the polar extremities of the Earth should be suddenly removed, declares Dr. W. J. Humphreys, meteorologist of the Weather Bureau at Washington.

"In the first place," says Dr. Humphreys, "the sudden melting of all the ice around the North and South Poles would raise the oceans something like fifty feet. That would wipe out many of the cities of the world, those at sea level. In America such cities as New York, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, Savannah, Charleston and New Orleans would disappear. Los Angeles and San Francisco, on the western coast, would be sunk beneath the waves.

"A more uniform temperature would come to exist north and south from the Poles if all the ice at these two extremities of the Earth were removed. The northern and southern latitudes of the North and South American Continents would henceforth be warmer and ice would not again form as it is today around the Poles. There would possibly be a twenty-degree increase in temperature at the Poles; one degree at the Equator. The range of temperature on the two continents would approximate each other more nearly.

"Snow and ice reflect the rays of the sun; the earth absorbs them. Snow and frost would come again in these areas, the Arctic and Antarctic waters would freeze over, but we would have no more perpetual icecaps. The continent would be narrowed down by the rise of the seas on either side, but the modified temperatures north and south would give back to man his cultivatable loss of territory occasioned by the narrowing.

"Weather is 'made' by high and low pressure air currents flowing into each other, further actioned by the rotation of the earth. Violent extremes of temperature would, therefore, naturally pass with the passage of the great areas of glaciation at the Poles. Summer and winter would come the same; the winters not so cold, the summers possibly warmer.

"Life on the continent would go on with no great change from what it is at present. Temperature in North America would not be affected much below that point on the continent to which ice extended during the maximum sweep of the last glaciation period in history—Cairo, Ill.—12,000 to 15,000 years ago.

"Animals, men and vegetation exist today in the coldest region of the world known to man, Central Siberia, where the thermometer falls as low as 90 degrees below zero. If the icecaps of the Earth were melted, our temperatures would not approximate this low degree. Little change in life, therefore, could be expected from the climatic readjustment that would take place over the Earth through the disappearance of the vast regions of snow and ice to the north and south of us. It might be that some highly specialized and acclimatized animals would become extinct as a result of the temperature changes, but no more than that."

AN ICE-FREE world would not be a novelty—at least not to Mother Earth. There was a time when she was iceless. That was when she started off on her career through time and space as a "hot mamma," and a red-hot one at that. Icing up has been only a late habit of hers, comparatively speaking, in relation to age. She is billions of years old. Scientists don't know exactly when she put on her first coat of ice, but her second coat is reckoned to have been donned about 430,000 B. C. She doffed it about 370,000 B. C. In 130,000 B. C. she put on another coat—her third. She doffed it about 100,000 B. C.—after the fashion of the modern woman—in about half the time from its donning in comparison with her second coat. About 60,000 B. C. she came out with her fourth coat. It has lasted her pretty well to this day. It was at its greatest beauty and completeness some 15,000 to 20,000 years ago. All that is left now is a top and bottom fringe to be found at the North and South Poles, respectively, and caps on the mountaintops. Science marks the withdrawal of this ice by centuries. In Switzerland it is receding at something like the rate of one-half foot per hundred years. Before another 15,000 or 20,000 years will have rolled around, it is believed it will be gone. Mankind will then speak of this period as the "end of the last ice age."

Glaciation, as intimated above, has come and gone on the Earth. First there was a great glaciation, then a warming up, then a glaciation, then a warming up, etc. The "in-betweens" are referred to by scientists as "intergiacial stages." During some of these "stages" the Earth is believed to have had a warmer climate than we know today—at least, many parts of it. There is evidence of flora in the Far North that existed during one of these "intergiacial stages" not unlike that now found in the southern portions of the United States. What brought this about? Scientists say numerous things.

Continents may not always have borne the same shape or the same relation to the Sun that they do now. Land that is elevated now may at one time have been depressed. Continents may have shifted positions since the ancient past. There is a scientific theory that South America and Africa were at one time continuous land, not separated by water as now. It is interesting to note, as pointed out, that the shoreline of East South America fits into the west shoreline of Africa. There is also believed to be a sunken continent in the Atlantic, sediment from whose mountains is believed to have "made" the coastal land of Eastern United States.

