TRAIL OF "BARGAIN BABY" WOMAN LEADS HERE

WOMAN TAKEN HERE SAYS SHE IS NOT THE ONE

Babe and Woman Said To Resemble Those Now Wanted

MYSTERY UNSOLVED

Both Baby's Deformed And Were in Same Dallas Institution

That the trail of the mystery woman in the famous "Bargain Baby" case led to Wichita Falls after her sensational elusion of police in Fort Worth Tuesday, is the theory of police here.

Mrs. Agnes Darrah, the mystery woman, who has consistently refused to tell the whereabouts of the baby of Mrs. Adams, former chorus girl, is believed by Fort Worth officials also to be in this city.

Late Tuesday night Sheriff Pat Murphy received a telephone call from Sheriff Carl Smith of Fort Worth instructing local officers to arrest a woman then believed to be staying on Tenth street, and hold her.

The Fort Worth sheriff explained that the woman was Mrs. Agnes Darrah, who holds the key to the whereabouts of the Adams boy, and who is charged with contempt court for refusing to reveal the present whereabouts of the child.

Mrs. Darrah who is a Catholic even refused to give the wanted information when commanded to by Father Nolan of Fort Worth.

She was brought into the Fort Worth court room on a stretcher and was believed to be suffering from an incurable disease.

Threatens to Commit Suicide.

Fort Worth officers who went to arrest her for contempt of court were stayed when she drew a pistol and threatened to commit suicide.

When they returned to the house Tuesday morning they found her supposedly "sick bed" empty.

Sheriff Smith took up the trail. It led to Decatur and to Wichita Falls, to a certain house on Tenth street, he said.

The woman arrested today at the Tenth street address is said by Sheriff Smith to exactly answer the description of the Darrah woman.

Says She Is Mother.

Upon being brought to jail she pleaded her innocence. She said she knew nothing of the case.

Sheriff Murphy held her in jail during Tuesday night during which time her husband appeared and said his wife was demented and that he wanted her kept in jail.

The woman was freed Wednesday, on habeas corpus proceedings.

Resemblance Exact.

The relation between the "mystery woman" and the woman arrested here is that the local woman did adopt a baby about two years. It is deformed as is the missing Adam's baby, and is the same age.

The local woman has had it in the Baptist sanitarium in Dallas for several months for treatment. The missing Fort Worth baby was also last heard from s being in the Dallas institution.

The questions of the whereabouts of the baby originated in a $50,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Adams against another Fort Worth woman, with whom she is said to have left the child in charge. The babe is said to have disappeared while in the care of the Fort Worth woman.

WEST COAST HAS A NEW DISASTER

Tidal Wave Sweeps Lower California Village—Relief on Way

By The Associated Press.

MEXCALI, L. C., Sept. 12.—Wireless messages received here late today report the destruction by a tidal wave of San Jose de Cabo, a small fishing town on the west coast of Lower California, just above Cape San Lucas. The number of lives lost is not known.

Most of the 500 inhabitants of the town are believed to have escaped to higher ground when the tidal wave swept over the place yesterday, according to radio advices sent out by a steamer which cleared Cape Lucus shortly before the catastrophe.

Steamers carrying merchandise to Guyamas, which had cleared in time to escape destruction or damage in the wave, have been ordered to return to St. Jose de Cabo for relief work the messages said. One of these vessels carried 300 laborers for the cotton fields near here.

FURTHER CLEWS BELIEVED FOUND IN "CRACKINGS"

Fort Worth Capture May Throw New Light On Cases

FOUR ARE NOW HELD

Police Believe Men Were Driven Out of This City

Further clews which may lead to the solution of the 15 or more business house burglaries in Wichita Falls recently developed Wednesday when Dave May, chief of detectives received word from Fort Worth police headquarters that two Wichita boys had been captured there in connection with the burglarizing Wednesday morning of the Coca-Cola Bottling company safe at Corsicana.

This follows on the heels last Friday of two other Wichita characters who attempted to rifle the safe of an Altus drug store in broad daylight and were captured by Altus officers. As soon as word was received Wednesday that the two Wichitans who had escaped from Corsicana after the burglary of the Coco-Cola plant, were picked up in Fort Worth. May sent finger prints to the Fort Worth officials. These prints were taken from impressions left on safes and on burglary tools when local safes were robbed.

May said that of the four men now held, and all admitting they are from Wichita Falls, he had finger prints of all and if any of the four were connected with local burglaries, the finger print experts would soon know. Police Chief George Hodgins said investigations locally since the Altus affair pointed circumstantially to the two men held there. Hodgins said a drug store burglary and a grocery store entry pointed to the two Wichita Falls boys at Altus but nothing definite could be established.

The two men arrested at Fort Worth gave their names as Taylor and Berry. The Altus prisoners say their names are Jimmy Denton and E. M. Smith.

Chief Hodgins said in discussing the case Wednesday, the Altus and Fort Worth arrests would probably shed much light on the local burglaries. "The arrest of the four Wichita men shows they have been driven out of this city by local officers who have worked day and night since the burglary series to clear the matter up," Hodgins said.

TRAGEDY OR IMAGINATION?

Child "Plays" Murder For Police

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Pantomime enacted before social service workers by a seven-year-old boy today started the police of Chicago, New York and St. Louis investigating the supposed slaying in St. Louis or New York of the boy's father by his mother, and the mother's elopement with a man referred to by the boy as "daddy number 2."

Arthur Tine, the boy, was found in Chicago's business district last June. Several times under questioning by social service workers, the boy tried to tell his story of the supposed slaying of his father. Yesterday he enacted the slaying in pantomime first playing the part of his mother and then that of his father. Today he re-enacted the supposed slaying in the presences of the police. When he finished detectives were not sure whether child's imagination or a real tragedy was responsible for the boy's pantomime, acted over and over without a change.

"You play papa. I'll play mamma," he told a burly policeman. Taking the officer's big service pistol he pointed it at "papa" and shouted, "boom, boom."

"That's how she did it," he explained. "Now you play mamma and I'll play papa."

When the policeman in the role of "mamma" pointed the pistol the lad fell to the floor, after staggering.

"That's how papa did," he confided.

After this "daddy number 2" came he said, and they all went to St. Louis. Then, he said, he was brought to Chicago and abandoned. He first placed the scene of the slaying in St. Louis but later declared it had been in New York. Chicago police said an investigation would be made in all three cities.

Waited 2 Years To Wed; Rejected

The Course of true love never runs smoothly and neither does the course of illicit love Lorna Ambler, Australian stage star, may sue Lou Tellegen recently divorced husband of Geraldine Farrar, for breach of promise. Miss Ambler was named as a co-respondent by Miss Farrar.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Loving husbands and wives other than one's own may not be the strictly proper procedure but it's a popular pastime nevertheless.

Sometime it's a lot of fun while it lasts. Certainly there is some attraction. But the romances of those who love not wisely but too often are like the pitcher which went to the well.

Lorna Ambler, pretty Australian actress, has found her dream of romance in much the same condition as the pitcher after its last trip to the vicinity of the old oaken bucket.

For be it known Lorna, unmindful of the tie that did not bind Lou Tellegen—more than perfunctorily at most—to Geraldine Farrar, now threatens to sue the matinee idol for breach of promise.

Tellegen but recently was divorced by Farrar but nevertheless Miss Ambler contends that she has waited two years to marry the former husband of the opera star.

According to Miss Ambler's tale of blasted romance she and Tellegen were slightly more than chums.

ENDS LIFE WHEN POLICE CLOSE IN

MARSHALL, Texas, Sept. 12.—Cornered by Sheriff Sanders in the rear of a restaurant, a young man, later identified as the bandit who robbed the Bank of Mooringsport (La.) of about $4,000 at noon yesterday, shot himself to death early this morning.

The youth rode into Marshall with a baker at sunrise while Texas rangers and officers were engaged in their all-night search for the bandit.

The driver of the bakery wagon was suspicious of the stranger and informed the sheriff. The sheriff queried the youth while the latter was eating breakfast in a local restaurant. When the sheriff's back was turned, the bandit drew his revolver and fled out the rear. The sheriff closed in on the lad hiding behind an ice box.

TAX BURDEN TO BE HEAVIER IS LATEST OPINION

Small Chance of Reduction —Huge Amounts Are Needed

CONGRESS IN DILEMMA

Bonus, Navy, Air Fleet, And Buildings On Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The American people may as well prepare to pay new federal taxes. It is very apparent to those in touch with the financial situation that the United States government will have to raise more money than present tax laws are bringing in, and already steps are being taken by majority leaders in congress to provide the means of raising additional funds.

It is true that Martin D. Madden of Illinois, who, unless all precedents are broken, will be chairman of the house appropriations committee in the coming congress, has asserted that congressional appropriations must be reduced, and that the strictest economy must prevail through all branches of the government. But Mr. Madden, long as his service in congress has been, has failed to take into consideration the tremendous demand which will be made on congress at its coming session for large appropriations.

History tells of a man who conquered an army single-handed, because he stood at the end of a narrow bridge and slew each member of the army in turn, one at a time. But Chairman Madden will not be standing on the end of a narrow bridge, and will not be able to meet the entire house of representatives one at a time. The old "log rolling" practice is still a favorite with congress, and more than once in recent sessions, congress has overridden the chairman of the appropriations committee by a concerted movement which swept him off his feet and left him protesting practically alone against the action of the great majority of the house.

Horatius himself could not conquer congress, because congress has learned the value of presenting a solid front, instead of sending one member at a time to be cut down. And Martin Madden, in view of that fact, can hardly hope to duplicate one of the world's most conspicious deeds of war which never has been repeated. If Mr. Madden's course as chairman does not satisfy congress, the majority will override him, and already plans are in preparation to do so, if he insists upon cutting appropriations below what the majority of the members of the house think they should be.

There is no doubt that Mr. Madden is right in his insistence that appropriations must be cut below those of last year, and the strictest economy must be maintained in every branch of the government—provided taxation is to be kept down to the high point it has already reached. But the chances that this will be done appear so slight that Senator Reed Smoot, who by all precedents should be chairman of the senate finance committee in the next session, has publicly expressed his view that there can be no cut in taxes. Not only that, but he is even now at work on a measure which he proposes to father in the coming congress which would largely increase federal taxation, by placing a tax on many articles that now escape.

Stronger evidence that federal taxes must be increased than the mere opinion of Senator Smoot, specialist though he is in finance matters and taxation, is given in the recently issued report of David H. Blair, federal commissioner of internal revenue. This report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, shows that tax collections decreased in that year more than 575 million dollars, as compared with the preceding year. Of this decrease, approximately 398 million dollars was the decrease in income and profits taxes, while the other 177 millions represented a decline in the businesses which pay federal taxes other than income and profits tax, such as the manufacture of tobacco and cigars;

NEW YORK FLOODED WITH BAD PASSES TO CHAMP BATTLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Six men were arrested in a Duane street printshop today and police confiscated $50,000 worth of counterfeit tickets for the Dempsey-Firpo match Friday night. Some of the tickets, the police said, had been put in circulation. The men were charged with acting in concert in printing and distributing them.

While the arrests were being made an investigation was under way by District Attorney Banton into charges that a batch of tickets for the fight having a box office value of $27.50 had been sold for $77.50 and that many other single tickets had been sold at proportionately increased prices.

MORE OFFICIALS IN FLOG CASES

Sheriff and Attorney Of Amarillo Are Under Charges

By The Associated Press.

AMARILLO, Sept. 12—Indictments against Sheriff Less Whitaker, County Attorney Henry Ford and four men in connection with the recent flogging here of E. T. McDonald, were today returned by the Potter county grand jury. Whitaker and Ford are charged with misconduct in office while the other four men are charged with assault with a prohibited weapon.

The other four men indicted are T. W. Stanford, G. O. Gall, W. L. Honeycutt, and Andy Knox. The latter three are each charged with assault with a prohibited weapon and whitecapping while a second charge of white-capping is made against Stanford. Three misdemeanor indictments charging aggravated assault, false imprisonment and assault with intent to kill were also returned against Stanford, making six indictments against him.

Bond for Gall, Honeycutt and Knox were set at $6,000 while Stanford's bond in the six cases amounts to $10,250.

It is not believed that Whitaker and Ford will be removed from office as the indictments are of a misdemeanor nature.

