Hail, high winds and heavy rains fell over scattered portions of Collingsworth County Tuesday evening between 7 and 8 o'clock.

Reports stated that hail was drifted waist deep in some instances and the rain varied from light showers to four inches in depth; hail stones were said to be as large as hen eggs.

The heaviest hail reports came from the section which surrounds the J. H. Vice place, four miles west of town, and stated that drifts were waist high. Districts south of town also reported heavy hail, and other sections reported light showers. New Loco reports that hail was drifted one foot deep. Cecil Coe and Joe Baumgardner also reported heavy hail.
Fresno reported heavy hail with drifts more than 12 inches deep.
Dodsonville reported a heavy hail and rain with hail drifted two feet deep. Mr. Griggsby, 28 miles northwest of town, said that he had a heavy four-inch hail, and that hail drifted on his place 12 and 15 inches deep. Survey of the heaviest hail indicated that it followed the county line south and angled across through the Wil-nuclear community in a strip which extended to Dodsonville.

Cow Is Killed
John King, who lives on Mrs. R.
L. Templeton's place west of town, said that Tuesday night hail was drifted around the bridge and bar ditch 10 feet high, while fields and fence rows featured drifts of hail waist deep over the area. A cow

Collingsworth Team Steps Into Lead With Win Over Paducah Last Sunday

The Collingsworth "Gassers" officially opened the baseball season here last Sunday afternoon with a 4 to 1 win over Paducah. Fans from every section of the county "went baseball wild" and from every source praise has been lavished on the team for the past week.

outstanding plays of the game
when a fast ball was hit to him,

APPRECIATION TO THE STAFF

As previously announced, this issue of The Leader was published with the cooperation of the people of Collingsworth County due to the fact that Deck Wells, editor, is in Washington.

Generally, articles appearing in this paper were compiled by the people and are contributions for the welfare of the County, City and Community.

The Leader takes this opportunity of thanking John Forbis, editor-in-chief, and John Bonner, managing editor, for the splendid work and cooperation they have offered. Also the many other persons who have contributed to the edition. Due to lack of space some of the articles were omitted, but will be run next week.

Response and cooperation of the farmers, town people and officials has been splendid. We hope you will like the results. If you do, tell us; tell the editors and the writers of articles—and we will try it again sometime.

Kiwanis Sponsors Cured Meat Show

By JOHN O. STOVALL
County Agent

The eleven hams and five bacons displayed in one of the show windows in Wellington received numerous comments. These hams and baccons were samples of some of the 122 hogs killed and cured last fall by the A & M College methods. Comparing results of the farms this year to the work done by farmers on the South Plains near Lubbock it shows to be good.
The South Plains country have been doing this work for sometime but these hams and baccons of Col-them.

Funeral Services For Texas Pioneer

Sunday afternoon, April 15, for S.
T. Smith, 74, from the Ellis Fu-

Born in East Texas nearly seventy-five years ago, S. T. Smith was the son of Uncle Caleb Sman, a Methodist minister who was well known in East Texas since the days of the Civil War. Old timers remember Uncle Caleb who visited his son in Collingsworth County for several years beginning in 1908 and preaching in many of the churches over the county.

Church Of Christ Revival Attracts Large Audiences

By H. V. Hendry

Large and attentive audiences have been attending each service at the Church of Christ during the past week. The church auditorium has been almost full at each night service. During the day services about an average of seventy-five have been in attendance.
Ninety-seven attended on Saturday morning, and about forty-five braved a deluge of rain to attend on Saturday evening. The church feels that such fine attendance shows an interest in the gospel of the Master, and we feel truly thankful for such interest.

The meeting will continue on through Wednesday evening of this week. At the last service, Evangelist Price will use the theme, "The Way That Is Abrolutely Right." We cordially invite each reader of these notes to attend the remaining services.

President Greet Local Farmers

President Roosevelt, who Tuesday accepted and returned greetings to more than 900 Collingsworth County farmers, is described by Deck Wells, editor of The Leader, as having "the warmest, kindest smile I have ever seen on a human being." Farmers of this county were the only ones in the state to send greetings to the President and Mr. Wells said the last he saw of the resolution was when the President placed it on his desk.

Deck Wells Presents Resolution With 900 Names
In White House

Complete Report

Story Of Presentation Is Told By Editor In Special Telegram

"How are they coming out?"
Above are the exact words President Roosevelt wanted to know when he was presented in the White House at 11:45 Tuesday, with an expression of gratitude from more than 900 farmers of Collingsworth County.

The petition was presented by Deck Wells, editor of the Wellington Leader, and was the only expression of gratitude to be sent from any group of farmers in the state at this time.

Deck Presents Petition

Following will be found a complete summary of the presentation of the resolution sent to President Roosevelt by Collingsworth County farmers. The quotations are the very words of the President and those of Editor Wells are also exact, having been transmitted by telegram just before publication of this edition of The Leader:

"Mr. President, may I present this expression of appreciation from the Cotton Farmers of Collingsworth County." Editor Wells said upon being presented to the President.

A broad smile broke over the President's face and he said,
"Good, Good! That's fine. That's perfectly fine."

As Editor Wells turned to go he stated that the President inquired with the utmost sincerity and interest, "How are they coming out?"

Upon being asked this question
Editor Wells replied that farming conditions had improved and that the people of the county were deeply grateful for the work he had done in their behalf.

This was the full extent of the conversation as 115 Texas editors and business men, who rode on the Special Train to Washington, were Tuesday, April 24, one of the most anticipated occasions of the year will be celebrated, the juni-

upper classmen can hardly wait great surprise of motif and gen-subject of great wonder previous

The return for the banquet will ally a picnic at the Country Club.

May 4 is the probable date for Senior Day. This is a regular

Texas Industry Shows Great Gain

Statistics Encouraging In Comparison With National Figures

The growing importance of Texas industry to Texas' net income is demonstrated in figures compiled by Stuart McGregor, statistical editor of the Dallas News, in a recent article. One interesting sidelight it developed was that while National income for 1933 was down 52 per cent from the top of 1929, that of Texas was down only 42 per cent, and that while the National income increased only 3.7 per cent from 1932 to 1933, Texas' income climbed 42 per cent.

Details of the 1933 income show that of the total of $1,900,000,000, manufacturing industries contributed a total of $290,000,000, this being only the "value added by manufacture" as a net return. Raw materials, agricultural and livestock furnished $412,500,000 of the total, petroleum and other minerals accounted for $350,000,000, rail and other transportation came to $175,000,000 and wholesale and retail distribution, finance and professional service and other miscellaneous items accounted for the remainder of the estimate.

Three groups accounted for more than half of the State's total—agriculture and livestock leading with roughly 40 per cent; petroleum in second place with approximately 40 per cent; and "value added by manufacture" third with something less than 30 per cent.

TECH PROGRAM

LUBBOCK—The commencement program for Texas Technological College will extend from June 1st to 5th, with Bishop A. Frank Smith of the Southern Methodist Church, Houston, giving the baccalaureate sermon, and Dr. Henry G. Bennett, President of Oklahoma A. & M., speaking at the graduating exercises.