Then, again, ocean currents may not have flowed always as they flow today. One can readily understand how these currents, shifting, could have changed temperature and weather conditions on the surface of the Earth from time to time in the past. The reported shifting of the Gulf Current off the coast of England and Ireland today is an example of this.

THE relative position of the Earth and Sun has always been constant. Scientists assert that the Earth has never shifted in its orbital circuit about the Sun—that the orbit has always been what it now is. But continents have moved, land has risen and fallen in time, and ocean currents have changed. Any and all of these could have taken place in the past, and did.

The Glacial Period, as a whole, marks a division in the world's history, that of the most recent past from the present. For this reason it is sometimes referred to as the Pleistocene Period, a word coined from two Greek words meaning the most recent period back of the Age of Man. The ice, at its height, covered more than 8,000,000 square miles of the Earth's surface.

Climatic fluctuations, as a result of the movement of ice on the Earth, have not been without their influence on the history of man. The greatest human progress has been made in temperate zones, but civilization as developed by man through the ages has followed the receding ice.

"The beginnings of civilization may reasonably be placed with the transition from the Paleolithic to the Neolithic type," says C. E. P. Brooks, English meteorologist. "One of the earliest Neolithic cities known is probably that of Anau, near Askabad, in Transcaspia, excavated in 1904. From the thickness of the accumulated debris the date of first settlement is placed at or before 8000 B. C., that is, 10,000 years ago, or during the period which in Europe is assigned to the concluding stages of the Wurm glaciation.

"The beginning of Neolithic civilization in Crete is placed at about 12,000 B. C., while on the basis of excavations at Susa, in Persia, the origin of Neolithic culture in this part of Asia is placed as early as about 18,000 B. C. At Susa the deposits are 130 feet thick, and of these the upper forty feet cover a period of 6000 years.

"Thus we see what may be considered as the great step from savagery to civilization took place while the present centers of progress in Europe and America were still in the Ice Age. At that time the climate of Southern Asia must have resembled the present climate of Northwest Europe in heavier rainfall and the day-to-day fluctuations of weather — in fact, the districts where civilization began probably had at that time the most stimulating climate in the Northern Hemisphere.

"WITH the vanishing of the ice sheets and the setting in of the mild climate of the Maritime phase the Neolithic culture spread rapidly to Europe, and by 2000 B. C. even the Baltic regions were well inhabited. And it is probable that about this time the Aryan race was developing on the steppes of Russia.

"With the coming of the Bronze Age in Western Europe, about 1800 B. C., however, the climate again became colder and rainier, culminating in the Early Iron Age. This period was marked by a southward spread of the Aryan peoples, and ushered in the Heroic Age of Greece. The races of the Mediterranean continued to thrive throughout this rainy period, and their power did not diminish until its close, about A. D. 400, accelerated by the pressure of nomad peoples driven out of Asia by the increasing drought.

"The early Middle Ages, after the downfall of Rome, appear to have been characterized by a dry, warm climate. This was the age of the Vikings, when the Norse races rose to dominance in Western Europe, finally invading and occupying large areas of Great Britain and France, and even extending their power to Sicily. With increasing cold and wet of the 'Medieval' rainfall came a final burst of Norse migration, leaving the homeland poor and scantily populated, and the center of activity lay once again with the Mediterranean peoples, and especially with Italy and Spain. The Tartar invasions ceased, and against the increasing power of Europe the Moslem wave broke and receded. At the close of the rainy period political dominance again moved north. From that time the fluctuations of climate have been of minor importance, and correspondingly there have been no great shiftings of political power from latitude to latitude."

Migration, evolution and mental evolution have all followed the path of climatic change. The "in-betweens" of glaciation stages have always marked upward steps by the human race. Would a wholly ice-free world carry us to still greater heights? At least we should lose nothing of what we have, according to Dr. Humphreys, who knows his meteorology as well as any man.

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

ARE WE BECOMING HEALTHIER?

Diabetes

The number of deaths from diabetes is slightly on the increase in spite of the supposed value of insulin for increasing the ability to use carbohydrates. The average number of deaths lately has been 16.8 when formerly it was 16.5 per hundred thousand. Anyone who is familiar with my theories of this disease, that it is caused by a faulty metabolism from using excessive amounts of sugars and starches, can understand why this disease occurs and why it is slightly on the increase.

