U.S. jets land in Panama

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Huge cargo jets brought in fresh U.S. troops Friday, and the government said it was suspending classes for 660,000 students because of actions by the "deranged administration of President Bush."

U.S. military and diplomatic dependents and Panamanian foes of the regime under Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega took refuge at U.S. military bases.

Bush ordered in about 1,900 troops Thursday after supporters of Noriega, Panama's de facto leader, beat opposition candidates and attacked protesters accusing Noriega of stealing Sunday's presidential election.

The Roman Catholic church harshly denounced the government Friday for the violence.

"What moral justification can there be for terrorizing the population with gangs feeding on hate and a false nationalism?" the church asked in an unusually strong statement.

■ Related story, Page 5A

The new U.S. troops augment approximately 10,400 troopers already here. They will help defend the canal, provide security and assist in moving U.S. citizens if need be, said Col. Ronald Sconyers, a spokesman for the U.S. Southern Command.

Panama said Friday it was suspending the start of school at all levels because of violence and civil disobedience inspired by the United States and the political opposition.

Education Minister Rolando Murga decided to postpone classes for approximately 600,000 public school and 60,000 university students for "reasons of physical safety," a government statement said.

Most classes here start May 22. Some have already started.

"The deranged government of President Bush is now attempting with acts of violence and civil disobedience ... to destroy social order, peace, tranquillity and life," the statement said.

The U.S. cargo jets landed at Howard Air Force Base, five miles west of Panama City, at half hour intervals, bringing Marines from Camp Lejeune, N.C., and soldiers from the 7th Light Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif.

"We are proud to be here," said Army brigade commander Col. David Hale.

Lt. Col. Jerry Humble, commander of the Second Light Armored Infantry Battalion, told reporters on the flight to Panama: "I think we're going to be here until this is resolved."

"With what's going on down there any prudent American would be concerned," said Humble, 41, of Owensboro, Ky.

Meanwhile, the opposition coalition, which claims a 3-1 victory in Sunday's elections, thanked all governments, especially those in Latin America, that have protested fraud and violence.

It again offered to take part in a patriotic agreement that would get the country out from under Noriega's "corrupt and dictatorial" rule.

The pro-government presidential candidate said Panama's elections had been nullified because of U.S. interference.

President made honorary Aggie

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — President Bush was awarded an honorary degree Friday to the cheers of more than 8,000 Aggies attending a Texas A&M University commencement ceremony that included a "Who's Who" list of alumni Republican politicians at center stage.

Bush, in his first official visit to the Central Texas campus that hopes to host his presidential library, was joined on stage by U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, a former A&M economics professor, U.S. Rep. Joe Barton, and Texas Secretary of State Jack Rains, both Aggie alumni.

Also on hand for the ceremony were Texas Gov. Bill Clements and U.S. Secretary of Commerce Robert Mosbacher of Houston.

In a sometimes lively affair filled with traditional school yells and flashes of A&M's thumbs-up (gig 'em) sign, Bush was introduced as an honorary Aggie to the approving roar of a capacity crowd.

"I truly believe that, because of our shared beliefs and values, you Mr. President are an Aggie at heart," said regent Chairman William A. McKenzie. "You know that we have always fought for you, not only with open arms and hearts, but also with a deep appreciation and gratitude for the job you are doing and for the dignity and respect that you bring to our highest office."

Elementary discipline being studied by MISD

By BRIAN PEARSON
Staff Writer

The new sheriff in town — in the form of an updated discipline policy for Midland elementary pupils — may have his hands full trying to settle down the young "varmints" running wild in buses and classrooms.

As a parent, Brenda Pennington has heard her fifth-grade daughter's stories of how seemingly innocent neighborhood children become little hellions when they hop the school bus that takes them to Santa Rita Elementary School. On the way, some of the children indulge in teasing others, talking filthy, running up and down the aisle and picking on the bus driver, Mrs. Pennington said.

"These are kids that my daughter has grown up with," she said. "It's difficult for a bus driver with 70 kids for him to watch the traffic and watch the kids in the back of the bus at the same."

As a member of the Midland Independent School District Discipline Advisory Committee, Mrs. Pennington also has heard the horror stories of elementary pupils virtually commandeering classrooms through their poor conduct.

"I'm tired of seeing a group of children control a classroom," she said. "They know how to work the system in a lot of ways."

After three meetings in the past two months, the committee of parents, campus educators and central office administrators listed 10 recommendations to improve elementary school discipline. The suggestions were presented to school trustees at a Tuesday meeting, and administrators will study which ones to implement in coming months.

Frank Marlow, MISD executive director of elementary operations and a committee member, said the committee was formed partially because of parent complaints of poor conduct in classes and on buses.

The recommendations were:

■ Holding in-service training for teachers and administrators so that disciplinary procedures districtwide are uniform and consistent.

British travel agents take shine to Lone Star

Travelers like state's friendly style

By MELLA McEWEN
Business/Oil Writer

Texans are used to spending days traveling from one end of the state to the other. But, a group of British visitors found it quite an experience.

"It's been rather hectic," acknowledged John McInulty of Werts, one of 40 travel agents participating in "Big Wheels in Texas," a road rally for British travel professionals designed to familiarize them with Texas.

"I think they tried to cram a bit too much in. But since this is the first time this has been done, that's how you learn."

He and three traveling companions — Roger Waterfall of Yorks, Coral Hart of Darlington, and Kathrine Thompson of Derbyshire — arrived in Midland from San Angelo around noon Friday.

■ Related photo, Page 4A

After being met at the intersection of Highway 158 and Interstate 20 by Sheriff Gary Painter, the group was escorted to ClayDesta National Bank, treated to lunch at the Plaza Club and a tour of the Petroleum Musem before flying to Dallas for a reunion with the other travel agents.

The four agreed they were enjoying their tour of Texas, especially the friendliness of the people. They cited as an example being greeted by a Texas Department of Public Safety trooper in San Angelo.

"We thought we were getting a ticket, but he was just welcoming us," McInulty laughed.

One of the highlights of the trip, according to Waterfall, has been the different museums.

"We've especially enjoyed the museums. Back home we have a lot of museums, but they're more traditional. We don't have museums like Miss Hattie's (in San Angelo) or this Petroleum Museum."

The four — and the other 36 travel agents — were selected via a Texas trivia quiz sponsored by "Travel Trade Gazette," a London-based magazine distributed in England and Ireland. The magazine worked in conjunction with the Texas Department of Commerce's tourism division, British Airways and Hertz.

The 40 agents arrived in Houston Sunday, divided into 10 groups of four and given different itineraries. McInulty and his crew visited Galveston, Austin and San Angelo before arriving in Midland. They flew to Dallas Friday afternoon for a reception at Billy Bob's and will participate in a seminar to discuss their experiences with the other travelers today before returning to the United Kingdom.

All four agreed that they would definitely recommend Texas to their clients.

MC to graduate almost 200 students

From Staff Reports

Miller

Nearly 200 students are candidates for graduation from Midland College, which holds its 16th annual commencement ceremony at 7 p.m. today in the Al G. Langford Chaparral Center.

Guest speaker for the occasion will be Dr. George Miller, president of Amarillo College. His topic is "Where To From Here?"

Recessional and processional music is provided by the Midland College Community Band, directed by Walter Osadchuk. A special number, "America, The Dream Goes On" will be presented by the band and the Midland College Jazz Singers, directed by Dr. Michael Jordan.

Candidates for Associate of Arts degrees are: Charles Boatright, Thomas L. Farris, Kerri Cooper Muldrow, Michelle Alane Settle, and Betty Anne Tague, all of Midland. Ms. Tague graduates with high honors.

Midlanders slated to receive Associate of Science degrees are: Syed Masood Ahmed, Daphne Jean Greer Gee, Henry F. Munoz and Manuel Roman Quintela.

Lois Cease and Sharon Novelle Rowe will receive AS degrees with high honors while Candice Anne Howard graduates with honors. All three are from Midland.

Graduates to receive AAS degrees with honors are: Billie Stewart Boyd, Charles Ward Bromm, Julie Wiger Copeland, Karla Edmondson, Vicki Ann Flowers, Jenny Anne Bartus Forest, Delynne Ross Gibson, Richard W. Gillette, Ann Mittendorf Goff, Niki Griffin, Bobbie Jean Hollis, Kathyln Shuffield Long, Nicki Charles Luttrell, Stephen O'Neal, Danny Scott Palmer, Andrea Lanz Petro, Pennye Anne Selby, Denise G. Woman's body found after husband writes letter confessing to her killing

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — A woman's body was found after a newspaper received a letter in which her husband allegedly confessed to killing her because she didn't understand his premonitions and said he left a list of 54 people who "will be punished."

"Last Friday night I shot and killed my wife," began the five-page letter, allegedly from David Schoenecker, 48, that was received Thursday by Orange County Register columnist Bob Emmers.

Schoenecker was arrested by a Montana sheriff Friday afternoon, wandering in the Clearwater National Forest just inside the Idaho border. He was carrying a .357-caliber Magnum revolver but did not resist, authorities said.

"There was no hatred — I loved her — but the action was necessary because I have a purpose and one that cannot have an interruption or interference," the letter said.

"Gail reasoned only in black and white or good and bad. She never dealt in the grey or devious world. A world where I now totally exist," it said.

The letter, dated Monday and handwritten on stationery from a Missoula, Mont., Travelodge, said there was a possibility that the body of Gail M. Schoenecker, 40, had not been discovered. The writer included the couple's address and advised Emmers to contact authorities.

"I never got anything like it before. It gave me the chills," Emmers said.

Police Sgt. Chet Barry said Friday that police had confirmed that the body they found Thursday afternoon in the Schoenecker's home was that of Mrs. Schoenecker, an elementary school teacher. The cause of death had not been determined, he said.

Schoenecker had been seen Sunday when he checked into the Travelodge and apparently spent the night. His car was found abandoned Tuesday in the Lolo National Forest, about 60 miles west of Missoula, and cabins in the area were searched, Mineral County Sheriff Wade Van Gilder said.

Van Gilder flew by helicopter over the rugged Bitterroot Mountains to drop ahead of Schoenecker in the Clearwater forest, then walked back to meet him, said Montana Highway Patrol officer Rick Seemann.

Schoenecker had followed a natural course from the Cedar Creek drainage where he left his car, into another drainage and then over Hoodoo Pass into Idaho, Seemann said. "He wasn't sure where he was headed," Seemann said.

The area has many homes and mining claims and is served by a well-traveled road, so Schoenecker had been reported several times on his trek, Seemann said.

Mineral County deputies were notified Friday by Anaheim police that Schoenecker bought camping gear in Missoula, probably Monday, a sheriff's spokesman said.

Investigators didn't know exactly what he bought, or where, or whether he has outdoor skills. Anaheim police would not say how they learned of the purchase.

The letter said Schoenecker killed his wife because she didn't understand the premonitions and "images" he had about people who had "done wrong or evil" against him.

"Several times I tried to explain these 'happenings' to Gail (my wife) but she dismissed them. I was never understood. I knew that as these feelings and 'pictures' continued to occur and repeat that I had to prepare a way, develope a plan, make arrangements. And I have done so.

"Now, I had to eliminate my wife. She wouldn't believe me. She wouldn't even listen. So in order to keep her from finding out, I developed a separate plan or storyline that totally misled her, but it did make her happy. She was very happy on Friday."

The letter suggested that the chemical engineer may intend to kill other people.

Murderer lived with bodies

WATERLOO, Ind. (AP) — A father shot to death his wife and two sons and let the bodies lie in their home a few days before turning a handgun on his young daughter and himself, authorities said Friday.

Relatives and police forced their way into the locked house Thursday after school authorities reported the children's absence.

"It is a murder-suicide case," said Indiana State Police Sgt. Dallard Tackett. "It appears the father shot the other members of the family and then committed suicide."

A large-caliber handgun was found in a bedroom near the body of David M. Fager, 34, police said. The bodies of his wife, Roxane, 31; and their children, Bryce Allan, 16, Michael Edward, 11, and Melissa Lynn, 9, were found in beds.

Dr. William Hathaway, the DeKalb County coroner, said autopsies showed all five had been shot in the head.

Fager and his daughter had died within 24 hours of the discovery of their bodies, while Mrs. Fager and the two sons had been dead three or four days, he said.

Hathaway said there was no evidence of molestation.

Tackett said investigators believe Fager was despondent over being unemployed for several months.

Oil royalties hurting woman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Cheyenne-Arapaho woman, disabled from polio, said Friday she can't get welfare help as long as she is on federal oil royalty rolls and since those checks stopped coming regularly she lost her home and children.

Mary Limpy choked back tears as she told a special investigating committee of the Senate Select Committee on Indian Affairs that she has lived three years in an abandoned house in Oklahoma City because she could not pay her bills.

The oil checks stopped coming regularly in 1983, said Mrs. Limpy, who said the state took custody of her two youngest children two years ago.

Hotel fire suits settled

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A federal judge Friday accepted the proposed payment of up to $100 million to settle hundreds of lawsuits stemming from the 1986 Dupont Plaza Hotel fire that killed 97 people.

U.S. District Court Judge Raymond L. Acosta said he was "generally satisfied" with the out-of-court settlement in one of the largest disaster litigations in American history.

He said the agreement was binding on all parties but contingent on unspecified conditions being met within 60 days.

Runaway train kills at least 3 people

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — A runaway freight train jumped its tracks at 90 mph on a downhill grade and plowed into a row of houses Friday, killing at least three people, two of them children.

"The train was all over the place. It looked like a toy in a sandbox. It was just everywhere — in people's yards. Pieces of the axles were in people's yards," said witness Al Dorame.

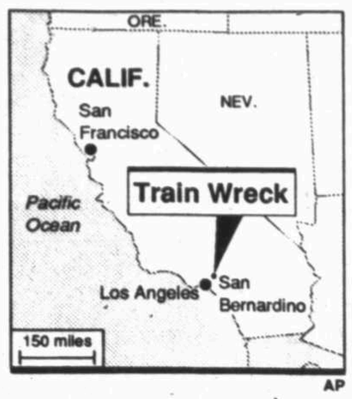
At least two people were reported missing and firefighters and police combed the wreckage of the residential neighborhood hours after the morning wreck. Hospitals reported treating at least eight people for varying injuries.

The Southern Pacific freight apparently lost its brakes toward the top of treacherous, 4,190-foot Cajon Pass and came raging down the grade at more than 90 mph before the derailment, said Southern Pacific spokesman Doug Stephanson.

It flew off an embankment and into a neighborhood of modest two- and three-bedroom homes on the northwest outskirts of San Bernardino, smashing houses and throwing out its load of sand-like potash.

Stephanson said one of the five crewmembers radioed to a dispatcher in Los Angeles that the train was out of control.

"They said the speed was 90 mph a few miles up the track (from the crash site)," he said. "They absolutely were out of control. ... It was a runaway train."



AP

He said the train apparently lost its brakes near the top of the pass in the mountains about 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

The train had four engines in front and two "helper engines" in back, and had between 55 and 69 cars in all. The rear engines had applied full brakes, Stephanson said.

Police Sgt. Dan Hernandez said the train hit 11 homes. Six were destroyed, one had major damage and four had minor damage inflicted by the train, flying dirt and rocks from the roadbed and the potash, a mineral used in making fertilizer and soap. Property damage was estimated at $600,000.

"The engine came off the track and went through a house," said Dane Maloney, who saw the crash on his way to work.

"It was terrible, there were train cars on top of houses, train cars on top of cars. It sounded like a couple of bombs going off."

"It was going down from Cajon real fast, didn't have no brakes. I looked over, part of the train was in the air. It just fell back on the ground and all the sand started flying up in the air and stuff," said Kelly Michaels, a little boy who saw the wreck.

The pass is the major road and rail conduit from the Los Angeles basin to Las Vegas. Interstate 15 passes through it.

One of the dead was tentatively identified as one of the train's Bakersfield-based crew members, C.S. Crown. The others were Jason Thompson, 9, and Tyson White, 7, stepbrothers whose home was smashed by the train, said Gregory Garcia, a spokesman for Mayor Evlyn Wilcox. Another crew member and one resident of the neighborhood were listed as missing.

Southern Pacific spokesman Jim Loveland said the railroad will help people left homeless by the crash. "We feel terrible about this," he said.

Red Cross spokeswoman Kim Schwartz said a shelter had been set up at the Inland Job Corps Center and 10 people had registered by late afternoon.

About 200 people were kept from their homes for a time for fear that leaking diesel fuel could ignite, Garcia said. He said most of the injuries were minor.

Jim Kolstad, acting chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board, was flying in from Washington, D.C., to direct the investigation, said Gary Mucho, the regional director. He said there was no indication of the cause.

The train was carrying potash from the high-desert town of Mojave to Long Beach, said Southern Pacific spokesman Jerry Pera.

The tracks were expected to remain closed at least a day, forcing detour of 15 freights and two passenger trains a day, Pera said. The trains, including Amtrak's Los Angeles-to-New Orleans service, would use a route through Saugus, he said.

Elsewhere, a derailment near Meridian, Miss., spilled thousands of gallons of antifreeze and diesel fuel into the Chunky River, and residents were told Friday to keep away from the river.

Bush's ambassador-nominee grilled at Senate hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's ambassador-designate to South Korea defended himself Friday against allegations that he assisted Oliver North's secret Contra resupply operation in 1985 and is lying about it.

Donald Gregg, who was Bush's national security adviser when Bush was vice president, disputed the allegations of Sen. Alan Cranston and also said North had testified incorrectly about dealings with Gregg.

Gregg, who testified Friday at his confirmation hearing, is to be called back for further questioning on the Iran-Contra affair.

At the hearing, Cranston, D-Calif., accused Gregg of "sponsoring a free-lance covert operation out of the vice president's office."

He also accused Gregg of later making "sweeping denials" of his knowledge about the Contra network, "apparently in order to cover up the truth and to limit embarrassment to your boss, then-presidential candidate George Bush."

Gregg said Cranston's comments added up to "a rather full-blown example of a conspiracy theory" and he denied its accuracy.

Gregg underwent a three-hour hearing before a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee chaired by Cranston.

"There's going to be another hearing," said Cranston spokesman Murray Flander. "The questions have not all been asked or answered."

Gregg said he didn't find out until August 1986 from former CIA operative Felix Rodriguez that North might be involved with facilitating the supply of lethal aid to the Contras.

With support from Gregg, Rodriguez had been sent to El Salvador to help the air force there. But Gregg said he didn't know until the August 1986 meeting that Rodriguez was involved in helping the Contras.

Gregg's training at the CIA and friendship with Rodriguez "apparently led you to believe you could serve the national interest by sponsoring a free-lance covert operation out of the vice president's office," said Cranston. The senator said a cover story about Rodriguez's sole mission in Central America being to help the Salvadoran air force "was seemingly concocted."

Gregg responded, "I think it is a rather full-blown example of a conspiracy theory. ... That's not what I was doing. It is not what Felix was doing, to my knowledge. My job was to keep the vice president informed."

Mother charged in death of daughter 3 years ago

JERSEYVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A mother was charged Friday with concealing a homicide and obstructing justice in the 1986 death of her firstborn daughter, as authorities try to unravel the mystery of her second baby's slaying two weeks ago.

Paula Sims, 29, and her husband, Robert, reported each of the baby girls abducted by a masked gunman who threatened Mrs. Sims and took the infants while Sims was at work.

Authorities have considered them suspects in both deaths. No charges have been filed in the latest case.

Jersey County State's Attorney Richard J. Ringhausen signed a criminal complaint Friday alleging one count of concealing a homicide and three counts of obstructing justice in the death three years ago of 13-day-old Loralei Sims, said Linda Long, chief deputy court clerk.

Mrs. Sims turned herself to county authorities a few hours after charges were filed. She was arrested and then released on 10 percent of a $100,000 bond, covered with a cashier's check signed by her father.

She was accompanied by her attorney, Donald Groshong, who entered a plea of innocent on all charges. Groshong demanded access to all information gathered by the state.

Neither Mrs. Sims nor her attorney had any comment, although Groshong has said previously the couple is innocent of any wrongdoing.

Sims was not named in the complaint, which says Mrs. Sims knew Loralei had died "by homicidal means" and gave false information to county Sheriff Frank Yocom and state police investigators.

At a news conference, Ringhausen said the charges were prompted by concerns that the three-year statute of limitations on the charges was about to run out. The statute does not apply to murder cases.

"Certainly it has been on my mind a long time," said county Sheriff Frank Yocom, the chief investigator. "Indeed I've said for a long time I want to see this cleared."

The charges are the first in the case, which began June 17, 1986, when the Simses told police that a masked gunman broke into their home and abducted Loralei.

Teacher-parent dinners win four-star reviews in Denver

DENVER (AP) — Thanks to an invitation to dinner at a restaurant, construction worker Jaime Polomo got to meet his son's first-grade teacher and tell her why he had not gone to school for conferences this year.

"I work all day," he said. "At night, I study English."

Polomo; his wife, Valentine; their son, Jaime; and teacher Jean Smith-Andrade had dinner courtesy of local businessman Phil Garvin, who has sponsored more than 100 such teacher-parent dinners.

Garvin gave Jose Valdez Elementary School $10,000 from his television production company, Norac Productions Inc., to encourage the six first-grade teachers to take their students and the students' parents out to dinner.

"We wanted to start this the first year that kids have homework so we can set in motion, hopefully for the rest of their lives, this communication between teachers and parents," he said.

Seven-year-old Jaime said his first-grade classmates all were talking about these teacher-parent dinners and he was excited.

Garvin said that enthusiasm and the occasion is what his investment is all about.

"That's it — if the exciting thing of the year can be a meeting with the teacher, that's it: Education is important," said Garvin.

The dinners are meant to be "a special occasion" that "sends a clear message to the parents: "hey, you can make a difference,' " Garvin said.

