NEW WIRES ADDED

A-J Doubles Its Texas Coverage

BEGINNING tomorrow and covering all editions—Morning, Evening and Sunday—The Avalanche-Journal steps up its coverage of Texas news around the clock.

Added to the reader's daily fare will be the Texas Big City wire by the Associated Press, heretofore available only in the large metropolitan centers of the State.

Moving over a network of leased wires and delivered into The A-J's newsroom by fast automatic telegraphic printer machines, the Big City service will double the volume of Texas news heretofore delivered over the AP's General State wires.

The new facility will further augment The Avalanche-Journal's additional network of foreign, national and sports by both The Associated Press and the United Press International—the full-scale news report which equals that delivered by the two major news services to the largest newspapers in the nation.

TENS OF thousands of words daily pour into The A-J's wireroom by way of 12 AP and UPI circuits, day and night, like the purely local and area news, dwarfing the reports received by the entertainment media which present only brief periods of news from time to time.

Included in The A-J's AP and UPI leased wire services are both day and night national trunks of the two services, carrying the volume of foreign and national news; day and night market wires by the AP; day and night national sports wires by the AP; and the Texas State reports day and night, by UPI, in addition to the new AP Big City Texas wires.

Thus, Lubbock is served, every minute of each 24 hours, with the news of the world, the nation and the state, in all the categories of human activity.

STRIKE DISCORD PERSISTS

New Yorkers Gird For Another Week

(By United Press International)

NEW YORK—The second weekend in the big town's massive transit strike gave New Yorkers a chance Saturday to catch their breath, strengthen their damaged nervous systems and gird themselves for more combat duty when the back-to-work call is sounded on Monday.

The great hope in the minds of New York's millions was that the dispute would be settled before the next work day and its inevitable traffic jams, but there was little evidence to support it.

Mayor John V. Lindsay, ending nearly 24 hours of silence on the strike, urged negotiators to press for a settlement over the weekend.

Negotiation Discord

"I request that the parties stay at the negotiating table steadily without letup," Lindsay said. He added that an end to the dispute this weekend was "essential."

However, the prevailing atmosphere at negotiatin headquarters was one of discord with both the Transit Authority (TA) and the Transport Workers Union (TWU) indicating they were digging in for a long, hard test of strength.

Far from dwelling on a speedy agreement, the chief concern in the minds of most TWU officials was a mass demonstration planned for Monday in front of City Hall.

The demonstration was planned as a show of strength on the part of the rank and file behind TWU negotiators as well as a protest against the arrest of top union officers. There were reports Saturday that other unions in the city would lend full support to the

A TEXAS TECH coed was killed and three other persons were injured Saturday in a two-car collision west of Lubbock which registered the first traffic fatality of the year on the South Plains.

Dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital here at 1:05 p.m. was the driver of a small foreign car, Wendy Ann Warthen, 21, West Hall, Tech campus.

The Department of Public Safety said she was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Warthen, 703 Kirkwood Drive, Dallas.

In fair condition at Methodist Hospital late Saturday was Edison W. Hallford Jr., 24-year-old Tech student who lives at 2117 18th St.

Others Injured

Hallford, who suffered a broken pelvis, was a passenger in the car, which he reportedly sold to the coed Friday.

Also injured were wives of two Reese AFB officers. In good condition at the base hospital late Saturday was Mrs. M. Harlene Heller Wilson, 25-year-old teacher, 2022-B 54th St., the other driver. Base officials said she suffered head injuries.

Given emergency treatment and dismissed from the Reese hospital was Mrs. Mary Barbara Verdict, 22, 5540 19th St. She also received head injuries in the crash.

Occurred About 1 p.m.

Texas Highway Patrolman Ted Court said the crash occurred shortly before 1 p.m. at the intersection of State Highway 116 and FM 179, three miles west of Lubbock.

The coed's car was traveling south on the farm road and the Wilson auto was headed west on the Levelland Highway. Court said stop signs are posted on FM 179.

The DPS said the westbound car smashed broadside into the smaller vehicle, demolishing it.

Henderson Funeral Home ambulances removed the injured from the scene.

The body was taken to Hender-

8,000 MILES

Woman, 93, Embarks On Long Voyage

(By The Associated Press)

MOMBASA, Kenya — Grandmother Emmy Cole, beginning the journey of a lifetime at 93, sailed away Saturday aboard a 40-foot yacht with her family, trusting in "God and good seamanship" to get them 8,000 miles to New Zealand.

Sprightly, white-haired Mrs. Cole stepped confidently aboard the yacht Galinule which will be her home for at least the next three months and gave a final cheery wave to a little knot of friends gathered on the beach.

The British aircraft carrier Eagle, towering at anchor above the Coles' 12-ton trimaran, sounded a farewell blast on her siren.

Survival Not Doubted

With Mrs. Cole is her son, Cmdr. George Cole, 60, a British navy veteran; his wife, Jean, and their two children, Jane, 23, and Charles, 20.

"I am taking the trip in my stride," said grandmother Emmy. "It has never struck me that I may not survive the voyage, but if I should die what better place than at sea with all my family around me?"

The Galinule, built by Cmdr. Cole with the help of friends, will sail first to Darwin, Australia, where the voyagers will await good weather before attempting to cross the Tasman Sea.

"When we get to New Zealand we'll just look around and see what it has to offer," said Cmdr. Cole.

Wright To Pass Up Senate Race

FORT WORTH (AP)— Rep. Jim Wright said Saturday he will seek another House term and will not run for the Senate, a post for which he was considered a major candidate.

Wright considered at one time seeking the Democratic nomination for the Senate office now held by John Tower, a Republican.

State Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr has announced he would seek the Democratic nomination to oppose Tower.

Wright said response to a recent statewide broadcast asking voters to give him guidance on whether to seek the Senate seat "was not sufficiently numerous nor general . . . to constitute evidence of a truly spontaneous groundswell." He said he had heard from slightly less than 7,000 voters who sent in $48,828 in funds.

OPINIONS DIVIDED

Key Solons Ponder LBJ Peace Efforts

(From Avalanche-Journal News Services)

WASHINGTON—Key senators divided sharply Saturday over whether President Johnson should continue the moratorium on bombing in North Viet Nam in the absence of any public sign of Communist willingness to negotiate.

The differences of opinion were disclosed as administration officials asserted that the President's peace drive has started a worldwide chain reaction of diplomatic contacts aimed at intercession with Hanoi's leadership.

In the past two weeks top U.S. envoys have visited more than a score of capitals in Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Far East to explain the U.S. position. As a result, many of these countries now have begun their own peace soundings, either directly with Communist North Viet Nam officials or with intermediaries.

Mansfield LBJ Backer

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who has warned that the failure to start peace talks could lead to general war in Asia, said he is supporting the President's peace offensive 100 per cent.

"I am hopeful that the end is not in sight in the President's efforts to bring about honorable negotiations," Mansfield said.

However, Chairman Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee said in a separate interview that "the suspension of bombing has gone on too long already." He said he believes the Communists are using the lull to build up air defensesand again advocated bombing of North Viet Nam port facilities.

"I see no difference between bombing their ports and bombing their highways, roads and ground supply routes," he said.

Dirksen Unsure

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said he doesn't know whether any peace feelers have come from the Communist side and isn't sure whether the bombing lull will accomplish anything.

Dirksen took occasion to reaffirm that he is supporting Johnson's course in Viet Nam despite the Illinois senator's comments Friday that the United States must force the Viet Cong to lay down their arms before there can be negotia-

IN DEPARTMENT STORE

Burglars Use Scout Tools To Loot Cash Registers

A BURGLAR made use of Boy Scout equipment—a shovel and flashlight—in looting Hemphill-Wells Monterey Center store, where $250 in cash was reported missing Saturday morning.

The break-in was one of several being investigated by Lubbock Police Department Saturday.

The shovel and flashlight were lifted from a display in the boys' department, detective Robbie J. Mullins said.

The burglary was discovered about 5 a.m. Saturday by a janitor, who noticed that a panel of electrical switches on the south side of the store had been disturbed.

The janitor then walked to the center of the building and noticed that cash registers had been pried open and emptied. The Boy Scout shovel was used to pry open 10 cash drawers containing a total of $250.

Whole police were at the store investigating the incident at mid-morning, a maintenance man came to the store and said that a nearby resident had notified him about 11:45 p.m. Friday that lights were on in a "bay truck room," a loading area for delivery vehicles.

The maintenance man said an overhanging door had been raised 16-18 inches, enough for someone to crawl underneath. The Boy

Viet Nam Drive Biggest Of War

(United Press International)

SAIGON (Sunday) — U.S. troops have launched their largest offensive operation of the Viet Nam war to sweep clean the Communists' Ho Bo Forest stronghold 25 miles north-northwest of here, it was disclosed today.

For security reasons the Vietnamese high command was not even notified of the operation until the last minute and no Vietnamese government troops took part.

More than 7,000 American troops, aided by Australians and New Zealanders, converged on the Viet Cong stronghold Saturday morning in the wake of a strike by giant B52 bombers and an artillery barrage unprecedented in the history of the Viet Nam war.

Copters Hit

American military authorities at the forward command post of Trung Lap, said at least five U.S. Army helicopters were riddled with machine gun fire as elements of the 1st Infantry Division and the 173rd Airborne Brigade were lifted into landing zones both north and south of the forest.

Three of the damaged helicopters flew out under their own power, however, according to Maj. Gen. Jonathan N. Seaman, commander of the 1st division, who has over-all control of the operation.

The remaining two choppers and their crews were lifted out of the operation area by huge H37 helicopters.

Most of the battalions thrown into the offensive sweep—600 to 800 men in each battalion—had clashes with the Viet Cong.

The Australians briefly were pinned down by more than 100 Communist troops who raked their landing zone with fire from three sides.

With artilley and air support, however, the Australians managed to overcome Viet Cong resistance to their airborne landing. The mangled bodies of at least six Viet Cong were found when the Aussies finally drove the Communists from their defensive trenches and foxholes.

The Australians also reported capturing about 5,000 rounds of ammunition, along with 12 machine gun barrels, 35 grenades, three individual weapons and a quantity of assorted military equipment.

U.S. and Australian casualties were light throughout the first day of the operation, according to the military command.

Ex-Tahokan Dies In Viet War Action

CANYON (Special) — Capt. Donald R. Blair, 27, known in this area as one of West Texas State's flashiest halfbacks and at Tahoka for both his football and track prowess, was killed Saturday in a Viet Cong ambush 50 miles from Saigon.

Details surrounding Capt. Blair's death were skimpy, but military sources indicated he was in a truck convoy attacked by the Reds, near the town of Long Hai.

In Zone Seven Months

A member of Advisory Team No. 89, he had been in Viet Nam for seven months and was reported due to return to this country in June.

Capt. Blair's wife and two children, John Scott, 6, and Sara Sue, 4, reside here at 1709 6th Ave. A sister, Mrs. Carl Gene Spears of Tahoka, said Capt. Blair's body would be shipped home, but that the time of arrival was uncertain. Funeral arrangements are pending at Lagrone Funeral Chapel here.

Starred In Football

Speed and hair-trigger reactions starred Capt. Blair in football at both Tahoka High School and West Texas State University. Lettering both in football and track at Tahoka, he attended college here on a four-year football scholarship, majoring in physical education.

Blair was a 1956 graduate of Tahoka High where he was an all-district fullback for the Tahoka Bulldogs. He was a halfback on the Canyon college's team for three years.

A kidney injury kept him sidelined much of his senior year at WTSU, but this was no block to his entering military service. He was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1960 on graduating with a bachelor of science degree here.

Salute Paid Abernathy Man Killed In Viet Nam

By TANNER LAINE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

ABERNATHY — Funeral services for Marine Cpl. Raymond Stanley Joy Jr., 23, of Abernathy, were held here Saturday morning, bringing into sharp focus for the South Plains an accelerating conflict in Viet Nam, where he died.

"Stanley sacrificed his life on the altar of human freedom . . . fighting for a just cause . . ." an officiating minister said.

Burial, with graveside and military rites, was scheduled in McAdams Cemetery near Graham at 5 p.m. Saturday under direction of Chambers Funeral Home, Abernathy.

Joy was killed in action last Dec. 16. He was a member of the Third Marine Division, First Special Forces Reconnaissance Group.

"Stanley was captured and killed while on patrol," said one of the officiating ministers, Portis Ribble, of Amarillo.

Residents of a hushed and respectful town, where he grew up and attended schools, overflowed the Church of Christ auditorium here for the rites at 9:30 a.m.

The flag-draped casket was placed before an arch of flowers before the pulpit 30 minutes before the service began. Bright sunlight streamed from windows beside it.

A choir sang softly as friends and relatives gathered at the church.

Relatives filled five or six rows of the church interior. Included

CLAIMS COLLEGES PREFER SELECTIVE SERVICE TESTS

Hershey Says Pressure Increasing To Restore Korea-Type Draft Standards

By DON McKEE

FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service, said Saturday he has received pressure from colleges to restore Korean wartime draft tests to fill increasing manpower needs.

Hershey said it was his guess that the needs would be similar to those of the Korean War when the draft ran about 80,000 a month. That is more than double the current draft.

Hershey said the colleges prefer the selective service tests as opposed to the gauge of class standing because this relieves the institutions of involvement in who is drafted.

"I've been getting a lot of pressure from the colleges to go back to the Korean War test," Hershey said in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press at this Army base where draft directors from ten states meet Sunday to discuss ways of filling quotas.

Hershey said the colleges prefer the selective service tests as opposed to the gauge of class standing because this relieves the institutions of involvement in who is drafted.

"I don't want to say we're not going back to class standing alone," Hershey said, but he said he felt the final decision will be a combination of tests and class standings.

Deferments for college students will become more difficult to obtain, Hershey said. A decision on this will be made after the draft chiefs talks with his state directors about a possible return to Korean War standards which made it tough to get a deferment.

The conference will be the first of three regional meetings called by Hershey. Directors from Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Tennessee, North Carolina and South Carolina will attend the meeting. The Puerto Rico director also will be here.

Peace Move Factor

"It will be more difficult to get a deferment hereafter," Hershey said. But the exact procedures will depend upon what results from the U. S. peace move in Viet Nam and the national budget.

"We are in a situation where there are several unsolved problems," he said. "Therefore, there is a certain amount of waiting."

Hershey said he wanted to get the directors in a frame of mind for quick action in the tightening of draft loopholes.

"I have always got to prepare for the worst," Hershey, 72, said. "I said two months ago I had a tendency to believe that we are going to stabilize at about 30,000 a month.

"Now I don't know what to think.

"I guess we're trying to get ready for a Korean War affair where it will be about 80,000 a month."

Steps Listed

He said the steps of an increased draft, after available 19-year-olds have been taken, would be: 1. College Students 2. The 1Y category — those who failed their draft exams and 3. Childless marriages.

Of the 1Y group, Hershey said he got a concession from the military to take young men scoring as low as 15 on the mental test as opposed to the 31 points now required.

Hershey said a means of uniform selection in college deferments has to be worked out and probably would be based on a combination of class standing and Selective Service tests — the two criteria of the Korean War draft.

Hershey said he would review for the state directors the policy on Selective Service law violations such as draft card burning, or interfering with local boards. He said he felt that the law was satisfied if a man who avoided the draft later agreed to serve.

PLEA FOR UNITY ADVANCED

Tower Calls For Viet Nam Victory At State Republican Leaders Meet

AUSTIN (AP)—State Republican leaders heard Saturday a call for victory in the Viet Nam War and a plea for unity as the 1966 elections approach.

Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) who returned recently from South Viet Nam, told the State Republican Executive Committee that Hanoi appears to have rejected Johnson administration peace feelers.

Hanoi Not Convinced

"Let us not be misled by the peace offensive," said Tower, who is expected to anndunce around Feb. 1 his candidacy for re-election to the Senate.

"I don't think the enemy is convinced we can or will beat him. He therefore is reluctant to come to the conference table to reason with men of good will. It seems to have gotten to the point where we have to hurt Hanoi a little bit more before they are prepared to meet the President's minimum conditions for a free South Viet Nam."

Tower, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said Republicans "has a responsible opposition party," should avoid using the Southeast Asia convict as a "political football."

Noting that next year's federal budget may exceed $115 billion because of the war, Tower said: "If we have to tighten our belts, let the cut come in non-defense spending endeavors which are not essential to the prosecution of the war effort."

"You cannot have a great society unless your first have a secure society," he said, to the applause of the committee.

Tower's re-election appeared very much on the minds of the GOP leaders, who adopted a resolution praising his performance in the Senate and urging his re-election.

Albert Fay of Houston, Reman, made an impassioned plea for harmony and advised the state committee members not to take sides in GOP primary contests.

"I think 1966 is going to be really and sincerely the most crucial year the Republican party not only in Texas but in the nation has faced in many a year," he said. "I believe there will be some great Republican victories in November this year."

Benefits From Redistricting

Fay said Republicans should benefit from the legislative redistricting bill, which created a number of House seats with no incumbent, particularly in urban areas.

Apparently referring to the bitter 1964 Senate primary between Republicans George Bush and Jack Cox, as well as to 1964 GOP presidential politics, Fay said:

"I strongly believe every primary candidate should run on his merits, not on the demerits of his opponent. . . Don't give the Democrats campaign ammunition. I urge you not to commit political hara-kiri for yourselves or your opponents in this regard."

Fay said he was found in his travels over the state less divisiveness within the party in recent months.

An expected report from the committee's general counsel, Duncan Boeckman of Dallas, on Wednesday's federal court ruling that new Texas congressional districts are constitutional failed to materialize. State Chairman Peter O'Donnell of Dallas said Boeckman was called away on business and would report to the committee members by mail.

The committee named four new members to replace those who recently resigned.

They are Richard Ellis of Marshall, replacing Jack Mann of Longview; Mrs. Madeline Norris of Houston, replacing Mrs. Bonnie Hazelrigg of Houston; Mrs. Joe Pratt of Victoria, replacing Mrs. Frank Buhler of Victoria, and Billy Gragg of Palestine, succeeding O. H. McCollum of Hearne.

Curtis Blasts Demo Economic Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Thomas Curtis (R-Mo.) Saturday denounced a democratic proposal that big business notify the federal government 60 days before it plans to raise prices.

It would cause "economic stagnation," Curtis said.

The Missouri Congressman, Republican leader in the field of economics, said such a proposal would not answer the nation's fundamental economic problem, which he described as how to keep prices stable and nearly everyone employed.

NEPHEW OF FAMED JESSE JONES

Houston Chronicle President Resigns

HOUSTON (UPI) — John T. Jones Jr. resigned Saturday as president of the Houston Chronicle and vice chairman of the board of the Texas National Bank of Commerce. He also resigned as a director of both organizations.

Jones said the moves became necessary in order to devote full time to his own business interests. He and associates purchased radio station KTRH last September and at the same time purchased 32 per cent of the stock of KTRH—TV.

The resignations severed most of his remaining ties with the Jesse H. Jones interests, with which he has been associated since childhood. Since the death of his uncle, Jesse Jones, in 1956, he has served in top roles in all of the Jones enterprises.

"The years that I have been associated with the Chronicle and its people have been rich with experience and rewarding in personal happiness," Jones said in announcing his resignation. "I bring them to close with nostalgia, but without regret."

"Under the leadership of John Mecom . . . I am confident that the growth and position of both the paper and the bank are assured," Jones said.

Gratitude Expressed

Statements of gratitude for able service and of best wishes for Jones' success as an independent businessman were made by John W. Mecom, Houston oilman-rancher who is in the process of buying the Chronicle, the foundation's stock in Texas National Bank of Commerce and other Jones properties; and by J.H. Creekmore, president of Houston Endowment.

Jones' resignations are the final step in a process he started almost a year ago to disassociate himself from the Jesse H. Jones interests and become an independent businessman. He ceased attending meetings of the board of trustees of Houston Endowment, of which he was chairman, last July. He resigned from the board Aug. 13.

Jones said his heart and his best wishes will always remain with the Chronicle, the bank and the other enterprises his uncle developed.

Mecom signed a contract on Dec. 6, 1965, to purchase from Houston Endowment the stock of the Chronicle, the Rice Hotel, the Rice Hotel garage, the Rice Hotel laundry and the foundation's 30 per cent stock holding in the Texas National Bank of Commerce.

Jones Praised

Mecom praised Jones for "the unselfish leadership he has given to the Jesse H. Jones interests during the decade following the death of his uncle."

"I join the many thousands of Houstonians who have come to respect and admire John T. Jones Jr., in wishing him every success and happiness in his new role as an independent businessman," Mecom said.

Creekmore said in his statement, "the other members of the board of trustees of Houston Endowment Inc. join me in expressing deep gratitutde to John T. Jones Jr. for devoting all of his time and leadership to the operation of the foundation's properties since the death of Jesse H. Jones in 1956."

Jones was named assistant to the president of the Chronicle in May of 1948. He was named president in March of 1950. Following the death of Jesse Jones, other top executive posts in the Jones enterprises.

Jones was named assistant to the president of the Chronicle in May of 19488. He was named president in March of 1950. Following the death of Jesse Jones, he was named to numerous other top executive posts in the Jones Enterprises.

Jones and his wife, the former Winifred Small of Austin, live at 74 Huntley Drive. They have three children

FIVE NAMED BY JAYCEES

Astronaut White Is Among Five 'Outstanding Texans'

AUSTIN (UPI) — Two politicians, an astronaut, a newspaper executive and a city manager Saturday were named the "five outstanding young Texans" of 1965 by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The honorees included speaker Ben Barnes of DeLeon, W P (Bill) Hobby Jr. of Houston, Col Edward H White II of San Antonio and Seabrook, State Sen Jack Strong of Longview, and Mesquite City Manager George R. Schrader.

Barnes, 28, is the youngest man in Texas history to complete a term as speaker of the Texas House of Representatives. His election as speaker last year was the first time in state history that a speaker was elected by unanimous Choice by his colleagues.

Hobby, 33, son of the late Gov. W P Hobby, is president of the Houston Post. His mother, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, is chairman of the board and editor of the Post. She was the nation's first Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare under President Eisenhower.

White and Strong both are 35 and Schrader is 43. Texans between the ages of 21 and 35 are eligible for the annual Jaycee award.

White is the first American astronaut to walk in space. He is a native of San Antonio and a graduate of West Point and the University of Michigan, where he receivd a master's degree in aeronautical engineering.

Strong, an attorney, was elected to the state senate in 1962 in his first try for political office. Schrader, a native of Kansas, served as assistant city manager at San Angelo and as city manager at Ennis before being named city manager at Mesquite.

TAUNTING DEMONSTRATORS THREATEN TO RUN OVER POLICE

Angry Negro Mob Blocks Highway To Protest Slaying Of Rights Worker

TUSKEGEE, Ala. (UPI) — Hundreds of taunting young Negroes blocked a highway and threatened to run a police line Saturday before authorities reversed their stand and permitted a march into the downtown area.

The march was to protest the slaying of a Negro civil rights worker Monday.

"I know when we move over your chest you're going to come back to me on your knees. I know you're scared," said one demonstrator shaking his finger in the face of Police Capt. Grady Story when officers first stopped the march.

The demonstrators, most of them students from predominantly Negro Tuskegee Institute, sat down on a highway and snarled traffic for one hour and 10 minutes before police finally agreed to let them proceed.

Ranks Swell

About 330 demonstrators set out from the institute campus, but by the time the demonstrators reached the downtown area there were more than 500 in the ranks.

Once in the business district they sat down on sidewalks, covering almost an entire city block. Only a few white people were on the streets in this town of 7,240, where Negroes outnumber whites 3 to 1.

White shoppers in the block where the demonstration took place quickly crossed to the other side of the street when they realized what was happening.

The demonstrators held their sit-in on the sidewalk for one hour and then formed a column of threes and marched back to the campus singing "We Shall Overcome."

Police initially halted the march on the outskirts of the business district on grounds the marchers did not have a parade permit.

The demonstrators then moved from the sidewalk, where they had been marching, onto Highway 126, where they succeeded in tying up traffic for blocks.

During the tense hour and 10 minutes the demonstrators heckled officers by telling them they were out of uniform.

Ten highway patrol cars, containing two troopers each, moved up to enforce the small contingent of city and county police handling the confrontation.

Here Comes Wallace

"Here comes Mr. George Wallace," one demonstrator shouted, referring to Alabama's segregationist governor. Wallace has frequently sent his highway patrol into trouble spots to handle racial disturbances.

At one point during the tense confrontation a demonstrator walked up to Safety Director Alton B. Taylor and told him:

In loud tones of voice the demonstrators voted whether they should run the police line. The majority wanted to proceed, but before any clash occurred officials, with the help of two representatives from the Federal Community Relations Service (CRS), one white and one Negro, managed to work out a compromise.

The agreement was that the demonstrators would proceed to the downtown area by a route approved by police and would limit their protests to a sit-in.

Halting of the march marked the first time in a week of demonstrations that authorities have interfered with a protest in Tuskegee. Students at the institute have been protesting the fatal shooting of Samuel L. Younge, 21, a fellow student and a field worker for the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

Younge was shot following an argument over use of a rest room at a service station. The white attendant, Marvin Segrest, 69, has been charged with first degree murder in the shooting.

Derailed Freight Train Kills Two

BAINBRIDGE, N.Y. (UPI) — Two elderly persons died Friday night when a derailed Delaware and Hudson Railroad freight train crashed into a home and set it afire.

One of the cars plunged over onto a parked automobile and trapped Mrs. Alice Johnson for two hours. She had been waiting at a grade crossing for the 77-car freight to pass.

The dead were identified as Anthony Deleilo, a retired railroad worker, and his wife, both in their 70s. Their charred bodies were recovered in the ruins of their home after it collapsed and burned.

It was undetermined what caused the accident which saw 49 of the 77 Delaware and Hudson freight cars hurtle off the track, knock down utility lines and demolish the village fire station and police chief's office in addition to Deleilo's home.

Archeologists have found pieces of man-made iron nearly 5,000 years old.

DESIRE ERHARD'S OUSTER, COALITION

West German Politicians Weigh Chances For Political Upheaval

BONN, Germany (AP) — West German politicians are weighing the chances for a political upheaval that would:

—Oust Chancellor Ludwig Erhard.

—Bring Socialists into the government.

—End some of the powers that Britain, France and the United States have held over Germany since World War II.

Adenauer Wants Change

One of the most irritating of these powers is the right to take over the government if the security of the Allied forces in West Germany appears threatened.

Erhard, naturally, is against a change that would cost him his job. Just as naturally, Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin, and other Socialists, would like to get major posts in a national government for the first time since 1930.

It is a little more surprising that ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and President Heinrich Luebke agree that it's time for a change. They belong to the Christian Democratic party, as Erhard does, and normally would prefer to have their party alone in the government or sharing power only with the much weaker Free Democratic party, as it does now.

Coalition Previously Discussed

Adenauer and Erhard have fought a running political battle for years. Nor is there much love between Adenauer and the Free Democrats, who played a big part in forcing him to step down as chancellor in 1963.

But advocates of a "big coalition" of Socialists and Christian Democrats now say it is not a matter of personal politics. Times are such, they argue, that West Germany needs a government of the two big parties representing nearly 90 per cent of the voters and able to muster the necessary two-thirds parliamentary majority for constitutional changes. The price of Socialist cooperation would be Socialist representation in the cabinet, say observers.

There was a lot of talk about such a coalition during last summer's election campaign. If the Socialists had made a better showing it might have been formed right after the vote.

But Erhard took a strong stand against it — so strong he could hardly keep his job if a bit coalition were to be formed.

Adenauer revived coalition talk again just before Christmas and it has been the subject of widespread debate ever since.

He told an interviewer: "We have a series of important jobs to do, and to do them the cooperation of the two great parties is absolutely necessary."

One of the major jobs would be wiping out present treaties by which the United States, British and French forces in West Germany could take over the government if their security were threatened. In normal times they are also the only authorities with the right to tap telephones and open private mail.

The Allies have promised to give up these rights if the West Germans can pass their own laws on how to deal with emergencies. So far Erhard has not been able to make a deal with the Socialists to get the amendments through.

ACCORDING TO RECENT OPINION POLL

Public Still Supports LBJ's Policy In Viet Nam Despite Questions

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director
(American Institute of Public Opinion)

In dealing with complex world problems, every President has a difficult time making his views known to the many diverse people and groups which make up the American public.

The war in Viet Nam is a good case in point. Even though the President and his advisors have answered innumerable questions about Viet Nam, many people still have unresolved questions in their minds.

To obtain some idea of what these questions are, Gallup Poll interviewers asked every person included in a carefully drawn cross-section of the nation:

"If you could sit down and talk to President Johnson and ask him any question you wanted about Viet Nam, what would you ask him?"

In effect, this amounts to a people's press conference.

In Two Categories

The questions that would be put most often to the President, fall largely into these two categories:

"Why are we fighting in Viet Nam?" and "Why don't we step up our efforts in Viet Nam?"

These questions take many forms. For example, the different ways people would ask the President to tell why we are fighting in Viet Nam include:

"Why do we keep sending so many soldiers into Viet Nam?" . . . "What caused the whole thing?" . . . "Why did we get into the war in the first place?" . . . "Just what is our goal there?" . . . "Would you send a son of yours there?" . . . "Do you feel it's really worth the cost and lives and why?" . . . "Why don't we see a true cause in it all?" . . . "Does the Government in Viet Nam really want our help?"

Questions that come from those who ask why we are not stepping up the Viet Nam war are stated in these typical ways:

"Why don't we go in there, full force, and finish it?" . . . "Why don't we do more bombing in the North?" . . . "Why don't we bomb Hanoi?" . . . "Why not exert more power?" . . . "Why not send more bombers?" . . . "Why don't we declare war?" . . . "Can't we go in and clean up that mess?" . . . "Can't we either make a war out of it, or quit it?" . . . "Why don't we use our muscle instead of throwing stones?"

Next to these two, other questions mentioned by persons included in the survey fall into these general categories:

"When will the war end?" "Why can't we negotiate?" "Why can't we get out of Viet Nam?" "Can we really win?" "Are we getting all the truth about Viet Nam?"

Despite their questions about Viet Nam, the public continues to support President Johnson's handling of the situation.

This question has been included regularly in Gallup Polls of the nation over the past six months:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way President Johnson is handling the situation in Viet Nam?"

As the results clearly show, a majority of persons continue to give President Johnson a vote of confidence for the way he is handling the situation there.

Here are the latest results for the nation and the trend on this question since June.

Opinion On LBJ's Handling of Viet Nam Situation

	Latest %	Aug., 1965 %	July, 1965 %
Approve	56	57	52
Disapprove	26	25	26
No opinion	18	18	22

The people who are best informed about the size of our military commitment in Viet Nam — as judged by their answer to additional questions asked in the survey — show a greater approval of the way Johnson is handling the situation than the less well informed.

Public's Views On Length of Conflict

Whatever the public's questions or doubts about the war in Viet Nam, they are not looking for an early end to the conflict.

To learn whether or not the public is thinking in terms of a quick termination of the war, this additional question was asked:

"In terms of time—months or years—how long do you think the fighting in Viet Nam will last?"

Although the average guess was that the war would last for at least two years, 20 per cent guessed it would last from 3 to 5 years, and 22 per cent said it would last longer than five years.

Here are the detailed findings:

How Long Will Fighting Last?

1 year	16

RED CHINA THREAT NOTED

India-Pakistan Talks Reportedly Are Stalled

By CONRAD FINK

TASHKENT, U.S.S.R. (AP) — The India-Pakistan summit conference was in a near shambles Saturday and India revealed it has been menaced anew by Communist China. A solid peace agreement for South Asia seemed remote.

Some Indian officials blamed Chinese intervention for a stiffened Pakistani attitude and an almost complete breakdown in negotiations between Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India and President Moahmmed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

Kosygin Move Expected

Pakistani officials replied they were only sticking to their long-held stand that unless India settles the quarrel over Kashmir "there is little likelihood of stable peace being established."

Ayub and Shastri did not confer at all Saturday and a major effort was expected Sunday from the conferenee host, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, as the Russians tried for some face-saving agreement.

High-ranking members of the Indian delegation said a hardening Pakistani position coincided with a "very severe warning" to India from Communist China. Both came Thursday, the Indians said.

Peking, at odds with New Delhi since their 1962 border war, charged Indian soldiers were intruding into Chinese territory and that if this continues "the Chinese side will resolutely strik eback."

Claims Combined Threat

South Asia—the 480 million people of India and the 110 million of Pakistan—appeared caught up in another developing round of tension.

India claims it faces a combined threat from China and Pakistan, and that the Chinese intervene at decisive moments to "buck up" the Pakistanis.

This is what happened Thursday, some Indian officials charged, when Kosygin was shuttling betwee n Ayub and Shastri, laboring for agreement on at least minor issues in the India-Pakistan struggle.

From the Pakistani viewpoint, the conference was endangered when India made clear its determination not to negotiate on Kashmir, a Himalayan state it claims is an integral part of the Indian union.

The Pakistanis came to Tashkent to talk about Kashmir and were embittered by India's refusal to negotiate.

Whatever the reason, midweek signs of progress almost disappeared Saturday at news briefings given by both sides.

India's Foreign secretary, C.S. Jha, said, "I do not have much progress to report. There has not been much progress since Thursday."

Pakistan's Altaf Gauhar declared "there is little to discuss about peripheral matters" or a no-war pact with India.

New Canadian Booklet Cross-Indexes Weeds

OTTAWA (AP) — What to one farmer is stink weed may be to others: penny-cress, fanweed, frenchweed, wild garlic, mithridate mustard or bastard-cress — or, in Latin, Thlaspi arvense. And so the Canadian Agriculture Department has compiled a booklet cross-indexing such names to rescue farmers from the weedy nomenclatural jungles.

Says K.F. Best, department expert on weed names: "Thus a farmer wishing to inquire about control of a plant he knows as Johnny-go-to-bed-at-noon will find he is referring to goat's-beard or, to use the scientific name, Tragopogon dubious."

'65 OFFERED BANNER YEAR IN INDUSTRY, FIELDS

City, Area Expect Continued Prosperity

New Buildings To Alter Lubbock Skyline In '66

By DAVE KNAPP
Avalanche-Journal Staff

BUOYED by good fortunes wrought by 1965, Lubbock and South Plains residents have plunged into another promising year, filled with expectancies of even more glittering achievements in almost all fields from education to entertainment.

Economic barometers and prophecies by the experts presage continued prosperity in most fields of endeavor as the South Plains strengthens its claim to being one of the nation's most exciting and fastest-growing regions.

Also Some Uncertainties

But while most residents look toward 1966 as a year of promise, it also will have its share of uncertainties, defeats, tragedy of crime and tragedy in many forms, disappointments and improvements.

Since it rode area hopes for a medical school, Texas Tech, the location of Lubbock of a $40 million Atomic Energy Commission accelerator, an unrelenting upsurge in industrialization and construction, together with mushrooming growth.

WEATHER, the most unpredictable element of all, will [illegible] agriculture, [illegible] And if it follows [illegible] wide discomfort or even [illegible] wondering the possibility [illegible] forget 1965—if [illegible]

Texas Tech had its [illegible] within [illegible] accidents killed 115 persons, including three mishaps which took 29 lives, [illegible] caused death and [illegible] at Hale Center and [illegible] would-be bank robbers staged a messy but [illegible] at Idalou. [illegible] Lubbock State Bank. Lubbock [illegible] and school trustees wrestled with two hot potatoes, [illegible] and [illegible] farmers harvested [illegible] and cotton crops.

Elections Coming Up

Although state legislative matters kept the political pot boiling, election year fireworks are noticeably absent from the 1966 picture will return again this year spaced by Texas and Texas races headed by two favorite son candidates.

As memories of the old year fade and perspective [illegible] they are weighed, these were the observations and predictions on vital elements of the area's life and economy.

CITY GOVERNMENT — Looking back on 1965 for the City of Lubbock, the picture presents a combination of ups [illegible] speckled with a tinge of [illegible] "tax-conned guy."

The year began with Mayor Mac Tidmore proposing an end to the automobile personal property tax to the city. The council went along with the idea only to find out later during the three-tax struggle they couldn't legally do what they did. However as far as the city is concerned the tax is now off.

Water Plant Opened

CONSTRUCTION began on Lubbock's new multimillion dollar water treatment plant to make Canadian River water fit to drink for seven area towns and cities.

The shiny new $7.5 million water treatment plant was opened.

Parkers got a break when meters were removed from the downtown area, and later angle parking went into effect. The meter ban was welcomed, but merchants had mixed emotions on the angle parking concept on some streets.

But the bomb burst on the scene in late spring when results of a citywide reappraisal of property for city and school taxes were made known.

City, Schools "Clash"

The city and schools couldn't get together on a ratio and from there on throughout the year the taxes were the topic for most conversations, many hearings and forums. The city dropped drastically its tax rate to "keep faith" that it needed no more tax funds and wasn't trying to get them.

As 1966 dawned the issue was still pending in the form of several tax suits and voters were beginning to wonder what results, if any, the tax problem would have at the polls for upcoming city and school elections.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT — County commissioners launched 1965 by instituting new procedures in long-distance telephoning in a move designed to rule out charging of personal calls to the county.

Conservation Program

LATER, the soil conservation program was resumed before Edwin H. Boedeker was named to succeed James A. Ellis as judge of County Court-at-Law No. 1.

Ellis' elevation by Gov. John Connally to the post of judge of the newly-created 137th District Court here, posed a problem of overcrowded courtroom facilities and an expansion was authorized.

In an harmonious meeting, commissioners junked boundaries which had remained substantially unchanged since horse-and-buggy days and redrew commissioner precinct lines, to give every voter a more nearly equal voice in county government.

Skyline To Grow

CONSTRUCTION — The ever-changing Lubbock skyline will undergo new alterations in 1966 with high rise apartments and a $5 million multi-story building planned by First National Bank and Pioneer Natural Gas Co. the main features.

Another Lubbock financial institution, Citizens National Bank, added a gleaming high-rise to the skyline in 1965.

Total construction in the Hub City last year amounted to $46-[illegible] a figure that was exceeded by active residential building and at least four multi-million dollar projects.

Record Building Due

LUBBOCK builders and real-[illegible] foresee another record year in the industry, predicting [illegible] $58-million-plus figure [illegible] surpassed a record in 1964.

ENTERTAINMENT — Easily the most successful and entertaining theatrical event of the 1965 season in Lubbock was the appearance of the Broadway touring company "Oliver!" which Civic Lubbock Inc. presented during the spring period.

This hearty production, tuneful with its beguiling story based on Dickens' "Oliver Twist," was a hit in every way and Jules Munshin as Fagin was the leader in a talented and capable cast.

New Artist Course

Ballet was the word [illegible] at the close of the year with [illegible] the new Harkness Ballet making an appearance and 10 days later the Grand Ballet of France in its first U.S. tour.

The important new cultural entry on the South Plains was the re-establishment of the Texas Tech Artists Course series revived as a college cultural asset after a dormant period of 10 years. The Harkness Ballet started the series and the noted [illegible] as its second of four scheduled [illegible]

The Lubbock Theatre Centre's [illegible] musical was "Bye Bye Birdie" a tuneful and sprightly entry, not as lavish as some of its predecessors but equally as successful.

Texas Tech combined its music and speech departments in a most effective production of Brecht's musical play, "Three-penny Opera," to stunning effect.

The 1966 outlook in the cultural-entertainment fields points up the forthcoming appearances of noted pianist Rosalyn Tureck and famed harpist Mildred Dilling under Community Concerts Association auspices, the return of Jerome Hines, basso as Lubbock Symphony orchestra guest in February, continuing the parade of events which will culminate the annual Pops Nite concert on April 25; the perennial return of Fred Waring and His Pennsylvanians under Civic Lubbock Inc. sponsorship, a full schedule by Lubbock Theatre Center, the Texas Tech music and speech departments and those of Lubbock Christian College which grow in stature each year.

Of prime importance will be the hosts and first event of the Texas Tech Artists Course series which will bring to the auditorium stage the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, the first to appear in Lubbock since the Houston Symphony Orchestra [illegible] many years back.

Auditorium Birthday

THE YEAR also marks the 10th anniversary of the opening of Lubbock Municipal Auditorium, the principal showcase of the city and area for plays, concerts, entertainment of all sorts, even embracing sporting events during the closing days of the past year.

AGRICULTURE — South Plains area farmers reaped a bumper crop of an estimated 2,270,000 bales of 1965 cotton and produced 127 million bushels of grain sorghum to rake nearly $500 million off the region's top two money crops.

Although the final tally will not be known for some time, the estimated 1965 yield in cotton probably will be exceeded only by 1961 and 1962 harvests.

Challenge For Cotton

Legislation and administrative rulings of the U. S. Department of Agriculture spotlighted farming in 1965. Chief features were a new federal cotton program which became effective this year, a revamped feed grain program and a new setup which enables South Plains cotton growers to buy or lease cotton allotments from other parts of the state.

Although 1965 was an eventful year in farming, the new cotton plan will offer the biggest challenge since it institutes the biggest basic changes in federal cotton programs in 30 years or more.

EDUCATION — Even the experts were stumped by Texas Tech's enrollment, which skyrocketed to an unexpected 16,035 last fall and is due to reach 35,600 by 1975.

Tech Also Growing

The giant stride caused officials of the state's third largest college to expand its academic program in direct proportion to the increasing diversity of interests fostered by today's complex society.

With three new board members—Retha R. Martin of Lubbock, C. A. Cash of Amarillo and Dr. Fladger F. Tannery, Dallas—voting affirmatively, directors closed out 1965 by easing into a record construction program.

In December, the board approved construction totaling $1.1 million and sidetracked other major plans for more study.

Authorization set in motion action which will result in a long-range building program that will have a vital effect on the college's future and the city's economy.

Law School Slated

In addition, plans are being furthered for the opening of the new law school in 1967 and efforts are being concentrated on obtaining a new medical school.

Lubbock school trustees engaged in the reappraisal-tax hassle still found time to expand school facilities and adopt a $35 million budget for the current term. The budget included $[illegible] for capital improvements.

Top Crime Story Cited

TRAGEDY AND CRIME — Holdup men appearing more daring and often netting large sums of loot, continued to plague Hub City businessmen.

Three heavily armed men kidnaped two hostages at Idalou, drove their car to the state line and held six employees at bay before taking three women hostage during an abortive breakout.

Two of the would-be hijackers were captured in an attempt to flee, and the third companion was left inside the bank where he was matched by a posse.

The four-hour episode was one of the top crime stories of the year.

Tornado Takes Toll

A violent tornado swept through Cotton Center and Hale Center, killing five persons, injuring scores of others while causing property damage estimated at $8 [illegible]. The twins recall and point with pride to their accomplishments.

The twins were spotted with [illegible] during the South Plains during 1965, striking in every section.

The rape-murder of a Lockney [illegible] service operator tripped a [illegible] of slayings in the area, and a Lubbock man was charged in the death of a Petersburg [illegible] farm executive who fell from the [illegible] of a hotel in the Pennsylvania city.

Lively Politics Seen

POLITICS — Races featuring [illegible] Lubbock men Lt. Gov. Preston Smith and Atty. Gen. Waggoner Carr will top the political picture in 1966. Smith will be seeking re-election and Carr is going after the U. S. Senate seat now held by Republican John G. Tower.

A [illegible] and a possible [illegible] races are expected to be spirited ones, spreading plenty of [illegible] for a [illegible] other races.

CELEBRATES 80TH BIRTHDAY

City's Oldest Practicing Lawyer Reaches Milestone

By JOE GORDON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

T. R. Odell, 3301 21st St., Lubbock's oldest practicing attorney, will celebrate his 80th birthday with a party at his house today, but if he is asked about retiring he will quickly tell you that he is "not ready to go fishing."

Odell, who also holds the longest record of service in the profession in Lubbock, with nearly 15 years of it here, has been in the work for 47 years, and still goes to the office every day.

Has Slowed Down

He proudly talks about the cases that he has handled over the years, but does admit that he has slowed down from his previous pace.

It wasn't long after he started his career that he said he won a case against high state officials over the handling of expenses by a state commission.

Odell said he also helped in setting a precedent in criminal law, where forced confessions are involved.

During his early career Odell was appointed county attorney of Throckmorton County and then ran several times for public office. But after this many years the attorney says, I just never was much of a politician," when he looked back on the races he lost. He recalled the Ku Klux Klan was involved as his competition in one of his races in Haskell County during the early 1900s.

Was Also Teacher

Even though he has not served as a lawyer during his entire career, Odell must not be too disappointed in the fact that he left a teaching career. After graduation from North Texas State College in 191[illegible], Odell served as superintendent of schools at Jayton and was a summer teacher at the old Stamford College, now McMurry College in Abilene.

Recalling his school days at the University of Texas where he received his law degree in 1920, Odell said: "I had J. Frank Dobie for an English teacher." Talking about the renowned writer, the attorney added, "He was one of the smartest men in the university."

He has been active in church work at First Methodist Church here, only recently retiring as teacher of 50-50 Sunday School Class. He also has worked with the Boy Scouts and has been an active member of the Lions Club.

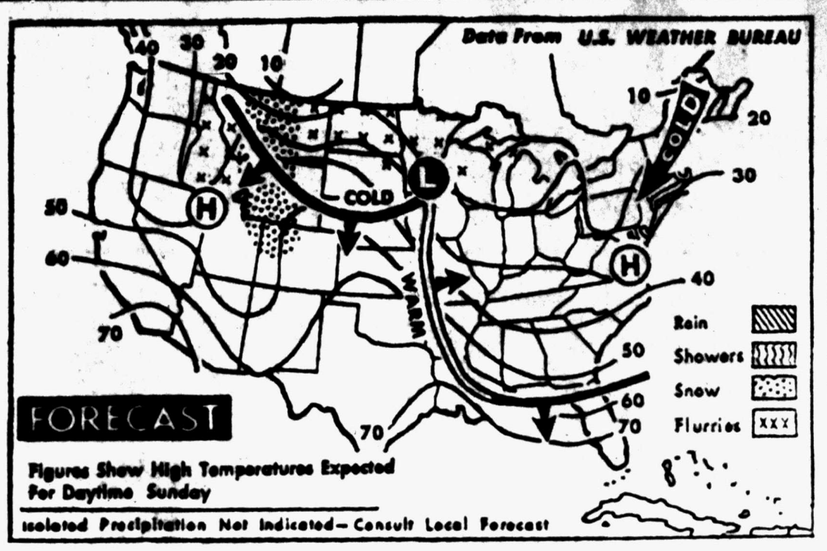
Terrorism Persists In Viet Nam Despite Score Of Arrests By Police



WEATHER FORECAST—Snow and snow flurries are forecast today for the north and central Rockies and northern tier of states from the Dakotas into the upper lakes region. Clear to partly cloudy weather will prevail elsewhere. Very cold weather is expected in the northeast while it will be unseasonably cold in the remainder of the Atlantic states. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON — Terrorism persists, but Vietnamese police have rounded up nearly a score of persons in connection with three recent incidents.

It was learned Saturday that six — all identified as Viet Cong — were arrested in the bombing Dec. 4 of the Hotel Metropole, a U.S. enlisted men's billet.

Even as police sources told of this development, another explosion sounded on the Saigon riverfront.

The blast destroyed a sidewalk peddler's stall and cracked windows in the My Canh floating restaurant, which was ripped last June 25 by two bombs that killed 43 persons, including five Americans.

Damage Minor

But damage in this followup effort was relatively minor. A policeman and two passers-by were reported to have suffered slight scratches.

Reaction of the American and other diners was described by John Robinson, San Antonio, Tex., a building contractor.

"We dived under the tables," Robinson said. "We didn't know what to do but just lie there."

A U.S. security official said he believed the terrorists intended to set off a second explosion after the first had decoyed crowds of curious to the scene.

"Something went wrong with their planning," he said. "They didn't deliver that second bomb."

Police said the arrests in the Metropole case came after one terrorist was found under treatment in a Saigon hospital for wounds suffered in the attack on the billet. He was said to have given information that led to the arrest of the five others. Three were reported to have confessed.

The attack on the billet—staged with machine guns and a bomb — resulted in the death of one American, a New Zealander and six Vietnamese. Scores of persons were injured.

Disclosure of the arrests gave additional evidence of intensified police efforts against terrorists in the capital.

Five persons were arrested Thursday following the bombing of a police substation and the military gate of Saigon's Airport. On Friday alert police work uncovered a bomb plot aimed at another U.S. military billet and brought the arrest of six persons. It was one of the few times terrorist plots have been thwarted in Saigon.

Despite this success, police authorities consider they have a forbidding task ahead in dealing with terrorist cells.

Saigon has grown to a crowded city of about three million with some influx of refugees and a steady movement in and out of persons from war-hit provincial areas. How many are Viet Cong or Viet Cong sympathizers is conjecture. It is no secret, however, that Viet Cong agents use the city freely as a source of essential supplies and information.

A system of checkpoints has been increased to maintain some control over the traffic, but this at present is rated only poor to fair.

Systems of identification cards and family registers also have been instituted. But police report a widespread trade in spurious identification documents.

As for halting or seriously hampering terrorist activities, police authority grimly said:

"There is no way to completely guard a billet, an office building or any other installation in the city if you have fanatically dedicated agents who are willing to throw away their lives to carry out a mission."

CHIEF SAYS SCHOOL BLAZE 'DEFINITELY ARSON'

Damage Estimated At $650,000 In New Orleans Fires

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Fire officials Saturday placed a conservative $650,000 damage tag on the predawn fires which chewed up two floors of a skyscraper bank building and destroyed a suburban school.

The fire at the McDonogh No. 26 Elementary School in Gretna, just across the Mississippi River, was blamed on arsonists. Witnesses told authorities of a dull explosion heard just before the fire raced through the two-story brick building.

The school fire "definitely was arson," said Gretna Fire Chief Leo Rose. School authorities said the school was not integrated, and had not figured in any racial controversy.

Damages to the school were set at $500,000. The blaze in the 13th and 14th floors of the Hibernia National Bank building, in the heart of the financial district, caused at least $150,000 damage.

The floors contained the offices of Delta Steamship Lines, Inc., and Capt. J.W. Clark, president of the line, said it was too early to pinpoint the loss.

Three firemen were injured, lost in the blaze.

Firemen said the flames started on the 13th floor and spread through the windows to the 14th floor. Some damage was also on the 12th floor.

No cause was determined in the fire at the 23-story bank building, which towers 355 feet. In addition to standpipes in the building, firemen used snorkels to spray water to the floors.

Chief John Ridge said there was never any hope in saving the school. "By the time we got here, the building was one large mass of flames," he said.

Heard Explosion

The 40-year-old school burned until after dawn. Mrs. William J. Cuny, who lives opposite the school, said she heard an explosion and then fire "whooshed up."

10 CHILDREN—10 FATHERS

'Heroic Mother' Under Fire

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Russian woman who won a "heroine mother" medal for having 10 children came under fire Saturday because she had them by 10 different men—none of them her husband.

The newspaper Soviet Russia said Olga Batanogova won the award because nobody bothered to check up on her.

When welfare workers became suspicious, they found that Olga had put eight of the children in state homes, that the other two were neglected and starving, and that the unmarried Olga and her current lover were spending her child support money on Vodka.

"Such a thing cannot be forgiven," the newspaper said, indicating Olga's medal would be taken away. "Thousands and thousands of honest Soviet mothers are given an unworthy mother to take as an example. Blasphemy has been performed over the sacred word 'mother'."

Red Deserters Sever Fingers

SAIGON (UPI)—Four deserters from the Communist underground army, who chopped off their trigger fingers in an effort to avoid forced military service, surrendered to the government this week, a military spokesmman said Saturday.

The four men said they were forced into service with the Communist guerrillas several months ago despite their repeated requests to be allowed to return home to help their families earn a living.

Finally, they said, Communist leaders agreed to let them go if they would cut off the first fingers of their right hands so they would not be eligible to join the government army.

After their fingers were cut off, the Reds put them to work as foragers, forcing them to collect food, ammunition and clothes for the guerrillas.

The four said they escaped the first chance they had.

OU Professor Sets Lecture At Tech

His topic will be "Sturm-Liouville Generalized Differential Systems," a subject which is expected to be of special interest to math, engineering and physics majors.

Dr. Reid, a visiting lecturer for the Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics, has done considerable research in calculus of variations and ordinary differential equations.

Fire fighting the bank building blaze, a repeated general alarm which drew 125 fire fighters and 26 pieces of equipment.