Heart Disease

At present, heart disease is responsible for more deaths than any other ailment of the human body. (It is estimated that the number of deaths from diseases of the heart and blood vessels are responsible for more deaths than any other three diseases combined.) The number of deaths per hundred thousand has slightly increased. The average was 147. Now it is 148.9. This increase may be partly caused by the decrease of the number of deaths in the acute diseases, and partly by a better diagnosis of heart troubles. As I have stated many times in my newspaper articles, heart disease is caused largely by two factors. One is the presence of toxic, irritating substances in the blood stream, and the other is the presence of gas from the stomach and intestines.

Apoplexy

The causes of apoplexy are probably somewhat similar to the causes of heart disease. This trouble is usually caused by high blood pressure and by a hardening of the arteries. We therefore find that more people are dying of this trouble than formerly. The average was 99.46 per hundred thousand, now it is 98.89.

Cirrhosis of the Liver

The number of deaths from cirrhosis of the liver has remarkably decreased since prohibition. The number of deaths per thousand was 12.2, now the number is 7.4. Curiously enough, the proportion of deaths from acute alcoholism is gradually increasing year after year since prohibition. Immediately after the Volstead law went into effect the number of deaths in the United States from acute alcoholism was 1.6 per hundred thousand, and the number has gradually increased until, in 1925, the number had reached 3.6. However, this is less than the average prior to the Volstead act.

Kidney Disease

The number of deaths from acute kidney diseases formerly averaged 103.57. Now the number is 88.64 per hundred thousand. These diseases also show a remarkable decrease since it has become more difficult to obtain alcohol.

The number of deaths from suicide is decreasing year after year. This is probably due to a gradual improvement of the economic conditions and better health. 1920 had the lowest number of suicides, 10.20 per hundred thousand, and 1908, the year after the panic, the highest, 20.60.

The largest number of suicides occur between the ages of 80 and 89 which have an average of 34 per hundred thousand. The number of suicides in children, contrary to popular opinion, is very small. Between the ages of 10 and 19 there is only an average of 2 per hundred thousand. Under the age of 10, true suicide is practically unknown, there is said to be only one authentic suicide, per twenty-six million children.

Oily Hair

Question: K. G. "What kind of shampoos would you recommend for every oily hair?"

Answer: Washing the hair daily with a tincture of green soap about a week will usually correct this trouble. I have also special articles on the care of the hair which I will be glad to send you if you will send me a self addressed envelope and four cents in stamps.

Causes of Headache

Question: G. H. writes: "Please advise me what causes my head to ache. Sometimes I have a headache for a whole week without relief."

Answer: There are many causes of headache. Here are some of them: Auto-intoxication, constipation, prolapsed organs, uterine congestion, eyestrain, nerve depletion and toxic poisoning from some chronic disease. Only a diagnosis will tell you which of these causes produce your headache.

Pinworm

Question: Mrs. F. writes: "Will you kindly give a remedy for pinworms? Also explain the cause of them?"

Answer: Any druggist can supply you with a worm remedy. The cause of pinworms is an unhealthy condition of the colon. A course of enemas for a week or two will usually bring about complete elimination of these worms.

Mineral Water

Question: Mrs. G. D. asks: "Do you consider radium springs water more beneficial to health than water from the faucet?"

Answer: Distilled water is the only pure water, but the water furnished by any city water supply should be as good as the water from any special springs.

HAL ROACH

Hal Roach is perhaps the outstanding motion-picture comedy producer. Among other accomplishments, he is the papa of "Our Gang" and was the man who first started Harold Lloyd on his trip down the celluloid path to fame.

"I like the gag," Roach rollicked, "about the two hard looking yeggs who stood in a secluded spot talking confidentially. One of them suddenly sneaked away into the night—the other stood on guard. Soon the first one was seen to emerge from the window of a house and join his pal.

"'Did youse git anyt'ing?' whispered the one who had been waiting.

"'Naw,' nawed the other, 'de guy wat lived in dere is a lawyer.'

"'Cheez, dat's tough luck,' consoled his pal, 'did you'se lose anyt'ing?'"