McDonald, a railroad worker, was kidnaped while walking down a local street by five men in a car, and taken into the country where he was severely beaten and a coat of tar and feathers applied to his body. Rangers were sent here to investigate the case and charges against all the men now under indictment with the exception of Ford, were filed. Whitaker was charged with being an accomplice in the flogging. The grand jury has been investigating the case for two weeks and scores of witnesses have appeared before the body.

Indict Klansmen

By The Associated Press.

SHAWNEE, Okla., Sept. 12.—Flogging charges, involving the ku klux klan were filed here late today by County Attorney Hendon, against C. M. Reber, former major of the Oklahoma national guard, and Malcolm Couch, formerly chief of the Shawnee fire department.

The information filed by the county attorney alleges that Reber and Couch directed the abduction and whipping of Claude McCannon and Frank Cole, local taxi-cab drivers, on or about March 10,1922.

Armed With Revolvers

Reber, it is alleged, was in charge of the mob. It is charged that he wore the regalia of the ku klux klan, with a black mask, and was armed with two revolvers which he had obtained from the national guard.

The scene of the whipping, according to the information, was an alfalfa field, west of the Santa Fe railroad shops on the Shawnee-Tecumseh highway.

The county attorney asserted that he had sworn statements in his possession to the effect that the whipping of McCannon and Cole was planned and ordered by the ku klux klan in its regular executive session and that these plans were revealed to Ira Sims, local chief of police, who declared that he favored such action and would not interfere with the proceedings in any way.

Lawton Cops Quit When Shepherd Sings "Yes, We Have No Ban-an-os"

By The Associated Press.

LAWTON, Oklahoma, Sept. 12—Every available officer of this city was rushed to the Midland hotel at 8 o'clock tonight when some one turned in a riot alarm. Officers found 22 white robed, red bannered, colored parsoled, strangers singing before a crowd estimated at 2,000, blocking traffic on the two intersecting streets. The strangers were quickly forced into the city hall. The officers were compelled to separate the crowd which started to the city hall in advance of the officers and patrol wagons.

The white coated singers were immediately brought to trial before a stern faced judge. The testimony was soon given. The strangers were charged with disturbing the peace and starting a riot.

The court room was a teeming mass of humanity when the judge arose and with a grave countenance said:

"You are sentenced for life unless you immediately appoint a soloist among you who can sing for the audience and the officers of this court. We demand that he sing:

"Yes, We Have No Bananas."

R. E. Shepard sang the song as it was never sung before.

When Shepherd had finished he, and all members of the delegation of the chamber of commerce and the Texas-Oklahoma fair association, who formed the wild party, and who are on an excursion trip creating interest in the fair, were taken in charge by a delegation from the Lawton fair association and the city's chamber of commerce and were escorted to the fair grounds to see the exhibits and

REAL GUARANTY NOW IS OFFERED IN REPARATION

Chancellor Admits There Is No Hope With Occupation

WANTS RUHR FREEDOM

May Mortgage Private Properties to Pay Reparation

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—Tacitly admitting that the Ruhr fight had been lost and that there could be no prospect of the internal re-construction of Germany until the foreign conflict had been adjusted, Chancellor Stresemann tonight remarked to a gathering of editors:

"Candor is preferable to illusion, and Germany desires to speak out plainly."

Informal contact with the occupying powers have revealed the gravity of the existing difference which, he said primarily involved the question of German soveignty and the restoration to Germany of complete administrative freedom in the Ruhr.

The chancellor's speech did not contain a direct reference to readiness on the part of Germany to call off passive resistance unconditional, but presented a more precise formulation of the nature of the productive guarantees which Germany was prepared to pledge for the security of the reparations creditors.

BERLIN, Sept. 12. — Chancellor Stresemann in an address today declared;

"We are ready to give real guarantees in order to secure the freedom of the Ruhr."

He admitted that a solution of the problem could not be obtained by passive resistance.

Addressing a gathering of newspaper editors, the chancellor after reviewing the ecomonic position, turned to foreign questions.

A solution of the Ruhr dispute could not be achieved solely by continuance of passive resistance; not could the question be settled by a policy of force.

Even Chancellor Cuno, said Herr Stresemann, had never contended that negotiations could only be undertaken after the evacuation of the Ruhr. The object of passive resistance was only to free the Ruhr territory and the government could be doing a great service if it could shorten the Ruhr dispute as far as possible. Feelers hitherto put out, however, showed the difficulties which existed.

"The question for us is whether the German economic organism would be able to carry the burden expected of it. We know in what difficult times we live but can state with satisfaction that the present government has been assured by the leading representatives of industry and finance that they would take their share of the obligations in connection with the scheme of guarantees proposed by Germany which will render payments possible.

"The possibility of an understanding with France depends upon whether a suitable atmosphere can be created between France and Germany. An understanding is certainly necessary."

"For us," continued the chancellor, "the question of soverignty of the Rhineland and regaining the freedom of the Ruhr territory is decisive. For it we are ready to give real guarantees. M. Poincare in a recent speech said he preferred the positive securities which France had in hand to the fines theoretical rights. He did not intend to exchange pledges for general guarantees and emphasized further that the guarantees suggested belonged to the mortgages which the treaty of Versailles gave to the allies on the entire possessions of the Reichs.

"This conception of the French premier I must describe as erroneous. According to the Versailles trenty, the property of reich and individual states is a pledge for Germany's obligations. What I suggested referred to the direct enlistment of private property and thus goes beyond the trenty. The enlistment is also a realizable pledge while the securities of the Versailles treaty are at present not so. If mortgages entered into on property of a state and on private property of economics organization as pledge to the extent of a percentage of this property then these mortgages could be transferred to a trusteeship as a real negotiable asset.

"In the administration of this trusteeship, the reparation creditors would actively participate. The proceeds accruing from these mortgages would be paid to the trustees who would then be in a position to issue bonds. Thus France would come into immediate possession of large sums of money and the interest on these payments would be guaranteed."

"IRENE" OPENING SHOW IS A HIT

"A husband should be chosen by arithmetic and not by geography."

"Youth and beauty are the only things you can't preserve in alcohol."

Snappy lines, humor, pleasing song hits, tuneful melodies, sprightly dancing, an interesting story well done—that in brief was "Irene" as produced at the Palace theatre last night, a delightful opening of the fall theatrical season in Wichita Falls. Irene isn't the newest show on the road, but that doesn't hurt it. Those who have seen it before were there last night and they found many a laugh and much pleasure in it.

Dale Winter made an altogether delightful Irene O'Dare. She had her audience with her from her first appearance until the curtain rang down in the finale. That easy going way of hers—her ability to appear in both the roles of a shop girl and a social butterfly, and be equally attractive in both, a good voice and fascinating ways, brought her much applause.

Known as a musical show, there was much to be appreciated in "Irene" aside from the music, although the songs "Alice Blue Gown" and "Irene" ran cleverly through the story, adding a satisfying touch. Flo Irwin, as mother of Irene, and carrying the name of Mrs. O'Dare acted a good character part well. Mary O'Moore and Gladys Nagle shared honors in parts which were necessary to the success of the show, and Jere Delaney, as Mme. Lucy would be hard to forget. Dorothy Lamar, Dorothy Kane, Henrietta Housen, Howard Freeman, Henry Coote, George Collins, Edward Marra and George Mantell helped to make up a nalltogether good cast.

The plot while light enough not to detract from the musical part of the show, was strong enough to keep interest up. It is the old story of what clothes will do for a woman. They did all this for Irene, and through costly frocks which she has been persuaded to wear as an advertising medium, the shop girl captures society and a man of wealth. The complications which arise because of her means of earning a livlihood and the mother's suspicion aroused by this chance slips that lead her into deep waters, make the story.

It was a good show as the audience indicated by generous and frequent applause.

"SLAVE GIRL" WHO SLEPT IN A HEN HOUSE HAS HOME

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—From cuddling in a hen coop in a Chicago suburb to living in a real home in New York was the transformation which began today for Margaret Melton, 11-year-old "slave girl."

The girl, who for years did mean chores about a farm, is to be taken by her uncle, Daniel Coughlin of New York and given pretty clothes and toys.

The child's misfortunes began in 1917 when her father, Lloyd Melton got a divorce from Ruth Melton. He was granted custody of their three children. Unable to care for them, he "farmed them out."

The other two children were properly cared for, but a charitable society this summer discovered Margaret on the farm of J. J. Smith, where she had a rude bunk in a hen house. The child was locked up at night, the society reported.

Smith said the girl was forced to work because her father owed a $400 board bill. Smith and his wife since have disappeared, the society reported to the authorities. The society became the girl's guardian today by court order.

MARTIAL LAW TO STAY IN TULSA

By The Associated Press.

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 12—Full compliance with the demands which Governor J. C. Walton put before business men here today as the basis upon which he is willing to lift martial law from Tulsa county appeared tonight to be remote.

The resignations of Sheriff Bob Sanford, Police Commissioner Harry W. Kiskaddon, all three members of the county jury commission, composed of Cicero L. Holland of Tulsa, J. W. Owen of Collinsville, and Dr. O. E. Robinson of Skiatook were the stipulations advanced by the governor.

These officials, the governor charges, are under the domination of the ku klux klan. He declared that the civil authorities of the county had failed to protect citizens from mob whippings and furthermore asserted that no investigation of a flogging case had ever been conducted here until martial law was declared.

"If you can promise me the resignation of these men and their replacement with fair men who are not pro-klan, or anti-klan—persons who would give justice to the lowliest citizen, I could be induced to remove the troops by 6 o'clock tonight," the governor said.

The executive put it squarely up to the business men to obtain the resignation of the officials he named.

At the conclusion of the conference, H. O. McClure, president chamber of commerce, announced he would appoint a committee to determine whether the governor's terms could be complied with. The committee had not been named tonight.

Both Sheriff Sanford and Police Commissioner Kiskaddon reiterated tonight that they had no intention of resigning.

"I have nothing that would warrant my resigning and thereby admitting I had committed some unlawful act, which I have not," Sanford declared. "I will stand by the records of my office to the last ditch, whether I am asked for my resignation or if ouster proceedings are instituted against me. My own conscience is perfectly clear."

Kiskaddon's statement was simply the remark that he will not resign. Holland also declared that he would not resign.

DRY CASES SHOW LARGE INCREASE

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Conviction of judges, attorneys, federal and state authorities and millionaires among those found guilty of violating the prohibition laws was detailed in a report submitted to President Coolidge today by Attorney General Daugherty.

A synopsis of the report, made public with the assent of the president reviewed the federal judiciary's work in administering the prohibition law in the first 41 months of its operation. It showed that since the statute went into effect January 16, 1920, more than 90,000 cases had been terminated in United States courts with 72,488 convictions and fines aggregating $12,407,660. There has been a constant yearly increase in prohibition prosecutions, the reports showed, while jail sentences for the past 23 months have totaled more than 3,000 years.

Mr. Daugherty reported that "padlock" provision of the prohibition law had been one of its most effective weapons, enabling closing of many buildings where liquor was sold, upon judgments that they were "nuisances."

Increase of jail sentences also have been deterring Mr. Daugherty told the president.

"MADMAN" TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Warlike rumors came out of the Balkans today. The Greek populace is reported highly aroused over the quarrel with Italy.

According to news from Vienna "countries bordering the Adriatic" are holding their troops in readiness. Steamships are being concentrated at Trieste by Italy. Three regiments of troops embarked from Bari for an unknown destination, probably Corfu. The Italians are landing troops at Santa Quaranta, Albania.

Corfu reports that the Greek government has decided to arrest Col. Botzarie, whom the Italians accused of instigating the assassination of General Tellini.

Rome advices state that Premier Mussolini has adopted more lenient attitude towards Jugo-Slavia, making it plain he does not want war. It is likely the Italian ultimatum to Jugo-Slavia regarding Fiume which will expire Saturday, will be extended.

On the other hand, there are indications that Jugo-Slavia's failure to meet the Italian proposals will be followed by a naval demonstration in the Adriatic off the Jugo-Slavian coast.

Albanian bandits are terrorizing the residents of the Albanian-Greek frontier. Greek detachments have been sent out to overpower them. Greek authorities at Janina report they have discovered the nationality of the Tellini assassins and are now seeking their names.

Death is said to have been due to tonsolitis and blood poisoning. Mr. Lawling left Wichita Fall Thursday for Kansas. Saturday he was taken to a hospital in Wichita, and later Mrs. Lawling was sent for. Mrs. Lawling left here Monday night.