Mrs. Polomo, who had met the teacher a few times before, said the dinner provided "time to talk. When you go to school, you have about 15 minutes to talk with the teacher and that's all."

Garvin lives in the comfortable suburb of Englewood but does business a few blocks from the school north of downtown Denver. He said he wanted to put something back into the poor, largely Hispanic neighborhood, where teachers say about 60 percent of first-graders speak Spanish at home.

Garvin said he was disturbed by news reports in recent years of a decline in the quality of American public education.

"I was reading all these studies that say that the big difference between a successful school and an unsuccessful school is parental involvement," he said.

He said his interest in helping education was inspired partly by the example of New York City businessman Eugene Lang, who pays for college for students who graduate from the Harlem high school Lang attended. He said he also was moved by the movie "Stand and Deliver," about Los Angeles super-teacher Jaime Escalante.

When Garvin suggested his dinner plan to Valdez officials last Christmas, his business already had been giving $10,000 a year for the past three years to nearby North High School to reward good teaching. Under that program, five teachers receive $2,000 grants each.

The dinners generally have drawn rave reviews.

Some parents said it was the first time they had eaten in a sit-down restaurant.

Teacher Josie Garcia, who has 16 students and was able to arrange 15 dinners, said that at one of her dinners the student's father worked in the restaurant kitchen and got time off to come out for the occasion.

"We found out how hard the parents work," said teacher Amy Pleasant-Phillips. "We sort of knew it, but weren't aware quite how hard they work — how much of their time is spent paying the rent."

"It gave us a realistic picture of where the priorities are," said Garcia. "Most parents are very involved with their children, but it's very hard for them to find time to help them with school."

Teachers said they talked to parents at dinner about the importance of education and ways parents can help their children: from making sure they have a place to do homework to reading with them for even 10 minutes a night.

Said Smith-Andrade: "We tell them that attitude is an important part. A parent doesn't need to take much time — just show they care."

She said many parents in the area are recent immigrants, and many are dropouts. Such parents tend to be intimidated by teachers and school authorities.

"A restaurant is neutral ground," she said.

For the children, the dinners are events. One child wore an Easter bonnet, and others talked for days about what they would wear and what they would order to eat, teachers said.

When asked what they enjoyed most about the dinner, a group of five children answered unanimously: "ice cream."

Teen wins national math competition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Overcoming bad lighting and computer problems, 13-year-old Albert Kurz of Holland, Pa., became the nation's sixth MathCounts champion Friday by calculating the price of a stock.

The finals in the junior high school math competition, sponsored by NASA, the National Society of Professional Engineers and other organizations, capped nine months of local and state contests entered by more than 700,000 students.

A total of 224 math whizzes — all but 30 of them boys — made it to the countdown rounds in Washington. As the winner, Albert takes home a $10,000 scholarship, a gold medal and a personal computer. He will also spend a week at the U.S. Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala., and Monday he goes to the White House to meet President Bush.

Lenny Ng of Chapel Hill, N.C., and Robert Kleinberg of Wales Center, N.Y., the second and third place finishers, received scholarships of $6,000 and $4,000, respectively. They will also visit the space camp, as will Ng's three colleagues on the top-scoring state team from North Carolina.

The 10 finalists viewed problems on computer monitors and punched buzzers to indicate they were ready with answers — sometimes even before the master of ceremonies had started reading the problem to the audience.

There were a number of tense moments, some because the lighting made it hard to see who had hit his buzzer. And the last round was delayed by a computer malfunction.

WEATHER SUMMARY

No rain in Basin forecast

From Staff and Wire Reports

Skies are expected to be sunny and temperatures warm through the weekend, with no rain expected, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland International Airport.

Today will be sunny with a high in the mid-80s. Winds will be from the southwest 10 to 20 mph. Tonight will be fair with a low in the upper 50s.

Sunday will be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 80s.

Friday's high of 88 was 11 degrees cooler than the record high of 99, which was set in 1963. The low of 63 was more than 20 degrees warmer than the record low of 39 set in 1971.

STATE

Much of West Texas was under a tornado watch on Friday as moist air from the Gulf of Mexico pushed in behind a warm front extending from Southeast Texas all the way to the Panhandle.

The National Weather Service issued a tornado watch for Friday afternoon and night along a line from Del Rio to Big Spring to Lubbock and Plainview.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported over the eastern part of the Panhandle and the northern section of the South Plains. Other showers with a few isolated thunderstorms were scattered over much of the eastern half of the state.

Otherwise, skies remained mostly clear in the drier air west of the Pecos River. While partly cloudy to cloudy skies were the rule over the rest of the state.

Winds blew from the north and northwest over the lower Pecos valley and South Plains. West winds brushed the mountain areas in far West Texas. East and southeast winds prevailed over the rest of Texas. Wind speeds were generally in the 10 to 20 mph range.,

NATION

Showers and thunderstorms stretched across the Great Plains on Friday, while heavy rains washed out roads and forced school closures in Maine where residents braced for flooding along major rivers.

Record low temperatures, meanwhile, occurred Friday morning from Missouri to Florida.

Southerly winds spread showers and thunderstorms from eastern portions of Texas and Oklahoma across central Kansas and central Nebraska to portions of South Dakota and Wyoming.

In Oklahoma, overnight rainfall from 1½ inches to 2 inches was reported at Hobart and Fort Sill. Thunderstorms produced half-inch hail at Laramie, Wyo., at midday.

PANAMA—

Opposition presidential candidate Guillermo Endara, who was beaten by pro-Noriega gangs on Wednesday, celebrated his 53rd birthday at a hospital with presents and cake.

He was listed in good condition and high spirits Friday.

A U.S. military source said that since Monday more than 160 Panamanians have been given refuge at U.S. military installations.

"They are here because they have shown that they are in physical danger for political reasons," said the source, who refused to identify any of the Panamanians for fear of reprisals.

International condemnation of the election and the beatings continued to pour in Friday. Mexico withdrew its envoy for consultations.

Nicaragua and the Soviet Union, however, condemned the dispatch of U.S. troops as interference.

In Washington, the Organization of American States permanent council approved unanimously a Venezuelan proposal calling for OAS foreign ministers to meet Wednesday to discuss the crisis in Panama.

In Panama City, most businesses returned to normal but the opposition reportedly considered more demonstrations.

There were backups at occasional Panamanian Defense Forces checkpoints, where drivers' identifications were being checked.

Noriega's hand-picked candidate Carlos Duque said in a letter to the people in the government-controlled press that the vote was nullified because "the U.S. government wanted to impose its choice at all costs."

Bush had sent a team of observers that said the government rigged the election.

At a news conference Thursday night all parties in the government coalition publicly supported voiding the vote, which happened while they were well ahead in official totals.

International observers said tallies were being counterfeited to cheat the opposition of a 3-1 victory.

MISD

- Developing a standardized form for reporting poor student behavior to parents.
- Developing uniform disciplinary action taken by a MISD elementary principals handling school infractions.
- Providing an area in the Alternative Education Center for fourth-through sixth-graders.
- Hiring counselors for every elementary school within the next three years.
- Creating an assistant principal position for all schools with sixth-grade classes or where the principal has dual assignments.
- Assigning bus seats to pupils riding buses in the cluster system.
- Hiring a monitor for each cluster bus.
- Providing uniforms and identification badges for bus drivers.
- Asking school PTAs to hold programs to teach parents discipline management and parenting schools.

"I believe that they will be very helpful," Marlow said, adding that not every recommendation may be implemented. "I know some are very costly, but we need to listen to what the parents say."

As part of the inservice training, teachers and administrators would be instructed on classroom management and proper disciplinary procedure, including contacting parents, Marlow said.

"What we're trying to do is open up more communication with the home and make sure we have more parental involvement," he said, adding that administrative procedure and disciplinary reports to parents should be uniform throughout MISD.

Part of the punishment for fourth-through sixth-graders could involve a stay in the Alternative Education Center, where seventh-graders and up are now sent for committing severe rules infractions, Marlow said. The pupils would be sent only with Superintendent Joe Baressi's approval, he said.

For lesser rules violations, elementary pupils now may be counseled by one of the seven counselors which circulate between schools. The committee has recommended gradually hiring a counselor for each MISD elementary campus.

Marlow said principals of some elementary schools could use assistant principals to help handle sixth-graders.

"The committee felt that the maturation of these sixth-graders necessitates closer supervision," he said.

Assigning bus seats, providing monitors and giving drivers a more authoritative look by having them wear badges and uniforms should help quell the spirits of the young, boisterous bus riders, Marlow said.

Bob Watkins, Bowie Elementary School principal and also a committee member, said that although pupil behavior in MISD elementary schools is "better than average," the recommendations should have an effect.

"We think we have, overall, a good program," he said. "We're just trying to make it better."

But Mrs. Pennington, who has two children in MISD elementary schools, said the recommendations may not have a drastic effect.

"I hope it helps a lot, but I'm afraid it will be minimal," she said. "I believe in more discipline. We give candy to the children who are good. We give check marks to the ones who are bad. Kids should be expected to behave without expected to be rewarded."

Dean Renfro, a Fannin Elementary School physical education instructor who teaches about 450 youngsters a day, said teachers' hands sometimes are bound by bureaucratic discipline procedures, although school principals can amend the rules.

Most teachers discipline children on a check system: after pupil receives a warning and two checks — each given for a single infraction — the instructor calls the parents and assigns detention, Renfro said.

Plainview coach released on bond

CONROE (AP) — Friends and relatives of a Plainview High School tennis coach charged with capital murder raised $150,000 so the man could be freed from jail.

After being jailed for nearly two months, Jon David Weatherred was released Thursday on bond money raised by friends from Kress, a Panhandle farming community near Plainview.

Weatherred's hometown friends put up money and used their property as collateral to pay the bond.

Strawn, 35, was shot execution-style in The Woodlands home of his fiancee, Pamela Beene, a Conroe school district teacher. Ms. Beene, 30, found Strawn's body after he failed to show up at his job.

Investigators have said Weatherred committed the killing out of jealousy because Ms. Beene, his former girlfriend, rejected him and made plans to marry Strawn.

Weatherred was arrested at Plainview High School, where he was a teacher and coach, after a three-month investigation by the Montgomery County Sheriff's Department. He remains on administrative leave with pay.

BUSH

Bush, who spoke from a maroon-covered stage at G. Rollie White Coliseum, used the occasion at the historically military-aligned school to address policy initiatives with the Soviet Union.

Citing the school's history of graduating military officers — more than any other outside the service academies — Bush told the crowd: "It is fitting that these remarks be made here at Texas A&M University."

Despite the serious tone of Bush's formal remarks, the arrival of the president and the ceremonies surrounding his visit were jovial.

"I am delighted to be back among my fellow Texans and friends," Bush said after arriving to thunderous applause in the echo-filled coliseum that serves as the Aggies' basketball gym.

"And to those of you who are Democrats, there is no truth to the rumor that Phil Gramm and I are ready to take our elephant walk," he said, drawing laughter with his reference to the school's ritual for seniors, who link arms and wander the campus to symbolize their imminent departure.

Much of the Bush celebration was also a celebration of the school, with the former Houston congressman listing all the Aggies in his administration, right down to the pilot of Air Force One.

Gramm, who joined other honored guests in a black-robed delegation, also drew cheers and applause from his home base of political support.

"I taught economics here at Texas A&M for 12 years, and I've taught the same subject in Congress for 11 years," he said. "I want to assure you that Aggies are a lot smarter than members of Congress."

Prior to going on stage, Rains said talks over the possible location of Bush's presidential library at A&M continued Friday.

"I know that the president met with a group of people today who are prepared to make it happen," Rains said, adding only that "more than regents" were present.

Gramm, who said he traded his A&M necktie with Bush aboard Air Force One, said he and other Aggie alums are "hopeful" about the placement of the library.

"It would be a great thing for A&M and for Texas," Gramm said.

Barton, who also traveled from Washington with Bush, jokingly suggested that the necktie exchange was part of a library deal.

"The senator did some strong trading," said Barton of Ennis. "We're not going to tell what we're getting for that tie. Only time will tell."

Bush, who received an honorary Doctor of Laws on Friday, made no public mention of the library, which also is sought by the University of Houston and his alma mater, Yale.

It was the first honorary degree bestowed by the university since 1956, and Bush's visit was only the second to the campus by a sitting U.S. president.

Franklin Roosevelt rode a train to College Station from Galveston in 1937, spoke at the campus and was given a white-faced hereford as a gift, Gramm said.

After giving the commencement speech, Bush flew by helicopter to Houston where he was to spend the night.

Midlander honored by Texas A&M

From Staff Reports

John F. Younger of Midland was one of four persons scheduled to receive a Distinguished Alumni Award from Texas A&M University and its Association of Former Students.

The awards were presented to Younger, Aaron Cohen of Seabrook, and Joe C. Richardson Jr. of Amarillo during spring commencement exercises Friday. O.D. Butler of College Station was scheduled to receive the award during exercises Saturday.

Younger is founder and president of Airport 20 Corp., an oil and real estate firm. The 1939 chemical engineering graduate had a distinguished career with the Western Co., serving in many of that company's top management positions before resigning in 1957 to become an independent oil operator.

Active in both university and civic affairs, he has served as president of the Texas A&M Association of Former Students and on the College of Liberal Arts Development Council. He has been a trustee of the Midland Independent School District, president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Younger also has been a moving force in the High Sky Childrens' Ranch, Midland Presbyterian Homes, the Harlingen Marine Military Academy and the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum Library and Hall of Fame.

OAS approves call for foreign ministers' meeting on Panama

AP Laserphoto

Kelly Boullion, left, and Sandy Adams, watch tearfully as their husbands prepare to depart from Camp Lejeune, N.C., in the early hours of Friday morning. Pfc. Patrick D. Boullion and Lance Cpl. Michael R. Adams are part of a 150-man Marine detachment ordered to Panama by President Bush.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States permanent council approved unanimously Friday a Venezuelan proposal calling for OAS foreign ministers to meet next Wednesday to discuss the "serious crisis" in Panama.

Approval came after a two-hour meeting that featured expressions of deep concern over the tumultuous situation in Panama since last Sunday's national elections.

But many of the 31 delegates urged caution, citing OAS charter provisions asserting that the principle of non-intervention in the internal affairs of member countries must be respected.

Panama's representative, Carlos Russell, used the occasion to blast U.S. actions, saying, "We will not bow to the colossus of the north."

The U.S. delegate, William Pryce, said that in the interest of the people of Panama the OAS must raise its collective voice "against the dictator Noriega and demand that he respect the will of the courageous people of Panama."

Elsewhere, President Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said U.S. officials were talking with other governments about where Panamanian leader Manuel Antonio Noriega might go and be accepted if he can be persuaded to step down from power.

"I don't want to get into specifics, but we have been talking to a number of allies," said Scowcroft, speaking with reporters while en route to Texas with Bush for a speech. He declined to say which countries were involved in the discussions.

Meanwhile, U.S. combat troops began arriving in Panama, one day after Bush pledged to increase forces there to protect American citizens.

A C-141 cargo plane arrived in early afternoon carrying Marines and ammunition, and other planes were close behind. They marked the first wave of Marine reinforcements from Camp Lejeune, N.C., and Army troops from the 7th Light Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif., arriving as part of the Defense Department's operation, dubbed "Nimrod Dancer."

Bush, reacting to post-election violence, announced the deployment Thursday of 2,000 combat troops to Panama to augment the 10,000 American service personnel stationed there.

There were also suggestions from Capitol Hill on Friday:

■ Senate Armed Service Committee Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., urged the administration to engage in informal discussions with Panamanian military forces to press them to oust Noriega.

"I would like to see the military themselves — I want to word this carefully — urge him to step aside," Nunn said at a news conference. "I think that would be in their best interest."

■ Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said the United States should organize a multinational army drawn chiefly from Latin American nations for duty as needed in Panama.

He told the Senate that such a force would serve the dual purpose of supplementing U.S. forces already in Panama and of showing Latin American support for Bush's condemnation of Noriega's actions. "The United States should take the appropriate steps to assure that Noriega is removed from power," Heflin said.

At the OAS meeting, Panama's delegate, Russell, expressed support for the Venezuelan resolution but demanded that next Wednesday's meeting address "all aspects of the Panamanian crisis," including what he described as a systematic pattern of American interference in his country.

He cited reports alleging that the Bush administration donated $10 million to the opposition candidate's campaign. He also said the U.S. government had funded a clandestine anti-government radio operation, that preparations are being made to scuttle the Panama Canal treaties and that U.S. military forces in Panama are engaged in hostile military maneuvers.

Changing of the guard

Clements favors rural health-care legislation

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Friday he favors a rural health care bill pending in the Legislature but voiced concern about a possible amendment that would make taxpayers liable for some medical malpractice claims.

"We must do all we can to make sure citizens in rural parts of our state have the best care available and this bill provides the kind of assistance that is needed," Clements said.

But his endorsement of the bill brought a quick response from opponents, who said the measure would hurt low-income pregnant women and infants, among others.

"By endorsing the House-passed version of the major rural health bill, Gov. Bill Clements is supporting discrimination against low-income pregnant women and infants," said a statement issued by Michael Hudson of the Children's Defense Fund.

The bill is sponsored by Rep. Mike McKinney, D-Centerville, who also is a physician.

It would establish an Office of Rural Health Care within the State Department of Health to increase access to health care and to recruit and retain doctors in rural areas.

The House included a controversial provision that would make it more difficult for patients who receive emergency care to bring malpractice lawsuits.

That would require gross negligence to be proven in emergency medical cases for a doctor, hospital or technician to be liable. In suits after the delivery of a child to a woman on Medicaid or services delivered under the Maternal and Infant Health Improvement Act, the liability of a health care provider would be limited to $250,000 for non-economic losses, such as pain and suffering.

Backers of the provision said it would help rural hospitals survive.

There are 54 Texas counties without a hospital, and 38 hospitals have closed in the last three years, said McKinney. Some hospitals are having trouble getting staff to provide certain services because of the threat of lawsuits, he said.

"It will dramatically improve the medical attention available to citizens in rural parts of our state," Clements said.

Hudson disagreed, saying, "The bill would cap malpractice damages only for pregnant women who rely on the Medicaid and MIHIA programs for pre-natal care.

"The bill further singles out the poor by exempting negligence in emergency rooms from liability laws; low income and elderly patients are forced to rely on emergency care to a greater degree than the population as a whole," he said.

The governor said he is worried about a Senate amendment being prepared that would make taxpayers liable for some malpractice claims. Hudson said the plan would work well.

The proposal would make the state liable for indemnification for the first $100,000 of any eligible malpractice claim filed against doctors who do charity work.

Data gathered by INS given to CIA, paper says

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Information that immigration officials obtain from undocumented Central American aliens regularly is turned over to the Central Intelligence Agency, according to documents a newspaper has obtained.

The document revealed that the Immigration and Naturalization Service shares information from asylum seekers with "other government agencies, particularly CIA, DIA (Defense Intelligence Agency) and the Department of State," The Brownsville Herald reported Thursday.

"Information collected by INS will be shared with these agencies so that they have a complete picture of the situation as it emerges," the document said.

The newspaper reported that the INS planning document for the nearby Bayview detention project does not state whether the information passed on is gathered during political asylum interviews or elsewhere.

INS officials have always maintained information in asylum applications is kept strictly confidential.

The authenticity of the document was verified by INS Harlingen District Director Omer Sewell. He said the debriefings would "not necessarily" be conducted during asylum interviews, "although if it was criminal information we might" pass it along to the CIA.

"We do not comment on intelligence matters," said CIA spokesman Joe Devine in Langley, Va.

Sewell said there are no prohibitions on passing information from asylum interviews to the CIA or other intelligence agencies.

"There would be nothing to prohibit the disclosure of information (gathered in asylum interviews) if it is related to national security or something like that ... as long as it would not damage the applicant," Sewell said.

The 25-page memo dated Feb. 16 also revealed that the INS made plans to counter lawsuits expected in connection with the Bayview project even before it opened, and planned "an aggressive ... campaign for the media, general public, and Congress, both before and during enhanced operations in South Texas."

The detention project was instituted Feb. 21 and the capacity of the Bayview detention center was expanded from 425 to 5,000 by adding large revival-style tents.

Political asylum applicants were given immediate interviews and same-day decisions. Those denied were incarcerated. Previously, asylum applicants could file for asylum in South Texas and travel north to pursue their claim.

Immigration officials say many of the applicants never reported to the INS again.

'Legislative carnival' theme of ACT UP demonstration

By RICK BROWN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — While an Austin AIDS organization demonstrated on the Capitol steps Friday, two legislators the group taunted by name defended the state AIDS policy legislation they helped develop.

The Austin AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, known as ACT UP, billed its demonstration as a "legislative carnival."

Included in the carnival's exhibits were a "red tape strangle and a 'soak an AIDS queer' pavilion."

The demonstration also had an "AIDS Budget Cut Speed Test" to protest action earlier this week by the House-Senate budget conferees, who cut proposed AIDS-help funding over the next two years from $22.5 million to $18.4 million.

Finally, four ACT UP members sat inside a cardboard prison which was billed as the "Wright-Clemons Camp for AIDS Criminals."

The latter was a reference to House Public Health Committee Chairman Brad Wright, R-Houston, and Vice chairman Billy Clemons, D-Lufkin, whose committee Thursday endorsed omnibus AIDS legislation that ACT UP finds objectionable.

In addition, the demonstrators included among their chants, "Hey-hey, ho-ho, Billy Clemons has got to go."

"At this point, what we'd like to do is express our anger, but express our anger creatively" said ACT UP spokesperson Ann Cvetkovich of Austin.

Cvetkovish called the legislation that the committee endorsed "a step backwards."

The bill will lead to further spread of the AIDS virus, she said, because it labels persons who test positive for the disease criminals, thereby driving them underground.

But Clemons said later he could support amendments that likely will be offered on the House floor to ameliorate that part of the bill.