Radio Commissioner To Tour Fourth District

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. (INS)—Commissioner Sam Pickard of the Federal Radio commission announced today that he would make a tour of the fourth district, beginning Nov. 11, the date on which new allocation program goes into effect. He expects to be in Kansas City and adjacent territory between Nov. 18 and 20. Commissioner Pickard proposes to spend some time listening in throughout his district to form his own ideas as to how new allocation works in the farm states. Thus far there have been fewer complaints on changes ordered in connection with reallocation in the fourth district than in any other broadcasting zone.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—The cotton market today appeared to be chiefly influenced by an increase in some of the private crop estimates but, after showing net losses of about 27 to 36 points, recovered partially on covering. January contracts after selling off to 18.81 or 32 points below Saturday's closing quotation, rallied to 19.01 and closed at 18.99 with the general market closing steady at net declines of 14 to 20 points.

The market opened steady at a decline of 3 to 11 points in response to relatively easier Liverpool cables, while there may have been some selling on a private report placing the crop indication at 14,250,-000 bales. Offerings increased following the publication of another of the private end-month reports, placing the indicated yield at 14,421,000 bales, compared with a report of 13,993,000 bales by the same authority last month.

The market was weak and unsettled during the middle of the day. December sold off to 18.87 and May to 18.70, but the offerings tapered off at these figures, while the decline seemed to have brought in a little more trade buying. Partial recoveries followed on pre-election day covering, which was probably promoted to some extent by reports of cold weather in the South over Sunday and smaller crop figures from some of the active private authorities. December sold up to 19.07 and May to 18.88, but the market met renewed realizing around the 19-cent level and last prices showed setbacks of a few points.

No less than eight of the private crop reports were published during the day, with figures on the indicated yield ranging from 13,548,000 up to 14,421,000 bales. The average of ten of these private reports so far published is 14,009,000 bales compared with 14,008,000, the average of the same ten reports a month ago. Two of the private reports have given figures on indicated ginnings prior to Nov. 1. One of them reporting 10,320,000 while the other placed it at 10,262,000, the average of 10,291,000 bales being commented upon by local traders as pointing to a ginning of 2,144,000 bales for the last period compared with 1,803,221 last year and 2,526,-164 two years ago.

Port receipts 76,420. U. S. port stocks 2,071,143. Exports today 26,018, making 2,533,474 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 5. (AP)—The cotton market was mainly under the influence of private crop estimates today, declining early on bearish reports and recovering later when smaller estimates brought out some trade buying and covering. January contracts, which had traded off to 18.27, or 37 points net down, rallied to 18.45, closing at that figure, or 19 points lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 17 to 19 points.

The market opened easy, partly in response to lower Liverpool cables, but mainly because of crop estimates regarded as somewhat bearish, and first trades showed losses of 13 to 15 points. Prices continued to decline during the morning under long liquidation promoted by the larger crop ideas and realizing in advance of tomorrow's holiday as well as some hedge selling. Before the offerings were absorbed December and January eased to 18.27 and March 18.23, or 35 to 37 points under Saturday's close.

Later in the morning these reports were offset materially by the publication of several smaller ones and the market gradually rallied during the afternoon, the recovery being aided materially by shorts covering. Active months rallied 18 points from the lows, December and January selling back to 18.45 and March 18.41. The market closed steady at or near the prices reached on the late recovery.

In all, seven private reports were issued during the day, making the indicated yield ranging from 13,548,000 to 14,421,-000 bales. The average of the nine estimates issued to date is 14,015,000 bales.

Oil Group Leads As Average Price Of Stocks Reaches Highest in History

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (UP)—The average price of industrial stocks reached the highest level in history, today, as "election demonstration" started under the influence of easing money rates.

An increasing amount of funds was made available for dealings through the day so that the call rate dropped steadily from a renewal of 7 to closing of 6 per cent with some loans made outside of regular channels at 5½ per cent.

Oils featured as a group with Standard and independents moving forward together while the rails and utilities held strong throughout.

American Can gained over two points while General Motors, Steel and other standard industrials were in increasing demand as the session progressed.

Wright with a gain of 12 and Curtiss with a jump of 10 scored the best individual advances. Simmons moved 4⅝ points higher, Otis Elevator gained almost as much and other closely held specialties improved to the extent of from 1 to 2 points.

HOLIDAY TUESDAY
NEW YORK, Nov. 5. (AP)—The New York stock exchange, curb and bond markets and all commodity markets will be closed tomorrow, election day.

Everything Is Set

The close found everything set for further "election demonstration." Banks had called so many loans over the last week that they were in a position to ease money so that a 6 per cent renewal was indicated for Wednesday morning.