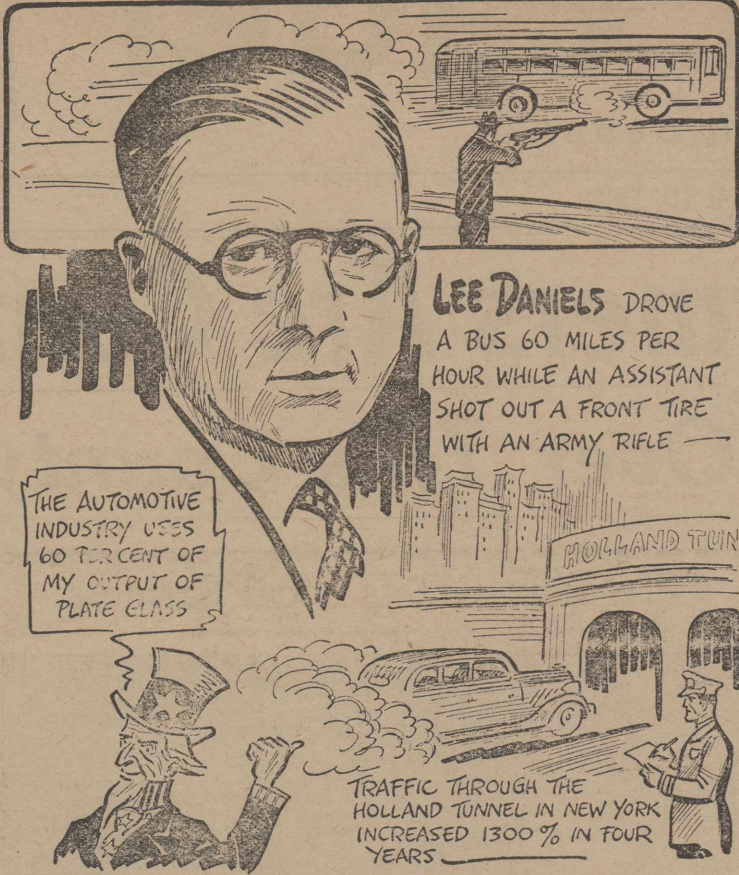

The list of activities also includes the annual reception for graduates, faculty and visitors at the home of President Bradford Knapp, the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the college, laying of cornerstones of the two new dormitories now under construction, annual alumni meeting and banquet, and the conferring of degrees.

France Is Told Civil War Means Foreign Invasion

PARIS.—Premier Gaston Doumergue told France last week that she must "once again save herself" from financial "catastrophe" and the "threat of civil war" that might lead to foreign invasion.

The aged statesman told how bloodshed in street riots February 6 brought him from retirement to pull his country out of threatening disaster and declared that civil war "risks bringing a yet more horrible thing: foreign invasion."

He was both a public prosecutor and a fatherly advisor as he spoke to the nation through a microphone in the Quai D'Orsay.

In crisp words he told how he thought he had finished with political life after 40 years of service in various capacities but came when he was called by "President Lebrun and party leaders who said civil war was about to break out that there was fighting in Paris, that people were killed February 6 and that there would be more the next day if I did not take power."

The late Serge Stavisky, whose Payonne pawnshop collapsed, cost investors $40,000,000, resulted in the overthrow of two governments before Doumergue took the helm, and led to a train of bloody riots, suicides and murder was not named in the address.

The name of the "master swindler" however was in "Smiling Papa" Doumergue's mind and in the thoughts of millions of his listeners when he said:

"The government must first appease overexcited passions and to do so promptly it must punish severely the guilty, whose imprudence and immunity have very justly exasperated the whole of our nation, which is honest, upright and sound."

Justice and a moral housecleaning must be hastened and "none must be spared," he continued. The state must fit its standard of living to its purse, the premier continued, since balancing the budget means less spending or more taxes and "an increase of taxation will mean accentuating the crisis and making more unemployment."

Gonzales Seeks Sheriff's Office In Gregg County

M. T. (LoneWolf) Gonzaulias with Tom Hickman, one of the most colorful of former Texas rangers, has flung his broadbrimmed sombrero into the political ring with the announcement he is a candidate for the Gregg county sheriff's office.

Gonzaulias retired from active service with the rangers with the second inauguration of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson. He resigned along with his only running mate, Bob Goss, now Kilgore police chief. Behind him he left a career of merciless law enforcing, in which he ran to earth, for the most part single-handed, some of Texas' most unlicensed criminals. His pseudonym was taken on by admiring fellow officers when Gonzaulias persisted in working alone on particularly dangerous and complex cases.

One of the outstanding instances of Gonzaulias' colorful career was that of several years ago when with Goss he fought a frenzied mob at Sherman.

Gonzaulias is credited with the invention of the "cable cure" for liquor smugglers on the Rio Grande border. In high-powered automobiles in escaping fire and pursuit of ranger outposts, Gonzaulias conceived the idea of stretching a limp cable wire across the road in advance of fleeing smugglers. The wire effectively wrecked the speeding cars, and soon halted wholesale border liquor traffic.

NEW TECH BANDMASTER

LUBBOCK—D. O. Wiley, director of the Simmons University Cowboy Band, has been employed to direct the Texas Technological College Matador band, filling the place of Harry LeMaire, who recently resigned.

Formal approval of the contract will be made by the Tech Board of Directors in June, to become effective September 1, according to President Bradford Knapp. Plans for an annual summer band school, similar to the annual coaching schools conducted at Tech have been made, the first to begin in 1935.

L. J. Campbell Tells Of Trip

Party Visits Old Home State Of Tennessee During Trip

By L. J. Campbell

Startling contrasts to Collingsworth County were recently presented to me as I visited my home state and neighboring states with a party of friends. Although I once lived there I have been a resident of this community long enough to learn its ways and love its people, and the Collingsworth way seems natural to me, for this is my home. Imagine the emotion I felt to go back to what should have been a familiar place, to find farmers making a living on an acre of ground and feeling they had a good sized place if they had twenty-five acres in cultivation.

And I had come to think of pioneers as we think of them here—people who have lived here thirty and forty years—imagine the difference to find a lady living on the same farm 87 years and still not considering herself a pioneer. But let me get back to the beginning of the story of this trip.

On Saturday, March 10 we received a message of the serious illness of my aunt, Mrs. Sallie Buchanan of Obion, Tennessee, who is 92 years old. As we were planning to visit there in the near future, we decided to go without delay so loaded up in L. C. Jones' 1927 model Buick to its fullest capacity. In our party were Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Jones, Mrs. Sammie D. Davis, my wife and myself.

Starting on our more than nine-hundred mile trip the next morning at 3 o'clock, by the time the sun was up we had traveled as far as El Reno, Oklahoma, and began to notice and marvel at the difference in scenery along our way but not such a decided change from our home county until after we passed through Oklahoma City. We took highway 62 and began to view the hills, post oak and shinnery with creeks and rivers running every few miles. Farms began to get smaller, hills larger and until finally they took the form of small mountains in the sight of us West Texans. We passed through several sections of oil fields in Oklahoma but saw none to quite compare with the fields in Wheeler County and others in this section of the country. Quite often we would sight mines, some in operation, others seemed to be shut down, as one of us have ever visited a coal mine we would have enjoyed going in a cave but did not take time.

We took highway 266 from Henshaw, Oklahoma and crossed the Texas River near Weber Falls. Here we took No. 64 and followed it into Fort Smith, Arkansas and let me say here, we found good roads the entire trip, either paved, gravel or hard surfaced. We went through some very rough swamp country in eastern Oklahoma. We enjoyed a real meal in Fort Smith of fresh water fish which is a treat to dry landers. We left there and began to see sights we have always heard about—these long unbelievable stories of Arkansas. We saw most everything we have been told and a lot more we had never heard of.

We again crossed the Arkansas River at Dardanelle, Oklahoma, traveling north, we arrived in Conway, Arkansas, at about 7:00 o'clock, where we spent the night, having driven a little more than 500 miles.

After a good night's rest we started at 7:30 taking No. 65 and traveling south as far as Little Rock. We again changed highways taking No. 70 which we traveled to Memphis, Tennessee. Between Little Rock and Memphis we passed through mountains and lowlands. In this mountainous region farms were small, ranging from 1-2 acre patches to some as large as 20 or 26 acres, and saw men wearing gum boots as they plowed with a one-horse plow leaving water in the furrow behind them and we were told at a filling station that they were having a long dry spell! Houses were built on hillside, some with the front of the house on the ground and the back on posts or stilts from 2 to 6 feet high. Some were high enough that the owner had his cow sheds under the house with the back door steps leading down to the lot, which seemed to me a very convenient arrangement in winter or wet weather. We really saw some unbelievable sights in Arkansas. There is some beautiful country in this good old state and some of the roughest I have ever seen, but we did not see anyone who looked hungry, nor did we see or hear of any nudist colonies in Arkansas. We crossed the magnificent Mississippi River Bridge at Memphis and saw several large steamships. As it was near the noon hour we finally located a cafe, which, by the way, was a Sea Food cafe, one of the highest class in the city, or so we found out when we paid our check, but we really enjoyed the fresh fish dinner.

