ON THE GROUND—Earl Davis, local disc jockey who had been sitting 60 feet above the ground for over 100 hours as the MOD well was drilled to a depth of 2,030 feet at $1 per foot, is shown as he at last reached the ground last night at 7:30. He attended the oil banquet which began after his descent in the Palm Room of the City Hall. Proceeds of this event also went to the March of Dimes (News Photo)

MOD Drilling Well Brings In Gusher

The Top o' Texas MOD No. 58 has been completed! Driller Earl Davis, who has been located in a crow's nest 60 feet above the ground on a Cabot Shops Inc. oil rig, finally got back to earth last night at 7:30. Davis had been in the cabin some 100 hours, most of which wer espent pleading with passersby, and listeners on the radio to contribute money to the March of Dimes well, which was being drilled at $1 per foot to a depth of 2,000 feet.

Today Is Pampa MOD 'Coffee Day'

Today has been named "Coffee Day" in Pampa in order to raise more money for the March of Dimes.

Some 17 drug stores and restaurants have agreed to donate the money that comes in for coffee during business hours today to the MOD.

Coffee drinkers will be donating money today to the MOD when they drink coffee at the following establishments: B & B Pharmacy, Hi-Land Pharmacy, Malone's Pharmacy, Colonel Inn, Patrick's School Supply Store, Super Dog Stand, Whiteway Cafe, Redwood Drive-Inn, Poole's Steak House, Lee's Cafe, Johnsons', Hi-Land Drive Inn, Court House Cafe, Coney Island, Caldwell's Drive In, Charco-Burger, and Miller-Hood Pharmacy.

This event, according to Lucien Young, MOD special events chairman, is to further the total amount of cash contributions in the MOD fund for 1958.

Davis' request program which was held on schedule each evening over KPAT played only requests which were accompanied by money.

Davis has extended his thanks to all persons who sent in donations by mail and by direct contribution to the barrel located at the bottom of the derrick.

Driller Davis descended from his precarious site in time for the oil banquet held in the Palm Room of the City Hall last night. The banquet was declared a success and an official welcome given to Davis as he entered the door for his first meal "on the ground" since Sunday afternoon.

Entertainment for the event was furnished by students of Jeanne Willingham's Beaux Arts Dance Studio including "Show Time" by Toni Epps, Jane Wells, Patsy Lambright, Judy Robinson, Pauls Sealy and Maxine Stephenson; "Side by Side" by Phyliss Parker and Sara Gordon; "Sweet Old Fashion Girl" by Susie Fillman; "Its D'Lovely," by Toni Epps, Jane Wells, Patsy Lambright, Judy Robinson, Paula Paula Sealy and Mazine Stephen-Speech students of Miss Helen Schafer, teacher in Pampa High School, Carroll Miller and Charlotte Riley, gave readings. Claude Matheny provided piano music throughout the evening.

Thanks were extended by the Gray County MOD officials to Earl Davis, local disc jockey who spent over four days suspended in air in a tiny cabin in order to act as driller on a well whose expenses were to be donated to the March of Dimes, and to those who paid for the drilling.

Senate In Probe Of Maloney

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Rackets Committee dug into the history of a violence-stained Chicago union today for more data on William E. Maloney, president of the Operating Engineers Union.

Turning back the clock to the Capone era, the committee scheduled testimony on terrorism and violence as early as the unsolved 1933 slaying of Denis B. Ziegler, an early leader in the fight against the long trusteeship of Engineers Local 150 in Chicago.

Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy said the committee wants information on "some of the violence that existed" in the Chicago local during the 29-year trusteeship which paralleled "William E. Maloney's rise to power in the Operating Engineers."

Kennedy said Maloney, the local's trustee before assuming the international presidency, has long dominated its activities. He said another Chicago local of the union, No. 399, also would figure in today's testimony.

Also scheduled, said Kennedy, is more testimony on reported "favored treatment" given by Local 150 to the big construction firm of S.A. Healy, the Chicago businessman who Thursday refused—for a second time—to give testimony. He claimed the protection of the Fifth Amendment.

In the absence of Maloney, who has reported himself ill, the committee Thursday used its own investigators as witnesses to $388,578.13 of $742,228.20 in receipts charges Maloney reported only from union sources on his 1950-56 income taxes.

The testimony indicated the unreported sums were mostly expenses paid him by the international union and Local 150 to finance European travels, club memberships, racetrack activities and other forms of good living.

25-YEAR SAFETY AWARDS—O. M. 'Mick' Prigmore, left, and T. C. 'Dick' Carter, right, were presented safety awards at a banquet last night for completing 25 years with Cabot without a lost time accident. Dudly Steele also received a 25-year Safety award but was unable to attend the banquet held at the Country Club. (News Photo)

Russia Is Preparing New Satellite

WASHINGTON (UP) — Russia today was reported preparing to launch a third earth satellite — possibly weighing a ton.

The reports of a pending Sputnik III launching have been received here and in other world capitals for several days.

Informed sources said the reports have it that Sputnik III would be "a little larger" than Russia's second dog-carrying satellite which weighed about a half ton. One source said the new Red satellite might weigh as much as a ton, 2,000 pounds.

These officials said they would not be surprised if the reports were true in light of past indications that Russia could launch satellites at a rate of about one a month.

But they also did not rule out the possibility that Russia started the reports circulating in hopes of throwing the free world off stride and increasing Western anxiety over Russia's space triumphs.

Sputnik III is long overdue according to the one-a-month timetable. Russia's second satellite, its passenger long-since dead, has been circling the earth since Nov. 3. Sputnik I launched the space age Oct. 4 and burned out Jan. 4.

Cabot Safety Awards Given To 64 Men, More Tonight

Safety awards were presented to 64 Cabot employees last night by Hugh Burdette, general manager of Cabot's Southwestern Division, at a banquet held at the Pampa Country Club.

The awards were in recognition of completing multiples of five years of service with Cabot without a lost-time accident. Three employees received 25-year Safety Awards, eight received 20 - year awards, 11 received 15 - year awards, 15 received 10 - year awards and 32 received five year awards.

The awards were presented to those men that completed the requirements during 1957 from the following departments, Pampa; office, Cabot Shops, Pampa plant and Gas Department. A similar banquet will be held at the Country Club tonight for employees of the Schafer plant, Oil Department, Research and Development, Cabot Engineering and Construction and the Special Crew.

Those receiving 25-year awards were: O. M. Prigmore, T. C. Carter and N. Dudley Steele. Awards for 20 years without a lost - time accident were presented to Wayland B. Woody, Arbra L. Patton, Horace E. Joyce, Wallace D. Anderson, Edwin R. Southard, William H. Lister, G. M. Martin and Melton O. Burns.

Employees receiving awards for 15 years were: Jack D. Oliver, Richard E. Mitchell, Coy V. Hudson, James W. Harrison, Willard B. Franklin, Emmett F. Collins, Banks L. Cole, H. M. Phillips, D. W. Swain, E. J. O'Brient and Jes W. Henderson.

The banquet was attended by approximately 110 Cabot employees and guests.

Lions Honor Farmers, Ranchers

Approximately 70 Gray County farmers and ranchers were guests of the Pampa Lions Club at its noon luncheon meeting yesterday.

The meeting was the "Annual Farmers and Ranchers Day" program sponsored by the Agricultural Committee of the club.

The speaker of the program was Jay Taylor, Amarillo oilman and cattle raiser, active in civic work and well known for his work on the national level in promoting the beef industry.

He spoke on the "Importance of the Beef Industry." He stated that the use of beef in this country is increasing and that all of the efforts of the cattle raisers is being accomplished without government help.

Taylor stressed the fact that the beef industry does not want any part of government price supports.

Explosions Above Atmosphere To Begin

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said today new tests in the Pacific this year will advance nuclear defenses against enemy intercontental ballistic missiles.

Earlier this week, on Tuesday, Maj. Gen. John P. Daly of the Army's special weapons branch told Congress Nike-Zeus antimissile missile bases could be established by 1962.

Meanwhile, the Air Force has said it will test nuclear explosions in space above the atmosphere to determine their effectiveness against enemy space missiles. Presumably such tests would mean detonation of missile-borne warheads high above the Eniwetok-Bikini proving grounds in the Pacific.

Advance Defense Weapons

In its 23rd semiannual report to Congress, the commission said that Pacific tests starting in April "will advance the development of weapons for defense against aggression weather airborne, missile-borne, or otherwise mounted."

The AEC also:

—Announced a program to develop peaceful uses of atomic explosions, including "excavation." The commission believes nuclear blasts deep underground may be used to level mountain ridges and store energy. An underground shot in Nevada last year is believed to have sealed perhaps as much as 60 per cent of its energy in a form which can be tapped. The AEC is now drilling down toward this pool of energy.

Progress Without Precedent

—Reported that in 1957 "some firms" dropped out of atomic industry, a fact which "may temporarily deter new firms from entering." But despite this "adjustment," progress "without precedent" has been made in the past three years toward economic nuclear power and establishment of an atomic energy industry. It said "no other major scientific discovery has ever before been applied so quickly to so many practical uses."

—Said that paralleling growth of the U.S. industry "has been the expansion throughout the free world of organized effort to put atomic science, atomic tools, and atomic technology to work for human betterment."

Radioactive Treatments

—Disclosed that more than one million ailing Americans are being treated every year with radioactvematerials produced as a byproduct of the atomic project.

—Claimed that the United States in 1957 "continued to be the world's leading" producer of uranium, the atomic raw material.

—Reported that production of nuclear explosives and nuclear weapons of all kinds "equaled or exceeded" the goals set for 1957.

CoC Group Seeks Airline

The aviation committee of the Chamber of Commerce met this morning in the conference room of the Chamber offices at 10 with chairman, Buzz Hoover presiding. Ten members attended.

The committee voted to file application with Civil Aeronautics Board for airline service from Pampa to downstate areas of Dallas and Fort Worth, without specific recommendations as to which airlines would be in service.

The committee also voted to ask Borger to join with Pampa in the application. The committee is making a study of the posibilities of setting up a travel information office in Pampa whereby specific information can be made as to airline schedules and securing confirmation on obtaining tickets.

Winds Delay Launching Of Satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP) — High altitude winds which would block any attempts to launch the Army's satellite missile may continue over Cape Canaveral for days, forecasters said today.

A powerful jet stream carrying blasts up to 200 miles an hour swept directly over the cape, where the big Jupiter C missile was believed almost ready for the nation's second attempt to fling a satellite into space to match Russia's Sputnik II.

Other missiles, including an intercontinental Atlas and an Air Force intermediate range Thor, also stood in their towers at the cape, but whether the jet stream winds would affect any plans to launch them was unknown.

The Jupiter C became the nation's first hope of getting a satellite into orbit around the earth when the Navy Vanguard satellite carrier was grounded with mechanical difficulties which also resulted from bad weather during several attempts to launch the slender rocket last week.

Formal Opening Of Optimist Boys Club Set For Sunday

A formal opening of the Optimist Boys Club will be held Sunday afternoon in the newly-constructed building from 2 to 5 p.m. The boys building is located at the intersection of Barnes and Craven.

The opening will mark the end of three active years by the Optimist Club in the development of the project.

Beginning in January, 1955, a contract was signed for the 10 acres of land on which the building stands. During the following two years the Optimist Club raised the $8,000 needed for the property.

In August, 1957, the land was cleared for the erection of the building and actual contruction was underway in September.

Club members selected Newt Secrest to be in charge of the construction and Herman Jeeter to serve as his assistant. All the Optimist Club members contributed their time to the project.

Aiding in the rapid completion of the building were the many donations by Pampa businesses, both in materials and labor. All the materials used in the building were purchased either at cost or were given free, and all the labor, including plumbing, brick laying and electrical work, was donated by men of Pampa and surrounding areas.

The building itself was erected at the cost of $20,000, which in addition to the land represents a $28,000 project by the Optimists to the youth of Pampa.

Aiding in the financial stability has been the "800 Club", which is composed of persons who pledged to give one dollar each month to the construction fund. The Optimist Club undertook a note amounting to $10,000 in order to hasten the completion of the building. Any persons who wish may still join the "800 Club" by signing up with any Optimist member.

The building was conceived and developed by the Optimist Club for the sole purpose of furnishing a well-sponsored place for Pampa boys to participate in all types of sports. The building itself will house and faciliate the indoor sports and will also have a reading room, equipped with books and television.

Surrounding the building are three baseball diamonds for the boy's summer leagues.