Many sold-out bulls were waiting on the sidelines to have their courage renewed and there was a fairly large short interest in technically cornered shares. So the rapid rate of increase in brokers' loans was entirely forgotten although further big gain was indicated for this week.

Should the demonstration prove a celebration, it is going to give opportunity for further heavy unloading in some of the recent favorites while the most powerful market leaders cover up such selling with continued bullish activity in oils.

Furthermore, sentiment at the close indicated in less than a week the election would be forgotten as a market factor.

Oil Company Plans

The most active interests in the oil shares were the only ones not talking "election." Their constructive plans will be worked out no matter what the result of tomorrow's voting. Sinclair, Marland Pan-American as well as other independent companies not alone are co-operating in the stabilization movement but have individual expansion and merger plans promising benefit to stockholders.

Mexican Seaboard's strength was a further reflection of the good news from California where the new well is giving up oil of 60 degrees, the nearest thing to pure gasoline that was ever taken from the ground.

Barnsdall interests report similar results on adjacent properties.

General Motors leadership of the automobile group was further reflected of the belief that earnings will remain sufficient to pay extras on the 43,000,000 shares to be outstanding when recapitalization is effected.

New Models Talked

There was talk of new models being planned and also merger rumors to sustain the market for Chrysler and others with most interesting hints containing the name of Stutz in connection with doings of important interests. Underwood-Elliott-Fisher turned quieter but was bolstered by belief that more active group work would be experienced following election.

Inside buying of Public Service of New Jersey, Electric Bond & Share, United Gas & Improvement and other utilities, told of here Sunday, advanced with added vigor. Those interested in these companies have several important plans under consideration of which more official intimation will be forthcoming, it is claimed, over the course of the next several weeks.

The close relation of Public Service of New Jersey and the United Gas interests has been a common topic for some time. If the plans rumored of now are successfully consummated their relations will be even closer. National Power & Light is mentioned also in the cheerful conversation of the untility folks and their forecasts are reflected in its sustained strength.

Grain

CHICAGO REVIEW
By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Nov. 5. (US)—Grains closed irregularly with all the futures higher except in corn which was unchanged to a shade lower. The markets were rather dull during most of the session with a developing strength in wheat that surprised most of the trade.

At the end wheat was up ⅝ to 1 cent; corn was unchanged to ⅛ cent lower; oats were ⅛ to ¼ higer; rye was up ¼ to ½ cent.

As a pre-election market it suggested that every long who felt any uncertainty about staying in the market over the holiday in trading today, had dumped his holdings last Saturday. A few more may have dumped today; but there was not enough selling to put any weight on prices.

Nor was there any pronounced buying, for that matter. Bulls seemed to be satisfied with their position and merely sat still.

At the close all the futures looked to be in a sound condition and technically stronger than they have been for a long time. They may be ready for an advance on Wednesday after the political uncertainty has been eliminated.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine issued a statement that the European corn crop will be this year about 25 per cent under last year. He added that our corn crop is estimated to be only 5 per cent larger than a year ago.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 5. (AP) (U. S. D. Aggregate receipts of around 78,900 were 36,200 short of last Monday and 55,000 less than a year ago.

Vandals Cut Tires On Two Autos Here

The Halloween spirit apparently lingered a little overtime among prank players when owners of two different automobiles found their tires sliced with knives Sunday night, according to reports given Monday to Homer Bentley and O. A. Roberson, city motorcycle officers.

Jerry Hare, 2614 Buchanan street, found neat holes sliced in all four of the tires on his automobile Sunday night when he returned to it after seeing a picture show. The automobile was parked near Ninth street on Indiana avenue.

The knife wielders went a bit further in their operations on the car of R. E. James when they included the extra tire along with the slicing given the four on the automobile. His car was parked at Tenth street and Indiana avenue.

WHITEMAN TO PLAY TONIGHT

Election Returns Given At Concert

Paul Whiteman and his band will arrive in Wichita Falls Tuesday morning for their concert in the Memorial auditorium Tuesday evening, it was announced Monday by Shrine officials. The concert will be given under the auspices of Maskat temple of the Shrine.

Mr. Whiteman will raise his baton for the first number at 8:15 o'clock, the announcement said. Those who have not yet purchased their tickets are urged to get them before the day is too old to insure good seats.