After several amusing mishaps happened to our party, we left for the last lap of our journey. We arrived in Obion, Tennessee, at 5 P. M. Monday afternoon.

Our aunt is 92 years old and the farm on which she lives with her 68-year-old daughter, Mollie, has been her home since she was 5 years old, making 87 years she has made her home. These two fine old ladies I've alone and until the recent illness they had not had a doctor in their home for more than 27 years.

It has been 32 years since I left Obion and of course great changes have taken place. We drove a great deal while there, visiting places I knew in my boyhood and over the state line into Kentucky. It is a beautiful timbered country, lots of fine timbers and lots of good farms—some of them almost worn out and not in cultivation. My sister, Mrs. Jones, and I saw a number of old friends and school mates. It seemed like home again to us. The old churches and school houses were still as we remembered them. Cemeteries were well-kept and looked beautiful.

We enjoyed three meals a day of good country home, streaked, home made sorghum molasses and everything that goes with it and were treated with genuine Tennessee hospitality. But all good things must end, so after two enjoyable weeks, during which our aunt had improved, we had to bid them goodbye and turn homeward. We left Obion, March 27. It had been raining for a week so the lowlands were a perfect ocean of water, in many instances entirely covering the fence posts. On account of high waters we made the return trip by the same route, crossing the Mississippi River Bridge at Memphis, and from there to Little Rock, Arkansas, finding the lowlands all entirely under water.

We went from Little Rock to Hot Springs and spent two nights and one day there in the home of our old friends, Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Wilkins and their lovely family. Here, I may add that their son Hugh Wilkins married Grace Couch, daughter of our neighbor, Mrs. O. L. Couch. Dr. Wilkins is also an uncle of Alton Wilkins of this city. Mrs. Wilkins spent the morning in showing us the sights of this beautiful city and that afternoon Dr. Wilkins insisted we see the horse races and presented us with complimentary tickets, which we could not refuse. Tobe Deahl of Dodsonville enters horses in these races each year.

Thursday morning we traveled north to Fort Smith and past on through another mountainous section of Arkansas and through the Quachita National Forest. We arrived in Oklahoma City about sundown and spent the night in the home of some old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Arch McGraw. We left Oklahoma City the next morning and arrived in Wellington about 4 o'clock. It was an unusually enjoyable trip but we were glad to be home again.

Cave-In Fatal To Albuquerque Boy

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M.—Lying in a deep trench near the foundation of a new school building proved fatal for a 9-year-old boy and nearly cost the life of his 3-year-old sister and two companions when the trench caved in on them Sunday afternoon.

The boy, Delfino Salazar was dead when rescuers reached his body, which was completely covered with dirt.

Mrs. David C. Wheelock of Calais, Mo., 42, is the mother of 19 children, including one set of twin girls who were born recently.

Open Campaign To "Summer-ize" Cars

Releasing a series of Magnolia advertisements in the Wellington Leader, the company this week opened a county-wide appeal for the extension of "Summer-ize" service, according to Lee Fortenberry, local agent.

In reviewing the campaign, Mr. Fortenberry makes the following statement in connection with the engineers of his company:

"With the approach of hot weather, increasing numbers of motor vehicle owners are finding it profitable to safeguard their cars and assure care free operation with Magnolia 'Summer-ize' service, J. M. Marman, chief engineer reports.

"Summer-ize" is a coined word describing the 7-Point protective service provided only by stations and dealers of the Magnolia Petroleum Company.

"Both owners of new cars who want to insure them against early wear, and those less fortunate motorists who must keep their old cars running at least another year, are finding 'Summer-ize' service their best protection. The many car owners who have 'summer-ized' in former years have learned the value of Magnolia X-Point protection and are among the first driving in for the improved service this spring.

"Thinner, quick-flowing winter lubricants should be changed to heavier grades of Lubrite or Mobiloil lubricants capable of resisting the high temperature generated under summer heat in the crankcase, differential, transmission and other vital parts of a motor vehicle. "Summer-ize" provides a complete service made up of seven distinct operations, worked out by Magnolia automotive engineers as those most necessary to protect a motor vehicle against the high temperatures of summer driving."

DIDACTICS

Guess the members of the Texas Press Special are having a great time, this week in that city that is the "Architectural triumph of the ages, the substance of all that Builders ever dreamed, from Rome to the Toj Mahal." Washington City was planned by that romantic Frenchman L'Enfant, and is said to be the most attractive and interesting city on the continent. Think I would enjoy spending a whole month in the Congressional Building. Just a casual stroll thru there would bring memories of these intellectual titans of yesterday, whose voices were heard surging thru the "Arches dim" of the Senate Chamber. There was Petrus, the "Lion of the Senate," Voorhees, the "Tall sycamore of the Wabash," Beck, the "Lynx-eyed Scotchman," "Sun Set" Cox, whose magic pen, painting the Arctic and Oriental sun-sets, earned for him, the sobriquet, Blain, the Plumed Knight, and somewhere in the Lower House, is a seat whose memory is revered by every Texan, and whose name is chiseled in the Cenotaph at Austin, one of that immortal Band that carved from the jewel crown of the Montezumas, the Lone Star of Texas. There is another interesting building—the Supreme Court Building, the home of the highest legal tribunal, whose membership is drawn from the brain and brilliancy of the country's bar men, of scholarly attainment and cultivated intellects, whose decisions have stamped them as "Wise interpreters" of the law. There is the National Cemetery, where the country's greatest statesmen and warriors, dead, sleep under the stately elms of Arlington—there, too, is the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the Nation's expression of her sorrow, gratitude and pride in all her soldiers on all the battle fields of history. I sure would enjoy that trip, but for the present, will have to content myself with an occasional view of Amarillo's skyline, and Wichita Falls' oil derricks.

Most of the doctors that I know are a bunch of princely fellows. Aside from being skilled in their profession, they are men of integrity and high ideals, standing for and supporting all worthwhile things and institutions with their money, influence and example. Yet, some times it seems, show our lack of appreciation of their worth to the community, both a man and as doctors. Some colossal fake will blow in, with self-annexed letters after his name, who, in all probability, never attended, for for one day, an accredited school of medicine, and would scarcely know the difference between pills and porus plasters, and he will make extravagant claims about what he has done and can do, but if you will notice, his diagnosis is usually on the dollar—not the disease. People will flock to him and pay unreasonable prices, when the chances are, that the family doctor, who they can depend upon—who has stayed with them thru the years, who has answered their calls at all hours and visited them in all kinds of weather, is carrying them on his back—may be for months—may be for years. The real doctor that we know and love, is an asset to any community—indispensable to humanity and a credit to a great profession. The quack is a liability on any community—a parasite on humanity and a libel on the profession. Don't know why people will patronize the quacks, unless the explanation is found in Barnum's aphorism.

ABERDEEN

By Mrs. James L. Light

A large crowd attended the pie supper at Aberdeen on Wednesday evening, April 11. It was a success from every standpoint and was made possible by liberal support and contributions of the Wellington business men and candidates. The patrons and school faculty are grateful to those who attributed to the success. Roy Horn and Bill Deatherage furnished such splendid entertainment. Over $100.00 was cleared.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan Cummings received a message early Thursday morning that W. A. Cook, Jr., brother of Mrs. Cummings' had died suddenly in Wellington. The writer is joined by their many friends here in extending sympathy to the relatives in their hour of bereavement.

Mrs. Jack Lowry was unable the past week to fill her position as primary teacher in the school here.

Mrs. Pierce Tucker who became violently ill in church last Sunday, is recovering nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Hankins and family of Cottle County visited at the Bill Hankins and J. R. Darrow homes last week end.

Mrs. A. O. Sweat attended the bedside of her mother, Mrs. J. A. Smulcer of Sweetwater, Oklahoma, several days previous to her death on last Tuesday, April 10, following an illness of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Kay Gully announced the arrival of a son named K. T. Jr. on Sunday, April 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray C. Walker and small nieces Betty Jo and Patsy of San Jon, New Mexico, visited in the J. H. Walker home and other relatives and friends here last week.

Miss Bessie Woodring spent the week end with her mother, Mrs.