All Pampans are invited to attend the open house to view the completed project of the Optimist Club.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

Thomas Blanton Bawcon, 1906 Martin Road, Amarillo, pleaded guilty to charges of driving while intoxicated today in Gray County Court. Bawcon was arrested in the 500 block of S. Ballard following observation by local police officers, at 12:25 a.m. today.

The Court set the fine at $125 and costs and sentenced Bawcon to three days in jail.

License Tags On Sale Tomorrow

License plates for motor vehicles for 1958 will go on sale tomorrow in the Tax Assessor's office in the Court House.

The new plates, black background with white numerals, will be on a higher rate this year with a 10 per cent increase present.

The plates, numbered from AU 1200 to AU 9999 and AV 10 to AV 5199 total 13,990 for Gray County this year, a larger amount than has ever been recorded.

Persons are asked by Jack Back, tax assessor, to purchase their license plates as soon as possible in order to avoid a last minute rush.

Bicycle Stolen From Store Here

A report on the theft of a bicycle was received by the police department yesterday afternoon.

The bicycle, black and white with 26 inch wheels, was taken from in front of the Davis Trading Post, 614 S. Cuyler, some time between 1 and 4:55 yesterday afternoon, according to Jim Conner, chief of police.

The chief asked that local residents notify the police department if they have seen the bicycle.

If it comes from a Hardware Store, we have it. Lewis Hardware.

Burglary Reported Here Last Night

Ruby Jean Auldridge, 525 Maple, reported to the police department last night at 10:52 that someone had broken into her house. Investigating officers reported that the back door of her residence had been pried loose.

Nothing was reported taken from the house, according to Jim Conner, chief of police.

Planning Group Has First Meeting

The first meeting of the City Planning Commission was held last night in the City Commission Room in City Hall.

The newly appointed planning group met with members of the City Commission for the formation meeting. The City Commission and other city officials explained the purpose of the Planning Commission and told of work accomplished to date.

The new group was also given several city problems that must be worked out in the near future.

No Changes Expected In Bill

Missile Budget Increase To Be OK'd

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee was expected to approve today a $1,260,000,000 supplemental money bill to hasten defense efforts against the Soviet missile threat.

The committee was believed ready to okay the House-approved measure without making any changes as to funds.

But Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) called for a limit on the powers of Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy in outer space research. He referred to a 10 million dollar item for setting up an "advanced research project agency" directly under McElroy in charge of research and development work on "satellites and other outer space projects.

Stennis said the Defense Department should be limited to military projects in outer space until Congress decides whether overall authority in the field should be given to a civilian agency.

A special House investigating subcommittee was expected to name today at least five Federal Communications Commissioners who have been charged with "personal misconduct." A secret subcommittee staff report has accused some FCC commissioners—whom it did not name—of accepting color television sets and other favors from broadcasters.

Congressional observers said President Eisenhower has no chance of getting a five-year extension of the reciprocal trade program. Key legislators said he'll do well to get a three-year renewal, even though the President said Thursday the longer extension was a "must" if he is to overcome the stepped-up Soviet trade offensive.

Major developments in Congress Thursday:

Education — Senate Republican William Knowland bucked President Eisenhower's plan to cut back federal aid to schools near government installations. Knowland said the $80,500,000 was needed to relieve a "burden" imposed on the communities schooling extra children.

Autos — General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice told Congress the "greatest single step" it could take toward ending the business slump would be an across-the-board tax cut.

US Kept Baghdad Pact From Failure

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
United Press Staff Correspondent

ANKARA, Turkey (UP) — The United States saved the Baghdad Pact conference from abject failure.

But the "northern tier" alliance is still a weak fledgling which could be pulled apart by the conflicting interests and fears of its members—Turkey, Iran, Pakistan, Iraq and Britain.

As a collective security organization, the pact still has a long way to go. It is beset by problems which often threaten to obscure its basic purpose—defense against the Soviet Union.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, now en route home, was satisfied, however, that the four-day meeting which ended Thursday turned out better than he expected. Two key speeches by Dulles made the difference.

The Moslem members reflected the changed atmosphere in their closing speeches.

Dulles Turning Point

When the premiers and foreign ministers met Monday in the still unfinished Turkish grand assembly building there was a definite feeling that Dulles was bringing only himself to the conference, and that was not enough.

In addition to their own individual troubles, the pact members tended to feel they were not getting either moral support or the money they needed from the United States to meet the Soviet penetration of the Middle East with its program of threats and economic aid.

The turning point came Wednesday, the day before the conference ended.

On the opening day, Dulles already had reaffirmed that U.S. "mobile power" would be used under the Eisenhower Doctrine to back the pact members against any Communist aggression.

On Wednesday he surprised the Moslem members by offering another 10 million dollars for a project to improve wire communications between the Middle East capitals.

He held out the prospect of loans for other regional development projects for pact members from the American loan fund for economic development. The psychological impact of the promise went beyond the actual amount promised.

Military Plans Approved

Equally important, Dulles answered the claims of Soviet "aid" with a detailed analysis of how much and how little it actually was compared with aid from the

Bidding Farewell To Broadway Lights, Irish Colleen Becomes Banking Queen

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Nell O'Connell was worried. And the worry put shadows in her lively Irish eyes.

Usually her worries are monetary. Not that she is broke, but because Nell O'Connell is a Dallas bank executive.

But a visit to New York recalled the nostalgia of her trouping days when she was the "Irish Colleen." In the days of Cohan, John McCormack and Mme. Schumann-Heink, Nell toured the Orpheum circuit with an Irish harp and sweet singing voice.

She even refused the lead in "Little Nelly Kelly" because she was going to be a "great concert singer, thank you."

Somewhere among her music studies, begun when she was six, Miss O'Connell sandwiched three months of business school classes. This was to fill jobs to further a music career.

For her the days of her own radio show in New York, her tours and guest spots with such stars as Jack Benny, the late Fred Allen,

Nell O'Connell

Fibber McGee and Molly and Burns and Allen were brightspots for a memory album. But she is happy she unpacked her bags in Dallas when she did.

When the Hillcrest State Bank opened its door across the street from the Southern Methodist University campus, Nell O'Connel was put in charge of the vault.

"I was offered the job because I knew so many people in my hometown of Dallas," she explains. "I guess I unpacked my bags to stay then."

Now a vice president of Hillcrest, the first drive-in bank in this country, she explains, "My careers actually have been one."

'People often go to a show to forget their problems, and they come to a bank to solve them."

But Miss O'Connell hasn't played her job by ear. As with her music, she studied. Only this time it took 10 years of American Institute of Banking night courses.

"The courses gave me confidence in my work and helped win promotions. It is easier for women to get ahead today in banking than when I first started and much of it is because of such courses," she says.

"A woman needs initative, persistence and a pleasing personality, the know-how and a will to go forward in banking," she continues.

"There was, perhaps, one woman in banking in 1898. Now there are 340,000. The ratio of officers is about one woman for every six men. Of course, many women in banks do the equivalent work of men in executive positions but don't have a title. However, the Association of Bank Women, an organization of bank executives, recognizes this now and makes them eligible for membership," she points out.

"Many older women have never written checks. They know nothing of their husband's business and are embarrassed to admit to a man that they don't know," she explains.

Once outside the bank the Irish Colleen keeps plucking away at her harp, when she doesn't have a broken arm.

And last year she had two. She broke her left wrist ("I think I fell over my rose beds") in May and by Christmas, played two concerts.

In her years of retirement from the concert stage, Nell O'Connell has played for 500 weddings in Dallas and numerous club meetings and still pays her union dues.

It isn't to break with years of pleasing an audience or break off old ties of the theater circuit days, she finds.

"I hate to turn down an old friend who asks for a loan," she admits.

Mrs. Harris Feted At Lullaby Shower

(Special to The News)

LEFORS — Mrs. Wayne Harris was guest of honor at an infant shower held recently in Civic Center.

Mrs. E. A. Bryant registered guests in a book made of pink and blue batiste and lace. The registrar's table was covered with white linen centered with a miniature arrangement of sweet peas in a baby bottle vase.

Pink and white were carried out in the color appointments of the serving table.

The honoree was presented with a corsage of a baby telephone and rabbit rattles arranged with pink net and blue satin ribbons by the hostesses. She was assisted in opening and registering gifts by her mother, Mrs. L. M. McCathern and sister, Mrs. M. E. Bigham.

Hostesses were Mmes. W. G. Hughes, G. O. Carruth, T. O. Jinks, Orville Henry, Roy Nobles, Daniel Rose, John Roberts, E. A. Bryant, Lonnie Ables, Alton Flinchem, R. C. Ogden, Ralph Carruth, Kenneth Brown, John Welton, J. B. Horn, and J. W. Parnell.

Coffee and cake, decorated with pink fluting and centered with a baby's picture, were served buffet style.

Guests were Mmes. Cora Derring, Annie Fenno, E. G. Fenno, Duain Darrow, Charlie Tutor, Charles Roberts, Dale Brumley, L. C. Ford, John Nelson and Janet, Kenneth Brown and Brenda, Mary Johnston, A. M. Miller, Carl Wall, L. M. McCathern, Myrtle Whitely, M. E. Bigham, and Stevie, Billy and Belinda; Rufus McCathern, M. V. Ivy, F. M. McCathern, D. T. Pfeil, Bob Beaty and Mark.

Approximately 75 persons called or sent gifts.

If you have to choose between having your house look spotless or being rested and relaxed enough to enjoy your guests, choose the latter.

A house in apple - pie order never made up for a tired, bedraggled hostess without enough enthusiasm to spark her own party.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Since Fred entered the second grade this fall, he's had less and less time for his younger brother.

Yesterday he brought home two friends to see his airplane hangar. Bobby overheard their passionate arguing over flight schedules from the room where he was supposed to be taking his nap.

Excited by hope of sharing the fun, he scrambled out of bed, grabbed his new fuel truck from its shelf and ran to Fred's room. There he offered it to one of the guests, saying eagerly, "See, it's got a real hose! Wanna see it work? I can show you . . ."

"Beat it," Fred said. Then the friend pushed away the fuel truck, adding, "Yes, beat it. Don't you know when you're not wanted?"

Downstairs Bobby tried to play with the truck alone. But he hadn't the heart for it.

Overcome by his sense of sadness, he went out to his mother and said he didn't feel well. When she took him on her lap, he began to cry and the story of the hurt came out.

She showed no surprise. Holding him close she said, "Some people don't want me. Some don't want Daddy. But I want you and you want me. That's so good I think we ought to celebrate and have a glass of chocolate milk together."

In a recent issue of the American Journal of Psychoanalysis, Dr. Antonia Wenkart writes about this kind of comfort.

She says, "There is a type of compassion that is weakening because its main ingredient is pity. It sets the sufferer apart, sends him alone into the vale of tears. But the type of compassion we are concerned with goes through the pain with a fellow human, not fearing our own vulnerability. It accepts the sufferer without the sense that what we hear from him is odd."

We cannot truly comfort a child's hurts unless we have fully experienced our own.

We have many ways to avoid fully feeling them. We can pretend we didn't mind them. We can hate the fellow who dealt them. We can diffuse the hurt into a vague, perpetual feeling of discontent.

Because we have not come through and out of our own vale of tears, we can't encourage Bobby to feel he will emerge from his. We can give him only pity's shock and anger that reflects our pity for ourselves.

Are your youngsters planning a Valentine's Day party?

Here is a suggestion, designed by Martha Blair, director of the Pfaff Sewing Institute that you can help them make easily and inexpensively as favors for their little girl friends and can be used later as purses.

To make the purses, trace heart shapes from a book or magazine, or fold a piece of newspaper in half and cut a semi-heart shape on the fold. Open the paper and both sides of your heart will be even.

Sew three fourths of the way up both sides of the heart and attach a thin felt strip at the top of each heart. A broken pair of discarded beads, or sequins, can be used to decorate the purses for a added bit of glamour.

When the little misses have eaten the Valentine sweets from their heart-shaped favors, they can slip the handle over a wrist or a belt and use the favor as a purse.

One dozen four by five-inch favors can be made from a half yard of 36 inch wide felt.

Too, these Heart "felt" Valentine favors are a wonderful bad weather project for youngsters. Little or no help is needed from mother to sew them and their young guests will have a permanent Valentine party souvenir.

COOK'S NOOK

Pink Peppermint Tops Valentine Heart Cakes

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Markets Editor

Two hearts can taste as one on Valentine's Day. With pink frosting covering the two heart-shaped chocolate chip cakes, your tribute to romance is well served.

VALENTINE HEART CAKES WITH PINK PEPPERMINT FROSTING

Prepare cake according to package directions and bake in two heart-shaped layer pans, or two 9-inch layer pans which may be cut to heart-shaped layers. Cool layers. Frost and decorate with candied flowers of valentine candies, as desired.

