CRYSTAL CLEAR — Mark Bland, director of community services at WTC, and director of maintenance Albert Conde, right, are proud of WTC pool improvements completed just in time to kickoff a busy summer schedule. New pool hours make the pool more accesible to the public. (Staff Photo by Jo Ann Nunley)

WTC pool is ready for summer crowds

Western Texas College's indoor swimming pool got some needed repairs in a hurry between the end of the spring semester and the kickoff of the summer recreation programs.

"We didn't have much time, but the guys did a great job in what little time they had," said Albert Conde, WTC director of maintenance.

Handrails and a lifeguard stand were installed, and the locker rooms received a facelift.

The pool was drained for repairs and the bottom of the pool received a new coat of paint.

The pool already has a busy summer schedule, and has scheduled Project Graduation parties for Snyder, Ira and Borden County high schools.

Open swimming hours at the pool are scheduled this summer from 1-5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and the fee is $2 per day.

This program begins Monday.

"We added the additional time to make the pool more accessible to the public," said Mark Bland, who is heading the summer program.

Swimming lessons are available throughout the summer, beginning Monday.

Private parties can be scheduled by contacting the community service office at 573-8511, ext. 342.

The cost to rent the pool is $35 per hour.

Thursday nights have been designated family night swimming, and for $5, families may swim from 6:30 until 9 p.m.

To get this special rate, the family must be accompanied by at least one parent. Individuals also may swim Thursday evening, for $2.

Senior citizen swim times are 9-10 a.m. Monday through Thursday, and there is no charge.

More details about swim times will be in an advertisement in this weekend's paper, along with a coupon redeemable at the pool concession stand for a free soft drink.

"We're looking forward to a fun-filled and successful summer," said Bland.

"Everyone out here invites the community of Snyder, and other areas, out to experience just a small part of what Western Texas College has to offer," Bland said.

Seniors cap final year with 8 p.m. ceremony

One hundred and ninety five Snyder High School seniors will receive diplomas tonight during commencement exercises starting at 8 o'clock in Scurry County Coliseum.

Giving the Salutatory address will be Laura Gonzales. The Valedictory address will be given by Kevin Kerr.

Almost $600,000 in scholarships will be announced by SHS principal Larry Scott.

SHS drama instructor Jerry Worsham will present the graduates and two members of the board of trustees, Glen Clarady and Luann Burleson, will award the diplomas.

Class of 1998 Honor Graduates include April Kristin Baker, Zackary Joe Briseno, Haley Jan Brown, Christina Lorraine Bullard, Jamie Leigh Burleson, Mark Allen Cave, Casey Wayne Doyle and Sean Lee Duncan.

Others include Traci Michelle Eicke, Laura Gonzales, Todd Thomas Hall, Michael David Hensley and Jenise Adell Judah.

Others are Kevin Andrew Kerr, Melanie Joyce Kidd, Eric James Long, Starling Shields, Joseph Jene Steakley, Carol Vina Strayhorn and Windy Tarea Wood.

Seniors have chosen "The Time of Your Life," as the class song. SHS colors of black and gold are the seniors' chosen colors and roses are the class flowers.

"Nothing is impossible to a willing heart" is the motto of the class of 1998.

Goldwater dies today in Arizona

PHOENIX (AP) — Barry Goldwater, the sharp-tongued, uncompromising defender of conservatism whose fierce but futile campaign for the presidency in 1964 began the philosophical reshaping of the Republican Party, died today at age 89.

His family released a statement saying Goldwater died at his home in suburban Paradise Valley of natural causes.

"He was in his own bed, in his own room, as he wished, overlooking the valley he loved with family at his side," the statement said. "He died as he lived: with dignity, courage and humility."

"He is soaring," KTAR Radio quoted Goldwater's wife, Susan, as saying.

Goldwater suffered a stroke in 1996 that damaged the frontal lobe of his brain, which controls memory and personality. In September 1997, his family said

New Midwest co-op manager familiar with service area

Jerry Stapp, newly-appointed manager of Midwest Electric Cooperative, has been familarizing himself with the co-op's service area and was in Snyder again Thursday.

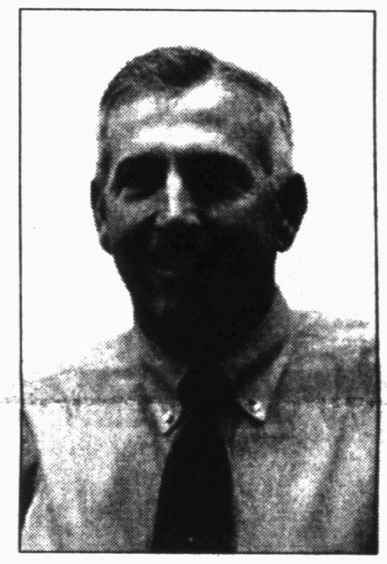

Stapp was meeting various civic leaders in Snyder and viewed the progress of the industrial park, including Midwest's substation that is under construction to serve Lorber Industries of Texas.

Stapp, a native of Breckenridge, began his duties with Midwest on May 1. Stapp succeeds Vesta Orr who is now executive assistant to the manager and Midwest board of directors.

Orr will continue in that capacity until January, 2000. A merger of Midwest with Stamford Electric Cooperative is being negotiated, and Orr is spending a substantial part of his time in management of the Stamford company.

Stapp joins Midwest after 23 years with West Texas Utilties and the Central and South West Energy Services. He was manager of ERCOT sales, working out of the Abilene division.

"I am very familiar with Midwest and had worked with them for a number years," Stapp said. "It is a strong company with a bright future."

Jerry Stapp

Stapp has worked with Midwest negotiating power contracts with WTU.

A graduate of Breckenridge High School, he earned a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering from Texas Tech University.

His wife, Susan, is an teacher at Bowie Elementary in Abilene. Their daughter, Stacie, graduates from Wylie High School this spring. Stapp is currently living in Sweetwater.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Good grief!

We noticed in the Colorado City Record where a parent brought charges against an elementary school principal because the female principal paddled her little darling.

A Mitchell County grand jury had the good sense to no-bill the educator. The school spanking had been investigated by the police department and the child protective services.

Despite what some of the so-called experts say, a spanking sometimes can bring positive results. We wonder if it might work on the mother?

What a deal!

The Seminole Sentinel reports that the chamber of commerce there is interested in a factory outlet mall in Gaines County.

A "consultant" has offered — for a fee of $15,000 — to come to town for three or four days and put local officials in contact with contractors, developers and prospective store representatives.

Instead, Seminole representatives made a counter-proposal. They offered the consultant $100,000 if a mall with at least six factory stores are actually built.

You may remember that announced factory outlet malls planned for Big Spring and Abernathy have since been abandoned.

Borden County names top '98 grads

Bruce Dye is Valedictorian of Borden County High School for 1998 with a 3.98 grade point average.

Dye, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chet Dye, will enroll at Angelo State University in the fall and study kinesiology and math.

While at Borden County, Dye was a member of the National Beta Club and participated in the UIL literary meet in science, math, number sense and calculators. He was a cast member in the one-act play this year.

He was captain of the football and basketball teams, and was a member of the Borden County Band.

Dye was a regional qualifier in tennis and golf and also participated in track and FFA.

He was also selected as Mr. BHS, and as Most Likely to Succeed.

Tera Stamper was named Salutatorian for this year's graduating class at Borden County High School.