Seats for school children at the school rate may be obtained up to curtain time.

Election returns will be received and given to the audience through the evening. A special leased wire from the Texas election bureau will bring the returns directly to the building.

Vernon, Burkburnett, Iowa Park, Electra and other towns in this district received attention in a new way Sunday when handbills telling of the concert floated down from the sky. They were distributed by L. P. Hammond's new Curtis monoplane.

The Whiteman organization will come here from Dallas and will go to Amarillo after their Wichita Falls concert. It was pointed out that they will play at $3.50 a seat in Dallas, $2 a seat here and $4 a seat in Amarillo. These are the top seat prices for each place, it was said, and indicate that Wichita Falls is seeing and hearing the same organization at half the price of other cities.

TEST IN WARD PROMISES PAY

Rank Wildcat Reported As Making Two Heads

Special to The Record News

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 5.—Shipley and others' No. 1 Hazlett in southeastern Ward county, heading high gravity oil from around 2480 feet in lime, pointed today to the likely opening of a new field some 35 miles west of the McCamey pool on the line of Upton and Crane counties and about the same distance south of Richardson and others' No. 1 O'Brien, new Winkler county producer over five miles south of the main Hendrick field.

At the same time, Kingwood Oil company's (formerly Charles Wesley West's) No. 1 Sugg estate in Irion county, five miles northwest of Mertzon, stood 1800 feet in fluid, of which 700 feet was oil of above 30 gravity. The well was carrying 1100 feet of salt water when oil was encountered in sandy lime at 3368 feet and drilling stopped at 3375 to set six-inch casing. The location is in the southeast corner of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 19, block 7, H. & T. C. Ry. Co. survey.

The Shipley wildcat was credited in some quarters with having made two heads each of 75 to 100 barrels of oil, within 36 hours, but this lacked confirmation, the operators having declined to give out information, it was said. The one head known to have been made was reported to have amounted to 30 to 75 barrels. Six-inch casing was being run and storage erected. The effort to learn the whereabouts of the Lubbock man was started at the request of his wife, who said he left his home in an automobile Sept. 29. A letter postmarked in Fort Worth, Oct. 2, in which Chancellor said he was well, was the last word received by the man's family.

Chancellor was employed by a Dallas extract wholesaler.

HATCHER GIVES HIS STATEMENT

Smith Entitled to Demo Support, He Says

DALLAS, Nov. 5. (AP)—State Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher today issued the following statement:

"Sunday's issue of a Dallas paper carried two statements from two prominent Texas politicians which I think should not go unchallenged. The Hon. Alvin Moody is quoted as saying in respect to Tuesday's election that 'Smith will lose North Carolina, Tennessee, Florida, Alabama and Texas.' On the front page of the same paper it is stated that Hon. Claude Pollard, attorney general of Texas, when asked about Smith's chances in Texas 'declined to comment on the presidential race and stated that he had no desire to comment now on that.'

"All of the above to me sounds funny, coming from men whom the Democrats of Texas have honored with public office. At any rate it moves me to repeat what I have heretofore said that Gov. Alfred E. Smith by every rule of fairness is entitled to the support of the Democrats of Texas and that in my opinion he will receive that support to the tune of from 150,000 to 200,000 majority over the Republican candidate, Mr. Hoover."

Politics Blamed For Man's Slaying

JESSUP, Ga., Nov. 5. (UP)—Political differences were blamed tonight for the shooting to death late Saturday of Judge James R. Thomas, of the Jessup city court, in the second killing over politics within a week in the south.

G. W. Maday, Wayne county deputy sheriff, is alleged to have been the second man in the fight in which Judge Thomas was fatally wounded.

Madray and Judge Thomas engaged in an argument over the presidential candidates when they met in the downtown section Saturday night. A fight ensued during which Madray was cut three times and Judge Thomas shot twice.

Chief of Police B. H. Farmer, of Sharpsburg, N. C., was shot to death last week by former Mayor T. W. Fitts, his brother-in-law, when Farmer was said to have tacked up an anti-Smith poster to which Fitts objected.

AMENDMENTS IRK TERRELL

Agricultural Head Scores Four Propositions

AUSTIN, Nov. 5. (AP)—All four of the proposed constitutional amendments to be submitted to voters in the general election Tuesday should be defeated, George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, said today in a statement, explaining his reasons for opposing their adoption.