Mr. Lawling came here from Springfield, Missouri, five years ago. He was a member of the Refiners association here and stood high in his chosen work.

The funeral will be held at that place today. Other than his widow, Mr. Lawling is survived by his father, mother and a brother, all of whom reside at Springfield. His death will come as a great shock to his many friends here.

MANY HERE SEE NEW CADILLAC MODEL V63

A large number of motorists, interested in the latest developments in motor car construction, visited the new home of the Munger Automobile company, 909 Lamar to see the new Cadillac V63, which was displayed yesterday for the first time in all parts of the United States.

The fact that the new model carries the name V63—all previous models being known by number only—signifies that the Cadillac company will always manufacture a car with the V type of motor. The popularity of the Cadillac models and faith in the Cadillac corporation is indicated by the fact that a number of these cars were sold even before the dealers knew what they would be like. Such secrecy was maintained that no one aside from the dealers saw the new car until yesterday. The one brought here was driven from Dallas after nightfall by Mr. Scott Bower, manager of the Munger company.

The following announcement was made by H. H. Rice, president of the company, in connection with the showing of the new car:

As the culmination of nine years production of cars equipped with 90-degree, V-eight engines, the Cadillac Motor Car company announces a new type, the V-63, embodying the fundamental perfection of the V-type, 90-degree, eight-cylinder engine, inherently balanced, and with major parts improved; a system of four-wheel brakes developed and perfected by Cadillac engineers; a frame made even more rigid; a front axle completely redesigned and improved; bodies further refined, more spacious and unsurpassed for quality and appearance even in the costliest of custom conch work; and many other improvements.

Man Calls Court "Jerkwater;" Fined

It costs exactly $20 cash to speak of the city court as a "jerkwater" court.

That's the rate when Judge Joe Carrigan is on the bench.

A man held for vagrancy was fined $15 by Judge Carrigan Wednesday morning.

"I give notice of appeal to the county court for I refuse to be fined by a 'jerkwater court,' the prisoner said."

"I fine you $20 for contempt of court," the judge said, quick as a flash.

The prisoner made no further comment, paid the $20 contempt fine but appealed the original $15 fine, this time without comment.

DEAD BANDIT IS THOUGHT IDENTIFIED

By The Associated Press.

SHREVEPORT, La., Sept. 12.—Telephone advices were received from an undertaker in Bonham, Texas, by the undertaking parlors where the body of the bandit, who Tuesday robbed the Mooringsport bank of $4,158 and killed himself in Marshall, Texas, early Wednesday, was being held, to the effect that the bandit was believed to be Frank Erwin of Bonham, whose relatives left Bonham for Shreveport Wednesday night to identify the body.

According to message received by the undertaker, certain scars found on the body of the bandit are identical with those on the body of Frank Erwin of Bonham and the remainder of the description of the bandit also fitted Frank Erwin.

RIVER THREATENS; LEVEES WATCHED

By The Associated Press.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 12.—Levees throughout the Rio Grande valley were being closely watched tonight while the swollen stream is thankful and threatening to overflow levees at places along the valley in this vicinity. No serious breaks had occurred up to late this afternoon.

The Rio Grande had risen two inches here in the past 24 hours, but has not reached a dangerous stage. The river is reported falling slowly at Roma.

ROUGH PARTIES IN WASHINGTON?

Reports Tell of Girl Races and Melons Filled With "Corn"

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—There have been scandalous "carryings on" in the staid and eminently respective house office building lately—so much so that signs have been painted barring all visitors after 5 p. m.

The building which houses the offices and committee rooms of the 435 members of the house has been virtually deserted all summer. And while the members—or most of them—have been away, their clerks and secretaries—or some of them—have been staging a series of wild parties which have been so noisy as to disturb the drowsy calm of the capitol grounds. Hence the new order.

Watermelon parties, with the melons filled with "corn," have been one of the chief diversions, according to complaints made to the capitol police. And at some of the separate parties, the girl guests are reported to have held foot races up and down the spacious marble corridors, clothed chiefly in their imaginations.

This was the explanation Saturday, any way, of the new signs posted about the building that visitors could not enter the premises after the hour of 5 o'clock p. m.

Waterworks School

Water experts from other states will be present to lecture on various topics and conduct classes. No tuition or laboratory fee will be charged. The program is being arranged by G. E. Byers, superintendent of the Waco waterworks; Dr. W. T. Gooch, Baylor university, and V. M. Ehlers of Austin, state sanitary engineer.

Many Americans Contributed To Communist Plans Of Overthrow

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Collection of funds from American people of high and low degree for the promotion of social, economical and political revolution has become an organized industry in the last two years, it is charged by the United Mine Workers of America in the fourth article of a series which purports to be an expose of a far-reaching plot to spread the dictatorship of the Communist International at Moscow over this continent.

Laborers, society leaders, school teachers and well-meaning philanthropists, ignorant of the menace they are promoting, add millions of dollars annually to the war-chest of the underground workers for revolution in America, it is charged. Other millions are described as streaming in from Moscow, Berlin and Stockholm to make a total impossible of estimate.

How Money Comes.

"The United Mine Workers learns from an authoritive source," says the author of the expose, "that the money from abroad is coming in through the usual international banking channels and that it is distributed to the accounts of various individuals in different banks after it reaches this country."

Capture of the miners' union is alleged to be the first aim on communist agents in this country as a step toward establishment of the "one big union" principle in all industrial labor groups. After that nationalization of coal mines under the soviet form of rule as a preliminary to nationalization of other industries; then forcible overthrow of the governments existing in the United States and Canada, and establishment of Communism after the Moscow pattern.

Miners First Object.

Since the mine workers' union was allegedly the first object of attack in the fulfillment of this program, solicitation of funds is said to have been most active among th miners. Money usually is asked for some "defense" or "relief" cause, the donors being led to believe "that it was to be used in the upbuilding and strengthening of their union organization and for other legitimate purposes."

"One such collection agency is the Miners' Relief Conference," says the author, "a Communistic enterprise that has been operating in the Pittsburgh, Pa., region since last August. This conference has been one of the most important channels through which money has filtered into the Communist organization for destructive work within the miners' union."

No Books Kept.

Numerous examples of the methods of collection are set forth, but the union investigators were able to uncover few records of sources of expenditure. "Inspection of the records fails to show even the simplest forms of bookkeeping in accounting for the moneys and supplies received. While considerable sums were contributed by sympathetic persons who heeded appeals broadcast over the country, records of the contributions are found only on scraps of paper or in the original letters of the donors." The Communists are alleged even to have solicited and received 25 cent assessments per member from United Mine Workers' locals in the so-called "hotbeds of radicalism." It is asserted that most of the bail money and trial lawyers' fees for men seized in the Bridgman raid was subscribed through "Labor Defense Councils" and the Miners' Relief Conference by such methods.

The author of the expose says that while Communist agents were appealing throughout the nation for "money for the relief of 'starving miners,'" they also were holding mass meetings "to collect from these 'starving miners' money to remit to the Labor Defense Council at Chicago."

Other correspondence alleged to have been seized by authorities in raids on revolutionary headquarters is quoted to show that the American Civil Liberties Union of New York City, of which Roger Baldwin is executive secretary, loaned the Communists money from the Charter Garland Foundation Fund, entrusted to the union by the North Carver, Mass., man who refused to keep a $1,600,000 legacy inherited from his father.

How a considerable portion of money collected by the Communists in the coal regions was utilized is recited as follows:

How It Was Done.

"Efforts of the Communists to get control of the United Mine Workers have continued without interruption since the strike of last year. In the first two months of this year these efforts centered on bringing about an outlaw strike on April 1; later to drive a wedge into the United Mine Workers' rough advocacy of the expediency of government ownership of mines. William Z. Foster, industrial organizer of the Communist International, has been at the head of the enterprise. The principal scene of action has been southwestern Pennsylvania. The vehicle has been the Miners Relief Conference and the magnet for attracting the miners has been government ownership of the mines."

It is pointed out that the union has not approved or adopted any plan for nationalization, although a committee to study the subject was appointed two years ago with instructions to submit a report and recommendation at the international convention next January. "Notwithstanding this fact that the union is seeking to reach a conclusion on this proposition in an orderly way, the Communist organization has concentrated all of its resources to the end of forcing the union to acknowledge nationalization of the mines as the chief objective of coal workers in this country.

A conference of "Reds," whom the author names, was held at Pittsburgh last February 10, out of which grew a platform alleged to contain these planks:

"1—Establishment of headquarters at Pittsburgh for an aggressive campaign to reorganize the miners' union in accordance with Communist doctrines; 2, to bring about a general strike on April 1; 3, To hold a convention of miners' delegates of the United States and Canada at Pittsburgh the first week in June, when would be launched a new international organization to absorb the United Mine Workers and eliminate its international and district officials."

An outstanding feature of this program, which failed of wide fulfillment, is alleged in the "expose" to have been the unauthorized strike of steel and coal miners in Nova Scotia which was ended only after the president of the Mine Workers ousted Dan Livingstone, president and J. B. McLaughlin, secretary of the district.

Clothiers Will Show How Suits Are Made

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—From the wool on a sheep's back to a suit of clothes on a man's back, including all the various evolutions necessary to such an operation, is to be demonstrated at the annual exposition of the National Association of Retail Clothiers, which will be held in Chicago the last week in September.

It will be an official demonstration, as the bureau of standards of the economic department of the United States has loaned a complete woolen mill for the occasion and also will send three government experts to cooperate in the conversion.

The object is to give the man who buys clothing a clear idea of the work necessary to turn out the finished article, and also concrete knowledge of the actual cost entailed in such transformation.

the Municipal Pier, where the exposition is to be held, through one entrance and the man will walk out another entrance wearing a suit of clothes made from the material obtained from wool sheared from these animals.

An expert accountant will follow every move of the operation and make an official record of the actual cost of each individual part of the work and when the suit is finished the public will be given the official figures.

The retailers also will have a booth of efficiency experts who will show how much of an expense is incurred by the retailer in selling clothes.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

Wichita county school officials should see to it that the compulsory education laws of the state are enforced to the letter. Either through neglect of the parents or of a child, who does not appreciate the value of an education, and what it will be worth to him later in life, there are children in every community who are not in school when they should be.

The proper authorities should see that the law is enforced and it should not be left to them alone.

The people of the community should give their hearty co-operation to the support of this law, which means the moulding of the children of the present day into the better citizens of tomorrow.

The wording of the law and its intent is plain. Its enforcement is not a simple thing, but it can be made a reality, to the everlasting betterment of the children and the community.

This is not intended as a criticism of the authorities who have the enforcement of the law in their hands. It is intended only as a reminder to the people of Wichita Falls and Wichita county that the time is here when stress should be laid upon this statute.

INTERSECTIONAL MIGRATION.

The Toledo Blade in commenting on the migration of negroes to the northern states, calls attention to the fact that this movement northward is not confined to the blacks alone, but declares many white people from southern states are seeking opportunity in the north.

The Blade welcomes the southerners and says: "The north is now, and ought to be permanently, the better for these new citizens. They are of the purest of the stock we speak of as American."

To all of which we agree. But the rest of the story is this: That thousands of men and women from the north are coming to the southland. It is merely an interchange of the peoples of our great nation, each seeking his opportunity in the field, which for particular reasons, appeals to him.

The increase in the population of Texas and other southern states, is due largely to the influx of northern people, and the nasal drawl of the so-called Yankee is mingled with the soft accent of the south in musical harmony.

This exchange is cementing the nation more firmly than ever before, and is building for a future that no other nation will enjoy. For after all, we are but one people. There is but one United States of America.

Nothing could do more to obliterate permanently the imaginary line which one divided north and south than this intersectional migration. And the southerner who has gone north, as well as the northern man who comes south, will tell you that they have found a hearty welcome in their new homes. Each carries with him ideas which are new to the state where he takes up his residence, and nothing can give more breadth or strength to any community than an exchange of substantial ideas.

After all we are all Americans. As is true of all well regulated families, we have had our differences. But we live and have fought under one flag; are actuated by the same hopes and desires, and all contribute to the ambiton and desire of the greatest of nations. The northerner who comes south knows that he is warmly welcome, and that the south will yield to him just what he contributes in ability and zeal. Likewise the southerner will find the north ready to receive him.

