Rector named 89s top officer

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

Hereford police officer Roy Rector was set up Thursday.

He was supervising the graduation ceremony for sixth grade students at Bluebonnet School in Hereford who had just completed the 17-week DARE program he taught at the school.

He handed out 106 certificates to the students, shaking each hand and saying a kind word to each youngster.

He introduced Hereford athletic director and head football coach Don Cumpton, who told the kids how much better and stronger they would be if they stayed drug-and-alcohol-free.

Rector wasn't suspicious because a couple of other officers and Chief of Police Caydon Brush were at the ceremony. They had been at a similar ceremony at West Central School on Tuesday.

Maybe Rector got a little suspicious when Bluebonnet Principal Howard Birdwell got up at the end of the program to introduce Brush.

Especially when Brush came to the front with something wrapped in a plastic sack.

"All of you kids got awards today," Brush said. "Do you think Officer Rector ought to get an award?"

"Yes!" said the sixth graders in loud unison.

Brush said he had gone to work at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

"When I got there, Officer Rector wasn't drinking coffee or smoking a cigarette or reading the paper," Brush said. "He was already working. And he's like that every day."

Brush pointed out how Rector had worked hard with the DARE program with Hereford children for the last two years and had worked in other programs and projects, besides "regular" police work.

"So I'm going to give Officer Rector an award," the chief said, pulling a handsome plaque from the plastic sack.

It was the award for 1989 Hereford Police Officer of the Year.

Rector wore a smile big enough to frame a corn cob as he accepted the plaque and congratulations from Brush and the applause from the Bluebonnet students and teachers.

"I think I was set up," Rector said. "Boy, I don't know what to say, except thanks."

Ready for a big heapin' bowl of chili

Grant Hanna stirs the huge pot in the kitchen of the Hereford Senior Citizens Center, cooking up the chili for the center's annual all you can eat Chili Supper from 4:30 to 8 p.m. Saturday at the Center. Tickets are $3 per person, with children under 5 free. The supper is the center's major annual fundraiser. Hanna will fix about 700 pounds of chili for the supper.

SBOE endorses financing plan

School Funding

AUSTIN (AP) - A school finance reform plan that would increase spending by $945 million next school year and $5.2 billion in five years was endorsed with an 11-3 vote by State Board of Education members.

The board, which met as a committee Thursday, developed the plan after the Texas Supreme Court ruled the current finance system is unconstitutional.

The plan, which has a five-year price tag of about $15 billion, will be considered again by the board Saturday before a recommendation is made to the Legislature, which convenes in special session Feb. 27.

"I don't think that we realistically can ask for everything that we have in our plan today and expect the Legislature to feel like it's realistic to ask for it," said board Chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock, who voted against the plan with Jane Nelson of Lewisville and John Shields of San Antonio.

Board member Will Davis of Austin said new funding is essential to address the ruling by the Supreme Court, which found large disparities between property-rich and poor school districts. The court gave lawmakers a May 1 deadline for action.

"We can either put money into the low-wealth districts and raise them up to an acceptable level, or you can lower the level of those districts that are spending in excess of a substantially equal program," Davis said, calling the latter choice "disastrous."

Davis noted that the plan includes an inflation factor; without it, the fifth-year increase would be $3.6 billion. The school finance system currently costs about $11 billion a year and relies on state funds and local property taxes.

The board's plan would guarantee districts $3,700 to $3,800 per pupil next school year, and $4,400 in five years, if they continued the current local property tax rate. The current average for districts with below-average wealth is $3,296 per student, and $3,720 per student in districts with above-average wealth.

The plan also would begin a summer school program for students at risk of not graduating, and establish a $100 million emergency grant program for facilities next school year.

In subsequent years, the proposal includes such items as increasing the school year from 175 to 180 instructional days; creating incentives for year-round school; and raising school personnel salaries and benefits.

Astronauts capture satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Columbia's astronauts salvaged a valuable space laboratory today, snaring it with a 50-foot robot arm and saving it from a fiery doom in the atmosphere.

"We have LDEF," commander Dan Brandenstein reported.

"Congratulations on a job well done," Mission Control replied. "You've made several scientists quite happy. LDEF is finally coming home."

The astronauts made the dramatic rescue when they steered Columbia alongside the bus-sized Long Duration Exposure Facility and mission specialist Bonnie Dunbar reached out and grabbed it with the wire fingers of the spaceship's mechanical arm.

Capture was made 201 miles above the Earth as the two spacecraft raced in formation at more than 17,400 mph.

While Brandenstein held the shuttle steady, Dunbar used a television camera on the end of the robot to guide the fingers to a grappling device on the side of the satellite.

The same TV picture she used was beamed to Mission Control and it showed some of the tense final minutes as Dunbar took her time gingerly moving in to locate the grapple fixture.

DOE wants Pantex funding

WASHINGTON (AP) - Pantex could avert another round of layoffs if Congress decides to spend $12 million this year to begin correcting safety and environmental problems at the nuclear weapons assembly plant in Amarillo, city officials say.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, says the Energy Department would be asking Congress to reprogram $40 million in current funding for cleaning up its nuclear weapons plants - including $12 million to $13 million for Pantex.

The only final assembly point for the nation's nuclear weapons, Pantex has been criticized by two independent groups for safety, environmental and health deficiencies.

A report by one group - DOE's "tiger team" - prompted Secretary James D. Watkins to order the plant to move immediately to ensure workers are protected from emergency and routine exposures to radioactive releases.

The tiger team found the plant's radiation protection program was "generally inadequate" and that Pantex was not adequately monitoring its impact on the underlying Ogallala aquifer, practically the only source of usable water for Texas' largest irrigated farming region.

Pantex, Amarillo's second-largest employer after the local school district, recently announced layoffs of 138 workers. Officials said at the time that more jobs could be lost as the plant attempts to address those concerns and others.

That scenario, however, could be averted if Congress allows the Department of Energy to reprogram $40 million, including $12 million for Pantex, said Amarillo Mayor Keith Adams. The $12 million would be in addition to the plant's budget of $127 million this year.

Adams, City Manager John Ward, and City Commissioners Kel Seliger and John McKissack, concerned about the plant's future and potential job reductions, met with congressional and DOE officials to discuss Pantex on Thursday.

After those meetings, Adams said he does not believe the lost jobs could be salvaged - given the budget situation - but was confident more layoffs could be avoided. The plant employs 2,500.

Adams said taking care of safety and the environment could actually create additional jobs and "result in some other economic benefits for the Amarillo area."

Gramm, who met with the Amarillo delegation, said the plant's ability to address is environmental and safety problems would be key to its survival as a part of the nation's nuclear weapons complex.

"Even as we're beating swords into plowshares ... we're going to have to produce new warheads, so we're not going out of this business," Gramm said.

Gramm said the decade of the '90s would see some DOE plants closing - particularly those that have not addressed safety and environmental problems.

"I am hopeful that our problems in Amarillo are small enough, that we are dealing with it soon enough, that we are committing enough resources to it now, that we can make it the model plant," Gramm said.

Gramm said he was convinced the DOE would ask Congress to reprogram $40 million for cleaning up the nuclear weapons complex, but that the move could be controversial because of how it would affect other programs that would see their funding level reduced.

He said $12 million to $13 million would be enough to begin addressing safety and environmental issues at Pantex.

EPA shows 'alarming' risks

WASHINGTON (AP) - An Environmental Protection Agency review of toxic industrial releases is reviving concerns that persons who live near scores of chemical or industrial plants may be exposed to high cancer risks.

The EPA, in providing toxic chemical release data for nearly 150 industrial plants in 34 states, cautioned it should not be considered a clear measure of actual cancer risk because it reflects a worst-case level of exposure over a lifetime.

But the findings caused the agency to pursue field checks at some of the plants with the highest release levels and prompted discussions with industry executives - including some operators of the plants involved - about voluntary cuts in toxic emissions, according to EPA officials.

The EPA also indicated it is considering enforcement action against some of the worst polluters, although no targets of such an action were disclosed.

"We take very seriously the potential problems these emissions could present," EPA Administrator William Reilly wrote Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health and environment subcommittee.

Waxman, who disclosed the latest EPA toxic release findings Thursday, called the new data "very alarming" and said it confirms preliminary findings made available by the EPA last May. Those findings were released by Waxman after some of the data was found to have been up to six years old and included some plants that were no longer operating.