Office equipment viewed by firemen later was said to be "blobs of melted metal."

Fire officials pledged a thorough investigation in the school house blaze.

Injured were Deputy Chief Edward O'Brien, who suffered burns of his right hand; 5th District Chief Dominic Martello and Lt. Charles Rey, who both suffered smoke inhalation.

All three were treated at a hospital. Their conditions were not listed as serious.

VATICAN TRIP PLANNED

Polish Cardinal Barred From Leaving Country

By GENE KRAMER

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski was reported Saturday to have been barred by the government from leaving Poland on the eve of his departure for the Vatican.

The spiritual leader of Polish Roman Catholics had planned to leave Sunday for Rome, presumably to report to Pope Paul VI on deteriorating church-state relations and growing obstacles to a papal visit to Poland later this year.

Polish Catholic sources said that when the cardinal left the Vatican Ecumenical Council last month he had instructions to start negotiations for a papal visit next May during the 1,000th anniversary of Christianity in Poland.

Passport Withdrawn

But informed Warsaw sources said the church was notified Friday by the premier's office that the primate's diplomatic passport to travel abroad had been withdrawn on grounds he had engaged in political activities harmful to the state on his last trip to Rome.

Cardinal Wyszynski and the Polish bishops in Rome last month sent a letter to the bishops of West Germany asking them to join the millenium celebrations and to work for Polish-German reconciliation. The Communist government reacted with a storm of angry press attacks, accusing churchmen of meddling in foreign policy.

If the travel ban is continued, it would also keep the cardinal from making a planned trip to the United States and Canada next August to participate in Polish anniversary celebrations there.

Freed After Arrest

The cardinal had been to Rome 11 times since October 1956, when the Communists freed him from three years of house arrest.

His office had treated the planned Vatican trip as a secret, but other sources said he was to leave Sunday by train. On his schedule, they said, was a modest celebration of the millenium with the Pope.

In Vatican City, reports of the travel ban hit like a bombshell.

"It's almost impossible to believe," said a startled official of the Pontifical Polish College.

Plans were well under way at the college for a modest celebration next Thursday marking Poland's Christianity anniversary, with the Pontiff and Cardinal Wyszynski attending. The cardinal had been expected to arrive Tuesday.

No Official Comment

The Vatican had no official comment, but a high source said:

"This is the second half of something that started when the Polish and West German bishops exchanged messages on questions regarding territorial claims by the Germans on Polish soil.

"Polish government officials had hinted that someone must pay for this error. We can see now who is paying for it."

BROWNFIELD

Post Office Contract Let

BROWNFIELD (Special) —Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien announced in Washington Saturday the awarding of a contract for construction of a new $161,048 post office building here.

The structure will be eight months in the building with start of construction pending final approval of plans now on the drawing board, Brownfield Postmaster Howard Davis reported late Saturday.

The building will stand on a half-block of ground at 3rd and Powell Streets. The present post office is at 12 N. 5th St.

The new structure will be owned by William and Doris Null of Fort Worth, who will lease it to the Post Office Department for 20 years with renewal options for 30 years.

Levelland Area C-C Officers To Be Installed

LEVELLAND (Special)—Four new directors of the Levelland Area Chamber of Commerce will take office Jan. 19, along with new president Gene Stanley.

New directors are: James Harder, Jack Harper, Ernest Gentry and Coot Arnold.

O. J. Watkins, school business administrator has been appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Carl McInroe, who has resigned.

Arnold, banquet chairman has announced that the speaker will be Robert P. Dupree, chairman of the board and senior executive officer of the Continental National Bank, Fort Worth.

Banquet Scheduled

The chamber banquet has been set for Feb. 17 in the South Plains College Cafeteria.

At a recent regular meeting of the chamber organization, Al Allison made a report stating that the Texas Highway Commission would soon vote on the four-lane highway between Levelland and Lubbock and he said there was no doubt that it would be approved.

Allison also brought before the directors a proposition of taking the parking meters out of the downtown area. He said that the meters were driving business away from Levelland to towns that did not have the meters. The matter was turned over to the retail committee of the chamber of commerce, who will make a report at the next meeting.

HEADS COMMITTEE

LAMESA (Special) — Lee Roy Colgan and Tom Branon have been appointed co-chairmen of the Quanah Parker Boy Scout Council Dinner committee here. The appointment was made by district Boy Scout chairman J. D. Dyer at a recent district committee meeting at Seminole. The dinner will be held in Lamesa March 18.

War's Biggest Offensive Launched By U.S. Force

ces said the operation was kept secret from America's South Vietnamese allies for fear the offensive drive would be comprised by an intelligence leak. U.S. disclosure of the operation was withheld until this morning for that reason.

First Secrecy

The headquarters of the South Vietnamese Army's 3rd Corps is known to be riddled with Viet Cong agents and for that reason word of the operation was confined to the allies involved. It was believed to have been the first such operation kept secret from the Vietnamese command.

Americans and Australian troops, supported by massive numbers of armored vehicles and artillery ranging from 105 mm howitzers to self-propelled eight-inch guns, converged on the Communist stronghold from both the air and by road.

More than 100 army helicopters ferried U.S. and Australian troops into landing zones dubbed "jack" and "March," both of which were located on abandoned rubber plantations north and south of the forest pounded by the B52s.

Two Boats Sunk

Combined armored - infantry elements were attempting to trap the Viet Cong in a giant horseshoe. The points of the horseshoe were to extend to the Saigon River, the eastern boundary which was being patrolled by both fighter-bombers and rocket-firing helicopters to prevent the trapped Communist units from escaping.

The Ho Bo Forest stronghold is situated between the Liocara and Solirene plantations on the south and north, respectively, and takes its name from a nearby Vietnamese village of the same name.

SAIGON—Two boats carrying arms for the Communnists were sunk in a running fight off the coast of South Viet Nam in predawn darkness this morning Vietnamese military sources said. A large quantity of arms and ammunition was taken from one of them.

Planes Used

The military sources said the boats were chased by Vietnamese naval craft off the coast of Go Cong Province, south of Saigon.

After a running battle, air strikes were called and planes sank the speeding 60-foot craft as they futilely zig-zagged in an attempt to escape from the light of parachute flares.

More than 200 weapons, ranging from rifles to recoilless cannons, were recovered from the bombed-out hull of one of the boats. A large quantity of ammunition for the cannons and 81mm mortars also was taken.

Terrorists Active

The Viet Cong, meanwhile, pressed their terrorist activities in Saigon.

Saturday night, a Viet Cong woman dressed in black exploded a paper bag bomb containing plastic explosives and Chinese Communist hand grenades outside Saigon's famed My Canh floating restaurant, crowded with U.S. and Vietnamese diners.

The blast injured about a half dozen Vietnamese, but no one was killed. The explosion demolished a guard shack but failed to damage the restaurant, where a terrorist bomb attack six months ago killed 46 persons, including a dozen Americans.

It was the fourth terrorist incident in Saigon in three days, and came shortly after Viet Cong troops overran three government outposts just nine miles south of the capital in a three-pronged drive. Reinforcements rushed into the scene finally retook the posts around the delta district town of Can Duoc.

Cong Strike Again

In the delta area west of Saigon, U.S. paratroopers and Australian soldiers wound up an intensive search-and-destroy operation in which 130 Viet Cong were killed, 43 captured and 625 suspects detained.

Two Civil Suits Seek $353,000 Of Ex-NTSU Men

DENTON (AP) — Two civil suits totaling $353,000 have been filed in 116th District Court against four expelled North Texas State University students in connection with alleged attacks on two other students last Oct. 5.

Don J. Portman of Dallas filed a suit asking a judgment of $252,000 against Trenton Torregrossa of Galveston, Robert Glenn of McKinney, Ernie Bovio of Galveston and Byron McClelland of Gatesville.

The suit asks $250,000 for damages and $2,000 for medical expenses for alleged injuries, including the loss of an eye, suffered by his son, Michael Don Portman.

The other suit, filed by Joe Bourn Jr. of Dallas asked for $103,000 — $100,000 in damages plus $3,000 for medical services — he said he suffered, including a nearly severed left shoulder.

District Judge W. C. Boyd said Saturday that he would set a date for the trial of the civil suits on Jan. 28.

Bovio and Glenn pleaded no contest Friday in district court and county court to charges of maiming. Bovio was sentenced in each court to 45 days in jail and given a probated sentence of two years, the sentences to run concurrently.

Glenn also pleaded no contest to similar charges in the same courts and was sentenced to three months in jail and two years probated sentences, both to run concurrently.

McClellan is scheduled to go on trial in district court Jan. 24. Torregrossa has been free on bond on aggravated assault charges filed in justice of the peace court at the time of the incident.

Couple Marries While Flying Above St. Louis

ST. LOUIS Mo. (AP) — Lloyd Bartlett and Lois Siverts got their marriage off to a flying start Saturday, saying "I do" in a wedding ceremony in a flower-decked chartered airliner 1,500 feet above St. Louis.

"We're nuts about flying," said Bartlett. "We got our pilots licenses together and all our friends are pilots and we thought this would be aporopriate."

All Participants Pilots

"I'm on cloud nine," said the bridge, who wore a pistachio green silk and wool suit and hat.

The minister, Dr. M. Dale Allen, pastor of Parkway Baptist church, is a pilot and so are the best man and the bridesmaid.

The ceremony was performed while the two-engine Ozarl Airlines plane, carrying the wedding party and 45 guests, circled above the nation's tallest monument at 630 feet.

Stumbles Down Aisle

"Your're really getting a nice steep bank," the bride told the pilot. She stumbled down the aisle to recorded organ music, several times almost falling because of the sharp angle of the plane. She laughed all the way.

Both Barlett, a musician for television station KMOX-TV, and his bride, a one time airline stewardess, had been married before.

He has three children. She has two.

The airline charged $144 for use of the plane.

The couple said they would go to San Francisco on their honeymoon.

"Flying of course," said the groom.

Defecting Reds Ask Political Asylum

TAIPEI (Sunday) (UPI) — The crew of a Chinese Communist naval landing barge sailed their vessel to the Nationalist Chinese island of Quemoy today and asked for political asylum.

Nationalist Chinese military authorities said crew members of the 20-ton landing barge received a warm welcome.

According to a standing Nationalist Chinese offer, each of the defectors will be awarded three ounces of gold.

Combo, Cosby Score Dazzling Triumph Here

By JACK SHERIDAN
Avalanche Journal Staff

More than 7,000 persons crammed the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum Saturday night to give the Texas Tech Student Union its most dazzling triumph.

There were only two acts to fill in the two and a half hour program, but, oh my, what a show they provided!

The Womenfolk, five glorious young women from San Francisco's hungry i gave the first of the program a glittering parade of folk songs and then, after a few moments intermission, the stellar Bill Cosby took over. Cosby, radio, night club and television star of "I Spy," for the course of more than an hour rocked the house.

The oldsters in the audience wept with glee as he recalled such gems as "Lights Out" and "Suspense" and the present day student mothers and fathers, of which the audience was more than widely represented, screamed, yelled and regaled themselves as he recalled his early days of tonsillectomies, the first days of kindergarten, his awakening to life in the first grade and the wonderful terrifying days of just being a boy in opposition to his family.

It may have been the recent Texas Tech football season, the post-holiday round with Donny Anderson, but his description of the Temple University football season (which he actually was involved in) was about as funny a postscript to a season as one could ask.

The Special Events department of the Student Union can claim not only the bombshell opening of 1966 entertainment-wise, but they have also set standards that will be very difficult to surmount during the coming months both from the box office and the hilarious satisfaction of an evening in the theater.

Burglars

Scout flashlight was lying on a box in the area.

Police said the maintenance man was unaware that a burglary had been committed, thinking that the door had not been checked at closing time.

Officers believed the burglar had been locked in the store at closing time Friday afternoon, then made an exit through the truck room.

A screw driver was used to open a stamp drawer in the store's post office substation, but loss, if any, was undetermined Saturday.

In other burglaries reported to police, tools valued at $350 were missing from Keystone Motor Co., 1917 Ave. Q, and tools valued at $60 were taken from Gibson Plumbing Co., 285 34th St.

Luther McGee, 1312 E. Main St., said three men followed him from a cafe early Saturday morning and robbed him of $50 at knifepoint in the Avenue A underpass.

Cash Stolen

A money bag containing $80 to $100 was taken from a hiding place at the Pizza Roma, 2228 19th St. Entry to the building was gained through a restroom window.

Mitch Martin, 4502 42nd St., complained that $26 and his driver's license had been stolen and Mrs. Glenn Keyton, 4504 41st St., said a hose had been cut by vandals and a $110 statue removed from the yard.

Carroll Wayne Holtzclaw, 2121 13th St., told officers that a tire tool was thrown through a window of his car.

Kitchen towels, bed linens and a wedding ring were reported missing in a break-in at the residence of David Lucero, 3018 Cornell (rear), and Clarence Heard, 306 17th St., said a blue steel pistol, valued at $40, was taken from his home.

Barbara Gibson, 2002 56th St., complained of the theft of a diamond engagement ring from a rest room on East 50th St.

FLORIDA GETS WARNINGS

Year's Biggest Cold Wave Cuts Into Southern States

(By United Press International)

The year's first great cold wave knifed into Dixie and the Atlantic Seaboard Saturday, bringing cold wave warnings as far south as northern Florida.

Up to 6 inches of snow fell in New England, accompanied by blizzard-like winds which piled up two-foot drifts in New Hampshire.

More California Rain

Arctic air covered a vast area of the nation from the Great Plains eastward. A new storm spread more rain across flood-battered areas of California and Oregon.

Winds up to 60 miles an hour pounded western Washington but colder air dropped the freeze line to the 2,000-foot level in the mountains, halting the snow melt which had triggered flooding.

Connecticut collected up to 3 inches of snow. Up to 4 inches was reported in the Boston, area and up to 6 inches was reported in areas of Maine, New Hampshire and western Mass sachusetts. Southwestern New Hampshire had two-foot drifts and Burlington, Vt., had 2 inches of snow during six hours.

Speed Limit Cut

Pittsburgh, Pa., had an inch of snow. Wet snow in northeastern Ohio forced reduction of the speed limit on the Ohio turnpike to 40 miles an hour from Cleveland eastward. Washington, D.C. got its first snow of the season.

Buffalo, N.Y., had 4 inches of snow. South Bend, Ind., had 8 and Keene, N.H., 5.

The low of 9 above zero at Kansas City, Kan., made Saturday its coldest day since Feb. 25, 1964. The low of 7 above at St. Joseph, Mo., was the coldest there since last March 18.

A power failure at Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Mich., left two dormitories, the dining hall and other buildings without heat for 24 hours in sub-zero cold.

RESCUE ATTEMPT

Seven Killed In Copter Blast

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (UPI) — A South African Air Force helicopter exploded in air Saturday killing seven crew members who were trying to rescue women and children stranded by flash floods near here.

According to preliminary reports, two South African and five Portuguese crew members were aboard the copter. It was attempting to lower a rubber boat on a bank of the rampaging Umbeluzi River to rescue a group of native women and children marooned by the floods touched off by Hurricane Claude.

The cable connecting the boat to the copter broke suddenly and snapped back into the rotors, which were shorn off. The engine exploded as the helicopter plummeted to earth.

The accident took place after an undisclosed number of inhabitants — possibly several dozen lost their lives when Hurricane Claude battered southern Mozambique, flooded and destroyed countless homes and left about 150,000 persons homeless.

WARMING TREND

Mild Weather Forecast For Lubbock Area

More mild winter weather is the prospect for Lubbock and the South Plains today, following the warming trend Saturday which brought clear skies and higher thermometer readings over the entire state.

The mercury is expected to climb into the upper 60's this afternoon, according to U.S. Weather Bureau officials at Municipal Airport.

Saturday's high was a pleasant 60-degree reading, following an early morning low of 25.

The area's weather pattern was consistent with one picture for the entire state Saturday. But an even warmer day is on tap today, insuring Texans of more unseasonably warm readings.

Temperatures Mild

Temperatures coasted into the 60s over most of Texas Saturday, with the only cloudiness in far south and far west Texas. No rain was noted anywhere in the state.

Nighttime readings remained chilly, with marks below freezing reported for much of the Panhandle and in the Davis Mountain area. However, the warmer weather moved over the state during the day.

Saturday's high temperature was 69 degrees, reported in Presidio and Brownsville, with Texarkana posting the coolest afternoon reading of 47.

The warm weather is expected to continue through Monday, but winds in north Texas are due to get higher today, and the southwestern sections may expect thicker cloud cover by Monday.

Partly cloudy skies will prevail over the South Plains today, with a low tonight forecast in the middle 30s. Southwest winds from 10 to 20 miles per hour are predicted.

Greeks Shiver In Rare Cold Weather

ATHENS (AP) — Greece shivered Saturday in its coldest weather for more than a year. The cold snap brought up to two feet of snow in northern Greece and covered Athens with a rare powdering of snow. Temperatures were down to 10 degrees in the north.

The temperature in Athens was 32. Up until two days ago tourists were sitting in the open air coffee shops in shirt sleeves and light dresses.

Solon Denounces Cigarette Promotion Role Of USDA

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, a leading congressional sponsor of a law that requires cigarette packs to carry a health hazard warning, Saturday expressed shock at a report the Agriculture Department is subsidizing attempts to increase cigarette consumption abroad.

"How can a civilized country promote increased cigarette smoking in foreign countries when its own Congress has decreed that domestic consumers must be warned of the potential hazards of cigarette consumption?" the Washington Democrat asked in a letter to Sec. of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Magnuson, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, referred to published reports the department is paying Warner Bros. $106,000 to insert scenes designed to stimulate cigarette smoking into a travelogue for distribution in eight countries and is also spending $210,000 to subsidize cigarette commercials in Japan, Thailand and Austria.

An Agriculture Department spokesman said the two programs were prepared under a congressional authorization to expand overseas markets for U.S. farm commodities.

He said one is a feature film on the U.S. tobacco industry and its products, not a travelogue, and will not be distributed where governments have acted to discourage use of tobacco.

tions. Johnson has offered to begin talks without prior conditions.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.) was reported to be supporting Johnson's suspension of bombing and the President's efforts to enlist aid in major world capitals toward bringing about peace talks.

Williams Reports

Asst. Sec. of State G. Mennen for African Affairs G. Mennen Williams, back from a trip to 14 African countries, told newsmen after reporting to President Johnson Saturday that half of them promised to ask the Communists about prospects for peace.

"The reaction I got was a modestly optimistic one," Williams said. "I was tremendously pleased that a number of them indicated they were going to go ahead to make contact with one or more of the parties on the other side in order to bring about talks."

As one U.S. diplomat put it: "Many people are talking to many people."

But where it would lead was still highly uncertain. As far as could be learned, none of the behind-the-scenes contacts has yet produced what the President could consider a real step toward peace.

U. S. Still Blasted

Publicly, Communist radios of North Viet Nam and Red China were blasting the U.S. initiative as a "trick" and a "fake." They accused Washington of talking peace while planning a larger war.

Among the hardest of these Communist voices was the clandestine Viet Cong radio heard in South Viet Nam. It said that "as long as there are U.S. aggressors in South Viet Nam, there will be war. There cannot be peace. If the U.S. imperialists do not stop their aggressive war, do not abolish their military bases in South Viet Nam, and do not discontinue forever the bombings of North Viet Nam, there can never be peace negotiations."

The bombing pause passed its 16th day. There was speculation but no confirmation—that it might extend through the Vietnamese lunar new year celebrations Jan. 20-23.

Fullbright Briefed

Although relations between the President and the Foreign Relations Committee chairman remain frosty because of the latter's criticism of U.S. troops use in the Dominican Republic, Johnson has acted to brief Fulbright on developments.

Undersecretary of State George W. Ball visited Fulbright at his vacation spot in Puerto Rico to inform the chairman of peace offensive aims.

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) second ranking Democrat on the Foreign Relations group, said he feels that "we must escalate our military efforts" if there is no Communist response to the President's efforts.

Optimism Varies

Sen. J. Caleb Boggs, (R-Del.) one of those who made the tour with Mansfield, said "as our Viet Nam report indicates, we felt that at the time we were on the trip that prospects for effective peace negotiations were slim.

"At the same time, it is necessary to make every possible effort to arrive at negotiations."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine), another of the touring senators, said he is hopeful the peace offensive will be successful but is unable to find many reasons for optimism in the light of the group's talks in Asia, Russia and elsewhere.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) said "I am personally a bit more optimistic than the tone of the Mansfield report about the possibilities that we can stop the Communist invaders of Viet Nam without the war escalating into greater and most costly ground-force applications."

AND NO END'S IN SIGHT

Weary New Yorkers Rest After Transit Strike Trials

demonstration, thus further depleting the city's work force.

An uneasy calm hung over the city's streets Saturday as most of the millions who suffered through a week of turmoil took refuge in the peace and quiet of their homes, a welcome contrast to the noisy congestion that made the past week one long tale of bumper-to-bumper frustration.

For the first time in six days, the traffic was relatively light. Taxicabs cruised through midtown streets with a pre-strike nonchalance, hailed by passengers at their leisure. The streets became more crowded later in the day, but the congestion was nothing like that experienced during the Monday-to-Friday nightmare.

The weekend brought no relief for the weary three-man mediation panel which resumed its persistent efforts to break the stalemate and get bargaining talks rolling toward a settlement. So far, however, the progress in negotiations has been as slow as the rush hour traffic on the city's strike-snarled thoroughfares.

Not Much Progress

At one point Saturday, one of the mediators, Sylvester Garrett, emerged from the talks to fully say that there has been any great progress. There is still more ground to be covered. We are not magicians."

There had been a slightly euphoric moment on Friday when the chief mediator, Nathan B. Feinsinger, told newsmen he "smelled a settlement." But later in the day, both sides closed ranks and hardened their positions.

The firmness of the Transit Authority's position was reflected by TA Chairman Joseph O'Grady's insistence that the major problem was not where the money would come from — "that is putting the cart before the horse"—but negotiating a just agreement.

Seek Fair Agreement

"Even if we had a billion dollars in our treasury we would not grant these people one cent more than we thought was a fair and equitable settlement," O'Grady said.

He added that the TA considers a 3.2 per cent wage increase a fair settlement, within the guidelines against inflation set by the Johnson administration.

In Washington, two Republican House members called on the Johnson administration to go on record in favor of a noninflationary wage settlement in the strike.

Administration Rapped

Reps. William B. Widnall of New Jersey, ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee, and Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri, senior House Republican on the Joint Economic Committee, said in a joint statement:

"The same Johnson administration that made front-page headlines by denouncing attempts by business to raise prices is strangely and mysteriously silent when it comes to excessive demands by labor."

They called for congressional observers at negotiations to speed settlement, to check on the usefulness of wage-price guidelines and to seek possible legislative solutions to future collective bargaining problems.

Strike Called Illegal

Widnall and Curtis described as a "consolation prize" Johnson's announcement that federal agencies would seek to relieve hardships caused by the dispute.

"More importantly, however," they said, "the President's announcement completely ignores the basic problems which is to end an illegal strike by a union which has been demanding an excessive wage increase of 15 per cent which would make a mockery of the President's own 3.2 per cent wage-price guidelines."

The TWU's original demand called for a 30 per cent wage increase, which would cost the TA an estimated $680 million. The union reports it since has scaled its demand down to a 15 per cent hike this year with another 15 per cent increase next Jan. 1.

TWU leaders, who represent 36,000 subway and bus employes, stiffened their muscle Friday in angry response to what they called attempts by the TA to wreck the union.

Massive Fine Sought

The TA rejected a request by city labor leaders to ask the state Supreme Court to release ailing TWU Chieftain Michael J. Quill and eight other strike leaders from custody. Instead, the authority asked the court to fine the union $323,000 a day for showing contempt in violating state law that forbids strikes by city employes.

A hearing on the petition to impose the fines was recessed until Monday.

Thus, despite pleas from Mayor John V. Lindsay for a settlement over the weekend, all signs pointed to a continuation of the strike into Monday and renewed hardships for the immobilized millions who comprise the city's vast work force.

In addition, there was gloomy news from the weatherman: A cold wave hit the city Saturday and the forecast called for temperatures to plunge to the 10-degree mark during the night.

AILING NIMITZ

OAKLAND (AP) — Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, 80, continues his improvement at Oak Knoll Naval Hospital where he is being treated for a blood clot on the brain, a spokesman said Saturday. He entered the hospital Monday.

STANLEY JOY
As An Abernathy Gridder

were—the widow (the former Miss Dixie Lee Eggemeyer, Dallas, who was married to Cpl. Joy only a few weeks before he left for overseas assignment in Viet Nam; his mother, Mrs. Mary Bair, Fort Worth; his father, R. S. Joy Sr.; three half-brothers; the maternal grandparents; a maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Joy, Abernathy; and an aunt and uncle with whom he lived at Abernathy, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis.

Also sitting with the family was Dist. Judge James A. Joy, Plainview. Cpl. Joy was his nephew.

In Marine uniform was Cpl. Les Herring, Fort Worth, a buddy of the Abernathy serviceman. He sat with the family and relatives.

The choir sang "Perfect Memories" very softly.

Mr. Ribble stepped forward. He said "Stanley sacrificed his life on the altar of human freedom."

"He had said the men in Viet Nam feel they are fighting for the right . . . for a just cause . . . 'and we have to win,'" the minister continued.

He quoted First Thessalonians 4: 13-14: "But we would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning those who are asleep, that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope. For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have fallen asleep."

In prayer, the minister evoked the blessings of God on the family "of this serviceman" in the "loneliness they will have from here on." He added a plea for strengthened faith for all assembled.

The choir sang "Beyond The Sunset."

Poem Found On Victim

The second minister and speaker, Mr. R. L. Wall, Odessa, said quietly: I've known Stanley since he was a boy. He was a likeable boy. His favorite Scripture was "No greater love . . . that he lay down his life for his friend."

He read a poem found in Cpl. Joy's personal effects. It has to do with smiling and being our best because we're here for such a little while. It said "If we could live a million years" we might have excuse to frown but "there is no time to live in hate and let deeds of kindness wait," the poem pointed out.

A Marine honor guard of six served as pallbearers and bore the casket from the church. The full-dress Marines were from the I&I Staff, 40th Rifle Co., Lubbock Reserve unit.

Two officers of the guard stood at the doorside and saluted smartly as the casket came by them.

The hearse departed with three automobiles containing family members being driven slowly behind it.

Then, and only then, did the Abernathy residents speak of what was in their minds.

Ed Crow remembered that Stanley Joy grew up "as a normal boy in Abernathy and was liked by all." Crow also recalled that Joy had taken part in the Soap Box Derby (at Lubbock) and played Little League baseball here.

Curtis Davenport, high school principal here, spoke of Joy as a football player he coached. "He was a halfback and a good one," Davenport said. "He wasn't too big but he gave it 100 per cent. He was a letterman."

Others Remembered

Others remembered Joy as he grew up in the town, without exception, as being "likeable"—with few words to say, but very "likeable."

Two students of Abernathy High School were talking about a letter that Davenport, the principal, had received from the Marine two weeks before he was reported killed.

That letter, as they recalled it, wanted to know how young people at home felt about the Viet Nam conflict and if the reported protests, etc., weren't just a minority demonstration.

In his letter, Joy also had reminded students of Abernathy schools "to be thankful for, and proud of your country and your community . . ."

FOUR OUTSTANDING LECTURERS DUE ON PROGRAM

Schelsinger, Capp Top Texas Tech Spring Speakers List

Four outstanding lecturers—all of international reputation—have been chosen by the University Speakers Committee to launch the ambitious lecture series program at Texas Tech during the spring semester.

Tech students will be able to hear such speakers as Dr. Arthur Schlesinger Jr., Al Capp, Dr. Huston Smith and R. Buckminister Fuller during the program's initial schedule.

Schlesinger will lead off the series on Feb. 18 while Capp is scheduled March 12. Smith will be here March 31 and Fuller winds up the series with an April 19 appearance.

James Allen, dean of student life at Tech and head of the newly organized speakers committee, believes the program will provide Tech students with an opportunity to hear "people with something to say."

Top Quality Speakers

Allen commented, "As far as quality, I doubt whether we will ever exceed this lineup. We might have some individual speakers who are better, but over-all this spring's program looks very appealing."

The major aim of the speakers program, Allen explains, is to provide students with stimulating speakers of the first quality.

"We want Tech identified as a college that is bringing great minds and talkers to its campus," Allen added.

And it is evident from the initial offering, the program's goal has been achieved.

All four of the speakers have built wide reputations across the country and in international circles, too.

Schlesinger, Pulitzer Prize winning historian and former special advisor to President Kennedy and President Johnson, opens the spring program Feb. 18.

"Li'l Abner" Creator

Capp, who first gained fame as the creator of the comic strip "Li'l Abner," also is a noted social commentator. He has added to his reputation as an outspoken figure with his appearances on the "Tonight" show on television.

Smith at present is professor of philosophy at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is the author of a comparative book on seven of the world's major religions.

Fuller has been described as an engineer - inventor-architect, but is generally noted as the designer of the geodesic dome. The subject of a cover story in "Time" magazine in October, 1958, Fuller is presently the director of the Center for Study of Human Ecology Transformations.

He was appointed to the U.S. Institute of Behavioral Research in Washington, D.C., in 1965.

Schlesinger, Capp and Fuller will appear at the Municipal Auditorium, while Smith's lecture is set for the Student Union ballroom on the Tech campus.

Schlesinger's speech is set for 8 p.m., with both Capp and Fuller due to talk at 7:30 p.m. Smith's appearance will be at 7:15 p.m.

Best-Seller Book

Schlesinger's name has been thrust again before the public with his in-depth study of the Kennedy Administration, "A Thousand Days," which is currently on the nation's best-seller book lists. He left the Johnson Administration in 1964 to write the book.

According to "The New York Times," Schlesinger "ranks among the foremost in the new generation of vigorous social thinkers."

In 1946, at the age of 28, he was the youngest historian ever to win the Pulitzer Prize when he received it for "The Age of Jackson."

Already established as one of the nation's leading historians, Schlesinger also has been active in public affairs, serving from 1961 to 1964 in the White House as special assistant to the late President Kennedy and then President Johnson.

Capp, 56, parlayed the inhabitants of Dogpatch into one of the country's biggest industries. His comic strip, an instant success, has run in over 400 newspapers, and the characters have appeared in movies, on radio and in commercial products' promotion.

Although most people like to talk to Capp about L'il Abner, he has an extensive knowledge of world affairs and human interest stories, much of which he applies satirically to his plot line in the popular comic strip.

Smith, the son of two missionaries, received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1945 and has taught at Colorado, University of Denver, Washington University and joined MIT in 1958.

His book, "The Religions of Man," published in 1958, is the substance of his long work in the vital field of comparative religion.

Fuller is called "the gadfly, delight and despair of the technological world," according to one magazine. He has designed a 10-story apartment house, which he hoped would be dropped from a Zeppelin on the North Pole.

Other projects include a house that was hung from a duralumin mast and bathrooms with no running water. His Dymaxion ("dynamic" plus "maximum service") products also include a three-wheel, rear-engined automobile and a house that could be stowed away in an aluminum container.

While these projects were called "way out" and never came about, Fuller's geodesic domes are being used all over the world today. The domes frame a sphere with combinations of the simplest finite system, making easily assembled structures of wide span and low costs.

It is easy, then, to see why Allen remarked, "We feel pretty fortunate to have signed up these people for our program."

The program was started only last summer, following the approval of a special student services fee of 50 cents during the spring. "We made a late start and feel lucky to have lined up talent like this in a relatively short time," Allen said.

Previously, Tech never had money allocated or available for a speakers' program of this stature, Allen explained.

Plan For Next Year

"We set our goal at six to eight speakers each year and hope to plan on this many for the future," Allen said. The late start prohibited the program being in full swing until this spring.

Many notable figures, available for lecture series, were already booked by the time the program started operating.

"We are already beginning to focus on next year's program," Allen said. "We feel that by having people like Schlesinger, Capp, Smith and Fuller at Tech, that other high quality speakers also will realize that we want only the best."

Outlining the type of speakers the committee plans to present, Allen remarked, "We want someone both stimulating and provoking, and to a certain extent, academically oriented."

Faculty members of the committee include Allen as its head, Dr. David Vigness, head of the history department; Professor H. A. Anderson, business administration, and W. L. Ducker, head of petroleum engineering department.

Students on the group are Roland Anderson, president of the student body, Collier Perry and Linda McSpadden, both appointees of the Student Association.

Although no commitments are set for next year's program, Allen says the committee has its sights set on such figures as Margaret Mead, Richard Nixon and vice president Hubert Humphrey.

Engineers' Group Studies Computers

Forty members and guests of the High Plains Chapter, American Society of Civil Engineers, met on the Tech campus Saturday afternoon for a technical session on the use of digital computers.

Primary emphasis was placed on their application to the solution of problems in hydraulics and structures. The session included a lecture by Bill Claborn, assistant professor of civil engineering, and a visit to the computer center, on campus, to see the machines in operation.

Dr. Keith R. Marmion, head of the Civil Engineering Department at Tech, presided at the technical session.

Lyndol Carter, Amarillo, presided at the business meeting of the group.

Arnie Fires Fantastic 62 For Seven-Shot Lead At LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Arnold Palmer turned the Los Angeles Open golf tournament into a shambles Saturday, blasting out a record-tying nine-under par 62 and a 54-hole score of 200 —13 strokes under par.

The fantastic round, in which Palmer put together a string of seven straight birdies, sends him into the final 18 holes today with a lead of seven strokes over Bill Casper, Jr.

Palmer, who had a poor year in 1965, toured the Rancho Municipal Golf Course in 33-29 for his 62, which equalled the tournament record set by Phil Rodgers in 1962.

Paul Harney, the two-time defending champion, summed it up best with the wry observation:

"What's Palmer doing, lapping us?"

Palmer's 29 strokes coming home—to the thunderous cheers of his army—bettered Rodgers' low nine-hole score of 30 in his victory four years ago.

Dave Ragan, who led the field going into the third round, with a one-shot advantage over Palmer and Rex Baxter, Jr., fell back with a 72 and into a group that included Baxter, Dave Marr, Harney and others.

Casper, the pre-tournament choice, shot a 66. He was asked how it was to have a five-under par round and still trail by seven. He could only shrug his shoulders.

Harney good-naturedly added that to stay in the running all he'll have to do "is shoot 55 tomorrow."

Harney had a tremendous round himself, a 67 that included a hole-in-one followed by four consecutive birdies.

But this was no day for scores even as good as 66 and 67.

The field was bunched tightly after the first nine holes of a warm, sunny afternoon, with Palmer two strokes in front but still threatened by Ragan, Al Kelley, an unheralded pro from Baltimore, Frank Beard, Marr and others, plus the on-charging Harney.

Baxter lost ground with a double-bogey seven on the ninth and Ragan's par 36 was no match for Palmer.

Palmer began his fabulous run of birdies on the eighth hole and didn't let up until the 15th. He added his ninth birdie of the day with an eight-foot putt on the 16th green and got his par the remaining two holes.

He had one bad hole, a bogey five on the fifth.

Baxter, still nursing his double-bogey, came in with 71, while Miller Barber, Marr, Wes Ellis, Charlie Sifford and Dave Stockton also entered the 209 bracket.

Also tied at 209 were Don January, whose 66 went virtually

South Wins Senior Bowl By 27-18

NORTH WINS, 27-26

Anderson, Wilson Go In Hula Bowl

HONOLULU (AP)—In a tremendous second half in which they overcame a halftime deficit of 20-7 and then fought off a late enemy threat, the North All-Stars edged the favored South 27-26 Friday night in the 20th annual Hula Bowl game at Honolulu stadium.

An overflow crowd of 25,000—the first sellout in the history of the bowl—thrilled to the fine quarterbacking efforts by Michigan State's Steve Juday and Texas Tech's Tommy Wilson.

Scores Touchdown

Juday scored one of the North's three second-half touchdowns on a 20-yard run in the third period and had a hand in directing an 81-yard drive that produced another in the first play of the fourth period.

On his third period score, Juday was trapped 10 yards back of the scrimmage line on a pass attempt, got loose and raced unmolested from the 20-yard line.

The 81-yard line touchdown drive was climaxed by Jim Grabowski's plunge from the four. Juday moments later passed to Pittsburgh's Eric Crabtree for 21 yards to make it 25-20 for the North. Grabowski then scored what proved to be the winning points when he smashed over the center for a point conversion.

With three minutes to go, Tommy Wilson, Texas Tech's passing wizard, engineered a drive that carried 90 yards for a South touchdown.

TD Pass To Donny

He passed to Nebraska's Freeman White for 43 yards and then found Donny Anderson, his Texas Tech teammate, for the final 32 yards.

Trailing by one point, Wilson attempted to run for the conversion but was stopped at the one-yard line.

Quarterback Wilson and his replacement Marv Kristynik, of Texas, helped the South to a 20-7 halftime lead, hitting for a pair of touchdowns in the second quarter after the North had taken a 7-6 advantage in the opening period.

Both first period touchdowns

Rally In Last Half Nets Win

Bobby Burnett, Johnson Shine

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The South wiped out an 11-point deficit by blending the running of Bob Burnett with the passing of Randy Johnson and defeated the North 27-18 in the Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

Burnett, the powerful Arkansas halfback, scored twice on two-yard plunges in the South's second half surge in the natioally televised football game.

Johnson, Texas A&I quarterback, threw two touchdown passes, hitting Jim Lindsey of Arkansas with an 11-yard scoring strike in the second quarter and tossing five yards to Charles Casey of Florida in the third quarter that put the South in front to stay.

Lane Powers North

Gary Lane of Missouri had powered the North to an 18-7 halftime lead, throwing two touchdown passes and scoring once himself on a three-yard plunge.

But the South, ignited by a pass interception by Doug Buffone of Louisville, cut the gap to 18-14 in the first three minutes of the third quarter. After the South shot ahead an intereception by David Ray of Alabama with 83 seconds left clinched the victory for the Rebels.

The South boosted its lead in the series to 11-5-1 despite the record pass catching of Tulsa's Howard Twilley, who grabbed 12 tosses for a Senior Bowl record and was named the game's outstanding player.

Lane sent the North off to a flying start when he passed 37 yards to Oklahoma State's Walt Garrison for a touchdown, and hit Bucknell's Tom Mitchell with a 13-yard scoring strike after a blocked field goal.

Johnson Completes 20

The North was trying to kick when Bob Kowalkowski of Virginia smashed the ball down. Lane grabbed it and tossed to Mitchell for the score.

Johnson outperformed his quarterback rivals in the second half and finished with 20 completions in 33 passes for 186 yards.

Johnson went the distance at quarterback for the South because of a rib injury which hampered Steve Sloan, who quarterbacked Alabama to the national title.

Slaon signed to play with the Atlanta Falcons two hours before the game. He was used only to hold on extra point kicks.

Kentucky Eases By Florida Five

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sophomore Thad Jaracz paced Kentucky to a 78-64 Southeastern Conference basketball victory over Florida Saturday.

It was the 10th straight victory for the second-ranked Wildcats.

Jaracz ran up 17 points, mostly under the basket, in the first half and pushed his total to 26 before he fouled out with a little more than six minutes left.

Kentucky scored first and quickly widened the gap. Playing a controlled brand of ball in their first conference game, the Wildcats left the floor with a 40-29 halftime advantage.

Florida, behind Gary Keller, tried to close the gap in the second half.

ALL ON SECOND TEAM

Monterey, Lubbock Place Four On All-State Squad

Monterey High School's District 3-AAAA champion Plainsmen and the surprising Lubbock High School Westerners each landed two men on the Class AAAA second team all-state football team which was selected by the Texas Sportswriters Association.

Plainsmen quarterback Randy Bowlin and center Bryon Price were honored along with Westerner tailback Ray Farmer and end Don Burrell.

Permain Lands Halsell

State champion Odessa Permian and runnerup San Antonio Lee each placed one player on the first team. Permian guard Glen Halsell and San Antonio halfback Pat Sheehan were selected.

Halsell and Sheehan each drew 44 of a possible 45 points in the balloting as did fullback Bub Bub Deeringwater of Wichita Falls Rider.

Dallas, Austin and Houston high schools placed two players apiece on the first team, which was made up entirely of seniors.

Only two juniors were picked on the first three teams. Fullback Billy Dale of Odessa Permian was named to the second team and halfback Barney Harris of San Antonio MacArthur was put on the third eleven.

Other members of the first team are Paul Goodrich, Dallas Wilson, and Orville Jansen, Austin Travis, ends; Tommy Rohrer, Austin McCallum, and Charles Hendricks, Baytown, tackles; Kemp McMillian, Houston Lee, guard; Robert Wuensch, Houston Jones, center; Joe Norwood, Texarkana, quarterback; Brian Blessing, Dallas Hillcrest, halfback.

There were no repeaters from the 1964 team, but the only junior among 1964's top 33 — Bub Deerinwater of Rider — was one of the three first team players this season to come close to being unanimous choices.

Permian, which defeated Lee 11-6 in the state championship game, placed two men on the second team — tackle Richard Dennard and fullback Billy Dale; in addition to Sheehan, Lee placed guard Glenn Grafe on the second team and halfback Bruce Kemph on the third team.

Two of this year's first teamers — Sheehan and end Paul Goodrich of Dallas Wilson — are younger brothers of 1961 all - state players. Sheehan's brother, Mike, won a guard spot that year from San Angelo where the family lived before moving to San Antonio. Goodrich's brother, Bobby, was an all-state end at Woodrow Wilson in 1961.

Burrell missed making the first team by a couple of votes, while Farmer was the third leading halfback, trailing Blessing by six points and Sheehan by about 20.

Price was a distant second at center, polling 23 points to the first teamers' 38. Bowlin also was a distant second to Norwood by some 15 votes.

Monterey had a first teamer last year in end Chris Key, but this is the first time Lubbock High players have been mentioned in several years.

Bowlin recently was named to

Baltimore, Dallas In Playoff Today

MIAMI (AP)—Will Tom Matte pass or run?

That's the question that will be bugging the Dallas Cowboys when they square off against the Baltimore Colts here Sunday in the National Football League's Playoff Bowl involving conference runners-up.

The Colts, who lost quarterbacks Johnny Unitas and Gary Cuozzo in the final two weeks of the season, are 3½-point underdogs to a fast-coming Dallas team that won five of its last seven games.

The game, with a 1:45 p.m. EST kickoff in the 72,200 capacity Orange Bowl, will be televised nationally by CBS.

Despite loss of its quarterback punch for the final two games, the Colts beat Los Angeles 20-17 to tie for the Western Conference championship and then lost an overtime thriller 13-10 in the playoff to the Green Bay Packers. The Packers went on to beat Cleveland for the league crown.

Meredith Healthy

The Colts finished with a 10-3-1 record compared with the Cowboys' erratic 7-7-0. The Cowboys ,who lost the services of quarterback Don Meredith in mid-season, dropped five in a row after starting with two victories.

Now Meredith, who throws bullets to speedster Bobby Hayes and Buddy Dial, is healthy again and has the Cowboys moving while the Colts have found a signal-calling savior in Matte, a halfback who hadn't passed since his undergraduate days at Ohio State.

Matte, a stocky 205-pound competitor, threw only seven passes in the Los Angeles game and 12 against Green Bay. In practice for the Playoff Bowl, however, he has been planting himself in a pocket and shooting

Tulsa Nips Cincinnati For Second Loop Win

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The Tulsa Hurricane fought off a Cincinnati rally in the final minutes to escape with a 73-71 Missouri Valley conference basketball victory Saturday.

The win gave the Hurricanes a 2-0 league record and pushed their mark to 12-3 over-all. Cincinnati has a 1-1 league record and is 9-2 over-all.

Roland West and Dean Foster led the Cincinnati stretch rally which was aided by Tulsa lapses on its delay game and an inability to hit key free throws.

Tulsa's Julian Hammond led all scorers with 26 points and West had 24. Eldridge Webb and Gene Demaree, Tulsa's back line combination, chipped in 15 each for the winners.

Raiders Lose League Edge

Arkansas Zooms To Early Lead, Rips Raider Press For Triumph

By BURLE PETTIT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

FAYETTEVILLE—A funny thing happened to Texas Tech on its way to the Southwest Conference title, but no one among the Raiders was laughing.

Arkansas' Razorbacks, rebounding from defeat, penetrated the Tech defense with remarkable ease here Saturday afternoon and scored a 74-65 victory that must go into the books as an upset.

But it certainly didn't look it. The Razorbaeks jumped into the lead less than a minute deep in the game and maintained command from beginning to end. A couple of mild Raider threats served merely to add some interest to an otherwise dreary contest.

The Hogs, who dropped their opening league game to TCU Tuesday night, rambled to a 16-point lead once during the first half and managed to stave off Tech's attempts to climb back into the ball game.

The Raiders began just before halftime, showing, spasmodically, signs of being the basketball team their reputation suggests, but then cooled off midway through the final period and mostly watched while Arkansas established the tempo of the game.

Tech's shooting display against Baylor never even threatened an appearance here, where the Raiders finally collapsed beneath a frigid 37.5 accuracy clip from the floor.

Only Norman Reuther turned in a creditable performance, as the southpaw hook shot artist popped in 22 points to lead all players on the court. But the dropoff from that was noticeable as well as fatal.

Dub Malaise, king of the court, had one of his poorest showings ever. He hit on but two of 13 field goal attempts and was hampered greatly by trying to force the ball in from underneath.

"We Weren't Prepared"

Arkansas hit the court ready to play, as they moved in for one open shot after the other from beneath the basket and attacked the Tech full-court press as though it hadn't even existed.

"We just weren't mentally prepared to play," coach Gene Gibson lamented later. "It looked as though we'd come up for the ride instead of the game."

John Talkington was the big noise for Arkansas, moving un-

Aggies In 92-85 Win

HOUSTON (UPI)—John Beasley brought Texas A&M from the brink of disaster Saturday night and the Aggies staved off beating Rice by 92-85 in a tense southwest conference basketball game.

After trailing by 49-40 at the half the winless Owls took the lead after six minutes of play in the second half and stayed in front for more than 10 minutes before Beasley brought the Aggies storming back.

Owls Lose Lead

The Owls led for the last time, 81-80, with 3:09 left to play but lacked the punch to pull off the upset.

Beasley scored 26 points for the night, hitting four straight free throws in the last 70 seconds to ice the ball game.

Rice's bid for its first victory of the season was led by Guy Lease, a fiery senior guard from Houston. He scored 25 before fouling out with 4:40 left in the game.

The Aggies hit 45. 6per cent of their shots from the field. The Aggies hit 45.6 per cent

The game was played before a crowd of 4,400.

Mustangs Bomb Texas For 99-78 SWC Victory

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist and Texas, co-champions of the Southwest Conference last year, renewed their basketball rivalry Saturday with the Mustangs winning 99-78.

It was the first conference loss for the Longhorns, who had defeated Rice Tuesday. The victory evened the Mustangs' conference record at 1-1. They lost last week to Texas A&M.

Although it shot at a 63 per cent pace in the first half, SMU led by only three points 48-45 after having a 10-point lead at one point in the initial half.

Texas Ties Score

Within three minutes after SMU had moved in front 38-28 Texas tied the score at 38-all. Sophomore John Higginbotham entered the game for SMU and quickly scored two baskets to give the Mustangs a 5-point margin just before the Mike Gammon tossed in a 35-foot field goal at the halftime buzzer.

In the second half, behind the shooting of Higginbotham, who scored 19 points, Carroll Hooser, who scored 20 points, and Charles Beasley, the Mustangs' went ahead as much as 23 points late in the game.

Texas was hampered by errors in the second half and the quick hands of Beasley who intercepted five passes.

Byron Nelson Slowed By Calcium Deposit

BYRON NELSON, ONE OF the greatest names in golf although he has been "retired" from the pro tour for almost 20 years now, still draws a flock of sports writers when he appears on the scene.

"Lord Byron", as he is called by many, was at Colonial Country Club for a kickoff dinner for Shell's golf show recently and the minute he walked in the door, the scribes flocked around him as if they were drawn by a magnet.

Nelson spends most of his time these days taking care of a hundred head of cattle on his 778-acre ranch near Roanoke because his health has kept him off the golf course.

Nelson, who won 12 straight tourneys back in 1945, 11 of them official meets, has been bothered by a calcium deposit on his spine which pinches nerves and makes it impossible for him to swing a club.

In fact, he hasn't played a bit since September because of the pain, but he says this is a good time to be sidelined because the weather isn't the best for golf playing.

Also, Byron hadn't planned to play much although he had hoped to enter the Bing Crosby tourney in a couple of weeks and team up with Eddie Lowrey in the Pro-Am.

"NOW FELLAS," HE SAID, "Don't play this thing up because there is a chance the spurs on the vertebrae that are giving me this trouble may grow together and thereby effect a cure.

"The doctors have told me that surgery, diet or drugs won't correct it. I've been through all kinds of examinations and all of the reports have been the same. I feel like I'm doing better because I can swing a little without it hurting."

"Even if this cleared up today, I couldn't play in the Crosby meet because I've been off the links too long and you have to practice a lot to keep up with the boys on tour," he added.

"Who's favored?"

Nelson hopes he'll be able to play in two tourneys this year, the Masters and the Odessa Pro-Am, the only ones he tries to compete in any more.

He has verbal commitments to help with telecast of two major torneys and he is hoping to get more. On them, he'll handle the color duties which he did last year.

THIS IS JUST ANOTHER in the series of health problems that Nelson, considered by many as the Texan who has contributed the most to golf, including Ben Hogan, has been plagued with during recent years.

He's completely over a bleeding problem he had not too long ago. He says he could have a cut and the bleeding would last three times longer than normal, but all of a sudden, it just cleared up and he hasn't had any problems with it since.

"I wasn't in too bad a shape then because I could go out and fire a 73 round," he laughed. "I'm hoping this present ailment will go away the same way."

Nelson has been cutting down on his golf playing before the ailment appeared. "I guess I played only 49 rounds of golf last year, and fellas, that's less than once a week. Sometimes, I would play two or three times a week, then I'd go a couple of weeks where I wouldn't play at all," he said.

ALTHOUGH HE'S NOT as active in the sport as he used to be, Nelson keeps up with it closely. One particular person he watches is Ken Venturi, one of his pupils.

"Eddie (Lowrey) called me one day and asked if I would work with a young golfer, so I flew out to the West Coast and gave Venturi some lessons," he said.

Others have dropped around asking for help, including one of Jack Nicklaus' buddies, Dick Marshall of Indianapolis. "He had a problem few wanted changing, he wanted to learn how to cut down on his irons. Most want all the distance they can get out of their irons, but not him."

Others Nelson has helped in one way or another are Marty Fleckman, the former University of Houston great, who has been up to Roanoke twice, and Ken Newell, who is a non-scholarship boy as a freshman at Houston now.

Nelson has a reason to watch this youngster because Newell is his nephew and he's been playing golf for only three years.

"Oh, you can't tell about youngsters and their potential these days, especially after they have been playing for only a short time. Now Ken isn't a big fellow, I think he stands about 5-7, and size means a lot in golf although you don't have to be big. I think the best size is like (Arnold) Palmer, Hogan and Gene Sarazen," he said.

Nelson is a big framed man, taller than those three, but he doesn't think it helped him just a whole lot. Something did all right because during his career, Nelson was among the best and no on has come close to winning 12 tourneys in a row.

There's no telling how much money Nelson would have won had he played now when tourneys pay more to the champion. He certainly would have been high in the list if not at the top.

Savage Earns Shot At Title

Dutch Savage, who made his debut here last week, was impressive enough to earn a crack at Ricky Romero's North American heavyweight crown Wednesday night.

This bout is the second half of a double main event at Fair Park Coliseum and will be the last of five matches. The first one is slated for 8:30 p.m.

Savage disposed of Dory Funk Sr. here last week in his first appearance here and he'll be up against one of the best in Romero, who has been champion for the past two months.

In the first half of the double main event, Chief Wahoo, better known as pro football star Wahoo McDaniel, goes against Dandy Jack Donovan.

Wahoo has been impressive since returning here three weeks ago after a fall of football with the New York Jets of the American Football League, but he's meeting a rugged opponent in Donovan.

Both matches are slated for the best of three falls or one hour time limits.

Terry Funk, who turned pro wrestler back in December, gets his first call in a single match when he battles Lennie Miller of Hereford in the final preliminary bout of the night, slated for one fall.