As is, the measure calls for all state educational materials to display the statement, "homosexual conduct and intravenous use of illegal drugs are primary methods of the transmission of AIDS and are criminal offenses under Texas law."

Clemons thought the statement was "inflammatory," and even inaccurate. "It's not homosexual activity, it's sexual intercourse," that spreads virus, he said.

Still, Clemons said that by including the provisions, "We're not saying we're out to arrest them, we're just telling them it's unlawful."

Clemons said he would have taken the ACT UP demonstration more seriously if he thought participants had actually read the measure and were not reacting simply to what they had heard.

Wright called the demonstration "foolishness."

"I think it shows that they're more concerned about gay rights than about public health and more concerned about politics than dealing constructively with the problems," he said.

While the bill names as four main educational objectives disseminating information about criminal activity that can lead to AIDS, Wright maintained the objective "is just one factor."

"I would anticipate that with a five-page brochure having one-third of a page or less on criminal laws," he said. "I don't think that's going to be the focus of the message, but one small part."

When the bill comes up for full consideration by all members, possibly next week, Clemons anticipated an attempt to virtually rewrite the legislation on the House floor.

But Wright thought the bill will pass "pretty much" as it came out of committee, he said.

Governor's office apologizes for threat

By JAMES CULLEN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, Nominations Committee chairman, said James Huffines' statement appeared to be an affront not only against the senators who voted against confirmation, but also against the whole Senate in its constitutional role.

AUSTIN — A day after the Texas Senate rejected three nominees for state boards, the body agreed Friday to reconsider one while the governor's office apologized for thinly veiled threats against senators who opposed the nominees.

James Huffines, the governor's appointments director, drew fire from senators for his comments that "We have the last stroke of the pen ... We're taking names."

The Senate Thursday had rejected confirmation of George Worth of San Antonio to the Texas State University System Board of Regents and William Hendrick of Austin and Jay Reynolds of Floresville to the Radiation Advisory Board.

Sen. Chet Edwards, D-Duncanville, Nominations Committee chairman, said Huffines' statement appeared to be an affront not only against the senators who voted against confirmation, but also against the whole Senate in its constitutional role.

"People may disagree with our votes, but we've carried out what our constitution requires us to do," Edwards said. He added that he was willing to settle for a clarification from the governor's office.

"Having talked with Mr. Huffines, I am convinced he did not mean this as an affront to the Senate," Edwards said. "He didn't mean it as a threat of veto against the legislation of members of the Senate."

George Bayoud, the governor's chief of staff, said Huffines' comments were made in the heat of battle.

"I think he took it personally," Bayoud said of the first defeat of nominees in Clements' second term. Bayoud added that Huffines does not decide which bills are vetoed. "We're going to look at these bills on the basis of merit," Bayoud said.

While Huffines took the heat, Clements also said Thursday the action would not help his relations with some senators. "We'll take all things into consideration over time," Clements told reporters. "They take their actions and I'll take mine."

In moving to reconsider the nomination of Hendrick next Thursday, Sen. Carlos Truan said the Senate cleared the air with its rejection of Reynolds.

Truan, D-Corpus Christi, said he was assured that Hendrick did not intend to promote a conflict of interest this past fall when he named Reynolds, manager of a uranium processing plant, to lead a study of proposed groundwater protection rules.

Sen. Steve Carricker, D-Roby, also brought up a confrontation with Huffines "a couple weeks ago" when Huffines asked him if a vote against other unnamed nominees was worth risking his legislative program.

"I didn't answer Mr. Huffines although I did make up my mind based on the merits of the nominees," Carricker said. "Any vote in the Senate is worth protecting the integrity of the Senate."

Carricker later said the nominees in question were for the Public Utility Commission, when an intensive lobbying effort by the governor's office paid off in confirmation of Marta Greytok and Bill Cassin.

Baker fails to bridge gap over missiles

BRUSSELS (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III failed Friday to heal a rift with West Germany over nuclear missiles, leaving a shadow over the May 29-30 summit President Bush will attend with other Western leaders.

"If we had bridged the gap I would tell you," Baker said after he met with West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher. He said the security of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization could be at risk if the allies let their nuclear defenses down.

Meanwhile, officials of the 15 other NATO nations welcomed in guarded terms Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's proposal to unilaterally cut 500 short-range nuclear weapons. Baker said it was merely a Soviet public relations ploy and Bush's national security adviser said it was designed to split NATO.

Brent Scowcroft, speaking with reporters aboard Air Force One as Bush flew to Texas for a speech, said the Soviet proposal "is designed principally to create problems within the alliance .... divisions within the Western alliance."

The NATO officials, in a statement after Baker briefed them on his trip earlier this week to Moscow, said, "We consider reduction in 500 weapons alone as a welcome, positive, but rather modest step," The statement said NATO looks to Moscow for further "reductions in its unwarranted superiority."

The Bush administration's dispute with West Germany is over short-range nuclear missiles targeted against the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact countries, mostly from sites on West German soil. West Germany wants to delay a proposal to triple the range of the missiles and to increase their speed, asking instead that the United States begin to negotiate short-range missile cutbacks on both sides with the Soviet Union.

The dispute has opened fissures within the alliance. A majority supports West Germany in a position that Baker suggested was partially motivated by politics.

Disarmament feeling is strong in West Germany, and Chancellor Helmut Kohl's decision to oppose modernizing the Lance missiles and to urge negotiations is viewed as a way of trying to improve his chances for re-election next year.

Gorbachev complicated Baker's task with an announcement Thursday that the Soviets would withdraw 500 nuclear missiles, bombs and artillery shells from Eastern Europe this year.

He also advised Baker in a 3½-hour Kremlin meeting that the Warsaw Pact would propose at East-West talks in Vienna wide-ranging cutbacks in troops, tanks, artillery and other non-nuclear forces.

Baker said the unilateral withdrawal of about 5 percent of the Soviet short-range nuclear arsenal was "quite apparently designed for public opinion" and included no guarantee the missiles would be destroyed.

He said the pullout would have only a modest impact on the East's edge in nuclear weapons in Europe and that he did not intend to "play a public relations game" with Gorbachev.

The allies should approach arms reduction moves "with prudence and realism," Baker said.

He said that while U.S. differences with West Germany posed political problems, "what would be a worse disaster is if we let domestic politics endanger the security of the alliance."

After their discussion, Genscher said that while the Lance modernization issue was no closer to agreement, "it was not the aim of this meeting to make progress."

Baker said that after a "full exchange" on the issue, he hoped Genscher "better understands our position." He said he was still hopeful for a settlement before the NATO meeting in two weeks.

He also met Friday with Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek, whose country is one of several NATO members trying to mediate in the modernization debate.

The Dutch official said he had "good hope" the issue will be resolved and didn't think Gorbachev's proposal "will have a direct influence."

NATO estimates the Soviet Union has 1,450 short-range nuclear missile launchers in Europe, against 88 for the Western alliance. That imbalance — as well as a Warsaw Pact superiority in conventional weapons — is a main reason the United States and Britain reject talks on battlefield nuclear arms.

3 bombs found near leftists in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Police Friday deactivated three bombs planted inside a car near an apartment building occupied by political leaders of Guatemala's leftist insurgency, one of the leaders said.

Police discovered the bombs after the leaders, members of the Guatemalan Opposition Representation Union, received an anonymous telephone threat, said opposition leader Frank Larue.

The caller told them Thursday they had 12 hours to leave the country.

Larue and other exiles affiliated with the rebel's military umbrella group, the Guatemalan National Revolutionary Union, have been in Guatemala since April to participate in reconciliation talks called for by a Central American peace plan.

Guatemalan guerrillas have been fighting the government for 30 years.

Employees at the apartment building in southern Guatemala City also found flyers carrying death threats against the opposition leaders littered around the grounds of the building, Larue said.

Earlier, they discovered a car parked outside their building with the word, "Leave" painted on a box inside.

Larue said firefighters told the exiles shortly after midnight Friday they were alerted by an anonymous caller that the bombs were outside the building.

Cult's 'high priestess' still denies accusations

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A woman described as the high priestess of a murderous drug cult denied Friday she had urged a member of the gang to kill their leader as police closed in.

Sara Aldrete Villarreal also testified that a former Mexican head of Interpol who killed himself last year was a member of the satanic sect blamed for 15 ritual slayings near the U.S. border.

The Interpol chief, Florentino Ventura, killed his wife, then shot himself to death. Interpol is the international police organization.

Ms. Aldrete pleaded innocent to charges of murder, firing a weapon, resisting arrest, criminal association and causing injuries.

The charges were filed in connection with a May 6 shootout in Mexico City in which she and four other cult members were arrested and the ringleader, Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo, and a companion were shot to death in a closet.

"I never gave orders to kill Adolfo," Aldrete said at her arraignment hearing before Judge Bernardo Tirado Gutierrez of the 58th Federal District Court.

No charges have been filed in connection with the 15 macabre slayings outside Matamoros or the cult's alleged drug smuggling activities.

Shamir to plan elections

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Friday scheduled the first political tests of his election plan for the occupied lands. Arab doctors said Israeli troops shot and killed a 24-year-old Palestinian.

At least 10 other Palestinians were wounded in confrontations between soldiers and stone-throwers in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, Arab reports said.

Shamir called meetings for Saturday and Sunday to consider guidelines for the elections, the first with Cabinet ministers of his right-wing Likud bloc and the second with the full Cabinet, including members of the left-leaning Labor Party.

Shamir's proposal to end the 17-month rebellion in the occupied lands involves elections to choose Palestinian representatives who would negotiate with Israel for limited autonomy. Talks would follow three years later on a permanent settlement.

WHO shelves PLO decision

GENEVA (AP) — Under U.S. prodding, the World Health Organization Friday shelved until next year a decision on whether to admit the PLO's self-declared state of Palestine as its 167th member.

The State Department in Washington hailed the action, saying the organization "rejected the PLO's efforts to politicize WHO's important work."

The vote dashed PLO hopes of winning voting rights in all major U.N. agencies this year after its legislature in Tunis, the capital of Tunisia, last November proclaimed the "State of Palestine."

The WHO annual assembly voted 83-47 in a secret ballot in favor of a resolution co-sponsored by nine Western and Third World countries. It coupled the deferral with a call for more aid to residents of Israeli-occupied lands, where a Palestinian uprising began 17 months ago. Twenty members abstained.

Suitcase still suspect

LONDON (AP) — Four months after the Pan Am Flight 103 bombing, the FBI is still inquiring about the suitcase carried by one victim, Bernt Carlsson, the United Nations commissioner for Namibia, a news report said Saturday.

New York-bound Flight 103 blew up over Lockerbie, Scotland last Dec. 21, killing all 259 people.

'The stage's the thing,' say actors seeking to save theater

LONDON (AP) — Dustin Hoffman and other stars Friday urged the government to halt a new office project on the remains of a 16th century theater where Shakespeare once acted.

In a letter to the newspaper The Independent, Hoffman and 15 actors and directors called for the site of the Rose theater to be designated an ancient monument to ensure its preservation.

Without the designation, the recently discovered remains will be irrevocably damaged by the construction work due to start Monday, they said. The remains include part of the stage and collapsed walls of the Elizabethan theater where Shakespeare acted in 1592.

"As a last-ditch attempt to save the remains of the Rose theater from destruction, we appeal to the Secretary of State for the Environment (Nicholas Ridley) to schedule the site as an Ancient Monument immediately. After Monday it will be too late."

Later Friday, the development company involved said the remains of the Rose theater would be protected and preserved beneath the building "with minimal damage," but the Royal Shakespeare Company said the assurances did not go far enough.

Several actors said they still intended to go to the site in protest on Sunday, and that Ian McKellen and Dame Peggy Ashcroft would read from Shakespeare's "Henry VI," the first play performed at the Rose.

Ridley, who opened an office building in Southampton on Friday, said: "I haven't decided what to do. When I have decided, I will make an announcement."

In addition to Hoffman, the signatories included Simon Callow, Dame Judi Dench, James Fox, Peter Hall, and Tim Pigott-Smith.

Hoffman, winner of this year's best actor Oscar for the film "Rain Man," is in Britain to play Shylock in a stage production of Shakespeare's "The Merchant of Venice" later this month.

In a letter Friday to The Times of London, Lord Olivier, Dame Peggy Ashcroft and eight others wrote: "Plans for the office block ... show the area peppered with concrete piles. One is to be placed centerstage — a stage on which (Christopher) Marlowe, Shakespeare and (Ben) Jonson trod...

"Surely the secretary of state (Ridley) should intervene ... to prevent building from proceeding and to save the entire Rose theater site for the nation."

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher Thursday told the House of Commons that "everything possible" will be done to preserve the theater.

"There have been very constructive discussions between the developers, English Heritage (a body that preserves historic sites) and the Museum of London, with the result that the remains are going to be preserved with the minimum of damage."

Imry Merchant Developers said Thursday: "The remains are going to be wrapped as carefully as a porcelain doll. There must be a building over the top of it and to protect the Rose there has to be a protective covering for it."

But Harvey Sheldon, the archaeologist who led Museum of London excavations at the site, later said "parts of the stage walls will be demolished so that the piles for the new building can be driven through it."

Museum experts located and uncovered the remains of the theater after an office building was demolished in December.

American actor-producer Sam Wanamaker has called the Rose the "20th century's most important discovery regarding the cradle of the great Elizabethan theater."

The museum excavations suggest that the theater, originally thought to have been octagonal, had 17 or 18 sides or was elliptical.

Eight-man team to North Pole hampered by ice

TORONTO (AP) — An exhausted, eight-man expedition seeking to dramatize environmental hazards in the Arctic has been hampered by melting ice on the last days before its expected arrival at the North Pole.

"They're walking non-stop, it seems," spokeswoman Tracey Carpenter said in a telephone interview from Icewalk expedition headquarters in Ottawa. "They're zigzagging around all this broken ice and making good progress."

On arrival, the expedition's leader, British explorer Robert Swan, will become the first man to walk to the North and South poles. He reached the South Pole with two other men in 1986.

Progress has been slower than hoped in the last leg because of the early spring weather conditions that produce crumbling, drifting ice and the threat of open seas.

"It's looking good. We're pretty convinced that it's going to be Sunday," Carpenter said.

She said the expedition was 28 miles from the North Pole Friday. The men have been averaging 14 miles daily.

Plans are for an Icewalk flight to pick up the expedition on Sunday at the North Pole and fly them to Eureka on Ellesmere Island.

The expedition, which has a $4 million budget, had hoped to complete the 457-mile trek by mid-May at the latest. The departure was several days later than hoped because of heavy snow in March. Temperatures have been warmer than expected in recent days, reaching as high as 28 degrees Fahrenheit.

Solar flares have frequently disrupted radio contact since the expedition began March 20 from Cape Aldrich on Ellesmere Island.

Sculptor brings metamorphosis to park

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — After the sculptor arrived, the three hobos emerged from their cave, and the four stood contemplating what they had wrought.

Previously, the lot on downtown's southern fringe had been overgrown with brush. Mown now, with trees pruned and benches installed, it's something sculptor Michael Manjarris and his friends Leonard, James and Mark call Mariposa Park, after the Spanish for "butterfly," the title commemorates a faded blue butterfly, created by some unknown graffiti artists, which adorns an old concrete wall there.

Mariposa Park, located on a narrow strip of bluff-shoulder land below the YMCA, also features a sculpture titled "La Mariposa." It consists of concrete block, with bent rods and pipes protruding, that Manjarris and friends picked up on the site and installed on a base as a piece of "found art."

Additional works are to come. Manjarris said all artists are invited to contribute sculptures to the park. Meanwhile, he and his friends keep looking and finding.

"See, there's another sculpture," he said, pointing to a chunk of concrete and metal lying half-hidden in a ditch. A tour of the site turned up yet another find — a squarish concrete pillar with a wondrously twisted array of rods protruding from it, bringing to mind a Robo-Medusa. This object is among the remains of the First Christian Church building which once stood there. Others are foundation fragments from long-gone homes.

The group on hand by this time included Manjarris, photographer Ely Marsh, yours truly, and along for the ride, Manjarris' 4-month-old daughter, Margaret.

Mark had drifted away somewhere, but Leonard and James, brothers who appear to be in their twenties, remained, walking off to the side.

Their home — the exact location of which I've promised not to divulge — is a cave. Mark and Leonard live there more or less permanently. James, from out of town, is just visiting.

This part of the city is also the turf of other street people. But Manjarris, a marble sculptor who maintains a studio near the park, has developed a particularly close relationship with the cave-dwellers.

"They're good guys, good workers," said Manjarris of Leonard, Mark and James, whom he never refers to except as "hobos" — a once-common term, seldom heard now, which is weighted with more dignity than the currently popular "homeless."

"They help me out with work in the studio, and they do things at my house like mow the yard," Manjarris said. In return, Manjarris and his wife, Jerri, occasionally provide a meal, a clothes-washing or transportation to the aluminum-can recycling center.

Manjarris said he chooses to work at the park, alongside his less fortunate friends, "for the fun of it."

"Well, I figured it'd be nice, just to do it ourselves. We didn't go through 15 channels. We didn't get anybody's money..."

When he decided creating the park would be fun, Manjarris said he contacted W.L. Bates Co., Inc., agents for the property owner, Houston Savings Association, Bates vice president Richard Dupriest gave his OK.

"Mike explained what he had in mind and we said it was all right with us," Dupriest said, when contacted for this story. As the only stipulation, he didn't want an attempt made to acquire landmark status for the park, as a bar to development. No sale of the land seems imminent, Dupriest said, but the company wants to remain free to develop the 1.29-acre plot, if a buyer should materialize.

Manjarris agreed to the terms.

Then he contacted the city.

"I asked them if they would mind cleaning up the easements around here," Manjarris said. "And they said they'd be glad to, as long as somebody was taking an interest in the area and doing something with it."

That the city followed through on its promise was apparent on the day of the tour. Two city employees were at work cleaning up the sidewalk, gutter and other areas that form part of the park's boundary.

While our mob stood in the park, an overhead door went up on the Wilhelmi-Holland Gallery — located just across Chaparral from the park — to reveal potter Bill Wilhelmi and a small army of colleagues at work. We also soon encountered sculptor Danny O'Dowdy laboring in his studio, which is around the corner from the gallery.

Manjarris' own studio between O'Dowdy's place and an establishment that's responsible for much of the liveliness of this area — the always-open U&I Restaurant. Its diverse clientele, at different hours, includes artists, shrimpers, businessmen, tourists, concertgoers and fans of the wrestling and boxing matches at nearby Memorial Coliseum.

Michael Manjarris boxed awhile himself, but quit following a Golden Gloves defeat. After a year at A&I, he finished up a degree in art at San Marcos, then moved to Corpus Christi.

Initially, Manjarris began sculpting worked in a figurative style. More recently, his sculpture has evolved toward abstraction.

Manjarris said Edwin Singer, a prominent Corpus Christi arts patron, provided financial aid at a crucial time in his early career, through funds that made it possible for him to begin using the world's finest marble — Carrara, from the famed Italian quarry that also was the source of Michelangelo's stone.

Singer's aid, and a sale to the prominent Richard King III, both were important factors in his being able to survive as a novice sculptor, Manjarris said.

Manjarris, 34, is negotiating with the Art Museum of south Texas on a plan to stage an exhibition of his sculpture that would travel to San Antonio, Houston and Fort Worth. He's his own agent.

"At first I was naive," Manjarris said of his early experiences in art circles. "The hardest thing in the world is figuring out how to do things. And then you realize, nobody is gonna do it for you — you do it."

Clearly, it's this attitude which made it possible for Manjarris to bring about the creation of a park once he decided he would like to see it done.

But Manjarris also made another comment that seemed pertinent to the park project. Speaking of his reluctance to rush his development as a sculptor, he said:

"I used to want to do everything yesterday. Then I realized, I have to enjoy whatever I'm doing right now."

Shower of meteorites killed off dinosaurs, scientist says

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A huge asteroid skipping off Earth at a low angle may have kicked thousands of giant boulders into orbit, creating a shower of meteorites that gradually killed off the dinosaurs, a scientist says.

Brown University geologist Peter Schultz's research seeks to answer a key objection to the theory that dinosaurs and many other species 66 million years ago died out because a large object struck the planet, raising a dust cloud that blocked sunlight and wiped out food sources.

Fossil experts have pointed out that the dinosaurs died over hundreds of thousands of years, not all at once.

Advocates of the theory responded by suggesting that a series of asteroids, comets or meteorites hit the planet. The new theory by Schultz and colleague Donald Gault of the Murphys Center of Planetology in Murphys, Calif., explains how that might have happened.

In experiments using BB pellets and dry ice, the pair observed that a projectile hitting a surface at an angle breaks into as many as a dozen major pieces and thousands of smaller ones, which then continue along the same trajectory at roughly half the original velocity.

Schultz suggests an object hit Earth, then "literally skipped off the surface" and fragmented. "They would continue to go perhaps halfway around the Earth, (causing) thousands of other devastating impacts," he said in an interview last week.

An oblique impact would also kick up a tremendous amount of debris. "We found from doing these experiments that we produced an incredible vapor cloud," Schultz said.

The scientists tested their theory by firing BBs into pits of dry ice to test sand trajectory paths and vapor formation.

They concluded that a meteor striking the Earth at an angle would spew out debris with enough speed to place it in orbit, allowing it to remain in space long enough to cause large-scale destruction, Schultz said.

He said that within 100 years the cloud of debris would collapse into a Saturn-like ring which would put part of the Earth in darkness.

"The ring would last anywhere from 100,000 years to 10 million years," said Schultz.

Schultz, who presented his theory in March at the annual international Lunar Planetary Science Conference in Houston, has submitted it for publication. He plans to use his research to examine the effects of the impact on Earth's climate.

William Clemens, a professor of paleontology at the University of California at Berkeley, said he still believes the mass extinction was caused by a climatic change, rather than a collision.

