Applications Filed To Secure Buildings From Camp Howze

Muenster has fair prospects of acquiring several buildings from Camp Howze, Mayor J.M. Weinzaepfel stated this week. He has a communication from the Dallas office of the War Assets Administration advising that some buildings applied for are covered by prior applications and requesting that other buildings be selected and application filed. "By inference", Weinzaepfel said, "we can assume our other applications have been approved, however no direct assurance that that effect has been received."

Three of the buildings are intended for the public school, two for the hospital association, one for the soil conservation group and one for the VFW post, the latter, if acquired, will be one of the camp's chapels set up here as a memorial to Muenster's war dead.

The school wants buildings to serve as bus sheds and a repair shop. The hospital association is considering using its two buildings to begin its service rather than wait until the permanent structure is complete and later to use the frame buildings for nurses' quarters, storage houses or any other purpose the directors approve. The soil conservation group plans to convert its building into an office.

Naturally we'd have to take a few jolts in changing from one system to another. No major economic conversion can be made smoothly. But reason demands that the change be made some time. So why not now? If the whole country would try to realize that, and settle down to serious business, the strain would not last long.

Our real trouble is that organizations like the CIO—more correctly, the Reds dominating the CIO—still refuse to cooperate in restoring a proper balance. They insist on control until the supply is adequate but won't help to increase the supply. They want higher wages but no increase in prices. Their policies are a hundred per cent selfish.

The compromise OPA bill is a blot on our nation's reputation. Not necessarily on the Senate, because in its judgment the present unsettled state of affairs required more emergency legislation. But it is a blot on the reputation of our people, because we have had plenty of time to get peace-time commodities flowing smoothly. By now dealers ought to be getting as many items as they did before the war. Even more, considering the nation's increased productive capacity. Instead we have a mere trickle, and the reason is obvious.

Strikes, one after the other paralyzed industry. Higher pay demands for less work brought on further complication. Had labor been satisfied with the old rate and put in more hours its income would have been higher and goods would have been rolling out in a steady stream, with no increases of unit cost. Everybody would have been better off. Under a sensible policy we would, by this time, have reached the stage where competition could take the place of price control. The entire nation, including organized labor, can blame the labor bosses for our delay and loss in getting adjusted.

The thought of how we, as a nation, permitted greedy and golden opportunity is enough to subvert radicals to spoil a make us hang our heads in shame. At the end of the war the demand for commodities was enormous. People needed things and had more money than ever before with which to buy them. Possibilities for working were almost unlimited. We could have employed every person willing to work for long hours at a good wage. Instead we have no commodities. And we have less buying power because so many people had to cut into their savings while they were idle. Ironically, the class that took the worst beating is organized labor. They trusted the radicals, and look where they are.

This isn't high powered economic theory dished out by the "vested interests," as labor bosses like to contend. It is the kind of elementary common sense on which our country's greatness was built and which is still availed by farmers, business men and independent workers. When work piles up they simply

JOE TRACHTA'S KNEE BROKEN IN AFFRAY ACROSS THE RIVER

J.C. Trachta is in a Denton hospital suffering from a broken knee as a result of an affray at a tavern on Highway 77 in Oklahoma last Sunday night. He sustained the injury when he was pushed out of a door and struck his knee on the edge of concrete steps.

According to his companion, Miss Isabell Walterscheid, Trachta was accosted by several persons who said they wished to speak to him outside. When he showed reluctance to comply, one pushed him outside. The injury resulted when he stumbled on the threshold.

The identity of the assailants is not known but it is believed they are the same persons who were involved in a tavern altercation about two weeks ago. Neither Trachta nor she knew them, Miss Walterscheid said.

At Trachta's request he was taken directly to a bone specialist at Denton. It was said that an operation will be performed as soon as the swelling subsides and the injured knee will then be placed in a cast. After that it will be six to eight weeks before Trachta can get around, using the injured leg.

'Ready To Wear' For Ladies And Children Opens About Aug. 15

Another new business for Muenster is scheduled to open about August 15. Mrs. Adolph Herr, owner, disclosed this week. The Charm Shop, featuring women's and children's ready to wear, is the name of the new business.

While Mrs. Herr is to be owner of the business and its general manager, she will not be in the shop, having turned the actual operation over to Mrs. B.H. Schumacher.

The shop will occupy the former Bill's Cafe building which is this week being remodeled and redecorated throughout. Shelves and other store fixtures are to be installed.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Felderhoff were in Dallas last Thursday visiting at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Jos. Danglmayr.

Local School Can Qualify For Course Under GI Program

Possibilities of instituting vocational agriculture classes in Muenster under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights were encouraged here Monday by County Superintendent Randolph O'Brien.

He disclosed that a Cooke County School for Veterans, sponsored by the county board of education has been approved with Elaine Shaw, former Gainesville High School teacher and veteran, as coordinator.

Present plans call for classes to be conducted at Gainesville, Valley View and Era. Those three schools were selected as original centers because they have facilities available for the courses in their vocational agriculture departments.

Muenster also can qualify for the course if it provides necessary equipment, engages an instructor and secures sufficient enrollment. The entire program is conducted under provisions of the GI Bill of Rights, the government paying tuition expenses and compensating students for their time spent in class.

Classes will be conducted at night to avoid interference with scheduled daily work in the school and also permit veterans to continue their regular jobs or farm work.

P-TA LADIES CAN 85 GALLONS OF PEACHES FOR LUNCH PROGRAM

Members of the Sacred Heart School P-TA gathered at the parish hall Friday to can Elberta peaches for the P-TA school lunch program. The day's activity resulted in 85 gallons of the canned fruit.

Assisting with the work were Mesdames Rudy Hellman, E. P. Buckley, George Mollenkopf, Frank Bayer, Herman Swirczynski, John Haverkamp, Alois Haverkamp, Ben Luke, T.S. Myrick, Clem Reiter, Clem Hofbauer, Joe Swirczynski, Ben Sickling, John Grewing, Ted Gremminger, Joe Hoenig and Martin Friske and Misses Alvina Derisweiler, Virginia Walterscheid and Patsy Gremminger.

Mrs. Carra Paez spent Friday to Monday in Burkholder visiting her sister, Mrs. J.N. Anthony.

REQUESTS ON FILE FOR MORE THAN 150 HOWZE BUILDINGS

Dallas. — Applications for more than 150 buildings at Camp Howze, Gainesville, have been received from priority holders, Harry L. Holliday, regional War Assets Administrator said, as the deadline for filing by claimants was reached.

Holliday said that awards of the buildings would be made within the next thirty days, and that the contract for demolition of the balance of the camp would be let very shortly. Those priority claimants awarded buildings will do their own demolishing, he added.

Federal Public Housing Authority claimed 95 buildings for veteran housing, while non-profit institutions applied for 51. In addition there were six requests for chapels, four intended for Dallas and two for Gainesville. Barracks, administration buildings, and recreation halls were requested by the priority claimants which included several colleges and public schools in north Texas.

Shop Department Of Kaiser-Meurer Bldg. Leased By Ed Pels

Business begins next Thursday, August 1, at the new Kaiser-Meurer building which is nearing completion this week. Ed Pels, who has spent the past ten years as a mechanic for Ben Seyler, has leased the shop department of the building and set up an automobile, truck and tractor repair business.

The remainder of the building, to be used as the local agency for the Kaiser-Frazer line of cars and other equipment, will be opened as soon as units are available for sale, according to the owners of the building.

For a while Pels will operate his shop alone, planning to add help if and when need arises. He also says that he will specialize in mechanical work, and not attempt to do body repairing.

Final touches on the inside of the building are now under way and unless interrupted by unexpected difficulties will be completed before August 1. Some of the exterior work will probably continue after Pels occupies the building.

STATE HIGH SCHOOLS TO OFFER COURSES IN PROPER DRIVING

Dallas. — Dr. L.A. Woods, state superintendent of public instruction, has announced that in September 286 Texas high schools will begin courses in driver education.

Woods said a minimum of 25,000 high school students will have an opportunity to take the instruction.

"In our Texas youth lies our greatest hope for a solution of the mounting traffic accident problem," he said.

ARMY DONATES TEN RIFLES TO VFW POST

Ten regulation army Springfield rifles were received this week by the Muenster post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The guns were donated by the Chief of Ordnance of the U.S. Army in response to a request submitted shortly after the post was organized several months ago. This completes equipment for the post's honor guard for participation in military funerals, memorial services or other official ceremonies.

FIREMEN REPRESENTED AT FIVE-DAY SPECIAL COURSE

Elmer Fette and Gerald Stelzer were at A & M College last week attending the annual five-day firemen's training school which opened July 15. Approximately 500 Texas firemen attended the classes. Class lectures in approved fire fighting and prevention methods and field demonstrations filled each day's schedule. Examinations were held Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Rebentish of Dallas visited relatives here Tuesday and on their homeward drive were accompanied by L.A. Bernauer and stopped at Fort Worth for a visit with Mrs. L.A. Bernauer who is recovering from a foot operation performed in that city. Mr. Bernauer remained overnight and Wednesday as the guest of his nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stelzer.

Valley Creek Pupils May Be Transferred To Muenster School

Trustees of the Muenster and Valley Creek school districts are now considering the feasibility of transporting the entire Valley Creek enrollment to Muenster during the next school term, Herbert Meurer, secretary of the Muenster board, disclosed this week.

Two joint meetings of the boards have been held during the past week and their decision will probably be announced within the next few days.

The proposal originated with the Valley Creek trustees who feel that their small enrollment of about 30 scholars is not sufficient to maintain an adequate course. If it is carried out they will transfer per capita allotments and pay the estimated cost of transporting the children.

While desirous of accommodating their neighbors and also increasing their own enrollment the Muenster trustees are cautious not to make an agreement until they feel certain they can handle the situation satisfactorily. The daily drive through a portion of the Valley Creek district and then to Muenster is a long one and some of the roads are bad, especially for a bus large enough to carry 30 children.

According to Meurer, both groups are anxious to arrive at some workable agreement, hence it is probable that the Valley Creek pupils will enroll here for the next school term.

The sisters are occupying a double room.

RAY WILDE MARRIES MARCELLA SCHMITZ AT LINDSAY TUESDAY AM

Rites of elaborate simplicity were performed Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock in Saint Peter's church at Lindsay to unite Miss Marcella Schmitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schmitz of that city, and Ray Wilde, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Wilde of Muenster. A large number of relatives and friends witnessed the double ring ceremony performed by the pastor, Rev. Conrad Herda, who also officiated at the nuptial high mass.

Music was provided by the church choir with Mrs. Wm. Fleitman, organist, as accompanist. She also played the traditional wedding processional and recessional. Flowers and greenery made up the decorative setting for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white brocaded summer satin. A sheer yoke of marquisette, edged in ruffled satin, featured a high neckline and the sleeves were long and fitted, terminating into points over the hands. The full skirt, topped with a tiny ruffled peplum, fell from a fitted waist, and extended into a long, graceful train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a white prayer book topped with a cluster of white gladiolas. She also carried a pearl rosary, a gift from the bridegroom brought with him from overseas. It was purchased in Italy and was blessed by the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII, while Mr. Wilde was in audience with him. As a bit of sentiment, and for something "old and borrowed" the bride wore a handsome gold cross and chain belonging to her aunt, Mrs. Joe Bezner.

Attendants for the bride were the bridegroom's two sisters, Misses Gladys and Laurie Wilde, who chose identical dresses of maize marquisette fashioned with pointed basque bodices and bouffant skirts. They wore maize open-crowned picture hats and carried colonial bouquets of white carnations.

Freddie and Johnnie Schmitz, brothers of the bride, attended the groom, and Hubert and James Bezner were ushers.

Little Gene Louis Eberhart, cousin of the groom, was ring bearer and little Miss Joyce Corcoran of Los Angeles, Calif., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length dress of white and a white veil.

The bride's mother was attired in a navy blue mesh costume with navy and black accessories and a pink carnation corsage. The groom's mother wore gray mesh with navy and white accessories and a white carnation corsage, and the groom's grandmother, Mrs. John Eberhart, wore a black ensemble with a pink carnation corsage. Men of the wedding party wore white carnation boutonnières.

Immediately after the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party and parents of the couple in the Wilde home. A color theme of white and maize was accented and the table was laid with a lace cloth centered with an arrangement of snapdragons and marigolds on a silver tray.

At noon dinner was served in the home of the bride's parents to immediate members of the families. The bride's colors were carried out throughout the home and the table was laid with a white linen cloth and was centered with a three-tiered, decorated cake.

At four o'clock a reception was held in the Lindsay community hall and a buffet supper was served to more than 150 guests. A dance concluded the day's festivities.

THE POCKETBOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

By PILGRIM

After the dance Mr. and Mrs. Wilde left by car on a wedding trip to Colorado. For traveling the bride wore a melon colored suit accented by white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. When they return they will make their home in Muenster in the east part of the city.

The bride is a native of Lindsay and a graduate of Lindsay High school with the class of 1944. Prior to her marriage she was employed in Dallas. Mr. Wilde is a native of Muenster and a graduate of the Sacred Heart High school, and of St. Mary's University, San Antonio, with the class of 1943. He served with a medical unit of the U.S. Army during the war and spent 16 months of his three years in the ETO. He is business manager of the Muenster Cooperative Hospital Association.

Among out of town relatives at the ceremony in addition to those from Cooke county were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Meurer of Windthorst; Leo Bezner, Hereford; Mrs. Charles Corcoran and three children, Los Angeles, Calif.; Merchant Seamen Rufus Bezner and Johnnie Schmitz, San Francisco, Calif.; and Mr. and Mrs. King Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schmitz and daughters, Misses Berenice, Margie, Florene and Mrs. R.O. Sullivan, and Donald Schmitz, and J.T. Lynch, all of Dallas.

Miss Lorinda Morbitzer of Scotland spent Sunday here with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs.

Tony Gremminger, and Monday, accompanied by her cousin, Dolores Gremminger, left for Houston to spend three weeks with an aunt Mrs. Margaret Rasch, and children, Gretchen and Hans. They will accompany the girls back to Muenster at the end of their visit when she takes her annual vacation.

360 PEDESTRIANS WILL BE KILLED THIS YEAR

Austin — This year approximately 360 Texans will "walk themselves to death," predicts the Texas Safety Association. For the most part, they will walk with the traffic and will come from behind parked cars to be struck down. Others will meet death while crossing at intersections against the signal and while crossing diagonally across the street. These predictions are based on totals for the first six months of the current year in consideration of newly developing tendencies in the pedestrian accident field.

Pedestrian fatalities increase around the hour of sunset in all seasons of the year. The greatest number during the summer months is between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. The Saturday and Sunday toll constitutes approximately 50 per cent of the total pedestrian accidents.

Health Officer Advises Girls to Consider Nursing When Re-entering School

Austin, Texas. — Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, is appealing to young women high school graduates to seriously consider the public health nursing profession as a career, when re-entering school this fall.

"Public health nursing offers young women opportunities for lifetime careers which are highly useful and satisfactory. Demands for professional nurses now exceed the supply in public health and other fields of work," Dr. Cox said. "Possibilities of travel, varied experience, income, and other features of the profession compare very favorably with those open to women in other careers."

Prerequisite training in public health nursing includes a 36 month course including vacations. Medical, surgical, obstetric, pediatric, psychiatric and communicable disease nursing are studied. Completion of courses entitles the individual to the diploma of the School and to take State Board Examinations leading to the R.

Annual Soil Loss On Trinity Watershed Almost 7 Million

(Editor's note: This is the third of a series of nine articles discussing the Trinity watershed flood control program, authorized by Congress in the 1944 Flood Control Act for post-war operations in soil conservation districts with federal assistance provided through the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture. The articles were prepared by Louis P. Merrill, regional conservator of the Soil Conservation Service, of Fort Worth.)

Since the beginning of cultivation 50 to 75 years ago, approximately 1,900,000 acre-feet of soil have been eroded from the uplands of the Trinity River watershed. Today the damage resulting from erosion and excessive rainfall run-off costs rural and urban people in excess of $6,800,000 every year.

How much is 1,900,000 acre-feet of soil? What caused it to be moved? Where did it go? What effect has this erosion had on the lands and people of the Trinity watershed?

An acre-foot of soil is an area of one acre covered to a depth of one foot by soil, and nothing short of astronomical figures can be used to picture the 1,900,000 acre-feet of earth already washed from the Trinity uplands. It would take one and a half billion trucks, each of two cubic yards capacity, to haul that much earth and a solid line of these trucks would reach 210 times around the earth at the equator. Water not trucks, has taken the soil from the Trinity uplands.

ALLAN SHIVERS IS FULLY QUALIFIED

Senator Allan Shivers is the only candidate for lieutenant governor who has the experience and qualifications that are so badly needed to properly preside over the Texas Senate, the lieutenant governor's chief function. Allan Shivers gained this experience through 12 years of service as a senator, interrupted only by two years overseas duty with the Army. He is also the only war veteran seeking the lieutenant governor's office.

Uncontrolled run-off permitted by improper farming practices and unwise land use is responsible. Therein lies the direct relationship between erosion on the uplands and ever-increasing floods on the big and little streams.

And the rate of erosion and run-off is increasing. Agricultural Experiment Stations have proved that once erosion has begun, the rate of loss is accelerated. Today the annual rate of soil loss on the Trinity watershed is 62,000 acre-feet annually.

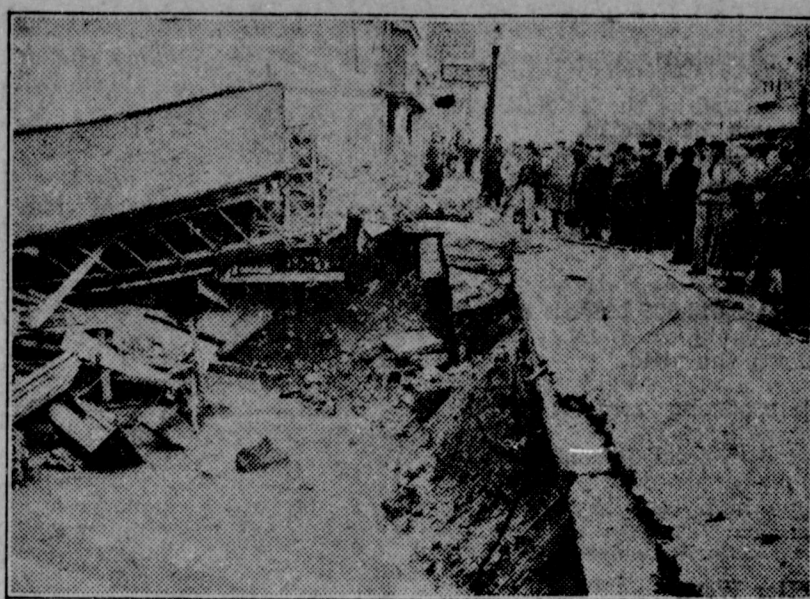

In all sections of the watershed, farming has been attempted on steep and highly erodible slopes. Clearing and planting of these slopes started destructive erosion. Many fields were cultivated up and down the slope, causing twice as much sheet erosion and run-off as on contour-cultivated fields. Continuous cultivation of shallow-rooted, widely-spaced crops has lowered fertility. Eroded soils offer little resistance to erosion and absorb less rainfall than good soils.

Much of the Trinity pasture and range is in poor condition. Overgrazing has been the greatest factor responsible for high run-off rates and soil losses from pastured areas.

Soil and flood protection once afforded by woodlands in the watershed has diminished greatly. Burning, over-cutting and overgrazing have destroyed rainfall-absorbing litter, reduced the protection that could be afforded by foliage, and packed the exposed soil. Annual burning of woodlands increases water losses 27 times, and soil losses 12 times, experiments have shown.

Damage caused by erosion and uncontrolled run-off is far-reaching, stretching from the uppermost tributaries of the watershed to Galveston Bay where the Trinity spills its muddy waters. Directly or indirectly the cost of this total annual damage, amounting to $6,862,000 — exclusive of damages on the flood plain to be protected by existing and proposed reservoirs — is borne by all the people within the Trinity basin. Farmers, however, pay the heaviest share of this cost. Loss of any part of the topsoil reduces the productivity of a field, a pasture or a woodland and in turn reduces net farm income. Erosion and soil depletion already have occurred to such an extent that annual total net farm income has been lowered by $5,589,000. On the basis of normal prices for farm products, this decline in net farm income will increase each year by $430,000 until the land is abandoned or protective measures are applied.

Associated with declining farm incomes are many other losses which, although intangible, are none the less significant," says a report on the Trinity which was prepared before the World War II upturn in farm prices. "The decline in farm prosperity has directly affected the incomes of many urban industries which depend on the agriculture of the Property damage caused by a flood on Marine Creek in the Stockyards of North Fort Worth. The stream flows into the Trinity River. Damage to property alone, not counting the loss in productive soil in upstream farms, amounted to more than $1,000,000. The flood was in April, 1942.

percent in the entire state during this period." But the cost of erosion and excessive run-off does not end with damage to the land where soil and water losses occur. Erosion debris — rocks, gravel, sand, and watershed either for a source of raw materials or for a market outlet. Furthermore, decline in taxable values, delinquency of taxes, and increased debt have curtailed public services in these areas. The decline in the assessed valuation of all property in the watershed amounted to 12 percent during the 1929 to 1938 period as compared with a decline of 2

NO STARCH NEEDED

You won't sing the wash day blues quite so loudly if your cotton dresses, aprons and such are Kanderized. No starch is needed because the new treatment gives a permanent finish to cotton fabrics that repeated washing or dry cleaning will not affect. Chemistry gets the credit for this one. Wearing a Kanderized dress, the model above demonstrates how the process is applied at the time of manufacture.

subsoil — is spread across fertile bottomlands, fills stream channels, is deposited in lakes and reservoirs, or is carried into Galveston Bay to silt up navigation channels and create conditions unfavorable to fish and oysters.

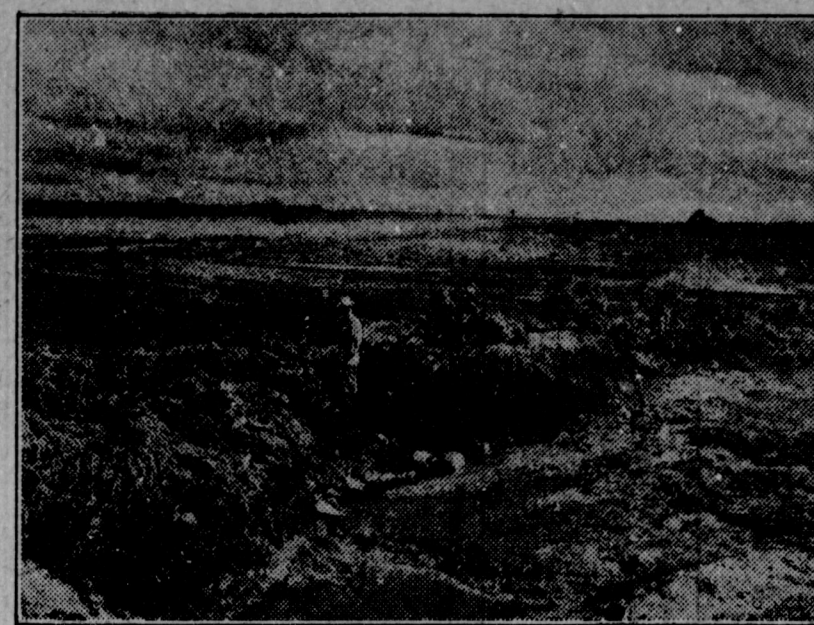

Nearly 117,000 acres of valuable flood-plain lands have been damaged by deposits of coarse materials eroded from the uplands.

Blocking the tributary channels by eroded material prepares the way for heavy damage to valley lands during major floods and increases the frequency of minor floods. Big Brushy Creek, Montague County tributary of Deton Creek, is an extreme example. Its channel is plugged with silt for a distance of 20 miles and, as a result, the entire creek valley flood-plain of 12,800 acres probably has lost half of its value because of more frequent flooding.

Of 21 reservoirs in the Trinity watershed, two small lakes already have been filled with sediment to the extent they are no longer usable for water supply, and the remaining 19 are being damaged to the extent of $140,000 annually through loss in storage capacity. Sixteen of the existing reservoirs are used for water supply, and the damage to them from sedimentation is estimated at $61,000 annually.

The damage to reservoirs from sedimentation is calculated only on their continued use for municipal and industrial water supplies," the report says. "However, four of the reservoirs — Bridgeport, Eagle Mountain, Dallas, and Mountain Creek — are large enough to play an important part in flood control."

Excessive run-off that carries erosion debris to lowlands, stream channels and reservoirs is responsible for floods which cause an annual damage of $113,000 exclusive of damage on the flood plain to be protected by the proposed Army reservoirs. Of this total flood damage, 86 percent is agricultural, and the remainder is damage to public highways, railroads, and urban residential and municipal areas.

Above Dallas, floods on the tributaries of the Trinity occur at irregular intervals, but have averaged one a year over a 15-year period. Below Dallas, the frequency of flooding increases progressively downstream, with some tributaries flooding three to eight times a year.

(The fourth of this series will discuss the post-war Trinity program authorized by Congress in the 1944 Flood Control Act.)

Political Proposition

The opening of a new political campaign found Chauncey Depew in fine fettle, ready for the battle. One of his leading opponents met him privately and said: "Now Mr. Depew, can't we carry on this campaign on a high level? Can't we dispense with mud slinging?"

Depew quickly replied: "Yes, sir, that's a mighty good idea! I'm glad you mentioned it! Now, if you'll refrain from telling any lies about my party and its platform, I'll give you my word of honor that I'll not tell the truth about your party and its platform. Will you go on that fair proposition?"

—A three and a half inch rain which fell in an hour during May, 1942, washed this soil from a cotton field to the bottomlands. The scene was a common one all along the Trinity watershed.

A Decalogue On 'Getting Along'

A decalogue on human relations recently appeared in the press with no identity as to the author. This does not lessen its value as a protocol in dealing with fellow travelers along life's way. Experience has revealed that a tolerant, even spirit is an essential asset in living peaceably with our fellow men. Here is the decalogue:

1. Keep skid chains on your tongue; always say less than you think. Cultivate a low, persuasive voice. How you say it often counts more than what you say.
2. Make promises sparingly and keep them faithfully, no matter what it costs you.
3. Never let an opportunity pass to say a kind and encouraging word to or about somebody. Praise good work done, regardless of who did it. If criticism is needed, criticize helpfully, never spitefully.
4. Be interested in others: interested in their pursuits, their welfare, their homes and families.

Make merry with those that rejoice; with those who weep, mourn. Let everyone you meet, however humble, feel that you regard him as one of importance.

5. Be careful. Keep the corners of your mouth turned up. Hide your pains, worries and disappointments under a smile. Laugh at good stories, and learn to tell them.

6. Preserve an open mind on all debatable questions. Deliberate, but not argue. It is a mark of superior minds to disagree and yet be friendly.

7. Let your virtues, if you have any, speak for themselves, and refuse to talk of another's vices. Discourage gossip. Make it a rule to say nothing of another unless it is something good.

8. Be careful of another's feelings. Wit and humor at the other fellow's expense are rarely worth the effort, and may hurt where least expected.

9. Pay no attention to ill-natured remarks about you. Simply live that nobody will believe them. Disordered nerves and a bad digestion are a common cause of backbiting.

10. Don't be too anxious about your dues. Do your work, be patient and keep your disposition sweet, forget self, and you will be rewarded.

Kept Their Mouths Shut
In the warm June sunshine we stood talking to a Vermonter in a peaceful valley of green maples and tidy white houses.

"We like Vermont so much we'd like to live here!" I said enthusiastically.

"Why?"
"Because — well, it's beautiful and clean and we like the people — they seem to be such good people."

"Don't let that fool you," advised the Vermonter. "There's as much old-fashioned sinnin' goin' on in Vermont as anywhere. But the folks here have sense enough to keep their mouths shut about it!"

Music to His Ears

I was waiting impatiently for my train at the Port Dix station, just discharged after almost three years overseas, when two white-haired women sat down beside me and started to gossip at a lively clip. As this was the first gossip I had heard for years, it was music to my ears, and I listened so intently that one of the women at last turned and glared at me: "Young man, I hope you are enjoying our conversation!"

I hastily apologized and explained. She nodded approvingly. "Keep listening," she said. "We haven't come to the best part yet. Wait till we begin discussing that hussy, Mrs. Johnson!"

Obviously

Wife—"I can't decide whether to go to a palmist or to a mind reader."

Husband—"Go to the palmist. It's obvious that you have a palm."

"I won't get married until I find a girl like the one grandpa married."

"Huh? They don't have women like that today."

"That's funny! Grandpa only married her yesterday."

Prospective Father-in-law
"Young man, are you sure you can support a family?"

Suitor—"Well, no, sir, I was just planning to support your daughter. The rest of you will have to shift for yourselves."

"How dare you swear before my wife?"

"I'm sorry, sir. I didn't know she wanted to swear first."

Delayed, But Just Wait
Black Cindy was just starting on a huge slice of watermelon when word came that her husband had been blown up in a powder mill. She crammed the 'suspicious pink slice into her mouth as the daughter of the employer, 3-year-old Dorothy, asked curiously, "But, Cindy, aren't you sorry?"

Sooner or Later
Jimmie, age five, was asked by his playmate Jessie to come in the house though he told his mother he didn't want to. "Well, what did you go in her house for if you didn't want to?" "Well," said the wise Jimmie, "you have to begin minding a woman some time, don't you?"

Between Friends
"How do you succeed so well in getting back the books you lend?" a thoughtful young professor was asked. "Simple enough," replied the young man. "In each book I lend I write this message: 'I like you, so I loaned you this book. If you like me, you'll return it.'" so I loaned you this book. If you like me, you'll return it."

Said a Mouthful
An applicant for a driver's license in Grand Rapids, falling in the written examination, explained that he had just purchased a new set of teeth and "couldn't read because he couldn't pronounce the words."

Some "Woim"
A Brooklyn soldier on maneuvers in Oregon took a walk in the woods and returned a little later with some rattlesnake rattles. "Where in the world did you get them?" gasped his alarmed companions. The boy from Brooklyn beamed broadly: "Off'n a woim."

Elderly lady lunching in cafe — "This rhubarb seems very stringy." Waiter (Politely) — "Have you tried eating it with your veil up?"

Missing Fixture
"Where's your rear light?" demanded the traffic cop. The driver climbed down from his cab and walked to the back of his truck. He peered in all directions for a second or two, and then stood scratching his head. "Well, what about it?" demanded the cop, extracting his notebook. "I dunno, I had a—"

"Now, you can't tell me that tale," remarked the officer, grimly. "Anybody can see you haven't had a light 'ere, because there's no bracket."

"Yes," said the driver, "but look here—"

"No good making excuses," said the cop. "You've no light and that's that."

"That's not what I'm worrying about," answered the driver sadly. "What I'd like to know is—where in the world is my trailer?"

A Precious Load
When a huge transport trailer was weaving suspiciously along an Illinois highway, a deputy sheriff was rushed to the scene. The overhauled driver explained: "Sure, I was doing a bit of zig-zag driving. You know how the trees hang over the road? Well, I wasn't taking any chances of scraping the paint off my cargo." He pointed at his cargo of four shining new automobiles.

Drugged
They laid him out on the station floor, and the cop who brought him in stood by while the doctor examined him. Finally the doctor arose and said: "That man's been drugged." The cop went white and shivered. "That's right sir. It's my fault, I drug him six blocks."

It Depended
Judge — "You say you have known this defendant all your life. Then tell the jury if you think he would be guilty of stealing this money?" Witness — "Now much was it?"

MUESTER HAS FIRST ARTIFICIAL BREEDING ASSOCIATION IN TEXAS

Three artificial breeding associations have been established in Texas and several others are in the process of organization according to G.G. Gibson, dairy husbandman for the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. Membership in the association totals 50 dairymen who own more than 2500 cows.

First artificial breeding association to be organized in the state is in Cooke County. This group has been operating for nearly a year, and its first calves dropped in February, 1946. Since then, associations have been formed in Wharton and McLennan counties and now are in operation.

A look at the records of other states shows the success of the practice, Gibson says. Last year 350,000 cows were owned by members of 185 associations in the nation. Dairymen see this form of service as a means of improving the quality of herd replacements at a lower cost than they could hope to meet through private ownership of bulls of equal quality. The plan is especially suited to the small herd owner who cannot afford to own a high-priced bull.

Gibson says dairymen don't assume that artificial breeding eliminates all breeding problems, but it does make possible full use of bulls of proven transmitting ability.

They were at their mountain cabin for the opening of the deer season. "What's the weather going to be like tomorrow?" one asked the Old Timer. "Fit for hunting?"

"Don't know, boy," he replied. "Used to be, a man could always judge about the weather. Now the government has took it over and you can't tell what the hell it will do."

Jesuit Missionaries Receive Blessing

AURIESVILLE, NEW YORK—Reverend Demetrius Zema, S.J., of the Shrine of Our Lady of Martyrs at Auriesville, imparting blessing to group of Jesuit missionaries returning to Philippines and Japan. Their return marks the beginning of the observance commemorating the 300th Anniversary of the martyrdom of St. Isaac Jogues, first saint to be martyred on American soil. The Jesuit Missionary was killed by the Mohawk Indians at approximately the spot pictured here, where his statue is part of a national shrine erected in honor of him and his companions.

Father Zema was for many years Professor of History at Fordham University in New York.

A FAR PLACE
A New Yorker brings back this story from Vermont. He's convinced that nowhere will one find greater pride in the home community than among the natives of a small New England village. Home, to them, is the center of the universe.

In this quiet town, the New Yorker paused before the general store to chat with a genial old gentleman who sat meditating in the sun. Presently the native inquired if the visitor did not come from New York. The traveler replied that he did.

There was a moment of silence, and then in a voice full of commendation the old gentleman "shouted out, 'Gosh! Young fellow, I sh'd think you'd hate to live so far away!'"

WU WINS

Dr. Tehyi Hsieh tells this one of Dr. Wu Ting-fang, Chinese Minister to the United States some years ago. He was having dinner at the Gridiron Club in his Chinese costume, wearing his Chinese queue. You know that a Chinese would eat one way and an American in another. The Chinese uses his knife and fork around in one direction while an American tilts his plate and dips his spoon in the soup in the opposite way.

There was an American Congressman present, and as he looked at this "poor" Chinese drinking his soup in an unusual way, he said to him, "Likee soupee?" When the fish came, the Chinese cut the fish with a knife and ate it with a fork in his left hand. The Congressman turned around and said, "You likee fish?" Wu Ting-fang didn't say a word. Then the time came when Wu Ting-fang was called upon to speak. He arose and made a brilliant speech. At the end of it he turned around to the Congressman and said, "You likee speechee?"

Marion Evans used the nom de plume George Elliot.

R. J. SMITH

Candidate For

State Representative

District 46

To the voters of Cooke County: Last April after giving careful consideration to the request of many voters of Cooke county, I consented to submit to the voters my candidacy to represent them in the Texas Legislature. At that time I personally prepared and had published in the papers of the County, what I considered necessary legislation at this time, that can and should be enacted into law. Among them are: States Rights, Parity, Labor, Education, Pension, Farm-To-Market Roads, Redistricting the State as to Representation, Oil Regulation, Veterans Service Bill, Industrialization of Texas, the Farmer and the PAC, CIO. These are the controversial issues in Texas at this time, that will come before the Texas legislature next January.

The men you elect as your State Representatives will make final disposition of these as well as other matters to be passed on, therefore it is necessary that the voters know definitely the views of every candidate on every controversial issue.

I have stated definitely my views on each of these issues, because I thought then, and I think now, that the voters are entitled to know exactly how the man you employ to represent you stands on all controversial issues.

The response to my candidacy has been most gratifying. I have had many inquiries as to why the pension checks have been cut? The answer is: The present members of the Texas legislature voted a ceiling on the amount of money to pay the old folks; but failed to put a ceiling on the expense of the administration. The expense of the administration is subtracted from the money available and the balance is divided by the number of pensioners and that is the amount you receive, as more names are added to the pension rolls your check will be less and less each month.

In my announcement I said I was in favor of paying the old folks $40 a month. At that time this was the top available.

Since that time the House Ways and Means committee announced an increase from $20 a month to $25 as the amount the Federal Government will put up for matching state funds to be paid to the needy aged, blind and dependent children. This makes it possible, under the fifty-fifty Federal-State matching arrangements, for a needy person to receive $50 a month instead of the present $40 top.

I am in favor of repealing the law passed by the present members of the legislature, limiting the amount to be paid to the old folks, and matching the Federal Government's $25 a month, thus making available $50 a month. Under present conditions I think this is morally right and that it should be legally justified.

I have taken this means of answering the many inquiries coming to me. I submit to you my candidacy, not as a veteran legislator, nor as a politician, but as an experienced business man, with experience and special training. I have served in positions of responsibility and trust and on several occasions have passed Civil Service examinations necessary to qualify for service. For 15 years I maintained headquarters in various sections of Texas, making and servicing farm loans, cattle loans, operating loans and Home Owners Loans.

I feel that the experience gained in making and servicing loans over a period of time in various industries and over a large area of Texas, that I could serve you well and faithfully in a business way, if not in a political way.

I have never been a candidate for any office. I submit to you my views and opinions and business qualifications for consideration. If you see fit to honor me, by sending me to Austin to represent you, I will not violate your trust.

Respectfully,

R. J. 'Bob' Smith

work more. They accomplish more and earn more. When work slacks up again they take it easy.

Our country should have followed the same policy. By tackling reconstruction in earnest it could have furnished needed commodities and increased its war-time savings in the bargain. When supply begins catching up with demand is the time to adopt short work weeks.

Therein lies one of the really useful functions of organized labor. To bargain for lots of work for all members when there's lots to be done, and arrange to keep all members at work, on shorter schedules, when the work slows down.

Conditions as we have them permit only one logical explanation. The whole mess is a deliberate and carefully executed plot to discredit the American system of free enterprise. The Reds, taking their orders from Moscow, are behind it. There can't be any other explanation because the system is essentially one of destruction. Besides, we have the word of CIO men themselves that communists are taking over their organizations.

The Reds know that they could never get to first base trying to sell their system in a smoothly running democracy. They first have to get the democracy in a turmoil and when everything is thoroughly messed up they introduce their corrective measures, usually disguised by high sounding names intended to appeal to freedom loving people. But the catch is that every improvement is a restraint and if we permit them to go far enough they'll have us bound hand and foot like the people of Russia.

That's one reason the CIO, meaning the Reds of the CIO, are putting up such an awful fuss to restore price controls. They want the people to be tied down by the government. Turning business back to free enterprise is breaking in one of the bonds of totalitarianism and setting the communists back in their program.

Incidentally, Saturday is election day and the very best time of the year to remember that the nation's foremost job is to weed out the pinks. In casting a ballot it's the wise and patriotic thing to scan down the list for people known to be backed by the CIO and those who are too profuse in their promises to give something for nothing — and scratch them.

By all means, remember to vote. This is a critical time in the nation's history. It was never more important to elect men of sound democratic principle.