Pink Peppermint Seven-Minute Frosting: Combine 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, dash of salt, ½ cup water, and 1 tablespoon light corn syrup in top of double boiler. Beat about 1 minute, or until thoroughly mixed. Then place over boiling water and beat constantly with sturdy egg beater or at highest speed of electric mixer 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in stiff peaks. Remove from boiling water. Then add 10 drops of peppermint extract and 3 - 4 drops red food coloring. Beat 1 minute, or until thick enough to spread. This makes 5 1-3 cups, or enough to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers. While frosting is still soft decorate with tiny rosebuds, valentine candy hearts or

CHOCOLATE CHIP CAKE

Prepare cake according to packaged directions. Pour batter into 13 x 9 x-2-inch pan, which has been greased and floured on bottom and sides. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) 35-40 minutes. Cool.

COCOA WHIPPED CREAM

(Makes 4 cups)

Two cups whipping cream, 4 tablespoons cocoa, 8 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Combine ingredients in small bowl. Chill 1 hour. Then beat until cream holds its shape. (Do not overbeat.)

TOMORROW'S DINNER: Lamb stew with vegetables, hot biscuits, mixed green salad, oil and lemon juice, chocolate chip cake with cocoa whipped cream, coffee, tea, milk.

The club will meet again next Monday night and extends a cordial invitation to bridge players to meet with them.

A short stint of deep breathing makes a relaxing break in a busy schedule. Stop what you are doing and take about 20 deep breaths. This is easy to do, even in an office, without creating a scene.

RUTH MILLETT

I didn't realize what an underprivileged dog our Sam is until I picked up a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post and read an article about a New York shop that caters to canines. This shop not only ofers but SELLS such "cute" items as custom-made nylon pajamas, mink coats, topcoats, raincoats and boots, bathrobes, smoking jackets, black lace collars, etc.

Poor old Sam has worn the same fur coat ever since he was born. It's not mink, either. It's plain black Labrador retriever.

But on him, it looks good. And though it is eight years old, it still fits fine. He wears it winter and summer, rain or shine, night and day, and he hasn't complained yet about not having a thing to wear.

Sam doesn't have a Louis XV bed, either, like one of the dogs mentioned in the Post article. For years he has slept on a cotton rug he carefully "makes" each night for himself by walking around it and pushing it up in humps to make it fit his body perfectly.

There's no ornament on Sam's collar but a couple of tags, one saying that he has a city license, the other that he has had his rabies shots.

He's never been taken to a dog beauty shop for a manicure, shampoo and "set." But it hasn't given him an inferiority complex, because he holds his head high and steps along with all the self-confidence in the world.

He's never had a baby sitter, either, like the dogs I read about in the article. When the family goes out, Sam just assumes he is supposed to guard the house, and the responsibility hasn't seemed to be too heavy for him.

Sam seems so happy, getting one good square meal a day and a treat of dog candy for fetching the morning and evening papers, that I'm mighty thankful, smart as he is, that he can't read.

I'd hate to have him know about those New York dogs who wear mink and nylon and lace. It might give him an awful inferiority complex.

Finding your skin tone helps in buying lipstick and rouge that flatters you the most. For a pink skin tone, blue-red is best. Orange-red is the color for yellow skin tone and true red for the in-between and sallow skins. And always match your lipstick and rouge.

Lamar CWF Plans Church Visitation

The Lamar CWF met Monday evening in the church to begin the new missionary study of Japan.

Mrs. Josephine Blalock led the opening prayer.

During the brief business session led by Mrs. Jack Hood, it was decided that two groups would meet each Tuesday morning for visitation. One group would meet on the Tuesday morning for visitation. One group would meet on the North side of town and one on the South.

Mrs. N. L. Nicholl read the minutes of the last meeting. Mrs. Art. Kahler reported on the United Church Women's preparations for World Day of Prayer to be next month.

Mrs. David Mills presented the devotional and led the study of the book "The Cross and Crisis in Japan". She also displayed articles and plants from Japan.

The meeting was closed with the CWF benediction

Hostesses were Mrs. Jack Hood and Mrs. B. F. Smith. Others attending were Mmes. Ray Boswell, Jim Ballard, Casey Brown, Price Smith, and Richard Selrman.

Pool-Lancaster Vows Pledged In Church

(Special to The News)

MCLEAN — Mr. and Mrs. Harlon Pool announce the marriage of their daughter, Alma, to Donald Ray Lancaster, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lancaster of Muleshoe.

The vows were read on Jan. 10 in the Baptist church in Muleshoe by the Rev. Cane J. Merritt, pastor.

Mrs. Lancaster attended school in McLean where she was a junior. Mr. Lancaster attended school in Muleshoe.

The couple is making their home in Panhandle, where he is employed by Southwestern Public Service Company.

Project Of Government Is 'Lost'

UP15T DAM R811am 1-31

HARLINGEN, Tex. (UP) — Harlingen officials are looking for a mysterious "dam and conservation project" that only the federal government seems to know about.

The search for the project-that-isn't-there started when the Valley Morning Star received two telegrams from Sen. Ralph Yarborough (D-Tex.) regarding a "Harlingen dam and conservation project."

The newspaper had never heard of the project so checked with the chamber of commerce. They hadn't either. Neither had the Valley Chamber of Commerce, the Harlingen Irrigation District, the International Boundary and Water Commission, the Soil Conservation Service, nor the Arroyo Colorado Navigation District.

However, Yarborough assured the newspaper in the telegrams that the project will receive a hearing Feb. 7 before the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee.

Two Alarms Reported Here

Two fire alarms were received by the fire department yesterday afternoon.

The first of the alarms was received at 1:51 p.m. A clothes dryer at 812 W. Kingsmill became overheated and caught fire. Light damage to the dryer was reported by firemen answering the alarm.

At 6:13 p.m. the firemen made a run to 421 E. Frederic where a trash box was on fire. No damage was reported resulting from the fire.

United States and the free world. It showed plainly U.S. aid was far greater than Soviet aid and it satisfied the Moslem leaders.

The military part of the conference approved holding the pact's first combined staff exercises by its new combined military planning staff in the near future.

The planning staff is perhaps only a small step toward a joint command, needed for NATO-like solidarity. But permanent planning to coordinate the defense plans of the individual countries has just begun, and any joint staff is still a long way off.

Dulles underlined another weakness of the pact in his closing speech when he reiterated America's "commitment" to help the pact "if need be by military action."

Under the Eisenhower Doctrine the United States is more committed to help the pact countries if help is requested than the members are committed to help each defense."

Steel Heads Say Recession Ending

By CLYDE H. FANSWORTH
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The heads of the nation's two largest steel companies agree that the recession in their industry has run its course.

Neither Roger M. Blough, chairman of U.S. Steel Corp. nor Arthur B. Homer, president of Bethlehem Steel Corp. look for any pronounced upturn just yet.

But they say the decline has turned into a leveling off and that operations in some areas are starting to pick up gradually.

Both companies reported record sales and earnings in 1957 despite drops in the fourth quarter.

Business Improves

Blough, after reporting the financial results of the nation's largest steelmaker, told a news conference Tuesday U.S. Steel's January business has improved.

He said both his company and the industry in general are currently operating at 56 per cent of capacity and "my guess is that it (the operating rate) will stay in that vicinity in the first quarter." Thereafter, he said, "it is not unreasonable" to expect a steady upturn. "Things have a way of rounding out and gradually coming back. We are somewhere in that saucer shape."

After issuing the Bethlehem financial report Thursday Homer predicted his company will be operating at 65 per cent of capacity in March, against 60 per cent currently.

Murderer Claims It Was 'Hatred'

GERING, Neb. (UP)—Mass killer Charles Starkweather has admitted murdering 11 persons in two states because of a "hatred that built up in me," authorities said today.

"Since I was a child I wanted to be an outlaw, but I didn't want it to go this far," the 19-year - old Lincoln, Neb., sharpshooter told authorities.

Sheriff Merle Karnopp of Lincoln said Starkweather made the statements Thursday night during their trip by car from Douglas, Wyo., to Gering.

Earlier, Wyoming officials surrendered jurisdiction over Starkweather and his 14-year-old sweetheart, Caril Fugate, for prosecution in Nebraska.

Starkweather, a stocky, red-haired gunman, was captured Wednesday night in a bullet-punctuated police chase near Douglas shortly after he had killed his 11th victim, a traveling salesman.

Lincoln officials wasted no time extraditing Starkweather and Caril to Nebraska where Starkweather faces the death penalty on a murder charge. Caril also has been charged with murder, but claims she was Starkweather's terrified hostage on his murder spree.

"I want to go back to Nebraska because Wyoming has a gas chamber and I don't like the smell of gas," Starkweather was quoted as saying by the sheriff.

"I suppose they'll have the chair ready for me."

Karnopp said that besides admitting nine killings in the Lincoln area and one in Wyoming during his five-day murder rampage, Starkweather also confessed the slaying of a Lincoln service station attendant last Dec. 1.

Starkweather admitted he forced the attendant, Robert Colvert, 21, into his car the night of the slaying and drove out to a desolate country road where he blasted the victim in the head with a shotgun and robbed him of about $80, the sheriff said.

Apparently the murder preyed on his mind and he turned on Caril's family in a blind rage because they resented his going with their daughter.

Last Saturday, he began his mass murder rampage by kiling Caril's mother, Mrs. Velda M. Bartlett, 36, and her step father, Marion Bartlett, 57, with bullets in the head, and bludgeoned to death the Bartlett's daughter, Betty, 3, according to the sheriff.

Starkweather then held Caril hostage in the Bartlett home until Monday when Caril's grandmother became suspicious and notified police.

They fled to near Bennet, Neb., southwest of Lincoln, where Starkweather's car became stuck in the snow, and a teen-aged couple, Robert Jensen, 17, and Carol King, 16, both of Bennet, picked them up.

The youth told the sheriff he marched the two at gunpoint to a storm cellar in an abandoned school yard and ordered the boy into the cellar, killing Jensen when the boy tried to escape.

He then shot Miss King at the cellar entrance and threw her in, the sheriff said. Starkweather denied committing an unnatural sex act with Miss King, although pathologists said the girl had been the victim of a sexual attack.

The sheriff said Starkweather confessed he killed August Meyer, 70, a bachelor farmer of near Bennet, when Meyer came to the door later Monday night with a gun in his hand. Starkweather said he assumed Meyer had heard about him and was prepared to defend himself. Meyer was shot and killed as he stood in the doorway of his home.

The next night, Starkweather invaded the fashionable Lincoln home of C. Lauer Ward, 48, the sheriff said. Starkweather shot Ward, president of Capital Steel Works in Lincoln, and fatally stabbed Ward's wife, Sarah, 45, and their maid, Vivian Fencl, 51, the sheriff quoted the young slayer.

The 11th victim was Merle Collison, 37, Great Falls, Mont., who was shot to death in his car near Natural Bridge, Wyo., late Wednesday.

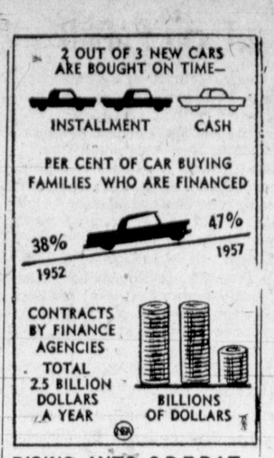

Starkweather and Caril have been charged by Lincoln authorities with one of the murders, that of Miss King.

Caril, who told authorities Starkweather planned to kill her "when we get to Washington," still was pale and shaken when she arrived at the Scotts Bluff County jail here.

Douglas, Wyo., Sheriff Earl Heflin, with whom Caril rode, said she sat silently during the trip Thursday night.

"She's still obviously in a state of shock," Heflin said. Caril was given sedatives and fell asleep promptly in the women's section of the jail.

RISING AUTO CREDIT—Within the past six years credit-financed sales of new automobiles have risen from 46 to 63 out of every 100 sold, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reports. Factors that increase installment buying are high birth rate, home ownership, suburban living and a growing list of consumer items that are now considered necessities by young families.

Matter of FACT

After the defeat of the South in the War Between the States, Confederate President Jefferson Davis was captured on May 10, 1865, near Irwinville, Ga. He was held prisoner, accused of treason, at Fort Monroe, Va., until May, 1867, when he was released. His last years were spent at Beauvoir, an estate on the Gulf of Mexico, near Biloxi, Miss. He died in New Orleans on Dec. 6, 1889.