R. B. Woodring in Shamrock.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Jolly and son Eddie Bob, visited relatives in Groom, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Willingham and family visited in the H. K. Willingham home and attended church here, Sunday.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to take this means of expressing my appreciation to the merchants of Wellington who have cooperated so willingly with me in my work while I have been here. I have accepted a position with Phillips "66" Petroleum Co., and will not be here permanently in the future, but will always remember Wellington as my home and the home of my friends.

Bring Souvenirs From Visit With Old Mexico Indians

LUBBOCK, Tex.—A half-truckload of souvenirs from natives of the Yaqui Indian territory of Old Mexico has been brought back by Dr. W. C. Holden and his party after a six weeks' absence on the first major Texas Technological College scientific expedition.

"The Indians became quite friendly toward us after the first few days," Dr. Holden said. "We were in close contact with the natives and were in many of the homes. They permitted us to see unusual religious ceremonies and even make pictures of them. We have compiled a large amount of information which we consider very valuable in modern research."

Members of the party included: Dr. Carl Seltzer, physical methodologist from Harvard University; Dr. R. A. Studhalter, head of the Texas Technological College department of biology; W. G. McMillan, Lubbock contractor; Dr. C. J. Wagner, Lubbock surgeon; Charles A. Guy, publisher of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal; and Bennie McWilliams and Frank Maddox, Tech students. Ross Edwards, newly-elected mayor of the city of Lubbock, was with the expedition for the first three weeks.

A doll was named as co-respondent when Mrs. Sally Levy applied for a divorce from her husband, who is a celebrated ventriloquist in England.

The peat fire that has been burning near Osmotherly, Eng., for 170 years appears to be dying out.

YOU naturally expect Phillips 66 to be higher test than other motor fuels, when you know that Phillips is the world's largest producer of natural high test gasoline.

Just look at the gravity (or high test) figures, at the right. They prove that your expectation is 100 per cent correct.

Then ask yourself why Phillips publishes these figures month after month, while others do not! Obviously the reason is that Phillips figures are higher, that Phillips welcomes any and all comparisons based on fact.

For tired engines, this greater gasoline is a real Spring tonic : : : scientifically matched to the weather by the Phillips pioneer principle of CONTROLLED VOLATILITY. Every gallon is high test, and every high test particle puts new snap and power back of each inch of piston travel. Lively up acceleration. Adds mileage, too!

Since you don't have to pay a penny extra for it, how can you possibly lose by trying a tankful! PHILL-UP with PHILLIPS the very next time you see the Orange and Black 66 shield.

Make Experiment On Lamb Feeding

LUBBOCK, Tex.—The fifth consecutive annual lamb feeding experiment conducted by the Texas Technological College department of animal husbandry, in cooperation with the Texas agricultural experiment station, has recently been completed. The experiment included the use of silage for fattening purposes when supplemented with pulverized oyster shell.

"Results of the project are not clearly mapped out as yet," Prof. W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department, said, "but they will undoubtedly prove the value of silage as roughage in feeding experiments."

Lambs used in the project were sold at a market price of $8.25 per hundred, and yielded good-to-choice on foot and medium-to-good carcasses. In spite of the fact that there has been a considerable advance in the price of food, the margin between the price of feeders and the price of feeder lambs has enabled lamb feeders to realize a profit in the feeding.

The second annual livestock feeders' day will probably be held at Texas Tech May 25, at which time the results of this year's work will be discussed and work in the past will be brought up to date.

German Preacher Defies Bishop

BERLIN.—Martin Niemöller, Berlin's "Fighting Preacher" and a former U-boat captain defied Reichsbishop Ludwig Mueller, Sunday when he appeared in the pulpit of his church in Dahlem despite the fact that Mueller had discharged him and appointed a commissary preacher in his place.

The church, located in one of Berlin's suburbs, was crowded to the doors. The commissary preacher failed to appear, obviously fearing a clash.

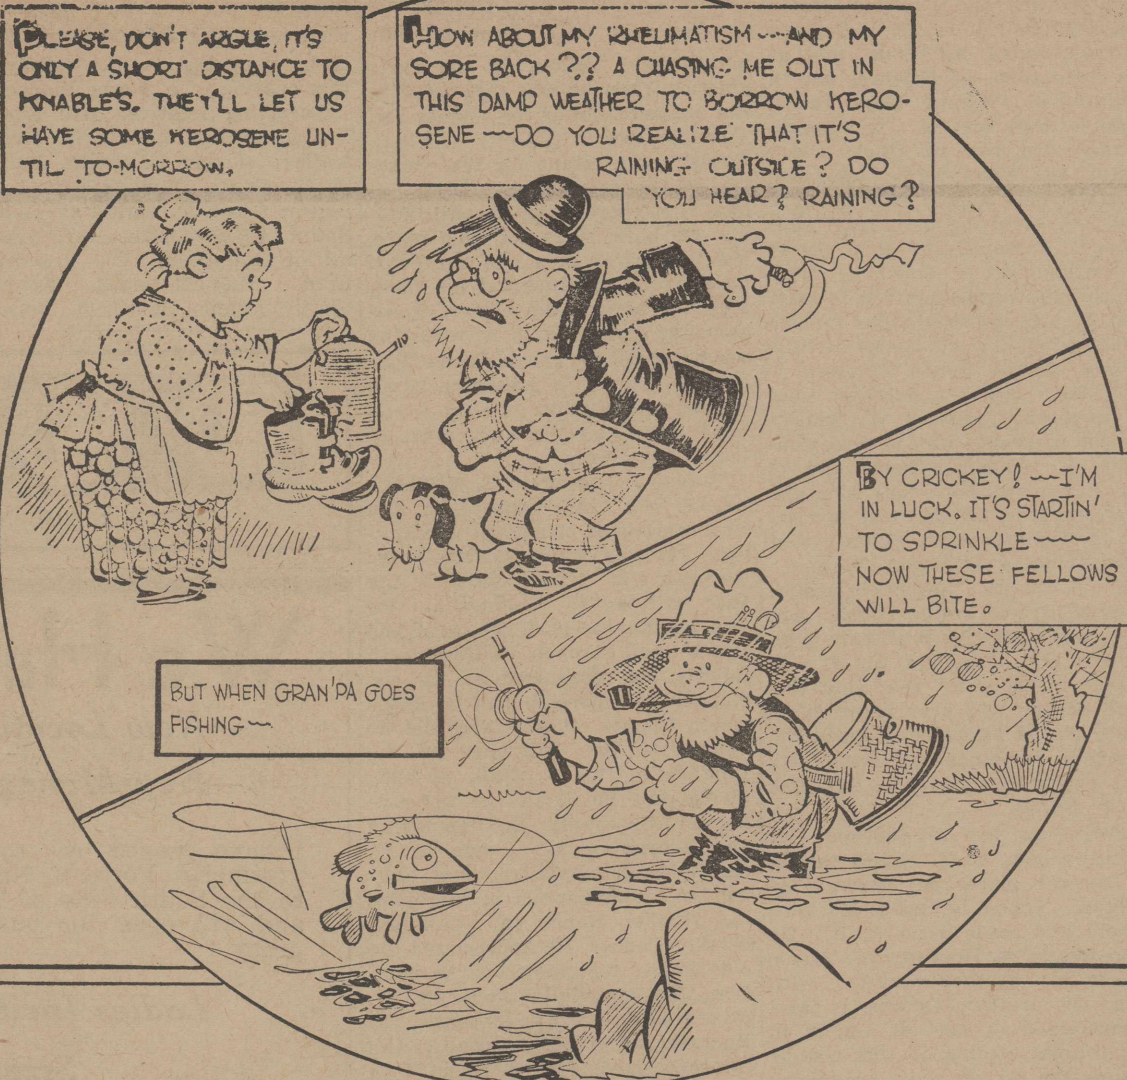

"Take it or leave it," said Alex Maddox, 77, negro farmer of Star City, Ark., as he forked over 4,019 pennies to pay his taxes.