"I would argue against any hypothesis that calls for long periods of darkness and great cooling," he said. Some animals survived through the period and he said that can be explained only by a decrease in temperature of no more than 1 degree or 2. Other scientists support alternate extinction theories, including volcanic destruction.

But Schultz said his theory is "the link" to the impact theory first proposed by Luis and Walter Alvarez in 1980.

Under Schultz's theory, as the ring decayed, debris would again pummel the Earth. "Every day we have a meteor shower," he said.

He said the theory addresses the evidence of an extended extinction; non-uniform dispersal of meteoritic matter; the absence of a crater of sufficient size for a single devastating impact and evidence of massive, intensive fires.

MHS tennis duo in state title match

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

AUSTIN — Midland High's Luke Morrow and Harper Essex battled their way into the state tennis doubles finals here at the Penick Allison Tennis Center Friday with two straight set victories.

But don't get the idea that it was a cake walk at the county fair. In the semifinals against Austin Westlake's Trey Phillips and David Flanary, the Midland pair almost saw match point turn into disaster against the team that had handed them one of their two losses on the year.

Morrow and Essex blew away the Austin twosome in the first set 6-2 and owned a 5-0 lead in the second set before things got interesting.

The Bulldog duo owned a 40-15 advantage with the match standing at 5-1, but Phillips went on a rampage, hitting shot after shot through Morrow and Essex.

Eventually, the set was tied at 5-5 before Midland cracked through for a 6-5 lead. It ended at 6-6, forcing the tiebreaker and Morrow and Essex responded with a 9-7 margin to vault into today's 9 a.m. finals for state gold. The Midland pair was down 5-2 during the tiebreaker.

"They just didn't make any errors during that great stretch they had," said Essex. "It would have really been difficult getting pumped up for a third set if we had lost that tiebreaker because we had come so close to putting the match away, leading 5-0."

Morrow replied, "You have to give them credit. They came back strong. They are a tough team and we expected a tough match."

After all, Phillips and Flanary had beaten the MHS duo in three sets in a tournament here in March.

"We went into the match with a good attitude," said Morrow. "I think the pressure was really on them since they had beaten us before."

Phillips, however, said that the first match really had no bearing on this one.

5A State Tennis

"It was 25 degrees the first time we played. We won, but that wasn't a match to judge them or us by," said Phillips. "Still, I think they were better prepared today than we were. I was happy to see us come back after the way we played early.

"When we were down 40-15 at 5-1 and match, I hit a couple of lucky returns and things just seemed to turn for us. We got more confidence as time went on."

Midland High coach Steve Hoover was elated over the showing and may be the first time a Midland boys doubles team has reached the finals in at least 20 years.

"Momentum turned on them, but Luke and Harper never lost their composure through all the tough times and that is the big key to today," said Hoover. "We didn't give points away. The Austin team just won them with some great shots, but the kids hung in there tough."

Hoover also feels good about today's finals although he didn't know early who it would be against.

"I feel Luke and Harper are topping out just the way they need to be at this point. They are playing very well."

Hoover was also glad the match didn't go into the third set.

"If we had lost the tiebreaker, the third set probably would have been a real battle with no one dominating. It might have taken another tiebreaker to decide it. That's what usually happens in that kind of match. I didn't want to go through that."

Class 4A tracksters fall short

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

AUSTIN — Andrews' Joe Don Finley has showed improvement in the Class 4A discus in each of his three trips to the state meet, but Friday he failed in his bid to wear the golden ring.

Finley tossed a 178-6 to place second behind Tomball's Stuart Tyner, who had the winning throw of 186-11.

Finley was fifth as a sophomore and third as a junior. Despite being one of the state's best at throwing the saucer, he won't see the gold medal. Tyner won for the second year in a row and will always be Finley's high school nemesis.

"I would have liked to have been to the state meet in another year. Stuart is a very good thrower," said Finley. "I guess I'm pleased with the throw I had. The last one felt really good, but I got it too high and the wind turned it over. I think it would have been a good throw if I had been able to keep it flat."

Despite his back-to-back victories, the Notre Dame football-bound Tyner was disappointed with his winning effort of under 190-feet.

"I knew I would have to be in the 180s to win, but I've been throwing over 190-feet every time out for the past month," said Tyner. "I really thought I would do better here.

"I figured Joe Don would be second. He's really small for a discus thrower, but he has great technique and I really admire him as a competitor."

Ronnie Seals, also of Andrews, was fourth in the discus with a 174-3.

"My best is 176-7 and I really wanted to at least beat that. I'm not really satisfied," said Seals, who is headed for Texas Tech on a football scholarship.

Seals doubled up Friday, also competing in the shot put, also placing fourth with a toss of 56-3¾. That didn't match his best of over 59-feet, but it would have taken a throw in excess of 60-feet to win anyway as burly Maurea Crain of Waco University took the title with ease in 60-6¾. Still, Seals would have liked to have a medal out of one of the two events.

"Really, I'm about the same in both the shot put and discus. I can't say one is better than the other," said Seals.

Big Spring's Ben Gonzales, who placed third here in the 1600 two years ago as a sophomore, found changing events can be a tough chore. He was fifth in the 800 with a 1:55.3, around his best in the event. Ted Wilson of Crosby won with a 1:54.04.

"About 150 meters out, I got boxed-in and never got out," said Gonzales. "If I could run the race again, I wouldn't get boxed-in like that. The first lap was too fast for the way I've been running. Then at the end, everybody took off and I wasn't ready for it and I ended up boxed up."

Vargas, Burcham key win

By BILL GRIMES
Sports Writer

The Midland Angels used the bat of Hedi Vargas and the arm of Tim Burcham to sweep a Texas League doubleheader from the Tulsa Drillers, 7-6 and 4-1, Friday at Angels Stadium.

Vargas smacked a 2-2 pitch over the left field wall with two out and one on in the seventh inning of the first game, while Burcham, 2-0, allowed six hits while walking none and striking out nine in the second contest.

The Angels put themselves in a position to expand upon their 1½ game lead over Wichita in the Texas League West race. Wichita was scheduled for only one game Friday at Jackson, but the result was unavailable at press time.

Vargas, who had a short stint with the Pittsburgh Pirates several years ago, was signed by the parent California Angels organization this spring after a fine year at Class AA Chattanooga in the Southern League.

Midland manager Max Oliveras said the Puerto Rican performs much the same kind of role that long-time minor leaguer Jesus Alfaro did in past seasons.

"He's a veteran who's doing what we have him here for — to help these younger guys out," Oliveras said.

The Drillers took a 6-5 lead going into the bottom of the seventh inning, but reliever Marv Rockman hit pinch-hitter Jeff Barns with a pitch, and Mark Doran entered as a pinch-runner.

Vargas, who has seen platoon action this season despite a .300-plus batting average, said he was chomping at the bit during the Haloes' recent four-game losing streak.

"I went to Mako (Oliveras) and said I'd like to go back into the lineup. I know this team needs be and I know I want to be there (in the lineup).

Vargas went two-for-three in both games Friday to raise his batting average 25 points to .329.

Second Game

While Burcham kept Driller batters off guard in his fourth start of the season, the Haloes put together enough runs to win in the first inning — with help from a balk by Tulsa starter Barry Manuel and an error by Driller shortstop Monty Farriss, the Oklahoma State ex.

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — The Andrews girls golf team won the state Class 4A golf championship here Friday with a two-day team total of 675, two strokes ahead of Belton.

The Andrews boys didn't fare quite as well, finishing sixth with a 634 behind Highland Park (609), Bastrop (622), Silsbee (628), Pampa (629) and New Branufels (632).

Lisa McQuatters led the Mustang girls with a 79-83-162 score, but she was not among the six best in the medalist race. Kim Self of Dallas Hillcrest won medalist honors with a 150 while Caren Felps of Silsbee was second with a 152.

Other members of Andrews' state championship team, are Nikki Martin, 166; April King 170; Jan Gallaway, 177; and Melissa Brown, 185.

Allan Bratton of A&M Consolidated won 4A boys medalist honors with a 145 after a one-hole playoff against Trip Kuehne of Highland Park.

Gym Bice, who is headed for Midland College on a basketball scholarship, led the Andrews boys with a 78-78-156 and Guy Hester was just a stroke behind at 157. They were followed by Chad Campbell, 160; Brinson Hammond, 161; and Chris McQuatters, 172.

JIMMY PATTERSON

Where was Rick Leach for those 24 hours?

Where did he go, what was he doing, and why did he just vanish? Those questions and more will probably soon adorned a sordid circular ajoining your nearest checkout counter sometime in the future.

If the Enquirer doesn't pick up on the Rick Leach disappearance story, something is wrong with the press in this country.

Patterson

You know Rick Leach. The Texas Ranger designated hitter who failed to show up for last Monday's game against the Yankees in New York City. Leach disappeared for 24 hours before finally resurfacing, saying only he was away for personal reasons. A medical exam later showed he did not have a "serious" substance abuse problem and he was expected back with the Rangers Friday night.

Just like that, into thin air there Mr. Leach went.

Poof!

A cloud of smoke and a hearty hi-ho Silver away — The Alone Ranger.

When he returned, he gave no reason for his absence.

So, down here at the MRT Research Department, we've come up with 10 possible alibis Leach could have used as he tried to explain to the Texas Rangers — and now to the NYPD — about where on earth he was (if, indeed, he was on earth). Leach could have told police he:

1. Was having dinner with Adrian Dantley.
2. Thought the Yankees played at Shea Stadium.
3. Mistook Newark, New Jersey for Flint, Michigan and started looking for his old college roommate.
4. Was having a discussion with the Downtown Athletic Club about why he didn't win the Heisman in 1978.
5. Was taking part in the shooting of the sequel to "The Dream Team" in which a group of escaped athletes gets lost in a New Jersey mental hospital.
6. Was in Panama, leading troops in a peacekeeping tour ordered by the President.
7. Had met Madonna and helped her participate in her first intelligent conversation.
8. Was talking to Dan Rather about "The Frequency."
9. Had met Ed Koch and tried to persuade him to give up politics and join the wonderful world of direct mail advertising.
10. Was actually at the game, standing outside the rightfield wall, playing really deep.

WHEN POLICE arrived at Leach's hotel room to look for evidence concerning his whereabouts, they discovered a little bag that contained what is journalistically referred to as "a green, leafy substance."

Leach had no comment on the substance, but had he thought quick enough, he could have told police:

a) he was using it to increase his run production;

b) he thought it was a new, smokable steroid;

c) he keeps it under his pillow at night for good luck;

d) his hobby is collecting plants from foreign countries;

e) someone must have planted it in his room while he went out for a little stroll.

f) had found it in Panama while there on a peace keeping tour.

Pistons two up in Eastern final

By HARRY ATKINS

DETROIT (AP) — Isiah Thomas keyed a third-quarter run and John Salley came off the bench to score 16 points in the final period as the Detroit Pistons beat the Milwaukee Bucks 112-92 Friday night to take a 2-0 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

It's the first time the Pistons have ever won their first five playoff games. The series shifts to Milwaukee's Bradley Center for Games 3 and 4 on Sunday and Monday.

The Pistons, leading 75-68 after three quarters, put the game away in the final 12 minutes, as their reserves outscored the Bucks' 32-7. Salley finished with 23 points and another reserve, Vinnie Johnson, had 21.

The score was tied at 49 at halftime and the third quarter opened with fierce defensive action at both ends of the court, resulting in two steels and three successive blocked shots between Rick Mahorn's three-point play with 9:53 remaining and a jumper by Isiah Thomas that put the Pistons ahead 58-53 with 7:44 left in the period.

With seven points from Thomas and five by Mahorn, Detroit began the half with a 13-6 run that put the Pistons ahead 62-55 with 5:41 remaining. A technical foul against Milwaukee coach Del Harris gave the Pistons a 70-62 lead on Bill Laimbeer's free throw with 1:33 left.

Two 3-pointers by Pierce cut the lead to 72-68 before Dennis Rodman hit a free throw and Johnson sank two more to put Detroit ahead by seven after three quarters.

Then Salley and the bench took over. The Pistons lead was never less than eight points in the final period.

Larry Krystowiak and Pierce, off the bench, each scored 22 points for the Bucks.

The Pistons played almost perfect defense in the first quarter, causing a 24-second violation, two traveling calls and a three-second violation. But five Detroit turnovers, good for six points, and 8-for-8 free-throw shooting by the Bucks held the Pistons lead to 26-23 after one period.

On the final play of the period, Tony Brown stole the ball from Johnson and fed it ahead to Pierce for an uncontested layup. Pierce, who averaged 22 points against Detroit during the season, entered the game with 6:41 remaining in the first quarter and had four points in the period.

Pierce and Krystowiak each had six second-quarter points for Milwaukee and Johnson while Salley had six for Detroit. But the Bucks hit eight more free throws, giving them 16-for-20 in the first two periods, and the teams were tied at the half.

Milwaukee set an NBA record by shooting 82.1 percent from the free throw line during the season.

The Bucks, already hampered by the loss of Terry Cummings to a sprained ankle and Paul Pressey to a shoulder injury, learned during warmups they also would have to play without Paul Mokeski, who was suffering from an upset stomach and a sore right knee.

TRACK

Big Spring's Dennis Hartfield failed to place in the 100. He had a great start, being first out of the blocks and leading for the first 15 yards, but just didn't have the foot speed to stay in the race. Junior Dade of Denison won with an unspectacular 10.72.

Andrews' Christia Rogers placed sixth in the triple jump with a 37-11½. Tawane Brown of Dallas Lincoln busted 40-feet by just over three inches to win the event.

Lubbock Estacado's Rodney Roberson, who had a good outing in the Tall City relays, placed second in the 110 hurdles with a 14.38.

The majority of Friday's competition was on the 4A level with the other four divisions set to run today.

In other action from around the state Friday, Dallas Hillcrest used second place finishes by Corey Dixon in the 100 and 200 meters and the 400 meter relay to win the Class 4A team title at the UIL state track and field championships Saturday night.

Dixon placed second to Denison's Junior Dade in both the sprint races and the Panther relay team finished second to Jasper.

Denison placed third with 28 points based on Dade's double victories and Mike Miller's second place finish in the 800 meters.

Corsicana won the girls' 4A title with 64 points, with Brenham and Dallas Highland Park tying for second with 36 points.

Palestine's James Shelton, who has the best high jump in the nation this year at 7-2, highlighted the field events by capturing his third straight Class 4A state title with a leap of 6-11, winning on fewer misses.

Ted Wilson of Crosby, who has the nation's fastest schoolboy time of 1:51.75 in the 800 meters, captured his specialty in 1:54.04. He won the event last year in 1:51.00.

Stacey Clack won the 5A 100 and 200 for Austin Anderson last year before the school dropped to 4A.

She beat defending 4A 100 meters champion Cynthia Jackson of Houston King with an 11.78 time. Jackson finished second 12.14.

Clack returned to repeat the double victory in 4A with a 24.27 in the 200 meters.

Waxahachie's Justin McLemore placed fourth in the highly competitive high jump but he came back with victories in the 110 and 300 meter hurdles to earn 24 points.

Highland Park's Jennifer Lapp also was a double winner in the 3200 and 1600 meter runs.

Jennifer Myers of Yoakum broke the first record of the meet with an 11:12.35 time in the girls' Class 3A 3200 meter run.

She broke the 3A record of 11:24.2 set in 1987 by Tulia's Tar Irlbeck.

In the next race, Pearsall's Kenneth Gonzalez set a 3A boy's record with a 9:20.2 time, breaking the record of 9:20.8 by Gladewater's Shannon Pate in 1988.

Shelton won the Class 4A event with a leap of 6-11 to beat out Darryl Swanks of Bay City and Stuart Dixon of Leander on fewer misses.

Shelton has jumped 7-02 this year but missed on three tries at that height. Swanks, who has jumped 7-0, lost to Shelton for the third time this year.

Shelton won the event in 1988 in 7-1 and Swanks was second at 7-0.

Dixon, whose 6-11 jump was a career best, placed sixth in the event last year at 6-6.

"I was feeling good, I thought I might do 7-2 or 7-4," Shelton said.

In fact, Shelton wanted a 7-foot plus jump more than a victory.

"I really wanted to go 7-3 or 7-4 rather win," Shelton said. "I'd rather have finished second and gone 7-4 instead."

Championships in Classes A, 2A, 3A and 5A will be decided on Saturday in both boy's and girl's divisions.

Galveston Ball is favored to win the Class 5A boy's crown for the sixth time since 1967 and Houston Sterling, with a potential to score 110 points, is the girl's 5A favorite.

Dallas Carter sprinter Doyle Jones, who has the fastest times in the nation in the 100 and 200 meters this year, will not compete because he is scholastically ineligible.

Greenville's Henry Neal, who ran second to Jones in the regional meet in both races, moved into the favorites' role.

Cowboys hire new kicking coach

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have hired Steve Hoffman, who worked under coach Jimmy Johnson at the University of Miami for three seasons, as a part-time kicking coach.

Hoffman was a volunteer assistant for Miami in 1985 as he earned his master's degree at St. Thomas University. He then served as a graduate assistant in 1986-87.

Last fall Hoffman was offensive coordinator at Sunset High School in Miami.

While at Miami, Hoffman worked with punter Jeff Feagles, who had the longest punt in the NFL last year after making New England's roster as a free agent.

Knoxville becomes 'Knocks-ville'

By TOM SHARP

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Defending champion Terry McGroom of Chicago won a unanimous decision Friday night over Kenny Keene in the semifinals of light heavyweight division in the 63rd National Golden Gloves boxing championships.

McGroom will meet Derrell Banks of Detroit, who scored a 4-1 decision over Mark Carlson of Cresskill, N.J.

Ray Lathon of St. Louis, the defending middleweight champion, advanced without throwing a punch when his scheduled opponent, Frank Savannah of Brick, N.J., could not fight because of an ear infection.

Lathan will meet Jerry Lee Williams of Gary, Ind., in the finals.

Williams floored Callahan with a left hook and the referee stopped the contest after 1:14.

Rodney Price of Elizabeth, N.J., took a 3-2 decision over Karl Rivers of Fort Hood, Texas, to make the finals in the heavyweight division.

In the super-heavyweight class, John Sargent of Naytahwash, Minn., took a 4-1 decision over Robert Smith of Laruel, Miss., and will meet Larry Donald of Cincinnati, a 3-2 decision winner over James Hutcherson of Chicago.

Royals' Leibrandt continues winning ways over Rangers

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Pat Tabler and Jim Eisenreich drove in two runs each Friday night, leading the Kansas City Royals over the Texas Rangers 4-3.

Charlie Leibrandt, 3-4, gave up two runs on nine hits through seven innings and maintained his mastery over Texas at home. The left-hander is 7-2 lifetime against the Rangers and has won his last five starts against them at home.

Steve Farr worked the ninth and gave up a run on a two-out double by Rafael Palmeiro and a single by Ruben Sierra. Farr, the only Kansas City pitcher with a save this season, held on for his eighth save in eight opportunities.

Bobby Witt dropped to 3-3 a day after his 25th birthday.

Tabler's first-inning single drove in Eisenreich, who singled and was balked to second. The Royals went ahead 3-0 in the third after Gary Thurman drew a leadoff walk and Kevin Seitzer singled, extending his hitting streak to a career-best 14 games.

One out later, Eisenreich had a two-run double, the first extra-base hit for Kansas City in four games.

Scott Fletcher and Palmeiro singled with one out in the Texas fifth and Sierra followed with a triple into the right-field corner to slice the lead to 3-2. But Leibrandt escaped further damage by striking out Julio Franco and retiring Pete Incaviglia on a grounder. Incaviglia drove in four runs in Texas' victory over the Royals Thursday night.

Danny Tartabull singled in the fifth, went to second on an infield out and came home on Tabler's single.

Royals center fielder Willie Wilson, who was hit in the eye by a thrown ball in pre-game warmups, did not start the game but was inserted as a defensive replacement in the eighth.

Tigers 6, Indians 3

CLEVELAND — Keith Moreland hit a three-run homer and an RBI double and Jack Morris won his second straight game as the Detroit Tigers beat the Cleveland Indians.

Morris, 2-6, has won twice within a week after six straight losses. He pitched a six-hitter in his fourth complete game, striking out five and walking two to improve his career record against Cleveland to 23-7.

Bud Black, 1-5, took the loss, Cleveland's third straight. The Tigers, winners of only three of their last 10 games, chased Black with a four-run sixth inning capped by Moreland's first American League home run.

Morris retired the Indians' first nine hitters before Oddibe McDowell led off the fourth with an infield single. McDowell took second on a passed ball and went to third on a single by Jerry Browne, who advanced to second on a wild pitch. Joe Carter then tripled in both runners to tie it at 2.

Cleveland took a 3-2 lead on McDowell's two-out RBI single in the fifth, but Chet Lemon singled and Lou Whitaker reached on an error by first baseman Pete O'Brien to start the Tigers' rally in the sixth.

Alan Trammell's RBI single tied it, and Moreland drove a 2-0 pitch into the left field seats for a 6-3 lead.

Black balked home a run in the first inning when he went into a full windup and then stopped as baserunner Ken Williams bluffed down the line at third. Williams had led off the game with a bloop double and went to third on a groundout.

The Tigers made it 2-0 in the fourth on Moreland's run-scoring double. Moreland was thrown out trying for third on the hit.

Most of the game was played in a cold, light rain.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Kent Hrbek hit a home run and a double, then singled to start a three-run rally in the seventh inning that led the Minnesota Twins over the Toronto Blue Jays.

The Twins won their third straight game. Prior to the winning streak, they had lost 13 of 15.

Trailing 5-3 in the seventh, Hrbek, Gene Larkin and Carmen Castillo hit consecutive singles for a run. Brian Harper's sacrifice fly tied it and two wild pitches by David Wells, 1-2, and an intentional walk loaded the bases.

Dan Gladden hit a chopper to Fred McGriff, who touched first base but threw home too late to get pinch runner John Moses.