Texas In For High Winds

By UNITED PRESS

Strong, gusty winds stirred up by a low pressure system moving eastward over the Southern Plains whipped up blowing dust in West Texas again today and forecasters said the dusty conditions would spread eastward along with a weak cold front.

Visbility dropped to three miles at Lubbock on the South Plains early today as the winds shifted to the west and northwest behind a low pressure trough.

This trough stretched from Sherman through Dallas and San Angelo to the Rio Grande at 8 a.m. and there was slightly cooler air behind it.

Skies were partly cloudy over the Panhandle, partly cloudy to cloudy in extreme Southeast Texas and fair elsewhere over the state.

The weather bureau said temperatures would be a bit cooler tonight, then start getting warmer again Saturday.

Overnight minimum readings ranged from 36 degrees at Dalhart to 65 at Brownsville. Presidio reported 39, Amarillo 41, Lubbock 44, San Antonio 47, El Paso, Midland and Wichita Falls 48, Austin and Waco 53, Dallas, Abilene and Fort Worth 54, Port Arthur 56, Lufkin and College Station 58, Victoria and Galveston 59 and Houston 61.

AUSTIN (UP)— Sam Kinch, veteran Capitol correspondent of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, was reported resting comfortably today following his hospitalization Wednesday after suffering a coronary attack. Kinch, a longtime political writer for the Star-Telegram, was under treatment at St. David's Hospital.

American housewives would need 484,517,833 hours to can the same amount of corn that the canning industry puts up annually.

ANKARA, Turkey — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, on the bombing of the U.S. Embassy here Sunday:

"This act of terrorism is typical of those who believe in and practice violence as a means to achieve their ends."

NEW YORK—Sir Percy Spender, retiring Australian ambassador to the United States, on anti-American sentiment abroad:

"It is a tragedy that the American people are so little understood in other parts of the world. Americans are basically a religious people. Americans are kindly, generous and friendly."

Bad Weather Creates Crisis For Florida 'Home Missions'

(Religious News)
By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press Staff Correspondent

Bad weather in south Florida has created a new crisis for one of the oldest and least - known "home missions" of American churches.

Alternate rains and freezes have severely damaged Florida's winter crop of fruits and vegetables. This is a hard blow to the growers. It is sheer catastrophe for 15,000 migratory farm workers and their families who are now stranded in the state, with no hope of finding work before spring plantings are ready for harvest about March 15.

Emergency help is being mobilized to relieve their desperate plight—at least to the extent of preventing actual starvation. State and county agencies, civic clubs, business firms and private individuals are cooperating. Some surplus food from federal stocks has been made available.

In the midst of this effort, armed with few resources besides a tremendous determination to help the migrants, is an interdenominational church organization called the Migrant Ministry.

The Migrant Ministry was founded in 1920 by church women of 21 Protestant denominations. It now operates in 31 states, under the aegis of the Home Missions Division of the National Council of Churches.

Lives Spent In Poverty

Its mission is to minister to the material, educational and spiritual needs of about 1,500,000 men, women and children who "follow the crops." These migrant laborers have been called "the forgottenest of America's forgotten families." Their lives are spent in almost incredible poverty and squalor.

During the cold months, they congregate in southern tier states like Florida, Arizona and Texas, where there are winter crops to be harvested. In spring they move north in three streams of battered vehicles — one heading up the East Coast into New Jersey and New York; another through the Midwest to the Canadian border; and a third up the West Coast through California.

They live in whatever shelter they can find, sheds, barns, tarpaper shacks, occasionally the comparative luxury of a migrant barracks. They travel in worn out cars, or herd together like cattle in "crew trucks."

Deprived Of Services

Because they cannot comply with residence requirements for public aid, migrants are often deprived of medical care and welfare services. Their illness and death rates are much higher than the average population. Sixty per cent of them are illiterate. The average family income, in a good year, with everyone including the children working in the fields is about $1,000.

The Migrant Ministry tries to help them in several ways. It organizes public and private aid for them when they are destitute — as they are in Florida now. It conducts literacy classes to teach adults and older children how to read road markers and sign their names. It operates child care centers where very young children can be left while their mothers are in the fields (instead of being left in boxes between the rows, or locked in overheated cars in the broiling sun.)

It also provides worship services, conducted from altars mounted on the tailgates of stationwagons. The ministry now has 30 of these roving station wagons, called "harvesters," each manned by a specially - trained chaplain who is the modern version of the circuit-riding preacher of pioneer days.

Miss Edith Lowry, national director, estimated that the Migrant Ministry is currently reaching about 10 per cent of the total migratory labor population.

Special Music At Bible Baptist Church

Special music for the Sunday morning services at the Bible Baptist Church, 320 E. Tyng, will be sung by the Adult Choir and soloist, Jack Davis. The choir will present two numbers, "Wonderful Story of Love," and "Tis Wonderful to Me." The solo by Davis will be "He Knows the Way".

The message Sunday morning which will be presented by Rev. H. M. Hutchinson, pastor, will be titled; "The Secret of Living for God."

"A Royal Message" will be the sermon topic for the message Sunday night, with Rev. Hutchinson again bringing the service. This service will be broadcast over radio station KPAT beginning at 7.45 p.m. Special music will be a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Tony Timmons, "Beyond the Sunset," and music by the choir will be "Lead On, Lead On."

Whitten Begins Fourth Year At First Baptist

Joe Whitten, minister of music and youth director of the First Baptist Church, begins his fourth year of service with the congregation Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitten, and their son David, came to the First Baptist Church in 1955 from the Calvary Baptist Church of Lubbock. During his time with the church here there have been five choirs organized for various age groups: one for Beginner age; two for the Primary age; one for the Junior age children; and one for the teen-agers.

Each year since his coming, the adult choir has presented the "Messiah" during the Christmas season and has had a Spring recital following a week of study under the leadership of a guest director.

Whitten has been in constant demand as a soloist for many functions and services outside of the church. He has also served as youth director and has led the young people in the organization of a Youth Council which sponsors special activities for the youth of the church.

FORT WORTH (UP)—A bandit walked into a liquor store Wednesday and told Mrs. Vera Fowler, 41, he had a gun in his pocket and demanded money. Mrs. Fowler gave him a lecture on how crime doesn't pay, and she said the bandit started crying and left empty handed.

First Baptist To Hear Dr. Carver

Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will bring the message during the morning worship service at 11 next Sunday. Rev. Eugene Brand of the First Baptist Church in Skellytown, will bring the message during the evening worship service at 7:30 p.m.

The Training Union will have an opening assembly in the auditorium at 6:30 p.m. This program will be under the direction of Lonnie S. Richardson, Training Union director.

Activities during the week include a Brotherhood meeting Tuesday night at 6:30. The emphasis will be upon the Royal Ambassadors, a mission organization for boys. Dr. Ivaloy Bishop, former Southwide Secretary for Royal Ambassadors, and now assistant professor of Religious Education at Wayland College will be the guest speaker. All men are asked to bring boys between the ages of 9 and 16. The meeting will begin with a supper.

The W. M. U. will meet Wednesday, Feb. 5, with an Executive Meeting at 1:30 a.m., a program at 11 a.m. and a luncheon at 12 noon. J. R. Stroble will conclude the study of the book of Hosea at at 7:45 p.m. The graded choirs will meet Thursday at 3:45 p.m.

Christian Science Sunday Service

Divine Love's inexhaustible power and abundance will be brought out Sunday at Christian Science services.

Matthew's acount (ch. 8) of the healing by Christ Jesus of the centurion's servant will be included in the Bible passages to be read in the Lesson-Sermon on "Love."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will be read the following (494:10): "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to imagine that Jesus demonstrated the divine power to heal only for a select number or for a limited period of time, since to all mankind and in every hour, divine Love supplies all good."

The Golden Text is from I John (4:7): "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God."

Hobart Baptist Women's Society Discusses Book

The Hobart Street Baptist Women's Missionary Society met in the church for a Mission Study meeting and luncheon to complete the book, "Continent In Commotion."

Guests were greeted at the door by an "African Witch Doctor", and escorted to their seats. Mrs. John Dyer opened the meeting with a short devotional. Mrs. Delmer Barefoot conducted a review of past chapters of the book, "Continent In Commotion", with the aid of a flip board chart.

Mrs. Roger Hedrick and Mrs. Warren Jackson were characters in a sketch of the lives of Mary Moffatt and Mary Livingstone, drawn from the book, "Dauntless Women". Refreshments of coffee and chocolate cookies were served, with the ladies being reminded that 60 per cent of the world's cocoa supply comes from Nigeria.

Rev. John Dyer showed a film strip, "Sharing the Word In West Africa", along with an interesting commentary. Mrs. John Dyer completed the study of the book, "Continent In Commotion", with the last chapter, "Our Elephant". Mrs. A. V. Hale led a prayer for our missionaries and asked a blessing.

REFUGEE PROBLEM SOLVED

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP)—Yugoslavia reported today it had solved the problem of nearly 20,000 Hungarian refugees in little more than a year. Belgium and Switzerland Monday issued the final entrance visas to the last group of Hungarians who wanted to emigrate to Western Europe. A total of 19,781 Hungarians poured south into Yugoslavia from their revolution-torn homeland in October 1956. Since then, 2,773 have returned home, 634 have been integrated into the Yugoslav economy, and 16,374 were resettled in 27 European and overseas countries.

STUDENT VISITS PROPOSED

LONDON (UP)— A government spokesman said today the Soviet relations committee of the British Council has invited 300 Russian students to visit Britain for short periods. Ian Harvey, joint foreign undersecretary, said the committee also had offered annual exchanges of 20 students in the Russian and English languages as well as two British scholarships for teachers on a reciprocal basis. The Soviet government is considering the proposal, he said.

TROOP PULL-OUT BEGINS

MANILA (UP) — U.S. Ambassador to the Philippines Charles E. Bohlen said today American military forces expect to complete an intensified pull-out from Manila by next July 31. In a note delivered to the foreign office, Bohlen said stepped-up evacuation of the Manila Air Station by U.S. military forces will begin this week. He said this was made possible by the conclusion of arrangements for a commercial concern to handle U.S. military cargo through the port of Manila.

RED MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

ROME (UP) — Italy's Communists, trying to regain the membership lost during their worst postwar crisis, threw the party's doors open to any repentant rebels today. Number two man in the party, Luigi Longo, announced the policy before leaving for Moscow Monday. He said "the doors of the Communist Party are always open to those who in a moment of confusion abandoned its ranks and now honestly recognize the error they made." The party has lost an estimated 200,000 members during the past year.

AMATEUR ROCKETEER HURT

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)— Amateur rocketeer Ronald Bryant, 15, lost two fingers when fuel for a homemade rocket exploded. Injuries to his hand necessitated amputation of the fingers.

BRITISH, GERMANS TEAMUP

(UP)—British and German troops marched side by side into "battle" today for the first time since the Boxer Rebellion in China 56 years ago. The troops were taking part in a three-day NATO training exercise along with Danish forces.

YANK SALES HIGH

LONDON (UP)—American forces stationed in Britain spend an estimated 224 million dollars a year, according to Chancello of the Exchequer Derek Heathcoat-Amory. Asked in Parliament Tuesday whether there was any sign that the British economy was "suffering from a policy of Yanks go home," Heathcoat-Amory said that sales to U.S. forces were as high as ever.

'Music Man' Is Baked Spuds For Preston

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — Robert Preston and baked potatoes are going steady again, which is one measure of his mental and physical joy over the success of "The Music Man."

This, as has been well reported, is a smash hit on Broadway. As one harassed ticket broker with a passion for comparison reports, "It's as big as 'My Fair Lady,' but we'll have to wait and see how it compares with 'South Pacific'."

And most of the glory falls on the shoulders of Meredith Willson, the author-composer-lyricist, and Robert Preston, the star. As Prof. Hill, the musical confidence man, Preston's performance is a gem—he sings, dances and generally lives the part of this charming charlatan.

It's a demanding role. And, for a change, he doesn't have to watch his weight. Excess poundage has never been a major problem with him, but, in common with most actors, he always kept a wary eye on the midriff.

"But this part," he says, with his virtually unerasable smile, "keeps me moving all the time. Weight's no problem. In fact, Katherine — my wife — fed me baked potatoes all during the rehearsals to keep my weight up."

This is only one reason for Preston's current state of perpetual happiness. He loves the part. He's signed for two years, but after that he'd like to keep on doing it—possibly on the road. He hasn't even given the matter of a summer vacation a thought. It is, he says, a role that he will never weary of.

While he never sang or danced professionally before, there were several reasons why the thought of singing and dancing did not frighten him.