Terry has competed here the past four weeks, but he's been in one form of a tag match or another, but this week he's strictly on his own.

Doug Gilbert meets Iron Mike and Tokyo Tom is paired against Treach Phillips, who is returning to the local ring after a year's absence. He was tough when he was here before and Tom should have his hands full in this one.

Nobis Voted Top Player At Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — All-America linebacker Tommy Nobis, who signed last month with Atlanta of the National Football League, was named Saturday night the University of Texas' most valuable football player of 1965.

It ws the second year Nobis' teammates selected the Longhorn co-captain for the honor.

The award was made at the annual grid banquet sponsored by the university's ex-students' association.

Co-captain Marvin Kristynik of Bay City won the D. X. Bible Team Spirit Award and the Longhorn Band's Harold Byrd Leadership Award.

Center Jack Howe of Bartlesville, Okla., a senior engineering student with a B average, won the Travis County Texas-Exes' Club Scholarship Award for the senior football player with the highest grades.He also received the Longhorn Club's Sportsmanship Award.

The Longhorn Club's recognition award to an athlete who has played well without receiving previous recognition went to fullback Tom Stockton of Lubbock.

Guard Frank Bedrick of Kaufman, who plans to attend the university's Graduate School of Business, received the $500 Clyde Littlefield Graduate Fellowship Award.

PALMER TO PLAY

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Arnold Palmer announced Friday he will compete in the $50,000 Lucky International golf tournament at Harding Park Course Jan. 24-30.

AND STRANGE THINGS HAPPENED

Pros Dish Out Millions In Package Deals To Best College Footballers

NEW YORK (AP) — Astronaut Frank Borman, hurtling around the world in his space capsule, took time out to try and convince Tommy Nobis to sign with Houston.

Kansas City signed Mike Garrett, immediately triggering reports that he had been promised the franchise would be shifted so he could play in Los Angeles.

Donny Anderson was supposed to have been offered an $887,000 package deal — and turned it down.

Unbelievable? Yes.

But Borman did communicate with Nobis by discussing the bidding war over his services from the space capsule, a franchise shift was reported to be mentioned as one of Garrett's fringe benefits and Anderson supposedly did take considerable less money when he signed with Green Bay.

And if that sounds fantastic it just underscores the battle that has been raging between the National and American Football Leagues over the top college players in the country.

The NFL won the annual game between the two leagues both in quality and quantity, but the biggest news turned out to be the sums of money handed out to untried, untested players. If the figures tossed around can be believed some 20 top players cost upwards of $7 million.

Over-all the NFL has signed 75 per cent of the 232 eligibles it drafted, 174 players deciding to go with NFL teams and 40 with AFL teams while 18 remained unsigned. The AFL, meanwhile, has signed 46 per cent of its 181 draftees, getting 84 players and losing 78 to the NFL while 19 remain unsigned.

Of 111 players drafted by both leagues, the NFL outsigned the AFL 79-28, with four unsigned.

Taking the first three rounds for a quality basis, the NFL has signed 38 of 43 eligibles, 14 of 16 first-round choices, 11 of 13 second-round picks and 13 of 14 third-round selections. The five others went to the AFL.

The AFL signed 11 of 28 eligibles, five of 10 off the first round, two of nine off the second and four of nine of the third. The NFL got the other 17.

Nine NFL teams grabbed of their top three draft choices — Atlanta, Baltimore, Green Bay, Minnesota, New York, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Washington — while no AFL team was able to match that scorecard.

NEW YORK (AP) — The complete breakdown on the first three rounds of the National and American Football League drafts:

New York—Signed Michigan tackle Bill Yearby, lost Kentucky tackle Sam Ball to Baltimore, signed Oklahoma linebacker Carl McAdams.

Minnesota and Washington each signed its first six choices while Atlanta signed its top five. The best an AFL team could do was two, by Boston.

On the other side of the ledger, only one NFL team — Los Angeles — lost as many as two of its top three choices while in the AFL Buffalo lost its first three and San Diego its first six.

The AFL did well on its future list, signing six of the eight first-round selections from its special future draft of 1964. The NFL, which picks its futures in its regular draft, signed eight of 14 leading futures drafted in 1964. Each league also signed one high future from this year's draft list.

The biggest winners turned out to be the players. Some of the prices attached to their names border on the unbelievable with at least 20 players supposedly receiving contracts ranging from $200,000 to $700,000.

The list includes:

Texas linebacker Tommy Nobis, Atlanta NFL, $700,000.

Illinois fullback Jim Grabowski, Green Bay NFL $625,000.

Michigan State tackle Hal Lucas, St. Louis NFL, $350,000.

At $325,000 are Oklahoma linebacker Carl McAdams, New York AFL; Kentucky halfback Rodger Bird, Oakland AFL; Mississippi halfback Mike Dennis, Los Angeles NFL; Mississippi tackle Stan Hindman, San Francisco NFL.

The $300,000 group shows LSU tackle George Rice, Houston AFL; Missouri tackle Francis Peay, New York NFL; Kentucky quarterback Rick Norton, Miami AFL; Arkansas tackle Glen Ray Hines, Houston AFL.

In the $200,000 and above category are Kentucky tackle Sam Ball, Baltimore NFL; Michigan tackle Bill Yearby, New York AFL; Massachusetts and Milt Morin, Cleveland NFL; Tulsa tackle Willie Townes, Dallas NFL.

How accurate the figures are no one will ever know. Officially teams do not give them out although one league is not adverse to giving out figures on a player the other league signs. Houston owner Bud Adams proved that.

Adams, who stated flatly that he had offered Donny Anderson $887,000 to go with the Oilers, including a $200,000 home, a $36,000 swimming pool and $16,000 in furniture, refused to specify what he had paid for four tackles although he said it was in excess of $1 million.

Asked to give specific figures as he had on Anderson, Adams said simply:

"We don't give out figures on tackles."

St. John's Rambles By Villanova Cagers

NEW YORK (AP) — Scott Dove snapped an overtime tie with one field goal, then added another basket that clinched a 68-63 basketball victory for St. John's over Villanova Saturday.

Dove, the high scorer with 29 points, put St. John's ahead 62-60 in the overtime period. After Frank Gaidjunas' field goal cut Villanova's deficit to 64-63, Dove tossed in a jump shot for the clinching points. Bob McIntyre added a pair of free throws in the final seconds.

Enigmatic Vince Lombardi Quietly Accepts NFL Title

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Enigmatic Vince Lombardi seemed about as excited as a man who just won a fistful of wooden matches playing checkers with children. But the low key was deceiving.

An hour before, when the Green Bay Packers were still locked in a struggle for the National Football League championship with the Cleveland Browns, Lombardi was almost exultant.

Paul Hornung, the veteran halfback Lombardi led to greatness, had just scored a touchdown. Hornung yelled as he returned to the Packer bench: "It's just like the good old days!" Lombardi took up the cry.

"Good Old Days"

"Did you hear that?" the 52-year-old coach and general manager shouted to his players. "It's just like the good old days! Just like the Good old days!"

But now the game was over and the Packers and Lombardi were back in the dressing room with their third league title in six seasons. But they weren't alone. Scores of newsmen filtered through the steamy room and television cameras peeked.

Lombardi smiledand politely answered questions. Quietly, almost uncomfortably, he accepted congratulations. But what he felt and what he thought could only be guessed at. He wasn't giving any clues away even in triumph. He seldom does.

The coach who runs the Packer operation down to the most minute detail remained inscrutable.

"I think there are people who know him," a friend said. "It's a very select and small group, but there are people. Remember that to get the most out of people you can't let them know your emotions. You can't let them figure you out."

Makes Football Fun

Lombardi is a man who, as one Packer said, "runs us until we can't run any more than then he runs us more." He is also a man the same player said "makes football fun."

He is a man who swept Green Bay clean of players who did not share his concepts of dedication and sacrifice and replaced them with players he knew could win because they had won before. He is a man who will humiliate a player for a mistake, but will apologize later, should he feel he was unjust.

He's not going to waste his energy chewing you out, if he doesn't think you have the talent," a player explained. "Indirectly, he's paying you a compliment."

Lombardi demands the winning attitude and for his winners, nothing is too good. The coach spared no expense in outfitting the Packer clubhouse. After a championship, he has rewarded Packer wives with mink.

Vaunts Green Bay

Despite his reputation as a taskmaster, Lombardi has made Green Bay as attractive to the football player as New York was to the baseball player when the Yankees were the class of the American League.

"Opposing players will say to you: 'Hey, put in a good word for me with the coach, will you?'" a Packer said with pride.

"Coach Lombardi will show his feelings to individuals, but never to a group of people," one friend said. "Later on that night of the championship game, he was extremely gay. It just took him a while to release his emotions."

"Coach Lombardi will show his feelings to individuals, but never to a group of people," one friend said. "Later on that night of the championship game, he was extremely gay. It just took him a while to release his emotions."

The Brooklyn-bred son of an Italian immigrant, never has been associated with a loser. In seven seasons in Green Bay he has won four divisional titles and three league crowns. His worst finish was in 1959 when he brought the Packers, tailenders the season before, home third. Lombardi was credited with a miracle. Lt was his first season as a head coach above the high school level.

"They build me up as a hard man and I'm not," the one-time member of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite said recently. But whatever softness is in Lombardi it doesn't show. In Green Bay his authority is absolute and unchallenged.

"We're Enlisted Men"

"He got his training with Red Blaik at West Point (where Lombardi served as an assistant coach) and even now uses Army terminology in talking to us," a Packer said. "It's chow time and formations and so forth. The Army way is his way of treating men. He's an officer and we're the enlisted men."

Few get close to Lombardi. "Players laugh and joke with him, but only up to a certain point," a Packer said. "You're afraid to go over a certain step. The Baltimore players, for example, call Don Shula Shoe. You never hear us call him Vince. It's always Coach Lombardi or Mr. Lombardi."

At the same time, players hold Lombardi in awe. "Gee, have I learned football here," one rookie said. "I never knew there was that much to football before I came here."

The players agree that Lombardi is a genius and not just a football genius.

Lombardi has dedicated his genius to winning. "He'll play cribbage like it's a matter of life or death," a player said.

Plays To Win

"Anything he plays. Whether it's checkers or a harmless game of cards, he plays to win."

He is also a religious man, who sometime will show up at practice with a Roman Catholic missal in his pocket. Lombardi tries to go to mass and communion daily and seldom fails.

"Dedication and sacrifice are his two key words," a friend said. "He has sacrified an awful lot to be a winner. I sometimes have the feeling he would like to sit down and relax with the players, but he can't for a minute. He's a leader and a leader is a lonesome man."

A player was asked if he understood what made Lombardi tick. "Of course not," he replied. "Who does?"

Two Enter Panhandle Fame Hall

Baseballer, Coach Honored In Amarillo

AMARILLO (AP) — Two greats of West Texas athletics will be installed in the Panhandle Hall of Fame Jan. 30.

For the first time, one athlete will be installed posthumously.

Those to be installed are Sam Hale, major and minor league baseball player, and Sam Burton, the late coach at West Texas State College.

Hale now is 69 and lives at Wheeler. He compiled a 10-year major league batting average of .302 playing with Detroit, Philadelphia and St. Louis.

Played For Browns

He was purchased from Detroit by the late Connie Mack for $75,000, an astounding sum in those days for a baseball contract. His last year in the majors was 1930 with the St. Louis Browns, but he played as late as 1940 for Midland of the West Texas-New Mexico League. He then was 44 years old and hit .357.

He retired in 1964 after working as pro or groundskeeper at golf clubs in Phillips, Shamrock, Vernon and Memphis. He was born in Glen Rose.

Burton coached at West Texas state from 1922 through 1933 and mainly was noted for his basketball coaching although he never played the game.

In 12 seasons, his cage teams won 210 games and lost 40. Texas Tech was the great rival at that period and his teams beat the Raiders 33 times in 35 attempts. He won 5 of 7 championships awarded in basketball in the old Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

He also coached football, track, wrestling and tennis. He died June 7, 1933, at the age of 43. He came to the Texas college from a post as assistant at the University of Oklahoma, where he played football.

Those now in the hall are Joe Fortenberry, who played for Burton was on the 1936 Olympics team and played for the Phillips Oilers for many years; Bob Seeds, baseball player; Gus Miller, West Texas State basketball coach; Frank Kimbrough, former football great and now West Texas State athletic director; Cal Farley, amateur and professional wrestler; Blair Cherry, former Amarillo High School and University of Texas football coach; and Howard Lynch, former Amarillo High School Coach.

MONDAY NIGHT

Wayland Pioneers To Play Mexican All-Star Squad

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Area basketball fans on Monday night will have opportunity to view a highlight of the Wayland College Pioneers' season when they meet the Mexican National Selection Team, the Aztecs, in Plainview.

Coach Clifford Ozmun's squad takes the court at 9 p.m., in Plainview High Gym against a team composed of Mexico's finest. Lester E. Lane, a native of Oklahoma, is the first foreign coach of the team, which is also touring the United States for the first time in many years.

Tickets to the court clash are $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. They will be available at the door.

The Mexican Olympic team in training for the 1968 Olympics, sports four 6-4 players and four that stand 6-2. Three others are over six foot and only one stands under the six-foot mark. Most are students at the National University of Mexico.

Since arriving in the United States last Monday, the Mexican Nationals have met St. Edward's University in Austin, the University of Houston and Olvey Neon Signs team in Enid, Okla.

Coaches of the two teams will renew acquaintances when the Pioneers and Oolympic team meet. Coach Lane was playing for Purcell, Okla., High School and Coach Ozmun was on the Harrah, Okla., High School team when the two first met.

Lane started on the University of Oklahoma team for four years and lettered two years in football under Bud Wilkinson. The Pioneer coach lettered four years in basketball at Oklahoma Baptist University and two in golf. He earned his master's degree at Oklahoma University.

Following his college ball career, Lane played for five years for the Wichita Vickers of Wichita, where he and Ozmun were teammates for one year, and went on to the Denver-Chicago Truckers, which he later coached to the finals in NAAU tournament play two straight years.

This outstanding ball player was selected to coach the AAU All-Star team in Italy in 1961, in the World Invitational Tournament, Manila, in 1962, and in the Formosa International Tournament in 1962.

He was assistant coach to the All-Star team that toured the United States with the Russians in November, 1962. The game was a part of a Thanksgiving doubleheader in which the Wayland Hut horses Elvin Queens were matched against the Russian women's team.

Guards on the Mexican National team included 6-0 Fernando L. Gonzalez, 6-2 Carlos Rojo and 6-4 Oscar Ozuna.

AND DORMITORY

Plans Approved For New ENMU Stadium

PORTALES (Special) — Two New Mexico agencies, the Board of Finance and Board of Educational Finance, have cleared the way for plans by Eastern New Mexico University to construct a 10,000-seat athletic stadium between Portales and Clovis.

The action of the two agencies, meeting in Santa Fe early this week, included approval of a proposed 450-student dormitory for the institution.

Eastern officials expect construction to begin on the stadium by Sept. 1, 1966, and to have the facility ready for use by Sept. 1, 1967.

The same time schedule is planned for construction and completion of the new dormitory.

Revenue-producing bonds will finance all but a fraction of the $2,085,000 cost of the two structures. The remaining $200,000 for the stadium will be raised through public contributions and pledges.

A sum of $400,000 will be directed to construction of the stadium proper, an earthfill structure to include press box, locker rooms, concession stands, and rest rooms. Development and landscaping of the surrounding recreation and park area will cost $100,000.

The planned residence hall will be designated Lincoln "B," following the concept of a dormitory currently under construction and designated Lincoln "A". The two buildings will not be joined but will be adjacent on land now owned by the University.

Cost of Lincoln "B" will be $1,585,000 and designer will be Chambers and Campbell Architects, Albuquerque, designer of Lincoln "A."

Other funds will be used for paving of parking areas, removal of "Vetville" buildings, and utilities extension. Also included in the plans is construction of a highway and railway express to link the Eastern main campus and a physical education complex being built north of the Administration Building.

Defense Had Character, Says Coach

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — South Coach Weeb Ewbank said "a defense that gained character in the second half" helped beat the North 27-18 in the Senior Bowl football game Saturday.

A more vigorous rush on North passers, Ewbank said, was an important factor in allowing the South to pick off three North passes in the second half.

North coach Mike Holovah of the Boston Patriots agreed with Ewbank, who cocahes the New York Jets of the American Football League.

"They got four interceptions to our none. That was the whole story," Holovak said.

Alabama halfback David Ray intercepted two North passes. Louisville linebacker Doug Buffone picked off one and Mississippi's Billy Clay got the other.

Buffone was named outstanding lineman for the South and Randy Johnson of Texas A&I, the South quarterback, was chosen the top back on his team.

End Howard Twilley of Tulsa, who caught 12 passes, was voted the North's top lineman and the outstanding player of the game.

Oklahoma State fullback Walt Garrison was named the North's best back.

Illinois Rolls Over Indiana, 98 To 84

The South Plains Sportsman — by LEO HEALER

A SHORT TIME BACK a part of a column was devoted to the background, use, and popularity of spoons for catching fish.

There are those who believe that a tackle box without a good supply of spoons just isn't a tackle box at all. This reliable lure is just that important.

I'd like to share with you a letter received from Bill Hendon, 2826 25th Street. His views pack a lot of respect for the fish-getting characteristics of spoons, and he backs it up with a lot of know-how. The following is what Hendon had to say about spoons:

I WAS INTERESTED in your comments on spoons. In the column, you mentioned the northern going "wild" at the sight of a spoon.

My brother, using a large Pet spoon, had a northern hit the side of the boat in a bad pass. As you know, northern trail a lure. They seldom hit it when it strikes the water, but prefer to follow it until they are some 10 feet or so out from the shore. Often, a northern will follow the lure on as many as three or four casts, passing at it or coming to the boat and turning. Usually, if you make him mad enough, he'll eventually hit it.

I know that every fisherman has his favorites, but where I fish on the Lake of the Woods, the spoon is what you use when all else fails. We use a lot of Johnson's, Rex spoons and Tony Asceta spoons. We use the larger models with a steel leader (and a small weight on the leader) and 15 pound line.

In all the years, I have found that the spoon in the Lake of the Woods is better if it is weedless. The most important thing in using the spoon for smallmouth blacks or northern is that the spoon have a piece of pork rind. We have tried it with and without pork rind and on any given day the guy with the same spoon, but with pork rind, will double the catch of the angler who uses the plain spoon.

Other northern and bass lures that are good for us include the Wiggler, any kind of twin spin, the sonic, River Runts and the champ of all is the Mepps, with lots of bucktain. Again, let me qualify this by saying that I seldom fish mornings, just late afternoons and evenings and these are the lures I use with northern and bass fishing, say from the middle of June until the end of August.

THE OTHER distinct kind of fishing is for walleye, dore, pike perch or whatever you choose to call them.

Early in June, the walleye like the northern will hit almost anything (five cell flashlights with hooks, etc.). Also, while it's still chilly, the walleye run in sandy bottom and shallow rocks areas in usually three to five feet of water.

For walleye, we usually use the same rigs as for northern with particular emphasis on the Mepps and jointed go-deepers. As it warms up, the walleye tend to move out into deeper water.

Many people (the two week feverish kind) use minnows, dragging them and dragging them alternately by trolling. Walleyes can be taken with artificial lures if you weight the lure so it will bump the rocks. During mid-season some of the best walleye fishing is in very rough water on the windy side of a rocky point, plugging along the reef and bumping the bottom. Many people use spinning gear, but it's a lot more fun to use a free-spool like the Garcia, with a 6½ foot stiff rod.

THE THIRD KIND of fishing is for the fabled muskie.

Muskie fishermen are a rare breed. Everywhere, the muskie fisherman can be seen. He fishes the same waters as for northern, but he uses the largest lures he can find with the most hooks.

Like his cousin, the northern (the fastest fresh water fish) the muskie is rapid and fishing for him means that you cast the largest, noisiest lure you have and retrieve it as rapidly as you can. People use big Creek Chubs, little ducks with spinners on them, and almost anything that makes a big flutter.

Sometimes the northern fishing yields a muskie, as in the case of one of my friends. He took a small muskie on a Rex spoon while we were fishing for northern. In Canada, the smallest muskie you can keep is 28 inches (usually about four to five pounds) and not too long ago it used to be 35 inches. The muskie is one I have endlessly wanted, but never had. I knew one man who came to the lake for two years (five days each time) and took home 45 to 50-inch muskies, one each year.

IN ALL THIS fishing, the spoon plays a part. The Mepps is still nominated for the champ for all of it. I have never caught the big lake trout up in the north end of the lake, but on the Lake of the Woods the spoon can take the northern, the walleye and the muskie.

Preference? The walleye taste better to me than any fresh-water fish I have eaten.

Not only that, but you can fillet a walleye so there are no bones in the flesh. For fishing, I'd rather fish for northern. They run bigger, fight better and are generally funny to fish for. They come out of the water and look at you; they chase and pass wildly (I have caught many northern in the side of the head) and always, in the back of your mind, while you fish for the three to ten pounders, is the hope that a 20-pound northern or that larger muskie will be waiting in the weeds and sand in that shallow water and give you the greatest moment of all.

One last note on the northern. He is much maligned in the north country. Canadians will not eat him (particularly in the summer when they say he gets soft) because of the protective coating, but the Canadians are spoiled.

If they lived down in the dust bowl, they would realize what a great fish they really have in the northern. A large baked northern stuffed with cornbread dressing is out of this world. Closed to the baked northern is the delight of pickled northern. You can chunk all the northern you catch after filleting them and pickle them. The bones dissolve in the solution and you wind up with a fish that is almost as good as the herring you buy in the stores.

Thanks a million, Bill Hendon! Your enthusiasm for spoons, what they can do in the Lake of the Woods and elsewhere is greatly appreciated. The one bad thing about it all is that the combination of all these observations will surely bring on an epidemic of fishing fever before spring even arrives. Good luck, come June, when you again go for the northerns . . . and we hope that 50-inch muskie will get on your string in 1966.

THERE'S GOOD NEWS for our New Mexico friends and readers.

The winter stocking program of the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish has included a new water, the Conservancy Park Lake, formerly known as Tingley Beach Lake, in Albuquerque.

Patrick Davies of the Department has been working with Albuquerque city authorities in rehabilitation of the water. Rotenone was applied a month ago, and last week trout were placed in the water in live-boxes. The trout lived, indicating that the water was suitable for restocking.

Plans for this week are to stock with catchable-size rainbow trout. Later the water will receive warm-water species—bass and bluegills.

AFL All-Stars Start Workouts

HOUSTON (AP) — The American Football League All-Stars who will meet the champion Buffalo Bills next Saturday began workouts here Saturday.

The All-Stars are drilling at the Houston Oiler practice field under the direction of Coach Sid Gillman and his San Diego Charger staff.

The Bills were due to arrive Sunday and hold their initial practice at Rice University practice field.

The nationally televised game this year will be the first between the championship team and All-Stars selected from the other teams. In the past, the game was played between All-Star squads of the Eastern and Western divisions of the league.

The Bills will be coached by their new head man, Joel Collier. Lou Sabin guided the team to the championship, but resigned last week to take the head coaching job at the University of Maryland.

Twins Sign Tall Hurler

South African Star Rated Top Prospect

ST. PAUL - MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Calvin Griffith hopes he's landed a modern-day Paul Bunyan to pitch for the Minnesota Twins.

Dave Lowery is the prospect's name, and he hails from the unlikely place of Johannesburg, South Africa.

He's 22 years old and stands 6-foot-5.

And the world is that he can throw a baseball like nobody ever has in his native South Africa.

Griffith is so impressed with Lowery's statistics and press clippings that he had invited him to the American League champion Twins' spring training camp opening Feb. 21 at Orlando, Fla.

Rough Diamond

"We just might have uncovered a diamond in the rough," Griffith said Saturday.

A right-hander, Lowery was brought to the Twins' attention by Fred Fray, a retired Arkansas businessman and friend of Minnesota pitching coach Johnny Sain. Fray has traveled extensively in South Africa.

Lowery is described by the South African newspaper Rand Daily Mail as "a million dollar baseball player by American standards."

He was the leading pitcher and top hitter in the Transvaal Baseball Association, South Africa's major league, last season. He played for both the Transvaal and Crown Mines teams in Johannesburg.

Lowery won 11 of 12 games in 1965, and the league plays only a 12-game schedule. He hit .481. In 1964, he won 14 of 15 games. For the two seasons, he struck out 246 batters in 243 innings. A few years ago, he pitched a perfect game.

"Sain has forwarded a number of highly impressive newspaper clippings concerning the boy to me," Griffith said, "and I can't help but feel that the boy is richly deserving of a chance to make the grade in American professional baseball.

"At 22 years of age, I feel he must be quite mature. His size and physical attributes are outstanding. He'll receive every opportunity with our organization, and I'm eagerly looking forward to his arrival in Orlando."

McBEAN SIGNS

PITTSBURGH, Pa (AP) — Relief pitcher Al McBean has signed his 1966 contract, the Pittsburgh Pirates announced Saturday.

CHICAGO LOOMS AS FIGHT SITE

Clay's Next Opponent To Be Terrell

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay said Saturday that his next heavyweight boxing title defense will be against Ernie Terrell, pooh-poohed the possibility of a match with England's Brian London and announced formation of a closed circuit television company with exclusive rights to his fights.

Clay at a news conference, said negotiations are under way for a title defense against Chicago's Ernie Terrell, recognized as champion by the World Boxing Association, in about 2½ months in Chicago. A Chicago site and definite date will have to be ironed out, he said.

Fight The Best

"A fight with London may draw in London, but that's all," said Clay. "I want to fight only the top and best prospects available, and there should be a law against me fighting London. He is short, fat, old and slow, and I wouldn't gain anything by beating him.

"In fact, I would like to fight the three best possible men on the same night, taking them on in succession with a 10 minute rest between each, for my title. And after I beat them, I would think about retirement.

"But right now, Terrell seems to be the best of the bunch. He seems qualified, is tall and has a good reach."

Clay said the new television company would be formed with Mike Malitz of New York, a veteran in the business.

"The company will be named Main Bout, Inc., and it will be one in which Negroes are not used just as fronts but as stockholders, officers and production and promotion agents," Clay said.

Jim Brown Included

"It will include such internationally-known athletes as the Cleveland Browns' Jim Brown and others outstanding in their fields.

"The company will handle closed-circuit television from my championship fights and other fights which I will help to promote.

"I am aware that various influences may be exerted upon some of the members of the Louisville sponsoring group (a syndicate which guides Clay) to make arrangements with companies previously involved in the handling of these fights, but in my opinion, such arrangements are outdated and detrimental.

New Boxing Image

"I am endeavoring to bring about a new image to boxing, and I am definitely opposed to any tie-ins with former champions or their companies. I intend to do away with the stigma of certain types of unwarranted return bout clauses.

"I feel certain, after my six years relationship with the Louisville group that it, too, will see the establishment of a new, fresh company so staffed as I have suggested as being in the best interest of boxing.

"I consider that Terrell is a lucky fellow to catch me in such a good mood," Clay continued. "He has certain things that qualify him as my next opponent. And I think that people will want to see this fight because undoubtedly he seems to be the best around at the moment."

There is the reported possibility that Clay may be reclassified by his Louisville draft board.

"I have not heard anything about such a reclassification," Clay said. "At any rate, I'm not rushing into getting more fights for any such reason as I might think I will be drafted."

NBA Stars Clash In Ohio Tuesday

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — No coach ever would have to worry about his job if he always had a team such as either of those that will clash here Tuesday night in the 16th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game.

The game will match the best of the Eastern Division against the best of the Western Division.

The Cincinnati Gardens virtually is sold out for this dream game and standing room tickets may be sold. There have been as many as 15,000 persons in the Gardens for a basketball game but to meet fire department regulations only a little more than 12,000 seats are being sold for the All-Star contest.

The East rates as a heavy favorite.

In regular season inter-division games through Thursday, the East has won 62 and lost 36. Only the last place New York Knickerbockers have lost more games to the West than they have won. Boston, Cincinnati and Philadelphia hold substantial edges.

The East already holds a 10-5 edge over the West in previous All-Star contests. The East won last year, 124-123.

To see why the East is such a favorite you only have to look at the awesome starting line-up Coach Red Auerbach of the 1965 NBA champion Boston Celtics will be throwing at the West.

Jerry Lucas of Cincinnati, last year's most valuable All-Star game player, and John Havlicek of Boston will hold down the forecourt positions with Cincinnati's great Oscar Robertson and Boston's Sam Jones in the backcourt.

Auerbach has a problem at the pivot position—either Bill Russell of Boston or Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia.

One sideline coach remarked, "woota problem."

It stems, however, from the fact that both Russell and Chamberlain were unanimous choices of sports writers for the team and Auerbach said he wants an NBA decision as to how to make the choice.

Except for Jerry West of Los Angeles, Fred Schaus, West coach who directed the Los Angeles Lakers to the Western Division title in 1965, doesn't figure to be able to match that array in individual brilliance.

The starters will be Bailey Howell of Baltimore and Rick Barry of San Francisco in the forecourt, Nate Thurmond of San Francisco at the pivot and Guy Rodgers of San Francisco and West in the backcourt.

Barry will be the only 1966 rookie on either 10-manssquad.

Auerbach is hesitant to accept the heavy favorite's role.

"The West is just liable to get mad because they're the underdogs," he said. "If they do, they'll go all out and they could be a lot of trouble."

In previous games, the West also holds the scoring records. It whipped the East 153-131 in 1961 and came back the next year to win 150-130.

For purposes of the record, the lowest scoring game was in 1953 when the West won 79-75.

Four of the players in Tuesday night's game have been voted the most valuable player in previous contests. Robertson won it in 1961 and 1964, Chamberlain in 1960, Russell in 1963 and Lucas was the winner last year.

The winner this year will receive a new automobile.

This will be the ninth All-Star game for the bearded Russell, the seventh for Chamberlain and the sixth for both Robertson and West.

Game time will be 8:30 p.m., EST.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Here are the starting line-ups and the remainder of the squads for the 16th annual National Basketball Association All-Star game to be played here Tuesday:

West—Larusso, Los Angeles; Beaty, St Louis; Ohl, Baltimore; DeBusschere, Detroit; Miles, Detroit.

Buffalo Coach Resigns Post

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Offenhamer, head football coach at the University of Buffalo, resigned Saturday becuase "it is a time to call a halt" to 30 years of football.

Only Friday, one of his assistants, offensive line coach Dewey Wade, became an assistant to Lou Saban, new head coach at the University of Maryland.

Dr. Clifford C. Furnas, Buffalo's president who announced Offenhamer's resignation, said he hoped to retain Offenhamer at the university, a unit of the state university.

Furnas said he had asked Offenhamer to reconsider his resignation, and that he replied he could not for "compelling personal reasons."

Furnas said no successor has been named.

Offenhamer, who was a halfback at Colgate under Coach Andy Kerr, came to Buffalo in 1955 after serving as coach of Colgate's freshman team.

In 11 years, his Buffalo team played 100 games, winning 58, losing 37 and tying five.

Greene Triumphs In Track Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Collegiate sprint champion Charlie Greene of Nebraska broke with a fast start and outraced former Fresno State star Darel Newman in the 60-yard dash of the Examiner Invitational Indoor Track meet Saturday night, timed in six seconds flat.

Newman finished a step behind in 6.1 as both bettered the meet record of 6.2 by Herb Carper in 1963.

Greene took a short lead on a leaving the blocks and outdueled Newman through the distance. Wayne Herman of San Jose State took third in 6.2.

Green's time equalled his best for 60 yards, just one-tenth off the world's best.

Earl McCullouch of Long Beach City College pulled a big surprise when he beat a field including both Ralph Boston and Blaine Lindgren in the 60-yard high hurdles. McCullouch's time was 7.3 as Boston took second in 7.4, followed by Tom Wyatt of Oklahoma's Athens Athletic Club and Lindgren, both timed in 7.5.

Atlanta Signs 'Bama's Sloan

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) —Steve Sloan, pinpoint passer who led Alabama to the national football title, signed a contract today to play with the Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

Sloan, who hit 60 per cent of his passes during the season, was drafted by Atlanta on the 11th round. He was not drafted by any American Football League team but was being sought by the New York Jets after a spectacular performance in the Orange Bowl where Alabama beat Nebraska.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but Sloan reportedly will receive about $100,000. He signed two hours before the Senior Bowl game in which he was to play for the South.

Six Cubs Sign 1966 Contract

CHICAGO (AP) — Veteran pitcher Larry Jackson and four rookies have signed their 1966 contracts, the Chicago Cubs announced Saturday.

Jackson, who slipped to a 14-21 record after posting a 24-11 mark in 1964, accepted a reduction in his salary.

Others to sign were pitcher Charles Hartenstein, 12-7 with Dallas-Fort Worth; pitcher Richard James, 3-2 with Treasure Valley in the Pioneer League; outfielder Byron Browne, who hit 21 home runs and drove in 89 runs for Wenatchee in the Northwest League; and outfielder Don Young, who batted .273 for Dallas-Fort Worth.

Nancy Richey Is Beaten In Meet

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Margaret Smith of Australia, the world's top woman tennis player, crushed Nancy Richey of Dallas, Tex., 6-3, 6-1 Saturday in the women's singles final of the West Australian Championships.

The Wimbledon champion's strong serves and net rushing superiority, combined with Miss Richey's inability to play up to her form because of a knee injury, made it a mismatch.

The American girl was hurt in her semifinal match Friday against Judy Tegart of Australia but was not hampered by the injury in the final until she fell chasing a wide shot. She withdrew from the mixed doubles semifinals, and went to a specialist for examination.

Australia's Davis Cup pair of John Newcombe and Tony Roche scored an 8-6, 6-4, 5-7, 3-6, 8-6 decision in the men's doubles semifinal over Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Cliff Richey of Dallas, who will meet for the men's singles title Sunday in an all-American final.

Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill., and Tom Okker of the Netherlands won the other semifinal, 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 over Jim McManus of Berkeley, Calif., and Herb FitzGibbon of Garden City, N.Y.

Miss Tegart and Roche advanced to the mixed doubles final by beating Carol Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio and Riessen 6-2, 6-4.

Lesley Hunt of Australia and Okker gained the other berth in the mixed final with the withdrawal of Miss Richey, whose partner was Ashe.

Four Baseballers To Be Honored At Fete

NEW YORK (AP) — Four baseball stars will be cited for high principle and achievement in sports in 1965 by the Sports Lodge of B'Nai B'Rith at the organization's 15th annual Bill Corum Memorial dinner at the Hotel Americana Jan. 22.

The four are Maury Wills of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers; Minnesota's Zoilo Versalles, the American League's most valuable player last season; Mel Stottlemyre, a 20-game winner for the New York Yankees, and slugger Ron Swoboda of the New York Mets.

Baylor Rips TCU, 89-75

WACO (UPI) — The Baylor Bears roared from behind with 32 points in the final 10 minutes of play Saturday night to whip the Texas Christian Horned Frogs 89-75 and create a six-way logjam for second place in the young Southwest Conference race.

Baylor trailed by six points midway through the second half, and appeared to be on its way to a second straight loss in conference play.

But Jimmy Turner and Carroll Hardy lit a fire under the slumbering Bears to push them into a 62-62 tie. From that point, Turner hit four straight baskets while the Frogs could not find the hoop, and Baylor was on its way.

Both Baylor and TCU are 1-1 in SWC play, as are SMU, Texas, Texas Tech, and Arkansas.

The first half of the game was a run and shoot scoring battle, with the Frogs coming from behind to take a two-point lead into the dressing room, 42-40.

Jimmy Turner wound up with 27 points to lead all scorers, followed closely by Hardy with 26.

Gary Turner led TCU with 24 points.

Anderson's high kick was fumbled on a fair catch call by Ron Rector of Northwestern, and Southern Cal's Mike Garrett recovered on the North's 17-yard line.

On the second play thereafter, Wilson hit White for a touchdown from the 13.

Harold Lucas of Michigan State recovered Anderson's fumble on the South's 44, and from there the North scored in eight plays, Juday's pass to Rector picking up the final 17 yards.

The South went 84 yards for go-ahead touchdown in the second quarter with Wilson passing to Anderson for the last 25 yards.

Wilson then found Anderson on a pass for the two-point conversion and the South was in front 14-7.

South made it 20-7 after stopping the North on downs on its 19-yard line. The South touchdown drive of 81 yards was climaxed by a 33-yard scoring pass from Krstynik to White.

Juday, Michigan State quarterback, won Back of the Game honors as he directed the North to the thrilling victory, but statistical honors went to a pair of Texas Tech standouts—quarterback Tommy Wilson and halfback Donny Anderson.

Carl McAdams, Oklahoma middle guard, was named best lineman of the Friday night's game.

Juday, who had trouble finding his targets in the first half, caught fire in the last two periods. He ran 20 yards for one touchdown and directed an 81-yard drive climaxed by a four-yard touchdown plunge by Jim Grabowski of Illinois. He later passed to Pitt's Eric Crabtree for 21 yards and the go-ahead touchdown. He completed 10 of 22 passes for 109 yards.

Wilson made good on 21 of 35 for 292 yards. He set records for passes attempted and passing yardage.

Anderson, who caught two touchdown passes, set a record for most catches, 10.

White, of Nebraska who also caught a pair of touchdown tosses, broke the record for yards gained on receptions with 155.

unnoticed in the Palmer clamor, Kelley and Gene Littler, with 68, and Ragan, with 72.

"It sure is a comfortable feeling with a seven-shot lead," Palmer said, in something of an under-statement.

Someone said it was unbelievalbe the way his putts were going in. "I didn't believe it myself," Arnie replied.

He said this ties his lowest competitive round, a 62 in 1959 at the Thunderbird Invitational in Palm Springs, Calif.

He attributed his putting to a change of hand position on the club. Palmer had 24 putts, the lowest he's ever had in his life in competition, he said.

What did his playing partners think of his brilliant putting? "They didn't know what to expect," Palmer said, and added, "Neither did I."

He played the round with Ragan and Barber.

Palmer's longest birdie putt was 25 feet on the 11th hole. Two were 15 feet and the others were 10 or under.

The lone bogey came when he missed the green. The wind came up, he said, just as he hit the shot and sucked the ball back. He said he chipped poorly about eight feet from the cup and missed the putt.

Palmer made a point of saying hello to his mother on national televison. She is in a Pittsburgh hospital undergoing a bone graft.

Tomorrow's plans?

"I'm just going out there and try to make some more birdies," he concluded.

sharp passes to ace receivers Raymond Berry and Jimmy Orr.

"We had to be cautious in our games with Los Angeles and Green Bay and couldn't afford to make any mistakes," said Baltimore Coach Don Shula. "Against Dallas, we figure we're going to have to loosen up a bit."

Tom Landry, coach of the Cowboys, also expects more passing from Matte.

"Baltimore is traditionally an offensive minded team," he said. "We expect Matte to do a lot more throwing."

Orr, a 29-year-old veteran, is Baltimore's top pass receiver, nabbing 45 for 847 yards and 10 touchdowns. Berry has caught 58 for 739 yards and seven TDs.

Both have been outshone by the rookie Hayes, Olympic sprint champion and world record holder in the 100 meter dash whose 46 receptions have netted 1,003 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Baltimore has a strong rushing team, led by Lenny Moore and Jerry Hill. Dallas' top ground gainer is fullback Don Perkins, who has rolled up 690 yards.

Flying Queens Trip Raytown

KANSAS CITY (Special)— The Wayland Flying Queens opened National AAU conference play here Saturday night with a 74-64 victory over the Raytown Tigerettes.

It was a close game for three quarters. Raytown led after the first stanza, 17-12, and it was tied up, 32-32, at halftime. The Tigerettes took a 52-50 lead into the final quarter.

Wayland pressed for three quarters, then dropped back, causing Raytown to throw the ball away on several occasions and the Queens began to pull away.

Betty Ransom led the way with 26 points, while Anita Sankey had 14. Carol Phillips and Dixie Woodall had 19 each for the losers.

Wayland is 3-0 for the year and plays host to Hardin-Simmons Jan. 22.

Lovington Collects Opening Loop Win

LOVINGTON (Special)— Lovington opened District 4-A (New Mexico) warfare on a successful note here Saturday romping over Tucumcari, 88-60, behind the 20 point firing of John Hice.

Junior Barnes was high for Tucumcari with 18 points.

TECH NOW 1-1

Arkansas Swamps Raider Momentum

derneath for easy layups and paced the Hog forces that dominated rebounding at almost a 2-to-1 clip during the game's early stages.

Inability to hit free throws in crucial situations also hurt the Raiders, who made but 11 of 18 from the charity line.

The Raiders began late in the first half trimming away at a 16-point deficit, and it looked early in the second stanza as though they might close the gap.

Tech Tries Rebound

After both teams got off to a slow post-intermission start, Malaise hit from the outside to get Tech apparently on its feet. Bobby Measells connected a few seconds later, and the Raiders trailed by only 42-35. J. D. McConnel gave Arkansas a little more air, but Dub pushed one in and drew a foul in the process.

After he'd completed the three-pointer, the Raiders were behind by 42-38. They could get no closer. Arkansas again took command, and this time pushed things out of range for keeps.

They triggered a rally that spurted them ahead, 46-43 with 10:06 remaining, and the Raider morale hit a new low.

Tech whittled it back to 56-51 on another three-point play by Malaise, but Arkansas again poured on the steam in sufficient quantity to breeze across the finish line. The Hogs lead bulged to 67-55 with less than three minutes remaining, and it was all over but the formality of playing it out.

Win Streak Halted

Saturday ended a four-game winning streak Tech had built over Arkansas, and the victory should add momentum to the Razorback trek to College Station Tuesday night.

The Raiders play Midwestern in Lubbock Saturday, then get off the warfare circuit until after finals. Their next SWC contest is against SMU in Lubbock Jan. 22.

Evidence that the Raiders lacked the touch they'd shown against Baylor made an early appearance. Tech was unable to close out Talkington from the easy A-zone shots, and its own offense sputtered from the opening whistle.

The Hogs got the opening tip and took a 2-0 lead that was virtually unchallenged during the opening period. They penetrated the Raider defense with remarkable ease, and at one point vaulted the lead to a 16-point cushion.

Malaise was unable to hit from the outside, and virtually every Tech effort from more than ten feet away seemed to fall in the hands of Arkansas' superior rebounding.

Missed Free Throws Hurt

During the first half, Tech made only five of ten free throws and Billy Tapp missed an excellent opportunity to put the Raiders back into the game after time had elapsed at the end of the initial stanza.

Tech had fought back from a 40-24 deficit, narrowing the count to 40-31 when J. D. McConnell fouled Tapp as the buzzer sounded. Billy's first effort on the one-and-one hit the rim and rolled away.

But he wasn't alone. Both Malaise and Trenton Bonner had missed the first show with the bonus in effect when the Raiders were trying desperately to climb back into the game.

The Raider press, which had worked so effectively against Baylor only four days earlier, offered little in the way of harrassment to the Hogs.

They attacked the press as though it wasn't there, then breezed the ball down court where Tech offered little resistance.

Rebounding was another large factor in the early Razorback lead. Paced by Talkington, who put eight caroms with his 12 first-half points, Arkansas outrebounded the Raiders, 32-18, allowing the Hogs to set and maintain the tempo of the game.

Glover got into foul trouble in the first period, collecting three—two of which came in the first two minutes of play.

OF LOSS

'Not Alert,' Says Gib

By BURLE PETTIT
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

FAYETTVILLE, Ark.—Coach Gene Gibson sat dejectedly on the airplane, gazing sadly at the statistics which told the sad story; two of 13 from the floor by Dub Malaise . . . pathetic rebounds . . . just over 60 percent from the free throw line . . .

He crumpled the mimeograph sheet, tucking it precariously into a folder and stared for a long time, first at the floor and then at the ceiling.

"We Weren't Ready"

"We just weren't ready to play," he said, firmly. "You can't get ready against as good a team as Arkansas after the game starts. And we obviously hadn't prepared ourselves before the game.

"Against Baylor Tuesday night, just as soon as the ball went through the bucket we had five men right on the spots they were suppose to've been in. Today, we just weren't alert."

The Raiders Tuesday stormed on Baylor in the opening seconds of play, using to full advantage a full-court press that created Bear mistakes in rapid-fire order. Against Arkansas, the press fizzled.

"And we started out with the same press against Arkansas out there today. But it sure didn't look like it, did it? We'd have three guys standing in a line right on the same side of the court.

Midwestern Next

"They just ignored them, and threw the ball down the field for two points."

The Raiders play only one game next week, hosting Midwestern Saturday. Then, after another week's inactivity, they entertain SMU in what preseason forecasters figured would be one of two showdown battles with the Mustangs.

How does Gibson think the layoff will affect Tech?

"It all will depend on mental attitude. If we really want to, we can come back and win. We have a good ball club. But before we can be a winning ball club, we've got to come up with some consistency.

"We've got to learn to play on the road."

Hogs Never Trail

The Raorbacks jumped ahead of Tech and never trailed in the contest. Only twice did the Raiders threaten, and each time Arkansas arose to the demands of the situation and re-padded its lead. Gibson declares, however, that the Porkers did nothing unexpected.

"They did exactly what we thought they'd do, the same things we've been working on all week. But we sure looked like tonight that we'd never seen anything like it before."

The conference race, to Gibson, is still a wide open affair.

"One battle doesn't win a war. Neither does one win or one loss make or lose a championship. When you have six teams as nearly equal as this league has, there are going to be some losses.

"No one will go through undefeated. Before the season started Doc Hayes (SMU coach) said he'd settle for an 11-3 record and never play a game. I think I would be glad to accept the same deal.

"Not Enough Leadership"

"We still aren't getting the leadership we need. Someone is going to have to reach out and take charge on the floor. And it will have to be someone unselfish enough to handle the job."

Perhaps the many free throws Tech missed in the game would not have completely closed the gap; however, Gibson feels that the charity tosses best tell the entire story.

"Free throws are very indicative of mental attitud., because a free throw is merely a matter of concentration. So it all goes back to what I said to start with: "We just weren't mentally ready to play this game."

Angelo Runs By Pioneers

PLAINVIEW (Special)—Trailing by five points with seven minutes remaining before intermission, the Angelo College Rams shifted gears and hustled to an 84-79 non-conference cage victory over the Wayland Pioneers here Saturday.

Angelo and the hosts traded small leads throughout the first half but the Rams, aided by the 21 point firing of Alex Decuir erased the deficit and went in for the half time break clutching a 41-36 lead which they never gave up.

Piling up points in the second half, the visitors pulled to a nine point lead with 11 minutes left in the game and then backed into victory.

The Pioneers got trojan efforts from Chester Sample and Terry Bugher who had 25 and 20 points respectively. Jim Saul was third in the scoring parade with 14 markers.

Stompers Rip South Plains

CANYON (Special)—West Texas State's freshmen put on a tremendous rally in the second half here Saturday night to down South Plains College, 96-73, in a basketball thriller.

Coach Bill Powell's Texans commanded the first half, and went into the dressing room at intermission sporting a narrow, 41-39 advantage. But a SPC cold spell, plus some hot shooting by the Stompers changed immediately the complexion of the game, turning it almost into a rout.

Melvin Davis paced the Texans in scoring, hitting 20 points. Ron Phillips, Dennis Patton and Tom Holden all reached the double digits.

Bill Sikes paced the Stompers, hitting 17 to lead a six-man WT parade into double figures.

The Texans now stand 9-8 for the season.

NCAA Eyes Substitution Proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to do away with unlimited substitution and to return to one-platoon football will be made this week at the 60th annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

Thomas L. Popejoy, president of the University of New Mexico, will offer a resolution to that effect on behalf of the presidents of the Western Athletic Conference during business sessions of the NCAA convention Monday through Thursday.

The resolution actually is not binding on the rules makers, but strong floor support of Popejoy's resolution could have a strong influence on the Football Rules Committee when it meets in New Orleans Jan. 15-17.

Scholarships Eyed

Football made a full return to unlimited substitution only last season, after years of tinkering with the rule. Many administrators, however, feel it is too costly, requires too large a staff, requires too many scholarships.

Scholarships also will come under consideration by the convention, along with college-professional sports relations, and establishment of minimum academic standards for athletes.

In addition to the NCAA, about a dozen related organizations are holding their annual conventions, bringing the total number of delegates to about 3,000 college administrators, coaches, athletic directors and officials.

Things got under way last Friday, with the U.S. Track Coaches Association holding the first two meetings. The American Association of College Baseball Coaches opened three days of meetings Saturday, with their coach of the year banquet Monday night.

AFCA Also Meets

The largest group will be the American Football Coaches Association, meeting the same dates as the NCAA, Monday through Thursday. They will name their coach of the year on the final day and hold a banquet honoring him that night.

In addition, there are conventions of such groups as the National Association of College Directors of Athletics, the College Athletic Business Managers Association, Sports Information Directors Association, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

Possibly the most important developments could come from meetings of the NCAA Council, the group's policy making organization. The agenda never is made public in advance, but the Council has the power to levy penalties against schools found in violation of the organization's rules.

No Dough From Pros

The College-Professional Relations Committee, headed by Jim Corbett of Louisiana State offered a resolution last year prohibiting college coaches from accepting compensation from the pros for scouting, and this will be considered now for incorporation in the NCAA constitution.

Some 17 proposed amendments to the constitution will be offered, seven of them dealing with establishment of a minimum academic standard for athletes.

Another, to be offered by the Atlantic Coast Conference, would limit the number of scholarships to incoming students to a maximum of 35 football and five in basketball in any one year.

The NCAA also is honoring 51 members of the executive and legislative branches of the federal government, all varsity lettermen in their college days. They will be honored at a luncheon Jan. 11.

Included are Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, 17 senators and 31 congressmen.

Post Assistant Coach Resigns

POST (Special)—Charles Black, assistant football coach here and a member of the Post coaching staff since mid-term of 1962, has resigned, effective Jan. 21, to accept a sales position with a pharmaceutical firm.

Chevrolet—
America's best seller year after year... and off to a roaring
head start in '66!

'66 Caprice Custom Sedan. This model was the three millionth vehicle built by Chevrolet in 1965—the first time any manufacturer has turned out this number of cars and trucks in a single year.

This enthusiastic preference for Chevrolet products may look like another case of history repeating itself.

But in the calendar year just ended—highlighted by the introduction of our new 1966 models—something happened that never happened before.

More people bought Chevrolets than ever bought any other make of car before. A new record—even for Chevrolet.

This unprecedented demand gave Chevrolet a whopping sales lead of about 400,000 cars.

And as buyers continue to pour into Chevrolet showrooms in '66, they continue to show their preference for Chevrolet products over every other make of car by a wide margin. With good reason—as you'll see from the new '66 styling, engineering and safety features listed at the right.

This growing success year after year just goes to show that there's really only one car people like better than a Chevrolet—and that's another new Chevrolet. Drop into your dealer's and see for yourself.

Ultra-luxurious new Caprice series—four new models, above and beyond anything Chevrolet has ever built before.
New Turbo-Jet V8's—most advanced and most talked about V8's going, offered in Chevrolets, Caprices, Chevelle SS 396's and Corvettes.
Chevelle SS 396's—two rakish, specially equipped new road machines powered by nothing less than a Turbo-Jet 396 V8.
Eight new safety features, including backup lights, outside rearview mirror and front and rear seat belts, standard on all '66 models Chevrolet builds.
Body by Fisher craftsmanship—plus many added luxuries you can order, such as automatic Comfortron heating and air conditioning and AM-FM Multiplex Stereo radio.
Traditionally higher resale—another plus that reflects the added satisfaction a Chevrolet gives you right through trade-in time.

Complete Roundup Of Week's Market Activities—Stocks, Bonds, Commodities

Market In 'Smashing' '66 Debut

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made a smashing debut for 1966, carving out its best weekly rise in five months and pushing all popular averages to record highs.

The conciliation of differences between the steel industry and the White House in regard to steel prices supplied a mighty push of new confidence to Wall Street. Steel shares paced a strong rally which drew in a host of other market wheelhorses to give the list the kind of leadership it has not seen in many a moon.

While the cyclical key stocks were rolling ahead, profits were taken on many of the so-called glamour stocks in aerospace, electronics and airlines which rolled up the big gains last year.

Seek New Favorites

Investors were obviously seeking out prospective new favorites for 1966. The week's rally also got help from the normal tendency of investment sources to commit funds in the first week of a new year.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks last week advanced 25.6 to 364.1, a record high. The average mad ea new high every day. Its gain was the largest since the week ended July 31 when it advanced 7.2.

The Dow Jones industrial average week rose 16.87 to 986.13, making a record peak for every day of the week's last four sessions.

A similar gain by the Dow industrials next week would place this closely-watched barometer above the mark of "Dow 1,000," long regarded as an almost mythical goal.

Crucible Steel, with a 6-point gain, was the most active stock. U.S. Steel, the biggest producer, advanced 2⅛ to 54⅝, and Bethlehem, the second biggest, rose 1¾ to 41⅝.

Gainers Outnumber Losers

Steels actually showed weakness on Monday and irregularity on Tuesday before U.S. Steel announced its $2.75 per ton price increase which the White House found acceptable after Bethlehem's $5 per ton boost for structural steel sparked word of retaliation by Washington.

Of 1,548 issues traded this week, 878 rose and 522 fell.

Volume for the week totaled 38,728,054 shares compared with 35,164,470 the previous week.

Treasury bond prices recovered during the past week while corporate and municipal bonds held about even.

The government market wound up 1965 with treasury bond prices at their lows for the year. Some yields were at 40-year highs. As a result some commercial banks began to switch into the treasury securities.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond volume for the week totaled a par value of $51.86 million. That compared with $56.03 million the previous week.

Soybean Market Chalks Up Gains

CHICAGO (AP) — The strongest and most persistent bull market in many months developed in soybean futures last week, and all old crop contracts advanced 10 cents or more a bushel.

The grains also maintained a moderate but general demand week. Rye, the broadest gainer, finished more than 8 cents up at the extreme. Corn and wheat added almost 3 cents at best, and oats about a cent generally.

Analysts said the market derived nearly all its strength from talk of inflation and that most of the buying was for speculative accounts.

Another bullish influence, although not so apparent lately, was the concern expressed in Washington about averting or alleviating famine in areas where crop yields have fallen below requirements. An addition to that category, traders said, probably is a large area of South Africa.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1¼-2¾ cents a bushel higher than a week ago, March $1.69¾-⅞; corn 2¼-2⅞ higher, March $1.27¾-⅝; oats ⅝-1¼ higher, March 72 cents; rye 6⅝-8⅝ higher, March $1.34¾-35; soybeans 4⅝-11¼ higher, January $2.75⅝-¾.

Power Failure Hits Naples, South Italy

NAPLES (AP) — Naples, and all of southern Italy except the Calabria area in the toe, had a total blackout Saturday night due to a massive electric power failure.

Naples, Italy's third largest city with 1.2 million population, was virtually paralyzed for almost the hour the blackout lasted after the lights went out at 6 p.m. firemen answered dozens of emergency calls to get people out of stalled elevators.

The situation was much the same in the cities of Bari, Brindisi Taranto, Foggia and Lecce. The blackout in those places lasted two hours.

Cause of the blackout was not announced.

Antarctica's glaciers often move at the unusually swift rate of 600 yards a year.

REPUBLICANS EXPECTED TO MAKE GAINS

War Impact Shadow Clouds Elections

By RAYMOND LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The rival political parties are heading into another national election year with all bets cautiously hedged by doubts about the impact of Viet Nam on the voters.

This is a year which normally should bring Republican gains. A failure to make visible gains would further damage the party still bearing wounds from the Barry Goldwater presidential disaster of 1964.

After primaries and nominating conventions running from May 3 to Oct. 1, here are the major prizes to be won next Nov. 8:

Thirty-five governorships, 20 now held by Democrats and 15 by Republicans.

Thirty-five U.S. Senate seats, 21 now held by Democrats and 14 by Republicans.

All 435 House seats, now divided 293 Democratic, 141 Republican and one vacant.

GOP Should Gain

Even if the 1964 Democratic landslide had not pushed the GOP close to rock bottom, the Republicans could expect to pick up state and Congressional offices this year. A minority party normally registers gains in mid-term elections when the Presidency is not at stake.

For the record, Republican leaders will talk about gaining the 77 seats they need to win control of the House. This would call for a tidal wave not suggested by any of the evidence now available.

GOP party managers may show more than a normal interest in perhaps 100 Congressional districts now represented by Democrats. However, they will be concentrating on about 50 districts in which they believe they have their best chances to unseat Democratic incumbents. Of those 50, about half will be among the 38 seats lost to Democrats in 1964.

There will be no talk from Republican leaders about winning control of the Senate, now split between 68 Democrats and 32 Republicans. To win control, the GOP would have to hold the 14 seats they have at stake and win 19 of the 21 now held by Democrats. Sixty-five Senate seats are not at stake this year.

In the statehouses, the Democrats now hold 33 governorships and the Republicans 17. All but two of those now held by Republicans must be filled next November.

Major governorships at stake include New York, where Republican Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller is a candidate for reelection, and Michigan, where Gov. George Romney, a prospective candidate for the 1968 Presidential nomination, is expected to run again.

Pennsylvania must elect a successor to Republican Gov. William W. Scranton, who is ineligible for re-election. Oregon must replace Gov. Mak Hatfield, a Republican expected to seek the seat of Sen. Maurine Neuberger, a Democrat who is retiring.

In California, Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown is expected to seek re-election. Actor Ronald Reagan and George Christopher, former mayor of San Francisco, are among the candidates who already have announced for the Republican nomination.

The political effect of the war in Viet Nam clouds the election outlook. Democrats remember that they have lost ground in mid-term elections in past wars —in 1918 and 1942 during the two world wars and in 1950 during the Korean War.

War Could Hurt

If peace efforts fail, casualty lists and public disenchantment with a stalemate in Southeast Asia could hurt the Democrats. They also could be hurt if the war overheats the economy and causes inflation.

Continuing prosperity without serious inflation should benefit the Democrats.

If the war should cause a reaction against the Democrats, as the party in power, the GOP could make gains almost as a passive onlooker. The Republicans could declare their support for the administration's objectives in Viet Nam, criticize war strategy, and call for budget cuts to avert inflation—all without trying to make a political issue of the war.

Another unknown in the election is the possibility of independent candidates backed by the "peace movement" or the civil rights movement. If such candidacies develop in a significant way, they will be expected to subtract votes from the Democrats.

USED TELEPHONE CREDIT CARDS

FBI Smashes Bookie Ring Operating In Nine Cities

MIAMI (AP) — The FBI announced Saturday it had broken a large bookmaking operation with raids in nine cities.

FBI agents made simultaneous raids at five locations in Miami and at others in New York City, Jersey City, Baltimore, Huntington, W. Va., Baton Rouge, La., New Orleans, Cleveland and Barksdale, Miss.

The Miami operation, the FBI reported, was headed by Gilbert Lee Beckley, whose residence was searched for gambling and bookmaking records.

Used Credit Cards

"Beckley's operation is known to have used telephone credit cards obtained in Tulsa, Kansas City, St. Joseph, Mo., and Clovis, Albquerque, Santa Fe and Roswell, N.M." the announcement said.

During a 10-month period in 1965, the FBI said, 6,592 long distance calls were charged to these credit cards.

Raiders also searched the residence of Morton Kane of Miami and Martin Sklaroff, who was identified as an associate of Beckley.

Kenneth Hanna was arrested at a Miami apartment on a warrant charging fraud by wire, interstate transmission of wagering information and interstate transportation in aid of racketeering.

Hanna's arrest, the announcement said, stemmed from use of an electronic device known as a "blue box."

"This sophisticated instrument," the FBI said, "is attached to a telephone or telephone line and permits the holder to utilize the long distance network without being billed for the call."

Makes 500 Calls

Over 500 long distance calls were made from Hanna's phone, the FBI said, which were not recorded by the telephone company.

Also arrested was Nat Modell of New York City.

Other searches were reported made on operations of Charles Lakis, Cleveland; Herbert Kaufman, Baltimore; Eugene Nolan, Baton Rouge; Sam Di Piazza, New Orleans; Joe Assad, Clarksdale, and other operations at Huntington and Jersey City.

P-TA MEETING SET

LOCKNEY (Special) — "Together We Help a Child By Encouraging Acceptance of Community Responsibility" will be a program theme for the January P-TA meeting at 4 p.m. Monday in the elementary school cafetorium here. Ann Zanello, Lockney exchange student from France, will be guest speaker. Director Sammie Robertson and the Lockney High School band will provide entertainment.

IN SURVEY

New High Point Found In Utah

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state of Utah has officially risen to new heights.

The U. S. Geological Survey informed Sen. Frank E. Moss (D-Utah) Friday that the highest point in Utah is 13,528 feet — rather than 13,498 feet as indicated by surveys made more than 60 years ago.

The survey said the highest point had been believed to be the south peak of the Kings Peak group in the Uinta Mountains, about 80 miles east of Salt Lake City in Ashley Natonal Forest. But a new survey has indicated that a peak just north of South Peak is higher.

Solons Make Bleak Report On Viet Nam War

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bleak report on the war in Viet Nam by Sen. Mike Mansfield and four colleagues raises grave questions about whether the United States can ever win its main goals in that conflict, regardless of whether the fighting is halted soon or continues to expand indefinitely.

These questions appear to pose the main challenge for President Johnson when he goes to Congress in the next few weeks for massive new appropriations to finance the struggle. They sharpen what is likely to be the central issue in forthcoming debate: Where do we go from here?

The President will have an opportunity to give his answer to this consuming questioning when he reports on the state of the union next Wednesday night before a joint session of Congress.

To Be Broadcast

The traditional speech will be broadcast on television and radio — and it will come at about the time some officials have been expecting a decision on whether and when the bombing of North Viet Nam will be resumed.

Mansfield's assessment of the conflict is not necessarily the same on all points as that of the Johnson administration. Administration officials have taken the position that what they call a reasonable peace settlement — one securing the independence of South Viet Nam — is not beyond possibility. Most top officials also believe that Red China would prefer to keep out of the war. But no one knows, in fact, what it may do in the months ahead.

The White House and State Department are giving the Mansfield report, and particularly its conclusions, careful study. The trip taken by the senators was undertaken with President Johnson's approval and their findings are bound to command administration attention.

The White House said Johnson had thanked Mansfield for the report.

Mansfield is believed to have had some influence on the President's Vietnamese policies already. After he returned from his 30,000-mile journey through Europe and the Far East Dec. 18, he called for a prolonged suspension of the bombing of North Viet Nam in hope of enlarging the possibility of moving the whole struggle to the conference table. His views are reported to have been influential with the President in prolonging the bombing pause after the Christmas truce.

The senators' assessment of the outlook for the conflict are set forth in the concluding paragraph of the report in which they make these points:

1. The prospects for "effective negotiations at this time" are slender and likely to depend "on the initiatives and efforts of the combatants."

This point has been partially overtaken by events, since the President has already taken the initiative in starting a peace offensive aimed at North Viet Nam.

2. Even if a cease-fire and freezing of the battle positions is achieved it would simply stabilize the situation "in which the majority of the population remains under nominal government control but in which dominance of the countryside rests largely in the hands of the Viet Cong."

No Clear Divisions

The fact that no clear territorial divisions exist in the guerrilla war in the south is a source of considerable concern to the administration because the cease-fire would be hard to maintain and an eventual "just peace" difficult if not impossible to negotiate. Mansfield called the prospect in this respect "not very satisfactory."

3. If the war cannot be switched to a cease-fire and peace negotiations, then the alternative is indefinite expansion and intensification with the introduction of additional U.S. forces. The Mansfield report foresaw on this point the possibility of "a general war on the Asian mainland."

While making no firm recommendations to the President the tone of the report by the Mansfield group tends to place them more among the "doves" than among the "hawks."

Indeed, the senior Republican member of the group, and of the Senate, Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, has gone well beyond the report in recommending that the bombing lull be continued until North Viet Nam significantly expands the level of the ground fighting.

Support Viet Nam Moves

But Aiken obviously does not represent a Republican policy position. The party's congressional leadership has been supporting Johnson's moves on Viet Nam but their applause has been louder for his actions to increase the weight of American military blows than for his peace efforts.

Perhaps significantly, the Republican Senate leader, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, said in a news conference Friday there can be no honorable negotiation until the Viet Cong lays down its arms.

He put it this way: "Where do we get if the Viet Cong is sitting at the negotiating table? Victory will come when the Viet Cong lays down its arms. Then we can negotiate."

Although he reaffirmed his support of the President in an interview Saturday, Dirksen's call for defeat of the Viet Cong prior to negotiations without prior conditions.

It could foreshadow a 1966 election campaign similar to that of 1952 when the GOP belabored President Harry S. Truman for pursuing what the Republicans called a no-win policy in Korea.

Goals Defined

Administration goals in the conflict as defined over the past year are:

—First, to prevent the Communist guerrilla forces, supported by North Vietnamese troops and supplies mainly from Red China, from taking over South Viet Nam by force — the eventual aim being to give South Viet Nam a free choice on its own future;

—Second, to demonstrate to the world that the U.S. commitment to South Viet Nam will not be abandoned, however great the cost; —Third, to achieve the first two aims if at all possible without getting into a general Asian war.

Mansfield's report dealt with the Vietnamese conflict generally within the limits of Asian problems although it said that the longer the war goes on and the more it expands the greater will be the strain on relations between the United States and its allies in Europe and the Far East.

Commitment Evaluated

Administration officials say that the reasons for U.S. involvement in South Viet Nam and its commitment to go on with the conflict if it cannot find a peaceful solution must be measured in broader terms.

They stress the argument for example, that if the United States made a sham peace and in effect abandoned South Viet Nam to the Communists, it would lose credibility and prestige in countries all over the world.

There is also a belief among officials here that the fight made by the United States so far in Southeast Asia has already had a secondary effect in other countries in the area — strengthening the anti Communist stand of the government in Laos, giving Cambodia a wider choice for neutrality, and probably creating a political atmosphere in which Communist forces have suffered serious reverses Indonesia in the last few months.

Avoid Intervention

In discussing the possibility of expansion of the conflict, Mansfield and his colleagues said that the Chinese Communists appear now to take the view that their intervention is "not required," primarily because they believe that the Communists are winning in South Viet Nam and that North Viet Nam is successfully defending itself.

The implication of this assessment is that if the Chinese thought the war was being lost or North Viet Nam was about to be destroyed they would send troops. "They clearly recognize that the war may reach that point," the report said.

As the war expands, it added, the likelihood is that North Viet Nam "will not be able to negotiate a settlement without at least the tacit consent of Red China."

"In fact," it continued, "that point may already have been reached."

ITALIANS BUY CARS

ROME (AP) — Official statistics show Italians bought 6.81 per cent more autos and 28.02 per cent fewer motorcycles last year than in 1964. The 1965 purchases of vehicles, including trucks, were 1,110,918 — a 1.68 per cent decrease from 1964.

These documents provide for the development of 15 single family lots, and 4 duplex lots and one semi-public use tract. The documents together with additional information of interest to potential developers are available at the office of the Agency, 907 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas or to any party or person desiring to submit a bid pursuant to this notice.

Sealed bids addressed to the Board of Commissioners of the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Lubbock in accordance with this invitation will be received by the Agency at its office, 907 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas until 4:00 p.m. on the 28th day of January, 1966 at which time and place all such bids will be publicly opened and read aloud. Each bid shall be in the proposal form supplied by the Agency and shall set forth the purchase price to be paid for the said lot or lots and shall agree to development of such property in accordance with the Urban Renewal Plan and the Contract for Disposition. The minimum acceptable price shall not be less than the estimated fair value of the land. Each bid shall be accompanied by a deposit in the amount of ten (10%) per cent of the total amount bid in the form of certified check or cashier's check made payable to the Urban Renewal Agency of the City of Lubbock. Bids may be held by the Agency for a period of sixty (60) days from the date of the opening of the bids for the purpose of evaluating the proposals and investigating the qualifications of the bidders prior to making an award. During the sixty (60) day period, the original owner from whom the property was acquired shall have the first right to repurchase at the highest and best responsible bid price received, which price shall not be less than the estimated fair market value of the land. When an award is made and a Contract for Disposition entered into, the deposit of such bidder will be applied on the purchase price, if at the time of conveyance, the purchaser or redeveloper has entered into a satisfactory contract for the construction of improvements (in the case of a one-family dwelling or like magnitude development) and has furnished the Agency a satisfactory faithful-performance surety bond (in the case of developments larger than one-family dwellings in magnitude). The penal amount of the bond shall not be less than ten (10) per cent of the contract for the construction of improvements, with the construction contractor as principal and the redeveloper, the lender, and the Agency as obligees. Otherwise, the deposit will be retained until the completion of the improvements by the redeveloper. The Agency reserves the right to reject any or all bids submitted or it may within its sole discretion, after considering all such bids and the financial and legal ability of the prospective purchasers and developers, accept such bid as it deems to be the highest and best responsible bid for each lot and which is in accordance with the public interest and in furtherance of the purposes of the Texas Urban Renewal Law, and enter into a Contract for Disposition of Land for Private Redevelopment. Such Contract will provide for delivery of title and possession of the lot or lots, which date of delivery shall not be more than six (6) months from the date of the Contract. Upon such conveyance of property the full amount of the purchase price shall be paid in cash to the Agency.

PRICE CONTROLS CHALLENGED

Oilmen Face Busy Year With Federal Regulatory Agencies

By MAX SKELETON

HOUSTON (AP) — Oilmen anticipate a busy 1966 in Washington.

Most of their attention, however, is expected to involve regulatory agencies instead of Congress.

About 200 oil related bills will be before the 89th Congress that reconvenes Monday. There is no indication at present any of them will prompt major legislative battles.

But numerous actions that could prompt controversy are expected at the regulatory level. Major policy decisions made in 1966 on such matters as oil imports and natural gas price controls will require further development in 1966.

Other matters that will require considerable attention range from the balance of payments problem to policy decisions on shale oil research and the leasing of federal submerged lands off the Louisiana and California coasts.

Interior Secretary Stewart Udall spent much of 1965 studying pleas that oil imports be reduced substantially or frozen at existing levels. He also heard sharply conflicting opinions on whether quotas for heavy heating (residual) oils should be abolished.

Imports Program

The 1966 imports program Udall announced in December will permit a small increase in crude and products imports and a sharp boost in residuals. There also is indication virtually all restrictions on residual imports will be eliminated later in the year.

One of the bills still before the 89th Congress was designed to clarify the authority of the Federal Power Commission to control wellhead prices of natural gas sold wholesale into interstate commerce for resale.

A nationwide committee to back such legislation—twice vetoed—has been organized but is not expected to make a serious effort for congressional action before 1967.

While perfecting its plans and organization, the committee meanwhile will keep watch on a court challenge of the FPC's area formula to control gas prices.

Challenge Filed

Producers filed the challenge after the FPC established on Aug. 5 a two-price system for the Permian Basin area of West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico. FPC proceedings now under way are designed to apply the Permian quota to 22 other major gas producing areas.

Briefs supporting a review of the Permian order are to be filed with the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals by Jan. 31. Consumer interests will have until April 11 to reply.

President Johnson has been reluctant to become publicly identified with oil and gas matters but he faces one 1966 task that will be unavoidable. He must nominate someone to succeed Joseph Swidler as chairman of the five-member FPC.

The area formula was adopted before Swidler, formerly counsel for the Tennessee Valley Authority, became a member of the commission but he has been the dominant figure behind the formula's development.

Swidler's December departure means the commission soon will have two members who did not participate in the Permian proceedings, which were designed to establish ground rules for the over-all area pattern. Earl Bagge, a former Chicago railroad lawyer, joined the commission last spring.

The Roustabout

by Ray Westbrook, Oil Editor

WORLD OIL PRODUCTION currently is higher than it has been at any point in history.

Total output from oil producing nations reached an average of 30,500,900 barrels per day last October. In March the figure posted was 30,367,000 barrels daily.

In Free World counries, production during October exceeded 25 million barrels daily, for a loss from March of about 100,000 barrels.

WESTBROOK

THE WORLD RECORD statistics, compiled by the "Oil and Gas Journal" in its current issue, are attributed by the magazine to the return of the U.S. to normal production. A number of reverses, including Hurricane Betsy, beset the industry in the latter part of 1965.

Canadian oil production was higher in September — with 832,700 barrels daily — than the following month's 748,600 barrels.

Russian production was reported as the same — 4,920,000 barrels daily — for both October and September.

THE PUBLICATION, "Petroleum Management," has predicted that capital outlays in the Free World oil industry will for the first time reach $14 billion in 1966.

An estimated $6.9 billion will be invested in the United States, according to preliminary capital budgets of 32 companies.

In 1965, the petroleum industry throughout the free world invested approximately $13 billion in facilities and reserves. Predictions for 1966 place the expenditures almost 10 per cent higher.

EXPECTATIONS ARE THAT the largest expansion will be in manufacturing facilities. This will include petrochemical plants, with $3.3 billion going for construction. Approximately $1.4 billion of this will be spent in the U. S., and about $1.9 billion in foreign countries.

Drilling and producing expenditures, estimated to amount to $6.47 billion, will be less than half the total. About $4.05 billion is budgeted for the U. S. in this area.

AN INCREASE IN figures for drilling does not mean more drilling, the publication pointed out. It represents an increase in the cost of drilling operations where deeper wells and offshore development are concerned.

In the past, spending has stayed fairly close to early estimates. However, the publication indicated that variables this year appear more important than usual. These include the Viet Nam war, voluntary limitations on U. S. overseas investment, inflation and price controls.

Programs in the U. S. are expected to receive a 15 per cent gain over last year. Not included in this is an expected $1 billion, which will be spent for transmission gas pipelines and storage facilities.

FOR INTRASTATE USE

Large Gas Reserve Sold To Oklahoma Companies

TULSA (Special) — The intrastate sale of Oklahoma's largest uncommitted natural gas reserve, involving more than a trillion cubic feet of gas, was announced today by officials of two producing and three Oklahoma utility companies.

Midwest Oil Corp. and Pan American Petroleum Corp. have signed contracts to sell their gas in the Red Oak Norris field of southeastern Oklahoma to Oklahoma Gas and Electric Co., Oklahoma Natural Gas Co., and Public Service Co. of Oklahoma.

Each of the three utilities will buy one-third of the uncommitted gas production from this field, which could result in a rate of as much as 28.3 billion cubic feet annually for each at the full output rate. On this basis, total gas purchases could represent some $14 million each year.

The large gas reserve, located in the Arkoma Basin, was discovered in 1960 when Midwest completed the Orr Well No. 1. The gas will be consumed within the State of Oklahoma and will be used for serving fuel requirements of industrial, commercial, and residential natural gas consumers and for electric power generation. Although Midwest owns 74 percent and Pan American 14 percent contracts will be offered to all owners of uncommitted gas in the field.

D. R. Murphy, president of Midwest, said the three contracts with the utilities will be for a term of 20 years. First sales are expected to begin in the next six months.

F. R. Yost, president of Pan American, announced that his company will build and operate a $2 million gathering system to collect the gas in the field. The system will be jointly owned by the producers.

Oklahoma Natural president H. A. Eddins stated that his company will utilize its gas to serve the fuel requirements of its industrial, commercial, and residential consumers. Presidents D. J. Tuepker of Public Service and Donald S. Kennedy of Oklahoma Gas and Electric said their companies will use the gas for electric power generation.

The three utility executives stressed the financial benefits to their companies of such a large supply of gas at one strategically located central point. They further emphasized that acquisition of this important new supply will go far toward meeting their additional gas requirements of the next several years and will provide much needed operating flexibility for all three firms.

Dawson County Wildcat Staked

Texas Oil & Gas Corp. of Amarillo has staked location for an 8,700-foot Pennsylvanian wildcat, No. 1 M. O. Lindsey, 12 miles northwest of Lamesa in northwest Dawson County.

The exploration is 1¼ miles northwest of the Mungerville, Northwest (Pennsylvanian) pool, and spots 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of Section 109, Block M, EL&RR survey.

Re-Entry Wildcat

RUNNELS—James K. Anderson of Midland, and others, have completed an oil discovery at No. 1 Merfeld, re-entry wildcat six miles northeast of Winters in Runnels County.

Perforations from 3,908-11 feet flowed 174 barrels of 38-gravity oil through a 16/64-inch choke in 24 hours. Gas-oil ratio was 420-1. The section was treated with 250 gallons of acid and fractured with 3,000 gallons of fluid.

Location of the strike is 467 feet from south and 913 feet from west lines of Walter Converse survey No. 349.

Florida's Everglades National Park is not a swampy region but a great shallow river stretching across the southern end of the state.

TO FEATURE EXHIBITS

Conference For Offshore Exploration Scheduled

Accelerated subsea oil and gas exploration in the North Sea is focusing attention on the Offshore Exploration Conference to be held Feb. 22, 23 and 24 in Long Beach, Calif.

The three-day conference will feature exhibits, demonstrations and symposia on technical papers dealing with offshore platform design, platform automation and control, environmental effects on offshore structures, innovations in subsea systems, including use of nuclear power, and planning and management of operations. All have direct application to subsurface drilling off England, Germany and The Netherlands.

In discussing the worldwide aspect of the conference, Dr. Basil W. Wilson, noted oceanographic engineer, pointed out that offshore exploration techniques are basically the same, whether in the North Sea, Persian Gulf, Gulf of Mexico or on the continental shelf off the Pacific Coast of the United States. As examples, he cited the similarity of ocean floor conditions in the North Sea and the Gulf of Mexico, and extratropical storm conditions in the North Sea and on the Pacific Coast.

Schedules Paper

Dr. Wilson, director of engineering, oceanography, for Science Engineering Associates, San Marino, Calif., a division of Kaman Aircraft Corp., Hartford, Conn., is one of 40 distinguished scientists and engineers who will present technical papers at the conference. Dr. Wilson's paper will be "Determination of Design, Wind, Wave and Current Conditions for Offshore Structures."

This paper and others dealing with surface and subsurface drilling structures are directly related to the tragic Dec. 27 collapse and sinking of the oil drilling rig "Sea Gem" in the North Sea, 40 miles off Grimsby, England.

Another paper of special interest in Europe, in light of extensive solid mineral exploration in the North Sea, will be the paper, "Exploration for and Production of Solid Minerals from Offshore Areas," by Dr. John L. Mero, Ocean Resources, Inc., La Jolla, Calif.

Speakers Picked

Speakers at the scientific-industrial conference will include top representatives of the petroleum and aerospace industries and scientists who are directly involved in offshore exploration. These will include A. C. Rubel, former chairman of the board of Union Oil Co. of California; A.W. Rose, president of Byron Jackson, Inc., Los Angeles, Calif. and John Moore, president of Autonetics Division, North American Aviation, Inc., Anaheim, Calif.

The symposia and speaker luncheons will be held in Long Beach's landmark Lafayette Hotel. Exhibits and demonstrations will be in the new, 68,000-square-foot, ocean-front Long Beach Arena, and on a barge moore off the arena.

Underwater equipment demonstrations from the barge will be televised to monitors in the arena. Subsea demonstrations will include diving bells, underwater craft and manipulators for wellheads and divers working on the bottom.

Ocean Floor Drilling

Exhibits in the arena will include ocean floor drilling equipment, models of offshore platforms, bathyscaphs, telemetry equipment, sonar positioning systems, oceanographic measuring devices, and actual subsea operational vehicles.

Mort Richardson, president of H. J. Richardson, Inc., Offshore Exploration Conference coordination chairman, reports, "We already are assured of the most qualitative and quantitative conference of this kind ever held." Richardson said that 2,000 industry experts are expected to hear conference papers and 50,000 persons are expected to view the exhibits and demonstrations.

Industry representatives attending also will be able to tour facilities of the THUMS Long Beach Co., which is developing one of the world's largest, single offshore fields.

THUMS is a joint venture of Texaco, Humble, Union, Mobil and Shell oil companies to develop the seaward extension of Long Beach's huge East Wilmington oil field. THUMS will drill 1100 wells in Long Beach Harbor. The initial 40 are being drilled from a rock-fill pier, while the remaining 1060 will be sunk from four artificial islands which are now under construction.

J. S. Russell, president of THUMS, is chairman of the Offshore Exploration Conference. He advised that information regarding reservations and exhibit space may be obtained by writing or cabling M. J. Richardson, OECon, Box 88, Palo Verdes Estates, Calif.

Survey Reveals Demand For Oil Up In December

TULSA (Special)—The domestic oil industry in December closed out 1965 with solid gains in total demand, crude-oil production, and rotary-rig activity, the "Oil and Gas Journal" index of industry activity discloses.

Total well completions and wildcat well completions also improved on November's performance, but they were still below the tally in December a year ago.

Except for residual fuel oil, inventories continued to stay below 1964 levels. Refinery runs eased higher.

Demand on the index in December went up 11.6 index points above November, and 2.6 points ahead of December 1964. Daily average demand in December was 12,910,000 barrels, compared with 11,810,000 barrels the previous month, and 12,660,000 barrels a year previous.

U. S. crude-oil production moved up 1.9 index points in December over November, and was 2.8 points better than the previous December. In terms of barrels a day, December's output averaged 7,960,000, compared with 7,830,000 in November, and 7,770,000 in December 1964.

Rig Activity Strong

Rotary-rig activity came on strong in December and managed to squeak ahead of year-ago rotary operations for the first time this year. The weekly average last month was 1,545 active rotaries, against 1,504 in November, and 1,537 for the final month of the previous year.

Total well completions moved up 2.6 index points over November, but ended the year 2.1 points below the index rating in December 1964. Weekly average completions were 836 in December, 810 in November, and 857 in the previous December.

Although wildcat completions came up strong last month by 4.5 index points over November, they were still 14.4 points below the tally in December 1964. Weekly averages were 158 in December, 149 in November, and 187 in the previous December.

The Journal index shows refinery runs advancing less than an index point in December over November, but climbing 2.8 points ahead of the previous year's runs. For the three months, runs averaged 9,200,000, 9,140,000, and 8,979,000 barrels per day respectively.

Oil Production Down

Crude production was down in several states last week, including Oklahoma, Kansas, and Montana.

The figures for the week ended Jan. 1, shows U. S. crude and lease condensate production of 7,953,000 barrels per day, down about 45,200 barrels daily from the previous report.

Oklahoma's production averaged 556,100 barrels per day, down 41,800 from the week before. Kansas reported 287,000, down 6,700; Montana 95,700, down 1,400; and for Illinois 168,000-bbl. daily, a loss of 500 from the previous week.

California's output averaged about 908,400 barrels daily, for an increase of 1,600, while Wyoming produced 378,400, up 4,900 for the week.

Completions Off

Well completions for the week ended Jan. 1 dipped to 691 from the previous week's 830. Some of the states showing declines were California 44, down 10; Illinois nine, down nine; Kansas 81, down 39; Oklahoma 44, down 28; and Wyoming 12, down 19 from the previous week.

Wildcat completions increased to 176 from the previous week's 161, however. Discoveries increased to 32 from the previous week's 20.

Western Canada completed 99 wells in the past week against only 74 in the previous week.

GAS BILL CONTROVERSIAL

Industry Lobbyists Gather For Session Of Congress

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lobbyists are gathering for the second session of the 89th Congress, among them the always alert stalwarts of the oil and natural gas industry.

As usual they will be campaigning for or against bills that could help or harm the industry and, as usual, will have strong legislative blocs in their corner.

The session begins Monday.

Not a piece of punitive legislation was enacted in the first session, though such bills were pushed. On the other hand, the industry didn't get to first base on its pet measure and will be putting new heat behind them.

High on this list are bills to curb imports of cheap foreign oil and to shear the Federal Power Commission of price-control authority over interstate natural gas production.

The gas bill is by far the most controversial. Any concentrated drive for passage will bring consumer-state legislators roaring into battle. They may get that opportunity. Industry leaders have formed a nationwide gas supply committee dedicated to getting the legislation passed.

Committee Gives Support

The committee is headed by C. A. Cash, president of Shamrock Oil and Gas Corp., Amarillo. It has the support of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, representing 6,000 producers, and the 33-state Interstate Oil Compact Commission.

All are fighting for a common goal—to make state regulatory agencies the sole authority over gas produced for interstate sale and to replace the FPC's production area price-ceilings with field prices arrived at in open competition.

Their basic argument is that federal price-fixing deprives the producers of cash needed to finance the search for gas reserves. Hence, they claim, the nation will some day face a critical shortage.

Presidential vetoes killed two previous bills though one would have become law under President Eisenhower had it not been for a senate campaign payoff scandal.

Clash Possible

Measures to curb foreign oil imports are certain to be pushed but this could bring a headon clash with President Johnson.

Imports are inextricably tied to foreign policy. Johnson has made this crystal clear in the past by handing Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall complete authority over the Mandatory Import Program. Udall, with White House approval, has refused to budge from present import standards which have the effect of cutting back domestic production.

But this doesn't mean there won't be a fierce behind-the-scenes drive to give Congress exclusive import authority.

Trouble lies ahead in other pending bills, including one to raise the minimum wage to $1.75 an hour and embrace all gasoline service station employes. It is pending before the House Rues Committee which will decide when it goes to the floor.

Measure Arouses Concern

Still another measure arousing concern is an administration move to federalize state unemployment compensation systems, now pending before the House Ways & Means Committee.

The National Petroleum Refiners Association, representing 90 per cent of the refining industry, is bitterly opposed to the bill.

A packet of other bills is pending, including old and new ones proposed by the Federal Power Commission. The FPC especially wants jurisdiction over now exempt interstate sales of industrial gas. It claims this would protect industrial users from excessive prices and would guarantee household consumers firmer supplies.

The commission also wants stronger authority over imports and exports of natural gas. It says this "would close an important gap in the regulatory scheme."

Few, if any, bills may get much house, however. Congress is certain to be so preoccupied with the Viet Nam war that many measures which normally would get consideration will fall by the wayside.

This also is an election year—a time when Congressmen are usually so anxious to get home and campaign for re-election that only "must" measures are enacted.

LARGE DEMAND EXPECTED

Record Production Seen By Association For 1966

WICHITA FALLS (Special) — The oil industry will be participating in the continued economic expansion during 1966 and every acceptable yardstick indicates there will be a record demand and record production during the year, according to IPAA president, F. Allen Calvert Jr., of Tulsa.

Calvert reviewed the industry's future for 1966 at an IPAA regional meeting held at the Woman's Forum here. Accompanying Calvert was Minor S. Jameson Jr., IPAA executive vice president from Washington, D. C., who discussed oil issues as viewed from the nation's capital.

"The domestic crude oil producer will participate in supplying that demand through increased production in the range of 300,000 barrels daily," Calvert said.

Accepting the "verdict that we are still on the crest of the boom" and looking for continued strong growth in the nation's economy, Calvert said that, as of the moment, the domestic producer is turning the corner toward better prospects and an improved outlook.

Canadian Natural Gas

He emphasized that the IPAA has been the "guardian of the gate" as far as the importation of Canadian natural gas is concerned. The association has intervened in three applications to increase Canadian natural gas imports which would result in 440 MMcf of imported natural gas daily. This would be the energy equivalent of 73,000 barrels daily of crude oil. Calvert pointed out that present imports total out to the equivalent of 223,000 barrels daily of crude oil.

Through the combined leadership of the domestic oil industry, oil state leadership and joint association work, the FPC has been asked to establish guidelines in the control of Canadian natural gas, as well, he said.

By means of IPAA's intervention in cases involving sharply increased Canadian natural gas imports, the FPC has been urged to establish standards governing these future imports, consistent with the security objectives of the Mandatory Oil Import Program, Calvert said.

Exploratory Drilling

Calvert warned of pitfalls and problems that must be avoided and overcome. The most important of these is the declining level of exploratory drilling.

"So, I think we must temper our optimism somewhat by a recognition that real and lasting improvement will come only if we work at it. This is no time to be resting at the oars," he told the North Texas members.

In one sense, the improved outlook for the domestic industry contains a little of the "flavor of Suez," in the winter of 1956-57. "For a time, because of the closing of Suez, the oil industry enjoyed its own private boom. But it was short lived, and when it ended we found ourselves with a burdensome accumulation of inventories with which we couldn't cope," Calvert said.

In comparing the present situation with the Suez in another respect, he said action which was then readied by the government to control oil imports was postponed and, when the crisis was over, imports reached new heights, precipitating the voluntary import program in 1959.

Import Program

"We believed there was evidence that significant improvements in the present import program, which had been under consideration for many months, would have had to be made except for the rather sudden improvement in the economic outlook.

"So, I think it can be said that these two emergencies — Suez and Viet Nam — while bringing temporary respite from depressed economic conditions, resulted in postponement of needed actions necessary to the long-range proposition of maintaining a vigorous domestic oil producing industry," he said.

In addition to these events, Calvert said hurricane Betsy temporarily increased the demand for petroleum.

"We need to look beyond the next year, as good as it might be, and recognize that we still need long-range solutions to difficult problems."

Gas Firm Asks Commission For New Hearings

OMAHA (Special) — Northern Natural Gas Co., and its wholly-owned subsidiary, Northern Natural Gas Transportation Co., have asked the Federal Power Commission to set for consolidated hearing competitive applications to build and operate facilities to deliver natural gas to eastern Canadian markets.

The motion, filed before the regulatory agency in Washington recently, also urged the FPC to set an early date for hearing the applications.

At issue are applications filed by Northern and Transportation Co. and by Great Lakes Transmission Co., owned jointly by Trans-Canada Pipelines, Ltd., and American Natural Gas Co.

Northern's proposal, filed with the FPC last Thursday, would involve Transportation Co. taking gas from Trans-Canada at Emerson, Manitoba, and delivering it into Northern's system near Sandstone, Minn. Northern would provide a like amount of gas to Transportation Co. at Ogden, Iowa, and Republic, Mich. for delivery to Trans-Canada near Detroit and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

Transportation Co. anticipates that beyond the fifth year of operation the project will result in "substantial net exports" of Canadian gas for consumption in the U.S.

If the FPC approves Northern's certificates as filed, Transportation Co. would purchase or otherwise cause to be marketed —by the end of the sixth year of operation—a daily volume of not less than 200,000,000 cubic feet of gas from Trans-Canada. That amount is in addition to volumes Trans-Canada proposes to export to Great Lakes.

Northern says, in its applications, that in the interest of both Canadian and U.S. producers and consumers, "the optimum way in which to supply gas to eastern Canada is by displacement as proposed by Transportation Co. and not by direct transportation of western Canadian gas to eastern Canada as proposed by Great Lakes."

"It is our intention to begin transportation service for Trans-Canada by the fall of 1966," said H. M. Sampson, vice president of Northern Natural. "Therefore, we are asking the commission to consolidate the applications and urge it to set a prompt hearing for these proposals."

LIGHTHOUSE ABANDONED

LONDON (AP) — The navy abandoned its loneliest outpost, a lighthouse on the coast of Sarawak, Malaysia, when the last four sailor attendants were removed this week. The light, reachable only by helicopter or boat, had been used as a radio station relaying between shore units and naval vessels searching for Indonesian infiltrators.

Many of the storybook adventures of Sinbad the sailor took place at Basra, Iraq.

IN NEW ORLEANS

Natural Gas Processors Plan Regional Meeting

The first Natural Gas Processors Association Regional Meeting for the New Orleans area is scheduled for Jan. 20-21.

The program is in keeping with other NGPA Regional conventions. A special Bureau of Mines-NGPA safety demonstration on Thursday afternoon will be followed by an all day technical meeting on Friday.

NGPA president Ralph Worley, Parade Co., Shreveport, La., will open the meeting Friday morning at the technical session scheduled at the Sheraton-Charles Hotel.

The morning session includes "Outlook for Ethane in South Louisiana," C. F. Montgomery, Houston; "North Terrebonne-Tebone Gas Processing & Fractionating Facility," Richard Mahan, New Orleans; and "Non-Corrosive Inert Gas from Engine Exhaust," William Barstow, Houston.

The afternoon session will cover "Visual Phase Study at a Condensate Reservoir Fluid," G. H. Thomas, New Orleans, and Karl Kilgren, LaHabra, California; "A New Refinery Designed for High Gasoline Yield—The Venice Refinery," John L. Coulter, Venice, La.; and "Problems of Transmission Companies and Producers During Adverse Weather," Don S. Wielhelm, Houston.

Program chairman for this meeting is J. A. Golasinski, New Orleans. He will be assisted by session chairman, Ray Simpson, New Orleans, and Don Boling, Harvey, La.

Following the technical sessions, all registrants will be guests of the Natural Gas Processors Suppliers Association. The meeting will close with an evening banquet. David Morse, New Orleans, will head the Suppliers function and James D. Thompson, New Orleans, will be tostmaster for the banquet.

Atlantic Picks Top Personnel For New Office

DALLAS (Special) — The Atlantic Refining Co. has named top personnel for its new North American Producing Group, combining crude oil exploration and producing operations of Atlantic and Richfield Oil Corporation on the North American continent.

W. Dow Hamm, formerly head of the producing group, continues as an executive vice president and a member of the executive committee of the board of directors of Atlantic. In addition, he will handle special assignments for the chairman.

The announcements were made by Louis F. Davis, who was named senior vice president in charge of the group on Jan. 3, when the merger of Richfield into Atlantic was completed. The group's headquarters are in the Atlantic Building here.

Three major operating divisions were formed, Davis disclosed, with managers as follows: Stender Sweeney, Western Division; William F. Kieschnick Jr., Central Division; Stuart C. Mut, Eastern Division.

Sweeney, former vice president of production for Richfield, was elected a vice president of Atlantic on Jan. 3. His division, newly created, will include crude oil production and exploration in California, Washington, Oregon and Alaska.

Western Division headquarters will be in Los Angeles; the other two in this city.

St Christopher's Episcopal Church was the setting for the exchange of wedding vows by Miss Sammye Estalee Chalker and Martin Hugh Waldrop at 6 p.m. Friday. Double ring vows were read by the Rev. Thomas Miller, minister.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Chalker, Round Rock, and the bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Harris Jr., 2610 24th St.

The bride is a January candidate for graduation from Texas Tech with a B.S. degree in Latin and English. She plans to teach in Tulia Public Schools. The bridegroom is a junior at West Texas State University, where he is majoring in music education and is a member of Phi Mu Alpha, music fraternity.

Escorted by her grandfather, O. W. Hall, the bride was attired in a dress of white Italian silk with a semi-fitted silhouette, scoop neckline and short sleeves. She wore a mantilla of re-embroidered Alencon lace. Her flowers were gardenias with feathered carnations.

Honor attendant to the bride was Miss Marcia Norris of San Angelo. She was attired in a misty blue peau de soie dress with a Chantilly lace overblouse and matching shoes. She carried a long-stem white rose.

Best man was David Ratliff of Dallas.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was given in the Lubbock Club.

Boyd-Dykes Vows Pledged

Double ring wedding vows were read for Miss Judith Ann Dykes and Walter Earl Boyd by the Rev. I. D. Walker, minister, at 8 p.m. Saturday in Highland Baptist Church.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Dykes, 4408 48th St., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Boyd of Bertram.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of taffeta fashioned with a fitted bodice, scalloped scoop neckline and long sleeves which tapered to petal points. Re-embroidered lace sprinkled with seed pearls enhanced the bodice and bell skirt which flowed into a full chapel train. The bridal bouquet, a white orchid and feathered carnations, was carried atop a white Bible.

Bridal attendants were Mrs. Johnnie Hennington, matron of honor, and Miss Betty Walker of Dallas, maid of honor. They wore formal-length dresses of pomegranate featuring scoop necklines, elbow-length sleeves with ruffles accented with tiny bows and A-line tunics with three deep tiers at the hemlines. The matching headpieces edged in pearls with small bows at the back held circles of illusion.

Best man was Mickey Boyd of Houston, brother of the bridegroom. Bill Dykes was groomsman.

Guests were seated by Donald Dykes, Bill Robinson and Johnnie Hennington.

Flower girl was Charlene Dykes. Wedding music was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Boyd, soloist and organist.

The wedding reception was in the Fellowship Hall.

For travel to Austin the bride chose a two-piece mohair suit of pink and white with matching pink accessories and an orchid from the bridal bouquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyd will reside at 809 Winflo, Austin. Mrs. Boyd is a 1964 graduate of Monterey High School and attended Texas Tech. Boyd is a 1965 graduate of Burnet High School in Burnet and is attending Durham's Business College in Austin.

Beds Now 'Dressed'

Do you know that you no longer make a bed? Now you "dress a bed." That word comes from leading textile and dye manufacturers. According to them, fashion has taken over the boudoir in a big way.

Representatives of the nation's leading dye and textile manufacturers, have found an increasing acceptance of the complete color concept for bed linens, draperies and rugs in bedroom decor. Does this mean you might even goad a teen-age daughter into action by saying "Go dress up your bed, dear?"

SILENT SALES MAN

Color is the silent salesman of most curtains and draperies, according to buyers for these departments in large stores. Consumers, with gathering confidence in the quality and variety of American made textiles and colorfast dyes have gotten venturesome. Now its not unusual to find women of modest means buying new curtains and draperies for the same lift she gets from changing the color of her dress.

OSLO—Norwegian Reds will be asked to register here.

ASSOCIATES TO MEET

Lubbock Christian College Associates will meet at 9:30 a.m. Monday in Katie Rogers Hall on Lubbock Christian College Campus.

Rod Merritt will present a program at 10 a.m. on flower arranging. Hostesses will be women from Sunset Church of Christ.

Love Those Floors

The children who attend kindergarten in one Chicago school just love the floor of their classroom. They like to play games, sit in circles for stories and even take afternoon naps on their floor.

To the children it's a special place, says "Nation's Schools," because even when the temperature outside is sub-zero their cement floor is toasty warm. It's heated electrically and automatically with buried heating cables and sensing elements.

Temperature is regulated by a wall-mounted electronic control which the teacher sets. And the children play comfortably all day long.

EVENING ANTIQUING

PARIS (WNS)—Yvette Barran, who owns a Left Bank antique shop on the Rue Bonaparte, has doubled her business by opening the shop at 3 p.m., and closing it at 3 a.m. She also serves dinner and midnight supper to "customers who seem serious and sympathetic." She explained, "People buy with more confidence when they get an opportunity to live with the furniture a few hours the way they would at home."

ANTIQUE IN BATH

An antique low dresser can be made into an unusual and serviceable bathroom fixture. Properly cut, it can be fitted around the lavatory sink. With its top surfaced with durable ceramic tile, it becomes a waterproof counter with already built-in storage space below. Antique-looking faucets and spout will add even more interest.

Proven cream makes wrinkles diminish
or vanish in 2 weeks

With a substance new to cosmetics, named Genava, aging skin can start looking younger and younger—not older and older.

After a two-week trial on a selected group of women, a noted dermatologist reports on the ingredients in Genava:

"Disappearance of small wrinkles was accomplished in two-week period; even the very deepest wrinkles showed very great improvement."

Dr. W. P. also comments, "the small superficial wrinkles responded dramatically." And he adds that the skin was "more translucent and smoother in appearance."

These results are nothing short of amazing. And it took a new cosmetic compound to do it.

Genava was developed by the trustworthy Nina laboratory. Designed to be used twice daily—under makeup and overnight—it is absorbed instantly by the skin. Start using Genava today. In just two weeks your wrinkles will vanish or diminish greatly. Skin becomes more translucent, smoother. You will look gloriously younger! 1.65 oz. $3.50; 4 oz. $5.00.

Replace Old Shades

If you plan to replace your old window shades with new ones, and the former fit and hang satisfactorily, be sure to take the width measurement from the rollers, not from the shades themselves. Use a wood or metal ruler and measure the old rollers from tip to tip, including the little metal pins on each end. Then measure the full height of each window from the top of the frame to the sill. And don't forget to remind the dealer to allow for adequate "roll-over."

MANY FACES

A different look in floor and wall coverings, without the sacrifice of using an untested novelty product, is obtainable by using many-faced ceramic tie. Besides its characteristic glass-like surface, ceramic tile also has finishes that look like soft pliable leather, rich red brick, and and many types of highly decrated pieces also are available.

SHOE-POLISH TRICK

If your wood furniture has minor scratches, select a paste shoe polish to match the color of the wood. Apply the wax to the scratch with a cotton-tipped toothpick. Let is dry and rub to a shine.

DRIVERS' DIET

COLOGNE, Germany (WNS)—Heidi Metzger, a 27-year-old nutritionist, has developed a thriving business selling "Drivers' Lunch Packs" for people on a day's outing. "In order to drive safely and well, people should eat sparingly and more frequently," reported Frau Metzger. "The car should be stopped once every three hours for a snack and a short walk." Her suggested snack: a cold-meat sandwich, fresh fruit, and a glass of mineral water, milk or fruit juice.

Famed Courtesan Dies Penniless, Forgotten

By TRIXIE BELMONT
Women's News Service

PARIS—This is a story that must start at the beginning. In the gay nineties, La Belle Otero was an astonishing beauty and the champagne toast of the French Riviera.

Starting as a dancer in Spain when she was 14, she moved to Monte Carlo to become the "friend" of an Italian Count who gambled away his fortune—while Caroline Otero prudently won a fortune, with the stake money he gave her.

A succession of gentlemen friends increased her riches. She became a close friend of King Edward the Seventh of England, the Grand Duke Nicolas of Russia—and lots of others.

But she grew older. The gentlemen friends departed, and she drifted back to the tables of Monte. Earlier this year she died aged 97, lonely and forgotten.

Now her estate has been auctioned—some photographs, a crucifix, a few baubles. And all that remained of her worldly wealth fetched $210.

Where's The Moral?

It's hard to imagine Gina Lollobrigida languishing in jail (a real jail, that is) but there seems to be no doubt that the second stage of her trial for appearing in "obscene and immoral" scenes in her latest movie will be heard in the Spring.

For acting in a sultry bedroom scene in "The Dolls" Gina has already appeared before the judge at Viterbo (Italy) for a preliminary hearing. The case was put back after a four-hour argument. Now the State prosecutor has officially demanded that a date be set for the main hearing.

Though the offense if proven rates three months behind bars, maybe Gina will get off with a fine.

But what makes the whole thing so ridiculous — especially in Dolce Vita Italy—is that of all movie girls, 35-year-old Lollo, after making 25 films, has a quiet, dignified private life that is a model of decorum.

"Pigging" It

It's difficult to imagine Ingrid Bergman associating with anything so mundane as pigs, but there it is, she's now part-owner of a piggery. Well, at least, they're high class pigs—for they live way up in the Himalayas just outside Katmandu, capital of Nepal.

Ingrid Bergman went with husband Lars Schmidt to Katmandu for a vacation a few months back, met the owner of the local hotel who was just about to buy an assorted quantity of pork chops on the hoof. She promptly bought a share.

Though Bergman (not given to fulsome speech) describes them as "the most darling little pigs" there's no question of her taking a stint at feeding them.

"Of course no," she said. "The hotel owner is looking after the pigs, but we shall be going back to Katmandu from time to time to see how they're getting on."

Slap Happy

Dominique Rolin is attractive and highly intelligent. But she's walking around Paris expecting to have her face slapped any moment. By a male, too and what's more he's put the threat in writing.

Dominique is a novelist. But she was more than that. Until she resigned after a row, she was one of the all-woman jury that annually awards the famous French literary prize the "Prix Femina."

After this year's award, Dominique commented, "At the end of 1965 a miracle has happened. At last a modern writer has been awarded the prize which should have been given to him two years ago instead of to an ineffectual writer of whom I have forgotten all—his face, his work and even his name."

It seems that the "forgotten" winner Yves Berger recognized himself from this acidulous description. Anyway he's written formally saying he'll slap her face the next time they meet.

Man and wife teams are notoriously suspect, but there's one French woman whose job is utterly fascinating—she's the wife of the man who is probably Europe's greatest expert on that increasing commodity—leisure.

Jeanne is married to Paul Augur and together they turn golden sand into gold—perhaps because Jeanne's motto is "Sand and sun just aren't enough for a vacation these days."

She is behind her husband in one of Europe's most exciting new vacation projects: transforming 100 square miles of desert west of Marseilles into what Jeanne tells me will be "a sort of French New Mexico."

Jeanne does all the decor—in climates hot and cold. Typical of her woman's touch are the "extras" she's just imported for a new winter sports center at Avoriaz, in France, not far from Geneva.

Twelve real reindeer from Norway.

Iron Curtain Falls

Being firmly of the opinion that the female figure was built the way it is in order to be seen and appreciated, I'm delighted that the las bourgeois barrier has dropped behind the Iron Curtain. The dress.

From now on, nudes—respectable nudes of course—are in. The credos of Stalin, that old Victorian who banned nudity, are out.

Girls are now allowed to pose in the nude for painting classes—unheard of a decade ago. What's more, the pictures are put on view. Of course, says the latest party manifesto it must be "cultured."

The Investigators

Frenchwomen buy 14 pairs of stockings a year; the English buy 19 pairs, the Americans 22 pairs a year.

When French teenagers were quizzed about the way they spent their spare time, 25 per cent preferred going to a movie, 22 per cent to a lecture, 21 per cent "going out in groups," 13 per cent dancing, six per cent sport, only five per cent T.V.—and eight per cent liked "going out in couples."

BARGAIN WIVES

LONDON (WNS) — Economists have established that an English housewife is worth $300 per month, but a French housewife is valued at only $240 per month. The pay was figured out at daily rates for three hours of housecleaning, three hours of cooking, and one hour of washing and ironing. "Baby sitting and other duties" were not included.

Operating on a tight budget? Choose grade B eggs. They are as nutritious as grade A—they just don't look as good in the shell.

Make Flowers Last

Fresh-cut flowers will stay fresher longer if you keep them in a "bubble" of oxygen says "Modern Packaging." They will keep that just-cut appearance for long periods of time in polyethylene bags which are inflated with oxygen during the heat-sealing operation.

Now the florist doesn't mind looking at flowers through a veil of plastic, but you might. You'll just have to decide when you bring them home and put them on the table. Do you want your lovely bouquet to be covered with plastic so that it will last through several dinner parties? Or do you want to pop the plastic and the oxygen bubble, place the flowers on the table in all their glory and have them last through only one evening?

Keep a frozen dessert or two on hand for those times when you have unexpected guests for dinner.

USDA Forecasts 1966 Food Prices

By GAYLORD P. GODWIN

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Food will continue to be abundant in 1966, although some items will not be as plentiful as in 1965, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Retail food prices in 1966 will be slightly higher than in 1965, although the increase will not be as sharp as it was over 1964 prices.

The department said that although per capita food consumption in 1966 is likely to remain the same as in 1965, some shifts among foods are expected. Potato consumption is expected to increase sharply from the depressed level of 1965. Fruit consumption is expected to increase, too. Poultry consumption probably will rise further next year, but per capita consumption of red meat is expected to decline again in 1966.

Department economists insist that while overall retail food prices will increase in 1966, most people will be making more money, therefore they actually will be spending less of their take-home pay for food in 1966 than in 1965.

Food expenditures in 1964 took 18½ per cent of income. The department said this percentage declined fractionally in 1965, and predicted another slight decline in 1966.

18.5 Cents per $1

The supplies of red meat have been reduced. This means that during a good part of 1966 prices for beef, pork, lamb and mutton will increase. Potato prices will drop considerably under the impact of the big fall crop in 1965. The department said the price of citrus and poultry will be lower than usual in 1966, and that there should be lower price tags on frozen corn, peas, and snap beans. They predict higher prices on most canned vegetables—except beans, peas and sauerkraut.

Canned peaches, pears, sweet cherries, and fruit cocktail already carry higher price tags and will keep them at least until mid-1966. The price of frozen strawberries and possibly peaches will be up a little. Fresh grapes will cost less, cranberry prices will be about the same, fresh apples and pears will be stable, or up slightly from 1965.

Milk prices are expected to change little. The price of ice cream will be down a little in 1966, prices of butter and cheese up slightly.

4 Per Cent Rise

The food bill in 1966 is expected to be about 4 per cent above the $97.5 billion estimated for 1965, which was up nearly 6 per cent from 1964.

The 1965 food bill included about $85.5 billion for eats and about $12 billion for booze. The department said the sharp increase in the 1965 food bill over 1964 was caused by a generally expanding economy and a rising population—the same to apply in 1966.

The Agricultural Research Service predicted the nutritive value of the national average diet will be about the same in 1966 as in 1965 for most nutrients. Exceptions to this are a little less thiamine from meat and a little more niacin from poultry.

Per capita consumption of pork in 1966 is expected to drop about 5 per cent from 1965. Consumption of poultry is expected to reach an all-time high in 1966.

Compared to 1964, ascorbic acid is the only nutrient that increased noticeably in 1965. Other nutrients showed little or no change. The small declines in calories, protein, fat, and thiamine was directly related to reduced pork consumption.

The increase of 5 per cent in ascorbic acid in 1965 was the result of an 8 per cent gain in per capita consumption of fruits, chiefly citrus, the department said.

MINESWEEPING

DEAR ABBY

Tit For Tat Retaliation

DEAR ABBY: I am a new bride, and now that we are married, my husband told me that the only reason he married me was to avoid the draft.

What shall I do?

Used

Dear Used: Burn your marriage certificate.

DEAR ABBY: If I don't see my answer in the paper right away, I'll kill myself. I am a 16-year-old girl with the worst kind of problem. I am pregnant and I'm afraid to tell my parents because I'm afraid they will charge my boy friend with statutory rape. He is 18. If he is found guilty, how long can they put him away for? Can my parents force me to go to a home for unwed mothers? Can they make me give my baby up? My stepfather is not a U. S. citizen. Can he press charges anyway? My stepfather knew my friend and I had relations last August. Can he press charges against my boy friend for that act after consenting to our seeing each other after that? It sounds like I think you are a lawyer, Abby. I'm sorry, but I don't know where else to get these answers. Also, if you have any idea on how we can persuade my folks to let us get married, we'd sure appreciate them.

In Trouble

Dear In: You're right. I'm not a lawyer, but you need the advice and counsel of one. It's the function of the law to protect us as well as to punish, so you should know your rights in order to protect yourselves. If you can't afford to go to a lawyer, go to a clergyman (any faith, but preferably your own) and ask him to help you. Your problems may not be as insurmountable as you think.

DEAR ABBY: After nearly three years, my husband is home from prison. Our two little girls, 7 and 8, and I lived with his people while he was gone. We told the girls that "Daddy is in the hospital." We were afraid if we told them the truth they might not love him so much. Abby, we have always tried to teach the girls to be truthful. Will they lose confidence in us when they find out we lied to them about this? How do we tell them? Should we wait until they tell us that they've heard it? They are bound to get some word of it from their playmates as this is a small town and everyone here knows it. If we should tell them first, how should we do it?

Delicate Matter

Dear Delicate: Tell them, before they hear it elsewhere, that Daddy broke a law and he had to go to prison as punishment. Stress the point that Daddy has paid for his mistake, that he is square with the world now and that no one should hold it against him.

DEAR ABBY: We in the postal service wish to acquaint you and your readers with some astounding statistics:

Of the nearly 23 million dead letters the post office handled last year, 91 per cent had to be destroyed because they could neither be delivered nor returned. Although we returned $110,000, ownership of another $188,000 could not be established.

In 1964 over 1,600,000 parcels and loose articles ended up at the dead parcel post branches. About one-eighth represented salvage from insurance claims; the remainder, lost items. Inadequate packing is the major cause of damage, which results in loss of contents. Saleable items were auctioned off, yielding nearly $500.00 which, like the $188,000, was lost to its owners and ended up in the U. S. Treasury.

Improper and inadequate addressing are the main causes of "dead" mail. For this reason, we emphasize the importance of correct and legible addressing of all mail, including the zip code in the return address of the sender as well as in the address of the addressee. Sincerely your,

H.W.S., Jr.

The first sea battle of the American Revolution took place off Machias, Maine. A crew of lumberjacks, armed with nothing but pitchforks and rocks, captured the British gunboat Margaretta.

Consume Yule Cheer

Remember those pretty ribbons and bows you plastered all over the Christmas presents? You know, the ones you fashioned with loving care and holiday joy. The very same ribbons that you fed to garbage cans and incinerators the next day.

Well, those ribbons and bows cost you and your fellow gift-wrappers a pretty penny, reports "Chemical Week." Your incinerators have consumed over 25 million dollars worth of Christmas cheer.

Lockney Woman Will Vie For State Office

LOCKNEY (Special) — Mrs. Fred Joe Fortenberry will be competing for the presidency of the Texas Assn. of Young Homemakers, during the fourth annual convention of Young Homemakers meeting in Austin Friday and Saturday.

The convention will be highlighted by the annual Young Farmer luncheon and Young Homemaker awards banquet in Austin's Motor Terrance Hotel. Gov. John Connally is slated to be guest speaker for the combination banquet and luncheon.

Area persons assisting with conventions plans include Mrs. Fortenberry, state parliamentarian; Mrs. Edward Weil of Hale Center, past state president; and James Stair of Plainview, state vice president of Young Farmers.

Young Homemaker Awards will be presented by Mrs. Ray Joiner of DeLeon, state YH president, during the awards banquet. State awards are presented to chapters for outstanding work.

Clarendon is competing for the outstanding chapter award and Frenship is vying for the outstanding new chapter award. Hale Center is competing in the publicity department.

Debbie Cade, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Cade of Slaton, will be recognized as the Little Sister of Area I. She is a representative of Cooper Young Homemakers.

Mrs. Fortenberry is currently state parliamentarian and has previously served as Area I vice president. She is completing a second term as president of which she is a charter member.

Young Homemaker delegates will hear speakers including Mrs. Maurine Amis of the University of Texas. Her topic "Communications in the Heart of the Home" will coincide with the convention theme, "Young Homemakers — The Heart of the Home."

Registration for the two-day conventions will be from 6-9 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. to 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Mrs. Ima Dora Haile serves as Area I Young Homemaker supervisor, with a Plainview office located on South Broadway. Area I includes the territory from Smyer north and east to the Oklahoma border and west to the New Mexico line.

Also highlighting the two-day meeting is a fun-night sponsored by the Haskell Chapter of Young Homemakers. Meeting simultaneously will be the Young Farmer Awards Banquet, which will host some of the young homemakers.

Beginning with a coffee honoring past state officers on Friday morning, the homemakers will proceed to the first general session in the Commodore Perry Hotel. The members will be welcomed by Dr. Robert E. Ledbetter, marriage and family counselor in Austin.

Opening ceremonies and recognition of the chapters and guests will precede the introduction of candidates for state president. Those vying for the post will be Mrs. Joy Lynn Lester, Gonzales Young Homemaker Chapter and Mrs. Fortenberry, Lockney Young Homemaker Chapter.

A second general session will follow the awards luncheon.

Winding up the convention will be a final general session on Saturday morning, when the business session will begin. The election of president will climax the convention agenda. The new president and area state officers will be installed at that time.

Mr., Mrs. Call To Be Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Call, 2619 Parkway Dr., will observe their 30th wedding anniversary at 1 p.m. today in their home with a dinner.

Hosts will include Zelton Call of the home; sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Call of Austin and Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Call of Dallas; and a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fergerson.

Mr. and Mrs. Call were married Jan. 13, 1936, in Benjamin. They resided in Munday until moving to Lubbock in 1952. The couple has four grandsons and six granddaughters.

Guests will be registered by Mrs. Woody Hall.

PARIS France will limit her imports of stockings.

Butter Vegetables

For years now, canned vegetables have been standing on shelves watching their frozen neighbors piling into shopping carts by the armload.

But now the canned variety is trying to make a comeback. The old-fashioned cans will soon contain some new pizazz—in the form of butter.

Will buttered vegetables in an old can be as happy and successful as they seem to be in a modern plastic bag? "Business Week" reports that one company thinks so; it's bringing out a line of canned corn, peas and lima beans in butter.

The canned vegetables are much cheaper, so if they taste as good, the frozen ones will have some new "old" competition.

PARIS French truck makers are working on new models.

Wilkerson-Norwood Vows Recited In Baptist Church

Wedding vows were exchanged by Miss Glenda Norwood and Howard C. Wilkerson at 6 p.m. Friday in Northcrest Baptist Church with the Rev. Bill Mark officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Norwood of New Deal and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Mitt Bullard, 2317 60th St., and the late Mr. J. G. Wilkerson.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a street-length dress of white delustered satin with a jacket of imported lace forming a scalloped hemline. A tiara of white leaves accented with seed pearls held a short veil of illusion. A single strand of pearls complemented the ensemble. The bridal bouquet was carried atop a white Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Ben F. Goebel, sister of the bride, and best man was John G. Wilkerson Jr., brother of the bridegroom.

Guests were seated by Ben F. Guebel and William F. Gardy Jr.

Wedding music was presented by Miss Linda Mark, pianist.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given in the home of Mrs. George P. Livermore, 1713 31st St.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Wilkerson will reside in Lubbock, where the bridegroom is vice president and part owner of Wilkerson Cold Storage Co.

Mrs. Wilkerson is a graduate of New Deal High School and attended Texas Tech. Wilkerson is a graduate of Monterey High School and attended Hardin-Simmons University.

the lighter side of WASHINGTON

Capital Is Looking Forward To Year Of Foreign Affairs

THIS IS GOING TO BE the year for foreign affairs—and not the kind either that Mae West said she was in favor of.

A year ago the interest was on the Great Society, a tax cut, medicare and all kinds of goodies for us Americans. President Johnson was looked upon as a domestic dynamo with only a limited interest in "furriners."

Now he is so used to consorting with "furriners" one of his favorite dinner partners is the British Ambassador's wife, Lady Dean—and they barely speak the same language.

The truth of the matter is the President is proud of the record he set last year in his social foreign relations and he plans to step it up this year. Never have so many foreign ambassadors seen so much of any United States President as the chiefs of mission here saw of Johnson in 1965. The envoys themselves are immensely pleased and quick to say so. Kuwait Ambassador Al-Ghoussein thinks one such informal personal contact with the President can create more permanent good will than any USIA film or pamphlet we may distribute in a foreign country.

It used to be ambassadors never saw the President, unless they had a chief of state in town, except when they said hello, said goodbye or shook his hand at the annual diplomatic reception.

IN 1965 THE PRESIDENT initiated Fish Room luncheons at the White House where Jack Valenti and Chief of Protocol Lloyd Hand received 4 or 5 ambassadors and Johnson dropped by around dessert time to talk with them informally for 30 minutes or more.

He inaugurated boat trips down the river on the Sequoia when he took a group of envoys aboard for a stag dinner in the relaxed atmosphere of a cruise.

And he organized field trips to different parts of America to show foreign ambassadors how we are solving problems they have in their own countries. Now cabinet members are coming up with new ideas for field trips.

The President also dropped by every time Lady Bird had a tea for either the wives of foreign ambassadors or the wives of American ambassadors about to leave for their new posts. At one of the latter meetings he told the women:

"I know how important a wife can be. At all these state dinners I look around and see Lady Bird talking to the most important man in the room. I have asked her what she was talking about and she said, 'I just asked him to tell me about himself.' That's a very good rule to follow, and a good way to learn about the man and his country."

ALTHOUGH CONGRESS returning to Washington Monday will barely make a ripple in the social scene, the return of the Johnsons is making the town fizz and hum again. Out-of-towners never realize that the mere presence in Washington of the Chief Executive and his wife—especially doers like the Johnsons—have an electric effect on the city as a whole. Which reminds—

The Spanish Ambassador and the Marquesa de Merry del Val were in New York for the New Year's Eve party of the Gilbert Millers and throughout the evening, said the Marquesa, they were asked how they could stand living in Washington, in such a quiet place.

The unquenchable Marquesa told the New Yorkers, "I live in the Capital of the world. You here live in the provinces. You are like Mme. Bovary," she said; or if she were talking to a man, the amused ambassadress would say, "You are like M. Bovary. The residents of the Manhattan metropolis looked startled.

The Merry del Vals, who now give the most sought-after parties in Washington outside of those at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, wouldn't, if they could, switch their residence to New York. Reflected the Marquesa at the gay, warm, amusing and fun party the Arthur Gardners had the other day, "How often do you go to a good party like this in New York?"

French Ambassador and Mme. Lucet, the Clark Cliffords, Oklahoma Senator and Mrs. Mike Monroney and Mrs. Averell Harriman (Ave was on his global peace offensive) were among the group that mingled cheerily at this gathering where Jimmy Symington and hostess Susie Gardner were egged on until they sang solos and former ambassador from Cuba Nicolas Arroyo did a frug that had all the women there begging him for lessons.

THE FIRST GAY TO-DO of the New Year was held at the Algerian Embassy presided over by the handsome 31-year-old bachelor Cherif Guellal. Justice and Mrs. Potter Stewart and Indiana Senator and Mrs. Birch Bayh were at the party that also drew architect Edward Durell Stone, squiring the beautiful young Yolande Fox, the former Miss America from Alabama and now a popular Washington widow. Yolande, who did not properly set off her beauty with her Charles Adams style coiffure, readily confessed that she was wearing not one but two sets of false eyelashes. "False eyelashes are not meant to look natural," said Yolande, "they are meant to look extreme and that's why everybody in New York wears them." Actually hers were so well trimmed they almost looked natural.

Ed Stone told her that one of the girls in his office showed up one day in mink eyelashes, and he was so taken with them he ordered every girl in his office to wear them the following Wednesday, which was promptly dubbed "Lash Wednesday."

The glamorous young Yolande is being urged by both Democratic and Republican friends in Mobile to run for Congress from Alabama's first district against Republican incumbent Jack Edwards. She has to make up her mind in two or three months and may be tempted to try for it. One can imagine what it would do to that impressive, mostly male, body of lawmakers to have a former Miss America in their midst!

New York producer Orrin Christy came down for the party and between his expert forays onto the dance floor of the Algerian Embassy, that was formerly the home of the Lyndon Johnsons, and before that Perle Mesta, he said that he was going to reproduce Clare Luce's play "The Women." It will open March 22nd in Milburn, New Jersey and after that he hopes to bring it to Washington.

He wants Teresa Wright for the lead, Louise Troy for the part of the caustic Sylvia, Jan Sterling for the husband-stealing role of Crystal and Sheila MacRae for the part of Edith, the woman in the group of Reno divorcees who is always pregnant. He has yet to come up with the ideal actress to play the role of the Countess.

VENEZUELAN AMBASSADOR and Mrs. Tejera-Paris were fresh back from a sun-kissed visit in Puerto Rico. The goodlooking Pepita, mother of three children and stepmother of three, is expecting her fourth, or seventh, depending on how you look at it.

Beautiful Selange Gaussen and her husband Gerard, Counsellor at the French Embassy, were just back from New York where they attended Anne Ford's wedding. Selange is second cousin to Bridegroom Giancarlo Uzielli. Their maternal French grandmothers were sisters. Said Selange there were tears in Anne Ford's eyes when her father toasted the absent Charlotte and her new husband Stavros Niarchos. She had so wanted her sister to be present for the ceremony.

During the evening FCC Chairman and Mrs. Bill Henry, Elizabeth and Les Carpenter and others were discussing what pet peeves they would like eliminated in the coming year. They covered everything from more comfortable cars (cars you can step into with a narrow skirt and sit up straight in the back seat; Marjorie Post had to have her limousine ceiling raised several inches), to better TV programs.

Communications Chairman Henry said he recently asked one of the networks why it did not advertise that it was NOT first according to the Nielsen ratings. This would tell the public that their programs were not geared to the lowest common denominator and would, therefore, appeal to people who were tired of a diet of hot dogs and long for a little Chateaubriand steak.

DILLON RIPLEY, Director of the Smithsonian, announced at his ambassador-filled dinner the other night "We are going to the third floor to indulge in some music, both sacred and profane." He was talking about his guests listening first to an 18th century concert played on the Museum's 18th century harpsichord and recorder and then dancing to 20th century music, which they did, doing everything from a waltz to something that someone called "The Smithsonian Bends."

British Ambassador and Lady Dean were still twirling after midnight. They like to dance and are new members of the Waltz Group of Washington and love it. Sir Patrick makes up for staying up late by getting a 30-minute nap every day after lunch, being one of those fortunate creatures who can slumber at the drop of a hat.

Indian Ambassador Nehru said he avoids a heart attack by staying in bed until 11 every morning. He doesn't sleep that late but he reads the papers in bed, including the funnies, and goes over household business before getting up.

Norwegian Ambassador Hans Engen, a music lover, said he relaxes by coming home, sitting down at the piano and running his fingers over the keyboard in whatever composition that comes to mind. He plays by ear and rarely uses a score.

Handsome Irish Ambassador Bill Fay said he dotes on good conversation and also likes to read history. After studying our Civil War from A to Z he has decided that Abraham Lincoln is probably not only the greatest democrat in American history but also the greatest democrat who ever lived—greater even than Pericles.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR Anatoly Dobrynin was saying that Marjorie Post has the greatest collection of Catherine the Great porcelain outside of the Soviet Union. He was fascinated to learn that John Davis Lodge, former Governor of Connecticut, former Ambassador to Spain, and brother of Cabot Lodge, once played the film role of one of Catherine the Great's lovers. This is one movie the ambassador would like to see.

The Ripley dinner was held in the great hall of the new Museum of History and Technology where the 90 guests dined around the Foucault Pendulum which swings in accordance with the earth's revolutions on its tilted axis, although Ripley confessed that it needs a push every morning to get it going briskly again. And cocktails were served in the fanciful hall of folkloric statuary, where one woman, unable to resist the beckoning appeal of a revolving carousel, climbed over the railing and rode the lion. Guess who?

AROUND THE TOWN: Jeane Dixon, Washington seeress, predicting an upheaval in Congress next fall. "The Democrats will retain their majority but it will be cut," she says. "People will reach out to do away with what I call a rubber stamp Congress."

She also said, "Our chief foe in Viet Nam is Russia and the first step in recognizing our true enemy is to stop a long line of ships carrying weapons to our foes."

The press holding its breath New Year's Eve for fear Luci Johnson would make another announcement.

She announced her conversion to the Catholic Church on Saturday, July 3 when all Sunday columns had long since been put to bed and many reporters had left town for a long weekend. She announced her engagement on Christmas Eve when everybody who could had put work aside and skipped town. So maybe she will get married on Memorial Day weekend.

Rice Rations For Cubans To Be Cut

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cubans have been told their rice rations will be cut almost in half.

Havana Radio announced Friday that the monthly rice ration will be three pounds less per person. The broadcast, monitored in Miami, followed the disclosure that Communist China will not ship as much rice to Cuba as the Fidel Castro government had hoped.

Red China also told Cuba it will not be able to buy 800,000 tons of sugar Castro had thought was safely sold.

Havana Radio did not say what the present monthly rice ration is, but foreign newsmen estimated it was six pounds, nine ounces in 1965.

Rice is a key part of the Cuban diet. Most Cubans eat it at least twice a day—in combination with meat, fish, chicken and beans.

Karate Champs Are To Perform

Champions in judo and karate will perform at 2 p. m. Feb. 6 at Lubbock Municipal Auditorium in an exhibition scheduled by the Lubbock Karate Institute.

Exhibitions by seven girls who have been studying karate and two 9-year-old boys also are scheduled at the event. The girls have been students of karate four months. Five of them are Texas Tech students.

Proceeds of the performance go to the Texas Tech Karate Club's intramural fund. Admission is $1.

Members of the institute are members of the Texas Tech Karate Club, an intramural organization, and also of the Southwest Karate Black Belt Association.

The exhibition will feature Allen Steen, Dallas, the 1963 world championship runnerup in karate, and John Daring, a Lubbock policeman, the 1964 Southwest judo champion.

James Geren, Tech junior architecture student from Dallas, is president of the Lubbock Karate Institute and the Tech Karate Club.

Tickets will be on sale at Wayne's Record Rack, Flintwood Shopping Center.

BIG PROJECT

State Prison Soon To Start On '67 Plates

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The 1966 auto license plates will be new to the millions of Texas motorists but they are already past history at the state prison, where work starts soon on the 1967 tags.

Inmates at the Huntsville unit of the Texas Department of Corrections turned out the last of 13,237,698 plates for 1966 at 11:10 a.m. Dec. 29.

Takes 11 Months

To fill that order, it took 11 months and an average of around 82,000 plates daily for Texas cars and trucks plus special plates for the Texas Railroad Commission, Parks and Wildlife Commission and cotton bale tags for the state prison system.

Work on the 1967 order, totaling about 14 million plates, will begin Feb. 1.

Roland Lucas, inspector for the State Highway Department, said the 1966 production was the highest in history. In 1950 only 7,797,442 plates were needed to meet the state's needs.

The 1966 tags bear white letters and figures on a black background. They are due to go on sale at county tax collectors' offices Feb. 1.

Benjamin Smith, manager of the license plate plant, credited the 1966 production record to efficiency of the plant, its officers and 155 inmates.

Smith had predicted that the 1966 order would be completed at 11 a.m. Dec. 29.

"Missing my estimate by only 10 minutes is close enough," he said.

League Units Will Discuss City Government Issues

Local program will be the subject for discussion at League of Women Voters unit meetings this week. Members will review areas of particular interest from their recently completed survey of city government and recommend possible items for study and action for next year.

Possible areas for local program which will be discussed are financing of city-county services; health and welfare; police; city and county jails; urban renewal; parks and recreation; opportunities for education and employment; and improved voting procedures in Lubbock County.

The various structures of municipal government will also be studied, including mayor-council, commission and council-manager plans, and the best form for the city of Lubbock will be discussed.

Mrs. Gerald Sandlin will be the discussion leader for the Hub City unit, which meets in the home of Mrs. Bob Huff, 2201 33rd St. at 1 p.m., Monday.

Mrs. Tom Stover will lead the discussion at the Rush unit in the home of Mrs. T. C. Young, 4504-16th St., at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Unit meetings are open to any woman of voting age.

Add Stylish Flavor

Here's a way to add a brilliant new decorative flavor — as well as height and width — to the window wall of a smallish room. The casual elegance of carousel striped window shades is just your ticket. In crisply contrasting vertical lines of red, pink, blue or black on white—brown or orange on natural — these attractive room-darkeners insure privacy and, because of their up-and-down design, can even make a low ceiling seem higher.

Neve-Wisdom Vows Read In Abernathy

ABERNATHY (Special)—Miss Betty Ann Wisdom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Wisdom, pledged double ring wedding vows with Wilson Logan Neve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Neve, at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the First Baptist Church. Officiant for the wedding was the Rev. Boyce Evans, former minister of Abernathy First Baptist Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her bridal attire was a gown of antique ivory peau de soie and re-embroidered Alencon lace featuring a portrait neckline, fitted bodice and matinee-length sleeves. Appliques of lace enhanced the bodice and skirt. Unpressed pleats swept into a wide chapel train. The bridal veil of scalloped illusion was sprinkled with tiny seed pearls and attached to a matching pillbox. The bride carried a bouquet of white feathered mums surrounding an orchid.

Mrs. Ray Everett of Idalou was matron of honor. Miss Pam Davis was bridesmaid. They wore street-length dresses of red velvet designed with fitted bodices, empire waistlines and A-line skirts. They wore matching bow headpieces and carried bouquets of feathered mums.

Best man was James Neve, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsman was Dennis Allen. Guests were seated by Gene Stephens and Wayne Wolf.

Rings were carried by Gary and Jimmy McKenzie. Mrs. L. J. Hager, organist, accompanied soloist, Miss Peggy Davis.

The wedding reception was given in the church. For travel the bride chose a two-piece wool suit with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Neve will reside at 407 Ave. H, Abernathy. Mrs. Neve is a graduate of Abernathy High School. Neve is a graduate of Abernathy High School and is employed by Bill's Irrigation Supply.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

Plastic lemon and lime-juice containers make cute vases if the tops are cut off. They're flat on the bottom, so they won't tip . . .

I fill the plastic container with soil, and put a tiny plant in it. Violets, pansies and other short-stemmed flowers are also lovely in them. It is small enough to set on the window sill and is cheerful-looking and attractive.

Marjorie Mantor

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

After I do my laundry, I always mate the socks as I hang them on the line. If I find an odd sock, I just pin it on the side of my clothes basket! Eventually, within a few weeks, the mate turns up.

I leave the basket under the line to dry. This not only bleaches the basket, but dries out the moisture, too, and the sock dries at the same time.

Mrs. H. S.

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

After I sprinkle my clothes, I put them back inside my empty washing machine and close the lid. After a while they are ready to iron.

I found this method lets the moisture spread evenly and keeps the clothes from drying out. If I don't get all of them ironed, the remainder are out of the way, and out of sight . . .

Sara Wiley

DEAR SARA:

Did you also know that, after sprinkling your clothes and putting them back in your machine, the fibers will absorb the water faster, too?

Makes for far easier ironing, and faster, if you are in a hurry.

Heloise

HOT ICING

DEAR HELOISE:

If your family likes toasted (frosted) raisin bread, you can toast it easily by putting a toothpick through the top crust of the slice.

The slice will drop in the toaster only as far as the toothpick, and this prevents the sugar icing from burning. When toasted it will be easier to take out of the toaster, too. Saves fingers, cleaning time and temper.

Mrs. R. H. Krause

It works! And the frosting doesn't burn either. Thanks, Mrs. Krause.

Heloise

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

A few weeks ago I was baking a birthday cake for my six - year - old son when I noticed I had failed to buy candle holders.

I had some gum drops on hand, so decided to use these instead.

This went over big with my children, and the colors were beautiful.

Esther Atkinson

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

For grease spots on kidskin shoes, are you aware that cleaning solvents remove most of them? Just apply it with a piece of cotton and rub lightly in a circular motion.

C.L.

It works sometimes, but I had a spot on a pair of light-colored kid shoes, and I tried every method I could think of but couldn't get the spot out.

You know what I finally did?

I picked up some more bacon grease and wiped the entire pair of light green shoes! At least they were the same color all over. I know that's not cricket and do not recommend it to you, but if it's a lost cause anyway . . .

Shoe manufacturers have written that, when oil from their machines hits a shoe they take rubber cement, and apply it two or three times, let it dry, then rub it off. This works if the oil spot has not been on light-colored kid shoes for a long time.

Heloise

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise in care of this newspaper.

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

I have what my husband and I call our "What and When" file!

Any major bill paid is entered on a file card (when paid, price and work done) and we can tell when the trees were sprayed, furnace cleaned, house painted, appliance checked or repaired, etc.

Each month I check to see what has to be done.

This simple file has been such a help and has saved a lot of time looking through check books and bills for expiration dates of guarantees, etc.

Reader

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

For those easy-to-wash canvas shoes we all wear these busy days . . .

I bent a clothes hanger up at each end and use this for drying my shoes. I stick the toe of each shoe onto the ends of the hanger — then hang it on the line. Much easier than using clothespins.

This method may also be used to hang shoes on the shower rod or towel rack.

Mrs. Gordon Harper

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

To avoid scraping the fenders of your car when driving into the garage, attach a long piece of string to a rubber ball and suspend the ball from the center of the garage doorway.

When you drive the car into the garage, just guide it so that the ball comes over the center of the car hood.

Mrs. Karns

[redacted]

DEAR HELOISE:

With so many little ones going to pre-school, I know a lot of mothers will like this idea:

I used iron-on tape in white (the same as I mend sheets with) and cut out a little kitten, printed my grandson's name on it with a ball-point pen, and attached it to his sweater.

Now he can easily find his own sweater in the cloak room.

Versatility In Wool Fashions Seen For Spring

The colorful burst of early Spring promises great "getaway" wools for every occasion. Dashing designs in pure wool have fresh fabric versatility and fashion interest in their featherlight weights and airborne, textured weaves.

Pure and simple shapes in couture fabrics lend an aura of easy elegance to any resort or early Spring scene. Tri-color combination wool knit ensembles provide packable, crushproof companions for the peripatetic traveler, and the rush to soft, flexible, fun-loving knit sportswear is in full swing.

Fabrics vary in styling from crisp menswear worsteds with dry surface interest and sculptured tone-on-tone effects, to airy lenos, soft porcelain gabardines, and the fluid grace of drapable pure wool jerseys. Bias-cut workmanship, juxtapositioned patterns and meticulous seaming are highlighted with clear focus on clean, contemporary lines.

Silhouettes are mobile, sleek and supple, with a somewhat looser fit.

Colors encompass the clear, lightstruck, softened tones of Spring itself . . . shades of new grass, budding forsythia and opaline pink sunsets.

Late-day and evening are focal points for resort wear with many lively dance dresses in short or demi-longeur lengths of whisperweight pure "naked wool".

Designs bearing the wool mark quality label of fabrics tested and approved as the world's best, are available as a consumer's assurance she is adding to her wardrobe merchandise made of the finest quality pure wool obtainable.

As fashion navigates through Winter's heavy seas toward resort and early Spring "getaway" wools are ideal at all points on the compass.

INSTANT ELEGANCE—A beautifully-cut coat of pure wool will mean instant elegance for resort and early Spring travel. The meticulous silhouette is achieved by shaped front seams, lean set-in sleeves and cleanly-spliced notch collar. Flapped patch pockets highlight the bodice.

FESTIVE GOWN—Designed with dancing in mind, this festive gown of pure naked wool is in the new soft-stepping, demi-longeur length. The featherlight fabric, worked on the bias, is set in motion by a ripple of ruffles at the neckline and hem. The waist is softly defined by gathers and a narrow belt of matching fabric is gracefully bowed at one side.

FROM JUNK TO ANTIQUES

East Texas Town Has One Of Biggest Trade-Outs In Country On 'First Monday'

By TOM JOHNSON

CANTON, Tex. (AP)—A vast display of Americana, ranging from valuable antiques to plain old junk, goes up for sale or swap the first Monday of every month in the East Texas community of Canton.

Buyers and sellers flock into town from as far away as Ohio to partake of an institution that is almost as old as Texas itself.

"You can find anything here that was ever made in America, if you wait long enough," said Ernest Ervin, a rural mail carrier from nearby Tyler.

And while the claim may be a bit exaggerated, there is truth in it.

Suave Dallas women can be seen poking pieces of "authentic rustic" into shopping bags alongside over-alled farmers wrangling the trade of a squirrel gun for a coon dog.

Going On Long Time

It's called "first Monday" and it's been going on here as long as anyone can remember.

A random sampling of items put up for sale or barter on a typical day might include:

Kerosene lanterns, old crank telephones, all kind of tools, hand-grinder coffee mills, plantation bells, Stoke-on-Trent chamberpots, all manner of guns and rifles, both old and new, horse-hitch racks, harnesses, samovars, iron jail keys, flatirons, butter churns, railroad lore, carnival glass, lengths of chain, and virtually any kind of furniture and dishes ever conceived.

Antique dealers from Fort Worth to New Orleans began buying goods here several years ago. Some say it's the best bargain place in the country.

But the great bulk of the thousands milling through the seven-acre "First Monday Trading Grounds" are city folk from Dallas or Shreveport or Memphis or Houston, just looking, dickering over prices, occasionally buying something.

"This is one of the real fun places of Texas," said Mrs. Lois Haverty, a Fort Worth antique dealer.

Antique Craze

She said an "antique craze" is sweeping America. Another dealer said, "A lot of people nowadays will buy just about anything if it's 50 years old and hand-made."

Antique bugs apparently have gotten the word about Canton, a town of some 2,000 located 60 miles east of Dallas. On Labor Day last year, estimates of the number of people on hand ran as high as 25,000.

"It seemed like everybody and his dog was here," commented Mayor Sam Hilliard.

Durable—good merchandise is not the only thing to be had on First Monday. There is also a horse auction and a hound dog sale, swapout.

L. E. Curry, a contractor who says he was "raised with a pack of hound dogs," built the "Coon Dene," a dog-trading area just east of downtown, in the late 1950's.

He said as many as 400 dogs have changed hands on big days.

"They sell from $2.50 to $500," Curry said. "A lot of it depends on who's doing the buying."

Much Bartering

As much bartering as buying goes on at the Coon Dene, and some enthusiasts have developed a finesse that baffles the outsider.

For example, James Rogers of Nacogdoches came down to look at the dogs on Labor Day. He came without a dog but bought one on impulse for $10.

An hour later, after an intricate series of swaps, deals and propositions, he had parlayed the first dog into $75 in cash and a second dog.

Old hands who confirmed this story said it was "pretty good going," but nothing really exceptional.

Curry said most of the traffic in dogs is in hounds: the Beagle, red bone, red tick, black-and-tan, treeing walker, and greyhound.

"It is mostly straight buying and selling at the trading grounds proper, two blocks north of the court house. The city has leased the area, and rents selling spaces for $3 a month.

Vendors used to set up on downtown streets and sidewalks. But the trading grounds were arranged last spring, when the activity spilled into outlying areas and began to choke off traffic.

Nobody Knows

Nobody seems to know for sure just when or how First Monday got started.

E. J. Kennedy, a Canton woodcraftsman, says this account has been handed down by word of mouth from early settlers:

The first Van Zandt county court house was built in Canton in 1850. Circuit court was held the first Monday of the month.

"Holding court" was a big occasion then, and people came to town from outlying areas to be on hand.

Thus gathered in town, some started racing horses to pass the time. Then they began trading horses. Then wagons, and corn, and so forth.

"Court Monday" became "Horse Monday." After the automobile and the tractor replaced the horse, dogs came into fashion, and some called it "Dog Monday."

All the while, people were bringing in goods they didn't want in order to trade for something they needed. The word spread over wider that "you can get it in Canton." It applied especially to items no longer being manufactured and therefore not for sale in retail stores.

In time, the affair evolved into "First Monday," Kennedy said.

Open On Sunday

The trading grounds open at 1 p. m. on Sunday and close at dark on Monday. Some professional buyers make it a point to get there on Sunday afternoon to get the pick of the crop.

First Monday has almost a carnival atmosphere, with barbecue sandwiches for sale and children marveling at antiquated toys and household items they've never seen before.

Many displayed items have hand-lettered price tags attached but astute bargaining accompanies most transactions.

A man called Chief Gibbons had a horse hitch rack for sale in October. Gibbons, who says he's a roving trader with no fixed home, said the rack was brought to Anderson County from Louisiana in 1821.

"How much is it?" a woman asked.

"I've been offered $75 but I didn't take that," Gibbons said.

"How much do you want for it?" she asked.

"How much will you give me?" he said.

Didn't Buy It

The woman didn't buy it.

Mrs. Doyle Hamilton and Mrs. Jim Rivers, neighbors in Monroe, La., drove to the October First Monday and filled the trunk of their car with various antiques, among them a large, black plantation bell.

"We live near a bayou where my four children are usually off playing," Mrs. Hamilton said. "I need the bell to call them to dinner."

She bought the bell from E. D. Davis of Dallas, who regularly makes the Canton affair.

Davis had the bell for sale for $25 but he knocked off 98 cents for Mrs. Hamilton.

First Monday affords a good example of a true market place, governed only by supply and demand.

Not Worth Nickel

"Regardless of what it is or when it was made, an item is not worth a nickel unless somebody wants it," said Holland B. Tunnell of Tyler.

Mr. and Mrs. Tunnell, whose son Byron Tunnell is a member of the Texas Railroad Commission, had a varied display set up in October.

They had railroad switchstand lamps for $8.50, kerosene lanterns for $6-$10, side lamps off Model T Fords for $4.50, and flatirons for a dollar.

Tunnell picked up a small white jug that had bas-relief lettering that read:

"SSS For The Blood."

"Back in 1908, they used to give you these jugs free when you bought a bottle of SSS tonic. Now the jug sells for $12.50," Tunnell said.

In the back of one pickup truck was a wooden footstool for $20 and a samovar for $175. One man said a punch bowl made of carnival glass sold recently for $100.

W. H. Sloan of Corrigan said he's been coming to First Monday for 48 years.

"It used to be mainly horses and wagons. Now it's everything," he said.

One seller had the back end of his pickup loaded with music boxes, a sewing machine, some army surplus equipment, a grandfather's clock and lengths of pre-1900 barbed wire.

Asked if he expected to sell it all, he replied:

"Never can tell about people. Someone wants to buy my truck, I'll walk back home."

THE ANSWER'S SIMPLE

ROME (AP)—Repairmen who went out to learn why telephone service between Rome and Formia had broken down soon found the answer. Thieves had made off with more than 500 yards of the telephone cable.

Smooth Out Wrinkles

Wrinkles are riverbeds of dry cells caused by the plasma colloids (water carriers of the skin) having dried out through harsh weather. You can soon bring beauty and the glow of a healthy complexion back and protect your skin against wrinkle dryness. Ask your druggist for oil of Olay and before applying make-up smooth it over the face, neck and hands to lubricate and soften the skin and give it a peaches-and-cream bloom.

PLANT NEAR COMPLETION

French Project Will Harness Giant Tides

BY HARVEY HUDSON

DINARD, France (AU) — The tides attack the northern coast of Brittany with unrelenting fury, rushing and pounding along the heavily eroded rocks of the coastline.

Twice a day the waters advance into the little inlets and estuaries the waves have carved during the centuries, and then retreat. The difference in water level between high tide and low tide may vary as much as 44 feet. Or the variation may be only 20 feet, depending on the phase of the moon and the season.

Tides Harnessed

But the ebb and flow, constant elsewhere, has been temporarily halted in the estuary of the Rance River, while engineers construct what may be the world's first electric plant using tidal power. Electricite de France, the nationalized French power company, is building the plant. Construction started in 1961 and is scheduled for completion in 1967. The first generators will go into service next summer.

Harnessing the power of the tides has long been a dream of man. As early as the 12th century, residents along the Rance built crude mills for grinding flour which were driven by the tides. The movement of the water in the Bristol Channel of England, and on the U.S.-Canadian border where the ocean spurts into Passamaquoddy Bay from the Bay of Fundy, have been tempting.

Plans Are Ready

In the Bay of Fundy, the maximum spread between water level at high and low tides is about 50 feet. Plans were first drawn in 1919 for channeling these waters to produce electricity. Engineers and experts have quarreled through the decades over whether the project is economical.

A 1963 proposal by the United States called for 7.5 miles of dams to trap and control 70 billion cubic feet of sea water. Construction would last for 15 years and cost more than $1 billion. The plant would produce one million kilowatts of power during each hour of operation.

In all respects, the Passamaquoddy project dwarfs the Rance River plant. But in this case compactness was a virtue, and construction could profitably be undertaken on the Rance.

The Rance emplacement is 2.5 miles from the open sea, so that it is sheltered from storms. The river bed is of granite, covered in places by sand and pebbles. Maximum depth of the river is 39.5 feet.

The closure across the estuary measures about 2,400 feet, and the crown will serve as a two-lane highway connecting the resort towns of Saint Malo and Dinard, located on either bank of the Rance. A ferry has been the only connection between the two banks.

The dam holds the water in the estuary of the Rance, which really isn't much of a river. The flow from the rivershed is extremely small. The estuary has been dug out by the tides and the tide waters always have moved into the area now used as a lake. The lake covers 8.5 square miles.

The estimated production of 554 million kilowatt hours of electricity represents less than ½ of one per cent of France's current consumption. Still, it would be enough to meet about two-thirds of the consumption of a city like Marseille, with some 700,000 population.

The cost of the plant has been estimated at $100 million, about one-tenth the estimates for the Passamaquoddy project.

"The Rance plant is being built because studies showed that it would be economical. This is not an experiment," said Louis Reynaud, chief engineer at the construction site.

When the project first was considered after World War II, it was put aside because the most advantageous equipment was not available. The generators then in use could utilize the movement of the water in only one direction.

Blades Reversible

The first need was for turbines that would operate as the tide move din, and again as the water swept out. This was accomplished by making the turbine blades reversible, using the same principle as jet engines for airplanes that can be reversed for use as brakes during landing.

The next step was to adapt the same blades so they could be used as pumps to help nature along in moving the water in and out. With four-way combination—power generating in both directions, and pumps in both directions—the engineers worked out schedules for maximum utilization of the plant.

The power plant, looking like a giant multilevel concrete tunnel, will occupy only 1,200 feet of the total distance between the two banks of the estuary. A lock to permit passage of small craft between the sea and the lake is located on the left bank. Six sluice gates, which will help control the flow of the waters, are located next to the right bank. Between the sluice gates and the power plant is a concrete dike bolstered by earthworks and granite stones.

Started In 1961

Construction started in January 1961, with work on coffer dams along the two banks for building the locks and sluice gates. During 1962 these two works were completed and the planting of giant caissons across the center section of the estuary was started. On July 19, 1963, the coffer dam facing the sea was closed and the swirling tides were shut out of the construction site. Three months later another coffer dam holding back waters from the lake was completed. Since then the workmen have had a dry island on the river bed to construct the power plant.

With the Rance plant near operational stage, engineers have dreamed up an even more ambitious project. This one would call for a dam of about 13.7 miles across the sea at the junction of the Brittany and Cotentin peninsulas. This would include the area of the famed Mont St. Michel monastery.

Such a project could produce an estimated one billion kilowatt hours of electricity. No one has gone so far as to estimate the cost.

Examples Of How To Fail At Child Raising Given

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Parents guaranteed to fail at child raising will say one or more of the following to a teen-ager during the new year:

—"Isn't that nice of you to tell me 'all the kids are doing it.' I just wouldn't know how to guide you if you didn't report what all the kids are doing. The child raising books aren't very clear.

—"Turn off that studying, son. You're hitting the books too hard. Switch on some of your rock 'n' roll records. It's too quiet around here.

—"Well, the teacher wants to see me about the fight you allegedly started. You just tell her I know you're right and she's wrong. Why should I waste my time with a little know-nothing like her.

—"You got a ticket for speeding, son? We'll try to fix it. Those cops make plenty of mistakes.

—"Yes, son, now that you are 16, I agree that it's a good idea to marry Sue. You've been engaged a year and she's so much more mature now that she's turned 15.

—"You've really convinced me. Your allowance is too skimpy. You know I'm not much for figures. Just tell me how much I should add to it.

—"The cat have your tongue. times I tried to call home from the office I got right through. You really ought to hang on the phone more. It's good for you and it teaches me patience when I have to wait a long time when calling from the outside.

—"Church bores you now that you're 14 and big enough to think for yourself? Okay, don't go, if you think it might be bad for you. You know best about those things.

—"You say you found that transistor radio in the locker room? It's a dandy radio. Now don't do anything foolish like trying to find who lost it. You know the saying—finders keepers . . . . "

—"Now don't bother your pretty head about sideswiping parked car, Janet. I know it wasn't your fault, but I do hope you didn't leave your name and number where the owner of the damaged car could find it. No one saw you do it, I hope. As I've told you, the best thing is to leave the scene of an accident as fast as you can.

—"So the principal's worried about you sneaking beer into school to have with your lunch? Doesn't he remember that he was a boy once and used to dip pigtails into ink wells? There's no difference. All boys are entitled to a little hell-raising. Wouldn't want you to be a sis, son. Getting away with things like that helps make a man of you.

"I agree with you, honey. Your dad is too stern. Go right ahead and play pool with the boys and girls. I'll tidy up the yard and your room. Have fun. And remember, mommy loves dear little you."

Search For Typical GI In Viet Nam Futile, But Pattern Emerges

By BOB POOS

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — For some American GIs, Viet Nam duty is "the best in the Army."

For others, it means long stretches of boredom, sitting in foxholes by the hour waiting for an enemy that never seems to show, taking long, weary walks through rice paddies and jungle that sometimes erupt in a blast of fire from hidden machine guns.

The American GI in Viet Nam is not quite like the GI of Korea and World War II. His officers are likely to think that he's smarter, better trained and tougher than men of the earlier wars.

Futile Search

A search for a typical GI is futile because all are individuals, although molded into a military pattern with its discipline and anonymity.

Most complain about the food, weather, military life in general and about the enemy. They call him Victor Charley or Charley Brown and respect him as a soldier.

Thus far, all large U.S. units in Viet Nam except the 1st Army Division has a preponderance of regulars, men who joined up for three years. This will change in some outfits like the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division as stateside replacements pour in. But units like the paratroopers and Marines will probably retain a majority of volunteers.

Most of the noncommissioned officers boast that they are "RA (regular Army) all the way and in to stay."

Even draftees are likely to admit they would rather be here than "running up and down hills at Ft. Benning to no purpose," as a 1st Division private remarked.

"Best In World"

"They're the finest kids — and the best troops — in the world," said Capt. Henry Thorpe, a native North Carolinian who commanded a company of the 2nd Battalion, 7th Cavalry in the Ia Drang Valley.

He ought to know. Thirty-one of his men died in that battle.

How does the U.S. soldier live on base and in the field? What does he do for entertainment in those rare hours off duty? Let's take a look at a few of them:

Spec. 5 Martin Torres of Guam is an aircraft maintenance man of the 545th Aircraft Battalion stationed at Camp Holloway, an Army air base just outside Pleiku in the central highlands.

He's been in the Army six years and plans to stay in for 20.

"In a way, it's the best duty I've ever had," he said. "I have to work hard and I don't mind because I'd rather drop dead from exhaustion than let down one of those guys flying our aircraft.

"We do our work and aren't bothered by spit and polish inspections."

Torres is an enterprising young man. He bought a motor scooter for $350 and putt-putts around the Pleiku area. In town there is little to do except break the monotony of Army food with a meal at the only Pleiku Chinese restaurant. This costs 150 piasters, about $2 at the official rate of exchange.

Torres walks around the little Vietnamese city and drinks an occasional bottle of the local "33 export" beer that costs 40 piasters.

This is better than the life of most of the troopers of the 1st Cavalry Division at An Khe, 55 miles east of Pleiku.

Prior to the CAV's arrival, An Khe had only one bar for its population of perhaps 1,000. Now An Khe is a garish soldier town with 91 bars, many of which serve what the troops call "boom boom parlors."

Inflation has come with a vengeance. Prices in many instances are double those of Saigon. A beer or a soft drink costs 50 piasters, a package of cigarettes 60.

Few Get Leaves

Most of the troopers don't get much time in town. When Spec. 4 Clarence Wayne of Columbus, Ga., got a few hours he said:

"I'm just going to sit and rest and drink a couple of beers.

"Last time I was in town I bought silk jackets for my four-year-old boy and seven-year-old daughter."

Pvt. Rene Coutrure of Fitchburg, Mass., is an infantryman in the 1st Battalion of the 12th Cavalry. His outfit has been almost constantly in the field or on camp perimeters guard since it arrived in September.

His comments on his presence here reflect those made by many soldiers and Marines:

"Some people back home seem to think this is a civil war. They ought to have seen those dead PAVN (People's Army of North Viet Nam). This is no civil war. This is an invasion and we're here to stop it."

Pfc. Kenneth Otey of Washington D.C., wondered if he is going to benefit from a GI bill of rights as did the veterans of Korea and World War II.

The 6-foot-2 225-pounder is a military policeman patrolling the muddy streets of An Khe. He once worked in a Washington hospital.

Likes Medical Field

"I got in two years of college before I was drafted and I sure would like to go back and make something of myself in the medical field," he said. "If not a doctor, maybe I could be a dentist or get into lab work."

Of his off-duty hours Otey said: "I just cool it. I sit down and have a soft drink. I don't drink beer or whisky ... and watch the GIs' antics."

Spec. 4 Johnnie Culbertson, a radio operator in the 1st Battalion, 8th Cavalry, frequently worries about his feet, as all good infantrymen worry.

On a sweep with his battalion the 19-year-old trooper from South Plainfield, N.J., remarked: "When you've walked though these rice paddies in the rain for a few days, your feet look like the hands of some housewife who's been washing dishes for too long. All white and shriveled up."

Pfc. Melvin Canady worried about his feet, too, for he does a lot of walking. Canady is a member of the 88th Military Police Detachment ... canine.

The Borger, Tex., native spends his nights being tugged along by a German shepherd dog around the barbed wire perimeter of an Army helicopter squadron camp at Ban Me Thuot in the central highlands.

What does he do in off-duty hours?

Town Off-Limits

"Nothing," Canady said. "There's nothing to do. The town's off-limits."

Spec. 5s A.J. Defleron of Mobile, Ala., and Theron Capps of Columbus, Ga., both are in a proud outfit ... 1st Squadron of the 9th Cavalry. This is the real cavalry unit of the 1st Cavalry Division, the men who do the scouting and reconnaissance by helicopter or on foot in picket lines.

In the Ia Drang Valley they wiped out more than a company of North Vietnamese regulars.

Defleron and Capps make a pair of tough professional soldiers. Capps said: "We're going to head up north toward the border soon and see if we can get them Charlies to shoot at us. Want to go along?"

One young GI escaped the mud, heat, cold, dust, and all the rest.

As he plodded along, one man among three battalions of Americans, a Viet Cong sniper fired one shot.

Maj. Jay Zabriskie, who used to be an obstetrician in Salt Lake City, Utah, but now is commander of C Company, 15th Medical Battalion, 1st Cav, examined him at a field hospital and said:

"I'm afraid there isn't much we can do for this boy."

The medics in the hospital tent pulled blanket over the face.

That was how one GI died in Viet Nam.

African Art Shown At English Gallery

OXFORD, England (AP) — The new art gallery of the Pitt Rivers Museum opened with an exhibition called "Art from the Guinea Coast." It consists of 120 specimens of West African work in bronze, terra cotta and wood carving.

Art flourished in Africa between the third century before Christ and A.D. 200.

The American victory at New Orleans, coming after the War of 1812 was over, had far-reaching effects, historians say. They say it hastened ratification of the peace treaty, increased the prestige of a new nation, gave Americans confidence in their military powers and encouraged the growth of national unity.

THE ALMANAC:
Today In History

Today is Sunday, Jan. 9, the ninth day of 1966 with 356 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

The morning star is Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mars, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born today are under the sign of Capricorn. Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon was born on this day in 1913.

On this day in history:

In 1788, Connecticut ratified the Constitution and was admitted to the Union as the fifth state.

In 1793, the first successful balloon flight in the U.S. was made by Jean Pierre Blanchard over Philadelphia.

In 1945, American troops invaded Luzon in the Philippines, fulfilling Gen. Douglas MacArthur's pledge, "I shall return."

In 1964, rioting flared between Panamanians and Americans in the Panama Canal Zone, resulting in six deaths and 91 injuries.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt said: "Eternal truths will be neither true nor eternal unless they have fresh meaning for every social situation."

GAVE LEGENDARY PARTIES

Dry Hole Byrd Of Dallas Is "Most Typical Oilman To Come Down The Pike"

D. HAROLD BYRD

DALLAS (AP) —He doesn't wear cowboy boots to the office or a 10-gallon hat to a cocktail party, but big-spending, big-talking Harold Byrd personifies the Texas oil millionaire.

"Dry Hole" Byrd was one of that lusty breed which Texas' oil made wildly wealthy almost overnight.

In his 65 years, Byrd has spent one fortune, given away another and through shrewd investments and hard work, accumulated still more.

"Byrd is the most typical oilman to come down the pike," said James Ling, a business associate and fellow millionaire.

The tales of Texas millionaires have made Byrd a trifle gun shy about his wealth.

Something Over Million

"Just say it's something over a million," he hedged at an interview. "After I get through paying my debts, damned if I know."

The oilman is either chairman, director or partner of 46 enterprises with holdings in aerospace, real estate, building, manufacturing, and, of course, oil and gas.

"I've diversified a bit," Byrd drawled, his feet on his cluttered desk.

The large, balding millionaire with his diamond-studded Shriners' pin little resembles the broke young geologist who left the University of Texas to scour the state for oil 35 years ago.

"I'd work from 12 at night to 12 noon and in the off-hours I did contract driving," Byrd recalled.

He hit 56 dry holes, accounting for his nickname. Then his ramshackle rig brought in a gusher.

Between wildcatting, he met and married Martha Caruth, an independently wealthy Dallas debutante in 1935.

Not Always Steady

"We couldn't get married until the East Texas oil field came in," Mrs. Byrd said. "The oil fields were my finishing school."

Success was sure, but not always steady.

In the late 30s, Byrd bought leases to 750,000 acres of Nebraska land, looking for oil. A telegram from a man in the field reported the drilling results:

"Granite. Coming home."

"He'd drilled me a dry hole with 750,000 acres around it," Byrd recalled. "If that had come in, I would have been bigger than Standard Oil."

Without Nebraska, Byrd has managed to afford two Dallas mansions, a yacht, planes, ranches and 14-carat gold-plated fixtures in his office lavatory.

His cocktail parties after the Texas-Oklahoma football games here each October are legendary.

Up to 1,700 persons attended and invitations by long distance telephone took two months to issue. Byrd's latest hunting foray provided the food — usually elk, deer and Texas Longhorn. The parties ended in 1960 after a 12-year run.

Byrd's parties have attracted a host of celebrities, including two Presidents, Lyndon Johnson and Harry Truman.

Byrd had just returned from his second African safari when interviewed. He called attention to a thread-size bracelet entwining his thick wrist.

"This is made from an elephant's tail. The witch doctor told me it would bring good luck. I'll never take it off."

While he was gone, Mrs. Byrd built a trophy room addition to their 18-room town house.

He returned to Africa to shoot a lion, a roan antelope, three elephants and a hippopatomus.

The enormous trophy room already houses two stuffed polar bears, shot on an Arctic expedition, heads of elk, deer, wart hogs and the hide of a zebra.

Filled With Curios

The mansion is filled with treasures and curios picked up on the Byrd's world travels. They range from a trinket with Jordan River water to a magnificent maharajah's elephant seat.

They are building another addition to hold more souvenirs with a corner for Byrd's art studio. He has just discovered he likes to paint.

The three acres of grounds around the house are conventionally lovely, but past marble statues, behind the servants' quarters and the multi-Cadillac garage, is a wire-enclosed shed.

A small, black and white donkey, named Hotshot, lives there.

A friend loaded him on Byrd's plane when he was visiting his ranch a year ago.

"He said you shouldn't fly home all alone. You should have another jackass to keep you company," Byrd related.

The Byrds stay in the town mansion and use the other home, "our country place," primarily for entertaining. It features bowling alleys and an artificial lake.

Has Two Sons

Their two sons, Harold Jr., 28, and Caruth, 24, are married. Neither has joined his father in business. Harold is in homebuilding and Caruth has an import enterprise.

Vitally interested in flying, Byrd is a co-founder of the Civil Air Patrol and has owned 58 planes. His bust in the Smithsonian Institution commemorates his contributions to aviation.

One of his prize possessions is an American flag which his cousin, Adm. Richard Byrd, flew over the South Pole. Byrd helped finance the admiral's Antarctic expeditions and has a craggy mountain range named for him. He flew over the range himself last year.

Byrd hopes to cut down on his activities, but admits to still doing a little wildcatting, drilling three dry holes last year.

Re-Evaluation Slated In Garza

POST (Special) — The Garza County commissioners' court has voted for a re-evaluation of property, the first in more than 30 years, for tax equalization purposes.

The commisioners' court plans to employ a tax evaluation firm for the job within the next few weeks and get under way with the re-evaluation "as soon as possible," County Judge J. E. Parker said.

Judge Parker said the county auditor has advised the court to re-evaluate property for the last two or three years, but that up to this time the county has been trying to "hold the line."

Re-evaluation is seen as a way out of the county's current financial dilemma, which has been brought on mainly by drops in oil valuations the last three years, officials said.

In addition to voting for a re-evaulation of taxable property, the commissioners' court also voted to borrow $75,000 from the First National Bank here, through the issuance of time warrants, to tide the county's general fund through most of 1966.

Open House Event Slated At Stanton

STANTON (Special) — "Open House and Community Night" will be held in Stanton Jan. 17 by Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., according to Harry Sawyer, telephone company manager here. The local telephone building will be open from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m., he said.

G'enn Scott, science demonstrator of Dallas will be the speaker at 7:45 p.m. The program is entitled, "Information On The Move."

The Science Club and the Future Physicians Club of Stanton High School will serve refreshments following the program. The public is invited.

WASTE IS EXPOSED

Billions Of Rats In India Eating Grain

By JOE MCGOWAN JR

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The millions of tons of wheat the United States sends to India this year will not equal the amount of grain devoured by India's unchecked hordes of rats.

A Health Ministry report estimates India has 2.4 billion rats — five for each of the country's 480 million persons. It estimates the rats eat more than 26 million tons of cereal grains each year.

The grain lost to rats would not only be enough to remove the present threat of famine, but would transform India into a food-surplus nation.

Production Slashed

Widespread drought during 1965 slashed crop production, leaving India short by an estimated 14 million tons of grain.

President Johnson has ordered the emergency shipment of 1.5 million tons of wheat, to reach India by February. Indian officials confidently expect the United States to ship up to 15 million tons of surplus wheat to India this year.

Even in good years, however, Indian farmers are unable to produce enough food for the rapidly expanding human population, not to mention vast numbers of rats, monkeys, sacred cows and other animals.

During 1964, when India had a record crop of 88 million tons of grain, she still had to import 6.7 million tons of surplus wheat from the United States.

The influential Times of India, in praising the United States for its offer of emergency shipments of wheat, criticized authorities at home for not taking steps to halt what it called "colossal national waste."

Destroyed In Field

Quoting from a government research institute report, the newspaper said as much as a fourth of the food produced in India is destroyed in the field by rodents and other pests.

It added that "defective storage, transport, processing and handling account for a further loss of 25 per cent."

"In the context of the present shortages it would indeed be inexcusable folly if food that could be easily made available for human consumption were allowed to go to waste," the paper declared.

The Health Ministry last March appointed an advisory committee on rodent control. It has met but once.

Asks For Reports

Dr. K. C. Patnaik, committee secretary, says the group has asked state and local organizations for reports on their control programs. On-the-spot studies will then be made and a report will be filed with the Ministry of Health.

Patnaik envisions an eventual nationwide network of depots for distribution of poisons and information on rodent control.

One stumbling block is the reluctance of many Indians to kill any living thing. This attitude stems from a variety of religions or beliefs, including the Ahims — nonviolence — cult of the Buddhists and the common Hindu belief in transmigration of souls wherein a human may be reborn an animal or insect.

Methodist Study Focuses On Missions In January

Numerous Methodist churches will emphasize mission study during January and some will have visiting speakers today and in succeeding weeks.

The Rev. Lennart Blomquist, missionary to Southern Rhodesia, will preach in worship services at 8:30 a.m. and 10:55 a.m. today at Asbury Methodist Church, 20th St. and Ave. T; to intermediate, senior and college young people at 6 p.m., following supper at 5:30 p.m. at St. John's Methodist Church 15th St. and College Ave., and in the worship service at 7 p.m. at St. John's Church. Following the night service, he and his wife will be honored at a coffee to be given by the Commission on Missions in Fellowship Garden at St. John's Church.

Here On Furlough

The Rev. Mr. Blomquist is district superintendent of Methodist mission work in Southern Rhodesia. Under his supervision numerous schools have been started. He is a native of Sweden. Part of his support in mission work is given by the churches in which he will speak today. While in the United States on furlough, he is staying in Big Spring. He will return to Southern Rhodesia in the early summer.

St. John's Church also will emphasize missions in the morning service, in which the pastor, the Rev. Mark Williams, will preach on "Called to Mission".

The Rev. L. Cato Edwards, who was a missionary to India about 35 years and returned to his home country of England in 1955 to have charge of the Old Rectory at Epworth, will present the program at an All-Church Family Night covered dish supper at St. John's Church at 6:30 p.m. Monday. He has had charge of restoration of the Old Rectory. He will speak and show slides, "The Wesleys Speak to the Church of Today." The Rev. Mr. Edwards is on a speaking tour in this country.

Miss Sommerville Speaks

Miss Barbara Sommerville, director of the Guadalupe Neighborhood Center in Lubbock and a deaconess in the Methodist Church, will speak at 5:30 p.m. at the opening session of Methodist Mission Study in Memorial Hall of First Methodist Church, Broadway and Ave. M. "The Congregation Seeks New Forms" will be the theme of the study. Miss Sommerville will lead adult church members in considering ideas of the text, "Claimed by God for Missions," by Eugene L. Stockwell. Tonight's meeting will be the first in a series of four Sunday night sessions. Cecil Flynn is chairman of the Commission on Missions and E. Paul Baker is vice chairman and leader in planning the study.

Mrs. C. C. Art Of Living

IT'S NOT FAR FROM DEFEAT TO VICTORY

A YOUNG WOMAN ASKED if I could spare her a few minutes. "I'm just about ready to give up," she said. "A year ago my husband was killed in an accident. I adored him—and then just like that he was gone. Then before I was over the shock of my husband's death, my little boy was burned by hot grease from a stove and I don't know if he'll ever get well. To add to all my problems my money is running out fast.

PEALE

"The insurance company will not pay my husband's life insurance because the policy lapsed two months before his death. And as if I don't have trouble enough, the store where I work burned down and I haven't found a steady job since. So there's the nice little situation I am in," she concluded with a forced smile. "What advice do you have for me?"

"If I were you," I said, "the first thing I'd do in such a situation would be to pray."

"But how can praying, just praying, help?"

"The primary thing," I said, "is to know how to think about the gang-up of troubles. Prayer helps clear your thinking and it provides the moral force to overcome them. So what do you say we do some praying right now."

When I had finished a brief prayer aloud, she followed with a most touching prayer of her own. Drawing a long breath, she had a surprisingly different look about her. There seemed to be a sudden inner relaxation and relief. "What do you think you should do next?" I then asked, hoping some insight had come to her on her own.

She replied, "While I was praying I got an idea. I'm going to get to the manager at the insurance company, no matter what!" She had tried repeatedly to see the manager but the receptionist had brushed her off, evidently taking her for a crank—or perhaps she had looked at the file and, seeing the policy had lapsed, decided on her own that there was no point in bothering the boss.

WELL, AFTER HER TALK with me the young widow again tried to get past this iron curtain-type receptionist. Again she failed. But now she had a determination not to accept defeat. So daily she went back and asked again, until finally one day she arrived when the receptionist was momentarily out and no one was covering the reception desk. Catching a glimpse of the manager through the half-open door she walked right in and sat beside the desk. "I'm sorry to intrude," she said, "but I've prayed that I could see you and here I am. Prayer works."

The man looked as though he had a crackpot on his hands. But he listened attentively as she told her story. He got out her husband's file. "I'll study this," he said. "Come back tomorrow."

The next day he informed her, "The company definitely has no legal obligation to pay on your husband's policy. But I do think there's a moral obligation. I'm going to recommend that we pay in full. Is there anything else I can do for you?"

"Well, you might help me get proper medical treatment for my little boy." She told this kindly insurance man about the grease burns. And in a few days he had located a doctor who agreed to take the case regardless of how little the distressed young mother would be able to pay.

WHEN SHE RETURNED to the insurance office some days later to report that her son's condition was improved and express her gratitude, the man again asked, "Is there any other way I could be helpful?"

She hesitated, then admitted that she needed a job. He gave her a letter of introduction to a store. She was hired at once. She went back to thank her insurance man for making the job possible. Three or four months had now passed since she first met him, during which time they had talked at his office or by telephone perhaps a dozen times in all. Apparently he was very impressed, for once more he asked if there was anything else he might do. "Oh, no," she answered. "And thank you again so very much for all you've done."

"Well, then," he said, not mincing words, "there's something you can do for me. You're a widow, I'm a widower. Will you marry me?"

That certainly is one of the most remarkable happy endings in all my experience with people and their problems. But even if the clearing up of the woman's difficulties had not led to marriage, it would still be plenty impressive.

When you're in a bad way, beset with big problems coming at you all at once and no solutions in sight and you feel like giving up, you may still bring victory from defeat by trying this woman's method. Take a cue also from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz who said, "God grant me the courage not to give up on what I think is right even though I think it is hopeless." The distance from defeat to victory is often only a few determined steps of faith and perseverance.

HISTORIC MEMENTO

Torn Flag Captured By Mexican Army At Alamo In Museum Of Castle

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The shredded and decaying battle flag captured by Santa Anna at the Alamo during the Texas War of Independence is the only one of its kind retained by Mexico, the head of the National Museum of History says.

Others were captured during this war — probably a dozen or more—but all except the Alamo flag were burned or discarded a half century ago, says Antonio Arriaga Ochoa.

Arriaga Ochoa is director of the museum, located in famed Chapultepec Castle, a post he has held for 12 years.

Several recent attempts have been made to persuade Mexico to return the flag to Texas.

The Alamo flag, captured March 6, 1836, by Mexican troops, is shredded and torn.

On it are the words, "First Company of Texan Volunteers of New-Orleans." Under the figure of an eagle are the words, "God and Liberty."

It is about 45 inches long and almost 34 inches wide. It is pale blue on a crude cotton satin base and has a gold metallic fringe. It is in bad shape.

Two other battle flags — captured 11 years later near Angustura, in Sinaloa, Mexico, are retained. They apparently were taken from Texas troops fighting in the Mexican War in which the United States took part.

They are the flag of the "Galveston Invincibles" and a Texas flag, one of the first of its kind with the single star and two bars.

History Recalled

A fourth flag was taken from filibusters in another battle in 1857 in the state of Sonora. It is known as the "Caborca Flag" and has nothing to do with the Texas rebellion or the subsequent United States - Mexican War.

Shortly after Texas voted its independence March 1, 1836, Mexico took quick steps to break up what it called the insurrection.

President Santa Anna — who served as President six times—was elected to head the expedition into Texas with what was called a "plentiful" army.

He won over a smaller force at the Alamo and then swept through Texas before being routed by Sam Houston's army at San Jacinto April 21, 1836.

Santa Anna Blamed

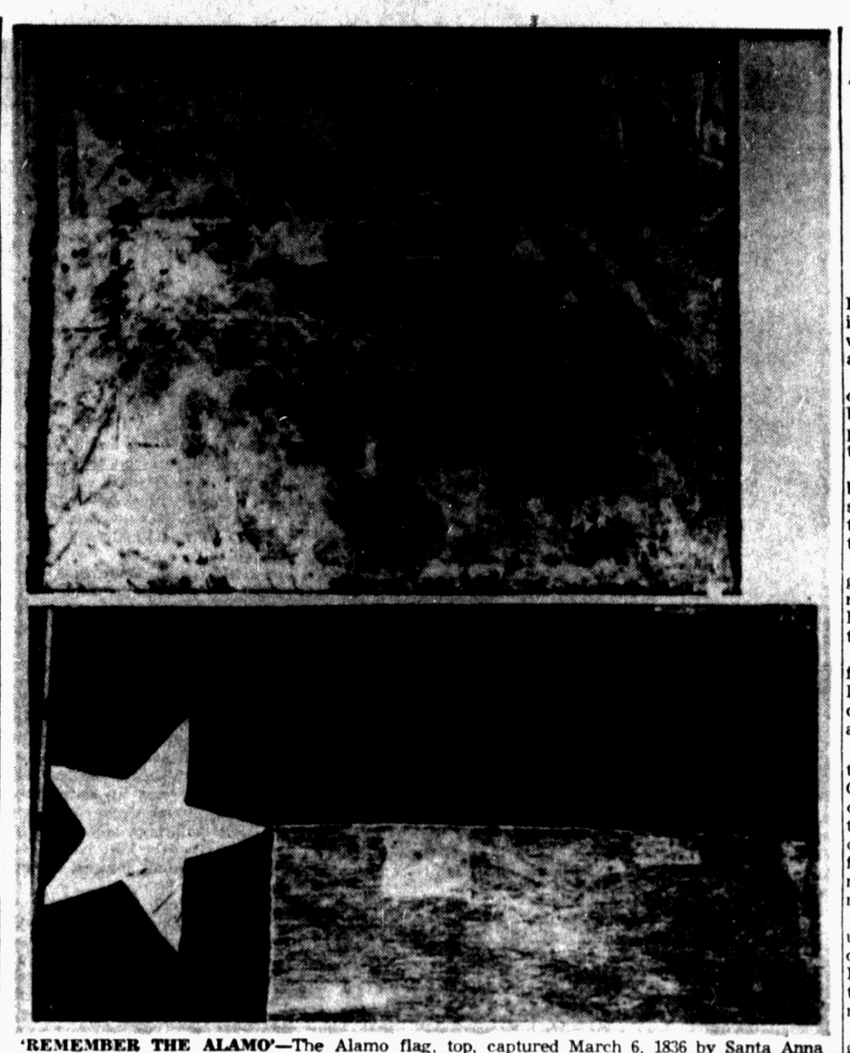
In a formal statement, Arriaga Ochoa said Santa Anna's "clumsiness, ignorance and inhuman acts" at the Alamo created the Texas battle cry of "Remember the Alamo" and made impossible any agreements.

Other flags were taken by Santa Anna in victories at Refugio, Coleto Creek, Goliad, Coporo, Villa Gonzalez, San Patricio, Agua Dulce and other places.

But, says Arriaga Ochoa, most were burned or discarded around 1917 when the old Museum of Artillery was dismantled. Many of its contents were destroyed, among them the battle flags.

Most of the flags were in shreds even then, he says.

Arriaga Ochoa says positively that there are no other Texas flags in Mexico.



'REMEMBER THE ALAMO'—The Alamo flag, top, captured March 6, 1836 by Santa Anna during the Texas War of Independence, is shredded and decaying. On it are the words, "First Company of Texas Volunteers of New Orleans." Under the figure of an eagle are the words, "God and Liberty." It is about 45 inches long and almost 34 inches wide. It is pale blue on a crude cotton satin base and has a gold metallic fringe. Another battle flag, bottom, a Texas flag, one of the first of its kind with the single star and two bars, was captured 11 years later near Angustura, in Sinaloa, Mexico, apparently taken from Texas troops fighting in the Mexican war in which United States took part. Billy Graham:

My Answer

QUESTION: I am tortured by evil thoughts and have sought to be free of them. If the Holy Spirit lives in ones heart and the person is born again, should that person be tempted by evil thoughts? How can I be completely free from temptation?

H. H. B.

ANSWER: Temptation is something no person has ever escaped. It is even written of our Lord who was sinless; "He was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." Heb. 4:15

GRAHAM

You say you are tortured by evil thoughts — so was the Savior. "He was . . . tempted like as we are." You are assailed by Satanic suggestion. So was the Savior. Satan at the great temptation in the wilderness, tried every trick to tempt Him, and there is no doubt that his wiles were appealing, and yet the Bible says, "He was without sin."

To be Christlike in this world is not to be free from temptation. It is to be tempted in every way, and yet through Christ, rise victoriously over it. To be Christlike is to be "tempted in every point, yet without sin."

Evil thoughts come to the best of men, but the Christian leans hard on the Scriptures which say: "There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that which you are able; but will with the temptation also make a way of escape, that ye may be able to bear it." I Cor. 10:13.

Temptation is Satan knocking at the door, but we don't need to invite him in.

BITTER PILLS

Inflation War Is Criticized In Argentina

By ISAAC A. LEVI

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Arturo Illia's administration has declared all-out war against inflation and aroused severe criticism.

It is bitter medicine which the onetime country doctor, who became president in 1963, is prescribing for fellow Argentines in 1966. He has announced:

Increased taxes to balance the budget, restrict petroleum consumption and to keep this country's foreign trade balance in the black;

A 15 per cent maximum guideline on all new increases negotiated, hopefully to keep the lid down on industrial production costs in 1966.

Opposition congressmen are furious at the new policy, union leaders threaten massive walkouts, and the man in the street appears apprehensive.

The new levies, contained in the budget for 1966 presented to Congress, range from a 10 per cent excise sales tax on Argentine-made whisky and a 25 per cent surtax on soft drinks to a flat 50,000 pesos ($266) duty on new passports valid for six months.

Even then, the budget will end up $597 million in the red, and opposition politicians accuse Illia of not having done anything to cut costs or trim the government's top-heavy bureaucracy.

They point to losses from Argentina's state-owned railways, overstaffed and underequipped, which account for roughly half the budget deficit planned for 1966.

Union leaders call the government's 15 per cent wage guideline ridiculous. They quote official figures to show the cost of living went up more than 25 per cent in 1965.

"What the government lacks is planning," says Luis Angeleri, head of the Light and Power Workers Union and a top leader of the powerful General Confederation of Labor.

The confederation claims a membership of two million and is dominated by followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron.

Critics point to the petroleum shortage caused by Illia's cancellation of private company oil contracts two years ago. This is forcing the government to up gasoline and other liquid fuel retail prices and contribute to higher living costs.

Yacimientos Petroliferos Fiscales, the government oil monopoly, has not been able to keep up with increased demand. Argentina was forced to spend $110 million to import oil in 1965.

Pressing debts abroad inherited from previous administrations, combined with internal production costs, have been eroding Argentina's currency.

Illia devalued the peso 26 per cent on the official market in 1965 — from 150 to 188 per U.S. dollar. Some businessmen advocate a further devaluation to 210 pesos if the government wants to keep wheat, meat and wool export prices competitive on the international market.

For two years, the Illia administration has banked on record grain crops to keep Argentina's foreign trade surplus above $300 million annually. Bad weather and shorter sowings drastically reduced this season's wheat yield and with it all hopes of similar high foreign currency earnings in 1966.

Congregation Plans Reading Of Entire Bible During 1966

The congregation of Grace Church of the Nazarene, 4537 34th St., plans to read the entire Bible during 1966 and the pastor, the Rev. E. Wales Lankford, will use the weekly reading references as scriptural basis for sermons.

Scriptural references for each week's reading are to include both Old Testament and New Testament verses.

Devotional Scripture reading in mid-week prayer meetings also will come from the reference for the week. Some of the midweek services will include questions and discussion from the portion of Scripture read.

A different laymen is to read Scripture in each of the major services each week.

Those who completed the first week's Scripture references listed in the year's study guide received red and blue marking pencils to mark passages. At end of the year, recognition will be given to those completing the reading of the Bible.

The congregation's emphasis on reading the entire Bible comes on the 150th anniversary year of the America Bible Society, which has proclaimed this year as the "Year of the Bible."

'Subject Was Roses' Drama Visits Lubbock Today

Only Performance Slated For 3 P.M.

The Pulitzer Prize - winning drama, "The Subject Was Roses" will be presented by Civic Lubbock, Inc. for one performance only at 3 p.m. today in the Lubbock Municipal Auditorium.

The play, written by Frank D. Gilroy, stars Dennis O'Keefe, Liz Ross and Peter Duryea, and was called "The Best American Play of the Year" by the New York Drama Critics' Circle, and was the only dramatic play of the 1964-65 season to win the unanimous rave reviews of the Broadway critics.

FRANK D. GILROY

With simplicity, humor, and integrity, "The Subject Was Roses" looks into the hearts of three decent people and discovers, by letting them discover, the feelings that divide and join them. Timmy Cleary (Peter Duryea) 21, comes home from the Army to find he has grown away from his parents (Dennis O'Keefe and Liz Ross) just as they have grown away from each other. In his absence, he has not only matured but grown independent and can now appraise the family relationships with a fresh and objective eye.

Written By Gilroy

The author of the play is Frank D. Gilroy who made an auspicious theater debut when his "Who'll Save the Plowboy?" was presented at the Phoenix Theatre in New York City in 1962. Winner of an "Obie" as the Best American Play of the Year off Broadway, "Who'll Save the Plowboy?" was published by Random House and has enjoyed numerous productions both in the United States and abroad.

"The Subject Was Roses" marks Gilroy's debut as a Broadway playwright. A product of television's Golden Age, he has written for such shows as Playhouse 90, Studio One, U.S. Steel, Omnibus and Kraft Theater.

He was born and educated in the Bronx, New York. He graduated from high school and entered the Army at 18. He served two and a half years with the 89th Infantry Division, including 18 months in the European Theater. He attended Dartmouth College and a grant from Dartmouth enabled him to attend the Yale Drama School for one year. He is 39 and lives in upstate New York with wife and three sons.

Directed By Leaf

The director, Paul Leaf, works in both theater and films. He has been associated with more than 15 Broadway shows in various capacities, among them "The Tenth Man," "Once More, with Feeling," "Say, Darling," "Too Late the Phalarope," "A Gift of Time" and "The Subject Was Roses." He has also directed "End as a Man" and Kafka's "The Trial" in Stuttgart, Germany where he was a scholarship painting student, as well "Stalag 17" and "Night Must Fall." His summer stock credits include directorial assignments in Westport, Conn., Bucks County, Pa., and Kennebunkport, Me.

Off-Broadway he produced "Murder in the Cathedral," "The Rehearsal," "Lady in the Dark" and "On the Town." With Alan Arkin he produced two short films of his own, "The Anatomy of Candy Fink" and "The Last Mohican." He was assistant director of "Love with a Proper Stranger" and has directed "The Nurses" and "The Defenders."

Good seats remain for today's "Subject Was Roses" performance. Available at the Lubbock Auditorium lobby box office they are priced at $4.50, $4 and $3.50, lower floor; and $4.50, $3.50, $3 and $2.50, balcony.

AUTHOR HONORED—Tom Jones, not the fictional character but a star in his own right, is shown standing above as he visited with his mother and close relatives recently. Shown left to right with the author of "The Fantasticks!" are an uncle, Quentin Bellamy; his wife, Ellie; his mother, Mrs. Jessie Jones, formerly with the Sherick Home of Lubbock; (Jones) and an aunt, Mrs. Walter Ford, all of Littlefield. Leal Mack Art Is Notable For Feel Of Horses

Now on view at the Collector Gallery, The Baker Co. ,13th and Ave. L, is some of the representative work by Western artist Leal Mack.

Mack was born at Titusville, Pa., in 1892. The artist visited New Mexico many times through his early years and finally made Taos his permanent home with his family in 1944. He studied at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and then with the famed painter and illustrator, N. C. Wyeth.

Illustrated Magazines

For 17 years he illustrated stories for such famous magazines as The Saturday Evening Post, Country Gentleman, American Boy, Redbook and many others.

The artist's paintings usually reflect another love—horses. Almost every painting for years has included at least one horse. A resident of Taos recently said, "Leal Mack was an extremely modest man and shunned publicity. His paintings sold well in spite of the fact that he did so little to promote himself as an artist."

Did Much Research

While Mack often remarked most paintings were from memory, usually the eastern rural scenes for which he was most famous, he often did painstaking research in his extensive library that included many first editions and many volumes on early America. The research led to many scenes of the early west.

The following statements were taken from an interview shortly before his death in 1962:

"Race horses don't interest me. I regard them as brainless running machines to trap the unwary. Work horses are another thing. This country could not have been built without them, and in a great many of my pictures they play a prominent part. They are not always pretty horses and the men I paint who work with them are not pretty but I know the horses and the men. I was raised among them and worked with them or, at least, men and horses of similar type and my respect for them has kept me working for over 40 years to tell their story to the best of my ability.

Must Be Accurate

"Some of my pictures are from personal experience. Some passed into history before I was born. I have to reconstruct these from personal accounts or from research in old books. I make them as accurate as I can. Incidents change but the men and horses remain true to type. The landscape doesn't change much either and I try to put the right characters in the right places. Clydesdale and Percherons were not common in cow camps and cow ponies don't graze on Pennsylvania hills.

"I did illustrations for 15 years. Have exhibited in most of the places that artists do exhibit. Have had my share of compliments and success and a sufficient amount of criticism and hard knocks to keep me in my place."

SHE WON—Her long wait for a role about which she felt strongly is paying off for Joan Diener, seen here as the scullion in "Man of La Mancha." It is a musical based on "Don Quixote," which is a hit of the Broadway season.

MOAN DIENER IS TOPS

Musical Star Bounces Back With Smashing New Entry

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Everything's coming up roses for Joan Diener, the girl who ran away.

Absent from the Broadway scene 10 years, Miss Diener is back now in a musical which slipped modestly into town and became a hit.

"I quit because I was determined I wasn't going to be a Hollywood blonde of a certain kind," says the singer-dancer-actress. Type-casting drove her into exile.

She dyed her flaxen tresses a deep brunette — "I feel better" — went off to European concert and opera halls, and resisted occasional twinges about a return to the bright lights of show biz.

"I'm glad I did stick to that decision about not taking a job simply to keep busy, but to wait until something came along about which I had a strong feeling."

Heartily endorsing her procedure are spectators thronging to the Anta Washington Square Theater to see "Man of La Mancha," in which Miss Diener shares the stage with an impressive trio of male singers - Richard Kiley, Ray Middleton and Robert Rouseville.

As the scullion-princess in this retelling of Cervantes' "Don Quixote," she won critical raves. Her handling of the role's complex vocal, dramatic and physical requirements make her a prime contender for next spring's acting awards.

"It's physically strenuous but I seem to thrive on it," Miss Diener reports. At the peak of the performance comes a rough-and-tumble melee from which she must speedily emerge and, in a sharp change of emotional mood, become the gentle Dulcinea of her rusty knight's fevered fantasy."

The characterization affords a remarkable contrast to her most renowned previous role — the one that started all the type-casting fuss — of a brassy, lusty Oriental enchantress in "Kismet."

"I'm really not that type at all," proclaims the former psychology major at Sarah Lawrence College.

Her "Kismet" stint began in 1953, three years after Miss Diener won a Tony trophy as an outstanding new talent in "Season in the Sun."

The lissome star continued with "Kismet" for a couple of London years, and followed with parts in three productions that never reached Broadway.

"In 1959 my husband and I reached a grand decision," she says. "Although I need, want and should work — it's a lot easier on my family at such times — we agreed there would be no more roles unless I found something to care keenly about."

Her husband of 10 years is Albert Marre, whom she met when he directed "Kismet." They have two children, a daughter, 8 and a boy, 5. In Europe Miss Diener was active in the operatic field.

"There is much more opportunity in Europe for a performer to do a variety of things than here," she said, explaining her extended sojourns across the Atlantic.

The "Man of la Mancha" project was undertaken by Marre in 1962. "But it wasn't until about a year ago my husband said, 'I think there's a part in it you should do.'"

"I didn't want it to become a husband-and wife problem," she says. "So I said I would do it only if everyone involved wanted me.

"A good many singers were tried, and when it came my turn, I asked for a full-scale audition without my husband being there."

Miss Diener describes what it is like for a performer to work for a spouse.

"He's very rough on me in rehearsal but I enjoy working for him. People somehow marvel at the politeness of our relationship.

"You can't, of course, really leave a show at the stage door. But in rehearsal he works 18 hours a day, so we don't have much opportunity for after-hour discussion of a show."

Tech Play To Be Presented On Jan. 28-31

T. S. Eliot's "The Confidential Clerk," a comedy exploring the difference between the abilities and that ambitions of the characters involved, has been cast as the second production for the season of the University Theater at Texas Tech.

Production dates for the play are Jan. 28-31. Tickets may be reserved by calling the Theater Box office, POrter 2-8811, ext. 2154.

"The Confidential Clerk" was first presented in August and September, 1953, at the Edinburgh Festival in Scotland. A successful production followed in New York in 1954 with a distinguished cast including Claude Rains, Douglas Watson, Joan Greenwood, Aline MacMahon and Ina Claire, who was praised for her brilliant comedy in the role of Lady Elizabeth.

In the cast are Perry Langenstein as Sir Claude Mulhammer; Kathleen Graw as his wife, Lady Elizabeth; Bif Painter as Eggerson; Truman Dunaboo as Colby Simpkins, the confidential clerk; Al Strengi as B. Kaghan; Linda White as Lucasta Angel; and Janice Tidwell as Mrs. Guzzard.

The play is under the direction of Ronald Schulz. The set, designed by Joe Skotrepa, is being executed under the direction of Clifford Ashby, theater technical director.

Area Writer Judged Winner With Article

WHITHARRAL — (Special) — Mrs. Rafe (Nilah) Rodgers of Whitharral has been named a winner in the Writer's Digest annual article writing contest, placing fourth with an article "Let Us Smoke Lettuce."

Mrs. Rodgers was contacted by Richard Rosenthal, publisher of the national magazine, this week. Her entry was one of many entered in this year's competition.

Mrs. Rodgers' entry will be given a brief synopsis along with the other top 10 and the remainder of the 200 winners will be listed in the next issue of the magazine.

The article is about the new lettuce smokes, the nicotine-free "cigarettes" being produced in Hereford. Mrs. Rodgers interviewed Puzant Torigan, president, developer and chemist of Bravo Smokes in September.

As one of the top 10 winners, national publications will be interested in the article and she has a better than average chance to sell the article to a magazine with a large circulation.

Writer's Digest selected a manuscript typing expert who will professionally type 100,000 words for Mrs. Rodgers.

Mrs. Rodgers was associate editor of the Levelland Daily Sun-News before her resignation in mid-July. She has had several magazine articles published and writes features and is correspondent for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

First War Is Recalled With Vivid Clarity

Still Quiet On the Western Front 50 Years Later, by Gene Smith, with Introduction by S. L. A. Marshall (William Morrow & Co., New York City, $5.75)

Gene Smith, who is remembered for his excellent book on the last years of Woodrow Wilson, "When the Cheering Stopped," has written an absorbing nostalgic, tragic 197-page book that takes the reader on a tour of the fields of battle, the cemeteries, the monuments of the Western Front of World War I.

There is a lucid and easily-read text and is text is embellished by excellent then-and-now photographs and by stark, charcoal drawings to complement the written word.

Starting with the death of "two boys," a Frenchman and a German an Joncherey on Aug. 2, 1914, Smith covers the awful carnage of the war that was to make the world safe for democracy. He covers Le Moulin de la Caille, Verdun, the Dugout of the Crown Prince, Belleau Wood, the Somme, Ypres and the Menin Gate.

His small, vivid vignettes are at once sentimental and bitterly ironic as he moves along his 2,000-mile retracing of the 400 mile front, noting the still rusting and rotting barbed wire, the old guns, the shells, the trench emplacements, the stripped horror of 50 years that the land has never recovered from in many instances.

The book is powerful in its impact, because it attempts to do little that conduct a "tour" of the area. The messages are there for the reader to take, if he wishes.

President Johnson proposes to convert the polluted Potomac into a "model of scenic and recreational values for the entire country." The historic river that flows by the nation's capital is contaminated by sewage, mine acids, industrial wastes, sludge and silt.

Sheridan's Ride

By Jack Sheridan

Avalanche-Journal Fine Arts Editor

The moment one sees him one can pick him out of the crowd for what he is; if he were to apply for the role of a writer or theatrical personage in the casting of a play, he'd win the role hands down without an audition, he looks the part.

"He" in this instance, is a Littlefield native son. Tom Jones, the writer whose book and lyrics have already made their mark in the American theater with the still-running (five years plus) "The Fantasticks" and the Broadway musical "110 in the Shade" and the upcoming new Mary Martin musical slated for early fall of 1966, "I Do, I Do."

Jones was in and around the area with lightning speed during the holiday season, principally to visit his mother, Mrs. Jessie Jones of Littlefield, who is known in Lubbock from the not-so-recent days when she was heading the Sherick Memorial Home in the city.

Attended Texas

Tom Jones grew up in Coleman where he attended the schools and then headed for the University of Texas. It was there that he turned his extracurricular time to membership in the Curtain Club, a drama, musical organization, where the students put on their own shows and the like. It was there, too, that his path crossed that of a student from the art department, musically inclined, whose friendship was to become a partnership-collaboration that resulted in the off-Broadway success of "Fantasticks" and the subsequent projects.

"It was B. Iden Payne of the University who brought "The Fantasticks" to our attention," Jones recalls. "He had produced an English adaptation of the French comedy in England in the early 1900s, under that same title, "Fantasticks." In our work at the University we did scenes from that play and later that idea was to stick with us. So, when we headed for New York we set to work on the musical version.

Played Bean-Bag Game

"We had the play set-up for Broadway in two acts, it didn't find a taker. So we shortened it to one-act and put it on at a New York college. The present producer caught the show, said if we could expand it back to the two-act version, he thought he could get us a production in a matter of weeks.

"Well, we did and he did," Jones, long-haired, horned-rimmed eyes glinting with amusement, chuckles now. "I thought it would be a critics' success and not popular with the public. It worked just the other way."

(Editor's note: "The Fantasticks" was presented by the students at Texas Tech as the first production of the Laboratory Theater in December.)

For their second produced-show, on Broadway this time, the collaborators turned to the poplar stage play success, "The Rainmaker." This emerged as the moderate success, "110 in the Shade" which particularly enjoyed success in the summer musicals theaters this past year, being produced by both Fort Worth's Casa Manana and the Dallas Summer Musicals.

"We followed the story outline pretty closely in this one," Jones says. "We follow no particular method in our work. I write book and then I'll think up lyrics and we either work together or I send what I've done to Harvey and he works on the other half on his end."

Champion Will Direct

The big news of the day, of course, is the nearing-completion of work on "I Do, I Do," which will be directed by Gower Champion whose mastering of "Carnival" and "Hello, Dolly!" among others has made him a particularly desireable director.

"I Do, I Do" is the musical version of "The Fourposter," the two-character play of vignettes of a long-lasting marriage, its ups and downs through the years. It was done by the Lubbock Theatre Centre some seasons back.

The musical will be unique in that it will present only the two original characters and no others. Mary Martin, when she is through with her London stint in "Hello, Dolly!" will be one; it has been reported that a likely co-star will be Robert (The Music Man) Preston.

"This was a difficult one," Jones admits. "We both read the script and then pondered just how to handle the show. Harvey Schmidt has a place outside of Rome and I used to ride the train into the city for books and things and, getting by myself in one of those wonderful, spacious compartments, I'd sing and whistle and when I'd get something then I'd show it to Harvey and we'd go to work. We've got eight songs now and we're real excited. The whole thing is based on some of the incidents out of for example, my own marriage — (he is married to an attractive former actress named Ellie for the past two years or so) — one scene has one character

MRS. EGGERS EXPLAINS—A lady from Plainview will explain the true reasons behind genealogical research behind the map of early Virginia is Mrs. Owen Egger. Mrs. Egger is the featured speaker at the regular meeting of the group set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Municipal Garden Arts Center, 4215 College Ave.

GENEALOGISTS TO MEET

Plainview Woman To Trace Virginia Lines Thursday

Mrs. Owen Egger, Plainview, will be guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the South Plains Genealogical Society, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Municipal Garden-Arts Center, 4215 College Ave.

Topic of her talk will be "Research In The Valley of Virginia".

Mrs. Egger, a member of the genealogical organization, has engaged in historical and genealogical research for many years. Much of her research has centered on the "Valley" of Virginia, that vast area which generally includes the western portion of the state, West Virginia, Kentucky and portions of surrounding states, and she has discovered detailed information concerning the histories of the families who pioneered and settled in these areas. During her latest trip to this region, made in the summer of 1965, Mrs. Egger did research in the archives and libraries of Richmond and Roanoke, Virginia and in areas of southwestern Pennsylvania, Ohio and Kentucky.

Points To Findings

In her speech, Mrs. Egger will tell where such statistical records as land grants, wills, births, marriages and other information of interest to genealogists may be found in this region.

Mrs. Egger said, "The Shenandoah Valley, that area which is fabled in song and story, lies to the west of the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, and is a most important part of the settling of the whole Valley of Virginia region. The first land grant was made in the Shenandoah in 1728 to men who had crossed the mountains from Spotsylvania. Descendents of these people and others, during the next 125 years pushed the American frontier from the Valley of Virpinia to the last outpost on the Pacific."

Mrs. R. P. Swofford, president of the genealogical organization, has stated that all persons interested in genealogical research are welcome to the Thursday meeting.

Railroad Fans Get Direction

Bridges and Buildings for Model Railroads, edited by Willard V. Anderson and the "Model Railroader" staff. (Kalmbach Publishing Co., Milwaukee, Wisc. $2.50)

"Bridges and Buildings for Model Railroads," a 94-page, eight and one-quarter by 11 and one quarter soft cover book was written by a team of the nation's outstanding model railroaders with the requirements of model railroaders in mind.

The book not only tells, step-by-step, how to build various bridges and buildings, it delves into a smattering of history and just enough basic engineering to enable the modeler to select the bridge or building most suitable to his pike from the standpoint of timelessness and practical application of the prototype, whether it be a cantilever bridge, a covered bridge, a steel truss bridge, a railroad station, a water tank or an interlocking tower, and most inexpensively.

Indians Labor In Restoring Ancient Ground

SANTA FE, N.M. (Special) — A traditional Pueblo Indian division of labor is being followed in the Museum of New Mexico's current work at Jemez State Monument: it is the women who are doing the plastering.

The project consists of a partial restoration of the ancient ruined pueblo and old mission church, San Jose de los Jemez.

Both men and women are working at Jemez. Most of them are from nearby Jemez Pueblo but there are some from Zia, Cochiti and a few Navajos.

The women apply it by throwing it against the walls to full the eroded spaces and then smooth it by hand. No tools are used.

In an up-to-date departure from tradition, a mortorized black-hoe is used to dig adobe soil and bring it to the site. This mortar is made on a cement mixer.

Gradually Exposes

The freshly applied plaster is smooth but in time will weather, exposing the rough colorful building blocks again. However, from time to time the plaster will have to be renewed to preserve the ancient ruins.

The mission church and monastery which dominated the ancient pueblo was built in 1621 by Fray Geronimo de Zarate Salmeron. The pueblo, now long abandoned, was the largest of a group of villages in the Jemez area and was populated by Towa-speaking Indians. The church was abandoned.

Most of the men and women employed in the restoration of the State Monument are now from Jemez Pueblo. These are the descendants of the people of Giusewa, the ancient pueblo, which built the church more than 300 years ago.

Center Is Open

Governor Jack Campbell officially opened the new Visitors' Center last August. During the opening ceremony he spoke of the ancient history of the Jemez section of New Mexico and the value of the Visitors' Center to New Mexico tourism. The Visitors' Center is filled with exhibits telling the story of the mission church and the people of Giusewa. It was installed by the Museum of New Mexico.

An article about the Museum's restoration project, well illustrated with photographs, appears in the current issue of El Palacio, the Museum's quarterly publication.

The competition was held at the University of Texas in Austin on Dec. 29.

Jimmy played the third movement of the John Carpenter "Concertino" and as a result of the competition will have the honor of playing this number before the TMTA Convention to be held at Houston in June.

Jimmy is now in his 10th year of piano study with his teacher, William A. Murphy. He is an honor student at Lubbock High School where he is drum major of the Westerner Band. He is a member of the Student Council, German Club and the Band Boys' Club and plays percussion in the orchestra.

Jimmy was the representative of the South Plains Music Teachers Association in the competition, having won first place in the local contest in early December.

Benjamin West Is Subject For Kline Lecture

Rabbi Alexander S. Kline, Lubbock art authority-collector, has inaugurated his Spring semester, "Three Hundred Years of American Art" with illustrated lectures being conducted at 10 a.m. each Tuesday in the auditorium of the West Texas Museum on the Texas Tech campus.

The series will be continued through March 8, under the sponsorship of the Women's Council of the Museum Association. Single admissions, at the door, to each of the lectures is $2.

Rabbi Kline, illustrating his lectures with selections from his vast collection of reproductions of the Masterworks, through the use of an opaque projector operated by Mrs. Kline, has selected the American artist, Benjamin West (1738-1820) as his subject for Tuesday.

First To Paint Clothes

Benjamin West was the first American painter to paint the figures on historical scenes in the clothes they normally wore. Artists before him had usually painted figures dressed in classic Greek or Roman robes. But, although West became famous for such pictures as "Penn's Treaty with the Indians" and "The Death of General Wolfe," he is best known for his ability as a teacher.

West was born in Springfield, Pa. He taught himself to paint with homemade materials. In 1775 he became a portrait painter in Philadelphia, and four years later moved to New York City. He went to Rome in 1760, and to England in 1763.

In 1772, King George III appointed West his official historical painter and in 1792 he became president of the Royal Academy, which he helped found. His famous American pupils in London included Washington Allston, John Trumbull, Gilbert Stuart, Samuel F. B. Morse and John Singleton Copley.

coming down to a kind of ramp singing about "You Grind Your Teeth" something like that, you see.

Since "I Do, I Do" is still in the formative stage, not too much can be said at this time. The team will work with producer David Merrick and with director Champion through many more months before the pattern and the entire show is set.

They've Got Favorite

Back in the collective, talented brains of Jones and Schmidt is a musical they both have gazed upon most fondly, a little item called "Rat Fink." They've worked months and months on that one and they are the only ones who seem to be totally enamoured with the whole project.

"Don't worry," warns Tom Jones, with all the charm of his Academy-Award-winning namesake on the movie screen, "we'll get back to that one before we're done, too. We think it's pretty good." Incidentally, the reporter did not blight the noonday sun by making any reference to that other Tom Jones. It figures that the writer from Texas has probably had enough comment on that one!

Tom Jones and his wife wound up a lengthy vacation trek with the Littlefield visit with his mother and many relatives in the area. They had spent some time in the Virgin Islands, then visited with Mrs. Jones' parents in Florida, then came to Texas, trekked over to New Mexico during Christmas week and then back to Littlefield to spend the remaining days at the home port.

By now, it's reasonable to assume that the typewriter is rattling along just off Central Park West and that crucial moment next fall when the Broadway curtain goes up on the Texas collaboration of Tom Jones, Harvey Schmidt and Mary Martin moves ever relentlessly forward.

And, if there are any spare moments, breathers — well, there's always "Rat Fink."

LAA Schedules Movie Programs

Three art film programs are being planned as Sunday afternoor attractions for the public at Municipal Garden and Arts Center, 4215 College Ave., under sponsorship of Lubbock Art Association.

First of the series is titled "Arts and Crafts of Mexico" and will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 16, under the direction of Dorothy Gay Irwin, program director for the Association.

Top Photographs Are Now On Exhibit At The Museum

Is photography just a mirror or is it an art form?

The exhibition of "Photography in the Fine Arts," current at the West Texas Museum on the Texas Tech campus, supports the view held by art experts that "the abstract lies first in the mind of the artist, and to discover it in nature and thenceforth to record it is an aesthetic act—on canvas and on film."

A collection of 152 photographs selected by a jury of eminent experts, the exhibition includes 66 color photographs. Among them are Joseph Breitenbach's "Chinese Rice Fields;" Kathryn Abbe's "Rainy Day Walk;" and Lorette Ryan's "Cathedral in Fog, Portugal." "The Pigeon," by photographer Gordon Parks, was selected as the cover photograph for the "Photography in the Fine Arts" catalogue.

Jousuf Karsh has three black and white photographs in the exhibition. Alongside his poetic portraits are black and white photographs memorable for their special qualities, such as Harold M. Null's "Poplars;" P. Eckel's "Central Park from the Air;" and John W. Bowers' "Firemen's Lace."

Hundreds of photographic experts took part in the worldwide search to obtain as comprehensive a group of exceptional photographs as possible.

Ivan Dmitri, noted photographer who founded the "Photograpny in the Fine Arts" project in 1959 and remains as its director, states: "Significent trends in modern creative photography are delineated in the exhibition and serve as inspiration for the serious student."

The Museum is open free to the public weekdays from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and on Sundays from 2-5 p.m.

"Photography in the Fine Arts" will be on exhibit through Jan. 30.

Rogers Exhibit Has Opening At London Gallery

News has been received of the opening at Tooth's Galleries in London, England, of a group of paintings by Peter Rogers of San Patricio, N.M., an exhibition which was seen by South Plains art lovers at the Collector Gallery, Baker Co., in October.

The exhibition in England, continuing through January, features the entire group of paintings based on the life of Christ as interpreted by Rogers. Following the completion of his murals for the Texas Archives Building in Austin, Rogers devoted more than a year fulfilling the work presently being shown. He had begun several years earlier with the initial concepts of these contemporary interpretations combining a strong sense of design and color and using the actual references from the Bible as his inspiration.

The Gallery has produced a superb catalog featuring in color a painting entitled "The Trinity" which was featured at The Baker Gallery when Rogers work was shown here. In addition to the paintings seen in Lubbock, a supplementary group of strong, deep drawings based on related themes is included in the exhibit.

Rogers is joined by his wife, Carolyn Hurd Rogers, for the he will return to San Patricio to build an enlarged studio in connection with his residence this spring.

Former Lubbock Resident Pens Poetry Volume

The Naylor Company of San Antonio has announced the publication of a volume of poetry, "Faith, Love and Laughter," by Laura Baker Haynes, former Lubbock resident.

Many of Mrs. Haynes' poems have been used for recording as an "Open Door Message" by Dr. J. H. Prichard, pastor of Grace First Presbyterian Church in Weatherford. She has written lyrics for songs in collobration with composers. She notes that "In moments of quiet meditation, while my husband was rounding up the cattle, many of the 'Faith' poems are products of projected imagination."

Mrs. Haynes was associated with the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, first in Bay City, where she grew up. She served in Odessa, Lubbock, Eagle Pass, Luling, Cuero, Hondo, Uvalde, Mineral Wells and Weatherford. In Eagle Pass she was chief operator for nine years and here she married Thomas A. Haynes. Mrs. Haynes is a member of Poetry Society of Texas, the National Songwriters Guild and the Telephone Pioneers of America.

Some American Cities Find Solutions To Problems

EDITOR'S NOTE — Urban blight is a virulent disease, but not necessarily fatal. Many a center-city is fighting back to health with the aid of an aroused citizenry," federal help, and things like computers, malls, rapid transit and metro thinking. This second in a series of three articles explains the issues.

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

Gertrude Stein once remarked of a certain American city, "There's no there there."

How true. Not just one city but scores of them in every part of the country seem to have lost the characteristic flavor that once made each distinct.

Urbanization run rampant has produced a dreary sameness to many of the nation's cities; drab and decaying central cores surrounded by ever-widening rings of monotonous suburbs. One indication of how Americans feel about their cities is their headlong rush to abandon them for a place on the grassy periphery where blight refers only to ailing elms.

Underlying Dynamism

In requesting the new Cabinet post of secretary for urban affairs, President Johnson said the American society won't be great until the cities are great.

What are the chances of that? A tour of American cities from coast to coast indicates they are better than ever. Digging beneath the surface of the well-publicized metropolitan malaise one discovers that, far from being moribund, there is an underlying dynamism in city after city.

Indeed, from Pittsburgh to Peoria many cities appear to be on the threshold of unparalleled urban vitality.

For one thing, today's embattled city officials have more weapons than ever before, in the form of federal programs, with which to attack their problems. The new Cabinet post at last places the needs of the more than 70 per cent of the population who are city dwellers on a par with the fewer than 10 per cent who are farmers.

Citizens Cooperate

Equally important, urbanites themselves seem to be increasingly fed up with both the ugliness of their cities and the tedium of their suburbs, and are anxious to do whatever it takes to halt the cycle of sprawl and blight.

Thirdly, and most significant, city officials are becoming more sophisticated in their use of local and federal resources. Where once the emphasis was simply on tearing down old buildings and putting up new ones, today's efforts, at least the successful ones, focus instead on the people involved.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanaugh of Detroit, for one, calls this approach "social renewal." He has been eminently successful at it.

Problem Complex

"When my administration came into office," says Cavanaugh, "we launched a series of studies which pointed to the fact that many programs, both public and private, which we thought were keys unlocked nothing."

Urban renewal for example, he says, is not enough if all it does is transfer a desperate, jobless man from a shabby house to a sound one. Second generation welfare families, delinquent youths roaming neighborhood parks, also indicated to Cavanaugh that neither were social welfare programs enough by themselves, nor neighborhood conservation programs.

What was required was a total approach. It began with a series of penetrating studies of human needs. The studies turned up a body of new facts, and put to rest a number of old myths.

No Better Off

The mayor discovered, for instance, that only about 10 per cent of persons in poverty households were neglecting their housekeeping in matters over which they had some control; that half the persons relocated by urban renewal did not remember receiving the follow-up aid given them; that half also felt they were no better off than before.

The fact is, as Cavanaugh learned, mere physical renewal can be a positive drawback. "Slum dwellers whose lives had been filled with disappointments," he reports, "had their few social ties broken by urban renewal." Gone was any sense of community they might have had — an all-important ingredient for continuing self improvement.

Can Get Profile

Two valuable instruments in Detroit's renewal approach are physical and social data banks. One describes nearly every building in the city, the other provides information on 25 social factors in nearly every neighborhood, such as crime rates, welfare loads, health problems.

"We can turn on a computer and get a profile in seconds on any neighborhood or area of any size in the city," Cavanaugh says. "It will flash danger signals when neighborhoods are beginning to have problems. We don't have to wait until the problem is a crisis before dealing with it." Moreover, planners can evaluate programs as they go along, not wasting time and money pursuing wrong assumptions.

Confidence Increases

The result has been an overall rejuvenation of the city. "Now for the first time," wrote a long-time Detroit resident recently in a national magazine, "we seem to not so much be climbing out of a valley of trouble as to have reached a plateau of confidence and even of optimism."

Detroit's efforts, however, like so many others, likely would have collapsed without strong support of private citizens.

"Behind every example of successful community development in the United States," says Stephen K. Bailey, a former mayor and now dean of Syracuse University's School of Citizenship and Public Affairs, "has been a handful of civic leaders, private citizens, who have translated their concern into bold plans of cooperative endeavor."

Leadership Needed

"Some person, or some small group of people, has said, 'It doesn't have to be this way, let's get together and do something'." Today a great many are doing something — and in quite bold ways.

Peoria, Ill., the butt of vaudeville jokes, ranks as a model for cities needing a facelifting.

Not long ago the county Board of Commissioners voted to use Peoria's new courthouse square as a parking lot. A group of citizens, contemplating the unlovely asphalt, circulated a petition and got the commission to hire architects. Instead of a parking lot, Peorians now enjoy a tree-rimmed plaza complete with a fountain — and the blessings of Lady Bird Johnson, who dedicated the park.

Plan Developed

Meanwhile a local foundation took on the job of developing a regional park plan for the entire Peoria area. Where once there were only 1,500 acres put aside for parks in three counties, today there are 12,000 acres including a 28-mile trail for hikers which formerly was an abandoned Rock Island Railroad track.

In Newport, R.I., a haberdasher named C. D. L. Pepys and his wife were discouraged by the look of the waterfront section with its historic 18th century colonial homes.

"One day we couldn't stand it any longer," recalls Pepys. He and his neighbors pooled their money and bought options on 32 homes, among them the home of Oliver Hazard Perry. They encouraged interested persons to buy, renovate and live in the homes. Prices of the remaining houses doubled, and now there's a waiting list of buyers.

Prouder Of Homes

"One of the most delightful things that has happened," says Mrs. Pepys, "is that other residents in the area are prouder of their homes now. There's painting and fixing up being done."

Beautifying does seem to be contagious. Pomona, Calif., built a pedestrian mall to rejuvenate the core of the city. The idea of sprucing up took hold, and now residents water and care for city-planted flowers in other parts of town.

Similar downtown parks are springing up in cities across the land. One urban critic feels they may be the most important innovation since suburbs were invented. At least a growing number of city officials seem aware that unless they show as much concern for people as they do for motor vehicles, say, or industrial plant sites, downtown simply won't be visited unless absolutely necessary.

Such concern usually pays off. Kalamazoo, Mich., pioneered with a shoppers mall in 1959; today nearly half the stores have remodeled fronts and property valuations have gone from $4.7 million to $6 million.

In Knoxville, Tenn., a group of merchants got together and built a promenade. Spurred by their success, another group took over renovation of the dilapidated market square. Now shoppers buy fresh fruit and vegetables in a center city area of fountains, greenery and covered walkways — and retail sales are up 24 per cent.

It's rare in America today to find any massive program of renewal that did not require federal aid, and even rarer to find one that didn't also include voluntary help of private citizens.

"Basic problems such as urban transportation, housing, urban development and rehabilitation," says Minneapolis Mayor Arthur Naftalin, "are problems of major concern that cannot be remedied within the tax resources available to our city.

"The use of federal aids has been recognized as good business in Minneapolis, as illustrated by the $12 million federal investment in our Gateway Center which has been the catalyst for some $80 million of construction within the project and perhaps for several times that amount in the central business district as a whole."

Naftalin is another city administrator whose approach is toward social rather than physical renewal.

The Gateway Center once was one of the largest skid row sections in any city of comparable size — 70 acres of disease, alcoholism and crime in the heart of the city. It used to cost the city $1.5 million a year to maintain the area, which returned $365,000 in taxes.

But the renewal of Gateway Center was not a mere bulldozing operation. A program to provide low rent housing went on simultaneously, plus a program for housing for the elderly. Some 1,055 units were built on scattered sites selected to remove spots of blight within certain neighborhoods and in turn spur the neighborhoods toward self improvement.

A dramatic example of self-improvement made possible by public funds occurred recently in Pittsburgh when 300 neighbors showed up at City Hall with a detailed plan for renewing their neighborhood.

They had worked closely with the city planning department and with a citizens group which created a revolving loan fund. The fund provided seed money for privately financed housing, and even established a land bank to acquire tracts and see that future space was used properly.

Hundreds Involved

Over the past four years more than 500 persons in the neighborhood, which is 70 per cent Negro, have had some specific responsibility in the rehabilitation program — working on safety committees, employment committees, and the like — and at least 1,500 others have been involved to some degree.

So far about 50 unemployed men have been steered to jobs, another 100 placed in government retraining courses. The residents even established their own youth corps to help neighbors paint, clean basements, spruce up.

By using public funds and expertise to supplement their own money and initiative, they have preserved their neighborhood values and lasting results seem more likely.

When human values are overlooked, on the other hand, results can be disastrous, and expensive. People simply don't seem to follow docilely any ill-conceived plan supposedly designed for their betterment.

Back in 1952 San Francisco proposed a $45-million freeway linking the Bay Bridge with the Golden Gate. Forward the double-decked monster lurched, sweeping 57 business firms out of its path. Onward it surged down the bay front, the historic Embarcadero. When it reached the venerable Ferry building, horrified residents saw what was happening and cried halt.

There were various suggestions. Camouflage the thing with a fluted concrete canopy? Convert the ugly stub into an elevated promenade for tourists? By 1960 the dead-end of the four-lane monster became a parking lot. Today the sentiment among many concerned with the city's unique flavor and style is to admit a hideous error and tear the freeway down.

New System Okayed

San Francisco's transportation experts have redeemed themselves by resisting the insatiable demands of the auto and coming up with the nation's first space-age solution to the frustrating problem of urban traffic.

Voters of three bay area counties have committed themselves to a billion-dollar rapid transit system tying together sprawling suburban areas and centers of commerce and industry. The 75-mile system will make use of subway lines, aerial lines, surface tracks and an underwater tube, and will be capable of moving 30,000 passengers an hour at speeds up to 80 miles an hour.

Planners elsewhere seem also to have accepted the fact that freeways are rarely more than a partial answer to transit needs. Atlanta has a rapid transit system in the blueprint stage, and representatives of the seven-county Minneapolis areas are undertaking a $1.5-million mass transportation study.

Coordination Vital

Need for metropolitan coordination and planning has never been greater, nor have comprehensive programs of renewal ever been more difficult to forge.

Probably the most formidable obstacle is the plethora of overlapping taxing and spending jurisdictions which cluster around every central city in the form of water districts, sanitation districts and other special units of government.

The confusion can become maddening. Recently an official in Patterson, N.J., was assigned a program of cleaning up the Passaic River and found herself dealing with no fewer than 19 separate agencies. A city along the river, Rutherford, wanted to get a half-submerged derelict barge removed but every governmental unit consulted disclaimed responsibility.

Some Don't Wait

But successful mayors aren't waiting for some sweet by-and-by when traditional city, county and state lines yield to a new form of metropolitan government.

"True metro government is a clear need," says Minneapolis Mayor Naftalin, who has even sketched out possible broad governmental outlines for a region such as his own seven-county area, "but the chances of getting it in the near future are very, very dim."

Consequently some means of inter-governmental cooperation must suffice, and a number of cities are managing it with remarkable success. In Los Angeles County 33 cities pool their purchasing. So do six municipalities in Buck County, Pa., on items ranging from road materials to file folders.

Form Authority

Officials in Philadelphia and four neighboring counties formed a metropolitan authority to plan a transportation program. It worked so well they later selected nine other top priority problems which transcend local boundaries: libraries, air pollution, open space. As a result of the cooperative endeavor, says coordinator Philip M. Savage, "communication has been substituted for combat. Positions are clarified rather than only defended."

The hour may be late; urban sickness has reached advanced stages in many cases. But if creative programs, strong leadership and energetic citizens are the right prescription, America's cities are well on the way to becoming whole again.

SPEEDING TRAFFIC—Rapid transit systems, rather than freeways, are being seen more and more as the answer to cities' transportation problems. This photo includes a cutaway sketch of a subway under San Francisco's Market Street. It is part of a billion-dollar 75-mile system which will tie together the city and sprawling suburbs. It will use subway and aerial lines, surface tracks and an underwater tube in a transit complex which could carry 30,000 passengers an hour at speeds up to 80 mph. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

REPERTORY EXPANDING

Guthrie Theater's Future Is Safe After Three Years

By LOTTE SEIDLER

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Six years ago, Sir Tyrone Guthrie, his wife and Producer Oliver Rea arrived here on a 30-below-zero day that took their breath away. They had just left sunny San Francisco, where, according to Guthrie, they had eaten "lotuses flating in myrrh."

Minneapolis' weather required some adjusting to, but eventually they decided to locate their theater here, a theater which was to offer classical plays in repertory, give actors an opportunity to develop their talents within the framework of a repertory company and bring first-class theater to the upper Midwest.

Now, the Guthrie theater has finished its third season and Guthrie has officially left his post as artistic director. Guthrie says simply: "We're afloat."

Modernistic Playhouse

People have come from hundreds of miles to enjoy good theater, to share in the group's unbounded enthusiasm, in a modernistic structure of glass and cement.

The repertoire these past three seasons has offered "classical" plays—plays, which, according to Guthrie, have something "universally true, interesting and amusing to say" — Shakespeare, Moliere, Congreve, Ben Jonson, Chekhov, Shaw, Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller and Bertolt Brecht.

A Shakespearean comedy, "As You Like It," Thornton Wilder's "The Skin of Your Teeth" and August Strindberg's "The Dance of Death" will open in early summer, and a fall bill of Bernard Shaw's "The Doctor's Dilemma" and Eugene O'Neill's "The Long Voyage Home" will be introduced in early September.

Most of the plays so far have been well received by the public and local, national and international critics alike. Congreve's "The Way of the World" turned out to be somewhat confusing and slow for 20th century audiences with its long speeches and seeming lack of plot, so it was dropped after 19 weeks instead of running its scheduled 28-week course.

Not Too Concerned

If this had happened more often, the company might have been concerned. As it was, Guthrie administrators estimated 48,000 persons had seen the play who wouldn't have seen it otherwise and chalked the financial loss off to experience.

The group is more concerned about producing unfamiliar plays, preferably plays with roots in the Midwest. Might they be able to find a play about the Minnesota labor movement, for instance, and would the audience be interested? They'd like to find out.

In true repertory style, actors have been taking turns at large and small parts, their common goal a good production rather than the sparkling of two or three stars surrounded by minor constellations.

This system needs the right type of star. And the Guthrie Theater has been fortunate. This past season, Hume Cronyn at times appeared as Richard III in the afternoon and in the minor part of Epihodovf in "The Cherry Orchard" in the evening.

No Name Actors

Douglas Campbell, the theater's new artistic director, said next year there would be no big name actors at all. He feels audiences do not need this kind of lure any longer.

And then there is the audience. "Marvelous," a Guthrie spokesman said. "So ready for theater, so receptive, so enthusiastic. They keep asking us in other parts of the country what our magic formula was. Well, there was no magic. Guthrie, Rea and Zeisler just had a hunch that people in this area were ready for professional theater and they were right."

The company has made a concentrated effort to reach the people. In spring and fall, busloads of students come from all over the upper Midwest to attend special matinees. For $1.50, a student gets what usually is his first taste of professional theater. After the question-answer session. From 6,000 in 1962, the numbers of students attending these special performances has risen to 36,000 this past season.

Percentage Favorable

A poll in the Minneapolis Star last summer showed that nine per cent of the people in the area had attended at least one play at the Guthrie Theater. No other theater in the area had attracted such a large percentage. Now the Guthrie group is trying to figure out how to reach the other 91 per cent.

Financially, the company has been in the black the first two years, and in the red this past season. Guthrie administrators seem to be more exhilarated by the growth of the audience—from 183,000 in 1963 to 240,000 in 1965, not including students—than they are trouble by what they consider "minor financial difficulties."

Like the once and future king, Guthrie will return. He'll direct one of the two plays which will open next September.

AGO Group To Meet On Monday

Members of the Lubbock Chapter of the American Guild of Organists will hold a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Room 205 of the Music Building on the Texas Tech campus.

With Gene Kenney of the music faculty in charge, the group will read new choral music, discuss choral techniques and allied topics.

Detectors Used To Locate Cornerstone

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. (AP) — Mine detectors are being used in an effort to locate a cornerstone "lost" in the Clock Tower Building.

The cornerstone, according to records, was laid on April 20, 1864, and the building finished in 1867. The records do not reveal where the cornerstone is located.

The Clock Tower is a local landmark.

Cheap Item Valuable At Water Laboratory

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—A 27-cent item is one of the most important pieces of equipment at the $1.5-million U.S. Water Conservation Laboratory in Phoenix.

It's a long piece of wood with a wire screen attached to one end. Scientists use it to seine toads and frogs from experimental water evaporation ponds.

OLD THEATER COPIED

BOCA RATON, Fla.—A replica of a 2,400-year-old outdoor theater is being planned for Florida's newest university, Florida Atlantic, at Boca Raton. It will be a copy of the Theater of Dionysus in Athens as it was in 435 B.C. Sponsors are the Greek embassy and the American National Theatre and Academy. Based On Pushkin Story

Peter Illich Tchaikovsky's "Pique Dame" or "The Queen of Spades" has a libretto by the composer's brother, Modeste, and is based on a story by Alexander Pushkin. The opera had its world premiere at St. Petersburg, Russia, on Dec. 19, 1890.

It tells the story of the old Countess who is known as "The Queen of Spades" and who possessed the secret of winning at cards. Gherman, the man who loves her granddaughter, Lisa, is determined to learn that secret so that he can win enough money to marry the girl. He slips into the Countess's bedroom to force the information from her, but his sudden appearance frightens the old lady to death.

Later her ghost advises Gherman to wager on three particular cards. As he becomes more and more obsessed with gambling, Lisa grows despondent and finally drowns herself. Gherman, however, cannot stop gambling and in his last game wins on the first and second cards, but loses on the third when the queen of spades turns up instead of an ace. The Countess's ghost then returns to taunt him and he commits suicide.

Among the musical highlights of the opera are Prince Yeletsky's proposal, "When you choose me for your husband" in Act II, and Lisa's final aria in Act III, "It is near to midnight."

Vatican Council II To Be Reviewed

THIS WEEK, Channel 11 and NBC will travel roughly halfway around the world to bring viewers varied and informative entertainment.

At 12:30 this afternoon there begins a four-part series on the history and significance of the Ecumenical Council. The series, "Vatican Council II," was produced in Rome by the NBC Television Religious Program Unit in cooperation with the National Council of Catholic Men. It consists of two color-film documentaries reviewing the development of the council through four sessions, and two discussion programs exploring the implementation of the United States of the council's decrees.

CULLEN

Part one, "The Peaceful Revolution," traces the evolution of the Second Vatican Council from Pope John's announcement in January 1959, at St. Paul's Basilica, through the crisis of the first session when 2,500 bishops began to face the difficulties of aggiornamento (bringing things up to date), to the conclusion of the Second Session, and Pope Paul's historic meeting with the Greek Patriarch Athanagoras in the Holy Land. Three more programs will be broadcast on following Sundays.

New Time Position

At 3 p.m. today viewers will see the silent underwater beauty of Tahiti and the smoke and roar of a drag strip in Oklahoma, as "NBC Sports in Action" moves to a new time position. Besides initiating a move from a Saturday time period, the program also signals the debut of Bill Cullen, popular TV host and personality, as co-host with Jim Simpson.

Sixteen nations are represented as the best spearfishermen in the world gather for the biennial challenge in the exotic blue waters off the South Pacific islands of Tahiti and Moorea. To cover the event, three special underwater color cameras will be used, as well as surface color cameras to focus on island life, showing to best advantage the resplendent glory that has long made the South Sea islands seem an earthly Paradise.

As the strains of native music fade, the raucous sound of the Southwest Speedway in Tulsa is heard as the scene shifts abruptly to drag racing, a sport much dissimilar to spearfishing. The fastest drag racers in the world zoom down the quarter - mile track to achieve speeds of better than 200 miles per hours. To provide a special dimension to its coverage, NBC mounts a camera on a dragster to give a driver's view of what it is like to be on the inside of the fastest and most furious motor sports of all.

OVERTONES of more travel, this time to Mexico, will be heard at 8 p.m. Monday as Andy Williams hosts Herb Alpert's bounding Tijuana Brass. The group is reminiscent of a strolling Mexican mariachi band which, it has been pointed out, has gained much in translating. Among the items added are a driving beat and bass line, electronic wizardry, and the triumphant trumpet of Alpert. Also slated to appear on the star-spangled program are Eddie Fisher and Bobby Darin.

Tuesday night continues the world - wide programming, as Sophia Loren and Clark Gable star in "It Happened in Naples," this week's "Tuesday Night at the Movies." The color film spotlights superlative acting, backed by a particularly accurate representation of high-mettled Italian life and temperament, and lilting Neopolitan music. Colorcast time for the romantic comedy is 8 p.m.

A&M - Baylor Game

Feature entertainment "comes home" Saturday, as Channel 11 presents Southwest Conference Basketball, at 2 p.m. The live broadcast will originate in Waco, as Texas A&M meets Baylor.

Following the basketball game, Channel 11 and NBC again pack up color cameras and move to Panama City for the second match in "Shell's Wonderful World of Golf." Chi-Chi Rodriguez and Mike Souchak are featured in the 4 p.m. colorcast, played on a course from which are visible the ruins of the ancient city sacked by the buccaneer Henry Morgan, and the Panama City that is so very much alive today, combining both Latin and Northern cultures.

Variety Of Subjects Discussed

THIS MONTH'S ISSUE of "International Magazine," 9 p.m. Monday on KTXT-TV, Channel 5, presents stories on the future of Southwest Africa; new methods for treating the deaf; the emergence of the Liberal Party in England as the deciding power force in British elections; the young pioneers of Siberia; children's Christmas in England; and the world of children living in East Germany.

"American Album," premiering at 8 p.m. Wednesday, consists of five deeply moving and evocative programs, covering the life of Lincoln from his birth to the time shortly after the death of Ann Rutledge when he began an active political career. Much of the series was filmed in Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois in the areas where Lincoln himself lived, studied and worked.

Many of the people who appear in the programs are direct descendants of the men and women with whom Lincoln associated. The series is a dramatic recreation of the events of the period, starting with Lincoln's assassination and the progress of his funeral train through a heart-broken country. Throughout the programs, special attention is paid to the authenticity of the settings, properties and costumes, so that each detail will provide the viewer with an accurate portrayal of the times and places.

Atlantic Alliance Discussed

Leading political analysts in four countries take part in an international telephone conversation about the changing nature of the Atlantic Alliance on "At Issue: The Crisis in the Atlantic Alliance" at 9 p.m. Wednesday. This international, hour-long exchange emanates from London, Paris, Hamburg, and Geneva.

Two important international events which occurred last month are discussed: the French election and the N.A.T.O. meeting. Among other noteworthy topics scheduled to be reviewed are the future of the Atlantic Alliance, the European Common Market, and De Gaullism.

RUTH ST. DENIS, often called the "First Lady of the Dance," appears on "Conversations" at 8:30 p.m. Thursday. In this program she traces her career as a dancer from her earliest barefoot prancing, though the vaudeville days, to her evolvement of a theory and style of dance which would lift dance from mere entertainment to, as she expresses it, "the dance of life itself."

Encouraged and influenced by her mother, who was somewhat of a controversial character herself in that she believed in exercise, health foods and unrestrictive clothing well ahead of her time, Ruth St. Denis was dancing professional at 16, and has been dancing for more than 60 years.

Two Distinguished Performers

Two of the most distinguished performers on the British stage—Beatrix Lehmann and Robert Helpmann—will appear in Strindberg's scathing drama of disillusionment "The Ghost Sonata" at 9 p.m. Friday. The play centers on a solid, wealthy, respectable Stockholm mansion inhabited by what are apparently happy, prosperous people. But Stindberg, in a blazing denunciation of human corruption, reveals the house as a rotting structure full of grotesque figures caught in a web of falsehood, hatred, and disappointment.

Long one of the London theater's most respected stars, Miss Lehmann will be remembered by American television audiences as the mother of Coriolanus in Shakespeare's play as it was presented in the recent and widely acclaimed BBC series mother of Coriolanus in Shakespeare's play as it was presented in the recent and widely acclaimed BBC series

AT 6 P.M. TODAY, the CBS Television Network and Channel 13 will rebroadcast for the eighth season one of the great film classics of all time, "The Wizard of Oz," as a two-hour special in color. The host is Danny Kaye. The Metro - Goldwyn-Mayer movie, produced in 1939, stars Judy Garland with Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, Jack Haley, Billie Burke and Margaret Hamilton.

J. GARLAND

"The Wizard of Oz" is the motion picture which brought stardom to Judy Garland and introduced "Over the Rainbow," a song that won an Oscar and has been identified with Miss Garland through her impressive career.

Other memorable songs in the award - winning film score by Harold Arlen and E. Y. (Yip-Harburg include "We're Off to See the Wizard, "If I Only Had a Heart," "The Merry Old Land of Oz" and "Follow the Yellow Brick Road."

The first 22 minutes of the movie are in black and white. The picture was filmed that way to make the contrast between Dorothy's (Judy Garland) farm world and the fantasyland of Oz a brilliant, sparkling surprise, an artistic miracle that has never failed to make audiences gasp with pleasure.

NO VIOLENCE, NO SEX

Dennis Weaver Knocks "Soft Show" Program

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — I sat with Esther Williams and Fernando Lamas at the gala party at the Beverly-Hilton after the premiere of "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold." I hadn't seen Esther in a few years and she is as lovely as ever.

At the next table were Sonny and Cher (which is which?—only their hairdresser knows for sure) and Esther kept staring at them.

"I have to tell my daughter all about them," she said. "She thinks Cher is the most beautiful girl in the world."

One Of Nicest

Mary Ann Mobley was with James McMullen. Mary Ann is one of the nicest girls in the business — all she wanted to talk about was Jim's new series, when she has one of her own. She's starring in the pilot of The Girl from U.N.C.L.E.

She reminded me that I had been there—on the set of Jerry Lewis' "Three on a Couch"—the day she had her first karate lesson. And, since then, because of the series, she's been practicing every day.

"Even my bruises have bruises," she said.

Introducing the soft show. That's a phrase I had never heard until Dennis Weaver used it. We were talking about the reasons why his series of last season, Kentucky Jones, failed.

Too Limited

"We chose to limit it too much," Weaver says, "and it became a soft show."

He explained that a soft show is one with no violence and no sex.

"I was for the idea originally," Weaver says. "I thought it was a very good thing. But I've reluctantly reached the conclusion that the chances for success for a soft show are very slim."

Weaver says he is now in what he calls a "treading water" period. He just finished playing a heavy in "Duel at Diablo" with James Garner and Sidney Poitier. And that should help him move into the feature film area with a bang bang. (It's a two-gun show.)

Meanwhile, there is much in the works -other features, stock, a new series possibility.

"I'll take what comes," he says. "I'm in the acting business."

Advice From Patti

Want to be a pop singer? Take Patti Page's advice—don't study singing.

"Too much studying," she says, "can harm a pop voice. If you want to sing operatic, that's different—you have to study. But not for pop singing. I never took a lesson. And I never vocalize. And I smoke too much. The only thing I do is, before I go on stage, I clear my throat."

Whatever she does, it's the right thing. The more I hear today's alleged singers (with a few exceptions), the more I like to listen to Patti. She sounds as good as ever, although she says lately her voice has drifted a little lower.

An indication of her continuing popularity is the fact that, in 1965, she was home only three months during the year. The rest of the time she was on the road; she even toured the Orient — and it was grueling.

I told her I had recently seen her movie, "Elmer Gantry," on television, and I wondered why she hadn't done more.

"I hoped that movie was going to a lot for me," she said, "but it didn't. Nothing ever came of it."

Star Learning To Be Gourmet During Travels

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — "The Ipcress File" raised Caine—Michael Caine — to major international stardom. And Caine says that being an international star carries with it one surprising feature.

"I'm learning," he says, "to be a gourmet."

He's here, on his first trip, to costar with Shirley MacLaine in Universal's "Gambit." And so he's taste-testing American food in the studio commissary. But much of the action supposedly takes place in Hong Kong, so he eats Chinese food on the set. After this he does a film in Germany, and he's looking forward to going from better to knockwurst.

He may have to learn how to say "diet" in 37 languages.

Film Producer Is Struck With Glass

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detectives sought theatrical agent Irving Lazar in connection with an attack on showman Otto Preminger at the posh "21" Club Friday night.

Police said the 68-year-old Preminger, a prominent film producer and director, was struck on the head with a glass thrown by a member of his party at the club. He was rushed to New York hospital in an ambulance, treated for cuts of the forehead, and sent home.

While shocked guests gawked at the bleeding Preminger, police said his assailant slipped away.

Detectives said they suspected that Lazar, a well-known theatrical agent, threw the glass and then disappeared. They said Lazar had not returned to his apartment during the night . . . but they were waiting.

T. S. Eliot Drama Attracting Interest

NEW YORK (AP) Suddenly attracting renewed interest for stage exhibit is T. S. Eliot's "Murder in the Cathedral."

The American Shakspeare Festival at Stratford, Conn., has been considering plans for revival of the drama about the martyrdom of Thomas a Becket.

Noel Coward Program To Feature His Plays

LONDON (AP) Noel Coward comes back to the West End stage early in 1966 in a program of his own short plays. Co-starring with him are to be Lili Palmer and Irene Worth.

A Dublin break-in of the bill is to precede the London engagement. Rehearsals, directed by Glen Byam Shaw, are to be at Coward's home in Switzerland.

French Actress Ready For Hollywood Again

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) —Liliane Montevecchi, French actress and dancer, is ready to try Hollywood again—now that she knows the English language.

LILIANE

The leggy dancer with the saucer eyes once was under contract to MGM but she had language trouble. And she was there at a time when Esther Williams was the biggest star on the lot.

"I was a long-distance swimmer when I was 16 years old — but I couldn't get the message across. I never was in one of Esther's swimming pictures," says Liliane.

Star Of Folies

For the past year, Liliane has been the star of the Folies Bergere at Las Vegas' Tropicana Hotel.

"I really learned to speak English in Las Vegas," she says. "Before I came here, I never knew such words as 'Four the hard way' or 'Jackpot' but now I know them all."

Liliane started ballet training in the Paris Opera and made her first stage appearance at 9, for the crowning of Prince Rainier of Monaco.

Since a bad start at Metro, Liliane has been studying acting a lot. When she starred on Broadway in "La Plume de ma Tante," she studied at the Actor's Studio.

"I still go when I go to New York and I adore it," she says.

"Most of the movies I was in I danced only, because of my bad English — 'The Glass Slipper' with Leslie Caron and 'Daddy Long Legs' with Fred Astaire and 'Meet Me in Las Vegas' with Cyd Charisse.

"Then I started to talk a little so they starred me in a big production — the whole works — called 'The Living Idol.'

"It bombed so we broke the contract.

"But Hollywood is my next stop."

IN SCREEN 'SIXPENSE'

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommy Steele is to repeat his stellar stage assignment in the movie version of "Half A Sixpence."

The musical is scheduled for filming by Paramount soon.

Young Hammerstein Rewriting "Allegro"

NEW YORK (AP) — William Hammerstein, son of the late Oscar Hammerstein II, is rewriting the book of "Allegro," one of the less successful musicals created by his father and Richard Rodgers.

The show is one of three scheduled for summer run at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Conn., where the current Broadway success "Man of La Mancha" was first tried.

Producer Has Adopted London-First Policy

NEW YORK (AP)—Producer Stanley Gordon has adopted a London-first, Broadway-later policy for his next two projects. "The King's Mare," a comedy by Anita Loos, is scheduled for overseas presentation in June starring Dora Bryan. With it under way, Gordon gets to work on a musical adaptation of "A Tale of Two Cities."

Julie Sommars Is Different

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—I like the frankness of Julie Sommars, the blonde who snagged the first female part in Ross Hunter's "The Pad (And How to Use It.)"

"When I tested for the part," she says, "I didn't think I had a chance. My interpretation of the part was all wrong at first."

Julie says she has heretofore —on many shows — played "the nice, sweet, shining girl." And the girl in "The Pad" is not very nice.

Another thing about Julie which sets her apart from the run of the other million girls: She hopes the studio doesn't give her the clothes she wears in the picture.

"I don't like them," she says.

Oscar-Winning Film Readied For Stage

NEW YORK (AP) — A stage version of "The Apartment," Oscar-winning movie in 1960, figures now on the collaborative schedule of Betty Comden, Adolph Green and Jule Styne.

The trio has acquired an option on the property which stipulates production by June 1968. Miss Comden and Green, lyric writers and book adaptors, and composer Stein have teamed together several times previously. Their most successful joint work was "Bells Are Ringing."

LEADERS IN THEATER POLL—The annual poll of theater owners in 1965 finds Sean Connery rated No. 1 attraction followed by John Wayne in second place and Doris Day in No. 3 spot. Selections were based strictly on financial returns at theaters. The poll, an accurate gauge of money-making stars, tends to refute the claim that good pictures earn profits despite the stars.

THEATER OWNERS POLLED

Connery, Wayne, Day Are Tops In Boxoffice Appeal

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The success formula for making motion pictures in 1966: A James Bond thriller starring Sean Connery, John Wayne and Doris Day.

That, at least, is the way the motion picture theater owners reckon a boxoffice hit.

In the annual poll of movie exhibitors taken in 1965, Connery was the No. 1 boxoffice attraction thanks to his derringdo as Agent 007, the cynical, hard-drinking spoof of a spy.

Ranked Low

Until last year Connery wasn't even among the top 100 boxoffice stars. Most movie-goers had never heard of the dour Scotsman with the slight burr and cantankerous personality. But Connery, more than any other star, was responsible for luring customers to theaters during the past year.

Second in the poll was John Wayne.

His pictures last year weren't that great, but fans poured in to see if big Duke had really survived surgery for lung cancer. And sure enough, there he was big as life and twice as touch.

In third place was Doris Day who is fast becoming a legend at the boxoffice. It is almost impossible for a producer to lose money with the bouncy blonde in the starring role.

Hard-hearted theater owners have no favorites themselves. They love the star who provides the largest financial harvest for them. Therefore, the darlings of the critics—Audrey Hepburn, Sir Laurence Olivier, Julie Christie, Peter O'Toole—may cause a racket in the art houses and in glossy magazines, but not in the polls.

Rounding out last year's top five were Julie Andrews and Jack Lemmon in fourth and fifth place.

First Appearance

Blonde Miss Andrews made her first appearance among the top ten on the strength of two of the most fantastic hits to come out of Hollywood in all its history, "Mary Poppins" and "Sound of Music."

In this 34th annual poll, Elvis Presley ranked sixth; Cary Grant seventh; James Stewart eighth; Elizabeth Taylor ninth; and Richard Burton tenth.

How the theater owners decided Liz was ninth instead of Burton is a mystery. They appeared in the same pictures last year and it is assumed as many people paid to see the wonderful Welshman as they did languorous Liz.

Nevertheless, it does give Liz an edge in family battles over Burton. After all, she's No. 9 and he's only No 10.

But Burton can point to 1964 when he was in the top 10 and Elizabeth rated No. 11.

Also returning to the top ten after being absent last year was Jimmy Stewart who had dropped to 23rd spot the previous year. Displaced in the higher echelon this year Rock Hudson (11th), Shirley Maclaine (15th), Ann-Margret (17), and Paul Newman (21).

It marked the first time in eight years that Hudson had not ranked in the top five, perhaps coincidentally it was also the first year in a long time that he did not co-star with Doris Day.

Duke Wayne's appearance was his 16th in the top ten, going all the way back to 1949. Cary Grant first appeared in the top ten in 1944, but he has been less consistent than Wayne.

This poll, conceded to be an accurate gauge of money-making stars, tends to refute the claim that good pictures earn profits despite the stars.

Year after year the same stars tend to show up as the best boxoffice attractions. It can't be that Doris Day or John Wayne appear in only great movies. It's doubtful that either one of them ever starred in an Oscar-winning picture — or a film which critics acclaimed.

Neither has Cary Grant appeared in pictures that shook the world.

It leaves one to draw the conclusion that motion picture goers would rather see Jack Lemmon, Elvis Presley, Day or Wayne or any of the other top ten in a second-rate picture than see a lesser screen personality give an Academy Award performance in a meaningful movie.

Hail to the boxoffice champs, then. In the final analysis the public, which plunks down its money at the theater, decides who are the best performers in the movies—and the heck with the art houses.

Post Airport Plan Hits Snag On 'Home Front'

POST (Special) — Post's proposed airport project, for which a federal grant of $44,124 and a state grant of $12,000 have been made, has hit a snag on the "home front," it was indicated here.

Neither the City of Post nor Garza County have funds available for their cost-share in the project, which has been set at $16,024 each.

The county plans to use equipment and labor in the airport construction to pay its share, and has asked the Texas Attorney General for a ruling on whether road and bridge precinct labor and equipment can be used on the project.

The Post city council has decided to call a referendum on the issuance of time warrants to pay its share of the airport cost, but is waiting to call the referendum until it finds out what the county is going to do.

The aviation committee of the Post Chamber of Commerce has obtained option on an 80-acre tract east of town on U. S. Hwy. 380 for the airport. The estimated cost of the project is $88,248, which will include purchase of the site and construction of two runways.

Ethel Merman Making Return

NEW YORK (AP) — The third summer musical season of Lincoln Center's State Theater is to be highelighted with Ethel Merman recreating her original role in "Annie Get Your Gun."

"It's just right," says the star. "It's exactly what I want to do, just about the right amount of time. No more long commitments."

The local engagement from May 26 to July 9, will be preceded by three weeks with the show in Toronto, followed by three weeks in Detroit.

Comedian Gets Start By Biting

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—How to get started in life as a comedian—bite somebody. That was Joe Flynn's method.

Joe says when he was seven, he transferred to a new school. And, like any new kid, he wanted the children to accept him.

"On the first day," Joe says, "I leaned over and I bit the girl next to me. Right away, I was accepted—as the class cutup. And I've been cutting up ever since."

SUBMARINE DUTY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Glenn Ford will wind up "The Rage" in Durango, Mexico, in February and immediately don his naval uniform for five weeks' submarine duty.

Ford, a 23-year service veteran, is a full commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve.

GIRLS, GIRLS, GIRLS—Maurice Chevalier enhances an even dozen of Hollywood's most beautiful and talented newcomers who are appearing at the "Hollywood Deb Star Ball of 1966." Clockwise, the young beauties are (outer circle) Cheryl Miller, Melody Patterson, Edy Williams, Shelby Grant, Helen Funai, Phyllis Davis, Linda Foster and (inner circle) Peggy Lipton, Sherry Alberoni, Beverly Lunsford, Sally Field and Trudi Ames.

Seagraves Gets School Program Called 'Uplift'

SEAGRAVES (Special) — A program has been started in the schools here termed "Uplift" by administrators. It was made available by the Elementary and Secondary Act passed by Congress in 1965. It is administered by the Texas Education Agency.

The project has added several members to the school faculty, and will involve the expenditure of more than $40,000 in federal aid during the present school year ending next Sept. 1, officials said.

Designed to help educationally-deprived children in low income areas, the project is available to Seagraves because the 1960 census showed 200 children here came from low income families. A community must have at least 100 such children to participate.

Ross Buckner, superintendent of schools, has announced that federal aid is being received in two categories: $1,983.45 for library books and visual aid; and $38,452 for administration, instruction, attendance, services pupil transportation, food services and equipment.

Personel employed to assist in the program include Herbert Williford, who will serve as coordinator, attendance supervisor and bookkeeper; Mrs. Maurice Hearne, a registered nurse, who will serve as school nurse; Mrs. Gerald Shelley, to teach remedial reading; and Miss Deann Dow, who will serve as visting teacher.

Mrs. David Anderson replaces Williford as high school commercial teacher. Mrs. Max Townsend and Miss Sandra Turner are new third grade teachers, replacing Mrs. Shelley and Mrs. Anderson.

This is the first time the schools here have had a fulltime nurse. Mrs. Hearne formerly was superintendent of nurses at a hospital in Denver City.

CARNIVAL By Dick Turner

"That's very true! However, all play and no work makes jack scarce, boy!"

EARLY FREIGHT

Before the introduction of railroads, it cost from 20 to 25 cents per ton per mile to move freight overland. It cost about $100 to move a ton of freight from New York City to Buffalo, a distance of about 425 miles.

"Patch Of Blue" Amazes Author

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Jerry Goldsmith wrote the lovely score for "A Patch of Blue," as well as many others — "Our Man Flint" is his latest.

"But the 'Patch of Blue' score," Jerry says, "has been amazing. This is the first time in my career that the public seems to be aware of my work. I get more people coming up to me and saying how they liked it."

Goldsmith is unique — he's probably the only Hollywood composer who doesn't harbor a secret yen to do a Broadway musical.

"My secret yen," he says, "is to write an opera."

Humorist To Speak At Brownfield Event

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Tom Lavin, humorist and philosopher, of Atlanta, Tex, will be speaker at the annual Jaycee banquet here to be held in the junior high school cafeteria, Jan 22.

A feature of the banquet will be the awarding the "Young Man of the Year" and the "Young Farmer of the Year" citations.

Lavin, currently is executive secretary of the National Food Associates. His latest appearance, was a feature speaker at the Lions International convention at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

Tickets are on sale by Jaycee members.

Red Buttons Is Doing What He Enjoys Most

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Red Buttons is another star who says that he's lucky—he's doing what he most enjoys doing, performing.

"I'd perform in a living room," Red says, "and get as much kick out of it as working in a movie or a night club. The money? The money is a present — of course, the better you are, the bigger the present."

TOWARD HIGHER PLATEAUS

Mankind Is Still Traveling In Hope

ONE REASON why the future intrigues so many of us is because it is shrouded in mystery. We look ahead hopefully, but we are uncertain about what lies beyond the horizon. So we venture forth in faith, expecting to find more light as we reach each turn of the road.

Perhaps it is best that it should be that way. A well-known theologian wrote recently:

"It's the turn of the road that gives delight to the journey. The expressways are functional, but the roads that wind up the hillside are exciting. Do you remember driving through the tense traffic, past the factories, beyond the junkheaps of abandoned automobiles and the dreariness of many neighborhoods? Suddenly there is a turn of the road and before you a quiet landscape that gives a renewal of purpose."

The thought is particularly timely in this period of turbulence and confusion. As we move forward through what we may feel is the wreckage of civilization, listening to the voices of doom foretelling the end of everything that we hold dear, we may lose heart and be ready to give up in despair. Then we come to a turn of the road and before us lies a vista of peace and hope. That landscape which "gives a renewal of purpose" may be the sudden realization that while conditions are bad in the world, God still rules the universe and His purposes cannot be forever thwarted. Wrong may appear to be winning, but ultimately Right will triumph.

It is true that the world as we know it today is beset by problems which appear to defy solution. There is war abroad, unrest and uncertainty at home. Often it seems that men everywhere are losing faith in the eternal verities. Cynicism prevails in high places, principles are sacrificed to expediency. It truly is a time to test the faith of even the stout-hearted.

Even so, is there room for pessimism and despair? Despite the over-hanging clouds of fear, isn't it possible that the sun of hope still is shining?

Wars and disturbances there always have been, but in spite of it all, mankind has continued to move forward toward higher plateaus of achievement. And unless some terrible catastrophe—like a nuclear war—occurs, which could set us back thousands of years, humanity will continue to follow an ascending trail. We can only have faith and pray that such a tragic event can be avoided.

And we have reason to believe that it can. But whatever happens, we can always look to God, who is "from everylasting to everlasting." Therefore, we travel in hope, keeping our eyes on the future, ever looking for the shining landscape which may lie beyond the turn of the road.

President Johnson said that in 1966 Congress should be able to adjourn by June 30. He must be losing his faith in his ability to draw up a spate of legislation for Congress to pass.

RUTH MONTGOMERY:

Question Of Paid, Full-Time School Boards Worth Debate

WASHINGTON—President Johnson's appointment of Harold Howe II as the new U.S. Commissioner of Education could focus renewed attention on the old controversy of whether membership on local boards of education should be a paid, full-time position.

The 47-year-old former Yale hockey star is a product of private schools, and while heading an experimental institute in North Carolina the past 18 months he became convinced that the Federal Government should be a "stronger partner in the educational enterprise."

HACKLES ARE sure to rise in some red-neck districts over Howe's outspoken assertion that "local control gives the communities the right to have both good and bad schools, and . . . what the Federal Government is now about is to curtail the right to have bad schools."

Americans are becoming so education-conscious that some feel the time is past when members of the board of education should serve merely for the honor of the thing, on a part-time volunteer basis. They argue that since the school budget often exceeds the entire municipal budget, it is as logical to demand full-time salaried members of the board of education as the city council.

THE NATIONAL Education Association's most recent study of the subject shows that the majority of cities pay board of education members only out-of-pocket expenses or small per diem allowances for attending meetings; yet they are expected to study school problems, attend school functions, and set policy for the school superintendent.

Only approximately eight per cent of the communities pay yearly salaries. Of those receiving compensation, 70 per cent less than $999 a year.

The majority of those polled by NEA opposed having paid, full-time board members. Their reasons were these: salaries would not be high enough to attract as capable a person as those who serve on a volunteer basis, every citizen should assume certain community obligations without compensation, the jobs would become involved in patronage or politics, and the board members "might try to earn their money by running the schools." They felt that "running the schools" should be left to a trained superintendent and his staff.

THOSE WHO favor a full-time board have answers for these. They argue that school boards could be reduced in size, and adequate salaries paid, as they are for city councilmen and county supervisors. They doubt that patronage and policies would markedly increase, since mayors or judges already appoint most school boards. And they are convinced that the man who is paid to carry out school policy (the superintendent) should not also make it, as is often the case now.

School supreintendents in large cities frequently draw higher salaries than the state's governor. Many of them have almost unlimited control of the school budget, whereas even the President of the United States must go to Congress for the spending power of his various agency and department heads.

WITH SCHOOL problems mounting alarmingly, and the Federal arm thrusting ever more menacingly into local affairs, it may be archaic for our school systems to be directed by a group of busy men and women whose main concern is naturally their regular business or profession.

At least the problem seems worthy of debate at some old style town hall meetings.

DAVID LAWRENCE:

Republicans Could Be Mistaken In Judging Effect Of The War

WASHINGTON—Discussion of the possible impact of the Viet Nam war on the 1966 Congressional and 1968 Presidential elections has lately led many Republicans mistakenly to believe that they will surely benefit by developments.

Much depends, however, on exactly what the war situation is at the time the voters cast their ballots. It is important to remember that a war can help the party in power to stay in office. The American people took the unprecedented step of electing Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third and even a fourth term while World War II was in progress.

THE REASONING applied by the voters in 1940 and 1944 can be repeated politically in 1966 or 1968 if there is a big war going on in Viet Nam. For the people do not want "to change horses in midstream," as the saying goes in politics.

The deeper the nation is involved in war operations, the more there is an inclination on the part of the voters not to risk changes in the Government in Washington.

THERE IS A STRONG sentiment for keeping an administration in power also when other nations are in the midst of a war and the American people want this country to stay out of the conflict at almost any cost. Back in 1916, President Wilson won a second term on the slogan, "He kept us out of war." When, on the other hand, American ships were torpedoed, less than six months later the people responded to a declaration of war with a dramatic manifestation of bipartisan unity.

The one situation that has been referred to recently as likely to be paralleled in 1966 or 1968 is what happened during the Korean War. The American people never like any war but, once they get into it, they give it their full support. They went along with President Truman's decision to resist the invasion of South Korea in June 1950 and to join the United Nations in an internationalized operation to repel the aggression.

By November 1952, however, there was disillusionment about the Korean War. The pressure from America's allies in Europe to refrain from bombing the supply bases inside Red China gave the Communists their "privileged sanctuary." This was resented by many people in this country who felt that, once American troops in large numbers were committed to a war, it should be fought with maximum power.

The feeling that swept this country in 1952 was one of dissatisfaction over the way the war was being waged by the Truman Administration. This sentiment was augmented by the views of those citizens who believed it was a waste of American manpower to prolong a war that couldn't be won. That's why the Democratic party lost strength at the polls in 1952. History could repeat itself, with the Democratic Administration suffering in 1966 or 1968.

But there is another possible turn of events. The war may wind up in a stalemate, as did the Korean War. The voters will then heave a sigh of relief, especially as the draft calls are diminished to normal size and the troops in Southeast Asia are brought back home.

SO THERE IS much to be gained politically by fighting the war vigorously and shortening it. If peace negotiations develop into an armistice like that which was signed in Korea, the effect on American politics would tend to be in favor of the administration in power.

It will, on the other hand, be recalled that, when the 1952 election was held, there were armistice negotiations going on but no settlement. The people got the impression that, if Dwight Eisenhower were elected, he would bring the war to an early conclusion. In fact, during the campaign he promised to make a special trip to Korea, and this dramatically emphasized his desire to settle the war quickly.

THE VIET NAM war is hardly likely to be won before next November but, if it is being fought intensively, the Administration would surely benefit. Also, an early ending under honorable circumstances would be a feather in the cap of the Democratic Administration.

An unfavorable reaction from the Administration's point of view could come only if the Viet Nam war drags on without getting anywhere and without full use being made of all power available—ground, sea and air forces, as well as trade embargoes and blockades of Communist ports.

Letters to the Editor

Paducah Pastor Defends National Church Group

EDITOR, The Avalanche-Journal: I feel that it is necessary for me to protest the statements made in your editorial attacking the policies of the National Council of Churches in the morning edition of December 31, 1965.

This is something which is too prevalent in our world today.

If there are some things which are done that you do not like then you have every right to protest them, but I do not like to see a fine organization condemned out of hand because of one activity.

The NCC does many things in the fields of education, welfare, and in carrying the message of the Christian religion to the world. This is the voice of the churches on a national scale. I am in favor of hearing from this organization of the churches even more than we do today because the church needs to be a primary part of both social and political issues wherever it is to be found. When the church begins to ignore these things it is failing in its duty to be the leader in all fields of human life.

As you suggested, the church does need to be spiritual but it also needs to show men the Christian way of life in daily living. When the NCC makes a statement or does something in political or in a sociological crises it should be commended for making an effort instead of being destroyed without a trial.

Anyone who desires to do so can find out their aims and the work which they are doing. It may surprise many to find how active and effective an organization it really is, so please don't destroy one of the greatest efforts Christianity is making today in our country because you do not agree with one thing which they are doing in fields which the church needs to be or it will lose its voice to all Christians everywhere.

Your editorial suggested to me that you think the Church should cancel its national organization and build a wall around itself so that anyone who gets tired of the pressures of the world and life can enter and be safe from the evil without. Men cannot do these things by themselves. The affairs of men need Christianity just as much as men need to be Christian in their own lives.

Donald F. Tiller, Pastor, First Christian Church, Paducah.

(Dear Mr. Tiller: The editorial to which you refer did not criticize the ultra-liberal NCC for any welfare or spiritual activities in which it may engage. It criticized its campaign to open the UN doors to Red China, opposition to the American stand against Communism in Viet Nam, purely political lobbying in Washington and the encouragement of racial and labor disorders, some of them in direct violation of the law, in this country. Along with countless other church members, I deny that the NCC is "the voice of the churches in this country." Regardless of our differing opinions, thanks for your letter and I am happy to give you an opportunity to state your views, publicly. Cordially, The Editor.)

Little Girl Gets Daddy Told In Unique Fashion

EDITOR, The Avalanche-Journal: I hate to bother you with anything so trivial as this, but I thought you might enjoy a good laugh as we did.

My two-year-old daughter, Lori, was being unusually tacky last Sunday morning. My husband smacked her a couple of times on her behind. He apparently didn't hit her hard enough to make her cry, but just enough to make her mad. She gave him a terribly dirty look and said, "Daddies never spank little girls like that, you——." She seemed to pause, hunting for a word, then she said, "You old football game!"

She apparently associated him with all those terrible football games he sat through Saturday.

We really got a big laugh out of it, although what she called him fit perfectly.

Mrs. Ed Watson, 4319 40th St.

(Dear Mrs. Watson: Please don't apologize for sending me the above. I enjoyed the letter and salute Lori. Furthermore, it's like a breath of fresh air to get a letter these days which isn't either praising one set of would-be Moseses, or berating another! Cordially, The Editor.)

He Recalls Pledge Made To Voters By Humphrey

EDITOR, The Avalanche-Journal: I note in your paper where you thought that an honest explanation of the Liberal Establishment's latest peace mission was due the long suffering taxpayer. I believe that an honest answer or an explanation from any such source would be impossible to obtain.

I also noticed a picture of Hubert Horatio Humphrey with his Russian Cossack cap at a jaunty angle and with that eternal simple smile on his face and was reminded of a campaign promise I heard him make to a gathering in New York City, that if elected they would shut the big mouths of the anti-Communists. So maybe that is what this mission is all about.

Farm Program Is Rapped By Cotton Man In City

EDITOR, The Avalanche-Journal: How many of our citizens realize that as taxpayers they are contributing over $6,000,000,000 annually to help the Federal government take away many of our farmers' freedoms? In return for the loss of his freedoms, the farmer is soothed by government handouts, or subsidies. The old story of "selling his birthright for a mess of porridge."