The controversy prompted the EPA to review releases at so-called "high risk" plants. The latest findings, reflecting releases in 1988 and in some cases 1989, indicated continuing high toxic pollution in the air at 149 facilities, including chemical plants, pulp mills and other industrial operations.

The findings showed toxic release levels at 52 plants were high enough that persons living closest to the plant could be exposed to a lifetime cancer risk of at least 1 in 1,000. The potential risk was as great as 1 in 10 at the Texaco butadiene plant in Port Neches, Texas, and 1 in 100 at 6 other plants. The EPA said the risk was 1 in 10,000 at 97 other plants.

The government in many cases considers a maximum cancer risk of 1 in 1 million to be unacceptable.

"The data should raise a red warning flag in communities where these facilities are located and spur prompt action to investigate the plants further," said Waxman.

The EPA cautioned the cancer risk assessments were in many cases based on mathematical models and were not intended to reflect the actual cancer risk to particular individuals. In the risk assessment, for example, it is presumed a person resides about 200 feet from the source of the release and is exposed over a lifetime.

"Nevertheless, the estimates for some of the facilities on the list continue to be of serious concern," Reilly wrote in a letter released by Waxman.

In addition to the Texaco Chemical Co., plant in Port Neches, the facilities where toxic releases posed the highest potential cancer risk - all a risk of 1 in 100 - were: an Asarco Inc., lead smelting plant in East Helena, Mont.; a Mobil Chemical Co., plant in Beaumont, Texas; a Shell Oil Co., plant in Deer Park, Texas; a Uniroyal rubber processing plant in Port Neches, Texas; a Goodyear plant in Calhoun, Ga.; and an American Chrome chemical plant in Corpus Christi, Texas.

'Other' Malone scores 10,000th point

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Throughout his career, Jeff Malone has been the 'other' Malone in the NBA.

Despite a 19.6 scoring average going into his seventh season and two All-Star appearances, Jeff Malone has been overshadowed by Karl and Moses Malone.

Jeff took the spotlight Thursday night, scoring the 10,000th point of his career on the way to a season-high 39 points as Washington beat Miami 100-89. It was the Washington Bullets' first road win in 14 games and the Heat's 12th consecutive loss.

Malone reached the milestone with a reverse layup in the second quarter, then scored 22 points in the third quarter, hitting nine of 12 from the floor and four of four free throws during the period.

"It's a great feeling when you start scoring like that," Malone said. "You just want to take the shot every time."

"We couldn't stop him," Heat coach Ron Rothstein said. "He got on a roll and broke our backs."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 109, Charlotte 101; Portland 82, Minnesota 80; Denver 141, Orlando 105; Seattle 98, Dallas 87 and Houston 90, Sacramento 87.

Malone began to assume control of the game late in the second quarter, scoring 10 points in the final 4 minutes, 14 seconds of the period, including Washington's last eight points of the half, which ended with Miami ahead 52-50.

"Basically, Jeff Malone just got hot," Washington coach Wes Unseld said. "I'm smart enough not to start coaching when Jeff gets hot."

Malone scored the Bullets' first two baskets of the second half and finished the third period with Washington's last 13 points in the final six minutes of the quarter, which concluded with Washington leading 82-75.

The Heat, who were led by Rony Seikaly with 25 points and 17 rebounds, got no closer than five the rest of the way.

Rockets 90, Kings 87

Houston won its fourth straight game and snapped a 10-game road losing streak as Akeem Olajuwon had 27 points and 18 rebounds and Mitchell Wiggins had a successful return to the lineup at Sacramento.

Wiggins, who missed the previous 16 games with a sprained left knee, scored nine points in the last 5 1/2 minutes as the Rockets overcame a 76-63 deficit with a 19-2 run in the fourth quarter. Wiggins finished with 15 points.

Kenny Smith had 23 points for the Kings.

Nets 109, Hornets 101

New Jersey's longest winning streak in two years reached three games, and kept Charlotte winless on the road this season as Purvis Short scored a season-high 29 points.

Trailing 36-34 midway through the second period, the Nets took the lead for good with a 21-5 spurt for a 55-41 lead.

Roy Hinson had 19 points and 12 rebounds for New Jersey. Kelly Tripucka scored 22 points for the Hornets.

Trail Blazers 82, Timberwolves 80

Portland won its sixth straight game and matched the Los Angeles Lakers' NBA high of 24 victories after Terry Porter hit two free throws with 15 seconds left.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 18 points and Tony Campbell had 26 for Minnesota, including a three-point play with 2:16 remaining that made it 80-80 - the seventh tie of the fourth quarter and 18th of the game.

Nuggets 141, Magic 105

Denver had a 67-point turnaround from the previous night as Fat Lever scored a season-high 27 points and added 14 rebounds.

The Nuggets, who lost 130-99 to Utah on Wednesday, took a 16-6 lead over the Magic with a 12-0 run keyed by two 3-pointers in a 35-second span by Michael Adams.

It was 71-41 at halftime, 108-74 after three quarters and the largest lead was 127-85 in the fourth quarter. Jerome Lane had 15 rebounds as the Nuggets outrebounded the Magic 64-40.

SuperSonics 98, Mavericks 87

Seattle outscored Dallas 39-23 in the fourth period as Dale Ellis scored 11 of his 29 points.

Ellis scored the first seven points of a 9-0 Sonics run at the beginning of the fourth period, turning a 64-59 deficit into a 68-64 lead.

Seattle led 70-69 with 6:45 left and went on a 15-2 run for an 85-71 advantage with 3:29 remaining.

Rolando Blackman led the Mavericks with 30 points.

Lions put lock on Jones

HOUSTON (AP) - New Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee will have to look for someone other than June Jones to become his offensive coordinator since the Detroit Lions declined to grant Jones permission to interview with the Oilers.

" I would have liked to have talked to him, but I won't be able to," Pardee said Thursday. Jones had been mentioned as the No. 1 candidate to become the Oilers offensive coordinator.

Oilers General Manager Mike Holovak confirmed Thursday that Lions General Manager Chuck Schmidt refused to give the Oilers a chance to talk to Jones, the Lions quarterback coach.

Under National Football League rules, Jones had to get permission from the Lions before he could interview with Houston.

Jones, 36, left the Oilers for the Lions because his mentor, Mouse Davis, was hired by Detroit to install the run-and-shoot offense. He has one year remaining on a two-year contract.

Jones and Davis are in Houston this week to attend practices leading up to the Freedom Bowl, a black college all-star game which will be played Saturday in the Astrodome.

"June would be a great selection for the Oilers," Davis said. "He knows the personnel. He has a great rapport with the quarterbacks. He would be excellent."

Pardee said he and Jones are friends and would have liked to have worked with him.

Pardee reportedly has decided to bring three of his assistants from the University of Houston - defensive coordinator Jim Eddy, offensive line coach Bob Young, and secondary coach Pat Thomas - to the Oilers organization, but the three have not been officially hired.

Personal computers topic of program

Mike Foster, of Foster Electronics, spoke on "Introduction to Personal Computers" when the Xi Epsilon Alpha Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently.

The meeting was held in the home of President Marge Bell with 12 members repeating the opening ritual.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as read. Roll call was taken and guests recognized were Paula Todd and Kathy Hafliger.

Corresponding secretary Melinda Whitfill read a note from the Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center.

Each member expressed appreciation to their secret sister for Christmas gifts. Whitfill and Carol Kelley expressed appreciation to Secret Sisters.

In a report of city council, Peggy Hyer said a planning meeting for the June 22-24 state convention set in Amarillo will be held Jan. 18 in Amarillo.

Program and yearbook committee chairman Kay Williams said the next meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 16 featuring "Drama--Theatre: Television, Stage, and Theatre for Fun". Holly Bixler will be hostess and Whitfill will be co-hostess.

Social committee member Denise Hafliger reminded members of the Jan. 20 couple's party.

Scrapbook committee member Gaye Reily announced that a committee meeting is planned for Wed, Jan. 31.

Hafliger announced that both guests, Todd and Hafliger, plan to pledge. She said pledge training was held prior to the chapter meeting.

In unfinished business, Henson noted that the local Red Cross chapter expressed thanks to members Linda Arellano, Sharon Bodner, Connie Matthews, Henson, Reily, Susan Shaw, and Whitfill for their recent help in reconstructing Christmas toys for needy children.

Members present were Bell, Hafliger, Whitfill, Kelley, Hyer, Williams, Reily, Deann Harris, Arellano, Matthews, Shaw and Henson.

The meeting adjourned with the closing ritual and mitzpah.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Another terrible accident occurred last weekend. My husband, a state trooper, was so sick when he came home he had to go to bed. Please print the enclosed column again. Thank you. -- Ohio

DEAR OHIO: There was a bad one in Illinois, too. Thanks for asking. Here it is:

HOW TO MADE A TROOPER CRY

Want to see a state trooper cry? Would you like to see him bury his face in his hands, bawl, like a baby and slam his fist into the side of his patrol car? It's easy.

Start by refusing to listen when your wife suggests that she drive.

Don't be a wimp. Assert yourself. Let her know who's boss.

Say, "Aw heck, I can drive the car better with a few beers unner my belt than you can cold sober.

Show her who's boss.

Twenty minutes later, you are standing in the dark on the side of the highway with broken glass and spilled gasoline all around.

Your wife is screaming, pinned beneath jagged edges of twisted metal.

Your two-year-old daughter is silent.

Your six-year-old-son is sprawled face down 30 feet away.

The highway trooper smelled the alcohol on your breath when you tried to explain, and he's not very gentle as he pushes you into the rear of the patrol car and tells you to shut your mouth.

Then he pauses for a moment to wipe away his tear before he turns his attention to what is left of your car and your family.

Congratulations. You've made a trooper cry.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister (age 22) and I (age 27) were asked to be bridesmaids in our brother's wedding. The bride's two sisters will also be bridesmaids. They are 14 and 19.

I tried on 18 dresses. The one I liked least was the one the bride selected. It is a Victorian formal-length gown of pink satin with netting and six bows on the shoulders and hips.

The bride didn't ask us how much we could spend, nor did she take into consideration that the dress was suitable for a teen-ager, but looks ridiculous on a 27-year-old. My sister is a college student and has limited funds. The dress costs $150. She must also buy shoes. They will run at least $50.

I told the bride that the dress was lovely, but not for a 27-year-old. I then asked to be replaced. The next day my sister called and said she couldn't afford the gown and would have to be replaced also. The bride was upset and screamed into the phone, "It's my day and I have the right to pick the dress! You two know nothing about wedding etiquette."

Now she is angry with us and we feel awful. Were we out of line? This girl will be our brother's wife soon and all hell has broken loose. --Uneasy in Chicago

DEAR UNEASY: When a bride asks her friends and relatives to be in the wedding party, she should give them an opportunity to meet and decide on style and price. Those who can't afford it should be allowed to withdraw gracefully.

You and your sister acted appropriately under the circumstances. It is the bride who needs to bone up on wedding etiquette.

NEW YORK (AP) - Bryant Gumbel, anchor of NBC's "Today" show since 1982, will return to NBC Sports next weekend as host of its golf coverage.

Dick Ebersol, the president of NBC Sports and a senior vice president of NBC in charge of "Today," said Gumbel would be host of at least six tournaments this year, replacing Vin Scully, who quit after seven years as network golf host.

"Quilters" to be shown in Amarillo

"Quilters", a celebration of American womanhood, will be presented at 8 p.m., Jan 18-20, at the Amarillo Little Theatre. "Quilters" is a heartwarming, "feel good" show that the entire family will enjoy.

Tickets for "Quilters", are available now at the Amarillo Little Theatre box office, 2019 Civic Circle or by calling 355-9991.

This A.L.T. production has been underwritten by the Junior League of Amarillo.

Some believe stopping up the keyhole will prevent nightmares.

Hints from Heloise

"THE GUYS"

Dear Heloise: Working in a busy office often causes frequent forgetfulness, especially when we guys "brown bag" our lunch each day. So we devised a plan to use the new colored plastic wrap to remind us when leftovers are getting old in the refrigerator.

We use different colors for each day of the week. When that day comes around again, we know the food has worn out its welcome and should be thrown away.

By the way, we all like your column and read it every day. — Bob Crabb, Howard Armstrong, Richard Busch, Josh Botkin, San Clemente, Calif.

Thanks, gentlemen. I like y'all's hint! — Heloise

Cande Robbins (24) of the Hereford Lady Whitefaces puts up a high-percentage shot during Monday's 64-52 win over Estacado. The Lady Whitefaces made most of their short-range shots and enough from the outside to set a new school record for single game field goal percentage at 58.9 percent, eclipsing the old mark of 56.4 percent set in 1980-81. The Lady Whitefaces return to action tonight along with four other HHS basketball teams when they visit Borger.

UIL goes corporate route

AUSTIN (AP) - Corporations will sponsor championship high school athletic events in Texas for the first time this year, a move that will enhance games like the state football championship and allow it to further boost other athletic and academic events, officials said.

The University Interscholastic League, Texas' governing body for public high school athletics, is finalizing a contract with Coca-Cola for at least $250,000 to sponsor UIL state championship events, Coca-Cola officials said Thursday.

The two-year contract with Coca-Cola, retroactive to the 1989-90 school year, will be the largest in a three-tiered sponsorship program that companies can buy into for a minimum of $75,000. The UIL is soliciting other interested companies through a series of statewide newspaper advertisements.

Neither the UIL nor Coca-Cola would announce details of the contract, which both officials said should be signed within two weeks.

But University Interscholastic League officials said the organization would oppose any attempt by sponsors to put their names into the title of a state championship event.

Major Texas newspapers this week are carrying advertisements soliciting bids in 17 categories, said Bonnie Northcutt, assistant University Interscholastic director.

The advertisements stress annual student participation of 1.5 million in UIL events and note annual attendance estimates of 1 million for state football playoff games and 680,000 for the basketball playoffs.

The move aligns Texas with states like California, Colorado and Indiana, which already allow corporations to sponsor high school events.

Ms. Northcutt said the UIL will preview all advertising proposals. And she said all of the ads "must be in good taste and family oriented."

For their investment, sponsors will get advertising in UIL publications and special recognition at UIL events. The largest contributors will be able to sponsor television broadcasts.

A minimum bid of $250,000 annually would make a firm a so-called "Gold Sponsor." A "Silver Sponsor" bid is $125,000 or more, with a $75,000 minimum for "Bronze Sponsor" status.

Half of the winning bid in each sponsorship category would be cash, earmarked for existing UIL programs. Ms. Northcutt said the revenue could help expand the list of state academic events and improve some services to state tournament functions.

Other money would be used for promotional services, educating the public about the UIL and advertising state competition.

The plan calls for sponsors to commit $10,000 annually toward Texas Interscholastic Foundation scholarships. The awards go to graduating high school seniors who qualify for UIL state academic competition.

Ms. Northcutt said the TIF gave 361 scholarships, worth $461,450, last year to Texas colleges. The money would be administered by the University of Texas system.

All post-district UIL competitions should get more exposure with the sponsorship agreements, Ms. Northcutt said.

An ad in The Wall Street Journal last fall produced bids from both Pepsi and Coca-Cola companies, Ms. Northcutt said.

UIL contracts with sponsors would run from May 1, 1990, until June 30, 1991. The soft drink category sponsor may be announced this month.

The bid deadline is Feb. 2 for such categories as insurance companies, financial institutions, department stores, automobile dealerships, airlines, three varieties of prepared foods, grocery groups, musical instruments, computer manufacturers, sports shoes, sports clothing, hotel and miscellaneous.

Alabama hires Stallings

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) - Alabama quarterback Gary Hollingsworth said he doesn't know much about his new coach. It's just a relief to have someone on board after "a weird couple of days."

Gene Stallings, recently fired as coach of the NFL's Phoenix Cardinals, signed a five-year, $104,000-a-year contract on Thursday. He succeeds Bill Curry, who quit last Sunday to become the coach at Kentucky.

"I knew who he was, but to be honest, I'm not real familiar with him," said Hollingsworth, who set several school passing records in leading Alabama to a 10-2 record and a share of the Southeastern Conference title. "Phoenix isn't one of those teams that you see on television every week.

"I'm looking forward to it, but right now, my reaction is relief," Hollingsworth said. "This has been a weird couple of days. We knew they were going to get somebody good, but it's a relief to know who it is."

If Hollingsworth didn't know much about Stallings, dozens of former Alabama players on hand for Stallings' introduction did know about him.

He came to Alabama in 1958, the late Paul "Bear" Bryant's first year as the Crimson Tide coach, and was on Bryant's staff for seven years before becoming the coach at Texas A&M, where he had played under Bryant.

Alabama won two of its five Bryant-directed national titles during Stallings' years, and several players from those teams, plus others from different eras, voiced strong support to Stallings.

One was Jimmy Fuller, who will be retained by Stallings as the offensive line coach.

Just prior to the news conference, Stallings stepped into Fuller's office and asked, "What have you been doing?"

"For the last week I've been trying to get this job," said Fuller, one of those mentioned in speculation about Curry's successor.

Fuller pledged his support to Stallings.

"The thing we need now is unity," he said. "People who say they're loyal to the program need to show that by their actions, and that is what I will do."

Stallings said it had been his goal "for a long, long time to be able to be the head football coach at the University of Alabama."

"I want to sort of get everybody pulling in the same direction, not only the players, but the staff and former students. We want to get everybody excited the way it was several years ago when I was here."

At Phoenix, after 14 years as an assistant to Tom Landry with the Dallas Cowboys, Stallings had a 23-34-1 record.

NFC coaches use different approaches

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - John Robinson and George Seifert grew up five years and about five miles apart in the Bay area. They were on the same coaching staff at Oregon in the late 1960s. Both are polite and well-spoken.

And they are totally different coaches, although it won't be obvious to the casual fan when Robinson's Los Angeles Rams play Seifert's San Francisco 49ers for the NFC title Sunday at Candlestick Park.

Call Robinson the administrator, a man who left a job as a university vice president to take over as coach of the Rams, a man who had already earned a big-time reputation as coach at Southern California..

Call Seifert the technician, a career assistant whose office is stacked with charts, graphs of tendencies and probabilities.

Also call him one of the few head coaches who has taken over a successful team and made it more successful, 14-2 in the regular season with a 41-13 playoff victory over Minnesota under its belt.

"George is one of the reasons we're here," said linebacker Keena Turner, who played on Seifert's defensive units for the 49ers' Super Bowl champions in 1981, 1984 and 1988, "Instead of coming back with the attitude that we'd just won, he made it seem like it was a new team."

Seifert, who went to high school next to the 49ers' old home at Kezar Stadium and sold concessions there in the '50s, almost didn't get the job.

An assistant under Bill Walsh at Stanford and then with the 49ers, he seemed typecast as a backup, particularly after going 3-15 in his only major head coaching job, at Cornell in 1975 and 1976. When Walsh stepped down after last year's Super Bowl victory, he recommended Seifert. Owner Edward DeBartolo Jr. was looking for a bigger name and actively sought Jimmy Johnson, then at the University of Miami.

Seifert was on a plane bound for Cleveland to interview for the Browns' job when his wife had him paged at the Dallas-Fort Worth Airport. She told him to come back, that Walsh had prevailed and Seifert had the San Francisco job.

He stepped in slowly, letting his assistants run training camp. He first made his presence felt when he suspended Tim McKyer, one of his best defensive backs, for two games after a stormy confronation in the coach's office.

"When he's disappointed, he's going to express his disappointment," offensive tackle Harris Barton said. "But he's not going to go overboard and ridicule or criticize outwardly in the media like some coaches do.'

Seifert also showed a light side. When the team signed nose tackle Jim Burt, Seifert announced during a team meeting: "We've just signed a big, tough defensive linemen." Then he turned off the lights and showed a clip of Burt, dressed in a tutu, dancing with ballerinas in an insurance commercial he had made while with the New York Giants.

Robinson, 54, and Seifert were on Jerry Frei's staff at Oregon. After a 5-6 season in 1970, Frei was ordered to fire his assistants. He declined, and resigned instead.

Robinson, who grew up with John Madden in Daly City, just south of San Francisco, moved up quickly. He was an assistant under Madden with the Oakland Raiders in 1975, then took over at USC the next year. He fielded seven straight bowl teams before resigning in 1982 to become vice president for university relations.

Then the Rams' job opened up.

"I guess I couldn't resist it," he said, and the Rams couldn't resist him. He has taken the team to the playoffs six times in seven years.

Robinson could be described as something of an intellectual. He spent about 90 minutes earlier in the week discussing everything from football to world affairs with a group of reporters. Even in tough times he is stolid and his offense and defense are run by two of the game's best coordinators, Ernie Zampese and Fritz Shurmur.

For years, Robinson was thought of as a running back coach. His USC teams featured Heisman Trophy winners Charles White and Marcus Allen, and Eric Dickerson was the mainstay of Robinson's offense with the Rams.

When Jim Everett joined the team, breaking a long string of mediocre quarterbacks, and Dickerson was traded, Robinson turned the Rams into a passing team. He hired Zampese, Dan Fouts' tutor with the San Diego Chargers, to coach Everett.

Broncos, Browns trying to forget past disappointments

DENVER (AP) - The Broncos don't win the big one. The Browns don't get to the big one.

That's been the perception of the teams who meet Sunday for the AFC championship. It is the third time in four years that Denver and Cleveland have played for the title, with the Broncos taking the 1987 and '88 games, only to be routed in the Super Bowl.

At least the Broncos got there.

"The idea is to play for the championship and we have a chance to do it for the third time," Denver safety Dennis Smith said. "I'd rather be in New Orleans than watching two other teams there."

And, who knows, the Broncos might win one of those Super Bowls someday. They are 0-3 so far, but they are 3-0 in the AFC Championship game.

"The way I look at my career is I've got a long way to go," said quarterback John Elway, who was most responsible for getting the Broncos to the Super Bowl in 1987 and 1988. "and I'm not sitting here concerning myself that we'll never get a chance to win a world championship. We're on our way right now and if we can win this week, we've got a chance for another one."

Elway really gets annoyed when he hears people say the Broncos shouldn't bother, that they'll be squashed by the NFC champion, either the San Francisco 49ers or Los Angeles Rams.

"It's the easy way out for people who say that. To those people who say, 'Why do they want to go back?' they ought to hide in their closets.

"We've heard that, 'Hopefully, the Broncos won't go back because we don't want to go and lose again.' I want a chance to go to bat."

The Browns would like nothing better than to get to the plate at the Superdome. One of the storied franchises in league history, the Browns have been in the playoffs 22 times and have won more games since 1950 than any team.

But they've never won the title for current owner Art Modell. The two losses to Denver in the AFC championship were particularly galling because of "The Drive," and "The Fumble."

"We've had some extraordinary games," Modell said. "We look back on two of the most debilitating losses this franchise has suffered in the Denver games of 1986 and 1987. When you get so close to the ring and you don't come up with it, it's a shock to your system."

Those defeats came under Coach Marty Schottenheimer, who left the Browns for Kansas City after last season. Bud Carson has taken over and he knows something about Super Bowls, having helped build Pittsburgh's Steel Curtain in the 1970s.

"I've heard enough about the Browns and Denver in the playoffs to know what this game means to this organization and the veterans who played in those two championship games," Carson said.

"You can't dwell on the past and feel sorry for yourself too long," quarterback Bernie Kosar added. "Naturally, I'd like to play in a Super Bowl. You're not in these games to go out and lose them."

Carson isn't harping on those defeats or Cleveland's 16-13 win this season that broke a 10-game slide against Denver. Carson rarely looks back.

"Our approach each week all year has been that this is one football game and it is our Super Bowl," he said. "We're focused on it and totally concentrating on this game.

"All the other stuff means nothing unless you let it. It's gone, past, forgotten."

Rebuilding Tulane stuns MSU; Knight passes Big 10 win mark

By The Associated Press

It's Carnival Season in New Orleans and Tulane's basketball team provided unexpected cause for celebration.

The Green Wave resumed the sport this season after a four-year suspension in the wake of a point-shaving scandal. On Thursday night, they upset No. 20 Memphis State 81-80 on Michael Christian's 3-point shot with 28 seconds left. It was only the third victory in 11 tries for Tulane and the first in three Metro Conference games.

The last time the teams met, in 1985, was one of the games the conspirators said they fixed. In a repeat of the 1985 game, Tulane students threw Mardi Gras beads onto the floor after the Green Wave's first field goal.

"Look at the face of President (Eamon) Kelly. Look at our students. That's what this is all about," Coach Perry Clark said after Tulane sweated out the final seconds.

Memphis State wasn't the only ranked team to lose Thursday night. Ninth-ranked Georgia Tech bowed to No. 10 Duke 96-91 and Purdue knocked off No. 16 Minnesota 86-78.

Elsewhere, it was No. 11 Louisville 79, South Carolina 66; No. 13 Indiana 77, Northwestern 63; No. 18 Arizona 90, Southern Cal 75; No. 19 UCLA 62, Arizona State 53 and No. 23 Loyola Marymount 113, Santa Clara 100.

Tulane's Christian was only 2-of-6 from 2-point range but hit three of five 3-pointers, including his game-winner with two seconds left on the shot clock.

Anthony Reed led Tulane with 25 points. Memphis State (9-4, 1-1) got 18 from Elliott Perry.

No. 10 Duke 96,
No. 9 Georgia Tech 91

Phil Henderson scored 26 points and Christian Laettner 23 for Duke, which overcame a 10-point deficit in the final nine minutes. Henderson scored seven points and Laettner hit five free throws in a 17-2 run after Tech had built a 78-68 lead.

The Blue Devils tied it 80-80 on Henderson's 16-footer with 4:20 left, took the lead on two free throws by Laettner with 3:52 to play, and built the lead to 85-80 on Henderson's 3-point basket with 3:22 remaining.

No. 11 Louisville 79, S. Carolina 66

Keith Williams made eight of nine shots and scored a career-high 24 points. Williams scored eight of Louisville's first 14 points to help the Cardinals take a 36-18 halftime lead over error-prone, cold-shooting South Carolina.

Midway through the first half the Gamecocks had eight turnovers and only seven points. They finished the half with 17 turnovers while shooting 25 percent.

The Gamecocks were led by Jo Jo English with 20 points.

No. 13 Indiana 77, Northwestern 63

Eric Anderson led an 18-2 second-half run with 11 points as Indiana turned a six-point deficit into a 10-point lead and made Bob Knight the winningest coach in Big Ten history.

Anderson scored 24 points, 20 in the second half. The victory was the 229th in the Big Ten for Knight, putting him one ahead of former Purdue coach Ward "Piggy" Lambert.

"All that means is I lasted longer than those other guys," said Knight, in his 19th season at Indiana.

Rex Walters scored 20 points for Northwestern.

Purdue 86, No. 16 Minnesota 78

Ryan Berning scored all 13 of his points in the final nine minutes, including six free throws in the final 71 seconds.

The Boilermakers overcame 23 turnovers, including several during Minnesota's charge. The Gophers' Willie Burton led all scorers with 22 points. Tony Jones led six Purdue players in double figures with 17 points.

No. 18 Arizona 90, Southern Cal 75

Jud Buechler had 22 points and 10 rebounds in Arizona's eighth straight victory.

Harold Miner had 26 points for the Trojans.

Southern Cal led 52-49 with 16:25 remaining but the Trojans made just one field goal in the next 8 1/2 minutes as Arizona went on a 23-4 run.

No. 19 UCLA 62, Arizona St. 53

Trevor Wilson scored 17 points. Arizona State's Alex Austin kept the Sun Devils in the game by scoring 15 points that had the teams tied 19-19 with 2:44 left in the first half.

UCLA scored the next seven points and led at halftime 26-19. Austin finished with 31 points.

No. 23 Loyola Marymount 113, Santa Clara 100

Bo Kimble, the nation's leading scorer, had 35 points and Hank Gathers, last year's leader, added 22 as the Lions scored at least 100 points for the 11th time. Ron Reis led Santa Clara with a career-high 30 points.

HAMMERTOES

An inherited muscle imbalance or abnormal bone length can make one or more small toes buckle under, causing their joints to contract. This in turn causes the tendons to shorten. Corns (build-ups of dead skin cells where shoes press and rub) often form on top of the contracted joints, and may become irritated and infected. Various hammertoe problems and some of the common ways to correct them surgically are shown.

'Other' Malone scores 10,000th point

By BILL BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

Throughout his career, Jeff Malone has been the 'other' Malone in the NBA.

Despite a 19.6 scoring average going into his seventh season and two All-Star appearances, Jeff Malone has been overshadowed by Karl and Moses Malone.

Jeff took the spotlight Thursday night, scoring the 10,000th point of his career on the way to a season-high 39 points as Washington beat Miami 100-89. It was the Washington Bullets' first road win in 14 games and the Heat's 12th consecutive loss.

Malone reached the milestone with a reverse layup in the second quarter, then scored 22 points in the third quarter, hitting nine of 12 from the floor and four of four free throws during the period.

"It's a great feeling when you start scoring like that," Malone said. "You just want to take the shot every time."

"We couldn't stop him," Heat coach Ron Rothstein said. "He got on a roll and broke our backs."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 109, Charlotte 101; Portland 82, Minnesota 80; Denver 141, Orlando 105; Seattle 98, Dallas 87 and Houston 90, Sacramento 87.

Malone began to assume control of the game late in the second quarter, scoring 10 points in the final 4 minutes, 14 seconds of the period, including Washington's last eight points of the half, which ended with Miami ahead 52-50.

"Basically, Jeff Malone just got hot," Washington coach Wes Unseld said. "I'm smart enough not to start coaching when Jeff gets hot."

Malone scored the Bullets' first two baskets of the second half and finished the third period with Washington's last 13 points in the final six minutes of the quarter, which concluded with Washington leading 82-75.

The Heat, who were led by Rony Seikaly with 25 points and 17 rebounds, got no closer than five the rest of the way.

Rockets 90, Kings 87

Houston won its fourth straight game and snapped a 10-game road losing streak as Akeem Olajuwon had 27 points and 18 rebounds and Mitchell Wiggins had a successful return to the lineup at Sacramento.

Wiggins, who missed the previous 16 games with a sprained left knee, scored nine points in the last 5 1/2 minutes as the Rockets overcame a 76-63 deficit with a 19-2 run in the fourth quarter. Wiggins finished with 15 points.

Kenny Smith had 23 points for the Kings.

Nets 109, Hornets 101

New Jersey's longest winning streak in two years reached three games, and kept Charlotte winless on the road this season as Purvis Short scored a season-high 29 points.

Trailing 36-34 midway through the second period, the Nets took the lead for good with a 21-5 spurt for a 55-41 lead.

Roy Hinson had 19 points and 12 rebounds for New Jersey. Kelly Tripucka scored 22 points for the Hornets.

Trail Blazers 82, Timberwolves 80

Portland won its sixth straight game and matched the Los Angeles Lakers' NBA high of 24 victories after Terry Porter hit two free throws with 15 seconds left.

Clyde Drexler led Portland with 18 points and Tony Campbell had 26 for Minnesota, including a three-point play with 2:16 remaining that made it 80-80 - the seventh tie of the fourth quarter and 18th of the game.

Nuggets 141, Magic 105

Denver had a 67-point turnaround from the previous night as Fat Lever scored a season-high 27 points and added 14 rebounds.

The Nuggets, who lost 130-99 to Utah on Wednesday, took a 16-6 lead over the Magic with a 12-0 run keyed by two 3-pointers in a 35-second span by Michael Adams.

It was 71-41 at halftime, 108-74 after three quarters and the largest lead was 127-85 in the fourth quarter. Jerome Lane had 15 rebounds as the Nuggets outrebounded the Magic 64-40.

SuperSonics 98, Mavericks 87

Seattle outscored Dallas 39-23 in the fourth period as Dale Ellis scored 11 of his 29 points.

Ellis scored the first seven points of a 9-0 Sonics run at the beginning of the fourth period, turning a 64-59 deficit into a 68-64 lead.

Seattle led 70-69 with 6:45 left and went on a 15-2 run for an 85-71 advantage with 3:29 remaining.

Rolando Blackman led the Mavericks with 30 points.

Lions put lock on Jones

HOUSTON (AP) - New Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee will have to look for someone other than June Jones to become his offensive coordinator since the Detroit Lions declined to grant Jones permission to interview with the Oilers.

" I would have liked to have talked to him, but I won't be able to," Pardee said Thursday. Jones had been mentioned as the No. 1 candidate to become the Oilers offensive coordinator.

Oilers General Manager Mike Holovak confirmed Thursday that Lions General Manager Chuck Schmidt refused to give the Oilers a chance to talk to Jones, the Lions quarterback coach.

Under National Football League rules, Jones had to get permission from the Lions before he could interview with Houston.

Jones, 36, left the Oilers for the Lions because his mentor, Mouse Davis, was hired by Detroit to install the run-and-shoot offense. He has one year remaining on a two-year contract.

Jones and Davis are in Houston this week to attend practices leading up to the Freedom Bowl, a black college all-star game which will be played Saturday in the Astrodome.

"June would be a great selection for the Oilers," Davis said. "He knows the personnel. He has a great rapport with the quarterbacks. He would be excellent."

Pardee said he and Jones are friends and would have liked to have worked with him.

Pardee reportedly has decided to bring three of his assistants from the University of Houston - defensive coordinator Jim Eddy, offensive line coach Bob Young, and secondary coach Pat Thomas - to the Oilers organization, but the three have not been officially hired.

Bush opposes SS tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush is opposing a proposal sure to prove politically appealing in this congressional election year - a cut in Social Security payroll taxes.

White House rejection of a plan by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to roll back Social Security taxes is drawing criticism from business and conservative groups, traditional sources of support for the administration.

Bush is traveling today to Cincinnati to address the local Chamber of Commerce in a speech that aides said would highlight his unfinished agenda, including his battle for a lower capital gains tax rate.

The parent organization, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been a longtime Bush ally on the capital gains cut. But the group said Thursday that it would also welcome lower Social Security taxes -despite Bush's objections.

Don Levin, director of federal budget policy for the national business organization, called the Moynihan proposal "a positive first step" toward strengthening the Social Security system.

Although the chamber has concerns about paying for such a tax cut, Levin said the administration and "Republicans in general" would be "missing a golden opportunity" by not backing it.

"How can you go against such a good idea? It's a populist idea. And it will do a lot of good for economic growth," Levin said.

Bush was not expected to address the Social Security issue directly in his speech today, aides said.

While in Cincinnati, the president also planned to visit a high school and speak with students.

On Thursday, Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was asked about the Moynihan proposal - in light of Bush's repeated opposition to higher taxes.

"We don't anticipate any changes in Social Security. Democrats seem to want to fiddle around with the Social Security system; we do not," Fitzwater said.

"Mr. Moynihan's got a lot of ideas, and we'll let the Democrats have those ideas."

Moynihan would cancel the Jan. 1 increase that raised the Social Security tax rate to 7.65 percent from 7.51 percent. The tax covers both retirement and Medicare programs.

The rate would then decrease even further, to 6.55 percent, on Jan. 1, 1991. Moynihan says large surpluses in the Social Security trust funds justify the rollback, which he calls a "$55 billion tax cut for working people."

Moynihan's proposal would reduce the rate paid by both employees and employers.

Social Security taxes jumped this year by as much as $320 - the increase paid by Americans with salaries of $51,300 or more. At $48,000 and below, the increase is 0.14 percent, or $67 for someone earning $48,000; $42 for someone earning $30,000, $28 for someone earning $20,000, and so on.

"So the president doesn't like our tax cut?" asked Moynihan aide Ed Lopez when asked about the negative White House response.

Lopez said Moynihan intends to introduce the legislation Jan. 23, when Congress returns from its winter recess.

Moynihan was out of the country and could not be reached directly.

Kay O'Beirne, deputy director of the conservative Heritage Foundation, said the administration was finding itself "in a position of opposing a tax break that Americans deserve."

Congressional rat had unlimited food, wealth

WASHINGTON (AP) - It copies, it collates and to the dismay of a Capitol Hill office, it was the main course for a hardy, foot-long rat.

The staff at the office of the House Legislative Counsel viewed their sophisticated, $93,000 copying machine as the best ever until a rodent, clusive to most exterminating efforts, made the machine his home and restaurant.

"He was obviously a smart rat," office administrator Lynne Richardson said Thursday.

While the staff was away, the rat would play, roaming the office for leftover food, overturning plants and building a nest inside the Xerox copier, but far from its moving parts.

The repairman who came to fix the machine when it jammed just before adjournment found a nest of shredded paper surrounded by banana peels, corn cobs, rat droppings and a sealed bag with a Hostess Twinkie inside.

He also found that the rodent feasted on the copier's computer wires but smartly avoided the machine's electrical wires that might have left the staff smelling a rat.

Xerox deemed the machine a total loss and impossible to repair, Richardson said. Efforts to revive the copier were complicated by the type of wiring, which relied on numbering rather than color-coding.

The rodent, nicknamed "Willard" by the staff and adopted as an official mascot, chewed through both the wires and the numbers.

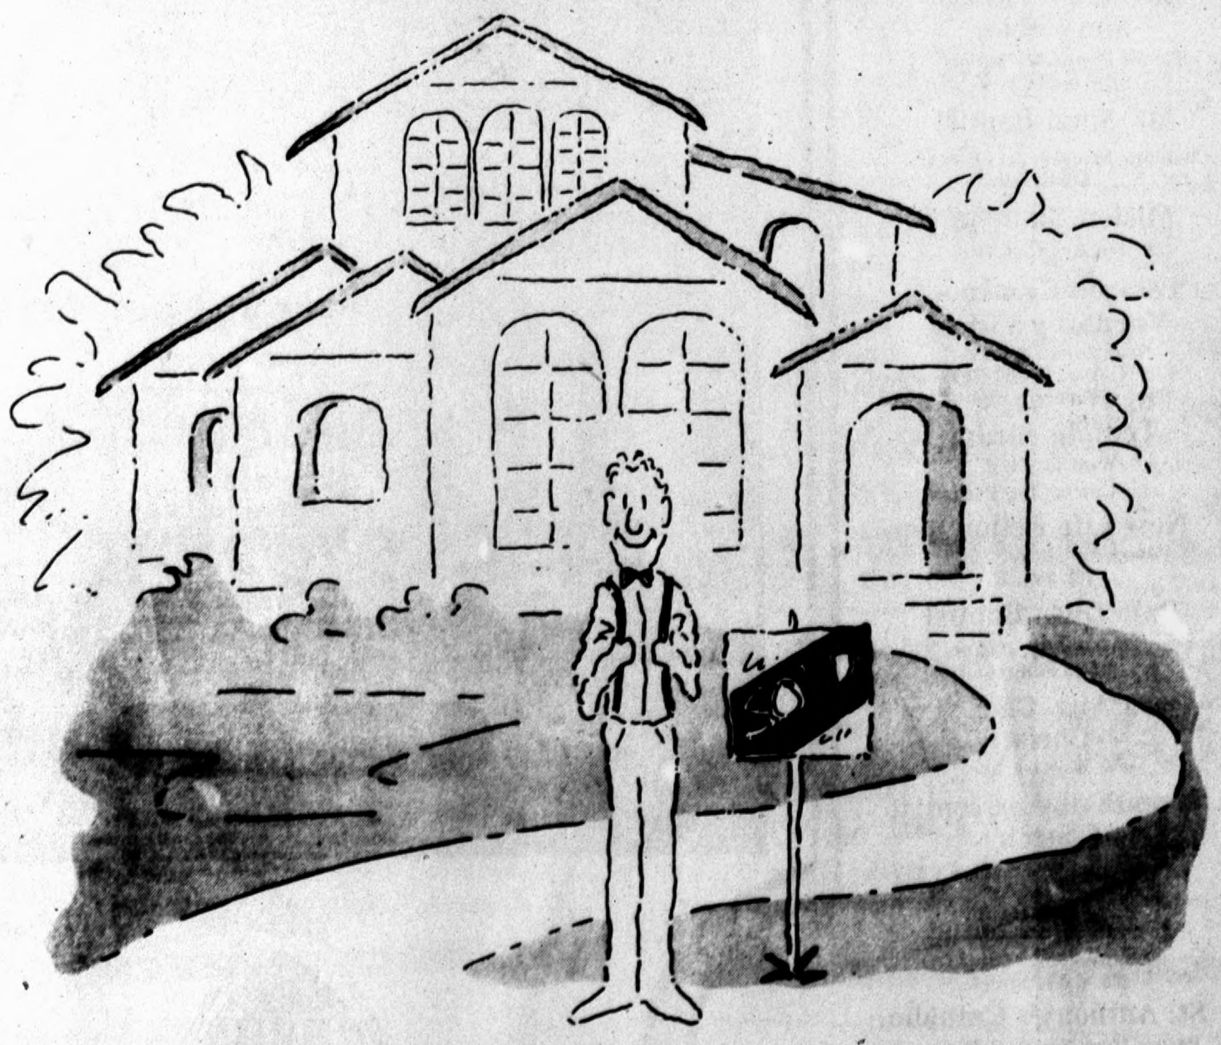

The end result was a $107,000 replacement for the nearly 3-year-old copier.

"It was the best machine we ever had," Richardson said of the lost copier.

The rat saga was first reported Thursday by Roll Call, a newspaper that focuses on Capitol Hill news.

Previous exterminating efforts to rid the office of the furry visitor included stuffing wall openings for pipes with steel wool, setting traps with peanut butter and spreading poison powder in some areas.

Ask Dr. Lamb

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have a stationary bicycle that I hate with a passion. But I think I might come to like it, maybe even love it, IF someone would tell me how many calories I burn by riding it. The stock answer I get is 400 calories an hour. There has to be a difference if a person rides 10, 15, 20 or 30 miles an hour. My steady pace is 23. Can you help?

DEAR READER: Such stationary exercise bikes are so variable that I can't give you an answer that specifically applies to your bike. The manufacturer should provide such a table. It depends on how much resistance is applied, the speed and the duration.

But you are right that the correct answer for all is NOT 400 calories an hour. If the resistance is the same, the distance is the most important factor. Obviously if you exercise at 10 miles an hour, you are going to cover twice the distance at 20 miles an hour and should use twice as many calories.

You can use your heart rate during exercise as a guide to how many calories any activity involves. But you need to first know what your heart rate is with walking, jogging or running. I have explained this in Special Report 74, Exercise to Control Body Fat, which I am sending you. Others who want this report can send $2 with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to THE HEALTH LETTER/74, P.O. Box 19622, Irvine, CA 92713.

A person who weighs 150 pounds will use about 30 calories more per mile using an outdoor bike (on level ground) than he would if he were sitting still for the same time interval, compared to an additional 60 calories while walking a mile or 90 calories more running a mile. You can remember this as the 1, 2, 3 rule — 1 calorie for cycling, 2 calories for walking and 3 calories for jogging or running. That will give you a relative idea of how these three exercises compare per mile in the use of calories.

A stationary bicycle can be a very useful indoor method of exercising. It limits the stress on the joints and is sometimes more suitable for those with joint complaints.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Six months ago I came down with sore shin muscles. I had ultrasound tests which showed reduced blood flow to my lower leg. A vascular surgeon concurred in the diagnosis. I am an insulin dependent, physically active individual and engage in water-aerobics classes three days a week and walk two miles a day. The surgeon told me to continue my exercise program as much as the pain permits.

I told him I have heard of intermittent claudication and he said that is what I have. Is this related to my diabetes, which I keep under good control? My cholesterol is only 180. Can you explain intermittent claudication to me?

DEAR READER: Claudication means limping or lameness and the intermittent form is characterized by pain — commonly in the calf — upon exertion. The pain goes away with rest. The cause of the pain is from inadequate blood flow to the leg muscles. When you work your muscles, they need more blood to supply more oxygen. If that doesn't happen, the oxygen-poor muscle causes pain — just as the heart muscle causes pain when it doesn't get enough blood.

Diabetes may cause changes even when the cholesterol level is normal. It is likely that your diabetes is an underlying factor. In some cases, a plugged artery can be opened or a localized blockage can be bypassed to restore better circulation. But that is not possible in all cases. Diabetic involvement of the nerves to the leg can cause pain at rest.

Technological improvements to be seen for contact lens

As the decade of the 1990s arrives, the nearly 24 million Americans who wear contact lenses will see dramatic technological improvements, industry specialists forecasted recently.

In the future, contact lenses custom-made for the wearer, will provide near-perfect vision, and may deliver therapeutic drugs or nutritional supplements directly to the eye. Lenses may even "talk," signaling when it's time to clean, or replace a pair. Tiny microsensor motors might do the cleaning while lenses are worn.

Technology may alter forever how contact lenses are made, worn and work, said experts at the 16th annual National Research Symposium (NRS). NRS is the world's largest meeting of contact lens professionals, and is sponsored by industry leader Bausch & Lomb.

"As with most future-forward ideas, when resources are directed toward these concepts, they can become a reality," said Joseph T. Barr, O.D., M.S., editor of Contact Lens Spectrum and chief of the Contact Lens Clinic at the Ohio State University College of Optometry. "Technology changes to meet patient needs, and we can see the proof of this with today's disposable contact lenses," he said.

Dr. Barr also discussed futuristic findings on "suicide preservatives" used in contact lens care products. The chemicals in these potential solutions would self-destruct when the effective cleaning process is complete, similar to internal sutures that dissolve as a person heals from surgery.

An advanced technology method already underway is a trend toward "custom-making" of contact lenses. Soon, the specialized contact lens options for correction of astigmatism (toric lenses) and presbyopia (bifocal contact lenses) will achieve better optics than eye glasses.

"This will be possible because when a contact lens is designed to fit an individual's variation of a particular vision need, it produces the best vision possible through that correction. Although some of these topics are futuristic, they are based on scientific research collected through the past decade, and are the result of the first comprehensive collection of studies," said Dr. Barr.

One out of every two Americans, or more than 144 million people, now require some form of vision correction, numbers that experts expect to rise sharply in the next few years due to an aging population and an increased interest in personal health care.

PERTH, Australia (AP) - One of the world's unusual aquariums -where sea creatures can be touched - has opened in Australia, reports Travel Agent magazine.

One feature, called Microworld, shows 11 separate environments that are magnified up to 12 times their natural size for easy viewing. At the "touch pool" a variety of seaworld creatures, such as sea slugs, starfish, crayfish and crabs, may be handled by visitors.

In Underwater World, a submerged acrylic tunnel with a moving sidewalk allows visitors to see some 5,000 different species of marine life.

Recycling old hat for interior designers

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Her decorator was surprised when Sharon Clancy Lienau refused to replace the wall clock when her Chicago kitchen was remodeled.

Lienau's husband had made it from a cheese tray - with thumbtacks for numerals, a battery and ready-made clockworks - as an anniversary gift. So, although a high-tech clock would have gone well with her new kitchen, Lienau wouldn't part with the old one.

Sentiment is one reason why recycled objects are valued as decorative accessories. Economy and the charm of finding new uses for old things are also factors, says Jany Caroli, a decorator and antiques shop keeper in Darien, Conn.

Caroli says many appealing antiques started life as something else. They range from porcelain basins to brass spittoons and odd pieces of china.

Today we have little use for spittoons that in the 18th and 19th centuries were customary appurtenances in fashionable interiors. But we do need large containers to use as planters and ashtrays, so these containers function very well in a new role, says Caroli.

As a decorator, Caroli has recycled many containers that started life as something else. "Take shells: I use them as ashtrays, soap dishes or as a food server.

"Large conch shells make excellent centerpieces when filled with flowers and baby vegetables."

One of the most common examples of recycling today is the armoire which once held clothing or food. Today it's more likely to hide stereo equipment and a TV set. Ornate wrought iron bases from old treadle sewing machines are often turned into table bases. Recently, Caroli used the base of a turn-of-the-century bistro table as a sink base. She has converted circle and half-moon windows into unusual mirrors by having the wood frames refinished and the window glass replaced with mirror.

For a modest expenditure, you can make coffee tables from lobster traps and a sheet of glass and throw mover's quilts over threadbare sofas and chairs.

Turn tin cans into candle holders by punching holes in them in a decorative pattern, says decorator Patricia Stellar of New Canaan, Conn., and turn architectural ornaments from buildings into shelf brackets.

You can exercise economy and originality by recycling objects that cost little or nothing, suggests Joe Ruggiero, editor of Home Magazine and author of the book, "Found Objects."

Some ideas Ruggiero has used include tables from tea crates -large wooden boxes with stenciled lettering and metal edges. Other unusual but successful tables are those made from a section of tree trunk, an old door, and soda cans glued together in a large cube and topped with a sheet of clear acrylic.

Joey Gagliano, owner of Giuseppe, a clothing store in Chicago, used two chrome tire rims, a 13-inch round of plate glass and a light bulb and socket to make a lighted bedside table.

"I saw the idea used in a magazine as a pedestal, and I decided to make a table," says Gagliano. The execution was simplicity itself. The rims are heavy enough to stand securely without adhesive.

Lienau, who runs Designer Previews in Chicago, a service that matches clients to decorators, says her mother, Peggy Clancy, started a reuse craze in her hometown of Rye, N.Y. She converted dome-shaped silver vegetable dish covers into wall planters. She had the covers cut in half and a flat back soldered on to each to create two half-moon planters. She filled them with ivy and hung them on the dining room wall.

Lienau's friend, Jeanne Tornow Bemi of Addison, Ill., makes what she calls "alley art" from old bowling pins. Since a bowling pin is already roughly the shape of a torso and head, she simply adds headgear and a fabric wrap.

Beef sandwich recipe earns $5,000 in cookoff contest

It was more than a clever recipe title that earned Mary Lou Newhouse $5,000 and a Tappan range in the 16th National Beef Cook-Off held last September in Portland, Ore. Her Harvest Thyme Beef Sandwich, awarded first place in the Indoor Conventional category, was a delicious, yet unique alternative to the traditional beef sandwich.

The 17th annual cook-off will be held in the Seattle, Wash., area Sept. 20-22, and 64 amateur contestants from all 50 states will again be competing for the title of America's best beef cook. More than $35,500 in cash and prizes will be awarded. The American National CattleWomen sponsor the competition in cooperation with the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board and the Beef Board.

Newhouse's unique combination of beef sirloin strips and fresh, crunchy vegetables on a toasted French roll impressed judges with it originality and taste. Here's the recipe for Harvest Thyme Beef Sandwich:

HARVEST THYME BEEF SANDWICH
Preparation time: 30 minutes
Marinating time: 1 hour
Cooking time: 25 to 30 minutes

1 1/2 pound boneless beef top sirloin steak, cut 1 1/2 inches thick
4 French rolls, split and lightly toasted
1 cup each finely shredded carrot and turnip
4 large leaves green or red leaf lettuce
1/4 cup thinly sliced green onion tops
Thin apple slices, dipped in lemon juice
1/4 cup prepared horseradish, drained, if desired
Paprika, if desired
Dressing

DRESSING
Preparation time: 5 minutes
1/2 cup plus 2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
2 tablespoons each fresh lemon juice and red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon Bavarian-style mustard or other strong dark mustard
1 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
1/2 teaspoon coarsely cracked black pepper

Whisk oil, lemon juice and vinegar in small bowl. Slowly whisk in mustard until blended. Add salt, thyme and pepper; mix well. Yield: about 3/4 cup.

Melt away cholesterol with gourmet food

"Cantaloupe with cottage cheese and a side of melba toast" is no longer the mandate of a growing number of sophisticated diners who have learned that it's not necessary to sacrifice good taste and variety to keep calorie, cholesterol, and sodium intake low.

Fresh fruit, herbs, and creativity abound as imaginative chefs firmly push deprivation to the back burner, serving delicious food that melts in the mouth as it melts away cholesterol and fat in the body.

Olive oil is a favorite ingredient among chefs, who use it to its best advantage as a healthy and versatile flavor enhancer. Here are some of tips and recipes:

1. Make olive oil a staple in your kitchen because if offers such good taste and is cholesterol free.

2. Think of salads as miniature treasure chests by using unusual combinations of fruits, vegetables and greens.

3. Use fresh-squeezed lime or lemon juice with fresh herbs as low-fat marinades for meats and fish. For optimum flavor use the freshest ingredients you can find: Hot or sweet peppers, onion, ginger root, garlic, tomatoes and assorted herbs.

4. Thicken sauces with arrowroot or vegetable purees rather than flour, cream or butter.

You'll see some of these tips in action in the recipes below. Please note that recipes often rely on fresh ingredients, herbs and citrus juices for flavor and do not customarily include salt. You may add salt to taste if desired, or sprinkle on a no-sodium herb blend, but taste these dishes before you do. You are likely to find them deliciously seasoned with no additions.

GREENHOUSE POLLO RUSTICA
(Garlic-Roasted Chicken)

Serve this dish accompanied by parsley-topped potatoes and quartered cherry tomatoes.

6 pieces of boneless skinless chicken breasts (4 oz. portion each)
2 red onions, sliced
3 sprigs fresh rosemary
3 Tbsp. Classico olive oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 green pepper, sliced
1 yellow pepper, sliced
1 red pepper, sliced

Vinaigrette
3/4 cup Balsalmic vinegar
2 Tbsp. Classico olive oil
1 bunch fresh basil
1 clove garlic
Vegesal or salt substitute and pepper to taste

Place all ingredients for vinaigrette in blender and blend until basil is finely chopped; set aside.

Pour 2 Tbsp. of olive oil in an oven proof baking dish. Use remaining 1 Tbsp. of olive oil and garlic and lightly rub onto chicken breasts. Slice onions thinly and spread evenly on bottom of dish. Place chicken evenly on top of onions. Sprinkle with a little pepper and fresh rosemary leaves.

Bake covered in oven at 350 degrees for approximately 20 to 30 minutes (depending on thickness of chicken). Remove chicken from oven; sprinkle red, green and yellow peppers evenly on top of chicken. Bake 5-10 more minutes uncovered. Remove from oven, pour vinaigrette over entire dish while still hot and let set to room temperature.

Yields 6 entree servings; 253 calories per serving.

NORWICH INN'S MARINATED MUSHROOMS A LA GRECQUE

Plan to serve this zesty appetizer or side on a bed of greens or radicchio.

2 tablespoons Classico olive oil
2 large shallots, finely chopped (1/3 cup)
1 small carrot, coarsely chopped
3/4 pound button mushrooms (or larger mushrooms quartered)
1 cup dry white wine
1/2 cup defatted chicken broth or instant vegetable broth
1 bay leaf
6 whole peppercorns, preferably white
6 whole coriander seeds
Juice of 1/2 lemon (about 1 1/2 tablespoons)
1 tablespoon Classico olive oil
3 tablespoons finely minced fresh parsley

In a large saucepan, heat the Classico olive oil. Saute the shallots and carrots for 2 minutes, stirring frequently. Stir in the mushrooms. Add the wine, broth, bay leaf, peppercorns, and coriander. Bring to a boil, then reduce heat and simmer for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Transfer mushrooms to a serving dish or storage container. Over high heat, reduce remaining cooking liquid to half. Remove bay leaf, peppercorns, and coriander seeds, and pour reduced liquid over the mushrooms. Stir in the lemon juice, Bertrolli olive oil, and parsley. Let stand at room temperature or chill for at least 2 hours before serving.

Yields 4 appetizer or side-dish portions; 136 calories per serving.

SUPERMARKETS SPUR FANCY FOOTWORK

NEW YORK (AP) - Shoppers need to combine fancy footwork with adroit eye-hand coordination in going through a modern supermarket, reports a New York-based marketing communications company.

According to the Howard Marlboro Group, the average shopper -more likely to be a "she" since the study found 72 percent of purchases were made by a female - must thread her way past some 40,000 available choices, not to mention the five new products added to the shelves every day before she can settle on what she wants.

While her sharpened shopping skills permit her to "scan" the array of choices at the rate of 300 each minute, it is the checkout that slows her down.

Get Free IBM Computers For Your School!

Donate your register tapes to the participating school of your choice in Furr's "Computers for Classrooms" program!

SAVE YOUR RECEIPTS!

NOW THROUGH MAY 31, 1990.

All public, private and parochial schools, grades kindergarten through 12, can earn FREE IBM PS/2™ Model 25 Computers, with IBM Proprinters™ and a variety of educational software.

How does our "Computers for Classrooms" program work?

Quite simply. Schools are asked to collect our register receipt tapes dated between January 1 and May 31, 1990. The schools then redeem the tapes for ABSOLUTELY FREE IBM PS/2's™, printers and software.

How long does this program run?

January 1, 1990 through May 31, 1990.

How does my school sign up?

During the week of January 1, 1990, school principals were mailed a letter of invitation and a registration card. A program packet which includes receipt tape values for all equipment will be mailed to schools after they return their completed registration cards. Completed cards should be mailed to:

Furr's, Inc.
P.O. Box 1650
Lubbock, Texas 79408
ATTN: Bob Hurmence

We will set up a special account for your school after the registration card is returned to us. Please wait until you receive your coordinator package before contacting us.

What kinds of computer equipment and software are available?

IBM Personal System/2™* Model 25
IBM Proprinter II™*
Software: Mathematics, Reading/Language Arts, Science

Start saving your Register Tapes Today!

Your school may order as many computers, printers and educational software packages as your account balance allows. Software offered is a mix of popular software in current classroom use. Additional software not listed may be ordered.

Note: Offer limited to elementary and secondary schools only.

WE LOOK FORWARD TO AWARDING AT LEAST ONE FREE IBM COMPUTER TO EVERY PARTICIPATING SCHOOL!