For one thing, everyone connected with the show wanted him.

"And," he says, "I felt if they wanted me, I must be right for it. They all knew me well enough so that if I was wrong, they could have said, 'Look, Bob, we made a mistake,' and it wouldn't have hurt my feelings—not for very long, anyhow."

For another thing, he isn't a stranger to music. His wife used to sing with bands and around the Preston household they quite frequently break into duets. On key, too. He also can handle a piano—he has played on stage when the part demanded it—and a sax and read music.

But the most important reason for his lack of fear about carrying a musical is that he feels the part does not demand a polished, big-voiced baritone or a twinkle-toed dancer.

"Every song and dance," Preston says, "fits in to the story and advances the plot. They're all part of the music man's character. Really, it would be wrong to have a great voice in the part."

He was considerably helped by the presence on "The Music Man" staff of Herbert Greene, a man Preston says is the best "dramatic music coach" in the business. At first, Greene set out really to work on Preston's singing—taping him and going over the results.

"But, after a few days," Preston says, "Herbie just said, 'Oh, the hell with it, you're all right'."

And that was that. Since then, he's gone along singing his own way. He had some coaching by the show's choreographer, Onna White, but mostly just to establish his limitations so she wouldn't plan anything beyond them.

All in all, he feels that he's learning enough about singing and dancing to add those to his store of show business-cloeltcd eknowlof show business-collected knowledge.

"You know," he says, "doing movies and plays is quite an education. I'm a man who barely finished high school. Yet, over the years doing movies and plays, I've collected a lot of specialized knowledge. I think I could carry on a conversation with scholars about drama. I know a lot about the Aztecs, after doing the movie, 'Montezuma.' Once I played a machinist and learned enough about handling tools so I think I could hold down a job."

This show has also given him a brief insight into the recording business; the original cast album on Capitol was his first such venture.

"I think," he says, with his smile, "that I made some pretty good sounds."

"MUSIC MAN" MAKES MUSIC: Robert Preston does a song with Barbara Cook in the hit Broadway musical comedy.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. ARTHUR A. BRUNS
Zion Lutheran Church
Pampa, Texas

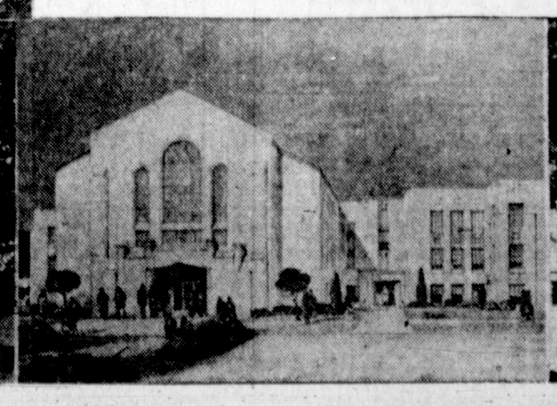

Recently a national magazine ran an extensive article under the heading: "What Do You Want Most Out Of Life?" Based on a survey conducted by phychologists and sociologists in a number of universities, the article pointed out that the things America wanted most "range all the way from a trip to the Riveria to a junket to Hollywood and a date with their favorite movie star."

One of the questions put by the researchers was: Do you wish you had a deeper and more satisfying religious faith?" In summarizing the answers to this question, the article went on to say "If you are like nine out of ten Americans, you do. But surveys show that most of us spend very little time to attain it . . . Evidence all up and down the line indicates that the average man fully realizes that he cannot live by bread alone, but he is so busy getting his bread and butter – and jam for it too – that sustenance for his spirit has to wait, often until the hunger pains become distressingly acute."

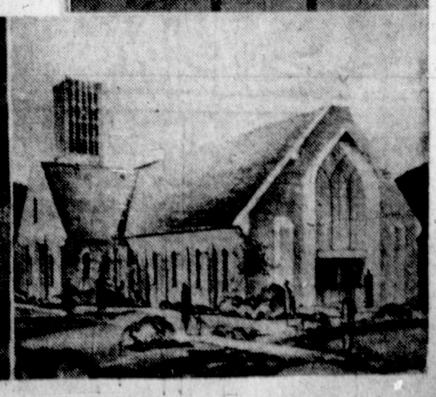

In other words man wants a deeper and more satisfying religious faith, but he is not willing to pay the price for it. He is too busy to pray, to busy to go to church, too busy to support it, too busy to tap the only source of satisfying religious faith, which is the BIBLE. This means that most Americans want to eat their cake and have it, too.

It need not be that way with you. You may have that coveted religious faith from the study of the Word of God. You may be assured and reassured of the grace of God in Christ Jesus for you when you value it highly enough to pay the price. Salvation is for all and will be acquired only through faith, that only satisfying faith of Jesus Christ.

Harvesters Battle Sandies Tonight

Marks Midway Point In District 3-AAAA Season

By CHARLES CULLIN
Pampa News Sports Writer

PAMPA'S HARVESTERS kick off the second half of the district 3-AAAA season tonight as they journey to Amarillo to meet the Sandies for the second encounter of the two teams this season. Game time is 8 p.m. in Amarillo's Fair Park Coliseum.

Now resting in a tie for first place in the district, the Harvesters have marched to five victories while losing one in conference action. Amarillo ranks 4th in the district, having compiled a 2-4 mark.

IN THE FIRST meeting of the two teams the Harvesters snapped Amarillo's 13-game winning streak by handing the Sandies their first defeat of the season, 76-61. Since that time the Pampans have dumped Palo Duro, 75-63; Monterey, 59-46; Lubbock, 80-58; and Plainview, 65-47. The lone conference loss came from Borger, 69-63. For the season the Harvesters stand 18-2.

Coach T. G. Hull's Sandies carry a height advantage over the Harvesters, having 6'8" John Peek and 6'5" Martin Turner. Balancing the rebound department for the Harvesters will be 6'5" Mack Layne and 6'3" Coyle Winborn.

In the earlier fracus between the two rivals the Harvesters outdid the Sandstorms from the field hitting 27 of 61 for 44 per cent. Amarillo netted 23 of 55 for 41 per cent.

FIRING THE TOP mark in the previous encounter was Bert McClain, who dropped 17 points during the evening. For Pampa Bill Brown turned in one of his top games for the season, tossing 23 points.

At present the Harvesters have pushed their total scoring to 1469, averaging 73.4 points per game. Defensively they have allowed a total of 1149 points for 57.4 points per game.

IN THE 3-AAAA race the Harvesters share the leading role with Borger and Plainview, all having one conference loss each. Other teams are Palo Duro and Lubbock, tied for fourth with Amarillo 2-4, and Monterey of Lubbock with 0-6.

Probable starters for tomorrow night's game are:

Pampa
Coyle Winborn	6'3"
Charles Minor	5'10"
Mack Layne	6'5"
Bill Brown	6'
Ray Stephenson	5'11"
Amarillo
John Peek	6'8"
Martin Turner	6'5"
Jerry Connor	6'4"
Ronnie Mayberry	6'1"
Bert McClain	6'

Remaining games are:
Tonight: Pampa at Amarillo, Plainview at Lubbock.
Feb. 4 — Palo Duro at Pampa, Borger at Monterey.
Feb. 7 — Plainview at Amarillo, Borger at Pampa.
Feb. 11 — Plainview at Palo Duro, Borger at Lubbock, Monterey at Pampa.
Feb. 14 — Plainview at Borger
Feb. 18 — Borger at Amarillo, Pampa at Lubbock, Monterey at Plainview.
Feb. 20 — Palo Duro at Borger, Pampa at Plainview.

Spahn's New Contract May Boost Braves

By UNITED PRESS

The Milwaukee Braves hoped today that the signing of star pitcher Warren Spahn—for a reported $60,000 — would break the logjam of unsigned players which includes almost all of the club's higher salaried hired hands.

Still unsigned and apparently holding out for big pay raises after helping the club to the National League pennant and the world championship are such as third baseman Eddie Mathews, Henry Aaron, the league's Most Valuable Player, second baseman Red Schoendienst and pitchers Lew Burdette, the hero of the World Series, and Bob Buhl.

Spahn, the oldest player on the Milwaukee roster in terms of service, said he was "very happy" with his new contract after a brief ceremony.

Pitcher Bob Trowbridge, who compiled a 7-5 record, and rookie infielder Joe Morgan, who batted 316 with Atlanta in the Southern Association last year, were other Braves coming to terms.

Al Dark, who got a raise from generous owner Gussie Busch for his improved play last year, quickly consented to terms, signing with the Cardinals for about $40,000.

Durelle To Meet Hinnant In TV Bout

NEW YORK (UP'—Light heavyweight contender Yvon Durelle will try to avenge his only defeat in a year tonight in a return TV fight with Clarence Hinnant at Madison Square Garden.

Their 10-rounder will be televised and broadcast nationally by NBC at 10 p.m. e.s.t.

Betting is at "even money" although lanky Hinnant of Washington, D. C., stopped the muscular Canadian fisherman in the eighth round at Miami Beach last Feb. 20 because of a cut eye.

Since then Durelle of Baie Ste. Anne, N. B., was unbeaten in 11 starts although held to a draw by Tony Anthony at Detroit, June 14. Yvon, 28, is now ranked third among 175-pound contenders. Hinnant, 24, is rated eighth.

Hinnant accepted the match on less than a week's notice when fourth - ranked Tony Anthony was bedded by the flu at his training camp.

THREE BENCHED

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UP) — Three members of the Indiana varsity basketball team — Bode Hill, Glen Butte and Gene Flowers—have been benched because of scholastic difficulties. None is a regular, although Hill started several games earlier this season.

Last Major College Drops Perfect Mark

By TIM MORIARTY
United Press Sports Writer

That hoped for "meetin' of the unbeatens" between West Virginia and St. John's at New York next week has degenerated into a "weepin' of the beatens."

First, West Virginia was knocked off by Duke Monday night and then Pittsburgh hung an 86-73 black eye on St. John's, the last of the major college perfect record teams, Thursday night at Pittsburgh.

St. John's had gone unbeaten and untested in its first nine games, toying with such "patsies" as Bridgeport, Hunter, Washington & Lee, Roanoke and Rhode Island. So this clash with Pitt was considered the Redmen's initial trial, even though the Panthers claimed only a 9-5 record.

It turned out to be no contest.

Hennon Scores 25

Led by little Don Hennon's 25-point barrage, Pittsburgh led almost all the way. The Panthers jumped to an early advantage, reached the intermission with a 42-37 bulge, and fought off the New Yorkers in the second half.

Julius Pegues also had a big hand in the Pitt triumph by contributing 19 points. Alan Seiden poured in 28 points for St. John's, but this was small consolation to Joe Lapchick's men, who now must face Temple Saturday night before tangling with West Virginia.

Oscar Robertson hung on to his slim lead over "vacationing" Wilt Chamberlain in the national scoring race with a 30-point effort that helped Cincinnati whip Miami of Ohio, 79-59, while Elgin Baylor of Seattle joined the fight again by pouring in a record 60 points as the Chieftains edged Portland University, 94-91.

Wilt Taking Exams

Robertson now has scored 523 points in 16 games for an average of 32.69 points per contest. Chamberlain had a 32.42-point average when Kansas knocked off for mid-term exams almost two weeks ago. The Jayhawks and Chamberlain don't swing back into action until next Monday night against Kansas State.

Baylor's 60 points against Portland set a new school record and raised his season average from 29.71 to 31.73. Seattle trailed by 19 points with nine minutes remaining but Baylor, who scored 37 points in the second half, clinched the Chieftains' comeback victory with two free throws that broke a 91-91 tie in the final seconds.

Three of the nation's topranked teams will be in action tonight. Top-ranked West Virginia will attempt to start a new winning streak against Florida State, third-ranked San Francisco plays Loyola (Calif.), and 10th - ranked Kentucky meets Florida in a Southeastern Conference tussle. Baylor also gets another crack at the scoring lead when Seattle again meets Portland.

TOMORROW NIGHT Pampa's Harvester Field House will host collegiate basketball as the Crusaders from Pasadena, Calif. meet Wayland's Pioneers at 8.

Sponsored by the Pampa Kiwanis Club, the game will bring two top-rated cage units together for Pampa fans. The Crusaders have ranked in the past in the 25th spot on the United Press small college rating list.

FEATURED FOR the game will be one of Pampa's all-time greats now playing with the Pasadena quintet. Jimmy Bond, a 6'5" center made the All-State role while with the Harvesters and since has participated in the Olympics and has been placed on an All-American team.