Men are men, and those who have earned a place in the world, have not earned it because of the geographical location of the first postoffice where they received their mail.

THE AMERICAN GIRL.

What is the "real American type" of girl?

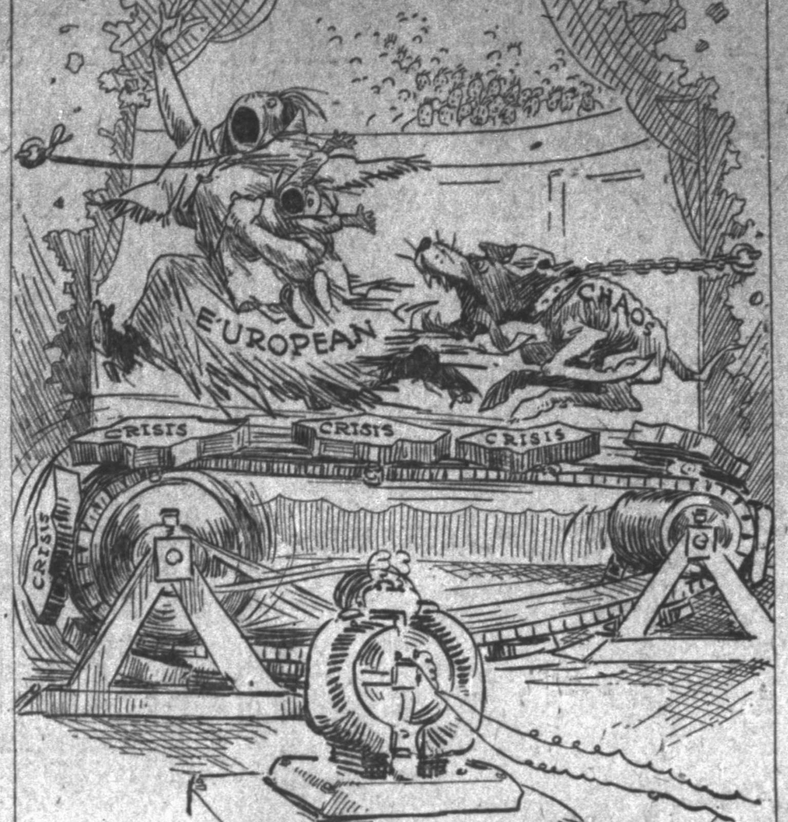

Just now more or less discussion based on this burning question, is taking place. Penrhyn Stanlaws, the artist, recently threatened to resign his job as one of a board of judges selected to choose Miss America from among hundreds of girls at Atlantic City. He declared, did this supposed authority on American girls, that there was not one of the real type among all these young women.

All of which strikes us as being more or less "bunk." If they were American girls, they were girls of the American type. The trouble with some of these artists is, that thy have a picture of a "type" in their mind, and follow it without regard for the subject as she appears in real life.

It occurs to us that when a bunch of girls flock to a contest like that it is more than likely that a goodly majority ofthe m are of the American type. Possibly it would have been easier to have picked them out if they had been dressed in their street clothes instead of bathing suits, as they happened to be.

Bathing suits all look more or less alike, but persons' clothes express their individuality. Possibly this had something to do with Penrhyn's failure, but he has no business to pout about the lack of the American girl type. There are hundred of them in Texas, to our certain knowledge.

THE BRIGHT SHAWL

The clock on the mantel pointed to the first quarter past eleven; when he had sunk into his abstraction from the present, wandered back into the sunlight of Havana and his days of promise, it had been no more than late afternoon, and now Mrs. Vauxn, and her daughter, his neighbors had returned from their dinner engagement.

He had wandered into an amazing memory of his beginning manhood. The beginning, he told himself, and, in many ways the end—since then he had done little or nothing. After the ignominy of his deportation from Cuba—impending satisfactory negotiations between the United States and Spain, he gathered later, had preserved him from the dignity of political martyrdom—a drabness of life had caught him from which he could perceive no escape.

Not, he was bound to add, that he had actively looked for one. No, his participation in further events had been interfered with by a doubt, his life had been drawn into an endless question.

If she had walked steadily past Andres Escobar, left him to a murder which, after all, he Charles Abbott, had been powerless to stop, would he have gone on to the triumph of his ideal?

He opened a door of the sideboard, and produced a tall dark bottle of Marquis de Riscal wine, and, seated poured out a goblet full of the translucent crimson liquid. It brought a slight flush to his cheeks, a light in his eyes, and the shadow of a vital humor, a past challenge to his lips.

He had lifted many toasts in that vintage, his glass striking with a clear vibration against other eagerly held glasses. More often than not they—Tirso, the guardsmun in statue, Remigio, Jaime, Andres and himself—had drunk to La Clavel. He drank to her, probably the sole repository of her memory, her splendor, on earth, now.

"La Clavel," he said her name aloud.

And then, "Andres."

A sharp gladness seized him that Andres had, almost at the last, heard his voice, his shouted warning and apprehension and love.

If liberty, justice, were to come, one life, two, could make no difference; a hundred years, a hundred hundred, were small measures of time!

And if all were doomed, impossible, open to the knife of a fateful Pilar, why, then, they had had their companionship, their warmth, a period of unalloyed fidelity to a need that broke ideals like reeds.

Perhaps what they had found was, after all, with in them, that for which they had swept the sky.

Supreme Court Expected to Settle River Case in Coming October Term

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 00—When the supreme court meets in October it will finally dispose of the litigation over oil lands in the Red river ares near Wichita Falls, which has been in litigation for three and a half years.

It was in anticipation of the supreme court surrendering the area to the secretary of interior that Secretary Work late last week took the first step for the issuance of oil and gas leases and the stttlement of claims of 160 applications in the Red river oil district bordering on Oklahoma and Texas was taken by the department of the interior today.

The step consisted of forwarding a copy of a map showing the conflicting claims of various applicants with instructions to each one of them to show cause why their application should be considered a preferred one.

The map as completed by the general land office shows a maze of claims on the more valuable part of the area consisting of a 15-mile stretch along the river where oil is being produced. Authority for the settlement of these divisions and the issuance of oil and gas leases was placed in the hands of the secretary of the interior by an act of congress passed March 4, 1925.

Rush Was Thrilling

The history of the rush of oil prospectors to the Red river district has been full of thrilling incidents. It started in 1918 when great excitement prevailed about Wichita Falls and in the Burkburnett field of Texas. The oil rights in Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana were being leased in a leasing boom of "Mississippi bubble" proportions. The mile width of Red river ran through the area and the oil developers attacked it under many forms of appropriation. Some by permit to prospect for oil from the state of Texas which claimed the south half of the riverbed. Others by lease from the state of Oklahoma, which claimed the riverbed under the theory that Red river was a navigable stream. Others claimed under riparian rights based on ownership of the shore land or on patents, or on mining locations.

Parties claiming under the federal or Oklahoma laws took possession and for protection eventually placed their properties in receivership under Oklahoma courts. Texas and her claimants countered by sending rangers who took forcible possession, and announced their intention to hold the south half of the riverbed by force against all save the United States supreme court. The Oklahoma state authorities and the federal representatives then proceeded to bring suit against the state of Texas to determine the boundary between Oklahoma and Texas along Red river.

Ordinarily the center of a river forms the boundary between two states, but in 1819 a treaty was made between the United States claiming the north side of Red river under the Louisiana purchase and Spain which had sovereignty on the south side of the river. All turned upon the construction to be placed on the language of the treaty. The United States supreme court finally decided that the south bank of Red river was the Oklahoma-Texas boundary, but Red river was a mile-wide stretch of sand through which wandered a vagrant ribbon of water usually less than a hundred feet wide. The court decided that the cut bank on the south edge of the sand bed was the locus of the state boundary and appointed a commission to establish the boundary.

Congress to Rescue.

Thus the court found that the south half of Red river for 540 miles was in the state of Oklahoma. It also held that it was land of the United States not subject to any of the public land laws. This left the appropriations for oil as naked trespassers. Congress came to the rescue of the oil claimants by passing the act of March 4, 1923, authorizing the secretary of the interior to issue oil and gas permits and leases to those who were good-faith claimants on February 25, 1920, and had done work in an attempt to develop the land, and thus were entitled to equitable consideration.

In the next 60 days 160 applications were filed. When these were mapped, it was found that the larger part of the applications was on a 15-mile stretch of the river, and that on the more valuable area the claim boundaries formed a maze of lines.

On August 30, 1923, the commissioner of the general land office forwarded to each applicant a copy of the conflict map and instructions to show why the applicant should be considered the preferred applicants. The commissioner stated that after considering the showings of the various applicants he would make a recommendation to the secretary of the interior, and that applicants would be allowed to appeal from that recommendation.

The United States supreme court on April 1, 1920, placed the lands in charge of a federal receiver who took over all operations and has drilled additional producing wells. Upon the exact fixing of the state boundary the receivership is to be terminated and the lands turned over to the secretary of the interior for operation pending the final disposition of the lands and proceeds to the applicant.

The Red River controversy, by reason of its complications and its receivership, has been one of the largest and most tedious cases that has come before the United States supreme court. After the full settlement of the present controversies, the entire south half of Red river along the Oklahoma-Texas boundary is to be thrown open under the general oil and gas leasing law.

The experience of Hiram Johnson of California, in writing a private letter, later to see it in public print, recalls to our mind an incident in which "Uncle Joe" Cannon once figured. It seems that Uncle Joe once had a letter from a constituent who wrote a hand about as legible as the signature of some bank cashiers we know. He couldn't read it.

As Congressman Cannon carried the letter around among his friends, soliciting their aid in trying to decipher it. Finally he got it all figured out but two words at the top of the letter. When an amateur expert on handwriting translated those two words they were found to be: "Personal and confidential."

Isn't Magnus Johnson going to feel a little uncomfortable when he gets to Washington and is compelled by the decree of congress to wear a collar?

A CONFLICT OF PHILOSOPHIES

Improve ev'ry minute; don't waste any time:
Consider the ways of the bees
Who would blush if they ever committed the crime
Of lolling around at their ease.
Expend every ounce of your muscle and mind,
Put all of your pep in the race;
Or you'll speedily see that the fellow behind
Has thrust himself into your place.

Why struggle and sweat like a hard driven team
Your neck never free from the collar-
The happiest man is the man who can dream
Of greater affairs than the dollar!
You'll lose all the love and the laughter of life
And wear yourself into a shred
If you give yourself up to mere wealth-making strife
Till the best of existence have sped.

You have not a moment to idle away,
You have not a year you can spare;
The wolf may encamp on your threashold some day
With a chill and pitiless glare.
Just look at the loafers that trip on the stage
From labor and worriment free—
But when overtaken by cruel old age,
What poor wretched creatures they'll be!

Let other folks labor all day and all night,
At tasks that can never be done,
Denying themselves every taste of delight,
And strangers forever to fun.
Take leisure for joy as you journey along;
Do not be a mere minion of greed.
The price of a meal and the lilt of a song
Are all of the riches you need!

WHAT TODAY MEANS

VIRGO

The effect of the planets today on your mind should be very apparent, as you will be ingenious in a way beneficial to yourself but on the other hand too impulsive for your own good. After the noon hour aspects are very auspicious, promiting harmony, co-operation and general good will, especially between the opposite sexes.

A child born today will be affectionate but domineering and ambitious, good natured and dynamic.

If today is your birthday, you should launch boldly into everything you undertake, for the signs in the zenith the day you were born gave you above all, the good fortune of success when you believe in what you are doing. Your achievement, however will never exceed your faith, and if you doubt you are lost.

You have a clear mind but one that is given to rapidity of action rather than profundity of thought. Your powers of imagination are both graphic and literal—you dream in pictures and in words.

You are generous, kind and sympathetic. In fact, when there is an emotional appeal in any charitable act you perform, you throw your entire personality into it and indulge yourself with all the spent up sentimentality in your nature. On these occasions you are capable of lavish philanthropy, but when it comes to the question of acting unseen you are really not interested.

You have a sense of humor that is rich and joyous and optimistic. You are a source of cheer and good will wherever you go but must be appreciated and flattered to give the best that is in you.

You are quick tempered and rather intolerant of the opinions of others, particularly when they do not coincide with your own.

In matters of love you are rash, impetious and, at times, reckless. You give and you demand a great deal more than the average run of lover and you are furious when your affection is not reciprocated in like manner. In love as well as in the welfare of everyday life you give and you ask not quarter, but you do command that the question be given its due importance.

Successful people born on your birthday, are

The Colonization Questionaire. Reliability of Questionaires.

Questionaires have been used extensively in many lines of business to establish certain facts. One great use is in the case of manufacturers who expect to advertise their products in some locality and wish to ascertain facts in relation to the possible market for their goods.

There are two methods used in securing answers to questionaires. One is by personal solicitation and the other through the mail.

The most accurate results are obtained by direct personal solicitation and not by use of the mails. The reason for this is that only those already interested will take the time and trouble to fill out a long questionaire and thus results are based and a true summary of the opinions of the class of people addressed is not obtained.

Another thing that has been established is that, if true results from a questionnaire are desired, then none of the questions should be leading questions, that is, questions that in themselves suggest an answer for or against.

Now the questionaire used in securing information from the land owners was sent out through the mail. It was very long, covering three legal size sheets. The questions asked were such as to require considerable thought and study on the part of the land owner if he answered them. The matter of leading questions was sedulously avoided, but on the whole, it would be anticipated that the results would be meager in the extreme on account of the length of the questionaire and that the information received would be biased in that only those interested would answer.

GRAHAM TO HAVE AN ANNUAL FAIR

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 12.—A premium list amounting to $1,000 has been made up for the first annual Young county fair to be held in Graham November 9th, 10th and 11th. A charter was secured some time ago from Austin.

The fair will be held at the ball park on the northwest outskirts of the city. Some of the displays will be in the park but the livestock will be shown on the 20 acres surrounding the park to the south of the park and west of the railroad tracks. If the site proves satisfactory it will be the permanent fair grounds. Fair officials will go to Seymour, Wichita Falls and other places to get ideas and information about the fairs to be held at those places.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12.—The growth of timber in the entire world is equal to only two-thirds of the amount consumed, and the world's timber supply is steadily shrinking. Such is the situation as indicated in a new publication on "Forest Resources of the World," by Raphael Zon and William N. Sparhawk, forest economists of the forest service, United States department of agriculture.

The book, which is not published by the government, is in two volumes and contains approximately 1,000 pages, with 16 colored maps. It is full of facts and statistics about the extent of the kind of forest; cut, growth, consumption of timber; timber trade and forest and secondary industries; forest ownership and legislation—all of which give the reader a comprehensive picture of the forest situation of separate countries and of the world as a whole.

Leaves Half Million To Housekeeper

Mrs. Elsa Lincke.

Years ago Mrs. Elsa Lincke went into the household of Hugo Lange, wealthy New York importer, as a housekeeper.

Though the task might be termed menial, hers was a high sense of duty and as the days, weeks and months passed into years Mrs. Lincke performed her duties most painstakingly.

Maintaining the home of the elderly importer, anticipating his every wish and providing every comfort were her only thoughts.

He died recently and in his will was a bequest of $500,000 to Mrs. Lincke whom he termed his "devoted housekeeper."

But now after all these years of patient and solicitious service she faces a bitter fight for the possession of the reward of her duty, well done.

Brothers of the deceased importer are battling to break the will by which Lange sought to show his appreciation in death of the kindly little favors she had done him in life.

With plans to amputate his dough—
A game at which she did not fail.

His money gone, ambition fled,
His wife did not break down in tears,
Out-vamped the silken vamp instead
And stole his money back. (Loud cheers.)

"It's just as culpable a wrong
To steal a husband's love," said she
"As for his wife to rob your strong-

The story's tense; the acting's there—

So says Alvin A. Adams, a New York fan after he has seen the picture, "Lawful Larceny" opening today at the Olympic.

Allan Dwan, maker of Robin Hood is giving us a society picture this time, and it promises to be a good one. Nita Naldi as the vamp wears some stunning clothes, among them a gorgeous headdress which she wears as Cleopatra in the prologue to the picture. Hope Hampton, playing the jealous little wife chooses more conservative gowns in keeping with her role, but she certainly knows how to wear them. Hope Hampton is a Houston girl, and when she was away in New Orleans, at Sophie Newcombs fashionable school for girls, a class mate purloined a picture of her just for a lark and entered it in a newspaper beauty contest. The picture won first prize and drew the attention of motion picture producers to her beauty. Her debut on the screen followed very soon after.

Conrad Nagle plays the husband, Nita's victim and we're anxious to see how just how she goes about it and how Connie takes it.

Connie reported at the Lasky studios the other morning in Hollywood, and had no sooner passed through the gate than he started disrobing. Off came his coat and vest then his collar and tie; next his shirt, and finally his trousers.

Then the howls of protest died away, for Nagle was arrayed in a regulation track suit which he had worn under his "civies." He crouched on his mark, and then shot down the gravel straightaway with a graceful easy stride that proved definitely that he knew what he was doing.

Nagle during his college days was a track man fo. Highland Park college of Des Moines, Iowa, and played varsity athletics for four years. In 1914 he won first in the hundred yard dash, quarter mile, and half mile in the Missouri Valley Conference meet.

Billie Dove adores bicycle races, both as an onlooker, and as a rider. Cycling is Billie's favorite exercise and she possesses a beautiful machine which she cares for with her own hands. She has been riding since she was small and as a racer she's no slouch!

Here's a tip on an interesting situation from a letter written by Chas. E. McCarthy of Paramount pictures to this department:

Mary Pickford's picture "Rosita" has just opened in New York. Pola Negri, under the direction of Herbert Brenon, has just completed her latest picture, "The Spanish Dancer." Both pictures are adapted from the same play, "Don Caesar de Bazan."

I understand Miss Pickford's picture is very fine. I have seen part of Brenon's picture, "The Spanish Dancer" and from what I have seen, he apparently has brought back the old Pola Negri of "Passion." Mr. Lasky who has seen the whole picture likens it to "The Three Musketeers."

Whether "The Spanish Dancer" is better than "Rosita" I have no way of knowing, but in any event it will be interesting to see how Miss Pickford and Miss Negri compare in the same roles.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES E. McCARTHY,
Famous-Players Lasky Corp.

Nita Naldi, whose next big picture after "Lawful Larceny" is Cecil B. De Mille's "Ten Commandments," says these are the six pictures she liked best:

"This side of Paradise," "Passion," "Male and Female," "The Four Horsemen," "Behind the Door," "Something to Think About."

The cast for Thomas Meighan's next Pramount picture, "Women Proof," has been completed.

Those who will support Mr. Meighan are: Lila Lee, John Sainpolis, Louise Dresser, Robert Agnew, Mary Astor, Edgar Norton, Charles A. Sellon, George O'Brien, Vera Reynolds, Hardee Kirkland, Martha Maddox and "Bill" Gonder.

Many of the exterior scenes will be made in Pasadena. There will also be scenes on the New York waterfront.

George Ade wrote this story for Mr. Meighan and Tom Geraghty prepared the scenario. It is to be directed by Alfred E. Green. Mr. Ade is in Hollywood for the purpose of co-operating in the filming of the story. This is the third Thomas Meighan picture in which he has personally co-operated in this way.

Mr. Meighan will have the role of a young civil engineer who is too busy directing a big enterprise to think of marriage. His father's will stipulates that all of the children must marry, and the complications of the plot revolve about the attempt of his brothers and sisters to make him fall in love.

BEAUTY HELPS, OF COURSE, BUT—

Brains are the things that count in holding the affections of a man. Anything as slippery as a man's affections needs something more than a pretty thing to look at.

Oftentimes a girl who is fair looking will meet a girl who is beautiful, and she most always thinks, "What chance have I to attract a man when he sees a girl like that?"

Man is never satisfied with just looking at a thing. Don't all little boys, from the year 1, take everything they see apart? No matter how pretty a music box is on the outside, they want to see the thing that makes the music. Same way when a man meets a girl; he is attracted by her beauty, but he must find out what that beauty hides.

He will begin to talk to her and question her, and if she passes the brain test he puts her to, his interest is sustained.

But heaven help the beauties who do not pass that test. Men seem to be harder on them than on a homely girl (because they are so keenly disappointed, I suppose.)

Nearly every man would love to love a beautiful woman, because beauty and brains make an ideal combination, but if he must take his choice he will choose brains, because it is impossible for a man to love a beautiful face with nothing back of it.

DECATUR, Sept. 12.—Extensive preparations are being made by Decatur chamber of commerce for the Wise county fair to be held on the streets of Decatur Sept. 20-22. Several boosting trips over the county will be made this week to advertise the fair. The splendid crops of this county guarantee one of the best agricultural displays ever shown here, while the livestock and poultry associations expect a great showing of these industries.

ZONA GALE

In Collaboration With Russell Gore Writes On

ON LOOKING WOMANLY

She was doing the morning housework. She was in a dark blue print dress often washed and much faded, and a gray calico bib-apron with the same history. Her shoes were squat and shapeless. Her hair was pulled tightly back, and most of the hairpins were revealed at full length. She looked worried and hurried.

As she came to the door to shake her dust cloth there came to the steps a woman in a gray tailor gown, with a pretty hat and becomingly dressed hair.

"Good morning," she said. "I'm making an informal census of the women who are listed as housewives, and who have at some time in their lives thought of entering business or a profession. Would you mind telling me if you've ever thought of that, before your marriage or since?"

"Indeed I have not," said the woman of the house, "I consider that a woman's duty—" She stopped and looked away. "Well of course, when I was a girl," she said, "I used to think I'd like to be a public school music teacher——"

"You have some talent for music?"

"Oh, yes—I did have. I used to sing and play a good deal. I was organist in our church—just a little one—and I used to lead in singing class——"

"And what changed your mind?"

"I married."

And you couldn't go on with the music?"

"My husband thought my place was in our home—" she stiffened a bit defiantly, "And it was."

"Pardon me—would you mind telling me if you decided that yourself? Or did you defer to your husband's wishes?"

"Well—it was to please him, at first. But afterward I thought so too. I believe in a woman staying womanly and not going around at all sorts of work outside her home."

The other woman smiled quite kindly.

"But womanly duties," she said "you mean doing her own housework?"

"Why, yes. Her own work. And I think the finest thing in the world is the womanly woman—the one that looks and acts the womanly woman."

"Exactly," said the other woman.

She asked a few more questions, and moved away. The woman in blue print, with shapeless shoes and tight hair, shook her dust cloth and attacked her pies. The gray tailor-made woman, crossed to the house of a woman in brown calico who was sweeping off the bricks.

And an angel, happening to glance down from the air, wondered why the two women dressed for housework and doing it, felt so much more womanly than the gray tailor made woman who was taking the informal census.

It is possible, thought the angel, that the millions of women in business in the United States now look and are dressed more like the typical "womanly woman" than the hundreds of millions of housewives about their morning work?

DOCTORS WANTED TO OPERATE

Mrs. Quillon Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her from an Operation

Muskegon, Michigan.—"After doctoring for eight or nine years with different physicians without any relief at all, they said at last that medicine would not reach my case and I should have an operation. I had heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and often saw it advertised in different papers where some women had suffered just as I did and got well and strong again by taking the Vegetable Compound. I decided to see what it would do for me, and before I had finished the fourth bottle I was much better, the weakness stopped and the severe pains in my sides left me. I am now much stronger and do my own work and work in the factory besides. I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and give it all the praise."—Mrs. NELLIE QUILLON, 17 Morris St., Muskegon, Mich.

Women should heed such warning symptoms as bearing-down pains and weakness, for they indicate some female trouble, and a persistent and faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will seldom fail to help.

How Mothers Friend aids Expectant Mothers at Child-birth

THERE are thousands of expectant mothers who undergo much useless suffering for months before, as well as at the moment when delivery occurs. These months of suffering, with nerves and vital organs weakened, leave their effect upon the child. An eminent physician found the way to stop much of this unnecessary suffering—the same easy way which thousands of mothers have used for three generations.

Mrs. Walter S. Hadley, Bridgeport, Ind., says: "Before my little boy came I was so paralyzed in my hips and limbs I could hardly walk, and some days after a little extra exertion I couldn't walk a step. I felt it coming on this time; in fact, I could hardly get up when I sat down, but now after using one bottle of Mother's Friend, I am so much better. I feel that I almost owe my life to Mother's Friend."

Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse, and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor, because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

"Mother's Friend" is applied externally to the abdomen, back and hips. It penetrates remarkably, permitting the easier relaxation and distension of muscles, nerves, tissues and ligaments, and their constant easier readjustment during expectancy and at child-birth. Have no more fear or dread, mother! Start using "Mother's Friend" now—the sooner the better.

"Mother's Friend" contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is safe. For three generations "Mother's Friend" has relieved expectant mothers of much useless suffering. Mother! you must avoid mere greases and useless substitutes. Begin using "Mother's Friend" today. It is sold at drug stores—everywhere.

ERRORS COSTLY AS SPUDDERS LOSE BY SMALL COUNTS; BOTH TEAMS OFF FORM IN TWO GAMES

Morgan Shows Up Well in First Game But Is Beaten By Kircher; Knight Holds Usual Jinx on Bergerites Winning Second Game.

BY DON WELDON.

The Spudders dropped both games of the doubleheader yesterday afternoon to the invading Houston Buffs, losing the first 4 to 3 and the second 5 to 3. Both clubs played ragged ball, but the breaks were against the Spudders throughout both melees, and costly errors helped the visitors to count their runs.

Morgan in the first game worked for the locals and allowed only eight hits, but Kircher allowed the Spuds only 7. The visitors were credited with four errors in the first affair, but the one of the Spudders was more costly and the Spuds lost by one run.

In the second game Jack Knight held the Spudders to only six scattered hits, and they were unable to even the five counters garnered by the Buffs. Two errors helped the southern crew win, and in seven innings they kept the lead which they took in the fourth frame when they counted three runs.

First Game.

Barrett got the first hit of the game in the second inning, but did not reach second.

In the third inning the Buffs opened up for a few minutes and garnered a couple of runs. Baggan walked, and was forced at second by Stansbury. Sperber hit safely to right, and after Schmandt fanned, Bell hit a long two-bagger to right, scoring Stansbury and Sperber. McDonald flied out to third.

A double by Morgan and an error by Kircher gave the Spudders the tying runs in the fifth inning. After hits and three runs in the fourth inning. After Schmandt was out Bell walked, taking second on McDonald's single. Bliss was out, and Griffith singled scoring Bell, and sending McDonald to third. McDonald and Griffith scored on Knight's timely single to right. Baggan singled, sending Knight to third, and Stansbury fanned.

A careless error by Bischoff gave the Buffs a counter in the fifth, with Sperber on second the catcher threw the ball carelessly past Wheeler. It rolled past second. Sperber scoring.

A double by Knight and singles by Baggan and Schmandt gave them another run in the sixth, Knight crossing the plate.

In the seventh two base hits by Cotter and Berger gave the locals one run, but they were unable to even the count.

METHODISTS WIN GRAHAM TITLE

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 12.—Before the largest crowd that has ever attended a ball game here the Methodists won the championship this afternoon, defeating the Presbyterians by the score of one to nothing. Warren knocked a two-bagger bringing in Nicolette, the first man up, for the only run of the game. Each side secured three scattered hits. Batteries were Smith and Stovall for the Methodists and Conley and Price for the Presbyterians.

TAX BURDEN

Some republican newspapers have had the temerity to boast of the reduction the administration has made in taxation of the people generally, saying that the tax bill of the people had been cut by more than 575 million dollars within a year. That is true, but the only reason it has been cut is because the incomes and profits of the people have been cut still deeper. The rate of taxation on income remains the same, except that a few sur-taxes on the greatest income were cut some. The average persons paid less in taxes to the United States last year because his income was less. The federal law provided for taking the same proportion of the incomes, but the government could not take from the people what the people did not have. And it is because incomes have been reduced and the incomes have been cut these hundreds of millions of dollars that new form of taxation are in contemplation, and probably will have to be established.

Already what they consider the most rigid economy has been practiced by the various departments of the government, and although efforts are still being made to have them still further reduced their expenditures, great doubt is expressed here as to the probability of their making any further reductions. Some of the departments are actually calling for increased appropriations, rather than arranging to reduce expenses.

Heavy Amounts Needed.

Hundreds of millions are involved in programs which will be strongly urged by congress, in additions to the regular appropriations for the maintenance of the government. And each one of these programs will have backing that will not care how the extra expenses are met, whether by increased taxation or otherwise. If necessary, the friends of several of these measures, each calling for large appropriations, will get together and the friends of one will work for the plan of the other in exchange for reciprocal support.

First, there is the proposal of the treasury and postoffice departments that the nation enter at once upon a great comprehensive plan for the erection of new federal buildings throughout the country. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon plans a vigorous effort to put this plan through congress. He will be aided and supported by

Dempsey Rests Last Time Before Starting To New York For Bout

By The Associated Press

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—After a day of nothing more exciting than motoring into Saratoga Springs, for a haircut, Jack Dempsey crawled into bed in his little cottage on the edge of Saratoga Lake tonight, for his last sleep before starting for New York to defend his title against Luis Angel Firpo on Friday night.

The light workout scheduled for the world's heavyweight champion was cancelled at the last minute, to the hero-worshippers, who hoped for a disappointment of a hundred or more last glimpse of Dempsey doing his stuff in the outdoor arena. The only exercise the title-holder took aside from an hour's walk with Mike Trant, his body guard, and pal, this morning, was sitting in the back of his fawn-colored roadster for the 12 miles drive into town.

The champion's visit to Saratoga Springs excited no interest, aside from that taken by the barber in cutting Jack's hair.

"I've laid a hundred bucks, Jack, on you," the barber confided.

"Well, I hope you win," the champion replied, and settled down to the business of waiting for the barber to quit talking and finish the hair cut.

Before making the trip into town, Dempsey loafed around his cottage, conserving his energy. He enjoyed going through a stack of mail from admirers throughout the country conveying their message of "good luck." He trimmed Trant in a few games of pinochle and played host to a party of six admirers from Butte, Mont., who said they made the trip by motor in 11 days. The Montanans proceeded to New York after a brief chat.

Because of his failure to obtain desirable train accomodations, Dempsey may make the trip to New York down the Hudson river by boat tomorrow night, go by train to Albany and then board the boat there, arriving in New York early Friday morning. He may decide, however, to motor to Albany tomorrow afternoon and catch a New York train, arriving in Manhattan early in the evening.

CATS DEFEAT SAND CRABS

Tiny Goodbred Wins In Good Game at Fort Worth

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Sept. 12.—Tiny Goodbred turned in an excellently pitched game for the Cats today and they defeated Galveston 4 to 2. Skipper Jake Atz advertised he would leave Tiny in the box no matter how many runs were made off him and that he would serve coffee to the fans at 7 o'clock. Goodbred landed back an hour and forty minutes as the time was 1:20. Kraft hit his thirty-first home run, one shy of his last year's mark. Score.

Postmaster General New. And a large membership in congress will join in putting through a public building bill, but probably not the kind the postmaster general and the secretary of the treasury want.

But, whether the Mellon plan or the Langley plan be adopted, it is almost certain that a public building bill will be passed by congress at the coming session, and that will mean nobody knows how many hundred million dollars for which provision must be made by some sort of new taxation.

Bonus.

Even those who opposed the "soldier bonus" legislation in the last congress and those who fought it to the last are about willing to admit now that congress at its next session will enact a measure providing for some sort of a bonus to the service men of the world war. The situation has not changed since Secretary Mellon and the late President Harding stated that the bonus could not paid till provision was made for the payment, and some form of additional tax must be provided if the bonus bill is to go through.

Navy Program.

The navy department heads are insisting that the American navy must be built up. They are behind the "big navy" plan. This does not mean that the recently ratified treaty on the limitation of naval armament is to be disregarded, but they want large numbers of smaller vessels to make up for the battleships which are destroyed to conform to the treaty. Back of the navy department heads is a strong sentiment throughout the nation for a larger navy. But, if this legislation goes through it will necessitate heavier taxation and new methods of "getting the money" from the people, for the present methods have begun to fail.

Air Fleet Needs.

The air service maintains that, with battleships destroyed and other nations building great air fleets, the United States will be at the mercy of posible enemies of the future unless we keep an air fleet as powerful as that of any other country. Hundreds of millions would be required to do this.

Rivers and Harbors.

River and harbor work, federal aid roads in all states, citizens trainings camps and training of reserve officers and state troops will all demand more of this congress than they have been getting, and there is every reason for the statement that congress will find it impossible to keep expenditures down to the present income, without antagonizing great bodies of citizens. This could hardly be expected in the face of a general election.

And then comes the dilemma. Congress must either cut down its expenditures, at the expense of great public works desired by large groups of the people, or

TWO NEW FOREST STATIONS OPEN

Will Be Used To Carry Out Reforestation Policies

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 12.—Experimental work for the furtherance of forestry in the United States will receive a great stimulus through the opening of the two forest experiment stations, for which congress provided at its last session in the appropriations for the forest service of the department of agriculture.

One of the new stations is called the northwestern forest experiment station, and will have its headquarters at Amherst, Mass., in co-operation with the Massachusetts Agricultural college. The other is known as the lake states forest experiment station and will be located at St. Paul, Minn., where it will co-operate with the Minnesota Agricultural college.

Co-operative Agreements.

Agreements have been made by the U. S. department of agriculture with these colleges whereby the stations will be furnished office and laboratory space on the campus. In addition, the institutions will also put the woodlands owned by them at the disposal of the stations for experimental field work. At Amherst this will be in the 700-acre forest near the college, and in Minnesota at Cloquet, where the state has operated a small experiment station on a forest of 2,700 acres. The forest service will provide for research work by students and will give a series of lectures in connection with its work.

The establishment of these new stations is part of the program of the U. S. department of agriculture to develop in each one of the important forest regions of the country regional forest experiment stations where local forest problems as well as fundamental research in the growth of forest trees and stands can be carried on. In this way they will serve the owner of a farm woodlot, the timberland owner, and the lumbermen as the present state agricultural experiment stations serve the farmer.

Permanent Production Aim.

The primary object of these stations are to carry out studies of methods of reforestation in the non-productive and idle or partially productive timberlands of their regions and of forest practices, so that the lumber and wood-using industries dependent upon the forest for their supplies may be assured of a continuous production of the raw materials.

Each of these stations will aid in the correlation of the forest research now under way by many independent organizations in an effort to prevent duplication of work and to make certain that the entire field of forestry is covered. Representatives of the various forest schools, agricultural colleges, and state foresters, and of the pulp and paper and wood-using industries will be invited to serve on these regional research councils. With the help of these local councils, which will act in an advisory capicity, the location for carrying out the approved projects and the character and extent of the work will be determined. They will also act as clearing houses where information will be kept relating to all forestry research work of the region, and by their advice and assistance will stimulate and standardize the work on a high plan.

First Football Story of Year Is Warning To Big Ten Teams

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 10.—The first collegiate football story of the season emanates from this city in the shape of a warning to the Western College Conference that Indiana University, instilled with the championship hope, is preparing to wage the greatest fight in its career for Big Ten honors.

First of all, the team will practice and play its biggest home games in one of the greatest athletic plants in the west. The new memorial stadium designed to seat 50,000 persons, will be thrown open to the public with impressive dedicatory exercises late this fall with an initial seating capacity of 22,000, the additional seats to be added in higher tiers later on.

Hoosiers' Finest

The Indiana stadium is being constructed of concrete and Bedford stone. It is in the shape of a horseshoe and will take its place as the Hoosier state's finest athletic plant. It is the contribution of some 10,000 toward a fund of $1,500,000 to be used in the erection of the stadium, a men's union building, and a woman's dormitory, as memorials to Indiana's 2,800 war veterans.

Along with her magnificent new athletic plant, Indiana is to have a trio of new athletic coaches recognized as second to none in the west. Zora Clevenger, former Indiana star and for many years a successful coach and athletic administrator at the University of Tennessee, Kansas Agricultural College, and Missouri University, takes the place of the late "Jumbo" Stiehm as athletic director. Leslie Mann, big league baseball player and former Amherst and and Rice Institute coach, comes to Indiana as assistant director of athletics.

Ex-Navy Star Coach

The other member of Indiana's celebrated coaching trio is Big Bill Ingram, ex-navy and former all-American quarterback.

Ingram will be head coach of Indiana's football eleven. His team will be made up almost exclusively of recruits from the freshman squad of last year, but Ingram see a favorably impressed with the new blood in the Indiana squad. Headed by Captain "Stew" Butler, and impelled by his two-fisted, fighting spirit and the stimulus of a new stadium, the Hoosier eleven is looked upon as one of the dark horses of the Big Ten conference this season.

BUS REGULATED IN MOST STATES

Texas Now One of Few That Has Not Taken Action

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 12.—All of the states in the United States except six have taken official action in respect to the motor bus. This action has come through the increased use of motor buses as common carriers using the public highways for their roadways, says the Texas public service information bureau. Texas is one of the few states that have taken little action with regard to control of this class of public service. In 17 states public utility commissions have issued general orders governing the operation of motor buses.

The certificate of public convenience and necessity under which competition with electric and steam railways and other buses is either completely eliminated or restricted is effective in 20 states. Indemnity bonds are required in 23 states. Commissions have authority over fares in 19 states, and regulations over routes are provided in 14 and over schedules in 16 states.

In Texas the farming communities are allowing their enthusiasm for good roads to wane in the light that has come to taxpayers through the destruction of their improved highways by the common carrier trucks and motor buses.

The electric railways of this country contribute 92 million dollars a year in the form of direct taxes not counting several other imposts levied on them such as street paving, street cleaning, etc. Last year the net income of the electric railways was 84 million dollars. In other words the electric railways last year paid 8 million dollars more into the public treasury than they paid to their stockholders and to the various reserve funds combined.

Finish Railroad.

ROBY.—The rehabilitation and electrification of the Roby and Northern railroad, which is rapidly nearing completion, will be formally celebrated early in October by a monster rodeo and barbecue staged by the West Texas Utilities company. An attendance of several thousand people is anticipated.

Electric Pump Saves.

WAXAHACHIE.—A new electrically operated pumping plant for the city's water supply that has been in operation for several months is saving the city just one-half of the former cost of pumping the water from the artesian wells that supply the city.

Construction Delayed.

DALLAS.—Delay n construction of the Denton-Dallas interurban railway by electrification of the M. K. & T. lines is expected to be prolonged by litigation growing out of the objection of property owners to construction of tracks on Fairmount street for the entrance of cars into the city.

NEFF EXPECTING MANY PROBLEMS

Prisons Overflowing — School Question Very Important

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—Governor Neff's statement to a member of the legislature that only problems of "paramount importance" would cause him to call a special session of the legislature next year, was taken here to indicate that he anticipates a difficult situation and decision as to whether or not the legislature will be convened next January or later.

Pressure of both legislators and the public to induce calling of a session early next year, dealing particularly with the situation which causes all employes of state departments and institutions to work 22 days out of the year for banks, to pay discount on state warrants, and causes the state to pay approximately 20 per cent more for its supplies bought in the open market than if cash were available to pay for them, is beginning to materialize at the governor's office, the statement was taken to indicate.

Neff's statement that only matters of paramount importance would provoke the session indicated that he will apply his own definition to what is of paramount importance. It was just as conclusive so far as announcing his intention, political observers declared, as a farmer's declaration, "I hope it will rain next year."

Prison Overflowing.

The prison population has doubled since Governor Neff took office. He has granted less than 10 per cent of the number of pardons usually granted. The prison walls at Huntsville and prison farms of 60,000 acres are overflowing with convicts now, and nearly 1,000 men according to the governor's statement, not fitted for farm work, are lying in idleness now. The prison system has borrowed 750,000 since Governor Neff took office.

The state is on nearly a $3,000,000 deficiency, with prospects of this being increased until December, when the $3,500,000 emergency and rural aid school appropriations will be further added, making it questionable whether $10,000,000 in tax collections next March will restore the state to a cash basis for a month. It is known that the deficiency will be very large shortly after March 1, refusal of banks to further discount warrants at any rate was narrowly averted on September 1, and the same situation will be faced not later than April 1 of next year.

School Squabble Important.

Opponents of the school appropriations contend they are unconstitutional and have announced a test will be made in Texas courts. If the appropriations are upheld, the state deficiency will be increased by the $3,500,000 annual appropriations for two years; but if they are held void, school officials say that the average school term in the common school district of Texas will be only four months, unless something is done to supplement funds from the direct education tax.

New Laws Needed.

There are many who believe that numerous Texas laws will be necessary to develop fullest commercial relations and the full protection of rights through citizenship law revisions, as affecting Texans in Mexico, and Mexican interests in Texas, since diplomatic relations have been restored with Mexico.

It was pointed out recently, that a South American republic threatened to deny all privileges of development in its borders to American citizens, because of Texas laws which prevented its citizens acquiring and developing state oil rights in Texas the same as Texas citizens. Mexico has so much in undeveloped resources of oil, minerals and crops, that Texas may be compelled to devise laws to permit the Mexican citizens the same rights in Texas that Texas citizens will seek in old Mexico. This will call for legislation in several phases, they say.

Altogether, it is claimed that only by refusing to listen to the demands of legislators who believe they have matters which require enactment into law, and of the public, which will clamor for relief from existing difficulties through new legislation, that the governor will avoid a special session during the next seven months.

EDUCATION DEPT. TO BE IN EXHIBIT

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs informed officials of the Texas state exposition, Austin, October 1 to 6, on Saturday that the state educational department will have a big exhibit at the exposition here this fall.

This exhibit will contain a model consolidated rural high school, showing the playgrounds, athletic equipment, buildings, roads, etc., in miniature, and also shown gsmall grade schools in miniature on the outskirts of the high school grounds.

The exhibit will also contain water color drawings by architects of high school buildings constructed in Texas during the last year, and will contain a large number of charts showing the relative amount of illiteracy in the various counties, the amount which counties appropriate toward their own support, and the like.

Other parts of this big educational show will be displays of articles made in vocational departments of schools from all over the state of Texas, and school supplies and books, furnished by book companies of Texas and other states. It will be on the order of the big exhibit shown at the State Fair at Dallas last year.

OHIO'S SHORTAGE 120,000 HOUSES

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Sept. 12.—A shortage of 120,000 homes existed for Ohio at the beginning of 1923, according to a report of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards. There are now 20,000 homes under construction in that state.

An appeal has been issued to all members of real estate men's organizations throughout Ohio to assist in getting funds into building and loan associations in order that the home building boom now under way may not be handicapped for lack of available mortgage money.

It is estimated that at least 40,000 more homes will be built there over the next 12 months if funds become available.

CAPTURE MAN WHO SUPPLIED DOPE TO DISABLED VETERANS

By International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Federal narcotic agents Saturday arrested Herman Root, 24, an inmate of Speedway hospital, and authorities believe that with his arrest they have apprehended the leader of a ring supplying ex-service men confined in the institution with narcotics. Root was arrested following the death Friday of William Rehinold, who occupied a cot near Root's bed. Investigation revealed that Rehingold had died from an overdose of morphine.

A quantity of morphine and cocaine was found in Root's bed. The drugs were taken from Root after several hospital attendants had overpowered him. He was given a jail sentence two years ago for selling dope.

Bill to Legalize Irish Army Meets Criticism

By The Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Sept. 12.—A bill to legalize the Irish national army, which hitherto has operated without legislative authority, has just been framed and is the subject of much criticism from both labor and conservative members in the Dail. The measure constitutes an army code similar to the king's regulations for the British army, and would be effective only for one year. At the end of that time, the bill provides, the army question may be reconsidered.

Labor leaders oppose the measure because of the distinction between officers and men, while the conservatives urge that it be modelled more closely after British Dominion army legislation. Other critics object to the present method of combining the offices of minister for defence and commander-in-chief, and have started agitation to have the defence ministry made a separate and civilian office.

If the measure, which is known as will give the army a legal status for the first time. To date, the 50,000 men comprising the national forces have served on an emergency basis.

The bill is elaborate, comprising 245 clauses, and providing for the establishment of an Irish military college for officers, for the creation of an army reserve, and making the designations of military rank.

All soldiers will be required under the measure to take an oath, pledging "true faith and allegiance to our country."

The present strength of the army has caused much discussion, as it is in excess of the proportion with the British army, agreed to in the treaty. Answering the critics, General Mulcahy announced recently that by next March he expects to reduce the total of armed forces to 30,000.

Seven Warships Await Junking at Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12—Seven war vessels at the Philadelphia navy yard are to be scrapped under the provisions of the treaty for the limitation of armaments, recently approved. They include two cruisers and five battleships.

The cruisers are the Constitution and the United States, which had been under construction at the navy yard for some time. They are to be scrapped at once, acetylene torches being used to cut them to pieces. A little later workmen will start on the five battleships consigned to the international junk heap. Four of them, the Minnesota, South Carolina, Michigan and New Hampshire, are out of commission and have been lying in the storage basin at the navy yard for months. The fifth, the South Carolina, will have a fitting end to a long career, for she will be taken to sea and sunk in tests of various deck and under-water attacking methods lately devised by the navy department engineers.

An eighth battleship, the Washington, which was under construction at the New York Shipbuilding Corporation's yards in Camden, N. J., also will be shattered by the gunfire and torpedo attack of the Atlantic fleet.

School Law Changes

School trustees of Wichita county are notified by Burl Bryant, county school superintendent, that several changes in the state and rural school aid law have been made and that all applications for such aid must be made before next Oct. 15.

State aid of $10 for each student attending high school from a one teacher rural school is allowed. Where school districts combine to form a four teacher school, $1,000 aid will be given.

GROUND LOST IN TODAY'S MARKET

Selling Appears to Have Originated With Bear Operators

Market Features.

Total stock sales 876,400 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 92.07, net loss 1.54.

High 1923, 105.38; low 86.92.

Twenty railroads averaged 82.03; net loss 1.26.

High 1923, 90.51; low 79.53.

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Stock prices turned decidedly heavy in today's market after an initi l period of moderate strength. The selling is reported to have originated largely from bear operators, but the ease with which stocks lost ground induced considerable profit taking with the result that the day's sales were the largest of any session in more than two months. The only apparent reason for the burst of selling was the reports of a curtailment of steel operations contained in the weekly trade reviews. Steel shares dropped 2 to 4 points and this had a depressing effect on the rails, oils, equipments and other standard issues, which also registered substantial losses.

United States Steel common dropped 3 points to 901-2. Gulf States steel was off 3 3-4 at 83 3-8 and Republic was off 2 2-4 at 37 1-8. Cosden was again one of the most active issues on the board, more than 70,000 shares changing hands. The stock closed at 31 5-8, off 2 1-4, on selling attributed in some quarters to reports that some of the larger independents were in need of new financing.

Sugar shares offered good resistance to selling pressure in reflection of the higher commodity prices. Early gains in the active issues ran as high as 2 points, but these were reduced to fractions before the close.

Some of the outstanding losses in the industrial division were Baldwin, American Can, Corn Products, American Tobacco "B," DuPont, Houston Oil, Woolworth, Stewart Warner, National Lead and Central Leather preferred, off 2 3-4 to nearly 6 points.

The weakest active members of the railroad group were New York Central railway which dropped MSH tral and Southern railway which dropped 2 and 1 3-8 points, respectively, on what was generally described as profit taking.

Call money held at five per cent all day. Some calling of loans was reported in anticipation of September 15 income tax payments. Demand for time money was fairly large with 5 1-2 per cent the ruling rate and long term loans especially scarce. Commercial paper was unchanged at 5 1-4 to 5 1-2 per cent.

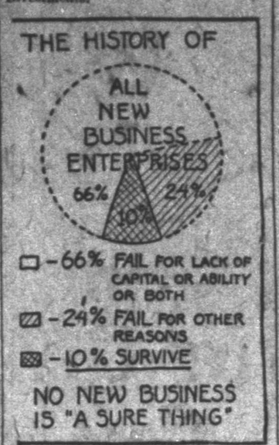

Foreign exchanges were slightly reactionary. Demand sterling held fairly steady around $4.54 3-4 and French francs around 5.78 cents, but Italian lire dropped 7 1-2 points to 4.40 cents and German marks fell below one cent a million.

Oil Royalty Paid.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—The second oil royalty payment on petroleum, produced in the Santa Rita oil field of Reagan county, reached Land Commissioner J. T. Robinson Tuesday. The check was for $200, and followed the first payment of $400 Monday. Large revenues are expected from the university's one-eighth royalty in oil produced on university lands in the new field. The money was deposited to the credit of the university.

MONEY At Work

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

Beware of the promoter who talks too much about the money other men have made in the same line of business.

Did any one ever offer you a wonderful chance to make money, pointing out enthusiastically the ease with which other men have made big profits in the same line of business?