The crowd was slowed up by the threatening weather. A large crowd attended and showed plenty of baseball spirit. Mr. Bonner pitched the first ball to open the game and no other than R. C. Dryden, old ex-Texas Leaguer, caught the ball. The pitch was a little wild due to the insufficient work out on Mr. Bonner's part. The next home game will be with Electra, April 29. to McNary County, Tennessee and from there Uncle Caleb emigrated to Texas and became a soldier in the Civil War and after the war he became a Methodist preacher and preached for over fifty years in Texas.

Shortly after the Civil War Frankie M. Bell and her mother, also from McNary County Tennessee, following the death of their mother and husband, Major Frank M. Bell of Forrest's Calvary also emigrated to Texas and at the little town of Kilgore, now a leading oil city of East Texas, Frankie Bell met S. T. Smith, Texas born son of Uncle Caleb Smith and they were married. Frankie Bell Smith died in 1900 and left surviving her, four children, R. N. Smith and M. C. Smith of Dallas, A. B. Smith of Wellington and Lizzie Smith who married W. M. Caldwell who is also remembered by old timers in this county. Lizzie Smith Caldwell is now dead and her husband lives in Houston, Texas. S. T. Smith's second marriage was to Sue Connally of Windom, Texas and to this union was born four sons and one daughter, all of them formerly of Collingsworth County but now living in Arlington, Texas.

S. T. Smith was christened Samuel Green Tullis Smith but after finishing Southwestern University and obtaining his A. M. degree in the first year that this high degree was ever bestowed in the State of Texas he dropped the Green in his name and henceforth was known as Samuel T. Smith or S. T. Smith.

Following his graduation at Southwestern, S. T. Smith taught in several places in Texas. At Kilgore, Texas he built his own school and made a go of it. He also taught at Honeygrove, Texas, where his brother taught with him. His brother, Dennis, is also remembered by the old timers in the county, coming to this county before the county was organized. S. T. Smith was next to the last President of Granbury College and moved from Granbury to Wellington in 1907 to become Superintendent of the Wellington High School. He taught several months in Wellington but because of his holdings in this county and the general conditions of the finances of the school system in Wellington he resigned before the expiration of his first nine-months term. Incidentally when he moved his family to Wellington, Texas, in 1907, he settled on what is now known as East Avenue, and it was also on East Avenue about one block from where he first settled that he died.

S. T. Smith was elected county surveyor in 1910 and served in this capacity until he moved to Arlington, to educate his younger children, following the World War.

The interest that S. T. Smith had in Collingsworth County, did not begin in 1907, however, but many years before, in the early nineties when he was interested in the organization of the County and a stockholder in the city of Pearl, Texas, a contestant for the county site of the new county. It was his idea that there were shrewd traders on both sides of the fence, the Wellington men and the Pearl men, so he manipulated his holdings and became the holder of one thousand acres of land between the two proposed townsites. When Wellington won, his holdings were almost as valuable as they would have been had his own town of Pearl have won.

Teams belonging to S. T. Smith helped haul the lumber for the first Methodist church of Wellington. He was whole heartedly interested and helped secure the first railroad to Wellington. He was behind the designation of the Ozark Trail through Collingsworth County. He recognized no clique nor clan in the upbuilding of Collingsworth County. Particularly did he appreciate the influence of the families of Wells, Stall, Gribble, Cocke and Small in the upbuilding of this county. His friendship and admiration of Judge E. H. Small began before, but was augmented by his contact in surveying the Hughes Ranch in Collingsworth County. He appreciated the old timers, too numerous to mention, but especially Judge P. W. Myers and his predecessors, A. Burger and O. W. Alexander. His interests have ever been in Collingsworth County and he has spent a large portion of each year here. His sons will endeavor to carry on in Collingsworth County, and his parting admonition to them was to carry on, to live a life of love and service to that land and to those friends that he knew in his lifetime, and they in turn desire to express appreciation to those friends who have helped in their hour of grief and have shown their sympathy to the family in this passing of a Texas Pioneer.

Surviving relatives are: Sue E. Smith, Arlington; R. N. Smith, Dallas; Marvin C. Smith, Dallas; A. B. Smith, Wellington; L. P. Smith, Oscar T. Smith, C. Hobart Smith, Clyde Smith, Mary Smith, all of Arlington. Five grandchildren, Francis Smith, Kennard Smith, Dennis Smith, A. Bernard

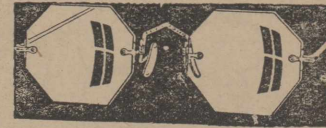

Smith, Jr., all of Wellington and Helen Smith of Dallas. Brother, M. D. Smith, Del Rio; sisters, Olive Steele, Bullard and Tenney Murray.

Interment was made in the Arlington Cemetery Monday afternoon.

Heavy Rains—

caught in a branch in this section and killed by huge hail drifts.

Reports also stated that Salt Fork and Red River were on a big rise and that torrents of water could be heard roaring through the channels for several miles.

The Tuesday rain followed two other rains, which fell in this county Sunday and Monday nights. These two rains, the latter of which was more general, were thought to be highly beneficial to the county. Some sections in the north and west portions of the county still need rain however, but the amount received will enable farmers to go ahead and plant feed.

Some old timers still believe the underground seasoning to be a little short as the heavy rainfall Tuesday washed off the land before soaking in to any great depth. The slow rain Monday was thought to have been of great benefit.

County Agent John O. Stovall said Tuesday that he thought that wheat crops were not yet mature enough to be demolished by the heavy hail.

Kiwanis Sponsor—

On the many statements made by the people inspecting the display. Several merchants and individuals made inquiry to sell and buy this meat. This is evidence to our farmers that they could sell surplus home cured meat if cared for in the proper way. I hope that more farmers will take advantage of the work next fall and kill and cure their hogs according to these instructions. This plan is one handed to the agent, that has been worked out by men specializing in the work in connection with the larger packing companies. This is no experiment with the county agents but is a proven method and everyone should feel that the plan is O. K. if carried out properly.

Some two weeks ago, I suggested to the Kiwanis Club the idea of holding a meat show. The response was one hundred per cent favorable and three committees were placed at my call. This is one of many projects of worthwhile interest to the community, emanating from Kiwanis members and being sponsored by the club.

Senior Class—

Many people in Wellington will recall Mr. Boles, since this is his native city. He is a very popular pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Tulsa. He is a very forceful, direct, convincing speaker who has a pleasing manner.

Tuesday evening, May 15, is the time for the class itself to present a program in which the members present their own accomplishments and plans for the future.

Thursday evening, May 17, is graduating time, the grand finale for the class. Reverend Gaston E. Foote of the First Methodist Church of Pampa will deliver the commencement address. He is a speaker whom we all know and whom we all are delighted to hear. Following the address, the diplomas will be awarded.

Look! See The New De Soto

Back in 1541, nearly 400 years ago, the simple children of the forest on the Mississippi, could scarcely believe their eyes at the scene that greeted their vision, 300 soldiers of old Spain in armor with all the gaudy trophies of burnished metal in gay colors, of the military regulation of that day.

Yet it is true that De Soto has Arrived. And is on Display at Cooper and Dorn's sales room. It is attracting about as much attention as De Soto did when he sailed up the father of waters in 1541. And Walter Chrysler (the designer) has ventured out into new fields of mechanism, about as far as the old De Soto did in the fields of exploration. You have to see the New De Soto to actually believe it exists. You may be like the old fellow who saw his first elephant at the circus. He looked at it awhile and said "there ain't no such animal." Well, we can't tell you all about it here but come look it over, see its riding safety—its beauty—its finish—then you can realize what the Twentieth Century engineers are producing for your safety, pleasure and profit.

"FORTY ACES AND A MULE"

Panaceas and remedies without number have been offered for the great depression through which we have been passing, and, by the way, in the theories of which we still seem to be. This paper is merely a feeble attempt on the part of amateurs to set forth some ideas and opinions long entertained on this particular problem.

In the first place, is it depression, or is it decadence? Is it only a temporary depressed condition in which we find ourselves and out of which we shall be able, sooner or later, to extricate ourselves, or is it the unerring finger of fate pointing backward toward the close parallels of dead empires? Is it merely a passing ailment, or is it the fearful symptoms of a dread disease? Is it nothing more than a mild complaint, or is it "Mene, Mene Tekel Upharsin"? We simply have been traveling now for some time the very road traveled by Greece and Rome, and at the present time we find ourselves in about the same predicament in which these nations found themselves when they either came to an end, or else underwent far-reaching changes in almost every way.