During the present season with Pasadena Bond has ranked as one of the outstanding men on the squad. He presently leads the team in both rebounding and scoring, averaging 18.1 points per game and gaining 19.7 off the backboard. In national ranking the talented cager is running sixth in the nation in rebounds. Participating in 12 games, Bond has netted 79 field goals in 147 attempts for .537 per cent.

THE PASADENA team has established an exceptional record, having allowed their opponents 56.5 points per game while rolling offensively to 76.3 points per game. The team is now on a ten-day road trip that will carry them against New Mexico Western, New Mexico A&M and Eastern New Mexico University.

Prior to the game between Wayland and Pasadena, the Junior High Reapers will play the White Deer "B" team at 6:30.

Admission to the game is .90 cents for adults and .50 cents for children.

STARTING FIVE—Pictured above are the starting members of the Pasadena Crusaders who will be going against Wayland's Pioneers tomorrow night in Harvester Field House at 8. Standing, left to right, are, Wallace, Glenn, Rieken, Bailey, Bond and Coach Cartwright. Baseball's WayOf Selecting All-Stars Undergoes Change same manner and the ballots for both teams will be counted by the commissioner's office.

"It was simply an impossibility to count the six million ballots last year," Frick admitted in wiping out the poll conducted by 250 newspapers and radio stations.

By OSCAR FRALEY
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP — Baseball made certain today that the stars will play in the All-Star game.

For 11 years it has been a ballot "fiasco" in which fans across the nation voted for their favorites. It became a real farce last year when a Cincinnati landslide would have made the National League team an all-Redleg aggregation.

The difficulty wasn't in the balloting of the fans—but in the fact that the ballots weren't actually counted.

Players Ballot

So Commissioner Ford Frick announces that the teams now will be selected by the men who should know best who are the real "All-Stars." National League players, coaches and managers all will vote for the National League team, voting only for opponent players to preclude ballot box stuffing for teammates.

The American Leaguers will pick their league's team in the

Votes By Pound

There was one case, investigation disclosed, where one ballot tion selected out of each 100 ballots—with that one ballot being used for the entire 100 votes.

In another instance, a cross-section of the votes was taken and then the entire load of ballots was weighed to determine how many ballots had been received. "The "vote" then was simply a matter of multiplication.

Then, too, there was the matter of "overbalance" such as the Cincinnati vote of last year. In the final week of voting a landslide of 550,000 Cincinnati votes was received. It would have meant an all-Cincinnati team starting for the National League.

Frick Eliminated Three

Frick knocked off three of them —Gus Bell, Wally Post and George Crowe—on the theory that such players as Stan Musial, Hank Aaron and Willie Mays deserved prior All-Star ranking. Even Birdie Tebbetts, the Cincinnati manager, would go along with that thinking.

But, while it was the greatest voting swindle since Tammany Hall voted tombstones, it also proved the fallacy of the All-Star balloting setup.

There possibly may be some bugs in the new system, Frick admits, but it's a start in the right direction.

Players Are Happy With All-Star Switch

By UNITED PRESS

Major league ball players reacted favorably today to a new All-Star vote plan that puts them on the spot and the fans in the role of "second-guessers."

Gabe Paul, general manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, predicted the vote eventually "will be returned to the fans" but other ment was unanimously in favor of Commissioner Ford Frick's decision. Frick announced Thursday that the 1958 All-Star teams will be picked by a poll of managers, coaches and players because of the "farce" created in last year's fan balloting.

"It's my opinion, after the new plan receives a thorough trial, the results will require the devising of a method to return the selections to the fans," said Paul. "I'm sorry to see the game taken away from the fans. . .it belongs to them."

Bobby Bragan, manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Pittsburgh Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh, were quick with praise.

"It's a good system," Bragan said flatly. "If anybody can make a just selection for a valid All-Star team it should be done that way. I think the public would probably recognize the quality will be there."

"It'll result in stronger lineups," commented Murtaugh. "The National League always wants to win that game real bad. That's why the players will vote for the strongest possible team to represent them."

Inactivity Is Hardest On Injured Campy

(EDITORS —This is the last of three dispatches tracing the career of Roy Campanella.)

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP) —Any day now, Roy Campanella is going to prop himself up on his hospital bed and inquire:

"Hey Doc, when am I gettin' out of here?"

Campy hates hospitals. He's been in so many that some of his Los Angeles Dodger teammates kiddingly call him "Doctor Kildare."

Hospitalized with a cracked left kneecap in July of 1955, he complained his nerves were being "worn to a frazzle" from following the Dodger games on radio and television.

It got so bad that Campanella put on his clothes one day and went out to the Polo Grounds where the Dodgers were playing the Giants. He came down to the bench in his civvies and the first one who spied him was his roommate, Don Newcombe.

Newcombe Needles

"Ain't you got the life?" Newcombe needled. "Loungin' around up there, takin' it easy and drinkin' all the beer you want."

"Lemonade," Campanella corrected solemnly.

"I'm fixin' on comin' back 'cause I figure you miss me."

"Darn right I do," Newcombe grunted. "They gave me a new roomie — Sandy Amoros, and he snores somethin' awful. That wouldn't be so bad, 'cept he does it in Spanish."

Campanella never could stand inactivity and it invariably puzzled him to see anyhother ball player loaf.

"How can they do it?" he'd ask. "How can they stand out there and play ball if they don't want to do it? Me, I guess baseball's in my blood. I just gotta' play or else I'm miserable. No sir, I couldn't have gone through all those seasons of playing 250 games a year if I didn't enjoy it."

Cracker-Barrel Talker

Although he never gained Jackie Robinson's fame as a speaker, Campenalla often amazed listeners with his cracker-barrel type philosophy on all subjects. When there was talk about governmental anti-trust legislation against baseball not so long ago, the portly Dodger receiver summed up the situation this way:

"They can sit in Washington and debate this and that. But I want to tell everybody this. Baseball will do more for the things which this country stands for than all their elocution. We aren't worried about who caught or hit the ball — his nationality or his politics—but only about the guy who wants to win."

Word from Community Hospital in Glen Cove, Long Island, where Campanella was admitted Tuesday following his near-fatal automobile accident, is that the irrepressible Dodger receiver has begun "telling jokes."

It's the best "sign" Campy ever has given.

Finsterwald, Mosel Lead Phoenix Golf

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UP) — Dow Finsterwald, who makes $40,000 per year playing "conservative golf," and Stan Mosel, an unknown who makes $15,000 per year as a club pro, went into the second round of the Phoenix Open golf tournament today deadlocked for first place and holding comfortable two-stroke leads over the rest of the field.

Finsterwald, a notorious slow starter in tournament play, who has finished second 13 times in the last two years while winning only two tourneys, had a steady 33-33 in the opening round, while Mosel had 32-34.

"I'm a conservative player," said Finsterwald. "Why not? The hours are good and it's hard to beat the money. Why gamble?"

Reapers Fall To Dumas

The Pampa Reapers lost a close-fought game yesterday as they dropped to the Dumas quintet, 35-31.

Sparking the Reapers offensively was Carter, who tagged 16 points for the game. Following Carter was Wise with 10, Garren with three and Neslage with two.

Next game on tap for the junior high cagers will be the White Deer "B" squad tomorrow night in Harvester Field House at 6:30. The game will preceed the college clash between the Pasadena Crusaders and Wayland Pioneers, scheduled to get underway at 8.

AMERICANS LOSE

NUERNBERG, Germany (UP) —Belgium defeated the United States, 3-0, Thursday in the international military soccer cup tournament. The winners scored all their goals in the second half.

DANDY DOUBLES

MIAMI, Fla. (UP) —Longshot players who dabble in the daily double should be smiling again at Hialeah Park. Wednesday's double returned $1,426 and Thursday Ranchero 2nd and Whip Out, a pair of outsiders, won the first two races for an $869 return.

Campanella Is Still Improving

GLEN COVE, N. Y. (UP'—Roy Campanella showed continued improvement today in his battle to shake off the paralysis that set in after he suffered a broken neck in last Tuesday's automobile accident.

"The patient spent a better day (Thursday than Wednesday," the latest bulletin from Glen Cove Community Hospital said. "His temperature is moderately elevated—which is expected. There is further improvement in feeling which is now present over the abdomen. Paralysis in his legs is unchanged."

Harry Gifford, the hospital administrator, pointed out that Campanella is improving faster than originally expected but that he remains on the critical list. Gifford said the Los Angeles Dodgers' three-time National League Most Valuable Player "has been a good patient."

Ruthe Campanella, Roy's wife, visited his bedside Thursday, and reported, "he looks much more cheerful and is even telling jokes." Dave Roy's 16-year-old son, Walter O'Malley, president of the Dogers, and Dr. Herbert Fett, Dodger team physician, were other visitors.

Bill Proposed On Baseball Anti-Trust

By TOM NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Two words spelled trouble in Congress today for a proposed sports anti-trust law.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UP)—Bobby Gordon, Tennessee tailback, has signed to play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals next season. Frank Ivy, the Cardinals' new head coach, signed Gordon personally Thursday.

mittee approved a "middle-of-the-road" bill to place business aspects of professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey under anti-trust regulation.

The measure stems from a legal turmoil over whether pro sports are subject to the same anti-trust laws which apply to big business. In 1953 the Supreme Court ruled that baseball was exempt from the laws. But last year it held that football came under the statutes, and implied that hockey and basketball did, too.

After long hearings on the matter last year, the House judiciary subcommittee Thursday came up with a bill aimed at straightening out the situation.

It would make anti-trust laws apply to commercial aspects of professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey — for example, ownership of parks, or interest in several teams in the same league.

Bill Makes Exceptions

But the bill would specifically exempt activities which are "reasonably necessary" to the equalization of teams in a league, the guarantee of territorial franchises and the preservation of public confidence in the honesty of sports contests.

Here is where the argument arises: Whether to require sports to show that these activities are "reasonably necessary" to the three aims. As stated in the bill, or simply "relating to" them, as proposed in an amendment by Rep. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.).

Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), chairman of both the subcommittee and the full Judiciary Committee, said the exemption as drawn was aimed at permitting sports to continue their player reserve clauses, player drafts, farm systems, and other activities which might otherwise be ruled "trade restraints."

But Keating, senior Republican on the subcommittee and the full committee, served notice he will try to change the words "reasonably necessary" when the Judiciary Committee takes up the bill later.

If the phrase is left in, Keating said, it would "invite" players and others to file lawsuits to challenge every sports agreement or practice as not being "reasonably necessary."

A Schoolman Speaks

"For over a quarter of a century, behind the aegis of Deweyism, Kilpatrickism and progressivism, our educational system has delibertely and successfully destroyed a sickeningly large portion of the intellectual leadership of America."

Who said that? That could have been a statement culled from any one of several hundred of our own editorials. But it isn't. That statement appears in the January issue of the Colorado School Board Bulletin, and is part of a guest editorial from the pen of L. V. Simmons, of Rocky Ford, Colo. Mr. Simmons is a government school superintendent.

Let us see what other gems come from this estimable gentleman.

"Everyone, it seems, except perhaps the 'Educators,' has at last discovered to what end our mad pursuit of mediocrity, under the high sounding name of "democracy' has led us . . .

"Following in the footsteps of their elders, we have a younger generation epitomized by jazz, bee-bop, and calypso, by screaming voices, a generation charactized by thoughts and actions, by habits, attitudes and ideals in consonance with their "Sloppy Joe" attire.

It is considerably heartening to have this rather accurate, if heavy-handed analysis, coming directly from one of the men who is in a position to know it best. For altogether too long a time the governmental educational policy has provided premiums for work-avoidance, and tended to discredit individual initative if it strayed from the "norm" of the pragmatists.

Simmons, in his editorial, did not consistently place the blame where it belongs. Rather, he contented himself with looking at the results of our educational system and with finding them lacking. Instead of pointing the finger where it must be pointed, he accused a "distressingly large portion of our adult population" of being bent on establishing an "ego prestige" thru the power of money and the possession of material things. But here he was certainly not looking at the matrix of mediocrity. He was rather, casting about for a scrape-goat beyond the portals of his own device.

But to give the man credit, had he plunged to the roots of the problem his editoral would probably not have been published. So we must be happy with these portions of truth which he was able to get into print. And these were considerable. He ended with a plea that "every intelligent leader and every decent citizen" use whatever knowledge and energy available to "build into the character of our people the understanding of and utilization of those traits which are necessary for the preservation of a nation and of society.

So, in compliance with Mr. Simmons' plea, and with whatever intelligence and energy we have, may we continue his thesis and point to the root of the problem?

It is true that the results we have been getting from our vaunted educational system have been terribly amiss. But these results, as Mr. Simmons first shows us, have occurred because the schools themselves have been following the princnpals enunciated by John Dewey, Kilatrick and others.

But why have the schools followed these principals? They have followed them because they are constant to to political ambition and for no other reason. It is not that our educators have been stupid. Quite the contrary. It is because they have been bitten by the bug of compulsion, and Deweyism, Kilpatrickism, etc., are theories of education which fit the hand of compulsion as the mailed guantlet fits the fist of the god of war.

In other words, our educators have become more concerned with amassing power for themselves and getting large salaries than they have been concerned with teaching our young people. During the past several years a veritable educational hegemony has come into being with its ruling autocracy, its oligarchial leadership, its coercive practices. And all of this stems from the idea of compulsory education backed up by the guns and bayonets of the government.

If we would regain some measure of quality in our quantitative educational establishment, we must begin by getting the guns and the bayonets out of the picture. This can only be accamplished by removing the schools from the control of the politicans.

There is no other way.

BETTER JOBS

By R. C. HOILES

"The Old Purchasing Power" Argument

Since the question of what causes unemployment and raises real wages is before the American voters because of the various proposed right-to-work laws, I want to quote from the monthly letter of the First National City Bank of New York. Under the heading of "The Old 'Purchasing Power' Argument," they write:

"Labor's main case, at least for public consumption, against a wage moratorium was summed up by Mr. Meany. He insisted that 'increased mass purchasing power, based on high wages,' is essential to ward off a business slump.

"Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, spelled out the argument further:

"'The current employment slump, lagging auto sales, and lower steel production can be reversed only by increasing consumer spending power. The problem is that millions of households who need the things that the appliance workers can make . . . lack the purchasing power to translate need into demand.'

"Ergo, according to Mr. Reuther, raise wages and everything will be fine.

"Here again, as stated earlier, is the old purchasing power theory, resurrected with wearisome regularity by labor spokesmen every time the country heads for a slump. To be sure, the theory has a certain superficial plausibility. Moreover, those pushing for higher wages — for themselves — can easily rationalize that the increases are for the common good.

"Actually, the argument rests on the flimsiest of foundations. What it ignores is the other side of the coin — increased costs. When wages go up rapidly, so too do costs — and prices. An increase in wages may help many of those 'millions of households' Mr. Reuther talks about to buy 'the things that the appliance workers can make,' but what about the millions of households —farmers, unorganized workers, professional people, the white collar class, pensioners and others living on fixed incomes — not participating in such wage increases? What happens to their ability to buy what 'the appliance workers can make,' particularly when wage boosts for the appliance workers force up the price of appliances?

"The point is that wage increases affect only part of the population, while the price increases that follow affect everyone. For some people purchasing power may be increased; but for others it is diminished.

"Farmers, for example, have taken a dim view of the thesis that jacking up wages adds to purchasing power. At the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation in Chicago last month resentment against labor union policies flared up in adoption of a resolution urging a national 'right-to-work' law. An important factor during the debate, according to New York Times correspondent William M. Blair, was 'the widespread belief among farmers that unwarranted wage demands by labor are the major cause of rising costs of farm machinery needed for more efficient operations.'

"Of course, if by some miracle all incomes could be increased together, no one would be hurt by such disparities. On the other hand, since prices would be increased correspondingly no one would benefit either.

'A Prescription to Kill, Not Cure'

"But that, as everyone knows, is not the way things happen. As experience has shown again and again, every business boom generates in these increasing disparities the seeds of its collapse. So long as the growth in employment and incomes is sufficiently general to make possible the passing along of higher costs to the public at large, the process of raising wages and prices can go merrily along.

"Sooner or later, however, the game gets played out. With economic disparities stretched further and further, more and more groups in the community find themselves unable or unwilling to pay the prices demanded by other groups for their goods and services. Trade languishes, production falls off, and boom gives way to recession.

"This is precisely what is happening today. The possibility of industry's being able to absorb increased labor costs by increased volume, or by passing them on in higher prices, has pretty much vanished. The public is rebelling against high prices, business activity and profits are declining, and unemployment is increasing. The 1955-57 boom has been living on borrowed time.

"To arbitrarily increase wage costs under such conditions would make matters worse, not better. It would threaten bankruptcy for small businesses. While workers lucky enough to keep their jobs would find their purchasing power increased, many more — forced out of jobs by factory shutdowns— would have theirs drastically reduced. It is, in short, a prescription to kill, not cure."

Power Of Individual Wealth Moves Men Into Politics

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — A weird revolution has occurred in the suspicions and prejudices of the faceless nonentity called the American Common Man, toward the Rich.

The Rich were hated down to the first three decades of this century. They were known as the Idle Rich and the Predatory Rich and Theodore Roosevelt, no less a demmagogue than Franklin D., tossed off the implication that persons of great wealth were malefactors. He put the burden of disproof on them.

William Randolph Hearst blasted John D. Rockefeller, Sr., and Judge Kenesaw Landis fined his Standard Oil Company $29 million for monopolistic practice amid cheers. Landis was reversed, but that is beside the point. The fine was very popular.

Mr. Hearst sicked his cartoonists on multi-millionaires of the innocent, pe-war era, depicting them with bloated white weskits "spanned" by golden logging chains and with tiny plug hats. Ironically, Hearst was a very rich man himself and so, nowadays, are Averell Harriman, Nelson Rockefeller and Jock Whitney, all of whom are scuffling and elbowing for the position of governor of New York. Nobody else has a chance.

Harriman and Whitney were famous firstly as polo players and Rockefeller is really famous for nothing but his money, though he seems to be popular nevertheless. The people rather like him. Harriman is a party Democrat. Whitney and Rockefeller are nominal Republicans although Whitney, in recent years, has contributed to both parties. He is now stationed in London as Eisenhower's ambassador and is a nominal Republican in the developing competition of rich men for particular places of power.

The singular factor in this new situation is the gall and confidence of multi-millionaires in going after authority both in public politics and in private "foundations" which they manipulate.

As recently as 1930 such impudence would have been futile and reckless. But since F. D. Roosevelt rose to power, a rich man who never worked a day at making a living from his birth to his death, millionaries have actually led the radical "revolution" more influentially than all the avowed Communists and boss unioneers of the time.

Marshall Field, a political queerie who cannot be handily described, was the most abusive and mendacious enemy of riches and rich people of the entire Roosevelt era. He paid many Communists to do his work for the cause in his New York paper called PM, now almost forgotten, and he trailed with conspicuous Reds of the mysterious bureaucracy in the Treasury, State Department and Department of Justice. It is silently agreed that Field was crazy toward his end, but it is a fact that paralyzes the analytical faculty of men who tackle this weird situation that many outwardly patriotic men of luxurious position gladly associated with Field in the usual extravagant pleasures of the Idle Rich.

The Rockefeller Boys, now in business, so to speak, with a strange new "project" called the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, have just rung loud alarms with a booklet called "Special Studies Report II" on the problems of American defense. The "panel" that made this "report" and stunned the public and editorial comprehension with their audacity in coming forth as great authorities, is composed almost entirely of persons unknown. The only "famous" individual is Henry Luce and he gets into the act simply as "Editor-in-Chief, Time-Life - Fortune," which means nothing at all. These publications have no more authority than Confidential with which, be it said, they do have much in common.

Cyrus S. Eaton, of Cleveland, is a millionaire promoter, stock-trader and speculator. He seemed to be a reliable Republican until, at a dramatic instant, he turned on Robert A. Taft and plumped for John L. Lewis. The fact that Lewis had an economic veto over much of Eaton's coal and railroad empire in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and West Virginia deserved consideration. But it was now a satisfactory explanation. Now, Eaton sets himself up as a great international political and economic force. A secret conference of Russians, Americans and polyglot others was held at a Canadian island called Pugwash under Eaton's authority and initiative. Now he tells us to play alongwith the Russians if we want to survive.

It is not that the faceless nonentity of the United States necessarily resents all such assumptions of authority by rich men. He seems stunned — unaware that he is being ignored, possibly sold out by schemers, or faded away as markers in a cosmic floating crap-game by millionaires who feel that they have no obligation to consult him. We are developing and auxiliary, informal U.N. composed of millionaires.

The Rockefellers have no better standing, legally, morally or politically, than George Spelvin, American. But in practical fact, a few hundred men who are nothing but millionaires are presuming to decide the fate of the United States.

The Nation's Press

CHEERLEADER

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Mr. Eisenhower has appointed Eric Johnston cheerleader of the latest drive to "sell" foreign aid to the uncomprehending multitude, who only know that they pay the freight. Mr. Johnston is a durable phony who can be compared without favor to either, to Harold Stassen, both possessing an itch for the limelight and harboring ambitions to get on in the political world, despite conspicuous public apathy.

Although professing to be a Republican, Mr. Johnston served the Roosevelt and Truman administrations in a variety of capacities, which need not be considered surprising, in view of the entry in an authorized biography that he "approved many phases of the New Deal in principle." As Truman's economic stabilized during the Korean war, he thought that the Democrats didn't raise taxes enough and called for larger boosts.

He had a job under Eisenhower as roving ambassador to the middle East, his big idea being that the American taxpayers ought to build a huge dam on the Jordan river to make both Arabs and Israelis happy. He also called for a global "RFC" so that America might finance the economic development of the world, while the Truman "point 4" plan to underwrite backward countries appealed to him as a "prudent investment."

Mr. Eisenhower has certainly got a man who fits the job and the appointment may further appeal to the President in that Johnston can supply his own megaphone.

OXNARD, CALIF., NEWS: "Power - hungry bureaucrats with control of our tax dollars pour our money down an ever increasing stream of non - essential federal programs which give them control over vast areas of government activity. Of course, the taxpayer pays the bill."

Dulles Policy May Sever Middle East And Asia

By RAY TUCKER

BANGKOK — Many diplomats in the Middle East and Asia, including American and British, maintain that the Dulles policy in this area will alienate its millions forever from the West. In their opinion, we are becoming as well hated as the Anglo-French colonists have been, despite the highly overrated Eisenhower Doctrine and Baghdad Pact.

In backing a few feudal monarchs none too secure on their desert thrones—Saud of Saudi Arabia, Hussein of Jordan and Faisal of Iraq—the Washington Administration is putting good money on the wrong men for establishment of political order and keeping this strategic area out of the Communists' hands.

OUTSTANDING LEADERS — The outstanding nationalistic leaders across the Arab-Asian world, which stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, are Colonel Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt and Prime Minister Nehru of India. The others are only royal figureheads living apart and isolated from their hungry and emotional subjects.

A simple comparison of their stature with that of leaders of the remarkably similar American Revolution is extremely apt, and one which Secretary Dulles should recognize. There were, for instnce, finer political philosophers and theorists than George Washington, who was only a Virginia farmer. Such a man was Thomas Jefferson.

There were abler organizers and financiers — Alexander Hamilton. There were more astute diplomats —Benjamin Franklin. But only the immortal figure of Washington, in statue and story, stands out at home and abroad as the heroic and admired father of freedom. All the rest, brilliant as they were, remain enshrined in the histories and textbooks.

SORRY DIPLOMACY — Having interviewed statesmen, politicians, industrialists and ordinary people from London to this capital of thriving Thailand on this around-the-world flight, Dulles' neglect of these two popular men is an example of inept diplomacy. For they are the George Washingtons, although entirely differnet personlities, of the rising tide of nationalism for mre than one-fourth of the world's most miserable population.

Neither man favors communism or prefers it to the democratic system, despite public statements and actions deriving directly from the Dulles policies. Their only and basic problem is to improve the daily lot of their backward and poverty-stricken peoples, and the task will require several hundred years. judging from the animal-like standards of living I have seen at Cairo and Delhi.

Only a few days ago, a San Francisco reporter saw a person roll over and die on a field only sixty feet from us, and none of the thousands passing by stopped to look. Before expiring, the human being was such an inhuman heap of rags that it was impossible to determine the sex from our distance. In Old Delhi we never saw one child smiling or playing. They were begging, pushing heavy carts or selling impossible souvenirs.

PEOPLES NEEDING HELP — Thus, these people need help now. And Russia is giving it to them without any requirement — but the U.S. requires that they join an American - led, anti - Communist Pact. Both realize, of course, that there may be "invisible strings" attached to Soviet aid. But such is their economic plight that they feel they must accept a helping hand from any source.

An interview with Nehru, Pakistan and Thailand rulers on this trip, as well as talks with Nasser several years ago, should clear up another misapprehension at Washington. Despite billions of American postwar aid (although not to Egypt and India in vast amounts) as well as the Eisenhower opposition to the Suez invasion, both men regard the United States as sympathetic to colonial and imperialistic aims. They once had great faith in Eisenhower on this question, but they say that they have been disillusioned.

RESENT U.S. SUPPORT — They do not charge that the U.S. cherishes such outright ideas of continued control as do London and Paris, in their opinion. Those powers may now be relinquishing political and physical posgession of overseas peoples—"liquidating" their empires, so to speak—but they still seek to retain indirect influence in finance, industry, transportation, and resources such as oil.

Thus, they continue to resent the U.S. Administration's general support of Anglo-French policies inside and outside NATO and the numerous world alliances which Truman and Eisenhower sponsored.

Names Compel Visits In European Travel

By HENRY McLEMORE

LOSSA DE MAR — Names fascinate me.

Names of people, names of towns, names of Pullman cars, names of rivers, and even the names of those mysterious intredients which are always being added to toothpaste, gasoline, and hair tonic to make them the best on earth.

I always liked to watch Van Lingle Mungo pitch, and Sixto Escobar fight. I almost proposed to a Miss Lottie Lawnmower on the charm of her name alone, and a three-day stay in Guadalcanal was made bearable by my tentmates — Radar Splatter and Overbridge Horsey.

I would like to swim in the Bug and French Broad Rivers, and bake a cake sometime with Clabber Girl baking powder.

One of the reasons I have stayed in Europe so long this time is the irresistible lure that names of towns hold for me. I see them on maps and the urge to get in the car and drive to them is too much to resist. Mary and I must have driven thousands of miles, in all directions of the compass, and on all sorts of roads from six-lane autobans to PROCEED AT YOUR OWN RISK trails in order to get to places with names that entranced us.

What about Neckarelz, for example? If you were driving down the highway and saw a sign pointing to a town with that name, wouldn't you be tempted to turn off and spend a few hours? It turned out to be a quiet little town on the Neckar River in Germany, but a fine place from which to mail a postcard.

Swabisch Gemund is another German town I couldn't resist, and I am glad I couldn't. It is Barbarossa country, and it also must be the cheapest place in the world for good costume jewelry. Mary bought a sackful of really pretty bracelets, pins and earrings for not much more than a buck and a half.

This weakness for town names should serve me well at parties later on. If conversation becomes dull I can charm the guests with the stories of Chur, Trun, and Flims — all in Switzerland. And Pau, Cierp, Auch, and Gap, to name four French towns which I have visited.

A man would be lacking in romance if he didn't make an effort to visit a place with as lovely a sounding name as Castellammare, and I'll guarantee this little Italian town overlooking the Bay of Naples on the Sorrento Peninsula won't disappoint you.

I just had to turn off and see another Italian town — Fivizzano. Glad I did, too, because the people fizz just the way the name of their town does. Poggibonsi is another we detoured to see, and it was as nice as its name.

Of course, our own country is second to none when it comes to names for towns. You can't beat names like Social Circle, Georgia; Medicine Hat, and a thousand others.

I'm going to have to stop looking at the map if I'm ever to get home.

Man Has Strange Business; He Offers People Money

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Theodore W. Roth has spent 23 years in what he calls "the craziest business in the country." He delves into all parts of the world for people just to offer them money.

"Crazy? It's like the stock market: Up and down," he says. You've got to be a detective, genealogist, lawyer, and have the proper will and aggressiveness—and still you never know what'll happen.

"If you do collect, you make a large fee. But you can devote years and thousands of dollars to a case and never solve it, and you're out cold, you make nothing."

Roth's business is tracing missing heirs. It's a rather exclusive occupation. About a dozen persons are in it in this country, he says.

Located Thousands

Roth figures that in 23 years he has located about 8,000 missing heirs to sums totaling several million dollars.

"And I suspect there have been about 300,000 more persons, the wishful thinkers, who have come to me or written me letters all saying something like, 'please find my aunt Matilda's money; she died in 1800.' That's not what I do. The way I work is I find the money first and then I trace the heirs by scientific geanealogy. We trace back sometimes 200 years.

"Once I spent a year tracing a man, from here to Philadelphia to Washington. Finally I located his brother and got him on the phone. The brother said, 'You're one heck of an investigator. Where did you say your office is?' I said, '11 West 42nd St.' He said, 'that's where my brother is.' And he was—six floors below my office."

Looking For 2½ Years

Roth has been looking for nearly two and a half years, both in Poland and the United States, for heirs of Frances Wolanska, who came here in 1893 from Galatia, which then was part of Austria. Her brothers and sisters or their children would be entitled to an inheritance of nearly $300,000.

An old marriage record, written in Polish script, shows her parents were named Michael and Anne, but whether they died in this country, or even had any other children, is unknown.

Today 25th Anniversary Of Hitler Getting Power

By DONALD R. SHANOR
United Press Staff Correspondent

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—Twenty-five years ago today dying President Paul von Hindenburg signed a proclamation appointing a new premier and condemning five million Germans to death.

It was thus—legally and bloodlessly—that Adolf Hitler took over the chancellorship and embarked on a decade of gangsterism which drenched Europe in blood.

Hitler and his lieutenants ended their rule 12 years later in the only way they admitted it could end, as corpses.

The Germans who survived crawled from the rubble in 1945 and slowly established in the western half of their country a new constitution with built-in safeguards against another democratic suicide.

But even today they uneasily recalled the fateful proclamation a quarter of a century ago.

Didn't Trust Hitler

Hindenburg disliked and distrusted Hitler and only four days earlier had declared he would never appoint "the little Austrian corporal" as chancellor.

But by Jan. 30, 1933, the 85-year-old President, apparently alarmed by rumors of a violent government coup in the making, finally agreed to accept Hitler as chancellor.

Hindenburg's advisers, led by Franz von Papen, assured him that once Hitler was in office, they could control and manipulate him.

Less than two months later on March 23, a Nazi-packed parliament voted Hitler dictatorial powers.

Six months later, all other parties had been dissolved or banned and Germany became a totalitarian Nazi state.

Hindenburg appointed Hitler under the emergency clause of the constitution which did not require parliament's approval.

Majority Impossible

The country had been run by this clause since 1930, when continued squabbling in parliament made it impossible to form any kind of majority.

But Hindenburg's choice was a popular one. More than 17 million Germans of 39 million voted Nazi in the relatively free elections Hitler called two months later. He then banned the Communists to give his party a majority. The "legal revolution" was complete.

Hitler launched a vigorous program of fulfilling his election promises. He created jobs for the country's nearly six million jobless. He began raising an army to "right the wrongs" of the Versailles Treaty. His savage persecution of the Jews was another thing he had promised the voters.

Goebbels Made Boast

If it was a long-term government Hindenburg wanted when he accepted Hitler, he certainly got it. Goebbels wrote in 1932 that "Once we have power, we never will give it up. They would have to carry our bodies out."

Exactly 12 years and 3 months after Hitler was sworn in, he was carried out as a corpse — along with Goebbels.

By then, the man who "saved" Germany from Communism had heard Soviet army gunfire in Berlin. The industry his regime had revived lay in bomber ruins throughout the country, the territory he had conquered for "Lebensraum" was recaptured, and occupation armies held the nation.

Today, 25 years after Hitler began to shape Germany's policies, the country is split three ways, with two eastern sections under Communist German and Polish control.

Economic Activity To Climb

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UP) — Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson said Thursday night there is "every reason to be confident" that economic activity in the U.S. will take an upward turn during 1958.

Anderson, a native Texan who managed the vast Waggoner intests near here before going to Washington, told the annual banquet of the Northwest Texas Field and Stream Assn. his confidence was justified by several factors.

Numerous rearrangements in output, materials, prices and manpower utilization have already taken place, he said.

Also, reduction in inventories in many lines has brought a better balance.

Technological Gains

Other reasons cited included: Technological and scientific changes which have created and will create new products and new desires for these products.

Prompt readjustments in yields of stocks and bonds and in interest-rate levels in the financial markets.

Adjustment of credit availability to provide more investment for new products and the enlargement of others.

Housing Revival

A revival of residential housing development.

State, local and other divisions of govenment are keeping their expenditures high, and in most areas are increasing them.

"I believe it's a mistake for anyone to sell our dynamic economy short for any protracted period," Anderson said. "We have a growing population and there are ever-increasing demands fo those things which must be produced."

The Indian chief Tecumseh fought against the Americans in the War of 1812 as a brigadier-general in the British army.

Turkisn women obtained the right to vote and be elected to the nation's Parliament in 1933.

Men Can Learn To Be Drillers At Texas College

By KYLE THOMPSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

DALLAS (UP)— Time was when a driller and a tool pusher learned their trades in the oilfields. Now they can get scholarships to a drilling school and learn at Odessa Junior College.

The school was organized by the American Assn. of Oilwell Drilling Contractors in 1954, and originally was supposed to run only two or three sessions.

But the demand for more technical knowledge in oilfields has increased in recent years. Phil Blackburn, an official of the association in Dallas, said the school now will be operated indefinitely.

Early Days Different

Blackburn said years ago in the oil boom days a man in the field who could out-brawl and out-bark the next man usually had a better-than-even chance of getting ahead.

But not so in the oilfields today. "A man's strength, of course, is still needed in the field, but he has to have a great deal of technical knowledge to go with it," he said.

Blackburn said the school was designed primarily to help drillers and tool pushers. The six-weeks course, conducted by the Petroleum Extension Service of the University of Texas, is open to all supervisory personnel of drilling contractors, oil producers and service companies.

"A driller, or shift foreman, and a tool pusher who is ambitious must constantly brush up on new techniques in order to get ahead in the field these days," he said.

"The tempo in the oilfield is much faster today than it used to be. Also, the quality of the men in the field is much improved today."

Blackburn said the schools which begins its eighth session Feb. 10 in Odessa, has had students from almost every oil producing country in the world. A recent class, he said, had a student from Sumatra, one from Poland and one from Saudi Arabia.

The coming session, he said, still has some openings, but from past experience he said the class must be held to 30 or 35 men in order for the students to receive maximum benefit.

"We have received favorable response from numerous drilling contractors and others who have sent employes to the school," Blackburn said. "One contractor who sent 12 men to the school told us that 11 of them since have shown a marked improvement in the fields."

He said applications to the school are being accepted by the Petroleum Extension Service, University of Texas in Austin.

STUTTGART, Germany —German aviation pioneer Ernst Heinkel, 70, died Thursday of a brain hemorrhage, on the verge of a reported comeback in the plane industry. Heinkel, who designed the world's first turbo-jet aircraft in 1938, was reported by an aide to have been planning a partnership with Willy Messerschmidt, another prominent German aircraft manufacturer. He designed planes for the German air force in both World Wars, has been making small cabin scooters, motorcycles and engines since the end of World War II.

YONKERS, N. Y. —Dr. Clyde Eagleton, 66, former State Department legal official, law professor and author, died in his sleep Thursday at his home here. Eagleton started with the State Department in 1943 as a legal consultant. In 1944, he was assistant secretary of the International Dumbarton Oaks Conference that preceded the establishment of the United Nations. He was a technical expert at the San Francisco conference that founded the U.N. and he later served as consultant to the U.N.

FATMINA, Portugal — Father Nunes Formigao, 71, one of the principal investigators of the apparitions at Fatima, and the author of several books, died here Thursday.

LLUCHMAYOR, Mallorca, Spain — Mallorcan poetess and translator Maria Antonia Salva died at her home here Wednesday. She was 88.

NEW YORK—Former actor Edward M. Dreiser, 84, a brother of the late novelist Theodore Dreiser and the late composer Paul Dresser, died at the home of a friend Wednesday night. An accident that nearly cost him his eyesight ended Dreiser's acting career after its promising start in the 1900s.

• Jacoby ON BRIDGE

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

Today's hand taken from the recent Natonal Championships shows the difference between rubber bridge and duplicate play.

All South players chose to open one no-trump rather than one spade and all North players raised to three.

West would open his fourth best heart and South would gather in the trick with the ten. At this point correct rubber bridge tactics would be to go right after the five card spade suit and those declarers who did that would wind up making four no-trump. Those who wanted better things simply led a diamond at trick two and finessed dummy's ten.

The way the cards lay this forced East's ace but it didn't really matter too much if it lost to the jack. The point is that East invariable led back his fourth best spade. South allowed this to ride around to dummy's nine and West would be in with the jack. Now South would make four spade tricks instead of three and would wind up with five no-trump instead of four.

Of course if East had decided to lead something other than a spade South would probably have made four odd only and it also should be noted that South could have played the spades himself and made four spade tricks but that would practically require clairvoyance while once East was persuaded to break the spade suit all South needed was normal play.
