New Route Of Air Service Discussed

Another view of the complex north-south airline picture was presented here Tuesday, as representatives of the Big Spring chamber of commerce conferred with officials of Continental Air Lines regarding the company's application for a certificate of operation between Denver and San Antonio, by way of New Mexico points, Big Spring and San Angelo.

A luncheon party was given by O. E. Hauser, vice president of operations for Continental; R. H. Bernstein, traffic manager; C. B. Reed, chief engineer; Paul Briggs, superintendent of maintenance; C. C. West, Jr., sales manager; and Lieutenant Governor Jim Murray of New Mexico who reside at Hobbs, and Ray Storm, of Hobbs. The group is flying the proposed new route, which would be from Denver to San Antonio by way of Albuquerque, Roswell, Hobbs, and San Angelo, and making stops at all interested towns.

The Continental application will be heard by the CAA in Washington on April 15, in a consolidated hearing which also affects other north-south applications, including those of Braniff and TWA.

Continental men said they hoped to see AIR ROUTE, Page 8, Column 2.

Redbud Blooming Now, Adding Garden Color

Another of the plants suggested by the Garden club for Big Spring's "official" shrub is the Redbud, a popular growth that adds beauty to lawn and garden. The Garden club, in an effort to stimulate civic beautification, is calling on the public to vote on suggested shrubs, and a special program of extensive planting of the chosen species will follow up the vote. A ballot appears below which may be checked easily, and your vote is urged. All ballots must be in by Saturday noon.

Redbuds are now out in all their glory and are lighting up entire gardens with their rose and lavender splendor. The flowers of this small tree grow in close clusters along the length of its branches, to be replaced later in the spring by somewhat round, large leaves which droop gracefully.

Redbud trees grow in their wild state in the central, eastern and southern part of Texas. These natives produce flowers of a deeper hue than those of the cultivated species. Redbud flourishes in a sandy loam but may be grown successfully in almost any type soil.

In late summer Redbud trees produce seeds in flat pods, which may be used as a means of propagation.

In nursery catalogues Redbud is known as Cercis and can be obtained in Chinese or Japanese species, the difference being in the size of the plant and in the depth of color in the bloom. The plant is also known as Judas Tree.

Martial Law Order Under Court's Fire

Phillips Asked If His Proclamation Was Just 'Bluff'

VINITA, Okla., Mar. 26 (AP)—Gov. Leon C. Phillips' generalissimo in the Grand river dam "state's right war" faced a barrage today from two federal judges demanding to know if a martial law proclamation was "just newspaper bunk" or "sham and bluff."

No Dynamiting
Adjutant General Louis A. Ledbetter engaged in a sharp exchange with Federal Judges Robert L. Williams and Franklin E. Kenamer and told them he "probably" would have dynamited the $20,000,000 power dam if ordered. But such a drastic step was never considered, he added.

Defeated in an attempt to have a temporary order dismissed, the state marshalled witnesses to oppose a PWA appeal to make permanent the order preventing Phillips from blocking construction.

Ledbetter said Governor Phillips gave him oral orders not to prevent closing of dam openings when state troops marched in.

"Well," demanded Judge Williams, "what was this proclamation? Just newspaper bunk?"

Judge Kenamer, sitting en banc with Williams and A. P. Murrah, asked: "Was this just a sham and a bluff?"

Ledbetter flushed and replied: "Judge, you will have to come to that conclusion yourself if you wish. As far as I'm concerned this was not."

Murrah wanted to know if Ledbetter had told the governor he had found a way to keep the dam open.

"No, I made no report to the governor," Ledbetter replied. "It was a prime subject of conversation, however, and I may have made a facetious statement about dynamiting the dam, but I was not serious."

Hearing on the suit was rushed toward a close as F. B. Wiener, Washington, special assistant to the U. S. attorney general, summoned a half dozen witnesses.

Bolivian Uprising Quickly Quelled

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Mar. 26 (AP)—The Bolivian government this morning put down a short-lived revolt by 2,000 members of a regiment of carabineros (national police) which government spokesmen said was due to discontent with the outcome of the recent presidential election.

Government sources said the rising and its suppression were bloodless. The regiment is quartered in suburban Miraflores and apparently the rebels never left their barracks. No shots were heard in La Paz.

IS REWARDED FOR GALLOGLY ARREST

ATLANTA, Mar. 26 (AP)—The $500 Richard G. Gallogly reward has been paid to Sheriff R. S. (Smoot) Schmid of Dallas county, Texas, to whom the life-terminer surrendered last October after escaping from two Georgia guards taking him to Tattall state prison.

The check was taken to the Sheriff by Capt. Dave F. Simmons of the state trooper detail which returned Gallogly to Georgia Sunday to resume his life sentence for the 1928 "thrill" slaying of an Atlanta drug clerk.

Defeated in a five-month legal battle against extradition from Texas, Gallogly is now at Tattall awaiting assignment as a penitentiary farm hand.

U. S. Commercial Airlines Complete Year Without A Fatality Or A Serious Injury

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26 (AP)—Commercial airlines in the United States completed today a year of flying without a fatal accident or serious injury to passengers or crew members.

The record was made a few minutes before 3 a. m. (CST) to signalize the event, Chairman Robert Hinkley of the Civil Aeronautics Authority dispatched this message to airmen over the agency's teletypewriter circuit:

"Heartiest congratulations to all airline, Civil Aeronautics Authority and weather bureau personnel upon completion of an entire year of airline safety. This is one of the outstanding achievements in the history of transportation."

600 Members Are Sought By Civic Music

Workers took to the field Tuesday to attain a goal of 600 members, announced as an objective this week at the Civic Music Association dinner in the Settles hotel Monday evening.

William R. Dawes, who presided over the affair, said that the goal was about twice that of the past year, but that the leadership had every confidence that it would be approached.

The drive for members—$5 for adults and $2.50 for students—will end Saturday evening. Only those who become members may attend any of the concerts, and their membership is good in any other Civic Music organization in the nation. Likewise, they may attend CMA concerts in Abilene and Lubbock on their Big Spring membership.

Cliff Wiley, speaking briefly before the group, quoted Confucius appropriately, if incorrectly, in saying: "CMA like a wheelbarrow. No push, no go." This was his challenge to the workers.

"We are working together for the finer things in life," said Wiley, and without an association of this type, we are asleep at the switch. Let's do the job together."

Harlowe F. Dean, Civic Concert Service representative, observed that the drive was virtually on the anniversary of the founding of the local unit and that a good showing could be had only by keeping old members and adding the new. He believed experience of the past year will enable the leadership to select artists more within tastes of the membership. Too, he felt the international crisis would result in more famous talent being readily available this season.

It was explained that 1,500 invitation cards have been sent out, including blocks to residents of Lamesa, Fortson, Midland, Coahoma, Stanton and other surrounding towns. There has been some response from this source already.

A scroll was presented to J. H. Greene, CMA president, denoting membership in the Civic Concert Service, NIS subsidiary, which is celebrating its 10th anniversary.

ROOSEVELT NOW IS FREE OF FEVER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26 (AP)—President Roosevelt's last trace of fever was gone today and sides described him as "all right" after a two weeks' tussle with a cold but he still remained in his White House quarters.

On the advice of his physician, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, to stay away from crowds, the chief executive cancelled his regular Tuesday press conference and made only two appointments for the day.

New Bomb Is Demonstrated

BALTIMORE, Mar. 26 (AP)—Lester Barlow gave a demonstration today of the power contained in his liquid-oxygen-carbon bomb—an explosive he contends is capable of wiping out every living thing within a 1,000-foot radius.

As reporters and photographers crowded behind sandbags, Barlow set off an 8-ounce charge of his explosive and made matchwood of two heavy logs. Several pieces were hurled more than a hundred feet into the air.

The explosive was set off by an electric detonator, the only means, the inventor said, of releasing the destructive force. Soaked for 15 minutes in liquid oxygen before it was fired, the bomb looked more like a sodden bag of sugar than an instrument of death.

Having shown how 8 ounces of the explosive could splinter the logs, Barlow planned later to demonstrate a five-pound charge. He arranged to fire the heavier charge out of a mortar at a piece of heavy armor plate, with the spectators protected by sandbags.

The test, made by Barlow to invited spectators at the testing ground at the Glenn L. Martin airplane factory, was arranged after a joint hearing of senate and house naval and military committees. It was to prove or disprove Barlow's contention his device is safe to handle.

Critics previously met Barlow's claims with assertions that such an explosive was too delicate for practical use. Barlow replied that his formula made it impossible to fire or shock, and that it was safer to handle than TNT.

10 Millions Go Safety Meet To War Relief On April 8

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26 (AP)—The wars of Europe and Asia already have called forth American donations of $10,000,000 or more for the relief of distressed civilian populations.

A state department summary of contributions under the neutrality act showed today that more than $5,000,000 in money and goods has been collected privately in the first half year of the European struggle.

As much or more has gone to China since the outbreak of hostilities with Japan.

The department reported that cash aid to European belligerents totaled $4,842,358. Other gifts were valued at $754,890.

The tabulation, however, omits the American Red Cross, the organization which leads in funds raised. The Red Cross was unable to present its figures in time for inclusion.

This aid was solely for the belligerent countries mentioned in the neutrality proclamation—Germany, France, Poland and the British empire.

In addition, several millions of dollars were collected for Finland by various associations.

HARLINGEN, Mar. 26 (AP)—The Rio Grande is expected to reach flood stage at San Benito some time today as the result of another heavy rain throughout the valley.

The river, which had been reduced to a trickle because of a severe drought, became a torrent yesterday after an eight-inch down-pour in Starr county.

Other sections of the valley received up to three inches of precipitation.

Elmer's A-Learnin'

(Editor's Note: This story is taken from a dossier just incorporated into records of the U. S. Marine Corps. Only the names are fictitious.)

KANSAS CITY, Mar. 26 (AP)—Elmer Dowdy was 19. Everything looked rosy. He had a job on a huckster's wagon on the North Side.

He loved Bella Ann, who was 17. He thought of her as a sweet little thing despite her 140 pounds. Sometimes she lapsed into baby talk. Elmer thought that meant innocence. They were married.

But things got tough. Elmer lost his job.

Bella Ann dropped her baby talk. "What the hell? I'm hungry," Elmer talked to his ma, who had divorced pa and married a cook. Ma was no help so Elmer went to pa.

"Join the marines," pa suggested. "They feed you well. I will certify that you are single."

Bella Ann heartily approved after Elmer promised he'd send her his pay every month.

Bella Ann wrote punctiliously—just before every pay day:

"Ouritty bit pie misses so x x x don't forget the check."

Elmer didn't. But one day, missing Bella Ann more than usual, he stuck the check in his pocket, hopped a freight and came home.

Bella Ann was surprised and so was ma. Then in walked the marines. They dropped a remark about it being worth $50 to anyone who informed on a deserter.

A strange gleam came into Bella Ann's eyes. Into ma's, too.

Elmer spent some time in the brig but he'd no more than got out

This message was retransmitted by radio to 208 airline planes then in flight. Passengers traveling in the planes were given copies as souvenirs.

The aeronautics authority also noted that for the first time passengers carried by the airlines exceeded the 2,000,000 mark in a 12-month period. The total for the year ending today was 2,028,817, against 1,359,818 for the previous year. In the last 12 months, passenger-miles of travel amounted to 814,906,350.

The last fatal air crash occurred March 26, 1939, at Oklahoma City, Okla. Seven passengers and one member of the crew were killed.

Army And Navy Agree To Speeding Delivery

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26 (AP)—The army and navy stood aside today to give France and Britain virtually unhindered access to the latest models of American warplanes.

The two services formally agreed late yesterday on the new export policy, acting on the belief that national defense would best be served by the consequent expansion of the nation's aircraft industry and by the rigorous testing which American-developed ships will receive in Europe's aerial war.

Barring congressional interference, officials said that the new policy forecast these immediate results:

1. Release to the allies of some 600 planes now under construction for the army or navy.
2. Acceleration in the placing of an expected 1,000,000 in Franco-British aircraft orders.

Secretary of War Woodring is expected to submit a detailed exposition of the new army-navy stand when he appears tomorrow before the house military committee which is investigating foreign plane purchases here. The previous policy had been not to release any military craft for sale until a better type had been perfected.

Officials emphasized that no secret military devices would be supplied with the planes.

The allies, on their part, would be required to furnish complete data on the performance of the planes in active service in order that subsequent models may be improved for the benefit of American air forces.

Another stipulation requires a guarantee that the allies will not manufacture planes of American design in Europe. This is to safeguard the domestic aviation industry and the employment of aircraft workers.

County To Buy Gas In Carload Lots

With work complete on a small utility building and underground storage tanks being installed, Howard county Tuesday prepared to institute purchase of gasoline by carload-lots.

Bids on an 8,000 gallon tank will be opened by the commissioners court on April 11, it was announced.

A small structure has been completed at the rear of the new county warehouse, and half of it will be given over to storage of oils and for gasoline pumps. The other half will be used as a blacksmith shop. In all, this structure cost the county little less than $100 because much material was used from the old county warehouse.

AUSTIN, Mar. 26 (AP)—Mayors of Texas' safest cities will be honored at the Texas safety conference here April 18.

City Chosen By Teachers

The West Texas Teachers association will hold its 1941 convention in Big Spring.

Executive committee of the association, meeting Monday night in Plainview, chose this city for the next convocation, after hearing invitations from Supt. W. C. Blankenship and C.C. Manager J. H. Greene. Plainview and Lubbock also offered bids, but the convention has been held in both cities since it was staged here in 1938.

Dates for the convention probably will be about mid-March, Blankenship said. The session is expected to attract from 1,500 to 2,000 teachers here for two days, the association including a wide section of the South Plains and mid-West Texas area.

The Sad But True Story Of A Marine Who Learned That You Can't Trust A Woman

several blocks. Then her main-law caught her on a down-grade. But that last block to the recruiting office was upgrade and youth triumphed.

Bella Ann burst in on the marines:

"I have a deserter locked in my room. Where's that $50?"

Ma stormed in, breathless: "I oughta get half."

"Never trust a woman. She even lied about the baby."

Bella Ann went south with the $50 and a taxi driver.

The marines let Elmer see pa before hustling him back to the brig.

"Pa," he said, "don't join the marines if you're married. It's against the regulations."

"Elmer," said his pa, "you're learnin'."

Planning A Garden?

Plants, Like Human Beings, Benefit From Vitamins

(Seventh In A Series)
By ROBERT E. GIEGER
AF Feature Service Writer

Techniques in plant culture and feeding developed in the last two years or so are making gardening an exciting adventure.

Chemical agriculture, the growing of plants without soil, still is in an experimental stage, but the amateur with only a limited space can find pleasure in it.

Another recent development is the use of vitamin B₁, which followed upon the discovery a few years ago that plants, like human beings, manufacture a hormone secretion that speeds up growth. Only since last fall has vitamin B₁ been on the market.

There now seems to be no doubt of its nutritional value for many plants that do not themselves produce enough B₁. Most flowers and shrubs are in this group. The economic plants—peas, corn, tomatoes, beans and other intensively cultivated crops — are not improved by it.

Experiments indicate the vitamin will aid delicate plants suffering from nutritional deficiencies. But its greatest promise is in the field of transplantation, re-potting and propagation and in producing plants and blooms of extraordinary size.

Plants, even trees, have been dug up; the soil washed from their roots and bath of B₁ solution applied. They have thrived, whereas other plants transplanted in the same root-shocking manner, but without the bath, have died or were crippled.

The cost of the vitamin is well within the budget of most gardeners; it buys a season's supply for a small plot.

Use of B₁ is so new that amateur gardeners may play an experimental role in the use of it. Undoubtedly, they will discover advantages not yet noted by the experts.

ELECTRICITY GIVES HER WORKLESS WASHDAYS!

● Of all the boons of electric service, few are as greatly appreciated by women as the freedom electricity gives them from the weekly drudgery of washing the family's clothes.

New and more efficient electric washers and speedy electric ironers have cut down the actual work of washing and ironing to minutes instead of hours. Electricity has reduced the small amount of work to be done to such simple and easy tasks as turning a switch or feeding the flatwork into the ironer.

Drop by a store which sells electric washers and ironers and see for yourself how you too can have "workless washdays." And when you own this new equipment, you'll find that a few pennies a week is all it costs for electricity to do the backbreaking work formerly done by hand.

Electricity Makes Ironing Easier, Faster and Better

● An electric ironer takes all the hand work out of this weekly job. You sit down and let tireless electricity do all the hard work.

Electricity Frees Her From This Job

● About ¼ cent an hour is all it costs for electricity to operate a washer, which saves clothes and does better work than is possible to do by hand.

Derden Opens His Campaign

WASHINGTON-ON-THE-BRAZOS, Mar. 28. (AP)—Bald Albert Derden, who hopes the early bird gets the worm, bent over a map of Texas today to chart the whirlwind campaign for governor he launched here last night.

The sales-tax-hating Marlin representative offered his promises to a small crowd in the auditorium and then announced he would make a two weeks state-wide tour to "drop the seed."

Derden, who says his tax plan will finance a liberal social security program, was the first gubernatorial candidate to present his case before the public.

He said he would proceed so swiftly "it will take more than a nifty gambler to follow me."

Some prospective candidates such as Governor W. Lee O'Daniel and Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson have not even announced.

But Derden said he would make his second speech in Harlingen next week, probably Monday, and then, in rapid-fire order, swing to Wharton, Sulphur Springs, Brownwood, Big Spring, El Paso and Del Rio among other cities.

Derden's opening address was a straight-forward presentation of his platform.

"I've got enough to tell without a jazz band or a singer," said Derden, who calls himself a "country boy."

Derden spoke here, where the Texas delegation of independence was signed, to symbolize that he was declaring "a new independence" against the special interests who were supported by "the barons of Wall Street."

He condemned the sales tax, attacked special interests, pledged aid to agriculture and the industrialization of Texas and advocated a plan to aid the tenant farmer, including establishment of a state land bank to finance purchasing of small rural homes.

The 34-year-old attorney and stockman asserted he could have no better qualification to serve as governor than his four years' service in the legislature.

New revenue must be obtained, he said, to properly conduct the social security program, "but it is not going to be necessary to invoke x x x the unfair and unjust sales tax."

APPEAL RULING ON TAX REMISSION

LUFKIN, Mar. 28. (AP)—Notice of appeal has been given by the state from a decision upholding constitutionality of the senate tax remission bill reimbursing ten East Texas counties for tax losses through federal purchase of timberlands.

District Judge C. D. Brazil handed down the decision yesterday in an injunction suit brought against the state by Angelina county.

Judge Brazil granted a permanent injunction restraining the state from recovering tax funds remitted for the past four years.

He ruled the tax remission applied to all years since the purchases began except 1935 when the land was owned privately most of the year.

AUSTIN, Mar. 28. (AP)—From a Reynosa, Mexico, radio station, Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, Texas' hill billy songster, told Texans he was starting his own newspaper, the W. Lee O'Daniel News.

The governor, whose songs, poems and talks are broadcast on some Texas radio stations each Sunday morning, has complained of his treatment by some newspapers and some stations.

"No recent governor has been so unfairly dealt with as the press has dealt with me," he said in the Mexican broadcast.

Stratosphere Camera Equipment May Land In Your Back Yard

WACO, Mar. 28. (AP)—A bomb-looking device may land in your yard during the next several weeks.

If it does, it's most likely to be the photographic equipment being sent into the stratosphere by a corps of University of Chicago physicians headed by Dr. Arthur H. Compton.

The equipment is being sent up from the Baylor university campus and is carried some 15 miles high by a bouquet of 30 balloons.

Some five or six of the balloons will burst in the air and the whole apparatus will lower itself gradually as the atmosphere cools at nightfall. The descent requires about two hours.

A tag attached to the machinery tells the finder how to deflate the balloons and warns against meddling with the equipment itself because of the possibility of ruining the photographs taken in the air of cosmic ray action.

And there's a reward if you'll wire Dr. W. F. Jesse at Baylor immediately and let him come and retrieve the device.

Morrison said he and Fancher were struck from behind by the prisoners.

The Effects Of Liquor Cannot Be Repealed

Ray Bachman, seventy-seven years old, of Weatherford, Texas, recently showed himself so ardent a prohibitionist that he refused even to apply for a state old-age pension because most of such revenue comes from the taxes paid on whiskey, beer and wine.

Mr. Bachman, once county surveyor, said he had become a foe of alcohol after a reckless youth. "I will starve rather than accept one penny that comes from liquor," he maintained as quoted by the press.

It may seem a strategic move for politicians to avert liquor-tax revenue to old-age pensions, but who knows better the harmful effects upon human lives that beverage alcohol has wrought than those who have seen a long panorama of life? And what greater reflection upon the liquor traffic can there be than that old people rise in moral protest against accepting funds which have accrued from the profits of soul-wasting liquor for their livelihood.—(Submitted by and published at the request of the local WCTU.)

Growing Tax Load

The dead weight of the tax load which industry is now compelled to carry is impressively reflected in the annual reports of numerous corporations covering operations for the year 1939. These reports show not only that the burden has reached formidable proportions but also that the trend has been steadily upward in the past decade. Here are some typical examples, as cited by the official publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce:

A California public utility corporation paid 10 per cent of its gross receipts in 1929. In 1939 it paid 17.2 per cent. Its tax payments in 1939 were $21,745 per calendar day—$1,833 per employee. The taxes equalled 88 per cent of the entire annual payroll. The report observes that the tax harvest in California exceeds in amount the value of all the crops produced by all of its farmers.

The taxes of a refining company increased 247 per cent from 1930 to 1939. The 1939 taxes exceeded net earnings by more than $524,000. They absorbed 21.07 cents out of every dollar paid out by the corporation.

A food processing corporation paid in taxes $415.50 for each employee—$2.43 on each share of common stock.

A Middle West utility paid in taxes 15.9 cents out of every dollar of operating revenue in 1939.

An oil company paid in 1939 taxes $9.17 for each share of outstanding capital stock, compared with $8.75 in 1938.

A coal company paid in taxes 50 cents a ton on its entire production.

A glass company paid in taxes $3.06 per share of stock, an increase from $1.18 in 1934.

Growing concern over the difficulty of continuing profitable operation and at the same time carrying the heavy tax load is indicated in many of the corporation reports.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—A man from Michigan wrote a novel and sent it to us with this little note, "You get this published for me and we'll split."

I'd never heard of this man. I sent it right back to him without even looking at it. I don't know what the title was, or what it is about. Before I left it with the postman, I registered it.

A thing like that can be very annoying. Suppose this novel got lost. He could sue, and probably would. If I had kept it, and someone else had come along with similar ideas, he could sue, and probably would.

Two years ago, an agent I know got a song from some fellow in the West. The song was returned. Recently, a song with a similar melody made a big hit. It was a best seller. This agent and the author of the hit song are now being sued by this fellow from the West.

"If I had him here," the agent said thoughtfully, "I'd punch him. I'd cram his lousy song down his gullet."

"Was his song lousy?"

"No. On the contrary it was a very good song. But it wasn't timely. It didn't sell. The publishers didn't want it, or didn't have sense enough to anticipate its merits, and let it go. Now I'm a defendant."

A lot of people have the idea that because they aren't well known their stuff doesn't receive fair treatment. That isn't true. It isn't true with reputable publishers. I can tell you. Everything that comes in is read, and closely. The outstanding mystery novel of last year came in cold—just bobbed up in the mail.

But that isn't a good policy. People ought to work through agents. That man in Michigan ought to get himself a good agent. Maybe he's another Sinclair Lewis. Maybe he's not. An agent will tell him, and quickly. Recognized agents are thoroughly reliable. They have to be. And they know what they are talking about. They have to guess right, or they starve. If an agent accepts your manuscript, it has a chance. If he refuses it, take his word for it that it is no good, and try again.

A few days ago, I happened to be in the offices of Doubleday, Doran, one of the big publishing houses. I saw a lot of manuscripts and reports over there. The knowns and the unknowns all get the same careful treatment. Reputable firms would go bankrupt if they failed to guess right. With them, a manuscript does all the talking. Boosts from friends or "influential people" count not a damn. The only thing that matters is the manuscript itself.

Leap Before You Look

Chapter 19

PICNIC FOR TWO

After dinner, seated on the veranda in one of Great-uncle Timothy's mammoth rockers, listening to the hum of insects which even old Abe's ancient pipe couldn't keep away, she reversed that thought. Allen wasn't going to have the farm.

She slept that night, slept to make up for the twelve nights she had been away. And in the morning she surveyed her books. "I believe I'm going to make it," she said aloud, "if things will just keep up. We have the frogs, if we can find enough buyers... and if they keep on increasing in number as they have this last month, I can make that black army swallow the red."

"Abe," she called from the window, "exactly when do the frogs go down?"

Abe ground a stalk of bergamot between his teeth. "Depends," he answered, "on the weather. I've seen them down, some the first of October and I've seen them up, come Christmas."

"But, Abe, this year—what about the weather this year?"

"Only newcomers and danged fools predict weather in California and I ain't a newcomer, and I'm danged if I'm goin' to be a danged fool."

Tomli laughed helplessly. "Well, if you have any influence with the Little Sweetheart, tell her to keep her gang top side until Christmas, will you?"

Tomli was happy, joyously happy. She wanted to be in the house, the farm and the garden all at the same time. She was in the garden when Allen Bartell found her.

Started, she waited, the smile with which she had greeted a rose of her own planting stilled on her lips.

He came towards her with both hands outstretched and, involuntarily, she lifted hers. He glanced at them, and his face, which had been shadowed, brightened.

"I've been hearing fine things about you," he told her, "and also that you've been working hard enough to rate a holiday. The gang's coming over and I have a new speed-boat. How would you like to try it out with me while we wait for Lily to buy something to match it?"

Tomli laughed. Lily always bought clothes to match car, boat or background.

"I'd love it," she admitted. She could like Allen this morning, because she wasn't afraid of him.

"Then get into something warm. Well," he added, seeing her frown, "carry something warm. It's liable to be cold and damp on the water."

Tomli looked up at the sun, still a little pallid as it waited for the fog to hurry back to its waiting post over the ocean, then sped in to the house to change.

Her scarlet bathing suit was on, and over this went a dark blue knit suit, blouse and slacks, a knit cap of dark blue and scarlet, scarlet socks and Del Monte sneakers of dark blue, laced with scarlet.

"I wondered if I were never going to get a chance to wear this," she told the watchful housekeeper.

"You look like something cut out of a magazine cover," Mrs. Dougherty told her.

Allen, in white duck and a heavy white wool pull-over was waiting her. At the end of his little pier the speed-boat danced on the waves. Tomli looked at it and stifled a remark. Lily would look atrocious in that mahogany shade, though her hair would match the brass trimming.

"First, before we set foot in the boat, you must promise me something," Allen said gravely.

"Forget The Farm?"

Tomli started to draw back.

"From the moment you leave this pier until you return you are to forget about the farm. Forget there is such a thing as a frog, or a will, or a million duties pressing down on your shoulders. Promise?"

Tomli gave him a radiant smile. "I do," she answered.

"And you must promise that you will forget, for that same duration of time, that I have anything to do with that will, that I am or ever was an attorney."

"Are you?" asked Tomli pertly. "There are times when I question it," admitted Bartell. "But seriously, I have complete faith in your word of honor. I want you to give me your word that you will look upon me as—well, any fellow you'd meet socially, will you Tomli?"

Tomli looked up and looked away. There were no dancing lights in Allen Bartell's eyes. They were as serious as Pierre's had ever been.

She thrust out her hand. "All right, I promise," she agreed. "I think I—she stifled the words, that she would like him if he were not Timothy Toland's attorney."

"Yes?" prompted Bartell.

"I think I'd enjoy you better if you were a piano tuner."

"My word," breathed Allen. "Now I have to take piano tuning. Come on."

Hand in hand they raced to the end of the pier. Jumped into the boat. There was the roar of the engine, then, it seemed to Tomli, the boat lifted on wings.

The wings, however, were only the shafts of foam-tipped water that the long V-shaped prow threw up.

The sun came out and the last shred of fog fled through the Golden Gate. Sea-gulls, started from lazy floating, arose to screech their protest.

The boat shot under the bridge, past Alcatraz, headed towards the blue bulk of Mount Tamalpais, then swerved up the straits. It roared past tankers, and swished around waddling ferry boats and clipped close to ocean-bound freighters.

Tomli felt that all of life had been caught up in this mad burst of speed, that she and Allen and the boat were one.

"How'd you like it?" yelled Allen above the thrum of the engine. "I could go on like this forever."

Tomli shouted back.

Instantly there was a change in the engine's hum. It sputtered. Allen leaned forward to pull at the various gadgets on the instrument board. It picked up an even hum and he headed it straight for the north shore. It sputtered again, and then it stopped abruptly.

Allen poked it in on the beach, rolled up his trousers and stepped over to hold his arms out to Tomli.

Tomli stood up and looked around. They had come ashore on a tiny isolated island, bare of everything but coarse salt grass and sand. Small blue bayous dissected all of the nearby land. Ducks with white throats and red bills, ducks with throats of blue and green and foolish white bands on their heads, paddled around, undisturbed by the visitors. Far to the south, the west and the north, mountains arose in an endless chain of purple.

"You certainly chose a spot from which I couldn't walk home," laughed Tomli.

"Kidnapped!"

"Good girl," commented Bartell, and Tomli didn't know whether it was because she had allowed him to lift her and carry her to the beach, or because she had accepted the mishap with a laugh.

She settled on the beach and watched him return to the boat. What was he doing? He had opened the little doors which led into the cavern under the hood. Out of it he was bringing blankets, canned goods, dishes, magazines, cigarettes, firewood... and a little pup tent.

"Allen Bartell," she cried, jumping up. "You planned this!"

A thousand foolish fears reared ugly heads to confront her. She was kidnapped. He could keep her here, or some place near here, for weeks and she could do nothing about it. Doty was in league with him. Perhaps Old Abe and Pierre?

She sighed with relief. Not Pierre! He would Pierre find her before the farm had gone to wrack and ruin?

Bartell jumped out, waded up to where he could remove his supplies, then with the chain of the boat in his hands he came closer. "Planned this?" he echoed.

"You wanted to keep me away from the farm?"

"Hold it!" he warned, and closed his eyes. "Remember your promise. Remember it, Tomli, because if I forget mine, I'm liable to add murder to the long list of misdeeds."

Tomli remembered. But she hadn't counted on this. However, she had promised. She'd live up to it.

"Well don't dawdle around," she scolded. "I'm hungry and I want to swim before lunch."

"Hurrah!" Bartell tossed blankets.

Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON—It's easier to get by with murder than it is to get a bill through congress.

According to the International Association of Police Chiefs' if you commit a murder and the murder is discovered, you have from one chance in ten to one in four (depending on what city you're in) of getting away with it.

If you are in Washington and in congress, you have about one chance in 26 of getting a bill written into the statute books as an honest-to-gospel law.

At a recent session of congress, there were nearly 18,000 bills introduced. Of course, a few more than 700 got the President's John Hancock and went into the statutes to help or hinder you and me and Joe Doaks.

THE OBJECTORS

Considering that there have been 76 congresses, each sitting for a couple of years, that may seem like a infernal number of laws. It is. But consider that a vast number of these were private bills—measures which gave some worthy widow a life-time pension—or provided federal aid to a small district's river system—or did this and that for some individual or little group.

These bills are numberless, and, to cope with them, the house has an objectors' committee, composed of three democrats and three republicans. One objection from the objectors generally is enough to make a measure worth less than the paper it was written on.

In the senate, bills can be introduced only in the last two hours of any legislative day. The catch is that if business is rushing, a legislative day may last for months of calendar days.

Bills introduced in the senate are referred to one of the 37 standing committees by the vice president. The committee may refer it to a sub-committee. There are hearings, redrafts, recommendations, majority and minority reports, the committee of the whole, and the interminable wait for it to show up on the calendar (unless the steering committee prescribes that it should have preference over everything else).

A lot of bills go to committees and never come to light again.

In the senate, bills are introduced by being read. In the house, they merely are dropped into a hopper by the speaker's desk, to be gathered up by the house parliamentarian and assigned to committee. Many disappear into that hopper as into a grave.

Once a bill gets up on the floor, it has got to stand a Joe Louis barrage. In the house debate on a bill is limited to one hour and amendments must be germane. In the senate, there's no limit on debate (hence the filibuster) and amendments can be made on any subject under the sun. The anti-lynching amendment is a favorite method of making the tail of the kite so heavy the kite won't rise.

If the bill is lucky enough to get by one house, it has to go to the other. Differences of opinion in the houses generally are settled in a joint committee, the reports of which are undebated. Then, if the bill passes, it's ready for the president's signature—or veto.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

HOLLYWOOD—"My Son, My Son!" Screenplay by Lenore Coffee from novel by Howard Spring. Directed by Charles Vidor. Principals: Madeleine Carroll, Brian Aherne, Josephine Hutchinson, Laraine Day, Henry Hull, Josephine Hutchinson, Sophie Stewart, Bruce Lester, Scotty Beckett.

The rod, belt and cane industries of the country should flourish by this one, with parents by the hundreds leaving the theaters to rush Junior to the woodshed. It will be tough on Junior, who never trucked much to that maxim about rod-sparing and child-spoiling.

The above is intended not as a facetious commentary upon the movie version of this best-selling novel, but rather as a tribute to its power. It is a thoughtful, adult motion picture, well acted and potently directed from a masterly script.

Adaptation of a popular novel to the screen is always a difficult job. Readers protest sins of omission and commission, and the scenarist, trying to please those who have and those who haven't read the book, often succeeds only in antagonizing both. Miss Coffee here has taken the story and transcribed it with faith to its spirit rather than to its letter, although the letter too is abundantly retained.

The story of an over-generous father who ruins his son's life and his own by showering him with all his heart desires, offered many opportunities for a run-of-the-mill movie sob-fest. One of the best features of the production is that all such pitfalls have been skirted. The picture is peopled by believable, well-rounded and wholly developed characters. And their story moves forward on its own momentum, inevitably.

Brian Aherne's performance makes credible his attitude toward his son. Louis Hayward, aided immeasurably by the child actor Scotty Beckett in the earlier sequences, makes credible a thoroughly despicable son. These are the top acting achievements.

Next, I would put Laraine Day, young girl from Utah who plays the actress-daughter of the hero's life-long friend (Henry Hull). Miss Day demonstrates abundant emotional talent as well as personal charm. Josephine Hutchinson comes back to the screen in an interesting character assignment, the role of Aherne's wife—unimaginative, stodgily religious, uninspiring. Miss Carroll, nominally star, has less to do than other principals, but fills her niche with literal beauty.

The character of the son, who in the novel died on the gallows, has been given the slightest of regenerations in the film. After playing the heel and the liar throughout, the boy is permitted one scene in which (through his sincerity is still open to question) he admits to his father his realization of his shortcomings. And he is given, besides, a hero's death in battle.

"A Bill of Divorcement" Screenplay by Dalton Trumbo from play by Clemence Dane. Directed by John Farrow. Principals: Maureen O'Hara, Adolphe Menjou, Fay Bainter, Herbert Marshall, Dame May Whitty, Patric Knowles, C. Aubrey Smith.

Katharine Hepburn and John Barrymore did it as Hepburn's first screen work. It is equally strong fare today—this story of a girl's sacrifice when she realizes that her family line is tainted by heredity. That Menjou should deliver a perfect performance is not news. Neither is Farrow's excellent direction of the compact drama.

The news is Maureen O'Hara. Neither in "Jamaica Inn" nor in "Hunchback of Notre Dame" did the girl evince more than passing talent and surpassing beauty. Here she rises to an emotional role which marks her certainly for immediate stardom.

Cubs' Candidate For Top Rookie Is Little Man With Big Bat

By ROBERT MYERS

AVALON, Calif., Mar. 26 (AP)—The rookie of the year may be a squat little Italian who blasted his way to the batting championship of the Pacific Coast league last year—Dominic Dallessandro.

The 5 foot 6 inch Dominic waged a terrific hitting duel with another Dominic—DiMaggio—for the coast loop leadership, and won out with an average of .368. The Chicago Cubs thought enough of his performance to pay San Diego $25,000 for him.

One night during the training season here the 24-year-old recruit, surrounded by several other newcomers in the Cub camp, made it plain that his short stature hampers him not one bit. "Why should it?" he demanded. "I've got all it takes up here (he moved his shoulders and bared his powerful hands and wrists) and if I can hit in one league, I can hit in another."

As a matter of fact, Dominic's shortness was more of a handicap to pitchers last year than to him. The hurlers couldn't find him at the plate and Dallessandro drew 92 walks, a coast league record.

The stocky Dominic broke in with Reading, Pa., his home town, in 1933. He'd been a bat boy for the club in previous seasons.

In 1935 he went to Syracuse for two years. The Boston Red Sox bought him in 1937, and he promptly displayed a prolonged hitting slump for the first time—and last time to date—in his career. He had never fallen below .317 before but with Boston he plummeted to .231 in 68 games.

"I got off bad with Boston and never was able to get back, but it won't happen this year. I've been trying too long to get up there to let this chance slip."

Dallessandro, a very serious player, keeps himself in good shape, is easy to handle and plays ball because he likes it.

There's another Italian rookie

DOMINIC DALLESSANDRO: Not hampered by short stature with the Cubs who seems equally determined. He's Julie Bonetti, leading coast league pitcher for Los Angeles last year, who failed to make the grade with the Browns in 1937. Julio thinks he's all set for the major leagues now. Bonetti, whose stinker ball brought 20 wins and only five losses last season, said he had better control now, was heavier, wiser and "my sinker is something I didn't even have with the Browns." These two Italian boys may prove a big help to Gabby Hartnett and his Cubs.

Cold Weather Hurts Bradley Derby Chances

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Mar. 26 (AP)—Continuance of cold weather has brought uneasiness to the "hard-coats" hopeful of seeing a Kentucky-wintered horse win the Kentucky derby May 4.

Col. E. R. Bradley's Bimelech, current 5-2 winter-book choice to romp home first in the $75,000 added Churchill Downs classic, wintered at Bradley's Idle Hour farm near Lexington.

A prolonged spell of inclement weather that has interfered with training schedules of "Bimey" and numerous other derby candidates both here and in the blue grass, prompted one track scout to remark:

"If we don't get a break in the weather and that right soon, you can count the 'books,' including Bradley and Bimelech, out of the derby picture and start casting your peepers around for some horse which wintered in the south."

(Derby nominees which have been favored this year by warmer climes include Andy K, Potranco, Rough Pass, Roman Flag, Dit, Prompt Pay, Red Dock, Grampa, Midland, Blue Suit and Royal Crusader.)

Frisco Rookies Sent Contracts

Manager Tony Rego of the Big Spring baseball club this morning announced that he had forwarded contracts to Leo Jones, third baseman, and Charles Correll, first sacker, both of San Francisco. Both are rookies.

Rego also received notice today that the San Francisco club had optioned John McPartland, a pitcher, to Big Spring.

The acquisition of Jones and Correll will bring to twelve the number under contract to the Big Spring club.

OUTFIELD WEAKNESSES HAMPER THE DODGERS' DASH FOR FIRST PLACE

By GAYLE TALBOT

CLEARWATER, Fla., Mar. 26 (AP)—Somewhat earlier than usual, it becomes necessary to tell the ever-hopeful Brooklyn fans to "wait until next year."

This is a painful duty, because the Dodgers got their following even more excited than usual by climbing into third place in last year's National league chase, and the Flatbush fans are going to be loud in their disappointment if the team doesn't do at least as well this time.

But that's the point. They might have difficulty staying that high. With all their new players, including outfielders Joe Vosmik and Roy Cullenbine and the little squirrel of a shortstop, "Peewee" Reese, the Dodgers still are really sound in only one department, their infield.

Manager Leo Durocher, who imported and exported outfielders like a commission merchant all last season, still hasn't found a combination that suits him. All he knows for sure at this point is that the slowing Vosmik, purchased from Boston for $25,000, will hold down left field.

Despairing of finding an established slugger to patrol the center garden, Durocher is thinking seriously of starting the race with 20-year-old Charlie Gilbert from Nashville in that important spot. If he does, it can be taken as an admission that the Dodgers don't hope to win this year but are building seriously for the long haul.

If Cullenbine can hit better than he did with Detroit, he is a cinch for the third outer post, for he is a ball hawk and owns a fine throwing arm. Otherwise, Durocher must fall back on men like Ernie Koy and Jim Rippe. Both are good, run-of-the-mine outfielders, but not the kind of men that Brooklyn needs to make it a pennant contender.

Young Gilbert, incidentally, will make a colorful addition to baseball, even though they might be rushing him a trifle. He is a son of Larry Gilbert of the famous Boston Braves of 1914, and he attended his first ball game at the ripe age of 12 days, in a basket. His father now is manager and part-owner of the Nashville club.

Everybody around here seems to think Reese, the $50,000 kid from Louisville, is on his way toward shortstop immortality. He looks like a natural.

Guldahl, Little Mentioned For U. S. Golfman's Hall Of Fame

GREENSBORO, N. C., Mar. 26

(AP)—Baseball was played first at Cooperstown, N. Y., and Cooperstown is the site of baseball's hall of fame. Golf in the United States was played first at St. Andrews in Yonkers, N. Y., and that would seem the logical spot for a golf "hall of fame."

Golf could use such an institution and it will have one if present plans of Professional Golf Association officials go through.

In Britain there'd be no need for a hall of fame. Over there, memories are long and heroes live forever.

In this country—memories are short and heroes supplant each other at a dizzy pace. Already Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans are little more than names in the record books. Yet Ouimet was the man who brought golf out of the social register into the tabloids. Evans was the first man to win the amateur and the open in the same year (1916).

If the $3,000,000 American golfers were to vote today for the first contingent to enter the hall of fame, Ouimet and Evans would have to be among them.

With them, one would say, should go Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Bobby Jones.

From there on it's every man for himself.

It would be deserved recognition for every one.

Starting with a foundation of old-timers, the next step would be to elect a new member each year. Off-hand, we'd say that of the present crop you might elect Ralph Guldahl, because he won the open two years in a row, and Lawson Little, who may not have done so well as a pro but still stands in the books as the man who won the U. S. and British amateurs in 1931 and 1935. If you want to argue, so much the better. It's arguments that will help keep the ball rolling.

Colorado And Oakes Sever Relations

BOULDER, Colo., Mar. 26 (AP)—Colorado university is checking over its own and other coaching staffs to find a successor to Bunny Oakes, who piloted Buffalo football teams to two conference championships and a Dallas Cotton Bowl engagement in his five years here.

Oakes' successor will have next fall virtually all the 35 players who five weeks ago signed a petition accusing the 41-year-old mentor of abusing their rights and demanding that the regents dismiss him.

Oakes—christened Bernard Francis—and President Robert L. Stearns agreed yesterday to terminate his five-year contract which had three years to go. The bald-headed veteran accepted a cash settlement, saying "this my record are a complete vindication of me and my coaching methods."

"I intend to stay in the coaching profession but have no immediate plans for the future," said Oakes.

McAlpine, Smith, Gardner Report To Brady Nix

Track and field squads of the three Howard county Class B schools bear down in training this week for the annual county meet, which gets under way Saturday at 1 p. m.

Brady Nix, Forsan mentor and county athletic director, said this morning that junior competition would begin at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Forsan, the defending champion in the senior division, will send a strong team to the meet and will be favored over Coahoma and Gardner, the other entries.

Earl McAlpine, hurdler, James Gardner, vaulter, and J. R. Smith, dash man, have been added to the Forsan team. The Buffs' hopes for another title will depend mainly upon Tommy McDonald, a versatile boy who won four first places last year. Other standouts on the Forsan team include Bob Yarbrow, Warren Qualls and Vard Cowley.

The Coahoma team, under Coach D. L. Townsend, made an unimpressive start in the recent Station meet but has been working steadily since and may contribute a few surprises in the meeting. The standout Coahoma thimble—glad promises to be J. C. Tonn, dash man.

Nix said that all 13 events on the interscholastic league program would be held.

TOURNAMENT OPENS
PINEHURST, N. C., Mar. 26 (AP)—Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, Chapel Hill housewife, will begin defense of her title today in the 38th annual North and South women's golf tournament.

The sixteen low scorers in today's 18-hole qualifying play will commence match play tomorrow.

HEELFLY INJURED
SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 26 (AP)—Heefly was out of the Tanforan meet today. The stakes star, owned by George W. Stratton of Los Angeles, received a "ruptured sheath" yesterday and will not be able to race here this season.

Pampa Signs Parrish, Amarillo Has Twin Players On The Line

The latest word from the Tulsa baseball club at Seguin is to the effect Eddie Zydowski might be kept in the Oilers' roster in place of Billy Capps, the former Baron. They say Capps lacks the power at the plate to crowd Zydowski out of the job.

That "ain't the way we heard it." When active here, Billy was one of the most powerful hitters in WT-NM league circles, punishing the ball with murderous intent. Too, he was the league's best curve ball hitter in 1939.

If the Comanche terror fails to stick with Tulsa, he may go to Saint Jo of the Western Association.

The Pampa baseball club Sunday announced the signing of two players for Grover Seltz's club the coming season.

One is Merle Adams, Chicago, Ill., a rookie first sacker who weighs 200 pounds and stands six feet, 4 1/2 inches, the other Ben Parrish, a pitcher purchased outright from Berger. Parrish was under Neal Kabe and Phil Margavio at Amarillo last year.

Parrish is the fellow who, hitchhiking his way to the Pampa camp from his home in Oklahoma in April, 1939, was picked up by an Amarillo fan who talked him into signing for the Gold Sox.

He was troubled by a sore arm most of last season.

The Amarillo team, incidentally, will begin their spring drills at Elk City, Okla., Saturday, March 30, remaining there a week before returning to their home base.

Claude Jonnard, who'll manage the Sox this year, arrived in Amarillo the other day, breaking the announcement that he had signed Bill and Sid King, 18-year-old twins from up Kansas City way. Bill is a pitcher, Sid a shortstop.

The boys played in the San Johnson league in K.C. last year and the word is out that they may burn in the circuit this summer.

NBA Withdraws Recognition Of Lou Ambers As Champion

Low Jenkins, the lightweight scrapper who recently flew to his home in Sweetwater from New York City to be at the bedside of his mother, Mrs. M. L. Jenkins, very ill at the moment, will take time to visit his sister, Mrs. Faye Dean, and friends in Big Spring before returning to Gotham.

The National Boxing association, which headquarters in Washington, D. C., Monday withdrew recognition of Ambers as the champion on the grounds that he had not defended his title within the six months required by the association.

The unit, which governs boxing destinies in more than 40 states, indicated it would recognize as champion the winner of the forthcoming Davey Day-Sammy Angott fight in Chicago.

The breach between the NBA and Mike Jacobs' group of New York growers wider. Already there are two middleweight champions, the NBA's Al Hostak, a Washington boy who refuses to fight under Jacobs, and Ceferino Garcia, Jacobs' Filipino who recently fought Henry Armstrong to a draw in Los Angeles.

Sooner or later, the fight game is going to have to adopt new legislation, operate along the lines of professional baseball if it hopes to survive. Jack Dempsey had advocated new regulations, he even asked the federal government to operate the entire business but to date the cleanup designs are only in the preliminary stage.

Ambers can't be blamed for ignoring the NBA's threat. He's sticking where the grass grows greenest. Jenkins may not have earned the chance at the title but he's the most colorful scrapper in his weight and will draw the biggest "gate."

lets into the air. "Seriously, Tomi, and there with Allen, compared I hadn't planned to land here. I told Doty I was kidnapping you for the day because she and Abe had said you must have a good rest and wouldn't take it. I'd planned on a spot up beyond Martins. I think I can reach a duck club when the tide goes down. I'll telephone in for a boat then. Meanwhile—"

Meanwhile, he erected the pup tent and Tomi, stripped of her outer clothes, returned to find Allen also in his swim-suit. The water was cold and invigorating. They swam about for nearly an hour, then returned to hunt for blinding driftwood, start a fire with the compressed logs he'd brought, brew coffee, boil bacon, toast buns.

Allen found some tall sticks and made the tent into an umbrella and lastly they lounged, talking. Never a word was said of the frog farm or the will.

Allen, the man, was a delightful person to know. Tomi felt transported to another world, an enchanting world.

"I'd rather be a farmer than anything else," he confessed to Tomi, "or an orchardist. I wish you could see my prune trees in bloom, acres of them on the river bottom. They fill the valley with a lake of foam. We'll go up when they're ready to pick. That's a sight too."

It developed they would also go to his Eel River lodge in the autumn. "I like it best then," said Allen. "You never saw such colors."

Tomi listened and wondered what it would be like to go here

MIAMI, Fla., Mar. 26 (AP)—Marathon swimmer Paul Chouteau, complaining because wind-whipped waves forced him to abandon his 71-mile splash from Bimini, Bahamas, to Palm Beach last night, asserted he would make a new try "as soon as possible."

Chouteau had been in the water 14 hours, seven minutes and covered approximately 33 miles.

BROOKLYN EARNS REP AS CHAMP HOME RUN CLUB BRADENTON, Fla. — Off the record, Brooklyn's Dodgers are the leading long distance clubbers of the "grapefruit league." Six homers against Detroit yesterday—two each by Joe Vismick and Peeewe Reese—brought their total to 23 this spring. But the teams they have played have hit 21. It's all explained by the right field fence at their Clearwater field—380 from the plate and low, with a wind that usually blows that direction.

Bob Burns Is Named In Suit On Love Theft

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 26 (AP)—A $70,000 false imprisonment suit involving allusions to love theft faced film and radio comedian Bob Burns today.

The middle-aged plaintiff, Daniel W. Hoge, civil engineer, charged he was abducted from his home in nearby Wilmington Dec. 29, 1938, forced to sign a denial that Burns had stolen the affections of his wife, Millie, and to sign a similar statement releasing Burns' studio, Paramount, from any claims.

Informing of the suit, Burns declared:

"I didn't have any more to do with his wife than you did."

Burns said, however, that Hoge threatened Paramount officials to file suit "about a year ago."

"Paramount lawyers went to the district attorney's office," the comedian asserted. "The district attorney's men or somebody brought Hoge downtown to find what it was all about. I wasn't there myself, but he told me he broke down and cried, saying there was nothing to it. Then he signed a paper admitting it."

Burns said Hoge later came to him twice and apologized.

Burns reported he first knew Hoge in Chicago in 1916 and many years later Mrs. Hoge came to his home one rainy night, telling Mrs. Burns her children were hungry. Burns said "we gave her $5."

"Then," Burns continued, "I didn't hear anything from Hoge until two or three years ago when he went to my agent threatening some suit or other."

Rain The Big Question Mark For Westex

Big Spring, over its "Easter boom," Tuesday looked anxiously for the traditional spring upturn in business and looked to the skies for the answer.

Business, although it has rallied in March, cannot hope to hold its pace unless rain comes, most businessmen were agreed.

With the stock water problem becoming acute over most of this area, the grass problem virtually as perplexing. While their time for fretting over the weather is not yet ripe, farmers know well that listing depleted a good portion of the top soil moisture and that sub-soil reserves are possibly the lowest in 20 years.

During March building activity revived with around $35,000 in permits having been secured to date. New passenger car sales have boomed to an even 100 Tuesday noon, but even these encouraging signs may falter if rain doesn't fall to write a favorable answer to the spring business question.

Sharp Price Cuts In Eastex Gasoline

LONGVIEW, Mar. 26 (AP)—Gasoline prices tumbled in East Texas today with major and independent concerns involved in price cuts that ranged from one to four cents per gallon.

Price reductions started several days ago when several independents slashed the retail price on third grade gasoline to 11 cents per gallon. The cut allowed a profit of only one and a half cents from refinery dock to consumer.

Other independent gasolines were retailing at 13 to 14 cents on regular grade and 15 to 16 cents on premium grades, one cent reductions.

Taylor Starts Work On Welfare Board

AUSTIN, Mar. 26 (AP)—President Tom Taylor of Howard Payne college in Brownwood, who said he was deeply interested in sociology and social service work, was sworn in today as a member of the Texas public welfare board which administers old age pensions.

The oath was administered by Judge Tom Beauchamp of the court of criminal appeals in Governor W. Lee O'Daniel's office.

CITY COMMISSION TO HOLD SESSION TODAY

City commissioners will hold their regular semi-monthly meeting at 7:30 p. m. today in the city hall. The matter of a garbage ordinance will be passed over to a subsequent meeting, it was indicated. However, the commissioners will consider a petition signed by 17 merchants asking extension of the two-hour parking limit to the 100 block on S. Main.

McAdoo's announced reason for suddenly retiring from the ticket was his statement that "I am out of politics and am unwilling to re-enter." He said, however, he would support the slate.

He and Governor Culbert L. Olson were named to head a Roosevelt slate in the May 1 presidential primary. The slate was designed to compose differences within the party and assure a united front in competing with another delegation pledged to vote for Vice-President John N. Garner.

SCOUTERS TO MEET

A meeting of scoutmasters, their assistants and commissioners of the Big Spring district will be held at 5:30 p. m. Wednesday on the Settles mezzanine.

Stanley A. Mate, field scout executive, said he was anxious to have all present at the meeting in order that an "inventory of scouting" could be had for the district. Other matters, such as the annual Buffalo Trail Round Up here early in May will be talked at the session.

MARKETS Wall Street

NEW YORK, Mar. 26 (AP)—Specialties again stood up in today's stock market while the general run of leaders continued to display rising reluctance.

A relapse on the British "free" pound sterling to the lowest level on record in terms of the old gold dollar was a bullish influence on the list. In addition, scant inspiration could be found in business news or European war developments. Consequently what speculative nibbling appeared was highly selective.

There were scattered gainers of a point or so and some encouragement was found in the fact that declines, for the most part, were in small fractions at the close.

Furries of activity cropped up now and then, but slowdowns were plentiful. Transfers approximated 650,000 shares.

ROADS ARE BEING CLEARED OF SNOW

ALBANY, N. Y., Mar. 26 (AP)—Clearing skies and subsidence of strong winds aided crews today in opening snow-clogged roads in the wake of a storm which left five New York cities virtually snow-bound, marooned thousands of motorists and indirectly caused six deaths.

Described in some sections as the worst since 1888's mighty blizzard, the storm struck over the Easter week-end and reached its climax last night, crippling vehicular traffic, slowing train service, and curtailing milk deliveries.

Speaker Contrasts Communism And Americanism

Communism was contrasted with Americanism for the Rotary club by G. C. Brewer, minister of Broadway Church of Christ, Lubbock, Tuesday noon at the Settles hotel.

Brewer pointed out that a real American believes in putting more into government than he takes out while a communist wants to take more out than he puts in.

In speaking of the effects of the philosophy of communism in our country, Brewer stated that it has made revolutionists of loyal men and women and destroyed love of the country in the hearts and minds of thousands. "It has robbed many Americans of the appreciation of their heritage of freedom, of joy in their privileges as citizens; of pride in their country, of their right and duty to maintain our government and to help it administer its affairs. It has transformed them into disloyal, unpatriotic incendiaries and propagandists of treason."

Among the guests were Pat Petteway of San Angelo, T. E. Pierce of Denton, Alfred Collins, Schley Call, Melvin J. Wise and J. A. McCally of El Paso.

ON HOSPITAL STAFF

At the same time, independent school districts in Big Spring, Coahoma and Garner (Knott) will be choosing trustees. From precinct No. 3 and No. 4, respectively, Bob Asbury and L. L. Underwood will be serving out their current terms as members of the county board. Likewise, the term of J. A. Bishop expires as trustee-at-large on the county board.

In the various districts, these are the men whose terms expire and whose places must be filled in the April 6 balloting:

Air Route

Big Spring interests would furnish data to show a need for air service between here and New Mexico points, in particular, as well as for service to Colorado and South Texas terminal points.

They were assured by the local C-C aviation committee that an effort would be made to get full information as to business and communications needs of Big Spring with reference to other points on the proposed Continental route; but they were also told that this city for two years has been working in conjunction with other towns to get air service between Denver and San Antonio by way of Amarillo, Lubbock and San Angelo, and considered that effort still their major objective. Any data gathered in support of the proposed Continental route would not be interpreted as superseding that in favor of the San Angelo-Lubbock-Amarillo project.

Continental at present flies from Denver to Albuquerque, Roswell and Hobbs, thence to Carlsbad and El Paso. Under its application, a branch would be made at Hobbs, with the new service extending to Big Spring and on south. An alternate route would be from Hobbs to Midland and San Angelo the officials said, and they have conferred with Midland representatives on that alternative. The application before CAA, however, lists Big Spring as a proposed stop.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE WAR DEVELOPMENTS

The English press has been experiencing a wave of anxiety over what the United States thinks about the war, the burden of its fears being summed in such headlines as "Britain loses war of words; Goebbels lies sweep America."

That is to say, British publicity is held to be losing in the race with the brand put out by Nazi propaganda minister Goebbels. Having reached this conclusion, however, the papers don't appear to have discovered any more satisfactory reason for this state of affairs (as they see it) than that "Goebbels guile America."

This argument about American guile might hold good up to a point but it seems to be inconclusive. Abraham Lincoln put the matter rather neatly in the remark that "you can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can not fool all the people all of the time."

That goes for Herr Goebbels, too. It is equally true as regards the English newspaper assertion that "Hitler thinks he can fool the United States by talking peace and good-will."

That leaves the English newspapers without any satisfactory answer to their problem. However, it's probably well that the question has come up, for it might be a good one.

thing to get it thrashed out before the dogs of war get into full cry. In the first place I don't believe the situation is as dark as it looks to the British press. We haven't got mad and refused to slide down their cellar door. Still, while they may be seeing spooks, they also are seeing some substance.

So far as actual "propaganda" goes we don't like any of it and are wary of all of it, whatever its source. However, if we seem particularly shy of certain types of British publicity it strikes me that it is due largely to one reason.

I refer to the rather constant effort to persuade or pull us into the war in support of the allied cause. This certainly has caused widespread resentment in America, and may have colored the view of some of our people toward legitimate news.

This idea would seem to have fair support in the uproar caused last week in Washington and throughout the country by the strong anti-German, pro-ally speech of our minister to Canada, James Cromwell, who was publicly rebuked by Secretary of State Hull. Our red-hot reaction to Cromwell's speech should help put Britain right in this matter. Whatever our private thoughts may be, that reaction seemed to show that we are neutral officially and intend to stay that way.