The Confederate pension amendment is so worded as to be misleading and indicates that additional aid would be granted to Confederate soldiers, when, as a matter of fact, it would not grant any aid, he said. It would take away all the present safeguards for the protection of the pension fund and is evidently intended to liberalize the law to permit more persons to draw pensions. This necessarily reduces the amount old soldiers are now receiving, Terrell declared.

Favors Church Taxes

All churches and places of actual worship are now exempt from taxes and there is not any good reason why parsonages and other church property should not be subject to taxes, be argued. Parsonages and other church property not specifically exempted by law are nevertheless exempted in some counties and the proposed amendment merely seeks to take legal action which has been illegally taken in some places, Terrell added.

Ministers who occupy parsonages preach for a salary and they can pay taxes on the dwellings they occupy as well as other people pay taxes. "I shall favor no exemptions of taxes, unless the farms and homes of all people are exempt."

He said there are 16 counties of South Texas, with taxable values amounting to $312,569,788, now exempt from state taxes for the purpose of building seawalls, levees and other protective measures against storms, floods and overflows.

"Besides this, all state school lands and university lands are exempt from taxes and this makes the tax burdens fall heavily upon those whose property is not exempt," the commissioner continued.

The two so-called "education" amendments offer ntohing that would "improve our educational system," Terrell said.

"The first purposes that 'school officers, including boards of institutions of higher education shall serve for a term not exceeding six years,' but the provisions relating to governing boards of institution of higher education is already contained in the constitution and they have six year terms," he explained.

The other part of the provision, relating to governing boards for public schools, is "the negro in the woodpile," as the commissioner views it.

Seek Longer Term

"The language of the amendment does not convey any idea of what is intended to be done, except to make the term of officers six years," he said. "The legislature under this amendment could abolish all local school trustees and turn all school affairs of the county over to the county board of trustees appointed for a term of six years, and take the management of the public schools out of the hands of the people.

"Certain educational leaders have been trying to do this for a number of years and the natural inference to be drawn from the submission of this amendment is that they now seek to do under the guise of a constitutional amendment." The amendment abolishing the state board of education, composed of the governor, the comptroller and the secretary of state empowers the legislature to create a new board, which would probably be paid a salary and do no better than the present non-salaried board.

"If the amendment named the personnel of the board, I might have favored it, but nobody knows what the legislature might do."

Reparations Agent Leaves For Berlin

PARIS, Nov. 5. (UP)—Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations, left today for Berlin after four days of informal conferences here in connection with the calling of a committee of experts for definite reparations settlement. Negotiations will be suspended for several days until Premier Poincare's reply to the German suggestion that the committee be called is completed. The reply probably will form the keynote for the work of the committee.

Two Soldiers Awarded Medals For Heroism

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. (US)—The war department today announced the award to Col. George Williams, general staff, of a distinguished service medal, for extraordinary service during the world war. Lieut. Col. John H. Hemphill was similarily honored.

Col. Williams was in command of the 316th infantry and was commended for his handling of the regiment's operations during the early part of November, 1918.

Lieut. Col. Hemphill was decorated for his efficiency as signal officer of the 82nd division.

Poincare Prepares Reply to Germans

PARIS, Nov. 5. (UP)—Premier Raymond Poincare, working in his official capacity as minister of finance, spent today framing the French reply to Germany's recent suggestion that a committee of experts be called at once to set a definite total of war reparations.

Events of the last few days indicate that Poincare, will be the guiding mind at the second reparations conference just as he has been in all war debt and reparations affairs since French troops marched into the Rhine valley.

The reply which he was drafting today probably will be the keynote at the conference of experts, to which the French press predicts an American representative will be sent.

It is understood on good authorities that the reply is concerned strictly with the spirit of the resolution adopted at Geneva by representatives of the six powers involved. It points out that the first duty of the commission will be to attempt to fix a total for Germany's debts to the former allied powers.

ITALIANS FETE DAY OF VICTORY

Mussolini Addresses Big Throng of Veterans

ROME, Nov. 5. (UP)—Italy yesterday celebrated the tenth anniversary of her world war victory with an imposing and enthusiastic manifestation which brought 100,000 persons to join a parade, and a cheering throng to the palace balcony where the king and queen awaited. Also it brought Benito Mussolini a mighty and spontaneous pledge for the future.