Juan Berenguer, 1-0, retired all seven batters he faced in relief of Allan Anderson. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for his sixth save.

Bob Brenly's two-run triple and a solo homer by George Bell helped put Toronto ahead 4-0 in the second.

Hrbek hit a solo home run in the second. Gladden had a sacrifice fly in the third and Carmen Castillo had an RBI grounder in the fourth.

Bell doubled home a run in the sixth for a 5-3 lead.

Orioles 9, White Sox 6

BALTIMORE — Mickey Tettleton drove in three runs for the second straight game, leading the Baltimore Orioles beat the Chicago White Sox.

Brady Anderson homered, Phil Bradley hit two doubles and Cal Ripken drove in two runs for Baltimore, which had 14 hits. The Orioles scored five times on seven hits in the first inning and Ripken's RBI grounder put them ahead 7-6 in the fourth inning.

Mark Thurmond, 1-1, pitched 1 2-3 innings for the victory. Kevin Hickey finished with 2 1-3 hitless innings for his first save since 1983. The White Sox finished with 13 hits.

Harold Baines hit an RBI double and scored on Ivan Calderon's single in the White Sox first. Baltimore came back with five runs against Jerry Reuss, two on Tettleton's double.

Chicago went ahead 6-5 in the fourth, highlighted by RBI singles from Calderon and Dave Gallagher.

Red Sox 2, Mariners 0

SEATTLE — Roger Clemens again stopped Seattle, pitching a two-hitter for his 19th career shutout as the Boston Red Sox beat the Seattle Mariners.

Clemens, 5-1, defeated the Mariners for the fifth straight time and has not allowed them an earned run in 37 innings since July 11, 1987. He is 7-3 lifetime against Seattle, including a 20-strikeout performance in 1986.

Clemens gave up a leadoff single to Harold Reynolds in the first inning and a double to Jim Presley in the eighth. He struck out six and walked one in his second shutout and third complete game of the season.

Jordan, Hodges starting to run short of time

By BILL BARNARD

Friday's Games, Page 2B

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jordan isn't the only backcourt player for the Chicago Bulls who has some catching up to do.

While Jordan dominated the headlines by scoring a season-low 15 points in Chicago's 114-97 loss to New York in Game 2 Thursday night, guard Craig Hodges also had a subpar game. He scored three points in the first three quarters and finished with 10.

Hodges, who had 24 points and four 3-pointers in the Bulls' series-opening victory, said his team must change its strategy for the next two games of the NBA Eastern Conference semifinal Saturday and Sunday in Chicago.

"We have some rethinking to do for this weekend," said Hodges, who was 4-for-11 from the field and 2-for-7 from 3-point range in Thursday's loss. "We have to go back to the drawing board and come up with a sound game plan. All I know is that we have to play better defense, because our defense carries our offense. We've got our work cut out, but we'll just have to draw on the positive."

Jordan, who missed 10 of 17 shots from the field and three of four free throws, is a three-time NBA scoring champion who is averaging 36 points for his playoff career. His previous post-season low was 19 against Boston in 1986 and he was held to a season-low 18 points three times during the 1988-89 regular season.

Gerald Wilkins said that holding Jordan to two points on 1-for-5 shooting in the first quarter was the key for the Knicks, who never trailed after grabbing an 11-2 lead.

"I was pleased with the way we started on him, because it gave us a lot of confidence in checking him," Wilkins said. "That picked up everyone on the team. I thought that Trent (Tucker) and I did a great job in complementing each other on defense against him. Trent's a little more physical and I use my quickness a little more. The end result was we denied him the ball with both of those strategies."

Tucker also contributed a 3-pointer at the start of the fourth quarter, giving the Knicks an 80-64 lead just seconds after Jordan returned to the game following a nine-minute stint on the bench with foul trouble.

Jordan has taken only 34 shots in the two playoff games against the Knicks after averaging 27 field-goal attempts in five games with Cleveland.

Tech downs Houston 6-4

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Tech defeated Houston 6-4 Friday in a game delayed almost three hours by rain, positioning the Red Raiders to earn a spot in the Southwest Conference post-season tournament by winning either game of a doubleheader on Saturday.

Tech improved to 32-20 for the season and 9-10 in league play, while Houston fell to 41-15 and 7-12. The Cougars must win both games Saturday to beat out Tech for the fourth and final tournament berth.

Arkansas, Texas and host Texas A&M already have clinched berths.

Mark Helms' 3-run homer in the first inning gave the Red Raiders the early lead, and they held on through a two-hour, 50-minute rain delay to pick up the victory.

A doubleheader had been scheduled for Friday, but because of the rain only one game was played, and Saturday's single game was changed to a doubleheader with a noon start.

After Helms' sixth homer of the year, the Raiders added a single run in the second for a 4-0 lead.

Bret Bartley's RBI single brought Houston to within 4-1 in the bottom of the second, but the Raiders regained their four-run lead on Greg Kobza's sacrifice fly in the third.

Houston's Rusty Smajstria slugged his fifth homer, a solo shot in the third, and the Cougars added single runs in the fourth and fifth to close to within a run, at 5-4.

Texas Tech added an insurance run in the top of the seventh on a single by Gilbert Arredondo.

Jeff Beck, 7-4, got the victory for the Raiders. The junior right-hander allowed four runs (two earned) on five hits while striking out two and walking three. The loss went to Houston starter Eric Rasberry, 9-5.

Nelson receives promotion

DENTON, Texas (AP) — The University of North Texas board of regents has approved the appointment of Corky Nelson as head football coach and athletic director.

After serving as the school's head football coach seven years, Nelson now moves into the athletic director's post as well. He will replace Richard McDuffie, who accepted a similar job at Southeast Missouri State University.

"I've always loved coaching football, but I'm very excited about the chance to serve as athletic director at this university," Nelson said in a statement.

As head coach, Nelson has led the Eagles to the I-AA playoffs three times, and the team was ranked Number One in the country for six weeks last season.

As few as they score, Astros are bound to win occasionally

Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — It might be tough winning games for the light-hitting Houston Astros, but Jim Deshaies is doing it with regularity these days.

Deshaies pitched a four-hitter Friday and Gerald Young stole home and drove in a run with a sacrifice fly to lead the Astros to a 3-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"Believe it or not, he's thrown like that every time out this year," said Manager Art Howe. "You know you have to have that kind of performance because we don't score a lot of runs.

"He shut out Cincinnati at Cincinnati and the Mets at New York and he almost had another one here," said Howe.

Deshaies, 5-2, missed his third shutout by an eyelash when the Cubs pulled off a double steal with two outs in the sixth inning, with Darrin Jackson stealing home.

"We knew they had that play and we knew they were going to try it," said Deshaies. "We knew it was coming, that's what makes you mad."

Deshaies credited his defense and his control with his current success.

"I've been able to throw strikes with all three of my pitches and our defense did a heck of a job today. Every time we needed a big play, they came up with it."

Known as a fly ball pitcher, Deshaies had 16 ground-ball outs compared to only four when he shut out the Mets last Sunday.

"I can't explain that," he said. "maybe the fastball hitters were hitting on top of the pitches."

Loser Rick Sutcliffe, 4-3, blamed himself. His errant throw on a pick-off attempt enabled Young to go from first to third, then he walked Billy Hatcher to set up a double steal, with Young scoring the first run of the game.

Hatcher then scored on a single by Bill Doran.

"It was my fault for putting the runner on third and then I couldn't get Hatcher to hit my pitch," said Sutcliffe.

Manager Don Zimmer said "the walk to Hatcher cost us two runs."

Pirates 10, Braves 2

PITTSBURGH — Glenn Wilson's two-run double keyed Pittsburgh's five-run third inning and Bobby Bonilla went 3-for-4 with three RBIs as the Pirates ended Atlanta's seven-game winning streak.

John Smiley, 4-1, pitched the Pirates' seventh complete game of the season, allowing five hits, striking out five and walking one in a game played in a steady rain. He shut out the Braves on two hits until Jody Davis' two-run homer in the seventh.

With Junior Ortiz on first and two outs in the third, Jose Lind lined a shot off pitcher Zane Smith's glove that skipped into left field for a double, scoring Ortiz. Third baseman Ron Gant had a chance to end the inning, but mishandled R.J. Reynolds' grounder for an error, moving Lind to third.

Bonilla then singled home Lind ahead of Wilson's two-run double to left. Gary Redus' single, the fifth hit of the inning off Smith, scored Wilson and made it 5-0.

The Pirates then chased Smith, 1-5, in a three-run fourth inning that included run-scoring singles by Reynolds and Bonilla and reliever Jim Acker's run-scoring wild pitch. Smith allowed seven hits and eight runs in 3 1-3 innings.

Giants 2, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Rick Reuschel won his 200th game and Donell Nixon had an RBI single Friday night as the San Francisco Giants beat the Montreal Expos.

Reuschel, who will turn 40 next week, became the 86th pitcher in major league history to reach the 200-victory plateau.

Reuschel, 6-2, had a shutout until he gave up an RBI single to Hubie Brooks with two outs in the ninth. Goose Gossage relieved and picked up his second save when pinch-runner Otis Nixon tried to steal second on his first pitch to Tim Wallach and was thrown out by catcher Terry Kennedy.

Reuschel allowed six hits, struck out three and walked one in beating the Expos for the 25th time. The loss snapped a three-game Expos' winning streak.

The Giants scored their first run in the third inning run off Pascual Perez, 0-5. Jose Uribe singled to open the inning and moved to second on Reuschel's sacrifice bunt. Uribe went to third on a groundout by Brett Butler and scored on Nixon's single.

Phillies 3, Dodgers 0

PHILADELPHIA — Ken Howell allowed four hits in seven innings and pinch-hitter Mark Ryal singled in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Howell, 4-1, struck out seven and walked three before giving way to Steve Bedrosian, who pitched the final two innings to pick up his third save.

Tim Leary, 2-3, took the loss. He gave up six hits, walked one and struck out three in seven innings.

Darren Daulton opened the Phillies' seventh with a single and went to second on Chris James' sacrifice bunt. Daulton moved to third on Ricky Jordan's third single of the game and scored on Ryal's single to center.

The Phillies made it 3-0 in the eighth off reliever Tim Crews. Juan Samuel doubled and scored on triple by Tom Herr. Von Hayes then singled in Herr.

The Dodgers had base runners in four of the first five innings, but two were thrown out stealing, one was thrown out trying to stretch a single into a double and another was erased in a double play.

Reds 5, Cardinals 0

ST. LOUIS — Rick Mahler pitched a five-hitter and Barry Larkin drove in two runs as the Cincinnati Reds beat the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mahler, 5-3, won for the fourth straight time and lowered his earned-run average to 2.35 as Cincinnati snapped St. Louis' eight-game home winning streak. Mahler, who struck out two and walked none, has two shutouts this season and eight in his career.

Padres 4, Mets 3

NEW YORK — Marvell Wynne's run-scoring single snapped a 12th-inning tie and New York committed five errors as the San Diego Padres beat the Mets.

Tony Gwynn led off the 12th with a grounder to first, but reliever Roger McDowell, 0-1, missed the base on the throw from Keith Hernandez. Gwynn stole second and scored on Wynne's single to right, with Wynne taking second on a throwing error by right fielder Darryl Strawberry.

Vikings now using martial arts

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings have turned to a new training tool to become better football players — karate.

Viking Brad Edwards is less than two months into karate classes, but already he has noticed a change. He's more confident, more aggressive. He uses his hands better than ever.

It's his hope that karate makes him a better player. The hope is not his alone.

Vikings' officials suggested that Edwards take up karate to help him at free safety. General Manager Mike Lynn, Coach Jerry Burns and trainer Fred Zamberletti came up with the idea.

Their plan is to enroll 10 to 12 players in karate and aikijujutsu classes with black belt John Meyer, who runs the Marshall Avenue Self Defense school in St. Paul. Meyer is teaching Edwards and Joey Browner.

It all started because of Browner. Lynn, Burns and Zamberletti have seen how martial arts has benefitted Browner, the Vikings' All-Pro strong safety. Browner, a fine athlete, credits the martial arts training with making him a better tackler and improving his confidence.

Browner was in high school when he earned his first black belt in Kenpo, a Chinese and Japanese form of boxing. Now he's working with Meyer to get a black belt in karate and aikijujutsu. He takes the test next month.

"A person's assignment out there is to destroy you," Browner said. "This is a way to protect yourself.

"Someone could be running 100 miles per hour. I take his energy and redirect it. I take one side of his body and attack it. Use your energy and his and it makes you look very strong."

The Vikings want their other martial arts students to look very strong — and quick, agile and confident.

"I have an agreement with Jerry Burns," Meyer said. "I won't teach football; I'll teach martial arts. I'll teach them how to fall and come up quick off the turf. I'll teach them to develop quickness, and hand and foot speed.

Maryland hoop coach resigns

By TIM LIOTTA

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Bob Wade, whose program has been under NCAA investigation for nearly three months, resigned as Maryland's basketball coach, university president William E. Kirwan announced Friday.

Wade, who completed three years on a five-year contract, will receive $120,000 for the remaining two years. A private foundation which supports Maryland athletics agreed to buy his house in Adelphia, Md., when Wade relocates.

Kirwan said the resignation was reached by "mutual agreement" between Wade and the university "that it was appropriate that he step down."

"We've been discussing this matter for approximately two weeks," Kirwan said at a news conference. "I made the first contact with him and we had a general conversion and as an outgrowth of those conversations we reached the agreement that he should resign."

The announcement came a day after Wade underwent successful back surgery at Sibley Hospital in Washington, D.C., where he is expected to remain for at least three more days.

Athletic Director Lew Perkins said a search committee headed by Dr. Irwin L. Goldstein, an acting vice president at the university in charge of academic affairs, will begin looking for a replacement. Perkins estimated the search will take 3-5 weeks.

Wade and the Terrapin basketball program came under investigation by the NCAA and the university's legal counsel in late February when Wade informed Perkins that members of his staff had violated NCAA rules by providing a recruit with transportation to classes.

Wade told Perkins that some of his staff members gave former player Rudy Archer rides to a nearby junior college and later to an extension university at Maryland. Wade denied any involvement in the violations.

The NCAA review reportedly was expanded recently to check into allegations that players had been using courtesy cars provided by local car dealers.

Kirwan declined to discuss the NCAA investigation.

Fuzzy retains lead

PGA

By GORDON S. WHITE Jr.
New York Times News Service

DUBLIN, Ohio — As unpredictable as the recent weather in Ohio, Fuzzy Zoeller left everyone gaping in disbelief Friday as he not only maintained his lead in the 14th annual Memorial Tournament, but also increased it from one stroke to five.

He did so with an amazing nine-birdie second round of six-under-par 66 in a cold, miserable rain.

"I can't tell when I'm going to play well," said Zoeller, a 37-year-old Hoosier who has a bad back. "You know how my game is up and down. My odds are not very good.

"They never are when I come to a tournament because you never know if I'm going to finish or not."

With the lowest score on each of the first two days, 69 and 66, Zoeller was at an astounding nine-under-par 135 on the Muirfield Village Golf Club course.

The course, soaked by days of rain, was subject to a daylong drizzle Friday and played much longer than the 7,104 yards it actually measures. Zoeller took the largest lead any player has had at the halfway point of a PGA Tour event in the last 20 months.

"I practiced very hard for the last two weeks," Zoeller said with tongue in cheek. "I was home for two weeks and didn't pick up a club till last weekend. Then I hit 24 shots each day and came up here Tuesday. I didn't practice at all."

Ray Floyd, 47, captain of this year's U.S. Ryder Cup team, had 67 for 140 and was tied for second with Mark Calcavecchia and Bob Tway.

Admitting that his back hurt some Thursday night, Zoeller said: "The secret is to stay warm and the secret to staying warm is to stay loose. You do that with layers of clothes."

Friday, he had on two sweaters and rain pants throughout the round, in temperatures that never got out of the 40s.

Zoeller attributes much of his success this week to having changed his putter and his putting stance from an open to a closed address.

Floyd credited much of the leader's success to the length of Zoeller's drives on a wet course where so many golfers are forced to hit long irons into the greens.

Fred Couples, who was seven shots back of Zoeller at 142, said, "Fuzzy's got a better back than he's saying."

Told of this, Zoeller said, "Tell Freddie I'll switch backs with him."

Zoeller had only 16 pars in the first 36 holes of the Memorial, including only half a dozen Friday. His nine birdies Friday more than made up for three bogeys.

"That's a lot of birdies," Zoeller said. "But the ball wanted to go in the hole every time. Even my bad putts look like they want to go in."

He opened with a 9-iron approach on the 446-yard first hole, proving Floyd's point about Zoeller hitting almost as long as he did years ago when he was at his best.

This left Zoeller a 2-foot birdie putt, which he made. He rolled in birdie putts of 10, 15 and 25 feet for his three other front-nine birdies, then took five birdies on the back nine with putts ranging from 1 to 15 feet.

Stanley will find Canadian home

NHL

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's a form-fitting final. The No. 1 Calgary Flames vs. the No. 2 Montreal Canadiens for the Stanley Cup.

Calgary won the President's Trophy by leading the regular-season standings with 117 points. Montreal was second with 115.

"It's not often that the two teams that are supposed to get there actually get there. We were the two best teams during the season. It's fitting that we're in the finals," Montreal's Bobby Smith said.

The Canadiens earned their berth Thursday night, polishing off the Philadelphia Flyers in the Wales Conference final with a 4-2 victory. One night earlier, Calgary reached the final by completing a 4-1 Campbell Conference triumph over the Chicago Blackhawks.

The championship series, a rematch of the 1986 final that Montreal won in five games, begins Sunday night in Calgary.

The home-ice edge Calgary won by finishing No. 1 may not be worth much to either team. The Flames, who lost just four times at the Olympic Saddledome during the regular season, suffered two of their four playoff defeats at home. The Canadiens, second to the Flames at home during the regular season, lost two of three games at the Forum against Philadelphia while winning all three visits to the Spectrum.

Montreal won two of its three regular-season meetings with the Flames in a series that saw the visiting team win all three games.

Montreal, which won the Jennings Trophy for allowing the fewest goals during the regular season, continued its strong defensive play against the Flyers. Supported by a strong defensive corps and swarming checkers, goalie Patrick Roy allowed just eight goals in the six-game series.

"Montreal was better than us. Defensively they were a lot better," Flyers general manager Bob Clarke said.

Coach Paul Holmgren said the difference was the Canadiens' ability to shut down the Flyers' power play, the best in the league during the regular season. The Canadiens shut out the Flyers on 22 power-play attempts, denying the Flyers a chance to set up and turning their biggest offensive weapon — Tim Kerr — into a non-factor.

Kerr, who had 14 goals, eight on the power play, in the first two rounds, was held scoreless by the Canadiens and was almost invisible for much of the series.

"We had excellent discipline killing power plays," Montreal coach Pat Burns said. "We studied their power play. We knew we had to tie up Kerr. That was the key."

Kerr, who played the series with a chipped bone in his stick hand, observed, "I'm the last guy to use it as an excuse, but I couldn't hold my stick, shoot or handle the puck. There is not much else you can do."

The Canadiens will need more of the same kind of defensive effort to shut down the Flames, who finished second in the league with 354 goals.

"Calgary has a great power play," said defenseman Chris Chelios. "We will have to work much harder and play more aggressively against them. Our power play has been hot and cold all year."

Mats Naslund said Calgary has more depth than the Flyers.

"They have four good lines and six good defensemen," he said. "In that sense they're like us because we have depth too. And you need a lot of defense in a championship series."

Roy, who stopped 15 shots in the clincher, noted that, "we've had success in Calgary.

"But it's going to be a tough series," he said. "Calgary is more balanced than the Flyers. They have a good defense, but we're a little more experienced and maybe we have a better bench."

Thursday night's game was marred when Flyers goalie Ron Hextall attacked Chelios with 1:37 to play, triggering a free-for-all. Hextall earned a match penalty and a league spokeswoman said there would be a hearing on possible disciplinary action.

Hextall, who was suspended for eight games to start the 1987-88 season after slashing Edmonton's Kent Nilsson in the 1987 finals, said the attack on Chelios was a payback for a hit by the Montreal defenseman on winger Brian Propp in Game 1.

Bad luck continues to fall on LPGA's Bozarth

By TOM CANAVAN

LINCROFT, N.J. (AP) — Winning has proved elusive for Marci Bozarth in four-plus years on the LPGA Tour, and this year it hasn't gotten any easier.

Even when things have gone right, something has gotten in the way. In the opening round of the Chrysler-Plymouth Classic on Friday, it was Bozarth's failure to read the rules carefully that cost her the lead.

Bozarth rolled in a six-foot birdie putt on the final hole to cap 3-under-par 70 that gave her a share of the lead with Laura Davies of England and Cindy Rarick and a one-shot edge over defending champion Nancy Lopez.

Bozarth actually took only took 69 strokes. The extra one came after she illegally picked up her ball on the par-5, 451-yard sixth hole.

The hole was among six on the Bamm Hollow Country Club that was bluelined because of standing water left over from heavy rains Wednesday — meaning that golfers were allowed to pick up and clean their ball in area designated by blue lines.

But only part of the sixth hole was bluelined, a fact that was noted on the supplemental rules of play sheet given the golfers before the round. Bozarth saw sixth hole on her sheet and didn't notice the rest of the instructions.

"This is the first time on tour that they didn't blueline the whole hole," said Bozarth, whose best finish this year was a tie for 25th place. "I was just so angry when it happened."

Bozarth made the mistakes after her second shot. She had legally cleaned her ball after the first one.

"The moment I picked up the ball one of the girls in o.r group (Diana Heinicke-Rauch) said 'I don't think this is bluelined,'" Bozarth said. "I thought for a moment and said 'It's not, you're right.' I put the ball down and I was angry."

Bozarth walked away from the ball for about 30 seconds, took a deep breath and then hit a wedge to within 15 feet and sank what should have been a birdie putt. It was just a par with the stroke penalty.