Here is the thing in a nut shell: As long as the ancient Greeks lived out on the plains of Attica, owning their own homes and tilling their own fields, Greece was solid and invincible. Even Xerxes with his mighty hordes could not dislodge them. But when these same invincible Greeks gave up their homes and fields and vineyards and moved to Athens to make up an inevitable idle population, then it was that the nation began to lose its pristine valor and character, and from that period on out her decadence is plainly discernable to the student of history. And again, just as long as the ancient Romans lived about in their own homes among the Appenine Hills and along the banks of the Tiber and out across the plains of Campania, that nation, too, was safe and secure in the might of her rural simplicity and in the strength of her habit of plain living and high thinking. But when they quit their rural and village retracts and flocked into Rome, there to make up the famous Roman mob, then it was that the Caesars stepped into the scene and the glory of the old Republic soon departed.

The main trouble, really the only trouble, with us today is that entirely too many of our people have left their homes and farms and the healthful and invigorating environment of their rural retreats and poured into our cities and towns, there to form what seems to be a permanent unemployed class. And therein lies the trouble and the danger. In other words, we have altogether too many homeless families, too many without hope been up-rooted from the soil and are moving hither and yon without hope or aim. Accurate statistics are lacking, but it can safely be said that at least one half of the families in the United States are without homes today, and a large part of these are in the clutches of dire poverty. Many of these have long since despaired of their condition in life. They feel that they have no chance or opportunity to fight their way back to a place of relative economic security and respectability in our economic and social structure. And in this situation they have lost hope and ambition and faith—they seem utterly to have despaired.

Here is the whole matter: These families and all other families as for that matter, should have homes of their own. When the family loses its home, it loses its hope and faith, and its incentives to worthy endeavor. When you cut a family loose from its home, you simply cut it loose from its moorings—cut it loose to drift. God linked the two—the family and the home inseparably together, and when this tie is severed, the very heart and soul of the family is gone, and a moral, social, and an economic problem invariably ensues. The home is the family's last refuge, its castle, its retreat, its port, its haven, its sanctuary. The home is the family's center of gravity, its crux, its focus, the hub out of which project the spokes of love and peace and satisfaction and contentment and pleasure that light up the ways of life like crowns of glory. A man will fight longer and harder and more stubbornly and courageously for his home and his family than for any other one thing that may come into his life. Every normal father and husband stands always ready to plant his back against the front door of his own home, with his family sheltered within, and fight valiantly to the last bitter ditch for that object of devotion that clutches his very heart strings. Economic security, national prosperity, social and moral rectitude, religious faith and fidelity, peace that passes understanding—all these must be anchored in the hearts and homes of the people. Go back over your history and you will find that the yomanry of any country, owning its own homes, with its feed solidly and immovably planted in the soil of its own native land, has always stood as an impregnable bulwark of defense and protection against an invading foe. Using the flag of their country and the Bible of their God as criteria by which to go, the country folk and villagers make up the backbone and marrow and the towers and fortresses of strength and might of the land and nation in which they have their humble homes. The unwise and precipitate influx of the population into cities and towns has, in all the history of the world, created grave and dangerous social, moral, and economic problems.

And this thing we call depression will end when this great army of homeless families, now pining and despairing in our congested centers of population, have been given an opportunity, by direct government aid if necessary, to house themselves in homes they may call their own and root themselves again in the soil that, under God, belongs to them, and the depression will not be over until that thing is on the road to consummation.

"Forty Acres And A Mule" was false and malicious propaganda during the Civil War period, but it, or something like it, seems now to be the only salvation for this country of yours and mine. But instead of "Forty Acres And A Mule," it should now be that plus plow tools, chickens, gardens, hogs Jersey cows, etc. etc. The cost of the project has no consideration in the matter, however great that cost may be. The thing has simply got to be done, if we are to arrest and correct the process of decadence into which we are surely slipping. You cannot get around it. God has given every man a natural inclination and longing to have his own home in which he may shelter his own family, and when you take this away, you take out the very heart and strength of the race. Let's give these homeless families another chance at life. Let's make it possible for them to have a chance to pay for homes on easy terms, and let's pass laws that will forever protect them in the possession of these homes. This is the way back to national health and security, and the only way.

WHAT WELLINGTON NEEDS MOST

By H. V. Hendry

Many things are important, but some things are more needful than are others. Jesus said to Martha: "Thou art cumbered about many things, but one thing is needful." May I humbly suggest that the thing most needed in our community is love.

We're we to attempt to define the word Love, we should probably meet with difficulty. Many things are best understood by their behavior—by the things done and by the things left undone. Inspiration says (1 Cor. 13), "Love suffereth long, and is kind; love envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. Doth not behave itself unseemly; seeketh not its own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity." Thus we have it negatively, and as we take a positive view we find, "Rejoiceth in the truth, beareth all things, endureth all things. Love never faileth."

Jesus said (John 14:15), "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments." And in verse 21 of the same chapter, He said, "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me."

The master also said, "Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things I say?"

When we love, we obey the Lord. The hungry are fed, the thirsty are given a drink, the sick are ministered to, the naked are clothed, broken hearts are soothed, and the brotherhood of men takes on reality.

Sometimes we are stingy with our love, and love only those who love us. Jesus said, "If ye love them who love you, what do ye more than others?" The master said to his disciples, "Except your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and pharisees, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of Heaven." Whom do we love?

Jesus said in Luke 10 and Mark 12, "Thou shalt love the Lord God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength—and thy neighbor as thyself."

The Wise Man said, "A Friend loveth at all times, and a brother is born for adversity."

The greatest love of all times said, "Husbands love your own wives. Waves reverence your husbands." Ephesians 5.

Jesus loved the Church and gave himself for it.

We find other quotations saying, "In love of the brethren be tenderly affectioned one to another." Rom. 12:10.

"But love ye your enemies, and do them good." Matt. 5:44.

Shall we ask again, whom do you love. When we love to the fullest, homes will not be broken, jails will not be filled. The bootlegger and his kindred house of ill-repute will vanish from our little city.

Remember, we are to love in deed and not in word only. All too often we are long on promise but short on fulfillment.

Let us give more attention to loving all whom we know. Let love rule the individual life, the home, the church, the school, the community. Let us put love in our business dealings, and forget it not in our social affairs. And then be assured we shall know for a truth that "all things work together for good to them that love the Lord," and that ours will be a most wonderful community in which to live.

Cost of Eternal Life

COST OF ETERNAL LIFE
Text: Matt. 19:1-30

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 22. No better story gives us an idea of the value of the eternal life, than was that of the rich young man who came to Jesus seeking the way to the Kingdom of Heaven. The story has made a profound impression upon human interest, yet it does not seem to have the same effect upon our spiritual attitudes and decisions of the will.

Wealth, though it need not necessarily be a barrier between man and God, and though it may in fact be made a means of grace and blessing, still constitutes a barrier that keeps men from the Kingdom of Heaven and from appropriating the reality of eternal life.

It is as true today as it was in the days when Jesus was on earth that where man's treasure is, there will his heart be also. The Kingdom of Heaven must be the first supreme thing in a man's life or it cannot be there at all, just as in a modern world a man cannot be a citizen of one country and at the same time give his chief allegiance to another country.

The failure to grasp this keeps men from entering the Kingdom, just as it kept this young man who came to Jesus.

One should not in any way misunderstand the dramatic aspects of the narrative. This young man was not a mean or selfish person. There is no indication that he was in any sense a money grubber or that he was unduly attached to his wealth.

He had great possessions, and he no doubt had grown up in the psychology that these great possessions induced.

The probability is that he was unable to see quite clearly the issuues involved. He turned away sorrowfully when Jesus invited him to find the Kingdom by leaving his great wealth, but the probability is that he was puzzled rather than confirmed in a wrong decision.

The power of his wealth and his environment had taken from him the capacity for clear thinking and clear seeing.

He was a moral young man. Jesus loved him because there was so much that was right and fine in his life.