Premier Mussolini, standing on a balcony at the Venice palace, looked down on the paraders and asked:

"Comrades, if necessary will you do tomorrow what you did 14 years ago?"

Before the answer came, the premier pointed to the statue of King Victor Emmanuel II and the tomb of the "unknown soldier" and continued:

"Before you answer, I ask you to think that both the king and the unknown soldier watch and hear you."

Veterans Shout

The premier turned again to the thousands of persons below, the war veterans who were carried or pushed in wheel chairs, the former soldiers who had returned safely, the 62,000 farmers who had journeyed to Rome for this occasion, and the answer was shouted as one man:

"Yes!"

There were 8,000 crippled war veterans in the parade, and 32,000 others who had served in the world war beside the 62,000 farmers.

The parade, divided into sections and led by banner carriers and colorful bands, marched from the Piazza del Popolo to Venice square through the city's main thoroughfare and amid the shouts of citizens lined deeply along the sidewalks.

At Venice square the paraders bowed for a minute before the "altar of the fatherland" where the body of the unknown soldier is buried.

Lauds Army

Then the premier addressed the crowd. Mussolini affirmed that the smashing of the Austrian front was due exclusively to the Italian army.

He said the war was particularly bloody on the Italian front as shown by the figures of 600,000 dead and 400,000 crippled and 1,000,000 wounded.

"Two million men shed blood to generate a new creature arising from their sacrifice—a new Italy," he declared.

Rain momentarily dampened the enthusiasm of the paraders but they braved the downpour to march through the city, and when they gathered before the altar in their multi-colored costumes, the premier praised them for their spirit against adverse weather.

Army Engineer Head Ordered to St. Louis

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5. (AP)—Maj. Paul S. Reinecke of the army engineers corps today was ordered from duty as assistant chief engineer of the federal power commission to report to the president of the Mississippi river commission at St. Louis for duty. The war department announced that Major Reinecke, who has been with the federal power commission since June, 1925, will report for duty at his new post Dec. 1 as executive officer.

Major Reinecke was district engineer of waterway projects at Buffalo, N. Y., for three years, and at Block Island, Ill.; Memphis, Tenn.; New Orleans, Panama Canal, Pittsburgh and Galveston, Texas.

Chinese Riot On Quarantined Boat

SHANGHAI, China, Nov. 5 (UP)—Chinese passengers on the British steamer Kungwo, quarantined at Woosung for cholera, rioted today. Captain W. Gibb was shot and seriously wounded and the ships doctor and two other officers also were wounded.

Scores of frightened Chinese were reported to have drowned when they jumped overboard.

The British cruiser Kent sent two launches with marines to the scene. Later the British cruiser Cornwall stood by.

The Kingwo arrived at Woosung today from Hankow. It was ordered quarantined for five days because of a case of cholera aboard. The Kungwo is listed in Lloyds shipping register as a modern steel steamer of 4,460 tons, owned by the Indo-China Steam Navigation company, Ltd. Her home port is Hong Kong.

CHINA FEARS WINTER

SHANGHAI, Nov. 5. (UP)—Danger of a severe food shortage during the winter months was rising here today when it was announced that the rice crop had been reduced to about 10,000,000 tons due to widespread drought. Reports from all parts of China indicated that there would be much suffering if not actual danger of a famine.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the bodys urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot cent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Nature Thought of Everything

Nature thought of everything when the human body was made. When the body is about to become ill, nature planned danger signals to warn us. Thus, if our children grind their teeth when they sleep, or lack appetite, or suffer from abdominal pains, or itch about the nose and fingers, we should know that they may have contracted worms. Then, if we are wise, we buy a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and safely and surely expel the worms. Thus we avoid the danger of very serious trouble. White's Cream Vermifuge costs only 35c a bottle, and can be bought from Miller Drug Store.

Then the Doctor recommended this

One woman, who had long suffered from a severe case of eczema, writes: "For many months I was constantly bothered. I tried four or five different remedies without success. Then my doctor recommended Resinol. Almost instantly the discomfort stopped." Try Resinol yourself. The Ointment at night! Wash off with Resinol Soap in the morning! Resinol Soap, too, for general toilet use. Also as a shampoo. At all druggists.