He probably neglected to state that about 90 per cent of all new businesses fail, 66 per cent of these because of lack of capital, managerial ability, or both.

The chances are that this man lacked both ability and capital.

Unless he lacked capital, he would not be seeking it. Unless he lacked the wisdom that is the foundation of ability, he would not claim that money can be quickly and easily made just because others appear to be making it that way.

Remember, only about 10 per cent of all new businesses succeed, and most of these only after long hard struggles.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The cotton market was very nervous and unsteady again today. Early declines were followed by rallies on renewed trade buying and covering, but the advances met heavy realizing or scattered liquidation under which prices again weakened. After selling off to 27.54 early, December rallied to 27.87, but later broke to 27.43 and closed at 27.46. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 41 to 46 points.

The opening was barely steady at an advance of one point on September, but generally 10 to 17 points lower, because of relatively easy cables, reports of continued good weather in the belt and a private report, placing the mid-month condition of the crop at 52.4 and the indicated yield at 11,080,000 bales, active months showed net losses of 35 to 50 points, but the decline was checked around 27.82 for October by scale-down trade buying and covering. This steadied the market and a rally was started during the morning by a bullish weekly report from the weather bureau and the publication of another of the mid-month reports giving the condition as 52.8 and the indicated yield as 10,505,000 bales. For a time the market showed considerable strength and there was a flurry of covering early in the afternoon which put October up to 28.14 and January to 27.47, or within 3 or 13 points of yesterday's closing quotation. Contracts was comparatively scarce at the beginning of the advance, but there was an increased supply above the 28 cent level for October and the market broke into new low ground for the day during the later trading under heavy selling for Liverpool and western account. October sold off to 27.73 and January to 27.05 and the close was within a few points of the lowest. Spot advices from the southwest were conflicting, some claiming that mill and spot shorts were competing for cotton, while one of the early advices said the basis was a little easier.

Port receipts today 23,852. U. S. port stocks 323,326. Exports 4,000, making 361,050 so far this season.

New Orleans Cotton.

By The Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—The tendency was lower in the cotton market today.

In the middle part of the session, however, there was a stage of comparative steadiness. Lowest prices were reached in the late trading when liquidation from the long side and selling by traders looking for a reaction furnished too great a supply of contracts. At this stage, prices were 44 to 53 points under the close of yesterpoints under those of yesterday. October traded at 26.97 at the lowest and closed at a range of 26.99 to 27.01.

In the early session, the poor showing of the Liverpool contract market more than offset spot sales there of 12,000 bales.

The weekly crop reports from the government were more unfavorable than expected and helped to put prices to their highest levels, 4 points higher to 7 points lower than yesterday's close, with October up to 27.50. Private crop reports of the day caused moderate selling because they carried the crop estimate somewhat higher than those current recently. One report placed condition at 52.4 per cent of normal and the indicated yield at 11,080,000 bales and another put condition at 52.8 and indicated yield at 10,500,0000 bales.

Chicago Grain.

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Estimates that the 1923 Canadian crop of wheat is 70,000,000 bushels larger than last year's total, led much selling here today near the end of the board of trade session. Largely as a result, prices closed heavy, 1-2 to 3-4 cents net lower with December 1.04 3-4@7-8 and May 1.10 1-8. Corn finished 1-4 to 3-8 cent decline to 3-8 cent advance, oats at 1-4@3-8 to 1 1-4 cents up, and provisions from 5 cents to 17 cents down.

Corn averaged lower with wheat despite rather widespread frost. Oats were higher owing to scantiness of supplies here

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

WICHITANS REDUCE COST OF LIVING

Wichitans are admonished to eliminate so much of the middleman's profit. Reduce the cost of living. Lower the family expense budget. One of the great items of the family expense is life and accident insurance. Put this on an actual cost basis, by joining the local mutual aid life and accident association recently organized by leading citizens of the county. In this way save many dollars to each member of the family that may be used to educate the children, buy a home, or save for old age.

The Wichita Home Insurance Company is now the largest mutual life and accident insurance company west of Fort Worth in Texas. This organization has recently made the following announcement:

"Every person accepted for insurance is classified according to his age:

Class AA—Ages 50 to 69
Class A—Ages 35 to 50
Class B—Ages 10 to 35
Class C—Ages 0 to 15
Class D—Ages 10 to 55

The last class covers accident insurance. 1,500 members are to be included in each group, thus always assuring $1,000 insurance. The insured agrees to pay $1.10 for each death and $1.00 each six months for the expense fund.

Don't Measure This Car By the Price

There is no product where price so fails to indicate value as in a motor car.

The difference in prices rarely represents a corresponding difference in values. Cars are being offered at prices greatly in excess of the Studebaker Light-Six which do not equal its intrinsic value.

Likewise, many cars selling for less, are high-priced compared with the Light-Six. They are not in the same class because they do not represent as great intrinsic value for the money invested. The Studebaker Light-Six is the real quality car in the thousand-dollar field.

The low price of the Light-Six is due to Studebaker's vast physical and financial resources, the saving of middlemen's profits by reason of complete manufacture in Studebaker plants, and low manufacturing and sales overhead per car because of continuous large volume.

The satisfaction delivered by the Light-Six is universal. Its performance has won staunch friends everywhere. This is due to its advanced design and construction.

For example, the crankshaft and connecting rods are machined on all surfaces. This practice, which is largely responsible for its virtual freedom from vibration, is exclusive with Studebaker on cars within hundreds of dollars of the Light-Six price.

If you are thinking of investing about one thousand dollars in a car, then in justice to yourself, consider the Studebaker Light-Six first. Come in and see it. Drive it yourself. Driving is believing.

HOUSTON, Sept. 12.—The Gypsy Oil company, a subsidiary of the Gulf Oil corporation, today announced a cut of 20 cents a barrel in Oklahoma and Kansas crudes with the lowest quotations at 90 cents and the highest at $2.00. The Gulf Pipe Line company also made similar reductions in North Texas light oils.

The Gulf followed the lead of the Magnolia today when it announced cuts practically the same as those made by the latter company a week ago.

These cuts were met at the time by the Humble and Texas companies. The Magnolia abolished 41 degrees and above grades, but these will be maintained by the Gulf with a cut of $2.20 to $2.00.

FALL FASHIONS TO BE AT RACES

Models Wearing Very Latest Will Attend Track Meetings

The latest in fall fashions for women will be worn at the running and automobile races during the week of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive, according to local department store superintendents.

Most men are being run by women. There is nothing surprising in seeing dame fashion make Dad Time do the "stunt" in setting the fashions to be worn by the women, according to the latest dope sheets of fashion s.e is doing just that.

Dame fashion is known in all climes and languages. Of course the fellow who foots the bills understands a universal language known as the "profane." It would be a good idea to ask dad if he has mastered the language.

The fashion designers are always attempting to push Time backward. Then forward and back again. The fashion designers certainly have a straugle hold on Style, in fact Dad would just as soon some one would murder Style. She has to be imitated, and that is the cause of quarrels, fights, and verbal battles, and finally all the fuss is quieted. Dad unpies the strings of the pocket book and once more the sun shines.

A couple of "turnovers of the calendar ago" the younger generation told the world that they were "emancipated up." Freedom of dress was a fact. When the girls passed by, the boys agreed it was a privilege to be alive. Many a young man signed the pledge. He didn't want any bootleg imparing his eyesight.

Then along came the long skirt and the women have been all wrapped up in them ever since. And the fashion models the world over say bobbed hair is a thing of the past. That isn't all the fashions, according to late dope sheets. There will be gowns of "hobble-knee" and "Geisha." The earthquake in Japan probably has something to do with the latest style. However, it will be next summer before they will be placed on the market at the various fashion resorts.

The niftest voices of fashions now in favor for fall and spring will be shown during the week of the Texas-Oklahoma fair and exposition.

"SHEEP TO BACK" SHOW AT FAIR

From the wool on a sheep's back to a suit of clothes on a man's back, including, all the various evolutions necessary to such an operation will be a unique feature that local tailoring companies are endeavoring to give a demonstration of during the Texas-Oklahoma Fair and Exposition to be held here Oct. 1 to 7, inclusive.

A complete woolen mill on a small scale will be necessary to make the demonstration and plans are to be discussed in regard to the bringing of the mill here for the demonstration. The object in bringing the mill is to give the man who buys clothing a clear idea of the work necessary to turn out the finished article. Also concrete knowledge of the actual cost entailed in such transformation.

Unshorn sheep would be driven in one door, where the demonstration is to be held, and the man walk out another entrance wearing a suit of clothes made from the material obtained from the wool sheared from these animals.

An expert accountant would follow every move of the operation and make a record of the actual cost of each individual part of the work.

Permission was granted for the laying of a four inch water line 250 feet in length down Pembroke Lane. The cost was estimated at $250.

The paving between Ninth and Brook streets was accepted and payment is to be allowed.

ELECTION HELD BY THE UTILITY CLUB

12-Year Girl Saves Four By Swim

Margaret Candella, a 12-year-old girl of Brooklyn, N. Y., by a daring feat saved her companions from drowning. Two school teachers and three children put out from Fort Salonga into the waters of Long Island Sound, New York. A storm overtook them and the 12-foot skiff in which they were rowing became a plaything of the elements. Realizing their danger, the little girl, Margaret Candella, dove from the boat and swam a mile toward the shore to summon aid while the other remained behind to pray and bail out what water flooded the boat. Today they are all home safe, with only colds to remaind them of their narrow escape from drowning.

SCHOOL FAIR SHOW TO BE INTERESTING

The state department of education will probably have a large exhibit at the Texas Oklahoma fair and exposition to be held here October 1 to 7, inclusive. The exhibit will be larger than the displays at most fairs, according to information received at fair headquarters.

It is not known who will be in charge of the exhibit, but it is likely that a member of the state department of education will be sent to take charge of the display.

In the center of the exhibit as planned there will be a model consolidated rural high school in miniature, showing play grounds, play ground equipment, model roads, athletic equipment, and other interesting features. The ward school buildings will be shown in miniature on the out-skirts of the high school grounds.

Pictures and charts will be displayed around the wall. These will be of vocational work, and water colored scenes by architects of the new school buildings constructed in the state during the last few years.

Other charts will display different features, especially work in art, money appropriations by each county for its own support along with money appropriated by the state.

School Ma'rms Can Bob It In Texas

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 12.—Bobbed hair is no cause for discharging a school teacher in Texas. This is the statement made by L. W. Rogers, first assistant state superintendent of schools, in answer to several inquiries from school teachers and school boards over the state.

The bobbed hair question has come up in a number of schools, according to information coming to the state department. One school board is reported to have attempted to revoke a teacher's contract because she bobbed her hair. Other more cautious teachers, before adopting the popular mode of hair dress, have written the state department for an expression on their problem.

But after a thorough examination of Texas school laws, Assistant Superintendent Rogers has been able to find no provisions which prohibits the bobbing of hair.

"Hair bobbing is not cause for discharging a teacher or revoking a contract, unless it can be shown that such an act will prevent the teacher from performing her duties satisfactorily," Rogers said. "The Texas laws are silent on the question, since they were framed before hair bobbing became an issue."

Some school boards have taken the position that because a teacher bobs her hair she will not be asked to resign her position. Others oppose the fad, while still others are expected to give expression to their views before the 1923 school term gets well under way. With the opening of schools this month, reports are that numerous teachers are appearing with their hair shorn.

DRUNK DRIVERS GET A WARNING

County Attorney Says I Is Penitentiary Offense

Drunken car drivers are reminded by Wayne Somerville, assistant county attorney, that to drive a motor vehicle while intoxicated is a penitentiary offense.

"Instances are coming to light pretty regularly now of men, yes and of women, who take their life and the lives of others in their own hands, get drunk and go for a joy ride. Instead of such actions being clever they are flagrant violations of the law and hereafter it is going to be considered as such by the county attorney's department," Somerville said.

"The public generally thought," he continued, "a drunken spree resulting in a car being turned over and a few bones broken was all over as far as the law is concerned when a fine for speeding or drunkenness was paid.

"They are going to learn different hereafter for the statute says punishment by Lapriconment in the penitentiary for a term of a year or more is for any person or persons driving a car while intoxicated. This should be fair warning and we advise drunks to think twice hereafter before getting in a car and trying to drive while in that condition," the assistant county attorney said.