We should, no doubt, today in our modern world set such a man as an ideal for youth. Yet here is the clear record that there was one thing lacking, the most essential thing of all, the thing that would have linked him to the Master and that would have given him his place in the Kingdom.

There is a tradition that the young man did ultimately come to Jesus or gave himself to the Kingdom, as he was not willing to do at this time. Tradition has associated this young man with Joseph of Arimathea, who asked for the body of Jesus, that he might bury it; but all this is tradition.

We do not know what was the young man's future, whether his rejection of Jesus and his departure in sorrow marked a final decision in his life, or whether he came later to some finer commitment.

One thing is certain, that if he went away sorrowful, there was thereafter no real peace in his life. He had missed that glorious satisfaction that again and again has come to men and women who have joyfully accepted Christ's invitation, though it has meant, apparently, the sacrifice of everything—even life itself.

They discover the truth of Jesus that he that loseth his life shall find it.

Those who yearn today for a newspaper job—the inexperienced, understand—do not realize what they must go through before they can be recognized as truly a newspaper person. It is true there are a great number at this moment attending colleges and studying journalism. But they have only travelled a short distance. Actual experience is said to be the best teacher. Certainly it holds as a fact in newspaperdom. A journalistic student, after finishing a course and securing employment, realizes early how much has been taught, and he finds after having invested a considerable sum in his "education" must begin all over. There is more to publishing a newspaper than the surface indicates. There is still grief as there was grief in years gone by, and there will continue to be grief. It's all in the game, but it's a grand old game at that.—Chillicothe News.

The cow is a female quadruped with an alto voice and a countenance in which there is no guile. She collaborates with the pump in the production of a liquid called milk, provides the filler for hash, and at last is skinned by those she has benefitted, as mortals commonly are.

The young cow is called a calf, and is used in the manufacture of chicken salad.

The cow's tail is mounted aft and has a universal joint. It is used to disturb marauding flies and the tassel on the end has a unique educational value. People who milk and come often in contact with the tassel have vocabularies of peculiar and impressive force. The cow has two stomachs. The one on the ground floor is used as a warehouse and has no other function. When this one is filled the cow retires to a quiet place where her ill manners will only occasionally find comment and devotes herself to belching.

The raw material thus conveyed for the second time to the interior of her face is pulverized and delivered to the auxiliary stomach where it is converted into cow.

The cow has no upper plate. All of her teeth are packed in the lower part of her face. This arrangement was perfected by an efficiency expert to keep her from gumming things up. As a result she bites up and gums down.

The male cow is called a bull and is lassoed along the Colorado, fought south of the Rio Grande, and shot in the vicinity of the Potomac. This poor specimen of the cow is seen and is more popular and worth more as a decoration on a tobacco board. Cows look up to the bull and wish they could get that high position.

A slice of cow is worth two cents in the cow, 16 cents in the hand of packers and $3.40 in a restaurant specializing in atmosphere.—Raton (N. M.) Range.

We have all read of the slaying of the two highway officers near Fort Worth last Sunday. Did you ever stop to think what our local officers would be up against at Vernon? No matter how brave bandits of this type were to invade, they might be, it would be plain suicide to go up against them. All of the prominent hijackers are equipped with the latest type machine guns and the average officer has only .45 calibre pistol and sawed-off shotguns. The only way to suppress crime is to meet them on their own terms—with the latest and best type of firearms.

While we hope Vernon will never be visited by any of the "leading men" of the state, yet if we should have them come around we had rather that our officers be properly equipped. We believe that our county and city officials would make a good investment to buy one machine gun each for their peace officers. Despite all the efforts of the state and federal governments, the crime has not been materially stopped and the only way it can be stopped is with hot lead. We believe that all officers should be instructed to shoot first and then ask questions afterwards. This would be the most effective method of combatting crime.—Vernon Times.

Economy is strategy practiced by the pioneers that they would be able to develop this great country of ours and until we return to the tactics pilloved by them we can not hope to find the corner. Who blazed the trail that man could roam to lands afar in quest of home, the Pioneer.

Who paved the way that man could send a message dear to kin across the Pioneers.

Who gave us the railway train, our ranches large, the fields of golden grain, the Pioneer.

Who gave to us the church and school, who just taught men the golden rule, the Pioneer.

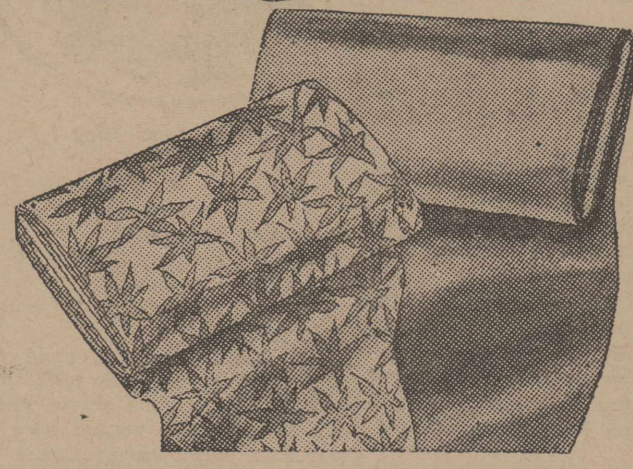

Who made it possible that we could sing peace on earth, good will to men, the Pioneer.

Local Club Women Attend District Meet

Mrs. W. H. Lynn, Mrs. Lee O'Neil and Mrs. Cleo Templeton left Sunday for Amarillo to attend the annual meeting of the Women's Federated Clubs of the Seventh District.

Mrs. Lynn is the art chairman of this district and has done excellent work during the past year. She has sent numerous circular letters to the clubs in the district urging program on art appreciation and the procuring of exhibits by well known artists to further this.

This entails real effort on Mrs. Lynn's part and the district organization is to be congratulated on electing such an efficient officer.

Mrs. O'Neil represents the City Federation of Women's Clubs and will make a report of the work done in civic advancement by this organization. It is believed the reports will compare favorably with those turned in by other towns.

These meetings are an inspiration to club women and it is to be regretted a larger delegation could not attend this year.

Review Of County P. T. A. Council By Mrs. Dryden

By Mrs. R. C. Dryden Retiring President of County P. T. A. Council

A brief resume of the years' work of the Collingsworth County Council shows the—Organization of one new unit of Parent-Teacher Association.

The renewal of one unit.

A worker's conference was held jointly with the City Council.

An invitation was extended to, and every local Parent-Teacher unit in the county has been urged to cooperate, in every phase of the work, with the Council.

A visit from the district president, Mrs. J. E. Griggs, of Amarillo, was inspirational.

About thirty letters and ten postal cards were sent to units concerning P. T. A. work.

The bylaws were approved by the state board and adopted in a regular session of the council.

Four regular meetings have been held and about seven executive and committee meetings.

A carnival and get-together meeting was held September 23, 1933, and as a money-making scheme, entertainment booths, and booths for the sale of candy, cold drinks, foods, etc., brought satisfactory results. A sum of more than $100.00 was realized from this source.

The year's work, as a result of the splendid cooperation and the united efforts of faithful P. T. A. workers over the county, has indeed been a pleasure and with a great deal of satisfaction. "Without our willing shoulders applied to the wheel of the educational wagon, we cannot hope for it to move either very fast or very far."

The retiring president of the County Council P. T. A. wants to urge all rural units to continue their splendid cooperation with the new officers of the council, an organization that will afford you an opportunity to interpret educational service to the people in this county, and until all eyes are turned toward the "County P. T. A. Council" as having the cooperation of every Parent-Teacher unit in Collingsworth County.

To all Parent-Teacher members of every unit to whom I have had an opportunity to serve and work with you, again I extend my appreciation and thanks to you.

MY FAVORITE RECIPE

Meat Loaf Ring

By Mrs. C. R. Berryman
2 pounds ground beef
1 pound ground pork
Salt and pepper
2 chopped onions
1 cup of cracker or bread crumbs
2 eggs.

Mix ingredients and mold into ring, then cover with milk. This mixture is delicious either with a can of tomatoes poured over the loaf and sliced bacon across the top or filled with a mixture of carrots and peas, after baking. Garnish with parsley and lemon slices.