Chi Chi finds first round success

Seniors

From Staff Reports

MALVERN, Pa. (AP) — Chi Chi Rodriguez fired a 3-under par 67 Friday to take a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $400,000 Bell Atlantic-St. Christopher's Senior Classic.

Tommy Aaron, Mike Hill, Deray Simon and Orville Moody had 68s on the 6,710-yard, par 70 Chester Valley Golf Club course.

Rodriguez said he dedicated the round to his wife, Iwalani, who is suffering from bronchitis in Hawaii.

"My body is here but my heart is with her," Rodriguez said. "But I hit the ball very, very well today."

Rodriguez, who hasn't finished better than sixth this year, had three of his four birdies on the front nine when he made putts of 4, 20, and 8 feet.

He sank a 30-foot putt to become the only player to go 4-under for the day but gave that shot back when he missed an 8-footer after hooking into the right rough for a bogey on 13.

Rodriguez said his game has improved since he started to experiment with a 46-inch putter that he borrowed from Moody on Monday. He used it for the first time in competition on Friday.

"I missed a lot of putts, but I made a lot of them, too," he said. "My long game was much more relaxed because I've been so worried about my putting that I was trying too hard to hit the ball real close."

Both Hill and Aaron lost chances to tie Rodriguez for the lead when they bogeyed their final holes. Hill drove into the rough and missed a 15-foot putt on No. 18. Aaron, who started on the back nine, pulled a 3-wood left, about 40 yards short of the green on No. 9, pitched onto the green and two-putted.

"Actually, I played pretty good," Hill said. "But I just hit a bad shot at 18."

Aaron, who is suffering from a stiff neck, said he was happy with his round except for the final hole.

"In retrospect, I should have hit an iron off the tee," he said. "I remember hitting an iron here two years ago, but I thought the wet conditions would make a difference."

Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, said he hasn't played as well as he had hoped.

"But I've been hitting the ball much better the last two tournaments," he said. "Today I drove the ball well and really couldn't have shot much better. I hit my irons well and made a couple of good putts."

Simon, who has never won a PGA event and has not finished better than 21st in his two years on the Senior Tour, said he had only one bad hole, the 17th, when he three-putted from 20 feet.

"Otherwise, I chipped and putted well," he said.

Five other players, including Jim Dent, who is playing in his first Senior event, were another stroke behind at 69. The others were Don Bies, Charles Coody, Lee Elder, and Dale Douglass.

Trainer returns to Pimlico after 30 years

By TIM LIOTTA

BALTIMORE (AP) — Charlie Whittingham has entered a horse in three of the last six Pimlico Specials. A 30-year break between renewals doesn't bother him at all.

Whittingham will run Lively One in Saturday's $700,000 Pimlico Special 33 years after a horse he trained, Mister Gus, ran in the same race. Whittingham, however, didn't want Mister Gus to run in the Special in 1956.

"It was a long time ago," Whittingham said. "I was training for Liz Tippett. She wanted to run and I didn't. The race was two weeks after the race at Laurel, the International. I was somewhere in California when they ran the race."

Mister Gus, who finished second in the 1955 Special, wound up fifth in 1956 after challenging for the early lead.

"I said, 'No way,' (when Tippett suggested running in 1956)," Whittingham said. "I told her if she wanted him to run, she could run him herself. I was going home."

In 1958, the Special was dropped from the Pimlico schedule.

The Special was resumed last year and won by Bet Twice. This year the race for older horses will have a prize of $420,000 for the winner.

"He's coming off a good race and they've put up a good purse, so we thought we'd take a whack at it," Whittingham said of Lively One, who finished second in the San Bernardino Handicap at Santa Anita.

"I don't know if he likes an off track, though. He's never run on one."

Rain pelted the Pimlico racing surface Tuesday and Wednesday and weather forecasts predict scattered showers for the Baltimore area Saturday.

Cryptoclearance, a stretch-runner, will run as an entry with Lustra. Cryptoclearance's trainer, Flint Schulhofer, entered Lustra to insure a fast pace in the 1 3-16-mile race.

"A fast pace won't bother him (Lively One)," Whittingham said. "He'll be laying just off them."

Slew City Slew, who comes into the Special off a half-length victory in the Oaklawn Handicap, beat Cryptoclearance in the Gulfstream Park Handicap on Feb. 26 when he set a slow early pace.

Valvano not interested in Clippers' post

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES (AP) — North Carolina State coach Jim Valvano is not interested in coaching the Los Angeles Clippers and won't meet with the NBA team's owner to discuss the vacant head coaching job, Valvano's agent said Friday.

The Clippers had issued a press release Thursday saying Valvano would come to California to meet with owner Donald Sterling next Wednesday.

The release was issued after the Clippers had been asked about a story in Thursday's Orange County Register, which said that Valvano and his agent, Art Kaminsky, would be involved in the meeting in Sterling's Beverly Hills office.

"I can say unequivocally and for the record that Coach Valvano is not going to Los Angeles next week, will not be meeting with the Clippers management and is not interested in any position with the NBA," Kaminsky said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his New York office.

"He is firmly ... committed to returning as coach of North Carolina State next year and looking forward to another successful season."

Valvano told the News and Observer of Raleigh Thursday night in Rocky Mount that he has never talked to the Clippers, "and it's very doubtful that I will."

"My objective is to get the best coach in America for this team," Sterling said in the press release. "Jim Valvano is certainly one of the best.

"We will sit down and talk with him, but I have made it clear to him already that at the moment, Don Casey is the frontrunner for the job."

Casey took over when Gene Shue was fired Jan. 19. The Clippers were 10-28 under Shue and 11-33 under Casey, but the team showed great improvement late in the season, winning 10 of its last 22 games.

Casey was an assistant with the Clippers when Shue was fired.

"Although a number of other names have been circulated in the past few weeks, we would prefer not to discuss any other individuals until such time that any meetings are actually scheduled," Sterling said in the statement.

RANGERS

The Rangers had one of the lowest payrolls in baseball a year ago, but paid big dollars for free agents at a time when their owner, Eddie Chiles, an oilman in hard times, dickered with potential buyers.

They spent more than $1 million to re-sign Scott Fletcher, their shortstop since 1986, who had a career batting average of .271 after last season.

They signed Ryan, a free agent, for $2 million, and then improved their bench by adding Bell, the catcher Jim Sundberg and the outfielder Rick Leach. The free agent moves increased the Rangers' players' salaries by $4 million to $10.5 million.

Former Midlander George W. Bush, the oldest of the president's five children at 42, and Edward "Rusty" Rose head a group of 15 investors who bought Chiles' stake in the Rangers in February.

The Rangers made money, with attendance topping 1.5 million in each of the last three years. But the higher player salaries mean the Rangers need to find other ways to generate cash, and the best way is to get more seats for more fans, Bush said.

He said the team must eventually play games in a bigger stadium to compete in the world of free agents and arbitration and remain profitable.

"We're going to find out exactly where our fans are, who they are and what they think," he said. "That includes fans who come to the games but also fans who aren't coming to the games. It's an $80 million decision, more or less, and it's not going to be done haphazardly."

Arlington city officials have accused businessmen in Dallas of plotting to lure the Rangers with various inducements to build a new stadium within walking distance of the city's downtown office towers and hotels.

Bush is non-committal, noting that changes could be made in Arlington. The region's population is more heavily concentrated in Dallas.

Like his father, Bush has been a serious baseball fan for years, but has said he would leave personnel decisions to Grieve and Valentine.

CHARLIE HOUGH, who has won 119 games pitching for the Rangers since 1980, said Bush's assessment was on target.

"The people running the baseball side are developing a lot of good young players," he said. "... There are guys on some A teams in the minors who five years ago would have been on our big-league roster."

Valentine said the Rangers were not able to trade for players who could make an immediate impact, like Franco and Palmeiro, until last winter because other organizations undervalued what the Rangers had to offer. "We gave up good talent," he said.

"We knew that the best type of player we could get was a player who could hit for average, not necessarily a home-run hitter, but drive the ball, knock in runs and hit anywhere in the lineup," said Grieve.

Palmeiro, who batted .307 last year and 21 runs batted in.

Franco, who averaged .295 in six seasons with the Indians, is leading the league with 30 runs batted in. Ryan's contribution inclues the drama of two no-hitters lost in late innings, may be incalculable. Valentine said Ryan was a consummate professional and a model for other players.

Since coming to the Rangers, Ryan has added a football toss with Hough between starts and some weight training to his regimen.

"We're not rebuilding Nolan's wheel at all," said House, who is three months younger than Ryan. "We're just greasing it up a bit."

RYAN aside, the hard-throwing Ranger staff must deliver more consistency and victories than is expected of it for Texas to be challenging Oakland in September.

"You've got to get good pitching to beat Oakland because you're not going to overpower them with runs," Grieve said.

Many fans say the Rangers are realistically at least two years away from a division title, but that has not discouraged people like Donald T. Conlon, a real-estate developer.

"The Rangers used to beat themselves 70 percent of the time, but now you're not embarrassed to take your kids to see them," said Conlon, who moved to Dallas from Boston 10 years ago.

Brickyard site of yet another speed record

By HANK LOWENKRON

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rick Mears, the favorite to win the pole position for the Indianapolis 500 on May 28, turned yet another unofficial record lap Friday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The three-time and defending Indy winner, who earlier this week became the first driver to turn a lap over 225 mph on the 2½-mile oval, got his Penske PC18-Chevrolet going even quicker near the end of the final full day of practice before the opening of qualifications on Saturday as he hit 226.231.

"It surprised me how smooth the ride was," said Mears, the favorite to capture a record fifth Indy pole. "I feel there may still be a little left in the car."

Official track records at the Indianapolis can only be set only during the race or in qualifying and Mears owns both the one-lap mark of 220.453 and the four-lap record of 219.198, both set last May.

Scotland's Jim Crawford, driving a 1987 Lola-Buick, also was quicker Friday than Mears' Monday sizzler of 225.733 with a 225.960. Also climbing up the speed list in the final hour was four-time Indy champion Al Unser, who completed a lap at 225.723 in his PC18-Chevrolet. Bobby Rahal, the 1986 Indianapolis champion, recorded a lap of 224.662 in a Lola with a Cosworth engine.

Mears doesn't expect to see much of an increase in speed Saturday.

"There are a lot of cars running close," he said. "I'm terrible at numbers. I missed by four miles per hour last year. But, I don't see any great big gains."

Meanwhile, Fittipaldi was optimistic he could challenge Mears for the pole.

"I feel very good about the car. Our car is the best I've had since I've been in an Indy-car," said Fittipaldi, who had the new Penske PC18 that Roger Penske sold to rival Pat Patrick due to the longstanding friendship of the two car owners.

Fittipaldi, a two-time Formula One driving champion, who ended a two-year retirement from racing in 1984 to launch an Indy-car career that has produced six victories, anticipates battling Mears both in the May 28 race and for the pole position when qualifications open on Saturday.

"We are getting in the straightaway 233 and 234. I'm very pleased with the car. We've practiced with qualifying setups, going four laps at good speed and if we come up with the right combination Saturday, including no mistakes by the driver, we should be among the fastest."

Eight drivers went quicker than 221 in Friday's practice. The group included the father-and-son combo of Mario and Michael Andretti, both using Chevy engines in Lola chassis.

REGARDLESS OF the reasons why Mr. Leach went AWOL, fact is he left all fans in a state of concern during his absence. And because of this voluntary temporary relocation, Leach becomes the newest member in the Dallas sports Hall of Weirdness. This select group was formed in the '70s when Roger Moret, the group's founding father, went into a catatonic trance in the Ranger locker room following a game.

Since, Moret has been joined by:

■ Former Ranger reliever Jim Kern, who was just odd-ball strange. He would be the first to admit it.

■ Mark Aguirre, The Best Maverick Who Never Was.

■ Duane Thomas, who actually claimed his spot before Moret. Thomas, the first really weird Dallas sports figure, lived in his own world back then and now lives in New Mexico, where he is paints.

■ Butch Johnson. Whatever happened to Butch Johnson, anyway? To say Butch had self-confidence would be like saying Mr. T was kind of annoying.

■ And last but not least, Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson. "Hollywood" made Butch Johnson look like Norman Vincent Peale, which explains his presence in the Hall of Weirdness.

DOUBLES

Morrow and Essex jumped on the Westlake pair quickly, jumping to a 3-0 lead in the first set. They went on to win easily 6-3. Then they vaulted to the phenomenal 5-0 start in the second set. It's amazing how interesting things can become when an apparent rout seems to be in motion.

In the first round Friday morning, Morrow and Essex methodically destroyed the Klein doubles pair of James DeLaat and Kevin Hurd, 6-3, 6-1.

The Midland High duo never trailed in the match and took control early with Morrow showing strength in the serving game and Essex playing the net with abandon.

Tied at 2-2 in the first set, Morrow won his serve at love and then MHS got the first of five service breaks when DeLaat contributed with three double faults. The Midlanders then won nine of the next 10 points to take the match and advance to the semifinals.

Action was scheduled to begin at 8:30 a.m. Friday, but a brief shower came just minutes prior to the match.

Texas pilot modest about historic feats

ENNIS, Texas (AP) — Robert Mason insists he has never had a close call in more than 50 years as a pilot. Except for the time he...

■ Parachuted from an airplane that mysteriously exploded over Arkansas during World War II.

■ Spent six days stranded on the Alaskan tundra after a forced landing.

■ Buzzed an oil platform seconds before it blew up.

"I don't like a lot of personal publicity," Mason said. "I don't like to talk about that kind of stuff because it always sounds like a made-up war story."

Mason's wife, Sherry, operates an Ennis insurance company and is a pilot with nearly 800 flying hours to her credit. Her husband, former manager of the Ennis Municipal Airport, has more than 20,000 flying hours.

His aviation career included supervising the control tower at an Anchorage, Alaska, airport, working as a commercial pilot and serving as a lieutenant colonel in the Civil Air Patrol.

Mason, 69, minimizes his aerial exploits, interrupting any of his wife's attempts to elaborate with "ah, the man doesn't want to hear about that." But, with a little coaxing, he will provide the details.

Born in Detroit, Mason said he does not remember how he caught the aviation bug. No one in his family flew as passenger or pilot.

"It was just a kid's love of airplanes," Mason said.

He attended a high school in Detroit that offered courses in aeronautics. On weekends, he worked at the local airport in return for flying lessons.

Mason was married and driving a city bus in Detroit when World War II gave him the chance to move full-time into aviation.

"I thought as long as they were paying someone to fly those big airplanes, let me get in line," Mason said.

He spent the war flying multi-engine Army transport airplanes across the United States. But not all of his flying was purely routine.

On May 5, 1944, a twin-engine trainer that Mason was piloting exploded in midair over Arkansas. Mason escaped by parachute, but his copilot did not survive.

"I have no idea why the plane blew up," Mason said.

Mason became a member of the Caterpillar Club. Initiation requirements are that you have to have parachuted from an airplane to save your life, he said.

After the war, Mason joined Eastern Airlines as a pilot. Even then, Eastern's employees had trouble with the management.

Eddie Rickenbacher, World War I flying ace and founder of Eastern, was so tightfisted that if someone asked for a new pencil, "you almost had to have the stub of the old one to show him," Mason said. "And it had better be used to the last inch."

After a few months with Eastern, Mason struck out on his own. He led a gypsy existence as a pilot for the numerous non-scheduled airlines operating in the late 1940s.

"There was a beer joint in Chicago where all the pilots hung out," Mason said. "Getting a job was a matter of someone sticking their head in the door and saying 'hey, I need a copilot for this C-46.' "

The usual reply from the pilots was a desperate chorus of "me, me, me," Mason said.

In 1948, Mason joined the Civil Aeronautics Administration as tower chief for Anchorage. His authority was eventually expanded to include several other airports.

"There was no official manual governing float planes," Mason said. "A friend and I wrote one up and submitted it to Washington. But the manual that came back from Washington had someone else's name on it."

In 1951, Mason joined the volunteer Civil Air Patrol in Alaska, participating in literally hundreds of search and rescue missions.

"By the time you got the reports written up on one rescue, you were gone again on another," Mason said.

The temperature was 30 degrees below zero when Mason left Anchorage in a skiplane. Three hours of backbreaking work were required just to start the engine.

"We used to use gasoline heaters to preheat the engines so they would start," Mason said. "It was so cold we had to preheat the heaters before they would start."

The small unheated airplane had room enough only for the pilot in front and the patient stretched out in back. During the trip, the blankets slipped off the elderly passenger's feet.

"His feet were frozen when he arrived in Anchorage," Mason said. "The old boy never complained once about it the whole trip."

On one occasion, it was Mason who was looking for help from his Civil Air Patrol friends. He and a friend were on a moose hunting expedition when the engine of their airplane suddenly quit.

The pair landed in an isolated, mountainous region of Alaska. It was three days before a search plane spotted them and dropped instructions telling them to walk to a nearby lake where a landing could be made.

"We made it to the lake, but a windstorm blew in and it was three more days before they could land," Mason said. "We had eaten all the moose meat and were starting to get a little hungry."

The borrowed airplane was never recovered, he said.

Presidential pastime may be lucky for shoemaker

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The world's largest horseshoe maker is hoping President Bush will pitch the backyard sport into the American consciousness and boost its sales the way his predecessor helped the jelly bean industry.

The first 100 days of the horseshoe-happy president have brought smiles to the St. Pierre Manufacturing Co., a second-generation factory begun by an amateur inventor more than a half-century ago.

"It's so crazy, just the fact that Bush's playing horseshoes has an impact on this industry," said Edward St. Pierre, 47, treasurer and son of the founder.

Although it's too early to tell how big the impact the White House and Camp David courts will have on the sport, St. Pierre said he has a hint from early orders this will be the company's best year yet.

The family is secretve about exactly how many shoes they sell, saying only that they ship thousands of shoe-and-stake kits yearly. But the president of the National Horseshoe Pitcher's Assocation supports their claim of being the largest pitching-shoe maker in the world.

The company's shoes were flung by the chief executive in a recent issue of Sports Illustrated and St. Pierre believes he saw his top-line model at the April Fool's Day televised inauguration of the horseshoe pit Bush installed next to the White House swimming pool.

He is the proud possessor of a presidential letter dated Election Day. "Thank you very much for sending me the great pitching horseshoes," the Bush letter says. "Needless to say, the gift will get a lot of use and I appreciate your thoughtfulness."

Historians say the conquering Norman soldiers brought the game to England in the 11th century and early settlers brought it to America.

The game requires only two horseshoes per player and two stakes 40 feet apart. Players take turns throwing shoes, and those that encircle the stakes are "ringers," earning three points. The shoe that lands closest to the stake earns one point. Thus came the maxim, "Close only counts in horseshoes."

"When people first started pitching, they would use whatever discarded old shoe Dobbin threw off," said company Marketing Director Nanette St. Pierre, 44, sister of Edward and two other brothers in the family business.

Bush, an NHPA member, is a better-than-average player, said association secretary Don Roberts. "He averages 25 percent ringers. That's not too bad."

The president's interest in the sport reportedly began a few years ago when a court was installed for Secret Service agents at his summer residence in Maine.

The National Horseshoe Pitcher's Association has been deluged with calls about the president's astime since his election.

"We have both been bombarded with press, radio and TV inquiries, interviews, calls from sporting goods companies, promoters, magazines, potential sponsors and the general public," NHPA President Dave Loucks wrote in the April issue of the association newsletter.

Bush is not the first president to pitch St. Pierre shoes, according to the family. Harry Truman also threw a few at the White House. The Armed Forces commissioned the company to make horseshoes for soldiers during World War II, Nanette St. Pierre said.

The company began forging shoes in the 1930s to keep workers busy during the summer when the market for its main product, tire chains, dwindled.

What Do Mothers Teach?

The most important teachers that children have are their mothers. Most of what a child learns before the age of five is taught them by their mothers. All of the skills most important for success in life are introduced, first, by mothers.

The most important thing a mother teaches is love. Because their mothers first loved them, children learn to put their faith and trust in others.

Honor your mother on Mother's Day. She taught you the most important lesson of all—

RELIGION

Unitarian Universalist to vote on new minister

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland has announced the engagement of a ministerial candidate and has scheduled for the week of May 13-21 a series of luncheons, dinners, meetings and functions designed to familiarize and orient her to the church and the community.

Petersberger

The candidate, Clare Louise Petersberger, 28, a native of Washington, D.C., studied drama and literature at Middlebury College in Vermont, and plans to complete her master of divinity degree at Harvard Divinity School in June.

In addition to academic training at Harvard, Ms. Petersberger has experience in the Unitarian Universalist ministry from a number of areas of service, including the chaplaincy staff at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Washington, D.C., field work at First Parish Church in Cambridge, Mass., internship at Eliot Unitarian Chapel and staff experience at the Unitarian Universalist Association, Washington office.

In addition to meeting with various church committees throughout the candidating week, Ms. Petersberger will deliver two sermons to the congregations.

The first, on Sunday, the traditional Mother's Day intergenerational celebration of flower communion, will be "Messengers of Love."

Then, on May 21, she will deliver "Theology Without Laughter Fails to take Life Seriously," at the conclusion of which the members of the congregation will vote on whether or not to call Ms. Petersberger as their minister.

Other May activities not related to candidating week include a proxy sermon by the Rev. Dr. Peter Raible, "An Open Letter to President Bush," on the 28th; an orientation meeting of the Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program at 9 a.m. May 20; and a forum program concerning host families and the foreign exchange program, facilitated by Ann Hicks and Barbara Acker of Youth for Understanding, at 10 a.m. May in the fellowship hall.

The UU Church is located at 3301 Neely. Services include a 10 a.m. adult forum, 11 a.m. worship and children's religious education.

Feud stirs negative energy in enclave

CASSADAGA, Fla. (AP) — In a tiny eight-sided hut, spiritual healer Gladys Reid turns on a cassette of soothing melodies. With a brush of her hand, she claims to whisk away tension and negative energy.

It won't be so easy to rid Cassadaga of its woes, say many residents of the backwoods enclave of more than 100 Spiritualists who attest to psychic or prophetic powers and the ability to communicate with the deceased.

The friction of controversy and fear of change cling to this 95-year-old community like the Spanish moss draping from the tree limbs. In the ephemeral realm of Spiritualism, very material issues such as politics, stock ownership and lawsuits jangle the village's almost surreal tranquillity.

"If you look close you can feel the tension in the air," said Ron E. Heriff, a professional medium who was among a five-candidate slate that lost a bitter campaign March 25 to control the non-profit board that runs Cassadaga Spiritualist Camp, which governs most psychic practitioners in town.

At least three of the five have been threatened with loss of their single share of camp stock for their alleged dissident acts, and a legal challenge in Volusia Circuit Court is expected to be heard sometime this spring on a plan that turned the camp from a shareholder to membership group.

Leaders say the move was to protect against unqualified psychics using the camp's name. Others claim it was an attempt to stifle new ideas and force non-conformists from low-cost camp homes.

Meanwhile, at the newly reopened Cassadaga Hotel — a musty, quaint 62-year-old structure — owner Joseph Stupar has filed suit against the camp board alleging harassment because he rents space to some of the two dozen Spiritualists who operate outside the camp's sanction.

"All this bickering and lawsuits have drained the positive energy from this place," said Marilyn Awtry-Smith, who lost her camp stock in December for forming a rival group in 1986.

"The tension is very, very high," Heriff said. "I'm not joking, we may be witnessing the undoing of Cassadaga."

Premonitions are just one ingredient in the metaphysical montage of Cassadaga. There are those who acknowledge the healing powers of certain stones and crystals. Others comb the Zodiac for insights and guidance. Auras are read and past lives are examined.

But the basic tenet of Spiritualism remains the ability to speak with the "so-called dead." The contact with the spirit side is critical to demonstrate that death is not the end; the messages from the afterlife can be anything from a subtle feeling to words scripted through the air by light-emitting trumpets.

"Look at it this way," said medium and board member Darleen Misskelley. "You can't see television or radio waves in the air, but you see an image or hear a voice on the radio. Well, a medium is just like a television or radio. We pick up the higher vibrations from the spirit side and translate it back to something we can understand."

— Ron E. Heriff, a professional medium

Cassadaga is a mecca for mediums. Signs hang from most of the wood-frame houses offering different doors into the spirit world: Psychic Counselors, Past-life Regressions, Astral Therapy. On Gala Days and Medium's Nights during the year, the compound is abuzz with visitors seeking 15-minute seances.

Yet not all in the village are believers. One camp shareholder rents to her sons, who playfully erected a "Ghostbusters" movie logo.

"We're not a circus or a sideshow," said Misskelley, the daughter of a Presbyterian deacon. "But some people can't appreciate that. Everyone mocked Nancy Reagan for seeking the advice of an astrologer when they know nothing about it."

The foundations of Spiritualism in America began after the Revolution, when metaphysics and superstition often intertwined with everyday life. One of the largest communities, now known as Lily Dale, was established in southwestern New York in 1879. At the same time, George Colby was homesteading here to establish a winter retreat for the northern Cassadaga village.

None of Colby's descendants are alive and vandals have burned and damaged his cabin. Yet his portrait is displayed like an icon. There are also numerous pictures of Jesus, whom Spiritualists regard as just one of the great healers and mediums. Followers are hunting for suitable pictures of other prophets, including Mohammed and Buddha.

Now all members of the camp compound must be approved by the board. About a third of the 300 shareholders live in Cassadaga, where home prices are kept low — most are less than $50,000 — and some of the long-time residents pay only $5 a year for a lease. Most make their living off readings, averaging about $35 per session.

But in a community of avowed free-thinkers, it's different ideas and approaches that have caused the rifts.

Camp leaders are worried that non-affilated readers and mediums operating at the hotel and on county land across the street will turn the town into a carnival and soil its reputation. The outsiders say there should be no constraints on what is practiced in town.

"It's just growing pains," said Bonnie Bemis, who holds weekly services at the Universal Spiritualist Center across the street. "It's like a pot-bound plant straining to grow and flourish. Put us all in the same room and we believe the same thing.

"There are just some people who are resistant to change."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Hunt, Wilson added to staff

Memorial Christian Church has added Robert E. Hunt and Merry Lee Wilson to its staff as music director and organist, respectively.

Wilson, a Big Spring native, is a graduate of Southern Methodist University with a bachelor of arts in music.

She has studied organ and harpsicord with Dr. Richard Webb at East Tennessee State University and was a student of Dr. C. Allison Salley, former organist at First Presbyterian Church in Midland. In addition, she has served as organist or choir director in several churches most recently at First United Methodist Church in Big Spring.

Hunt, music director, is a Dallas native. He is a graduate of Southern Methodist University with a bachelor of arts in piano. He received his masters in musicology from Texas Christian University and is currently working on his doctorate in choral conducting from Indiana University.

He has a varied experience in both performing and conducting including working with the Boris Goldovsky Opera Institute, the Dallas Opera and Symphony. He served as the music director in several churches including the University Christian Church in Fort Worth.

Singles seminar planned

A "Successful Single Living" seminar is being held June 23-25 at Kelview Heights Baptist Church.

The seminar, for those formerly married and yet to be married, will be led by Clyde Beeson.

"The seminar is designed to help singles through the emotional trauma of a dissolved marriage or relationship, cope with single living, to use the present situation as an opportunity of personal growth and to use the past as a means of improving future relationships," says a release from the church.

The seminar was created by Beeson, who is the author of "Picking Up the Pieces: Success Single Living" and the founder of Christian Growth Ministries, a non-profit organization to provide seminars and counseling.

The seminar begins at 6:30 p.m. June 23, continues June 24 and concludes with a singles rally at 10 a.m. June 25.

A children's seminar will be available for those in the first through sixth grades. This seminar is entitled "Healing the Hurts" and runs concurrent with the adult seminar.

For more information and a registration form call the church, 682-3842.

Music group to perform

Jeremiah People will perform at Word of Life, Highway 191 east of Highway 1788, at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

"Since 1971, Jeremiah People has toured the United States and Canada, giving audiences, young and old alike, a reflection of the Christian life through a keen sense of comedy, deeply affecting drama and dynamic music," says a release from the church.

The focus of Jeremiah People's ministry is the local church, its strengths and weaknesses, its capacity for love and forgiveness, unity and sense of community and its responsibilities to a needy world.

"Each program theme revolves around believers and non-believers coming to grips with real life problems by confronting the reality of Jesus Christ," the release says.

"The problems raised go straight to the heart. The style and content are timeless and rely on themes specifically written around people and dilemmas we all know, issues that neither divide the Christian community, nor or they here today and gone tomorrow."

Prayer conference called

The Church of God of Prophecy's general overseer has called a prayer and fasting conference for May 20-21.

"The basis of this prayer and fast conference is taken from Joel 1:14 — 'Sanctify ye a fast, call a solemn assembly, gather the elders and all the inhabitant of the land unto the house of the Lord your God, and cry unto the Lord,'" says a release from the church.

The conference begins at 2:30 p.m. Saturday and concludes at 10 p.m. May 21. Those who are able will be asked to fast during that time.

The specific areas of concentration of prayer include message on prayer, prayer for local churches, prayer for missions, quiet time for personal reflections and meditation, prayer for church business, evangelism/home missions, cross-cultural ministries, caring for one another, leadership in the home/church and prayer for pastoral care.

Individuals and churches interested in participating are encouraged to do so. Those interested in participating in the prayer and fasting are asked to call John Miller, 697-3644 or 697-5512 for more information.

Handbell concert planned

The handbell choirs of St. Luke's United Methodist Church will present a concert at 5 p.m. Sunday in the church's sanctuary, 3011 W. Kansas Ave.

The program will feature the children, youth and adult handbell choirs, accompanied by other instruments, playing a variety of music. A solo piece will be rung by Debby Vester and a bell duet will be played by Gretta Young and Ms. Vester.

Many familiar handbell composers will be heard, including Hal Hopson, Cynthia Dobrinski, Eugene Butler and Douglas Wagner. The program will end with Linda KcKechnie's arrangement of the familiar hymn, "Glorous Things of Thee are Spoken," arranged for bell, trumpet, organ and congregational singing.

The choirs are directed by Bert Bostic, minister of program and music for St. Luke's UMC, Ms. Vester, organist and music assistant, and Ms. Young.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Jarrell H. Sharp, invites the public to attend.

'Skin wellness' scheduled

A program on "skin wellness" will be presented at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana Ave., at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the church library.

The program, conducted by Stella Sparks, will include a video on skin wellness. Topics covered by the video are skin cancer and how to recognize early cancerous conditions, the importance of sunscreens and the use of a body map to enable a person to keep regular records of moles and growths on the body.

In April through June, the sun does the most damage, says Mrs. Sparks, a beauty consultant. "It's important for everyone to use sunscreen and be knowledgeable about the effects of the sun."

The public is invited to attend this program which will follow the Wednesday night family supper. For supper reservations call the church office, 682-2514, before noon Tuesday.

Insurance seminar set

First Christian Church is a seminar on the costs, ramifications, rules and regulations of the new catastrophic health care insurance at 4 p.m. May 21.

Conducting the seminar will be Joyce Miller, investment broker and financial consultant from A.G. Edwards and Sons, Inc.

The seminar, which is open to all interested parties, will be held in the Lost and Found Classroom.

In addition, the Rev. Ray Bristol, senior minister at First Christian Church, will conduct a "Christian Belief and Practices" class for all new members of the congregations and for all those interested in knowing more about Disciples of Christ. The class will be held Sundays in June during the Sunday School hour.

Mothers to be honored

Ranchland Heights Baptist Church will pay special homage to Mothers with a giant red and white bouquet during the worship service Sunday.

Each blossom in the bouquet will be dedicated to the mother of one of more members of the congregation. For the past several weeks, members and friends of the church have been reserving blossoms for the bouquet in honor of in memory of their mothers. A total of 75 flowers will be in the bouquet.

Dedication of the bouquet will be accompanied by special music and the pastor's messages of the day to round out the services and emphasize the importance of mothers and the home in the lives of all present.

The church's pastor, Lucian Rudd, invites the public to attend.

Teens present musical

The Bellview Baptist Church Youth Choir will present the youth musical "Say Yes" at 6:40 p.m. Sunday at the church, 1710 N. Big Spring St.

The music is based upon a collection of songs written and performed by the contemporary Christian musical group NewSong. The script was created by Jay Strack, a youth evangelist.

The Youth Choir is composed of junior and senior high school students. The music that the choir performs is upbeat and addresses the problems and concerns of their generation. Troy Stevenson, the minister of music at Bellview, says the musical is written to be performed by youth for youth.

Pancake Wash to be today

The youth groups at First Christian Church are having their annual Pancake Wash from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. today.

Charge for the car wash is $5 and an additional dollar for vans, pickups and trucks. The driver receives a free meal of pancakes. Additional meals are available to passengers at a charge of $2.50.

Class to start May 21

A "Growing with Grace" class is being held at 9:30 a.m. Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., Sunday, May 21, 28 and June 4.

The class, led by the pastor with assistance from the elders of the church, will cover such topics as "Why We Worship as We Do," "What is Our History," "How Are We Organized," "What We Believe" and "How We Seek to Serve in the Community."

Pentecost remembered

First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., is celebrating Pentecost, the birth of the church, during the 10:45 a.m. service Sunday.

A Midland men's choir will join the Sanctuary Choir and the Lone Star Brass Quintet in the performance of John Ness Beck's choral work "Upon This Rock." The morning prelude for this service will be Richard Strauss' Solemn Entry for Brass and Organ.

The public is invited to attend.

Youth has spring concert

ODESSA — Youth Spiritual Enlightment will be holding its second annual Spring Concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, May 27.

The YSE choir's minister of music is M. Anthony Jackson. the event will be held at St. James Baptist Church, Odessa.

The public is invited to attend. No admission will be charged.

Williams teaches class

Anita Williams will be teaching and ministering in a 7 p.m. Thursday meeting sponsored by the Downtown Businesswomens Bible Study.

Mrs. Williams has been leading seminars and retreats for churches and organizations for the past 15 years. Ordained as a minister in 1983, Mrs. Williams is on the staff of Ecclesia Church in Chandler, where she and her husband, Ron, are members.

In June of 1984, the couple began Zechariah 4:6 Ministries "for the purpose of teaching the body of Christ how to be free through repentance, forgiveness and prayer that is directed and breathed upon by the Holy Spirit," says a release from the DBBS.

Men and women are invited to attend this meeting. For more information call Karen Williamson, 684-5378, or Eddie Lue Hunter, 699-7370.

Local seminary courses offered

The Presbytery of Tres Rios and Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary have joined together to bring extension seminary courses for those in the Midland/Odessa area who are interested, but are not able to regularly attend classes at the seminary in Austin, according to Dr. A.L. Moreau, director of the West Texas Extension of APTS.

The first of the courses will be "Reformed Theology," taught by Dr. Alan Edmond Lewis, professor of constructive and modern theology at APTS.

The intensive, two-week course will be held in Midland at Trinity Presbyterian Church, 2800 W. Louisiana, July 24-Aug. 4. Classes will meet Monday through Friday, 7-10 p.m., for a total of 30 class hours. Students may audit the course or enroll as a "special student" of the seminary and take the course for six credit hours.

"Anyone interested in quality theological education may participate," says a release from the Presbytery of Tres Rios.

"The program will be especially attractive to persons interested in beginning work toward a master of divinity degree; persons working toward certification as Christian educators; and lay persons interested in deepening their knowledge and competence."

Because the course is intensive in nature, early registration is encouraged. Those enrolling will be given a list of assignments and reading to start on prior to the class. There will also be a paper to be completed following the class sessions.

For enrollment information, Dr. Moreau may be contacted at P.O. Box 5111, Midland 79704 or 1-682-2514.

North, South Korean leaders worship together

CHEVY CHASE, Md. (AP) — Church leaders from South Korea and communist North Korea worshipped, discussed and sang together in a rare gathering contemplating reunion of their divided country.

In the first visit to the United States since Korea was divided in 1945 at the end of World War II, four North Korean Christians met with South Korean church representatives, along with about 100 U.S. church leaders.

The Rev. Dwain Epps, international affairs officer of the National Council of Churches which sponsored the conference, said:

"We don't have the power in our hands to make peace or reunify Korea. But we have the opportunity to respond to the call of the Christians of the South and North to assist them to find a reunified future."

The council launched an ecumenical campaign to educate U.S. church members about continuing human costs of a divided Korea, including separation of families and a devastating war in which 4 million died.

Bethel UMC has annual special service

Bethel United Methodist Church will have its official constituting service at 10 a.m. Sunday at Scharbauer Elementary School Cafetorium, the church's temporary meeting place.

Then, at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, the church will celebrate its fellowship with a covered-dish dinner. A nursery will be provided.

K.C. Blackketter, the founding pastor, has been contacting people and holding preliminary services since March, thus 21 individuals will join the church Sunday to form the initial core group of disciples.

The 10 a.m. service will feature special music by a men's quartet called Glory Bound from St. Paul United Methodist Church. Teresa Crosby will be the guest pianist. Blackketter will bring a message titled "Conceived of God." Bobby McMillan, district superintendent of the Big Spring District, will be present for the occasion.

The evening fellowship Sunday will be an informal time of eating and visiting with a special program by Laura Fields, a local professional Christian vocalist. Bread and drinks will be provided for the covered-dish dinner.

"The aim of the congregation is on becoming the family of God," says a release from the now-forming church. "The church has a specific focus of ministry on the needs of individuals and families in our community. It also encourages meaningful discipleship in the family of God. It is a place where one can both belong and become."

"Many visitors will be present, and everyone is welcome," the release says.

For more information call Blackketter, 682-2468, or Jerry Smith, 697-0125.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Your self-confidence grows. Your career aims receive a special boost in October. Imaginative preparation gives you a big advantage over competitors within and outside of the workplace. Love is on your mind and in your heart. You will have much to be thankful for as the year unfolds. Good luck comes your way through travel or educational studies. Be the best you can possibly be!

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Great expectations keep you in a positive mood. You feel great, but must struggle to get better organized at work. Replace bad habits with good news. A promotion depends on your exercising self-discipline.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Guile and strategy will produce the results you want. Creative or spiritual development brings you good luck. Renew family ties and resume your role within the family circle. A reconciliation gladdens many hearts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A financial breakthrough means greater stability. Count your blessings! You will feel a powerful attraction to a new partner. The little things you do are appreciated. A sports activity captures your attention.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Vary your daily activities to better suit your own rhythms. Focus on affairs of the heart. Certain fears have kept you from establishing a lasting romantic relationship. If necessary, seek professional counseling.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You will want to get out and mingle today. Paint a picture of the future as you see it and you will attract support from unexpected places. Financial backing becomes available.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Travel is accompanied by a sense of pressure to produce terrific financial results. You are up to the task! In fact, you have just got your second wind. Move forward with confidence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Authority figure shows approval of your good works. When it comes to romance, you may feel like playing the field. Be careful not to risk something you cannot afford to lose.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Adopting a more casual lifestyle could draw the ire of some family members. Expect complications if you travel late in the day. You find a book you cannot put down.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You go for the prize at an athletic event or horse show. As a competitor, you stretch yourself to the limit. Enjoy a bountiful dinner with your family. Generosity works wonders.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Family and financial pressures ease. Pay attention to a message you receive from someone at a distance. Children's activities keep you on the run today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Temptations abound today. Curb a desire to eat, eat, eat. Remember how hard it is to lose weight! Romance seems to be back on a pleasure-filled track.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A courtship that begins now could lead to a trip to the altar. You gain wisdom, thanks to a chance encounter. Use your special knowledge to help a loyal friend.

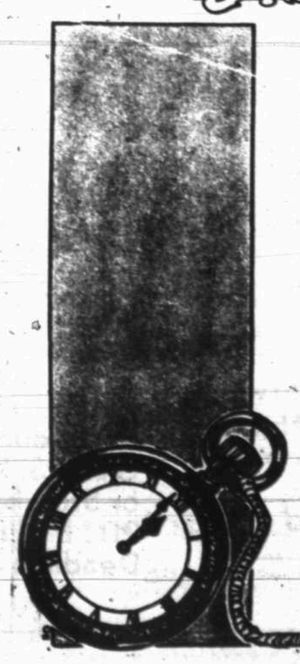
WATCHES



Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started.... through a classified ad!

If you need a good helper, try advertising in our classifieds. Who knows? You may spark the beginning of something big!

Academy-Award winning actress Greer Garson donates $3 million to college

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Greer Garson has donated $3 million to the College of Santa Fe to develop a movie studio for academic and commercial use.

Miss Garson, who lives in Dallas, did not attend Thursday's announcement of the gift but said in a tape-recorded message that it represented an interest in education and the arts shared by herself and her late husband, Dallas oilman E.E. "Buddy" Fogelson.

Miss Garson is expected to attend the Aug. 12 groundbreaking for the Garson Communication Center. A gymnasium will be converted into a sound stage and production facility that university President James Fries said could be the cornerstone of a developing film industry in New Mexico.

Miss Garson won an Academy Award in 1939 for her portrayal of "Mrs. Miniver," and received several Oscar nominations in the 1940s. She and Fogelson were longtime benefactors of the College of Santa Fe, building the Greer Garson Theater Center in 1965, establishing an endowment for student awards and guest artist programs in 1967, and building the Fogelson Library Complex in 1970.

NEW YORK (AP) — America's preschoolers have a new sister: Gabriela, born Friday to Luis and Maria on "Sesame Street."

The blessed event, eagerly awaited throughout the television series' 20th season, was fairly uneventful. Muppet and human characters gathered around Maria's bed to be introduced to the infant.

"Welcome to Sesame Street and the world!" said Big Bird.

Not everything went smoothly. When it was time to go to the hospital for the delivery, Luis and Maria found that their car had been towed. Oscar the Grouch drove them to the hospital, occasioning much handwringing on his part.

"I'm a grouch," he explained, and grouches are not supposed to do nice things or be happy about events like the birth of a baby.

The marriage of Maria and Luis was the finale for last season. Sonia Manzano, who plays Maria, became a mother 13 months ago and her real-life daughter will eventually play her television daughter.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A lawyer is trying to arrange a prisoner swap to transfer jailed soul singer James Brown from South Carolina to Georgia custody.

"There are more people here who are willing to support him," said Brown's lawyer, George Hill. "I think his chances (of a pardon) are extremely good here."

Hill is pushing for a pardon because if Brown is paroled he will subject to restrictions that would hinder his entertainment career.

Francis Archibald, spokesman for the South Carolina Department of Corrections, said South Carolina authorities would be agreeable to the swap "if Georgia agrees to it, and Mr. Brown submits his application."

The Georgia Department of Corrections, however, does not agree.

"We don't do it. We've never done it," said Georgia corrections spokesman John Siler, who said Brown's chances of being pardoned still would be slim in Georgia.

Brown is serving a six-year sentence in South Carolina and a concurrent 6½-year sentence in a Georgia case for bursting into an insurance seminar in September brandishing a shotgun, then leading police on a two-state chase.

CHICAGO (AP) — Former first lady Nancy Reagan, who has not retired from her anti-drug campaign, got some help from Mr. T and more than 3,000 children.

They appeared at the city's fifth-annual "Just Say No to Drugs" walk and rally Thursday in Grant Park.

Mrs. Reagan told participants about witnessing a raid on a crack house in Los Angeles.

"After seeing the pain and confusion and the wasted lives of the people in that house, I wished that someone had gotten to them earlier, that they had a chance to be just like you, taking the 'Just Say No' pledge before it's too late," she said.

Mr. T, a Chicago native who starred in the TV series "The A-Team," served as host of the mile-long walk and rally. Also attending were Broadway star Savion Glover, recently nominated for a Tony award for his work in the show "Black and Blue," and Allan Fawcett of the television show "Puttin' on the Hits."

Smithsonian anthropologist now identifies murder victims

By ALAN COOPERMAN

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — Doug Ubelaker used to examine skeletons for clues to the way people lived thousands of years ago. Now he's trying to figure out from bodies found along highways how eight women died just months ago.

Using calipers to measure bones and clay to reconstruct faces, the Smithsonian Institution anthropologist brought here by a frustrated prosecutor has helped identify the victims, women between ages 25 and 36 with histories of drug use or prostitution. A ninth body was sent to Ubelaker last week.

His work has not led to the arrest of a suspected serial killer. But he may have cleared an innocent man: Sources close to the investigation say his conclusion that two of the women were murdered between mid-summer and late fall led prosecutors to rule out a suspect who had been in jail on other charges.

An expert in the emerging field of forensic anthropology, Ubelaker, 42, is one of about 40 U.S. anthropologists who work regularly with police, applying knowledge of ancient skeletons to the grisly business of solving murders.

"Anthropologists like myself spend their careers looking at the bones of people who lived long ago, trying to figure out what diseases they had, how tall they were, who they were related to, what problems they had, how well they were adapted to their environment," he said. "It turns out, though, that the techniques that we use to study these past populations are the same as those needed to analyze modern remains in criminal cases."

Few anthropologists are willing to make the switch from cold science to cold blood, which takes "tremendous intestinal fortitude" as well as keen observational skills, said Walter H. Birkby, a professor of forensic anthropology at the University of Arizona in Tucson.

Birkby, a pioneer in the field, got hooked when police found a decomposed body and took it to a University of Kansas laboratory in 1962. At first, he was repulsed by the body, which was "so ripe the officers couldn't put it in their car; they wrapped it in a plastic bag and tied it to the bumper."

He and other graduate students boiled the remains to the bone, carefully measured the skeleton, and concluded it was a young woman, who had apparently been murdered. Birkby doesn't remember if the killer was caught.

In cases in which a body is found mostly intact, police usually call in a forensic pathologist, a physician trained in crime-solving techniques. But if the body has decomposed and little is left but a skeleton, they increasingly turn to someone with a doctorate in physical anthropology.

"Other people may be better with flesh, but when it comes to bones, we're the experts," said Professor Alison Galloway, a forensic anthropologist at the University of Tennessee at Knoxville.

Forensic anthropologists can measure the width of pelvic bones to determine sex, use microscopic pieces of a thigh bone to calculate age, and make a clay model of a face based on the shape of the skull.

Dental records still are one of the surest ways to identify a body, but they often are not available. So Birkby and others developed skull-photo superimposition, in which they project a photograph of a missing person onto a skull to see whether it fits.

English becoming grave language

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — English-only advocates attempting to prevent the incursions from Spanish have nothing to fear about a changing cultural pattern, says a language researcher.

"The third and fourth generations of Spanish-speakers are assimilating into the English-speaking culture," said Scott Baird, a professor of English at Trinity University. "But they're also holding on to their mother tongue. Linguistically, it's mind-boggling."

For 10 years, Baird has researched inscriptions in South Texas cemeteries and has noted that Hispanic Texans increasingly place messages on gravestones in English, not Spanish.

As other non-English speaking immigrant groups — German, Czech, Polish, Chinese — settled in Texas, they began writing tombstone inscriptions in English.

But that's not happening on the graves of Spanish-speaking residents, Baird said. Instead, the number of bilingual tombstones has increased dramatically.

He said a "cultural cushion" of bilingual inscriptions extends 200 miles into Texas.

"Spanish is moving northward and English is holding its own in this 200-mile-wide cushion," he said. "It's a prime example of what linguists call a diglosic, a region where two languages live together."

To try to legislate the incursion of one language on another is useless, he said.

"It can't be legislated against and it can't be controlled," Baird said. "To try is just an exercise in wishful thinking."

In San Antonio, where Hispanics make up more than 50 percent of the population, San Fernando Cemetery No. 2 on the west side has been the final resting ground for a wide range of ethnic groups since 1924. In mortuary terminology, it is a "live cemetery" because there is still room for burials.

That cheery greeting from a Metro subway operator, booming from his train's public address speakers one recent Monday morning, drew rueful smiles from suburban commuters lurching shoulder-to-shoulder toward the start of another week in their downtown offices.

Shove a microphone in front of some people and they can't resist hamming it up. There's something about an open mike in the front cab of a commuter train, pulling a captive audience of several hundred passengers, that tempts subway operators to become amateur comedians and tour guides.

Officials of Washington's 70-mile Metro subway system frown on this light-hearted ad-libbing, but most passengers seem to enjoy it.

"Welcome, all first-time riders and visitors to Washington," said one operator as his train swooped down from the Virginia river bank toward the District of Columbia. "You are now 35 feet below the Potomac River, so hold your breath!"

Another: "The next station is Smithsonian, home of the world's largest flying dinosaur." Passengers laughed and applauded when another announced the train's approach to George Washington University and — his voice dropping to an ominous Boris Karloff bass — "FOG-GY BOTTOM."

One operator on the Yellow Line route heading south across the wide Potomac notes that "this is NOT the place where George Washington threw the dollar across the river." He points out the Jefferson Memorial's cherry blossoms and the Pentagon ("the world's biggest office building"), and tells bad jokes all the way into suburban Alexandria, Va.

Metro spokeswoman Mary Bucklew says that among the transit system's 345 subway operators who haul passengers on more than 500,000 trips each day, only a handful of those at the controls indulge in good-humored patter.

They get a mixed reaction from passengers, she said.

Most complaints come from people who, "if they've had a rough day — or plan to have one — a little humor might hit them the wrong way," Ms. Bucklew said.

"It's like art," she said. "Some people find it entertaining, others find it irritating. We ask the operators to stick to the script, so to speak."

The 10-week training course for new subway operators includes three days of special coaching, with rehearsals using tape recorders, on making a few standard announcements over their microphones.

Cafe's fare no longer just same old grind

DICKSON CITY, Pa. (AP) — Coffee is $2 a cup, but it is not the prices that have residents of this northeastern Pennsylvania borough up in arms over Dad's Coffee Shop.

It's the topless waitresses serving the coffee.

About 1,100 of the borough's 6,700 residents signed a petition last month saying Dad's Coffee Shop "or any other enterprise of this obscene nature" should go.

Frank Siderowicz, who headed the petition drive, said "trashy-type people" frequented the coffee shop off Main Street in the borough just north of Scranton.

"This is a small-town atmosphere. We don't need this kind of clientele coming up to Dickson City," he said.

Thomas Wasley Jr. said he opened Dad's Coffee Shop on Feb. 15 to provide a bar-like atmosphere without alcohol to people 18-and-older.

"I see myself as a trendsetter," Wasley said. "You're not going to get smashed drinking coffee. It's an idea whose time has come."

But the borough has started legal action against Wasley, saying he violates the local zoning laws by providing entertainment without a special permit.

"He advertises the waitresses, not the coffee," said John Maholick, borough council president. "Where else do you pay $2 for a cup of coffee in a styrofoam cup, no refills?"

Wasley was given a cease and desist order April 19 citing the alleged zoning violation and a hearing has been set for May 25. He could be fined up to $500 a day.

Anthony P. Daniel, Lasley's attorney, said topless waitresses weren't providing entertainment at the coffee shop, which is open from 6 a.m. to midnight and serves food from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

"There's no dancing. There's no singing. ... They're simply waitresses," he said.

Daniel added that Dad's Coffee Shop is located in an area zoned "highway commercial," which he said allows entertainment.

At lunchtime on a recent weekday a dozen customers — 11 of them men — sat in chairs on both sides of the narrow wood counter in Dad's Coffee Shop, a dark room set between a pizza parlor and a Chinese restaurant.

A waitress who gave her name only as Kim served customers coffee, or simply sat on the counter and talked with them.

Wasley said the outfits — or lack of them — drew the customers, but the service kept them coming back.

"What I'm providing is excellent, excellent service: very friendly girls who will go over to a stranger and talk to them and make them feel like they belong," he said.

Dwayne Allison, 28, from nearby Clifford, said Dad's Coffee Shop was an alternative to bars.

"For people who choose not to drink, it's kind of like the bar without the booze," said Allison, ordering a black coffee and a $1.25 hamburger.

Wasley, 45, thought of the topless coffee shop after selling a go-go lounge he owned in nearby Mayfield last December.

SAN FRANCISCO — OK, admit it. How many times have you caught yourself singing:

"Oh, I'd love to be an Oscar Meyer wiener. That is what I'd truly love to be. 'Cause if I were an Oscar Meyer wiener, everyone would be in love with me."

"Everybody hates that term," says Mary Buffett. "Today, people call it things like 'sound design,' or 'scoring.' They say they don't want a jingle. But what they really want is a jingle."

The Buffetts know plenty about this stuff. Mary, and husband Peter, founded Independent Sound, one of San Francisco's leading producers of advertising "sound design." Their quest: to churn out the songs that make the whole world sing, as Barry Manilow, another highly successful (Kentucky Fried Chicken, McDonald's) jingle writer, might say.

Mary, 36, is a music industry veteran whose close association with record producer Phil Spector and singers Nino Tempo and April Stevens helped forge her career. She was seen in the film, "Tucker: A Man and His Dream," as one of a trio recording the Tucker automobile jingle; she recently launched her own vocal group, SFO, with her husband and Tom Nelson.

Peter — the 30-year-old son of famed industrialist Warren Buffett — is a successful New Age recording artist who has produced two albums: "The Waiting" and "One by One." His compositions have graced commercials for the California Milk Advisory Board, the United Way, U.S. Sprint, Ranier Beer and countless others.

So the Buffetts have plenty to say when asked (by us) to do an informal, completely subjective and just-for-judging of the best jingles of all times. Their answers:

■ "It's the Real Thing," for Coca-Cola.

Mary: "If I had to come up with one product that has had musical success over and over, I'd pick Coke. They've had this one, and 'I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing,' which was important, because that message went beyond advertising. And today there's 'Coke is it.'"

■ "The Heartbeat of America," for Chevrolet.

Peter: "Chevy's another company that's had a lot of good ones. What about 'See the U.S.A. in a Chevrolet'? That's great, upbeat, like a marching band. Don't forget, 'Baseball, hot dogs, apple pie and Chevrolet.' "

Mary: "'Heartbeat' is so good, I'm surprised they haven't released it as a single. An incredibly good musical genre they captured."

Mary: "The brilliance of this one is the same as the 'Rice-A-Roni, the San Francisco treat.' Not only do you remember the melody, you remember the lyrics. These companies are so associated with those tunes, they can't get away from them — even when they wanted to."

■ "You Deserve a Break Today," by Barry Manilow, for McDonald's.

Peter: "Their stuff always has this plastic-y quality. Burger King hasn't come close. They had 'Hold the pickle, hold the lettuce, special orders won't upset us.' Well, maybe that wasn't so bad..."

■ "Reach Out and Touch Someone," for AT&T.

■ "Plop, plop, fizz, fizz, oh, what a relief it is," for Alka Seltzer.

Meals on Wheels

Every working day, volunteers from all over Midland deliver meals to homebound, needy citizens. For many of these residents, this meal is their only source of food. But we are not reaching everyone. Many are still hungry. Though we continue to strive to meet the needs of our city's homebound, we need your financial assistance in order to serve more meals.

Forensics expert seeks truth about legendary cannibal

By MIKE FEINSILBER

WASHINGTON (AP) — To prove that old bones can still tell tales, plans are afoot to open a Colorado grave and establish whether five prospectors were eaten by the legendary Alferd G. Packer, or someone else, or not at all.

James Starrs, professor of law and forensic science at George Washington University's National Law Center, plans to lead an expedition for evidence that cannibalism was committed during that awful April in 1874.

Packer, a Union Army veteran, has stood accused in verse and mirth of killing the victims and eating their flesh. Packer said he killed one prospector, in self-defense, and he denied eating anyone.

So famous is the case that a cafeteria at the University of Colorado, and the one in the Department of Agriculture here, are named in Packer's honor, a mocking commentary on their culinary qualities.

Starrs, one of the nation's forensic experts, insists his purpose is scientific: to show how anthropology — the study of man, his customs, culture, and social relationships — can combine with archeology and pathology in solving crimes.

Even after 115 years, he said, the bones will tell if cannibalism occurred. "Any scraping of tissue of flesh should leave evidence on the bone," he said. The examination may even show whether the starving prospectors ate their shoeleather, as alleged.

The search will start July 17 at a grave at the foothills of the San Juan Mountains near Lake City, Colo.

The undertaking has a critic in Ervan F. Kushner, 74, an amateur historian and Packer defender. He calls Starrs' plans "macabre" and says, "I don't see the point of it."

Kushner, a retired judge and prosecutor from Paterson, N.J., is author of "Alferd G. Packer: Cannibal! Victim?"

"Mr. Starrs is a well-known forensics expert," Kushner said, "but what possible proof can there be found in the bones as to motive? If he enjoys digging in that beautiful scenery, that's a great place to dig, but how will it establish who struck the first blow?"

Some facts are known. Packer admitted killing Shannon Wilson Bell, one of the prospectors, but he said he acted out of self-defense, and claimed Bell had killed and cannibalized their fellow miners.

Kushner said Packer, too, may have stripped flesh from the corpses, but only for self-preservation.

But Starrs, a 30-year student of the case, said Packer "was a concerted and deliberate and long-term liar throughout the trial. His five-hour narration is filled with inconsistency and glaring falsehoods."

By Packer's account, an awesome snowstorm in the Colorado Rockies stranded the prospectors and left them starving for a month. So he took a rifle and set out to kill an animal.

Five days later, he returned empty-handed, only to find four of his fellows dead and the hunger-crazed Bell about to attack him with a hatchet, Packer told the authorities. He said he shot and killed Bell. He said some human remains were boiling in a stewpot.

He fled, was captured but escaped. Recaptured nine years later, he was tried for murder and sentenced to hang. He wasn't charged with cannibalism — it's not a crime — but the accusation hung in the air.

Starrs said he can put to rest as a bartender's fabrication an account that says presiding judge Melville B. Gerry, in sentencing Packer to hang, bemoaned that there had been only seven Democrats in all of Hinsdale County "and ye ate five of 'em!"

The Colorado Supreme Court set aside the conviction because the legislature had repealed the death sentence during the time Packer was a fugitive.

Retried for manslaughter, Packer was sentenced to 40 years and paroled after 17. He died in 1907, still proclaiming innocence of murder.

In 1981, Kushner petitioned Richard D. Lamm, then the governor of Colorado, to pardon Packer posthumously. Lamm wouldn't.

MIDLAND COLLEGE

About 600 persons enjoyed a day of entertainment, visiting, barbecue, and even free glaucoma testing at Midland College's annual "Senior Citizens' Appreciation Day" last Tuesday in Chaparral Center. If you didn't attend, you should make a note now to take part next year. It's all free and 100 percent delightful.

The college conducts its 16th annual Commencement Ceremonies in the Chap Center this evening at 7 p.m. with Dr. George Miller, president of Amarillo College, as the guest speaker. Almost 200 students are candidates for degrees. The ceremony is free and you are invited to attend.

Sunday at 3 p.m. in Dennis the Menace Park, the Midland College Jazz Ensemble presents its traditional Mother's Day concert. Dr. Don Grant directs the group as it presents traditional jazz numbers, plus some contemporary tunes. It's free, so bring your lawn chairs and enjoy!

Starting Monday, the college starts its summer operating hours of 7 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday for its offices. A two-week interim session begins Monday. Students will be in classes from 8 a.m.-12 noon through June 1 in order to earn three credit hours. It's a tough schedule, but a good way to get an extra class completed in a hurry. Registration is at 8 a.m. Monday in the Allison Fine Arts Building auditorium. Early counseling and issuance of time permits for the first Summer Session continues next week in the Student Services Office, Administration Building. Hours are 7 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Time permits may be obtained through Monday, May 22. Registration will be held Thursday, May 25, and classes start Tuesday, May 30.

A hint: if you have never taken college classes and are thinking about coming to MC in the fall, you should enroll this summer. The reason is that any person who has received credit for a transferrable college course will not have to take the TASP test in the future. The TASP (Texas Academic Skills Program) exam goes into effect this fall. You can obtain information about courses being offered during the two summer terms by calling 685-4501.

Senior—Serenade

More than 600 people were entertained Tuesday during a special day in honor of area senior citizens. Midland College hosted its 14th annual Senior Citizens Appreciation Day, and judging from the enthusiasm of the audience, it was a big success.

"I thought it was a great day," commented Wilma Odom. "It shows that seniors have a lot of fun." In addition to enjoying the activities of the day, Mrs. Odom also played drums with the Midland Senior Center's Kitchenette Symphony

Sponsored by the Midland College Continuing Education Department, the celebration at Chaparral Center included singing, dancing, door prizes and a lunch for the participants.

Highlights for the day included music by the Midland Senior Center Kitchenette Symphony, the Martin County Soreheads Band, the Spring City Hot Potato Band, the Scurry County Senior Center Sunshine Choir, and singing and Mexican folk dancing by seniors from Midland's Casa de Amigos.

"Today is strictly entertainment and recognition of senior citizens," said H.A. Tuck, director of public relations for Midland College. "This is something Midland College started very early to recognize the pioneers in this area," added Tuck. "It gives senior center groups an opportunity to perform outside their community, and it gives them a chance to mingle with others."

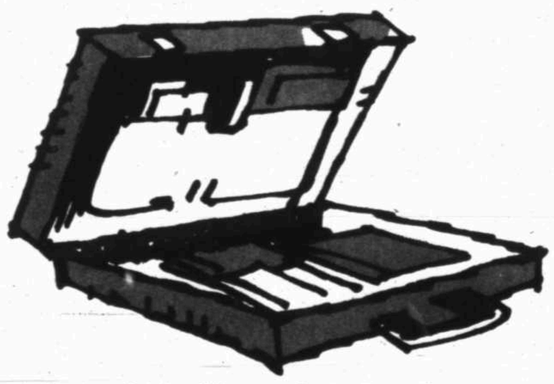
WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

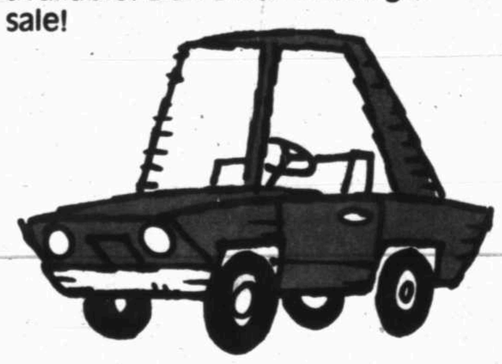
1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!



2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative. Run your ad for at least one week, or use our special rate.

Remember, you can cancel your ad as soon as you get the desired results!

DEATHS

Mike McClaren

Services for Mike McClaren have been set for 4 p.m. today at St. Stephen's Catholic Church with the Rev. Robert Kelly officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died early Friday at a local hospital.

McClaren was born March 30, 1942, in Fort Worth, and moved to Midland with his family in 1948. In 1960 he graduated from Midland High School, and earned a degree in speech broadcasting from the University of Oklahoma in 1965. He also attended the University of Dallas and Texas Tech University.

In 1967, he returned to Midland where he joined KNFM and was a partner on the morning show with Max Howard. He also worked for KMID-TV as a promotion director. In 1978 he moved to California and returned to Midland in 1981. He joined the Womack-Claypool-Griffin advertising firm in Odessa, then worked for KOSA-TV. He later returned to KMND.

McClaren was involved with the Midland Community Theater and had several leading roles, including "Greater Tuna," and was on the board of Community Concerts. He won the only national Addy advertising award ever presented in the Permian Basin.

Survivors include his father, Fred McClaren of Harahan; his mother, Rosemary C. Collyer of Midland; a brother, John McClaren of New Orleans, La.; a sister, Kathleen Thompson of Dallas; four nieces and two nephews.

Mattie Sue Harben

Services for Mattie Sue Logan Harben have been set for 3:30 p.m. Saturday at Greenwood Chapel in Fort Worth with Carl Owens officiating. Interment will follow at the Greenwood Cemetery under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Born Nov. 1, 1903, in Bowie, she was raised in Bluff Dale. She attended Tarleton State College in Stephenville. She married Nathaniel J. Harben in 1922 in Bluff Dale, and they lived in New York City, Atlanta, Ga., and Marshall, before moving to Fort Worth in 1942. Harben died in 1986, and Mrs. Harben moved to Midland to be family.

Survivors include two sons, James L. Harben of Midland and Dr. Robert M. Harben of El Paso; a daughter, Mrs. James P. (Natalie) Murphy of Midland; seven grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and numerous nieces and nephews.

Mildred Thompson

AUSTIN — Services for Mrs. Ted R. (Mildred) Thompson of Austin, formerly of Midland, will be at 1 p.m. today at the Assumption Cemetery.

Mrs. Thompson was born Jan. 15, 1903, in Oklahoma Indian Territory and was graduated from Mount Carmel Academy in Wichita, Kan.

She was preceded in death by her husband; a daughter, Dr. Ann Harris; and a grandson, James B. Thompson.

Survivors include a son, Dr. Ted B. Thompson of Baton Rouge, La.; a daughter-in-law, Yvonne K. Thompson of Midland; seven grandsons and 11 great-grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests that memorials be directed to the American Cancer Society.

Mattie Sue Childress

Mattie Sue Wise Childress of Midland have been set for 1 p.m. Monday at the Ellis Funeral Home chapel with the Rev. J.B. Stewart officiating. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of the Ellis Funeral Home.

Audubon born in Haiti

American artist and naturalist John James Audubon was born in Haiti on April 26, 1785.