On the South Plains, we are proud of our wonderful production of over two million bales cotton annually. Yet this costs the taxpayers from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 each year for the losses incurred in handling the million and half bales that enter the government loan. How much longer will we be willing to see our dollars used to create a semi-serfdom of our great agricultural industry?

Now what have these billions spent in cotton programs accomplished besides making it necessary that our once independent farmers depend on Federal subsidies for their livelihood? They have built up a surplus of over 15 million bales that hangs over our heads like Damocles sword and will adversely affect everyone in the cotton industry from grower to consumer for years to come. By maintaining artificial high prices on United States cotton, the cotton programs have lost many of our markets to foreign growths and synthetics. The South Plains in particular has lost most of its cotton markets as this area is producing an inferior quality of cotton which is not acceptable to either domestic or foreign spinners but does have a ready home in the government loan. Also, the cotton acreage is being reduced especially will this be true under the new program starting in 1966. This acreage reduction does serious damage to many associated industries.

Shall the farmers of our great nation who have done such an outstanding job of production in providing food and fibers for not only this country but for the needy all over the world, ever return to the days of individual freedom and run their farms as they see fit or shall they continue to live complacently on the handouts from the "Great Subsidized Society?"

Says U.S. Economy Hurt By Aid To Red Nations

EDITOR, The Avalanche-Journal: "What is wrong in Washington?"

This is the question recently asked by a 19-year old U.S. Marine in Viet Nam. The young Marine pointed out that the Communist Viet Cong were using Polish trucks in their operations, and he wanted to know why the United States continues to send aid to Communist Poland. John Stormer, the author of "None Dare Call It Treason," related this.

It was reported in the "Phildelphia Inquirer" that Poland had completed a trade agreement to supply trucks and other military vehicles to North Viet Nam.

Tito of Yugoslavia, while in Moscow, joined with the USSR on July 1st in pledging all necessary aid to Communist North Viet Nam. Two weeks later, Yugoslavia received from the USA 92,000 bales of cotton, and 25,000 tons of vegetable oil. Only 18 days after Tito's public admission of alignment against us in Viet Nam, Senator Fulbright conforming to the typical Liberal philosophy) made a speech in which he praised Yugoslavia as being "friendly" and "certainly not hostile to the United States." The almost $3 billion aid given Yugoslavia since WW II by the USA has given considerable strength to Tito's ability to contribute to the Communist aggression against South Viet Nam.

President Johnson pushed through legislation allowing him to give Communist nations credit backed by the Export-Import Bank for credit purchases. Anyone should know that this would ultimately result in the U.S. Bank (U.S. Taxpayers in reality) having to pay off Communists bad debts. This reminds one of the report of Communist Eugene Dennis to the Communist Party USA in which he stated that the obtaining of credit and trade by the Communist nations from the capitalistic nations was furthering the "Leninist principle . . . to strengthen the economy and positions of socialism."

All of the aid shipped to the Communist-bloc through the years, and being shipped today, has contributed to the Communist aggression against South Viet Nam and has helped multiply the number of Americans killed.

Giving aid to the enemy is only one of many things wrong in Washington, but it can be corrected if Americans will raise a storm of protest. The voice of the people will preserve their freedom, but by continuing in silence they will get Communist enslavement.

OFF BEATEN TRAILS:

Blue Gumbo Won't Give

By ED SYERS

THAT VERY LITTLE is stronger than the lure of buried treasure comes to hand with a query from Fort Worth's Albert B. Barnes. He ponders one of the most persistently search-enticing of all Texas treasures—the $2 million Lafitte cache, allegedly in swampy Hendricks Lake, in the East Texas forests near Carthage.

"I first read the story of how Gaspar Trammell, enroute to St. Louis by wagon train with pirate Jean Lafitte's treasure—taken from the Spanish ship Santa Rosa—dumped six wagon loads into the lake to keep it from being captured by (Spanish) soldiers from San Antonio in 1816.

"IN THE FIGHT that followed, several of Trammell's men were killed. The wagons were taken to San Antonio, but the treasure was missing. Six teams with cut traces were found; a detachment went back to hunt the missing wagons. The rainy season had set in and the lake—fed by the Sabine—had risen several feet. No trace of the wagons could be found.

"Many have searched for the treasure since. Uncle Fox Tatum (town below the lake bears his name) believed the legend so firmly that, in the late 1800's, he sold his sawmill and cotton gin to finance a cofferdam on the east side, tried to lower the water and probe the mud. The rains came again, and the search was abandoned.

"From a Palestine paper, I read that a man from Iowa was in the area this Summer for another try. Whether he found anything, I haven't been able to find out. Can you?"

MR. BARNES' recount holds close to the "fact" of legend. The brig Santa Rosa, bound from Vera Cruz with a fortune in silver bars for desperate, empire-toppling Spain, tried to run pirate blockade. She was boarded and sunk within vast, many-fingered Matagorda Bay.

Some say Lafitte's men cached part of the treasure down Padre's blowing dunes. Another school, headed by treasure-diving Harry Rieseberg, is certain silver is still aboard the ghost hulk, somewhere yet in Matagorda's many hundred square miles of bottom-dark water. For a fortune, just find the ship.

HENDRICKS LAKE is third school: the treasure, spirited round to then-pirate Galveston and wagoned up old Trammel's Trace for St. Louis only to be counter-hijacked by pursuing Spain, 200 miles from sea. But not before its silver went deep in bottom blue gumbo mud.

The LeClaire, Iowa, searcher was there in fact this Summer with rights to grapple that bottom, and a plea to be left unmolested by curiosity's fanfare. For now, he's gone.

Best information on Hendricks' bonanza. Carthage's Barnie Waldrop is one of the rare pros in treasure hunting. As of today, he reports that the treasure—if there is one—is still clutched under 10 feet of water in the bottom bog: hard indeed to gouge, harder even to know where to start. That bottomless gumbo still chokes our best electronic detection.

Just as it has, every other of man's efforts for a century and a half.

SAN ANTONIO'S Mrs. W. M. R.: ". . . wonder if you have any information about Trammell's (Trammel's) Trace. My great grandfather, a Trammell, came to Texas about 1848—late, I'm sure; but there may be family connection; many ask me about it. (For this old trail north, up East Texas forest for America's Southwest back door, begin with Texas State Historical Association's monumentally-excellent "Handbock of Texas." Meantime, perhaps East Texas historians will help you out.)

MAILBOX: (To ask or tell what, where or why in Texas, address O. B. T., Care Ed Syers, Box F, Ingram, Texas.

Mineral Wells' Mrs. Jo Broaddus: "You ask about the big Katy R.R. (publicity-staged 1869) wreck at Crush, near Waco. I happened to be one of the many (thousand) spectators." (Note: More later on this one.) Corpus Christi's James N. McDonald: "I'd like details about a unit which my foster great grandfather joined at Goliad during the Civil War—Hobby's Infantry. What were their exploits?" (Note: For Colonel Hobby's Fighting 8th, there should be many a spokesman.) Oklahoma City's James Simpson: ". . . down the old railroad from Houston to Victoria are some towns . . . Edna and Louise among them . . . named, I believe, for a family . . ." (Note: Anybody to place-name the old "Macaroni Line?")

UN Charter

THE UNITED States will have to make a far-sighted reappraisal of its relations with the United Nations before the next regular General Assembly session. A thoughtful reinterpretation of the U.N. Charter now appears in order.

Action on major issues of war and peace initially was clearly the U.N. Security Council's responsibility. After the Soviet "big power" veto virtually immobilized the Security Council, the United States sought and obtained a charter interpretation that the General Assembly could take agreed voluntary action when the Security Council failed to act.

The charter states that General Assembly "decisions on important questions"—specifically including peace-keeping operations and admission by a two-thirds majority, can be decided by a simple majority.

What is or is not an "imporiant question" has been repeatedly debated and is not of vital importance. The Asin-African group of mostly new nations, numbering 61 of the Assembly's 117 membership, can now swing a simple majority on any question on which they can stick together.

In the General Assembly just adjourned, the Afro-Asian bloc pushed through an anti-colonialism resolution—clearly an "important question"—with a ruling that it required only a simple majority vote. As U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg warned, that may set a dangerous precedent for scrapping the two-thirds majority rule on decisions opposed by, and detrimental to, the United States and its major allies.

The United States of course retains its Security Council veto, and it can refuse to abide by adverse voluntary recommendations voted by the General Assembly. But either course could be painfully embarrassing. Consequently, the United States should, before and during the next General Assembly session, press hard for restoration and full respect for the two-thirds majority rule on important questions, which should be more realistically defined. — (Corpus Christi Caller-Times)

VOTE ON ANNEXATION DUE

Water District Elections Slated On Plains Tuesday

Voters will go to the polls Tuesday to elect three directors and 13 county committeeman to the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District headquartered in Lubbock.

Polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Officials emphasized that any qualified property owner within the boundaries of the 13-county district can vote.

Also on the ballot will be the question of whether or not several sections of land in Cochran County will be added to the district. This land is north and west of Morton and south of Whiteface.

Directors whose terms are expiring include Russell Bean of Lubbock, who represents Lubbock and Lynn counties; Weldon Newsom of Morton, who represents Cochran, Hockley and Lamb counties; and Chester Mitchell of Lockney, who represents Floyd County.

All are up for re-election. Bean, who currently is serving as chairman of the board, and Newsom are unopposed. Ernest Lee Thomas of Floydada is on the ballot with Mitchell in Floyd County.

One nominee will be elected to each five-man county committee in the district. The county committee approves well drilling permits and makes recommendations on various matters to the five-man district board.

District directors and county committeemen each are elected to two-year terms.

Candidates for committeeman from Precinct 2 in Lubbock County are Edward C. Moseley, the incumbent, and Joe Schramm, both of Slaton.

Lubbock County polling places include the Shallowater Community Clubhouse, Wolfforth City Hall, the old county courthouse in Lubbock, Idalou City Hall and the Slaton Community Clubhouse.

Officials explained that the Texas Water Commission last April redefined the boundaries of the Ogallala formation south of the Canadian River to include additional land in Cochran County, making that area eligible to become a part of the district.

Most of Cochran County already is in the district. Landowners in the newly redefined area, officials said, have petitioned the board of directors to become a part of the district.

Residents within the areas applying for admission to the district will vote on the annexation issue. All qualified voters living within the district also are eligible to vote on the proposed addition.

Officials say a qualified voter is defined as one who has a valid poll tax and owns property in the district. Voters must cast ballots in their home counties, but they may vote at any one of the polling places in their county.

Holdover directors are Ross Goodwin of Muleshoe, who represents Bailey, Castro and Parmer counties, and Andrew Kershen of Hereford, who represents Armstrong, Deaf Smith, Potter and Randall counties. Mitchell presently is serving as secretary-treasurer.

Nominees Listed

Nominees for county committeemen include:

Armstrong County, Precinct 3—George Denny and John Patterson, both of Happy. Dewitt McGehee of Wayside, the incumbent, is not seeking re-election.

Bailey County (committeeman-at-large) — Gene Caldwell, Ernest Lamm and J. W. Witherspoon, the incumbent, all of Muleshoe; and Melvin Hale, Maple.

Castro County, Precinct 1 — Calvin Petty of Dimmitt, who is unopposed.

Cochran County, Precinct 4—Willard Henry, the incumbent, and Kenneth G. Walls, both of Morton.

Deaf Smith County, Precinct 2—W. H. Gentry and Charles Hoover, both of Hereford. L. E. Ballard of Hereford, the incumbent, is not up for re-election.

Floyd County (committeeman-at-large)—J. F. Hale, the incumbent, and Kenneth Bean, both of Floydada; E. J. Foster, Lockney; and Orland Howard, Dougherty.

Hockley County, Precinct 4—S. H. Schoenrock of Levelland, the incumbent, who is unopposed.

Lamb County, Precinct 3—W. B. Jones, the incumbent, and Leon Leonard, both of Anton.

Lubbock County, Precinct 2—Edward C. Moseley, the incumbent, and Joe Schramm, both of Slaton.

Lynn County (committeeman-at-large) — Roy Lynn Kahlich, the incumbent, and Don Smith, both of Wilson.

Parmer County, Precinct 3—Wendol Christian, the incumbent, and Webb Gober, both of Farwell.

Potter County, Precinct 4—W. J. Hill Jr. of Bushland, the incumbent.

Randall County (committeeman-at-large) — Paul Dudenhoeffer, the incumbent, and Ralph Ruthart, both of Canyon.

LAW TO EXPIRE

Food-For-Peace Plan Seen As Major Issue

By OVID A. MARTIN
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON — The major farm legislation expected to engage the attention of Congress this year is the Food-for-Peace Program under which $17 billion worth of American farm products have been either donated or sold at concessionary terms to needy counters since 1955.

Legislation authorizing disposal of what has been regarded as farm surpluses is due to expire at the end of this year. President Johnson undoubtedly will recommend an extension, but with possible significant changes.

A growing problem of hunger abroad — a problem that has gained wide recognition and produced strong demands for greater American effort in solving — will put this legislation in a broader category than farm legislation. It may even become a major foreign policy issue, and as a consequence could be put into the hands of congressional foreign affairs committees instead of the agriculture committees.

There are strong demands that this program be given a change of emphasis. Heretofore it has been mainly one for helping stabilize American agriculture by moving surpluses to underdeveloped countries needing them.

Support For Change

There is much support for the idea that the program managers forget the surplus disposal objective of the past — largely because surpluses have been greatly reduced — and concentrate on using it as an instrument foreign policy.

Under this change, American foods would be used primarily to bolster nutritional levels and economies of friendly countries striving to resist Communist pressure, both from within and from without.

The program would be used also as an instrument of propaganda — that is, to show the developing areas that this country's free political and economic systems are able to produce more than communism can.

Efforts to make such a shift in the program's basic concept could embroil it in jurisdictional squabbles. Naturally, farm leaders in Congress — particularly the members of agriculture committees — will put up a fight to keep the legislation in their hands.

Could Lead To Shift

Likewise, there could develop a behind-the-scenes battle within the executive branch over future administration of the program. It has been and is now largely in the hands of the Agriculture Department, although the State Department has some say in the matter of determining foreign recipients.

Making the program a weapon of international politics could well lead to its complete shift to the State Department.

Involved in the legislative consideration will be many proposals that in view of a need for increased food production to avert hunger among the globe's expanding population, this country should lift some of its restrictions on farmers.

Agriculture Department officials are opposed at this time to any legislative move to lessen crop controls. They take the position that the solution to world hunger is not to be found in greatly expanded American production, but in efforts to help underdeveloped countries build stronger agricultures of their own. They say there is ample legal authority for increased U.S. production when and if it is needed.

May Hint At Views

But those who favor greater movement of U.S. food abroad argue that creating strong agricultures in such areas will be a slow and drawn out process on which the rapidly expanding population will not wait.

The character and the direction of the legislative course of the Food-for-Peace Program doubtless will be influenced greatly by recommendations expected to be made by President Johnson. Some hint of his views may show up in his message on the State of the Union, with full details to follow in a special message later.

The congressional discussion of such legislation doubtless will include proposals by some groups, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, that the government get out of the business of handling foods sent abroad under the assistance program.

Want Curbs Lifted

They say the program should operate through the commodity market system. Funds would be made available to needy countries, which in turn would be free to go into the markets to buy the quantity, quality and kinds of food they wanted, without restrictions now imposed by the government.

The Farm Bureau contends withdrawal of the government would give agriculture greater stability, reduce the need for federal aid to farmers, and help promote the philosophy of a free agriculture, as well as other free institutions, in the rising countries.

But strong opposition to this idea is expected from the administration as well as from farm groups which long have supported government farm programs, including price and production controls.

FOR STRIPPING TEST PLOTS

New Harvester Designed For Cotton Experiments

By DUANE HOWELL
Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

A funny looking cotton harvester is being used at the South Plains Research and Extension Center here.

It's a "plot harvester," a unique cotton stripper designed and built especially for gathering cotton in small test plots rapidly and efficiently. It's not intended for commercial farm use.

The two-row stripper is mounted on a convention farm tractor and includes and overhead platform where a worker can control the flow of cotton into sample sacks on into a trailer.

Dr. L. L. Ray, coordinator of cotton research at the center, and Elmer Hudspeth, chief agricultural engineer, designed the machine, believed to be the only one of its kind ever built.

Alan Brashers, an engineer with the Agricultural Research Service at the center, assisted in designing the stripper and did the sheet metal layout.

The machine includes the front part of a a conventional brush-roll cotton stripper. But there's nothing conventional about the rest of the machine.

Engineers at the center built dual elevators to carry stripped cotton to the overhead platform or to a trailer hooked onto the tractor.

The elevators are joined together but are separated by an inside partition down the middle. They are equipped with improved green boll separators developed earlier by the center.

Each elevators carries its own blower and each handles cotton stripped from a single row.

A man on the overhead platform can operate a lever to send cotton from both elevators flowing into sample sacks or can have one row dumping into a sack while the other row goes into the trailer.

Both rows can be channeled into the trailer if desired. Virtually any combination of where researchers want to put the cotton from separate rows is possible. Each row can be put into separate sacks or both rows can go into one sack.

Need for the special harvester is evidenced by the fact that Ray, a cotton breeder, has more than 4,000 test plots in his work alone.

Other researchers working with cotton at the center probably have at least that many more plots.

With this vast number of plots, which range from 1/65th to 1/400th of an acre in size, time obviously is an important factor in harvesting.

Ray says hand-harvesting would require an average of at least one-half hour to each plot. That would mean a total of about 2,000 man-hours just to harvest plots associated with his breeding work.

The center in the past frequently has used a convention stripper with a sack tacked onto to elevator outlet in harvesting its experimental plots.

But this still was considered too time consuming by cotton researchers at the center. This method also didn't offer nearly the flexibility of operation that is a distinguishing mark of the new plot harvested.

A plot that's 1/400th of an acre is only one row about 30 feet

ALL-DAY AGENDA

Vegetable Conference Set For Hale Tuesday

PLAINVIEW (Special) — About 150 persons are expected to attend a West Texas vegetable growers conference here Tuesday at the Hale County Exhibition Center.

The conference is scheduled from 8:30 a. m. to 4:40 p. m., according to Bruce Parr of Friona, president of the sponsoring South Plains Vegetable Growers Council. Theme of the meeting is "Recent Developments in Vegetable Production."

Officers of the area growers council will be elected at a business session at 11:30 a. m. Ed Lewis of Plainview is vice president and Eugene Tannahill of Lockney is secretary-treasurer. John Curry and Preston Walker, both of Plainview, are directors.

Orville D. McCoy, associate vegetable crops specialist with the University of California's Imperial Valley Field Station at El Centro, will present the keynote address to open the conference.

Gordon Powell, a Texas A&M marketing specialist, will discuss marketing of vegetables. Fertilization will be discussed by Dr William Trogdon of Best Fertilizers, Plainview.

Regulations under the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act will be explained by Joseph Ward, a regulatory specialist with the U. S. Department of Agriculture's vegetable division at Fort Worth.

Archie Martin of Rowland-Gordon Co., Plainview, will report on soil incorporation of herbicides for vegetables. Disease control in vegetable crops will be discussed by Dr. Bob Berry of Lubbock, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Soil fumigation for vegetables will be discussed by John Wedeloh of Dow Chemical Co., Dallas.

Bob Reed of Texas Tech and Jack Kyle of the South Plains Research and Extension Center at Lubbock will report on results of vegetable research conducted on the South Plains last year.

Plains Farming Top Area Cotton Tested By Tech

By DUANE HOWELL
Avalanche-Journal Farm Editor

Fiber tests were run at the Textile Research Laboratories at Texas Tech the other day on cotton with the best combination of length and strength that the TRL has even handled from the South Plains.

The cotton was grown by Wright Carlisle of Crosby County and was custom-ginned at the Bill Smith Gin at Ralls. It's Del Cerro, an open-boll, longstaple variety developed in New Mexico.

Billy B. Crumley, associate director of the TRL, said the cotton tested at the labs had an average staple length of 1 9-32nds-inch and an average fiber strength of 112,000 pounds per square inch.

"We've tested cotton grown on the South Plains that was stronger than that," Crumley said. "But we've never tested any that had any beter combination of length and strength."

The TRL ran length, strength and fineness tests on 75 bales of the Del Cerro. Micronaire, a measure of fiber fineness or maturity, averaged 3.6.

Spinning Tests Set

A textile mill in North Carolina now will spin samples of the cotton a trial basis. Results of the TRL tests were sent to the mill, which liked the looks of the fiber data and requested samples to study spinnability.

If the spinning performance is as good as expected, the mill has indicated that it would take up to 10,000 bales of Del Cerro next year, Crumley said.

This would present the possibility that a group of growers could band together to pool the production of Del Cerro off small acreages to achieve enough volume for direct marketing to the mill.

Mills generally don't look to the South Plains, which has a widespread reputation for producing low quality, short staple cotton, in meeting their needs for the longer and stronger fibers.

As a result, area growers who do produce the better kind of cotton often have difficulty in selling dabs of longer staple fiber scattered out here and there.

Direct Purchases Grow

Cotton must be assembled in even-running lots for efficient marketing. This is one reason more attention is being focused on producing and block ginning a certain kind of cotton grown around an individual gin point.

Also involved in the interest in block ginning is the growth of direct purchases of cotton by textile makers from growers or growers' agents.

Grade designations, which have a direct bearing on the value of cotton that goes into the government loan program, have become less meaningful to mills in recent years.

But farmers naturally demand the best possible grade for their cotton and ginners must process it to meet the needs of their customers. Neither the farmer nor the ginner can be blamed for this.

Mill purchasing departments long have contended that this emphasis on grade in many cases has hurt staple length and other fiber properties because of "over-machining" at the gin to reduce foreign material in the lint and thereby improve grade.

Netted More Dollars

Farmers in many cases, however, were able to net more dollars per bale by sacrificing staple length and weight in order to get the higher values—built on the loan schedules — for higher grades.

Complaints from mills began building up with the great expansion in mechanical harvesting and an increase in trash in cotton carried to gins, which had to use more machinery to clean the lint.

Mills today, however, can pulverize the trash in the card web and substantially reduce its adverse effect in subsequent steps of manufacturing.

In other words, they can do a pretty good job of cleaning the cotton themselves and not run what they consider to be a risk of damaging inherent staple length and other fiber properties by too much machining at the gin.

Some mills claim it's more profitable to use trashier cotton that still possesses its original length, length uniformity and distribution, and other important spinning properties.

Gone To Custom-Ginning

That's why some of them have gone to custom ginning where they specify the amount of gin cleaning and drying to avoid what they regard as "manufactured" higher grades and "artificial" values.

An estimated 40,000 to 50,000 bales of South Plains cotton were custom-ginned this past year. Some observers expect the volume to increase in the future.

Carlisle believes growing Del Cerro and ginning it to the mill's specifications could fit into this picture. He was well pleased with the cotton's field performance this past season.

In a cotton experiment, Carlisle planted Del Cerro and three popular stormproof varieties on May 5. He had four replicas in each variety and all were treated the same. Each variety was planted on 20 acres or more.

Carlisle watered the plots in early spring, irrigating every row. He applied two summer irrigations, one at first bloom and the other at peak bloom. He watered every other row in the summer.

Gathered With Stripper

None of the test plots received any harvest-aid chemicals and all were harvested in December. Del Cerro was harvested with a brush-type stripper and the others with a standard stripper.

Waste behind the harvesters looked approximately the same, Carlisle said. However, this will be measured at a later date, he added.

A stormproof variety produced the top yield of 834 pounds of lint per acre worth approximately 27 cents (loan price). The Del Cerro produced the next highest yield of 771 pounds of lint worth 33-plus cents (loan price).

In addition, the Del Cerro staple ranged from a low of 1¼ to a high of 1 5-16ths-inch, Carlisle said. He expects to get more than the loan value for this cotton.

Carlisle said the gross value of Del Cerro, based on loan value, at $254.43 per acre beat the top-yielding variety's gross of $225.18.

"Definite Promise" Seen

"As a grower, I think this Del Cerro has definite promise," he said. "It didn't require an abnormal amount of irrigation and it survived at least two West Texas sandstorms . . . It was grown and harvested under practices used by at least 80 per cent of the West Texas farmers."

Carlisle stressed that he had given the open-boll cotton only a one-year test and pointed out that it also had the benefit of an unusually late killing freeze.

"However, I believe that watering every other row kept the ground temperature up," he added, "and I believe this cotton would have matured properly anyway.

"I would definitely recommend it for further testing. This may be the variety to keep West Texas in the cotton market and not in the government loan program."

More hazards, of course, are associated with the production of open-boll cottons on the South Plains than with the stormproof varieties traditionally grown in the area. True stormproof varieties at present generally won't produce a consistent one-inch or better staple.

Ag Eco Study On Plains Starts With Interviews

Preliminary work has started as a prelude to a major economic study, concerned primarily with agriculture and related industries, being planned on the South Plains for next spring.

Dr. R. E. Patterson of Texas A&M said the study will result in an analysis of the agricultural situation of the South Plains and is expected to present guidelines for continued expansion of the area's economy.

Patterson is dean of Texas A&M's College of Agriculture and director of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

He said A&M, as the state's land grant university was requested to give leadership to the project. A number of other agencies and institutions also are being asked to contribute support to the effort.

Coordinator Named

Extension Farm Management Specialist John Seibert, of Lubbock has been named coordinator of the study and has already begun preliminary work on it.

In an effort to get a wide range of views on the problems and opportunities facing the South Plains, he has started interviewing area economic and agricultural leaders. He expects to interview more than 150 people in this phase of the study.

Seibert is also contacting researchers, educators and others and asking them to contribute written reports on their special fields of work.

Their analysis of various agricultural enterprises will be an important part of the study, Seibert said.

Proposed In November

The project was first proposed in November when a group of about 60 area farmers and others met in Lubbock with Extension District Agent Billy C. Gunter to discuss the need for such an area-wide study.

The group noted that South Plains counties have many problems in common. They felt a study of the South Plains as a unit could greatly benefit the area and suggested that Texas A&M administrators be asked to back the project and lend resources of the institution to carry it out.

A study similar to the South Plains project is underway in the North Plains. It is known as the Panhandle economic study and is being coordinated by Extension Farm Management Specialist Jim Murphrey of Amarillo.

Head Of Farm Office Appointed At Tahoka

TAHOKA (Special) — Wallace Dove, 34, of Wichita County has been named manager of the Lynn County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office to succeed Don Saverance, who has resigned to accept a similar post at Abilene.

The resignation of Saverance is effective Jan. 14.

Dove has been manager of the Wichita County office a year and prior to that worked in ASCS offices in Erath, LaSalle and Harris counties. He was a coach and teacher in Stephenville schools before joining the ASCS.

Dove will move to Tahoka about Jan. 15 with his wife and two children.

Watching Bees Pays Off In The Long Run

SALINA, Kan. (AP)—Ed Kliem watched a swarm of bees build and work a honey comb for three years between the third floor ceiling and the roof at St. John's school.

When workmen began tearing down the building, Kliem moved in and collected three gallons of honey for his patience and trouble.

Plot Stripper Built Here

long. And the cotton from each plot must be accurately tagged and weighed to provide the basis for later computations.

Such small plots mean that a harvesting crew frequently runs into a situation where one row is part of one test and the next row is involved in a different study.

The harvesting pace with a conventional two-row stripper was slowed by this and other problems of a similar nature.

"We have to be extremely careful, in handling hundreds of samples, to keep from getting cotton from different plots mixed up," Ray pointed out.

Portable scales at times are used on the overhead platform to weigh the samples, particularly in the center's work at various locations over the area. In most cases at the centeritself, however, samples are just tagged in the field and are weighed later.

Cotton researchers use complicated scientific formulas in converting sample weights from plots of specified size to computed yields per acre.

With the new machine, a crew of three people can harvest about 60 plots an hour, a pace that any experiment station in the country probably would find difficulty in matching.

The machine cost about $2,000 to build, not counting the stripper unit. It can harvest a plot a minute in cotton research work where the average plot size is about 1/100th of an acre.

"If we cut just 10 to 15 seconds off the time of handling a sample, a considerable labor saving will have accrued by the end of the season," Ray pointed out.

Sacks of cotton from the center's test plots weigh about 20 to 60 pounds each. The samples are weighed in tenths of a pound. After weighing, a two to three-pound sample is taken for ginning.

The center can gin about 35 to 40 samples per hour on a special model gin that includes a 10-saw strand, bur breaker and bur extractor-beater, a cleaner and condensor. A 33-saw stand also can be used.

After ginning and classing, much of the cotton is sent to the Textile Research Laboratories at Texas Tech for fiber analyses and tests on spinning performance.

Cotton researchers then have a complete picture of how experimental breeding lines, for example, performed under a given set of conditions in the field and their functional effectiveness in the spinning room.

This field-to-spinning picture is necessary for a complete evaluation of breeding lines and other cotton research work.

Garza Picks Top Duo For Conservation

POST (Special) — Ferrell Wheeler and Mrs. Kay Beach have been awarded the Garza County Soil Conservation District's 1965 outstanding conservation farmer and rancher awards, respectively.

Wheeler farms south of Southland and Mrs. Beach's ranch is northeast of Post in the Verbena community.

"These two have gone in partnership with Mother Nature to retain the natural resources on their land," said board member Sam Ellis of Southland in announcing the award winners. The award plaques were presented by Wayne Williams, chairman of the board of supervisors of the Garza County SCD.

Mrs. Beach was the first farmer-rancher in Garza County to enter into and carry out a Great Plains Soil Conservation contract, according to Gary L. Reed, work unit supervisor of the Soil Conservation Service here.

In addition to a ranch of approximately 5,000 acres, Mrs. Beach has two sections of good farm land. Brush control, ponds, cross-fences and terraces are among the conservation practices he carries out is a crop rotation of cotton and grain sorghums.

CONSERVATION WINNERS—Ferrell Wheller, left, and Mrs. Kay Beach are recipients of the 1965 Outstanding Farmer and Rancher awards from the Garza County Soil Conservation District. The award plaques were presented by Wayne Williams, center, chairman of the district's board of supervisors.

Wheeler farms for his father, Horace Wheeler, and probably has as good an irrigated farm as any in the county, the SCS work unit supervisor said. Among the conservation practices on her farm and ranch.

Dingle Is One Of World's Great Oases For Drinkers

By EDDY GILMORE

DINGLE, Ireland (AP) — High, but far from dry, on the westernmost tip of Ireland, Dingle is one of the world's great oases for the drinking man.

With a population of less than 1,000 men, women and children, Dingle has 48 licensed bars.

It even has bars in butcher shops and groceries.

"And why not?" asked dark-eyed Margaret O'Grady. "Suppose you're in the butcher's. You're waiting for your order. Now, what's more natural than stepping over to the other side of the shop and buying a drink?"

Down by the waterfront there is one little stretch of downtown Dingle where there are nine full-fledged bars, huddling together like old friends supporting one another, with nothing to separate them but walls.

Wild Winds

Jimmy Flahive's bar is down at the far end, out where the wild Atlantic winds pound in to Dingle Bay.

Why does one small town have so many bars?

"Ah," Jimmy Flahive said, "You're looking at Dingle with prejudice, with a one-sided point of view. Be objective, sir. Look at it logically and say to yourself, 'It's London, and New York and Paris what's wrong. They don't have enough bars. Dingle's got the proportion right.'"

A short, broad-shouldered man, with a face as brown as a whisky bottle, joined the discussion, reasoning:

"Look at it this way, sir. With a population just under 1,000, and the number of bars just under 50, we have a drinking place for every 20 souls-men, women and children. But as many of the women don't, and as none of the children do, we figure we've got one bar for every eight full-grown drinking men."

Another Foreigner

Up the road from James Flahive's bar, another foreigner was drinking in Nora Kennedy's bar. He was from Cahirciveen, 18 miles across Dingle Bay, and for that reason a foreigner in Dingle.

Dingle lays claim to being the most westerly town in Europe, to being closer to the United States than any other town in Europe.

"That's not so," said the man from across Dingle Bay. "Cahirciveen's closer to America than Dingle."

A tall man with a rain-soaked overcoat and a blue-red nose looked up from his stout at the far end of the bar and said: "You talk like a fool. All but an idiot would know that Dingle is more west than Cahirciveen. Look at the bloody map."

As tempers flared I intervened, offering to go to a shop that advertised "Tourist Information" to settle the question.

Sold Dry Goods

The shop also sold dry goods and, as the door opened, a bell clanged somewhere well back in the unlighted interior. Finally a woman appeared.

"Is this the tourist office?"

"It is."

"You have some information on Dingle?"

"We closed on Oct. 15."

"But you're open."

"The shop's open, but the tourist office is closed," she said.

"Have you any pamphlets about Dingle?"

"They collected them and took them away," she replied, "but if you want to know anything, just write me a letter."

She disappeared into the gloom of the shop.

Outside an Atlantic storm raged—as no doubt the argument still did—down in one of Dingle's 48 licensed bars.

Pistol-Packin' Chaplain Goes With Paratroopers On Missions In Viet Nam

By JOHN T. WHEELER

BEN CAT, South Viet Nam (AP) — He's a pistol-packing, grenade-toting chaplain, ministering to the Screaming Eagles in South Viet Nam's jungle war.

Capt. Curtis Bowers, 33, Lancaster, Pa., looks the part of the fighting minister he has been dubbed by the men of the 1st Battalion of the 327th Infantry. The battalion is one of three in the Screaming Eagles, the 101st Airborne Brigade, stationed in Viet Nam.

His face is a mixture of choirboy innocence and the ruggedness of a battle-hardened paratroop company commander.

Goes On Missions

So far the Church of Nazarene minister has accompanied the battalion on every major operation in Viet Nam as well as tagging along on many company and platoon-size actions.

The 45-caliber pistol and fragmentation grenade hung on his pistol belt?

"I don't want to be a drag when the going is hot and heavy. I ought to be able to earn my own keep with these men. But I would only use these things in self-defense — my job is to save souls and not to take lives."

So far, the chaplain says, he hasn't had to use either grenade or pistol.

Face Many Dangers

Although most of them don't, chaplains carrying arms in Viet Nam represent a reality in a war where a peaceful-seeming bit of jungle or rubber plantation can erupt in bloody hand-to-hand fighting without warning.

Like other officers, Chaplain Bowers turns his collar under in the field so his rank cannot be spotted by a sniper.

Likewise, he makes sure the small silver cross on his camouflaged helmet is hidden by a leaf. From a distance it could easily be mistaken for an officer's silver bar.

During a recent operation eight miles northwest of here, Chaplain Bowers was touring the primeter chatting with the troops when the vicious snapping of Viet Cong automatic weapons filled the air around his head.

Problems Discussed

He hit the dirt behind a tree and moments later continued his rounds.

Bowers, whose wife, Doris, and their three children live in Lexington, Ky., says the job of helping the men of his battalion meet the realities of war is the most challenging he could imagine.

"When we first came, the men's biggest worry was whether a Christian could kill and still be a good Christian. Most have settled this for themselves now.

"Lately they are worried about their families if they get that telegram (Defense Department notification of next of kin in case of death or wound.")

After the initial rounds of sniper fire by the Viet Cong following the heliborne assault, the operation became a job of routine and mostly uneventful sweeping the area.

"You know, I'm glad it was a cold (unopposed) landing today. I prayed it wouldn't be a bad day for the battalion or the families."

WITH PRAYER AND PISTOL—His pistol and grenade hang at his belt as Chaplain (Capt.) Curtis Bowers (left) visits with an unidentified soldier in South Viet Nam. Bowers, 33-year-old Church of Nazarene minister from Lancaster, Pa., is called the "fighting minister" by the men to whom he ministers, the First Battalion of the 327th Infantry. But he carries he .45 calibre pistol and fragmentation grenade only for self defense, and thus far has not had to use them. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Drop Reported In Draft Call

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Selective Service system will provide about 29,400 men for the Army and Marines in February, a 9,000-man drop from this month's draft quota.

The Defense Department issued the draft quota Friday. It said 26,400 of the inductees would go to the Army and 3,000 would become Marines.

Draft calls to meet the nation's expanded commitment in South Viet Nam have been on the wane since reaching a peak of 40,200 men for December. The armed forces are near the halfway mark in a 340,000-man buildup scheduled to bring total strength to more than 2,980,000 men by the end of the summer.

Gastric Freezing Of Ulcer Unsuccessful

CHICAGO (UPI) — If you've been thinking about gastric freezing for your ulcer, four Minnesota physicians suggest you forget it.

The four reported Friday in the Journal of the American Medical Association that nine out of 10 times it failed.

They said gastric freezing might help a person's state of mind, but it doesn't do much for his ulcer.

They found out that freezing actually does reduce the secretion of acid and pepsin in the stomach. But within six or eight weeks, the secretions are back to their old levels.

The best that Drs. Claude R. Hitchcok, Ernest Ruiz, R. Duncan Sutherland and James E. Bitter, of the University of Minnesota Medical School and Hennipin County General Hospital, could say about gastric freezing is that it helps for a little while.

Beer On University Campus Now Legal

BERKELEY, Calif., (UPI) — The University of California got beer on the campus Friday for the first time—legally.

The Faculty Club received a beer license from the California Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, which has heretofore mostly adhered to an old "one-mile dry zone" around the school.

"The university is making great progress," declared Dr. Joseph P. Harris, emeritus professor of political science.

SOMEONE LIKED WINE

BRINDISI, Italy (AP)Workmen digging a cellar have uncovered a dozen well preserved, design-decorated wine amphorae believed to be the work of the famous Roman era artisan Eubulus. The earthen vases bore the sign with which he marked his work: "N. Eub."

During the 16th century, the Scots called whiskey "Ferintosh."

THE ONLY WAY

BLAYDON, England (UPI)— When no-one would buy his 1955 car 18-year-old Bob Erksine decided to give it away. On Friday he stopped Bernard Watson, 23, in the street, handed him the keys and said, "it's all yours." The two men had not previously met—"but it was the only way out," Erskine explained.

French or Italian bread dries quickly. It should be stored in the refrigerator in a plastic bag, if not eaten immediately.

WHEN MAKING income tax returns, one might bear in mind lessons learned from past filings:

While nearly one of every 11 income tax returns filed in 1965 contained a mathematical error, according to the Internal Revenue Service, it is even more appalling that two-thirds of the mistakes were in favor of Uncle Sam.

State sources of tax revenue vary with the states, but a compilation now has been released by the Commerce Clearing House revealing exact sources and amounts. Texas joins with New York as only two states finding other tax sources more lucrative than sales taxes in 1965.

New York relied most heavily last year on its income tax, while Texas depended on the gasoline tax for most of its revenue. Motor fuel taxes in Texas in 1965 provided 19 per cent of state tax revenues.

Motor fuel taxes provided 41 per cent of tax revenues in Nebraska and 20 per cent in Oklahoma, only other states west of New England relying heavily on motor fuels as a principal revenue source.

IN 1966 the gross national product will probably reach $711 billion, it is estimated, compared to $675 billion in 1965.

Registration Is Underway For Home Show

Reservations for exhibit space at the 12th Annual Home Show, April 17-23, are now being accepted.

Retail merchants, distributors and manufacturers desiring one of the 150 booth spaces should sign up at an early date, and firms having exhibit space last year will be given first booth choices if they sign up during January. Full information is available from the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal advertising department, PO3-4343.

The show, which historically draws from 35,000 to 40,000 viewers each year, again will stress the theme: "For Better Living-For a Better Community."

Thousands of dollars worth of merchandise for the home, travel, vacation and modern-day living will be grouped in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum for the free-admission show, its sponsors report.

A wide cross-section of merchandise is annually represented at the show, with items varying from house trailers to electrical appliances, from home furnishings to cameras.

ACTIVITY RESUMES

Residences Lead In Early '66 Building

Lubbock builders last week started from a clean slate to put $502,475 on the week's permit application list, the activity increasing after the final week of 1965 in which only $189,496 was recorded for building within the city limits.

With a big building year just closed, in which $46,404,313 building permit toal was reached, many developers, promoters, builders and business men foresee 1966 as another banner year in the industry.

New private residences last week accounted for $348,975, while other new building, additions, re-modeling and replacements added $153,500.

A permit for $50,000 was issued H. A. Padgett for construction of an office building at 1007 Texas Ave. for the Sanford Agency. The one-story structure is scheduled for early May completion, replacing buildings recently razed.

Another office building permit, for $35,000, has been issued M. W. Turner for construction at 3002 50th St. of a building for The Strawbridge Co.

A $40,000 permit was granted last week for a heat treating furnace for Lubbock Manufacturing Co. at 311 Amarillo Road.

New residence permits, together with name of applicant, address and amount, were:

George Cannady, 3703 63rd Drive, $24,500; H. G. Denison, 6208 Lynnhaven Drive, $28,000; C. T. Walden, 3013 68th St., $20,000; Empire Builders, 1916 73rd St., $13,000; United Components, 5540 18th St., $13,500; Glenn Casey, two projects, 5518

Compromise In Steel Price Marks Early Year Business

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business News Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The second round of the running price battle between the steel industry and the government ended during the week with both sides compromise winners.

The conflict began with Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s New Year's Eve announcement of a $5 on price increase for structural steel.

Bethlehem, the No. 2 steel producer, said the increase was justified by the demand for new lightweight structural shapes, which take more mill time to produce.

The company said that even with the price increase the cost to consumers was less than it was five years ago.

President Johnson and his economic advisers denounced the price boost as unjustified, inflationary and unpatriotic.

Early in the week, Inland Steel Co. went along with Bethlehem's $5 hike.

This was a new role for Inland, which in 1962 — during the first round of the industry-government price war — refused to follow a general price rise initiated by U.S. Steel.

Lubbock Firms Given Nod For Bell Building

Three Lubbock firms last week were awarded building contracts for construction of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's PORter building addition at the northwest corner of Broadway and Ave. M, according to John Whitcomb, division manager of the phone firm.

The $800,000 four-story building will give additional facilities for the SHerwood-POrter wire centers.

Contract for general construction was awarded the Bennett Company. The electric work contract was won by Amco Electric Co., while plumbing, heating and air conditioning will be by O. W. Chisum.

Amount of the contracts was not announced by the phone company which reports work on the project to begin in the very near future.

This building is one of the two major construction projects planned by Bell here in 1966 in an expansion program involving more than $4 million. A work center, presently under construction, is located at corner of 36th Street and Avenue C and is expected to be completed in April.

A million dollars of the budget will go to extension of cable in about six locations, and for

The Lubbock expenditures are part of the largest construction program the phone company has ever undertaken in the state, and will cost nearly $182 million during the year to represent an $11 million increase over 1965 expansion cost which in itself was a record.

DRAMATICS INNOVATIONS

Flexible, Exciting Design Includes Unusual Features

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Here is one of the most exciting and flexible designs that has ever been illustrated in this column. It offers numerous dramatic and outstanding features which are very seldom obtainable in a single plan.

Large planting areas are on each side of the porch leading to the distinctive entry. If preferred, reflecting pools—with or without fountains—could be substituted for these planters.

Wide panes of glass are on each side of the double entry doors and combine to form a very glamorous entry. The spacious entry appears even larger because of the wide glass area overlooking the atrium. From the entry, one has access to the living room, garage, family room-kitchen and the stairs leading to the bedroom wing.

A fireplace and cabinets separate the living room and dining. The cabinets consist of a wood box opening to the living room with cabinet storage above opening to both the living room and dining.

Outdoor living is almost always available in this design. For semi-private sunbathing and relaxing, sliding glass doors open from the family room to the huge rear patio. If more privacy is desired or if the wind is a problem, sliding doors lead from the living room-dining and the hall to the atrium.

The efficient kitchen is centrally located and meals can be easily served in the dining room, at the family room eating bar, on the patio or atrium. It will take some time to completely utilize the abundance of storage space this kitchen offers.

In the huge family room, family living and relaxation are secluded from the front of the house. The super all-in-one family room-kitchen-patio is one of the most popular features in today's new designs. Such an arrangement, more than any other, keeps the family together as a unit.

The elegant master bedroom suite consists of an exceptionally large bedroom, dressing room and private bath. The pullman lavatory is located in the dressing room as is fourteen feet of wardrobe and a dressing table. All bedrooms are of sufficient size to accommodate twin beds.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased at a cost of $8.50 for the first set and $5.00 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until May 9, 1966. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. 6212 Lynnhaven Drive -- 4 blocks west from Indiana on 62nd, then south

This house has 3 bedrooms and study—or is it an office?—maybe it's a sewing room?—no, it's a nursery—Oh! yes, it's a 4th bedroom? Well, however it fits your family, it is ideally located. The master bedroom features a HIS and HER bath arrangement, and a big-big closet. HIS bath is so located that it is convenient to the back yard, and the utility (which has recessed area with drain for washer and dryer), and the TOTAL ELECTRIC kitchen (which has RCA Whirlpool appliances, including surface unit with griddle), and the nice roomy and pretty breakfast area, and yes, that fourth room is also convenient to his bath. The living-dining room is really pretty, with this elegant chandelier, and scenic mural on wall, and beautiful nylon carpet with more than a hint of green in color. The den is so nice with nylon carpet, elevated ceiling with beams, very neatly arranged bookshelves in the brick wall around the fireplace. And oh yes, the other two bedrooms are nice and roomy with large closets. And a very pretty bath located between them. And a storage closet, and a cedar lined closet, and—well, it's all so very nice, built by a builder of fine homes—you come see—maybe you'll let him build your new home, he'd like too.

Businessmen To Make Area Trip

About 30 Lubbock businessmen are expected to participate Monday in the first "good will" trip of the year sponsored by the wholesale development committee of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

A chartered bus will leave the chamber offices, 902 Texas Ave., at 9:30 a.m., with the delegation slated to make stops in Sudan, Muleshoe and Olton.

First stop will be at 10:30 a.m. at Sudan where the group will be host for a coffee with businessmen in the DeLuxe Cafe.

C. L. Kay, vice president of public relations at Lubbock Christian College, will be featured speaker at a luncheon for Muleshoe representatives at the First Methodist Church in Muleshoe.

A 2 p.m. coffee stop is planned at Olton where businessmen there will be honored at Hammill's Restaurant.

M. J. "Bud" Aderton, chairman of the chamber's wholesale trade development committee, will head the delegation making the trip. Similar tours were conducted last year to Lamesa, O'Donnell, Shallowater, Littlefield and Anton.

structural steel buying — the Defense and Commerce departments and the General Services Administration — issued orders not to buy from companies which raised prices.

By this time all attention was focused on the question: What will U.S. Steel Corp., the No. 1 producer, do?

It announced a $2.75-a-ton increase on structural steel and a $9-a-ton decrese on cold-rolled sheets produced in California.

The White House accepted U.S. Steel's boost as within its price guidelines. Bethlehem and Inland backed down.

The compromise set off a stock market surge that carried the averages to new all-time highs.

Roger Blough, U.S. Steel chairman who was the key figure in the 1962 confrontation, was reported to have conferred with the Johnson administration before making his announcement. But he wouldn't confirm it.

Blough said he would be very surprised if the price increase for structural shapes caused inflation.

Structurals represent only about 7 per cent of the total steel market.

From a business standpoint, 1965 turned out even better than expected. The Commerce Department reported that the Gross National Product — total of all goods and services — surged 7.5 per cent to $675 billion.

The percentage increase last year from the previous record of $628.7 billion in 1964 was the sharpest since the 7.7 per cent advance in 1962.

Economists who participated in the National Industrial Council's annual economic forum said they believe business will be better in 1966 than in 1965.

They projected a growth rate of 2.8 per cent in the first six months and 3.3 per cent in the second half.

The Commerce Department predicted that production of 9.3 million passenger cars and most other industries will exceed their 1965 production.

A department survey showed that 16 industries expect 1966 growth of more than 10 per cent, 36 expect gains of 5 to 10 per cent, and 24 believe they will have gains of 5 per cent or less.

Automobile building spurted during the week after two holiday-shortened weeks with output estimated at 195,704 cars, up 27 per cent from 154,145 the previous week but 8 per cent below 213,323 a year earlier.

Steel output of 2,185,000 tons during the week brought production for 1965 to a record 131.2 million tons.

NEVER MORE SERIOUS

Business Convention Isn't Gay Revel It Used To Be

By PHILIP J. KEUPER

NEW YORK (AP) — When you think of a business convention do you think of the back-slapping, bourbon-drinking, card-playing skylarking that makes a man feel like a boy again?

Forget it. Business conventions, while not all business, are never more serious.

Who says so? Hotel executives who are hosts to the conventions, and trade association officials who stage them. To them, the traditional hoop-la and shenanigans of business meetings are out. There is revelry, they say, but even that seems businesslike.

Business men today bring their wives to conventions, take notes during meetings, work harder to line up sales, strain to catch new ideas, stay alert for job offers and listen to experts on everything from automation to antitrust.

"Business conventions today are staid, responsible and serious," says Robert H. Whalen, a New York hotel executive. "Yet there seems to be more going on than ever before."

The booming national economy and the complexity of modern business have sharpened business conventions more to the point of their purpose: to provide businessmen with ideas and new ways of looking at problems.

Wives and tighter tax laws have sobered business conventions.

Convention meetings often begin at breakfast rather than late morning. Many meetings have added trade shows to unveil products, filling exposition centers in New York, Chicago, Dallas, Las Vegas, Miami and Detroit. Convention executives vie to lure top speakers: cabinet members and other government officials, college professors, management consultants, marketing experts, key corporation officials.

Important Statements

"We want to get important people who are going to make important statements," said a paper industry executive.

So diverse and far-flung are the enterprises of many modern corporations that smaller, regional conventions now supplement many national meetings. One large industrial corporation estimates it spends almost $1 million a year just belonging to convention and trade groups. Within conventions, seminars have replaced some mass meetings so men can delve into their specialties.

Perhaps the biggest change at the convention is the businessman himself.

"The businessman going to conventions now is a better businessman," says Howard Fogel, a veteran industrial magazine writer. "He's more professional. He wants information."

Companies, too, are demanding more results for their convention dollars since registration fees are higher and the cost of food and lodging have climbed.

Cost Is High

"Conventions cost plenty and I think many companies are sending fewer of their people and expecting them to come back with more," says Glenn Leach, president of the New York Society of Association Executives.

The growing percentage of wives at business meetings and tighter tax laws on entertainment expenses have added to the air of sobriety. But the drink at the hospitality suite still is a major part of almost any business convention.

"I don't know how many problems I've had solved for me just by listening to another guy over a drink," said one company executive.

Sometimes the cocktail party, the dinner or the evening at the theater is worth more than the rest of the convention combined. A chance remark can reveal a chink in a competitor's armor. A casual word with a distributor can start a product rolling. An offhand comment can lead to another job.

Recruiting Is Widespread

"Executive recruiting is pretty widespread at these meetings," said a trade association official. "It's a mixed course. A company can line up a string of important contacts and lose a top man all at the same meeting."

If businessmen like conventions, hotels love them. They fill rooms and pump money into hotel bars, restaurants and gift shops. As a result, top hotels have squads of salesmen who roam the country lining up conventions years in advance.

"We wine and dine and try to get someone in the group's decision committee to swing the meeting to our hotel," said one salesman.

First comes the choice of cities and the city convention bureaus have their salesmen hustling too. The traditional convention leaders, New York and Chicago, find themselves battling Dallas, New Orleans, Las Vegas, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Miami for the convention dollar. One result:

"Jet travel has brought many more cities into the competition for conventions and the struggle is terrific," says Charles Gillett of New York's convention and visitors bureau. "But the battle is worth it."

Last year, New York, a city that historically had never scrambled to lure conventions, estimated that delegates to more than 1,000 conventions of all kinds pumped $315 million into the city's hotels, stores and restaurants.

Corn Is Fanned By Illinois Researchers

URBANA, Ill. (AP)—University of Illinois researchers are trying to determine if fans in a cornfield will boost the harvest yield.

They want to know whether more air, and consequently more carbon dioxide would increase corn production over plants in the same field not enjoying the fans.

Last season, researchers turned the fans on when the corn tasseled and ran them day and night during the critical ear-filling period. No conclusions yet.

Census Taker Finds Long Lost Streets

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP)—There is a First Street, as well as a Second and Third, in Bisbee after all. But the city may never showed it, and almost nobody ever knew it.

A census taker assigned to the mountainside homes in Tombstone Canyon discovered the long-missing streets after hours of searching.

Each street was a flight of steps up the mountainside.