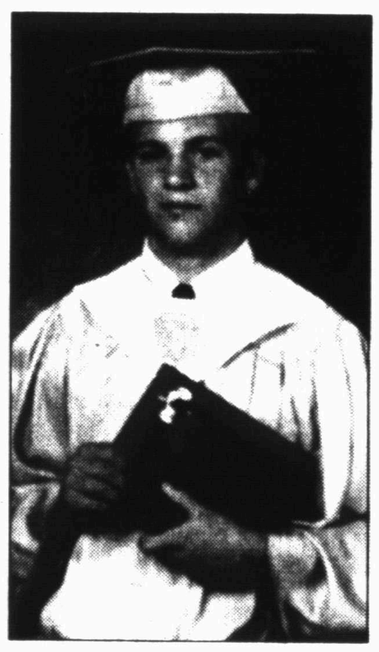

Stamper, the daugher of Mr. and Mrs. Gregg Stamper, will attend Texas Tech and major in accounting.

While in high school, she maintained a grade point average of 3.93. She also was a member of the Beta Club, and a state qualifier in 4-H and FFA judging contests. She also served as president of the Spanish Club and as the senior class reporter.

She was also voted as Most Likely to Succeed.

She also was a member of the Borden County Band, and participated in track and basketball.

Commencement services is set for 8 tonight in the school's auditorium. Baccalaureate services were held Sunday.

State lifts alert for health

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials Thursday lifted a public health alert more than two weeks after smoke and air pollution from fires in Mexico and Central America sparked the warning.

Patrick Crimmins, spokesman for the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, said smoke from the fires is being blocked from coming over Texas by a low pressure weather system in the Gulf of Mexico.

That system is expected to keep the smoke and pollution out of Texas skies at least through the weekend, Crimmins said.

"Most of the state is clear of any smoke," Crimmins said. "There are some patchy areas in West Texas. That smoke is light and not expected to get worse in the next few days."

The TNRCC and state health officials had been warning Texans with respiratory problems to avoid physical exertion both indoors and outdoors. They warned others, particularly the elderly and children, to consider avoiding outside activity and limiting indoor exertion.

Crimmins on Thursday said people with respiratory problems, the elderly and parents should continue to watch local conditions. But he said state officials do not expect any additional air quality problems before next week.

Crimmins added that if smoky conditions resume, health warnings could be reposted.

"We are delighted to be able to report that conditions for the next few days appear favorable," TNRCC Chairman Barry McBee said. "We will, however, continue to closely monitor the situation and will reissue the alert if we believe it is necessary."

Thousands of fires continue to burn in Mexico. Some were started by farmers clearing land. Others were set by arsonists, officials say.

Search underway for motive in shooting

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brynn Hartman and a girlfriend walked into an Italian restaurant in Encino about 8:30 p.m., sat at the bar and had a couple of drinks. They left 90 minutes later.

"She was fine, like a normal person. She seemed fine to me," said Fred Slater, the manager on duty at the Buca di Beppo restaurant Wednesday night.

Sometime that evening the wife of comic actor Phil Hartman talked by telephone with her brother, Greg Omdahl, in Fargo, N.D. He would describe his sister in about the same terms.

Talk to anybody — friends, neighbors, relatives — and the word keeps popping up: "Fine." So how to explain the carnage just hours later that left two children without parents and shocked the entertainment industry?

Hartman, who won fame with his impersonations of President Clinton, Frank Sinatra and other celebrities on "Saturday Night Live" and played a radio anchor on NBC's "NewsRadio," was shot to death in the master bedroom of his $1.4 million home in an exclusive section of Encino.

Police believe Mrs. Hartman, 40, shot her 49-year-old husband and killed herself later Thursday morning as officers arrived to investigate.

As police rushed their children, ages 6 and 9, out of the house, they heard a single gunshot and found Mrs. Hartman's body near that of her husband.

"We are investigating this as a possible murder-suicide," police Lt. Anthony Alba said. "We know for sure that the female inflicted her own gunshot wound."

What they don't know for sure is a motive.

Police were investigating the most obvious possibility — marital strife — amid newspaper reports today that Hartman's wife had problems with her temper and may have flown into a jealous rage because the marriage was ending.

"The marriage had gone sour and he told her he was leaving," an unidentified NBC publicist who knew the actor told the New York Post. "He had a new romance in his life. That apparently was too much for her and she snapped."

Steve Small, an attorney who handled Hartman's two previous divorces, said Mrs. Hartman had trouble controlling her anger. He said the couple had separated more than once; she reportedly had been married once before and divorced.

"She got attention by losing her temper," Small said in today's Los Angeles Times. "Phil said he had to ... restrain her at times."

Other friends and relatives said they never saw any problems and certainly nothing that would lead to murder.

"They were always a very happy couple," said actor Steve Guttenberg, a friend of Hartman's for 20 years, since they were members of the Groundlings comedy troupe. "They always had the appearance of being well-balanced."

One friend, Andrea Diamond, sensed problems. "It was building, but I didn't expect it." She refused to elaborate.

Hollywood expressed shock and sadness, saying Hartman's specialty in playing annoying, acerbic, morally challenged characters ran counter to his real-life personality as an upbeat, devoted family man.

"He was one of those guys who was a dream to work with. I don't know anybody who didn't like him," said Joe Dante, who was directing Hartman in the movie "Small Soldiers." He said Hartman would often ask about the shooting schedule so he could work in trips to the zoo with his children.

Mrs. Hartman, whose given name was Vicki Omdahl, grew up in the small northwestern Minnesota town of Thief River Falls, moved to Hollywood with dreams of a modeling career, changed her name and married Hartman in 1987.

"We're still in shock," her mother, Constance Omdahl of Thief River Falls told the Grand Forks (N.D.) Herald. Mrs. Omdahl declined to comment when reached by The Associated Press.

Hartman's sister, Nancy Hartman-McCoy, said their mother recently stayed with Hartman after their father died April 30 and everything seemed — again — fine.

"My mother was up there visiting with them, as a matter of fact last week, as a little reprieve from funerals and she had a wonderful visit with them both," Ms. Hartman-McCoy said.

Born Philip Edward Hartmann in Ontario, Canada, Hartman — who later dropped the second 'n' — was one in a line of Canadian-born comedians to find success in the United States, including the late John Candy and "SNL" veteran Dan Aykroyd.

Unlike them, Hartman grew up in the United States, first in Connecticut, then in Southern California. At Westchester High School on Los Angeles' West Side, he was the class clown, already doing impersonations of John Wayne, Jack Benny and Lyndon Johnson.

After high school, he studied art and wound up in graphic design, doing album covers for various rock bands.

Drawn to stand-up comedy, Hartman in 1975 joined the Groundlings in Los Angeles. He collaborated with fellow Groundling Paul "Pee-wee Herman" Reubens on the script of the movie "Pee-wee's Big Adventure."

In 1986, he joined the "Saturday Night Live" cast that then included Jon Lovitz, Dennis Miller and Dana Carvey. In his eight seasons, he did impersonations of more than 70 famous people, including Ed McMahon, Jimmy Swaggart, Phil Donahue, Sinatra and Clinton.

Bob Hope has 95th birthday

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In his later career, Bob Hope celebrated significant birthdays with television extravaganzas. Not this time.

Burdened by the weight of his years, the comedian plans to mark his 95th birthday tonight with a quiet dinner at his Toluca Lake estate.

"We'll have some family and a few friends at the house," said Dolores Hope, his wife for 64 years. "Our grandson Andrew will probably barbecue some lamb. Bob loves lamb."

On Saturday morning, the Hopes will be grand marshals in a parade marking the 75th anniversary of Toluca Lake, a wealthy enclave in the San Fernando Valley.

On a visit to Washington last week, the British-born Hope was given an honorary knighthood, presented by Ambassador Christopher Meyer on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II.

But he caused concern when he skipped a dinner marking the donation to the Library of Congress of the personal papers, joke files, photographs and other memorabilia from his 70-year career.

"We went out to dinner the night before with a lot of Bob's relatives who came on for the event," Mrs. Hope explained. "Everybody ate too much and something didn't agree with Bob." After a day of rest, he went fishing on Chesapeake Bay.

Hope has attended banquets, book signings and other events during the past year, and he appears interested, even entertained. Yet his trademark one-line quips are no longer there, and his hearing and sight are impaired.

"He's hanging in there. He looks great. His blood pressure and other things like that are fine," Mrs. Hope said.

She said her husband plays a little golf, enjoys the scenery around their hilltop home outside Palm Springs and watches the news on television.

"He was saddened by Frank Sinatra's death. He couldn't quite believe it," she said. "He asked a couple of times: 'What did he say? What happened?' We said, 'He's gone.' He said, 'Oh.'"

While Bob's career has ended, his wife's has revived. Mrs. Hope, who turned 89 on Wednesday, was a cafe singer when they met and gave it up to raise their four children.

Company G, 142nd Infantry
36th Infantry Division Scholarship

Casey Wayne Doyle is the recipient of this annual scholarship awarded to the graduate of the Class of 1998 of Snyder High School. This award is given to the student that has demonstrated outstanding patriotism, citizenship, academic achievement and concern for family values and responsibilities.

This scholarship is dedicated to all the brave and gallant men of this combat infantry company of the Texas National Guard of World War II who were mobilized in the Army of the United States on 25 November 1940 in Snyder, Scurry County, Texas and to the more than 700 of their comrades who walked with them and wore the colors of the George Company during its long period of active military service.

The 36th Infantry Division, of which G Company was a part, was the first American Division to invade Hitler's Europia at Salerno, Italy on 9 September 1943. This division made two other assault landings at Anzio and Southern France.

The 36th "Texas" Division participated in seven European campaigns: Naples-Foggia, Anzio, Rome-Arno, Southern France, Rhineland, Ardennes-Alsace and Central Europe.

The 36th Division Suffered over 27,000 casualties, third highest of any World War II Division. This proud Division and its men were one of the most highly decorated combat units in the United States Army. This was the fighting 36th.

Your Birthday

Saturday, May 30, 1998

Joint endeavors could pan out extremely well for you in the year ahead, provided your allies operate on your wavelength. If they do, these joint accomplishments could be substantial.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be extremely careful about how you phrase your comments to others today, so you aren't quoted out of context or cause someone to get angry at something you say. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2.75 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are careless with your possessions today, there's a chance you may lose or damage something you value. Take extra precautions with your belongings.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Relationships with close associates could be problematic for you today. Don't look at small disagreements through an angry magnifying glass.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Difficult tasks must be handled methodically today. If you use a hit-or-miss approach, you are likely to nail your necktie to the floor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are somewhat uncertain for you today, especially for launching new endeavors. Be sure your rocket has adequate fuel before you light the fuse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against tendencies to make changes at the wrong time today where critical objectives are concerned. You'll be better off sticking to your initial intentions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Try not to bring up issues that will get a friend all fired up. Your pal might really lose his/her cool today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone who has never repaid what s/he has borrowed previously may ask you for a loan today. Keep this person's track record in mind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A reluctance to cooperate may make things more difficult for you today than they need to be. You'll be much better off compromising.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Even though you'll be reasonably industrious today, you might create additional work for yourself by using the wrong tools and procedures.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An old friend might be difficult to get along with today. This could be due to something you did that s/he has not forgiven, yet is reluctant to discuss.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Jumping to conclusions could provoke problems with family members or in-laws today. Don't rush to judgment before you have studied all the facts for yourself.

Jamaican girl top speller

WASHINGTON (AP) — Through 10 rounds of high-pressure spelling, Jody-Anne Maxwell's exceedingly polite, emotionless manner stood out as much as her soft Jamaican accent.

But as she began sounding her way through the final word of the Scripps Howard National Spelling Bee — C-H-I-A-R-O-S-C-U-R-I-S-T — her lips betrayed the first hint of a smile. When she was pronounced champion, Jody-Anne's reserve disappeared into a grin, shout and gleeful arm-waving befitting a victorious 12-year-old.

She became the first winner from outside the United States in the bee's 71-year history.

The contest is open to contestants from any country, but only a handful come from outside the United States. On the podium Thursday, Jody-Anne was immediately surrounded by 13 friends and relatives who traveled with her, many waving the green, black-and-gold flag of her home, Jamaica.

She said she would share the $10,000 and other prizes with Bettina McLean, 12, and Haydee Maria Lindo, 11, who also represented Jamaica and who shared Jody-Anne's spelling coach, Rev. Glen O.J. Archer. Haydee was eliminated in the first round; Bettina fell in the seventh.

"Mr. Archer coached everybody. But, as you know, only one person can win. And God happened to just choose me," she said as she stood beside a trophy half as tall as she is.

Jody-Anne conquered "cerography" (writing with wax), "allargando" (a musical direction) and "daedal" (ingeniously formed) among others. After spelling "chiaroscurist" (an artist who works in lights and darks), she held her breath, waiting for the bell that would signal a mistake. Instead, there was applause.

Jury convicts man for selling his son

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — An unemployed truck driver has been convicted of selling his infant son to the boy's former foster parents for $100 and a used car on the day before Thanksgiving.

The verdict by a Frederick County jury came Thursday. Jurors rejected Kenneth M. Vogelpohl's argument that he and his girlfriend, an unemployed waitress, only wanted a better life for their 15-month-old child and a fresh start for themselves.

Vogelpohl, 38, faces up to 10 years in prison and $20,000 in fines for selling the child and conspiracy. Sentencing was scheduled for July 8, five days before the boy's mother, Julie Anne Pilafian, stands trial on identical charges.

Vogelpohl and Ms. Pilafian, 40, were charged with selling their son, Kenneth, to William and Cheryl Gordon last November. The child, now 21 months old, is with the Gordons pending their adoption request.

The Gordons wouldn't comment until Ms. Pilafian is tried.

The Gordons raised the boy in their Hagerstown home for nearly the first year of his life after his parents temporarily lost custody due to their alcohol addiction. The boy was returned to his parents last summer.

Vogelpohl, who says he has had three strokes and back surgery, testified Wednesday that he and his girlfriend decided in November the Gordons were better parents. He said they offered to let the Gordons adopt the boy and they asked for money and a car because they wanted to move away and make a new start.

"We were trying to give him a better life. Yes, I took money. To relocate. I wanted to get as far away from him as possible," Vogelpohl testified.

2 weddings too close for worried groom's comfort

DEAR ABBY: My fiancee and I are getting married in early September. We are both in our early 30s and this is the first marriage for both of us. We have been planning our wedding since last fall, and everyone, including a number of out-of-state family members and guests, is looking forward to sharing this special day with us.

Last month, my stepbrother decided to get married three weeks after our wedding. This is his third marriage in 10 years. My fiancee and I are upset that he is not taking into account the conflict this presents to our family and friends — especially those who must make more than one set of travel arrangements. We are taking our wedding day and marriage very seriously and feel my stepbrother's impulsiveness is distracting everyone.

To top it off, we are planning a long honeymoon and weren't even supposed to be in town on the day of my stepbrother's wedding. I'm afraid we'll look like the "bad guys" for not showing up at his wedding. Should I tell our guests they do not have to travel twice in one month? Should we cut our honeymoon short?

WORRIED GROOM,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

DEAR GROOM: You need not cut short your long-planned honeymoon to accommodate your stepbrother's more recent arrangements. It is up to the prospective guests to decide if they can attend two weddings in the same month. Continue with your plans and change nothing.

***

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding the letter from the patient who objected to the questions she was asked by her doctor's receptionist. Patients should know that doctors, nurses and medical receptionists have heard everything. Nothing shocks us.

A receptionist frequently needs to know a patient's problem(s) in order to know which physician in the group should see him or her. Some problems are not seen by her physician and are referred elsewhere. But you were 100 percent right when you told the woman to discuss her feelings with her doctor during her next appointment.

In the middle of my solo G.P. practice (before I retired), I noticed that my patient load had dropped more than 50 percent in a very short period. When I investigated, I found my receptionist had informed patients calling for an appointment that I was fully booked for weeks, or I no longer saw new patients for various reasons. None of this was true.

When I confronted my receptionist, she told me she thought I was working too hard and should see fewer patients! I had never turned patients away, and I enjoyed seeing and diagnosing new patients and treating them.

From then on, I gave all patients a questionnaire inquiring how courteously and thoroughly my staff and I had treated them — had they been given an appointment promptly, etc. No signature was required.

My philosophy has always been: Every doctor makes mistakes, but the better and more thorough the physician, the fewer mistakes are made.

DEAR DR. HOPP: Regardless of how talented the health care provider, I suspect that the practice of medicine is like every other business in that the importance of good customer relations cannot be underestimated. However, in medicine it's called a good bedside manner — even if the patient is vertical.

FDA panel back approving drug

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration should approve injections of a bioengineered antibody for treating certain difficult cases of the painful bowel disorder Crohn's disease, government advisers decided.

The part-human, part-mouse antibody is called cA2 and id manufactured by Centocor Inc. The antibody, to be sold under the name Avakine, targets a human protein called tumor necrosis factor, blocking its ability to cause inflammation.

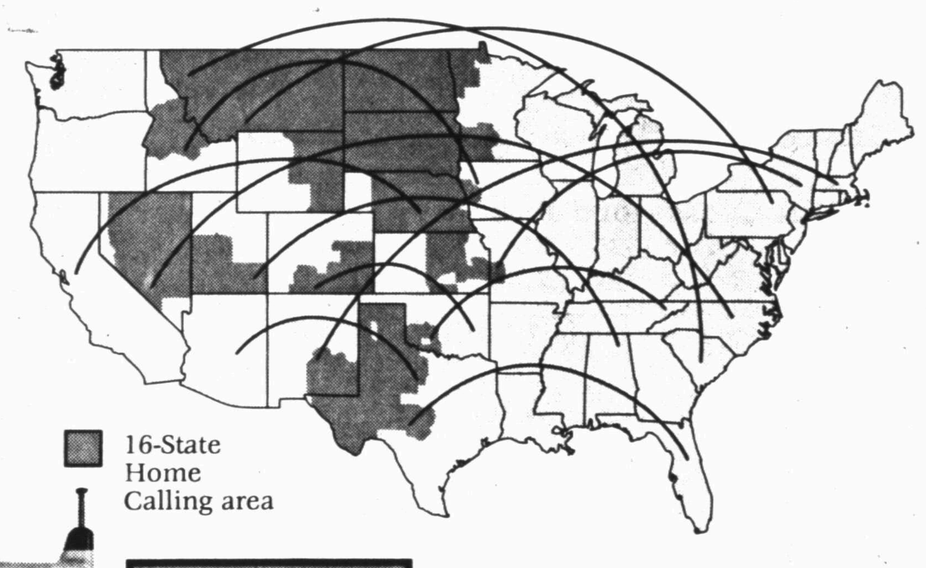

About 400,000 Americans have Crohn's disease, a severe inflammation of the digestive tract that can strike repeatedly for years. Symptoms include diarrhea, pain, fever and weight loss. Most patients are treated with steroids; some require surgery to remove damaged parts of the intestine.

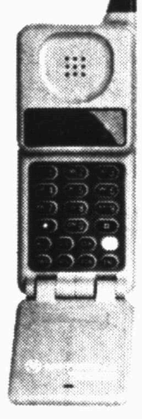

In one study of Avakine, 65 percent of the patients who received it showed significant improvement, including 33 percent who went into remission within four weeks of treatment, compared with 17 percent who received a dummy injection.

But the benefits quickly began wearing off. Centocor is studying whether Avakine could be a chronic therapy, but has no data yet.

Coahoma rallies past Tahoka, 8-4

Coahoma pitcher Delvin White got off to a shaky start Thursday night, but once he settled in, he was unhittable.

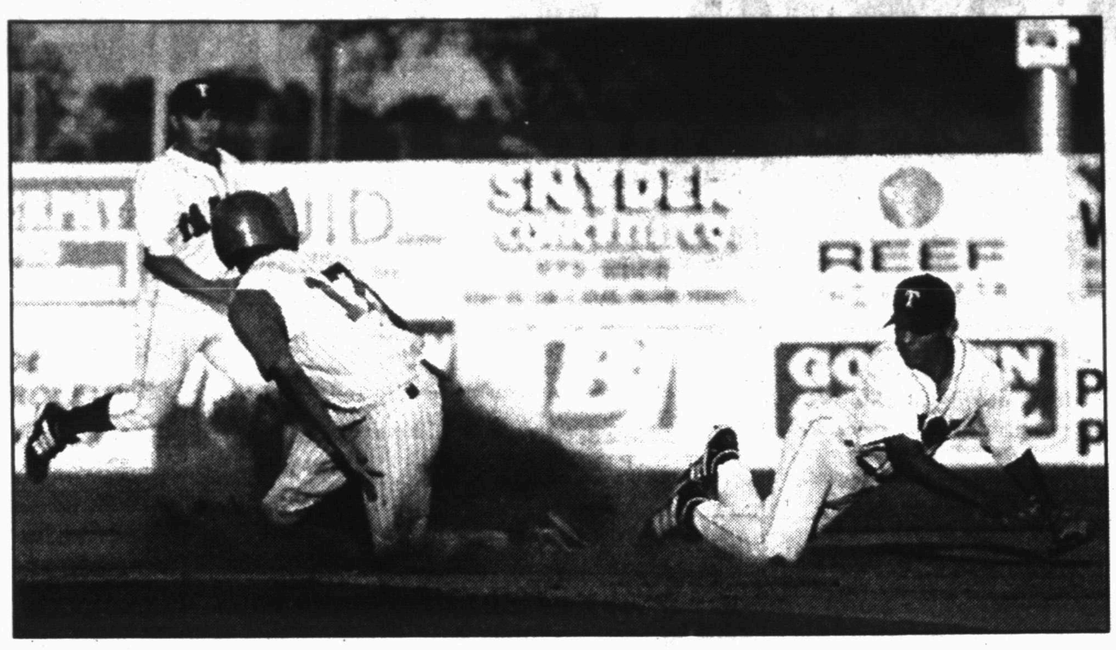

White didn't surrender a hit through the final five innings, as Coahoma rallied to an 8-4 victory over Tahoka in a Class 2A area playoff at Moffett Field.

Tahoka jumped to an early 4-0 advantage in the top of the first on two hits, two walks and an error, before Coahoma began chiseling away at the lead.

After getting one man home in the bottom of the opening frame, Coahoma posted a pair of runs in the second and again in the third to hop on top, 5-4.

Coahoma, which touched Tahoka pitching for nine hits on the night, capped the scoring with two more runs in the fifth and one in the sixth for the 8-4 final.

Tahoka ends its season with a 10-11 mark, while Coahoma improves to 16-3 on the year and advances to face New Deal in the regional semifinals.

GETTING DIRTY — Coahoma baserunner Jerry Mann slides into second base Thursday night, as the ball gets past Tahoka second baseman Auggie Cantu during a Class 2A area playoff contest at Moffett Field. Mann went to third on the play and later scored, as Coahoma notched the 8-4 victory. (SDN Staff Photo By Eric Drennan)

Rangers continue skid...

Alomar fuels Orioles' 5-2 victory

BALTIMORE (AP) — Roberto Alomar, the subject of trade rumors for the past week, went 3-for-3 and scored three runs Thursday night as the Baltimore Orioles handed Texas its fourth straight defeat, 5-2.

Lenny Webster had a season-high three RBIs and Doug Drabek pitched seven strong innings for the Orioles, who have won four of five after a nine-game skid.

Alomar, who also walked and stole two bases, was the object of trade talks with the New York Mets last week. He has since gone 11-for-31 in the last nine games, and Baltimore has backed off its effort to trade away the second baseman, who will become a free agent after the season.

Webster hit a run-scoring grounder in the second inning and a two-run single in the fourth to stake the Orioles to a 3-0 lead. That was enough offense for Drabek, who has won four of five decisions in May.

Drabek (5-5) allowed two runs on seven hits in seven-plus innings, leaving after giving up a leadoff homer to Fernando Tatis in the eighth. Jesse Orosco got the final six outs for his third save.

Tatis drove in both runs for the Rangers, who have given up 28 runs during their four-game losing streak. Texas starter Bobby Witt (4-3) yielded four runs, seven hits and two walks in 5 1-3 innings.

Baltimore went up 1-0 in the second when Alomar singled, took second on a single by B.J. Surhoff, stole third and scored on a grounder.

Alomar and Surhoff were again the catalysts in a two-run fourth. Alomar walked, Surhoff singled and both moved up on a groundout by Cal Ripken. Webster followed with a two-out single for a 3-0 lead.

Drabek retired 11 straight before Will Clark led off the fifth with a single and scored on a two-out double by Tatis.

Millions could be lost by schools departing WAC

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — Eight schools defecting from the Western Athletic Conference could lose millions of dollars in future basketball revenue.

The breakup of the conference could cause a battle over lucrative NCAA men's tournament revenues. Under NCAA rules, the amount of revenue is based on the success league schools had in the previous six tournaments.

New Mexico, Air Force, Brigham Young, Colorado State, UNLV, San Diego State, Utah and Wyoming announced plans Tuesday to leave the WAC after the 1998-99 academic year.

If NCAA regulars New Mexico and Utah leave the WAC and the conference survives, the conference would get financial credit for past wins by the Lobos and the Utes, WAC and NCAA officials said.

The breakaway teams and their as-yet-unnamed new conference would get nothing — even though Lobo basketball coach Dave Bliss said those teams "were the ones doing all the work" in the WAC.

This season, the WAC got $2.6 million from the NCAA Tournament.

Pacers still reeling from 19-point rout

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — To say the Indiana Pacers have put the Game 5 loss to the Chicago Bulls behind them would be untrue.

Clearly, the Bulls' 106-87 rout on Wednesday night has planted the seeds of self-doubt in the heads of the Pacers.

"It would have been different if this was the first game and we had been blown out," Antonio Davis said. "But we got blown out in the fifth game, and that hurts. It hurt everybody."

It also left Indiana only one game away from elimination in the Eastern Conference finals.

Coach Larry Bird made the team watch a tape of the entire first half of the game and it was not a pretty picture.

The Pacers did none of the things they needed to do, from deterring Scottie Pippen's relentless drives to the basket to setting the picks Reggie Miller needs to have a clean look on his jump shot.

"To lose the way we did really affects your pride," Rik Smits said. "The way we struggled, that affects confidence. I mean, we missed 18 field goals in a row. That gets to you at a certain point."

Jalen Rose, suspended for Game 5 for leaving the bench during a late altercation in Game 4, wasn't able to watch the game from his hotel room after the staff kicked him out when the rest of the team checked out.

He ended up watching the game on television in a meeting room, and he wasn't ordering up room service as the rout unfolded.

"I had no appetite," he said.

Each of the Pacers pointed to aggressiveness as the key missing component, and a few of them almost admitted that their confidence could be diminished going into Game 6 Friday night.

"I look at it from the standpoint that it can't get any worse," said Miller, who also still appeared stunned by the magnitude of Indiana's defeat.

The Pacers' only remaining hope is a comeback similar to that two months ago following the worst offensive performance in NBA history — a measly 55-point output against San Antonio that was the lowest point total in the league's 51 years of business.

Indiana followed with a 128-point outburst in the next game, and the Pacers haven't lost at home since, including a perfect 7-0 record in the playoffs.

The Bulls have been especially tough to beat when they have the opportunity to close out a series.

Regional semis get underway across the state

Class 4A's top-ranked team has already notched its regional semifinal victory, with the Snyder Tigers hoping to do the same.

Snyder's best-of-three series against Sherman (23-9) was to have gotten underway at 1 p.m. today at Steer Field in Graham.

Clay Berryman was the scheduled starter on the mound for the 29-6 Tigers, while Kyle Beck is penciled in for Game 2 Saturday at 4:30. The third contest will follow, if necessary.

Top-ranked Little Cypress-Mauriceville took care of Sweeny, 8-3, in their one-game playoff Thursday night in the Astrodome.

Dallas Highland Park was also victorious, as the Scots blanked Carthage, 10-0, in Game 1 of their series in Kilgore.

In other action tonight, Frenship will open its three-game set against Fort Worth Arlington Heights at 8 o'clock at McMurry University in Abilene.

The Snyder-Sherman winner faces the Frenship-Arlington Heights winner next week in the regional finals.

The state baseball tournament will be June 11-12 at UT's Disch-Falk Field in Austin.

Caps skate past Sabres in OT

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Peter Bondra scored his second goal 9:37 into overtime to lift the Washington Capitals to a 4-3 victory over the Buffalo Sabres on Thursday night in Game 3 of the Eastern Conference finals.

Bondra grabbed the puck near center ice and beat Dominik Hasek with a hard slap shot from the top of the left circle as the Capitals took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series. The shot bounced off Hasek's glove and into the net.

Richard Zednik scored two goals and had one assist for the Capitals, who have never been in the Stanley Cup Finals in their 24-year history. Bondra opened the scoring in the first period, and he also added an assist.

Donald Audette had one goal and an assist for the Sabres. Matthew Barnaby and Brian Holzinger had the other Buffalo goals.

Dr. Gott

By Peter Gott, M.D.

Is breast surgery unnecessary?

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent article, while addressing the problem of breast enlargement in a 12-year-old boy, you recommended that his mother consider breast reduction surgery for him.

This is ridiculous. You really stubbed your toe on this one.

Breast enlargement in pubescent males is common and will usually disappear in about three years.

DEAR READER: Granted, but during that three-year span, the child may suffer the tortures of the damned. In the column you mentioned, the boy was the butt of unremitting locker-room jokes.

As with every medical condition, the decision about treatment rests on the degree of abnormality. Many pubescent boys experience temporary breast swelling and tenderness. Ordinarily, patience and watchful waiting are the best therapy.

On the other hand, boys will occasionally experience very noticeable breast enlargement. This can be psyateness. In my opinion, corrective surgery is simply an additional option to consider. And I know young men who were grateful to have this stigma relieved.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a retired psychiatrist and was interested in your position vis-a-vis masturbation. You say that it is OK "in moderation," but this is an anxiously moralistic phrase. Masturbation is not addictive even when practiced immoderately; it simply increases our enjoyment of the other parts of our lives.

In my professional life, I seldom dealt with compulsive masturbators. Rather, there was more harm from the guilt and loss of self-esteem that chologically damaging because of schoolmates' cruelty and inconsider- is totally unnecessary.

DEAR DOCTOR: Thank you for your comments. I agree with what you said — up to a point. It's clear to me that some people who regularly pleasure themselves purposely deprive themselves of meaningful personal contact: They use masturbation to avoid commitment. Such an attitude can be hurtful to those who love the "perpetrators" and it is clearly limiting in terms of personal growth. So, if you don't object, I'll stick to my original position: Moderate self-pleasuring is not harmful physically or mentally.

Thursday quiet for area officers

There were more reports of livestock at-large than criminals Thursday during a relatively quiet day for area peace officers.

Reports of several cows, one bull, a yearling and some geese being in roadways were all made yesterday.

In more routine matters, an offense report for Class C theft was filed at 3:54 p.m. in reference to a shoplifter at Lawrence IGA #400.

At 8:04 p.m., H.E. Lewis requested an officer at 411 26th to report the theft of two guitars. An offense report of burglary of a building was submitted.

A woman contacted the police department at 12:26 p.m. in reference to a person trying to pass a check on a closed account. The caller did not wish to file a report.

A criminal trespass warning was issued to a juvenile and the subjects parents at 4:12 p.m. at The Pleasure's Mine located at 2502 Ave. R.

Officers also responded to complaints of loud music and kids playing with water guns on 40th street and a complaint of a noise disturbance on West 23rd.

Man receives death sentence

AUSTIN (AP) — A central Texas man has been sentenced to death in the abduction, rape and murder of a grocery store worker.

Rodney Reed was convicted of capital murder in the April 1996 death of Stacey Stites, who died while on her way to an early morning shift at a Bastrop County grocery store.

"We removed a very dangerous criminal from the streets of Bastrop County and of Texas," Bastrop County District Attorney Charles Penick said of Reed, 30.

Ms. Stites, 19, was strangled to death with her own belt. Attorneys for Reed said the two had been having a secret affair, which could have explained DNA evidence in the rape charge.

Facts About The BIBLE

BY JOHN LEHTI

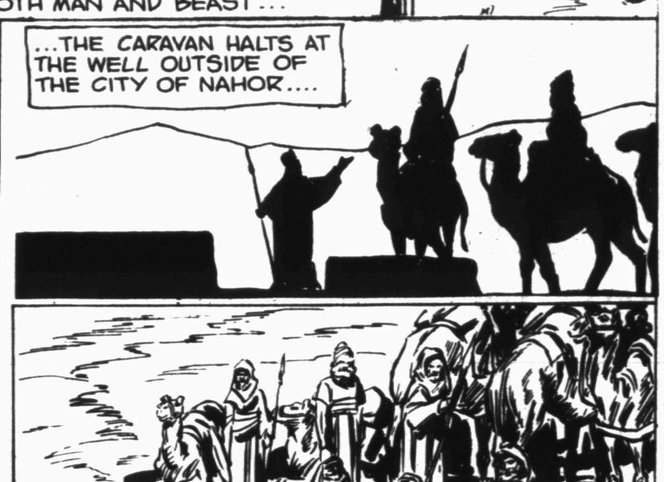

This is a dramatized version of facts taken from the Book of Genesis intening to show some of the customs of these ancient and traditional times

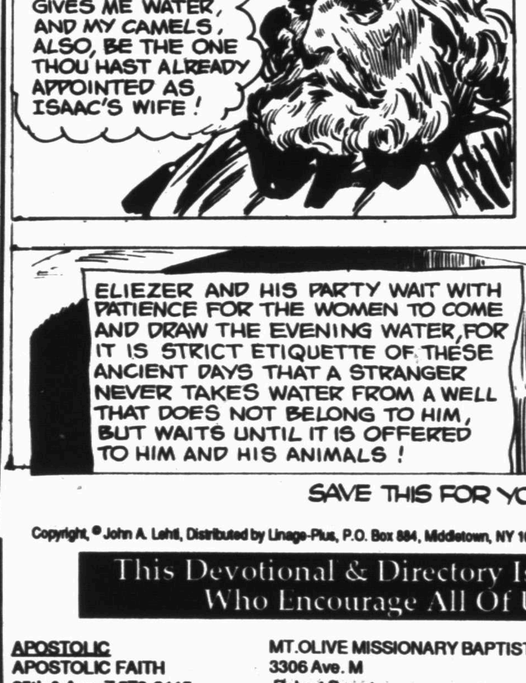

A BRIDE FOR ISAAC

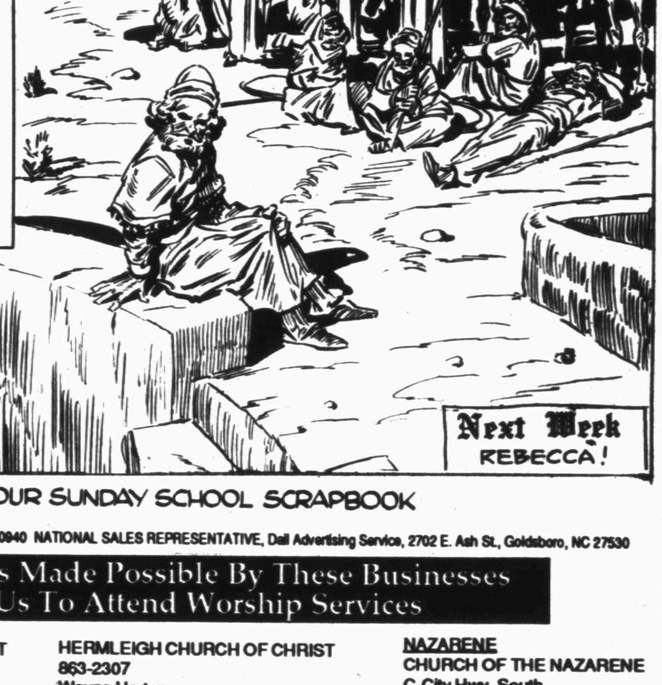

ELIEZER, ABRAHAM'S STEWARD, HAVING REACHED THE LAND OF HIS MASTER'S BIRTH, THE LAND OF THE CHALDEES, IS NOW READY TO SEEK A WIFE FOR ISAAC, ABRAHAM'S SON....

ELIEZER AND HIS PARTY WAIT WITH PATIENCE FOR THE WOMEN TO COME AND DRAW THE EVENING WATER, FOR IT IS STRICT ETIQUETTE OF THESE ANCIENT DAYS THAT A STRANGER NEVER TAKES WATER FROM A WELL THAT DOES NOT BELONG TO HIM, BUT WAITS UNTIL IT IS OFFERED TO HIM AND HIS ANIMALS!

Experts say trend toward fat leads to overweight America

WASHINGTON (AP) — An epidemic of obesity is lumbering across America, with 54 percent of all adults fatter than is healthy, experts say. They warn that within a few generations, every U.S. adult could be overweight.

The percentage of overweight Americans has increased by about a third in the last 20 years, and more hefty adults are on the way because more than 25 percent of today's children are overweight or obese, says obesity researcher James O. Hill, co-author of a study published today in the journal Science.

"The trend will continue. There is no indication that it will turn around. Actually, it seems to be getting worse," said Hill, the director of the Colorado Clinical Nutrition Research Unit at the University of Colorado. "The predictions are that it is increasing at such a rate that we'll all be overweight at some point."

People stay at the proper weight if they eat only the amount of food needed to fuel their physical activity. Americans now generally eat far more than they need and exercise far less than they should, he said.

Hill blames the environment: Americans have too much food available, social situations encourage overeating, restaurants compete by offering bigger and bigger servings and technology has made it possible to avoid exercise.

"Becoming obese is a normal response to the American environment," said Hill. "If the environment continues to encourage high intake and low activity, then we'll all be overweight."

The body, he said, has mechanisms to prompt people to eat when they are undernourished. But there are no such mechanisms "to stop us from eating if there is a lot food around," Hill said.

Being overweight or obese is not just a personal problem but a public health threat, said Hill. Obesity increases the risk of diabetes, cancer, heart disease and other chronic disorders. Some studies have shown an increase of up to 60 percent in the risk of death from all causes for obese people.

A study by the Institute of Medicine, a private organization that advises the federal government, estimates that obesity costs the United States about $70 billion annually in direct health care expenses or in lost productivity.

"We can't become complacent about this epidemic of obesity, which seems to be worsening over time," Dr. JoAnn Manson, a specialist at Boston's Brigham and Women's Hospital, said in Science.

Another researcher, Steven Blair, of the Cooper Institute in Dallas, said Americans are spending $40 billion a year on weight-loss treatments. "This approach is clearly not working," he said.

Scientists have yet to find a magic pill that cuts weight gain without unhealthy side effects, and in any case many researchers believe that any such drug will have to be combined with diet and exercise. Scientists are still searching for all the genes that may be linked to weight gain. Genes, some say, may contribute to 40 percent to 70 percent of obesity cases.

Hill believes public policy changes are needed to control what he calls "the fat epidemic." He said it took government action to reduce the health threat from cigarette smoking, and government policies may be appropriate to control obesity.

Among his proposals:

—Increase the sense of urgency about controlling obesity among both the public and health care workers. Despite clear evidence that obesity poses a major health threat, Hill said, "It remains low on the list of important public health problems."

—Require school children to have at least 30 minutes of vigorous physical activity daily.

—Encourage physical exercise, perhaps even awarding people with reduced insurance premiums or additional vacation time.

—Encourage restaurants not to use food portions as a competitive issue. People generally will eat all that they are served. "Our culture's apparent obsession with 'getting the best value' may underlie the increased offering ... and the attendant risk of obesity," Hill says in Science.

—Increase the availability of low-fat foods, such as fruits, vegetables and whole grains, and make processed low-fat foods as tasty as high-fat versions.

—To head off a future fat generation, parents must set an example.

"Parents are role models," Hill said. "We sit on the couch, eat our high-fat foods, and then tell our kids to eat right and go out and exercise. That doesn't work."

In 30 B.C., the most famous queen of ancient Egypt, known by the name "Cleopatra," committed suicide, but Egyptologists disagree on whether it was by snakebite.

Court shuts down vacation scam that allegedly bilked thousands

WASHINGTON (AP) — A month after Curtis Sunderlin filled out a card for a prize drawing outside a local nightclub, he received a call telling him he had won a vacation.

For only $598, the Indianapolis resident was told, he would have a seven-day trip to Florida for two people, including a cruise to the Bahamas.

"If it was a random solicitor saying you won something, I would have said 'Yeah, right,'" said Sunderlin, 28. "But since I was there and put in for the drawing, I thought it was legit."

He paid by giving his credit card number over the phone.

But when the brochures arrived, the so-called luxury resorts he had been promised looked "worse than a Melrose Place set-up," Sunderlin said, and when he tried to cancel his trip, he was told there was no refund.

Sunderlin was among thousands of consumers lured with promises of discount luxury vacations by a marketing and tour scam, according to a complaint filed by the Federal Trade Commission. A federal court shut down the operation after the commission accused the businesses of bilking consumers out of hundreds of dollars each.

In an order unsealed Thursday, the U.S. District Court in Pittsburgh froze the assets of Commonwealth Marketing Group Inc. and Great Escape Vacations & Tours, both of Hopwood, Pa., and appointed a receiver to oversee them.

The court action followed a complaint by the FTC alleging that the businesses tricked consumers nationwide into giving their credit card numbers to a telemarketer, promising that in return they would get a vacation for free or at minimal expense.

But the vacations were far less luxurious than promised and the costs far more than what buyers were told, according to the commission.

"Thousands of consumers who thought they had 'qualified' for a discount vacation paid hundreds of dollars to collect. But they didn't get what they paid for," said Jodie Bernstein, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

The FTC also alleged that the companies denied consumers refunds, even though the reservation vouchers contained provisions allowing for returns for a certain numbers of days.

Sunderlin said when he tried to get a refund within 10 days, a representative told him the company did not provide refunds. After pursuing the matter with the Better Business Bureau, he eventually got his money back.

It wouldn't be right to do a tour of North America without mentioning Canada and Mexico. Though the latter country has many marvelous ancient artifacts, its bridge teams have had limited success on the international front. Canada, though rather cold for many, is one of the world's most scenic countries. And its bridge teams have come close to top international honors several times. The best result was second in the 1995 Bermuda Bowl. Also, Eric Murray and Sami Kehela, from Toronto, won silver medals in the Bermuda Bowls of '66, '67 and '74. Here is a deal Kehela declared.

Murray's two-heart cue-bid showed a good hand for play in spades. This persuaded Kehela to take a shot at four spades. Now Murray cue-bid again, announcing slam aspirations. Once more Kehela jumped. (Yes, West showed a distinct lack of enterprise. Despite the vulnerability, a Young Turk would have bid four hearts over one spade.)

Declarer seems destined to lose two diamond tricks. Yet Kehela found the way home. After winning with dummy's heart ace, he ruffed the heart six in hand, drew trumps, and played off his top clubs. Not surprisingly, they didn't split 3-3. Now there was only one hope. Kehela cashed dummy's diamond ace, then called for the club six, which he didn't ruff. Instead, he discarded a diamond.

As Kehela hoped, West had no diamond left. On West's rounded-suit return, Kehela ruffed in the dummy and discarded his remaining diamond.

If only one distribution will allow you to succeed, go for it!

Microsoft case: Government asks 'What if?'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rich Schinnell bought his first home computer in 1981 for $6,000, an IBM that by today's standards is more akin to an abacus than a powerful desktop machine.

These days, he says, even a high-end computer loaded with software that lets a person surf the Internet, play the latest games and track household finances costs half as much — or even less when that 1981 price tag is adjusted for inflation.

"The price of software is, in my estimation, pretty darn low," said Schinnell, a retiree who lives in Rockville, Md., and helps run the Capital PC User Group. "And there's a lot of competition."

For the Justice Department and the 20 states suing Microsoft Corp. in one of the most far-reaching antitrust cases in decades, the sentiments of many of the nation's computer hobbyists, like Schinnell, represent a tough sell, a formidable legal hurdle.

The case, scheduled for trial Sept. 8 in U.S. District Court, will require government lawyers to argue convincingly that Microsoft, whose Windows software is used on 90 percent of the world's desktop computers, illegally used its market muscle to stifle innovation and keep prices artificially high.

"The government case probably seems misguided to most Americans because they see that the high-tech industry is the most competitive, most dynamic and most innovative industry in America," Microsoft spokesman Mark Murray said.

Indeed, the government makes its case at a time when the computer industry is booming, as prices for midrange computers dip below $1,000 for the first time and software aisles overflow at the nation's stores.

So, why sue?

In simple terms, the Justice Department and the states are asking America to picture an "alternate reality," to imagine how much cheaper and more innovative the computer industry might be if Microsoft were not quite so powerful.

"If one company can monopolize an industry and then expand upon that monopoly, ultimately consumers lose," said Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller, representing one of the states fighting Microsoft. "Prices go up. Quality goes down. ... Innovation suffers."

"And there's a chilling effect for the giant, too," Miller added. "They aren't challenged as much."

The mantra that innovation ultimately will suffer — and that prices ultimately will rise without competition — is a cornerstone of federal antitrust theory.

"A single company that is a monopolist is never going to produce the degree of innovation that a competitive industry would produce," argued Robert Bork, a former federal judge who is a lobbyist for one of Microsoft's biggest rivals, Netscape Communications Corp.

Kosovo leaders ask Clinton administration for support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leader of Kosovo said he used a White House meeting today with President Clinton to plead for urgent U.S. action to halt the escalating violence in his homeland.

"We urged an increased U.S. presence in Kosovo and for more protection on the part of the United States for the people of Kosovo," Ibrahim Rugova said in brief remarks to reporters after the meeting.

Rugova is president of the self-declared Republic of Kosovo, which actually is a province of Serbia. He is leader of the Kosovo Albanians which comprise 90 percent of Kosovo's population.

"We also reiterated that the best solution for Kosovo is to be an independent and neutral country," Rugova said through an interpreter. "We also urged for some kind of interim or transitional stage for Kosovo so that the violence is brought to an end and a political solution is sought."

Veton Surroi, a member of Kosovo's four-person negotiating team that has begun direct talks with Belgrade on Kosovo's status, told reporters Clinton assured Rugova of U.S. support.

Surroi quoted Clinton as say, "Bosnia should not be repeated and will not be repeated" — a reference to the civil war that ended in 1995 with the Dayton peace accords.

Kosovo's leaders want Washington to threaten the hard-line government in Belgrade with renewed sanctions as a mean of stemming the violence.

"It is a request addressed to a friend," Rugova said Thursday.

The three visiting leaders — Rugova; Bujar Bukoshi, prime minister of the self-declared government; and negotiator Surroi — are in the United States for talks with administration officials on the volatile situation in Kosovo.

Clinton took the extraordinary step today of meeting Rugova for the first time to shore up support for his nonviolent agenda.

Senator Barry Goldwater dies at 89

Goldwater was in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease.

In recent months, he made no public appearances.

"He was truly an American original. I never knew anyone quite like him," President Clinton said shortly after the death was announced. He called Goldwater "a great patriot and a truly fine human being."

He was a tough-talking Westerner, a cowboy who never lost all the rough edges despite three decades of Washington politics. It was, in fact, the rough edges that were his most endearing and sometimes infuriating qualities.

Barry Goldwater

He flew planes and climbed mountains. He would take a drink and could tell a joke. His language was sometimes coarse, but what he said was seldom misunderstood.

Goldwater called Richard M. Nixon "The world's biggest liar." When Ronald Reagan claimed he didn't know about the diversion of Iranian arms profits to the Nicaraguan Contras, he was "either a liar or incompetent." And Jerry Falwell, leader of the Christian right, deserved "a boot ... right in the ass" for attempting to foist his religious values upon the Republican political agenda.

In 1974, he was one of a handful of GOP leaders who went to the White House and bluntly informed Nixon that he would be impeached if he did not resign.

Goldwater captured the 1964 presidential nomination after a bruising convention fight with New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller. He lost the presidency in an equally bloody campaign against incumbent Lyndon B. Johnson, who rose to the White House the previous year after the assassination of President Kennedy.

Goldwater wrapped up the nomination when he invited Rockefeller and his moderate Republican partisans to "take a walk" and they did. He then galvanized the remaining delegates with a Patrick Henry-like proclamation: "Extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice. ... Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue."

Democrats seized that comment, as well as Goldwater's hawkish views on Vietnam, where U.S. military involvement was escalating by the month. He was portrayed as a potential destroyer of Social Security and a nuclear warmonger; one famous commercial juxtaposed a little girl picking a daisy and a mushroom cloud.

Goldwater's political career began in 1949 when he helped found a slate of Phoenix City Council candidates who aimed to clean up widespread prostitution and gambling.

He burst upon the national scene in 1952, when he rode Dwight Eisenhower's landslide to an upset 6,000-vote victory over Democratic Sen. Ernest McFarland, then the Senate majority leader. His victory margin swelled to 30,000 votes six years later.

Goldwater gave up his Senate seat for the 1964 campaign. When it ended in defeat, he called the loss expected.

"We knew from the beginning that we had no chance against the man who replaced Jack Kennedy after the assassination," Goldwater said. "The country was just not ready for three presidents in 3½ years."

Registration for summer reading and read-to-me programs for children is underway at Scurry County Library. There are two age groups — preschoolers and non-reading children and youngsters who have completed K through 6th grade. Registration will continue through July 24 during normal library hours.

Youth camp fund-raiser

Word is Life Deliverance Church children ages 7-12 are raising money to attend Willie George's Camp Dry Gulch in Oklahoma. They are taking orders for Christian shirts and caps. Contact any church youth or call Jackie Hackfeld at 573-6763 or 573-2873.

Vacation Bible School

First United Methodist Church will host a tropical island Vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 13. VBS will feature Sonlight Island and the treasure of God's love. Lunch will be provided. Pre-registration is underway and there will be a $1 registration fee.

CLASS OF '98

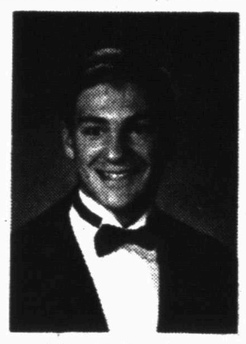

Snyder High School Class Of Nineteen Ninety-Eight

To the senior Class of nineteen ninety-eight,
As you stand in line to graduate, you hear the alma mater and your class song for the last time.
You try so hard to be strong, but a tear drops and slides slowly down your face.
You have had your seasons in the sun.
Together you have gone through good times and bad, you have shared your laughter, your tears, your hopes, and your fears.
Where have all of your yesterdays gone?
What will your todays hold? And
Where will your tomorrows take you?
Never again will you attend the school you have loved so dearly, and never again will you see many of your friends.
Some will go off to college, Navy, Army, Air Force or Marines.
Many will face heartaches and despair, but whatever your fate.
Hold on to your Dreams! Don't let them slip away, and remember:
The Class of Nineteen Ninety-eight.