Recipes For Asparagus Prepared by Leader Stewed Rhubarb

Wash rhubarb. If skins are tough, remove the toughest portions. If the rhubarb is crisp and tender do not remove skins. Add water to a little more than half the depth of the rhubarb. Bring to the boiling point, remove from the flame, and sweeten to taste.

Asparagus

Since the end of the tip is more tender than the stem part uniformity of doneness can be attained only by special treatment of the parts in cooking. Method 1. Cut of the tough ends, leaving the bunch unseparated. Place the bunch on end in a high narrow container. Add water to come only part way up the stems. Cook uncovered until the tougher part becomes softened. Then place a cover and finish by steaming the tops until done. Method 2. Cut the usable part into one inch pieces. Cook stem parts until somewhat softened. Then add the tips and finish cooking. This is the more practical method.

Creamed Asparagus and Egg on Toast

Cook the asparagus by the last method using sufficient water freely, slightly more than to cover. When the asparagus is almost done, season well. Break in as many eggs as servings desired. Cover and permit to simmer and steam until the eggs are somewhat firm. Place the eggs on slices of toast. To the asparagus and covering water, add a half cup of sweet cream to which sufficient flour has been added to make a medium cream sauce. This will require two tablespoons of flour for each cup of liquid.

Columinst Discloses Interest In Civic Affairs

By Mrs. Clark Anderson

The interest in the revival meetings at various churches in town having wiped the social calendar clean of all parties except those whose dates were previously set has made the temporary society editor rather at a loss for resources. In such a predicament the resourcefulness of a Booth Tarkington is needed. In his first successful novel, "The Gentleman From Indiana," he makes that worthy fill his newspaper with "patent insides" on all occasions when there was a paucity of local news. Patent insides being, as your scribe understands it, varied news concerning peoples, customs and places kept on hand for just such an emergency as this. If that is a trade secret it probably will not get by the composing force, or if it does the regular editor can just say the present incumbent knew nothing about the matter. That will be quite all right—she probably doesn't.

One thing the incumbent does know about, though, is the ancient, unalienable right of all editors-in-chief, city or society—to cover up lack of real knowledge by a lengthy recital of poly-syllabic words and technical terms guaranteed to befog the mind of practically any reader. Being a poor speller without a dictionary at hand that means of filling space is also out.

There is one subject which can be talked about that needs no clever phraseology and that is the improvement in the courthouse lawn. The new planting is beginning to show up nicely, individual plants look healthy and show evidence of new growth. The clubs which donated the funds for the purchase and the ladies who selected the shrubs and planned the arrangement deserve the great credit. The economy effected by these ladies is considerable when compared with the usual cost of such landscaping. Mr. Moore, who digs so assiduously in the beds and plies them regularly with a garden hose deserves commendation. He is doing an excellent job.

Ellison Park is greening up beautifully and is worthy of going across town to see. The double rows of native trees across the park planted last fall are leafing out—a fact which must bring the chairman of the Park Committee, Mrs. High, immense relief as she was to be seen out examining them with commendable solicitude long before the most intrepid robin had arrived. The robins have flown farther north, the spirea is in full bloom and the field lark is in undisputed possession. More prosaically—the equipment is in good condition, the rogue players are busy leveling off and sanding the courts; and some new equipment for tiny tots and for children over twelve is badly needed. There have been whispers of a surprise for the Park Opening this year but that must be kept a secret just now.

As a forerunner of pleasant things to look forward to mention, should be made of National Music Week. It is understood that the Musician's Club is preparing a delightful evening of music to which the public will be invited. This will be a treat to music lovers and for your own sake don't fail to look for a definite announcement later.

Plan Health Day For Children

AUSTIN, Tex.—"Mothers and Babies First" is the slogan for Child Health Day, which will be held on May first, according to Dr. H. N. Barnett, director, bureau of child hygiene. Texas will join with other states in the nationwide celebration. There is a special significance in this year's celebration because children are always among the greatest sufferers in periods of hard times.

Child Health Day is a challenge to all adults to take stock of the health needs of all children, babies as well as those of school age, in their communities. All should be interested in furthering all measures to conserve health and promote happiness of children. An examination by the family physician at this time would not be amiss. He can detect signs of malnutrition, unsound teeth, heart defects, poor vision, poor hearing, and many other defects and can advise the parents of the proper treatment necessary.

Parents should take an inventory of what they are doing for their children, to see if they are neglecting anything that should be done to remove health handicaps.

It is suggested that every community in the State conduct suitable exercises on May Day. Texas has always taken a prominent part in this observance and each year numbers of clinics for babies and preschool children are held. In this way a community-wide interest is centered on the small child. Teachers, children, and members of clubs are enlisted to establish year round activities for the betterment of mothers and babies.

ON TEXAS FARMS

By W. H. DARROW
Extension Service Agent

Honey June Sweet Corn, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station bred corn for Texas conditions, succeeded so well in Palo Pinto county last year that 16 of the home demonstration club pantry demonstrators there are planting it this season.

A feed bill on cattle of about $1500 was replaced last winter by 200 tons of hegari ensilage put in a trench silo by Joe Culver of Gregg county. In following the county agent's suggestion to do this he thought he was taking a big chance. Instead, he made about $300 on the deal as the silage cost $6 per ton delivered to the cow. Mr. Culver says he will double his silage this year.

Celery started in a hot bed last spring by Mrs. S. R. McClure, farm food supply demonstrator of New Hope Home Demonstration Club in Ochiltree county, furnished the family, tender, crisp celery late last winter.

A. C. Goodnight of Hays county who has been operating by Extension Service methods for several years, lets cows and hogs harvest the crops. His 219-acre farm is fenced and cross-fenced. The most profitable land on the farm is a permanent pasture, he states. He keeps a trench silo filled, and has sweet clover, alfalfa and peanuts in his fields to balance up the other feed crops.

In shakelford county 86 home demonstration club women will take the guess work out of gardening this year by planting for each member of the family 584 feet of vegetables, divided equally between the four classes; green or leafy, garden fruits, starchy, and other vegetables.

Because he allegedly "cussed" out loud in church John Valley was arrested in Cavele, Calif.

KEEPS FAITH

With The Seniors

As an incentive toward better scholarship in this county I offered, several months ago, to the boy and girl making the highest grades in the Senior Class this year a prize of an endowment 20 Premium Policy, paid one year in advance. The letter below shows that it will be impossible for me to carry out the plan.

But I am still interested in the welfare and education of the children of this community—and I will give, personally, $25 in cash as a prize to both the boy and girl who have the highest grade average for the past year.

As long as I am in the insurance business in Wellington I will continue to stand behind my word, just as myself and my company stands behind the faith and integrity imposed in us when we sell a policy.

Gentlemen:

There has come to our attention an advertisement which Mr. Eugene H. Vaughan, an agent of your Company, has inserted in the Wellington High School paper, in which a prize is offered in the form of "an endowment Twenty Premium Policy paid one year in advance."

We are sure that you agree with us that it is illegal to offer insurance as a prize, and that you will take immediate steps which will result in the withdrawal of any such proposal.

(Signed)

Yours very truly,

Farmers Who Signed Resolution To Pres. Roosevelt

President Happy Because Farmers Thought Of Him

waiting in line. The resolution of the farmers of Collingsworth County was presented immediately after resolutions from the Texas Legislature and from members of the goodwill train and was the only expression from farmers presented.

Following the presentations, the President expressed his appreciation of the visit and said "we did not need to sell Texas to him." He also joked about his fishing trip and said that he hoped to come to Texas next year to try his hand at fishing in John Nance Garner's home state.

Impressions of President

In expressing his personal impression of President Roosevelt, Editor Wells says, "He seemed genuinely glad to know that the farmers had thought of him. He has the warmest, kindest smile I have ever seen on a human being. His personality is magnetic. His good humor is abounding. The Texas delegation did not eat with the president, as planned, due to the fact that he was entertaining the president of Haiti. The last I saw of the Collingsworth Farmers' Resolution, it was on the President's desk."

Names of those who sent their expression of gratitude from this county to President Roosevelt follow:
