Judge finds Walker guilty of espionage

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A judge found Arthur James Walker guilty Friday of selling Navy secrets to the Soviet Union in the first trial stemming from an alleged family spy ring that the government called one of the most damaging in recent U.S. history.

U.S. District Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr., who heard four days of testimony without a jury, convicted Walker on all seven charges that he took classified Navy documents from his defense contractor employer and photographed them for his brother, John A. Walker Jr., the alleged leader of the ring.

Arthur Walker, 50, a retired Navy lieutenant commander from Virginia Beach, stood and showed little reaction to the verdict.

The government built its case around Walker's statements to the FBI and a federal grand jury that he gave his brother documents on Navy ship repair in 1981 and 1982 in exchange for $12,000.

He faces a maximum sentence of three life terms plus 40 years and up to $40,000 in fines. Clarke set sentencing for Oct. 15 after Walker's lawyers requested a two-month delay.

"It gives us enough time to determine whether the government is going to want to use him as a witness in any other trial," J. Brian Donnelly, a defense attorney, told reporters. "I think Arthur will be willing to cooperate. He has nothing to hide at this point."

John Walker is scheduled for trial Oct. 28 in Baltimore. Also charged with espionage are John Walker's son, Navy Seaman Michael L. Walkez, and Jerry A. Whitworth of Davis, Calif., a friend of John Walker.

Military experts have called the alleged spy ring one of the most damaging in recent history. It has prompted Congress to call for restoring the death penalty for peacetime espionage and the military and defense contractors to tighten security and cut the number of people with clearances.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Tommy E. Miller, who prosecuted Arthur Walker, would not say if he would recommend a sentence or whether Walker would be asked to testify in other trials.

"We'll open one page of the book at a time," he said.

Defense attorneys, who presented no witnesses, argued that the government did not sufficiently corroborate Arthur Walker's admissions to the FBI and a federal grand jury in Baltimore.

They contended Walker photographed the documents from VSE Corp. of Chesapeake, his employer, to appease his brother and did not intend to harm the United States.

Samuel W. Meekins Jr., a defense attorney, told reporters that Walker regretted what he had done.

"The major premise that he's always been operating on is that he get punished for what he did, not who he is," Meekins said.

In closing statements, Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert J. Seidel Jr. argued that Walker had his eyes open when he began helping his brother spy for the Soviet Union.

Economists: $200 billion deficits likely to continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite Congress approving a deficit-reduction package of at least $55 billion last week, President Reagan's economic advisers have told him $200 billion deficits likely will persist without further action.

So the president, through spokesman Larry Speakes, was urging Congress again Friday to "set its mind on spending cuts and stick to it."

Speakes added that, so far, Congress has fallen short of the savings targets it set for itself in the compromise budget the House and Senate passed Aug. 1.

"Speakes is just all wet on this thing," responded Christopher J. Matthews, spokesman for House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass.

At a Cabinet meeting on Thursday, acting budget director Joseph R. Wright Jr. told the president what some congressional leaders had indicated last week — the estimate of savings in the budget that passed Congress may be too optimistic.

In addition, the administration already has announced that it has lowered its estimate for 1985 economic growth, meaning that revenues likely will be lower than expected.

"Unless Congress toes the line on reducing spending, there is a distinct possibility that we face deficits in excess of $200 billion in 1986," Speakes said.

Albert R. Brashear, another presidential spokesman, said the same forecast holds true for 1987.

The $967.6 billion budget Congress adopted for the 1986 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 projected a deficit of $171.9 billion for next year and declining to just under $113 billion by 1988.

However, the non-partisan Congressional Budget Office, and now the White House Office of Management and Budget, agree that those predictions may be too optimistic and deficits will be higher, even if the three-year savings of up to $279.6 billion called for in Congress' budget are achieved.

Speakes confirmed that at Thursday's Cabinet meeting, preliminary plans for drawing up next year's budget were discussed. He also indicated that the president will revive his goal of cutting deficits to less than $100 billion in the next three years, leaving the red ink at a level equal to about 2 percent of the gross national product.

Meanwhile, Speakes said the money bills Congress worked on before leaving last week for a month-long recess were exceeding the budget targets.

"Looking at Congress' track record on appropriations bills over the past five years, it's entirely possible that their appropriation bills will force the budget even higher" than already is estimated, Speakes said.

He said the House already has passed eight of the 13 regular annual appropriation bills and the Senate has approved two. "Our estimates are they are $15 billion to $19 billion over budget," Speakes said.

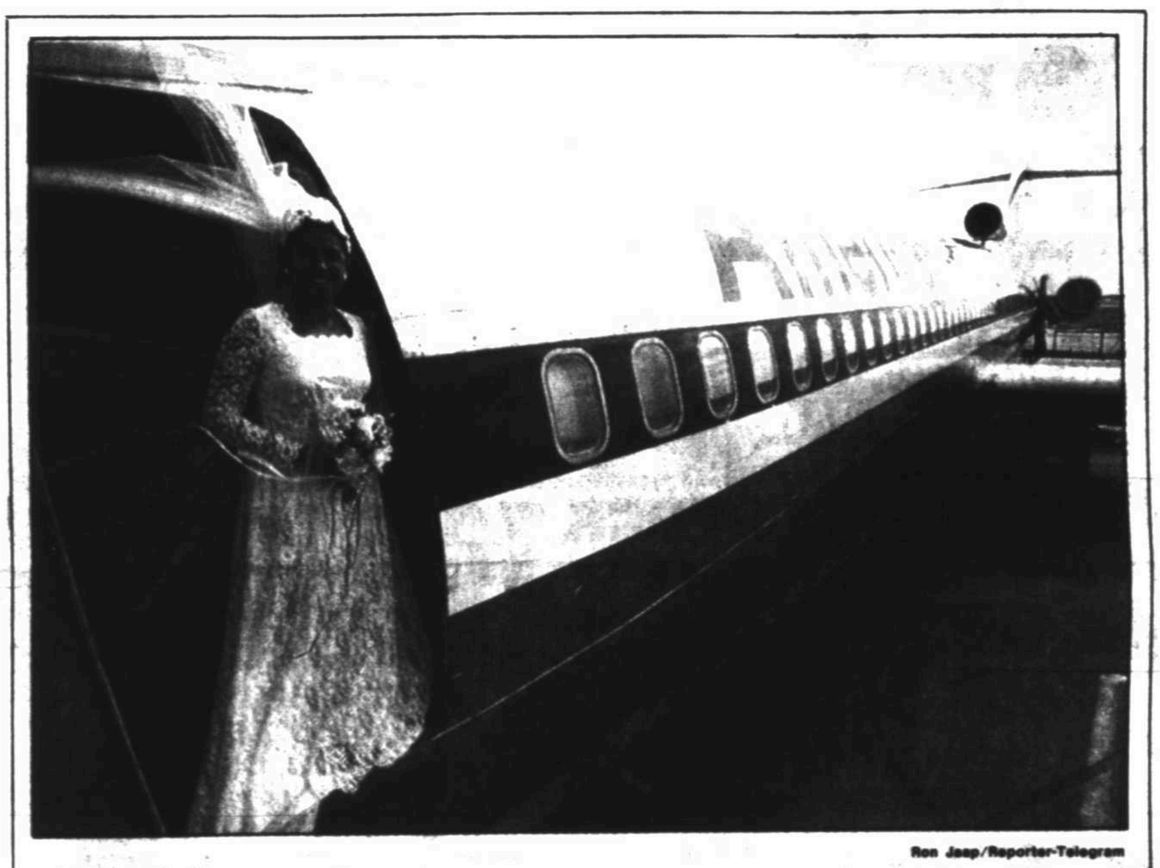

"In past years, congressional appropriation spending has overrun their targets by an average of $28 billion," the press spokesman added.

Brashear said later that the $15 billion to $19 billion Speakes noted was based on technical analyses of each appropriation bill by the Office of Management and Budget. It does not refer to the actual pricetag of each bill, but rather to what the administration believes the final budgetary impact will be.

In 4½ years in office, Reagan has yet to veto a regular appropriation bill, although he has rejected one stopgap money bill and one supplemental spending bill.

Still, Speakes said, "The president will take a close look at each and every appropriations bill that the Congress sends to him. He has veto on his mind and he has his pen poised."

Ricardo Montalban and his diminutive assistant will not be in attendance, but Belinda Olgin may be thinking of Fantasy Island later this month when she flies to Hawaii to get married. She and fellow Midlander Gilrey Benavides were to marry in October, but moved up the date when Ms. Olgin won a free trip to the islands on American Airlines through a Midland YMCA contest.

Polling places listed for today's election

From Staff Reports

Polls will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. today for registered voters in the city of Midland to voice their approval or disapproval of a long-term contract with Colorado River Municipal Water District to obtain water from Stacy Dam and Reservoir.

Residents who live in the rural precincts and outside the city limits are not allowed to vote.

San Angelo and Abilene are holding similar elections today. All three cities are contracting to take 16.54 percent of the yield from Stacy Dam once it is completed, estimated to be about 1990. This means Midland can draw out up to 15,000 acre-feet of water a year from Stacy to add to its other water sources.

Those sources for Midland include a previous contract between the city and CRMWD for water from Lake Spence, but that has a ceiling of 13.5 million gallons a year, and Paul Davis Well Field.

Hance said Clements' decision to run won't alter his own plans

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Kent Hance, former Democratic U.S. representative from Lubbock, Friday night said former Gov. Bill Clements' entrance into the Republican gubernatorial primary next spring will not alter his own plans to seek the GOP's nomination to challenge incumbent Gov. Mark White.

Hance, in Odessa to address members of the Texas Independent Automotive Association at the Holiday Inn Centre, said he believes he is a viable candidate and should have no trouble raising the funds necessary to run a successful primary campaign.

The former congressman said he has been talking to supporters around the state and has been encouraged to make the race for the Republican nomination, although he will not make a formal announcement until September.

Contending he has a lot of support throughout the state, Hance said, "It will be very obvious we'll be the best candidate for the primary. But the other thing, I think, that most voters will look at in the Republican primary is who can win the general election." He said the polls indicate, "and the public knows that Kent Hance will be the best candidate for the

ClayDesta Corp.'s plans to buy Parkview Hospital near completion

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Plans by ClayDesta Corp. to buy Parkview Hospital should be finalized Sept. 10 when the contract to purchase the facility's assets is signed, the Reporter-Telegram has learned. In addition, ClayDesta Corp. is continuing to study the feasibility of building a replacement hospital for Parkview, which was first reported July 19.

An official announcement about the buyout is expected Monday.

ClayDesta Corp., which is a real estate development and property management division of the Clayton W. Williams Jr. Companies, reportedly has signed a contract to purchase the assets of Parkview Hospital from Hospital Corporation of America of Nashville, Tenn., Parkview's current owner.

The purchase would include the transfer of all rights under the certificate of need for the new Doctors' Hospital, a replacement facility planned for Parkview by Forum Inc., its original owners, to ClayDesta. The future of Doctors' Hospital was put in limbo by HCA which purchased Parkview earlier this year. HCA later was ordered to divest itself of both Parkview and the planned Doctors' Hospital within one year due to a monopoly situation in the Permian Basin.

The Federal Trade Commission passed the ruling in early July that HCA must sell the facilities. HCA had already negotiated with Summit Health Ltd., a California firm, who stepped in with an offer to purchase Parkview after the FTC ruling. Currently, Summit is managing the facility for HCA.

The future of Midland's only private hospital still remains questionable, although ClayDesta officials reportedly are considering the development of a replacement hospital. The July 19 Reporter-Telegram story reported that a decision will be announced at the conclusion of a feasibility study that is looking at the possible need for additional medical services in the future. That study was commissioned by ClayDesta Corp. and a group of physicians.

Among the physicians are Tulsi Singh, Louis Barkley, William McGavran III, P.V. Patel and Terry Tubb.

The replacement hospital being considered is possibly the $20-22 million facility mentioned in the July 19 article. According to reports, plans for the construction of a private hospital in the vicinity of ClayDesta Plaza was being examined by a group titled ClayDesta Medical Plaza Development Corp.

Chinese can claim books seized during revolution

Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

PEKING — Wang Yushang, a stooped, unshaven 80-year-old man in baggy proletarian clothing, was rummaging recently through a pile of books on a dirty table at Peking's No. 77 middle school when he suddenly came across a family photo album that had been seized by Red Guards from his house nearly two decades ago.

Opening the book, Wang first trembled and then burst into laughter. "This is me!" exclaimed Wang, pointing to a picture of a barrel-chested man in his 30s, stylishly dressed in a double-breasted Western suit. "These are my two younger sisters. These are my two older brothers. They are all dead now."

Feverishly, Wang kept hunting, and within a few minutes he had uncovered the baby book he and his wife once kept for their first daughter, including a silk-enclosed sample of her first baby hair. He also found more lost albums, with his wedding picture and 19th-century pictures of his grandparents.

The books Wang found were among 70,000 volumes put on display to help Peking residents locate and reclaim materials seized from the shelves and libraries of their homes during the Cultural Revolution.

The display fills eight white-walled classrooms at the middle school, a testimonial to the enduring Chinese love of written language and record-keeping. There are histories of the imperial dynasties and records of China's natural disasters, encyclopedias, dictionaries, books of poetry, pictures of jade seals and hand-written Buddhist sutras.

In a sense, the stacks of books provide their own account of 20th-century Chinese history. Leafing through the printed volumes, one finds class yearbooks for Christian missionary schools from the 1920s and 1930s, a guide to writing official documents for China's Nationalist government in the 1940s, and piano books and history texts printed in Russian from the 1950s.

At the beginning of the Cultural Revolution in 1966, young Red Guards went from house to house, seeking to eradicate all vestiges of what they called "the four 'olds'" — old ideas, old customs, old culture and old habits. Nothing better exemplified the four olds than books.

Many of the volumes taken from people's homes were destroyed. Others were left out on the streets, to fall victim to mildew. Still others, Chinese officials now acknowledge, were sent to paper mills for an anti-intellectual form of recycling.

But some of the books were saved and kept in warehouses or storage rooms of the city's cultural relics department. These are the books that officials are now trying to return to their original owners.

"If a person can reclaim 50 percent of his books now, we consider that very good," said Zhang Zhiyuan, director of what is called the Office for Goods Ransacked During the Cultural Revolution in the Western District of Peking.

This is the second time that Zhang's staff of 10 people has put such books on display. On the first occasion last August, officials brought out about 100,000 volumes, and 32,000 of them were reclaimed.

The Guangming Daily, China's official newspaper for intellectuals, reported last week that there were still 170,000 books, paintings, calligraphy scrolls and pictures in Peking that officials were trying to return to those whose who lost them during the Cultural Revolution.

Zhang and his aides estimate that between 800 and 1,000 families from Peking's Western district will come to the school before the week is out to search for lost books.

Many of those who come are very old. One, Wu Tunan, said he was 102, a former art professor and a specialist on ancient Chinese porcelain. Asked how many books were taken from him during the Cultural Revolution, he smiled wanly and replied, "Two rooms full."

A few of the elderly came with their children or grandchildren, hoping to locate family collections to be passed on to their heirs.

"Some of the books he collected we can't read; they are in classical Chinese," said Chao Yuheng, a middle-aged man who stood by with his daughter while his father, Chao Shuwen, 87, hunted for lost volumes.

The elder Chao, a one-time general for the Kuomintang, or Nationalist Party, who defected to the Communists in 1949, said that between last August's book display and the current one, he has been able to find about 3,000 of the 16,000 books he had collected before the onset of the Cultural Revolution.

Other, younger Peking residents come looking for the books taken from parents or grandparents who have died. "This was my father's," said Liu Shiying, pointing to a faded book of scholarly records. "He was in educational work, just as I am."

Not everyone is lucky. "This was my stamp collection," said a middle-aged woman with tears in her eyes. She showed authorities a well-bound book from which all the stamps had been ripped out.

The stamp book was found in a classroom filled with family photo albums that reflect memories of a China long gone. There are pictures of trolleys and luxury trains, of beach homes and baptisms, of old patriarchs in flowing robes and of young women trying to dress and wear their hair like Soong Mei-ling (Madame Chiang Kai-shek). It was a way of life that did not survive the ravages of war and revolution.

Medical examiners say all Delta remains identified

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County medical examiners said the remains of all victims in the crash of Delta Air Lines Flight 191 have been identified as federal investigators continued to review evidence on a possible cause.

Dr. Charles Petty, chief medical examiner, told a news conference on Thursday that all 130 victims taken to the Dallas County Institute of Forensic Sciences from the crash of the wide-bodied L-1011 have been identified.

Officials in the medical examiner's office will continue to study records of examinations of the bodies to determine whether victims died of trauma or burns in the impact near Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Authorities said they may be able to determine where the fire in the plane started by comparing seating charts with the victims and their injuries.

Identifications included that of Capt. Michael Connors, the 57-year-old pilot killed when the jumbo jet crashed in a thunderstorm. About 600 people gathered to pay final tribute to Connors in services Thursday in Fort Worth.

The victims also included an infant who died on the way to Parkland Memorial Hospital and brought the official death toll to 133 in Texas' worst-ever aviation disaster.

The Tarrant County medical examiner's office identified remains of two crash victims who died in Fort Worth area hospitals. Authorities said another victim was a man killed when the plane demolished his car on Texas Highway 114.

STATE

"I think we're pleased we completed this for the families," said Bill Lene, chief field agent for the medical examiner's office. "There's a whole lot of tension when you know the families are depending on what you pull together."

He said the institute's staff expressed concern for relatives of the crash victims who came to Dallas to furnish records to help authorities in the identification process.

"There is a tendency to protect them," said Lene, adding that he knew of no relatives who saw crash victims' remains. "We try to do that by answering their questions as fully as possible so they won't feel a need to go beyond that discussion."

Officials said the identification process went speedily but was not easy. Airline officials and institute staff members began shortly after the crash the process of obtaining records to be used for identification.

"We did have to call some people and hospitals and physicians" to obtain records, Lene said. "Delta was able to collect some records in a very short time. What they couldn't, we got. The process began almost immediately."

Investigators requested X-rays, dental records, photographs, fingerprints and other information to use in identifications.

Police detectives in Miramar, Fla., who were trying to confirm the identity of one victim, had to search for five hours before finding fingerprints in her home because it was so clean.

Detectives sent the prints to Dallas to confirm the identity of Terri Anderson. The body of her 26-year-old husband, Curtis Anderson, was identified Saturday. Lene said that fingerprints were accepted as absolute proof in most cases.

"The collection of records did not stop," Lene said. "We received some records today, even though the identifications have been made, and it wouldn't surprise me if some records didn't come in tomorrow."

White believes death penalty deters crime

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, who never has stayed the execution of a condemned man during his term, Friday said he was pleased with the way Texas is carrying out the death penalty because it deters crime.

"We have the death penalty in Texas. I'm pleased to see that it's being carried out today, because I believe it can be an effective deterrent against those people in our society who would take life," White said.

The governor also said he approved of Attorney General Jim Mattox's quick handling of death penalty appeals for the state, which has executed nine men by lethal injection since 1982 and currently has more than 200 prisoners waiting on Death Row.

"I am pleased that our attorney general is moving to expedite those cases so they won't be tied up in court on an interminable basis," White said.

His comments came in a speech marking the 50th anniversary of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

White said Texas has a solid crime-fighting reputation.

"We're taking a tough stance and we don't coddle criminals. I haven't ever seen a state that works harder or more cooperatively to make certain that we do provide protection for the lives of our people and their property," White said.

The governor also noted that the 1985 Legislature passed new laws extending the death penalty to mass murderers and serial killers. That legislation, he said, will "further improve our stance toward the most hardened criminals."

White said the state's booming population growth likely will bring with it challenges for law enforcment officials.

"As we look toward the future, we recognize the increasing challenge of providing protection for our citizens from any threat posed by the criminal element in society.

"We all recognize the difficulty of that, day in and day out — especially as our population growth continues bringing with it additional law enforcement and crime problems," he said.

To help combat crime, White said, he was happy to be able to sign into law legislation that continued allowing wiretaps in drug investigations and that required three copies of drug prescriptions.

Teen sentenced to 63 years for killing infant son

HOUSTON — A teen-ager convicted of smothering her 8-day-old son was sentenced Friday to 63 years in prison after jurors heard testimony that she laughed and joked about killing the child.

A state district court jury that convicted Leanne Pitts of murder in the April 10 suffocation of her son, Michael Dean Pitts, deliberated almost eight hours over two days before deciding how to punish her.

Ms. Pitts' attorney, Jimmy James, asked jurors for a suspended sentence, saying the 19-year-old woman needed the psychiatric help she would not get in prison.

"You know that she was saying, 'I need help.' She delivers a child. She tried to figure ways around the dilemma, but she figured the wrong way," James said.

However, prosecutor Joe Magliolo argued Ms. Pitts deserved at least 60 years in prison.

"What kind of person could hold their hand over a child's mouth while it's kicking and crying until it turns blue?" Magliolo asked.

"This is a beautiful healthy boy. There are poeple in this country who would give their hearts and souls to have this child," he said.

During the four-day trial, jurors heard a tape recording in which Ms. Pitts called a constable's office and told a dispatcher, "I've killed my baby." According to the recording, Ms. Pitts said she held her hand over the baby's nose and mouth until he turned blue.

Psychologist James Ray Hays testified that at the time of the killing, Ms. Pitts suffered a "brief reactive psychosis" produced by stress from her parents and a failed marriage and childbirth. Hays said Ms. Pitts needed to be hospitalized six months to a year, followed by several years of out-patient therapy.

Jail inmates Bridget Holland and Norma Cuellar testified that while they waited in a courtroom holding area Ms. Pitts described how she put her hand tightly over the baby's nose and mouth and how he struggled.

"She was laughing. She was smiling," Ms. Cuellar said of the defendant's behavior.

HANCE

Republican Party in November and that Mark White needs to be replaced."

Hance contended there has been "no display of leadership" by White in looking at the state's long-range financial problems.

"With oil revenues going down and with this being a growing state," Hance said, "I think that we have to look at the long-term problem."

Noting that White campaigned on a promise of no new taxes, Hance said the Democratic governor has been responsible for "the largest tax increase in the history of the state" through increasing various fees.

Regarding priorities he would have as governor, Hance said, "I think the number one priority is bringing additional industries into the state. The way to do that is to continue to support the Right-to-Work Law, which I helped sponsor in Texas, as well as promising there's not going to be a corporate or a personal income tax." If elected governor, he would veto any such proposals.

Asked about raising funds for his campaign, Hance said he anticipated no problems. A few weeks ago he raised $1 million in one afternoon. He estimates primary campaign expenses will run from $2 million to $2.5 million, with considerably more required for the general election.

But, Hance said, he doesn't believe the primary race will go to whoever spends the most money, but to the person who spends money wisely.

As to the other announced Republican gubernatorial candidate, U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, Hance said Loeffler has been a good congressman "and I personally wish he would've stayed in Washington. But that's his personal decision. If his family wants to move back to West Texas, that's fine."

Hance feels he has an advantage over Loeffler, citing the statewide campaign for U.S. senator he ran in 1984. That campaign, he said, gave him greater name identification than Loeffler has.

Switching from the Democratic to Republican Party should present no problem, he said, but may be a positive point. "I think that is one big issue that we will stress. The Republican Party is a party of free enterprise and a party of merit, not seniority. Seniority gave you Tip O'Neill and Jim Wright and merit gave you Ronald Reagan. I think it's pretty obvious that everybody's going to be running on their merits and not who's been in the parry the longest," said Hance.

Asked about the proposed $5 per barrel import tax, Hance said he thinks the tax is probably something that would help the oil and gas industry in Texas.

"If there's ever been a time to make the OPEC countries pay their fair share of the American system it would be now," Hance said. "If you put an oil import fee on imported oil at this time there's no way that OPEC could raise their prices that much. They're in a vulnerable position they could not pass it on to someone else," he stated.

Asked specifically what he would do for the oil and gas industry in Texas, Hance said, "First of all, I'm not going to be adding fees to 'em like Mark White did on drilling fee increases at a time when the oil and gas industry is in such a tough position financially."

As to where he will concentrate his campaign efforts, Hance said he feels he has had good support in West Texas and will continue to visit here regularly. But he plans to broaden his base in Dallas and Houston because that is where about 62 percent of the Republican vote is concentrated.

BUDGET

"Congress has imposed upon itself a spending goal and it is absolutely imperative that they meet this spending goal," Speakes said.

Matthews flatly rejected Speakes' figures on the money bills saying, "That is absolutely false.

Instead, Matthews cited figures from the House Budget Committee showing that the money bills passed so far by the House are $5 billion below the compromise budget Congress passed.

He said Speakes' remarks amounted to "the usual Friday finger-pointing that they know nobody is going to knock down."

WALKER

"The defendant was not duped or misled into spying," Seidel said. "It's not that John Anthony Walker had some Svengali effect over him, making him do these things blindly."

Seidel told Clarke that Arthur Walker knew the significance of the classified documents, which Navy officers testified could help an enemy sink ships and learn the readiness of the U.S. fleet.

"He is taking a paycheck from VSE with one hand...and putting a knife in the back of the United States with the other," Seidel said.

Defense attorneys argued that the government did not prove the documents Arthur Walker obtained ever got to the Soviet Union or that they injured the United States.

Arthur Walker thought the documents, which had the lowest security rating of confidential, would be of little value to the Soviets, Meekins argued.

"I know America doesn't agree with what he did, but is he a spy?" Meekins asked.

Prosecution witnesses included FBI agents who described Walker's statements that led to his arrest May 29 and the arrest of John Walker in Rockville, Md., May 20, after he allegedly made a so-called "dead drop" of classified materials for a Soviet Embassy official.

Board raises workers compensation

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Board of Insurance approved Friday a 30.7 percent rate increase for all classes of workers compensation insurance combined.

The increase, effective Oct. 1, will increase premiums paid by Texas employers by about $577 million.

The vote was 2-1, with Commissioner Carole Rylander wanting a 27.5 percent increase, as originally recommended by the board's staff.

The insurance industry wanted an overall rate increase of 40.8 million, which would have raised premiums $730 million.

Bids taken for new library branch

From Staff Reports

Midland County Commissioners Friday officially accepted bids from five construction companies to complete work on the new Midland Centennial Branch Library at Midland Park Mall.

Commissioners are expected to award bids for construction on Monday.

The 45,000-book branch library is to occupy a 1,375-square-foot area across from James Avery Craftsman Inc. near the Sakowitz entrance at the Mall and serve as a link to the county's 150,000-book downtown library.

Completion of the library is expected by mid-October, Midland County librarian John Deats said.

The Mall's owner, Melvin Simon & Associates of Indianapolis, Ind., will donate space for the library this year and in 1986 will charge a square-footage fee below the market rate.

The branch library originally was scheduled to open last month, after County Commissioners pledged about $84,000 for the library's operation in 1986 and other funds for this year. Friends of the Library has donated $24,000 for shelving and furnishings, while an anonymous source donated $39,000 toward the branch's initial operating costs.

The library, which is to be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, will be staffed by two librarians and volunteers.

Funds to decrease for MISD, GISD

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The two public school districts in Midland County are expected to receive a total of $18.8 million in state aid for the 1985-86 school year, compared to $20.6 million received during the current school year, the Texas Education Agency reported Friday.

An estimated $18,807,800 will be distributed to the two independent sschool district in the county over the course of the next fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, a TEA official said.

The funding level is based on an average daily attendance rate during the 1984-85 school year of 18,136 students, which is the most recent figure available.

Districts in the county and the amount of state aide to be received for the 1985-86 school year (compared to the current level of funding) are:

— Midland Independent School District, $17,187,900 ($18,755,300).

— Greenwood ISD, $1,620,000 ($1,909,500).

A TEA spokesman said school district officials were mailed the new funding figures on Thursday.

Couple charged with possession

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Bonds of $15,000 each were set Friday for a 36-year-old Odessa man and his 34-year-old wife by Municipal Judge J.E. Weatherly on charges aggravated possession of cocaine.

Fernando Cuevas and his wife, Lucia, 817 Roxanna, were arrested about 4:35 p.m. Thursday by Odessa detectives and Ector County sheriff's deputies who obtained a search warrant on the basis of information received from the Crime Stoppers program.

Officers seized two ounces of a substance believed to be cocaine and recovered suspected stolen property with an estimated value of $5,000.

According to police spokesman John McAhon, U.S. immigration authorities placed a hold on the Cuevases.

Man accused of indecency with child

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 41-year-old man was released on $15,000 bond Friday after being arraigned on a charge of indecency with a child.

Ector County sheriff's deputies Troy Davis and Gloria Rico arrested Abel Carrasco Castillo about 5:15 p.m. Thursday at his southwest Odessa home.

According to Davis, the charge against Castillo involves a girl who was 12 at the time the alleged incident occurred.

Rico said additional charges are expected to be filed Monday. Reports also indicate Castillo was on probation at the time of his arrest.

PARKVIEW

In that report, a feasibility study under the direction of former Parkview Hospital administrator Dick Liley was considering the possible construction of a 75-bed or 120-bed hospital at an estimated cost of $20 million to $22 million.

The proposed Sept. 10 buyout will come 10 days after the shutdown of the Texas Health Facilities Commission, a regulatory state agency that was not renewed by the State Legislature.

To date, no official plans have been announced by the corporation or individuals involved. Liley, when questioned about the hospital plans in early July, refused to comment.

At the same time, Parkview's administrator, Gerry Tipsword, while stating there were confidential matters that could not be discussed, admitted he did not know what the group's future plans were although he was aware of the feasibility study as early as May.

UT regents OKs UTPB's $9 million budget

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — University of Texas System regents approved Friday a budget of more than $9 million for the University of Texas of the Permia Basin for next fiscal year beginning Sept. 1.

UTPB has a total budget of $8,806,545 for the current fiscal year, officials said.

The new $9,044,737 budget includes $7,808,711 in educational and generalfunds; $1,020,083 in auxiliary enterprise funds from self-supporting operations; and $215,943 in private gifts, grants, designated and other funds.

There are no funds for sponsored research and services for fiscal 1986, just as there were none available for the current fiscal year.

In approving the budgets for the 14 UT component institutions, regents chairman Jess Hay emphasized that the board used the "fiscal flexibility provisions" granted by the Legislature to accommodate each of the UT System's fundamental policy commitments, including competitive faculty salaries and increases in academic support.

"With the use of this flexibility, the board on a systemwide basis was able to provide dollar increases over the 1984-85 fiscal year budget in major academic program areas," Hay said.

He noted that generally faculty salaries were increased 5.5 percent, academic support programs were increased 1.4 percent, library resources were increased 6.5 percent and organized research was increased 3 percent.

Regents approved budgets for all 14-member institutions totaling $1.79 billion.

Law would require hospitals to seek organs for transplants

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Frank Taft, coordinator of the Albany Medical Center Regional Transplant Program, has a delicate job. He asks families of brain-dead patients to consider donating patients' organs for transplant operations.

Taft, who has worked in the transplant program since 1972, predicts a new state law will double organ donations in New York state.

Signed recently by Gov. Mario Cuomo, the law requires all hospitals, beginning in January, to ask families of patients who die for their consent to use the patients' organs for transplants.

A similar law was enacted last month in Oregon. And a measure that would require hospitals to establish their own rules for organ donation requests is pending in the California Legislature.

Although an average of 450 people die in hospitals every day in New York state, only 200 organs a year are donated upon patients' deaths, Taft said.

Taft's prediction of the new law's success is based, in part, on the assumption that hospitals will use the kind of approach he uses.

"If a family is approached correctly, about 85 percent will be willing to donate," said Taft. "I try to turn it (the death of a patient) around and make it positive for the family, something they can hang onto."

"I give them some time for it to sink in," Taft said, referring to the family receiving the news that a loved one is brain dead and is breathing with the aid of a respirator.

When Taft visits the family to ask the question, he said he presents them with three options: leave the patient hooked to the ventilator, unhook the ventilator and allow doctors to remove organs for transplant or unhook the ventilator and not remove any organs.

Taft said he tells families that transplanted organs allow someone else to live on in the patient's name. However, if they choose not to donate the organs, he doesn't attempt to change their decision, he said.

Families who decided to donate their relatives' organs sometimes write to Taft.

"We extend to you our gratitude, for through you, a small part of our son continues to live," said one letter from the mother of a 27-year-old attorney who died of a brain hemorrhage.

The attorney's kidneys were used by two other people, including a woman who is now able to work, Taft said. "She sends me Father's Day cards and Easter cards each year," he added.

Hospitals in New York that perform transplant surgery — five in New York City, two in Buffalo and one each in Albany, Rochester and Syracuse — regularly approach families to ask for consent, Taft said.

However, he added, many other hospitals that don't have a vested interest in the transplant operation have less incentive to ask for donations.

Robert Murphy, a spokesman for the Hospital Association of New York State, said his group had acknowledged the shortage of organs available for transplantation and supported the legislation.

"With the dramatic advances we have seen in medical techniques in recent years, organ transplants today provide critically ill patients with a real second chance," said the bill's sponsor, Sen. William Smith, R-Chemung.

The legislation, he said, was inspired by a proposal from Arthur Caplan, associate director of the Hastings Center Institute of Society, Ethics and Life Sciences, who has studied the national problem of organ donation shortages.

Thousands of people are awaiting organ transplants.

Nationally, in 1984, there were 6,730 kidney transplants and a waiting list of about 10,000 to 12,000, according to the American Council on Transplantation, a consortium of surgeons, patient groups and those specializing in securing donations.

Caplan said his research indicated the real waiting list for kidneys may be closer to 25,000. Many people in need of them, he said, may not show up on records because they became discouraged by the waiting list.

In 1984, there were 400 heart transplant operations performed and a waiting list of 100, the council estimated. The waiting list is short because of the critical condition of people on the list, Caplan said.

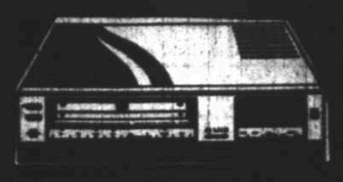

Chess marathon replay to resume

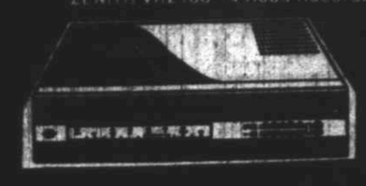

MOSCOW (AP) — World chess titlist Anatoly Karpov and challenger Garri Kasparov will begin replaying their championship match on Sept. 3, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Kasparov and Karpov met in a marathon match that began almost a year ago and ended after 48 games without a conclusion. Karpov won five games, one less than he needed to retain the championship, and Kasparov won three.

But President Florencio Federation, saying both players were exhausted, stopped the match on Feb. 15.

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Columnist says enough money raised to buy car for Winger

Winger

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A newspaper columnist says he has collected enough nickels and dimes from his readers to buy actress Debra Winger a 10-year-old station wagon, which she will donate to a home for young women.

Curt Donaldson of The Lincoln Star said Friday he raised "well over $250." Ms. Winger agreed to match that total, and so did used car dealer "Weird Wally" Smith.

He started the fund-raiser last week after Winger was ticketed for speeding in a leased Lincoln Continental used by her boyfriend, Gov. Bob Kerrey. Donaldson campaigned on a theme that everyone in America should own a car.

Donaldson went to Smith's lot and picked out a 1975 Chevrolet Caprice Estate Wagon with 56,003 miles on it. Winger will donate the eight-passenger vehicle to the Women in Community Service Home for young women.

"Hey, it's a good runner, the air works, and it won't cost them a dime to get off the lot," Smith said. "What more could they want?"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A television production company has sued singer Dionne Warwick and sought to halt filming of the "Solid Gold" TV series because she allegedly backed out of an agreement to make another program.

In the suit filed Thursday by attorney Steven V. Ross, Edenroy Ltd. claimed the entertainer agreed to produce the television show "Dionne Warwick and her Legendary Friends." Her production company, called December 12, canceled the project so she could host the syndicated "Solid Gold," the suit contended.

The suit seeks $2 million in punitive damages, at least $800,000 in general damages and a court order halting filming of "Solid Gold" until the dispute is resolved.

A receptionist at an answering service for Miss Warwick said the singer could not be reached for comment because she was on vacation. A spokesman for December 12 did not return a phone call.

Dali

FIGUERAS, Spain (AP) — Surrealist painter Salvador Dali has appeared on television for the first time in six years to speak of recent donations to the museum dedicated to him in this northeastern town where he was born.

Speaking in the regional Catalonian language, the ailing 81-year-old artist told an interviewer from the Catalonian station TV-3 on Thursday he was giving two paintings to the Dali Theater-Museum in Figueras, 118 miles north of Barcelona.

The artist, whose voice was made almost inaudible by a gastro-nasal tube his age and ill health forces upon him, appeared lucid and relaxed during the interview at his mansion next to the museum.

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Greenwich to New York Mayor Edward Koch: take a bath, please.

The message, conveyed in a letter to Koch from Greenwich First Selectman Roger Pearson, is an invitation for Koch to shower at Pearson's home during New York's severe water shortage.

The reason for Pearson's generosity dates to 1981, when Greenwich reservoirs were nearly dry and Koch had said Greenwich residents might not be showering daily.

"It's getting so you can tell when someone comes from Greenwich, Connecticut," Koch quipped in 1981.

As of last week, Greenwich's reservoirs were 95 percent full, while New York's reservoirs in the Catskills are at about 53 percent. Showering isn't prohibited in the city, but some water-use restrictions have been imposed.

"Well, Ed," Pearson wrote to Koch in the letter dated Tuesday, "times do change and it seems now we have the suds and you have the muds."

Springsteen

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Bruce Springsteen may play some extra concert dates at the Meadowlands arena in addition to his four sold-out shows later this month.

"I don't know if it is true he has added dates, but I am aware that has been a consideration," said Robert Gorra, vice president and general manager of Ticketron in New York.

Officials at the Meadowlands would not comment on the possibility of additional concerts, but sources close to Springsteen's nationwide tour said the extra concerts being considered would take place afte Aug. 22, The Star-Ledger of Newark reported Friday.

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Folk singer and Broadway performer Martha Schlamme was in intensive care Friday after collapsing during a performance, officials said.

Miss Schlamme, 56, best known for her performances with Alvin Epstein of Kurt Weill songs, collapsed Wednesday on stage at the Chautauqua Institution, stroke, said institution spokesman Phil Zimmer.

Anne Foley, spokeswoman for Woman's Christian Association Hospital, said Miss Schlamme had been in critical condition since she was admitted.

Miss Schlamme's manager and producer, Arthur Schafman, said she had been under a great deal of stress following her mother's death Monday.

Miss Schlamme, who sings in 12 languages, began her career in Europe. In 1980, Schafman said, she performed on Broadway in a Weill cabaret. About 20 years ago she performed "The World of Kurt Weill in Song" off-Broadway. Weill is best known for "The Threepenny Opera."

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Doctors said Friday that Alabama Gov. George Wallace's July 27 surgery was a success, meaning that pain from a 1972 shooting that left him paralyzed should subside.

Wallace, 65, appeared at a news conference looking pale and wearing a white short-sleeve shirt and blue slacks.

"I'm smiling today," he said. "It's going to take a little while to convalesce and I'm going to get better."

Dr. Daniel P. Lammertse, medical director at Craig Hospital, qualified his optimistic appraisal at a news conference by saying the surgery's ultimate success will not be known until pain from the operation subsides.

Wallace, 65, will be released from Craig Hospital today and will fly back to Montgomery, Ala., aboard a University of Alabama at Birmingham plane. He will continue his convalescence at the governor's mansion, according to his press secretary, Billy Joe Camp.

Cellular telephones not just to use in cars anymore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radio telephones are coming out of the car as enterprising users invent uses the manufacturers hadn't thought of.

Once limited to scratchy-sounding calls from automobiles, portables — known as cellular phones — are now used by fishermen on their boats, on-the-scene reporters, travellers with flat tires and medical emergency crews.

Cincinnati's Providence Hospital provides cellular telephones to rescue squads previously limited to talking to a two-way radio dispatcher. Now they can call direct from the ambulance to a poison control center or a victim's doctor to obtain vital medical history.

Reporters at fires and plane crashes call their stories from the scene, unburdened by the need to leave the scene to find a pay phone.

Cellular phones, which work like a regular home telephone, weigh four pounds or less and fit into a purse or coat pocket.

The units have a monthly charge and per-minute cost more expensive than a wired phone, but users are finding that using them is often cheaper than installing a phone at a one-time event.

If service is available, a vacationer can easily use one at a backwoods cottage, rather than going to the expense of installing a phone for a short period.

If workaholic business executives insist, they can have their phones on the beach.

New Vector Communications is installing a transmitter in the San Juan Islands near Seattle so boaters can use cellular phones.

Because the transmitters which carry cellular calls are low power, they do not interfere with transmissions across town, where the same frequency can be re-used. Computers switch calls from cell to cell without interrupting the conversation.

Old technology car-phone signals blanketed a wide area, resulting in long delays while callers had to wait for a clear channel.

With so many channels available now, it's almost impossible not to find an immediate dial tone.

"Three days after I got the portable cellular phone, I locked myself out of my house," reports David Stoffel a blind research and development executive from Reston, Va. "I pulled out my portable and called my housekeeper to let me in."

David Cruse, a Falls Church, Va., paraplegic, pulled up to a gasoline station in his car one night to discover a group of kids harassing the attendant.

"I couldn't help physically, but I had a phone, so I called the police," he said.

The Federal Communications Commission plans to grant two cellular licenses in each area. Construction of systems has been authorized in the 90 largest cities in the country.

Customers signed up in one area area will be able to use their cellular phones elsewhere as "roaming" agreements are reached between their hometown companies and systems in other cities.

Cellular telephone companies have stacks of stories about users calling police in emergency situations.

Seymour Rosenblatt, a court commissioner from Baltimore, used his Bell Atlantic mobile phone to call for help after being hurt in an car crash.

In New York, NYNEX Mobile Communications loaned cellular phones to the Red Cross at the scene of a fire and to a hospital when normal phone service was disrupted.

The New York City Police Department ordered cellulars as roadside emergency phones after they proved cheaper and easier to maintain than the traditional wired phones.

In Seattle, cab operators have installed cellulars so customers can call direct to the driver; so when you call a cab, you are literally calling the cab.

And, before long, the ferry system on Puget Sound in Washington state will have a cellular pay phone so commuters need not be out of touch, said New Vector spokesman Gary Ludwig.

Study: AIDS infects those with weak immune systems

BOSTON (AP) — A study of why some hemophiliacs become infected with AIDS while others do not supports the theory that the disease often preys on people whose immune systems are already disturbed by disease and other conditions.

When 33 people were inadvertently given some AIDS-tainted blood clotting factor at a clinic in Scotland, doctors tried to learn why 15 of them became infected, while the others remained free of all signs of the disease.

They discovered differences in the immune systems of the two groups. Even before the 15 got infected, they had lower levels of protective white blood cells that are attacked by the AIDS virus.

The doctors say this irregularity was caused by their hemophilia treatment, and it might have made them more susceptible to AIDS infection.

The AIDS virus attacks blood cells called helper T cells that are necessary to protect the body from infection. The virus wrecks the immune system by turning these T cells into virus factories and then destroying them.

Some experts suspect that people may be more likely to get AIDS if their immune systems are already weakened or out of balance by viruses, parasites and other microbes.

"This may account for the alarming spread of AIDS that we are currently witnessing in some countries in Africa," as well as the transmission of the disease among homosexuals, said one of the researchers, Dr. Robin A. Weiss of the Institute for Cancer Research in London.

The study, directed by Dr. Christopher A. Ludlum of the Royal Infirmatory in Edinburgh, was published in the Aug. 3 issue of the British journal Lancet.

In the United States, three-quarters of the AIDS victims are male homosexuals. But hemophiliacs also risk the disease because they must take blood clotting material derived from human blood that may be contaminated with AIDS.

Because of their sexual practices, some male homosexuals have had repeated bouts of venereal diseases and other infections. Drug addicts, another group at risk, catch diseases from dirty needles.

In central Africa, where AIDS is now rampant, people often encounter malaria and other parasitic infections that can disrupt the immune system.

"Those might seem to be a far cry from homosexual practice," said Weiss, "but it may all come down to the same thing in the end. Anything that perturbates the immune system may allow the virus to get a better grip on the host's body."

The idea that other infections play a role in AIDS was proposed two years ago in a Lancet article by Drs. Jay A. Levy and John L. Ziegler of the University of California, San Francisco.

"Nothing has happened so far to change our opinion about the susceptibility to AIDS," said Ziegler.

He noted that acquired immune deficiency syndrome has remained fairly well confined so far in the United States to the originally identified risk groups — largely homosexuals, drug abusers and hemophiliacs.

"Our hypothesis was that something is happening to the immune system already that makes them particularly at risk of getting sick from the virus," he said.

In the search for these susceptibility links — what some call co-factors — researchers recently found that genetic material from the hepatitis B virus is found inside the infected T cells of some AIDS victims.

"A lot of us have felt for a long time that there are co-factors that are necessary additions to bring out the full disease," said Dr. Martin S. Hirsch of Massachusetts General Hospital. "What those co-factors are isn't clear."

NATION

"Those (people who encounter malaria and other parasitic infections) might seem to be a far cry from homosexual practice," said Weiss, "but it may all come down to the same thing in the end. Anything that perturbates the immune system may allow the virus to get a better grip on the host's body."

U.S. proposes talks concerning MIAS in Vietnam

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States proposed to Vietnam on Friday that the two sides open talks soon in Hanoi on the fate of the 1,820 American servicemen still unaccounted for in that country.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said the United States made the proposal through the U.S. Embassy in Thailand in response to Vietnam's recent offer to resolve the MIA issue within two years.

Once a date for the discussions is set, Kalb said, the United States expects to send senior officials from the State and Defense departments and the National Security Council to Hanoi.

Also participating would be the executive director of the National League of Families, a group which represents relatives of the missing Americans, Kalb said.

He said the delegation would focus exclusively on the issue of the missing Americans.

"We and the Vietnamese have agreed that the POW-MIA question is a humanitarian problem which will be dealt with despite other differences between our countries," Kalb said. Other U.S. officials have said that virtually all of the missing Americans are presumed to have been killed in action.

Kalb said overall U.S. policy toward Vietnam remains unchanged and he reiterated American support for the efforts of the non-communist Association of Southeast Asian Nations to promote a withdrawal of Vietnamese forces from Cambodia.

"As part of that support, we will not consider or move toward normalizing relations with Hanoi until there is a settlement in Cambodia acceptable to ASEAN and involving Vietnamese withdrawal," Kalb said.

In early July, Vietnam surprised the United States by proposing to open talks aimed at resolving the issue of the missing Americans by 1987.

Vietnam says it will return remains

HONOLULU (AP) — Vietnam says it will turn over next week the remains of 26 Americans missing since the Vietnam War and will provide "material evidence" on six others, a U.S. Pacific Command spokesman announced Friday.

The remains and evidence will be given to a team of the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center on Wednesday in Hanoi, said Staff Sgt. Larry White of the Pacific Command headquarters.

"We are making the necessary arrangements to receive the remains which will be flown to the Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii for identification and subsequent return to the next-of-kin," White said.

It is not know what the Vietnam government means by "material evidence," he said.

The U.S. team going to Hanoi will be led by Lt. Col. Paul D. Mather of the JCRC's liason office in Bangkok, White said.

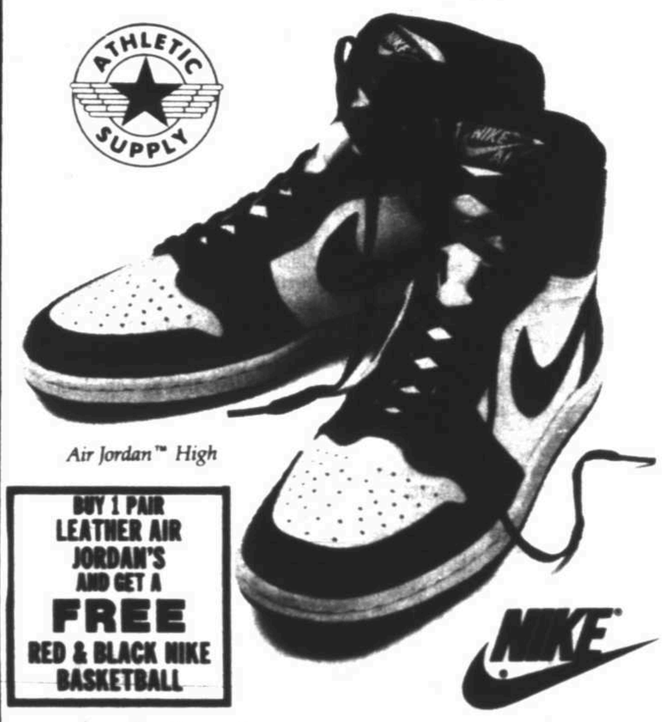

Since the end of the war, the remains of 99 missing Americans have been turned over by Vietnam, White said.

American sneaks into IRA man's funeral

LONDONDERRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — An American IRA sympathizer who is barred from Northern Ireland sneaked in and joined the funeral procession of an IRA man on Friday. Then he slipped into the crowd and police did not try to arrest him.

Martin Galvin, publicity director of the New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, known as Noraid, was barred from the province on grounds his presence would start trouble.

Police refused comment on why they made no attempt to arrest Galvin, who is a New York City lawyer, before he could escape into the crowd of 2,000 mourners. At a Belfast rally last August, when officers charged into a crowd after Galvin, firing plastic bullets, they killed one person and wounded 20.

The surprise appearance by Galvin, who had been in the neighboring Irish Republic for about a week, followed a night of violence marking the 14th anniversary Friday of internment of terrorist suspects without trial. Britain abandoned the practice in 1976.

Supporters of the Irish Republican Army, which is fighting to drive the British out of the Protestant-dominated province, set fire to hijacked vehicles and started bonfires in Roman Catholic strongholds.

Police said they fired more than 100 plastic bullets in west Belfast and hit six people. One man suffered head injuries and 38 people appeared at Belfast magistrate's court Friday charged with disorderly behavior and rioting.

Four incendiary bombs exploded on a northbound Dublin-to-Belfast express train Friday shortly after it had been evacuated in Newry, just north of the Irish border, police said.

Police spokesman Jim Green said that there were no injuries, but four of the cars were gutted by fire. He said police had evacuated the train after a radio station in Newry received a warning call from the Irish National Liberation Army, an offshoot of the Irish Republican Army.

A police spokesman said of Galvin: "He has had the chance to see the human results of American money for the IRA." He would not permit his name to be used.

Noraid has been identified by a U.S. court and the British and Irish governments as a fund-raising group for IRA arms purchases. It describes itself as a welfare organization helping familes of IRA prisoners.

Several British papers said the violence Thursday night was intended to impress 116 American Noraid supporters who are touring Northern Ireland and attended the funeral. "Rioters lay on a show for Noraid," said a banner headline in The London Standard.

Galvin refused to say how he crossed into the province from the republic, or whether he planned other appearances in Northern Ireland.

The funeral had been under way for about two hours and the procession had driven over bricks and broken glass left from Thursday night's violence when Galvin appeared.

He stood shoulder-to-shoulder with Martin McGuinness, an official of the IRA's legal political wing Sinn Fein, and helped carry the coffin of 21-year-old Charles English, who was killed in a grenade explosion Tuesday. After walking about 100 yards, the American disappeared.

Police in armored jeeps were only 200 yards away, but did not attempt to break into the procession during Galvin's five-minute appearance. Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said the decision not to arrest him was made at the highest level to prevent more trouble.

Police said English died when a home-made grenade launcher blew up in his face during an attempted attack on a police patrol Tuesday. The IRA, which wants to unite the province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic, described him as a "volunteer" on active duty.

McGuinness has been at the center of controversy over a British Broadcasting Corp. documentary on extremism in Northern Ireland, which the BBC board of governors decided to cancel after Home Secretary Leon Brittan asked that it be withdrawn.

McGuinness is an elected Sinn Fein member of the Northern Ireland Assemly, a provincial legislature with limited powers, and has been described in British media as the IRA's chief of staff.

Arab summit fails to endorse Hussein's proposal

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — The first Arab summit in three years ended Friday without giving Jordan's King Hussein the endorsement he wanted for a Palestinian-Jordanian proposal to seek peace with Israel.

The two-day summit's final resolution instead reiterated support for a plan adopted at the last Arab League summit meeting in Fez, Morocco, in 1982.

The Fez plan calls for an independent Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital and for peaceful coexistence of "all states of the region."

The Palestinian-Jordanian proposal speaks only of a Palestinian state in confederation with Jordan and makes no specific mention of Jerusalem.

Hussein had issued a plea for endorsement of the Palestinian-Jordanian peace proposal, calling it the "last feasible chance" to regain land occupied by Israel in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Morocco's King Hassan II called the emergency summit chiefly to discuss the Palestinian issue, the Palestinian-Jordanian agreement and pursuit of Arab unity.

Syria, Libya and three other Arab nations boycotted the session, which was attended by 16 delegations.

Chedli Klibi, secretary general of the Arab League, read a 15-minute statement outlining the summit's deliberations at the end of the meeting Friday.

The concluding statement expressed "appreciation" of the efforts of Hussein and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat to explain their peace proposal's "harmony" with the Fez plan.

But Klibi's statement went on to note the need for Arab consensus on any peace plan. Syria and Libya have severely criticized the Hussein-Arafat plan as a surrender to Israel.

"After extensively studying this matter from all its sides, we reiterate the need for Arabs to unanimously abide by the spirit and resolutions of the Fez plan," the statement said.

The summit's final statement did not, however, totally close the door on Hussein and Arafat pursuing their joint peace initiative.

Sources said Libya's delegates had demanded the summit condemn Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization during a preliminary meeting of Arab foreign ministers.

Lebanese kidnappers release two foreigners

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kidnappers in Lebanon have released two abducted foreigners, but there was no sign Friday that any of the other Western hostages would be released soon.

Kidnappers in southern Lebanon released a Canadian missionary after holding him for 12 hours Thursday, and the manager of ABC's Beirut office was freed in the capital after being held for five days.

Diplomats and intelligence sources in Beirut and Damascus said they had no expectation that seven Americans and four Frenchmen would be free soon. There had been a flurry of speculation following a Kuwaiti newspaper's report that they would be released Wednesday.

Informed sources in Beirut who spoke on condition they not be identified said Syria is playing a key role in efforts to secure release of some of the foreigners. The sources would not elaborate.

The seven Americans were seized in a series of abductions that began in March 1984. They and four French kidnap victims are believed held by Shiite Moslem extremists who demand the release of 17 comrades jailed in Kuwait for bombing the U.S. and French embassies there.

Syria, which supports Moslem militias in Lebanon and has become the real power in Lebanon after a decade of civil war, has been attempting to arrange their release, according to some sources. Syria's intercession was pivotal in gaining freedom for 39 Americans held 17 days after the TWA hijacking in June.

Robert P. Burkholder, 30, of Markham, Ontario, was released unharmed in the south Lebanon port city of Sidon late Thursday night, 12 hours after gunmen seized him in the market town of Nabatiyeh.

The state radio quoted the Canadian as saying his captors "wanted to know about the nature of my work in south Lebanon and I gladly told them. I think I was held for questioning, not kidnapped."

Burkholder administers relief projects in south Lebanon for the Mennonite Central Committee of Akron, Ohio. He and his family have lived in Nabatiyeh for three years.

Shakib Hmeidan, 50, Lebanese manager of the ABC television network's Beirut bureau, was released early Wednesday after being held for five days in an underground chamber by Moslem gunmen.

Speculation that some American and French captives would be freed arose Tuesday after a report in the Kuwaiti newspaper As-Siyassah.

The 11 kidnap victims are believed in the hands of Shiite extremist groups that use the name Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War.

Kuwait has refused to free the 17 people convicted of bombing the embassies in December 1983 despite the pressure of terror attacks, hijackings and kidnappings.

On-line psychologist offers counseling

By DAVE LARSEN
Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — There are those days — the Dow is up a fraction, but one's feelings are at a low for the year.

Until recently, as owners of personal computers can attest, one always had information about how to deal with the market. But when the parking spaces were all on the other side of the street, when life had been a week of Mondays, it did no good to turn to the keyboard.

That was until a few months ago. Now, courtesy of a clinical psychologist here, subscribers to a data-base service may have their personal problems dealt with. Appearing in green letters on a computer screen, in reply to a member's plaintive plea, is verbal therapy as to — perhaps — why that vending machine did not respond when one said thank you.

The Dear Abby of the byte brigade.

"For some time I had been feeling that I had more to say than I could get across to a day's worth of patients in the office," said John M. Schuster, a graduate of the California School of Professional Psychology.

It happened that at the beginning of the year, the 40-year-old Schuster became a subscriber for business purposes to the Source, an international information network for owners of personal computers.

"We have more than 62,000 subscribers around the world. They can get on their screens wire-service news stories, sports results, weather reports, stock quotes and can communicate directly with other members," spokeswoman Jo Anne Montgomery said by phone from McLean, Va., on behalf of the service, offered by Source Telecomputing Corp.

(FOR A ONE-TIME hookup fee of $50, a subscriber pays 36 cents a minute for 300 baud from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays. Baud is the speed at which the information is transmitted. During non-prime hours and on weekends the charge drops to 14 cents a minute, according to Montgomery.)

As has been observed, however, there is more to life than news, weather and sports. Such as possible problems with a marriage, the family, drugs — all the tapestries of 1985.

The only thing lacking, as always in this electronic age, was the personal touch. As of the spring, however, the Brave New World has heart.

"I wrote to the Source and told them I would be in their area on business in April," Schuster recalled. "I told them my profession, and suggested they might want having a psychologist on line who could talk via computer to other members."

And not only talk while on line, but later answer messages sent while he is not signed on.

The clinical psychologist was invited to stop by while in town. The outcome is that a personalized computer counseling service now is available.

"WELCOME, YOU are connected to The Source," said the green lettering on the computer screen in amid the miniature model of a sailing ship and a roll-top desk in the den of a rambling home in the San Fernando Valley.

The psychologist had just signed on with his private password and was on line. Anyone else among the other 62,000 users could confer with him immediately and directly.

In front of Schuster was an Apple II keyboard and computer connected via telephone lines, plus two disk drives and two monitors. "I have two monitors in the event one malfunctions," he explained. "It has happened in the past that I was electronically talking with someone, and something went on the fritz."

Awaiting him was a message someone had left. He typed that person's identification and added: "Hi! We are here now."

A beep sounded, signaling that the other party was ready to confer.

"So I see," came the reply. "The computer is still working."

The other party, on the East Coast, had already been advised that a visitor was observing the exchanges on the screen. "Do you have a problem today?" the clinical psychologist asked his fellow subscriber via the keyboard.

"I had a 3-year-old who wouldn't want to leave Mom for any reason, such as to be with baby-sitters, or at nursery school," was the problem.

Schuster's fingers began moving on the Apple: "I would suggest that you take the child to school and stay with the child for a couple days. Then day by day, spend a little bit less time at the school...kind of ease out of it gradually."

IF A SUBSCRIBER does not have anything bothersome at the moment, he or she may want to hit Schuster's ID number (BCR711) and peruse the weekly column, Focus on Psychology, six of which are on file at any given time.

They have such titles as "Gamblers' Brain Chemistry," "Saying Goodbys," "New Help for Children" and "The Mail Bag" (anonymous or first-name-only samples of problems and advice already dealt with).

Schuster, who has 10 years of private practice in his field, said he was paid for the columns, but there was no extra charge to a subscriber for the new personalized service. "One of them, after an ongoing dialogue with me, said he would be out here from the East and wanted an appointment in my office, which was arranged."

Subscribers to the data-base outfit have been apprised in its new-events listings of the personal service available, and the psychologist sometimes mentions it in his columns.

Upon coming home at night, the routine for Schuster, who also teaches at Pepperdine University in Malibu, is to immediately turn on his machine. Usually awaiting him on the screen are messages transmitted when he was not on line, from someone, somewhere, seeking assistance.

"In the past, I accidentally erased some," Schuster said. "For this reason, the first thing I now do is transfer everything onto my own floppy disk."

Then it is time for dinner with his wife, Louise, also a clinical psychologist, and their 11-year-old son, John. Then back to the Apple to answer the messages.

"There is no mail involved in this, no 22-cent stamp required," he pointed out.

French artisans take up new flame

NEW YORK (AP) — Ten French artisans have begun fashioning the flame for the Statue of Liberty's new torch, hammering sheets of copper to form the shell of the flickering symbol of freedom.

The workers from Les Metalliers Champenois, who started their job earlier this week, used a model based on photographs of the original 19th century design for the flame.

The new flame will have a gilded copper shell that will reflect sunlight. Artificial light also will be shone on the flame to illuminate it.

Windows were cut into the skin of the old flame, which had a light inside to guide ships. The rusty, wind-battered old torch was removed from the statue's upraised right arm last year.

VOTE FOR WATER

Saturday, August 10, Vote FOR X Water FOR Midland.

Midland Depends on Water, Lots of It!

Midland depends on water for its economic life. More than water to wash cars, water lawns or do dishes, water is essential to the quality of our life and our existing industry, plus, the key to new industry. Without water, and plenty of it, we could quite literally "dry up and blow away".

Since 1970, water used in Midland has grown to over 21 million gallons of water each day. Peak demand skyrockets to over 38 million gallons per day! In fifteen years, if we assume less than predicted growth, peak demand for water could exceed the capacity of our existing water supplies — even when they are fully developed!

The Proposition.

On Saturday, August 10, you will have the opportunity to insure the uninterrupted water future of Midland for generations — by voting FOR the last renewable water source ever to be constructed in West Texas! By voting FOR Proposition One, you will authorize the Midland City Council to contract with the Colorado River Municipal Water District to:

1. Share in the engineering and construction costs to build the Stacy Reservoir on the Colorado River near San Angelo. Our share of the cost will be 16.54% or approximately $11,125,000. We would also share the same percentage of the administrative and operating costs of the reservoir.
2. Share in the project by receiving 16.54%, or 15,000 acre feet of water from the reservoir each year. That means that by 1991, the anticipated date of water delivery from Stacy, Midland could be assured of 4.8 BILLION gallons of water each year — well into the next century.

The Costs.

How much will this water independence cost? About fifteen cents per thousand gallons. That means for an average water bill (not including sewer and trash collection) of $37.70 per month, the proposed water contract would add $2.70.

Please Vote.

The Water For Midland Committee encourages all registered Midland voters to "Vote FOR Water FOR Midland" on Saturday, August 10. Participation in this last renewable surface water resource is vital to the future of Midland.

VOTE FOR X WATER FOR MIDLAND!

Stacy Reservoir Facts and Figures

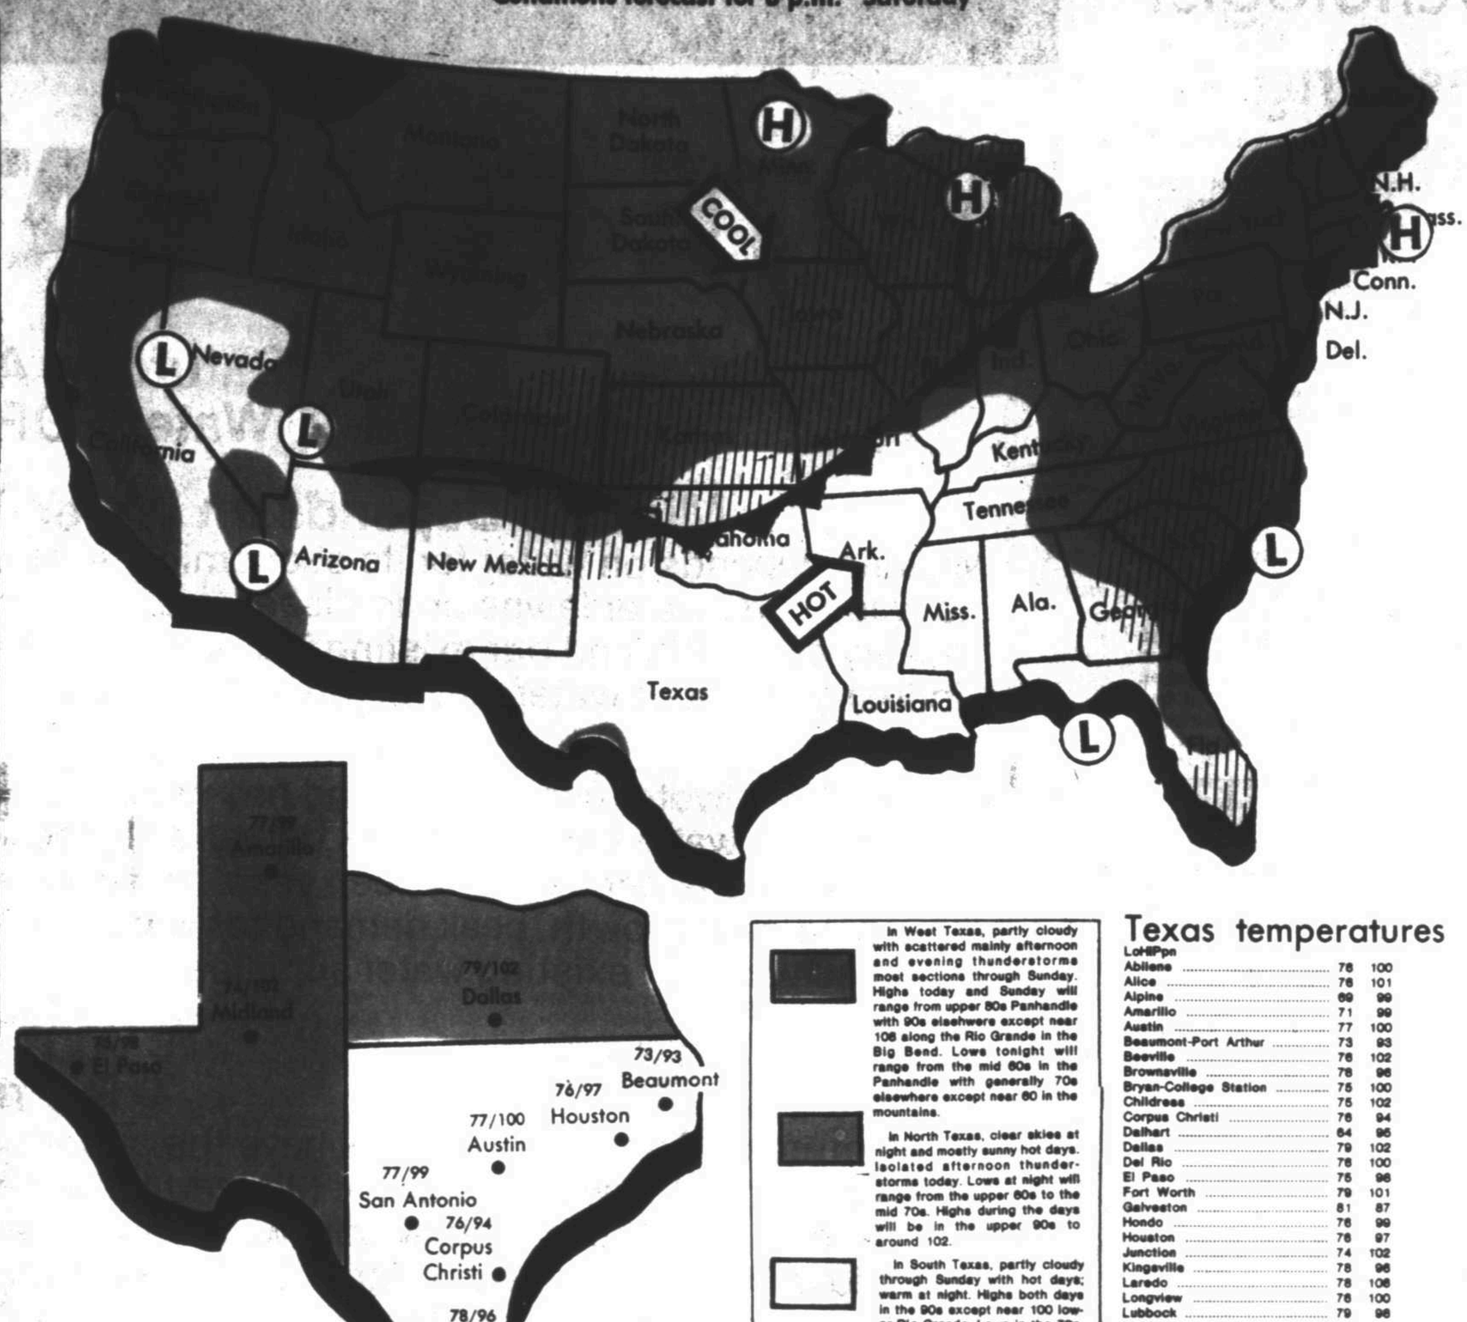

1. Present flow of the Colorado River is 193,000 acre feet per year (average over last 40 years).
2. Stacy Lake will hold 554,000 acre feet of water when full.
3. Stacy Lake should fill up in three years following completion.
4. Stacy Lake will have 200 miles of shoreline for recreation and sport.
5. Five recreation areas of 200 acres each are planned for the public.
6. Stacy Lake will cover about 19,200 acres when full.
7. Water quality will be approximately twice better than current Midland water supply.

Weekend weather may be cooler

From Staff Reports

Anyone weary of daily high temperatures over 100 can look forward to this weekend, when afternoon highs will linger in the relative cool of the mid-90s.

If that's not enough relief from the heat, there's also a slight chance of thunderstorms, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport. Winds today will be from the south and southeast at 5-15 mph. Tonight's low will be near 70, and skies will be partly cloudy all weekend.

Friday's high of 102 was 2 degrees below the record for the date of 104, set in 1947, while the overnight low of 74 was 11 degrees above the 1975 record of 63.

STATE

Most of Texas sweltered under clear skies Friday afternoon as upper level high pressure dominated the state, although a weak cold front nosed into the Panhandle.

The airmass over the state was drier than on previous afternoons with most of the state devoid of precipitation, the National Weather Service said.

By 4 pm, the mercury had reached the century mark from North Texas to the South Plains and southern Trans Pecos. Similar temperatures were found along the lower Rio Grande plains. Wichita Falls and Cotulla had each hit 104, while Galveston recorded an 87 under a seabreeze.

An area of showers and thunderstorms developed along the cold front. Other isolated thunderstorms were in the Trans Pecos, and a very heavy storm rumbled southwest of Pecos, the weather service said.

Wind was from the south to southeast at 10 to 15 mph across most of the state but shifted to the northwest north of the front.

NATION

Strong winds blew across the Great Plains on Friday while showers and strong thunderstorms were scattered from the upper Mississippi Valley and the northern Great Lakes across the central Plains.

Marble-sized hail was reported near Stark, Minn., northeast of Minneapolis. Winds gusted to 57 mph at Brookings, S.D.

Winds across the Plains were generally between 20 and 35 mph, gusting to 49 mph in North Platte, Neb.

Strong winds from storms downed large trees at Mount Pleasant, S.C., southeast of Charleston. Showers and thunderstorms, some with heavy rain, were also reported from the central Atlantic coast across the southeast to the Louisiana coast.

$50 putter saves Trevino from PGA woes

DENVER (AP) — Lee Trevino, intent, grinding and not-so-very-merry, followed his $50 putter to a 3-under-par 68 and a one-stroke lead Friday in the second round of the PGA national championship.

"The only reason I'm in this position is the putter. I putted the eyes out of it," said Trevino, the defending title-holder in this, the last of the season's Big Four golf events.

And it was for the same reason, the putter, that Jack Nicklaus found himself in a position that has become increasingly and unhappily familiar — buried back in the pack.

"Aggravating, frustrating, disappointing, downright lousy," Nicklaus said after a 75 that sent him from two strokes off the lead to a spot seven shots back at the halfway point of the 67th PGA.

"I don't think I ever missed so many short putts," said Nicklaus, who has won a record 17 major professional titles but nothing at all in more than a year.

While Nicklaus dropped back, Tom Watson hung in there.

Watson, needing this title to become only the fifth man to score a career sweep of the Grand Slam tournaments, fought his way to a one-under-par 70 that put him at the tournament halfway point at 137, five under par and only three back.

"I'm in good position," Watson said. "I'm playing reasonably well. But Lee is gonna be a hard man to beat. Anytime he gets in front, he's a hard man to beat," Watson said.

Trevino, like Nicklaus a 45-year-old, completed two trips over the Cherry Hills Country Club course in 134, eight shots under par.

But he was strangely subdued and distant — not at all the brash and brassy "Merry Mex" of his younger days.

"I don't think I'm hitting the ball all that great. I really don't. I'm not hitting it nearly as good as I did at Shoal Creek (last year in the PGA). Not nearly," Trevino said.

"But I've had 55 putts in two rounds and that makes up for a lot of bad hitting," he said, then flashed an infectious grin.

"If I can shoot two more rounds in the 60s, I think I can win. That'd be eight straight rounds in the 60s in the PGA. If I did that, they ought to give me the PGA, let me take Mickey Powell's (PGA president) place."

Then he turned serious again.

"I don't care about that. I just want to win again," he said.

Fred Couples, an easy-going, long-hitting, low-key man who once won the Tournament Players Championship, became Trevino's closest challenger when he shot a bogey-free round of 65 that lifted him to within a single shot of the lead at 135.

"I made the birdies I had to make to get back in the thick of it," Couples said.

He was followed by former U.S. Open champion Hubert Green and first round leader Doug Tewell at 136.

Tewell, who set a course record with his opening 64, went to 72 under gray, threatening skies Friday afternoon.

Green, fighting his way out of a deep, protracted slump, scored six birdies, including four in a row, in his round of 69.

"I died two years ago. That was no fun. Now I'm back. And it's fun again," Green said.

Watson and Peter Jacobsen were next at 137. Jacobsen matched par 71.

Nicklaus, now needing two very good rounds if he is to achieve a sixth PGA title, was tied at 141 with Masters champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany at 141. Langer had a 72 that included a double bogey on the 18th hole.

U.S. Open champion Andy North, a former winner at Cherry Hills, failed to qualify for the final two rounds. He had a 76 that put him at 148.

Curtis Strange, winner of three titles and $527,581 already this season, also was a casualty at 76-153.

Trevino, using the same putter with which he won his second PGA title last year, dropped birdie putts of 25 and 15 feet on the sixth and eighth holes and one-putted for par two times on the front side.

On the back, he holed from 8-10 feet for birdies on the 13th and 17th and then, twirling that putter purchased for $50 in The Netherlands last year, he drilled home a 10-footer to save par on the 18th.

"Not a bad investment for $50," he said.

Lads like Kleine hold Faust's fate

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

It's not true, that rumor that Wally Kleine didn't use up his high school eligibility because they couldn't find a uniform to fit a 6-8, 255-pounder.

Everybody knows how some kids get promoted in school because they get too big for the desks. Same with Wally Kleine, whispered the gossipmongers. "They didn't have a uniform big enough to fit him in high school. Such a tragedy. He still had a couple of years of football eligibility left. But when you get too big for the uniforms, you've got to move on."

Kidding, of course, but Midland High fans and coaches can only wonder what it might have been like if the big tight end had stayed around for another year of high school ball. And you can't blame them.

Notre Dame came recruiting, despite his tender years, and redshirted him that first year.

Kleine and Van Pearcy, a high school rival at Andrews and one of Texas' standout athletes, cast their fortune with the Irish. Van Pearcy, now going for his MBA, quit football last year to concentrate on track. While Wally has been working in Midland this summer, Van Pearcy has been roustabouting in Andrews.

So now only Wally remains in the program, but he is a fine broth of a lad in the defensive forward wall of the Irish, an academic senior, but a junior in athletic eligibility, and Tuesday he will be off on the adventure of a lifetime.

It's a year in which Notre Dame, coming off a 7-5 record, is expected to live up to the promise of last year's thunderous finish.

For beleaguered Gerry Faust, it's the year of decision. His five-year contract runs out and Notre Dame fans have made no secret that they want more than promises of future success. It will take something big to keep Gerry under the Golden Dome.

KLEINE, recruited by Faust in his first year as coach, observes, "Coach Faust is a class individual. There is tremendous pressure at Notre Dame. I think he handles it well. He is very optimistic about the season and so am I."

Kleine, and Faust, perhaps have good reason. Despite that 7-5 overall record, Notre Dame finished the regular season with wins over LSU, Navy, Penn State (44-7) and USC (a no-doubt 19-7). The Irish were underdogs against all but Navy and the Middies, oddly, proved the toughest to scuttle, 18-17.

The blazing finish brought a Hula Bowl date with SMU, the best team in the SWC at the season's end, regardless of who was in the Cotton Bowl, and a 24-20 loss.

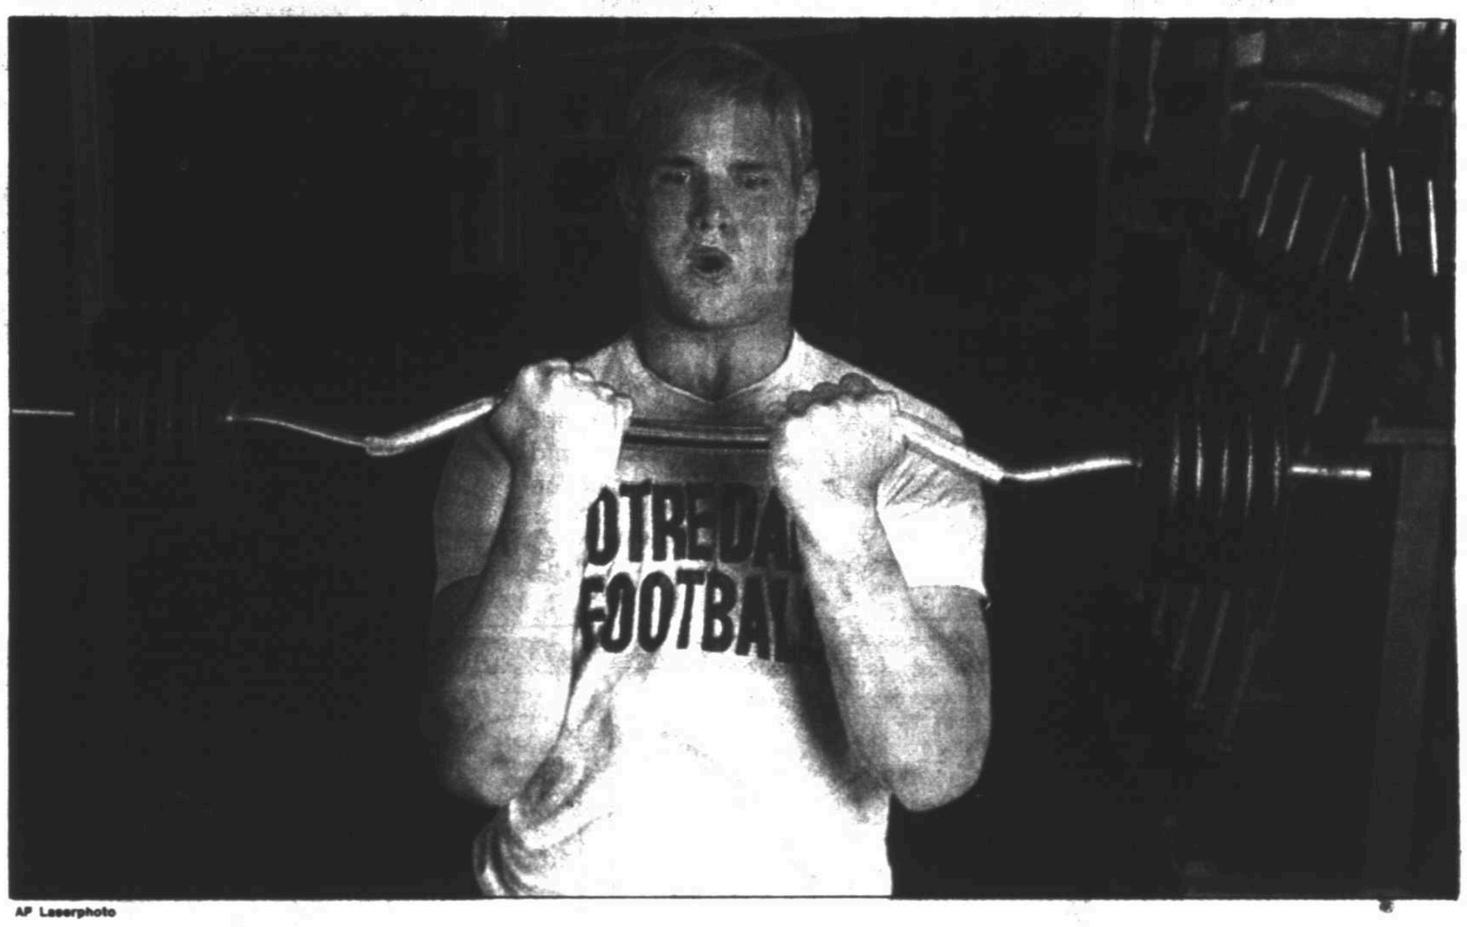

From that team, 15 starters return, "And we return the exact same coaching staff from a year ago and that gives us continuity. Now if we can just stay healthy..."

"Besides that we worked hard in spring training and the squad had a better attitude than I've ever seen on the team."

EARLY SEASON losses were 23-21 to Purdue and 36-32 to then unbeaten South Carolina. Even winning all the close ones, Notre Dame would have been 10-2 and at Notre Dame, that still spells alumni pressure. Just ask Rockne, Leahy, Parseghian and Devine, all of whom produced national champions, and still were not insulated from the demands of the job.

In every case, it's as much the pressure the coach puts on himself as the pressure from the alumni, not to mention the world's biggest subway alumni, that takes its toll in the long run.

Kleine reveals as much in describing the thrill of playing for a Notre Dame team. "A lot of responsibility goes with wearing that Gold helmet."

AP Laserphoto

Former Midland High great Wally Kleine pumps some iron at the Memorial Stadium weight room as he prepares to return for another season of Notre Dame football. Kleine will be a junior for the Fighting Irish.

But pressure or no pressure, Kleine, who two springs ago was named the most improved player in spring training and this last spring was named the best defensive player in spring training, has never regretted his decision.

"Football at Notre Dame has been everything I thought it would be...the tradition, the people, the opponents....Penn State, LSU, USC, all the big names. I've been a Notre Dame fan since I was born, through my dad (Bill), and we even came up to see a couple of games when I was a kid.

"One thing I've learned. We play 11 teams and all are as tough as hell because if they beat Notre Dame, that's it. That makes their season. Air Force even took some days off when they beat us."

And an amen, or better an omen, to that might be that Wally, judging by this year's schedule, hasn't seen anything yet.

"WE OPEN with Michigan at Michigan where they seat 105,000. I think it's on ABC-TV."

After that comes Michigan State, a neighborhood scrap in which anything can happen; Purdue, a real boilermaker that will give you a hangover even if you manage to down it, and, what has turned out to be toughest of all, Air Force.

An illustration of the pitfalls in those first three games is dramatically illustrated by 1983. Notre Dame opened against Purdue with a 52-6 win. National championship coming up. The next week breather Michigan State upset the Irish 28-22. And then there's Air Force.

AFA has beaten Notre Dame three times in a row and it's getting embarrassing. "The game is at Colorado Springs this year and the altitude will be a factor," adds Kleine.

"We've beaten USC the last two years, and even though the game will be at home, they will be ready for us." USC comes right after much improved Army and before a suicidal finish against Navy, Mississippi, Penn State, LSU and Miami.

Tony Dorsett won't be making this type of move in Dallas' first exhibition game today against Green Bay. He still isn't in camp.

Life batters Tony Dorsett in twilight of NFL career

DALLAS (AP) — Life is battering Tony Dorsett just when he should be enjoying the twilight of a brilliant National Football League career with the Dallas Cowboys.

Within a year, his father died, his marriage fell apart, and the Internal Revenue Service attached his $21,000 monthly paychecks.

Now, the Cowboys' captain is feuding with the team, saying he's been double-crossed and seeking justice with a Randy White-style, multimillion-dollar contract or a trade.

He says the Cowboys paid him only $100,000 of a $662,000 signing bonus in 1977, and have been "spreading my financial business all over town."

THOSE FINANCES apparently have dwindled to the point where Cowboys' President Tex Schramm says the team hopes to help Dorsett so he "won't be a financial cripple when his playing days are over."

"It's always a disppointment when a player gets himself in that kind of position," he said.

Dorsett, 31, who hasn't received a paycheck since last October because of the IRS action, owed the agency $414,247.91 in back taxes plus interest because it disallowed some tax shelters he submitted.

A settlement has since been worked out, whereby Dorsett must pay $200,000 now and the rest within a year.

Bad investments also ate heavily into the $1.5 million in deferred payments Dorsett decided to take up front.

A divorce from Julie Ann Dorsett in February cost him $250,000 and his Mercedes. And his absence from the Cowboys' camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif. is costing him $1,000 a day in fines.

"I feel like I've gone about as far as I can with him," Coach Tom Landry said of the nine-year veteran. Landry also invoked the $1,000 a day fine last year when White missed all of training camp in a contract dispute.

The Cowboys didn't expect their star running back to be in Dallas Saturday when they open the exhibition season against Green Bay; Landry already has moved Dorsett's best friend, Ron Springs, to tailback.

Making it even more unlikely that he'll return soon is the fact that his current adviser is agent Howard Slusher, who was involved in the White holdout.

Dorsett is living in the Los Angeles area and has not been in touch with the team for several weeks.

BUT IN an interview published in the Aug. 12 issue of Sports Illustrated, he said: "I've just got to keep on keeping on."

"Tony Dorsett has not died. The IRS can't keep me down. I'm a realist, and I know life has its ups and downs. It's a new day every day," said the 1976 Heisman Trophy winner who led Pittsburgh to the national championship.

"Tony Dorsett has not died. The IRS can't keep me down. I'm a realist, and I know life has its ups and downs. It's a new day every day." Tony Dorsett

"The important thing is to surround yourself with a good team, people you can trust. But I can tell you they are hard to find. I've always said the only two things you have to do are pay taxes and die. I sure do know about them taxes."

Schramm, meanwhile, is trying to restructure Dorsett's seven-year, $2.7 million contract; he's in the fourth year of the deal worth $400,000 this season.

Dorsett wants a deal similar to White's, a $6.4 million deferred package that includes an annuities-type arrangement spread over 20 years.

"I've always been interested in helping Tony restructure his financial stability so he can leave football with pride and financial security," Schramm said.

The big question is whether Dorsett can concentrate on football once he gets past his financial problems.

"He won't be worth a dime this year," said one Cowboys' assistant who asked not to be identified.

However, quarterback Danny White said Dorsett seems to play best when he's under extreme stress, and the running back's 1984 final statistics seem to support that.

HE WAS sixth overall in the NFL in total yardage, with 1,648, and he was seventh overall in rushing with 1,174 yards on 302 carries for a 3.9 average.

"Tony has what all great athletes have, the ability to perform under the most adverse circumstances," said White. "He has the inner strength to handle the pressure and I think he can do it again."

Landry said he believed Dorsett could come back in time for the team's regular-season opener, Sept. 9, against the Washington Redskins — and play.

"He wouldn't have his timing or his competitive edge, but he could play because he knows our system so well," said Landry. "Of course, he wouldn't be in top condition."

What may be more difficult for Dorsett is getting back in the good graces of the Cowboys' organization.

His picture already has been replaced on the cover of this year's media guide. The new face?

Randy White.

Meanwhile, Dorsett will be replaced by his closest friend, Ron Springs, who started camp at fullback, during tonight's NFL exhibition game with the Green Bay Packers.

It's hard to tell baseball strike winners from losers

By TIM TUCKER
Cox News Service

NEW YORK - You want to know who won and who lost, right?

Even the contestants did not seem quite certain when the two-day-old major-league baseball strike was settled.

Don Fehr, executive director of the Major League Players Association: "I think both sides accepted some things they didn't think would be acceptable. It's a different kind of agreement. I don't know, we'll see how it works out."

Lee MacPhail, chief negotiator for management: "This won't go a great distance in solving our financial problems. It doesn't accomplish our objective of getting the clubs to a break-even point by '88. But it's a start - a good agreement, one we're happy with -and we'll go from here."

Let's go to the scoreboard, sports fans.

— Give the owners a point for getting the union to add a year to the length of service time required before a player can take a salary dispute to arbitration. Beginning in 1987, players will have to wait until they've completed three big-league seasons, instead of the current two. This is known in labor negotiation circles as a "giveback" - the players gave back a small part of something they had won in previous negotiations.

— Give the players a point for successfully fending off the owners' bid to limit the amount an arbitrator can award. If the owners had pushed through their proposal to limit awards to no more than double the previous year's salary, it would have eliminated the cases where arbitrators have given players 500, 600, 700, even 1,000 percent raises. It would have had a significant impact on the game's mad economics; it would have made the owners a clear winner of the dispute.

— Give the owners a point for getting the union to back far off its demand that the clubs continue to contribute the customary one-third of the national TV revenue to the players' pension fund. Because of the lucrative new TV contract, this would have meant an increase in the pension contribution from $15.5 million to $60 million per year. The owners would have no part of this, and the players wound up accepting $32.3 million (about 15 percent of the $220 million the clubs get annually from TV).

— Give the players a point for negotiating an agreement that essentially does nothing to change the economic environment of the game. It does not set a payroll ceiling, as the owners had proposed, and it does nothing else to prevent salaries from continuing to rise at their recent rates. With the loss of arbitration rights, some players might have to wait an extra year to cash in. Big deal.

— And give both sides a point for agreeing to eliminate two useless devices: The free agent re-entry draft and the compensation pool. The re-entry draft was a waste of time; now, free agents can simply negotiate with everyone. The compensation pool was the brilliant idea that resulted from the 1981 strike. Almost no one understood it, or what it was supposed to achieve, and both sides were ready to get rid of it.

So, who won?

Well, the owners won in the sense that they didn't do anything to further hurt themselves - possibly the first time they've negotiated with the Marvin Miller-Don Fehr union without getting hurt. They won in the sense that they are getting to keep 85 percent of the TV money for themselves and in the sense that they are going to have better negotiating leverage against players with two years of big-league experience.

Who lost?

Well, considering all they have, the players didn't really lose anything. They certainly lost none of the components that have helped drive the average salary from $50,000 to $363,000 in the last nine years. And while the players got only slightly more than half of the pension contribution they were seeking, they still got more than double the previous contribution.

The search for a winner takes us now to Edward Bennett Williams, the esteemed attorney, owner of the Baltimore Orioles and a member of the committee that set negotiating policy for the owners.

"If there isn't a winner, if both sides walk away with a certain measure of disappointment, then it must be a fair settlement," he said.

Could we leave it at that? Please.

KLEINE

Despite the coast-to-coast schedule, Kleine says it isn't as bad keeping up academically as it sounds. "We leave on Friday morning and come back after the game Saturday. Actually, the basketball team is gone two or three days a week and misses more school than we do."

LAST YEAR was Wally's coming of age, "Yes, I get a lot of double and triple teaming, but that opens up things for the linebackers." Last year in the tense 16-14 win over Missouri, a game carried on TV, the cameras showed Kleine the victim of a triple-team. He still managed to cause a fumble that turned the game around.

Although more is expected of Kleine each year, "The more you get to play, the more experience you get and the more comfortable you become. If there's one thing I dislike in South Bend....it's too cold. Ten to 12 feet of snow on the ground is too much for a West Texas boy."

Pinned down for the biggest thrill at Notre Dame thus far, "It's to be able to be a part of a marvelous tradition and the respect it brings. But for an individual experience, it was when we played USC in the Coliseum last season. That was something else, the crowd and that Trojan band and the way they come out in that slow dredge....."

And to top it off, Wally was named Chevrolet Player of the Game.

A major in business in history with two more seasons of eligibility, Kleine demurs at discussing his pro prospects, "Sure, I'd like to play if someone is interested, but it's a long way off and I'm just taking the games one at a time," which sounds like a football coach in the making.

Despite becoming Midland's first contribution to college football's most famous name, Wally hasn't forgotten his roots.

"What do you think about the Bulldogs' chances this fall?" he asks, "I saw the spring game and I am worried about their size."

Hey, Wally, at 6-8, 275, about the only size that can impress you any more is the USC offensive line.

Tulane player trial Monday

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The state Supreme Court refused Friday to give lawyers for John "Hot Rod" Williams more time to prepare for the former Tulane basketball star's trial.

"We're starting trial Monday," said Michael Green of Chicago, lead defense attorney in the case.

He said he and New Orleans attorneys Joel Loeffelholz and Alan Tusa were studying the high court's decision.

The lawyers had told state district Judge Alvin Oser they needed a delay because prosecutors had delayed their preparation by repeated haggling over what evidence they could see.

He refused to give them more time, and the Supreme Court upheld that ruling Friday.

Williams and nine others are accused of conspiring — for money and drugs — to shave points in 1985 Tulane basketball games against the University of Southern Mississippi, Memphis State University and Virginia Tech.

Prosecutors said the accused conspirators actually carried out their scheme in the games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State.

Two of Williams' teammates, Clyde Eades and Jon Johnson, were given immunity in exchange for their testimony in the case. A third, Bobby Thompson, and three non-playing students made plea bargains with prosecutors and also will testify agaianst Williams.

Quarterback hunting time

Coaches to take long, hard look

Associated Press

Mike Pagel or Art Schlichter? Danny White or Gary Hogeboom? Don Strock or Dan Marino?

Indianapolis Coach Rod Dowhower will flip a coin to decide whether Pagel or Schlichter starts at quarterback Saturday night in the Colts' National Football League exhibition opener against Seattle. Dallas' Tom Landry will just observe his team's top two quarterbacks — White and Hogeboom — go at it, against Green Bay. And he will throw in little-known Steve Pelluer for variety.

Miami Coach Don Shula wishes he had a choice between Marino and Strock in the Dolphins' game against Minnesota.

The first full weekend of the NFL preseason began with two Friday night games — Buffalo at Detroit and Chicago at St. Louis.

Twelve games are scheduled Saturday, including New Orleans at New England, Kansas City at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh at Tampa Bay, Washington at Atlanta, Philadelphia at the New York Jets, Cleveland at San Diego, the New York Giants at Denver, San Francisco at the Los Angeles Raiders, and Houston at the Los Angeles Rams.

Pagel and Schlichter both started for the Colts last year under Coach Frank Kush. Dowhower's in charge now, and he hasn't decided who will be his starter. So he plans a coin flip before the usual coin flip that starts a game.

"I have some conclusions, but I don't let it go too far," Dowhower said of his quarterback situation. "The bottom line is what these fellas do on the field. We're out there to win. This team has to learn how to win. Whoever is in there has to do the job."

The Colts started Pagel nine times and Schlichter five times during their 4-12 campaign last season. Pagel passed for 1,426 yards and eight touchdowns; Schlichter, returning from a year's suspension for gambling, had 702 yards and three TDs.

The Seahawks, coming off a 12-4 season, will give everyone playing time, Coach Chuck Knox said. Running back Curt Warner's knee isn't well enough yet for him to play, but Knox said he has looked good in practice.

At Irving, Texas, the veteran White has been given the Cowboys' starting assignment for the first half; Hogeboom will start the second. The Cowboys' long-running quarterback duel will be short, though — Landry wants Pelluer, Washington's Rose Bowl hero three years ago, to get some playing time.

"He's worked hard and we believe now he's an NFL quarterback," Landry said of Pelluer, a second-year pro who has yet to play in the NFL.

Among the missing will be Cowboys tailback Tony Dorsett, a training camp holdout trying to straighten out his financial problems, and Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey, who has back trouble. Coach Forrest Gregg said second-year pro Randy Wright will start in place of Dickey, with Scott Brunner in relief.

Dorsett's best friend, Ron Spring, will start in his place.

Shula opens his 16th season in Miami without his record-setting quarterback, Marino.

Marino left training camp two weeks ago and wants to renegotiate his contract, so long-time backup Strock will start.

"He hasn't played much in the past two years, and he needed a lot of snaps in the preseason. Now he'll get them," Shula said.

Much of Miami's Super Bowl lineup is nursing injuries or not yet in camp.

The Rams also have a holdout running back in Eric Dickerson, who set an all-time NFL rushing record of 2,105 yards last year. Dickerson wants a contract extension. Barry Redden will take his place.

The Oilers, who lost 21-20 to the Giants last week in the NFL Hall of Fame game, have new running backs Butch Woolfolk and Mike Rozier, plus promising quarterbacks Warren Moon and Oliver Luck.

Tampa Bay has four quarterbacks in camp, including veteran Steve DeBerg, who will start for new Coach Leeman Bennett. Byron Braggs will get a look as a possible replacement for All-Pro lineman Lee Roy Selmon, sidelined at least through October with a herniated spinal disc.

"Winning is important every time we go out on the field," said Bennett, who has inherited a 6-10 club and is debuting against Pittsburgh's Chuck Noll, in his 17th year as coach.

NFL Exhibitions

Cowboys to eye Pelluer

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Danny White-Gary Hogeboom quarterback duel for the Dallas Cowboys will be brief in Saturday night's National Football League preseason game against Green Bay to allow young Steve Pelluer some experience.

Pelluer, Washington's Rose Bowl hero three years ago against Iowa, will play the second half against the Packers.

"Steve deserves a shot in the preseason," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "He's worked hard and we believe now he's an NFL quarterback."

Pelluer, a fifth-round draft choice, has never played in an NFL game, preseason or otherwise.

White will play the first period and Hogeboom the second.

Some 50,000 fans were expected for the 8 p.m. kickoff despite temperatures predicted to be in the high 90s in Texas Stadium.

Veteran quarterback Lynn Dickey was originally schedule to start for the Packers, but missed Thursday afternoon practice with back spasms. Green Bay Coach Forrest Gregg said Randy Wright, a second-year player from the University of Wisconsin, would probably start in Dickey's place and then give way to Scott Brunner, who was acquired from Denver in the off-season.

Dickey said he injured his back and right hip while doing some extra throwing Wednesday.

Both the Cowboys and the Packers will be without their starting running backs.

Tony Dorsett, who says the Cowboys have "double-crossed" him on financial dealings, is a training camp holdout.

Packer running back Eddie Lee Ivery broke his right thumb in practice this week and will miss the next four to six weeks.

Dorsett will be replaced by his closest friend, Ron Springs, who started camp at fullback.

Harlan Huckleby will step into Ivery's spot.

Fourth-round draft choice Robert Lavette of Georgia Tech will also see heavy duty for the Cowboys, who plan to use a lot of rookies.

Gregg also has planned liberal substitution.

"We want to win every game, pre-season or otherwise," said Gregg. "At the same time we want to play the people who are good enough to make this team. The only way you can do that is you've got to play them in games and give them an opportunity to express themselves."

Dallas beat the Packers 31-17 last year in Gregg's coaching debut and downed them 20-6 during the regular season.

Returning to Dallas is always something of a homecoming for Gregg. He was raised in Birthright, Texas, a small community 90 miles east of Dallas.

He was an All-American at Southern Methodist University and earned All-Pro and Hall of Fame credentials playing for the Packers 14 years. He played for the Cowboys in his final season.

Houston's Sagemont-Beverly Hills wins state LL title

WACO, Texas (AP) — Dale Stanton hit a three-run homer in the third inning to spark Sagemont-Beverly Hills of Houston to its second state Little League title with a 7-4 win over Baytown West.

Sagemont-Beverly Hills, which took the title Thursday night, also was the state champion in 1983. The three-run homer by Stanton made the score 5-1 and Sagemont-Beverly Hills scored two other runs in the fifth inning with an RBI double by Chris McKinley.

Chadwick wins it with Fischer's help

From Staff Reports

Pitcher Ray Chadwick was having trouble finding the strike zone Friday night, but with a litle help from Todd Fischer, the righthander ended the Angels four-game losing streak with a 2-1 Texas League victory over Beaumont.

Chadwick, now 3-2, had control problems all night and walked six batters, threw three wild pitches and committed a throwing error on a wild pick-off attempt, but he also helped himself by striking out six in allowing just one Beaumont run in six and one-third innings. Relief ace Fischer helped Chadwick out of a jam in the seventh inning and worked out of one of his own in the ninth to earn his 13th save of the season in two and two-thirds innings of scoreless relief.

David Heath hit a solo home run to start Midland's two run seventh and Madril followed Heath with a single and moved to second on a fielder's choice by Doug Davis. Shortstop Greg Steen eventually brought Madril home with an RBI single for the winning run.

Brown-Hughes of Midland defeated Shakey's of San Angelo, 15-0, in an opening round game that was called after four innings. Fast Freddy's of Midland defeated Rosa's Cantina 11-9.

The Avianca Loose Laces of Midland beat the San Angelo Bulldogs with a run in the first extra inning to win 11-10. The Slammer, also of Midland, whipped Big Spring Quest 7-0 to conclude opening round action as of 11 p.m.

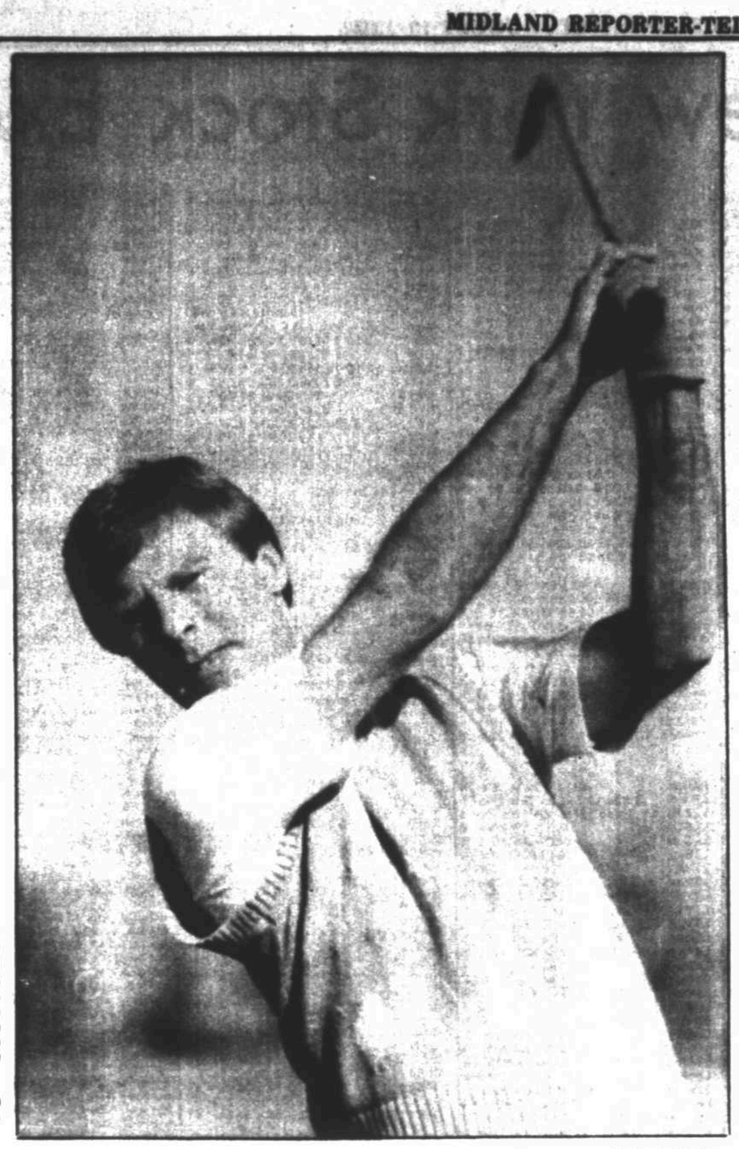

First round action was to continue through the wee hours this morning with more first round games slated at 8 a.m. today.

The championship game will be held Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Bill Williams Complex.

Rice schedules SWTS

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) — Southwest Texas State University has announced the signing of a two-year contract to play Rice in football, with games at Rice Stadium in Houston on Sept. 27, 1986, and Sept. 26, 1987.

The games will be Southwest Texas' first against a Southwest Conference school since 1923 when the Bobcats defeated Rice 19-6. The two teams also played in 1920, with Rice winning 48-0.

It's been a tough year for Ben Crenshaw on the PGA tour. He's hoping swings like this will bring him around.

It's been tough year for Ben Crenshaw

AUSTIN (AP) — For golfer Ben Crenshaw, 1985 has been a very tough year.

Since this year's PGA tour started in January, the Austin golfer has earned just $14,675. He ranks 151st on the money list.

He has entered 19 events, missing the cut in 12, including six in a row. He's been disqualified twice. His best finish was 18th.

"I feel like waking up into 1986. I've lost all confidence. I'm cursed this year," Crenshaw says.

In April 1984, Crenshaw won the Masters, finally taking a major title. But after winning $201,000 by April 30 last year, he finished with $270,989.

Crenshaw and many others blamed his 1984 slump on a lack of concentration resulting from post-Masters celebrations and the divorce he and his former wife, Polly, were going through.

But in January, he said the slate was clean.

"I feel at ease now," he said then.

But his condition has worsened, both psychologically and physically. He worries constantly and has been unable to regain the 10 pounds he has lost since the Masters. Once a sturdy 5-foot-9, 170 pounds, Crenshaw now is a frail 160-pounder.

"My metabolism has changed," he said.

Weakened by the weight loss, Crenshaw has averaged 249 yards off the tee, 162nd among tour pros.

Brent Buckman, a friend who will be the head pro at the new Barton Creek Club, says Crenshaw really wasn't mentally ready when the season began.

"We all (friends) felt this wasn't going to be a good year. We felt he still had so much on his mind. He's just hanging on, trying to overcome himself," Buckman said.

Crenshaw speaks of the frustration.

"I wake up every day feeling well and then I play badly. It's my 13th year and I should know about this game. But everything has gone wrong and it adds up. I've missed (hotel and airplane) reservations, bad business deals. All I can do is laugh about it."

More than a month ago, the last time he was home, Crenshaw visited Dr. Richard Coop, an educational psychologist at the University of North Carolina who works part time at the Academy of Golf at Austin's Hills of Lakeway.

"Coop pointed out some things, like I'm a very soft-hearted person. My mom died suddenly in 1974 and I've gone through life missing her. Maybe I just worry about things too much, think too much. But I'm 33 and can't change," Crenshaw said.

Fellow Austin resident and touring pro Tom Kite says Crenshaw likely will have to change.

"I'll bet he'd like to give up some niceness for cockiness," Kite says. "You have to have a cocky attitude to win. Most good golfers do. And I don't mean that as a derogatory term. When he was playing well, he was cocky. You need more than just a nice swing."

Crenshaw also is having trouble putting, once one of the strongest aspects of his game. He ranks 140th on the greens, averaging more than 30 putts per round.

"I consider myself one of the best putters in the world. Standing over the ball I'm confident. But I've seen so many putts miss that it hurts," he said.

Bear 'downright lousy'

DENVER (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, once the Golden Bear of golf, was brief and to the point in explaining his four-over-par 75 Friday that dropped him seven strokes off the pace at the halfway point of the 67th PGA Championship.

"Aggravating, frustrating, disappointing, downright lousy," he said.

Nicklaus, a five-time winner of this championship whose last major title was the 1980 PGA, opened Thursday with a five-under-par 66, which put him only two strokes behind first-round leader Doug Tewell. But instead of making a move to the top, Nicklaus fell back.

He had four bogeys and no birdies in his second round.

"I really didn't play much different from yesterday," he said. "I was just a foot off every green and a foot off every fairway, it seemed. And I did not do a good job with the putter."

Nicklaus needed 34 putts, including three putts at No. 17, after reaching the difficult par-five in two.

Jack Nicklaus

"I hit a one-iron to the fringe, but there was a big gob of mud on the ball and I left my first putt six feet short," Nicklaus said. "That's the kind of thing I had all day.

"I pitched the ball beautifully, but I missed a lot of short putts. It's the first time in a long time I've missed that many short ones."

Nicklaus parred his first seven holes, but then bogeyed the eighth, ninth, 12th and 13th.

"I had no bogeys here on Wednesday (in a practice round) or Thursday," he noted.

Nicklaus, 45, said he felt he "played well enough to have shot a decent score. You would have thought I could make a couple birdies. I could have had a 72, at least, but instead had 75."

"Now, I have to shoot a couple of good rounds. If I do, I could still win it. I've got to feel the players will back up a little bit. Cherry Hills makes you do that. It will play tougher (the final two rounds)."

Nicklaus, who after his round spent a half-hour on the practice tee and putting green, said he was "in the same exact position I was in in 1960" at the U.S. Open here. Nicklaus, then an amateur, recalled he was seven strokes behind second-round leader Mike Souchak that year. This time, he trails Lee Trevino by seven.

Arnie still magic on 18th

DENVER (AP) — He was merely trying to make the cut this time, not polishing off a charge.

But there always has been something special about Arnold Palmer's arrival on an 18th green.

His familiar stroll in gear, Palmer arrived Friday at the 18th green at Cherry Hills Country Club in typical fashion — tugging at his pants and at the heartstrings of anyone who can tell the difference between a wedge and a one-iron.

A bogey on the treacherous 491-yard, par-four finishing hole left Palmer with a 36-hole total of 147, and in a precarious position in his bid to play two more rounds in the only PGA major tournament he never has won.

With nearly one-third of the field having matched or broken par in the opening round, Palmer knew he would need some help from the weather or Cherry Hills' slick greens and tight fairways to survive the cut.

"There aren't too many more PGAs left for me," said Palmer, who will turn 56 next month.

Ironically, his failure to stay close to the leaders could partly have been due to the nostalgia that has accompanied Palmer throughout this week.

It was at Cherry Hills that Palmer drove the 346-yard, par-four first hole en route to a final-round 65 and the U.S. Open title in 1960.

The No. 1 tee was returned to its original position for this year's PGA, and Palmer would not disappoint the crowds that demanded that tradition be served.

He went against the percentages and with the driver the first two rounds, coming up just short of the green both days.

Lee Trevino had said prior to the tournament that Palmer would have no option on which club to take out of his bag on No. 1, and the man who has won 61 tour events in a brilliant career that spans 30 years, agreed.

"The crowd would have been disappointed," he said.

In reality, Palmer's latest bid in the PGA died early. He played the first five holes Thursday in five-over-par en route to an opening round 75.

"The first five holes yesterday killed me," Palmer said after his round Friday. "If I par them, I'm not pushing so hard, I'm not having to play catch-up."

Palmer conceded the emotion and memories of his 1960 U.S. Open victory on the same course may have played a role in his poor start, but then quickly noted, "I certainly don't want to use that as an excuse."

"It's just that it would have been a little more nostalgic had I been able to play better," he said.

And for a while Friday, it was like old times for Palmer and his Army.

After going two-over through 10 holes, Palmer had four straight one-putt holes. He saved par from about 12 feet on the par-three No. 12, outdrove playing partners Gary Player and Bobby Nichols with a perfect shot on the 387-yard, par-four 13th and drilled a wedge to within four feet of the hole for an easy birdie.

He parlayed a driver and a three-iron into another birdie at the tough, 470-yard 14th, and when he saved par from a bunker at the par-three 15th, someone in the gallery whispered, "He still has a little magic left."

For Suzanne Church of Colorado Springs, who said she had idolized Palmer "at least since 1952," the magic still was there.

"I'm in love with him," she said. "Have been for as long as I can remember. He cares about the fans and he's done so much for the game."

Palmer went on to par the 16th and 17th holes before the length and right side bunker on 18 kept him from finishing at par for the day.

Mere water doesn't slow Lopez

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Nancy Lopez shook off a rain delay, recovered from a water hazard and repelled several challengers Friday to post a 5-under-par 67 and a four-shot lead midway through the $210,000 Henredon Classic LPGA tournament.

Lopez has a two-day total of 133, the lowest 36-hole total in the five years of the Henredon Classic. Her score is four strokes up on Jane Geddes, who followed her first day of 70 with a 5-under-par 67 on the waterlogged Willow Creek Golf Club course.

"It was pretty much a day like Thursday," said Lopez, who opened the tournament with a 66. "I felt really consistent with my shot-making. After the rain delay, I struggled a little bit. Finally, I started to hit the ball well again and it just all came back to me."

With five holes under her belt, Lopez and about half the field had to endure a 30-minute shower that dumped three-fourths of an inch of rain on the course. Once the rains subsided, Lopez continued her assault and promptly ran into trouble.

She pushed her tee shot on the ninth hole into a water hazard and took a one-shot penalty for a bogey.

Lopez, the second leading money winner on the tour, got that stroke back when she hit her second shot on the 10th hole within inches of the cup and birdied.

"I didn't hit a good tee shot. I was just trying to get the momentum back," she said. "I told my caddy that I think I found it."

Lopez missed a birdie at 12 when she was short on a 5-foot putt, but made up for that, too, with a birdie at the 13th hole and another birdie on her closing hole.

"I just went out there and played the best I could," Lopez said. "I'm hitting the ball real solid. The only problem I had today was that I lost it a little after the rain delay."

Geddes, celebrating her second anniversary on the tour, has three second-place finishes to her credit, including the Boston Five and duMaurier tourneys in the last three weeks.

A bogey on her final hole after a poor tee shot kept her from getting closer, and also she missed an eagle opportunity by inches at the seventh hole. But she was more than happy to be in position to challenge for her third straight tournament.

Dale Eggeling, who was tied with Lopez after both posted opening rounds of 6-under par 66, climbed to a 1-over-par 73 for a two-round total of 139.

SMU will appeal NCAA's no scholarship ruling

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University football coach Bobby Collins said Friday the school will appeal an NCAA penalty that reportedly will bar football scholarships next year and keep the Mustangs from bowls and television appearances for two years.

Collins said that school officials would reserve comment until after an appeal was presented to the NCAA Council next Wednesday.

"And the NCAA hasn't said our appeal won't be heard. So it would be premature to say anything until then," said Collins.

The Dallas Times Herald reported Friday that the penalties were assessed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association committee on infractions. The newspaper reported that SMU officials plan to challenge the decision in court on grounds that the school has been discriminated against.

SMU is highly ranked in several early pre-season polls, but a ban on bowl apperances would kill any hopes for a national title.

Earlier this summer, SMU officials acknowledged that they had received a list of sanctions from the NCAA, but declined to reveal the specific punishment.

The penalties followed a 26-month investigation into the school's athletic program that focused on the role of Mustang boosters and allegations that recruits were offered cash, cars and jobs for their relatives if they would attend SMU.

Collins said last week that any scholarship losses would be a "devastating" blow.

Collins told The Associated Press that a "worst case" scenario for the Mustangs would include loss of scholarships and no television or bowl appearances. "A loss of scholarships could be devastating," he said then.

A source "familiar with the NCAA's case against the school" told the Times Herald that SMU has also been put on three years' probation.

Mustangs Athletic Director Bob Hitch also declined to comment on the sanctions Friday, but confirmed the penalty will be appealed at a meeting of the NCAA Council in Boston.

"Our appeal is next Wednesday. ... Part of our obligation is not to discuss it before then," Hitch told The AP.

The Council's decision is expected to be announced next week.

The NCAA has told SMU it will not be allowed to offer athletic scholarships for recruiting in the 1986-87 academic year and will be allowed only 15 for 1987-88, according to the newspaper. The report said the Mustangs will also be banned from bowl games following the 1985 and 1986 seasons and from television in 1986 and 1987.

The newspaper said it was the first time the NCAA has ever stripped a school of all its football scholarships.

The school has been placed on probation five times since 1958, the newspaper said. The SMU football program was placed on two years' probation in June 1981, with no bowl or television appearances in the first year.

Rangers rip Orioles, 5-2

Associated Press

Charlie Hough checked Baltimore on five hits in 8⅔ innings and Gary Ward and Steve Buechele homered to lead the Texas Rangers to a 5-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles on Friday night.

Hough, 11-11, allowed a leadoff single to Alan Wiggins in the first inning and a one-out double to Jim Dwyer in the seventh, then 17 consecutive batters batters. Mike Flanagan, 1-2, making only his fifth start of the year, was the loser, allowing eight hits and all five Texas runs in seven innings.

The Orioles took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Wiggins singled, stole second and third and scored on Cal Ripken's groundout. Although Hough walked three in the inning, the Orioles left the bases loaded when Mike Young grounded out.

The Rangers tied the score in the third when Glenn Brummer and Curtis Wilkerson singled, Oddibe McDowell sacrificed and Buechele grounded out. Ward's two-run homer, his eighth, followed a leadoff walk to Cliff Johnson in the fourth inning and put the Rangers ahead 3-1.

Buechele hit his first major-league homer in the seventh following a single by McDowell.

Royals 4, Blue Jays 2

Bud Black outdueled Toronto's Dave Stieb while Hal McRae, George Brett and Steve Balboni provided the offense.

Black, who has been mired in a deep slump and came into the game with a 4.12 earned run average, surrendered six hits and raised his record to 8-11. Stieb, 10-8, gave up eight hits in 7⅔ innings as the Blue Jays lost for only the third time in their last 18 games.

The Royals scored twice in the first inning. With one out, Lonnie Smith singled and came around when Brett doubled. Brett continued to third when first baseman Cecil Fielder was charged with an error on his throw home trying for Smith. McRae's groundout scored Brett.

Black hit George Bell with a pitch leading off the Toronto second and Bell went to third when Jesse Barfield singled. Fielder's grounder scored Bell to bring the Blue Jays within 2-1.

In the Royals' third, Brett singled with one out, went to third on McRae's double and gave the Royals a 3-1 lead on a grounder by Dane Iorg.

Toronto made it 3-2 in the eighth when Tony Fernandez doubled, went to third on a single by Damaso Garcia and scored on a sacrifice fly by Lloyd Moseby.

But in the bottom of the eighth, Steve Balboni hit his 24th home run of the season and the first surrendered by Stieb in eight career starts at Royals Stadium.

The setback sliced Toronto's lead to eight games over the New York Yankees. It was the first time since July 20 that Toronto lost and New York won on the same day.

AL Roundup

Indians 4, Tigers 2

Andre Thornton put Cleveland ahead with a two-run homer off Detroit relief ace Willie Hernandez in the eighth inning and Pat Tabler followed with another homer to cap a four-run outburst.

Jack Morris, who held Cleveland hitless until Thornton's two-out single in the sixth, took a 2-0 lead into the eighth but walked leadoff batter Otis Nixon. Brett Butler followed with an infield hit and Julio Franco's RBI single made it 2-1 and chased Morris in favor of Hernandez, 6-5.

Hernadez picked Butler off second before Thornton cracked his ninth home run of the season over the left-field fence. Tabler's fourth homer, a line drive over the left-field wall, provided an insurance run as the Indians snapped a three-game losing streak and handed the Tigers their third consecutive setback.

Winning pitcher Jamie Easterly, 2-0, pitched on inning of scoreless relief. Rich Thompson came on for his fourth save after Easterly walked pinch hitter Barbaro Garbey to start the ninth.

Detroit scored its runs in the third on a two-run homer by Lance Parrish. Lou Whitaker led off the inning with a single off Tom Waddell and took second on Alan Trammell's sacrifice. After Kirk Gibson lined out, Parrish lofted a towering fly ball just inside the left-field foul pole for his 17th homer.

Yankees 10, Red Sox 6

Rickey Henderson, returning from the AWOL ranks, keyed a six-run sixth inning with a two-run single and a stolen base.

Henderson, who was rebuked and docked what the Yankees said was "the equivalent of three days' pay" for missing a post-strike doubleheader against Cleveland on Thursday night, tied the score 6-6 with a bases-loaded single and then stole his 51st base, tops in the American League.

Then, after Don Mattingly was walked intentionally to load the bases for the third time in the inning, Dave Winfield drove in the tie-breaking run with a slow-bouncing single under the glove of third baseman Wade Boggs and Don Baylor capped the rally with a two-run single.

Boston starter Bruce Hurst, 7-9, had worked out of a none-out, bases-loaded jam in the fifth when Winfield grounded into a force at the plate and Baylor hit into a double play. Then, with Boston ahead 6-3 in the sixth, New York loaded the bases again on singles by Willie Randolph, Andre Robertson and Billy Sample.

Butch Wynegar struck out but Hurst hit Bobby Meacham with a 1-1 changeup to force home a run and was replaced by Stanley. Henderson ran the count to 3-2 before poking his single to right field.

The Yankees added a run in the ninth and tied their season high of 19 hits when Randolph and Ken Griffey singled and Randolph scored on Wynegar's suicide squeeze bunt single.

The Yankees took a 3-0 lead in the second inning on a two-run single by Sample and an RBI infield hit by Meacham. Boston tied the score in the third against Ed Whitson on an RBI single by Wade Boggs and sacrifice flies by Bill Buckner and Mike Easler.

Boggs doubled a run home in the fourth and Boston added two more in the fifth on an RBI double by Easler and a run-scoring single by Rich Gedman.

Rich Bordi, 3-4, blanked Boston for two innings in getting the victory. He was replaced at the start of the seventh by Bob Shirley. Dave Righetti pitched the ninth.

Boggs also tied a major-league record for third basemen when he became the seventh in history to participate in four double plays in a game.

Brewers 8, White Sox 7

Robin Yount drove in three runs, including the winner with a sacrifice fly in the eighth inning, as the Brewers spoiled Tom Seaver's bid for his 301st victory.

Seaver, who won his 300th major-league game in his previous start, gave up six runs in 4⅓ innings and suffered his earliest exit of the season.

Rick Waits, 2-2, the third Milwaukee pitcher, blanked Chicago on two hits for three innings. Rollie Fingers got the last out for his 13th save.

Seaver was greeted by a standing ovation when he took the mound. He fanned leadoff hitter Molitor for his 3,500th career strikeout and finished with three for a career total of 3,502, fifth on the all-time list and six behind Walter Johnson.

Twins 6, Angels 1

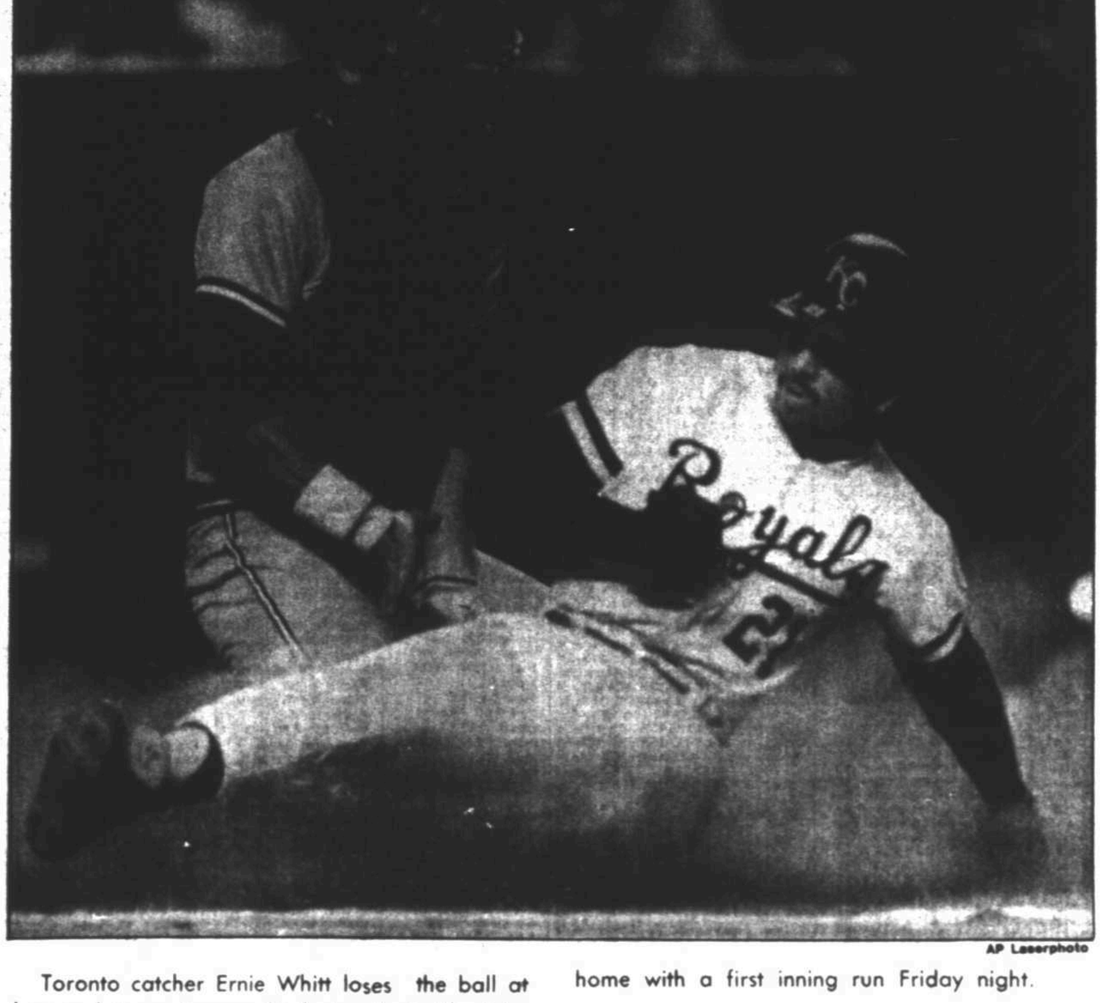

Utility infielder Ron Washington, starting at shortstop, homered and tripled and Kent Hrbek hit a two-run double to pace a 14-hit attack.

Frank Viola, 11-9, snapped a personal three-game losing streak although he was tagged for 12 in 6⅔ innings. Frank Eufemia held the Angels to one hit over the final 2⅓ innings.

Washington gave the Twins a 1-0 lead in the first inning with his first home run of the season. Minnesota made it 4-0 in the third inning after Kirby Puckett's one-out single and a walk to Washington. Both runners scored on Hrbek's double over first base and Hrbek scored when Mickey Hatcher grounded another double over first base.

California scored in the fourth inning on a two-out double by Gary Pettis and a single by Bob Boone.

But Tim Laudner led off the Twins' fourth with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored on Dave Meier's single to make it 5-1. Minnesota got its final run in the fifth. Washington led off with a triple and loser Geoff Zahn, 2-1, left after walking Krbek. Tom Brunansky greeted Stu Cliburn with a sacrifice fly.

Nelson has LaJet lead

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Brian Nelson overtook first-round leader Scott Verplank with a 5-under-par 67 Friday to grab the midway lead of the LaJet-Pelz National Amateur at Fairway Oaks Golf & Racquet Club.

Nelson, who just finished his freshman year at the University of Texas, has a 36-hole score of 137, 7-under par. Verplank, an All-American at Oklahoma State University is two shots back.

Nelson tamed the winds, which gusted up to 25 mph, with a no-bogey round in which he hit 16 greens in regulation. On one of the holes he missed, he chipped in for a birdie.

"I just went out and hit the ball the way I did yesterday (Thursday)," said Nelson, who had a 70 under nearly perfect conditions in the first round. "I've played here in junior tournaments in the spring when the wind was a lot worse and I've been more successful when I didn't try to change my swing to adjust for the wind. I probably had about four putts that I could have made that didn't go in."

Verplank, who led the first round with a 65, double-bogeyed the 12th hole to go 5 over par for the day, but he closed his round with a birdie-birdie-par-birdie flourish that closed the gap Nelson had opened.

"Scott's a pro," joked Nelson of Verplank's fast finish. "He might as well be a professional. It's going to be fun playing with him (in the final group of the day on Saturday)."

Unlike Verplank, who has played and won nearly every week this summer, Nelson went 41 days without swinging a golf club following the NCAA tournament in June.

Walker's late romp gives St. Louis win

NFL Exhibitions

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Running back Quentin Walker skirted right end for 48 yards and a touchdown with 3:42 remaining, giving the St. Louis Cardinals a 10-3 preseason National Football League triumph Friday night over the Chicago Bears.

Walker's long run came on the fourth play of a drive that started at the St. Louis 29. A 15-yard pass completion from Kyle Mackey to Curtland Thomas and Walker's 7-yard run off tackle preceded the touchdown jaunt.

Earlier scoring in a contest marred by 16 penalties, including 10 against the Cards, consisted of rookie Ricky Anderson's 51-yard field goal for St. Louis and rookie Kevin Butler's 21-yard field goal for Chicago.

Anderson, an 11th-round draft choice out of Vanderbilt, booted his field goal in the closing seconds of the first period. Butler made good 12 minutes later for the only additional scoring until Walker, a converted wide receiver out of Virginia, broke loose.

Cards starting quarterback Neil Lomax and his Bears counterpart, Jim McMahon, played only two series — with Lomax completing 4 of 8 passes for 50 yards and McMahon making good on 2 of 6 for 58.

Rick McIvor took over for Lomax and steered the Cards 37 yards to set up Anderson's long field goal with passes of 20 yards to Clyde Duncan and 15 to free agent Curtland Thomas. Walker's dash in the closing minutes gave him 80 rushing yards on seven carries as the game's leading rusher.

Bills 10, Lions 10, OT (tie)

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Wide receiver Andre Reed scored on a 19-yard reverse late in the fourth quarter as the Buffalo Bills earned a 10-10 overtime tie with the Detroit Lions in the National Football League preseason opener for both teams Friday night.

Neither team could score in the 15-minute overtime.

Reed took a reverse handoff from running back Jacque Robinson and ran untouched into the end zone with 2:29 left in the fourth quarter.

Scott Norwood's extra point capped the scoring. The 5-play, 50-yard tying drive was engineered by Bills reserve quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

Each teams' kickers missed chances to win the contest. Detroit's Eddie Murray missed a 40-yard field goal attempt wide to the left as time ran out in regulation, while Bills kicker Mike Johnston booted a 44-yard attempt wide to the right with 7:03 left in overtime.

Mets own Chicago Cubs

Associated Press

Wally Backman's two-out single in the seventh inning, his third hit of the game, scored Roger McDowell from second to give the New York Mets a 6-4 victory over the Cubs, their fifth in five games against Chicago at Shea Stadium this year.

Backman extended his hitting streak to eight games.

McDowell, 6-4, was the winner in relief of starter Ron Darling, who allowed three solo home runs — two by Jody Davis and the other by Keith Moreland.

Warren Brusstar, 2-2, the third of four Cub pitchers, was the loser. Starter Dick Ruthven was forced to leave after one inning with a bruised right big toe after being hit by a line drive off the bat of Keith Hernandez.

Darryl Strawberry's two-out single that scored Backman gave New York a 1-0 lead in the first inning. Davis tied it for Chicago in the second with his 11th home run, a shot to left-center on an 0-2 pitch.

Singles by Hernandez and Danny Heep, a double by Clint Hurdle and a sacrifice fly by Rafael Santana gave the Mets a 3-1 lead in the third.

Davis connected on a 1-2 pitch with one out in the fourth to cut the lead to 3-2 and Chicago tied it in the fifth on successive one-out doubles by Bob Dernier and Ryne Sandberg.

Padres 6, Astros 4

Miguel Dilone, playing his first game for San Diego, had three hits, stole two bases, scored twice and drove in the go-ahead run Friday as the Padres scored a 6-4 victory over the Houston Astros in the first game of a doubleheader.

Dave Dravecky, 9-7, went six innings to earn the victory, with left-hander Gene Walter, who like Dilone joined the Padres from their Triple-A Las Vegas farm team Friday, pitched the final three innings to gain the save in his first major league appearance.

Nolan Ryan, 8-10, was the loser, allowing nine hits and five runs, striking out seven and walking four in 5⅓ innings. The seven strikeouts by Ryan gives him a major league-leading career total of 4,035.

Dilone, who was released by Montreal July 8 and signed by the Padres organization July 27, played 11 games in Las Vegas before joining his seventh major league club since starting with Pittsburgh in 1974.

NL Roundup

Cardinals 5, Phillies 4

Andy Van Slyke and Terry Pendleton hit consecutive home runs for the second straight game as St. Louis rallied with a four-run fifth to defeat Philadelphia, snapping the Phillies' four-game winning streak.

The Cardinals trailed 3-0 in the fifth when they ripped four straight hits on just six pitches for four runs to make Joaquin Andujar the first 18-game winner in the majors this season.

Tom Herr started the Cardinal's fifth with a single. Jack Clark doubled Herr to third and then Van Slyke homered over the right field fence, his eighth of the season. Pendleton followed with his fifth homer of the year, almost in the same spot.

The Phillies scored three unearned runs in the third after St. Louis center fielder Willie McGee dropped John Russell's routine fly ball for an error.

Russell moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by loser Charles Hudson, 5-10. After Juan Samuel singled, Tom Foley, acquired Wednesday from Cincinnati in a five-player deal, hit his first home run of the season.

Andujar, who beat the Phillies for the first time in four decisions this year, worked seven innings and allowed three hits, struck out three and walked four. The St. Louis right-hander, who has only six losses, was relieved by Ken Dayley in the eighth. Dayley pitched to only two batters and gave up a pair of hits before leaving for Jeff Lahti, who earned his 13th save.

Expos 7, Pirates 2

Bryn Smith and Jeff Reardon combined for a five-hitter, while Tim Raines and Hubie Brooks each stroked two hits and scored a pair of runs.

Smith, 13-4, went 7⅔ innings for the victory, giving up four hits, and reliever Jeff Reardon picked up his league-leading 29th save. Pittsburgh starter Rick Reuschel, who left the game after the fourth inning with a blister on his right index finger, took the loss, dropping his record to 8-5.

The Expos took a 3-0 lead in the first after Raines and U. L. Washington led off with singles. After Andre Dawson flied out, Brooks singled to left, scoring Raines. One out later, both runners scored on Tim Wallach's single to left.

Pittsburgh scored an unearned run in the second when Mike Brown led off with an infield single and went to second on Wallach's throwing error. He was sacrificed to third and scored on Marvel Wynne's grounder.

Retired couple digs into truck gardening business

By DON GEIGER
Associated Press

AUBREY, Texas — Leon and Grace Bybee say they don't know beans about gardening.

But they've got eight or nine acres of thriving vegetables and a growing list of customers to prove them wrong.

"The funny thing about this is I don't know what I'm doing out here," Bybee said, while standing in a ramshackle shed behind his Rock Hill Road home. He and his wife sell vegetables from that shed — made resplendent by baskets of garden-fresh vegetables.

Bybee is one of about 10 Denton County truck farmers who sell produce from roadside stands or at the Denton Farmers Market on University Drive. He and Bill Smith, also from the Aubrey area, have the county's largest truck farming businesses, said county extension agent Al Croix.

"I think it's a good business, and I think we'll see more of it," Croix said. Truck farmers offer "good-quality vegetables at a good savings over the store."

They raise dozens of varieties of vegetables, including corn, black-eyed peas, okra, squash, tomatoes and potatoes. Their customers come from Frisco, Little Elm, Plano, Denton, Dallas and Prosper.

"It's a lot of work and to do this, you have to put some money in it," he said. "You've got to be physically fit. And I'm very grateful that at 70 years old I can still do what I do.

"This is the third time I've retired, and every time I have created another monster," said Bybee, 70, a former tire salesman. "It's really a lot of fun. When we started out it was nothing but a hobby for us.

"All this was unconscious and by accident." They are in their second year of truck farming.

He became interested in gardening when a friend gave him a tiller. Pretty soon he needed a larger tiller, and then he bought a tractor.

"We're not in it to try to make money," said Mrs. Bybee, who cans some of the vegetables and says she may publish the many recipes customers have given her. "If we can make enough to break even, that's OK with us. I can't possibly try them all," she said of the recipes. "But I'm saving them. I'll put it in a book form one day."

The Bybees were married in 1980. They moved from Denton to their place southwest of Aubrey about four years ago. "I think people out in the country are a little different. In other words they're concerned about their neighbors. I think city people take things so for granted," Mrs. Bybee said. "People who don't believe in God should get out and plant some seeds and see what happens. It's a miracle."

Inventor savors vision of 'barbecued' fortune

LEWISVILLE, Texas (AP) — When Bob Ragon of Lewisville built his first barbecue seven years ago it was not a get-rich-quick scheme.

"I just got tired of replacing barbecue pits every year, and decided I'd sit down and design a real pit," he said.

It wasn't until he saw what he had invented — and tasted the fruits of his labor — that he realized he might be able to turn his love for backyard cooking to profit.

The result of his designing, drafting, experimentation and revision is the Smoke-R-Que, a plate steel barbecue pit that Ragon said is going to change the way people cook.

He calls himself, "a guy who likes to cook, and I wanted something good," he said. "To me it's going to revolutionize outdoor cooking."

Ragon claims his invention is unique, and says the only comparable invention uncovered by the U.S. Patent office over three years of investigation is a two-decker food warmer patented more than a century ago.

Other than that, he said, "There's a lot of charcoal grills on the market, but not a true pit. That's what this is — a true pit."

The 2-foot-by-2-foot-by-4-foot smoker is divided into two compartments and can function simultaneously as a meat smoker and an oven, griddle or grill.

Ragon describes it as working through "radiated heat," and says it operates simultaneously on the same principle as a convection oven and on a principle used in the 19th century — "when all they had to cook with was wood."

With the fire confined to the compartment directly beneath the stainless steel griddle, flames never come into contact with the food being cooked. Instead, all cooking is done by heat and smoke conducted through the barbecue through a draft strikingly similar to a wood stove.

Ragon estimates the smoker itself can safely cook up to 30 pounds of meat at one time while the stainless steel griddle fries eggs, bakes potatoes or cooks beans. Using a Smoke-R-Que, a backyard chef can prepare his breakfast at the same time that his supper brisket smokes in the adjacent compartment.

The pit is built entirely of plate steel and covered over with a flat-black, weather- and heat-resistant paint.

"A guy'll buy this, and it'll last him a lifetime. He doesn't have to worry about it rusting out or burning out," Ragon explained.

With a patent pending on his revolutionary smoker, Ragon has formed a corporation, BDL Distributing, to handle nationwide marketing of the barbecue pit. He says he has had inquiries from people in Denton, Lewisville and from as far away as Albuquerque who want to open dealerships to sell the smoker.

Together with Bill Miller, Ragon plans to get his invention marketed on a broad scale this summer. Miller will assemble the smokers and BDL will distribute the finished product.

Ragon calls himself a cookout fanatic.

"I have cooked out when there's snow on the ground," he said.

But the inventor himself has been using what he calls a "cheapy" barbecue and not the amazing machine that smokes in the parking lot of Rebel Metal Works.

The cruel fact is that the prototype for the smoker was bricked into place in his former home in Corpus Christi. There it had to remain when Ragon moved to Lewisville, until production of the Smoke-R-Que reached the point he could have one for his own backyard.

Have you ever pricked a callus on your hand? If you have, you know that it has no feeling. It is hard, dead skin. Calluses develop -they do not just happen.

A Calloused heart does not just happen either. We allow calluses of our heart to develop when we do not take proper care of our spiritual lives.

We need to heed the words of the writer of Hebrews who said, "Do not harden your hearts" (3:8, RSV)

They hold hands, but she pulls back, just a little. The water's cold, and even though the breakers are not that formidable they look pretty big to her. But he keeps tugging, determined to prove his own bravery, and pretty soon she follows, laughing, and they splash in.

Watch children and you will see that often one takes over, leads the other, bolstering his or her courage in the process.

Maybe we could take a lesson from them. We all need to lead someone else sometimes, and to be influenced at other times. All of us need a place, where we can recharge ourselves and our energies and beliefs. A place where we can pause and heed a wisdom that will better prepare us for the living of life.

The Church is great for that. Visit your Church or Synagogue this week.

Nationwide search on for male lead in 'Amahl'

A nationwide search for boy soprano soloists to perform the role of Amahl in the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera "Amahl and the Night Visitors" has been undertaken by Shallway Foundation, child-talent casting agency.

The foundation is providing casting services free to churches and schools which plan to perform the opera during the forthcoming Christmas season. A foundation spokesman estimates the opera will be produced in at least 250 American cities November through January.

Parents of boys, ages 7 to 12, with high soprano voices may send names to Shallway Foundation, Connellville, Pa., 15425. Parents of boys who have already performed the Amahl role should send casette tapes.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" is the story of a crippled boy living near Bethlehem who is miraculously cured when he offers his crutch as a gift to the infant Jesus.

'Extravaganza' offered

The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity will have a "Tasting Extravaganza" from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 17.

Table settings of all kinds will be on display to give "tasters" party decorating ideas. All recipes from the "Tasting Tea Luncheon" will be compiled into book form and offered for sale.

A silent auction, which includes a Black Laborador Retriever and a week's lodging at a condo in Aspen, Colo., will also be held.

Monies raised will benefit the Episcopal Church Women and its projects.

Tickets, priced at $7, will be sold at the door or presold at the Holy Trinity Bookstore.

Super Mom orientation set

Super Mom, a Christian training and support group for women, is having its Orientation Brunch at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 5 in the new parlor at First Baptist Church, corner of Garfield Street and Louisiana Avenue.

Super Mom is primarily designed for mothers of small children. The program offers Bible study, aerobatics and a share/prayer time. A nursery will be provided for the orientation and the Super Mom sessions. Day session meets from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. Thursday and the evening session from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Those attending the orientation will learn more about Super Mom and meet the leadership teams. For more information call Kym Hellums, director, 694-9911.

Church sets Communion

The Rev. Jean Pierre Meshew, archdeacon of the Diocese of the Southwest of the Anglican Catholic Church, will celebrate Holy Communion for St. Paul's American Episcopal Church at 10 a.m. the first and third Sundays of each month.

Services are held in the chapel at Ellis Funeral Home. The 1928 Book of Common Prayer is used by the congregation for all services.

The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity will have a "Tasting Extravaganza" from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sept. 17.

Gambling bills defeated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Church and other anti-gambling leaders figured in staving off a wave of progambling legislation in many states this spring, says a survey by Baptist Press.

Iowa's legalizing of a lottery was the only case in which a state adopted a new form of gambling, while in many states, legislation in support of lotteries, pari-mutuel betting and casino gambling failed, the survey said.

Lottery legislation was defeated in Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina and South Carolina, the survey said, while pari-mutuel legislation failed in Georgia, Kansas, Mississippi, Texas, Tennessee and Missouri.

The results "prove that informed Christians can match the gambling proponents' pressure with persistence and their funds with facts," says Larry Braidfoot of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission.

Graham to go to Romania

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham says he has accepted an invitation to preach in communist Romania Sept. 7-17, probably in six or seven cities, including the capital, Bucharest.

He has just concluded a 10-day crusade at Anaheim Stadium in California where 33,750 were reported to have committed their lives to Christ.

Directory of Catholic sisters is published

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — For the first time, a national directory of American Roman Catholic sisters has been published.

Called "The Directory of Women Religious in the United States," the 1,040-page volume, including the sisters' communities and addresses, was issued by the Michael Glazier publishing company.

For more than a half century, male church personnel, bishops, priests and brothers, have been listed in the annual Catholic Directory, but women religious were left out.

Until now, they "were the only professional group in the land who did not have a national directory," the publisher says.

Bishops send message

HIROSHIMA, Japn (AP) — A message from the president of U. S. Catholic bishops was delivered to their counterparts in Japan this week on the 40th anniversary of the U. S. bombing of that city.

Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, said the world's nations have an "immediate obligation" to "move away from nuclear deterrence with all its risks of failure and with its morally debilitating assent to the possibility of repeating Hiroshima and Nagasaki."

Archbishop-designate Roger M. Mahony of Los Angeles was designated to participate in the Hiroshima memorial service and deliver the message.

Bishops lobby Botha

NEW YORK (AP) — Episcopal Presiding Bishop John M. Allin has cabled South African President P.W. Botha, urging him to change his mind and meet with Anglican Bishop Desmond Tutu of Johannesburg, a leading voice for blacks.

He "has shown striking restraint and has indicated his willingness for creative dialogue and reconciliation," Allin told Botha, saying such a meeting would show "your willingness to deal courageously with political reality" and to move "towards substantive reform."

The Rev. Arie R. Brouwer, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, telegraphed President Reagan urging sanctions against South Africa, saying his policy of "constructive engagement" supports apartheid laws.

Those laws viewing "the majority of South Africa's people as subhuman cannot be reformed" but "must be abolished," Brouwer said.

Leaders of the American Jewish Committee urged the South African government to lift its state-of-emergency restrictions, calling them a "cruel repudiation" of efforts for non-violent change.

UMC ministers stymied

DENVER (AP) — Regional leaders of the United Methodist Church say they've been stymied at handling a grievance against an avowed homosexual minister because the rules about it weren't adequately defined.

Consequently, a committee has been assigned to determine just what is meant by a "self-avowed, practicing homosexual," which church rules bar from the ministry.

"The public may feel a definition is easy," says the Rev. Keith Watson, chairman of the regional board of ordained ministry, but he said definitions contained in the complaints "were not ones we could accept."

"We had no other definitions to go on," he added, so the committee was set up to clarify it.

The complaint against appointment of the Rev. Julian Rush as a part-time pastor of St. Paul's United Methodist Church cited media statements by him acknowledging his "same-sex orientation and his relationship with another male person." The complaint said that disqualified him under the church rule.

UMC bishops draft letter

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Methodist bishops, inspired by their Roman Catholic counterparts, are in the process of drafting a pastoral letter on nuclear armaments.

Two days of testimony on the subject was taken here last month from theologians, scientists, military experts, members of Congress and Reagan administration officials.

The bishops, leaders of the nation's second largest Protestant denomination, praised the 1983 Catholic pastoral letter against nuclear war, in launching their own project.

They hope to "mobilize the church against the greatest threat to human survival today," says Bishop C.P. Minnick Jr. of Raleigh, N.C., co-chairman of the project.

Some have indicated they may come out against possession of nuclear arms. Catholic bishops conditionally accepted possession, so long as genuine efforts were being made to reduce and eliminate nuclear arms.

British visit Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A delegation from the British Council of Churches visited Argentina recently at the invitation of the Argentine Council of Churches to foster reconciliation between Argentina and Great Britain, which fought a war in 1982 over the Falkland islands.

The visit preceded a meeting of the policy-making central committee of the World Council of Churches.

Faith Temple Church to hold 'explosion'

Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell St., will hold its 11th annual Spiritual Explosion at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Monday through Aug. 18.

The service will begin with a musical at 7:30 p.m. Monday, which will feature the Explosion Mass Choir and other groups from the surrounding area. Special guest for the musical will be Carol Allen Simmons, Houston. Ms. Simmons is a recording artist and soloist.

Guest speakers for the week will be the Rev. Nathaniel Wells, grand Rapids, Mich., Tuesday; the Rev. The Newspaper BIBLE

WHICH VOICE ARE YOU LISTENING TO?

I advise you to obey only the Holy Spirit's instructions. He will tell you where to go and what to do, and then you won't always be doing the wrong things your evil nature wants you to. For we naturally love to do evil things that are just the opposite from the things that the Holy Spirit tells us to do; and the good things we want to do when the Spirit has his way with us are just the opposite of our natural desires. These two forces within us are constantly fighting each other to win control over us, and our wishes are never free from their pressures. When you are guided by the Holy Spirit you need no longer force yourself to obey Jewish laws.

But when you follow your own wrong inclinations your lives will produce these evil results; impure thoughts, eagerness for lustful pleasure, idolatry, spiritism (that is encouraging the activity of demons), hatred and fighting, jealousy and anger, constant effort to get the best for yourself, complaints and criticisms, the feeling that everyone else is wrong except those in your own little group--and there will be wrong doctrine, envy, murder, drunkeness, wild parties, and all that sort of thing. Let me tell you again as I have before, that anyone living that sort of life will not inherit the kingdom of God. (Galatians 5:16-21)

Latter-day Saints fast for world's hungry

RELIGION

A day of fasting by members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day saints produced more than $6 million for relief efforts, said Bishop Lloyd Hales.

Hales referred to Jesus Christ's commandment, "thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," and said the church conducted a special fast in which church members in the United States and Canada refrained from two meals on a designated Sunday and donated the money they would have spent on those meals to a fund for relief in Ethiopia and other famine-plagued areas. He said the contributions have reached $6,025,656, of which $4.3 million has been distributed, with the balance to be "committed to areas where our research indicates the greatest need."

Of the $4.3 mission, $2,850,000 is being spent for relief in Ethopia and $1,450,000 in Sudan and other African countries. Hales said $1.3 million is being channeled through various Red Cross agencies. Another $1.4 million was given to the Catholic Relief Services for tents, blankets, food and medical supplies for 30,000 refugees, plus transportation and warehousing expenses.

Another $1.1 million has been given to Africare to develop a program involving some 20,000 people who will remain in their villages and receive food while crops are planted. the project also involves primary health care and water development through well drilling.

Still another $500,000 is being channeled through CARE, Inc., for food and medical supplies.

A letter received from the Most Rev. Daniel P. Reilly, Bishop of Norwich, who is chairman of the Catholic Relief Services said, "You can be sure that these funds will be put to rapid use to help alleviate the suffering that millions face in those countries. We are pleased to participate in an interfaith action of this kind.

"Such ecumenical efforts underline the compassion and concern which we hold in common when faced by such human tragedies as well as our common committment to positive action. This cooperation between us has a special character since the resources involved come directly from your individual members through a day of fasting."

Hales also received coorespondence from Richard Schubert, president of the American Red Cross, which, in addition to thanking the church for its efforts, said, "This support has permitted us to provide 350,000 victims food for a month."

"Members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints traditionally fast on the first Sunday of each month," Hales said. "they abstain from food and drink for two meals, then contribute to the poor that which would normally have been spent on food. Many donate money beyond what would have been spent on the two meals."

Disciples, UCC pledge joint 'partnership'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Two unity-seeking Protestant denominations that have been courting each other for about half a century have finally taken their vows — but not to unite. Not yet.

For now, they simply pledged a "partnership."

The seal was put on that commitment last week in Des Moines by the general assembly of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), something that had been done a month earlier by the general synod of the United Church of Christ.

With their pact final, they moved into a new, expanding phase of joint work for the faith. But the separate denominational structures, and different identities on the local-church nameplates, would remain.

The two denominations concede they still hadn't found their goal.

Their move toward it has "not brought about the oneness to which God calls us," says the joint committee that drafted the approved action, but "we hope it will be...a responsible next step which moves us ahead in our journey...

"Our ultimate goal is the oneness of the whole body of Christ."

In the latest, six-year effort at reaching for that fuller unity, the committee ran into all sorts of arguments, objections and apathy along with impatience and eagerness for unification.

The committee was jointly headed by the Rev. Avery Post, of New York, president of the 1.7-million-member United Church, and the Rev. Kenneth Teegarten of Indianapolis, just retired as president of the 1.1 million Disciples.

The new partnership is not a "backing off from union," but the "initiation of a new pilgrimage together" with an unknown end, Teegarten told the assembly.

Declared Post: "From this time forth, we are in a unique and lasting way sisters and brothers in the one church."

In the process of widespread hearings and input, the committee had found various bureaucratic hesitations and fears of giving up "inherited patterns," but also insistence on full unity in loyalty to Christ's plea for it.

Also encountered, the committee says, were "false stereotypes" — that the Disciples were "pietistic" and "conservative," that the United Church was "liberal" and "only social action oriented."

With all the mixed pressures, the committee says it concluded that unity can't be put "simply in terms of an organizational merger" but has to move in a "more dynamic understanding" of the goal and steps toward it.

This means focusing on "mutual sharing of gifts" rather than compromising them, the committee said, approaching unity in a way that is dynamic, growing and responsive to the gospel and to each church's "present context."

It certainly does not demand "uniformity of theologies, liturgies or practices," the committee said, adding:

"It is dynamic process of sharing gifts, of growth into true oneness that will produce new patterns of life which exemplify greater diversity and flexibility than is now present in our separate denominations...

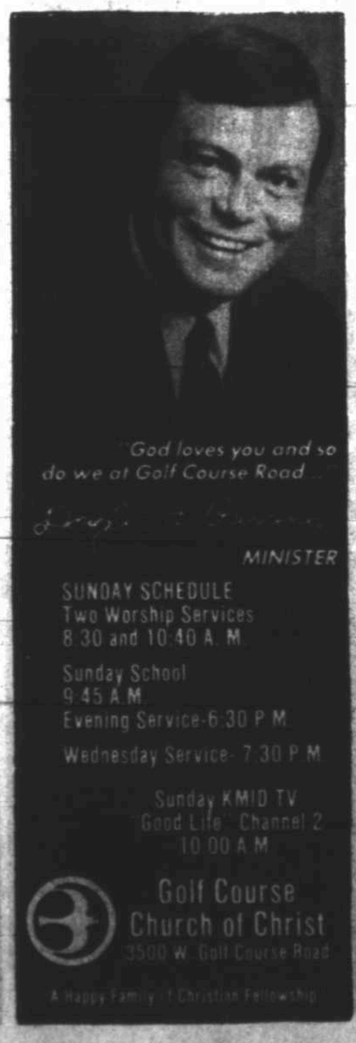

"The path to unity is neither a detailed map...nor a blueprint...Rather, the road to unity is primarily a faith journey into the future in which only when the first steps have been taken, will the next stage become clear."

Consequently, at the committee's recommendation, the two denominations confined that step to their "new ecumenical partnership," short of merger, but involving these "primary marks" beginning now:

Responding together to the mission of the church, "theological work to equip our churches as they grow toward full communion" and "common worship with frequent and intentional sharing" in Holy Communion.

New guidelines call for all national, regional and local units and seminaries to "commit themselves, in all possible areas, to expressions of common mission," building on present joint work with new initiatives.

National and regional bodies were told to begin "coordinated planning and wherever possible, joint staffing in...education, evangelism, peace with justice, economic justice and human equality."

Grant OK'd to improve battered women shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department on Friday approved a grant of almost $300,000 to the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence after delaying the award because of complaints by conservatives that some of the money would help lesbian rights activists.

Assistant Attorney General Lois Herrington revealed that the grant to the coalition to improve a network of shelters for battered women was signed and that Attorney General Edwin Meese III "certainly gave his approval."

Two dozen members of Congress, describing themselves as "pro-family Republicans," had written Meese earlier this summer complaining about plans to award a $625,000 grant to the coalition. The coalition includes a lesbian task force which deals with discrimination against lesbians who work in shelters.

Mrs. Herrington said that under terms of the grant, the coalition by mid-August will receive $293,904 for the first year of the two-year program. In addition, the coalition would be eligible for another $286,096 in the second year, for a total of $580,000.

"It's up to them to satisfy conditions for (the balance of the money) the second year," Mrs. Herrington said in a telephone interview.

At a news conference Thursday, Meese had been asked why he held up the grant, which initially had been scheduled for announcement at a preview of a movie about battered women which was to be shown in June at the Kennedy Center here.

Meese replied only that the grant was in the "review process" in response to a complaint, although he did not specify the source of the complaint.

On July 12, Mrs. Herrington sent a letter to Rep. Mark Siljander, R-Mich., who led the two dozen members of Congress in opposition to the grant, in which she said that none of the money would be used for pro-lesbian causes.

But she also characterized as "misguided" the allegations that money would help causes which are anathema to the Reagan administration.

"There are gay women in the endeavor (the coalition), as there are homemakers, mothers, fathers and ministers," she said at the time. But Mrs. Herrington also noted that the coalition sponsors roughly 90 percent of the battered women's shelters across the country.

Robin Luketina, Siljander's chief of staff, said the congressman was traveling and could not be reached for comment.

But Luketina did say of Siljander's letter to Meese: "What the letter asked was that the grant be reviewed, and they did. They made their review and made their decision and there isn't much more to say after that."

Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said through a spokesman that "I am pleased that the Justice Department has seen fit to release money to combat violence. This is an important step for victims across the country."

In the telephone interview, Mrs. Herrington said the total amount of the grant was lowered from $625,000 to $580,000 because of changes in the location of facilities to train women for shelter work, cutting the estimated cost of that training.

Panel says top federal officials 'underpaid'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential panel said Friday that low pay for top federal officials — including judges and members of Congress — is draining the supply of those qualified and proposed an overhaul of the salary-setting system.

"The number of qualified persons willing to serve is dwindling fast," said a report issued by the Commission on Executive, Legislative and Judicial Salaries. It did say, however, that some would always be available to serve.

The panel said the 535 members of Congress, 1,744 federal judges and judicial officers and 868 top officials in the legislative and executive branches are "critically underpaid."

"These 3,147 people are the leaders of our government," the report said.

Purchasing power of major league baseball salaries has gone up 466 percent since 1969 while there has been a 32 percent drop for U.S. District Court judges and a 39 percent decline for lawmakers, the report said. It said the buying power of executive salaries in corporations rose 68 percent in the period.

The report called the current system, under which Congress sets the salaries, "a prolonged adventure in futility."

Fear of voter backlash, it said, has kept pay low.

Salaries surveyed by the panel in the executive branch included those of the vice president, $97,900; Cabinet officers, $86,200, and assorted deputy secretaries, undersecretaries and assistant secretaries whose pay ranges from $68,700 to $75,100.

It surveyed salaries of the speaker of the House, $97,900; other top congressional leaders, $85,000; other senators and representatives, $75,100, and seven top Capitol Hill employees making at least $72,300.

Also included were salaries of the chief justice of the United States, $104,700; other Supreme Court justices, $100,600; appeals court judges, $80,400; District, trade and tax court judges, $76,00, and various court employees whose pay ranges down to $70,200.

The only salaries lower than $68,400 in the survey were those of the governors of the U.S. Postal Service, who make $10,000 a year.

The report quoted former Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., as saying that Congress has become "incapable of raising its own salaries." It quoted Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., as saying: "To vote for your own pay increase is an invitation to a 30-second spot commercial against you in your next campaign."

"The weakest player on the Chicago Bulls basketball team, who spends most of his time on the bench, is paid substantially more than the person who makes the country's laws," Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., said. "The result — sometimes — is good basketball players and weak legislators."

Without a change from the current system, under which Congress sets its own pay, Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, said, "the Senate is indeed doomed to become a millionaires club."

Hale Campion, who resigned as undersecretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in 1979 to return to college teaching, was quoted in the report as saying: "I'm broke. I can't afford it anymore."

Man charged with larceny for stealing watermelon

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — A 24-year-old man was charged Friday with misdemeanor larceny after a 70-pound watermelon that was swiped from a farmer's field was found in his car, authorities said.

"Usually, farmers shoot people for stealing watermelons," Edgecombe County Chief Deputy Tom Moore said. "This time the man couldn't catch him and he asked us to keep an eye out for him."

Davie Richardson of Enfield was charged after he was seen driving his car out of a watermelon patch near Whitakers, Moore said.

"One of our deputies was on routine patrol and happened to be riding by that way and saw the vehicle coming back onto the main part of the road. He stopped the vehicle and there, as big as daylight, was the watermelon in the back seat," Moore said.

The watermelon patch is owned by Mack Pittman, he said, and the melon, which was confiscated as evidence, was valued at $5.

Italian faces deportation

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — An Italian-born man facing deportation after living as an illegal immigrant in the United States for 30 years says he turned down a proposal from a woman who wants to wed him to help him stay here.

Retired furniture-maker Pietro "Pete" Russo, 62, said he had no interest in getting married. "Besides, I got enough trouble already," he said Thursday.

The offer of marriage, from a woman in Des Moines, Iowa, was among offers of help Russo received after the story of his plight was reported.

The Immigration & Naturalization Service is seeking his deportation, saying he has no right to remain in the United States.

Russo, who came here in 1955 on an eight-day visitor's visa, told officials he had never had legal immigration documents when he applied for Social Security retirement benefits.

His lawyer, Vicky Farah of Ann Arbor, has appealed the deportation order and said she is surprised by the reaction to Russo's story. "It's really wonderful," she said. "He's sort of become a celebrity."

Girl's kidnapper faces trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man accused of kidnapping a 19-month-old girl at a beach four years ago and taking her to Alaska faces a November trial on federal charges that could bring a life prison term, a prosecutor said Friday.

U.S. District Court Judge William Matthew Byrne Jr. ordered John Robert Altig, 58, to trial Nov. 26 on charges he kidnapped Elvia Vasquez, now 5, from seaside Penmar Park in the Venice Beach area on Aug. 25, 1981.

She was found last January living with Altig in an Anchorage trailer park under the name Crystal Morgan. Altig was also charged with violating the Mann Act by transporting a minor over interstate lines for immoral purposes.

If convicted, Altig faces a maximum life term on the kidnapping charge and up to five years and a $5,000 fine on the Mann Act count.

Error delays price report

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a rare occurrence, the Labor Department on Friday was forced to postpone release of one its economic indicators — the wholesale price report for July.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics blamed "processing errors" for the delay and said it would require work through the weekend to have the Producer Price Index ready for release Monday afternoon.

Thomas R. Tibbetts, assistant commissioner for industrial prices, said that a series of errors were discovered Thursday night, too late for the report to be corrected for release Friday morning.

Tibbetts blamed the errors on the fact that government statisticians were making a number of modifications to this month's report. One of those changes is the elimination of the one-month lag in reporting changes in energy prices.

"We were doing so many things that we were somewhat distracted on focusing on any one thing," he said.

Collapsed crane kills two

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A crane atop a high-rise building under construction in downtown Kansas City collapsed Friday, killing two construction workers and injuring five others, officials said.

The crane, one of two atop the AT&T building, remained dangling as officials tried to control it. Police cordoned off the immediate area, and some nearby buildings were evacuated.

Harold Knabe, a fire department spokesman, and Police Sgt. Jim Treece both said there were two fatalities in the accident.

Richard Henderson, an AT&T sales specialist, said workers at company headquarters across the street heard a loud noise when the crane collapsed.

Henderson said three workers were taken away by ambulance. He said they appeared to be severely injured.

Strikers approve contract

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Striking workers approved a three-year contract Friday with AM General Corp., ending a two-week walkout at an Army truck plant, union and company officials said.

The contract was approved by about 85 percent of the members of United Auto Workers Local 5 who cast their ballots, local financial secretary Robert Huff said.

The ratification means the plant where the five-ton M939 Army personnel and cargo truck is assembled will resume full operation next week, Huff said.

Although details of the contract have not been released, local President Mike Cinal says the pact provides cost-of-living pay increases, improved health insurance benefits and raises pension benefits and yearly bonuses for the plant's 950 hourly workers.

AM General is a subsidiary of LTV Corp. headquartered in Livonia, Mich.

Councilman charged

BALTIMORE (AP) — A city councilman and a bar manager were charged Friday with running two poker-type slot machines at a tavern owned by the councilman's wife and the manager's daughter.

Councilman John A. Schaefer and the manager, Troy W. Sanders, appeared before a District Court commissioner Friday morning after the misdemeanor charges were filed by Deputy State Prosecutor Gerald C. Ruter.

The defendants did not enter pleas and were released on recognizance.

They are accused of directing employees at the Faucets Bar in Baltimore to make cash payoffs when players won games on poker video machines.

The machines themselves are legal, but cash payoffs make them slot machines, which are against the law, Ruter said.

Bomb damaged ferns' genetic material

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Ferns collected from Nagasaki show unusually high mutation rates and may offer the first evidence that plants were damaged genetically by the atomic bomb dropped there in World War II, say researchers at the University of Massachusetts.

Plant geneticist Edward J. Klekowski Jr. and biologist Shigeo Masuyama of Tokyo Women's Christian University grew more than 500 mutants from spores they collected last fall from wild ferns near the hypocenter of the bomb, which was dropped Aug. 9, 1945.

While the parent ferns appeared outwardly normal, the scientists found that their spores produced an unusually high number of mutants, Klekowski said.

Some of the plants from which they gathered spores were clones of the ferns damaged by the blast, meaning they were genetically identical, he said. Others are believed to be more than 40 years old, having survived the bomb, he added.

The scientists also germinated spores collected from a control population of 40 plants about 25 miles away. Ferns from the Nagasaki valley produced spores that mutated about three times more often than spores from the control populations, he said.

Klekowski, who has spent 15 years researching the natural mutation rates of ferns, added, "We've been studying ferns similar to this in Massachusetts for the last five years. The mutation frequency of the controls is similar to what you find here."

People who visited Nagasaki within a month after the blast wrote that plants had already regenerated around the Sanno Shinto shrine, only 850 meters from the explosion's hypocenter.

When Klekowski and Masuyama visited the site to collect coffee grain-size spores from 300 wild ferns around the shrine, they were surprised at how healthy all types of plants, including the ferns, appeared, Klekowski said.

"You would be hard pressed to tell anything had happened," said Klekowski.

Klekowski, 44, said he wasn't prepared to see healthy looking plants because he was accustomed to the "whole post-bomb literature of all kinds of monsters and wide-scale devastation."

"I thought it be would be like Carthage after Rome had finished with it," he said, recalling historical accounts of the wastelands that remained years after Roman soldiers drove salt into the ground around the ancient North African city conquered in the third Punic War.

The mutant spores don't appear in the wild because "natural selection could have eliminated a lot of the genetic garbage in one generation," Klekowski said.

Kwik Wash offers customers 'their place in the sun'

AUSTIN (AP) — Officials of a laundry company say they have come up with one additional comfort for visitors to laundromats, and it has customers beaming with good health.

Kwik Wash officials have built a tanning room in one of its laundromats. Aside from the usual line of washers and dryers, a room called Kwik Tan is furnished with a tanning bed, a stereo, and a wicker chair.

One wall has a painting of blue skies and clouds to enhance the illusion of lying in the sun, officials said.

"Laundry takes at least one hour to do," says Bob Montague, a customer at the laundry. "I don't have time to lie out in the sun. So I use it for 15 minutes. Besides, it is too hot to lie out."

Managers at Kwik Wash, the laundry with the upside-down signs, say they hope to attract people who have no time to get a tan the conventional way.

"Working people like you and me," said George Holden, store supervisor. "People who have half an hour for lunch, (and) who'd like to get a tan."

Tanning for 15 minutes costs $2.50, Holden said. An attendant is always present when the tanning machine is in use.

Holden said some people may be apprehensive about using the tanning room, but he predicts the laundry-suntan combination, which started in Dallas, will be a success in Austin.

"When I was up in Dallas, at one of the stores around noon, all three beds were being used," Holden said.

Autopsy shows girl died from accident injuries

SEGUIN (AP) — An autopsy on the body of an 11-year-old girl whose body was pulled from the Guadalupe River shows she died of injuries she suffered when she was hit by a truck.

Investigators said Leah Calhoun was jogging on a bridge early Tuesday when she was hit by a pickup truck and apparently tossed into the river below. It took divers two days to locate her body.

She was jogging with her sister Rachelle, 15, who also was hit by the truck near Seguin. Rachelle suffered abdominal injuries and was in fair condition at a San Antonio hospital.

The sisters, both of Glendale, Ariz., were visiting relatives in Seguin when the accident happened.

An autopsy, performed by Travis County Medical Examiner Dr. Robert Bayardo, indicated Leah died of multiple traumatic injuries suffered in the accident.

Phil Lozano, Department of Public Safety trooper, said his agency will ask that charges of criminal negligent homicide be filed against the 17-year-old driver of the truck.

Reagan picnic Tex-Mex

DALLAS (AP) — President Reagan and members of Congress will have a choice of everything from beans and hot chili to Texas-style "fajitas" at this year's annual White House South Lawn picnic.

The Dallas-based El Chico Corp., a chain of restaurants serving Mexican-style food, announced Thursday it will cater the picnic scheduled for Sept. 18.

"Through our 45 years, we've served our Tex-Mex food to royalty and celebrities," said Gilbert Cuellar Sr., chairman and co-founder of El Chico. "But this is by far our finest hour."

Cuellar said that about 60 El Chico workers will offer Reagan and Mrs. Reagan, members of Congress and their spouses an array of carne asada, chicken fajitas, frijoles, pico de gallo, chili and, for dessert, flan, a Mexican custard.

But officials said all the basic ingredients served at the White House gathering will be purchased at Secret Service-approved vendors instead of the sellers from whom El Chico normally buys.

Death Row inmate stabbed

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A Death Row inmate received minor wounds when he was stabbed by two fellow Texas Department of Corrections prisoners, a TDC spokesman said.

Mikel Derrick, 28, received superficial stab wounds on his elbow and chest and more severve wounds on his left wrist, authorities said. The incident occurred Thursday in a recreation room near the Ellis I Unit's so-called "animal wing," where the state's most dangerous Death Row inmates are housed.

The inmate was treated in the unit infirmary, where he was treated for superficial stab wounds on his elbow and chest and received stitches in his left wrist, Guthrie said.

Derrick faces execution for the October 1980 shooting death of Edward Fonnier, 32, during an attempted robbery in Houston, said TDC spokesman Phil Guthrie. His execution has not been scheduled.

Two fellow Death Row inmates attacked Derrick with a 9½-inch piece of flattened metal because they apparently did not want to pay gambling debts they owed him, Guthrie said.

Authorities questioned two Harris County capital murder convicts — ages 23 and 33 — in the incident, Guthrie said.

Escaped inmate caught

SUGAR LAND (AP) — A Texas prison inmate made a bid for freedom Friday but was caught two hours later after residents spotted him and called law enforcement officers, authorities said.

Officers at the Texas Department of Corrections' Central Unit noticed Alejandro Lopez, 21, serving a 10-year sentence for an aggravated robbery conviction in Kleberg County, was missing about 2:30 p.m. from a work detail.

"He had been working in a field among some tall crops and didn't report back when he was supposed to," said prison spokesman Jay Byrd.

Lopez, who has been in prison less than two months, was captured about 4:30 p.m. in a wooded area not far from the unit, Byrd said.

Authorities seize pot plants

BERGHEIM (AP) — Authorities seized 1,500 marijuana plants worth an estimated $1.5 million and arrested three men in a drug raid near here, the Department of Public Safety said.

DPS troopers, agents from the federal Drug Enforcement Administration and the Comal County sheriff's department executed a search warrant at the one-acre site northwest of New Braunfels late Thursday, said DPS spokesman Mike Cox.

The marijuana plants were in pots and planted in the ground, growing 4 to 5 feet high, Cox said.

Comal County Sheriff Walter Fellers said all three men were charged with possession of marijuana of 200-2,000 pounds, a felony.

San Antonio minister 'keeps on truckin'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Rev. Sam Rust keeps on trucking — and preaching from the trailer of an 18-wheeler.

The 51-year-old Assemblies of God minister has taken his rolling sanctuary on the road for the last six years.

"Our ministry gives the truckers a subconscious hope that rides with them night and day that somebody is out there riding with them and will help them hands down," Rust said.

This week, his mobile sanctuary is parked at the San Antonio Convention Center where the Assemblies of God is holding its 41st General Council.

About 16,000 people are attending the denomination's biannual convention.

Rust grew up in the trucking industry and said he felt called into the ministry in 1974 during the truckers' strike.

"A lot of people laughed when I told them an 18-wheeler could be a church," he said.

"I tried to get ministers all over the country to come to the edge of their towns to see what was happening," he said, referring to sex, alcohol and drug activity at trucker hangouts.

The minister said it took him five years, but he finally was able to purchase and equip what had once been a moving van into a rolling church.

The truck is complete with an altar, preaching lecturn and pews.

Rust is funded by contributions from the Assemblies of God missions program and by "love offerings" taken up at local churches when he visits.

Rust visits churches from coast to coast, ministering at truck stops along the way.

Voters to decide whether to keep school, up taxes

LILLIAN (AP) — Voters in this small community south of Fort Worth will decide today whether to jettison their financially troubled school district or raise property taxes by 50 percent to give it new life.

"If I could see the school district as my business," said Melvin Finn, a building contractor, "I would begin shutting it down."

The 18-square-mile district in northern Johnson County, saddled with a weak tax base of small homes and farms, cannot afford a junior high and high school, officials said.

If the area's 800 voters agree with the proposal to dissolve the 75-year-old district, Johnson County commissioners say they will pick the school system that Lillian students will attend in fall 1986.

"It's not something that anyone is excited about doing," Ernie McCouls-key, pastor at First Baptist Church of Lillian, told the Dallas Times Herald. "It sounds so terrible — shutting down the school system."

But voters don't like the idea of yearly tax increases.

"It's for the best because of the tax business," said Cynthia Jackson.

Eudell Twilley, a former school board president, said many families live in mobile homes and pay little in property taxes. And many families moved to Lillian last fall from the Fort Worth area to enjoy country life.

"We moved out of the city to get away from the big city schools," said Miss Jackson. "Now they want to do away with our little country school."

The district could have a broader tax base with more businesses and perhaps industries within five to six years, said school Superintendent David Hedgpeth.

"It's not something that anyone is excited about doing. It sounds so terrible — shutting down the school system."
— Pastor Ernie McCouls, First Baptist Church

"But you can't live on potential," he said.

The district provides a "no-frills school" for 175 children in kindergarten through sixth grade, said Finn.

Students from junior high through high school attend Alvarado and Mansfield schools through tuition paid by the district. But tuition costs increased last spring, officials said.

Lee Wylie, school board president, said the increases will cost Lillian $61,000 more this school year, or about 10 percent of its budget.

Wylie said the district must hire at least two new teachers because of state requirements limiting class size in some elementary grades.

Officials said efforts to consolidate with Alvarado failed and voters defeated a proposal last spring to merge with the Mansfield district.

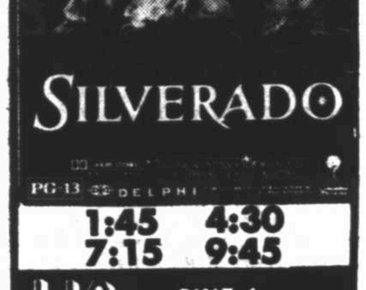

Twilley said that leaves the Lillian school with the decision to dissolve or "tighten up our belts and get on with it."

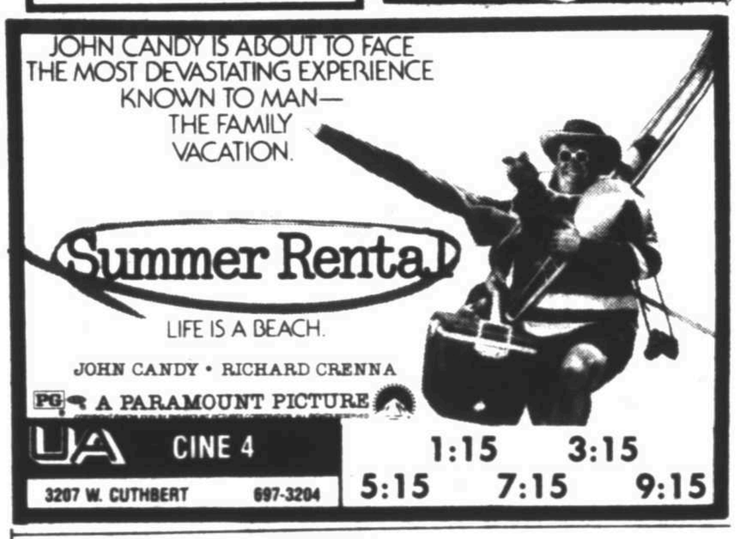

Exotic snake found

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A summer intern at the Sedgwick County Zoo Thursday found an exotic snake authorities believe was stolen in June from a zoo in Abilene, Texas.

Robb Kirkman, a 17-year-old zoo intern, found a Madagascan tree boa, protected under federal law and valued at about $1,500, just as searchers were preparing to give up for the day.

Producers wax poetic on Waxahachie

ENTERTAINMENT

By J. MICHAEL KENNEDY
Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

WAXAHACHIE, Texas — Welcome, as the people around here like to say, to the movie capital of Ellis County.

Actually, some people with more pretensions call Waxahachie the movie capital of Texas. Certainly N.B. "Buck" Jordan, the executive director of the local chamber of commerce, does, and no one has yet called his hand.

This town of 17,300, a half-hour's drive south from Dallas on Interstate 35, is getting used to the now-common scene of production crews filming in the house next door or on the square around the imposing, Romanesque county courthouse. The Econo Lodge out on the interstate is doing a brisk business. Some of the restaurants stay open late, when the movie people are in town, so the crews will have a place to eat after a day's busy shooting schedule.

Films such as "Tender Mercies" and "Places in the Heart" have been shot here, along with 12 others. In short, Waxahachie, which in days gone by called itself the "Cotton Capital of the World," — and had little other claim to fame after cotton was no longer king — is now back on the map because of the movie industry.

The lure is the stately old gingerbread homes that line the tree-shaded Waxahachie streets, and the restored town square, which make it a perfect setting for turn-of-the-century period movies.

But Waxahachie is not the only place in Texas benefitting from the movie industry. Cities and towns throughout the state are being used for cinematic locations, with 128 major projects in the past five years. Last year, Texas had 30 major productions in a number of locations, from Dallas to Venus, because it can offer anything from desert to forest to beach settings.

That is hardly enough to send shock waves through Hollywood or New York, the two leaders in movie production — but perhaps a tremor or two. As Dana Shelton, assistant director of the Texas Film Institute put it, Texas is now a "perennial contender" for the number three spot in the business, doing battle with Illinois and Florida for that ranking.

"We're certainly in the third or fourth position on any given year, by our count at least," he said, crediting good locations near major cities, skilled local crews and more relaxed union standards as reasons movie-makers turn to Texas when budgets do not stretch to seven figures.

"Hollywood is the movie capital of the world. You go to Hollywood to make movies. You go to Detroit to make cars. What we are seeing here is an alternative to the production centers. In the great scheme of things, Texas and the others are not competing with Hollywood, but taking advantage of the things here for a small piece of the pie."

For the people of Waxahachie, as well as other small towns around the Dallas hub, the movie business means money, the millions of dollars spent by production companies on everything from meals to lumber to paint to clothes to motel rooms.

Howard Raney's Furniture store has a new coat of paint because the producers of "Peyton Place, the Next Generation" — a made for television movie — wanted it a different color. They repainted it to Raney's specifications when the shooting was completed. The town square now has a gazebo, thanks to the same movie, because it was needed to give Waxahachie a New England flavor. The gazebo was built over the steps leading down to the public rest room, adding an aesthetic touch to what had been merely a utilitarian concrete slab.

The Spaldings, Bill and Margaret, had what amounted to a two-story, run-down shack behind their house when Oscar-winning writer Horton Foote saw it and wanted it as a set for his movie, "1918." The shack was completely renovated — the floors sanded, the walls papered, the exterior repainted — and the Spaldings now have very rentable home, thanks to the movie industry.

The movies have have also brought their share of humor to Waxahachie. One often-told story is that of an elderly gentleman who came upon a crew from "Tender Mercies" about six miles outside Waxahachie. They were putting up a set to resemble an old gas station and motel and the old man was both amused and concerned.

"You boys are in the wrong part of the county," he said. "You're not going to get any business out here."

L.T. Felty, whose business card describes him as the "Chili Advisor to the Governor," eased his worn and faded pickup truck on to the street. The card also describes him as a banking officer for the Waxahachie Bank and Trust Co., but he is in fact the town's biggest booster and purveyor of good will. He was the head coach at Waxahachie High School and later its principal, taking on the banking title after retirement.

His job is to sell Waxahachie, and in particular to sell it to the movie people. He talked about how writer-director Robert Benton was one of the most famous products of the town, of how his job is to woo movie companies to town ("Every time I'd hear of a movie that might be produced here, why I'd go talk to them"), and of how the people of Waxahachie are the kind you can trust. "If you don't lie to them, they'll believe in you as long as you live. Your handshake is your word," he said.

And he also said there was some apprehension by some people when the movie people started ariving in the mid-60s.

"We had some people who couldn't see the use of those strange people coming in," he said.

Price maintains blood-chilling tradition of 'fright fraternity'

Vincent Price

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — When "Entertainment Tonight" needed a narrator for a series devoted to classic horror films, the choice was obvious: Vincent Price.

After all, he is the surviving member of the fright fraternity that included Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Peter Lorre, Basil Rathbone and Lon Chaney Jr. Forget those British Johnny-come-latelies, Christopher Lee and Peter Cushing.

Despite a half-century of playing everything from Ibsen to T.S. Eliot, Price sticks in everyone's mind as a sinister figure, a natural to put the menace in Michael Jackson's "Thriller."

"Out of 100 movies I've appeared in, only 20 have been in the category of horror pictures," he sighed. "From the very beginning of my career, I played all kinds of roles, but one picture changed all that: 'The House of Wax.'"

As the mad proprietor of the wax museum, the ordinarily gentle actor scared millions in the 1953 movie, the chills accentuated by 3-D. In the years that followed, he went through the Edgar Allen Poe catalog ("The Raven," "The Pit and the Pendulum") and did his thing in such films as "The House on Haunted Hill," "Scream and Scream Again" and "The Abominable Dr. Phibes."

At 74, Vincent Price, who lectures on fine art to the nation's universities and who appears in concert with symphony orchestras, views it all with an air of bemusement. His villainous image has contributed to his other endeavors. For instance, "Thriller."

"I always try to do things that are contemporary," he said in an interview. "'Thriller' was good for me in many ways. When I lecture at colleges, they play the music as I walk onstage." He added, somewhat pointedly, that he was paid a flat fee for the Jackson record and video and didn't participate in the mountainous profits.

At this point in his life, Price believes in doing what he likes to do. That includes the lectures — 60 a year — often in residency at colleges; cooking (his cookbook has sold 350,000 copies in 17 years); narrating for symphony orchestras; introducing the PBS "Mystery" series; and lending his voice to the next Disney animated feature, "Basil of Baker Street."

"The hero is a mouse; naturally I play a rat," he said.

He keeps getting scripts for horror flicks but they're all "dirty," he said. "Somewhere in the story there's a scene with the boy and girl that is plain pornography. That's not for me."

Price occasionally returns to the theater, recently with a one-man show about Oscar Wilde, "Diversions and Delights." He has sometimes appeared with his third wife, the noted Australian actress Coral Brown ("An Englishman Abroad").

His suave manner convinces many people that Vincent Price is British. He was born in St. Louis, Mo., and acquired polish at Yale University. "I decided I needed to know more about art so I decided to get a master's degree at the University of London," he said. "While in London I fell in love with the theater."

Price was asked for thumbnail portraits of his comrades in the horror genre. His response:

Boris Karloff — "A warm, funny man with a great sense of humor about himself and what the horror films had done for him. He knew that without 'Frankenstein' his career would never have been so successful."

Peter Lorre — "A funny little man but very unhappy underneath. He liked to kid himself and other actors. He called them 'face-makers.'"

Bela Lugosi — "I never worked with him, but we were once on a personal appearance tour together. He was always disappearing. I didn't know until later about his (narcotics) problem."

Basil Rathbone — "One of the great actors, a kind, hysterically funny man, a great practical joker.

Murphy to MC music video awards

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Eddie Murphy will host the Second Annual Video Music Awards show live from Radio City Music Hall the night of Sept. 13 on the MTV channel.

Last year's show did well in a syndicated 2 1-2-hour version that aired on non-cable stations around the country about two weeks after the ceremonies.

Nominations for the 17 video awards (which still haven't got a nickname) will be announced Tuesday. In addition to looks at the top nominations that night during the three-hour show, MTV viewers will see live performances from top rockers and the usual parade of presenters from the Rock World.

Speaking of "Saturday Night Live" funnyman Murphy, the word from NBC is that the network "may have an announcement" regarding the possible return to SNL of creator Lorne Michaels as executive producer.

"Lorne's agreed in principle, with a handshake, to executive produce the show," a network spokesman said this week.

Abortion fight now propaganda war

By BETTY CUNIBERTI

WASHINGTON — The narrator speaks:

"...Now this head, which I am outlining here, is simply too large to be pulled in one piece out of the uterus...The abortionist will attempt to crush the head...and remove the head piecemeal from the uterus..."

The voice of Dr. Bernard N. Nathanson is a clinical monotone. But the millions of viewers around the world who have watched "The Silent Scream," a controversial X-ray-like film depiction of an actual abortion, are anything but calm.

They flinch. They cringe. Many of those who believe that they are viewing a murder are filled with outrage, as are others who charge that "Silent Scream" is a sensationalized distortion.

Accurate or not, the 28-minute film, which has been translated into six languages and seen by millions on television news reports and religious shows and in private screenings before school and church groups, has intensified the long-standing fight over abortion and turned it into a high-tech propaganda war.

The "pro-life" forces are spending millions of dollars to persuade the public that abortion is nothing less than murder. "Pro-choice" advocates have responded with a gloves-off, multimillion-dollar campaign of their own to press their view that abortion is a woman's right.

In the battle for public opinion, the two sides ultimately hope to influence the Supreme Court as it decides whether to overturn its 1973 decision in Roe vs. Wade, which established the legal right to abortion. The Reagan administration already has jumped into the fray on the anti-abortion side with its July 12 request that the Supreme Court overturn Roe vs. Wade.

THE administration swiftly embraced "Silent Scream" when it appeared in January, which depicts a suction abortion of a fetus described as 12 weeks old. But pro-choice advocates condemned the film as distorted, misleading and error-filled.

Through ultrasound, which uses sound waves to produce a picture of the inside of the uterus, the film shows a live fetus — Nathanson says it is sucking its thumb — as it succumbs to the abortion equipment.

"It is kind of the atom bomb of the pro-life movement," said Donald S. Smith of American Portrait Films, the Anaheim, Calif.-based documentary film company that produced it. "And, just like two bombs were dropped in Japan, we're going to have that much impact."

The film exploded on the pro-choice movement, which hastily abandoned its behind-the-scenes public relations efforts and launched an emotional counteroffensive. Pro-choice supporters appeared in national newspaper ads and stood in front of microphones in public places around the country, discussing their abortions in a new, highly personalized campaign. Many read letters they had written to President Reagan:

"My name is Frank Mendiola. On Nov. 18, 1971, my twin sister, Rose Elizabeth, died at age 14 of an illegal abortion after she was very brutally raped by six men...It was performed in a shady part of town in the back room of a garment sweatshop...She bled to death on a kitchen table. Yes, Mr. President, on a kitchen table."

Mendiola, now 27, traveled from Los Angeles to Washington to join hundreds of pro-choice supporters in the public reading of letters to Reagan May 21. It was the last stop of a 30-state speak-out dubbed "Silent No More" and organized by the National Abortion Rights Action League.

SEPARATELY, "Silent Scream" inspired a group of 80 communications specialists — editors, reporters and advertising and public relations agents — to form a group called Communications Consultants for Choice to give public relations advice to the pro-choice movement. The group, whose members decline to be identified for fear of employer recriminations or retaliation by anti-abortion activists, has prepared a training film for pro-choice advocates, particularly doctors, scheduled to go on television.

Pro-choice advocates recognize that the anti-abortion forces are gaining momentum and capturing new public sympathy.

Anti-abortion activists believe they have a realistic chance of reversing or at least altering Roe vs. Wade. They regard Sandra Day O'Connor, Reagan's only appointee to the Supreme Court, as on their side and express hope that future Reagan appointees also will be.

"All we need is one more justice, and there are four about ready to retire or resign," said Nathanson, who has become a leading voice of the anti-abortion movement. "We will bring a case back to the Supreme Court not on the peripheral issues, but on the central, gut issue of abortion: Is abortion acceptable or not? I say it's not. I believe we will prevail."

NATHANSON HAS proved a powerful celebrity-spokesman for the anti-abortion movement. A New York obstetrician-gynecologist, he was a co-founder of NARAL and director of what he calls "the largest abortion clinic in the Western world" until medical advances in fetology, the study of the fetus, turned him against abortion.

In a movement often associated with zealotry and strong religious beliefs, Nathanson is an atheist who, foremost among physicians and scientists opposed to abortion, lends scientific credibility to the emotion-charged crusade.

"America seems to need personalities," said former Nathanson associate Larry Lader, also a co-founder of NARAL and now head of a group called Abortion Rights Mobilization. "Bernie has become an anti-abortion hero. He has cut a new and distinct figure: the atheist religious hero."

Americans see Social Security as success

Most Americans over age 25 want benefits maintained

By LEE BYRD

WASHINGTON (AP) — A half century after President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security act to help protect "the average citizen...against poverty-ridden old age," most Americans view the program as an indispensable success, a nationwide survey says.

Nine out of 10 people aged 25 or older believe Social Security should be spared from cutbacks regardless of the federal government's deficit problems, according to the "50-Year Report Card" commissioned by the American Association of Retired Persons.

At the same time, the survey found that most Social Security recipients consider their retirement incomes either "comfortable" or "adequate." Despite "widespread beliefs about the economic hardships suffered by retirees, only about 16 percent report real financial difficulties," said a 61-page report on the findings.

The survey, released Wednesday, reflected substantial sentiment from both working Americans and those already drawing Social Security benefits that the system is flawed. But despite frequent complaints of unfairness, red tape and inadequacy, nine out of 10 respondents opposed phasing the program out and relying on private pension plans.

The AARP survey was conducted in late April and early May by the marketing and social science research firm of Yankelovich, Skelly and White, and was based on random telephone interviews with 2,052 adults aged 25 or older.

The findings surely came as no surprise to President Reagan or Congress. Reagan, after initially proposing a cutback in Social Security cost-of-living increases, recently reversed himself. With that, House Democrats prevailed over the Republican Senate to spare Social Security from any cuts in the fiscal 1986 budget.

THE AARP researchers said the study carried a 95 percent probability of being within 3 percent of the sentiment of the entire population in that age bracket. Researchers questioned 500 people from each of four age groups — 25 to 34, 35 to 44, 45 to 61, and 61 and older.

Among the findings:

— 92 percent of Americans rated Social Security a success.

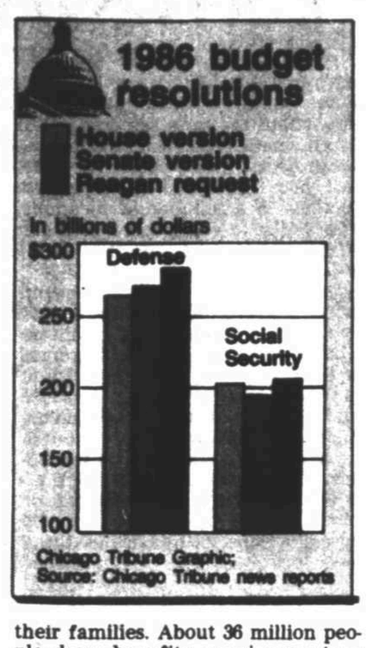

— Though 86 percent rated the federal deficit a serious problem, almost 90 percent opposed any cuts in Social Security benefits to help lower the deficit.

— 80 percent supported continuation of the full cost-of-living increases in benefits. And virtually no proposal for otherwise trimming the cost of Social Security, such as taxing benefits or "means" tests on incomes, has majority support.

— 62 percent said their Social Security taxes are about right, while 23 percent said they are too high. By contrast, 43 percent said their federal income tax rates are about right, while 51 percent said they are too high.

— There is a divergence of views about what role Social Security should play in overall retirement income, but 70 percent said it should provide at least an adequate standard of living.

More than 120 million Americans pay Social Security taxes for the old-age protection of themselves and their families. About 36 million people draw benefits, ranging up to a maximum of $728 a month for a male worker who retired at age 65. The benefit amount is based on how much the person earned when working. The average monthly benefit is $449 for a retired single person and $776 for the combined pensions of a couple.

IN GENERAL, people must work at least 10 full years to qualify for retirement benefits, without which 55 percent of those aged 65 or older would fall below the federal poverty line.

The survey found that retirees themselves give Social Security the highest marks, with 55 percent reporting that it is their most important source of revenue. The next ranking revenue source, company pension plans, was cited by only 18 percent as their primary retirement income.

Among the retirees interviewed, 43 percent said they are "comfortable" financially, 41 percent said they have enough to get by, and 16 percent reported having serious difficulty.

Active workers, meanwhile, were far less content with the benefit levels, with 45 percent calling them just "adequate" and 40 percent rating them "inadequate."

The AARP report said that while Social Security was once regarded "by many a revolutionary, even dangerous initiative, today it is inextricably woven into the fabric of American life. In fact, far-reaching demographic and social trends...have increased Social Security's perceived importance. Some of these are:

— "Increased life expectancy for retirees.

— "The decline of the extended family and the desire for mutual independence among aging parents and their children.

— "Recent bouts with inflation which have placed the elderly under unusual economic stress."

Because of escalating expectations for their retirement years, "Americans have made retirement planning a priority and have sought a diversity of income sources," the report said. "The growth of private pensions and the relatively recent availablity of IRA and Keogh plans has made this possible."

'No radio' is 'Sign of the Times'

NEW YORK (AP) — After punks have already gouged the stereo from the dashboard of your car, what's to stop other little felons from breaking a window in the dark of night when they can't see the radio has already gone?

How about a bright yellow, laminated sign that says bluntly: NO RADIO.

For $6, Kevin Lessin, struggling actor-cum-entrepreneur, will sell you one. But he recommends that you buy at least three: one for the driver's window, one for the passenger's and one to sit on the dashboard.

Lessin, 27, got into the NO RADIO sign business by unfortunate accident.

"I bought my first car back at the end of February," he said in an interview. "Ten days later, I went to get my car on the street, and saw shattered glass on the ground next to my car. And I no longer had a radio.

"In my case, they did almost $1,900 in damage to my car — the window was broken, the door was damaged, the dashboard was wrecked, and the radio itself cost $500."

To spare more damage from vandals in search of a radio in his now radioless car, Lessin made up a sign.

Rather than just taping a cardboard sign in his car window, he made one with some class and had it laminated in plastic. Every time he parked, he said, he would slide it into the window.

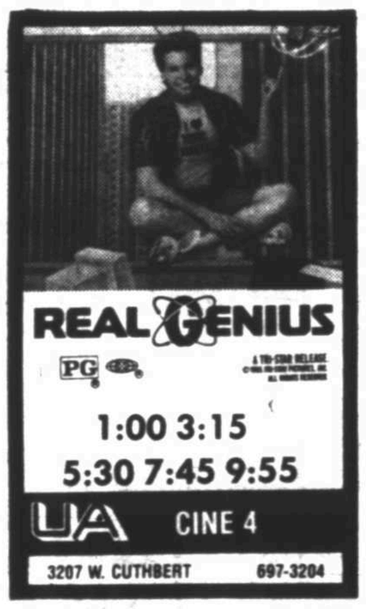

"Everybody was curious to know where I bought the sign, and where they could buy one," he said. "The demand was incredible. It didn't take me too long to figure out I could make some money from this."

So he invested $40 in a business license and $500 in an electronic typewriter, found a one-man laminating shop in Brooklyn and dreamed up a name: Sign of the Times.

Since then, he has filled about 300 orders and expects to grow rapidly.

Office helps citizens locate Americans 'lost' overseas

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The calls come into the room on the fourth floor of the State Department from all over the United States, around the clock, half a million of them a year.

A husband is missing in Thailand. A son is out of money in France. A sister has died in Brazil. A business partner has been arrested in Egypt.

The calls are directed at the Office of Overseas Citizens Services, which serves as an intermediary between relatives and acquaintances of American travelers and U.S. embassies and foreign governments. With more than 16 million Americans living abroad or expected to travel abroad this year, the office's staff of 75 is one of the busiest in Washington, particularly at the height of the summer tourist season.

Many callers seem on the verge of panic. The officials who field the calls try to calm them down, then try to solve the problem at hand, by reaching either U.S. diplomatic officials abroad or the government of the country concerned, or both.

The office was called upon to relay information to families of the hostages aboard the jetliner hijacked last month in the Middle East. James P. Callahan, a press officer, said the staff worked day and night and called the families of each hostage twice a day, even when there was no information to relate. The office was also flooded with calls from tourists wondering whether airports they planned to use were safe.

Another official, Thomas P. Furey, remembers a far more typical case involving a call from a father whose daughter was in Nepal.

"He was desperate because he hadn't heard from her in months," Furey said. "He was convinced she was dead, and he asked us to get the embassy to find her body. Within two hours of our notifying the embassy, they had located his daughter. She had been sending him letters, but they must have been lost in the mail. The man was ecstatic."

Historical data from dig to be worth it's weight in gold booty

By DAVID SEDENO
Associated Press

PORT MANSFIELD, Texas — Somewhere in the Gulf of Mexico is more than 50,000 pounds of booty from a Spanish shipwreck in 1554, but that's not what snagged Dr. Herman Smith's curiosity.

As officials begin laying the groundwork for a major excavation near here next year, Smith is more interested in the salvage crews that scoured the wreckage a few months after the three ships ran aground on sandbars off Padre Island.

"If we find silver and gold, sure we'll take it. But that's not what's important to us," Smith, a Corpus Christi Museum archaeologist, said as he walked in an area where Spanish crews stayed for about a month while salvaging.

Sand and wind have since covered up or moved much of what was left behind from the ships, and two of them — the San Esteban and Espiritu Santo — have been pretty thoroughly excavated.

But the wreck of the Santa Maria de Yciar continues to elude treasure hunters, and experts believe there are more than 50,000 pounds of precious metals, coins and jewelry out in the Gulf.

Archaeologists set up a camp on the Padre Island National Seashore to house electronic equipment that will be used to scan underneath sand dunes for the booty from a Spanish shipwreck in 1554. Near left, Dr. Herman Smith (left) of the Corpus Christi Museum and a volunteer dig up a section of the beach and unearth a "modern" pipe.

AP Laserphoto

Smith said he and other archaeologists don't expect any time soon to find any treasure, but he said the historical data is much more valuable anyway.

"Believe me, people love to see shipwreck stuff," he said. "But how long can you stare at a bar of gold?"

Silver, pottery, ballast stones, ships spikes, rum bottles and brass and bronze nails have already been found from the shipwrecks.

Any other artifacts found at the site, about seven miles east of Port Mansfield, will become property of the federal government, but probably will be on display at the Corpus Christi Museum, Smith said.

Smith is one of about 40 archaeologists and volunteers who have spent the last month doing the research for a full-scale excavation next year.

Others involved in the $30,000 three-week project include the National Park Service, the Tennessee Valley Authority, Texas Antiquities Commission, the Department of the Interior and local volunteers.

The three Spanish ships were on their way from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Havana when disaster struck in April 1554.

About 300 people died in the shipwreck and before salvage crews arrived from Vera Cruz two months later.

"These guys (the original salvagers) were thieves," Smith said. "They were hiding silver and gold in every nook and cranny in the ships. If they were stealing they were hiding it before they got it to the boat and I don't think they got it all."

Those salvagers recovered more than 35,000 pounds of Spanish silver and gold, but according to ship records, more than 50,000 pounds of precious metals, jewelry and coins still are out in the Gulf.

In the 1960s, Platoro Ltd., a private salvaging company, began excavating on one of the ships, the Espiritu Santo, and recovered some precious metals. But it got into trouble with the state because it was excavating on state property.

The Texas Antiquities Committee in 1972 undertook salvaging efforts at the site — which experts say is the most excavated in the world — and targeted the San Esteban. Artifacts if found are on display at the Corpus Christi Museum.

Larry Nordby, a National Park Service archaeologist, said there have been many shipwrecks in the Port Mansfield area and Americans should be interested because of the historical importance.

"It has been said that you can't understand the present if you don't learn about the past," he said. "What archaeology offers is to drawn lessons from the past to verify historical documentation that may not be true."

The park service will scan with sophisticated equipment the 20-mile long area near Port Mansfield.

Juneau, near death, recovers fully to protect status as state capitol

By JAY MATHEWS
Los Angeles Times—
Washington Post News Service

JUNEAU, Alaska — The little city had always been a rare, multi-colored jewel pinned to the side of the snow-flecked mountain, but by 1982 its luster had been dimmed by the depressing news of an imminent raid from the cruel north.

Greater Anchorage, the sprawling, ugly giant that claimed nearly half the state's population, was about to rob Juneau of its status as state capital.

The theft required only one last statewide ballot to endorse expenditures for a new capital on the Anchorage outskirts, a proposal voters had already approved.

Something about this place, the only state capital that cannot be reached by automobile, a nearly perpendicular village that feels more like a ski lodge than a city, made proudly idiosyncratic Alaskans think twice about the move, and they voted it down.

The people of Juneau caught their breath, looked around in wonder, then went on a binge.

In short order, this has become a boom town, with office buildings and shopping centers sprouting, touring ocean liners queuing up on the narrow Gastineau Channel, bankers, real-estate agents and construction workers rushing in and bare spots along a once-virgin fjord and the track of a nearby glacier filling with suburbanites.

Since 1980 the population has jumped nearly 50 percent, from 19,500 to 28,500, with most of the increase taking place in the last three years. The number of residential-building permits increased 66 percent from 1982 to 1983. A huge outlet of the Fred Meyer food and department store chain materialized at the foot of a mountain near the enlarged, renovated airport.

"A lot of pent-up development energies were unleashed," said Mayor Fran Ulmer, a former Federal Trade Commission attorney who became bored with Washington and moved here in 1973.

She was elected in 1983, at age 35, a nice approximation of the young, nature-loving professionals who have gravitated to Juneau.

Most of them are tied to the state government, still the city's chief employer. Although no one has tried to revive the plan to move the capital, "it is misleading to think it is totally dead," Ulmer said.

In the struggle for state facilities in a time of limited budgets, Anchorage may tear off a few more plums.

But Ulmer had the pleasure of flying north last year to address the Anchorage Chamber of Commerce on the dissipation in Juneau of "the ugly shadow of economic death (that had) paralyzed investors and stilted the community's growth."

William Corbus, president of the region's Alaska Electric Light & Power Co., extolls the street improvements in the capital, the new dockside parking garage going up and the new water system that allows the blossoming suburbs in the Mendenhall Valley, in the shadow of the glacier of that name, to give up relying on wells.

With tour-boat passengers topping 115,000, the city has acquired more than 62 restaurants, three bookstores and four fresh-fish outlets where recently there were none.

Ulmer is not certain that all of these can survive and notes that the building boom has left much unrented space — but economic optimism is unabated.

City Planning Director Thomas J. Peterson said a rich vein of silver, zinc and lead has led to serious plans for a major mine in the area, an echo of the 1880 gold strike that led Joe Juneau and Richard Harris to establish the town.

The number of students at the little University of Alaska campus here is climbing. Peterson said a fisheries research center has been proposed.

To all such dreams, Peterson notes, there are limits. "We are still 900 miles from Seattle, and it still snows in the winter," he said.

Only two state capitals, Montpelier, Vt., and Pierre, S.D., have fewer people. Juneau television cannot provide the NBC or CBS network news. Plans to link the city with the rest of the world by building a road over the coastal mountains have gone nowhere; drivers still must take the long, pleasant ferry ride up the coast from British Columbia.

That disdain for the automobile gives the town much of its charm. The best hotels are no more than a 5-minute walk from the squarish, unprepossessing state capitol. One longtime resident likened it to "living on a college campus," and there are other compensations.

Peterson is plotting to build a weekend cabin in the woods. Ulmer, who grew up fishing and canoeing in Wisconsin, can be out of her office and doing just that within minutes.

Nowhere freeway falls to wrecking ball

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — It is known as the Potomac River Freeway. It goes nowhere.

For almost 20 years the six-block elevated roadway, a relic of the highway wars of the 1960s, has perched on the Georgetown waterfront. It was originally built to connect with a Potomac crossing, the Three Sisters Bridge, which was to bring six additional lanes of Interstate 66 into Washington.

But then environmental and citizen groups won a 10-year battle to save the Potomac's banks from a maze of ramps and roads, and Three Sisters Bridge was never constructed. The freeway stub was as far as things got, a heavy memento of the palmier days of the urban highway system.

Now, in a matter of days, the stub will be history.

It will disappear not because it goes nowhere, but because it looms within 20 feet of the north face of Washington Harbour, a turreted, terraced $200 million complex along the Potomac that includes 38 luxurious penthouse apartments that sell for as much as $1.8 million. Rather than have the freeway mar the complex's appearance, Washington Harbour's developer is happily spending $4 million to erase the concrete and steel stub.

Drug agents raid field of spuds, not pot

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — A sweep by drug agents of what they thought was a marijuana field turned out to be small potatoes — really.

Agents turned out in force after investigators spotted a promising field from the air. They even invited reporters along for the kill.

But Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman Tom Burton said Wednesday that red-faced agents quickly discovered they had raided a potato — not pot — field. "We went there and calmly walked on the property and saw that it wasn't, and departed," he said.

Jeff Bernstein lives dog's life

LOS ALTOS, Calif. (AP) — Jefferson M. Bernstein may have a credit card and certificates for his contributions to society, but he's still in the dog house.

That's where he belongs, says his owner. Jefferson is a dog.

Owner Arthur Bernstein says his pet is also in the 1984 edition of "Outstanding Young Men in America," and is a member of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Bernstein says it is his hobby to personify his dog and sign him up for things. But Mobil Oil Co., wasn't amused. Officials said they are retrieving Jefferson's credit card.

Pope urges Togolese to live in harmony with countrymen

TOGOVILLE, Togo (AP) — Pope John Paul II urged Togolese Christians on Friday to live in harmony with their countrymen who follow animist religions. He ordained 11 new priests and exhorted them to seek friendship among the nation's 40 tribes.

The pope then set out to meet the country's high priests and sorcerers lsaater in the day.

The state-run television said the small West African nation's 2 million animists — who believe inanimate objects are imbued with spirits — awaited with "intense interest" the encounter between their religious leaders and the head of the Roman Catholic Church.

About 70 percent of Togo's people follow tribal religions.

Christian missionaries a century ago first set up their posts in Togoville, on a bluff overlooking the country's largest lake, so they could be close to the hub of the tribal religions.

Vatican officials said a few moments of solitary prayer at Togoville's Virgin Mary shrine, erected by Roman Catholic missionaries, was a key reason the pope made the strenuous six-hour journey to Togoville, 280 miles north of Lome, the capital.

But the pope's meeting with the animist religious leaders, who live in a forest on the opposite side of Togoville's lake, was expected to overshadow his visit to the shrine. The high priests and sorcerers seldom emerge from the forest, which is considered sacred, and their appointment with the pope was interpreted as a special sign of respect for him.

The pope met with President Gnassingbe Eyadema in Togoville earlier in the day, his second of a 12-day, seven-nation tour of Africa.

Shielded from the tropical sun by a multicolored beach umbrella, John Paul spoke to hundreds of people from the balcony of the president's three-story villa, set on a rolling hill.

He urged Togo's Christian minority to live in peace and harmony with the animist majority.

By preaching harmony, the pope said, the Catholic church "helps to weave ever closer links of solidarity and mutual respect between the social and ethnic groups, between different cultures and religions and among the nations of the entire world."

At his private meeting with Eyadema, the pope seemed eager to bury memories of a bitter dispute between church and state a decade ago, when the president embarked on a campaign of "authenticity," changing his own Christian name, Etienne, to an African one and ordering his citizens to do likewise.

In a speech earlier in the village of Pya, the pope said, "The Togolese authorities can always count on the loyalty of Christians toward their terrestrial homeland."

Later, the pope ordained 11 Togolese priests at an outdoor Mass in Kara, Togo's second-largest city. He urged the new priests to strive for peace and friendship among the nation's 40 different tribes.

Many of the 5,000 people at the Mass were animists and Moslems.

The pontiff paid special tribute to the white missionaries who comprise more than half the country's Roman Catholic priests 25 years after Togo achieved independence.

In an apparent rebuke to those demanding a more rapid "Africanization" of the priesthood, he said the white missionaries' service "is very considerable and necessary...Without them, the church would not have been implanted here."

Wherever the pope went, he was greeted by enthusiastic crowds.

When he stepped off the plane in Niantougou, a crowd of 2,000 began singing "We greet you" in the pope's native Polish. John Paul joined in the clapping and shouted "Merci! Merci!" — French for thank you.

"We practiced this for weeks," said Yussif Mahmoud, who led a group of Moslems from the area. Moslems, who make up 9 percent of the population, live mainly in the north.

At one point, on the way from the airport to Kara, the pope suddenly ordered his motorcade to stop and went into a mud hut. Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro later told reporters that inside the pope asked a woman with several children how she "manages to live in a place like this."

The woman, caught by surprise, answered in broken French that she was living on flour and manioc, an edible, starchy root, Navarro said.

Photographer gives account of kidnapping of Americans

MANAGAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Following is the account of Bolivar Arellano, a free-lance photographer working for the Spanish-language newspaper, La Prensa, of New York, who was one of 14 journalists travelling with the Witness for Peace activists on the San Juan River:

"The group consists of 29 Americans from Witness for Peace and 14 journalists and the boat crew consisting of the captain, seven sailors, two cooks and the owner of the craft.

"A seven-year-old girl, the daughter of one of the cooks, was also on board.

"The rebels treated us well. At no time was an attempt made by us to mutiny because the Contras (anti-Sandinista guerrillas) treated us well.

"The group of kidnappers consisted of 15 Contras, some wearing military garb and others dressed in civilian clothes. They carried Czechoslovakian-made AK rifles and Belgian-made FALs.

"It is not true, as was reported, that they shot at the boat and fired many bursts into the air. The truth is they fired two or three times in the air, to warn us to stop.

"The place where they held us is called Machuca, located between La Penca and Las Cruces, on the border between Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

"Immediately after they fired the shots, all the occupants in the boat hit the deck.

"When they took us off the boat, they told us they were from Pastora's ARDE group. (Eden Pastora is the military leader of the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance. It's Spanish initials are ARDE).

"The kidnapping took place at 7:45 a.m., Nicaraguan time, on Wednesday, and they took us to Machucaenla, on the Costa Rican side of the San Juan River.

"They ordered us to walk to their camp, 2 or 3 kilometers inside Costa Rican territory, and we arrived at their 'ranch' and they told us that the commander had to talk to us. This occurred four hours later.

"After that, they ordered us to return to the boat to sleep, because the camp was small and could accomodate only 10 people.

"Before we climbed on the boat, 'Commander Daniel' suddenly ordered us to return to the camp, but we argued against it and he let us sleep in the boat.

"Daniel told us to sleep peacefully, but that if some group tried to free us, they would kill.

"We therefore communicated by radio with Managua and told them not to send any military force because our lives were in danger.

"The next day, another commander called 'William' gathered us at around 9 a.m., local time, and gave us a talk. He told us none of them belonged to ARDE but to a group of independent Nicaraguan anti-communists in exile.

"After that, they ordered us to leave. But before that, we hugged each other and sang together.

"After that, when we were navigating along the river, we were intercepted by Commander Lester Chavez of the civil guard of Costa Rica and he asked us where we had been and said that they had been looking for us for two days.

"After Chavez bid us farewell, we left and arrived at a Costa Rican frontier post called Las Tiricias.

"The Costa Rican military there told us to wait five minutes because the American consul in Costa Rica wanted to talk to us.

"But after waiting a long time, we left. Nevertheless, they stopped us again, they said, on the order of the American consul.

"We protested and asked what was going on, and (told them) we would not respect the order. And they replied that it would be better for us if we stayed.

"After the Costa Rican guards detained us an hour, they told us we could leave.

"The rest of the trip was peaceful after that and we arrived at El Castillo de la Concepcion, where the people received us around 7 p.m., local time.

"We slept at El Castillo and left today, Friday, for San Carlos at 5:55 a.m., local time, and we arrived in San Carlos two hours later, where the people received us joyfully."
